Permian football penalized

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Sports fans can add State 5A Football Champ Odessa Permian to the ranks of Southern Methodist University and Oklahoma University as high-profile football programs that were severely penalized for rules violations.

Permian Thursday was banned from post-season play this year for holding organized practices earlier than allowed under rules set by the University Interscholastic League, the governing body for state schoolboy competitions.

After a unanimous vote by the UIL executive committee, committee member Alberto Byington characterized the ban as "painful" but said the board should "send a strong message to all districts in the state that this is not going to be allowed."

The committee Thursday also suspended first-year Permian head coach Tam Hollingshead and Junior Varsity Coach Myron Schneider from participating in their next two games, one of which is against Odessa High School, who's head coach, Jerry Taylor, was Permian's accusor.

Also, Hollingshead and Schneider and several assistants were placed on a one-year probation, and the Ector County school district was required to look into several other charges Taylor has leveled.

Among those were recruiting of prospective Permian athletes from junior highs that feed OHS and athlete transfers to Permian based on a court order intended to promote racial minority balance.

Taylor said paperwork on one such transfer wasn't completed until after the athlete had played a season at Permian and had a "tremendous" year.

Taylor also said parents of a promising sixth-grader had been offered help in selling their home if they were willing to move to an area that Permian served.

Some of the accusations were based on sources who wished to stay anonymous, he said, because they feared bodily harm to their children or a bad reflection on their job or business.

Taylor, in his fifth year as OHS head coach, said he had become frustrated after receiving what he felt was little satisfaction in taking the complaints to administrators in the Ector County Independent School District.

"After moving to Odessa and observing and hearing and experiencing, it became evident to me that I had been naive too long," Taylor said. "Because it became apparent to me that we weren't abiding by the rules in Odessa, Texas," he said. The coach joked about losing his job over his testimony.

School district administrators disputed his allegations, which they said they were unprepared to an-

Lawsuit filed

AUSTIN — Four Houston car buyers have filed a lawsuit against ClayDesta National Bank of Midland for allegedly forcing the car buyers to buy insurance as a condition of their loan approval.

The class-action lawsuit, filed Wednesday in state district court in Austin, seeks $1 million on behalf of four Houston-area car buyers, but their lawyer said as many as 1,000 other car buyers in Houston and Dallas may join the suit.

The plaintiffs allege they were coerced into buying credit life and disability insurance from a company that paid 50 percent of the premiums to ClayDesta National Bank, in which Clayton Williams, the Republican candidate for governor, owns controlling interest.

■ Oil prices may be high, but the ongoing conflict in the Persian Gulf is the "wrong reason," an industry leader tells the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Gaylon Simmons, president and chief executive officer of Permian Corp., sees the current petroleum market as the classic "good news-bad news" situation.

In Midland to speak to the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, Simmons said at a pre-luncheon press conference that "The good news is prices have doubled since June, and everyone's elated. But everyone also recognizes that prices are too high and for the wrong reasons."

He predicted that the market will see a correction — on the level of $5 to $6 a barrel — because current prices are not supported by fundamentals. The market, he said, is concerned with supplies while demand is still being met.

"We were headed for a fundamental correction in July," Simmons pointed out, "and we at Permian felt prices were headed toward $25 a barrel by the end of the year on basic fundamentals."

Immediately after the last meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) in late July — just before Iraq's invasion of Kuwait — prices for West Texas Intermediate hovered around $20 on the futures market, and $18.75 for posted prices.

While it is impossible to know what is going to happen with oil prices or in the Middle East, Simmons said several things could have an impact.

First, Saddam Hussein's complete withdrawal from Kuwait would send prices tumbling. "Realistically, prices should be in the low $20s," he said.

The petroleum market could also be affected by added pe-

Iraq on Thursday demanded equal time, asking U.S. networks to broadcast a message by Saddam Hussein in response to President Bush's address to Iraq. Saddam told a newspaper Iraq can fight for years and "could hurt" America.

The White House said it would not try to block the broadcast of Saddam's videotaped message. The networks did not immediately commit themselves to showing it.

More than 100 American women and children from Iraq flew aboard a Pan Am jetliner Thursday to North Carolina. The State Department said a similar flight Saturday was the last U.S. charter planned from Baghdad, and it advised all Americans wanting to leave to sign up.

International efforts mounted Thursday against Iraq's occupation of Kuwait:

■ Organizers of the Asian Games banned Iraq from the competition in Beijing.

■ Discussions continued at the United Nations on a proposal to ban all flights into and out of Iraq and occupied Kuwait, except for mercy missions.

■ French soldiers, including members of the French Foreign Legion, headed to Saudi Arabia to join the U.S.-led multinational force upholding the U.N. trade embargo. They were the first of 4,000 troops expected to ship out of southern France in the sealift, France's largest in three decades.

NATO's secretary-general, Manfred Woerner, urged other Western European nations to follow suit. "Let me clearly state my personal opinion — that some allies could and should do more," Woerner said at a conference in Brussels.

Investigator says he saw diary entries on Kennedy's death

■ Despite its description by a former CIA agent as a "fabrication," a on private eye describes diary entries he believes suggest former Midlander Roscoe White had role in the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

By Wendy Benjaminson
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — A private investigator on Thursday claimed to have seen a diary describing a CIA plot to kill President Kennedy, but a former agency employee who helped the investigator said the diary appeared to be "a clumsy fabrication."

Private investigator Joe West told reporters in Houston he had obtained and copied the dairy, found by Geneva White Galle, the widow of Roscoe White, a Dallas police officer at the time of Kennedy's assassination.

White's son, Ricky Don White, claimed on Aug. 7 his father had shot Kennedy, acting on orders from the Central Intelligence Agency. Roscoe White died in an industrial accident his son said was a deliberate attempt to silence his father.

A myriad of conspiracy theories, none of which have been proven, have emerged since The Warren Commission concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing Kennedy.

Asked what makes the White family's claims any more credible than other assassination theories, West said: "It would take me a month to answer that, and I'm just not going to."

White's original claims brought immediate denial from both the CIA and FBI. However, state Attorney General Jim Mattox has said he'll investigate White's story.

West said Thursday he does not now have the original diary, and refused to divulge who does. He said he believes it is being sent to a certified document analyst and it may turn out to be a hoax.

Even so, "I think this is a historical document and if it is a hoax, the public needs to know about it," West said.

John Stockwell, a former CIA officer who had been working with West, said he urged West to call off Thursday's news conference because the diary "looks like a clumsy fabrication to me."

West said Mrs. Galle discovered the diary in a book about U.S. presidents, stuck within the chapter on the Kennedy years.

She called West, who said he is not being paid by the White

CAF tour takes wing

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

HARLINGEN — The adventure that is in Janna King ignited her curiosity about the Confederate Air Force and the mission behind its rare, old warplanes and artifacts from the 1939-45 era.

And that same adventure, seasoned with bits of wonder and intrigue about what it was like "back then," persuaded her to climb aboard a World War II airplane. Once belted and strapped in, she was to experience — savor or suffer through — the whining, crackling, sputtering and roaring of a radial engine, the rush of prop blast whirling over the cockpit, the freedom of flight, and the talent of a pilot to get the airplane safety off, up, roundabout, and back again.

She was glad it was over.

Ms. King, the 36-year-old president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, this week toured the CAF headquarters, museum and flight line in her formal introduction to the CAF.

The flight was part of the tour.

She was on a dual mission: to glean the essence of the CAF and to explore benefits of a Midland-CAF partnership.

IRAQ: Saddam wants airtime

(From 1A)

■ The State Department has set up a hotline for people seeking information about the safety of American relatives and friends in Kuwait and Iraq. The number for the 24-hour telephone bank is (202) 647-0900.

Thousands of troops and dozens of warships from other nations have converged on the Persian Gulf since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, but Britain and France are the only Western European nations to send ground troops.

More than 100,000 U.S. soldiers have been rushed to Saudi Arabia and half as many are aboard warships sent to the region. The Army and the Air Force on Thursday called about 7,000 reservists to active duty.

The Iraqi leader has an estimated 360,000 soldiers in and around oil-rich Kuwait.

An American soldier was killed and two others injured in a jeep accident Thursday in the Saudi Arabian desert, U.S. military officials said. The death brought to 17 the number of fatalities among American personnel since Operation Desert Shield began in early August.

All deaths were accidental. They included a soldier hit by a truck, another killed in a road collision and a sailor electrocuted aboard a ship. On Aug. 29, a C-5A transport aircraft loaded with supplies for gulf forces crashed after takeoff in West Germany, killing 13 crew members.

Iraq's information minister was quoted as saying Thursday that Iraq will knock out gulf oil fields if attacked by the multinational force. The official, Latif Nassayef Jassim, also said "Iraq will use all weapons at its disposal to respond to any aggression" intended to force its troops out of Kuwait. His comments were reported by the English-language daily Jordan Times and were made to Jordanian journalists in Baghdad this week.

U.S. officials said Iraq has asked Iran if the two countries can join their oil pipelines, a move that would allow Saddam to partly bypass the international embargo against his country.

Iran has not yet responded to the Iraqi request, which would let Iraq export 500,000 barrels of oil a day, said the officials, speaking on condition of anonymity. Intelligence experts estimate a link between the two pipeline systems could be completed within a month across the countries' common border.

Saddam was quoted Thursday as saying Iraq could hold out for "five or six" years against the trade embargo. The Turkish newspaper Milliyet also quoted him as saying Iraq "knows that America is the No. 1 superpower in the world. But we also are confident that we can hurt America."

Iraq's official news agency did not disclose the content of Saddam's videotaped speech for American audiences, but it is likely a rebuttal to Bush's speech to the Iraqi people televised Sunday.

Jassim, the information minister, said if the United States stopped the attempt to broadcast it, "the concerned Iraqi authorities will find alternative ways to transmit the message to the American people through international television stations."

CAF: Local chamber head tours CAF headquarters

base of the CAF, a 1957-founded organization dedicated to the preservation of rare World War II combat and support aircraft.

And with the impending shift of the CAF to Midland, Ms. King, who assumed leadership of the chamber at midyear, is pondering the economic significance of the CAF to Midland.

She is encouraged.

The CAF, which maintains the world's largest collection of flying World War II aircraft from the Allied forces and the Axis powers, will be bringing economic diversification to Midland.

"Economic diversification is a high priority for Midland," said Ms. King. "And the Confederate Air Force brings diversification through the tourism and visitors industry.

"The CAF's coming to Midland signals a change for the community," she surmised. "It's the first time Midland can be perceived as a destination for tourists."

Early-day Midland, from the 1880s into the 1920s, centered its worth on agriculture, ranching and farming. Then, when the prospects of a petroleum-weighted economy turned into a gushing promise with the Santa Rita Oil Well in 1926, oil and gas began to dominate the economy.

The cyclic boom-to-bust phenomenon both blessed and struck Midland more than once. After the economic downturn of the early 1980s, Midland has been struggling and groping to diversity its economy.

Successes haven't been spectacular.

The coming of the CAF to Midland International Airport, Ms. King noted, will offer Midland a major tourist attraction. For years, the CAF's worth to tourism has been established here in the Rio Grande Valley.

But the CAF wanted far more than visitors and tourists to see, hear and smell its "Flying Museum" within its Ghost Squadron of 145 "warbirds" — pursuit aircraft (fighters), bombers, trainers, transports and support aircraft. The CAF selected aviation-conscious West Texas for the relatively dry climate that is conducive to aircraft preservation and for the prevailing good weather conditions for year-round flying.

Additionally, Midland offered the CAF support and debt-free facilities for expansion, which the CAF direly needed to restore and maintain aircraft and to carry out its educational objectives.

As chamber president, Ms. King is becoming involved in the CAF's mission not just to restore aircraft and to "keep 'em flying," but to recount the valor of the combat forces, the importance of air power in winning the war in Europe and in the Pacific, and the necessity of maintaining a strong defense.

And so, Ms. King's curiosity got her into the cockpit of the old warplane and behind the blast of wind created by the propeller.

Ms. King, a Minnesota native who is far more familiar and comfortable with the rush of ice skating, was impressed with the old airplane and the 45-year-old pilot, Ralph Royce. The monoplane in her adventure was a 1942 North American Harvard Mk II advanced trainer powered by a nine-cylinder, 650-horsepower radial engine.

"It gave me a real appreciation for the conditions that aviators worked in in World War II," Ms. King said after Royce, executive director of the CAF, took her for a ride out of the CAF's "Rebel Field" in Harlingen.

The CAF facilities at Midland are to be readied by Dec. 7, 1991, on the 50th anniversary of the Japanese attack of Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

Along with the CAF's grand opening at Midland International Airport will be an air show and a five-day symposium on events that led up to the war and early stages of the war.

"I'm enthusiastic about the potential for the development of the CAF," Ms. King said. "They are currently in facilities that don't enable them to make the most of their assets."

The Midland facilities will include a World War II air-field motif, new hangars, headquarters office, aircraft parking and maintenance ramps, and the CAF's American Air Power Heritage Museum. Currently, the CAF has approximately 70,000 World War II artifacts but only about 10 percent of those are on exhibit in the museum in Harlingen.

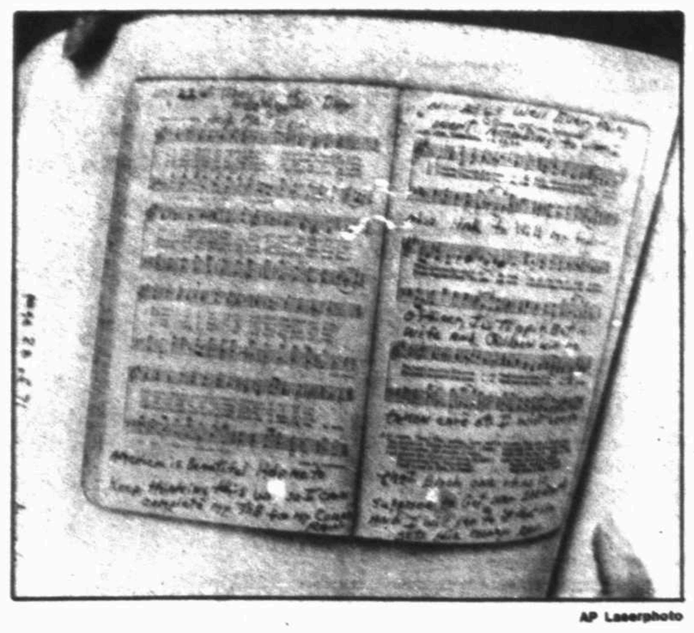

"And as a chamber," Ms. King said, "we need to package the assets of Midland, Odessa and West Texas and market the area as a destination for tourists."

CAF plans for Midland are "exciting," Ms. King said.

Charlie Spence who is heading up the chamber's conventions and visitors bureau (CVB), termed the CAF's move to Midland and the Midland-CAF partnership as "really exciting."

"We do it 'top drawer,' " Spence said of Midland's community projects. "When we take on a project, nobody can do it better."

Of the CAF, Spence said, "We've talked a lot about it over the last several months since we've learned they're coming to Midland. But to see it first hand and to see some of the things that we are going to be able to enjoy in the Permian Basin, at Midland International Airport, is really exciting."

family, and allowed him to make photocopies of the diary.

An outline of the diary provided to reporters purportedly describes two assassinations the CIA ordered White to commit in 1960 and 1961, plus contacts "by old friend from the Marines, Lee Oswald."

An entry dated June 1963 says: "They want me to kill the president. God help me. They say he's a threat to the United States."

Stockwell noted that the ink in 1957 dairy entries appears to be as fresh and identical to 1971 entries, and that the 1971 entries refer to "Watergate," a term not in widespread use until after the break-in at Democratic National headquarters in 1972.

PHS: Post-season play banned, coaches suspended for 2 weeks

swer specifically since the hearing ostensibly was called on the early practice issue.

"I think we're sincere when we say we want people to obey the rules," said ECISD Athletic Director John Wilkins, a former Permian coach. "They do obey the rules," he said.

Permian Principal Jerald McClary said of Taylor's charges and others, "some of them you take seriously, and some of them are things that just seem to be gossip."

After the testimoney was finished, Byington, who is superintendent of the Brooks Independent School District south of San Antonio, said, "It bothers me that I hear a lot of conflicts, here."

Permian's suspension from post-season play stems from "pre-conditioning" practices the football program held on Bonham Junior High School and Permian campuses August 6-17. The first allowable day for 5A football programs to hold organized practices was August 20.

Based on the accusations, the Ector County Independent School District conducted an internal investigation that found Permian staff had violated two UIL rules in conducting the early practices, indicating a more organized effort than permitted.

UIL Director Bailey Marshall said the committee's ruling probably would have been less severe if ECISD hadn't failed to report another Permian transgression earlier this year.

Hollingshead in the spring received an internal district letter of reprimand because of transgressions that actually occurred under previous Permian Coach Gary Gaines. The complaints alleged that Permian had held off-season team meetings prior to the beginning of the school day.

UIL executive committee members, including Chairman Bob Caster of the Palestine Independent School District, wondered why Ector County schools had failed to notify the District 4-5A executive committee of the earlier reprimand, as the UIL requires.

Ector County Superintendent Gene Buinger explained that coupled with the Permian reprimand was one for Taylor's OHS program, for holding practices longer than rules allowed. One admonishment for each high school provided "a quid pro quo," Buinger said.

The District 4-5A executive committee on Sept. 10 cited the ECISD investigation in finding the Permian program guilty of UIL rules violations, but the district-level committee asked the state governing commitee to decide punishment.

Hollingshead and three other Permian coaches appeared before the nine-member body with attorneys and read from prepared statements as they maintained their innocence, saying the rules violations were a matter of interpretation.

None of the practices conducted this past summer were different from those that had occurred in the last 10 years, Hollingshead said.

The coach also said the process had put him and his staff in a position of having to prove their own innocence, and that they had not sufficiently been given that opportunity at any step along the way.

At several junctures in Thursday's hearing, committee members asked the men whether they had more to say.

Afterward, Hollingshead said the coaches were considering filing appeals.

"I have nothing against Coach Taylor. He did what he thought was right," said Hollingshead.

Even though the Permian coach will not be allowed to participate on game night, he said the team will approach the Odessa tilt "exactly like we approach every game."

"Our young men are going to have to take care of their business on the football field without us. Hopefully, they're mature enough and they're smart enough to realize we don't play the game for them," he said.

Taylor acknowleded that "there's going to be some strained relations" in Odessa, a town known for taking its high school football very seriously.

"There already has been, but at the same time, I don't think it has to destroy us," he said. "There's a possibility that in a short period of time it could make us stronger."

"That hopefully will be determined by some mature adults and how we react to this situation," he said.

UIL Director Marshall was reminded of a situation when he coached a team from White Oak, near Longview, that was suspended in the playoffs.

"It was emotional and heartbreaking," he said. "Ironically, our youngsters probably learned more from that than they had the year before, when they played the state championship, as far as growing up in life."

"A lot will be in how it's used. If this is taken properly and used properly, then it will be a learning experience," he said.

OIL: PBPA gathering reminded $5-$6 'price correction' likely troleum supplies, from other OPEC members, non-OPEC members and even producing states such as Texas.

A new part of the equation will be the Soviet Union, whose oil exploration efforts are getting a boost from U.S. and European companies. "Given the opening to put U.S. and European technology in place and the capital to bring its product to market, in 10 years, we could see great energy contributions from the Soviet Union," he stated.

Of course, "If someone fires a missile and fighting breaks out, all bets are off. We could see $40 oil."

Through the division of the Arabian countries over the current Persian Gulf crisis, the new American presence in Saudi Arabia and the potential of the Soviet energy industry, "we may well see the demise of OPEC," he continued. "I have difficulty envisioning the next OPEC meeting and the roles the members will play."

Events in the Middle East are not alone in impacting the energy market. Traders are keeping an eye on the weather, particularly in Europe where the winter season is starting. Europe is a big heating oil consumer. Not only are traders looking at gasoline and crude inventories but at home heating oil stocks.

No matter what level prices are at, Simmons stressed, the oil industry needs stability. And Permian has devised a new pricing alternative based on the NYMEX quote that Simmons says will allow the producer the option of setting a floor and a ceiling on his production.

This, he said, will bring stability to the producer's business, and will hopefully attract investment capital to the business and spur drilling and other activity.

The strategy is already in place, and Simmons reported that producers using the new strategy are pleased with the results.

German Reichstag ready to resume role

WEST BERLIN (AP) — With German unity less than two weeks away, workers are racing to ready the Reichstag for the building's first session of parliament in almost six decades.

Long a symbol of Germany's turbulent past, the lower floors of the sandstone edifice just north of the Brandenburg Gate have come alive in recent weeks.

Carpenters, electricians and painters rush through the corridors to prepare the main hall for the founding session of the united parliament Oct. 4, the day after the historic merger of East Germany and West Germany.

"We will be ready despite the short notice," said Edmund Mattig, deputy administrator of the Reichstag. "This is the fulfillment of a wish we've had for so long."

But it will be for one ceremonial session only, and then parliament returns to Bonn.

Germany got its first parliament in 1871 after Kaiser Wilhelm I unified the country and Berlin became the capital. The building and the parliament were called Reichstag, meaning imperial legislature.

The present Reichstag building was finished in 1894 after 10 years of construction. It was the scene of fierce debates after World War I as government after government sought a stable majority.

A mysterious fire on Feb. 27, 1933, just a month after Adolf Hitler became chancellor, gutted the building and ended its use as a legislature.

The blaze served as Hitler's pretext to force passage of an act allowing his government to make laws without Reichstag approval.

Hitler left the Reichstag in ruins. During the Nazis' 12-year rule, the so-called "Brown Reichstag" met in the nearby Kroll Opera. That building did not survive the war.

The Reichstag's drama continued as the Nazi defeat drew near.

The Allies bombed it toward the end of the war. The battered building was the Soviet army's final target as it plowed across Berlin.

Soviet and Nazi troops engaged in hand-to-hand combat at the Reichstag. In early May 1945, the Red army planted a Soviet flag atop the ruined building.

But the stone slab with the words "Dem Deutschen Volke," or "To the German people," survived, a permanent reminder of the parliamentary past. The slab was mounted over the main portal during World War I.

After the war, the Reichstag ended up in the Western allied occupation zone, but Germany's division prevented its use as a parliament.

East Germany's parliament, called the Volkskammer, met in East Berlin. West Germany's parliament met in Bonn.

The West German parliament met in West Berlin occasionally in the 1950s and 1960s, but never convened in full in the Reichstag.

Restoration of the Reichstag was completed in 1971. The main hall where parliament will meet was deliberately left empty after restoration in memory of the unresolved German question.

The upper floors were used to house a popular exhibition called "Questions on German History" that attracts hundreds of visitors daily.

Foreign leaders were taken to the back balcony of the Reichstag for a clear view of the Berlin Wall.

Last year's peaceful revolution that overturned Communist rule in East Germany paved the way for unity with West Germany, but the Reichstag's future remains uncertain.

An all-German parliament to be elected Dec. 2 must decide whether Berlin becomes the seat of government and if parliament permanently returns to the Reichstag.

If Berlin is chosen, the Reichstag will be ready.

New chairs are already in place for the 664 deputies — 520 from the West and 144 from the East — who will make up the united legislature.

The interior is getting a coat of creamy paint and the carpets are being cleaned. The top-to-bottom renovation is expected to cost $2.6 million.

Florists have brought large green plants. Modern lights are being installed along with hundreds of telephones.

Just before unity day on Oct. 3, a "Bundesadler," the wooden eagle that symbolizes German sovereignty, will be brought from Bonn to hang in the main hall.

The outside of the neoclassical building is also being spruced up. Hundreds of gypsies who lived in campers in a field next to the Reichstag were forced to move.

U.N. council OKs framework for Cambodian peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council Thursday approved a U.N. plan for peace in Cambodia, opening the way for a major U.N. presence in Southeast Asia and its supervision of elections.

In a unanimous vote the 15-member Council endorsed the framework for a peace settlement drawn up by the five permanent members of the Security Council — the United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union.

The Council also called upon the Vietnam-backed Cambodian government and three-faction guerrilla group fighting it to seek a comprehensive political settlement to that country's decade-old civil war.

The plan for peace in Cambodia calls for a massive U.N. administrative and police presence in that country until the United Nations can organize and monitor free elections. Until then, the country would be governed by the Supreme National Council, comprised of the four Cambodian factions.

