ANSWERLINE

Q. Why is city equipment being used to clean up the large lot on north Hickory Street across from CoeJay's?

A. Because the city owns the property. It was given to them last year by James Rentfro and Margie Miller. Future plans are to put the property up for sale by sealed bids.

Massive improvement of water system on tap

A project that some Colorado City citizens have said needed to have been done at least 40 years ago is ever closer to becoming a reality.

A complete rejuvenation of the city's water system is only in the talking and planning stage right now but the city council is fast exploring ways to finance the much-needed project with as little cost to the citizens as possible.

From the very source of the water at the intake at Lake Colorado City to the last customer on the system, the city is planning to replace everything that it takes to improve the quality of water and water pressure in the city.

And if present plans work out, this will not be a piece-meal project by any means but a project that will replace existing water and sewer lines plus building a new water and waste water treatment facility.

City officials including Jim Baum, Buddy Foster, Allen Pharis and Sammy Contreras were in Austin recently and discussed the project with the Texas Water Development Board, engineers and financial advisors.

The estimated cost at this point is around $6 1/2 million. It is possible that the funds could come in the form of loans from the state. The city plans that $2 1/2 million will be paid back from ad valorem taxes and $4 million from revenue from water and sewer customers.

The city's financial advisors have said this is an amount the city should be able to pay back without strapping other services.

"Revenues from the prison and jail in the form of water and sewer fees will pay up to 60% of this obligation," said Baum. "There will also have to be an increase in the ad valorem tax rate to where it was when we paid off all our bonded indebtedness a short while back - probably up around $0.35 per $100 valuation more."

The city council has talked about a project such as this for many years but to do a project of this magnitude with tax money alone would have caused an astronomical increase in taxes.

"People may ask if we had to do this because of the prison and the jail being built," said the mayor, "I would like for you to tell them that we are able to do it because of the prison and jail."

With the project in its present planning stage, the earliest bids could be taken in early 1995.

Baum said he and other council members are readily available to discuss this project with any civic group, club or gathering.

83 acres purchased for housing development

Eighty-three acres of farm land located on the eastern boundary of Colorado City has been purchased by Bobby Nobles and Wayne Yates and will soon be converted into a housing development.

Highway 208 serves as the eastern boundary while Tenth St. bounds it on the north. Ruddick Park serves as the southern boundary and Lone Wolf Creek cuts across the middle of the 83 acres.

Nobles said work on the development - which will be known as Lone Wolf Estates - will be started in the very near future and the first house could be started within two months.

"Streets, curb, guttering and utilities are our first priority and we expect some houses to be started before this preliminary work is done," said Nobles.

Most of the land will be laid out similar to regular city lots but Nobles plans to landscape the area up and down the creek and sell larger tracts of land - up to two acres - that will back up to the creek.

"This is definitely going to be a nice development," said Nobles. Restrictions on the size of homes and materials are now being considered, he said.

More questions answered about formation of area Water Conservation District

More questions were answered Tuesday night about the need for an underground water district as the Rolling Plains Underground Water Conservation District met.

David Stubblefield, Brent Murphy, and Bill Eiland who make up the temporary RPUWCD met with two managers of area water districts. They represent the three counties who would make up the district - Mitchell, Borden and Scurry counties.

The two area managers were Harvey Everheart, manager of Mesa Underground Water Conservation District and Lee Arrington, manager of the South Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

The object of the new board is to organize and hold a public election to form an underground water conservation in the three-county area.

Everheart and Arrington spoke about the benefits of having a water conservation district and what is necessary to get a district activated.

Among topics discussed was a cap of one cent per $100 valuation in order to fund the district. Everheart said that when an election is held and citizens vote for or against having a water district a tax cap is also set. The cap cannot be raised again without another election.

A one-cent cap would amount to $10 per year for a citizen owning property with a value of $100,000. This would give the district a yearly budget of approximately $150,000.

