New, Shallow Pay Indicated In C-S Borden Oil Field

Sunray Oil Corporation, (formerly Barnsdall Oil Company), No. 3 Wilson, one location south of the discovery well of the East Vealmoor field, along the Howard County line, and about 18 miles north of Big Spring, has found a new and shallower pay for that region.

The prospector found this pay 450 feet above the section which is producing in the three wells so far completed in the East Vealmoor field.

Sunray No. 3 Wilson topped a pay at 6,223 feet. It is in the Pennsylvanian. That zone was penetrated to 6,972 feet and a drill-stem test was taken at 6,911-72 feet.

A five-eighth bottom hole choke and a one inch top opening were used.

Estimate 15 BPOH

Gas showed at the surface in three minutes. Drilling mud came to the surface in 46 minutes and the drill pipe started flowing oil in 50 minutes.

It was flowed through the one inch top choke for one hour and made an estimated 15 barrels of oil. The top choke was changed to a one-quarter inch opening, and the well flowed for 30 minutes at the estimated rate of eight barrels of clean oil per hour.

When the drill pipe was pulled recovery was 1,975 feet of pipe line oil, and 150 feet of muddy drilling water. There was no formation water.

Operator is preparing to diamond core deeper.

South Offset

This development is 660 feet from east and 1,980 feet from north lines of section 16, block 27, H&TC survey. It is one-quarter of a mile south of the discovery well of the East Vealmoor field, Sunray, (Barnsdall), No. 1 Wilson, which was completed for pay at 7,428-52 feet of a clayey, fossiliferous, 1,604 barrels of 45.9 gravity oil, flowing through a one-half inch tubing choke.

Sunray No. 3 Wilson is in the Howard County side of the field, and is approximately one quarter of a mile south of the Borden County line. It is the first producer in Howard County in the East Vealmoor field.

SW Terry Discovery Gauges Large Flow

Anderson-Prichard Oil Corporation No. 1 H. C. Bevers, Southwest Terry County reef line discovery, 10 miles southwest of Brownfield, and 660 feet from north and east lines of section 39, block DD, John H. Gibson survey, flowed a total of 120.5 barrels of 40.9 gravity oil in four hours, through a five-eighths inch bottom hole choke, and a one inch top opening.

The production came from the section at 9,797-9,781 feet and was during a five hour and 54 minute drillstem test.

Gas came to the surface in 20 minutes. Mud surfaced in one hour and 50 minutes and the drill pipe started flowing oil in one hour and 54 minutes.

No Water Developed

During the first hour the oil flow was 21.7 barrels. In the second hour the flow was 34.8 barrels. In the third hour the well flowed 30 barrels of oil, and in the fourth hour it made 34 barrels of oil.

No water was developed. The four hour flow totaled 120.5 barrels. Maximum gas volume before the oil started flowing was at the rate of 35,000 cubic feet per day.

Operator is preparing to drill 50 feet deeper. If more shows of oil are developed in that section of new hole another test will be run.

This new discovery is three miles southwest of Wellman. The reef line was topped at 9,705 feet, which is a datum of minus 6,428 feet.

Honolulu Open New Pay Zone In Yoakum

Honolulu Oil Corporation No. 1 Charles B. Towns has opened an upper Clear Fork pay in Northeast Yoakum County.

It filed a potential with the Railroad Commission of Texas for 106 barrels of 27-gravity oil plus 16 per cent water in 24 hours.

The pumper completed from open hole at 6,626-6,754 feet. Five and one-half inch casing is set 6,807 feet. The pay zone has been treated with two injections of 6,000 and 10,000 gallons of acid.

The No. 1 Towns is one mile northeast of the discovery well of the Cobb-Glorieta pool; however the Towns did not develop commercial production in the Glorieta pay and was deepened to the Clear Fork.

Operator has suggested that this upper Clear Fork discovery be called the Cobb-6700 field.

The No. 1 Towns is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 382, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

Kewanee Discovery In Kent Rates 326 BOPD

Kewanee Oil Company's new reef discovery in Southwest Kent County has been completed for a flowing potential of 326.5 barrels of 38.2-gravity oil daily.

Producing from perforations at 6,853-71 feet in a Pennsylvanian line, Kewanee No. 1-C WI calculated the above potential from a 10 3/4-hour flow through a one-fourth-inch choke.

The perforations had been washed with 500 gallons of mud acid and (Continued On Page 12)

Truman Hopes U. S. Decision Means Peace

WASHINGTON—(P)—President Truman said Wednesday he hopes the United States decision to challenge the onward march of communism will mean "peace in the world."

The President addressed the Reserve Officers Association, whose members stood and cheered when he came before them at the Mayflower Hotel.

Smilingly acknowledging their demonstration, Truman then solemnly told them:

"We face a serious situation. He went on to say he hopes his decision would serve the cause of our country and a peaceful world. Before Truman spoke, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson described the Sunday night White House decision to send planes and warships to the aid of South Korea as "the finest hour in American history."

Johnson also told the Reserve Association that the national defense is stronger than ever before in our peacetime history.

Carrying out Truman's momentous decision, American planes already were in action in Korea.

From this country, an increasing volume of war materials was pouring into Pacific pipe lines to strengthen the front against communism along the line drawn by the President against Communist aggression.

Russia Holds Key

Now that American planes and warships are in combat action around Korea, arms have been urgently dispatched to Indochina and the Philippines and Formosa is being screened by the U. S. Navy, the next major move in the grim contest over spreading Soviet communism was clearly up to the Kremlin.

Administration officials agreed that as the situation now stands, following Truman's historic decision to support the United Nations and meet the Korean challenge head-on, the little group of powerful men who run Russia and its satellites holds the key to world war or peace. (Continued On Page 12)

The band will attend the Lions International convention in Chicago next month as an official Texas orchestra. The band will play a special concert at the Monday night event here. Music for the square dancing will be furnished by E. D. Fitzgerald and his Lone Star Ramblers.

After removing bone splinters from the wound, doctors decided to send him to Dallas. He left Wednesday by air ambulance, and was taken to Baylor University Hospital in Dallas, where a brain specialist was to examine him.

U. S. Base In Japan Is On War Footing

By TOM LAMBERT

AN AMERICAN AIR BASE IN SOUTHERN JAPAN — Walking into this air base Wednesday is like walking back into 1942-45.

This nerve center for air operations and base for fighters is on a war footing—with some strictly non-war modifications.

There are more men here wearing sidearms than there were at many wartime bases.

In the briefing rooms it's 1942-45 all over again.

A slim, hard-eyed major tells transport pilots to take off at split minute intervals. "And you'll have fighter cover from the time you sight the place until you leave," he adds.

Over in a fighter squadron ready room, its green front marked boldly and vividly by the Black Panther insignia of the outfit, perspiring pilots just back from fighter cover missions talk and gesture as excitedly as they used to do at Guadalcanal or in England or North Africa.

Gunsports Scorching

Out on the airstrip there are fighters with their gunports scorched and blackened by fire which poured through them.

In a snack bar, transport pilots talk wearily over cups of coffee about their relief at knowing the fighters were around when they landed, loaded and took off from Kimpo or Suwon.

"But," one of them says, "Those B-26's are crazy—and one of those goofy jet pilots scared the life out of me." (Continued On Page 12)

Rites Scheduled For Physicians Killed In Accident

Bodies of two Midland doctors, who were killed in an automobile wreck Monday night on the Garden City highway, were taken Tuesday night to Oklahoma and Ohio.

Dr. William I. Waters, 37, a resident of Midland since 1946, died about 30 minutes after he was rushed to Western Clinic-Hospital Monday night. Dr. Abner Mackey, 34, who came to Midland last Sunday to take over operation of a clinic owned by Dr. Waters, was killed instantly in the crash.

The body of Dr. Waters was shipped overland by train Tuesday night to West Lafayette, Ohio, where services will be held sometime Friday.

A Parks Funeral Home ambulance from Okemah, Okla., arrived Tuesday night for the body of Dr. Mackey. Funeral services for Dr. Mackey will be held in Okemah Thursday.

Offices of the new Midland Memorial Hospital will be closed Thursday afternoon in respect to the memory of Dr. Waters and Dr. Mackey. E. R. Andres, administrator, announced.

Dr. Waters' survivors include the widow of Midland; the parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Waters of West Lafayette, and a sister, Mrs. Horace Latimer, also of West Lafayette.

Dr. Mackey's survivors include the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Mackey of Route 2, Okemah, Okla.; three brothers, Oak of Wisconsin and Amos and Otto of Okemah, and three sisters, Alice of Oklahoma City, Mrs. George Weehunt of Okemah, and Mrs. Albert Graham of Afton, Okla.

Shriver To Represent Texas At Tax Meeting

City Councilman Frank N. Shriver, tax commissioner for the Shell Oil Company here, has been appointed by Gov. Allan Shivers as a delegate representing Texas to the 1950 conference of the National Tax Association to be held September 11-14 in Pittsburgh, Pa.

In notifying Shriver of his appointment, the governor said the tax association is the foremost organization of its kind for the discussion of problems of taxation and related matters.

Shriver said Wednesday he plans to attend the conference. He has attended meetings of the organization in past years.

STATEHOOD APPROVED

WASHINGTON—(P)—The Senate Insular Committee Wednesday approved House-passed bills to grant statehood to Alaska and Hawaii.

Navy Forms New Pacific Task Force

PEARL HARBOR—(P)—

The Navy moved swiftly Wednesday to put together a second hard-hitting Pacific task force to enforce stiffening American policy against Communist aggression in the Far East.

The existing Seventh Task Fleet immediately prepared to carry out President Truman's orders to defend Formosa, Chinese Nationalist stronghold, from Red invasion.

The 20-ship Seventh, spearheaded by the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Valley Forge, was transferred to the operational command of General MacArthur, chief of all U. S. forces in the Far East. Some of its units sailed quickly from Hong Kong, presumably for Formosan waters. The Valley Forge was in Hong Kong last week.

New Jet Fighters

Pacific Fleet Headquarters said the 27,000-ton carrier Philippine Sea will be the nucleus for the new task force which will be based in Pearl Harbor. Like the Valley Forge, she will carry the Navy's potent new Grumman Panther jet fighters.

The Philippine Sea task force will include two cruisers, a squadron of destroyers and a full seatrial of supply ships, to make long-range missions possible if necessary.

A Pacific Fleet spokesman said the new force, probably to be commanded by Rear Adm. Walter F. (Continued On Page 12)

Snyder Population Climbs To 12,008

LUBBOCK—(P)—The population of Snyder, West Texas oil boom town, Wednesday was set at 12,008. The preliminary 1950 figure represents a 220.6 per cent increase over 3,815 in 1940.

The jump is the greatest posted so far for a non-suburban Texas city of more than 10,000. The previous high for a non-suburban city was 2,074 in 1940, a gain of more than 58 per cent over 11,545 in 1940.

Most of Snyder's gain occurred in the last two years following discovery of a vast new oil field.

The 1950 population of Snyder County was set at 22,713, a gain of more than 58 per cent over 11,545 in 1940.

Lieutenant Harding Killed In Air Crash

Lt. Laverne Harding, husband of the former Barbara Conkling of Midland, was killed Tuesday in an air crash in Japan, according to information received here Wednesday.

The message did not give details of the crash.

Lieutenant Harding was a bomber pilot in the U. S. Air Force.

U. S. Airmen Bomb, Strafe Tank Columns

By RUSSELL BRINES

TOKYO—(P)—South Korea's army, scattered and chewed by big Russian-made tanks of the Northern invaders, struggled early Thursday to form a new line a score of miles south of the fallen capital of Seoul.

