Farm Bureau Gives Ultimatum To Santa Fe Railway

Association May Route Crops Over Other Rail Lines

Grade Crossing Over Santa Fe Tracks At Avenue A And Fifteenth Street Is Demanded By Group

Subway Too Steep

Railroad Official Voices Opposition To Another Crossing; Crash Menace Is Given As Reason

AN ultimatum delivered Monday to the Panhandle Santa Fe railroad declares that unless a grade crossing is built in this city at Avenue A and 15th street, all cotton now being shipped over the road by the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, will likely be routed over other lines, according to a statement last night by R. F. Bayless, general agent of the road.

Efforts have been made for sometime by the Texas Farm Bureau cotton association, in cooperation with farmers of this territory and cotton industries to get the Santa Fe to agree to the construction of a grade crossing at this particular point in order that farmers may cross the tracks without going through the Broadway underpass.

Subway Too Steep

The fight for the crossing has been on the grounds that farmers in loaded wagons could not go through the new underpass because of the steep decline. Brakes on wagons, when fully loaded, are said to be unable to hold the wagon from running over the teams.

Mr. Bayless last night, in a statement to the Morning Avalanche, said that R. E. Overstreet, of this city, official of the cotton association, declared that unless the Santa Fe agreed to building the crossing he would put forth every effort to prevent cotton from the 17 gins of

Chances For Line From San Angelo To San Antonio Improved Materially As Opposition Is Withdrawn

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 1.—The chances of the Gulf and West Texas railroad to obtain permission to build a line from San Angelo to San Antonio were increased materially today, in the opinion of railroad men, by the decision of officials of the line not to oppose the application of the Abilene and Southern for permission to extend its line from Ballinger to San Angelo.

The decision to rescind opposition came through a mutual agreement of the two roads not to oppose the application of the other, according to G. O. Bateman, assistant counsel of the Texas and Pacific, owners of the A. and S.

Hearing of the G. and W. T. application closed Tuesday noon and the decision of the I. C. C. is expected about November 15.

Officials of the G. and W. T. brought out in cross-examination before the commission that the road was being promoted by the citizens of the territory affected by proposed route. Figures presented of the cost of building showed there were no commissions for stock salesmen, fees to promoters or similar expenses.

The G. and W. T. has 30 days

French Flier Is Object Of Search

MOSCOW, Oct. 1. (AP)—Soviet aviation authorities tonight bent every effort toward the search for Dieudonne Coste, premier French aviator, who left Paris Friday on a long distance flight to eastern Siberia.

Coste and his companion Maurice Bellonte, in their red airplane "Question Mark," were believed to be lost somewhere in the great Siberian forests between Novo Sibirsk and Yakutsk or Irkutsk. It has been established that the plane was sighted over Nirensk, a town about 450 miles northeast of Irkutsk and in the general direction of Yakutsk Sunday afternoon.

Coste had fuel for 30 hours of flying when he left Le Bourget and about 48 hours had elapsed when he was sighted at Kirensk, leaving him only a small margin of fuel.

Women In Fight At Fairgrounds

"Keep out of my back yard or it will be too bad for you," was the ultimatum delivered by a 35-year-old woman yesterday afternoon to a pretty 19-year-old girl.

The girl evidently did not choose to be ordered around and a short fight ensued.

The incident occurred on the grounds of the Panhandle-South Plains fair toward mid-afternoon while thousands of people wandered aimlessly about not knowing that the young girl was battling valiantly against a 150 pound woman who sought to "beat her up."

Officers quickly arrived on the scene and the two women were taken into custody. The older woman plead guilty to simple assault in the court of Justice G. R. Scott and was fined $18.50. The younger woman was released.

Tropical Hurricane Makes Northeastward Sweep Of Georgia After Entering State Through Gulf

(By Associated Press)

ATLANTA, Oct. 1. (AP)—Excessive rainfall, high winds and two deaths marked the progress of the tropical storm which squirmed northeastward through Georgia today after entering the state thru the Gulf of Mexico.

Shorn of its hurricane force by contact with land, the storm vented its wrath in gales and rain which exacted heavy toll of all communication lines and sent many streams toward the flood stage.

The 30 to 50 mile gales accompanying the storm took one life at Albany. Dewey Moore, 30, carpenter, was killed by flying debris at a crumbling brick cotton gin where he had stopped to repair his automobile.

One Life Taken

Mrs. Isham Douberly was electrocuted near Blackshear, Ga., when she came in contact with a high voltage wire blown down by the winds. Otherwise, damage from winds throughout the storm area appeared to be light. Today Brunswick reported a falling barometer and a 50 mile gale, and Savannah was expected to experience 45 to 60 mile winds tonight.

East Georgia in the vicinity of Augusta, which has just emerged from a battle with the Savannah river after it reached a 46 foot stage, the highest in history, again will bear the brunt of a high water stage. The 35-foot stage is expected at Augusta.

Senate Factions Claiming Victory

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—Senate factions at loggerheads over the flexible tariff policy appeared today to be more hopeful than confident of victory in the real test of strength in the tariff contest.

So close was the issue after the sixth day of the debate that some senators said a tie vote might result, leaving vice president Curtis to cast the deciding ballot. The outlook was for a vote late tomorrow or Thursday.

Dozen Speeches Made

Nearly a dozen speeches were made during the day. Senator Allen, republican, Kansas, speaking for the flexible provisions, said he had "waited in vain for the repetition of some words of democratic leadership upon this subject which became so familiar to us all during recent political campaign."

Lamesa Dedicates Airport Formally

Tri-Motored Ford Plane Is First To Use Municipal Flying Field; Parachute Jumping Features Day

(Special To The Avalanche)

LAMESA, Oct. 1.—Following preparations for some time the new Lamesa municipal airport was formally dedicated today. A large Ford trimotor landed here early in the day and remained until late this afternoon.

The plane circled the city from the north and landed a 9 o'clock, being the first plane to set its wheels on the new field. No trouble was experienced in the landing or takeoff.

The Ford ship was accompanied by a small plane which was used as a pilot ship.

The airport committee from the local chamber of commerce was on hand to greet officially the large aircraft party. The committee is composed of Philip Yonge, chairman, L. E. Eager, J. H. Harp and Carl Bentsen.

Parachute jumping also featured the day and gave thrills to the hundreds of Lamesa and Dawson county people who were crowding the port grounds through the day.

Complete Reorganization Of Pro Law Enforcement Machinery Contemplated

To Study Change In Prohibition

J. McNab Named By Hoover to Study Situation

By RICHARD L. TURNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—To expedite the contemplated reorganization of federal prohibition enforcement machinery, President Hoover has selected John McNab, a San Francisco attorney, to study the situation and formulate recommendations for congressional action.

This announcement was made today by the chief executive, who disclosed at the same time that he expects specific recommendations to be ready for transmission to the capitol at the regular December session of Congress.

Hopeful Of Action

As an additional means of bringing early action, Mr. Hoover is hopeful that Congress will adopt his suggestion of last June and appoint a joint committee to make an inquiry before the session begins.

Reviewing briefly the general form the reorganization is to take, the president said its primary purpose would be a centralization of responsibility in the department of justice.

The inquiry also will include methods of expediting judicial action. Mr. Hoover pointed out that these proposals "have to do solely with administration and procedure in enforcement of the laws and not with change in the laws themselves."

Borger Officers Are Summoned In Court Of Inquiry

Militia On Duty In County Continues Investigation Into District Attorney Assassination Tuesday

(By Associated Press)

BORGER, Oct. 1.—A trio of county officers, one city officer and two former city secretaries were questioned today as Borger's military court of inquiry continued investigation of the slaying of District Attorney John A. Holmes here Sept. 13.

Sheriff Joe Ownbey, relieved of all his duties except those of tax collector when martial law was declared yesterday, was one of the witnesses. Subpoena servers sought him without avail early in the day but in the afternoon spied him passing the hotel, where the court was held, in an automobile. Troopers stopped the machine and served the summons. They also brought along Burlin Millhollon, a deputy sheriff who was in the car

Others Testify

Other officers who went before the military court, the purport of whose queries could not be learned, were Sam Jones, deputy constable, arrested yesterday but released after testifying; Clint Millhollon, city policeman, returned to jail afterward; I. T. Alvis and George Tarrant, the former city secretaries.

Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters, in charge of the town, said the court was progressing "slowly but surely." Asked whether evidence gathered by the court would be pre-

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, speaking in the senate today, saw in the flexible tariff principle a merging of the capitol with the White House.

GUARDS SUSPICIONED

Investigation Continues In Prison Break

HOUSTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—Investigation to determine whether guards or other persons connected with Wynne state farm were implicated in the sensational break of 18 men last week was ordered here today by the prison commission, which held a meeting between sessions of the prison relocation committee.

Members of the commission expressed the opinion that the arduous task of digging an 86 foot tunnel could not have been completed without guards gaining knowledge of the operations.

Three of the 18 men were recaptured Sunday and the remaining 15, sentenced to long terms, remained at liberty Tuesday.

WARNS ON PARKING

Motorists Urged To Stop South Of Fairgrounds

Chief of Police John Lemond is urging all automobile owners visiting the fair to make use of the additional parking space south of the fair grounds.

"Due to the increasing crowds," said Chief Lemond, "the traffic congestion on the space immediately in front of the gate entrance is becoming a real problem. The additional space has been provided this year and we want the visitors to make use of it. Traffic officers will be stationed in the street to direct the cars into the new parking field.

TO SHUT DOWN WELLS

PAMPA, Oct. 1. (AP)—With but one dissenting vote, officials of independent and major oil companies decided at a meeting here today to continue for another month the policy of shutting down oil wells as they near the pay in the Bowers and Finley Brown pools of central Gray county.

The first shut down was decided a month ago when storage facilities became filled and pipe lines were overtaxed.

Parade Features Legionaire Meet

Colorful Pageant Said To Be Greatest Display Of Patriotism America Has Ever Seen; 35,000 March

By STANLEY G. THOMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 1. (AP)—A pageant of brilliant colors, moving between immense masses of spectators, marched over a five mile route today in what was declared by legion officers to be the biggest patriotic display America has ever seen.

The American legion's annual parade started at 11 A. M., and as dusk came the last of the marching thousands reached the reviewing stand and received the salute of National Commander Paul V. McNutt.

35,000 March

It was estimated that 35,000 men and women marched and there were approximately 100 uniformed musical organizations and drill teams.

Even a rough count of the spectators was impossible, the local estimates putting the number at 300,000.

The legion was at its zenith in today's exhibit. The "boys of 1918" are still young enough to lift their feet in a snappy cadence, even though, in many cases, the hair is thin under the gaudy helmets and gorgeous shakoes.

Secret Document Given To Probers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—Photostatic copies of a purported secret British document were turned over to senate investigators today by William B. Shearer, as the examination of his activities in behalf of American shipbuilding at the unsuccessful 1927 Geneva naval limitations conference came to a temporary halt.

Turning from his tales of intrnational intrigue Shearer produced the much discussed British paper when Senator Allen, republican, Kansas, mentioned it. In a high keyed voice, the witness told of obtaining the paper in Washington last winter during the cruiser bill debate, from a judge Summers.

The Kansas senator immediately questioned the authenticity of the so-called British paper. Before he could read a report of it from the navy intelligence howe-

Even to washing their faces, etc., the Camp Fire Girls, on duty at the Panhandle-South Plains Fair this year, are looking after and caring for lost children who are found on the grounds. Boy Scouts are busy trying to find parents for lost children. And the information comes from Scout headquarters that it is more trouble to locate these parents than it is to take care of and find lost children.

All parents are urged, when children get lost, to look for them first at either the Boy Scout tent or the Camp Fire Girls tent, after, of course, seeking aid of the Scouts in searching for them.

"Brighten The Home With Flowers" is the very appropriate wording of a sign in the booth of the Acuff community exhibit. And this progressive community illustrated their motto by placing a riot of colors in living flowers of myriad description in a box at this exhibit.

It is told of one little boy, trying to buy a cold drink. The lad had only a nickel. After asking the price on numerous drinks, with each answer to the effect that they were a dime, his face became downcast.

Finally, in disgust, he threw the nickel on the floor of one of the concession booths and started to walk away in dejection.

"Here, boy!" shouted an attendant, "here's your nickel."

"You can have it," rejoined the boy. "It won't buy nothing out here anyway. I can't use it."

Crowds commented constantly concerning the contented cow continuously chewing her cud at the booth of the Merit Feed and Seed company.

One city boy wondered at the sight. He asked a farm lad nearby:

"Does that little cow give milk?"

"No," was the haughty answer. "She gives Eskimo pies."

