E. W. Clement Elected to Head Wellington Schools

E.W. Clement, high school principal, was elected Superintendent of the Wellington School System in a meeting of the board of trustees Wednesday, June 19.

He will succeed Thayne Amonett, who is going to Lubbock, on August 1.

The man who probably knows more about the Wellington Schools than any other, Mr. Clement has had 23 years experience in the teaching profession, all of it in the school he now heads.

He was a teacher and coach 11 years, with experience from the sixth grade level through high school. For 12 years he has been high school principal.

In a statement issued Monday, Mr. Clement said:

"I have enjoyed working with the people of our community in the different capacities as a teacher, coach, and high school principal. I appreciate the support each of you have given me in the past, and am looking forward with great anticipation, to the continued support from you in making our school a better institution for the sole purpose of educating our children.

We, the board of education, administration and faculty, need your cooperation in the process of educating our youth. To me, our community and country's future lies within how well we the adults today instill the principles of our democratic society into our youth."

Mr. Clement was reared in Collingsworth County. He first attended Pleasant Point School, then went to Dodson School 5 years. Both are now part of the Wellington system. He attended WHS two years, graduating in 1942.

He served with an artillery unit of the United States Army in the Pacific Theatre during World War II. After receiving his discharge, Mr. Clement enrolled in West Texas State University, where he received the B.S. degree in 1951. Big 12-County Rural Water Project Funding Fight Revived

The Collingsworth-Childress Rural Water Project, stymied temporarily for lack of available funds at the state Farmers Home Administration level, has been revived and members are carrying their fight to the congressional level, chairman A.V. Lowrie has revealed.

Working with the group are Fred Parkey, general manager of the Red River Authority of Texas and Congressman Bob Price of the 13th District.

One hundred and eighty-one potential users in southeastern and southern Collingsworth, north and east Childress, and northeast Hall have each put up $100 to finance the preliminary stage of the project. They are refiling a preapplication for federal assistance and are asking for a loan of approximately $1.5 million dollars and an additional grant of $1.5 million.

Those heading the project are asking members to write their congressman and senators John Tower and Lloyd Bentson asking support of the funding application.

The Collingsworth-Childress-Hall project is part of a Red River Authority of Texas Phase V program for domestic rural water and sewer system.

The proposed project will cover parts of 12 counties, including these three and Donley, Foard, Motley, Hardeman, Cottle, Know, Wilbarger, Montague and Grayson.

It would serve 3671 people with approximately 350 miles of pipeline. The estimated development cost is $2,851,000.

Chairlift Helps Elderly to Attend First Christian Church

First Christian Church like other churches in Wellington and the surrounding area, have members 65 years of age and older.

"To reach out and minister to these members is very important," reminds Charles Vaughn minister. "When First Christian Church built the present building in 1928, little did they contemplate the problem that the crippled, handicapped, and aged, would have in climbing the steps to come to church. To let those people know that they have not been forgotten and are vitally needed First Christian Church now has a modern "chair lift" which serves the purpose of lifting these people by chair in a very comfortable way so that they too can come to church," said

'74 Farm Bureau Queen Contest to Be Held July 13

She was riding with the 4-H Bicycle group and it is believed the front wheel of her machine hit a hole in the road, causing it to flip over.

Lisa's left arm was broken in the elbow, her mother said. It is not known how long her arm will be in a cast.

Where Are the WHS Graduates Of the 1930s?

Addresses of Wellington High School graduates or other ex-students through the decade of the 1930s are especially needed by the Ex Students Association, Mrs. Calvin Mitchell, president, said this week.

"We have the graduates of the 1920s pretty well accounted for," said Mrs. Mitchell, "but there has been little response in bringing up to date those of the 1930s."

Only one notice will be mailed, due to the high cost of postage, Mrs. Mitchell said.

Letters have gone out to all those whose addresses are known, and as each new address is received by the association, a letter is mailed to that ex-student.

So You Are Being Audited! Here's How

Your federal individual income tax return—Form 1040—has been selected for audit, and you're wondering why.

According to the Internal Revenue Service, the most likely reason your return and many others have been chosen for a further review is simply that they appear to contain errors.

All individual and small corporation income tax returns go through a sophisticated processing system called "Discriminant Function" (DIF) as they pass through the IRS computers.

DIF hasn't always been a part of the IRS processing system. In fact, it has been in use at the service centers only since 1969.

