Rabies moves into domestic population

Lori Metcalf, along with sons Jesse and Andy, distract their pet dog as David Neff gives it a rabies shot Saturday morning. The clinic at the Coahoma City Hall was to give a chance for pet owners to vaccinate their animals.

What Animal Control officials feared has finally happened as Big Spring has seen its first case of rabies in a domestic animal Friday.

Earlier last week, a stray cat wandered into the Western Hills area of Big Spring and attacked a family (the animal didn't bite anyone) and had to be shot.

Results from Austin confirmed the animal to be rabid.

According to Dr. Scott Burt of Highland Animal Hospital, two dogs, family pets, that were exposed to the cat had to be destroyed as well.

Big Spring's Animal Control Department said the dogs (by state requirement) had to be destroyed because there was not a history of vaccination available.

Referring to the cat, Burt said it was the first case of rabies in a cat or dog he'd seen in quite a while.

He added, "It's a scary situation. It's definitely a problem (rabies) and some people just don't think it can happen to them."

Since the rabies outbreak began Burt said he has vaccinated about four times his normal amount of animals.

Animal Control also received confirmation of another rabid fox when it got the results on the cat.

According to Animal Control several reports have been received about sick cats and dogs, but no reports of rabies, however, another cat was sent to Austin for testing late last week from the same area as the first cat.

Friday afternoon, Animal Control also received confirmation of another rabid fox.

The total number of rabid animals found in Big Spring and Howard County since the rabies outbreak began in mid January is now up to 20.

One animal control official said, "We're trying to work with people to let them know how important it is to get their animals vaccinated as soon as possible because it can happen to anyone."

Howard County also has a fairly good-sized livestock population and for people who have a lot invested in their animals, the on-going rabies scare is more than a growing concern as well.

Big Spring veterinarian Dr. Joe Neff, who specializes in working with large animals, conducted a rabies vaccination clinic Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the City Hall Fire Station in Coahoma.

Dr. Keith Clark of the Texas Department of Health's Zoonosis division met with local officials last week to discuss the current rabies concerns in Howard County.

One of Clark's recommendations to livestock owners, especially those people who participate in livestock shows, was that they discuss the vaccination of their livestock with a veterinarian.

Prior to the clinic Neff said he had already vaccinated more than 100 horses. He is also involved in the vaccination of cows and dogs as well.

Clark told city officials vaccination is the biggest single thing pet owners can do to combat rabies.

Animal Control officials and local veterinarians agree that waiting to vaccinate is not the thing to do where rabies is concerned and because of the state's requirement that animals exposed to a rabid or potentially rabid animal (and no vaccination history is available) be destroyed.

According to Clark, as a general rule, for every one case of rabies confirmed there are 10 more still out there.

With 20 confirmed cases on record in Howard County, the potential is there for dozens of more rabies cases.

Clark warns residents to be aware of animals, wild animals included, that act unafraid of humans and of any animal that seems paralyzed, an indication that it could be infected with rabies.

Proposed Chapter 1 cuts could mean loss of local programs

By KELLIE JONES

President Bill Clinton has vowed to veto any legislation that would cut funding to Chapter One projects and other education programs recently approved by the House Appropriations Committee.

The committee recently approved two bills slashing funding for a variety of programs ranging from housing and education to peacekeeping and Clinton's national service project.

Committee Chairman Bob Livingston, R-La., reminded Democrats it's time to make a "modest first step" to cut spending now that the balanced budget amendment failed in the Senate.

But Democrats say the GOP majority was sacrificing social programs to pay for a tax cut that will benefit the rich. More than 40 percent of the planned cuts, or $7.3 billion, are in public housing modernization, rent assistance for the poor and other housing programs.

Chapter One was started under President Lyndon B. Johnson as schools were being integrated. The fund was to help educate disadvantaged children in various forms.

The Republican bill wants to cut $105 million of the $6,608 million budget of Chapter One. The bill that was approved would also cut all federal funding of the safe and drug-free schools program, education for the homeless and Tech-Prep.

The committee says, after their recommended cut, it would leave nearly $6.6 million for the program this year. These grants support supplementary education and related services designed to increase the attainment of educationally disadvantaged children.

The reason the committee wants to cut federal funding is in a national assessment of the title I (Chapter One) program found that some participants did not achieve meaningful improvement for their relative standing in fourth grade math and reading programs, nor in eighth grade math programs. They further stipulate the students did not improve on standardized tests more than non-participants from similar backgrounds.

School officials in West Texas do not support cutting Chapter One funds and say Texas is the exception when it comes to scores on standardized tests.

"On our TAAS scores, the Chapter One students have

The fourth annual West Texas Ag Expo is just around the corner promising to be bigger and better than ever. The show will be March 23 and 24 in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum and open to the public Thursday from 6 to 9 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The Ag Appreciation Dinner will be Thursday evening and the Howard County Producer of the Year will be announced.

Anyone who is involved in agriculture can attend the dinner for free and the public is also invited to attend. If you are not involved in agriculture, tickets for the dinner are $5.50 and all tickets can be picked up or purchased at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Producers will be able to attend seminars to accumulate hours toward their pesticide applicator license. "Anything to do with agriculture markets will be at the expo including livestock and farmer supplies, satellite television, cellular phones, marketing companies, vehicles - really just about anything," said Rudy Halfmann, member of the Ag Expo committee.

At noon on March 24, there will be the first annual meeting of the Howard County Cotton Growers Association. The boll weevil eradication program will be discussed at length. Representatives from the Plains Cotton Growers Association and National Cotton Council will also be in attendance. Producers from Martin, Mitchell, Midland, Dawson and Glasscock counties are scheduled to be at the meeting.

Harold Bob Bennett, state executive director of C.F.S.A. will be speaking at the workshop as well.

There will also be a cooking demonstration on Friday at 2:30 p.m. by the authors of "Calf Fries to Caviar."

SO training records withdrawn

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Howard County Sheriff's Department has withdrawn six of its training records from the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officers Standards and Education after an investigation last month.

The commission was investigating a complaint made by a former deputy who claimed some of the training records were falsified by sheriff's officials. The director of program and institutional evaluations, Gerald Keown, for TCLEOSE came to Howard County in February to look into the matter.

"The sheriff's department has withdrawn those training records that were in question and our case is closed. The department did not have some

Local resident arrested in Maverick Co. on federal charges

By KELLIE JONES

According to records from the U.S. District Court in Del Rio, Juan Gomez-Luna, 40 of 609 North Douglas, was arrested Feb. 20 in Maverick County. At the time of his arrest, he was transporting eight people who said they were being admitted into the country illegally. He was arrested by U.S. Border Patrol agents.

Luna was indicted March 8 on two misdemeanor counts of illegally transporting aliens. Reports indicate Luna was to receive $500 from each alien. Luna faces six months in prison on each count.

be called Memorial Hospital Family Medcenter.

The facility will occupy the vacant portion of the building currently occupied by Dr. Raj Reddy, which is also adjacent to Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

According to MMHMC media relations spokesperson Laurie Johnson, the hospital board began the early stages of looking into the possibilities of a primary care clinic last summer.

A unanimous vote was made by the Midland County Hospital District's board of directors in favor of establishing a non-profit organization that would own and operate the primary care facility.

According to Johnson last summer's meeting was also an evaluation of the feasibility of opening the Big Spring clinic and an opportunity for the hospital staff to ask for recommendation for approval of the project, but the idea had to go back to the hospital board for final approval.

The clinic will have a physician who will locate to the Big Spring area and who is certified in emergency medicine. He will also practice family medicine in Big Spring.

Because of the increased competition in the medical profession and its services, the Big Spring clinic will be a major boost to Memorial Hospital and Medical Center due to the number of patients it receives from outside of Midland, including those from Big Spring.

Johnson said, "We have traditionally seen a number of patients from Big Spring and we felt we needed to make an investment in Big Spring."

Other health organizations also have facilities or affiliations with medical facilities in Big Spring. Lubbock Methodist has affiliated with Malone and Hogan Clinic, San Angelo's Shannon Medical Center recently built Family Medical Center on Gregg St. across from the VA Hospital.

Further expansion by Memorial Hospital and Medical Center may well depend on the success of the primary care center proposed for Big Spring, which would be funded out of Memorial Hospital's own operating budget and not with tax dollars.

The clinic will operate Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Appointments will be encouraged and insurance, Medicare, Medicaid, Mastercard, Visa, and American Express.

The Big Spring Clinic will also have access to MMHMC's non-emergency Critical Care Transport System.

According to Johnson, the clinic will be fully staffed and equipped and will provide routine medical care, and if hospitalization or referral becomes necessary, the clinic staff will utilize facilities and specialists in Big Spring or when needed, in Midland.

of the records we asked for to substantiate what they had sent in. The records were lost or something," said Keown.

Every law enforcement officer in Texas must complete 40 hours of training every two years in order to be certified and in compliance with TCLEOSE. Former deputy Woodie Howell contacted TCLEOSE and said some of those courses he was given credit for were never conducted by the department.

Training Officer Sgt. Barney Edens denied those claims and said the complaint was being made for political reasons.

"We were under the impression the two-year period of compliance was up the end of February. Since then, 12 people have been taking those same classes that were in question for credit so there was no reason for them to double up since they actually have until September to take them," Edens said.

When asked what Keown meant by the records being lost or something, Edens said he could not comment.

In a letter to Keown from Sheriff A.N. Standard, the sheriff wrote, "I am requesting you purge and return our training records to our office and there after refer any inquiries regarding our officers to this office, where matters can be addressed at a local level. Perhaps this will remove any further attempts from certain individual(s) who wish to use TCLEOSE agency to further their political or private agenda."

Standard also stated his department's training is current and in compliance with TCLEOSE until Sept. 1, 1995, and the officers on file with the agency are currently certified.

Keown said they will conduct a new training audit of the department in September. The audit will reveal what employees have taken what courses from September 1993 to August 1995 necessary to be in compliance with the agency.

The training records that were withdrawn are: dispatcher stress, alcohol and beverage code, fingerprinting and identification, crime scene photography, recognition of child abuse and family violence.

closed the gap. They are improving their scores in Texas and in Big Spring. This shows us the program works fairly well," said Assistant Superintendent Murray Murphy.

"We received $990,000 for the 1994-95 school year for Chapter One programs. Out of that, $800,000 is for teacher and aides salaries. We use the money to pay for all of 10 full time teachers, 10 full-time aides and half the salaries of 16 other teachers. If we lose that money, the local budget could not make up the difference and those teachers would lose their jobs," said Murphy.

Coahoma Independent School District Superintendent L.D. Monroe says they receive $100,000 from Chapter One funds. The money is used for computer assisted instruction and to pay the salaries of classroom aides.

All campuses except Kentwood receive Chapter One funding in Big Spring. In order for a campus to be eligible, 25 percent of the students have to qualify for free or reduced lunches. Anything associated with Chapter One must be paid for with those federal funds and no other students may use the materials.

Murphy says of the 4,500 students enrolled in BSISD, 2,000 benefit from Chapter One. In kindergarten through fifth grade, the students are pulled from their classrooms for 30 to 45 minutes a day for language arts instruction.

"In sixth and seventh grade, the students are scheduled into Chapter One classes for math and/or language arts. Most of our teachers are reading specialists and they do a really good job. In eighth through their senior year, there are Chapter One reading and math classes," Murphy added.

Chapter One funds are also used to conduct summer schools and to feed students during this time. Ever since the district went to providing lunch for students, the enrollment in summer school has increased.