The Cambodian guerrilla group comprises the Communist Khmer Rouge and the non-Communist factions of Prince Norodom Sihanouk and former Prime minister Son Sann. Earlier this month, the rebels and the government threw their support behind the U.N. plan.

Filipino agents seek control of U.S. bases soon

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Philippine negotiators told the United States Thursday that they want complete control of the U.S.-run Clark Air Base "as soon as possible."

The Philippine panel made the demand during the third day of talks on the future of Clark, Subic Bay naval base and four smaller facilities, whose lease expires in September 1991.

"The Philippines took the position that it shall assume sovereign control of Clark as soon as possible," Philippine spokesman Rafael Alunan told reporters.

Reminded that the Philippines has had sovereignty over Clark since 1979, Alunan said he was also referring to "operational control." It was unclear whether "as soon as possible" meant before the lease expires.

U.S. and Philippine officials began the talks Tuesday.

Also Thursday, Alunan said President Corazon Aquino will order steps to dismantle the bases unless the two nations reach an agreement on their future by January.

"If there is no treaty or arrangement, let's say by January ... then we will most likely create a committee that will oversee the dismantling of the bases," Alunan said in a radio interview.

"It is important for us to have a treaty or an arrangement," he said. "If there is no understanding, nothing will come of the bases such that by Sept. 16, 1991, they will have to leave."

Chief U.S. negotiator Richard Armitage said Tuesday the days of a large American military presence here were coming to an end. The United States maintains 40,000 troops, Defense Department civilians and military dependents at the six bases.

Mrs. Aquino said on the eve of the talks that the time had come for an orderly withdrawal of the bases, the oldest and largest American overseas installations.

Wednesday, U.S. spokesman Stanley Schrager said the United States wants continued access to the military bases even if it relinquishes full control.

The bases are technically under Philippine control but are effectively run by the Americans, who ruled this island nation from 1898 until independence in 1946.

"They will be Philippine bases to which the U.S. would hope to have some access as it has with other countries around the world," Schrager told reporters.

"This is a far cry from what we have now, where we have a large military presence in the autonomous kind of situation in our particular facilities in the Philippine military bases."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Joan Collins upstaged in London theater

LONDON (AP) — Joan Collins returned to the London theater in Noel Coward's "Private Lives," only to leave the audience and the critics raving about a supporting performer, Sara Crowe.

"A star is born and steals the show from Joan Collins," The Daily Mail said following Wednesday night's opening at the Aldwych Theater.

"Sara Crowe all but runs off with the evening," wrote The Guardian's Michael Billington. He called Collins, best-known as "Dynasty" dragon Alexis Carrington, "glamorous but strangely unfunny."

How was Crowe taking it? Does a gentleman ask?

"Think of it from her point of view," said publicist Mary Parker, gently refusing a request to speak to the new star. "How would you like to be known as the actress who upstaged Joan Collins?"

How was Collins taking it?

"All along Joan has been the first person to want to be surrounded by high-quality actors," declared her European press agent, Stella Wilson.

U.S. seeks end to war

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The U.S. diplomat trying to persuade Liberian rebels to talk peace met Thursday with President Gen. Ibrahim Babangida of Nigeria, which has sent troops to Liberia in an effort to stop the fighting.

Herman Cohen, the assistant secretary of state for African affairs, then flew to Ghana, another of the five West African countries that sent soldiers to restore order in Liberia.

Cohen met Wednesday with rival rebel leaders Charles Taylor and Prince Johnson in Liberia.

Thursday he repeated U.S. support for the presence of the West African military force and said Washington "wants everyone to stop fighting and start talking." He would not say whether that comment included the West African force, whose commander announced Wednesday a "total offensive" against the rebels to force an end to the 9-month-old war.

Government and diplomatic sources in Nigeria and Sierra Leone said the 4,000-member force is in trouble, and that some West African leaders want to replace the commander, Lt. Gen. Arnold Quainoo of Ghana.

Man finds wife at brothel

TERAMO, Italy (AP) — A truck driver who went to a brothel expecting a discreet dalliance instead came upon a shocking surprise — his wife.

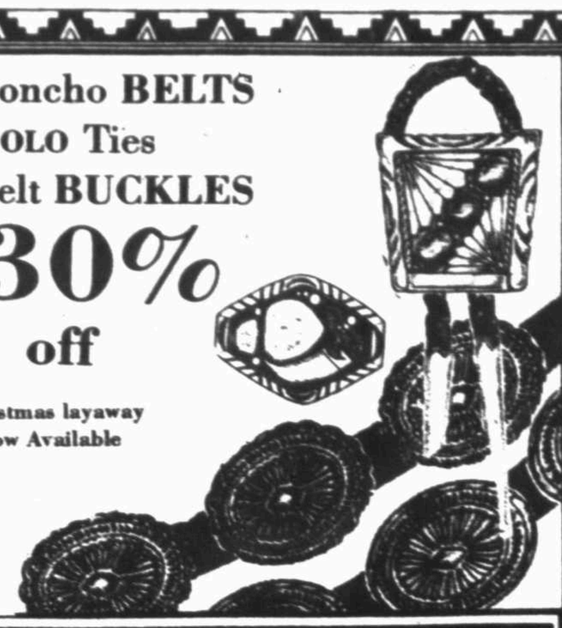

It turned out the woman, a homemaker by day, had been working as a call girl by night unbeknownst to her husband.

The story was recounted Thursday in La Stampa newspaper of Turin.

According to the account, a friend gave the 35-year-old truck driver the address of an exclusive bordello in Teramo in central Italy and recommended he ask for a particular woman working there.

'After a half-hour wait, when he finally obtained the prohibited meeting, the woman he dreamed of and whom he knew only by her working name turned out to be his wife, housewife by day, high-class call girl by night," the newspaper said.

The report said the wife tried to run away, but the husband caught her. She filed charges against him after he hit her, the newspaper said.

Dole suggests taking capital gains tax out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole has suggested that deadlocked budget bargainers remove the proposal to cut the capital gains tax rate from the deficit-reduction package they are working on, an aide said Thursday.

Dole's suggestion is the first indication that some Republicans are willing to accept a deficit-reduction plan without a cut in the capital gains tax rate. President Bush has repeatedly insisted that a reduction in that tax — imposed on property sales — be included in the deficit-cutting plan because it would stimulate the economy.

An aide to the Kansas Republican denied that Dole was retreating on the capital gains issue. But he said Dole's plan to remove the issue from the deficit-reduction package was the best way to end the current budget talks impasse.

Democrats have said Republican insistence on lowering the capital gains tax rate is the key stumbling block to the two parties working out a five-year, $500 billion deficit-cutting plan. They have opposed the proposal, arguing that it would be a tax break for the rich. They have said they would accept it only if other taxes on the wealthy are boosted.

A White House spokesman said President Bush has not altered his position on what should be included in a budget deal. "There's been no change in the White House position on entitlements, process reform, taxation or growth incentives," spokesman Stephen Hart said.

Number two House Republican Newt Gingrich of Georgia said he opposed the idea of removing capital gains and the other items from the deficit reduction package.

"House Republicans feel strongly about having one package and one vote," he said.

Under Dole's idea, the capital gains cut, a Democratic proposal to improve federal child care programs, and a package of tax benefits supported by both parties would be broken out of the deficit-cutting package and combined into a separate piece of legislation.

Students amused, parents angry, over impersonator

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A 26-year-old female impersonator posed as an 11th-grade student at Coronado High School and even became a cheerleader, at which students said he did a good job.

Student reaction ranged from amused to angry or scared.

Parents were just plain angry, school officials said Thursday.

"The students, they're all laughing," said a female student who asked not to be identified. "The cheerleaders, they're just mad."

Charles Janloyames Daugherty, a 5-foot-9 164-pound man, was arrested at the school Tuesday on suspicion of third-degree forgery and criminal impersonation. He was released on a $750 bond and ordered to appear in court Oct. 1.

He has an unlisted phone number and could not be reached for comment.

Daugherty was only in school eight days. School officials said they discovered the masquerade within two or three days, but waited while police built a case.

Jay Englen, assistant principal at the school, said parents and students "feel very hurt and embarrassed. They feel betrayed."

He said there was no evidence any student was taken advantage of sexually.

A teacher at the school who asked not to be identified said several girls befriended Daugherty and told him personal things — "you know how girls talk to one another," the teacher said.

Tracy Cooper, a spokesman for School District 11, said there is very little the school can do to prevent similar incidents.

Cooper said Daugherty was able to get away with the ruse because the school has 1,100 students and has private dressing rooms in the girls' locker room.

Police Detective Bob Driscoll said Daugherty has a record going back to 1983 of theft, shoplifting, aggravated motor vehicle theft, burglary and criminal impersonation. He did not know the disposition of those cases.

Driscoll pulled out police mug shots of Daugherty dressed as a woman following an earlier arrest and compared it with a photograph taken following his arrest Tuesday.

Souter merits Senate approval

It appears at this point in the confirmation process that David Souter likely will be approved by the United States Senate's Judiciary Committee as President George Bush's first appointee to the Supreme Court.

If that approval materializes, it will be difficult for the full senate to turn down Souter's nomination as unfit for the court. Earlier this month, the American Bar Association gave the jurist its highest rating of professional fitness for the Supreme Court.

Except for the unsubstantiated fears voiced by abortion rights advocates that the New Hampshire jurist would vote to overturn the controversial 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision, which made abortion legal in all states, Souter has received outstanding marks in the confirmation process. On that point, Souter properly refused to discuss Roe vs. Wade before the Judiciary Committee although chairman Joseph Biden grilled him at length.

For Souter to have discussed the case would have constituted a breach of ethical canons since if confirmed for the seat on the high court he likely will be called on to rule in the case.

The nominee's performance on the Roe vs. Wade questioning was outstanding to all those who want to see someone elevated to the Supreme Court with no preconceived notions. At one point, Souter declared, "I have not made up my mind, and I would not go on the court saying I must go one way or I must go the other way."

Souter has been largely non-commital on all issues that would give special-interest advocates a glimpse of how he would rule once on the court. In that regard, President George Bush has again illustrated his skill at selecting nominees whose anticipated actions cannot be predicted, a fact brought out in some of his earlier Cabinet-level and federal agency appointments.

What is known about Souter indicates that he is a reclusive individual who is devoted to the law and the Constitution.

Steven McAuliffe, president of the New Hampshire Bar Association who served with Souter in that state's attorney general's office in the 1970's, revealed Souter's adherence to proper judicial procedure when he said, "No one knows how David Souter will vote — no one. David Souter doesn't know. David Souter, the judge, simply does not pre-judge cases — he never has."

Can the American public wish for anything more in a Supreme Court justice than someone who is totally fair and impartial, and who rules on cases by their constitutionality? We think not.

Souter should be confirmed.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Souter hearings - dance of dunces?

Not only is gloating bad manners — it sometimes lands the gloater in the soup, as when the expectations on which his gloating was based fall suddenly to pieces.

Ahem. I am not gloating about the Souter confirmation. I really am not. But it looks good. It really does.

Murchison

It has looked excellent indeed, since, on the opening day of Senate hearings Judge Souter neatly dished Sen. Joe Biden. Sen. Biden had wanted to talk about abortion. Judge Souter said he wasn't going to talk about abortion. This left Sen. Biden perplexed.

What? — not talk about abortion? How could the Senate Judiciary Committee otherwise feel out this reclusive New Englander — lay its collective hand on his phrenological bumps? How could it make the cameras whirr, the editorial writers scamper to their terminals?

Judge Souter rained on Sen. Biden's picnic. This was not necessarily a pivotal point in the confirmation process. For weeks, liberals have busied themselves trying to get the goods on Judge Souter. There were no goods to be got. The judge had about as noncontroversial a public record as it is likely any Supreme Court nominee ever will bring to a Senate hearing.

The malignant intentions of Judge Souter's backers, inside and outside the Bush administration, are an article of faith with many of those who did in Judge Robert Bork. Judge Souter is suspect for the very act of accepting the nomination at George Bush's hands. If Bush is for him, he couldn't be the right sort!

Yet where was the proof? Where were the scholarly articles, the speeches and so on, such as condemned poor Bob Bork to perdition? There weren't any.

Maybe Judge Souter's views on abortion could hang him. He could be made out, this mild fellow, looking harmless as a pet rabbit, to be a foe of a Woman's Right to Choose.

One thing he is not: A foe of common sense. Common sense instructs that, whatever a Supreme Court nominee thinks these days, he keep it between himself and his God. Or, to expand the circle, his Irish setter. On abortion Sen. Biden threw the bait. Judge Souter swam warily past it.

This is confirmation, ca. 1990. It ain't very edifying, but it sure is becoming typical.

It's also indicative. It indicates what kind of body the Supreme Court has turned itself into, ca. 1990 — a political body. A superlegislature.

The court, since Chief Justice Earl Warren's heyday, has not hesitated to impose the narrow views of a narrow majority upon the entire American polity. Judges, interpreters of law, have become givers of law. Happily this is changing. The judicial legislators are retiring; judges of more modest temper — happy to give the law the meaning intended by its makers — take their places.

"Today," Sen. Biden told the nominee, "our nation, our Constitution, as interpreted by the Court, is at a cross roads ... Judge Souter because of the close division on the Court on the meaning of (various) constitutional guarantees..."

Sen. Kennedy was more truculent: "There is little in (Judge Souter's) record that demonstrates real solicitude for the rights of those who are weakest and most powerless in our society..."

Still, the court is changing, moving back toward restraint and respect for precedent and the deliberations of elected lawmakers.

Sex abuse probe rocks reservation

WASHINGTON — The Havasupai Indian Reservation on the floor of the Grand Canyon looks like paradise to the visitor. But it's hell on Earth for some who live there. Federal agents assigned to monitor the reservation would rather quit than stay there. Some would rather be dead.

Anderson

Six of the last seven Bureau of Indian Affairs police officers assigned there have resigned their post at Havasupai. Three of them attempted suicide. One succeeded.

The statistics offer a glimpse into the nature of life on Indian reservations where alcoholism, unemployment and boredom are constant companions. The latest scourge is child sexual abuse — some of it at the taxpayer-funded schools, including allegations that have recently come to light at the elementary school on the Havasupai reservation.

Sources familiar with investigations into child abuse at Havasupai and elsewhere say it is no wonder that the reservations have a problem. Havasupai is a steep eight-mile horse ride into the canyon from civilization or what the Indians simply call "the top." From the canyon rim to the nearest major highway is another 63 miles. The mail comes in by mule. The phones are unreliable. Almost no one polices the 575 members of the tribe who live there.

Despite reports as early as last November that a teacher at the elementary school may have been sexually abusing pupils, it took four months of vintage bureaucratic miscommunication before the FBI took over the investigation. The teacher will go on trial in October on 10 counts of sexual abuse.

Our associate Jim Lynch has learned that the delay was caused by "confusion" between the FBI and the Bureau of Indian Affairs over which agency should take the lead in the investigation.

The FBI agent with jurisdiction over Havasupai reportedly doesn't have enough clerical help. Paper flow is at a standstill, and there is no formal communication between the FBI and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Perhaps the most disturbing thing about the Havasupai investigation is that the tribe was the last to know about the investigation. The community is now questioning the credibility of the Tribal Council. The council has asked for help on the child abuse problem, but the Bureau of Indian Affairs has not responded to the council's satisfaction. The U.S. attorney isn't talking about the case. The parents of the alleged victims are confused. And Havasupai is in the dark, ashamed and afraid.

The story of bungled investigations on reservations is an old one. In 1987, Hopi Reservation English teacher John Boone was sentenced to life in prison on child molestation charges. FBI agents found Boone's own chart describing sex with 142 boys. There had been earlier hints of Boone's crimes, but the FBI and the Bureau of Indian Affairs didn't pick up on those hints.

At a Sept. 5 hearing in Phoenix, an official om the Hopi Special Child Sexual Abuse Project said the situation is getting worse. "We have seen 4-year-olds with sexually transmitted diseases," she told McCain's committee. She told of abused children who then molest others including a 13-year-old boy who raped five 7-year-old girls.

The problem is not confined to the isolated desert Southwest. Indian officials in Michigan report that as many as 20 percent of the youths in some tribal communities have been sexually abused.

CHARLEY REESE

Not 'America First' but 'America at Last'

The future of America, and to some extent peace in the world, depends on the United States returning to its republican roots and disavowing corporate colonialism.

Reese

The foreign policy put forward by George Washington is neither archaic, impractical nor out of date. On the contrary, the current policy of corporate colonialism is out of date. Day by day it fails before our eyes. It is this policy of colonialism which masquerades as internationalism or globalism which has bankrupted and bled the United States.

Washington's prescription, libeled as isolationism by the modern colonialists, consisted of trade and fair relations with any nation which desired it, while refraining from interfering in the internal affairs of other nations or involving ourselves in their quarrels.

But to return to this sane, logical and moral policy will require practically a political revolution in the U.S.

Colonialism is deeply imbedded across the political spectrum and well-financed by the global corporations that benefit from it.

Decades of colonialist propaganda in which American nationalism was deliberately played down or disparaged have been effective. Americans who a few weeks ago had never heard of Saddam Hussein and who couldn't have found Kuwait on a plastic globe are now howling for war. They have been easily and suddenly convinced that the leader of Iraq is a threat to world peace and the American way of life. As ambitious as he is, he is not that ambitious, I assure you. A nation which could not defeat Iran, which has fewer people than the New York City metropolitan area, is hardly a threat to the world.

I was greatly amused when a man, presumably mature and educated, justified the war cry by saying, "We can't let those people control our oil."

There you have the colonialist mindset personified. First of all, whatever we desire is ours regardless in whose country it happens to be located. The desires of the people who actually own the resource are not even a consideration. It follows therefore that if they dare be other than docile and obedient, then, by God, we'll club them into submission. Aside from the immorality of imperialism, and that's what it amounts to, there are a number of pragmatic disadvantages.

One, if force and intimidation are to be your principal means of persuasion, then you have to go to the enormous expense of maintaining that force, generation after generation. It far exceeds a force necessary for legitimate defense of national interests.

Two, people who are bullied and manipulated naturally develop hatred and resentment and it's only a matter of when, not if, payback time arrives.

Three, the drain on resources necessary to be a world-class meddler, with bribes to be paid and arms to be kept up, inevitably leads to internal decay.

Keep in mind as you hear all this brave talk by the Bush administration and its little army of propagandists about a new post-Cold War world order, that the U.S. standard of living is declining, major American cities are becoming unlivable, and the ever-increasing pile of debt, public and private, has already reached the unpayable stratosphere. Medical care and housing are floating out of the reach of increasing numbers of Americans — like boats drifting out of the reach of people treading water.

These American world order types are like the foolish aristocrats who imagined the British Empire would last for centuries when it was already crumbling under their polished shoes. They are arrogant as hell but not very smart or educated in the true sense of the word.

We must leave the problems of the Middle East, Africa, Latin America, Europe, Asia, and the Pacific to those people and try to sort out and concentrate on solving the problems of our Northeast, the South, the Midwest, the Southwest, and the West.

After all these decades of internationalism, our motto ought to be not "America First" but "America at Last."

LEWIS GRIZZARD

Why not 'America's Funniest Paragraphs'?

Occasionally a brilliant notion hits me. I was watching "America's Funniest Home Videos" on television.

That is where people make videos of funny things that go on at home and send them in so the rest of the country can enjoy their hijinks, too.

Grizzard

A member of a farm family holds onto a pig's tail and the pig runs and the person on the other end skis through the mud and slop in the pig pen. Great television.

Or, you can send in a video of the family dog, Harold, playing a kazoo while balancing a jar of mayonnaise on its head. I never miss "America's Funniest Home Videos."

But it occurred to me, why couldn't this column have "America's Funniest Home Paragraphs"?

People do funny things at home and send in descriptive paragraphs and I run the best ones. If it works on television, why couldn't it work in the newspaper?

It would go something like this:

From Waldo Pickleman in Six-Pack, Ark.:

"The other day my wife, Senora, was vacuuming the house and the vacuum cleaner got clogged up. She was looking down into the hose to see what was the matter, and, suddenly, it got unclogged and sucked her whole face right down into the hose. It was the funniest thing since the hogs ate my little brother.

"We had to call the fire department to get her head out of the hose. They say she'll be able to hear again as soon as her ears pop back out on the side of her head."

Thanks, Waldo. Now, Pansy Posey from Dead Dawg, Ala.:

"The other day, during the Annual Dead Dawg Doodle Bug Festival, Mayor Arlo Finch was making a speech on the courthouse square and his suspenders broke and his pants fell down in front of everybody in town, and you ought to have heard 'em howl when they seen he was wearing pantyhose."

Next we hear from Dr. Grover Gonzales of Spinal Tap, Ariz.:

"I'm the local chiropractor and a patient came in complaining of lower back pain. I put him into traction, and just to see what would happen, I put him in upside down. He doesn't have any lower back pain anymore, but now he has to walk on all fours and I charged him $400. Hey, I was the class clown at Bilbo's School of Chiropractic and Embalming."

You crack us all up, Doc.

Now, Minerva Rodderman, Oil Creek, N.J.:

"My cat eats worms."

Thanks, Minerva.

What about you, Slim Whitman, Nashville, Tenn.:

"I sit on my porch naked at night and yodel rap music."

Amazing.

Gilbert Farnsworthy, Popcorn, Neb.:

"I make a real funny sound by cupping my hand underneath my armpits."

Finally, on "America's Funniest Home Paragraphs," we hear this from Barney Naselmeyer, Marlboro-Lucky Strike, N.C.:

"When Grandpa goes to bed, he always takes out his false teeth and puts them in a glass in the bathroom. I snuck in there and glued them things shut with Krazy Glue.

"Enclosed is a photograph of Grandpa trying to gum a pickle a couple of weeks before he sort of dried up and the Lord called him home."

That's funny, Barney.

Next on "America's Funniest Home Paragraphs" we'll hear from a man who ate his La-Z-Boy recliner.

I think I have a hit on my hands.

Cystic fibrosis defect corrected in test tube

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have corrected a crucial defect in cells taken from cystic fibrosis patients, a step called a milestone toward eventually treating the disease through gene therapy or new kinds of medication.

The cells carried the abnormal gene that causes cystic fibrosis, and researchers fixed the defect by giving them a normal copy of the gene.

"It's a milestone," said Paul Quinton, a cystic fibrosis researcher at the University of California, Riverside, who was familiar with the work.

While the notion of gene therapy for cystic fibrosis was science fiction only a few years ago, the new work has "pressed the fiction closer to reality," he said.

4 servicemen identified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon Thursday disclosed the identities of four American servicemen killed in Laos during the Vietnam War whose remains were recovered last January.

The remains are to depart Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii, with full military honors on Friday and will be flown to Travis Air Force Base, Calif.

The men, Army members, all were lost on March 5, 1971. Their remains were found during a Jan. 5-10, 1990, joint excavation effort by the U.S. and Lao governments.

They were identified as David L. Nelson of Kirkland, Wash., Ralph A. Moreira, Jr., of Beaver Falls, Pa., Joel C. Hatley of Albemarle, N.C., and Michael E. King of Calhoun, Ga.

'Retired' plane crashes

MARANA, Ariz. (AP) — A Boeing 707 crashed and caught fire Thursday while taking off en route to an aircraft graveyard at nearby Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, killing one crew member and injuring two.

The plane was taking off from Pinal Air Park when it made a sharp right turn and the right wing hit the ground, said David Fowler, president of the Evergreen Air Center Inc., which operates the airport for Pinal County.

The plane cartwheeled, the front section broke off and the plane caught fire, he said.

All four of the plane's engines were scattered on the ground, and the fuselage's front section was nearly severed from the rest of the wreckage.

Seven Arizona National Guardsmen from a nearby installation helped rescue the plane's crew and later were taken to a Tucson hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation.

Ex-press editor hired

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A news editor fired from the Baptist Press news agency will head up an alternative news service organized by moderate Baptists, officials announced Thursday.

"The appointment of Dan Martin assures Baptist editors and the public at large that news will be reported fully and fairly," said Charles Overby, chairman of the Associated Baptist Press' board of directors.

Martin, 51, and Alvin C. Shackleford were fired July 17 in a closed meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention's executive committee.

STATE IN BRIEF

Seniors angry with Williams

AUSTIN (AP) — Senior citizens blasted GOP gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams Thursday for pulling out of a forum with his Democratic rival sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons.

