Benson Ford Dies

DETROIT (AP) - Benson Ford, younger brother of Ford Motor Co. chairman Henry Ford II and a grandson of auto industry pioneer Henry Ford, died early today after suffering an apparent heart attack aboard his boat, a spokesman for the auto firm said.

Ford, 59, was stricken while the boat was docked in Cheboygan, a resort community at the northern tip of Michigan's Lower Peninsula.

Ford, second son of the late Edsel Ford, was a Ford Motor Co. vice president, chairman of the firm's dealer policy board, and a member of the board of directors.

Ex-Workers March

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Some 300 ex-city employees and their families began a four-mile march from a garbage collection service center to city hall this morning to take their case to the city council.

The ex-employees were fired by City Manager Tom Huebner for striking. Strikes by municipal employees are prohibited by state law.

The march was peaceful and included children pulling wagons or balancing on roller skates. Police escorts were on hand and were seen talking with and borrowing cigarettes from marchers.

Carter 'Aware'

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is "aware" of a West Texas civil rights investigation into the death of a Mexican-American, a White House aide says.

The aide, Rick Hernandez, says Carter is watching developments in the case of Larry Lozano, who died Jan. 22 in the Ector County Jail at Odessa where he had been confined for 12 days.

Lozano's death was first termed a suicide, but a coroner's inquest later ruled it accidental.

Gulf Oil Settles

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House announced today that Gulf Oil Corp. will pay the U.S. Treasury $42.2 million in a compromise settlement of federal claims that it overstated its crude oil costs by $79.6 million.

Deputy Press Secretary Rex Granum said Gulf, which did not acknowledge guilt, was the first major oil company to reach a settlement on federal claims that total about $1 billion.

Federal energy officials had claimed Gulf overstated the cost of crude oil obtained from foreign affiliates in the 1973-75 period.

Little Rain In Clouds

Lightning flashed and the wind blew, but otherwise promising clouds which moved into the area from the north did little more than tease the Snyder area last night.

For the most part, rainfall was limited to a few sprinkles, although up to half an inch was reported at Dermott some 10 miles north of Snyder.

The official gauge at the Snyder water treatment plant measured only .16 inch, and elsewhere rainfall reports were even lighter. No rain at all was reported at Lake J.B. Thomas.

The weather activity here was part of a thunderstorm stystem that rumbled across a wide band of the state last night. The activity accompanied a cool front that produced a welcome drop in temperatures.

The overnight low reading in Snyder was 62 degrees.

Tne National Weather Service reported that skies were clearing again this morning in the Panhandle as the thunderstorms moved southward. Thunderstorms were reported this morning from El Paso to San Angelo and from the Dallas-Fort Worth area to Texarkans. There were others near Del Rio, San Antonio and Houston. Most of them were leaving only light rain behind.

High temperatures this afternoon were expected to reach the 90s in most areas, with some points along the Rio Grande due to have readings above 100 degrees.

The overnight drizzle in Snyder increased the total rainfall for the year here to 13.08 inches.

Bergland Defends Farm Co-ops

WASHINGTON (AP)- Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland today defended farm cooperatives and warned against tinkering with federal laws in an effort to increase competition in the marketing of the nation's food.

"Before any law or set of laws is declared 'obsolete' it is absolutely essential to understand what the consequences of change will be," Bergland said.

The secretary's comments were in testimony prepared for the National Commission for the Review of Antitrust Laws and Procedures, which is looking into allegations that some large farm co-ops have used their muscle unfairly to enhance food prices and cut out competition.

APWU Leaders Reject Contract

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- Leaders of the nation's largest postal union voted against a proposed labor contract today, but decided to submit the tentative settlement to rank-and-file members for a ratification vote.

The national bargaining advisory committee of the American Postal Workers Union voted 29-to-15 against the tentative three-year accord. But then the committee voted 30-to-9 to send the proposed contract to the union's 280,000 rank-and-file members for a ratification vote.

At least one member of the committee threatened to go to federal court to block the move, saying it violates the union's constitution.

The proposed contract already has sparked wildcat walkouts at mail centers on the East and West coasts.

The APWU president, Emmet Andrews, who was one of the negotiators for the accord reached with the Postal Service last Friday, said in getting approval to send the contract to the rank-and file: "I would urge that they ratify it," he said.

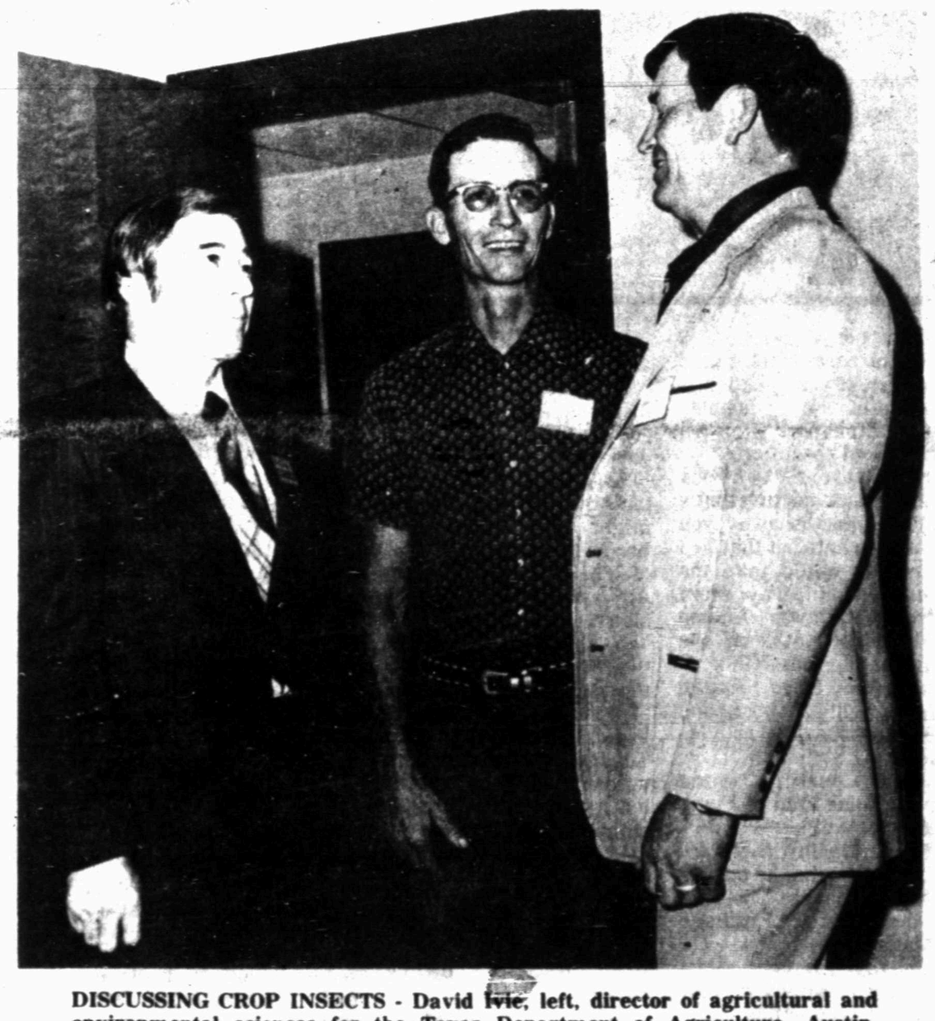
John Richards, president of the Pittsburgh area local, said he planned to file suit in U.S. District Court here to stop Andrews from issuing the contract for ratification.

Richards said the principal objection by local leaders was that the wage increase is not high enough and that local officials were unhappy with about six work rule provisions, including the Postal Service's right to continue assigning mandatory overtime.

Andrews noted that in previous years, when there was strong opposition from local leaders to proposed contracts, the contracts were ratified by the rank-and-file anyway.

The APWU is one of four unions that represent a total of 554,000 postal workers. It is the only one that calls for an advisory committee vote.

All four unions are expected to send out mail ballots within a week, and the results likely will be be known until at least mid-August.



DISCUSSING CROP INSECTS - David Ivie, left, director of agricultural and environmental sciences for the Texas Department of Agriculture, Austin, discusses the pest management program in Scurry County with Butch Nachlinger, center, vice president, and Milton Stephens, right, president of the Scurry County Producers Association. Area Farmers Urged To Continue Insect Control

Agricultural experts from throughout the state were on hand Wednesday evening for a review of crop insect management operations in Scurry County and the session concluded with various recommendations that area farmers continue cooperative efforts to control crop-destroying pests.

Two legislators, Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder and State Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls, canceled out their appearance at the session due to crucial legislative action on proposed tax control measures in the special session at Austin.

Scurry County extension agent Billy Roach reviewed the history of the Scurry County Producers Association, the local organization that initiated and has continued to sponsor and administer the pest management program in Scurry County. The organization began in late 1975 and after considerable work on the part of many farmers, business people, Chamber of Commerce leaders and the Scurry County Board of County Development, launched a diapause spraying program in 1976 aimed at controlling boll weevils in cotton fields.

The program was considered highly successful and it was repeated in 1977, Roach said. He paid special tribute to Morris Light, the first president of the Producers Association, to Carl Williams, the 1977 president and to Milton Stephens the current president, and also to Mickey Nunley, who was manager of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce when the association was formed and carried out its first spraying program.

Cooperation and hard work by volunteers were credited with putting the association into successful operation.

