Car enthusiasts roll into C-City

13th annual C.C. Riders show starts Friday with cruise

The 13th Annual Car Show and Sonic Cruise will be held in Colorado City by the C.C. Riders car club, and car enthusiasts from all over will be here to check out the cars, win door prizes and enjoy the Sonic cruise.

Hickory Street will be lined with spectators Friday evening as the Sonic Cruise kicks off the weekend event. The cruise will feature a Cruise Radio Show on Colorado City's own KVMC/KAUM from 6 to 9 p.m.

Local radio DJ John Martinez has been putting together a show that features music from the 50s, 60s, 70s and 80s. Spectators can tune in, as well as those cruising.

Cruise awards will be given at 9 p.m. on Friday night at the Sonic Drive In. Sonic owners Tommy Meeks and Joseph Polanco are big supporters of the event, and a large crowd gathers at the drive in to see all the cars make the loop to proceed back to Hickory Street, as part of the cruise.

Car club member Scott Free urged everyone to come out for the Sonic Cruise. "Bring your lawn chairs, set them up along Hickory and watch the rollin' car show," he said.

The car show will be held Saturday inside and outside the Railhead with registration beginning at 8 a.m. and ending at noon. T-shirts and dash plaques will be given to the first 75 show entries. C.C. Riders members do not enter the show.

This year, the Texas Famous Pablo from Texas Car Wars will be on hand to pinstripe vehicles. He will actually be painting at the show, and those attending

Court passes guidelines

The Mitchell County Commissioners Court met on Friday, May 31st to discuss and consider potential action on tax abatement in regard to the power plant.

Commissioners approved a resolution saying that Mitchell County is open to and will consider entering into tax abate-ments with any entity, in order to promote the development of industry within the county. The resolution must be renewed by the court every two years.

Tax abatement guidelines and criteria were also passed unanimously by the court. The guidelines establish a uniform policy of tax abatement to provide for the economic growth of Mitchell County.

The first criteria set out in the document says that in order to be eligible for designation as a reinvestment zone and receive tax abatement, the planned im-

Public hearing held on de-sal grant

A public hearing was held at the Mitchell County Board of Economic Development on Tuesday evening, regarding an amendment to the desalination project grant, which will be submitted to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

BOED Director Sue Young said that the initial push toward the desalination plant originated when city representatives approached her office, asking for help with finding another source of water. As the ball began to roll, the BOED researched the possibility of a desalination plant and applied for a grant with the Texas Department of Rural Affairs, which has been absorbed by the TDA.

The request for funds was granted because the project plans to use wind energy to power the plant.

"Since that time, a myriad of problems have changed the complexion of the grant," Young said Tuesday.

The plant is planned to produce 250,000 gallons of water per day instead of the original 750,000, and it will use one 500-kilowatt turbine instead of three.

The county's projected water customers have also changed. The City of Colorado City may

NEW JAIL

Cornerstone to be set;
open house is slated

Construction on the Mitchell County Law Enforcement Center is complete and officials are just about ready to give the public a glimpse before opening it up to offenders.

On Thursday, June 13th, the Mitchell Masonic Lodge will hold a cornerstone levelling ceremony beginning at 1 p.m., and the public is invited to attend. Past Master Graham Childress of Ozona will be on hand as the cornerstone layer to conduct the ceremony. The local lodge has only performed seven such ceremonies since the first one back in 1884.

According to the lodge's historian, Dan Smith, the first county building that was built and accepted by the commissioners' court was the county jail, built in 1882. Back then, the jail was also living quarters for the county sheriff.

Dan Smith and his wife, Dot, served as the last family jailers who lived inside of a jail in the state of Texas, when they lived and worked for Runnels County in Ballinger.

On Friday, June 21st, the Chamber of Commerce will hold a ribbon-cutting at 11 a.m. to declare the building officially open. The Mitchell County Sheriff's Office will serve hotdogs and hamburgers to all who attend, and tours through the law enforcement facility will be given.

Loraine mayor resigns after being elected May 11

Citizens of Loraine elected a new mayor in the May 11th election, but the mayor now serving the City of Loraine is not the one who was elected. Scott Edmonds has been appointed as mayor.

Lydia Hale won the mayoral race, beating Richard Alvarez 47 to 32, but Hale was never sworn in as mayor. At the city council meeting where she was to be sworn in, Hale instead submitted her letter withdrawing from the office.

