Oklahoma Backers State They Still Have Confidence And Will Back Pair For Second Try In 1933

(By The Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 8. — Harry Turner, Oklahoma City oil man, one of the sponsors of the Griffin-Mattern world flight which ended in Russia, is ready to back the fliers in another attempt, he said today.

Turner and John Mabee of Tulsa the other backer, sent a cablegram to the fliers at Moscow: "Congratulations game fight against unforseen elements better luck next time."

In Hands of Fliers

Future plans are entirely in the hands of the fliers themselves, Turner said.

"They know all the facts and can decide better than we can here," he said, leaving the matter of returning home, with or without the plane, up to them.

He said he thought it was too late to try another world flight this year, but hoped his proteges would better the Post-Gatty record of 8 1-2 days in 1933.

Globe-Circling Adventure Ends

(By The Associated Press)

MOSCOW, July 8. — The globe-circling adventure of James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, which started in New York with a blaze of speed, has come to an abrupt end in western Russia with only one-third of the flight behind them.

The American pair cracked up their racy monoplane just over the Polish-Russian border, 500 miles east of Berlin, yesterday morning but word of the mishap was received today.

Not Seriously Hurt

Neither was seriously injured in the forced landing near Borisov, Russia, 50 miles from Minsk.

Their "Century of Progress" was believed to have developed control trouble. The pilots probably mis-

Taxpayers To Gather Today

Dr. J. G. Hall And George W. Dupree Will Speak Before Meeting; Over 2,000 Likely To Attend Session

Dr. J. G. Hall, a retired physician of Lubbock and George W. Dupree, a local attorney, will be the principal speakers at an open meeting of the Taxpayers association of Lubbock county at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the auditorium of the First Baptist church, 1415 Main street, S. E. Cone, chairman of the arrangements and program committees, announced last night.

A crowd of possibly 2,000 to 3,000 persons is expected to attend the assembly, which will be open to the general public, and which was called to further perfect organization of the association. Mr. Cone explained that the place of meeting was changed from the criminal district courtroom to the church auditorium because "from the response the executive committee has had, it did not appear there was sufficient room (in the courtroom) to accomodate the crowd."

Blake To Preside

W. R. Blake, president of the Taxpayers association, will call the meeting to order if he is there; otherwise Doctor Hall, vice president, will preside. The meeting will be opened by invocation by Rev. R. C. Campbell, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The objects of the association will be outlined in Doctor Hall's address. The need of such an association and of some action affecting taxation will be treated from the platform by Mr. Dupree.

Golfers Seized On Links Identified As Criminals And Taken Back To Cells

Notorious Crooks Live In Style But Arm Of Law Reaches Out To Drag Them Back

(By The Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY, July 8—Three high living, knicker-clad golfers arrested on a public links here were identified today as notorious criminals sought in connection with half a dozen major crimes in the midwest, including bank robberies and the smuggling of firearms into Leavenworth federal prison.

Two of the trio, Thomas Holden, 35, and Francis L. Keating, 33, were returned late today to the Leavenworth penitentiary, from which they escaped with forged passes Feb. 28, 1930, to complete 25-year sentences for the $135,000 Evergreen Park, Ill., mail train robbery in 1926.

Their companion, John Brown, alias John Brennan, ex-convict, was held for authorities at Fort Scott, Kas., to face charges of participating in the $32,000 robbery of the Citizens National bank there June 17.

While at large from Leavenworth, Keating and Holden are charged with having participated in the spectacular robbery of the Kraft State bank at Menomonie, Wis., in which James Kraft, son of the bank president, and two robbers died.

Max Towle, county attorney at Lincoln, Neb., said he would have the two men questioned about the $2,500,000 Lincoln National bank robbery September 17, 1930.

A jailer reported Keating remarked to him he "would pay $15,000 cash to escape."

Many Register For 4-H Club Roundup Here

Between 90 And 100 Boys And Girls Are Registered Late Friday; Full Program Will Be Observed

Between 90 and 100 boys and girls had registered up to 5 o'clock last night for the annual 4-H club roundup sponsored by the extension service in Lubbock county and the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and held at Shannon park and the Panhandle-South Plains fair grounds. Nearly every club in the county was represented.

A camp fire on the fair grounds was the big feature of the night program, with club members taking part in stunts and games. Fred Elliott and James Potts were in charge of the stunts. There were some informal talks by D. F. Eaton, county agent and R. N. McClain, assistant county agent.

To Give Program

This morning a group from the camp will give a program over station KFYO, in the Lubbock hotel building. Last night those who will participate had not been announced.

A baseball game will be on the morning program as well as other games. The boys will be guests of the managements of Tumble 'N this morning.

Supper was served last night and today's luncheon will be by the chamber of commerce.

The boys spent the night in the open air pavilion at the fair grounds used as machinery hall. The girls, with Miss Isla Mae Chitwood, home demonstration agent as chaperone, were housed in the women's building.

Friend Of Young Heir In Custody

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., July 8. (AP)—Ab Walker, life-long chum of Smith Reynolds, was taken into custody by police here tonight as a material witness to events surrounding the death of the heir to the R. J. Reynolds tobacco millions.

Although he was being kept under surveillance, the 19 year old boy who told the first story of the tragic shooting was not placed in jail, and officers indicated he might be allowed to sleep in a guarded hotel room instead of at police station.

Further Flood Dangers In Texas Are Believed At End

SAN ANTONIO, July 8. (AP)—Further danger from flood waters of the Frio and Neuces rivers was about past tonight as the American Red Cross turned its attention toward aiding residents of the flood zone who were suffering from losses caused by the overflow.

All Is Silent Aboard Sunken Undersea Ship

Strong Currents And A Rising Tide Halt Salvage Efforts; Hope For Rescue Of 60 Men Is Fast Fading

(By The Associated Press)

CHERBOURG, France, July 8. — Strong currents and a rising tide halted efforts to salvage the sunken French submarine Promethee today and small harbor craft, unequipped for their heavy task, sought shelter in the harbor.

Early tomorrow they will load chains and cables and heavy lines and steam out again to the spot seven miles off Cape Levi, where the Promethee lies in 40 fathoms.

Hope For Aid

It is hoped that some time in the forenoon the Italian salvage ship Artiglio II and her sister ship, the Rosto, will be there to help.

The location of the Promethee was clearly marked, the nature and strength of the currents in the vicinity have been fully determined, and everything was ready to proceed with the work of rescue tomorrow, naval officials said. They warned the difficulties were great.

Victims Are Silent

A special deep-sea diving apparatus was being rushed by train from Toulon and a technical export was en route to Cherbourg by airplane.

A scout ship, moving back and forth in the area where the submersible was known to have sunk, spotted the hull this morning and dropped a buoy there. A few minutes later the Promethee's small telephone buoy was discovered but hope that it might still be possible to talk with some of the more than 60 men who went down the ship proved groundless.

Furlough Plan Will Deduct Two And One-Half Day's Pay

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—The 30-day furlough imposed on more than 500,000 of the government's employes by the economy bill will result in deduction of two and a half days' pay from each monthly pay envelope, effective July 1.

This was ruled today by Comptroller General McCarl. At the same time administrative orders were in the making by which the federal workers would serve through these unpaid days each month and accumulate vacation time later.

Robinson Says Lord Never Takes Notice Of A Senator

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader and a senate member for nearly 20 years, confessed to the senate today that its lengthy speeches sometimes try his patience.

"When a senator takes the floor," he remarked somewhat wearily, "nobody but Almighty God can interrupt him—and the Lord never seems to take any notice of him."

Corruption In Government Is Under Inquiry

Sweeping Investigation Now Promised Of Treasury And Federal Reserve System By Congressional Units

Garner Backs Move

Speaker Believes Probe Will Uncover Startling Facts In Departments And Confidence Will Be Shattered

(By The Associated Press).

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A sweeping investigation of the treasury and federal reserve system impended tonight after a house floor exchange during which Speaker Garner pledged his support for the inquiry.

"The rules committee meets at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning," Garner said in the midst of debate. "Speaking as I may for the majority, I will request them to bring out the resolution of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. McFadden, put it on passage and make this investigation."

Action Is Urged

The discussion was started by McFadden (R., Pa.) who in a speech urging action on his resolution of inquiry, reminded Garner the latter had said he favored an investigation.

"I still have the same opinion I expressed at that time," Garner said. "The reasons I have not pressed on the rules committee and the investigation demanded by the gentleman from Pennsylvania are two.

Would Unsettle Confidence

"For the last six months the country has been very much disturbed in economic matters. I did not want to investigate the treasury department with a view to having the people of the country lose confidence

Fund Of $100,000 Available To Take Vets Back To Homes

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—One hundred thousand dollars was available tonight to take members of the bonus army back home.

President Hoover late today signed the bill appropriating the money. He had suggested the step be taken to disperse the thousands of ex-service men here and congress rushed it through yesterday.

Compromise On Relief Halted

Speaker Garner Is Steadfast In Contention And Senate Leaders Are Disappointed; Veto Seems Certain

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A Democratic attempt to compromise on an unemployment relief bill that would receive President Hoover's signature collapsed today through Speaker Garner's insistence upon a provision for loans to individuals.

