John Alderman—
Myers Quits—
The People Pay—
Sumners and Cotton—

THERE IS A HOME RULE AND local self government official in the city of Fort Worth who is for law and order and law enforcement. Police Commissioner John Alderman was one of the leaders of the reform forces in that city a year ago. He pledged law enforcement regardless of consequences. This police commissioner of Fort Worth has a strike situation to handle. He doesn't dodge or run away. He is the head of the police department and he has notified his men along these lines, "You are working for a law abiding citizenship. You get your instructions from me. I get mine from the people. If there is a man who can't carry out my instructions I want him to be a man and walk right out and say, 'I can't do it.' We've got to get a strict enforcement of the law without fear or favor. I will handle the strike situation personally. We do not want any lives lost and we are not going to have any lost."

POLICE COMMISSIONER ALDman did not evade or sidestep. He said he didn't need any United States regulars. He didn't need national guardsmen. He could handle the local situation without the assistance of President Harding or Governor Neff. He may be defeated for re-election next time but Police Commissioner John Alderman is on the job this time. There are sheriffs of every county of Texas. There are police commissioners of every city of the first class. If they were all John Aldermans there would be no lives lost and there would be law enforcement without the use of machine gun or bayonet.

LABOR COMMISSIONER JOS. S. Myers wired his resignation when the governor ordered troops to Denison. This was the wire, "With sincere regret I tender my resignation." Now why should Joseph S. Myers have tendered his resignation while the row was on? Why didn't he withhold his resignation and do all in his power to bring about a settlement of the strike as the labor representative of the state government. Joseph S. Myers bears the reputation of being a highly conscientious and conservative spokesman for organized labor. He may have had

HARDING HAS PLANS READY

Truce Proposals to Go to Executives

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—President Harding has reduced to writing and forwarded to the chief representative of the striking railway workers and the railroad executives his plan for settlement of the railroad strike, it was learned tonight from advisers of the executive.

The president's advisers were positive that the settlement plan, evolved by Mr. Harding from his conferences here this week with leaders of both parties to the controversy, had been forwarded preparatory to the meetings Tuesday in New York of executives and in Chicago of the union leaders. There, however, was no statement of any kind from the White House to reveal details of the plan.

Ready For Executives.

The settlement plan as reduced to written form, it is understood here, will be presented to the executives meeting to which 148 railroad officials have been invited by T. Dewitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway executives, and to the meetings of the strike leaders by B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor.

COAL STOCKS NOW IN HANDS OF OFFICIALS

Valuable Supply To Be Used Carefully

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Control of emergency coal distribution to individual consumers is entirely in the hands of state authorities except for railway coal, Secretary Hoover, chairman of the federal coal distribution committee, announced tonight.

The federal government, he stated, will limit is activities in coal distribution entirely to interstate questions. Principles embraced in the administration plan of coal distribution, Mr. Hoover explained, have been communicated to the governors of the states who are to adopt plans of their own in co-operation with the president's committee.

Distribution problems, he added, vary in different groups of states such as in New England, the middle Atlantic, Southern, middle west and northern lake states, so that there can be no uniform program, while the intermountain and Pacific states are able to look after themselves.

Coal Conserved

Conservation of the nation's coal supply within it's boundaries will be necessary, he declared and bunkering concerns along the Atlantic seaboard have been asked to bunker ships only to the next port of call and after August 1, to require foreign ships to bunker abroad for the round trip. Although coal is cheaper in American ports than abroad, he added, it could not be spared out of the country. Canadian consumers also, he said, have been warned to import coal from abroad for their use.

Coal exports, he asserted, would be held to a minimum during the emergency, no priorities being granted for the movement of coal to peoples who can supply themselves.

By Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., July 29.—Spasmodic firing at negroes and a search by hundreds of persons headed by sheriffs' deputies for "Cocky" Glover, a negro, followed the killing of Walter C. Byrd, a deputy sheriff and the wounding of three negroes here tonight in a shooting affray in a negro pool room.

The police urged all negroes to go to their homes after rescuing one from a downtown crowd and seeing others shot at, and it appeared that a race riot, which police feared had been averted.

The killing followed the entry into the pool room on Broadway of Deputy Byrd, accompanied by Deputies Romus and Will Jakes, the latter a negro, in search of a negro criminal. Glover, who police said they knew well, was accused of having shot Byrd in the back. Firing became general and when the smoke cleared away Byrd was dying and three negroes were wounded.

Many Arrests Made

A number of arrests were made in the pool room and search was begun that led to the Okmulgee river bottoms. Later police and deputies went through the negro sections looking for Glover, who had escaped from the pool room by leaping through a window.

The pool room was on a block of Broadway occupied almost entirely by negro business places and lodging houses and they were closed up by police orders and all negroes forbidden to show themselves in the block as a matter of precaution.

SHOP LEADERS CONFIDENT OF EARLY PEACE

Jewell Back From Washington Trip

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Leaders of the striking railway shopmen, returning from conferences with President Harding tonight expressed confidence that the walkout would be terminated as a result of meetings of railway executives and union committees next week to consider proposals submitted by President Harding. They also asserted that the strikers will return to work with their seniority rights unimpaired if they return at all.

Stepping from the second section of the Manhattan Limited, which was 45 minutes late, B. M. Jewell, head of the shop crafts' organization shook his head smilingly when newspaper men attempted to question him.

Jewel Silent

"I can't say a word, boys, not a single word," he said. He refused to term the outlook hopeful or otherwise but declared that "it was safe to assume" that the meeting of the shop crafts policy committee of 90 men here Tuesday was called to hear suggestions for terminating the strike.

Timothy Realy, president of the firemen and oilers' union, which is also on strike, was more communicative.

"We are all hopeful," he said, "that the walkout will be settled as a result of the meetings of railway executives in New York and union committees in Chicago next Tuesday."

Asked concerning the stage peace negotiations had reached, Mr. Healy said that "the case is in the hands of the president." He said the executive committee of the firemen and oilers would meet here Tuesday and "will go along with the shopmen."

Only Woman in Congress Is Confident of Being Re-Elected

By Associated Press.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., July 29.—Two years ago on an afternoon just before the national election Miss Alice M. Robertson, gray-haired, motherly, past 60, sat at a table in her cafeteria here and across a bowl of soup, she told a friend:

"I am going to congress."

She was elected and became the only women in the present congress. It was said of her—and she resented it—that she "rode to congress on a sea of soup."

This afternoon Miss Alice, her hair a little grayer, her stout figure as matronly, her sharp eyes no dimmer, sat in her hotel headquarters here, handed a friend a huge red and yellow peach and said:

"I shall serve another herm in congress."

"I shall serve another term in conover my opponent—Gus Tinche, oil man— and I shall defeat at the general election which ever of the democrats is nominated Tuesday." The democratic candidates for the nomination are Oscar Stewart, now superintendent of the Oklahoma school for the blind, and W. W. Hastings, whom she defeated for re-election two years ago.

"My campaign is finished," Miss Alice munched an equally huge red, yellow peach. "I have covered eight counties in eight days. I'll make no speech in Muskogee. If the folks here don't know me well enough——" and she smiled.

"I stand on my record" was her only campaign bromide.

She has read a verse from the bible before each of her campaign speeches and still maintains her standard of two years ago "a Christian, an American and a republican."

She has made no campaign promises and has not even referred to her fight against the soldier bonus bill, which opponents claim will cause her downfall.

Sunstroke Kills Electrical Engineer on Wichita Dam Site

Overcome by sunstroke while at the dam site of the Wichita Valley irrigation project early Friday afternoon, W. H. Seward, superintendent of construction of the electric power line just completed to the dam site, died in a Wichita Falls sanitarium Saturday morning. He was 48 years old and unmarried.

Mr. Seward had just completed the construction of the power line and was preparing to test it out for delivery when the blow came. He was out on the works at the dam site in the open and the sun was beating down unmercifully. Employes are said to have seen him reel and rushing to his found that he was completely overcome. He was given first aid treatment and brought to the hospital here. His brother, E. R. Seward of Dallas, was telegraphed for and arrived here during the morning. Every effort was made to save Mr. Seward's life but to no avail. He died before noon Saturday.

Mr. Seward is said to have constructed most of the big power lines in Texas. He was with the Fred Jones construction company of Dallas and served for years with the Texas Electric company of Dallas, having constructed most of their power lines. E. B. GUNNING FOR LODGE

Henry Cabot Lodge will have to "lick the whole Walker family" if he hopes to defeat Joseph Walker for the nomination in the Massachusetts primaries. For Walker has enlisted his son, Joseph R., as his campaign manager. If this father and son combination does oust Lodge it will have accomplished a feat at which other candidates have failed since 1893. Walker is a republican.

Wool Debates Make Stormy Session

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The question of whether senators are interested financially, as has been charged, in the duties on wool and other commodities where voted into the pending tariff bill, was brought up today in the senate and led to a long warm stormy debate. The discussion was opened by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, who offered a resolution proposing an investigation by the judiciary committee with a report to the senate twithin ten days.

Measure Knocked Out.

Mr. Caraway asked for unanimous consent for immediate consideration of the measure, but Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, objected not only to that, but to the introduction of the resolution. Thus, under the rules the measure did not come officially before the senate. Democratic leaders said privately that the resolution would be pressed later, while Senator Gooding, of Idaho, chairman of the republican agricultural tariff bloc, and a champion of the wool duty, declared to the senate that he would insist upon an investigation, which he charged had been proposed by the democrats for "political purposes."

The Idaho senator said he would "plead guilty" to owning a few sheep, while Senator Burrsom, republican, New Mexico, said it was no secret that he was a sheep raiser as he had told the senate before.

STATE TAXES TO BE MORE

75 Cents on Hundred Dollars in 1922

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 29. — The state tax rate for 1922 will be 75 cents on the $100. It was so fixed by the state automatic tax board in session today.

The tax rate is divided into 5 cents confederate pensions, 35 cents schools and 35 cents ad valorem tax. The latter was 22 cents in 1921 and was raised to 35 cents, the constitutional limit today.

The tax rate last year was 62 cents on the $100.

Schools Need Help

The tax board, composed of Governor Neff, Comptroller Smith and State Treasurer Terrell, announced that the raise was necessary "in order that proper provision be made for the public schools." To have lowered the rate would have "imperiled the efficiency of our school system," it was announced.

The decrease of $105,000,000 this year in assessed valuation of all taxable property as reported by the county tax assessors was given as one of the reasons for raising the rate. Another was the decrease in revenues under the gross receipts tax of $1,500,000. The increase this year of delinquent and unpaid taxes, almost doubling that of preceding years, was also pointed out as a necessity for raising the tax rate.

Deputy's Disguise Fails But the Moral Effect Was Good, Anyway

Maybe it's not in the record
Nobody's pinched. But say—
They'll think twice the next time
Before they act that way.
—Street Corner Ballads.

Deputy Sheriff Klusner smiles—in fact, he laughs out loud—every time he thinks of this little verse from "Street Corner Ballads." Listen.

A natty looking stranger entered the lobby of a local hotel. He stood, first in one corner, then in another. He smoked. He looked lonesome.

Finally a dusky-hued porter approached.

"Lookin' fo' somethin' to do boss?" he inquired.

"M-m-m-m," "Boss" replied.

"Lak to meet a swell lady, boss."

"M-m-m-m," again.

And the porter disappeared. In a minute he returned.

"Thas war, boss."

"Boss," removed his natty straw to wipe the perspiration from his forehead. Suddenly the porter woke up.

"Fo' de Lawd, it's Deputy Klusner," was the last thing he shouted, as he jumped through the second story window, carrying the glass with him. Two couples left the hotel a few minutes later.

"Too bad my disguise didn't work," says the deputy. And then he smiles again. He must be thinking of the poem.

FISH FRY GIVEN BANK OFFICERS

City National Folks Have Big Time

Fish, all kinds and lots of 'em, were served the officers, employes and some of the friends of the City National Bank of Commerce at a fish fry held at the farm of "Uncle Dick" and "Aunt Susie" Crowell, in Archer county, last night.

Starting in the afternoon, when eight of the party, O. A. Jones, T. A. Key, Hy Robertson, R. E. Shepherd, Eddie Perdue, Carl Schryweiss, "Uncle Dick" and Ralph Crowell, caught the fish. They were caught on the Crowell farm.

After several hours of feasting, R. E. Shepherd led the crowd in some singing. Little Elizabeth Langford gave a reading entitled "Husbands," which presented the feminine view of what a husband really is. Although she met with loud applause from the wives of the party, a few of the husbands did not seem to appreciate the humor, of the piece.

Biographies of several of the leading officials of the bank, containing illuminating side-lights on their careers which had heretofore remained a secret to their wives, were read.

Eddie Perdue presented a number of readings which were well received.

Among those enjoying the party were, P. P. Langford and family; J. T. Harrell and family; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Robertson; Leslie Humphries and family; C. E. Basham and family; O. A. WOMEN FIGHT TO WIN MEN, ASSERTS DOCTOR

(By International News Service.)

LONDON, July 29.—"Men no longer fight to win women, but women fight to win men," said Dr. Josiah Oldfield, well known doctor and lawyer, in a lecture to the Eclectic Club.

"Women put on bright colors to win the favor of sober-hued and coy man. Since woman cannot imitate the supreme radiance of a bird's plumage she does the next best thing and dons jazz jumpers, dazzling dresses and scintillating silk stockings, surmounted by an indefinite variety of hats of every hue."

a reason which would excuse his hasty action. If he did, he failed to take the public into his confidence. "With sincere regret" he jumped the job.

UNCLE SAM HAS MADE FINAL settlement with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway and paid over five million dollars to the receiver. Jones may not be aware of it but he paid the five millions.

CONGRESSMAN HATTON W. Sumners of the Dallas district is an economic and not a political statesman. Whenever there is a political row of any kind on, Congressman Sumners knows that the water isn't fine and he never wets his feet. He dreams of cotton; he talks about cotton; he studies the cotton situation, he makes known his views through the press and he spits cotton when the mercury registers 110 in the shade with no shade in sight. He was born on a farm in Tennessee. He came to Texas and attempted to work on a farm in Dallas county. He revolted against the idea and pursued the law, finally landing in the lower house of congress where he has been hammering away on cotton and kindred topics ever since. Congressman Sumners, now that the July primary is over, has been heard from. He says there is but one big economic problem confronting the south at this time and that is the proper selling of the cotton crop. He rang the bell when he said it.

THERE ARE TWO MILLION southern families engaged in the production of cotton. Cotton is the southern staple of world commerce. Cotton is the crop that introduces the new money to the south. All the bankers are interested in cotton and the price paid for the fleecy staple. All the merchants are intetrested in cotton and the price paid. All the manufacturers of farm implements are interested. When the farmer is prosperous the south is prosperous. When the farmer hits the toboggan, there is rank pessimism everywhere. Cities do not make a nation or its civilization. All the wealth comes from the soil. There may be club men and others in the cities and towns who imagine that they are the creators of wealth. They have "another think coming." Congressman Sumners makes the prediction that if an American crop of thirteen million bales is raised the price should be good as the world supply which is left will be practically exhausted by market time, and he insists that all the nation is willing that the south should get a good price for its cotton. Right here he wandered from the path of accuracy. Business is business. All the cotton mill owners of America and the world are willing to buy cotton at as low a price as they can get it or the agents or the gamblers can hammer the price down. It goes without saying that the manufacturer hopes to get cotton at a very low price and that the producer hopes to get a fancy price for his product. There is a way to get it, if the producer is wise. Cotton should be gradually marketed. There should be a holding movement. Farmers should stand together. They should not hurl the stuff upon the market and play into the hands of the gamblers.

Sound Sleeper! Locked in Garage He Never Wakes Up

Readers of the Record News in nearby towns near missed their paper Saturday morning.

No, the paper was not late, but went to press on time, but when the mail was made up, the driver of the "hack" was nowhere to be found. His car was parked in the customary place, but locked and no key.

A borrowed car served the purpose, but where was the driver?

Finally someone remembered seeing the youth sleeping in the rear seat of one of the employe's cars parked along side the office.

A telephone call to the home of the proof-reader, in whose car the missing employe was last seen, revealed the fact that he was safe and sound.

Though driven several blocks, down the driveway and into the garage, the sleeper did not wake. Nor did the equally surprised driver discovered is passenger. But the sleeper was safe. Safely locked in the garage, he had little chance to escape had he waked of his own accord.

Other members of the force secured a car and went to the home of the proof-reader and returned with the "missing," much to his chagrin.

DRY AGENTS FIND DIRT IN HOME BREW

(By International News Service.)

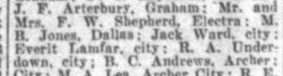

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 29—Variety is the spice of life, the adage says, but bootleggers here apply "variety" as being the spice of liquor.

Prohibition agents examining hundreds of specimens of home-made intoxicants have found everything from deadly filth to animal life among the ingredients.

In all containers of home-made "hooch" and wines dirt and impurities were found in varying amounts. In some instances as high as 16 per cent of the contents was filth. One quantity of moonshine was alive with roaches, and in another "supply" four dead rats were found.

After all, the one-piece bathing suit depends on the size of the piece.

FLOOD CONTROL MEETINGS PLANNED

By Associated Press.

SAN BENITO, Texas, July 29.—Irrigation districts and privately operated watering systems in the Rio Grande valley have united with citizens of Willacy county in devising a program of flood control to prevent a recurrence of the recent flood which swept away ten per cent of the cotton, corn and other crops in the upper sections of the valley.

Plans are going forward as a result of recent conferences on the plan for flood control, according to leaders of the movement and the complete program will be submitted to federal reclamation officials in the near future and to the conference at Austin on August 7, called by Governor Neff, to consider flood control plans for the entire state.

DENISON, Tex., July 29.—Denison tonight awaited with equanimity and with the same calm that has characterized the town folks since rangers and national guardsmen were sent here, the arrival of the second battalion of the 142nd., nifantry fo the Texas national guard.

Major Claude Adams, third battalion commander said tonight he would have military police on duty Sunday night.

Up to tonight the Katy road has brought to Denison approximately 400 men since last Monday morning. Of this number there has been a turnover of about 25 per cent, it is said.

Some officers who were brought here from Parsons, Kan., have asked to be returned to their old places there, claiming that under the system in effect in Parsons their work is more pleasant than the outlook presented in Denison.

KLAN ISSUES FACE OKLAHOMA

Hot Race Now on for Governor

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 29.—With lines being drawn on economic issues and under-surface shifts on the ku klux klan, Oklahoma has entered into the final stages of one of the most rarified primary campaigns in the history of the state.

Interest in the outcome of the three-cornered race for the democratic nomination for governor, virtually obscures the contests for congress and state offices in the three parties entered, democratic, republican and socialists.

The klan issue has been brought forward recently with publication of slates purporting to have been issued by the organization. R. H. Wilson, state superintendent of public instruction, is marked in the alleged klan lists as the "right" candidate for the democratic gubernatorial nomination; Thomas H. Owen, former justice of the state supreme court, is characterized as "fair," while the klan definitely blacklists Mayor J. C. Walton of Oklahoma City, the other contender for democratic gubernatorial endorsement.

Walton, a life-long democrat, has the endorsement of the farmer-labor reconstruction league, a professed non-partisan organization with platworm characterized by the opposition "state socialism."

EVEN NEW YORK SORE AT TRADE

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 29—A statement that a local hotel manager had informed him three or four New York men had expressed hope that the local Americans would win the pennant this year was made public today by Paul V. Bunn, general secretary of the chamber of commerce, in replying to Harry Frazee's statement on the recent New York-Boston deal.

At the same time Mr. Bunn denied that the protest by the chamber of commerce against mid-season deals in major leagues had been inspired by or that it had particularly reference to St. Louis and it's pennant chances. Mr. Bunn asserted the protest was made in general in order to prevent money from becoming the deciding factor in the pennant race.

"Thursday one of the hotel managers in St. Louis called me up stating that there were three or four New York men stopping at his hotel and they all were so disgusted that they expressed the hope that St. Louis would win the pennant from their own home town," he said.

"Hands Up" Didn't Mean Anything To Deaf Negro

He was just an employe of the bank a trusted employe, and had been for years.

Because he could neither hear nor talk was no fault of his own, but it nearly caused him trouble one night last week.

A guardian of law and order was making a tour of inspection through the basement of the building at a late hour and discovered the negro employe asleep. The flash of a pocket lantern awakened the sleeper and as he gazed into the muzzle of a "revolver."

When commanded to "reach for 'em," it didn't mean a think to him. Nor could he declare his circumstance.

Realizing the predicament he was in, the negro began to try to get to his keys that he might, through sign language, make the "we" understand the "reaching" toward a pocket.

Finally after a few minutes of suspense on the part of both, the negro was permitted to secure the keys from the depths of a pocket, and by this means, satisfied the officer of his authority to be there.

The officer was one of the oldest on the city force, and the negro is well known to other policemen. The two became acquainted under trying circumstances.

HEAVY STORM HITS NEBRASKA

Property Loss Goes to Big Figures

By Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., July 29.—Thousands of dollars property loss, washed out railroad tracks and bridges and flooded streams, streets and basements resulted today from rain of a cloudburst proportions, which was general over Nebraska and parts of Iowa last night.

All train service on the Omaha railroad between Norfolk and Sioux City, Iowa, has been suspended because of washouts on that line and other Nebraska towns in the vicinity are without train service, tracks being washed out on both sides of some cities.

A train carrying about 100 passengers was stranded about three miles north of Carroll, Neb., when tracks to the rear and ahead were washed out, but what disposition has been made of the passengers could not be learned here.

Kiwanians Plan Big Time Monday

Oh, yes, Ben is back.

And he is writing all the Kiwanians a letter.

Some say he is just doing this to get on friendly terms with the local club members to keep them from using that barrel of tar they ordered recently.

But Ben declares that he is doing it because Frank Quisser is out of the city on business.

Anyway, Benjamin says there will be a rousing time at the Kiwanis luncheon Monday. For instance, Harry Naylor will give an attendance prize, Dan Ludien will distribute the "silent boost" and the entertainment committee will bring a goodly lore of pleasure for the membership to enjoy.

And then, Ben will be there himself, so that will liven up things considerably.

"P. S." Ben writes, "don't forget that delegates will be elected to the district convention," at the meeting Monday.

IOWA PARK IS AFTER LOAFERS

Langford Declares War on Idle

Police Commissioner Longford of Iowa Park has declared war on vagrants and transients. It has been their practice, he says, to stop in Iowa Park when the police in Wichita Falls and the oil fields made it too hot for them there and he issues warning that they will find a like reception when they come to Iowa Park. Tramps and transients of either sex will be put to work on the streets if they do not find honest work.

The past week has been a busy one for the officers as an unusually large number of undesirables have passed through going to the oil fields. Several drunks have paid fines or are working on the road, while vagrants are being escorted from town and put on their way. Three dope users were taken up by the officers and fined, after which they were told to leave Iowa Park and keep moving.

Commissioner Longford has ordered the officers to take up all loafers, both local and transient, who refuse to work. This list includes young "jelly beans," wsa make it their practice to stand on the streets as well as any other undesirable characters. POLICE COURT HAS BAD DAY FOR FINES

Police court simmered down Saturday morning to one of the shortest days on record.

A total of only one case was tried during the morning session, a woman charged with vagrancy. She was discharged on the face of the evidence submitted.

The woman had been arrested in a local hostelry, where it was alleged that she was conducting herself in a manner that caused charges of vagrancy to be brought against her.

Sinclair Hits Oil In No 1 Kissinger

Prepare to Shoot Well With Hole Half Full Of Oil; Tyrell Oil Co. Gets 300-Barrel Well.

Drilling into a second sand, the top of which was entered at 2595 feet, the Sinclair Oil & Gas company's No. 1 Kissinger, north of the river from the older producers, and looked upon for an extension of the Herron pool, Saturday was standing half way full of oil, from the top of the new sand, and considered more promising than at any time since the 2,500-foot level was reached. It is now preparing for a shot.

The first sand was not tested, but was good for a pumper of fair size. The new sand, found by drilling slightly deeper, will be drilled in. The showing when the sand was first drilled is said to be unusually good, since the sand is very hard.

Deep Sand Struck

This extension across the river, and the opening up of a 3,100-foot sand, said to be a real oil sand, were among the most important developments of the week in the Young county territory. The new deep sand is in the No. 1 Bob Williams of the Tyrell Oil corporation. This well is reported a 300-barrel well.

The other new wells on the Herron tract are reported in process of completion, and showing up for nice production. Both of these, the Wells and Spelling No. 1 Herron, and the Meeks et al No. 1 Herron, are in the 2,500-foot sand, and are showing up for 250 to 300-barrel production.

Around Foster Well.

That part of the field immediately adjacent to the town of Bunger, brought into notice by the big well of Fred B. Foster on the Mehaney, is exceedingly active. The Foster well continues to hold up its production nicely, it is reported and the Mehaney well of Harry Byrens, where the rig was burned several days ago, continues to flow by heads, as the rig is being repaired.

Drilling has begun on the Foster No. 2 Mehaney, and the Foster No. 4 Pois, southeast corner offset to the No. 1 Mehaney, is starting operations.

Northeast of the town of Bunger the Colpen Oil & Gas company has made location for its No. 2 J. L. Rhodes.

The No. 1 Rhodes of the Colpen company, is southeast of the Foster well.

The Union Oil company No. 1 Grantham is a new test northwest of the Foster-Mehaney well, and is northeast of the Byrens well.

SHALLOW SAND HIT IN MONTAGUE COUNTY

Considerable interest has been aroused in this district by the striking of a sand at 780 feet in the Petroleum Producers company's wildcat, nine miles north of Nocona, the first test in Montague county to get a showing under 2,000 feet. The sand has just been touched, it is reported, and is showing several million feet of gas. The 12½-inch casing is being under-reamed, and the sand will be drilled into with a large hole. A test will be possible in the next few days, it was believed on Saturday.

PARIS HATS

By Associated Press.

PARIS, July 29.—Autumn hats for general wear are of medium size in Paris. They have a rather high crown and a fairly narrow brim. The crown of the men's hats vary. The brim has several different twists and turns. One form of brim rolls back on the left side and turns down the right, completely hiding the ear. Another small brim turns down all the way round just shading the face. Black and bronze are the favorite colors and pannevelvet the material mostly used. The trimming consists of big coux of either velvet or ribbon in some bright sade.

Such hats are suitable with tailor-made suits for the morning walk. They are, however, a good accompaniment for a more elaborate dress of the afternoon party. The tam o'shanter is also returning.

Old Soldiers Plan Reunion

Stonewall Jackson Camp, old soldiers, will hold their big annual reunion one mile south of Holliday, August 2, 3 and 4. There will be a rodeo barbecue and other events to entertain the crowd. More people are expected to attend this year than ever before. Candidates in the run-off campaign will speak. Preparations are being made for the biggest gathering in the history of the camp.

MESSENGER BOY HITS IT RICH

PARIS, July 29.—A messenger boy of the Paris stock exchange went to work the other day with ten francs in his pocket. He returned home to lunch a millionaire. He looked like a boy who had just raided an apple orchard when he lugged away what seemed to be a large fortune.