According to Hale, Tammy Castro, a citizen of Loraine, performed a background check on her after she won the election. The information uncovered by the background check showed

Employees will be needed during oil expansion

This is the second part of a three-part series on the Cline Shale.

The inaugural meeting of the Cline Shale Consortium took place on May 23rd on the McMurry University campus in Abilene. The group is a voluntary effort which is sponsored by the Workforce Solutions Boards in the Concho Valley, West Central and Permian Basin regions. Some of the group's activities will be funded by a special oil and gas sector initiative of the Texas Workforce Commission.

The consortium is made up of various community members and business people who are interested in working together to address the community and economic needs resulting from the exploration in the Cline Shale region. The consortium was formed because the economic and community impact of the Cline Shale oil play will dramatically impact citizens, businesses, and communities in the region.

The Cline Shale Consortium is patterned after the Eagle Ford Shale Consortium in South Texas which has been successful in addressing the workforce, housing and other needs in that area. The collaboration and cooperation between members of the group is designed to maximize the use of resources, the sharing of information and problem-solving for those affected.

Presentations were made by Doug Ridge, Director of Employer Initiatives with the Texas Workforce Commission; Betty Sifuentes, Director of Workforce Solutions Middle Rio Grande and Eagle Ford Shale Consortium co-chair; and Dr. Tom Tunstall, Research Director with the University of Texas San Antonio and author of the Eagle Ford Shale study, and others.

According to those making presentations, regional leaders must start planning now for the changes that will begin to take place as soon as August of this year. Planning for the future development includes training a viable job force, mapping strategies to deal with the increase in transportation vehicles and addressing the housing shortage. "You're gonna' get what you plan for," Ridge said.

It is estimated that the population boom may be the largest in this region since WWII. As the population increases, there will be strains on the available healthcare, law enforcement, and other public resources.

The upside to the rise in oil and gas activity is that new businesses will be moving into the region and will provide employment opportunities, not just in the oil and gas sector.

Lynn Palmore, who works for Haliburton, said that his company is always looking for employees, specifically two types: educated/certified workers and females. He said that Haliburton's focus is on hard workers and those who are educated in the science and math fields.

According to Palmore, the number one cost to the company is housing for employees. One of the things considered by Haliburton is quality of life. "How do we make that employee's life better, both at work and at home?" he asked hypothetically. Haliburton hired over 2,000 people last year and is looking for more employees now.

Sifuentes shared the lessons learned from the Eagle Ford

Shale. Several workforce commissions joined together and partnered with businesses and communities to address the many problems and opportunities created from the surge in population. Within the Eagle Ford Consortium, smaller committees were formed: Education & Workforce, Infrastructure & Natural Resources, Community & Economic Development, Industry, and Community Investment.

In the Eagle Ford Shale area, 26 oil and gas-related permits were issued in 2008. In 2013, 467,611 permits have been issued so far.

According to Dr. Tom Tunstall, from UTSA, a study on the Cline Shale that is similar to the Eagle Ford Shale study, is planned. According to the Eagle Ford Economic Impact Study, close to 38,000 full-time jobs were created in the region and $211 million in local government revenues were collected. The studies also showed that in Texas, in 2011, the mining, quarrying, oil and gas extraction sector wage, on average, was $67,943, well above the state average wage of $43,090.

Phase one of the Cline Shale study will focus on the counties that are adjacent to the Cline Shale region to establish a baseline. The second phase will focus on the actual producing counties, which includes Fisher, Glasscock, Howard, Irion, Martin, Mitchell, Nolan, Reagan, Sterling and Scurry counties.

The Eagle Ford Workforce and Eagle Ford Economic Impact studies can be viewed in their entirety by visiting www.workforcesystem.org.

The Cline Shale Consortium will serve as a forum for information-sharing among industry representatives and partners in areas such as education, workforce, housing local government and the non-profit sector. Membership is open to any individual interested in collaborating to positively address the issues and challenges in the Cline Shale area.

OPINION & COMMENTARY

TUMBLEWEED SMITH Jackson Lewis: outstanding graduate

We traveled to Decatur, Illinois this past weekend for my grandson Jackson's graduation from Millikin University. The instant he arrived on that campus four years ago he felt at home. He told his dad at the time, "I'm going to do fine here." Little did we know.

