Stock Market Prices Fall...

Reagan Says Public Supports Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's plan for additional budget cuts is receiving a cool reception on Capitol Hill and Wall Street, but the president says he isn't worried because he has the public's support.

The stock market hit a 16-month low Friday as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 11.13 points. But President Reagan said he wasn't bothered by the falling prices "because I don't have any (stock)."

As to why the market was down, Reagan said, "I don't know, but it started yesterday...and I guess it's continuing on down. I don't know what the reason is, but I'm sure not going to take the blame."

"I'm going to go by the phone calls and telegrams that have been coming in since last night's speech, and they are running three or four to one and better in our favor," he said.

On Capitol Hill, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said "there's no question in my mind" that Reagan would have tremendous problems getting the latest cuts through Congress.

Republican leaders said Congress "almost certainly" will cut the defense budget next year by more than the $2 billion recommended by the president. But House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said a proposal from liberal GOP members to slash $9 billion from defense spending goes too far.

Meanwhile, the president's budget advisers said the new round of cuts will require further reductions in Medicaid, Medicare, federal retirement and other benefit programs.

However, the administration backed off regulations to reduce the minimum portions in the millions of school lunches served across the country. Budget director David A. Stockman told reporters Friday that proposal was "a bureaucratic goof that we're going to change."

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, Stockman and Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, met with reporters to amplify the president's pitch Thursday night for additional spending reductions.

Reagan recommended across-the-board cuts of 12 percent in non-defense and non-benefit programs, slashing the federal work force by 75,000 jobs, cutting back on federal loan guarantees and abolishing the departments of Education and Energy to achieve $13 billion in savings for the fiscal year that begins Thursday.

He also called for $3 billion in additional tax revenues through the elimination of "abuses and obsolete incentives in the tax code."

The administration hurried Friday to assure federal workers that Reagan's recommendations for cutting government jobs doesn't mean "sending 75,000 people out of the door.

'I LOVE YOU'--It was love at first sight for Jonathan Harr, 23-month-old son of Rev. and Mrs. David Harr of Snyder, when he encountered this little duck held by Mary Langford Friday afternoon at the Scurry County Fair. Jonathan was so taken with the little fellow that he could not resist kissing it. Mindy Robertson, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Robertson of Snyder also liked the ducks and could not resist holding one. Langford said the ducks have been very popular with children. Weekend update

New Organization Planned

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Governors of the four states that border Mexico are working to form an organization that would replace the Southwest Border Regional Commission, which has been killed by federal budget cuts.

Officials in Texas and California said Friday negotiations were under way to continue the work of the commission through a non-profit corporation being formed by the four governors.

The commission was established three years ago to look for solutions to problems along the United States-Mexico border. Millions of federal dollars were allocated to it to fund problem-solving projects.

But the Carter Administration eliminated the regional commission program during the 1981 fiscal year as a money-saving measure. The regional office in Tucson, Ariz., is to close by Sept. 30.

Inflation Decline Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's inflation rate should be "comfortably" out of double-digit territory next year, says the head of the nation's central bank.

But Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said the results of next year's wage negotiations in a number of key industries will have an important impact on the fight to bring inflation under control.

Signs of progress in reducing inflation "have not yet been confirmed by clearly visible and significant progress toward wage deceleration," he said in a speech Friday to the National Press Club.

"We can indeed find signs of restraint in some areas, but we see other areas where a kind of 'business-as-usual' attitude prevails, building past inflation trends into future contracts," he said.

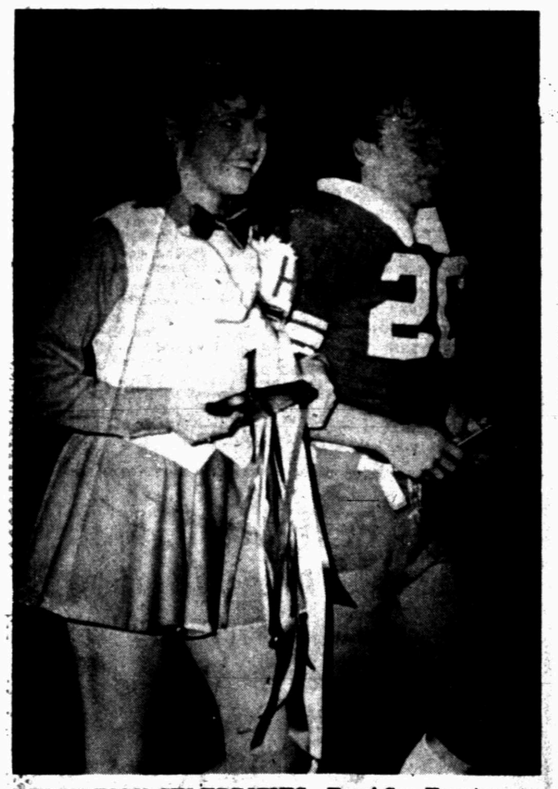

Next year, he said, "will be a crucial period in this respect."

Whataburger Restaurant Opening Soon

Plans to open a Whataburger restaurant in Snyder was announced this week by Dave Elliott of Abilene.

Elliott said the former Ken's Pizza building at 4612 College is being remodeled to accomodate the Whataburger which will open in about four weeks.

Elliott owns Whataburger locations in Abilene and fast-food restaurants in several area towns.

Norman Burgess will move to Snyder as manager of the Snyder Whataburger, Elliott said. The new restaurant will feature inside seating as well as a drive-thru window.

Whataburger is known for its old-fashion hamburger, but the menu will feature of variety of foods, Elliott said.

White Buffalo Days Shape Up

A number of activities are already on the program for White Buffalo Days here Oct. 7 and Oct. 10, and more will be added.

This word came from the Snyder Chamber of Commerce at the end of the week. The White Buffalo Days events are being coordinated by the women's division of the chamber.

Breakfast on the Snyder square and a ceremony commemorating the White Buffalo will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 7. It was on that date in 1876 that J. Wright Mooar killed a white buffalo on Deep Creek northwest of town. The breakfast will be served by Beta Sigma Phi, and the Scurry County Historical Commission will conduct the ceremonies.

Other events are scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 10 at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Already on the program are a puppet show, a dunkin' booth, children's activities, a trades day event, horned toad races, a horseshoe and washer pitching contest, a buffalo chip throwing contest, foot races, bicycle race, square dancing and music by country-western bands.

Also, there will be food booths serving items ranging from barbecued buffalo meat to nachos, German sausage, baked goods, corn-on-the-cob and various soft drinks.

Zone Change For Apartments OK'd

A zoning change proposal which would clear the way for an apartment complex in the Eastridge Addition will go to the city council with the Planning and Zoning Commission's blessing.

A request for changing a portion of the addition from a single-family residential zone to a multi-family residential zone has been approved by the commission.

Earlier, the developers of Eastridge had indicated that the southwest corner of their property would be used for apartments. It is located on the Brick Plant Road.

A 48-unit project is being planned for the initial development, it was reported. However, city officials said the property being rezoned has enough area to accommodate many more units, possibly as many as 180.

The zoning change request is due to go to the city council at its regular meeting scheduled for Oct. 5.

In other business at its meeting, the Planning and Zoning commission rejected a change in zone from single-family residential to two-family residential in the 300 block of 31st St. This change had been sought by Abel Beauchamp.

Ask Us

Q.—Is there a possibility that SCAT (Snyder Community Antenna Television) will offer service to Ira residents?

A.—It is possible, but not in the very near future. Mel Gilbert, executive vice president of SCAT, said the only prospects for service to Ira and Hermleigh hinges on availability of a new, short-hop microwave system that is capable of multi-channel service. It is due to be on the market sometime next year. However, Gilbert said it was scheduled to be shown at a products show the past summer, but did not appear, and its exact status now is not known.

The SDN Column

We have been looking over a review copy of the latest book turned out by Pauline Phillips, and it has a lot of chuckles in it.

Pauline who?

Pauline Phillips, a gal you have known on the news pages by another name for a good many years. You know her as Abigail Van Buren, or perhaps more intimateley as simply "Dear Abby."

Abby has produced her first book in 19 years and it is coming out in October. Published by Andrews and McMeel, it consists of the best of the letters Abby has received during her career as an "advice columnist" for scores of newspapers who receive her column from Universal Press Syndicate.

The title is "The Best of Dear Abby."

If you are even an occasional reader of her daily column, you probably will find the book interesting. In addition to selected letters and her answers, it contains some interesting biographical material and Abby's observation on changes in society since she began writing the column some 25 years ago. The book is supposed to sell for $9.95, we have been advised.

When we heard that Linda Haywood, Scurry County's new Extension Service Agent for Home Economics, had gone back to Cass County, our first thought was that it's just a case of a little East Texas girl who could not adjust to the West.

Then we learned that romance was the dominant factor. Scurry County officials were taken by surprise, but they realize that you can't defeat Cupid.

Another matter of concern to all local government entities is the upcoming appointment of members of the Scurry County Appraisal Board. Legislation establishing the appraisal districts provided that all board members serve concurrent terms, which means that all expire at the same time this fall. The word is that at least two of the Scurry County Appraisal District board members do not want to be reappointed. It is largely a thankless job for an unpopular cause.

However, recent reports indicate that Scurry County has one of the best systems going under the new appraisal law. Oil company tax representatives here for the school budget hearing Tuesday night, who deal directly with the districts in many counties, made it a point to praise the local appraisal district.

"You people don't know how fortunate you are," said Carlton Meredith, veteran tax specialist who represents Sharon Ridge oil production interests. Bill Vick of Chevron said he agreed wholeheartedly.

Solidarity Congress Reopens

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Faced with a government warning to stay out of politics, the independent Solidarity labor movement reopened its congress today. But some delegates say they may urge defiance of what they call a weak new law giving workers only a vague say in choosing factory managers.

Coal miners in historical costumes opened the session with a banner-waving parade through the sports arena.

Dallas Leads Nation In Rape In Spite Of Program

By ALLEN K. SHORT
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Five years ago, when a young Dallas secretary told her boss she'd been raped, he fired her because he didn't want "that kind of woman" around the office.

Back then, it wasn't uncommon in Dallas for a rape victim to wait up to 12 hours in a crowded hospital emergency room before she was examined. Attitudes toward rape and its victims have changed a lot since then, and Dallas has been a leader in making reforms.

But despite a rape treatment and reporting system that is regarded as a model among U.S. cities and an aggressive prosecutor's office that frequently obtains life sentences in aggravated rape cases, Dallas has become the nation's statistical "rape capital."

No one — least of all the more than 1,400 women who are raped here in a year — seems to know why.

In 1980, according to FBI and U.S. Census Bureau figures, a woman living in Dallas, the nation's seventh largest city, was three times as likely to be raped as a female resident of Chicago or San Diego and twice as likely to be victimized as a resident of Philadelphia, New York or Baltimore.

Dallas police recorded 1,121 reported forcible rapes last year, or 124 sexual assaults for every 100,000 residents. When only female residents are taken into account, the figure becomes almost 250 rapes for every 100,000 women in Dallas.

"We have the record, the reputation for being the worst in the nation," said Irving Stone, a forensic chemist with Southwestern Medical School here.

In 1973, Stone's laboratory examined 530 tissue and fluid samples taken from rape victims for use as evidence in court. This year, the lab expects to conduct 1,450 tests, almost three times as many.

Rape is historically an underreported crime — a common police estimate is that only one rape in 10 is reported. A sign that the Dallas Rape Crisis Center is having an effect is that 90 percent of the women who seek help at the center ultimately decide to report their assaults to authorities, said Sue James, the center's senior coordinator. That's up from 40 percent just five years ago, she said.

The center runs a battery of public education programs: meetings with women's groups to explain how to avoid rape, group therapy sessions for rape victims, police training sessions and seminars for doctors and social workers.

