White Teen Shot During Race Riot

Police Arrest 70 Persons

By The Associated Press

A white teenager was shot by Negroes in a passing car although racial rioting was eased generally Wednesday night in Cincinnati, Ohio. Violence hit another Ohio city after a Negro leader promised "to make white men get on their knees."

Fire bombs were used in several places, police said, and unruly crowds formed, then dispersed as cruisers and National Guard jeeps raced to the scene.

Police said 70 persons were arrested in spots as far as 11 miles apart although trouble calls came at a slower rate than the previous night and reports of injuries were fewer.

Meanwhile, vandalism, at least two arson fires and window breaking cropped up in Dayton, Ohio, where three white persons were beaten when pulled from their cars.

CIVIL RIGHTS

The violence followed a militant civil rights meeting where H. Rap Brown, who recently replaced Stokely Carmichael as head of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, asked Negroes, "How can you be nonviolent in America, the most violent country in the world?

"You better shoot that man to death; that's what he's doing to you," Brown said.

Afterwards, Willie Ricks, SNCC official, said he and Brown were in Dayton "to make the white men get on their knees."

National Guardsmen patroling Cincinnati were under orders from their commander, Lt. Col. Francis B. Folk that "if fired upon, return fire and shoot to kill."

LOOTING

Damage from looting, fires and smashed store windows Tuesday night was estimated at more than $1 million.

In contrast, more than 120 young Negroes in Tampa, Fla., apparently ended the violence which had disrupted Florida's second largest city for three nights.

Striving to maintain an uneasy truce with National Guardsmen and police reinforcements held out, white-helmeted members of the "City Youth Patrol" popped up in front of bars, on troublesome corners and in restaurants to urge that Negroes "cool it. We don't need any more trouble."

The action followed official warnings that serious trouble would bring massive police retaliation.

National Guardsmen were moved to a baseball park to stand by after a fire in a two-story frame home and grocery store, but these were the only two blazes compared to 15 Tuesday night.

In what police called an isolated incident, a white youth was seriously injured when a gasoline bomb was tossed in the window of his car.

SUMMIT MEET

Elsewhere, Negro leaders held a summit conference in New York, Negroes marched on the Alabama capital at Montgomery and business and professional men hunted homes for Negroes in an affluent Chicago suburb.

At New York, civil rights leaders adopted a formula for concentrating their power on one city at a time — starting with Cleveland, Ohio. Afterwards, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. refused to rule out the possibility of working with black nationalists in Cleveland.

In Chicago, business and professional men found 38 homes for five Negro families, including 23 at the desired price levels of $25,000 to $40,000.

A spokesman said some of the five families have been looking for homes for years. The heads of the families include a chemist, a hospital association official, a lawyer, a magistrate and a post office clerk.

A group of more than 150, singing, chanting Negroes marched to the steps of the Capitol at Montgomery, Ala., before police halted them at barricades.

Young Negroes Restore Peace

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—National Guard troops prepared today to march out of violence-scarred Tampa, signaling the end of this city's first major civil riots.

Gen. Henry W. McMillan, Florida National Guard Commander, recommended demobilization after a long conference with local law enforcement agencies. Gov. Claude Kirk approved, he said.

McMillan added, however, that one Guard officer would be left on duty around the clock. All Guardsmen were ordered to keep their units informed of their whereabouts, in event that a recall becomes necessary.

Squads of white-helmeted young Negroes—some of whom threw rocks at police during the riots — apparently had restored peace to the city.

"I think we have passed the critical point," Sheriff Malcolm Beard said as he went home in the early morning hours to his own bed for the first time in four nights. "Those boys in white hats did a marvelous job."

As 150 teenagers roamed the hot, humid streets of five Negro neighborhoods, telling potential troublemakers "we don't need no more trouble," the night passed in relative quiet.

Sheriff Malcolm Beard calmly held his massive armed force of National Guard troops and police in check while the youngsters in borrowed helmets broke up two unruly crowds without incident.

Firemen reported only two fires Wednesday night were set by gasoline bombs compared to 15 on Tuesday night. There were more than a dozen false alarms Wednesday night.

BOMB TOSSED

In another isolated incident, deputies said, a gasoline bomb was tossed in the window of a car on a highway, burning two white teenagers in the auto. One, identffied as Bobby Wilson, 17, of Tampa, was admitted to Tampa General Hospital in serious condition with third-degree burns over his arm and back.

Officials said they had expected new trouble to follow a ruling Wednesday that Patrolman James R. Calvert was justified when he shot 19-year-old Martin Chambers, a Negro burglary suspect, in the back Sunday night. The killing triggered two bitter nights of rioting and a third night of unrest.

State Atty. Paul Antinori, Beard and civil rights leaders predicted trouble after the ruling. The boy's mother filed a $500,000 suit against Tampa.

MARVELOUS JOB

"I think we have passed the critical point," Beard said at midnight before going home to bed for the first time in four nights. "Those boys in white hats did a marvelous job."

However, warned Beard, "some emotions could be started up again by the funeral." Franklin Funeral Home, where Chambers' body was taken, said the family had not completed arrangements. There were rumors that Chambers had been secretly buried but these were denied by the funeral home.

Beard told Gov. Claude Kirk he would crush any new violence "with no holds barred," then gave a free hand to the volunteers who called themselves the "City Youth Patrol."

Pull Back Pushed

UN Debate Scheduled

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly probably will begin an emergency session this weekend to debate a Soviet demand that Israel withdraw from the Arab territory it conquered.

Secretary - General U Thant began polling the 122 U.N. members on the Soviet request for the session after the Security Council refused Wednesday to approve a Soviet resolution condemning Israel's "continued occupation" of Egyptian, Jordanian and Syrian territory taken in the war last week.

The Russians wanted the council also to demand that Israel troops pull back to the lines they held before fighting began June 5.

Kosygin Speculation

Thant must call the assembly session within 24 hours after receiving affirmative responses from a majority of the members—62 nations. Diplomats generally believed that a majority would agree by Friday and that the session would begin Saturday.

Speculation continued that Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin would attend the session. Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in his letter requesting the meeting said the Soviet delegation would include "leading statesmen of the Soviet Union," and AP Correspondent Henry S. Bradsher reported from Moscow that Kosygin was likely to be among them.

The Soviet Union based its call for the emergency session on the "Uniting for Peace" resolution which the United States pushed through the assembly in 1950 to circumvent the Soviet veto in the Security Council.

The procedure permits assembly action on a threat to peace when the Security Council is paralyzed by lack of unanimity among the big powers. The Russians in the past called the procedure illegal.

Israel Resolution

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg told the Security Council during its debate Wednesday that his government was "not interested in maneuvers" such as the Soviet move to the assembly but rather wanted to work in the council for real peace in the Middle East.

He said "the council has far from exhausted its possibility of contributing" to that end.

Goldberg went to Washington Wednesday afternoon to consult with the State Department.

The provision in the Soviet resolution to condemn Israel received the votes of only four council members—the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, India and Mali. The 11 other council members abstained.

Nine Votes Required

The affirmative votes of nine members are required for adoption of a resolution.

The provision calling for Israel withdrawal was supported by six members—the four that voted for the first provision plus Ethiopia and Nigeria. The other nine council members again abstained.

The council gave unanimous approval, however, to a resolution sponsored by Argentina, Brazil and Ethiopia calling on all governments concerned to treat war prisoners and civilians caught in the war humanely. It also asked Israel to facilitate the return of refugees from the fighting.

Boycott Action

As preparations for a Soviet-Arab push against Israel went forward at the United Nations, Cairo Radio announced that foreign ministers of the Arab nations would meet in Kuwait Saturday to plan an Arab summit conference.

The report said the foreign ministers would discuss plans for "eliminating the traces of aggression against the Arab countries."

No date or site has been announced for the summit meeting.

Egyptian officials were letting it be known that President Gamal Abdel Nasser's government would rather risk another military test with Israel than negotiate a Middle East settlement with their conquerors.

Egypt also was reported preparing an expanded boycott of Western companies, principally those of the United States and Britain, which deal with Israel.

Grief Stricken War Veteran

His wife, Betty, 24, and her sister, Mary Valliquette, 16, were slain at the older woman's home in Stroud last weekend. Funeral services were scheduled for today. Ronald T. Koonce, 23, a neighbor of the victims, has been charged with the slayings. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Ex-Ruby Lawyer Faces Tax Raps

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal grand jury indictment unsealed in open court here today accused Joe Tonahill of Jasper, lawyer at one time for Jack Ruby, of evading $125,732 in income taxes.

Tonahill pleaded innocent before U.S. Dist. Judge Jack Roberts.

The three-count indictment was returned April 14 and then sealed by agreement of both the government and defense, Roberts said.

NOW UNSEALED

The judge said the indictment was unsealed today "because the interests of the parties and of justice will be served by the unsealing."

The indictment claims that Tonahill, 53, evaded payment of income taxes for 1960, 1961, and 1962—all years prior to the 1963 assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas and the arrest of Ruby for slaying the alledged assasin. Tonahill was one of Ruby's lawyers during the original trial. The family fired him.

Ruby was assessed the death sentence, later overturned by the Court of Criminal Appeals. Ruby died of cancer before further court action.

DIFFERENCES

The indictment charged that Tonahill, in income tax returns for himself and his wife, claimed that he had a taxable income of $19,123 for 1960 and paid a tax of $4,981. The government claims Tonahill's income was $110,010 and his tax should have been $53,676.

The indictment said Tonahill claimed a 1961 income of $10,991 with a tax of $2,416. The government claimed his income actually was $53,273, with tax due of $22,070.

FOR 1962

For 1962 Tonahill reported income of $19,520 and paid tax of $4,916, the indictment said. The government claimed his reported income should have been $110,777 with tax due of $61,299.

There were no further hearings set today on the action.

Tonahill's lawyers were listed as Donald Thomas and Sander Shapiro, both of Austin. Thomas is a member of the firm headed by Ambassador to Australia Ed Clark. He also is lawyer for President Johnson's family radio and television holdings.

Tonahill was released under $5,000 bond.

Agency Delays Oil Allowable

AUSTIN (AP) — Because of the unsettled Near East oil situation the Railroad Commission amended today the oil production allowable for the last two weeks of June and postponed setting an allowable for July.

The commission increased the June allowable from 33.8 per cent to 35.9 per cent, effective June 1.

The new June percentage figure will permit maximum oil production of 3,112,191 barrels daily, compared to the current allowable of 2,992,236 barrels under the 33.8 per cent factor set for June at the May Hearing.

Garrett Suffers Heart Attack

Horace Garrett, local bank director, capitalist and philanthropist, suffered a serious heart attack early today in the Methodist Hospital in Houston. He was in the hospital for treatment for a lung complication, having gone there earlier in the week.

Mrs. Garrett flew to Houston this morning to be with him. She reported to friends later in the day that Garrett seemed to be resting, but that his condition is grave. He is in the intensive care unit.

WIDOWS OF FIREMEN SUFFER

Pain Keeps Coming Back

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's a strange feeling, thinking he's just at work and tonight maybe he'll be home. Then the night comes and the house is quiet. The kids are in bed. But he doesn't come home. He never comes home."

And Virginia Higgens knows he never will.

Walter Higgens, battalion chief, New York City Fire Department, died last Oct. 17 with 11 other firemen in the worst tragedy in the department's history.

COLLAPSE

In the boiling black smoke and the stench of burning chemicals, the weakened floor of a 75-year-old building collapsed into an incinerating fire, dropping the men in after it.

The block-long scar of gutted buildings at Broadway and 22nd Street has long since been healed by bulldozers and covered over with an asphalt parking lot.

But for 12 widows and 36 children, the pain cannot be pushed away or covered over.

"It's the way they died, that's what keeps you awake," said Mrs. Joseph Priore. "That was the hardest adjustment to make."

DAUGHTERS

Jeanette Kaminsky, who lost her husband, Rudolph, after 15 years of marriage, has found some comfort in her two daughters, Glorianne, 12, and Rose Marie, 13, who have done their best to make the adjustment easier.

"Rose Marie isn't the type to break down, but every once in a while she goes to her room and closes the door," Mrs. Kaminsky said. "It got to Glorianne too. Her father used to have pet names for her and once, by mistake, I called her by one of those names. She said, 'Mommy, please don't call me that. That was Daddy's name for me.'

"They hear in school what their friends are doing with their fathers and they come home and tell me. That's when I can see their misery, although they try to hide it because they're trying to bolster me. It's especially bad now that Father's Day is coming. That used to be such a celebration in our house."

FIRST BIG FIRE

Daniel Rey, 26, was a probationary fireman who followed his father and older brother into the department. He had never been called out on a big fire before.

For eight months, Virginia Rey has been haunted by the question, "How did he know?"

She recalled: "He used to say to me, 'You know honey, I know that when the first big fire comes, I won't come home. I know I'll never come back.' He knew he was going to die in the Fire Department.

"The night of the fire his mother called him at the fire house. He told her, 'Nothing big has happened yet but I have the feeling it'll be tonight. The big one's going to come tonight.'

"How did he know?"

FINANCIAL HELP

People who never knew that a Walter Higgens or a Thomas Reilly or a William McCarron or a Carl Lee had existed lined the streets to pay respects—and sometimes to weep—as flag-draped fire engines bore their bodies to funeral sites.

People who had never met John Finley, John Berry, James Galanaugh, Bernard Tepper or Joseph Kelly felt instinctively that their wives and children might need help.

Thousands sent their checks and their dollars and their coins to help ease the financial crisis. The fund, which now totals more than $646,000, will be an average of about $54,000 per family.

PROFANE CALLS

But along with these thousands of people, there also was a share of sick ones, the type who make anonymous, profane and insulting telephone calls.

Several women reported a rash of these after the fire. Dorothy Tepper changed her telephone number three times and finally had it unlisted.

But in comparison to those who genuinely wanted to help, the sick ones were few.

The fund, plus Social Security and pension payments, will permit most of the women to remain with their children instead of going to work. But in some cases, that freedom also gives the women too much idle time to think.

Ethel and John Finley celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary last Oct. 14. Three days later their marriage died in the fire. Three of the four Finley children are grown and away from home. Only Joseph, 11, remains.

GOES TO WORK

"There just wasn't enough for me to do," Mrs. Finley said. "I'd sit around and be miserable most of the time. So I took a job two days a week as a volunteer nurses aide. It helps to get your mind off your own grief and concentrate on somebody else's pain."

For Marie Reilly and Dorothy Tepper, remembering is so terrible that they won't talk about it. "We still expect him to come home," Mrs. Reilly said. "I'd rather not talk about it. I'm not that strong yet."

Some who think they have the strength, find that they're wrong.

"Yesterday I saw the monument on his grave for the first time," Grace Priore said softly. "You think you have full control and then something like that comes up. It's the little things that shake you."

Often the little things are the children.

Winifred McCarron has three sons, the youngest aged 3.

"The baby talks about him constantly," she said. "It doesn't bother me unless I'm having one of my bad days. Then I'll break."

Ann Kelly's son, Darin, is 6.

MEMORIES

"I thought he was still too young to really know," Mrs. Kelly said. "But once in a while he'll come across things we have in the house that remind him of his father. He remembers how his father taught him how to move the typewriter carriage back and forth. Sometimes he walks to the desk and just stands there moving it, over and over.

"Those are the times I think he hurts."

Terrence Lee is 7. His brother Lance is 6.

"They're not doing as well as they should in school," Betsy Lee said. "It's like the heart got kicked out of them. They don't talk about it very much, but sometimes you can see it in their eyes. When they're thinking about their father, you can see the sadness all through them."

These moments of anguish, the women all say, become fewer and fewer with the passing of time.

Nightmares are fewer. Sleep comes easier.

Laughter is at least a remote possibility.

And somehow, they go on living.

Marines Battle Commie Troops

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines battled Communist troops today at two points south of Da Nang. The war's tempo rose again after a lull reflected by the fact American combat casualties last week were the lowest in nearly two months.

A Marine spokesman said a battalion of the 5th Marine Regiment fought a Communist force of undetermined size that had pounced on two or three Leatherneck platoons with heavy mortar and automatic weapons fire 25 miles south of Da Nang.

There was no announcement of casualties on either side.

Elements of the 7th Marine Regiment battled about 60 uniformed Viet Cong in Operation Arizona, 14 miles southwest of Da Nang. The Marines, saying nothing about any losses of their own, reported killing 15 of the Viet Cong.

A hard-core Communist battalion of about 500 men was cut to pieces in the Mekong River delta Wednesday by U.S. helicopter gunships and artillery and a crack South Vietnamese division.

BLISTERING BATTLE

The South Vietnamese said 211 of the Communists were killed, 17 were captured and many more wounded in a blistering battle in which the Red commander was bested by the battle-tested Vietnamese 21st Division.

As the two-week lull in the ground war broke, another Red battalion of about 500 men fell on an American company in the jungles of war zone D north of Saigon. Six Americans were killed and 12 wounded, most in the first few seconds, before artillery fire raked the Red positions. A U.S. spokesman said 60 Communists were killed and another American was killed and seven were wounded earlier in the operation.

129 STRIKES

The intensified ground fighting was matched by 129 air strikes against North Vietnam, many of them aimed again at rail lines north of Hanoi. One American Phantom jet was shot down by ground fire and the crew was listed as missing. It was the 583rd U.S. combat plane lost over the North.

The delta battle erupted in the paddyfields about 85 miles southwest of Saigon when the crack Viet Cong "Tay Do" battalion, escorted by local guerrillas, ran into two companies of South Vietnamese militia about 10 a.m.

The Viet Cong commander apparently was unaware that two battalions of the South Vietnamese 21st Division were only a few miles away.

COPTER DOWN

By foot and helicopter, the men of the 21st swept onto the field and into blocking positions, pushing the Communist battalion into the open. There it was raked mercilessly by artillery and helicopter gunships.

One helicopter was shot down and landed in guerrilla territory. A big twin-rotor recovery helicopter came in to rescue the stricken chopper and was driven off by Viet Cong fire. Another gunship came in and silenced the Communists and the downed chopper was finally lifted out.

"We've never had a day like this before," said exultant helicopter gunner Dennis Bolton of Huntsville, Ark.

