United Way delivers at 118 percent

Volunteer workers here Wednesday made good their promise for a revised United Way campaign for Scurry County.

An effort to date equaling 118 percent was revealed by Drive Chairman Roy McQueen during the final report meeting for the 1984 campaign.

In actual dollars, this equaled $89,951 — more than $14,000 above this year's announced goal of $75,830.

The report also marked a turnaround for the effort here — which provides funding for such local organizations as the Boys Club, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Snyder Child Day Care Center, Red Cross, Salvation Army and the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

Last year, the effort fell short of its hoped for goal of $77,300. The previous year, United Way reached its goal of $70,253 — but only after several weeks of extending the campaign.

To address this, McQueen and United Way President Ray Robinson — who also served during 1983 — agreed to serve an additional year to help "turn around" the local effort.

This included realigning the drive's divisions, to include a new Pacesetter Division which sought out the individual Scurry County worker at some of the county's larger businesses and industries.

An increased mail-out campaign was implemented also to reach more out-of-county donors — relying heavily on the oil industry and royalty owners.

In addition, a special campaign coordinator staffer was added — with Carol Egelston hired for this post — and United Way records and mailing lists were transferred to computer records.

The end result as reported Wednesday equaled plus-100 percent goals in almost every drive division.

McQueen was complimentary of all drive division chairmen, noting that some goals were set "in the dark" due to the realignment of divisions.

With the effort now standing at 118 percent, McQueen said he expected the level to eventually rise to 120 percent, well in excess of the $90,000 level.

The final meeting of United Way directors for 1984 is planned some time in December to determine officers for 1985 and to set allocation plans for United Way funds to its member agencies.

The break down by divisions as of Wednesday included:

Q. — Is there to be any official event in Snyder connected with the Great American Smokeout?

A. — The local unit of the American Cancer Society is encouraging individuals to give up their habit Thursday as the "smokeout" is observed across the U.S. Posters have been put up advertising it, but no official event is scheduled.

Blood effort at 850

The final county-wide blood drive for 1984 here yielded 126 units of blood, bringing the year-to-date figure for six drives to 850 pints.

The effort featured also 131 individuals registering to give blood and 14 first time donors.

In addition, pins were presented to donors whose giving has placed them in the "gallon" category.

Pins were given out to Freda Shepard, a 3-gallon donor; Johnny Ferris and Don Adams, 2-gallon donors; and James Day and Bobby Gunnels, 1-gallon donors.

The local drives are jointly sponsored by the advisory committee for United Blood Services of Lubbock and the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

Volunteer workers Wednesday expressed thanks to Pack 36 of the Boy Scouts, who helped with clean up activities following the drive.

Cub masters are JoAnn Bishop and Anne Overhulser. Scouts helping were James Bishop, Marc Bishop, Libby Bishop, Clinton Garcia, Todd Goodlett, Kelly Kirkpatrick, Trent Whitney,

Building use, travel schedule adopted

The Snyder school board took only one hour to dispense of its school business for November Tuesday — approving new schedules for both staff travel expense and the use of school facilities for out-of-school activities.

The board also approved a new school homework policy which included suggested time limits for at-home study. The policy was described as an attempt to bring consistency systemwide regarding how much homework is given and what study areas are covered.

The policy passed Tuesday with one board member abstaining, J.M. (Mule) Kayser. Board members voting for it were Leslie Butler, Allen Grimmett and Mike Reed. Board President J.D. Hinton was not required to vote and Lillie Sullivan and G.A. Parks Jr. were both absent.

The travel expense schedule approved will allow staffers on out-of-town school trips some $22 per day for meals. Broken down, this includes $5 for breakfast, $7 for lunch and $10 for dinner.

In addition, lodging expenses will be reimbursed by the school district on receipt. There was some discussion Tuesday to "cap" the amount allowed for motel or hotel expenses, but Superintendent Bob Hawes told the board he felt school staffers would voluntarily "police themselves" regarding this.

As part of these travel expenses, the board voted to reimburse staffers traveling out of the county 23 cents per mile when private vehicles were used.

The rental schedule for school facilities included a stipulation that the board reserves the right to deny the request if it is felt the

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Some folks' work habits are a lot like French bread--one long loaf."

The government has done it again!

Senior Citizen Centers all across the nation, which recieve even a cent of federal funds, have received one of those all-wise mandates from Washington.

Senior Citizen Centers have received directives concerning public prayers in the center. All across the country, including Snyder, Senior Citizens pause before the noon meal and offer a prayer of thanksgiving.

Now it seems that someone is suppose to stand up and warn the audience that there is about to be a prayer and that participation is optional.

We've never thought of it before, but prayer is always optional. If a person doesn't want to be included in the thought, we suppose he could just stare out the window and watch the leaves turn.

But that's not all. The directive also stated that any paid staffer may not lead the prayer. The government telling a person he doesn't have to pray is one thing, but the feds telling a person he can't pray seems a little much.

And those folks in Washington wonder why there is a loss of confidence in government.

This time of year, many schools celebrate homecoming with a giant bonfire, and the newspaper in Gatesville published a homecoming picture that said a lot.

Students there had gathered piles and piles of wood and other items that lend themselves to a hot fire and leaping flames.

The real kicker was the item mounted atop that huge pile of lumber and trees. It was a hand-painted sign of the times which read "Ross Perot, House Bill 72."

How appropriate.

Last week it was six weeks test times in Snyder public schools.

One SHS freshman was agonizing over a series of stated problems in math. The mother agreed that those problems, aimed at sharpening the student's problem-solving ability, were pretty tough.

It wasn't long before the student asked the question that has been asked many times before. "When am I ever going to use stuff like this?"

The mother smiled because she finally had an answer to that age-old question. "You'll need to know this when you have kids and they need help with their homework."

Board adds AD secretary

A fulltime secretary for the athletic director's post at Snyder High School was approved Tuesday by school board members.

The staff addition was at the request of newly appointed AD Dennis Tomlin, who accepted the position Oct. 12 in addition to his duties as head coach.

As planned, the secretary's post will take on some responsibilities now apportioned out to other school personnel.

This includes handling ticket sales for athletic events; insurance claims and responsibilities for athletes; plus the expanded UIL requirements this year involving the eligibility of athletes.

The secretary's position for an 11-month contract was approved unanimously by the board. Tomlin indicated he would begin interviews for the job immediately.

Homes due ISD paper

A new Snyder school system newspaper — called "Snyder School's Scoop," is to be carried home Wednesday afternoon by all children in the system.

The paper's distribution will coincide with the distribution of report cards for the second six-weeks.

The eight-page tabloid is designed to "let the parents and the taxpayers know what's going on in the district," according to Dr. Tom Scannicchio, assistant superintendent for curriculum and the administrative official in charge of the paper's preparation.

He said two more papers are planned during the school year. In addition to every school parent, the paper is to be distributed to select areas of the county as well.

Deliveries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Additional Soviet vessels bearing military equipment are headed toward Nicaragua as part of an arms buildup for the Sandinista government that already has gone well beyond the small nation's defensive needs, the Reagan administration says.

The White House, the State Department and the Pentagon all issued statements Tuesday expressing concern about recent and impending weapons deliveries and about Sandinista intentions toward other Central American countries.

At the State Department, deputy spokesman Alan Romberg said even though there is no indication Nicaragua has received advanced combat aircraft, the level of heavy weaponry that the Sandinistas have been acquiring "exceeds anything which is justifiable in purely defensive terms."

Get satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Shouting "I've got it!" free-flying astronaut Dale Gardner corraled the stranded Westar 6 satellite today, making it 2-for-2 for Discovery's spacewalking salvage crew.