Ten years ago, "No one reported rape. It just wasn't done," said Ms. James, who recounted the case of the secretary who was fired. "And if you told a girlfriend you had been raped, she was liable to ask you what you did to provoke the attack."

Stone, who helped design Dallas' rape treatment and reporting program, and Ms. James both say the success of the program, along with rape reporting procedures used by the police, may be why Dallas' sexual assault rate stands out when compared to those of other big cities.

Los Angeles, the nation's third largest city after New York and Chicago, had the nation's second highest rape rate in 1980. But Los Angeles' per capita sexual assault rate of 95 per 100,000 was still significantly below the rate reported by Dallas police.

"In a lot of cities, if the investigating officer decides the case is unfounded, it isn't recorded as a rape," she said. "In Dallas, all of them are listed in the statistics regardless of the outcome of the investigation."

Stone concedes, however, that the city's 12 to 15 percent annual increases in reported rapes cannot be entirely explained by population growth or better crime reporting techniques.

Police theorize that the city's high rape rate is partly a result of the tens of thousands of young women who flock to the city seeking work, many of them from small towns or rural areas where personal security measures are not a major concern.

"Every time the local papers say there's another shortage of secretaries in Dallas, these young women come to the city in droves," said police spokesman Bob Shaw. "Sometimes, when they get here, they learn a real, real hard lesson."

Veteran rape investigator Evelyn Crowder agreed: "Dallas is a very popular place to women in Oklahoma, Texas and other states. And look at all the apartment complexes we have. That's where most of our rapes occur."

But statistics compiled by the Rape Crisis Center offer little support for the department's thesis.

In 1980, for example, only 5 to 6 percent of the women counseled by center employees came from small towns and rural areas. A much larger percentage had lived in Dallas all their lives, Ms. James said.

Perhaps a more likely factor in the number of rapes is Dallas' long summer, which stretches from March to October, Ms. James said. Windows and doors are open, and people are outside.

"Rapes go way down during the colder months here," she said.

Financial & tax planning

New Estate Rules
(Under the Tax Recovery Act)

All estates in excess of $175,000 of total value should be reviewed in light of the benefits available under the Tax Recovery Act of 1981.

The most significant change in estate law will be the exemption from estate taxes for property transferred to your spouse at your death. This is effective for decedents dying after 1981. If you leave all your property to your spouse, regardless of how high the value may be, there will be no federal estate taxes. Since the second spouse's estate could be subject to considerable taxes, proper planning is necessary.

A second major change under the new law is the exemption from taxation for property regardless to whom it is left. The dollar amount increases up through 1987 as follows: 1981-$175,625, 1982-$225,000, 1983-$275,000, 1984-$325,000, 1985-$400,000, 1986-$500,000, 1987-$600,000.

This means that a 1981 estate with a total value of $175,625 or less will not be subject to federal estate taxes even if the assets are left to someone other than your spouse. Likewise, a $600,000 estate will escape taxation in 1987. There are excellent planning techniques centered around these various estate exemption levels.

The new law also provides better opportunities for making gifts while you're alive. The old law permitted you to give $3,000 per year per donee, without creating a gift tax. The new law is increasing that level to $10,000. This means that a single parent could transfer $10,000 per year to each of his or her children. A married couple could transfer $20,000 to a child and if that child is married, they could double that gift for a total of $40,000 per year.

Sizeable transfers of family assets should be made as part of an overall financial plan with the assistance of professionals.

Smart to lose while young

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'd like your Health Letter on losing weight. I need to lose 20 to 30 pounds and need to exercise to get back in shape. My weight has gradually crept from 133 to 150 pounds since the birth of my second child six years ago. My attempts so far have failed.

I'm 5 feet 3 and have wrinkles and bulges of fat around my middle which I just can't stand. Before my two sons were born I weighed from 115 to 125 pounds. I'll soon be 31 and think the longer the excess weight stays on the harder it will be to lose. Don't you agree?

DEAR READER — You can lose weight at any age but it is smart to lose it when you are still young and avoid getting fat again. That is better for your health, and your skin is more likely to be elastic and contract, avoiding some of the problem of excess skin that occurs after a person has lost lots of weight. The reason it gets harder to lose weight is because a person gets more and more used to being overweight and following a lifestyle that promotes it.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, that you requested. The diet will work if you stay with it.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You should understand right now that it will be a long process if you do it wisely and safely. I would suggest that you plan on losing about a pound a week. Do it by increasing your physical activity while decreasing your calories.

The system that works best is to try to walk about two miles in the morning and two miles in the evening. That will use about 240 calories a day. Then cut your calorie intake only about 300 calories a day. You will decrease your calorie balance over 500 calories a day that way or a good 3,500 calories a week. That equals the calories in one pound of fat. Stick to it every day — rain or shine, hot or cold, and expect to stay on it for 20 weeks to lose 20 pounds of fat.

Don't get excited when the scales say you lose a lot the first week. That is mostly water and will come back. Just stick to the program. It will be a new lifestyle for you. After you have lost your excess fat you might want to continue the daily exercise and enable yourself to eat a little, but not much, more on occasion. It is not a hard program to follow. You just have to be consistent and patient.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a man, 40 years old. Whenever I press anything against my body for a few minutes, when I am working on the job or doing something else, a few hours later it turns red and then starts itching. When I scratch it, it starts swelling, but the next morning it is just about all gone. Do you know what is wrong with me and, if so, can you tell me what to do for it?

DEAR READER — You must have a form of dermatographia. It is an allergic response to mechanical stimuli. This response does occur in people who are otherwise healthy and free of disease. The red area is a form of a hive. Some people have such sensitive mechanisms that you can scratch letters on the skin and it will later turn red and swell showing the letters on the skin itself — hence the term dermatographia — skin writing. It is not serious. You might see an allergist if you are really bothered by the reaction. Otherwise I wouldn't worry about it.

Information For Vets Is Provided

New veterans making the transition back to civilian life should be aware of some benefit programs available to them and the delimiting dates involved in some, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr. Scurry County Veterans Service officer, said.

Some benefits have no deadline and remain good indefinitely, such as (1) GI home loan guaranty; (2) file claim for service-incurred disabilities; (3) applying for admission to a VA hospital; (4) seeking help from state employment offices in finding work or entering Department of Labor job-training programs.

A new veteran returning to pre-service employment must apply for reemployment within 90 days following release from service since under federal law he is entitled to certain reemployment rights.

A veteran who entered service prior to Jan. 1, 1977, is entitled to educational assistance under the GI Bill. He has a 10-year period following release from service to use his benefits, but not later than Dec. 31, 1989.

Within 120 days (up to one year if totally disabled), the veteran must convert his Serviceman's Group Life Insurance to a five-year plan of VGLI (Veterans Group Life Insurance). If application is made within the 120-day period, no evidence of good health is required.

Veterans who would like information about VA programs and benefits may contact Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administration.

Classes For Adults Set

Adult education classes for adults who have not completed high school will meet from 6:30-9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Learning Resource Center at Western Texas College.

There is no charge to students in these classes and students may enroll at any class meeting. Students work on an individual basis so they can begin their studies at any level and may concentrate on any subject or work on more than one.

Persons wishing further information may call the Continuing Education Office at 573-8511, extension 240.

On Federal Highway Funds...

Clements' Gamble Looks Good

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — What appears to be Gov. Bill Clements' $40 million gamble with highway money may turn out to be a sure bet.

If so, it would become only another in a series of threats by federal highway administrators that were not carried out.

Federal Highway Administrator Ray Barnhart told Clements this summer that Texas might lose $40 million in highway funds if the special session of the Legislature did not pass a truck weight proposal.

Barnhart said Texas needed to increase penalties for overloaded trucks and to authorize state troopers to enforce weight limits on state highways within cities.

Director Jim Adams of the Texas Department of Public Safety and Engineer-Director Mark Goode of the State Highway Department of Highways and Public Transportation supported Barnhart's request.

Goode said Barnhart, a former state highway commissioner, "has made it clear ... that he has no choice in this matter and will be compelled to enforce federal sanctions if this situation is not corrected."

The Republican governor, however, waited until Aug. 7 — four days before the end of the 30-day special session — to open the session to a truck weight proposal, and the Legislature did not get to it before adjournment.

Now, Clements says he has no intention of calling another special session on the proposal before Jan. 1, the date by which Texas must comply with federal truck weight regulations.

Asked why he waited so late to submit truck weight legislation, Clements said, "I announced to begin with there would be no additions" until the main business of the special session was completed. That business included congressional redistricting and a state water trust fund.

Clements also said, in response to a written question, that Barnhart — a former Texas GOP chairman — had assured him privately that Texas might get more time to comply with the federal requirements.

Gary Hoitsma, special assistant to Barnhart, said Barnhart was "disappointed" that the Legislature had not acted on the proposal, but Hoitsma added, "While Texas is, technically, in a strict legal sense, in noncompliance, we don't see any precipitous action taking place in terms of imposing penalties."

"Many states are in what we'd call a noncompliance situation," said Hoitsma, "but before any kind of sanctions were imposed, the states involved certainly would be allowed to make their case for any mitigating circumstances. We'd give them an opportunity for hearings before it would ever reach the point where sanctions would be imposed."

"This doesn't mean we're relaxing any standards. It's just that it's a matter of status quo that's been going on for years," said Hoitsma. "In fact, Texas is in better compliance than most other states. There are some states in compliance, but of those in noncompliance, Texas is ... better (off) than many others."

Richard Vander Straten, program engineer for state highways, said, "It will be interesting" to see how Barnhart responds. "He has the unpleasant task now to enforce federal requirements regarding truck weight limits. Without legislation, law enforcement has no way to enforce truck weights inside cities. I don't have any idea how he will handle it — it's Mr. Barnhart's duty."

An ongoing federal threat involves the 55 mph speed limit, which was adopted in 1974. Texas has struggled to comply under the threat of losing $7 million to $8 million a year in federal highway funds.

In the 1980 fiscal year, Texas needed compliance from 40 percent of its drivers. Otto Wehring, director of traffic programs, said after federal officials changed the formula to calculate compliance, the state's compliance rate jumped from 34 percent to 46 percent, which was acceptable.

This year, he said, Texas must achieve 50 percent compliance.

Also, last year the U.S. Department of Transportation threatened to freeze $400 million in highway construction funds unless the state required contracts to be awarded to businesses that met a federal quota for minority subcontractors — even if they did not submit the lowest bid.

Texas Attorney General Mark White filed suit againsst the DOT, and later claimed victory when the federal rule was dropped in March 1981.

Even with a record of highway "victories" against the federal government, Vander Straten worries that someday the government may carry out a threat to withhold funds.

"People are passing laws all the time, and they've got to be enforced or nobody's going to pay any attention to them," said Vander Straten. "What greater enforcement do you have than taking somebody's dollars from them?"

Swedish Women Are Not Equal After 20 Years

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two decades after Swedish women won equality under the law, a depressed economy and a society resistant to change are making reality less than the law.

"It is still harder to be a woman than a man in this country," said Lisa Mattson, president of the Federation of Social Democratic Women. "It is true that the situation in Sweden is improved, but it is still a long way before the situation is satisfactory."

A recent study indicates that sexual segregation in the labor market pushes women into lower-paying, less prestigious jobs, with only about 1 percent of managerial positions in the private sector filled by women.

Past surveys by the National Bureau of Statistics tend to back up the claim:

—In 1975, 50 percent of employed men worked in mining, manufacturing or construction. Less than 20 percent of female workers were in those industries. By contrast, 49 percent of working women performed public administration or other services — education, medical care and social welfare — sectors employing only 17 percent of the male workforce.

—Women dominated 70 occupations in 1977, men 300.

