World AIDS Day

The Permian Basin AIDS Coalition has scheduled a memorial service Sunday to mark the fourth annual observance of World AIDS Day. The memorial service is set for 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Crossroads Christian Fellowship, 410 S. Pecos St., Midland. In addition to speakers, the memorial service will include a candle-lighting ceremony and procession. The local theme for year's week of activities will be "How We Live," and organizers hope "to highlight the fact that HIV is now a chronic manageable disease, but still terminal." Sixty-five people have died from AIDS in the Permian Basin.

Fed OKs mergers

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve announced approval of two mega-bank mergers Friday, clearing an obstacle to the creation of what most likely will become the nation's third- and fourth-largest banks. New York-based Chemical Banking Corp. won permission to acquire its Park Avenue rival, Manufacturers Hanover Corp., and form a new institution, with $135 billion in assets. It will retain Chemical's name. Meanwhile, NCNB Corp. of Charlotte, N.C., and C&S-Sovran Corp. of Atlanta and Norfolk, Va., got a go-ahead to combine their $118 billion in assets under the name of NationsBank./10C

Earth looks hazy

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Atlantis' astronauts, amazed at the amount of haze over Earth, peered through clouds at ships and other military targets in Cuba, Australia and Florida during a space surveillance test Friday. The two veterans aboard the shuttle said they have never seen so much haze from orbit. Commander Frederick Gregory and Story Musgrave last flew in space two years ago./11C

Is Pele the father?

SAO PAULO, Brazil — World soccer star Pele is reportedly the father of a 27-year-old woman who filed a paternity lawsuit against him. Sandra Regina Machado contended she was conceived during a 1963 liaison between Pele and her mother, a housemaid in the port city of Santos. At the time, the 51-year-old Pele was at the height of his career with the local Santos soccer club. He retired from soccer in 1977.

Soviet financial crisis deepens

■ Republic blocks Gorbachev on more deficit financing.

N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union, virtually out of money, was forced to stop payments from its central bank accounts Friday after the Russian republic, led by President Boris N. Yeltsin, struck another crippling blow to the central government of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev by refusing to authorize another round of deficit spending.

Coming two days after President Bush disclosed that the United States was prepared to quickly recognize the Ukraine's independence, Yeltsin's decision not to bail Gorbachev's foundering government dramatized the difficulty that Gorbachev has in getting support for the union even from those inclined in the past to support it.

And in another sign of the crumbling center, Yeltsin's Russian government announced it was taking over temporary control of the Soviet Foreign Ministry building and embassies abroad because the Soviet government did not have the money to keep them going.

The fiscal crisis reached a breaking point over an emergency appropriation, sought by Gorbachev, that would have authorized a 92 billion ruble deficit to carry the Soviet government through to the end of the year. Without permission to print more money, the Soviet State Bank is running out of cash to pay salaries, bills and meet other financial commitments, the bank's chairman said

Shopping season is on

Nation's consumers wary; area sales brisk

■ Many Americans reduce their planned Christmas outlays.

Associated Press

Americans crowded into stores and malls Friday for the traditional start of the Christmas shopping season, but the uncertainty of a weak economy weighed heavily on the wallets of many consumers.

Some shoppers said they were cutting back on gift-giving this year because of worries about money or job security. Yet for other consumers — especially those living in parts of the country less battered by the recession — it will be Christmas as usual.

"I'm more browsing than buying," said Nancy Green, a Mansfield, Ohio, resident who drove 75 miles to Columbus to visit a discount electronics store.

"The economy has definitely affected my shopping plans," she said.

Whether they were making purchases or just looking, shoppers filled stores and malls that opened early and offered specials to draw crowds. Ikea home furnishings stores on the East Coast opened at 6 a.m. and some Wal-Mart stores opened at 7 a.m.

But Kmart Corp. got the jump on its rivals, having opened some of its stores on Thanksgiving Day.

Two well-known shoppers Friday were President and Mrs. Bush, who visited a JCPenney near Camp David.

Buyers put ring to city cash registers

The day after Thanksgiving again lived up to its illustrious shopping reputation as Midlanders flocked to stores across the Tall City — despite blustery weather.

Merchants seemed pleased as well, as the economy's downturn appeared to have little effect on customer spending habits.

"Everything is going wonderful. This is just great, we're way ahead of last year," said William Smith, assistant store manager at Wal-Mart. "I think the recession is probably hurting everyone but us.

"We had a scavenger hunt this morning and we had lines and lines of people waiting at our doors at 7 a.m. It was incredible. People were running through the store searching for VCR's and stuff we were giving away," Smith said.

Midland Park Mall was bustling with holiday shoppers as well.

Dillard's Department Store manager Mike Richmond was pleasantly surprised.

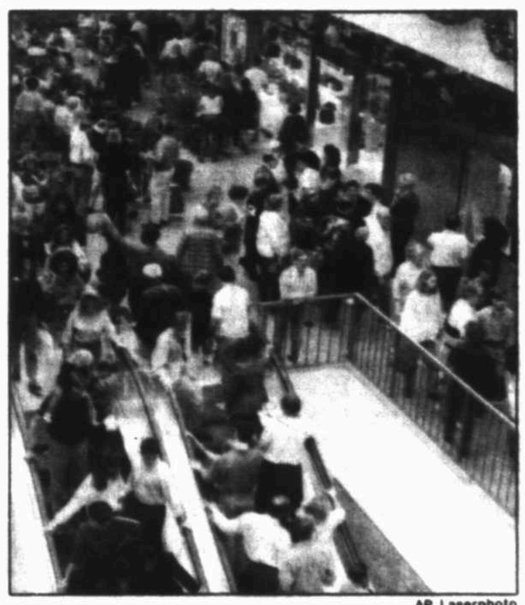

"This is very nice. To be honest I didn't know exactly what to expect with rumors of a recession and what have you, but things are going better than last year," he said. "I'm sure the recession has and will influence other stores but not here."

Stella Mora, owner of La Dulceria, said her store had a steady stream of customers. "We opened at 9 a.m. and it was busy with lots of Christmas shoppers," she said. Ms. Mora said the only indication of economy woes is that customers are thrifty. "They think twice before spending," she said.

However, the heavy turnout of customers on the first notable shopping day of the holiday season has Ms. Mora optimistic that retail sales will perk up this year.

While Midland Park Mall was bustling with customers in the morning and early afternoon, business slowed near dinntertime, according to Becky Martinez, an associate of Truly Texas. "We were definitely busier than usual this morning, but it slowed down by 5 p.m.," she said.

Man charged in Perkins slaying pleads innocent

CLEVELAND (AP) — A man charged with the slaying of a local disc jockey's wife pleaded innocent Friday to charges of aggravated murder and kidnapping.

Wiley Davis, 32, of Cleveland Heights, entered the plea before Cleveland Municipal Judge Edward F. Katalinas. Katalinas set bond for Davis at $1 million.

Davis was accused of killing Amy Perkins, 32, of Parma, originally from Dallas. She was approached as she pulled into a parking lot on East 9th Street in downtown Cleveland on Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Perkins was the wife of WGAR-FM morning man Dave Perkins. She worked as an office temporary, and her last day on the job was to have been Wednesday. She and her husband were moving to Midland, where Dave Perkins had invested in a radio station.

Police believe Mrs. Perkins was forced back into the car by the gunman. Mrs. Perkins was shot once in the head, and her body was dumped at an intersection on the city's east side. Her car was found a few blocks away.

Veteran character actor Ralph Bellamy dies at 87

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Ralph Bellamy, the versatile character actor with "a regal quality" who started acting as a teen-age runaway and went on to play Franklin D. Roosevelt on stage, screen and television, died Friday at age 87.

Bellamy died at 2:18 a.m. at St. John's Hospital and Health Center, said hospital spokeswoman Pat Kirk. He was hospitalized earlier this month with a longstanding lung illness, Ms. Kirk said.

In a seven-decade career, Bellamy appeared as everything from leading man to villain in more than 100 movies, ranging from "His Girl Friday" with Cary Grant to "Trading Places" with Don Ameche and Eddie Murphy.

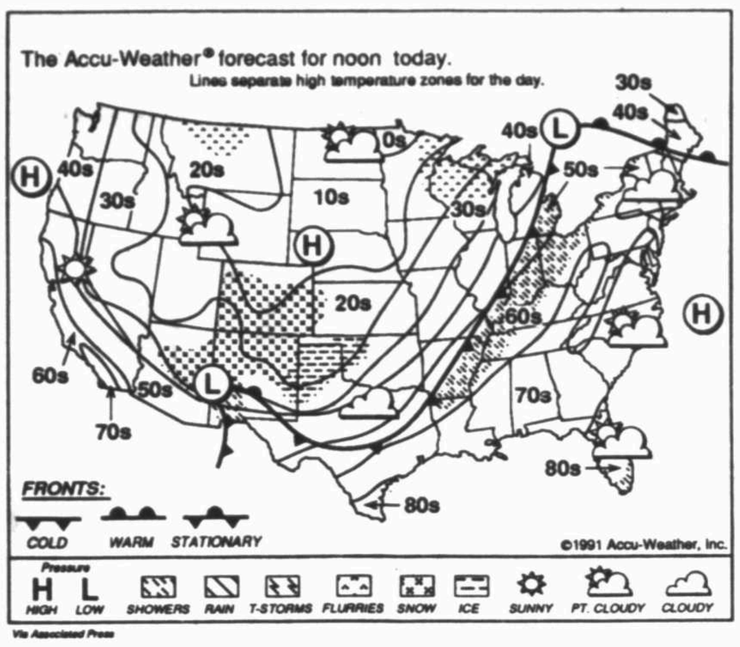

The actor also starred as FDR in the play "Sunrise at Campobello," for which he won a Tony in 1958; in the film version of the play; and in the television miniseries "The Winds of War."

"I think we lost another good one, as versatile an actor as he is," Bob Hope said from his Palm Springs home. "He is a fine actor and it's a personal loss."

WEATHER SUMMARY

Via Associated Press

Wintery blast heads in

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy and colder with a high near 50, winds becoming east to northeast 10-20 mph.

Tonight is predicted to be cloudy and colder with a 30 percent chance of light rain changing to snow by morning, but no significant accumulation, and a low in the mid 20s.

Sunday's forecast is mostly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain or snow and a high in the mid-30s.

Yesterday's high was 64, compared to the record high of 78, set in 1975. The record low for today's date is 18, set in 1979.

STATE

West Texas had clear skies behind a dry line Friday, but clouds increased in other portions of the state.

As the line moved eastward across North Texas, forecasters posted a tornado watch as thunderstorms began forming.

Winds were southerly at 15 to 25 miles per hour with gusts to over 50 miles per hour at some locations in West Texas.

Temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s, but Dalhart reported a high of only 45 degrees at 3 p.m. and forecasters said it would be much colder in most areas by Sunday.

The North Texas forecast was for cloudy skies through Sunday with scattered thunderstorms. Highs today were to range from 55 in the northwest to 75 in the southeast with lows from 32 to 50 degrees. Highs Sunday were expected to range from 40 to 55 degrees.

South Texas was expected to have partly cloudy to cloudy skies with scattered showers and thunderstorms. Highs in the 70s and 80s with lows from the 50s to 70s.

Forecasters said West Texas would be much colder this weekend with a chance of light rain today changing to snow by Sunday morning in the Panhandle and South Plains. Any snow accumulation was expected to be 1 inch or less. Highs today were to range from the middle 20s in the Panhandle to lower 60s in Big Bend valleys. Overnight lows today were to be near 10 in the Panhandle to the mid-30s in the south.

NATION

A complex of stormy weather produced snow, wind and thunderstorms Friday over the Rockies and Plains and threatened an area from the Southwest to the Great Lakes.

One storm system produced snow in the northern and central Rockies and the northern and central high Plains.

By midday Friday, the storm had dropped 10 inches of snow at Alta, Utah, and a foot of snow at the Pomerelle ski resort in Idaho. Mullan Pass, Idaho, reported 9 inches of snow overnight, and in southeastern Colorado the town of Beulah had a foot of new snow, the National Weather Service said.

A second storm system spread a mixture of rain, freezing rain, sleet and snow from the central high Plains to the lower Great Lakes region.

As a result of the two storm systems, winter storm watches, warnings and advisories were issued for much of the area from Idaho and Nevada through the Rocky Mountains to the upper Mississippi Valley and southward into northern Arizona and New Mexico.

Up to 8 inches of snow was possible by this morning in southwestern Nebraska, the weather service said.

BELLAMY: Veteran actor had 7-decade career

(From 1A)

"He was a hell of a man with a great sense of humor," said Hope, who worked with Bellamy on "a lot of projects" over the years, including several appearances on Hope's television shows.

"You never caught Ralph Bellamy acting," said producer A.C. Lyles, a longtime friend of Bellamy's. "He did it with such ease and with such a regal quality that he could do anything and everything."

But Bellamy's versatility stemmed from hard work behind the scenes, friends said.

He maintained a physical fitness regimen that included a half-hour of exercise at sunrise every morning, a routine that began when he prepared for the demanding role in "Sunrise at Campobello." The play illustrated the drama of Roosevelt's struggle with polio from 1921 through 1924.

"I realized that to play a paralyzed man I would be using muscles I hadn't used for a long time and some I might never have used," Bellamy said. "So I started with 25 pushups, then a series of stretches and bends to keep myself limber."

He knew the Roosevelt family and spent months of intensive preparation to play the role of the former president — studying cadence with an expert on speech patterns, working with polio victims, talking with the former first lady, borrowing FDR tapes from Ed Murrow and reading extensively.

Born in Chicago on June 17, 1904, Bellamy ran away from home at age 17 and joined a Shakespearean repertory company. In the next nine years, by his count, he played 375 roles for 15 stock companies and owned his own troupe in Des Moines, Iowa, one season.

He began his film career in 1931, and in 1933 alone he appeared in 11 movies.

In his early career, Bellamy was typecast as a cloddish man who couldn't get the girl, especially in 1937's screwball comedy "The Awful Truth," for which he was nominated for a supporting actor Oscar.

Among his more notable roles were parts in "Trading Places," "Blind Alley," "Rosemary's Baby," "Oh, God," "Lady on a Train," "The Professionals" and last year's huge hit, "Pretty Woman."

On Broadway, he also appeared in "Town Boy," "Roadside," "Tomorrow the World," "State of the Union" and "Detective Story."

His television credits included "Power," "Billion Dollar Threat," "The Game," "The Clone Master" and "The Memory of Eva Ryker."

He played opposite Cary Grant and Irene Dunne in "The Awful Truth," worked with Rosalind Russell in "His Girl Friday," and teamed up with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "Carefree."

Other collaborators included Bellamy's longtime pals James Cagney, Pat O'Brien and Frank McHugh, as well as Frank Capra, Lillian Gish, King Vidor and George Burns.

In 1987, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences presented Bellamy with an Honorary Oscar Award for his body of work. He was a Screen Actors Guild organizer and onetime president of Actors Equity.

He said he liked to relax at his back yard pool in the nude. He claimed he wrote a book on his experiences, "When the Smoke Hit the Fan" (Doubleday, 1979), while "stark naked in the swimming pool."

Bellamy married New York actress Catherine Willard on July 6, 1941. They had two children, Willard and Lynn. Mrs. Bellamy divorced her husband in 1945.

SEASON: Economy weighs heavily on wallets

(From 1A)

Some early shoppers expressed dissatisfaction with Bush's handling of the economy.

"We just don't feel he's there for the middle-income people at all," said Cathy Anderson of New Cumberland, Pa., who has slashed her Christmas gift budget by more than half and is cutting back on gifts for her 2-year-old daughter.

Many other Americans also have reduced their planned Christmas outlays, according to a survey released Friday by the Conference Board.

The business-supported research organization said consumers are expected to spend about 3 percent less on gifts this year than at the already depressed levels of Christmas 1990. Its survey found buying plans were down in the Northeast and South, but modestly higher in the Midwest, which has fared better during the recession.

Midwestern retailers sounded fairly upbeat as shoppers crowded their stores Friday.

"We've heard a lot of talk about the recession, but that hasn't affected our sales," said Don Frank, manager of Herberger's department store in Kearney, Neb.

Some Illinois retailers were pleasantly surprised as a strike, lockout and layoffs at Caterpillar Inc. plants did not seem to slow the holiday rush.

"It's been phenomenal, unbelievable," said Mike Lucas, manager of a Sears store in downtown Peoria, Ill. "It has started out strong, much stronger than it's been for the past three years at this time."

Some Midwestern shoppers also were upbeat.

"My spending habits haven't changed at all," said Pat Horn of Kankakee, Ill., who was shopping in Chicago. "I don't see a recession in the Midwest."

But consumer caution was still widespread. Chris Mizer, regional vice president for the Lazarus department store chain, said shoppers at a Columbus branch were leaning toward cheaper merchandise.

Lazarus shopper Jonie Strohl of Delaware, Ohio, said she was buying practical gifts. "I'm not buying fun things anymore," she said.

"If it's not on sale, it's not going home," said Mary Cole of Austell, Ga., who had filled two shopping bags one hour after stores opened at 7:30 a.m. at Cumberland Mall outside Atlanta.

Addlyn Holt, of Fayetteville, Ga., said she was paying cash for everything. But in Westfield, N.J., Tom Kennelly used credit cards, noting: "I can pay for Christmas presents in February."

As expected, lower-priced retailers did well.

"We're going gangbusters here," said Eric Berman, assistant general manager at Sawgrass Mills, a 220-store discount outlet mall in Sunrise, Fla.

At Marietta, Ga., George Rowe of Smyrna said he shopped exclusively at malls in previous years, but was doing most of his holiday buying this year at stores like Wal-Mart.

Job security was a big concern among shoppers.

"We don't know if in February we are going to have our jobs," said Maria Narganes, who was browsing in downtown Boston. She and her husband, Francisco, are school administrators in the cash-strapped city of Lawrence, Mass.

STORES: Holiday season kickoff lives up to billing

(From 1A)

In keeping with another holiday-shopping tradition, tempers flared throughout the city as long lines, encounters with obnoxious shoppers and painfully slow price checks took their collective toll.

"This is ridiculous," said one irritated Mervyn's shopper. "I've been standing in this line for about 15 minutes while that lady went to check on prices for jeans. Why does everyone have to come out on the same day."

At noon, the parking lot at Midland Park Mall bristled with accidents waiting to happen as irritated motorists raced toward parking spaces near their desired stores.

A Kmart shopper, however, was pleased with her visit.

"They had those lines moving. I was standing in a line I thought would take quite awhile but I was through it in about 10 minutes," she said. "I suppose it depends on what time you're out, though."

Staff writer Myra Lee Salcedo contributed to this report.

PERKINS: Police believe robbery might be motive

(From 1A)

Davis was arrested about 6 p.m. that night.