As a result of the failure of the negotiations, leaders predicted tonight the $2,100,000,000 bill would be sent to the president probably tomorrow to receive an almost certain veto.

Refuses Compromise

Garner, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, refused to compromise with senate Democrats, as he previously had declined to yield to President Hoover.

The issue for which Garner is standing is that the reconstruction corporation should be allowed to make loans to individuals who are able to furnish adequate security and cannot obtain funds elsewhere.

Knapp Declares He Has Been Offered Tech Job

Not A Candidate But Always Elected

Thirteen times Dr. Sewall C. Smith, 94-year-old resident of White Bear Lake, Minn., has been elected justice of the peace and, though he has held the office for 26 years, he has never been a candidate for the office nor had his name printed on the ballot. Others have run for the office but Dr. Smith always is re-elected because so many White Bear Lake residents write in his name. He is recognized as the best poker player in the district.

Alabaman Says That He Was Urged To Accept Place

(By The Associated Press)

AUBURN, Ala., July 8. — Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic institute, has reached no decision regarding acceptance of the offer of a similar position with Texas Technological college, he wired B. L. Shi, secretary today.

The telegram was sent from Morrilton, Ark., by Dr. Knapp who is enroute home after a trip to Lubbock, Texas, while on vacation, where he conferred with friends and members of the board of that institution.

Wire Made Public

Dr. Knapp wired Shi as follows: "Home Saturday. Have much needed vacation. Did not seek place in Texas. They urged me to come. Have told them of my great duty to Auburn and love of my work. Have taken matter under advisement. Will not decide until I can consult our board. Have many friends in Texas who insist I must take trip to see this place. I am anxious regarding my duty to Auburn. You may release this message."

Tech Directors Are Non-Committal

Texas Technological college directors who this week have been quoted in connection with reported consideration of Dr. Bradford Knapp have not committed themselves as to the extent of their negotiation with the Alabama school head.

Other than stating that "we are considering Doctor Knapp along with several others," Board Chairman Clifford B. Jones of Spur, and Director Roscoe Wilson of Lubbock Thursday declined to comment upon news reports from Montgomery, Ala., concerning the educator.

Action Is Expected

Persons in close touch with the college are expecting a successor to the late Dr. Paul W. Horn to be named "within the next few days."

The Montgomery Advertiser Tuesday quoted John W. Carpenter, of Dallas, a board member, as denying that Doctor Knapp's name had been presented at a recent board meeting. "I think it is a mistake," the paper quoted Mr. Carpenter.

Winner In Local Ripley Contest Gets Recognition

ALTHOUGH no entries in the Morning Avalanche's "Believe It or Not" rated one of the nine grand awards in the national contest, a number of contributions from Lubbock and the South Plains are being recognized by the cartoonist in his drawings which appear in several hundred newspapers over the world.

In this morning's cartoon on the Avalanche's editorial page will be found an entry from R. A. Baldwin, Slaton attorney. Mr Baldwin's entry won him first place in the local contest and he has the distinction of having it reproduced in the "Believe It or Not" soon after the grand awards had been announced.

Other entries are to appear later, the Morning Avalanche has been informed.

Evening Picnic Party Ends In Tragedy At Sweetwater

SWEETWATER, July 8 (AP)—An evening picnic party ended in tragedy here today when Mrs. L. M. Parks, young Sweetwater woman, drowned in the deep waters of Lake Trammell, after losing her footing and falling from a bluff overlooking the lake.

The body was recovered at 8:30 p. m., about two hours after the young woman fell into the lake. Recovery was made with seines and grappling hooks, from a depth of about 39 feet.

Martin Answers Charge Of Shortage Made By Ferguson

SAN ANTONIO, July 8 (AP)—Answering the charge by James E. Ferguson that there is a shortage of $100,000,000 in the state highway department, D. K. Martin, member of the highway commission, declared here Friday that if the department "is one penny short," no member of the commission or of the highway department engineer's department is aware of it.

"I guess he figured this on the basis of his Bell county roads which cost $66,000 a mile," he said.

Attorney General Is Applauded During Address In City

JAMES V. ALLRED'S statements regarding enforcement of the anti-trust laws and his record in office were applauded here Friday night by an enthusiastic audience which heard the attorney general in his campaign for re-election. The outdoor meeting on the courthouse lawn was cut short by rain at about 9:30 o'clock.

Prior to the rally Allred lightly turned aside a challenge issued by Clem Calhoun, another candidate for the office, for a debate.

Suggests They Meet

"Ernest Becker, another candidate for attorney general, and Calhoun both have issued challenges for debates. I suggest that they meet and debate it out," Allred explained, and added, "When I first ran for attorney general I had a hard time getting crowds, too."

The attorney general in his address, named neither of his opponents, but he did say:

"I am not going to descend into a mud-slinging contest. Some people are trying awfully hard to break into the newspapers and they don't seem to be particular about how they do it. People of this class have been known to sit on flag-poles, or engage in a marathon dance race. Those now circulating vile charges against me seem desirous of engaging in a marathon mud-slinging contest. I admit they are champions.

Introduced By Bradley

District Attorney Durwood H. Bradley, who introduced the speaker, declared only issue in the campaign was "Jimmy Allred versus the Standard Oil trusts."

Allred charged that two oil companies operating in Texas had "rather spend a hundred or so thousand dollars to defeat me in a political campaign than to face a possible maximum fine of $17,000,000 in court."

Hutton Trial Nears An End

"Philandering Psalmist" And "Much Maligned Young Man" Are Descriptions Applied To Aimee's Husband

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, July 8. — David L. Hutton heard himself described variously today as a "philandering psalmist" and a "much maligned young man" by attorneys who wound up their arguments in Myrtle St. Pierre's $20,000 breach of promise trial.

James G. Sanderson, an associate council for the Pasadena nurse pictured Hutton as a "philandering psalmist."

"Your verdict, ladies and gentlemen of the jury," Sanderson said, "should be an example to other lustful philanderers."

The day Hutton met Miss St. Pierre was called a "tragic day" by Mark Jones, an attorney for Hutton. "You can not call Dave a Casanova," Jones pleaded. "He is just a big generous human chap but not a fool, no sir, not a fool. He's a much maligned young man."

Germany Will Give Bond Of $750,000,000

Greatest Financial Puzzle Of World's History Is Solved By Agreement Of Powers At Lausanne Session

U. S. Cooperating

New Effort For Peace Started On Basis Of Reciprocal Confidence; Final Session To Be Held Today

(By The Associated Press)

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, July 8. The former allies agreed with Germany today to wipe the World War slate clean with German bonds to be valued at $750,000,000.

The agreement moved toward the end of reparations, the greatest financial puzzle of history.

New Peace Effort

A new effort for peace in relations among nations is commenced, the document went on, on the basis of reciprocal confidence.

(This news brought a statement from Washington the United States was ready to consider any proposals European debtors may care to make for "reconsideration of war debts settlements.")

So when the final session of this conference is held, probably tomorrow, a resolution will be offered asking the United States to attend a world economic conference.

To Be Common Fund

This conference in the view held here would be expected to weave the Lausanne convention into a universal accord, under the resolution, which was believed sure of adoption.

Today's agreement, which will be initialed by Germany and the creditor nations tomorrow, indicated the German bonds would be a fund to be placed in a common cash box.

Powers other than the six represented here — Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium and Germany—will not sign the agreement.

To Pay American Debts

It was explained this will not be done until after debt settlements with the United States, if ever. The former allies expect to use part of the funds to pay their American debts if Washington insists.

(The books at Washington in June, 1931, showed the United States had received something over $1,000,000,000 on account of debts totalling more than $11,000,000,000.)

The agreement contained a preamble detailing the conference's efforts for peace and five resolutions.

Resolutions Given

The five resolutions were, briefly (1) An agreement regarding reparations between Germany and the former allies; (2) Conditional measures extending a moratorium on intergovernmental debts; (3) An

Special Session Of Legislature Is To Be Called In Texas For Tax Relief

(By The Associated Press)

MINERAL WELLS, July 8.—Gov. R. S. Sterling announced here tonight he would call a special session of the Texas legislature next fall to consider tax relief measures for the state and the counties.

He said he would submit measures designed to reduce the cost of state government and to relieve counties of bonded indebtedness incurred for the construction of state highways.

The statement follows:

"It is my intention to call a special session of the legislature in the fall for submission of tax relief measures to eliminate cost in state operation and to relieve counties and road districts of their bonded indebtedness voted in the past for construction of state highways."

The statement was made to newspapermen and others after the governor had addressed the 56th cavalry, Texas national guard, in encampment here. Previously he had delivered a campaign speech at Graham.

It was not unexpected. For several weeks, on numerous occasions, Gov. Sterling had declared a reduction in taxes was necessary and had commended the state highway commission for its new policy of allowing no further contributions from counties in building highways.

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

HOW TO write a column, particularly stressing the woman's angle: Remember that conversation the other evening when a group of young women settled all the world problems—unemployment, the soldier's bonus, depression, the younger generation's morals and how to handle the older one . . . Might have been the woman's angle and, again, might have been simply a melting pot of ideas from various offices and dinner tables. Anyway, the ideas proved one thing and that is that there are more angles than one that may be feminine . . .