—In the private sector, the average male worker earns 22.6 percent more than the average woman.

Major demands by Swedish feminists have been for day-care facilities for all children and for six-hour work days to make it easier to combine a job with home duties. These remain overwhelmingly women's work, despite official efforts begun in the 1960s to encourage load-sharing in the home.

But solving Sweden's economic worries has top priority with most politicians, who say the country cannot afford costly social reforms or expanded anti-discrimination programs right now.

Nevertheless, there have been gains.

A 1980 law bans sexual discrimination in hiring and promotion in public and private jobs and demands active efforts to promote equal opportunity in the workplace.

Equal opportunity ombudsman Inga-Britt Tornell, appointed to enforce the act, said it is too early to say whether the law will live up to its high expectations. Ms. Tornell has received 161 complaints about work discrimination or lack of active promotion of sexual equality, all but four of which have been settled by negotiation. The four contested cases are still pending in labor courts.

One complaint involved Bishop Bertil Gartner of the Swedish Lutheran Church in Goteborg, who refused to allow female ministers to practice in his diocese. The church ordains women but permits male clergy to refuse to work with female colleagues under a so-called "conscience clause."

Ms. Tornell told the bishop to draft an equal-opportunity plan.

She also received a complaint alleging that a male magazine reporter who did the same work as four female reporters was paid $200 a month more than the women.

Economist Christina Jonung said such cases are rare.

"In Sweden, women are not discriminated against by getting lower salaries than men on the same jobs, but by not being given access to the same jobs," she said.

Even the government occasionally runs afoul of Ms. Tornell's office. In one case, a government post was advertised and women were encouraged to apply, but Ms. Tornell discovered the job was set aside for a man already holding a temporary appointment.

Such complaints ideally should come from labor unions, Ms. Tornell said, adding, however, that she fears that nothing much can be expected from them until the "middle-aged men who do not care about equality are gone."

A female trade union official retorted that the unions do try to promote equality and said: "We simply have not found any cases of discrimination."

The official, Aina Westin of LO, the Swedish Trade Union Confederation, said, "Extensive work for equality is going on....Pamphlets, study material, local programs have been worked out. Discussion programs and conferences have been started.

"The results will show in the long run. It takes time to convince men that they, too, stand to gain from equality."

LO has no female directors, although more than one-third of its 2 million members are women.

Birgitta Wistrand, president of a women's rights organization called the Fredrika Bremer Association, complained that one reason for discrimination is that the Swedish public simply doesn't care.

Sexual discrimination "is taken very lightly," she said, and penalties for violations — Ms. Tornell has been seeking damages of about $4,000 in each case — are much too small for effect.

"Today it is almost inconceivable that someone would stand up and talk against equality," she writes in her soon-to-be-published book, "Swedish Women on the Move." Yet, she said in an interview, "The awareness is very much on the surface and very fragile. Women are ready to make demands at work and for other women, but it becomes too hard in their private lives."

Ms. Wistrand argues that Swedish women have been held back because they are "too wellbred and too adaptable."

"We have reached an accommodation with the establishment," she writes in her book. "This may help foster harmonious change, but it also carries the risk of stagnation, of too easy acceptance of the status quo."

Dear Abby

Man's Crowded Quarters Cramp Girlfriend's Style

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 21-year-old single female in love with a 26-year-old male (I'll call Freddy) whom I hope to marry one day. Freddy and I have been dating for a year and have talked about marriage, but there is nothing definite yet.

The problem is Freddy's roommate, Ralph. Ralph's girlfriend, Debbie, moved in with him and Freddy. I'm not exactly jealous, but I hate the idea of the three of them living together in that little apartment. It's only big enough for two, and it must be very crowded and uncomfortable. Freddy says Debbie is only staying there until she and Ralph get married, but no date has been set yet, and they don't seem in any hurry.

Abby, if Ralph and Debbie want to live together, don't you think they should get their own place? All my friends think it's the pits, and they keep asking my how I can let it go on. I'm really upset and don't know what to do. Is there some way I can get Debbie out of there? Or should Freddy move out? Please advise.

IN THE MIDDLE IN MIDLAND

DEAR IN: As I see it, you are not in the middle. You are more appropriately on the outside — Freddy is in the middle. If he's crowded and uncomfortable, he should move out. The decision is his, not yours.

DEAR ABBY: I am a college freshman. I drew a girl's name for the freshman mixer. When I called for her at her dorm, I was pleased to find a nice-looking girl with a friendly personality. After one dance she suggested we go somewhere and "talk." We spoke hardly 10 minutes when she was all over me.

I spent most of the evening trying to talk her out of what she was trying to talk me into. Abby, I want to be pure for the girl I marry, but if this one is any example of what I have to put up with, I am going to have some fight on my hands. How can a fellow act like a gentleman with college girls without getting the reputation for being a square or a cold fish?

SAVING MYSELF

DEAR SAVING: Don't identify all college girls with the miss you got mixed up with at the mixer. Hang on to your gentlemanly instincts and your reputation will take care of itself.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married soon and have a problem with the seating of a certain guest. She is my father's girlfriend. After my mother died, she moved in with my father.

Where should she be seated at the wedding dinner? Should she sit next to my father at the head table? Or should we put her with the rest of the guests? Perhaps I should mention that she isn't very well-liked by family members.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: The fewer hurt feelings, the better. Ask your father where he wants his live-in lady to be seated, and abide by his wishes.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning inappropriate questions asked of a widow at the funeral of her husband, I think mine tops them all.

At the funeral of my 67-year-old father, my poor grieving mother was approached by an officer of the burial society to which my parents belonged, and instead of offering her solace, he asked, "Would you please give me a deposit on the grave next to your husband so I can reserve it for you?"

'Creative Financing' Used To Purchase Homes

By Laura Richardson
Associated Press Writer

It's a good thing a house is not a home, because chances are you can't afford to buy a house.

Inflation and high interest rates have already pushed "80 percent to 90 percent" of Texans out of the housing market, according to one mortgage banker, and those who are able to buy have discovered that less is more — a lot more.

People are finding themselves in miniature versions of the American dream: two-bedroom apartments called condominiums; no lot-line dwellings — a little land with house all over it; attached houses or patio homes with a six-inch air space separating neighbors.

People are moving farther and farther away from the cities where they work, buying new houses with fewer and fewer finishing touches like lawns, drapes, wall-to-wall carpets, and full-sized bathrooms and kitchens.

In Texas, none of these is cheap; they are just less costly than what realtors once called the "standard" house: a conveniently located building with three bedrooms, two bathrooms, a big kitchen, two living areas and a dining room sprawled over 2,500 square feet of space on 15,000 square feet of land.

Texas still has a housing market, one that is healthy compared with what one realtor called the "dead" market in the East. It is neither a buyer's nor a seller's market, however; it is a lender's.

So-called "creative financing" that enables you to buy something to live in — if you are willing to pay the price — is ayailable all over the state. One sort of creativity — the "buy down" loan — is born of sellers' desperation.

Another kind of creativity — the "shared appreciation agreement" — illustrates how clever lenders can be when inflation makes money worth less while high interest rates make it cost more.

Buyers, too, can be "creative." They are learning to make do with less and like it ... and they are learning to do without.

Olin Ashley of Odessa was 52 and his wife Jerry was 42 when he was offered a job in Dallas. It was a good mid-management slot and he jumped at the chance. In July, four months later, he resigned and went back to Odessa.

The Ashleys couldn't afford to buy a house.

"We agonized and agonized. It was really a traumatic decision," he said. "I'm not bitter at anybody, but it makes me wonder when I see those beautiful homes. Who lives in them?"

In Odessa, the Ashleys lived in a 1,500-square foot brick house they built 15 years ago for $15,000. It is "small, but nice, with a fireplace, a big back yard and a seven-foot fence."

Interest was 5¾ percent, and payments were $135 a month. The Ashleys put the house on the market for $56,500, sale to be contingent on their finding a house in Dallas. They had no idea how much that would cost them.

"We called a real estate lady and she laughed when we said we wanted to spend about $50,000 or $60,000," Ashley said. "She found five or six houses and they were dogs."

The closest the Ashleys could come to replacing their West Texas house was a new place with precious little charm: "They were just building out there on a caliche mound."

It cost $79,500. Financing at 14 percent interest was available — a "good deal" when the going rate was 16 percent — and monthly payments would have been $755.

"We could have struggled by and made it, probably, but all our money would have been tied up," Ashley said. "I like to have some walking-around money. It depresses me to be strapped."

Houses are strapping their owners. The rule of thumb used to be: Spend no more than 25 percent of your gross income on housing.

These days, the share that goes to the house varies from 66 percent of family income in San Francisco to 32.8 percent in St. Louis, Mo., according to the National Association of Realtors.

As a Dallas-based DRESCO real estate analyst put it, "We all have to pay for housing. But we've never had to pay this much."

Still, although now may be one of the worst times to buy a house, sellers also say it may be one of the worst times not to.

"Interest rates are high, but we're trying to sell people on the idea of buying now if they ever expect to be able to afford a house of their own," said John Phillips, president of the El Paso Association of Buildlers. "We figure the fixed rate, 30-year mortgage will soon be a thing of the past."

What is left is something called "creative financing," although real estate analyst Oliver Mattingly of M-PF Research in Dallas states flatly that "all the financing done today is creative."

Most of it — especially the roll-over mortgage and other versions of variable interest rates — is designed to ensure that the lender will be able to charge you more to use his money if interest rates continue to rise.

This is an example of the golden rule of finance: the people with the gold make the rules.

"The public will just have to get used to the new instruments (mortgage contracts) and go that route," said Robert Estrada, vice president at State National Bank in El Paso. "They'll just have to see if they can afford a house through those methods."

"Any instrument you come up with, the first question is not whether the public will buy it, but will the investor buy it," said Jack Willome, president of Ray Ellison Homes in San Antonio.

"If the investor will buy it, then you have something to try out in the market place to see if the consumer will buy it."

In Texas, consumers do. A report to the Texas Savings and Loan League said mortgage loans for single-family homes rose 23 percent during the first five months of 1981 compared to a year ago. Texans borrowed $1.2 billion to buy houses.

The national total of $11.7 billion was 2 percent below the 1980 figure.

Creativity costs. In the roll-over loan, the buyer pays the price.

Mattingly explained it this way:

"What happens is, in three years the savings and loan or mortgage company says 'Aha! We're now paying 18 percent for our money, so you pay 18 percent.' Technically, the whole note is due at that time, but they're offering to renegotiate.

"What actually happens is that you get a notice in the mail that your payment has been $750, so now it will be $915."

Another new financing plan — the "shared appreciation agreement" — gives the lender part of your profit if you buy now and sell for more later.

"It's new. It's neat for the lender, but it's not neat for you and I when we go to buy a house," said Stan Miller, vice president of Republic Bank's Real Estate Fund.

"The lender is no longer content to put up X dollars without some method of adjusting the return he obtains," he said. "The lender is much more inflation conscious than in the past."

Buyers are not the only ones who pay for creativity. Sellers do, too.

The "buy-down" loan is one example.

"The buy-down arrangement hurts the builder," said Fred Oswald, a senior investment analyst with Republic Bank in Dallas. "The only advantage to him is that he will move some house and won't be stuck with the inventory costs."

Builders are borrowers, too, except that interest rates on their loans are often tied to prime rate, he said.

"If that's 21 percent, and the mortgage rate is 17 percent, he's paying 4 percent more. He's got to pay a lot more to have that house in his inventory than if he went out and bought it himself," Oswald said.

In Texas, tract house builders are "suffering" because they are trying to get money for first-time buyers, Oswald said.

"Instead of saddling his buyer with 17 percent, he's buying down the mortgage with up-front cash: points," he said.