"It's perfect ... beautiful," Gardner exclaimed as he speared the satellite's engine nozzle with a lance-like locking pole.

A magnificent television picture from the spaceship showed Gardner slowly approaching and then snaring the slowly-spinning target against a backdrop of the blue, cloud-mottled Earth and its horizon.

Kill opponent

ZAMBOANGA CITY, Philippines (AP) — Mayor Cesar Climaco, a vocal and longtime opponent of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, was shot and killed today by a gunman who fled into a field of tall grass and eluded scores of officers searching for him.

The popular 68-year-old mayor, described by one opposition figure as a "pillar" of the nation's anti-Marcos forces, won a race in last May's national parliamentary elections but refused his seat because he did not want to step down as mayor of Zamboanga City, 540 miles southeast of Manila.

Baby Fae is now back on respirator

Did You Know?

Cogdell Memorial

That a minor cannot be treated in the Emergency Room without parents or guardian's Consent unless it is life Threatening

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Baby Fae, who had been breathing on her own, is back on a respirator and being fed intravenously to preserve strength for the struggle to keep her tiny body from rejecting the baboon heart she received 19 days ago.

The month-old baby's anticipated rejection attempt began Friday and intensified Monday when she began receiving a second drug to combat her immune system's attack on the foreign organ, Loma Linda University Medical Center spokeswoman Patti Gentry said Tuesday.

Baby Fae, the longest-lived human recipient of a heart from another species, was "active and alert" and responding to the new drug, Ms. Gentry said.

The new drug, lymphocyte immune globulin, was being given intravenously along with cyclosporine-A, another immunosuppressant, and infant formula. Oral feedings were suspended "to reduce stress on her intestinal tract," Ms. Gentry said.

The second drug was introduced Monday because Baby Fae was not responding adequately to the cyclosporine, said hospital spokesman Richard Schaefer. Diminished heart function and urine output have resulted from the rejection, officials said.

Schaefer noted that the 5-pound infant had been breathing on her own for about 30 hours until doctors determined Monday that she should be returned to an oxygen tent. Later that evening or early Tuesday, she was put on the respirator. Nevertheless, he said, she could still breathe on her own.

"They (doctors) want to help her preserve her strength," he said. "It is not that she can't breathe on her own."

"She is holding her own," said Dr. Leonard Bailey, who performed the transplant Oct. 26.

Bailey, in a statement issued through Schaefer, said the current rejection episode "is not considered serious and (the medical center is) ... not considering a human heart transplant."

The hospital has said that if a new transplant is required, a human heart will be sought.

The infant's mother had been unable to visit for several days because she had a bad cold and doctors feared infection for Baby Fae, hospital officials said.

Ex-judge receives probation

CAMERON, Texas (AP) — Former Milam County Judge Phil Smith — who resigned his office eight months ago under investigation of bribery, felony theft and perjury — has plea bargained for five years probation and $2,000 in fines.

Smith pleaded nolo contendere, or no contest, to a first-degree felony charge of aggravated perjury and a Class A misdemeanor charge of tampering with government records, which had been reduced from a felony. The remaining 24 indictments were dropped.

Under conditions of the plea bargain, Smith's record will be cleared of the felony count if he successfully completes probation. However, State District Judge Carl Anderson found Smith guilty on the misdemeanor charge. That conviction puts a permanent blight on Smith's record.

Smith and his attorney John Hannah of Tyler said he will be able to continue practicing law in Cameron since by pleading no contest there was no admission of guilt on the felony charge.

However, the Waco Tribune-Herald reported that a spokesman for the State Bar of Texas said Tuesday that Smith cannot practice law while on probation for a felony offense.

The bar will file suit in Cameron's 20th state district court when the bar receives documentation of the court's action, the spokesman said.

Smith has been practicing law at his office near the courthouse, a remodeled lumber yard store, since he resigned last March. The Democrat-turned-Republican said at the time that he was quitting to spend more time with his law practice, but he admitted later that he was being investigated by the Texas attorney general's office.

A Milam County grand jury on July 9 returned 34 indictments against Smith, charging him with bribery, tampering with government records, fabricating evidence and conspiracy to commit aggravated perjury and other offense.

Smith later was reindicted, reducing the number to 26. Allegations are that he practiced as an attorney on some cases in which he also presided as judge.

The texture seems thin

By James Jacoby

Fifteen years ago, Oswald Jacoby was captain of the United States International Bridge Team, competing in Rio de Janeiro. Bob Hamman was one of his players. Bob happened to open the bidding with one spade on J-x-x-x, leading to a bad result. My father instructed him never to do that again. Since that time, Hamman has won numerous world championships, but the team did not win in 1969 in Rio.

A few weeks ago our team was practicing for the upcoming National Championship in San Diego. The diagramed hand was dealt. This time Hamman was compelled to open one spade because of the special methods he and Bobby Wolff employ. The two no-trump bid by East, asking for minors, might have alerted Bob that the spade suit was going to divide horrendously, but he carried on to four anyway. Obviously the shrinking violet is not Bob Hamman's favorite flower. The 700-point penalty was not a good result, particularly since his teammates in the other room got only 100 points for setting a part-score contract of three diamonds.

I could not resist reminding Bob of Oswald Jacoby's admonition of 1969. Frankly, I'm fortunate to be playing this coming year in our North American Team Championships with Hamman and Wolff. If Bob opens one spade on a hand like today's, that's fine with me. But I hope the gods of distribution will be a little kinder in determining how the opponents' spades will divide.

Importance of Nitrogen Fertilizers

Fertilization, one of the key requirements of good plant culture, could be defined as supplying those nutrients necessary for desirable plant growth and development. Natural fertility of soils, of course, varies from site to site, just as the requirements of the various crops for plant nutrients vary. Therefore, producers must be ever alert to nutrient deficiencies of plants and know how to utilize the best fertilizer practices to correct them. You, as a producer, buy fertilizer and apply it to a particular field or crop; hopefully, yield should increase and net profit will be higher. It's as simple as that.

Knowing the fact about what happens to a fertilizer material in the soil will help you plan and develop a better fertilizer program.

Commercial fertilizers are chemical compounds, and as such, it is normal for them to undergo certain chemical changes when they are placed in the new environment of a moist, arable soil. Five things can happen to a fertilizer:

—1. It can be used by the crop.

—2. It can become part of the soil complex.

—3. It can be leached downward by drainage water.

—4. It can be physically removed by soil erosion.

—5. It can volatilize (denitrify) and escape as a gas.

Nitrogen, the growth stimulator, is the only nutrient that enters to any significant extent into all five reactions, and it is the element most frequently deficient in Texas soils. Nitrogen should be applied more frequently than all other nutrients, because plants use it in such large quantities, because nitrogen is very soluble and easily leached out of the plant root zone by downward moving drainage water, and because mineralization of nitrogen from the organic form is not fast enough to meet plant needs. It is also subject to denitrification by soil organisms. These facts emphasize the need (on an annual basis) for fertilizer applications that will satisfy crop nitrogen requirements. However, nitrogen should not be used excessively because it can stimulate rank, excessive growth and may encourage disease problems. The need for nitrogen fertilizer should always be determined by a soil test.

Perhaps the most meaningful statement that can be made about nitrogen fertilizer materials is that they require a higher level of management skill than either phosphorus or potassium fertilizers if optimum efficiency is to be attained.

Fertilizer applications should be timed to insure the maximum economic return on capital and labor invested. With the very real possibility that nitrogen fertilizer supplies may be in short supply during the next few crop seasons, good judgment and common sense dictate that each producer should strive to attain the maximum efficiency from each pound of nitrogen applied.

Thousands forced to work in marijuana labor camps

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Operators of a Mexican marijuana enterprise kept thousands of Mexicans as "slaves" in labor camps — one of them less than 60 miles from the Texas border, a spokesman for Mexico's justice ministry says.

