POWER CREW IS BACK ON JOB IN EL PASO

Compromise Brings
End to 12 Hour
Strike

EL PASO, March 1.—Community tragedy was averted late yesterday when 150 striking employees of the El Paso Electric Company agreed to return to work, after 12 hours of complete electrical paralysis in El Paso and Juarez, Mexico.

Residents of the twin cities had a taste of that tragedy, however, when hospitals were deprived of current and light in their operating rooms, in children's wards, and in laboratories.

Hospitals Hit
Not an X-ray machine could be used. Sterilizing equipment was put out of business. Children, frightened, cried out in the darkness until nurses brought them small flashlights.

For more than 12 hours, not a street car was running, there was no power for factories, and no electric light for homes. Lamps, candles, and improvised lights (Continued on page 5)

However, the candidate does not show up, and the newspaper reporter is forced to masquerade in her place.

M'MURRY BAND TO PLAY HERE

College Musical Group Will Give 30-Minute Concert
Wednesday Morning

McMurry College band, of Abilene, will give a 30 minute concert in Memphis Wednesday morning between 11:30 o'clock and noon.

It was announced today by Mayor B. E. Davenport.

Mayor Davenport yesterday received a communication from G. C. Boswell, dean of McMurry College, stating that the band would pass through Memphis Wednesday on a return trip from Amarillo and would play here if the citizens desired.

Mr. Davenport answered in writing the band to remain here as long as possible and promising a good turn-out of local citizens.

"I wish to urge the people to turn out Wednesday of next week and help us greet this band from one of Texas' outstanding Christian colleges," Mayor Davenport said this morning.

The band will play in Amarillo Tuesday at the second annual Mother-In-Law Day celebration.

Negro Hidden As Feeling Is High

LINDEN, Mar. 1.—Until an intense feeling here subsides, preliminary hearing for Blackie Jackson, negro accused of attempting a criminal attack on an Atlanta high school girl yesterday, will be delayed.

Jackson was held in secret custody today. Officers would not divulge what jail he was taken to.

Extends Invitation
Mrs. Hightower yesterday extended a general invitation to the public to visit the cafeteria at any and all times and see just how the project is operated.

"We believe everyone will like it and we invite you all down to eat with us," Mrs. Hightower said.

Much of the minor equipment for the kitchen and dining room was donated by local housewives, and Mrs. Hightower again extended her sincere thanks for these contributions as well as the many other contributions that made the project possible.

Surplus balances in the American Legion and the Memphis Democrat "Empty Stocking Fund" were recently contributed to the equipment of the cafeteria.

NEGRO GETS LIFE

In D. A. R. War

A rebellion in the D. A. R. against the alleged "red baiting" campaign of Mrs. William A. Becker, above, of Summit, N. R. split has resulted.

RELIEF DISPUTE IS NO NEARER SOLUTION

Outward Signs of Agreement Is Lacking

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The $4,880,000,000 relief problem lacked an outward sign of solution today despite a Senate-White House conference on the controversy.

Hope prevailed that week-end conferences would break the deadlock over the equivalent wage issue on which President Roosevelt and organized labor were divided. Conversations yesterday between the President and Senator Robinson remained secret but there was authority for believing a compromise on the work-wage fight was not discussed.

Three-Year-Old Child Dies Here

I. J. Moore, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Moore of Parnell, died in a local hospital yesterday afternoon of diphtheria.

Funeral services were to be held this afternoon at Hulver.

School Cafeteria Is Opened Today

More than 150 underprivileged children in the Memphis Area received a warm noonday meal today at the relief cafeteria which was placed in operation for the first time on the Memphis High School campus.

After an unavoidable delay of several days, the new relief project was placed in operation under the supervision of Mrs. W. V. Coursey, recently selected as supervisor by the City Council of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Open to Everyone
The cafeteria was constructed by the Memphis Junior Chamber of Commerce and equipped by Parent-Teacher organizations of the city. Relief labor was used in constructing the large frame building and underprivileged children attending local schools are being fed from relief funds.

Other students attending local schools may also purchase meals at the cafeteria, it has been pointed out by Mrs. Coursey and Mrs. N. A. Hightower, president of the City Council of P. T. A.

Memphis is one of the few cities in the Panhandle taking advantage of this opportunity to provide good substantial meals for children who otherwise might go unfed, according to Judge A. C. Hoffman, county relief administrator. "It is a mighty fine thing and I am glad to see Memphis people taking advantage of it," Judge Hoffman said.

Extends Invitation
Mrs. Hightower yesterday extended a general invitation to the public to visit the cafeteria at any and all times and see just how the project is operated.

"We believe everyone will like it and we invite you all down to eat with us," Mrs. Hightower said.

Admits Guilt in Forgery Charge

'Missing'; To Die

The crushing news that her son awaits death on the gallows for murder climaxed a six-month effort on the part of Mrs. Ida Ottey of Camden, N. J., to locate Irwin Ottey, above, and his wife. Replying to the mother's query, the Monterey, Calif., police chief wrote that her son is in San Quentin death house and his young wife is dead.