AARP-VOTE, the group's voter education program, cancelled the Sept. 25 candidate forum after Williams withdrew, according to a letter distributed at a news conference. The Republican and Democrat Ann Richards were to appear separately.

"Where is Clayton Williams?" asked Walter Richter, chairman of the Travis County Democratic Party. "He needs to come off the television screen and meet Ann Richards and the voters of Texas."

Liz Carpenter, former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson, said, "Anyone who would welch out on talking about older issues ... is letting down the older people of this state."

Morales' plan questioned

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Rep. Dan Morales on Thursday said he plans to open legislative committee hearings next month to consider possible criminal penalties for corporate polluters.

Morales, D-San Antonio, denied his plan is connected to his race for attorney general. However, a spokesman for his Republican opponent, state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, questioned Morales' "newly found interest in the environment" two months before the election.

Morales, chairman of the House Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence, said he called the Oct. 3 hearing at the request of several environmental policy groups.

"We're talking about the imposition of jail terms and the imposition of prison time," Morales said.

"If we're serious as a state about preventing this sort of activity, about deterring this sort of activity, I think much more significant disincentives are going to have to be involved," he said.

Tax returns scrutinized

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Nikki Van Hightower, the Democratic nominee for state treasurer, on Thursday accused her Republican opponent, Kay Bailey Hutchison, of poor management of her personal debt. Hutchison countered with a line-up of former Democratic elected officials who are supporting her in the Nov. 6 general election.

Van Hightower said Hutchison's 1989 tax returns showed one-third of her $359,000 income went to pay interest on her debt. "In my opinion, this is the kind of debt management Texas can do without," Van Hightower said in a Capitol news conference.

Hutchison, in a later news conference, said she was proud that she and her husband, Ray Hutchison, were paying off their debts, which stemmed from a land development partnership that, like many others in recent years, deteriorated with falling real estate prices.

"I consider it an honorable thing that we would never walk away from a loan," she said.

Clean campaign urged

AUSTIN (AP) — State highway officials are warning political candidates to stop waging dirty campaigns.

The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation has notified office seekers that the campaign trail should not be littered with campaign signs.

In other words, "Don't Mess with Texas" applies to Texas politicians too.

"Safety concerns and litter control laws dictate that we keep the rights of way free of clutter," Arnold Oliver, director of the agency said.

State and federal laws prohibit posting campaign signs along highways and rights of way, Oliver said.

State trooper buried

WEBSTER, Texas (AP) — Nearly 1,000 mourners, including hundreds of police officers, crammed into a Houston-area church Thursday to pay final respects to slain rookie Department of Public Safety Officer Mark Phebus.

Phebus, 23, was gunned down early Monday in Montgomery County when he stopped at what he believed was a traffic accident but really was a domestic disturbance.

A 43-year-old Spring man, Richard Leland Jordan, is charged with capital murder and remains at large.

Gun wait considered

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston City Council is starting an effort to win approval from the Texas Legislature to impose a seven-day waiting period for people buying handguns in the city.

State law now does not allow cities to regulate the sale of firearms, and the state's powerful gun lobby twice blocked Fort Worth's efforts in the 1980s to get a waiting period.

FALL Home and Garden 90

Dig in during fall for next spring's garden

Fall is nature's reminder to get ready for winter. Trees, plants, birds and animals are all busy storing food in preparation for the long, cold days ahead. The seasoned gardener helps the process along, knowing that what is planted today will bring a bountiful reward next spring.

According to the Garden Council, fall is as busy a time as spring. The garden must be cleaned, repaired and prepared to minimize the effects of winter and maximize the enjoyment of spring. While it might seem like a long time to wait until your efforts start to bloom, the fall gardener has learned it's easier to work the soil during Indian Summer than to face the icy blasts of a fickle spring.

Let insects and garden pests freeze this winter. Clean up vegetable gardens and annual beds and cut back the foliage on perennials when frost has bent their heads. This will leave bugs without a leaf to hide under. Speaking of leaves, be sure to rake thoroughly. Besides harboring insects, a mat of leaves will smother your lawn if left for spring cleaning.

Do a thorough weeding. Weeds are loaded with seeds in fall and are anxious to return next season. Also inspect for weak or diseased plants. It's better to eliminate them than to have them infect or take energy from other plants.

Trees and shrubs should also be inspected for dead wood, infected limbs and crossing branches. Prune them back for a healthier plant. Pruning will improve shape and let the sun shine in. Overcrowding restricts sunlight and air circulation, which can then slow the plant's growth.

Get ready for easy spring planting with fall fertilization. Your vegetable and garden beds will be more productive if they are fed in the fall. Work fertilizer and composted organic matter into the soil before the ground freezes. You can do a pH test to see of you need to add lime. (See your local lawn and garden retailer for the proper formulas for various types of plantings.) As the soil freezes and thaws and absorbs melting snow and spring rains, the nutrients will be dispersed in time to feed your first plantings.

Fall planting is one of the secrets of a thriving landscape, advises the Garden Council. Lawns, trees and shrubs planted in early fall develop deep root systems that prepare them for the rigors of summer. And fall-planted bulbs and perennials rest up during their winter hibernation to thrill the gardener with the first signs of spring. The blue bells of grape hyacinths and the champagne-fluted crocus poking through the melting snow bring hope to the gardener on a dreary March day.

Mulch, used in spring and summer to control weed growth, becomes the great protector for plants wintering in your garden.

Create your own mulch from shredded tree branches, leaves and grass clippings that have not been treated with a weed killer. The texture should be open enough to let water and air get to the soil, but dense enough to block the sun. The twigs in the mulch will keep the leaves from matting on the ground, and allow water and air to get to the soil underneath. A wide selection of commercial mulches is also available at the garden center.

Once the cleaning, feeding and digging is done, all that's left is to start planning for next year. It won't be long before the garden catalogs start arriving and you want to be ready. All that's left is to start dreaming and planning.

Home improvements, weatherizing can save on energy costs

By Bill Lewellen

When the price of oil goes up most West Texans experience mixed emotions.

Lewellen

The hope of an upswing in the local economy as a result of increased productivity is dampened somewhat by increased prices at the gas pumps.

The effect of these increases is felt in many other areas of our lives. Energy costs tend to increase across the board. Higher fuel oil bills and electrical costs are sure to be experienced as we enter the winter heating season.

Many homes in this area have been upgraded to be more energy efficient as a result of fuel shortages and higher energy costs which jolted the country in the '70s. However, with the return of somewhat lower prices, weatherization has been a "back burner" priority for many home and business owners.

'Government studies have indicated that 70% of all heat loss is through the windows. That is single-pane windows which are to be found in a majority of the homes in this area. According to these studies, high quality storm windows properly installed can save as much as 25% or more on fuel bills.'

— Bill Lewellen, owner
Lewellen Construction Company

For those of us interested in saving some of our hard earned dollars, there are several steps we can take to save on fuel bills.

Government studies have indicated that 70% of all heat loss is through the windows. That is single-pane windows which are to be found in a majority of the homes in this area. According to these studies, high quality storm windows properly installed can save as much as 25% or more on fuel bills.

Storm windows by definition are a second window installed over existing prime windows. There are a variety of types available to duplicate the operation of existing windows -- i.e. single hung, sliders, picture windows, and even inside storm windows which are very effective on mobile homes.

To get the desired results these windows should be custom built to fit each opening, and should be well weatherstripped and sealed.

High quality storm windows have some excellent side benefits as well, such as noise abatement and reduction of air infiltration, which means a cleaner more comfortable environment inside your home.

Air infiltration in other locations around your home can be reduced by calking around existing windows and doors, dryer vents, hose bibs and any other object which penetrates the walls.

Many homes have little or no attic insulation. Adding to the existing, or installing a good quality layer of insulation in the attic will greatly reduce both heating and cooling costs. An additional layer of insulation installed under new siding is an excellent way to weatherize the exterior walls of your home.

When undertaking any or all of the above home improvements, as in any home improvement project it is very important to select a reputable contractor who specializes in the type of work you want done.

Bill Lewellen is owner of Lewellen Construction Company.

Collectibles can set a room's character

Associated Press

The collectibles you move in with may contribute as much to the decor as the paint, wallpaper, rugs and drapes. Pictures, boxes, or objets d'art may capture the eye first and determine a room's character.

Frames evoking classic styles like Victorian ceramics, Parisian silver, or sculptured Italian or Russian designs in a variety of metals that have been burnished, painted, or mirrored are offered by Dakin Terragrafics. "Not only have picture frames regained their elegance, evoking a time when photos of family members were a novelty and placed in intricately crafted silver casings, they have recently inspired a veritable explosion of new designs and materials," says Joseph E. Walsmith, the firm's president.

Fabric styles that are similar to English chintz designs, by I Was Framed, cover picture frames and are available with matching boxes for jewelry, hats, cosmetics, dishes, and other collectibles, as well as tissue dispensers, wastebaskets, albums, notebooks, music boxes and similar items. Most of the designs are florals, but the line also includes moires in pink or black.

From Diane Von Furstenberg come frames, desk accessories and paper tableware in bold animal prints. Her Nairobi collection features abstracts of leopard, tiger and zebra patterns on picture frames, address books, journals, albums, letter holders, stationery, paper plates, napkins and invitations.

Mulch helps prevent rose damage

By Jim Galyean

I have been involved with growing roses in Midland for 24 years. Last winter was the hardest for roses in those 24 years. I guess the most difficult to understand was the total damage suffered in March when I pruned and prepared for this year's growing season. I knew that lots of freeze damage was evident — numerous roses were lost — many bushes had three or more canes destroyed. After completing all the severe pruning and clean up, I accepted the damage and replaced several bushes.

Not until mid-May and early June was the total destruction understood. Several bushes leafed out and even bloomed, but with the start of hot weather the complete damage was discovered.

The reason I have explained all this damage is to make sure that everyone truly understands the importance of mulch — not just for roses but all blooming plants, softwood shrub, and other tender plants.

Now to the topic of roses and fall care — knowing that you have fed and watered your bushes all summer long, let's talk about the special things we can do to enjoy lots of big, beautiful, and colorful roses from September until Thanksgiving or until we have a hard freeze.

Feeding — Remember we always water our bushes before feeding, never feed a dry plant — after a good watering, prepare the following: liquid mix and put gallon per established bush. In a 30 gallon trash can, put one cup of rose food (Miracle Gro, Carl Poole, Peters), whatever your choice.

Now add 2 cups of fish emulsion and a half cup of liquid iron (check with your local nursery). The following week put 10 cups of alphalfa pellets in the 30 gallon trash can and fill with water. After 24 hours, remove the lid and stir — wait 24 hours and stir again — 24 hours stir again.

The following day, place 1 gallon of the alphalfa tea around each bush. This will not burn, but it will give your plants a great shot in the arm.

The last week of September repeat step one and let this be the final feeding for the year.

Spray — the biggest problem you will encounter is thrips — the little fellow who gets in the bud and makes your bloom ball, edges turn brown and look ugly. Get a small hand sprayer and put 1 tablespoon of vinegar, 2 drops of liquid soap and 2 tablespoon with water and spray the buds very completely — (only the buds). You must apply the spray before the bud shows color or you're too late.

Feeding and spraying as described should give you many beautiful blooms all fall.

Mulch — my opening comment should tell you how strongly I feel about mulch. Roses need a minimum of 3 inches of mulch and 4 to 5 inches will give you better protection. Your local nurseries have good mulch and it's very reasonably priced considering the cost to replace and replant new plants.

Should you experience Red Spider or black spot, please call me at 689-0776 for individual consultation — NO CHARGE.

Remove your blooms and enjoy your plants, but do no severe pruning. Allow the canes to harden and get ready for winter. Hardened canes and good leaf coverage will help to minimize freeze damage. Spent blooms should always be removed immediately after color is spent. Your bushes will handle the weather better and blooms will repeat more rapidly.

A rose seminar is being planned by the Midland Rose Society for January, 1991. More information will be available in the Midland Reporter-Telegram at a later time.

Jim Galyean is president of the Midland Rose Society.

Improve the soil

Additions of peat moss or a variety of fertilizers can help you adjust the soil quality in your lawn or garden.

Fertilizers make fine investment

Associated Press

Soils must do more than provide a home for plant roots. They must also supply nutrients for growth, such as nitrogen, phosphorus and potasium, plus micronutrients including copper, zinc, manganese, iron and molybdenum.

Garden fertilizers thus are a fine investment when you know the correct elements and quantities to apply.

In their natural state, soils rarely contain enough nutrients for the best growth of plants. Generally, it is necessary to supplement the earth's store of plant nutrients for the most vigorous lawn, abundant flowers or the greatest yield of tasty and nutritious vegetables. Plants use large amounts of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium, so these nutrients are most likely to be deficient in the soil.

The best way to know what fertilizer is needed is a soil test. Your county Cooperative Extension Service can help with this.

Soil experts advise that it is usually wasteful, perhaps even harmful, to use the wrong fertilizers. A soil test allows you to give your plants what they need in the most useful proportions.

How can you tell the proportion of each element in a fertilizer from the numbers on the bag? A mixture labeled 5-10-5, for instance, contains 5 percent total nitrogen, 10 percent available phosphoric oxide, and 5 percent soluble potash.

Most ordinary farm fertilizers are granulated or pelleted material. Some may be available in powdered or concentrated forms. Powdered types may not be desirable because they are too dusty. However, fertilizer concentrates in liquid form are readily available to the plants and can be applied to the foliage if diluted 100 times by volume with water.

Organic fertilizers also help. What are they? They are any biodegradable refuse such as animal manure, compost, leaves, weeds, straw, sawdust, wood chips, garbage, even paper.

Septic tanks require proper maintenance

By Nickey Grimes

Most people have heard of septic tanks, but not many know how they operate or how to maintain and keep them in good working order. Every residence in the county and some inside city limits use septic systems.

Grimes

Septic systems take the place of sewer services available to city dwellers. But unlike sewer systems, septic tanks must be cleaned periodically to maintain proper function.

'Septic systems take the place of sewer services available to city dwellers. But unlike sewer systems, septic tanks must be cleaned periodically to maintain proper function.'

— Nickey Grimes, owner AAA Septic Tank Service

A septic system consists of a tank, usually 500-750 gallons, and a drainfield. The tank is supposed to trap solid waste and let water pass on to the drainfield.

The drainfield consists of a network of perforated pipe laid in a bed of gravel rock. This allows free water flow and evaporation. These systems are very efficient and generally give their owners few problems.

However, the number one problem is not cleaning the tank on a regular basis. Time intervals between cleaning vary from system to system, depending on tank size, drainfield size and the number of people using the system.

Generally, a family of four will generate enough waste to fill the tank in one year. When a tank fills with solid waste and is not cleaned in time, the solid waste begins to fill the drainfield. Once this field becomes plugged, the owner has no choice but to have the drainfield dug up and replaced. This can cost up to $2,000.

Therefore, it is recommended that tanks be cleaned once a year to avoid a costly and unnecessary expense.

There are signs that can alert to having a septic tank cleaned, including slow drainage of toilet or tub around the house, dead spots in the drainfield area, soggy ground or standing water on the drainfield. Problems may also occur during periods of heavy rain.

When the ground becomes soaked, it slows the evaporation and tank drainage. Holidays can double the amount of waste being generated because of added guests in the home.

A system already in trouble will quit working with this added load and can cause an embarrassment to the host. Having a system checked before the holidays can prevent such a mishap.

A properly maintained septic system should last indefinitely. This will provide the owner with a low cost and efficient system of waste disposal.

Nickey Grimes is owner and operator of AAA Septic Tank Service.

Use conservation, ecological sense when gardening

By Faye K. Beery

The Midland Council of Garden Clubs works to improve interest in all phases of gardening and civic improvement and aids in the protection of native plants, trees and birds. Information about gardening and plant problems is available to the public on request.

Beery

Shortened daylight hours and cooling nights signals the onset of autumn to people and to plants. Trees are usually the most noticeable signs of fall.

When the balance of light, darkness and cooling temperatures reaches a certain point, deciduous trees respond by creating a barrier of corky cells sealing the tree's circulatory system off from the leaves. Deprived of nutrients and moisture, the chlorophyll breaks down and orange and yellow pigments become the dominant coloring in the leaves.

Reds and purples appear when a chemical reaction causes sugars to build up in the leaf during cool weather. Eventually, the leaf weakens, the colors disappear, and all the leaves fall.

A new gardening season has begun. Now is the time to help our little corner of earth prepare for the coming stress of winter. Feeding of plants should cease in September to allow plants to "harden off" and prevent any new growth from being damaged by an early frost, although they do need continued watering.

Now is the time to mulch. Mulching is one of the most important things you can do for your garden. About 3-4 inches of organic mulch will help keep soil temperatures even, keep moisture in, and adds nutrients to the soil.

Louisiana and Spuria irises can still be separated and the beds prepared with bonemeal or superphosphate, however, bearded irises should be left until late next summer. Trim the tops of the irises to 6 to 8 inches. They should be well drained (except for Louisiana irises which like to be wet).

The fall garden is a good way to have fresh vegetables during the cool months. Don't forget to plant garlic and other herbs. Many herbs contain natural insecticides, besides being a tasty addition to fresh vegetables.

Garlic is not only delicious in foods, but it is an excellent source of general insect control. Pureed garlic mixed with water makes an excellent spray for aphids, spider mites, whiteflies and other garden and houseplant pests.

Planted around fruit trees, it repels borers. Garlic oil or a clove placed in the rainbarrel will control mosquito larvae. The library or bookstore is a good place to look for books that give a complete rundown on herbs and their many uses.

Plants for fall color, such as pansies and mums are readily available in local nurseries. Some annuals such as snapdragons do well in cool weather and add color to the garden.

December is a good time to prune back evergreen trees. The sprigs can be used to decorate the house for the holiday season and leaves the house smelling great. When the needles start to turn brown put them in the flower beds to add compost to the soil.

A compost pile is an excellent source of organic fertilizer for the garden. Beginning one now if you do not already have one will ensure that a ready supply of organic material is ready for the spring garden or flower beds.

'Overwatering during the winter months can damage plants. Household plants are usually expensive, so knowing how to properly care for your plant is important. Cease feeding house plants to give them a "rest" during the winter months. Collect rainwater if possible for houseplants. They will do better in water that has a neutral pH.

— Faye K. Beery
Midland Council of Garden Clubs

Leaves, grass (without chemicals — chemicals will destroy microorganisms which compost the materials), kitchen scraps (except onions), tea bags, coffee grinds, milk from your cereal, are all components of a compost pile. It also helps reduce the amount of waste going to the landfill and is an excellent way to recycle.

Be sure to check on and bring in household plants that have been on the patio or in the garden during the summer. An early frost can damage or kill plants that are tropical in nature. Know your plants and know what kind of moisture content they need.

Overwatering during the winter months can damage plants. Household plants are usually expensive, so knowing how to properly care for your plant is important. Cease feeding house plants to give them a "rest" during the winter months. Collect rainwater if possible for houseplants. They will do better in water that has a neutral pH.

A neutral pH allows the greatest absorption of nutrients from the soil. If you must use unfiltered Midland water, using a little vinegar or citric acid will help lower the pH. The Extension Service can assist with water testing and water problems.

Make sure that your plants have adequate lighting if they are to continue growing in the house during the winter months. Indoor grow lights are available for practically any size plant.

Now is a good time to check with the garden centers for sales on gardening supplies. Tools, hoses, mulch, and fertilizers are usually on sale this time of year. Stock up now and you will be ready to meet the spring with the proper equipment.

The Midland Council of Garden Clubs supports organic gardening and conservation. We encourage citizens to conserve water and water lawns and plants in the early morning. Water deeply and infrequently. This lessens evaporation and gives plants water during the day when photosyntheses is at work.

Use mulch to keep moisture in and weeds out. Avoid the use of herbicides and pesticides. Biological controls and organic gardening can deter harmful insects and weeds. Chemicals are not only harmful to people, animals, and beneficial insects, but they eventually wind up in lakes, rivers, streams and groundwater.

Put out water and food for birds during the winter. Birdhouses also encourage birds to stay around your house and they will be there when insects appear in the spring.

The garden is one place on Earth that we can feel that we have made a positive impact. By carefully tending to our trees, flowers and their natural inhabitants, we can give back to the earth what we take from it. It is a small but important way of showing our respect for the natural wealth of our environment.

Solar technology has advanced tremendously in the past few years. If you have a greenhouse, consider solar heating. Many models are available. A solar ionizer is also available for swimming pools as an alternative for chemicals. Wolfe's Nursery carries a line of solar powered driveway lights.

The Midland Council of Garden Clubs encourages everyone to recycle as much as possible, reduce garbage volume and the use of hazardous household materials. Reuse whatever you can. Paper or plastic bags can be used at the stores and the grocery stores give rebates for reusing their bags.

The Council will host the Annual Fall Convention for the Texas State Garden Clubs in Midland Oct. 24 and 25. Programs are open to the public. A fee is charged. Anyone desiring more information on these programs or more information about the garden clubs can call 683-2358.

Decorating in your home: Match changing seasons with texture, color

By Ellen West

Your home — your special place of joy, of rest, of inspiration — the place of origin and completion of your deepest thoughts and dreams. Your home is a hideaway — your greeting place for the gathering of especially loved people in your life. Your home — and the building that houses it — can be forever fresh.

Consider the aspect of home decorating and your preference for period and style. If things seem to grow stale, bring the garden inside with the help of artificial plants. Commonly called "silks," (although many different fibers are now in use) these plants can give new expression to every room.

I like to suggest staring with a basic arrangement of green foliage, complete within itself. With a little strategy, you can have a fresh, new look for each season.

Start with a basic green arrangement. Fast on the horizon is autumn. Take the basic green arrangement and drop it in the brightness of the autumn sun, using stems of mums, berries, gourds, vines and pumpkins or sunflowers. Create a harvest of color and variety.

When winter nears, tuck away your silk stems and replace them with poinsettias, berries, cones, grasses, leaves, nuts and a jingling of bells intermingled with a sprinkling of holiday glitz and ribbon for a festive party glow.

When the holidays are past, create a riot of color in your basic green arrangement. With spring comes tulips, iris, daffodils, forsythia, jonquils, vibrant velvet pansies, dogwood, azaleas, hydrangea and bluebonnets.

'Consider the aspect of home decorating and your preference for period and style. If things seem to grow stale, bring the garden inside with the help of artificial plants.'

Exit spring and enter leisure. Use summer impatiens, geraniums, begonias, crepe myrtle, bougainvillas, roses, daisies, periwinkles, caladiums, zinnias, petunias, amarillis or field flowers. It's amazing how a wild abundance of summer silk flowers can create a feeling of quietness that feels cool, gentle, subtle and peaceful.

Also, never underestimate the importance of candles and home fragrance in order to complete a seasonal atmosphere. Incorporate them into your florals.

An adventure into silks begins an investment which pays dividends daily, seasonally and for many years to come.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A support group will play a major role in your success in the months ahead. Look forward to romance becoming more rewarding, starting in November. January 1991 could bring a lucrative job offer that necessitates a move to another city. A new investment program will pay off nicely in March. Avoid tying up too much of your capital. A class reunion leads to the renewing of old ties. You see the past in a different light.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Henry Gibson, actor Larry Hagman, author Stephen King, actor Bill Murray.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Innovative proposals win widespread approval now. Top management may bypass the middlemen to get your idea moving. Protect your flank. A blind date could give your ego a boost.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Working with children proves particularly rewarding today. Be choosy when selecting people to help you on a special project. A first-class employment agreement can be reached.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A retirement plan needs study and revision. Consult with someone who has more experience. A jealous member of the opposite sex could deliberately misinterpret something you said.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): There is a direct connection between travel and the success of a new business venture. A creative project helps open important doors. Show that you know how to delegate authority.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Resentment can get in the way of progress. Forget past grievances. Social success requires more give on your part. Your intellectual curiosity makes you very attractive to a newcomer.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The way you present a new idea will determine its chances for success. Build a better work wardrobe. Teens deserve the special guidance that will help prepare them for adult life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Postpone an important meeting until you can prepare a stronger case. The principals will understand. Examine your career choices carefully. Review a co-worker's recent actions for insights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do what you can today and plan to start afresh on Monday. If considering a career change, focus on the fringe benefits connected with a new job. They may be worth a lot!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not allow jealousy to eat away at you. Be honest with your mate and let the chips fall where they may. You will lose a battle or two but win the war.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An unreasonable relative may be doing you a big favor. Take a spur-of-the-moment trip. Parents find their children are sympathetic to their financial problems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If you feel unfulfilled by your present work, launch an active job search. You thrive on competition. Romance moves in mysterious ways. Pampering your mate will bring big dividends.