Innumerable Entertainment Numbers Hold Sway During Day On Midway, Athletic Field

ALL PAST records for paid admissions to the Panhandle-South Plains fair on annual Lubbock day were shattered here yesterday when 16,431 persons, representing not only this city but a vast section of the South Plains, filed through the exposition gates for a program featured by livestock, poultry, and agricultural judging, coupled with innumerable entertainment, numbers on the midway and athletic field.

It was a day of play from the hour that the lethargic atmosphere of the tented concession city started breakfasting until the final spray of fireworks died in the darkened sky.

Lubbock Day Celebrated

Laughter and merriment, intermingled with the boisterous business appeal of concessionaires stressed the joyful abandon of Lubbock day.

Although today is designated as children's day, the thousands who crowded the grounds Tuesday might well have claimed that day as their own. The merry-go-round, ferris wheel, side shows, free acts and the fireworks program at night were reeking with childish glee.

The vast influx of childen caused boy scouts, who have been on courteous duty since opening of the exposition, to be alert throughout

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. — Discovery that all the telephone wires into the city hall office of Mayor James J. Walker, Tammany candidate for reelection, had been tapped furnished a pre-election sensation today.

The discovery followed anti-Tammany charges that more was known in high places of the murder of Arnold Rothstein than had ever been made public, and that the Tammany Tiger controlled a "tax racket" by which the poor were made to bear the burdens of the favored rich.

"Dr. Jekyll And Mr. Hyde" Career Of Ordained Minister And Bank Robber Revealed In Suicide

(By Associated Press)

LE MARS, Ia., Oct. 1. — The story of an ordained evangelical minister, whose "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" career included bank robbery, was unfolded here tonight as preparations were made to bury Rex Frolkey, 39, who killed himself yesterday after robbing the Sioux Center State bank.

Details of the story were stranger than fiction, for no motive for the bank robbing was revealed. By his own admission Frolkey had "plenty of money," yet the news of the robbery of the Sioux Center bank was followed by announcement that three officers of the Orange City National bank had identified him as one of the bandits who robbed the bank on July 5 of $4,000 and the Emmet County Savings bank of Estherville awaited a picture of the body, hoping to link the dead man with the robbery of $2,700 from that bank on August 30.

In a little bungalow here, one of the finest homes in Le Mars, Mrs. Frolkey lives with the two little boys born to Frolkey's first wife. A year ago Mrs. Frolkey instituted divorce proceedings against the widower she married while he worked his way through college. They later effected a reconciliation.

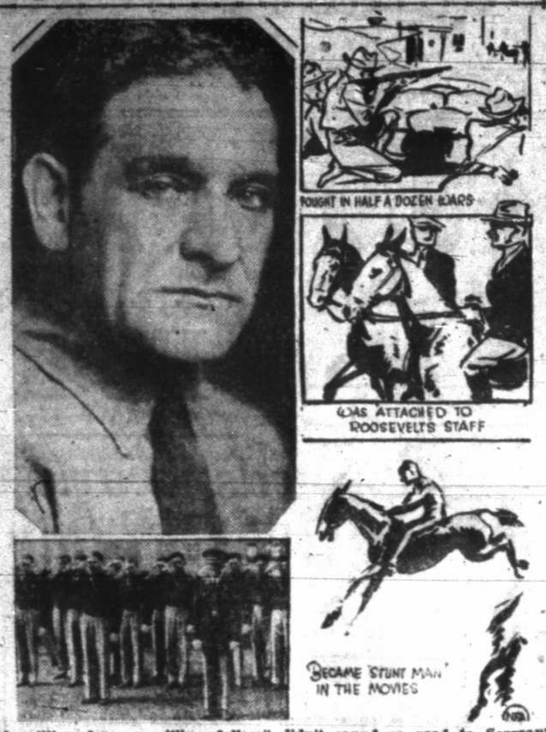

"Rex had not been home for six weeks," she said today. "He maintained an apartment in Sioux City because of business reasons, so I thought, and I did not see him until shortly before his death."

The apartment at Sioux City was in a good neighborhood and Frolkey lived there alone.

Although he never held a ministerial charge, Frolkey subscribed in numerous pulpits during the six or eight years he attended Western Union college. He also performed a few marriages.

THEATER MEETING TONIGHT

Retired Marine Sergeant Finds That Politeness Pays; Now Drills Comic Opera Of Movie Ushers In New York

"A million days—a million dollars" didn't sound so good to Sergeant Gene Le Gendre, above, of the U. S. Marines. So he quit the service to work for wealthy movie companies, teaching military manners to their ushers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—One of the toughest old Marine sergeants who ever cussed a rookie or saw the world through powder smoke is making a fortune now by merchandising politeness.

Sergeant Gene Le Gendre is the man behind the modern mode in movie ushers. For film palaces, and even department stores, he is turning out an army of decorative young automatons who can stand for hours like statues, speak in low, well-modulated voices, and always "yes" irate patrons.

Le Gendre introduced "the old army game" to business several years ago, with the systematic taining of a large staff of theater attendants. Since then he has become commander-in-chief of thousands of uniformed attaches throughout the country.

Drilled in Success

It is the only business this drill-master knows, after 26 years of soldiering, and he has made a highly remunerative civilian job of it. For nine years, since Samuel (Roxy) Rothafel enticed him from a recruiting post to teach the routine of "hay-foot, straw-foot" to the ushers of the Rialto Theater in New York, he has been selling this knowledge to those who want snap, politeness, courteous demeanor and rigid discipline among their employes.

His big parade goes on constantly at five of New York's largest movie houses, and in a chain of theaters from coast to coast. Other theaters have emulated his training methods and now he has expanded his operations to department stores. Hereafter, nice old ladies looking for lisle hose or lavender sachets will be directed with strictly military courtesy.

Straight and fit, with square trim shoulders and cold blue eyes that command attention, the sergeant belies his 56 years and is a tribute to the stern Marine training.

Bred and Born Soldier

He was "born in a knapsack," as they say in the army, the son of an ordinance officer at Fort Lawton, Seattle, Wash. At the age of 20, he enlisted in the 1st Cavalry at Fort Clark, Texas, and in 1893 fought in an Indian campaign. He was "paid off" in 1898 and re-enlisted in the Marines at the outbreak of the Spanish-American War. Aboard the battleship Baltimore, he watched Admiral Dewey defeat the Spanish Navy at Manilla, and later marched into the city when it was bombarded and captured.

The Boxer rebellion in 1900 found him in China, after a transfer from duty from the Philippines, and in 1910, after duty in Cuba, he went to Nicaragua.

When the battleship North Dakota blew up at Cape Henry during a test run in 1910, Le Gendre was the only man to be saved out of 30 in his detachment. Finally to send a son through college, he became a "stunt man" in the movies. In 1921 he spent six weeks in a hospital after completing an 83-foot jump on horseback, doubling for the then famous Theda Bara in the picture "Carmen."

Bugler on Mayflower

For a time, he was bugler aboard the Presidential yacht Mayflower. While at Oyster Bay, he taught Quentin Roosevelt rough-riding tricks.

Today Le Gendre is as strict a disciplinarian as he ever was in the Marine Corps.

Promptly at 8 o'clock every morning a bugler sounds "drill call" atop the roof of the department store building where he now is installing his system. The boys fall in without their regulation uniforms and are given fifteen minutes of setting-up exercises. He then lectures them in posture, courtesy and general conduct. They are dismissed and report again at 8:45 for a rigid full-uniform inspection. Shoes must be shined, clothes pressed and buttons polished. At 8:50 he forms the company and marches them to their various posts for the opening of the store at 9 o'clock.

The boys are given 15 minute rest periods in the morning. Sergeant Le Gendre or one of his two aides make a constant round of the store, relieving boys who may become fatigued.

At two o'clock in the afternoon the boys are relieved in groups of five and go back to the roof for another short physical exercise and an examination on the lessons of the morning. This is done to keep up their morale throughout the day.

"It is the work I love," said the old sergeant. "When I get through with my ushers you can bet they know military discipline and are better off for it. In addition to that, they are well trained in politeness and are in good physical shape. They are taught that the patron is 'always right' and to respect the wishes of every customer. They are the contact men of their organizations and they add greatly to the success of a theater or a store."

Three of every five automobiles in Belgium are from America.

To Stage Tryouts In Little Theatre

"The Queen's Husband" Is To Be First Offering Of Year; Much Interest Is Shown In Movement

Tryouts for parts in the first play of the season to be staged by the Lubbock Little Theater will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in room 202 of the Texas Technological college administration building, according to an announcement last night.

The casting committee of the organization is anxious that a large group respond to this first call in order that a variety of characters may be obtained.

To Offer Comedy

The opening presentation, to be given in the near future, will be a popular comedy, "The Queen's Husband." All characters are varied and have good lines. More interest is being shown in the Little Theater movement this year than ever before, according to Miss Ruth Pirtle, director.

Brief description of the characters follow:

The King—About 50, shy, diffident and apologetic, but when sufficiently aroused, he rises to the stature of a man.

General Northump—Prime Minister, is about 50, tall, and well set up. He is of the haughty, dominant and explosive type—a leader of men and a demagogue.

Lord Birten, the foreign minister—is about 45, tall and graceful. He is quite and smooth, almost slippery in his methods.

Granton, the king's secretary—is about 27, tall, handsome and robust. He is very agreeable, well mannered and cheerful. In love with Princess Anne.

Fellman, a liberal—is about 45, slight and spare. He is of the theoratical, professional type, though always quiet. It is a suppressed quiet.

Laker, an anarchist—is about 40, thin and starved in appearance. He is dark, ominous and nervously alert.

Prince William of Greck — is about 26, slender and dainty with a handsome face. He is graceful in his movements, pleasantly mannered and rather attractive.

Phipps—he is about 65, lordly and pompous. He has perfect poise, and is imbued with a tremendous and impressive love for ceremonial formality.

Petley, another footman — is about 30, a juvenile prototype of Phipps, but his speech and action are less pompous.

Major Blent, aide-de-camp — about 35, honest and straightforward.

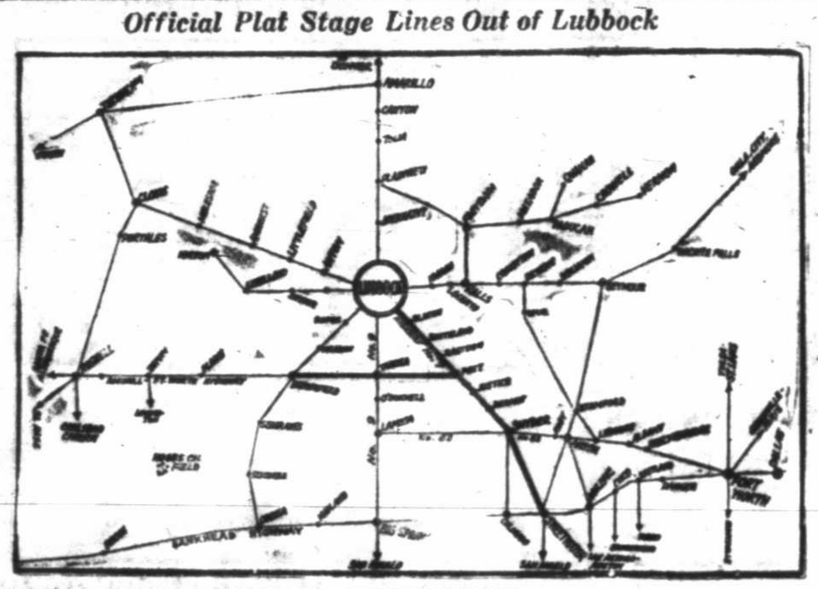

Queen Martha—is about 45, beautiful, vivid and extraordinary imperious. She is born to the purple and wears it with a superb air.

Princess Anne—is about 24, an attractive every day sort of girl. She is completely fed up on her exalted position and longs to live her own life. She is somewhat slangy in her speech and movement. A very independent, modern girl.

Two ladies-in-waiting — are about 20 or 25. They are meek, vipid and obsequious. The queen completely dominates them.

English school children are learning to fly.

Miss Myrtle Murray Praises Women's Division Show

Home Demonstration Work Good And Girls' Records Show Profits Of 4-H Clubs; Lists Of Awards Published

District Extension Agent Praises Women's Department Of Fair; Work Of Girls Profitable

WHILE every department of the women's division of the Panhandle-South Plains fair showed very high quality in exhibits and was of a better standard than is found in many such expositions, the home demonstration work shown here was exceptionally good, according to Miss Myrtle Murray, district home demonstration agent who came out from A. & M. college at College Station to judge in the fair here.

Miss Murray finished her judging Monday and left here yesterday afternoon. She is planning to take work done by girls in the Lubbock county clubs to other clubs to use in her extension work.

Three Exhibit

Lubbock, Lynn and Dawson counties have displays in the home demonstration exhibits under the direction of the home demonstration agents from the three counties.

