Economy growth halted, report indicates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The operating rate at factories, mines and utilities edged down in October for the third consecutive month, the government reported Friday, as signals of a sharp slowdown in the economic expansion continue to mount.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that industry operated at 81.8 percent of capacity in October, down 0.2 percentage point from the September level.

The October decline compared with an even sharper drop of 0.6 percentage point in September and a 0.1-point decline in August.

The August drop broke a string of 20 consecutive increases as industry hired new workers and expanded operating rates, which had shrunk to a low of 69.6 percent during the 1981-82 recession.

The three consecutive declines left some economists wondering whether the current pause in economic growth is, in fact, the beginning of another recession.

"Whether the economy is fading into a recession is a live issue right now," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at Shearson Lehman-American Express. "With so much weak data, clearly the risk of a recession appears significant."

Sinai put the odds of an imminent recession at one in four, saying it would probably take a combination of factors such as further weakening in consumer spending, a deepening of the trade deficit and a bulge in business inventories to trigger a recession.

He predicted that growth in the final three months of the year would run at an anemic 1.5 percent to 2 percent, far below the 8.6 percent pace set in the first six months of 1984.

Growth in the third quarter slumped to 2.7 percent, and many economists expect this will be revised downward to 2 percent or less when the government issues the latest figures on the gross national product next week.

The Reagan administration had been forecasting a rebound in growth to above 4 percent in the fourth quarter, but chief Commerce Department economist Robert Ortner said it was likely to fall below 3 percent.

Ortner, however, predicted stronger activity in the first three months of 1985. He said the administration's forecast of 4 percent growth next year was still attainable.

"The economy still has plenty of capacity to grow," he said. "Most sectors look quite good except for one, the deterioration in foreign trade."

Ortner and other economists attributed the decline in factory operating rates to two special factors. One was a strike at Canadian General Motors Corp. plants which caused parts shortages and curtailed U.S. production, and the other was a 25 percent decline in coal production caused by bulging inventories.

The government reported Thursday that a companion index which measures industrial output was unchanged in October. The operating level measures how much of available capacity is being used. While it takes production into account, it also gauges such things as plant expansions and modernization.

The operating rate reached a high of 82.7 percent of capacity in July before slipping back the last three months. The October decline came from weakness in all three major segments.

Manufacturing capacity dipped 0.1 percentage point to 82.1 percent in October. Output at auto and parts plants was down 1 percentage point to 81.7 percent of capacity, primarily because of a cutback in production of trucks. It was still well above its 1982 recession low of 46.1 percent.

The operating rate at the nation's mines fell sharply from 77.3 percent in September to 74.4 percent in October, primarily because coal producers cut back operations in an effort to use inventories that had swollen in anticipation of a strike.

Police have warrant out on murder suspect

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

An arrest warrant has been obtained by Midland police for a 24-year-old Midland man wanted for the stabbing death Thursday night of a 28-year-old acquaintance.

Raul Armendariz, who lived in a small rent house behind 1005 College, is suspected of killing Joe Luis Vega with either a sharp instrument, presumed to be a knife or a screwdriver, according to Midland police.

No weapon has been recovered. Witnesses told police, Vega, 3122 W. Kansas, went to the house Armendariz rented with his brother Heber and Angel Cervantes at about 3:30 p.m. Thursday, Det. Sgt. Larry Bledsoe said.

A group of about four or five had "a small party...they drank some drinks," Bledsoe said.

At about 8:30 p.m., an argument broke out and Armendariz stabbed Vega, witnesses said. The incident apparently took place in the fenced yard outside the rent house, which was splattered with blood.

According to witnesses, Armendariz said he was taking the injured man to the hospital and put Vega into Vega's car.

When he didn't appear back at the house, Cervantes phoned police at 12:19 a.m. Friday to report the altercation. An attempt was made to locate Vega and Armendariz, Bledsoe said.

Vega's 1976 primer-gray Chevrolet Camaro was discovered at about 9 a.m. Friday in a vacant lot in the 800 block of West Collins. His body, clad in dark pants and no shirt, was lying across the back seat.

The victim suffered three "deep" stab wounds, with two of them entering the body cavity, according to Det. Sgt. Alan Inman. An autopsy was being conducted Friday afternoon by Dr. Martha Madsen.

Police speculate the suspect discovered Vega was dead and, instead of taking him to the hospital, drove his body to the vacant lot. His time of death, however, has not been determined.

Armendariz is believed to be driving a white 1972 Cadillac Eldorado.

Comparable pay 'looney' idea, official believes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, echoing criticism by the Reagan administration, said Friday that comparable pay for women is "the looniest idea since Looney Tunes came on the screen."

Clarence M. Pendleton Jr. said he was expressing his personal opinion, and predicted a "lively debate" when the eight-member commission formally takes up the subject early next year.

In the midst of the presidential election campaign last month, White House economist William Niskanen labeled comparable pay "a truly crazy proposal." White House spokesman Larry Speakes said President Reagan thinks the idea is "nebulous...at best."

Pendleton spoke at a news conference along with Linda Chavez, staff director of the independent commission which turned markedly conservative a year ago with the addition of new Reagan appointees. Ms. Chavez said comparable pay is "against the grain of what the women's movement has stood for the last 20 years" — the opening of doors to traditionally male jobs.

The news conference was called to release 16 scholarly papers on comparable pay that were presented to the commission last June. Eight favor the concept, also called comparable worth, and eight are opposed.

Comparable pay means that people in different jobs of equivalent worth to an employer should get the same salary, such as a librarian and a chemist, or a cafeteria worker and a truck driver. It is not equal pay for equal work, which bars wage discrimination if men and women hold the same job. Equal pay for equal work is required by law and supported by the commission.

"This is probably the looniest idea since Looney Tunes came on the screen," Pendleton said, referring to the popular children's cartoons. "I think you just cannot begin to do things to the marketplace that have served this country so well."

"If a truck driver makes more than a secretary, she should be able to apply for a job as a truck driver" — and use the law to fight any job discrimination, he commented.

By forcing salaries higher in some traditionally female jobs, he said, comparable worth could backfire if employers with "cafeterias and other kinds of services...exchange that for coffee machines and other kinds of vending machines."

If the concept is used in government employment, Pendleton added, governments would have to raise more money and "it doesn't come from the tooth fairy."

Diann Rust-Thierney, a staff attorney at the National Women's Law Center, disputed the Pendleton-Chavez comments, saying comparable worth "is a legal concept designed to deal with a very real problem that existing laws don't deal with."

Author, talk show host has harsh words for U.S. media

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Staff Writer

Author and talk show host, Marlin Maddoux, in the Permian Basin to present his multi-media, conservative presentation tonight at the Odessa Holiday Inn Centre had harsh words for America's news media.

He called the media an arrogant fourth branch of the government that was neither elected nor accountable for their actions.

"I have come to the conclusion that the national media is a threat to free thinking in this country," said Maddoux, whose 90-minute Point of View radio program is heard daily on 100 stations nationwide.

Maddoux said that for a free society to remain free it needed facts upon which to make decisions, adding that America was not getting facts from a biased media.

"The greatest threat," he said, "is from the network news, simply because so many people rely on it for their information."

He cited ABC's Sam Donaldson and CBS's Dan Rather as typical offenders. "The bias that comes through from them is unreal," he said. He accused the press of being generally liberal and hostile to traditional American values, saying that the doctrine of secular humanism was the prime cause.

Judge Fitz-Gerald saddened over resignation

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland Municipal Court Judge James "Jim" Fitz-Gerald III, saddened over his resignation in wake of a City Council-ordered reorganization of the court, Friday said the councilmen have their "own prerogatives."

He has his. "I hope that my values and attitude are reflective of common sense, fairness and justice," Fitz-Gerald said.

Fitz-Gerald, 52, resigned his job Thursday after Mayor G. Thane Akins and the five City Councilmen opted to strip the court administrative duties from Fitz-Gerald and to place them in direct control of the city manager, Jim Brown, and in the city's Finance Department.

"I'm sad," Fitz-Gerald said. "I enjoyed it (the judgeship)."

Akins denied the switch was

"I hope that my values and attitude are reflective of common sense, fairness and justice."

—Judge James Fitz-Gerald

designed to bolster revenues.

"It has nothing to do with revenues for the city," the mayor said. "It has to do with justice being done." He was referring to the backlog of cases, particularly warrants and the 187,268 outstanding parking tickets over the past two years. Value of the uncollected fines, at $3 each, is $561,804.

"It's a travesty of justice for those folks not to pay their bills and for others to," Akins said. "It's a bad deal."

Of the volume of citations, Fitz-Gerald said that Midland "probably ran fifth or sixth in the state in parking tickets" issued.

The City Council based its decision to sever administrative duties from the court on a report by Dallas and Houston management consultants of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., a certified public accounting firm. The two-page cover letter to the 98-page report says in part:

"WE OBSERVED an overall indifference to the role of the Court as a revenue-collecting entity. Despite significant backlogs, the Court's work environment was extremely informal and low-key."

Fitz-Gerald said that the state law which made the Midland Municipal Court a court of record in the 1970s specifically said that the judge would run the court's administrative functions.

After meeting with the City Council in executive session, Fitz-Gerald on Wednesday wrote a terse note to the Council: "As directed by the City Council, I hereby delegate to you the administrative side of the court insofar as legally allowable."

The next day, the judge submitted his resignation when he found out the court's administrative functions would operate out of the city's Finance Department.

"I don't think it should be directly connected to the Finance Department," Fitz-Gerald told the Reporter-Telegram Friday night.

Brown said the city had "never considered it (Municipal Court) revenue generating. That's never been a factor." He said the transfer of administrative duties affects the "paperwork end of the business." Details of those duties have not been discussed in depth by the Council or city staff.

In its letter to Fitz-Gerald, the City

Council said it "had no intentions in getting involved in the judicial process related to any particular case...It is our firm belief that the judges in our Municipal Court, as appointees of the City Council, should reflect certain values and attitudes of the Council as we reflect them of the general citizenry."

THE COUNCIL made reference to "attitudes of strict law and order" and "repeat offenders who flaunt and make a mockery of the law," to unpaid fines, and to relatively "small fees" and to the "hundreds of thousands of dollars uncollected and owed to the city."

John Hyde, a Midland lawyer who is former president of the Midland County Bar Association, expressed dismay over the tone of the letter to Fitz-Gerald.

Focus shifted to inauguration

By MAUREEN SANTINI
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost overnight, many of President Reagan's aides have shifted their focus from the presidential campaign to planning for the Jan. 21 inauguration, whose theme is likely to be unity.

In fact, about 25 people who had been working on the president's campaign simply packed up and moved over to new jobs at the just-created Presidential Inaugural Committee.

Some of them have White House jobs, which they also will continue to hold, as they commute to the inaugural offices at a Navy building in the nation's capital. Others came from the Reagan-Bush '84 headquarters, which was still active this week as campaign operatives sorted through files, packed and prepared to move.

The office, which employed about 325 people during the campaign, was due to close today.

Though most details of the inaugural still remain to be decided, one official said the committee was determined to try to prevent a recurrence of the problems that arose during the 1981 inaugural.

For one thing, many people never received tickets they had ordered to the inaugural balls because the tickets had disappeared when they tried to pick them up. And the relentless series of inaugural events, including a star-studded gala, was criticized in some quarters as extravagant.

The inaugural committee still is being named and getting organized. It has not yet decided how many post-inaugural balls to have, or who should be invited to purchase tickets, among other details.

But one official, who spoke only if not identified, said the event this time was likely to be scaled back from four years ago.

The actual swearing-in will occur privately on Jan. 20, because it falls on a Sunday. But the traditional

Meanwhile, many newly unemployed campaign workers will be looking for jobs in the government, and campaign director Edward J. Rollins said he would be meeting with White House officials to see about placing some of them.

Those who moved to the inaugural committee included campaign press secretary James H. Lake and his deputy, John Buckley. In fact, Buckley spent time at both the campaign and the inaugural headquarters on Tuesday, winding down from one and gearing up for the other.

But the White House is retaining tight control over the inaugural in what one official described as an attempt to "get it right" this year. Deputy Chief of Staff Michael K. Deaver was named general chairman of the inaugural committee.

John F.W. Rogers, a presidential assistant at the White House, was named director and general manager of the inaugural.

Mites extinguish fire ants

MATHIS, Texas (AP) — Deep inside Malcom A. Maedgen Jr.'s fire ant mounds, legions of microscopic mites search out their prey.

The minute parasites inject fierce fire ants with a paralyzing poison and suck the life out of the ants until only twisted, lifeless bodies remain.

Maedgen, a Mathis farmer, is president of Biogenesis Inc., the only company in Texas producing natural predators to rid the environment of pesky insects.

In Texas, fire ants are considered a major nuisance.

"They're very aggressive, move very rapidly if disturbed and they're sting causes a great deal of pain," said Ken Kadlec, director of agricultural and environmental sciences for the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Kadlec said the ants also cause an unknown amount of economic damage in the form of crop and livestock destruction.

Maedgen says his mites — Pyemotes tritici — are the answer. They are aggressive, safe and clean.

"This bug is actually looking for a host down in the hole which carries control a step beyond squirting insecticide down a hole," he said.

The mites kill the ants rather than merely chasing them away, he said.

At present, the Texas Department of Agriculture distributes the pesticide, AMDRO, for use on the ants. Maedgen said his mites could replace the use of toxins.

"In the long run, it's going to be more effective than AMDRO. And you're not putting anything out there that's leaving a toxic residue," he said.

Maedgen breeds the parasites with the aid of wheat grains and Angoumois grain moths. The grain serves as home to the immature moths and the moths serve as temporary hosts to the mites.

Dressed in protective plastic trash bags and shoulder-length plastic gloves, Maedgen and his employees pour small handfuls of infested wheat grains into shallow holes in ant mounds. Sometimes a single application does the trick while on larger mounds a second application is needed to wipe out the ants.

Fire ants that escape the mites will probably carry the parasites with them and infect other ant colonies, Maedgen said.

Once the ants are dead, the mites themselves die within three to five days for lack of hosts, Maedgen said.

Maedgen said it isn't likely that resourceful mites could find other insects on which to feed after the fire ants are gone and continue to survive.

The mites are entomophagous, meaning they eat only insects, not humans. But they do bite, leaving a bump and itch similar to a chigger bite, Maedgen said.

Maedgen discovered the parasites about a year ago while searching for an insect that would kill fire ants.

MADD changes name

HURST, Texas (AP) — The nation's largest organization against drinking while driving has officially changed its name from Mothers Against Drunk Drivers to Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

The group's goals remain the same, but the reason for the slight name change was to point out the organization wants to stop drunk driving, not to attack individuals, a MADD spokeswoman said.

"We wanted to emphasize that we aren't against the individual drunk driver," said MADD general counsel Cathy Stayman. "We're out to eliminate the problem. We want to attack the issue of drunk driving."

Ms. Stayman said the organization's founder and president, Candy Lightner, presented the name change recommendation to MADD's board of directors at its annual meeting Oct. 31 at its headquarters in Hurst.

She said the name change "in no way" reflects any change in the organization's goals and objectives.

Catching wasps for venom risky, profitable job

By SUE CROSS

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Russ Lamp endures the stings and barbs of his labor and says he loves it — the work, not the stings.

Few others even consider such work and even fewer would claim to love it.

The 33-year-old Lamp says stings go with his job of catching wasps — often in nests the size of several bushel baskets — without the aid of chemicals to kill or calm the insects.

Lamp, a beekeeper by day, moonlights as a wasp catcher for Vespa Industries of Pittsburgh, which uses wasp venom for vaccines that help people overcome allergies to insect stings. Lamp estimates that 20 million Americans have severe allergic reactions to insect stings.

He must catch the wasps live and lively because chemicals like those used by exterminators could ruin the quality of the venom.

Catchers like Lamp earn hundreds of dollars for a pound of insects.

While the lure of such profits attracts many inquiries about wasp catching, few people are willing to subject themselves to such a stinging rebuttal from the insects, and Lamp said even fewer were qualified because of the real dangers.

"It's a very dangerous business. You've got to know what you're doing, know the insects," said Lamp, who holds a degree in entomology, the study of insects, from Ohio State University.

"I'm used to being stung almost every day. Working with honeybees, it's just a hazard of the job," he said.

Even with protective gear, stings are expected.

Most of the nests Lamp collects are in urban areas, often in attics or crawl spaces where the insects can stay warm through the winter and where food such as flies, mosquitoes and other insects is plentiful.

He approaches a nest with a vacuum to suck up guard wasps, the most aggressive individuals in a nest and its primary defenders.

Keeping an eye out for guards, he uses cotton to plug holes in the nest.

"It gets a little hair-raising when you start. They have several entrances where they come out, and you can only work with one (entrance) at a time," he said.

Ideally, Lamp can plug all entrances and drop the entire nest into a container which is quickly placed in a freezer. If the nest breaks apart before it is enclosed, the vacuum is used to scoop up as many insects as possible.

Depending on the species of wasp or hornet, it takes 4,000 to 6,000 insects to make up a pound. A large nest might contain up to 15,000 insects.

"Collection of the insects is about half the job with these things. Then you have to clean them out of the nest and get them to the laboratory in mint condition."

The wasps must remain frozen to keep the venom from decomposing.

"These venoms are extracted and made into certain kinds of vaccines for people who are allergic to these insects," Lamp said. "This opens a lot of horizons for people who are scared to death of going outdoors and getting stung."

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecasts snow for today for parts of Utah, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Iowa, Wisconsin and Maine. Showers are forecast for parts of the Pacific coast, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and parts of New Mexico and Arizona.

Slight chance of showers predicted for Permian Basin

A 20 percent chance of rain for today is predicted by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. Highs are expected to be in the upper 60s with winds from the southwest at 10 to 15 mph. Lows should reach the upper 30s tonight with partly cloudy skies, and winds shifting to the northwest at 10 to 20 mph.

A high of 86 degrees was recorded on this date in 1963, 32 degrees higher than today's top recording. Today's low of 41 degrees is 23 degrees warmer than the record low in 1959 at 18 degrees.

STATE

Skies were cloudy and temperatures mild over much of Texas Friday, but a strong cold front expected by Sunday should change the weather picture quite a bit over much of the state.

Friday afternoon temperatures ranged from 49 at Amarillo to 86 at McAllen, while readings over most of the state were in the 50s and 60s, the National Weather Service said.

Sunshine was scarce over the entire state except over the summer-like Rio Grande valley. A few showers peppered Southeast Texas.

Highs in the 60s and 70s were expected over much of the state Saturday, although the mercury should be lower in the Panhandle, the weather service predicted.

Rain, showers or thunderstorms were expected to precede a strong front over much of Texas today. Winter-like temperatures, bleak skies and a chilling wind should follow the front over much of the state tonight and Sunday.

Low temperatures Saturday night were expected to range from the upper 20s in the Panhandle to the 40s and 50s elsewhere.

High temperatures on Sunday were expected to rise only into the 40s and 50s in North and East Texas, the weather service said. But conditions should be warmer in the far south as temperatures were expected to rise into the 70s and 80s.

NATION

Westerly winds blustered across the lower Great Lakes region Friday, spawning snow showers over parts of New York state, Pennsylvania and Ohio that threatened 6-inch accumulations in some places.

Travelers' advisories were posted for western New York, northwest Pennsylvania and extreme northeast Ohio, with blowing and drifting snow possible.

Up to 6 inches of snow was predicted for the advisory areas of New York, with less accumulation forecast for the two other states covered by the advisories. Snow showers were also reported in Michigan.

Gale warnings were in effect Friday for the Great Lakes.

Elsewhere, rain was scattered over New England, southern South Carolina, the Gulf Coast, parts of the lower Rio Grande Valley and California. The Midwest and the Tennessee Valley had sunshine, while clouds hung over the Rockies, the central Plateau and the central and southern Pacific Coast.

High temperatures will range in the 20s and 30s over the northern Atlantic Coast states, the Great Lakes, most of the upper Mississippi Valley and parts of the northern Plains. The mercury will rise into the 60s and 70s over the south Atlantic states, the Gulf Coast states, the desert Southwest and Southern California, and into the 80s over the tip of southern Texas. The rest of the nation should have highs in the 40s and 50s.

Leader: Guerrillas willing to consider cease fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Salvadoran rebel leader Guillermo Ungo said Friday his group is willing to consider a unilateral cease fire and some form of participation in upcoming elections as part of a process he hopes will lead to a political settlement with the U.S.-backed government.