David Kattes, entomologist for Scurry and Mitchell Counties, presented statistical information on results of the program, along with a report on continuing work

Q--Why doesn't the newspaper keep someone at the office on Saturday evenings to deliver the Sunday paper if the carrier misses us?

A--The Sunday paper is distributed by some carriers on Saturday evening, but carries a Sunday dateline with each carrier expected to have his papers thrown by 8 a.m. Sunday. There is someone to answer the telephone from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. Sunday to take calls from persons who miss their Sunday paper.

Bell Asks To Delete Funds

AUSTIN (AP)-Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. officials underwent little questioning today over their request to delete $174,160 from a $214.3 million rate hike request.

Appearing before the Texas Public Utility Commission, company officials formally presented the deletion request, which came after the U.S. attorney in Dallas reported conducting a criminal investigation of a former employee.

The $174,160 figure has been linked to alleged improper equipment purchases and leases.

PUC Chairman George Cowden said a final order in the case will come "early next week," and indicated the company's request to delete the questionable funds would be granted.

"I would be very surprised if it were not disallowed from the rate hike request," Cowden said after the 20-minute hearing. "No intervenors objected, but it would be up to the commissioners when we adopt an order."

Bell attorney Jon Dee Lawrence testified at the hearing that the company would provide the utility commission with any new figures provided by the U.S. attorney's office.

Tax-Writers OK Provision

WASHINGTON (AP)- House tax-writers agreed today on a provision that would allow nearly all homeowners to sell their residences without having to pay capital gains tax on the profits.

The House Ways and Means Committee voted for the provision as an amendment to the $15-billion tax cut bill on which it is working.

Under present law, the profit on sale of a residence is considered a capital gain and is considered taxable as such unless it is reinvested in another residence.

There are also special provisions for persons over 65 who sell their homes but do not buy others. Depending the extent of the gain, they may void all or part of the capital gains tax.

Mall Site Plan Up For Approval

Two major projects are on the agenda for a meeting of the Snyder Planning and Zoning Commission tonight. The meeting is set for 7 p.m. at city hall.

A site plan for the proposed Snyder Mall is due to be presented to the commission by Ainbinder Associates of Houston.

Ainbinder has projected a shopping mall of more than 200,000 square feet to be located south of Varsity Square and north of 37th St. on the east side of College Avenue. The site plan indicates traffic entrances and exits from both College Avenue and 37th St.

Parking facilities are provided in the plans for more than 1,000 vehicles.

Also up for consideration of the commission is a replat of a portion of Snyder Oaks Addition. Property immediately east of Snyder Oaks Nursing Home on the south side of 37th St. has been replatted to provide lots for eight duplexes.

not all generosity

Imagine a consumer rejoicing after the price of a product has increased 500 percent in five years.

The fact that the price of a commodity rose so dramatically in so short a time is the bad news. The good news is that the price of oil on the world market is going to remain, at least for a time, at $12.70 a barrel. Our gluttony will continue for a time, because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will not change the price structure at least until 1979.

An impatient element within OPEC wanted to take the lid off prices immediately but Saudi Arabia and Iran held out against it, arguing that the increase would only add to the world's monetary problems.

Iraq, Libya and Algeria pushed vainly for an immediate price boost to counter the erosion of oil income which is blamed on the continuing depreciation of the dollar - a situation, it should be remembered, to which ever-higher oil prices have made their very substantial contribution.

The Saudis and Iranians are recognized as friends to the West but there's something more than friendship involved in the decision to freeze prices. There is currently a glut of oil on the world market, which means it is not a sellers' market.

Even the OPEC zealots realize this is no time to try to squeeze more out of the buyer.

The Saudis are reported to believe that curtailed production should take care of the surplus problem in half a year or so, and judging by the manner in which the United States wastes fuel that may well be the case.

Once supply and demand are back in balance, consuming nations will hardly be in a position to refuse to pay the higher prices demanded by the oil producing countries.

Stepped-up production in Alaska and the North Sea helped contribute to the current over-supply of oil, that and over-production by the OPEC nations.

Both Alaska and the North Sea wells produce Western oil, something that should improve the West's position in dealing with OPEC. Production costs escalate in the West as elsewhere, however. It is economic in very great part due to the artifically high price OPEC countries have placed on their product.

If OPEC is in a position to raise prices when supply and demand are in balance, it conceivably could also drop them in a price war that the new Western producers would quickly lose (because of sheer numbers).

It is a situation replete with possibilities, none particularly encouraging for Western economics.

when will it end?

Mr. and Mrs. America, especially those whose income is dependent on normal functioning of the U.S. mail service, indulged a sign of relief when a strike of postal employees was averted. Settlement called for a pay increase considerably lower than called for in original union demands. But the no layoff rule remains as do cost-of-living pay increases. These are in addition to the 10 percent pay increase spread over three years.

As a package it appears union negotiators did a pretty good job for their constituents, although some are reported unhappy and have denounced the settlement as a sellout by their representative. President Carter expressed approval and congratulated management and workers for staying within Administration anti-inflation guidelines.

The President may be justified in the feeling. Gratitude for following the rules is pardonable. Postal workers are as deserving as any group to guarantees that buying power of their paychecks will not diminish during the next three years.

But how will inflation ever come to a stop if the trend in wages and prices remains upward?

a word for connally

I am not a politician. I wear no party label. But to the extent that politics is our nation's most popular "spectator sport" I am an interested spectator.

If you had to make a book today on an election that's still 30 months away you would have to bet that Ted Kennedy would take the nomination away from President Carter. Among Republicans-at least one fascinating possibility is that the Ford-Reagan folks might lock horns and deadlock the GOP convention.

John Connally would make some kind of President!

Pragmatically, there are six reasons that he doesn't have a chance. The first two reasons are Ford and Reagan.

Both are running as fast as they presently can for the 1980 nomination.

George Gallup's pollsters find rank-and-file Republicans in all parts of the nation split right down the middle: 46 percent Ford, 45 percent Reagan.

Should it stay that close in convention, a deadlock could open the door for a dark horse.

There are still four more factors, however, which might deny the nomination to Connally.

1--The Texas syndrome. Any professional politician recognizes this handicap. L.B.J. had to enter the White House through the back door.

I think the New England evaluation of Texas and Texans is outdated and warped and distorted--but it is nonetheless politically omnipresent.

2--Though Connally was found innocent of any wrongdoing in the "milk fund" investigation, the shadow remains.

3--Connally's party switch.

4--California conservatives are slow to forgive--and may never forgive Connally for endorsing Ford over Reagan before the last convention.

Such is their residual resentment that they might prefer almost anybody else.

"On the other hand," as they say we pundits say--if these several obstacles could be overcome John Connally would make some kind of a President.

He is the only Republican with a charisma to eclipse Kennedy's.

Connally could capture the white-collar vote and penetrate the blue-collar vote with an imaginative campaign in behalf of "the working class."

The workaday, overtaxed wage earner everywhere is in revolt. A Republican campaigning for "the working class" would spotlight Kennedy's long-time support for the "unproductive."

Connally does not believe in Santa Claus.

Connally has the personal presence of a strong leader wthout any military predilection to feed the meat grinder.

He is an administrator, a skilled money manager, and he knows the political game of bending without breaking as few do.

I'm not stumping for anybody; never have, never will.

Subsequently we will discuss the merits and demerits of other hopefuls.

In leadership potential our nation is not bankrupt. As just one example, John Connally would make some kind of President!

my turn

I have a fondness for quotations, and I read dictionaries and encyclopedias of quotations to satisfy my whim.

My brother once had a dictionary that listed 10,000 quotations, and I'm sure I read every one of them at least once. Perhaps that is how I got started.

Now, I have started reading "Peter's Quotations" by Laurence J. Peter. I'm not sure how many quotations are in it, but I have been reading the book for about eight months.

Of course, I don't read my books of quotations very quickly. I read them only in my spare time, and only when I have nothing else to do.

When I am in the mood for a quick thought, but don't have the time to read a short story, I read a page of quotations.

As near as I can recall, I began reading the book last November. I started with the "Ability" listing, and by last night I had plodded my way to "Madness," the first listing in the M section. I think I will be finished by Thanksgiving or Christmas at my present rate.

Still, my purpose in reading them so slowly is to fully savor the wit, wisdom, and ideas put forth by famous people.

Edna St. Vincent Millay once said, "It is not true that life is one damn thing after another – it's one damn thing over and over."

That is just one example. There are others.

There is the mystical statement of Woody Allen. He said, "It is impossible to experience one's death objectively and still carry a tune."

The book also quotes Adolf Hitler as having one said, "Anyone who sees and paints a sky green and pastures blue ought to be sterilized."

Then, there is Mark Twain's observation of the ethical man. "An ethical man," he said, "is a Christian holding four aces."

Ralph Waldo Emerson observed that, "The louder he talked of his honor, the faster we counted our spoons."

Another idea was expressed by Oscar Wilde who said "To love oneself is the beginning of a lifelong romance."

One thing I guess I will always remember from that book is Winston Churchill's observation that, "The greatest lesson in life is know that even fools are right sometimes."

WASHINGTON (NEA) - They made their mark at a very early age, as the young but savvy leaders of the major protest movements of the 1960s: Tom Hayden, Sam Brown, Michael Harrington, Paul Booth, John Lewis, David Mixner.

Their issues tumbled onto the national stage in rapid succession during that turbulent decade: The "war on poverty," the civil rights movement in the South, opposition to the war in Vietnam.