Displays which are exceptionally good, according to Miss Murray, are the hemp rugs, suits for boys from two to five years of age and dresses for girls from seven to nine years of age. The jelly exhibit of the women's clubs deserves special mention, she pointed out.

In addition to the home demonstration section, the other departments in the women's building have displays of high standard, she said.

"The exhibits were very good as to quality and they have large displays, but, in addition to these things, the departments seem to have been handled this year with more efficiency than is usual," she said.

Is Tenth Fair

The Panhandle-South Plains fair was the tenth in which Miss Murray has judged recently.

Records of club work which have been compiled by home demonstration girls during this year in Lubbock were pleasing to Miss Murray.

"The work is proving both instructional and profitable to the girls and we are gratified over that," she said, displaying records made by several of the club girls.

Miss Faustina Woodruff, of Shallowater, a 15-year-old girl who is completing her fourth year of 4-H club work has an itemized record showing that her profits for the year have amounted to $447.51 and that $375.11 of this amount has been through her poultry work.

Miss Woodruff was awarded first place in her group on the history and record of her work since January.

Clears $48.18

Verna Lee Crossland, 13, of near Slaton, who is in her first year of club work, has cleared $48.18 on poultry and has helped can 332 quarts of fruits, vegetables, preserves and jellies for use in her home.

The girls' records are testimonies of the value of home demonstration club work in their lives for, as one girl related, "My club has been of more value to me intellectually than financially, but I am more than pleased with the returns of the year."

This particular girl, Florence Hudson, 15, of Shallowater, is in her second year of club work and had a profit on poultry work of $58.24.

Winners of first, second and third places in the records and histories are as follows:

First Year—Verna Lee Crossland, Slaton; Ima Dee Moores, Lubbock; Lola Mae Baxter, Lynn county.

Second Year—Geraldine Wicker, Slaton; Lois Allene Cooksey, Lubbock; Virgie Moores, Lubbock.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Recently a woman wrote a lurid book disclosing the shortcomings and infidelities of her divorced husband. The book has become a best seller, has brought in $30,000 for movie rights and has secured the writer a position on a New York newspaper.

All of which shows the high price first-person gossip pays today.

In Grandmother's day, no breath of scandal about a family was allowed to leak out, if tight locks on family skeletons and integrity on the part of family friends could prevent it.

The old art of blackmail paid well. But the blackmailer himself was a social outcast. For society held some things sacred in those days. Marriage was one of them. Husbands and wives might not have told each other everything, but they certainly told the world nothing.

REVELATIONS PAY

Today there are no reticences whatsoever. Grandmother's granddaughter not only beats gossip to it but outdoes it at its own dirty game. Men and women have discovered that intimate revelations, told in heart-breaking first person, pay prices that would have made even the most boastful blackmailer of yesteryear look like a piker.

Perhaps it might not seem so unethical if these confession writers confined their stories to their own heart throbs. They invariably bring in others, sometimes a whole string of other men and women. There seems to be no feeling on the part of writers of the pain such sensational revelations might bring these others.

DECADENT DAYS?

Frankness, it seems to me, has become confused with license in this matter. That a man or woman could write this type of book and keep his self-respect is incredible. But even more incredible does the great national thirst for such lurid tales seem to me. I feel that this is one of the greatest signs of decadence in the nation. It throws every note of good taste towards greater reticence in the future.

A BLOW AT HEREDITY

An editorial in the Woman's Home Companion reports a study of the question of heredity versus environment that strikes a severe blow at the theory of heredity.

Two twin girls were adopted while still babies by two different families in London. They never saw each other again until they were 19. After living together for a year, they offered themselves for scientific study. They looked alike, their emotional reactions and temperaments were very similar. Yet the girls, brought up as an only child in a good home, rated an intelligent quotient of 96.9 and the other, brought up as the youngest of five girls in a poor family, rated only 84.9.

The editorial's conclusion states that this should be an incentive to parents "to go enthusiastically with the modern trend and give their children all possible advantages, and attention, in the faith that inherited weakness can be overcome."

Certainly it should be encouraging to parents whose children are not at the head of their classes. But it should be a reminder to all of the need of intelligent parental aid children need, whether bright or dull. The theory of heredity was an alibi for neglect. With that challenged, parents should shoulder their responsibility with even more seriousness than they have had.

Culinary Expert To Demonstrate In Cooking School Science Of Cooking; To Bring Cooking Developments Here

Mrs. Myra Oliver Dougan To Bring Late Developments In Cooking To School at Dance Palace

The science in cookery is to be demonstrated by Mrs. Myra Oliver Dougan, expert home economist, in the five-day free cooking school which is to be conducted again this fall by the Avalanche-Journal Publishing company.

The seasoning of articles to give to them that taste which marks the difference between mere cookery and food of distinction will be emphasized along with points in decorating foods and combining them to make them more palatable.

This school is to be conducted again this year in the Uptown Dance Palace, with lectures and demonstrations delivered from a platform in order that they may be easily followed by the hundreds of women who are expected to gather there daily.

Mrs. Dougan collects new recipes and new ideas in home management throughout her travels which carry her into every corner of the nation each year. She employs science in cooking rather than the haphazard methods of many housewives and will give helpful demonstrations in her school here.

BEWARE OF DIETS WITHOUT BULK
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Will Protect You
People are more careful than ever before about diet. They diet to clear complexions. They avoid certain foods to stay thin. They eat others to get fat. But many are running a serious danger because they are missing the "roughage" or "bulk" foods that every person must have to keep well.
As a result, constipation gets in its deadly work. Headaches, listlessness, circled eyes are only the first symptoms. In the end, constipation ruins health, wrecks beauty and may cause serious disease.
Don't neglect your daily roughage. That is nature's rule. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply it. A healthful cereal to eat each day. To use in cooked dishes or to serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.
ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—to prevent it. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

British Prime Minister And Daughter Are Only Three Days From New York Aboard Berengaria

S. S. BERENGARIA, Oct. 1. (AP)—The Berengaria plowed steadily through a gray festive sea today three days from New York, with the British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, and his daughter, Miss Ishbel, aboard.

Since leaving Southampton Saturday the premier and his daughter seem to have enjoyed every minute of their trip, spending the hours in walking, reading and conversation about the spacious decks and lobbies of the great ship.

Dances With Friends

Miss Ishbel danced most of last evening with both British and American passengers with whom she has made friends. During the day her father found time for several conferences with his staff and to sit for his portrait by the artist, Tom Van Oss.

A London dispatch to the Atlantic edition of the London Daily Mail carried details of the premier's program in New York. Members of the party expressed themselves as delighted that the program should manifest so much welcome. It augured well, they said, for success of their mission in laying a foundation for international naval limitation and reduction.

Four Questioned In Austin Death

Three Men And Girl Held In Custody Of Officers In Mississippi As Suspects In Murder

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Oct. 1 (AP)—Sheriff L. A. Matthews has three men and a girl in custody for questioning in connection with the murder last week of Preston R. Austin, wealthy Texas cattle man, whose body was found in a Hot Springs (Ark.) hotel.

Henry Pruitt, 20, Noah Adams, 22, Tony Taylor, 25, and Lizzie Bell, 17, were arrested by the sheriff last night at a plantation by Hot Springs authorities.

The four had been working at the plantation since Saturday. Miss Bell said Pruitt picked her up at Batesville, Miss., Saturday on the promise to take her to see a sister in Arkansas. He did not keep his promise.

A deputy sheriff from Hot Springs is expected here to attempt identification.

Will File Suit For Land Title

AUSTIN, Oct. 1. (AP)—Attorney General R. L. Bobbitt has been asked by the board of regents of the University of Texas to bring suit against the Landreth Oil company and the Texas Oil company for title to 220 acres of oil bearing land in Crane county.

R. L. Holliday of El Paso, who drew the resolutions proposing that the state be instituted, claimed 6,450,000 barrels of oil had already been taken from the land and the land was worth at least $5,500,000. The tract is known as the Cowden-Anderson strip.

According to Holliday, Cowden and Anderson received an award to the land as public school acreage, but that a survey made by the new land leasing board showed the land belonged to the University of Texas and was not public school land.

PRORATION CONTINUES

AUSTIN, Oct. 1. (AP)—Proration in the Howard-Glasscock counties oil field will continue until April 1, the railroad commission decided today, after a hearing on petition to discontinue the rule. The field is at present limited to 37,500 barrels daily.

Vicks Now Passes 26 Million Yearly!

More and More Millions Follow Trend of Modern Medicine and Treat Colds Externally

To keep pace with the ever-growing demand for Vicks Vapo-Rub, the external treatment for colds, another increase is being made in the figure of the Vicks slogan, made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly."

Only a short time ago, the well known "17 Million" was raised to "21 Million." Again this figure has been outgrown, as more and more people turn to this better way of treating colds. There are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly"—a jar for every family in the United States.

A generation ago, when Vicks was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing".

Mothers especially have appreciated this modern vaporizing ointment, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting children's delicate stomachs.

And so Vicks spread, until today it has become the family standby for colds—adults' as well as children's—in more than 60 countries.

Restriction Of Production Made

WICHITA, Kas., Oct. 1. (AP)—Recommending restriction of oil production in the entire state, operators of the Wright pool north of here, major Kansas area, today took the first conservancy step.

For thirty days, potential production of the Wright's 99 wells will be cut 50 per cent. The restriction will become effective at 7 a. m. October 5. October 30 the operators will again convene to plan further conservation. The maximum average daily production for the thirty day period is not to exceed 15,000 barrels.

The move followed similar action taken by Oklahoma operators for the east Earlsboro pool of the Seminole field and at Oklahoma City. The Wright pool, discovered nearly fourteen months ago by Bu-Vi-Bar, Gypsy and Continental, has a production of about 30,000 barrels daily.

Misgivings For Ship Unfounded

Motorship With Its Cargo Of Bananas Safe After Fears Held For Safety In Tropical Hurricane

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 1. (AP)—Misgivings felt among shipping men here over the fate of the motorship Truxton which left Baracoa, Cuba, with bananas before the recent tropical storm swept through the Florida straits was set at rest today with arrival of the ship at the docks here of the Di Georgio Fruit company, owners.

Captain Soderberg said he sailed before the storm, which overtook him near Mata, causing the loss of a propeller. With only one engine working he headed into the blow which varied from 40 to 70 miles an hour. The ship, he said, would make about one mile during lulls and lose about four miles during the blows.

Engines Disabled

The tug Bafshe, towing a Seaboard Oil company barge from Smiths Bluff, Texas, to Tampa, was drifting 50 miles off Cedar Keys, with disabled engines, according to advices to agents here. The barge has 21,000 barrels of oil aboard.

George M. Restall, superintendent of the oil company's docks at Port Tampa, said he had been advised from Smiths Bluff the company was sending aid to the tug, but did not go into details. He also was advised three freight and one tank steamer were near the tug's position. The barge had been cut adrift, he added. The crew was in no danger.

Merchant Prince's Million Dollar Gift To Employes Was "Just Between Friends"; Donations Mount High

By NEA Service.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 1. — Louis Bamberger, who built up a great department store and introduced many new and human ideas in merchandising, was only following a long-established policy, when with his retirement recently, he distributed a million dollars in cash to his employes.

He doesn't look more than 50, but Bamberger is 74. The store in which he began selling out a bankrupt stock 37 years ago, and built into an institution which grossed $35,001,214 last year, became more than a one-man job. So, to everyone's surprise, he sold it to the R. H. Macy Co., in New York City.

"Youth counts in business today," he said. "Young men find it easier to run large enterprises. I am stepping aside to let youth take the helm. I want to be relieved of responsibility."

Retirement Protested.

Newark protested. "You aren't old, Mr. Bamberger," business men said. "You're in the prime of life. We won't let you retire."

But the merchant never had been a man who could not face facts. "I'm old," he repeated. "You can't tell by appearances. I need a rest, and I'm going to have it."

Maybe there is contentment for him in the knowledge that the business now can go on without his aid. But Bamberger still goes to his office every day. Employes see him about the store, just as they always have, and feel that times haven't changed much after all.

A few days after he announced his retirement, Bamberger called in 236 members of his staff of more than 4,000 persons. All of those called had served him 15 years or more—worked behind his counters, driven his trucks, and bought his goods. Ostensibly, the boss wanted to say good-bye, but he said it with checks.

$30,000 to Old Employe.

The largest one went to Arthur F. Reinhart, a division superintendent or floor-walker, who has been with him since the store was started. The check was for $20,000. The others received gifts of $1,000 or more.

"We were not so surprised by his generosity as outsiders were," Reinhart said. "It was like Mr. Bamberger to do that. I have known him since we both worked behind the same counter, and he has never changed since then."

Bamberger explained that his gifts were made because the store had no fixed pension system. "It has been our policy for years to retire employes under individual arrangements. I am relinquishing control, and wanted to be sure those who were so loyal to me would be taken care of."