By state law, the maximum tax amount for an underground water district cannot be more than five cents per $100 valuation.

When asked what a person would receive for their tax money, Everheart said "service in the way of testing for quality of water and for bacteria, flow testing irrigation wells and helping landowners with their water problems." A water district can save a landowner an undetermined amount of money by testing water because the district does not charge for its services, he said.

Arrington said that the purpose of the water district is to safeguard citizens' right to their water. He said that with a water district in place no one can come in, such as a large city needing more water, and mine water out from under landowners.

Another reason given to establish an underground water district is to keep "bad" legislation from passing. People will be represented on a personal and local level and have control over their own water and property, the two managers said.

Citizens can have a voice in Austin through the district manager and board of directors. Everheart also pointed out that managers and directors live in their own district, not in Austin.

In addition to the discussion on the formation of a district, Stubblefield presented Eiland - the temporary treasurer - a check for $700 donated by the Mitchell County Producers Board.

Anyone interested in learning more about the Rolling Plains Undergound Water Conservation District may contact David Stubblefield at 728-3622, 728-8031 or 235-7002 or Bobby Lemons at 728-5221. Or Van York at 756-4391 in Gail. The public is invited and encouraged to come to all meetings of the RPUWCD.

Anderson to discuss boll weevil eradication program at RPCG annual meeting

An extensive panel discussion concerning boll weevil eradication efforts in this area will highlight the annual meeting of the Rolling Plains Cotton Growers (RPCG) set for Wednesday, Feb. 16 at the Taylor County Fairgrounds in Abilene.

The panel will include Woody Anderson and Frank Myers of the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation, Bill Grefenstette of USDA-APHIS, Dr. Tom Fuchs with the Texas A & M Extension Service and Dr. Andy Jordan with the National Cotton Council.

Before this panel discussion, a short overview of current legislative issues affecting cotton producers will be given beginning at 10 a.m.

Texas Agricultural Commissioner Rick Perry will address the group right before lunch and then Congressman Charles Stenholm will be the keynote speaker during lunch. Stenholm is expected to give an update on USDA reorganization and other important federal agricultural issues.

Plan now if you would like to teach in the Windham School

The Windham School System, of the Texas Department of Corrections, will be interviewing in Colorado City for positions in the 80-John Wallace Unit on March 7, 8 & 9 and officials stress that applicants must have made application and been in contact with the Windham System in Huntsville before those dates as no walk-in applicants will be interviewed.

"Applicants need to start their process as soon as possible," said Bob Martin with the Windham School System. "We can not interview a candidate unless the packet is 100% complete and they have been contacted from Huntsville for an interview time."

Applicants may pick up packets at the Colorado City Area Chamber of Commerce office or by contacting the Windham System in Huntsville by calling 409-291-5361 and asking for Gary Clark who is head of personnel for the Western Region of the system.

At this time, fifteen academic positions are to be filled along with three vocational instructors.

The Windham System is looking for certified elementary, secondary teachers and those certified to teach English as a second language. Vocation teachers will be in the automotive field teaching tune-ups, brake repair, and repair of air conditioning and electrical systems.

Construction careers will also be taught in the fields of walls, flooring, electrical wiring, plumbing and air conditioning.

Vocational instructors are required to have a minimum of five years experience in the trade and be willing to go to school for 21 hours to get a Trades and Industry Certificate.

Martin also said two clerical positions will also be available and they will be among the first to be hired to work at the unit.

Classes at the Wallace Unit are expected to start the first of June.

The Windham School System was established by the Texas Legislature for the school year 1968-69. This program is supported by the Foundation School Program and is subject to the certification and accreditation requirements and regulations of the Texas Education Agency and the State Board of Education.

The overall goal of the Windham School Program is to provide the opportunity for its students to acquire the academic and vocational skills necessary for any adult to function in our current technical, free-world society.

WINDHAM

Approximately 78 percent of Texas' felons are school dropouts and 45 percent are illiterate. The average is 29 years, but almost one-third are 24 or under. Windham School System provides academic and vocational classes to inmates who are not already graduates of an accredited high school.