At one time the Internal Revenue Service relied on the "eyeball" method to pick out returns for audit. Large numbers of examining officers scanned and selected returns on the basis of their content and the officers' experience in spotting those needing a closer review.

Later the IRS enlisted the aid of computers, programming them with criteria based on past experience of examining officers. Under this method the computers would sort out returns for possible audit and then the examiners would review them to double check the reasons for the selection.

The use of the computers was soon found to be a step in the right direction, since it saved time and provided greater uniformity in the initial selection of returns for audit. However, this initial system of criteria developed from examiner experience still did not ensure that IRS audit manpower was being spent on those returns with the greatest need for examination based on the probability of change in the tax reported.

After considerable research the IRS found it could determine the relative importance of each significant return characteristic as it related to the frequency of tax error. Eventually, this study led to assigning weights to these return items and their inter-relationships. That is the basis for DIF.

The DIF system today weighs the relationships of all of the key return items and produces a score for each taxpayer's return. Those returns having a high score are identified as having the greatest probability of tax errors.

In other words, under DIF, relationships between return characteristics and past results of audits of similar types of returns are what count. Whether or not items reported are higher or lower than average amounts is of no consequence. How the items go together to make up the overall picture and whether that composite tax return image looks error prone are what tips the scales.

Screening by IRS classifiers determines whether returns selected by the computer really need auditing. For example, DIF, which is a nationwide system, cannot take into account unique local conditions. Screeners can identify local variations such as when a state's real estate taxes are high.

Returns found to need audit by both the computer and humans are ultimately selected for examination.

In addition, returns not selected for audit by DIF may be selected at random, as a means of checking the system. Or returns may be examined because they are related to returns already undergoing examination, such as those of partners in a business. Some returns are identified for audit when IRS matches associated documents, such as Forms W-2 and 1099 with information reported on the 1040.

But whatever the means for selecting your return for audit, the purpose remains the same—to correct those returns with apparent errors so that only the tax due is paid the government.

Last year, according to the IRS, 1.8-million audits ended with $5.1-billion in additional revenue for the government, and $275.7-million in reduced taxes or increased refunds for taxpayers.

UT Library Twelfth in US

AUSTIN, (Spl.) -- Resources of the three-million-volume University of Texas library, 12th largest among academic libraries in the U.S., are accessible to the public far beyond the confines of the UT campus.

Through its Inter-Library Service, UT -- on request from another library which does not have a book a reader wants -- will lend a book, if it is available.

Last year the UT Inter-library Service processed an average of 100 off-campus requests per day for books. Of the 27,000 requests for library materials received, about 60 per cent were from Texas libraries and 40 per cent were from out of state.

AUSTIN, (Spl.) -- Although he's outnumbered 40,000 to 1 President Stephen H. Spurr of The University of Texas encourages face-to-face encounters with students.

For about two hours each month, the UT president regularly holds informal meetings in his office with 50 or more students randomly selected from the student directory.

Through candid answers to a wide range of questions and concerns of average students, Dr. Spurr believes the casual meetings help overcome the lopsided student-president ratio.

Bobwhite Quail Bulletin Due

Austin -- Few other species of upland game birds inspire so much cracker-barrel controversy as the bobwhite quail.

Everyone has his opinion on how the bird should be managed.

Biologists at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department have a few ideas on the subject and have put them into the booklet "Bobwhite Quail in Texas," Information and Education Brochure Number 101. Alfred Jackson, Clyde Holt and Dan Lay are the authors.

The publication is available free. It familiarizes the hunter and landowner with three keys to bobwhite survival -- food, water and cover.

According to the booklet's authors, "Quail can be produced on land used for the production of timber, ranching or farming, if the land operator will keep in mind that bobwhite's habitat needs must be met the year round."

Home Management

Children need sturdy, easy-care, casual clothes for summer play—whether at camp or a nearby park or playground. Proper clothing provides protection against the cold, sun, wind and rain. In addition, it should protect against insect bites, stings, underbrush and sharp rocks.

Long-sleeved shirts and long pants are a "must" for the woods, as are sturdy, comfortable shoes.

Head coverings and sunglasses also provide crucial protection from the sun. When shopping for clothes and other items recommended for camp—or just for summer play—choose jeans and shorts of sturdy fabrics.

Twills, such as gabardine and denim, are heavy and sturdy—while Bedford cord and sailcloth offer additional durability.

For strength, also look to blends containing at least 50 per cent polyester. Or, try stretch denim.

For a bonus of extra wear, choose boys' jeans with reinforced knees.