Telephone around among the women of the town looking for ideas and discovering that a lot of people think nothing is happening and that a lot of others are going some place every afternoon, evening and morning . . . Finding, also, that there are many pretty back yards that are far from telephones and that more than one family is spending considerable time outside . . .

Dawdle with the idea of devoting a paragraph or two to admonishing parents about their attitude to youngsters who are passing over "fool's hill" but decide that would be immediately voted down by the majority of people who believe you have got to have a family to know how to rear one . . . Congratulations might go, however, to that group of women who formed the mother and daughter club in an honest effort to help their adolescent girls and boys enjoy a wholesome companionship . . .

Read some Sunday comics and then vote sympathies to men who have to think up something funny to illustrate every day and then have to do the drawing as well . . . Some days they must feel anything except humor hovering around . . . Guess we all are pretty brave contracting to do some particular thing consistently day after day and year after year—preachers agreeing to deliver sermons, salesmen promising to sell and all the rest . . .

Look over some other papers and find Mrs. Walter Ferguson writing an article on men's rights, listing them at the request of some of her readers who believe that she too frequently champions the rights of women, neglecting the masculine side. Her list is very definite, telling what man may do and when, such as the night out for poker, the right to choose his own wife, the right to a room of his own, a vacation away from the family and other such privileges . . . Probably a good list but, disagreeing with her, it seems that while every one is actually born with rights, individuals and families must decide on modifications. The husband and father may have a right to a room of his own and a vacation away from the family, but so does every other member of the family. Actually, not very many people are able to afford these things . . .

Most of the people who write and talk about family relations and the rights of men and women, turning out such high-sounding lists, know little about the conditions existing in the average home where rights must be adjusted to a salary only large enough to provide necessities. Most of our etiquette books, too, aren't written for the family living on a year's income running under $2,000—although that catches most of the people in the country. These women who write so briskly of privileges for unmarried women and of what one can or does not do might be considerably surprised at how well a lot of us have managed to get along.

There are a lot of codes of etiquette and unwritten lists of rights that are proving entirely satisfactory even though they contradict other lists and the ideas of some of these experts with every item. Rules of conduct are easy to make but hard to apply.

Mrs. Loyd Bennett and Miss Ruth Henry of Pampa have been visiting their sister, Mrs. W. H. Logan, and Mr. Logan for a week.

Man Trades His Chances Of Liberty For Girl's Freedom

HOUSTON, July 8. (AP)—Charlie Ford, 45-year-old ex-plasterer, this afternoon traded his chance for liberty in order to free his 16-year-old daughter from the city jail.

The two were arrested while picnicking on the east beach at Galveston yesterday.

Ford promised police to help them "work up" their cases of hold-ups against him if they would release the girl. They agreed. Six charges of robbery by firearms were filed against Ford.

Just my luck... no hot water!

THAT old-fashioned water heating system of yours is just full of spiteful tricks like this one. If you have plenty of time on your hands, chances are the water will be as hot as you please. But if you're pressed for time—more than likely the water will be stone cold. These water heating systems are never any better than your memory. And even then the fire goes out sometimes for no good reason at all.

But luck plays no part after you install a Self-Action Gas Water Heater. For a few pennies a day per person you'll have an endless reserve of good ol' Hot Water . . . for baths! . . . shaves! . . . the dishes! . . . everything! The tank requires no attention whatever and it's thoroughly insulated to economize on heat.

Secrecy Shrouds!

What's it all about?

Hints of a deep, dark mystery, overalls, dirty shirts, stealthy footpads, and this'n that, all shrouded in secrecy. That's all this reporter could get when he questioned various Country club members for news yesterday.

That and a threat of cold-blooded manslaughter if the reporter told who told him. Manslaughter and mayhem, not to speak of tar-and-feathering if the reporter let it out. Let what out?

Try and find out!

Kiwanis Athletic Club To Meet Again Monday At 2:30

Less than a dozen youngsters were on hand yesterday at the first meeting of the Kiwanis Athletic club for boys of Lubbock between the ages of 9 and 15 years.

So Director Del Morgan will try again.

All local boys between the specified ages who like to swim, play ball, run and jump; who like to see college football and basketball games, free, are invited to meet at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at Fair Park. It's all free. Free swimming lessons will be given. Bats and balls will be furnished. And to those boys who join the club and remain with it throughout the summer and who attend the meetings regularly will be given free passes to college football and basketball games played here next fall, Morgan announced.

Look Quickly

Take a good look, for here is perhaps the clearest view you'll ever get of this young man. He is Emmett Toppino, busy young sprinter from New Orleans and Loyola university, who has been engaged of late in tying and cracking world dash records. On the running track, Toppino presents a blurred picture of flying arms and legs. And does he get over the ground!

GOLF

by ART KRENZ

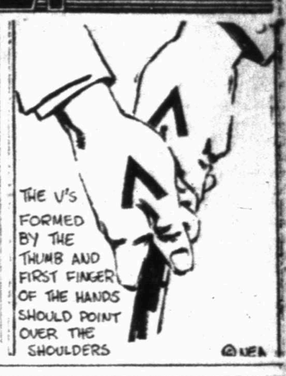

Harry Vardon once explained the proper grip in this manner: Place the hands on the shaft so that the first finger of the hands point over the respective shoulders. This will place both hands over the shaft.

When the club is gripped in this manner, the left hand will help keep the left arm straight by slightly increasing the tension in the left elbow.

With the right in its proper place, it will be found easier to hit past the left hand at impact of clubhead and ball.

This style is used by such stars as Jones, Smith and Armour.

Charivari is a French term used to designate a wild tumult and uproar.

FIFTY YEARS ago, had two women, whose ages top the half-century mark, gone about Texas stumping in gubernatorial campaigns, citizens would have been surprised, indeed.

Further than that, the hardy gents who peopled this then wide frontier would more than likely have "voted agin' any candidate who had to hide behind a woman's petticoats to get into public office!"

But today we find things changed in this respect.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, who has filled the governor's chair in name at least, is traveling from stump to stump and is talking in her own behalf as she seeks another term.

Mrs. Ross Sterling, wife of the present governor, has served notice on Mrs. Ferguson that she, too, is stump-wise. At Brady the other day several thousand people had gathered to hear her husband speak and grew restless when the governor failed to appear on schedule time. Mrs. Sterling mounted the platform, made a speech including campaign facts, and held the crowd until her husband arrived.

We cannot refrain from doffing a ready sombrero to the perfect readjustment made by housewives such as Mesdames Sterling and Ferguson. Neither is naturally a politician. Both are essentially of the home-making type.

Yet neither shuns the responsibilities which marriage to their respective husbands has brought them and they deserve credit for being able to hold up their corner.

POLITICS IN MEXICO

It would appear that politics in Mexico is quite as precarious as politics in United States—at least from a standpoint of popularity. Overthrow of Col. Roberto Fierro, governor of our neighboring state of Chihuahua, proves the point.

It has only been something like nine months since Fierro, a national hero in Mexico and ace of the army's air corps, was swept into the office as governor of his state. As he went in on the heels of Andres Ortiz, who was unceremoniously booted from power, so Eduardo Salido, a state representative, followed Fierro—a new broom that politicians look to to sweep clean.

Colonel Fierro, young, aggressive and able, had a wonderful opportunity to make a name for himself as a public executive when he assumed his office. Had he been able to "get the job done" there is little doubt that some day he could rise to the presidency of his country.

But Colonel Fierro, it appears, could not make a three-point landing in politics and now he's out.

Politics, it would appear, is a precarious game everywhere.

CANDIDATE KNOWN HERE

While William D. Upshaw, of Georgia, is not expected to carry any South Plains counties as nominee for President on the Prohibition party ticket, he has the distinction of being the only Presidential nominee personally known in Lubbock.

As an Anti-Saloon league lecturer, Mr. Upshaw, a former Congressman, has visited here several times and is well acquainted with Baptist leaders in this locality.

The last time he was here, something like a year ago, he spoke against the liquor traffic from the pulpit of the First Baptist church.

ROAD TO SUCCESS

In the attainment of solid, well-founded success there has never been found a substitute for honest labor with the hands or mind. The ages have recognized this as an immutable truism, yet every age, including the present, has had its skeptics, its unbelievers, its seekers after fame and fortune without paying the price in work.

Some sage has said that to attain success use half as much effort as you would exert in attempting to seek success without work. There is much wisdom in the axiom that it takes less mental effort to climb to legitimate success than to climb to an illegitimate success. Legitimate achievement requires no fortifications, no protection. Illegitimate achievement demands more in its retainment than in its attainment.

It is a gross injustice to humanity to say that if there is any one thing, more than another, that enlists very much of the attention, time and effort of the people it is in scheming and planning to get something of value for nothing. The number of society's parasites is large but the number of honest, hard-working supporting pillars of society is preponderously larger.

All hair tonic raises is hopes.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry: for anger resteth in the bosom of fools.—Ecclesiastes vii, 9.

That Long, Long Session

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the third of a series of articles being written expressly for The Avalanche by Dr. W. A. Jackson, head of the department of government at Texas Tech.)

