Some Changes By New Ruler As Reds Mourn

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, March 7 (AP)—Russian millions mourning their dead leader were told today the Communist party's call for unity is "the beat of Stalin's immortal heart" and that all the Soviet people will approve the decree streamlining the government under his successor, Georgi M. Malenkov.

Pravda made these pronouncements as endless lines of men, women and children, some red-eyed from weeping, shuffled from below zero cold into the flower perfumed Hall of Columns for a look at the body of the man who guided the nation, in war and peace, for 29 years.

The consolidation of ministries and changes in command ordered by party and government officials last night—only about 24 hours after Stalin died from the complications of a stroke—were described by the Communist party newspaper as aimed at "preventing any kind of interruption in leading activities of state and party organs."

"This most important political document will be received by the party and the entire Soviet people with unanimous approval," it said.

The main fact disclosed in that document was the emergence of Malenkov who has been one of 11 deputy prime ministers, as the most important man in the Soviet Union.

The new Prime Minister, 51, had for years been a protege of Stalin and his closest adviser in party and government affairs.

L. P. Beria and V. M. Molotov, two other widely known deputy prime ministers, took lesser roles while retaining their jobs as deputies.

The three were first among the Soviet leaders who formed the honor guard for the dead Stalin, a guard changed at five-minute intervals since the body was moved from the Kremlin to the Hall of Columns Friday.

In death as in life, Joseph Stalin is a singular figure of a man. Lying with his head on a silk pillow, there is a monumental dignity about him. Over his heart are many medals. One recognizes particularly the Gold Star of the Hero of Soviet Labor.

With several thousand foreigners, including diplomats and newsmen, my wife and I saw the bier today. The Foreign Ministry's press service had telephoned that we could make the visit if we wished.

A million persons must have seen the spotlighted figure in the grey military jacket by that time and more than a million more are expected to pass by the bier before the funeral is held at noon (4 a.m. EST) Monday.

It's a bitterly cold day, the kind that makes the feel of the icy pavement seep through the soles of your shoes. The sun shines, but the temperature is below zero.

Moscow's wide streets near the House of the Union, a green colored building which houses the Hall of Columns, are cleared and orderly as the lines of people converge.

There are all kinds of people on this mission to the building not far from the Kremlin, where Stalin worked and died. Old people young people, middle aged people, children.

Some have been crying. All are solemn. There is an air of expectancy about them, as if they expected to see something dramatic.

Some carry wreaths of spring flowers. Some hold small bunches of golden mimosa. Two or three can be seen laboring along under gigantic wreaths.

There is a shuffle, shuffle, shuffle from thousands of feet. There is a great hush, then the sound that comes from thousands and thousands of persons talking in whispers in open places.

We reached the open double doors of the building and walked in beneath a huge, framed portrait of Stalin, the generalissimo, four or five times bigger than the doors themselves. A wreath of evergreen boughs hangs beneath the picture, a symbol that Stalin's memory will live.

Inside, uniformed men indicate the way. The lines, two or three abreast, keep moving into a high hallway, up some stairs. To a corridor. Into still another corridor. Large electric lights move over the line, illuminating the bier.

The bier with the lights on it, is the very center of everything.

Every eye is on it.

Stalin's head is away from the throng, his feet toward it. The face is stern, the mustache full and neat, the hair brushed, the jaw resolute. A strong face. Like the name Stalin, which means "steel."

Somewhere in the room there is a choked sob.

A string orchestra plays softly.

After the funeral Monday, Stalin will be laid to rest in Red Square beside Lenin, the man he succeeded.

Eventually the bodies of both, and those of other outstanding leaders of the Communist party and the state buried near the Kremlin wall are to be transferred to a great pantheon to be built as a new shrine of world communism.

'Entertainer' Of Gentlemen Has Difficulty

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 7 (AP)—A pretty, 32-year-old brunette, who said "I entertained guys," was charged with failing to file income tax returns on an income of almost $50,000.

Miss Jessie Ruth Chesnutt was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Louise O. Carlton yesterday and released under $500 bond.

Her attorney, Robert Gwin, contended "Miss Chesnutt's income is not taxable in that the money she has was given to her in the form of gifts."

He later told reporters the funds "were given her by various individuals over a period of years."

Asked if the gifts were from men or women, Miss Chesnutt said: "Gentlemen, naturally."

"I never did any kind of work much," she continued. "I did work in a cotton mill and on a farm and I entertained guys."

Miss Chesnutt said she was native of Gadsden, Ala., and had also lived in Las Vegas, Reno and Detroit.

A federal warrant against her charged she failed to file income tax returns on an income of $11,985 in 1949, $24,644 in 1950 and $12,144 in 1951.

One Week Left To Introduce Any New Bills

AUSTIN, March 7 (AP)—Take heed—everybody's expecting a deluge of bills in the Legislature this coming week and one is bound to affect you.

It's the last week for free-wheeling introduction of bills.

For the first 60 days of a session, a legislator can introduce any bill he wants to, one to make all mothers-in-law live in Big Bend Park if he wants to.

This year, those carefree days are up Friday, March 13. After that, a legislator has to get a four-fifths vote of the House or Senate for permission to introduce a bill.

Of course, he always can try to slip in a sleeper.

Last session Rep. A. J. Vale, Rio Grande City, asked permission to introduce a bill "to improve the livestock standards." Everybody thought that was a pretty good idea until somebody started asking questions. Turned out it was a horse racing bill. Vale didn't get the four-fifths vote.

On the basis of previous years, at least 150 bills will be introduced in the House this week; at least 40 in the Senate.

Introduction so far in eight weeks of the Legislature stands: 204 bills in the Senate, 541 in the House.

They do a pretty good job of covering everything—from regulation of catching minnows in Lake J. B. Thomas out in the Snyder area to a natural gas tax that will raise 60 million dollars a year.

Some of the legislators write their own bills. Some have an idea and take it to the attorney general's department where assistants will put it in bill form. And a lot frankly admit the bills were handed them already written out, like the eight bills worked out by the Governor's Water Conservation Committee.

Probe Clears Voice Suicide

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said today his Senate investigations subcommittee has found nothing to indicate any wrong-doing by Raymond Kaplan, a Voice of America employe whose death has been ruled a suicide.

The subcommittee has been conducting search for waste and subversion in the Voice, but McCarthy said it never had any plans to call Kaplan as a witness.

Kaplan, a radio engineer, said in an alleged suicide note to his wife and son that he had done nothing wrong but that "once the dogs are set on you, everything you have done since the beginning of time is suspect."

McCarthy, telephoning from New York, where the investigations subcommittee met in closed session today, said co-workers of Kaplan expressed "grave doubt" that his death was a suicide.

Korean Shortages Brings Probe Proposal From Taft

SMOOTHER RELATIONS

British Promise To Help In Economic Blockade Of China

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Britain has promised to help impose an economic blockade on shipments of strategic materials to Red China, it was announced here today at the close of British-American foreign policy and economic talks.

At the same time, the two nations indicated the United States has encouraged Britain to plunge into freer currency and trade policies.

Two communiques, one on foreign policy and the other on economic policy, closed out formal talks which began here Wednesday. Participating were British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Secretary of State Dulles, British Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey.

The two diplomattically-worded announcements boiled down to this.

1. The British will try to eliminate the sore spot in their relations with the United States — that is shipments to Red China of materials useful for a war effort. At the same time they will stand firm on their Middle Eastern policy, especially as regards Iran.

2. The two nations will cooperate, and Britain will take direct action in the sterling area, in a farflung attempt to loosen monetary and trade shackles with the aim of strengthening free world economies to support a long struggle against communism.

Attempt Made To Burn Man

LOVINGTON, N. M., March 7 (AP)—Assault to murder charges were filed today against two men accused of pouring gasoline on an Andrews, Tex., man and flipping lighted matches on him until he caught fire.

Robert Earl Brogdon, 37, was found on a highway near here yesterday, his clothes virtually burned off. He was in fair condition today at a Hobbs, N. M., hospital.

The charges were filed against Hardy Houston Phillips, 29, Lena, Miss., and Otis Carlton Waggoner, 31, who used to live at Polksville, Miss., but now resides at Rankin, Tex. Phillips told officers he was released Jan. 17 from La Tuna Federal Prison near El Paso.

Both were in jail here following their arrest last night.

Lodge Blasts Reds In UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 7 (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., stoutly defended today the peace aims of the Republican party against Russian onslaughts. He wound up the debate on Korea with a new challenge to Moscow to stop the Korean War immediately on U. N. terms.

The chief U. S. delegate spoke calmly but forcefully to the U. N. Political Committee after listening to fresh Iron Curtain blasts that the Republican administration is a war party and American "ruling circles" want to continue the war in Korea.

"I hear the phrase 'ruling circles,'" Lodge said. "I wonder what it means. Anybody who followed the election last fall in which there was a complete turnover in the government knows there are no 'ruling circles' in the United States.

"If you have any doubt about the American peoples' desire for peace ask any family—and I have personal experience here—who has a son or brother in the American forces."

Lodge has a son in Korea.

"It was the craving and the ardent desire of the Americans for peace that was responsible for the election result last fall," Lodge continued.

He summed up the Soviet position as follows:

The Soviet Union will not agree to peace in Korea. It will not allow the Communist Chinese to make peace. It insists that the war continue to the last Korean.

"It is the stark truth," he said solemnly as he voiced the new challenge, "that there could be peace in Korea tomorrow if the Communists would drop their opposition to the Indian resolution."

Lodge touched off the debate on Feb. 25 with a recital of what he said were 10 facts showing the Russians were giving weapons and help to the Communist Chinese and North Koreans.

Driving Car In A-Attack May Not Be Safe

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 7 (AP)—A hundred or more automobiles, some of them brand new, will be exposed to the St. Patrick's Day atomic blast to determine how safe you would be in your car if the real thing went off.

No. 1 in the Atomic Energy Commission's spring series is designed chiefly to put the searing heat of a nuclear explosion on the things folks deal with daily. It already has been announced that two frame houses will be in the target area, one only half a mile from the blast's center.