Seoul and its airfield at Kimpo, 16 miles west, fell to the Communist invaders Wednesday after a see-saw struggle since the start of the Red onslaught Sunday.

Loss of Seoul and Kimpo and concession that Inchon, Seoul's port 20 miles west, probably was untenable, were confirmed by the United States Defense Department in Washington.

The Communists, betraying the completeness of their invasion preparations, quickly began broadcasting from Seoul, introducing Lee Sun Yip, defense minister of the Northern regime, as the new mayor of Seoul.

In the broadcast, heard in Tokyo, Lee even ordered the Seoul schools to reopen Thursday.

Draft Law Extended, Expanded

WASHINGTON—(P)—A unanimous Senate vote Wednesday gave final congressional approval to a one-year extension of the draft act.

The measure puts in President Truman's hands the power to call up thousands of draftees, National Guardsmen or reserves, if necessary to keep the strength of the Army, Navy and Air Force above the 2,000,000 mark.

A 315 to 4 margin for the bill was rolled up late Tuesday in the House.

Congressional action was seen as quick support for President Truman's demand that Communist forces be stopped in Korea and other parts of the world, even if it means a shooting war.

The measure not only allows the President to start actual drafting but also allows him to order Army, Navy, Marine, Air Force and Coast Guard Reserves to duty.

Midlanders Continue To Set Water Records

Midland Tuesday set its second water consumption record in two days.

A total of 7,498,000 gallons—365 for every man, woman and child in Midland—was used here Tuesday. This eclipsed the Monday figure by 398,000 gallons.

City Manager W. H. Oswalt said there still is no need for alarm. Midland apparently has enough water to see the city through 1950. In fact, Oswalt said, the city is preparing to take care of more than 9,000,000 gallons per day.

The 1949 peak day was on July 28 when 7,200,000 gallons were used. By July 28 this year Oswalt believes the city will be using an average of 9,000,000 daily.

A new water well is expected to be added to the system late Wednesday, adding 400,000 gallons to the production capacity. Another well is due in about 10 days and additional wells will be added to give a total capacity here of about 9,500,000 gallons.

FOOD INDEX HITS TOP LEVEL IN 17 MONTHS

NEW YORK—(P)—The Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index this week climbed to its highest level since January of 1949.

At $6.04 the index was eight cents higher than last week and compared with $5.89 a year ago. This was the highest since $6.08 on Jan. 11, 1949.

Pioneer Air Lines Head Is Midland Lions Club Speaker

The jet fighter pilot is today's pioneer, Gen. Robert J. Smith, president of the Pioneer Air Lines, told members of the Midland Lions Club at their regular meeting Wednesday noon in Hotel Scharbauer.

The guest speaker, who also is the commanding general of the 43rd Troop Carrier Wing of the U. S. Air Force Reserves and president of the National Air Council, was introduced by W. Winston Hull, program chairman. President Roy Minear presided at the session, which was the last of the club year.

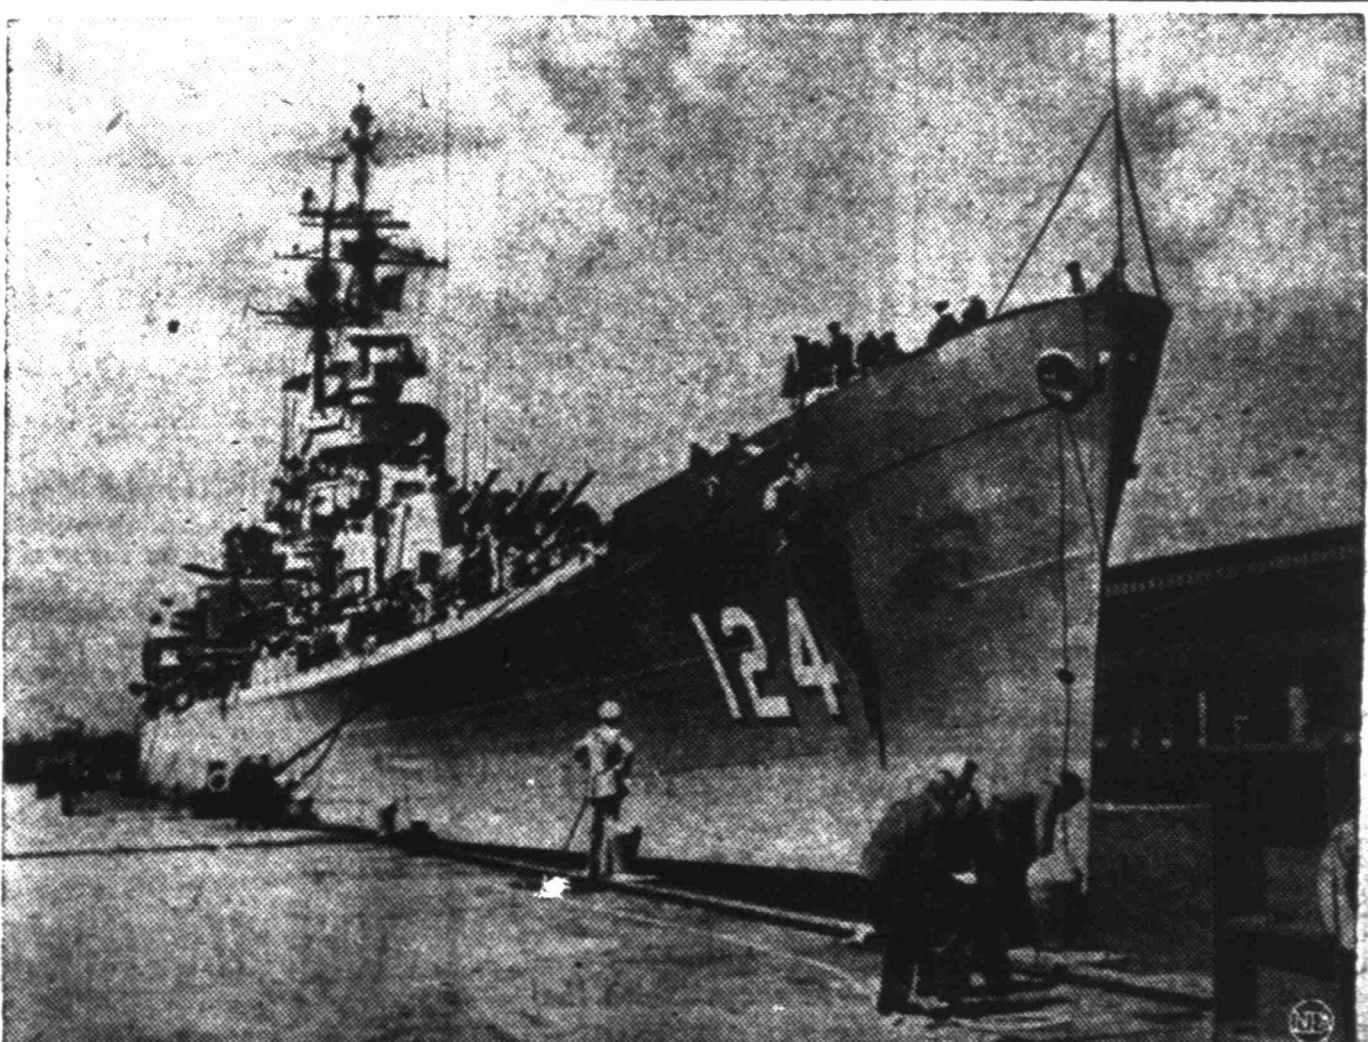

General Smith discussed the characteristics, capabilities and qualities of the pioneers who conquered the vast west in other years, comparing them with today's jet fighter pilots.

"The last frontier has not passed and the jet fighter pilot, when he takes off the ground on a mission, finds himself in a completely new world—across a new frontier," the Dallas man said.

Radar also offers another new frontier and plays a tremendous role in the jet fighter pilot's activities, he stated. He also discussed other mechanical aids and said that modern air transportation and affiliated interests, all are across a new frontier.

General Smith is in Midland on his annual inspection tour of cities along Pioneer Air Lines' 2,200-mile system. He arrived here late Tuesday and was to depart Wednesday afternoon.

He was accompanied to Midland by Harding L. Lawrence of Dallas, vice president of sales for Pioneer. Lawrence, Dave Clark, district sales manager, and O. H. Morgan, station agent here, were introduced at the Lions meeting.

'Good Dates' Don't Always Become The Best Husband

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

Three 17-year-olds enclosed in a recent letter to me a list of qual-ities which they believe make a good date. In the order in which they wrote them down, they are: Tall, good-looking, good dancer, self-as-sured, knows how to have a good time.

That is, perhaps, fairly typical of what a girl of 17 considers a "good date."

The only trouble is, a lot of girls—particularly those who marry young—confuse these qualities as the important ones in a good husband.

But the best husbands often don't come from the list of boys who are considered the best dates.

The best husbands are just as likely, if not more likely, to come from the ranks of the "not good-looking but terribly smart," or "ter-ribly shy but nice when you get to know him," or "kind of funny-look-ing and a terrible dancer—but a wonderful sense of humor," and many other such categories into which marriage-minded girls pi-geon-hole the young men they meet.

Other Qualities Needed

Not that there's anything wrong with a young man's being tall, good-looking, a good dancer, and self-assured. But if those are his main assets, he is better date-ma-terial than husband-material.

Once a girl marries she is more interested in a man's disposition than in his looks, more concerned with his brains and ability than with his self-assurance, more im-pressed with the qualities that make him a good companion at home than with those which make him the life of the party when they go out.

Not only girls, however, make the frequent mistake of confusing the qualities that make a good date with those that make a good mate. Young men often do it, too, and then can't understand why a glamor girl doesn't necessarily turn into the kind of wife a young man needs.

Brutal Slave Labor

How fare the Russian satellite countries behind the Iron Curtain? We don't hear much about them, of course; that's the way the Russians want it. But reports filtering westward suggest things aren't too bright.

One foreign correspondent in Vienna pins the label "economic failure" on the Soviet Union's effort to communize the nations of Eastern Europe. He says accumulating evidence indicates that both farm and industrial output are lagging badly.

Knowing what we do about the smothering effects of communism on peoples used to some freedom, we in America can't show much surprise at such reports. But it's useful to note how Russia's pawns in these countries propose to cope with their developing crisis.

Will they simply call for greater and greater effort to reach the noble goals of the collectivized life? Not on your life. What they're looking for are scapegoats, somebody to blame for the failures so far.

The Communist system may be at fault, but no one dares hint at that. The fiction must be maintained that the system is perfect; only human beings and human performance are imperfect. Hence the need to seize upon some poor unfortunates to saddle with responsibility for production shortcomings.

Coercion is the prime mover in the Communist world. If once-free satellites don't seem to take it too well, is the answer to ease up? On the contrary, the cure seems to be more coercion, not less.

The compulsions of communism are inbreeding. The system's inherent weaknesses soon crop out wherever it is applied. The force that produces them is then used to stamp them out; the result is that they are merely compounded.

In the end, the only avenue left is that final, brutal compulsion: slave labor. Russia already has it, by the millions. The satellites now are reported to be moving that way. There's talk of using prison labor as a starter. But in Communist lands term like that are highly elastic. Who knows what may be considered "prison labor" a year or two hence? Countless political undesirables are easy prey in any economy founded on serfdom.

No one in the free world is fooled by the noble face the Reds seek to put on all this evil trickery. The wonder is that they can look in their own mirrors without gawking at their phony images. Probably only a humorless gang like the Communists could keep from laughing.

Sad Commentary

There's a grim note in pictures from Western Germany showing new concrete roads being built in a fashion that will aid their speedy destruction in event of war.

All along the pavements on either side a series of holes have been drilled and covered with concrete caps. In an emergency, a retreating force needs only to drop explosive charges into the holes and fall back. Saves a lot of digging, and a lot of time.

Probably the next step: bridges and tunnels complete with TNT and fuse systems, needing only the touch of a detonator to set them off.

Hardly an expression of confidence in the future peace of Europe, is it?

Country Above Politics

Gov. Frank Lausche, a maverick Ohio Democrat, indicates he might vote for Republican Senator Robert Taft next Fall if he thinks the country's interest dictates it.

Lausche plainly has in mind Taft's highly productive career in the Senate, where he has been a leader from the moment he took office. It hardly would be accurate to say Taft never has lapsed into political opportunism; but his record of service conscientiously given is nevertheless almost unmatched.

Opposing him Lausche sees Joseph Ferguson, "fearless state auditor," father of eight, and mangle of the English language. The governor is finding it difficult right now to believe the amiable Mr. Ferguson could be of equal value to his country as a member of the Senate.

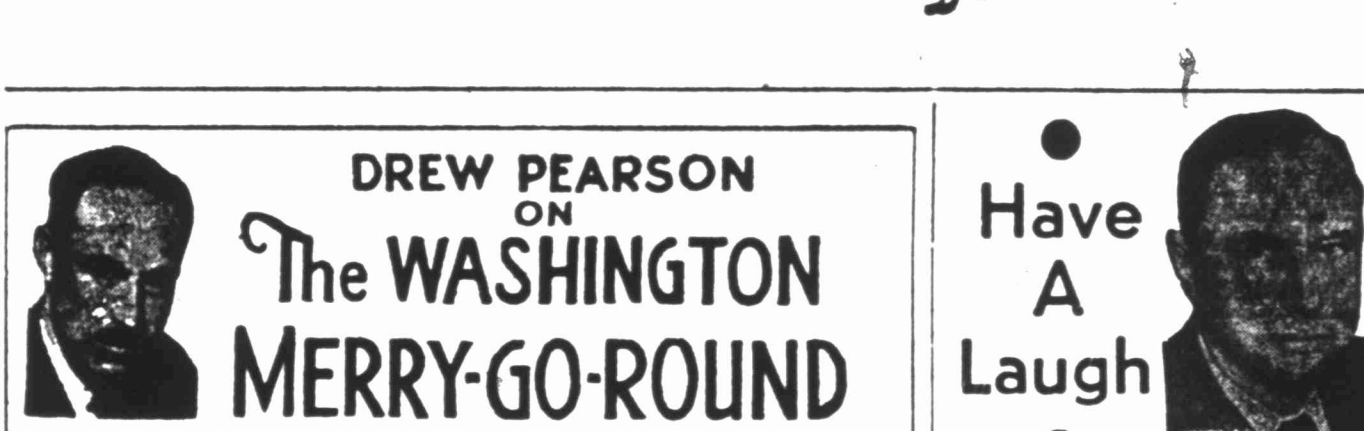

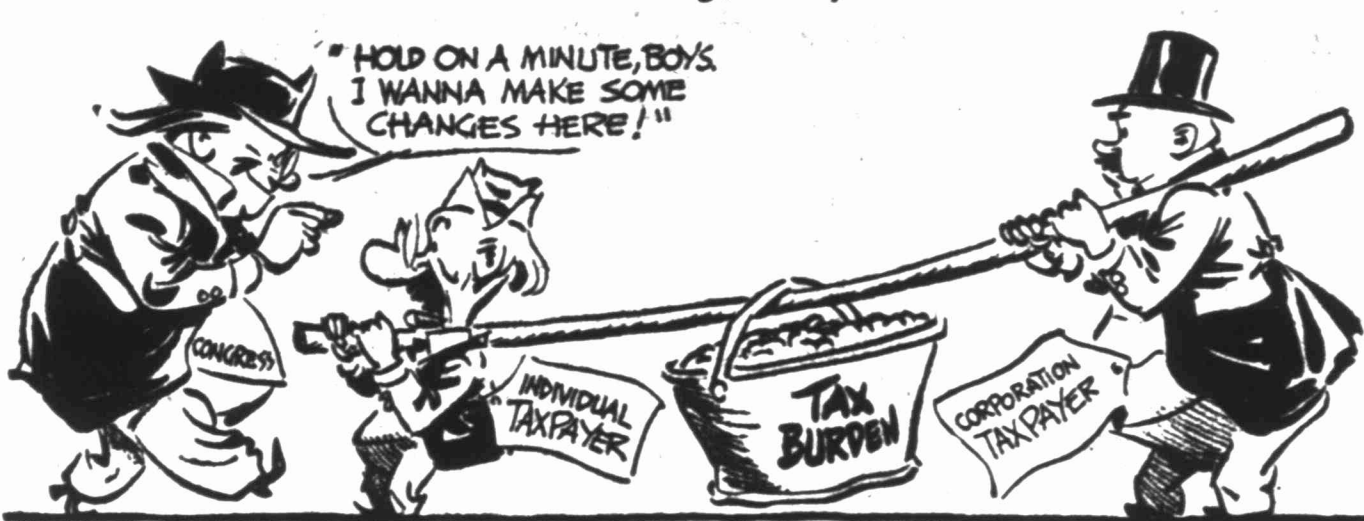

But even if Lausche votes for Taft, that doesn't mean the senator is in. In political parlance, Ferguson is a "sleeper." Powerful forces will back him, including labor's full weight. And the voters who go to the polls in November won't be measuring his scholarship.

A seven-ton stone crusher stolen from a Michigan gravel pit is enough to make the deed weigh heavily on somebody's conscience.

It's The Same Thing, Only Different

DREW PEARSON ON The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

(Copyright, 1950, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)
Drew Pearson says: Has America lost its pioneering spirit? How would our past heroes handle this age of fear? America must look in terms of one world.

OSKALOOSA, IOWA. — I have been visiting out here in the Middle West away from the bureaucrats, the McCarthys and the wire tappers, where I had the honor of helping dedicate the great lighting system which illuminates the granite faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt on Mount Rushmore.

Thinking about these heroes and what they would have done in this present age of fear, I couldn't help wondering whether we today are exercising all the pioneering resourcefulness which they showed in founding this country.

I couldn't help thinking that maybe the present generation is too soft, too content to rely on modern inventions and mechanical miracles. What would we have done with a great wilderness to conquer? Would we have had the courage, the perseverance that they did?

Today we face the same kind of political wilderness behind the Iron Curtain and some of us seem content merely to worry about our personal problems while the world balances on a razor's edge between ruin and peace.

We have become great specialists in material things. We can build any weapon, a rocket plane carrying us to another planet. But we do not seem able to build permanent peace.

With casual cold-bloodedness we deal with the people abroad on a "how-cheap-can-we-buy-you" basis. We think we can purchase Europe or Asia with guns and airplanes, when all we are doing is buying the handshake counts more than the handshake, that the smile is worth more than silver.

One World
That we don't seem to realize, however, is since the scientists have made us neighbors to the rest of the world, we must begin thinking in terms of one world.

When George Washington went to New York for the first time, it took him 14 days from Mount Vernon. Now it takes one hour by plane, while in 14 days we can fly twice around the world. So the world today is one world in scientific fact, and we must begin to think of it as such in political fact.

I do not care whether we call it Federal World Union, or United World Federalists, or a World Constitution. But I am sure that if Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln were alive today, they would throw their great pioneering spirit into working for new goals.

When they first wrote our Constitution, the skeptics told them that a federal union was impossible. The colonies were miles apart, not only in distance, but in language, in customs, and in creeds. All they had was a common need for survival.

But Washington and Jefferson overcame those obstacles to form a federal constitution which has become the greatest in the world.

Five years ago when I went to San Francisco to watch the diplomats form the United Nations, we thought we were taking a great step forward. But at that time, we did not know about the atomic bomb. And today, the United Nations, bogged down by vetoes, paralyzed in this age of fear, is just as out of date as the cavalry and infantry of Washington's Army.

The present generation has one great thing in common with the founding fathers—an urgent need for survival. And just as they fought to establish American democracy, we have got to fight to establish a world democracy—world brotherhood.

Actually we are battling against an idea—the phony idea of communism. But Teddy Roosevelt would be ashamed of the fight we are making. We, in many areas, are letting Russia win the battle of creeds, without even giving our own creed a good display in a big show window. We are supposed to be the world's best salesmen. We've sold iceboxes to Eskimos, sun lamps to Hotentots. Yet we, a nation of crack salesmen, partly have let the Communists outsell us.

No good salesman balks at selling in a competitor's territory. Yet for a long time we have balked at selling behind the Iron Curtain, and we still are doing only a halfhearted job of it.

But if we hold up the ideal of world brotherhood and sell it hard enough, we can penetrate the Iron Curtain. But it will take just as revolutionary a brand of salesmanship as that used by the founding fathers, including the goal of world government.

If we are realistic today, we face the discouraging fact that democracy is in danger of being lost by default.

Faced with this situation, I doubt if Washington or Jefferson would rely solely on arms and things material. They would put all their pioneering resourcefulness, which conquered the wilderness, repelled foreign invaders and amalgamated 13 widely-separated colonies into ending this war of ruin.

Jefferson probably would write a "Bill of Rights" for the world. Washington, despite his "Farewell Message," would begin to get behind the Iron Curtain with the ideas and ideas necessary to lasting peace. Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt would make a bold attempt to bring about a change, even if they risked failure. For each knew that it was possible to accomplish the impossible.

So we've got to revise our thinking and realize that Democracy was a great gift handed to us at a great price. We have got to work just as hard to preserve it as Washington or Jefferson worked to establish it. Washington sacrificed a life of luxury for an ideal; Jefferson and Lincoln welcomed revolutionary thinking. And if the physicists have made this one world in scientific fact, it is up to us to make it one world in political fact.

So They Say

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY

Nobody likes to hold absolutely worthless cards, but experienced bridge players know that careful play of even the worst cards will often pay dividends.

In today's hand, West's careful play of his miserable assortment of pasteboards directed his partner to the winning defense.

West opened the dummy of diamonds, dummy put up the king, and East won with the ace. East returned the queen of spades, and South won with the king.

Declarer's only chance to make his contract was to draw only two trumps, saving the ace of hearts in dummy. He would then start on his clubs, expecting to use the ace of trumps as the entry to the established clubs.

South therefore drew trumps with the king and queen of hearts and then led the ten of clubs.

West had carefully played the four and deuce of hearts in that order on the first two rounds of trumps. By this sequence, called the "trump echo," West had signaled his partner that he still had a third trump in his hand.

On the lead of the ten of clubs from the South hand, West played the eight of clubs. This play in clubs was the beginning of a signal that showed only two clubs.

East properly refused the first round of clubs but took the second round. He knew that his partner was out of clubs, but he realized also that a third round of clubs would be ruffed high by declarer. South would then be able to lead a trump to dummy and get discards on the remaining clubs.

West's signaling had, however, indicated the correct defense. East cashed the queen of diamonds and then led the jack of diamonds, forcing dummy to ruff with the ace of hearts.

Since South had a losing spade in his hand, he had to risk a third round of clubs to discard the low spade. West ruffed, of course, thus taking the setting trick. I wonder how many bridge players would do as well with West's miserable cards!

While we're admiring West for staying awake despite his worthless cards, let's not forget to give East credit for fine defense. It's true that West signaled expertly—but that would have been useless if East had ignored or misunderstood the signals.

At last year's Colorado meeting of the annual, Bailey pulled out the position of the Florida manufacturers on the Pepper candidacy for reelection. In general, they felt that if Pepper were reelected manufacturing in Florida "would be done for."

Pepper's defeat therefore was considered a first order of business. Executives of the other state manufacturers' associations gave their experiences in political campaigns. And the campaign for Pepper's defeat was mapped out.

According to Conde, when Bailey returned to Florida, his staff was turned loose on this campaign. Experienced politicians were put to work. The headquarters of Associated Industries of Florida was turned over to politics. And the Smathers machine was operated—most successfully, it must be admitted—by the Associated Industries.

THE STORY: Ben Corbett, special investigator for state police, says General Keever has received $1000 in just $1000 installments from a maker sure. Before he can decide just how to tell the story about it, Keever receives an anonymous phone call telling him someone on his staff has accepted a large bribe. Keever calls Corbett into his office.

III
KEEVER had caught something in my expression that had almost given me away when he mentioned "large bribe." "This thing is a shock to me. Doesn't it shock you, boss?" I said, trying to pass it off.

"Naturally. I was quite stunned. My first inclination was to regard the call as a crank call, but the girl insisted that it was all too true. She knew positively that one of my men, a man in a key position and whom I trusted completely, had accepted bribes totaling $4000. The money had been paid in four installments of $1000 each. I demanded to know who the man was, and she said she didn't know. But she did claim to know that the money was still on him and that a shake-down would turn him up."

I drew a deep breath. "Going to frisk everybody, boss?"

Keever frowned. "I can't do that, Ben. The kids who do the leg work would probably have to like it, but they would hardly be likely suspects. This girl said the culprit was a man in a key position. There are about a dozen such men in the state who are subjecting them to such a humiliation. Paul Waring, my first assistant, for example. If I even suggested such a thing to him, he would turn in his resignation instantly. And there's Bill Atkins, the second assistant. He's a fine lawyer who left a profitable practice to come with me."

It was true. Both Waring and Atkins were highly successful lawyers with personal fortunes so large that they could afford to leave private practice for the experience in the A. G.'s office. It was tacitly understood that when Keever ran for governor, Waring would seek the attorney general post, each man giving the other mutual political support. If anything gave Keever nightmares, it was the idea of alienating a politically ally.

"Well, boss, what do you intend to do about it?"

"I'm going to handle it tactfully, Ben. I want you to make a thorough investigation of every man in my office. Find out if anyone would have an opportunity to demand a bribe, and—"

"Just a minute, boss. You know as well as I do, that checking a dozen men in key positions may be a life-time job."

"Don't begin your alibi now, Ben. I was action. Quick! If somebody gets wind of bribery in my office, Governor Patterson, for example, I'd be ruined once and for all."

It was true—Governor Patterson well knew of Keever's intention to oppose him in the next election. Patterson himself had high designs.

"Don't you think, though, boss that you're giving quite a lot of weight to an anonymous phone call? After all, it might have been one of Patterson's female stooges trying to get your goat."

Keever frowned and shook his head. "I don't think so, Ben. This girl insisted that I frisk my men, claiming I'd find those four $1000 bills. She seemed to know."

I sighed. "Let me hear the call, boss."

We went to his elegant private office. Every call received on his phone was automatically recorded. He snapped a switch, and the anonymous call was played back through a speaker. I listened intently.

"Yes, it does sound like the McCoy, boss. It'll be too big a job

Action By Manufacturers Held To Be Cause Of Pepper Defeat

By PETER EDSON
NEA Service Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — A claim that the recent Florida primary election defeat of Democratic Senator Claude Pepper was engineered by Florida manufacturers is made here by Arthur C. Conde, executive vice president of the Indiana Manufacturers' Association. In this election the winner was Rep. George A. Smathers of Miami, to whom Conde says Associated Industries of Florida gave all-out support.

While it is only natural to wonder what an Indiana manufacturer knows about political conditions in Florida, Conde's claims present a story that hangs together. This story is somewhat in conflict with previous political dope.

During the campaign there were various loose charges by Senator Pepper's supporters and unnamed "big northern manufacturing interests" who "spent their winters in Florida" were financing and backing Representative Smathers. These charges were denied by the Smathers campaign managers.

Experienced Washington political reporters who visited Florida during the campaign also said they could find no direct evidence of this big northern money. And after the election the general interpretation given was that the Smathers victory was merely an indication that the Florida voters had turned away from the New Deal-Fair Deal philosophy of Senator Pepper.

According to Conde's account, the story is by no means so simple. It begins last year at a meeting of the National Industrial Council at a Colorado resort. Conde says the general strategy of the pro-Smathers and anti-Pepper campaign was planned at this meeting.

Council Operates Quietly
First, a little explanation of National Industrial Council is necessary to understand the background. It is a little-known organization made up of the managers of 38 state manufacturers' associations. Ten states which are largely agricultural and manufacturers' organizations are not represented.

All of the 38 state organizations are, of course, members of the NAM—the National Association of Manufacturers. The National Industrial Council, however, has no vote in NAM. The council is rather the trade association of the secretaries or active managers—not the presidents—of the state associations.

National Industrial Council meets frequently in Washington and New York so that the managers of the state manufacturers' associations can exchange experiences. These meetings are never publicized. In fact, the entire operation of the council is kept as much in the quiet as possible.

Indiana representative on the National Industrial Council is Conde. Florida's representative is Ted Bailey, the chief operating executive of Associated Industries of Florida.

At last year's Colorado meeting of the council, Bailey pulled out the position of the Florida manufacturers on the Pepper candidacy for reelection. In general, they felt that if Pepper were reelected manufacturing in Florida "would be done for."

Pepper's defeat therefore was considered a first order of business. Executives of the other state manufacturers' associations gave their experiences in political campaigns. And the campaign for Pepper's defeat was mapped out.

According to Conde, when Bailey returned to Florida, his staff was turned loose on this campaign. Experienced politicians were put to work. The headquarters of Associated Industries of Florida was turned over to politics. And the Smathers machine was operated—most successfully, it must be admitted—by the Associated Industries.

'Appreciation Night' Gifts Brought Home By Warren Sliter

Armloads of gifts, brought from Sweetwater, were opened Tuesday morning by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Sliter. Sliter, a player on the Sweetwater Swatters baseball team, received them Friday night, when fans and merchants in Sweetwater held an "Appreciation Night" for him.

After the fifth inning of a game with Ballinger, a large truck brought the gifts onto the field. They were presented by Ida Walker, Sweetwater's "Miss Baseball." The majority were for a pink and blue shower although Mr. and Mrs. Sliter received some things for themselves.

The player brought his wife the gifts, all unopened, Tuesday morning, when they had their own private party.

Methodist Women Plan Conference School In Lubbock

The Northwest Texas Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church is planning its first conference-wide School of Missions to be held at Texas Technological College at Lubbock July 31 through August 4.

The purpose of the school is to bring to the women of the conference information concerning the total program of the society for the year. Clinics will be held each day under the direction of the corresponding conference officer in the following lines of work: president, secretary of missionary education and service, Christian social relations, missionary personnel, literature and publications, spiritual life, student work, and Wesleyan Service Guild.

Mrs. W. T. Whigham, conference secretary of missionary education, has been elected as Dean of the School. Other members of the school committee are the following conference officers: committee chairman, Mrs. M. B. Hillman, Lubbock; vice chairman, Mrs. U. D. Crosby, Lubbock; registrar, Mrs. C. C. Coffey, Lubbock; secretary, Mrs. Sam B. Cook, Pampa; treasurer, Mrs. Paige Collier, Spur; literature chairman, Mrs. J. R. Moore, Amarillo; devotional chairman, Mrs. J. E. Peters, Post; music chairman, Mrs. George Robertson, Childress; and librarian, Mrs. George Turnley, Amarillo.

Special emphasis is being placed on the courses of study to be presented during the year and each member of the school will be allowed to take one study and receive credit on it during the two fifty-minute periods of class instruction offered each day. The studies and the persons who will direct them are as follows: "The Near East," Dorothy McConnell of New York, editor of World Outlook and Charles Halland of Lubbock, a national missionary from Japan; "Cooperation for Christian Community," Estelle McIntosh of Clyde, a deaconess in rural work in Arkansas and Mrs. J. R. Davis of Amarillo, formerly a teacher in Panama public schools; "Corporate Worship," Mrs. C. A. Bickley of Lubbock, jurisdiction secretary of spiritual life and Lucile Hester of Big Spring, director of Christian education; "A Christian's Vocation," Mrs. G. W. Dameron of Pinedale, jurisdiction secretary of missionary education and Mrs. Cecil Matthews of Lubbock, Wesley Foundation counselor, Texas Tech.

Workshops on "Work of the Woman's Society of Christian Service," "Enrichment Materials" and "Recruitment for Christian Vocation" will be held each day under the direction of Mrs. Dameron, Mrs. Whigham and Mrs. Luther Kirk, Perryton, conference secretary of missionary personnel.

Membership is open to any member of the Woman's Society or Wesleyan Service Guild but anyone desiring to attend is urged to register immediately by writing Mrs. C. C. Coffey, 3419 21st Street, Lubbock and sending the $3 enrollment fee. A few dormitory rooms are yet available and persons registering should indicate if they desire a reservation. Dormitory residence is not required for attendance at the school but the payment of the enrollment fee is necessary for attending any of the classes, workshops or clinics.

Each society should send as many delegates as possible. Local and district officers are especially urged to attend.

Far East Military Action May Stymie Hopes Of Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON.—(P)—America's military move against Communist aggression in the Far East has raised doubt that there will be any tax reduction this year.

Senate Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois said, however, that the fate of the bill to cut excise taxes a billion dollars, now being debated in the House, "depends upon developments."

"We must stand by and wait," he said. "There is no indication now that more money will be needed for the military."

One influential Democrat told reporters that if the development at Korea and Formosa "means war, we will have a tax increase in 30 days—not a decrease." However, he said the House is likely to pass the excise reduction bill and then "the Senate can stop it," if world developments warrant.

Republicans Attack Bill
The tax debate opened Tuesday with Representative Doughton of North Carolina, 87-year-old Democratic tax legislation manager, telling the House it had better accept a boost in levies on big corporations — into a presidential veto.

Republicans attacked the bill as a "hoax" and a "phony" tax reduction that merely proposes to take taxes out of the left pocket of the taxpayer's pants instead of the right pocket.

Republicans sought to split the bill into halves, with separate votes on one bill to cut excise taxes and another embracing the corporate tax boost and loophole plugging features of the one-package measure now being considered.

All East Germans Vote Affirmative

BERLIN.—(P)—Everybody votes "Yes" in East Germany's parliament. A "No" or abstention has never been recorded since the Volkskammer (People's Chamber) proclaimed itself the supreme law-making body of the German Democratic Republic in October, 1949.

In 12 regular sessions, the Volkskammer has harmoniously discussed 27 laws, three resolutions — and passed them all unanimously. Non-Communists among the 330 deputies, who meet in Hermann Goerring's former Luftwaffe Ministry in East Berlin, might have spoiled the record if there were a secret ballot. But the Volkskammer acts by show of hands.

In Communist-ruled East Germany, the government claims to represent only the true national interests of the people. Thus, open opposition could be branded as high treason.

Midland Washateria Observe Long Holiday

Four Midland washateria will observe a long Fourth of July holiday by closing Monday and Tuesday, a spokesman for the group said Wednesday.

The firms are Ruple's Modern Washateria, Wall's Laundry, Powell's Laundry and Midland Washateria.

Ark Ruple, speaking for the four laundries, said that since the Fourth of July falls on Tuesday, most residents also will observe Monday as a holiday and will not be interested in washateria services. He said the firms will be open bright and early as usual Wednesday morning.

Britain Offers Use Of 10 Warships For Korean 'Mercy Work'

LONDON.—(P)—An official source reported Wednesday that Britain has offered the United States 10 warships for "mercy work" in connection with the Korean operations.

The informant did not make clear exactly what was meant by mercy work. Presumably the phrase would cover operations connected with evacuation of British, American and nationals of other friendly countries from South Korea.

General MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said about 1,900 persons, including Americans and foreign nationals, were scheduled to be evacuated from Korea. It was estimated 2,000 Americans were in Korea when the fighting started Sunday but many U. S. military personnel are remaining to maintain contact with the South Korean army.

Attlee Draws Cheers
U. S. transport planes already have established a major airlift operation which by Tuesday night was scheduled to have removed more than 500 persons from Korea. Another 800 were reported on their way out by ship.

The informant said Britain for the moment is trying to confine her participation in the Korean situation to a non-combatant role. The use of British warships for humanitarian work around Korea, it was explained, would release American Naval units for other operations.

Prime Minister Attlee drew cheers in the House of Commons Tuesday with his announcement that Britain in the Security Council would support the U. S. military action in South Korea's behalf.

Attlee told Commons that North Korea has committed a "marked aggression and must be checked." The "salvation of all," he declared, "is dependent upon prompt and effective measures to arrest aggression wherever it occurs."

Stock Market Gains Stall Before Noon

NEW YORK.—(P)—A fast opening advance soon stalled in the stock market Wednesday.

Gains running to $3 a share were scored a few minutes after the opening bell sounded. Before midday they were shaved to fractional rises for the most part.

The market then held at a slightly higher level in quiet trading.

Opening demand was so intense that for about 12 minutes the high-speed ticker tape lagged in reporting dealings on the floor.

47,000 Scouts Due To Attend Jamboree

VALLEY FORGE, PA. —(P)—The nation's newest and fastest-growing city—officially dubbed "Jamboree 1960"—shot up like a jet-powered beanstalk Wednesday.

It's only a tent town, to be sure—a soon-to-be-torn-down boomtown along the silty Schuylkill River.

But practically any of the 30,000-plus Boy Scouts and leaders who will be in residence by Wednesday night would trade you New York, Philadelphia and a dozen other metropolises for a single section of the 625-acre tract that houses their Second National Jamboree.

By Friday, official opening day, some 47,000 will be on hand—about five times the number of the frost-bitten soldiers that stood by Gen. George Washington in these same rolling hills in the hard winter of 1777-78.

It's by no means Wintry as the Scouts arrive 173 years later. A merciless sun has driven the temperatures into the nineties. Sunburn reddens the cheeks of the Scouts and scorches the heads of some of their leaders.

But they fall to with a will at the task of getting everything shipshape by opening day—when President Truman, if the world situation permits, will come here from Washington to address the jamboree as honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America.

Trained in self-reliance, the Scouts do their own cooking and under adult supervision—run their own show.

VALLEY FORGE, PA.—Officials in charge of planning the Boy Scouts second national jamboree opening Friday are leaving nothing to chance.

Among the supplies arriving at the camp site Tuesday—70 gallons of poison ivy lotion.

The menu is standard for all troops each day. It's been tested and pronounced filling by the Mendham, N. J., troop, which also—by invitation of national authorities—passed on the charcoal that is being used for fires.

There should be enough to eat, judging from the food being trucked from nearby cities: 40,000 eggs, 409,000 quarts of milk, 5,000 gallons of ice cream, two freight cars full of breakfast cereal—these quantities are only samples.

And just in case a Scout gets hungry between meals there are a number of 80-foot snack bars featuring—guessed it—ice cream, soft drinks, frankfurters and hamburgers.

Besides Scouts from all 48 states and the U. S. territories, there will be 385 Scouts and leaders from 18 foreign countries and a troop representing the United Nations as a whole. This troop is made up of the sons of UN staff members.

The Japanese flag will fly over Valley Forge when the Boy Scouts of Japan are admitted to membership in the International Bureau of Boy Scouts on Friday. Jamboree officials said they believed it would be the first official display of the Rising Sun in U. S. territory since Pearl Harbor.

Nominee To Start New Drive Thursday
INDIANAPOLIS —(P)—Alex M. Campbell, who won the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator Tuesday, took it easy Wednesday. But Thursday he wades into another campaign.

The 43-year-old Fort Wayne lawyer plans to give two talks at Terre Haute Thursday as the opener in his drive to unseat U. S. Senator Homer E. Capehart in the November election.

Campbell swept to an easy first-ballot victory in a three-way contest for the nomination for senator at the Democratic State Convention. Campbell, who resigned as assistant U. S. Attorney General to wage his campaign, carried every district but the eleventh in piling up 1,453 votes.

Student Faces Life In Prison For Killing Sweetheart

HOPKINSVILLE, KY. —(P)—Franklin Thomas Slay, 23-year-old former college student, Wednesday faced a life term in prison for the murder of his 18-year-old sweetheart, an expectant mother.

A Christian Circuit Court jury deliberated an hour and 50 minutes Tuesday before convicting Slay of the murder of Mary Ellen Haimon and fixing his punishment at a life imprisonment.

Jeff Harmon of Evansville, Ind., father of the slain girl, was quoted by a newspaper reporter. "I wanted to see him burned. This is a miscarriage of justice."

The count announced formal sentencing of Slay will come later this week, probably on Friday.

Slay was accused of killing the girl with a hammer and then dumping her body in a sinkhole near here last December. State witnesses testified he had claimed, when arrested, there was a death pact between him and the girl but he lost his nerve.

Health Council Sets Statewide Survey

DALLAS —(P)—Jerome K. Crossman, president of the Texas Health Council, has announced a statewide survey of available doctors, nurses, hospitals and clinics.

He said a state advisory board of the council would be named from Texas medical, dental and health societies.

Tax Deadline Brings Drop In Oleo Prices

DALLAS —(P)—Retail prices of colored oleomargarine fell about 10 cents a pound here Tuesday, four days short of the end of the 10-cent federal tax on oleo.

The price in three major chains ranged from 29 to 32 cents per pound. Previously it had been 39 to 42 cents.

Tidelands Action Expected July 12-14

WASHINGTON —(P)—Rep. J. M. Combs of Beaumont said the bill to give the states ownership of lands beneath the marginal seas probably will come up for action in the House around July 12 or 14.

Combs said Tuesday his guess was made after he had talked with House leaders about the Tidelands measure.

Rom. 7:15-24.

CONSCIOUS AND SUBCONSCIOUS MINDS AT WAR

What I have been talking about concerning divided loyalties most Christians feel even after being converted. That this experience called conversion brings a great amount of unity into life is obvious. The life forces are gathered up around a single loyalty to Christ. Life has a new center around which to revolve. But all the life forces and affections are not gathered up around Christ. There are some that do not bend the knee and accept this new allegiance.

This residue of recalcitrancy is variously named. Some call it "original sin," others "remains of depravity," "the old man," "another law working in my members." Psychology would probably explain it as "the driving urges in the subconscious mind." These three driving urges—self, sex and the herd—have a long racial history and are strong and clamorous. They are used to having their way—they have had their way for a long time. And now into the conscious mind is introduced and built up through conversion a new loyalty—loyalty to Christ and His Kingdom. Intelligence, feeling, and will bend the knee to Him. But down underneath in the subconscious mind are subjects which are subdued, but not surrendered. They drive for their fulfillment apart from these new loyalties. They obey, but moodily. They now and then go on a rampage to break into freedom from this new overlord. Sometimes they are just sullen, but more often there is a definite tension. There is a sense of inner strain. The soul is not relaxed and at ease with itself. Religion is not the natural expression of the whole being, but the forced will of a portion of it. Duty, rather than spontaneity, is the key word. The soul, instead of being poised, is pursued—so pursued, sometimes, that, like the wild duck in the hunting season, it can't rest to feed. Religion is not release; it is tension, a dingsong, seesaw battle.

The subconscious mind has not been converted. It is at war with the conscious mind. O God, my gracious Father, is this the best that Thou canst do? Is religion to bring me no more than tensions and conflicts? Can I not be released and poised and spontaneous? I cannot bear within my bosom this constant conflict. Bid it cease and bid me free. In Jesus' name. Amen.

The Mature Parent: 8—Parents Should Prepare Their Children To Face Realities

By HAROLD E. STRONG
Written for NEA Service

The prime function of parental love is to prepare children to understand and deal with the realities of the world they live in.

One big reality of that world is that suffering is a consequence of wrongdoing.

If we love our youngsters, we will help them learn this fact as soon as possible. The more we love, the more careful we will be that our children pay the small penalty for the small misdeed. That is how we will teach them to avoid the big penalties for the big misdeeds.

We do our young people a grave injustice when from a misguided sense of affection we try to box them away from hurt and disappointment in an unreal world of perpetual happiness and joy.

Suffering for wrong—doing is as essential to our children's growth as gaining for right-doing.

We will not impair our child's "emotional security" when we see to it that he loses by doing what he should not do.

Perhaps no generation has been so intent on achieving one form or another of "security" as our own. While it is wise to provide as well as we can against the hazards of life, our desire for "security" should not be allowed to develop into morbid and unwholesome dread of suffering or deprivation.

In desiring "emotional security" for our youngsters, we should be sure that it is not protection against life itself that we desire for them. Otherwise, we may make the serious mistake of trying to insulate them against the very experiences that will prove to them their own resources for overcoming their problems.

Your child's emotional security is in direct ratio to the number of times he is able to do the right thing. There is nothing mysterious about it. Your contribution to his security is your confidence in his ability to do it.

Tomorrow: A "nagging parent" is passing the buck to his child.

Designed to acquaint private flyers and the non-flying public with facilities and methods used by the CAA and air terminals in keeping track of both commercial and private aircraft on cross country and trans-ocean flights, the meeting will be open to the public. There will be no admission charge.

H. J. Townsend and P. F. Lamm, airway operations specialists from the Fort Worth CAA regional office, will conduct the operation. They will discuss and demonstrate radio and navigation equipment now used by the CAA. They also will simulate an actual flight, using authentic equipment. A flight board will be set up on the stage.

J. R. Shadden, member of the Midland CAA staff, is in charge of the program. The demonstration here will be similar to those which have been performed in Wichita Falls, Fort Worth, Dallas, Big Spring and other points.

U.S. Base—

of me when he pulled right underneath me."

That certainly sounded like 1942-45.

There are odd features also. There are Japanese guards around buildings cobbled with radar and other mysterious looking apparatus.

Pilots step from ready rooms into latest model automobiles. Those cars should be jeeps or weapon carriers or trucks to make the war picture complete.

At the base clubs, bare-shouldered women eat quietly with husbands who a few hours earlier rode fighters through Korean skies, their fingers on machine gun triggers.

But the sedans and the Japanese guards and the women don't offset those scorched gunports or movies showing American pilots shooting down Communist airplanes or films talking about painting red stars on the fuselages of their planes.

Dr. Waters Memorial Fund Is Established

Plans for the establishing of a Dr. William I. Waters Memorial Fund for the Midland Memorial Hospital were completed Wednesday and a committee was named to administer the account.

Mrs. John C. Stille, 2111 West Kentucky Street, has been authorized by the committee to accept and acknowledge all gifts to the fund in memory of Dr. Waters, who was to have been the chief of the surgical division of the new hospital.

He had worked closely with hospital officials in setting up the facility. Information concerning the memorial fund may be obtained from Mrs. Stille. Her telephone number is 1029-M.

Mrs. William I. Waters authorized the establishing of the fund in memory of her husband, who was killed in an automobile mishap between Garden City and Sterling City late Monday.

Oil And Gas Log—

treated with 2,000 gallons of regular acid.
Gas-oil ratio on the potential was 394-1. Tubing pressure was 100 pounds.
This new discovery is bottomed at 6,880 feet. Five and one-half-inch casing is set on bottom.
It is six miles northwest of the Cogdell-Canyon pool and 1,980 feet from south-east lines of section 3, block 4, H&N survey.

Plymouth Schedules Starming Prospector

Plymouth Oil Company is to begin operations at once on its No. 1 TXL, to be a San Antonio wildcat in Central-West Sterling County.
The proposed venture will be 660 feet from north and west lines of section 1, block 31, T-5-S, T&P survey. It will be 15 miles west of Sterling City.
Projected depth is 2,500 feet. It will be a cable tool operation.

DST In SE Borden Recovers No Shows

The Vickers Petroleum Company, Inc., and Norwood Drilling Company No. 1 Canning, Southeast Borden County wildcat, four miles west of the Voss-Roeder-Canyon field, ran a one-hour drillstem test in a lower Permian lime at 4,577-4,660 feet.
Recovery was 30 feet of slightly oil cut drilling mud. There were no signs of gas or of formation water.
The prospector is making hole below 4,695 feet in the top of the Spraberry sand.
Location is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 142, block 25, H&N survey. The venture is projected to 7,500 feet to test the Canyon lime of the Pennsylvanian.

NE Runnels To Get 4,500-Foot Tester

C. B. Cree has staked a 4,500-foot wildcat in Northeast Runnels County, 10 miles east of Winters.
Cree No. 1 O. C. Sykes is to be 330 feet from south and east lines of Sykes' 40-acre lease in H. Lewis survey.
Stated depth should test all formations down to and including the Ellenburger in that area. Drill site is three miles north of the abandoned Crews-Strawn pool.

Oil Yield Decreases On Sutton Prospect

Producing capacity of the J. K. Davis and others of Casper Wyoming No. 1 Mrs. W. Faulkner, prospective Pennsylvanian lime discovery in Central East Sutton County, has decreased considerably.

After an acid treatment of 4,000 gallons on the open hole pay zone at 2,904-2,922 feet, recovery of the swab in seven hours was 137 barrels of 30.8-gravity oil and no water.

After the seven-hour gauge, the well swabbed and headed, producing 12.5 barrels in 35 minutes, but subsequent swabbing in the next six hours recovered only six barrels of oil. Then in the next two hours, five barrels of oil were recovered on the swab.

The No. 1 Faulkner is 550 feet from north and 4,000 feet from east lines of section 75, block A, GWT&P survey. It is 30 miles east of Sonora and 22 1/2 miles west of Junction.

New Pay Completion Slated In Big Lake

Operator of the Stanolind Oil & Gas Company No. 1-BL University has decided to complete this Fusselman discovery on the Southeast edge of the Big Lake Oil field without deepening to the Ellenburger.

The No. 1-BL University is bottomed at 8,940 feet in Fusselman lime. In the top 37 feet of that formation, in large gas-distillate flow was developed, which indicated for the sixth pay zone in this oil field.

On a drillstem test 8,902-9,220, a distillate flow was estimated at 8,887-9,022 feet. Top of the Fusselman lime was picked at 8,887 feet. This gives the prospect approximately 37 feet of pay.

More indications of production were developed at 8,887-9,022 feet. Top of the Fusselman lime was picked at 8,887 feet. This gives the prospect approximately 37 feet of pay.

The No. 1-BL University is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 1, block 2, University survey.

Tex-Harvey Addition Files Potential Test

Harry B. Lake and others have completed their No. 2-9 Hugh Dixon in the Tex-Harvey-Spraberry pool in Central - East Midland County.

It potentialized, after being shot with 788 quarts of nitro glycerin, for 264 barrels of 37.4-gravity oil plus two per cent water in 24 hours. Flow was through a five-sixteenths inch choke. Gas-oil ratio was 570-1. Pay was topped at 7,069 feet, and total depth is 7,405 feet. Five and one-half inch casing is set at 7,100 feet.

This new producer is in the center of the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 9, block 37, T-3-S, T&P survey, and approximately 15 miles southeast of the city of Midland.

Aurora To Abandon SE Borden Wildcat

Aurora Gasoline Company No. 1 Engle, Southeast Borden County prospector, two and one-half miles northwest of the Reinecke-Canyon field, and 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 64, block 25, H&N survey, is to be plugged and abandoned on total depth of 7,313 feet in Pennsylvanian lime.

The venture topped the lime at 7,290 feet to give it a datum of minus 4,974 feet. It found the soft drilling in that lime at 7,304 feet. It went to total depth of 7,313 feet and ran a two-hour and five minute drillstem test at 7,294-7,313 feet. There was a weak blow of gas.

UN Makes Historic Call On Members To Use Force In Korea

LAKE SUCCESS —(AP)— The United Nations embarked upon an historic venture Wednesday by calling upon its members to use military force to back up a cease-fire order defied by Communist North Korea.

The decision was taken late Tuesday night by the Russian-boycotted Security Council, a few hours after President Truman announced the United States already was ordering planes and ships to support the invaded Republic of (South) Korea.

The vote was 7 to 1, the minimum number of affirmative votes required. India and Egypt abstained, recorded as not participating because they had not received instructions. Yugoslavia cast the negative vote.

The council's action was momentous in several ways.

1—It gave its stamp of approval to Truman's bold plan of direct action to stop Communist aggression. This was the first time in its history the council had authorized the military sanctions provided by the UN Charter.

2—It was a clear warning to Russia, although Russia was not mentioned in the U. S. resolution, that the UN would not permit the seizure of countries by force.

3—It may have made the Russians angry enough that they will decide to make permanent their boycott which they started last January 10 in protest over the presence of Chinese Nationalist delegates. The Russians have insisted they would not return until representatives of Red China are seated.

Apart from the council's action, there is another factor which may prolong the Chinese representation deadlock indefinitely. That is President Truman's new policy on Formosa.

This, plus the Korean Communist attack on South Korea, seemed to rule out any chance that the Chinese Reds would get a UN seat in the near future.

Activity 'Picks Up' At Recruiting Office

Business Wednesday began to pick up here at the U. S. Army and Air Force Recruiting Station in the wake of a presidential order of United States planes and ships into the Korean war theater.

Sgt. First Class Shelby Wheeler said he had several inquiries Wednesday afternoon concerning enlistment in the armed forces. Several reserve officers in the area were inquiring about the status of their commissions.

Wheeler said he had received no information from the Department of Army or the Air Force regarding current enlistments and reserve commissions other than routine dispatches.

Meanwhile, the Midland County Draft Board held a special meeting Tuesday afternoon to map plans for conducting the draft system under any emergency. Dr. J. O. Shannon, chairman of the board here, said no official word has been received regarding the draft.

Heat Kills Houston Man, Buckles Road Near Wichita Falls

The heat clamped down on Texas again Wednesday after killing a man in Houston Tuesday and buckling concrete pavement near Wichita Falls.

Jesse Hugh Bargainier, 46, was Houston's first heat fatality of 1950. Stricken while peddling produce from house to house, he was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Houston's 94 degrees downtown and 96 at the airport was the hottest of the year.

Several sections of concrete on U. S. Highway 287 west of Wichita Falls buckled Tuesday. Highway Department emergency crews were dispatched to repair the heavily traveled highway.

Wichita Falls also had its hottest day of the year, at 100. Presidio, as usual, was the state's hottest spot, at 107. Cotulla had 102 and El Paso, Laredo, Childress and Wink were in the 90's.

Some relief may come for scattered areas Wednesday night in the form of thundershowers. The showers were predicted for the extreme northeast part of East Texas and in the Panhandle.

Texas Confederate Veteran, 105, Dies

BUNA, TEXAS. —(AP)— Jeremiah P. O'Brien, one of Texas' four remaining Confederate veterans, died Tuesday night.

The 105-year-old veteran died here at 11 p.m.

O'Brien had made Kirbyville, Texas, his home for many years but had spent much time here.

The three surviving Texas Confederate veterans are Thomas E. Riddle of the Austin Confederate Home, J. H. Whitsett of Bonham and Walter W. Williams of Franklin.

O'Brien was born in Ireland. He arrived in New Orleans July 18, 1861, and immediately joined the Confederate Army. He said he was with Robert E. Lee when the Confederate general surrendered at Appomattox.

MAN IS LOCATED
Rip Fisher, reported missing Tuesday, has been located. He was working on another job instead of the one he was scheduled to take here, police said.

For a part of the period. Recovery was 700 feet of drilling mud cut with salt water and 6,100 feet of salt water, cut with gas and with oily mud.

The wildcat was extra low, geologically to the producers in the Reinecke field, and it did not find any shows of possible production in any zone it penetrated.

Military Action In Korea Sets Off FBI Security Alert Here

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Truman's order for direct military aid against Communist aggression in Korea has put in action long laid plans for tightening up security inside the United States.

Internal security is the FBI's job. As usual, it moved without talking. But it is safe to say that an alert went out from Director J. Edgar Hoover's office within minutes after the President's announcement Tuesday that air and naval support was moving in to help the South Korean.

The FBI has worked for five years on the details of procedure for meeting such an emergency as this, or a worse one.

Its chief objective is to forestall any major act of sabotage, particularly in basic industries.

Good Line On Subversives
The keystone of the plans is made up of documented data on persons, and groups, who might be threats to internal security.

The FBI believes it has a pretty good line on such subversive elements. The bureau's files are bulging with dossiers on those described by Director Hoover as "the enemies within, who, by their deeds demonstrate their future plans."

The alert involves additional surveillance, a redoubled watch in possible danger spots, and putting the bureau in a position to move quickly and effectively wherever the need may arise.

The FBI made 16,000 arrests of potentially dangerous persons after 1941's Pearl Harbor. It is a point of major pride in the bureau that enemy espionage was kept under control during World War II and that not a single successful act of enemy-directed sabotage occurred in the United States during the four years of the fighting.

Capital Falls—

invaders said from all appearances the capital was in Red hands.

Landing at a Southern Japan Air Base, the pilots, some of whose planes were shot up by Red ground force machine guns, said they saw heavy fighting but were unable to determine how the battle was going.

Maj. A. E. Shook of Clovis, N. M., one of several pilots who knocked out six Russian-made heavy tanks from the air in the first American raids on the invaders, pictured Seoul as in the hands of the Communists.

General MacArthur's headquarters announced two American planes were destroyed on the ground in South Korea strafing attacks by enemy fighters. Three others made emergency landings at Suwon.

The announcement made no mention of casualties but said one fighter returned to Japan damaged by gunfire.

The MacArthur announcement said "bombing and strafing raids were directed to targets strategically located within the invaded area."

Suwon was jammed with civilians running away from the Reds approaching from the north. Korean army leaders tried to whip their badly chewed troops into a defense line around Suwon.

Seoul was in panic as the Northern troops approached. Every road overflowed with fleeing people, lugging bundles of whatever they could gather.

The Southern troops, in their haste to slow up the Red advance, blew up bridges south of Seoul, cutting off many who would have escaped.

Three American correspondents, Burton Crane of the New York Times, Frank Gibney of Time Magazine and Keyes Beech of the Chicago Daily News, barely escaped with their lives when a bridge over the Han River was blown. Scores of dead and injured littered the bridge.

206 Bodies Counted After Syria Explosion

DAMASCUS, SYRIA. —(AP)— Rescue workers had uncovered 206 bodies Wednesday in wreckage from a fuel depot explosion near Homs, 100 miles north of Damascus.

A late count showed 382 persons injured in the blast Tuesday. Troops dispatched from Damascus were aiding in the rescue work.

Reliable sources said 16 houses had been destroyed by the explosion and material loss was "very heavy."

A fire which swept through the fuel depot reportedly caused the explosion.

An Arab news agency dispatch received in Cairo said the damage at Homs was estimated at the equivalent of $830,000.

The agency said fire broke out in a tank in the warehouse. While firemen were fighting the blaze, the warehouse exploded, killing all the firemen.

Adjournment Date To Stand, Senate Leader Lucas Says

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senate Democratic Leader Lucas, in an expression of confidence that the U. S. and Russia are not going to war, said Wednesday the goal of a July 31 adjournment of Congress still stands.

The Illinois senator talked over the situation with reporters, following general approval in Congress of President Truman's order for armed support of South Korea against invading Communists.

Most Republicans and virtually all Democrats made it clear they will support the President's bold move to stop communism's march in the far Pacific by drawing an anti-Communist defense line—even at the calculated risk of war.

Lucas refused to predict that there will be any call on Congress for an increase in armed forces expenditures. He said:

"I don't want to say that we will need more money for the armed forces. I don't want to be in the position of saying we are going to have war—I don't think we are."

He added the remark about congress closing on schedule, as a token of his confidence.

Korean War Stops In-Ai Yang's Trip To Home In Seoul

War in Korea will keep In-Ai Yang in the United States. The Korean nurse, who has been studying at Vanderbilt University for two years, visited in Midland last week. She is in San Francisco and was to sail Friday for her home in Seoul, Korea.

Friends here have been notified that on the advice of United States Representative Wright Patman, and Willie Walker of Texarkana, Mrs. Yang will not sail. Within a few days she will return to Texarkana, where she will work in a hospital until she can go home.

Miss Walker, governor of District 22, Altrusa Clubs, which she has sponsored Mrs. Yang's U. S. education, will make arrangements for her. As far as is known here, Mrs. Yang has received no word from her husband, son, or parents, all of whom live in Seoul. She has not seen them for two years.

Eisenhower, Hoover Endorse Far East Decision
NEW YORK —(AP)— Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in commenting on the Korean situation, said Wednesday:

"The best chance for sustaining world peace was to take a firm stand, and when our government guaranteed the government of South Korea, there was no recourse but to do what President Truman said and did."

Former President Herbert Hoover said the United States must have "unity of purpose and action" in the Korean situation.

"When the United States draws the sword, there is only one course for our people," he said. "Like others, I have opposed many of our foreign policies, but now is not the time to argue origins, mistakes, responsibilities or consequences. There is only one way out of such situations as this: That is to win. To win, we must have unity of purpose and action."

The Seventh's public information officer in Manila declined to say whether any ships of the fleet already had sailed for Formosan waters.

Bound For Formosa
Hong Kong reports said, however, three of four Seventh units there—the destroyers Moore and Maddock and the submarine Cabazon—sailed Tuesday. The destroyer Wantuck was reported the only Seventh fleet ship remaining.

Asked where they were bound, one high American authority in Hong Kong replied: "Read your morning papers, that should give you an idea." This indicated Formosa.

The fleet's primary base is Guam but Subic Bay and Sangley Point in the Philippines afford forward support facilities.

Vice Adm. Arthur D. Struble, commander of the Seventh, sped westward from Honolulu Tuesday by plane to rejoin his fleet of more than 20 ships. He had been in Washington for conferences when the Communist invasion of South Korea precipitated the Far Eastern crisis.

Patterned after the fast carrier task forces of the last war, his fleet includes, in addition to the Valley Forge, the heavy cruiser Rochester, the flagship; destroyers, destroyer escorts and submarines.

In New, Modern Building— Midland Federal Savings, Loan Association's Open House Slated Thursday

The Midland Federal Savings and Loan Association, which will hold open house Thursday in its new quarters at North Pecos and West Texas Streets, was organized in 1934. J. R. Martin, president of the organization; John P. Butler, and T. R. Wilson, vice presidents; D. H. Roetiger, I. E. Daniel and Addison Wadley, all are charter directors. Percy Bridgewater, secretary-treasurer, succeeded the late W. J. Sparks in 1949 to become the only director who hasn't been with the association since its beginning.

Harvard-Educated Pigeons Play Piano, Table Tennis

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—(AP)—Smart birds, these Harvard-educated pigeons. They're able to play a tune on a piano, play table tennis, tell time, push pushbuttons and understand changing colors—like traffic lights. The piano players can rattle off such simple tunes as "Over the Fence Is Out, Boys," and "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

And all the brains are not in the heads of fancy homing varieties. The common park pigeon is just as smart. B. F. Skinner, professor of psychology at Harvard, has drawn these conclusions after a series of experiments. The tests are designed to determine whether a child can be trained more effectively by encouraging good behavior or punishing bad actions.

Food Is Pay-off
How do you do it with pigeons? The professor explains that pigeons are ideal subjects because they have a reaction time comparable to humans. They are paid off with food if their responses to various tests bring the desired results. Dr. Skinner gets the piano players to drum up a tune by rewarding them if they peck the keys in certain sequences.

Simultaneous Action
In another experiment, the birds are placed on either side of a glass partition. A panel has three buttons on either side of the glass. To receive food, both pigeons must strike simultaneously certain matching buttons in separate cages. When they turn the trick, food pops out. Other birds have learned to peck signs labeled "yellow," "green," "blue" and "red," always picking the proper sign when a light of the same color is flashed on. That also brings a reward of grain.

Why Persons Do Not Have 'Animal' Worms

DAVIS, CALIF.—(P)—Only about 25 of the 250 kinds of worms that infest domestic animals have been found in people, reports Dr. James R. Douglas of the College of Agriculture here. Four of the 25 can be considered normal human parasites, he says.

There are two reasons why so few animal parasites have moved in on the human race, he believes. The first is that man comes into contact with them infrequently. Second, most of them have become so well adapted to animals, through long residence, that they are not capable of establishing themselves in man.

New Home Of Midland Federal Savings And Loan Association Is Modern Structure

The new home of the Midland Federal Savings and Loan Association, at 601 West Texas Street—a radical innovation in design, and a credit to modern Midland's business district—will hold open house Thursday from 4 to 8 p.m.

The new building is set back on the corner lot at Pecos and Texas

Streets, with a parking area off the street, with entrances from either side.

The dominating feature of the building is the curved front, with large windows, flanked by large gray-green marble slabs. The identifying sign, in large gold letters, extends across the top of the windows.

Inside furnishings and drapes are in tones of deep green, with light gray walls. Touches of red on the furniture lend a colorful note. Behind the railing, in the office, and executive area, flowered carpets extend from wall to wall.

Completely new furniture and furnishings have been provided throughout. Recessed ceiling wall fixtures give even, glareless lighting. The entire building is air-conditioned.

Charles Neuhardt, Midland architect, designed the unusual building, and J. R. Freetag, general contractor, was the builder. The contract was let February 6, according to P. F. Bridgewater, secretary-treasurer.

Every convenience has been provided for depositors and loan customers in the new and ultra-smart new quarters of the Midland Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Radio interference from the starter equipment on aircraft and automobile combustion engines is eliminated by a new radio-shielded unit. It is designed for use particularly to prevent "noise" of the magneto reaching radio apparatus which receives power from the same power supply.

After 7 Years, An Obit For USS Jarvis

The destroyer USS Jarvis: A profile like the Achilles was a brave ship's Achilles' heel.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The mysterious disappearance of the only U. S. surface warship unaccounted for at the end of World War II has at last been cleared up on the Navy's records.

After seven years of patient detective work, Navy historians announce they have solved the riddle of the destroyer USS Jarvis, which sailed off into space Aug. 9, 1942, from the Coral Sea southwest of Guadalcanal, following the sea battle of Savo Island.

A Navy file from the carrier Saratoga was the last friendly person to see the Jarvis, limping along in the pre-dawn haze bound for Australia. Six weeks later a terse Navy communique announced that intensive air and surface searches had failed to reveal any trace of her. Next of kin of the 246 officers and men on board were notified.

Ordinarily, a surface ship going down would have been sighted, would have left flotsam, or there would have been survivors to give an accounting of their ship. The Jarvis' position was well established in a small ocean area which was meticulously scanned by aviators and seamen. Yet she vanished without a trace. Up to now that's been all anybody knew.

The Jarvis was part of the task force assigned to the invasion of Guadalcanal. During the attack she purposely took a Jap torpedo in her side to protect the cruiser Vincennes. Her skipper, 39-year-old Lt. Comdr. William W. Graham, of Palmyra, N. J., refused to abandon ship although she was stopped dead and flames spurted and swept the forecastle.

In a few hours her crew had put out the fire and patched the engine. The destroyer towed the Jarvis to a shallow water anchorage. A check showed 14 men missing and seven wounded. As Comdr. Graham was putting the seven wounded aboard the flagship MacCawley, he told one of them he would head for Sydney, Australia, for repairs that night—Aug. 8—to avoid the almost certain Jap air attack the next day.

Despite a 50-foot gash in her side, the loss of all her radio gear and many of her guns, it was felt sure the cripple could make Sydney. The mine sweeper Hovey was ordered to escort, but was never able to rendezvous with the Jarvis. With his radio gone, it is assumed Comdr. Graham might not have been informed the Hovey would be his escort and left without it.

A few hours before the Saratoga scout plane saw the Jarvis for the last time, she was spotted by the destroyer Blue. The Jarvis refused aid proffered by the Blue and sailed on.

No successful clue to what happened after that was turned up until this year, when a Navy historian, who had been working on the problem for years, decided to re-examine the log book of a Jap torpedo squadron based on Rabaul.

Battle reports by several Jap pilots for that date made references to an "Achilles-type" cruiser having been "blown to bits" and "sunk instantly." The historian established that the Jarvis, in profile, had a striking resemblance to the small New Zealand cruiser Achilles. With that new information, here is how the unknown final hours of the Jarvis have now been pieced together.

Before being sighted by the Blue, the Jarvis had been attacked by a Jap destroyer that was part of a big enemy force. She escaped without further damage which is probably why she didn't ask for help from the Blue. But the Jap destroyer had radioed the Jarvis' position and course to the Rabaul torpedo squadron.

At noon of the ninth, according to the Jap reports, torpedo planes and 16 "Zero" fighters attacked the Jarvis. Sixteen torpedoes were fired at her while the fighters strafed her decks. The final Jap report made no mention of survivors. But the first torpedo the Jarvis had taken at Guadalcanal had blasted away all life rafts and life boats.

An official Navy account now says: "If the Japanese had not elected to throw nearly all of their available planes at the Jarvis they certainly might have done so at Admiral Turner's ships (off Guadalcanal) still frantically unloading troops and precious supplies for the Marines."

"There is also the possibility that, failing to find the Jarvis, the Japanese airmen might have continued our few precious carriers, which had withdrawn to refuel. Thus, the Jarvis did not die in vain."

New Book Discusses Your Child And Art

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE

AP Education Writer

How can a parent stimulate his child's interest in art? How can he motivate creative ability in a child? What art materials are best for a child?

These and a host of other questions recently were discussed at the Museum of Modern Art in New York by parents, teachers and other interested in "Your Child and Art."

Discussing the types of materials children like to work with, participants agreed that almost any medium will do, if the child is properly encouraged. Clay particularly seemed to give great satisfaction in handling for the child as well as producing quick results.

Of scraps around the house—buttons, cloth, string, feathers, etc.—which her children could use at any time.

An important factor in working with materials is the manner in which mother or dad works along with the child. All agreed that the child merely should be shown the materials and then left to fashion them in his own way. The idea is not to impose adult standards on children. Of course, if the child is puzzled, parents can advance several possible ideas. Often, after listening, the child will strike off on his own and wind up with something entirely different. But at least he has learned to think for himself.

An adult's idea of creative drawing and that of a child are entirely different, said the group. As adults we visualize, for example, a whole train and draw one accordingly. But children, as a rule, see details only. Thus, a wheel might represent a whole train.

Creative art stems from experience. Thus a parent should try to give his child as many experiences as possible, many of them totally unrelated to art. All of these may eventually build on each other and come out in the art form.

Heart Fund Will Benefit From Fine

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Harold Gilbert, 43, pleaded guilty to stealing a few dollars from a container used to collect funds in the campaign against heart disease.

Gilbert's attorney suggested to Judge Michael A. Musmanno that Gilbert be allowed to pay $50 each month to the Pennsylvania Heart Association for the next year instead of going to jail.

Musmanno agreed.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER

LINCOLN, ILL.—(AP)—The newest youngsters at the Washington School have feathers. That's not at all unusual because they are robins. They were born in a nest on the window ledge of the fourth grade room. The pupils, before leaving for summer vacation, named the newcomers Cherrup, Jennifer and Lucifer.

What if your child doesn't like art? Should all children take art? It all depends on what you mean by art, it was agreed. Some children won't like painting. If they don't, then it isn't art as far as they are concerned.

Where There's Smoke There's An Argument

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Until the experts can decide whether nicotine is man's friend or enemy, I wish they would shut up about the subject.

As it is, I'm just a victim, alternately scared to death and assured that I've just picked up a harmless little habit. I've enough to worry about without taking time to fret about cigarettes: the cold war, the H-bomb, income taxes, daylight saving time and the state department.

Apparently, however, the anti-nicotine forces are campaigning strongly again. Their tactics seem to be to scare people away from cigarettes and then advise them that it's really easy to cut out the habit. It is not easy to stop smoking, either by gradually cutting down or by just giving them up. So far all the anti and pro nicotine propaganda I've encountered has had the effect of stepping up my consumption of cigarettes to quiet jumpy nerves and to reduce my enjoyment of same to the vanishing point.

Somewhere Must Be Wrong

It occurs to me that somebody must be wrong about cigarettes. The big thing is to find out what side has truth on its team.

With the dawn of 1960, the nation's best-known digest magazine treated its readers to a scary, masterly assembly of items purporting to be a coldly scientific analysis. It showed that nicotine is a killer and used authoritative-sounding medical nose-counts to prove it. As I remember the piece, it convinced me that the cigarette was responsible for all human ills except television and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Treating cancer, high blood pressure, ulcers and heart ailments with brisk decisiveness, it frightened the living daylight out of me. It must have been two hours before I tremblingly lit another cigarette and for a couple of days afterwards I recognized symptoms of dire things in a casual cough or sneeze.

Information In Abundance

Most of all I was impressed by information concerning disease. I'd never heard of before, but involving hands and feet and entirely caused by smoking cigarettes. The author treated this disease with grim humor, relating a story about a sufferer given a choice between abandoning cigarettes and losing all extremities. And guess which the victim choose?

Then along comes another magazine, non-digest this time, with a brisk, assured article showing pretty conclusively that nobody really knows whether cigarettes are good for you, bad for you or neither. How come, it asks pointedly, that if cigarettes are killing off people, the average citizen is living much longer? How come insurance companies don't bother to inquire of prospects whether they smoke or not? Then it tells about some doctors who cleared up ulcers with cabbage juice while letting the patients smoke. It disparages some statistical research, even made by medical men, and notes that this hands and feet disease is a very rare one indeed.

The big question in my mind is beyond whether to smoke or not to smoke. It occurs to me that if the experts are as widely separated on a subject as tangible as smoking, how are we ever going to get a solution to some of the intangibles, like how to achieve peace.

Meanwhile, I'm glad I have a doctor who smokes and who thinks a little smoking never hurt anyone.

Lions In Zoo Get Donkey Meat Feast

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The lions must have thought it was Christmas—they and the rest of the voracious animals of the Mexico City Zoo have feasted on three tons of meat—donkey meat.

Health Department agents seized the meat, some of it in the form of steaks and the rest ground into sausage, on the charge it was meant for human consumption. It was turned over to the zoo for disposal.

DADDY RINGTAIL

By WESLEY DAVIS

Daddy Ringtail And This Is It

The riverboat floated on and on down the river, sometimes where the water was deep and still, sometimes where it ran fast and white between rocks as big as a house. And on each side of the river were tall trees, or fields of flowers and grass that was green, and sometimes too our friends in the boat could see deer and buffalo and all other kinds of forest animals. It was vacation time, but little Mugwump Monkey couldn't believe it. "Daddy Ringtail," he said, "when will we come to the sea where the waves are, and the sand, and the Ringtail when Mugwump said this. They were all there in the riverboat, you know, and everyone was asleep but Mother Ringtail and Daddy Ringtail and Mugwump. "Oh, now, Mugwump!" said Mother Ringtail. "This is vacation time. We don't have to wait until we come to the sea." Mugwump shook his head. He knew about vacation time. It's something that everyone wants to have and something that everyone knows about. When it's vacation time, you go somewhere for fun—to do something you don't get to do when it isn't vacation time—or not to do something that you have to do when it isn't vacation time. "That's right," said Daddy Ring-tail. "That's what vacation time is, and vacation time is what it is now. We don't have to wait until we come to the sea."

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA. —(P)—The U. S. Consulate at Medellin has received reports of police waging a terror campaign against Presbyterian and Catholic ministers, driving pastors from their homes, and blowing up the mission school.

Late in May Nationalist police invaded the homes of Presbyterians in Dabeba, 180 miles from Bogota, stole their horses, seized papers, drove two missionaries and a school teacher from their homes, burned Bibles and touched off a dynamite charge in the local mission school.

Would-Be Designers Deluge Plane Plant With Odd Ideas

Brainstorms with wings flooded the office of Glenn Orlieb. Here's an artist's conception of a few of them, such as the aircraft carrier model below, and the 57-engine job at top left.

SEATTLE, WASH. (NEA)—Glenn Orlieb is a patient patent engineer whose job requires him to face hundreds of ideas from would-be designers. Some of the ideas that will (a) startle, (b) revolutionize or (c) even electrify the aviation industry.

Orlieb is sometimes startled, but rarely electrified, however. For every good idea that comes along, there are scores that are theoretically worthless or technologically impractical, like an aircraft carrier with wings, for example.

Orlieb gets letters from home-grown aeronautical wizards who are sure there are vast hordes of spies infesting airplane plants—and also are fully cognizant of the value of a buck. To wit:

"Dear Sir: I had a dream last night and I developed an idea that will revolutionize the aircraft industry. If you meet me in Hogan's Alley with $50,000, I will deliver same to you or your agents. Sincerely, J. B."

Hundreds of Letters

Far and away the most popular brainchild of the sidewalk Siskinks is the wingless and tailless plane. Orlieb says letters come in by the hundreds with offers to sell at a price—completely perfected plans for same. Another favorite target of the amateur aviators is the plane that will break the sonic barrier. On paper, it seems, anybody can do it.

One man had detailed plans for an emergency escape kit, which he offered at a modest fee. Unfortunately this inventor was unable to develop the idea completely since he was an inmate of an eastern prison at the time.

Every letter received concerning new devices is carefully answered. Some of the ideas submitted have practical possibilities. Several people are working on devices to aid in the location of lost planes, others on methods of stopping a plane quickly after landing.

Although interested in the development of worthy ideas, the company does not subsidize individuals. National security regulations prevent Boeing from showing an undue interest in plans submitted by foreign inventors. To indicate curiosity in a phase of aircraft development would give unfriendly projects a cue to U. S. Air Force projects.

"Top secret" sketches and plans are frequently brought into the plant by inventors who mistrust the mail. Sometimes, it takes Orlieb as long as four hours to convince the inventor that the company cannot develop the idea, that it has no practical value or that it has already been in use for 10 years.

As a plane is being built, Orlieb studies the project closely. He is responsible for patents on all new devices, and he also sees that they do not infringe on other patents. He secures license rights and arranges payment of royalties to other firms or individuals.

If inventors must, Orlieb has some advice for you. Don't send ideas to aircraft companies. Be sure you're working on a real problem and have a real solution. Protect your plans and then seek a buyer.

While this information may sound discouraging, Orlieb always reminds his contributors, "A farmer won't buy a pig in a poke, and we won't buy plans in a brief case."

European Payments Union Charter Being Drawn Up In Paris

WASHINGTON —(AP)—An important new development in the European recovery program is the European Payments Union (EPU). The Marshall Plan countries now are drawing up its charter in Paris. Paul G. Hoffman, administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration, has said the Marshall Plan won't succeed without it.

EPU is a novel Yankee idea, first broached to the western Europeans in a speech by Hoffman October 31. Congress was sold on the idea and made it a part of the law authorizing continuation of European aid for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951. It stipulated $600,000,000 of ECA funds should be spent through EPU in the coming year.

Backers hope EPU eventually will provide European manufacturers mass markets throughout Europe. They could develop the cheaper, more efficient mass production methods which have done so much to make possible the economic productive capacity and high living standard of the United States.

When Europeans want to trade among themselves now they find a formidable array of obstacles. Some European currencies are considered sounder than others and nations with good currencies don't want to exchange their money for that of weaker currency countries. Nearly all of the countries have tight import quotas to protect local industries. Some have high tariff walls. Here's what EPU will do:

When one country sells to another it will receive EPU credits, plus some gold or dollars, instead of the currency of the country doing the buying. These credits can be used in any other country in EPU. Thus all currencies become equally valuable for purposes of European trade.

America's Contribution
Part of the gold or dollars will be America's ECA contribution. The $600,000,000 of ECA funds will be so distributed this year instead of being allotted in direct aid. The individual manufacturer will receive his full payment in the currency of his own country. His government will get the dollars and EPU credits.

The proportion of credits and dollars received will operate on a sort of sliding scale—and this is the most ingenious feature of the plan. The more a country sells, the larger will be the proportion of EPU credits it will receive and the smaller will be the proportion of dollars.

This will practically force the seller country to buy in other countries in order to use up its EPU credits.

On the other hand, the more a country buys, the larger will be the proportion of dollars it must put up in payment, and the smaller will be the amount of its currency that will be accepted. When it runs short of dollars, it might be able to borrow some from ECA.

Meanwhile, its financial difficulties will become a matter for investigation by EPU and the International Monetary Fund. These agencies will send experts into the country to see why it is running such a deficit. They might find that its government budget needs tightening, that its bank credit policies should be changed, that its currency is inflated and so forth.

"A country which doesn't attempt to put its own financial house in order will stand out like a sore thumb as a member of the union," says an ECA spokesman. "Since membership in the union implies the yielding of a certain amount of sovereignty, a country will have to listen to and act on advice from the union's managers who represent the other countries."

Elevators in the United States during 1949 carried 30 times as many passengers as were carried by railroads.

TO HIGH POST—Bishop Karl J. Alter of Toledo, O., has been named by Pope Pius XII as the new archbishop of Cincinnati, O., to succeed the late Archbishop John T. McNicholas. Archbishop Alter, 64, has headed the Toledo diocese since 1931. He has been a leader in Catholic social welfare work.

Chicago To Feature Real Country Fair

CHICAGO —(AP)—Fair goes visiting the Chicago Fair of 1950 will see a real country fair. The fair-within-a-fair will feature educational exhibits. They will tell the story of how meat moves from the farm to the table. It will be sponsored by Armour and Company, meat packers.

Crosby Kelly, executive manager of the Chicago Lakefront Exposition, said more than 100 varieties of cattle, sheep and hogs are scheduled for display. Livestock exhibits will show how America's beef supply developed from the buffalo of the Western Plains and the Texas long horn steer to the present-day breeds of beef animals. The Chicago Fair runs through Labor Day.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture says the farmer got about 49 cents of each dollar spent for food in September 1949 and 32 cents in 1933.