There were bills bulging from every pocket but since they were nothing but rubles and Austrian crowns, the boy cannot retire from business until Europe's ailing finances have been cured.

FORMER RECORD MAN LOSES BRAND NEW CAR

Why pick on a poor ex-newspaper man?

But somebody did just that and with no explanation.

Norris Ewing, formerly of the Record News parked a new Buick roadster in front of Kimberlin's last night about 8:30 and returning less than 10 minutes later, found "one Buick no got."

On either side of the body and near the fenders, the car bore the name of United Royalties company.

The theft was reported to police headquarters immediately, but at a late hour, nothing had been heard regarding it.

FEMININE OLYMPICS

PARIS, July 29.—"The femine olympics" is the name given to the international women's meet in Pershing stadium on August 20. From the time it was officially announced that a strong American women's team was entered in addition to teams from Italy, Belgium, England, Czecho-Slovakia, Finland, Switzerland and Scandinavian countries the interest has been most marked.

The government is taking official cognisance of the meet through Gaston Vidal, under secretary of state for ports.

OHIO DEPUTIES SWORN IN FOR STRIKE DUTY

Deputy U. S. marshals, who will act as the eyes of the federal court in Cleveland in all districts where injunctions have been issued restraining strikers from interfering with railroads and mines, are being sworn in in Cleveland. It is planned to station at least thirty deputies throughout the northern district of Ohio within the court's jurisdiction.

FREDERICK HAS BOY SCOUT CAMP

Business Men Help Finance Outing

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 29.—Frederick believes in the work of the boy scouts. Not only do the business men believe in it, but they back it up. Early Monday morning 50 boys will be uniformed, with their packs strapped on, ready for the citizens to take them to Cratersville dam, where they expect to enjoy a week's outing. When the weeks' stay is over, the citizens will be back there ready to haul them home. John Russell, Merell Russell and Ernest Guyer, scoutmasters of troops one, two and three, respectively, stated that the best times in the history of the scouts were planned. Not only will there be swimming and fishing but athletic games will also be staged.

The boys are to stay in the scouts' Masonic dormitory which will cost them $7.00 each. All expenses are included in this. The Frederick business men agreed to pay half of it providing the boys nearned the rest, and they did. John Mounts, real estate agent, and George McLellan, undertaker, are to accompany the boys on the week's stay as representatives of the business men.

We no longer hear a cry of "shortage," About the only think the world is out of at this time is luck.

Wichita Boy Is Culver Coxwain

Jerome J. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Kennedy, of the Kemp hotel, was a member of the crew which represented Culver Military institute in the aquatic carnival staged on Lake Michigan last week.

Young Kennedy was coxswain of his crew, which had considerable mention and photographic space devoted to it by Chicago daily papers. He is now attending the Culver summer camp, but will probably spend a short time with his parents in Wichita Falls before the opening of the fall school season.

DEVIL FISH SCARE FRENCH RESORTS

By Associated Press.

PARIS, July 29.—Devil fishes, appearing in immense schools at the French seaside seaside resorts in Normandy and Brittany, have caused pleasure seekers there to stick close to the shore and sent cold shivers up and down the backs of such fair frequenters of the fashionable watering places as dared to go into the water.

The octopus fleet is said to have been driven landward by the unusually low temperature of the water.

Swimmers of both sexes have been frequently seen making a frantic exit from the water, seized by the idea that a slimy tentacle tried to grip a leg or an arm.

MONTE CARLO WIZARD DIES IN POVERTY

By Associated Press.

PARIS, July 29.—Charles Deville Wells, the "man who broke the bank of Monte Carlo," and hero of the celebrated song heard wherever the English language was spoken in the early nineties, died in Paris on June 22, in such adject poverty that his death has passed unnoticed until now, more than a month afterward. He was 81 years old.

Wells, after a record run of luck at Monte Carlo, soon became a bankrupt. He had many other vicissitudes including several terms in jails and penitentaries in England and France, for obtaining money under false pretenses. He used to blossom out with many get-rich-quick schemes.

MARINES GO TO "TEAPOT DOME"

Squatters Must Give Up Holdings

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Acting Secretary Roosevelt today ordered General Lejeune, commandant of the marine corps, to send one officer and three or four enlisted marines into the Teapot dome naval oil reserve, Wyoming, at a place about 40 miles from Casper, to eject oil squatters who have begun drilling for oil.

The secretary said he issued his orders on the basis of information forwarded to the navy department by the interior department some months ago of the presence of the squatters on the naval reserve and after warning had been given the squatters to vacate.

Think It Over.

The head of the group of squatters, Secretary Roosevelt said, had as late as today, notified the navy department that he would "like to think it over" before abandoning his drilling. Mr. Roosevelt added that after consultation with officials of the interior department he had decided that the time had passed for "thinking it over" and so issued his order to General Lejeune.

Asked as to the number of marines to be sent to the Teapot dome reserve, Mr. Roosevelt said he had informed General Lejeune that he thought one officer and a handful of men would be sufficient to eject the squatters.

TO MOVE UNDER PROTEST, CHIEF SAYS.

By Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., July 29.—S. H. Keoghan, vice president of the Mutual Oil company, announced late today that he had been advised from Washington that United States marines have been ordered by the navy department to eject representatives of the company from the southeast quarter of section 29 in the Tea Pot dome naval oil reserve in Wyoming where they are drilling a well.

"If United States marines appear on property and order us to leave, we will leave, but under protest," Mr. Keoghan stated.

"The Mutual Oil company is operating under a contract with individuals who have a clear title to this quarter section," Mr. Keoghan declared. "The title dates back to 1898 and was granted by the United States government under the placer laws.

DOCTOR ORDERED WOMAN OBEYED

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and is Now Well

Chicago, Illinois. — "You surely gave women one good medicine when you put Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on the market. After I had my baby I was all run down and so nervous it kept me from gaining. My doctor did everything he could to build me up, then he ordered me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with his medicine and I am now a new woman. I have had three children and they are all Lydia E. Pinkham babies. I have recommended your medicine to several friends and they speak highly of it. You are certainly doing good work in this world." —Mrs. ADRITH TOMSHECK, 10557 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

There is nothing very strange about the doctor directing Mrs. Tomsheck to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. There are many physicians who do recommend it and highly appreciate its value.

Women who are nervous, run down, and suffering from women's ailments should give this well-known root and herb medicine a trial. Mrs. Tomsheck's experience should guide you towards health.

This Order is an institution of Chivalry, Humanity, Justice and Patriotism, embodying in its genius and principles all that is chivalric in conduct, noble in sentiment, generous in manhood and patriotic in purpose; its peculiar objects being: First—to protect the weak, the innocent, and the defenseless, from the indignities, wrongs and outrages of the lawless, the violent and the brutal; to relieve the injured and oppressed; to succor the suffering and unfortunate, especially worthy widows and orphans. Second—To protect and defend the Constitution of the United States of America, and all laws passed in conformity thereto, and to protect the States and the people thereof from all invasion of their rights thereunder from any source whatsoever. Third—To aid and assist in the execution of all constitutional laws.

IT STANDS FOR

AMERICA FIRST: First in thought, First in affections, and First in the galaxy of Nations.

BENEVOLENCE: In thought, word and deed based upon Justice and practically applied to all. To right the wrong; to succor the weak and unfortunate; to help the worthy and to relieve the distressed.

CLANISHNESS: Real Fraternity practically applied — standing by and sticking to each other in all things honorable.

WHAT IT IS: It is a standard fraternal order promulgating fraternal conduct, and not merely a "social association."

The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is founded upon dependable character It is not an ultra-exclusive institution, but its membership is composed of picked men, who are investigated before being accepted. Enrolled among its members are thousands of the best-known business and professional men, ministers, statesmen, authors and educators.

Only native-born American citizens who believe in the tenets of the Christian religion and owe no allegiance of any degree or nature to any foreign government, nation, political institution, sect, people or cannot swear an unqualified allegiance to the Government of the United States of America, its flag and its constitution.

No man is wanted in this Order who does not esteem the Government of the United States of America above any other government, civil, political or ecclesiastical in the whole world.

Because certain individuals at various times have committed acts of violence under cover of darkness and shielded by masks and robes somewhat resembling the official regalia of the Ku Klux Klan, they have been classed as members of this organization. The Ku Klux Klan is a strictly law-abiding organization, and every member is under solemn oath to uphold the law at all times.

The growth of the Ku Klux Klan has been nothing less than marvelous. It now covers practically every city and town in the United States, numbering hundreds of thousands of real American men.

Spudders Defeat Exporters and Make It Nine Straight

KEENE SMASHES COMPASS OF SHIPPERS AND COURSE GOES WIDE OF SPUDDERVILLE PORT

Skipper Mathes Leads Deck Hands Through Nine Listless Innings; Spud Hurler Has Easy Time as Mates Stack Up Many Runs Early in Game; Beaumont Entry Changed.

By "SPIKE" COOPER

Continuing the drive which has netted nine straight games and 15 out of the last 17 played, the Spudders walloped the Beaumont Exporters yesterday afternoon, 7-3. The game was a lifeless affair and neither pitcher exerted himself.

The Spudders counted their markers in the second and fourth rounds, and from then on, Keene eased up except in the pinches and held the Exporters at will. Jacobus was fairly effective, but did not show the old-time flash that has marked other showings here.

Keene started strong but after the Spudders chased across five markers in the second, he eased up and teased the visitors along. In the seventh he was touched for a couple of knocks and a sacrifice fly together with a free pass, netting the exporters a pair of markers. A hit batsman and two singles in the ninth got another, but the rally was short lived.

Fans encouraged Jacobus continually and good natured repartee directed at him and his boss, Joe Mathis, afforded about the only excitement of the day, except f orthe hitting spree in the second when the Spudders garnered their first five counters.

Each club knocked off a double play, and as the Beaumonters finished theirs, they were granted a big hand. But Jacobus was the fav orite. He was applauded on each and every trip to the plate, and as he smashed a double for a starter in the seventh he was stormed.

Spec Comstock saw the game from the stand, having arrived earlier in the day from San Angelo. He is taking a five-day vacation by request following a forceful argument with Umpire Davis Friday. Many rumors that he had been called in for a trade to take center, and what not, were denied by Manager Salm

Tex McDonald again took a regular position with the club, donning the sun glasses in right.

Few Long Hits.

Although there were two dozen base hits in the game, only two went for extra bases. In the first round Adams tripled to center when Allen let a drive get away. Then in the seventh Jacobus lammed a double to right center that went to the fence. Joe Mathes hit to the fence in right over McDonald's head in the seventh, but was held at first when Tex player the ball with a rush

Two Games Today.

Both teams are lining up for a double bill today. Pitching nominations are doubtful, but the visitors will likely use Morris and probably Humphries if his arm is not sore. In case he can not work, Lurid Lon may take the hill. Salm has Wheeler, Ruth, Moknn, Ramsey and Perdue that he can depend on for the job.

The Spudders failed to alter their position in the column due to the fact that Hub Northern's Bears were blanked in Fort Worth. Dallas hangs on the heels of the Spudders with persistence and are but half a game away. There is due to be a change somewhere within the next four days The Spudders stand an excellent chance to cop three more, while Fort Worth might drop a contest or two to the South Texas entry Dallas has Houston to deal with for two more games and will not likely sweep the series as did the Spuds, despite the recent trade which added three good men to their roster.

RNS HIS WAY WITH HIS FISTS

ıting Spirit Wins Blondy Cross an Education

th is always stranger than fic-hat many years ago in San An-him a pair of boxing gloves, and primarily, because if he doesn't ly. He started into the game be-he had to. There was no other ssibly there's many a good unen story lurking in the corner of of them that creep out. And dy, himself, is a modest boy. He part of the story—the rest you he was expelled.

Father Disinherits Him

nd then his father, P. G. Cross, was at that time a minister living Wichita Falls, wrote him that he here are some people who would e up if their parents disinherited

m. But not so with "Smiling ndy," He was born with "fight-blood"—the kind that H. C. Wit-writes about. And he didn't get ry when his dad shoved him out the world to beat on. He just put the old smile that has caused sevl fast scrappers to worry, and rted out to make his own way.
But Blondy couldn't juggle figs, and at selling groceries he was good wash-woman."

"Fighting Through."

Then he looked his mitts over, and thought struck him that he might ake his way on through college—hting. He had never entered the nared arena in his life. In fact, hadn't had many fist fights prior his ring debut. And the boys say hasn't had many since, for a per-tly good reason.
Blondy tells it himself. He went to a Business Men's Athletic club in rt Worth—not far from where he is a fresh in college, and asked to e put on." The boxing promoter oked him over, and then he laughed.
"You can't fight, kid," Blondy serts he was told.
And it was just his luck to be tried t with a big negro buck, who was at at time a trainer in the club. But me fortune smiled on Blondy about at time, and the negro unfortu-tely broke an arm during the melee at followed.
It was in December, 1918, that ruce Cross, then unknown to the lood-thirsty fight fans of Panther ity, stepped in the roped square, and ced his first gladiator. It was "Kid" oldie, and the scrap was a "prelim."

Wins His First Fight

Whether dame fortune was still ith Cross is not known, but in the cond round of a scheduled threeound clash, Goldie had pleasant reams on the mat, while the referee ounted 10. And Cross won his first ght.
He also won a name—"Smiling londy"—because he had smiled all he way through with the "Kid."
He had struck his mark then. A ark that was to carry him on hrough college after an A. B. degree, nd possibly after some higher mark n the world of journalism, for londy has a nack for writing news, d an ambition to become a writer.
Blondy admits that he tried to erce the use of a nom de plume, but ame fortune had quit him then, and hen he announced himself as "Smilng Blondy Chandler," everybody alled him Cross. And he's been alled that ever since.

Winning a Name

A year and a half of fighting before he roughest and the tamest crowds, nd against the toughest and the easiest scrappers followed, and then "Pop" Boone, noted sports scribe of he Fort Worth Record sat down one lay and wrote:

"He wasn't any champion,
"And he didn't claim to be;
"As a scientific boxer
"He wasn't one, two, three.
"But when he donned the padded mitts
"And stepped into the ring,
"The fans were always certain
"To hear the old gloves sing.
"He never offered alibis
"When some boy beat him out.
"In fact, he mostly lost his scraps,
"But he made 'em step about.
"He didn't haggle over weights—
"He took 'em as they came—
"And that's the sort of scrapers
"That make the boxing game.

The worst scrap Blondy ever had was when he met Pat Murphy of California. Pat floored Cross 40 seconds after the fight started, and the referee counted Blondy out, though he arose to his feet during the count of 10. And then, as Blondy says, "we met again," and Pat had the privilege of flooring the plucky scrapper a couple of times. But in the sixth round, Pat had had enough, and he threw up the sponge, to the delight of the fans who carried Blondy off his feet.

Several good boys have faced Blondy—he has scrapped Bobbie Waugh, the Fort Worth Bear Cat, on a number of occasions, and only a week ago he faced Lee Morrissey, who himself in a whirlwind.

But even if his hands are "lily white," and his face as good to look at as an Arrow collar model, Blondy lives up to his name when he's in the ring. He always smiles.

A "Game Guy."

When Morrissey had floored him several nights ago over at Electra, Cross came up with that old smile that has won him victory before, walked over to the opponent's corner, grasped his hand and said:

"Pardner, you've got a good punch."

All in all, Blondy has faced 35 scrappers, and he's only been counted out twice. Several times he's been knocked down, but that is what helped to win his name, because invariably he came up smiling, and fought on through.

He has trouble with his left eye when he's in the ring, and he has a soft heart for the other fellow when he's an onlooker from the ringside—he admits himself that he just can't help but feel sorry for the boy who's getting a drubbing in the arena while Blondy is a spectator. And the main reason is that he's been in the same boat, he says, and he "knows just how it feels to take a beating in the good old way."

But some day Blondy won't have much more trouble with his left eye. And he'll probably be trying out left and right slams on a typewriter, pounding out some interesting yarn, rather than tryin out right and left hooks in some big ring.

Cross quits T. C. U. this year. Then he is going to Texas university. He will complete his journalistic studies there, and obtain his A. B., and there's little doubt but that he will, either, for Blondy has already made some strides in this section, and he's taking the same fighting spirit to varsity with him that he took to Electra recently.

SPIKING 'EM

Top o' the Morning Musings At Mush With One Joseph Cooper, Esq., Otherwise Known As Just Plain Spike.

From the chamber of commerce in St. Louis comes a condemnation of the recent deal between the Yanks and Red Sox whereby many figure the Gothamites strengthened their club in the throes of a crucial series.

The commercial organization bewails the fact that the great and grand old game is rapidly becoming a race between the assets of each set of club heads, that winning pennants is becoming a matter of purchase.

Maybe their argument is well and good, but suffice to say, seven other clubs in the American and eight in the National might have obtained Joe Dugan for the price.

But now, the metropolis harboring the organization making such a kick over the trade is wrapped up head over heels in a certain national league manager who is lauded in the river town as the greatest in his loop. The St. Louis bugs think there are none like Branch Rickey. Maybe they're right, but only a couple of days ago, Rickey, in the "crucial" series with the Giants at a time when the two teams were battling for the lead, started a rookie against McGraw's clan.

A college hurler picked up barely three weeks ago made his debut at that time, a time above all others when the ability of a player should have been established. This hurler pitched to three hitters, but enough runs were scored off his delivery to win the game. He was jerked as quickly as possible, but it was too late.

Yet the same town that would criticize a team of strengthening its own team does not get on a manager of that type.

Rickey may be a good manager, but he captured only one game of the series that might have put the Cardinals on top.

Boss Salm of the Spudders has obtained the services of Clarence "Pop Boy" Smith as a scout for the remainder of the season. He reported Thursday ready for his job. "Pop" Boy" is one who knows ball players, for he's been studying them all his life.

But his start in the game was one of the most peculiar of all players.

Back in 1910 Carlton Molesworth was struggling along with a tail-ender because the pitching had gone bad. There was a young fellow selling pop in the grand stand. Occasion presented itself and the youngster declared himself able to win. Moler heard his speech and offered the boy a chance, saying "If you've got the guts, so have I." The next day Clarence Smith took the mound for Birmingham and won. Thus budded the career of C. A. "Pop Boy" Smith.

The following year Smith was sent to Anniston, Ga., but was recalled before the end of the season. After one year in the Southern, Smith was sold to the White Sox where for two years he was the terror of the league and many said he had 'the best curve ball in the league."

But the career of the youngster was doomed to a short span. Health failed after two years under the big top, and "Pop Boy" had to quit.

Three years ago, when the West Texas league was organized, Smith was obtained to manager the Sweetwater entry. The following year he took the Ranger team and went as manager when the franchise was transferred to Ballinger. Then when the 1922 season opened, "Pop Boy" was back at Sweetwater again where he fought for a winner during the first half but lost by a few games. For some unknown reason, Smith resigned that post and is now to scour the bushes for the Spudders for 1923.

Welcome, "Pop Boy."

There's lots of talk over the Leonard-Tendler fight. Many predict that the next meeting will see Tendler the winner, while others say Leonard will have an easy time.

Well, there are two sides to the fight, and two sides to the next one.

There will be another, for Leonard wants to knock the challenger out as he predicted he would in the last. Benny seldom makes a rash statement that he can't back up as a champion. He said he'd knock him out in the seventh, but didn't. He'll want another chance to show he "knows his stuff."

But Lefty Lew, he knows now he didn't win the crown this time. He licked the champion all over the ring for the first four rounds, but couldn't stand the pace, and because he weakened, Leonard evened the fight and some say took a slight edge by his work in the last four stanzas.

SUMMA LEADS LEAGUE IN HITS

Spudder Fielder Is Also First in Runs

Homer Summa and Mike Massey are tied for leadership of the Texas league according to averages compiled including games of Wednesday. Having participated in more than twice the number of games, Summa is readily accepted as the real leader, the Cobb and Hornsby of the Lone Star loop.

With 153 healthy pokes, the Spudder gardener is leading in the race for the 200 mark for the season. Rader, recently acquired by Dallas, with 140 hits, is his nearest opponent. Summa is also leading in runs, having crossed the plate with 95 markers already this season.

Kraft still leads the home run club with 18, and Ezzell of Shreveport has run his base stealing up to 40.

The Spudders show eight hitters above the .300 mark. Beaumont shared that honor until the recent deal which took Rader and DeMaggio from their roster which weakened the hitting strength of their club. Of the other teams, Houston has seven, San Antonio, Galveston and Shreveport four each, and Fort Worth and Dallas three each in the "300" club. In other words, the Spudders are outhitting the league.

Leading pitchers have had a hard week and there is downward trend among the leaders. Wachtel, with 17 victories, is easily the king winner.

Larry Cheney tops the loop in strike-outs with 90 and should pass the century in another seven days. Thirty-one pitchers through Wednesday had won half or better of their games.

Evenly Matched Tennis Is Really A Genuine Match of Wits and Nerve

By DON WELDON

Match play, when the players are evenly matched is more a contest of wits and nerve than of practice and skill. The man who uses his head and keeps up his nerve is the man who will consistently win in match play.

In playing in a tournament it is bad to play every match with all your power. Save your strength for the times when you really need it and win your other points decisively but not destructively. There is nothing to be gained by beating a player several classes below you, in love sets when it is not necessary. If you play your game carefully and make sure of a win, and yet don't outplay yourself you will encourage the young player and do yourself no harm. In fact the players who know the game will appreciate the fact that you are a good sport in playing a man who is your inferior on the court. A few games well earned, will go far in encouraging a rising player and will in no way injure the reputation of the star.

Never hurry your opponent by serving before he is ready. This is a favorite trick of the unscrupulous player and is really an unfair advantage. Give him plenty of time to get ready and then take the point by hard play. Do your hurrying after the ball is served and make him hurry to keep up with it after you have served. Should anyone try this trick, after a few trials to prove that it is intentional, let the ball go and call "not ready."

Don't stall. Stallin gis a breach of tennis ethics that is uncalled for and a staller is held in contempt by all honest players. Play naturally, and neither hurry nor stall. If you treat your opponent with courtesy you will receive it in return.

Never default a match if you can possibly help it. To do so is cheating the player out of his contest and a just triumph. Sickness or some equally valid reason only should make a player scratch or retire for once you enter a tournament you owe it your presence and play.

Case 9: A spectator gets in the way of a player who fails to return the ball. May the player then claim a let?

Decision: Yes, if in the opinion of the umpire he was obstructed by a circumstance beyond his control. For instance, if the ropes or the seats are allowed to be so near to the court that a player is interfered with by them the point should not be played again because the ropes and seats form part of the arrangements of the grounds. If however, a spectator passes in front of those seats or places a chair nearer than the original line, and so interferes with a player the point should be played again.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Smashing all major league home run records for one day, a grand total of 19 four base smacks were registered at 3:30 this afternoon for both the American and the National leagues. In the American association at that hour three homers had been registered.

The National league sluggers smashed out 14 of these in the afternoon's pastime, while the American league fence busters had counted five.

Seven of the home runs were made in the Chicago-Philadelphia double header at Philadelphia, the Phillies collecting five and Chicago two.

MOTHER CAT SAVES KITTEN FROM WELL

(By International News Service.)

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., July 29.—An old cat's mother love was greater than her aversion to water. Under the rear porch of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. McCartney's house is an old abandoned well. The water is 16 feet below the ground surface and is several feet deep.

While the mother cat was watching one of her kittens at play another little toddler gave a "yip" as it tumbled into the well. The old cat heard the "S. O. S." of her offspring, tore under the porch and without any hesitation jumped into the depths of the well, 16 feet below. In a couple of minutes she came from under the porch dragging the wet kitten by the scruff of the neck.

FAST PLAY IN SECOND ROUND

Consolation Matches Nearing Final Stages

Play for the consolation prize in the Record News tennis tournament is going forward with speed and enthusiasm. The twelve players who were defeated in the first round of the main singles event are entered and among them are found several of the best net men in the city. Some had hard luck in their first match and were put against the winners when they would otherwise have played well to the front in the preliminaries.

Akin defeated Myres in the first match played in the consolation. The match was featured by terrific attacks on the part of the winner and good play by Myres who put the ball over the net with the skill of a professional. The contest was snappy and hard fought throughout. The two players are among the best in local tennis circles and were slated for the finals by the net but played in hard luck and were put out.

Kadane was forced to withdraw as he was leaving to attend the army camp at Fort Sill. Denney forfeited to Beck because of sickness.

Today Worthington will meet Gordon at the courts at Thirteenth street. Tatum will play Tinker These games will be played at 4:30. At 5:30 Maples will play Williams.

Effort is being made to obtain the same privilege for the lunching shopgirl in the nationally controlled parks—the Tuileries, the Jardin des Plantes and the Luxembourg.

Amateur Marksmen Already On Toes For National Shoot in September

By "SPIKE" COOPER

Amateur marksmen are watching their calenders with a hungry eye, and particularly one date, Wednesday, September 13. That day marks the banner day of their sport for the season.

The championship of North America, amateurically speaking, determined through open competition, open to every amateur shooter of the country, begins on that date and hundreds of nimrods aspire to the coveted title which has changed heads annually since the origination of the event, with one exception when F. S. Wright repeated in 1920, his 1919 performance.

There is no fairer or squarer sport on the globe. A man's accomplishments over the traps is measured entirely by his own ability, both with his gun and his nerve. If he can stand the strain, then ability to shatter the fragile clay discs does not figure in the outcome, considering all shooters equal. But for framing a man, handicapping him or affecting his score, there is little possibility since the result depends entirely on the shooter himself.

Question of Ability Only

Crooked moves, deals and cover-ups have shadowed many of the premier sports of the land in recent years and the public is beginning to hold aloof from many of them. But in trapshooting, it is a question of personal ability alone. This is stamping the game as one in a class all its own, and just that is bringing it recognition everywhere by leaps and bounds.

The amateur championship tournament will be held at Atlantic City this year under the auspices of the American Trapshooting association, September 13 is the opening day.

Contrary to other years when the event was a meet of champions, the programs offer open competition to all amateurs and the title will indeed be the amateur crown and not that of "champion of champions."

$2,025 in cash prizes will be distributed to winners this year and the only entrance fee is the cost of targets, $5.50 for the 200 targets to be shot from the 16 yard rise mark.

Prizes in Each Class

To the winner goes a diamond studded golden medal and no less than $300 in cash.

There will be exactly $950 cash for the five high guns in the meet at Atlantic City. In addition to $300 high gun, $175 for the third, $150 for fourth and $125 for fifth. However, it will not be necessary for a contestant to finish in the first five to receive a cash prize of $100.

All entrants will be divided into five classes according to their official averages as compiled by the A. T. A. and the winner in each class will be awarded $100. The five high guns will not be eligible to receive the class prizes and even the novice may gauge the flight of his birds on that day and win his "golden century."