Most of the organizers of those crusades still work fulltime for various organizations, public and private, committed to reordering social and economic priorities - but compelling issues now are few and far between.

The veterans of those earlier struggles recently gathered at Concordia College here, for a brief look back at the '60s and to seek a new agenda of "issues for the '80s."

The '70s have produced significant successes, but they invariably have been confined to the tedious, complex and little-noticed field of community organizing.

The country's most respected and successful grass-roots organizer probably is Wade Rathke, head of Little Rock, Ark., group called the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now or ACORN.

Under Rathke's leadership, ACORN has established thriving community-based groups in dozens of cities and towns in 13 states. Its membership now is approaching 20,000 families.

Yet even Rathke displays signs of discontent. "The questions are becoming more difficult in this business," he says. "The bigger and older the organizations get, the more subtle and sophisticated the attacks."

Bert DeLeeuw, head of a Washington, D.C. group called the Movement for Economic Justice, notes that "during the last five years, no grass-roots organization has built the movement, the issue that transcents everything else."

Brown, now head of ACTION, the federal volunteer agency, is especially blunt in his assessment: "American liberalism, the liberalism that most of us grew up and fought for, is out of touch with the nation's mood."

Those comments were made during the annual meeting convened here by the Washington-based Conference on Alternative State and Local Public Policies, a national coalition of community leaders and state and local public officials.

Determined to regain the initiative, the more than 500 activists attending the four-day conference reached a consensus on potential new issues for the years ahead. The list includes:

-Development of alternative energy sources, with emphasis on solar energy. (Hayden now heads the California Campaign for Economic Democracy, which has worked almost exclusively on that issue.)

- A broad-based attempt to reduce the concentration of power in the private sector, ranging from local challenges to utility company rates to a national effort aimed at making corporate boards of directors more accountable to the public.

-A parallel drive to reduce the influence of the major institutions in the public sector, the increasingly unresponsive governmental structures at the federal and state level. Their functions would be assumed by neighborhood and community-based government units.

-A tax reform campaign, emphasizing not only tax reductions but also a drastic overhaul of the current system, designed to increase the tax burden on the wealthy coupled with redistribution of more income to the poor.

The issues are complex and controversial, and there is no guarantee of success. Carol Bellamy, president of the New York City Council, offered perhaps the best summary of the activists' current dilemma when she referred wistfully to the 1960s:

"It was a time of special certainty. We knew our goals and we knew our friends and enemies. I wonder if we shall ever be so sure of ourselves again."

recession possible

NEW YORK (AP)-With mortgage rates nearing 10 pecent and with loans getting harder to obtain, the great housing boom of the past year and a half seems likely to become muffled over the next few months.

This cannot be stated with certainty, because homebuyers, cognizant of the 12 percent appreciation in prices over the past year, have not let the rising cost of money deter them. But there must be a limit.

Debt for cars, appliances, home mortgages and all other goods and services is now approaching $1 trillion. It rose 15 percent last year, when interest charges alone came to 6 percent of take-home pay.

Also, money is getting scarcer. Savings and loan associations, the largest mortgage lenders, are not attracting money as quickly as they would like to. The rate of savings, and thereby loans, is declining.

But buyers need not feel all the news is negative. With a decline in the market there usually comes a slowdown in the rate at which housing prices rise, and that was a huge 12 percent last year.

And while mortgage rates might continue rising over the next couple of months, they too are destined to stabilize and maybe even fall in the final quarter of the year.

By how much? Perhaps by a quarter-point, says Dennis Jacobe, an economist for the U.S. League of Savings Associations. Any greater decline would depend on a lowering of inflation in general.

What the forecast adds up to is a decline in the rate of housing construction and sales. Last year new housing starts came to 1.95 million units. This year, Jacobe anticipates a figure of 1.8 million.

Does it also add up to recession? "We think there is the possibility of a recession in the next 9 to 12 months," said Jacobe, echoing what seems to have become in recent weeks the consensus forecast.

Recession. Recalling again the severe encounter of 1974-1975, Americans shudder when they hear the word. But recessions are expectable, though varying in intensity and duration.

In fact, the past 41 months constitute one of the longest recession-free periods in our modern history. A correction, as they say, is overdue, although most economists foresee it is mild and brief.

Still, when homeowners hear of economic declines or stagnations they worry, understandably and responsibly. After having grown faster than inflation for many years, can market values now plunge, they ask?

The savings and loan people, who have $490 billion invested in housing, think not. Those increases over recent years have been solid, not speculative, they say. They are based on demographics and costs.

Based on the amount of consumer debt and the rise in prices and the high interest rates, that market seems to need a rest during which it can shore up its underpinnings. It may come late this year.

new federalism

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Last week we called attention to the fact that, following Proposition 13, California is calling on the Federal Government to make up revenues which the State will lose by reducing property taxes by about 50 percent. New York City is asking the Federal Government to underwrite some $2 billion needed to keep it out of bankruptcy.

Back in 1958, what was then called the "New Federalism" emerged. President Eisenhower favored the idea and, in 1969, President Nixon endorsed what is known as "Revenue Sharing." At that time he proposed "a new Federalism" to promote the "restoration of a rightful balance between the State Capitals and the national Capital", the goal being to reduce the power of the Federal Government and to affect economies.

During the primaries in 1976, Governor Ronald Reagan gave his blessings to this concept of new Federalism. In a statement during that campaign he said, "It has concerned me that many programs Washington administers aren't efficient and don't really help the people they were designed to help." He suggested that some programs be handed over to state and local governments and suggested that 90 billion could be lopped off the budget.

In fact, such a transfer has actually been taking place since revenue sharing was legislated in 1972. Government spending has not gone down but, contrarily, federal aid to states and cities has gone up and up. In 1960, grants to local governments amounted to $7 billion and in this fiscal year it is $86 billion. Revenue sharing when enacted in 1972 was $34 billion and has more than doubled since.

Most of the mayors from large cities are calling on Washington to supply additional funds to keep city employment relatively constant. The Conference of Mayors recently meeting in Atlanta called on the Federal Government to pare its expenses while, at the same time, asking that there be no reduction in grants to their cities.

What this experience demonstrates is that revenue sharing has resulted in an alliance between the Federal Bureaucracy and the bureaucracies of most States, Counties and Cities. Far from cutting outlays, they work hand in hand to maintain programs which keep budgets rising. Most States and Cities have their special lobbyists in Washington to ferret out ways and means of getting more Federal money. They compete with one another for funds. The big cities with the most votes and with the most Members of Congress have the biggest clout and get the most money.

The practical working of the new federalism, in other words, has contributed to make government seem, and indeed be, an uncontrollable monster. The failure of a program conceived and endorsed by those with undoubted interest in cutting down big Government in Washington should see the plain record that such is not the case.

Until the federal government places a constitutional amendment on what it can spend as related to its tax revenues, there will be no stopping of huge debts and deficits. There simply is no other way for taming the monster devouring our material substances--now and in the future.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Some 45 years ago the late Norman Bonney of Bosten reached three notrump on the simple bidding shown in the box.

In other words, he bid it. West was allowed to hold the first trick with his queen of hearts, but Norman had to put his ace on East's king when the suit was continued. He cashed his ace of diamonds, entered dummy with the king of clubs and lost the diamond finesse to West's doubleton queen. Three more hearts left him one trick short.

The hand was dealt in the finals of the Ressinger team of four.

The bidding at the other table was long, arduous, optimistic and unsound with South eventually landing at six notrump against that same heart lead.

South looked over the dummy unhappily, but finally saw that there was a chance to make his silly slam. He ducked the first heart and won the second. Then he cashed the ace and king of diamonds and saw the queen dropping from the West hand. Now South entered dummy with the nine of diamonds, took a successful spade finesse, went back to dummy with the king of clubs, took another spade finesse and had his slam.

Five In AJRA Queen Contest

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce American Junior Rodeo Association Committee is sponsoring the AJRA National Finals Queen Contest again this year.

The queen will be determined by the number of advance tickets sold by the contestants. The queen candidate who sells the most advance tickets will win a specially-designed trophy buckle valued at $200 and will be crowned during the Friday night performance of the AJRA National Finals Rodeo, set for Aug. 8-12 in the Scurry County Coliseum.

Rodeo fans may support their favorite contestant by buying tickets from her. There also is a savings of 50 cents each for tickets purchased in advance.

The queen contestants are:

CHRISTI ADAMS, Sterling City Route, Big Spring. She will celebrate her 15th birthday during the AJRA Finals here. She began rodeoing at 8 and has been an active member of AJRA since 1973. She was world champion optional roper for girls age 12 and under in 1975 and in 1977 she roped her way to the title for girls aged 13-15. She participates in goat-tying as well as roping. At Forsan High School, where she just completed her freshman year, she was a varsity cheerleader, was freshman nominee for homecoming queen, was a starting guard on the District 10-B champion basketball team and was named to two all-tournament teams. She also was a member of Forsan High's district champion track team, winning first place in discus and shot put at the district meet and fifth in discus at the regional meet.

TAMMY BRUNS, Route 1, Snyder. Born in Bitzburg, Germany, she has made her home in this area since she was a year old. As a toddler, she was often at the feet of a horse named Misty, which belonged to her uncle, Steve Babcock. Her uncle gave Misty to Tammy when she was 13. She is a member of the Scurry County Junior Sheriff's Posse, attended the Howard College Barrel Racing Camp in Big Spring and enjoys playing in the Snyder High School Black and Gold Band. She is a member of the Youth Co-op for Christ.