The district provides free transportation and enrollment for those in grades one through eight are free. The high school courses are tuition-based. Murphy says test scores have improved after students enroll in the summer programs.

The House Appropriations Committee voted to cut all federal funds for safe and drug-free school programs and believes state and local activities should be carried out under other authorities. These include: the substance abuse block grant ($1.2 billion), the preventive health block grant ($158 million), programs under the Center for Substance Abuse Prevention ($239 million) and the revised crime bill.

The grant monies will be divided among all 50 states then each state has the authority to hand out their portion as they see fit. Many school officials of small districts in Texas do not favor this because, as they have seen in the past, the majority of the funds go to bigger districts.

The remainder of the money is then handed out to the smaller districts and is no where near the same amount they received from the federal government. Therefore, small districts say they are forced to either cut the programs completely or raise property taxes in order to keep the programs going.

Shuttle piecing together cosmos mysteries

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Like detectives piecing together clues to an ancient mystery, astronomers used Endeavour's ultraviolet telescopes Saturday to gauge the effects of a star that exploded 20,000 years ago.

Astronomers pointed the shuttle instruments toward a supernova known as the Cygnus Loop so scientists can figure out how shock waves from the long-ago explosion are affecting clouds of interstellar dust.

That interaction is believed to be a major factor in how supernova remnants evolve into new stars.

The Cygnus Loop has been observed several times during the flight. It's so large that astronomers must focus on a different area each time and piece together the results.

There are several theories about what happens to celestial gas clouds when they're hit.

Rabies - it can happen to you!

There is a thought that seems to pervade communities any time there is a crisis: It can't happen to me.

This same thought crosses the minds of people who think they won't get mugged, burglarized, their car stolen or the flu.

It is a self-defeating thought because anything can happen and often does.

Where this frame of mind is hurting Big Spring is in the rabies crisis. Yes, it is a crisis because the very thing local veterinarians and Animal Control officers have been dreading has occurred - the first case of rabies diagnosed in a domestic animal.

It was a stray cat. But, two dogs who came into contact with the cat had to be destroyed.

Why? Because there was no history of the dogs having been vaccinated. And, state law requires their destruction.

What a shame, even if it is "only" a dog.

It simply underscores the importance of getting your pet vaccinated. No longer are animals safe behind a fence, if indeed they ever were. Neither are children.

If you haven't taken the time to get your pet vaccinated, do so. Or make sure it is in a safe place where exposure to the deadly virus is minimal. Your best bet, however, is the vaccination.

It protects the animal and it protects you and yours.

EDITORIAL ROUNDUP

Maryland stubs it out

Maryland, the Free State, has set out to be free of tobacco.

On March 27, barring a revolt in the state legislature, the state will impose the strictest, most far-reaching ban on smoking in the country.

Smoking will be outlawed in almost all indoor workplaces - including such remaining havens for smokers as bars, restaurants, airports, hotels, bowling alleys, pool halls and convention centers.

The ban was signed by Gov. Parris Glendening, a liberal Democrat of that breed widely thought to be extinct, and given emotional reinforcement by the presence of Victor Crawford, a former tobacco lobbyist dying of throat cancer.

Predictably, health groups hailed the ban, and tobacco groups denounced it as anti-business. Restaurant and tavern owners say their customers will either go somewhere else or not stay as long.

Maryland will be an interesting test case of the anti-business charge. Many of the state's residents live in the Washington, D.C., suburbs or close to Pennsylvania and Delaware and can easily cross the line to more smoker-friendly territory. If that happens, the shift will be quickly detectable in business receipts and tax revenues. And state tourism officials can quickly tell if the ban is driving off tourists and conventions.

We have our reservations about the ban, which seems to us obtrusive in the extreme in certain small businesses. But Maryland's experience could determine how far other states go in saying yea or nay to smoking.

Whatever the outcome, the ban marks a long sojourn for a state whose early wealth from that controversial weed is still marked by redolent place names like Port Tobacco and Upper Marlboro.

New breed of peckerwood

To the long list of distractions golfers with feeble concentration must endure, the Interior Department has added a new hazard: the red-cockaded woodpecker.

Under a promising pilot program, seven North Carolina golf courses have agreed to maintain stands of mature pine to attract the woodpecker, which is on the Endangered Species list.

The program, called Safe Harbors, is designed to ease landowner fears that if they do too good a job attracting endangered species to their property the federal government might stop them from using it.

The red-cockaded woodpecker, despite its name, is black and white in lively zebra stripes and haunts the dwindling old-growth pine forests of the Southeast.

Our Peterson's Guide describes the bird's call as "a rough rasping scripp or zhlp. Sometimes a higher tsick (end)." And, remember, a woodpecker is nature's jackhammer.

One can imagine a day on the 18th green at Pinehurst. Through some miracle a duffer like ourselves is three feet away from par for the course. Breath is held. The putter comes gently back. Suddenly, "SRIPP! RAT-A-TAT-TAT! ZHILP! RAT-A-TAT-TAT! TSICK!"

This species could face endangerment from a new source - flying golf clubs.

Tax cuts unlikely to survive the House

WASHINGTON CALLING

WASHINGTON — Besides the stillborn balanced budget amendment, look for Democratic opposition and strong-willed Senate Republicans to scotch much of the pricey House tax cuts plan.

Capitol insiders expect concern over the deficit to make it impossible for key Republican senators to support major parts of the House tax plan, which the Joint Committee on Taxation estimates would cost the Treasury $189 billion over five years.

Also facing sweeping Senate overhaul are House versions of welfare and legal reform. Term limits are dead in both the House and Senate.

"Someone the other day said the House has kind of become the staff of the Senate," quipped House Democratic leader Dick Gephardt. "We are sending over these hastily considered bills, and they will try to straighten them out."

Republican Whip Trent Lott was the big loser in the failed effort of junior GOPers to strip balanced-budget amendment naysayer Sen. Mark Hatfield of his committee chairmanship.

Lott's ill-fated effort to impose House-style discipline on the Senate blew up in a burst of principled individualism by senior senators.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich parks traditional chauffeur-driven limousine for a Secret Service-style Chevy Suburban - also chauffeur-driven. Capitol cops note the huge four-wheel drive cruisers have "great visibility and (are) almost impossible to stop."

NEWSMAKER: Wyoming Republican Sen. Alan Simpson takes center stage as combined House-Senate hearings on immigration reform get under way.

BACKGROUND: Quick-witted and acid-tongued, one of the most biting controversial senators on Capitol Hill. Son of former governor and senator Milward Simpson, Simpson was one of the outspoken champions of Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas. He was also at the center of a well-publicized feud with CNN correspondent Peter Arnett during the Gulf War. Friend of ranchers and miners. Simpson fell out of favor with colleagues who didn't think he was conservative enough and lost leadership to Mississippi's telegenic Trent Lott.

OUTLOOK: Senate expert on immigration, he was the architect of 1986 reforms cracking down on illegal immigration and giving asylum to those who had been here for many years. Will hold out for much tougher restrictions on legal and illegal immigration this time around.

With joint House-Senate hearings on immigration next week look for Congress to:

— Require those who sponsor immigrants to take financial responsibility for them for five years before they become citizens instead of the current two years.

— Establish new fraud-proof green cards and Social Security cards.

— Stop citizens from bringing in in-laws through family-unification provisions in the immigration laws (some 265,000 immigrants a year.)

The U.S. Postal Service is being challenged by foreign postal services claiming they can do a better job of shipping bulk mail out of the United States.

The Postal Service still has about 70 percent of international mail business, but Danish, Dutch and British postal services have set up operations here and are competing with the Postal Service and private U.S. carriers for commercial contracts.

It's a $1.5 billion annual market and foreigners want a piece of it.

Historical footnote: The last time Congress set out to reform categorical programs by setting up block grants to the states, it wound up with more of both.

In 1981, as part of the Reagan Revolution, Congress created nine block grant programs in addition to the 534 categorical programs on government books. Spending on the blocks was $10 billion, about 11 percent of the total $95 billion in federal grants to state and local governments.

Twelve years later there were 15 block grant and 593 categorical programs. The 15 block grants accounted for $22 billion, still 11 percent of 1993's $206 billion in federal grants to state and local governments.

With educators complaining bitterly of children carrying weapons to school, the Supreme Court mulls a Texas father's attempt to sue school authorities over the shooting death of his 15-year-old son when a stranger walked into a city high school and opened fire.

Andrew Johnson contends that Dallas school officials packed away metal detectors and had no one assigned to check mandatory student IDs. A bitterly divided Appeals Court said it found "no constitutional remedy available" to the family.

Key members of the House Transportation Committee move to separate transportation trust funds from the main federal budget. The bill is almost certain of a favorable committee vote because its sponsors are chairman Bud Shuster, R-Pa., and ranking Democrat Norman Mineta, D-Calif.

All prevention methods ease need for abortions

Abortion is a highly controversial issue dividing our country in two. It has always been a highly volatile issue that has recently taken a deadly turn.

I believe that a woman should have the right to choose. And, if the choice is abortion, that option should be made available.

However, one concern expressed by many pro-lifers is the number of women who have repeated abortions.

That is a valid concern because abortion should not be a casual method of birth control.

However, if methods of birth control are not made available and are not talked about, abortion will continue to be used, wrongly, as a way of getting rid of one unwanted pregnancy after another.

DD Turner
Managing Editor

Unfortunately, there will always be women who consider abortion an easy solution to the pregnancy problem.

But, for those who, with a little knowledge, wouldn't use abortion as such, education about birth control is essential.

And, it has to start early in the teen-age years.

That seems to be the problem, at least to me. We blind ourselves to reality - teen pregnancy is a serious problem.

Reality is hormones get out of control at that age or any age and abstinence is hard to practice.

Which doesn't mean that abstinence should be taught. It is, and always has been, the best form of birth control. If you don't, you won't.

However, a reality check shows that abstinence seems to fly out the door when the hormones act up.

What we have to do is start being more candid about sex and where babies come from.

Even more importantly, we have to make the kids responsible. And responsibility can only come with knowledge.

Part of the knowledge is knowing what methods of birth control are available. Teaching responsibility is hard on parents, but it is an invaluable lesson more easily learned when young.

But, if parents don't want to teach it, it has to be taught somewhere. So far, we have chosen the schools to teach this subject.

Sex was alive and well when I was a teen-ager. I remember thinking about the consequences of getting pregnant when I was in school.

The consequence would have been embarrassing Mom and Dad, to say the very least. For all I knew, the reaction could have been like Mount St. Helen's going off, with me tossed out to survive on my own!

No way on Earth was I going to find out what my parents' reaction was going to be. I didn't want to deal with a child nor did I want to deal with hurting my parents, as such an act would have done.

I had plans that didn't include a child. My parents had plans for me that didn't include a child just then.

But, it seems today, the majority of teens don't care what their parents reaction is going to be, nor do they seem to think beyond the immediate sensation to what the future would hold if they got pregnant.

Having a baby is a great deal of responsibility that has cost many young women the chance of college, of doing something with their lives. Some have the courage and the stamina to finish school while raising a child. All too often, they fall by the wayside.

It's a matter of being taught. They have to be told what the consequences can be of having a baby so young. And, they also have to feel and believe their parents really care about what happens to them.