The El Paso Times reported today that Eduardo Andrade Sanchez, chief spokesman for the justice ministry, said nearly 7,000 peasants were lured from four Mexican states with the promises of high wages for work in apple orchards.

But once they arrived at fields south and east of Chihuahua City, Andrade said Tuesday, the peasants were forced to work without pay, were kept in pens, and were watched by 140 armed guards, some of them carrying machine guns.

According to the newspaper, Andrade said bondage started for many of the peasants three months ago as harvesting approached for nearly 450 acres thickly planted with marijuana.

"The peasants would ask for their money and they would tell them, 'You'll get it tomorrow,'" said Andrade, who said the peasants complained of inadequate food and of being forced to work from 12 to 16 hours a day.

"That sounds unbelievable," Andrade said, adding that at least one field was equipped with lights powered by electricity from a portable generator.

"It was as if they were slaves," said Andrade, who said the peasants were housed in pens "like the ones they keep chickens in."

Two of the labor camps were near the Chilicote railroad station, which is about 60 miles southwest of the Texas border city of Presidio, Andrade said.

Andrade said nine men are in custody, charged with drug and labor law violations. Arrest warrants were granted Tuesday for nine others believed to be the financiers and owners of the operation, he said.

The nine in custody are charged with playing middle-level supervisory roles in the cultivation, harvesting and processing of the marijuana, Andrade said.

Authorities discovered eight camps concentrated around two points accessible to the marijuana fields, the newspaper said.

In addition to the workers' quarters, the camps had rudimentary warehouses for processing, packaging and storing the weed, Andrade said. More than 100 Mexican army soldiers and federal police agents who participated in raids, which started Nov. 7 and continued through the weekend, found 12 18-ton trucks, apparently to ship the marijuana to the United States, Andrade said.

The fields were watered by an irrigation system that included electric pumps and deep wells that made some desert areas flourish, he said.

Soldiers had burned all the fields and camps discovered by Tuesday morning, Andrade said.

The justice ministry spokesman said some of the laborers remain in a Chihuahua military camp awaiting transport at the government's cost to their native lands in the states of Sinaloa, Sonora, Guerrero and Oaxaca. More than 3,500 peasants already have boarded trains and returned, he said.

Andrade said authorities began investigating about three months ago when they learned of large purchases of wood and an unusual amount of truck movement through a rural section of the state more than 100 miles southeast of Chihuahua — the site of the first labor camp raided last week.

Last week, on Wednesday, two labor camps near 42 acres planted with marijuana were raided at a site called El Bufalo, more than 30 miles south of Camargo.

U.S. poised for action, not invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, from all that is being said and done, appears to be building momentum toward some military action against Nicaragua aimed at halting a Soviet arms buildup.

A U.S. invasion apparently is being ruled out. But other action short of an invasion, ranging from a naval blockade to an air strike on some of the newly arrived Soviet armament, could be in the works.

The administration said Tuesday that Nicaragua has been receiving advanced weapons from the Soviet Union and other allied countries at "an unprecedented rate" in the last six weeks to two months.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg said while there is no indication Nicaragua has received advanced combat aircraft, the level of heavy weaponry the Sandinistas have been acquiring "exceeds anything which is justifiable in purely defensive terms."

"We are concerned about the continuing flow of weapons into Nicaragua, which began in the fall of 1979 and which is contributing to the already overwhelming military imbalance in the region," Romberg said.

Romberg said he didn't think the leftist Sandinista government was justified in acquiring the arms to confront the threat from formerly U.S.-backed guerrillas. He indicated the arms weren't suited to anti-guerrilla warfare.

As many as 10,000 guerrillas are inside Nicaragaua, although fighting has slowed since the last Congress rejected a White House request for more aid for the covert war.

He also said he didn't think the Nicaraguan government had any reason to feel threatened by the United States because U.S. officials had repeatedly said there were not any plans to invade Nicaragua.

However, U.S. actions toward Nicaragua over the past year clearly have been intended to destabilize and frighten the Sandinista government. In addition to the CIA-backed insurgency, they have included mining of Nicaraguan harbors and preparation of a CIA manual giving instructions to guerrillas on how to "neutralize" government officials.

A senior White House official told The AP in an interview in Santa Barbara, Calif., last week that the Soviet Union appears intent on building "a privileged position" for Nicaragua with its armsbuildup, similiar to the arms buildup in Cuba at the time of the 96 missile crisis

Concerning the situation Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has said, "The United States is prepared for a great number of contingencies that may have to be taken."

Baylor to begin building

WACO, Texas (AP) — Construction of a $12 million special events center that will be used for Baylor University basketball games and other major events has been approved by the university's trustees.

The center, which will seat between 10,000 and 12,000, will replace the Heart o' Texas Coliseum and also will be used for Baylor commencements, convocations, community and organizational meetings, concerts, and circus or ice shows, school officials said.

The trustees also approved five other projects in a $32 million package that university president Herbert Reynolds on Tuesday termed "the largest building project that Baylor has ever undertaken."

Also planned are $5 million for a new School of Music facility; $4 million for a new building for the computer and engineering sciences department; $3.5 million for restoration of Carroll Library; $3.5 million for a new facility for Strecker Museum; and $4 million to add two floors to Moody Library.

Construction on the special events center could begin as early as fall 1985, but Reynolds said, "I think we can say it'll be fall 1987 before we'll play basketball in the special events center."

Reynolds said Tuesday that other groups, including the city of Waco, may lease the center and rock concerts may be held there. But he said Baylor officials will "carefully screen" whatever is held at the center to avoid events where "chemical abuse" might take place.

Study: bigger say is needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional study says it's time the general public, which foots the bills, had a bigger say in how the United States spends the billions of dollars it invests in space projects.

The report, published Tuesday by the non-partisan Office of Technology Assessment, says the government can no longer justify "truly great and continuing public expenditures on space-related matters" that are seen by the public as outside its interest and concerns.

The study points out that NASA budgets exceed $7 billion a year.

"For most of us, $7 billion per year is a great deal of money," the report says. "Well beyond these kind of considerations is the ethical concern of whether or not scientists, engineers, and managers should be paid so very well by the public to spend additional large sums of public funds each year to do such things as take photographs of distant planets."

The study, "Civilian Space Stations and the U.S. Future in Space," was prepared for the congressional committees that control the country's space program.

Thomas F. Rogers, director of the two-year study, explained the focus on greater public participation.

"We've been spending $7.5 billion a year, every year; we can do anything we want to do," he said.

"It's great, it's exciting, but we're missing large numbers of important activities by allowing all this to go on under technological drive — not policy drive, economic drive, social drive, the way everything else is done in this country at that level of public expenditure," he said.

The kind of space station that NASA is now planning cannot be justified on scientific, economic or military grounds and should be viewed as "only one alternative in a wide range of options," the study says, adding:

"There is no compelling, objective, external case" for building a space station "to be used to support over 100 conceptual uses, few of which have been sharply defined or gained wide acceptance as important objectives of the space program."

The report spells out the kinds of goals the nation should set for itself:

—Increase the efficiency of space activities and reduce their costs.

—Involve the public; have scientific, economic, social and political benefits.

—Increase international cooperation.

—"Spread life, in a responsible fashion, throughout the solar system."

It suggested a number of objectives, such as a global warning system of potentially hazardous natural circumstances, a transportation service from Earth to the moon and "a modest human presence" on the moon; medical studies of direct interest, and short visits to space by the general public.

NASA reacted to the report by saying President Reagan "has clearly decided that the space station represents the next major stepping stone" in space.