SHARP SHOOTING

"That was really some sharp shooting," said his commander, Capt. Thomas Beauchamp of Bristol, Va.

The Americans had no casualties. The South Vietnamese had five dead and 60 wounded.

The delta battle continued for six hours until the Communists pulled off the field toward their marshy hideouts nearby. They left 30 weapons on the field.

The lull that preceded the flareup of ground fighting was reflected by a drop in casualties on both sides last week. U.S. Command announced 176 Americans were killed, compared with 214 the week before, while the Communists lost 1,156 dead compared to 2,420 the previous week. The figures were the lowest in about two months. South Vietnamese losses also dropped, from 235 to 215 last week.

JUNGLES

The U.S. infantrymen hit in war zone D 47 miles northeast of Saigon were from the 1st Division's 3rd Brigade taking part in Operation Billings. The operation began Monday with its target the 9th Viet Cong Division. The zone is an old Viet Cong stamping ground of heavy jungles, part of which was worked over by U.S. forces in the big Operation Junction City early this year.

Operation Billings is continuing.

The renewal of larger-scale ground fighting coincided with the announcement that U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara would make his ninth trip to Vietnam next week.

INCREASE EXPECTED

AP military writer Fred S. Hoffman reported from Washington that a further increase of U.S. forces is expected to result from McNamara's trip, with Pentagon sources predicting increases varying from 25,000 to 100,000 men.

But Premier Nguyen Cao Ky told newsmen today that 600,000 U.S. troops — 137,000 more than were reported in the country last week — are needed to handle the 390,000 Communist troops he estimated are in the country.

Ky's estimate of the enemy was nearly 100,000 more than the estimate of 294,000 made by U.S. headquarters for the past few weeks.

LINES RAKED

U.S. spokesman reported that despite broken weather over North Vietnam, Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots on Wednesday raked supply lines from above Hanoi all the way down to the 17th Parallel that divides Vietnam. Heavy strikes were again poured on the northeast and northwest rail lines running from Hanoi to Red China.

B52 bombers supported Operation Billings with strikes at Viet Cong troops in Phuoc Long Province.

A Fuel Shortage Coming?

By DR. LEONARD REIFFEL

Unlss you happen to be working on space problems, it's standard procedure to call this the "Nuclear Age." On the one hand, nuclear weapons hang heavy over everyone's head and, on the other hand, atomic energy is supplying an increasing amount of the electrical power to run civilization. As a matter of actual fact, it's a bit premature perhaps to rate nuclear energy as an extremely important supplier of power. It really hasn't had a chance yet to take hold. Only in the last few years has nuclear power become economically competitive with electricity produced from coal or oil. As late as 1960, petroleum, natural gas and related sources supplied about 72 per cent of the U.S. energy consumption. Coal produced about 24 or 25 per cent of our power while, in 1960, nuclear energy accounted for an infinitesmal one-tenth of one per cent.

This situation is going to change very rapidly. Nuclear energy, although a late starter, is a fast horse in the race. Nevertheless, for some time to come, the United States is going to need a lot of other fuels, including petroleum to fulfill its energy requirements.

Do you know that even today we import more than 20 per cent of our petroleum? These oil imports, in this day of balance of payment problems, cost us $2 billion a year.

The amount of crude oil the United States has in proved reserves is something like 30 billion barrels. This is probably adequate for the next decade. After that, potential trouble looms. The really important oil discoveries are being made these days in the Middle East and Africa. Buying oil from these sources may become increasingly painful.

The real trouble is that the cost of finding oil is increasing all the time and the U.S. isn't a very attractive place for petroleum exploration. For each foot of oil well hole drilled in 1930-35, about 160 barrels of oil were discovered. Between 1960 and 1965, a mere 39 barrels per drilled foot have been discovered. This means that the cost of discovery has climbed tremendously. It will continue to climb. As a result, in 10 years we'll be importing about a third of our oil. This could cost us as much as $5 billion a year.

There are ways out. The United States has begun to wake up to the fact that it had better look for alternatives. The so-called oil shale deposits, found all over the United States and especially in the West, could produce an enormous quantity of oil. If proper recovery methods existed, perhaps a million million barrels of oil could be taken from these stony oil shale deposits. Another approach that the United States is beginning to take seriously is the chemical processing of coal to produce liquid fuels rather similar to gasoline.

All in all, something like a third to a half billion dollars of research and development money is going into finding replacements for oil. It's very likely that the amount of money being spent to finding new solutions to our potential petroleum shortage is going to increase dramatically in the next few years. Some strange new fuels may soon be making their appearance as a result.

Keene To Head TPA Officers

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Forrest Keene, police chief of the Dallas suburb of University Park, is the new president of the Texas Police Association (TPA).

Other officers elected Wednesday included John Fitch, San Antonio inspector, first vice president; Chief Joe Newcomer of Uvalde, second vice president; assistant chief H. T. Fogell of El Paso, third vice president; Maj. Leo Gossett of the Department of Public Safety in Midland, fourth vice president; Chief Herman Short of Houston, fifth vice president; Glen H. McLaughlin, chief of services of the DPS in Austin, secretary-treasurer; and Chief J. A. Toler of Plano, sergeant-at-arms.

Multi-Campus Meet Slated

AUSTIN (AP) — The College Coordinating Board has scheduled a June 30 hearing on a proposed rule treating individual campuses of multi-campus junior colleges as separate schools for the purpose of getting federal construction funds.

The board staff has drafted a resolution for action at the board's July 17 meeting.

Dr. J. K. Williams, commissioner of higher education, said the proposal was drawn because Dallas and Tarrant County junior college districts soon will have more than one campus each.

"Without the change we would be doing an injustice to city junior college systems by insisting that they fragment their boards and administrations," Williams said.

The commissioner acknowledged that some smaller junior colleges fear the change and believe it would result in multi-campus districts receiving too heavy a share of available construction money.

Micromini Skirt Irritates Judge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in the divorce court said, "I'm not going to be insulted like this—a woman coming down here half naked" and he told Gwynne Schaffer to go home in her micromini skirt.

"Go home and get another dress and I will hear your case," Judge A. A. Scott told the 23-year-old woman who is seeking a divorce from her 24-year-old husband, Rod, a drummer.

But when her lawyer explained that Mrs. Schaffer sells miniskirts for a living, saying, "Please judge, she's in uniform," Scott relented enough to hear the woman's testimony that Rod verbally abused her, had a bad temper and made her "sick and upset."

The judge took the case under submission. He told Mrs. Schaffer to return to court Friday—more modestly dressed.

DESPITE MAMMOTH AID

'Decade Of Development' Problems Growing Worse

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Indications of a growing economic disparity between the rich nations and the poor nations—which is just the opposite of the world's goal—helps explain a lot of the troubles afflicting the world today.

Despite mammoth government aid programs and attempts by some of the private enterprise sectors to help in development, the situation is growing worse in what the United Nations refers to as the "Decade of Development."

FRUSTRATION

A recent U.N. report gives a hint of the frustration of those institutions and nations involved with attempts to develop the poor nations, some of which still depend on one crop that nature rather than man provided.

This report showed that the flow of capital from the 20 rich nations to the 100 poor nations declined last year and is, at the latest reading, below the minimum goal set by the United Nations. That goal was 1 per cent of the total productivity of the developed countries.

Such a flow of capital can result from investments in the poor nations, in the sale of the poor nation's goods to the rich nations, from economic assistance and from the poor nation's investments in the rich.

REINVESTING

Instead, the report indicated, the industrialized nations were reinvesting in themselves and growing stronger. At the other extreme the poor nations had a trade deficit of $1.3 billion, the price of trying to buy rather than develop the better life.

This problem now engages more effort than any other broad economic problem. It was a theme in the recent papal encyclical. It has been the chief concern of foreign aid programs.

CRASH PROGRAM

And now, on the 20th anniversary of the Marshall Plan, which lifted the flattened economies of Europe after World War II through grants and loans, the question arises: Why can't we have a similar crash program to build the underdeveloped economies?

Many students now feel it simply cannot be done, and the simplest explanation is to categorize the problems as more social than economic.

Europe had the institutions, the framework; it had the economic vehicle and merely needed the gasoline. To attempt to fuel the poor-nation economies with massive aid funds, many feel, would be to attempt pouring gasoline into an oxcart.

COULD DO HARM

Theodore Geiger of the National Planning Association, a private group, says to hope for a Marshall Plan for underdeveloped nations could do more harm than good. The problems are not the same, he says.

Geiger feels the basic issues in Latin America include the distribution of economic wealth, political power and social prestige.

And in Asia and Africa, he feels, the problems are even deeper and the capacity for cooperation, which is necessary, is even less than in Latin America.

Above all, he notes, few of the underdeveloped nations have the unity of purpose that would commit them to development and modernization. Instead they are split by individual and group loyalties and other national objectives.

Oil Compact Commission Endorses Plan

by MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Oil Writer

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The Interstate Oil Compact Commission has endorsed a proposal under which individual states would share at least part of the income from federal offshore oil and gas leases.

The conservation study group also has reaffirmed a request that Congress formally recognize an existing arrangement under which regulatory agencies in adjacent states supervise the drilling and production practices for such federal leases.

A resolution approved by the commission at its mid - year meeting Wednesday said four bills now before Congress would achieve such objectives.

No specific bill was endorsed but Gov. Paul B. Johnson, D-Miss., the commission chairman, was asked to inform the governors of the 33 member states of the problem and to urge legislative action.

NO COMPENSATION

Coastal states which supervise federal offshore leases receive no compensation for such services. The commission first asked last year that the situation be corrected. The renewed request follows recent indication by Interior Secretary Stewart Udall the federal government may assume jurisdiction over such regulatory practices.

A proposal now before the Senate would give to the adjacent states 37½ per cent of all moneys derived from the outer continental shelf federal leases. It also would require that the remaining 67½ per cent be shared by the 50 states under a distribution plan based on population.

The commission also renewed its plea for strict oil import controls, saying the Middle East war underscores the need for the nation to be self - sufficient in petroleum reserves.

Independent producers were successful in having the resolution changed at the last minute to include a request that the "absolute maximum" for imports into areas east of the Rocky Mountains remain at a 12.2 ratio with domestic production.

The commission refused to give outright endorsement, however, to a campaign by the independents to have Congress spell the 12.2 ratio into law. The ratio was established at the administrative level and the independents contend this has led to loopholes and exceptions.

Luci Totes The Groceries

Air Crewman Killed In 'Chute Drop From Plane

DARROUZETT, Tex. (AP) — One of three crewmen was killed parachuting from a crippled B58 jet bomber Wednesday night.

Two others survived and were flown away early today as Air Force investigators arrived on the scene.

The supersonic bomber cracked up on a farm just west of Darrouzett, in the northeast corner of the Texas Panhandle.

Officials at Bunker Hill Air Force Base in Indiana, where the plane was based, indicated the survivors as the aircraft commander, Maj. Clinton R. Brisendine, 38, of Dallas, and the defense systems operator, Capt. Gary Cecchett, 26, of Sutersville, Pa.

Authorities identified the dead crewman as the navigator, Capt. William Bennett, 31, of Lakeland, Fla.

Bunker Hill officials said the plane carried no nuclear weapons. It was on a training flight.

A witness to the crash, James Cook, who farms the land where the plane crashed, said the bomber had just finished refueling from a tanker plane in the air.

A Clinton-Sherman Air Force Base spokesman at Clinton, Okla., said he doubted the refuelling report, however. Clinton-Sherman will handle the investigation.

"I heard this explosion and thought it was thunder," related Cook. "Then I saw this plane circling low."

It crashed about a mile from where he was standing, and Cook helped the pilot from his ejection capsule.

"The pilot had a little scratch on his head and the other one didn't have anything," Cook said.

"We hunted for more than an hour for the other (third) guy—his "chute didn't open."

The body was about 200 yards from the wreckage.

Lady Bird Says Luci 'Singing Like A Lark'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Luci Johnson Nugent shopped at a supermarket for family groceries and her mother says she's "singing like a lark" as the birth of her first baby approaches.

"Luci has everything in readiness," Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson said today.

She said her 19-year-old daughter even went shopping for Father's Day presents.

Luci's father, the President, is expected here this weekend to join members of the family who are stork-watching. And, of course, there was Luci's husband, Patrick J. Nugent, 23, expecting to be a father by Father's Day, June 18.

BIRTH DATE

The date the baby is expected is Saturday, June 17, but there are some doubts that the birth would come that soon.

Luci isn't acting as though the birth is imminent, and spokesmen for the family are beginning to suggest a later date for the birth.

A steady stream of cars at the Nugents' fashionable pink brick home at 2706 Macken Drive Wednesday brought workmen, a piped music firm representative and a stream of Secret Service men.

Luci, herself, finally emerged late in the day to be driven off by a Secret Service agent to do the family shopping.

DARK GLASSES

When she emerged from the supermarket about a half hour later, the President's daughter, wearing dark glasses, and a green and white polka dot tent dress, was carrying a hefty bag of groceries. She was followed by a clerk with a bagful in his arms, too. The Secret Service agent followed, watchful but empty-handed.

Mrs. Johnson said she was keeping in touch by phone and would divide her time between Pat and Luci in Austin and tending to household duties at the LBJ Ranch 65 miles away where the President was to entertain Australian Prime Minister Harold Holt this weekend.

The First Lady flew here from Washington Tuesday night and said she had dinner and "a wonderful evening" with the young Nugents.

STORK RACE?

But while Mrs. Johnson was relaying comments to the press, Luci was bent on privacy and her husband, Pat, was refusing to take any phone calls.

The main thing the Nugents and the Johnsons wanted to keep secret for now was the hospital where the President's first grandchild will be born.

Insiders now say Luci and her team of doctors — there probably will be six, including two anesthetists—prefer Seton Hospital, a five-story red brick general hospital, run by the Catholic order of the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul.

In case of emergency, they will go to Brackenridge, a sprawling red-brick, city-owned hospital, the only hospital in Austin with a resident staff of doctors on 24-hour duty.

Officials at both hospitals denied they were in a stork race.

Texas Crude Allowable Is Due To Be Increased

AUSTIN (AP) — Because of the ban on oil shipments to the United States by four Arab countries, the Texas Railroad Commission was expected to raise the oil production allowable today for the first time in six months.

Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Algeria clamped the lid on oil intended for the United States or Great Britain — for the latter countires' alleged air support to Israel during last week's war — and a strike in Libya has stopped production there.

Some Arab officials have called for nationalization of all Arab oil fields, and others have suggested that offers be accepted from Spain and France to replace the United States and Great Britain as developers of the Arab petroleum industry.

If the Arabs change their minds in the near future, there is still a hitch: The Suez Canal is blocked by about 10 ships, and shipping experts estimate it will take from two to 10 months to clear them out.

Whatever oil is shipped from countries like Kuwait, Saudia Arabia and Iraq, therefore, will have to come around the Cape of Good Hope, which takes much longer and costs more.

Another factor pointing toward a raise in the Texas allowable was the 33-state Interstate Oil Compact Commission's adoption at its Denver convention Wednesday of a resolution calling for an "absolute maximum" 12.2 per cent ratio of imported oil to domestic oil in areas east of the Rocky Mountains.

Independent producers supported the resolution, saying the Middle East situation has shown the need for better development of domestic industry.

The percentage factor fell four straight months after hitting 37.5 in January, highest in eight years. The June factor of 33.8 per cent was the same as May.

The factor had climbed four straight months before peaking in January, and some oil experts expected it to hit 40 before the year was out.

During the Suez crisis 11 years ago, the Texas allowable was established as a certain number of days per month for production. The commission set the allomable at 16 days in January, 1957, equivalent to 51.6 per cent of potential.

Aged Man 111

LONDON (AP) — John Mosley, Turner, Britain's oldest man, is 111 today.

He said he has one main ambition left — "I want to celebrate my 112th birthday."

LA Cops Shoot Negro To Death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police said they shot a Negro to death in Watts Wednesday night after he and his father level shotguns at them.

Officers said Elmer Russell 16, was killed instantly.

About 50 persons gathered at once but there were no incidents.

Police gave this account:

Four officers responded to a robbery report. They said they saw five Negroes moving off in a black car. The car sped away with the officers in pursuit.

The officers lost sight of the car, then spotted it minutes later in the driveway of Russell's house.

As they checked the vehicle, Russell's father Vernon, 39 began arguing and struck one of the officers.

Elmer Russell appeared at the side of the house with a shotgun.

"You're not taking that car anywhere," said the son, aiming the weapon at the officers.

Officers shot him and disarmed his brother, 15, who had come to the door with another shotgun.

As Russell's body was removed, the crowd dispersed as quickly as it had gathered.

Vernon Russell will be booked on a charge of assaulting a policeman, officers said. The younger son will be charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

KEY LEADERS DIVIDED

Militant Buddhists Virtually Powerless

HUE, South Vietnam (AP)—South Vietnam's militant Buddhists, who once could put tens of thousands of demonstrators into the streets, are now a weak, divided force without a cause.

The opinion of Vietnamese and Americans who have been watching the Buddhists is that the militant segment never recovered from the loss of face last year when an all-out effort failed to topple the regime of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. They have become even more fragmented since then.

The leader of the militants, Tri Quang, is now virtually powerless.

SCANT NOTICE

His attempts to stir up trouble during Buddha's birthday celebration in May, which included a parade and the immolation of a Buddhist school teacher, drew scant attention.

For the first time since 1963, when the Buddhists launched the first "struggle movement" that led to the overthrow of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime, Hue University is finishing an uninterrupted school year.

Hue, the ancient capital of imperial Vietnam, remains the center of militant Buddhism, with other pockets in Saigon and Da Nang.

FORBIDDEN

The robed bonzes who are followers of Tri Quang are shadowed by government police and are not allowed to travel between the major Buddhist centers. Some have been stopped at airports and sent back to the city from which they came.

Tri Quang, a native of Hue, has been at the An Quang pagoda in Saigon for almost a year and has been forbidden by the government to return to Hue.

There are also divisions among the leadership of the militants.

Tri Quang and the leader of the "moderate" Buddhists, Tam Chau, joined in the opposition to Ky last year but are now at each other's throat. Tam Chau calls Tri Quang "Communist-inclined," and Tri Quang accuses the Tam Chau Buddhists of "treason and open collusion with U.S. dollars."