Ungo said the leftist rebels would agree to a cease-fire if certain conditions are agreed to by the Salvadoran Army. He did not specify the conditions.

Ungo, accompanied by three colleagues, spoke to a news conference sponsored by Foreign Policy magazine.

Hector Oqueli, one of Ungo's colleagues, declined to say whether the rebels will formally set forth a cease-fire proposal at the next round of talks between the government and the insurgents, which may be held later this month.

Ungo is head of the Democratic Revolutionary Force, the political arm of the Salvadoran rebel movement.

According to published reports Friday from Mexico City, Ungo's home base, insurgent leaders have begun discussions on the possibility of participating in Salvadoran municipal elections set for March.

While saying it "would be impossible for us to participate," Ungo said the rebels "will not just be bystanders" during the election.

Asked what type of involvement he was contemplating, Ungo said, "We will tell the Salvadoran people what is our position and we will ask the Salvadoran people to support that position."

The insurgents boycotted the 1982 Constituent Assembly elections and the presidential elections earlier this year.

President Jose Napoleon Duarte has ruled out any settlement under which the rebels would be given a share of power and has said his objective is to incorporate them into the electoral process.

Ungo said a final settlement should be decided on the basis of discussions involving the various social, economic and political forces in El Salvador.

The first round of talks between the government and the rebels was held last month in the northern Salvadoran town of La Palma. Ungo said he recommended to the government 10 days ago that the second round be held in San Salvador, the capital, on Nov. 27 but that no response has been received.

Oscar Acevedo, a member of the rebels' military wing, known as the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, told the news conference that the insurgents do not seek a military solution even though they control large areas of Salvadoran territory.

He said the rebels have been able to expand the territory under their control even though the Salvadoran armed forces have been increased in size from 17,000 members in 1980 to 45,000 nowadays.

"We favor a political and negotiated settlement," Acevedo said.

The joint appearance of Ungo and Acevedo appeared aimed at countering the claims of Duarte and the Reagan administration that the political and military arms of the rebel movement do not share the same objectives.

The Reagan administration believes the rebels' military command is dominated by Marxists whose goal is total victory and the establishment of a Cuban-style state in El Salvador.

Acevedo expressed concern about the possibility of a "regionalization of the conflict," asserting that the presence of U.S. forces off El Salvador's coast and inside neighboring Honduras has created a "grave and dangerous situation."

Lebanese boy to be sent to school in Italy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A 12-year-old Beirut boy, "adopted" by Italian soldiers who bought gum from him, has been granted an Italian government scholarship to send him to grade school, high school and college in Italy.

Mustafa Nimr Hawi, a Shiite Moslem, left with his father for Rome on Thursday, the independent daily newspaper An-Nahar said Friday.

Mustafa, who used to sell chewing gum to the Italian soldiers in the multinational peacekeeping force, became so proficient in the Italian language that at times he acted as a translator between the soldiers and his neighbors, An-Nahar said.

An-Nahar said the soldiers "adopted" the boy, and asked their government to sponsor his education after the peacekeeping force pulled out of Lebanon.

Frenchman killed in Spain

BEHOBLA, Spain (AP) — Two men and a woman, all wearing ski masks, Friday shot and killed a Frenchman eating at a restaurant in this northern Spanish Basque border town, police said.

Officials identified the victim as Jose Couchot, 50, who had been living in Fuenterrabia, another Spanish Basque town near the French border.

Police said there were reports Couchot had connections with the so-called Anti-Terrorist Liberation Group that has killed a half-dozen suspected members of the Basque separatist organization ETA living in exile in southern France.

There was no claim of responsibility for the attack, but police said it had the earmarks of an ETA assassination.

Gandhi surveys disaster

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Rajiv Gandhi made a helicopter survey of two storm-lashed southern Indian states Friday, his first trip out of the capital since his mother was assassinated and he replaced her as prime minister.

Gandhi flew over areas where a hurricane killed 45 people this week.

Officials said more than 100,000 people were left homeless in the storm.

Election slated for island

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (AP) — Shopkeepers boarded up their windows and riot police were on standby Friday as New Caledonians prepared for Sunday's elections.

The Kanak Socialist National Liberation Front, representing about 60 percent of the indigenous Melanesian population, has said it will boycott the election for the 42-seat territorial assembly. The Kanaks comprise about 43 percent of the 145,000 people in New Caledonia, an island 1,250 miles east of Australia. The socialist group wants a sovereign state for the natives, a move opposed by the French, Polynesians and Vietnamese who make up the majority of the population.

Thai railway strike ends

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A nationwide general strike was averted Friday when workers of the State Railways of Thailand ended a four-day strike after reaching a compromise with the government over a wage dispute.

The agreement apparently satisfied the Labor Congress of Thailand, the nation's largest labor organization, which had threatened to start a general strike Friday to support the railway walkout.

The railway strike had cut off all long-distance cargo and passenger service to Thailand's north, north-east and south.

Alleged terrorist disrupts his hearing

CLEVELAND (AP) — Reputed terrorist Raymond Luc Levasseur was taken before a federal magistrate Friday in handcuffs and shackles and disrupted his hearing by shouting that U.S. marshals have abused him and "want to beat my head in."

"I have a right to keep from being abused," Levasseur said.

Magistrate David S. Perelman twice warned Levasseur either to control himself or he would be gagged.

"This is a political trial. It will be a forum, and you have no right to gag me," Levasseur said.

Perelman ruled that Levasseur should be sent to Maine to face two 1975 indictments for bank robbery, but also stayed his removal order, pending resolution of a government contempt of court motion. The FBI is seeking hair samples and handwriting samples from Levasseur, who has refused to cooperate. U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti is to consider the contempt motion next week, Perelman said.

The FBI is seeking the hair and handwriting samples as part of an investigation of an underground terrorist organization known as the United Freedom Front. The group has claimed responsibility for 10 bombings and one attempted bombing in and near New York City since 1981.

United Freedom Front communiques and bomb-making equipment were seized by the FBI in a Nov. 4 raid on a Deerfield Township, Ohio, farmhouse where Levasseur had been staying under a false name.

Levasseur, 38, was on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted List at the time of his arrest.

There was one witness at the hearing, FBI agent Dean W. Winslow, who identified Levasseur through palm prints and fingerprints.

When the hearing opened started, defense lawyer Terry H. Gilbert told Perelman that he also was being abused by marshals.

Five plainclothes marshals surrounded the defense table.

Perelman said he would consider Gilbert's complaint later.

Then Levasseur jumped up and shouted: "They are punishing me with an electric box, with tear gas. They just want to beat my head in."

Perelman told Levasseur that his rights would be protected.

"You're not advocating my rights," Levasseur shouted back. "You're just here to grease the wheel, you pimp, while they beat my head in. I have a right to keep from being abused. I want you to know that I've been threatened. It might be too late for me."

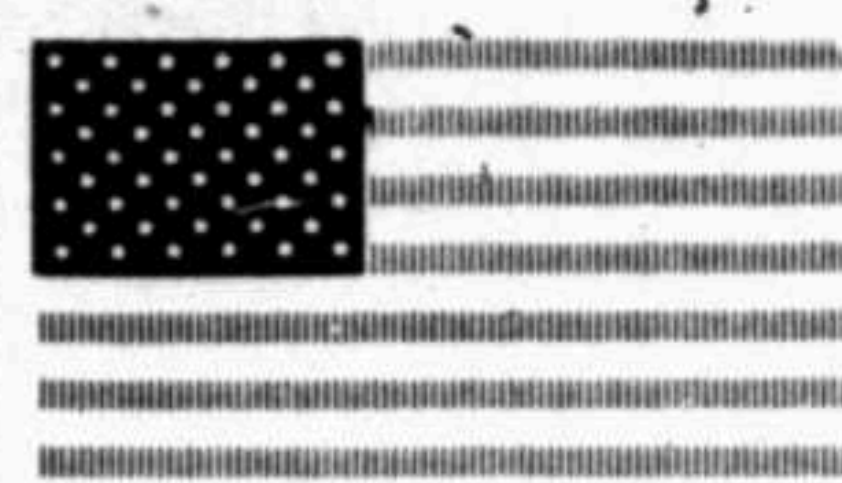

Upon leaving the courtroom under strict security, Levasseur said, "They're scared of freedom fighters."

Also arrested Nov. 4 was Levasseur's common-law wife Patricia Gros. In a related raid at a Cleveland house the same day, the FBI arrested Jaan Karl Laaman, Richard C. Williams and Barbara Kurzi.

According to testimony in bond hearings, United Freedom Front printed material was also found at the Cleveland house.

The two women are charged with harboring a fugitive. Laaman is wanted in Massachusetts in connection with a 1982 gunbattle with state troopers. Williams is wanted in New Jersey in the 1981 shooting death of a state trooper.

Sheriff loses job on coin flip

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Sheriff Thomas M. Lambeth called "heads" Friday, but the quarter came up tails. As a result, Lambeth won't be sheriff much longer.

Starting in January, Daniel Levens — who tied Lambeth in the Nov. 6 election — will take over as top lawman in Hamilton County in a sparsely populated southwestern Kansas.

"I'm still in shock right now, probably too shocked to be excited," Levens said by telephone from Syracuse minutes after a quarter landed tails up and carried him to victory. "I'm sure it will take a while to hit home."

Levens, a Republican, initially appeared to have lost by three votes to Lambeth, the Democratic incumbent, in the Nov. 6 general election. But he asked for a recount, which showed each man polled 759 votes in the county of 2,514 residents.

That forced the matter to the Hamilton County Commission. In accordance with state law, which calls for a lottery of some sort on such occasions, Commissioner John L. Helfrich pulled a quarter from his pocket Friday and tossed it into the air to settle the issue.

It was the second time this year Helfrich has flipped pocket change to decide an election. In August, he flipped a quarter to decide the winner of the Democratic primary for county treasurer. Betty L. Burch won that coin toss, but her luck ran out in the general election as she lost to Republican Lucille Staats — without a tie or a recount.

County Attorney Rob Gale said at least two other races in the county have ended in tie votes and coin flips: His uncle lost a school board race by a coin toss about 12 years ago, and the grandfather of Deputy Sheriff Terry Hazen lost a sheriff's race the same way, some 45 years ago.

Lambeth, who was appointed to the post last summer after Sheriff Edgar Hatcher quit for health reasons, was out of town later Friday and could not be reached for comment. He had said earlier that he'd seek another job in police work if he lost the coin flip.

PUC won't allow phone companies charge for operator assistance

AUSTIN (AP) — Public Utility Commission examiners on Friday refused to allow Southwestern Bell and General Telephone to charge customers for operator help in completing local calls and making emergency calls to busy numbers.

Bell wants to charge $2.50 to interrupt calls, $1.50 to verify that a number is working and $1.10 for an operator to dial and put through a local call.

General Telephone wants to charge $2.50 to interrupt calls and $1.50 to verify a number. It did not ask for a charge for operator assistance on local calls.

Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle, the state lawyer who represents residential and small business consumers, said the companies are seeking "back-door rate increases."

STATE

Boyle said the Bell request would have brought the company $48 million in new revenue. But Carlin Brandt of Austin, Bell's division staff manager for revenue requirements, said it would raise only $20.2 million.

He said Bell wants to "apply the charge to those customers who actually use the operators to perform those functions."

About 34 million local calls a year in Texas are completed by operators, according to Brandt. The proposal would have exempted handicapped customers from paying the $1.10 charge.

Just over 4 million "busy interrupts" are performed and 2.5 million line verifications are done, he said.

The company does not plan to reduce local rates if the new charges are approved, according to Brandt.

Exhumation shows man shot in back

DALLAS (AP) — A defense attorney says an examination of the exhumed body of a 20-year-old victim of a policeman's bullets may not have died the way authorities said.

Dallas police Corporal Melvin D. Cozby said he shot Michael Frost twice in the chest on Nov. 7, 1983, after a brief car chase. Cozby said Frost was trying to take away his gun.

Attorney Roger Joyner said Friday that an examination by pathologist William Brownlee indicates Frost was shot in the back.

Joyner represents three teenagers facing perjury charges in connection with the case. His clients told a grand jury that Frost was shot for no reason.

"I am certain the (bullet) tracks are inconsistent with the manner related by police," Joyner said.

He refused to provide any details of the examination.

Brownlee is a former medical examiner for the District of Columbia now in private practice as a forensic pathologist and surgeon.

His examination was conducted at a local funeral home after Joyner obtained a court order for the exhumation Wednesday. Frost's body was returned to his grave Friday.

Cozby, who has killed three people and wounded two others in his 13-year police career, was cleared of any wrongdoing by a grand jury and by a police and citizen review board.

De la Madrid's budget proposal 54 percent higher than this year

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid has presented a budget proposal to Congress that is 54 percent higher than this year's spending level.

The budget, made public Friday, proposes spending 18 trillion pesos — the equivalent of $90 billion — compared with the 1984 budget of 11.7 trillion pesos.

In real terms, the 1985 budget remains at the same level as 1984 spending because of this year's 55 percent inflation rate.

In a document accompanying the spending proposal, de la Madrid outlined his economic goals for 1985. He said the government aims for 3 percent to 4 percent economic growth, reduction in the inflation rate to 35 percent and a cut in the federal deficit to 5.1 percent of the gross national product.

Budget and Planning Secretary Carlos Salinas de Gortari noted that the projected growth in the economy will be greater than the population growth rate of 2.4 percent a year and said the expansion will bring new jobs for the country's millions of unemployed.

"Mexico has learned in its economic strategies how to fulfill its international obligations without neglecting social priorities," he told reporters in Monterrey, where he was attending the 12th annual convention of the Institute of Mexican Finance Executives.

Jorge A. Chapa, president of the Business Coordinating Council, acknowledged that the government's policies have reactivated the economy but warned it "is falling into an expansionist strategy."

He noted that instead of the 1 percent economic growth the government had projected for this year, the growth is turning out to be 2 percent.

Mexico was plunged into an economic crisis in 1982 when falling oil revenue was insufficient to meet payments on its huge foreign debt. Economic growth came to a standstill in 1982 and the economy shrank by 5.3 percent in 1983.

A severe austerity program implemented by de la Madrid after he took office in December 1982 is credited with reducing the federal deficit and slowing inflation. The deficit stood at 16 percent in 1982, dropping to 8.9 percent in 1983 and 6.5 percent this year.

Reagan slated to meet with Iraqi minister

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Iraq edged closer to resuming full diplomatic relations as the White House announced Friday that President Reagan will meet Nov. 26 with the highest Iraqi official to visit Washington since ties between the two countries were severed in 1967.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz will confer with Reagan at the White House.

Speakes refused to speculate on the purpose of the meeting or to confirm widespread reports that the United States will resume diplomatic relations with Iraq, which is engaged in a long and bloody war of attrition with Iran.

In Baghdad, the Iraqi foreign ministry confirmed the meeting and said Aziz would discuss "bilateral relations and Middle East developments" with Reagan.

A knowledgeable source in the Iraqi capital, speaking only on condition that he not be identified, said Iraq also had informed the Soviet Union and neighboring Arab nations, including Persian Gulf states, that it had decided to resume diplomatic relations with the United States.

Speakes noted that Aziz will be "the most senior Iraqi official to visit Washington since relations were broken in 1967" after the Arab-Israeli war.

He did say that both countries, which maintain diplomatic offices in each other's capitals, have expressed interest in renewing full relations and exchanging ambassadors.

"Our position is that Iraq has indicated since 1980 that it was prepared in principle to resume full diplomatic relations," Speakes said. "We have indicated we would be prepared to exchange ambassadors whenever they wanted to do so."

Speakes said he anticipates no change in the U.S. position of neutrality in the Iraq-Iran war, and no "dramatic developments" if relations are restored. He specifically reaffirmed U.S. policy against selling arms to either Iran or Iraq.

Wife hopes husband home for Thanksgiving

MONROE CITY, Texas (AP) — Roy David McBride hasn't come home for Thanksgiving dinner in five years, but his wife, Deborah, hopes this holiday will be different.

McBride, 33, is an inmate at the Texas Department of Corrections Walls Unit in Huntsville.

He had been on parole for eight months and living with his family in Monroe City, a small town about 40 miles east of Houston. But in September, prison officials told him he had been mistakenly released and he returned to his cell.

McBride and 51 other inmates were paroled prematurely because their prison records didn't show deadly weapons were involved in the crimes for which they were jailed, officials said.

McBride is serving 23 years for his involvement in a 1979 murder of a man at a Chambers County levee. He pleaded guilty to the murder in exchange for the dismissal of two pending theft and burglary charges.

Under state law, McBride must serve at least one third of his sentence before he can be paroled.

But Deborah McBride, 29, says her husband's brief release was a "cruel joke," and she wants him paroled again.

"My husband has been concerned about me and the kids being stranded, but we're doing OK," she said. "He's still very down. He feels like he's being punished for somebody else's mistake."

Carroll Willborn Jr., the prosecutor in the case against McBride, wrote the Board of Pardons and Paroles asking that McBride's sentence be reduced. Willborn argued that the man who shot the murder victim had received a lighter penalty than McBride, but the prosecutor's request was denied.

However, the board recommended on Tuesday that McBride's sentence be commuted to 16 years, which would allow him a prompt release.

Board spokesman Mike Roach said no reason was given for the commutation request.

"All I can do is speculate it was because McBride had shown good adjustment," Roach said. "This is the first time anything like this has happened."

Of the inmates who were released prematurely, 32 have asked their sentences be commuted. The parole board granted 14 commutations and refused one. The remaining cases are still being considered and must be reviewed by Gov. Mark White.

"Each case will be carefully considered on an individual basis," said Leslie Benitez, the governor's general counsel.

Roach said the governor won't receive the inmates' files before Tuesday and state officials will be closed Thursday and Friday.

Until then, Mrs. McBride and her two children, ages 6 and 10, will just keep hoping.

"If it's all up to God, I know he'll be home for Thanksgiving," she said. "But we've got the parole board and governor to deal with. I was told that he'd be out weeks ago."

Convicted killer sentenced to die in gas chamber

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A burly printer convicted of murdering two women in a redwood forest and charged with five other killings in the so-called Trailside Slayings was sentenced Friday to die in the gas chamber.

"I must conclude with the prosecution that if ever there was a case for the death penalty, this is that case," Superior Court Judge Dion Morrow said in passing sentence on David Carpenter, 54.

A jury recommended the death sentence in September, after Carpenter was convicted two months earlier of killing two young women in separate 1981 attacks along redwood park trails in Santa Cruz County, about 70 miles south of San Francisco.

Morrow said the defense had failed to prove Carpenter's troubled childhood and psychological problems were mitigating circumstances in the killings.

Morrow also said he believed prosecution evidence that Carpenter had committed "crimes of violence" in the five Trailside Slayings for which he has been charged, but not arraigned, in Marin County, just north of San Francisco.

Outside court, Marin County Deputy District Attorney John Posey said his office would arraign Carpenter "after he's brought to San Quentin." Morrow ordered Carpenter taken to the state prison within 10 days.

The trial was moved to Los Angeles because of pretrial publicity. Posey, citing a five-year gap between the 1980 Marin County killings and the trial, said he would "try to keep the venue in Marin County."

Defense attorney Larry Biggam cited what he called "frequent mistakes" in the conduct of the trial and said, "I'm not confident the verdict will stand."

Under California law, all death sentences are appealed automatically to the state Supreme Court.

Carpenter, who previously had served 17 years in prison for attempted murder, rape, robbery and kidnapping, was convicted in July of murdering Ellen Marie Hansen and Heather Scaggs, both 20. He also was convicted of raping Ms. Scaggs, trying to rape Ms. Hansen and trying to murder Ms. Hansen's companion, Steven Haertle, then 20.

A separate jury later recommended the death sentence. Biggam had contended that Carpenter should be spared the gas chamber because he had been an abused, speech-impaired child and was emotionally disturbed.

But in the murders of both women, the jury found "that the circumstances in aggravation outweigh the circumstances in mitigation, and we impose the sentence of death."

Superintendent trying to ensure Jewish girl's safety

RANDOLPH, Mass. (AP) — A school superintendent said Friday he is working with the U.S. Justice Department to ensure the safety of a student who says she has been threatened since refusing to stand during the Pledge of Allegiance and the national anthem.

Since a newspaper last weekend publicized her stance and her homeroom teacher's disagreement with it, Susan Shapiro, 17, and her family, who are Jewish, said they have received dozens of threats, many of them anti-Semitic. Miss Shapiro refused to attend school all week, saying she feared for her safety.

Superintendent John Zoino said the Justice Department has been working with school officials and police in this Boston suburb to ensure Miss Shapiro's safety when she decides to return to class.