The Civil Defense Administration found itself without enough money to build or buy all the things it wanted to study. So it promoted the cars from manufacturers and dealers in all parts of the country.

It pitched the problem to dealers like this:

"One of the great gaps in our knowledge is the amount of protection afforded by typical American automobiles. Because the American public owns and operates nearly 40 million automobiles, it is certain that an enemy attack would find many thousands of people in cars."

J. Slaten Jenner, director of the project, says CDA is proud of the patriotic response.

These cars will be driven here at their owners' expense, and back again for exhibition purposes if they can be driven. CDA expects the great majority of vehicles will not suffer major damage.

In return for his expense and risk, the dealer can have a reserved seat at Charleston Park, 40 miles or more from where the bomb goes off, and the chance to display the car in his home town if he gets back with it.

Thai Premier Seeks Burma-China Peace

BANGKOK, Sunday, March 8 (AP)—Thailand's Premier Pibulsongram is reported seeking a way to get representatives of Burma and Nationalist China together to call off fighting reported between Burmese troops and Nationalist guerrillas just inside Burma's border with Red China.

The Thai government, worried about its own Communist problem, seems to fear that the renewed activity of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist guerrillas in Burma may be used as an excuse for intervention by Red China troops.

Kefauver Opposes It; Others Do Too

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—A broad-scale investigation of the whole Korean situation was proposed today by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), who suggested a special committee might be created for the task.

Taft's proposal brought immediate opposition from Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), another top runner in last year's race for presidential nominations.

Kefauver said an investigation such as Taft proposed would "plunge the conduct of the war into politics" and might feed information to the enemy.

Taft, the Republican floor leader, said "the whole subject should be looked into."

He suggested that an investigation now under way into reports that Allied troops in Korea have been short of ammunition might be broadened to cover the stalled armistice talks, the handling of prisoners of war, and related subjects.

"We should know about all of these things for their impact on whatever we are going to do in Korea," he said.

This apparently referred to strategy which President Eisenhower may be evolving on the basis of his visit to the battle zone last Dec. 2-5. At the time Eisenhower reported seeing "no panaceas, no tricks" for settling the war.

In a separate interview, however, Kefauver said:

"I think that before we decide to make any such investigation, we ought to go into the question of how it might affect national unity and what information it might give the enemy."

The Tennessee senator, a member of the armed services committee, said that instead of a broad-scale investigation, he favors limiting congressional inquiries to specific matters, such as the reported ammunition shortage.

Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio), a top-ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, expressed doubt that Sen. Taft's proposal would be effective.

"I doubt," Vorys told a reporter, "if you can investigate the past conduct of a war that is going on without having the committee influence the current war. And I don't think a congressional committee can conduct a war."

A GOP senator who didn't want to be quoted by name said he also doubted the wisdom of attempting to set up a congressional committee to probe into the conduct of a war that still was going on.

He said such a committee gave Lincoln "many headaches" in the Civil War and a similar inquiry might embarrass Eisenhower.

Taft's suggestion for the broad inquiry was regarded in some quarters as reflecting demands from other Republican lawmakers that something be done to end the Korean conflict.

Eisenhower proposed to make an early and honorable end to the fighting the first order of business in his administration and many GOP candidates made even stronger pledges in last year's campaign.

Taft spoke out shortly after Gen. James A. Van Fleet, retiring commander of the U. S. Eighth Army in Korea, emerged tight-lipped from an hour and 10 minute conference with Eisenhower at the White House.

Despite contrary reports from the Pentagon, Van Fleet insisted before congressional committees this week that his troops were harrassed by ammunition shortages during all of his 22 months in the field. Sometimes, he said, the shortages were critical.

Secretary of Defense Wilson is schedule to go before a closed-door session of the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday to present what he described as a "factual" report. He will be accompanied by Secretary of the Army Stevens, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, and Van Fleet.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Armed Services Committee, also have been looking into the Korean situation, and a Senate armed services subcommittee on appropriations has ordered a separate inquiry to find out what happened to the money Congress appropriated for ammunition.

Deadline For Filing In City Race Is Ended

The deadline for filing for candidacy in the city general election of April 7 passed yesterday with only one candidate for each of the three offices to be filled.

The three unopposed candidates are the present holders of the three seats on the city commission.

Incumbents are: Eugene E. Harper, for place No. 1; C. N. von Roeder, for place No. 3; and Malven K. Stevenson, for place No. 5.

Absentee balloting in the election will begin March 18 and end April 3, W. W. Park, city attorney, said.

Mrs. Clara Jones, city secretary, said yesterday that no other persons had indicated interest in running for the offices.

All the present city commission and the mayor were elected in a special city election Dec. 16, 1952, after voters of Snyder had adopted a city charter by almost a two-to-one margin Oct. 21.

Two American Women Slain In Presbyterian Mission Compound

DEHRA DUN, India, March 7 (AP)—Two American women were killed by an unidentified intruder at the American Presbyterian Mission compound early today. Police said a servant was held for questioning.

The women — Mrs. Herbert Strickler, 59, wife of the executive secretary of Presbyterian missions in India, and Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett, 46, a school teacher, were beaten and stabbed. They were found in beds in separate rooms.

Mrs. Bennett, a widow, taught at Haddon Heights, N. J., High School until last January. She arrived in India only a week ago to teach languages at the Woodstock mission school operated by American and Canadian missionaries near Dehra Dun in the Himalayas, 100 miles north of New Delhi. The Presbyterian school is attended mostly by children of diplomats and other foreigners.

Mrs. Bennett was the daughter of Mrs. Helen Duff of Camden, N. J.

Danes Dismantle Mig To Move It; Poles Warn Of Reprisals

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, March 7 (AP) — The Russian-built MIG15 jet fighter landed by a Polish Air Force lieutenant on the Danish Baltic island of Bornholm was taken apart today and loaded on a ship bound for Copenhagen under armed naval escort. Allied air experts are making a thorough study of it. The plane would be a rare prize if it can be put together again and flown. A MIG15 found in Korea was not airworthy.

Heavily armed Danish soldiers kept away the enraged first secretary of the Polish legation here, Mieczyslaw Lakomy, who rushed to Bornholm to claim the plane. He was not even allowed to watch Danish Air Force specialists take it apart.

In Copenhagen, Polish Minister Stanislaw Kelles-Krauz continued to fire stiff notes at the Danish Foreign Office and ominously talked about "grave consequences" if the jet fighter is not returned to the Polish Air Force without further delay.

But the Foreign Office made it plain that the Polish government would have to remain patient for some little time yet. An official statement tonight said bluntly a thorough examination will be made of the craft.

It is the first MIG15 to fall undamaged into Western hands and is believed to be the latest of its type.

The pilot brought the plane down at Bornholm's tiny Roenne Airport last Thursday after streaking at 600 miles an hour from the Polish coast 60 miles away.

He claimed to be a political refugee seeking asylum. He is being questioned at Copenhagen police headquarters.

Dis-assembling of the plane was done behind a canvas screen erected at Roenne Airport. Barbed wire and soldiers with orders to shoot unauthorized persons guarded the operations.

To prevent Russian or Polish warships from capturing the prize at sea, the Danish destroyer Huitfeld was on hand to provide escort from Bornholm to Copenhagen.

Complying with a request from U. S. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's Supreme Allied headquarters that Denmark hang on to the jet fighter until its secrets have been ferreted out, the Foreign Office told Poland:

"The fact that the aircraft carried cannon with live ammunition as well as photographic equipment obliges Danish authorities to take into account the possibility that flight over Danish territory may have been carried out for illegal purposes.

"It will consequently be necessary to conduct a thorough examination to clarify the matter. The examination will involve not only painstaking interrogations of the pilot but also examination of the aircraft.

Declaring that the plane would have to be brought to Copenhagen because it could not take off at the tiny Bornholm Airport, the announcement added:

"It has been necessary to disassemble the aircraft."

On hearing this, Kelles-Krauz exclaimed:

"The position of the Danish government is outrageous. This is just a bad excuse for carrying out espionage. Grave consequences may flow from it."

Help From Mahon and Johnson Promised In Air Service Fight

Representatives of Snyder in its attempt to gain air service will leave at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for Washington, D. C., where they will present oral argument before the Civil Aeronautics Board Thursday.

James Rosser, attorney representing citizens here in the request, and John Blum, head of the county airport board, will arrive in Washington Tuesday, where they will confer with George Mahon of Lubbock, representative of this district.

Leon Huff, Chamber of Commerce manager, said he received a letter from Mahon yesterday morning stating that he had requested the CAB give him 10 minutes for his presentation in behalf of Snyder, in addition to the 10 minutes alloted Rosser and Blum to present Snyder's case.

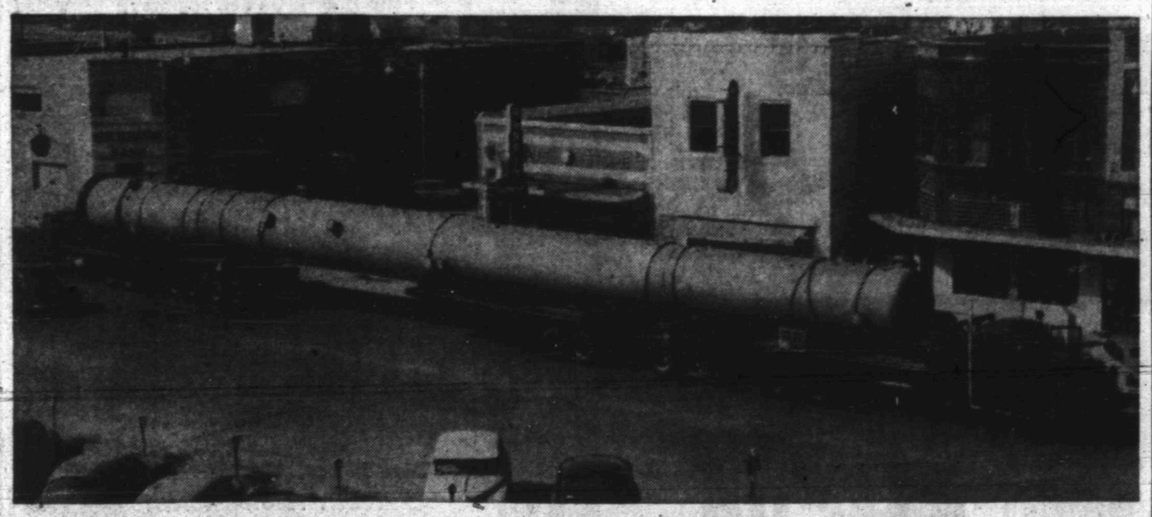
Huff said there is a possibility that Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas will also ask for 10 minutes to give his aid to Snyder. No other city requesting local service has more than 10 minutes to present its entire case.