This was typical of Bamberger — of the generosity and the far-sightedness that built up his great business. Bamberger is literally a merchant prince—and, they'll tell you, a prince of a merchant.

Slowly but very surely he built up a store that is regarded in Newark as an important factor in civic life. He was as conservative as the slogan he selected for his establishment, "One of America's Great Stores."

And in one of those very occasional moments when he talked about himself, he said that the only fixed policy he had when he started out was this:

"I made up my mind that nothing ever would be done in any enterprise with which I was concerned that I would ever have to be ashamed of."

Notable for His Reserve.

He came from two families of merchants, and moved to Newark from Baltimore, after a short interlude as buyer for a San Francisco house. He selected Newark rather than its larger neighbor, New York City, for a business location, and took a chance on Market street as a location when Broad street was the established shopping artery—even though he had to wait for another store to declare bankruptcy before he could get the location he wanted.

His beginning was small, and in the old days he was often behind the counter himself. He knew all his employees, and often their families. He knew every department of his store, and knew the foreign markets from which his goods came. That was at first. Later, he was seen less in the various departments, but was always accessible in his office to any employe or citizen, and always was ready to talk things over.

True Merchant Prince.

Though a quiet man, reserved and soft spoken, with very little to say about himself, he is able to give his entire attention to the person with whom he is talking. Bamberger is a great listener. No one ever heard him boast, or talk much about himself.

He has made large gifts to charity, and those who know him say that his private philanthropies are considerable. He has been the chief patron of the Newark museum and donated $650,000 for their new building. Many of the most valued possessions have been donated by him, including a complete set of the signatures of the Declaration of Independence and a leaf from the first Gutenberg Bible.

The news of the sale of Bamberger's store was a shock to Newark that was mitigated by only one circumstance, Bamberger accepted the chairmanship of the board of directors and still keeps his old office and comes to the store daily so they feel that he watches over its destiny, even though he is no longer its navigator.

"You can't tell by appearances," said Louis Bamberger, right. "I'm 74, and old, and I need a rest." So, to 236 of the oldest employes in his great store at Newark, N. J., he gave $1,000,000, and announced his retirement. Arthur F. Reinhart, lower left, got the largest check —$20,000.00. He worked with and for Bamberger for 37 years.

Undesirables Of Borger Move Out

Seven Holdups In Amarillo Sunday Night Indicate Riff Raff Found Way To City From Borger

AMARILLO, Oct. 1. (AP)—Indications that some of the undesirables who left Borger with the advent of martial law might have found their way into Amarillo were seen in the holding last night of a conference attended by representatives of the Amarillo sheriff's department and the district attorney's office.

Although seven holdups occurred here Sunday night, officers today said conditions were not "bad."

"Things are not in a bad way in Amarillo," Sheriff Thompson said. "We are just trying to keep them from getting bad."

The law dealing with the handling of vagrants and persons held for investigation was read and explained to officers last night by assistant district attorney, Grady Hazelwood. He did not say what plan would be followed.

Seven persons were arrested last night for such violations. Officers said there was a large number of unemployed here.

Ralls Jackrabbits Defeat Brownfield Eleven, 12 To 6

Crosby County Eleven Shows Varied Attack In Turning Back Cohorts Of Marlin Hayhurst In Tuesday's Tilt

Brownfield Aggregation Comes To Life In Final Period to Score Lone Touchdown; Winners Pile Up 14 First Downs To 3 For Cub Eleven

BY ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

Finding the opposition well suited to their style of attack, the Ralls Jackrabbits swept over a disorganized Brownfield aggregation on the Plains Fair gridiron Tuesday afternoon to send the ambitious Cubs home with the small end of a 12 to 6 score.

Penetrating the Brownfield line almost at will and gaining consistently through the air throughout the first half, the Rabbits piled up ten first downs in the two opening periods that found the Cub gridders floundering aimlessly.

The half ended with the Ralls crew leading by two touchdowns, gained through steady drives across the final marker. Led by the versatile "Flashy" Walker, the victors completely out classed their opponents on offensive play and exhibited a granite-like defense that the Cubs were unable to penetrate. Throughout the first two quarters, the Cubs were forced to kick on each attempt to advance the pigskin.

Rabbits Start Early.

Ralls took the upper hand in the opening stanza but it was not until the first minute of the second quarter that the Rabbits were able to push across their first counter. A pass, Walker to Bryan, which netted 25 yards, placed the oval in scoring distance. Henry, Bryan and Walter alternated in totin' the leather and were within the Cubs' 10-yard line when the first gun sounded.

The Brownfield line fought stubbornly in the shadow of their own goal posts but a charging Rabbit line pushed back a Cub defense that could not get started. Henry plunged over for the first touchdown on a fake pass. Try for point was missed.

Ralls started another relentless drive after receiving the kickoff, and aided by a Brownfield penalty, put across their second six-pointer in short order. A pass, E. Walker to T. Z. Walker, was complete over the goal line.

Cubs Score In Fourth.

A crowd of approximately 3,000 expected a determined comeback on the part of the Cubs at the beginning of the second half but it was not until the fourth quarter that the Brownfield gridsters came to life. After gaining 20 yards on an exchange of punts, the Brownfield offense began to function. Huckabee tossed a lob pass to D. Goodpasture who ran 15 yards before he was downed on Ralls' 40-yard line. Two thrusts at the line failed and the Cubs were forced to kick. Huckabee's boot was recovered by Brownfield on the Rabbits' 20-yard line. Ralls immediately drew a 15-yard penalty and lined up to defend its goal for the first time. On the third thrust at the line, Grady Goodpasture, Brownfield tackle dived across for the Cubs' lone counter. The try for point was missed.

While Walker carried the brunt of the Rabbits' attack, the performance of Henry, Ralls halfback, was outstanding, as was that of T. Z. Walker at end and Young at tackle. Defensive play of Ballard and G. Goodpasture stood out for the losers.

Today's football attraction for fair visitors finds the Crosbyton Chiefs matched with the Levelland aggregation. The game starts at 4 o'clock.

Westerners Take Lengthy Session Of Drill Tuesday

High School Gridsters On Field Four Hours; Meet Quanah In First Conference Game Saturday

Lubbock's high school gridders went through one of their hardest practice sessions of the season Tuesday afternoon at Merrill Park while the majority of local townsfolk were celebrating "Lubbock Day" at the South Plains fair.

Taking the field at 2:30, the Westerners put in four hours of intensive training before the high school mentors called a halt to activities.

Work on new plays in addition to further preparation for their first conference tilt with the Quanah Indians Saturday occupied a large part of the program yesterday. A tackling dummy was strung up for the punishment that has been absorbed heretofore by live candidates.

Three foes were kept in mind in yesterday's workout. The immediate opponent, Quanah, came in for a considerable session while the battle next week with the strong Slaton Tigers likewise received a lengthy lecture. Reports from the camp of the Tigers indicates the Westerners will have a real task on their hands when Coach Wright brings his charges here on October 12.

The third enemy which was honored by special drill is Amarillo, home of the vaunted Sandies. Westerner coaches are not allowing a day to pass that some time is not given to preparation for the annual clash between the two foremost contenders for the district crown.

Rogers Hornsby Gives Chicago Cubs Powerful Pennant Punch

Rajah Inspires Rare Confidence In Bruin Machine

Fiery Second Sacker Supplies McCarthy With Power At Bat, Steadies Infield, Says Evans

By BILLY EVANS

The addition of one player very often makes a pennant contender of what was just a good team. Rogers Hornsby has played that role in the life of the Chicago Cubs of 1929.

Don't get the impression that the Cubs are a one-man team. Far from it. Yet Rogers Hornsby supplied Joe McCarthy with just what his club needed, more power at the bat and a steadying influence at second, for an infield inclined to be a trifle erratic.

The Cleveland world champions of 1920 were just the sort of a combination the Cubs of 1929 are. Before Speaker was secured from the Boston Red Sox, the Indians were just a fair team. Speaker's coming gave the team the best center fielder in baseball. He inspired the Indians with confidence and there came to Cleveland a pennant and a world series. Is Rogers Hornsby to play a similar role with the Cubs? A lot of experts are inclined to that opinion.

When Owner Wrigley parted with a lot of ball players and even more cash for Hornsby, the wisdom of the deal was widely discussed. Most of the experts shook their heads in the negative. In a few short years Hornsby, who had won a pennant for St. Louis in 1926 and followed it up by taking the world series, had been shunted first to New York, then Boston and finally Chicago. If Hornsby couldn't get along with McGraw, how would he hit it up with Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs, an equally fiery leader and one who brooked no interference. Many critics believed the trade would break rather than make the Chicago team.

Joe McCarthy smiled at the opinions that the coming of Hornsby was a mistake.

"I won't have any trouble getting along with him," said Joe. "I know him well. He isn't the bad actor a lot of people are trying to paint on him. He's been the victim of a lot of circumstantial evidence and the reaction has been unfavorable. But, looking at the other side of it, what a ball player he is! I am willing to gamble on my ability to manage him."

When I first saw the Cubs in action at Los Angeles this spring, I simply couldn't make up my mind whether or not Hornsby would supply the pennant punch. Slow to start in the spring, he neither fielded nor batted up to form. However, every now and then he would hit a ball on the nose to remind you he still was the great Hornsby. Incidentally he would pull off some play in the field that would make you change your mind about his slowing up.

Before I departed from Los Angeles, after having seen the Cubs play perhaps a half dozen games, I was pretty well satisfied that Hornsby was as good as ever, that he was delighted with his new job under Joe McCarthy and that he was certain to be very helpful to the Cubs. Despite this, I was hardly satisfied that Hornsby would be able to add the pennant touch.

I wasn't quite satisfied that the third base and shortstop side of the Chicago infield was of pennant caliber. I had seen McMillan in action with several American League clubs and knew his possibilities. English at shortstop at times played brilliantly but seemed erratic. Recently, I saw the Cubs in action and to me English seemed the most improved player in the outfit. Playing beside Hornsby seemed to add confidence that had been missing. Most of his erratic tendencies had disappeared. McMillan also showed far better than he ever had as an American Leaguer. Perhaps it was lack of opportunity that had hurt his play in the American League.

Prior to the opening of the 1929 National League season, I saw Pittsburgh and New York in a number of games. The Giants played our Cleveland club two games at New Orleans, each winning one. McGraw's club looked to have the class. The pitching of Hubbell, Walker and Benton featured, while at the bat the Giants showed real power. I liked McGraw's club better than the Cubs and felt that Pittsburgh looked just as good as Chicago, if not a shade better. Then there was St. Louis to consider. Having won the pennant in 1928, there was every reason to believe the Cardinals would be tough to beat.

While the Cubs, largely because of the addition of Hornsby, were being touted as the one best bet in the National League, I felt that two other clubs looked just as good to me and I must admit the Giants appeared even more impressive. I really didn't think the great Hornsby could round the Cubs into a pennant winner. On the contrary, he has done that very thing. Having one of the greatest years of his career, he has been the outstanding factor in the success of the Cubs.

Just how much Hornsby cost the Cubs probably will remain one of the unsolved mysteries. When the trade was made with Boston, it was reported that Chicago had paid more than $200,000 in real money and to make the deal more interesting from a Boston standpoint, had turned over five players in addition to the heavy cash. The players involved were Cunningham, Maguire, Jones, Leggett and Seibold.

It certainly wasn't a bad deal for Boston, since the three pitchers, Cunningham, Jones and Seibold have won about 25 games between them, while Maguire has performed very capably in the field but has done nothing much at the bat. That was his weakness as a Cub.

Whatever Chicago paid for Hornsby, he was worth it. He made a pennant winner out of what was just a good ball club. The Cubs will play to better than a million people at home, which means Hornsby has paid his way at the gate. He will add to it in the world series.

What will he do in the 1929 world series, his second chance in baseball's classic? With the Cardinals in 1926, he rather disappointed with a .250 batting average.

Cub Outfield Combination Of Hazen Cuyler, Hack Wilson And Stephenson Hold Advantage Over Athletics' Trio

Cubs Outhit Reds But Lose Out, 3-2

Hornsby Gets Three For Four and Raises Average To .380; Lucas Registers 19th Victory

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. (AP) — The Cubs have a better outfield than the Athletics on the basis of the season's performances, but the A's have the best outfielder. The Mackian trio of Simmons, Haas and Miller can not be said to equal the usefulness of the Cub array. Stephenson, Wilson and Cuyler Simmons, however, can prove he is the best of the combined assembly.

The Milwaukee product with the queer batting stance has hit around .370 this year, cracked out more than 30 home runs and batted in nearly 150 runs. Only the compact Hack Wilson has hit more home runs or batted in more counters, and Wilson's batting average is some 20 points below that of Simmons.