FINAL STAGES

The third session of the convention, after listening to Will Rogers, adjourned.

The fourth session was called at 8 p. m. Chairman Walsh immediately called for the report of the Platform Committee. The reading was uneventful until Chairman Hitchcock reached the repeal plank whereupon there was a demonstration and parade which lasted for fifteen minutes. Some five or six delegations did not participate. The Alabama Delegation had some private difficulties in their own ranks. A hot argument was started in the Texas Delegation over the instructions given by the State Convention. After the reading of the platform was completed, Cordell Hull of Tennessee submitted a minority report.

Debate Is Heard

A debate followed. The Texas Delegation retired to an anteroom for a stormy caucus at the close of which it was announced that the vote stood 46 to 52 in favor of the repeal plank. There was a lot of convention oratory before the vote was taken. The Texas delegate was scheduled to speak for the minority report but had to change his speech after the vote of the Texas Delegation. The news that Texas supported the majority report brought prolonged cheers. Both Smith and Ritchie, avowed candidates for the nomination, appeared on the floor during this debate.

Other minority reports were offered by Governor Murray of Oklahoma and William G. McAdoo of California. These included soldiers bonus and federal guarantee of bank deposits, among others. All failed to be incorporated. The only change that was made in the platform as reported by the committee was a plank calling for the protection of children. Of course, everybody wants to protect children but the Democrats had neglected to say as much. Since this plank was meaningless the delegates voted to incorporate it into the platform. After much debate the platform was adopted as amended with the single amendment referred to above. The roll call of states was then ordered, it being two o'clock in the afternoon.

Roosevelt Presented

Alabama yielded to New York, not to the New York Delegation but to an individual of the New York Delegation who presented the name of Roosevelt. The demonstration which followed lacked snap. It was more of a parade than a demonstration. However, it lasted for forty-five minutes. Arizona seconded Roosevelt. Arkansas yielded to a delegate from Connecticut who seconded Roosevelt's nomination.

California yielded to Texas. Tom Connally then presented the name of John N. Garner and a thirty minute demonstration followed.

Colorado passed.

Connecticut yielded to New York whereupon Al Smith's name was presented to the convention. A wild demonstration followed which lasted for more than an hour.

Delaware seconded Roosevelt. Florida did likewise. Whereupon the convention adjourned for a night session.

Night Session Called

The night session was called at 9:20. Georgia seconded Roosevelt.

Idaho yielded to Virginia. Senator Glass of Virginia presented the name of Ex-Governor Byrd. There was a demonstration of fifteen minutes duration.

Illinois presented the name of Melvin Traylor which was followed by another fifteen minute demonstration. The Illinois Delegation seconded both Traylor's nomination and Roosevelt's nomination.

Iowa seconded Al Smith's nomination from the floor. This apparently was without the consent of the chairman of the Iowa Delegation who sent another delegate to the platform who seconded Roosevelt's nomination. A third delegate from Iowa also seconded Smith's nomination.

Kansas seconded Roosevelt; Kentucky did likewise.

Speeches Aren't Cut

Louisiana yielded to North Carolina and the North Carolina delegate appealed to the Roosevelt delegations to cut their speeches short. Evidently this appeal had little effect. Most of the boys had speeches to make and they wanted the radio audience back home to hear them.

Maine seconded Roosevelt.

Maryland presented the name of Ritchie. A demonstration followed which began at midnight and ended at 12:45. Ritchie's nomination was seconded by Grover Cleveland, son of former President Cleveland.

Minnesota seconded Smith. Massachusetts was overlooked in calling the roll and when the Secretary backed up, Massachusetts yielded to Connecticut to second the nomination of Smith.

Mississippi passed.

No Parade For Reed

Missouri presented the name of Reed. There was no demonstration parade following the presentation of Reed's name. However, two Missouri delegates seconded his nomination.

Mississippi decided not to pass after all and seconded the nomination of Ritchie whereupon a second Mississippi delegate seconded the nomination of Roosevelt. All of these would be nominees were referred to as the next President of the United States.

Montana seconded Roosevelt; Nebraska passed. Nevada seconded Roosevelt. New Hampshire passed. New Jersey seconded Smith. New York seconded Smith. New Mexico, North Carolina, and North Dakota passed.

Ohio presented the name of Governor White. A lady delegate from Ohio also seconded White's nomination.

At this stage of the game a motion to adjourn was put by the chair but the motion lost.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE BUILDING MOVED BY 18 MEN:

On October 14, 1930, officials of the Indiana Bell Telephone Company and about 300 onlookers witnessed the start in the moving and turning of a 22,000,000 pound eight-story building in Indianapolis—a most unusual procedure for a structure of that size. It was moved a distance of 52 feet in one direction, and then given a 90-degree turn so it faced another street. And all this was accomplished without interrupting the phone, elevator, heat, water, or electric services, and the actual moving was done by only 18 men. These men operated the huge ratchet screw jacks working against the I-beams, rolling the building over a specially constructed platform of steel rails.

The building was permanently situated in its new location in about six weeks.

DEFEATED AND ELECTED AT THE SAME TIME:

When Jack Lawlor ran for election as a member of the Board of Freeholders of San Francisco in 1930 the returns in the office of the Registrar of Viters showed that on the unofficial count he was defeated, the vote being 30,308, but the official count elected him by a vote of 30,260—48 less than the count on which he was tentatively defeated.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

By Lenna Lou Brookman

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, 19 and pretty, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter whom her wealthy, aristocratic parents have forbidden her to see. When Cherry learns Dan's telephone messages have been kept from her she steals out of the house to meet him. Her father discovers this and threatens to send her to California. Cherry defies him and he orders her to leave.

She goes to Dan, tells him what has happened and asks him to marry her. The ceremony is performed that night by a justice of peace.

Cherry looks for an apartment but is discouraged to find them so expensive. Dan works late one night on a tip that TONY TOSCALLI, gangland chief, is coming to Wellington. Cherry unconsciously gives this news tip to a reporter on the rival newspaper. The other paper gets the story and Dan's boss threatens, "One more slip and you're fired."

DIXIE SHANNON, movie critic, helps Cherry find an inexpensive apartment. Dan and Cherry move from the hotel. Cherry, loaded with groceries on her first marketing expedition, meets MAX PEARSON, handsome friend of Dan's.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

Cherry let Pearson relieve her of the heavy packages. She stepped into the roadster, settling herself with a sigh. "This is awfully kind of you," she said.

Her shoulders ached painfully and she was beginning to realize how tired she was.

"Not at all! Not at all. What in the world have you been doing? Buying out a grocery store?"

She told him about the apartment. "We're going to have our first dinner there tonight. It will be the first meal I've ever cooked. I'm only beginning to learn about housework—"

Pearson said he was sure the dinner would be a success. Suddenly with a rush of confidence Cherry found herself telling hi mall about her trials of the morning. Max Pearson wasn't hard to talk to or frightening though he had read all those books and knew so much. He seemed really interested in the things she was saying.

"That's where we're living." She pointed out the building a few doors ahead. "There on the right. You must come to see us soon. If I weren't such an amateur at cooking I'd ask you to dinner—"

"That's a promise I'm going to hold you to. I'd like very much to come."

Pearson's dark eyes flashed in a smile. Cherry thought he seemed utterly sincere and was touched. She was grateful a moment later when he insisted on carrying the packages up the stairs for her.

The second floor hallway was dark. Cherry found the latch, turned her key in it and the door opened.

"The place is a sight," she apologized. "I haven't had time to half finish and things are thrown every way."

Pearson stowed the sacks of groceries on a chair. He stood in the middle of the room, hands in his pockets, and looked about. "It's homelike," he said. "I believe you've actually begun to make this room look like yourself. Yes, it's very attractive."

He swung about, facing the girl. "You have personality," Pearson said. "Did you know that? Of course you're beautiful but it's personality that makes you different from everyone else. That's why I like you. Few people have it, you know. They're like so many dry sticks or stones. You're real—yourself. And you're lovely and exciting and—well, I hope we're going to be friends."

Cherry said, "Why, of course. Dan thinks so much of you. He'll want you to come to see us often."

"And you and I will be friends?"

The girl's cheeks were tinged with pink. "I hope so," she said.

Almost immediately, rather abruptly Pearson departed. Cherry was a little puzzled by his manner. He really did seem rather unusual. But he had been friendly and she never could have managed all those packages alone.

There was no time to think more about Max Pearson. Cherry put away her coat and hat and set to work preparing dinner. She got out the cook book and hunted for instructions for cooking beefsteak. When she had found the place she propped the book open, then decided it was a little early to put the steak on the fire. She unwrapped the other packages. They seemed to fill every available bit of space in the kitchen.

She had bought fresh peas because the grocer had suggested them. They were in a huge sack—two pounds. Cherry dumped the peas on a newspaper because there was no pan large enough to hold them. Armed with a paring knife she sat down to remove the pods. She did this laboriously, cutting off the ends of each pod and removing the peas one by one.

The sunlight had disappeared by the time she had finished and long shadows darkened the room. Cherry straightened her shoulders. Oh, how they ached! Her feet were smarting. All day she had been wearing the only sort of shoes she owned—tiny, soled kid pumps with Louis XVI heels. They were not the sort of shoes to wear tramping up and down stairs and working about a kitchen.