At the hearing Snyder representatives and Mahon will attempt to show that the CAB examiner's recommendation for denial of service here because Snyder is "too small and does not have the potential" are in error, as well as to try to show that Pioneer Airlines does not give the service here that it claims.

The Snyder group, in its final brief submitted to the CAB, asked for two of Pioneer's six flights daily to Sweetwater, the nearest service point to Snyder.

Rosser and Blum will stay at the Washington Hotel during the week.

Huff, who was originally scheduled to go to Washington, will remain here for the meeting of the advisory committee of the Scurry Area Canyon Reef Operators Committee, which will be held here Thursday and Friday.



NEARLY BLOCK - LONG TOWER GOES THROUGH TOWN

Two 15-ton International Diesel trucks, plus four trailers, for a total of 52 wheels were required to transport the 123-foot gasoline processing tower through Snyder Friday morning. The Musslewhite Tucking Co. transported the tower from a Roscoe, Snyder & Pacific siding in North Snyder to the Reef Fields Gasoline Plant west of Vincent where it will be up-ended and used to process natural gasoline. The load weighed 271,000 pounds. Charles Musslewhite, owner of the trucking firm, said the highway department permitted transportation of the load, but required that the trucks never stop on the pavement. (Lee Watson Photograph)

Chinese Off To Stalin's Rites

TOKYO, Sunday, March 8 (AP)—Communist China hurried a high-ranking 18-member delegation headed by Premier Choh En-lai off to Moscow by plane Saturday while the Red Army in Korea pledged support to the Soviet Union in a "fight to final victory."

Gen. Peng Teh-huai, commander of 740,000 or more Chinese Red troops in Korea, messaged Moscow his men "in memory of great Stalin—will turn their sorrow into strength."

In an obviously directed statement, Peng declared the Chinese and Korean Red armies would "deal the enemy still heavier blows if he dare engage in any adventures," and threatened "ignominious defeat" to any Allied offensive.

Byrd Says Ike Must Act If Budget Is Going To Balance

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) said today President Eisenhower will have to take the lead in demanding that Congress keep taxes up and cut expenses if the new Republican administration is to balance the budget.

Byrd, who aided Eisenhower in the presidential campaign by refusing to support his Democratic opponent, said he is impressed with the sincerity of GOP officials in their desire to equalize expenditures and revenues.

But the Virginia senator said he doesn't believe the goal can be reached unless Congress continues present taxes in force for the year beginning next July 1, and cuts at least 7½ billion dollars from former President Truman's $78,600,000,000 spending program for that period.

"The only hope I can see of balancing the budget is to cut that amount and not reduce taxes," Byrd said. "And I doubt if it will be done unless President Eisenhower specifically asks Congress to keep taxes up and recommends specific budget cuts.

"I am satisfied the President is very anxious to balance the budget, because he feels that federal deficits feed inflation. But he must take hte leadershp in demanding that it be done, or it probably won't be done."

Byrd already has proposed that the excise tax on business scheduled to expire next July 1 be extended for another year and that a 10 per cent reduction in individual income taxes be postponed six months from its scheduled effective date next Jan. 1.

Both would take affirmative action by Congress. This action must start in the House, but there is strong demand there for letting the excise tax die and advancing the individual income tax slash six months to next July 1.

Eisenhower has said there ought not to be any tax cuts until expenditure reductions bring budget balancing in sight. But neither he nor any other influential Republican has gone as far as Byrd in urging continuance of present taxes until July 1, 1954.

Byrd said that in his judgment Eisenhower eventually is going to have to spell out in a message to Congress just what he proposes to do about taxes.

The Virginian said also that unless the President recommends specific cuts in the Truman budget, Congress will be working in the dark in attempting to make economies.

It is his understanding, Byrd said, that Budget Director Joseph Dodge has set a 10 per cent over all goal for reductions in the next fiscal year's outlays. This would total a little less than eight billion dollars.

Although Dodge set March 2 as a deadline for recommendations from department heads on the amount of cuts their own budgets will stand, the Defense Department is reported to have told him its figures can't be assembled for at least another 30 days.

Byrd said that obviously the biggest reduction—something around four billion dollars—would have to be made in military outlays.

"I think it can be done without impairing our defenses," he said. "There certainly ought to be some savings possible in personnel and by a general revamping of our defense system a lot can be saved."

Sooner Aggies Take Over In Fort Worth's Southwest Meet

Oklahoma A&M's balanced team, featuring effervescent Mickey Wilborn, who scored 16 points, and it's great Norwegian star, Fredrik Eckhoff, spreadeagled the field today in winning the university division of the Southwestern Recreation Track and Field Meet as 10 records fell and two others were tied in four classes.

The Oklahoma Aggies swarmed to a blistering total of 63 1-5 points to more than double the second-place team, defending champion Southern Methodist.

North Texas State easily repeated with the college division title. Southern Methodist was a pronounced victor in the college freshman class, Victoria rolled up 66½ points in outscoring everybody to win the junior college crown again, and Sunset of Dallas came in with the high school title.

Oklahoma A&M won 10 events and tied for two others in the 14 events run off. Only in one—the shot put—were the ambitious Aggies shut out.

The Aggies chipped in with three of the ten records. One of them was by their Swedish freshman star, Sture Landquist, who ran the mile in 4:23.7 in the college freshman and Sunset of Dallas come in with mark of 4:28.4 set by Javier Montes of Texas Western in 1949.

Landquist had been expected to set an overall meet record, which would have meant doing the mile in under 4:14.2 but his coach, Ralph Higgins, ran him under wrap with orders not to go faster than 4:25. Landquist suffered a leg cramp in a workout Wednesday and Higgins did not think he was in proper condition to let loose.

Eckhoff did the mile in 4:17.2 in the university class to better the old record of 4:20.3 set by Jim Brown of Arkansas in 1951. Then Bill Heard ripped off a 1:56.4 half-mile to smash the record of 1:57.1 set by Bill Lyda of Oklahoma in 1941.

Wilborn won borth hurdles, tied for first in the high jump and took third in the broad jump to be high point man of the university class, the most feared long distance hitters in the league.

Charles Teague of North Texas State copped the 100 and 220-yard dashes in leading North Texas State to its smashing victory. His 10 points made the North Texas State total 60½. Abilene Christian was a poor second with 28.

Teague also set one record, speeding the 220 in 21 flat to better the mark of 21.2 set by Ed Rogers of North Texas State in 1940.

Jerry House won the 120-yard high hurdles and the broad jump to lead Victoria to its heavy victory in the junior college class. Tarleton State was second with 28½.

Bill Curtis of Texas Christian won the high hurdles and finished second in both the low hurdles and 100-yard dash for 11 points as high man of the college freshman class but it did little good. Southern Methodist romped to 39½ points in winning this division title. Baylor was second with 21.

Eddie Southern of Sunset took the high and low hurdles both in sparking his team to victory in the high school division. Sunset had 18 points. DeLeon, on the strength of first places in both weight events by Herman Johnson, and Capitol Hill of Oklahoma City, tied for second with 10 points each.

Harold Webb Acquires Franchise At Lamesa

ABILENE, March 7 (AP)—Longhorn League President Hal Sayles announced today that Harold Webb, Fort Worth, veteran minor league baseball manager and club owner, had acquired the Lamesa franchise.

Webb operated the Midland club in the Longhorn League from 1947 until the middle of the 1951 season, when he sold his interests there.

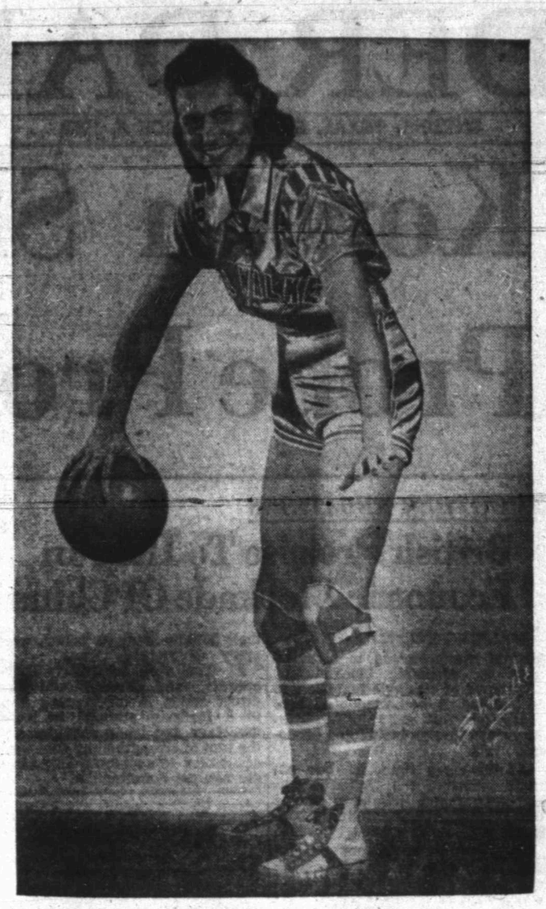
Snead Leading Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, La., March 7 (AP)—Sammy snead, past master of the long irons, slammed away with his woods for a five-under-par 67 today to take over undisputed lead at the three-quarter mark of the $10,000 Baton Rouge Open Golf tournament.