The first open amateur championship meet was held in 1900 and a card of 150 targets from 18 yards rise determining the winner. Guy Ward of East Alton, Ill., won that year with 144 out of the 150 possible. In no year has the title been won with a perfect score, although for five straight years when the competition was at 100 targets, 16 yards single rise, the winning score showed 99 "deads."

Nic Arle holds the title at present, winning at Chicago last year with 198 out of 200.

Former Winners

Since 1906 the winners are as follows:

Year	Winner	Yds.	S.A.	Bk.
1906,	Guy Ward	18	150	144
1907,	H. M. Clark	18	200	188

1917,	Mark Arle	16	100	99
1918,	W. H. Herr	16	100	99
1919,	F. S. Wright	16	200	190
1920,	F. S. Wright	16	200	197
1921,	Nic Arle	16	200	198

*In 1909 and 1910 the contest was at 160 singles and 200 doubles.

One of the features of the meet this year will be the five-man team championship, a team from each of the five trapshooting zones to compete in an event of 1,000 targets and the high team to win. Each winner will shoot at 200 targets and the team with the high average will be awarded $250 in gold. Teams from the southern, eastern, Great Lakes, prairie and Pacific coast sections will compete in this event.

"Ninety days," was the cold remark of the judge.

Bang! One Casualty In Auto Tire Explosion

It might have been another Wall street explosion.

People rushed in from the adjacent buildings and people rushed in off the streets until the Auto Tire Service station was filled with curious spectators.

The cause of the excitement was—A tire on the rear of a large truck had been filled with about 130 pounds of air. It exploded, blowing off the tire and the rim.

Yes, there were casualties. A young man named Leslie who was standing nearby suffered a broken nose and two broken fingers on his right hand when the run struck him.

He was given immediate medical attention.

Carpenters are now engaged in remodeling the stand, which was once occupied by Saul's store, and it is understood that Mr. Morgan's business will be moved in by August 1.

WHEAT PRICES ON DOWN GRADE

Rail Rumors Held Responsible

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Talk of settlement in the railroad strike and absence of outside interest led to down turns today in the price of wheat. At the finish wheat was down ½c to 1c with September $1.07 7-8 to $1.08 and December $1.10 to $1.10¼; corn declined 3-4c to 1 1-2c; oats were unchanged to ⅛c off and provisions 2 1-2c to 5c higher.

Trade in wheat was light and the tone weak. Absence of outside interest and the call for a peace meeting among the chairmen of the shop crafts in Chicago, following the proposals of President Harding in an effort to end the walkout were the principal factors.

Trading in coarse grains was dull, prices being weak with wheat. Rains over the corn belt were much needed, and the forecast for more moisture over Sunday was a depressing factor in the corn market.

Provisions were strong in line with higher hog values.

Now That's Rather Odd

NEW YORK.—Structural engineers last night rushed to the defense of the sturdy spans of Brooklyn bridge, declaring the famous structure to be good "for centuries" when they learned that Grover Whalen, commissioner of plants and structures, had told Mayor Hylan he planned the early calling of an engineers' conference to discuss its replacement.

A giant cable, almost sixteen inches in diameter, which helps support the roadway, the promenade and the electric railway, a total of hundreds of thousands of tons has slightly stretched, reported Commissioner Whalen. Engineers of his department take this as the forerunner of the disintegration of the entire structure.

DANBURY, Conn.—General Stillman F. Kneeland of New York, lawyer and artist, 77 years old, and Mrs. Eastman Johnson, 79, widow of a famous artist, were married in this city and left for their new home in Pittsfield, Mass., where they expect to spend their honeymoon.

The ceremony was at St. James Episcopal church. After the ceremony General Kneeland recited some poems of his own composition.

FORT WORTH.—Mrs. W. E. Smith, wife of a railroad worker, who was flogged by unknown men about a week, has appealed to the strikers executive committee for a new hat and for repairs to the watch of her husband. Smith's hat was ruined and his watch damaged during the beating. The strikers committee denied they had anything to do with the flogging and said they were unable therefore to help.

SHOWER THREAT LOWERS COTTON

Scattered Buying Is Reported

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 29.—The outlook for showers in several sections of the western belt, including portions of Texas, was against values in the cotton market today to a moderate extent. Scattered buying was done on the opening and for a short time after, but this demand was soon filled and thereafter the market sagged, the close being practically at the lowest of the day and showing net losses of 2 to 7 points. At the best of the session, the list stood at net advances of 5 to 9 points. After trading as high as 21.10, October fell off to 20.95 and closed at 20.96, being the only month to close higher than the lowest. A few showers were reported in Texas over night and this together with the forecast revived hope of more favorable weather in the west.

NE WYORK COTTON

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 29.—If any apprehension existed among cotton traders today as to crop conditions in the belt, it was not reflected in the market which ruled very dull throughout the session and closed barely steady at 5 points net advance to 9 points decline. A little buying occurred at the start, influenced by dry weather and boll weevil talk but in the adjustment of local accounts for the week-end this was practically off set. On all sides it was clearly apparent that business is being held up to await the government report, and while the crop seems to be deteriorating in Texas and boll wevil damage increasing in the eastern belt, if private advices are to be accepted at their full value, there was not enough interest in the market to give them any force as an influence.

MATERIAL FOR BYERS RAIL LINE ARRIVES

A total of 50 carloads of material have arrived at Byers for the Byers-Waurika railroad and more material is arriving each day. Just as soon as caps and sway braces arrive work will be started on the bridge across the Red river, Capt. H. F. McFarland, in charge of construction, said Saturday.

Some of the bridge material already has arrived but while waiting on the other necessary material preparations are being made for work to start. It is expected to have several hundred feet of the bridge built by the time construction reaches the Red river, Captain McFarland said.

Stocks Unite in Price Advance During Session

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 29.—With comparatively few exceptions, prices on the New York stock exchange moved to higher ground in today's brief session, reflecting the belief that the end of the coal and rail strikes is near. Trading was quiet, the day's sales approximating 275,000 shares.

Rails were again the dominant factor, registering gains of large fractions to 2½ points. Stronger issues of this group were Central Railroad of New Jersey, Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna, Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific and Reading, equipments advancing on reports of heavy buying orders by principal railroads.

Crucible, with a net gain of 2 7-8, was the strongest of the steel shares. Bethlehem and Gulf States rose moderately, but United States Steel common and the less prominent issues of that group were relatively backward.

There was a fairly large turnover in Mexican Petroleum at a net gain of 2 points, and Mexican Seaboard common and the certificates threw off some of the recent heaviness. Studebaker was the most active feature of the day, its early ride of almost 2 points being followed by a sharp reactions and a fractional net loss.

A Doctor's Appeal to Parents:

If the mothers and fathers of our children would see the awful wrecks of men and women I see almost daily and could hear the story most of them tell, namely: "Our parents never warned us," they would no longer hesitate to teach the children SEX HYGIENE. The relation of the sexes is God given. It is a sacred duty and I warn you parents of the present generation—do not conceal the sex truth from your children if you have any regard for their future health and happiness. It should be part of their religion. Our children should be taught to know themselves. If this talk results in just one boy or girl asking the truth of the parents, I shall feel as if my appeal is not in vain and that the world is slightly better because of my passing through.

If You Need a Specialist Why Not the Best?

Are you a nervous wreck? Are you worn out and broken down? Are you suffering from vicious Blood and Skin Diseases, that destroy bone tissue, and disfigure for life? Backaches and kidneys give you all-gone feeling? Whether these conditions were caused by early excesses, or contracted by inoculation, it does not matter, for they will all respond to my treatment. Consult Dr. Schultz, the Reliable Specialist, who is well equipped by long experience that enables him to offer his service on a basis that no other can; his charges are lower for cures than the average physician generally charges for failure. Those who have wasted time and money, and failed to get rid of their ailments, are especially invited to consult FREE. I am giving the benefit of over 30 years' honorable experience; some of my cures are truly wonderful, yet I do not work magic; I do not make the old younger, nor the blind see; I simply apply the knowledge my years of honorable experience have given me, and I do this honestly and intelligently.

DAVIDSON HAS AID FOR ORIENT

Says His Plan Would Save Road

By S. RAMOND BROOKS
(Staff Correspondent)

AUSTIN, July 29.—The Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad, about to be abandoned because of financial difficulties, according to intimations from recent conferences held in an effort to keep it going, could be restored to a profitable basis, rehabilitated and put upon a sound footing if placed in the hands of a state committee, following the same plan under which the state railroad was saved from the junk heap, according to Lieutenant Governor Lynch Davidson of Houston, millionaire business man and chairman of the committee which brought the state railroad from a $50,000 junk value up to a worth of more than half a million dollars, and insured its continuation as an operating road to serve the towns and communities along its right of way.

Lieutenant Governor Davidson declared state ownership of railroads is the last thing he favors and that he is entirely opposed to federal control or operation of railroads or other private business. The point of suggesting state management for a brief period of the Orient road, he said, was to meet the emergency requirements, paralleling action on the state railroad, and to free the line from the handicaps of federal and state bureau control of the interstate commerce commission and other bodies which regulate and control, hamper and restrict the road to a point where its owners have insufficient freedom to make the road pay.

Would Be Returned

A similar agency to that in charge of the 600 miles of the line in Texas could be created for each other state and title transferred to the board, created by the state in a way similar to the board of managers of the Texas state railroad, Governor Davidson pointed out. After rehabilitation and restoration, the road could be returned to its owners and the value created by people of the state and particularly the people along the line, who would be heavy losers should the operation of the road be stopped.

A state commission in charge of the section of the road in Texas, Mr. Davidson pointed out could:

Fix rates and divisions commensurate with what the traffic will bear.

Attract industries and enterprises to a territory needing them.

Resuscitate, revive and rehabilitate the road and definitely continue its operation.

Exemptions suggested, he declared, would not be unfair nor discriminate against other roads because of:

The pioneer character of the Orient road, and consequent absence of contact with many other lines.

Its depleted condition, physically and financially.

Non-competitive nature of its connections.

All this proposed action would be simply to deal with the emergency in the Orient's present condition, Mr. Davidson pointed out. In the creation of state agencies to deal with the road, a federal statute should also be enacted, he declared, suspending application of federal status.

FREDERICK BOASTS PROGRESSIVE FARMER

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 29.—He is J. B. Swartz, a farmer living near here on 250 acres of wheat. Here's one man who makes good crops regardless of the dry weather. 6,500 bushels was produced, making better than 16 bushels more to the acre than the average over the county.

Swartz came to Tillman county a few years ago with little money. Now he owns several farms and is one of the county's best farmers. He believes in good seed and early preparation. He discs his land immediately after harvest and then lists it. An average of 35 bushels was made on the first plowing, while the last was below 20.

Superstitious? Sure, Lots of Folks In Wichita Won't Walk Under Ladder

"Dont' go under there!" and without further ceremony, a Wichita Falls matron leaped at the arm of her spouse and with a Zbyszko-like heave, pulled the gentleman from his path which destined to carry him under a ladder standing against a Scott street wall.

Then there came others, men, women and children alike. Some under, some around, while three others turned back and crossed the street at the corner from which they had just come. Staid business men, who think in terms of thousands of dollars dispased their superstition by deviating their course that they might not pass under the "hodcarriers' elevator." The shade was along the wall and the majority of those passing were usually there, for the heat was intense, but regardless of comfort, many walked around.

Those showing the greatest dread of a broken leg, a fire or what-not, were the dusky-hued and of the dozen or more in the procession of pedestrians, not one would walk under the ladder. The younger generation seem unschooled in the "mammy-lore" and disregard almost completely the traditional superstition attached to walking under a ladder, but their fathers and mothers do not forget the stories told in other days of the accidents which followed such a trick.

Then again, a luxurious motor car rolled down another street, but protested from accident by the god of destinies, for it bore the trademark of safety and good luck. It carried a horse shoe, rusted and still bearing two of the nails which fastened it to the hoof of some truck horse. Just another symbol of Wichita's superstition.

Though the traffic was heavy on one of Wichita Falls' resident streets, for it was hot that night and every family was utilizing the motor for comfort, a Ford suddenly swerved and "bicycle-like" spun around on two wheels. The driver headed back down the street in the direction from which he had just come. A "black cat" had started across the street and there was no chance to head it off. Regardless of a speeding car behind, the driver refused to accept the fate as significantly attached to crossing the path of a "black cat."

Yes, there are many in Wichita Falls who hold to the superstition of other days with the same tenacity of olden times.

G. O. P. OUT TO ELECT SENATOR

Smock Chairman of Party Here

Belief that the nomination of either James E. Ferguson or Earle B. Mayfield by the democrats of Texas this year would give the republican an excellent chance to elect a United States senator, and the prediction that James E. Ferguson will be the nominee, voiced by Orville Bullington, featured the county republican convent on Saturday afternoon. Doubt that either Ferguson or Mayfield would be allowed by the senate of the United States to sit with it even in the event of election, was also voiced by the speaker.

Chances for republican congressional gains in two districts, together with the holding of the present representative in the San Antonio district, is reported at republican state headquarters, Mr. Bullington said.

The election of Tom B. Smock, who as chairman of the county republican council managed the Culbertson campaign here two years ago when a record vote was polled, as county chairman, the election of B. B. Greever as secretary; the adoption of a vote of thanks for his untiring efforts in behalf of the party to O. T. Bacon, retiring county chairman and pioneer republican, and the adoption of a vote of thanks to Orville Bullington for his self-sacrificing agreement to enter the race for congress from this district at the last minute last May, were other features of the meeting. J. C. Bradshaw was named chairman of the convention.

No County Nominations

No nominations were made for a county ticket—a decision made after considerable discussion. The decision to put no county tickets in the field was based on the expressed belief that greater public good could be gained in an off year through efforts to exert influence in favor of the best of those in the democratic run off primary, than through the offering of county candidates in a non-presidential year.

Delegates were named to the state and congressional conventions, the former to be held in Fort Worth Aug. 9 and the latter in Wichita Falls Aug. 26.

The delegates were:

State Convention—W. B. Pyron, Orville Bullington, O. P. Maricle, F. W. Fischer, Tom Smock and J. C. Searl.

Congressional: W. H. Sanford, E. W. Cole, J. C. Bradshaw, E. G. Cook, G. B. Gauntt of Iowa Park, Tom B. Smook, O. P. Maricle, B. B. Greever, John Moore, S. L. Bingham, J. J. Breen of Electra, C. H. Vanllorn of Iowa Park, W. J. Dickson of Burkburnett, C. P. Van Loh of Clara, John W. Naylor, M. E. Peters, O. T. Bacon.

Of those who do not pay,
You save on your deliveries,
That's what I heard Pa say.
I love to buy my goodies there,

SEVEN CAUGHT IN LIQUOR RAID

Dry Agent Heads Incursion

Officers Tom Shook and Charles Bebout of the city police department, headed by Federal Prohibition Officer Archie Tyler, conducted a wholesale liquor raid Friday night, according to information revealed yesterday, capturing seven men. Charges of violations of the federal prohibition statutes have been placed against the seven men captured.

The raids, according to Mr. Tyler, were conducted in the northwest oil field, around Bridgetown and Bradley's Corner. Seven houses were raided during the night, 175 gallons of chock beer being captured at one place, 350 pint bottles of chock being found at another, a gallon of whiskey at still another, while on another hunt the officers located 50 gallons of chock beer.

The majority of the beer was destroyed, only a few samples being brought back to Wichita Falls for evidence.

At several of the places, the officers arrested two or more persons, charges being docketed in federal court against only seven of them.

In the opinion of local officers, the raid is the largeset wholesale liquor hunt that has been conducted in Wichita Falls or in this territory for a considerable length of time, and much credit of the successful search is due to the leadership of Mr. Tyler.

JUDGES PLAN TO TRADE BENCHES

Will Co-Operate to Expedite Work

Judge H. R. Wilson of the 30th district court may change benches with James V Leak of Vernon next February, in the event the latter is elected to the district judge's chair.

Judge Wilson asserted Saturday afternoon that Judge Leak was through here recently and discussed with him the possibilities of his election, and intimated at that time that if he is elected, he will be disqualified in a number of cases which come before his court in February.

Inasmuch as Judge Wilson will also be disqualified in several cases which are to come before the 30th district court about that time, the magistrate here indicated his willingness to co-operate with Judge Leak and exchange benches with him.

In such instances, it is understood, the judges are privileged to exchange benches without the consent of the governor.

Texas-Oklahoma Fair at Wichita
Sept. 30 to Oct. 4

SECTION TWO — WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS, SUNDAY, JULY 30, 1922 — LOCAL AND STATE NEWS

Wichita Falls As An Industrial Center

MANY EXHIBITS ARE PLANNED FOR FAIR HERE

Wichita Exposition Will Rank With Best

The Texas-Oklahoma Fair association which started work only a few weeks ago to hold a fair in Wichita Falls, Sept. 30 to Oct. 4, inclusive, probably has accomplished more in such a short time than any other similar enterprise in the state. When it was definitely decided to hold the fair such a short time remained that the best of an organization had to be formed and only men who would put their shoulders to the wheels and push without ceasing were chosen to carry on this work.

Those men, many of whom are among the biggest and busiest business men in the city and this entire territory, have been working hard, even some times neglecting their personal business, with the result that many things already have been accomplished.

Here are some of the things that have been done toward the fair: A total of $30,000 in cash and notes is in the bank to carry out the plans instigated, and more money is coming in every day. These plans include many improvements to the fair grounds and buildings.

Getting Exhibits Ready

Exhibits of farm products already are being assembled in Baylor, Wilbarger, Hardeman and Jones counties with other counties in Texas and Oklahoma preparing to start assembling exhibits.

Various individuals over the states of Texas and Oklahoma have reserved space for poultry, cattle, pigs and other live stock exhibits.

First class amusements now are being booked in Chicago, which will assure the fair some of the best entertainment of any fair in the country. Many of the entertainment features coming here will be the same that will appear at the Texas state fair in Dallas.

Rail Rates Secured

Reduced railroad rates on exhibits have been secured by the association and plans now are under way and assured of consummation which will give reduced passenger rates for those who desire to come to the fair.

A representative of the west Texas chamber of commerce and County Agent Guy R. Jones are going over the two states and interesting people in the fair, at the same time securing exhibits.

Representatives of the fair association are making all picnics, barbecues and outdoor gatherings in practically all counties of this section in the interest of the fair.

Publicity has been secured in 125 newspapers in the two states telling of the fair and, national publicity has been given in the amusement magazines. Thousands of bill posters are being printed to be put out over the country announcing the fair and the big events that will be here.

Lee Highway Will Link Texas With Big Southern Cities

By ERIC G. SHROEDER

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, July 29.—On Washington's birthday, in 1919, 14 men, most of them Virginians, met at Roanoke in the dominion state for the purpose of discussing and formulating plans for a great transcontinental route through the south to be known as the Lee highway.

The gathering, instigated by an individual later to exert a profound influence in the project, Dr. S. M. Johnson of New Mexico, witnessed an unfolding of ideas and the forming of a provisional organization, which became permanent at a meeting in Roanoke, December 3, 1919.

As a result of that Washington birthday meeting more than three years ago, three men left Vernon in a service car at 5 o'clock in the morning scarcely more than a week ago. Their destination, Roswell, New Mexico, lay 400 miles to the west, and in the intervening distance were nearly a dozen towns at which meetings had been scheduled for the travelers. The entire trip was made in one day, thirteen and one-half hours actual driving time, and not one community on the route was neglected. The feat, heralded throughout the east by leading newspapers, serves as a striking monument to the worth of northwest Texas roads.

Inspect Highway

An inspection of the Three F highway over its length from Crowell to Roswell with the end in view of its designation as a part of the great Lee highway system formed the purpose of the expedition out of Vernon. Dr. S. M. Johnson, now general director of the Lee Highway association, R. H. Coffee, local good roads booster and public spirited promoter, and Ralph Cato, service car driver, composed the personnel of the party.

The opportunity of becoming established on the trans-continental route across the United States has been offered to north Texas towns with such abruptness as to inhibit for the moment the most perfect understanding of its significance. Until three months ago the Lee highway had undergone official designation from New York to Lawton, Okla., but from the latter point to Roswell, New Mexico, its further routing was merely problematical. A tentative road had been suggested through the southern portion of Oklahoma and into the panhandle of Texas via Childress, but the lack of any considerable stretch of highway upon which government aid might be expected proved a serious drawback to those plans.

Texas Delegation Wins

Correspondece to Dr. S. M. Johnson from Jed Morrow, former secretary of the Vernon chamber of commerce, suggested the possibilities of extending the highway from Lawton to Roswell via Vernon, Crowell, and thence up the Three F highway, a four per cent road. A delegation of 70 Texas enthusiasts to the Lee highway convention in Lawton last week further emphasized the fact that Lone Star towns in this section were determined to be counted in any future plans. There was shortly forthcoming a pledge to construct a bridge over the Red river at Frederick ,Okla., toll free, and Dr. Johnson was provided with detailed information concerning the suitability of north Texas roads as extensions to the coveted trans-continental route. As a result of the perseverance of the Lone Star delegation Dr. Johnson was brought to Vernon at the end of the Lawton convention, conducted a mass meeting this city, and the following morning set out on his inspection trip to Roswell. He has indicated that his official sanction will be given the new route, and the matter will shortly be placed before the board of directors of the highway association.

The coming of the Lee highway to northwest Texas is regarded generally as carrying with it far more significance even than the advent of a railroad. Thousands of tourists, it is expected, will pass over the trans-continental route within the next few years, and hundreds will visit north Texas towns each day.

Will Sell Membership

Ere the project can be considered established through this section however, section lines must be eliminated and the highway given a straight diagonal in its course. There will be roads to smooth, grades to establish, and culverts to be built. Unit groups of the association will be formed in each county, and memberships will be sold in the organization. This work will be carried out without delay.

The inspection trip from Crowell to Roswell revealed practically no sandy roads, nor hills requiring a shift of gears. Through Foard county the roads are on a 100 per cent grade and receive an appreciable amount of federal money for their upkeep. Through Cottle county the highway is reasonably good, and in Motley county the road is far above the average. Hale county, too, has emulated the example of its neighbor, but Lamb has established a system of dirt roads and grades, just complete, that can be described by no other term than "perfect." Half way across Bailey county a good grade has been established, an outfit is at

NEW SCHOOLS NOT COMPLETE

Will Be Ready About October 15

When the Wichita Falls public schools open September 11 there will be under construction a total of $115,000 in school buildings and the work on the Junior college will also be near realization. Although every effort was made to get the new school buildings completed before the opening of school it was found impossibl to do so and latest information is that the two new ward schools and the addition to the Sam Houston school will probably be completed between October 1 and 15.

When school opens the pupils will have the same amount of room space they had last year but they will have only a few weeks of study under such crowded condition. The work on the two ward schools and the addition of rooms to the Sam Houston school will be rushed and every detail arranged so that pupils can move in just as soon as the buildings are completed.

Each of the ward schools, one for the north side and the other for the south side, is to cost $45,000 and each is to be modern in every detail. The most approved ventilating and heating system will be installed and the pupils will be in the warm building long before the cold weather comes on. The work on the Sam Houston school, for which the contract is expected to be let early this week, will take until about October 15 to complete, but when finished it will make the building into practically a new modern structure with additional rooms.

The Junior college to be built is to be the most modern in the United States with gymnasiums, indoor play grounds and all the features that go to make the modern school.

Ford Sales Set Record in July

Retail sales of Ford cars, trucks and tractors established a new high record during June, when, according to a statement issued from the Ford factory at Detroit, an average of 5,709 machines were sold daily.

Ford sales have been showing a constant increase each month this year; June being the highest in the history of the company with a total of 148,439 cars, trucks and tractors. Of this number, 6,054 were sold by the Ford company of Canada and 9,435 by the various European Ford companies and South American branches, reaching purchasers in practically every civilized country in the world.

With the closing of business for June, Ford records disclosed the fact that total sales for the first 6 months of 1922 were well over the half-million mark, the exact figures being 652,261. This is also a new high record as it is considerably in advance of any previous half-year period.

21 Candidates File Statements

Only 21 statements had been filed in the county clerk's office yesterday by candidates in the recent primary, according to a review of the records.

A total of 10 days were allowed after July 22 for the filings, the last day of grace being marked on the calendar as August 2.

Gosh, Skinny! Only Five Weeks Till Wichita Schools Open Again

"School days, school days———" Gosh, how the kiddies love that song. With the vacation period just a little more than half gone, the school board has awakened many a nightmare for the Wichita school boys by announcing that school will open again September 11. The boys all knew that school would open on or about that date but they did not want to be reminded of it so soon.

Anyhow, it is a decree, boys. It is an official decree so get all the chiggers, stonebruises, blistered backs, freckles, Grass burs and other boyish jog-givers available between now and September 11, then be ready to answer the sound of the class gong and do your "reading and 'rithing and'rithmetic" again.

M'CLURE AFTER BUILDING CODE FOR WICHITA

Action Would Result In Insurance Rate Cut

With a fire insurance key rate of 22 cents, Wichita Falls has one of the lowest rates possessed by any of the average size cities of the state. It is a much lower rate than some other Texas cities of the same size.

But Wichita Falls business men are anxious for a lower rate and Fire Chief McClure is doing all in his power to get the lower rate. There is one thing badly needed here that other cities have and which decreases the fire insurance rate. That is a building code that will come up to the specifications required by the fire underwriters. Chief McClure thinks that this code should by all means be passed here. He is not alone. There are many others who are anxious that the code be drawn up and passed for Wichita Falls. The new code would mean that all buildings erected after it is passed would come up to a certain standard that would eliminate much danger from fire and therefore lower the insurance rate.

Many Advantages Here

The splendidly equipped fire department here and the telegraphic alarm system are big factors in the low fire insurance rate now enjoyed. Other points in favor of Wichita Falls as against other cities that do not enjoy such a low rate are the wide streets which give ample space for fire trucks to pass and the general construction of the city which contains only a limited number of old buildings in the business district which would be classed as fire hazards.

Chief McClure is trying to eliminate all possible fire hazards so as to make another point for a lower rate and he is seeking the co-operation of the citizenship as a whole in this matter. In most cities where there are many older buildings than there are in Wichita Falls. In such cases has been necessary for the building inspector to condemn certain buildings which the city officials then ordered torn down. Within the past three months the city of Beaumont has forced property owners to remove a total of 12 buildings that were condemned as fire hazards. McClure is anxious that there be no necessity for such action here in the future.

Chief McCormick Going to New York Cop's Convention

J. W. McCormick, chief of police, indicated Saturday that he will probably be in attendance at the national convention of police chiefs when they convene in New York, Wednesday, September 13. The convention, it is understood, will last several days, and will afford an opportunity for police chiefs from all over the country to gain a broader insight into the delicate machinery of the world's greatest police departments.

A pre-convention session of the board of executives which will formulate a program for the police officials will be held in New York on September 11, Chief McCormick asserted Saturday, while the board of managing directors of the national police organization will meet on September 12 prior to the general convention.

Meet In Waldorf

The convention halls and meeting rooms, according to Chief McCormick, will be located in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, 34th street and Fifth avenue, New York.

