Commission establishes fund for infrastructure work Ordinance calls for water and sewer fee funds to be used for repairs, replacements

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Faced with an aging infrastructure, the Hereford City Commission took steps Monday night to establish a fund for repair and replacement of water and sewer lines and city streets, curbs and gutters.

During a work session prior to the commission's regular meeting, City Manager Chester Nolen pointed out that replacement of water and sewer lines has been done in the past on a "crisis" basis.

Commissioners decided informally that a priority plan should be developed for infrastructure projects. A reserve fund of slightly more than $200,000 was earmarked in the current year's budget for that purpose.

An ordinance for the proposed fund was adopted during the commission's regular meeting. As set forth in the ordinance, money from water and sewer fees will be deposited in the infrastructure fund.

On motion of Commissioner Nancy Griego and second by Commissioner Carey Black, the ordinance was adopted unanimously. Commissioners Roger Eades, Scott Hall and Wayne Winget voted for the proposal. Commissioner Silvana Juarez was not present.

In other business during the regular meeting, the commission:

-- Authorized the city manager to advertise for bids for fire hydrant replacement.

-- Approved the request made several weeks ago for extension of water and sewer service to residents of the 1000 blocks of South Lee and South Miles, outside the city limits.

-- Recognized two men who served on city boards.

-- Approved tax abatement of 350 percent over five years for an Arrowhead Mills expansion project.

-- Approved employment of a chief building official.

Municipal Judge Tawanna Hollowell met with the commission during the work session to discuss employment of a fulltime court clerk. No decision was reached although the commission suggested an interview with the judge's candidate for the position.

Mayor Bob Josserand presented a plaque to Bill Bankston in recognition of his service, from 1981 to 1995, on the city's planning and zoning commission. Bankston was chairman of the commission for several years.

A plaque also was presented to Butch Casey, recognizing his service for two years on the plumbing and mechanical board of adjustments and appeals. Casey resigned from the volunteer post earlier this year to accept employment with the city in the inspection department.

On a recommendation by City Manager Nolen, the commission approved employment of Pete M. Wilt, now of Clovis, N.M., as chief building official.

Nolen reported that Wilt will assume duties here on Dec. 1. Wilt holds certifications in areas necessary for the position, Nolen told the commission.

A request for water and sewer service on South Miles and South Lee was approved by the commission, with the stipulation that expense of installing lines will be the responsibility of residents of the streets.

Josserand pointed out that the city may not install lines outside its limits. Estimated cost of the project is $12,000, in addition to $200 for each residential water tap, approximately $400 for each sewer tap and expense of installing water and sewer lines to homes.

If residents elect to pursue the project, Nolen reminded that the cost estimates are based on participation by the entire neighborhood. Rates will be assessed at 1 1/2 times the city rate.

On a motion by Commissioner Winget and second by Commissioner Hall, the vote was unanimous to grant tax abatement to Arrowhead Mills on a $903,000 expansion project. The abatement will be given at 100 percent for each of the first two years and 50 percent for each of the next three years.

A resolution was adopted to request state license plates for unmarked vehicles used by the city police department.

After hearing a report from Nolen that at least 45 fire hydrants must be replaced, the commission authorized bid request. Nolen estimated cost of the replacements at $90,000. Funds from the water development bonds will be used to pay for the project, Nolen said.

A request from the Hereford YMCA money provided in the city budget for the facility was approved. The city allocated $10,000 for the YMCA during the current fiscal year.

Study offers glimpse into what happens to objects tossed around in tornado

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dorothy and Toto may be the most famous victims of relocation by a tornado, but twisters have been known to litter the landscape for miles with items ranging from a cow to a headstone to a music box.

A sack of Kansas flour moved 110 miles in 1915 holds the record for distance traveled by a heavy item, but pieces of paper have been carried more than 200 miles, according to a report in the Bulletin of the American Meteorological Society.

"Part of the reason behind (the research) was that we may be able to come up with the fallout pattern in cases of hazardous waste," explained Amy Lee Wyatt, a researcher at the University of Oklahoma.

"We're working on articles right now that would be of use to forecasters if a tornado were to hit a hazardous waste site," scattering items like toxic chemicals, radioactive material and medical waste, Wyatt said.

The researchers from the University of Oklahoma and St. Louis University compiled historical reports of debris dropped by tornadoes and launched their own research the last two summers to track twister fallout.

They set up a toll-free phone number and asked people to call with reports of found items after a tornado, so they could try to track the origin of the debris.

Not surprisingly, they found that heavy items tend to come down close to their original location with light stuff going farther and paper getting the most distance.

Most heavy material falls out within 50 miles and lighter material generally hits ground within 90 miles of its starting point, they found.

Their analysis also showed that more than three-quarters of the debris came down to the left of the track followed by the storm.

Why to the left?

"That's one of the things we're trying to figure out. We think the winds in the thunderstorm cause it to be flung out that way," Wyatt said. Tornadoes are rotating columns of wind that almost always turn in a counterclockwise direction in the Northern Hemisphere.

Reading a study of the tragic 1984 Barneveld, Wis., tornado inspired Oklahoma's John T. Snow to launch the research, Wyatt explained. That analysis found paper scattered in a path as much as 26 miles wide for more than 100 miles.

A bank pouch was located 86 miles out of town. But Snow, dean of the Oklahoma College of Geosciences, realized little other information was available on tornado debris patterns.

Historical records contain plenty of newspaper reports of storms moving stuff around. "A lot of that you have to take with a grain of salt," Wyatt said.

But there were also some reliable reports, particularly in the massive volume, "Significant Tornadoes 1690-1991," by Tom P. Grazulis.

The record trip is 210 miles for a canceled check found in Palmyra, Neb., after a 1915 twister, the researchers found.

A tabulation of 163 reports of debris dropped from tornadoes since 1871 contains a wide selection of items.

A cow, for example, was listed as having been carried 10 miles by an Iowa twister on April 21, 1878 - no word on its condition.

Another heavy item was a headstone, transported three miles in an 1886 Minnesota tornado. In 1956 a Minnesota storm carried a carton of deer hides six miles.

Besides the cow, animals relocated by tornadoes include some Iowa chickens, moved six miles in 1913 and, ominously, a listing of "dead ducks" carried 25 miles by a 1915 Kansas twister.

Clothing seems to be a popular target for tornado relocation, including a 30-mile trip made by a vest in a 1913 storm in Nebraska. A Wisconsin coat traveled 13 miles in 1920, trousers went 30 miles and a wedding gown 50 in a 1953 Massachusetts storm.

Taking part in the study, in addition to Wyatt and Snow, were Eric K. Bishop, also of the University of Oklahoma, and Ann K. McCarthy of St. Louis University.

Congress breaks before restarting budget debate

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Capitol echoed today with an unaccustomed silence. Weary lawmakers rushed home for a brief Thanksgiving respite before returning to an intense debate over how to balance the federal budget in seven years.

President Clinton gave House Democrats an upbeat send-off Monday night at a Capitol Hill pep rally, vowing to fight for Democratic principles.

But participants said Clinton also told them the public would not stand for another government shutdown and offered a sobering view of the compromises he suggested were inevitable.

"He appealed to us to show some discipline," said Rep. Barbara Kennelly, D-Conn. "Everybody can't have their way."

A temporary budget truce passed by the Senate on Sunday and approved by the House, 421-4, and signed by Clinton on Monday commits the administration to the seven-year framework - but only if Democratic priorities such as Medicare, Medicaid, education and the environment receive "adequate" funding.