Police believe robbery may have been a motive. Mrs. Perkins' engagement and wedding rings and her wristwatch were missing when her body was found.

Funeral services were set for Saturday in Mrs. Perkins' hometown of Dallas.

Other office workers in Cleveland are keeping the slaying in mind.

"I was mugged a couple of years in downtown Youngstown. Once it happens, it's something you don't forget. So I automatically go into defensive," said Tracy Starr, who is an administrative assistant to Cuyahoga County Commissioner Mary Boyle.

Lora Thompson, spokeswoman for the Gateway stadium and arena project, said she saw a pedestrian approach a car Thursday, as if to frighten the driver.

"If somebody runs up to my car, I'm going to run over him," Ms. Thompson said.

CRISIS: Russian republic blocks Gorbachev on deficit financing

(From 1A)

Friday night on the main Soviet television news program.

As of Thursday, the bank's reserves were down to 3 billion rubles and Friday, payments had to be halted on central government accounts, said the bank chairman, Viktor Gerashchenko.

Gerashchenko, whose bank has been chosen for a takeover by the Russian government, blamed the "sad situation" on political maneuvering by a few Russian delegates, and urged the Parliament — now adjourned until Tuesday — to meet Monday and authorize the money. Yeltsin directs the Russian delegation.

Although the upper chamber of the revamped Supreme Soviet, the nation's Parliament, approved the budget authorization on Thursday, the lower chamber was unable to muster a quorum, leaving the issue in a state of parliamentary confusion.

"For some reason, several deputies — mainly those representing the Russian federation — took a position of political manueuvering and twisting and indecision," said Gerashchenko. "In this connection, the debate on the issue was intentionally broken off. What we have is the torpedoing of important decisions."

But the Russian government is adamantly refusing to set off inflation with more freshly minted rubles at a time when prices are already spinning out of control.

The Russian government, by far the wealthiest of the republics, has cut off financing to about 80 central Government ministries and has taken control of the money supply, and the Soviet Union's most important commodities, including oil, gold and diamonds.

In the meantime, the Russian government moved elsewhere to take advantage of the Soviet government's growing weakness. The Russian federation Friday claimed temporary control over the Foreign Ministry and all Soviet embassies abroad, arguing that without funds, the central government was not equipped to handle the responsibility.

"The step has been taken to prevent the failure, disintegration of our foreign service, or to be more precise, of its infrastructure," a Russian foreign ministry spokesman, Mikhail Kamynin, told the Associated Press.

Those showdowns illustrated Yeltsin's power, which looms larger as Gorbachev's authority continues to shrink. But while opposed on some issues — like the emergency budget, the two men remained linked in their efforts to prevent the country from a slow slide to ruin.

Earlier this week, the republics refused to initial a proposed uniontreaty as Gorbachev had hoped, and this weekend, the Ukraine, the second-most-powerful republic after Russia, is expected to cast its vote for independence, casting a shadow over Gorbachev's efforts to rescue the union and Yeltsin's efforts to protect Russia from the pending collapse.

Yeltsin, whose republic controls most of the Soviet Union's resources and holds a commanding position here in the capital, has not been reluctant to use his advantages.

A commentator on Vesti, the Russian television news, Friday seemed to echo the Russian government's thinking when he said, "If the Soviet government cannot pay, then it would be logical to hand over its property to those who can."

Starting on Monday, rubles will no longer be exchanged for dollars and other hard currencies at tourist rates fixed by the State Bank. Instead, the value of the ruble will hover closer to current black-market rates.

Ted Kennedy faces tough questions in rape trial

By Frank Cerabino
N.Y. Times News Service

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Sometime during the next couple of weeks, the senior senator from Massachusetts will give his first detailed public explanation of his role in a "traditi nal Easter weekend" that ended in rape charges against his nephew.

Sen. Ted Kennedy's testimony will play like a highlight film for his detractors and a showcase for his traditionally cited shortcomings — drink and deception.

So far, disclosures about his conduct over the Easter weekend have been handled in the bloodless fashion of releases of court documents. But now, as the trial begins Monday, they will be recounted on the witness stand by him and others, forming in themselves a dramatic and concentrated month of embarrassment.

As the case developed, Kennedy made a seemingly conflicting set of admissions, constantly changing his story as new information was released.

The rape case against his nephew, William Kennedy Smith, has dogged Kennedy for the past eight months. The cost: a dip in his popularity polls, a summons before a grand jury investigating obstruction of justice, a self-imposed silence in the Clarence Thomas sexual harassment hearings and an unusual apology of sorts.

"I am painfully aware that the criticism directed at me in recent months involves far more than honest disagreement with my positions or the usual criticism from the far right," he said during an October speech. "I recognize my own shortcomings, the faults in the conduct of my private life."

Kennedy's behavior has become the subplot of the rape case against his nephew. Witnesses have put the senator caromming through that weekend as an alternately sodden and evasive force, never very far from the center of the action.

"What Sen. Kennedy has to do with this case, I have no idea," Smith's attorney Mark Schnapp complained to Judge Mary Lupo in June.

Schnapp made his remarks after prosecutor Moira Lasch tried to introduce into the court record a book critical of Kennedy's behavior in the 1969 drowning of a woman at Chappaquiddick.

But when defense attorneys began screening prospective jurors last month, the attorneys zeroed in on perceptions of Kennedy. He was repeatedly cited by the jurors as "the least favorite Kennedy," and some of the prospective jurors criticized him for what they'd heard of his actions in both Chappaquiddick and the Palm Beach case.

Here's a look at his actions that weekend, based on the sworn statements he and others have given.

It was Kennedy who got his youngest son, Patrick and his nephew, Smith, out of their beds on that Good Friday night, March 29.

"They appeared to be asleep when I opened up the door," Kennedy said. "I asked them if they wanted to have a couple of beers."

Patrick Kennedy, a state representative from Rhode Island, and his cousin Smith, a Georgetown University medical school student, had just returned home after a night out at LuLu's, a Palm Beach nightspot. But they put their clothes back on and headed out again after the senator woke them up.

"He was excited to see us, and we decided to go out," Patrick Kennedy said.

Exactly what time Sen. Kennedy got his son and nephew out of bed is uncertain. Patrick Kennedy says it was midnight, and other witnesses support that. But other testimony indicates that it may have been sometime after 2 a.m.

At Au Bar, Smith met the Jupiter woman, and the senator got into a tiff with her friend, Anne Mercer. It happened when Kennedy was trying to get Mercer to notice his son, Patrick.

Mercer said the senator and his son sat at her table, and the senator got angry when she told Patrick Kennedy, "You look like you're having a good time."

The senator, whom she recognized, told her: "Who are you to say anything? And I said, 'I'm Anne Mercer. Who are you to say anything?' and he goes, 'You don't understand anything about world politics,' and he stood up with Patrick and he left."

Said Patrick Kennedy: "She had a very offensive attitude towards my father. I think she could have said, 'You have been drinking too much.'"

Michele Cassone, a Palm Beach waitress, was at the table.

"The senator, well, he was out of it," she said. "He was drunk."

At Patrick Kennedy's invitation, Cassone followed him and Sen. Kennedy back to the estate. The three of them sipped wine from a small patio near the sea wall.

Sen. Kennedy said he doesn't remember what they talked about for the next 20 minutes: "Just general bantering, pleasantries." And then he went inside to eat some cracked crabs from the kitchen before going to bed.

Cassone remembers talking about shipwrecks and family values. The senator started asking her whether she was "a giver or a receiver," and eventually he drifted into thinly veiled sexual innuendos, she said.

"He was changing the tone of the conversation, and Patrick was feeling uncomfortable," Cassone said. "He was just changing ... like making an innocent conversation not so innocent any more."

Patrick Kennedy said he left the patio area to get a music box from his room. Cassone said she followed him because she didn't want to be left alone with the senator.

A few minutes later, Patrick Kennedy and Cassone were sitting on Patrick's bed.

"We kissed a little bit in that room," Patrick said.

"We were making out," Cassone said.

Then Kennedy walked in.

Said Cassone:

"He had no pants on. He was kinda wobbling and he came into the room and he's just like staring at us, and he had his shirt, just his long oxford shirt on, and I don't know what he had under that, but he didn't have his slacks on any longer.

"I just thought that was a very strange thing, and I wanted to get out of there."

Both Sen. Kennedy and his son say it was a long nightshirt that the senator was wearing.

"My father came in to say good night," Patrick Kennedy said.

After the visit, Patrick Kennedy and Cassone took a blanket and went to the beach to resume their kissing. Cassone went home a short time later.

And then there's the testimony of Smith's accuser, the Jupiter woman who met Smith at Au Bar that night and then followed him to the Palm Beach estate.

She remembered seeing Patrick and Ted Kennedy talking to each other in the kitchen when she and Smith arrived.

She and Smith headed for the beach, and she didn't see the senator again, she said. But, she said, she thought about him when Smith attacked her on the back lawn.

"I remember thinking, 'I'm screaming my head off and why isn't anybody coming down here and stopping this,'" the woman said. "I knew that Ted Kennedy had been there. Why wasn't he coming down to do this? He's a senator."

Kennedy said he never saw the woman back at the estate. He said he went to bed immediately after walking in on Cassone and his son. He slept in a first-floor bedroom with the windows open.

"Did you hear anything at all that night on the Kennedy estate?" prosecutor Moira Lasch asked him during a May sworn statement.

"No," he answered.

"Did you hear any screams?"

"No."

After the alleged attack, the Jupiter woman summoned Mercer and Mercer's boyfriend to the estate. The three of them left the estate about 5 a.m. with an antique urn, a Kennedy family picture and a notepad taken from the kitchen.

Kennedy said he woke up at about 9 a.m., unaware that anything had gone on in the house. He said he didn't ask Smith how he got home after Au Bar or what he did after last seeing him there.

The woman and her friends began giving statements to police officers Saturday afternoon, March 30.

At 7:34 that evening, Kennedy called the home of Miami lawyer Marvin Rosen. Rosen is a partner in Greenberg, Truarig, Hoffman, Lipoff, Rosen & Quentel—the law firm that would represent Smith two days later.

But Kennedy said his intention was only to deliver a "Happy Passover" message to an old friend. The Rosens were off on a Bahamas cruise that weekend.

Janet Rosen said she remembers getting a message on her answering machine Saturday from the senator.

"My recollection is that he said, 'Hi, I'm in Palm Beach ... just called to wish you a happy holiday," she said.

Massive pileup on Interstate 5 kills at least 12, injures about 150

COALINGA, Calif. (AP) — A dust storm driven by strong wind shrouded a heavily traveled highway Friday, causing huge pileups that killed at least 12 people and injured about 150, authorities said.

Visibility on Interstate 5, California's main north-south artery crowded with Thanksgiving holiday travelers, was reduced to zero by the strong wind and dust.

The accidents occurred on both sides of the highway about 15 miles north of Coalinga, and rescue efforts were complicated by the severe weather conditions, the California Highway Patrol said.

Vehicles were scattered across a four-mile stretch of highway and into adjoining fields, the Patrol said.

At least 68 cars and seven big rig trucks were involved in the wrecks that started around 2:30 p.m., California Highway Patrol Capt. Ted Eichman said from the scene.

Twelve people were killed and about 150 were injured, Eichman said.

At least 55 people from the accident were brought to surrounding hospitals, officials said.

The fatality figure may go up as searchers comb through the wreckage, some of which had burned, said Lt. Donald Burk of the Fresno Sheriff's Department.

"We've called in lots of off-duty officers to help. All ambulances in the area were dispatched to the scene," said Patrol spokesman Dave Sigler.

The Highway Patrol was closing a 150-mile stretch of the highway from Los Banos to Bakersfield due to high wind and poor visibility.

Wind in the area, about 170 miles northwest of Los Angeles, was gusting up to 40 mph, the National Weather Service said.

Many farmers were unable to plant their fields this year because of a five-year drought. That left the fields vulnerable, and when the wind came it blew up a dust storm, Burk said.

Motorist Nick Kudla, who was caught in the dust storm, said the highway was littered with smashed cars and trucks.

"The sand was blowing and vehicles were screeching all around," Kudla said in a telephone interview from a restaurant near here. "We could barely see.

"We pulled off the shoulder and kept hoping no one would get us from the back," he said.

Officials link progress to Israel-China ties

JERUSALEM (NYT) — The establishment of diplomatic ties between Israel and China, widely believed here to be drawing near, is linked to progress in the Middle East peace talks, Israeli officials said Friday.

China has made it clear that the speed with which it moves toward establishing first-ever diplomatic ties with Israel is directly connected to the speed with which the peace talks move forward, said the officials in Jerusalem, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Chinese themselves want to play a diplomatic role in the Middle East talks, the officials said, so that Beijing can establish relations with Israel to match China's already close ties with the Arab states and its support of Palestinian national rights.

The only practical forum for Chinese participation in the Middle East negotiations is in the elastic multilateral talks. Those talks are to take place after there is noticeable progress in the main bilateral negotiations — involving Israel and Lebanon, Syria, and a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation — that the United States want to resume Dec. 4 in Washington.

Regional issues such as arms control, water resources, trade and economic development and protecting the environment will form the agenda of the multilateral talks, which are taking on an international hue as the list of interested participants grows.

The Palestinians and the Arab states say they will attend the Dec. 4 talks. But Israel has proposed meeting on Dec. 9 instead and is looking to the Bush administration for a compromise that would allow it to avoid embarrassment and attend negotiations on Dec. 4 rather than be represented by an empty seat.

As evidence of China's interest in playing a balanced diplomatic role in the Middle East, as well as China's linkage between the peace talks and diplomatic relations, officials here cited Chinese Premier Li Peng's statement in Beijing on Friday that "The sovereignty and security of Israel should be respected and guaranteed."

Officials here said that was the first time any Chinese leader backed Israel's sovereignty, and one of the strongest statements yet pointing to possible diplomatic relations between the two countries. Li's statement came as he congratulated the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) on its international solidarity day.

China is an old ally of the PLO, Israel's longtime foe, and Li repeated China's position backing the Palestinians: "The legitimate national rights of the Palestinian people should be restored, the occupied Arab territories returned."

Li's remarks came a day after Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen told a delegation of American Jews that Israel and China may soon establish normal diplomatic relations.

According to Rabbi Marvin Hier of the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles, Qian said, "Israel and China are both on a gradual and progressive approach with the ultimate goal of preparing for normal relations. With concrete efforts from both sides, that can be achieved soon."

Rabbi Hier will open the first exhibition in China on the Holocaust. Documents and photographs will be exhibited in Shanghai on Tuesday.

The Israel-China tango, tying diplomatic relations to the peace talks, is similar to recent developments between Israel and the Soviet Union.

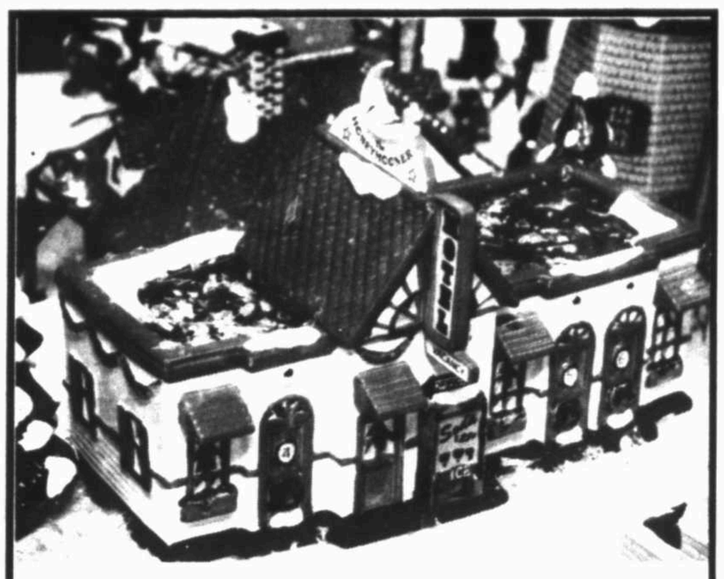

Moscow, a sponsor of the Middle East peace talks along with the United States, said it would restore full diplomatic ties with Israel if Israel attended a peace conference. When the United States and the Soviet Union issued invitations to the peace conference in Madrid, Moscow said it was restoring full diplomatic relations with Israel and the peace conference took place on schedule.

As a Middle East arms supplier, as well as a recipient of arms from Israel, the Chinese should be a welcome addition to multilateral Middle East talks in which arms control is a major subject. But to show its good faith, China might have to make more substantive concessions on trade, human rights and arms control, which Secretary of State James A. Baker III sought with only slight success during his recent trip to Beijing.

Israel has already asked the United States to press China to curb the sales of tanks, missiles and other armaments to Arab nations. That request was made before China revealed it would sell a miniature 30-kilowatt neutron source research reactor to the International Atomic Energy Agency for transferral to Syria. Officials here speculated the sale was arranged principally for the money.

Officials said Israel has not raised the reactor sale with the United States. When Israel has a chance to bring up the sale with the Chinese directly it will do so, the officials said.

Committee approves resolution

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A United Nations committee on Friday expressed in a resolution its concern over "a grave human-rights situation" in Burma.

The resolution was adopted by consensus in the Third Committee, which considers human-rights and social issues, despite objections by Burmese diplomats that it constitutes interference in internal affairs.

The resolution also welcomes the award of the Nobel Peace Price to human rights champion Aung San Suu Kyi.

Mrs. Suu Kyi, the leader of Burma's pro-democratic opposition which won national elections in May 1990, has been under house arrest for more than two years. Burma's military junta has refused to turn over power to the winners of the election.

The resolution supports appeals for Mrs. Suu Kyi's release.

It will be passed on to the General Assembly, which is expected to approve it. Assembly resolutions are not legally binding, but they carry weight as the expression of the will of the international community. It will be the first time that the human-rights situation in Burma has been considered by the General Assembly.

"The adoption of this resolution demonstrates the concern of the international community in sending a clear signal to the government" of Burma on human rights, said Japanese Ambassador Kastsumi Sezaki after the committee approved the measure.

Burma's ambassador, Kyaw Min, told the committee before the resolution was adopted that it was inappropriate and noted that his government already was cooperating with the U.N. Commission on Human Rights by accepting a visit by independent human rights experts.

Front-runner in Ukraine vote offers help on debt

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The leading candidate in the Ukraine's presidential election pledged Friday to pursue the "goal of millions" — independence.

The secession of the Ukraine, the second-richest and second-most populous Soviet republic, could destroy Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's chances of keeping the country together amid numerous secession drives.

In a further sign of the Ukraine's political importance, Russian President Boris Yeltsin linked his republic's participation in Gorbachev's proposal for a new, looser union with that of the Ukraine.

"As long as the Ukraine doesn't sign the Union Treaty, Russia won't put its signature on it either," Yeltsin was quoted as saying in the interview with the newspaper Izvestia published Friday evening.