According to Mr. McCormick, announcements concerning the convention assert that special attention is being given to the securing of special rates for the occasion, and a large attendance of prominent police officials is expected in the meeting.

No Vacation For Dan Cupid This Year

Dan Cupid has himself a busy job in Wichita Falls.

He not only makes engagements and "matches," but he has been unusually successful in carrying them through during the past month.

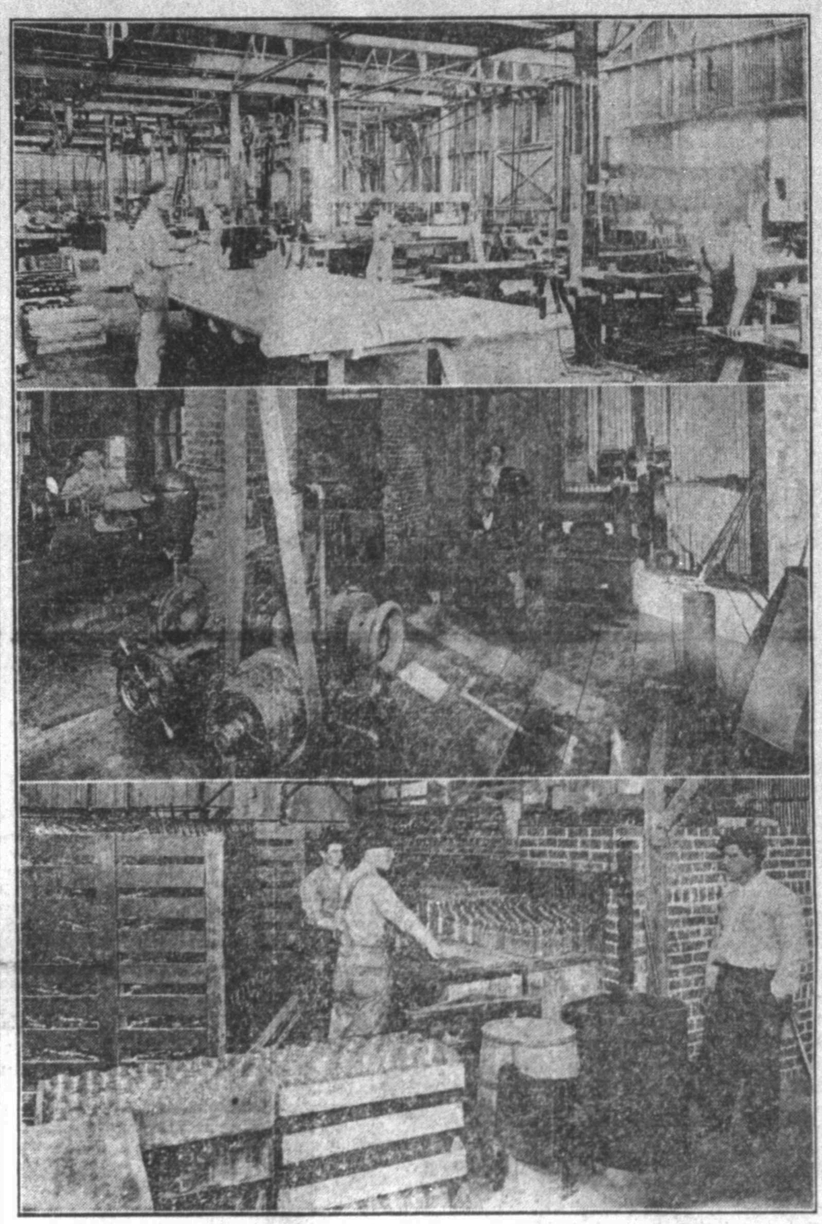

Officials of the county clerk's department in the court house are certain of the fact that he is to blame for the 80 marriage licenses which have been issued here during July.

Dan was also busy prior to July. He has caused in all a total of 171 marriage certificates to be issued here since May 29.

Some of those to be wedded through the county clerk's office and recently been divorced, and some of them took unto themselves for a second time the wives they "couldn't get along with before."

But anyway, Dan has been a busy little fellow here—his record shows it.

HOW DOLLARS ARE BROUGHT TO WICHITA

Interior of three of Wichita Falls' largest and most progressive factories. The picture at the top shows the body department of the Wichita Motor company. In the center is the pipe shop of the Lone Star Tool company, and at the bottom, the tempering ovens at the Ball Brothers Glass company. Dozens of completed fruit jars can be seen coming out of the oven.

NOT LIKE OLD-FASHIONED BOYS New Generation Primps Like Girls

Who are the most vain—men or women?

If you can judge from 30 people, then the men are more vain than the fair damsels, although both sexes seem to have plenty of vanity in Wichita Falls.

It was before a large display window on Indiana street. Pedestrians were passing by in large numbers—men, women and children. Many passed by without looking in to see the wares a prominent merchant had placed on display there; some were hurrying on some business mission, or were busily engaged in rapid-fire conversation—but there were 30 persons who passed that window that looked in.

It is true that some of them looked in at the displays. But it is also true that some of them (and the majority at that) looked not only at the displays, but into the shiny mirrors that grace the center and sides of that shop window.

There must have been several hundred people passing by on that side of the street, for it was in the heat of the day, at noon, when the streets are flooded in Wichita Falls.

First came a young girl. She wasn't exactly a flapper, though her dresses were the latest fashion. But she paused to gaze at a beautiful skirt. And when she had admired it she passed on. Then came a young man—he must have been at least 20, but to judge from his clothes, he was 30, and the air of prosperity itself. He was a typical "jelly bean" and he looked the part. He paused, also. But not to look at the dresses—he stopped in front of the mirror for just an instant, gazed proudly at himself, and then passed up the street, tugging at his tie.

And so they came, the women, the girls, the men and the boys—30 of them to be exact, were counted. Twelve women looked at the clothes on display, and three of the 12 powdered their noses while looking at themselves in the mirror.

Five men stopped point blank in front of the mirror for a second or so, and primped. Yes, they did. They primped, just like a girl.

Six girls all gazed at the dresses, made remarks about their beauty, and one of the six said: "Oh, wait, M——, till I fix this powder straight on my face."

Two women came to a halt in front of the mirror, while five young men gazed proudly in at themselves as they paraded by.

We've howled about the "old-fashioned dress," and we've complained about the "old-fashioned girl," but, had you have noticed just 30 representative men, women and children parading past that shop window, you might have asked:

"Where is the old-fashioned vest?" and "where is the old-fashioned boy?"

Water Department Audit Completed

A complete audit of the city water department almost as large as the one submitted to the city council recently by Ira S. Harris, C. P. A., has been handed to the mayor.

The audit will be carried before the council Monday night, at which time it is believed both the city audit and the water department audits will be disposed of by that body. Neither thus far, has been accepted.

In the reports contained in the water department's audit, attention is again called to the question of placing both the city clerk's office and the former department under one head, and it is suggested by the auditor, Mr. Harris, that such a move is advisable.

Habeas Corpus Proceedings Fail

Habeas corpus procedure instituted in the 30th district court Saturday morning before Judge H. R. Wilson resulted in Jack McDaniels being remanded to the custody of the sheriff's department.

McDaniels has been confined in the county prison for several weeks, a question as to his sanity having been raised.

JONES RETURNS TODAY

Our R. Jones, county farm agent, is due to reach Wichita Falls Sunday on his return from the Texas A. & M. college at College Station. He will take up his work for the Texas-Oklahoma fair Monday morning.

MANY HOMES GOING UP HERE

39 Permits Issued for Month of July

Building in Wichita Falls is on one of the biggest booms since the oil craze struck this vicinity.

This is a fact shown by the records in the city clerk's office, where, Saturday, the books indicated a clear increase of $106,170 in buildings for the month of July over the month of June.

During the month of June, a total of 17 building permits were issued, aggregating an expenditure of only $95,250. Throughout the entire month of June, building in this city stood practically at a par of six jobs per week, that is, there having been only six permits a week issued on a par during that week.

14 Permits in Week

In the month of July, however, building took on a rapid spurt, and several weeks during the 30-day period, building jumped over the par of six, and went as high as 14 permits issued on one seven-day period. Thirty-nine building permits were issued during the month of July, this indicating that at least that many

CITY HAS MANY FACTORIES AND WHOLESALERS

Almost Every Kind Of Industry Found In Wichita

Why is Wichita a good place in which to live?

Why is this one of the best cities in the country in which to invest money? What is there here that gives Wichitans faith in the future of their city; that inspires them to build for the future, rather than for the present.

This is a first of a series of articles telling of the advantages of Wichita Falls. It is the story of what put the "faith" in "the city that faith built.

Industrial Wichita Falls emerging through an era of doubt, when business was somewhat sorry and uncertain, is progressing with a boom.

This is a fact shown in a careful survey over "the city that faith built," and is taken from the statements of the leading business men here who have watched with care the upheaval and the decline of their respective businesses through the year.

Some, so enthusiastic about the return of good business, have placed placards in their windows reading: "Business Is Good With Us. Come In."

And that is the same spirit, according to the leading members of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, which pulled this city through the mire of doubt several years ago and won it a name through faith.

There are not many citizens out of the nearly 60,000 inhabitants who reside here that ever give industrial Wichita a thought, though. There are few who ever pause to wonder how many industries there are here, or how successful any of the strong ones are, or how progressive the minor industrial kings of the city can be.

110 Plants Here

An interesting fact about Wichita Falls is that it is not only a city of large resources in a business way, but that its prosperity is based largely upon the xistence of 110 manufacturing and wholesale plants.

And for a city of the size and population, 110 manufacturing and wholesale establishments is a large list. But the list promises to become greater, stronger and more successful, if the predicted perspective of some prognosticators come true, for only Friday it became known that several new wholesale houses are being erected and that along with these comes the erection of several new industries.

Figures obtained from the R. G Dun & company show that a capital of $12,654,000 was invested in industries here in 1921, with a volume of business for that year amounting to $46,533,000. And although no statements have been compiled for this much of the year 1922, it is commonly believed that the figures will run higher at the close of the fiscal period.

Some citizens come into the town with a view of passing on to other climes; some with a idea of seeking pleasure; some for short visits, and a large number to remain. And one of the first questions asked by the new citizen who is interested in Wichita Falls concerns the wholesale and industral houses.

City's Big Industries

To them, the chamber of commerce and other organizations can easily point out that among some of the larger manufacturing plants located here are the Wichita Falls motor company, which sells trucks to 84 foreign countries, the Wichita Falls mill & elevator company, with daily output of 2,500 barrels of flour and 500 barrels of corn meal, the Ball Brothers' glass company, manufacturing 90,000 to 100,000 fruit jars per day and working between 75 and 100 employes, while there are window glass factories, two mattress factories, iron, culvert and edeamery plants to talk about, too.

The Mill and Elevator company alone has 21 country elevators in the wheat growing belt, the elevator located here having a capacity of over a million bushels for storage purposes.

Laundries constitute an important role also, this city claiming the Wichita Falls, City, Pond and Model laundries, all of wich operate full capacity the year round, doing an enormous business.

The Wichita Window Glass company, the two ice plants, Bert Bean's coffee roasting plant, which is the only one located in this section, the

Champions of Land and Water Stage Grim Battle at Lake Wichita

How many of 'em are there?

Where's their heads?

These and a hundred other seemingly foolish questions were fired from ringside spectators at one of the most peculiar "scraps" ever staged for the public in Wichita Falls.

Well, the "scrap" wasn't exactly staged in Wichita Falls, nor was it exactly staged for the benefit of the public. No ring was roped off. No admission was charged.

Friday night out near the bathing pool at Lake Wichita, someone discovered the fight.

Soon there was a crowd around, all excited and all keeping comfortable distance. The combatants were twined and twisted in an indescribable mass, squirming, writhing and twisting about on the concrete walk which encircles the pool.

Finally some curious "gallant," fearless of his own life secured a club and ended the agonies of the combantants and as the mass was disentangled, two reptiles, one of the water, the other of the prairie lay dead on the walk.

Neither saw the finish of a fight which he honed would find his adversary dead, yet the ambition of both was realized.

And then the swimmin went on.

Frances Ann Saunders Entertains With Novel Country Club Party

INFORMAL mornings at bridge, dances and luncheons at some of Wichita Falls' cool and comfortable clubs formed the social activities of society last week. Many of the affairs were so charming they will long be remembered by both maids and matrons. The presence of a group of interesting visitors as honor guests furnished inspiration for many of the activities of the week.

WHILE some are seeking cooler climes, may still linger and find that numerous local parks, swimming pools and country clubs furnish delightful spots for entertaining and also to spend the midsummer evenings. What more evidence does one need of the ability of Wichita society to play at home than a glimpse of the swarms of cars buzzing along the roads to one of these inviting nooks.

FRIDAY morning, probably one of the most pleasant affairs of the week was enjoyed by members of the younger set when Miss Frances Ann Saunders who has recently returned from a visit in Houston, entertained a group of friends at the country club.

THE diversions began with a plunge in the swimming pool which lasted from 9 to 10 o'clock and this was followed by dancing, the morning closing with a dainty ice course being served to Misses Alma Willis, Annabel Couper, Elizabeth Couper, Mary Sims, Harriet Peterson, Bettye Sims, Lilly Graham, Laura Lee Hampshire, Sibyl Hancock, Charlotte Keevil, Mabel Drinkard, Herma Pounds, Margaret Kendall, Elizabeth Weldon, Katheryn Weldon, Dell Hatchitt, Marjorie Willbite, Ina Myrle Robinson, Helene Bullitt, Mary and Elizabeth Brown, Pauline Hall, Berniece Brown and Vaughn Buchanan.

A QUOTATION that should be kept in mind by stay-at-homes reads like this:

"The wisest men that e'er you ken
Have never dreamed it treason
To rest a bit and jest a bit
And balance up their reason;
To laugh a bit and chaff a bit
And fish a bit in season."

MISS FISK HONORED WITH PRETTY SHOWER

Complimenting her sister, Miss Elenore Fisk who will leave in the fall to enter S. M. U. at Dallas, Miss Josephine Fisk was hostess to a group of friends at the home of Mrs. Cyrus Ives, 1802 Filmore Friday evening with a shower. The affair was doubly delightful on account of its being a complete surprise to the honoree, having been planned at Crateryille, Okla., where the Campfire girls of which Miss Fisk is leader, were in camp recently.

The lawn of the Ives home was beautifully decorated for the occasion featuring the Japanese motifs in both the lighting effects and in the table decorations. Gay butterflys were given as favors which were worn by each guest in her hair. After refreshments of lemonade and watermelon were served the gifts were brought in by little Miss Lois Fisk who was dainfily gowned as a Japanese lady.

Games, stunts and sing song featured the entertainment for the evening.

SIX KEYS TO THIS ROOM

The most jeolously guarded apartment in England is that known as the Chapel of Pyx. The vault is only accessible through double doors, opened by no fewer than six keys, and permission to enter requires the signature of the chanceller of the exchequer the financial secretary to the treasury and the comptroller of the exchequer.

Once the treasury of the kings of England, this immensely strong underground chamber was used up till the year 1904 for the safe keeping of the gold and silver standards used every five years, by the mint authorities.

Towards the close of that year, however, these standards were transferred, together with other valuables, to the Royal Mint on Tower Hill, and the vault now holds little or nothing to tempt an enterprising burglar

AMONG TEXANS IN WASHINGTON

Denison Girl Weds Baltimore Man

By MARGARET E. EPPLER.

Special to the Record News.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Washington these torrid days has undoubtedly the look of a deserted village. And yet, there are really a lot of people who make up Washington's rather comprehensive "society" left in town who are finding lots of amusement. Golf and tennis have quite a few devotees among official and resident society. Warm afternoons, one is pretty sure to run into everybody one knows down at the Tidal basin or at the various swimming pools throughout the city and Washington as the capital of a nation that prides itself on adaptability, is developing water sports in a fashion that would have been deemed quite out of the range of possibility a generation ago. And anyone whom circumstances are keeping in Washington, when he or she would much rather go swimming, can yield to circumstances and still not forego the daily swim. Motoring is a favorite form of diversion in the late afternoon and evening and driving about Potomac park at dusk, it seems everybody is out in the park. So Washington after all is "not so bad" as a summer resort and this season those whom stern duty keeps here, are developing unexpected resource in alleviating the discomfort of summer days.

The distinguished occupants of the white house have even settled down to another period of good-natured endurance of Washington weather and unless the labor situation takes on a more rosy hue in the next few weeks, the chances are that they will have to abandon their visit to Mooseheart and other points in Illinois near the end of August. President and Mrs. Harding will be the guests of Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis at Mooseheart and apparently the Davises are planning to have as many of Secretary Davis' cabinet colleagues as can be rounded up in midsummer. While in Mooseheart, the presidential party will have the opportunity of inspecting the equipment in the famous Moose home for children, which is maintained by the order of Moose throughout the country, and where the orphans of deceased members are given vocational training. The children and their guardians have planned a highly unique program with which to entertain the chief executive and the first lady of the land and it is hoped that national affairs will have adjusted themselves in order to permit this brief holiday.

Mrs. John Pearson of Georgetown, Texas, acted as best man for his brother, Ensign T. Murray Stokes, on the occasion of his marriage to Miss Mary Ruth Leslie of Meridian, Miss., which was solemnized here Saturday.

Announcement has been made of the recent marriage of Miss Opal Rhamy, of Denison, Texas, to Mr. Charles Chapman Snow, of Baltimore.

Mrs. Snow has returned from Porto Rico, where she was assistant professor to history in the University of Porto Rico. Mr. Snow is professor of chemistry in the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

Mrs. Clem, wife of Brig. Gen. John Lincoln Clem, U. S. A., has gone to San Antonio, where she is spending the summer with her father.

Miss Nora Reagan, who spent the past month with relatives in San Antonio, will return to this city in August via Canada.

Visitors from Texas to Washington this week were as follows: J. S. Lankford, San Antonio; E. C. Winters, Dallas; A. F. Baird, San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Young, Lebanon; Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Logsdown, Ranger; Edwin Hobby, Dallas; Miss Hazel Lyons, Fort Worth; Miss Clara M. Hill, Fort Worth; John H. Howard, San Antonio; J. F. Murphy, Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Young, Lebanon; O. H. Baum, El Paso; Mrs. B. G. Irish, San Antonio; Mrs. W. E. Nelson, San Antonio.

RETURNS FROM LONG VISIT

MISS POSEPHINE MAYFIELD

Miss Josephine Mayfield, a popular member of the younger society set has recently returned from a three months' visit in Waco and other Texas cities. She was the guest of Miss Frances Harris at Snyder, who will be remembered here as her attractive house guest last summer. Miss Mayfield is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mayfield on Fillmore street.

F. L. Mercer, manager of the men's department at the Perkins-Timberlake store has returned from a buying trip in New York City. Frank Timberlake, manager of the Perkins-Timebrlake chain of stores, and R. D. Kennedy, manager of the local store will return from a buying trip in the east the first of the week.

Religion of Rest To Be Powers' Text

"The Religion of Rest" will be the subject of the Sunday morning sermon to be delivered by Rev. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church. In announcing his Sunday services, Dr. Powers said, "Sunday morning I am going to preach a sermon on the religion of rest. There are hundreds and hundreds of pepole in Wichita Falls who are daily wasting their lives, physically, because of an insufficient amount of rest. Do not confuse rest with idleness. One is a blessing to man and a command of God; the other is a menace to man, but pleasing in the sight of the devil. By knowing the value of rest work can be made more attractive; by knowing the full meaning of the word rest, even death, to a christian, is less dreaded.

"Make the Lord's day a day of rest. Join us in Sunday services and let us rest our souls in worship to Him who made rest possible."

It is announced that during the summer months choir director Ray Vaughn is providing splendid music for each Sunday service, both morning and evening. Miss Daisy Wharton, violinist and William Young, vocalist, both well known for their talents, help with the musical program.

Band Concert to Precede Service

The W. O. W. band will give a program on the lawn of the First Methodist church, South, Sunday night at 8:15 as a prelude to the services. The lawn has been found to be such a cool place that Sunday evening services ar ebeing held there during the hot weather.

The band program for Sunday night follows: March, "National Emblem," Bagley. Overture, W. L. Skaggs, Op. 50. Serenade, "Cupid's Charm, Miller. The band which is under direction of C. V. Johnson has a total of 20 instruments.

"Ashes" will be the subject of the night sermon by Dr. J. D. Pinkston. He expects to make a modern application of this age-old symbol. "Prayer" will be the subject of the morning sermon. Mr. Pinkston is said to be an excellent speaker, a thorough student and a logical thinker.

History Told in Footwear.

The University of Washington undertaking to make a collection of the moccasins of the various tribes of Indians. This kind of footwear is now becoming extinct and the manufacture will soon be a lost art, for the Indians are very pronounced in their perference to the shoes of the white man. The squaws are not making moccasins except for the young children. Distinct tribal models are to be observed with historical events drawn in beads. The squaws were the historians and the moccasins were their records to a great extent. The models differ, in that different kinds of country traversed called for some variations in their construction.

SOCIETY GOSSIP

Timely Little Talks Over the Teacups An Individual on the Inside Impresses Her Opinions on Friend People Peggy Piedmont Meets During Week

DEAR KITTY: What would you say if I told you that I went west this summer, instead of coming east? Now, don't let yourself get all fussed up, 'cause I am only teasing, but I confess that delightful letters to friends from Mrs. W. B. Chauncey and Mrs. Bernard Martin have set forth the charms of the west so graphically that the lack of time and the spondulix is all that is keeping me from boarding a train and starting to California. For when people tell you that they have reached a "spot where there is nothing left to wish for, except the presence of those we love, and then it would be heaven on earth," why then I realize that it must truly be a paradise on earth, and wish I was there. Their trip and stay in the land of flowers with their families has so far been marked by a succession of delightful experiences and beautiful scenes according to their letters. And while I am thinking about our friends out west, I must not forget to tell you that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Wormer left the last of the week for California, going via the northern route in order, as Mrs. Van Wormer said, to once more get thoroughly cooled off. (And right here, Kitty, let me tell you that if every state could boast of half of the boosters California has, they would all equal it, in progress, charm and climate, and some states I know—Texas, for instance—would surpass it in the quality, if not in the quantity of its inhabitants).

OUR people are not in California this summer but are scattered to the four corners of the earth and are still scattering. Greetings from our friend, Mrs. Lucille Brooks Huff, who is touring Europe with her aunt, tell about the wonderful times they are having visiting the many places of interest across the big pond. While in France where they stayed three weeks, she said that words failed her when she met Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Jackson from home, who with their party are touring the continent in their own car shipped from Wichita Falls.

THIS summer has also been a busy one for many Wichitans and letters to relatives and friends tell of the wonderful work some of our young friends are doing in spite of the warm season. Josephine Clark, the young harpist whom you will remember, made such a hit here last fall, appearing on numerous programs on various occasions, writes that she is busy getting her circulars ready for fall work when she will be presented in concert under a Chicago manager. Florence Sammons writes that in spite of the hard work she is doing under a famous pianist of the east, she is enjoying life at Lake Chautauqua, New York, while Ethel Chamberlain is equally happy in an art colony near Boston, where she is doing special work.

WONDER stories of busy Texans in University of Illinois are brought home by Miss Colquitt and her sister, Mrs. E. L. Fulton, both of whom took special work there this summer, Mary in the public music department where she received her supervisor's degree, and Mrs. Fulton in the dramatic art department. Miss Colquitt said that Texas had a representation in the music class of 57 students, which was the largest number enrolled from any state besides the home state, and they received very special notice from the teaching staff and from Otto Meissner, conductor of the well known North Shore municipal chorus. Mrs. Fulton had the pleasure while there of meeting many artists in her line of work. One affair especially affording an opportunity for meeting a group of distinguished people, a tea given by Grace Hickox, the best known exponent of expression in Chicago. The affair was given at her studio and among those present were, A. Star Best, national chairman and organizer of the National drama league; William Ziegler Nourse, best known amateur performer in Chicago; Pauline Goodrow, leading lady in "Lilion of the Field," Jane Adams and many more folks that we read about but whom few of us have the opportunity of meeting and talking to.

AND then Mrs. Fulton had another very pleasant experience when her play coach, Alexander Dean, made it possible for her and a party to go back to the scenes during the production of "Liliom" which is having a successful run at present in Chicago, where the mechanical construction of the merry-go-round, the attractive prologue was explained. She also had the pleasure of meeting and talking to Joseph Schildkrout, the distinguished German actor, who takes the part of "Lilion" in the production, his beautiful wife is playing the part of the leading lady, filling in for the well known Eva LeGallienne, who so wonderfully portrayed the part of the sweetheart.

NOW after reading about all these people don't you feel down right sorry for girl or woman who has nothing to do, like the one depicted in Nell Blinkley's latest picture, "The Girl With Nothing to Do?" I can think of nothing more distressing than to get up 365 days and know there was nothing in the world for me to do, nobody needing me, no task for me to set me hands to! I admit I don't like to be rushed with work, and that there are times many a morning (especially rainy ones) when I'd just like to turn over and have another nap, but I believe I would rather get up every morning in the year with something to do than to rise with the thought that all ahead of me was to have a dress fitted, or have my nails manicured, and with no definite purpose except beautifying my person, which so many girls think is the main object of their existence. And then when you hear about what so many Wichitans are doing, and their activities, it ought to make any one right down ashamed to be an idler.

AS I seem to be writing you only about busy people and not about triflers, I think about one of our literary women Mrs. W.E.Wade, who has written lots of good things that have appeared in some of the leading magazines in this country, but who not until recently attempted poems and articles along spiritual lines. The poem I present for your perusal appeared in the Christian Science Monitor, a daily published in Boston which prides itself on its articles devoted to the good of humanity, and which are cpyyew out as jewels in the land of literature. The verse follows:

As I gaze at the moon and the stars my cares fade away,
For their silent grandeur and majesty say;
"We reflect the stability of spiritual life;
We show the nothingness of human strife;
Our radiance is a reflection from the light of love;
Oh, man, lift your eyes to the heavens above!"

The beautiful thought brought out seems to be the littleness of man compared to the majesty of God, and we are proud that we have among us a woman with talent to portray it so artistically.

DOESN'T seem as if I will ever stop blowing horn about Wichitans does it? But no matter where they are, from New York to Galveston, they are the folks that are doing things. Thus you see while some of our folks are writing poetry, others are still leaving for their vacations after months of work well done. This week, we bid adieu to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Grisham, who with their daughter, Ruth, will be joined in Colorado by Miss Helen and will proceed for a tour of the Pacific coast, including Portland, and the Yellowstone park. And also Mrs. Grover Rigsby and Mrs. M. C. Cutter and her little daughter, Rose Mary, who left Friday for Colorado, and the Fred Weeks' family and Mrs. Week's mother, Mrs. J. D. Avis, and her sisters, Miss Gretchen Avis, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baum. Judge and Mrs. Ed Napier with their three boys left Saturday overland for Colorado and Tuesday will witness the departure to Corpus Christi of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Carter and their daughter, Elizabeth, and son, Jimmie. Miss Irene Davidson will also leave the same day for the same place, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Truman Stevens plan to come there about August 15.