"Everybody is very skeptical about whether or not you can do all the things Republicans say you can do in seven years and still protect those priorities. That will be the rub," Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle said in an interview.

He and other Democrats at the White House and in Congress are warning Republicans they'll have to shrink and maybe scrap their $245 billion seven-year tax cut if they want to erase the federal deficit by 2002.

"That, more than anything else, will determine whether we're successful," said Daschle, D-S.D. "The Republicans have to decide what's more important, a tax cut or a balanced budget in seven years."

The budget agreement keeps the government running until Dec. 15. By then negotiators hope to find "a grand compromise," as one Democrat put it, and avert a Christmas season repeat of the government paralysis that forced as many as 800,000 federal workers to stay home last week.

They returned to work Monday, and the cost of the shutdown "will make a very powerful case" that it should never happen again, said White House spokesman Mike McCurry. The Office of Management and Budget said $100 million to $150 million a day was lost in "government productivity" - "the value of work that did not get done."

As budget negotiations simmer toward a boil, Democrats are looking for ways to soften social-program cuts proposed by the GOP. They are zeroing in on the Republican tax cut, a mix of investment incentives and family tax relief that Democrats say would subsidize Medicare spending cuts and benefit mainly the wealthy.

House Republican leaders were refusing as late as last week to discuss any changes in the tax plan, but Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said Monday it was on the table.

Republicans were, however, immovable on their seven-year timetable. A barrage of GOP complaints ensued Monday after White House officials made casual references to "seven years or eight years," and to seven years as "an important goal."

"Seven years is seven years," House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, wrote to White House chief of staff Leon Panetta. "If the president intends to break this commitment, he shouldn't make it."

Before recessing for Thanksgiving, the House also gave final congressional blessing to the GOP plan for balancing the budget by 2002 on a mostly party-line 235-192 vote. It would overhaul Medicare, slice scores of programs and trim taxes for millions.

Beatlemania explodes as 1st album in 25 years hits stores

By DAVID BAUDER
Associated Press Writer

After waiting 25 years for some new Beatles music, rabid fans weren't about to miss the first opportunity to buy it.

They rushed to music stores around the country today to buy "Beatles Anthology I," which contains "Free As A Bird," the Fab Four's first new song since they split up in 1970.

"The world is going to come to a stop," said Tim Devin, general manager of a Tower Records store in New York City. "For nostalgia they'll come out for it, for curiosity, just for the love of the music."

At a Chicago Tower Records, 250 people were in the store when the Beatles record went on sale at midnight. Stores in some cities started selling the album Monday afternoon.

"There's a new Bruce Springsteen record, too, but 99 percent of the people are here because of the Beatles," Tower Record sales manager Joe Kvidera said in Chicago.

In New Orleans' French Quarter, Tower Records stayed open an hour past its usual midnight closing to meet demand.

"We had people waiting 30 minutes before it went on sale and it picked up dramatically just before midnight, when there were maybe 30 or 40 people waiting," clerk Monica Romero said.

Deputies investigate series of incidents

Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Deputies are continuing their investigation into several incidents that may be connected to the same two suspects.

Department spokeswoman Sharon Pennington said Tuesday that charges against two men are pending after deputies tied the pair to a variety of cases, including two burglaries and the theft of a $60,000 semi tractor-trailer rig.

Pennington said the tractor-trailer rig was reported stolen last Thursday from Panhandle Milling in Dawn. Contents of the truck were valued at $1,500.

That same night, Whiteface Truck Wash, located west of Hereford on Country Road 4, reported someone broke into the building, took a heater, refrigerator and other items, and did some damage to the property.

During their investigation of the burglary, Pennington said, Deputies John David High and Scott Ward were able to connect the two incidents, based on information provided by witnesses.

In addition, she said, the deputies are following up on a September burglary at Whiteface Truck Wash, plus other incidents.

Pennington said information about the crimes has been turned over to the Criminal District Attorney's Office for review.

The deputies are continuing their investigation into the incidents as well.

Malcomson said.

At NASA's Johnson Space Center, one of the largest federal facilities in the Houston region, hundreds of personnel streamed back to work. About 2,100 of the center's nearly 3,000 civil servants were furloughed.

"We'll be behind some," said Regan Edmiston, a returning NASA employee. "But we can catch up on that. It won't take us long to recover from that."

About 900 of Johnson's civil servants were exempted from the furlough to support the space shuttle mission that ended Monday and to keep preparations for next year's flights and the development of the international space station on schedule.

Estimates placed the number of Johnson's 12,000 contractor personnel who worked in part or in full on those projects during the furlough at about 80 percent.

Dessy Woods, a secretary for the Internal Revenue Service, said she and other workers were met with a week's pile of mail waiting to be opened.

"But I had no control over it (the closing), so why worry?" she said. Ms. Woods, who used the furlough time to spend with her grandchildren, was hoping that employees will receive back pay for the furlough as officials have said.

Despite the days of inactivity, the federal apparatus cranked back into gear seemingly without a hitch in some places.

Polish leader may face easier life

Defeat at polls fails to reduce Walesa's combativeness

By MAGDALENA KULIG
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Life was never so difficult for Lech Walesa as it was after he became president. It might just get easier now that he's been unseated.

The 52-year-old symbol of Solidarity's struggle for Poland's self-determination was a hero at home and abroad until his 1990 election. Then his faults started showing.

He was too combative and stubborn, wielding his veto power liberally, shunning compromise, alienating potential allies. His way of expressing himself was often vague, confusing - even insulting.

Walesa only survived the Nov. 5 first-round presidential election because no other Solidarity-rooted candidate stood a chance of defeating the telegenic ex-Communist Alexander Kwasniewski.

Even in defeat, the common side of Walesa that so often turned off his countrymen showed through.

The scrappy former electrician just couldn't resist a cheap shot at Kwasniewski, who foiled his re-election bid by winning 51.7 percent of the vote in Sunday's runoff.

"We're not going to talk because we don't have anything to talk about," Walesa told reporters Monday when asked his response to Kwasniewski's call for reconciliation.

"I took a few slaps in the face, so much so that in accordance with the Old Testament I've got to strike back until his jaw falls off," he added.

That was Walesa's way of saying he hopes to mount a strong opposition, forming a political bloc that will try to wrest control of parliament from Kwasniewski's leftist coalition.

In a country where men still kiss women's hands in greeting, people expect their president to be more polite.

"He doesn't live up to any standards, Polish or European," said Dariusz Wersinski, a 56-year-old journalist. "He is a simpleton."

Walesa disenchanted many when he refused to shake Kwasniewski's hand last week after a nationally televised debate.

"It's more true that Walesa lost the election than that Kwasniewski won it," said Bronislaw Geremek, chairman of Parliament's Foreign Affairs Committee and a former Walesa friend.

More than half of Walesa's votes came from people who backed him as the lesser of two evils and feared a Kwasniewski victory would mean a resurgence of corrupt Communist apparatchiks.

The election outcome showed a rejection of Walesa's authoritarian bent, which had included attempts to govern by decree and stubborn resistance to civilian control of the military.

Still, there was sadness at the hero's fall - even among people who caused it by voting against him.

"There is certain feeling of depression among people in Poland today, and one can see it everywhere - in the store, at the hairdresser," Janina Paradowska, a left-leaning political commentator, said Monday.

Paradowska said in an interview that she believed many people who voted for Kwasniewski did so out of resentment for Walesa's style - while actually hoping for his victory.

"Walesa was never aware that democracy means a constant discussion," Geremek said. "Walesa, rather, sought to wield power. He did not realize that the democratic power means persuading people."