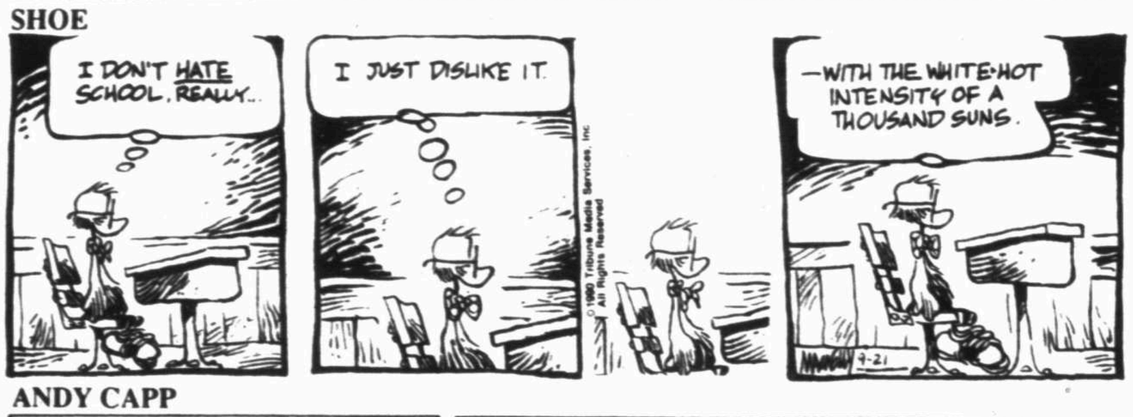

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Review your bills and budget before purchasing that luxury item. Even the sale price could be too high. Listen to what someone is trying to tell you! You could find new romance.

TODAY'S CHILDREN will have lots of ideas of their own and care little about what their peers are doing. They tend to accept the standards of the adult community and prefer to dress on the conservative side. These youngsters are much more interested in starting trends than following them! Born collectors, these Virgos tend to have attractively cluttered homes. Antiques and rare books will hold special appeal. Their attention to detail makes these Virgos excellent mathematicians, engineers, communications analysts and medical technicians.

It is not always easy to spot the source of the missing trick that is needed for the contract. Where do you suppose declarer unearthed the fulfilling trick on this deal?

North's bidding can only be explained by the fact that this hand was dealt in a post-prandial game where good wine flowed freely. We doubt that we would have competed with two spades on the North hand, and certainly would not have contributed anything thereafter to the auction. Still, who are we to quarrel with success?

West led the king of hearts and continued with queen and another. That was good news for South, because a hand which looked to have virtually no chance had risen like a phoenix from the ashes. For his opening bid East surely held the king of spades and probably the jack as well. Indeed, if he started specifically with K J x or K J doubleton in spades, the contract was almost laydown.

Declarer ruffed the third heart high, cashed the ace of diamonds and then overtook the queen with dummy's king to gain entry for a finesse of the ten of spades. When that held, declarer returned to the board by overtaking the five of diamonds with the six, and this time finessed the queen of spades.

When that also won, as expected, declarer cashed the ace of spades and held his breath. Both defenders followed and the table's nine of spades had become a winner. The carefully preserved two of diamonds was overtaken by the four to allow declarer to discard the club loser on the good spade. Making five-odd.

Reagans visit with pope

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Former U.S. President Ronald Reagan met with Pope John Paul II on Thursday as Reagan finished his European tour.

The pope warmly greeted Reagan and his wife, Nancy, clasping their hands as he led them into his library in the 17th century Papal Palace in this town in the Alban Hills, 12-miles south of Rome.

"God bless America," the pope said as they departed.

No details were given on the 30 minutes of private talks. But the changing face of Europe, with the downfall of communist-dominated governments, was expected to be high on the agenda.

Reagan has previously stopped in John Paul's native Poland as well as the Soviet Union and East and West Germany.

It was Reagan's fifth meeting with John Paul since 1982 but his first visit to this town overlooking Lake Albano used by popes as a vacation residence.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — It took two months for actor Paul Sorvino, who considers himself "soft and sweet," to nail down the tough-guy character he plays in Martin Scorsese's mob movie "GoodFellas."

"The problem was to find the remorselessness with which he conducts his business, so that with the lift of an eyebrow he can order someone's homicide as easily as he might order the asparagus," Sorvino said.

After two months of preparation to portray the sinister Brooklyn Mafia chieftain Paulie Cicero, Sorvino thought, "I wasn't gonna make it.

"I said, 'I'm not going to be very good in this movie.' I just don't know what this fellow is," he said in an interview this week at the Regent Beverly Wilshire Hotel. "He is a quiet and deadly human being and I'm exactly the opposite. I'm gregarious and soft and sweet."

It finally came to him.

"So I happened to look in the mirror this one day after two months of failure and ... I startled myself. It was frightening. I saw a look in my eye that I had never seen.

"It was beyond anger, you see. I've played things where I needed to be very angry, but to do it without anything — dead in the eyes — that took a long time to find."

Sorvino stars in the just-released movie with Ray Liotta, Robert De Niro and Joe Pesci.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Writer George Plimpton has played a quarterback in the pros, pitched to major leaguers and boxed against a champion.

But he said his most frightening experience in "participatory journalism" was playing percussion with the New York Philharmonic.

"In music, you can't make a mistake," Plimpton said Wednesday. "In music, if you make a mistake, you destroy something — you destroy a piece of art."

After Plimpton had played the sleigh bells in one New York Philharmonic performance, he said, conductor Leonard Bernstein rushed at him, saying he had destroyed the symphony.

"My knowledge of music is extremely skimpy," Plimpton said. "I was standing there shivering with dismay."

He later redeemed himself with a powerful blast to the gong, Plimpton said. He said Bernstein praised him by saying, "My God, I don't think anybody's ever hit a gong as hard as that."

Plimpton, 63, made his observations while speaking to about 1,200 people at Peony Park. He said his brief experience in the boxing ring with knockout king Archie Moore undoubtedly provided the fighter an unusual experience as well.

"He had never been in the ring with somebody both bleeding and weeping."

When he's not sampling other people's professions, Plimpton edits the Paris Review, a literary quarterly.

Trump

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Trump wants to delay his loan payments on his Trump Shuttle airline, according to a published report today.

The reported request comes less than a month after the beleaguered real estate-gambling entrepreneur designed a $65 million bank bailout critical to keeping his empire afloat.

Trump and two aides met Wednesday with officials from Citibank, asking the bank to restructure $245 million in debt payments still due on the shuttle, which provides service on the Boston-New York-Washington corridor, The Wall Street Journal reported.

The story said Trump argued that soaring fuel costs and a soft Northeast economy have made the airline unprofitable.

The story said that while Trump probably will be able to meet a forthcoming $1.1 million interest payment, he is not expected to be able to keep up with payments of about $30 million due in the next 12 months.

Sierra Spring Water vs. Water Stores "Their Final Product Is Our First Step"

Q: Is there really a difference in what I can get at a water store and Sierra Spring Water?

A: Definitely. One big difference is the bottle itself. Our bottles are washed at temperatures in excess of 130 degrees. In addition, as soon as it is washed, it is filled and sealed in a controlled environment meeting FDA specifications.

Q: What about the water? Is there a difference there too?

A: YES. In fact, their final product is just our first step. Most water stores sell RO water. The reverse osmosis process takes whatever is in the water and reduces the concentration. So, the contents and levels of those contents in RO water simply depends on the make up of the water going in. That results in an inconsistent product. Because RO water is only our starting point, we control the quality of our end product.

Q: How do you make your drinking water?

A: After reverse osmosis, our water goes through an ion exchange process known as deionization. This takes out virtually ALL the dissolved solids in the water. Then, we take the purified water and blend certain minerals back in to produce an inexpensive facsimile of mountain spring water.

Q: Don't you also have spring water?

A: Yes, we have the largest variety of waters available in this area. We bring our spring water all the way from Arkansas. In addition to spring and drinking water, we also have steam distilled and even reverse osmosis water available.

Q: Are there any other differences between Sierra Spring Water Company and the water stores?

A: Just the obvious - home delivery. Sierra's home delivery service is still the most convenient way to have great tasting water in your home.

Q: How do I get Sierra in my home?

A: Just call the number below, we would love the opportunity to serve you.

Local airline service threatened

Flights out of Midland International Airport could be severely affected by proposed Federal Aviation Administration cuts set to take off Oct. 1, an airport official said Thursday.

Through the Gramm-Rudman act, FAA employees at 41 airports would work four instead of five days a week as part of an effort to reduce the nation's festering budget deficit.

As a result, the reductions through the work furloughs would limit the amount of commercial air traffic at the 41 airports, said Hugh Lyon, an FAA spokesman based in Fort Worth.

The FAA employees would include air traffic controllers, air security personnel and aircraft maintenance inspectors, he said.

Although Midland International Airport is not included on the list, the cuts would affect FAA employees at major airports in Dallas, Houston, Albuquerque and Phoenix, Lyon said.

Smaller airports like Midland International likely would be affected because flights to and from the larger airports could be delayed or canceled, Lyon said.

In Texas, Dallas-Fort Worth, Dallas Love Field, Houston Intercontinental and Houston Hobby airports are included on the list.

"I assume it would affect flights (in Midland)," Lyon said. "But it would affect flight traffic less there than in Chicago or Dallas-Fort Worth.

"If there are delays, they would be short-term delays at Midland."

Lyon said the deficit-reduction measures in Gramm-Rudman would affect the FAA for about five months.

The mandatory cuts, however, may not take place if FAA, congressional and White House officials can hammer out a compromise agreement before Oct. 1, the start of the 1991 fiscal year.

"The administration and the leaders of the Congress are working on this every day," Lyon said. "It's a budget-balancing situation that must be dealt with."

Marcy Blauvelt, supervisor of Midland International administrative services, said the FAA cuts elsewhere could have a drastic effect here.

"The Gramm-Rudman act could affect our economy," Ms. Blauvelt said. "I think it's absolutely ridiculous.

"It could cripple our air transportation system. We're already facing a soft economy."

She said airport officials today plan to show their opposition to the Gramm-Rudman cuts by firing off telegrams to political leaders in Washington, D.C.

"We're shocked they would even think to cut back on our air traffic system," Ms. Blauvelt said.

There are 22 employees, all but one of whom are air traffic controllers, in FAA offices in Midland.

Patricia Petosky, an FAA air traffic manager here, said she and her employees are still worried about their jobs and are keeping their fingers crossed that congressional negotiations are successful.

"When you're a government employee you learn to go with the flow as far as what Congress is going to do," Ms. Petosky said.

The FAA said the 40,000 flights that are normally handled by the 41 airports on an average day would be cut by 6,000. It said cancellations and delays could rise dramatically during bad weather.

"The Gramm-Rudman reductions would cut deeply into the muscle of the Federal Aviation Administration, as well as other government agencies," said FAA administrator James B. Busey.

Robert J. Aaronson, president of the Air Transport Association, which represents the nation's major air carriers, said the plan will force "drastic cuts."

"The proposed reduction will be terribly disruptive to the nation's air transport system, its passengers and shippers," Aaronson said, contending the situation illustrates that FAA's air control functions cannot be operated efficiently "as long as the agency is the captive of the federal civil service and budget systems."

But he said the possibility that cutbacks will take effect is real and that airlines have already begun planning to deal with it.

The FAA said that if the budget cuts take hold it would have to furlough each of its 17,200 controllers for two days every two weeks, an overall manpower reduction of 25 percent on any given day.

The FAA calculated the maximum amount of traffic the reduced force of air controllers could handle safely at each of the 41 airports.

For example, Busey said that while 98 landings are scheduled during the busiest hour at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, the maximum number that could be handled safely with a reduced force of air controllers is 70. Twenty eight landings would have to be canceled, a reduction of 29 percent.

Ninety takeoffs are scheduled at O'Hare during its busiest hour but the most air controllers could handle is 60. Thirty would be canceled, a 33 percent reduction.

"The Gramm-Rudman act could affect our economy....It could cripple our air transportation system.'

Claydesta named in suit

■ The $1 million lawsuit claims loan policies at Claydesta National Bank of Midland — a controlling interest of which is held by Midland oilman Clayton Williams — violate state anti-trust laws.

Clayton Williams Jr.

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Four Houston car buyers have filed a lawsuit against ClayDesta National Bank of Midland for allegedly forcing the car buyers to buy insurance as a condition of their loan approval.

The class-action lawsuit, filed Wednesday in state district court in Austin, seeks $1 million on behalf of four Houston-area car buyers, but their lawyer said as many as 1,000 other car buyers in Houston and Dallas may join the suit.

The plaintiffs allege they were coerced into buying credit life and disability insurance from a company that paid 50 percent of the premiums to ClayDesta National Bank, in which Clayton Williams, the Republican candidate for governor, owns controlling interest.

The plaintiffs claim in the suit that because they bought the insurance as a condition of securing a car loan, ClayDesta violated the Texas Anti-Trust Act.

Also named as defendants in the suit were Service Life & Casualty Insurance Co., Houston loan broker Lloyd Williams and his company, Compliance Labs Inc.

The suit alleges:

■ The Texas Insurance Code was violated because Lloyd Williams and Compliance Labs are not licensed to sell insurance.

■ The Texas Deceptive Trade Practice and Consumer Protection Act was violated because window stickers were removed from automobiles to conceal their true price and a $650 broker's fee paid in each transaction was not disclosed in the loan agreements.

■ The Texas Consumer Credit Code was violated by the alleged concealment of the broker's fee.

The Williams campaign had no comment and referred inquiries to David Jones, president of the bank, who issued a statement that denied wrongdoing.

Sex education — 'too little, too late'?

■ A nationwide teacher survey reveals community pressure keeps public school students' sex education classes overly 'scientific' and 'conservative.'

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Sex education is a controversial topic. Some parents believe that the less said, the better.

However, in the wake of AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome), sexually transmitted diseases, and high rates of teen pregnancies, some teachers and parents say current sex education curriculum is "too little, too late," according to a recent statewide study.

The Alan Guttmacher Institute of New York conducted three surveys in 1988. One nationwide survey (of 9,800 teachers in disciplines most likely to teach sex education) indicated that there was a gap between what teachers teach and what they think should be taught.

About 97 percent of teachers surveyed said that sex education classes should address where students can go to obtain a method of birth control, but only 48 percent of teachers are in schools where this form of instruction is permitted.

The survey indicated that a majority of the nation's schools deal with homosexuality, "safe sex" practices and ethical issues surrounding abortion — issues considered taboo in many school districts.

Teachers regard pressure from parents, the community or the school administration as the major problem they face in providing sex education. Other problems cited included the lack of appropriate materials on the subject, and students' reactions or lack of interest.

Jane Hellinghausen, director of Education and Community Development for Planned Parenthood of West Texas, Inc., said the burden of teaching sex education shouldn't fall on teachers alone. "Parents should be the primary teachers of sex education, but sometimes they just don't want to talk about it," she said.

In Midland, sex education per se, is not really taught.

"We really teach growth development," said Ron Hunt, coordinator of Human Resource, Health, Physical Education and Driver Education for Midland Independent School District (MISD). "Growth development begins in kindergarten," Hunt said. "It discusses learning to share, and later may discuss that boys are different than girls, so they have separate bathrooms."

MISD curriculum integrates sex education into the science courses, according to Jan Artley, who said the material is basically clinical. "The words 'sex education' are an overstatement," she said. "We approach it from a scientific perspective and may discuss the reproductive system along with other body systems."

Ms. Artley, MISD science coordinator, said that approaching material — which may be perceived as sexual — in a scientific manner keeps it from becoming personal and embarrassing students. "Even if parents or teachers are wonderfully open, knowledgeable and well meaning, their children or students may not want to talk about it," she said.

Ms. Artley said AIDS discussions are integrated into a science section which discusses viruses and reproduction is discussed from the standpoint of it "being a natural process."

Hunt said that the boys and girls are separated in the fifth grade to discuss such topics as "Am I Normal," and menstruation.

He said most of the curriculum, however, is based on growth development and is "conservative" in tone. Hunt said AIDS, STDs and abstinence are also discussed.

"Towards the end of the year in the seventh grade we use videos to discuss how to say 'no,' to peer pressure," Ms. Artley said. "The videos offer little vignettes on saying no to drugs or sex without losing face or being a nerd."

Several MISD teachers and administrators admitted that "sexual awareness" material was limited in scope. One high school teacher, who asked that her name not be used, said that she agreed with teachers in the national survey who said sexual education in the schools is "too little, too late."

Ms. Hellinghausen of Planned Parenthood said when teachers and parents are reluctant to discuss sex, it limits the resources students have of finding out about sex.

"Planned Parenthood offers resources for children and parents," she said. "Kids need some place to go for information other than their friends who are often so full of misinformation."

She said parents should be the primary educators of their children. "But, the reality is that parents don't always want to talk about sex," she said.

Ms. Hellinghausen said some churches in Midland and Odessa offer "wonderful family life education and sex education programs." She said the scientific information offered in Midland and Odessa school districts was "good information, but it doesn't really help teens to protect themselves or offer them enough refusal skills."

"Families and churches teach moral issues," Ms. Hellinghausen said. "We try to teach about sex from the health and education standpoint. We don't support teens having sex, but the reality is that some will become engaged in having sex."

For parents interested in obtaining sex education materials, Planned Parenthood has video tapes, newsletters, student research packets, brochures and current research articles available.

Parents or groups can be instructed on how to discuss sexual topics. Some new curriculum covers such topics as "Teaching Safer Sex," "New Vision: A Culturally Sensitive Life Planning Curriculum," "How to Help Your Teenager Postpone Sexual Involvement," "Teenage Pregnancy" and "Programs to Promote Sexual Responsibility Among Young Males."

For information on sexual education materials from Planned Parenthood call 563-2530 or (915) 333-4133 or visit the Odessa office at 910-B South Grant.

Ex-firefighter seeks damages, back pay in suit against city

By David Morris
Staff Writer

A former Midland firefighter filed a wrongful termination lawsuit against the fire department Tuesday, claiming he was dismissed because he was no longer able to fight fires.

Mark Wallace, age unknown, is seeking undisclosed exemplary damages as well as back pay and benefits. In the suit, Wallace claims the fire department discharged him last October after he suffered two on-the-job injuries.

City Attorney David Reagan denied Wallace's allegations.

"Mr. Wallace was not fired," Reagan said. "He quit. So we have a basic disagreement as to what happened."

Reagan would not comment on the situation leading up to Wallace's departure.

"We think that his allegations are unfounded and...we welcome our day in court," Reagan said.

Neither Wallace nor his attorney, A.J. Pope, could be reached for comment Thursday.

According to the suit, Wallace was injured while fighting fires in May and August 1989.

Symposium on satanism teaches telltale signs

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Satanism is alive and well in the 1990s, and those who don't believe it are deluding themselves, said speakers at a Midland symposium on the occult Thursday.

Ben Kennedy, the chief of adult probation in Andrews County, said education is hampered by the public's refusal to accept the prevalence of satanism, during his speech on the first day of the conference.

"Part of the problem is the base denial," Kennedy said.

"It is a hideous ugly topic so people want to say there's no real problem. But it's like the problem in school with drinking, drugs and teen pregnancy; when they say there's no problem, that's a bunch of garbage."

The two-day symposium, sponsored by Crossroads Recovery Program, is designed to inform law enforcement officers, counselors and teachers about identifying and intervening in satanic activity. About 80 professionals, a majority of them law enforcement officers, are attending the conference, which ends today.

Kennedy said he could not estimate how common occult practices are in West Texas, but he has seen recent evidence that it is gaining in popularity here.

"The secretive and underground factor makes it hard to show how much activity is going on," he said. "It bubbles up and comes back down."

Kennedy first got involved in studying the occult in 1983 when he was handling a case involving a juvenile from Crane County who had escaped supervision.

In searching for clues to his whereabouts, Kennedy found a piece of paper in the juvenile's belongings that read "Satan is God backwards" and asked Satan for help in exchange for the boy's eternal loyalty.

"At that time the information was hard to come by," he said. "I got funny looks when I asked for a copy of the satanic bible."

Now information on the occult is more readily available, but Kennedy said that when confronted with evidence of ritualistic violence, people are still more willing to blame the offense on drug abuse than on satanism.

"They can accept recreational drug use, that teens are killing themselves in (alcohol-related) car accidents or O.D.ing on heroin, but they can't accept that there are people out there committing ritualistic crime," he said.

If the public does recognize the possibility of satanic activity, it wants to believe the person is merely "dabbling" in it, Kennedy said.

"It sounds like it's just a fad, not a big deal, but we need to be dealing with this," he said.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Accidents

By Staff Reports

Two people were injured in separate accidents at the same location this week, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Both accidents occurred about seven and a half miles west of Midland on the north service road of Interstate 20.

The first occurred when a eastbound 1980 Western Star truck tractor trailor, driven by Alfredo Armendariz of Odessa, was hit in the right rear as it was turning into a business lot off the service road.

The truck collided with a 1971 Oldsmobile, driven by Jerry Allan Perry, 45, of Odessa, who was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital in fair condition.

The second accident took place when a man sweeping up the debris from the first accident was hit.

David Booth Davis, 37, of Midland was transported to Medical Center Hospital where he remained in critical condition with internal injuries Thursday.

Davis was hit by a 1984 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Eugene Joseph Valentine of Odessa. Valentine was driving east on the service road when the accident took place.

Fatal shooting

ODESSA — A 29-year-old man remained in jail late Thursday in connection with the murder of his girlfriend earlier that day, Ector County Sheriff's Office officials said.

Bond for Mark Anthony Volpe was set at $25,000 by Justice of the Peace Manuel Valles.

The suspect was arrested following the shooting death of Joy Lynn Solley, 22, who suffered two gunshot wounds, one to the head and in the abdomen.

The weapon used, a .30-.30 caliber rifle, was recovered at the scene.

Sheriff deputies were called to the scene at 7119 McCoy St. after the suspect called Emergency 911 about 7:30 a.m.

According to reports, the victim and suspect had been staying at a trailer home at that address for the past two weeks.

Witnesses said the two had been arguing throughout the night prior to the shooting, officials said.

Armed robbery

Police reported an armed robbery which took place at the 7-Eleven convenience store, 4500 N. Garfield St, about 2:45 a.m. Thursday.

According to reports, an older model white Oldsmobile or Cadillac two-door with gray primer spots pulled up to the gas pumps and a man pumped fuel.

The man then entered the store and approached the clerk. The man then pulled a blue steel revolver, pointed it at the clerk and demanded money from the register. After the clerk complied, the robber walked to his car and drove north toward Loop 250.

The suspect got away with $128 in cash, a carton of cigarettes and $14.54 in gas, the report said.

The robber was described as a Hispanic male in his 30s, about 5 feet 6 inches tall, and about 250 pounds. He was wearing a white T-shirt and brown baggy pants.

Robbery

A convenience store was robbed Wednesday evening after a man told the clerk he had a gun, police said.

Friends convenience store, 2404 N. Big Spring St., was robbed of $310 in cash about 9:30 p.m., police said.

According to reports, a man entered the store and told the clerk, Michelle Coffee, 33, that he had a gun in his pocket and demanded money.

After the clerk complied, the robber ran out of the store and was last seen running down an alley behind the store.

The robber was described as a black male, about 6 feet tall and 200 pounds with a mustache and short hair. He was wearing a red and white shirt, jeans and dark cap.

Pedestrian killed

ODESSA — An Odessa man was killed after being struck by a pickup truck early Thursday morning, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Tim Sledge, 35, was pronounced dead about 8:20 a.m. by Justice of the Peace Manuel Valles at Medical Center Hospital.

Sledge was reportedly walking down Maurice Road, about one-fifth of a mile west of West County Road, around 6:30 a.m. when he was hit by a 1969 Ford pickup driven by Joseph Michael Mapp of Odessa.

Mapp was not cited in the accident.

Sledge was taken to Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

Six indicted by grand jury

Staff Report

A federal grand jury in Midland handed down six indictments Thursday, one of which charged a Midland man with attempting to evade federal requirements for reporting large cash transactions.

Bernard Joseph Mahony, described as a Midland petroleu. engineer, is charged with five counts of trying to prevent banks from filing currency transaction reports.