The builder doesn't make money, he just doesn't lose as much.

Economists predict that interest rates may peak, but aren't likely to fall, Oswald said, and the slide into bankruptcy has begun.

"A lot of them (builders) are closing down," said Oswald. "A lot of builders have been trying to finance their stuff any way they could, hoping interest rates would drop. They didn't. So now builders don't have many ways to turn."

Not all are doing badly, however. Some builders and real estate agents have responded to hard times by becoming more sophisticated about money.

Paula Stringer of Merrill Lynch Realty-Paula Stringer Inc., one of the largest real estate agencies in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, said her company was reorganizing to improve its ability to find mortgages for customers.

This year's sales volume is far below projections of $750 million to $800 million. According to executive vice president Vernon Hopkins, sales probably will be closer to $650 million.

"The rules of the game in residential real estate have been unalterably changed," he said. "There is a new demand for mortgage expertise..."

"You don't sell housing. You sell financing," said Howard Owen, publisher of "Update," an industry magazine. In Austin, he said, five builders account for 85 percent of the sales.

The reason: they've been able to lock up money for long-term financing for their customers.

Jim Palmer, of the Bill Milburn Co. in Austin, said his company could still offer flat-rate mortgages at 13½ percent interest. But, he said, the company is operating on a "lower margin than ever before, and we've been in the business 20 years.

"Right now we're biting the bullet. There's not a lot of profit left on the table."

Sal Batista, salesman with the Bissell and Odom Realty Co. in El Paso, said he manages by selling houses with existing mortgages that the buyer can assume.

"Whoever goes after that kind of financing will survive. Whoever depends on new financing will starve," he said.

Even if you are willing to saddle yourself with today's high house payments, the lender may not let you. You must qualify for the loan.

Mattingly sketched the typical qualifyer: a couple with an annual income about 40 percent of the purchase price — $32,000 for an $80,000 house — who have few debts, have held their jobs about five years, and are able to make a "fat down payment, about 25 percent."

"There aren't very many of those people around," he said.

In Dallas, the median price for a house is $87,500. Monthly payments would be about $902 if you put 25 percent down and financed the balance at 16½ percent interest. But that figure is deceptive, according to Mattingly.

To find the median-priced home in Dallas, buyers often must go "way out in the sticks. If you're inside the city, there just aren't any houses under $100,000," he said.

To find a house priced under $65,000, Mattingly said you must be willing to live "way the hell out ..."

Houston's average used house now sells for $95,000, a price one realtor called "depressing, but true." Monthly payments on a used Houston house bought this year are about $1,058.

New houses in Houston are less. The median price is about $71,000, but as Houston Board of Realtors president Buddy Schear explained:

"The new houses go for less... because they're building out a little bit farther and not completely finishing them — no grass or drapes, things like that."

But people are still buying houses, he said, adding that "The idea of not being able to buy a house is ridiculous."

Jim Wright, executive vice president of Lamar Financial Corp. in Austin, looked at the problem this way:

"The person who could afford a house, his wife had to go to work in the 1970s. I don't know what we're going to do in the 1980s — have two wives?"

Drug Addiction Has Increased

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A 17-year-old youth has become the seventh heroin addict to die here of a drug overdose in less than two months. Authorities says drug use, virtually unknown in this communist country 10 years ago, has become a national epidemic.

The youth, who was identified only by his initials — Z.G. — because of his age, died last week, the latest victim of a "social ill" once thought to belong exclusively to the capitalist West.

While heroin addiction in Yugoslavia is on a far smaller scale than in the West, the sharp rise in drug use, particularly the use of heroin, has alarmed local experts who are to meet here next month to seek ways to combat it.

There were only 250 heroin addicts known to police nationwide in 1970. By 1978 there were 5,678 "registered" addicts, those who were caught either using or selling drugs, and some experts believe that for every known addict there are up to 10 who have not been identified by police.

The latest available police records indicate there were 90 new addicts identified in Belgrade, the capital, in the first six months of this year, all of them between the ages of 15 and 23.

Experts speculate that in the capital's population of 1 million there are between 2,000 and 3,000 heroin addicts. Belgrade Police records in 1966 listed only six known addicts.

Yugoslavia, a favorite gateway on the smugglers' route from the opium and hashish fields of the Middle East to the lucrative underground drug markets in Western Europe, had long enjoyed relative immunity from drug abuse.

The youth revolution of the late 1960's, brought a flood or Western fashions, rock music and ideas to Yugoslavia as well as a small-scale surge in drug use that authorities viewed as a "passing fad."

Later the "fad" began to spread among young people, many of whom would gather around an open-air coffeeshop in Belgrade's Republic Square. A police crackdown drove drug users from the square, but as the newspaper Politika put it, "a disturbing spreading of a social ill" had already taken root.

Hermleigh Independent Schools

P. O. Box 195
HERMLEIGH, TEXAS 79526

An open letter to the Taxpayers of the Hermleigh I.S.D.:

The Board of Trustees would like to take this opportunity to explain the proposed tax increase to you, the Hermleigh I.S.D. taxpayer.

Last year the total value of the Hermleigh I.S.D. was 26.7 million after exemptions. Our tax rate was $.62 per one hundred dollars value. Due to the recent re appraisal of all property in the county our value for this tax year is 36.3 million. A little over two million dollars of the increased value is due to new or increased values in oil and gas properties. The balance of the increase is due to increased values placed on the existing real and personal property in the district.

In view of the fact that inflation must be faced and we have not had a tax increase for three years, the Board of Trustees feel that we need a slight increase to keep our operation in the black. After long and careful consideration of this matter, we propose to set the tax rate at $.495 per one hundred dollars value. You will note that this is down from last year's rate but the value has been increased. It is our hope that the total tax dollar paid by any real property taxpayer will remain the same and any increase will come from the oil and mineral increase due to recent drilling. We realize that this will not be exactly the situation because of minor fluctuations in value due to the re appraisal. However, we believe this is as fair and reasonable an approach as we are capable of making.

We will be glad to answer any questions you may have concerning this matter.

Signed,

The Board of Trustees and Superintendent of Hermleigh I.S.D.

Win Second In A Row...

Coyotes Bag Blackwell

GAIL -- Blackwell scored first here Friday night, but Borden County scored the next four times as the Coyotes ran past the visitors in a non-conference outing 36-20.

The victory, Borden's second in a row, gives Coach Randy Roemisch's crew a 2-2 record going into District 2-A six-man competition. The Coyotes are idle next weekend, then travel to Ira to open conference action on Oct. 9.

Nine penalties and two fumbles slowed the hosts down somewhat, but not enough to make a difference in the outcome.

Blackwell got the opening TD of the game when Buford Holland took off on a 45-yard scamper. The point-after try failed.

But that was all the vistors could muster for a while as the Coyotes howled for the remainder of the half and most of the fourth quarter.

JYM RINEHART

Borden County started its domination as Darrell Green hit Jym Rinehart on a 24-yard pass and run play. Junior Benavidez's kick-after put the Coyotes ahead, 8-6.

In the second quarter, Philip Benavidez scored on a 40-yard toss from Rinehard, giving halftime a 14-6 look.

The Coyotes notched two more in the third peiod as Rinehart ran over from five yards out and Green hit Junior Benavidez on another 24-yard strike. Junior Benavidez kicked both conversions good for a 30-6 advantage.

Blackwell finally answered the challenge, but it came too late. Larence Wilson ran the ensuing kickoff back 60 yards to score in the third, and Mike Snuffer crossed the line on a 1-yard run in the fourth. Robert Chew's two point kick made it 30-20.

Borden County got it final points late in th game when Samm Williams scored on a 5 yard run.

Ira Falls, 50-20

CHRISTOVAL - Christoval topped the Ir Bulldogs 50-20 here las night, giving the visitor as 2-2 record heading int their first District 2-A six man ballgame against Mc Caulley next week.

No other informatio was available.

In other pre-conferenc play Friday, Borden Coun ty topped Blackwell 36-20, Trent plugged Paint Rock 40-22, Hermleigh crushed Guthrie 68-22 and Mc-Caulley fell to Benjamin 44-16.

GOOD GAINER -- Snyder quarterback David Nicholson rambles for 27 yards to the Sweetwater 15-yard line on this play early in the second half of Friday's District 2-AAAA battle here. Though the Tigers reached the 11 they were turned away from what would have been the go-ahead score, and Sweetwater eventually won 40-21 with two fourth-quarter TDs. By BILL MCCLELLAN

Sweetwater's Mustangs used big play offense in the first two quarters and ball control in the final two to hand Snyder High School its fourth loss of the season in a District 2-AAAA confrontation here Friday night, 40-21.

Coach W.T. Stapler's Ponies offered up a bonanza of trickery for the Tigers during the 48 minutes. The visitors set up one touchdown with a fake punt, scored another on a halfback pass, and recovered two onside kickoffs to befuddle the Tiger team.

Still, Snyder hung tough before Sweetwater scored a late TD to go in front 26-21 at intermission. But it wasn't the first half, but the fourth quarter in which the Mustangs won the ballgame.

Snyder, which had mixed its plays well in the first two quarters to come up with 238 yards, gained only 29 yards on the ground in the final two periods - all in the third quarter. The Tigers hoped to utilize the steady wind to get a passing game going midway through the third, but without threat of the run, their aerial attack went nowhere.

Snyder in fact had only 21 plays in the final half, while the Mustangs had the ball for 40 - 27 of them in the final quarter.

Though the hosts reached the Mustang 11-yard line early in the second quarter, Sweetwater managed to shut them down, and neither team was able to move the ball until the Mustangs took over on their own 20 with about 2 minutes to play. Staying strickly on the ground and utilizing runningbacks John White, Greg Harvey and Danny Williams, the Mustangs ground out 80 yards in 17 plays that ate up almost eight minutes off the clock.

Williams took in the score, crossing over from a yard out with 6:55 to go in the game. His PAT kick was good, giving the visitors a 32-21 lead.

Sweetwater all but sacked up the game seconds later when Harvey recovered a Mustangs onside kick.

The Red and White ran more time off the clock before Britt Vincent picked off Fabian DeLeon's second halfback pass of the game and ran it back to the Tiger 45-yard line.

Fortune turned to disaster on the next play as Nicholson and Vincent connected on a long pass-run combination. Vincent nabbed the toss and was inside Mustang territory when he was jarred loose from the football. Joe Bentle was there to fall on it for the Mustangs, and Snyder's final threat was averted.

From there, Sweetwater nailed the lid shut as Williams, White and quarterback Scott Richardson rolled 69 yards in nine plays to score. The TD came on a 5-yard toss from Richardson to end Ricky Harris - Harris' third touchdown reception of the night. Williams' kick-after was good for the final 40-21 score.

Sweetwater had scored first in the game. After Snyder held the visitors to a third-and-long situation, Richardson hit Williams on a screen pass that went for 50 yards in the first quarter, 6-0.

Snyder retaliated however, as Nicholson found Curtis Gafford on a 10-yard scoring play moments later that wrapped up a 46-yard march. Perry Echols kick-after was good, 7-6. The six-down drive was highlighted by runs of 15, 4 and 6 yards from Raymond Jeffrey, Snyder's leading ballcarrier of the night.

It appeared as if Snyder might be on the winning track early in the second period when the Tigers zipped off a 56-yard, eight-play series that ended in a 3-yard scoring run by Jeffrey. Echols' kick-after was good again, giving Snyder a 14-6 advantage.

But Sweetwater struck back with trickery again. On a fourth and nine play, Williams took the snap on an apparent punt, and raced 17 steps to the Tiger 25-yard line. Five plays later White took it over from a yard out to bring the Ponies within two, 14-12. Williams' PAT run was cut short.