Classes are conducted on units located throughout the state. Inmates who achieve less than a sixth grade equivalency on a standardized test are required to attend school at least 15 hours per week. Others are released from work to attend classes leading to the General Education Development Certificate.

The Windham Program is unique in almost every respect. It is the first education system of such scope to be established within a statewide prison system.

Academic teachers instruct students in the areas of language arts, social studies, science, mathematics, health, physical education, music, art and pre-release life skills. In addition to the regular program, certified special education teachers work with handicapped inmates and bilingual teachers work with inmates whose primary language is not English.

The academic curriculum is non-graded, continual progress and operates on a 12-month scholastic year. Each student progresses through the various objectives of the curriculum at his own rate. An individualized instruction approach utilizing behavioral objectives is used. Instructional objectives have been developed for all areas of instruction. State-adopted texts are used in the instructional program to supplement programmed materials, audio-visual aids and commercial and locally developed adult instructional materials.

Windham School System offers vocational training in over forty different occupational fields.

The curriculum for each occupational field is competency-based. Student certification is based on the number of manipulative skills achieved and final examination scores. Students enrolled and completing the requirements for barbering are eligible to take the state examination.

The trades that are offered in various units throughout the system are air conditioning and refrigeration, auto collision repair and refinishing technology, auto specialization, barbering, bricklaying (stone masonry), building trades, business computer applications, commercial and industrial wiring, construction carpentry, comprehensive home economics, culinary arts, CVAE business office services, CVAE cooperative, CVAE institutional maintenance, dental laboratory aide, diesel mechanics, drafting, electrical trades, floriculture, graphic arts, horticulture, industrial equipment repair, introduction to construction careers, machine shop, maintenance mechanics building (facility care), major appliance repair, meat cutting, microcomputer applications, mill and cabinetmaking, office support systems, outdoor power equipment and landscape management, piping trades (plumbing), principles of technology, remodeling-interior and exterior, retail merchandising, sheet metal, small engine repair, truck driving, VEH general construction trades, vocational electronics, wall and floor trades (painting and decorating), welding.

Windham School System has been accredited by the Texas Education Agency since Sept. 1970. In Dec., 1976 Windham received accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS), thus becoming the first correctional education system in the United States to achieve such status from a regional accreditation agency. Accreditation status has been continuous until the present and encompasses every school within the system.

Homeowner info available Feb. 16th

The People for Progress, Inc. is announcing the Homeownership of Single Family Homes grant in conjunction with the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The program is intended to assist first time home buyers to purchase houses previously owned or held by all federal agencies including HUD, VA, FmHA and RTC. These houses will be sold at affordable monthly payments. First time home buyers are defined as persons who have never owned a home, persons who have not owned a home in the past three years, and divorced parents who do not own a home. The HOPE 3 program follows the HUD income eligibility guidelines for low-income people. Persons living in the Housing Authority or under Section 8 will be considered priority during the application period of the grant. Also any person who is currently working for the school system or for the City of Colorado City and is a first time home buyer is encouraged to apply.

PPI will assist eligible home buyers with one half of the down payment, all of the closing costs and home buyer counseling and training. All buyers are required to maintain HUD housing quality standards and occupy the home as their principle residence for a period of fifteen years or until they sell their home, whichever comes first. Homeowners may sell their homes at any time under certain guidelines.

All available homes will be rehabilitated to meet HUD specifications. Financing will be available for eligible persons through conventional lending institutions. Each application must undergo strict eligibility certification, be reviewed by the Affordable Housing Program Committees and approved for the loan prior to purchase of the home.

Couple's granddaughter studying flute in pursuit of doctorate

Lisa Michelle Garner, granddaughter of Willie and Marcelle Garner of Colorado City, is now in her second year, pursuing her Doctorate of Music degree in flute performance at the Shepherd School of Music at Rice University.