"He made that decision and the Congress concurred in it because he foresaw the benefits that would occur for this country and its friends in this next great venture," said William O'Donnell, speaking for the agency.

Pan American group calls for international conference

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The Organization of African Unity is calling for an international conference on ways to combat the famine that is killing hundreds of thousands of Africans and threatening "continental catastrophe."

The OAU's acting secretary-general, Peter Onu, said it was "absolutely necessary" to convene a meeting of experts from Africa and the rest of the world so they can "share their experience with us."

Onu, a Nigerian, made the appeal Tuesday as he delivered a report on Africa's current problems to delegates at the OAU's 20th summit.

The secretary-general's statement followed a call last week by M. Peter McPherson, a top U.S. aid official, for a meeting of donor nations, including the Soviet Union.

McPherson estimated 7 million lives are at risk in Ethiopia alone and famine conditions are expected to worsen in Niger, Mali, Chad, Sudan and Kenya. A senior Western envoy has estimated 900,000 Ethiopians will have died by the end of 1984.

Onu told OAU delegates: "The experts tell us that food supply and agricultural production recorded sharp declines in their growth rates from 3.7 and 3.4 percent in 1981 and 1982, respectively, to as low as 0.2 and 0.4 percent for 1982 and 1983."

"Even if statistics do not have much meaning to us, what we do know is that hundreds of thousands of people are dying because we are no longer able to produce our own staple foodstuffs," he said.

"We are told 36 member states of the OAU are facing critical food problems," said Onu, whose organization has 50 members. He said that 27 of the 36 are considered by the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization to be dependent on outside food aid.

In an apparent reference to a burst of media coverage the Ethiopian famine has received in recent weeks, Onu said the African drought and famine problem has "received wide international discussion and attention."

Onu also mentioned the denuding of the landscape by cutting of trees for firewood, the spread of deserts because of overgrazing of livestock and the exhaustion of the soil through poor farming practices.

He said per capita food production has declined 11 percent between 1970 and 1980, but Africa's population has been increasing at an average rate of 3.1 percent a year, and it is rising.

"The causes for the decline in food production are many, but the persistent drought in most of our member states is the primary cause of the food crisis in Africa today," he said.

Confederate government

The Confederate government was formed when 42 delegates from South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida met in convention in Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 4, 1861. It adopted a constitution for the Confederate States of America and elected Mississippi's Jefferson Davis as provisional president and Georgia's Alexander Stevens as vice president.

Dear Abby

Give Yourself a Break — a Non-Smoking Break

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Each year in the United States, smoking-related coronary disease, lung disease and cancer kill more than 350,000 people. This total exceeds the number of our deaths in World War II. Smoking-related diseases kill eight times as many lives as do automobile accidents. The economic costs of smoking in health expenses and lost productivity have been calculated at $40 billion a year. The loss in death and disability cannot be measured.

Tomorrow will mark the Eighth Annual Great American Smokeout, an upbeat, good-humored, one-day campaign to encourage smokers to quit smoking for 24 hours—just to prove to themselves that they can do it.

The idea was conceived by the American Cancer Society, which insists that anyone who can live without a cigarette for 24 hours can quit forever. So, if you're hooked on cigarettes (or cigars) and really want to quit, why not start tomorrow—for just 24 hours?

Quitting "cold turkey" is the hardest way to quit, but those who know say it's the most effective and, in the long run, the easiest way. Cutting down is less traumatic, but the temptation to smoke is often too powerful to resist while smoking one, two or three cigarettes a day.

"How about the rights of smokers?" you ask. Of course they are entitled to smoke if they wish. But they will have to find a place where they can smoke to their hearts' content without offending those who can't tolerate it.

So, readers, if you're hooked on cigarettes and have been telling yourself, "One of these days I've got to quit," why not start tomorrow just for 24 hours?

It won't be easy, but I can promise you, it will be the best holiday present you can give yourself—and those who love you.—ABBY

P.S. To repeat one of the most poignant letters I've ever received:

DEAR ABBY: I just have to share this with somebody! My 5-year-old son said, "Mommy, do you know what I want for Christmas most of all?"

I thought to myself, "That little con artist—I wonder what he wants now?" His answer knocked me right off my feet. He said, "All I want is a mommy who doesn't smoke anymore. I love you very much and want you to live for a looooooong time." Then he put his chubby arms around my neck and kissed me.

I had to wipe away a tear. It's been two weeks, and I haven't had a cigarette since. I don't think I will ever smoke again. Wish me luck.

Ex-prime minister speaks

LONDON (AP) — Former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, delivering his first speech to the House of Lords at the age of 90, won an unprecedented ovation after a stirring cry against "wicked hatred" dividing Britain's rich and poor.

More than 300 peers, including former prime ministers Harold Wilson and Alec Douglas-Home, listened to a 30-minute speech delivered without notes and responded with a foot-stamping standing ovation which was believed to be the first of its kind in the normally staid chamber.

Macmillan, who was prime minister from 1957 to 1963, had for years refused the traditional honor of an earldom for ex-premiers. In February, however, Queen Elizabeth II conferred on him the title of first Earl of Stockton.

Referring to the eight-month-old coal strike and the bloody violence on the picket lines, he said: "It breaks my heart to see — and I cannot interfere — what is happening in our country today — this terrible strike, by the best men in the world, who beat the Kaiser and Hitler's armies and never gave in. It is pointless and we cannot afford that kind of thing."

Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine and other Cabinet members and House of Commons legislators left their own chamber to come into the Lords, Britain's unelected second chamber, to listen to the speech. Afterwards, members of the audience described the address as brilliant, moving, witty and spellbinding.

The London Times called the speech "a tour de force." The Daily Telegraph called it: "Probably the most sophisticated, urbane and polished maiden (speech) ever offered to their Lordships."

National motto

"In God we trust," designated as the U.S. national motto by Congress in 1956, originated during the Civil War as an inscription on U.S. coins, although it was used by Francis Scott Key in a slightly different form when he wrote "The Star Spangled Banner." In the anthem, Key wrote: "In God is our trust."

Diabetes needs doctor's review

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I just turned 59 and I'm also a diabetic. I take 30 units of insulin a day and feel fine, but sometimes my mouth becomes so dry that I can't even talk. I also have lost some weight, going from 175 to 155. However, the main problem is that I have trouble getting an erection. I have the desire, but lack the ability. Is this due to diabetes? If so, what doctors should I see?

DEAR READER — Your first step should be to review your situation carefully with the doctor who manages your diabetes. I am quite concerned about your combination of symptoms. The dry mouth may be from dehydration. Diabetics who are not properly controlled, or those who need insulin and don't get it, often lose a lot of water. The water is used by the kidneys to dilute the glucose that is leaking out of the kidneys.

You also mention weight loss, which occurs in diabetics who are losing a lot of calories because of sugar in the urine. You certainly need to know whether your weight loss is from uncontrolled diabetes or whether it is a result of your efforts to control your weight.

Finally, impotence in a diabetic is often a sign that the nerves that control blood flow to the penis have been affected. It is a form of diabetic neuropathy. Therefore, you can see why your diabetes needs a careful review immediately.

Diabetics often develop impotence. However, both diabetes and impotence are so common that it is not surprising when both exist together, even when the impotence is not caused by the diabetes.

Now that impotence has come out of the closet and it is recognized as a frequent medical problem, a lot is being learned about it. In an experienced male, it is usually not caused by some psychological problem, but is often due to an endocrine disorder or disease involving the circulation or the nerves to the penis. That is why I think that unsolved cases often deserve an evaluation by an endocrinologist (a specialist in hormone problems).