ANTI-GOVERNMENT

Tri Quang's group remains vehemently antigovernment. Tam Chau appears to cooperate openly with the Ky government. Ky and other government officials appear at Buddhist ceremonies, and the government permitted Tam Chau to organize a parade of 10,000 persons through Saigon on Buddha's birthday.

It is hard to number South Vietnam's Buddhists, who are the largest religious group in the country, but generally they can be divided into three main groups.

REFUGEES

The militants, from central Vietnam—northern South Vietnam—are the best organized and strongest and are concentrated in Hue, Da Nang, Nha Trang, Quang Tri and other northern cities as well as in Saigon.

The Tam Chau group, centered around Saigon, has strong influence in the south and in the Vietnamese army. Many are refugees from North Vientam.

The most numerous southern-born Buddhists have a poorly organized leadership and are not a cohesive force.

Grain Price War Feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman is finding decision-making on the government's 1968 wheat production program difficult in the face of world food uncertainties and complaints about domestic farm income.

The secretary soon must set an allotment for wheat to be planted in the late summer, fall and next spring for next year's harvest. He is under strong pressures from those who want a high acreage to assure plentiful supplies for any possible world needs, as well as from farm groups concerned over the possibility of new grain surpluses developing.

This year's allotment was 68 million acres, or 32 per cent more than for the 1966 crop. Production has been forecast at a record level of 1.55 billion bushels.

Freeman appears to be leaning slightly in the direction of those worried about new surpluses and possible lower grain prices and reduced farm income in 1968 — incidentally, a presidential election year.

He has told farm and government leaders the translation of the productive capacity of U.S. farms into an oversupply of wheat could trigger an international grain price war over commercial markets, as well as bring depressed grower prices.

Maori Village Colorful New Zealand Attraction

A visit to a Maori village in New Zealand is one of the most interesting and memorable experiences of a South Pacific cruise.

This will be one of the features available to passengers on the Matson liner Mariposa during the two-day stay in Auckland on the six-week cruise, sponsored by The Herald. The Mariposa will sail from Los Angeles Harbor July 24.

The Maoris (pronounced "Mau-rees") are Polynesians, with blood relatives throughout the Pacific, including Samoa, Tahiti and Hawaii. The Maoris are descendents of South Seas islanders who settled in New Zealand around 1350.

LONG HERITAGE

The proud Maoris are intent upon preserving their heritage. At Rotorua, only 150 miles from Auckland, they have a village which shows how their ancestors lived hundreds of years ago.

Visitors to Rotorua pass gurgling mud pools and growling blow holes amid elaborately carved buildings (including a stockade) and gateways flanked by bright red warrior figures.

Highlight of a Rotorua visit is a Maori concert in the "marae," or courtyard, in front of the meeting house. Maori men, dressed in flax-reed shirts that rattle rhythmically as they sway, do the rousing "haka" or war dance and the women perform the graceful "poi" dances.

GEYSERS

Towering geysers, boiling streams and great clouds of mist provide a spectacular background for the village. Many Maoris live in the thermal areas. They cook their food in the natural steam vents or in boiling pools.

Maori parents teach their children the songs that tell of their ancient history, the fierce war dances of their forefathers and the art of transforming a block of wood into a magnificent carving.

BRITISH ORIGIN

The Maoris comprise only seven per cent of New Zealand's population today. Ninety per cent of the population is of British origin. The Maoris have been assimilated through the centuries, blending into all occupational and community activities as a vital force in the country.

These handsome, artistic people, who have contributed so much to their beautiful land, typify the warmth and friendliness of all New Zealanders toward visitors from other parts of the world, particularly the United States.

This is one of the reasons New Zealand is a favorite of so many veteran cruise passengers.

The Mariposa will sail from Los Angeles July 24. Ports will be Bora Bora, Tahiti, Rarotonga, Auckland, Sydney, Noumea, Suva, Niuafo'ou (also known as "Tin Can Island"), Pago Pago and Honolulu.

Details and reservations are available from the Trimble - Baldridge Travel Service, 523 W. Beauregard, San Angelo.

Lampasas Nutured Populist Party

By ED SYERS

OBT's seen a friendly debate as to where was sired the Texas Farmers' Alliance, forerunner to century-turn Populist Party, among whose planks then called 'socialist' was the graduated income tax. Lampasas claimed the spot; Wise County, near Decatur, vied. From Littlefield's Plains Country's Mrs. Pearl A. Hooten, mark a vote for Lampasas.

"In 1877 my stepfather, John R. Allen, a farmer, called his neighbors together in his home, the same rawhide building (that Lampasas pictures show). The first meeting was held in Lampasas Co. on Donaldson Creek to organize the farmers for their mutual protection against horsethievery, also to put them on equal basis with other businesses.

"Farmers were dissatisfied with their condition: they worked and sweated to raise produce and livestock but could not put a price on it and had to take what the merchants offered. When buying the same stuff back, they still had no say. They drew up a charter and by-laws. The idea spread nationwide; from it, the Populist Party sprang.

FARMERS' ALLIANCE

"John R. Allen was known and honored to his death as the 'Father of the first Farmers' Alliance in Texas.' He died in 1900, is buried in old Nix Cemetery, Lampasas County.

"In 1893, the Lampasas Co. Alliance held a three-day meeting to honor the founder at his home. The original house was being used for a barn at this time. Men were busy restoring the dilapidated old barn as a farm house. It was then crated, carried off (to Chicago's World Exposition, as OBT's mail reads).

"I was a small girl then but distinctly remember the crowds and souvenier hunters gathering blocks of wood, even splinters and rusty square-headed nails. One man made some watch fobs from sawed and carved bits of the oak foundations.

"I wonder if there is anyone living today who was present at this meeting; I'd like to hear from them." (808 N. Sunset, Littlefield).

HOG EYE FOUND

MAILBOX: (Write OBT, care of the Herald, or Ingram, Texas 78025. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.)

Trailing forebears, Austin's Harris Brush found one, broke down but repaired close to Austin at a promising 1871 community called 'Hog Eye.' Where was it?

Edna's Jack A. Holt pegs that town. "This was an old stage stop about five miles south of present Elgin. Go out the old river road past the Rivers Ranch; the old town lies to your left. I rode horseback in there a few times but never found anything of interest. I think the town was built of wood and burned down. Some of the early accounts of the (bloody Reconstruction-time) McDade - Giddings shootings and hangings mention Hog Eye."

RESIDENTS WILL HAVE A PART

Planning Sessions Set

Residents will be asked to participate in the future planning for Big Spring, as a result of a suggestion offered by Mayor Arnold Marshall and adopted by the Big Spring City Commission Tuesday.

INFORMAL MEETINGS

In order to make time for discussions on the city's future, the mayor suggested that the commission begin a series of informal meetings, called "planning sessions." Primarily, these will take up matters for discussion between the commissioners and the administration. At the same time, he suggested that the community might be invited to participate in these discussions through civic groups, questionnaires, etc.

Pinpointing the desire of Big Spring to grow and develop, these discussions might lead to positive action toward a total community effort. Priorities might be established on upcoming projects that would include the thinking of all residents, rather than just those serving in official capacities.

Among items Mayor Marshall suggested for consideration are:

Further development of a Master Plan program which was presented to a Chamber of Commerce group more than a year ago and which included street, park, water and sewer system improvements;

Possible realignment of the city tax structure with the use of the recently authorized sales tax;

Vigorous renewal of city efforts to get the Beals Branch Drainage project launched;

Consideration of expansion of the water plant (as approved in the Master Plan) to make use of improved and more economical procedures;

MASTER PLAN

Another look at the original five-year Master Plan program;

Annexation and extraterritorial jurisdiction.

No date was set for the first of these informal meetings.

Hippity Has Hopped Away

A grasshopper named "Hippity-Hoppity" brings a cheerful expression to the face of 6-year-old Dorothy Griffith as it climbs on her forehead. Dorothy and her classmates adopted the insect three months ago when it appeared in their classroom. Today, the youngsters graduate from their Atlantic City, N.J., kindergarten class with heavy hearts. Hippity has hopped away. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Twisters Rip Eight States

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes thundered across the nation's midsection again Wednesday night, dealing blow after damaging blow to an eight-state area from New Mexico to Minnesota.

Iowa and Nebraska were hardest hit. No deaths were reported.

A tornado slammed into tiny Thurston, Neb., 25 miles southwest of Sioux City, Iowa, ripping up roofs and tearing down power lines. Another hit 50 miles north and injured one person. Another destroyed a barn in central Nebraska, where heavy rains were reported. Yet another caused more damage in south Nebraska.

A twister struck Spencer, in northwest Iowa, lifting a house trailer off its moorings and blowing out the front of a store. Trees and power lines were downed.

Winds gusted to 80 miles per hour in Spencer and North Platte, Neb. They were clocked at 69 m.p.h. in Sioux City and at 72 in Garden City, Kan.

Tornadoes and funnel clouds were also sighted in the Texas Panhandle, South Dakota, Montana and Colorado, doing minor damage.

Large hail was reported west of Rochester, Minn., and in Akron, Colo.

Eleven consecutive days of rain sent rivers flooding to record levels in Harlowton, in south central Montana. Flooding was also reported near Casper, Wyo., where some highways were under 20 inches of water.

Equalization Hearings Held For Oilmen

A final figure on the value of oil and gas properties for tax purposes will be available in a few days, according to Lee Porter, county judge. The valuations were fixed at an equalization board meeting Wednesday.

The tax engineering firm of Pritchard and Abbott, employed by the county and school to fix tax values on these types of property, had a staff of men on hand Wednesday to confer with the representatives of 50 oil and gas companies.

Porter said that there was little debate over the figures established by Pritchard and Abbott and the few adjustments were handled amicably. The session ended by mid-afternoon.

The tax engineers will now tabulate the official totals and advise county and school officials of the figures.

Equalization board sessions for the county, city and school on personal and real properties will be held late this month.

RODEO, REUNION

Colorful Riding Groups Featured

Colorful riding groups will be spotlighted in the annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, and one of them — the San Angelo Saddle Club, will do a repeat performance.

The famous Santa Rosa Palomino Club, known as Vernon's Ambassadors on Horseback, will be featured the opening day of the rodeo. This outstanding riding club, organized in 1949, consists of two score Palomino horses with identical tack, and uniformed riders, doing precision riding. It will have a prominent place in the parade at 4 p.m. next Wednesday, then will be in the grand entry parade at the curtain-lifter for the historic rodeo. The Santa Rosa Palomino Club has appeared in parades, celebrations and rodeos throughout the Southwest and appeared in the nationally televised Cotton Bowl parade this year.

The San Angelo Saddle Club not only will appear in the parade and grand entry on Wednesday, but it plans to return for a special performance Saturday, June 24. This crack riding outfit has won many prizes and trophies for its unusual drill routines.

Another feature of the rodeo season is the square dance festival at 8 p.m. Tuesday on Main between Third and Fourth Street.

Local clubs are sponsoring the event with James Cook in charge for the Squares and Rubin Reavis for the Huff 'n Puffers. Among the callers who will be working are Joe Connally, A. V. Lewis, Roger Fleckenstein, Curtis Thompson, James Moore and Major Browning.

Draft Bill Zips Along

WASHINGTON (AP) — New draft legislation requiring deferments for most college undergrads who request them and indirectly recommending that 19-year-olds be inducted first is two short steps from becoming law.

The compromise measure cleared the Senate Wednesday and shared priority in the House with a bill aimed at halting a railroad strike scheduled for next week.

House leaders hoped to pass both measures today, with the strike bill having the right of way. If the draft bill wasn't acted on today, the leaders said it would be considered next week.

After passage it would go to the President for signature.

The draft proposal would go into effect for four years starting July 1 and would make several basic changes in the Selective Service Act of 1948.

It would require local draft boards to grant deferments to undergraduate college students requesting them and meeting scholastic and other school requirements.

The deferment would end when the student reached age 24, left school or completed his undergraduate work, whichever came first. The student would then go to the top of the group available for induction, ahead of the 19-year-olds.

Student deferments are discretionary with local draft boards under the present law.

Planes Spray Hale County

PLAINVIEW, Tex. (AP) — An experiment hoping to rid most of Hale County of encephalitis-bearing mosquitoes began today in a cooperative city-county, state and federal venture.

Air Force C123 cargo planes flying at 150 feet circled and recircled this city of 23,000, spraying the chemical malathion at the rate of three ounces per acre.

Seven weekly applications are scheduled here and other spraying flights will be over towns south of here, Abernathy and Hale Center.

Health officials say the experiment is unique in the nation.

The spraying is in advance of any outbreak of western encephalitis, in contrast to similar low-volume spraying of insecticies to kill mosquitoes conducted during the height of encephalitis epidemics in past years.

In 1964 Plainview had a scare of an encephalitis epidemic, the same year in which Houston recorded more than 700 suspected cases of the disease.

Plainview and Hale County have had several encephalitis cases each summer since 1964 and the U.S. Public Health Service's communicable disease center said it has a backlog of information about the county conditions. A communicable disease center has operated here for the last two years.

The city, county and state rare furnishing the $22,000 worth of malathion and the Air Force is providing the plane. The Public Health Service has sent 20 researchers to analyze how the population can be protected from possible epidemics of encephalitis.

Firemen Tempers Growing Hotter

WEST MIDDLESEX, Pa. (AP) — Tempers are growing hotter after police shut down a bingo game at a firemen's carnival and now it looks as if there may be no one around to put out fires.

The firemen are so incensed they are threatening to resign on July 14 unless the borough council gets rid of the mayor, who backed the police action.

Gunshot Report

Police set up a road block Wednesday after receiving a report of a gun shot in the city park from Mrs. Grady Grantham, City Park. Officers were unable to locate the person who had fired the shot.

Hoch's condition had not been reported at 11:30 a.m. Details of the accident were not immediately available.

An Alert ambulance was called to intercept a private car which had started with the injured man soon after the mishap.

Thefts Checked By Officers

Police officers are investigating two thefts reported Wednesday.

Checking a report on a broken window at Jeannie's Tavern, 300 N. Benton St., operator Joy Withrow found one electric lamp and three or four cases of beer missing. Police found the cigarette machine had been opened by force but were uncertain if any cigarettes had been taken.

Winston Wrinkle reported the loss of a typewriter valued at $100 from KBST, 702 Johnson.

Cars Burned

Two car fires reported this week have resulted in minor damage. One occurring at Security State Bank involved the car of Jim Meadows of Coahoma; the other happened at Fifteenth and Gregg.

Pistol Packer Gets Bucks Back

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was only a small bank holdup — $41.98.

Police said the bandit was a customer, who told a teller Wednesday that he had a complaint.

A court order delivered earlier to the bank attached the man's account and the bank deducted a check for $41.98 as a result.

"I want my money back," the man demanded.

When the teller refused, he left but returned with a pistol, took the $41.98 at gunpoint and fled.

Minor Wrecks Investigated

Two minor accidents Wednesday were investigated by police.

George Cole, 1323 Harding, and Mary Barber, 406 NW 9th, collided in the 600 block of Lamesa Highway. An accident at Seventeenth and Gregg at the Super Save grocery involved Margueritte P. Martinez, 1602 Wren St., and John Glenn Allen Jr., 805 Dallas.

Dear Abby

Bad Eating Habit

DEAR ABBY: I must write this while I am still in a state of near hysteria.

My husband eats so fast, it's ridiculous. Abby, I spend hours preparing a tasty meal, setting a nice table, and it's practically wasted because he's finished with his meal in five minutes. It's not due to boredom, either. We always have plenty to talk about, but he races through his meal and rushes me so that he can have his coffee.

It finally got my goat so I asked him what his problem was and he said to ask Abby. So I'm asking you. MRS. P.

DEAR MRS. P.: It's probably due to habit. At one time your husband acquired the habit of bolting his food, and he continues to do so even though there's no need for it. If you can subtly remind him to slow down without starting a civil war, do so. (It will be better for his digestion.) And for Father's day, get Old Speedy an electric coffee maker, set it on the table and let him help himself to coffee while you're still cooling your soup.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Since most of the younger set are preoccupied with sex, here's an old timer's rating of the facts of life after 27 years of marriage and a slew of kids:

Sex . . . 0

Comfort and companionship . . . 100

Guys, find a girl you enjoy talking to. One who likes to cook and keep house, and if she looks like a gunny sack full of pumpkins, so what? Life with a beautiful woman is sheer purgatory, they tell me. I wouldn't know, and I'm glad of it.

HARRY (VALLEY CITY, N.D.)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a very nice electric clock. It's a small one in an attractive wooden case and I keep it on a drum top table in the living room, but my wife says that according to Emily Post, it is not permissible to put a clock in the living room.

I enjoy it for my own pleasure, and it's handy so I don't have to go elsewhere for the time. I am 78 and my wife is 74. May I have your opinion? I thank you. F.A.W.

DEAR F.A.W.: A clock belongs where it affords the most convenience. Leave it in the living room and tell your wife that Abby says it's all right.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: People who crab about television commercials give me a royal pain in the neck.

Don't they realize that it's the commercials that make it possible for us to get all that entertainment on television for free?

Those complainers would really howl if they had to put a quarter in the slot every time they wanted a few hours of television.

So tell those grumblers if they don't like the commercials, to sell their sets, but not to stir up something that might make it tough for the rest of us.

Speed Reading Response Good

Initial response to an offer for a speed reading course at Howard County Junior College was encouraging, college officials said today. Only a few more are needed to justify offering the course which steps up an individual's speed in reading and also the degree of comprehension. Another meeting will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Room 107 in the Music Building for those who are interested.

Casper Obscure Man

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP)—Billy Casper, golf's quiet man, set out in defense of his United States Open Golf Championship today, a sedate, almost obscure figure in the glamor field of the world's best shot-makers.

He's a two-time Open champion, the 1966 PGA Player of The Year, No. 2 on the all-time money-winning list and—if not unknown—probably the most under-rated golfer in the world.

"It doesn't bother me in particular," Casper said. "Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus get the publicity — I still get my share of the checks."

The figures back him up. The one-time fat man has career earnings of $621,152.09—second only to Palmer—and almost total anonymity.