You can't realize how many people have gone away this summer, Kitty, until you pick up a paper and read about them. Never mind—maybe for many more moons you'll be hearing of me junketing, jaunting or journeying, and when you do, you needn't write me down as one who loves his fellowman, but one who loves herself, because she'll be a happy individual when she inscribes on the hotel register.

BURK SOCIETY DURING WEEK

Little Ollie Cole Is Given Party

Special to the Record News

BURKBURNETT, July 29.—On Friday evening, from 2 to 6 o'clock, the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cole on the Texhoma lease, was the center of a happy gathering of wee boys and girls in honor of little Ollie Mae Cole's second birthday. The little tots each presented the honoree with a dainty gift on arrival and then joined in baby games and frolics which were directed by Mrs. O. A. Bearden, noted for her ability in children's amusements. The chief fun was a doll puzzle.

During the refreshment hour, when ice cream and cake were served, they also cut the "birthday cake" with its two twinkling candles, after Ollie Mae had successfully blown them with a big, merry puff-puff!

The hostess was assisted in the entertainment by her mother, Mrs. J. J. Simmons of Burkburnett and a neighbor, Mrs. Ed Carrigan. Daddy Cole and baby brother, Albert Jr., completed the little girl's happiness by presenting her with a beautiful big dolly and doll-buggy.

A number of old-fashioned games were enjoyed. A refreshing drink of delicious fruit-punch was served from tin cups, in keeping with the rustic air of the function. The guests were with the honoree, Miss Summers, Misses Bernice Barrett, Pauline Gill, Lilla and Sara Majors, Louise Stebinger, Maggie Landers, Mary Louise Davis; Messrs. FATHER AND SON CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY.

One of the most enjoyable family celebration of the season was the dinner-party tendered our townsman, T. E. "Dad" Griffin and his son, John S. Griffin of Randlett, Okla., by the two daughters of the family Mrs. Loma Henson and Mrs. Vera Rankins, in honor of their joint birthdays, on Monday, July twenty-fourth. Dad was sixty-eight years of age and his son, John, forty-two, both on the same day! But Dad, does not look the years, and is to be congratulated on his physical fitness that well might rate him nearer the age of his son than his own. A splendid family dinner was served to the company which included all the immediate relatives and their families.

REO USED TO SPRAY TREES

"Covering a distance of more than 1,000 miles during a single spraying season is the near-record for this type of work established by Fred A. Wolfe of Belvidere, Illinois, with his Reo Speed Wagon," according to Mr. Fritz of the Fritz Motor company.

"Mr. Wolfe is one of the largest growers of fruit in northern Illinois and he sprays more than 10,000 trees each season with a high powered sprayer which has been mounted on the standard speed wagon express body," says Mr. Fritz.

"He makes three trips to each of his orchards and the power sprayer which he uses operates at 400 pounds pressure.

"In addition to this service which the speed wagon is rendering, the truck also enables Mr. Wolfe to make market delivery at Rockford, 18 miles distant from his farm, three times a week ,also to Sycamore, 24 miles, and DeKalb, 30 miles distant, and get the top market at all times."

Maxwell Makes Remarkable Round Trip From Detroit to Los Angeles

Special to the Record News.

DETROIT, July 29.—What in many ways may be considered a remarkable piece of prolonged and almost sustained cross-country driving so far placed on the record books, has been completed by Ray F. McNamara, road engineer of the Maxwell motor corporation, newspaper writer on matters pertaining to the automobile, and the man who is said to have seen nearly 1,000,000 miles of good, bad and indifferent roadway fly under him in his 20 years in the industry.

In this, his latest achievement, which carried him 6148 miles closer to the million mark, McNamara piloted a Maxwell touring car, standard in every detail, from Detroit to Los Angeles and return in 17 1-2 days, driving every foot of the distance himself, carrying no mechanician, treating the car as would any tourist, and resorting to no unusual and special servicing as is frequently done, not so often in standard tests of this nature but in those runs designed as advertising stunts. In fact the car required practically no service during the entire trip.

Averages 351 Miles a Day

Leaving Detroit on June 13th, McNamara maintained a reasonably even pace over the varied roads which stretch across the plains, deserts, and mountains of the southern route to the Pacific, returning via the equally multiform course of the Lincoln highway. Daily mileage of course fluctuated with the road and climatic conditions, but an average of 351.31 miles per day was attained for the entire journey.

The speed of the run, however, is not considered as remarkable by McNamara as some of the features of the performance of less spectacular but more substantial nature. Although elevations of more than 8,000 feet were reached in the Sierra Nevadas and the Rockies, no changes were made in the carburetor as adjusted before leaving Detroit, he states. It is also shown that spark plugs were not removed, even for cleaning; that valves required no adjustments, and the service brake was taken up only twice during the long journey, despite the sharp and winding descents of the mountain regions. The high gear performance was equally impressive, according to the pilot, who affirms that except in very rare instances was it ever necessary to shift from high speed even in crossing the 17 rugged mountain ranges of Nevada, not infrequently regarded as some of the most habardous and difficult climbs in America.

Crossing the Desert

Heat and cold, too, were evidently met with unvarying success. In the southwest, on June 20th, during the 354 mile run from Holbrook, Arizona, to Needles, California, McNamara reports that the thermometer clung to the 114 degree mark for many hours, but despite the torrid temperature only 6 quarts of water were consumed according to his official log. Leaving Needles, the boiling point of America, at 5:00 a. m., the following day with the thermometer touching 96 degrees even at that early hour, he again reports the need of only 2 quarts of water after the day's journey across the coarse sand trail of the great Mojave desert, which was negotiated in high gear.

GOODYEAR PUTS OUT CHEAP CORD

Randle Auto Supply To Handle It

No new line of tires brought out in recent years has met with the instantaneous reception that was accorded to the Cross-Rib cord tire recently placed on the market by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company as a companion line to its famous All-Weather tread, reports the Randle Auto Supply company, dealers, at 906 Scott street.

"Every motorist wants the dependability and wear and easy riding qualities of cord tire construction," he said. "A good cord tire is the last word in tires. A good cord tire is the best tire that can be built. No factor in this business has been more pronounced than the way that cord tires have come to dominate the quality market within the last few years.

"However, a good cord tire of standard, reputable make costs a little more than the fabric tires. The Goodyear company recognized the need for a quality cord tire that could be built at a price that would enable the thousands of motorists to whom first cost is important to still avail themselves of the advantage of correct cord tire construction.

"The Cross-Rib cord is a mighty good tire. It is built of the same long staple fabric as is used in the All-Weather tread. The patented grouped ply construction is used as on the All-Weather tread. And with the exception of the tread, it is made of identically the same grade of rubber as the All-Weather tread.

"The tread design in the Cross-Rib cord is a good second to the All-Weather tread in gripping traction qualities.

"Because of the maximum tractive or non-skid qualities of the All-Weather tread, it is necessary to use more rubber in the tread than is necessary in most tires. The tread of the Cross-Rib cord, while as good as or better in tractive qualities than most tires, does not, because of its design, require quite as much rubber as the All-Weather tread.

"The tread rubber is of a tough slow-wearing stock that should give excellent mileage. The economies in construction then are the lesser volume of rubber in the tread, the different tread stock, and the fact that the Cross-Rib cord is of single cure type.

"As a matter of fact the mileage per dollar, or the final price of the tire will be found to be about the same as the All-Weather. That is, while the consumer makes a smaller original investment in buying a Cross-Rib, he gets as much tire service per dollar as in the case of the All-Weather tread cord.

The "Royal Dispatch" is one of the best looking of the many good-looking sport models to be received by the various dealers here, having the appearance of a custom-built car in its many appointments and exclusive features. Mr. Walling's car is deep gray, with white wire wheels, nickeled radiator, cowl headlights and parking lights, with aluminum bars and an aluminum trunk rack on the rear. The new dispatch carries Goodyear or Goodrich tires as standard equipment, prospective purchasers have an optional choice of maroon or gray on the paint job.

Harding Is Regular Speed Fiend, Has Owned Many Cars

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Warren G. Harding probably will go down in history as notable for a number of things, but in one thing particularly his fame already is assured. He is the "motoring-est" chief executive who ever occupied the white house.

The president's love of motoring is genuine—and he likes to ride fast. Scarcely a day passes that he is not in one of the half dozen white house cars at some time or another.

A few days ago he established a record. On his trip to Marion he took a white house conveyance further inland than one has ever been taken before. The president used four white house cars on the trip, and they were a never-ending source of curiosity to the crowds along the roads, not one per cent of whom, probably, had ever seen a white house vehicle.

If it were feasible the president would do all his traveling by motor, so great is his love for it. For one thing, he says, the air is better than a stuffy railroad train, he can regulate his own pace, and it gives him a better opportunity to see the country and the people that are far removed from the right of way of a railroad. Also, he says, he can think better in an auto than in a railroad train.

Has Owned Many Cars

Harding was one of the first purchasers of an automobile in his home town of Marion, and he has had a succession of them since. He used a drive a car himself, but since he came to the white house the oppressive dignity of his office has compelled him to forego it. He confesses, however, that occasionally his hand "itches" to get hold of the wheel again.

The late Senator Boies Penrose, of Pennsylvania, used to be known as the 'motoring-est' man in public life in Washington; yet President Harding would give him a close race for honors in this direction. Penrose's "Red Devil" was known for miles around.

Senator Jim Watson, of Indiana, tells a story of Penrose's motoring. The "Big Boss" used to go out in his car when he wanted to think something out, when he had some problem that was troubling him. He would sit in the back seat and think while his motor roared through the country. He was not given much to talk.

One Sunday, so the story goes, Penrose called up Senator Watson and asked him if he wouldn't like to take a little auto ride. The weather wasn't exactly propitious, but Senator Watson was familiar with Penrose's moods and he readily consented.

The "Red Devil" with Penrose's bulk in the tonneau, picked up Senator Watson at his residence.

"How are you, senator?" asked Watson.

"Ugh," grunted Penrose.

Drove Off Silently

They drove off silently. Mile after mile was clipped off in total silence. Baltimore, forty miles away, was reached and passed. Wilmington faded away in the distance and then came Philadelphia. Not a word had been spoken. Penrose sat buddled in his seat intent upon his own thoughts. Watson likewise was silent waiting for the "big fellow" to break silence.

When Philadelphia was reached the chauffeur turned around.

"Where to, senator?" he inquired.

"Washington," grunted Penrose.

The trip back to Washington some 200 miles, was made in absolute silence. Late at night the car finally drove up to Senator Watson's residence and "Jim" got out.

"Good night, senator," said Watson.

"G'night, Jim" said Penrose.

While he was in the senate President Harding usually traveled from Marion to Washington and vice versa by motor. It is a run of 600 miles. While he was a candidate Mr. Harding thought nothing of leaving Marion after a late lunch, motoring to Mansfield, some fifty miles away, playing eighteen eighteen holes of golf and motoring back in time for a late dinner.

The motor car may have a greater addict than Warren Gamaliel Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States, but if so he isn't in public in Washington.

TEXAS PRODUCES 5.1 PER CENT OF U. S. GAS

Special to The Record News.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Texas in 1920 produced 5.1 per cent of the natural gas of the nation, the department of the interior today announced. The total Texas production wac 44,160,000 cubic feet. West Virginia led all the states in natural gas production with 244,745,000 or 28.4 per cent of the nation's output. Texas consumed 49,467,000 cubic feet, with 5,000,000 additional cubic feet coming from Oklahoma. The average price to the consumer in Texas for natural gas was 19 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, or a total of $9,398,000.

Many a man in West Texas owes his reputation as a successful investor to the fact that he has learned to rely upon the advice and counsel of officers of the City National Bank of Commerce whose business keeps them in close touch with business and investment conditions the country over.—adv.

BUICK SALES PICKING UP

Rail Strike Fails to Hurt Business

"Buick sales are good this month, and if we can only get the cars, August will equal July in new cars delivered," said Charlie Nolen, assistant manager of the Dixon Motor company. "We have delivered two new sport roadsters this month and have orders for several more awaiting the arrival of cars. Sales in Burkburnett, Electra, and other points in the trade territory are especially good and used cars are finding a market almost exceptional for this time of year."

Both Mr. Nolen and Manager L. L. Dixon, of the Dixon Motor company, are optimistic regarding present sales and future. "It is t[o] said Mr. Nolen, "the railroad [s]t and the late cut in the price [w]ill be felt, but with the pro[s]pect of a flourishing cotton crop and farmers in position to replace old cars, we look forward to t[he] months as our greatest month Buick sales in this section."

Drilling Operations Are Cut as Result of Crude Reductions

SOUTH ELECTRA FIELD EXTENDED

Cook and Dyson Get Fair Pumper

Drilling operations in the Wichita Falls district show a cut of almost 50 per cent as an average, during the past week, substantiating earlier forecasts that the 50 cent reduction in the price of crude would have an immediate effect on production.

Electra, the only field where there is any large amount of new drilling, or wildcatting under way, began this week to show the effects of the price depression. The general policy of both large and small companies and independents as well will be to drill what new wells are necessary to protect lease lines, and to live up to lease contracts. Wildcat drilling now under way will be continued by the majority of operators, it is learned, though several have already been shut down to await developments.

Electra Production Settled

Electra's production showed a slight decrease, this week in daily average production, but is still above 21,000 barrels daily. Any great immediate drop, because of the shutting down of new drilling, is very improbable, however, as the Electra fields are remarkably settled in their production. However, local operators appear to be ready to give a practical test to the repeatedly advanced opinion that over-production would force the cut in price, and are hoping that they can to keep the situation from becoming worse.

Semi-Wildcat Strike

A semi-wildcat strike of importance was reported during the week, in the South Electra territory, the bringing in of a fair sized pumper from the 1500 foot sand in section 31, Waggoner pasture, by Cook and Dyson. This well is a mile and a half south and west from the 1500 foot producers of Harvey and Cullum, which opened up the new important west side pool, in section 31. It is a 30 barrel producer on the pump.

The new well is a short distance south of the Wilbarger county line.

Several large completions in the 1900 foot sand are reported with No. 231 Waggoner of the Texas company leading in size. This well is making 950 barrels, while the No. 232 is a 750 barrel well. Both wells are a few hundred feet south from the south line of the Bridwell and Heydrick lease, and the No. 231 is an offset to the No. 215 of the Texas company, the first big well in the 1900 foot sand.

In the west side pool, section 31, Harvey and Cullum have just completed their No. 8, making 500 barrels from the sand at 1920 feet. This new well is on the south line of the lease, and offsets one of the Hereford oil company's wells.

Two More Drilling

The No. 9 on this lease is drilling around 1500 feet and the No. 11 is down around 200 feet. These wells will complete the drilling program of these operators for the present, it is understood. This plan is representative of the majority of the operators in the field at the present time, where before the cut four o five rigs were running, and would have continued to run, until the lease was at least partially developed or some dry holes drilled.

The Planet Petrolem company's No. 50 Burnett, sand at 1920 feet, is reported a 500 barrel well. The No. 39 same lease, in the 1800 foot sand, is a 150 barrel producer.

Several tests that have been watched with interest for the past week or so, as they neared the various sand depths, have not yet shown any definite developments. The Grisham, McCallister and Brown No. 2 Waggoner, section 24, failed to get the 1630 foot sand, from which the No. 1 is producing, but is drilling below 1660 feet, according to latest reports.

No. 1 Waggoner At 1[illegible]

The No. 1 Waggoner of the Texhoma Oil and Refining company, in section 13, between the Harvey-Cullum and Texas company's west side producers and the 1900 foot producers on the east edge of the townsite, is drilling below 1800 feet, after passing up several shallow showings.

The Hereford Oil company's No. 6 Allingham, section 32, is drilling around 300 feet.

The deep test, being drilled by M. J. Bashara et al, on the George Ancell ranch, south of the present production in the Waggoner pasture, is reported drilling around 800 feet.

The No. 2 W. T. Waggoner of the Panhandle Refinery is reported about to the 1600 foot sand depth.

The Ladd and Hannon tests in section 28 and section 33, are reported each down around 1100 feet.

The Carteret Oil company's No. 6 Waggoner, Gibson survey, is reported drilling in 1900 foot sand.

The Hobbs Oil company No. 2 W. T. Waggoner is drilling around 1,000 feet. The No. 5 is rigging up.

Offsets All Drilling

The newly opened pools to the east of the townsite of Electra have shown no effects of the cut, and the consequent shut downs as yet, since practically all are offsets. The Green and Dale wells on the Beaver Electra refinery yards, the Camp, Humble and Gulf tests on the Douglas, and the Gulf tests on the Grace Jennings, along the road into Electra, both to the north and the south, promise interesting developments within the next week or so.

Other important tests are National Oil Field's No. 1 Grace Jennings, now down around 1,700 feet, and the Cumley and Wharton No. 1 Jennings, reported on the 1700 foot sand found in the No. 1 completed a short time ago for a nice producer. These tests lie between the producers on the Jennings and refinery lease, and the older pool.

GASOLINE RATE FOR REFINERIES

W. F. S. Co-Operates To Help Business

Refineries operating between Breckenridge and Wichita Falls will be given in the near future the benefit of a 15 cent rate on casing head and naptha gasoline, according to announcements made in the office of H. N. Roberts, traffic manager of the Wichita Falls & Southern.

The rate, which will be classed as an emergency rate, will be in effect only on the Wichita Falls & Southern, it was explained.

Mr. Roberts explained that the special rate will be fostered for the purpose of enabling the refineries to bring their products to this city for blending purposes. The traffic manager indicated that he will push the special rate on the floor of the tariff bureau meeting at Dallas August 1, and it was his belief that it will become effective within the next ten days.

HUGE OIL SHIPMENT SENT FROM WICHITA

The largest shipment of oil to be carried over the Wichita Falls & Southern in a considerable length of time was carried over the line from Wichita Friday night. A total of 76 cars, contained in three train-loads were shipped en route to St. Rose, La., where it is to be sold as a commodity.

The shipment left this city on scheduled time, and was transferred to another line out of Graham on tithe, according to information received at the traffic manager's office yesterday.

DUNCAN, Okla., July 29.—The well being drilled by the Cosden company on the J. B. Kirk farm, in the ne of the se of section 16, 1s-8w Swan offset to the Cates well, came in late Wednesday afternoon as a big gasser. The well was gauged 24 hours after it came in and is making 6,000,000 cubic feet of dry gas.

WELL TO BE DRILLED ON OLD WEBB RANCH

Information reached Wichita Falls Saturday that H. F. Wright and others have leased 5,000 acres of the old Webb ranch in the northwest part of Baylor county and have entered into a contract to drill a well starting not later than October 1. The land now belongs to J. H. Turbeville of Archer county and is in section 113 about two miles south of Mabelle. The test contract calls for a depth of at least 2,500 feet.

To bring a 50-car freight train to a stop from a speed of 30 miles an hour and for it to regain that speed is the equivalent of its running 2.4 miles. An average cost of freight train operation by selected accounts is shown to be $2.11 per mile. From the above it is a cost of $5.06 for each unnecessary stop made by an average freight train.

NORMA DEFENDS LIFE IN MOVIES

Denies Hollywood Is Wicked City

(By International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 29.—"Yes, some people call this place 'Horrible Hollywood,' and even term the well-thought-of residents here as natives'," said Norma Talmadge as she sat on a box on the "lot" resting between scenes of her latest screen production.

Her usual wholesome smile was absent., A serious expression swept across her face with cyclonic velocity and there was fire in her eyes. She had been asked what she thought of "all this comment about the motion picture colony and Hollywood."

"Unfortunately," the actress said calmly, "from professionally paid reformers have come unwarranted attacks centered on members of the motoin picture industry who live and work in Hollywood. That these attacks were unjust and without foundation and that idle rumor has been accepted for fact has been proven.

"People continually ask me about Hollywood," Miss Talmadge continued. "Earnest men and women—leaders in art, literature and finance—have asked me the truth of Hollywood. And I tell them that Hollywood is a city much maligned.

"What makes a city? you ask. Well ,certainly not the malicious, half-baked, distorted creations of persons whose command of adjectives is greater th..n their regard for truth and their ability to see things as they really are. The real measure of a city's worth is its aim—and its accomplishments.

"Hollywood is Dear to Me"

"Hollywood is dear to me because I have lived and worked here—have seen it progress—enjoyed its triumphs and, too, I have suffered r ' heartaches whenever a scandal made its appearance. The sensational parties you read and hear about, but never see, are not staged in Hollywood, I know. It is an undeniable fact that the motion picture colony does have its 'undesirable' and scandals, but every other profession has them also.

"The motion picture star realizes his or her debt to to public. They are the idols of millions, and they must be careful in everything they do, realize that because of this they

"Evening in Hollywood see gatherings of stars, directors, camera men, technical experts and writers—all men and women who strive to attain perfection in the art they love. Hard work, inspiration, the radiance of home life and the goal ahead are always the spirit of Hollywood—not the scandalous parties you hear about.

"All films cannot be for children. Sex and money are part of everyday life, and a picture must have a background. Pictures portraying life must have these factors.

Restriction Hurts Art

"Criticisms have been made that pictures show too much of this or that. It has also been suggested that certain phases must be eliminated and other parts 'cut.' But restriction is not conducive to the best artistic results, and dogmatic restraint is a death blow to the soul of art.

"It is not the psychology of the American people to attack a person because he is popular. I know the nation is not populated with men and women who begrudge merited success.

"Here is another little interesting item about the young girls—and there are many of them—trying to 'get in pictures.' I guess the average person thinks they are the style of girl who cuts a wide swath along the gay 'white way' and leaves a trail in the cafes, spending money after a thoughtless fashion as she goes. Such is not the case, and here is the explanation.

"The 'extra' girl, trying to make a name for herself, does not work all the time, and often times, because of the scarcity of work, wonders where she is going to get the money for her next week's expenses. And because of that fact she is less expensive to her young gentleman friends than the average young lady of the social sets.

"But back on Hollywood again. Perhaps it is not the best little town in the world. It is not a city of plodding residents who look with a lustreless, questioning eye at progress here and there. And, in the parlance of the slang of today, it has no slow-thinking citizens—the stolid type who resent the requirements of modern living, who get no enjoyment out of life and want no one else to. There is no air of mustiness and decay about Hollywood, nor are there any self-appointed reformers who go about denying sin, yet secretly indulging in it. That everlasting inertia gripping everything has yet to get its hold on Hollywood. But still it is a place where one would like to get married and settle down and take a home on the shady side of the street and watch the children and a couple of dogs romp together on the lawn—and really enojy life.

"Perhaps hysteria is at the head of the reform crusade.

"Perhaps dyspepsia has something to do with the matter.

"Or maybe it is a combination of the two."

Then a director called Miss Talmadge. She slipped down from off the box on which she had been sitting and ran across the "set" to make another scene.

"OTHER WOMEN'S CLOTHES" AT STRAND THEATER MONDAY

"Other Women's Clothes," the latest Hugo Ballin-Hodkinson production, featuring Mabel Ballin, which opens at the Strand Monday, is a compelling bit of screen entertainment, and serves to enthrone Mabel Ballin more securely than ever in the favor of the theater-going public.

"Other Women's Clothes" is a story of society life in New York city, with many scenes laid in Paris, Rome and London against a background of fashionable restaurants, modiste shops, theaters, etc. But the reverse of the picture has been shown with startling realism, and the homes of the well-to-do have their counterpart in the rooms of New Yorks' working girls; charmingly gowned society women are offset by the little models and workers who fashion these dazzling creations. Yet each of these contrasting pictures is a link in the dramatic chain of the whole drama, and the picture, from first to last, has been done in such a lavish way as to charm both the eye and the mind as well.

Mabel Ballin is cast in the role of Jacquelin Lee, the little model who steals a purse in order to purchase medical care for her chum. Raymond Boomer pays the part of Barker Garrison, young millionaire who decides to give Jacqueline all the money she can possibly use and see if the possession of it will bring her happiness. Jacquelin is not allowed to know the source of her sudden wealth—but it is inevitable that she should eventually learn of Garrison's experiment—whereupon she decides to return to her former state of living.

"Other Women's Clothes" will make its sure appeal to everyone.

work perfecting the remainder of the highway.

At least sixty-five per cent of the road from Crowell to Muleshoe, the last Texas town on the route, is equipped with standard built culverts. The entire road has been placed in the favored seven per cent class as an interstate highway receiving federal aid.

Support Pledged

Commissioners courts along the route in Texas, enthusiastically pledged their support last Saturday as the flying delegation visited their respective communities. Towns visited included Crowell, Paducah, Matador, Floyada, Lockney, Plainview, Olton, Muleshoe, Texico and from thence to Clovis and Roswell, New Mexico.

The Lee highway, to stretch from New York to San Francisco, connects the greatest city and seaport in the world with the great potential hydro-electric power plant in the United States at Muscle Shoals. Between these cities and on the direct line lie Philadelphia Wilmington, Baltimore with their harvors; Washington, Roanoke, Bristol, Knoxville, Chattanooga and a series of county seats nowhere more than twenty-five miles apart, from all of which radiate lateral roads which, with the main trunk line, afford highway service to the southern highlands. There is a continuous stretch of hard surfaced road at present from New York to Memphis, Tenn. and ere long this pavement will extend to Medill, Okla.

Lee highway links the Tennessee rive. at Muscle Shoals, Ala., with the Rio Grande at El Paso, Texas. In northern Virginia it crosses the historic Bull Run and the Rappahannock. Between Muscle Shoals and El Paso it crosses the Mississippi at Memphis, the St. Francis and White rivers, then the Arkansas at Little Rock and follows up the rich, fertile Red river valley through southern Oklahoma and the panhandle of Texas. It crosses the Pecos at Roswell, and reaches the Rio Grande at El Paso, Texas, on the Mexican border. Across Arizona it follows the Gila and Salt rivers and crosses the Colorado at Yuma on the Arizona-California line.

Aside from the beautiful places to which it leads, aside from the fact that it will render a maximum of highway service, the Lee highway has an inspirational value as well. It is serving not merely this generation but posterity in making provision that the name, fame, and the inspiration of the great southerner shall be perpetuated. It is fitting that there should be a Lincoln memorial highway through the north and a Lee memorial highway through the south. Both begin at New York and are reunited at San Francisco, constituting a golden chain which helps make fast the bond of an indissoluble union.

Mary Miles Minter Stars in "South of Suva" at Empress

"South of Suva" is a real surprise in South Sea pictures, because it seems actually to interpret life in the tropics, the drama that is sure to arise when white men and women of varying temperaments become owners of coconnut and rubber plantations far from civilization. And particularly what happens when a young wife comes to join a husband in the Fijis, and finds that he has succumbed to the degrading influences of life below the equator.

As a vehicle for Mary Miles Minter it is decidedly different from her usual photoplays. For one thing, she has a more grown-up role which offers her some very splendid acting opportunities, of which she takes adequate advantage.

And, what is probably more important to the feminine portion of the audiences, as the wife recently arrived from "back home," she has a very excellent chance to display some of the brand-new long skirts which Paris style dictators are naming as the fashion for the current season.