Banks file the reports with the Treasury Department for currency transactions of $10,000 or more, Assistant U.S. Attorney William W. Torrey said. Government officials commonly use the reports to trace gambling, drug and tax evasion activities, Torrey said.

According to the indictment, Mahoney purchased several cashier's checks and money orders at Midland banks for amounts ranging from $8,000 to $9,900 — just under the banks' reporting cutoff.

Between January 9, 1989, and January 13, 1989, Mahony purchased bought checks and money orders worth $106,700 dollars at six Midland banks and savings and loans, the indictment alleged.

If found guilty, Mahony could face up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine on each count, Torrey said.

Other indictments handed down Thursday:

- Martin Alarcon Iniguez, indicted for marrying in Ector County in 1987 for the purpose of evading immigration law. Indicted for aiding and abetting Iniguez were Lydia Alarcon Betancourt and Oscar Javier Nino.

Iniguez ...so was indicted Thursday for illegal possession of a firearm.

- Oscar Javier Nino, indicted for allegedly falsely identifying himself as a U.S. citizen to immigration officials.
- Martha Alicia Aguilar and Efrain Armendariz Sanchez, indicted on one count of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute and conspiracy to possess and distribute cocaine.
- David Leon Lawhon, indicted for theft.

DARE at academy

Staff Report

In an effort to reach all the schools in Midland County, the Midland County Sheriff's Department's DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program has added a local private school to its program to combat drug abuse.

Word of Life Academy, located on Highway 191, working with the sheriff's department has begun to teach students the skills they need to refuse drugs and alcohol.

The Midland County DARE program began in January at Greenwood Elementary School, with over 120 students graduating at the end of the semester.

Investigator Steve Skaggs, Midland County DARE coordinator said, "With the enthusiasm and interest that the students have shown for the DARE program so far, we can't afford not the have the program in every school in Midland County."

While some funding comes from the Greenwood Independent School District, the majority of the funds comes from money seized by the Midland County Sheriff's Department relating to drug activity, according to Sheriff Gary Painter.

CLAYDESTA: Williams denies charges

(From 1C)

"The bank believes the suit is without merit and not based on the facts as we know them," Jones said.

He charged the lawsuit was politically motivated by supporters of Ann Richards, the Democratic candidate for governor.

A spokesman for Ms. Richards said the Democratic campaign had nothing to do with the lawsuit.

"What makes it a political matter is that (Williams) is running for governor. If he's not running for governor, it's just another sleazy, slimy deal," said Chuck McDonald.

Williams, the bank's founder and controlling partner, has denied any wrongdoing.

David Bragg, an Austin lawyer, filed the lawsuit on behalf of four Houston-area car buyers "and all others similarly situated."

He said 550 borrowers already have been identified and he hopes to locate more.

He filed the lawsuit in Austin, he said, because it is approximately midway between Houston and Dallas, where most of the loans were made, and Service Life is headquartered in Austin.

The Texas Attorney General's office and the state Consumer Credit Commission are examining the loans for possible violations of state consumer disclosure laws.

ClayDesta, using Lloyd Williams as a middleman, made more than 500 loans at 18 percent interest to borrowers in the Houston area between June 1989 and February. The suit alleges borrowers also paid 18 percent interest on the insurance premiums — typically costing between $700 to $1,200 — even though 50 percent of that money went to ClayDesta as commission.

Most of the borrowers had poor credit records and had difficulty obtaining conventional financing. The bank administered a similar program in Dallas.

The insurance policies provide for continued payments on the car notes in case of illness or death of the buyer.

SATANISM: Lawman says it 'bubbles up' locally enforcement officers and the author of "The Satan Hunter," gave often graphic evidence of criminal occultism in his slide-talk, which sought to familiarize the audience with the telltale signs of satanic involvement.

(From 1C)

Many satanists have identifying marks including skull tattoos, many scars, three deep vertical slashes in the arm and pierced sexual organs, Wedge said. They also tend to dress "punk."

But Wedge said they can also look "like the boy next door," as did Sean Settles, who murdered his mother, step-father and a convenience store clerk as part of a satanic ritual.

Wedge consulted on that case and has talked to Settles since he has been on death row in Oklahoma. He described the man, who was 16 at the time of the slayings, as a "non-traditional, self-styled satanist."

Such practitioners have no absolutes, he said: "Bestiality, cannibalism, whatever indulgence they want is all right."

Wedge displayed his collection of human bones, sacrificial and ceremonial knives, ritual candles (which are hard-to-get solid-colored wax, rather than the dipped color sold locally) and fetishistic figures that had been confiscated from occult-related crime scenes.

He showed pictures of eviscerated animals and desecrated graves to distinguish differences between satanic activity, vandalism and road kills.

He also discussed teens who had died while participating in satanic rituals and cautioned the counselors and law enforcement officers to take reports of occultism seriously.

"Just because they're dabblers doesn't mean they can't kill, or die," he said. "You are the only anchor some children have, and when they come in to tell you something, it may be the last time you see them."

Local EMS personnel honored this week

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Last year there were 4,500 calls for ambulance service in Midland.

In light of the massive amount of emergency medical calls in Midland and across the state, this week was designated Texas EMS (Emergency Medical Service) Week.

"We stay very, very busy," said Ray Sprague, EMS chief for the Midland Fire Department.

The Midland Fire Department employs about 90 emergency medical personnel — approximately half are emergency medical technicians (EMT) and half paramedics.

But these people are not just trained medically, they are all firefighters as well.

"They do both, they fight fires and do ambulance calls which stretches them pretty thin sometimes (in terms of manpower)," Sprague said. The 90 are part of the 145 men and women that make up firefighters in Midland.

In addition to participating in fire calls, there are an average of about 12 ambulance runs a day from five of the nine fire stations in the city with ambulance services.

The majority of the runs are trauma and automobile accident related. Following that are cardiac and respiratory related calls.

With the variety and number of calls, personnel stay pretty busy.

"What time we're not busy, we are training as firefighters or duties required to keep our (medical) certification," Sprague said.

In the Permian Basin, there are 987 certified emergency medical personnel. Emergency medical personnel is made up of EMTs, who have basic life support training, and paramedics, who have an advance life support education.

Melissa Reddin, a paramedic for a private ambulance service and First Aid and safety instructor for the Red Cross, said that the importance of emergency medical personnel is not always recognized by the public.

"There is more to emergency medicine than just the lights and ambulances. We save lives ... Our main thing is to save lives whether we're doing CPR or transporting people," Ms. Reddin said.

Ms. Reddin said that not everyone is cut out to be in the emergency medical service.

"It is a very stressful job," she said. "You never know what your next call is going to be."

Ms. Reddin has been a paramedic for one year and an EMT for 10 years.

Whatever the call, Sprague said his units are always ready.

SUIT: City says Wallace quit

both incidents, the suit states. Wallace reportedly received $15,000 in workers' compensation benefits following the August injury.

Later, according to the suit, Wallace obtained a doctor's letter stating that he could no longer "work in places where there is smoke and dust present."

After seeing the letter, fire department officials "wrongfully discharged" Wallace, the suit states.

The suit implies that Wallace was willing to accept a non-firefighting assignment but was terminated nevertheless.

Fire Chief James Roberts said Thursday that non-firefighting dispatcher and fire inspector positions are available to qualified individuals. He would not comment on Wallace's allegations.

In the suit, Wallace claims the fire department's actions caused him "to lose his truck, his home, and required him to pawn almost all of his worldly possessions in an effort to survive."

The suit also says Wallace was hospitalized twice for depression following his discharge.

Wallace's suit, filed in 142nd District Court, is the second fire department-related wrongful termination suit brought against the city this year.

In February, 22-year-old Arlen Fisher filed a $750,000 lawsuit against the city claiming he was harassed and fired after filing for workers' compensation benefits.

Reagan said Fisher's suit is still pending against the city.

It's time to winterize garden

If you do not intend to garden throughout the year or have separate garden plants for spring and winter, it's time to put up your soil for next year's summer garden.

Kiker

STEP 1:

Pull up all dead and unproductive plants and place the residue on top of the soil to be tilled in, or put the residue in your compost pile.

If you have disease-infested plant material, remove the plants and burn them or put them in the trash.

STEP 2:

Garden cleanup time is a good time to add compost to the soil. Now (September, early October) is a good time to treat nematode-infested soil with Vapam. Follow the instructions on the label.

STEP 3:

During October and November there will be a good source of leaves and other landscape residue in your neighborhood. Collect this from your neighbors and add it to your compost pile or till the leaves directly into your garden. If you wait until spring to add organic matter, it will not have time to decompose and it will rob valuable nutrients from your spring garden crops. Keeping the soil moist during the winter will ensure good decomposition of added organic materials.

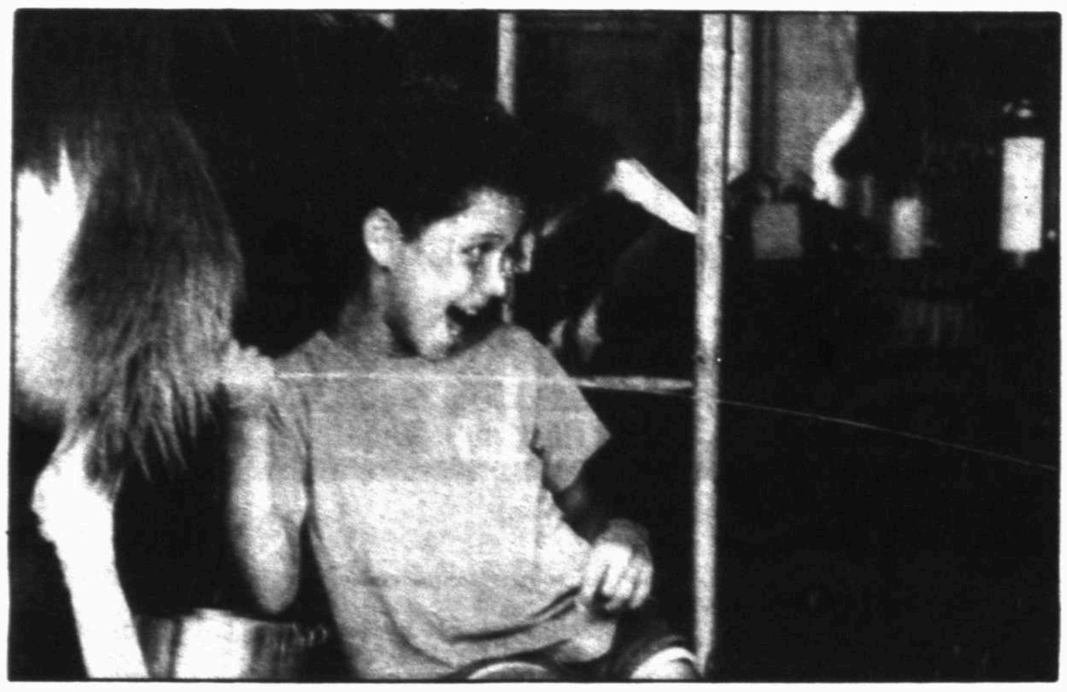

STEP 4:

Cover crops are good for the garden. In West Texas, small grain crops are best suited. Legumes may work for you if you have been working with your garden soil for several years and it's now high in organic matter and drains well.

Cover crops to consider include barley, oats, wheat and cereal rye. Plant about one-fourth pound of seed per 100 square feet. Prepare a good seed bed by tilling under summer crops' residue and other organic materials. Broadcast the seed and rake it evenly. Keep the soil surface moist with light, daily irrigations until the seedlings are established; then gradually change to a thorough watering every 7 to 10 days. The small grain seedlings will have a blue-green color when they need water. This cover crop will be tilled into the soil in March.

Rains hamper harvest, soak arid southwest

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Rain during the past week has brightened the overall agricultural picture in Texas but has hampered harvesting of cotton, sorghum and corn, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

The rain also has caused flooding in normally arid west central and southwestern areas.

Meanwhile, the National Weather Service at Texas A&M University is monitoring an easterly wave lurking off the east coast of Mexico that could bring more rain to the state if it drifts northward. The system was producing winds up to 40 mph early Tuesday.

Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, Extension Service director, said flash floods Sunday and Monday hit Sutton County in Southwest Texas following reports varying from a few inches to more than 9 inches.

Sutton County Extension Agent Preston Faris said the official reading Sunday and Monday was 9.64 inches in Sonora, the county seat.

"Everybody got at least 3 inches, which is what we needed," Faris said. "Everything else was runoff. It will help fill Lake Amistad."

He said flood waters were 1.5 feet over a bridge in Sonora and one store and several houses were flooded. About 50 homes were evacuated.

"I talked to people in town who have been here 30 years and had never seen water over that bridge. It literally split the town in half," Faris said.

Glen Fisher of the Sonora Wool and Mohair Co. said rainfall so far for September in town is 13 inches and 35.67 inches since Jan. 1. Normal rainfall from Jan. 1 through September is 16 to 17 inches.

Fisher said he has heard of some places in the county that have received even larger amounts of rain, with one rancher in the eastern area claiming 45 inches so far this year.

The National Weather Service said a flash flood warning is in effect Tuesday along the Devil's River all the way to Lake Amistad.

Southwest of Sutton County, in Val Verde County, 1 to 2.25 inches of rain fell Saturday and Sunday in the Del Rio area. The county total is now 19.69 inches since the first of the year, compared to the normal of 16.5 inches, said Roger Blackmon, county Extension Service agent.

He said the rains are a blessing but the county still looks like a rocky desert because of several years of drought.

Carpenter said 2 to 8 inches of rain Sunday and Monday in Schleicher County east of Eldorado caused flooding along the San Saba River and many fences were washed out. Flooding along creeks and rivers also followed 4.75 inches in western Menard County.

He said some low-water crossings were flooded Monday in the San Angelo area but no major damages were reported.

In Far West Texas, Terrell County received 3.12 inches over the past weekend; Alpine, 2.5 inches; and Marfa, 2.57 inches. To the east, San Angelo recorded 4.44 inches, and Lake Abilene, 2.79 inches. Lubbock reported 1 to 2.5 inches, and Muleshoe, 2.24 inches, in the South Plains.

Along the Coastal Bend, rains during the past weekend varied from 1 to 3 inches in Nueces, Bee, Aransas, San Patricio and Victoria counties.

Carpenter said the rains in much of the state are reviving ranges and pastures, improving soil moisture for planting such small grains as wheat and oats, and boosting prospects for more hay production for winter feeding.

On the other hand, he said, the showers have interrupted corn, sorghum and cotton harvesting.

Carpenter said dryland corn farmers in Southwest Texas and other areas are experiencing difficulty in marketing their crop because of aflatoxin contamination. Irrigated corn has not been affected by high contamination levels.

The following specific crop, livestock and weather conditions for the past week were reported by district Extension Service directors:

PANHANDLE: Cooler weather and scattered showers have brought some relief from hot, dry conditions. Ranges and pastures need rain but cattle are in good shape and stockers are being shipped in for winter grazing. Some wheat is being planted. Corn harvesting is active and sorghum is coloring and maturing.

SOUTH PLAINS: Scattered rains have fallen but soil moisture is generally short. Corn harvesting continues but very little sorghum has been harvested so far. Cotton bolls are about 20 percent open. Wheat is 40 percent planted. Harvesting continues on pinto beans, carrots, cucumbers, tomatoes and peppers.

ROLLING PLAINS: Spotty showers have not done much to relieve overall dry soil conditions. Most producers are waiting for rain to plant winter wheat. Valencia peanut harvesting is under way in Hall County. Although forage is skimpy, livestock remain in good condition. Calves are being weaned, and cattle culled and marketed. The pecan crop looks promising.

SOUTHWEST: Ranges and pastures are greening fast after general rains, and the region is going into the winter with the best conditions of the past three years. Small grain prospects are improved and fall vegetables are growing well. Rains have hindered upland cotton harvesting but most of the crop was already in field modules. Gins are busy around the clock. Pima cotton harvesting should be active by the end of September. Farmers are anxious to harvest because prices have jumped to about $1.25 for certain grades, up from $1.10 a few weeks ago. Peanut yields are average, with growers getting a $150-a-ton bonus over the quota price of $619 per ton. Corn farmers, however, are having trouble moving their crop because of aflatoxin problems. The harvest has been complete since August. Buyers are cautious and grain samples across the state are confirming buyer concern. Eighty-eight samples in a recent statewide survey by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service showed that 7 to 8 percent of the 88 tested had more than 300 parts per billion aflatoxin, which prevented the corn from entering the market. Fortunately, irrigated corn grown in Southwest Texas has not experienced high contamination levels because it received sufficient water during the growing season. Pecans, now in the soft dough stage, are expected to produce better-than-average yields.

FAR WEST: Scattered rains of up to 3 inches have helped soil moisture. Ranges and pastures are average, and livestock are in good to excellent shape. A good pecan crop is developing. Cotton is maturing well but there has been some hail damage on 5,000 acres in Martin and Glasscock counties.

WEST CENTRAL: Soil moisture varies from short to adequate, and scattered rains have ranged up to 5 inches. Ranges and pastures are looking better and hay baling is active. Cattle and sheep are in good to excellent condition, with a strong market for Rambouillet rams. Pecans are developing normally. Sorghum regrowth and cotton are maturing.

CENTRAL: Recent rains have refreshed pastures but grasses remain short. Livestock are in fair to good condition.

Nation's corn crop at 4-year high

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are harvesting a bumper corn crop estimated at a four-year high of 8.12 billion bushels, up 8 percent from last year's crop and 3 percent more than forecast a month ago, the Agriculture Department said this week.

Last year's corn harvest was 7.53 billion bushels, and the department in its initial forecast Aug. 9 put this fall's harvest at 7.85 billion bushels.

"Above-normal temperatures the last of August accelerated development (of the corn crop), but it still lagged behind normal in most of the major producing states," said the department's Agricultural Statistics Board.

By Sept. 2, only about 7 percent of the corn acreage was mature, 19 percentage points was behind normal, although harvest had begun as far north as Kentucky.

The September estimate of 8.12 billion bushels would be the largest corn output since 8.23 billion bushels were harvested in 1986.

Based on early September surveys, corn yields were estimated at 121.7 bushels per acre harvested, compared with 116.2 last year and 117.7 indicated last month. The record is 119.4 bushels in 1987.

As livestock feed, corn is the largest and most important U.S. farm crop and is essential for the production of meat, poultry and dairy products.

Consumer food prices, which rose an average of 5.8 percent in 1989, the sharpest year-to-year increase since 1981, are expected to climb an additional 5 percent to 7 percent this year.

The huge corn harvest, along with bumper wheat yields, will help cushion against sharp food price increases in 1991.

Soybean production, a source of high-protein meal and vegetable oil, was estimated at 1.83 billion bushels, down 5 percent from last year's harvest of 1.93 billion bushels and virtually unchanged from the August estimate.

Cotton production was indicated at 14.7 million bales, up 21 percent from last year's output of 12.2 million bales but down 1 percent from the August forecast.

The September report showed total 1990 wheat production at 2.76 billion bushels, up 35 percent from the 1989 harvest.

Lifetime ban

DETROIT (AP) — Cornerback Terry Taylor of the Detroit Lions on Thursday became the fourth NFL player banned for life under the league's drug policy.
The Lions, who acquired Taylor from the Seattle Seahawks last season for running back James Jones, said they won't appeal the league action, based on Taylor's third positive test for substance abuse. Taylor can reapply for admission to the league in a year.
"It's always a shock to find out something like that, and my heart is heavy and saddened. But we have to go on and hope things work out for Terry," Coach Wayne Fontes said.
Taylor has been dogged by trouble for most of his seven-year career, which began when he chosen by Seattle as the 22nd player in the 1984 draft.
The other players banned for life under the NFL's drug program were Indianapolis running back Tony Collins and defensive ends Dexter Manley of Washington and Frank Warren of New Orleans.
Collins was reinstated this season but was released a week ago by the Miami Dolphins.

Hole-in-one

Adolph Garza recorded a hole-in-one Wednesday at Hogan park Golf Course.
Garza's ace came on Hole 22, a 155-yard par-3. He used a 9-iron to sink the ace. Garza also scored an eagle two on the par-4 27th hole.
Witnesses to the hole-in-one were Orlando Montanez, Frank Tryon and Lee Schweitzer.

Rebels clash with No. 5 Dons

■ Amarillo Palo Duro, which easlily dismissed Odessa High in its season opener, will be looking for revenge against Midland Lee tonight.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Tonight's 8 p.m. clash between No. 5 state ranked Amarillo Palo Duro and Midland Lee at Memorial Stadium is a rematch of last year's bi-district contest, a game won by Lee 27-9.

This year, however, the story line is different. Of course, not as much is riding on this contest, but the Dons do have that state ranking to protect and Lee is seeking some respect. You might call it the "Protect-Respect Bowl."

"You are always glad to see that people recognize your program, but we are far from being a ranked team," says Palo Duro coach Doug James, who has seen his team easily beat Odessa High 20-7 and hold on for a 33-20 win last week against Class 4A Hereford.

"I'm sure being ranked is a good motivational tool for the people we play against," said James. "I know I would use it with my kids if I could."

But being state ranked hasn't been Lee's problem. Turnovers, dropped passes and fumbled snaps have been as the Rebs get off to a meager 1-1 start against teams not as powerful as Palo Duro.

Still, Lee coach Earl Miller doesn't see this game as a must win situation.

"Palo Duro is ranked high and it would be nice to beat them, but we have to be more concerned about getting ready for district play," said Miller. "Winning the game isn't essential this week, but what is essential for the Midland Lee Rebels is eliminating mistakes. It's time to play ball."

Palo Duro features an impressive five-man front defensive wall that averages 235 pounds per man. Nose guard Kevin Swain, 260, has been impressive in his two games and Lee will enter the game without returning starting center K.C. Jones. That means that 185-pound center Anthony Shupp will have to go against Swain. Jones is expected to return to duty next week against Midland High.

Bulldogs visit Mustangs

■ Midland High will put its undefeated record on the line tonight against an Andrews squad coming off a 56-0 win over Seminole.

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

To hear it from Andrews head football coach W.T. Stapler, the Mustangs will be in a world of hurt at 8 p.m. tonight when they play host to Midland High in high school football action at Mustang Bowl.

The 2-0 Bulldogs are sky high coming off a last minute 17-14 win over Monahans and are the only team in District 4-5A unbeaten and untied in the young season. Additionally, Stapler's crew has fallen victim to the injury bug, which so far has claimed three starters.

"What do we have to do to beat Midland High? Pray," Stapler deadpanned. "They have got a good ball club. I'll tell you what, we had better make some first downs or they're going to score a bunch points. They're playing really well this year."

But MHS mentor Davis Corley, who watched his Bulldogs hold off Andrews 21-15 a year ago, is wary of Stapler's comments, not only because the Mustang chief is notorious for his "poor me" litany, but because Class 4A Andrews is fresh off a 56-0 thrashing of 3A Seminole.

"I don't care who it is they beat, whenever a team beats somebody 56-0 they're going to be tough," Corley said of the 1-1 Mustangs, who fell 12-7 in their season opener against Wolfforth-Frenship.

"Their offense scares me to death. They run a ball control

UIL surprises locals

■ The penalties received by the Odessa Permian football program prove to be more severe than Midland coaches anticipated.

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

Reaction from local athletic officials to the punishment dealt by the University Interscholastic League to Odessa Permian's football program Thursday in Austin was, for the most part, one of surprise.

Permian, which won the 1989 Class 5A state football championship with a perfect 16-0 record, was banished from postseason play in 1990. Also, Panther head coach Tam Hollingshead and junior varsity coach Myron Schneider were suspended for two games and nine asistant coaches will serve a one year probation.

"It certainly was more severe than what everybody though it was going to be. I don't know what they found out down there, but it's pretty severe," Midland High coach Davis Corley said of the action by the eight-member committee.

The punishment was the result of charges made by Odessa High head football coach Jerry Taylor, who reported Permian coaches for conducting formal practices in early August before UIL rules allowed.

After Taylor released his allegations in August, a two-week investigation by ECISD followed. The case was then handed over to the District 4-5A Executive Committee which, based on the ECISD findings, found Permian guilty of Taylor's charges. The district committee, however, decided to let the State Executive Committee handle the punishment phase of the inquiry, which it did Thursday.

"I don't really know enough about it to comment. I will say the punishment was a lot more severe than I thought it would be. I would have liked to have been there to hear it all. Taylor must have had them pegged," said Earl Miller, head football coach of Permian rival Midland Lee.