A 215-yard blast with a number three wood landed the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., veteran within an eagle putt of the pin on the ninth hole, the turning point in the scorching round which gave him a 54-hole total of 204.

A gallery of more than 4,000 trouped over the 6,411-yard Baton Rouge country club course, cheering Snead, the pre-tourney favorite.

Snead added three birdies to his eagle on the ninth hole for a five-stroke lead over John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., Fred Wampler of Indianapolis and Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla.



Hazel Walker, all-American in professional sports 11 times, will bring her Arkansas Travelers to Snyder March 20 to meet the the Snyder All-Stars. Miss Walker will present a free throw exhibition at halftime.

HSU Team Leaves To Play In NCAA Game

ABILENE, March 7 (AP)—The Hardin-Simmons University basketball team leaves here by plane Sunday for California. The Cowboys play Santa Clara Tuesday night in a special NCAA game at Palo Alto.

H-SU defeated Arizona, 68-61, here last night in a special play-off for the right to represent the Border Conference in the NCAA Tournament. Hardin-Simmons and Arizona shared the conference crown.

Lady Pros To Return Here On March 20

Women versus men will be featured on the basketball court here March 20 when Hazel Walker will bring her professional Arkansas Travelers squad to Snyder.

The team will meet the Snyder all-stars, the top players in the city cage league.

The tilt will be sponsored here by the DeMolays. Tickets, priced at $1 and 50 cents, are now on sale at the West Texas State Bank and are available from members of the DeMolays or Quarterback Club.

This will be the second time Miss Walker has brought her team here. She had her squad in Snyder two years ago under DeMolay sponsorship.

The squad of six girls averages 5-11 in heights and 20 years in age. Their average weight is 150. Tallest of the group is Georgia Mullins, who has been a member of the team since it was organized in 1949. She stands 6 feet tall, and is known for her long set shots.

Frances Garroutte, named to the all-American team once and the most outstanding player in women's professional sports in 1951-52, averages more than 45 points per game. She is 5-11.

Others on the team are Pat Johnson, 5-11; Ethel LaNoue, 5-8; Jo Byers, 5-8; and Martha Evans, 5-11.

Miss Walker, called the world's free throw champion, challenges anyone to compete with her during halftime in a free throw exhibition. She tosses them while standing, kneeling, or sitting, and has not been defeated in six years.

National Guard Holds Lead In City League Basketball Play

National Guard remained undefeated and the leader in the city basketball league Friday night by edging out C & S Sporting Goods 55-52.

It was the closest match of the league. The clock ran out on C&S, which has been as much as 15 points behind and threatened to overtake the Guard team several times during the last quarter.

The two teams tied the game up twice very early in the first period, then National Guard moved out in front, leading 20-13 at the end of that quarter, 29-21 at the half, and 46-33 as the third period ended.

C & S led by Jimmy Williams and Bill Boyd, picked up its pace as the final period opened and almost took the game away from the league leaders. Williams scored 16 points in the game, and Boyd tallied 15.

Leading the Guard squad were Charlie White with 16 and Robert Minton with 14.

Chuck Wagon, which had held a fourth place spot,placed itself in a tie with C & S for second place by dropping winless Wade Pipkin Motors 63-56.

That game was another close one, tied up five times in the first two periods. Chuck Wagon was ahead 14-12 at the end of the first quarter,, 24-21 at the half and 47-34 as the fourth period opened.

The Chuck Wagon squad spread scoring out, with each team member scoring from 11 to 14 points, except two who were inactive most of the game. Bill Zimmerman paced the Pipkin squad with 15, followed by Douglas Ayers and Norman Carter with 10.

Tomorrow night, Chuck Wagon will attempt to knock National Guard out of the undefeated class in a 7 o'clock game, while the Pipkin five will try to gain its first win in an 8:30 o'clock tilt with C & S

Bowie Cops Its 3rd State Championship

AUSTIN, March 7 (AP)—Bowie today pulled the unprecedented feat of winning its third consecutive state high school basketball championship, defeating Dumas 81-44 in the Class AA finals.

No other school in the 33-year history of the state high school tournament has won over two in a row. Bowie has completed an undefeated year with 34 straight victories.

Temple Tucker, 6 feet 9½ inch center, fouled out on the verge of breaking his own individual tournament record of 30 points in a championship game.

Tucker had chalked up 29 points before leaving early in the fourth period.

But other records went by the boards. Bowie's total of 81 points tops the previous tournament high of 77, set by Amarillo in 1947. It also wiped out the existing team total in tournament championship play as well as the same two records in conference 2-A competition.

Bowie won the Class A title in 1951, and the AA title last year. In a contest between the top teams in divisions last year, Bowie lost to Dimmitt, the Class A champion, 58-54. Division play was dropped this year.

But in their assigned classification, the Bowie lads nailed the title down for three straight years.

White Oak easily rode over Denver City 69-53 to take the conference A title in a game that also set some scoring records.

Tonight the 33d annual Schoolboy Championship Tourney will end with South Park of Beaumont meeting Edison of San Antonio for the AAA title (7:50 p. m.) and Pampa and Austin tangling for the AAAA championship (9:10 p.m.)

Cayuga carried the 1953 Class B title back to the banks of the Trinity, unseating last year's champion, Big Sandy, 50-46.

A capacity crowd of 7,500 saw White Oak whip the boys from the far western plains. Denver City was within one point of the winners at the end of the first quarter, but after that White Oak pulled steadily ahead.

Dean Morrison of White Oak was high scorer with 21. Charley Ward was Denver City's high man with 14.

White Oak's 69 points was a new record for Class A in one game, topping the 62 made by Dimmitt last year. The game aggregate of 122 exceeded the previous high of 109 in the conference. Denver City's score of 53 was a new mark for the loser in a championship game.

Total Tax Payments Of County 91 Per Cent Of Assessments

Collections of taxes to date by all school districts in the county, by the city, and by the county and state tax assessor - collector's office here show an average of more than 91 per cent of the current assessments has been paid.

Jim Ikard, county assessor-collector, said approximately 96 per cent of all assessments of county and state taxes had been paid by the first of this month. "In view of two years of drought, the taxpayers should be commended for their promptness in making early payment of their assessments," he said.

Ikard's figures show a grand total of collections from Oct. 1 till Feb. 1 of $1,857,184.39, including poll taxes and some delinquent taxes. By months, these collections have been $1,264,185.41 for October, $28,940.20 for November, $30,025.76 for December, and $50,424.38 for January. Figures are not checked yet for February, but the total of February's brings the grand total of current taxes to more than 96 per cent of the assessment. The rate of assessment for both county and state taxes is $1.52 per each $100 of property valuation. Forty - two cents of this is state tax rate. The assessment is $1,323,262 in county taxes and $499,159.74 in state taxes for a grand total of $1,822,422.08. Collections through January, including delinquent and poll taxes, exceeds the current tax assessment figure.

Ikard, also collector for school districts except the Snyder district reported collections of the districts as follows:

Hermleigh, $27,221.70, which is 92 per cent of the $29,369.51 assessment at a rate of $1.50.

Fluvanna, $10,019.87, which is 94 per cent of the $10,532.80 assessment at a $1 rate.

Ira, $33,224.17, which is 82 per cent of the $40,324.80 assessment on a $1 rate.

Scurry County's portion of Hobbs, $1,955.38, which is 87 per cent of the assessment in this county of $2,231.75 on a $1.50 rate.

Nearly 98 per cent of the Snyder school district's assessment has been paid, according to Hardy Scarborough, assessor, who reported collections totaling $1,250,953.99 as of March 1. The system's property valuation totals $127,130,000, and the tax rate is $1.

The city's collections to date have amounted to 89.463 per cent of the assessment, according to J. D. Scott, assessor - collector. Valuation is $11,054,100, and the rate is $1.50, making the assessment $165,811.50. Net collections to date were $146,021.73, but discounts allowed for early payments were $3,395.85, leaving $144,946.59, of which delinquent taxes paid totaled $915.15 with penalty and interest rates of a total of $159.99.

Pvt. Harrell D. Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Henderson of Hermleigh is serving with the anti-aircraft artillery at Fort Bliss. Hendesron was inducted Jan. 28. His wife, the former Virginia Lou Taylor, is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Taylor of Sweetwater.

Strey will meet with the board, other real estate dealers, bankers, and loan and title firm representatives at a noon luncheon Tuesday at Ballard's Cafe.

PAD Only Acts In Emergency Cases For Tubing And Casing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Uncertainty hovers over the Petroleum Administration for Defense (PAD) pending definite word from the Eisenhower administration as to the agency's future.

The question is whether PAD will be in business after June 30 when the Defense Production Act, under which the PAD was set up, expires.

Meanwhile, the agency is largely restricting its activities to emergency problems.

Applications for emergency allocations of casing and tubing are being processed as received.

Applications for third quarter casing, tubing and drill pipe are still coming in but are not being processed. They are simply being put on file for action if Congress sees fit to continue such allocation controls beyond June 30.

Although there's no official word on the subject, PAD authorities suggest that operators file applications for casing, tubing and drill pipe for the three-month period beginning July 1 even though the effort may turn out to be meaningless.

The PAD has announced a March 15 deadline for the filing of special applications for drill pipe; applications for line pipe still are being received and put on file, even though the deadline for those requests was supposed to have been March 1.

The question of whether the states or the federal government own offshore oil lands is heading for the real showdown.

Both Senate and House committees have completed hearings on the subject and are expected to approve, before the end of next week, some form of legislation to give the states clear title to at least a portion of the submerged oil lands.

Numerous oil industry representatives, especially from major companies, attended virtually all sessions of the hearings, which consumed most of three weeks. They have carefully avoided comments which would tend to line them up with any particular legislation or with either side of the controversy.

A comprehensive summary of the nation's petroleum picture, along with lavish praise for the men who have directed the oil industry's growth, was given in the House this week by Rep. Lyle (D) of Corpus Christi.