Whatever he does now, no one questions that Walesa is a living legend, not just a Nobel Peace Prize winner but also a playful, charismatic man who makes people laugh easily.

Even Kwasniewski acknowledged Walesa's "indisputable place in Polish history" in his nationally televised address on Monday.

One thing is clear, Walesa will not fade without a fight.

Political commentator Konstanty Gebert jokingly suggested Walesa create a foundation, like Mikhail S. Gorbachev, or become "an older roving subversive meeting with disgruntled (people) from the entire planet."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

My father, Dr. Roy James Grubbs Jr., was a pediatrician and obstetrician in Hereford from the early 1950s until about 1967. He delivered and cared for quite a number of babies in the Hereford area during this time.

He moved to Amarillo, then back to his birth state, Alabama. After he retired from active medical practice, Dad worked on a missionary ship, the "Spirit," for several years, delivering medical supplies, food and gospel around the world.

He has now retired again and lives in the Atlanta area. He will turn 80 on Nov. 22. If any of his former patients would like to share any stories about their life experiences, please send him a note:

Dear Editor:

One day not so long ago, I was thinking about Judgment Day, with the sheep to one side and the goats on the other. I knew for sure I didn't want to end up with the goats.

Then I got to thinking about how legalized abortion became the law of the land. Because it was done through the judicial branch of the government, we the people didn't have a thing to say about it. On the day you read this letter, more than 4,000 unborn Americans will be killed by abortion.

I believe that on the last day we must answer not only for wrongs we have done but also for good we have failed to do. I don't want to face our Just Judge on the last day and have to admit I did nothing while his little ones were murdered by the millions.

What can one person do? You have the power to save the babies--the power of prayer. And there are other ways to help. You get Pro-Life bumper stickers, tie tacks, T-shirts, lapel pins, etc.

Another way is to support our local Problem Pregnancy Center, staffed by volunteers and operating totally on donations and fundraisers such as garage sales. They always need volunteers to crochet booties, do lawn work, help in the office, or you can send a check to help with the rent, etc. Many babies have been saved there. You can also write letters to the President, Congress, etc.

The more you do, the more you'll find to do. But everything starts and finishes with prayer. And when you get tired, just picture that old gate to the goat pen. It's standing wide open.

Lottery

AUSTIN (AP) - The Lotto Texas jackpot will be about $10 million for Wednesday's game as there were no tickets that correctly matched all six numbers from the latest drawing, state lottery officials said.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 4-23-31-34-37-44.

The state lottery said 123 tickets matched five numbers, each paying $1,368.

Another 6,309 tickets had four of the drawn numbers, with each of those worth $98.

The serving table was covered with a white lace cloth, centered with a bronze urn filled with assorted greenery and dried flowers, and featured a silver candelabrum, silver coffee service and cut glass punch bowl.

The hostesses presented the bride-elect with the serving pieces to her pottery selection.

Hostesses were Sylvia Paetzold, Thelma Cherry, Debbie Tardy, Marilyn Culpepper, Susan Owens, Dolores Foster, Dolores McCuistian, Carol Gage, Mary Roark, Wilma Bryan, Cynthia Streun, Evelyn Hacker, Sheri Kerr, Lori Hall and Keeling.

Noland home site of meeting

Louise Streun, vice president, presided at the meeting of the Garden Beautiful Club in the home of Dorothy Noland for an auction of articles brought by each member.

Prior to the auction, members answered roll call with hints for winterizing lawns and garden areas. Jerry Wheeler served as auctioneer. Food, white elephant gifts and handwork were among the items that were auctioned. Funds raised will go to special projects of the club.

Those present were Vada Axe, Doris Bryant, Audine Dettman, Jeanne Dowell, Leona Andrews, Wheeler, Noland and Streun.

Wyche FCE club holds meeting in County Extension agent's home

The Wyche Family Community Education Club met recently in the home of Beverly Harder, county extension agent.

President Correen Odum opened the meeting by leading the FCE prayer.

During a short business meeting, new club officers were elected. They are Shirley Brown, president; Mary Lou Aven, vice president; Carol Sartain, secretary; Louise Axe, treasurer; Carol Worthan, reporter; and Jo Lee, parliamentarian.

They will be installed at the Christmas party to be held Dec. 7 at 12 noon at K-Bob's. Members decided to take personal items to fill a gift basket for Community Special Services.

Harder presented the program on holiday decorations, food ideas and party tips using decorations from the home to stress her theme "Christmas at Home." She discussed using Christmas decorations throughout the house and some that can be used throughout the year.

Harder served refreshments of fruit and cheese on crackers, holiday cookies, punch and coffee from a table decorated in a Christmas motif.

Members attending were Dorna Kirby, Virgie Duncan, Thelma Auten, Camille Jones, Vada Battermah, Dorthy Lundry, LaVerne Worley, Barbara Sterne, Worthan, Odum, Lee, Brown, Sartain and Aven.

Guests were Clara Trowbridge, and from North Hereford FCE Club Naomi Brisendine, Edith Higgins and Evelyn Crofford.

Wall presides over meeting

Kingdom Seekers Sunday School class of Avenue Baptist Church held its November meeting at the church with Maxine Coleman and Trudie Gray as hostesses.

Rosie Wall presided over the business meeting. Roll call was answered by naming different spices mentioned in the Bible.

Coleman read the poem "Letter from Jesus" and Gray read "Perfect Church."

The devotional was lead by Pauline Landers.

The meeting opened with a prayer by Nancy Duncan and closed with a friendship circle singing "Bless Be the Tie that Binds" and a prayer by Ruby Skelton.

Present were Erma Bain, Luella Thomas, Juanita Howell, Dorna Kirby, Ruby Stevens, Perry Keyes, Landers, Skelton, Gray, Duncan, Coleman and Wall.

Historical program part of club meeting

An historical performance, featuring Jean Hull of Berger as Martha Washington, was the program for Bay View Study Club at a meeting held in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library recently.

Using slides depicting many aspects of the lives of Martha and George Washington, Mrs. Hull related anecdotes to depict the topic, "Getting to Know the Real Martha Washington." An added highlight of her presentation was her gown, styled much as Martha would have worn it in 18th century Virginia.

The next Bay View meeting, set for Dec. 7 in the First United Methodist Church, will be a guest day occasion, beginning with refreshments in Ward Parlor at 4 p.m. and followed by a concert in the church sanctuary at 5 p.m. by the Jubilate Ringers, the hand bell choir. Members are asked to note a change in the time for this event.

Charmayne Kleit, Amy Gilliland and Claudia McBrayer were welcomed as guests. Hostesses for the social hour which followed Mrs. Hull's performance were Lois Gilliland, Beth Burran and Margaret Bell.

Members attending were Bell, Burran, Jeanie Caison, Virginia Garner, Pat Graham, Nancy Josseland, Ruth McBride, Marjorie Mims, Judy Mitts, Ruth Newsom, Betty Rudder, Kathryn Ruga, Lois Scott, Sue Sims and Gilliland.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recently married a man who has two children from a previous marriage. "Leo's" ex-wife suffers from a mental disorder and refuses to seek any medical attention. The children have terrible behavior problems. They have no respect for me or anybody else. Their vocabulary is shocking, even by today's standards. I dread their weekend visits.

These children fight all day, eat like pigs and never pick up a piece of clothing or a discarded toy. If I ask them to clean up after themselves, they say, "Do it yourself." They need heavy disciplining, but I don't feel it should come from me. When I try to straighten them out, Leo says I should stop picking on his kids.