Girls, in contrast, select jeans, knitted slacks and shorts as favorites. Consumers should look for permanent press garments. Remember, no-iron shirts and blouses make perfect camp choices since they're easy to care for and look neat.

Comfortable, all-cotton knits are highly absorbent, while knits of man-made fibers dry quickly and have exceptionally good shape retention.

Also consider purchasing an all-weather raincoat for camp.

They come in such fabrics as poplin and gabardine, with water-repellent finishes. Although waterproof, raincoats of rubberized or plasticized fabric—and all-plastic keep air out, making them hot for summer.

Camp jackets, on the other hand, should be lightweight and preferably washable. Check hangtags to make sure the entire jacket is washable.

Jackets of nylon taffeta, nylon cire or polyester/cotton blends make good choices. Or, substitute a cardigan sweater for the jacket.

Happy Homemaking

By BARBARA BAKER

If you are confined to bed with a strained back, put a satin pillow case under your hips. It will make it much easier to slide or turn in the bed.

If your mahogany dresser is marked up with a ball point pen, spray the marks with hair spray and wipe quickly.

Save several clean milk cartons for your next camping trip. Split and flatten them and you'll find that the heavy waxed cardboard makes a fine surface for cutting meat and cleaning fish. After using, the cartons make good fuel for your campfire.

A good second use for a baby bottle sterilizer is for cooking ears of sweet corn. Stand the corn on end in place of the bottles, fill the sterilizer about one-third full of water and let steam until done.

If the aluminum ribbing around your kitchen table rubs off on arms and clothes, coat the metal with acrylic floor finish. It will prevent any more grey stains.

This is Parachute Creek located in the Colorado shale-rich Piceance Basin. There has been intermittent oil-shale research in the area since 1922, most recently by the Colony Development Company. Of the six public-land oil-shale tracts up for leasing, lands located in Colorado are considered the richest. Oil-shale, like any new large industry, has its share of environmental problems. As yet, no clear cut answers exist. Some believe present studies provide enough assurance against really damaging effects. Still others say that the potential environmental risks are great enough to slow the pace of oil-shale development until more questions are answered. The problems raised are water availability, contamination of surface water, air pollution, land use, population influx, and revegetation. These questions, added to the commercial feasibility of developing oil-shale production, hasn't slowed the interest of the private groups who are now hard at work looking for the answers.

Concrete Poured In Hot Weather Needs Curing

Concrete is poured in hot weather, but special care is needed to cure it properly under high temperature. Proper curing is the prevention of moisture loss from the concrete during the early stages of hardening.

"The main precaution is to prevent rapid evaporation of water from the concrete," points out W.S. Allen, agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University. "Strong winds intensify evaporation, so great care is especially necessary on hot, windy days."

When concrete is first placed, it is plastic and workable for a short time. However, the mix begins to stiffen or set as a chemical reaction called hydration takes place with the water. This reaction continues as long as the concrete is moist.

"By retaining water in the mix, the concrete can be properly cured, giving it increased strength and resistance to freezing and thawing, water and wear," points out Allen. "A curing time of about seven days is recommended."

Rapid drying sometimes reduces the strength of concrete or causes cracking.

Allen suggests several methods for retaining moisture in newly placed concrete. A common way is to cover the concrete with burlap, sand or some other material that can be kept wet for the required time. "Ponding" water on a slab also works if care is used to keep the water from evaporating. Or the concrete can be covered with plastic film, waterproof kraft paper or other watertight cover to seal in the mixing water.

Commercial curing compounds are often used, adds the engineer. These are sprayed on fresh concrete and form a plastic film which seals in the water. The film eventually wears off.

Boys at Cub-O-Ree Camp on Saturday

Wellington Cub Scouts were among those from throughout the Adobe Walls Council who attended the Cub-O-Ree, Saturday, June 22, at Camp M.K. Brown near Mobeetie.

This is the one time the cubs can participate in the regular Boy Scout camping activities. After registering at 9:30 the cubs engaged in six separate activities and the day ended at 5:30 with a campfire ceremony.

The boys participated in each of the following activities: rifle range, archery range, nature hike, knot tying, row boating and canoeing and swimming. This was followed by a free period for "resting".