"Every effort that can be made by all to stop these uncalled for and illegal actions against the members of the Shapiro family should be put into place," Zoino said.

Zoino said he supports the homeroom teacher, but believes Miss Shapiro has not acted improperly.

Miss Shapiro has refused to participate in opening exercises at Randolph High School since the start of the school year.

The senior has not commented on her reasons except to say: "I love America. (But) to me the people are the country, not the flag."

Miss Shapiro's mother Harriet said her daughter's homeroom teacher last year gave students the option of sitting during the morning exercises.

Miss Shapiro told The Boston Globe that her homeroom teacher this fall, Jean Noblin, asked her in September to stand during the salute to the flag. When she refused, Mrs. Noblin said her action was tantamount to spitting on the flag, Miss Shapiro said.

"She asked me how I would like it if she spit on the Star of David," said Miss Shapiro, adding that she considered the remark anti-Semitic.

Mrs. Noblin denied making the remark.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1943 that students may abstain from saluting the flag as long as they do not disturb other students.

Rebels crank up offense in second half

Midland Lee quarterback Dirk Bergoon, white helmet in center, drives for extra yardage against Plainview defense in bi-district playoff at Lubbock's Jones Stadium Friday night.

Ailing Lee attack suddenly gets well

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

LUBBOCK—Midland Lee's Tyrone Thurman would impress few people off the playing field. But give him some cleats, shoulder pads and a football and he's a destructive force, even though he weighs only 140 pounds.

In the first quarter, Thurman and his Rebel mates were held in check by the Plainview Bulldogs during Friday night's bi-district playoff game at Jones Stadium.

Held in check, that is, until Thurman started going crazy on his way to a four-touchdown game and a 42-7 Midland Lee victory.

Thurman put the first of his 24 points on the board early in the second quarter when he took a screen pass left from quarterback Dirk Bergoon and ran 53 yards for the score.

"We watched their films at school and knew their secondary was playing well off the line so we inserted a play in practice called a hitch screen," said Thurman. "There was real good blocking in front of me and all I had to do was follow them."

Thurman's other TD runs came from eight and 32 yards out and on a 75-yard punt return. Ironically, the 52-yard punt from Plainview's Jason Wheeler that Thurman returned was one of the only bright spots in the Plainview kicking game.

ON THE night, Thurman rushed for 76 yards and caught two passes for 68 yards and was credited by offensive line coach David Browning as part of Lee's tremendous blocking force.

"The whole group up there did a good job," said Browning about the offensive line. "They had us outsize up and down the line but we got off the ball very fast. We had to do a lot of double-teaming at the point of attack and our backs tonight did an excellent job of blocking. Tyrone and Walter (Jones) both did a great job at the corners."

Thurman was also pleased with the blocking, adding, "I'm real happy with my performance but could not have done it without the blocking of Walter Jones, Randy Ellis and our front line. In the first half we had a lot of problems running against their defense. We had to see what they were going to do against us."

The big defensive surprise from Plainview came when they did exactly as Lee expected.

"This is one of the few teams that played us in the defense that we worked against," said Browning. "It seems everybody tries to give us different looks and it really helped us when they came out and played what they were supposed to play."

AFTER THURMAN'S 53-yard touchdown reception and Craig Kamradt's PAT kick, Kamradt extended the Rebels' lead to 10-0 at halftime with a 41-yard field goal against a steady wind.

Thurman opened the third quarter with his eight-yard TD run after Wheeler's 32-yard punt from his own line was returned to the Bulldog 30. Kamradt's kick made it 17-0 and there was 8:50 left in the quarter.

Plainview got a break on the next possession when Wheeler's shanked punt on fourth down was turned into a first and ten on a holding call against the Rebels. They used the break to keep a 13-play, 80-yard drive going with Scooter Billington removing the zero from Plainview's score with a 12-yard touchdown run. Wheeler made it 17-7.

With that score came the Rebel explosion. Lee took the ensuing kickoff and mounted a 70-yard drive on seven plays for a 23-7 score with 53 seconds left in the third quarter. Thurman capped the drive with his 32-yard run. Kamradt missed the extra point.

After holding Plainview on three downs, and taking a 13-yard punt from the Bulldogs, it was seven plays and six points for Bergoon, scoring on a five-yard keeper. In trying to get back the lost extra point, Lee went for two but Bergoon's pass fell incomplete.

On the next possession, again it was three plays and punt for Plainview, the punt that Thurman wanted, and he took it at the 25, scampered behind the wedge along the right sideline, and then cut back across field for the score. Kamradt got back on track with his extra point.

Lee's Pool Webb set up the final touchdown when he intercepted quarterback Chad Englehardt at the Bulldog 37. Rodney Simms got the score seven plays later on a five-yard run.

The loss ended Plainview's season at 8-2. Lee improved to 10-1.

It was a bad way for the Bulldogs to go out, but coach Greg Sherwood gave all the credit to Lee. "I haven't been on the field against a faster team in my 26 years of coaching. We couldn't keep up with their quickness. I was pleased with the way our kids stayed on the field and played tough against a very well-coached football team."

Thurman paces Rebs past Plainview

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Writer

LUBBOCK—Midland Lee assistant coach Van Tom Whatley had an obvious smirk on his face after the Rebels' 42-7 bi-district triumph over the Plainview Bulldogs here at Jones Stadium Friday night.

He was quick to ask the question, "What's wrong with the Lee Rebels? Seems like I've heard that question the past few weeks more than a few times. Now I can ask it."

Nothing appeared to be wrong with Lee's offensive machine as it went into a second half sonic blur, erupting for a mammoth 32 points.

"The new tradition" is well-oiled again and Lee's players were on fire after this one.

"I guess we were ready to play in the playoffs. We were more enthused than the rest of the time," said Lee halfback Walter Jones. "If we played like we did tonight we will go all the way to state again just like we did last year."

Linebacker Pool Webb added, "We played with much more intensity tonight. The whole team came together. We peaked before Permian and we came back and played like we did against San Angelo and Cooper. We're ready to peak again."

Fullback Randy Ellis, who rushed for 75 yards, was elated. "We came on strong this whole week. We had good workouts and I think we did a good job against a very fine defensive team. Defensively they match up with a lot of the 4-3A teams."

"Quickness and a big heart makes all the difference in the world. We're not as big as we were last year, but we're as good as last year's team because we have the same heart," said Lee defensive back Earl Davis.

Lee defensive end Mark Webb, who had a big sack in the game, said "We came out with more fire than we have in the past few weeks. We're playing 100 percent now on both sides of the football. It make sit a lot easier when the offense scores points. It gives us momentum. It felt great."

Defensive back Kevin Witt, who intercepted one pass, offered, "The defense didn't play very good in the first half, but the team came together in the second half and the offense had a great game."

Lee assistant coach Ronnie Stevens agreed with Witt about the first half. "I had to chew the secondary out a little bit at the half, but it turned out OK. They came back and played some ball."

After Tyrone Thurman had rushed for 76 yards, caught two passes for 68 yards, and made a 75-yard punt return on his way to four touchdowns, Plainview coach Greg Sherwood said, "I really don't know how good he is, I never got a good look at him as he passed by."

"Lee has a great team. We played as hard as we could, but we couldn't match up with their speed. I thought we were back in the game when we went 80 yards to score to make it 17-7, but I think that ignited Lee more than us."

Lee coach Jack Tayrien said, "I was glad to see us play the second half like we are capable of playing. Plainview was well-prepared and gave us a lot of problems, but we executed the offense and the kids showed great intensity."

Tayrien was also awed by the performance of Thurman. "What can you say about little Ty? He had an amazing night. He generates a lot of electricity if you can get the ball to him in the open field and he had some daylight out there tonight."

Spike Dykes, who guided Lee to its 13-3 record and state finals berth a year ago before joining the Texas Tech coaching staff this year, was present for the game and unimpressed with the results of his former team.

Asked if Lee appeared to lose anything from last year's squad, he answered, "Yeah, a bad coach."

Now Lee will take its playoff-veteran squad to El Paso next Friday for an 8 p.m. MST Sun Bowl meeting with El Paso, the District 1-5A champion which owns a 9-2 record and a Thursday 34-12 victory over El Paso Bel Air.

Tickets for that game will be on sale Monday through Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Midland athletic office. All seats will be general admission and tickets will cost $3 for students and $4 for adults unless purchased at the Sun Bowl when each ticket will be increased by one dollar.

Tayrien lost the flip with Andrews head coach Allan Sepkowitz. Tayrien called tails and the flip was heads.

But the Lee victory at Jones Stadium was the thing being enjoyed on this particular Friday. Lee assistant coach David Browning sounded like a Whatley echo asking, "What's wrong with the Lee Rebels?" for all who would hear.

The answer appears to be nothing.

Army beats Grizzlies

TOKYO (AP)—Nate Sassaman picked apart Montana's defense with option plays, including one slick pitch to Clarence Jones for a 78-yard score, as Army ran to a 45-31 victory over the Grizzlies before nearly 60,000 spectators Saturday.

Army stuck to the ground for almost all of its yardage, while key penalties set back the Montana advances gained on pinpoint passing by Marty Mornhinweg and some outstanding catches by his receivers.

Army picked up its sixth victory against three losses and one tie, with a game left against Navy. Montana ended its season with a 2-8 record.

Montana had a chance to take a 17-14 lead early in the second quarter, but a 61-yard scoring play from Mornhinweg to Paul Lamb was nullified by a clipping penalty. The ball was placed on the Army 35, but a 50-yard field goal attempt by Eby Dobson fell short.

TED BATTLES

TCU sells out; Miracle Man in Lubbock, again

Here I was worried about whether Texas Christian would sell out the Texas game in Fort Worth today, the biggest game the Horned Frogs have played since the 1950s. It looks like they may not even be able to get all the media into stadium.

Amon Carter Stadium not only will be sold out, but 20 or so writers will have to sit out in the stands, the demand for press credentials has been that great.

Writers from Philadelphia, New York, Denver plus representatives from five bowls will be on hand.

The last time TCU played Texas at Fort Worth, nary an out-of-state press request was received.

Meanwhile, Lubbock prepares for SMU-Texas Tech, which over the past several years has become the Jones Stadium Study in Suspense.

Four years ago, the Mustangs were top-heavy favorites and the Red Raiders rubbed them out.

Same thing two years ago when SMU was unbeaten and on its way to the Cotton Bowl. The Mustangs needed a miracle to avoid a tie.

Ricky Gann had just booted a 28-yard field goal to tie it at 27. No point in hanging around for the kickoff with only 17 seconds left.

The squib kick went Blane Smith and the Raiders converged on him. Over on the sidelines Bobby Leach waited. "It never really did work in practice. We tried it two or three times once a week on Thursdays, but Blane would always overthrow it or bounce it," recalled Leach of the trick play.

This time, however, the pass was perfect to Leach on the sidelines and it was a 75-yard foot race to the end zone.

Leach is back, but SMU isn't expected to need miracle. But then they weren't supposed to need one two years ago.

Last week results: 11-5-1 in the colleges for a .673 on the season and the pros 3-5.

The SWC...

Texas minus 2 at TCU—The only other time I went against TCU and the spread, I lost.

Texas Tech plus 6½ over SMU—Strange things happen to Mustangs on the South Plains.

Texas A&M plus 9½ over Arkansas—Living recklessly.

Rice plus 14½ over Baylor—The hunch player.

The Others...

Georgia plus seven over Auburn—Gambling that Bulldogs still have something left, but Tigers are on a roll.

Syracuse plus 7½ over Boston College—Eagles may be looking ahead to Turkeyday...and Miami.

Iowa minus 19 over Minnesota—Hawkeyes trying to salvage something respectable in the bowl market.

Oklahoma plus 5½ over Nebraska—It's a tough game to figure. Huskers lost to Syracuse and Sooners lost to Jayhawks.

LSU minus 7 over Mississippi State—Another risky pick.

Michigan plus eight over Ohio State—I know Michigan is bad, but you take the points and underdog in these traditions...n'est-ce pas?

Oregon minus five over Oregon State—Over last five years, Beavers are one of the five worst teams in college football. Webfoots, on the other hand, have been a sometimes surprise this year, so...

Penn State minus 1½ over Notre Dame—Another year, another time and this would've been a block buster.

South Carolina minus 14 over Navy—Middies need a Napoleon to make this close.

Tennessee minus 1½ over Ole Miss—Unless Vols wear themselves out just getting to Jackson.

Virginia minus 3½ over North Carolina—I told you it was a year that defied all reason.

Washington State plus five over Washington—No. 1 and on the way to the Rose Bowl a week ago, the Huskies blew it all...and why not this one?

Florida minus 9½ over Kentucky—Gators give new coach a welcome gift.

USC minus four over UCLA—Bruins call the Rose Bowl "home," but Trojans figure they are the ones who belong in Pasadena.

The Pros... Dallas minus 9½ over Buffalo—Even Houston would have to give points against the Bills.

Minnesota plus 9½ over Denver—Broncos don't win big, just late.

Kansas City 9½ over Raiders—Oakland is fat and lazy this year.

Miami minus 7½ over San Diego—Is this the week that someone catches up with the Dolphins? It's gonna happen, sooner or later.

Tampa Bay plus 12 over 49ers—Bucs give John McKay a going-away present.

Seattle minus four over Cincinnati—My new policy on the pros is to take points, this is an exception.

Rams plus three over Green Bay—I know LA doesn't have an abled-bodied quarterback, but policy is policy.

Philadelphia plus seven over Washington—I'm not sure I like my new policy.

Showdown in Cowtown

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The "Showdown in Cowtown" Saturday could bring the Texas Christian Horned Frogs their Cotton Bowl dream.

TCU could clinch a Southwest Conference co-championship with a victory over the Longhorns and all but nail down a Cotton Bowl berth for the first time since 1959.

It's been 16 years since the Horned Frogs have beaten Texas and TCU hasn't defeated Texas in Fort Worth since 1958.

.605,000. The Horned Frogs are the most improved team in NCAA Division I, going from 1-8-2 in 1983 to an 8-1 season so far.

"At the beginning of the season the pressure was on us just to win a game but now the pressure is on us to win it all," said TCU safety Billy Jones. "That's a big change. That's tough for anyone to handle."

A record Amon Carter Stadium crowd and ABC-TV's cameras will be watching the Frogs at today's 2:50 p.m. kickoff.

ODDSMAKERS installed the Longhorns as two-point favorites although Texas lost to Houston 29-15 last week.

Amon Carter's capacity is 46,000 but 1,200 box seats at field level have been sold, too, meaning the crowd should reach at least 47,200.

In 1957, Texas A&M edged the Horned Frogs 7-0 before the biggest home crowd in TCU history — 47,000.

Last year, Texas fell behind 14-3 at halftime but rallied for a 20-14 victory. Kenneth Davis got only 17 yards rushing on seven tries.