She also competes in barrel racing, pole bending and goat-tying. Now 14, she will be a freshman at Big Spring High School next year and is a member of the National Junior Honor Society. In addition to rodeoing, she enjoys playing volleyball, swimming and horseback riding.

LAURIE SHARP, 252 Bert, Kermit. A member of the AJRA, she is the Kermit Saddle Club Sweetheart and was the Cinderella Teen Winner, Miss Dixieland and first runner-up in the 4-H queen contest. Kite Can Attend Camp Says Judge

HOUSTON (AP) - At 6-11, 250 pounds, schoolboy star Greg Kite doesn't appear to need help in pursuing a basketball career but U.S. District Judge Finis Cowan has given him a helping hand anyway.

In a move that could eventually change the future of high school basketball in Texas, Cowan Wednesday issued an injunction that prohibits the University Interscholastic League from punishing Kite for attending two summer basketball camps next month.

Kite filed suit against the UIL, claiming the league's ban on varsity athletes participating in summer basketball camps violated his right to improve his skills.

But Cowan's helping hand so far only is extended to Kite.

Cowan was careful to point out that his ruling applied only to Kite and UIL Director Bailey Marshall warned that any other Texas schoolboy who attended a summer camp would be in violation of the UIL rule.

"We hope all the youngsters throughout the state realize this rule was just for this one youngster and anyone else who might go to a summer camp would be in violation of the rule," Marshall said.

UIL punishment for violation of the summer camp rule is loss of one year's eligibility.

Despite Marshall's warning, Kite and his attorney Dean Steffey, saw the ruling as opening the gates for other athletes to attend camps.

"In five years I think you will see a tremendous upgrading of high school basketball in Texas," Steffey said. "I think he (Kite) has opened the door for other high school athletes too. You can't let Greg go and nobody else."

Knuckleballer Knocks Houston Past Expos

HOUSTON (AP) - Veteran knuckleballer Joe Niekro hasn't given much thought to batting higher than the customary ninth position assigned to pitchers in the batting order, but after raising his batting average to .273, he may have given Astro Manager Bill Verdon some food for thought.

"I've never really thought too much about it," said Niekro, after tossing a four-hit shutout and driving in two runs with a pair of hits in Houston's 5-0 triumph over the Montreal Expos Wednesday.

"Making the batting order is up to the manager, but I'm starting to call my bat the 'Polish hammer.'"

The Astros took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning on Bob Watson's solo home run and added a fifth-inning run on a single by Jose Cruz, Luis Pujol's sacrifice and Niekro's run-scoring double down the left-field line.

A sixth-inning triple by Enos Cabell and a sacrifice fly by Watson tallied another run off losing pitcher Ross Grimsley, 12-8, as Houston defeated the All-Star left-hander for the first time in four games this season.

Niekro's run-scoring single in the seventh and a solo home run by Cabell leading off the eighth accounted for the other two Astro runs as Houston sent Montreal down to its sixth straight loss.

Braves 4, Phillies 2

Big brother Phil went out and got the Phillies for the 20th time in 32 lifetime decisions against the NL East leaders.

Niekro, 12-10, pitched an eight-hitter in beating the Phillies for the fourth time this season. He also helped build a run with a fourth inning single.

Dodgers 8, Cubs 0

Steve Garvey slammed a bases-loaded homer, Davey Lopes had a three-run, inside-the-park home run and Burt Hooton hurled an eight-hitter as the Dodgers moved into second place in the NL West.

Wheelchair World Games

STOKE MANDEVILLE, England - American competitors took three gold medals in the World Wheelchair Games.

In the men's pentathlon, Ray Clark won a gold in Class 5, Sharon Rahn finished first in Class 4 of the women's pentathlon and Roy Nungester captured a gold in shot put Class 2.

Two other Americans reached finals. Jon Brown advanced to the weightlifting finals while Mike Dempsey qualified for the final in table tennis Class 5.

Texas Snaps Losing Streak At Eight...

Medich, Rangers Shut Out Boston

ARLINGTON (AP) - Doc Medich, who saved a life this month, also saved the Texas Rangers Wednesday night from further embarrassment in the American League.

Medich handcuffed Boston on two hits and, thanks to a two-run homer by Bobby Bonds, the Rangers ended an eight-game losing streak with a 2-0 victory over the Red Sox.

"Maybe there is a law of averages," said Medich, 5-5, after he outdueled Dennis Eckersley, 11-4.

It was Texas' sixth straight victory over Boston and the Red Sox seventh loss in their last eight games.

Eckersley allowed only six hits but made a big mistake to Bonds in the bottom of the eighth inning.

"I shook off catcher Carlton Fisk who wanted a curve ball and Bonds hit an outside fast ball," said Eckersley.

The opposite field homer traveled some 400 feet into the right field stands, scoring Al Oliver, who had singled.

Medich retired the last 14 batters in a row, but added, "I was really getting tired...I just didn't want to come out. I kept the ball down and when you think Boston you think down."

Boston lost more than just a game.

Left-fielder Carl Yastrzemski aggravated a back injury and will be lost from three to five games, said Boston manager Don Zimmer.

Said Ranger manager Billy Hunter, "Boston brings out the best in us. I just wish we had more than one game with them left. Maybe we do."

In the wrapup game of the series tonight, John Matlack, 7-8, of Texas meets Boston's Luis Tiant, 7-8

Yanks 3, Indians 1

Piniella's homer off Rick Waits was his third of the year and came after Mickey Rivers and Thurman Munson had singled.

The victory was the Yanks' seventh in their last eight games, Lemon's second in a row since he replaced Martin, and his first in Yankee Stadium.

Royals 12, Mariners 3

Kansas City had plenty of power - 14 hits - including Pete Lacock's homer and Fred Patek's two-run triple. But for the first six innings it was Doug Bird's power that had the fans cheering.

Angels 11, Brewers 9

Milwaukee had a chance to cut into Boston's 5½-game lead in the AL East, but they ran into Joe Rudi. He drove in five runs, four with a grand-slam homer in the first inning. Gorman Thomas had a pair of homers and Robin Yount and Sal Bando had one apiece for the Brewers.

Beginning a half-hour later, but running much longer, will be the Area West Texas Division III Girl's Softball Tournament which kicks off at 8 at the girl's softball field. tonight's lone game of the three-to-four day tournament will pit host Snyder against Big Spring.

Snyder Women's Golf Association hosted the monthly Play Day West here Tuesday with 50 ladies from Tahoka, Big Spring and Snyder participating.

Following 18 holes of Florida Scramble the ladies met at the club house for a luncheon and awards presentation. Bill Keys, Golf Pro, presented the awards to the winners assisted by Wilma Dillard and Brenda Murphree.

There was a two way tie for first place with a 71 to be broken by a scorecard playoff. First place went to Retha Pickering, Brenda Murphree of Snyder and Wakey Burchanan, Big Spring Commanche Trails and Lena Williams of Tahoka.

Winners for second place were Jo Sterling, Betty Hildreth and Billie Mills of Snyder and DaOnne Curry of Tahoka.

The third place team with a 72 was Evelyn Thomas and Dena Ellis, Snyder and June Waters and Ramona Harris of Big Spring Commanche Trails. Fourth place winners Juanita Hester, Frances Gann, Snyder, Flo Hallum, Big Spring Commanche Trails and Dee McKeever of Tahoka shot a 73.

Closest to the Pin award went to Esther Guelker on No. 5 hole with the Longest Drive Award on No. 7 going to Jo Sterling. The next Play Day West will be held at Big Spring Commanche Trails Aug. 22.

At the close of awards a short business meeting was held to discuss the upcoming Club Championship Tournament to be held Aug. 1, 3, 4 and 8. Finnie Seale, tournament chairman, discussed the match play tournament. The tournament will be sponsored by Edith McKanna who will also present the awards.

Qualifying round will be played Aug. 1 with the first and second rounds to be played Aug. 3 and 4 and the final round Aug. 8.

There will be three flights with an entry fee of $6.00. For further information call the Pro Shop (573-7101).

Barnes Wants No Promises

MIAMI (AP) - Marvin Barnes, the enigmatic forward whose basketball career has been marked by chaos and unfulfilled promise, is putting his $950,000 contract on the line in an attempt at self-discipline.

In a telephone call from Austin, Barnes told The Associated Press he has asked Boston Celtics' owner John Y. Brown to remove the guarantee from his three-year contract. Barnes' move may be unprecedented in the National Basketball Association, and is even more notable considering he has walked out on three different teams because of contract problems.

"A man knows what he needs, and I need this challenge. I know I can be a great player, and I have no fear of losing my contract. This will make me work harder," he said.

Barnes averaged 24 points and 16 rebounds in his rookie season with the defunct St. Louis Spirits, but most of his headlines since have come from off-court activities.

Gottfried Edges Cahill, 6-4, 6-3

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Topseeded Brian Gottfried defeated Mike Cahill 6-4, 6-3 and second-seeded Eddie Dibbs ousted Bruce Manson 6-2, 6-0 in the second round of the $175,000 Louisville International Tennis Classic.

In an earlier match, unseeded Patrick Cornejo of Chile upset fourth-seeded Roscoe Tanner 6-4, 6-3.

Carter Clamping Down On Computer Security

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration, concerned about reports that government files on millions of Americans aren't tamper-proof, is clamping down on computer security, an administration source says.