Frank Arthur, 23 of Vandervoort, Ark., an alleged member of a giant forgery ring, pleaded guilty to charges of forgery in district court here this morning and asked for a suspended sentence.

At noon today District Judge A. J. Fires recessed to prepare his charge to the jury. The case is expected to go to the jury sometime this afternoon.

Late yesterday afternoon Judge Fires pronounced a two-year penitentiary sentence on Lloyd Booth, of Crowell, who was found guilty of theft of farming tools from a Hall County farm. Upon being refused a new trial, Booth's attorney filed notice of appeal. Booth is alleged to have stolen a lister from the farm of T. J. Kittinger near Memphis on March 18, 1934.

When young Arthur took the witness stand in his own behalf this morning he placed all blame on T. M. Hayes, the alleged leader of one of the southwest's largest forgery rings. Both men together with Arthur's brother, John Arthur, and Hayes' son, Tom Hayes, have been held in the Hall County jail since their arrest on January 26. Frank Arthur is alleged to have passed a forged check at the Foster Brothers store at Plaska on that date.

In placing the blame on Hayes this morning, Arthur refuted a statement made to Captain C. W. B. Long, federal Department of Justice agent who has been working diligently on the case, that he secured the "hot check" from a man at Dallas, knowing that it was no good. This morning he testified that Hayes gave him the check at Plaska, and that he did not know that it was "hot".

It was brought out in this morning's proceedings that a complete printing and engraving outfit for manufacturing "hot checks" was recently confiscated at the Hayes home near Vandervoort, Ark. The elaborate printing outfit had been an active use in a small log smokehouse near the Hayes home for the past four years, it was said. Arthur said that Hayes "pretends to farm for a living".

Hayes recently admitted to a Democrat reported that "they've got enough stuff on send me up for the rest of my life." Captain Long "did not have a statement for the press" this morning, but it is understood that federal charges against all four men will be filed in federal court after the trial here.

KING OF SIAM ABDICATES THRONE

With Officials

CRANLEIGH, England, March 1.—King Prajadhipok of Siam was announced by his private secretary, M. R. Smaksman, today to have abdicated his throne. The king has been here on a "vacation".

His rejection of the throne followed months of internal disputes in Siam over governmental matters. Repeated conferences were held in London with a delegation of countrymen who attempted to patch up the split between the monarch and his administration officials.

The secretary said the king did not plan to issue a formal announcement of abdication, leaving that to government officials at Bangkok.

Historic College Building Burns at Half Million Loss

ALVA, Okla., March 1.—The historic main administration building of Northwestern State College was destroyed by fire today. The damage was estimated in excess of a half million dollars.

The building, the largest educational structure in Oklahoma, was constructed in the shape of an ancient Spanish castle during the Oklahoma territorial days.

Silken Spindles—

"That's your mother," Gale said. "You mustn't keep her waiting."

The shrill cry was repeated. Tommy looked up at Gale sorrowfully. "All wight," he said. "I'll go, but I'm comin' back! I want to thee that man—"

Gale hurried up the walk and into the house.

It was Brian whom Tommy wanted to see—Brian with his tricks to amuse youngsters; his gay, flattering speeches that were tricks, too.

She opened the door and called a greeting to her father, then went into the kitchen and methodically began preparing the evening meal.

After they had finished eating after the dishes had been washed and put away Josie Gridley came. Josie brought the brown dress Gale had promised to help make over. It was wrapped in a newspaper with a strip of plaid silk and a picture from a fashion magazine.

"Look," Josie said, holding the strip of plaid up to her face. "Don't you think it's kind of pretty?"

"Very pretty," Gale nodded. She had forgotten that she had promised to help Josie. She said looking at the fashion picture. "Oh, yes—this is the one we decided on, isn't it?"

She got out newspapers and cut a collar pattern. Fitting it about Josie's shoulders. She pinned the paper collar into place and Josie considered herself in the mirror and seemed pleased.

She said, "Gee, Gale, it must be swell to be able to sew like you can. I tried to make a dress once and you should have seen it! Was I a sight?"

Gale was cutting the silk, carefully to keep the edges even. "It just takes practice," she said. "It isn't hard after you've had a little practice."

Maybe that was the way with other things," she thought. Maybe after telling yourself often enough that you didn't care about a person, that you despised them, it would really be true. She hoped it was like that, hoped it with all her heart!

She drew her needle in and out of the silk, taking minute, invisible stitches. She had the binding on one half of the collar when Josie cut in sharply:

"Gale, look—you've got it on the wrong side!"

"Oh, I have, haven't I? I'll have to rip it."

Josie eyed the other girl shrewdly. She thought for an instant that there were tears in Gale's eyes, but that was ridiculous. Putting the binding of a collar on the wrong way couldn't make anyone cry.

An hour later, Josie rose to leave, the finished dress over her arm.