So complete is his obscurity that one writer once reported that "an empty car drew up beside the club house and Billy Casper stepped out."

While huge crowds, Arnie's Army and Jack's Pack, surround Palmer and Nicklaus at their every appearance on the course, Casper enjoys the solitude of a used-car salesman from Topeka.

"People simply don't recognize me," Billy said.

It's true. At least part of it, however, is due to an exotic diet that enabled him to go from a blubbery 230 pounds to his present 175. It created a marked change in his appearance and gave him his only bit of color.

"I had won a U.S. Open," Billy quipped, "But I had to beat buffalo stakes to get my name in the papers."

BILL CASPER

That was three years ago, when Casper discovered he had a series of allergies and was forced to go on a diet that included such items as buffalo, blueberries and bear meat.

"I got more publicity out of that than anything else, unless it's my putting," Casper said, "And that's in error, too."

Casper, 35 and a pro for 14 years, has had a minor reputation as the best putter in the game since he won his first Open championship in 1959. He used only 114 putts over 72 holes at Winged Foot County Club.

But Casper resented the reputation.

"When I turned pro, they said I could chip and putt, but the rest of my game wasn't worth a lick. That's not true. They don't know of the long hours of practice. Actually, other phases of my game are now stronger than my putting."

He demonstrated beyond doubt that he had a complete game in his banner year of 1966. He won the Vardon Trophy for the fourth time, was the leading money winner at $121,944.92 and won four tournaments, including his dramatic comeback and playoff victory over Palmer in the Open at San Francisco.

Even that high point of his career was blunted. Casper came from seven strokes off the pace with nine holes to play, tied Palmer then beat him in the playoff.

But it's generally conceded that the '66 championship will be remembered as The Open Palmer Lost, not the Open Casper Won.

Casper was one of the late starters as the field of 150 began the first round over the 7,022-yard, par 70 Baltusrol Golf Club Course. He was paired with Bobby Nichols and Tom Jacobs at 1:18 p.m. EDT.

The field will be cut to the low 60 and ties after Friday's second round. The final two rounds are scheduled for national television coverage. ABC-TV will televise the tourney 5-6:30 p.m., EDT Saturday and from 5-7 p.m. Sunday.

Casper hasn't won a tourney this year—a second in the Bing Crosby was his best finish—but has unofficial money winnings of over $40,000.

Athletes Warm Up For Provo Meet

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Rain sprinkled the Brigham Young University stadium as a number of top collegiate athletes warmed up for tonight's start of the NCAA championships.

The Weather Bureau said it expected a clearing trend by the start of field-event qualifying at 5 p.m. MDT. The temperature has been in the mid-50s much of the week.

Distance star Gerry Lindgren was expected to give Washington State the early lead in team competition, which again shapes up as a battle among West Coast powerhouses such as Southern California, Oregon and defending champion UCLA.

Lindgren won both the three-mile and six-mile runs last year, and is superior to all competition this year on the basis of times. The six-mile is the only final tonight. The others will be Friday and Saturday nights.

The 4,500-foot altitude, which causes many distance runners to suffer from aching lungs and heavy legs, was mentioned by some as a possible hope for Lindgren's competition.

It was little consolation, however, to Ambrose Burfoot of Wesleyan, who ran in the NCAA College Division meet at a similar altitude in Ogden, Utah, last week. Burfoot said "smart distance runners like Lindgren" would handle the altitude.

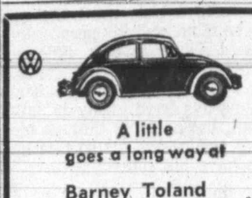

The rain, while understandably bothersome to the practicing athletes, had no harmful effect on the all - weather, rubberized asphalt track. If anything, the surface appears to suffer more from softness in hot, dry weather.

Vern Wolfe, the Southern California coach who got world record-breaking performances last week from his 440-yard relay team and pole-vaulter Bob Seagren, said he expected Oregon and UCLA to be USC's main challengers for the team title.

He also listed San Jose State, Kansas and Villanova as possibilities.

Southern California's strength rested with Seagren, its relay teams, and other standouts such as hurdlers Earl McCullouch and Geoff Vanderstock, sprinter Lennox Miller, discus thrower Gary Carlsen and half - miler Dennis Carr. All are at or near the top of their respective events on the basis of entry performances. Southern Cal also has a number of unheralded competitors who could score decisive points.

Oregon, team champion or co-champion in three of the last five NCAA meets, beat both UCLA and USC in the Pacific-8 Conference meet and has entered men in 26 spots for this meet.

Strategy Goes Wrong In Buc-Phil Battle

By The Associated Press

Let's play baseball manager. It's early in the game, there are runners at second and third with a tough hitter at bat and a lesser threat on deck. You issue an intentional walk, right? Wrong.

Harry Walker of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia's Gene Mauch played the obvious strategy of the deliberate base on balls Wednesday night and both regretted it later.

Walker ordered Mike Shannon passed in the first inning against the Cardinals and then watched Tim McCarver wallop a grand slam home run that triggered St. Louis' 7-4 victory over the Pirates.

Atlanta's Joe Torre got the intentional treatment from Mauch in the fourth inning and then trotted home behind two other runners when Clete Boyer unloaded a grand slam that helped the Braves to a 16-7 triumph over the Phillies.

In other National League action, New York's Bob Shaw shut out first-place Cincinnati 4-0, Houston downed San Francisco 7-4, and Los Angeles ended an eight-game losing streak with a 4-3 victory over Chicago.

Left-hander Billy O'Dell was working for the Pirates so after Orlando Cedpda's double put runners at second and third with two out in the first, Walker ordered Shannon, a right-handed hitter, walked to pitch to lefty swinging McCarver.

The homer, on an 0-1 pitch, was McCarver's sixth this season and his third career grand slam. Cepeda drove in two more Cardinal runs later and Bob Gibson survived an 11-hit Pirate attack to go the distance for his eighth victory.

JACK TAYRIEN

Tracksters Start Season June 24 In Hobbs, N.M.

Reaction to the plan for starting a summer track and field program in Big Spring was considered good but coach Jack Tayrien, who called the Wednesday conclave in Memorial Stadium, said more boys of high school age would be welcomed.

The local team will start its competitive season Saturday, June 24, at Hobbs, N.M.

Other meets in which the local contingent is entered include:

July 1 — Kermit; July 8 — Jal, N.M.; July 15 — Jaycee State at Harlingen; July 21-22—Regional TAAF at Odessa; July 28-29—State TAAF at Richardson.

The Big Spring team will formally launch workouts in Memorial Stadium at 6 p.m. Monday.

Response of boys 11 years of age and younger was reportedly the best among early registrants.

Tigers Unbeaten In Minor Loop

The Tigers mauled the Cowboys, 18-3, here Wednesday to finish their National Minor Little League season at the top of the standings.

The Bengals were undefeated in 15 starts. The Tigers scored in every round they went to bat, starting with four runs in the 'hello' round. Burks was the winning pitcher.

Doe and Roger Battle each had four hits for the Tigers while Fiedler and D. Battle each had three.

In a ballot conducted among coaches and athletic directors, the University of Alabama was again picked to win the football championship in the Southeastern Conference.

Perhaps the surprise of the vote was the fact that the University of Georgia, conqueror of SMU in the last Cotton Bowl game, got three first place ballots (compared to six for Alabama). Tennessee also garnered a supporter in the referendum.

It's quite obvious that Big Spring's slump into the District 2-AAAA baseball cellar almost cost outfielder Dean Gilstrap of the Steers a spot on the all-conference team.

Rival coaches and other sports writers couldn't see picking two Big Spring outfielders over some of their own boys, when the Steers were seven spots removed from first place in the standings.

Gilstrap, however, had all the credentials needed for consideration — a .364 batting average, a talent for patroling his outfield position, a good arm and admirable hustle. He would have picked up several more votes but for the fact that some people participating in the vote were governed by their own prejudices.

Pepper Martin, the one-time Big Spring athletic personality, is now president of the San Antonio Bowling Proprietors' Association.

As such, Martin headed the delegation that greeted the visitors in last week's TABY eliminations for the All-America Youth Championships.

San Antonio will also play host to the 1968 Women's International Bowling tournament.

Slingshot goalposts, which as the name implies, use only one base, are the coming thing in football. It's probably only a question of time until the high schools start using them.

Cost of the facility is out of reason, however. NFL clubs are having to pay $2,000 for them. They're made of aluminum and weigh only 240 pounds.

They're set six feet behind the goal line (slanting forward), where the violent plays in pro football occur.

Clyde Lee, who jumped from the San Francisco NBA club to New Orleans of the ABA recently, actually was offered more to play with Pat Boone's Oakland club than with the Buccaneers.

However, he wanted to be based closer to his Nashville home. Lee played his collegiate ball at Vanderbilt. The Buccaneers reportedly offered him $25,000 per annum, plus a new car and a trip to Hawaii.

Big Spring's Jerry Wilson gained a deserved reputation as a tremendous lineman a couple of years ago. No college offered him a scholarship, however, because of his lack of heft — he weighed in at only 165 pounds.

Jerry went to ACC on his own and proceeded to make the Wildcats a fine hand. He's up to 197 pounds now, thanks to a weight program he undertook. Last fall, he played well enough to win a spot on the Cats' first string.

The New York Yankees picked Atlanta's Ronnie Blomberg first in the recent major league draft for a number of reasons, not the least of which is the fact that he is a Jewish boy.

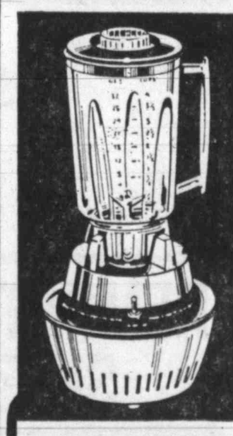

New York City has a large Jewish population and it supports its heroes in style.

One Of Hottest Teams

In an American Little League game that went an extra inning, the Cabots edged the Colts, 2-1, here Wednesday night.

Mitchell Bell, who came on in relief of Scott Carlile in the seventh, gained credit for the mound win.

Cabot collected only one hit off Wayne Dickens and Mike Tredaway of the Colts. That came off the bat of Rick Lloyd. Dickens retired 15 men in order in one stretch for the Colts, who are now 8-6 in the race.

The win was the fifth in 15 assignments for the Cabots.

Brent Burrow, M. Tredaway, Johnny Tonn, Scott Egan and Terry Tredaway connected safely for the Colts.

Twins Are Moving Ahead Under New Boss Ermer

By The Associated Press

About the firing of Sam Mele, "I have nothing to say," Jim Kaat says over and over, but he's doing plenty of talking on the mound since Mele left.

The Minnesota left-hander beat Detroit 7-0 Wednesday night with a five-hitter, his second straight complete game victory since new Manager Cal Ermer took over last Friday. The 25-game winner of last year had won only one game and lost seven under Mele and failed to complete any of his first 12 starts.

Kaat insists it's just a coincidence — and it probably is — but whatever the reason, he has the once-sluggish Twins in a third-place tie in the American League.

They share third with Baltimore and Boston after Kansas City belted the Orioles 9-2 and the Red Sox split a doubleheader with first-place Chicago, losing 8-7 before winning 6-1.

HARM KILLEBREW

The New York Yankees split with Washington in another twinbill, winning 7-1 and losing 3-2, and California nipped Cleveland 3-2 on Bob Rodgers' two-run single in the ninth inning.

Katt resumed his turnabout before former Twins' pitching coach Johnny Sain, the man whose firing last fall at the request of Mele prompted a controversial letter by Kaat praising Sain and criticizing Minnesota for letting him go.

Sain, now the pitching coach at Detroit, felt Kaat "looked like the same old Kaat to me.

"He's too good a pitcher not to bounce back," Sain said.

"I've always felt like my old self, "Kaat said, "but earlier this year, I couldn't get any consistency with my pitches. And the main thing is we've gotten big leads in the last two games and tonight we made five or six great plays that took away hits."

Katt struck out six and walked none as he allowed only two Tigers to second base. Harmon Killebrew, Jerry Zimmerman and Rod Carew supplied the power, each with two-run homers. Zimmerman also singled home a run.

Chuck Dobson, also coming on strong for Kansas City, stopped the slugging Orioles on one run before a jammed finger on his pitching hand forced him out in the seventh inning. Entering the game with two straight shutouts, he allowed only five hits in six innings to raise his record to 4-2.

The White Sox won their opener on home runs by Tommie Agee, Dick Kenworthy and Walt Williams, but Wilbur Wood had to strike out George Scott with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth inning to end the game. Scott and Rico Petrocelli had homered earlier for Boston.

Legion Rips Auto, 8-2

The Big Spring American Legion baseball team struck a big blow for recognition in the District 19 race here Wednesday evening by turning back Lubbock Auto, 8-2.

The win was the second in four league assignments for D. R. Gartman's club. Lubbock Auto, seeking its second win, instead receipted for its third defeat.

Big Spring banked all its runs in the first four innings, erupting for three tallies in the third round.

Ronnie Steen and Sammy Mims teamed up to notch the win for the locals, Steen getting credit for the victory.

Junior Almazon highlighted the Big Springers' third round fireworks with a two-run four-master.

Randy Williams clubbed a solo home run for Lubbock in the sixth.

Steen fanned nine and gave up only one hit in his five innings on the hill. Mims whiffed eight and yielded only four hits in his four-inning stint.

Tony Martinez had two of Big Spring's seven hits.

The local Legionaires return to play here Saturday evening, meeting the Lubbock Red Cheks in two games. The first contest gets under way at 6 p.m. in the Johnny Stone Memorial Park.

Midland's Elcor Chems have taken over first place in the standings, having beaten the Red Cheks Monday night in Lubbock, 4-3, with the aid of a three-run seventh. Elcor is unbeaten now in four starts. The Red Cheks are 3-1.

In other action Monday, Midland Drug evened its record at 2-2 by toppling Lubbock Furr's, 8-3, in a game played Monday in Midland.

Battling Two Enemies

One American soldier sights over his rifle as he protects wounded buddy crouched behind a log in the thick mud of Vietnam's War Zone D near Phuoc Vinh. The men, troops of B Company of the U.S. 1st nIfantry Division's 16th Infantry, were taking cover from Viet Cong snipers. (AP WIREPHOTO by radio from Saigon)

Mud Churned Up By Bombs Is One More Enemy For GIs

By HENRI HUET
AP Photographer

PHUOC VINH, South Vietnam (AP) — The wounded GI pressed his body into the thick mud behind a log, his bandages smeared with muck.

Another GI slid his mud-splattered M16 rifle over the log and began firing back at Viet Cong hidden in the nearby trees.

Some American infantrymen crawled through the mud on their bellies, sliding behind poncho-wrapped dead men for cover.

Fifteen men took cover in a huge mud hole left by bombs dropped from U.S. planes supporting the infantrymen. Others dragged the wounded through the mud on ponchos to the rear of the line.

Mud churned up by American bombs during the monsoon rains is another enemy for U.S. 1st Division infantrymen fighting in the Viet Cong-dominated war zone D, 47 miles northeast of Saigon.

KNEE-DEEP

The men fall into foxholes and quickly sink knee deep into the mud. Jumping off assault helicopters, many stumbled into mud holes cratered by bombs. U.S fighter-bombers saturated the landing zone to destroy any enemy mines planted there and to clear the immediate area of Communist troops.

The mud is worst in the landing zones and other open areas. Most of zone D is thick jungle, and it is only muddy under the canopy where bombs have penetrated the thick undergrowth.

Three companies of the 16th Infantry's 1st Battalion have put down in Landing Zone Rufe. Each day two companies fan out into the jungle to seek out the enemy.

AIR STRIKE

A Company, working about 1,000 yards southwest of the landing zone, spotted four Viet Cong at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday. The enemy ran and left five packs behind. An air strike was called down on the fleeing Viet Cong.

Nearly two hours later, to the north of A Company, Viet Cong troops hidden by the thick jungle opened fire from all directions on B Company.

B Company pulled back and called for artillery fire on the Communist positions. The Americans moved forward again and once more ran into heavy fire. Six infantrymen were killed and 12 wounded.

TRIO WOUNDED

They pulled back a second time, dragging their wounded and dead through the thick mud to a small opening cratered by American bombs from which helicopters could take the wounded out.

The Viet Cong kept firing and wounded three more Americans.

The helicopters arrived but couldn't land because the opening in the trees was too small. They hovered overhead and lowered a litter.

The Viet Cong opened up on the helicopters. One was hit and just made it back to the battalion command post 1,000 yards away.

A second helicopter came in and managed to lift out one wounded man under heavy fire. It, too, was hit and barely made it back to the command post.

DARKNESS

Big Chinook helicopters had to carry both of the damaged helicopters back to Lai Khe.

By then it was 7:30 p.m. and darkness had fallen. It was impossible to take the wounded out by helicopter. The company had to walk through the jungle back to the battalion command post, carrying their dead and wounded.

As the men moved through the black night, artillery shells and bombs dropped behind them to protect their rear. Some shell fragments landed only a few feet away from the troops, but no more Americans were hurt.

Half an hour before midnight, the company reached the command post. Helicopters were there waiting to take the wounded out.

U.S. Command in Saigon said 30 Viet Cong were killed, but B Company saw no enemy bodies on the battlefield.

Bank Bandit Suspect Dies

DALLAS (AP) — An ex-convict wounded during a robbery attempt at the Republic National Bank in downtown Dallas died Wednesday night at Parkland Hospital.

He was Terry Pittmon Jr., 23, of Dallas.

Pittmon and a passer-by, Joan Adams, 18, of Dallas, both were wounded June 2 when he traded shots with an off-duty policeman outside the bank.

Jones jumped from the car and shouted for help at the bank. The gunfire followed.

Patrolman C. W. Clark, who was directing traffic for the bank in a sparetime job, said Pittmon threatened him and also threatened to shoot the girl again before Clark's bullets dropped him.

Officers charged Pittmon and a Dallas druggist, Eulun Duvall, 59, with attempted robbery. They quoted Pittmon as saying he had been hired to harass the physician but gave no details.

Man Named In Assault Charge

Charges of assault with intent to murder have been filed in the court of Walter Grice, justice of the peace, against Elbert Ford.