Attending from Wellington were: Den 1: Jay Jones, Glen Hamilton, Roy Mote, Scott Cochran, Eddie Trimble, Darren Hall, Jim Warrick, and den leader, Mrs. Bill Hall. Den 2: Wade Williams, Kevin McClendon, Timmy Harris

Crop Insurance May Become Farm Necessity

College Station --- Although crop insurance has been a "yes or no" decision for most Texas farmers in the past, it may soon be a necessity, believes economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"One major insurance company is expecting to write two to three times more coverage for crops this year than in 1973 because of the higher cost of getting a crop in the ground," says Dr. Wayne Hayenga. "Also, farmers are expecting higher prices for their crops, and many of them remember the extensive damage done by hail last year."

Rates for hail insurance vary by crop, area of the state and company, explains the Texas A&M University System economist. Grain sorghum rates go from about 1.5 to 8 per cent of the coverage while cotton rates usually start at 3 or 4 per cent. In some hail prone areas, some companies quote prices as high as 18 per cent.

"At present, no commercial insurance companies write 'all risk' crop insurance in Texas," notes Hayenga. "This type of insurance is available in 84 counties from the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, with coverage limited to cotton, sorghum, corn, peanuts and citrus. Its main purpose is to protect farmers from a total crop failure, so the amount of coverage available is limited."

Summer Tax Savers for Farmers Cited

College Station -- "The summer months offer farmers a chance to save on income tax by paying their children for farm work and by combining vacation and business trips."

This word comes from Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist in agribusiness management for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University.

"A farmer can deduct wages he pays to his children and still claim them as dependents as long as he provides over half of their support. The wages must actually be paid for work performed. To establish an employer-employee relationship, definite jobs should be performed, regular hours should be established, and wages should be agreed upon and paid by check."

The support test is not hard to meet if the children are living at home or are in school, notes Hayenga. "As long as they earn less than $2,050, the children will not have to pay income tax. Also, dependent children working for parents do not have to pay social security taxes, but then they do not gain social security credits either."

A farmer can also deduct business related expenses from business-vacation trips as long as business is the primary purpose of the trip, points out the economist. To do this, records of activities and costs of the trip should be maintained. Before going on a major business-vacation trip, it may be worthwhile to check the Internal Revenue Service publication No. 463, "Travel, Gift, and Entertainment Expenses," adds Hayenga.

Screwworm Continues Northward Texas Trek

College Station -- Screwworm cases are continuing their northward trek across Texas, and producers are reminded to re-double their efforts against the costly livestock pest.

"Texas has just recorded 590 positive cases in May, or 67 per cent of the total cases it has experienced this year to date," warns Dr. M.E. Meadows, Jr., veterinarian in charge of the Southwest Screwworm Eradication Program at Mission.

"With rains received over a number of areas recently, the moisture is expected to increase the opportunities for more worm cases, unless producers really watch their animal and treat all wounds," Meadows says.

Until the beginning of May, only 282 of the flesh-eating worm cases had been identified in the Lone Star State.

Only 54 positive cases were reported by the Mission Lab in May, 1973.

Within the past several weeks, Cottle County, in the Rolling Plains area near the Oklahoma line, recorded two screwworm cases, first for the season there. New cases

Home Gardeners Can Stretch Moisture

College Station --- Hot, dry summer weather is here and that means following certain practices to "stretch" the moisture available for your lawn and garden.

also have been confirmed recently in El Paso, Reagan, Reeves and Crane Counties in the Trans-Pecos and far West Texas areas.

"Earlier, cases had moved north from the Hill Country to Concho, Runnels, and Haskell Counties, which probably accounts for the cases now occurring in Cottle," says Meadows.

Non-screwworm samples submitted by producers dipped somewhat in May. "With the Gulf Coast ticks expected to create additional worm problems, especially in the southern portion of Texas, all producers should join in the battle against screwworms," adds Meadows.

To make the battle more effective, producers should carefully check animals regularly for wounds, submit samples from worms found in wounds, treat all wounds, and spray or dip livestock on a regular basis.

"Wise use of available moisture helps keep your lawn and garden plants growing and healthy while at the same time reducing the amount of irrigation water required," points out Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

To start with, Janne suggests a good mulch at least two inches deep around flowers, shrubs and other plants. This reduces evaporation loss from the soil surface, lowers the soil temperature, reduces weed growth and cuts down on soil cultivation. Shredded pine bark, pine straw, wood chips, chopped wheat or oat straw or other organic matter is good for mulching.

When watering, the horticulturist recommends soaking the soil to a depth of 6 to 10 inches. Of course, where the soil surface is sloping, watering should be reduced to avoid excessive runoff.