Wilson Shades Haas

With the left field advantage awarded to the A's the Cubs can claim the margin in the other two places. Wilson's showing has been much better than that of Mule Haas, whose batting record is only a few points above .300. When outfielders fall out of this select class they must buy tickets at the gate to get into the baseball grounds.

Kiki Cuyler with a batting average of .350 is a slightly better hitter than Bing Miller, who patrols right field for the Athletics, and the Cub outfielder is much faster. The only base runners in the two outfields play right, Cuyler has stolen 34 bases and Miller 24.

Riggs Stephenson, although overshadowed by Simmons on paper, is a courageous player and especially dangerous at bat with men on bases. He also has become a good fielder.

But Macks Have Best Of Combined Assembly In Al Simmons; Bruin Ball Hawks Are Faster

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1. (AP) — The Cubs outhit the Reds seven safe drives to six in the opener of a five game series here today but the home team bunched three blows with an error in the eighth to nose out the new champions, 3 to 2. Red Lucas not only scattered the Chicago blows save in the second, but led the eighth inning assault upon Guy Bush with a single. Swanson followed this blow with a single and Critz then tripled, tieing the score. Critz himself scored the winning run a moment later when Grimm threw wildly to the plate after fielding Walker's bounder.

Cuyler's triple and Stephenson's single gave the Bruins one run in the second, and Ford's error and McMillan's single added another. It was Lucas' nineteenth victory and Bush's seventh defeat.

Rogers Hornsby got three singles in four trips to the plate, lifting his batting average three points to .380. Secre:

Baylor Prepares For Trinity Tilt

WACO, Oct. 1. (AP) — Facing a game Saturday with the Trinity Tigers, but with all plans being laid for the Arkansas Razorbacks, the Baylor Bruins continued practice behind barred gates today.

Coach Morley Jennings expressed his opinion today that the Tigers would put up a fight, and is hoping, he says, that they will open up against his eleven with a strong aerial attack.

There will be no change in the lineup Saturday, Jennings announced.

Maureen Orcutt Shatters Record

New Jersey Woman Downs Helen Hicks By Giving Old Man Par Merciless Threshing In Tourney

BY PAUL R. MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer.

OAKLAND HILLS, BIRMINGHAM, Mich., Oct. 1. (AP)—Sweeping over the trap-slicked Oakland Hills course with probably the most meteoric round of golf ever carded by a woman, Maureen Orcutt, of White Beeches, N. J., halted the march of Helen Hicks in the initial match play skirmishes of the women's national championship today.

Miss Orcutt gave old man par a merciless threshing and her 18-year-old rival from Hewlett, L. I., couldn't keep up though she played better than perfect golf. Miss Orcutt strode over the first nine holes in 35 strokes, to equal men's par and better women's par six strokes. It was easily the best round registered in the national events 33 years of play.

Favorites Come Through.

Most of the favorites including the defending champion, Glenna Collett, sailed through today's rounds. One glaring exception, however, was the upset of Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, Can., three times national champion, by a comparatively champion far off her game, Miss Hunter blasted out a two-up victory.

Another record for national tournament play fell today, when Mrs. Leo Federman, an in-and-outer from New York, and Mrs. Helen B. Stetson of Philadelphia, 1926 champion, fought to the twenty-fourth green before the New York player won. All square at the end of the regulation 18 holes, both missed several chances to win But on the slapped a pretty shot from the rough to within four feet of the pin and then sank her putt for a birdie three and the match.

Scores 3 Birdies In Angelo Meet

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 1. (AP)—Al. Badger of Abilene scored three birdies today to beat Olin Banks of San Angelo one up at the 19th hole in the feature match of the San Angelo Country club invitation golf tournament today.

Badger scored a birdie on the 16th, another on the 18th to tie the match and the third on the 19th to win.

Dennis Lavender of Abilene, state municipal champion, continued his steady game to beat Bob Menefee of San Antonio, four and two; Bob Ingram downed Monte Grasty, five and four, and J. A. Haworth, of San Angelo defeated Bob Scott of Colorado one up.

Pairings for tomorrow's semi-finals: Lavender and Haworth; Ingram and Badger.

Herd Facing Almost Impossible Task Of Winning Two Straight With Hurling Staff Well Shot

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 1. (AP)—The Birmingham Barons, potential Dixie champions, came back home tonight, needing only a victory tomorrow over Dallas to give the Southern Association its second Southern title in 10 years of play with the Texas League.

Robert Hasty, big Birmingham righthander, is expected to be Johnny Dobbs' choice for hurling duties in his quest for the deciding game while Milton Stock will depend on "Whitey" Glazner, blonde righthander, in an attempt to square the series and send the two teams back to Texas for the seventh game.

Barons Confident

Glazner, who got his baseball start on the sand lots of Birmingham, turned in a victory over the Barons Saturday in Dallas, although needing relief to turn the trick. The Barons consider him a hard man to beat but feel confident they will be able to break through before a home crowd.

The Southern Association representatives hopped out in front yesterday with a one-game margin by beating George Connally to cover while the ancient Ray Caldwell was holding the Texans safe. It was the latter's second win of the series and Connally's second defeat, the Texas star having dropped a three hit affray to the Barons in the first game of the series.

The Dallas aggregation did not appear so confident as they did last week when they invaded Rickwood to open the championship battle for they are faced with an almost impossible task of winning two games in a row with their pitching staff pretty well shot.

Ponies Will Take To Air Saturday

DALLAS, Oct. 1. (AP)—Locked gates have for the last two days greeted visitors to Ownby Stadium, where Coach Ray Morrison is priming Southern Methodist university for the Intersection tilt with Nebraska Saturday at Lincoln.

As the Ponies displayed almost an utter lack of scoring power in their games with the Denton Teachers and Howard Payne, it is certain they will open a bag full of tricks against the Huskers. Practice sessions indicate they will fill the air with footballs at Lincoln, as Morrison has little hopes of breaking through the powerful Nebraskan with a running attack.

The Ponies will be put through a stiff scrimmage tomorrow, with only a light workout scheduled Thursday before the squad leaves for Lincoln.

All Local Stores Close on Lubbock Day At Fair Here

Retail Merchants Association Members In Observance Of One Of Four Holidays During Year

All Lubbock stores, professional offices, county and city offices were closed yesterday at 12 o'clock noon in order that employes might visit the Panhandle-South Plains fair in observance of annual Lubbock Day.

Closing of the stores comes in accordance with an agreement signed by all members of the Retail Merchants association. The association, called upon at various times to close stores, has set aside just four days during the entire year as holidays. These include July 4, Armistice Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and a half day on Lubbock day at the fair.

Merchants signed the agreement to close on this day realizing that the fair brings yearly thousands of visitors to Lubbock, extends their trade territory and makes for a feeling of good will in the hearts of neighboring citizens. The exposition is a cooperative enterprise, a community effort and with this in mind, Lubbock merchants have designated a half of the working day in which to mingle with the thousands of pleasure seekers.

Lady Says She Was Much Better After She Had Taken Cardui.

McComb, Miss.—"A few years ago, I was a sick woman and rather discouraged," says Mrs. H. E. Dunaway, of 821 Pearl River Avenue, this city. "I was so weak and thin, I was not able to do my work as it should have been done.

"This made me fret a good deal, and did not help my condition.

"I had pains across my back and lower part of my body. My nights were spent in rolling from one side of the bed to the other, hoping I would soon go to sleep. Then, when morning would come, I would be just as tired as when I went to bed.

"A neighbor, seeing how badly I felt, told me to try Cardui. After I had taken one bottle, I was much better. I kept on taking Cardui, and I was stronger and slept much better at night. I have been recommending it ever since."

Thousands of women have written that Cardui has helped them.

Mrs. Myers left for Ranger immediately after receiving a message telling of the accident and was at her son's bedside a few hours before his death. Mr. Myers and three daughters living here, left for Ranger Monday in their car.

The Myers boy was a senior in the Ranger high school and would have graduated at mid-term. He spent the summer months in Lubbock.

BANKERS IN MEET

American Association Down To Business Matters

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1. (AP)—The branch banking problem and the question of seeking federal legislation which would permit national banks to operate in wider fields appeared to be the principal issues before the convention of the American Bankers association here today as delegates settled down for the initial session of the main body.

Both problems were discussed at group meetings yesterday. The plight of the national banks in the new era of mergers was set forth by George H. Hamilton, of Wichita, Kans., in an address before the national bank division of the association, which afterward adopted a resolution asking congress to modify federal laws to permit national banks to merger under more favorable conditions.

Examination Made Of Carl Williams

Member Of Federal Farm Board Under Questioning On Senators; Disagrees Over Estimated Average

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—Resuming examination of Carl Williams of Oklahoma, the senate agricultural committee was told today by the federal farm board member that on the basis of present conditions of supply and demand, cotton should be bringing from one to one and a quarter cents per pound more than it is at present.

This was challenged as being too small by Senator Smith, democrat who quoted statistics from the agriculture department which fixed the average price since 1920 at 22 1-2 cents.

Estimate Too Low

"And yet you say," Smith said, "that under present conditions of supply and demand, cotton should be bringing only about 18 1-2 cents."

Williams questioned the accuracy of the sources of figures Smith gave on world consumption asserting the data were not gathered by the best of equipped agencies. Smith replied they were the best anyone had.

Caldwell And Dr. Horn Speakers At Rotary Club Meet

Dr. Paul W. Horn and District State Highway Engineer Joe H. Caldwell were the feature speakers at the regular weekly luncheon program of the Lubbock Lions club held yesterday noon at Our Cafeteria. Caldwell spoke on highway construction while Dr. Horn made an address of suggestions for the club.

Mr. Caldwell told of the changed idea in road building through the past few years. "In the old days," he said, "the road engineer figured what kind of road he could build for this amount of funds available. Today road engineers are figuring how to build the best possible roads and, because of greater available funds, he has a wider range of figuring."

Makes Suggestions.

Dr. Horn suggested that the Lions could do any number of things, as well as those suggested by him, any of which would be as needy. His ideas were that the organization adopt some one department of Texas Technological college, and "to stand by and boost that particular thing." He enumerated the dairy department, business administration and history departments, all of which need more equipment and all of them merely just now in the beginning of becoming 100 per cent complete.

Cliff Lindsey was in charge of the day's program, and offered Arthur Beamer, and Miss Mary O'Brien, in a number of violin solos, songs and the breakaway dance. Sam Reed played piano accompaniments to these.

We Ask Women To Make This Test of Mountain Coffee Flavor

Drink it three times and then, if you are willing to go back to ordinary coffee, we pay the cost

FROM the fertile volcanic soil of the mountains of Central America come coffees that leading experts concede are not equaled by any other region in the world. They have the tangiest flavor, the richest mellow body of probably any coffee known today.

We do not want to tell you how good this coffee is. Instead we make this unusual offer through your grocer. Order a pound of Folger's coffee today. Serve it three times. If after this test you are willing to return to ordinary coffee, your grocer will gladly refund the money you paid for it. We make this offer not as philanthropy or to be "different," but because we have found that probably eight out of ten families who make this test never go back to ordinary coffees.

We have built one of the largest coffee businesses in the world simply by letting people taste the flavor of Central American mountain coffees.

Rarest of Coffees

Only a small percentage of the world's supply of coffee comes from the mountain districts of Central America and the high prices these coffees command prohibit their use in ordinary blends.

We have been importing these rare mountain grown Central American coffees for 79 years. For some of the rarest kinds we contract from season to season while the trees are still in blossom.

A New Experience

Ordinarily, when you change from one brand of coffee to another, you note little difference in taste. That is because 70% of all coffee sold in the United States today (regardless of brand names) is of one common type grown in the same general region. Hence Nature has given it the same common flavor. So-called "blending" and special roasting processes (in spite of advertising talk) can not change it. For roasting coffee merely brings out whatever flavor Nature has already put in.

Nature herself makes Folger's coffee different from any you ever tasted. You will notice it the instant you break the seal of the vacuum can. There is a rush of rich fragrance that is unlike any other coffee. And when the clear, amber coffee is poured in the cup, you'll find it has a delicious tang and rich mellow body that is never "thin" or "flat."

How to Compare It

Get a pound of Folger's coffee from your grocer today. Drink it tomorrow morning. The next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning drink Folger's again. Then decide which you like best. If, for any reason, you do not choose Folger's, your grocer will gladly refund the full purchase price. We will pay him. That's fair, isn't it? You risk nothing—so why not order Folger's now for the test?

MARTIAL LAW IN TEXAS

THE nation, at large, West Texas in particular, will regard with watchful eyes the results of martial law at Borger. Whether conditions are as bad as they're painted in Hutchinson county or not, will probably never be generally known but the benefits, if any, to be derived from martial law in the tempestuous oil town will be interesting to us all.