Bond has been set at $5,000 in the case. Ford is already in the county jail where he has been held since being charged last Monday with the possession of an illegal weapon. Bond in that case had been set at $2,000 which Ford has been unable to post.

The district attorney's office said the assault charge was filed by Frances Ford, who is Elbert Ford's wife. She alleges, the district attorney's office reported, that he fired a shot at her several days ago. The arrest on the charge of unlawful weapons was a part of the same episode. This arms case is in the county court.

Fire Destroys Milling Plant

Firemen spray water on the blazing Kimball-Diamond Co. plant at Denton last night. The firefighters kept the furious blaze from spreading to an elevator containing 200,000 bushels of grain. De Gaulle Books Canadian Tour

QUEBEC (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle will spend five days in Canada—most of them in Quebec—during his Canadian and Expo tour in July, a spokesman for the French Embassy in Ottawa has announced.

An advance schedule of the visit released by the embassy states that the president will arrive in Quebec City July 23, aboard the French naval ship Colbert.

He will go to Montreal the next day, and on July 25 the French president is to officiate at ceremonies marking France's national day at Expo 67.

Mariner Locks On Star Light

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Locked firmly onto the light of Canopus, Mariner 5 soared on toward Venus today on its 212-million-mile journey through space.

The spinning spacecraft, launched early Wednesday from Cape Kennedy, Fla., settled into a firmer position, scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, after Mariner had found its guiding star.

The 540-pound craft by error latched onto the sunlit face of earth before its sensors picked out Canopus as ordered by its tracking station in California.

REFLECTION

"It was still so close to [illegible]th that it locked on the earth's bright reflection," a scientist explained.

When it was blasted aloft by an Atlas-Agena D rocket, Mariner was aimed within 42,600 miles of Venus. A midcourse correction maneuver, however, is to fly the spacecraft within 2,000 miles of Venus by Oct. 19.

Two days before Mariner's blastoff, the Soviet Union fired its heavier Venus 4 probe for a four-month flight.

In Moscow, a Soviet astronomer indicated Venus 4 was to fly near Venus rather than attempt a soft landing.

Dmitry Y. Martynov, director of Moscow's Sternberg Institute of Astronomy, wrote in Pravda that the Soviet craft would use ultraviolet and infrared light to investigate the surface of Venus.

NO REPORT

"Even without landing on Venus, much can be learned from a space station that flies by," Martynov wrote.

The Soviet Union has made no progress report on the Venus 4 flight since the launching was announced.

A spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said, "The Solar panels on Mariner are working well, picking up power from the sun and providing orientation."

It was performing experiments to study radiation.

The new Mariner probe is intended to add to information gained in the first U.S. Venus flight. That earlier craft reached within 21,648 miles of Venus and sent back data from 53.9 million miles.

Ranger Force Cut In Valley

RIO GRANDE CITY (AP) — The number of Texas Rangers assigned to Starr County because of a farm labor dispute has been reduced to four.

A union official nevertheless said Wednesday that he has suspended all picketing and has asked for federal marshals.

Reduction of the Ranger force was disclosed as this area's melon harvest neared an end. Growers estimate the last of a million-dollar crop will be picked and shipped to market within two weeks.

Gilbert Padilla, vice president of the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, announced the suspension of picketing and said he asked the Justice Department to send Marshals to "protect their (union pickets') rights and to guarantee that the brutal assaults will not be repeated."

VIOLENCE

Padilla said picketing was halted because of "recent acts of brutality and violence on the part of Texas Rangers."

Gov. John Connally declined comment Wednesday on his meeting with AFL-CIO official William Kircher, but a spokesman for the governor's office said the Ranger force has been reduced to three men plus one normally assigned to this area.

This was done, he said, "because in the judgment of the Department of Public Safety, they were needed less."

Capt. A. Y. Allee, who had been in charge of the Ranger detachment, has returned to his home station at Carrizo Springs, the Austin spokesman said. The 35-year Ranger veteran was the center of many of the union's complaints.

The spokesman said Gov. Connally "has been and is watching the situation closely" and added that the Rangers will leave Starr County when the Department of Public Safety is convinced they are no longer needed.

PERISHABLE CROP

The governor's office identified the Rangers remaining as T. H. Dawson, J. H. Preiss, Jack Van Cleve and Frank Horger.

Horger is stationed at McAllen and is assigned to the Lower Rio Grande Valley area. Padilla said he suspended picketing because "we cannot ask our people to go out on the picket line with the knowledge that they will be subjected to arbitrary arrest and brutality on the part of the Rangers and local law enforcement officials."

Local officers asked assistance from the Rangers when union officials said they would step up activities during the harvest of cantaloupes and honeydew melons, the most perishable crop grown in this border county.

Since the melon harvest started early in May, 65 persons have been arrested on misdemeanor charges in connection with union activities. Most of them were charged with violating state picketing laws.

The California - based union has sought since June of last year to organize the field hands in Starr County. They seek a $1.25 an hour minimum wage and union contracts.

Union leaders contend the workers are paid less than the federal minimum of $1.

Farm officials dispute this claim and say the workers are not interested in the union.

Two Negro Thugs Kill Dallasite

DALLAS (AP) — Two Negro thugs killed Mrs. Maury E. Barnes, 63, and gravely wounded her husband in the couple's South Dallas drug store Wednesday night.

Barnes, 66, told police the Negro holdup men pointed a .25 caliber pistol and demanded money. He said the bandit fired after Mrs. Barnes protested.

The couple made their home upstairs over the drug store.

Attendants described Barnes' condition as critical. They said he was unaware his wife had been killed.

Police picked up two men matching the description of the thugs about an hour after the shooting.

Billie Sol Starts Back To Prison

TYLER (AP) — Billie Sol Estes started back to prison Wednesday after spending three weeks in the county jail here.

U.S. marshals were taking him to finish a 15-year term for mail fraud at the Sandstone, Minn., federal reformatory.

Pending state charges of swindling and theft were disposed of June 2 when the former West Texas promoter pleaded no contest. He drew a three-year sentence, made concurrent with that he already is serving.

Estes' conviction and eight-year sentence for swindling after a 1962 trial in Tyler were set aside by the U.S. Supreme Court because part of the proceedings were televised.

Hearing Slated On Probation

A motion to revoke the probated sentence granted Frank Dutchover some time ago is slated for 3 p.m. June 28 in 118th District Court.

Dutchover pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary on May 24, 1965. His plea was accepted and he was given a four year probated sentence. Since that time, the district attorney's office reported, Dutchover has been in several difficulties with the law and a few weeks ago was before the court on an earlier revocation motion.

A new offense charged to the man, the district attorney said, has led to the refiling of the petition to revoke the probation.

Three Sooners Ruled Guilty

DALLAS (AP) — Three Oklahomans heard a federal court jury pronounce them guilty Wednesday of possessing and transporting 750 gallons of untaxed whisky.

U.S. Dist. Judge Joe E. Estes said he will sentence them at 5 p.m. Monday. They could draw up to five years in prison and $20,000 fines.

The three are John Lowell Hannah, 50; his son, John Jerald Hannah, 26, and the elder Hannah's son-in-law, Billy Arch Hardway, 25, all of Pickens, Okla.

W. Brent Smith, an Internal Revenue Service agent, told the court the Oklahomans were driving a truck loaded with 1,500 half-gallon jars of moonshine whisky when officers arrested them near here last December.

Smith said the elder Hannah claimed to have a still capable of producing 180 gallons of whisky a day.

The defendants testified they were induced to deliver the moonshine through a hard-luck story of a distant cousin who needed money.

Stonewall Jackson Appears 'Stoned'

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — Gen. Stonewall Jackson gazes over his 4-foot-6 nose with a stony look in his 16-inch eyes, and he seems to pay no attention to the two little workers who are climbing all over his face with a jet-torch.

That's the situation on Stone Mountain, where carvers have nearly finished the general's head.

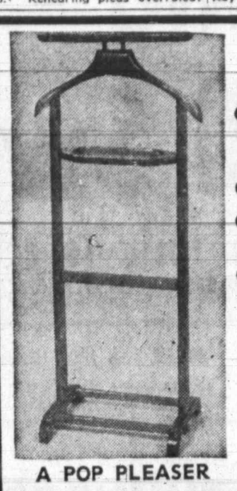

"It's coming along just fine," says Supt. George Weiblen.

Jackson's head will be done about July 1.

Battles City About Dogs

Mrs. Bobbi Thornton of Tulsa, who has two dogs and two children and says "all four are fenced, vaccinated, fed and well-cared for," carries an air rifle to protect Lady, her black hound, from stray dogs. Mrs. Thornton is waging a campaign to force Tulsa city officials to enforce an ordinance requiring all dogs to be licensed, vaccinated for rabies and kept fenced-in or on a leash. She began the battle after several stray dogs jumped her fence and attacked Lady. (AP WIREPHOTO)

A LOVELIER YOU

Beautiful Tan Can't Be Done In Hurry

By MARY SUE MILLER

The whole idea of tanning is to look gorgeous. But you'll never make it unless you make up your mind to tan gradually and pamper your skin all the while. A beautiful tan cannot be hurried. According to medical reports, haste begets burns that do the skin real injury. Moreover, piling tan on tan leads to skin that looks like a dried prune if, that is, you fail to take preventative measures.

For a sleek finish, follow these tanning tips:

Apply moisturized sunscreen before and during sunbaths, all summer long.

If your skin is sensitive, use a hypo - allergenic sunscreen and forego any sort of perfume. Fragrance is a known sun sensitizer. For the face, there's cosmetic value in tinted, hypo-allergenic foundation with a sunscreen feature.

Hold sunning sessions to 20 minutes for at least seven days. Thereafter you must be the judge of how much exposure you can take. Tolerance varies with individuals. But never stretch your luck; cover up and make for the shade before sizzle sets in.

After sunning, drink plenty of liquids and bathe away accumulated lotion. Then apply a soothing body oil or moisturizer, head-to-toe.

For special problems that sunning may create, remember these antidotes: opal-pink pre-foundation to blend in untanned rings around the eyes; skin bleach to control brown spots; sunscreen lipstick, eye oil stick, and snootie stick to keep down lip burn, crow's feet and red noses.

LOVELIER COMPLEXION

Whatever your skin problems, to find a solution send for my booklet, "A Lovelier Complexion." Detailed advice contained includes the correct care for dry, oily, combination and normal skin types; proper application methods; treatments for blackheads, enlarged pores, circles, wrinkles, crepiness, etc. For your copy of "A Lovelier Complexion," write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost and handling.

MRS. LEE JAMES FREEZE

Outdoor Fun Parties Held During Summer

By RHODA LEMONS

Mr. and Mrs. Lee James Freeze, 2721 Cindy, and their three sons always look forward to summer so they can spend time in their backyard. A thick carpet of grass, flanked by rocked paths, a brick barbecue fireplace and many shade trees provide the setting for outdoor fun parties and cook-outs.

Mrs. Freeze said the family often dines outdoors even if she cooks in the kitchen. They have tomatoes covering plants over two and one-half feet tall, and their peach tree is burdened with fruit. She recently put up peppers from her garden.

Some of the favorite outdoor menus include pork ribs, pork chops (cut thick) and chicken smothered in German sausage. The chicken has been marinated in Italian dressing for several hours prior to cooking.

Mrs. Freeze has received a "start" of brandied fruit, to which she faithfully adds. She has now doubled her supply and is able to share it for the first time. The story behind the fruit is that it must be shared only with a person who will continue the process. The fruit is delicious and can be started from scratch, but will take much time to ferment to be at its best.

Freeze is employed as guidance counselor at Goliad Junior High School, and Mrs. Freeze is a first grade teacher at Kentwood Elementary School. Their children are J. Lee, 7, a second grader at Kentwood; and twin sons, Jim and Tim, 4.

Mrs. Freeze has learned that she must manage her time in order to accomplish all the things she is interested in doing. Much time is spent with her children, and in taking them to their activities. J. Lee is attending camp in Kerrville and the younger sons are involved in daily swimming lessons at the Young Men's Christian Association.

Mrs. Freeze enjoys sewing and makes many of her own clothes. She has mastered the art of tailoring and makes professional - looking garments at a fraction of the cost of a comparable purchased one.

Energetic Mrs. Freeze buys her groceries in bulk quantities every two to four weeks. She shops intermittently for milk and eggs, but usually buys even those in large quantities.

She uses her freezer for many purposes. She bakes ahead, makes double portions, and then freezes meat bought by the side, and game brought in by her husband who is an avid hunter.

"I cook three meals a day," said Mrs. Freeze," and we eat on schedule."

The Freezes enjoy trailer camping and will leave in about two weeks for a spot near Aspen, Colo. They have a tent trailer and will live in it while on their trip.

"We enjoy outdoor living very much," said Mrs. Freeze, "and the boys are wonderful campers. They pitch right in and help with all the chores.

"Yes, we use a monthly budget," continued Mrs. Freeze, "and I try to stay within it." She admits to a weakness of buying things for the boys, but trys to limit it.

Mrs. Freeze likes to play bridge and does so regularly, while her husband enjoys training bird dogs. They have membership in the Kentwood Methodist Church, where Mrs. Freeze has been a Sunday school teacher for a number of years.

"Almost all of our activities and entertaining is done at home," said petite Mrs. Freeze.

She has decorated their home in warm orange and brown tones which serve as an attractive background for her red hair. She has a handsome afghan made by her mother, Mrs. Secona Daggs of Norman, Okla., who is a guest in the Freeze home at the present time. The Freeze home is designed for comfort and livability, and that is the effect Mrs. Freeze has achieved in her decorating.

Chicken Breasts Make Fast Meal

On a busy day, a supply of chicken breast meat in the freezer guarantees fast, delicious meals. At your leisure, bone and skin six or eight chicken breasts or purchase them boneless at your market.

Cut half the quantity into strips for quick - chick dishes the rest into 1½ inch nuggets for later frying or oven-frying Pack the pieces in moisture-vapor-proof wrap, allowing no unnecessary air to get in the packages.

Seal well with freezer tape and label and date. The prepared white meat will be a virtual gold mine for "instant gourmet" dishes.

Make Easy Syrup For Sticky Buns

Brown and serve rolls can be made into spicy sticky buns with a quickly - made syrup.

To two tablespoons of melted butter or margarine, add two tablespoons of light corn syrup, ½ cup of light brown sugar and ½ teaspoon of ground mace. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Add ¼ cup of chopped pecans and pour over tops of two (12-roll) packages of brown and serve rolls, and bake as label directs. Serve warm.

Shrimp Appetizer

Mix drained cut green beans and crushed pineapple with some shrimp. Heap into stemmed glasses; dollop with curry flavored softened cream cheese and garnish with twisted lime slice.

Delicious Melons To Begin Arriving Soon

Tasty melons always add to the allure of summer.

These melons have already begun arriving in good supply at the nation's food markets, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

You'll find especially good quantities of cantaloups and watermelons on hand for your eating enjoyment. Few can resist the allure of ice cold watermelon on a summer afternoon. Cantaloup fits in nicely just about anytime, and gives breakfast an added boost.

When selecting a cantaloup, there are five important points to look for, according to experts in USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. You'll want to pay special attention to netting, slip, color, firmness and aroma.

The cantaloups should be "well netted." The netting is the raised, grey-brown pattern over the surface that stands out above the green or yellow color of the skin. A good-eating melon has high, raised netting over some part of the surface. And it won't have large areas that are "slick" without any netting — though the side that lay on the ground may have little if any.

You may find "stripes" of green or yellow — or in riper melons, even of brownish color.

Look for a "full slip." This is a circular scar where the stem was detached when the ripe melon was picked. A stem scar that retains part of the stem or has been gouged out of the melon indicates that the melon was not ripe when picked from the fine.

Skin color is usually yellow or is turning yellow. Green color on a well netted melon with a full slip indicates that the melon isn't ready to eat.

In this case, the flesh is likely to be hard and not yet fully flavored. Yellow skin color indicates good flavor and mellow, ready-to-eat flesh. But yellow color without a good netting and full slip may be a disappointment. It may only be an immature melon that has colored up.

To check for firmness, squeeze the melon gently. You may need to use both hands to avoid bruising it. Check particularly the blossom end, opposite the stem scar. If it yields a little, it's ripe. But avoid a really soft melon, one with soft bruises.

As for aroma, it may not always be present—especially if the cantaloup is not well ripened. And aroma alone may be misleading. But if the characteristic aroma is there in combination with the other four points, it's a pretty sure bet you're in for some good eating.

Beware of decayed spots and heavy mold growth. A little mold is not serious, if you plan to eat the cantaloup in a day or two.

After you've selected your cantaloups, consider these ideas for utilizing their luscious taste. Lemon - Mint Cantaloup Balls are refreshingly breath-taking. Combine equal parts lemon juice and sugar. Add finely chopped fresh mint. Pour mixture over fresh cantaloup balls and chill several hours. Serve dessert in fancy dishes with a fresh mint garnish.

Lime Dip for Cantaloup Balls: Cut cantaloup in half, remove the seeds and cut into balls. Save one of the shell halves. Beat until fluffy one three-ounce package cream cheese, 1½ tablespoons lime juice, ½ teaspoon grated lime rind, ¼ teaspoon dried dill and a dash of salt. Blend in one cup sour cream.

Spoon dip into reserved cantaloup shell. Place shell in a bowl of crushed ice, surround with cantaloup balls and garnish with fresh mint.

Takes Time For Steak

It takes the average factory worker 24½ minutes to earn enough to buy a pound of round steak. In 1958, it took him 30 minutes; in 1951, 41 minutes.

This is one of the reasons beef round steak is popular: It won't wreck the budget. Cut into pieces, pound to increase tenderness and wrap around carrots for cooking in Skillet Steak Dinner. Braise (brown) in a small amount of lard or drippings, cover and cook slowly with moisture.

SKILLET STEAK DINNER

1 beef round steak, cut ½-inch thick
¼ cup flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
3 small carrots, cut lengthwise into fourths
¼ cup lard or drippings
4 potatoes, peeled
4 small onions
mushroom soup
1 can (10½-oz.) condensed
2-3 cup water

Cut steak into pieces about 3x5 inches. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Place three or four carrot sticks on each piece of steak.