"Deep watering encourages deep root penetration and provides a greater reservoir of moisture for plants. This enables plants to withstand dry weather better than when waterings are light and frequent. After a thorough soaking of the soil, watering can be delayed until plants begin to wilt."

Janne advises applying fertilizer, insecticides or fungicides to plants only when there is moisture in the soil. Severe foliage burn can occur if these materials are applied when plants are under water stress conditions. Fertilize lawns when needed since a well-fertilized lawn will use water more efficiently and will require less water to keep it alive.

Irene Brown Bartel

No Drums or Thunder Tells It Like It Was

This book is a factual, detailed account of farm life in Southwestern Oklahoma before World War 1. It describes a way of life that once flourished in the Eastern Panhandle and North Texas as it did in Southwestern Oklahoma.

As the true story of Irene Brown Bartel progresses from the arrival of her homesteading father through the vicissitudes of creating a productive farm and raising a family to be a credit to his name, a pioneering drama is unfolded in minutest detail.

A limited number of Auto-graphed copies of this fascinating book are on sale at The Wellington Leader.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—by Deskins Wells

JUNE has passed too quickly for it has been an intensely busy month for me. With one meeting of the Red River Compact Commission held in the middle of the month, I must get ready for another in July. There has been no time to spare.

MAJOR GENERAL Charles C. Noble, who is chairman of the Commission representing the United States Government, is retiring from the Army on August 1, 1974. The next meeting, which will be held in Austin on July 26, will be his last one. It is an important conference and was moved up from the customary September date to July in order that Gen. Noble could preside.

GENERAL NOBLE has had a long and distinguished military career. His latest major achievement was in the spring and summer of 1973 in controlling the greatest flood that ever swept down the Mississippi River. As head of the Corps of Army Engineers of the Lower Mississippi Division, he kept the loss of lives and the loss of property at the lowest percentage level of any of the major floods.

MEMBERS of the Red River Compact Commission from the states of Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas regret to see him retire. We will miss his incisive mind and his fair and gracious manner of presiding at our meetings.

MANY OF YOU readers may know the Oklahoma member of the Red River Commission. He is O.B. Saunders of Altus who has been a key figure in water development in Oklahoma for years. He has also served as president of Westview Boys Home near Hollis since it was established.

VIRGINIA ROBEY attended the recent meeting of the Texas Press Association in Arlington last week. I stayed at home to work on matters pertaining to Red River; but wild horses could not have kept me from the TPA meeting if I had known that my granddaughter Marian McDowell would be there with other journalism students from The University of Texas—at Austin that it. There is a University of Texas at Arlington, you know. The young lady should have told me.

IT WOULD have been nice to have introduced my granddaughter to some of my old and new friends. One year I was president of the Texas Press Association and was later called back for duty in another capacity. As executive secretary, I ran The Texas Press Association for eight years.

CROPS are growing in a wonderful fashion for this time of the year; but it won't be long until we will be needing rain. Four inches of rain favorably distributed between now and September can mean another excellent crop. We are too near an area that has had subnormal moisture for too many months for any of the farmers to feel overconfident. It is one of those nerve straining times we go through nearly every year.

THE DOVE population seems enormous for this time of the year. More grown doves can be seen in June than are here in many a September. Cottontail rabbits are also on the increase and can be seen on any country road. Once they were hunted as game and were considered good eating. Jack-rabbits that seem to increase in numbers in long dry periods are not numerous.

WITH these good signs there are some that are not so good. The hawks are increasing in numbers as rapidly in proportion in numbers as the doves. Hawks are not bad birds and should not be shot if you want any quail left next fall. The increasing number of hawks at this time of year means that there is an unprecedented increase in rats and field mice. The rats eat anything including quail eggs.

PROTESTING COLLINGSWORTH RATTLER

This close-up picture shows the four and one-half foot coon tail rattlesnake killed Monday, June 25 by Elmer Feemster and Eddie Maxwell at the Feemster farm north of town. The snake was defanged but at this point was protesting its situation and rattling violently. It is considered unusually large for this type of rattlesnake.

THERE IS a story in this paper about snakes. You should not start trying to eliminate snakes. Like hawks they help greatly in keeping down the rats and mice. Field rats and mice can become so numerous they are a plague.

IT IS GOOD to see all the young people working in the stores and business firms, on the highway and elsewhere this summer. What pleases me is the eagerness, politeness and ability they bring to their new jobs.