The remainder of the quarter was a bizarre series of big plays as Sweetwater scored with 2:30 left on a halfback pass from Fabian DeLeon to Harris for 41 yards; Snyder scored with 1:34 remaining on a 71-yard reverse by Brent Roemisch; and the Mustangs answered again on a 38-yard pass from Richardson to Harris with 1:09 to go. Of the conversion attempts, only Echols' one-point kick for Snyder was successful.

Sweetwater takes its unblemished record back to the Mustang Bowl to host Lake View, a 21-15 loser to Andrews, next week. Snyder gets a week off before treking to San Angelo on Oct. 9.

In other District 2-AAAA scores from Friday, state-ranked Andrews stayed unbeated with its six-point win over the Chiefs (2-2 and 1-1); Fort Stockton (3-1 and 1-1) topped winless Lamesa 21-7; and Monahans (4-0, 2-0), edged Pecos (2-2, 1-1) 18-13.

Byerly Says...

'Stang Execution, Not Trickery The Difference

It wasn't the trickery itself, but the execution of it that caught Snyder in a 40-21 District 2-AAAA loss to Sweetwater here Friday night, said Tiger head coach George Byerly.

"We were prepared for all of their onside kicks and things, we just couldn't stop them," said Byerly Saturday morning. "They had excellent execution on them."

For instance, "We expected them to try the fake punt so we brought everybody up, but they still got 14-15 yards on it and a first down. They're a real good ballclub."

Big plays were what put the Mustangs on top, as they took advantage of two on-side kicks, a fake punt, a halfback pass and some Tiger errors to eventually win the game.

"They weren't able to drive the ball on us in the first three quarters. We just gave up too many big plays," said the coach. "I think then when they got in a position where they were ahead they just wore us down. We were giving good effort, but we were just physically beat and I think you could see that," he added.

The key came in the second half, when Snyder saw the football only briefly.

"We drove the ball down near their goal line and stopped ourselves," said Byerly of Snyder's opening second-half drive which ended at the Mustang 11-yard line. "Then we were stopped on a penalty, then a fumble, and then the clock ran out. We didn't get many opportunities to do much in that second half.

"Penalties hurt us. We had more penalties (62 yards worth) in this game than we've had in all three of our previous games."

Despite suffering their fourth loss of the season, Byerly wouldn't fault the effort put out by Snyder.

"I thought we had good effort. We some mistakes that might have made a difference, but our effort was there. We've got some good kids here. We're going to catch somebody," he added.

Byerly also noted that linebacker Ronnie Lindsey suffered a separated shoulder in the contest and will be out for probably several weeks.

Cats Split A Pair

Snyder seventh grade traded blows and victories with Sweetwater here Friday evening.

Snyder's Gold Team won 6-0, while the White team fell 12-6.

The local seventh grade will hold an intrasquad scrimmage at 4 p.m. Thursday and closes out the season Oct. 22 against Sweetwater.

Jerry Villarreal ran for four yards off tackle in the second half to post the only score as Snyder Gold topped Sweetwater White, 6-0. The TD run was set up by a 30-yard kickoff return from Villarreal and several running plays by co-backs Chris Garrett

Broncos Figure To Slow San Diego Sunday

by The Associated Press

Tom Jackson isn't sure whether Denver's Orange Crush defense is back. But just in case, he has a message for San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts - look out.

Jackson, Denver's All-Pro linebacker, said the Broncos won't be able to shut down the undefeated San Diego Chargers offense in Sunday's game in Denver. But the Broncos can make life miserable for Fouts, the National Football League's top-rated passer.

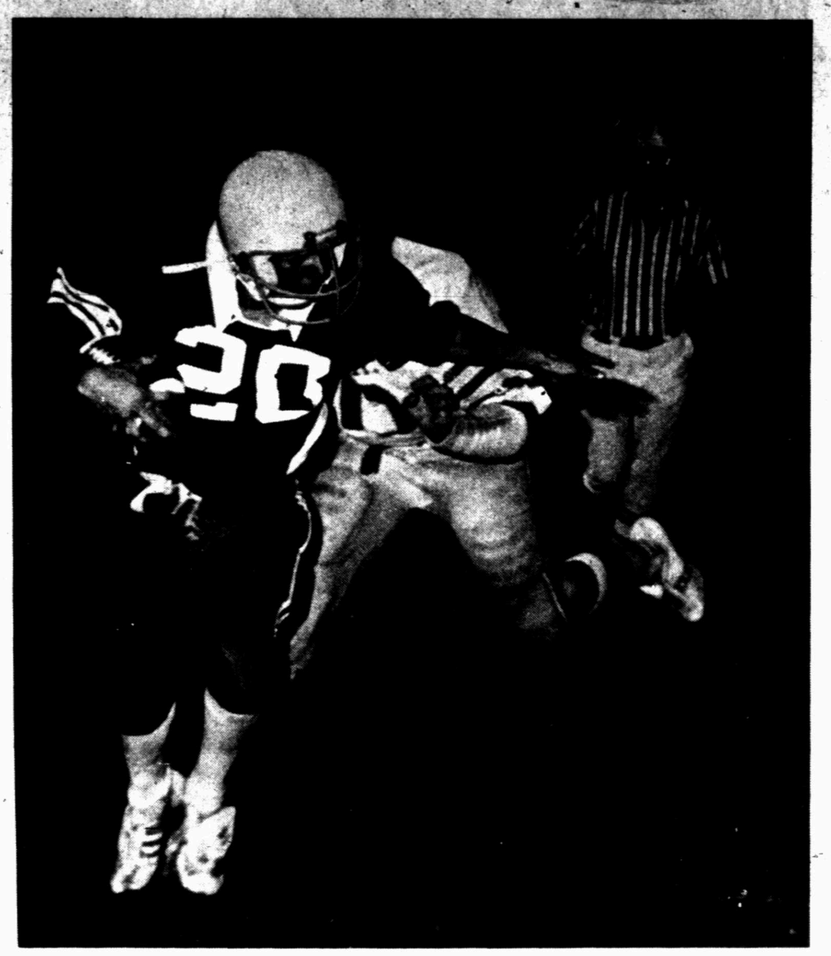

"Fouts throws for 300 yards against us every time we face him," said Jackson. "But that's OK as long as it's for 5 or 10 yards at a time. We must put pressure on him. He's been sacked only once in three games, but you can pressure him into throwing interceptions or to throwing that dink pass or the quick pass for short yardage."

That's exactly what the Broncos did to Fouts last year in San Diego. Although Denver yielded 459 yards in total offense, they sacked Fouts six times, forcing one interception, and kept the Chargers out of the end zone until the fourth quarter en route to a 20-13 victory.

The Dallas Cowboys, Philadelphia Eagles, Atlanta Falcons and Miami Dolphins also will try to stretch their records to 4-0 this Sunday. The Cowboys host the New York Giants, the Eagles entertain the winless Washington Redskins, Miami meets the Colts in Baltimore and Atlanta travels to Cleveland to meet the Browns.

Elsewhere Sunday, it's Buffalo at Cincinnati, Houston at the New York Jets, Kansas City at Seattle, New England at Pittsburgh, Minnesota versus Green Bay at Milwaukee, New Orleans at San Francisco and St. Louis at Tampa Bay.

The Monday night game features Los Angeles at Chicago.

Dallas, led by Tony Dorsett, boasts the league's No.1 rushing offense. Dorsett, who suffered bruised ribs and a twisted ankle last Monday night, has rambled for 423 yards, averaging 7.6 yards per carry. The Giants, 2-1, have not beaten Dallas in Texas since 1974.

The Eagles will put Louie Giammona on the spot again when they meet Washington. Giammona, Coach Dick Vermeil's nephew, will be replacing No.1 halfback Wilbert Montgomery, out with a pulled hamstring.

Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs is still looking for first win. The last time Washington started the season 0-3 was 1965.

Matt Cavanaugh, who led the University of Pittsburgh to the national collegiate title in 1976, returns to Pittsburgh Sunday at the helm of the winless New England Patriots. The Steelers, 1-2, woke up last weekend, crushing the Jets 38-10, while rolling up 566 in offense.

The Jets, 0-3, are hoping to recapture some of the magic from last year's contest against Houston, a game New York won 31-28 in overtime. The Oilers, 2-1, will try to sew up the holes in their offensive line that allowed quarterback Ken Stabler to be sacked eight times by the Dolphins last week, one shy of the club record.

Cards Celebrate Win Over Guthrie

HERMLEIGH -- There may be joy in Mudville tonight, but don't tell the Hermleigh Cardinals about it. They're having a celebration of their own.

After suffering through three straight losses, the Cardinals hosted an unsuspecting Guthrie team to homecoming Friday night for what turned out to be a cold welcome and a 68-22 victory.

Coach Clarence Spieker's Cardinals piled up a 30-14 halftime lead, added 24 more points in the third quarter and turned off the scoreboard via the six-man 45-point rule with about a minute and a half left in the game.

"It was really a big boost," said Spieker. "I felt like we played our best ball game we've played all year Friday night. We got close and had some chances to win in our other games, but this time we did the right things to come out on top."

Spieker didn't have statistics available, but noted that Kenny Riley scored five touchdowns, Dennis Jones three and Mike Nachlinger one. For Guthrie, Scott Bryant, Lacy Colwell and Clinton Lewis had a TD apiece. Lewis Kicked two conversions.

Ironically, Hermleigh played the game minus three starters.

"I'd like to mention our offensive line because they did a terrific job," the coach said. "Both of our ends, Daniel Martinez and Ted Olsen were sick, and Pat Kincaid and Cary Gunset - along with our regular center Darrell Mayo - did a good job filling in. They (Martinez and Olsen) are also our starters on defensive end and Daryl Nachlinger and Dennis Jones, our safety, took over there. We put (quarterback) Kevin Roemisch at safety. Also, Anthony Roa played linebacker for Robbie Mullins (also ill).

"I thought Dennis and (linebacker) Kenny Riley did an outstanding job on defense and the others filled in and did well, too."

So well, in fact...

"These other players are going to have to work now to get their jobs back," said the coach. "It's a good situation when you can have people come in for your starters and still get the job done and they were able to do that Friday night."

The win will hopefully warm Hermleigh for District 2-A play which opens here next week. The Cards won't have any pushovers to start, however, as they host 3-1 Trent and highly-touted Highland back-to-back.

and Toby Ubando.

Offensive line members Mark Helms, Dennis Martinez, Casey Hale, Lee McCathern and Doug Smith were cited for their effort, as was Cotton Merritt, who intercepted two passes in the game. Villarreal also blocked a punt on defense.

In the other game, Snyder White got six points on a first-half run of six yards by Brad Vincent. Roman Mungia had a run of 25 yards and a TD run of 50 that was called back by penalty.

Darrell Williams and Daniel Chasteen recovered a fumble apiece in the game. Other standouts defensively were Vincent, Ricky Gomez and Mark Taylor.

Astros Slip Further; Fall To Dodgers, 3-0

HOUSTON (AP) - Burt Hooton pitched a four-hitter and Dusty Baker knocked in two runs Friday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Houston Astros 3-0.

The loss cut Houston's lead in the National League West to 1½ games over Cincinnati, which beat Atlanta 10-2.

Baker, who extended his hitting streak to 12 games, drove home the game's first run with a single in the first inning and Hooton retired 16 Astros in a row after yielding a triple to Jose Cruz to open the second.

After Cruz's hit, Hooton did not allow another base runner until Tony Scott reached first on an infield hit off Hooton's glove with one out in the seventh inning.

The Dodgers chased Vern Ruhle, 4-5, with two more runs in the eighth inning on an RBI single by Landreaux and a sacrifice fly by Baker.