To give you more information about impotence, I am sending you The Health Letter 18-6, Help for Impotence. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 35, 5 feet 4 and weigh 110 to 115. I would like to have fat-suction surgery to remove the fat from my thighs. I am not obese, but my thighs are lumpy and have pockets of fat on the outer sides. Is there any negative information concerning this surgery? I want it done, but not if it will endanger my health.

DEAR READER — I am not a fan of fat suction. Sticking that blind suction probe under the skin to suck out tunnels of fat leaves a lot to be desired. The surgeon can't see nerves or blood vessels that can be torn in the process. The only advantage of fat-suction surgery is that only a small incision must be made to insert the probe. Removing fat under the skin by surgery is not new, but direct observation by plastic surgeons used to handling skin and fat is much safer than fat-suction surgery. It won't leave you with a waffled body. The areas where fat is sucked out can collapse, and usually do. This causes the waffled or rippled effect. I would suggest that you see a good plastic surgeon who does cosmetic surgery if you want to have these areas removed surgically. Let the plastic surgeon tell you what you can expect from surgery in your case.

Yields decline for 10th week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on three-month Treasury bills have dropped for the 10th consecutive week, leaving those securities at their lowest level in more than a year.

The government sold $6.8 billion in three-month bills on Tuesday at an average discount rate of 8.73 percent, down from last week's 8.82 percent. Rates have been declining from a high of 10.63 percent reached on Sept. 4.

The government sold an additional $6.8 billion in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 8.99 percent, down from 9.07 percent last week. With only one exception, rates on six-month bills have also declined every week since Sept. 4.

The yield on the three-month bill was the lowest since 8.41 percent on Oct. 31, 1983, while the 8.99 percent rate on six-month bills was the lowest since 8.97 percent on Jan. 30 of this year.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 9.05 percent for three-month bills and 9.55 percent for six-month bills.

Convict ready to take punishment

DALLAS (AP) — Bo Johnson knew he had a deep dark secret and he worried about it all the time, but he wasn't going to let it ruin his life.

For seven years, Johnson worked as a mechanic and someday he hoped to own a garage. At 30, life seemed settled. He had a girlfriend he had been living with for five years, two of her children he helped raised, plenty of friends and a job he liked.

Before moving to Dallas in March, he worked at several garages in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The problem was that Johnson was really Leavelle Collins, an escaped convict.

"A day or night didn't pass that it wasn't on my mind," Collins said in an interview with the Dallas Morning News. "I worried all the time. I was free but I didn't feel like I was because I had this heavy burden hanging over me."

Many times, he said, he felt like turning himself in. But then, he'd remember.

"I thought about what it would be like to be locked up and ... abandon the idea," Collins said.

He had managed to elude authorities since May 17, 1977, when he escaped from the old Collin County Jail, where he had already spent 14 months. At the time of his escape, he was awaiting transfer to a state prison to serve a 25-year sentence for an armed robbery he says he didn't commit.

Life on the run ended about 2½ months ago. Collins was arrested on Aug. 26 just outside McKinney, only a few miles from the old jail.

He had just returned from a visit to Sherman to see his 70-year-old diabetic mother, who had been ill. Her illness, he said, was the main reason he moved back to Texas.

Collins was arrested after a state trooper stopped a cousin that Collins was riding with late at night for speeding. The trooper discovered the cousin had an outstanding traffic warrant and then asked Collins for identification.

He didn't have any.

When Collins gave trooper David Hedgpeth first one name, then another, and neither matched the name, Bo Johnson, in which the car was registered, Hedgpeth took him in to the Collin County Sheriff's department for questioning.

After entering the name Bo Johnson into a computer, Hedgpeth discovered and FBI warrant for his arrest.

"I always had a feeling they would catch me," Collins said. "I guess by me having that feeling, it helped them catch me."

After his arrest, Collins was transferred to the Eastham Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections near Lovelady.

Last week, he was brought back to Collin County, where he will stand trial Dec. 3 on escape charges.

Collins, who maintains he stayed out of trouble during his time on the run except for a few traffic tickets, is not thinking about escaping.

"I've given up," he said. "I'm going to take my punishment. It's over."

At the American Cab Co., company operations manager Smokey Harlan said he'd never run across a better mechanic.

Area leaders propose five base sites

HOUSTON (AP) — Efforts to bring a planned seven-ship Navy task force to Houston are being opposed by people who fear the vessels may contain nuclear weapons, a Galveston woman says.

A coalition of private and public officials begins meetings this week with a seven-member Navy site selection committee to push for consideration of five sites in the Houston-Galveston area. But another group is being formed to discuss whether nuclear weapons will be placed in the area, said Esther Gourley, a member of a Quaker group in Galveston.

"The Navy has a policy neither to confirm nor deny if the ships are carrying nuclear weapons, but we are almost 90 percent sure there will be nuclear arms," Ms. Gourley said.

At least 17 other Gulf Coast cities are vying for the Navy base, and the Southeast Texas area is not guaranteed to get the site.

A volunteer manager for the technical panel writing the proposal for the five Houston-Galveston sites, John Focke, said the site selection team visiting from the Navy will be given extensive briefings and will be taken by helicopter for overviews of the five proposed locations.

The sites being considered in the Houston-Galveston area include Fort Point on the east end of Galveston Island; Snake Island, located south of the Texas City dike; Bayport, on land owned by the Port of Houston; Baytown on property owned by U.S. Steel Inc.; and another Baytown site owned by the estate of Ashbel Smith.

Members of the Navy team begin the first of their three days in the Houston-Galveston area Thursday in an effort to find a permanent home for the seven-ship task force.

At stake is an estimated $100 million in construction and another $50 million in annual payroll that will go to the winning port.

U.S. Senator-elect Phil Gramm met Thursday in Washington with the Navy liaison to the Senate, a spokesman said Tuesday.

"I have expressed strong support for a home port in Texas," [illegible] said in a prepared statement. "I told the Navy that I can support any of the proposals submitted for Texas, including creation of a home port in Houston-Galveston, Port Arthur-Orange, Corpus Christi, Brazosport (Freeport) or Brownsville."

Texas would be the best state for a Navy base to be located, said Larry Neal, a spokesman for Gramm.

"We got a strong briefing and he (Gramm) made as strong a case as can be made," Neal said in a telephone interview from Washington. "Texas has a tradition of supporting the Navy and the military. We think we can serve the Navy's interests and be cost efficient."

Attorneys challenge Parker indictments

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Attorneys defending a state senator charged with four felonies have asked to challenge the makeup of the grand jury that returned the indictment as well as what they say are mistakes in legal documents.

Tom Hanna, a defense attorney for state Sen. Carl Parker, told visiting State District Judge Perry Pickett of Midland Tuesday that six grand jury members had connections with a case in which the Port Arthur Democrat was a defense attorney.

Pickett recessed the hearing Tuesday afternoon without making a ruling and told attorneys to come back to court today.

Parker represented Bernard Fleener, a former Port Arthur deputy school superintendent, in an official misconduct case and testified for him in a subsequent federal suit.

"We are not here today to question the grand jury system," Hanna told Pickett. "We are not here to question the way grand juries are selected. ... A good system can occasionally misfire."

Victim said he would burn killer

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who was hacked to death with a pickax had threatened to burn and scar the woman who killed him, his widow testified.

Shawn Dean told a state district court jury Tuesday she heard her husband threaten to burn Karla Faye Tucker after Ms. Tucker punched him in the eye. Mrs. Dean said Ms. Tucker was annoyed that Dean parked his motorcycle in her living room.

"He didn't want to kill her, he just wanted to burn her, so she would be scarred for life," Mrs. Dean testified.

Ms. Tucker was sentenced in April to die for killing 26-year-old Jerry Dean at his apartment June 13, 1983.

Mrs. Dean's testimony came as the defense began presenting its case in the capital murder trial of Daniel R. Garrett in State District Judge A.D. Azios' court.

Garrett, 38, is also charged in Dean's death, but is being tried in the death of Deborah Ruth Davis Thornton, 32, Dean's overnight companion. The Deans were living separately at the time of the killings.

Mrs. Dean said she did not take her husband's threat seriously. She said Ms. Tucker was a close friend of hers.

"I think he was just burning off steam and talking," Mrs. Dean said.

Defense attorney Ray Bass also recalled Ms. Tucker to testify. The trial resumed Tuesday after a week-long recess caused by a juror's illness.

Ms. Tucker testified previously that she and Garrett, former lovers, went to Dean's apartment to steal his motorcycle. She said Garrett struck Dean with a hammer and left the room, and she then hit Dean with a pickax to stop a gurgling noise coming from him.

Tiger girls look powerful in scrimmage with Odessa

Coach Ken Housden's veteran Tiger girls team put on a fullcourt press to blitz Odessa High 22-2 through the first quarter of scrimmage action here Tuesday night.

It was a good showing for the girls, who open the 1984-85 basketball season here Monday against Post.

"Varsity-wise we did an excellent job the first quarter. We were kind of up and down the rest of the scrimmage but overall, I was pleased," said Coach Ken Housden. "Our freethrow shooting (4 of 11) wasn't what it should have been, but hopefully it will come around."

Returning all-district performers Karlene Thompson and Carie Housden scored 24 and 14 points respectively. Housden also came down with 12 rebounds and have five assists.

Newcomer Christi Comer, a freshmen, had 9 rebounds. In other individual efforts, Thompson had 6 steals while Wendy Lunsford and Threasa Ashworth added 5 each. Stephanie McKnight had 4 assists.

Coach Housden said Snyder fans can look forward to the press a lot.

"We're going to try to. We've got pretty good depth. If we don't get in foul trouble we're going to try to do it most of the time," he said.

"I think it's going to be a very good team if we can stay healthy and keep improving and keep everybody eligible. I think we can do very well."

Snyder junior varsity also played Odessa Tuesday and Housden commented, "They won theirs (scrimmage) on hustle. It was a very good team effort. We've got pretty good quickness on the JV and that was a help. They had a bunch of steals off the press."

Post calls on Monday to play the junior varsity at 5:30 and the varsity at 7. Action doesn't let up for the Tigers as they return to the high school gymnasium floor Tuesday for games at 6 and 7:30 with Brownfield.

Tigers scrimmage Coahoma Thursday

Snyder high school boys will scrimmage Coahoma beginning at 5 p.m. Thursday in the coliseum.

Coach Larry Scott said the schools will start off with a group of his freshmen and sophomores scrimmaging Coahoma's junior varsity. That will be followed by a varsity scrimmage.

Those who will be scrimmaging as the Snyder varsity unit Thursday include Charles Bollinger, Wade Forga, Don Osborn, Jackie Anderson, Bobby Scott, Tim Courtney, Ricky Rodriquez, Albert Rodriquez, Rick Miller, James Courtney, Jerry Dubose, Greg Glass and Darrell Williams.

The actual varsity team will not be chosen until this weekend, following the final football game. Scott expects 14-16 students who are now in football to come out for basketball.

Snyder opens the 1984-85 basketball season next Monday, hosting Lubbock High in the coliseum. Sophomore, JV and varsity games will be held at 4:30, 6:15 and 8 o'clock respectively.

Westerner golfers fourth in tournament at Granbury

Western shot a fourth-place 968, 80 strokes off the pace set by Odessa.

"This was the worst team score that we have shot in a long time. The course was not that difficult. We caught some light rain and the wind blew slightly but the conditions were not bad enough to cause the scores we shot," the coach said. "We'll regroup and go back after it. We'll work hard in the off-season before we start up again in March."

The next tournament for Western Texas will be its own T.W. Holder, set for March 1-2.

Odessa won the 54-hole, par 70 tournament with an 886. Paris Junior College was next with a 935, followed by Weatherford with a 955.

Medalist was Terry Budzinski of Odessa, who shot a 209. Tim Morris of Paris took runnerup with a 222.

Ron Nedry led WTC with a 234. He shot rounds of 75, 81 and 78.

Others on the team and their scores were Ryan Heller with a 79-84-85, 248; Bo Kay with a 78-86-83, 247; Jack Fallin, 80-81-79, 240; and Pat Fitzpartick, 79-88-85, 252.

Playing as individuals for WTC were Jim Batjer, 79-72-85--236; Bob Stangby, 78-79-76, 233 and Neil Rutherford, 88-88-76, 252.

Snyder ISD begins its own in-house paper

include how parents can help their children with their study habits; the importance of school attendance; an explanation of the new policy for issuing and reporting grades; and such new teaching techniques as "touch math."

The publication includes a schedule of upcoming student events as well as a "personal profile" of school district staffers. The first issue features a profile on Keith Gentry, director of transportation.

As planned, an editorial-type page each issue will also feature "messages" from school officials. In the first issue, Superintendent Bob Hawes discusses implications of House Bill 72.

As pointed out by Scannicchio, the first edition also has a minor mistake. He noted the attendance report for the first six weeks indicates West Elementary had 91.18 percent attendance. It should have read 98.18 percent, he said.

Editor for the paper is Jan Cagle, journalism teacher at the high school. The liason staffer district-wide is Margaret Presswood.

Representatives from each school campus are also asked to contribute articles. These include Elizabeth McCloskey at West Elementary; Barbara Chrane and Judy Barkowsky at North; Janie Carrol at Northeast; Donna Bailey at Stanfield; Beth Curry at East; Vanessa Taylor at Central; Joe Ashley and Jean Godair at the junior high; and Dr. Albert (Mac) Taylor at the high school.

Marijuana, vandalism among minor charges

Snyder police officers jailed seven suspects on misdemeanor charges Tuesday night — including three individuals now charged with possession of marijuana and two others facing charges of vandalism.

Officers arrested three men — ages 29, 22 and 20 — at 2:05 a.m. Wednesday on charges of misdemeanor possession of marijuana in a quantity less than 2 ounces.

According to reports, the arrests came after detectives executed a search warrant at an east Snyder residence.

In addition, investigators are calling the vandalism of Owens Department Store on College Ave. — reported last Aug. 11 — cleared with the arrest of an 18-year-old and a 19-year-old suspect at 10:45 p.m. Tuesday.

The suspects are accused of shooting out windows of the store with a BB gun.

In other action, one local man was jailed for public intoxication Tuesday night and an 18-year-old man was arrested for soliciting without a permit Tuesday afternoon.

activity would damage the facility.

In addition, facilities may not be used for political purposes — with the exception of polling locations and political caucuses.

For events designed for profit, the school district also requests 10 percent of the gross or the minimum rental rate, whichever is greater.

The rate schedule quotes prices for both organizations based in the Snyder school district and for out-of-district groups.

Included in this is the rate schedule for use of Tiger Stadium, traditionally used yearly for playoff games.

Its use fee (with in and out-of-district prices quoted respectively) includes $350 ($450) for lights and field [illegible] ($300) for lights only; and $200 ($300) for daytime use of the field with no "painting."

Other select items on the rate schedule include $250 ($350) for use of the high school auditorium; $125 ($200) for the junior high auditorium; $75 ($125) for elementary auditoriums; $100 ($150) for the SHS gym; $75 ($125) for the junior high gym; $100 (not available for out-of-district) for the SHS Student Center; $200 ($225) for Travis Stadium (lights and painting); $100 ($150) for the SHS track without lights, $300 ($400) with lights; and $25 ($50) each for the tennis courts or classroom meetings.

For tournaments and clinics, the fees for tennis courts and gyms will be 10 percent of the gross or the minimum rental.

All rental rates are also based on a four-hour period. When this is exceeded, each additional hour will add ¼ of the original fee.

Bid items were also included on Tuesday's agenda. The largest of these involved the puchase of four school buses to include two 53-passenger models and two 65-passenger models.

[illegible] bid was awarded to Texas School Bus Center of Austin with a net bid after trade of $103,372. Trustees discussed also attempting to sell two models for trade-in locally in an attempt to gain more than the trade-in offer price.

The bus purchases were budgeted items for this school year.

Other bids awarded — each involving the low bid estimate — were $12,120 to purchase 600 cases of multi-purpose paper, awarded to Carpenter Paper Company of Amarillo; and $6,597 to repair the roof at the Travis Gymnasium, awarded to Lydick-Hooks Roofing Co. of Abilene.

Fifteen school personnel were also appointed as the 1984-85 textbook committee. They include Bob Hawes, Carolyn Hamby, Patti Palmer, Beverly Robertson, Virginia Quintela, Caddye Claborn, Stanley Cozart, Steve Tyler, Rudy Gutierrez, Susan Neves, Theresa Vest, Eddie Williams, Rita Carter, Billie Hartsfield and Wynola Early.

The board also amended its policy to allow the dependents of retired school personnel to be eligible to carry health insurance on the school group policy.

It was noted this option will be at the expense of the individual and not the system.

The process to accept bids for for an oil and gas lease agreement for the district was implemented also. The board received a request from Newmont Oil Company to lease district property for drilling purposes.

In determining if this was possible, it was noted the district could lease the land, but it would have to seek public bids for this right.

Soliciting these bids was approved by trustees Tuesday.

Judge ends Monday trial

132nd District Judge Wayland G. Holt — citing a lack of medical evidence presented on behalf of the plaintiff — intervened in a workman's compensation lawsuit trial which began and ended here Monday.

By taking the case away from the jury, Holt entered a directed verdict in favor of the defendant.

The case involved Esa Trista Robles vs Texas Employers Insurance Association.

Theft linked to hitchhiker

Scurry County sheriff's investigators were questioning a 37-year-old male hitchhiker Wednesday morning in connection with a misdemeanor theft reported at a residence east of town.

At noon Wednesday, investigators were still taking statements from all parties involved in the case and no formal charges had been filed.

Turkeywalk report given to directors

A preliminary report on the Turkeywalk sponsored by the Scurry County chapter of the American Heart Association was heard Tuesday at a meeting of the unit's directors.

Bobby Beard, Turkeywalk chairman, expressed appreciation to the community for the cooperation and support shown in the event.

He said about 50 persons participated in the walk. All proceeds go to the Heart Association's educational and research programs.

Prizes for participants will be awarded in the near future and persons who have not yet turned in pledge money are requested to do so as quickly as possible so prize winners can be determined. Pledge money is to be taken or sent to Beard at West Texas State Bank.

Board members voted to move the next meeting from Jan. 8 to Jan. 15 because the meetings are held in the Western Texas College cafeteria which will not reopen after the mid-winter holiday until Jan. 14.

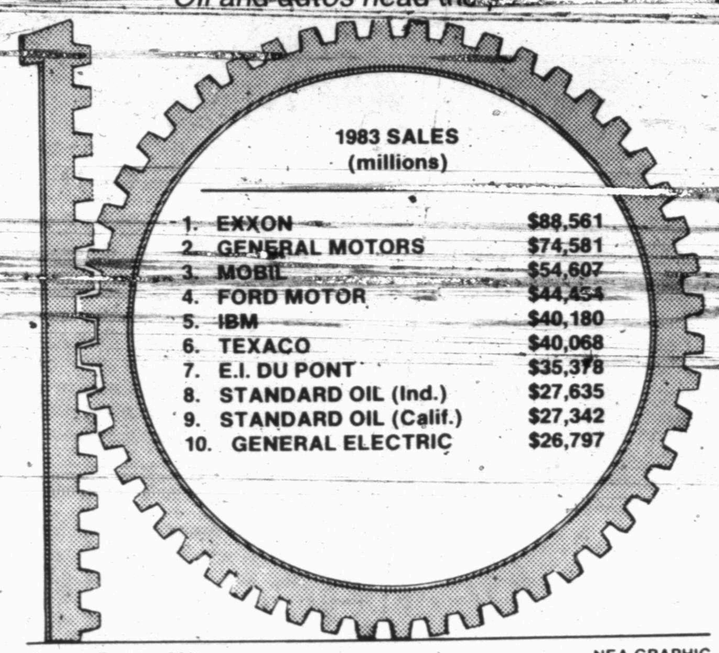
INDUSTRY'S TOP 10

Oil and autos head the pack



(Source: Fortune 500) NEA GRAPHIC

Five of the top 10 U.S. industrial corporations are oil firms. Even so, the oil industry suffered a major profit drop in 1983. Profits soared, meanwhile, for the once-beleaguered auto industry, which claims two Top 10 spots.

State officials proposing new water plan for Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Major water reforms involving hundreds of millions of dollars are being sought by Gov. Mark White and the state's top legislative leaders in light of this summer's lingering drought, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

The proposals are contained in draft measures prepared jointly by White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis for the legislative session that starts Jan. 8, the Morning News said.

The newspaper said it obtained copies of the draft bills which were sent Tuesday to state water officials, legislators, reservoir developers, environmentalists and others for comment.

"The issue of water is perhaps the most significant long-term issue facing the state of Texas and its citizens," said a cover letter signed by White, Hobby and Lewis.

The three state leaders have stated before that passage of laws to encourage water conservation and develop new supplies would be a top priority in the next legislative session.

Concern over whether water supplies will be enough to keep up with growth increased this summer by the drought that plagued the southern, central and western portions of the state.

According to the News, the new plan also consists of a joint resolution calling for a statewide vote on two financing proposals and an omnibus bill calling for changes in current water statutes.

The joint resolution would allow the state to:

— Issue $600 million in state bonds — $400 million in projects such as reservoir construction to increase supplies and $200 million for projects such as sewage treament plants.

— Create a $250 million insurance fund to guarantee water project bonds issued by cities. Under such a program, cities would be able to market their bonds more readily and at lower interest rates because the chance of default would be virtually nonexistent.

The proposed statutory reforms include:

— A requirement that all cities seeking state water aid and any entity seeking a state permit to build a reservoir adopt water conservation programs.

— The first statewide program to control the use of ground water. Under Texas law, ground water, or water stored in underground deposits, is the private property of whoever owns the land above it.

— Creation of an agricultural water conservation fund, which would be used to promote the use of efficient irrigation equipment and to advance research into water-saving technologies.

— Environmental safeguards to ensure that damming of rivers to create reservoirs does not damage aquatic habitats in bays and estuaries along the Gulf Coast.

The water package includes a provision saying the statutory changes will take effect only if voters approve the two bond issues.

Texans have turned down water bond issues three times since 1966.

The proposals are similar to a package of unsucessful bills strongly backed by Hobby in the last regular session in 1983. Hobby's package passed the Senate but it died in a House committee in the last days of the legislation.

Lewis said Tuesday that he was confident the new package would not meet the same fate.

Myopia surgery is controversial

ATLANTA (AP) — Surgery to correct nearsightedness by making tiny slices in the cornea of the eye, a procedure hotly debated in ophthalmological circles, reduced the nearsightedness of all 435 people in a government study, a researcher said today.

Seventy-eight percent of the people who underwent the surgery, called radial keratotomy, gained vision of 20-40 or better, and complications were minimal, according to Dr. George Waring of Emory University in Atlanta.

However, it was difficult to predict which patients would benefit most from the operation, added Waring, who described the study's findings at the American Academy of Ophthalmology's annual meeting.

"This variable outcome is one of the major problems facing the patient and surgeon who are considering radial keratotomy for the correction of myopia," the study said.

Nearsightedness, or myopia, is caused by a slightly misshapen cornea, the clear front portion of the eye.

Ophthalmologists have debated the surgery's safety and effectiveness since it was first performed in this country in 1978 at Harper Hospital in Detroit by Dr. Leo Bores, who is now practicing in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Some doctors have feared that the procedure, which resulted from studies in the 1960s in the Soviet Union, could lead to eye infections, cataracts or blindness.

Other ophthalmologists, including Bores, are convinced of the surgery's safety and effectiveness and have used it widely.

Previous privately financed studies by Dr. Peter Arrowsmith of Nashville, Tenn., and Dr. Michael Dietz of Kansas City reached conclusions similar to those Waring reported in the Prospective Evaluation of Radial Keratotomy, or PERK study.

Researchers at nine institutions across the country collaborated in the PERK study, which was financed by the National Eye Institute.

Critics have said the study duplicates earlier research.

"Before the PERK study was initiated, there had been so many thousands of cases done that showed surgery was safe and effective that there did not seem to be a need for a study with government support," said Dr. Robert Marmer, an ophthalmologist in Atlanta and a member of the Kerato-Refractive Society of Dennison, Texas, which advocates the use of radial keratotomy.

"I think all the studies will show it's safe and effective, and that's what we've been saying for five years," Marmer said in an interview.

In radial keratotomy, a surgeon makes tiny cuts around the outside of the cornea in a pattern like the spokes of a wheel. The procedure, done under a microscope, can be completed in 10 or 20 minutes in a doctor's office, Marmer said, and costs about $1,500.

While it can make eyeglasses or contact lenses unnecessary temporarily, it does not correct visual losses that normally occur with aging, such as losing the ability to focus at close distances, Marmer said.

Perillo gets death term

HOUSTON (AP) — Pamela Lynn Perillo, a hitchhiker who helped rob and strangle a Louisiana mechanic, has been ordered for the second time to be executed.

Ms. Perillo, 28, was sentenced Tuesday to die by injection for the Feb. 24, 1980, killing of 26-year-old Bob Skeens, an auto mechanic from Houma, La.

She and Karla Faye Tucker, who hacked a man to death with a pickax as she and a friend stole his motorcycle, are the only two women under death sentences in Texas.

Ms. Perillo was found guilty in 1981, but that conviction was overturned on appeal because a prospective juror was dismissed for saying he would have difficulty in assessing the death penalty.

Perillo's co-defendant, James Michael Briddle, 28, is on death row for killing Bob Banks, 30, of Houston. Skeens was visiting Banks at the time of the killings.

Both men were strangled with a rope.

Prosecutor Sid Crowley called Ms. Perillo an amoral woman who acts without considering the consequences.

Crowley said Ms. Perillo's childhood was "sad and tragic" and "addresses the reason she became brutal and dangerous and violent" but does not make her any less so.

During the punishment phase, psychologist Marilyn Schultz testified that Perillo had a childhood history of drug addiction and abuse.

Author of '84 tax bill says there is no need for encore

AUSTIN (AP) — The legislator who wrote the 1984 tax hike says there'll be no need for an encore in 1985.

Although economic forecasts indicate budget writers face a tight squeeze, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Stan Schlueter said Tuesday the 1985 Legislature will force the budget to balance without dipping into taxpayers' pockets.

Any temptation to raise taxes was probably killed on election day, he said.

"If there ever was a possibility of a tax bill in the House, that pretty well eliminated that situation," Schlueter, D-Killeen, said of the election, which saw the defeat of several lawmakers who voted for the 1984 tax increase.

That hike added $4.8 billion to state taxes over three years. The money goes to education and highways.

Schlueter's optimistic forecast came after his committee — which gets first shot at tax bills — was given a fairly pessimistic peek at state spending. Estimates have shown the state could be as much as $1 billion short of money for 1986-87.

Legislative Budget Board Director Jim Oliver said the almost-completed budget proposal is $635.8 million short of the goal — current spending.

"Overall, the outlook is for slow growth in the next biennium," said Billy Hamilton of the comptroller's office.

But Schlueter said the budget board will do what's needed to keep spending at current levels.

"I don't think we have any problems revenue-wise," he said, adding that problems could crop up if oil prices fall or federal taxes increase.

Schlueter said his 1984 tax bill will face some "cleanup" next year. Among the concerns is the handling of the sales tax on newspapers. Lawmakers expanded the sales tax to cover previously exempt items — including newspapers.

The problem is that newspapers designate their carriers as "independent contractors," Claudia Stravato of the comptroller's office told the committee. That means the carriers — sometimes young children — become responsible for collecting the sales tax.

"We are giving permits to 8-year-old children," she said. "The net effect is we are going to be permitting about 10,000 children."

Schlueter said, "We are going to delve into what newspapers are doing with children. I'm curious about that."

Ms. Stravato also said her office has asked for an attorney general's opinion as to whether the tax is an unconstitutional infringement on First Amendment rights to freedom of the press.

While lawmakers looked for ways to avoid a tax hike, state employees called Tuesday for a pay hike. Groups representing state employees and college teachers want pay raises which would total $535 million over the next 2½ years.

"The pay raise is well deserved and well documented," said Gary Hughes, executive director of the 20,000-member Texas Public Employees Association.

Also urging the Legislature to approve a pay raise was the Texas Association of College Teachers, which says many college instructors are leaving teaching for private enterprise and higher salaries.

Hughes estimated the raise would cost about $115 million. The groups also are seeking raises that would total between 14 percent and 15 percent over the following two years, accounting for the $535 million total.

FmHA borrowers...

Dropout rate reported down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration says fewer of its borrowers quit farming last fiscal year because of "financial difficulties" and that one reason was the agency's willingness to go along with many of them.

About 2.4 percent of the farmers who borrow from FmHA, an agency of the Agriculture Department, left farming during the year.

That was down from a dropout rate of 2.7 percent in 1982-83 and 2.9 percent in 1981-82, the first year the agency began keeping comparable statistics. About 12 percent of the total U.S. farm debt is handled by the agency, often described as the farm lender of last resort.

The FmHA figures were included Tuesday in a preliminary report for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30. In all, 273,197 farmers had one or more loans from the agency. Of those, 6,713 left farming because of financial problems.

Officials said the dropouts included foreclosures, bankruptcies, voluntary conveyance of property, transfers and sales.

Charles W. Shuman, FmHA administrator, said the preliminary figures showed that the agency "made special arrangments" with more than 33,000 farmers who could not make payments on their loans.

County supervisors in nearly 2,000 local FmHA offices rescheduled, consolidated or reamortized loans for more than 30,300 farm borrowers, and deferred part of the loan payments for more than 2,800 others.

"Without these special actions, these farmers would not have been able to continue farming," Shuman said.

Further, he said, FmHA subordinated its liens for more than 31,000 farm loans in which farmers had borrowed up to the agency's limit. By standing aside, in effect, those subordinations made collateral available to farmers for use in obtaining additional credit from private lenders.

"Even in these difficult times for agriculture, over 70 percent of FmHA borrowers are making their payments on schedule," Shuman said in a statement.

"One way or another, we stayed with nearly 98 percent of all our borrowers during the year. As a lender of last resort, the case could be made that the agency has kept its present 273,000 FmHA borrowers from going out of business."

Appeals court asks for grand jury records

AUSTIN (AP) — A Houston woman jailed for refusing to answer questions about her teenage son's alleged involvement in a mail carrier's slaying must remain in jail until appeals judges review grand jury transcripts.