On Sunday, Ukrainians also will vote in a simultaneous referendum on whether to approve the Ukrainian parliament's August declaration of independence. Polls indicate at least three-quarters of the voters approve.

An agricultural and industrial powerhouse, the Ukraine produces 56 percent of the country's corn, 25 percent of its wheat, 47 percent of the nation's iron, and 23 percent of its coal. However, the Ukraine is almost entirely dependent on the Soviet Union for its supply of oil, gasoline and natural gas.

Gorbachev has said that national union without the Ukraine is "unthinkable." Its departure would leave 11 republics in the Soviet Union.

The key to the presidential election is whether the Ukraine's 37 million eligible voters accept Leonid Kravchuk's commitment to the independence movement.

Kravchuk, the 57-year-old chairman of parliament, and five other candidates answered questions Friday in news conferences in Kiev, the Ukrainian capital.

Several candidates questioned Kravchuk's commitment to independence and voiced frustration that he has lately appropriated most of the platform of Rukh, the powerful independence movement.

Asked how his positions differ from Kravchuk's, Rukh's candidate, Vyacheslav Chornovil, said: "I don't see any great difference between our platforms.

"But I've been for independence, political humanism and human rights since the beginning of the 1960s," he added.

Both Chornovil and another nationalist candidate, Levko Lukyanenko, are former dissidents who spent many years in Soviet labor camps while Kravchuk was a Communist Party official from 1960 until the failed August coup. "I can't trust someone who so often changes his mind," Chornovil said of Kravchuk.

Lukyanenko predicted that Kravchuk would fall short of the 51 percent of the vote needed to win the election outright Sunday and would face a runoff two weeks later.

Kravchuk confidently continued to assert, as he has repeatedly in recent weeks, that he would not lead the Ukraine back into a reorganized Soviet Union.

"When a person has announced a goal, and that goal has become the goal of millions, then he cannot change the goal and remain a human being," Kravchuk said. "So this commitment is not just a personal commitment; it is the goal of a great nation."

Kravchuk, the son of a peasant, rose to be the No. 2 official in Ukraine's Communist Party and its chief of ideology. He was elected chairman of the Ukrainian parliament in July 1990.

He remained silent publicly when hard-liners ousted Gorbachev in the Aug. 18-21 coup, but later said he had quit the party in protest.

Kravchuk told reporters the Ukraine will not evade responsibility for its portion of the Soviet foreign debt, which he said the republic has calculated at 16.3 percent of the total. The Soviet foreign debt is reckoned at $81 billion.

Kravchuk also denied that the republic of 52 million people either has or is seeking control over Soviet nuclear weapons on its territory. He said he favors a system of joint control over the weapons in newly sovereign republics.

Federal army pulls out from pair of bases

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — Croats cheered and shouted "Go home, occupiers!" as the Serb-dominated army on Friday withdrew from a pair of bases in the secessionist republic.

In New York, United Nations officials said the world body's envoy, Cyrus Vance, would return to Yugoslavia this weekend for talks about the deployment of up to 10,000 U.N. peacekeepers.

The federal withdrawals came under the latest cease-fire accord, the 14th such truce but the first brokered by the United Nations. It has been violated dozens of times, but generally has held better than previous cease-fires.

Under it, the Croats agreed to lift a blockade of all federal army bases, imposed in September, and the federal army agreed to the withdrawals.

Compliance with the cease-fire terms are a precondition for the deployment of U.N. peacekeepers in the increasingly brutal 5-month-old war.

The withdrawals, if they continue to proceed smoothly, would mark an important step in reducing tensions between Croatia and the army.

A convoy of nearly 300 military vehicles and troops left the Marshal Tito barracks outside Zagreb on Friday morning, and the last 135 vehicles remaining at a missile base at Kerestinac left later, the Tanjug news agency said.

"Go home, occupiers!" Croats shouted as the vehicles rolled out of the Tito barracks, one of the largest federal bases in the republic, named for the man who founded Communist Yugoslavia in 1945.

The federal soldiers had endured almost three months of a tense blockade. During it, their guns were trained on nearby apartment blocks. Croatian snipers and federal soldiers occasionally exchanged fire, burning out several apartments.

Meanwhile, Croatian and federal army officials held talks with members of the International Committee of the Red Cross on exchanging political prisoners and establishing humanitarian aid corridors to the fallen city of Vukovar and the blockaded port of Dubrovnik, European Community spokesman Ed Koestal said.

Despite the truce, some fighting was reported on Croatia's central front and a highway in eastern Slavonia, and villages around the strategic city of Osijek in eastern Croatia were reported under sporadic artillery attack.

Not all the Croats rejoiced to see the federal troops depart Zagreb.

"As soon as they reach some safe place, they're going to shoot at us immediately," said Zlatko Skrabo, 33. He also said he thought the army presence had prevented federal air attacks on Zagreb.

But Slobodan Milosevic-Boba, a 32-year-old army lieutenant, was relieved to go.

"I'll never, never come back again. After 12 years of living in Zagreb, I left my house, sent the family to Belgrade ... The Croats are such nationalists," said Milosevic-Boba, whose wife is Croat.

United Nations officials said Vance, the special representative of the secretary-general, would leave New York Saturday night and arrive Sunday.

The Security Council paved the way Wednesday for the likely use of peacekeepers, recommending their swift deployment.

Youth-oriented condom targets nation's teen buyers

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The nation's first youth brand condom hits stores next year, targeting buyers as young as 14 years old. Critics say the Safe Play Condoms for Young Lovers could encourage teens to have sex.

"It's almost like putting a loaded gun in a child's hand," said Wendy Flint of the American Parents Association. "It's says to them, 'I might as well do it, it's something I should be doing by this age anyway.'"

But Barry Miller, vice president of marketing for Schmid Laboratories, which makes the condoms, said they only target sexually active teens.

"We're not promoting promiscuity among young people, but we recognize it takes place — we can't just stick our heads in the sand," Miller said.

The condoms, billed as the nation's first to specifically target youths, aren't different from the Ramses and Sheik brands the company also makes.

What's different about Safe Play is a planned marketing mix aimed at teens — a $3 price tag, compact six-condom package with neon graphics, free condom key chains or rub-off tattoo kits inside and advertising on MTV. Miller said a main focus is protection against AIDS.

"Everything we do is geared toward the sexually active teen — not the teen who is not having sex," Miller said. "Our message is: If you do choose to have sex — wear a condom.... It's about saving lives."

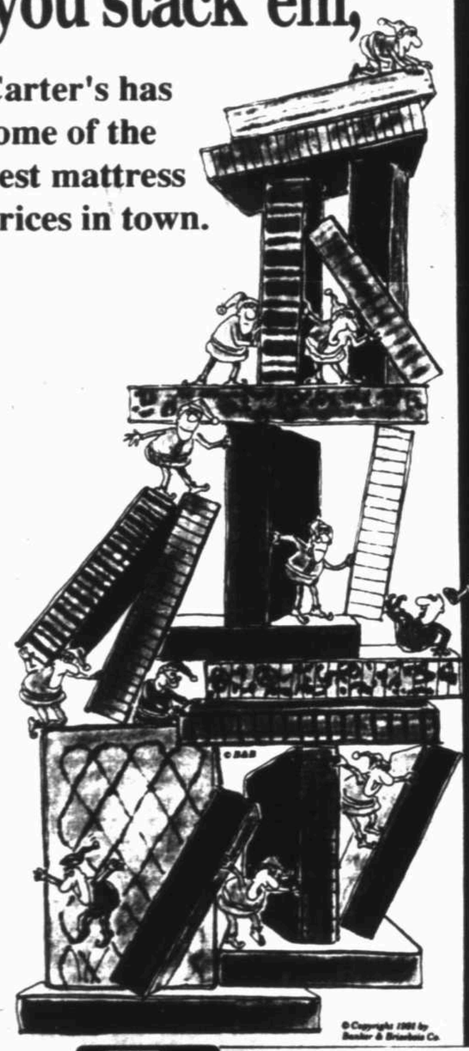

Critics say youth-oriented condoms aren't the answer to pregnancies and the spread of AIDS among teens.

"Despite all the talk about abstaining, those who do choose to abstain are made to feel like fools because they aren't practicing safe sex," said Gary Bauer, president of the Family Research Council, a conservative Washington, D.C., think tank.

Schmid introduced Safe Play Condoms for Young Lovers in England last year and already has a 3 percent market share there.

Political groups agree to begin constitutional talks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — White and black leaders overcame months of disagreement Friday to clear the way for full-scale negotiations on ending white minority rule.

In the biggest step yet toward giving the black majority the vote, representatives from 22 political groups agreed to begin talks Dec. 20 in Johannesburg on writing a new constitution.

"You can see with the smiles on our faces we are pleased it has finally taken off," said African National Congress Secretary-General Cyril Ramaphosa. "A lot of progress was made today."

The government's defense minister, Roelof Meyer, said: "There's no alternative to negotiations."

Efforts to begin constitutional talks have been stalled for months by disagreement between the government and the ANC, the largest black opposition group. The ANC accused the government of instigating widespread violence in black townships, a charge denied by the government.

A statement by two judges chosen to chair the preparatory talks Friday said representatives of the United Nations, Organization of African Unity, the Non-Aligned Movement, the European Community and the Commonwealth would be invited to attend next month's conference.

A partial agenda agreed to Friday included some volatile issues, such as installation of an interim government or transitional authority. It also called for discussion of the future of the country's four nominally independent black homelands. The ANC considers the homelands vestiges of apartheid and demands their re-incorporation into South Africa.

The participants also voted to ask groups boycotting Friday's preparatory meeting — such as pro-apartheid white groups — to attend next month's talks.

The talks were scheduled to resume Saturday with delegates discussing an agenda for the December conference. None of the heads of the three major groups — the government, the ANC and the Inkatha Freedom Party — attended Friday's session.

Pressure on the government to make progress increased Thursday when a pro-apartheid member of the Conservative Party won a by-election. The Conservatives, who are boycotting the talks, asserted they could defeat President F.W. de Klerk in a general election.

The lone note of discord Friday came from the black nationalist Pan Africanist Congress, which objected to every point agreed to and claimed the ANC and the government railroaded decisions through the meeting.

Efforts to begin constitutional talks have been stalled for months by disagreement between the government and the ANC, the largest black opposition group.

The group, which has marginal support, refused questions about whether it would continue to take part in the talks.

"The statement issued on behalf of the conference does not reflect our position at all," said the group's spokesman Barney Desai.

Nelson Mandela's ANC, the Pan Africanist Congress and several other small black groups agreed last month to form an alliance in the negotiations, but even on the eve of Friday's talks new disputes arose.

Charging the ANC with "deceit and duplicity," the Pan Africanist Congress this week accused it of plotting secretly with the government to lead the country.

The government and ANC denied the allegations, which included claims the ANC would drop key demands that form the backbone of the black alliance. These include the election — on a one-person one-vote basis — of an assembly to draft a new constitution.

This is likely to be one of the most contentious issues, along with the black groups' demand for an interim government to guide the country through negotiations.

Japan introduces 'weird' products

TOKYO (AP) — Along with hi-tech goods like cellular telephones, Japan's hottest products this year include pantyhose that block out harmful sun rays and a hangover remedy called "Go For It, Mr. Liver!"

The potion, one of a number of fast-sellers aimed at Japan's heavy-drinking businessmen, more than doubled expected sales projections, according to an annual survey published by Japan's largest advertising agency.

Another top-selling item, a liquor-based cocktail called "Green Banana Fizz," probably caused some of the hangovers. Millions of bottles were imbibed this year, said Dentsu, Inc.

Hi-tech goods such as cellular telephones and personal facsimile machines also headed the list, said the agency.

Still, Japanese consumers were mainly driven by a love of nature, health awareness and individualism in their buying choices, said Dentsu.

"A consumerist bubble economy has burst and questions of value and an increased awareness in the environment are taking its place," Dentsu explained in a statement released with its sixth annual list this week.

That's great news for Kanebo Ltd., which Dentsu says sold 1.1 million pairs of pantyhose that block ultraviolet rays this year.

"Women are concerned about the destruction of the ozone layer and of harm from ultraviolet radiation," which is bad for skin and is believed to cause cancer, explained Kanebo spokesman Kyoji Shimada.

The company claims that the pantyhose, made of material soaked in ultraviolet-absorbing chemicals, can block up to 90 percent of the rays.

"Hangover-preventing" medicine-like beverages have also sold briskly, said Dentsu, noting that 60 percent of Japanese older than 20 drink alcohol and that almost 60 percent of them are men who drink daily.

Rebs try to slow Sherman

■ In order to advance to Class 5A Small School quarterfinals, Midland Lee must stop the speedy Sherman Bearcats.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

WICHITA FALLS — Speed kills, and if the Midland Lee Rebels want to continue their high flying Class 5A Small School playoff run, they better come up with one fine area speed trap here Saturday.

The Rebs (11-1) take on the speedy Sherman Bearcats (10-2) at 7 p.m. Saturday for the right to meet the Odessa Permian-Arlington Lamar winner next week, but both these teams must deal with this weekend first.

Sherman possesses all four of its state qualifying relay team from last spring with tailback Sterling Boyd, fullback Jerry Jordan, safety Andre Williams and back-up running back Dorian Roundtree. It's a fact that Sherman football coach John Outlaw says is by design.

"That's a given at Sherman High School," Outlaw says. "If you are going to play football for us, you're going to be on the track team. We feel the two go hand-in-hand.

"We like this team we have this year. This is the first time in school history that we have gotten past the second round of the playoffs."

Jordan leads the Bearcat attack with 1,268 yards rushing and 12 TDs. Boyd, who has been hobbled with a broken toe and groin pull all season, still has racked up 878 yards and nine touchdowns while Roundtree has 631 yards and another nine TDs. Quarterback Raymond Wright has completed only 35 of 108 passes for 702 yards and seven interceptions. However, Wright is averaging over 20 yards per completion.

Defensively, the Bearcats are a blend of speed and size. Williams is considered one of the best safties in the state. Nose guard Artez Parramore is a line unto himself at 6-foot-2 and 325 pounds. The defensive line averages 234 pounds per man.

"Sherman is big, strong and fast," said Lee coach Earl Miller. "I don't know how much more you could want on a team. This is pure speed they have and it concerns us. Permian burned us pretty good with the speed they had."

Playing on the artificial turf is another big concern for Lee because it only heightens the Sherman speed factor. But Lee took Thanksgiving Day to practice at Odessa's Ratliff Stadium to get the team used to the turf.

Red Devils stay alive, Bearkats fall 36-29

Rankin dismisses Wheeler, 10-0

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

LUBBOCK — Just like land owners from Rankin to Wheeler, the Red Devils and the Mustangs spent Friday's early moments exchanging real estate.

But as the wind died, the Rankin Red Devils came to life. Rankin, behind Kirk Kennedy's 14-yard touchdown run and 33-yard field goal, foreclosed on Wheeler with a 10-0 triumph in the regional round of the Class A football playoffs at Lowery Field.

The fourth-ranked Red Devils earned their second straight trip to the state quarterfinals with the win.

The District 8-A champion Red Devils will meet Memphis, a 49-13 winner over O'Donnell, next weekend. The time and site of the quarterfinal match-up will be determined sometime today.

Wheeler, ninth-ranked and also seeking a repeat trip to the quarters, dropped out of the hunt and finished the season with an 11-2 record.

"We knew it would be tough," said Rankin coach Troy Kennedy, whose Red Devils moved to 11-1 for the season. "And that's exactly what it was."

Nobody knows that better than the

No. 1 Valley Mills drops Garden City

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Correspondent

ABILENE — Like two gunfighters from the Old West, the Garden City Bearkats and the Valley Mills Eagles met in Abilene Friday afternoon for the right to advance in the Class A playoffs.

Though the setting was Shotwell Stadium and not the OK Corral, the drama was just as tense as No. 1-ranked Valley Mills got the lowdown on 5th-ranked Garden City, 36-29 in the Class A Region II semifinal.

This game had more momentum swings than a wound-up metronome. Valley Mills used a 68-yard touchdown run from scrimmage and an 86-yard punt return for a 14-0 first quarter lead.

On the spectacular return, Donnie Sadler of the Eagles was almost trapped near the Bearkat sideline, but he eluded Garden City tacklers by juking his way towards the other sideline, picking up his blockers and racing into the end zone.

"I still don't believe what he did," said Valley Mills coach Allen West. "Even when I look at the film I still won't believe it."

But the play made believers of the

The Aggies won the title for the 16th time and went unbeaten in the conference for the first time since 1956.

The "other Wilson" landed in Wayne's World on Friday.

Midland Lee junior David Wilson stepped out of the shadows with a game-high 24 points in the Rebels' 82-62 win over the Big Spring Steers in non-district high school basketball action Friday at the Lee gym.

Wilson, a 6-2 junior, had been overshadowed by more experienced teammates such as Wayne Wilson and Martin Lattibeaudiere in the Rebs' first three games.

A 15-point second quarter on Friday changed that.

David Wilson was perfect on three two-point field goals and three three-pointers in the second eight minutes — after a scoreless first quarter.

"Instead of concentrating on it, I just shot the ball," David Wilson said.

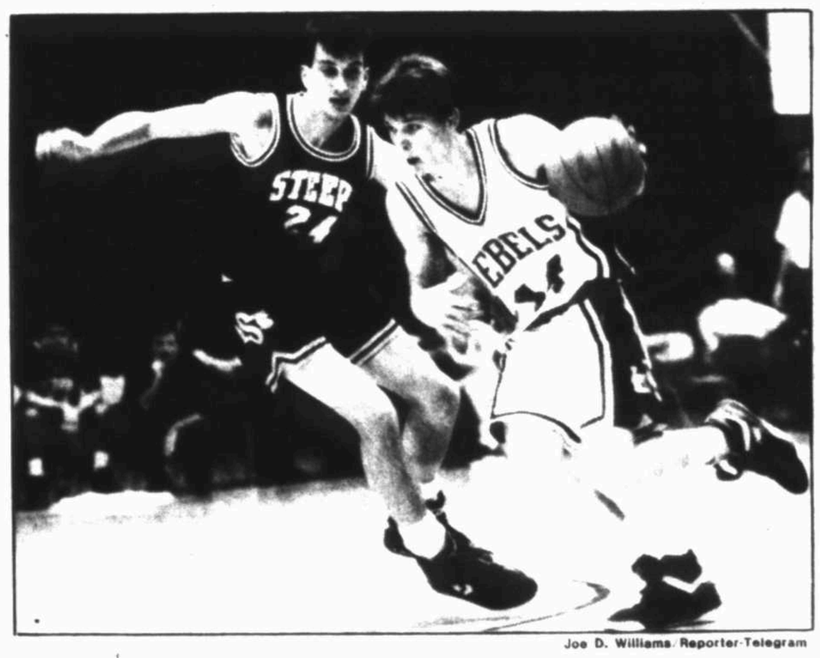

The Wilsons are not related.