Hooton started the inning with a double, took third when Dave Lopes reached first on Craig Reynolds' throwing error and scored on Landreaux's hit. Lopes then came home on Baker's sacrifice fly.

Houston had a chance to even the score in the second inning when Cruz led off with a triple to the left field corner.

But Hooton, 11-6, got himself out of trouble by striking out Denny Walling, catching Cruz off third base on a grounder back to the mound by Art Howe and striking out Alan Ashby.

Rangers Clout 'Sota Twins, 5-2

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - Pat Putnam's three-run homer and Mickey Rivers' four hits - two doubles, a single and a triple - carried the Texas Rangers to a 5-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Friday night.

Putnam capped a two-out rally in the third inning with his eighth homer of the season to score Al Oliver and Buddy Bell ahead of him.

Oliver reached first on a fielder's choice and moved to second when Bell walked. Putnam then lined a fastball by Twins' starter Al Williams, 6-9, over the right field fence.

Charlie Hough, 3-1, went 61-3 innings for Texas, allowing five hits and two runs before being replaced by Steve Comer, who earned his sixth save.

Hough gave up an infield single to Rob Wilfong in the first inning but then retired 12 consecutive batters before Gary Ward reached base in the fifth on a wild pitch after striking out.

The Twins scored twice in the seventh to knock out Hough. Rookie Kent Hrbek's double scored John Castino and Ward to trim the margin to 4-2.

Leon Roberts drove in both of Texas' other runs with a single in the second inning and another single in the ninth to score Jim Sundberg, who had tripled.

Sumlin Could Be Key Ball Handler

Western Texas College coach Larry Dunaway has signed some fine freshman and sophomore talent for the coming men's basketball season, and one of the key picks to help the Westerners in their run for the conference title could be Robbie Sumlin.

A 6-2, 180-pound junior college tranfer from Bakersfield, Calif., Sumlin will be with WTC for a year before hopefully moving on to bigger things.

"Robbie, I think, has a chance to be a definite Division I player," said Dunaway. "It will be a while before he learns the way we do things out here, but once he gets the knowledge he has the physical ability to be a heck of a guard. He's the first true guard we've had since I've been here that is a real physical ball player."

Sumlin, who could be a key ballhandler for the Westerners, is not lacking in skills.

"He can take it to the inside and score and he's a good shooter and a passer," said the coach. "We're really hopefull that Robbie can help us out a lot."

Golf Pairings

Briscoe May Run In 1982

UVALDE, Texas (AP) — Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he is still talking about a Texas governor's race in 1982 but he had made no decision.

"I have not made any political decision at this point," Briscoe told Laredo radio station KVOZ from his Uvalde office. "I have some other commitments at this time, so I have not made any political decision. My position is the same as it has been for the past few years. I have not closed any doors concerning future political activity or future races."

Briscoe responded to published reports that quoted "insiders" as saying he had decided to seek the 1982 Democratic nomination.

"My 'insiders' don't tell me he is going to run," Republican Gov. Bill Clements told a news conference Friday. "They say he may or may not make this decision but there has been no decision at this time ... I have not discussed it with him."

Clements, who has informally announced he will seek re-election in 1982, said he was sure Texas Democrats would provide opposition.

Last May Briscoe filed papers with the secretary of state designating himself as his own campaign treasurer for an unspecified political race. State law requires such filing before contributions can be solicited for any political race.

Queen Victoria was proclaimed Empress of India in 1877.

The Wednesday night workshops and lessons are always open for interested spectators or those desiring to learn more about the lessons. At present, there are fifty-seven members in this dancing group. Any member of the group will be glad to talk with prospective square dancers.

Club officers during the past six months have been Bo and Nellie Womack, president; Orval and Marge Mathis, vice president; and Joe and Betty Doan, secretary-treasurer.

Couple Wed In Lubbock Church

Rhonda Gayle Border became the bride of Michael Scott Bingham September 12 at seven in the evening at Faith Baptist Church in Lubbock. Reverend Glenn Border, the bride's father and pastor of the church, officiated the double ring ceremony. He was assisted by Harley Bingham, father of the groom.

The bride is the daughter of Reverend and Mrs. Glenn Border and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harley Bingham, all of Lubbock.

The altar was centered by an arch with greenery and bows and ribbons held by white doves running to spiral candelabra. A memory candle was under the arch.

Reverend Chester Beavers, uncle of the bride, was organist and Mrs. Vickie Hughes, sister of the bride, Miss Pam Rutherford, cousin of the groom, and Gary Williams were vocalists. Mr. Williams presented "The Wedding Song," Miss Rutherford sang "If," and Mrs. Hughes sang "That's the Way It Is."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of polyester organza. The fitted bodice was accented with a V-shaped inset, outlined in Venice lace and trimmed with a Chantilly lace ruffle. The high ruffled collar was trimmed with matching Venice lace and the tapered lace sleeves enhanced the empire bodice. The skirt featured a deep ruffle at the hemline which was also accented with lace and flowed into a full chapel length train. An elbow length veil was attached to a Camelot cap. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and rosebuds entwined with baby's breath and trimmed with baby blue lace and ribbons which was designed by her grandmother, Mrs. J. B. Smith.

Traditionally, she carried her mother's wedding ring as something old. She wore a new diamond necklace, a gift from the groom, her wedding dress was borrowed from her sister, Mrs. Diane Dorman, and she carried a lace handkerchief with a blue monogram, a gift from the groom's mother.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL SCOTT BINGHAM

Miss Kathy Hunter of Snyder served as maid of honor. Miss Brenda Bingham, sister of the groom, of Lubbock and Miss Linda Hunter of Snyder were bridesmaids. They wore a long baby blue dresses with sheer baby blue and navy [illegible]al capes.

Christi Beavers of Dallas, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress was similar to those of the attendants and she carried a lace basket with love knots.

Best man was John Carpenter of Shreveport, Louisiana and groomsmen were Randy Smith and David Border, brother of the bride, both of Lubbock. Ushers and candlelighters were Rick Potts and John Teague, both of Lubbock.

The fellowship hall of the church was the scene of the reception.

The bride's table was laid with a white lace cloth over baby blue linen and centered with an arrangement of baby blue and white flowers. The four-tiered cake, made by the bride's mother, was decorated with baby blue and navy silk flowers and topped with white satin wedding bells. Mrs. Dean Wheeler of White Deer, the bride's aunt, Mrs. Bill Odom of Lubbock, and Mrs. Dennis Vaughan, cousin of the bride, presided at the table.

The groom's table featured a silver coffee service. Mrs. Clint Rutherford of Lubbock, the groom's aunt, and Mrs. Connie Mankin of Abilene, cousin of the groom, served the German chocolate cake and coffee.

Miss Karla Parker of Lubbock, cousin of the groom, registered guests as they arrived.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, New Mexico, the couple will live in Andrews.

The bride graduated from Borger High School and has been employed as a medical receptionist.

The groom is a graduate of Lubbock Monterey High School and Texas Tech. He is an engineer for Continental Telephone in Andrews.

As Well As Big City...

Young Drug Users Are Common In Rural Areas

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — School-age children in rural areas and small towns use illegal drugs as much as their big-city counterparts, a study by three Ball State University professors shows.

"We've had a tendency in the past to think of the drug problem as largely confined to the inner city of large cities and maybe the suburbs of large cities," said Linda Wakefield, an analyst in the Indiana Department of Mental Health's division of addiction services.

"I think this is going to mean a change in the way we look at some of our priorities," she said. "We have been concentrating our efforts toward kids from large cities and pretty much ignoring rural areas in terms of drug prevention."

The results come from the second phase of the Indiana School Drug Study, sponsored by the addiction services division. Responses on drug and alcohol use were gathered from more than 10,000 students in the state's five larges school systems and from more than 11,000 students in 17 small city and rural school districts. The survey included students in grades 7, 9, 10 and 12.

Sixty-six percent of the big-city 12th-graders said they had used marijuana, compared with 63 percent of the small-town 12th-graders. Among 7th-graders, 22 percent of the city youth and 19 percent of the small-town youth said they had tried marijuana.

Those who said they had used it more than 51 times a year numbered 16 percent of the large city sample and 13 percent of those in smaller towns.

In all four grades, a higher percentage of small city students reported some experience with alcoholic beverages. For example, 78 percent of the small city and rural 12th-graders said they had tried alcoholic drinks, compared with 69 percent of large city seniors.

Cigarette smoking occurred less frequently among seniors than occasional use of alcohol. Twenty-nine percent of large city 12th-graders said they smoked cigarettes, compared with 28 percent of the smaller town 12th-graders.

This has been "Be kind to East and West Week." Somehow or other, they have managed to beat every contract.

Today's hand is taken from a match-point game. Practically every declarer got to four hearts and practically every declarer won the first trick with his club ace and then started proceedings by drawing trumps.

When a spade would be led to dummy. At those tables where West took his ace right away, South scored two spades tricks to come to the magic number of 10. At those tables where West ducked that first spade South had to lead a diamond to try to get back to his hand. West would take his ace and lead a second club and South would be down to one.

The really careful South players drew just one trump and then led a spade.

West would duck and South would be able to get back to his own hand with a trump, draw the rest of the trumps and lead a second spade while dummy still had the king of clubs entry.

Of course, this line of play had postponed the drawing of trumps. But the risk of a ruff was more than compensated for by the chance to use a trump to return to the South hand for a second spade lead.

bureaucratese cut

Big words and high-sounding phrases as used by Washington bureaucrats do not impress Malcom Baldridge, Secretary of Commerce. He is, in fact, the Reagan administration's leader for plain talk in the nation's capital.

Baldridge began his campaign for better communicating when he noticed people in government spoke in multi-syllable words and phrases that I'm not sure even they understood completely."

"The only reason I could see for them talking that kind of talk was a subconscious urge to cover one's self.There is a kind of protection in statements and a recommendation so vague that it can be interpreted two or three ways on a single issue," he said.

"That's not communicating; that's covering one's flanks."

Baldridge has drawn up a list of forbidden words and phrases---at least they are to be avoided most of the time---to guide his own department. Included are such bureaucratese as bottom line, enclosed herewith, finalize, hopefully, input, image, it is my intention, maximize, more importantly, needless to say, new initiatives, ongoing to impact, viable and mutually beneficial.

Sally Jacobsen, an Associated Press writer in Washington, used some of the banned words and phrases to illustrate the Baldridge idea: "Needless to say," the "bottom line" is that writers can "maximize" a more "viable" memo if they keep it short and simple.

How could the bureaucract exist if it took seriously the Baldridge method of communicating? Most of its work force could be eliminated: those who compose the communications and those who spend even more time trying to decode them.

The feller on Deep Creek says his wife had instant replay long before TV began using it.

President Reagan is finding that making cuts in the hefty national budget is far from easy.

Everytime a reduction is suggested, some special interest group perks up and claims foul. For example, the administration has been off and on with regard to social security benefits.

However, there have been a couple of areas where cuts have been successful. One is in the student loan program where limits on the amount of family income, higher interest rates and required paybacks will put the program on a more business-like basis.

The free school lunch program is another area that the Reagan charges have attacked. We still have free school lunches, but local school officials now have the authority to run the program on a sound economic basis.

Public school officials across the nation recently received new guidelines concerning free student lunches. Schools such as Snyder now have the right to question information provided on free and reduced price lunch applications.

In the past, school officials did not have the authority to question family income or number of children in a household, two important factors in eligibility for free lunches.

Now, school districts may request verification from an employer or they may question the applicant concerning income or number of persons residing in the household.

There are those who would fault Mr. Reagan as being insensitive to hungry children, but we believe that putting the free lunch program on a sound business basis is fair to both qualified recipients and to taxpayers.