She turned back to the cook book to find out how to prepare the potatoes. There were a dozen recipes—potatoes julienne, potatoes au gratin, potato souffle. Cherry read them all and decided the easiest way would be to bake them. She tried to light the oven and wasted half a dozen matches before she succeeded. The potatoes looked rather grimy. Cherry scrubbed them, thrust them into the oven and shut the door.

It was almost 5 o'clock and Dan would be there any time now. The dinner was far from ready. Cherry, flushed and nervous, bustled about. She put the peas on to cook, in a pan almost filled with water, dumping in a cup of salt. The steak went on next. She did not know that the skillet should be smoking hot and greased with fat before the meat went in.

In a flurry of anxiety she left the kitchen and began to set the table. There was no table cloth. The dishes had to go on the bare table top and this was a disappointment to Cherry who had visioned a table with flawless linen, shimmering crystal and silver—the sort of dinner table to which she had always sat down in her own home. There should have been candles glowing softly and a bowl of flowers.

The odor of burning beef steak suddenly recalled her to the kitchen. Oh, dear, something was wrong!

She caught the iron skillet handle to take it from the flame, then cried out in agony. Her whole hand was scorched. The pain was terrific and tears filled her eyes so that she could scarcely see. Something must be done about the meat! It was burning and the smoke and fumes became worse every moment. Cherry did the only thing she could think of. Groping, half-blided, she drew a cup of water from the tap and poured it into the skillet. There was an enormous sputtering sound and clouds of steam.

The girl turned on the water tap and held her injured hand under it. How good the cold water felt! The minute she took her hand away the stinging began again.

An unfamiliar sizzling sound caused her to turn back to the stove. The water covering the peas had boiled up and was dripping over one side of the pan.

Cherry choked back an exclamation and pushed the pan from the blaze. That would not do, though. The peas would never cook unless they were over the fire. Perhaps they were done. She fished out one and tasted it. Horrible!

Cautiously Cherry dipped off some of the liquid, placed the dish over the blaze and turned it lower. Her burned hand was still painful but she could not spend more time holding it under the water.

Who would have imagined that cooking could be so difficult! Everything was wrong and everything was to be done at once. She had not even started with the celery. There were the strawberris to be washed and hulled. The rolls — horrors, what had she done with them?

Moaning involuntarily because her hand was so painful, Cherry began searching for the rolls. It was no use. She must have forgotten to buy them.

Forgetful of steam and smoke and the mingled odors of burned beefsteak and vegetables, Cherry sank into a chair. The rolls — the one thing they might have eaten without cooking—were not there.

Dan was comforting when he arrived and viewed the ruined supper. He made Cherry sit in a big chair with her hand wrapped in an oiled bandage. Then he made a trip to the neighboring delicatessen and returned with rolls and some packages of breakfast food. Dan was persistantly cheerful and finally won Cherry from her dark mood.

"Of course you can't learn it all in one night," he told her. "Nobody could. You're going to be one of the best cooks in Wellington one of these days. And right now you're the prettiest!"

"But I'm no cook at all. I spoiled everything I bought and it cost such a lot! Oh, Dan, I'm not the right wife for you at all. I don't know how to do anything—"

He answered convincingly and shortly. They finally ate a meal consisting of bowls of breakfast food heaped with strawberries and covered with cream, celery, cups of steaming strong coffee and cheese.

Afterward they washed the dishes and put them away. It was too late and they were too tired to plan anything else for the evening.

Cherry did not even remember to tell Dan about her meeting with Max Pearson.

The week that followed was the busiest, the most exhausting and the most disappointing Cherry Phillips had ever known. She had much to learn and to unlearn. She found that trying to prepare the sort of meals she would have ordered in a hotel dining room was a mistake. Simple food and simple recipes were best with the limited facilities of the tiny kitchen.

There were mornings when the milk was sour for breakfast because Cherry had forgotten to order ice. There were evenings when the chops were like rubber, the potatoes underdone and the dessert hopeless. The day Cherry undertook to bake a lemon pie was an experience that eventually was to seem amusing but, when it happened, was burning torture.

A bright spot in the week was the visit Sarah O'Fallon paid the apartment. For one thing, Sarah insisted on taking off her coat and stirring up a batch of muffins. She showed Cherry exactly how to do it. Sarah had practical suggestions galore and all of them proved helpful.

Cherry's housekeeping improved. They had been in the apartment 10 days when Dan suggested casually "Mind if I ask Max to come out tomorrow evening?"

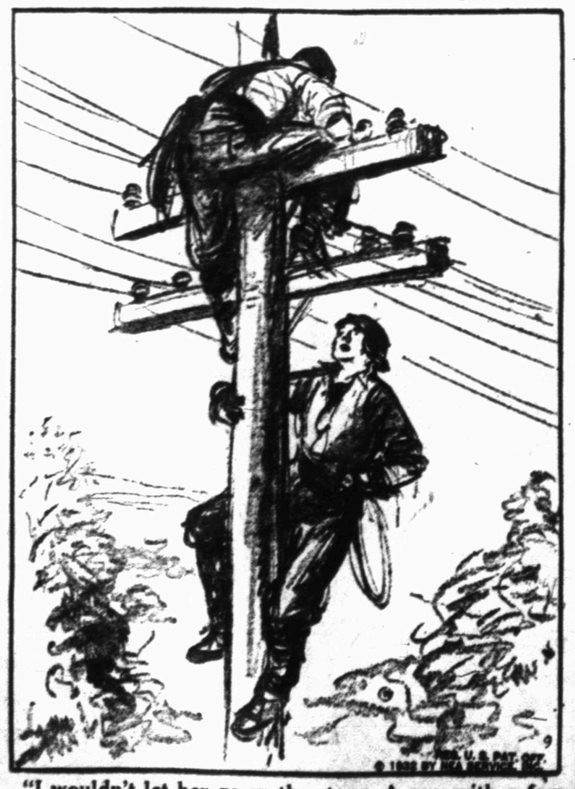

Cherry said, "Of course not. Ask him for dinner."

It was Max who called next day to say the invitation had been eagerly accepted. It was a rainy, dismal morning. Cherry, looking out the window, was pleased at the thought of seeing Pearson again.

She did not dream that so long as she lived she was never to forget that night.

Lorenzo Man Urges Support Of Democratic Party

Editor, Avalanche: For the first time in over 20 years, it appears that the Democratic party is afforded its greatest opportunity to obtain an administration. This coveted prize will not be won easily, nor will it be won unless all factions pull together—minor party issues, partitions and vacillations could easily wreck the ship that is ploughing the waves at full steam ahead.

Only a few days after nominations, dissensions are appearing on the Democratic political horizon. The extremely dry faction, sponsored by the noble ladies of the land, the clergyman, and others of that ilk who fear that if their own party is in power that there will be a saloon in every one of our present vacant buildings, are greatly perturbed by the anti-prohibition movement of their party. It does not seem that there is cause for great alarm. The Democrats only favor some policy that would displace the "noble experiment" of prohibition. This latter has been more expense to the government, caused more lives to be lost, and has been the greatest source of agitation of recent movement of the federal government. Why should not something be done about this cause of discontent? It seems that the amendment should be repealed, or at least modified.

In England and Canada, two countries with no such laws, there is less drunkenness than in two of our large cities. Lessening the incentive, alleviates much of the desire to use to excess intoxicating liquors.

Then, too, there would be riddance of all types of traffickers in liquor. Since there would be no reason for their existence, they would have to seek sustenance from other sources. Many types of crime, and crime-breeding opportunities would thus be curtailed.

Also, there is the matter of party loyalty. Many of the present "dissenters" were the bolters of four years ago. What could be the meaning of PARTY to people who regard it in such manner? Should one act as a weather-vane in a whirlwind? All should be of a common mind and work together to be in a position to turn back the disastrous condition that has permeated the country.

Under no conditions should a Republican administration be aided and solicited. Tariff barriers of foreign nations, less circulation of the national currency, waste in all forms of government and general incompetence, can all be laid to the short-comings of the party now in power. Should there be a repetition of the confusion, and financial stringency of the past few years? Never, when there are more rational policies to pursue.

All these things, it seems, which would promote the general welfare of the country could be pursued without turning contrary to the Democratic party. Anyone could sponsor them without sacrificing himself on the "party above principle" altar.

R. L. Boyd,
Lorenzo, Texas.

SHOT TO DEATH

PALESTINE, July 8, (AP) — Mrs. Ethel Mae Gibson, 24, was accidentally shot to death at her Palestine home yesterday when a shotgun with which her six-year-old son was playing discharged.