John Bowers and Walter Long are well cast as the two contrasting planters, one well-balanced and successful, the other a worthless degenerate. Other members of the cast who appear to good advantage include Winifred Bryson, Fred Kelsey, Roy Atwell, and Lawrence Steers.

Director Frank Urson has secured some very startling thrill effects including a fight with natives, a knife-throwing stunt by a Hindoo and a reproduction of what purports to be a real cannibal sacrifice dance. The production is by Realart, with supervision by Elmer Harris.

"South of Suva" heads a program which includes Winifred Bryson, John Bowers, Roy Atwell. It will appear at the Empress here Monday and Tuesday.

houses were erected or repaired. The majority of the permits issued were for the purpose of building, too, the records show.

In July, $201,460 were expended here on new erections and remodeling jobs, this being one of the largest amounts on record for the present year.

Eight Permits Saturday

The building in July was boosted somewhat by the number of permits to be issued Saturday, when a total of eight permits were granted, aggrevating a total expenditure of $29,300.

Permits during the last seven day-period were issued to the following:

J. C. Joplin & Company, to repair a two-story, one-room frame business house at Seventh and Indiana, $300.

J. H. Bonard, to erect a six-room brick residence at 1410 Hayes, $8,000 consideration.

John E. Butts, to erect a five-room frame structure at 1604 Filmore, $3,-500 cost.

Valentine Auto repairing plant with equipment of the most modern type, and which is prepared to take all the paint off any car before retouching it with a brush, the Williams Auto-Top company, the Wheel & body works—all go to play their important part in the business life of the city, and each adds its certain amount of net returns to the successful growth of Wichita Falls.

Wichita Inventions

Not only does Wichita Falls claim these industral leaders, but at some of them, inventions have sprung up that are taking hold all over this section, important among which is the recent development of the W-K spark plug, an invention of two local mechanics who are now building the plug at 1104 Scott street and placing it successfully on the market.

Numerous planing mills and foundries are also located here, while it became known during the latter portion of the week that an annealing plant is being erected on the north side of the city, fully equipped to repair, through high heat pressure, and arranged to handle a large capacity of welding business.

Most every kind of a plant from a potato chip establishment where tastely edibles are prepared to a place where the modern automobile truck is built is located in Wichita Falls.

Important in business realms of the city is the Wichita Broom company, which has a capacity of 50 dozen brooms per day, and which covers a territory ranging from Texas to Louisiana, Colorado, New Mexico and Oklahoma. The plant is not operating full capacity at the present time, but nine busy men are employed just the same, putting out 12 different brands of brooms, chief of which is the "Big Star." When the new crop of broom straw comes in, the plant, it is asserted by officials of the company, will renew the life of the industry here and operate full time.

First Invention Makes Good

At the Wichita Wheel & Body, where Wichita Falls' first invention, the 'Wichita fender brace' was originally made, a total of about 20 cars per day are handled, the plant manufacturing bodies, wheels, springs, auto tops—doing everything except repairing the motor. Sixteen jobbers, working through the local plant, are now handling approximately 4,000 fender braces made by the plant per month, according to L. L. Taylor, general manager.

A nickel-plating plant, which is being erected on Eleventh street near Travis, will add to the industral activity here, this plant being complete, it was learned yesterday, in the next three weeks.

And while iron is being twisted into the shape of a fender in some places, paint brushes being run in others and choice lumber is being sawed into correct sizes in additional plants, in other section of this city expert bottlers are putting out 600 cases of soda water a day, a dozen different varieties of the choicest "pop" that the kiddies like being made. This industry is carried on by the Wichita Bottlings works, where 10 employes are now working full time, preparing to meet the demands of a thirsty public for the remainder of the summer months. In the winter, this plant does not cease to run, half the present crew being employed throughout the coldest months.

Bricks and tiling are even manufactured here.

In short, Wichita Falls has practically every important industry that one might conceive of, especially catering to oil field trade and making articles that are of use in that kind of business. And with the year from -ising more business to the local industries, the business men who head them are confident of more prosperity, not only for hte United States and for Texas, but for this local vicinity in a greater volume.

And the sign of times—"Business Is Good With Us"—should be repeated everywhere, for it is the note of optimism that has made industrial Wichita successful.

GOLDEN SNARE COMING HERE

One of the best motion pictures yet based on a James Oliver Curwood story of the wilds of the Far North is coming to the Gem theater next week. It is "The Golden Snare," produced under the masterful direction of David Hartford, with Lewis Stone and Ruth Renick in the leading roles. It is a story of gripping mystery, thrilling adventure, and a great love born out of the wilderness. It starts with a search by an officer of the Royal Northwest mounted police for Bram Johnson, the "Loup Garou" man of the Arctic barrens, wanted for murder. It results in the discovery of a golden hair beauty, whose mysterious presence in those frozen wastes remains unexplained and until Bram Johnson gives his life for her. It ends—well, it is a wonderful story, and we do not want to spoil it for you by trying to tell it. In addition to an extrordinary plot, the motion picture camera unfolds a wonderful panorama of the great snow country, with its malamute dog teams, its snow-shoe equipped men, and its great silent forests.

WHAT IS THE WIFE'S DUTY—?

An ugly face leered through the open window—the face of a dirty beach comber.

The white girl stared at the man in the window. Suddenly she recognized that face. Suddenly she knew. It was the man she had married!

What was this young wife's duty?

Full of love and joyous expectations she had come to join her husband on a tropical island—and found him a little more than a beast.

But she stuck to the ship, even though it had become a wreck—

MAYFIELD-FERGUSON BATTLE WILL SEE STRANGE LINE-UP OF TEXAS' POLITICAL LEADERS

Love Backs Mayfield And Miller Backs Farmer Jim; Henry May Quit Mayfield.

By H. N. F.

DALLAS, July 29.—There is a run-off coming and James E. Ferguson and Earle B. Mayfield are the runners off. National Committeeman Thomas B. Love cast his primary ballot for Charles A. Culberson. He will cast his ballot in the run-off for Earle B. Mayfield. He gives as a reason for his choice that Mayfield is a Wilson democrat, for the league of nations, the federal reserve act, the federal reserve banks and prohibition, while Ferguson is opposed to the same issues. National Committeeman Love has no use for the invisible empire or the ku klux klan, and has made this known in his statement to the public telling why he must follow his conscience and vote for Mayfield in the August contest.

There has never been any love lost between the national committeeman and Ferguson. There was a famous campaign fought out in Texas in 1918 when Ferguson was governor. Joseph Weldon Bailey was at the head of a powerful faction of the democratic party. Love was ambitious to be national committeeman and to control the convention in order that the forty girls who attended the Baltimore convention in 1912 and nominated Woodrow Wilso should be sent to the St. Louis convention to repeat their earlier performances. Ferguson and Bailey captured the San Antonio convention and steam rolled Love, Cullen F. Thomas, A. J. Barton, Thompson, H. Ball, Thomas M. Campbell and all the other immortals and their friends. They elected William Poindexter national committeeman. Love claimed that he was defeated in votes and instituted a contest. When all the belligerants arrived in the city of St. Louis where the national convention was held. Love lost his contest.

William Poindexter served as national committeeman two years and resigned. Love was elected his successor. He was re-elected in 1920 and will hold over until the next national convention has been held. Mr. Love told the writer that the democrats who were opposed to the invisible empire rolled up one hundred and fifty thousand majority against July 22, that there was no excuse for the existence of the klan as a political party within the camp of the democratic party and that it will be short lived. He had to make his choice, he said, between Mayfield and Ferguson and he selected Mayfield as the best for Texas with all the facts before him.

Judge Barry Miller who was the voice and the spokesman for Culberson during the campaign lost no time in making known his intentions. This is what he wired Ferguson: "Reports show that you are seventeen thousand ahead of Senator Culberson which will put you in the run-off. In view of this fact, there can be but one place for a real democrat to go. If I can be of any service to you, do not hesitate to command." Ferguson replied: "I accept your kind offer and will be glad if you can render me any service you see fit."

Judge Miller will take the stump and make a speaking campaign for Ferguson. In the bitter campaign waged by Ferguson against William P. Hobby for the governorship, Judge Miller espoused the cause of Hobby and fought Ferguson to a last ditch finish. Clarence Ousley has thanked his friends but made no reference to the runners off nor did he indicate his choice for the succession. Cullen F. Thomas has maintained a dignified silence but his intimate friends say that he will make a declaration of his intentions after the complete returns have been received. Robert Lee Henry has not given public utterance of his attitude toward either Mayfield or Ferguson.

For years Henry and Ferguson were close political friends. Ferguson always backed Henry in his congressional campaigns and six years ago he threw his support to the Waco statesman. Ferguson was governor at the time and Henry was ambitious to succeed Culberson as a senator from Texas.

All the political wiseacres or alleged prophets are predicting the queerest lineup in the Ferguson-Mayfield contest that has ever been known since Texas became an American state. Pre-primary election forecasts were to the effect that between seven and eight hundred thousand democratic men and women would participate in the July primary. There was an awful slump from the predictions.

Officials of the Texas election bureau say that the vote may fall below six hundred and twenty-five thousand. If so, there are five hundred and fifty thousand qualified voters in Texas who boycotted the democratic primary July 22. And the politicians are asking, "What is the answer?" Dallas county has fifty three thousand qualified voters. Less than twenty-five thousand cast primary ballots July 22.

Chairman Claude McCallum of the democratic county comittee is positive that the Catholic and Jewish citizens of Dallas, who have always affiliated with the democratic party, stayed away from the polls. National Committeeman Love is of the opinion that the Jewish citizens, who number four to five thousand, stayed away from the polls but he insists that the eighty per cent of the catholics stood up and were counted on election day.

Memphis Eager To Get Highway

Special to the Record News.

MEMPHIS, July 19.—At a large mass meeting of citizens Thursday night on the court house lawn in Memphis, organization and plans were affected to secure the routing of the proposed Lee Highway from Lawton, Okla., by Childress, Memphis and Turkey. This route is the most prominent as it shortens the distance west of the highway more than 75 miles over all other proposals, and also secure its routing over the already designated state highways No. 3, No. 5, and No. 6-A in Texas, and giving a direct route from Lawton, Okla., to Clovis, N. M., and on to Rosewell. Interest is very strong in the movement and abundant financial backing is provided.

Clay County May Get Concrete Road

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, July 29.—Rumors are persistent during the past week that an effort will shortly be made to have a special election called to form a road district from the Wichita county line to the Montague county lines, laying a concrete road through Clay county along the route of the Colorado to Gulf highway.

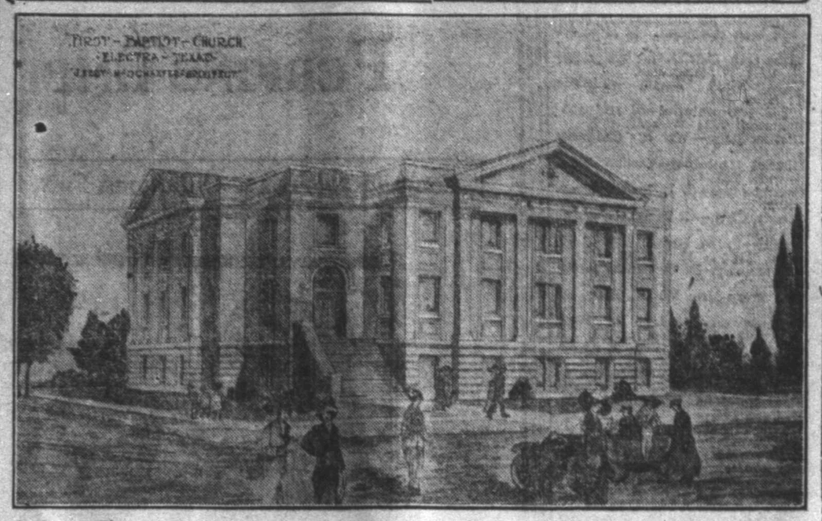

Several conferences have been held between Jolly, Henrietta and Bellevue good roads supporters to determine whether or not it is feasible to create one district along the proposed route or to divide this into three districts and let each be voted on separately. One plan suggested is to create a district from Jolly to the Wichita county line. A survey of the feelings of the voters in this proposed district shows an overwhelming sentiment in favor of the district. Another proposed district would go from Jolly to Henrietta and the third district would go from Henrietta to Bellevue.

It is known that the state highway department and the United States governments are very anxious to get the Clay county link in the colorado Gulf paved, as this stretch of road is conceded to be the worst between Colorado and the Gulf.

It is very probable that within the next three or four weeks definite plans will be made for these proposed road districts.

As a depositor of the City National Bank of Commerce you enjoy the protection of $1,500,000 in capital, of conservative, experienced management which has been tested and developed by 32 years' experience, of United States government supervision, and of federal reserve membership.—adv.

$60,000 Church to Be Built at Electra

In the new First Baptist church at Electra, work on which was started within the last few days, according to Jerry Schaefer, local architect, who drew the plans, Electra will not only have a new and modern church building, but will have a modern community center providing for all the activities which go to make up the program of a progressvie present day church.

The class rooms contain 35 in numbers, providing for a Sunday school of 900 people. The cost of the building, dimensions of which are 85x100 feet, and which will be built of Acme brick and Leuders stone, will be $60,000.

MANY ASK FOR POSTAL PLACES

Texas Democrats Want Places

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Despite the fact that it is generally understood that none but republican need take examinations for postmasterships, there is no dearth of candidates for postmasterships in Texas and many democrats are taking the examinations.

The civil service commission today had received and filed papers of the applicants for 49 postmasterships in Texas, as a result of the examination of July. This is one of the examination dates set in the big drive to get republicans on guard at the postoffices.

For these 49 offices 217 persons applied. In several cases more than one member of a family entered the lists. One postoffice went begging, however. At Abernathy, out in the Texas panhandle, nobody applied for the office which pays a salary of $1,400.

At Grapeland, which pays a salary of $1,900 a year, 16 persons are contesting. Eleven want the Grandbury office, which pays $2,100. Twelve want the Kemp postmastership, which pays $2,100. Twelve are out for the Winfield job, which pays $1,600.

Fair to Have Fine Art Department

Mrs. B. H. Donald, chairman pro tem of the art committee of the Texas-Oklahoma fair, is appointing subchairmen for the various towns in the territory. Some of the sub-chairmen are already at work and have secured some good material for exhibition, it is said. At Vernon, Mrs. W. H. Huggins is working hard among the many talented persons in that place and is said to have a good exhibit in sight. There is every indication of keen competition in this department, it is said.

CITY FATHERS CATCH UP WITH BUSINESS

No unfinished business is on docket to come before the meeting of the city council Monday night, it was asserted in Mayor Frank Collier's office yesterday morning.

Only matters of a routine nature will be brought up for discussion and the belief was expressed that in view of the warm weather, the council will probably adjourn early.

DIVORCED TO BE FRIENDS

Billie Shaw and her ex-husband, William Seabury.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Married life, Billie Shaw and William Seabury didn't agree. But they were agreed after seven years of it that the best thing to do was to disagree—matrimonially.

And so they hied themselves to the well known court where marriage bonds are rent asunder. Desertion was the charge. It was enough.

This formally complied with they returned—together—to the flat which they had left as man and wife.

They're still living there. Miss Shaw's ex-mother-in-law acts as chaperon. Seabury even has his card on his wife—ex-wife's door bell—and a cot in her living room.

Miss Shaw explained the peculiar situation.

"Married, we just couldn't get along," she said, "but we felt that we needed each other in our work. I couldn't let go of Seabury altogether and he couldn't let me go.

"We felt that once we were divorced we could be friends again."

Seabury nodded his approval of the statement.

She said that "hubby" had gotten to the stage in a husband's development where a wife was just some one to use as a convenience, some one so well known and taken for granted that "hubby" could tell his love affairs to her.

"I'm glad I'm divorced," she said. "I like to be free. If you're not married things don't hurt you. I don't blame Seabury. It's much harder for a man to keep single-hearted on the stage than for a woman.

"Now we are working together beautifully and I know we'll remain friends for life."

LAKE AND HIGHWAY WILL BOOST VERNON

Word was received from Vernon Saturday that the people of that city are laying plans for securing the Lee highway and they anticipate that with such a highway through the town and the nearness of the lake to be created by the Wichita valley irrigation project, Vernon will be made a resort city. The chamber of commerce and scores of individual citizens are working for the Lee Highway, it is said. Vernon expects to receive many direct results from the irrigation project.

A "Passion for Parasols" the Newest Craze of Society

Square and Crescent, Like Pagodas and Bird Cages, Costing from a Few Cents for One of Chinese Paper to $1000 for a Fifth Avenue Contraption, Sunshades Are the Latest Medium for the Color Fad.

By May Wilkinson Mount

A SEASON of oddly shaped and vividly colored parasols is upon us. The French started it at Longchamps, setting a mark with small ones. These are somewhere between the size of the carriage sunshade that great-grandmother carried and those of a year ago when the passion for the parasol was not at white heat. The Parisienne also fancied the bird cage parasol—tucked georgette with long fringes of silk or deep frills of lace in a shallow arrangement.

Then the English season opened at Ascot and the paddock was a huge pattern of Japanese motifs enlivened here and there by a range of sunshades decorated with fruits and flowers, some shaped like pagodas, some square and others with segments clipped off their rounded edges. Many of the sunshades are transparent! For instance, a thin black net ornamented with a fantastic dragon of gleaming gold. Delicate georgette cunningly fashioned to represent a full-grown rose, is another novelty; this is lined with sprays with tiny silver buds. The English also produce square cretonne sunshades with ribs finished in painted wooden knobs, the long handle making a substantial walking stick, and, for country wear, plain canvas ones embroidered in clipped wool.

One of the Season's Most Attractive Parasols—Of Robin's-Egg Blue Taffeta, a Frill of Pleated Ribbon Following the Scalloped Edge, and a Cluster of Leaves Fashioned from the Ribbon Radiating from the Top.

"The Gayest Scene Ever Presented by the Paddock at Epsom Downs on Derby Day—Parasols in Every Color, Size, Shape and Pattern Motif Spotted the Landscape Bewilderingly."

Next, the American season and the desire to excel in whatever trend fashion takes. The parasol becomes a picture frame for the face of her who carries it. That being the case there is no limit to the price that may be paid for this frame. Frills of lace and ribbon mounted on a stick inlaid with jade, and the tag calls for $1000. Still many a pretty girl will worry through the summer's heat under a shelter costing only from $25 to $75.

The dictionary states that parasol is a word from the Spanish meaning "for the sun," and that a parasol is a small umbrella used for shading the face of a lady from the sun.

But any artist will deny this statement and affirm that the parasols of the summer 1922 are purely for the enhancement of feminine pulchritude.

Imagine a dusky-tressed Creole girl with her head framed in a dainty scarlet parasol, its brass frame glinting reply to the sparkle in her eyes, and its large knob handle merely setting off the shapeliness of her small gloved hand.

This other parasol is also small and has a short handle. First, its fancy enamelled green ferrule attracts you. Then you wonder how its designer knew that a ferrule with a shirred finish would look so much better on this creation of beauty than the prevailing knob, which is the season's stamp on the other tip of a parasol stick.

Each brass point that radiates to the edge of a jade green parasol of taffeta silk holds a big loose-petalled rose that grew in the gardens of Paris flower-makers' shops, for even the Wizard of California could never produce anything like it. The layer of petals that lies upon the parasol is a deeper shade of green jade than the surface it adorns. Over this flutter large purple petals which hold in their hearts slightly smaller ones of orange that enclose undeveloped petals of fire-red. Such a glory of unexpected colors they make about the flower of a woman's face! And twice the rods hold two big roses, one of them all a flame of nasturtium yellows and orange hues, and only Paris could have conceived this coquettish touch. A smooth green jade stick of enamelled wood completes a sunshade that is intended to afford bright contrast to a gown of any color and form a frame for any face that is worth framing at all.

Who wouldn't look pretty with this small parasol of orchid color—the season's favorite and most fashionable hue for decorative parasols! It is a simple affair, with a brass frame, like the veins in a blossom, and a knob and short handle of green. There is another, with a stick of white, and its neighbor is a deep purple with black handle. One imagines that, framed in this, some attractive widow turns the knob of her parasol on weeds and puts a fetching finish to her second-mourning.

Glittering motifs of metal embroidery spangle a black parasol that would attract anybody's attention, even if the slim figure beneath it was not framing a pink and gold picture of rose-tinted cheeks and sun-kissed hair in its circle. Somehow a really well-chosen parasol frame makes one forget whether nature painted the picture it serves as background for, or whether its hues are applied with pencil and cosmetic.

Next to orchid, the prominent colors, in their order, are green, red, to a more limited extent; white, and a little purple. But more fashionable than any of the plain colors are the variety of Persian silk and pompadour silk parasols which are made with satin borders of the same sort in contrasting colors. As, for instance, one soft design in Persian silk that is a mingling of blues and rose tints, picked out with mere suggestions of other hues, and bordered with a Persian design in reds and greens. This is mounted on a brass frame and has a handle of carved wood, enamelled in various colors on a white ground and with a ferrule of the same kind.

Here a lifelike parrot head tips the handle of a cerise taffeta parasol with a broad satin border in stripes of blue, tan, yellow, white and navy. The red kid of which the parrot head is formed looks remarkably like a bird's pelt, and the brown wooden stick on which it rests is just the sort adapted to this type of sunshade. Polly came from Paris, and so did a dainty thing of white organdie, sprinkled with embroidered polka dots of dark blue to match its crook handle and blue sticks, and finished with a wide border of white taffeta.

Just between parasols of this sort and the extreme styles which are adorned with birds in natural feathers, and flowers applied over the ground of the parasol as well as on its edges, come the exceedingly smart and new sunshades which produce an effect of velvet appliques in rich colors on a contrasting ground. This velvet vogue is—so those who know declare—the most pronounced of the season among parasols of fine make, and it is the newest. The velvet embroideries are carried out in chenille and exhibit designs of peacocks in natural colors, butterflies, blossoms of the large-petalled variety, and curious patterns in rich color groupings.

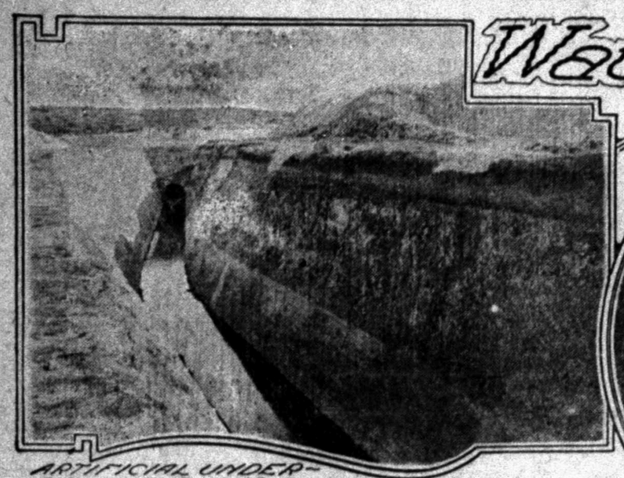

This is one of the seasons when Milady cannot furbish up her last season's parasol. She cannot reduce its size or give it so much of a bowl shape, neither can she replace the ferrule with a large marble and the end of a short handle with a billiard ball. As for color, few parasols carry out one color in their make-up. Handles of green are seen on white parasols with little green tips on the points, and white may be found on green sunshades, and red and white sunshades exhibit the same contrasts.

It is also to be noticed that while pompadour and Persian silks vary in all sorts of hues, the green and red parasols are seen only in the prevailing bright hues of grass, or jade, and clear light red.

Just let a sallow-complexioned girl frame her face in scarlet, and a blonde in green, and at once an attractive picture is produced, while the new and popular orchid colors are becoming to almost every type complexion, real or applied.

The Scene was Abloom with Parasols—a Monstrous Poppy Field.

THE ROOSEVELT DAM, ARIZONA

Projects in View Fifteen Times the Total Area of Those Already Undertaken — Some of the Miracles Achieved By Engineers in Transforming Deserts Into Gardens.

BY RENE BACHE

ONE-SIXTH of the total area of the United States is absolute desert. Nineteen-twentieths of this desert is hopeless, irreclaimable. The remaining 5 per cent. can be watered by irrigation.

That is the business of the Reclamation Service, which has already succeeded in transforming 2,000,000 acres of desert into garden spots that rival in fruitfulness the most productive agricultural tracts in the world. These areas, in formerly waterless valleys, are widely scattered over the West and Southwest.

What has been done, however, is only one-sixteenth of the entire work. There is water available for 30,000,000 additional desert acres, and plans to furnish it have been made. When the tremendous task is completed, a total area somewhat greater than that of the State of Ohio will have been reclaimed.

The 2,000,000 acres already reclaimed support 400,000 people. The 30,000,000 acres to be watered will provide a living for 6,000,000.

What makes a desert? Lack of water. The African Sahara is a desert for no other reason; if it could be watered, it would be one of the most fruitful regions on the earth. The dry valleys of our West have a soil of wonderful richness, requiring no fertilizer, but for lack of water they are barren.

Creation Of Storage Tanks

Happily, it is practicable in some instances to irrigate these valleys, by bringing water into them through canals, or by storing winter rainfall in reservoirs high up in the mountains. In each instance of the kind there is a special problem to be tackled by the engineers, and in overcoming the difficulties involved they have done things which approach the miraculous.

It is true that a bigger job than any they have yet undertaken now confronts them. It is the damming of the great Colorado Canyon, whereby the largest irrigation reservoir in the world will be created, holding enough water to form a lake 1,000 square miles in surface area and 33 feet deep.

For the erection of the dam, choice has been made of a narrow place in the canyon, where there are suitable abutments of rock on both sides. At that point the great cut, chiseled by the river that runs through it, is nearly a mile deep. The dam will be 2,000 feet long and 600 feet high, and, together with the contemplated power plant at the site, will cost about $50,000,000. It will reclaim more than 1,000,000 acres of desert that is now worthless and uninhabitable, and the power incidentally developed will be distributed, in the form of electricity, over a vast region.

Though so huge a job, the project above described offers difficulties by no means so great as some which have confronted the engineers elsewhere, and which they have successfully overcome. For example, there was the puzzle they struck in the Uncompahgre Valley of Colorado. It is one of the most beautiful valleys in the world, and was watered, though not plentifully. Settlers who went in there in large numbers found that there was not enough water for their crops, and appealed to the Reclamation Service for help.

Accomplishing The Impossible

The provoking thing about the situation was that there was a good-sized river not far away. But the river, running through the Gunnison Canyon, was separated from the valley by a mountain range half a mile high and six miles thick. The canyon is walled by almost vertical cliffs, and no man had ever gone through it alive. Nevertheless, two engineers, let down into it by ropes, found a place where the beginning of a tunnel could be made. The tunnel was dug from both ends, the workers meeting in the middle of the mountain, and now a big cement-lined pipe runs through the range, supplying 13,000 cubic feet of water per second for irrigating 135,000 acres of land in the Uncompahgre Valley.