According to a U.S. Treasury Department textbook on thrift, 100 average men who start their productive life at 25 will end up as follows:

At 65, one is wealthy, four are well-to-do; 59 are not self-supporting: and 36 have died.

The odds aren't too good are they? It is necessary to consider, however, that this information came from a government textbook and the government researchers may have gotten carried away in the bureaucratic pasttime of compiling statistics.

Letter To The Editor

To The Daily News:

On August 29, it became necessary for us to use the sheriff's department, our EMS and ambulance service, and our hospital facilities. Our son was injured in a tractor accident. The sheriff's department escorted the ambulance to and from the scene. We would like to commend the actions of the EMS. We have been told that the very cautious and careful attention that was given to Steve by the two attendants prevented further injury. They did everything that was necessary, including remaining at the hospital until they were sure they would not be needed for further transport.

Dr. Shashi Rao, Dr. John Best, the hospital personnel and our new hospital facilities made this easier to bear. Steve used many of the excellent departments that our hospital has. The third floor surgical nurses did everything possible to make Steve and us comfortable.

The Snyder Junior High faculty and students stood behind Steve with their visits, calls and cards. His teachers offered help on assignments whenever needed. The eighth grade coaches and football team brought the game ball of their first game to Steve.

Churches have had special prayer for Steve. People brought food, kept our other two children, friends comforted and offered help in any way possible.

Steve is finally home and with continued treatment is showing much improvement everyday. With this letter, we are trying to show what the wonderful people of Snyder are like, a loving and caring people. Words will never be able to express what we feel for you, but we wanted to try anyway. God bless you.

commentary

donald f. graff

"Few Americans know much about South West Africa and, at this point, probably even fewer care.

"Twice the size of Texas, largely desolate and today the home of an estimated 900,000 blacks and 100,000 whites, it was among the leftovers picked up by Imperial Germany during the 19th-century carving up of Africa by the European powers. After World War I, it passed to South Africa which in recent years has been less interested in the territory as such than in maintaining a buffer between its home turf and black Africa's hostile new nations.

"Now, all the interested parties-South Africa, black guerrillas and neighboring states-have accepted a five-nation Western plan for independence with provisions for South Africa's security and economic interests. All indications are that colonial South West Africa will be transformed into independent Namibia by the end of this year.

"If all goes well, there will subsequently be little news from Namibia and Americans will continue to know little about the country. And in this case that will be good news, since big news from that part of the world is generally bad."

Those words appeared in this space three years ago, and they just go to show how wrong you can be.

All has gone far from well. Dependent South West Africa did not quietly metamorphose into independent Namibia. It did the opposite, plunging violently into an anti-colonial guerrilla war. That has made news, and now the South African army's incursions into neighboring Angola in pursuit of guerrillas have made it big and increasingly bad.

South Africa's aggressive response to the guerrilla challenge has produced a predictable Third World gang-up in the United Nations. Further, the American veto of a condemnatory resolution has distanced the Reagan administration from those same Third Worlders and also its own Western allies.

In retrospect, the South West Africa question is not what went wrong but what made any realistic observer think it would not. It is, of course, just possible that South Africa was prepared to withdraw gracefully, as the accord of three years ago seemed to signal. But not really probable.

Independence under no matter what provisions for shared power would sooner or later lead to black control, an inevitability in today's Africa that South Africa nevertheless opposes with all its considerable political, economic and military resources.

At the moment it is making a big media deal of the capture of Soviet equipment and personnel in the Angolan operation, evidence of a fact no one denies. The Cubans are known to have some 20,000 troops in the country and the Soviets possibly several thousand support personnel.

If it is their departure that is desired, which Washington says is primary to its policy in the area, the publicity is unlikely to hasten it. More likely the contrary. The South African raid gives the Angolan regime justification not only for encouraging its guests to stay on, but for reinforcement.

If Washington appears to miss that point, it is unlikely that Pretoria and Johannesburg do. While the men who run South Africa may be obsessed to the point of paranoia with a Communist threat they see as the real force behind black nationalism, they are also shrewd enough to recognize how a verified Communist presence serves their ends. Justifying, for example, a continued repressive grip on not only South West Africa but their own country's black majority.

What comes next? Certainly not early independence for Namibia on terms South Africa opposes. The South Africans have the means and will to have their way in their immediate neighborhood. Only the United States has the clout to influence them to any significant degree. Even so, there was not much effect when the Carter administration tried, and the South Africans have encouraging evidence that its successor is less likely to try.

So South Africa should continue to win battles. The war, however, is likely to be decided by other factors, as has been the case everywhere else in Africa.

Time and numbers. And both are on the other side.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

I saw a for-sale ad for a dog the other day. Listed among his assets was a promise that he was "partially housebroken."

That is like being "partially pregnant."

We have a dog who has lived with paper so long, we bought him a subscription to The N.Y. Times for Christmas. He loves the book section.

He is six years old--and if you can visualize a 42-year-old man in a shaggy fur coat who watches television for six hours each evening and never leaves the room for a commercial, you got it.

Frankly, I worry about the dog. He knows nothing of nature. He has never seen a tree, a blade of grass, a curb, a pillar, a low chair leg or a car tire.

He has no curiosity as to why the velvet on the chair is so hard for him to reach or why they would make a shag carpet so difficult to balance yourself on three legs.

And don't tell me we haven't tried. We did the whole number when he was a puppy. We praised him when he went where he was supposed to, and we punished him when he missed the paper. I don't understand it. It worked for the kids.

We installed a doggy door for his convenience. We now have a $300 door with a hole in it that lets the heat out in the winter and the air-conditioning out in the summer.

One day I was in the kitchen when I heard a dog authority on a talk show. The host was asking him what to do when a dog wet on the same chair all the time. I dropped the dish towel and ran in just in time to hear the dog authority smile and say, "Throw away the chair."

I've learned a lot, too. I've learned to close all the doors to the rest of the house when I leave and I've discovered white shoe polish applied directly to the spots on the sofa and dim lights will make the house seem less like a kennel.

The dog is not stupid. The other day he received a catalogue from a dog boutique in the East.

I know in my heart he ordered if from the book section of The New York Times.

Richards Is Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harsh criticisms that James Richards' friendship with Interior Secretary James Watt would prevent him from performing independently failed to prevent the Senate from confirming his nomination as the Energy Department's inspector general.

Vows Exchanged In Double Ring Rites

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS WAYNE LEE
(Ted Bigham Photography)

Couple Repeats Vows In Afternoon Ceremony

Amand Lynn Frazier and Dennis Wayne Lee were united in marriage on September 5 at three in the afternoon in the Lighthouse Assembly of God Church. Reverend Danny Williams officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Sharon Richardson and the groom is the son of Jean Lee and the late O. W. Lee.

The altar was centered with a rainbow brass candelabrum holding flowers of blue and lavender with leatherleaf fern and baby's breath.

Fern Culbertson, cousin of the bride, played "Theme from Love Story," "You Light Up My Life," and "The Wedding Prayer." Connie Williams sang "Surround Me with Love," accompanied by Windel Wilbourn on the bass guitar.

The bride's mother gave her in marriage. She was attired in a Silesta gown with a watteau back. The front featured a Queen Anne neckline accented with a multi-floral Venice applique. The skirt descended from a moderately raised waist and the long fitted sleeves were of re-embroidered English tulle. She carried a cascade bouquet of blue and white Frenched carnations, baby's breath and LaVonda lavender roses with streamers of white and blue bridal picot and pixie lavender.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore a garnet and diamond ring that belonged to the late Mrs. George Clary for something old. Her dress was new and a pearl necklace was a gift from her future mother-in-law. She wore diamond earrings borrowed from Cindy Garcia and a blue garter.

Miss Julie Latham served as maid of honor and Miss Tina Strong was bridesmaid. They each wore a lavender floor length gown with an off the shoulder ruffle and ruffle up the back and carried nosegays of blue and lavender Frenched carnations and starburst mums with streamers of blue and lavender satin.

Stacy Richardson, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white lace gown with lavender roses at the waist.

Best man was Thomas Witt and Greg Merrick was groomsman.

Steve Wright seated the guests and Eric Wright of Odessa was ring bearer.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

The bride's table was centered with a silk arrangement of white asters and lavender orchids with blue apple blossoms. The cake was three-tiered with a fountain and blue and lavender roses. Appointments were in crystal and silver. Ms. Cindy Garcia, Ms. Janie Dyer and Ms. Anette Way presided at the table.

Miss Carrie Ainsworth presided at the groom's table. It was covered with a burgundy cloth and held a silver coffee service.

Ms. Cindy Garcia registered guests as they arrived.

After a wedding trip to Lubbock, the couple will be at home in Snyder where the groom is employed by Lawrence Drilling Co.

Out of town guests were from Dallas, Fort Worth, Midland, Odessa, Hobbs, New Mexico, Colorado City, and Sweetwater.

Brentz Lureine Beauchamp became the bride of James M. Brown Jr. at eight in the evening on August 8 at Union Baptist Church. Tom Reynolds, pastor of University Baptist Church in Lubbock, officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beauchamp of Hermleigh and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James M. Brown Sr. of Irving.

The altar was decorated with an extended archway of 29 burning tapers. Entwined needlepoint ivy, plumosa and leather decorated the rail and windows. Baskets of white gladiolus and blue carnations completed the setting. The family pews were marked with blue satin bows.

Mrs. Andy Brown played the piano and Jim Patrick was soloist. Taped music selected by the couple was also played during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline and an empire bodice with an overlay of Alencon lace encrusted with seed pearls. The long bishop sleeves had wide bands of lace and tiny covered buttons at the wrist. The A-line skirt had a deep ruffle at the hemline that cascaded into a chapel length train. The gown was buttoned up the back with tiny seed pearl buttons and a white flower was in center back.

The headpiece, borrowed from the groom's sister, was a Juliet cap of matching lace with a three-tiered veil of imported illusion.

The bride carried a cascade of white silk roses, blue and white carnations, lilies of the valley, and baby's breath tied with blue and white satin streamers.

The bride's mother wore a peach satin floor length gown and a corsage of peach and white carnations and baby's breath. Her father wore a blue tuxedo and a white ruffled shirt.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES M. BROWN JR.

The groom's mother was dressed in a beige dress belted at the waist with a gold medallion. A brown capelet completed the ensemble. His father wore gray tuxedo and white ruffled shirt.

Miss Sandee Gray served as maid of honor. She was attired in a blue polyester gown and a blue floral organza cape with a deep ruffle trimmed in white lace. A white ribbon sash and a headpiece of tiny blue flowers entwined with baby's breath completed the ensemble. She carried a colonial bouquet of blue and white silk carnations and baby's breath.

Ms. Brenda Beauchamp, sister of the bride, and Ms. Debbie Richter, both of Lubbock, served as bridesmaids. Andrea Brown of Hamlin was flower girl. Their costumes were identical to that worn by the maid of honor and the bridesmaids carried blue long stemmed carnations with baby's breath and blue ribbon.

Best man was David Clement of Dallas and groomsmen were John Weikum of Lubbock and Bob Brown, brother of the groom, of Irving. They also served as ushers and wore blue tuxedos and white ruffled shirts.

Ring bearer was Tim Beauchamp, brother of the bride, of Hermleigh. He wore a blue tuxedo and a white ruffled shirt.

The fellowship hall of the church was the scene of the reception following the ceremony.

The bride's table was draped with a blue cloth and held a three-tiered cake decorated with blue roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom that had graced her mother's wedding cake. Punch was served from a silver punch bowl and the silver flatware used was a gift from the bride's parents. Ms. Brenda Beauchamp, sister of the bride, Ms. Debbie Richter and Ms. Sandee Gray presided at the table.