Choosing Monday because it was the 117th anniversary of Texas' declaration of independence from Mexico, Lyle described the part of the oil and gas industry in the economic growth and welfare of Texas and the nation.

Oil actually is being produced in 27 states, Lyle said, adding,

"Leasing and geological and geophysical work is currently being conducted in practically every state in the union.

"Almost 14 per cent or more of the total land area of the United States, more than 275 million acres, is now under lease for oil and gas. In practical terms, such activity translates into millions of dollars, being paid to hundreds of thousands of families and land-owners each year throughout the United States for such leases and royalty payments.

"All predictions to the contrary, the oil industry is today on the threshold of new technical and scientific advances and discoveries which will make its past performances appear amateurish."

Lyle declared a minimum of federal regulation would be the best assurance of continued progress.

"This may well be the atomic age," he continued, "but it is certain that until it has advanced considerably, petroleum is the one great resource upon which we must depend for progress and development in peace, and for survival and victory in war. The welfare of the industry has merged with the welfare of the nation."

Engineers Find Way To Move Thick Oil Through Pipeline

LOS ANGELES, March 7 (AP)—The persuasive pipe line from the reluctant oil field is being enlarged again.

This may sound like something out of Alice in Wonderland. In a way, it is. It concerns a rich oil field which was useless because the oil was too heavy and to sticky to flow.

Then, two years ago, General Petroleum Co. devised a special pipe line capable of getting this thick but valuable crude to tankers and refineries.

Today 25,000 barrels of oil move out of the reluctant field every 24 hours. And the company has announced expansion now under way will boost this volume to 30,000.

HEAT PLUS CUTTER

The field is located at San Ardo, Calif. Geologists who located the field in 1947 estimated it held 200 million barrels of peculiarly viscous crude oil.

The trick was moving this oil cheaply enough to make the field economically valuable. Overland transportation was out of the question. A pipe line was the only way. But how to make the oil fluid enough to be pumped 42 miles?

The answer was heat and the introduction of cutter stock, a petroleum "thinner" which could be removed at the refinery. But the engineers didn't find this answer until 1951, after 65 tries.

By that time, steel was in short supply. New pipe for a line to the tanker anchorage at Estero Bay simply wasn't available.

LINE REMEMBERED

Somebody remembered an abandoned pipe line, laid 40 years ago across the Mojave Desert from Lebec to Mojave. This eight-inch line had been laid to refuel freight trains at Mojave.

Moving the pipe line cost two million dollars.

Pumps also were salvaged from the line and these now are operating at three stations along the 42 miles between San Ardo and the sea. There are heaters at each of these stations. Steam from the pumps is carried to jackets around the pipe line, and this heat—along with the cutter—keeps San Ardo's sticky oil flowing.

Mrs. John Y. Battenfield is pictured with three pieces of sculpture recently received from her father in France. Other items in the Snyder household are two pictures from Mexico she bought there about five years ago. Her family teases her about turning their home into the Louvre. Works Of Art Sent Here From France By Snyderite's Father

Mrs. John Y. Battenfield recently received a belated Christmas gift of 3,100 pounds of marble from France that she added to other collections in their home on Peach Street.

The marble, in the form of three statues, a cocktail table and an ash tray, was sculptured by Mrs. Battenfield's father, Emil Patras, who lives in Cannes, France, on the Riveria. Also included in the collection are three paintings, two of them done by a well-established artist in that country, who is a friend of her father.

The low table is made of Portuguese marble which is reddish-brown in color with streaks of black and white. It was designed by her father, who aside from being an outstanding French sculptor, is also a marble manufacturer. Mrs. Battenfield looks forward to having a Texas home with a Riveria room to put the table in, although she said sandstorms made the idea impractical.

On the table is a Grecian head made of pink marble that is found in southern France. Of course, there was no model for the head although her father prefers working from life, Mrs. Battenfield said. Another item in the collection is a goddess without arms or legs made of simular pink marble. The latter has a high luster in contrast to the rougher finish of the head.

The third statue is made of lime marble with an extremely rough surface. Called "Inspiration of the Sun" it portrays a young girl standing with her face tilted to look at the early dawn.

Mrs. Battenfield, an only child in her family, said she never learned to sculpture well beeause she was too practical, not an idealist like her father. "I think they live in a dream world," she explained. She has done some jewelry and clothing designing but hopes to do more later. At present she is "busy with the babies," she said.

The Snyder woman was amazed to see the abundance of granite in Texas. The rock is scarce in France and must be imported from Finland. She said it is startling to see part of a building like the new high school constructed of the material.

Her father was called one of the youngest sculptors in France, Mrs. Battenfield said. He has been working at his art for about 35 years and has the 30-foot-tall statue of the Virgin Mary at Cannes to his credit. The statue was made in gratitude to God for the city's being spared from bombs during the invasion, she said. Joseph Cardinal Spellman attended the dedication of the statue.

Mr. Patras has also done items for Aga Kahn's house and designed all the marble for the Coty house on the Riveria. Mrs. Battenfield anticipates a visit from her parents in June or July.

The paintings included are two done by G. Trossard who is a "Grand Prix de Rome" which is simular to American honorary degrees. One of the scenes was of Cap Ferrat close to her home town, and the other was of Grande, a Spanish city. Both pictures were painted last year. The third oil by Richard was also purchased at a gallery. Mrs. Battenfield said none of her family appreciated modern art.

Although it took only a week for the furnishings to reach New York, governmental red tape held them in customs for about three months. She remembers one comment from drayment confronted with the number of boxes: "you know, I believe they really did send you the Statue of Liberty."

The family also has a set of books previously sent by the Patras that date back 200 years. They include works by Voltaire, Racine, Hugo and Saint-Simon, all of which are written in French.

Mrs. Battenfields husband is a doctor here.

New Records Top Sales Lists In Snyder Stores During Week

New recordings hit record racks in Snyder last week although some of the old favorites are still holding their own.

Mercury has come out with three new records, one done by a relative unknown, Artie Wayne, who sings with a studio type orchestra, "Rachel" as sung by Wayne is a dramatic "Flight of the Wild Goose," kind of melody. With Tony Lavello's orchestra backing him Wayne's voice takes crescendos and even breaks to shout the name once. Tympanies and violins are used extensively with one last flourish being tacked on concert style.

The opposite side of the disc is devoted to a new "Tonight or Never" which is along the Tony Martin line. Lavello uses the same dramatic arrangement which is better to listen to than dance to.

Georgia Gibbs has also put out a new record. The selling side is a hillbilly blues number, "Seven Lonely Days," in which "Her Nibbs" and the Yale Brothers clap hands and bump along in the true Gibbs style. Glenn Osser's orchestra follows them all the way with guitars.

On the other side the songstress does a slow "If You Take My Heart Away" with a more serious orchestra and smoother beat.

"Gomen Nasai" written by a GI overseas is the third best seller candidate recently waxed. The Capitol recording by its author, Richard Bowers, is a top record over the nation, however, Eddy Howard has also turned out a good interpretation. Howard gives it only a slight oriental beat, keeping it slow for dancing.

The opposite side, "Someone to Kiss Your Tears Away," has the makings of a top melody, regardless of the corny title.

Favorites picked by local buyers last week are:

"Till I Waltz Again With You," Teresa Brewer.

"Tell Me You're Mine," The Gaylords.

"Oh, Happy Day," The Four Knights.

"Kaw-Liga," Hank Williams.

"No Help Wanted," the Carlisles.

"Doggie in the Window," Patti Page.

"Wishing Ring," Joni James.

"Side by Side," Les Paul and Mary Ford.

"A Fool Such as I," Tommy Edwards.

"Hold Me, Thrill Me, Kiss Me," Karen Chandler.

Zukor Takes Public Advice, Not Yes Man's

HOLLYWOOD, March 7 (AP) — Adolph Zukor, who this year at 80 is celebrating his 50th anniversary in films, has a simple explanation why he's still got the jump on some of the so-called boy wonders of the movie industry.

"I have never taken the advice of yes men," said the pioneer moviemaker.

That makes him unique among Hollywood brass, most of whom are surrounded by hordes of reassurers. Some even have psychiatrists on the payroll.

Not Adolph Zukor. He says the public is the only adviser he has had in 50 years of making movies.

"Every picture Paramount sneak - previewed," said the little giant of the industry, "found me standing up front with my back to the screen. I was watching the faces of the fans. Their reactions told me all I wanted to know The public hasn't been wrong yet."

Zukor's forward thinking never was better accented than during the current Hollywood upheaval over three-dimensional movies.

A few weeks after "Sangaree" was started, the studio decided it had better climb on the 3-D bandwagon. All that entailed at Paramount was the dusting off of the Paravision process that Zukor had fostered 17 years ago. The cameras were taken out of a storeroom and put to work without any changes.

Little Battle Strategy From Civil War Book

(THE PROUD RETREAT, by Clifford Dowdy, Doubleday and Co., Garden City, $3.50.)

Clifford Dowdy has put another novel on the shelf reserved for tales of the war between the states, but this time he concerns himself with personal lives instead of battle strategies.

Near the first of the book Richmond falls into Yankee hands, starting the Rebels on "The Proud Retreat" to the deep South. Gallant Francis Malvern, the Raider, is as Colonel Malvern, the Raider, is appointed to help guard the confederate treasure. It is during the journey that he again meets the since married darling of Richmond society, Delcie Rawls.

In the golden days before the war the two had often been termed as 'the perfect match', but Delcie preferred, instead to marry money in the form of the owner of one of the largest plantations. It was months later before rumors of her troubles with the "big blond bruite of a man" leaked out. At this point Malvern's travels carried him through Abbeville where Delcie was waiting out the war while her husband was in service. From there the tale slowly unwinds in a poignant love story.

The reader gets short glimpses of real personalities in the Civil War, the most notable of whom are the Jefferson Davises. Also included are officers in the Southern group who deserted for personal reasons.