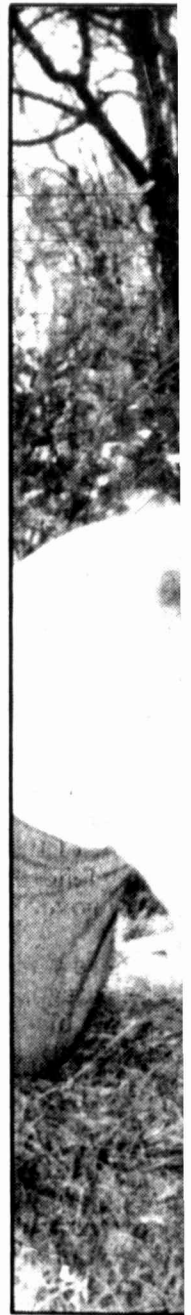

So, what does that have to do with abortion?

A great deal.

It has always seemed to me if birth control were taught, the need for abortions would be lessened. Fewer women getting pregnant means fewer abortions being performed.

You simply can't stick your head in the sand, screaming abstinence.

Death might be around the corner

Henry Lee Lucas set to die Wednesday

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas, perhaps the state's most notorious death row inmate, says his last meal request if he should be executed next week won't be food.

He's looking for a cigarette — something barred from prison since March 1 when all state pens went smokeless.

"It ain't humanly possible for a person whose been smoking for 50-some years to stop," said Lucas, who says he'll turn 60 later this year. Prison records show he is 58.

Lucas is scheduled to die by injection early March 15, although he doesn't believe it will take place and insisted in an interview last Wednesday he's not consumed by the thought of death.

"If I did, I'd go nuts," he said. "I'm not guaranteeing I'll get a stay, but I have my hopes up. I don't think I'll die."

"But when you've got only six days left to live, it is unsettling."

It was suggested to Lucas, who in the early 1980s confessed to committing hundreds of murders around the nation, that some all along have considered him a nut case.

"You're probably right," he laughed. "I believe at the time I was. You end up doing things you regret. And I regret it all took place."

Next week's execution date is the second in recent years for Lucas, who is on death row for the 1979 strangulation of an unidentified woman near Georgetown in Williamson County. The victim became known as "Orange Socks," named for the only items of clothing she was wearing when her body was found in a culvert along Interstate 35.

He has at least 10 other murder convictions in Texas and Florida, although he recanted all the confessions and insisted he was duped by law enforcement authorities eager to clear unsolved murders. He also said Wednesday he was not responsible for killing his mother in 1960 in Michigan, the one slaying he consistently had acknowledged.

Like the hundreds of other murders Lucas once was linked to, he denies any involvement in the death of "Orange Socks."

"I never had anything to do with her whatsoever," he said, repeating his long-held contention that he was coerced into a confession.

"Like a dummy, I did," he said.

The Texas attorney general's office did not consider Lucas' March 15 execution date a serious one. The ex-roofer, often referred to as a one-eyed drifter because he has a glass eye and wandered the country for years, has not yet exhausted his appeals.

"This is just one of the processes they go through," he said. "Maybe somebody's up for election. It seems everything that happens in my case is in an election year.

"Texas is going to be sorry if they do execute me," he added. "The wrongful death suit is going to be quite expensive. I didn't kill this person. They just won't accept it."

He has, however, taken the procedures the state requires of inmates nearing execution.

Lucas said he will have no personal witnesses to his death. He could have up to five. And he won't request a final meal.

"I don't eat that much anyway," he said. "Why eat and die? It makes no sense. I'm not asking for anything stupid."

"What I will ask for is a cigarette. That's for sure."

The smoking ban that took effect this month in Texas prisons has Lucas more uptight than the prospect of his death.

"They (prison officials) are not going to stop it," he said of prison rules that prohibit smoking. "They may slow it down."

Lucas also said he's constantly getting requests from people to buy paintings he does in prison. And he gets blank 3-by-5 cards in the mail from autograph seekers. He throws them away.

"I'm known the world over," he said. "But I'm not a famous guy."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Veterans meet to develop Gulf War plan

DALLAS (AP) — In the wake of President Clinton's recent $20 million pledge to study the causes and effects of Gulf War Syndrome, veterans and members of grassroots organizations are meeting this weekend to discuss ways of holding the government's feet to the fire to do more.

"There is a lot of disorder at the federal level, lots of unnecessary paper shuffling," said Erik Larsen of the California Association of Persian Gulf Veterans. "Veterans went over and served their country, and now a lot of them are sick ... and some (of their) children have birth defects."

The conference, "Four Years After the Storm," is being held in the Dallas suburb of Irving. It is meant to establish a task force to pressure the government to increase research and health-care funding for those suffering from the illness.

Of the 697,000 troops who served in the 1990-91 war, about 6 percent — some 43,000 — have reported ailments ranging from muscle pain, memory loss and birth defects to respiratory and heart problems and some types of cancer.

Bankers plead guilty to tipping off gamblers

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two vice presidents of a Lubbock bank have admitted to tipping off gamblers about subpoenas served at the bank for information on their accounts.

Gary Cocanougher, 40, and Fuston McCarty, 65, pleaded guilty Friday to obstructing a federal investigation. Both could be sentenced to up to a year in prison and fined up to $100,000 for the misdemeanor.

Both men remained free on their own recognizance, pending sentencing.

Deputy police chief resigns amid controversy

DALLAS (AP) — The city's deputy police chief has resigned, a little more than week after he was suspended for refusing to take a lie detector test ordered by his boss.

Granver Tolliver had been the subject of an internal investigation into charges that he ordered a traffic report altered. Tolliver, 34, resigned Friday.

Manges found guilty of mail fraud conspiracy

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — He built a fortune estimated at $1 billion, hobnobbed with political elites and owned a professional football team.

But all that is in the past for Clinton Manges.

The oilman and rancher, who once won a settlement in a $1.7 billion mineral-rights lawsuit against Mobil Oil Co., was convicted Friday of conspiring to commit mail fraud to help friends retain an oil lease.

The jury also convicted David Wayne Myers, 56, of San Antonio, and Carl Hubert Shanklin, 41, of Port Aransas, of participating in the conspiracy.

The federal jury deliberated about 4 1/2 hours before returning its verdict. Manges, 71, faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine when he is sentenced June 9.

The conviction came one day after U.S. District Judge Edward C. Prado dismissed a bribery charge against Manges, citing lack of federal jurisdiction.

Manges was accused of paying two cash bribes, totaling $10,100, in 1989 to Jack Giberson, then the No. 2 man at the Texas General Land Office. Prosecutors alleged the payments were on behalf of San Antonio businessmen Morris and Douglas Jaffe.

Neither side disputed that the payments were made — $6,400 in Giberson's office and $3,700 to Giberson at a restaurant near Austin.

Prosecutors contended they were bribes by Manges on the Jaffes' behalf to retain an oil and gas lease in Corpus Christi Bay that should have reverted to the state.

Myers, a colleague of the Jaffes, and Shanklin were accused of sending false documents through the mail to keep the lease from reverting.

Woman killed returning videos

DALLAS — A 22-year-old Carrollton woman just months away from college graduation and her wedding was shot and killed early Friday as she returned movies to a video store.

Nancy Arruda died almost instantly after she was struck at close range by at least three shotgun blasts fired through the closed driver's window of her car, authorities said.

The shooting happened just after midnight in the parking lot of the Blockbuster store of Carrollton, a Dallas suburb.

Ms. Arruda, a former high school cheerleader, had stopped on her way home from work to return "The Lion King" and another movie in an after-hours drop box. She was shot while backing her car out of a parking spot, police said.

Police were perplexed about a motive, theorizing that the shooting could have been an aborted robbery or carjacking.

Ms. Arruda was planning to graduate in May from the University of North Texas in nearby Denton, with a bachelor's degree in kinesiology, the study of human muscular movements. She was to marry Ronnie Settlemire, 23, of Carrollton on Oct. 21.

Police said they had no suspects, and didn't think Ms. Arruda was killed by anyone she knew.

Prosecutor not seeking death in tot's death

ALVIN (AP) — Relatives of a 2-year-old girl say they are outraged that prosecutors are not seeking the death penalty for her father, who is charged with murdering the tot.

Michael Shane Goode, 34, was in Brazoria County Jail in lieu of $300,000 bond. The former Pasadena postal worker is accused of killing his daughter, Katherine Renee Goode, as she slept at her paternal grandparents' Alvin home on Jan. 23, 1994.

"She died a violent and horrible death," Sharon Couch, the girl's maternal grandmother.

Curtis Shurtliff, at right with American Ambulance Search and Rescue teams, grimaces as he digs mud out of a vehicle Saturday that plunged into Arroyo Passajero Creek off of California Interstate 5 late Friday night after a bridge washed out in heavy rains near Coalinga, Calif. Two victims are believed to be inside the car as it rests one mile downstream of the highway in a creek bed.

Six missing after bridge collapses

Heavy rains already claimed three lives

COALINGA, Calif. (AP) — Search teams flew over a flood-swollen creek in Central California on Saturday to look for six people missing after a bridge collapsed and their cars plunged into the swirling waters.

The 100-foot section of Interstate 5 sank Friday night as California endured another in a series of gale-force Pacific storms that have left thousands homeless, three dead, and 34 counties declared disaster areas.

Evacuations continued in Northern California's Monterey County, where the Salinas and Carmel rivers flooded, cutting bridges and stranding residents in low-lying areas. Rain subsided in the region as the storm moved south.

The I-5 freeway collapse near Coalinga closed a 200-mile section of the main artery through sopping farm land about 50 miles west of Fresno.

Police think six people were in the first two cars that dropped the 10 to 20 feet into the creek. The driver of the third managed to get out and hang precariously from a tree until he was rescued.

One horrified family tried in vain to stop cars from plunging into the river, said California Highway Patrol spokesman Dave Sigler.

"The occupants said they saw at least one red car ... go off in front of them," he said. "They stopped and tried to flag down two more cars who came up behind, but the others just went by them."

A highway patrol plane and a helicopter used the closed freeway as a landing strip to survey the roiling, muddy waters of Arroyo Passajero Creek. A search team in a four-wheel drive made its way along the banks.

Elsewhere, officials in Monterey were evacuating hundreds of people from the town of Pajaro, where up to three feet of water flowed through the streets.

"It's not safe for people — some are standing on their roofs," said county official Rosie Pando.

She said bridges across the Carmel River have collapsed, isolating the community of Carmel Heights. "They have no phones — we don't know what's going on up there," she said.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. officials said 90,000 homes and businesses remained without power Saturday in the northern part of the state, and some are likely to remain dark through the weekend.

William Rukeysor of the state Office of Emergency Services said officials worried about unstable hillsides in Southern California.

In Santa Barbara County on Friday, surging floodwaters killed a 60-year-old man and an 18-year-old woman was missing after trying to ford a creek.

A transient who fell asleep by a flood control channel in Los Angeles was found dead on a San Fernando Valley golf course Saturday morning after water rose and swept him away, police said.

Another person was killed when a car flew off the Pasadena Freeway and plunged into the rain-swollen Arroyo Seco flood control channel early Saturday.

Mudslides inundated large sections of Pacific Coast Highway in Malibu, damaging some roadside homes and blocking access.

More mud flowed through parts of La Conchita, but the tiny Ventura County town where nine homes were destroyed by a collapsing bluff a week ago did not suffer the massive slide authorities say is inevitable.

Blackouts hit some 17,000 customers in the Los Angeles area overnight, but most outages were fixed quickly. Freeway traffic became snarled as low-lying sections of roadway flooded.

Back in Northern California, some areas were recovering.

About half of 600 evacuees in hard-hit St. Helena along the Napa River were allowed to return home. Many elderly residents of the Vineyard Valley mobile home park weren't so lucky.

New legislation would affect future of tribe's proposed national lottery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indian tribes could not offer a national lottery without getting consent from each state where they want to operate, under a bill proposed by members of Congress from the nation's two largest casino gambling states.

The measure by Nevada and New Jersey lawmakers, whose introduction Friday came days after Idaho's Coeur d'Alene tribe detailed its national lottery idea, also would set a two-year moratorium on new Indian gambling enterprises.

"It is typical for tribes to face the retroactive changing of laws as a ploy for stopping them," said David J. Matheson, general manager of the tribe's gambling operation. "It's painfully obvious that we are in full compliance with the law if they have to resort to changing the law to stop us."

The legislation's sponsors said Friday the measure further would require federal background checks of Indian gambling officials, and apply to tribal operation the reporting and bookkeeping laws that govern other casinos.

"Most significantly, it restores power to the states to regulate gaming within their borders," said Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J.

Torricelli said states' regulatory power has been effectively removed after a 1987 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that tribes were not subject to state gambling regulations.

He said state lotteries would be undermined by the Idaho tribe conducting a national lottery using toll-free phone calls and credit cards.

New Jersey, for instance, earmarks $600 million annually from its lottery for a variety of programs, from education to veterans' benefits.

Tribal officials say the first national telephone lottery could generate hundreds of millions of dollars for its 1,300 members in an economic revival that began two years ago with a bingo hall.

Changes to legal system face a doubtful future in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wrapping up a sweeping series of recommended changes in the nation's legal system, the House passed Republican legislation Friday that would make it easier for businesses to prevail in product-liability cases and harder for consumers to win certain damage awards.

Final passage on a vote of 265-161 sent the measure, along with two companion bills, to an uncertain fate in the Senate.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said the package of bills "doesn't do enough to protect the interests of the American consumer," and consumer groups and the nation's trial lawyers vowed to press for substantial changes.

In addition to establishing a first-ever nationwide standard of proof in product-liability cases and capping punitive damages in all civil suits brought in state and federal courts, the measure passed Friday grants special relief in two categories. It puts a $250,000 cap on pain and suffering awards in medical malpractice cases, and immunizes the makers of FDA-approved drugs and medical devices from paying punitive damages, which are designed to punish and deter future misconduct.

Supporting the bill were 220 Republicans and 45 Democrats. Voting no were 154 Democrats, six Republicans and one independent.

Together, the three bills make up a little-noticed segment of the "Contract With America" that the GOP says is designed to end frivolous lawsuits.

The bills sparked a heavy lobbying campaign.

In the House, both supporters and opponents agreed the measures would produce far-reaching changes in the civil legal system.

Where will the line be drawn in quest for ratings?

NEW YORK (AP) — After an "ambush-style" TV talk show led to an ambush shotgun murder in Michigan, some critics are charging that television's values have been knocked out of whack in the quest for higher ratings.

Where, they ask, will TV finally draw the line?

"The talk shows keep upping the ante," said Vicki Abt, Penn State professor of sociology and American studies. "You, on the stage, don't know what's going to be divulged about you, or happen to you."

That's exactly what happened during Monday's taping of a segment on secret admirers for "The Jenny Jones Show."

Scott Amedure appeared on the program to disclose his affection for 24-year-old Jonathan T. Schmitz. But Schmitz thought his admirer was going to be a woman.

Three days later, Amedure was dead and Schmitz was charged with murder. Schmitz pleaded innocent Friday and was being held without bond.

Is the Jenny Jones show to blame? Was this a tragedy just waiting to happen?

Yes to both questions, say critics, who argue that guests are put in unexpected and upsetting situations for the sake of lively TV and ratings.

"What we have here," said Patricia Aufderheide, a communication professor at American University, "is the retelling of emotional conflict for the casual pleasure of viewers. The consequence is human tragedy."

"Jenny Jones," in its fourth season, has long since abandoned the cooking-and-fashion emphasis that attracted few viewers during its first year.

With its current style, which the show describes as "hard-edged," Jones has soared to third place, behind Ricki Lake and top-ranked Oprah Winfrey.

Jones has not been available for comment.

A statement from Jim Paratore, president of syndicator Telepictures Productions, insisted Friday that "there was no wrongdoing on anyone's part connected with the show." He said each guest was briefed beforehand and told the secret admirer could be a man or woman.

But police said Schmitz, who surrendered moments after Thursday's shooting, blamed his experience on the talk show, saying it had "eaten away" at him.

Killers terrorizing Karachi with impunity

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Two Americans are slain on their way to work at the U.S. Consulate. A bomb outside a mosque kills 12, most of them children. Seven Pakistani men are tied up in their home and shot in the head.

Killers are terrorizing Karachi with impunity, slipping away after each attack into the vast, chaotic city and leaving behind carnage and a befuddled police force.

Already this year, there have been about a dozen terrorist attacks in Karachi, Pakistan's biggest city and commercial center. No one has claimed responsibility and no one has offered convincing evidence as to who is behind the attacks.

Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto, whose government could be undermined by the attacks, met with top officials in Karachi on Saturday and accused India of being behind the violence. She said authorities had "caught people who were trained overseas" — a reference to agents of India — but gave no details.

At a funeral procession for the victims of the mosque attack, thousands of mourners condemned the government, burned vehicles and fired automatic weapons.

Several massacres have been carried out in similar fashion to the mosque attack, and may be the work of a relatively small group of terrorists, said Jameel Yusuf, co-chairman of the Citizens-Police Liaison Committee, a respected private group that works with the police.

Survivors describe the attackers as men in their 20s, who use AK-47 assault rifles and do not appear concerned about the possibility of capture.

"They are so confident of not being caught that they don't bother to cover their faces," said Yusuf.

Yusuf, a wealthy industrialist, set up his group several years ago because "the police are simply incompetent."

As evidence of the respect he has earned, the U.S. Consulate called Yusuf only moments after learning that two of its American employees had been slain and a third wounded in an ambush on their way to work Wednesday.

The two bodies and the wounded American were flown home Saturday aboard a military plane, and U.S. Ambassador John Monjo urged U.S. citizens to increase security.

Yusuf and his staff have been interviewing key witnesses and U.S. security officials have visited to compare notes.

The most widely discussed theory is that the shooting was retaliation for last month's arrest and extradition of Ramzi Yousef, who is accused of masterminding the World Trade Center bombing in New York two years ago.

After other attacks, the government and police have blamed a wide array of people: drug gangs, feuding Shiite and Sunni Muslim groups and the opposition Mohajir Qaumi Movement, as well as agents working for India.

Shoid Bokhari, one of the top Mohajir leaders, said the blame for the violence falls squarely on Ms. Bhutto's government.

"They are making fools of themselves," Bokhari said. "They don't know who is doing the killing and they can't stop it."

U.S. Marines carry the casket of Jackie Van Landingham, 33 of South Carolina, to an awaiting U.S. Air Force C-141 cargo plane during a repatriation ceremony at Karachi airport Saturday. Van Landingham and fellow diplomatic worker Gary C. Durell of Ohio were slain in a terrorist attack Wednesday.

Few promises made to end poverty's sting in Third World

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A parade of national leaders railed in unison against poverty at a global summit Saturday, but offered few hard promises to tackle the planet's worst ills.

In an array of languages and styles, leaders at the U.N. summit said poverty and unemployment threaten political stability. But many bristled at the United States and other rich nations for refusing to pay more to help the Third World.

"We move from one major conference to another, pronouncing with lofty intentions global action programs, but we never ... make available the means of implementation," said Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir bin Mohamad.

"The developing world must not continue to be looked upon as a bottomless pit," he told the 193-nation summit.

The leaders used eloquent phrases to summon up the misery of poverty, while placing thinly disguised blame on one another.

Some 120 leaders, whose speeches will last all weekend, signaled a willingness to implement goals set out in a watered-down statement to be signed Sunday.

The final document has been criticized for containing only vague commitments.

But the declaration also has been praised as the first step against some of the world's worst problems. Supporters say it will provide impetus and a road map for action for years to come.

The document outlines general goals for lifting more than a billion people from absolute poverty, educating more girls to become productive workers, lowering import barriers to Third World goods and erasing the debt of the poorest countries.

Britains rush to aid of girl refused treatment

LONDON (AP) — A 10-year-old girl who was denied state-funded treatment for her leukemia has accepted an anonymous offer to pay her medical bills and will probably start therapy in a few days, her father's lawyer said today.

The case has attracted national attention — underlining the moral quandaries of doctors and health administrators and the effective rationing of treatment in Britain's cash-strapped National Health Service.

The Appeal Court on Friday upheld a local health authority's decision to deny the critically ill girl a second bone marrow transplant and chemotherapy costing $120,000.

The health authority argued the girl's chances of survival are so slim that spending the money would be a questionable allocation of its limited funds.

Appeal Judge Sir Thomas Bingham said it was not for courts to interfere in such difficult decisions by doctors.

Michael Sinclair, lawyer for the girl's father, said today the family has accepted an anonymous offer covering treatment for the girl, known publicly only as B to prevent her learning how ill she is.

The case has attracted national attention — underlining the moral quandaries of doctors and effective rationing of treatment in Britain's cash-strapped National Health Service.

Sinclair said said the treatment would probably begin in a few days.

Britain now spends $54 billion a year on its National Health Service, where most medical treatment is provided free by government-paid doctors. Costs are rising steadily along with demands for more access to increasingly sophisticated and expensive treatments.

The girl, who lives near Cambridge with her divorced father and younger sister, developed acute myeloid leukemia in 1993 and received chemotherapy and a bone marrow transplant.

U.S., China reach an agreement on patent, copyright protections

BEIJING (AP) — China signed an agreement Saturday to crack down on patent and copyright piracy and to lower import barriers for American movies, but there were indications the dispute that brought them to the brink of a trade war isn't over.

U.S. officials say nearly all computer software sold in China is copied illegally, and that factories in the south were turning out 75 million pirated compact discs a year, mostly for export.

The 28-page agreement signed by Foreign Trade Minister Wu Yi and U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor was reached on Feb. 26, the deadline set by the Clinton administration for imposing punitive sanctions on $1 billion in Chinese imports. China had said it would retaliate.

The agreement says U.S. movies will be allowed into China with fewer restrictions, but Wu told a news conference that some market-access issues remain to be worked out. She did not elaborate.

Wu also claimed the United States agreed in 1992 to support China's admission to the World Trade Organization if China would further open its markets. Instead, Washington blocked China from becoming a founding member of the WTO, which promotes free world trade.

"We have a saying, 'Courtesy demands reciprocity.' The Chinese side is entitled to express its displeasure and take corresponding actions," Wu said.

Kantor denied there was a bargain in 1992.

China did open its markets as a result of the agreement, but not enough, he said. The United States wants China to drop its barriers for imports of agricultural products, computers, services, heavy equipment and other industrial products.

Sarajevo airlift again disrupted by fighting

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — More fighting was reported today in northern Bosnia and Sarajevo, and the city's aid airlift was interrupted after a Red Cross plane was hit by gunfire.

Scattered fighting has intensified despite a cease-fire that runs until May 1. The government commander says his Muslim-led army, allied with Bosnian Croat forces, is ready to go back to war against rebel Serbs.

Meanwhile, Croatia appears increasingly willing to rescind its order for U.N. peacekeeping troops to leave the country at the end of March, said German Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel.

Peace mediators believe the departure of the 12,000 U.N. troops would lead to renewed warfare with Croatia's Serb rebels, who captured about a quarter of the republic in 1991, and that the war could spill over into Bosnia.

"The Croatian government appears to be rethinking its decision," Kinkel said.

LITTLE LEAGUE LIGHTS

Youngsters may play under pieces of baseball history

By BARBARA MORRISON
Staff Writer

If two Big Spring men get their wish, many local youngsters soon will be playing baseball under the same lights as did Jose Canseco, Ruben Sierra and Nolan Ryan.

The lights, obtained from the old Texas Rangers' Arlington Stadium, have been purchased for the American Little League Park located behind Howard College.

The tale began in the heat of August 1994 for local residents Ray Rinard and Roy Don Beauchamp.

"The American Little League has been in need of new lights for quite some time," Beauchamp said. "They set up a fund a couple of years ago and have been gathering extra money through registration fees earmarked for a light fund. We kind of lucked across the purchase of the Rangers' lights."

Beauchamp explained the idea came to him one night while attending a Rangers' game in Arlington. "Ray and I were sitting there in the new stadium and we looked over at the old one and the thought came to us to ask what they were doing with the old lights," Beauchamp said.

When the two returned from the game, they began a series of phone calls.

"It didn't take long, and all we had to do was ask," Beauchamp said.

Regular lights of similar quality can cost $700 each. The Rangers sold the lights to Beauchamp for $150 per light. Beauchamp said about 30 lights were purchased.

Knowing the American Little League didn't have the funds to purchase the lights on its own, Beauchamp put the second stage of his plan into action.

"I knew the league couldn't afford it, so I did some fund raising on my own," Beauchamp said. "We got some fantastic donations.... The lights wound up costing the league only $900."

The cost to Beauchamp, however, was slightly higher. It took two trips to Arlington to collect the lights.

"Boy, was I a sweatball. Gosh a'mighty, it was hot lifting all those things and bringing them home in the middle of August," he added. "I blew out two tires and they've been in our garage ever since."

Why are the lights in the Beauchamp garage and not at the field? There are no poles able to hold them, Beauchamp explained.

"The league doesn't have the money to purchase the poles," Beauchamp said. "We need about four 45-foot poles and four 65-foot poles. I've been in contact with CapRock Electric and TU Electric but so far nothing has panned out."

To assist in the purchasing of the poles, an American League parent association is selling raffle tickets for an above-ground swimming pool.

"If you don't have a yard for it, give it to someone for Christmas," Beauchamp laughed. "It's for a good cause."

Beauchamp hopes the parent group will gather enough funds to have the lights working this season.

"For a place in Big Spring to have a piece of history, which is what the old Rangers' stadium was, that's pretty neat. So, if you see a glow over the Northeast area of town during the summer nights, don't think it's the refinery. It will be the children of the American Little League... hopefully playing under the same lights as many of their heroes."

Lincoln wins 4A finals

AUSTIN (AP) — Dominic Hardie and Spencer Comeaux each hit free throws with the game on the line as top-ranked Port Arthur Lincoln knocked off second-ranked Austin Anderson 57-56 in overtime for the Class 4A title Saturday.

Lincoln (35-3) won its seventh state championship in 10 tournament appearances. Anderson (35-2), led by Kris Clack's 21 points, pulled within 56-53 with 20 seconds left. But Comeaux hit the front end of a one-and-one free throw attempt with 7.8 seconds left, giving Lincoln a 57-53 lead.

comeback and defeated Maypearl 60-56 in the Class 2A championship game Saturday.

Maypearl made seven 3-pointers in the fourth quarter, overcoming a 46-27 deficit, and tied the game at 56 with 50 seconds to play.

But Burk hit a driving layup for LaPoynor (31-4) with 35 seconds left and then took his first trip to the free-throw line with 10.9 seconds to go and iced the victory.

LaPoynor won its fifth state title in nine trips.

'Horns nip Tech, take SWC title

DALLAS (AP) — Reserve Carl Simpson scored six points and Roderick Anderson hit four vital free throws in overtime Saturday night as Texas earned the automatic NCAA bid with a 107-104 Southwest Conference tournament victory over Texas Tech.

Texas increased its record to 22-6 while the Red Raiders, who were conference co-champions along with the Longhorns, dropped to 20-9.

Anderson hit four free throws in the last 30 seconds of overtime and Tech put up two long shots, the last by Jason Sasser, and failed to tie it at the buzzer.

Terrence Rencher, the tournament MVP, scored 31 points to pace the Longhorns. Reggie Freeman added 24 and Anderson and Rick McIver each scored 12.

Sasser led Tech with 28 points, Mark Davis scored 21 and Darvin Ham had 19. Lance Hughes added 15.

The Longhorns' Brandy Perryman hit a 3-point shot from the corner with 15 seconds left to tie the game at 92-all. Tech's Davis couldn't get off a clean shot at the buzzer and the game went to overtime.

Tech rallied in the second half and built a seven-point lead at 82-75 on a basket by Davis. Sasser, who had only four points in the first half, sparked the Raider comeback with eight straight points.

The Longhorns shot a sizzling 63 percent from the field in the first half but could manage only a 47-41 lead over the Red Raiders, who shot 48 percent.

Gary Burt of the Big Spring Bass Club shows off his winning catches at the club's February points tournament.

FISHING

Jeremy Navratil, 10, Brownwood, lived things a bit in an otherwise dull week at Lake Ivie by reeling in a record black bass for the lake.

His large-mouth specimen weighed in at 10.48 lbs., edging the previous record set by Kevin Burleson, Ballinger, with a 10-lb., 1-oz. catch.

During a cold, misty week, surface temperature dipped to 52 degrees and bottom 52.1.

Black bass fishing in general was only fair. Plastic worms, crank baits, slabs and spoons were equally effective 10-20 ft. off points, and 30-40 in the main body and the upper end. Dipping temperatures caused the bass to move back down to colder water. Small-mouth bass catches were poor with plastic worms best bait in 20-30 ft. water along rocky areas.

Crappie catches improved slightly and were fair to good, best results coming up the Concho River arm, especially at night. Favorite depth was to 10 ft., and creeks, upper end of the Lake and the Concho and Colorado arms the best spots.

Trollers up river, working spoons and slabs, had fair results on white bass in 10-20 ft. of water, particularly up the Concho and Colorado arms. The tip-off continued to be bulls feeding on schools of shad, as are the sand bass. No walleye catches were reported.

AT Lake E.V. Spence, several good catches of striped bass in intermediate range were reported. The largest was by R.L. Flanagan, Robert Lee, at 14-3/4 lbs. on live bait. This barely edged one by Troy and Brittany Gray, Midland, at 14 lbs., also on live bait. Jim and Carol Kurth, Big Spring, hooked strippers weighing 7-3/4 and 8 lbs. using shiners while drift fishing; Cagan Falie, Robert Lee, had a 9-3/4-lb. striper.

Bass Club reports results

Big Spring Bass Club member and President Gary Burt caught a 7.11-pound and 3.30-pound bass at the club tournament at Lake Nasworthy in San Angelo Feb. 18. Burt's two fish won first place and Big Bass Cash Awards.

Other winners were Gary Gillahan with one fish at 5.94 pounds for second place; Johnny Mills, one fish at 4.37 pounds for third place; Buddy Clinton, one fish at 4.08 pounds for fourth place; and Mark Mills one fish at 3.52 pounds for fifth place. Thirty-three members and six guests fished and caught a total of six fish with 28.32 pounds of fish weighed in.

celeated out on us, and we didn't go to Tyler, and that Florida tournament had some very tough teams. Yeah, we're 31-0, but we've played only three ranked teams in the nation, and I don't feel we've really been tested."

Logan's three ranked opponents were Lincoln, Southeastern Illinois and Vincennes (Ind.). Vincennes is no longer ranked but is one of the 16 teams making the trip to Tyler. The Lady Vols have reached the nationals nine of the past 10 seasons, but they have never won the championship. The closest they came was 1988, when Kilgore beat the Lady Vols in the championship game.

Friday, Barton said the only thing he knows about Howard is that the Lady Hawks will be the toughest opponent the Lady Vols have played to date.

"Really and truthfully, I haven't seen Howard. I'm not trying to be vague - there's just not much that's been reported on them to us, and we haven't received any films yet. But we've been to nationals nine of the last 10 years - enough to know that you can't change a lot of things when you get there."

Logan's top player is Yolanda Miller, the Most Valuable Player in the Great Rivers Athletic Conference. Miller, a 5-foot-7 transfer from Grayson, averages 17.9 points per game and shoots 52 percent from the field.

The rest of Logan's starting lineup has tallied tremendous statistics. Lashonda Albert, a 6-1 freshman, averages 18.3 points and 6.9 rebounds and holds the GRAC's Newcomer of the Year Award. April Fort (5-10, so., 12.8 ppg, 9.1 rpg) sinks 52 percent of her shots. The most accurate shooter is 6-2 sophomore Lavitte Henry (11.6 ppg, 6.8 rpg), who makes 60 percent of her shots. Logan's point guard is Nora Hendrix (5-6, fr.), who scores 5.8 points per game while dishing out 4.4 assists.

"Logan has two great guards and good size inside," said Howard coach Terry Gray. "They like to shoot the perimeter jumper and then let their big post players rebound and put them back in."

As for Logan's huge scoring average, Gray said: "They play in a part of the country where there is a different style of play, but they do have a great team with people that can score. Their size certainly concerns us."

The layoff between the regionals and the nationals has allowed Howard to heal some of its nagging injuries, Gray said, but don't tell that to Howard freshman Amy Earnst. Earnst, a 6-0 reserve post player, went down in practice Tuesday after injuring the same knee where she tore the anterior cruciate ligament. Gray said Earnst is doubtful for Tyler, which would take Howard down to just a four-player bench.

Facing a team that makes an annual event of nationals shouldn't faze Howard - the Lady Hawks are making the trip for the third straight season. Howard and Logan are old pros at making the national championship tournament.

The trick is to win it.

You're cordially invited to learn about the Retired Senior Volunteer Program and the people who make it work

Story by Janet Ausbury

We've all seen RSVP on invitations. But what does it mean when used in the context of the Big Spring community?

For those who participate in the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, it means a chance to spend hours helping a variety of people in just as great a variety of settings and situations.

For those who receive the volunteer assistance, it means getting help that otherwise might not be available, at a price that just can't be beat.

To be eligible for the program, a person must be retired, 55 or older and be willing to devote a few hours each week to volunteer work.

Nancy Jones, director of the local RSVP program, says her biggest trouble is coordinating the right number of participants with the amount of need. "We usually have a lot of one or the other," she laughed. Usually, there's more need to be filled than people to fill it.

However, those who are in the RSVP program aren't afraid of work and accumulate many hours volunteering, usually for more than one cause.

Clara Hernandez is one such example. A volunteer worker since 1956, she joined RSVP about eight years ago. She works for the Head Start Program, St. Vincent de Paul, Hispanic Women for Progress, the Chamber of Commerce and Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, to name a few causes.

Hernandez can be found regularly at Immaculate Heart on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, when needy area residents come to get food and clothing. She also recruits additional RSVP helpers. "I signed up six people in one month," she said.

Rosa Ledesma is a newcomer to RSVP. She volunteers at Canterbury North as an interpreter for Spanish-speaking residents. Her duties are varied; in any given day she may take people to the doctor, accompany them at their Canterbury rental reviews or help them sign up for food stamps or Medicaid.

She also assists at the diabetes clinics run by the county welfare and indigent health care office, and at Westside Community Center. She previously worked for the Salvation Army and was frequently called on to interpret.

Even while visiting family or friends in the hospital, she has been asked to help Spanish-speaking patients.

Ledesma doesn't drive, but that doesn't keep her from her appointed rounds. "I do a lot of walking," she said.

Not only is she relied upon to translate, the people she helps depend on her strong respect for confidentiality. "Their private business stays private," Ledesma emphasized.

Eunice Thixton joined RSVP in October, but for her it's almost as if she never left the workplace. She taught at Elbow Elementary School for 24 years and now volunteers there every Wednesday.

She has a granddaughter who attends Elbow, so volunteering gives Thixton a chance to keep in close contact with her grandchild.

Please see RSVP, page 4B

RSVP volunteer Eunice Thixton spends her Wednesdays helping staff at Elbow Elementary School, where she taught for 24 years. Volunteering keeps Thixton in close contact with her granddaughter, an Elbow student.

Clara Hernandez folds clothes as part of her RSVP volunteer work at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church. On Tuesday and Thursday mornings, volunteers provide food and clothing for Big Spring's needy.

Nancy Jones, director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) in Big Spring, begins the task of calculating volunteer hours turned in by RSVP workers. Some volunteers work so many places and hours, they don't remember to record all their volunteer time.

True friends open homes and hearts to those in need

I discovered the true meaning of the word "friends" this week.

Barbara Morrison

I have been statistics. We were actually homeless due to the fact we couldn't find affordable housing in Big Spring on a short-term basis.

So, we've been living in a motor home while we waited

I've also learned you can't live with them and you certainly can't live without them. At least, I couldn't.

For the past two weeks, my family and for our new house to be vacated. You see, that's why the ice storm and freeze set in. I know that to be an absolute fact. While I still had a house the weather was gorgeous - up in the 70s.

Anyway, forget the meteorologists or the weather announcers. The only tried and true system I can come up with to forecast accurately is to plan something in my life.

For example, if I plan an outing to the lake or a picnic, it rains. If I plan a camping trip and plan to put up tents, a tornado or hailstorm is sure to arrive.

If my husband washes the car, it rains. (That one alone has a 99.9 percent accuracy rate.)

So, if the farmers need rain this summer, just call me. I'll tell Willis to wash the car.

We've been living in a motor home while we waited for our new house to be vacated. You see, that's why the ice storm and freeze set in. I know that to be an absolute fact.

Recently, I moved into a motor home which only had one electric heater and a gas stove to keep us warm, and presto-chango, welcome to West Texas, the "other" Arctic. I've gained an immense respect for the Eskimo population...and the homeless.

I'm not joking. I've had a slight taste of what it feels like to not have anywhere to go "home" to. Not that I'm saying my life is the pits or anything. There are a million people out there with a much worse plight than mine.

I'm counting my blessings. At least my family is still intact and healthy. I have a good job, good friends and I was only homeless for a couple of weeks.

There are people out there, and yes, right here in Big Spring, that NEVER have a place to call "home."

I wonder how often they pass by houses at night just to see the warm glow of living room lights and imagine what it would be like to have a hot meal laid out on the family dinner table.

I'll have a new perspective the next time I sit with my guys and we joke and talk about the day. I think we'll all appreciate it a little more.

Don't get me wrong. We haven't been miserable. Not at all.

We have two wonderful friends who have let us disrupt their entire lives while they kept our boys living with them.

Then, to top it all off, when my husband came down with pneumonia, they packed us ALL up, took us to their home (dog included), fed us several hot meals and had us sleep in their home while we waited for the weather to warm.

I'm sure it wasn't fun for them and I know they are looking forward to having their one single family unit back, but what would we have done without them? I wonder.

Through it all, we've had to swallow our pride. Boy, that was one big chunk of pie. I guess our minister had it right when he told me, "Barbara, sometimes you have to let people do these kinds of things."

We found that accepting charity wasn't against the law. The hardest part of all was letting someone do something for us.

Once we got past the "letting" stage, everything went smoothly. It's kind of special that the very first definition of the word "charity" in the dictionary is "love for one's fellow man."

Our circumstances taught us a true meaning. Thank you Roy Don, Beverly, Daniel and Dustyn Beauchamp. My family is proud to be among your friends.

Candlelighter was John Nail, cousin of the bride, Yukon, Okla.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor.

The bride's table was covered with ivory linen and lace overlay, with crystal appointments, trays of hors d'oeuvres, fruit and punch. It also featured a three-tiered cake separated by white columns. The bottom layer was square and covered with ivory icing topped with miniature ivory roses, and the top layers were round with matching detail.

The groom's table was covered with a burgundy linen cloth topped with a fringed throw and had a centerpiece of a brass tray holding hunter-green candles. A gold coffee service and appointments along with mints and nuts completed the setting. It also had an octagon shaped chocolate covered, single layer cake with tuxedo jackets in all corners and miniature champagne glasses which topped the cake.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School, is a sophomore at Texas Tech and is employed by Double T Book Store in Lubbock.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Let your more playful self come out. Your sense of humor is important when dealing with a parent or older relative. There is a sense of uproar. A brain-storm or a funny idea can end a problem before it begins. Open up to changes. Tonight: Enjoy being frisky.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Communications are interesting, to say the least, and plans could change out of the blue. Show your flexibility, and don't be stubborn; others will respond more positively to your energy that way. Tonight: Take time to veg with a partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You might be very upset with and critical of a partner. You will benefit if you work through the problem in a more sensitive manner. Focus the positive. A partner will come around if you open to his energy. Tonight: Dine with a friend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What you thought was going fine might not be. This could be a temporary setback, as a partner is feeling cantankerous and tired. Your energy is limited; you, too, need some time off. Be more nurturing. Tonight: Treat a friend in a way other than financially.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your nerves may be shot because of events that occurred early in the day. Go out, take a walk or do something just for you. When you return you'll feel much better. A loved one wants to make peace. Listen to an offer. Tonight: Kiss and make up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Zero in on your priorities. You no longer can tolerate doing things halfway. The clearer you are about what you want, the more people can respond. You might be disappointed by a friend. Once alone, reassess this relationship. Tonight: Veg at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be more centered about what you want. A family member has been aggravated because of the time you spend doing other things. Focus on priorities, and realize who is important in your life. Juggling time is a skill to learn. Tonight: Have a talk with a friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New insights come in a jolting manner. Be open to what, not how, something is being said. Realize that other people can feel awkward with communications. Make a must appearance later in the day. Indulge others. Tonight: Out and about.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You need to get closer to a partner. A key discussion involves finances. You can no longer rain on another's parade. Opportunities for open conversation come after sundown. Be willing to change. Tonight: Share your favorite piece of music.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Whatever you do seems to backfire. With a sense of humor, you can be spontaneous, and the day can work out. A partner wants your attention but just doesn't know how to get it. Be loving, and understand the motivation. Tonight: Order in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Consider calling this a lazy day. You don't have to respond to others. Sometimes you need time off from the hectic pace. Your nerves are frayed; you are tired and you feel sensitive. As the day progresses, you are renewed and feel better. Tonight: Out on the town.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What went well before could be a problem now. Don't take someone for granted. A friend could disagree with you, resulting in a discussion that is not so friendly. Value this friendship, and don't be judgmental. Laugh a little. Tonight: Do something special for yourself.

IF MARCH 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your flexibility is tested this year. You need to learn to be less rigid. Your career offers you a multitude of options. Friends may react differently because of jealousy or change in how you respond. If you are single: Relationships are exciting but not steady; don't count on anything for a while; enjoy the liveliness of your social life, and give a relationship time. If attached: This could be an interesting year in which you renegotiating on all levels; be open to change. LEO helps you work out problems.

Readers, fight for Dempsey stamp

DEAR READERS: The letter I published from Deanne Dempsey, Jack Dempsey's widow, soliciting help in promoting a commemorative postage stamp to mark the 100th anniversary of Jack Dempsey's birth, generated a flood of fascinating letters. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I loved Mrs. Dempsey's idea of a postage stamp to commemorate the 100-year anniversary of Jack Dempsey's birth. During the Depression years in the oil-boom town of Wink, Texas, the only important days of the year were the day we voted and the days when Jack Dempsey boxed.

Dempsey's boxing was more important than voting, because in all the oil fields, the rough-necks, tool pushers, drillers and crews would go home, bathe, shave, put on their best clothes, and go downtown to listen to the boxing match on the radio. (There was no TV in those days.)

When I was a child, all the men gathered at the Central Drugstore in Wink. There were so many, some had to stand outside to listen. It was the highlight for many of us during the Depression years. -- LEON THOMPSON, KENT, WASH.

P.S. In those days, you could buy a barrel of oil right out of the oil fields for 10 cents!

DEAR ABBY: I would like to encourage the Citizens Stamp Advisory Board to approve a Jack Dempsey postage stamp -- preferably a 25-cent stamp -- commemorating the 100th anniversary of his birth on June 24, 1895. It should be a 25-cent stamp, because that was the fee paid to the midwife who delivered him. -- BOXING FAN

DEAR ABBY: I appreciated Mrs. Jack Dempsey's letter regarding her husband.

She failed to mention that her husband also served his country during World War II as a naval officer.

My late husband was Mr. Dempsey's secretary at the Great Lakes Naval Base in Chicago. He cherished the time he spent with this great man. -- FLORENCE SCHLECT, MONROE, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: On Sept. 23, 1926, I bet my father that my hero, Jack Dempsey, would beat Gene Tunney and keep his world heavyweight boxing championship title. Alas, the following day, newspapers throughout the country had headlines announcing "Tunney Defeats Dempsey"! Dad made me take 25 cents from my Liberty Bell bank to pay off the wager I had lost. I learned early in life there is no such thing as a sure bet.

I am writing to Marvin Runyon, Postmaster General, L'Enfant Plaza, Washington, D.C. 20026, in support of a Dempsey postage stamp. -- JOHN M. SLANSKI, SHELTON, CONN.

READERS: For the record: Gene Tunney successfully defended his world heavyweight boxing championship title against Jack Dempsey in a second title fight in 1927. It drew a record gate of $2,658,660.

I suppose many U.S. citizens would enjoy licking a Jack Dempsey postage stamp, because the only man who licked Jack Dempsey was Gene Tunney.

To order "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Dog bowls, lingerie on '90s gift registries

By AMY McRARY

Scripps Howard News Service

Wrenches and screwdrivers, dog bowls or sexy lingerie — ideas for wedding gifts don't end with china, crystal and flatware.

Couples today often register at more than one store, showing varying tastes and different needs. And giving gift-givers a wide choice.

For example, brides- and grooms-to-be can register for handpainted porcelain tableware, flatware, glassware, napkin rings and picture frames.

The practical and the whimsical are mixed on registry lists — salt and pepper shakers, candlesticks, decorative bottles and leaf- or flower-shaped salad servers.

A few couples have listed decorative pine tables or hand-painted, pottery dog bowls.

But it doesn't stop there. Home Depot, a large chain hardware store, began its first registry listing in early 1993.

Since then, couples have registered for small power tools, bathroom fixtures, and real or silk plants. Even a riding lawn-mower has been listed.

Service Merchandise stores have formed a computerized, nationwide registry involving 391 stores.