He had a theater scholarship, but after taking a one-hour course in Tanka poetry (from Japan), he changed his major to Creative Writing. The school was so proud to have Jackson as a student he got to keep his scholarship. He did take additional theater courses. During his high school years, Jackson was in a number of plays and did a summer of drama study at Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island.

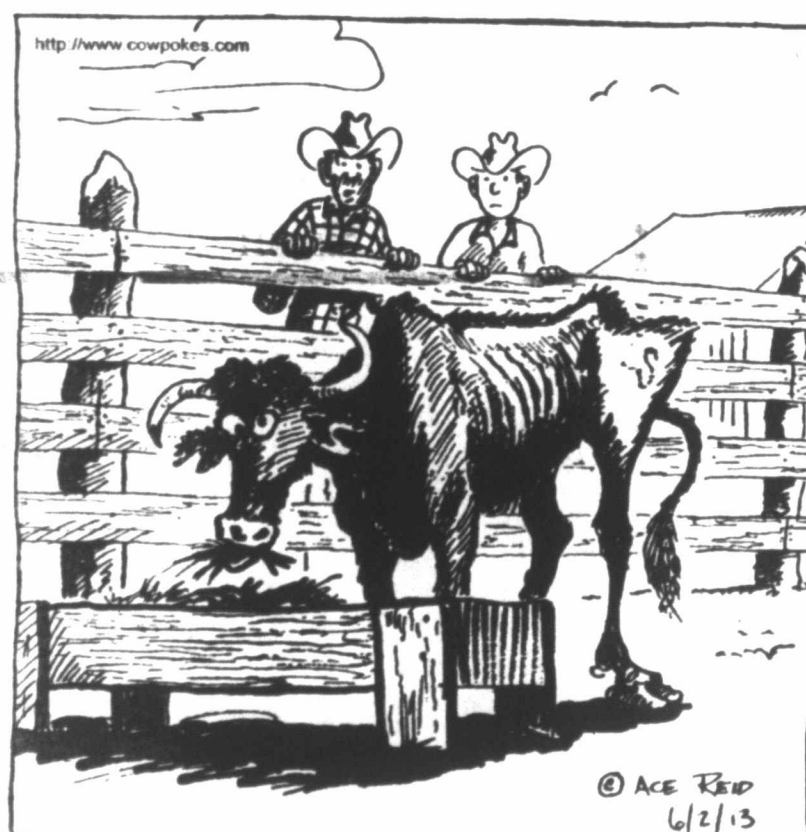

Jackson pledged SAE (Sigma Alpha Epsilon) fraternity and worked his way up to president. When the national fraternity offered a leadership training cruise, Jackson was one of the top 25 undergraduate SAE leaders in the country selected to attend. He attended three training courses, one as a counselor. The summer between his junior and senior year he had a paid internship in the marketing and public relations department at Northwestern Illinois University in Chicago. He spent one year working for Millikin's student-run publishing department and became its marketing director. He wrote a book and it was published. He was editor of the school's literary journal.

Since starting my column 25 years ago, I've written about Jackson more than anyone or anything else. We had Jackson for 12 years before we had other grandchildren, so he got to travel with us all over the country, from California's Disneyland to the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York. He camped on Minnesota's Boundary Waters Canoe Area, saw Mesa Verde in Colorado, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia and toured the White House. He swam in Pacific waters off Hawaii's big island and saw the Beatles' Love Show in Las Vegas. He was an excellent traveler and was appreciative of every trip.

My son Kevin (Jackson's dad) told me one time when he started talking to Jackson about drugs and other temptations, Jackson replied, "Dad, you're not going to have any trouble with me." He has lived up to his promise. He has had stellar high school and college careers and has had a stellar life of accomplishment. He graduated summa cum laude from Millikin and was the honored guest at a Board of Trustees luncheon prior to graduation. We got to be there as his guests.

He was chosen to represent his class at the graduation ceremony and made a speech that was interrupted 11 times with laughter and five times with yells and applause. His speech was titled "Standing on the Precipice of an Uncertain Future." In his concluding remarks, he asked his fellow students, "How will you take the next step in your life? Will you walk? Will you fall? Or will you fly?" The entire audience members in Decatur's Civic Center jumped to their feet, applauding and cheering. After the tassel-turning ceremony, administration, faculty, friends and family congratulated Jackson. Am I proud? Yes. Wouldn't you be?

The winds of change are coming

By Stephanie Perez
Editor

I've attended two meetings recently, held by two vastly different groups but centering on one subject: the Cline Shale oil play. Several topics were covered but a singular message emerged from the meetings. The winds of change are blowing toward Colorado City, Mitchell County and the surrounding area.

If you listen to what the experts are saying, the sheer numbers will blow your mind. Those who have done studies or have experienced other shale oil plays suggest that our area will double in population over the next two years. The workforce people say that workers will be hard to find, not just for the oil and gas industry, but in every other facet of business as well.

At the moment, I can't imagine Mitchell County with lots of motels, new homes, and retail businesses. But when I hear the people who have come from areas where the other shales exist, such as Eagle Ford Shale in South Texas or the Bakken Shale in North Dakota, I understand that they have seen the changes, and they are speaking from experience.

The whole concept of such vast growth at such a quick pace is overwhelming. I think that all the governing entities in and around our area are beginning to make preparations for the onslaught of people, business and industry that is sure to come.

I encourage them to constantly pursue and push forward on making these initial arrangements. According to Greg Wortham, Sweetwater mayor and founder of the Cline Shale Alliance, if we're not ready, the companies will just move on down the road to a place that can provide them with the infrastructure and amenities they seek.

Some of the predictions of increased traffic and crime are alarming, but equally frightening is the thought of having to deal with the problems of the industry without being able to reap the profits.

Months ago, the Small Business Development Center held a meeting at the Civic Center, and the organization's representative presenting the program suggested that if businesses were thinking of expansion, now is the time. The SBDC also encouraged employers to start "thinking outside the box" about how to retain employees who will be tempted to leave their jobs for the higher salary jobs in the oil and gas industry.

At the Record, I am trying to attend the meetings that deal with the Cline Shale to keep our readers informed of the changes that lay ahead for the citizens of Mitchell County. I intend to continue this effort.

It is both exciting and daunting to think of the challenges we, as a community, will face with the upcoming changes coming our way. Cities and counties, as well as civic groups and individuals, will need to work together to get the most out of the oil expansion. Collaboration is the best path to success.

Colorado City, Loraine, Westbrook, Mitchell County... Take hold of this opportunity together and share resources, information and ideas to prepare for a bright future.

that Hale had been charged with the sale/delivery of marijuana/LSD to a minor in 1984 in Florida. Hale says the charges were deferred and she was never convicted of the crime.

Because Hale swore on her application that she had never been convicted of a felony, officials from the City of Loraine gave Hale a choice: come to the meeting, be sworn in as mayor and face an investigation by the Texas Rangers or withdraw from the office. Hale chose the latter.

In a statement released by the City Council of the City of Loraine, council members said, "Prior to the election, Mrs. Hale signed and submitted a sworn Oath of Eligibility which stated she had not been convicted of a felony. On or about May 14th, the city received paperwork from a local citizen showing a prior arrest of Mrs. Hale for multiple felony drug charges arising out of delivery and possession of drugs in the State of Florida."

A certified letter from the defending attorney in Florida would have cleared Hale to be mayor, but the proof did not come in time for her. Hale's complaint is this: City officials did not allow her enough time to prove she is innocent.

The city council's statement goes on to say, "The city contacted the Secretary of State's Election Division's Attorney's Office (SOS). The SOS Attorney's office recommended that the city's attorney contact Mrs. Hale and present her with the information and for the city to proceed with confirmation from Florida as to the charges filed against Mrs. Hale."

Hale applied to seek the office of mayor in March but no background check was conducted at that time. The background check was done on May 12th, the day after she was elected. Hale was contacted and informed by City Attorney Jeannie Fuller on May 14th that a background check had been turned in to the city. Fuller suggested to Hale that they meet with County Attorney Ty Wood the next day. At the meeting, Fuller and Wood told Hale that she had to show proof of her innocence before being sworn in on May 20th.

According to Texas State Law, the City of Loraine has only 11 days to canvas the votes after an election is held. Hale has pointed out that May 20th is only nine days after the election, and she expressed that if she would've been given the extra two days, she may have been able to prove her innocence and take office.

However, according to the city's statement, the SOS Attorney's Office advised that a Quo Warranto Proceeding would have to occur should Mrs. Hale be sworn in because a felony in Florida may or may not be a felony in Texas. Quo warranto is a legal term defined as an order used to challenge another's right to public or corporate office.

Ultimately, the SOS Attorney's office said that Hale's qualification for office could only be determined by a judge.

"They further advised the city that should Mrs. Hale allow herself to be sworn in at this time or at any time in the future that the city would have to turn documentation over to a judge for a final determination of Mrs. Hale's eligibility for office in the State of Texas. Mrs. Hale could also, at that time, be charged with providing false information on her Oath of Eligibility."

By the time Hale found the correct attorney, who was a public defender at that time, the necessary records to show her innocence could not be received provement must add at least $1 million in taxable value to the tax roll.

County Judge Ray Mayo had some reservations about setting the bar at $1 million. "If this is supposed to be for anything (business), $1,000,000 may be too much," he said. Charles Kimbrough, of the county's law firm in Austin, assured Mayo that if the commissioners want to provide tax abatement for anything adding less than the $1 million, the guidelines provide for that situation with a waiver clause.

Any facility wishing to apply for tax abatement must do so prior to the start of construction. Also, abatement may be granted to existing facilities that are expanding operations which will add to the tax base.

The guidelines specify the standards for tax abatement. The following factors, among others, shall be considered in determining whether to grant tax abatement:

- Value of existing improvements, if any
- Type and value of proposed improvements
- Productive life of proposed improvements
- Number of existing jobs to be before the meeting. On Monday, May 20th, Hale noticed that the sheriff deputy's vehicle was at city hall and decided not to attend the meeting. She was contacted by Fuller saying that she needed to come to resign or come in to be sworn in.

The city statement says that during the meeting, Hale appeared and submitted her declaration of office to the city council which was accepted by the council. Scott Edmonds, who has served as a council member since 2007, was appointed by the council with a unanimous vote as mayor and will serve out the two-year term.

Since then, Hale has talked to the Office of the State Attorney Bernie McCabe and was told the charges were deferred and she is eligible to hold office.

Hale's concern now is that the city council is doing things without the knowledge of Loraine's citizens. Meetings are open to the public, and an agenda is posted on the door of city hall at least 72 hours before meetings are held.

A location change was also among the things that will be listed on the amendment. Construction is now planned for a location north of Westbrook, just across from the county barn on 160 acres of land.

According to Young, two wells have been drilled and completed and are producing the brackish water which will be treated at the

Because the plant is designed to be built in "skids", it can be expanded with reasonable ease in the future to accommodate any new water customers.

"We are just at a point where the amendment (with all the changes) has to be made," Young said. She said that the BOED has been making quarterly reports all along.

Everett to begin residency in Michigan

Sagan Everett

Colorado High School and Angelo State University graduate Sagan Everett is heading north this summer to begin the final leg of her journey toward reaching her goal of becoming a Cardio Pulmonary Physical Therapist.

Everett will leave the comforts of home in Mitchell County around the first of July to make the trip to Ann Arbor, Michigan, to complete a year-long residency at a Veterans' Administration hospital. When the residency is complete, Everett will be eligible to sit for the CCS exam to earn her certification.

Her parents, Toni and Bill Everett, will help Sagan make the initial trip to Michigan this summer. She said she is particularly looking forward to making the trip and seeing parts of the United States she's never seen before.

The residency program in Michigan is one of two in the nation for cardio pulmonary physical therapists. The other one is at Duke University in North Carolina. Everett said she thinks another residency is in the process of being started in Wisconsin.

After graduating from ASU in San Angelo with a Bachelor of Science in Kinesiology - Exercise Science, Everett continued her education at the university and completed a three-year doctorate program. She fulfilled the requirements of three clinical programs during her graduate work, one in Lubbock, another in Abilene and one in Washington, D.C.

The experience she gained while working with patients was invaluable to helping her understand the applications of the classwork. "It was a great experience," she said.

During her time in Michigan, Everett will work approximately 30 hours per week seeing patients at the hospital, and the remainder of her work time will be spent with online classwork and research.

She said that she hopes to have time to attend some University of Michigan football and basketball games, as well as some Detroit Tigers and Detroit Pistons games in her spare time. Canada is also somewhere she would like to visit. "I've never been that far north before," Everett said.