Floats as Italy's Challenge

Symbolic of Mussolini's aspirations in Africa is this flag-raising in Eritrea, Italian colony on the Red Sea coast. Fluttering from its lofty staff, as Italian officers stand at salute and native soldiery present arms, the green, red, and white banner flaunts a challenge across the borders to Abyssinia, where the black troops of Haile Selassie stand as a bar to further European conquest.

arm. She said, "Gee, Gale, you were swell to do this for me. It's like a new dress—"

"I'm glad I could do it," Gale told her. She really meant it. Sewing for Josie had filled the evening. She said, "Good night, Josie. See you tomorrow!"

And thus the day ended. Tomorrow, Gale told herself as she undressed and got into her plain little white gown, would be easier. Gradually the days would grow easier and she would learn to forget that she had been a silly, ridiculous little fool. She would even, some day, be able to think of Brian Westmore without that sharp stabbing pain. Maybe she would be able to take the incident as lightly as he had—

But she couldn't do that now. She found out the following evening, coming home from the mill, just how far she was from thinking rationally, dispassionately about the whole affair. She had left Josie a block behind. Turning a corner, Gale's heart suddenly ceased beating. There, ahead of her, was Brian.

The auditorium was full last Sunday morning for the sermon by Banister. Quite a good interest prevailed. One woman made the confession of her faith and was baptized Sunday night. The Sunday night audience was small due to the sandstorm, but in spite of that 33 were present for the sermon. Women's class had 43 present for their study in Acts Tuesday afternoon, and 40 were present for prayer meeting. These attendance marks are off some but we hope to build them up. We invite you to this church for worship.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES

PALACE

"The Human side," a delightful comedy-drama starring Adolphe Menjou and featuring Doris Kenyon, Betty Lawford, Charlotte Henry, Joseph Cawthorn and a cast of outstanding players opened at the Palace Theatre yesterday. Wholesome, funny and punctuated with humanly dramatic moments, Universal's "The Human side" can well be regarded an outstanding film.

The plot is beautifully constructed, twisting from situation to situation in surprising fashion.

Unusual Film Comes Tomorrow To Palace

"The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," strange, powerful screen drama, comes to the Palace Theatre tomorrow, telling a story of novelty and timeliness.

Claude Rains, who made his screen debut as the mysterious unseen character of "Invisible Man," and impressed himself indelibly upon everyone's memory, is the star of this screenplay. It is a typically Claude Rains role, dynamic, artistic, subtle, which this Theatre Guild star plays for all its worth. He is supported by an exceptional cast, including Joan Bennett, Lionel Atwell, Baby Jane, Henry O'Neill, Lloyd Hughes, Lawrence Grant and many other popular screen players.

Zeb Moore left last night for Dallas to attend a meeting of officials, agents and salesmen of the Kansas City Life Insurance Company in session there today and tomorrow.

RITZ

From millionaire sportsman to $20 a week reporter is the ironic fate of "Tony Sheridan," portrayed by Norman Foster, in Columbia's "Behind the Evidence," at the Ritz Theatre.

The story, an original by Harold Shumate, is crammed full of thrills and interest, with an excellent supporting cast headed by Sheila Mannors in the leading feminine role, Donald Cook, Frank Darien, Geneva Mitchell and Pat O'Malley, Lambert Hillier directed.

Banister To Hold Meet at Lakeview

John H. Banister, minister of the local church of Christ, will begin a revival at Lakeview Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock to continue indefinitely. This meeting is sponsored by the Memphis church of Christ. The Old Theatre building has been rented and renovated for the meeting.

Since he will be there to preach also Sunday night, there will be no services Sunday night in Memphis. Practically the entire congregation will accompany Banister to Lakeview for the first two services of the meeting. The services will be held at 7:30 each evening. The public is invited and urged to come.

1. The letters in each of the accompanying anagrams when arranged properly will spell the names of ten words. Two of the words each week will be selected by the editor. You are invited to solve the anagrams. Write your solutions in a sentence of not more than 30 words (you may use less if you wish), and try for one of the ten prizes.

2. To the persons who send in the best entries in accordance with these rules, The Democrat will give a basket of groceries and ten tickets to the Ritz Theatre. The basket of groceries will be offered as first prize, and the tickets to the Ritz as second prize, and one each to the next eight contestants.

3. This offer is open to all except employees of The Democrat and their families. You pay nothing.

4. Awards will be made on the basis of the most correct list of anagrams and the cleverest sentence rearranging the letters in each anagram to a word in common usage. Then check the food and grocery ads in today's Democrat and place a cross mark in the square if you find either of the two grocery stores advertised. If the item is NOT advertised, do not mark.

Then arrange the ten words into a sentence of not more than thirty (30) words. You may use less words.

5. All entries will be considered by a committee appointed by the Democrat. Contestants agree to the decisions of the committee as final. Judgments are based upon suitability of words inserted, and cleverness in checking, cleverness in arranging the sentence, neatness. No special consideration will be given to ornate entries. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded to tying contestants.

6. All entries must be received at the Democrat by four o'clock Saturday afternoon.

You need not purchase The Democrat to compete. You may use the handy blank submitted here, or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. Winners will be announced in Sunday's Democrat.

Deputy Sheriff Slain by Negro

By Associated Press
UVALDE, March 1.—Deputy Sheriff J. W. Haygood of Uvalde County was shot to death here last night by a negro he sought to arrest for murder. Haygood was hit in the chest with a load of buckshot as he stepped from his automobile in the outskirts of town and attempted to arrest the negro. He died instantly. The negro, John Trapper, wanted for slaying his estranged wife here last night, also shot at City Marshal J. A. Couser, who had accompanied Haygood on an all-day hunt for the negro. Couser, unharmed, shot the negro in the leg and arrested him. He was placed in jail here, and County Attorney D. W. Suttle prepared a murder complaint. Shortly after the negro was jailed a group of about 75 men gathered around the jail and mob violence was feared. The crowd soon dispersed, however, but continued to form small groups near the jail.

AN INCOME TAX IN TEXAS

REPRESENTATIVE BRIAN BRADBURY of Abilene yesterday introduced into the Texas House an income tax on "natural persons and corporations" that would, it is estimated, raise between five and seven million dollars annually.

According to Bradbury's plan, the tax on persons would range from one per cent on $1,000 to 11 per cent on incomes exceeding $11,000. The corporation tax starts at one per cent on the first thousand and would reach a maximum of six per cent on incomes $6,000 upward.

On the face of it, this seems to be a sane, fair tax system, and the revenue enters enormous figures. But the important question is, in our opinion, what old taxes would this new tax system replace? It seems just that we should be taxed according to our incomes, with various and sundry exemptions to cover varying operating and living conditions, but can we stand for this new drain on the pocketbook without the stopping of other drains?

We can recall no previous period in state and federal history when there has been such a widespread hunt for new sources of income for our governments. And there appears to be little hope of a let-up or even a stand-still for several years to come.

In the case of the state income tax, we can stand for this drain, but we could not survive a federal income tax, a state income tax, a county income tax, a city income tax and a school income tax if they were all forced upon us at one time. Sooner or later, this business is going to reach the limit, and then there will be a tax-lowering trend that probably will go to the extreme in the opposite direction before it is checked.

Such a trend would be brought about by the people, enraged or depressed over unbearable government expenses. If this is to be the case, would it not be better to start at once, bring our legislators around to understanding that the government must reach a modest average on expenditures and that the "every day" taxes must be evenly assessed?

The graduated income tax may solve one problem, but we want to know if it is to re-distribute taxation or merely open another avenue through which to drain our pocketbooks?

GERMAN JOB PLAN NOT FOR DEMOCRACY

NOT the least valuable way of sizing up our own re-employment program is to have an occasional look at the things other nations are doing to solve the problem.

One of the most instructive contrasts is to be found in Germany.

On April 1 the Nazi government begins a new assault on unemployment which will have the result of making every person under 25 a unity in a rigidly state-controlled labor scheme.

All jobs for persons under 25 will be at the disposal of the state. A young person holding a job will be required to place his services at the disposal of the state-labor service. This organization will have the power to send him to work on a farm, to toil on a construction project, or to enroll in a labor camp.

Thus the young worker is to pass under the sway of a centralized, disciplined authority quite as rigid and strict as that of military conscription. He will not try to start his career as soon as he gets out of school; instead, he must work at jobs someone else picks for him until he is halfway through his 20's, and not until then can he choose his own employment.

Now the reason for examining that scheme in such detail here is not to find a new basis for criticism of Herr Hitler, but simply to point out that control of this kind is the logical result of any nation-wide, authoritarian control of the labor market by the central government.

Once you depart from a free, fluid labor market you are headed, ultimately, toward this or something like it.

Our own re-employment program has manifold imperfections, certainly. Some of these are inherent in any attempt to put people back to work before the slow processes of recovery can get uncoiled, and others arise from the fact that we are seeking to do the job through voluntary means.

WHERE AM I?

HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine
The peculiar greenish yellow appearance you may notice on the skins of some persons is due in most cases to jaundice, or a discoloration of the tissues of the body by bile.

The scientific term for this condition is icterus. It is derived from a Greek word referring to a certain kind of weasel whose eyes are yellow.

The bile gets into the blood from the gallbladder or liver and is then deposited by the blood in the tissues. Ordinarily the bile passes from the gallbladder into the intestines and is passed out of the body.

There are many different causes of jaundice. Anything which stops the bile passages will cause the bile to reabsorb into the blood. If too much blood is destroyed in the tissues of the body, too much bile pigment is let loose in the blood stream.

If the liver cells are greatly damaged by inflammation or infection, the function of the liver is interfered with and bile gets into the blood.

Some forms of jaundice, caused by changes in the functions of the body, interfere with the usual working of the mechanism for taking care of blood that is destroyed and for developing bile.

Then, too there may be many different causes associated with blocking of the bile passages. It may be caused by a gallstone, by an inflammation resulting from any one of a number of different infections, by tumors which press on the bile passages and by parasites of various kinds.

There are also certain diseases of the body affecting the blood-forming organs, such as pernicious anemia and such infections as malaria and black water fever, which destroy blood so rapidly that jaundice results.

Jaundice sometimes is seen after blood transfusion when the bloods are not properly mated.

It is well known that certain poisons like chloroform, arsenic, and phosphorus are particularly damaging to the liver. In cases of poisoning with such substances, jaundice not infrequently occurs.

Stories in STAMPS

"HAS BEEN, IS AND WILL BE"

HARD on the Bolivian border of the embattled Gran Chaco in South America presses the tired army of Paraguay.

For two and a half years Bolivia and Paraguay have fought for this jungleland, and yet the bedraggled armies hold on grimly.

In 1932 Paraguay issued a stamp showing the map of this disputed territory and carrying that country's boast, "Northern Chaco has been, is and will be Paraguay's."

Recently, Paraguay reissued this stamp, surcharged with a red C, as if to vaunt this challenge again into the faces of her enemy.

(Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)
NEXT: What is the most costly stamp in the world?

It, therefore, is necessary for the doctor in every case in which the skin and whites of the eyes appear yellowish to make a study first as to what part of the bile mechanism is involved and then to regulate the care of the body accordingly.

As soon as John D. Rockefeller hears that Andrew Mellon has a personal fortune of only $95,000,000, John D. might offer Andrew a dime, if that will help.

President Roosevelt has got the over-pressmen voting so often for relief funds, many will vote for the soldiers' bonus just out of habit.

BEHIND THE SCENE IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

It's Ghastly to Think What Politicians May Do With Four Billion Work-Relief Fund . . . Tennessee Case Is Awful Example . . . Spoilsmen Have Their Way.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Who will keep the politicians and grafters from sinking their hooks into the $4,000,000,000 to be appropriated for work-relief?

This question is being whispered all over Washington. If anyone knows the answer, he isn't telling.

Emphatic point is given to the query when you check up on what's been happening under the federal relief administration of Harry Hopkins. Remember that Harry Hopkins is a non-political idealist and one of the very few big shots here who could be depended on to fight off the pervading influence of partisan politics in the handling of federal funds.

Hopkins has won his battles in some states. He has failed miserably in others.

Typical of what has happened in the latter is what happened in Tennessee—some of our non-political jitters, now that all those billions are to be spent just before and during a national election year.

Refuses to Play Politics

Col. Walter L. Simpson was made director of relief in Tennessee at a time when relief affairs there needed reorganizing. No one says he didn't do an excellent job.

Last fall politicians besieged him to put his relief crews and the unemployed to work in the campaign. He was asked to follow the good old Tennessee custom by pouring relief funds into certain key counties to help the machine.

Simpson refused to aid either the Democratic ticket of Senator Kenneth McKellar, Senator Nathan Bachman, and Gov. Hill McAlister or the fusion ticket of their opponents.

Instead, he repeatedly threatened to fire any of his people who engaged in politics.

That refusal sealed his doom.

Target of Both Sides

While fusionists were shouting that they had been defeated by Simpson's efforts, McKellar and Bachman—victorious—came here to complain that Simpson had worked against them.

Hopkins told them Simpson was a gubernatorial appointee and could be fired only by McAlister. McAlister passed the buck back to Washington and demanded formal confirmation of his authority to fire Simpson and appoint Judge Barton Brown, a political-minded follower. He got it and Brown was appointed.

Simpson refused to resigning he had been appointed FERA officials in Washington would have to be re-elected.

Hopkins wired Simpson thought his resignation "to the interest of relief Tennessee."

The politicians wiped from their ax, happy to see Hopkins share the onus of execution.

Insulted by Trade Tale

Meanwhile, McKellar here as a spoilsman junketing in the Philippines arrived back in New York reporters that the four billion dollar work-relief bill had passed without some new

The Senate committee the bill was almost divided on various amendments strongly opposed by the opposition. McKellar swung behind the administration about the time Simpson was eased out by Hopkins' action.

Both FERA and McKellar came furiously indignant reports that McKellar agreed to support the bill in exchange for Simpson's dismissal.

Cyclone Downs Estelline in Overtime Period

League Stars Meet Undeclared Clarendon College Fight

INVADES EAGLE NEST TONIGHT FOR FINAL

Scores 10 Points to Tie Game; Malone Gives 21-20 Win

Squaring their final five-game series, the Memphis Cyclone cagers roared up from far behind the Estelline Cubs last night, tied the score just before the final whistle and then captured the tilt, 21 to 20, in a three-minute overtime period.

Tonight the Cyclone invades Lakeview for a clash with the fighting Eagles, the final tilt of the local season.

With little more than five minutes to play last night, the Cyclone, trailing 19 to 9, went on a rampage that netted 10 straight points before the game ended, knotting the score at 19-all.

Malone Is Hero
In the extra period, Malone, Cyclone forward and the game's leading scorer, sent the locals into a two-point lead. Clifton, Estelline forward, claimed one point on a foul by Grimes, but the Cubs missed a chance to go into the lead when one field shot went wide.

The Cubs took the lead as soon as McCulloch's shot overcame the one-point tally by McAbee, which started the scoring. They ran up an 8-5 lead at the end of the first quarter and increased it to 11-7 at the half. The Cubs led 14 to 9, at the end of the third round and scored five points at the offset of the final session before the Cyclone rallied. Trailing by 10 points, the Cyclone went on a rampage, with field goals by Grimes, McAbee and two by Malone.

Malone Ties Score
A scant few seconds before the game ended, McCulloch, Cub's tall center, fouled out, and Malone sank the two free shots needed to tie the count. The game ended before either team could get another shot. With McCulloch out, the Cyclone ruled the toss, but at that, Estelline had one chance to win the game during the last three minutes.

Both clubs missed numerous short shots, and the tilt was not especially exciting—apparently in the bag for the Cubs—until the Cyclone spree started. After that it was fast and rough until the end.

In the first game of the double-header, the Cub second stringers defeated the Memphis reserves, 20

HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Headed for the Stanley Cup playoffs for the ninth consecutive campaign, the remarkable New York Rangers are striking examples of the old axiom, "A good offense is the best defense."

Despite the Rangers' success down through the years and phenomenal comeback this season, Lester Patrick admits that they are not a first-rate defensive array.

"When we stop trying to score, we begin to look bad," explains the silvery-thatched Victorian.

Patrick led five forwards the other night when the Detroit Red Wings tied his veterans, 3-to-3.

"Our defense was poor, so why not try our offense?" says the New York strategist. "I was willing to gamble that we would get another goal or two."

Jack Dempsey and the old New York Yankees thought along the same line in boxing and baseball. It is a logical line of reasoning when the power is there.

The rise of the Rangers since Dec. 11 illustrates the importance of the goalie. That was when Davey Kerr replaced Andy Aitkenhead in the nets. The Rangers won only three of 11 games prior to the switch. They have traveled at an .800 clip since.

Kerr Splendid Investment
"Aitkenhead lost the boys' confidence," asserts Patrick. "When the opposing team scored first, they became discouraged, knowing they had to get at least two goals to win."

"We paid big money for Kerr, and he has been worth it. He sold himself to the other players at once. They began to get the first goal themselves 50 per cent of to 15, also evening the count in their two-game final series.

Friendship Spurs Cards' Success

WHEN RED BIRDS FIRST TOOK WINGS

Charley Barrett, famous scout, rallied to Branch Rickey, his friend of Texas League days. Barrett helped to perfect vast Cardinal chain.

Samuel Bredon, young automobile distributor who originally invested $2000, quietly bought stock and became president of the club in 1920.

Rickey. The genial Barrett's many friends and acquaintances, the vast majority of them years his junior, call him Charley. Mr. Barrett, somehow, just doesn't fit.

Barrett's fault at bat prevented him from realizing his major league ambition as a player. He entered the big show via the back door, so to speak, when Col. Robert Lee Hedges, owner of the St. Louis Browns, recognized his talent for picking up unpolished ivory in 1909.

Thus it was that his old sidekick was first to greet Rickey when B. R. returned to baseball as business manager of the Browns in 1912. The tie between them has been more tightly knotted with each succeeding year.

Sends for Old Friend

Barrett switched to the Detroit Tigers just long enough to uncover Bing Miller shortly before Rickey organized the group that purchased the Cardinals in 1917. The first man B. R. sought to assist him in his new undertaking was his intimate of the Texas League days, and the ivory expert obtained permission from Frank J. Navin to renew his old relationship.

Barrett helped Rickey sell Cardinal stock at $25 a share, and bought what he could himself.

With the club heavily in debt, Rickey leased a small office in the Railway Exchange Building in St. Louis. He managed to produce a desk and a couple of chairs. Barrett dug down in his own pocket and bought ink and pen points. Rickey took rugs from his home while Mrs. Rickey was away from the city, so that the office might have some aspect of prosperity.

"One day I came to the office and Branch was on his hands and knees, rolling up the rugs," recalls Barrett.

"What's the matter, Branch?" I asked him.

"Hurry, Charley," he replied. "Mrs. Rickey telegraphed that she's coming home today. We've got to get these rugs out to the house right away, or she'll find out about it."

Barrett Foxy Forager

Rickey appreciated the worth of Barrett, who had uncovered such stars as Jeff Tesreau, George Foster, Arthur Fletcher, Bill Killefer, Hank Severide, Muddy Ruey and Charley Grimm.

Barrett's contributions to the St. Louis Nationals include Jim Bottomley, Ray Blades, Heinie Mueller, Lester Bell, Andy High Flint Rhem, Sylvester Johnson, Pepper Martin, Allyn Stout and Fritz Ostermueller, the southpaw sold to the Boston Red Sox by the Rochester subsidiary.

In 28 consecutive years as a scout, Barrett has traveled more

First and Last Purchase

Rickey was lucky enough to gather $10,000 together with which to purchase Pitcher Jesse Haines from Kansas City in the fall of 1919, but something had to be done.

It was.