Lee coach Jon House knew all along that the junior was able.

"We needed for him to step forward, and play like he's capable of doing," House said.

Lee, 3-1, led 19-17 at the end of the first quarter, and Big Spring, 1-3, kept pace for most of the second even with Steer starters on the bench for several minutes after coach Tommy Washing-

Chaps fall to Connors

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — A last second, game-saving play failed to work in reality as well as it did on paper for Midland College Friday night as the Chaps fell to the Connors State Cowboys 80-79 in the Taco Villa Classic at the Odessa College Sports Center.

With three seconds left, sophomore guard Chris McKinney took an inbounds pass from Terrance Rone at mid-court, turned and lobbed in the direction of Kelon Haynie. The ball, however, didn't make it to Haynie and time ran short on the Chaps in a see-saw battle that saw 15 ties — nine in the second half — and 10 lead changes.

"We called a play and they didn't run it," MC head coach Steve Green said of the game-ending play afterward.

MC, known for its high octane offense, was averaging 100.2 points per game entering Friday night's contest, but failed to crack the 80 mark for the first time in 11 games this season.

Bearkats as they once again trailed early in the game for the second week in a row.

And for the second consecutive week, the Bearkats kept their composure to mount a comeback in the second quarter.

With Valley Mills staring at another touchdown at the Garden City four, the Bearkats' defense forced a fumble and recovered the ball at its own two.

Garden City then went on its most impressive drive of the day as it marched 98 yards on six plays. Quarterback Shae Scott finished off the drive with a 37-yard TD pass to Mario Aguilar with 8:35 left in the half.

On the next Valley Mills possession, Andy Lopez picked off a Manuel Arispe pass at the VM 49 and returned it to the Eagles' 10.

Garden City wasted no time as James Soles got the call and busted 10 yards to tie the game at 14-14.

With momentum now on the Bearkats' side, they snuffed out a Valley Mills fake punt. However, the pendulum swung the other way when then Eagles recovered a Bearkat fumble at the GC 27.

Three plays later, Stephen Sadler, Donnie's brother, romped 22 yards for a 21-14 lead. The Eagles added another score before the half as Stephen Sadler went in from 16 yards to culminate a two-play, 41-yard scoring march.

Bearkats coach Sam Scott, however, had confidence that his team would come back again.

"Our kids have a lot of heart, they never gave up and they felt they could still win this game," he said.

Coach West, on the other hand, was not happy with his team's first half performance.

"We should have been up 37-0 and breezing, instead we we're making the mistakes and keeping them in the game."

West probably wanted to take his team back east when the Bearkats opened the third quarter with a three-play, 64-yard scoring drive that saw Manuel Aguilar score on an eight-yard reverse and trimmed the score to 29-22.

Things didn't get much better for the Eagles as a three-yard punt gave Garden City excellent field position at the Valley Mills 49.

Six plays into the drive, Soles used his speed and raced 36 yards virtually untouched with 6:25 left in the third period.

While not electing to go for the two-point conversion, the Bearkats settled for the PAT and a 29-29 tie.

After the game, coach Scott said the decision to tie the game was an easy one. "We still had a quarter and a half of football to play. Our offense was rolling and the defense was doing its job. I would go the same say if I had to do it over again."

With the game tied and just over six minutes left in the quarter, Valley Mills led in penetrations, 5-4 and it was this statistic that the Eagles began to focus on.

They began their last drive of the quarter at their 22. Fourteen plays later they were at the Garden City 27 as the quarter ended. On the drive, Stephen Sadler got most of the calls, finishing with 224 rushing yards in the game.

The Garden City defense toughened on a fourth-and-one at its 24 and Valley Mills turned the ball over on downs.

The GC offense, however, could not move the ball. The Eagles then setup for their insurance penetration. On the strength of Stephen Sadler's legs, Valley Mills moved the ball from its 20 to the Bearkats 18 as it used up nearly seven minutes of the fourth quarter, but now led in penetrations, 6-4.

Again contemplating a fourth-down situation, West opted for the field goal. But the attempted 35-yard boot sailed wide right, and gave the Bearkats new life with 3:43 left to play.

"If we get the field goal it's great, if we don't we're still in the drivers seat," said West.

The drivers seat became a cushion when a Bearkats pass was picked off at the Valley Mills 40. Garden City did get one more shot at the end zone, but another interception sealed its fate.

The Bearkats finish the season at 10-2. The next oppoenent for Valley Mills, 12-0, has yet to be decided.

Coach Scott was disappointed over the loss, but he commented on the great season his team had.

"When I came here four years ago, I told the seniors who were eighth-graders then, that I believed one day they would be the best team in the state of Texas. Today I still believe that and I hope they do too."

RANKIN: INTs hurt Mustangs

(From 1B)

Rankin quarterback. Kirk Kennedy burst 14 yards up the middle on a quarterback draw with 51 ticks left in the first half to cap the game's initial penetration of either 20-yard line.

And his 33-yard field goal put Rankin ahead 10-0 with 6:25 left in the third quarter. The scoring kick was set up by Justin Preskey's interception of Wheeler quarterback Jason Beers at the Mustang 34-yard line just three plays into the second half.

Then came near tragedy.

After Kennedy's three-point boot, Wheeler whirled off the next 17 plays to cross the 50-yard line — and then the Rankin 20 — for the first time all night.

The 17th of those plays saw Mustang halfback Mack Marshall cross the goal line on a 17-yard counter run with 10:46 showing on the game clock. But when the dust had cleared, a yellow flag and Kirk Kennedy both lay motionless on the field.

"I was clipped, that's all I know," said Kennedy, also the Red Devils' safety. "I didn't know if they called it or not."

They did.

After a lengthy pause in the action, Kennedy was helped off the field and toward a stretcher. But instead of climbing aboard, the senior field general limped to the bench. From there he could watch as officials waved off Marshall's TD and marched off 15 yards for the clip.

Two plays later Jo Jo Guerra made his first of two fourth-quarter interceptions and Rankin kept the shutout going.

"I just tried to suck it up and help the team. I just covered my zone and didn't let anybody get behind me," said Guerra, who replaced Kennedy at QB for the next offensive series.

When that series stalled at the Rankin 33-yard line, Kennedy lifted himself off the bench and came on to punt.

"I was going to stay in there no matter what," Kirk said. "A team can come back just like that."

He got of the punt just before three Mustangs buried him.

A roughing-the-punter penalty kept the drive alive, giving the Red Devils a first down at their own 49-yard line with 6:45 left in the game.

"He made a beautiful punt, it was a great punt," Coach Kennedy said. "But the clip and the roughing the kicker penalty were two big plays that kept us in it and them (Mustangs) out of it."

Neither team crossed the mid-field stripe in the scoreless first quarter, and Rankin did not near the 50 until Juan Bautista left it in his wake.

Bautista, playing for halfback Roy Abalos, who was injured only moments before, zipped 27 yards on a sweep to the left to set Rankin up at the Wheeler 48-yard line. Kennedy's TD run came eight plays later.

Rose's absence from HOF ballot conspicuous

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Thirty-six names appear on this year's baseball Hall of Fame ballot, none of which is Pete Rose.

Rose would have qualified for the ballot for the first time this year, meeting the requirement of five years' retirement as an active player.

But the Hall of Fame's board of directors voted in February to make any former players banned from the game ineligible for the ballot, and Rose was barred indefinitely for gambling in 1989.

The list was mailed Friday to more than 400 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America, who vote for the Hall of Fame.

Rose, who was manager of the Cincinnati Reds when he was banned from baseball, was convicted the following year of tax evasion and served five months in prison.

With an all-time record of 4,256 hits, Rose surely would have gone into the hall on the first ballot. Now, only one first-time eligible, Tom Seaver, is likely to earn that distinction this year.

Seaver, a 311-game winner with four major league clubs, is among 18 players eligible for the first time. He was a 20-game winner five times.

Bulldogs dominate Del Rio, go to 2-1 with 71-49 win

Staff Report

UVALDE — After taking a week off, Midland High's boys basketball team got back on the winning track in the Uvalde tournament here Friday, as the Bulldogs dominated Del Rio, 71-49.

MHS is now 2-1 for the season following its 65-55 loss to Amarillo High at the Chaparral Center last Friday.

The Bulldogs will be back in action at 10:30 a.m. here today, as they take on District 4-5A rival Odessa Permian. Regardless of a win or loss against the Panthers, MHS will then face host Uvalde at 6:30 p.m. today.

In Friday's victory, the Bulldogs' twin post game was what dealt the Rams the crushing blow. Andre Gill, a 6-8 junior, scored 14 points for MHS while Antwan Goodley, a 6-4 junior, added 13.

The outcome of the game seemed to be decided early, as MHS ended the first period on top 21-5 and cruised to a 38-19 halftime edge. By then end of the third quarter, the Bulldogs led 56-30 and were well on their way to their second win of the young season.

LEE: Henry's back for Rebs

(From 1B)

ton pulled a 5-for-5 switch in the final seconds of the first period.

The Steers even got within two at 34-32 on a medium-range jumper by Rod White with 1:42 left, but David Wilson canned a three with 1:29 left to keep the Steers at bay.

After the break, Wayne Wilson took over with 10 third-quarter points to help the Rebels put the game away. The crushing blow was an 8-0 run in 59 seconds toward the end of the quarter — on fast-break layups by both Wilsons.

House said senior point guard Keenan Henry helped trigger the Rebs' transition game in the second half.

"Keenan started for us last year, and having him back helps a lot," House said.

Big Spring got good inside play by backup center Jason LeGrande in the second half, but the Steers could get no closer than 13 in the final eight minutes.

"We haven't put a full game together yet," Washington said.

Senior standout Rod White exemplified the Steers' schizophrenia. White, who may be the best player in District 3-4A this season, scored 11 of his team-high 23 points in the first quarter, but went 1-for-6 from the field in the fourth.

Shane Jones added 12 points for the Steers.

Wayne Wilson and Lattibeaudiere had 17 and 16 points, respectively, for Lee.

The Rebels travel to Lubbock Dunbar on Tuesday.

In junior varsity action on Friday, Lee fought a late Big Spring challenge to post a 76-73 win. Caesar Brannon led the young Rebs with 15 points, while Daniel Salcedo added 12, and Michael Nunn and John Sullivan pitched in with 10 each.

Nebraska finally wins a big one

Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. — Nebraska coach Tom Osborne's team can win a big game!

Freshman I-back Calvin Jones ran 15 yards for a touchdown with 2:57 left, lifting No. 11 Nebraska over No. 19 Oklahoma 19-14 Friday and giving the Cornhuskers the Orange Bowl berth as Big Eight representative against No. 1 Miami.

"We got done what we needed to," Osborne said. "I'm proud of them. This is probably the most enjoyable team I've coached. This a team that pulled together. If they didn't have that attitude, we wouldn't win a game like this."

The Cornhuskers, who hadn't won a game against a Top 20 team since beating No. 19 Colorado in 1988, battled back from a 14-3 halftime deficit with its grind-it-out offense in the second half to finally win a big one. The Huskers had 159 yards rushing the second half against the nation's fifth-best rushing defense. The Sooners had given up only 89 yards per game in their previous 10 games this season.

"The thing that impressed me most was when our guys got the ball and stuffed it on them," Nebraska defensive coordinator Charlie McBride said. "They haven't had anybody do that to them in a couple of years. They got it stuffed on them and it wasn't fancy, either."

"They surprised me with how they controlled the football against our defense the second half," Oklahoma coach Gary Gibbs said. "They drove 80 yards for the winning touchdown against what we consider a fine Oklahoma defense."

The victory gave Osborne his 19th consecutive nine-win season (9-1-1) and gave the Huskers a share of the Big Eight title with No. 15 Colorado at 6-0-1. The Orange Bowl will take the Huskers on the basis of their higher national ranking.

Colorado goes to the Blockbuster Bowl to meet No. 8 Alabama and Oklahoma (8-3 overall, 5-2 in the Big Eight) plays No. 20 Virginia in the Gator Bowl.

The Huskers' victory was the 22nd time in the last 28 meetings between Oklahoma and Nebraska that the winner came from behind to win. The Huskers overcame a mistake-plagued first half, as its rushing attack, ranked No. 1 nationally, took charge in the second half.

With I-back Derek Brown carrying eight times for 42 yards, Nebraska drove 70 yards in 10 plays to open the third quarter, with quarterback Keithen McCant scrambling the final 5 yards for the score.

Nebraska tight end Johnny Mitchell, who set a school tight end record with seven catches for 137 yards in the game, made a 28-yard reception against double coverage to set up a 33-yard field goal by Byron Bennett, making it 14-13 with 12:20 left.

On the next possession, Osborne passed up a potential 36-yard field goal attempt and went for fourth-and-one at the Sooners' 19. Jones, a freshman, gained 4 yards. The carry also put Jones over the 100-yard mark, making him the first 100-yard rusher against Oklahoma in 13 games. Jones, who finished with 118 yards, then broke through the Sooners defense, which was fifth in the nation against the rush, to score on the next play.

"The odds of making the first down were a little better than kicking the field goal," Osborne said. "And if we made it, we could run some time off the clock and maybe score a touchdown. If it didn't work, we knew we'd be very unpopular people in Nebraska."

The victory sends the Huskers to the Orange Bowl for the third time against Miami.

luster off and given them the chance to say they kept us from Southwest Conference history."

The Aggies actually clinched the title a week earlier with a 65-6 victory over Southern Methodist, but Slocum asked officials to wait until after the Texas game to make the presentation.

After avenging a 28-27 loss to the Longhorns last year, there was nothing left to prevent the Aggies from celebrating.

"They played us hard, but they didn't give us any fear," punt returner-cornerback Kevin Smith said. "Both of their touchdowns came after turnovers. We put them in the position of having to drive 80 yards and they couldn't do it."

Smith broke open a tough defensive game in the third quarter with a 73-yard punt return for a touchdown and Greg Hill scored two second-half touchdowns, in the Aggies' final game before their Cotton Bowl meeting with No. 3 Florida State.

"Coach Slocum was mad at me for an earlier return and I thought he was looking for a new returner," Smith said. "I'm glad he left me in."

So was Slocum.

"Once again Kevin Smith made a big play on punt returns," Slocum said. "He's sure-handed and he's someone who's not going to make mistakes that will cost us."

The first half was a battle between Texas' defense, ranked No. 4 nationally, and the Aggies' defense, ranked No. 1.

The Aggies took a 10-7 halftime lead on a 19-yard interception return for a touchdown by linebacker Marcus Buckley on Texas' first offensive play of the game and a 26-yard field goal by Terry Venetoulias.

Boone Powell's 22-yard interception return to the Aggies' 20-yard line with 1:51 left in the first half set up a 2-yard touchdown run by Texas' Rodrick Walker.

The Aggies drove 80 yards following the third-quarter kickoff to Hill's 2-yard touchdown and a 17-7 lead.

Texas was forced to punt from its 22 and that's when Smith made his electrifying run. He fielded the punt, made a move to his right and sprinted for the end zone, putting the Aggies in command.

Oklahoma State nabs NIT title

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Oklahoma State can't defend the title it won with defense.

The 11th-ranked Cowboys (5-0) won the Preseason NIT on Friday night with a 78-71 victory over No. 18 Georgia Tech, another win predicated on the defensive end.

No. 24 Pittsburgh won the consolation game with a 91-87 victory over Texas. A team cannot be in the Preseason NIT in consecutive seasons.

Sean Sutton had 20 points and Byron Houston added 19 for Oklahoma State, which held a comfortable lead for the opening 25 minutes before going scoreless for 6:44 as the Yellow Jackets (3-1) cut a 52-36 deficit to four points with a 12-0 run.

Oklahoma State finally scored again with 8:13 left on a three-point play by Bryant Reeves.

Georgia Tech freshman Travis Best answered with a 3-pointer 16 seconds later. Houston, who had 34 points in the semifinal win over Pitt, which was decided with a big defensive run, then scored the Cowboys' next five points for a 60-53 lead with 6:35 left.

Georgia Tech was never closer than six the rest of the way. The last time was 64-58 with 4:55 left, and Sutton ended that threat with a three-point play on a driving scoop shot after running the 45-second shot clock down to five seconds.

Top 25

St. John's 75, UNC-Wilmington 57

NEW YORK — Rob Werdann, a 6-foot-11 center who hit his first seven shots, tied his career high with 21 points to lead eighth-ranked St. John's to a 75-57 victory over North Carolina-Wilmington in the opening round of the Joe Lapchick Memorial Tournament.

Malik Sealy added 20 points for the Redmen (2-0), who oppose Drexel in Saturday's title contest. The Dragons (1-1) advanced with a 70-64 overtime victory over St. Mary's (Calif.) in the first game of the doubleheader.

No. 15 Connecticut 79, Yale 55

HARTFORD, Conn. — Scott Burrell scored 20 points and Chris Smith added 19 as No. 15 Connecticut held off a rally by Yale midway through the second half and beat the Elis.

The victory was the 350th of coach Jim Calhoun's career and his 100th at Connecticut (2-0). Yale (2-1) nearly upset the Huskies last year using a slowdown game, but the smaller Elis couldn't slow the Huskies this year.

Smith and Burrell sparked an 11-point UConn run after Yale cut a 20-point lead to 56-48 with 7:25 to play on a 3-point shot by Damon Franklin.

Smith fed Rod Sellers for a layup, Brian Fair hit a 3-pointer, Burrell had a steal and dunk and Smith hit four free throws.

No. 24 Pitt downs Longhorns, 91-87

Associated Press

SWC

NEW YORK — Chris McNeal scored 23 points and grabbed 13 rebounds as No. 24 Pittsburgh slowed things down just enough Friday night to beat Texas 91-87 and take third place in the Preseason NIT.

No. 11 Oklahoma State (4-0) and No. 18 Georgia Tech (3-0) met for the championship later Friday night.

The Panthers (3-1) played at Texas' typical racehorse pace until they began to use more of the 45-second shot clock in the second half, especially on three key possessions in the final two minutes.

Texas (2-2) held the lead most of the way despite some horrible shooting, both from the outside and on shorter shots and even with offensive rebounds as the Longhorns managed 22 and shot 36-for-87 (41 percent).

Pitt took the lead for good at 82-81 with 2:52 to play on a drive by Gandhi Jordan.

Texas Christian 53, Iowa St. 52

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Ken Fiedler came on for an injured teammate to make a free throw with nine seconds to play, giving Texas Christian a 53-52 victory over Iowa State in the first round of the San Juan Shootout.

An odd call in the final seconds put TCU in the position to win the game.

Down 52-50 with 24 seconds remaining, TCU inbounded the ball. After crossing mid-court, guard Brent Atwater drove to the hoop to seek the game-tying basket.

As he went up for the shot he was fouled by ISU's Ron Bayless. But as Atwater's shot reached the backboard, it was knocked down by ISU's Loren Meyer.