The source said the Office of Management and Budget is planning, probably next week, to issue a directive requiring tighter precautions to safeguard against unauthorized people having access to the government's computers. President Carter had asked the OMB in February 1977, to study the problem.

The federal government is the country's largest user of computers with an estimated 10,000 of them processing everything from tax returns to crop reports.

Although essential elements of the directive have been completed, some details still may be changed, the source, who declined to be identified, said Wednesday night.

The White House move comes amid increasing concern by some members of Congress about the easy access to information in some computers - a situation which, critics say, constitutes a potential invasion of privacy and opens the system to fraud.

The General Accounting Office issued a report earlier this month critical of computer safeguards in the Social Security Administration, which maintains medical and financial records on 170 million Americans.

The GAO, the investigative arm of Congress, said computer terminals often were not locked and could be used by almost anyone with access to them. The GAO said in many cases there was unlimited access to the terminal by employees.

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., a co-author of the 1974 Privacy Act, also has charged that the availability of the Veterans Administration's computerized files is too broad and that such files should be safeguarded under more stringent security.

An internal audit by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare revealed last November that computer "systems security in HEW was far from meeting minimum acceptable standards."

Both HEW and the Social Security Administraion since have moved independently to increase computer security, but the White House directive is expected to put added emphasis on the problem.

The source said the directive will order the Commerce Department to compile new security standards and guidelines, and will require the General Services Administration, the government's landlord, to establish new regulations for physical security of computer rooms.

The directive also will order the Civil Service Commission to re-evaluate and set standards on screening, including background checks, of employees working with government computers, the source said.

The government's computerized files, especially those held by the Social Security and Veterans administrations - contain a broad range of information including data on a person's earnings, real estate holdings, medical history and marital status as well as whether an individual has had problems with drugs or alcohol.

Gas Storage Plan Is Approved

AUSTIN (AP)-The railroad commission has approved an application by Delhi Gas Pipeline Corp. of Dallas to convert a nearly depleted oil field in Hopkins and Franklin counties into an underground gas storage reservoir.

The gas storage operation in the Pickton Backon Lime Field will cover 7,150 acres in the Northeast Texas counties.

The commission said Delhi owns 94.84 percent of the net revenue interest in the area that is to be used for storage.

The commission said several owners of mineral interests in the field protested the Delhi application.

The commission said, however, they did not submit direct evidence or testimony that the commission considered material to the law pertaining to the Delhi proposal.

"The Spectator Bird," a novel by Wallace Stegner, won the 1977 National Book Award for fiction.

Two Rides Closed At Arlington

By the Associated Press

Two Texas cable car rides have been closed by amusement park officials following an accident on a similar ride near St. Louis Wednesday that killed three persons and injured a fourth.

"Astrolift" at Arlington's Six Flags Over Texas and "Astroway" at Houston's Astroworld will remain closed until the cause of the accident at Six Flags over Mid-America is determined, spokesmen said.

Six Flags, Inc., a Los Angeles-based company that operates both Texas parks, the Missouri facility and several other amusement parks, has closed all its cable car rides.

"Our ride has been operating perfectly," said Astroworld spokesman Gary Dalton. "But we're going to keep it closed until safety engineers up there (in St. Louis) determine the cause of the accident."

Dalton said the Swiss-made ride resembling a ski lift normally undergoes "very extensive" daily inspection.

Six Flags over Texas spokesman Bruce Neal said the ride at Arlington will be closed.

Three Killed On Park Ride

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

EUREKA, Mo. (AP) - A gondola ride carrying four passengers 70 feet above an amusement park slipped off its cable and plunged to the ground when a support arm on a tower broke. Two girls and a man were killed and a third girl was critically injured.

About 60 persons were stranded in the 15 remaining cable cars in operation at the time of the accident Wednesday at Six Flags over Mid-America park. All were rescued without further incident. The last passengers reached safety four hours after the accident.

The steel cable car, a mass of gnarled metal, was whisked away to a storage room nearby.

St. Louis County Fire Marshall James Holdinghaus said safety devices on the cable ride prevented the other cars from falling. Some parts of the ride are as high as 100 feet above the park, which was filled with about 20,000 persons at the time of the accident, officials said.

The ride had operated for eight years without incident, a park spokesman said. More than 15 million people have ridden safely in the Swiss-made ride, he added. He called the accident a "fluke."

Firemen and police from ten surrounding communities used crane-like snorkel units to rescue the riders. It took a 100-foot aerial boom to reach the last few cable cars that swung gently in the humid 94-degree summer breeze at the attraction located about 25 miles south of St. Louis.

Less than an hour after the final person was snatched from the suspended cable car, high winds and torrential rains pummelled the 503-acre park.

Two girls, Trisha Weeks, 10, of St. Louis, and Kristen Johnson, 15, of Barre, Vt., and her uncle, Clark F. Johnson, 25, of Rivesville, W.Va., were killed after one of the ride's 28 cable cars snapped loose when the support arm gave way about 2 p.m. Only 16 cars were in the air at the time.

Jennine Weeks, 12, a sister of Trisha, was in critical but stable condition today after surgery Wednesday night at a nearby hospital. The uncle and niece were visiting the Weeks family at their St. Louis County home.

A spokesman for the park, Bob Kochan, said that the ride could hold 112 persons. The three killed and one injured were the only occupants of the car that fell, he said.

The ride, runs across most of the width of the park. Passengers are carried in 28 small cars suspended on a moving cable.

Kockan said the cable car ride would not be used again until an engineer from Six Flags over Georgia, a sister operation, arrives for an investigation.

Dave Kaplan, a spokesman for Six Flags, over Georgia, said Six Flags, Inc., operates five theme parks and two wax museums. Besides Six Flags over Mid-America and Six Flags over Georgia, they are Six Flags over Texas, Astro World in Houston and Great Adventure in Jackson, N.J.

Filly's Nanny Is Real Goat

WALCOTT, Iowa. (AP) - Orphan Annie's nanny is a real old goat.

Orphan Annie is a filly who had been abandoned by her owner and later adopted by Patti Kappeler and her family. The new owners hoped to keep Annie alive by feeding her milk from a friend's goat.

Mrs. Kappeler and her husband, Larry, were prepared for a four-times-a-day feeding chore until they found a solution right from the horses's mouth.

Mrs. Kappeler said she was having trouble handling the chore so Annie just walked up to her substitute mom and did the work herself.

Now, four times a day, Mrs. Kappeler props the goat on a box and Annie steps up to the tap.

The Kappelers own four other horses and plan to keep Annie.

But until their new charge is weaned, it looks like they'll have to get their own goat. The borrowed nanny has a kid of her own to feed.

Archeological Find Of Century ...

Chinese Building Room To House An Army

By C.C. MINICLIER
Associated Press Writer

HSIYANG VILLAGE, China (AP) - Beyond orchards of pomegranates and apricots, and a few lily ponds, the People's Republic of China is building a room vast enough to house an army.

Indeed, the room will do just that, covering more than 6,400 life-sized pottery figures of soldiers, cavalrymen, war chariots and horses that were buried here 209 years before the birth of Christ.

The army has been called the archeological find of the century. Each figure has an individual face representing soliders of the Emperor Chin Shih Huang, who first united China and built the Great Wall.

The soldiers wear different, appropriate uniforms and the horses look alert. Indeed, the entire formation appears ready to do battle at the slightest provocation.

A single-span roof measuring 238 feet by 673 feet will arch over the archeological site in Shensi Province in central China. The site, which was accidentally found by well diggers in 1974, was seen in last April's National Geographic magazine.

Since 1974, second and third burial sites of life-sized figures were found nearby. Seventeen test holes led to the belief that there are 1,100 more figures inside the second site. The sites have been reburied to protect the pottery figures until the roof is finished.

All three sites are to the east of the tomb of Emperor Chin, founder of the Chin Dynasty. Historical writings suggest that the tomb, whose outer wall is almost 25 miles in circumference, exceeds that of Egypt's King Tut in riches.

Records show it took hundreds of thousands of workers 38 years to build the tomb, which includes palaces, rare treasures from different parts of China, a ceiling in which stars are represented by pearls and a map of China on the floor, with streams of mercury for rivers.

Yang Chen-Ching, head of the preparations office for the Museum of Battle Troops of the Emperior Chin Shih Huang, told an interviewer there are no present plans to dig up the pyramid-shaped tomb.

Since discovery of the first pit, now being roofed over, and the two others, workers have found pottery figures of officials to the west of the tomb and buildings to the north. To the south is a hill.

Yang said up to 500 men worked in the initial building of the protective roof and some 200 men are now finishing the job. Next year, archeologists plan to unearth the figures beneath it, digging up a breath-taking exhibition which has been in place for 2,180 years.

By Communist Chin's 30th birthday, On Oct. 1, 1979, Yang hopes the museum will be open. Visitors will find ranks of troops, accompanied by horses and chariots, facing them as they enter from the east.

Yang said some 960 life-sized figures of soldiers, each with individual faces and differing hair styles, were found in the first two pits. Test diggings in the second pit unearthed wooden chariots, drivers, a general, pottery horses, cavalrymen and foot soldiers.

The soldiers were originally brightly painted judging from bits of paint found around the figures and from tests made on the carefully moulded uniforms.

In the second pit, found in May 1976, there are also crossbows and bronze arrowhead spear blades and fragments of swords.

The swords, made of a mixture of 13 alloys, are virtually rust free. An intricate mechanism housing the trigger for a crossbow is one of the relics Yang is keeping to display in the museum.