We have a child of our own and I do not want her to turn out like these children. They are bratty, and Leo's ex-wife has re-entered the picture. She's interfering and making unreasonable demands. All this is destroying our marriage, and I don't see any way out. Please help me. -- Can't Take It Anymore

DEAR CAN'T TAKE IT: You and Leo need an unbiased third party to mediate this battle and put your marriage on a more solid footing. Ask your physician or clergyman to refer you to a family counselor, and make an appointment immediately. You and Leo need to take control of this situation before it deteriorates further.

P.S. Those out-of-control children need help, too. They are acting out their anger. I recommend counseling for them, also.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother is an apartment manager for some inexpensive apartments. Potential renters often tell her they don't have jobs but they can pay rent because they receive disability checks. When she asks what their disability is, the answers are unbelievable.

People get monthly checks from the government for alcoholism, nerves, back pain, diabetes and being slow learners. In some cases, they're not even sure what their disability is. Really, Ann, is this fair?

I'm sure some people really DO need their disability checks, but I also know there are some proud, decent disabled people who work because they want to. They are too proud to go on welfare.

Are diabetics and slow learners really unable to work? I have the feeling these people would work if they had to, but since the government hands them checks, they'd rather sit back and suck up the taxpayers' money. This really burns me up. I know my letter sounds harsh, but I had to get this off my chest. -- Roanoke

DEAR RO.: True, some people receiving disability and other welfare entitlements are freeloaders but the vast majority are decent folks who desperately need government assistance. If welfare checks were withheld, it would be the children who would suffer. Welfare in this country is mostly about feeding and housing children.

As for the gold-brickers who claim to be sick, they will always be among us. Alcoholism, we now know, is a disease, and back pain can be excruciating and disabling. As for diabetes, it can lead to blindness, nerve disorders and a host of other incapacitating illnesses.

Please try to be more compassionate where these unfortunate people are concerned, and be thankful you are not one of them.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Nuggets and Doozies," has everything from the outrageously funny to the poignantly insightful. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Herd spikers fall just short of state title

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The 1995 Lady Whitefaces volleyball team had a dream season, except for one tiny detail: they missed a state championship by six lousy points.

Hereford lost the Class 4A championship match to Red Oak, 16-14, 15-10, Saturday in Austin's Burger Center.

The loss, Hereford's first in more than two months, ended a season that included many positives:

--A 29-4 record, the best in Hereford history.

--Hereford's second-ever UIL state tournament appearance, and its first-ever finals match.

--The first outright District 1-4A championship, including a sweep of bitter rival Dumas.

--A No. 1 ranking in Class 4A for most of the year.

--Championships in the Amarillo, Justin Northwest and Seminole tournaments - all three of the tournaments Hereford entered.

After Saturday's loss, the many accomplishments were hard to remember for the Herd players who seemed destined for a title.

"I still want to cry when somebody says, 'You're state champions in my book,'" senior Tarabeth Holmes said Monday.

Unfortunately, Red Oak is the champion in the UIL book - the one that counts. The Lady Hawks (38-4) survived two Hereford serves at game-point in the first game, then scored five straight points to win, 16-14. In the second game, Hereford came back from a 10-4 deficit to tie it at 10-10, but Red Oak scored the final five points for the title.

There was a point in the first game when Hereford was breezing along. The Lady Whitefaces led 9-0 helped by five early kills by Holmes.

A Heather Hodges kill made it 10-5, but Red Oak's Melissa Godwin had a kill for a sideout, then hit a quick set nearly straight down for a point.

Several of the Herd players said Red Oak was a different team after that point.

"They started playing better," Hodges said. "(Coach Arthur Stanfield) called a timeout and chewed them out big."

"They got into it mentally," Brittney Binder added.

Red Oak also got into it defensively. While Hereford's hits went down with regularity early in the game, they hardly ever seemed to fall after that point.

"The only change I noticed was they pulled their line (defender) in closer," Hereford coach Brenda Reeh said. "Their blockers were pulled out farther as well. I just felt like they picked up their defense."

"I don't feel like we were swinging any less aggressively," Reeh said. "They reacted well to the different speeds we hit, and they reacted well to where we placed the ball. We thought their backcourt defense might be their weakest point, but they played as well as any team we played against all season. We just couldn't get the ball down on them."

Danielle Cornelius had two kills in a row to put Hereford up 12-6, but they were the last kills the all-state middle blocker would get. A sprained ankle suffered in a Thursday practice session severely limited Cornelius' mobility. She was taken out for good early in the second game.

Red Oak came back within 12-10 with two Herd errors, a kill and a stuff block.

Kari Barrett pushed Hereford to game point with an ace for the 13th points and a kill on a dump set for the 14th. Hereford just couldn't get the 15th point, as Red Oak got kills for sideouts both times the Herd served.

Red Oak hitter Kristy Grmela led the winning rally, with three kills in a row during the Lady Hawks' five point run.

The second game started rolling downhill quickly for Hereford. Hitting errors and two aces by Red Oak's Godwin gave the Lady Hawks a 7-0 lead right off, and they soon stretched that to 10-4.

The Lady Whitefaces came back with six straight points behind the serving of Binder and the hitting of Hodges, whose three kills combined with three Red Oak errors in the run. Hereford tied it at 10-10.

"When other teams make mistakes, that pumps us up," Binder said.

That run provided some consolation for the girls - it wasn't a rout.

"When we were down 10-4, we could have lost 15-4, but we didn't," Hodges said.

"I thought our kids could play better than they were showing at that moment," Reeh said. "I wanted the kids to make a better game of it. They didn't disappoint me in that respect."

"With Red Oak coming back in the first game, we were down a little bit emotionally starting the second game," Reeh said, "but our kids showed they could come back, too."

That was Hereford's last stand. Three Hereford hitting errors combined with two straight kills by Grmela for five straight points and the win.

There's always "What ifs?" when a team gets that close. The biggest "what if" after Saturday was, "What if Cornelius hadn't sprained her ankle?"

The 6-foot-0 middle hitter sprained her ankle at the Herd's workout in Thursday in Brownwood. Although she played through the pain, she wasn't her usual all-state self. She totaled four kills in the two matches.

"It was hurting really bad," Cornelius said. "Saturday, it was a little better, but being able to jump or move - it wasn't happening."

"From the X-rays, we knew the joint was stable," Reeh said. "We knew she wasn't in danger of further injury, but she was in pain."

A total team effort was enough in a semifinal match against Magnolia, which Hereford won 15-8, 15-7.

"They rallied around each other," Reeh said. "It wasn't by any means a situation where our kids felt we couldn't win. Depth has been our strength all year long. Everybody would have to pick up the slack for her lack of ability to play because of her ankle."

It worked in the semifinal against Magnolia, but it wasn't enough in the finals against No. 2-ranked Red Oak.

"I think it had a greater impact than against Magnolia," Reeh said. "Red Oak is a much better team than Magnolia. They run much more offensive options. To defend that, our blockers had to be much quicker. Danielle just didn't have that mobility."

"Danielle couldn't get out there quick enough," said senior Julie Cole, who replaced Cornelius in the second game against Red Oak. "That put the defense in a bind. They had to cover their area and the blocking area."

There will be many who'll say Cornelius would have made the difference - and that's possible - but Holmes seems to have dealt with it.

"You can say, 'What if Danielle had a bad game?'" Holmes said. "What happened happened. You can't change it."

Boys' basketball team bows to 'Dogs

The Hereford boys' basketball team lost couldn't solve Plainview's zone Saturday in Whitefaces Gym, and the Herd lost 64-57.