Where the Colorado Canyon dam is concerned, a very important object in view is to control the waters of the Colorado River and so prevent floods which at frequent intervals do enormous damage. The same sort of trouble made the turbulent Rio Grande a menace until, only a few years ago, that stream was brought under discipline by the construction of the Elephant Butte dam, in south-central New Mexico.

The Elephant Butte dam is bigger than the famous Roosevelt dam. It is 305 feet high, and creates a reservoir which contains enough water to cover the whole State of Connecticut to a depth of 10 inches. The lake which it forms is forty miles long and over 200 feet deep. Inasmuch as all the tributaries of the Rio Grande enter that stream above the dam, the latter controls the entire flood discharge of the river. It cost $8,000,000. The water which it conserves irrigates 180,000 acres, some of it being poured out over the thirsty land through ditches that were used by the aborigines for the same purpose when Coronado marched up the valley at the head of his band of Spanish adventurers.

Marvels Of Engineering

The Roosevelt dam, in the Salt River valley of Arizona, spans a deep mountain gorge. It is 280 feet high, and forms a lake twenty-five square miles in area and 200 feet deep. The lake contains enough water to cover the whole State of Delaware a foot deep—or, putting it otherwise, to fill a canal 300 feet wide and 19 feet deep extending all the way from Detroit to San Francisco.

When a big problem of desert irrigation is under consideration, the engineers pick out a place in the mountains where there is a great hollow that will serve the purpose of a tank. Then, after damming the gaps between the hills, they turn a river into it. This describes in a general way the scheme, which, of course, varies with natural conditions as they are found to exist.

In Western Nevada is the Forty Mile Desert which in ancient times was the bed of a large lake. The four principal rivers of Nevada then flowed into it. But the rivers ceased to flow, the lake dried up, and its former bottom became an uninhabitable region, the abode of drought and desolation. Many people, trying to cross it, found their graves there in the fifties and later, through ignorance of the fact that they could have obtained plenty of water by digging a few feet down.

Much of this area has been converted into a garden by the government engineers, who took hold of the Truckee River and turned it out of its bed into the Carson Valley through a canal thirty-one miles long. Not content with that, they went up into the mountains and tapped for water a magnificent sheet called Lake Tahoe. There was, you see, plenty of water to be had, but it was necessary to go after it. When it was supplied, the desert was a desert no longer.

Washing Away The Hills

On the Okanogan Project, in the State of Washington, a vast reservoir has been formed by the erection of a dam of earth 1,000 feet long and 60 feet high. It was built in a very odd way. Down a mountain side ran a small brook so steeply as to furnish a great deal of power, which was used to operate a giant hose. The stream from this hose, directed against the sides of a gorge, washed away the material required to block the gorge, and thus fill the gap between two hills.

Likewise of earth is the great Owl Creek irrigation dam, in South Dakota. It is a mile and a fifth long and 100 feet high. The water impounded by it moistens 120,000 acres. The Pathfinder Dam, in Wyoming, is 225 feet in height, and is the means whereby 400,000 acres are watered. The artificial lake which it creates holds enough water to cover the whole State of Rhode Island to a depth of 12 inches.

The Shoshone Dam is in Wyoming, seventy-five miles east of the Yellowstone National Park. It is 328 feet high, and recreates a prehistoric lake. An ancient stream, flowing out of the lake, cut in the course of ages a gorge so deep that the lake was emptied and ceased to exist. The engineers closed up the gorge with a dam, enabling the hollow in the mountains to hold water again, and today the recreated lake covers ten square miles, the fluid it stores serving to irrigate 150,000 acres. To restore the lake, part of the Shoshone River was diverted from its course, so that it might be poured into the hollow and keep the latter properly filled.

The Laguna Dam (Arizona-California) is on the Colorado River, above Yuma. It is 4,750 feet long, and rests upon the quicksands of the river's bed, being held in place by its own weight. Most of the water which it impounds during the winter time is brought down in the dry months on the California side, by canal, because on the Arizona side the Gila River is in the way. To get it over to Arizona, it is siphoned under the Colorado River through a cement-lined tube 1,000 feet long and 14 feet in diameter. This is practicable because the level of the land on the California side is much higher. Power, incidentally developed, is used to pump some of the water up onto a high mesa, where it is utilized for the growing of crops.

Water Power For Electricity

On the various irrigation projects water power is commonly used for the production of electricity, for lighting and other purposes. Usually this feature is a public utility; but the individual settler can make the "juice" for himself if he chooses. He gets his water (derived from the main canal) through a ditch, into which it pours with a small fall. The fall represents power, which is convertible into electricity by the help of simple machinery, the cost of current being almost nothing per kilowatt hour.

TWO years ago Alice Terry, now nineteen years old, was attending high school in a small town in Illinois. She took a trip West. Arriving in Los Angeles, the girl with the spun gold hair and the Madonna smile soon caught the fever that permeates the motion picture colony in Hollywood. While visiting a studio she received an offer to do "atmosphere."

Then came Rex Ingram, famous director. He was looking for a girl to play an important role in "Hearts Are Trumps." Alice Terry seemed made for the part, and she was promptly engaged. Then came other triumphs. She played Marguerite Laurier in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse"; Eugenie Grandet in "The Conquering Power" and Elsie Tillinger in "Turn to the Right." Her latest role is that of the lovely Princess Flavia, in "The Prisoner of Zenda." As the charming noblewoman who must choose between love and loyalty, Miss Terry presents an appealing and sympathetic characterization.

In private life Miss Terry is Mrs. Ingram, having been married to the director several months ago, during the course of the production of "The Prisoner of Zenda."

"Divorce Coupons"

Corinne Griffith in "Divorce Coupons" plays the part of a little girl who lives in the South and where, as she buds into womanhood, she longs for something more than the languid and prosaic life on a plantation.

Then comes the opportunity. A man of great wealth falls in love with her and offers to take her away to the life that she desires. They marry, and the girl realizes soon after that marriage without love is a fruit without flavor. On this premise is built the subsequent tense situations which make "Divorce Coupons" a photoplay of unusual suspense. In the support of Miss Griffith are Holmes E. Herbert, Vincent Coleman and Mona Lisa.

"The Timber Queen"

Marked by daring riding, and a brand of thrills surpassing her previous serials, Ruth Roland in "The Timber Queen," reveals a new prowess as a horsewoman in every episode. She dashes madly across the plains on an unbroken mustang. On horseback she leaps a canyon gap thousands of feet above the stream below. She races a horse to a neck-and-neck victory and wins the horse race Classic. Over the rocky Sierras, in the forest, on the prairie, this serial beauty has conceived and enacted a play which has well been labeled the surprise-a-second serial.

"South Of Suva"

Lovely Mary Miles Minter in the biggest role of her career, that of a young English wife who goes to the South Seas to rejoin the husband she had married three years before and finds that the insidious influences of the tropics have wrecked his manhood. Her efforts to help in his regeneration are fruitless, and she then tries to get away, taking refuge on a neighboring island and posing as the owner's ward, whom he has never seen. A native uprising precipitates a most unusual crisis, and in the end the worthless husband is slain, leaving his liberated widow free to marry the man she loves.

"The Love Nest"

The daughter of a boarding housekeeper on fisherfolk's island falls in love with a handsome stranger who mysteriously comes to the island. She rejects her former suitor, who departs for the city to obtain an education on money obtained by his father in selling a rock ledge to the stranger. In a short time the rejected lover returns, and in a battle with a smuggler proves to the girl that he really is a man. The stranger also proves he is a fighter, but the girl discovers that she was only "dazzled" by his attractiveness and that she does not love him. He explains his presence by the fact that he sought to hide until a certain legal affair "blew over."

Jean Scott, Richard Travers and Robert Kenyon play the principal roles.

Mary Wynn

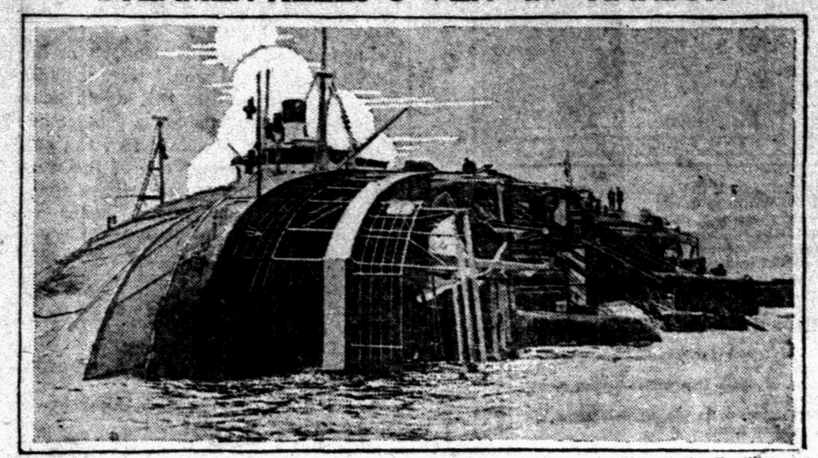

Winsome Mary Wynn, a demure little lady of seventeen years, has won a place for herself in the film firmament. She had a small part in "A Bride of The Gods," and one of the principal roles in "The Man Who Smiled."

Eille Norwood

Eille Norwood makes an ideal Sherlock Holmes in the film productions of the famous stories by Conan Doyle. "The Devil's Foot" is the current release.

These are being put in irons and held under heavy guard. Some are said to be suffering from wounds received in the battle. The cornoner's inquest is now on.

Testimony of witnesses conflicts on the number of dead. One of the surviving defenders testified he saw six dead. Reports had it that but four were killed. Testimony also brought out that the attackers carried their wounded to a nearby farmhouse for first aid. Pennsylvania state police are guarding the border on the lookout for fugitives.

DAILY CHRISTIANITY

WHAT do you do with your religion? Do you leave it in church or do you take it with you in your daily life?

This is an old topic but it is renewed every day. It is an important topic because it means more to the world than does anything else. Christianity—sublime faith in Christ—is the hope of the world and just now in these troubled times, when the world is stirred as never before and nobody knows what will happen next, religion of Christian people is the one factor on which we can place hope. But how can we hope if you leave your religion in church and just make its acquaintance on the sabbath day?

Christ taught that His true followers will try and live as nearly as possible as He did. You cannot live like Christ by living like Him just one day of the week. The world needs followers of Christ more now than it has ever needed them and true Christians take their religion with them wherever they go. It is a part of their daily lives. They believe as Christ taught and believing they practice His teachings. They carry out the commandment "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself" and in loving their neighbors they face the world with a heart ready to help the helpless, glad to prove what the love of God means in the lives of the individual and what it means to humanity. They are kind, patient and merciful.

Christianity is Christianity only when it is perpetual. The man who does not carry his religion in his daily life has no religion. Every Christian should go to church to receive spiritual blessing by communicating with those nearest the cross, but they should bring the spiritual blessings they receive out into the world and into their daily lives.

THE HERESY ISSUE

A HERESY committee was appointed at the Baptist general convention of Texas held at Waco last November. Those responsible for the heresy controversy insisted that the time had come when teachers of evolution in Baptist colleges should be muzzled and the theory that the ape was here before man should be flatly denied. It is announced that the heresy committee has its report ready. It covers 5,000 typewritten pages and those who prepared it say that it will not be listed with the best sellers for the reason there will be nothing in it to provoke discussion. Rev. J. B. Neal is chairman of the committee. As to the report on heresy charges as to teachings in some of the denominational schools, Dr. Neal is responsible for this foreword: "All things were made of nothing in the space of six days and the story of creation is told in the Bible in nine words. Much ado about nothing has engaged the attention of the committee for several months and the story will be told in about 5,000 words.

"My own idea was that a thousand words would have told the story but the committee wanted to put everything before the members of our churches. All the news there is in it has already been made public through the newspapers. We want a few days more to brush up on bad English." Rev. J. Frank Norris was not a member of the committee. Rev. J. Frank is responsible for the heresy charges. He claims to have taken the scalp of Dr. Dow, a heretic who brazenly taught the gospel of evolution in his books and to his classes, but while the report of the heresy committee of 5,000 typewritten pages is ready for the printer, the announcement comes there will be nothing in it to provoke discussion and the committeemen refer to their investigation as "Much Ado About Nothing."

Is this a knockout or a boost for evolution? Dr. William Jennings Bryan isn't a Baptist. He is a presbyterian. He is going about the country slaying invisible heretics and defenders of the theory that ape came before man. Dr. Bryan should visit Texas. Live issues appeal to him. There may be heretics under Lone Star skies who, if tantalized a bit, may give the ape a run for his money. It might be possible to make it a paramount issue after the August run-off for the edification of the people as well as for inspirational purposes. It doesn't have a thing to do with meat or bread making or tax reduction, or road building or educational advancement but bunk has been uppermost for many months and those who talk and never work would be kept busy until the end of the year.

THE BALLAD OF SOULFUL SAM

By ROBERT W. SERVICE

(From "Rhymes of a Red Cross Man." Copyright by Barse & Hopkins. Published by special arrangement with The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

ILLUSTRATED BY HUBERT MATHIEU

YOU want me to tell you a story, a yarn of the firin' line,
Of our thin red kharki 'eroes, out there where the bullets whine;
Out there where the bombs are bustin', and the cannons like 'ell-doors slam—
Just order another drink, boys, and I'll tell you of Soulful Sam.

Oh, Sam, he was never 'llarious, though I've 'ad some mates as was;
He 'adn't C. B. on his programme, he never was known to cuss.
For a card or a skirt or a beer-mug he 'adn't a friendly word;
But when it came down to Scriptures, say! Wasn't he just a bird!

He always 'ad tracts in his pocket, the which he would haste to present,
And though the fellers would use them in ways that they never was meant,
I used to read 'em religious, and frequent I've been impressed
By some of them bundles of 'oly dope he carried around in his vest.

For I—and oh, 'ow I shudder at the 'orror the word conveys!
Ave been—let me whisper it 'oarsely—a gambler 'alf of me days;
A gambler, you 'ear—a gambler. It makes me wishful to weep,
And yet 'ow it's true, my brethren!—I'd rather gamble than sleep.

I've gambled the 'ole world over, from Monte Carlo to Maine;
From Dawson City to Dover, from San Francisco to Spain.
Cards! They 'ave been me ruin. They've taken me pride and me pelf,
And when I'd no one to play with—why, I'd go and I'd play by meself.

And Sam 'e would sit and watch me, as I shuffled a greasy deck,
And 'e'd say: "You're bound to Perdition,"
And I'd answer: "Git off me neck!"
And that's 'ow we came to get friendly, though built on a different plan,
Me wot's a desprite gambler, 'im sich a good young man.

But on to me tale. Just imagine Darkness! The battle-front!
The furious 'Uns attackin'! Us ones a-bearin' the brunt!
Me crouchin' be'ind a sandbag, tryin' 'ard to keep calm,
When I 'ears someone singin' a 'ymn toon; be'old! it is Soulful Sam.

Yes; right in the crash of the combat, in the fury of flash and flame,
'E was shootin' and singin' serenely as if 'e enjoyed the same.
And there in the 'eat of the battle, as the 'ordes of demons attacked,
He dipped down into 'is tunic, and 'e 'anded me out a tract.

Then a star-shell flared, and I read it: Oh, Flee From the Wrath to Come!
Nice, cheerful subject, I tell yer, when you're 'earin' the bullets 'um.
And before I 'ad time to thank 'im, just one of them bits of lead Comes slingin' along in a 'urry, and it 'its my partner. . . . Dead?

No, siree! not by a long sight! For it plugged 'im 'ard on the chest,
Just where 'e'd tracks for the army corps stowed away in 'is vest.
On its mission of death that bullet 'ustled along, and it caved,
A 'ole in them tracts to 'is 'ide, boys—but the life o' me pal was saved.

And there as 'e showed me in triumph, and 'orror was chokin' me breath,
On came another bullet on its 'orrible mission of death;
On through the night it cavorted, seekin' its 'aven of rest,
And it sipped through a crack in the sandbags; and it wolloped me bang on the breast.

Was I killed, do you ask? Oh no, boys. Why am I sittin' 'ere Gazin' with mournful vision at a mug long empty of beer?
With a throat as dry as a—oh, thanky! I don't much mind if I do.
Beer with a dash of 'ollands, that's my particular brew.

Yes, that was a terrible moment. It 'ammered me 'ard o'er the 'eart;
It bowled me down like a nine-pin, and I looked for the gore to start;
And I saw in the flash of a moment, in that thunder of hate and strife
Me wretched past like a pitchur—the sins of a gambler's life.

For I 'ad no tracts to save me, to thwart that mad missile's doom;
I 'ad no pious pamphlets to 'elp me to cheat the tomb;
I 'ad no 'oly leaflets to baffle a bullet's aim;
I'd only—a deck of cards, boys, but . . . it seemed to do just the same.

COX AS A MOSES

FORMER GOV. JAMES M. COX of Ohio, after two weeks in France, is said to be a more fervent advocate of the league of nations than he was in the presidential campaign. There are six or eight blocs of foreign born voters or the sons of foreign born voters in America who wandered away from the democratic fold in 1920 and made up the 7,000,000 majority given to the republican standard bearers. Now these blocs of voters are as bitter against the republican administration and are as hostile in their criticism as their leaders were against the Wilson administration less than three short years ago. Does Cox hope to be the Moses who will lead these deserters back to the house of the fathers in the presidential campaign of 1924? If so, he will have to use a more attractive bait.

"HOME GROWN"

HOME grown watermelons and tomatoes now are plentiful on the local market. That means some of the farmers are making some money. It is the sign of thrift when you see home grown products on the local market. May the day soon come when the local market and many other markets will be well stocked with Wichita grown watermelons, tomatoes, fruits of many kinds and vegetables of various varieties. In that day will this country come into its own.

The saddest thing about a republic is that people always get the kind of government they deserve.

THIMBLE THEATRE. —By Segar

FATHER AND SON

ALLAN A. RYAN has closed his Napoleonic career. His liabilities are $33,000,000. His assets, nominal. His father, the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, was one of the master financial minds of America and as a business man ranked with the few top-notchers. He accumulated a vast fortune. His sons inherited it. Allan A. added to his patrimony but Wall Street got him. He decided to teach the street some new tricks. He did. He became a flashing meteor in the financial heavens and then he hit the earth with a thud. All the master minds who accumulate vast fortunes leave behind them sons. A fool and his money is soon parted.

VACATIONS

REPORTS from the information bureau of the chamber of commerce indicate that many people of moderate means are taking automobile trips to Colorado and other points this summer. That is a great thing. It will be a great day when everybody can travel some in the summer time and take a short rest even if they only cross the county line. It will make people more contented and happy, it will make broader their minds and it will make them better able to perform their duties for the remainder of the year.

Some people would elevate the stage and the movies, but pedestrians are content merely to elevate their hands as required.

DR. CRANE EDITORIAL

GIVE 'EM WHAT THEY WANT

GOD forbid that I should own a newspaper or attempt to manage one! It takes vaster quantities of both courage and tact than I possess.

But if I did own a newspaper, or have the say over one, I would have a department in it devoted to the oldest known subject of human interest, a subject upon which the entire population of the earth is thinking about every day of the world.

I mean the Soul, which implies God.

There is no one human being who reads these lines that within the last 24 hours has not interestedly considered some such matters as these:

Why was I born?

What will become of me when I die?

How can I attain self-mastery?

Am I doing right or wrong?

Ought I to be ashamed or proud of myself?

Am I doing the square thing by my family and my friends?

How can I get poise, avoid worry, be happy, and be decent?

What can I do to make amends for my mistakes or deeds of selfishness or other evil?

Now, all of these questions are distinctly spiritual; that is, they have to do with us as spirits, or minds, not as animals.

And they are thought about by the fifty millions of Americans who do not regularly go to church as much as by the others who do.

Everybody thinks about them. Even burglars, chicken thieves, harlots, gamblers, and confidence men think about them.

The newspaper has its financial page its sporting columns, its society rubric and its political section; but each of these appeals to a class, while the things of the spirit appeal to all, and are of a true democracy.

There is no reason why the church should monopolize them. They belong to the human race.

I would run such a feature in my paper, not to do good, nor to uplift, but for the same reason anybody publishes a paper at all, which is to make a living, to make money; and you make money by interesting people, by printing what they like to read.

In other words, I would do this because the public would like it.

Of course such subjects would have to be treated by the best writer I could hire, a man with wordcraft enough to write entertainingly, and skill enough to keep anyone from accusing him of being a propagandist, whether Jew, Catholic, Protestant or free thinker.

He should ignore all such distinctions, and write straight to human spirits and give them the help they need.

Such a man would need to be sincere, truthful, sane, frank, clever, and have a sense of humor and a deal of sound common sense.

People want faith, courage, beauty; why not give it to them? They don't want pessimism, cynicism, and smart aleck talk; why give them so much of it?

THE MESSAGE OF A BELL

SOMEWHERE in Wichita Falls there is a church bell which can be heard at times even through the noisy din of downtown traffic. In the mornings before the rush starts and when the city is just preparing for the day's mad scramble in this world of material things, the clear notes of this bell can be distinctly heard as they tell the world that somewhere men are worshiping God.

There is no music sweeter than the mellow peal of church bells. There are thousands of children being born in the cities these days who probably within their entire lives will never hear church bells. Most churches have abandoned them.

The sound of church bells carries one back through the years. It reminds one of childhood and home in the years gone by, back in the little village where every sabbath morning the bells from the churches pealed out their music and for miles around the people listened and knew that it was the sabbath and that the hour of worship was approaching. Mother and father and sisters and brothers put on their Sunday clothes and went to the church of its choice, but the fact remains that most everybody went to church in those good old days.

Time cannot erase from the mind the music of the bells one heard in childhood days and time cannot blot out the sweet memories those thoughts bring back. So the church bell that rings in Wichita Falls brings back to us the memory of the village church bells of our childhood and there comes to mind the famous San Fernando cathedral bells, the bells of Monterey and of the Angelus.

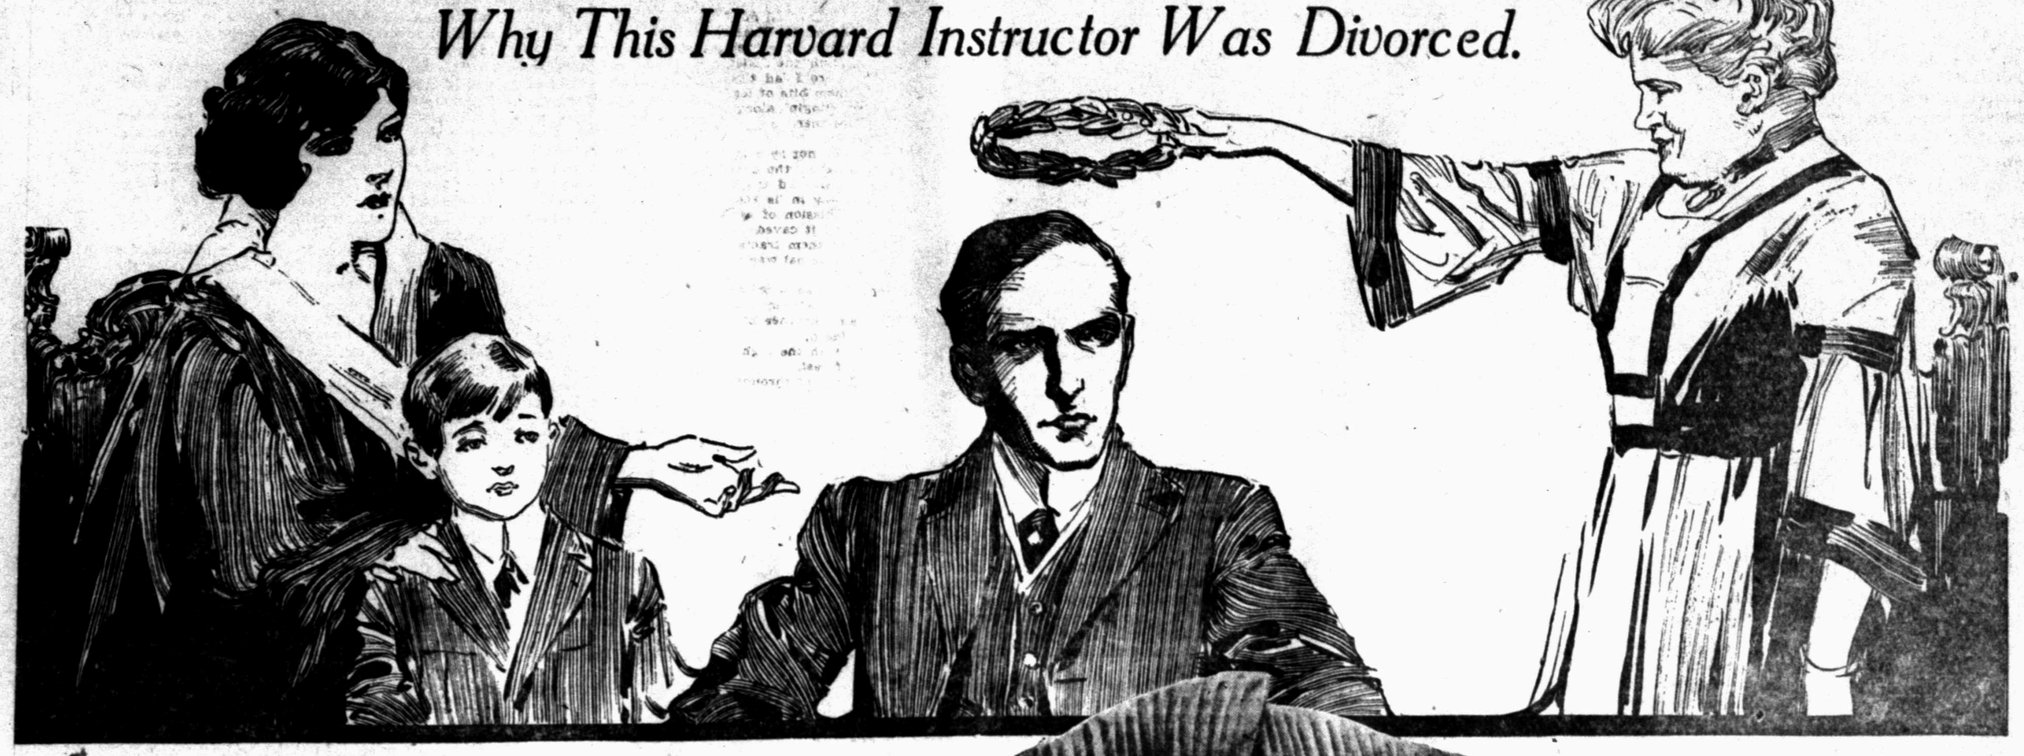

Its reverberations bring to us thoughts and memories that make the day a little sweeter, and the path a little less difficult.

Nothing so enrages a wicked man as the discovery that the pure in heart are not so easily buncoed as their piety would indicate.

The significant fact is not that juries occasionally convict an innocent man, but that occasionally they convict a guilty one.