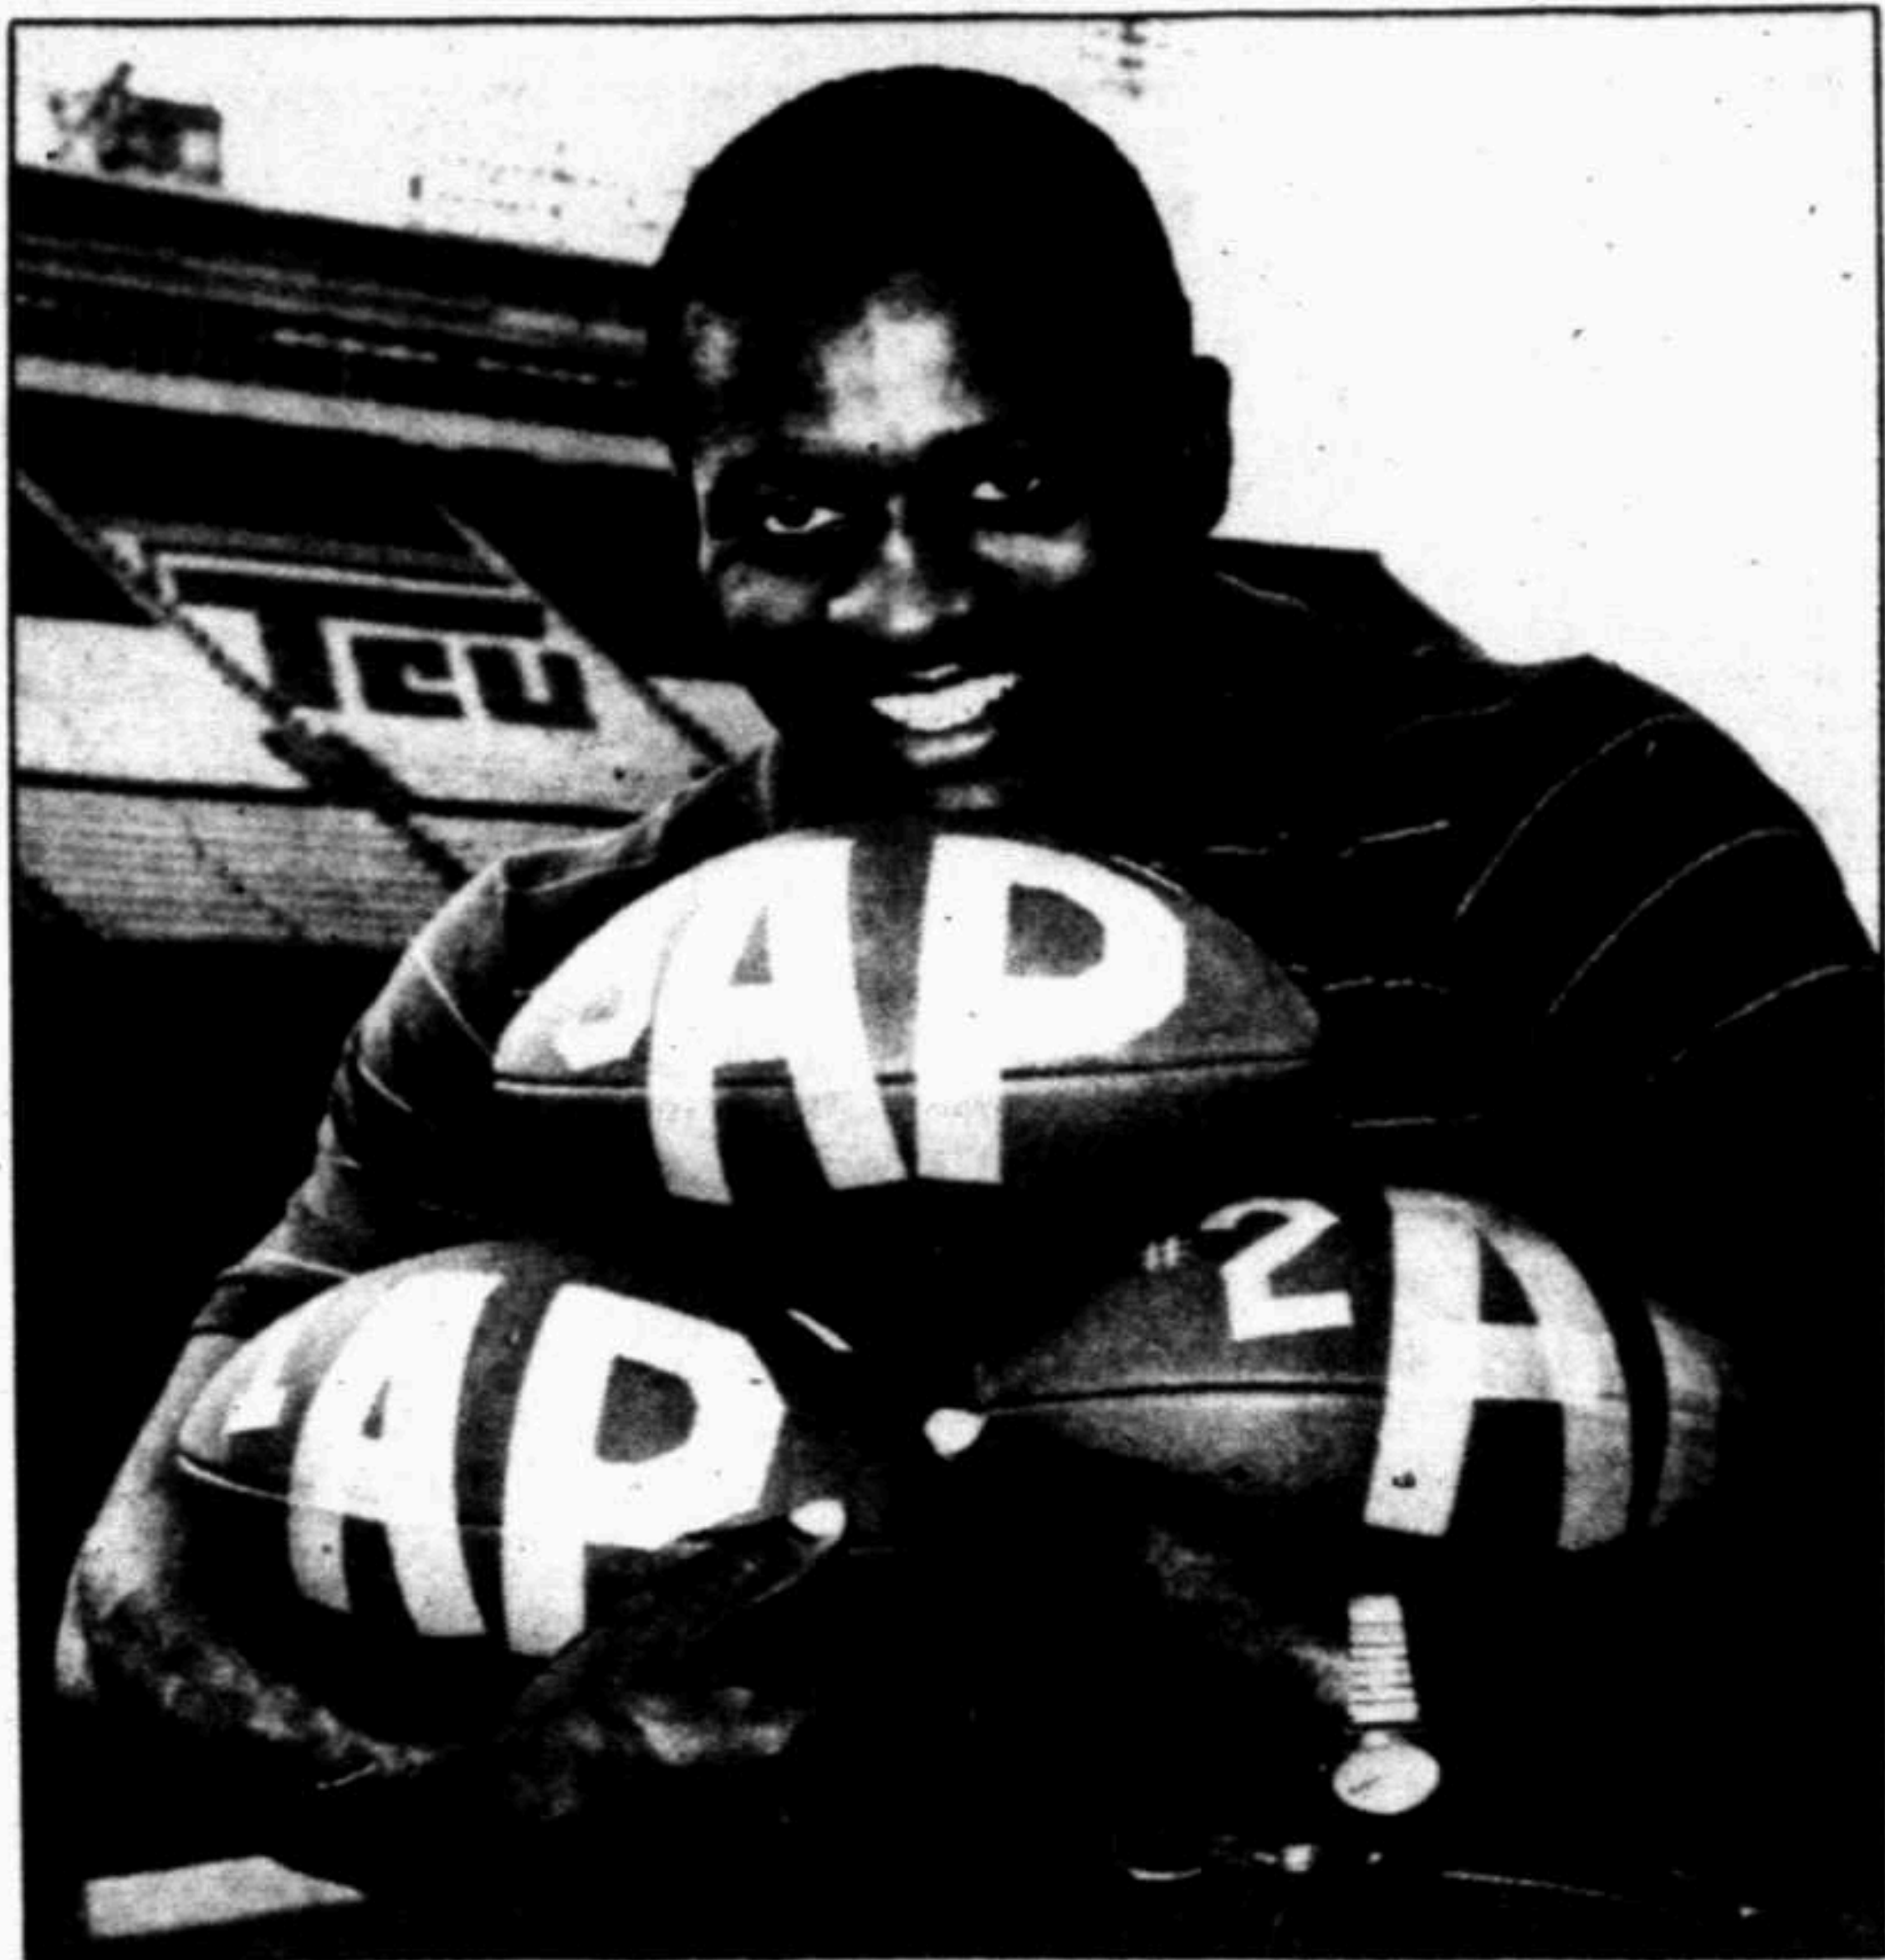

The No. 12-rated Horned Frogs have a 5-1 record to 4-1 for the 10th-ranked Longhorns, who are 6-1-1.

Southern Methodist, Arkansas, and Houston all have two losses.

If TCU beats Texas, then the Horned Frogs would be Cotton Bowl bound unless a bizarre set of circumstances occur.

TCU would have to lose to Texas A&M, SMU would have to win all of its remaining games, and Arkansas, Houston and Texas would have to lose another game.

If there is a multiple tie, TCU would go to the Cotton Bowl on

AP Laserphoto

TCU running back Kenneth Davis is a four-time winner of AP's SWC offensive player of the week and stopping him will be the prime task of Texas' defense today in Fort Worth.

SWC

the most recent appearance rule. Only a tie with SMU would kill the Frogs, who lost to the Mustangs in September.

If Texas wins, then the Longhorns can go to the Cotton Bowl with victories over Baylor and Texas A&M in their remaining games.

IN OTHER games Saturday, Arkansas was a 10-point pick over Texas A&M in an 11:30 a.m. regionally televised game from Little Rock; Baylor was a 15-point choice over Rice in Houston; and SMU was a 6-point favorite over Texas Tech in Lubbock.

"I have to believe that it is anybody's game," said TCU Coach Jim Wacker. "Hey, we have just as good a chance to win it as they do. It's going to be fun. It's a big, big showdown and all the chips are on the table."

TCU is already the highest-scoring team in Horned Frog history. The Frogs are second in the nation in rushing with 309.9 yards per game, third in total offense with 467.7 yards per game, and average 35.3 points per outing.

Texas Coach Fred Akers said, "TCU is a big play team and not just on offense. They're playing well on defense and making the big plays there, too."

Davis, four times The Associated Press SWC Offensive Player of the Week, has rushed for 1,368 yards — most ever by a Horned Frog. He leads the nation with 7.9 yards per carry and is second in rushing by averaging 152 yards per game.

TCU has been particularly tough in the third quarter, outscoring its opponents 83-16.

Texas placekicker Jeff Ward said the Longhorns will bounce back tough.

Wacker's world is "fantastic" and "unbelievable" and contagious.

More people attend his Frog Club meetings than used to attend TCU's home games. They gave him a standing ovation Tuesday when he sat down and another when he stood up.

They didn't mind a bit when he got the Cotton Bowl confused with the Rose Bowl, and Windeger said later he was switching his New Year's Day hotel reservations from Dallas to Pasadena.

A SPORTS writer surfaced this week with a purple and white "Horn Buster" T-shirt, roughly the equivalent of Dan Rather wearing a Mondale-Ferraro button.

The same kids that were 1-8-2 last year are 8-1 this year, ranked 12th in the nation and playing the No. 10 Longhorns Saturday for what most likely will be the Southwest Conference championship and a trip to the Cotton Bowl.

The game is a sellout of 47,000. TCU's first since the 1950s when Jim Swink was setting rushing records and the Frogs were winning SWC titles with more than a little consistency.

Wacker's wonders rank second in the nation in rushing and third in total offense and scoring. An unknown named Kenneth Davis is second in rushing and scoring and is averaging 7.9 yards per carry, best in the country.

He's broken one of Swink's records and will break the rest if Wacker doesn't hug him to death first.

"I didn't know how he did it," said Wacker. "until I caught him changing clothes the other day in a phone booth."

Normally, you could fire a bazooka down the length of the press box and maybe wound two wasps and a statistician. Saturday, every seat will be taken and many of the press corps will be watching from the stands.

They're calling this the greatest turnaround in NCAA history, and it hasn't escaped the attention of a few people in Austin. Said Tony Degrate, the Longhorns' awesome defensive tackle:

"Everybody, including Russia, is pulling for TCU, but we're not going to let them make history at our expense."

Jim Wacker

retary was explaining to a telephone caller that no tickets remain for Saturday's televised game with the Texas Longhorns.

"We sold out and could have sold out again," she said. "I wish we could help you. But we just don't have a thing."

IT SEEMS like only yesterday that lightning struck the upper deck of Amon Carter Stadium during a TCU-Rice game and no one was hurt. In fact, no one outside the press box even noticed.

One of Stone's predecessors, Jim Brock, now a Cotton Bowl official, used to count the crowd and multiply by 10 when announcing the attendance figures to the media.

"I am so thankful this thing's on TV," said Windeger. "I've had calls from people I haven't heard from in years. There is no telling how many tickets we could have sold ... I could have brokered 10,000 myself."

"It's unreal."

It's Wacker who's unreal. At 6-5 and blond haired, he looks like Huckleberry Finn on stilts. He's a 48-year-old, 225-pound grin. Along the sidelines, he's got more moves than a cheerleader and, twice the energy and enthusiasm.

After the Houston game, he ran across the field, tripped and fell flat on his face. He opened his television show the next night with a filmed replay.

Ask yourself, what other coach in America would do that?

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN

FORT WORTH— You had to be there the last 25 years to appreciate what a wonderful thing has happened to Texas Christian's football program in 1984, the Year of the Horned Frog miracle.

You had to be there in 1971 when Coach Jim Pittman died of a heart attack on the sidelines that tragic night in Waco.

You had to be there in 1972 when successor Billy Tohill crashed his Cadillac at a high speed and lost a leg, and then when they had to fire Tohill in 1973.

You had to be there when Coach Jim Shofner tried to use professional football coaching methods and saw his program unravel.

You had to be there the day Texas beat the Horned Frogs 81-16 in 1974.

You had to be there when they had to fire former Horned Frog Shofner in 1975 because of his 2-31 record.

You had to be there when F.A. Dry struggled to bring respectability to the TCU program. He brought in better players but couldn't win enough games.

You had to be there in 1982 when they had to fire the faithful Dry, who had 10 wins in six seasons.

You had to be there in 1983 when Jim Wacker made his debut with a 1-8-2 record.

You had to be there during all those hard times and hard losses and hard feelings.

Frank Windeger was there.

He has been the athletic director at TCU for 10 years, working his way up from baseball coach where he started out in 1959.

He graduated from the school in 1957. He remembers when the Horned Frogs were part of the national ranking scene.

TCU, which won the national title in 1938, was ranked No. 5 in 1955, No. 9 in 1958, and No. 7 in 1959.

Then came failure after failure.

"We never came close to losing the football program at TCU but it got very hard for individuals who were used to the tradition of winning," Windeger recalled. "We had a hard corps of fans. It's one thing I have appreciated. Those people have been rewarded. I'm tickled for them."

"I heard some negative stuff but there was nothing detrimental or negative from any chancellor I worked for. Never from the people that counted. Not the whole time we were trying to get off the mat."

Then Windeger called Wacker, a proven small college championship coach at Southwest Texas State.

Said Windeger: "He was the right person with the right chemistry. I felt I was getting a big lovable guy who was great coach. He has set this city on fire."

"I didn't worry about Division II or Division I. I had no qualms. I felt this was the guy we needed. He had charisma and motivation. We had so many facets that needed to be pulled together and cured at TCU."

TCU has had its best season since 1959 with eight victories going into the Texas game.

Windeger said, "I feel fortunate. A little lucky."

TCU deserved some.

Bombers' Clements, Reaves share CFL MVP award

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Quarterback Tom Clements and running back Willard Reaves, both of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, have been named co-winners of the Rothmans Star of the Year Award as the Canadian Football League's outstanding player, it was announced Friday.

Each received 35 points in the weekly stars-of-the-week balloting, based on a 10-5-3 point breakdown for the weekly winner, first and second runners-up.

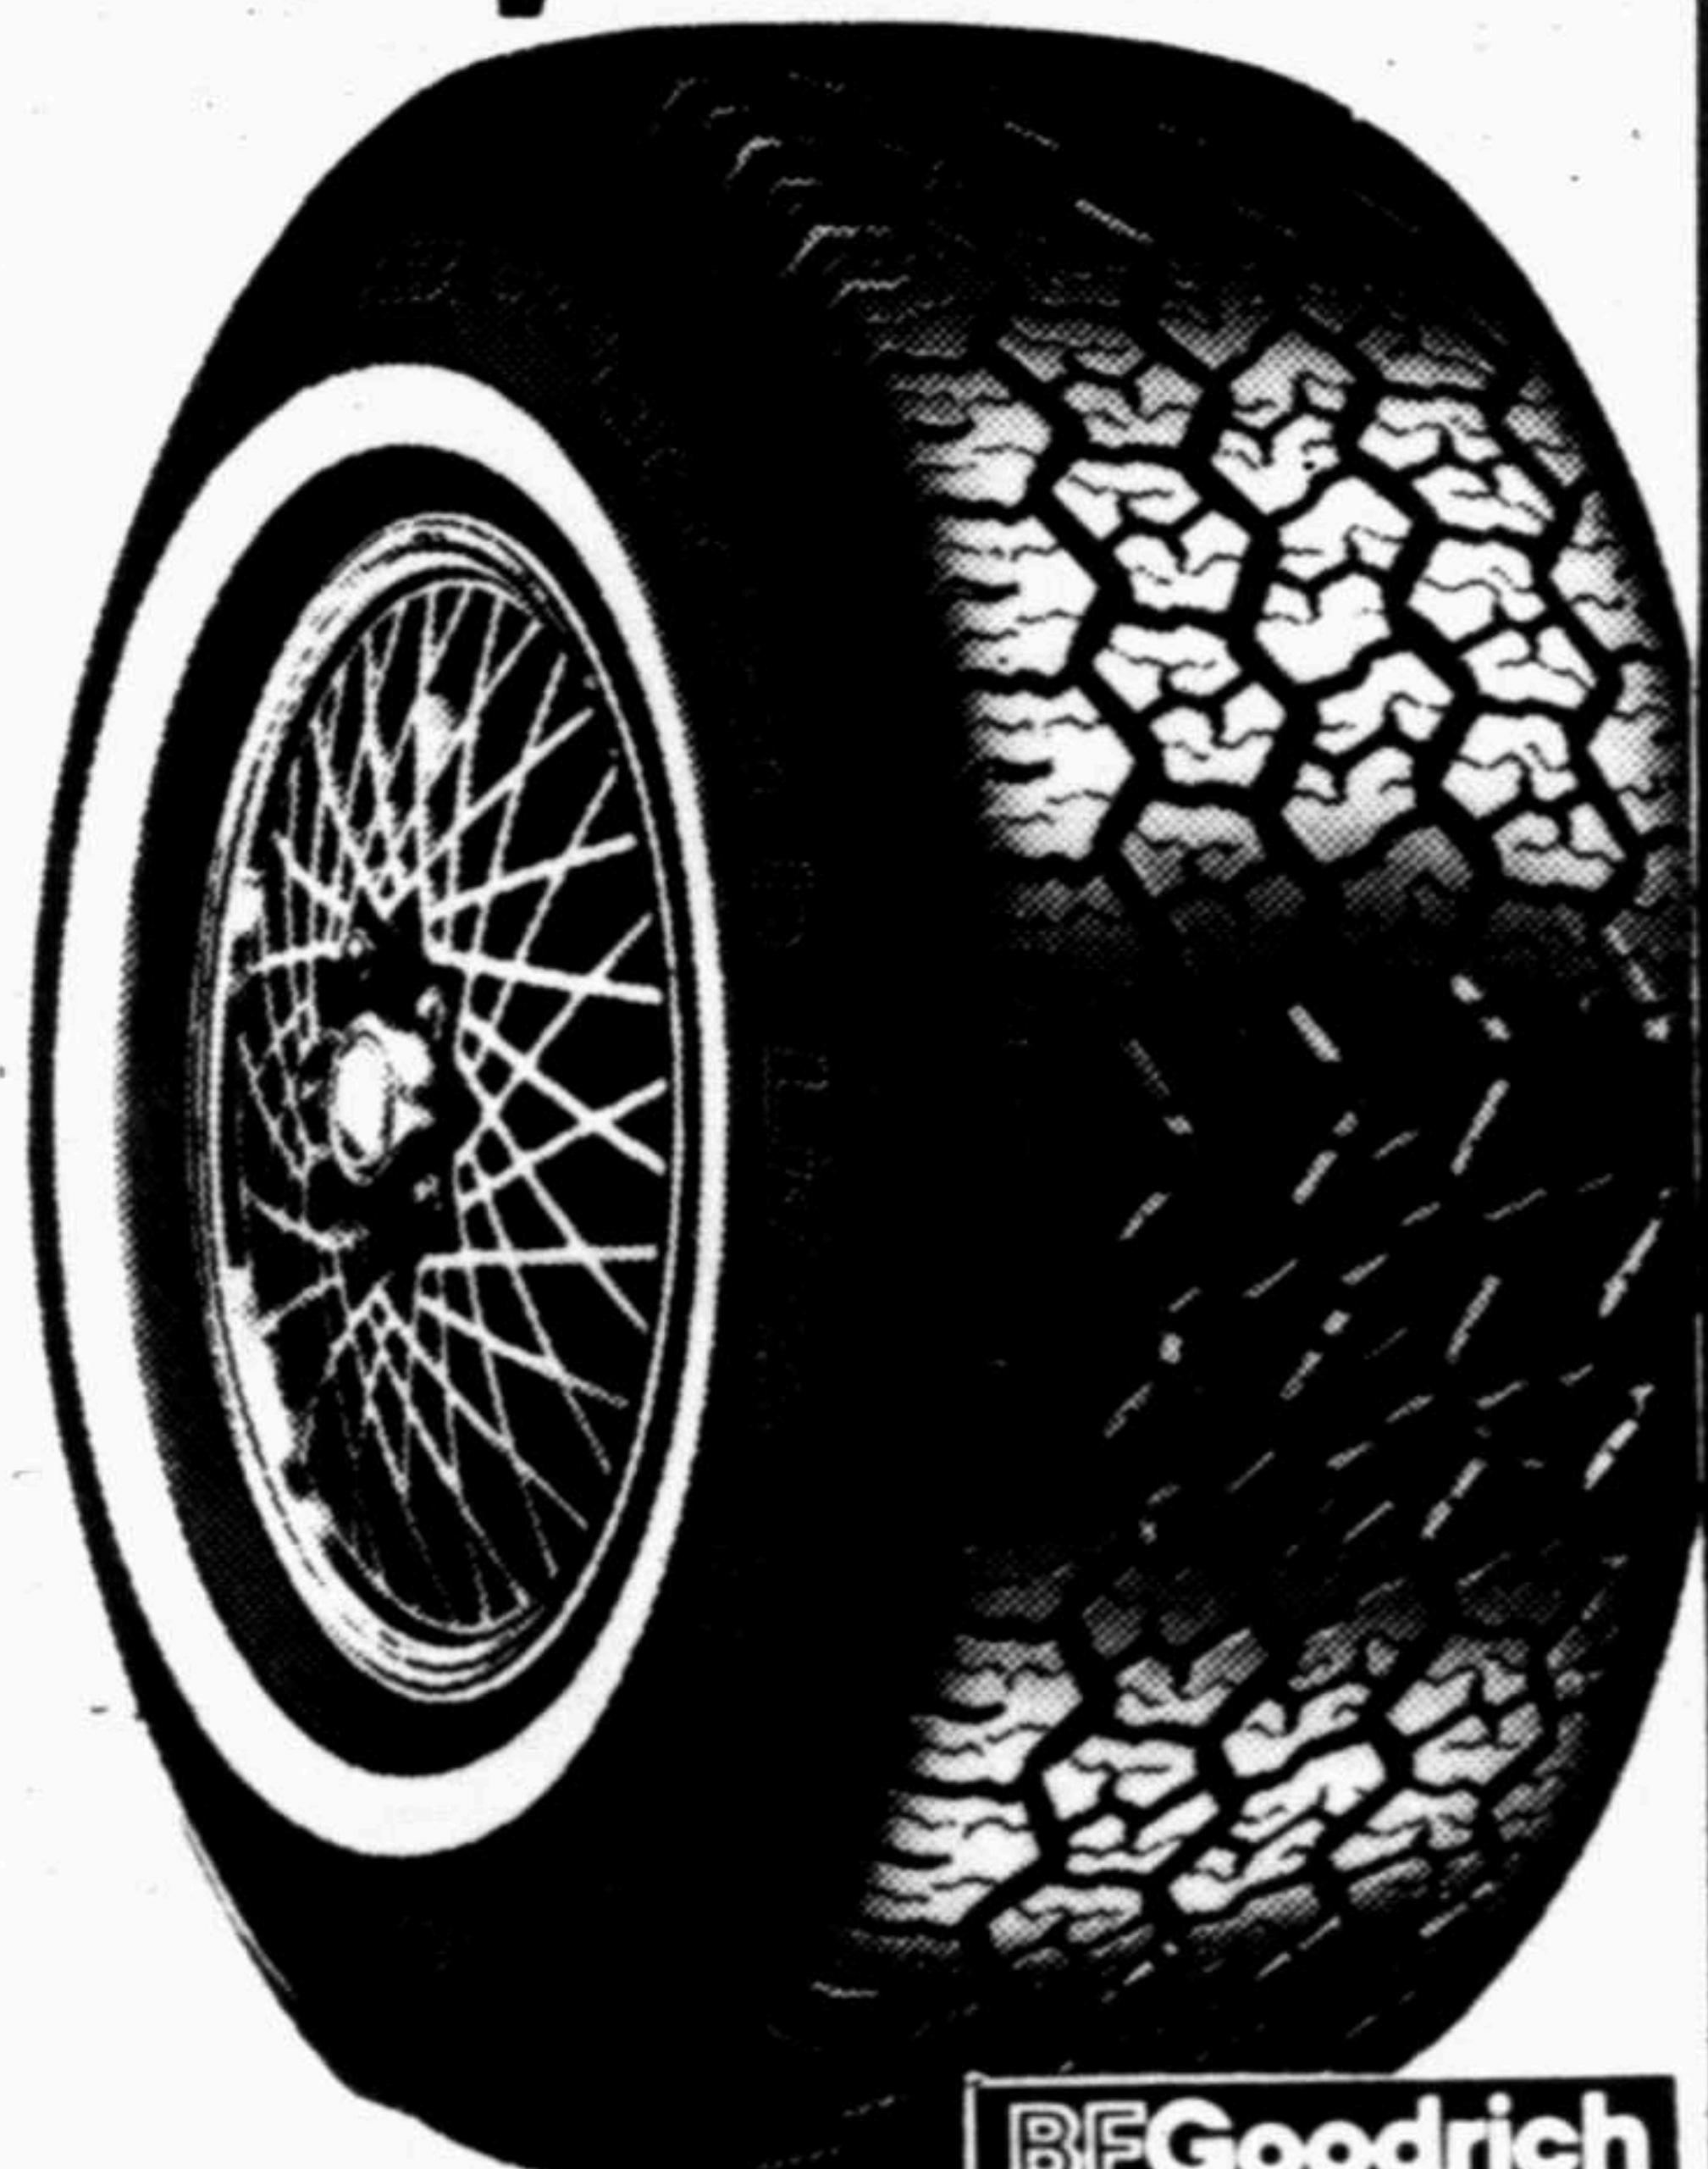

Cornerback Harry Skipper of the Montreal Concordes captured the defensive star of the year with 35 points and defensive end James Parker of the British Columbia Lions won the year's top lineman award with 43 points.

TCU goes Wacko

Miracle in Fort Worth

Editor's note: Seldom has a coach made such an overnight impact on a school and a city as has Jim Wacker on TCU and Fort Worth. Here, with only minor exaggerations, is a report on the Wacker phenomenon by a writer who has covered the Horned Frogs since 1960.

By MIKE COCHRAN

FORT WORTH (AP) — Glen Stone, the sports information director at Texas Christian University, is the kind of guy who's rarely impressed and never excited. He thinks Bo Derek is a three.

Yet, prominently displayed in his office is a crudely fashioned sign that appears to have been plucked from a dictionary. It says:

"Wacker. (Wak-ar) (Noun) That which is: conversational; emotional; lovable; intelligible; amuseable; promotable; honorable; imaginable; respectable; dynamic; indescribable; and unbelievable. Can be used as a proper noun when a surname is affixed."

Jim Wacker, the TCU coach, does that to people. Even Stone.

When the Horned Frogs began a search two years ago for a new coach, it was widely recognized that what they needed most was not so much a coach as a magician.

TCU was No. 1 on the Bottom 10. A winning season was two ties. The running joke was Interstate 35, TCU 0.

F.A. DRY was a splendid guy and a class act and by 1982 his teams had won 12 games in six years, which was 10 more than his predecessor won in three years.

In 1971, TCU lost only four games, including a 66-14 thriller to Penn State, and the coach was named the Southwest Conference coach of the year.

By 1982, the Frogs had both feet in the grave, and Dry simply was incapable of raising the dead.

So they fired him and launched a search for a miracle.

"I needed a big, lovable guy who happened to be a great football coach," Athletic Director Frank Windeger recalled this week with a smile that would light up a coal miners' convention.

"I said this guy will set the city on fire. But I thought it would take four years to get a blaze."

Outside Windeger's office, a secretary was explaining to a telephone caller that no tickets remain for Saturday's televised game with the Texas Longhorns.

Jim Wacker

"We sold out and could have sold out again," she said. "I wish we could help you. But we just don't have a thing."

IT SEEMS like only yesterday that lightning struck the upper deck of Amon Carter Stadium during a TCU-Rice game and no one was hurt. In fact, no one outside the press box even noticed.

One of Stone's predecessors, Jim Brock, now a Cotton Bowl official, used to count the crowd and multiply by 10 when announcing the attendance figures to the media.

"I am so thankful this thing's on TV," said Windeger. "I've had calls from people I haven't heard from in years. There is no telling how many tickets we could have sold ... I could have brokered 10,000 myself."

"It's unreal."

It's Wacker who's unreal. At 6-5 and blond haired, he looks like Huckleberry Finn on stilts. He's a 48-year-old, 225-pound grin. Along the sidelines, he's got more moves than a cheerleader and, twice the energy and enthusiasm.

After the Houston game, he ran across the field, tripped and fell flat on his face. He opened his television show the next night with a filmed replay.

Ask yourself, what other coach in America would do that?

Sooners, Illini meet in Tipoff tilt

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The college basketball season can't start too soon for Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs, whose Sooners, ranked fifth in the pre-season poll, take on No. 2 Illinois Sunday in the Tip-Off Classic.

"We're ready to play. You get tired of practicing after awhile," said Tubbs, as his team prepared for the annual Basketball Hall of Fame benefit game, which traditionally marks the opening of the college basketball season.

"This is going to be a tough one," Tubbs said. "Illinois has a very deserving, well-coached team and they play very good basketball. But you have to start somewhere."

Tubbs' enthusiasm for the 1984-85 season got a big boost on May 5 when Wayman Tisdale announced he was passing up the National Basketball Association draft to return to

Norman, Okla., for his junior year. s "He may not score more points this year, but I expect him to be a much better player," Tubbs said of his 6-foot-9, 250-pound All-American, who has statistically dominated the Big Eight unlike anyone else in the history of the conference, including Wilt Chamberlain. "You expect a junior to be better than a sophomore and a senior to be better than a junior."

Reaves wins CFL award

From Wire Reports

From Wire Reports

FOOTBALL— Winnipeg Blue Bombers running back Willard Reaves, who rushed for 1,733 yards and 14 touchdowns, won the Schenck Award as the outstanding player of the CFL in balloting of sportswriters and broadcasters from the league's nine cities. Reaves, runner-up in the balloting for top rookie last season, edged Rufus Crawford, the multi-purpose back with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats whom the Blue Bombers will meet Sunday in the Grey Cup game, for the award. Reaves had 10 games in which he rushed for 100 or more yards, eight of them in a row — both league records. He also caught 40 passes, four of them for touchdowns.

TENNIS—Top-seeded Ivan Lendl beat countryman Tomas Smid 6-2, 7-5 and Joakim Nystrom ousted Wojtek Fibak 6-4, 6-7, 7-5 in quarter-final matches in the $600,000 European Champions' Championship...

BASEBALL—In the wake of the failed sale of the Cleveland Indians, Pat O'Neill, nephew of late majority owner Steve O'Neill, hopes to find another buyer in a year who will keep the team in Cleveland as part of the condition of the sale.

Tony Gwynn, who .351 led the National league, signed with San Diego through 1985. Quoting unidentified sources close to the team, it was reported that Gwynn and his agent, Lou Muller, had been discussing contract lengths of between three and six years.

GOLF—The Scottish team of Gordon Brand Jr. and Sam Torrance seized the first-round lead Friday in the 31st World Cup golf tournament with a combined total of 136, eight-under-par, nine strokes ahead of the favored U.S. Brand birdied four of the first nine holes en route to a 67, lowest score of the day in the world team championships on the wet 7,029-yard Olgata course. Torrance turned in a steady 69 while the U.S. duo Lanny Wadkins and Tom Kite got off to a disappointing start, with a 45. "We missed too many greens and the scores show it," said Wadkins.

HOCKEY— Minnesota goaltender Don Beaupre was suspended for six games Friday for hitting Buffalo's Ric Seiling on the head with his stick during a Nov. 9 NHL game...

BOXING—Lester Ellis of Australia, new British Commonwealth junior lightweight champion, says the man whom he dethroned with a hotly disputed split decision can have a rematch within 60 days. Ellis won a split decision over John Sichula of Zambia at Melbourne after seeming to absorb most of the punishment in the fight, including a standing-8 count in the eighth round of the 12-rounder. Sichula's handlers protested loudly against the split decision, calling it the worst verdict they had ever seen...

Kim Choong-Suk of South Korea was taken unconscious to a hospital Friday after suffering a seventh-round knockout by Frank Cedeno of The Philippines in a super flyweight bout at Manila.

Dodie Penaloza of The Philippines knocked down Choi Chum-hwan of South Korea in the 13th round to retain his IBF world junior fly-weight crown with a unanimous 15-round decision Friday night...

SKIING—Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark, who is training in Bal Senales, Italy, for the World Cup of Alpine skiing, said 1985 could be his last competitive season. "I plan to retire at the end of the season. I am going to take a final decision on the basis of results I am going to score in the World Championships (at Bormio, Italy, in February)."

Midland defeats Blinn

WACO — The Midland College Chaparrals boosted their basketball record to 5-0, but not before a scare against Blinn Junior College.

The Chaps beat Blinn 60-57 at the McLennan Community College Highlander Classic basketball Tournament here without the aid of center Tevin Binns.

Freshman Deon Hunter scored all four of his points from the foul line in the final moments to secure the win. The Chaps' first road venture of the 1984-85 campaign was threatened after MC trailed at half, 28-26.

Sophomore Lawrence Chumbley led the Chap scoring with 15 points, followed by freshman Tony Wright's 14.

Binns is expected to play tonight against either McLennan or Richland. He has been slowed by an injury and possible ligament damage to his right ankle. Binns is the Chaps' leading scorer and rebounder.

Other scorers for MC included Vernon Coleman with eight; Chuckie Graves with seven; Zeak Williams with four; Ricky Grace with five; Raymond Vasseau with four; and Wayne Sam with a pair.

Andrews tops Snyder, 25-23

Randy White labels Buffalo Bills 'pros'

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Randy White knows the clichés, and the All-Pro defensive end from the Dallas Cowboys used one of the more time-tested ones as he talked about the Cowboys opponent Sunday, the Buffalo Bills.

"They have a good team (and) they've had some tough luck," he said, "but those guys are pros, and on any given Sunday, they're capable of beating any other team in the NFL."

Given the Bills status as pro football's only winless team this season, one wonders whether White meant to say that on any given Sunday or Monday night, the Bills are capable of being beaten by any other team in the NFL.

The good, the bad, and the in-between have taken the measure of the 0-11 Bills this year, and it would be considered one of the year's biggest upsets if the 7-4 Cowboys didn't follow suit.

Still, White made a prediction fewer and fewer people would bet on this season.

"They're going to win a game or two or three sometime during this season," White said.

Normally, when a team like the Cowboys, coming off their biggest win of the season over St. Louis last week, plays a team like the Bills, there is a real possibility of overconfidence. No chance, said White.

"We're at a point in our season right now where we can't look past anybody," he said. "It's an important game for us and we're going to have to be ready to play when we come up there."

Indeed, the Cowboys and Washington are tied for the NFC East division lead, and aside from Buffalo and Philadelphia, the rest of the Dallas schedule — the Redskins, New England and Miami — is tough.

Cowboys

The Bills, meanwhile, are playing like they really want a crack at the first choice in the NFL's college draft next year.

Their defense played well against New England last week, but, because the offense was non-existent, they spent too much time on the field and eventually folded.

Statistically, the Bills have the league's next to worst offense, having averaged just over eight points a game in their last four games.

Coach Kay Stephenson, who has remained publicly composed during the Bills slide, earlier in the week blasted his receivers for "not coming up with one play out of our passing game."

Specifically, he faulted his receiving corps — Preston Dennard, Byron Franklin, Julius Dawkins, Tony Hunter, Mitchell Brookins — with not making plays "that are not uncommonly difficult."

"We've got to have more consistent effort downfield getting open," he said, noting that he hopes the activation of veteran receiver Mike Mosley, who spent the first part of the season on injured reserve, will help make a difference this week.

The receivers will have to get open quickly against Dallas, if only because White will be going against a substitute Buffalo offensive guard, Tim Vogler.

If Vogler and his linemates can't keep White and company out of quarterback Joe Ferguson's way, it promises to be another long day at the office for the Bills.

ACU's Ted Sitton calls it a career

ABILENE (AP) — Ted Sitton, head football coach at Abilene Christian University since 1979, will conclude his career as the Wildcats' mentor this weekend, university officials said Thursday.

Sitton, 52, requested that his contract not be renewed for the 1985 season, said Garner Roberts, the university's sports information director. He will coach his final game Saturday afternoon when Abilene Christian, 2-7, hosts East Texas State University.

Gators to keep Hall

Interim coach to stay on

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Galen Hall, who has compiled a 6-0 record as interim football coach at Florida since Charley Pell was fired in September, is the apparent choice of university officials to get the job on a permanent basis, the president of a Gators' booster club said Friday.

But the university said no official announcement has been made.

John Cash, president of the Central Florida Gator Club, said a published report was misleading in saying that school athletic director Bill Carr had announced at the Orlando booster meeting Thursday night that Hall would be the permanent coach.

Cash said Carr didn't say Hall was the choice, "but it was the general impression" of everyone attending the booster meeting that that was the case.

The Orlando Sentinel said Friday that Carr had made the announcement in response to a question from a booster.

"What he said was, 'I'm a screening committee of one. I'm recommending one guy. We're only a stone's throw away from making an announcement,'" Carr quoted Carr as saying.

"There was no doubt in my mind. Hall was sitting right there," Carr said.

Carr released a terse one-sentence statement Friday saying, "I have no comment on the Orlando Sentinel story and I will have no further statement."

But he told the Jacksonville Journal, "I did not say that Galen Hall has been named head coach. He is the No. 1 candidate, just as I said (last) Saturday after the game. I can't understand what all the stir is about."

Alvin Alsbrook, vice president for university relations, said Friday that Florida was not ready to announce its decision.

"If the Orlando Sentinel is anxious to name a football coach, then it can go ahead, but the University of Florida is not ready to make an announcement," he said.

"We've got more important things to worry about — like winning a football game Saturday and the NCAA and SEC sanctions," he said.

Alsbrook said Carr has told him that he did not say anything different in Orlando than he has said in other places.

"It (Carr's talk) was interpreted to mean more than it did," he said.

The Orlando dinner meeting was in honor of Hall, 44, and his wife, Elaine.

The dinner was arranged by school athletic officials and Orlando alumni of the Gainesville school to have some of the area's most important Gators boosters meet Hall.

The school had previously said a new head coach would be named after the Gators' game against Florida State Dec. 1.

Tito Horford signs up with Houston Cougars

HOUSTON (AP) — Seven-foot Houston Marian Christian center Tito Horford, one of the most widely recruited high school basketball players in the nation, signed a scholarship agreement with the University of Houston Thursday.

Horford average 17.5 points, 12 rebounds and four blocks shots per game and shot 61 percent from field last season.

Horford, a native of the Dominican Republic, joined two other Marian teammates, Perry Russell and Steve Smith, in signing with the Cougars, who have advanced to the NCAA Final Four tournament the past three seasons.

Marian posted a 28-4 record last season en route to the Texas Christian Interscholastic League Class 3A state title under the leadership of the trio.

Russell, 6-9, averaged nine points and 8.7 rebounds last season and also was a all-state selection in track.

Giants, Cardinals facing sudden death

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

A week ago, the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants, two of four teams tied for first in the NFC East, symbolized the new order in the conference. Then they went out Sunday and lost, leaving the same old faces — Dallas and Washington — at the top.

The Cards and Giants play each other this Sunday at Giants Stadium in a game that's probably sudden death for the loser.

The Cards, who have lost two straight, are favored by one, but neither team is easy to figure. The Giants go out and dominate Washington and Dallas, then go flat against the Philadelphia and Tampa Bays; St. Louis can look awesome on one series, dismal for the next two.

Cardinal quarterback Neil Lomax rarely plays well against New York. But talent made St. Louis the favorite in the first place, so... a timid vote for the... CARDS.

Seattle (minus 4) at CINCINNATI. The Bengals, miraculously, are still alive in the moribund AFC Central despite a 4-7 record. Seattle lives in the AFC West, which is anything but moribund... SEAHAWKS.

Kansas City (plus 9) at LOS ANGELES RAIDERS.

The Chiefs threw in the towel two weeks ago; the Raiders are in an alley fight just to make the playoffs as a wild card. The incentive factor... RAIDERS.

Washington (minus 6½) at PHILADELPHIA.

The question, fans, is whether a blocked-extra point against Miami is enough to make the Iggles (local pronunciation) pack their bags 'til next year. Probably not... EAGLES.

Los Angeles Rams (plus 3) vs. GREEN BAY (at Milwaukee).

Rams traditionally freeze up in northern climes, and Green Bay has a three game winning streak. Make it four... PACKERS.

Miami (minus 7½) at SAN DIEGO. Dan Marino has 30 touchdown passes so far. With the Chargers' patched-up secondary, there's an outside chance he could get to the NFL record of 36 this week... DOLPHINS.

Tampa Bay (plus 12) at SAN FRANCISCO.

Call it the home field disadvantage for the 49ers, who save their best games for the road. Nine of the 11 games the Bucs have played have been decided by a touchdown or less, so... BUCS.

Other Games (Home team in caps): New England (minus 7) over INDIANAPOLIS.

Dallas (minus 10) at BUFFALO. Cleveland (plus 3) over ATLANTA. CHICAGO (minus 7) over Detroit. DENVER (minus 10) over Minnesota.