It was the second loss in two games for the boys. They'll try again tonight in Tulia, playing the Hornets at 8 p.m.

The Hereford girls will play Talia at 6:30 p.m. They had a game with Plainview scheduled for Saturday, but it was canceled due to the state volleyball tournament. Hereford lost to Palo Duro Nov. 14, but coach Eddie Fortenberry has chosen to call that a scrimmage officially; since the girls didn't have any other scrimmages, he can legally do that.

Boys coach Randy Dean said

Hereford had trouble against Plainview's zone defense.

"We really kind of struggled offensively," he said. "They were running a zone defense, and we didn't shoot the ball well from outside."

The teams played to a 17-17 tie after one quarter, then Plainview took a 33-28 lead into halftime. Hereford trailed only 41-40 after the third quarter. The game was very close early in the fourth, but Plainview eventually won by seven points.

"They really hurt us on rebounding," Dean said. "They got lots of second and third shots off offensive rebounds. We didn't do a good job of boxing out and rebounding on that end of the floor."

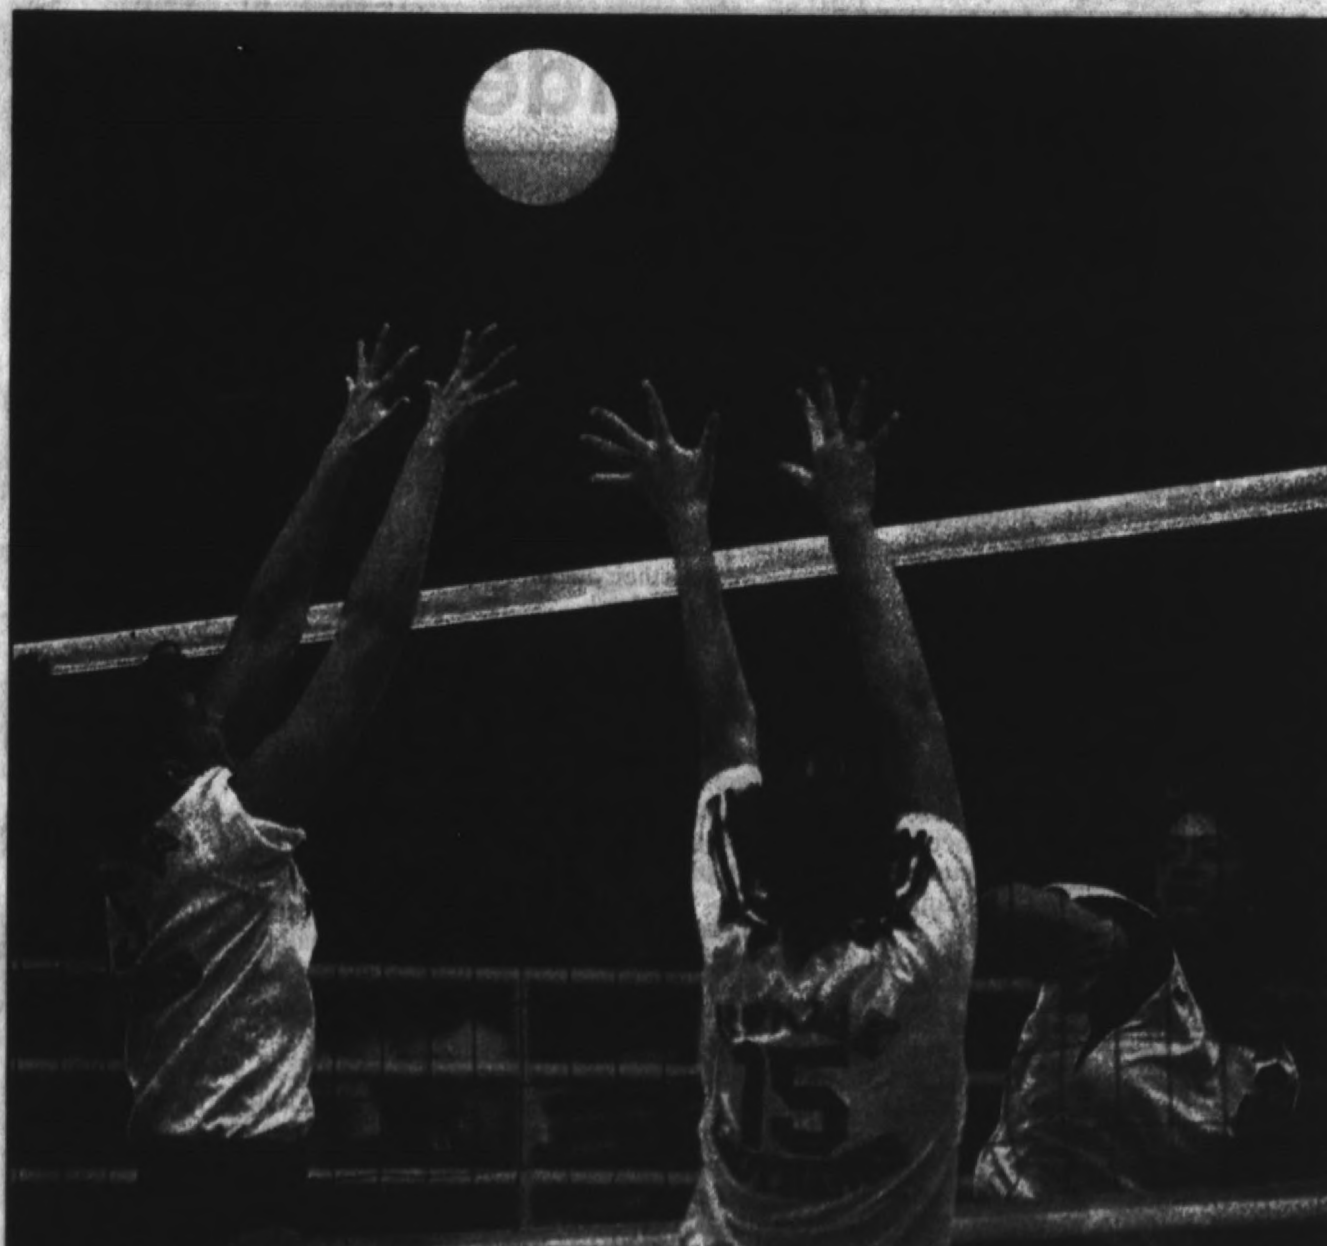

Michael High led the Herd with 17 points and Isaac Walker added 11. Matt Robertson led Plainview with 23.

"We hustled pretty good and were in the ballgame," Dean said. "They stretched it out in the fourth quarter and made us come back. We got our hands on a lot of balls - we just seemed a step out of position."

There was no junior varsity game Saturday, but the sophomore boys' team played Saturday in Hereford, falling 35-33 to Palo Duro.

The sophomores play Tascosa at 6 tonight in Amarillo.

The boys' JV joins the varsity teams in Tulia; the JV game starts at 5 p.m.

49ers , Grbac upstage Marino's NFL record

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) - Elvis Grbac and the San Francisco 49ers upstaged Dan Marino.

Grbac threw for 382 yards and four scores, negating two touchdown passes by Marino that tied Fran Tarkenton's career NFL record, and San Francisco produced another blowout at Joe Robbie Stadium by beating Miami 44-20 Monday night.

Even more lopsided than the 49ers' 49-26 rout of San Diego in last season's Super Bowl at Miami, the victory was especially impressive on the heels of their 38-20 romp past Dallas eight days earlier.