Officials from American museums visited the site this spring and gave Yang copies of the National Geographic feature. Asked if there were plans to ship some of the soldiers to the United States, Yang said that would have to be worked out in Peking and Washington.

To date three of the figures, two men and a horse, have been sent to a museum at Peking's Forbidden City. One soldier is on display in Hong Kong, and others are in the local village museum and at Sian, the 3,000-year-old walled capital of Shensi Province, which is in central China and is bounded by the Yellow River and the Great Wall.

Tourists are not allowed to photograph the seven soldiers and two horses displayed here but marvel at the individuality of the terra cotta figures.

Research archeologist Wu Pai Lun told an interviewer that 300 years before Emperor Chin died it was traditional to bury an emperor's bodyguards and close entourage alive with his remains.

What can be done about STOP INFLATION fighting inflation?

There are some ideas customers have adopted, which we are happy to pass along. You are probably doing many of these already, and possibly others not listed (we'd be glad to hear about further suggestions).

- Try new recipes, new meal ideas. Recipes using everyday, inexpensive, familiar staples such as corn meal, macaroni, root vegetables, etc. can be delicious as well as economical.
- Try brands that may be new to you. Chances are, you'll find items in Safeway brands which can save you money and be equally as satisfying to you and your family as your present brand.
- Buy in quantity if there is a sale on ... but buy only what you can use, freeze, can or preserve.
- Use Safeway's unit price tags. They allow you to compare the cost of various brands.
- Check the "Open Dating" on perishables. It's your guide to freshness, to get maximum storage life for your money.
- When you buy fresh meat, think in terms of several meals rather than just one. Buy ahead, cook ahead, freeze ahead. Your cost per meal will go down substantially.
- Substitute, if there is a saving. Poultry for red meats ... cabbage for lettuce ... dry milk for fresh milk, etc.
- Check Safeway's food ads for the Specials, the Best Buys — things that are in plentiful supply and reduced in price. Food ads give the shopper a handy way to compare value, plan economical meals and be aware of weekly bargains.
- Make out a basic shopping list, but be open-minded to unadvertised specials. These can often be the Bargain of the Week for you.
- Try more one-stop shopping. More and more customers are coming to Safeway for health and beauty aids, notions, housewares and appliances, garden supplies, etc. This can save both time and gasoline.
- Rediscover the pleasures of eating out at home.

Eat lightly with hiatal hernia

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have recently been in the hospital for X rays. They show I have a hiatal hernia. Every time I eat I feel bloated and cannot sleep because of a smothering feeling. I got a wedge for my bed to elevate my head and I take Gaviscon tablets after meals and also a Valium. My doctor did not give me a diet to go by. Also, I have been seriously constipated and seem not to be able to get relief except from an enema.

Will I always feel this bad? I'm 47 and weigh about 120. I'm 5-feet-5. All my weight is in my stomach and waist. I am so uncomfortable and just drag around all day. The doctor did not explain what this is and what I can expect. I need to know for peace of mind, so I can get to feeling better and become a wife and mother again.

DEAR READER — A hiatal hernia literally is a rupture of a portion of the stomach through the normal hole in the diaphragm. The hole gets enlarged and the portion of the stomach slides in and out of the large hole.

When a portion of the stomach slides through the hole into the chest cavity it affects the normal closing mechanism so that the contents in the stomach can leak backward into the lower part of the esophagus (food tube). This causes burning and irritation that some people experience with hiatal hernia and esophageal reflux (the term for the leak out of the top of the stomach into the lower esophagus).

Your bloating and swelling may not be related to your hiatal hernia in view of your comment about being constipated. Rather it may indicate the presence of a spastic or irritable colon and gas problem.

Your doctor didn't give you a special diet for a hiatal hernia because it doesn't always matter quite so much what you eat as long as you don't eat very large meals.

A person with such a hernia should plan to eat multiple small meals a day never filling the stomach very much and to not lie down until at least two hours after eating. The whole object is to let the stomach empty as much as possible, so when you lie down there won't be a lot of material in the stomach to leak backwards into the lower esophagus.

Also you don't want to put any pressure on the stomach which would squeeze it and squirt the material in the stomach back into the lower esophagus. That's why girdles, tight belts and any other tight garments are forbidden. It also should be obvious propping up the head of the bed is advisable, although some people do use a wedge.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux to give you more information about what the hernia is and what you can do in your daily life and the types of meals you can use to help you out.

Hiatal hernia is a very frequent problem and other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I am also sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation to give you a program for this problem.

Couple Wed 70 Years

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - After 70 years of marriage, Paul and Mattie Engelke are still doing things together, including their own yard work.

"We've got two lawn mowers," said Engelke, 92. "I do the straight stuff and then she mows around the flowers."

The Engelkes celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary Sunday with an open house at the home of a grandson. Both of their daughters, along with many of their five grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren helped them celebrate the occasion.

The couple met at a party in New Germany, Minn., where they both grew up as children of German immigrants. They were married July 23, 1908, in Minneapolis.

"I believe we are in such good health because we eat only two times a day - at 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.," Engelke said. "We've stuck to that idea for more than 25 years. And no beer and no smoking. Just water and lots of coffee."

Your Birthday

July 28, 1978

You should take positive steps this coming year to strive for several things that might have appeared difficult to obtain heretofore. Conditions that could make success possible are now developing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Swallow your medicine if you're called to own up to a past commitment. You made the obligation. You alone are responsible for it. Like to find out more about yourself? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Brooding because you think you can't have something you really desire is no way to get it. Put your thinking cap on, roll up your sleeves and you'll find the way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to force yourself to come out of your shell if you find you're in a withdrawn mood today. The answers you seek are not found in retreat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It'll be hard to hold back confidential information because you want to tell another what the score really is. Betrayal would be worse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Indecision comes from anticipating the worst. Don't let negative thinking rob you of experiencing the wonders of today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Fault finding will delay any progress you hope for in your work today. Don't be a part to hypercritical or disapproving behavior.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In social situations today, take care what you tell another. You may not know it buy you could be saying the wrong things to the wrong person.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unresolved family topics that get everyone uptight might make a showing again today. Nothing will be gained except frustration.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) None of your natural talent will be able to come through and projects will be more difficult today if you're too negative about something you're working on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you haven't the wherewithal and you fool around with something speculative today, be prepared to get your fingers burned. It's no day to gamble.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Being critical of your loved ones is not the way to endear yourself today. All it will get you is the title of nit-picker.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Incorrect or invalid information is floating around today. Take anything you hear with a grain of salt — and don't pass it on.

Test-Tube Babies Not Available To All Now

BY JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - Britain's two pioneer test-tube-baby doctors are cautioning infertile women not to raise their hopes too high yet and advising foreigners seeking their treatment that they and Britain can't take care of them.

The birth of 5-pound 12-ounce Louise Brown, the first authenticated case of a baby born after conception outside the womb, was "the end of the beginning, not the beginning of the end," Dr. Robert Edwards told a news conference. "We wish to be very modest about what we have done. We have a lot to learn."

"It is obvious this is not immediately available to everybody," said Dr. Patrick Steptoe, his colleague in the 12 years of research and experimentation that culminated in the birth of the baby Tuesday to 30-year-old Lesley Brown.

Steptoe said the facilities he and Edwards have been using are inadequate and are not longer available, that they are now looking for new quarters and financing to continue their research, and that Britain has no facilities for would-be mothers from abroad. But he added a note of hope for the childless:

"There are a number of teams already starting this work. We think that within a fairly reasonable time, given the proper facilities, this could become applicable all over the world."

The London Daily Express reported that doctors at London's St. Thomas's Hospital also are experimenting with test-tube fertilization and that a woman underwent an egg-extraction operation there Wednesday.

Mrs. Brown came to Steptoe and Edwards two years ago for help because a blockage in her fallopian tubes that prevented conception could not be corrected. The two doctors took an egg from one of her ovaries, fertilized it with her husband's sperm in a laboratory dish and implanted the dividing cell into her uterus, where it developed normally. Mother and daughter are reported in fine condition.

An estimated 40 percent of infertile women have the same problem as Mrs. Brown.

TO C-CITY STATION--Danny Chastain, an engineer for Radio Station KSNY in Snyder for 3½ years, is moving to Colorado City where he will be assistant manager of Station KVMC. He will succeed Ed Newton who is moving to Arkansas. (SDN Staff Photo)

Two Killed In Midwest Storms

By The Associated Press

A line of thunderstorms swept across the Midwest, leaving at least two persons dead and causing widespread power outages.

Thunderstorms prevailed from the lower Great Lakes to northern Texas. A half dozen tornadoes also touched down, mostly in the upper Mississippi valley.

Wind damage occurred at numerous places from Terre Haute, Ind., to Vinita Okla.

Vicious thunderstorms accompanied by torrential rain, winds of 80 mph and hail raked Lower Michigan Wednesday evening, leaving at least one person dead and three others missing when two sailboats capsized in the Detroit River.

Detroit Edison Co., had damage "scattered all over the place," according to spokesman Fred Sullivan, who estimated 30,000 Edison customers were blacked out. Half of those were in Detroit, he said.

Consumers Power Co. estimated at least 20,000 of its customers were without electricity because of downed power lines.

A seven-story parking garage under construction at the Renaissance Center in downtown Detroit collapsed during the storm. There were no injuries.

In Huron County, deputies said a 15-year-old boy was hospitalized in critical condition after wind blew over the tractor he was driving, pinning him beneath the machine.