Wrap steak around carrots and fasten with a wooden pick. Brown rolls slowly in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings.

Add potatoes and onions to steak. Mix water with mushroom soup and pour over all. Cover tightly and cook slowly in a slow oven (325 degrees) or on top of range 1½ to two hours or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Makes four servings.

Homemade Soup Treat For Young

Whether they are busy at school or actively playing outdoors, youngsters are bound to work up healthy appetities by lunch-time. For a nourishing mid-day energy-booster, serve delicious cups of rich, homemade cream soup.

Just combine one jar of junoir carrot and peas baby food with an equal amount of milk. Heat to simmering and season to taste. Team up with crisp crackers for a lunch - time treat that is hard to beat.

Heat Coffee In Cordless Maker

A new four-to-eight cup automatic coffeemaker keeps coffee hot without a cord after the brewing period ends. Once the cord is removed, double-wall insulation keeps the coffee heated throughout the meal. A preset temperature control eliminates the need for dials or timing devices.

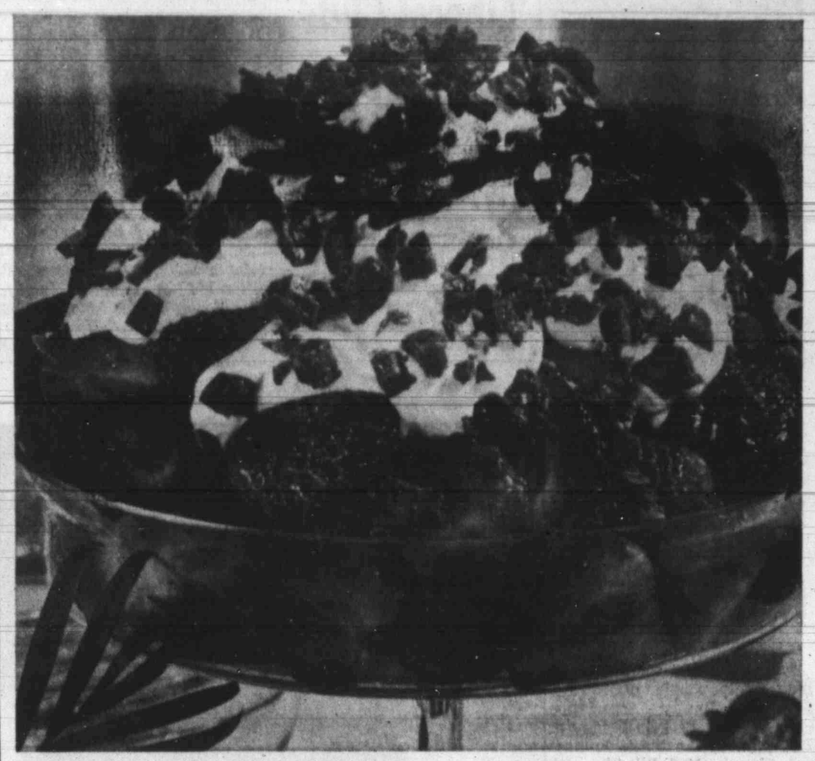

Boil Beans For Quick Cook Time

When soaking whole peas or dried beans, boil them two minutes in soaking water first to help prevent fermentation and hardening of skins. An hour of soaking is enough after boiling, but overnight may be more convenient.

Soaking cuts down the cooking time of these foods. Cook beans in soaking water for best flavor and high nutritive value. Split peas do not need soaking.

Contrast Colors Take Back Seat

Match instead of contrast the color of your lacy stockings to your costume. Red stockings for red coat, purple stockings with purple suit—it's the latest trend in the New York wholesale fashion market.

STRAWBERRIES SERVED A NEW WAY
Combines sour cream and toffee bars

Beautiful Strawberries Delight The Palate, Eye

Big, beautiful fresh strawberries are a delight to the eye as well as the palate, and we're always looking for different ways to serve and enjoy them while they are plentiful.

Here is an interesting new recipe that tastes as good as it looks; it combines strawberries, dairy sour cream and chopped chocolate - covered English toffee candy bars. Surprising combination? Yes, it is surprisingly different and delicious. You'll like the sweetness of the toffee candy sauce coupled with the slight tartness of sour cream in a smooth blend of tastes over the strawberries.

This is an "easy-do" creation, to be served as a dessert or as a first course for a late Sunday breakfast. The candy bars are very easy to work with; simply chill them, then chop with a large sharp knife into small bits.

TOFFEE STRAWBERRIES CONTINENTAL

¾ cup sugar
½ cup whipping cream
¼ cup light corn syrup
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
½ cup chopped chocolate - covered English toffee bars
2 pints fresh strawberries, washed and hulled, whole or halved
½ pink (1 cup) dairy sour cream

Combine sugar, cream, corn syrup and butter or margarine in saucepan. Bring to a boil; boil one minute. Remove from heat; stir in chopped candy. Cool, stirring occasionally. Serve fresh strawberries topped with sour cream and toffee sauce. Yield: Six to eight servings.

Use Cream Puffs For Good Lunch

Billowy containers of dough called cream puffs are just the thing for serving creamed ham, or ham and sweetbreads, or veal a la king for a luncheon. These can make the main course something fancy even if you're using leftover ham or veal for the main course.

When it's hors d'oeuvres you have planned, make the puff shells tiny and fill with ham salad to serve as an elegant meaty tidbit for guests before dinner. These can be made in advance and chilled.

A youth rally sponsored by the young people of 20 Big Spring Baptist Association churches will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Westside Baptist Church, 1200 W. 4th, with Ed Crow of Brownfield as the speaker.

Crow is a graduate of Poly High School in Fort Worth, was high school heavyweight boxing champion of Fort Worth in 1950; is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University; earned four football letters; selected to "Who's Who" in American Colleges and Universities; a graduate of Southwestern Seminary in 1958; was pastor of First Baptist Church in Cisco for two years; became pastor of First Baptist Church in Brownfield in 1960; was selected Outstanding Young Man of Brownfield in 1963; is listed in the 1965 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Rev. Eldon Cook, pastor of the Stadium Baptist Church, is chairman of the committee planning the rally. Bill Myers, minister of music for Baptist Temple Church, will be in charge of the music.

The rally is one of the youth activities connected with the Evangelism-in-Depth Crusade to be held in the City Park amphitheater, Aug. 6-11. This will mark the first time in many years that Southern Baptist churches have conducted a cooperative revival here.

Ask Ex-Wife For Details

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Q. Is a television comedy writer's life a happy one?

A. Mine is. Most writers are happy guys. We live ordinary, everyday lives and go home to our wives and kids.

Q. Is there a trend in TV comedy?

A. The public is becoming much more difficult to please—which is good. Whether it's slapstick, farce or legit, if it's done well, it can succeed.

The witness: Sam Denoff, 38. He won an Emmy June 4 for helping to write last April's Sid Caesar variety special. So did four other writers including his partner, Bill Persky, 35.

Denoff-Persky previously won two Emmys apiece writing the Dick Van Dyke show and are creators-writers-producers of a new fall comedy series, "Good Morning, World!"

PAY RAISE

Q. Does winning an Emmy mean a pay raise for a writer?

A. No, but it helps you maintain a reputation.

Q. I guess it would be an effrontery to ask how much you make.

A. Ask my ex-wife—or her lawyer.

Q. But how much do top writers in general make?

A. A good writer of situation comedy can make $3,500 per half-hour script—and write 20 or 30 of them a season if he really works at it. He also gets residuals, as I do from the Van Dyke show. In the variety field you can make $2,000 to $3,000 a week. A lot make $1,000, which is good, too.

Q. How does a young fellow with talent get started earning this kind of gravy?

CIGAR PUFFER

A. Writing, believe it or not, is the easiest branch of show business to get into. All you have to do is sit down and write. We look at everything that comes in—if it's accompanied by a release to indemnify us from a plagiarism suit by an unscrupulous person. It takes time, but you can tell in about three pages if a script has anything.

Q. How did you and Persky get started?

A. We wrote programs, publicity and jingles for WNEW, New York, for five years.

Q. Any show business in your backgrounds?

A. No. Bill's father still owns an auction gallery on the Atlantic City Boardwalk. My father, who's retired, had a ladies' hosiery store in Brooklyn.

Q. Do people have a preconceived idea of what writers look like?

A. Yes; short, fat, bald and smoking a cigar. As you can see, I'm 6-2, slim, red-haired—and smoking a cigar.

'Liberal Club' Breaking Up?

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Roman Catholic officials are breaking up a "liberal club" of priests here because "they've gotten too hot to handle," a source close to the situation said Wednesday.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said most of the five priests being transferred from San Antonio "wanted to get out" because "the atmosphere here is stifling, both on the the part of the chancery and the laity."

Five priests, all of whom have been active in support of labor and civil rights movements, were notified this week that they were being transferred.

Two of those transferred, the Rev. Lawrence Murtagh and the Rev. Donald J. Heffernan, were suspended for a brief time last month after a newspaper interview in which they were critical of the Rt. Rev. Robert F. Lucey, Archbishop of San Antonio, was published.

The other three priests, the Rev. Martin Doerfler, the Rev. John Orr and the Rev. Maurice Dillane, had all been active in support of the Valley farm workers strike and other liberal movements.

Fathers Heffernan and Doerfler were among the San Antonio priests arrested last February in Starr County on charges of disturbing the peace while they were demonstrating with the Valley farm workers. Two other priests arrested, the Rev. Sherrill Smith and the Rev. William Killian, were punished for going into the Rio Grande Valley diocese without permission of the archbishop. They spent a week at New Mexico's Via Coeli, the so-called "Refuge for Fallen Priests." No action was taken against Fathers Heffernan and Doefler then.

Before Fathers Smith and Killian went to New Mexico, Fathers Orr and Dillane, two of the priests being transferred, met with Archbishop Lucey to speak in their behalf.

The source said most of the transferred priests privately expressed pleasure at their new appointments because they felt "there was no point in hanging around here."

Tornado Dips In Panhandle

By The Associated Press

Touches of turbulence kept the north edge of the Texas Panhandle weather conscious Wednesday night and early today.

The Weather Bureau reported a tornado dipped to earth and spun across open range country 20 miles southwest of Gruver, disappearing into Oklahoma about nightfall.

Less than an hour later residents in the area 15 miles west of Perryton, in the next county eastward from Gruver, also told of spotting a twister.

There was no word of damage from either funnel cloud.

An early morning thunderstorm with winds gusting up to 40 miles per hour brought Dalhart .11 inch of rain. Weather Bureau radar indicated several other good showers in the Panhandle sector north and east of Amarillo.

Other parts of Texas were clear to partly cloudy this morning.

Forecasts indicated little change was in prospect. Widely scattered thunderstorms again were predicted for the Panhandle-Plains sector by evening and a few showers were expected in Southwest and Southeast Texas.

Wednesday's top temperatures ranged up to a sizzling 108 degrees at Presidio in the Big Bend country. Most other points recorded highs in the 90s.

Sen. Long Hints New Facts Will Be Unveiled During Dodd Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd says he knows of no surprises planned in his defense against proposed Senate censure—but his self-appointed defender, Sen. Russell B. Long, hints new facts will be unveiled.

Dodd told newsmen he had made his basic presentation in denying to his colleagues Wednesday that he cheated the government on travel expenses or accepted testimonial funds under a false banner.

"It's my life that is at stake," the Connecticut Democrat said in a dramatic and at times highly emotional Senate speech. "I would rather be dead than be dishonored."

DISHONOR

Long, D-La., has said he knows "what this is all about" and hinted that in time he will disclose new facts in the case.

But when Dodd was asked about this, he said if Long has any surprise evidence, "I am not privy to it."

Questioning of Dodd by Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate ethics committee was put off until today's Senate session.

The bipartisan ethics panel unanimously recommended, after a 14-month investigation, that Dodd be censured for conduct that "tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute."

POLITICAL FUNDS

It found the white-haired, two-term senator converted to his personal benefit at least $116,083 in political funds and that he double-billed the Senate and private organizations for travel expenses on seven trips.

Long has appeared to irritate other senators with his tactics, including his statements that any senator who doesn't hear all the debate shouldn't vote on the censure resolution.

But Dodd said he thinks Long has been helpful. "I'm sure that is his intention and I'm most grateful to him," he said.

Asked about his relations with Long, the assistant Democratic leader, Dodd said the two never have been particularly close. "I haven't had any close friends," Dodd said. "I have been too busy. I wish I had."

However, after his three-hour defense speech he reported fellow senators had been "friendly, courteous and some of them complimentary."

DOUBLE BILLING

Long has said he plans to ask the Senate to discard the censure resolution in favor of a substitute motion urging the ethics committee to draw a code of conduct for future guidance of senators.

Dodd was asked if he planned to ask the Senate to strike the double- billing count since he had told his colleagues that if they felt he had cheated the government of travel expenses, they should expel him.

He said he does not plan to offer any motions—"and certainly not a motion for my expulsion."

Dodd told the Senate the double-billing charge was based on what he called the lying testimony of Michael V. O'Hare, his former bookkeeper and one of four ex-employes who rifled his files and turned over copies of some 4,000 documents to columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson.

THIEF?

Dodd accused O'Hare of acting out of vengeance after the dismissal of O'Hare's girl friend, a former secretary in the senator's office.

Then he asked: "How can you take the testimony of such a man as credible and reliable and say I'm a thief because he says so?"

Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., a member of the committee, said the double-billing charge was based primarily on stipulated evidence to which Dodd had agreed, and only in part on O'Hare's testimony.

"I find it an oversimplification to say it is a case of believing Sen. Dodd or believing Mr. O'Hare," Pearson said.

He said the committee found Dodd made 10 trips involving both Senate and private business—that is, trips that could have produced double-billings.

80 TRIPS

In seven of the 10, Pearson added, the committee determined that double-billings were submitted. He said evidence about the other three trips was inconclusive.

Dodd repeatedly has said he made more than 80 trips during the period involved and therefore the seven instances of double-billing uncovered by the committee could not be taken as evidence of a pattern of conduct.

In any event, he maintained he was unaware of the double-billings prior to the committee's investigation and, contrary to O'Hare's testimony, never had given instructions to collect from the Senate for travel expenses paid by private groups.

Dodd said the committee's charge that he misled the people to believe testimonial affairs for him were campaign fund-raising events also "strikes at my heart."

NOT TRUE

"It just isn't true, my colleagues, that this was a Fancy Dan political stunt," Dodd said of the testimonials. "It just isn't true."

"This strikes at my heart because it has the flavor of treachery, of deceit, that I fooled someone, which I didn't do," he said.

Stennis said Tuesday in opening debate on the censure resolution that "the whole tenor, the whole tone, the whole trapping and wrapping of these events was that they were for political purposes."

Proceeds of the testimonials amounted to about $170,000. Dodd said that before the first one in 1961 he was advised by his former law partner, now a federal judge, that he could treat the money as a tax-free gift rather than as campaign contributions.

He said more than 400 persons who attended the testimonials have submitted sworn statements that they intended him to use the money as he saw fit.

Dodd acknowledged using some of the testimonial proceeds for personal expenses, as he maintained he had a right to do. He also said he had not kept the testimonial funds completely separated from his personal funds.

"There was absolutely nothing illegal or improper about co-mingling funds in this manner," he said, adding that in retrospect he realizes this lends itself to misinterpretation and confusion.

"This confusion, in turn, probably played a large part in the mistaken judgment of the ethics committee," he said.

Dodd said he had not enriched himself from the testimonials and that the proceeds largely went for politically connected expenditures.

FANCY CLOTHES

"You don't take money from your friends and buy yachts and fancy clothes," he said.

Dodd said his lawyers and accountants had found $3,100 in contributions to his 1964 campaign was used for personal bills, but he said this was a mistake that would not have happened had he known about it.

He said the committee, by lumping campaign and testimonial funds together, created the impression that "all or most, or at least a very substantial portion of the $116,083 supposedly used for personal purposes came from campaign funds."

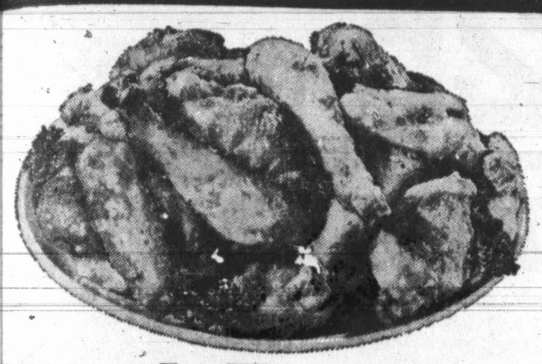

"This simply is not so," he said.

17 Additional Counties Listed

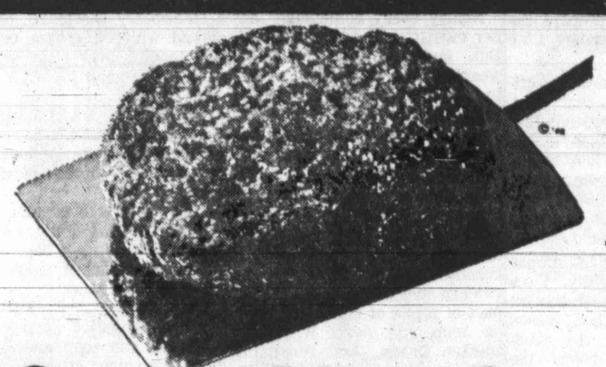

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department notified Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., Wednesday that 17 additional Texas counties have been declared eligible for haying and grazing privileges on crop lands taken out of production under conservation programs.

The action, taken because of adverse weather conditions, involves Armstrong, Briscoe, Carson, Deaf Smith, Oldham, Potter, Randall and Swisher counties in the Panhandle and Atascosa, Coke, Duval, Gonzales, Guadalupe, Jim Wells, Karnes, Nolan and Wilson counties in the southern part of the state.

BUTTER COOKIE BASE
Make with a variety of toppings

Good Bar Cookies, Yummy With Topping

No doubt about it, cooks like to make the variety of cookies that are baked in one pan and cut into bars. No wonder! Bar cookies are easy to concoct, store well. In addition their texture — a cross between cookie and cake — is so appealing.