The 318-page novel is Dowdy's niuth book. He was also the author of "Jasmine Street," "Weep For My Brother," "Experiment in Rebellion," "Where My Love Sleeps," "Bugles Blow No More," "Gable's Hundred," "Sing For A Penny," and "Tidewater." A descendant from early Virginia settlers, Dowdy now lives with his wife and daughter in Richmond just two blocks from the Jefferson Davis memorial.

Bobby May will play the part of Jeff, Darrell Green, Judd; Marilyn Thomas, Mattie; Carolyn Holley, Catherine; Jenny Cargile, Jessica, Sandra Cooper, Josie, and Bryan Boss, Rev. Andrews, Joe Cargile, will be stage manager and assistant director of the production.

The 40-minute play will be presented in Abilene High School April 10 at 7:30 o'clock.

Completion of the building is expected this month. (Lee Watson Photograph)

Completion Of High School Is Expected Soon

Snyder's new $2½ million high school building in the Towle Place addition in the southwest part of town is 98 per cent completed, according to R. H. Mitchell, superintendent for the contractor, R. F. Ball Construction Co. of Houston.

"We are hoping to complete the project except for very minor details by the end of this month," Mitchell said, adding that much of the plant's fixtures, furniture, and equipment has already been installed and the rest may be moved in this month. All necessary equipment and furniture has been purchased.

Among outstanding features of the two-story building are its air-conditioned and automatically heated auditorium with upholstered seats for 1,058 persons, dressing rooms for actors, each room having a separate rest room, dressing tables with mirrors lining the walls; a gymnasium for games and activities, having six basketball baskets and an electric scoreboard operated from a press box in the grandstand which will seat about 900, and portable bleachers for from 500 to 600 that may be set up on one side of the gym; a band room surrounded by smaller soundproof practice rooms; and another gymnasium for the girls' physical education classes.

The plant, which was begun in the spring of 1951, also has a separate shop building. At the main entrance to the high school building is the auditorium's large lobby with red marble walls and indoor flower beds.

New Device To Go On Market

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP) — A revolutionary, bug-sied crystal device called the transistor is beginning to move out of the laboratory into commercial use and soon may appear in many of the electronic products you buy.

First announced as a lab development nearly five years ago as a device performing the functions of a vacuum tube, the transistor in the past few weeks has been incorporated in new lightweight hearing aids that go for months without battery changes.

The military services are taking a large percentage of the limited output of transistors for a number of uses, mostly classified, that result in more compact, more rugged, more reliable equipment.

But—the more cautious in the industry say that mass production of the transistor still hasn't been licked and that until the problem is solved, its use will remain limited. The output, nevertheless, is many fold what it was a year ago and is running into thousands a day.

The transistor is a radical departure from the conventional tube that amplifies through use of heated filaments in a vacuum. The transistor uses a microscopic speck of the rare metal germanium for amplification.

While the transistor never is expected to replace the vacuum tube in all its uses, it can do many of the things a vacuum tube can do, and some of them better.

Fairbanks Rising In British Social Circles, Hosts Queen

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—How do you get a Queen of England to drop in for dinner at your place?

American film star Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and his dark-haired Virginia-born wife Mary Lee know the answer to that one—but they aren't telling.

The Fairbanks' made British social history a few weeks back by throwing a dinner party for Queen Elizabeth, her husband and the Duke of Edinburgh, and Princess Margaret at the plush London mansion they bought from the Duke of Leeds two years ago.

It was the first recorded time that a British monarch has stepped outside court circles to dine and set the seal on the social career which the Fairbanks' have been building in postwar London.

It's a career which brought them on chatting terms with royalty, got them week-end invitations to Coppins, the country home of the Queen's aunt, the glamorous Duchess of Kent, and has taken them on the rounds of London's night spots and society dances.

It's a life that glitters—but takes a back seat with Fairbanks when real work comes along.

To Fairbanks—film star, unofficial diplomat and philanthropist—real work means a daily grind of business conferences, transatlantic telephone calls and hasty lunches snatched at an office desk.

That doesn't bring much glamor, but it has brought him a British knighthood, a chest sprinkled with decorations from Europe, Latin America and Korea, and the unofficial title of America's ambassador of good will.

The decorations have followed naturally in the wake of Fairbanks' work for better international relations round the world. For years after the war he was chairman of "CARE" Committee. At the moment he is in charge of American relief for Korea.

The State Department and the U. S. Embassy in London found his personality works like a charm in unravelling knotty problems as far afield as Belgium and Brazil. The U. S. Navy has used him as a sort of American Prince Philip in showing-the-flag visits to America's Western allies.

To Fairbanks, his main work—"one of the most worthwhile things in life" is how he described it—is helping Anglo-American relations.

"I believe in Britain", he said once, "and I believe that my coming here often and living and working with you I can get a slant on how you are thinking."

This belief—a three-page citation called it "untiring work on behalf of Anglo-American amity"—brought him his knighthood six years ago, when King George VI made him a knight commander of the British Empire.

He doesn't get the "sir" handle, however, because as an American citizen the title is honorary.

Four Dead In Smash

AMARILLO, March 7 (AP)—Four persons were killed near here today when two cars smashed head-on with an impact that virtually welded them together.

Dedication Ceremonies And Open House At New School In Gail Today

A rural school system that has become a model for other systems throughout the nation is to be formally dedicated this afternoon at Gail.

A galaxy of educators as well as representatives of most neighboring school districts and citizens of Borden County are expected to gather at the new Borden County Rural High School at 3 o'clock this afternoon for the ceremonies and an open house at 4 o'clock.

Today's activities highlight much work on the part of the citizens of the sparcely settled expanse of rangeland. The school board was organized in June 1951.

Dr. Bascom B. Hayes, director of administrative services of the Texas Education Agency of Austin will be the featured speaker at the dedication today.

The school board in planning and developing a model educational system in Borden County in its three-year program has been aided and directed by some of the leading educators of the state. A board of consultants has met often with the Borden group to plan the projects and work out financing, which at first appeared to be the biggest hurdle to overcome. However, discovery of oil in the county has eased this condition considerably.

BOOKLET PRINTED

The Borden board is one of the few rural school systems in this country which has a printed booklet containing the organization and policies of the board of education. Many other school boards over the state are adopting similar forms of stating the policies of the boards.

The board of education in Borden County is composed of seven members: Bert Dennis, president, Melton Davis, vice president, H. D. Williams, secretary, Frank Beavers, Roy Burdett, E. S. Kingston, and J. C. Shepperd.

The consultants who have worked with the board since its organization and continue to act as advisors to the school board and administrators are all members of the faculty of Texas Technological College. They are: Dr. John S. Carroll, head of the department of education, Dr. Ted E. Edwards, and Horace C. Hartsell, and Miss Katherine Evans, professors of education at Texas Tech.

Today the school building at Gail and the three elementary schools at far - flung corners of the county are objects of pride to the school board and people of the county.

About $700,000 has been spent in building and equipping the four schools. About $110,000 was also spent for construction of 11 residences for teachers in the system. Seven of the residences form the main residential area in Gail. The other four are at the communities of Glenn Creek, Plains, and Murphy, where the other new school buildings are located.

TWO BOND ISSUES

To finance this building program the citizens of Borden County voted two bond issues, one for $500,000, June 30, 1951, and another for $150,000, May 31, 1952. More than 80 per cent of the voters in both elections supported the bond issues, as they had for consolidating the four school districts into one.

The schools at Plains, Murphy and Gail all have cafeterias and auditorium facilities.

A complete vocational work shop, home economics department, library, and gymasium are provided in the high school building at Gail.

Dr. Carrol, one of the members of the consultant team, said that the Borden County Rural High school is one of the most modern and best arranged rural high schools in the state.

"It is so progressive and so well planned and operated that the Texas Education System is using it as a model system, from which ideas to better all rural school systems are being obtained," he said.

With future growth in mind the high school provides for more space than is needed.

It was built to accomodate more than 100 students and has only 35 now.

S. P. Stewart, superintendent, said that there were 30 students enrolled in the sixth and seventh grades, and there are 124 pupils in the first six grades of the four schools in the system.

"Growth of the county's population is expected to fill the building to capacity within a few years, but we can not forsee any over crowding for many years," Stewart said.

Probably transportation of students to the school is its biggest problem now.

POPULATION SMALL

Three conventional school buses, two Jeep station wagons with four-wheel drive, and two Chevrolet station wagons are used to cover the 857 square miles of territory covered by the school system. The school district covers more than 90 per cent of the 914 square miles of territory in the county which has a population of only 1,106 persons—1.2 persons per square mile.

Organization of the Borden County school district involved an extensive round up of pupils in the county. Prior to the organization of the district centered at Gail, the pupils of the county had been sent to schools at Snyder, Coahoma, Ackerly, Lamesa, and O'Donnell, all located well outside Borden County. Borden County's school district had furnished busses and sent their pupils to the other schools.

"At first some of the high school students didn't want to come back to Gail for schooling but now they all say they much prefer Gail to the other schools they did attend," Stewart said.

But rounding up the children from over the county is still a big daily problem. The busses serve the dual purpose of taking children to the out-lying elementary schools

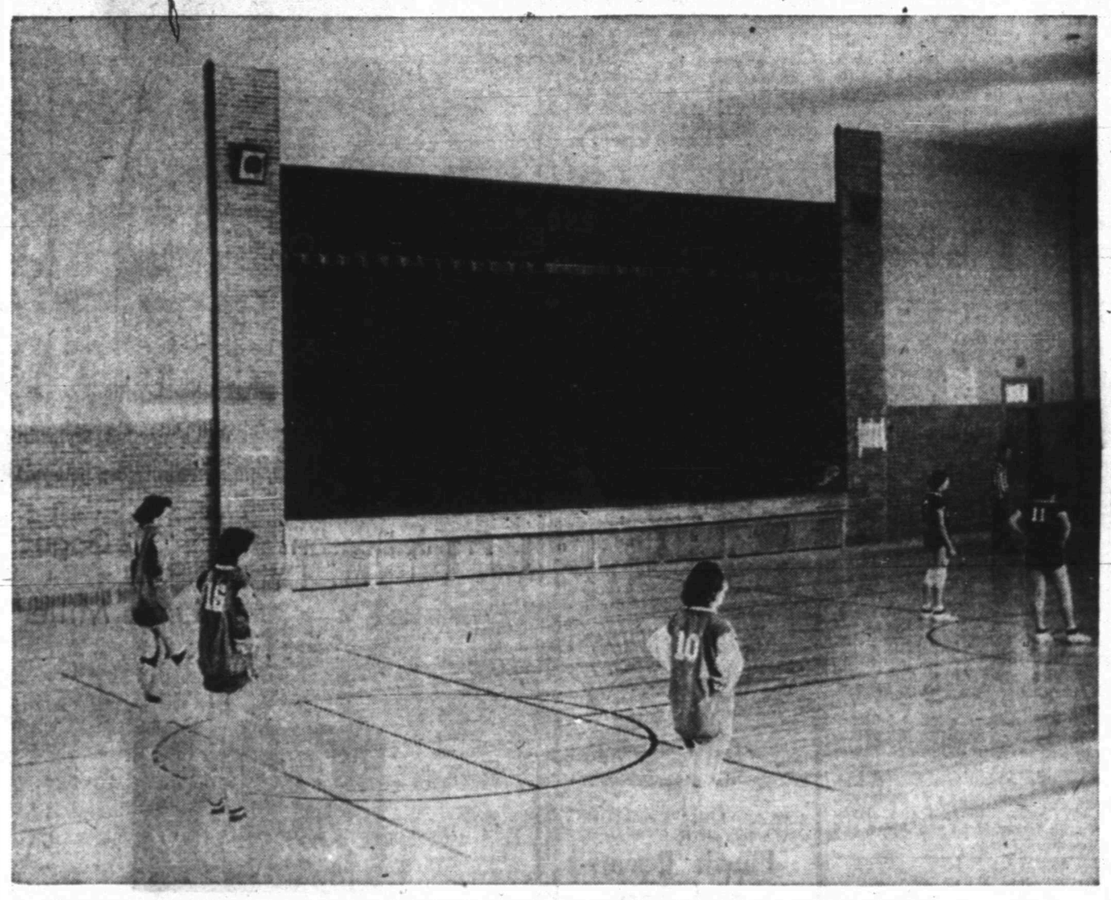
Mrs. C. R. Porter, first grade teacher in the Gail school, is shown above with part of the pupils in her classroom. First graders in the Borden County rural school system are also studying in new school buildings at the communities of Murphy, Plains, and Miller.

New brick school buildings have replaced old and inadequate wooden structures in the three outlying districts. The new schools at Plains and Murphy both have cafeterias and auditoriums.



Shown on the far side of the gymnasium floor in the above picture is the stage which makes the gym double as an auditorium which could seat more than 1,000 persons at the new school at Gail. About 400 persons can be seated in the spectator section of the gymnasium while sporting events are under way. A complete home economics department and a fully equipped vocational workshop are provided in the new Borden County Rural High School. (Lee Watson Photographs)

Called one of the most modern and complete rural school libraries in the Southwest, this picture shows some of the $10,000 worth of books, periodicals, and daily newspapers in the library. From left the library staff is: Margaret Sexton, Mrs. H. H. McBride, Travis A. Tyer, librarian, Barbara Miller, and Nancy Telchik. Misses Sexton, Miller, and Telchik, are students of the high school who supplement their studies with tours of duty in the library.

Visual education equipment, an important factor in the design and planning of the new Borden County school system, is being inspected above by S. P. Stewart, center, superintendent, and two members of a team of consultants who have worked on the planning, construction, and will work with the school in its educational program in the future. Left is Dr. Ted E. Edwards, a professor of education, and right is Dr. John S. Carroll, head of the department of education, both of Texas Technological College.

Herbert Sondheim's little black dress expresses a casual elegance of line. The uneven flange line of the yolk is repeated in the dropped shoulder line giving a gauntlet-like look to the sleeves. And the beautifully fitted waist eases into gracefully full pockets that add a little bulk to the hips. The skirt whittles down ending in a small back pleat. Pattern No. 1118 is available in standard pattern sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 12 requires four and one-eighths yards of 39-inch material. Sondheim made the first model in crepe, but lightweight wool, faille, linen, shantung or silk would be equally good. Pattern No. 1020 is a tailored down dress for spring from the House of Charles Nudelman. The stress is on the simplicity of line, giving new meanings to fabrics, textures and colors. The tabbed Xs mark the only detail in front and the back-buttoned bodice is gently moulded to follow the natural shoulder line. A four-gore skirt makes for easy walking and the restrained flare below the hips makes for comfort as well as style. The pattern is available in standard pattern sizes of 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 12 requires two and one-fourth yards of 54-inch material. Originally made in lightweight wool, a navy sheer wool jersey, linen or rayon faille are also recommended. To order either pattern send $1 to Spadea Snydicate, Inc., P. O. Box No. 535, Dept. 163, G. P. O., New York, N. Y. One week delivery. For air mail handling enclose 25 cents.

Twentieth Century Program Given On Greece's Heritage

Mrs. J. Nelson Dunn was hostess for the Twentieth Century Study Club Tuesday with Mrs. Ola B. Leath as program leader.

Greece was the topic discussed. The leader told members that the early glory of Greece outshines its present day importance. She reminded them that for 2,000 years the civilization of the western world has been based on the culture and traditions of ancient Greece.

Democratic government has its root in the early Greek idea of government by the citizens, she said. Modern science, also, has developed from Greek thought and understanding, she continued.

"The mind of the world has been enriched by the achievements in poetry, drama and philosophy," she said, noting that Greek writers were as gifted as the sculptors and architects.

Mrs. H. J. Brice said Greece is slightly larger than the state of New York. There are about four times as many persons per square mile in Greece than in the United States, she said. Greeks have always been seafaring people, through Greece is chiefly an agricultural country, she said. Only one acre in four can be cultivated, she continued.

'Scars of the last two wars are disappearing with new buildings and the planting of many flowers,' she told.

Roll call was answered by 13 members giving "Topics of Today." Mrs. Bessie Perkins was a guest. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

on their out bound runs and bring more children to Gail on the return, Stewart said.

If rounding up the students was a big problem, rounding up teachers for the system was an even bigger problem.

"There was no inticement for teachers here, so we had to furnish housing, and we built 11 modern one-family residences for them, seven at Gail and the others at the other schools," Stewart said.

The pay scale was raised to the Gilmer - Aikin standard set for the state, plus special considerations for most of the teachers.

"With the new incentives we have been able to fill our system with some of the best teachers available anywhere," Stewart said.

"We had more than 100 teachers applications last year," he said.

All the teachers in the system have either bachelors or masters degrees in their fields.

"As a contrast, almost the entire faculty of the old Borden County system had only teachers with teaching certificates," he said.

Van Johnson To Quit His Studio And Try It Alone

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie town has been stirred by reports of a large-scale evacuation of MGM by top stars, directors and producers. Van Johnson is one of the names mentioned, and he confirms that he will be parting company with the studio.

"The way it looks now," Johnson told me between takes of 'Easy to love,' "I'll be leaving the studio when my contract is up in December. They may want me to stay, but I don't think I will.

"My trouble has always been that I couldn't make up my mind. But I'm pretty certain about this. I've been working with the same actors and the same directors for too long. I need a change of scenery.

"I've always been something of a Gypsy at heart. I like to move around and see things. And there are too many exciting things going on in show business these days. I want to be a part of them. I'd give anything to do another Broadway show."

His last show was the original "Pal Joey." It starred Gene Kelly, and a lad named Van Johnson was one of the boys in the chorus. Oddly enough, the show is a bigger hit in its current revival on Broadway. As Van said, "'Joey' was ahead of its time when it was first produced."

It's hard to believe, but Johnson will have served 13 years at MGM when his contract expires in December. Although he still looks like a juvenile, he's now 36. The studio has kept him busy during his stay there, employing him in some 45 films. He was loaned out only once since he became a star—to 20th-Fox for "Mother Was a Freshman" with Loretta Young.

"I have no complaint with the studio," he remarked. "They've been very good to me. Twice they've torn up my old contracts and given me new ones. I've never had to ask for a raise. But there comes a time when a guy has to go out on his own."

If he doesn't sign again with the studio, Johnson will be passing up further benefits from MGM's famed pension plan. He already will be eligible for an income when he reaches an advanced age.

"But I don't think the pension idea is too good for actors," he remarked. "The security is nice to have, but if an actor thinks only of security, his career is bound to suffer."

Johnson admitted he might change his ideas after he makes a tour he is planning. He is whipping up a song-and-dance act and hopes to play the London Palladium during the coronation. "I may get it all out of my system and settle down for another 13 years at MGM," he said.

Right now he is having the time of his life. The Motion Picture Academy is having its preballoting showings of all the movies up for Oscars. Van is Hollywood's No. 1 movie fan, and he is present at the Academy Theater for as many as four films a day. He added:

"The last time I went, my wife said, 'If you go back to that theater again and stay so long, don't come home!'"

Capsule review: "The Girl Who Had Everything" is a routine remake of "A Free Soul," which won Lionel Barrymore an Oscar in 1930. The story has been updated to deal with a gambling syndicate operator who runs afoul a Senate investigating committee and his own gang. The modernization has been done adroitly, but not enough care was taken with the filming to bring out the dramatic values. William Powell's Artistry shines forth in the old Barrymore role, and Elizabeth Taylor and Fernando Lamas are adequate in the parts once played by Norma Shearer and Clark Gable. Passable melodrama.

THE SNYDER SCHOOLS

Recreational Activities Are Vital To Youth Development

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the ninth article in a series on the Snyder school system by Dr. Cecil Yarbrough, superintendent of schools. The articles are written in answer to a series of questions submitted by the Daily News.

By Dr. C. L. YARBROUGH

Question nine: In what grade do you believe a school system the size of Snyder's should begin its physical education program? should some athletics be taught in all grades?

Physical education is training for better physical growth, healthy habits, muscular co-ordination, and wholesome social relationships.

The social and physical needs of children begin prior to entering school. In the first grade, therefore, one of the important responsibilities of the teacher is to organize the play - time activities of the children so that they begin wholesome physical development. In the early grades, children should engage in less complex activities such as the merry-go-round, the see - saw, and elementary ball games. As children grow older and learn to play together with other children (some never do), games and physical activities become more complex.

Everyone should learn some rules of self discipline and good conduct and this is an important phase of this program. Also, children grow physically at different rates and their physical training needs vary from year to year just as their social comprehension and their ability to read and to understand mathematics varies. In the intermediate and upper elementary grades, therefore, such games as softball and baseball are popular.

In the upper elementary, junior and senior high school the physical education program includes calisthenic training, recreational activities, as well as competitive sports. The trend within recent years has been to provide physical education through various games or sports which provde experiences in co-ordination, socialization, and competition. These activities are introduced at the appropriate year to take into account, insofar as possible, the physical development and interests of each youngster.

All sports play a vital part in the physical education program for both boys and girls. Volleyball, track, tennis, basketball, and baseball are the more popular activities through which physical education is made available to children. Football in some schools is begun in the fifth grade as part of the physical education program. While its value as a feeder program for junior and senior high school football is not definitely known, it has served in some schools as a great interest builder.

Some thought is being given to such a program in the Snyder school and the experiences in other schools are being studied at the present time. The activities of such a program of athletics in the elementary school must be adjusted to the physical abilities of the children involved. In studying the possibility of including some athletic activities (competitive sports) in the elementary school, school officials will attempt to answer these questions: First, will these activities contribute to the general education of the children involved; second, will they involve a large percent of the students; third, will the program be adjusted to the age level group; and fourth, at what time in the day's schedule can this program be offered?

Football in the elementary school is subject to criticism if it is planned only for a small number of students, if it is too strenuous, or if it takes from the time the student spends mastering the other tools of learning.

It must be remembered also, that physical education is as necessary for girls as for boys. The program which is developing here in the Snyder schools will give prominent attention to the needs of all students, whether they be boy or girl.

This year, the Snyder public schools began a program of supervised play and physical education in all the elementary schools. Special teachers were approved by the board for each elementary unit but personnel were available for only three of the schools. The physical education program in the elementary school thus far has been primarily one of supervised play with emphasis upon learning the rules of the game, upon correct behavior, upon citizenship training experiences, and upon other activities involved in normal growing needs of children. It is too early to tell just how much this program is achieving but principals and teachers have expressed enthusiasm about it.

In addition, a program in physical education was begun for the junior high school girls this year for the first time. The facilities available next year will make it possible for expansion of this program since only a limited number of junior high students can be accommodated in our present facilities. Senior high girls have been offered physical education for a number of years. The majority of students obtain two years training in the high school.

The athletic program in the junior and senior high school is considered a part of the physical education activities and is an essential part of physical, emotional, and recreational education. The by-products in student morale, interest in school affairs, and school spirit brough about by competitive sports are sometimes more easily measurable than the direct objectives in physical health and muscular co-ordination. In any event, competitive athletics has long been an established part of the high school and community activity and is a strong center of interest for both students and parents.

It is safe to say that the standards of physical education in public schools are not as well established as in other teaching fields. There may have been less serious attempts to study this problem from the standpoint of a desirable program. The Snyder schools surveyed a large number of schools last summer prior to expanding a program here with the hope of adopting the best practices in Snyder.

The relationship between a balanced emotional outlook, sound physical bodies, improved co-ordination, physical development, and health habits are generally recognized. There is no question, also, that recreational interests, interest in sports, rules of good sportsmanship and fellowship resulting from a sound program of physical education and athletics are essential parts of educational planning for all grades.

Bill Ballard

New Juvenile Officer Already Handling Cases Within County

Juvenile delinquency, in Scurry County or anywhere else, is a thing that may be caused by one in a million things and may be cured by one in a million methods.

That's the way it looks to Bill Ballard, county juvenile officer who has just completed his first month of work here.

Ballard told the county youth advisory committee last week in a meeting that he had worked with 15 juveniles during February. Of those, eight committed petty thefts, such as taking groceries, small amounts of money, or other items; two were traffic violators, three were runaways, two were girls involved in a cafe disturbance, one returned from training school, and one was a dependency case.

The entire group of delinquents Ballard dealt with during February committed their first offenses, he said, with the exception of the boy returning from the school.

Unless an offense is serious or parents are unco-operative, Ballard said, no court hearing is necessary for delinquents committing first offenses. First offenders many times can be put back on the right track with a little help, he said.

The cause of delinquency cannot be definitely attributed to any one thing. Sometimes it is lack of family care, sometimes lack of recreation, lack of attendance at church, or one of many other faults, he said.

The juvenile—Ballard deals with boys 10 to 17 and girls 10 to 18—needs character forming from his parents, church, school, and other sources. He needs as many recreational outlets as can be provided. Some like group activity like the Boy Scouts and Little League, and some don't. Ballard says he thinks the facilities at the new county park will help to combat delinquency here. Youth centers are helpful, if they are operated in the right way and by the right persons, he added.

Lack of one of these things, or some other thing, can contribute to a child's turning his energy or ambition in some other way, many times resulting in his wrongdoing. Ballard, as probation officer, tries to catch the delinquency in its early stages, when it can be stopped more easily.

Ballard uses a number of methods in attemtping to guide a child away from his tendencies toward delinquency, mainly aiming the child toward other interests. In the case of those returning from training school who are not re-entering public schooling, he aids them in finding jobs.

With other children, Ballard co-operates with schools, churches, the youth council, and others in attempting to harness the juvenile's interest into something that will be useful to the child and the community.

Ballard stresses the importance in the parent's guidance in combatting delinquency here. The parent, he said, must set a good example for the child, because the child will usually follow the pattern of parents. They must provide the right kind of leadership, love, and interest a child needs, or he will reach out to satisfy his needs.

Once a child becomes delinquent, Ballad says, the probation officer cannot cure it alone. It can probably stopped if parents and others co-operate. If no attempt is made and a child is given a free rein to do what he pleases, he may later turn into a criminal, especially if his first offenses are theft.

Ballard feels that one of the most serious offenses is theft, because of its danger to grow into something big, but he says traffic violations are no little thing because careless or reckless driving may cause a death.

When the youth development council meets, Ballard takes up problems that arise in juvenile work here with council members, using their opinions as the average of the community. Members of the council are Clyde Willburn, Herman Trigg, H. D. Moreland, Cecil Yarbrough, Dr. John Blum, Malven Stevenson, Clyde Godwin, M. R. Estes, Bill Line, J. P. Nelson, and Wayland Holt, Ex-officio members are the Rev. Ronald Hubbard, and the Rev. Clifford Taylor.

Ballard, who lives at 1906 Coleman, came here last month from Austin, where he worked three years with that county's juvenile department. Mr. and Mrs. Ballard have a two-month-old son, Freddie.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Weymon and son of Fremont, Tex., have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Starley E. Lenaman, 3004 Thirty - eighth Street.

Route of Chinas proposed Red railway.

Reds Begin New Rail Line To Run Into Eastern Asia

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — A Peiping radio broadcast says Communist China has begun construction of a new railway line westward from Lanchow on the Huang river to Red China's remote northwest province of Sinkian on the Russian border.

For years the Reds have talked of linking up the Chinese and Russian railway systems in Sinkiang, providing a second route across the steppes of Asia to Europe. The Trans-Siberian railway far to the north now provides the only rail connection.

Months ago construction of a 1,500 mile line west from Lanchow to reach Ayaguz in the Soviet Kazakh republic was reported in Communist dispatches. Apparently it was more talk than actual construction.

The latest Red broadcast, heard in San Francisco, did not give the terminus of the projected line, but merely said it would be in Sinkiang. It is more than 1,000 miles by air from Lanchow, capital of Kansu province, to Urumchi, Sinkiang's provincial capital. The territory is formidable with difficult mountain passes and great stretches of desert far beyond China ancient Great Wall.

Apparently aware of this the Red radio quoted Wang Shih-tai, vice minister of railways, as saying: "In response to the call of Chairman Mao Tze-tung, we must do everything in our power to conquer natural difficulties and complete this great task."

The Red radio said that because of transport difficulties, many local products of Sinkiang cannot be carried to other areas, while its people are in need of industrial goods.

Soviety economic penetration of Sinkiang has been reported repeatedly. The new Chinese rail effort may be an attempt to tie Sinkiang more closely to the rest of Red China.

Broken dikes like this released flood waters in wide areas of Holland and England in a recent storm.

Scientist Believes Abnormal Warming Causing Big Floods

By The Associated Press

AMES, Ia. — An Iowa State College specialist says that Europe's worst floods "in almost six centuries" may be another reflection of the fact that "we are at present living in a time when abnormal warming is occurring in the Northern Hemisphere."

Dr. James E. McDonald, assistant professor of physics who specializes in physical meteorology, said it is necessary to go back "to the early 1300's to find sustained periods of storminess similar to the devastating tidal floods which have recently struck North Sea coastal areas."

Dr. McDonald said scientists are searching the past to try to find an explanation for extreme climactic fluctuations.

"Evidence accumulating over the past decade," he said, "seems to point toward solar energy output as the quantity whose variations may be fundamentally responsible for climatic fluctuations."

From 1300 to 1400, he said, North Europe suffered climatic handicaps never since equalled "save for just such exceptional storms as the one reported recently."

No one knows why the 14th century was so stormy but "it was an uncomfortable time to be alive," he said. Sea floods of those times completely altered the coastline of the North Sea. Half the island of Helgoland was ripped away on Jan. 16, 1300, and the former island of Borkum was cut by the same storms into small remnants that became the present Frisian islands.

When the atmosphere brings disaster in its violence, Dr. McDonald said, the student of climate "can only point out that it has at some time in the past been as bad, or worse — and will be as bad, or worse, again."