At least one death was blamed on violent weather that swept across much of Illinois, knocking out electric service in numerous areas and causing scattered damage.

The storms that hit Wednesday afternoon and evening brought high winds, torrential rains, hail and the threat of tornadoes to many areas.

Funnel clouds were sighted in the Chicago, Springfield and East St. Louis areas, but authorities said none of the tornadoes touched down.

Gerald Mariana, 33, of Mount Prospect, drowned in Lake Michigan off Wilmette while trying to pull his motorboat back to its mooring in a heavy wind.

The storms halted air traffic briefly at O'Hare International Airport and knocked out power to several Chicago suburbs, including Park Forest South, where the power failure stopped rush-hour trains on one of the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's commuter lines.

The National Weather Service at Springfield's Capital Airport said it lost power for about an hour.

Electric power was knocked out to all or parts of a number of communities surrounding Springfield and in the central Illinois area, a spokesman for Central Illinois Light Co. said.

The storms left the upper Mississippi valley today and concentrated over western Tennessee and Arkansas. Scattered thunderstorms were also reported over northern Texas and the lower Great Lakes.

Probation Is Revoked

The probation of David L. Kenney was revoked Wednesday in 132nd District Court.

Kenney had been placed on a two-year probation March 23 on an aggravated assault charge. He was reputed to have threatened Rex Free with a rifle in that incident, court records show.

The probation was revoked because of a subsequent arrest on a marijuana charge and Kenney was sentenced to serve two years.

he is directing in pest management in the two counties he serves. His statistics showed dramatic benefits from the Scurry County Producers Association program compared to Mitchell County, which has no program at this time.

This year has been different from 1976 and 1977, Kattes said, and the program here has been changed to a season-long management effort, plus a fall diapause program. Boll weevils have been fewer this season due to the past spraying programs and to weather conditions, Kattes said. However, spots of relatively heavy infestations have been found, and these usually are in areas adjacent to habitat that is conducive to over-wintering of the weevils. Kattes said that he is continuing to assemble data on the over-wintering of the boll weevils and he feels that some valuable information is being assembled.

Several agricultural experts attending the session cautioned that local farmers should not relax their efforts merely because infestations have declined. The crop pests have the capability to spring back quickly when weather and other conditions become more conducive to their progagation, they warned. It was suggested that the success of past years might lull some farmers into believing that the pest problem had been solved permanently which is not the case.

Stephens presided over the report and review session, which was held in the Western Texas College Cafeteria. Williams introduced guests and welcomed the visitors. David Ivie, director of agricultural and environmental science for the Texas Department of Agriculure, Austin, responded to the welcome.

Ivie congratulated the community and especially the program and said the TDA was happy to have had a role in bringing it about. He said state funds for such programs this year will be about the same as last year. However, he said there have been fewer applications so far this year.

Guests attending were from the TDA in Austin and Lubbock, from Texas A&M University, the Extension Service from College Station and Lubbock and agriculture chemical firms. Officers and directors of the Scurry County Producers Association were hosts and local guests included representatives of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, the BCD and news media.

Senate Wants Voice On Future Troop Pullouts

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate, concerned about the balance of power in Asia, is demanding a voice in any further administration decisions to withdraw U.S. troops from South Korea.

The Korean amendment was adopted as senators passed the $2.8 billion fiscal 1979 foreign military aid bill, which also makes lifting the U.S. economic boycott against Rhodesia contingent on progress in that Southern African country toward black majority rule. The legislation, approved 73-13 on Wednesday, now goes to the House for action, probably next week.

The amendment on removal of U.S. troops from Korea was adopted as a fatigued Senate neared the close of two days' debate on the massive aid bill.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., first proposed an amendment declaring it the "sense of the Congress" that Carter's withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Korea was "contrary to the national security interests of the United States and to the interests of peace in Asia."

But this was modified, with Percy's acquiescence, to say that "further withdrawal of ground forces...may seriously risk upsetting the military balance in that region and requires full advance consultation with the Congress."

In that form it passed by 81-7 - another in a recent string of assertions by Congress that the executive branch must consult lawmakers before undertaking major foreign policy moves.

A similar caveat was attached to another amendment of the bill Tuesday, that one dealing with changes in the U.S.-Taiwan mutual defense treaty.

Congressional complaints about a lack of consultation with the White House have been an irritant for more than a year, but Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said he had noted "great improvement in recent months" in the situation.

Juvenile Held In Purse-Snatching

Police today reported they arrested a 10-year-old juvenile in connection with a purse snatching from a car owned by Juanita Ellington.

Ms. Ellington reported the incident to police late Wednesday morning, and said the purse contained a billfold which had about $166 in it. Officers said the billfold and its contents were recovered.

Also investigated by police were reports of thefts and minor traffic accidents.

Wayne Nickson, 1913 Coleman, said the pickup parked at the rear of his residence had been entered and about $90 worth of goods taken. Taken, he said, were a tape deck, a label maker, and a calculator.

Marvin Snowden told officers yesterday that two cultivator seats, valued at about $30, were taken from his 3009 39th St. home.

This morning, Ignacio Andrade told police that he is missing a watch and a ring.

Andrade said the theft occurred July 16 at Towle Park. He said he left the articles on a picnic table in the park, and when he returned they were gone. The loss was estimated at $125.

An accident resulting in moderate damage was reported to two vehicles Wednesday morning.

The accident took place at the traffic Y southeast of town and involved a 1973 Mercury driven by Welanna Mae Walker of Ranger and a 1974 Buick driven by Etta Frazier of Midland. The accident was reported at 9:30 a.m.

At 5:05 a.m. today, an accident was investigated at the Fina Truck Stop.

Reports show that a 1968 Ford driven by Pete Perez of Lubbock was in collision with a gas pump at the station.

Stolen Auto Is Recovered

A car reported stolen from Lubbock was found abandoned outside Snyder Wednesday morning by officers of the Highway Patrol.

The car, a 1966 Chevrolet, was found about 1½ miles north of Snyder on U.S. Highway 84. The car was reportedly stolen from Lubbock July 14.

A Lubbock woman, Bonny Murrell, came to Snyder Wednesday afternoon and reclaimed the vehicle.

Survivors Recall Lightning, Sharks Close

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)-Two men and two boys tossed into the Atlantic when their 28-foot pleasure boat exploded survived a night floating 300 yards away from where several sharks were tearing at the body of a dead female companion.

As they waited for rescue, bolts of lightning knifed through the sea around them.

"Visibility was down to about zero," Coast Guard Chief Boatswain's Mate John Langhorn said Wednesday, hours after the four survivors were brought to Edisto Beach, S.C., where they refused medical treatment.

An Edisto Beach resident had reported seeing the explosion Tuesday night at 8 p.m. The survivors were rescued about 12 hours later.

The lightning may have saved the survivors from the sharks.

"It surprised me these four stayed together and didn't get attacked by sharks," said Deputy Sheriff James Craven.

"Maybe the only thing that saved them was the sharp lightning we had." Lightning struck the water near the survivors several times during the night, Coast Guard officials said.

Craven said the explosion threw everybody but Larry Coyle, 65, of Charleston from the boat. He jumped in when it was apparent the boat would sink, said Craven.

The survivors tied themselves together in a circle, with lifejackets and floating cushions from the boat. They saw that the woman had been killed in the explosion and cut her adrift, Craven said.

The crew of a 41-foot search boat found the survivors still tied together and floating about 5-to-8 miles off Edisto Island.

A Coast Guard helicopter pilot spotted the woman's body later. Crewmen stood on the helicopter's rescue platform battling sharks with a boat hook until they were able to retrieve the body of Barbara Ann Woodham, 58, of Charleston.

Charleston County Coroner Ray Shokes said the woman's body was severely mutilated.

Petty Officer 2nd Class David Giza said he was told by one of the survivors that the woman had died when a gas line on the "Miss Anne" exploded and the vessel caught fire.

Besides Coyle, the survivors were identified as Sam Boger, 39, of Summerville, owner of the boat; his son, Earl Boger, 15, and Jay Johnson, 12, of Summerville.

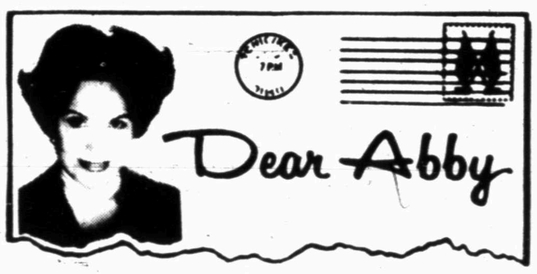
Despite persistent storms, Coast Guard officials say the search vessel and the 95-foot cutter "Cap Morgan" searched for survivors or debris all Tuesday night. The only helicopter that could reach the area ran out of fuel and had to return to base.

Two helicopters returned to the scene early Wednesday.

Company Will Contest FTC Order

WASHINGTON (AP)-A company that furnishes information on consumers to businesses says it "will vigorously contest" a Federal Trade Commission order that it divest itself of two credit bureau firms.

The commission ruled that the 1970 and 1971 acquisitions by the Atlanta-based Equifax, Inc., violated antitrust law because they could reduce competition in several areas of the country.



Wives Worry About Husbands' Weekend

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This year, as in previous years, my husband has invited his sales team to our mountain cabin for a weekend of fishing.

This year, unlike previous years, his sales team now includes a young, unmarried woman who happens to be very attractive. (All the men are married and middle-aged.)