COCONUT ALMOND BARS

First Layer:
- 1 cup (2 sticks) butter
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 egg
- 2 cups regular flour (stir before measuring)

Second Layer:
- 3 tbsps. regular flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 can (3½ ozs.) flaked coconut
- 1 cup blanched almonds, toasted and chopped medium-fine

Prepare First Layer by using ingredients listed under that heading: In a large mixing bowl, thoroughly beat together the butter, brown sugar and vanilla. Thoroughly beat in the egg. Gradually stir in the flour, blending well.

Spread evenly in a buttered 13 by 9 by 2 inch baking pan. Bake in a preheated moderate (350 degrees) oven for 25 minutes.

Meanwhile prepare Second Layer by using ingredients listed under that heading: On wax paper, stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. In a medium mixing bowl, beat the eggs and vanilla until thickened and lemon color; gradually beat in the sugar, blending thoroughly. Add the flour mixture; beat to combine. Fold in coconut and almonds. Spread carefully over hot First Layer; return to 350-degree oven and bake 25 minutes. Place pan on wire rack to cool. Cut into 32 bars; with a small spatula remove bars to wire rack; cool completely. Store in tightly covered tin box.

TOFFEE BARS

First Layer (see Coconut Almond Bar recipe)
- 1 pkg. (6 ozs.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- ¾ cup chopped (medium-coarse) walnuts

Prepare First Layer as directed in Coconut Almond Bar recipe. Spread evenly in a 13 by 9 by 2 inch pan. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven for 35 minutes. Remove from oven; at once sprinkle with the chocolate; allow chocolate to melt; sprinkle with the walnuts, lightly pressing the nuts into the chocolate. Place pan on wire rack to cool. Cut into 32 bars; with a small spatula remove bars to wire rack; cool completely. Store in tightly covered tin box.

Gala Lamb Chop Meal

Colorful food combinations are a joy to serve! A parade of brown, green and red on a single platter is hard to resist for it can be enjoyed even before the family starts eating!

Lamb shoulder chops are often a more thrifty meat than close cousins, rib or loin chops. The flavor is similar, especially when developed by braising.

LAMB CHOP DINNER
- 4 lamb shoulder chops, cut ¾ inch thick
- 2 tbsps. lard or drippings
- 1 tsp. salt
- ⅛ tsp. pepper
- ⅛ tsp. garlic salt
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 can (16 ozs.) cut green beans, drained
- 2 medium tomatoes, peeled and cut in eighths
- ¾ tsp. salt

Brown chops in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season chops with one teaspoon salt, pepper and garlic salt. Add onion slices. Cover tightly and cook slowly 30 minutes. Add green beans, tomatoes and ¾ tsp. salt. Continue cooking 15 minutes or until flavors are blended. Makes four servings.

Put Leftovers In Supper Dish

Good way to use leftovers from roast meat.

POTLUCK SAUCE
- 2½ cups cubed leftover roast meat (beef, veal or lamb)
- 1 can (3 ozs.) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 2 cups homemade tomato sauce
- 2 tbsps. dry sherry

In a medium saucepan slowly heat together the meat, mushrooms and tomato sauce. Stir in the sherry. Serve over hot cooked noodles. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Plan Ahead For School Lunches

Packing school lunches is a snap if you plan by the week and pack and refrigerate the sandwiches the night before. Try to include a surprise. A good surprise can be any salty snack, a candied apple, a popcorn ball, prunes or dates stuffed with chopped nuts.

Give Dad Love And Attention

Are you in a quandary about how to show your appreciation to Dad this Sunday?

Well, it's no secret that the way to a man's heart is to appeal to his appetite. Appease Dad's man-sized appetite and make Father's Day a beef day.

Beef is an excellent source of many essential food nutrients. It is rich in protein, iron and B vitamins. Beef is just the food Dad and your family need to carry them through the hot summer months when they are working outside, enjoying their favorite sport or just relaxing.

Treat the whole family to one of the most favored of beef cuts —steak. You will see Dad's face light up when you prepare the tender, juicy cuts under the broiler.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service recommends that you select 1- to 2-inch steaks from the rib, short loin or sirloin. For delicious eating, these cuts should have little connective tissues and some marbling of fat through the meat.

Preheat the broiler and grease the broiler rack slightly. You can slash the edges of the fat to prevent curling. Then, season to taste and place the steak about four inches below the heat.

Broil until the top of the meat is browned, season, then turn and broil on the other side. After turning the steak, broil meat only half as long on the bottom as broiled on the top side.

The length of time that the steaks should remain under the broiler depends on personal taste as well as the broiler. A general rule would be to broil a one-inch steak for a total of about 10 minutes for a rare steak, about 15 minutes for a medium one, and about 20 to 25 for well done.

For steaks that are 1½ inches thick, the total broiling time for rare is about 15 minutes; for medium, about 20 minutes, and for well done, 25 to 30 minutes. The total time for broiling two-inch, rare steaks is about 25 minutes; medium steaks take 35 minutes and well done steaks take 45 to 50 minutes.

Maybe Dad has a particular weakness for barbecue. And who could blame him? The tantalizing aroma, the heavenly taste, and plain fun of a barbecue add to the allure of outdoor cooking.

Since June is National Barbecue Month, let Dad don his apron and hat and prepare the tender beef cuts to his satisfaction. Beef is an all-time favorite for barbecuing. Now would be a good time to buy those delicious, delectable cuts of beef because USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service reports that beef is in plentiful supply.

Here is a recipe for Tart Barbecue Sauce: Combine one cup each soy sauce and salad oil, and ¾ cup lemon juice. Mix to blend and add one split garlic clove. It makes 2½ cups and may be brushed on the beef during cooking or used as a marinade.

If you are on a hamburger budget, but want to prepare a special treat for Father's Day, there are a number of economical dishes that you can prepare. Try Ground Beef Supper Dish.

You will need one cup coarsely chopped onions, two tablespoons fat, one pound ground beef, ¾ cups each diced celery and water, ¼ cup each chopped celery leaves and chili sauce, ½ teaspoon basil, one teaspoon salt, and ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Cook onions in hot fat until they are soft. Add the ground beef and brown. Add all of the remaining ingredients, cover the casserole dish and simmer for 30 minutes. Thicken with flour and water paste, if necessary, and serve over hot noodles or rice. This tempting dish will serve four.

Proteins Needed For Good Health

Proteins rank first as body builders. We can't live without them. If what we eat is short of these building blocks, we may suffer lowered resistance to infection, muscular weakness, mental and physical fatigue.

High quality proteins come from animal sources. These are milk and its products (cheese, ice cream), meat, poultry, fish and eggs. Second best proteins, less expensive and valuable when used with animal proteins, come from dried beans, peas, peanut butter, cereals and breads.

Wrap Dessert In Powdered Sugar

Sprinkle waxed paper with powdered sugar when wrapping a piece of frosted cake for your child's or husband's lunch.

The powdered sugar will prevent the frosting from sticking to the paper, saves sticky fingers and looks so much more appetizing.

FAVORITE CHICKEN RECIPE
With extra rich gravy and flavor

Try Tempting Crunchy Parmesan Chicken Mix

Nearly every homemaker has her own favorite chicken recipe. But, favorites have a way of wearing thin when they become too familiar. If you find yourself thinking, "same old chicken" you'll want to try Crunchy Parmesan Chicken.

Tender and juicy inside, crisp and golden outside, Crunchy Parmesan Chicken has great flavor extras. Before rolling in the zesty Parmesan cheese and cornflake crumb mixture, the chicken pieces are dipped in part of a can of cream of chicken soup and milk. While the chicken bakes, the remaining soup is combined with milk, honey, parsley, and soy sauce. The result? . . . a creamy rich, chickeny good gravy with a flavor that's out of the ordinary.

Using condensed cream soups as gravies or sauces is a convenient shortcut. It not only saves you time, but also helps you create tempting deliciously sauced dishes whose intricate preparations would otherwise prove prohibitive to the busy homemaker.

Put other shortcuts to work for you, too. For example, with your Crunchy Parmesan Chicken menu you may want to serve a strawberry shortcake. Simply spread whipped cream or dessert topping over round sponge cake layers, and top with fresh strawberries.

CRUNCHY PARMESAN CHICKEN
- 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 cup cornflake crumbs
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 pounds chicken parts
- 2 tsps. soy sauce
- 1 tsp. honey
- 1 tbsp. chopped parsley

Mix 1-3 cup soup and ¼ cup milk. Combine crumbs and cheese. Dip chicken in soup mixture; then roll in crumbs. Place in shallow baking dish (12x8x2 inches). Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Meanwhile, combine remaining soup, milk, soy, honey, and parsley. Heat; stir now and then. Serve with chicken. Makes four servings.

Spinach History

The written history of spinach began in China when it was introduced from Nepal in 647. Old records indicate that Moors carried spinach from North Africa to Spain about 1100.

PANTRY PICK-UPS

Quick supper: heat chunks of frankfurters with baked beans. Serve with cole slaw.

Enliven mayonnaise with lemon juice and chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives to serve with fish.

For Chinese - type meatballs, add coarsely chopped drained water chestnuts and season with soy sauce rather than salt. Soy sauce varies in strength so the amount you add as seasoning will depend on the variety you use.

A Devotional For The Day

My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings. (Proverbs 4:20)

PRAYER: Our Father, we would fix our attention on things that are above, not alone on things that pass away. Bless us with understanding of Thy Word that it may be a joy to our life, strength in our weakness, the pathway to life eternal. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

Greater Fulfillment Of Purpose

Through the establishment of a vocational and technical department, Howard County Junior College appears to be taking its stance for the greater fulfillment of one important facet of its purpose — that of a community college.

To be sure the college has had a substantial vocational program. Much was died to the academic degree program, however, and this may have exercised some restraint on the latitude of offerings for those who were interested in mastering skills rather than in college credit.

Certainly, the academic program must continue to offer certain vocational courses, particularly for those who intend to go on to senior colleges in these fields. But the number of those who want to take courses which will terminate with the college here, or who want to learn or polish a skill without any thought of accumulating hours on a transcript will increase. Business and industry are not going to be able to fill positions requiring technical, specialized know how from internal sources; they are going to have to look to schools and colleges to supply the reservoir of talent.

HCJC is tooling up to expand an already good start in this direction by going into date processing, electronics, mid-management, machine tool technology, etc. These programs are expensive, but they also pay good dividends. The creation of the new division recognizes this fact as well as recognizing the rapid changing of times.

Point For Taking Off The Gloves

The apostles of a long hot summer seem bent upon given substantive proof of the prediction. All across the country there are reports of riots and disturbances, and some of these represent such a break down of law and order that the National Guard had to be called out.

No section seems to be immune, for there have been upheavals all the way from Tampa, Fla. to Los Angeles, Calif., from Montgomery, Ala. to Cincinnati, Ohio and Boston, Mass. A few places have experienced varying degrees of violence which grew out of marches and similar demonstrations. Some of this may be the product of hot heads stimulated to spontaneous disorder. But when it gets down to windows being broken and businesses looted, to the torch being put to commercial structures and residences, to shooting at firemen and policemen trying to quell the disturbances and quench the fires — well this is something else again.

There may be a name to fit it, but anarchy will do until a more precise word is coined. This is the point at which authorities are entitled, yes obligated, to take off the gloves, and there should not be the slightest hesitancy to call out the guard if it is needed.

Frustration and impatience are understandable in a ghetto situation, but two wrongs have never made a right —nor they do so today.

Bombing Of A Neutral Ship

WASHINGTON — Thirty-three Americans met tragic deaths when a noncombat ship flying the United States flag was attacked by Israeli planes and torpedo boats 15 miles from the coast of the Sinai peninsula near the combat zone. Was there an error in judgment on the part of American naval commanders in sending the "Liberty" into such dangerous waters, especially when the Egyptians had already declared the area to be out of bounds for neutral shipping? No advance notice was given by the American government to either side that the vessel was being stationed in the area.

THE ISRAELI government has apologized for the incident, and has explained that the configuration of the American ship resembled very closely the Egyptian naval supply vessel "Al-Kassir." For the two days preceding the attack, Egyptian ships had been shelling Israeli coastal forces from the very position in which the "Liberty" later appeared.

PUBLISHED REPORTS attributed to Washington officials have intimated that the Israeli purpose was to destroy the "Liberty" because it had made tape recordings of messages which would have shown that the Israelis started the fighting in the Mideast war. But to this the Israeli embassy here promptly responded with indignation, pointing out that hostilities had begun three days before the "Liberty" arrived on the scene, so that it could not have intercepted any such radio messages.

THE REAL QUESTION is why the Israeli flyers did not recognize the "Liberty" as a neutral ship. One explanation is that there was very little wind and that the flag was hanging limp from the mast. American officials say the vessel was proceeding very slowly, at a speed of five knots an hour. They also declare that the ship was marked with its name on the stern and identification numbers on the bow. To this, the answer is made that greater precautions should have been taken by spreading out the American flag on the deck or painting it on the side, so that there could be no chance of mistaking the identity of the ship either from the air or the surface.

IT IS ARGUED here, on the other hand, that the vessel was engaged in a very important work—namely, to facilitate communications with American officials in the Middle East and to gether intelligence information as near to the war zone as possible. It is also pointed out that for many decades past the custom has been not to put any more identification marks on such a vessel than the "Liberty" displayed last week.

In the circumstances, would it not have been less risky if the identification of the American ship had been made more clearly distinguishable? Obviously the problem was not an easy one to solve, but the fact remains that, because the ship's nationality was not immediately apparent, one of the Israeli air commanders took no chances and acted in the belief that the vessel was Egyptian and that it was endeavoring to interfere with the operations being carried on by the Israeli forces nearby.

THE ISRAELI government has expressed its deep regret for the mistake, and has offered to "make amends" for the attack. The gamble, however, by those American officers who sent the crew of a neutral ship close to a combat zone is one that ought to be carefully reviewed now from all aspects by the higher command, in order that there may be no repetition of such a risk-taking affair.

Billy Graham

Some people believe in what they refer to as "flash prayers," praying about anything and everything. I know a man who when he plants flowers, prays, "Lord, let them grow," or when something is lost, "Lord, help me to find it." Don't you think that this may be "taking the name of the Lord in vain?" I.D.

I don't believe that praying at any time, anywhere, about anything, is in vain. The Bible tells us that God is interested in the little things of life, that even the fall of a sparrow does not escape Him. So, I see no reason why the Lord wouldn't be interested in the little things of life.

The trouble with many is that they wait until they have a crisis or emergency before they pray. I know a man, for example, who says that he never "bothers" the Lord about anything. But, recently he was in a boat that was nearly swamped at sea, and he said that he prayed earnestly for the Lord to save him.

Most merchants give priority to their regular customers, and I am quite sure the Lord is concerned for the seeming "little things," for repeatedly we are told to "ask and we shall receive." If we come to Him with the little things, and He hears us, we can be sure that He will not fail us in the major crises of life.

TOKYO (AP)—The huge carp that make their home in the moat surrounding the Emperor's palace grounds have lost their best friend.

He is 54-year-old Shio Okamura who for 20 years has sold carp food to children flocking to feed the fish. Some citizens complained children could fall into the moat and drown while feeding the fish.

Police told Okamura to find another job.

DIFFICULT PART OF THE CLIMB

James Marlow

UN Donnybrook Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel's war on the Arabs was fast, to the point. The peace settlement won't be. The dragged-out haggling is starting. So far the United States hasn't stuck its neck out. Moscow has. It's trying to catch back.

IT MADE A mess of its dealings with the Arabs. Before the short-lived war began a week ago, Moscow promised Egypt support. Nice word, support. What did it mean? It turned out to mean nothing.

The Soviets were playing it cute, probably hoping nothing would happen, and if it didn't they could pose as the Big Brother who had been ready to pitch in and help, the one big friend of the Arabs:

But then the Israelis swooshed through the Sinai Peninsula, wrecked the Egyptians and their air force, and knocked Jordan senseless, all in three days. The only help the Soviets gave Egypt was to ask the United Nations to call for a truce.

THE ARAB reaction to the United States, which had kept hands off, was bad and apparently for the old reason: If you aren't with me, you must be against me. But it was bad against the stand-by Soviets, too.

Now the Soviets are making such an obvious move to woo the Arabs again it looks unsophisticated. But diplomatically it's practical.

THEY'RE demanding in the United Nations that everything in the Mideast be restored to where it was before the fighting began, which means the Israelis should withdraw from all the land they captured and let the Arabs have it back.

If the Israelis yielded to the Soviet demand, which they give no sign of doing, then everything, including 679 Israelis killed and 2,563 wounded, would have been for nothing.

And the Arabs would be just as well off—at least in real estate—as they were before they fell on their face.

THERE'S ONE standout good reason why the Israelis won't buy it—they'd have to return control of the Gulf of Aqaba to the Egyptians whose blockade of Israeli shipping in the gulf was the main cause of the war.

On the face of it Moscow's proposal makes no sense, except for whatever good impression the Kremlin thinks it will make on the Arabs. This move is transparent enough to look juvenile except for a couple of things.

Hair Today, Gone Tomorrow

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that bald men get tired of hearing:

"Hi, there, cueball!"

"Have you read any good hair-raising mysteries lately, Elmer?"

"Cheer up, old man. They say that in a million years or so everybody will be bald. If you can just hold out until then, you'll have plenty of company."

"Well, hair today, gone tomorrow."

"THE BIG thing that puzzles me is how he tells where his forehead ends and his back bone begins."

"Of course, you could grow a crewcut beard, Elmer, but that would only make you look like you had your head screwed on your neck upside down."

"He doesn't have hair for the same reason grass doesn't grow on a busy street. It can't get up through the concrete."

"Don't tell me that's Elmer K. Bugby. Why, in high school he had the longest, curliest hair in our class. All the girls envied him."

"I FORGET your name, old boy, but the fuzz is familiar."

"As your friend for 30 years would I lie to you, Elmer? I swear it's beginning to grow back in."

"Just trim it on the sides, sir? There doesn't seem much to do-uh-on the top."

"When he dozes in a chair on the front porch, the flies use his head for a landing strip."