Does a Good Son Make a Good Husband?

"No!" Is the Upsetting New Scientific Theory Which Explains Why This Harvard Instructor Was Divorced.

By ELIZABETH SHIELDS

THE strange love tangles of Mrs. Harriet Buck Greenfield Cook may help to prove the tenets of a new theory by which scien- s are solving the mystery of unsuccessful rriages. The theory maintains that the moth- y wife always is unable to fulfil her duty to husband. It attempts to show that the hus- d who is forced into the reverential son atti- le is placed in a false position from which only aster may result.

A gentlewoman, product of breeding, educa- n, wealth and cultured environment, Mrs. Cook out upon her marital trail fifteen years ago th a man from her own walk of life. Eric V. eenfield, an instructor in German at Purdue iversity, is as thoroughly to the manner born is the Boston woman who divorced him eleven ars after she had taken her vows to love and nor till death intervened.

What deep-seated inhibitions prevented the mpleteness of their union probably never will brought out of the secret places of two hearts r the world to see. That they were obscure ings, neither understood nor recognized, mani- sting themselves as restlessness, dissatisfaction rhaps, is indicated by the present friendliness the man and woman concerned.

Sentiments of deep regard are expressed by ch for the other. When Mrs. Cook had need of lp in her latest domestic difficulty, the Purdue ofessor was the one to provide it.

So perfect appears to be the understanding tween them that they may remarry, according rumor, if the Boston court where her case is ld under advisement makes final Mrs. Greenfield- ook's second decree of divorce.

And now that the storm and stress that blew rough the three-year union of the love-luckless dy and her second husband has whirled spectac- arly before the eyes of Boston, it seems that ey, too, entertain a fairly tender passion for ch other, with astonishingly elusive reasons for t getting on together.

Like Greenfield, Walter M. Spencer Cook was mate for this high-bred woman. Scholar and inker, he had risen to a position of prominence nong the instructors of Harvard. He was a aveling fellow of the American Archaeological stitute and the intimate of this country's aris- cracy of educators.

Mrs. Cook's most tangible cause for complaint ainst him apparently was his fanatical devo- on to study. But this minor dissatisfaction, t into the place of an impasse, would figure, cording to psychologists, as a scapegoat, the cuse upon which a dissatisfied spirit would load discontent, with dozens of infinitely important evances so concealed from the consciousness as elude recognition.

* * * * * * *

Humanity-at-large has believed the good son is re to make the good husband. "He loves his other so much," people say, "that he certainly ll transfer sentiments of reverence and consid- ation and unselfishness to his wife. He will ake her life a long peace and joy."

But the new science smiles grimly at what it nsiders the tradition of mother's boy turning to the perfect husband. Descending with ruth- s disregard for sentiment through the strata of nsciousness, tearing more slowly adown the yers of sub-consciousness, it comes to rest in at deepest and darkest mine of the soul, the iconscious.

It sets to work there, digging among old perfiences, chopping at appalling growths of pressions springing out of them. Instead of e firm and level basis for normal conduct, it ay discover many a fantastic twist, sudden pits illogic. And among the most frequently found all these is the one known technically as the nother fixation."

This twist, it is explained, may exist in some gree in the mind of every human from the ere circumstances that every human has had a other and remembers with pleasure and long- ing her protection and care, even if those memo- ries are forced to go back to pre-natal life!

But the normal ego balances the mother com- plex with the urge toward individualism. He is the one who makes his own way in spite of assist- ance. So it follows that the man who, for one or another reason, allows some part of the mind to remain fixed upon the mother-child relationship refuses to meet reality completely. He will go through life seeking situations that may be turned into that old relationship so pleasing to him that he carried it upward through the years as one might carry and attempt to wear a baby garment that once had been comfortable.

And there you have the man who goes through life comparing all women with the mother who dominated his early experiences. His action loses no importance because it is performed sub- consciously. He will be dissatisfied with mar- riage; while attempting to assume the place of husband and protector, he will, in his heart, look to his wife for protection. He will expect her sympathy and care while he offers her his own interests to be looked upon and admired, but not shared.

He will resent her wifely claim upon him, for his mother would make no such claim. He will wish to walk alone, but with her unobtrusively about somewhere smoothing his way.

These things being as they are, what more striking example of the son-mother relationship in marriage can science find to hold before the public, with its craze to know why marriage fails, than the queer story of the Cooks?

* * * * * * *

Even after such bitterness of recrimination as made their divorce case unique in the Boston courts, it is apparent that the Cooks love each other.

After the trial had endured its day and the one-time husband and wife were separated, Walter Cook expressed his regret in a letter which must stand as a remarkable record of human emotion.

For the first time in their asso- ciation, it seems, he managed to climb out of the limitations set upon his personality and to realize what he might have made of his love-life with Harriet Cook. He wrote, in part:

"I am suffering a torture which I never have suffered in all my life before, not only for all the happi- ness which I have lost myself and which is gone forever, but for the happiness which I didn't fulfil for you. I realize my mis- take and am willing to take all the blame.

"You, in your simple, direct vision of the truth, saw more clearly than I. You know that the foundation for our happiness lay in a family, love and the blessing of children; in both of us always being together and living a quiet, peaceful life. You offered me all of this. I thought I knew better. I didn't. You knew what was real and permanently worth while in life. I didn't. I can only think of the days I missed in not being with you when we could have been so happy.

"When you cried for help, I thought you were strong enough to walk alone. I had under- estimated your strength. Almost any other woman would have hit me over the head with a club and brought me to my senses and let me understand that I was wrong. But you suffered on in silence and ate your heart out.

"For days and days I have done nothing but think. All my life I shall have to think, and the thoughts will not be pleasant. I can see it all ahead of me for years and years to come. It will come back on me every day of my life, all that you have suffered for my sake. Christ suffered for all humanity, but you suffered as much for one worth- less human being. And your only reward is whiter hair, deeper furrows in your cheeks, a poor little tired body and an empty pocketbook.

"If God ever created a real WOMAN, Guarida, it is you. No human being would have done for any man what you have done for me. And you have done it spontaneously, straight from your heart.

"I have taken always and never given back. No wonder you should have been discouraged."

This is the expression of apology of Walter Cook, husband, for Walter Cook, pseudo-son. There is no question that it is genuine. Yet the new mind analysis will contend that only con- sciously does he grieve for wrong done the woman who, according to his own statement, did him no wrong.

This conscious penance, it will point out, is a gesture toward fairness; an attempt at balancing by conscious expression of sub-conscious emotion deep resentment lying in the unconscious!

The resentment, it further will be explained, grows out of the failure of the woman to continue her course of self-eliminating protection that a mother might offer her selfish son!

* * * * * * *

The story of Walter and Harriett Cook's life together seems to present plenty of proof that the brilliant Harvard don unconsciously shifted his personality from the responsible post of hus- band into the dependent relationship of son.

To begin with, he selected a wife much older than himself; a woman, therefore, more experi- enced and poised, who automatically took on mother characteristics.

A man of great ambition, but no means, he picked for wife one possessed of great wealth, and he allowed her to use that wealth to help him toward his goal as naturally as a son would accept aid from a parent. Thus he encouraged her to pay his way to Europe and to finance a leisurely jaunt through France and Spain, where he did research work for his Ph. D. degree. Not only did he accept his wife's money, but he made it quite clear that he believed it her duty to donate. And he resorted to infantile whinings and threats when his remittances were delayed.

He had no hesitation in allowing his wife to assume the motherly office of financial backer and social entertainer for furtherance of his standing in the Harvard set. She testified in court that he induced her to spend $28,000 for a home in Brattle street, Cambridge, so he might have an attractive place into which to invite the president of Har- vard University and the professors. She added:

"He said it would be a nice neighborhood for professors to live in. He also made me buy an expensive tea-set to lend an air to his entertain- ments."

Startling revelation of this strange resent- ment runs through letters he wrote Mrs. Cook when he was in Europe traveling on her money:

"Now, I love you devotedly, but you must let me do what I want. You must leave me abso- lutely free and give me all the liberty in the world. Otherwise I will react on you and blame you. You have a habit of trying to run things; you try to advise me in my work and as to my friends and everything else. Well, you know nothing of my work. I know my friends better than you do and I know what I want to do!"

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

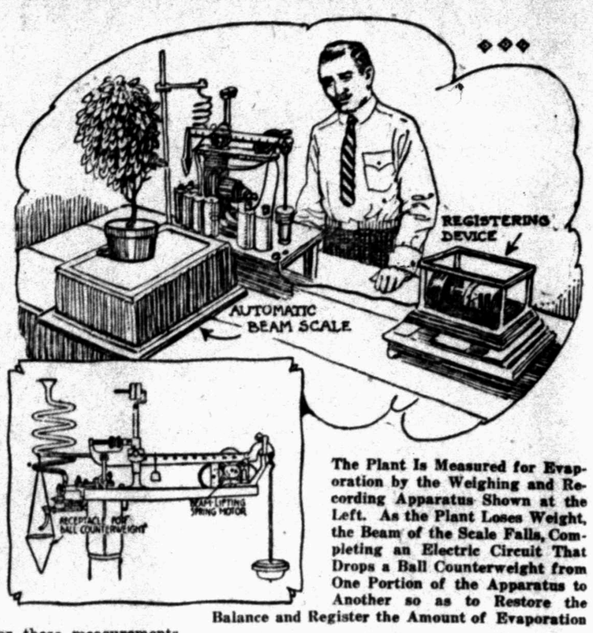

How Perspiring Plants Promote Your Health

MUCH of the healthful moisture in the air you breathe comes from perspiration of the plants, trees and grass around your home. For example, it has been found that the average suburban lawn gives more than ten barrels of water to the air every summer day.

To discover such facts as these, Uncle Sam, master farmer, has recently been conducting interesting experiments with ingenious devices, measuring and recording exactly the amount of water that "transpires" or evaporates from the leaves of plants in 24 hours.

The results have revealed the astonishing rate at which growing things, absorbing water from the soil, pass it off into the air, thus serving as Nature's automatic humidifiers for the atmosphere. One pot of alfalfa lost more than eight quarts of water in a single day, when the atmosphere was dry and the wind strong. The average amount of evaporation for a large plant like a sunflower is between a pint and a quart daily. Findings such as these show why potted plants in your rooms help to restore moisture to the heater-dried air which makes so many American homes unhealthful.

How these experiments were conducted by the United States Bureau of Standards is described by Popular Science Monthly. Special weighing apparatus was devised for these measurements under natural conditions, in the open air. The plant is placed on the platform of a delicate scale, and carefully balanced. Any loss in weight thereafter, of course, is due to loss of water. As the beam of the scale falls, it completes an electric circuit that opens a gate and allows a tiny steel shot to drop from one portion of the apparatus to another, restoring the balance. Each steel ball corresponds to a loss of 20 grams on the part of the plant. The shot are kept in a coiled pipe, and fall into a cone-shaped receiver suspended on knife edges. A spring motor gives a positive lift to the scale beam every time a steel ball is dropped.

The Plant Is Measured for Evaporation by the Weighing and Recording Apparatus Shown at the Left. As the Plant Loses Weight, the Beam of the Scale Falls, Completing an Electric Circuit That Drops a Ball Counterweight from One Portion of the Apparatus to Another so as to Restore the Balance and Register the Amount of Evaporation

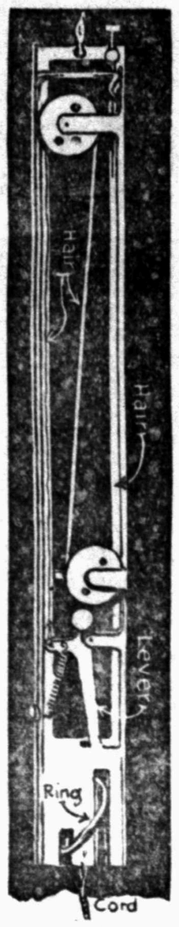

The recording device is similar to those used on automatic rain gages. It has a drum 12 inches in circumference that makes a revolution every six hours, and is continually offset by a screw so that four six-hour periods are recorded side by side on the same sheet. In this way, besides determining the total amount of water the plant breathes into the air, the apparatus charts the loss in connection with the time elapsed and the local weather conditions.

The apparatus works perfectly, except when sudden upward gusts of wind lift the plant, causing the recording of a transpiration rate that is abnormally high. Special provision is made to prevent more than one ball being delivered to the cone at a time, however, and no record is made unless a ball is actually deposited on the beam.

How the Height of a Fog Is Measured by a Human Hair

THE contracting effect of dry air upon human hair was the means of suggesting the invention of an ingenious device for measuring the height of fogs in London.

When fog descends upon England's great metropolis weather observers send up toy balloons attached to long cords at the end of which is fastened an instrument containing strands of hair. The latter is so adjusted that the contraction in dry air releases a little brass ring, which slips to earth. The observers, knowing how much cord they have paid out, can thereupon gauge the height of the fog.

The Fog-Measuring Apparatus That Uses a Human Hair.

This device is used in the airplane traffic between England and France. So greatly have aviators been hampered by fog, that characteristic feature of British weather, that it often has been impossible to start, or at least altogether risky to venture into the air, from the starting point at Croydon, even though reports from stations five or ten miles along the route showed clear skies, for no adequate information could be had of the extent and particularly of the depth of the fog.

The manner in which this mechanical aid to aviation is worked out is described by a writer in the Scientific American. The rings are held in place on the cord, when the instrument starts its flight by a trigger-like catch. Attached to the butt end of this catch is the hair, which passes over a little pulley-wheel that acts as a fulcrum, and then runs up for some inches through an open cage exposed to the weather.

The hair is damp to begin with when the adjustment is made on starting the flight, and so long as it remains in the damp, foggy air it remains damp and nothing happens. When it reaches the clear, dry air above the top of the fog, however, it contracts, and by virtue of the purchase given it in its passage over the fulcrum, it drags the catch-off to one side and releases the ring. The latter is mounted around the cord on which the apparatus goes up, so that it falls, not freely, but down this cord. When it puts in its appearance at the lower end of this, the observers know that the top of the cord has emerged into clear weather, and, knowing how much cord they have paid out, they know how high the pilot must direct his plane in the search for fair weather.

It is contemplated installing this weather-finder at close intervals along the Paris-London route, in conjunction with radio stations. The pilots of the planes will then be advised at all times how high they must go at various parts of their journey to get clear weather, and, among other things, to avoid such accidents as the recent fatal collision in the fog. In addition, the uncertainty surrounding the question of whether a safe start might be made in thick weather would be resolved, and trips that are now lost could be made alike in safety and in comfort.

WHY the FARMER Has to PLOUGH

DURING the present summer the American farmer, it is estimated, will prepare about 40,000,000 acres of land for winter wheat alone. And the cost of ploughing and working this ground will exceed $140,000,000.

Did you ever ask why farmers plough for wheat or why they cultivate for any crop? If you have perhaps your answer was much like the one that L. E. Call, chief agronomist of the Kansas State College of Agriculture, says that his father used to give him.

"As a boy I never ploughed or worked ground for wheat without wondering why," writes Mr. Call in Farm and Fireside. Squirrel hunting and fishing were always good in August. Of course I had a chance to do both, but it always seemed that the neighbor boys could do more because our wheat ground always needed work. I asked my father why many times, but the only answer he could give was that the wheat next year would be better. This I soon observed, for our wheat always turned out better than our neighbors' ever did at threshing time.

"There was no subject that interested me more during my college days than why we cultivate the soil, and my interest in this subject prompted me to start at the Kansas State Agricultural College what is now some of the most extensive and oldest tillage work with winter wheat in the country, from the standpoint of continuity. While climate and soil conditions are not the same in all states, the principles underlying tillage practice are the same everywhere, and I am sure that a number of things that we have learned will be of interest and value to you.

"There seems to be five things accomplished by ploughing and cultivating the soil. They are:

1. The tilth of the soil is improved.
2. The soil is put in the best possible condition to receive the seed or plant.
3. Organic matter is incorporated with the soil.
4. Soil water is controlled and moisture is conserved for the crop.
5. Food is liberated for the use of plants.

"It is impossible to overestimate the importance of good ploughing on the physical condition of the soil. Land that has been repeatedly hammered down by beating, packing rains can only be put into the best possible seed-bed condition by ploughing. There is a time when every soil contains the proper amount of moisture to plough in the best tilth. If ploughed in a wetter or drier condition, the results accomplished will be less satisfactory.

"The most satisfactory way of disposing of organic matter is with the plough. If we did not have an implement that would turn organic matter under, material such as stubble, cornstalks, and weeds would accumulate in such quantities at the surface that in many cases they would interfere with other tillage tools. It is also important to incorporate organic matter with the soil, so that it will decay properly and, in decaying, release from itself, and from other soil material, plant food for growing crops. If it is ever advisable to plough deep—that is, deeper than six inches—it is probably for the purpose of incorporating organic matter with a greater volume of the mineral soil, and in that way build a larger storehouse in which reserve supplies of plant food can be stored. At Rothamsted, the great English experiment station, 60 years of experimental work has shown that the subsoil is very poor in plant nutrients, and nothing whatever is gained by bringing it to the surface."

Is LOVE at FIRST SIGHT Due to a PERFUME?

IT has been the experience of practically every one that on first meeting some persons he takes an instant liking to them, and that this liking is almost invariably returned, without there being apparently the slightest reason for it. Scientists explain that this is not a matter of reason at all, but of instinct, and nearly always occurs with highly sensitive persons who have an under-mind that is much nearer the surface than is the case with their more stolid neighbors. This under-mind is perpetually sending out, as it were, flashes of something that can perhaps be compared to wireless telegraphy, trying to pick up another station "in tune" with their own.

When they find another person with an under-mind similarly attuned, the two become friends, without in the least knowing why.

This is not, however, the usual explanation for "falling in love" at first sight, which is quite a different thing, and which as yet is not thoroughly understood.

Some scientists think that the love at first sight business, which they call sex attraction—the indefinable something which suddenly makes the one woman more desirable than anyone else in the world—may be due to a very faint sense of smell, so slight as not to be apparent to the ordinary reasoning working mind at all. It seems an unromantic explanation, but it may be true.

Another thing which very often affects a person without any obvious reason in his choice of friends is that the new person may remind one in some particular of voice, features, or some trick of manner, of someone known before and liked.

The resemblance may be so faint as not to be recognized with the ordinary mind, but it is there just the same, and the under-mind—on which there is an indelible photograph of everything that has ever roused all likes or dislikes—instantly picks up the point.

How ELECTRICITY Is MEASURED

THE language of the electrician is Greek to most people. While he talks glibly of volts and amperes and watts, they know only that they have to pay an electric light bill for so many units, and let it go at that!

Though electricity is not a fluid, most of its terms can be compared with water flowing through a pipe. Turn a stream of water onto the paddles of a water-wheel, the work that the wheel will do depends upon two things—the amount of water delivered every second and the pressure of the stream. The first is measured in gallons and the second in pounds.

In the case of electricity, however, the rate at which it flows is measured in amperes and its pressure in volts. The work which it will do is found by multiplying amperes and volts together, which gives the answer in watts, or units of energy.

The unit is 1000 watts, often called a kilowatt, which is the electrical equivalent of one horse-power.

You will find the number of watts they require engraved on most electric lamps, and from this you can discover what they will cost to use. A 25-watt lamp will use one unit of 1000 watts in forty hours' burning.

The ohm is another electrical measurement which can be understood by a comparison with water. Water flows easily through a large pipe, but if the pipe is narrow, only a small quantity can force its way through. What the pipe is to water, the wire is to electricity. The smaller the wire, the more difficult electricity will find it to pass, because the fine wire resists its flow. Wires are measured by their resistance in ohms.

A New Bread to Form the Perfect Food of the Future

A LOAF of bread and a bottle of milk—these are the two items that will make up the daily meals of the future. This is not going to be the case because of poverty or a strict diet, but because science has just discovered a new vitamine that will make bread the perfect food and enable the housewife to discard others.

This is the picture drawn by no less an authority than A. B. Hess, graduate chemist of Johns Hopkins University, a professor for 15 years and now educational director for one of the world's greatest milling engineering concerns.

"For the day is not far distant—it is within the span of even the oldest of us—when a loaf of bread will contain all the food values necessary to the most exacting stomach," said Prof. Hess in a recent address to the American Association of Cereal Chemists.

"Within this age bread will become the perfect food—complete in itself. It is only a matter of a few short years—months perhaps—when the American housewife can discard every side dish—can put away her pots and pans, even discarding her oven, and still be able to please the exacting palate of her husband—and all with a loaf of bread."

Prof. Hess's prediction followed the announcement of a discovery by Dr. E. V. McCollum, also of Johns Hopkins University, of a new vitamine—a fourth on the list of these mysterious new food properties.

"The discovery of this new vitamine," said Dr. McCollum, "brings to the world a new message of hope from bodily diseases."

Dr. McCollum classified vitamines "A," "B" and "C" and called the new unknown food force "D."

The new vitamine is concerned in the etiology of bone growth and is the food substance which prevents rickets in children.

The four vitamines, as listed by Dr. McCollum, are:

A—Prevents night blindness and sore eyes among children.

B—Lack of this vitamine lowers the vitality and makes the body subject to infection.

C—Prevents scurvy.

D—Protects bone growth and prevents rickets.

"Heretofore we have known of three vitamines, substances which it is impossible to isolate by chemical means, but which we know are essential to growth," Dr. McCollum explained.

"We know now for a certainty of another one, and I believe we are only on the first road to finding more of these mysterious substances."

Vitamines were first discovered in food when notice was taken of the unusual results animal growers were obtaining by feeding certain rations.

"Every farmer knew young livestock would grow faster on yellow corn than white," the doctor-chemist said. "Chemists did not know why. Investigation has revealed that the yellow color in corn is a vitamine—it is 'Vitamine B.'

"All four vitamines are found in milk and the leafy parts of plants. Their absence from the diet of growing children results in under-nutrition, bad teeth and rickets."

Dr. McCollum emphasizes the importance of foods containing vitamines in the diet of expectant mothers and also in the diet of the growing child.

"The properties of vitamines were made known after laborious tests," he said. "However, what it is, or what a vitamine looks like, is unknown. It does not respond to chemical tests.

"Vitamines are found in these foods:

"Fat, soluble A, in milk, cheese, yolks of eggs.

"Water, soluble B, milk, husks, or grains, leaves of plants and spinach.

"Anti-scurvy C, milk, citrus fruits and potato skins, and in combination with foods having the other two.

"Cabbage is the highest food in vitamines; in the raw state it has two counts for A, one for B and three for C. Cooking lowers the first two.

"Carrots have one count each for the three classes. Tomatoes have all three vitamines, and the curative qualities are not lost in cooking. Lettuce has two counts for A, two for B, but none for C.

"The day is coming—and coming soon—when the modern miller will combine the four vitamines in one loaf of bread," Prof. Hess predicts. "Then the American diet can be revived."

POISONS to CURE Deadly DISEASES

IN the reptile houses of some of the country's zoos you can see a rather large and ugly-looking lizard, with a blunt head and a stumpy tail. The inscription on the cage tells you that its name is "Heloderma," and its home Arizona. This unpretentious creature is, in fact, the famous or infamous "Gila monster," which is one of the only two poisonous lizards known to man.

Until recently the best thing to be done with this deadly and uncouth inhabitant of Arizona's blazing wastes seemed to be to destroy it as soon as possible, yet now the advance of science has invested the monster with a sudden value.

It has been found that the poison of the Gila monster is a useful remedy for that form of paralysis known as "motor ataxia," a disease which prevents the proper use of the limbs, and was formerly thought incurable.

The poison is of such amazing strength that it has to be diluted down to the one-hundredth-thousandth part. In other words, the solution used is one drop of the poison to something over a gallon of alcohol.

The poisons of many venomous snakes are now being used in medicine. Both the cobra and the rattlesnake are kept in numbers in captivity, so that their poison may be extracted for the manufacture of a serum for the cure of snakebite.

The work of the Pasteur Institute in this direction is well known, and quantities of their serum go to India.

Near Rio, in Brazil, is a State Institute for the manufacture of sera for the cure of snakebite. Here are snakes of a score of different kinds, including the huge and terrible "bush-master," and the deadly little "coral snake."

Brazil is full of poisonous snakes, and the government sera are to be obtained in almost any village throughout that country.

Growing MUSHROOMS on TREES

NATURE, by cross fertilization, has produced many freaks and monstrosities. Every now and then you hear of some new prank she has played. As a rule, men don't climb trees to gather mushrooms, though many of the mushroom's near relatives flourish on growing trees.

These fungi, if not edible, are at least very interesting. Their beauty of structure, rapidity of growth, and brilliancy of color readily arrest attention.

However, it might be well to warn mushroom hunters to give these growths on trees a wide berth. The time may be at hand when Nature will eliminate the noxious elements, and these fantastic fairy stools will then be available as food for man.

In anticipation of the "mushroom-tree," the Japanese have adopted a system of tree culture for these delicacies. The Japanese method of securing a crop is unique in many ways, and is characteristic of their mental acuteness. Mushroom growing is one of Japan's many industries, and several million dollars' worth reach the world's markets annually.

In their unique methods of mushroom culture the Japanese fell trees of huge growth which have adorned the forests for many decades. These are left to lie for a year or two. Large holes are then bored into the tree trunks, and spawn inserted therein.

Under such conditions they produce practically a continuous crop, and grow with a "mushroom growth rapidity." To anyone familiar with the somewhat crude methods of producing mushrooms in tunnels and other dark recesses, adopted in this country, this system will readily suggest a better method of culture.

The growth of mushrooms is influenced considerably by changes of the moon. There is an old folk-lore rhyme in Essex with a considerable amount of truth in it:

"When the moon is at the full,
Mushrooms you may freely pull;
When the moon is on the wane,
Wait before you pluck again."

Observers of these night growths know that at full moon the crop invariably shows itself, but when on the wane there is a perceptible decline.

SONG of the SIREN

IT is well known that many new inventions in the physics, especially in the field of music, are made by using turn-rails, so-called sirens. The following experiment shows the effect of such a turning disk:

Cut a cog-disk from a piece of cardboard and make about one inch or two inches from the centre two openings. Take a long string through the openings and you will get a little mechanism by which you are able to give your disk a pretty high turning speed.

Holding the disk against the board or a piece of paper it will give you, according to the speed of the disk, different modulations of sounds which will be reinforced by air blown to the disk by using a paper-screw.

A NEW EXPLOSIVE

FOR many years mercury fulminate has held its place as a detonating substance superior to all others. Of recent years, however, its place has been threatened by other compounds which bid fair to displace it.

One of the most promising of these is lead azide, a salt of hydronitric acid. This acid forms a great number of salts, as mercury azide, silver azide, and sodium azide. The heavy azides, as lead azide are prepared by treating a solution of sodium azide, with a soluble metallic salt, such as lead acetate, the sodium azide being prepared from nitrous oxide and sodium amide.

Large crystals of lead azide and mercuric azide have been found to be very sensitive to mechanical shock; the sensitiveness increasing with the size of the crystals.