San Francisco (7-4) again won without injured quarterback Steve Young, who warmed up before the game but watched from the sideline while Grbac completed 31 of 41 passes. He improved to 3-2 as a starter this season.

The 49ers sacked Marino on the first three plays, and then it got worse for the Dolphins (6-5). Before Marino could match the career record he coveted most - Tarkenton's 342 touchdown passes - San Francisco led 38-13.

The record-tying pass was a 4-yarder to O.J. McDuffie late in the third quarter. Marino earlier threw a 42-yard touchdown pass to Gary Clark.

Marino, who broke Tarkenton's records for passing yardage and completions earlier this year in games Miami lost, completed 23 of 38 passes for 255 yards.

The reeling Dolphins, who have lost five of their past seven games, fell two games behind AFC East leader Buffalo. The 49ers pulled into a first-place tie with Atlanta in the NFC West.

Grbac rattled a Miami secondary plagued by dissension and breakdowns in recent weeks, throwing touchdown passes of 47 and 46 yards to Rice and 23 and 2 yards to Brent Jones. Rice extended his NFL record to 151 career touchdowns.

San Francisco scored on six of seven possessions during one stretch that produced 34 points.

Safety Merton Hanks had an interception and a 31-yard fumble return to set up 10 points for San Francisco. Both turnovers came on bobbles by McDuffie.

Oilers' McNair takes blame for loss to KC

HOUSTON (AP) - His teammates and even Kansas City owner Lamar Hunt tried to console Houston running back Todd McNair, whose last-minute fumble provided the Chiefs with the winning touchdown.

So far, nothing has worked. McNair insists on taking full blame for Sunday's loss to his former teammates that was sealed when Mark Collins picked up McNair's fumble and returned it 46 yards for a touchdown and 20-13 victory.

"It hurt. We had them. We were doing it," McNair lamented on Monday. "No matter what happened up to that point, if I hold the ball, it would have been a different story."

McNair wanted to perform well against his former teammates but he wanted a victory more.

"It wasn't so much that it was Kansas City," McNair said. "We were doing what people said we couldn't do. I know that we could do it but it's a bitter pill to swallow. This is as rough as it gets."

William White and Doug Terry delivered blows that stunned McNair and caused him to drop the ball.

"I got kind of knocked out, I was dazed," McNair said. "To tell you the truth, when I was on the ground I thought I still had the ball but it was somebody's foot."

Kalka captures Brand contest

Mel Kalka Jr. of Orlando, Fla., missed only four games and won last week's Brand Football Contest. His reward is $35 in Hereford Bucks.

A total of five contestants missed five games, and all picked Hereford to win the tie-breaker game - the Herd did, beating Caprock 41-0 Friday.

S.T. Loerwald's prediction totaled 41 points, so he takes second place at $25 in Hereford Bucks.

Jill Harrison just missed, with a prediction totalling 40. She'll get the third-place prize of $10.

The three who finished just out of the money are Travis Gilliam, Tracy Butler and Lorraine Sandoval.

SPIKERS

actually placed more players than Red Oak as Hodges, Binder and Rampley all were selected by a panel of coaches. Hodges and Binder are seniors, while Rampley was the only sophomore honored in Class 4A.

Red Oak places two players on the team, Melissa Godwin and MVP selection Andrea Ray. Rounding out the team was Kristi Lindeman of New Braunfels, which lost to Red Oak in the semifinals.

HJH hoop girls sweep Pampa

The Hereford Junior High girls' basketball teams pulled off a sweep of the Pampa Monday at home.

The eighth grade A team won 27-14, getting 10 points from Valerie Guzman and eight from Tori Walker.

The eighth B team won 27-24, with six points each from Janet Blakely, Leslie Torres and Crystal Mendiaz.

The seventh A team won squeaker, 21-20, as Pam Klein scored eight points.

The seventh B won easily, 25-11, and Renee Hernandez led the way with 10 points.

The freshmen girls played in Whiteface Gym Monday but lost two games to Valleyview's ninth-graders. The A team fell 46-17, and the B team lost 38-20. Rachel Chavez led the A team with five points, and Christy Schumacher led the B team with eight.

Sunday's Brand that Cornelius visited a University of Texas trainer while in Austin. White Danielle's sister Shantel is a volleyball player at Texas, if a UT trainer treated Danielle, it would be a violation of NCAA rules. Danielle was treated by a trainer provide by the UIL, she said.

Review a list of turkey tips and reminders before big day of holiday cooking, parties

By PAMELA PERCIVAL
Abilene Reporter-News

ABILENE, Texas - Whether you've been preparing the Thanksgiving turkey for 20 years, or this is your first year to roast the big bird, it never hurts to review a list of turkey tips and reminders before preparations begin.

HOW BIG A BIRD TO BUY?

- On average, figure 1.5 people per pound of raw turkey, advise the chefs at Luby's Cafeterias. For each pound of turkey, you get approximately seven ounces of usable meat.

WHOLE BIRD OR BREAST ONLY?

- Americans prefer turkey breast meat nearly four to one over the next preference, the leg, according to a recent survey for HoneySuckle White Turkey. If the dark meat will go to waste at your house, consider buying a bone-in breast of turkey.

TURKEY THAW LAWS

- Never thaw a turkey on the kitchen counter; defrost in the refrigerator and allow one day for each five pounds, say the experts at the National Restaurant Association.

- Defrost the turkey in its original wrapper to prevent juices from dripping on other food.

- If you don't have enough time to defrost in the refrigerator, thaw in the sink under a running stream of cold water. Even a 20-pound turkey can be defrosted in 10 hours this way.

- A fully defrosted turkey is safe to keep in the refrigerator for an additional one to two days prior to cooking.

To stuff or not to stuff?

- The safest method is to cook the bird and stuffing separately. But if stuffing the bird is a family tradition, stuff it immediately before putting it in the oven - never hours or the night before.

GIBLETS

- Giblets are those weird turkey parts wrapped in white paper inside the turkey. In the South, many people use them to make gravy. But, according to HoneySuckle White's turkey survey, Easterners are more likely to throw the giblets away or feed them to their dogs. When preparing giblets, remove from the package and wash thoroughly. The chefs at Luby's suggest baking the giblets inside the turkey cavity. When the turkey is done, remove and chop to use as a tasty gravy ingredient. Some people put the giblets in a saucepan, cover with water, add celery, onions, salt and pepper, then simmer on top of the stove to make turkey broth. The broth can be used to make gravy.

ROASTING METHODS

- Open pan roasting method. The experts at Butterball Turkey recommend you place the thawed or fresh turkey, breast up, on a flat rack in a shallow pan, 2-2 1/2 inches deep. Insert an oven-safe thermometer into the thickest part of the thigh. Brush skin with oil to prevent drying. Place in a preheated oven at 325 degrees. When the skin is light golden brown, about two-thirds done, shield the breast loosely with a tent of lightweight foil to prevent overbrowning.

The turkey is done when the meat thermometer reaches 180 to 185 degrees deep in the thigh. Also, thigh meat should be soft when pinched and juices should be clear, not pink, when pierced. If the meat thermometer is placed in the thickest part of the breast, just above the rib bones, the turkey is done at 170 degrees.

- Reynolds Oven Bags. Insert the entire turkey into one of these special plastic cooking bags to speed up cooking time and reduce clean-up. Follow directions included with the bags.