The writer of this editorial was practically reared under martial law. When little more than a lad he saw armed troops in command of a city upon several different occasions and has often wondered if their accomplishments, in the final analysis, were worth the cost. Because of that early experience he wonders again if troop rule in Borger and Stinnett will mean so much, after all.

Martial law, as this newspaper views it, is largely a gesture of authority. Provost marshals, in sprightly uniforms, thunder orders and questions and from a psychological standpoint may accomplish some good in restoring, through threat of force, a semblance of respect for law and order. As far as actual benefits resultant there-from—that is a matter for considerable reflection.

Governor Moody sent rangers to Hutchinson county. They made a few statements, did some sleuthing but no arrests of impoftance were made—at least, no arrests bearing upon the oil town's latest major crime, the assassination of State's Prosecutor John Holmes. Then the governor did the only thing left for him to do—he called out the troops and armed men today keep the peace in the Panhandle stronghold of oil and gunplay. This editorial, in other words, is no criticism of the governor's action. It is a criticism of the theory of martial law.

The Morning Avalanche believes a state secret service would be of vastly more benefit than the ranger force, except perhaps in those sections of Texas where vast and sparsely inhabited areas need to be policed. And, further, it believes that an efficiently operated secret service could accomplish more good at a less cost in Hutchinson county than the soldiers will.

ELUSIVE HAPPINESS

So far as the Poles are concerned, the bluebird is to be found in Poland, according to an American lecturer. She reports the natives in Poland in a happier state of mind than their relatives in the United States.

It may be as she reports. But it may be in order to point out one or two circumstances that may indicate the reported joy in Poland to be more apparent than real.

There must be some reason, for instance, for the fact that the quota for Polish immigrants is never large enough to admit all those who clamor at the gates of Ellis Island. Either they are not quite so happy as reported or they are happy and do not know it.

Furthermore, once they get into the United States few return to the fatherland, which is not exactly indicative of misery on this side of the Atlantic. Either the Poles in the great melting pot are happier than the lecturer sees them or they are gluttons for punishment.

There is a very human tendency to look upon happiness as a blessed condition peculiar to somewhere else. It is always over the hills and far away. Because man is never so happy that he wouldn't be happier he looks wistfully into the purple offing and imagines perfect bliss is somewhere over the horizon. To express it succintly, happiness is where you aren't.

MACDONALD'S POLITICS

Ramsay MacDonald, who is going to talk arms limitation and world peace on American soil for the next several weeks, represents the British labor party, which is enough to convince many Americans that he is a radical. The term is not applicable to either the prime minister or his party.

The larger its vote has grown, the more conservative has the labor party become. It has its left wing, whose members talk expansively and explosively; but it is careful to see that these people have little to do with the formation of policies. The party has ruled carefully and wisely.

There are parallels in American history. When Jefferson became president, the federalists predicted national ruin because he was deemed a radical. But Jefferson's administration differed little from that of the conservative John Adams. Again when Jackson entered the White House the east trembled at the advent of this rough frontiersman; and again it was shown that the possession of power and responsibility makes men careful and conservative.

The British labor party began as a class organization, but when it saw power coming its way it became national in thought and guidance.

An unusual thing occurred last week in the publishing field. An A. E. F. aviator had an article in a magazine and the editor in his foreword failed to call him an ace.

"One never hears of a first-rate golfer in any trouble with the law," says a sport philosopher. It would be interesting, though, to see one playing a stone ball around the prison yard with a 12-pound mashie.

The loudest porch hammock in the neighborhood has rolled through another season without having had anything done about body squeaks.

Many victims of the listless craze went down and dipped the other night and got seven inquiries and a threatening trains in nine minutes.

Eighty years ago you couldn't have told us that anyone would ever eat a pretzel for its own sake.

It is not known where Mr. Shearer got his name. He doesn't want a navy cut and won't take a discount off the salary for cash.

INTERPRETATION OF VOLSTEAD ACT RATHER FAVORS FARMER, WET SAYS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Why does the Volstead act take the trouble to specify that the manufacture of "non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices in the home . . . . exclusively for use in the home" is not outlawed?

Non-intoxicating beverages are not prohibited anyway. It seems superfluous to emphasize it.

This thought struck the enforcement authorities, too—a good while ago.

That was why they interpretated the law to mean that the 1-2 to 1 per cent rule does not apply to "non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices" manufactured " in the home . . . exclusively for use in the home"; that such beverages are not prohibited unless they are "intoxicating IN FACT—regardless of the percentage of alcohol they contain.

* * * *

It was an interpretation which furnished the wets with their excuse for charging that Volsteadism is a "farmer's law", so drawn up as to permit agricultural folk to keep their cellars full of legally fermented wine, while restricting city dwellers to cold water—due to the lack of raw material to manufacture super-5-percent (but "non-intoxicating in fact") refreshment in THEIR own homes.

True, Chief Counsel James J. Britt of the bureau of prohibition tells me that he has never held it necessary for the process of "manufacture to begin with the actual pressing out "in the home" of the juice from the fruit.

That is to say, in order to stay within the law, the householder is not required to have the bulky fruit under his roof before initiating operations; he may acquire the juice from some one else, get it into his domicile and let nature take its course without incriminating himself—provided he stops nature somewhere short of the "intoxicating in fact" deadline.

* * * *

All this is not so new. Doubtless a great many, if not all, city people were aware of it already.

A hogsheadful of fruit juice, fermenting in the average modern 2x4 urban kitchenette, may not be quite so ridiculous an idea as the presence of boxcarload of grapes or elderberries or cider apples on the premises—not to mention the task of skwusbing the juices out of them—but it is not a very much more practical proposition.

(It takes a lot of non-intoxicating fruit juice to get a family through the winter.)

So the average city slicker has continued to consider himself discriminated against in favor of the farmer, who, as the former sees it, is afforded a loophole to get out through, thus insuring himself a pretty fair quality and ample quantity of drinkables at reasonable cost.

* * * *

It is a loophole, in a way—but there is a steel trap in it. It is liable to catch the farmer any minute—unless he is mighty careful.

I discovered this fact accidentally, as a by-product of an attempt I made to learn why one unlucky wight or another is arrested, every now and then, for manufacturing fruit juice in his own home—not commercially, but strictly for his own consumption—despite the prohibition bureau's ruling on the subject.

The joker is that the fruit juice maker, the minute he has reached the 1-2 of 1 per cent mark, can never be certain whether or not his stuff is, in fact, intoxicating or non-intoxicating.

MAN WITH HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE MUST FOLLOW STRICT ROUTINE

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

In his consideration of high blood pressure before the meeting of the American Medical Association this year, Dr. Arthur S. Granger stated his conviction this year. Dr. Arthur S. Granger stated his conviction that the heredity of the patient and the over-irritability of the nervous system were responsible for the high blood pressure in the majority of cases in which some definite change in the body could not be found which would explain the condition more certainly.

High blood pressure of this type is a progressive condition. There is no certain cure. As the person advances in years, the pressure seems to become higher and higher and as the kidneys and heart break down in their functions, the patient becomes gradually worse.

In most instances, it is possible for such patients to live for years, even beyond the normal expectancy of life, providing they take exceedingly good care of themselves. In many cases the course is rapid and the person dies from a hemorrhage into the brain or from the bursting of a blood vessel elsewhere in the body. In many instances death occurs from heart failure and sometimes from diseases of the kidneys.

The chief problem which confronts the physician in handling a person with essential hypertension is to change his nervous temperament, to make him stop worrying and to calm him down. Young people in families in which there are many cases of high blood pressure and hypersensative nervous systems should be warned against too strenuous exercising and discouraged from entering careers in which a high tension life is necessary.

The doctor studies the patient's habits of life, his business habits, his methods of eating and his entire home and social life. The patient is told to avoid worries or little details that others may take off his shoulders; attempts are made to free him from annoyances and aggravations.

Usually an hour's rest and absolute relaxation after lunch are advised, and the patient is encouraged to sleep at least eight hours each night.

Mosenthal has advised the spending of a weekend every month at home in bed. The idea of a week's vacation annually has now given way to two weeks' vacation in the summer and in the winter for executives engaged in high tension work and a similar procedure is urged for those suffering from essential hypertension. Golf, walking and mild exercises generally are urged; always with plenty of rest after the exercise.

The diet should be sofe. Meat is seldom permitted more than once each day and then in moderate quantities, and the quantity of salt is usually regulated also. Such patients do well to avoid constipation by control of the diet, since it is very easy to set up in them a purgative habit.

It develops that Mr. Shearer, the naval expert who knows practically nothing about warships, was once a Londoner. We had thought he might be Swiss.

We are a great people for developing by-products, and yet no spinach packer has come out to date with a side line of sand paper.

Blessed are the poor. They go on to jail instead of waiting until some lawyer strips them.

Today's Poem

THE ROSE

A rose, as fair as ever saw the North,
Grew in a little garden all alone;
A sweeter flower did Nature ne'er put forth,
Nor fairer garden yet was never known:
The maidens danced about it morn and noon,
And learned bards of it their ditties made;
The nimble fairies by the palefaced moon
Watered the root and kissed her pretty shade.
But well-a-day!—the gardener careless grew;
The maids and fairies both were kept away,
And in a drought the caterpillars threw
Themselves upon the bud and every spray.
God shield the stock! If heaven send no supplies,
The fairest blossom of the garden dies.

Anniversary Notes

ANDRE HANGED AS SPY

On Oct. 2, 1730, John Andre, an English soldier in the American Revolution, was hanged as a spy.

During the negotiations between Sir Henry Clinton and General Arnold in 1780, for the betrayal into the hands of the British of West Point, Andre acted as the confidential agent of General Clinton.

To perfect plans for the plot, Andre, under the assumed name of John Anderson, met Arnold in secret and made the necessary arrangements.

During their interview aboard the British sloop-of-war Vulture, the vessel was forced down the Hudson river by American gunfire and Andre, armed with a pass from Arnold and disguised as a civilian, started on horseback for New York, carrying concealed in his boots several incriminating papers in Arnold's handwriting.

Near Tarrytown, almost within sight of the British lines, he was captured by three Americans who found the documents and, refusing all bribes, handed their prisoner over to their superior officer.

A military court convicted Andre as a spy and he was hanged at Tappan, N. Y., Oct. 2.

AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

HELEN PAGE feels unhappy when her classmates accuse her of being in love with her handsome guardian, LEONARD BRENT. But he represents all that she knows of home and family and she adores him blindly.

Brent changes all his plans for Helen's future after a chance meeting with a dying beggar, CHARLES OWENS NELLIN, who tells a strange story which Brent is able to corroborate to some extent by a visit to Yonkers.

On graduating, Helen reminds her guardian of his promise to reveal her parentage and is amazed when he informs her that she is heiress of a millionaire, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM, and that he promised her parents to take her to him when she was 18. They go to Yonkers and Brent introduces her to Cunningham. He offers as proof the locket containing a picture of EVANGELINE CUNNINGHAM which he had taken from the dying Nellin.

Helen remains at Bramblewood while the lawyer investigates the story. Cunningham presents her with a new car which she drives everywhere. One day she accidentally hits a girl, EVA ENNIS, who has to be taken to the hospital. Eva's brother, ROBERT, upbraids Helen for her reckless driving and then, noting her unstrung condition, offers to take her home. Cunningham receives him graciously and invites him to spend the evening. The young couple go for a canoe ride.

Next day Brent arrives and when he hears about her meeting with Robert asks her to go to New York for dinner and the theater.

Coming home that night he kisses Helen for the first time and tells her that he loves her.

When Brent hears of Robert, he becomes alarmed and begins to monopolize all her spare time. He also avows his love for the first time. Cunningham gives an old-fashioned party in honor of Helens' 19th birthday, and Brent finds a locket on the floor which proves to be similar to Helen's.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI

Quickly Brent sought Helen and begged her to dance with him.

"Why are you wearing your mother's locket?" he asked at once when they were whirling away.

Helen was impressed with the seriousness of his tone. "Why, Leno dear," she said, "haven't you noticed that all the girls are wearing old fashioned costumes? I'm wearing the locket because it belongs with my dress."

"But you might lose it," Brent cautioned her.

Helen put up a hand to feel of the locket. "The clasp is firm," she said.

"It's the only photograph of your mother that you have, isn't it?" Brent questioned.

"There was one in her room," Helen replied; "a lovely picture. Leno She must have been a beautiful girl."

"Like you dear," he smiled at her. "Did you find a picture of your father, too?" he added lightly.

"Yes."

"Seems strange your grandfather permitted it to remain in your mother's possession, doesn't it?"

"I don't think he touched anything in her room after she went away."

"I see. Will you show me the picture? I'd like to see a photograph of Charles."

"It's up in my room; I'll get it for you later."