"It makes him kinda look like Yul Brynner—that is, if you don't look too closely."

"ACCORDING to some scientists, baldness is a sign of great virility. If that's really true, Elmer must be even more masculine than Tarzan."

"I hear he combs with a washcloth."

"It's nice to have Elmer along on our camping trips. In the morning, when we want to shave, we just wait until the sun comes up and use his head for a mirror."

"HOW DID it start in your case? Was your great-granddad scalped by the Indians?"

"Yeah, that's him. Us kids used to sing "On Top of Old Baldy" everytime he went by with his wife. Now he pays us each a dime a week not to do it any more."

"There have been a lot of famous bald men in history, Elmer. Lemme see now. There was Socrates and Julius Caesar and-uh-well, I guess that's all I can think of offhand."

The Myths About Colds That Won't Die

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard from two reliable sources that colds are caused by a virus, and there is no relationship between cold temperatures and getting a cold; that weather, wet feet, drafts, etc., don't even make a person more susceptible to a cold virus if he should be exposed to it.

If this is true, why hasn't this information been widely publicized to replace the ageless myth we have been operating under for generations? — G.B.

You must have missed some of my columns. There has been every effort to publicize the fact that viruses cause colds, but it is the nature of the human critter in countless instances to refuse to see what is placed in front of him.

Colds aren't from just one virus. They are from many viruses, possibly as many as a couple of hundred. Hence we can have one variety of cold, recover, acquire some temporary immunity — but promptly catch another cold of a different kind.

I'm not convinced that there is "no relationship" between colds and weather, wet feet, drafts, etc. In fact, I rather have a suspicion that such things may temporarily reduce one's general resistance, and possibly contribute to catching cold — but these factors do not CAUSE a cold all by themselves. One of the viruses MUST be present.

For one example, men isolated in polar camps have colds when they first arrive. Then, evidently after they have swapped their viruses around and everybody has been exposed, nobody gets a cold, even in the sub-zero cold. But the next time a mail or supply plane arrives, they all have another round of colds. New viruses, you see.

Same thing happens in Army camps. A new group of men arrives. They sniffle and blow and feel miserable. But when they've run through the varieties of viruses they brought with them, these same men can live under the most miserable of training conditions — cold, wet, tired — and NOT catch colds.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have varicose veins and have had several injections for them. During both my pregnancies the veins became worse. We want another child. Do you think that wearing elastic stockings faithfully would prevent the veins from becoming worse? Where can I be fitted for them? — MRS. L.L.

They won't prevent or eliminate the varicose veins, but they will make you more comfortable and protect the veins to some extent.

Hosiery counters have supportive hose. The stronger elastic ones can be fitted at a medical supply house featuring supportive garments.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Molner's helpful booklet, "How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed." For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim

Early Bird Gets The Worry Worm

"I'm gonna marry your daughter."

Surely there are no more dreaded words in the English language to a doting father, nor more likely to raise the adrenalin more quickly.

SOMEHOW, the mother in the family manages to take such statements in stride, indeed, with a certain equanimity. A smile, a sigh, and she goes back to washing the dishes, scrubbing the floors, and whatever.

"How can you be calm about this?" I demanded. "Almost a total stranger makes a dire threat like that and you pay practically no attention."

"IN THE FIRST place," she says, "he is not a stranger. They've been meeting out at the sidewalk for months."

"Why haven't I been told?" I am almost screaming. "Clandestine meetings going on with my only daughter, and you don't even bother to let me know."

"In the second place," she continues, "he comes from a very nice family, as you very well know."

"HOW CAN YOU say that, when they've raised a boy who would rob our home of one of its brightest lights," I retort.

She didn't hear, as she went to the other end of the house to see about the ironing, leaving me to worry and solve the problem. Of course, he had not actually come to me yet to pose the question. Thus far, I had all the information second hand. Maybe he would change his mind, I hoped, and take up professional football. He is athletically inclined and an excellent swimmer, I was told.

PERHAPS SHE'LL SAY no, but who can tell, when her mother is so obviously in league with her. I heard them discussing dresses the other day, but I thought it was only a vacation wardrobe.

Nails chewed down to the quick, I had to have more answers. Storming back to the ironing board, I hesitated to hear the answer to my question.

"DID HE SAY anything about when he is planning to rob our home?"

A touch of sarcasm seeped into her reply.

"No, but since both of them are only three years old, you have plenty of time to stew over it."

Maybe so, but it's never too soon.

Public Prosecutor's Ideas

WASHINGTON—The Attorney General of the United States must be, wrote a Cabinet member in the regime of J. Q. Adams, "not only a good lawyer, but a safe statesman . . . His labors are always connected with perplexing problems . . . and relate to every variety of questions which can arise under our institutions . . ."

RAMSEY CLARK, 66th Attorney General, takes this dual assignment of lawyer-statesman seriously. In the course of a lengthy interview, scheduled for 20 minutes but lasting over an hour, Clark set forth his philosophy as a prosecutor of criminal justice, limiting the discussion to that field. He clearly thinks of himself as having responsibility for national improvement as well as for law enforcement. He is a reformer as well as a prosecutor.

Clark makes a neat division between the roles. His words, he says, meaning his public speeches, are one thing. His actions, meaning his prosecutions, are another. He keeps his sentiments out of his cases.

BUT THERE may be more ambivalence than he suspects. In his addresses he is pleading for a society that would make his work of punishing criminals disappear. It is hard to tell whether he is more attached to the vision than to the realities. He told the National Conference on Crime Control:

"Through long-range effort we can conquer poverty, ignorance, disease, discrimination, social tension, despair, family breakdown, the dehumanization of mass culture (and) injustice."

THIS IS QUITE a catalogue of social planning, and it became evident in questioning Clark that he underestimates his content of evangelism when speaking before people who came to hear him discuss law enforcement.

Like Attorney General Bob Kennedy, who left his mark on the post-Eisenhower Justice Department, Clark divides the criminal population into professionals and amateurs. Organized crime, he says, is a "still target," at which the department can take dead aim. This year's work load of criminal cases is 30 per cent higher than last year's.

BUT THE AMATEURS are much more numerous, and much harder to cope with. Most crime is "capricious." About one-third of all murders are committed within the family circle. Almost half are the result of quarrels between friends and lovers. These killings are not preventable, and their punishment is not very useful. The most fertile breeding place of crime is the penal system. Correction, especially among the young, can cut down crime at its lowest level. But four-fifths of the persons who get jailed for misdemeanors later get imprisoned for felonies.

"PRISONS MAKE criminals," says Clark. "Nine out of ten criminals finally get released. I think we need longer and more flexible sentences. Society has a right to know that we either don't release dangerous characters or that we change them."

Deservedly or not, policemen are looked upon as enemies rather than protectors in areas where a high rate of crime exists. Clark feels that the best solution is to raise standards of police recruitment and to raise salaries.

LIKE MOST intelligent men without much experience to go on, Clark seeks wisdom in advice and in reading. He talks deeply with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

At 39, Ramsey Clark very much wants to be the "good lawyer . . . safe statesman" that the job requires. He's still got a way to go, and he seems to know it.

When The Arabs Get On The Phone—

WASHINGTON — It was reliably reported last week that Israel listened in on telephone conversations between President Nasser and King Hussein while the war was going on. This, of course, was a violation of the Middle East antibugging laws, and we can expect the Soviet Union to bring it up in no uncertain terms at the United Nations.

While the Israelis published one such conversation that they heard, there were others that took place during those four fateful days. I heard the tape of one the other day, and while I can't swear to its authenticity it certainly sounded like Nasser and Hussein to me.

It went like this:

HUSSEIN: "Gamal, my brother and true defender, what the hell have you done to me? You made me lose Jerusalem, Bethlehem and all the land west of the Jordan."

Nasser: "Well, nobody's perfect."

Hussein: "I am not criticizing you, O hero of the Arab world and valiant conqueror of the Gulf of Aqaba, but that little piece of paper I signed with you last week also made me lose the Arab legion."

Nasser: "Little king, do not despair. There is still much we can do."

Hussein: "Such as what, O mighty prophet of the Sinai?"

NASSER: "Well, you can burn down the American Embassy for a start. I always find when I lose a war that there's nothing like a good embassy fire to make people forget."

Hussein: "A good idea, O god of the Gaza. I shall burn down the U.S. Embassy. Anything else?"

Nasser: "Then you must resign."

Hussein: "But, savior of the Suez, how can I resign?"

NASSER: "It is the only thing to do, my tiny sovereign. If you don't resign, the people will scream for your resignation. But if you do they will shout for you to stay."

Hussein: "How do you know this, O wise one?"

Nasser: "This isn't the first time I've lost a war."

Hussein: "True leader of the Arab bloc, tell me, how do I explain the loss of Jerusalem to my people?"

Nasser: "Tell them American marines and British commandos wrested the city from your brave soldiers while the Israeli dogs cringed in their foxholes until the cease-fire was sounded."

Hussein: "Of course. Why didn't I think of that?"

NASSER: "Obviously you've never lost Jerusalem before. You see, my fragile monarch, it isn't how you fight a war that counts, but what you say afterward that is important. Look at me. The Israelis took Gaza, the Sinai, Aqaba, and they are sitting on the Suez Canal. Yet the latest poll shows my popularity is at an all-time high."

Hussein: "If you had only lost Cairo you would live forever."

Nasser: "Say, by the way, Arab brother, I'm drawing up a new defense pact with Jordan. How about coming over this week to sign it?"

HUSSEIN: "O glorious deliverer, to think you still want to protect me after what you've done already."

Nasser: "Hush, now. What good is a great U.A.R. army if it cannot offer assistance to a little friend?"

Hussein: "How can I ever repay you?"

Nasser: "Could you loan me the use of an airplane until Thursday?"

It's In Box

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Some time after the city library disposed of a curbside book collection box a library worker called a patron about an overdue book.

"I returned it long ago," the patron said. "I dropped it in the collection box."

Told that the box was no longer in use, the patron replied:

"I know that. The box is at the back of the library and upside down. And that's where I put the book."

That's where a librarian found it.

Pro Cartnapers Crackdown Begun

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Every year Southern California grocery stores sell food and give up $15 million worth of shopping carts.

A crackdown on "cartnaping" has been announced by William Tormey, representing the Southern California Grocers Association. He said virtually every food market in the region would take part.

He said many shoppers don't intend to steal the $30 carts but only to use them to haul groceries home. Then, the professional cartnaper "picks up the abandoned carts on sidewalks and resells them in another area," Tormey said.

Deck Officers Tie Up Ships

NEW YORK (AP) — Deck officers, advancing their strike deadline, have begun to tie up U.S. flagships in a number of Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports.

Shipping companies reported sailings of 20 or so ships, mostly freighters, were held up as the strike began Wednesday. New York, Baltimore and New Orleans appeared hardest hit. The walkout originally was set for midnight tonight.

The strike developed from a pay dispute between the deck officers' union and three management groups whose members operate a total of 657 ships—almost two-thirds of the American merchant fleet.

A deck officer spokesman said ships with all-military cargoes will be entirely exempt from the strike, and companies will be allowed 10 days to "unmix" military and commercial cargo on some ships. Many of the 657 ships of the companies involved are in the exempt class.

Capt. Lloyd Sheldon, president of the AFL—CIO Masters, Mates and Pilots union, informed Maritime Administrator J. W. Gulick of the union position.

Gulick wired back that "a strike at this time would be a major disservice to the country." He urged the union to "recognize the responsibility to the nation at large and the industry."

Gulick said the union's contract "provides for additional administrative remedies, which to this point have not been exercised."

The deck officers were expected to remain aboard their ships.

Former Webb Pilot Makes Emergency Gamble, Wins

1st Lt. Clarke A. Nelson, 24, of Tucson, Ariz., gambled and won recently when he landed his F100 Supersabre without power at a Vietnam air base.

Without normal steering and braking capability due to a stuck throttle in his aircraft, Lt. Nelson, a 1965 WAFB graduate, intentionally shut off his engine inflight and made a near perfect landing.

Lt. Nelson is a member of the 309th Tactical Fighter Squadron at Tuy Hoa Air Base.

Following a routine takeoff, Nelson noticed trouble as he began to reduce power and continue his climb. While the throttle control operated normally, the engine remained at full power.

After making several unsuccessful attempts to reduce the power with controls in the cockpit, he managed to reduce the engine power by 2½ per cent by switching to the emergency fuel system.

"With the engine still running at near-maximum," said Lt. Nelson, "I realized I would not be able to slow the aircraft enough for a safe landing, so I flew over an authorized bomb jettison area and dropped my ordnance."

He was able to reduce the speed of the plane below the maximum gear extension speed of 230 knots by making several hard turns and maneuvers. The increased drag created by extending the gear and flaps also slowed the aircraft.

As he made his final approach to Phan Rang air base, Lt. Nelson picked exactly the right moment to turn off the master engine switch, causing his single engine fighter to flame out and enabling him safely to land the Supersabre.

Recalling the incident, Lt. Nelson said "There was only one chance to save the airplane and I had to try it."

Trans-Texas Asks For New Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans-Texas Airways has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for routes between Las Vegas, Nev., and Dallas-Fort Worth, Albuquerque, N.M., and San Francisco-Oakland, and Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif. National, Frontier and West Coast airlines have filed similar applications.

New President Of Texas College

TYLER (AP) — Dr. Allen C. Hancock, a native of Cherokee County, will assume duties July 1 as the new president of Texas College.

Regents named him Wednesday to succeed Dr. J. Henry Alston. Hancock is a graduate of the college and has been dean of Jarvis Christian College at Hawkins.

Falling Bricks Kill Fireman

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Falling bricks killed a part-time fireman as flames destroyed two big buildings at the Kimball-Diamond Milling Co. plant Wednesday night.

Firefighters kept the furious blaze from spreading to an elevator containing 200,000 bushels of grain.

Walls on the top floor of the firm's three-story main building collapsed and killed Ken Kramer, 21, a North Texas State University student from Dallas who also worked as a city fireman.

Burning out of control for hours, the fire leaped an alleyway through a conveyor shaft and spread from the brick structure to a 75-foot high sheet metal building lined with heavy timbers. Firemen were forced to stand by throughout the night.

There was concern for a time that cans of chlorine gas stored in one building might explode and release the gas.

Both of the burned structures housed expensive heavy machinery and the loss was expected to run into thousands of dollars.

Elementary Principals To Attend Conference

Four Big Spring elementary school principals will attend a Summer Work Conference in Austin, June 21-23.

Among the 900 Texas school personnel expected for the annual meeting are Ernie Boyd, Airport Elementary School; George Archer, Gay Hill; Bill Dawes, Marcy; and John Hardy, Washington.

The three day conference will center around the theme "Together We Help a Child," and S. M. Anderson, president of the Texas State Teachers Association and superintendent of Big Spring Public Schools, will address the delegates on the last day of the conference.

C. L. Ainsworth, area program coordinator for the Southwestern Cooperative Educational Laboratory, Inc., at Lubbock, and formerly with the Big Spring school system, will speak at a general session of the principals on "Helping Individual Children in the Instructional Program."

Topics for study in group discussions will be legislation affecting elementary schools, coordinating school and community resources to help children, trends in science education in elementary schools, and others.

Co-sponsoring the workshop which will be held in the Stephen F. Austin Hotel are the as Elementary Principals and Supervisors, the Texas State Teachers Association, and the University of Texas.

Novelist Buck Receives Medal

SEOUL (AP) — Novelist Pearl Buck has received the South Korean Cultural Medal from Premier Chung Il-kwon in recognition of her welfare work for Korean-American children.

Chung personally conferred the medal on the Nobel Prize winning writer Wednesday during a brief ceremony at the Capitol building.

Miss Buck, who arrived here May 30 on a tour of Asia, dedicated a $1.1-million opportunity center over the weekend as a gift celebrating her 75th birthday, June 26, for Korean children fathered by American servicemen.

Barnes Eyes Oil Windfall

DALLAS (AP)—Ben Barnes, Texas House speaker, said Wednesday an increase from 10 to 13 days per month of oil production in Texas would mean a windfall of $11 million for the state.

Barnes told the annual membership meeting of the Dallas Assembly that an oil shortage resulting from the present Middle East Crisis would probably cause an increase in Texas oil to take up the slack.

He said any additional income that develops might be enough to prevent or at least sharply curtail need for a new tax bill in 1968.

Con Celebrates

ELKINS, W. Va. (AP)—John Denver Canterbury, an inmate of the West Virginia medium-security prison at nearby Hutonsville, recently celebrated his 19th birthday and escaped from jail.

State police said Canterbury, who was sentenced to a one to 10-year term for breaking and entering, escaped while the prison baseball team was in Elkins for a game.

Opening lead: King of ◇

South, the declarer at a part score contract of three hearts, developed an interesting end position in which he first severed communications between the opposition, and then projected an end play against each defender in turn.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the ace. The appearance of declarer's queen on the second round suggested that it was not safe to play another diamond. West was reluctant to lead away from his broken holding in spades and, fearing a possible end play if he retained the lone ace of clubs, he cashed that card and then exited with a trump.

Declarer drew trump by cashing the ace and then leading a small heart to the ten in his hand. He had lost three tricks already and was confronted with the prospective loss of two more in spades and clubs—even assuming that the spade finesse succeeded. West's play of the ace of clubs followed by his abrupt shift to a trump strongly suggested that the clubs would not divide favorably and, therefore, that North's long club could not be established for a discard.

West's sequence of bids tended to indicate that he held two five card suits. This was confirmed in the play when he showed up with two hearts and apparently just one club. This distributional pattern supplied South with a ray of hope.

With trumps accounted for, he led a small spade from his hand and finessed North's queen. The ace was cashed next, removing East's remaining spade, and then the queen of clubs was led. East realized that if he won the trick, he would be end played, for, down to nothing but clubs and diamonds—the lead of a diamond would present the declarer with a ruff and discard, while the club return into dummy's jack-nine would also surrender a trick.

When North's queen of clubs was permitted to hold, South abandoned his attack against East and switched his attentions to West. The latter was thrown in with a third round of spades, and whether he exited with a spade or a diamond, South could ruff in the North hand while he disposed of his remaining club.

In all, declarer lost two diamonds, one spade and only one club.