Not only do glasses, silverware and dishes turn up among the suggestions, but so do small appliances, barbecue grills and, occasionally, stereo systems.

Representatives at J.C. Penney's say couples list more than the traditional there, too. But luggage and housewares remain among the most popular requests.

Students receive unique training in school kitchen

By JONATHAN PRICE

FAIRLEA, W.Va. — Working in a restaurant is hardly a new experience for many high school students.

But having your fare sampled by the executive chef from one of the nation's most prestigious resorts isn't something many are subjected to.

"I've always liked to cook," said Wanda Wade, a senior at Greenbrier East High School. Wade spoke as she topped folded tortillas with chicken and sour cream at the school's Aspirations restaurant.

Located in a renovated sewing room at the school, the restaurant offers faculty and staff members an alternative to the cafeteria or a trip off-campus for lunch.

Up to 25 patrons can dine in the restaurant on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and in the two and a half years it has been in operation, students have benefited from the experience of the staff at The Greenbrier resort, which helps the school run the program.

Besides providing equipment for the kitchen, the resort also has provided guidance for students, including sending different members of The Greenbrier's staff to the school to share their knowledge.

"We are finding we have lit a fire under some individuals," said Rod Stoner, vice president of The Greenbrier's food and beverage department.

"We're trying to foster our best resource here."

Stoner said the partnership between the school and the White Sulphur Springs resort began in 1985.

Patty Gray, the school's food trades instructor, said 17 students make the restaurant tick, taking orders, cooking and cleaning.

She said several local businesses helped get the program off the ground.

WHO'S WHO

Zac Marshall, son of Dr. John and Cynthia Marshall of Big Spring, was promoted from Sergeant to Master Sergeant Feb. 11 at San Marcos Academy, San Marcos. The triple promotion was the first in the 85-year history of the school for a student of the Junior ROTC program.

He earned further recognition by being the only non-senior student placed in the top five Corps Staff position.

Aaron Smith of Issaquah, Wash., son of former Big Spring residents Doug and Sandra Smith, was featured in an article, "The Haves and Have-Nots," in the Feb. 27 issue of Newsweek magazine.

Smith is the nephew of B. Gayle Thompson, Big Spring.

IN THE MILITARY

A.B. Bradley W. Hunt graduated from basic training Feb.

10 from Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio. He is a 1994 Coahoma High School graduate and the son of Beverly Whitlock and the grandson of Gus and Georgia Jacobs, Coahoma.

People make 4-H work

With so much emphasis on stock shows in February and March, it is often easy to forget the many other activities of the 4-H program. Last week we discussed some of the additional activities other than livestock for 4-H members to become involved in. However, we only discussed the activities available to the 4-H members.

Howard County is very fortunate to have outstanding club managers. Kelly and Teresa Gaskins of the Knott 4-H Club, Mike and Beverly Hull of the Shooting Sports Club, Gary and Linda Tabor of the Forsan 4-H Club and Lonnie and Nita Wright of the Lucky Acres 4-H Club are all excellent and volunteer endless hours to the success of the 4-H program.

Volunteers can become very active in other areas of the 4-H program as well. Individual events throughout the year rely on the commitment of local volunteers. The Annual AJRA Junior Rodeo, Junior Livestock Show, County Fair, District and State Roundup, along with all the major livestock shows could not be as effective as they are without the dedication of local volunteers.

Responsibilities range from advertising to concessions, decorations to finances, and maintenance to transportation.

If you are interested in becoming a 4-H volunteer leader, contact the Extension Office on the first floor of the Courthouse at 264-2238. The annual spring meeting of the Adult Leader's Association will be at the Courthouse on Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

In addition, she simply wants to give her help where it's needed.

"When you work someplace, you see areas that need volunteers," Thixton explained. She recently helped the school library put 500 new books on the shelves. She and her husband, Garner, also help during teacher in-service days. "I substitute teach a lot," she said.

Thixton is also involved with Boy Scouts, Rainbow Girls, volunteers at the ticket booth at Big Spring State Park and plans to help the Heritage Museum with its upcoming "Around the World in 80 Bites" project.

"I did walking tours for the museum in October and really enjoyed it," she said. "We told ghost stories on the mountain."

Why does she do so much volunteer work? Her explanation touched off murmurs of recognition and agreement from fellow volunteers. "I get to go and do the fun things, do the things I want to do," she said.

"My husband says I was born with my right hand up in the air," she quipped. "I'll do it!"

Bill Birrell retired about 10 years ago and started volunteering to drive patients back and forth for cancer treatments in Midland and Odessa. "I was one of the first drivers," he said.

Also known in the community for his work with the Lions Club and Christmas in April, Birrell also assisted the mobile meals program based at Runnels Junior High School. The school prepares the meals, and volunteer drivers take them to shut-ins.

The program, operated by Don Brooks and Clara Hernandez' husband Jesse, operates even when school is closed.

Much of his time now goes to fighting his own battle with cancer. The irony of this does not escape Birrell. "I used to drive patients to their treatments. Now I am a patient," he said.

He is helping Christmas in April find a warehouse to keep donated items in. There is liability involved, "but we're insured," he explained.

He is also assisting the Lions Club in their search for ill or disabled children to send to camp.

Jack Abendschan, a retired minister, has been with RSVP for three years. Every Friday, he goes with Living Water Ministries to the federal prison to have worship services.

The group takes a band with them and has a three-hour session, including dancing and singing.

"Just being there and showing up has such an impact," he said. "To me, it's a beautiful ministry."

His wife, Mary Lou, is also part of the prison ministry. The Abendschans took four hours of special training to be able to volunteer at the prison.

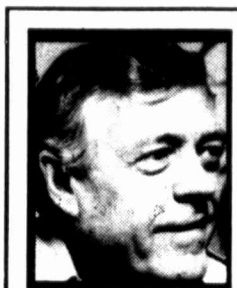

Abendschan's other credits include being VA chaplain and filling in at pulpits around town.

Although these volunteers don't mind having their days filled with work, there is still more work to go around, Jones said. In addition to popular volunteer sites such as Scenic Mountain Medical Center, the VA Medical Center and Big Spring State Hospital, almost every organization or cause in town could use volunteer help.

To become part of RSVP, contact Jones 264-2397 or stop by her office at the Spring City Senior Center.

Elvis goodies still outrageously pricey

Kay Hunter of Rusk was Elvis Presley's hair dresser from 1971 to 1977. She used to travel with him and has a collection of Elvis scarves, jewelry, backstage passes and other items pertaining to the famous singer.

Tumbleweed Smith
Columnist

They are in boxes that haven't been opened since Elvis died in 1977. She doesn't sell any of her collection. She hadn't even considered selling any of it until recently when she attended an auction of Elvis stuff in Las Vegas. One of his scarves with sweat on it sold for $7,000.

A 1977 Seville Cadillac he bought just before he died sold for $90,000. A five by seven photo with Elvis's signature on it sold for $7,000. A backstage pass went for $350.

An early Elvis 45 rpm record on the Sun label brought $550. Elvis's jewelry sold for some nice prices. Someone paid $16,000 for a ring Elvis used to wear. Kay bought a bracelet for $4,000. A TCB necklace brought $55,000. TCB was Elvis's logo: "Taking Care of Business."

Perhaps the most outrageous prices were paid for some of the singer's jumpsuits. Prices ranged from $9,000 to $95,000. "I think they'll turn to dirt as soon as the air hits them," says Kay.

An unreleased Elvis movie sold for $37,000. Elvis's American Express card (which expired in 1976) sold for $36,000.

"I had no idea of the value of these things that I've had all these years," says Kay. "Butterfield and Butterfield and Butterfield, the auctioneers, had been buying this stuff for years getting ready for this sale. It's the only all-Elvis auction I know about."

She says anyone who collects Elvis paraphernalia or is interested in selling some of it should go to Graceland, the singer's home in Memphis during August, when there's a celebration marking the anniversary of Elvis's death. People from all over the world go there to buy or sell Elvis items.

"One of these days, people might say Elvis WHO? But I think he's more popular now than when he was alive," says Kay.

"I think when I open those boxes of Elvis mementos I'll have a representative of the auction company there with me. It seems that anything Elvis touched is of value."

About 3,000 people attended the auction over a Friday and Saturday. "The bigger items, the things you really wanted, were auctioned late Saturday." Everything sold. All 606 items. A catalog of the entire collection will probably one day be a valuable souvenir. "I marked mine all up, putting down the prices things sold for," says Kay. "I couldn't believe how much some of these things were bringing."

A watch bracelet went for $65,000. Karate jackets, guns, sheriff's badges given to Elvis, all brought big prices. A jacket worn by a member of Elvis's band went for $4,000. Elvis's power boat sold for $15,000.

One of Elvis's cars he used in a movie sold for $85,000. The singer's 1972 six door Mercedes limousine went for $290,000. A pair of sunglasses brought $23,000. A limb from a tree at Graceland that fell during Elvis's funeral sold for $650.

"I'd just like to know all these people who had money to buy these things," says Kay. "I make an open invitation right now to anybody who bought some of that stuff to come by my house and visit."

Travelers encounter stuffed dog

By SUSAN CLAIRMONT

PETERBOROUGH, Ontario, Canada — A stroll through the California state capital building, a visit to a bullfight, being abandoned in Mexico, a rough flight to Cuba...

Adventure and (in most cases) hospitality follow Ian wherever he goes.

Since leaving his home in San Luis Obispo, Calif., in November, he has stolen the hearts of scores of travelers and contributed to the education of one 12-year-old boy who misses him very much.

With his stubby little tail, floppy ears and denim backpack, Ian looks like many other stuffed dogs. But this stuffed pooch has been roaming the world and will be sent home to his owner, James Borland, with gifts from the many friends he has made.

As part of a fifth grade project at his California school, James gave Ian a notebook, a letter of introduction and a picture of his class and sent him off on the journey of a lifetime. All James asked in return is for travelers to be kind to his dog, buy him a few souvenirs and help him send a postcard every now and then.

"Ian has brought everyone so much happiness," says Leona Turcotte, who invited Ian back to Peterborough after meeting him at a hotel in Cuba last month.

"We brought him back in my suitcase," she says. "We didn't want Ian to stay in Cuba because he doesn't speak Spanish."

TAX TIME!!!

Consumer Credit Counseling Service can help you figure it out

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Tax season is one of the few times many residents will sit down to take a hard look at their financial situation, a picture that is not always pleasant, but Consumer Credit Counseling Service can help.

CCCS is a non-profit organization that counsels people about their consumer debt (also known as debt management).

Big Spring's CCCS office has been operating for about a year and counselor Joe Stocks is in the Big Spring office each Wednesday and Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Stocks said, "In some cases, CCCS can have interest on accounts stopped and payments to creditors may even be reduced."

CCCS also does counseling for HUD.

Stocks said, "We do 40 percent of the pre-purchase counseling for HUD in the U.S.

To get involved with the CCCS program a person may contact the CCCS district office in Fort Worth at 1-800-374-2227. The number to the Big Spring office is 264-0212 and it will also ring in Fort Worth because the Big Spring office is only opened two days a week.

The district office sets appointments with the local counselor for clients, and for first time callers interested in the program the Fort Worth office will instruct callers what materials to have with them at their initial meeting with a CCCS counselor.

Stocks said, "We can help with formulate a budget and show people how to stick with it. We're not a debt collectors, but we are here to help the client."

According to Stocks, one of the most important benefits of a CCCS program is it will teach people how to manage their debts.