"I don't think you have to be hit in the head with a wet mop to know that the UIL has sent a message all across the state," said Jack Tayrien, Midland Independent School District athletic director.

"They made it perfectly clear to everybody in

It may be interesting to see if the same stars are shining bright at the end of the season, but here are a few of the leaders thus far.

Williamson

Midland High's James Lee is the leading rusher in the loop with 223 yards after 100-plus yards in both his games. That pace will just break the 1,000-yard barrier even with Midland High's nine game schedule.

Odessa Permian's Josh Sumner is a distant second with 189 yards rushing, but he has 10 games to work with. Sumner is also two touchdowns ahead in the scoring race with 24 points.

San Angelo, the surprise team of the league to this point with a win and a tie, is getting great mileage out of the passing arm of Shea Morenz, who has 311 yards passing in two games.

Midland High's David Worley is the league's leading punter, averaging 37.6 yards per punt. Lee's Todd Meade and Cooper's John Baack each have two field goals this year to lead in that department.

Cooper's Marcus Bibbs looks to be the league's premier receiver with 13 catches for 239 yards. Permian's Mike Faulkner is a distant second with six catches for 116 yards. Lee's Kyle Sullivan has only two catches, but is only two yards behind Faulkner's total.

But we must get back to the 4-5A picking game after a 5-2 week, missing OHS' upset of Killeen and San Angelo's tie with Lubbock Monterey.

Despite the 1-1 record, Lee still ranks as the best offensive team with 327 yards per game and second behind Cooper on defense, allowing 200.5 yards per game. The surprise is that Cooper is the leading defensive unit.

But in the most important department, Midland High leads all teams in victories with two while all others have tasted a kiss or a loss.

Midland Lee 21, Amarillo Palo Duro 18: After the way the Rebels looked the last two weeks, why am I picking an upset over the No. 5 team in the state? It must be something I ate.

Midland High 28, Andrews 7: These Mustangs scored 56 points last week. Whatever I ate has altered better judgment.

Odessa Permian 20, Amarillo High 7: It's hard to know the mood the Panthers will wear at Ratliff Stadium tonight.

Odessa High 28, El Paso Eastwood 14: A tough road trip for the Bronchos, but they are flying high after Killeen.

Abilene Cooper 13, Mansfield 10: The Cougars may be on the way to a three-game winning streak.

Lubbock Monterey 24, Abilene High 8: The Plainsmen finally find a District 4-5A team they can beat.

San Antonio Clark 28, San Angelo 13: The road has been good to the Bobkitties, but the home debut is against a team that has been to the region playoffs four years in a row.

Pirates up ante in East race

Montreal Expos sweep New York in Shea Stadium showdown

Associated Press

NL

Andy Van Slyke doesn't need a weatherman to tell him which way the wind is blowing at Wrigley Field.

"I woke up, opened the drapes and saw the lake was calm," Van Slyke said. "I knew the win was blowing out and that brought a smile to my face."

With the wind blowing out at 10 mph, Van Slyke drove in three runs with two home runs and Barry Bonds added a two-run homer Thursday to lead the first-place Pittsburgh Pirates to an 11-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The victory, combined with Montreal's doubleheader sweep of New York, gave the Pirates a 2½-game lead over the Mets in the NL East. Montreal is 4½ games back.

Van Slyke homered in the first inning and hit his 17th with a man on in the sixth. Bonds hit his 32nd in the eighth inning.

"We had a real great day," Manager Jim Leyland said. "I was tickled to see the bats come out. We put some good strokes on the ball."

The victory was Pittsburgh's second straight after a season-worst six-game losing streak and the Pirates ended their 10-game road trip with a 4-6 record.

"We started good and finished good but we weren't very good in-between," Leyland said.

The Pirates now play nine of their last 12 games at home, which could be an advantage.

"It's only good if you play good," Leyland said.

Expos 6, Mets 4
Expos 2, Mets 0

Rookie Chris Nabholz pitched a one-hitter for his first major league shutout and Montreal beat New York 2-0 to complete a doubleheader sweep, dropping the slumping Mets 2½ games behind first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

In the opener, the Expos rallied for four runs in the eighth inning off Frank Viola and Mets relief ace John Franco to beat New York 6-4. The Expos have won six straight games and trail the Pirates by 4½. Pittsburgh beat Chicago 11-2.

Montreal swept the three-game series and New York has lost four straight at home after winning 11 in a row. The Mets, 51-27 at Shea Stadium, have 13 games left but 10 are on the road at Chicago, Montreal and Pittsburgh.

Astros 3, Reds 2

Pinch-hitter Carl Nichols singled home the tying and winning runs with two out in the ninth inning, giving Houston a victory over Cincinnati.

Glenn Davis led off the ninth with a single off Reds relief ace Randy Myers (3-5), who relieved starter Norm Charlton in the eighth. Gerald Young ran for Davis and Dave Rohde, another pinch hitter, was hit by a pitch.

Craig Biggio sacrificed the runners to second and third and Rafael Ramirez was intentionally walked, loading the bases. Myers struck out Mark Davidson before Nichols batted for winning pitcher Xavier Hernandez and delivered his game-winning hit.

Giants 5, Braves 3

Pinch-hitter Mike Laga hit a tie-breaking two-run homer in the sixth inning to give Eric Gunderson his first major league victory as San Francisco beat Atlanta.

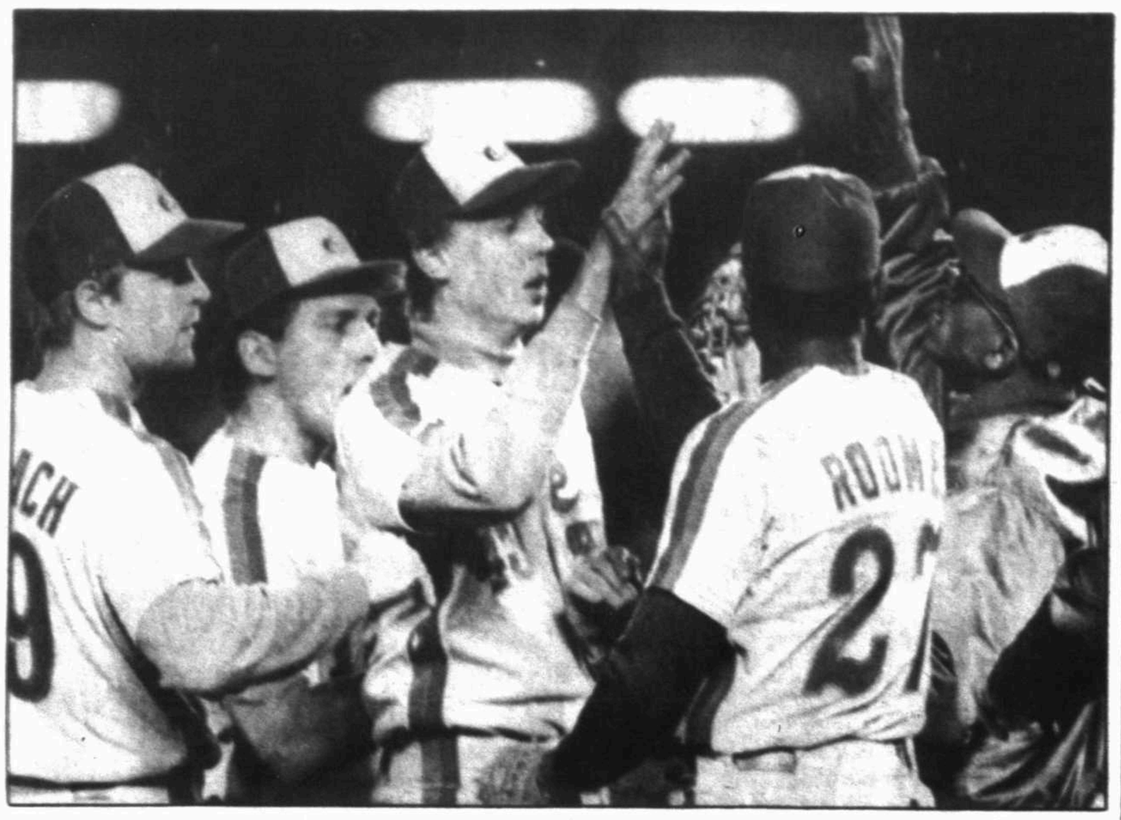

The victory was only the second in seven games for San Francisco, which began play in third place in the National League East, 7½ games behind division-leading Cincinnati.

Laga, batting for Gunderson, hit his second home run of the season off John Smoltz (13-10) following a one-out single by Jose Uribe for a 4-2 lead.

Cardinals 5, Phillies 4

Rookie Ray Lankford's pinch single capped a three-run ninth inning that gave St. Louis a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies on 5-4 Thursday night and snapped the Cardinals' four-game losing streak.

The Cardinals were held to two runs and four hits over eight innings by Terry Mulholland but Todd Zeile started the ninth with a double, bringing on Roger McDowell (6-8).

Pitcher Chris Nabholz, center, receives a high five and congratulations from his teammates after his one-hit shutout over the New York Mets completed the Expos double-header sweep Thursday. The Mets fell 2½ games behind front-running Pittsburgh.

Cleveland blasts NY

Associated Press

AL

Carlos Baerga hit a triple and three doubles Thursday night and the Cleveland Indians rallied for 11 runs in the midde three innings to beat the New York Yankees 12-7.

The Indians got 16 hits and tied their season-high with nine doubles. Brook Jacoby had three hits, including two doubles.

Baerga hit an RBI triple in the first, but the Yankees bounced back for a 6-1 lead. Baerga doubled to start a four-run fourth inning, doubled home a run in a four-run fifth and hit a two-run double during a three-run sixth that made it 12-7.

Mariners 7, White Sox 3

Erik Hanson won his fifth straight decision and slumping Henry Cotto homered, tripled and drove in four runs, leading the Seattle Mariners over the Chicago White Sox.

The loss by the second-place White Sox reduced Oakland's magic number for clinching the American League West to four.

Hanson (16-9) gave up eight hits and retired the last 11 batters in his second consecutive complete game.

NL batting title AL bound?

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Willie McGee admits he peeks.

McGee leads the National League in hitting, but finds himself left out of the batting race, on the other side of the statistical fence in the American League.

"I look," McGee said. "It's out there everywhere. You can't help but see it. I'm a fan, too."

McGee was plucked from the NL batting race on Aug. 29 when the St. Louis Cardinals, instead of facing the possibility of losing McGee to free agency, traded him to Oakland for outfielder Felix Jose and two minor leaguers.

With enough NL plate appearances to qualify as batting champion, McGee left behind Philadelphia's Len Dystra with an unwavering .335 mark to shoot for.

"Lenny is in a tough situation," McGee said. "But Lenny is a tough little player and he's got alot to look forward to with all he's got going for him. I wish him the best of luck.

"But you have to remember there's Eddie Murray and a couple of other guys. You hate to see this kind of thing happen, but it was out of my control."

McGee has watched his name top the batting list as Dykstra, the NL's leading hitter most of the season, slid into second place. With seven hits in his last 40 at-bats, Dykstra has fallen to .331.

The switch-hitting outfielder spent more than eight seasons with the Cardinals, winning the NL's Most Valuable Player and the league's batting title in 1985, playing in four All Star games and on two World Series champions. Winning a second batting title in absentia does not sit well with him.

"It's not my choice," McGee said. "Even when I was over there I wasn't concerned about the batting race. I don't get caught up with that. I leave that to the fans. All I'm interested in is playing hard, doing the best I can. Sure, you need a little success once in a while to keep you going."

So, instead of competing in a batting race, McGee finds himself in a pennant race as the A's close in on their third consecutive AL West title.

"I'm just happy just to be in the big leagues and still have a job, to tell you the truth," McGee said. "A pennant race is a pennant race, I've been in one before. I just want to be somewhere where I can go out and play everyday and be left alone."

Righetti laughs off Yankees' initial contract offer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees' first contract proposal to potential free agent Dave Righetti has been rejected, the reliever's agent said Thursday.

"It's utterly unacceptable," said Billl Goodstein, a New York-based lawyer. "But the fact that we didn't accept didn't seem to surprise the Yankees."

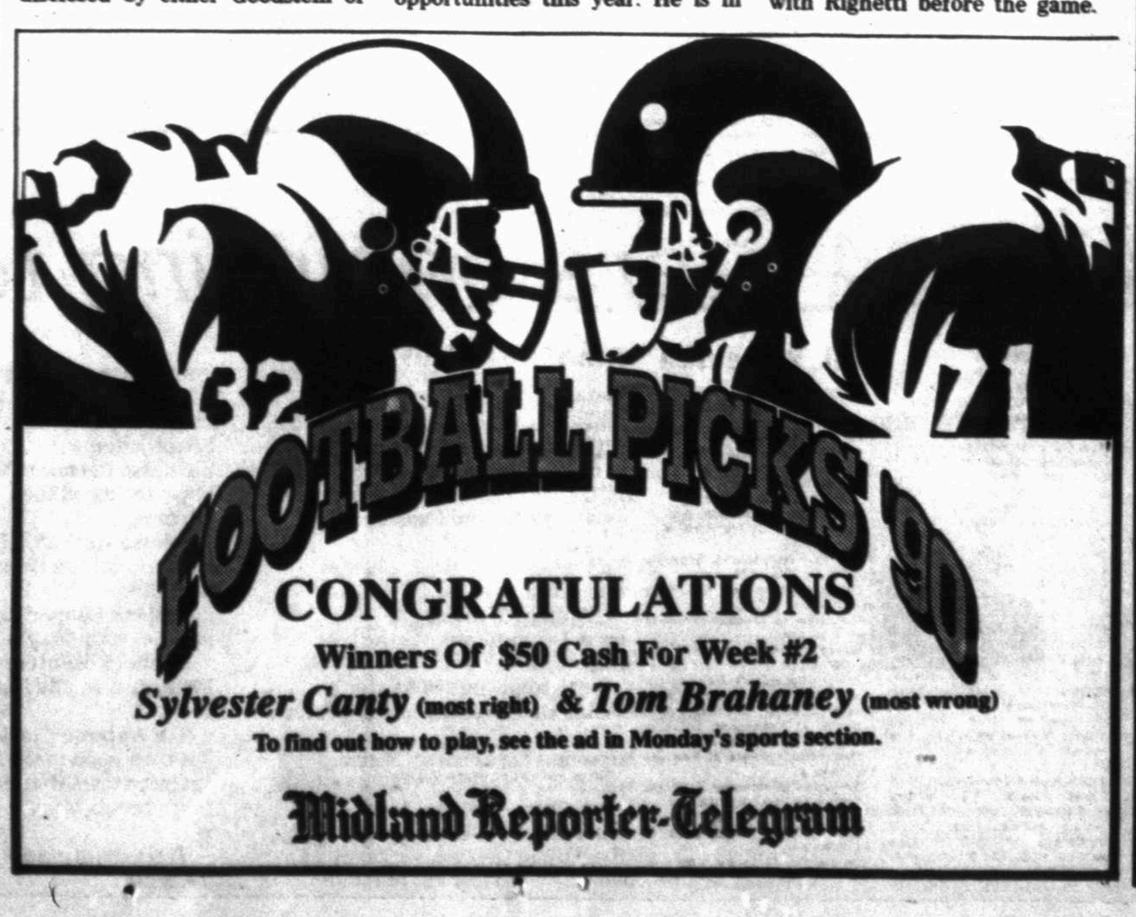

Terms of the proposal were not disclosed by either Goodstein or Yankees general manager Gene Michael, who talked for nearly an hour Thursday.

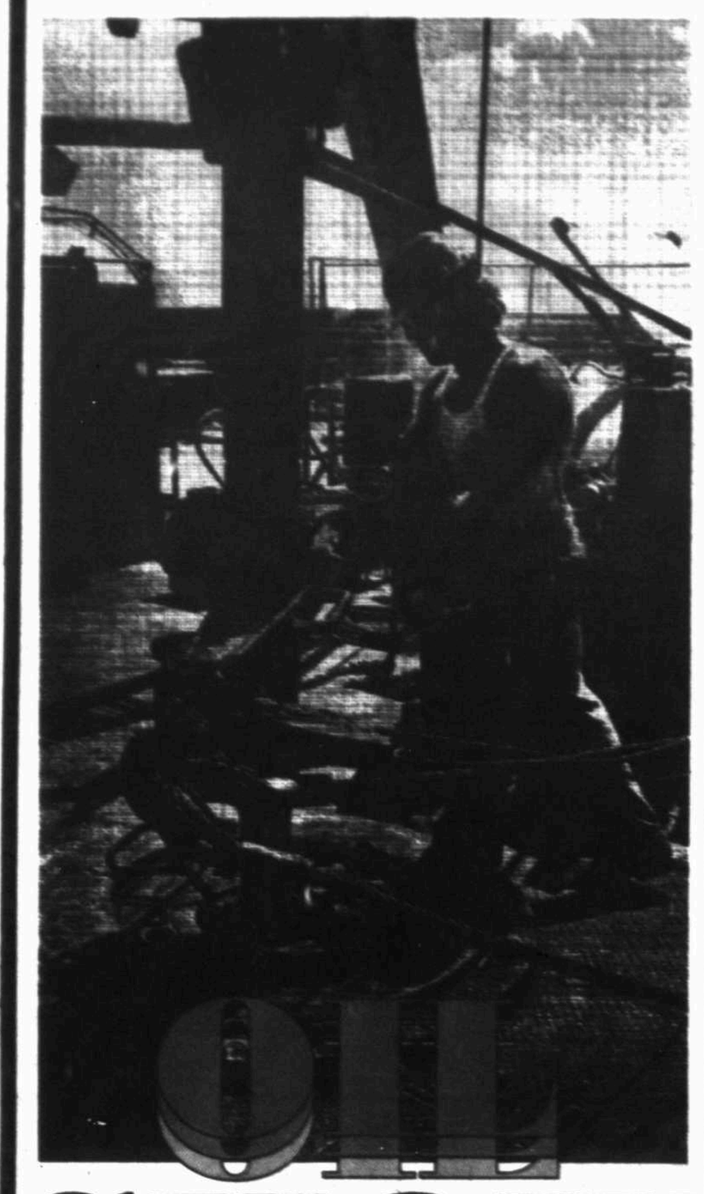

"The conversation was upbeat and pleasant," Goodstein said. "But we're still waiting for a more appropriate proposal so we can start some serious talks."

Righetti, the Yankees' top reliever since 1984, has 32 saves in 35 opportunities this year. He is in the last year of a three-year contract worth $4.7 million and is said to be seeking a five-year deal for close to $3 million per season.

"Righetti has been a great Yankee," Michael said. "We definitely want him, and I think we can sign him."

On Friday, Michael is scheduled to talk with Goodstein and to meet with Righetti before the game.

Ballesteros bumped in match play golf

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Seve Ballesteros suffered his heaviest defeat in 14 years of World Match Play golf Thursday when he was beaten 8 and 6 by Northern Ireland's Ronan Rafferty.

Rafferty romped to a record-breaking 10-under-par 62 in the first of the two rounds against four-time winner Ballesteros. The Spaniard, who replied with a 71, had not lost on the opening day since he lost to Hale Irwin 14 years ago.

In other first-day matches, American Chip Beck downed Ryoken Kawagishi 4 and 3, Zimbabwe's Mark McNulty beat Billy Ray Brown of the United States 4 and 2 and Australia's Wayne Grady defeated Bernhard Langer of West Germany 4 and 2.

Friday's second round introduces the seeded players. No. 1 ranked and defending champion Nick Faldo faces Beck, Rafferty meets Welshman Ian Woosnam, Grady clashes with countryman Greg Norman and McNulty goes against Irwin.

Rafferty, the top money winner in Europe last year, said he did not expect to win, let alone by such a massive margin.

"I would have believed it if someone had said I was going to lose by 8 and 6," he said. "Would you expect me to win by that sort of margin?"

Rafferty's 62 started with a bogey but was a stroke better than Tony Jacklin's 63 in his match against Lee Trevino in 1972.

Ballesteros sprayed shots into the trees along the narrow fairways while Rafferty was immaculate with his putter.

Brown, a second-year pro from Missouri City, Texas, was involved in the tightest match of the day.

The American, who tied for third place in the U.S. Open, fell behind when McNulty birdied the 33rd hole to go three up after a neck and neck battle. The Zimbabwean clinched the match the next hole.

Big Eight to discuss SWC

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The presidents of the Big Eight Conference schools will meet next week to review possible alignment with the Southwest Conference and discuss the touchiest issue of all — distribution of money.

The Big Eight presidents, unlike CEOs in other conferences, rarely get involved in conference affairs. But at the urging of Kansas State's Jon Wefald among others, Big Eight chiefs will meet in Kansas City next Wednesday night, Wefald told The Associated Press Thursday.

"I certainly wouldn't rule out that, say by 1995 or so, that there would be several other schools joining the Big Eight," Wefald said. "The changes we've already seen, with Penn State going to the Big Ten and Arkansas leaving the Southwest Conference, have been profound and shocking. The Big Eight must be vigilant to what's going on."

On the same day, Big Eight faculty representatives and athletic directors will hold their annual September meeting, and one item on their agenda will probably have to be dealt with before any meaningful discussion takes place on merger or alignment — how to divide the millions that flow into conference coffers each year from football and basketball.

Nobody contributes more than Oklahoma. The Sooners are the only Big Eight school that regularly pulls in big checks in both football and basketball.

"It certainly has the potential to be the most significant issue on the agenda, depending on what Oklahoma is putting forth," said Kansas athletic director Bob Frederick.

Currently, Big Eight teams playing football on television keep two-ninths of the revenue while one-ninth goes to other Big Eight schools. NCAA basketball tournament money is divided eight ways, after expenses.

About 10 years ago, at the request of Nebraska and Oklahoma, the Big Eight altered its formula for sharing live gate revenue in football to say that no visiting team can have more than $175,000

UIL: Playoffs wide open

the state of Texas that that type of action would not be tolerated, and rightfully so.

"The sad thing about it is that it has given interscholastic athletics in the state of Texas a black eye. That's why I hate to see it happen. It's not good for high school athletics or for District 4-5A," he said.

Speculation has arisen that the UIL may have taken into consideration previous allegations of Permian recruiting players from across the state, as well as possible rules violations mentioned in "Friday Night Lights: a Town, a Team and a Dream," the newly released book about Odessa and the Permian football program. Tayrien said he hoped that was not the case.

"You would hope that that did not weigh on the decision because it had no bearing at all on the allegations at hand. It's not remotely involved. Anyway, that book is just one person's opinion."

On the playing field, Permian's district opponents now must come to the realization that, along with a new 5A format that allows three teams from each district into the playoffs, the ruling makes the 4-5A playoff race anything but predictable.

Permian, perennially a playoff participant and the bane of the lower tier in 4-5A, now must sit idle in the postseason.

"Essentially what it means is that a fourth-place team is going to make the playoffs," Miller said.

"I thought the race was going to be wide open anyway. It would have been exciting even if this hadn't have happened. But it certainly will make things more interesting," Corley said.

'Dog sophs bite Eagles

Staff Report

Midland High's sophomore football team moved its record against similar opponents to 2-0 Thursday with a 30-0 shredding of Abilene High's sophomores.

Tim Blakemore scored on touchdown runs of 70 and 75 yards en route a 180-yard outing while the Bulldog defense recorded eight sacks of Eagle quarterbacks.

Other MHS TD's came on a 15-yard run by Claydell Caston and a 15-yard touchdown pass from Freddie Strickland to Chris Lundberg. Roland Chambers converted two extra-point kicks, while Ricky Praddo and Strickland ran in two-point conversions.

MHS scored 23 of its points in the first four minutes of the game.

Defensively, the Bulldogs allowed no run longer than eight yards as Lundberg recorded a pair of quarterback sacks and Mason Askins made an interception.

MHS plays rival Midland Lee next week.

LEE: Dons have incentive

From 1D

Lee's offense has generated some numbers, but it has been the mistakes that concerns the Lee coaching staff. For instance, senior wide receiver Kyle Sullivan caught two dazzling passes for 114 yards and a touchdown against Del Rio, but the Rebels also had a TD pass dropped in the end zone.

Offensively, the Dons feature quarterback Donald Shanklin, who has had touchdown runs of 32, 60 and 73 yards in two games. Shanklin, who played with an injury in bi-district last year, was a thorn in the side of the Rebels in the 1988 bi-district loss to the Dons.