Referee Carlos Tarrats ruled it goaltending, which tied the game and, coupled with the foul, gave TCU a chance for the three-point play to take the lead.

Gonzaga 77, Baylor 75

FRESNO, Calif. — Jarrod Davis scored 24 points, leading Gonzaga to a victory over Baylor in the opening game of the Coors Light Classic.

Davis hit two free throws with 52 seconds in the game left to break a 73-73 tie. After Baylor's David Wesley missed a short jump shot, Gonzaga (2-1) got the rebound and Jeff Brown hit two free throws with seven seconds left.

CHAPS: Shot percentages low

(From 1B)

Asked if MC's unusually low point total against Connors State was a result of the Cowboys' defensive execution and ability to control the tempo of the game, Green said, "I think we took us out of our offense."

MC did, in fact, hit just 37.5 percent of their shots from the field, and again struggled from the line, hitting just 58.5 percent of its free throws.

"We didn't play the first 30 minutes," Green said. "We just couldn't get their (the Chaps) attention, and when they finally looked up, they saw time was running out."

Although he failed to connect with the lob pass at game's end, McKinney single-handedly brought the Chaps back into the game in the late going. Down 77-74, the former San Diego State point guard swished a three-pointer to force a tie with 45 seconds left. On the next trip down the court after Connors failed to score, McKinney was fouled by Connors' Keylain Williams and proceeded to nail both ends of his free throws to put MC up 79-77.

Connors' Richard Johnson made his only three pointer of the game from 22 feet out to give the Cowboys the one-point lead they would hold with just four seconds left.

Connors' 7-1 post David Dean did the rebound work for Connors, hauling in 17 of his team's 39 on the night. He was also responsible for five blocked shots. Fellow post Anthony Battle fouled out with just under 5:00 left with 14 points. Williams' 17 points was high for Connors.

Midland's Charles Gentry led all scorers with 19.

Midland held a 34-29 lead at halftime, which again was unusually low.

The Chaps sputtered coming out in the second half, going 0-4 with two turnovers on their first four possessions. Dean had three rebounds during the opening minutes of the second half and Connors scored the first nine points to erase MC's lead and jump ahead 38-34.

In other men's games Friday at the Classic, OC defeated Lamar 88-79, and Ranger downed Panola 77-73. In women's action, OC came from behind to defeat Connors 78-76, while South Plains stopped Ranger 75-59.

MC plays Ranger today at 2:45 p.m. in the Classic's final day. Other men's games have Lamar meeting Panola at 11:15 a.m., and Odessa hosting Connors at 8 p.m.

REBELS: Turner likely QB

(From 1B)

Lee will also be battling the third round road block. Lee has not advanced past the third round in the past six years under Miller. However, Sherman has never gotten this far either.

"It's time we faced this thing about the third round and do something about it," Miller said. "This team has shown maturity this year in traveling with two trips to Amarillo and another one to Del Rio. I think they understand what is ahead of them."

If Miller is impressed with Sherman, Outlaw isn't exactly thrilled about playing against Lee.

"Lee looks like a locomotive with no caboose," Outlaw says. "Their offensive line is awesome. Their defense is solid as a rock. They have a great kicking game. In short, they have no major weaknesses that we can find.

"Of course, you get to this stage of the playoffs, you aren't going to find any teams with five losses left. Lee has won eleven games and that says enough to me, considering the district they are in."

Both teams say they are healthy for this time of year. That means no major injuries, but all teams are battered and bruised if they survive this long in the playoffs.

This is the ninth consecutive season for Lee in the playoffs and the fourth consecutive year for Sherman since Outlaw joined the Bearcats from Arkadelphia, Ark. The Bearcats lost their first two games of the year to Lake Highlands and Denison after starting the season with some unspecified team problems, but have now reeled off 10 consecutive victories.

Lee will again probably go with ever improving sophomore quarterback Courtney Turner, but the Lee defense may hold the key. The Lee "D" has given up on seven playoff points in two games. If that tempo is maintained, Lee might survive this dose of speed.

Survey finds computer stores offer pirated software

HOUSTON (AP) — More than half of 20 computer stores secretly surveyed in the Houston area use pirated software packages to clinch sales of personal computers that sometimes are worth less than the software, the Houston Chronicle reported Friday.

Locked into a battle in which the computers being sold are nearly identical and in which each sale turns on a profit of only $50 to $100, some retailers in the low-end IBM clone market turn to software piracy to provide the added value that will help make their deal the best, the newspaper reported.

"It's a big problem, a really big problem," said Ilene Rosenthal, counsel and director of litigation for The Software Publishers Association.

"The first lawsuit we filed, in March 1988, was against a California dealer ... and what they were doing was the very thing you're talking about: Load the stolen software into their machines and then sell the machines with the stolen software on them.

"A lot of times the people who buy the computers don't even know."

Software is the set of electronic instructions that runs computers and allows them to perform specific functions such as word processing or accounting.

The Software Publishers Association and Microsoft, a frequently victimized software publisher, said that the piracy problem is especially acute in Houston, one of the nation's most competitive computer markets.

Houston's telephone listings contain more than 600 phone numbers under the Computer Dealers heading.

Since 1988, the Software Publishers Association has filed 100 lawsuits on behalf of the 13 computer and software vendors it represents. All have settled out of court, including one in Houston.

The Chronicle said its reporter's inquiries focused almost entirely on the market for low-cost IBM clone computers — copies assembled with off-the-shelf parts — rather than the more sophisticated dealer networks for Apple, IBM and other top-name computers.

At each store the Chronicle visited, the reporter priced an identically configured computer system, and asked if the purchase included software. If the response was yes, the salesman was asked if the software was a legal, registered copy that included user manuals. A manual is the best indicator that software is legal.

Of the stores that admitted piracy, some limited their activities to Microsoft's DOS or Windows, basic operating systems. But others openly offered a wide range of software when asked what came with their computers.

"Officially, nothing. Unofficially, anything you want," said one salesman. His company, he said, usually copies a comprehensive "Windows package" on the units it ships. Such a package would be worth thousands of dollars.

Another company offered to provide a pirated copy of DOS, and after that let a customer make illicit copies of all the rest of the software on the premises, the newspaper said.

"We don't have time to copy all that stuff for everybody," the Chronicle quoted a salesman as saying. "Just get a bunch of blank diskettes and bring them back and take what you want."

The president of that company told the Chronicle that his company has a policy against piracy, but acknowledged that it occurs in the industry and might be proposed by an eager salesman.

"We remind them that this is policy and not good practice," he said. "First it's against federal law, and second it's just not fair to the software vendor. The motivation might be that the salesman is under commission and wanted to make a sale."

Daily Texan may not run Holocaust ad

AUSTIN (AP) — A member of the board that oversees the University of Texas student newspaper says a controversial advertisement that questions the Holocaust will probably not run in the paper.

Martin Gibson, UT journalism professor and a member of the Texas Student Publications Board, said the 11-member panel will probably change the Daily Texan's advertising policy to block the ad, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

"My guess is we won't run the ad. I sense that from the people I talked to on the board at the meeting," Gibson said.

Tuesday the board fell one vote short of overriding a review committee's decision to run the ad, but agreed to postpone its publication until the spring.

Gibson voted to run the ad, but he said revising board policy on ads at its Dec. 11 meeting may stop its publication.

"I don't think the board was sure where this thing came down," Gibson said. "We want to make sure we didn't censor someone for a political reason. This is a tough call."

The full-page ad had been requested by Bradley Smith, leader of the Committee for Open Debate on the Holocaust. Student Jewish leaders say the group is linked to anti-Semitic and white supremacist organizations.

The ad has been sent recently to student newspapers around the country. It reads, "The figure of 6 million Jewish deaths is an irresponsible exaggeration. No execution gas chambers existed in Europe which was under German control."

The ad has been rejected by student newspapers at Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. It has been accepted by Cornell, Duke and Michigan.

Gibson said the Daily Texan advertising policy excludes only sedition for political ads, but has a tougher standard for other ads.

High-speed rail foes organize

WESTPHALIA (AP) — Rural opposition to the proposed bullet train is growing as farmers and ranchers worry about the effects a high-speed rail will have on their jobs, families and life, a newspaper reported Friday.

Residents of this town about 100 miles northeast of Austin have formed a group opposing the proposed 200-mph train system, and have been gaining support in neighboring communities.

"When we got to looking at it, we realized that this is not good for Falls County and Westphalia. We definitely didn't want it here," County Commissioner Tony Hoelscher told the Austin American-Statesman.

"But the more we looked at these studies, we didn't think it would be good for Texas," he said.

Many residents here are concerned because the rail's route appears to run about 2,000 feet from the Church of the Visitation, a 100-year-old Catholic church that is the focal point of the community.

"You are baptized in this church, you go to church here all your life and when you die, you are buried out of this church," said Hoelscher. "It is the basis of our community. And if that train runs by here, it will shatter our way of life."

Robert Ryan, project director for the French-American consortium called Texas TGV which received the train franchise, said opposition is understandable, but premature.

Texas TGV plans to start building the $5.7 billion train system in 1995, with completion scheduled for 1999. As proposed, the train would link major cities in Texas.

"The alignment will most likely change from where it is now, so any assumption about where it will end up is purely and assumption at this point," Ryan said.

Japanese find pupils know WW II

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Japanese television network visiting Texas schools say have found American students more knowledgeable about Pearl Harbor than their Japanese counterparts.

A reporter and camera crew from the network TV Asahi spent Wednesday morning in a sixth grade social studies class at Page Middle School in San Antonio, recording a lesson on World War II.

The classroom scenes are for a weeklong series the Japanese station is scheduled to broadcast on U.S. attitudes about the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Dec. 7 will mark the 50th anniversary of that attack at Honolulu that thrust the United States into World War II.

The network is expected to show people in Japan next week that American children know more about Pearl Harbor than Japanese youngsters.

Page was selected as the site for the filming after the National Council of Social Studies referred the crew to Alfred Evans, a social studies teacher at the school since 1977. The military's prominent presence in San Antonio also made the city a logical choice, a television crew member said.

Before going to San Antonio, the four-person crew was in Austin, where they went to a public high school Tuesday and asked students what they knew about the sneak attack.

As was the case at Page, the New York-based crew came away impressed with students' knowledge of the event.

"We're finding that they're learning more than we thought they would," reporter Madoka Murakami said. "Over there (in Japan), they cover Pearl Harbor in three or four lines (of a textbook). Here, it's three or four pages."

U.S. classrooms also give a broader explanation of the events leading up to the deadly attack, making Japan appear less as an aggressor, Murakami said.

The emphasis in Japanese classrooms is instead on the U.S. atom bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, painting the United States as "the bad guy," she added.

While students were getting an intense lesson on Pearl Harbor, they also were learning a little about Japanese culture.

During breaks, they crowded around Murakami to ask her about various aspects of Japanese life, with most questions centering on schools, currency, clothes and hairstyles.

Habitat volunteers show up Saturday

By Christopher Evans
N.Y. Times News Service

FORT WORTH — They come to Stella Street each Saturday like clockwork, sometimes as many as 30 or 40 at once, to spend a few hours on an old house that might otherwise be rubble.

They are the Habitat people.

If they stick out, it's because most people who live in the Stella Street neighborhood are poor and African-American, and the Habitat people are mainly white and middle- to upper-middle-class.

Intruders. They don't live in the neighborhood even if they do live in Tarrant County.

They are a broad-based coalition of volunteers who represent Habitat for Humanity, an international "ecumenical Christian" organization that is one of the most visible entities nationally in what has been called a volunteer housing rehabilitation explosion.

And come the New Year, or soon thereafter, the house at 1009 Stella St. in Fort Worth will become home to a disabled man, his wife and their five grandchildren, who in turn are paying for it through labor and a no-interest mortgage.

"We saved this house from the wrecking ball, got it for $500 including closing costs," said Jim Hargroves, Stella Street site construction coordinator. "We only got enough money to start work on it about six months ago, even though we actually got the house a year and a half ago.

"It's 73 years old. What we've done is take a two-bedroom house with one bath and convert it into a three-bedroom with two baths that's a lot more livable, a lot safer, better insulated, a place where people can live for a long time."

The actual process has involved repairing the home's foundation and implementation of an energy-efficiency plan that included an attic fan and heating system, but no air conditioning. A dining room was taken out, a backyard deck and several closets were added. All wiring was replaced, as was most of the plumbing.

"The goal is a simple, decent home for somebody who doesn't have one," said Hargroves, the construction coordinator. "We hope someday to end substandard housing, but we also have a good time. And we learn.

"Rosalynn Carter supposedly does carpentry and brick work now," Hargroves said with a wry grin. "We'll work with people no matter how little they know about construction.

"Somebody once said we work with people from 5 to 85 but, heck, if you're 86 and need something to do, come on out."

Note: The word "we" doesn't adequately describe the multifarious group of people — not all Christians — who have renovated the Stella Street house and worked on at least three other Habitat houses in the Fort Worth area.

They include lawyers, an assistant district attorney, a banker, some church people, a chaplain, an osteopathic physician, a music director at a synagogue, a master gardener, a junior college heating and air conditioning class, an electrician's union, yuppies, ex-hippies and assorted flotsam from virtually every special interest group from the Young Republicans to Greenpeace.

Habitat for Humanity, of course, is not new. Founded in 1976 by Linda and Millard Fuller, the Americus, Ga.-based group was an outgrowth of the late Clarence Jordan's Koinonia Farm.

But while Koinonia was a Christian ministry aimed at subduing racism and poverty in the Americus area, the Fullers envisioned Habitat as being worldwide and primarily housing-oriented. Habitat is the same group that some years back former first family members Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter joined — and since then, numerous "name" entertainers have joined.

Agency loses count of mental complaints

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state official overseeing an investigation of alleged improper patient care at private psychiatric hospitals says her agency has fielded so many complaints that her staff can't keep a running total.

Sue Dillard, director of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation's Department of Standards and Quality Assurance, says she wishes her staff "had more hands and minds to work on this."

MHMR's Department of Standards and Quality Assurance investigates consumer complaints.

A flood of complaints about patient treatment at private psychiatric hospitals has been pouring into MHMR since hearings on alleged abuses began in July, officials say.

"This is just unprecedented. We have to handle it on a day-by-day basis. None of us has been working a normal 40-hour week," Ms. Dillard said.

She told the San Antonio Express-News that her staff is working overtime to tackle the workload.

Gov. Ann Richards has asked for a total by Monday on the number of complaints concerning private psychiatric hospitals. Ms. Dillard said her staff plans to have the tally by then.

"Our workload has increased by at least five or six times what it would be in a normal year," Ms. Dillard said.

Statewide hearings into private psychiatric care began July 3, following published reports across the state about discharge policies and billing procedures.

"This has been a pent-up issue, and now the dam has broken. People have not come forward before because being treated in a psychiatric hospital is not normally something one brags about," she said.

A separate MHMR division, the Office of Consumer Rights and Protection Services, investigates abuse and neglect complaints against hospitals, "and their complaints are rising at a similar level," Ms. Dillard said.

Her department normally has one investigator, Ben Marroquin, but has temporarily pulled in three staff members from other MHMR offices to help take and check out complaints, Ms. Dillard said.

Marroquin said his department has received complaints against psychiatric hospitals all over the state. The two most common allegations have been about improper discharge or transfer issues and inadequate services, he said.

"It's a matter of professional ethics. Doctors direct treatment, and by law they are supposed to decide when a patient should be admitted and discharged," Marroquin said.

Texans tell commission to approve 'caller ID'

FORT WORTH (AP) — About 20 Texas residents have written the Public Utility Commission asking for "caller ID," an instrument that plugs into a telephone and displays the originating phone numbers of incoming calls.

"In regards to caller ID telephone concept, (we have) been waiting for a two-year period for this to take place," Fort Worth truck driver Alan Copeland and his wife wrote in a letter to the PUC.

"We are extremely tired of all the junk coming into our telephone service. Harassment, obscene, 900, and computer junk et al," he wrote.

Southwestern Bell is still testing the market in Oklahoma, and it will be next year before officials begin deciding when to offer caller ID in Texas, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Friday.

Twenty states have caller ID services available for telephone customers. A similar service is available in Texas to those who use toll-free long-distance 800 numbers.

Meanwhile, the PUC is developing preliminary rules to deal with privacy issues surrounding caller ID, the newspaper said.

But before the PUC issues its rules, the agency is waiting on Federal Communications Commission rules.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

FAVORITE BIBLE QUOTATIONS OF OUR PRESIDENTS

WHEN A NEWLY-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES IS SWORN INTO OFFICE, HE TAKES THE OATH OF OFFICE WITH HIS HAND ON THE BIBLE. IT IS CUSTOMARY FOR THE BIBLE TO BE OPEN AT A PAGE OF THE NEW PRESIDENTS CHOOSING WHERE HE HAS SELECTED A VERSE OR QUOTATION—IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE HOW FITTING THESE QUOTATIONS ARE! FOR INSTANCE, RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, 19TH PRESIDENT (1877-1881) WAS ALMOST DEFEATED IN A HARD-FOUGHT AND VERY BITTER ELECTION, WINNING BY ONE ELECTORAL VOTE ONLY! HIS OPPONENTS CLAIMED FRAUD BUT THE ELECTORAL COMMISSION DECIDED IN HAYES FAVOR—LITTLE WONDER THAT HE PICKED THE FOLLOWING QUOTATION FROM THE BIBLE.... "THOU HAST THRUST SORE AT ME THAT I MIGHT FALL: BUT THE LORD HELPED ME."

PSALM 118:13

THEODORE (TEDDY) ROOSEVELT, OUR 26TH PRESIDENT (1901-1909) STARTED LIFE AS A SICKLY CHILD BUT EXERCISED VIGOROUSLY AS A BOY TO GAIN GREATER HEALTH AND, AS A YOUNG MAN, WENT OUT WEST TO BECOME A CATTLE RANCHER. THE ROBUST LIFE HE CHOSE WAS EXEMPLIFIED IN HIS CAREER, IN HIS MANNER OF SPEECH, AND CERTAINLY IN THE WAY HE LED HIS FAMOUS "ROUGH RIDERS" REGIMENT DURING THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR! AS A PRESIDENT, HE FOUGHT HARD AN BOISTEROUSLY AGAINST THE VESTED INTERESTS AND HUGE TRUSTS OF "WALL STREET". HIS ENTIRE LIFE-STYLE IS ECHOED IN HIS FAVORITE BIBLE QUOTATION....

"BUT BE YE DOERS OF THE WORD AND NOT HEARERS ONLY DECEIVING YOUR O'JN SELVES."
JAMES I:22

NEXT WEEK: WHO IS THE WOMAN WHOSE NAME APPEARS BUT ONCE AND ONCE ONLY, IN THE BIBLE — AND WHAT DID SHE DO?

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Special Advent events set

Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., has scheduled a series of special events during the Advent season.