Abby, would you believe that some of the wives are making a big fuss because they feel that it is improper for a single girl to sleep under the same roof with their husbands?

Our cabin is a six-room chalet with sleeping accommodations for 12, and this trip involves five men and one girl.

All the wives respect your opinion, so please tell us what you think.

D.M.'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: The woman member of the sales team is entitled to the same benefits as the men. If your husband excludes her in deference to nervous wives, he'll be guilty of sexist discrimination. So relax. It's a new, new world, Ma'am.

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister-in-law who really turns me on. I know it's not love, it's just a physical attraction. Every time she touches me unintentionally, I go up the wall.

My problem is I don't know if I should go ahead and try something or just lay back. If I lay back I'll go crazy, and if I go ahead, I run the risk of having her refuse and then telling my brother, and I sure don't want that.

What should I do? I am 16.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Lay back. Lay WAY back. And in self-defense, do your best to remain untouchable.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years and it seems like 60. We have three beautiful children, 5, 3 and 13 months old. My husband is a steady worker, he makes a good salary, and he doesn't drink or run around. Those are his good qualities. But when he comes home, he always greets our children with a slap in the mouth. He always finds some excuse to hit one of them. He uses me as a punching bag if he feels like it, too.

He tells the kids, "Don't touch the car. It's MINE!" (Everything is HIS.) He doesn't talk, he yells.

The kids are scared to death of him and so am I. He hasn't taken me anywhere in two years. I begged him to go to the priest with me, but he refuses. He says if the priest comes here he'll throw him out. He won't take me to church so I pray at home, but I have to hide when I pray or he'll say I'm cracking up. Maybe I am. Am I?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: A physician can tell you if you're "cracking up." See one immediately. Tell him what's bothering you, and if he prescribes counseling, by all means go. If your community doesn't offer a refuge for battered wives and abused children, they should have one.

You don't need your husband's permission to see a priest. And if you continue to live with this abusive man, who is probably sick, you are sicker than he is.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "RUNNING TO LOSE WEIGHT IN SANTA MONICA": Running alone won't do it. Diet is the most important factor. You will have to run three miles to "burn up" 100 calories. In other words, for every hot fudge sundae you consume, you will have to run 15 miles to stay even.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Dog Missing Seeing-Eye Cat

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) - Frisky won't eat his ice cream. And he keeps bumping into things. It's been that way since his seeing eye cat ran off.

Frisky, a 17-year-old blind dog, and Muffin, a 9-year-old black Persian cat, grew up together. When Frisky went blind about two years ago, the cat became his eyes, nudging him around household obstacles.

George and Darene Newman of Tucson, Ariz., said Muffin ran off while the couple and their pets were walking in the mountains west of here more than a week ago.

The Newmans have offered a $50 reward for the return of Muffin.

"We can really tell how upset Frisky is because he hasn't eaten ice cream for a week now," Mrs. Newman said. "There hasn't been a day in his life when he wouldn't eat ice cream."

Separated Twin Is Critical

DALLAS (AP)-An infant girl remained in critical condition this morning at Children's Medical Center after the operation to separate her from her Siamese twin claimed her twin sister's life.

The dead girl, described only as "infant B" at the family's request, died at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday after suffering difficulty breathing. The seven-hour separation procedure had ended some six hours earlier.

Dr. Ted Votteler, a pediatric surgeon who headed a medical team of 40 in the complex operation, said the girls were joined through the lower chest, through some abdominal organs and at one leg.

The three-week old twins shared a liver, intestinal tract, bladder and leg, the doctor said at a post-surgery news briefing.

"It's about the worst connection you could have," said Dr. William Dammert, a surgeon who assisted in the operation.

The critical condition of the surviving girl, "infant A," was described as to be expected of any infant after a long operation. "No other problems are obvious at time," Votteler said.

The shared leg was used only for skin covering and after the operation each twin had only one leg, he said.

Dr. George Hurt, a pediatric neurologist and also a member of the operating team, said the mortality rate for twins born with the type of connection found in this case is about 90 percent.

Votteler said the operation was performed when the twins were just three weeks old because infant B was encountering problems which also caused the condition of infant A to deteriorate.

The mother, identified only as a 25-year-old Texas woman, was reported in good condition.

IRS Concedes...

Brothel May Deduct Prostitutes' Salaries

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Internal Revenue Service claims a Nevada brothel owner owes more than $7 million in taxes but concedes that he can deduct prostitutes' salaries as a business expense.

Joe Conforte, challenging the assessment in the U.S. Tax Court here, said the IRS should also let him deduct rebates to cab drivers plus his brothels' legal fees and linen costs.

In an appeal made public Wednesday, Conforte said "the deductions for salaries and wages of prostitutes, rent, utilities and taxes and licenses (allowed by the IRS) are substantially understated."

Prostitution is legal in Nevada's Storey County, where Conforte owns Mustang Ranch, the state's largest brothel. The IRS makes little distinction about the legality of a business when it assesses taxes or allows deductions.

Conforte is also suing the IRS, charging the assessment was "unreasonable and excessive."

On June 2, U.S. District Judge Roger Foley of Las Vegas rejected Conforte's suit, describing him as a "despoiler of women" and "a pimp sitting on the banks of the Truckee River thumbing his nose at the U.S. government."

Three days later, however, Foley reversed himself and dismissed Conforte's complaint "without prejudice," meaning Conforte could continue the suit in another federal district court.

Conforte's attorney said Wednesday that Conforte and his wife, in joint returns, had claimed smaller profits from the brothel but had not calculated the salaries as deductions.

However, Tax Court records showed that the IRS, in figuring his taxes from 1973 to 1976, deducted the prostitutes' salaries as business expenses.

The IRS said in documents filed April 4 that the brothel near Reno had gross receipts averaging $2.7 million yearly for the four years. In figuring his taxes, the IRS deducted wages and salaries for prostitutes as part of $1.4 million in expenses. His net brothel income subject to taxes averaged about $1.3 million, it said.

The IRS calculated part of Conforte's income from papers found in the trash bin in the summer of 1975. One "trick sheet" bore the names of 38 women and the amounts they made in a 24-hour shift. They ranged from $10 to $736.

Conforte's attorney, Harvey D. Tack of Los Angeles, described the IRS assessment as "grossly excessive" and asked for a trial in Los Angeles.

In the appeal filed in Washington July 14, Conforte said, "The expenses which have intentionally not been considered by the IRS...include legal fees..., insurance, cleaning supplies, laundry, linen, rebates to cab drivers, office supplies and fuel."

The IRS, said, however that "all or part of the deficiency in the income tax ... is due to fraud with intent to evade the income tax." It asked for about $5.5 million in taxes plus penalties bringing the total to $7.3 million.

Conforte and his wife, Sally, are appealing the Sept. 16 conviction of four counts of business income tax evasion in U.S. District Court in Reno. Conforte was sentenced to 20 years in prison and fined $40,000, but his wife's 16-year sentence was suspended. Both have filed appeals.

Congress Briefed On Barnyard Sex

WASHINGTON (AP)- Congress has been handed a brief lecture on barnyard sex education and how the biological cycles of cattle, hogs and chickens affect the food supply.

The rudiments of livestock reproduction were included Tuesday in testimony by Howard W. Hjort, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, before the domestic marketing, consumer relations and nutrition subcommittee of the House.

Hjort's main job was to explain food prices and the administration's goal of putting together an effective national food policy.

One of the main reasons that food prices are going up faster this year than in 1977 - a projected gain of 8 percent to 10 percent against 6.3 percent - is that farm prices of meat animals are much higher than they were.

Hjort explained that weather conditions, a prime factor in crop output, also can bear heavily on livestock production.

"Severe cold in the hog producing states last winter, and the reduction in the cattle inventory since 1975, were to a large extent the most important factors responsible for the rapid increase in meat prices this year," he said.

The sharp reduction in the cattle inventory, triggered by depressed market prices, has been the backdrop for the current livestock situation and the outlook for many months ahead, however.

Hjort said that in addition to the economic and weather factors there are "biological and genetic realities" to consider in producing food.

"In many cases, it is simply impossible to increase the production of one food product when another has been adversely affected by weather," he said. "For example, 27 months are required from the time a beef cow is bred until the offspring reaches slaughter weight.

"Furthermore, if the first offspring is retained to increase the herd the production plant, it could be five and a half years from the time the first calf is retained until the first offspring reaches slaughter," he said.

"For the hog producer, this adjustment period is much shorter, about two and a half years. Broiler production, on the other hand, can be increased in about a three-month period."

Cattle producers responded to favorable prices during the late 1960s and early 1970s by expanding their herds. Hjort said that this expansion continued because of "biological thrust" after prices declined to unfavorable levels for producers.

The total Jan. 1 cattle inventory rose from 108.8 million head in 1967 to a record of 132 million head in 1975. Last Jan. 1 the inventory was cutback to 116. 3 million head.

A mid-year report issued by USDA Wednesday put the July 1 inventory - which is historically larger than the Jan. 1 count because of the annual crop of new calves - at about 121.6 million head, down 7 percent from 130.2 million a year ago.

Thus, department experts believe that the inventory for Jan. 1 1979 will show a further reduction from the beginning of this year, indications that a massive rebuilding of cattle herds has not taken a strong hold at this time.

Although the "biological and genetic realities" described by Hjort at the hearing are common knowledge to farmers and ranchers, his report may have helped provide city consumers with a little perspective on how hamburger and pork chops are produced before they reach the supermarket.