"Some other time. And by the way, you didn't discover that other locket your grandfather spoke of, did you?"

"No I'm sure it isn't in mother's room."

"Well, then, I think you oughtn't to be wearing this one, Helen. I understand you're going to dance on the lawn later. And this party isn't going to remain old-fashioned if I'm any judge of a beginning. Better give me the locket, dear. You would hate to lose it, wouldn't you?"

"It would break my heart," Helen declared. They danced aside, out of the way of the other couples, and Helen took the chain from her throat.

Brent put it in his pocket, and breathed a hearty sigh of relief. At least whoever had lost the other would not think he or she saw Helen wearing it and claim it, and thereby start an investigation that might lead to exposure of Helen as an imposter.

They finished the dance waltzing to the immortal strains of the Blue Danube, and Helen went about the duties imposed upon her by her role of hostess.

The party was a huge success. The girls got their kick out of acting demure and the boys enjoyed themselves wondering what it would be like if the "femmes" should revert in earnest to the manners and customs of former days.

After they had waited for the real fun to begin. But Mr. Cunningham prevented it. He had come down by great physical effort to assist in welcoming the guests and to hear his house ring once more to the tune of merry laughter, to watch the pretty flirting of maids as coy—for the moment—as any he had known, and to dream over the past.

A feeling of having made his peace with the world stole over him as the hour to retire to his room drew near. His strength was failing rapidly but he had planned a surprise that he wished to announce at the traditional moment and he did not want to make a change.

His presence held back the desires of his guests. They could not fling aside the spirit that he had called up for the occasion and he their modern selves while he remained downstairs.

No one was so discuorteous as to let him suspect that he served as a damper, and when supper time arrived he was convinced that his ides had brought joy to others as well as to himself.

With the assistance of his attendant, Marks, he took his place at the head of the long table in the big dining room and assumed the duties of host with dignity and ease.

Helen was proud of him, proud of the regal distinction that had outlasted his age and illness, proud of his gently aristocratic bearing. And she, as well as the others, was taken wholly by surprise when he got to his feet and told them that he had an important announcement to make.

"My dear friends," he said, with a touch of silver in his voice, "I am grateful for your presence here tonight as the occasion is one that marks a very happy event in my life." He paused and looked at Helen.

She tried to smile back at him but the grip of anticipation held her immovable. What could he be going to say? She knew intuitively that it concerned her, whatever it was.

"You were asked," Mr. Cunningham went on, "to honor Miss Brent on her nineteenth birthday. It gives me great happiness to present her now, not as Helen Brent, but as my dearly beloved granddaughter, Helen Cunningham Nellin."

There was a silence as tense as a drawn bow, followed by a gasp that ran round the table from one guest to another.

Helen herself sat perfectly still, with her eyes dilated and wide with surprise.

Everyone turned to her as though expecting her to answer the unspoken questions that rose in their minds.

Mr. Cunningham held out a hand and she went to stand beside him, his arm about her shoulders.

"My daughter Evangeline's child," he said simply.

As though his words had been a cue to them, his guests broke into an excited but subdued chatter.

Mr. Cunningham bent his head and kissed Helen very gently. Her eyes filled suddenly with tears.

"Thank you," she said in a choked whisper. Then she turned her head to look down the table where Brent sat. There was upon his face an expression that she could not gauge, perhaps because he was desperately trying to conceal his elation and keep his expression inscrutable.

He had not guessed Mr. Cunningham's decision to accept Helen as his granddaughter and heiress to his fortune. It came to him as a great surprise as it was to her.

He did not go to her at once, but her eyes constantly sought his and he knew that she was waiting for him to tell her what this latest development would mean to them. Would he leave her now, go away and forget her, thinking his duty done?

Duty! Helen hated the word. She wanted love. And Leno did not love her, she was certain of it. His continued attitude of sorrowful renunciation proved it.

And wouldn't he give her up altogether now that he knew her fate was sealed and she must remain with her grandfather? The thought brought anguish to her.

She was deaf to the remarks of the people who crowded about her, offering their congratulations and felicitations. She scarcely heard Mr. Cunningham's meager explanation of her history.

But when Eva came to her and, putting her arms about her, said: "I'm so glad, for your sake," she wanted to cry out that there was nothing to be glad about—that her life was being sacrificed. Her self-control was leaving her in a panic of fear that she had lost Brent.

Just as she might have said something wild she saw Brent coming toward her. He took her hand and pressed it hard. "Courage my dear," he said under his breath. Helen barely caught the words but they steadied her. She smiled at him and turned away to those who were still gathering around her.

As she did so Eva unobtrusively slipped a hand into Brent's. He gave it a perfunctory squeese and let it go. Eva was too excited to note his lack of warmth.

Her act annoyed Brent excessively and he cursed himself for having been a fool about her. He had slipped but rarely in his life and as he looked at Eva he felt a desire to choke her for having been the cause of one of those rare occasions.

One word to Helen of his attentions to Eva and he knew he might as well cry for the moon as to seek to win her. He seemed to realize the folly if his conduct with full force now that Helen had become the Cunningham heiress.

But later in the night he had a comforting reassurance of her feeling for him.

The guests were departing—long after Mr. Cunningham had retired—and Helen suggested to Brent that they drive Eva home since she insisted that she could not remain over night. She had to leave early the next morning for a music lesson in the city.

"Bob is coming for me," Eva told them, with an appealing glance at Helen.

"Oh," Helen said indifferently, and then added enthusiastically to Brent: "Suppose we go and drive the sun up, Leno?"

FEELS THAT IT IS HIS DUTY
"I've Suffered 14 Years And Orgaton Has Given Me A New Lease On Life," Says Amarillo Man

"Orgatone has simply given me a new lease on life," said D. C. Trimmer, of 3511 W. Seventh St., Amarillo, Texas, while in the City Drug Store, at Amarillo, Texas.

"Before I commenced taking it," he continued, "I was so run-down and miserable that just any little thing would tire me, as much as a day's work does now. I had a very bad case of stomach trouble, and everything I ate disagreed with me, all the time. My food soured on my stomach, and caused gas to form and my heart would palpitate like it would jump out of my body. I was nervous and restless and couldn't sleep at night, and many a night I wondered about my condition, for it was really becoming alarming. I had dizzy, bilious spells and had severe headaches, and just kept going down hill every day.

"Orgatone was recommended so highly by so many of our local Amarillo people, I began taking it, and it has certainly made the future look much brighter for me. I noticed a decided improvement soon after I had finished my first bottle. My stomach trouble has been relieved and I'm not bothered with those dizzy bloating bilious spells, and my heart is back to normal, and the gas doesn't form on my stomach as it did. My nerves are quiet and my sleep is delightfully refreshing. I am so much better and stronger, and don't feel tired and worn out as I did. I'm going to take another bottle and then I'll be in tiptop shape. I feel that it is my duty to tell everybody about Orgatone, and I want my friends to know about it and the good that it does, so I don't hesitate to recommend it."

Genuine Orgatone may be bought in Lubbock at Bowers Drug Store. Adv.

the association in the South Plains from being shipped over the road and that it would be routed over other lines. According to Mr. Bayless, Lynn Stokes, of Ballinger, president and general manager of the association, is backing Mr. Overstreet in the move and that the association stood behind him.

Officials Opposed

"The officials of the railroad are very much opposed to the construction of this crossing," Mr. Bayless asserted. "The main objection that has been voiced is the danger. We have only recently completed the Broadway underpass and with this move we sought to eliminate all danger of lives from crossings. It seems very foolish that the road should wipe out one dangerous crossing, at a cost of over $100,000, only to come right back and build another menace. There are four sets of tracks at the point designated, crossing would have to be made at an angle rendering it doubly dangerous. If the people want grade crossings then why should we build them safe underpasses?"

Mr. Overstreet was one of the city and could not be reached for a statement last night.

Rail Hearing

in which to file a brief of the hearing in which it will attempt to prove the railroad is a convenience and a necessity.

Santa Fe Opposition Expected In Hearing

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 1. (AP)—The Santa Fe railroad is expected to offer strenuous opposition when Examiner H. C. Dodo conducts a hearing Wednesday and Thursday on the application of the Abilene and Southern railway for a permit to extend its line from Ballinger to San Angelo.

While counsel for both the Santa Fe and the Texas and Pacific were reticent about the case tonight it was inferred the Santa Fe to oppose the application chiefly for the purpose of keeping the T. and P. from entering San Angelo, claiming that San Angelo does not need this additional rail service. The T. and P. owns the Abilene and Southern.

San Angelo commercial interests however, are very anxious to have the T. and P. enter their city according to Claude Wilde, head of the delegation from that city. The San Angelo delegation will appear as witnesses at this hearing in behalf of the A. and S.

The A. and S. in its application to the commission for a permit to extend its line from the present southern terminus at Ballinger to San Angelo, stated the distance between these points was forty miles. The proposed new line would serve the communities of Verjbest and Marsta and two other places where sites for stations have been located but have not been named.

The country through which the proposed extension of the A. and S. will traverse is chiefly agricultural, according to T. D. Gresham, Dallas, chief counsel for the Texas and Pacific.

Cotton Active; Stocks Makes Decline

Report Of Rains In Eastern Belt Causes Advances

Prices Are On Upgrade All Day; Cables Are Higher Than Expected: Big Gain Shown Before Close

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 1. (AP) — Cotton was active today and prices advanced on fears that heavy rains in the eastern belt will reduce crop prospects. Cables were higher than due. As a result, prices were on the upgrade all day, opening 12 to 13 points higher and showing gains of 34 to 38 points just before the close. December which closed yesterday at 18.51 advanced to 18.89, up 37 points and closed at 18.86 or 34 points net higher for the day. The general market closed very steady at net gains of 33 to 42 points.

Liverpool came in 6 to 9 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 12 to 13 points. Bad weather in the eastern belt stimulated prices and at the end of the first hour December traded at 18.70, January at 18.80 and March at 19.04 or 17 to 18 points above the previous close.

Although there were slight reactions on realizing prices continued to advance nearly all day. With speculative buying active the highs of the day came at the end with December up to 18.89, January to 18.97 and March to 19.24 or 34 to 38 points above the previous close. The close was at or near the best with active months 33 to 36 points net higher for the day.

Unfavorable Weather Report Reflected

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. (AP)—Unfavorable weather and crop reports were reflected by increasing strength in the cotton market today. Broadening demand sent prices up to 19.08 for December and 19.38 for March or 34 to 38 points above yesterday's closing quotations. December closed at 19.04, and March at 19.33 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 31 to 36 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 14 to 20 points on apprehensions of storm damage to cotton in the eastern belt, and Liverpool cables. Southern hedging was absorbed on slight setbacks. The demand seemed to receive impetus from a private crop report making the condition 52.4 compared with a report of 57.3 by the same authority a month ago. Some bullish crop advices also reached here with reference to the effects of recent wet weather in the eastern belt as well as to the tropical storm. Buying was quite general in the late trading, when active months sold 34 to 38 points above yesterday's closing quotations and about 56 points above the low level of last Saturday in the case of December contracts.

Livestock Trade Is Slow Tuesday

FORT WORTH, Oct. 1. (AP)—Except for canners all classes of cattle and calves at Fort Worth were slow, with butcher and beef cows tending lower. No early sales of steers with few bulls offered fully steady. Few morning sales in sheep division 25 to 50c lower, aged shorn fat wethers at 6.50. No early sales in the rail division for hogs, with truck sales 15 to 25c lower on the sales made.

About nine loads of slaughter steers offered. Most of them were low costing common steers with two loads of fairly good quality that lacked finish. Bids about steady.

Bulls Steady.

Bulls fully steady, heavy bulls at 7.25 and common light bulls at 5.75@6.25.

Slaughter yearlings and heifers about steady with carloads due to sell at 10.00@11.00.

Cows and mixed loads made up the bulk of the grown cattle supply with fat cows tending lower. Canners and cutters fairly active with order buyers adding to competition and some sales a little higher.

He added that "nothing unexpected" had developed in the questioning of witnesses, the testimony "following theories that were already established."

Meanwhile, it developed that two federal agents were here to begin work. They are George H. Allen and P. W. Harpold of the treasury department at Kansas City. Harpold has been here a month as an undercover man obtaining evidence.

Hog Prices Sink To Lowest Level In Tuesday Market Since Last February

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 1. (AP)—Hog prices around the 11 market circuit today sank to the lowest levels since the fore-part of February. A few early sales were completed on a 15 to 25c lowetr basis, but late trading was on a 25 to 50c lower basis. The day's extreme top of $10.45 was paid in Chicago. Total offerings were around 86,700 a slight decrease from a week about 27,000 heavier than the corresponding day last year.

Fat lamb trade was slow, steady to 25c lower, while aged stock held around steady. A few choice native lambs in Chicago made $13.00, and $12.50 was secured for good rangers. The supply approximated 77,600 as compared with 85,133 last Tuesday, and 98,731 a year ago.