A 'Craft Night' is set for Wednesday after the Wednesday Night Dinner. Those wishing to decorate a T-shirt, sweat shirt or tennis shoes are to bring the desired item or items and $2 to cover the cost of supplies.

Dinner is served at 5:15 to 6 p.m. The activity begins at 6:15 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling the church office, 682-2514.

Then, at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 8 a program of Christmas music will be presented by the adult handbell choir in the church sanctuary. Selections include Vivaldi's "Gloria," Courtney's "A Musicological Journey Through the Twelve Days of Christmas," "Adeste Fideles" and the quartet from "Amahl and the Night Visitors." Jane Debenport, Rod Haulenbeck, Ron Whittaker and Garth Powell will sing the quartet. Steve Spain will be at the organ.

Next up at the church is the "Warming of the Tree" Dec. 11 following the church dinner. Reservations are required for dinner only.

The Children's Choir will present a program on "Christmas Around the World," the Youth Choir will sing a collection of Christmas anthems and the Children's Handbell Choir will perform.

" 'The Warming denotes the giving of warm things as part of Trinity's Outreach to St. Andrews Mission," said a release from the church.

Those bringing gifts of socks, mittens, gloves, caps, blankets or other items are asked to wrap the items in clear plastic and label for size, age and sex of the recipient.

A chili supper and caroling party is planned for Dec. 13. Adults will be caroling at the homes of church members unable to get out at night. Reservations are required for supper and child care. For more information call the church office at 682-2514.

Throughout the month, during the Sunday School hour, 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., special guest speakers will tell about their work and life on the mission field. Speakers include the Rev. Bill Schlesinger on his Project Vida ministry to the poor of Central El Paso, Ray and Eddie Echols on Costa Rocan work trips sponsored by the Presbytery of Tres Rios and Ruth Moreau on her experiences as a child of missionaries in China.

All Advent programs will culminate in two worship services Christmas Eve. A 7:30 p.m. service designed for families will feature carols and candlelighting. Childcare will be provided for the service. Then, at 11:30 p.m., a worship service of communion and candlelighting is planned. Organist Steve Spain will present an organ recital beginning at 11 p.m.

Visitors are invited to all activities.

■ Church begins Advent season

St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., begins its Advent season Sunday with special morning and evening worship services, decorating of the church, a potluck supper and cake auction.

The focus of the 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. worship services will be the lighting of the first candle of the Advent wreath. At 5 p.m., the Hanging of the Greens worship service will be held in the sanctuary. Carols and readings will be used to remind us of Christian Christmas traditions.

In addition, families are invited to come and decorate the Sunday School rooms at 3 p.m. A covered-dish dinner will be held in the Fellowship Hall following the 5 p.m. service. Dinner will be followed by an auction of cakes made by the men of the church.

The public is invited to attend any of the activities.

■ Outreach Aglow to meet

The Midland Outreach Aglow will meet at the Royal Inn, 3601 W. Wall Ave., Tuesday.

A buffet is planned for 6:30 p.m. Cost is $6.50. The meeting will begin at 7:15 p.m.

The speaker is a surprise, said a release from the organization.

"You could be in for the surprise of your life, don't miss out on the excitement," the release said.

Aglow is a non-denominational group of women meeting together to minister to one

■ Church hosts drama troupe

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., is hosting the Covenant Players during the morning worship service Sunday.

The Covenant Players, an international drama troupe, will perform Advent vignettes and special music.

■ Rev. James Shupp to speak

The Rev. James Shupp, pastor of First Baptist Church, Allen, Okla., will be preaching at Wilshire Park Baptist Church, 800 S. Bentwood St., Sunday.

He will speak in the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services.

A former Midlander, Shupp graduated from Midland High in 1981. He is a son of Midlanders Barbara and Damon Shupp.

He is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, and Southwestern Seminary, Fort Worth, where he received a master of divinity degree. Shupp is currently working on his doctorate from the same seminary.

The public is invited to hear him speak.

■ Church hosts auction Friday

The Woman's Missionary Union of Calvary Baptist Church, 1001 S. Main St., will be hosting a Lottie Moon Christmas Auction for Foreign Missions at 7 p.m. Friday.

A quilt, hand-crafted items, pies, cakes and candy will be among the items auctioned. All proceeds will go to the offering for foreign missions.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Jim Ray Brown, invites the public to attend. For more information call the church, 682-8392.

■ Church to show program

The First Presidency of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints invites church members and the public to share a Christmas Devotional Sunday commemorating Christ's birth.

This special Christmas program originating from the tabernacle in Salt Lake City will be broadcast via satellite and can be viewed at the Gateway Chapel, 4805 Gateway, or the Tarleton Chapel, 2101 Tarleton, beginning at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The devotional will include a message from the First Presidency and music by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

■ Brunch honors new members

A brunch honoring new and prospective members of All Women of the Church at St. Mark's United Methodist Church is set for 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 14 at 2100 Neely Ave.

The executive committee is in charge of this event.

In addition, St. Mark's United Methodist Women are selling pecans again this year for $4.50 per pound.

Delivery is available for 25 pounds or more. Those interested are asked to call 684-4304 or St. Mark's UMC office, 683-3339.

■ Dates set for second seminar

The second installment of "How to use the Science of Mind," a four-part seminar, will be offered 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The Rev. Paul Nichols will facilitate the seminar.

Nichols

The seminar is the follow-up to "The Fusion of Science and Religion." It will continue on consecutive Wednesday nights in the Permian Church of Religious Science, 2311 Elizabeth.

Nichols said topics to be explored include "the function of faith in our lives, spiritual awareness, the law of raw mind in action and subjective thought patterns.

Each Wednesday session will last about one hour. A love offering will be a taken. For more information call 684-4230.

Readers choose Bible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bible was the overwhelming choice of American readers as the book that has made the biggest difference in their lives, according to a nationwide survey.

Ranked a distant second was the Ayn Rand novel, "Atlas Shrugged," followed by M. Scott Peck's "The Road Less Traveled," Harper Lee's "To Kill a Mockingbird" and "The Lord of the Rings" by J.R.R. Tolkien.

The Bible received 166 votes in the survey conducted earlier this year for the Book-of-the-Month Club and the Center for the Book at the Library of Congress. The Rand novel won 17 votes and the others received fewer votes.

They were followed by a three-way tie, with eight votes each for Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People" and the Book of Mormon.

Next was a five-way tie for Betty Friedan's "The Feminine Mystique;" "A Gift From the Sea" by Anne Morrow Lindbergh; Victor Frankl's "Man's Search for Meaning;" Gail Sheehy's "Passages," and "When Bad Things Happen to Good People" by Harold S. Kushner. Each won seven votes.

Copies of the survey were mailed during the first three months of 1991 to a random sample of 5,000 Book-of-the-Month Club subscribers. Of those, 2,032 completed the questionnaire and 778 cited one or more books that had influenced their lives.

Artists perform to share their faith

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — A group of musicians — including such celebrated stars as Met singers Jerome Hines and Myra Merritt — have banded together to perform as a sign of their commitment to the Christian faith.

What began as an idea in Patrick Kavanaugh's living-room prayer meeting in 1984 has grown — like the story of the faith of a mustard seed — into an organization of more than 500 musicians and dancers called the Christian Performing Artists' Fellowship.

The December performance of Handel's "Messiah" in Washington's Constitution Hall, represents the Fellowship's fourth and final presentation of the season. As always, the artists will perform for free and admission will be free.

Merritt, one of the soloists in the "Messiah," told her agent to turn down a request for a paid performance that night.

"I am really excited about being on stage with Christians who are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ," Merritt said. "Because we are there for the express purpose of exalting the gospel of Christ through the dancers, singers and instrumentalists, I think it will be a unique and fulfilling experience."

Merritt has been with the Metropolitan Opera for the last 12 years. In 1990, Glamour magazine named her as one of the outstanding women in classical music. In the world of opera, few have better credentials.

Kavanaugh continues to live in a state of wonder at what the 1984 prayer meeting has brought. He said three couples met to pray about their undefined desire to minister in the performing arts community.

"We felt God was calling us to have an impact for Christ in the world of the performing arts. We never dreamed it would grow to this extent."

And grown it has, not only in size but in prestige. With a smile, Kavanaugh recalled a conversation with a director of major opera company. The director wanted to know how Kavanaugh had managed to assemble such a notable cast.

"We just pray," Kavanaugh replied. As the director's jaw dropped, Kavanaugh said he could not muster the fortitude to tell him that the cast performed for free.

In its last major production, "Mefistofele," Hines and a Metropolitan Opera cast drove to Washington because the Fellowship didn't have money to pay their plane fares. Hines has sung at the Met for more than 40 seasons, earning a reputation as one of the world's foremost bass singers.

But even Kavanaugh was amazed that the 6-foot-7-inch Hines was prepared to sleep on Kavanaugh's living room couch to save money so the Fellowship could pay the rental fee for the Kennedy Center Concert Hall.

Hines summed up the Fellowship's aspirations in a statement that appeared in the program distributed at the "Mefistofele" concert:

"Although we certainly want to entertain you with the finest production possible, our desire is to also share with you the love that God so freely bestows upon us through His Son, Jesus Christ."

Christian rap group carries personal message

By Jennifer Scott
Associated Press

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Members of a San Angelo Christian rap group are relying on the power of music to deliver their message — a message that has a deep meaning for each of them.

"The words have the ability to change people's life," said group member Mike Taylor.

Taylor sings and plays a digital horn in Royal Priesthood, a group that originated in San Angelo. His fellow band members are vocalist James Hendon, bass guitarist Dale McClendon and keyboard player Ken Vetter.

A sample of the words Taylor refers to can be heard in one of the group's original songs, "This is the Day." The first few lines are:

"This is the day,
"Jesus is the way,
"You've heard it before,
"And now you're hearing it again,
"Because this is the way,
"To make it in.

The group's name, Royal Priesthood, was taken from the biblical passage of 1 Peter 2:9, which reads "But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should shew forth praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light."

The four group members all were attending Our Savior's Church, a charismatic, non-denominational church in San Angelo, when they got together by accident and decided to start performing. Church pastor Jack Eaton III initially helped bring the four members together and continues to support their efforts, they said.

Hendon and Taylor write most of the lyrics for the songs, while McClendon and Vetter develop the original music. Hendon, Taylor and McClendon are sergeants at Goodfellow Air Force Base. Formerly from San Angelo, Vetter recently moved to Dallas but continues to perform with the group.

Group members said that rather than dressing like a typical rap group with gold chains and caps turned backward, they perform in slacks and neckties to convey a positive image — one that is consistent with their message.

The group tries to convey that positive image not only in their dress, but also in their demeanor, McClendon said.

"We're identifying ourselves with other believers," he said.

Christian music and rapping may seem like an odd combination, but Hendon said that even people who don't normally like rap music have responded well to theirs.

"The response we've had is totally positive," Taylor said.

"All rap is not bad," Hendon said. "Ours is not typical," he said. "The thing that separates us from the typical rap group is that we rap God's words."

Hendon explained that it may be the rap music that initially attracts someone to their music, but the message is heard nonetheless.

"We use rap to meet people on their level," Hendon said.

"We come in the back door with our music, then they have to hear the words," Vetter said. He said the contemporary style of their music is also conducive to the type of lyrics they write.

"You can almost pick a scripture out of the Bible and put it to music," Vetter said.

Taylor said that rap provides a good medium for their style of music because the message is quick and rhythmic, it has a good beat and also has "punch."

Although the group has been inspired by other musicians, they don't necessarily agree with the music of many popular rappers. Even though some rap performers try to offer a positive message, it is confusing to young people when their lifestyles or actions conflict with that message, McClendon said.

Although the group has been performing together for less than a year, their efforts so far have been successful. However, the members feel strongly that their message is much more important than any success they may achieve.

"We love doing this," Taylor said. He said any success the group has is just a byproduct of what they are doing.

Nun wins Xavier University's basketball MVP award

By Kay Bartlett
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — She's been president of Trinity College in Washington, D.C., where she hobnobbed with senators and congressmen and helped host the pope when he visited the capital.

She graduated from college magna cum laude and then added a Ph.D, a law degree, and an MBA.

But of all her awards she is proudest of a plaque on her wall that names her as the Most Valuable Player on Xavier University's highly touted basketball team.

That's some accomplishment for a 59-year-old Roman Catholic nun who stands just 5-feet-5 and never has scored more than 7 points in a college basketball game.

Meet Sister Rose Ann Fleming, S.N.D. de N, a teaching order headquartered in Belgium.

Musketeer Coach Pete Gillen never dreamed he would one day make her the team's MVP when seven years ago she became academic adviser to the team.

"I thought she would be a fish out of water, but I was wrong," Gillen says. "Nobody's in the same ballpark with her.

"I was sure my guys would buffalo her. I didn't think she could handle it. Working with these inner-city kids was new to her.

"She got duped a few times and so did I, but these were kids who would lie like most people breathe. You can't fool her too often. She's pretty street-smart for a religious lady."

GILLEN HAD NOT given out the MVP award since he came to Xavier in 1985. The coach says it's against his philosophy.

"There's an old saying that the strength of the wolf is in the pack, so we try to keep the pack more or less together rather than create alpha wolves and beta wolves," he says.

Why the exception?

"She's the one person we can't lose," Gillen says. "We can lose a Byron Larkin, a Jamal Walker, a Tyrone Hill and somehow still be competitive, but if we lost her, we'd be hurting.

"She's irreplaceable. You can't get anyone to do what she does with her enthusiasm, her talent, her intelligence, her compassion."

Given Sister Fleming's ivory-tower background, one in which she proved to be a good fund-raiser, the job of academic adviser to athletes seems at first an odd choice. Odder yet, when Sister Rose Ann, as the players call her to her face, concedes her real concerns are First Amendment issues as they pertain to private schools. That's why she got her MBA and law degrees.

Sister Fleming was accepted at Georgetown Law School, but came to Xavier in 1982 because her father was ailing. She and her twin brother, a CPA with his own firm in their native Cincinnati, both wanted to be with him during his last years. Her mother died when she was a youngster.

GILLEN ALSO ADMIRES her energy and her persistence. For instance, one student was skipping classes and she knew it.

"She rang his phone 64 times and then hung up for five seconds," he says. "She called back and let it ring 65 more times. It was driving him crazy. He answered on the 129th ring."

The students then learned to take the phones off the hook.

So Sister Fleming, who gets up at 5 a.m. to jog three miles each day before attending morning Mass, simply switched strategy. She started banging on their doors.

"We're asking the impossible of her. She's in the world of presidents and governors and politicians and doctors and lawyers and we're asking her to walk in the world of student athletes, some of them inner-city kids with some pretty tough backgrounds. Not many people can wear hats in both worlds and be successful. She can."

Gillen was willing to take a risk to give Sister Fleming the authority she needs.

"She has benching power and I don't know of many other coaches who give that to academic advisers," Gillen says. "She's only had to use it a few times, but word spreads quickly.

"ONCE, IT WAS during a tournament. It was our eighth or ninth best player and she took him out for five or six games," he says. "That was in the beginning."

What if it had been the star?

Same rules, says Gillen. Doesn't that worry him about his own security?

"Sure," he says. "There are a lot of piranha fish in the Ohio River and if I start losing games, that's where I'm going. But Sister Fleming can't work if she's just got bark. She needs bite."

One superstar, who apparently did not write term papers or take tests in high school, expected the same perks at Xavier. He did nothing about a major paper for an introduction to philosophy class. When the paper was due, the team was playing and he simply ignored it. But he didn't reckon with Sister Fleming.

She announced to the startled player, just under 7 feet tall, that he, indeed, was going to do the work. Sister Fleming, who wears street clothes except for a large cross on a chain around her neck, dragged him off to the library and called in the resource librarian.

"This player was really very resistant to having to do any kind of intellectual work to get what was necessary to get the grade," she

Hairdresser has waiting list a year long

By Dana Kennedy
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — High above Fifth Avenue, in an enormous beauty salon designed like a Venetian palazzo, a Cuban-born charmer with the face of a movie star and the body of a steelworker is fast becoming the hottest hairdresser in America.

He goes only by his first name, Oribe (pronounced OR-BAY), and women wait up to a year to pay him $250 to cut their hair. His high-profile clients include supermodels Cindy Crawford and Linda Evangelista, actresses Demi Moore and Meryl Streep and tennis champion Monica Seles.

Oribe opened his $2 million salon at Elizabeth Arden this month. Everything, from the tiny bows on the soft pink-lit rococo mirrors, to the elaborate fresco behind the reception desk, was designed by Oribe and his close friend, a designer who died just before the 10th-floor salon opened.

"We wanted to get rid of the unisex idea and bring back the salons of the 1940s where women could go and really feel glamorous and beautiful," Oribe said in between appointments this week.

Given the sumptuous surroundings and impressive clientele, one would expect the proprietor to adopt airs as well. But Oribe, whose parents fled Havana when he was 6 and moved to Charlotte, N.C., is as pretentious as a plumber.

He dropped out of high school and quit beauty school three times before graduating. He came to New York to be an actor but found work at several salons instead. Oribe's big break came a few years ago when he cut the hair of GQ magazine models.

"I look around sometimes and think, here I am on Fifth Avenue, at Arden," said Oribe, who shed his last name, Canales, as he gained fame. "But I'm still the same person. I'm not even sure how I got here. I'm ambitious but a lot of it was timing and luck too."

More than luck has rocketed the 35-year-old stylist past such rivals as Kenneth, long THE stylist for older New York society like Jacqueline Onassis, and Frederic Fekkai, who works at Bergdorf Goodman down the street.

Oribe builds loyalty by tailoring each style to the client — scorning what he calls "factory" cuts — and spending as much time as it takes to get the look just right. His personal manner also helps.

He's warm and flirtatious, but keeps a slight distance — a mix that works well with high-maintenance types such as Evangelista, Christy Turlington and Naomi Campbell, the modeling trio that Evangelista once said "won't wake up for less than $10,000 a day."

"They're nice girls but they can be tough on people," he said.

Oribe recalled one fashion show in Milan, Italy, where Evangelista became incensed that Oribe had given a lesser model a cut like hers. She put her head under the faucet and threatened to soak it unless Oribe gave the other model a different style. He did.

"Linda's obsessed with herself," Oribe said pleasantly. "Christy doesn't care that much at all. She has this incredible face and she doesn't really care. Naomi can be tough too. But I've known these girls since they were babies. They only give you a hard time if they don't know you well."

Oribe appears equally at ease with lesser-known clients.

After Seles left Tuesday, Oribe greeted a less famous but equally wealthy woman with a smile that could melt brick, then ran his fingers through her long hair.

"I try to find the sexual aspect of their hair — and their personality," said Oribe. "I think 'Movie Star' always."

Sweet-talking man catches fox

AUSTIN (AP) — A runaway arctic fox named Max has been recaptured by Wildlife Rescue workers, who hope the 6-month-old rascal's next journey will be to Canada or Alaska.