- High temperature roasting. A 16- to 20-pound turkey can be cooked in about 3 1/2 hours with an oven temperature of 450 degrees. The key to this method is to loosely wrap the turkey in heavy duty aluminum foil. Place foil-wrapped turkey in a roasting pan. To brown the turkey, open and turn back the foil 30 minutes before end of roasting time.

CARVING

- The single biggest mistake turkey carvers make is not letting the turkey "rest" after it is removed from the oven, says Jimmy Sneed, nationally acclaimed chef and owner of The Frog and the Redneck, a Richmond, Virginia restaurant featured in such publications as "Gourmet" and "Bon Appetit."

"While the turkey cooks, the juices are forced away from the heat to the middle of the turkey," Sneed explained. "Resting the turkey for 20 to 30 minutes after it's removed from the oven allows the juices to redistribute throughout the bird. A moist turkey is easier to carve."

Princess Di captures sympathy of Britons

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) - Courageous or calculating?

After admitting that she committed adultery, doesn't want a divorce and has no plans to leave the limelight, Princess Diana today took an early lead over Prince Charles in a renewed royal battle for public affection.

Diana's first public comments about her private life in a BBC interview evoked waves of sympathy from millions of Britons, while others denounced what they saw as a manipulative, stage performance fueled by her determination to hang on to royal privilege.

"She was absolutely frank and courageous. ... She's much bigger than the royal family put together," declared Stuart Higgins, editor of The Sun, Britain's best-selling daily newspaper.

The Sun reported floods of calls running at 75 percent in favor of Diana after her 55-minute interview Monday night.

Callers to a phone-in today on BBC's Radio 4, ran 2-1 in favor of Diana. Detractors accused her of everything from paranoia to publicity addiction.

Nicholas Soames, defense minister in the Conservative government and a close friend of Charles, said Diana was "too-curling dread" at times.

"I do know great sadness and unhappiness when I see it," Soames said in a television interview. "But when people claim they have enemies at every turn and are spied on at every corner, I know of no other word for that than paranoia."

In the interview, Diana, 34, said she didn't want a divorce for the sake of her sons, princes William, 13, and Harry, 11, but was willing to discuss it with Charles if he felt differently.

"I await my husband's decision on which way we're all going to go," she said. "... To date, neither of us has discussed this subject, though the rest of the world seems to have."

She said her fairy-tale marriage ended because Charles, 47, was in love with an old flame, Camilla Parker Bowles, 48.

Mrs. Parker Bowles recently divorced and has a new home near Charles' country estate in Gloucestershire. He is reported to be seeing her regularly.

"There were three of us in this marriage, so it was a bit crowded," Diana said. "... It was pretty devastating."

Charles admitted last year that he was unfaithful to Diana after the marriage broke down in the mid-1980s. The couple married in 1981 and separated in December 1992.

Diana's interview was seen as her retort to Charles' soul-baring.

The princess said she discovered in 1986 that Charles was having an affair with Mrs. Parker Bowles. She became bulimic - a cycle of bingeing and vomiting - and cut herself.

"It was a symptom of what was going on in my marriage. I was crying for help, but I was giving the wrong signals," she said, adding: "I'm free of it now."

She acknowledged having an affair with her former riding instructor, Army Maj. James Hewitt.

"Were you unfaithful?" asked reporter Martin Bashir.

"Yes, I adored him," Diana said.

"Yes, I was in love with him."

She said she never slept with another male friend, James Gilbey, but confirmed he called her "Squidgy" in a telephone conversation peppered with endearments. It was taped secretly and released in 1993.

Diana said that then, for "the first time, I knew what it felt to be outside the net" of the royal family.

Diana referred to Charles' aides as "the enemy." She said her mail was intercepted and the royal household - she avoided mentioned her mother-in-law Queen Elizabeth II by name - blocked foreign trips after the separation.

During the interview she spoke quietly, swallowed hard at times, laughed and repeatedly flashed the shy smile that has been her trademark. She wore a navy suit with a white shell and dark stockings. Her hair looked slightly tousled.

"I don't sit here with resentment," she said. "I sit here with sadness because the marriage hasn't worked."

The interview renewed public debate about a divorce.

Diana said she wants to be an ambassador for Britain and doesn't expect to become queen. If the two are still married when Charles succeeds to the throne, Diana will automatically become queen of England.

Diana said of herself: "She won't go quietly, that's the problem."

While a huge audience of 15 million viewers watched Diana on TV, she attended a charity gala wearing a revealing, low-cut evening dress. That was the picture that dominated most newspapers today, along with headlines like "I was unfaithful."

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, attended a Royal Variety Show. It was their 48th wedding anniversary.

Tourists outside Buckingham Palace today were divided about the interview.

Orlando unbeaten at home; Rockets win 5th in row

By The Associated Press
The Orlando Magic seem unbeatable at home, no matter who can't make the roll call.
"It wasn't a thing of beauty, but when you're shorthanded we'll take them any way we can get them," coach Brian Hill said after Orlando kept its Orlando Arena record unblemished with a 101-95 victory Monday night over the Golden State Warriors.
Orlando - minus Shaquille O'Neal as he continues to recuperate from a preseason thumb fracture - is 7-0 at home. On Monday night, the Magic's other top big man, Horace Grant, was out with a bruised left knee. It didn't matter.

Anfernee Hardaway scored 29 points and Dennis Scott 27 for the defending Eastern Conference champions.
Nick Anderson added 20 points and Orlando got its first meaningful contribution off the bench from rookie forward David Vaughn.
Elsewhere, it was Houston 98, Boston 93; Utah 105, New Jersey 79; and Portland 113, Los Angeles Clippers 94.
Chris Mullin led the Warriors with 23 points and Jon Barry scored 14 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter to keep Golden State in the game. "It seemed like every time we'd get a little space - up eight or nine - they'd knock a couple of 3s down and they'd be back in there," Hill said.

But the Warriors hurt themselves with 22 turnovers while falling to 0-4 on the road, where they also play their next four games.
"I don't know when (his players) will ever learn a lesson," Golden State coach Rick Adelman said. "Ten games into it, and we have the same things happening."
"Somehow we have to find an answer. Right now, I don't have one."

Joe Wolf made two key baskets in the last three minutes and Vaughn, the Magic's first-round draft pick, delivered season highs of eight points and five rebounds in 14 minutes.
Rony Seikaly had 19 points and 11 rebounds for Golden State, but Tim Hardaway was held to six on 3-for-15 shooting.
Golden State was weakened when Latrell Sprewell, who scored two points, left the game late in the first quarter because of swelling in his left elbow. He didn't return.
Rockets 98, Celtics 93.
At Boston, Hakeem Olajuwon scored 24 points, and Houston capitalized on Boston's poor foul shooting to win its fifth straight.
Boston made just 2-of-11 free throws in the fourth quarter and 9-of-22 overall as its winning streak ended at two games. Houston was 28-for-33 overall and 7-for-11 in the final period.

The Rockets held a 17-11 rebounding advantage and blocked five shots.
"Clutch plays down at the end of the game (made the difference)," Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "If we don't make them, if we don't block shots or get offensive rebounds, we probably don't win the game."
The Rockets took the lead for good, 75-74, on Clyde Drexler's driving layup with 22 seconds left in the third quarter and led by as many as seven points in the fourth.
Drexler scored 18 points, and Robert Horry had 16 points and 15 rebounds for the Rockets. Boston was led by Greg Minor with 21 points and Dino Radja with 13 points and 17 rebounds.
With the score 91-87, Boston's Sherman Douglas missed two free throws and Houston got the next three points on Drexler's foul shot and added 25 as Portland beat Los Angeles for the sixth straight time.