The groom's table was covered with a brown cloth and centered with a trophy belonging the groom. Ms. Debra Brown, cousin of the bride, and Ms. Carol Brown, sister of the groom, served the chocolate cake and coffee from a silver service.

Di'Ann Puttman of Lubbock registered guests in the bride's book.

Members of the houseparty were Florine Merritt, Donna Gray, Faye Layne, Dorothy Mae Rosson, Dorothy Rosson, Lanelle Rosson, Ruth Beauchamp, and Jane Hammond.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside in Lubbock.

The bride is a 1980 high school graduate and attended Western Texas College.

The groom graduated from Irving High School and is attending Texas Tech. He also works for Texas Instruments.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at K-Bob's.

Out of town guests were from Levelland, Lubbock, Brownfield, Andrews, San Angelo, Sweetwater, Anson, Hamlin, Abilene, Hillsboro, Irving, Breckenridge, and Big Spring.

GRAPE MOLDS

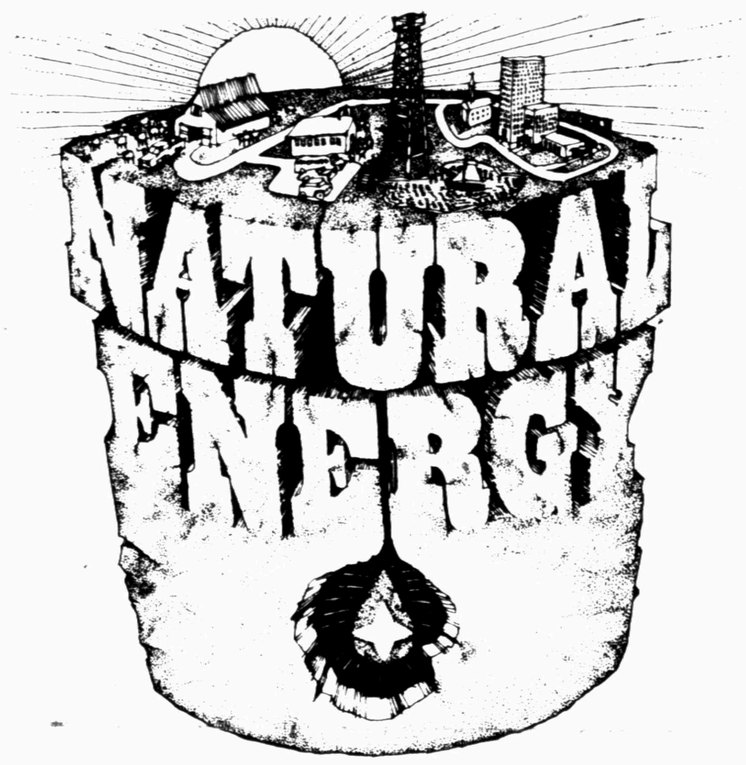

They're so pretty they glisten.

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 cups unsweetened bottled white grape juice
1½ cups seedless green grapes, halved

In a medium mixing bowl sprinkle the gelatin over 1 cup of the grape juice and let soften — about 5 minutes. In a 1-quart saucepan heat the remaining grape juice until it boils; pour over the gelatin and stir until dissolved; cool. Add grapes; chill until partly thickened; stir to distribute grapes. Turn into six ½-cup molds or 6-ounce custard cups; chill to set; cover. Unmold at serving time. Serve as a refreshing dessert or as a salad with greens and a mild creamy dressing because the molds are on the tangy side. Makes 6 servings.

Pentagon Is Locking Doors

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — The Pentagon is locking up the doors to its military secrets, using new high-security and other removable core cylinders.

The cylinders will be installed in some 2,700 office-door locksets in the world's largest office building here in this Washington suburb.

About 300 of the total are high-security cylinders, designed with interlocking tumblers that are difficult to pick and keys that are equally hard to duplicate.

The installations are part of an updating of the building's locksets by Emhart Corp., which supplied the originals when the Pentagon was built in the 1940s.

Sawdust, Waste Are Hot Items

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sawdust and agricultural waste are among the hottest energy items in California's Central Valley.

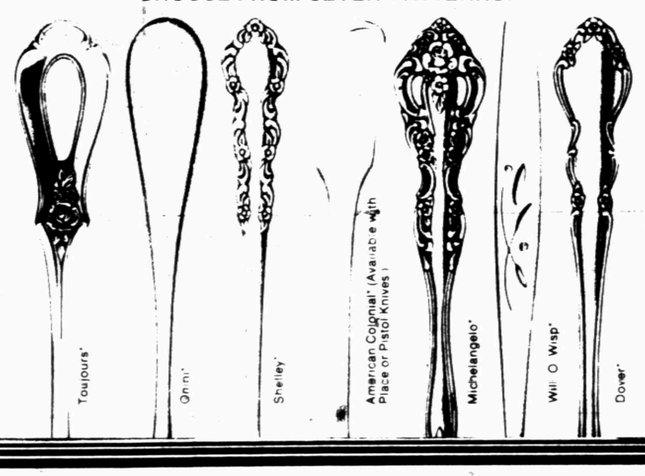

Both these products, which were once burned, buried or hauled away to landfills, are now being used in a project to generate pollution-free heat and electricity.

The waste products are converted to pelletized fuel which, pound for pound, produces as much heat as Western coal and with an ash residue of some 3 percent that contains trace materials and other nutrients that can be returned to the soil.

In addition to producing kilowatts of electricity, the pellets are used by a sugar refinery that burns it to dry sugar-beet pulp. The pellets also provide heat for hospitals, military installations, asphalt plants, schools and lumber yards in the United States and Canada.

Golf-Landscape Program Opens Opportunities

EDITOR'S NOTE: This story about one of Western Texas College's programs was written by Sue Fowler, a journalism student, for the campus newspaper, The Western Texan.

By SUE FOWLER

When you think of majoring in golf course operations and landscape technology, what you think of? Ah, what an easy way to go! Trim a few hedges, mow a few lawns. Not a bad way to earn a living. But, the truth is, there's much more to it than that.

Western Texas College is one of three community colleges in the nation to offer such a program. The others are located in Lake City, Fla., and Myrtle Beach, S. C.

"Our program is based on practical experience," explained James Eby, program head. Courses are arranged so that the students get maximum hands-on work. The theory learned in the classroom is put to the test.

Currently, the students are drafting plans for a sprinkler system to be installed in the newest, third duplex area. Another hands-on experience seen and appreciated by people on campus involves plants and shrubs all around the buildings. There are various species of juniper, oak, rosemary, oleander and more. These plants were started from cuttings and seeds in the greenhouse, then cared for by the GLT students as a part of their horticulture class. The greenhouse itself was built as a landscape construction program last year.

By the end of the two-year program, the students end up jacks-of-all-trades and masters of quite a few.

The course load, adapted from curricula at Texas Tech, Texas A&M and some of Eby's own innovations, includes chemistry, landscape design, accounting, soils study, marketing, technical writing, drafting and speech.

About special courses, Eby explained, "I feel it's necessary that the students be able to sell their ideas to prospective buyers, clients or committees. The three tools necessary for them are graphics, technical writing and speech."

An off-campus project, not part of the course work, has been landscaping the grounds of the First National Bank in Snyder.

Once graduated, students have many job opportunities and the pay "is good." One recent graduate started at $15,000 with benefits like being provided a lot for his mobile home, utilities, a vehicle and gas, as well as a retirement and insurance package worth another $4,000 annually.

Another has a salary of $850 per month with a house, utilities, a vehicle and gas provided. Executives of the employing organization backed him in opening and operating the pro shop where he makes another $600 per month.

Why do students choose this particular field? An overall answer is the interest in working outdoors. A. R. Straub, who was an independent truck driver and an Air Force retiree, selected GLT because escalating gas prices and fixed income made it difficult to show a profit.

"I am interested in landscaping and plan to work at it in Colorado City," he said.

Another student, Bert Deselms from Chadron, Neb., said, "I enjoy golf, so I thought this would be a good career for me."

They don't just take care of golf courses. Many jobs are open at airports, military bases around the world, parks, race tracks, zoos, and with landscape contractors, nurseries, and sprinkler contractors.

Eby has put considerable time and effort into this program, and it shows.

When he joined the WTC staff in January, 1980, GLT was a skeleton program. The previous course was arranged as a work-only program where students worked 35-hour weeks without any academic courses to support the potential learning taking place.

Don Buckland, an Air Force retiree, was a student in that program and now has come back for further training. He said, "I returned because I wanted to learn more, and I really am enjoying this new setup."

GLT students can earn the associate in applied science degree by completing the two-year program at WTC, and 64 of the 71 hours required for the degree will transfer to other colleges in a compatible curriculum.

Eby's 21 years of experience before coming here has created quite a reservoir of knowledge---know-how that he wants to pass on to his students. Persons interested in further information about the progrm are invited to contact Eby at 573-8511, extension 226 or 220.

PLANNING—Bert Deselms, a golf course operations and landscape technology student at WTC, is shown working on plans for a landscaping project. Basic landscape design and landscape maintenance are among the subjects taught in the course. (Denny Cox Photo)

Briscoe To Restore Landmark

CATARINA, Texas (AP) — A landmark structure in this near-ghost town between Carrizo Springs and Laredo is gone — like most of the town's residents.

The Taft House, a mansion built as a ranch headquarters and later the centerpiece of one of South Texas' biggest land development schemes, has been purchased for restoration and moved to a ranch near here owned by former Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

"Our intent is to restore it, as accurately as possible, as it was when it was originally built," Briscoe said.

To do that, he has employed the services of two restoration architects and a veteran house mover who once towed another mansion down Congress Avenue in Austin.

Looking at the structure, with dimensions of 74-by-56 feet even after two rooms and a porch have been removed, it appears a tremendous effort would have been needed to move it 15 feet, let alone the 15 miles to Briscoe's Catarina Ranch.

But Earl Bradford said he'd moved bigger ones, such as the Herschefield Mansion in Austin.

"There must have been 500 people watching when we moved that one," Bradford said, showing a newspaper photo of his truck pulling what looks like a giant Victoria parade float in front of the Texas capitol.

"Long as it's wood, I can just about move it," he said.

A year of restoration awaits the house.

But its destiny is to be the center of attraction once again, dominating the other buildings of the Briscoe ranch headquarters.

The Taft House construction is typical of the period around the turn of the century, said architect John Klein.

But a home on, that grand a scale — in this kind of place — is something Klein said he never expected.

Its date of construction is disputed (either 1909 or 1912), but its builder was a well known figure in those days. Charles Taft was a rancher and businessmen whose other Texas property included the present site of Taft, Texas, near Corpus Christi.

His brother, William Howard Taft, was president of the United States.

Taft built the mansion as a winter home for his 235,000-acre Catarina Ranch.

In those days, the view from the small rooftop "widow's walk' deck consisted of horizon-to-horizon mesquite pasture.

The molded plaster ceilings, elaborate wainscoted walls and twin fireplaces went largely unseen, for Taft himself never lived there before he sold the ranch about 1920.

The house's heyday came in 1926 when the ranch was sold again, to a Kansas syndicate that promoted Catarina as a virtual promised land of year-round farming.

For the developers of the new city, the house became a sort of clubhouse-meeting hall from whose massive columned porches sales pitches for farm plots were delivered.

The Taft House's geometric inlaid hardwood floors felt the boot scuffs of hundreds of midwestern farmer "colonists," attracted to Catarina aboard chartered excursion trains.

Rebel Gives Herself Up

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A woman communist rebel has surrendered to the government to protect the welfare of her three children sired by three different guerrillas, the Times Journal reported today.

The newspaper said Leonora Laborte, 26, of the communist New People's Army had surrendered to military authorities recently in the southern Philippines and asked for amnesty.

"I'll do anything for the sake of my children," she was quoted as saying.