During the winter of 1919, Samuel Bredon, a young automobile distributor who came in with an original investment of $2000, quietly bought up stock. He succeeded Rickey as president, giving the latter more time to devote to managing, although always with an eye to the business problems.

Ten thousand dollars was little enough to pay for a pitcher of Haines' caliber as far back as 1919, but it was the first and last direct expenditure of any size made for material by the Rickey-directed Cardinals.

Rickey and Barrett worked out the farm system. Bredon, a shrewd Scotsman, co-operated in a business way.

NEXT: Rickey, the manager.

Equally Unlike Today

Barrett found it necessary to quit school at the age of 14 and go to work as a messenger boy in St. Louis.

Charley had no newfangled ideas about baseball. He knew that the main one was to get on and then around the bases. A remarkable base runner, his biggest handicap was that he could not steal first base.

Barrett was far from a total abstainer, had no qualms about Sunday activities, and thoroughly enjoyed his association with players of the old school.

Rickey and Barrett are equally unlike today. While Rickey admits that some of the exalted notions he took into the game have had to be considerably modified, he still is the man of four degrees, the university trustee, and public speaker. His older associates call him B. R.; the younger ones Mr.

the time. They regained confidence and started to step out and try things. They lost their psychological handicap.

"Other factors contributed to our drive. Our veterans, who had started slowly, commenced to perform up to their abilities."

"We put the Bun and Bill Cook-Frank Boucher line back together and found it as good as ever."

"We had a problem with our second line, Murray Murdoch, though a fine player, is no feeder. We moved Lynn Patrick up from the third line to center on the second and moved Murdoch to left wing where he belongs."

"The boys weren't bumping the attackers as they should. We got hold of Harold Starr, told him what we wanted, and he started to do it. He set an example for the other defensive men and we began to improve as a defensive club."

Leather-Bound Reason

Jack Torrance's failure to set a new world indoor shotput mark probably is due to the fact that the Louisiana giant is accustomed to the brass-bound outdoor weight. The slippery leather-covered indoor shot is a treacherous missile to handle with sweaty hands even though they are as big as Baby John's. . . . The Olympic Games evidently are no lure for Keith Brown. . . . The Yale luminary announces that he will retire as a pole vaulter upon graduation this spring. . . . Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, has advised Joe Gallagher, 6 foot 200-pound prospect from Buffalo and Manhattan College, to be his understudy at first base. . . . Gallagher has played in the outfield and at third base. . . . Riggs Stephenson and Roger Peckinbaugh have been offered the position of baseball coach at Wisconsin. . . . Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League officials complain that what Dr. Eddie O'Brien, noted Boston referee, said last fall in regard to football coaches having too much to say about the appointment of officials, is being felt in the cage game. . . . Something certainly is affecting their work.

CHARMING GIRL! MAY I ASK WHERE YOU ARE BOUND FOR, SIR?

TO PARADISE, YOUNG MAN.... PARADISE!!! THERE, SEE THAT ISLAND? THAT'S IT

HMMM... RATHER OUT OF THE WAY, ISN'T IT? VERY FEW BOATS TOUCH THERE, SIR....

SO MUCH THE BETTER! THE SHIP IS GOING TO DROP MY SISTER AND ME OFF THERE AND PICK US UP AGAIN IN THREE MONTHS

BUT WHY, IN HEAVEN'S NAME, WOULD YOU SELECT SUCH AN ISOLATED SPOT? WHAT DO YOU INTEND TO DO THERE? HOW WILL YOU MANAGE? AFTER ALL, YOU AND YOUR SISTER ARE HARDLY ACCUSTOMED...

OH, THAT'S ALL ARRANGED

YOU SEE, I BOUGHT THE ISLAND, AND I INTENDED FOR A FRIEND OF MINE, AN OLD PROSPECTOR, AND HIS WIFE, TO MAKE THIS TRIP! I WANTED HIM TO LOOK THE PLACE OVER FOR COMMERCIAL POSSIBILITIES! BUT AT THE LAST MINUTE, MY SISTER AND I DECIDED TO GO IN THEIR PLACES! THEIR LUGGAGE IS ALL ON BOARD..... EVERYTHING FROM A NUT CRACKER TO EAR MUFFS! HIS NAME IS BROWN... YOU MIGHT HAVE HEARD OF HIM...

HUH! THEY CERTAINLY ARE TRAVELIN' LIGHT! ALL SHE HAS IS THIS OVER-NIGHT BAG....NOTHIN' IN IT BUT SOFTIES...TH' SPIKEFUL LITTLE BRAT!

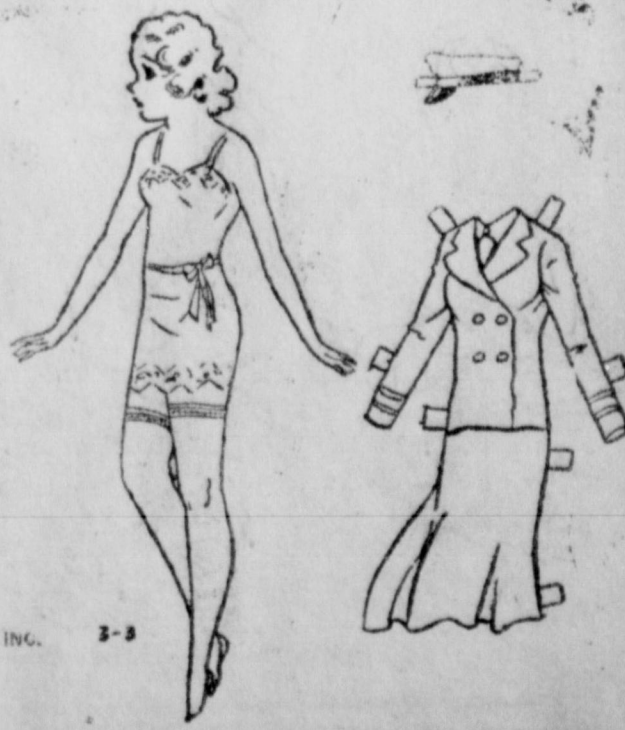

LOOK AT THAT, SIS! MMMM... WHAT A SIGHT! IT'S PERFECT!

MONSTERS OF THE PREHISTORIC PAST

ERYOPS (AERY-COFFS)

MILLIONS OF YEARS BEFORE THE DINOSAURS APPEARED, THE MAJOR PREHISTORIC OF THE LAND WERE AMPHIBIANS, CREATURES THAT ENJOINED FROM FISH-LIKE MONSTERS OF THE DEEP. THE ERYOPS WAS A SHANT SWAMP THESE EARLY AMPHIBIANS, BEING ABOUT EIGHT FEET LONG WITH A HUGE SKULL AND FRONK, SO HEAVY, THAT, EVEN THOUGH HIS LIMBS WERE STRONG AND STURDY, IT IS DOUBTFUL THAT THEY COULD SUPPORT HIM FOR ANY GREAT LENGTH OF TIME.

"BIG TREES" (SEQUOIA GIGANTEA)

AT ONE TIME, THE BIG TREES THRIVED IN THE NORTH TEMPERATE ZONE OF BOTH HEMISPHERES. NOW THEY ARE TO BE FOUND ONLY IN A SMALL AREA ON THE WESTERN SLOPE OF THE CALIFORNIA SIERRAS.

SOME OF THE TREES STANDING IN THIS AREA WERE LARGE TREES THOUSANDS OF YEARS BEFORE CHRIST WAS BORN.

The GENERAL SHERMAN TREE, WHICH STANDS IN SEQUOIA NATIONAL PARK, IS CONSIDERED THE WORLD'S LARGEST LIVING THING. IT IS KNOWN TO BE THOUSANDS OF YEARS OLD AND HAS AN ESTIMATED WEIGHT OF 6,000 TONS.

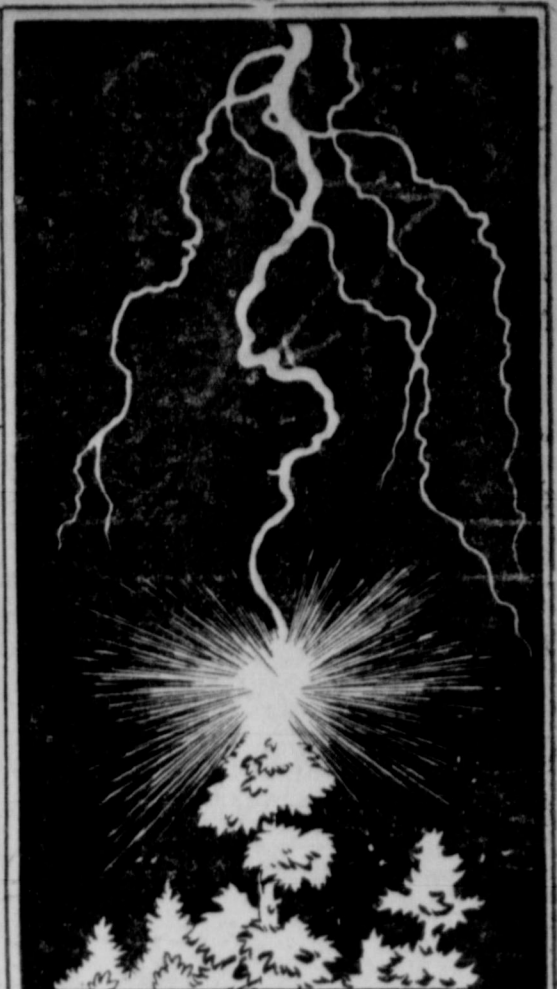

FOREST FIRES HAVE LITTLE EFFECT ON THE THICK-BARKED GIANTS OF THE PLANT WORLD.

EVEN THE SEEDS OF THE BIG TREE SEEM INDESTRUCTIBLE.

BUT SEQUOIAS MUST DIE, AND WHEN THESE 300-FOOT MONARCHS GO DOWN, THE ROAR DROWNS OUT THE THUNDER OF THE STORM THAT FELS THEM.