As a Texas girl, Everett isn't sure what to expect from a Michigan winter, but she's preparing for lots of snow. "I've been buying coats and stuff while they're on sale," she said. "They say it snows there from October to April."

Eventually, Everett plans to practice cardio pulmonary physical therapy in Texas, preferably around the Metroplex area. Larger hospitals generally have more opportunities for the specialists.

Doris and Wade Sands

WELCOME NEW RESIDENTS

Sands considered new after 20-year absence

Doris and Wade Sands are new, or nearly new, residents in Colorado City, and they come here from Levelland where they have lived for the last 20 years.

Wade is originally from Snyder, and Doris grew up here and is part of the Conaway family.

She is the granddaughter of Whit and Mattie Hines and the daughter of Ralph Hines. Her sister, Janie Vann, is also a resident of Mitchell County. Doris' first job was working for the Colorado City Record setting type when Mac McKinnon was publisher.

Wade works for Centurion Pipeline and has been transferred to the Snyder office. Centurion first began as Amoco and sold to BP. After a merger with Oxy, the pipeline company was renamed Centurion.

Wade says the company is playing a part in the construction of the 1,000,000-barrel storage facility and pipeline being constructed near China Grove. The pipeline will stretch from this area all the way to the Houston ship channel. At the moment, Centurion trucks travel to Barnhart to bring oil to West Texas from the San Angelo area.

The couple met at Wade's surprise birthday party and married just eight months later. They now have three grown children, Seth, Caleb and Elyse. Seth is married to Brandi and has a son, Cooper, and they live in Lovington, New Mexico. Caleb lives in Lubbock and Elyse lives in Levelland.

It's baacckk!

The employees at the Record office had so much fun with the hidden object game last time, that the game is back again.

This patriotic trinket is hidden somewhere within the Colorado City city limits. It is not hidden inside the boundaries of a cemetery, so don't bother looking there. Just about anywhere else is fair game, however. If you find it, bring it to the Record and you will get $100.

This week's clue...

In shade or sun,
you must find this flag.
Wind or not,
it will not sag.

Its time has come to be found,
although you may have

There will be having a 2 year old through Kindergarten group and a 1st grade through 4th grade group. Come find out what they will be digging into each week.

If you can't make it on Wednesday mornings you can still sign up for the summer reading program, "Dig into Reading" to earn prizes as you read. This program also has prizes for every 3 hours you read. So it is time to dive in and see what you can explore in some of our library books.

We are also excited to have Teen Time on Wednesday afternoons at 4pm for kids going into the 5th grade and up. We will be having yummy snacks and seeing what we discover beneath the surface. So come check out the Library as part of your summer fun!

CHS cheerleaders plan BBQ fundraiser

Cheerleaders for the 2013-14 school year at Colorado High School are responsible for raising a large amount of money each summer to pay for camp, uniforms and lots of other expenses. Fundraisers go a long way to helping squad members pay their way.

Each cheerleader is individually responsible for raising their own funds, and a few of the girls have gotten together and planned a fundraiser which will be held on Tuesday, June 11th in downtown Colorado City.

The cheerleaders have planned to sell barbecue sandwiches and plates with all the trimmings from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. that day. They will have a booth set up in the 200 block of Walnut Street to provide easy access to those working in the area.

Everyone knows that good barbecue comes with all the trimmings, and the cheerleaders will have lots of those available for everyone eating on Tuesday.

The menu will consist of chopped brisket sandwiches for $3.50 each, or a sandwich with chips, dessert and tea or lemonade for $6.50. Sliced barbecued brisket plates will be sold for $8.50 each and come with beans, potato salad or chips, your choice of tea or lemonade and dessert.

For those more in the mood for the traditional hamburger lunch, the girls have that covered too. Hamburgers will be available for $3.50 each, and hamburger meals will be $6. The meal comes with chips, your choice of tea or lemonade and a drink.

If you're extra thirsty, you might want to try their strawberry lemonade for just $1 per glass.

"We thought it would be an easy walk around the corner for all the downtown business people," said cheerleader mom Denise Crawford. "And you can't eat any cheaper than that."

Delivery is available if arrangements are made in advance. Call 242-0317 by 5 p.m. on Monday, June 10th to put in your delivery request.

Proceeds made with this fundraiser will go toward cheerleading camp expenses and uniforms for the girls participating in the fundraiser.