"B. C." Relieves Your Headache In 3 Minutes

Realizing that no one drug can relieve all headaches, as they come from so many causes, a North Carolina pharmacist has developed a combination of several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to relieve almost any headache in a few minutes. You can get this formula wherever drugs are sold under the name "B. C.," 10c and 25c packages, and when you have one of those violent nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, "B. C." will give you soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia, reducing fever, and for quiting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. GO TO CHURCH SOMEWHERE SUNDAY

LET'S KEEP UP THE ATTENDANCE DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS

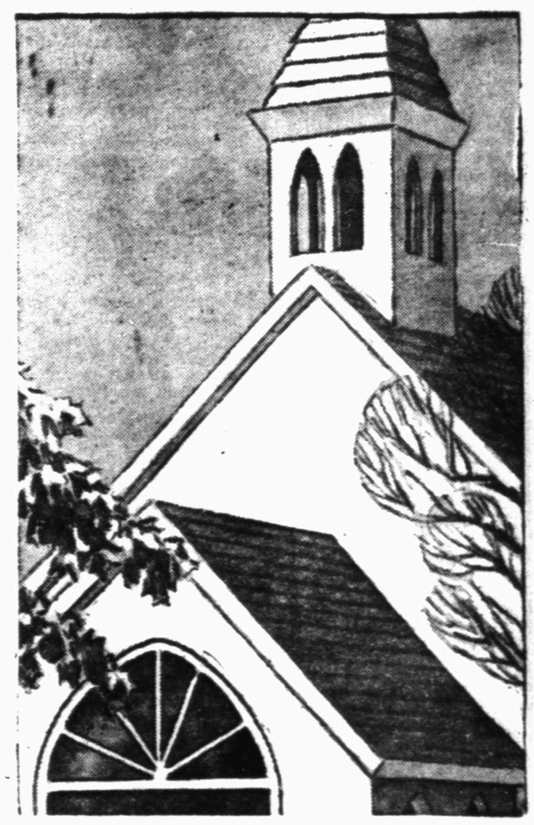

Roger W. Babson Says:

"The thought of curtailing church activities today and especially curtailing gifts to churches seems preposterous. Whatever else we curtail upon, let it not be our support of churches, charities, and other welfare work."

"Church leaders have the same responsibility during a business depression that doctors have during a rage of physical sickness. Faith, courage, wisdom, honesty, and self-control are spiritual qualities, not matters of production, consumption, prices, interest rates, etc. I would even go so far as to propose that the administration of funds for public works and public relief be placed under the charge of churches."

"The people are disillusioned and know not where to turn. They are sheep without a shepherd. It is up to the religious leaders to see that they are helped instead of sheared. What this world needs is a great religious revival."

"I appeal to all readers to support the churches more than ever during this period by attendance, by contributions, and by good works and deeds."

Romans 12:11 "Maintain the spiritual glow" (Moffatt)

Sermon by Rev. J. O. Haymes, pastor of First Methodist church.

J. O. Haymes

This is Dr. James Moffatt's translation of the expression, "fervent in spirit."

It is a rather large order for a day of material emphasis such as today. But I am wondering if it is not one of the most important things we can do, maintain the spiritual glow.

When the Children of Israel were wandering in the wilderness, the altar of the Tabernacle was ever aglow with the fire that came down from heaven. God had commanded, "The fire shall ever be burning on the altar; it shall never go out." That fire became symbolical of the fire of devotion in the Christian heart, the spiritual glow.

I am going to agree with you that it is no easy matter to maintain the spiritual glow in these difficult time. I am thinking of my farmer friends, those proverbial "horny-handed sons of the soil," who follow their mules up and down the cotton row underneath the scorching July sun, who endure the perils of wash-out or blow-out or burn-out, and who, when they have made a crop, sell it for scarcely more than it cost to produce it. I am thinking of how difficult it is for those men, amid their strain and disappointment, to maintain the spiritual glow.

And I am thinking of the business and professional man, who is under a tremendous strain today, who, however hard he may push his business, has a constant worry as to how to meet his obligations, and who is subjected to perpetual temptations to surrender his ideals in order that he may survive materially. I am thinking that it is not easy for that man to maintain the spiritual glow.

Again, I am thinking of the good women in our homes, who amid the drudgery of domestic duties in trying to meet the hourly demands of growing children, and who sometimes have their tasks made more difficult by unsympathetic and domineering husbands. It certainly is difficult for one thus ground beneath the weight of domestic burdens to maintain the spiritual glow.

And especially am I thinking of the man out of employment. Many a man in the past few months has had to appeal to his friends for help who has often declared that he would die before he would ask for charity. And he would, but he will suffer any sort of humiliation before he will see his family suffer for life's necessities. I am thinking of how very, very hard it is for that man to maintain the spiritual glow.

And yet again, I am thinking of our young people. Many of them started out in their early or middle adolescence as devoted, enthusiastic Christians. They observed faithfully the morning watch or the quiet hour. They gave promise that they were going to develop into ardent, fervent Christians. But the pull and demands of social life have them perplexed. Often the pursuit of their college studies has tended to disillusion them. Sometimes the fundamental verities of life to which they used to respond with a hearty "Amen!" They now meet with a sophisticated look, or possibly a cynical "Oh yeah!" I am not unmindful of how hard it is for our young people to maintain the spiritual glow.

But I am wonderng if it has ever been easy to maintain that glow. You may be saying, "If I had only lived during the days when Jesus walked in the flesh; if I had had the glorious privilege of coming into contact with His warm, throbbing heart, then it would have been easy for me ever after to walk in the warmth and glow of that blessed fellowship." But I remember that Jesus once said to Peter, his most intimate disciple, after two or three years of such association, "Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat; but I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not." Many a man is being severely sifted today.

And then, let us think for a moment of the people to whom Paul wrote the words of the text. Many are saying today, "Isn't it difficult to maintain a lively faith in a good God when so many of His children are suffering?" Maybe it is. But what of the people to whom Paul was writing? We have brought a large portion of our suffering upon ourselves. We, in our comparatively easy protected times can scarcely imagine the price the Christians of that first century paid for their faith in Christ. They were sneered at, persecuted, beaten, cast into dungeons, and often thrown into the arena at the Colliseum, as a prey to the lions, for the amusement of the holiday crowds, and for no other reason except that they were Christians. Could they maintain their faith in a good God? Well, they did. And through nineteen hundred years.

Then, there is the example of our English forefathers, who gave their lives for their faith. Take only the case of Hugh Latimer and Nicholas Ridley. They came to the stake with their hearts aglow with spiritual zeal. When Latimer had kissed the stake to which he was being tied, he said, "Be of good comfort, Master Ridley, and play the man. We shall this day light such a candle, by God's grace, in England, as I trust shall never be put out." And it never has been put out. Those two martyrs kindled in England a revival whose fires swept the nation.

There is a special need today for those who claim to be Christians to maintain the spiritual glow. This for two reasons:

First, it is necessary in order that we might have a light to guide us through experiences where we could not otherwise see the way. Sometimes the last light about us seems to have gone out, and if there is no inner light, if no glow left on the soul, then the darkness is all but unbearable. Jesus said He came that we might have more abundant life. And He showed us how to live that abundant life. But He proved every day of His life that such abundance of life did not depend upon material opulence, physical ease or temporal security. He lacked all these, yet His spiritual zeal was maintained at white heat. His life was centered in the Eternal God; so, regardless of outward circumstance He always maintained the spiritual glow. So may we.

The other reason why it is so necessary today for us to maintain the spiritual glow is in order that we may be able to help our friends. Many are losing their courage. Certainly, these are difficult times, but I do not believe that the circumstances justify the many suicides that are constantly occurring. But when our friends are in real trouble, where are they going to look for help if not to the followers of Christ? Our great leader not only commanded us to walk in the light, but said that we should be the light of the world. How can we do that if we do not in our own hearts maintain the spiritual glow?

One other question which you are no doubt wanting to ask: How may we maintain the spiritual glow? Of course, that is the most difficult part of our thesis. About the only way I would presume to answer the question would be to ask you to inquire with me as to how those who have maintained the glow have been able to do so, Jesus, and Paul, and their followers of all the centuries. I think that even a casual knowledge of their experiences and motives will reveal about three things about them.

First, they put the emphasis in life upon the things that last. Temporal things had their place in their lives, but that places was incidental. They did not measure success in life by the number of things they were able to accumulate. They believed with all their hearts that the realities that would abide were the great spiritual realities, such as faith, and hope, and love.

Then, they realized that a self-centered life would dwindle, and its light would go out. They lived not for themselves, but to make life worthwhile for others. Jesus was speaking of spiritual development when He said that if any man would be great he should be the servant of all. And He never allowed the light of His soul to be dimmed by selfishness.

And again, they took time to keep in touch with the great Source of Light. Meditation, prayer, and devotional reading are all exercises that take time. We live in too big a hurry. During our prosperous days we fell into such a habit of being busy that it is difficult to break the habit. Now we are very busy even when we haven't anything to do. If our Lord and Master felt the need of spending hours to keep in touch with His Father, how can we expect to maintain any spiritual glow when we give so little attention to private devotions. Somewhere I read of an artist who took a friend to see a fine painting. But before he took him to the studio he left him in a dark room for some fifteen minutes. His reason for doing that was that he knew that if his friend came into the studio with the glare of the street on his eyes he could not appreciate the fine colorings of the picture. One of our great needs today is that we shall linger in our private devotions until the glare of the street shall wear off our eyes. Thereby we shall be able to maintain the spiritual glow.

Who'd Think It? Art And Politics Go Hand In Hand In Campaign Trip As Hawkins Seeks Congress Place

Art usually has little to do with politics but in at least one case in Texas this year an art shop proprietress is having a lot to do.

The case in point is the candidacy of W. H. Hawkins, of Stephenville, out for Congressman-at-Large, Place 2.

The art shop proprietress is his daughter, Mrs. Harry de Grummond, Temple, who has "driven Dad more than 2,000 miles already" and is still going strong.

Ex-Newspaper Editor

Mr. Hawkins, publisher of a Stephenville newspaper for nearly 40 years but who sold his publication two years ago, was here with his daughter late yesterday. They visited with Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Smith, 2208 16th street, and other friends while in Lubbock and left here for Plainview and Amarillo.

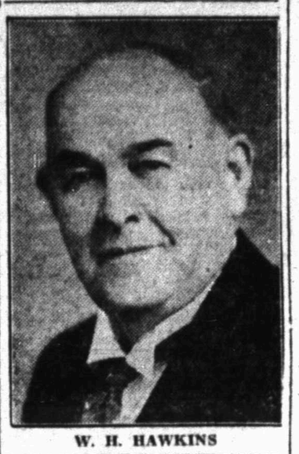

Favoring drastic reduction in federal payrolls at Washington, opposed to further cancellation of war debts and a personal 'dry', Mr. Hawkins has erected for his campaign a platform largely based on improvement of farm conditions. If elected, he promises to "vote against any and every measure which, in my judgment, would be hurtful to the farmers and support every measure which will help them."

Against Farm Board

The candidate is in opposition to the Federal Farm board and to governmental interference in private business. He also opposes tariffs which prevent other nations from buying much that is produced in this country.

Although a person 'dry', Mr. Hawkins says he will vote on prohibition questions as the majority of the people of Texas direct.

If elected, he stands ready to vote to cut the salaries of Congressmen from $10,000 to $7,500 per year to start the period of readjustment in the capital."

W. H. HAWKINS

Lindsey And Armstrong Are Fined In Court On Friday

Judge E. L. Pitts Friday fined C. C. Lindsey, local theater manager and Clifton Armstrong, charged with aggravated assault and battery, $100 and $75, respectively. Both had pleaded guilty.

Olin (Speck) Marquart, who authorities said had made statements which led to a burglary charge in connection with the $1,169 robbery of a safe in the Palace theater building late in January allegedly beaten and made to sign a paper by the two men. Armstrong was no billed by a grand jury.

Grand Master Of Masons In Texas To Speak Saturday

LITTLEFIELD, July 8—(Special)—Judge Alva Bryan, Waco, grand master of Texas Masons, will address a group of South Plains Masons here Saturday during a district conference.

Judge Bryan was to appear in Amarillo Friday. A large number of residents of the South Plains section is expected to attend the meeting here.

Rental Library Will Be Opened

So that Lubbock readers can have the latest fiction without buying it outright, the Lubbock county library in the courthouse will open a rental department Monday, Rutilia Eubank Branch, county librarian, has announced. About 60 books will be put on the rental shelves to begin what the librarian indicated would be an experiment.

A charge of 3 cents a day or part of a day has been set tentatively as that to be made for the books. If the library buys new books of fiction, costing from $2 to $3.50 each, too large a part of the book funds is expended for new volumes, Mrs. Branch explained. Reprints can be obtained in two years for $1 each.

The seven-day shelf of free books will be discontinued with establishment of the rental department. The books on the rent-shelves will remain there until fees paid by readers pay for them, and they then will be placed on the free list, the librarian said.

An attempt to buy most of the new titles virtually as soon as they are ready for distribution will be made, if the rental division proves practical, Mrs. Branch added.

Arthur P. Duggan Installed As Littlefield Rotary Head

LITTLEFIELD, July 8. (Special) Arthur P. Duggan Thursday was installed as president of the Littlefield Rotary club, B. M. Harrison became vice-president, and J. S. Hilliard, secretary-treasurer.

The club voted immediately to extend an invitation to Clinton P. Anderson, Albuquerque, N. M., president of Rotary International, to visit Littlefield during an inter-city meeting.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: THE CALL OF MOSES

Scripture Lesson: Exodus 3:10-15; 4-10-12

Lesson For Sunday, July 10, 1932

International Sunday school lesson for July 10

11 And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

12. And he said, Certainly I will be with thee, and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

13. And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you, and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them?

14. And God said unto Moses, I am that I am: and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I am hath sent me unto you.

15. And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you: this is my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations.

4:10. And Moses said unto the Lord, O my Lord, I am not eloquent, neither heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant: but I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.

11. And the Lord said unto him, Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind, have not I, the Lord?

12. Now therefore go, and I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou shalt say.

Golden Text: Certainly I will be with thee.—Exod. 3:12

Introduction

Great tasks undertaken develop our higher abilities. Moses was too great a personality to be tending sheep in Midian. That was an occupation which laid little tax upon his powers. There was nothing in his work which would have made of him a great orator, organizer and leader. His heavy responsibility in Egypt and the desert brought out his latent capacities. We have no right to carry jobs in this world. A man who is content with a little job will always be a little man. The best education is always to have on our hands undertakings that are little too much for us. The wise pastor will lead his young people under responsibilities which appear to them to be beyond their abilities.

Any opportunity to be helpful to the call of God to us. General William Booth went into the London slums to help degraded people. David Livingston went into African jungles with his medical service and his sympathetic heart. Charles Dickens wrote the story of the hopeless inmates of debtor prison. Who can doubt that these men were called of God to the great work they did? When we show kindness we are serving God.

The Character Of Moses

To begin with, Moses was humble. He was unaware of his essential greatness and therefore distrustful of his own power. When the opportunity came to do a thing that would for all time immortalize his name in the earth he shrank from it. A true modesty is almost invariably a trait in every great personality. A shallow personality is likely to feel himself capable of any great enterprise because he thinks himself greater than he is but the really masterful person is above conceit.

Moses Was a Man Of Sympathy

He could not help remembering them that were bound as bound with them. The woes of the Hebrew slaves were his woes also. A weaker man would have clung to his great good fortune as the adopted son of Pharaoh's daughter. But this Moses could not do, being the kind of man he was. When he saw one of the Hebrews being cruelly beaten he could not withhold his hand even though his act caused him to forfeit all the honors and privileges of his place in the king's household. The word sympathy means suffering with another. Its opposite is selfishness, and no selfish man was ever yet a great man.

Moses Was a Man Of Faith Heb. 11:24-28

By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter. Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." Faith is the ability to make substantial the things hoped for, real the things not seen. This power Moses had in high degree. His faith was in the God of his people, not in the pagan deities of Egypt. All great achievement is the result of faith. What we have and what we are able to see at any one time may not be enough to encourage us to heroic effort, but when we see the substantial reality of what we hope it calls out our enthusiasm and best efforts. There were many times in the life of Moses when he well might have become discouraged, but ever before him went the pillar and the cloud to symbolize the presence of God upon whom he depended for the success of the great enterprise. A discouraged man is a weak man. To become hopeless concerning the class we teach, or the church, or the kingdom of heaven, is to show lack of faith in God and to strip us of our power.

Moses' Vast Abilities

Moses is one of the most colossal human beings in history. As is the way with truly great men, the vast abilities which resided within him were all unsuspected by himself. There are capabilities in many people to whom this lesson will be taught which are unknown to themselves. Paul admonished Timothy to stir up the gift that was in him. Many of us would do well to take that advice ourselves. When the crisis comes, men often meet it with resources which no one, least of all themselves, dreamed were there. Take the ability of Moses as an orator. This, he supposed, was his weakest point. When God called him he made the excuse that he was not eloquent, that he was without the power of effective utterance. He was given his brother Aaron to make his speeches for him. We have no record of any great speeches made by Aaron, but in the Book of Deuteronomy are recorded some of the addresses of Moses which are literally masterpieces of oratory. Prof. Richard Green Moulton gave an address on, "The Oratory of the Bible" in which he said that he had compared the oration of Demosthenes "On the Crown" and that of Daniel Webster in reply to Hayne with the orations of Moses recorded in Deuteronomy, measuring them by the criteria of effective public address, and found that Moses excelled both of these giants of eloquence.

Stewardship Of Ability

There is a stewardship of ability. To whom much is given, from him is much required. The fact that we possess any talent or power which humanity needs is a call of God. Paul declared that he was debtor both to Greeks and the barbarians, both to the wise and the unwise, and thus proclaimed the truth of ability's debt to the world. The poor widow in the temple gave more than all the rich people because she two mites were all. Two miles from a wealthy man would be an insult to his manhood and an offense to God. One of the loveliest eulogies ever given a human being was our Lord's, "She hath done what she could." Not all of us have the same talents. We are under no obligation to do what we have been given no ability to do, but we are obligated to use the abilities that are ours in service to mankind. Our capacities are the gift of God, and we owe them all to him. We give them to God by giving them to the people who need them. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Special Lessons

1. Moses failed at first, because he tried to proceed in his own strength. He succeeded when he leaned on God. He killed an Egyptian overseer, which revealed his indignation at injustice, but also revealed premature aspirations for leadership. He needed solitude and seasoning, and he gets both in the land of Midian whither he fled. God gets the deliverer ready for the deliverance—and he must be allowed to do it in his own way.

2. "Genesis gives to us a family of seventy going into Egypt. Exodus, a nation of two millions coming out of Egypt with a well-drilled army, a proper organization, a monotheistic worship, an established priesthood, and a code of laws. Nobody can explain that without explaining Moses. "Whether as a man of God, or as a poetic sage, or as a sacred historian, or as an inspired prophet, or a profound and original legislator, Moses alike stands out as a wonderful man, not to the eyes of the Jews merely, but to all enlightened nations and ages."

3. At last, with his great work done, he was released to sleep by the lips of God, buried in Moab by the hand of God, and no man knows the place of his sepulcher unto this day. In Cecil Frances Alexander's lines:

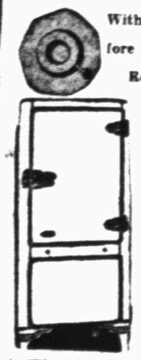

"And had he not high honor—
The hillside for a pall,
To lie in state while angels wait
With stars for tapers tall
And dark rock-pines like tossing plumes
Over his bier to wave,
And God's own hand in that lonely land
To lay him in the grave?"

Security Markets Make A Negative Response To French-German Affair

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, July 8. (AP)—Except for inevitable buoyancy in reich bonds, today's security markets made a negative response to news that France and Germany had settled their reparations argument.

Stocks were wildly cheerful at the opening, by which time Lausanne dispatches had announced the settlement, but the smattering of gains was quickly dissipated. Thereafter weakness was selective, but the list generally refused to manifest enthusiasm over what had happened abroad and closing prices were irregularly lower. A few losses ranged from 2 to 6 points; in the main net changes were fractional. Sales totaled 720,288 shares.

Utilities had to take more or less selling all day.

Industrials were sluggish but reasonably steady. In rails, Union Pacific went to a new low, off 1 1-2 net.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, July 8. (AP)—Around 10,000 cattle were reported at eleven markets today and a steady to strong trade resulted on fed steers and yearlings, while limited supply of grass steers held generally steady. A few sales of fed steers were included in a range of 6.75@8.50 with 1,188 lb. steers and 820 lb. yearlings at St. Joseph up to 8.75. Grass fat steers and a few wintered grassers cleared at 5.00@6.85. Heifers and mixed yearlings were little changed at 5.75@7.00 with a few loads up to 7.50.

Receipts for the week at eleven markets numbered 104,000 as compared with 142,530 last week. A year ago 147,266 were counted in.

World Flight

took the lights of Brisov for Moscow, and circled for an emergency landing.

The end came in a peat bog, the most likely place they could find to set the ship down, and she cracked up in the soft surface.

The plane was too badly damaged to proceed. The men spent last night in a hotel at Minsk.

To Salvage Ship

They returned to Brisov today to find out if the ship could be repaired and flown out. If this can not be done, they will salvage as much as possible.

Their time of departure for the capital was uncertain, since they could not be reached by phone at Borisov.

Mattern and Griffin were obviously disappointed at their failure to beat the around-the-world record of 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes, set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty last year.

Fall Short of Mark

The fliers would have covered 5,000 miles of the 15,000 around the globe if they had reached the Soviet capital, but they fell more than 400 miles short of the one-third mark.

They left New York Tuesday at 4:01 a. m. (C. S. T.), and after a stop at Harbor Grace flew to Berlin in the elapsed time of about 31 1-2 hours. This was nearly three hours ahead of the Post and Gatty time to Berlin.

The Mattern-Griffin team nevertheless established three records for other fliers to shoot at. They were the first to reach Berlin non-stop from America; they crossed the ocean in less than 11 hours; and they established a flight record from New York to Berlin.

Apparently the fliers' injuries were superficial, but it was understood Mattern was the more seriously hurt, although the nature of his hurts was not known.

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, July 8. (AP)—Keen demand continued Friday for wheat while other offerings on the Fort Worth cash grain market were slow, though oats showed better inquiry.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis car loads on track at Fort Worth, freight paid, delivered Texas Gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points:

Wheat No. 1 hard according to protein and billing 53 1-2@63 1-2.

Barley No. 2 nominally 32 1-2@33. Sorghums No. 2 milo or kaffir per 100 lbs. nominally 68@70.

Delivered Texas common points or group three: Corn No. 2 mixed 41@42; No. 2 white 41 1-2@41 1-2; No. 2 yellow 48@49.

Delivered Texas common points: Oats No. 2 red 20 1-2@21 1-2.

Jimmy Allred

fice, Allred called attention to his successful defense of more than 500 suits involving constitutionality of the motor truck laws; his participation in cases involving the conservation statutes; to his efforts to aid independent gas owners and operators in the Panhandle field in finding a fair market for their product; to his saving $165,000 by declaring invalid a contract of the highway department with the Red River Toll Bridge company; to his victory in the Yates-Whiteside case involving boundaries of the Yates oil field and millions of dollars.

Rally Is Held

Twenty-three persons attended a dinner for the candidate at Hotel Lubbock a short time before the rally. County Judge Edgar Hutchins of Crosby county presided at the rally, and John Doyle of Levelland also spoke.

Allred will speak this afternoon in Shamrock and will spend tonight in Pampa.

Treasury Probe

in it.

"The only thing they seem to have left is confidence in the government of the United States in its fiscal matters. To make an investigation at this time and discover such things as the gentleman from Pennsylvania and I believe would be discovered in that department would certainly unsettle that confidence and would not be beneficial to the American people.

"Secondly, I thought if we undertook to do it at this time with an election immediately in front of us, it would be charged during the campaign that we attempted to use the investigation for partisan purposes. These are the two reasons why I did not ask for it to be done."

ABC Team Tosses Strong Challenge To Rotary Outfit

American Business club members meeting Friday at Hotel Hilton taunted Rotarians with "The Rotarians are afraid to play us and they've got to either play us next week or get down off the roost. President R. J. Keller, for the club, announced he was issuing an open challenge to the Rotary club for a baseball game next week.

The Rotarians have defeated the Kiwanians and Lions thus far in the service club baseball championship series.

"We've tried to match a game with them for the past month and they just won't play," Walter S. Ruffner, publicity manager of the A. B. C. team declared. He said his team was in good shape and would play "any time the Rotarians want to."

German Bonds

agreement to assist Austria and the Danubian states which are in financial difficulties; (4) Creation of a committee to study the grain problem in the Danubian states which are embarrassed by a huge grain surplus; and (5) Creation of the machinery for a world economic conference under auspices of the League of Nations.

There was nothing about a "gentlemen's agreement" linking reparations with war debts nor was there any reference to the "war guilt" clause of the Versailles treaty.

Details Are Brief

The details of the bond issue were in brief that German bonds for the equivalent of $750,000,000 would be issued when Germany's credit would permit, and the price would be 90. The bond issue would be withheld, however, for at least three years.

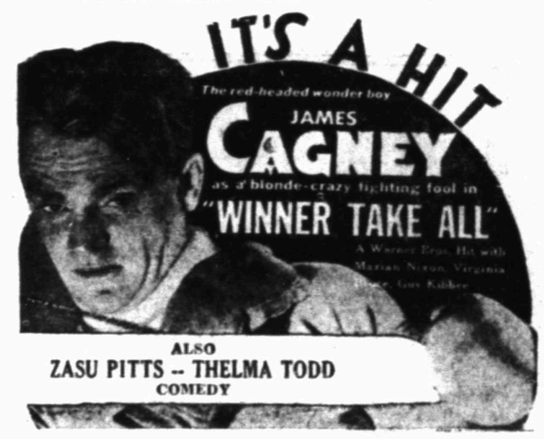

Maturity in 37 years was agreed upon, but if the issue is not floated within 15 years it would automatically be cancelled.

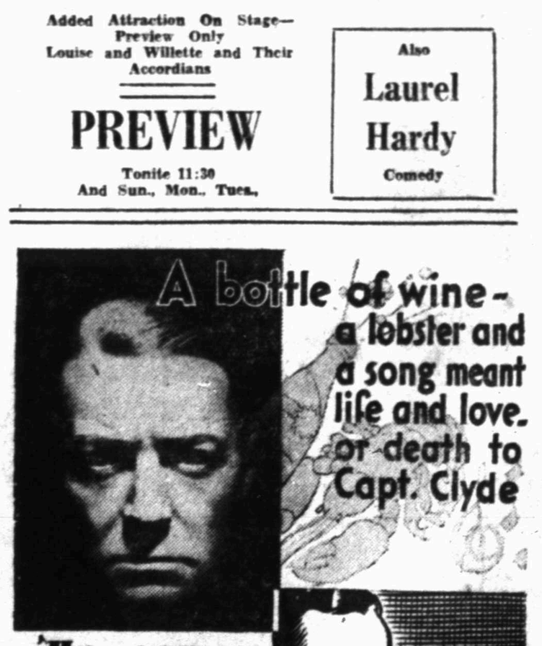

NO FINAL DECISION

WASHINGTON, July 8. (AP)—The whirling prohibition controversy swirled about both sides of the capitol today in extended debate but there was no final decision on proposals to repeal the eighteenth amendment and to legalize beer.