Aggregate receipts of cattle were estimated at 80,700, an increase of 9,000 over a week ago and 7,000 more than a year ago. Trade continued slow on killing classes with better grades of native fed steers and yearlings holding around steady but other offerings on a weak to 25c lower basis. Packers were especially bearish on the lower grades of steers and fat she stock. Chicago and Omaha scored $15.85 on choice medium weight steers. Stocker and feeder steers were in liberal supply and although prices were little changed it was largely a buyers market. Light weight stockers of good to choice quality command a 50c to $1.00 premium over comparable grades of feeders.

Wheat Suffers In Heavy Setback Of Trading Tuesday

Closing Quotations Heavy As Lowest Prices Are Hit During Final Transactions Of Session

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN,
Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. (AP)—Wheat suffered a decided setback today on severe downturns in stock market values. The prices of the day were reached during the final transactions.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1 3-8 to 1 7-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-4c to 5-8c down, oats 1-8 to 3-8c off and provisions ranging from 5c decline to an equal advance.

Extreme nervousness prevailed as the day drew to an end. Earlier, the fact that sterling exchanges had risen to the highest level since July, 1928, and that this circumstance appeared likely to stimulate export demand, was hopefully noted in various quarters. Comment on unusual moisture shortage in the principal wheat growing region of Canada was likewise a source of buying that caused temporary price rallies.

Wire Tapping

through this box and a short wire had been spliced to this so that it could be hooked onto any of the cables to the executive office.

Telephone company experts, called in to investigate strange noises and "fading" on the mayor's wires, discovered marks of hook-in clips indicating that a portable listening set had been connected with the abandoned wire in three places.

Public To Judge

Asked to comment on the political significance of the wire tapping, if any, Charles Kerrigan, assistant to the mayor replied that the public could best judge "of that, and asked in turn who would have an interest in such tactics "at this time."

F. H. La Guardia, republican fusion candidate for mayor who made the "tax racket" charges and who was joined with former police commissioner Richard E. Enright, "square deal" candidate, and Norman Thomas, socialist candidate, in demanding prosecution of the Rothstein case, was informed of the wire tapping.

"If they wanted to find out anything about the city's business," he said, "they wouldn't tap the mayor's office. That certainly is a compliment to Whalen's (police commissioner Grover Whalen) policing. By the time I get ready to go to city hall on January 1 there probably won't be any city hall left."

Overbought Mart Hammered Out In Tuesday Session

Tearing Down Of Speculative Structure Is Taken Up As Extreme Declines Run As High As 40 Points

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. (AP)—The orgy deal of hammering down what is now generally regarded as an overbought speculative structure was resumed with determination in today's stock market. Extreme declines ran as high as 40 points.

Stop loss orders were uncovered in heavy volume as the decline progressed, and the pace of trading was sharply accelerated, total sales exceeding 4,500,000 shares.

Call Money Renewed

Call money renewed again at 9 per cent, but the calling of about $35,000,000 in loans by banks, sent the rate to 10 per cent. Commission houses stated that with high carrying charges and constant calls for margin, many traders who have been stubbornly hanging on are selling out.

The day's news was largely favorable. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were said to have stepped up their operation about 4 per cent to around 90 per cent of rated capacity. Montgomery-Ward reported that September sales increased more than 25 per cent over that month of last year and crude oil production was reported to have declined a little last week, but Pennsylvania crude prices were cut again.

Credit Uneasy

The credit situation continued to cause uneasiness, particularly in its foreign aspects. The Bank of England lost nearly $5,000,000 more in gold in Paris. It is felt in Wall Street that the Bank of England may find it necessary to raise its discount rate to 7 per cent.

U. S. Steel again was under pressure, sagging to 218 3-4, a new low for the movement, and closing at 221 3-4. Motors continued to sag into new low ground for the year. Chrysler reaching 54 1-4. General Electric, after dropping to 351, rebounded to 360, up nearly 2 points net. A few specialties moved up into new high ground. Including Beatrice Creamery and Burroughs Adding.

Surprise Move Is Made By State In Pantages Hearing

Theatre Magnate Charged With Statutory Offense On 17-Year-Old Dancer; Attack Count Dismissed

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—The trial of Alexander Pantages, accused of a statutory offense by Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, opened in superior court today with a surprise move by the state.

Upon the convening of court Assistant Prosecutor Robert P. Stewart moved and obtained dismissal of the charge of forcible attack, one of the two counts against Pantages. This left the single count of a statutory offense against the young dancer.

The defense showed its perturbation immediately upon the making of the motion, all three of Pantages' attorneys entering into a frantic battle for a continuance because of the surprise move. Attorneys W. I. Gilbert, Joseph Ford and Jerry Geisler argued that preparation had been made for the trial on two counts, that they were unprepared to wage their case on the single count.

Simultaneously Geisler and Ford made a plea for a continuance on the claim of the defendant's ill health. Counsel argued that Pantages had lost between 15 and 20 pounds as the result of the strain of the trial of his wife, Mrs. Lois Pantages, who was convicted in the same court room last week of manslaughter due to a fatal automobile collision.

TAFT IS IMPROVED

Chief Justice Is In Better Health Than In June

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—With an even, easy stride, Chief Justice Taft this afternoon walked through the union station where last June when he was starting on his vacation he used a wheel chair to reach his train.

Today he was returning from a summer at Murray Bay, Canada. Last June he was leaving a hospital where upon the advice of his physician he went for minor treatment.

The chief justice—who was 72 September 15—was in a cheerful mood as he stepped from the train, explaining between characteristic chuckles that Mrs. Taft could not resist the feminine temptation to stop in New York and replenish her wardrobe.

Clues Slight In Detective Death

HARVE DE GRACE, Md., Oct. 1. (AP)—Authorities, with nothing more tangible than a discarded pistol to work from, are searching for the assassin who late last night shot and killed A. A. Morrison of New York, Pinkerton detective assigned to the Harve De Grace race track, while he was on his way home through a darkened street.

Morrison had made a purchase at the Corner Drug store and started for his hotel. He was accosted by the man, who said, "Now I've got you," fired six shots into his body and fled.

A pistol was found nearby. Police expressed opinion the killer was some undesirable who had been barred from the race track by Morrison.

Heavy Decrease Shown In Total Oil Production

Prolific Oklahoma City Pool Dribbles Almost To Nothingness And Is Shut Down

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 1. (AP)—While the prolific Oklahoma City pool dribbled almost to nothingness in the clinch of a total shutting for conservation, other state fields registered natural declines making a total decrease of approximately 10,555 barrels in the estimated daily average production of light and heavy crude oil for Oklahoma during the week ended Sept. 28, as compared to that of the week ending Sept. 21, according to the estimate of the Oil and Gas Journal.

Light and heavy crude production in the entire United States for the past week was estimated at 2,901,662 barrels, a total of 16,108 barrels below the mark set for the week ending Sept. 21. The Oklahoma City pool produced but 915 barrels daily, in contrast to the soaring figure of two weeks ago.

The decrease was in light oil which dropped a total of 24,814 barrels during the week. Heavy crude production came back, after a steady decline of some weeks, to add approximately 9,000 barrels daily and cut the total decrease to 16,108 barrels.

Seminole field in Oklahoma dropped approximately 6,000 barrels; the northern miscellaneous 3,000 barrels. Kansas lost 1,000 barrels. Alternate increases and decreases in various midcontinent fields held the total decrease in that area to approximately 13,000 barrels.

Gulf coast and southwest Texas heavy oil went upward approximately 8,000 barrels.

Prison Board Has Problem To Solve

Centralization Commission Must Recommend Site For New Proposed Concentrated Pen System

HOUSTON, Oct. 1. (AP)—Members of the Texas prison centralization commission met here today to consider further the paramount problem which they face, that of the site to be recommended for the location of the concentrated system.

It was considered likely the commission would reach a vote on a sub-committee's proposal to locate in the vicinity of Austin. Senator Nat Patton of Crockett, representative A. H. King of Throckmorton and Representative H. N. Graves of Georgetown led the opposition to that proposal.

Huntsville

Both Patton and Graves said they favored location near Huntsville where the commission yesterday inspected lands now owned by the state that might be used as a site. The commissioners also visited proposed sites in and near Madisonville, which, with Huntsville, is bidding for the new plant. King said he was not committed to any particular location but he was holding out for concentration on some of the lands now owned by the state.

After the commission meeting the prison board planned to consider administration matters. J. E. Parish of the Huntsville Chamber of Commerce, criticized the management of the prison system in a talk before the commission.

Defendants Relate Details Of Bank Robbery, Planned For Many Years

LAMAR, Colo., Oct. 1. (AP)—Because the signed confessions of all three defendants were given to the press yesterday, Judge L. W. Cunningham of Colorado Springs, attorney for George J. Abshier, Howard L. Royston and Ralph Fleagle, charged with first degree murder, robbery and kidnaping in connection with the holdup of the First National bank of Lamar on May 23, announced today he would ask for a continuance and a change of venue, on grounds the release was prejudicial to the defendants' case.

The confessions retold plans for the robbery, the gun battle in the bank in which A. Newton Parrish, president of the bank, and his son, J. P. Parrish, were shot to death, and their flight, in the course of which E. A. Kessinger, kidnapped teller, and Dr. W. W. Wineinger, Dighton, Kas., physician, were slain.

Planned For Years

Ralph Fleagle, reputed "brains" of the gang, said the robbery had been planned for two years. Three times the robbery was frustrated because officers were near the bank.

On May 23, 1928, shortly after one o'clock the band entered the bank following the Elder Parrish. Jake Fleagle, uncaptured member of the gang, Ralph Fleagle, Royston and Abshier followed Parrish.

Ralph shouted:

"Hands up, this is a holdup."

A customer got in his way, and he thrust him aside and vaulted a counter. The Elder Parrish leaped the counter after Ralph and forced Royston to pursue him.

Suddenly a shot was fired. "I had my back to old man Parrish, and was running after young Parrish, (J. P. Parrish, son of the bank president) when I heard the shot," Ralph said.

"Young Parrish fell, and I saw he was dead. I believe the shot that killed him was fired unintentionally by his father."

The bank president continued firing, sending a bullet into Royston's jaw, and Jake, shouted "get that old man."

The elder Parrish fell back into his office as Jake opened fire, according to Ralph, Abshier and Royston.

Jake ran forward, firing, put several bullets through the glass partition of the office and then jerked open the door to make sure he was dead.

Money Taken

After he was shot, Royston ordered some of the customers to remain on the floor, and then went back of the railing and filled his pillow slip with money from the cash drawer.

Ralph forced E. A. Kessinger, teller in the bank, into the vault while he scooped up cash and securities amounting to $219,000 and then forced the teller into the rear seat of the car and got behind the wheel. Jake forced out E. A. Lundgren, another teller, and made him lie on the floor of the car beside Kessinger. The party then fled.

But the machine was too heavily loaded. Ralph stopped and Lundgren was thrown out. Kessinger begged to be released, but Ralph refused.

The confessions recounted the flight, and refuge at Fleagle ranch where Royston fainted from the effects of his wound.

Royston recalled how he lay on a cot on the kitchen floor and watched Abshier carry bonds amounting to nearly $200,000 to the kitchen stove where they made a "roaring fire."

The confessions told of taking Dr. Wineinger from his home at Dighton, Kas., and forcing him to treat Royston's shattered face. Later Kessinger and Dr. Wineinger were both put to death, and the band separated. Abshier took Royston to St. Paul for medical treatment, and the Fleagles later joined the two in St. Paul.

Former Co-Ed Is Released On Bond

Dallas Girl Posts $10,000 In Sureties On Charges Of Slaying Husband; No Statement Given Out

DALLAS, Oct. 1. (AP)—Bond of $10,000 was granted Mrs. Marjorie McCormick, charged with slaying her husband, Andrew P. McCormick, at a habeas corpus hearing here today.

Mrs. McCormick had been held without bond since her arrest early Sunday, a few hours after her husband was found dead from a bullet wound in their home here.

Sureties Posted

The woman's counsel, although protesting the bond was excessive, immediately posted the sureties, and the former Southern Methodist university student planned to leave the jail as soon as formalities were compiled with.

Mrs. McCormick told newspaper reporters she intended to attend her husband's funeral this afternoon.

"I loved him," she said. "I haven't been able to tell it all. Do you think I could stay away?"

She appeared on the verge of collapse as the hearing ended, and was taken in charge by a matron.

District Attorney F. H. Hammond announced he would oppose any effort to admit the prisoners to bail.

Ellison and his son left town on foot shortly after Calloway was killed in an argument over plumbing he had installed. Officers and posses pursued the pair more than 50 miles before they were captured near Lampasas.