Debbie Brock Hurt by Horse

Debbie Brock, 8-year-old granddaughter of Mrs. Raymond Patton, remains unconscious in St. Paul's Hospital, Dallas, from injuries received when she was dragged by a horse Friday, June 21.

Debbie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Brock, and the accident occurred at the family home at Paris. Mrs. Patton, who was attending the Business and Professional Women's State Convention at San Antonio, flew to Dallas upon receiving word of the accident.

Her other daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wauer of Denver, Colorado, are also with the family.

Mrs. Patton told friends by phone Tuesday morning that doctors were encouraging and said Debbie was improving physically, although she remains unconscious.

Mrs. Brock was with her daughter when the accident occurred and was able to stop the horse, but not before it had dragged Debbie for a considerable distance and over an electric fence, according to information received here.

Cycle Club Sets Meeting

Some members of the Wellington Cycle Club will attend rallies in the Black Hills of South Dakota in mid-July and at Ruidoso, N.M. Sept. 26-29. Those going from Wellington will not participate in any of the races but will be spectators.

Cyclists from the city to attend these rallies have not yet been decided upon.

The club will hold a meeting Friday, June 28, at 8:00 p.m.

The club's membership is about 30.

Restoration Due at San Jose Mission

SAN ANTONIO -- Acknowledged as the "Queen of the New Spain Missions," San Jose Mission in southeastern San Antonio recently drew the attention of Texas Parks and Wildlife Commissioners.

Commissioners approved a "concept plan" as presented to them by department park planners and historians which calls for the full development of an interpretation program and cooperation with the Catholic Church, National Park Service and Historical Commission on the preservation and restoration of the 18th century mission.

San Jose y San Miguel de Aguayo Mission was founded by the Franciscans in 1720. It exerted a profound cultural influence on the Indians living in the northern portions of the New Spain Empire.

Tim was chosen on a competitive basis along with five other freshman students from Texas. They were selected according to SAT scores, high school grades, and curricular activities.

To maintain the scholarship, Tim will be aiding in public relations and recruitment services for WT.

Tim is also the recipient of a $200 scholarship to WT.

Landowner Control of Antelope Asked

AUSTIN -- If Parks and Wildlife Commissioners give approval, landowners in the Permian Basin and Tans-Pecos areas of Texas will have total authority over the harvest of buck antelope on their property during the regular hunting season this fall.

Abolition of antelope permits issued by the department to landowners in these two West Texas areas, has been asked.

Horace Vore of the department's wildlife staff explains that the permit system originated back in the 1940s when the hunting of a declining antelope population had to be carefully monitored.

"Now," he said, "herds have recovered substantially and landowners understand the value of a healthy herd and how to manage it through hunting."

Diminishing herds in the Panhandle due to habitat loss to agriculture demand a continued close supervision of the herds.

New Boats Must Be Registered

AUSTIN -- Gas shortages haven't hurt the sale of new boats so far this year, according to Parks and Wildlife Department boat registration officials.

Department officials remind owners of new boats that before they take to the water there are a few brief but important pieces of paper which are required by law for each new motorboat purchased in Texas.

If the boat is currently registered, the seller must prepare a bill of sale and give it to the buyer. The seller is required within 15 days to forward the name and address of the purchaser to the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Boat dealers are exempt from the 15-day notice to the department.

A new boat owner can either appear in person at any of the department's statewide offices or mail a completed and signed Boat Application Form (PWD form 309) to the Parks and Wildlife Department.

The forms are available either from the department or boat dealers.

Five different registration fees are charged depending on the size of the boat:

- Livery boats less than 16 feet in length, $3.
- Class A boats (less than 16 feet long), $6
- Class I boats (16 feet but less than 26 feet), $9.
- Class II boats (26 feet but less than 40 feet), $12.
- Class III boats (40 feet and over), $15.

A certification number with a "TX" prefix is assigned to the owner, which must be painted or affixed in some manner to either side of the bow.

These numbers are not supplied by the department but are available as either decals or stencils at large hardware stores.

"Once the numbers are affixed," said a department official, "and a certificate of number issued, then the boat may be operated on public waters."

A certificate of registration card will follow the application within two weeks.

Boats are registered for two years from date of issuance of the certificate.

While at the Parks and Wildlife Department office, pick up a "Digest of the Texas Water Safety Act," which summarizes state laws and requirements for motorboats.

Free copies of the "Texas Skippers' Course" are also available at most department offices. This is a popular home study course which goes into detail about safe boating.