He said, "This program is for people who want to pay their bills. A lot of people, through no fault of their own, get into financial trouble when their income level drops or they lose a job.

Another common problem is that many people tend to overspend.

Stocks added the largest problem aside from the loss of income or a job is illness.

CCCS will also do presentations and seminars to groups who request them.

He said he was recently in Lamesa, giving a financial management seminar to a cancer support group and ran into a man who had recently spent nine days in the hospital.

The man, also a cancer patient, spent most of that time in the Intensive Care Unit and after those nine days was facing a hospital bill of $96,000.

Stocks said it was fortunate the man had insurance, but

U.S. workers more productive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The productivity of American workers grew by 2.2 percent in 1994 but was slowing at year's end.

"We'll probably see further slowing (as the economy slackens) as we move through 1995," said Mark Zandi, an economist with Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa.

"There's been some modest improvement related to strong investment, but most of the growth has been related to the business cycle," he said.

Robert G. Dederick, an economist consultant with the Northern Trust Co. in Chicago, however, said it is too early to tell whether recent productivity growth was due more to a strong economic expansion or to business modernization and restructuring.

"This year will be the test," he suggested. "With the economy likely to grow more slowly, productivity should do the same unless we have moved into something more fundamental."

The Labor Department said Wednesday that 1994 nonfarm productivity growth followed a 1.5 percent gain in 1993. Productivity last declined on an annual basis in 1989, when it fell 0.9 percent as the economy was nearing recession.

Productivity — output per number of hours worked — is a key measure of the nation's living standards and business competitiveness, since increases mean companies are making their goods more efficiently and at lower costs.

Productivity gains helped keep prices down last year. Unit labor costs — typically two-thirds of the cost of a product and a key measure of inflation — edged up 0.9 percent after rising 1.7 percent a year earlier. It was the smallest increase since 0.8 percent in 1964.

Zandi said there were signs of wage-cost acceleration that could lead to price increases, including a 1.7 percent annualized gain in the fourth quarter, up from a 0.1 percent decline in the prior three months.

And he noted that on a year-over-year basis, costs rose 1.9 percent in the final three months of 1994, compared to 0.3 percent in the first quarter.

The report also suggested workers did not fully share in the 2.2 percent productivity gain last year.

Minute Maid orange juice cartons, shown in a handout photo, are shedding the 30-year basic black look in a $100 million makeover for a new image, Coca-Cola Foods announced recently. The new multi-colored cartons are scheduled to arrive in stores this month.

Taste remains the same — only look has changed

HOUSTON (AP) — Minute Maid orange juice cartons are shedding the 30-year basic black look in a $100 million makeover for a splashier image.

The new multi-color cartons will feature pictures of oranges in a grove, juice being poured into a glass and oranges in a bowl on a breakfast table, Coca-Cola Foods announced on Wednesday.

The Houston-based division of The Coca-Cola Co. said the new cartons will be arriving in stores this month.

"Packaging has traditionally been treated as a container with brand identification," said Dan Knauss, senior vice president of marketing at Coca-Cola Foods. "Minute Maid is much more than orange juice."

Coca-Cola Foods is the world's largest marketer of juices and juice drinks, with a domestic market share of 17 percent. In addition to Minute Maid juices and drinks, Coca-Cola Foods also markets Hi-C fruit drinks, Five Alive citrus beverage, Bright & Early breakfast beverage and Bacardi fruit mixers.

State's unemployment rate lowest in five years

DALLAS (AP) — The state's unemployment rate hit its lowest mark in more than five years last month, reaching 5.1 percent in February, the Labor Department said Friday.

Unemployment declined .7 percent from January, when the rate was 5.8 percent.

The last time a 5.1 percent rate was recorded was in January 1990.

In addition, the state's employment topped 9 million for the first time.

Bill Luker Jr., regional economist for the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the numbers are "very positive." Much of the growth comes from a favorable business climate creating an influx of workers from other states, he said.

"They are folks who are being transferred here by their corporate headquarters, so they come with jobs in hand," Luker said. "That enhances their effect on demand for goods and services."

A year ago, in February 1994, the Texas unemployment rate was 6.9 percent.

The jobless rate declined last summer and reached 5.5 percent in November, its lowest level in 1994 and the low mark in nearly four years. But it tipped back up to 6.0 percent in December.

However, the three-month unemployment averages, considered a more stable measure, have been trending down significantly, Luker said.

For the December-February quarter, unemployment averaged 5.6 percent, slightly lower than the 5.9 percent and 5.8 percent averages for the three months ending in December and January, respectively, the bureau said. That has dropped since the 6.7 percent average posted for May-July 1994.

"What we are seeing is a very steady trend downward since the middle part or even first quarter of last year," Luker said.

Some 481,000 Texans were looking for work last month, the lowest number since February 1991. The state's overall labor force changed little, standing at 9.5 million.

Nationally, the February unemployment rate was 5.4 percent, down from 5.7 percent in January.

Separately, State Comptroller John Sharp said Friday that the record-high number of jobs has increased consumer confidence, which resulted in an 11.8 percent hike in sales tax rebates.

Getting the mare ready for breeding season

One of the most knowledgeable horsemen in the country is a friend of mine who is a horse specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University in College Station.

I was visiting with Dr. Doug Householder not long ago about taking care of broodmares (Yes, I am one of those crazy folks who openly confesses the fact that I own a broodmare!) and he shared with me

Don Richardson
County Agent

some information that I felt other horse types in our area might like to know about. This is particularly so as we approach foaling and breeding season.

Common knowledge in the horse industry dictates that professional and economic success often hinges on mares foaling early in the year, rebreeding quickly and nursing a fast growing foal that will develop soundly.

While efforts to achieve these goals in a herd of broodmares are certainly susceptible to a wide variety of problems, careful consideration of nutritional well-being is one important step in having an effective broodmare program.

Poor reproductive performance is often directly to nutritional status. Research has shown that mares in thin body condition do not perform as well reproductively as do mares in moderately fleshy to fat condition. Thin mares are normally slower to cycle and have more cycles per conception. They often times fail to demonstrate normal estrous behavior until late in the season, and quite often will conceive only after a lengthy stay at the breeding farm.

However, mares in good condition, those that are moderately fleshy to fat, are expected to conceive earlier, and these mares have a significantly higher pregnancy rate. By being in suitable condition at time of breeding, these mares also have a higher maintenance of pregnancy than mares in thin condition. Reproductive performance can often be improved in thin mares if they are fed to gain weight.

However, putting the needed weight on a poor mare is very costly and can be dangerous from a digestive disorder standpoint. Therefore, it is much safer and more cost effective to maintain adequate body condition on mares so that they are ready, in advance, for the breeding season.

It is not uncommon for many mares to lose some weight at the breeding farm. Different surroundings and early lactation stress can contribute to some degree of decrease in body condition. Research shows, however, that mares in good condition have higher conception rates than thin mares even if some weight loss does occur. The above mentioned strongly supports the need to monitor body condition on a regular basis and to take advantage of the economic benefits associated with keeping mares in good shape. By having mares in suitable condition at breeding and foaling time, additional expense can be avoided due to trying to put weight on thin mares when feed costs are often the highest.

If planning to breed your mare(s) this season a few more tips should be considered. Be SURE both YOU and the STALLION OWNER or manager are on the same wave lengths as to all the costs and other obligations that can be incurred by your mare while visiting the stallion's farm.

There are usually more costs involved than just the advertised stud fee of the stallion. For instance, be sure you understand and agree upon the boarding bills. This is most often referred to as Mare Care fees. Such fees can range anywhere from $3 to as high as $20 or more per day.

Most stud farms charge extra if a mare has a foal on her at time of breeding. Should the mare need vet care while visiting the stallion, be sure this is understood. Worming and other medical attention is sometimes required. Be sure everyone is aware of these charges and care. Most reliable stallion owners have a written contract between mare owners and themselves explaining the obligations and other details regarding the breeding of your mare.

Read these over carefully

BUSINESS HIGHLIGHTS

U.S. will protect currency

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world should be "absolutely clear" that America will defend its currency, the Clinton administration declared, striking a resolute note as financial markets continued to pound the dollar. While Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin Thursday offered the administration's most detailed defense yet of the U.S. currency, markets continued driving the dollar down against the Japanese yen.

Unemployment claims increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — New claims for unemployment benefits increased by 4,000 last week, fueling debate among some economists over whether the job market is weakening.

Derivative guidelines unveiled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six Wall Street firms, faced with a backlash over money-losing derivatives deals, unveiled guidelines to disclose detailed data about the risks undertaken in this arcane arena of investing. The guidelines announced Thursday would be voluntary. They were developed in cooperation with the Securities and Exchange Commission and Commodity Futures Trading Commission and represent an unusual response to regulating a rapidly evolving market, which now exceeds $12 trillion.

Tax cuts face difficulties

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans presented their long-promised tax cut for families, businesses and investors, declaring that it would ease financial burdens on Americans and help companies create more jobs. But it faces difficulties ahead.

RIG COUNT

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of oil and gas rigs operating nationwide dropped nine this week to 675, Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday. A year ago, the number of rigs running was 733.

Of the rigs running this week, 330 were exploring for natural gas, 334 for oil and 11 were listed as miscellaneous.

Houston-based Baker Hughes has kept track of the count since 1940. Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Louisiana fell by five, Colorado and Texas were down three, Pennsylvania and Wyoming were down two and Ohio was off one. New Mexico and Oklahoma rose by two.

BEFORE you sign them. Also most good stallion owners have a "live foal" guarantee. This is generally regarded as a guarantee that your mare safely delivers a live foal from the breeding between her and the stallion you have selected. If no foal results from this breeding or a stillborn or weak foal that soon dies after birth results generally has mention in breeding contracts that the mare owner has the right to bring the mare back for another breeding at no charge (except mare care) or at a reduced rate or some other arrangement.

This is another item the mare owner should understand fully before breeding his/her mare. In the case of Paint and Appaloosa stallion owners, some such breeders offer a color guarantee along with a live foal guarantee.

This means that is a solid colored foal results from the mating, some kind of arrangements can be made for rebreeding the following year with certain stipulations all parties must agree upon prior to breeding. Again, be SURE all parties have a clear understanding of these arrangements prior to breeding of the mare. A "Chute Fee" is often charged the mare owner. This fee is a charge the stud farm makes each time a mare is handled for breeding, which sometimes include a vet check for ovulation or early pregnancy checking, either by rectal palpation or sonogram.

Many stallion owners participate in "Incentive programs" through various breed associations, racing associations, regional clubs, etc. Check into these. If your foal's sire is such a participant, the foal can win some pretty nice awards by being eligible to participate in these activities.

Another good question to inquire about is whether the stallion has been blood-typed by his breed association. Most breed associations require both sire and dam of foals now to be registered to be blood-typed for parentage verification. Horses can be typed through a special DNA process now simply by plucking a few hairs from the horse's mane above the withers and sending them to the breed association headquarters. Special kits are available from most associations at nominal charges for this service.

Further questions on registration of foals from purebred horse associations can be obtained from your horse's association. Our office maintains a file on most breed registrations for registration information on foals. Please feel free to give us a call at 264-2236.

pointed out its episodes like that which cause many people to fall into financial hardship.

The CCCS program is very effective when people stick to the program and according to Stocks, if a person is in a CCCS program before a bill is ready for collection, normally creditors will not send a debt to a collection agency.

According to CCCS, the program, simply stated, is for people who want to pay their bills, get back on their feet, and achieve financial independence.