N. Y. Jets (minus 4½) over HOUSTON.

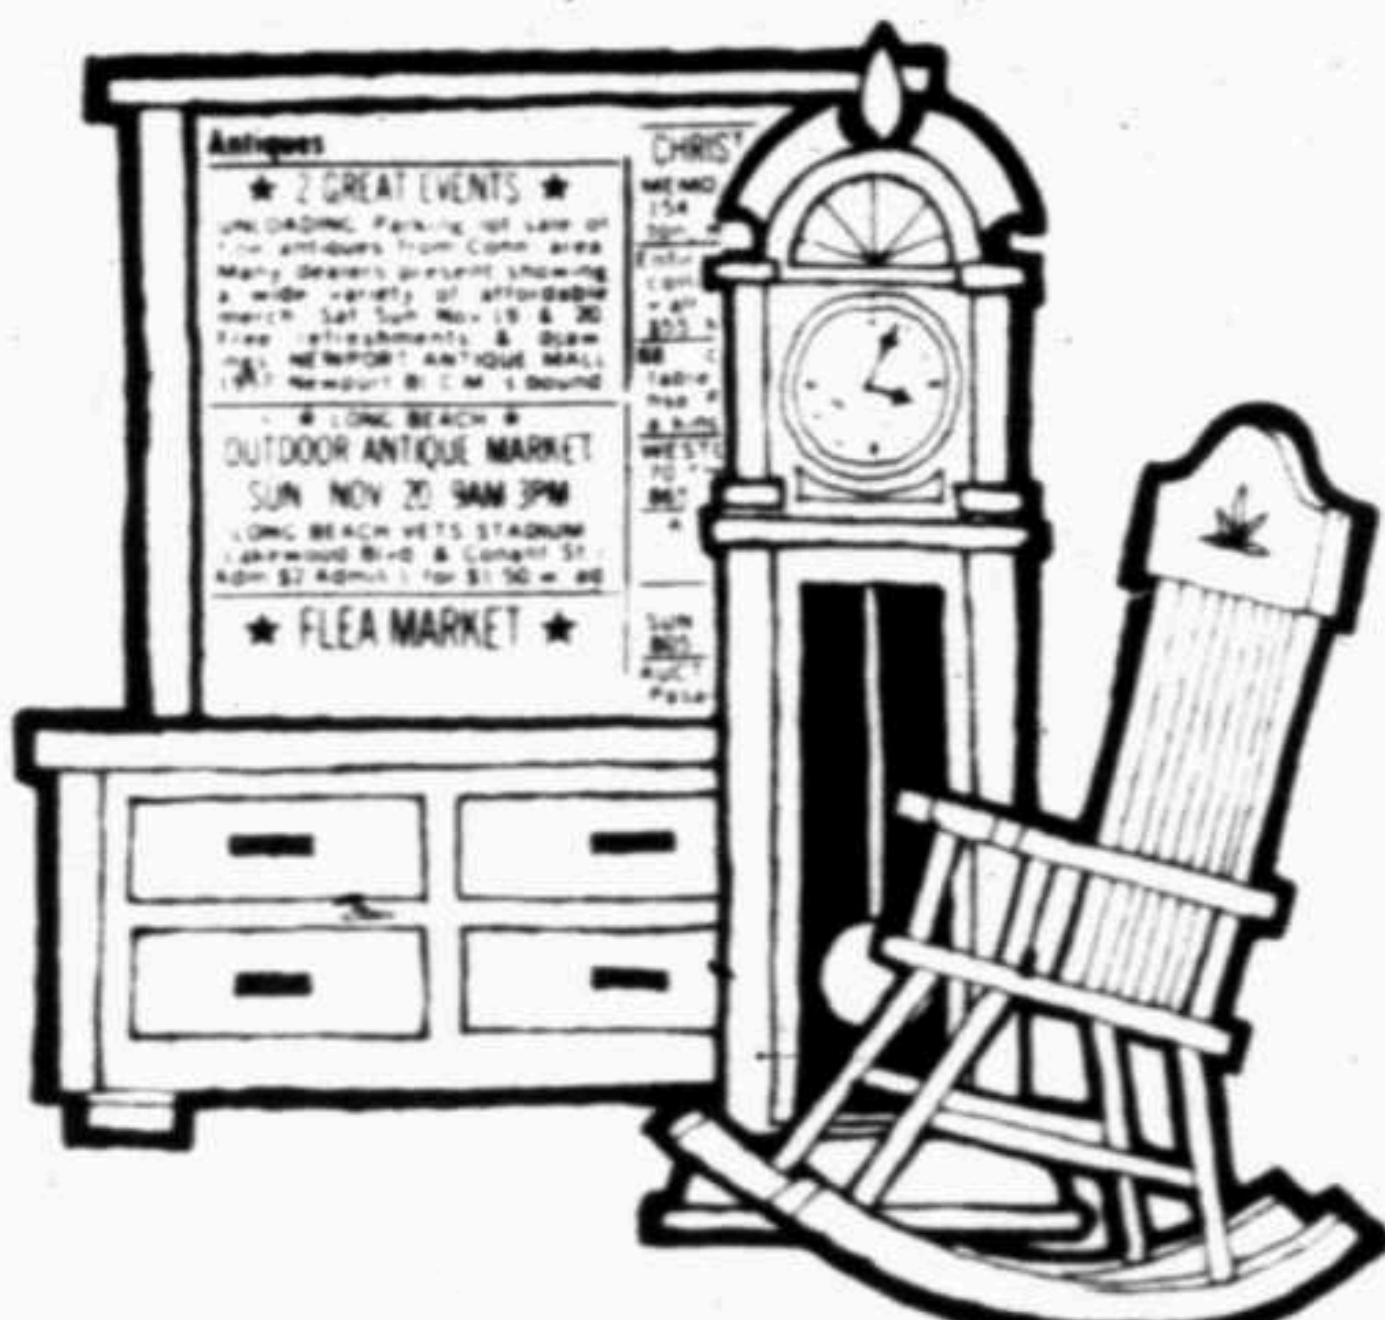

Pittsburgh (plus 2) over NEW ORLEANS (Monday night).

One man's NFL ratings:
1. Dolphins; 2. 49ers; 3. Broncos; 4. Redskins; 5. Seahawks; 6. Bears; 7. Rams; 8. Raiders; 9. Cowboys; 10. Patriots; 11. Cardinals; 12. Steelers; 13. Giants; 14. Packers; 15. Chargers; 16. Eagles; 17. Jets; 18. Bengals; 19. Saints; 20. Bucs; 21. Lions; 22. Vikings; 23. Chiefs; 24. Falcons; 25. Colts; 26. Browns; 27. Oilers; 28. Bills.

Straight-up winners: Cards, Seahawks, Raiders, Redskins, Packers, Dolphins, Patriots, Cowboys, Browns, Bears, Broncos, Jets, 49ers, Steelers.

Toughest to Figure: Cards-Giants; Bucs-49ers; Browns-Falcons; Jets-Oilers.

Best Bets: Dolphins, Steelers. Last week: 8-5-1 (spread); 10-4, straight up. Season: 74-77-2, 490 (spread). Best Bets: 6-6.

It's big day for bowling

By The Associated Press
The road to New Year's Day engagements in Pasadena, Miami and Dallas could twist through Lincoln, Neb., Columbus, Ohio, and Fort Worth, Texas, on Saturday.

Several key conference matchups, along with a few traditional rivalries, highlight the college football schedule and results will help bring the fuzzy bowl picture into sharper focus.

No. 1 Nebraska will be at home Saturday to face No. 6 Oklahoma in one of the biggest games. The top-rated Cornhuskers, who missed last year's national championship in a one-point loss to Miami in the Orange Bowl, will earn a fourth straight Big Eight title and a trip to Miami's Orange Bowl with a victory in Lincoln.

No. 11 Ohio State will be at home to face perennial foe Michigan. With a triumph, the Buckeyes will win the Big 10 crown and a trip to Pasadena for the Rose Bowl, where Pacific-10 champion Southern California is waiting.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN, a longtime doormat in the Southwest Conference, has not been to the Cotton Bowl in nearby Dallas since 1959, when the Horned Frogs battled Air Force to a scoreless tie. But, TCU can virtually lock up another trip to Big D by beating visiting No. 10 Texas in Fort Worth.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, it's No. 2 South Carolina at Navy, No. 3 Brigham Young at Utah, No. 4 Oklahoma State against Iowa State, No. 5 Florida at Kentucky, No. 7 Southern California versus UCLA, No. 8 Washington at Washington State, and No. 9 LSU at Mississippi State.

Also, No. 13 Boston College against Syracuse at Foxboro, Mass., No. 15 Georgia at No. 18 Auburn in a night game, No. 16 Southern Methodist at Texas Tech, No. 17 Florida State opposing Tennessee-Chattanooga in a night game, No. 19 Virginia at North Carolina and No. 20 Clemson against Maryland in Baltimore.

While Nebraska can lock up an Orange Bowl berth with a victory, the same is not true for Oklahoma. Should the Sooners win, next week's Oklahoma-Oklahoma State would be for the trip to Miami.

THE NEBRASKA-Oklahoma game figures to hinge on how well each team can stop the other. Nebraska is ranked first in the nation in total defense; the Sooners are ranked second.

"I compare defenses because that's where the strength of both teams is," Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said. "Nebraska's defense is the dominant defense of yesterday."

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne returned the compliment.

"They're kind of on a track now with some of the better defensive teams of '73, '74 and '75 when they had the Selmon brothers," he said.

Both offenses are also looking mighty fine.

"They've looked awfully good the last two weeks," Osborne said of Oklahoma, which scored 40 points in moving down Missouri and 42 more in crushing Colorado.

They moved the ball well against Missouri and Colorado, teams we had trouble with, and we moved it well against Iowa State and Kansas, teams they had trouble with. Obviously when (Oklahoma quarter back) Danny Bradley was out against Kansas, it is an unfair comparison."

The shootout, to be televised to most of the country by ABC at 2:50 p.m., pits the two winningest active major-college coaches, along with the two with the best winning percentage.

Switzer, at 7-1-1 this season and 113-22-4 for his career, has the best percentage. Osborne, 9-1 this season and 117-26-2 overall, ranks second in percentage.

This weekend's schedule also features unranked Penn State at unranked Notre Dame, an Eastern contest often called "The Game," the 101st meeting between Yale and Harvard (Yale leads the series 54-38-8); and a Far Eastern game, the eighth annual Mirage Bowl in Tokyo, Japan, where Army meets Montana.

Plea bargain could save ex-Denver back

DENVER (AP) — Otis Armstrong, former Denver Broncos' running back who was indicted in August by a grand jury on seven counts of obtaining prescription drugs by deception, is being offered a plea-bargain that could result in the dismissal of all charges.

However, both sides say there still is one point upon which they do not agree, and District Judge John McMullen was asked Thursday to step into the matter. He will hold meetings to discuss the proposal.

The Denver grand jury accused Armstrong of obtaining the pain-killer Percodan from two Denver physicians by fraud and deceit.

Armstrong said then that he took Percodan to relieve the intense pain he suffers as a result of football injuries.

The bargain requires Armstrong to plead guilty to one count of illegally obtaining the powerful drug and stay out of trouble for a year, after which his record would be wiped clean.

But Armstrong has resisted pleading guilty.

"In procuring the substance, I was in a situation that there's not a lot of choice," he said, "because of the pain that I was in, and I can't see how that was done illegally because I went to doctors. I didn't go to the streets or anything."

Defense attorney Walter Gerash said Armstrong would rather plead "no contest" to one count.

"It is just hard for me to think I was committing a crime," Armstrong said. "I just went to doctors."

Prosecutors have said they want at least one guilty plea in the bargain.

Yanks contact Fred Lynn

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred Lynn's agent, Jerry Kapstein, said Friday that he had been in contact with four clubs, including the New York Yankees and San Diego Padres, in the past two days about the services of the California Angels' free agent outfielder.

"Those discussions are continuing," Kapstein said by telephone from his San Diego office. "We're still in the preliminary stages of our discussion, but we're certainly moving into the area of substance."

Kapstein said he had spoken with Yankees' General Manager Woody Woodward Thursday and with San Diego General Manager Jack McKeon Friday. In the past two seasons, Kapstein has placed two free agents, Steve Garvey and Rich Gosage, with the Padres.

Kapstein would not say to whom he had talked besides New York and San Diego. In addition to those clubs, Lynn was drafted by Baltimore, Texas and the Chicago White Sox. The Yankees are known to be interested in a center fielder and recently were reported to have been discussing a trade with Oakland for either Rickey Henderson or Dwayne Murphy.

Lynn batted .270, with 23 home runs and 79 runs batted in for the Angels this year.

Zail Singh

Sikh president torn between religion, politics

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's recent turmoil has torn President Zail Singh, a devout Sikh often called the "people's president," between his religion and politics.

Singh, the first Sikh to hold the country's highest office, is known for his unflinching loyalty to assassinated Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, whom he referred to as "my leader."

"I have lost my dearest friend and the world has lost the greatest woman leader mankind has ever produced," Singh, 68, said in a national address on Oct. 31, the day Mrs. Gandhi was killed, allegedly by two men identified as Sikh members of her own security guard seeking vengeance for her crackdown on Sikh extremists.

As a member of the minority sect, the president has been called upon to support some of the most controversial decisions by Mrs. Gandhi, including her order to the Indian army last June to storm the Sikhs' Golden Temple in Amritsar to dislodge Sikh militants entrenched there.

Following the assault, he came under pressure from many Sikhs here and abroad to resign. The Indian press published persistent rumors that he was persuaded not to do so by Mrs. Gandhi.

Singh openly grieved for the Sikhs when the army invaded the Golden Temple. About 1,200 people were slain in the battle, according to reliable accounts, though the government claimed only 600 people died in the June 4-7 assault.

While never openly criticizing Mrs. Gandhi's policies about strife-torn Punjab state, where most of India's 13 million Sikhs live, Singh made it clear by his actions that he did not always necessarily agree with her decisions.

He went to the Sikh holy city of Amritsar on June 8 to see the damage at the complex himself and was believed to have been deeply hurt by the destruction in and around the holiest Sikh shrine.

A Punjabi preacher by profession, the affable Singh entered politics during India's independence struggle against the British. He joined the ruling Congress party and rose to become India's seventh president in 1982.

Singh, though sympathetic to Sikh demands, is clear on the issue of Khalistan, the name Sikh separatists give to an envisioned separate state.

"No sardar (Sikh) in India wants Khalistan. Some sardars and foreign interests living abroad are responsible for creating the issue," he told a Bombay-based newspaper shortly after he was elected president.

Asked to comment on the status of Sikhs, Singh said, "I am against regionalism, communalism and casteism. No injustice is being done to any minority in India."

He was declared guilty of a "grave religious crime" by Sikhism's five high priests when, as supreme commander of the armed forces, he accepted the responsibility for ordering the army into the Golden Temple. He never condemned the raid.

"Resign if you have any conscience," said a telegram from members of the Sikh community in the United States. His likeness reportedly was put on dorm mats in Sikh shrines and trod upon by the faithful.

Singh later was exonerated after secret negotiations between his emissaries and the priests. He appeared in the temple complex and did penance.

"Why should all this have happened when I was the president? I pray for forgiveness from all of you," he said in the Golden Temple, formally apologizing in front of the priests. Singh is also believed to have hastened the process of handing the Golden Temple back to the Sikhs in September, ending nearly four months of army occupation.

"Those who thought that he would be a complete rubber stamp now have enough evidence to rethink their assessment. He has shown he can be his own man," wrote the independent Telegraph newspaper in an editorial.

Singh, who was born in a mud hut in Punjab, completed high school and decided to train to become a professional "granthi" or reader of the Granth Sahib (Sikh holy book).

Although he did not go beyond high school, Singh has been in turn a freedom fighter, politician and administrator. He became Punjab's chief minister, the highest state official, in 1972 and later was appointed India's home minister in 1980 when Mrs. Gandhi came back to power after her brief three-year period of political obscurity.

Slickly packaged Bible rendition best-selling paperback

CAROL STREAM, Ill. (AP) — Backed by a $6-million national advertising campaign, a modern, "user-friendly" rendition of the Bible called "The Book" probably will sell more than a million copies by Christmas, its publisher says.

suburban Chicago.

One network television ad for "The Book" shows an attractive woman in a filmy blouse reading a brief excerpt from a love verse from the Book of Solomon.

"Isn't that something?" she says with a sigh. "It's from this new Bible called 'The Book.' I love good poetry," and "The Book" has some of the best."

"The objective is to get America reading the Bible again," Elwell said Tuesday.

"We're trying to change attitudes, get people to see it's contemporary and read by successful people, and that it can change their lives."

The advertising campaign is being conducted through next spring by Tyndale's partner in the venture, the Christian Broadcasting Network of Virginia.

"Our research showed that most people already own a Bible... a King James version in Old English, but most people don't read it," Jeff Jarrett, manager of new market development for CBN, said by telephone Tuesday from Virginia Beach, Va. "If we just ran ads that said, 'Read your Bible,' it would sound like 'Brush your teeth' or 'Do your homework.'"

"Normally, in the book-publishing business, $100,000 is viewed as a large promotional budget. But what we wanted to do with 'The Book' is entirely different. ...We're trying to change behavior patterns," Jarrett said.