Lisa has a grade point average of 3.94 for the 1992 fall semester and a 3.94 for the 1993 spring and fall semesters.

Lisa is studying flute under Carol Wincence, who also teaches flute at Juilliard School of Music in New York and Arlee Dorrough, who is the principal flautist with the Houston Symphony.

Lisa, who graduated from Colorado High School in June of 1986, received her Bachelor of Music degree, cum laude, in music performance and music business from West Texas State University in the summer of 1990, after completing a six month internship in the marketing department of the London Symphony Orchestra in England.

Garner received her Master of Music degree in music performance from Florida State University in the spring of 1992 with a grade point average of 3.97.

Dear Editor:

In response to Mr. McDowell's letter, I hope to clear some misconceptions about the Community Care Building.

Years ago when the Veterans Service Office was moved to the Community Care Building the Commissioners Court designated the WEST door of the building as the entry way for veterans.

Convenience for the veteran was the reason for this decision!

Personnel in the other offices have their work to do and have never been receptionists for each other.

MHMR, Economic Development and Rural 911 are vital to the community as well as the Veterans Service Office.

Just remember the WEST entry was never meant to degrade; it's simply meant as a convenience and courtesy for our veterans.

Dear Editor:

Alternative motor fuels have become hot topics in the media and in government circles over the past several years. As more and more state and federal laws and mandates are proposed and passed regarding alternate motor fuels, it is important the public receive information regarding this issue. Texas Chemical Council has been following this topic closely and has several comments to make.

The chemical industry strongly supports the use of alternative motor fuels and, in fact, is a major producer of alternate fuel blends such as MTBE. To be considered viable, alternative motor fuels should meet the dual objectives of both reducing vehicle emissions and decreasing dependency on energy imports. Furthermore, it is imperative that these fuels compete on a "free market" basis between each other and with the new reformulated gasoline and diesel fuels required by the Clean Air Act to ensure availability of needed fuels.

Unfortunately, the alternative motor fuels movement is in many cases being driven through government intervention that includes mandates and subsidies instead of free market forces. For example, in Texas, odorized propane has a special tax applied to it which is subsequently used by the state to advertise and promote propane. In Washington, Congressman Bill Tauzin (D-LA) has recently proposed similar legislation called the "Propane Education and Research Act of 1993" (H.R. 3546 or PERA) that would tax odorized propane on a nationwide level. This legislation would create a multimillion dollar fund with one of its purposes being to develop propane markets, artificially increasing propane demand and propane prices.

It goes without saying that research and development, market studies and promotion costs should be paid for by those that will benefit, not the general consumer through taxation. Having the government collect taxes on a product and then promote the product on behalf of the business is simply bad public policy. In addition, some groups are working to have road taxes removed from certain fuels so they will appear more attractive versus existing motor fuels. With government grants and low cost loans currently in place to subsidize many fuel conversions and existing federal mandates that require alternative motor fuels for some fleet operations, why is more special treatment needed?

In summary, Texas Chemical Council supports a "free market-based" approach to the developing alternative fuels market because market intervention artificially inflates demand and increases costs to the consumer. Current efforts by groups to wrangle special tax treatment, mandates or government-run promotion programs are not in the best interest of the general public and the country as a whole.

Letter to the Editor:

People in this country have been fighting for the right to govern themselves since the 1700s yet less than half in this day and age get out and vote.

Your vote is one of your voices in government yet you give it up because you are too busy, don't care or simply don't take the time to vote. Your vote is your way of hiring or firing city, county, state or United States officials.

I know what a lot of people think because I used to think the same thing, that you've only got one vote, what difference can that make. Well, considering the fact that less than one half of the population votes, a big difference could be made if only all those one votes were cast.

You can find out about the candidates by reading the paper, watching TV, listening to the radio or in city and county elections, talk to your candidates. They want you to know them. They want you to know why they are running for office and what they hope to accomplish if elected.

There are no unimportant offices in government at any level. Your taxes are paying these people. So voice your opinion. Vote for who you consider best for the job, whether at the city and county level, state level or United States level. Don't let another election go by without your voice being heard.

Burn treatment requires immediate first aid

How a person responds in the first few minutes after a burn occurs can make a difference in the severity of the injury, according to John Griswold, M.D., assistant professor of surgery at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

"We can do a lot more to heal burns that have been given proper first aid," said Dr. Griswold, who also is medical director of University Medical Center's Timothy J. Harnar Burn Center.

February 6-12 is National Burn Awareness Week.

The first step is to stop, drop and roll if the clothes catch on fire, Dr. Griswold said.

Second, small burns should be cooled with water in order to reduce skin temperature, decrease the pain and prevent swelling. However, Dr. Griswold warned, the water should not be too cold. "Using very cold water or ice makes the body temperature drop and can cause more skin damage," he said.

The third step is to remove burned clothes. The victim should be laid flat and all non-sticking clothing should be removed. If clothing adheres to the skin, cut or tear around the area to preserve good skin tissue, Dr. Griswold said. In addition, all tight clothing, jewelry, belts and boots should be removed.

Fourth, burns should be covered with a soft, clean, dry dressing, bandage or sheet.

Finally, the victim should get medical help as soon as possible. "Do not underestimate the seriousness of a burn. It is often difficult to distinguish a burn that requires medical treatment from one that does not. When in doubt, see a doctor," he said.

Dr. Griswold emphasized that butter, ointments, sprays and creams are not helpful and may be harmful. "Anything greasy won't let the heat out and this can make a burn worse. In addition, the oil base may cause infection," he said.

Special considerations should be given to electrical and chemical injuries.

"Do not touch a person who is in contact with electricity because you will be injured. Disconnect the source of power or call for assistance from the power company and then begin first aid," he said.

Chemical injuries should be flushed with water after clothing and contact lenses are removed. Caution should be taken not to flush the chemical on parts of the body not contaminated, he said.

Nell Baldwin, longtime employee of the West Central Texas Council of Governments, has been named Director of WCTCOG's Area Agency on Aging, announced Brad Helbert, Executive Director of WCTCOG. The appointment was effective February 1. Most recently a Program Specialist with WCTCOG's Information and Assistance program for older persons, Baldwin has worked in all facets of the Area Agency on Aging, according to Helbert. Her background after graduation from West Texas A&M University included tenure as Director of Volunteer Services for Lubbock State School. Ms. Baldwin also has worked in aging program case management with the Texas Department of Human Services and in nursing home licensing and surveying with the Texas Department of Health, both in Abilene. Baldwin is a Clarendon native.

"Ms. Baldwin brings to her new role as Area Agency on Aging Director considerable experience, both with WCTCOG and with state agencies with which WCTCOG does business," said Helbert. "As our older population is changing, needs for services are changing. The ways WCTCOG provides services to these persons likewise will continue to change," Helbert added.

Ms. Baldwin's program experience and her first-hand knowledge of other key agencies will be highly valuable to WCTCOG as we take our aging programs in new directions in response to the area's older persons in a climate of change," he said. "We are excited about her assuming this new leadership role with WCTCOG."

Retired teachers meet

Mitchell County Retired Teachers Association met at noon on February 8 at the Villa Inn for a Dutch treat luncheon.

The decorations of red, white and blue balloons in wooden holders, painted like a Texas flag, were done by Gerry Stone. Copies of the McGuffey reader were arranged on the tables along with advertising pencils of long ago. Each place was marked with a pencil and a bookmark, compliments of the Mitchell County Library.

Peggy Ratliff presided in the absence of the president. Lucy Thomas gave the invocation. The program consisted of each member giving a list of activities that she did for church, education, civic or health volunteer hours. The top volunteer having the most hours for 1993 was Jane Horton with 2,657 hours. Others who were leaders were Earline Selliers, Frances Godwin and Betsy Aycock. In 1993 Mitchell County Retired Teachers totaled 17,400 volunteer hours.

Those attending the meeting were Gerry Stone, Fannie Fae Feaster, Lonie Pruitt, Mabel Merritt, Peggy Ratliff, Minnie Lee Moore, Earline Selliers, Eddie Barclay, Wilma Reynolds, Lucy Thomas, Frances Godwin, Clorine Wiman and one guest, Tom Moore.

The next meeting is scheduled for March 8 at 9:45 a.m. in Midland to tour the Petroleum Museum.

Kit's Lit

BY KITTEN ARTHUR

The Texas Education Agency has implemented two new strategies for future graduates to ensure their success in the work force of the 21st century. The Information Age is upon us and we now have startling projections based on current trends to help chart the correct courses for the future:

- Presently 50% of high school graduates are not ready for entry level job skills.
- 70% of jobs by 2000 will require technical training past high school.
- On a scale of 1-5, 50% of Texans score at the 1st or 2nd grade literacy level, while describing their reading/writing skills as "good" or "very good."

- Only 15% of careers in the United States will require a four-year degree from a university by the year 2000.

Alarming? Yes, probably, but Colorado ISD's challenge is to find a way to address future projections for employment.

One strategy proposed to "encourage" schools to address the future is the Student Assessment Program, which is growing each year in Texas. Of course, everyone is aware of the state-mandated TAAS test for grades 4, 8 and 10. Presently, this test is required for writing, reading and math proficiency. However, this year the state is adding "benchmark" testing in 4th and 8th grade social studies and science. Those tests will expand to 10th grade in 1995. In addition, the state is requiring end-of-course testing this year in Algebra I and Biology. Any student presently enrolled in these courses will be required to take the test(s) this May (benchmark status only).

What? What's left? Plenty. In the next five years the state will require proficiency in Spanish, English II, Government, Chemistry, U.S. History and Algebra II. These tests are generated for two purposes, to give students a host of "proficiency" labels for their high school transcripts and to measure schools in their efforts to teach the essential elements. At this time no one is talking of adding these tests to the graduation requirements.

To prepare our students for the assessment trend, the State Board of Education has recently approved the recommended High School Program. The key word in that title is, of course, "recommended." The new program suggests 24 credits for graduation rather than the present 21. CISD already requires 24 credits for graduation but we do not follow the recommended guidelines exactly so a Task Force has been established to study the issue. In addition to the "basic" courses already required, the recommended program includes a year of geography, three years of a foreign language, a year of computers and electives chosen from a coherent sequence of courses which lead to a specific job placement or college prep. Fortunately, because of the block schedule, our students have the opportunity to complete 32 credits so we could conceivably implement the recommended program without hurting participation in elective courses and extracurricular activities. Many schools still operate on a 6-period day, which will strongly hinder the implementation of the recommended program.

Why all the push for our students to take more courses and more tests to exemplify their competency in those courses? Simply put, our economy demands it. Our young people will be thrust all to quickly into a global marketplace and we want them to have the best preparation possible. As one State Board of Education member stated, "If a student graduates from a Texas public school with a 'regular' transcript, we have just prepared him or her for unemployment." Certainly, that is not the mission of Colorado ISD; instead, we want to prepare our students to be productive citizens in that competitive marketplace.

TCH requesting nominations for Humanities Awards

The Texas Committee for the Humanities (TCH), a state program of the National Endowment for the Humanities, is requesting nominations for the fifth year of its awards program to recognize and reward the exemplary contributions of humanities teachers in Texas elementary, middle and high schools.

In May of 1994, the TCH will award six Texas Outstanding Teaching of the Humanities Awards of $2,000 each. $1,000 of the total award will be given to the teacher to further professional development and $1,000 will be awarded to the teacher's school for the purchase of humanities instructional material and/or for the improvement of humanities courses and programs. In addition, six to eight teachers will be selected to receive Honorable Mention awards.

Any student, parent, fellow teacher, school administrator or member of the public may nominate any full time teacher presently teaching one or more humanities courses in a Texas elementary or secondary school, either public or private. TCH nomination forms must be postmarked no later than midnight March 1, 1994.

The humanities in most elementary and secondary schools are generally courses in literature, foreign languages, government, history or social studies. Although less frequently offered in secondary schools, courses in philosophy, comparative religions, ethics, anthropology and art history or music history are also included in the humanities.

Award decisions by the TCH Board of Directors are based on merit for outstanding contributions to the teaching of humanities in Texas. Examples include but are not limited to distinguished teaching, innovative teaching methods, introduction of new teaching aids such as computer software, successful introduction of a new course or coursework such as international studies, women's history or ethnic history and development of teacher training programs or workshops.

Nomination forms and further information may be obtained by contacting the TCH at (512) 440-1991.

"Make a Difference-Recycle" is the Texas Department of Transportation's theme for their new Recycling and Recycled Products program.

Maribel P. Jaso, Abilene District engineer, has asked all district employees to be players in TxDOT's aggressive recycling program.

The program has three initial goals with Jan. 1, 1995 as the target date. They are to reduce by 40 percent the amount of solid waste the department generates, spend at least 10 percent of consumable supply, material and equipment budgets on products that are recycled, remanufactured or environmentally sensitive and increase the perception of TxDOT as an environmentally sensitive agency.

William G. Burnett, TxDOT executive director, said, "The department has been recycling and reusing supplies for many years. It's time, however, that we take a leadership role both in recycling and the use of recycled products."

Several reasons are listed in the new recycling handbook why TxDOT should take a leadership role in the effort to reduce solid waste and use of recycled-content products.

For example, TxDOT is a huge

organization, the equivalent rank of 147 in the Fortune 500 list, with a responsibility to ensure that products and materials used and disposed of have the least environmental impact.

The department maintains more than 77,000 miles of roads in Texas, has over 17,000 pieces of equipment, including ferry and aviation equipment, owns more than 340 facilities across the state, including approximately 1,540 physical structures, and employs 13,000 plus employees making the money and materials invested in the highway system immense.

According to the TxDOT recycling coordinator's office in Austin, the department's efforts to recycle and use recycled materials in roadway construction and maintenance is already staggering.

For example, over 214,000 tons of fly ash, a by-product of electrical power plants, was used in Texas highways in FY93; approximately two percent of scrap tires are used in asphalt; glass beads used for paint stripping are made from old windshields and other used glass; during FY93 TxDOT used approximately 76 percent of the reclaimed asphalt generated and employees, including those in the Abilene District, recycled 231 tons of white office paper.

Also, in December 1993, Texas Highways, the official travel magazine of Texas, began being printed on a new recycled paper stock bearing the moniker Texas Highways Glass. According to Glenda Rogers, marketing manager of the magazine, the Simpson Paper Company developed the premium recycled paper especially for Texas Highways, a monthly magazine produced by TxDOT.

Herman Kelly, the magazine's publisher, says, "We like the look of this new paper almost as much as we like its name! To my knowledge, Texas Highways is the only publication with a paper named after it."

TxDOT's Recycling and Recycled Products program is somewhat unique," Burnett said, "in that each and every department can participate."

That's everyone in the department's five components, office, roadway construction and maintenance, equipment fleet, building construction and maintenance and break areas and cafeterias.

Allen Morgan, Abilene District recycling coordinator, encourages all district employees to pledge to make a difference by signing the department's Recycling Green Team form. By doing so, they pledge to reduce, re-use, recycle and use recycled products to make a difference in the quality of the environment they and future generations have to enjoy.

The Abilene District includes 13 Texas counties. They are Borden, Callahan, Fisher, Haskell, Howard, Jones, Kent, Mitchell, Nolan, Scurry, Shackelford, Stone-wall and Taylor.