Strickland and Robinson broke open a close game by scoring 11 points each during the third quarter, when the Blazers took advantage of a five-minute scoring drought by the Clippers to go ahead by 20 points.
Strickland made 11 of 15 shots and added seven rebounds and six assists. He did not play in the fourth quarter.
Terry Dehere led Los Angeles with 17 points and 10 assists.
Rookie Arvydas Sabonis scored a career-high 20 points in 22 minutes for Portland, including 14 in the first half.
James Robinson added a season-high 16 points, including two 3-pointers.
The crowd of 20,381 was the first non-sellout for the Trail Blazers since April 5, 1977, a string of 814 consecutive games.

Santa Clara upsets UCLA in Maui basketball tourney

LAHAINA, Hawaii (AP) - UCLA celebrated a national championship in its last tournament appearance. It'll have to settle for a consolation title in the Maui Invitational.
The No. 4 Bruins lost their first game of the season Monday night, falling 78-69 to Santa Clara in the opening round of the eight-team tournament.
"We didn't run our offense well. We got impatient. It's not characteristic of the way we play," coach Jim Harrick said.
"We had 22 turnovers. Some of the players think they can do it on their own, but it's a correctable error. It's difficult to learn that way, but we'll be better for it."
While the Bruins couldn't overcome their opening-night problems, No. 3 Villanova, No. 20 North Carolina and Michigan State managed to avoid upsets.

Michigan State beat Division II Chaminade 69-66 in the opener, Villanova followed with a 66-58 victory over Wisconsin and North Carolina rallied to beat Vanderbilt 71-63.
Villanova will meet Santa Clara in tonight's semifinals and North Carolina faces Michigan State. In the consolation bracket, UCLA plays Wisconsin and Vanderbilt faces Chaminade.
Santa Clara reserve Phil Von Buckwaldt scored six points and Marlon Garnett added five during a decisive 11-0 run.

The score was tied at 47 with 11:51 left, but Von Buckwaldt, who averaged only 2.8 points last season, converted two shots from under the basket and added a pair of free throws. Garnett chipped in a 3-pointer and a field goal.
It gave the Broncos a double-digit lead that they nursed the rest of the way. The Bruins never got closer than eight points thereafter.
Garnett finished with 21 points, Steve Nash had 19 and Von Buckwaldt 12. Charles O'Bannon led UCLA with 21 points and J.R. Henderson had 18.
UCLA made only nine of 21 free throws and had a slight 36-33 rebound edge despite a much stronger frontline.
No. 3 Villanova 66, Wisconsin 58.
Eric Eberz scored 23 points and Kerry Kittles added 11 of his 16 in the second half as the Wildcats held off the Badgers.
"Our level of intensity was the key," Villanova coach Steve Lappas said. "I thought we played hard. That's why we were able to respond when we got down by a point."
Mosezell Peterson had 17 points for Wisconsin, playing its first game under Dick Bennett.
"We have a group of hard workers," Bennett said. "But with that kind of effort, we will make mistakes. But we have to look at them as positives as we go on from here."
No. 20-North Carolina 71, Vanderbilt 63.
North Carolina, hurt by the departure of Jerry Stackhouse and Rasheed Wallace to the NBA, didn't take the lead until Serge Zwikker made a pair of follow-up shots with three minutes left.
"We played good defense, but they made their 3s," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said. "We didn't do a good job offensively."
Jeff McInnis had 20 points for Tar Heels, who wound up making 27 of 56 shots after an 11-for-27 performance in the first half. Drew Maddux led the Commodores with 20 points. Michigan State 69, Chaminade 66.
Michigan State, playing its first game under Tom Izzo, did not put the game away until Quinton Brooks hit a short jumper with 51 seconds left.
"Jud (Heathcote) told me coaching was easy," Izzo joked. "This is a tough profession. This is a tough way to start my career."
Brooks led the Spartans with 21 points and eight rebounds and Jamie Feick had 15 points and nine rebounds. Eric Chizer led the Silverswords with 17 points.

Lady Techsters claim top spot in AP poll

By CHUCK SCHOFFNER
AP Sports Writer
Being No. 1 in women's basketball is nothing new for Louisiana Tech. It's just been a while since the Lady Techsters have held that position.
Louisiana Tech zoomed to the top of The Associated Press poll Monday, one day after beating the previous No. 1 team, defending national champion Connecticut, 83-81 in overtime in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic.
It's the first No. 1 ranking for Louisiana Tech since the 1989-90 season, when coach Leon Barmore's team finished on top and led the poll for all but two weeks.
"I didn't know it had been that long," Barmore said. "Since it was that long ago, if we just have it for a week, I'm glad we got it."
The way it came about was especially gratifying for Barmore. Tech, fourth in last week's preseason poll, won Sunday's game on Debra Williams' driving layup with 5.2 seconds left.
The Lady Techsters are accustomed to finishes like that because their last two seasons have ended on last-second shots, including Charlotte Smith's buzzer-beating 3-pointer for North Carolina in the 1994 NCAA championship game.

Connecticut, which lost for the first time since the 1994 NCAA tournament, dropped to third in the poll. Georgia, which hasn't played yet, remained second and Tennessee climbed two spots to fourth after beating Virginia in the second half of the Tip-Off Classic twinbill.
Virginia slipped three places to sixth and Vanderbilt stayed at No. 5.
Louisiana Tech received 26 first-place votes from a national media panel. Georgia was voted No. 1 on seven ballots, Vanderbilt got four votes for first and Connecticut and Tennessee each had one.
The first three rounds of the Preseason NIT caused some shuffling elsewhere in the poll. Arkansas and Colorado have won three times and will meet in tonight's championship game. Arkansas climbed one spot to ninth and Colorado moved up three places to 11th.
Duke split two NIT games and slipped from 17th to 22nd. Texas A&M, unranked in the preseason, went 2-1 in the tournament and moved into the poll at No. 23. Washington, 25th last week, dropped out.
Penn State, the preseason favorite in the Big Ten, was seventh and was followed by Stanford, Arkansas and Purdue.
After Colorado at No. 11 it was Texas Tech, North Carolina State, Kansas, DePaul, Southern Cal, Western Kentucky, Oregon State, Iowa and Mississippi. Completing the Top 25 were Wisconsin, Duke, Texas A&M, North Carolina and Alabama.

Olympic skater dies at practice

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) - Fairy tales aren't supposed to end this way.
The lives of Sergei Grinkov and Ekaterina Gordeeva were the stuff of dreams that only seem to come true in books. They had dazzled the world of figure skating from the moment they burst onto the international scene in 1986 and won the first of four world championships.
He was 19, she was 15, and their routine was spectacular. A well-muscled 5-foot-11 man throwing a ponytailed 5-1 girl through the air, while both glided on skates at dizzying speeds.
They won Olympic gold at Calgary in 1988 and, after a stint as professionals, returned six years later to take gold again, at Lillehammer. G&G fell in love, got married and had a daughter.
As the years passed, their skating matured with their relationship, evolving from an athletic show of muscle and speed to a husband-and-wife togetherness edged with tenderness.
On Monday, their love story came to an abrupt end. Grinkov, 28, collapsed and died while the pair was practicing for an ice show. Paramedics were on the ice within 90 seconds. They were unable to revive him.
The shock was immediate, and it cast a pall over a village that has worshipped Olympic heroes since it first hosted the Winter Games in 1932.
The apparent cause of death was cardiac arrest, but there was no official diagnosis, according to Grinkov's publicist, Linda Dozoretz. An autopsy was planned.