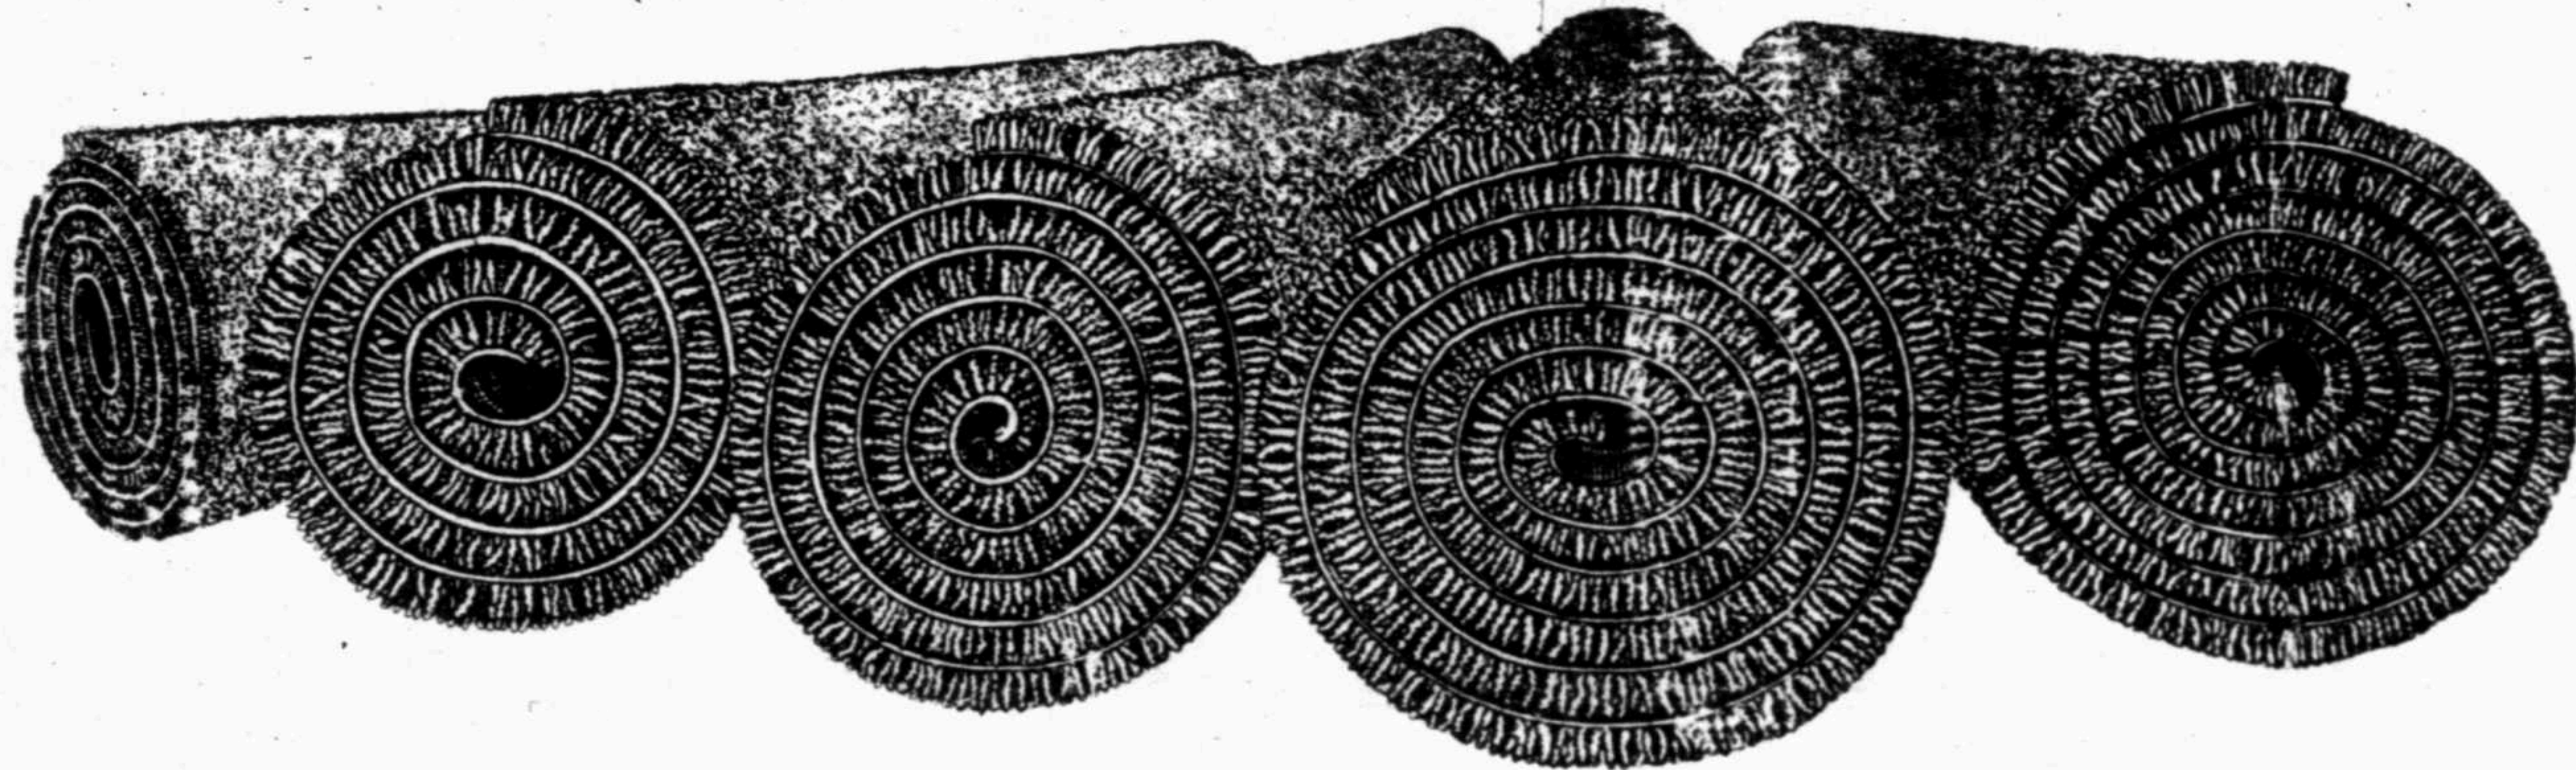

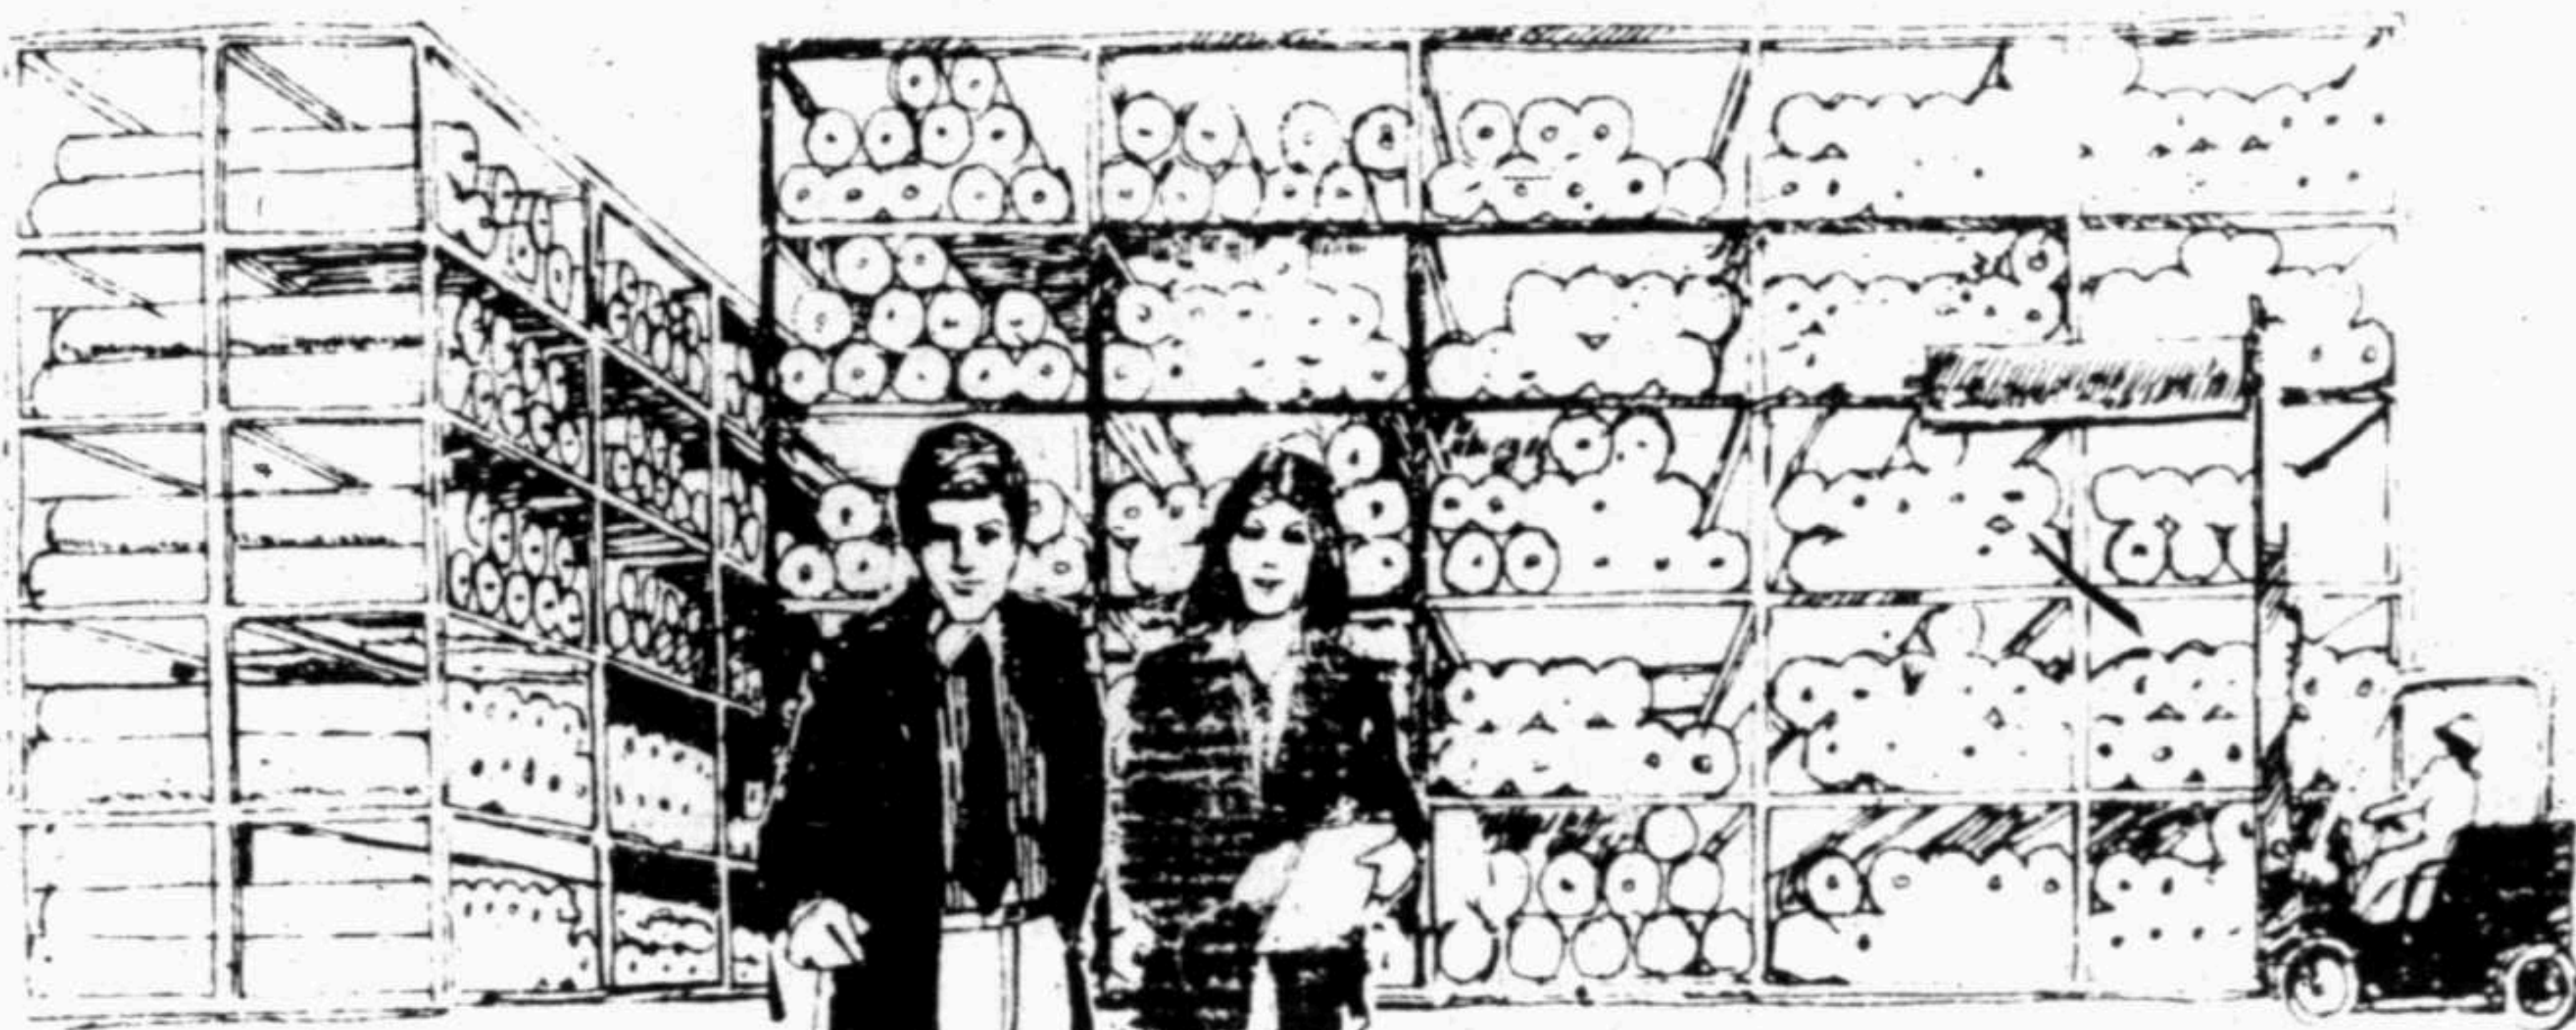

Another ad depicts 17th Century monarch King James reciting a passage from his own version of the Bible and then reads the same passage from "The Book."

"I like a Bible I can understand," the actor says.

CBN and Tyndale are trying to appeal to people who don't read the Bible or who read it infrequently, making it understandable and attractive enough that no one will be embarrassed to read it in public.

Snowbirds Bill and Lou Johnson sold their house in Freeport, Ill., to move to Harlingen. More than 100,000 snowbirds — elderly visitors who spend the coldest months in South Texas — are expected to arrive after Christmas, swelling the snowbird population to 200,000 or more.

South Texas set for arrival of snowbirds

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — The annual migration to the Rio Grande Valley of elderly "snowbirds" is under way and one expert predicted that within a decade these Winter Texans will outnumber permanent residents in a significant number of South Texas towns.

Elderly visitors already outnumber full-time residents in Pharr, Mission and La Feria during the winter months, said Dr. Carl Rush, an economics researcher at Pan American University who conducts an annual survey of winter tourists.

Rush said the increase will place a strain on municipal services and public officials should begin planning to meet the demand.

Many of those who formerly stayed only during the winter months are now opting for permanent retirement in South Texas, causing a rise in the number of relatively affluent, elderly full-time residents in communities between Brownsville and Mission, he said.

Last winter, 42 percent of all the visitors came from Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois and Missouri, Rush said. The rest came to escape the cold in a variety of snow-bound Northern and Midwestern states and Canada.

Between 200,000 and 300,000 elderly residents are expected in the Valley this year, the majority arriving after the first of the year.

"The peak months for arrival are in January and February," said Marge Johnson at the Valley Chamber of Commerce. "They like to stay home for Christmas and come down immediately afterward."

Experts estimate a 10 percent increase in winter tourism over last year, when visitors spent approximately $300 million during their stay. About half the visitors leave in April.

Three-fourth of the winter visitors live in trailers with the rest renting hotel rooms and condominiums, Mrs. Johnson said.

Mrs. Johnson said real estate developers, trying to keep up with demand, have added 10,000 new trailer spaces to the 50,000 spaces available last year.

"There has been a trend toward leaving trailers here year round," she said. "And now there are a large number of mobile home estates under development which allow people to purchase lots for their mobile homes."

Arnold Arrowood at the McAllen Chamber of Commerce said that since Nov. 1, about 100 to 150 winter tourists a day have been visiting the chamber seeking information. In addition, chamber staff members have been answering about 100 phone calls and 100 letters each day from people asking questions about area accommodation.

"Trailer parks are doing quite well this year already. Out winter guests are just beginning to arrive, but we're expecting a larger crowd than last year," he said.

Trailways seeks fare hike

AUSTIN (AP) — Nationwide prosperity and fare-cutting airlines have left Trailways Lines Inc., seeking higher rates.

Trailways has asked the state Railroad Commission for permission to raise passenger fares within Texas by an average of 48.7 percent.

The Trailways request covers seven companies, and Greyhound Lines, Inc., said it would make "basically the same" request to charge on a mileage basis within Texas rather than from point-to-point.

Others joining in the application include Kerrville Bus Co., Inc., and Painter Bus Co., Inc., also of Kerrville.

Examiner Merrily Porter of the commission's Transportation Division read the names of seven individuals who had protested in writing Trailways' rate request. The individuals, however, did not appear at the public hearing Thursday.

Malcolm Myers of Dallas, Trailways' vice president for traffic, said Trailways began in December to convert intrastate rates to an interstate basis, which is calculated on a price-per-mile basis. He said the company now has made the conversion in 23 states.

Each mile of the first 100 miles of interstate travel now costs 16.5 cents, and the cost declines the longer the trip.

Asked if Trailways' request was based on financial need, which the company must prove to the commission's satisfaction, Myers said, "Absolutely."

The 48.7 percent average increase within Texas would raise an estimated $9 million a year in additional revenue, according to Trailways' lawyer Becky Patton, also of Dallas.

"We've got more pressure from the airlines and those crazy fare wars," Myers said during a recess in the hearing. "We've got trouble in the bus industry, but we're going to survive."

During the London Blitz, when the children were sent out into the rural districts to insure that there would be another generation of Britshers, a little girl in her foster home was heard to end her bedtime prayer with this plea, "And please, dear God, take care of yourself, for if anything happens to you, we are sunk." We have nothing that does depend on God's goodness. Have a happy Thanksgiving, but remember the reason.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Grace Presbyterian sets
Thanksgiving service

Our Savior's Lutheran Church, presently meeting at the Grace Presbyterian Day Care Center, will be holding a traditional, family-oriented Thanksgiving Day Service at 10 a.m. Thursday.

The church's pastor, the Rev. John W. Allan, will be presiding minister and the preacher for the service. In addition to festive music and hymn singing, a children's sermon and adult's sermon will be offered. Both will stress the theme of thanksgiving as "Thanks-Living."

Contributions received from members and visitors will be designated to assist hungry people in Midland and in countries abroad plagued by drought and starvation. The day care center is located at 5200 W. Illinois Ave.

"On this national holiday set aside specifically for the purpose of giving a thanks-filled response to God for all the abundant blessings we've received from his hand, the congregation warmly invites the community to share in this special one-hour worship opportunity," Allan says.

Bells ring out in concert

The fifth annual Midland Christmas Handbell Festival Concert is set for 4 p.m. today in the Fellowship Hall of First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

Thomas R. Roberts is festival chairman and one of the mass ringing conductors. Also directing will be Ty Morris of Crestview Baptist Church, Susan Roberts of First Presbyterian Church and Jerry Luck of Second Baptist Church, Lamesa.

Over 100 ringers will be participating, ringing about 600 handbells.

Solos will be presented from choirs at Crestview Baptist Church, Second Baptist Church, Lamesa, and First Presbyterian.

The Festival Concert is free. Child care will be provided for children under 6.

Baptists sponsor ski trip

First Baptist Church has a family ski trip planned for Dec. 26 through 31 to Purgatory at Durango, Colo.

The church has 20 units available, with four to a unit. Cost is $280 for adults, which includes six nights' lodging, two meals a day, five-day lift ticket and five days rental. Those who have their own ski equipment can deduct $40.

Each party going is responsible for his own transportation. For more information or reservations call the church's Activities Building, 682-7669.

Pro-life PAC claims voters upheld position in elections

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AP) — The National Pro-Life Political Action Committee says that its position was upheld by voters in 68 percent of the federal election contests in which it supported or opposed candidates.

"Once again the pro-life movement has provided the unborn in America with political clout," claimed Peter B. Gemma Jr., the organization's executive director.

"The quality of pro-life Democrats and Republicans elected this year will undoubtedly change the tone and results of the fight for legal protection for the unborn on Capitol Hill."

However, People for the American Way, which opposes restricting abortion, says the Nov. 6 election provided both "good news and bad" for the Christian right, winning in some targeted races but losing in others.

"An overall look at the new makeup of Congress indicates that fundamental-right legislation may have actually suffered a setback," the Washington-based organization says. Its executive director Antony Podesta adds:

"The fundamentalist-right has become a strong and influential political machine and it'll continue to be effective until the American people reject the tactics of 'Moral McCarthyism.'"

Christian Science speaker
keys talk to God's kingdom

A visiting Christian Scientist keys much of his Dec. 3 lecture here to Jesus's pronouncement, "The kingdom of God is within you."

Fitzwater

"This teaching," says Bruce Fitzwater of Portland, Ore., "has profound practical implications for the way we live, the way we view our world and our ability to help others."

"This kingdom of God is within our present possibilities. Within our individual lives is where we'll see the works of God."

The lecture on "Sowing and Reaping: A Biblical Model for Individual Growth," is scheduled for noon Dec. 3 at the Midland Hilton Ballroom.

corner of Main Street and Wall Avenue.

God's promises in the Bible that our prayerfully guided efforts for good, sown in the context of God's government will naturally be multiplied in our experience, Fitzwater says, adding, "This expanding good is the essence of true progress."

Fitzwater resigned from an academic career, which included teaching western civilization at the Chinese University of Hong Kong, to devote his full-time efforts to the public healing practice of Christian Science. He is a member of the denomination's Board of Lectureship.

The congregation of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Midland, which is sponsoring the lecture, stresses that it is free and open to the public. Child care will be provided at the Christian Science Church, Tennessee Avenue and N. C Street, for those too young to attend.

and the tragedy is that we are comfortable with it."

At Midland Bible Church, McQuaid will be speaking on the theme "Living in Days of Promise. The sessions will conclude Wednesday with a Thanksgiving Vespers service.

Midland Lutheran Church

— The Midland Lutheran Church American Lutheran Church Women prepared and donated Thanksgiving baskets to the Shelter for Battered Women.

— Sixth graders Carlo Gast, Yvonne Koenig, Jordan Reed, Libby Sanders, Marikka Williams and Stacy Wiesepape will receive First Communion Sunday.

— The church recently completed a month-long stewardship program, entitled "People of Hope." Members prepared time and talent sheets which will be used to determine 1985 church committees and budgets. Stewardship Committee members are chairman Lonnie Yee, Tom Ayers, Dick Reed, George Hacke, Martin Meissner, Ann Beatty and Mike McBrayer.

Christian Scientists plan
Thanksgiving service

A special Thanksgiving service is planned for the community at 11 a.m. Thanksgiving Day by local Christian Scientists. The service will be held at 1001 W. Tennessee Ave.

A passage from Psalms provides the keynote: "Praise ye the Lord: for it is good to sing praises unto our God...He healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds."