The snow-white fox escaped from Wildlife Rescue handlers a week ago.

Sharon Schermerhorn, a member of the group that works to rehabilitate injured or orphaned wild animals, said she got a call around 4 a.m. Monday from a woman who spotted the fox in central Austin.

Ms. Schermerhorn said she cornered the animal and kept her car headlights on it. Her husband, Phillip, talked to the fox for about 40 minutes before grabbing it.

"He was sweet-talking him . . . and mentally swearing," Ms. Schermerhorn said.

She said a college student bought the fox from a Houston dealer in September and recently gave it to Wildlife Rescue to return it to its native habitat.

Wildlife Rescue is looking for someone in Alaska or Canada to take the fox, in the hope that the animal eventually can be returned to the wild.

Churchill's famous gray Homburg hat sells for $11,750

LONDON (AP) — Winston Churchill's famous Homburg hat with his initials embossed in gold was sold for 6,600 pounds ($11,750).

Christie's auction house said the buyer did not want to be identified. It said the hat had been expected to go for an estimated 5,000 pounds ($8,900).

Britain's wartime prime minister wore the hat during state visits and other formal occasions. Called Homburg after the place in Prussia where it originated, it is a felt hat with a crown dented from front to back and a stiffened brim turned up slightly at the sides.

Pepsi considers clear version of its soda

NEW YORK (AP) — Roses are red, violets are blue and colas are brown.

Or are they?

Pepsi-Cola Co. confirmed Monday it is considering whether to market a clear, colorless version of its flagship soft drink, brown-tinted Pepsi.

Industry analysts had a mixed reaction.

Some said it could provide a spark to a slow-growing segment of the $46 billion annual soft drink industry. But others said they doubted the proposal would make it out of the Pepsi research labs.

Pepsi spokesman Andrew Giangola said the idea was only "one of several projects we are working on" and added the company is "not ready to go to market or discuss any details about it."

His comments came in response to a report Monday in The Wall Street Journal that Pepsi was developing a clear version of Pepsi that could be sold side-by-side with the regular brand. Pepsi is the nation's second best selling soft drink, after Coca-Cola Classic.

The report said the colorless cola could be on the market as early as next spring if Pepsi decides to proceed with it. It said colorless versions of other soft drink flavors are also under consideration.

Industry analysts said a new variation of Pepsi could create some excitement among consumers and get Pepsi more space on grocery shelves.

"One of the ways to excite a category is to come out with a new variation in the category," said Jesse Meyers, publisher of Beverage Digest.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A deteriorating relationship will soon end. A happier, more rewarding alliance is ahead. Focus on expanding your circle of friends and business contacts in early 1992. A change of lifestyle proves very beneficial next spring. By summer, you find the strength to do something you have been postponing. Look into an intriguing employment offer early next fall. Travel will enhance romance as Thanksgiving of 1992 approaches.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: correspondent Peter Arnett, actor Richard Crenna, music producer Dick Clark, actor Robert Guillaume.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Twins enjoy especially good luck this weekend. Get in touch with loved ones living overseas. Sports could be the focus of a domestic argument. Seek a compromise.

TAURUS (April 20-may 20): Hitting the open road could be a great idea if you have the extra time and money. Outdoor activities prove invigorating for those in good shape. Be careful not to overdo it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are entering a very productive period. Those who stay close to home will get better results than those who travel. Keep track of your expenditures and you will find new ways to save.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do whatever you can to repair a personal relationship that has been torn by conflict. A phone call brings good news. An old friend is eager to see you again. Make a date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get a glimpse of the future when you help a loyal associate solve a problem. A book or newspaper article provides valuable information. You may want to contact its author. Do so!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Try to foresee all possible threats to your status or property and take protective measures. It pays to be alert. Play tennis or volleyball for exercise. A daily walk would also be good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It is nice to be alone now and then in order to catch up on your rest or neglected chores. Certain household improvements are overdue. Take immediate action. Socialize this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You find that a family meeting is the right forum for airing a beef. Avoid saying anything you might regret later on. A last-minute invitation could lead to romance. Be discreet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Have faith in yourself and others will follow where you lead. Concentrate on developing untapped talents. A step-by-step plan is essential if you are to reach a long-sought financial goal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A delayed check or gift finally arrives. The future looks much brighter. A child tells an interesting story. Be smart enough to grasp its meaning. Influential friends prove very helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A project involving children will prove richly rewarding. A puzzle is solved when you open up new lines of communication. Romance could have you on an emotional roller-coaster.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Ask practical questions about a prospective partner before making any long-term decisions. A family member relies on your honesty. Lay any financial problems on the table.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are curious, persistent and questioning. Be patient with these budding scholars. Their keen insights make these Sagittarians good detectives or journalists. A strong interest in international affairs could also make them world-class travelers. Outgoing and openminded, they will have good friends from all walks of life. They are slow to judge and quick to understand.

One from old, one from new headline 'Star Trek' event

INDIANAPOLIS — Actors Nichelle Nichols and John De Lancie are the guests at this year's "Star Trek" convention, which celebrates the 25th anniversary of the television series.

Nearly 600 Trekkies purchased advance tickets to the fourth annual Starbase Indy convention. The three-day gathering began Friday.

Nichols

Nichols played Lt. Cmdr. Uhura in the original series. De Lancie plays Q from the current "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

The original show ran on NBC from 1966 to 1969, but didn't enjoy big success until the 1970s, when it was shown in sydicated reruns.

Mike Morey, 37, organizer of the convention, called the program "the only show on TV that has ever said you can have a happy ending for this planet. The shows are really one-hour morality plays set in a science fiction background."

This year's convention is dedicated to Gene Roddenberry, the show's creator, who died this fall.

• • •

MALIBU, Calif. — Actor Lee Majors, television's "Six Million Dollar Man," has sold his beach home for $4 million — cash.

"He was asking $5 million, but this was an extraordinary cash deal," said Mike Silverman, whose Beverly Hills-based real estate firm handled the sale. Other terms weren't disclosed.

Majors

Silverman said Wednesday the buyer was a supermarket chain heiress, but he wouldn't identify her.

The rustic home on the celebrity-soaked sand was decorated by Stephen Chase. Burgess Meredith, Larry Hagman, Don Rickles and Bob Newhart live in the neighborhood.

Majors, 51, who has moved to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., starred in the 1970s TV series "The Six Million Dollar Man" and the 1980s series "The Fall Guy."

• • •

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Sandi Patti and a host of other gospel music stars are joining in this year's "Young Messiah Tour."

In its second year, the tour is includes renditions of Christmas carols and hymns and an updated version of Handel's "Messiah."

The first concert was scheduled for Friday in Chicago, with 12 other stops before the tour concludes Dec. 15 in Oklahoma City. Advance ticket sales have promoters projecting total attendance of more than 200,000.

About 160,000 people attended concerts in 10 cities last year.

The cast this year includes Patti, who has won five Grammy awards, as well as Steven Curtis Chapman, Carman, Larnelle Harris, Sheila Walsh, Wayne Watson, the Bill Gaither Trio and Vocal Band, Michael English, and Dick and Melodie Tunney.

• • •

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Kyle Secor, who played a hit man in the film "Delusion," has been picked to portray a polygamist convicted of killing a lawman in a 1988 shootout.

The incident began after Addam Swapp bombed a Mormon chapel near his family farm at Marion. The family barricaded themselves in their home, keeping police at bay for 13 days. The siege ended in an exchange of gunfire during which Lt. Fred House, a Corrections officer, was killed.

Actor Ed Begley Jr., of "St. Elsewhere" fame, plays House.

"In The Line of Duty: Standoff at Marion," will begin filming in Utah next week. It is scheduled to air on NBC in mid-February.

• • •

WICKENBURG, Ariz. (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle got away from Congress and into the kitchen this week, helping to serve a Thanksgiving dinner at a local church.

Quayle, his wife, Marilyn, and their three children, Tucker, 17, Ben, 15, and Corinne, 13, took time out from a short vacation to serve turkey and the trimmings to about 100 people at First Presbyterian Church on Thursday.

"It's nice to see the bigwigs come down and share with the people," said diner Mary Creegan. "It reminds them they're just like everybody else."

• • •

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — The people who played actor Jon Voight's students in the movie "Conrack" 18 years ago said they weren't surprised to learn he thought it was time for a reunion.

"He really cared about us," said Margaret Perry Collier, now a hospital administrator in Augusta. "Every day on the set, he showed us in his interactions that he cared."

The group got together Thursday for a Thanksgiving reunion.

The 1973 film is about a young white teacher and his black students at a rural school on the South Carolina coast.

Federal Reserve approves two major bank mergers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve announced approval of two mega-bank mergers Friday, clearing an obstacle to the creation of what most likely will become the nation's third- and fourth-largest banks.

New York-based Chemical Banking Corp. won permission to acquire its Park Avenue rival, Manufacturers Hanover Corp., and form a new institution, with $135 billion in assets. It will retain Chemical's name.

Meanwhile, NCNB Corp. of Charlotte, N.C., and C&S-Sovran Corp. of Atlanta and Norfolk, Va., got a go-ahead to combine their $118 billion in assets under the name of NationsBank.

The Chemical merger still must be approved formally by the Justice Department's antitrust division and by state regulators in New York, New Jersey and Texas, where Chemical conducts business.

The Federal Reserve, however, said in its approval order that the Justice Department has "concluded that consummation of the transaction would not have a significantly adverse effect on competition in any relevant market."

Justice Department and state approvals also are pending for the new NationsBank, which would become the largest financial institution in the South with operations in 10 states and the District of Columbia.

Shareholders of all four holding companies approved the two mergers on Nov. 1.

For now, the new banks would be exceeded in size only by Citicorp, the country's largest banking company with more than $200 billion in assets. But a pending merger, which has not yet received the Federal Reserve's blessing, would create the second largest bank holding company by combining BankAmerica Corp. and Security Pacific Corp.

The Federal Reserve Board, which regulates bank holding companies, had considered the NationsBank and Chemical mergers at a closed meeting on Tuesday but withheld announcement of its decision until after the close of stock markets on Friday.

At a series of meetings in October, community activists told the Federal Reserve that C&S-Sovran and NCNB have been inattentive to the credit needs of minorities and low income neighborhoods.

The Fed said it was conditioning its approval of the NationsBank transaction on the commitment of the combined bank to address antitrust concerns by selling some of its offices in South Carolina and on its promise to comply with equal lending laws.

Kennedy Smith's lawyer prepares for war

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — To the lawyer leading William Kennedy Smith's defense team, the trial is a battle, and he the general chosen to craft a winning strategy.

Roy Black, 46, is known locally for his memory, quick wit and masterful questioning technique. Win or lose, the trial will propel him to the national spotlight.

The 46-year-old will be seen on national television nearly every day beginning Monday, when opening statements are set to begin. Circuit Judge Mary Lupo has said the trial will end by Dec. 20.

The Courtroom Television Network plans to broadcast virtually all of the case to as many as 6 million cable subscribers across the country. CNN plans extensive live coverage and regular updates, and the rest of the nation's news organizations also are riveted to the case.

Smith, 31-year-old nephew of U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, is charged with second-degree sexual battery and misdemeanor battery in the March 30 alleged assault at his family's Palm Beach estate. His attorneys have said they will attempt to show that the 30-year-old woman consented to sex, then became vengeful afterward and was seeking attention.

Black, who also teaches at the University of Miami, was chosen as Smith's lead attorney after a virtual star search of Florida's legal talent. He reportedly charged a flat fee of $250,000, giving up a potentially higher fee in a federal white-collar crime case in Miami.

To Black, being a lawyer is lesson in skill.

"Lawyers are one of the few professions that get to use strategy," he said. "The only people who really engage in strategy are generals in the time of war, chess players, other kinds of sports teams, lawyers."

Black said he faces a top match here. He referred to the U.S. commander in the Persian Gulf, Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, as he discussed the trial.

"The best technique in using strategy is not to let your opponent know what you're doing. So Gen. Schwarzkopf in the war against Iraq did everything he could do disguise his movements, the number of his troops, the actions he was going to take, used a lot of diversions and gambits and tactics.

"And the trial of a case is very similar," Black said.

Black became Smith's lead attorney in late June, joining fellow Miami attorney Mark Schnapp and replacing Washington attorneys Herbert "Jack" Miller and Randall Turk, who tried unsuccessfully to show that no charges should be filed.

Schnapp, a former federal prosecutor with little experience in state-court rape cases, had become Smith's attorney through senior partner Marvin Rosen, a close friend and political ally of Kennedy.

Black was best known for defending police officers in locally controversial cases. He gained acquittal in 1984 for police officer Luis Alvarez, whose shooting of a black youth sparked race riots, and in 1989 defended officer William Lozano, convicted of manslaughter in the another shooting that spurred riots.

Lozano's conviction was struck down last June by an appellate court, which ordered a new trial after agreeing with Black's arguments that the jury was influenced by fears an acquittal would cause more riots.

In a recent interview, Black praised lead prosecutor Moira Lasch as "an extremely worthy opponent."

Tax blunder leaves Tulsa fighting to recover lands

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A tax blunder by Tulsa city officials allowed residents to buy huge tracts of municipal property for a fraction of the land's assessed value. Now the city is fighting to get it all back.

Tulsa County officials said they repeatedly warned their counterparts in City Hall that the properties would be auctioned because of delinquent county property taxes or because the city failed to file deeds on the land.

The city contends that Oklahoma statutes prohibit it from paying such taxes and is suing in district court to reclaim the properties auctioned by the county.

County Treasurer John Cantrell said he sent notices to City Hall warning of the June 10 auction. Ron Payne, the city's finance director, said the county refused to take the land off the sale list until a solution could be worked out.

Payne said he believes it will cost millions to recover the land.

Real estate investor Larry Williamson paid $400 for a one-eighth-mile stretch of the city's main north-south thoroughfare.

Economy needs help, Dole says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Bob Dole said Friday that President Bush should "start right now" on a plan to resuscitate the economy and questioned Bush's endorsement of a tax cut plan pushed by House GOP Whip Newt Gingrich.

Dole

"With Congress out of town, it's all his," Dole said. "I think this is a real opportunity for President Bush because he is a single voice in Washington. He's got six weeks to demonstrate leadership."

In a telephone conference call with reporters, the Kansas Republican said he thought it would be a mistake for Bush to wait until his State of the Union address in late January to offer his ideas for solving the nation's economic problems.

Just a day after Bush reiterated that strategy, Dole urged the president to call congressional leaders to the White House soon and said he should "seek a consensus" on how to spur business growth and create jobs.

At the same time, Dole said he was puzzled by Bush's belated endorsement of Gingrich's plan, which the Georgia Republican advanced in the waning days of Congress.

Gingrich called for a sharp cut in the capital gains tax rate, from 28 percent to 20 percent, and a tax cut for people who make under $50,000 a year and pay interest on savings accounts. After he won Bush's endorsement, Gingrich pushed for Congress to return after a Thanksgiving recess and take up the proposals.

Official allows suspect to go home for dinner

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Call it the case of the roasting pan. Call it Thanksgiving cheer. Call it good timing.

Clarence Rowlin Rush Jr. was driving home after a quick trip to the store Thursday to buy a roasting pan when he was stopped on an outstanding warrant for driving without a license.

Rush, 35, told the officer he'd be in deep trouble if he didn't get the pan home in time to be put to use. So Officer R.J. Daigle tossed the pan into his squad car and drove it by Rush's home before taking him to the magistrate's office.

Daigle said he handed the pan to a young boy who answered Rush's door.

"I just told them he was with me, that we were going to the magistrate's office," Daigle said. "They were happy to get the pan."

Wake County Magistrate Dexter Williams said that once he heard the story, he released Rush without bond and told him to go home and enjoy his dinner.

President Bush buys some athletic socks.

Bushes stop at mall, buy toys, CD, socks

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — Doing their bit for the nation's struggling retailers, George and Barbara Bush shopped at a local mall Friday, buying toys, a compact disc and some sporting goods.

"It's easier to shop out in the country for us than it is downtown," Bush said before making a quick blitz through J.C. Penney's at the Frederick Towne Mall, about 20 minutes from Camp David, the presidential retreat where the Bushes are spending the holiday weekend.

Faced with mounting evidence that the economic slump has paralyzed American consumers, the Bushes picked one of the busiest shopping days of the year to hit the mall.

Their expedition came two days after the Commerce Department said that Americans cut back sharply on their spending last month, a repot that many analysts took as a sign the nation may be in for a double-dip recession. Consumer spending is key to any recovery because it accounts for two-thirds of economic growth.

"We've got a little toy department to look at to get some stuff for the grandchildren," Bush said. "'Slime' is the name of it, I believe."

While Mrs. Bush went off in search of the gooey Slime, the president stayed behind to hunt for sporting goods.

"You're putting pressure on me," Bush said good-naturedly to a reporter following along as he wound his way through racks of sweat shirts and jogging shoes.

Bush picked out four pairs of "USA" athletic socks and pulled out a $20 to pay for the $15 purchase. He joked that he usually doesn't carry cash.

Then he headed to the second floor to look through the children's department, paying cash for a $13 toddler's sweat suit decorated with a Houston Oilers design, the football team of Bush's adopted hometown.

Early flu bug hits children

ATLANTA (AP) — The flu season hit early and hard among the nation's schoolchildren this year, and federal health experts warned Friday that the virus eventually will attack adults — especially the elderly — just as hard.

The federal Centers for Disease Control said it has confirmed 74 outbreaks of flu in 21 states. Forty-nine percent of the cases were a strain of the Type A virus called the Beijing flu, which is historically hard on the elderly.

This winter's flu season has been unusual, said CDC spokesman Bob Howard. It hit early — beginning in October instead of December — and primarily has hit schoolchildren.

Schools in seven states have reported outbreaks of different strains of Type A flu. Schools reported absentee rates as high as 40 percent, and some school districts in Ohio and Tennessee closed for several days.

Adults should be on guard — and get vaccinated if they're vulnerable, Howard said.

"We're telling everybody, especially the elderly, to get the vaccine," he said. "If you're a strong healthy adult, you can weather a bout with the flu. If you're elderly or have respiratory or lung problems, it can be dangerous."

Many people will suffer only fever, vomiting, muscle aches and sniffles, but the flu can be deadly for those at highest risk of serious complications. It kills 20,000 people each year.

CDC officials urged people over 65 and those in nursing homes or with chronic heart or lung diseases to be vaccinated.

Vaccine producers on Friday said the early flu season is draining the supply. General Injectables and Vaccines Inc. of Bastian, Va., which calls itself the nation's largest flu vaccine distributor, said it ran out Wednesday.

Howard downplayed the reports. He said health departments weren't reporting widescale shortages to the Atlanta-based CDC, which had estimated there was enough vaccine this year for 30 million people. It doesn't count how many people receive the vaccine.