"This will tell the tale of where we are at," said Miller. "Can we stop the quarterback and fullback (Shawn Jones)? No one else in the district will have athletes of this caliber, so if our defense can stop those two, I would have to say that defensively we will be ready for district play.

James said, "It always takes a perfect game to beat Lee, but that's the way it is when you play good teams."

But does Palo Duro have added incentive to beat Lee because of what happened last year when Farris Strambler ran for 298 yards against the Dons.

"I really don't know," said James. "We do have some seniors who remember that game. Obviously, I hope there is an incentive there."

Miller knows there will be added incentive.

"Strambler probably had the best running day of his career against Palo Duro and it was still a tough game. Palo Duro also had some people injured that day and they are healthy this year. I'm sure they'll come at us with a whipping stick."

James also indicated there is some more incentive. When asked what he knew about Lee, he replied, "Nothing. They wouldn't exchange film with us."

Texas Tech after elusive first win

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The stadium and the football program at New Mexico have not changed much since Spike Dykes called Albuquerque home.

Dykes, the former defensive coordinator for the Lobos and now head coach at Texas Tech, will bring the Red Raiders to Albuquerque on Saturday in search of a win that would snap Tech's early season, two-game losing streak.

Chances are Dykes also will run across some memories.

Dykes served as a New Mexico assistant in 1977 and 1978 under then coach Bill Mondt. Then, as now, victories were a tough commodity to come by for the Lobos.

"I was there when it (University Stadium) wasn't always real shiny, and being a football coach wasn't necessarily a popular thing," Dykes said this week in a telephone interview from his Lubbock office. "I love Albuquerque and it was just a good time in my life."

New Mexico was 7-5 in 1978, the year that Dykes was in charge of the Lobos' defensive unit. That season, along with the 1982 team that went 10-1 under the late Joe Morrison, are the only two winning seasons New Mexico has had in the last 15 years.

The Lobos have struggled through back-to-back 2-10 seasons and this season are 1-2 after losing to Fresno State and No. 20 Arizona the past two weeks.

Texas Tech lost to Ohio State, 17-10, in its opener and lost an offensive battle with Southwest Conference rival Houston last week, 51-35.

Given that, and the fact the Red Raiders needed a last minute goal line stand last year to avert an upset win by New Mexico, Dykes says Texas Tech has no basis for over-confidence.

"I don't know of many teams that can play bad and win," Dykes said. "If anything, considering we're zero and two, it's New Mexico that should have a hard time getting up for us."

Dykes says the Red Raiders' 27-20 win over New Mexico last year at Lubbock, in which they twice stopped the Lobos inside the 1-yard line, was the catalyst for a season that produced a 9-3 record and 49-21 win over Duke in the All American Bowl.

"We achieved some identity because of the great goal line stand and I think it did go a long ways toward what we did," Dykes said. "We became a lot better defensive team as the season developed and that's one of the things that helped us develop."

New Mexico, whose only win thus far was against New Mexico State, 29-12, in the season opener, has fizzled offensively in the second half the past two weeks.

The Lobos led both Fresno State and Arizona at halftime, but an offense that can be potent at times, produced just a pair of field goals in the final 30 minutes against Fresno State and Arizona.

Quarterback Jeremy Leach has been the most obvious target for criticism for the lack of second half production, completing just 17 of 51 during that stretch. New Mexico coach Mike Sheppard said this week he would give backup quarterback Marcus Goodloe some playing time against the Red Raiders, but emphasized that the team's offensive problems go beyond the quarterback.

"The quarterback position is often overrated and the guy is a product of how well the other guys play around him," Sheppard said. "If we're running the ball better and protecting a little better, then it doesn't matter who the quarterback is, he's going to have a better performance."

MHS: Ranks depleted by flu

From 1D

offense. They run the option, fullback trap and halfback counters all extremely well.

"That's the thing about W.T.'s program. They are going to execute better than most teams and they're not going to beat themselves," Corley said.

As if to add credence to Corley's assessment, the recently released state standings ranked Andrews as the second-best offense and fifth-best defense among Texas' 4A teams. The 'Stang offense is averaging 425 yards a game while their defense is allowing but 117.

When the Mustangs break the huddle in their wishbone offense, though, they will be without the services of quarterback Al Gonzales, who may be lost to Andrews for the season after suffering a knee injury against Wolfforth-Frenship.

The Mustangs have also suffered injuries at fullback and tight end, but Corley has health concerns of his own after a rash of stomach flu spread through the MHS ranks this week.

"We've had two or three people at home in bed every day this week. It wouldn't be so bad, but that's two or three starters every day," he said.

One of those ill-feeling starters is senior tailback James Lee, who has slashed and smashed for 223 yards in the 'Dogs' pair of wins.

"We haven't seen anybody like him," Stapler said. "We still have a lot of deficiencies and speed is one of them. Lee has no shortage of speed, so we really will have to bottle him up."

But Corley had his verbal volley for Stapler.

"We got beat up a little bit in the Monahans game. Monahans is a very physical team. We have two starting linebackers — Ray Leyba and Larry Tompkins — who are still questionable. The good part about all of it, though, is that we got to work some young kids this week," Corley said.

One advantage the Bulldogs may have is a new level of confidence in their offense. In the come-from-behind victory over Monahans, MHS took the ball on its own 24-yard line with 3:19 left in the game and the score tied 14-14.

But the 'Dogs used the clock expertly and drove to within field goal distance, where David Worley booted a 37-yard strike with 14 seconds left.

"For David Worley, it was a tremendous confidence builder, especially after the week before (when Worley missed three field goal tries in a 7-3 victory over Lubbock Monterey)," Corley said.

"It was also good for our kids to have that kind of success at the end of the game. Our senior class is has a bunch of great kids who want to do well. They are very, very competitive. It was great that they were able to move the ball down field and get into field goal range."

Florida gets probation again

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The University of Florida was placed on NCAA probation for the second time in six years on Thursday, and school officials were upset that the punishment included a postseason ban for this year's football team.

The NCAA chose to impose less than the minimum proscribed penalties in a case of major violations. The bowl ban for this season was the only punishment of the football program, and there was no ban on television appearances for either sport.

The basketball program's scholarships will be restricted, and it must repay at least $287,000 in revenue from the 1988 NCAA tournament because guard Vernon Maxwell played while he was ineligible. The Gators will be permitted 13 scholarships in 1991-92, two fewer than the maximum, and 14 scholarships in 1992-93.

First-year football coach Steve Spurrier said the bowl ban was a more severe penalty than Florida deserved.

"This has been a clean-run program in the last four or five years," Spurrier said. "There's been no cash payments, no buying tickets of players, no falsifying of transcripts."

As part of the ruling, the NCAA cited former basketball coach Norm Sloan and former football coach Galen Hall, both fired last October, for unethical conduct. If either takes a new coaching job in the next five years, his hiring must be approved by the NCAA Committee on Infractions.

Hall is now an unpaid graduate assistant at Penn State, while Sloan is coaching a professional team in Greece.

Chuck Smrt, director of enforcement for the NCAA, said the case was unique because the school took significant corrective steps after the investigation was disclosed. For that reason, Smrt said, the five-member Committee on Infractions did not impose the minimum proscribed penalties.

The minimum penalties could have also included restrictions on postseason basketball, recruiting in both sports and television appearances.

Florida even faced the remote possibility of having its football and basketball programs shut down by the death penalty. But even though the school escaped severe sanctions, university president John Lombardi took exception to the postseason ban on this year's football team, which is 2-0 and ranked No. 19.

"We are not entirely comfortable with a set of penalties that appear to us to ... penalize the innocent for the sins of a prior generation," Lombardi said.

"This is particularly difficult when you recognize that these players and these coaches are now in the middle of their season, and these penalties at this time in their season appear to us to be a particularly difficult blow to accept."

Smrt said the committee has wrestled with the issue in the past.

"The NCAA is a group of member institutions," he said. "And the penalties run toward the institutions."

The school has 15 days to appeal the sanctions or ask that the ban against the football team be delayed. Neither Lombardi nor athletic director Bill Arnsparger would say whether the school will appeal.

Spurrier said the football program has been guilty of only one major violation in the past six years — when Hall gave a player $360 to make a child-support payment. For that reason, Spurrier said, the school should challenge the NCAA's bowl ban.

Coaches fume, call for appeal

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida coaches and players reacted angrily to NCAA sanctions on Thursday, saying the mistakes of others cost them a chance to win the Southeastern Conference football title and go to a bowl game.

"How am I supposed to tell these guys they're paying the price for something that happened four years ago?" Coach Steve Spurrier asked. "We're having a real difficult time accepting that."

While NCAA officials said the two-year probation was lenient given the Gators' admitted major violations, a furious Spurrier wasn't buying it.

"There was only one major violation against our football team," Spurrier said referring to previous Coach Galen Hall allegedly making a player's $360 child-support payment in 1986.

"It's hard for me to look my players in the eye and say a coach paid someone's child-support payment four years ago and that's the reason they can't go to a bowl game or even play for a conference championship."

Arkansas football keeps SWC privileges for 1991

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference Council voted Thursday to keep Arkansas in the league for the 1991 football season with all rights and privileges, including competing for the championship.

"Arkansas will be treated in 1991 just like it's a normal season," said Dr. James Vick of the University of Texas and president of the conference council.

Vick said the vote was unanimous. Arkansas had originally planned to play as an independent next year before joining the Southeastern Conference in 1992.

Arkansas, a charter member of the 76-year-old SWC, voted Aug. 1 to bolt to the SEC by 1992 in all sports except football.

Arkansas Athletic Director Frank Broyles said on Wednesday: "We're happy to do whatever (the SWC) wants to do in the 1991 season."

Arkansas had a change of heart for 1991 when it discovered the difficulty of trying to schedule games for the eight SWC slots they were losing.

SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby said, "It is the professional and the right thing to do on the part of the conference."

Jacoby said he felt the SWC presidents would approve the move when they meet on Oct. 7. That vote is considered a formality.

The action also provides relief for the Cotton Bowl, which is involved in discussions with CBS over its contract. The Cotton Bowl, which has the SWC champion as its host team, will now get another year of grace because the Hogs will be available to play should they win the SWC title in 1991.

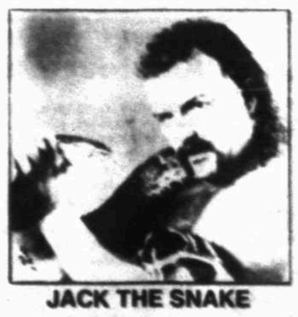

The SWC also announced other sweeping changes in Thursday's meeting of faculty representatives and athletic directors.

Those included:

— Changing home gate receipts from a 50-50 split so that the home team would retain all gate receipts in football and basketball beginning in 1992.

Prices surge

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil jumped to a record $35 per barrel Thursday, as the Persian Gulf crisis pushed futures markets into another wild rise.

Light sweet crude oil contracts for October delivery traded as high as $35 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange before settling for the day at $34.71 a barrel, up $1.53 over the Wednesday settlement price.

Oil's latest surge was partly attributed to refining problems, a chilly fall weather forecast and a prediction of $60-a-barrel oil if war breaks out in the Mideast.

The October contract expired Thursday, forcing many speculators, who had expected prices to go down and were caught short, to buy contracts at steep prices.

Natural gas was up 2.4 cents to $1.848 per 1,000 cubic feet on November contracts, with other delivery months mostly higher.

Dollar gains

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar mostly gained ground in light but volatile dealings on world currency markets Thursday.

In Tokyo, the dollar fell to a closing 137.05 Japanese yen from 138.05 yen at Wednesday's close.

In London, the British pound fell to $1.8690 from $1.8855 late Wednesday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Wednesday's rates, included: 1.5773 German marks, up from 1.5730; 1.3210 Swiss francs, up from 1.3105; 5.2815 French francs, up from 5.2670; 1,176.75 Italian lire, up from 1,175.00; and 1.1843 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1863.

Banks fail

DALLAS (AP) — Three more Texas banks failed Thursday, with federal regulators approving assumptions of assets and some liabilities for two institutions and payments to insured depositors of the third.

Two of the failed banks were scheduled to open Friday as branches of the assuming institutions. The latest failures brought the total in Texas so far this year to 88, with 138 nationwide, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said.

The agency approved assumption of deposits and secured liabilities of City National Bank of Irving by Comerica Bank — Texas, Dallas. Also, First State Bank of Rising Star was assumed by The Peoples State Bank, Clyde.

Energy Council pushes CNG at UTPB

■ Members of the Energy Council warned local residents that bills mandating a switch to alternative fuels will soon become law.

By Sue Gutierrez
Staff Writer

Compressed Natural Gas (CNG) was the issue placed before many Permian Basin city officials and area business leaders Thursday at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification.

The Energy Council, sponsored by the Texas Energy Extension Service, held its second quarterly meeting to discuss CNG and how Senate bills 740 and 769 will affect the Permian Basin.

Fred Phillips, district marketing manager for Energas in Midland, said North America is going to be forced to use other fuel forms, and West Texas is no exception, thanks to Texas Senate bill 740 (Alternative Fuels Program) and Senate bill 769 (Texas Clean Air Act.)

Phillips noted that CNG is a perfect alternative to gasoline and diesel fuel because it is safer, cheaper and plentiful in the United States therefore, reducing America's dependency on unstable foreign oil and combating pollution.

"Natural gas burns cleaner, produces less pollution and is lead free. It's safer than gasoline because it is not susceptible to explosions. CNG meets all EPA standards and it can be produced anywhere there is a pipeline," Phillips said.

"General Motors had anticipated developing 1000 natural gas powered vehicles, but orders are so heavy that they're producing 5000 instead."

Phillips says the market for compressed natural gas conversions is mainly comprised of public agencies with 10 or more vehicles because the payback period is less. SB 740 excludes emergency and law enforcement vehicles due to a somewhat slower response time.

"The home market is cost prohibitive right now, but prices are coming down. Last year it cost $3500. This year it will be $2500."

Phillips said there are other benefits to CNG, including less vehicle maintenance, an abundant supply and no fears of ground contamination, but CNG does have its drawbacks.

Keating lawyers want $5 million bail lowered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The $5 million bail for Charles H. Keating Jr., a central figure in the nation's S&L crisis, should be reduced because he is broke and won't flee criminal charges, his attorneys argued Thursday.

A parade of character witnesses, including a nun, sought to persuade a judge to reduce bail for Keating and his three co-defendants, held on $1 million bail each. Keating is former chairman of American Continental Corp.

Superior Court Judge Gary Klausner did not indicate when he would rule. If bail is posted, the defendants must prove the money did not come from criminal activity before they could be released from the county jail.

Keating, already a target of numerous civil lawsuits stemming from the $2 billion collapse of Lincoln Savings & Loan, surrendered Tuesday to face a 42-count state grand jury indictment. Lincoln, based in Irvine, Calif., is owned by American Continental Corp., based in Phoenix.

The fraud indictment alleges that Keating and three of his top employees misrepresented the safety of American Continental junk bonds sold at Lincoln branches. More than 20,000 investors, many elderly, are believed to have lost $250 million on the securities.

Merger of UMW, OCAW a year off

■ It will be at least a year before the United Mine Workers and Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers unions merge, officials say.

By Mark Paxton

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The merger of two existing unions to create a national energy workers union is at least a year away, an Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers official said Thursday at the United Mine Workers convention.

Efforts to merge the OCAW and UMW failed in 1987. Talks resumed this year but were not completed before the coal miners' convention began this week.

"We just could not pull it all together in time," OCAW Secretary-Treasurer Tony Mazzocchi said in an interview after addressing the convention. "I think there's a philosophical agreement and the unions only have to work out the details."

Chevron-Pennzoil suit dismissed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed Chevron Corp.'s lawsuit that accused fellow oil giant Pennzoil Co. of concealing its intentions when it bought 8.8 percent of Chevron's stock.

Chevron claimed Pennzoil was planning a takeover attempt or forced restructuring of Chevron management when Pennzoil bought the stock last November, using $2.1 billion from its $2.6 billion settlement with Texaco over a Getty Oil Co. takeover fight.

Pennzoil says it hopes to buy another 1.1 percent of Chevron stock, leaving it just below a 10 percent limit set by the Chevron board in newly adopted anti-takeover provisions.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Move funds from fund with poor record

By Bill Doyle

Q. In April 1987, my husband put $2,000 and I put $1,500 into a mutual fund for our individual retirement accounts. This fund is managed by a big brokerage firm and, according to its prospectus, "is designed primarily for younger investors." We both are 58. Our retirement funds are mostly in certificates of deposit.

Doyle

We have reinvested our mutual fund dividends and capital gains distributions and now own 258 shares valued at $14.86 each. According to my figuring, we haven't gained much in almost three and a half years. When I mentioned this to our broker, he said, "But, look! You have more shares."

What to you say about this mutual fund's performance? Do you think it's a good idea to roll it over to another type of IRA? Can we transfer to a bank IRA?

A. That fund's investment performance is terrible. The numbers you provide show the total combined value of your two accounts increased only $333.88. That is a hair more than 9.5 percent. And that is awful for almost three and a half years.

Considering that fund's record to date, it certainly would be a good idea to move your IRAs. You can do that through an IRA trustee-to-trustee transfer. Pick the place to which you want to shift your IRAs. Sign the necessary papers there. Your IRAs will be moved. You won't even have to talk to your present broker, who sounds like either a dope or a con man.

You can transfer the IRAs to a bank or any other type of IRA trustee you choose. At age 58, it's usually time to start moving speculative investments such as that fund into safe havens such as federally insured deposits.

However, since most of your retirement money is in insured CDs, there's nothing wrong with having some mutual fund holdings. Just pick a fund with a better performance record.

Q. My mutual fund has a gradually decreasing "deferred sales charge" through which I would have been charged 4 percent if I had redeemed my shares the first year. After that, the charge drops one percentage point annually and becomes zero after four years.

The four years will be up in seven months. The fund has not done well, at all. Would you advise me to cash in after the four-year period?

A. Sure. And if that mutual fund's investment performance is really bad, I advise getting out now. The 1 percent you will lose could be more than offset by income and/or gain in value on a good investment you pick as a replacement.

Now that you have been burned once by a fund with a deferred sales charge, let's hope you pick future mutual fund investments more carefully and stay away from those with charges when you buy or redeem and those with high ongoing expenses.

Q. My cousin mailed me a photocopy of a column in which you advised readers to steer clear of mutual funds with "expense ratios exceeding 1 percent." Your reasoning is that high expenses cut into the value of fund shares and, naturally, hurt shareholders.

I agree. But how in this wide world can an investor find out about this before putting his money on the line? When I buy shares of a mutual fund, the broker hands me a prospectus. I find that document virtually incomprehensible. Where in the prospectus will I find information about the fund's expense ratio?

A. Right on Page 2. It's in the "Fee Table" the Securities and Exchange Commission has required every mutual fund prospectus printed since May 1, 1988, to carry.

In that table, the expense ratio is described as "Total Fund Operating Expenses" and is expressed as a percentage of the fund's total assets. As a quick example, if the fund has total assets of $100 million and its operating expenses during its most recent fiscal year were $1 million, its expense ratio is 1 percent.

This information was always in fund prospectus — often buried and hard to find. The 1988 rule change makes it a snap to locate.

ANALYSIS

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 34.16 to 2,523.27 by 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than 4 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 285 up, 1,202 down and 421 unchanged.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Federal Reserve Board seemed to have set the tone for the session with comments on Wednesday indicating little prospect of any Fed moves soon toward easier credit.

The economy is sluggish, Greenspan said, but has not yet given evidence that it has slipped into a recession.

Furthermore, he added, inflationary pressures exacerbated by the recent upsurge in oil prices make it difficult for the Fed to consider any steps to stimulate business conditions.

In those circumstances, Wall Streeters generally see a bleak setting for corporate profits in the quarter that ends late next week, and through the next several months into 1991.

Losers among the blue chips included Boeing, down ⅜ at 43⅝; General Electric, down ½ at 55⅛; Philip Morris, down ⅝ at 45⅜; Westinghouse Electric, down ⅜ at 27¾, and Exxon, down ½ at 50¾.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped 2.17 to 171.74. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.65 at 317.32.

Alta gets $8 million Eddy County program

Staff Report

Alta Energy Corp. of Midland has announced an $8 million development drilling program for Eddy County.

Alta says it will drill 22 wells on 3,000 acres and commence waterflood operations of a project in the Grayburg-Jackson field, Eddy County, New Mexico.

The work will be completed by Alta through it's wholly-owned Avon Energy Corp. subsidiary, by February. Additional wells may be drilled at Alta's option.

The first well in the program has been completed and produced at a rate of 70 barrels of oil per day for 30 days. Alta will own 75 percent of each well, subject to interest reductions at payout.

In addition to the Eddy County development program, Alta's subsidiary has purchased interests in two gas wells on the Gulf Coast for approximately $1,000,000. Funding for both the development program and property purchase was obtained on a long term basis at a fixed rate from an institutional lender.

Both the Eddy County development program and debt facility were obtained through affiliates of Hartford Energy Corp., Alta's majority shareholder.

CNG: Benefits listed

(From 5D)

"The start-up costs are more, there is a loss of vehicle power and a shorter mileage range," he said. Phillips said current CNG vehicles can travel about 120 - 150 miles before refueling.

There are a few natural gas filling stations around the nation, including an Amoco station in Denver and a few in California. "If anyone is interested in pursuing a filling station, we can put you in touch with some companies." He mentioned that Energas would like to work with interested companies.

Senate representative Gary Watkins' Austin office said SB 740 went into effect August 28, 1990. Phillips pointed out that this bill went unnoticed, due to being an environmental bill instead of an energy bill.

"With CNG, everyone benefits: Jobs are created, vehicle fleets cost less to operate and we don't have to trade economy for clean air." Phillips said.

The Energy Council is comprised of community leaders from government, business, education, social agencies, trade and professional associations who can significantly impact the energy of others.

The Council serves to help community leaders become informed on energy issues, to request information and ideas on energy topics of particular interest to the Basin and provides an opportunity for discussion among energy producers, consumers and policymakers.

The Texas Energy Extension Service sponsors the quarterly meetings of the Energy Council as a part of its free services to assist Texans in the cost-effective and efficient use of energy in their homes and small businesses. Questions about energy efficiency, solar and other renewable energy sources can be directed to The Energy Information Hotline at 915-362-2066 in the Permian Basin.

MERGER: National energy workers union sought

(From 5D)

Proponents argue that a national energy union is the only way organized labor can negotiate effectively with corporations such as Du Pont and Exxon that control huge coal and oil reserves.

"The giant oil companies own it all," Mazzocchi said. "You can't compare them with other companies. You have to compare them to countries."

Mazzocchi said a merger is unlikely before the OCAW picks a new president at its August 1991 convention to succeed Joe Misbrener, who is stepping down.

The UMW's governing body, the International Executive Board, approved a merger with OCAW in 1987, but the OCAW board rejected the plan at the last moment.

UMW delegates, who have spent much of this week listening to speeches deriding the rich and politicians, also heard Thursday from U.S. Sen. Jay Rockefeller, a West Virginia Democrat and a member of one of the richest families in the nation.

Rockefeller — formally John D. Rockefeller IV — has traditionally been backed by the UMW in his election campaigns. He called UMW President Richard Trumka "the greatest labor leader in this country."

Rockefeller referred to oil as "the enemy of coal" in transportation and endorsed the use of methanol made from coal to fuel cars. Such a policy would have prevented the Persian Gulf crisis by eliminating the need to import oil, he said.

"We did not have to be dependent on a region of the world that is a powder keg that everyone knows is just waiting to explode," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller also supported health insurance coverage for all Americans and long-term care for the disabled.

Friday's scheduled speaker is Jesse Jackson.

BAIL: Defense claims accused won't flee behalf.

"I feel Charles Keating should stay in jail until the bondholders can get their money back," Mrs. Ivy said outside court, choking back tears. "He's taken everybody else's money. He should have to suffer a little too."

Keating, 66, sat quietly at the hearing with co-defendants Judy E. Wischer, 42, former president of American Continental; Ray C. Fidel, 32, former president of Lincoln; and Robin S. Symes, 37, of Malvern, Ohio, former chief executive officer of Lincoln. Each faces up to 10 years in prison if convicted.

Defense attorneys argued that bail should be reduced because even though the total number of bondholders exceeded 20,000, only 20 were named in the indictment and they lost a total of $1.8 million.

Prosecutors have said they limited the scope of the case so it could easily be understood by a jury.

Keating's attorney, Stephen C. Neal, said that during the last 16 months "a myriad of civil lawsuits" have been filed against the Arizona developer.

"At all times Charles H. Keating has made himself available," Neal said. "Mr. Keating has never failed to appear at any hearing."

James J. Feder, a bankruptcy lawyer for American Continental, testified that Keating is broke and unlikely to flee.

Prosecutors said Keating and his family still may own large chunks of American Continental stock. Feder said even if they did, the stock was worthless.

Sister Mary Louise Ante, principal of St. Thomas the Apostle school in Phoenix, testified that Mrs. Wischer should be released because she is not a danger to the community, regularly attends church and would be missed by her children. Mrs. Wischer's 11- and 8-year-old daughters attend the school.

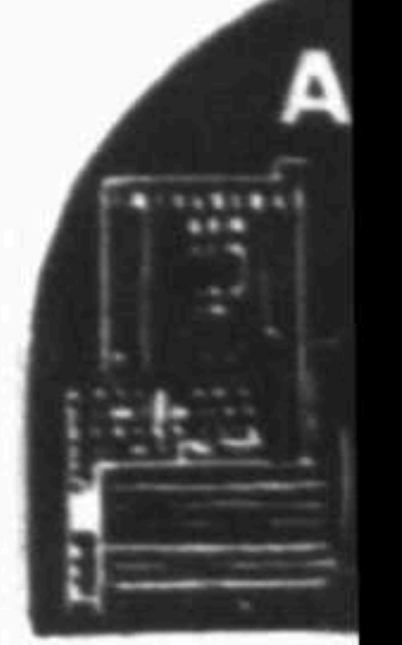

Keating became a prominent symbol of the nation's S&L failures because of his lavish personal habits, willingness to make risky investments using taxpayer-insured money, and the estimated $2 billion cost of bailing out Lincoln.

He is also under investigation by a federal grand jury in connection with his alleged looting of Lincoln. He faces a slew of civil actions, including a $1.1 billion racketeering case filed by the federal thrift bailout agency.

CP dancers star in 'fashionable' benefit

Beverly Shilling/Reporter-Telegram

By Linda Anderson
Staff Writer

A little touch of France helped a local organization raise money for West Texas children.

The Children's Service League's 14th benefit luncheon and fashion show, themed "French Country Picnic," was presented Thursday at Holiday Inn Country Villa Convention Center. The event is a benefit for Midland's Cerebral Palsy Center.

About 500 area residents attended the biennial event, which is presented every other year.

"We hope to raise $10,000" for the CP Center, said Dee Morris, co-chairman of the fund-raiser.

"Funds will go for operating expenses of the Center," said Cynthia Gilbreath, Children's Service League president.

The CP Center is "not federally funded," according to co-chairman LaDona Moore. "It's all privately funded. Midland Independent School District supplies the teachers" but all other funds are donated by private sources.

"It's the only privately funded center in the state, possibly in the nation," added Ms. Morris.

The Center, which currently serves 488 children, is open to residents of the entire Permian Basin. "We never turn down any child for financial reasons," Ms. Moore said. "Some (children) go to school at (both) MISD and the CP Center."

Eight children from the CP Center's dance therapy classes — Becky Stacy, Marisa Madrid, Chas Howbert, Vilma Ramos, Misty Burch, Patricia Turnbow, Keith Dunn and Charissa Culpepper — performed two dances they had learned, and earned several rounds of applause from the crowd.

Luncheon for the event featured a menu of fresh fruit salad with poppy seed dressing, Champagne Chicken, vegetable medley and Amaretto cheesecake.

The fashion show featured the newest fall styles from Swartz, including casual wear, daytime fashions and evening gowns.

Colors ranged from bright primary colors in bold geometric prints for day wear, to earth tones — "the ultimate in understated glamour," according to Andrew Swartz — in muted browns, greens and golds.

In evening wear, colors included everything from soft whites through jewel tones in every color of the rainbow, all the way to classic black. Skirts for daytime were mostly knee length, but evening gowns shown had hem lengths from mid-thigh to full length.

Crowd-pleasers at the fashion show were the fur coats, from hip- to ankle-length, in colors from natural to red, purple and blue. "Color makes the impact," Swartz said.

"Fashion is personal," he said. "Only you bring a look to life."

Special sponsors for the event were Mrs. Earl Bruno; Mrs. Leonard Busby; Mrs. Earle Craig Jr.; Mrs. Roy Davidson and Mrs. Davidson Claiborne; Mrs. Carroll Grafa and Mrs. H.H. Blankinship; Mrs. Clyde Hamblin; Mrs. James C. Henderson; Mrs. William W. Henry; Mrs. Ron Holcomb and Mrs. Richard Saxe; Mrs. Thomas P. Ingram and Mrs. Loyd Whitley; Mrs. T.G. Propably no one can name the first television program ever aired. Not only was it the first, but it stayed No. 1 in the ratings for two full decades. The program was unbeatable because it originated in 1928, when General Electric station WGY in Schenectady, N.Y., began testing cathode ray tubes with a simple image transmission three times weekly. The "program" was 24 scanning lines repeated 20 times per second.

FAMILY MATTERS

Fear of failure affects family

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: I need help! I have been married the last 11 years to a person who expects everything to go his way. He demands that both of us (we have a 7-year-old son) perform up to his standards on everything that we do. He is very active in church and community, and people are always telling me how wonderful he is. I just wish they really knew.

May

It seems like whenever the smallest thing doesn't go to his liking at home, he explodes. He yells and screams at me and sometimes even at (son). I am getting sick and tired of being treated like this. I have been able to put up with it all these years, but I am concerned that it's going to affect my son. After he has cooled off, I have told him that he must stop it and he agrees, but then he blames me for starting it because I didn't do something just right.

I want a husband who I can trust and who will be nice to me. I don't want to get a divorce but I don't know what to do. Is there anything I can do to make him stop treating me this way? — BEAT

DEAR BEAT: Teach your husband another way to treat you. Your husband may be operating under the false belief that he (and his family) must meet certain standards in order for him to feel good about himself. This false belief can result in a powerful fear of failure.

Try encouraging your husband to take the following test (from Robert McGee's book, "The Search for Significance"):

Read each of the following statements and choose the number which best describes your response to each statement. "1-Always," "2-Very Often," "3-Often," "4-Sometimes," "5-Seldom," "6-Very Seldom," "7-Never."

- Because of fear, I often avoid participating in certain activities.
- When I sense that I might experience failure in some important area, I become nervous and anxious.
- I worry.
- I have unexplained anxiety.
- I am a perfectionist.
- I am compelled to justify my mistakes.
- There are certain areas in which I feel I must succeed.
- I become depressed when I fail.
- I become angry with people who interfere with my attempts to succeed, and as a result, make me appear incompetent.
- I am self-critical.

Total your score. McGee suggests the following intepretation:

57-90: God has apparently given you a very strong appreciation for His love and unconditional acceptance. You seem to be freed from the fear of failure that plagues most people.

47-56: The fear of failure rarely controls your responses.

37-46: When you experience emotional problems, they may relate to a sense of failure or to some criticism.

27-36: The fear of failure forms a general backdrop to your life. There probably are few days that you are not affected in some way by this fear.

0-26: Experiences of failure dominate your memory and have probably resulted in depression. These problems will remain until some definitive action is taken. This condition will not simply disappear.

The process of overcoming a fear of failure is essentially a spiritual journey, and begins with recognition and acceptance of the fear. Once this step is accomplished, the journey can begin. Hopefully your husband will take the test and will be forthright in his answers.

I have found two books that are helpful in the journey to wholeness. One is McGee's book and the other is "The Twelve Steps — A Spiritual Journey." Both are in workbook form. I encouage you to talk to your husband about his willingness to acknowledge his part in the problems within your marriage. Whether he is willing or not, I encourage you to acquire one or both of the books and start your journey. You must teach him to treat you differently.

Report claims birth spacing could save millions of lives

By Randolph E. Schmid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of infant deaths could be prevented if women in developing nations were able to increase the length of time between having babies, according to a study released Wednesday.

"Birth intervals of less than two years are strongly and consistently associated with higher mortality," reported the analysis prepared by the independent Population Crisis Committee.

When there is less than two years between births, the risk of the second child dying in infancy is increased by between 60 percent and 70 percent, the study said. And it doubles the chance of the earlier child dying by age 5.

"Family planning should be the first step toward improving child survival," said Sharon L. Camp, vice president of the committee which advocates provision of contraceptives and family planning.

"Through family planning the cycle of weak mothers giving birth to weak children can be broken," said Camp.

Pregnancy and nursing make major nutritional demands on the mother. If a new pregnancy follows without enough time to recover the chances are increased that the second child will be premature and underweight, the report states.

In addition, becoming pregnant again quickly can cause a woman to stop breast feeding the earlier child, the report adds.

It also suggests that spacing children too closely together increases competition for limited family resources and may increase the spread of infectious diseases among children.

While admitting that accurate statistics are difficult to collect in many developing nations, the report estimates that 10 million infants and 4 million children aged 1 to 5 die each year.

About 1.8 million of these deaths could be prevented by extending the interval between births to two years, the study estimates.

That calculation is based on an earlier study that concluded that a longer interval between births could reduce infant mortality by 10 percent and mortality in children aged 1 to 5 by 21 percent.

In addition to birth spacing, the report says that childbirth before age 20 also increases the likelihood of infant and child death.

"Children born to mothers under age 20 — common in many developing countries where girls marry very young — are a third more likely to die before age 5 than children born to mothers aged 25 to 34," the report states.

In addition, the study concludes, infant and child deaths could be reduced by as many as 3 million annually through the use of family planning services to delay first births for young women and to space them out later.

DEAR ABBY

Lost dog owners depend on stranger's help

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Recently we moved into a new home. Somehow, Pookie, our little dog, got out of the yard. He never goes out, even when the door is open. I didn't realize he was gone until 3 a.m., when I was awakened by his yelping.

Van Buren

I looked through the house and yard and couldn't find him. At daybreak, I got into my car and went looking for him. No luck. When I returned home, I found a message on our answering machine saying a man had found our Pookie, miles away, dead on the highway! He told us where to find him. We searched but found nothing. I telephoned everyone I could think of: police, Animal Control, SPCA, etc. Finally, I asked a city crew who were cutting weeds if they had seen him. Yes, they had! They found Pookie and another dog dead on the highway, so they buried both dogs by the mountains, where they bury all domestic animals they find dead.

So — to end this story, I just wanted to let people know that if that caring, concerned man hadn't taken the time to stop and check Pookie's rabies tag number and track us down, we never would have known what happened to our dog. I know I never would have stopped looking for him.

How caring it was for the street crew to have buried Pookie instead of throwing him in the dump. I was able to thank the city crew, but not the man who found him. I hope he knows how we appreciated his kindness. Thank you, stranger! — JEFFERSON COUNTY, COLORADO

DEAR JEFFERSON: Losing a treasured pet is painful, but the pain of not knowing what happened to the pet compounds the agony.

Pet owners should always have current ID tags on their pets, even those that are "never" out of doors. It can save a lot of heartache.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the question: "Who should go to the airport to meet the man who has been overseas for over a year? His wife and parents, or only his wife?" You said, "His parents and wife should meet him." Your answer was right on, Abby.

I'll never forget coming home from Vietnam after being gone for 14 months. My wife created a fuss because I had written to my parents insisting that they be at the airport, too — but in separate cars. I wanted the same loved ones who saw me off to be there for my return.

It worked out beautifully! After the welcome-home hugs and kisses were over, I loaded my bags into our car, and my wife and I went home together while my parents drove home in their own car.

I still have my parents. But my wife and I were divorced when I learned that she wasn't all that lonely while I was away. — VIETNAM VET IN K.C.

DEAR VET: Thanks. I needed your vote. You and I were outnumbered about 500-to-1.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GRIEVING IN ARIZONA": My heart goes out to you. "I can think of nothing more unnatural, nothing that leaves God with more explaining to do, than the loss of a child." (Jean Harris)

Plants add life to living space

NEW YORK (AP) — A few well-chosen potted plants can add warmth and charm to any living space sparsely furnished by desire or necessity.

Fill empty spaces with fast-growing, inexpensive indoor plants such as scheffleras, ficus, aralias and philodendrons which will flourish year-round. In spring and summer, bring the outdoors inside by hanging up baskets of flowering plants such as fuchsias, roses or ivy geraniums. Park a dwarf orange tree, an Australian tree fern or colorful bougainvilleas on the floor near a sunny window.

Stress is essential, but not in excess

By Dr. Henry F. Page

In previous articles two facts were established: 1) that some stress is essential for development and enjoyment of human life, and 2) that excessive stress can lead to physical and emotional exhaustive collapse.

Page

"Miss Callie" exemplifies pur-r-fectly how most anxieties can be avoided. She is a fair, furry, fun-loving feminine feline family member, exuding love and amicability 98 percent of the time. When strange Toms, loud noises, growling dogs or unrecognized strangers approach, she does indeed exhibit marked cat-anxiety. No amount of explanation or soothing helps, but distraction in the form of food, play or pleasant activity immediately corrects the situation.

Likewise, with homo sapiens one can intellectually assess the myriad causes of stress in one's particular life and thereby define a practical approach. But, alas, try as one might, the objective proves nigh impossible to obtain. For example, the alcohol or nicotine addict knows full well that he or she should desist. He or she would surely fail to reform unless the urge and desire is supplanted by potent religious, emotional or intellectual drives. Therefore, the necessary ingredient for successful motivation comprises a dynamic relationship with the ever changing outside world (spiritual, social and physical) that constantly challenges and stimulates.

This can be accomplished, not by telling oneself to stop any untoward activity, but rather by supplanting it with a healthier lifestyle.

In-depth geriatric research has demonstrated 10 parameters for successful aging, which are as follows:

- An optimistic outlook and a sense of humor.
- Residential independence, when possible.
- Financial independence.
- Alert and active mental life.
- Outside commitments.
- Good health practice.
- Regular exercise.
- Hobbies with a product.
- A life growth process involvement.
- A successful adjustment to institutional life, if indicated as a need.

Remember that one man's meat is another man's poison, so tailor-make your own adjustment. Personally, I can sit right down next to hard work and go sound asleep!

Dr. Henry F. Page is medical director for Trinity Towers and Manner Park.

By James E. Walters

PHOENIX (AP) — Dick Countryman practices square-inch gardening. Except for a few, necessary paths, his 30x50-foot backyard is in nearly year-round production of vegetables and flowers.

Plants in containers also fill most nooks and crannies and an enclosing, 6-foot wall supports climbers.

"There's no road map. Wherever and whenever I have room to plant something, I do it," he says. "I don't believe in allowing ground to go fallow."

Countryman feels his garden proves it isn't necessary to have a large plot to grow a constant supply of fresh vegetables and cut flowers. He's been cultivating it more than 25 years. Now 64 and retired, he thinks it's a shame more people — particularly retirees — don't grow vegetables and flowers.

"The big thing is to work at your own pace and avoid disappointment by first learning and then following the basic techniques," he says. He advises beginners to "start small and don't try to do everything at once" and estimates a 4x8-foot vegetable garden is enough for one person's needs.

An August visitor counted at least 70 varieties of flowers, about half of them in bloom. There were more than 40 types of vegetables. The vegetable count lumps as one type five varieties of tomatoes, six of peppers, three of cucumbers, three of garlic, three of onions and three of squash. There were even 24 stalks of sweet corn.

"I like pretty flowers. I like nutritious, fresh vegetables. I like to experiment. A lot of things I grow just to see if I can grow them," Countryman says by way of explanation.

HIS THEORY is to keep the ground in constant production.

"It's also moving the plants around, crop rotation, so you don't build up any diseases."

While there are perennials, such as a strawberry patch, most plants are pulled out as soon as they complete their cycle.

"I might go in here with mutiplier onions, or I might go in there with head lettuce or flowers, or whatever," he says.

The 100-square-foot strawberry bed always has been in the same place. Runners are used from time to time to replace older plants, of course. The bed produced berries (Ozark Beauty and Sequoia) from December into July this year.

Flowers are just as likely to follow vegetables as vegetables to follow flowers, but the bulk of the vegetable production — because of the desert climate and triple-digit summer temperatures in this Phoenix suburb — begins in the fall.

He has few worries about frost.

"I can cut a fresh bouquet of flowers or gather fresh vegetables every day of the year," he says.

While the intensive approach may seem unorthodox, Countryman's credentials are impeccable. He retired recently as assistant director of the state Horticultural and Agricultural Commission, is a horticultural graduate from the University of Arizona, and is in frequent demand as a speaker on gardening subjects.

"Preparation of the planting bed is the secret," he says. "Do it right, and you'll have a reasonable amount of success."

For 100 square feet, he covers it 4 inches deep with organic matter, such as mulch, and sprinkles two pounds of ammonium phosphate (16-20-0) and five pounds of gypsum on top before turning it in twice. The gypsum is used to counteract salt in local water. Gardeners in other areas may find lime or soil sulphur work better.

Countryman seldom uses chemical pesticides, finding that insects and diseases rarely bother healthy plants.

HIS PLANTING beds are arranged so the watering bubbler system applies two inches uniformly every four days much of the year.

"Adequate water and healthy plants keep weeds to the minimum," he says.

He has plants in more than 200 pots. They range from miniature roses to chives to cucumbers to raspberries.

His potting mix formula is based on an ancient wheelbarrow with 1 cubic foot capacity. He starts with 4 inches of horse manure from a nearby riding stable and mixes this with a gallon container of perlite, a gallon of vermiculite, a cup of bonemeal, two cups of gypsum and a gallon of any commercially sold potting mix.

The front yard is mostly flower beds and shrubs, but it does include 100 square feet of lawn grass. "That's plenty of lawn to take care of," he says.

IT'S YOUR LIFE

Parents' aging brings changes in feelings

By Steve Edwards

Most families have to face the fact of parents aging and the changes in feelings their aging process may bring.

Edwards

As long as parents remain self-reliant, life seems to go on as usual; but if they start becoming more dependent on their adult children, these family members either may assume more responsibility for their parents than they have in the past, or they may become frightened and frustrated with the changes in their parents and avoid contact with them as much as possible.

While adult children usually feel a wide range of mixed emotions toward their parents, they may not express those feelings — especially the negative ones. They must be able to express all their emotions openly, both positive and negative, because these feelings will influence their actions toward their aging parents.

Openly expressing their emotions may allow adult children to accept them, put them into perspective and come to a better understanding of their own emotional needs. Even positive feelings, such as love, tenderness, respect, generosity, devotion and concern may be linked to a sadness in realizing that elderly parents are no longer what they used to be.

Physical and mental changes that occur when parents age are difficult to face, let alone accept. An adult child usually retains at least a trace of that child who saw his parents as strong, immortal and protective, and who believed they would always be there for him.

As parents age, their adult children feel more vulnerable. The disabilities of elderly parents may rekindle feelings of anger, resentment and especially guilt in their children.

An adult child usually feels guilt when facing the end of his parents' lives, and believes he hasn't lived up to his parents' expectations or his own, or he hasn't honored his parents enough.

People who feel guilt often overreact and not only become caretakers for their parents, but also take on the responsibility of making all decisions for them. This "role-reversal" leads the adult child to dominate the parent.

The ability to realize that aged parents are adults who should have input into decisions that directly affect their lives, and to know how much responsibility to take on as caregivers is called "filial maturity."

Children and parents can never actually reverse roles. One can never totally repress 30 or 40 years of adult experiences and become a chid once again.

Foster grandparents celebrate 25 years of service to children

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a child, Tom Flatley was separated from his parents and placed with his brother in a Missouri home for the retarded, mentally ill and criminally insane — even though both children were normal in all respects.

Flatley, now 79, who suffered "environmental retardation" because of his surroundings, has returned to the same institution as a volunteer, working with children who need help.

Flatley is a part of Foster Grandparents, a low-key, relatively inexpensive government program that pairs low-income elderly people with children in need.

Foster Grandparents is celebrating its 25th anniversary this summer and Flatley and 27 of his colleagues from programs around the country were welcomed to the White House by President Bush and his wife, Barbara, to mark the occasion.

Over the last quarter-century, since President Johnson signed enabling legislation on Aug. 28, 1965, 400,000 Foster Grandparents have offered cheer and a ready ear to millions of children.

Today, there are 27,000 Foster Grandparents, ages 60 to 100.

Each is paid a stipend of $2.20 an hour for 20 hours of work each week. Some get assistance with transportation and meals, and each is eligible for a free yearly physical checkup. Sixty is the minimum eligible age. An income near the poverty line also is a requirement.

The volunteers serve some 79,000 children with special needs in 275 programs in every state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. The program's budget last year was $58 million.

Foster Grandparents are found in halfway houses, schools, Head Start facilities, drug abuse rehabilitation centers, foster homes, juvenile detention centers and homes for unwed mothers.

The children they help may be blind, deaf, or retarded; they may be emotionally disturbed, or suffer from drug or alcohol abuse, parental neglect or abuse, learning disorders or any combination of conditions.

Some are "boarder babies," abandoned at birth and cared for at hospitals.

Many were born to addicted parents and suffer the inherited effects of alcohol or drug abuse. Many are AIDS babies, born to a parent who has the disease.

At the White House ceremony, Mrs. Bush said the need is growing for older people with "precious gifts to exchange with the children of this world."

Air Force appreciates Army anti-missile team

By Joseph Albright
N.Y. Times News Service

IN SAUDI ARABIA — When Army Capt. Pete S. Vlahos rolled in and set up his unit next to the Air Force, the Air Force wing commander was so glad to see him that he started sending over videocassette movies and televisions so the Army troops wouldn't get bored.

The Air Force even gave the Army troops some of its precious airconditioned trailers so they could sleep soundly.

Why? Vlahos, 30, of Dayton, Ohio, commands the only kind of unit that has much chance of knocking down an incoming Iraqi Scud ballistic missile.

His supersonic Patriot missiles are designed to destroy incoming missiles at least 50 miles before they reach the runways used by the Air Force.

The radar operators in the Patriot command center spend their work hours scanning monitors inside airconditioned work spaces. Among the blips on the screen are "tracks" of any planes or missiles detected by the Air Force AWACS planes constantly circling over eastern Saudi Arabia.

"We want to make sure their attention span is the best we can possibly get it to be," Capt. Vlahos said. "That's why we afford them as much rest as possible, so they can do their mission; execute it quickly, efficiently, with a great deal of precision."

Precision means that if a missile zings in at them, they would have less than five minutes' warning time, according to unofficial estimates. Vlahos declined to discuss operational details.

The Patriot was critical in the first fortnight of the American buildup because it offered a visible line of defense guarding the biggest Saudi airfields at a time when there were almost no other defenses around.

If it turns out that the United States does go on the offensive, the Patriots could — if ordered — serve as a potent part of an attack.

In contrast to earlier antiaircraft batteries, the Patriot is designed to be moved to a new site and to be set up immediately. Within 25 minutes, it would be expected to start firing missiles.

Vlahos's superior, — Lt. Col. Lee Neel, 42, of Houston — spoke confidently of his ability to knock out incoming planes or missiles.

Refugees refuse temporary shelter

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sixty-two Middle East refugees decided to go it alone Thursday, refusing temporary state housing they called inadequate.

Federal money to house the refugees at a hotel near Baltimore-Washington International Airport ran out Thursday. The refugees said they would rather find their own accommodations than stay at the shelter offered them, which they complained lacked privacy, public transportation and schools for their children.

"We believe it's not really suitable for our families," Husni Saleh said of the shelter in a rural part of the state. "Moreover, it's isolated and there is no public transportation from there."

The refugees were part of a group that arrived last weekend aboard two planes from Baghdad, Iraq, via London.

"They're not the poor and downtrodden, although many of them don't have much cash because it's been frozen," said Susan Chase, an official at the shelter, the New Windsor Service Center in New Windsor, Md. "They're used to a pretty high standard of living."

Chase said several families went to look at the shelter, but "apparently they wanted a little more luxury than we could provide."

The shelter, in Carroll County, about 45 miles northwest of Baltimore, was chosen by state officials. Richard Stein, Maryland deputy secretary of human resources, said it has processed about 10,000 refugees over the last decade.

The shelter is part of a complex operated by the Church of the Brethren on a former college campus in the rural town of about 900 people. Shelter residents have private rooms, but must share bathrooms and eat in a cafeteria, shelter officials said.