The service will explore the importance of gratitude in daily life. The sermon will include passages from the Scriptures and accompanying selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by the founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy.

The lesson readings emphasize that Thanksgiving is far more than a passive posture to blessings. As a passage from "Science and Health" asks, "Are we really grateful for the good already received? Then we shall avail ourselves of the blessings we have, and thus be more fitted to receive more. Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech."

During the hour-long service, the congregation will sing hymns of praise, share a brief silent prayer and say the Lord's Prayer. The latter portion of the meeting has been set aside for spontaneous testimonies of gratitude to God.

The public is invited to attend.

Kathy Cronkite on Austin stage

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Kathy Cronkite, daughter of retired TV anchorman Walter Cronkite, says her desire to act is something she got from her journalistic parents.

"What it boils down to is communication, actually," she says. "Everything I care passionately about has to do with that, whether it's appearing on a talk show or writing or working with a horse. I guess it's something that was just a part of my growing up."

Kathy Cronkite

Ms. Cronkite is on stage in a revival of "Talking With..." at the Capitol City Playhouse in Austin. She appeared in the film "Network," and will be seen in a small role in "Robert Kennedy and His Times," when it airs on CBS-TV in January.

"Austin feels like such a safe place; I'm doing things I haven't done in years," she said. "I love doing theater, and before now I was scared to really do any stage acting."

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Princess Alexandra of Britain opens a weeklong official visit to Mexico today with a dedication ceremony at the American British Cowdray Hospital here.

The hospital is starting construction in a $20 million development program. Lawrence V. Meagher, general director of the hospital, said it is hoped that $10 million can be raised in Mexico. He said the U.S. Agency for International Development's American schools and hospitals abroad program has donated $1 million.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Grand Duke Jean of Luxembourg has paid tribute to the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Carson, which liberated his homeland during World War II, noting that Western Europe has been at peace since the war.

"This may be the most conspicuous tribute paid by history to those who helped shape it," he told members of the division Thursday.

The division helped drive the German army out of Luxembourg in September 1944, then helped stop the enemy advance on the small country during the Battle of the Bulge.

"Because of the experiences shared on that pre-Christmas period in 1944, we have a deep sense of comradeship and pride concerning the people and country of Luxembourg," said the division commander, Maj. Gen. Gerald T. Bartlett.

The grand duke and his wife, Duchess Josephine Charlotte, later dined with Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm and his wife, Dottie. They left for San Francisco on Friday and next are to visit Chicago, last stop on their U.S. tour.

ROME (AP) — Italian movie star Rossano Brazzi and a suspect in the papal shooting plot are among 37 people indicted following a major investigation of international arms and drug smuggling, a prosecutor said Friday.

Rossano Brazzi

Judge Carlo Palermo in the northern Italian city of Trento issued the indictments Thursday night, after a five-year probe into a ring that allegedly operated in Italy, West Germany, Spain, Bulgaria, Turkey and other parts of the Mediterranean.

Trento state prosecutor Enrico Cavallieri said in a telephone interview that Brazzi and Bekir Celenk were among those indicted. Cavallieri said both were charged with "arms trafficking," but did not provide further details.

Celenk, 40, is a reputed leader of a Turkish gang that smuggled guns and drugs through Bulgaria. He now is in police custody in Bulgaria, and was indicted by Italian authorities Oct. 26 for complicity in the May 13, 1981, shooting attack on Pope John Paul II.

Brazzi gained fame as a romantic leading man in the 1950s and 1960s in such movies as "South Pacific" and "Three Coins in the Fountain."

HONG KONG (AP) — San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein arrived Friday after an eight-day tour of China to bolster trade and political ties built up since 1979 when she secured a sister-city relationship with Shanghai.

1963 pinup calendars to be sold for '85

CHICAGO (AP) — For 22 years, Jack T. Chia has been trying to unload thousands of "Girl a Week & Joke a Day" calendars that he couldn't sell when they were new. Now time is back on his side — the days and dates on the 1963 calendar match those of 1985.

He laminated the pictures of his pinup beauties on an array of household items. He tried peddling the photos to a nudist camp. He tried selling the jokes to fortune cookie makers. No sale.

Still, Chia said he expects 1985 to be the year he finally finds a market for the 150,000 calendars he has left.

"People like the calendars because they think they're arty, they leave more to the imagination" than today's pinup pictures, he said.

"Also, this is sort of a nostalgia appeal. These are part of history."

Chia said he came up with the idea for the calendars in 1962, when pinup calendars were in their prime. He said he created the Good-Time Publishing Co. as a vehicle for his brainstorm and bought the rights to photographs of Sophia Loren, Brigitte Bardot and other beauties, posing in the nude or in scanty outfits.

To make his product truly novel, Chia said he spent hours in libraries collecting funny quotes from the likes of Bob Hope and Fred Flintstone.

After spending about $50,000, Chia slapped a $1 price tag on the calendars and waited for success. But because of delays by the distributor, the calendars didn't hit newsstands until January 1963, and Chia said he only sold "about 18 percent" of the 200,000 he had printed.

Chia, now 60, said he didn't want to waste the photos and jokes he had painstakingly collected.

"I tried to salvage the pictures," he said. "I laminated them on ashtrays, placemats and beer mugs. But people either thought they were too arty or there was too much nudity."

Chia said he next tried to peddle the pictures to nudist camps in Indiana, "but they rejected them." He said he then "used the jokes to stuff fortune cookies," but merchants in Chicago's Chinatown found the jokes inappropriate for such cookies.

Chia said he "knew sooner or later" he'd make use of the calendars, so he stored them away and waited for their time to come.

After discovering that the 1974 calendar would repeat the one for 1963, Chia said he placed ads for his calendars in national magazines. But this time, he said, the printer was late with envelopes for the calendars, and he was able to sell only 17,000 before they once again became obsolete.

Now he's making a final stab at offering them to the public, again advertising them in magazines.

But with inflation, Chia has upped his price. They'll go for $9.95 each, plus $2.05 shipping.

Losers in bet have to take elephant ride

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Mayor David Coeyman and former Somersworth Mayor George Bald are negotiating with an animal farm for an elephant ride to settle a Great American Smokeout day wager they lost.

"I hope the elephant has a good saddle, safety belts and rollbars," Coeyman said in anticipation of the ride through Concord sometime next week.

The two Democrats lost a bet Thursday when Republican Executive Councilor Peter Spaulding of Hopkinton went through the day without a cigarette.

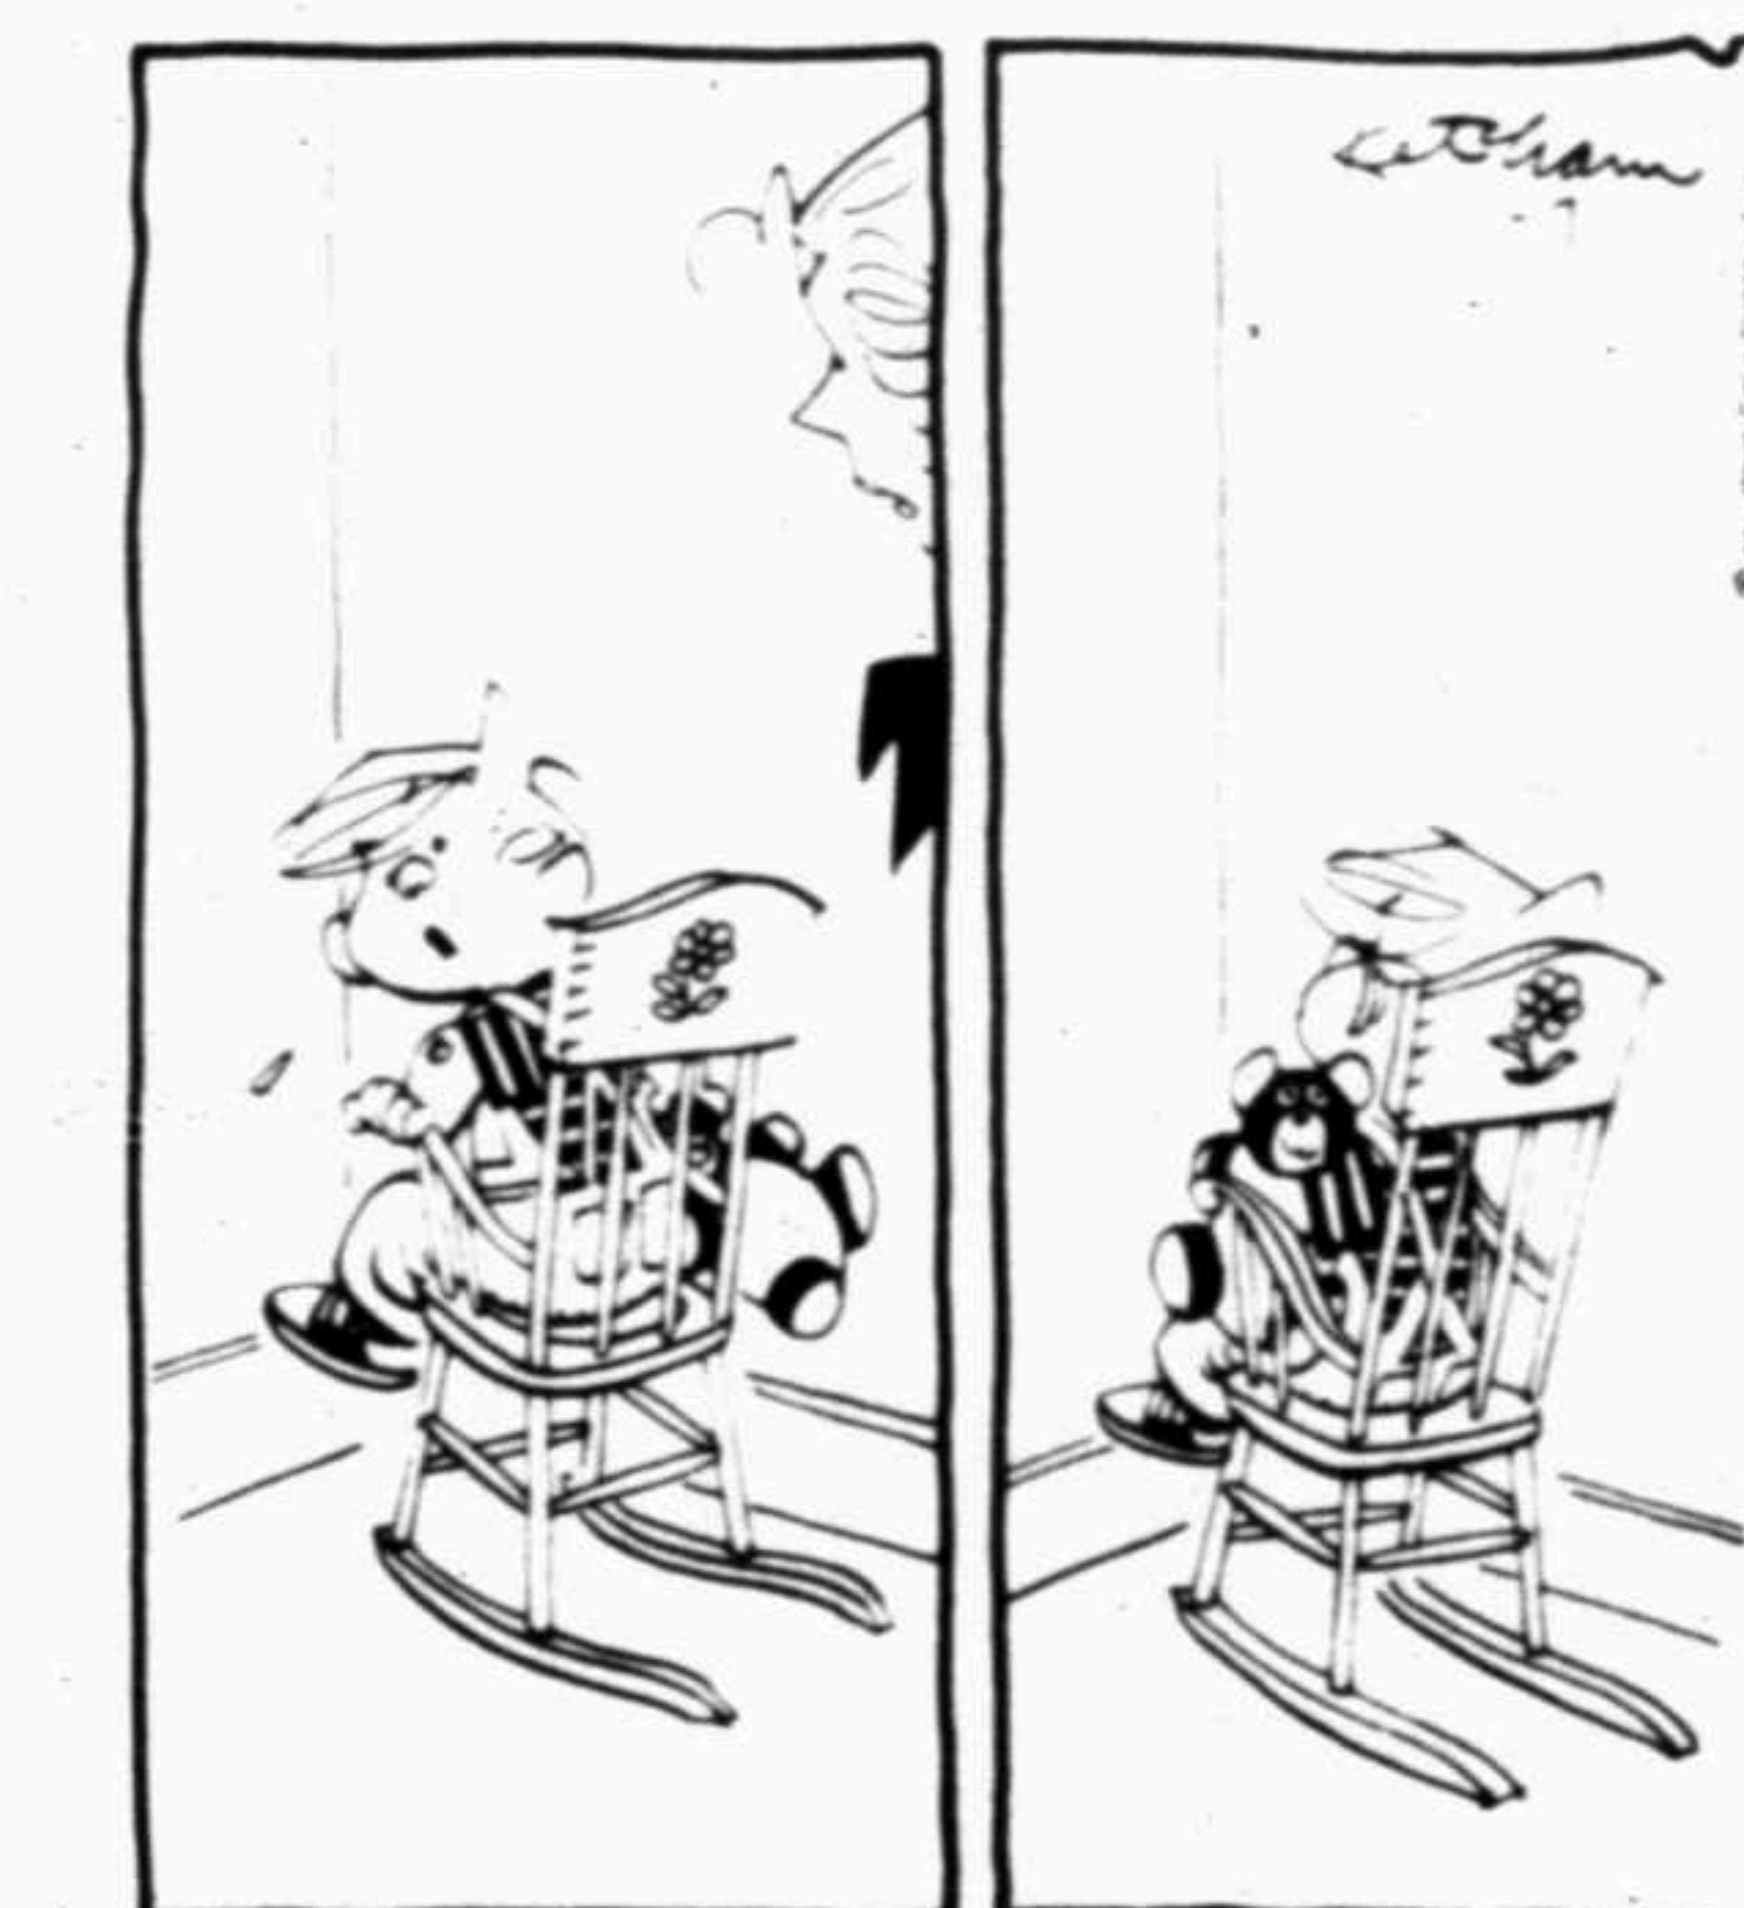

The bet had been that if Spaulding smoked he'd have to ride a Democratic donkey; if he did not, Coeyman and Bald would ride a GOP elephant.

Two years ago, Bald lost a similar bet to then-Mayor Raymond Hennessey of Dover, and had to walk down the street in long woolen underwear. Last year, Coeyman lost the bet to Bald and had to give him a rickshaw ride in Concord.

Zaire music popular, costly

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — The average music lover can't afford the price of a record, but the reverberating, brassy beat of Zaire's music has made it this African country's most pervasive export.

Since the 1960s, pop music from the former Belgian Congo has been a mainstay of disc jockeys from as far south as Zambia and across the 4,500-mile breadth of this continent from Kenya in the east to Senegal in the west.

Zaire's two top musicians, Tabu Ley and Franco, have built up followings in Europe and in the United States. Last year, Tabu Ley had a concert tour of France and Belgium, and Franco, whose real name is Lwambo Makiadi, played to big crowds in several European countries and the United States.

Tabu Ley credits the nation's diverse culture for the Zairean music phenomenon. Zaire's population of some 30 million is divided into about 200 tribes who speak more than 70 languages.

To the Western ear, the music sounds like a brassy and insistent Latin American rumba, and that's what it's called here.

The beat is the key to Zairean music's success.

Though the Lingala-language lyrics spin earthy tales packed with the woes of human existence, the music has become very popular even in such countries as Kenya where hardly anybody understands Lingala.

Despite his popularity, Tabu Ley has estimated that only 5 percent of the sales of his 84 LPs have been in Zaire, where a disc costs $16, or nearly a month's pay.

And there's little money to be had in staging concerts in impoverished countries. Recent tours by Franco and Tabu Ley to Kenya and Uganda generated much public interest but flopped financially because many of their fans couldn't afford the tickets.

Puttnam reviving British film industry

By RICHARD NATALE
Hearst Feature Service

The British film industry, largely dormant in recent years, is attempting to revive itself, led by the efforts of one man, producer David Puttnam.

Not since Sir Michael Balcon's Ealing Studios comedies in the '50s — "The Ladykillers," "Kind Hearts and Coronets" — has one individual typified such a distinctively English film aesthetic. Puttnam's most celebrated film, "Chariots of Fire," won the Best Picture Oscar in 1981. His most recent project, "The Killing Fields," a true story of Cambodian Khmer Rouge atrocities, has just opened.

Puttnam believes the popularity of films like "Chariots" and Bill ("Local Hero") Forsyth's Scottish comedies, has boosted confidence of the British film community. "The talent has always been here, but for years we've functioned primarily as a service industry to the American film business," he says, "lending them our talent, instead of making films which reflect the world from our viewpoint."

He cites directors like Richard Lester and Tony Richardson who, after the success of "Tom Jones" and "A Hard Day's Night," either abandoned England for Hollywood or worked on projects that were American in tone and approach.

"I don't think all British films need to have red buses moving across the screen," he says. "Killing Fields" is an American story, but it's told from a British (director Roland Joffe and writer Bruce Robinson's) perspective — less formulaic than Hollywood films, with fewer concessions to the commercial market.

The 1960s British effort was also damaged by a rush to capitalize on the sudden vogue for all things British, resulting in a lot of bad films by directors with little or no filmmaking experience, Puttnam says.

The current crop of talent is getting its training in areas like British independent television's acclaimed Channel 4. "It has become a fertile avenue for independent filmmakers," he says. "Unlike the BBC, it is mandated by the government to buy material from the outside."

But as quickly as Britain turns for example, left home to make out new directors, Hollywood seems regional American pieces like "Coal to spirit them away. Michael Apted, Miner's Daughter."