"We hear that the vaccine is available, but there are shortages in some areas. It might not be available from every health care office," Howard said. He said people at high risk for complications "need to seek it out."

The CDC found outbreaks of Beijing flu in Alaska, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Louisiana, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas. A milder strain, the Taiwan flu, was found in Georgia, Hawaii, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas.

It found other Type A strains in Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Texas.

Texas also reported Type B influenza, a milder type called the Panama flu.

Duck-calling contest fills town

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) — They say it rained ducks here one day. Honest!

Hail knocked more than 100 ducks from the sky Nov. 23, 1973, and several others were addled, according to the local newspaper, The Stuttgart Daily Leader.

The story is almost too good to be true for a town at the center of the nation's rice bowl, the self-professed duck capital of the world and home of the annual World Championship Duck Calling Contest.

"It's true. It's true," said Steve Dabbs, owner of the Mallard restaurant. "It looked like — well — like it was raining cats and dogs."

The 56th annual duck calling contest was expected to draw dozens of competitors Saturday from across the country and Canada. First prize is $5,000. Last year, about 50,000 spectators came for the contest and related events and spent about $2 million in the town of 11,000 about 50 miles southeast of Little Rock. A bigger crowd was expected this year.

The "Ber-AAAAAK. Ber-AAAAAK" of duck calls, priced from $40 to $100, pierced the crisp air this week along the midway, which covered six blocks of Main Street. Duck calls look like carefully crafted kazoos. They're made of wood or plastic, with one or two reeds, and are considered musical instruments in Stuttgart.

Haze amazes veteran shuttle astronauts

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Atlantis' astronauts, amazed at the amount of haze over Earth, peered through clouds at ships and other military targets in Cuba, Australia and Florida during a space surveillance test Friday.

The two veterans aboard the shuttle said they have never seen so much haze from orbit.

"The atmosphere is much hazier now than it was as we remember," shuttle commander Frederick Gregory said. "There are many, many more clouds."

Gregory and Story Musgrave last flew in space two years ago. Since then, Mount Pinatubo in the Philippines has erupted and spewed gases and volcanic ash into the atmosphere. Scientists believe that is the cause of the increased haze.

Space scout Mario Runco Jr., a Navy lieutenant commander who is making his first trip in orbit, also is struck by all the haze and clouds. Many of his camera observations have been hampered by the weather.

"It seems to be, from my perspective, a little bit more cloudy than I would have thought around the world," Runco said.

Runco zoomed in on U.S. military ships in Cuba's Guantanamo Bay as Atlantis circled the world for the 76th time, just about the halfway mark for the long Defense Department mission. The U.S. naval base there is serving as temporary home to thousands of Haitian refugees.

Mount Pinatubo in the Philippines has erupted and spewed gases and volcanic ash into the atmosphere. Scientists believe that is the cause of the increased haze.

Ground commanders filled Runco in on the weather via radio — partly cloudy — and gave him the target positions as Atlantis approached. The code name for the site was "Calypso."

Runco had trouble spotting targets at Air Force bases in central Florida and Oahu, Hawaii, because of clouds. He had camera problems over Oahu, too — the shutter release jammed.

Crewman Thomas Hennen, an Army surveillance expert, also encountered clouds over Brisbane, Australia. He is using a telescope to examine unidentified targets 224 miles below, to learn techniques that could be used in spying.

The Pentagon assigned the observing experiments to the 10-day flight to see how well astronauts can spot ships, tanks and aircraft from orbit. Similar exercises were conducted during previous military shuttle missions that were classified.

Many of the details surrounding the observing experiments conducted aboard Atlantis are secret, although the shuttle mission itself is considered unclassified.

The six astronauts apparently still were in a holiday spirit. Moments after awaking, Gregory asked Mission Control's Marsha Ivins about her Thanksgiving meal and boasted that the crew's turkey dinner had been "spectacular — over the Himalayas."

Earlier Friday, as the crew slept, Atlantis passed within about 35 miles of an old Soviet rocket part, well out of the security zone. Gregory changed the shuttle's orbit Thursday to avoid coming too close to the debris.

In September, another shuttle crew also had to change course to avoid space junk.

The U.S. Space Command in Colorado Springs, Colo., currently is tracking more than 6,900 orbiting objects, most of that rocket and satellite debris.

Atlantis is not expected to encounter any other space junk during the rest of this flight. The mission is scheduled to end Wednesday at Kennedy Space Center.

'Death gene' stirs up debate

By Dennis J. Opatrny
Hearst News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — The question is simple: Is there a "death gene" destined to kill us at about age 85, give or take a few years? Or can we expand our life span through cures for such illnesses as cancer, diabetes and heart disease?

The argument is a complex and divisive one, not unlike the evolution-vs.-creation debate — but more relevant to the living.

And it is inspiring spirited debate among researchers, particularly those gathered in San Francisco this weekend for the annual convention of the Gerontological Society of America.

"Right now life expectancy in the United Sates is 75," said James Vaupel, a demographer from the University of Minnesota and critic of the "death gene" theory.

"I think it's possible to increase life expectancy from 75 to maybe 100 within the lifetimes of people alive today," Vaupel said. "I'm not talking about eternal life, just about increasing our life span."

He said life expectancy would rise with prevention or cure of major diseases such as cancer and AIDS.

James Freis, a Stanford rheumatologist, disagrees. He says he doesn't believe there is necessarily a "death gene," but rather a built-in obsolescence for those over 85.

"You've got an automobile that has a carburetor, wheels, valves, a water pump and all these different parts that are built to last beyond a warranty period," Freis said.

Then slowly, one by one, the parts, like human organs, begin to fail, until the auto refuses to start. The human body expires when enough of its components have collapsed, he said.

"It's a combination of what isn't there, rather than what is there remaining (in the body) that determines the genetic-specific" lifetime of a person, Freis said. He said even the casual observer has watched senescence, or the gradual decline of a person, take place as people grow more frail and vulnerable with age.

Vaupel takes exception to Freis' view that aging is some sort of genetically determined process, such as growing up.

Freis theory is that "aging is the last stage of growing up," he said. That is, "If you don't die of something by the time you get old, you'll die of old age. I disagree."

He insists that the reason people look old and get old is because a lifetime of battles with diseases and afflictions has left their bodies ravaged.

"Aging is not some intrinsic, genetically and biologically determined process," Vaupel said. "Aging is the result of all the diseases people get out of the course of their life."

Freis uses U.S. census data to show that the relative life expectancy for Americans 65 and older has remained static over the past decade. Then, in a complicated graph system, he plots the American life expectancy in the past century from birth to over 65. Those two lines converge at age 85, the age that a "death gene" would kick in.

The term refers not to a single gene per se but to the theory that the human body is genetically programmed to disintegrate at age 85, if not earlier.

"It is frailty rather than disease," Freis said, that eventually kills older people. "We have this new disease called falls. People fall down and die."

To disprove this theory, Vaupel turned first to Sweden, where the age-85 barrier already is being pushed back. He found that since World War II the death rate for people over age 85 has dropped dramatically, especially for women, who have a longer life span.

He also looked to Denmark, where he is now a visiting professor at the Odense Medical School, to check the life histories of some 4,000 Danish twins born between 1870 and 1890.

"If there is a built-in genetic and biological clock, then identical twins should die at the same time," Vaupel said, noting that identical twins have identical genes. "We didn't find that at all. Identical twins don't die at a very similar age when they get very old."

To bolster his research on twins, Vaupel returned to the laboratory with Minnesota colleague and entomologist James Curtsinger, who raises fruit flies.

By in-breeding Drosophila fruit flies, Curtsinger was able to produce thousands of twins that theoretically should have died at the same time. But "these fruit flies twins just died off gradually," Vaupel said.

In a similar experiment, Vaupel said, James Carey, a University of California at Davis entomologist, has built a laboratory in Mexico using the Mediterranean fruit fly as the life span subject to study.

Vaupel said Carey's preliminary findings showed that the chance of dying for young fruit flies increased for the first third of their lives, then leveled off. The older ones died off gradually, with no apparent "death gene" killing them.

He said these experiments, combined with his demographic research, disprove the "death gene" theory that it's over for us at age 85.

But to some researchers, it's not how long one lives, but how healthy those years alive can be.

That middle view is espoused by Edward Schneider, a gerontologist and scientific director of Marin County's Buck Center for Research in Aging, which concentrates on research and education to increase healthy years for all ages.

"To me their debate is academic," said Schneider. "It's interesting and it's important, but it's not as critical as to whether we'll be able to increase the healthy years of life."

"For example, we want to persuade teen-aged women that they need to take in more calcium and exercise more to build up their bone mass, so that when they're 70 or 80 they'll have less osteoporosis and less risk of hip fractures.

"I don't think we have a biological limit to our life span," he said. "But that's not as important as 'Do we have a biological limit on our health span?'."

"I don't think we have that either."

Flowers attract insects by altering hue, research finds

N.Y. Times News Service

Many flowering plants woo their insect pollinators and gently direct them to their most fertile blossoms by changing the colors of individual flowers from one day to the next, a researcher has found.

Through color cues, the plant seems to signal to the insect that it would be better off visiting one flower on its bush rather than another.

The particular hue tells the pollinator that the flower is likely to be far more engorged with nectar than are neighboring blooms; that nectar-rich flower also happens to be sexually ripe and ready to either dispense its pollen or to receive pollen the insect has picked up from another flower.

Thus, the color-coded communication system benefits both plant and insect and means that plants do not have to spend precious resources maintaining reservoirs of nectar in all their flowers; they simply advertise exactly where the bounty is.

"What's surprising about this is that plants really are playing a more active role than we had anticipated in getting pollinators to do just what they want them to be doing," said Martha R. Weiss of the University of California at Berkeley, who wrote the report and is finishing her doctoral dissertation. "The plant is saying to the insect, 'Go to this flower, not to that one.' " Her paper appears in the current issue of the journal Nature.

For example, she said, in the lantana plant, an ornamental bush with tiny but abundant clusters of brilliant blossoms, a flower starts out on the first day of blossoming as yellow, when it is rich with nectar and pollen.

Influenced by some signal in the environment that Ms. Weiss has yet to identify, the flower begins changing from its innate yellow tone toward the red by activating the production of a deep crimson pigment called anthrocyanin.

It turns orange on the second day and red on the third, by which point it has no treats to offer insects and is no longer fertile.

But an abundance of brilliant blooms, whatever their color, is necessary to attract a pollinator from far away.

Reaching the bush, the insect can use the variations in color to home in on fertile yellow specimens.

On any given lantana bush, only 10 to 15 percent of the blossoms are likely to be yellow and fecund.

But in tests measuring the responsiveness of butterflies, Ms. Weiss discovered that the insects visited the rare yellow flowers at least 100 times more often than would be expected from random visitations.

Former residents return to flooded town

By Kelly P. Kissel
Associated Press Writer

INSTANTER, Pa. — Rain and snow have bypassed the East Branch Valley this year, dropping a man-made lake 55 feet and exposing the skeletal remains of two towns sacrificed for flood control.

Now former residents are coming back to reminisce.

Instanter and Straight were razed and submerged 39 years ago when the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers built East Branch Clarion Lake.

Now the water's retreat has revealed Instanter, 5½ miles upstream from the lake's earthen dam, marked by mud-caked remnants of old concrete foundations, some rusting nails, scattered bricks and crumbling bits of rotten lumber. There's no longer enough remainder of a road left to easily get to Straight.

"It made me sick when I'd seen it," said Nita Eaton, who spent the first 18 of her 83 years in Instanter, but could find no sign of her old home, school or church.

In spite of her reaction, the old town site, an Atlantis of the Allegheny, has become a new tourist attraction.

"This is a rare opportunity for old residents to come back and show their children and grandchildren where they grew up and where they used to play," said John Kolodziejski, park ranger at East Branch.

Weekends bring out people by the carload and cars line the boat ramp. There's still about 100 feet of water in the lower end of the six-mile-long reservoir, but the boat ramp's concrete slab ends 50 feet from the nearest water and once-floating wooden piers sit on mud.

Outsiders can only imagine how Instanter's old foundations once supported a tannery, boarding house, homes and a bridge.

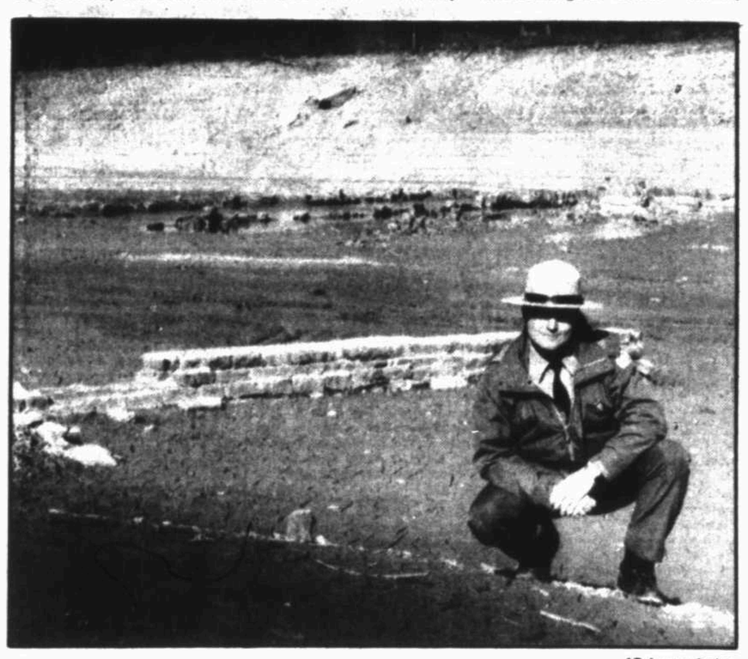

"There was the hotel, a pool room, and where they used to cut hair," said George Powley, who visited Instanter in early November. "There was a company store, a boarding house and a big barn where they kept their horses."

"You always want to know what's under a lake, but unless you're a scuba diver, you never know," Kolodziejski said. "Now, everybody knows."

AP Laserphoto

This is a view of Instanter, Pa. in 1948 before the U.S. Corps of Engineers bought all the properties to erect a town. The town was abandoned and covered in water.

AP Laserphoto

Ranger John Kolodziejski poses recently by the ruins of Instanter, Pa., which have resurfaced due to severe drought conditions in the last two years, from beneath the waters of the East Branch Lake in Elk County, Pa.

Instanter was established in 1889 when a pair of settlers built a tannery at the confluence of the East Branch and Seven Mile Creek. Its slow death began four days before Christmas 1926 when the tannery shut down.

"The tannery was going out so everybody was going out," Mrs. Eaton said.

Straight, a smaller community, supported two chemical works that shut down about the same time as the tannery.

After a flood on the Clarion River damaged Johnsonburg and Ridgway in July 1942, the Corps began considering a flood-control dam somewhere upstream along the East Branch. The dam just above Glen Hazel was completed in 1952.

Powley, 74, has visited the site before, but to fish, not sightsee.

"I went back quite a few times. I put a boat on there the first year they filled it with water," said Powley, 74.

The lake abuts the west side of the eastern Continental Divide, which in northern Pennsylvania is a range of hills that separates basins draining into the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean.

'You always want to know what's under a lake, but unless you're a scuba diver, you never know. Now everybody knows.'

— John Kolodziejski

In winter, storms off Lake Erie usually run into these hills and dump copious amounts of snow. In the summer, storms laden with moisture from the Gulf of Mexico usually drop rain.

That hasn't happened this year.

But through high water and low water, the number of visitors drawn to the lake each year by water or curiosity has remained a constant 300,000, Kolodziejski said.

"Our bread and butter is the normal year, when families can come out and boat and ski," Kolodziejski said. "But two years ago, everybody wanted to see the high pool. Now, we don't have water and everybody's coming back again."

Institute produces Environmental Almanac

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Before he set out to edit a book on such matters, Allen Hammond had no idea that Austin, Tex., is one of the most "environmentally aware" cities in America or that people in Georgia drive their cars more miles per capita each year than those of any other state.

Drawing on hundreds of sources from federal and state agencies, as well as international organizations, Hammond and others at the World Resources Institute have produced a 600-page "Environmental Almanac" with enough green factoids in it to keep the average environmentalist turning pages for days.

Dinosaur's pose sparks debate

NEW YORK (AP) — Paleontologists criticized a new dinosaur exhibit showing a huge barosaurus rearing on its hind legs as a physical impossibility, but a museum official said Friday that it was meant to inspire debate.

The dramatic display, to open Wednesday at the American Museum of Natural History, shows a barosaurus in a Godzilla pose, standing 50-feet tall as it rears on its hind legs to ward off an attacking allosaurus.

New York Newsday reported in its Friday editions that only one of six paleontologists it interviewed believed the barosaurus was physically able to stand on two legs.

Michael Novacek, vice president and dean of science at the museum, said Friday that the exhibit was designed to draw the public into a scientific debate.

"There are theories about dinosaurs and the way they lived and those theories are debated and discussed and that is what science is all about," he said.

"No one can say that a barosaurus could not stand up on his hind legs and there are some reasons to suggest that it was possible that it did that," he said.

The display is the first phase of a $40 million renovation of the museum's dinosaur halls. The life-sized barosaurus skeleton, made from polyester resins, was modeled from 150 million-year-old fossils dug up at the Dinosaur National Monument in Utah. They have been in the museum's basement since World War II.

The plant-eating barosaurus is depicted rearing back in a fight with a 20-foot-high allosaurus, a meat-eater.

Kevin Padian, curator of the Museum of Paleontology in Berkley, Calif., told Newsday that he hadn't seen the barosaurus, but other dinosaurs with similar bone structure could stand on two feet by supporting their weight on their flat tails.

Paul Sereno of the University of Chicago was among the five scientists who disagreed.

"It happens to have extra weight up front because of its long neck and an unusually long torso, and relatively short limbs compared to other sauropods," Sereno said.

MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.
OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:
Is it worthwhile for adults also? Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
• ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
• MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
• COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
• SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.
How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!
How long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!
When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.
Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!

320 Sales Help Wanted

Sales Reps

Get hard facts about one of the best sales careers in Midland.

Pitney Bowes is a Fortune 500 company entering a growth phase unprecedented in its history.

We're very selective about the people we choose to represent us. Our sales representatives are not "order takers". We need an aggressive, strongly self-motivated sales professional who either already has, or who can quickly acquire, an in-depth knowledge of business customer needs...and how our products can anticipate and meet those needs.

We're a company that's sales-oriented. Our 130 Branch and District Managers came out of sales. We're a company that invests heavily in training and supporting its sales teams. A company in which a person with drive has ample opportunity to reach a management-level position.

Have a sales record you're proud of? Have the ability to sell high technology products and systems in a highly competitive marketplace? We'd like to give you hard facts about your growth and earning potential with Pitney Bowes.

Please send confidential resume and/or letter outlining background and earnings history to:
