Beverage board keeps tabs on sale of liquor to minors

Nets closed over local stores selling liquor Friday and Saturday as Midland police and agents from the Alcoholic Beverage Commission made a concerted effort to halt the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors.

The crackdown ended with three Midland convenience stores being charged for violation of the liquor law.

About seven Midland patrol officers, two juvenile officers and two agents with the Alcoholic Beverage Commission in Odessa were assigned to the investigation. Police Chief Wayne Gideon also spent time Friday night watching a few stores.

"We've been getting more and more complaints about minors buying alcohol," he said, explaining the two night crackdown.

Officers spent the two nights watching various convenience stores. When underage youths, some as young as 13, left the stores carrying alcoholic beverages, they were stopped, taken back to the store and asked to identify the clerk who sold them the liquor.

"There's no problem here (for minors buying alcoholic beverages)," said one officer. "The store owners are getting rich from it."

The weekend's surveillance involved countless hours of sitting, waiting and watching, fruitless attempts to catch an underage youth and, occassionally, success.

One officer watched an older man hand a can of beer to a 16 year old youth. But by the time the teen ager was stopped, he had finished drinking the beer. The only evidence was an empty can rolling in the floorboard — not enough for a case on possession of alcoholic beverages.

"Something like this may seem petty," the officer said, "but we may have saved someone's life tonight.

"I think 18 years is too young (to be the legal age). These kids don't even know what they want of their emotions," the officer reasoned.

"The longer I'm an officer, the less I drink. I'm getting tired of picking dead kids up off the road."

According to Gideon, minors obtaining liquor is a definite problem in Midland, although by no means limited to the Tall City.

"I hope people don't think we just woke up and decided to enforce this law," Gideon said. "We try to keep the pressure on it all the time. If we catch a minor with alcohol, we try to get him to tell us where he purchased it.

"We also take him back to the store and try to get him to identify the person who sold it to him and then we pursue the case. But many times, juveniles refuse to tell us or even their parents where they bought it," he explained.

Gideon contended that convenience stores are more of a problem in Midland.

"There are also some liquor stores that have been found to be in violation of the liquor law. It's not just limited to convenience stores, but they are the primary ones because liquor stores close at earlier hours," the chief continued.

"Convenience stores are usually busy and stay open later, and the kids can just jump out and run in.

"Sometimes it's difficult for the convenience store clerks to distinguish by just looking whether someone's 18 or 17. But it is the licensee's responsibility to check and see whether that person is of lawful age," he added.

Stores selling to minors face suspension of their license and fines. Minors found to be in possession of alcholic beverages are released to their parents' custody and handled through normal juvenile court proceedings. Those of legal age buying alcohol for minors face charges and a possible fine, officials said.

Under Texas law, minors can be in possession of liquor only if it was purchased by, and they are in the company of, their parents or legal guardian.

"We try to make sure those who are old enough to legally buy alcoholic beverages are the only ones to do so, but it's a monumental task," Gideon said.

And in a large percentage of the cases, minors who have liquor persuaded some obliging friend 18 or older to buy it for them, he added.

"It makes enforcement somewhat difficult. Many establishments operate by the letter of the law. But then we have some individual who thinks they are doing a favor and they buy it for someone younger," Gideon noted.

"We plan to charge those people, too, for making alcoholic beverages available to a minor," Gideon said.

"I think the 18 year olds don't realize that with the privileges there are responsibilities, too."

Cubans arrive in U.S. on hijacked freighter

MIAMI (AP) — A band of eight Cubans, reportedly armed with handguns, commandeered a small freighter in Havana and forced its crew to take them to the United States early Saturday, officials said.

There was no reported violence and the Cubans peacefully surrendered their rusty handguns to federal agents when the container ship Lissette arrived in Key West, the Coast Guard reported.

The Cubans were then put on a commercial bus which took them to Miami, where they were hustled off for questioning by federal agents at U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service facilities at Miami International Airport.

"I want to see my family," one man shouted from the back seat of an INS car outside the bus depot. Otherwise the Cubans had little time to speak to bystanders as they were quickly ushered away, looking tired and unshaven.

The few other passengers on the six hour bus ride from Key West apparently didn't know who the eight men were who sat together and kept to themselves. "Well I'll be darned," exclaimed passenger Gerry Herrera of Las Vegas, Nev. when told who his fellow passengers were.

The Cubans had been taken from the ship after it was met by the Coast Guard at the entrance to Key West Harbor. Guard spokesman Greg Robinson said the Cubans were taken to the Key West Coast Guard station by the FBI for preliminary questioning.

Richard Gullage, head of the INS office in Miami, said INS officers didn't have the full story from the Cubans yet, but explained they "supposedly stowed away in a container Thursday night and were loaded on board. After the vessel departed Havana, they emerged from hiding, commandeered the vessel and forced the crew to take them to Key West."

FBI agents helping the INS in Key West did not arrest the Cubans who they were brought to the island, said FBI spokesman Karl Lowry in Miami.

The number of Cubans was first reported as 16, then lowered to eight. All were believed to be males. Robinson said the reason for the conflicting numbers wasn't clear.

It was the second time this month that a ship has been seized in Cuba and forced to the United States. On Feb. 1, a dredge was hijacked from the port of Varadero, west of Havana, and brought 65 Cuban men, women and children to freedom in Miami.

That group was given political asylum, and it was expected that the latest refugees would also be granted asylum after being processed by the INS.

Word of the takeover came just after 6 a.m. when the Lissette radioed that there were Cubans on board, "some of them armed, demanding to be taken to the United States," said Robinson.

He said the 230-foot ship was of Liberian registry, carried general cargo and had a crew of 33 Chinese from Hong Kong. It wasn't immediately clear how the Cubans got on the Lissette, which had docked in Havana harbor and had stops planned at other ports along the Cuban coast.

The group of Cubans who arrived in Florida on Feb. 1 had commandeered the dredge Fifth of December and forced it across the Straits of Florida. The barge intercepted a private yacht which contacted a Coast Guard station. The barge was then escorted to Miami.

U.S. 'will pursue arms control'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says the United States will "be very glad to pursue aggressively" progress in arms control with the Kremlin once Soviet troops are withdrawn from Afghanistan.

In comments made on Friday to visiting magazine editors, the president also expressed pleasure with the response of the nation's allies to the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Carter also said he was pleased with the "basic compatibility" between the U.S. policy and that of the 34 Islamic nations who met in Islamabad, Pakistan and expressed opposition to the Soviet move.

A transcript of the president's interview was made available Saturday by the White House.

The New York Times reported Saturday that the United States had begun supplying light infantry weapons to Afghan insurgents. It attributed the report to White House officials.

But White House press secretary Jody Powell said, "I am authorized to say that no senior official in the White House or National Security Council has confirmed the alleged facts presented in that New York Times story."

Asked whether such assistance was being given, Powell repeated earlier refusals to confirm or deny reports that the insurgents were being aided or that they were not.

In the question and answer session, Carter said he expects "a major response among our allies and others too about not going to the Olympics in Moscow with Soviet invasion troops in Afghanistan."

Discussing the partial embargo he has placed on grain sales to the Soviet Union and the responses other nations can make to the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, he observed that some allies "don't have items of value to withhold and they are not economically able to withhold even those sensitive items with the degree of commitment that we can exhibit."

The president also said he anticipates trouble winning congressional approval for his plan to register women for the draft, "but I think that the Congress, when it assesses the arguments pro and con, might very well approve the registration of women."

Carter said on Feb. 8 that he wanted funds to register men for the draft, and that he also wanted legal authority to register women.

Friendly territory

HEARST

CHRIST CHURCH, NEW ZEALAND— My first visit to the vast ocean area of the South Pacific has convinced me that this region is again becoming of great importance to America.

We know how important it was to us during World War II. General MacArthur used Australia as the re-grouping and staging area for the allied forces that were to drive the Japanese out of Guadalcanal and the other islands on the way to the liberation of the Philippines and total defeat of Japan.

Following the end of that war and particularly after we pulled out of Vietnam our national interest in the thousands of tropical islands of the South Seas and in our staunch allies, Australia and New Zealand, declined sharply.

The time has come to turn our attention back to this area of the world for a number of compelling reasons. First and foremost because of the efforts of the Soviet Union to project its influence and power in this region.

The Soviets have been seeking a land-based presence in the islands to track their satellites and missiles. They have also been actively engaged in subversion to undermine the democracies. New Zealand's prime minister recently expelled the Soviet ambassador who was caught handing over money to the communist front Socialist Unity Party, whose leader is publicly committed to destruction of the country's economy in order to pave the way for establishment of a Marxist dictatorship.

Indicative of the strategic importance of the South Pacific are the stations which Australia and New Zealand maintain to track Soviet missiles and keep watch on Soviet submarines operating in this area, all of which information is passed on to us.

Apart from the security aspect, the South Pacific holds great promise for the development of alternative energy sources from the ocean, the sun, and vast untapped mineral resources.

'Ten years of patience pays off,' say reunited sisters

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

ODESSA — It took 10 years of research, letter writing, phone calls and patience.

But the effort finally paid off Thursday for singer Terri Mannett in a Valentine's Day reunion here with a sister she had never seen.

The Californian, adopted as an infant 35 years ago, has spent the last 10 years searching for her natural parents.

About a month ago, Terri telephoned her mother for the first time and, as a bonus, learned she had a sister she never knew existed.

"It was quite a shock," she said to discover she had a built-in family of siblings.

For her half-sister Kathy Nichols, who had grown up with two brothers, learning of a long lost sister was "like a dream come true."

IN THEIR THREE-DAY reunion here, the sisters have discovered at least one common thread to their lives.

Both are professional singers who perform with their guitar-player husbands.

"I also found out my mother sings and plays the piano. I come from a musical family," Terri added happily.

The sisters and their husbands performed together Friday night in the Golden Rooster Club at the Inn of the Golden West here where Terri and her husband, Manny, are appearing. And Kathy wrote a song for her sister the day after their first talk.

While three days is not a long time to get to know someone, "we have good vibes," Kathy said. "I feel we're alike in a lot of ways."

"I can tell you I wanted to hug her a lot."

"And we both cry a lot, too," Terri added.

BETWEEN THE HUGGING and the tears, the sisters have had a lot of catching up to do.

They were up until 7 a.m. talking the first night they were together. Friday night they got to bed by 4.

And they've just started filling in the gaps.

Now they've found each other, "we're both going to have to get part-time jobs just to pay for the phone bills," Terri joked.

Terri, who grew up in "a very loving home" in upper New York, said she finally located her natural father about three months ago, and through him found where her mother lived.

TERRI'S HUSBAND made the initial contact with her mother through a telephone call. After that, they exchanged letters.

"It's a time-consuming process," she explained. "You can't just call somebody up and say hello."

Three weeks ago, her mother called her for the first time and told her about the sister and two brothers.

Discovering she had a half-sister was a shock for Terri — who has always known she was adopted — but for Kathy the surprise was even greater.

"It was all brand new to me."

682-5311

By Franchelle Moore P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702

Could you give the telephone number for the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Children? — Mrs. F.M.

ANSWER: The center's hotline number is 682-1300.

Could you please tell me how to get body odor out of clothes to be dry cleaned?
I have sent clothes to the dry cleaners in the past, but the body odor doesn't seem to come out. — J.A.M.

ANSWER: A Midland dry cleaner reports that in certain situations, even with pre-spotting of the clothes, the odor cannot be removed.

Soap and water usually works, but there also is an aerosol spray, but this just covers up one odor with another. Another solution, which may or may not work, is treatment of the clothes with an ozone machine.

Is it legal for a person, that is a tourist or even a resident, to carry a pistol in his automobile?
I know a guy who has one in his glove compartment. — Mr. J.B.

ANSWER: The State Bar of Texas says it is illegal to carry a handgun "on or about one's person" unless the person is a peace or security officer, although one may possess a handgun on his own premises while traveling or engaging in lawful hunting or sporting activity.

The "traveler" exception is narrowly defined, but an out-of-state tourist would probably come within this exception.

However, a pistol within ready reach, such as under the seat or in the glove box, has been held to be a violation of the law.

A person may not carry a weapon idly, habitually, or for some unlawful purpose. In Texas there is no provision for a "gun permit" to excuse an individual from the law.

Could you give me a recipe on preparing roasted wild duck? — Mrs. G.R.

ANSWER: Here is one recipe included in a booklet, "Famous Wild Game Recipes:"

Three large or six small ducks, two tablespoons bacon drippings, one and one-half teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, three apples, peeled, cored and coarsely chopped and six to eight slices of bacon.

Pre-heat oven to 450 degrees F. Wipe birds with damp cloth and clean well. Singe.

Rub with bacon drippings and sprinkle inside and out with salt and pepper. Fill cavities with chopped apples.

Place two slices bacon over each breast (one slice on small ducks). Roast in 450 degree F. oven 20-25 minutes. Baste several times.

For rare duck, serve at once. Otherwise, roast 20 minutes longer at 350 degrees F.

For large ducks, such as mallards, weighing about 4 pounds, roast 15-18 minutes per pound. Most large ducks will serve two, even though breast is usually the only part eaten. Small ducks, such as Teal, weighing about one pound make individual servings. Serves six.

Preventive health care urged for younger preschool groups

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Child health care officials told the Senate Interim Study Committee on Early Childhood Intervention Services Friday that added emphasis should be placed on preventive and other care for preschool children up to three years of age.

Dr. Jerry Southard of the Texas Department of Human Resources described the provision of health care for the 0 to 3 age group as a "huge, huge problem that must be addressed."

Jeanette Watson, representing a child health care provider, recommended that the committee, chaired by State Sen. W.E. Snelson of Midland, consider creation of coordinating agencies for preventive and rehabilitation services for young children.

There is a difficult problem with coordination and quality of services being delivered, Southard said.

"I suggest that government involvement in (these problems) is not a 'yes-no' question but a 'when-how' question," Watson said.

Primary prevention is the best and least expensive way to handle problems of mental or physical handicaps, Watson said.

But when prevention is not possible, early recognition and treatment of the problems is necessary, she said.

Southard told the committee that a comprehensive study by the Human Resources Department should be released by the end of March.

Some of the issues identified in that study include funding for delivery of child care and certain other services, eligibility criteria for social services and the need to identify all resources available to assist handicapped persons, coordinate service delivery and making services accessible.

Nearly 13,000 children in Texas suffer some physical or mental handicap, Southard said.

These handicaps must be dealt with during the formative preschool years to help these children develop at a normal pace, he said.

Liquor priced by liter confusing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Cheers! The liquor industry has just about completed its switch to the metric system. But trying to keep track of prices and sizes can be a sobering experience.

It all started back in 1977. Under a program supervised by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in the Treasury Department, distillers introduced six, metric-sized containers, to replace the conventional miniature, fifth, etc.

As of Jan. 1, all imported and domestic distilled spirits must be bottled in one of the metric sizes. Existing stock — bottled before Jan. 1 — can still be sold in non-metric containers, however.

Efforts have been under way for several years to encourage Americans to voluntarily adopt the metric system in all areas. Thus far, however, there have been few major changes.

"From a manufacturing point of view ... we've made some progress," Sydney D. Andrews, director of Florida's Division of Standards and a member of the U.S. Metric Board, said at a recent meeting in Phoenix, Ariz. "From a government point of view ... we are still very slow ... In the market place, we are making some headway, but in my opinion, it's much too slow."

Metric sizes for liquor bottles are similar to, but not exactly the same as, non-metrics. And price changes, combined with size changes, can make things confusing for buyers.

Here is a comparison of old and new sizes:

Old: Miniature — 1.6 ounces. New: 50 milliliter — 1.7 ounces.

Old: Half-pint — 8 ounces. New: 200 milliliter — 6.8 ounces.

Old: Pint — 16 ounces. New: 500 milliliter — 16.9 ounces.

Old: Fifth — 25.6 ounces. New: 750 milliliter — 25.4 ounces.

Old: Quart — 32 ounces. New: 1 liter — 33.8 ounces.

Old: Half-gallon — 64 ounces. New: 1.75 liter — 59.2 ounces.

Suppose you see a fifth and a 750 milliliter bottle, identically priced. The fifth is a better buy; it's got two-tenths of an ounce more. If a liter and a quart cost the same, however, you're better off with the liter; it's almost two ounces bigger.

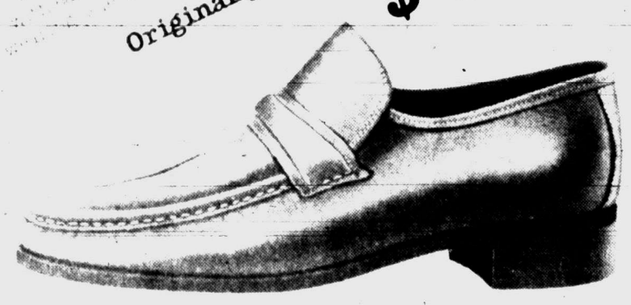

A survey by the General Accounting Office in October 1978 found that: "Most wines and distilled spirits that were converted to metric sizes experienced unit price increases greater than those that did not convert."

A 1980 Associated Press spot check showed no clear-cut pattern on either sizes or prices. In Champaign, Ill., for example, one liquor store was selling Cutty Scotch at $8.39 for a 750 milliliter bottle. Another Champaign store still had the larger fifths — also at $8.39.

Task forces to complete discussions, present goals

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of stories on "Objectives for Midland," a project to design goals for this decade.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

After more than a month of meetings, goals are beginning to take shape in the nine task forces studying objectives Midland might pursue during the 1980s.

Only about a week remains before the Feb. 25 deadline for the task forces to complete their discussions and draw some final conclusions about Midland's future goals.

RAY MOUDY HAS slated a final meeting for the housing task force. The chairman said his committee divided housing in Midland into several discussion areas, including:

— Determining availability of affordable housing in Midland.

— Determining availability of rental units and multi-family housing.

— Looking at available housing subsidy programs.

— Determining the government's role in providing housing for citizens. This includes all levels of goverment from state to federal.

— Rehabilitating substandard housing.

— Studying the effect of mortgage money supply on available housing.

— Looking at the role of industries moving into Midland to provide housing for employees.

Moudy commented that the City Council is looking at annexing a section of land north of the current city boundary, and his task force is in favor of that move.

"If annexed and developed according to city planning guidelines, that land can hold up to 40,000 people," he explained. "If it stays outside the city limits, by selling larger lots to each person the land could hold only 8,000 people."

He noted that one objective of the 70s was to oppose annexation.

"But at that time (in 1967) we had a surplus of housing," Moudy added.

TWO PRIMARY AREAS being studied by the task force is housing as it relates to underprivileged residents and housing as it relates to the city's economic expansion with more industries moving into Midland.

"There is one thing that has permeated all our discussions," the task force chairman said. "Some people living today in substandard housing will always live in substandard housing. There is need for an educational program to instill in these people pride of ownership or pride of occupancy if they rent. They don't know how to take care of the property they have."

Development of Midland west of Holiday Hill Road is far in the future, the housing group decided. Moudy said because of the terrain and drainage problems in that area, providing sewage facilities would be difficult.

Rental subsidy programs under the federal government haven't been met with open arms in the Tall City. Even so, Moudy said his group is recommending seeking that rental subsidy for persons "who can't afford decent, safe and sanitary housing."

ANOTHER NEED IS for rehabilitating homes and bringing them up to safe living standards.

"About 75 percent of the housing we think is substandard is rental property," he noted. "And there are those who own their homes who can't afford to upgrade it."

Noting the wide differences of opinions on housing on the part of some of his task force members, Moudy said, "We have had some rather animated discussions."

Dr. Durwood Clader, co-chairman of the health and welfare task force along with Dr. Ralph Greenlee, said his subcommittees haven't jelled their ideas yet.

A major area of discussion is in public health and recruiting medical personnel. "We're not overly populated with physicians here," he noted.

Another area of study is basic care of the community, and this encompasses a wide area. "It's not as clear-cut as it might look," Dr. Clader said.

Other areas of study are the hospital and social service agencies.

The group on cultural goals for Midland, chaired by Paula Cahoon, has derived two major objectives for Midlanders to consider.

The first is an arts council, said Mrs. Cahoon. This group would coordinate all arts activities in the community.

EXPLAINING THE city had such a council more than 10 years ago which failed, Mrs. Cahoon said, the task force believes there is an even greater need for a coucil now.

"We had no guidelines to look at," she said of the first attempt. "Now we have some to follow."

The second major goal is a performing arts auditorium to fill a gap still left open even with the new Chaparral Center, Midland Center and Midland College's Fine Arts Auditorium.

"We have reached a point in the cultural life in our community that we need something" for the Midland-Odessa Symphony Orchestra and the Permian Civic Ballet," Mrs. Cahoon said.

She pointed out that Chaparral Center is too large to be a performing auditorium; Midland Theatre is too small and is booked with community productions; Midland Center is designed as an exhibit and meeting hall; and MC Fine Arts Auditorium is too small.

IF THE SYMPHONY and ballet had their own facility, not only could they put on more performances, but bring in traveling ballet companies and symphonies, she added.

"Somehow, we need to convince the public there is a need for this facility. And the growth of the city in the past few years has brought out the need more clearly," said Mrs. Cahoon.

Another area under discussion is Midland County Library and need for expanding it. "We need to bring it more in line with needs on a national scale, such as number of books per capita," she said.

The cultural group also has looked at local museums and their dreams for the future. This has included Museum of the Southwest and the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame.

Needs of other groups in the city, such as the Community Concert Association and Midland Arts Association, have been studied.

Suggested goals in some task forces have been cropping up in other groups. This overlapping, according to Mrs. Cahoon, "means there obviously is a need for the project."

People with suggestions for goals may contact the task force chairmen or telephone the Midland Chamber of Commerce, 683-3381.

Warmer weather predicted

After today's cold spell, Midlanders on Monday will spell relief W-A-R-M.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is predicting temperatures Monday should reach into the 60's, giving a break from the weekend's frigid cold.

The mercury today should reach into the mid-40's and possibly into the low 50's, said the weatherman.

However, the skies probably will remain partly cloudy today and Monday.

The weatherman is predicting a 20 percent chance of rain for tonight and Monday.

Winds tonight should be south to southeasterly at 10--15 mph.

In 1936, Midlanders experienced the record low of 11 degrees on this day. But, nine years ago Midland residents enjoyed a comfortable record-setting 80 degrees.

Precipitation for the last 24 hours was just a trace. Total precipitation for February is .10 of an inch. Total for the year is .59 of an inch.

Good samaritan robbed

A Midland man reported he was robbed early Saturday when he stopped his car to help two men.

James Brandt, 304 Sunset Blvd., told police he stopped his car at 12:30 a.m. on Florida Avenue to assist two men who apparently had car trouble. When he approached the car, one of the two men pulled a gun and demanded money, Brandt reported.

After taking $130, the two men left in a green 1968 Oldsmobile Delta, according to the police.

Brandt described the two men as six feet tall, in their mid 20's and both with dark hair.

Big Spring man slain at night spot

BIG SPRING — Investigation is continuing in the Friday night shooting death of a Big Spring man at a local night spot.

The incident occurred at 8:40 p.m. in B.J.'s Country Lounge on State Highway 353, according to a Howard County sheriff's department spokesman. Ronald Dale Jeter, 35, of Big Spring was shot and killed by another Big Spring man wielding a 12-gauge shotgun, the spokesman added.

An arrest has been made but the suspect has not been charged, the official said.

Motive for the shooting has not been determined and is still under investigation, according to the sheriff's office.

Gaza Strip bombing kills three, hurts 10

GAZA CITY, Occupied Gaza Strip (AP) — A grenade attack and bomb in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip killed three persons and wounded 10, Israel's military command reported. It imposed a curfew on Gaza City.

It was the second time in less than three weeks that Arab guerrillas had attacked Israelis, and Gaza Mayor Rashid a-Shawa said, "The situation is very, very tense."

Shortly before noon, a terrorist tossed a hand grenade into an Israeli military pickup truck in downtown Gaza, killing two civilian passengers, including a 21-year-old Israeli woman, and wounding an Israeli soldier. Four Arab passersby also were wounded and one died in a hospital emergency room, a military communique said.

The military immediately imposed a curfew on the town and arrested several dozen suspects. As the search got under way, a second explosion rocked the district, wounding two Israeli soldiers and four civilians — three of them Arabs.

"I heard an explosion and shooting," said an Arab contacted by telephone at his home in the curfew area. "Army cars are patroling the streets with loudspeakers crying "Curfew, curfew."

Last week, Israel lifted a 10-day punitive curfew imposed on the West Bank city of Hebron following the terrorist killing of a Jewish student-soldier studying at a religious seminary nearby. Mayor Shawa said he feared a similar tough reaction by the Israelis in Gaza.

"These bombs are a reaction to what happened in Hebron," Shawa said in a telephone interview. "There is so much pressure. The situation is very, very tense."

Shawa said the Hebron curfew, Israeli announcements of plans to settle Jews in Hebron, and Arab opposition to autonomy talks between Israel and Egypt had contributed to the heightened tensions.

A military source said that in Hebron itself no incidents were reported Saturday.

Some will have holiday Monday

At least some Midland workers will get a holiday Monday to celebrate — four days early — the birthday of the nation's first president.

George Washington's birthday will give workers in local banks and some government offices an extra day off.

Federal offices, such as the Internal Revenue Service, will be closed Monday, and the U.S. Postal Service will be on a holiday schedule with no residential deliveries.

State workers, including those at the Department of Public Safety's drivers license division and the Texas Employment Commission, also will take off the day to eat cherry pies and celebrate the birth of the president noted in early American folklore for "never telling a lie."

City and county workers, however, will be on the job as will most employees in the private sector.

Both students and administrators in the Midland public schools will be in their places Monday, despite the federal holiday.

Washington's actual birthday won't be until Friday, when he would be 246 years old.

Pedestrain killed

A 31-year-old Midland resident is dead following a car-pedestrian accident early Saturday on U.S. Highway 80.

Department of Public Safety spokesmen said the accident occurred at 3:15 a.m. eight miles west of Midland.

A station wagon driven by Stacy Lea Collette, 20, of Odessa was westbound on Highway 80. Nicolas Madrid Herrera, 31, parked his vehicle on the shoulder of the Highway 80 eastbound lane and walked across the road into the oncoming traffic, reported DPS officials.

Herrera was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Robert Pine.

Giving her feet a rest while massaging the callouses, Midlander Diane Petine takes a break Saturday before continuing in the Fourth Annual Midland College-American Heart Association Dance-A-Thon in the MC Student Center. The 50-hour dance kicked off at 7 p.m. Friday and will continue through 9 p.m. today. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

Parkview Hospital sold

Western Hospital Corp., a hospital management firm that operates 11 other facilities, has purchased the majority interest in Parkview Hospital, a privately owned, 60-bed hospital in north Midland.

Parkview will be the seventh hospital purchased by the California-based firm in the six years it has been in existance.

Primary goal of the new management will be "serving the community," according to Dr. Harvey Glasser, president of the corporation.

"As you serve the community, as you get quality medical care, you improve the condition of the hospital," Glasser said.

Parkview has been troubled with low patient levels in the past and was purchased two years ago by the Gaddison Corp., a group of five local doctors.

Last week, the hospital's owners filed suit against A.E. Brim & Associates, the management firm which had run the hospital for more than a year, to ends Brim's contract.

"Parkview has had some problems in the past," Glasser acknowledged. But with the backing of Western Hospital Corp.'s resources, "I'm confident it can become a successful hospital."

One of the major steps in that new success, he said, in addition to new management procedures, will be an active recruiting program to bring new doctors to the community.

The corporation has a recruiting system, he said, "and our track record shows we have done very well" in bringing in new doctors.

Providing quality care in Midland, Glasser said, should be a cooperative effort between the city's two hospitals.

"Our goal is to have the hospital do what it can do very well, and hospitals like Parkview are great for high-quality nursing care, minor surgery and other hospital functions," Glasser said, adding he planned to use a cooperative approach toward Midland Memorial for those functions Parkview will not attempt to serve.

"In a small community like Midland, a second hospital is a good thing. It gives the doctors a chance to make choices and keeps everybody honest," Glasser said.

"We're very enthusiastic about Midland," Glasser noted. "The quality of the doctors and the specialists already available there is very good."

Happily catching up on all the family history are half-sisters Kathy Nichols, 27, top, and Terri Mannett, 35. Mrs. Mannett, who was adopted as an infant, recently found her natural parents after a 10-year search. She was reunited with her new-found sister in Odessa on Valentines Day. (Staff Photo)

Singing sisters united

Kathy said.

Her mother explained the background and let her read the letter Terri had written. "All I could say was 'You mean I have a sister?'

"IT WAS LIKE a dream come true."

Kathy was part of the first call her mother made to Terri.

"We did more crying than talking" during that first meeting, Terri noted.

"As soon as I could think straight," Kathy said, "I wanted to be with her as soon as possible."

When she found out Terri and Manny would be appearing in Odessa, she and her husband flew here to meet them.

Even professional performers get butterflies. When she heard the knock on the door Thursday night, Kathy made a dash to the washroom to settle her nerves.

"There wasn't much time that first meeting because Terri and Manny were on a break from their show.

"I opened the (washroom) door and just put my arms around her," Kathy said.

AFTER THE FIRST introductions, the foursome returned to the club where Terri and Manny were singing.

"The minute she started singing, it was hard to sit on the barstool," Kathy said. "I have a deep appreciation for music, and to see she was so talented — it was a double plus."

Kathy and her husband will return to their home in Chicago today, but plan to start "doing as much as we can as fast as we can to set them up jobs in the Chicago area," and to arrange for a reunion with her mother and brothers, whom she still has not seen.

The reunion is tentatively set for St. Patrick's Day.

In addition to everything else, "I found out I'm Irish," Terri beamed.

It's a beautiful feeling when your whole life comes together. Just knowing these people are a part of my life, I'm whole again."

Even though she spent 10 frustrating years searching for her natural parents, "I would encourage any adoptee to keep searching," Terri said. "It does get discouraging sometimes, and not everyone is as lucky as I was.

"But I think it's very important to know your identity."

Man critical after shooting

A Saturday afternoon shooting between roommates left 57-year-old Elijah Sanders of 110 S. Lee St. in critical condition at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Police learned of the shooting when the hospital emergency room reported a gunshot victim, according to a police spokesman.

Witnesses told officers that Sanders and another man had been in an argument with "Tot," "Shorty" and Willie Giddings. The five men live at 110 S. Lee St.

After the argument, the five dispersed. Police said they were told one man walked to his room, returned to the hall and fired six rounds at Sanders.

Sanders was struck once in the right rib cage. The bullet passed through his kidney and exited through his back, according to officers.

He underwent surgery late Saturday.

Editor's Report

me is the attitude of the leaders and people of this area. From talks with the prime ministers of New Zealand and the Fiji Islands as well as with average men and women, it is clear to me that Anglo-Saxon common sense prevails here.

The natives in the former British colonies, such as Fiji, speak English and in their friendly, open way seem part of our world.

Prime Minister Robert Muldoon and Ratu Sir Kamiesese Tuimacilai Mara of Fiji struck me as statesmen of exceptional quality and perception. The sturdy plain-speaking New Zealander, grandson of an Irish immigrant, has long been an outspokenly strong ally of the United States.

The Catholic convent and Oxford educated hereditary Fijian chieftain is recognized as the outstanding native leader of the South Sea islands. He rejected a Soviet request for establishment of diplomatic relations and persuaded the native leaders of nine other independent islands to join with him in refusing to grant the Soviets land-based facilities to establish missile and satellite tracking stations.

Our first stop after leaving Hawaii was the famed Fiji Islands, which are exactly as exotic, romantic and languid as you have always figured them to be. A country of 300 volcanic islands and coral atolls athwart the 180th meridian known as the international date line, they are located about 5,000 miles southwest of our west coast on a direct line to Sydney, 1,700 miles farther on.

First sighted by the Dutch navigator Abel Tasman in 1643, the Fijis were found and charted a century later, in 1774, by the English Captain James Cook, who is considered the "true discoverer" of most of the South Sea islands.

The origin of the South Pacific peoples is difficult to trace. The Melanesians of Fiji have woolly hair, the Polynesians of the neighboring islands, like Tonga, have straight hair. They probably all came to the islands from southeast Asia via Indonesia, or as we know them, the East Indies.

On our arrival we stayed at the Fijian International Hotel in Nadi, on one side of the island, and flew the next day in a small seaplane to Suva, the capital, on the other side, for our meeting with the prime minister. It's summer time in this part of the world and Fiji was hot and humid, but its coral-reefed shores, palm tree-studded white sandy beaches and verdant fields and hills are quite beautiful.

We found Prime Minister Mara to be a tall, heavyset, imposing figure with close-cropped, iron grey hair. He has the bearing of a leader but without the imperiousness. Indicative of his modesty and graciousness was his action in greeting us at the entrance to his government office building when we arrived.

Since he was attired in native dress and I was not familiar with his appearance, I wasn't sure for a while whether he was the doorman or an aide. But any doubts about his identity were despelled when he led Kingsbury Smith and me into the prime minister's office and gestured to us to sit on either side of him.

Recalling that he had offered the former Shah of Iran a haven in Fiji and that he had criticised the western European allies for not giving the United States stronger support in its efforts to impose sanctions against Russia for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, we said his interest in world affairs seemed to mark him as the leading spokesman of the native-led South Sea islands.

"I am not the voice of the Pacific," he replied, "But I do voice my feelings whenever I consider it appropriate." He said he had refused to establish diplomatic relations with Russia because the Soviets use their embassies to promote subversion.

He added that his "colleagues in Africa" had told him that was also their experience with the Soviet diplomatic missions. He thought the danger of an eventual conflict between the United States and Russia over the Persian Gulf oil fields was "very serious."

Asked what should be done about it, he said he believed India might be able to effect a compromise because Mrs. Gandhi has "the ear of Moscow." "What we have to do," he added, "is to awaken the conscience of India."

The prime minister was critical of the Voice of America broadcasts in the South Pacific area. He said they use a "very condescending voice" and tend to "talk down" to the native people telling them trivial things about President Carter and American life, whereas Soviet broadcasts are more clever. Speaking in American accents, Radio Moscow broadcasters pretend to give just straightforward news which is subtly slanted to reflect Soviet policy.

For those of us, me included, who have thought principally or exclusively of these islands as an exotic though heterogeneous grouping with barefooted natives, I can bring you the news that these people are quite conscious of what is going on in the world. They know better than some Americans the difference between the ideologies of Communist Russia and the free countries, and they have taken sides with us.

East coast liberal intellectual establishment types, please note. And incidentally, why not visit the South Pacific and see if I'm not right.

The area north of Midland currently under consideration for annexation by the city is bordered on the west by Holiday Hill Road, the east by Lamesa Road and the south by FM 868 and Bluebird Lane. It extends 1½ miles north along Holiday Hill Road.

Planning commission to consider annexation

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The first step toward annexing land north of Midland's city limits will begin Monday when the Planning and Zoning Commission meets at 4 p.m. in City Hall Council Chambers.

Under discussion will be a slightly larger area than what the city planning staff had recommended.

When annexation was first proposed in October, the area under consideration ran from Holiday Hill Road on the west to Lamesa Road on the east. It stretched north 1½ miles past the current city limits to Green Tree Country Club Estates and then went two miles north to include the Green Tree housing development.

At the City Council's Jan. 22 meeting, they chose to include another half mile on the 1½ mile line.

The City Council will hold a public hearing on annexation at 4 p.m. March 25. That should give enough time, the council reasoned, for the Planning and Zoning Commission to hold a public hearing, study the proposed area and work out any possible difficulties.

When the issue was brought before the council in October, about 75 residents living outside the city limits and who would be included in the annexation move, objected to the proposal and lodged their protests at a City Council session.

The council, before moving ahead with the project, recommended regulations established under the Agriculture Estate District and the animal and fowl ordinance be revised to accommodate conditions of residents in the proposed annexation area.

If annexed, that land would be zoned Agriculture Estate District and residents contended they would have to readjust their lifestyles and living conditions to be in line with the rules of that zoning.

Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community development, said he has been working with some of the residents on what the revisions should be.

He pointed out subdivisions started or planned for the near future already are bumping the city limits. This annexation also would include the Saddle Club North subdivision, he said.

TMI operator pays fine for safety violations

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The operator of the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant has paid without protest a $155,000 fine imposed for safety violations in the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

Robert Arnold, vice president of Metropolitan Edison Co., said Friday that Met Ed paid the fine early last week rather than seek a public hearing to contest the payment.

A hearing would have been expensive and time consuming for Met Ed, Arnold said.

The fine was the largest ever imposed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for violations of federal safety rules.

After the nuclear accident last March 28, NRC investigators discovered a faulty pressure-relief valve in the crippled Unit 2 reactor-generator.

That malfunction, cited by the NRC in assessing the fine, allowed coolant water to escape, causing the reactor core to overheat.

The NRC also cited Met Ed for an emergency backup system that failed to properly cool the reactor because its pump valves were closed in violation of federal regulation.

Arnold said Met Ed disputed several of the NRC findings but chose not to contest them.

Mechanical failures and human errors resulted in the overheating of the reactor core. Officials have said releases of radioactive gas into the atmosphere during the incident were not considered dangerous. At the time of the accident, the worst in U.S. civilian nuclear industry, state officials urged temporary evacuation of pregnant women and small children within a five mile radius of the plant.

A study commissioned by the NRC reported that the reactor had come within 30 to 60 minutes of a meltdown.

Small quake felt in Imperial Valley

BRAWLEY, Calif. (AP) — A small earthquake was felt in parts of the Imperial Valley just north of the Mexican border Saturday, but no damage was reported, a sheriff's spokeswoman said.

The tremblor measured 3.8 on the Richter scale and occurred at 7:09 a.m. It was centered about four miles northwest of this Southern California community, a spokesman for the the California Institute of Technology said.

Ensign thought cutter, ship would pass safely

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The deck officer of the Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn said Saturday he didn't sound his ship's whistle before the cutter collided with a tanker because he thought the ships would pass safely.

Ens. John R. Ryan, 29, testifying for a third day before a Marine Board of Inquiry, said he interpreted a whistle blast from the tanker Capricorn as meaning that the ships would pass to each other's left in a narrow channel at the mouth of Tampa Bay.

Ryan said he didn't signal to keep ship-to-ship communications to a minimum, so there wouldn't be any confusion.

The collision, near the Sunshine Skyway Bridge, sent the 180-foot Blackthorn to the bottom within minutes, killing 23 Coast Guardsmen. No one was injured aboard the 605-foot oil tanker, which suffered relatively mild bow damage.

The bodies of 13 Blackthorn crewmen are still missing. Salvage crews hope to raise the vessel Sunday and divers will make a more thorough search of the ship's compartments for the missing.

In an accident Saturday afternoon, a large cargo ship rammed a piling beneath the bridge over the mouth of the bay, not far from where the Blackthorn and Capricorn collided.

Ryan was directing movements of the cutter at the time of the collision, although its captain, Lt. Cmdr George J. Sepel, was on the bridge and was in overall charge.

An unidentified Midland youth backing a bulldozer belonging to South Texas Construction Co., went too far and ran into the west side of the house at 111 W. Louisiana Ave. Friday night, according to police reports, causing about $4,000 damage. Witnesses said the vehicle was on a construction site in the 600 block of North Loraine Street. After the incident, the youth escaped on foot. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

AFL-CIO may break with tradition

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — Under the orchestration of Lane Kirkland, leaders of the AFL-CIO are getting set to draft goals and strategies that could include giving women a voice in the federation's policy-making apparatus.

Labor leaders have migrated to this refuge in Florida each winter for more than 50 years. But this meeting, which starts Monday, will be vastly different. George Meany, the federation's dominant figure since 1939, died last November.

His absence from this year's meeting of the 35-member AFL-CIO executive council is expected to prompt other breaks from tradition within the 13.6 million-member organization. For example:

— Under Kirkland's leadership, the all-male council likely will agree to allow a woman among their ranks for the first time, once a suitable vacancy occurs.

— The council will spend more time and effort developing strategies for organizing non-union workers, an issue that Meany usually relegated to secondary importance.

— The president of the United States may be spared the blustery attacks over economic or foreign policy that had become a Meany trademark through the years.

Kirkland, 57, will be presiding over his first executive council meeting since his election as AFL-CIO president in November and Meany's death soon after at the age of 85.

It will be an opportunity for the scholarly Kirkland to establish leadership over his council and provide a new image for a labor movement personified by the cigar-chomping Meany for 24 years.

Philosophically, Kirkland's views are akin to those held by Meany, and the AFL-CIO is not likely to change its positions on national issues at the winter meeting.

The executive council is expected to press for full-employment policies, expanded social programs and increased military spending in response to the Soviet thrust into Afghanistan, just as the late labor leader might have urged.

The council also has shown no desire to alter Meany's longstanding policy of political neutrality by the AFL-CIO during presidential or congressional primaries. Although individual unions are free to endorse candidates for party primaries, the AFL-CIO endorses only party nominees.

Kirkland, a Meany protege for many years, is demonstrating a style of leadership that AFL-CIO officials say is quite different from his predecessor's domineering and blunt manner.

Federation officials say Kirkland has encouraged more debate among executive council members than had Meany, developed closer links with lobbyists from unions that do not belong to the AFL-CIO, and has been more restrained in his criticism of federal policies that other labor leaders say will send unemployment rising in 1980.

Kirkland was a chief architect of last fall's national accord between the AFL-CIO and the Carter administration. The labor federation agreed to support Carter's anti-inflation program in exchange for a larger say on other economic policies.

In the months since then, Kirkland has been supportive of President Carter's foreign policies and quiet about Carter's domestic policies.

"When you buy participation in the process, you have to be restrained in your public criticism," AFL-CIO spokesman Allen Zack explained.

Yes! Cuthbert is one-way street

By KAY HORD
Staff Writer

Cuthbert Street, between Garfield and Ward Streets, became one-way a month ago. At every corner are signs saying One-way and Do Not Enter.

And yet, some Midlanders persist in entering that forbidden territory, according to police.

"A lot of those we've stopped," said Police Chief Wayne Gideon, "say 'I'm sorry; I just unconsciously went down the street.' They're just not thinking and they turn down the street while looking right at the signs."

It's not that motorists have no warning of the one-way street. Turning off Andrews Highway onto Cuthbert, a driver comes face-to-face with a striped barricade. It stands across one lane,blocking the way and sporting bright red and white Do Not Enter signs and stark black and white arrows sterning pointing One Way.

Each intersection in the section of Cuthbert from Ward Street to Garfield Street also is marked with Stop, Do Not Enter and One Way signs.

The problem seems to stem primarily from the intersections, which have no barricades blocking the way.

"It's much improved, but we are continuing to work that strip," Gideon said.

"We are issuing several tickets per day for violations of the one-way ordinance and speeding, but it's beginning to work very well."

According to the police chief, the worst times for violating the one-way law is during morning and evening rush hours.

"As more and more use it (the street) and become accustomed to it, voluntary compliance is better. But there are still those few that are not (complying)," he noted.

However, Gideon foresees more one-way streets in the future as traffic becomes heavier.

Lt. H.M. Wicker, head of traffic division, said violations in the three- to four-block Cuthbert area now average "a couple a day." Since the 10-day warning period, police have issued 29 citations on that section.

"There are probably more violators than that," he said.

Police also have been working radar on this section of Cuthbert. But, according to Wicker, speeds are not any greater since the section went one-way than before.

"The tickets don't indicate any greater amounts of speed violations. We got some pretty good ones before and we're getting some pretty good ones now," he commented.

Speed limit on Cuthbert between Garfield and Ward streets is 30 mph.

Despite the problems with motorists now, Wicker believes the one-way ordinance will work.

"Drivers can move more safely now because they're going one direction, and the street is wide enough for manueverability. I think it (one way on Cuthbert) will be safer."

According to Doug Vanover, city engineer, two accidents have occurred this year in the section of Cuthbert that is now one-way. But both of those accidents happened before the one-way ordinance went into effect.

Do Not Enter, the three signs say, but motorists apparently look the other way and drive where they wish, as police and city officials are discovering with the new one-way section on Cuthbert Avenue. The city erected a barricade with a multitude of signs to direct motorists away from the one-way street. A few drivers still fail to heed the warnings, police say. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

City, firemen break off talks

CHICAGO (AP) — Talks between striking firefighters and the city broke down early Saturday after the union rejected a proposal to submit their contract to binding arbitration. Firemen walked picket lines for a third day, and Mayor Jane Byrne said the city was in "anarchy."

Negotiators for the Chicago Fire Fighters Union and the city emerged from a 12-hour session with federal and state mediators and declared that they were at an impasse.

No new negotiations were set, and the city renewed its threat to seek contempt citations against union officials for defying a back-to-work court order.

State Circuit Court Judge John F. Hechinger summoned all parties in the dispute to his court in an effort to resolve the stalemate.

The judge, who signed a temporary restraining order Thursday ordering the firefighters back to work, said, "If I can cool tempers ... the issues are not that great."

At a news conference Saturday afternoon, an angry Mrs. Byrne declared that Chicago is in "anarchy" because of the firefighters' strike and said she had initiated disciplinary action against strikers.

The city's personnel board will decide whether strikers will be fired or otherwise disciplined, but the mayor said that if she had her way, "Never again will they wear a blue shirt of the city fire department."

"Let me further serve notice that no clout, no fix, or any kind of political pressure will be useful in any of these dismissal situations," she said.

The mayor also said she has asked city personnel officers to start recruiting new firemen to replace the strikers and that the recruits be placed on the job as soon as possible through "crash" training programs.

Mrs. Byrne also said the city was taking steps to strenghthen fire protection by assigning sewage and streets and sanitation department workers to "auxiliary" fire duties.

Two fires that left more than 60 persons homeless and the deaths of two persons, who relatives said could not get speedy ambulance service, raised the issue of the adequacy of fire protection for the 3.5 million residents of the nation's second-largest city.

Pecan pruning, garden sessions slated this week

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

Better weather returned to the West Texas area last week, allowing resumption of land preparation activities on farmland. The slight moisture received from the snow Feb. 8-9 helped keep surface moisture in fair to good condition and permit tillage operations to minimize erosion hazards.

THE MIDLAND PECAN GROWERS Association and Texas Agricultural Extension Service will sponsor a pecan pruning demonstration Monday, beginning at 4 p.m. at the Davis Pecan Orchard, located on County Road 1221 South, one mile west of South Midkiff and south of Interstate 20 south access road.

The demonstration will be presented by Dr. Michael Kilby, area Extension horticulturist from El Paso. A similar demonstration was held at the Davis orchard last year and is being repeated at the same location so that results of pruning on young trees can be observed. The pruning demonstration will include techniques in the training of young trees as well as older, bearing trees.

At 7:30 p.m., following the pruning demonstration, a meeting will be held in the Community Room of the Commercial Bank and Trust Co., Wall Street and Andrews Highway, on care of pecan trees in the home yard. Both meetings will be open to the public.

LANCASTER GARDEN CENTER and the County Extension Landscape Horticulture and Turf Committee will sponsor a program Tuesday on Home Vegetable Production and Landscaping for Energy Conservation. The program will be presented by Charles Green, county extension agent, and begin at 9:30 a.m. at Lancaster Garden Center, 1705 W. Indiana St.

Production of vegetables for home use is becoming more popular, and the program will cover soil preparation, selection of adapted varieties, planting dates and methods, irrigation techniques, and insect and disease control.

Use of windbreaks, proper placement of deciduous and evergreen trees and shrubs and other techniques in landscaping for energy conservation in the home will be covered. The public is invited to attend this meeting.

A 1978 SURVEY by Gardens for All on home gardening in America reveals the average family food garden is 620 square feet, or about 25 by 25 feet. The most popular vegetable grown is still tomatoes, followed by beans, onions and lettuce. About as many home gardeners rely on organic growing methods (no synthetic chemical fertilizer or pesticides) as practice chemical gardening.

Community gardening attracts nearly 2 million people, primarily in the cities and suburbs. Eleven percent of all the processed (canned, frozen, dried) fruits and vegetables consumed in the United States in 1978 were processed by home gardeners. The value of home gardening came to $14 billion, and 17 million family units participated in gardening.

RESEARCH CONDUCTED in Utah shows that an acre of milkweed produces the raw stock for nearly 1,000 gallons of gasoline. Frank Matta, superintendent of the Espanola Valley Branch Station, Alcade, is studying the feasibility of producing milkweed commercially in New Mesico. As part of his research, Matta will determine how well milkweed responds to cultivation, how many times it can be cut a year and when the most fluid is in the plant.

Making gasoline from milkweed is a simple process. Plants are harvested and baled with the same equipment used for alfalfa. Then the weeds are put through a shredder, where the latex milk in the sword-shaped leaves and woody stems is drawn off. The residue is then distilled to gasoline and other petroleum distillates.

Auditors' report cites GSA waste

By ROBERT PARRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Services Administration wasted at least $1.2 million through improper contract awards and bad management in the building of a prison in New York state, according to a GSA draft audit report.

The draft report, obtained by The Associated Press on Friday, said irregularities in the construction of the federal prison in Otisville, N.Y., raised suspicions that favorable treatment was given to some contractors.

GSA sources said the audit findings also indicate widespread waste continues at the government's giant building and supply agency despite more than two years of investigations of GSA corruption.

Those investigations have led to more than 100 convictions of government officials and contractors, mostly for bribery and kickback schemes.

In the draft report, GSA auditors said the total waste on the Otisville prison could far exceed $1.2 million since they examined only $8 million of the $21.3 million in construction contracts.

"The discovery of deficiencies of a similar nature in all the contracts selected for review prompted our decision to discontinue our audit and report to top management at this time," the auditors said.

"We feel that had we examined additional contracts, we would have come to the same ultimate conclusions."

The auditors recommended "a thorough and comprehensive analysis" of the New York office's construction management division and "disciplinary actions where warranted."

GSA Administrator Rowland G. Freeman III said Friday he was "very seriously concerned with the facts and findings" of the audit and ordered GSA's commissioner of public buildings to recommend "appropriate action" within 30 days.

However, Roger McNamara, a construction management official in GSA's New York office, termed the audit's allegations "not true" and said "every point will be refuted." He declined to discuss individual charges made in the audit.

The audit noted that the Otisville facility, which is still incomplete, is more than one year behind schedule and is about $1.8 million over budget. Otisville is located about 50 miles northwest of New York City.

The report contends the successful bidders on four of the major prison contracts apparently received favorable treatment in the awards, resulting in substantial extra cost to the government.

Cattlemen ready for Beeferendum

Forty-seven Midland County cattlemen have registered to vote in the Beeferendum next Tuesday through Friday to determine if they want to institute a self-help program to promote beef sales and hike profits by way of beef research, advertising and public education.

Statewide, 40,320 cattlemen have registered at Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices, where voting will take place.

"We are pleased with the registration turnout," said O.J. Barron, a Spur rancher who is co-chairman of Beeferendum, an acronym for Beef Research and Information Board.

In 1977, beef producers turned down a similar proposal, which then required a two-thirds majority approval for passage. That year, 56.5 percent of the nation's 231,000 voting cattlemen said "yes" to the proposal. This year, however, only a simple majority can effect passage of the proposal.

Beeferendum has drawn opposition from the generally at-odds Texas Farm Bureau and Texas Farmers Union. Both maintain that the Beeferendum will be ruled by a select group which may in turn be strongly influenced by the federal government and that cattlemen already have a self-help program through the National Livestock and Meat Board, which is supported by voluntary contributions.

The Beeferendum, however, would be funded by a 20-cent charge per $100 sale on each head of cattle and would generate between $30 and $60 million annually, according to Barron. However, opponents of the program say the revenue could be as high at $60 million.

Pecan growers schedule tree pruning program

The Midland County Pecan Growers Association will sponsor a pecan-tree pruning demonstration at 4 p.m. Monday in Davis Pecan Orchard. The orchard is off Midland County Road 1221 South, which is one mile west of South Midkiff Road and south of Interstate 20.

Heading the demonstration will be Dr. Mike Kilby, area horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at El Paso, and by Charlie W. Green, Midland County agent for agriculture.

The orchard affords an opportunity to demonstrate pruning techniques involving trees of various sizes, from very young trees to trees that are relatively large.

Following the demonstration will be a seminar "on the care and feeding of yard trees, pruning, and which kinds — varieties — of trees do best" in different types of soil, said RB Henderson of the pecan association.

Kilby will conduct the seminar at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Community Room of Commercial Bank & Trust Co. Those wishing more information about the demonstration and seminar may contact Henderson at 682-6744 or Midland County Agent Charlie Green at 682-9481.

Farm incomes rate below money earned from oil

COLLEGE STATION — Agriculture income in Texas accounts for only 1.9 percent of the state's total personal income, while oil-related income accounts for better than 4 percent of personal earnings, according to Dr. Charles Zlatkovich of the Center for Strategic Technology at Texas A&M University.

The study tends to dissolve the myth about Texas's legendary wealth coming from oil and agriculture. Instead, manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade, and services are the three greatest sources of personal earnings at 15.5, 14.9 and 11.7 percent, respectively. Government earnings amounted to 12.7 percent.

Zlatkovich's study comes from an analysis of the state's 24 planning regions, including the 17-county Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

"The figures for agriculture are going to be very surprising to many people," he said. "There are a lot of people who expect it to be much higher in Texas."

Mining, including oil and gas production, is the leading source of personal income in the Permian Basin region, which takes in counties of Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reeves Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winker.

The Midland-Odessa metropolitan area accounts for 55 percent of the region's 322,000 population.

The aggregate personal income for those 322,000 people is $2.3 billion, the study indicated. And the mining sector in the Permian Basin accounts for more than 5.5 times as large a portion of regional income as it does across the state.

The Permian Basin accounts for about 2.5 percent of the total state population and for about 2.7 percent of Texas's total personal income.

World's cotton demand bolsters 1979 prices

AUSTIN — An "extraordinary" worldwide demand for cotton has bolstered cotton prices paid to producers, who in 1979 harvested the largest Texas cotton crop since 1949, said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

"It is expected that total worldwide cotton consumption will hit 63.8 million bales for the marketing year 1979-80, which would top last year's record level by almost a million bales," he said.

The commissioner noted that the demand for Texas and U.S. cotton has been "extraordinary at times and has helped keep average prices in the 55-cent per pound range for Upland cotton. The price-depressing effect of such high production has not been as severe as it might have been without this overseas demand."

The 55-cent per pound figure represents the averge price paid for all grades of cotton. Some cotton prices have been somewhat lower — in the high 40s — and some has been pegged at 70 cents a pound.

"The name of the game is to sell," Brown said, "and we are doing everything we can to stimulate sales of Texas cotton," he said.

Greenwood 4-H hears method, gardening talks

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood 4-H Club discussed sausage selling and heard talks on gardening and method demonstration at its recent meeting in the home of Mrs. John Williams.

Mark Graham discussed method demonstration. Brian Morgan, Tim Rusert and Christy Peterson gave a demonstration on gardening.

Spelunkers near start of Mexico cave venture

By KEN HERMAN

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Spelunkers who hope to challenge the world cave depth record this spring will have to make friends with suspicious Indians who have cut ropes cavers use to climb back to daylight.

"There are lots of unfriendly people there," said Bill Stone, a member of the Huatla Project. "They've chopped our ropes while we are in there. They don't even like other Mexicans."

About 20 spelunkers will head for the Oaxacan highlands of Northern Mexico this month to prepare for their descent into the Huatla cave system, which one explorer compared to a massive block of Swiss cheese.

"It's one of the few things in the world you can do where you can say, 'I was the first one to ever be there ... and maybe no one will ever go back again,'" said Mark Minton, an organic chemist and spelunker.

"This is the Journey to the Center of the Earth stuff," said Bill Stone, a structural engineer who is also an experienced member of the Huatla Project.

The Huatla Plateau is about 6,000 feet above sea level. Over hundreds of thousands of years, the drainage from large closed valleys has formed the awesome underground system that descends to the Gulf of Mexico. There are multiple surface openings and the cave system branches out and spreads underground like the roots of a tree.

The Indians of the area are superstitious about the spirits they believe live underground, Minton said.

"If there's a drought, they think we caused it," he said.

However, the spelunkers have made some friends in the area and anticipate no problems this trip.

Once underground, Stone said the party hopes to make the underground connections they think will give them a good chance of breaking the 1,350-meter record set in France.

"If we make the two connections it will be 1,340 meters. That's not enough, but we know there's more down there," said Stone.

Most of the members of the party have been to Huatla before and know what they are facing, including underground streams and long drops.

"Unclimbing," Stone called it.

The effort will actually begin with a trip to Mexico City to explain the project to Mexican government officials.

"A lot of people are afraid we are taking artifacts. They always think gold," Stone said.

The first descents into the caves will be used to rig the underground system with the ropes needed for the exploration. A day's work often will be a good bit longer than the normal 9 to 5 grind.

"You don't get tired in the caves like you do when you know it's 5 p.m. and the sun is going down. You get tired because you are getting tired," said Minton.

"It's great," he said. "You can sleep for 26 hours and work for 40 hours. There's no indication time is passing."

AUSTIN, Texas: is passing."

The calendar watch was a great advance for cavers.

Each descent can last for weeks. Stone spent 16 consecutive days underground during one of his five visits to Huatla.

And, despite the stereotypes, life in the 60-degree underworld is not bad, the cave hunters say.

Color slides of their trips to Huatla back them up. The pictures show the spelunkers rappelling down past naturally polished and banded marble.

Camps are set up, often in huge underground chambers.

Stone, whose spelunking started with "crawling around in muddy holes in Pennsylvania," ran into one of the occupational hazards of caving during one of his Huatla trips. His group overstayed and ran into the rainy season that begins in June. There were some anxious moments in flooded cave passages before everyone made it to the surface.

The Huatla Project members will navigate with maps compiled during previous trips.

If you enumerate, Uncle Sam wants you

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

If you're looking for short-term employment in Midland, Jerry Butler has just the job.

To qualify, you need to be at least 18 years old — or 16 if you already have a high school diploma.

You must pass a timed written test that determines your ability to perform basic mathematics calculations and capability to follow written instructions.

CENSUS '80 APRIL 1

Next requirement is to fill out an application form concerning physical abilities and background data.

Necessary for the job is the ability to walk and climb stairs and good eyesight to read small print. Speaking and hearing normal conversations is another requirement.

The last requirement is to have an automobile and a valid driver's license.

Provided all the requirements are met, you can go to work for the federal government — as an enumerator or crew leader for the 1980 census.

That's right. It's time once again for the decennial census and Ms. Butler, field operation assistant for employment for the Lubbock regional Bureau of the Census, is looking for some part-time workers in Midland.

Testing for census takers began here about three weeks ago and already about 15 qualified applicants have been found, Ms. Butler said. But more are needed.

About 50 workers will be needed in the Midland-Odessa area, she said. But for every worker hired, the census bureau needs to have about four qualified applicants on file to replace those who might quit before the job is completed.

In total, she's looking for some 200 qualified census takers in the Midland-Odessa area.

Bilingual applicants particularly are needed, she stressed, but so are individuals "who can work in their own cultural area." Students would be welcome as long as they meet all the requirements.

Health of the applicants is important, Ms. Butler said, because "it is pretty hard work for the two to four weeks" estimated to take the census.

For the most part, census workers hired here will work only in Midland, she said.

Anyone interested in this short term employment may contact Ms. Butler in Midland City Hall's basement conference room at 6 p.m. Tuesday or at the Texas Employment Commission conference room at 1 p.m. that day.

That's when the next series of tests will be given, she said.

Salary for an enumerator is $4 an hour. But the employee must be willing to work just about all hours, including evenings and weekends, to survey residents when they are at home.

Crew leaders serve in a supervisory capacity over a team of enumerators who do the actual canvassing, she said. They are paid $4.20 to $4.50 an hour.

All employees will work 40 hours per week.

Workers will be trained in the Midland-Odessa area, she noted, and will receive a "flat fee" for the training period.

Work begins after April 1, the date the census questionnaires are scheduled to be mailed back in by Midland residents.

The census takers will follow-up to determine why some individuals have not mailed their census forms back to the bureau. They will be assigned to work in the areas in which they live, she said.

"We are urging all residents to participate in the census because congressional reappointment and federal aid, among others, are the foremost reasons for the census and an accurate count is needed," Ms. Butler said.

She noted that information collected via the census is strictly confidential. All respondents are protected under Title 13 of the U.S. Code, which guarantees that none of the information collected by way of the census can ever be used against the respondents.

Virtually every household should receive a census form by March 28. The Midland count, which will be conducted primarily by mail, will be performed in the same manner as 90 percent of the United States, Ms. Butler said.

And the preliminary results should be known by June or later. That's when regional census centers will release some data and temporary district census offices, such as Lubbock's, will begin to close.

Power outages blamed for riot

CHINO, Calif. (AP) — Several hundred inmates in five units at the California Institution for Men vandalized their dormitories because they had no television and had to eat cold lunches during long power outages, a prison spokesman said Saturday.

When a lightning bolt knocked out electricity at the medium-security prison Friday night, for the second time in the day, many of the 375 prisoners in five open dormitories began a fire-setting, furniture-breaking, soap-throwing frenzy that lasted until 2:30 a.m., said spokesman Marvin Ryer.

No one was injured, and there was no damage estimate, he said.

"Basically, they tore up plumbing, busted windows. It was vandalism, like kids who go in and bust schools," said Ryer. "Lightning had caused the electricity to go out at 10 a.m. and it was out all day until about 5 p.m. Then it went out again at 6:30. They were fed sack lunches at dinnertime instead of a hot meal. And they had no TV. You don't turn off people's TV nowadays."

When correctional officers backed by local law enforcement personnel moved in to regain control in the five units at 2:30 a.m., inmates of three other blacked-out dormitories were in bed, sleeping. Those inmates had taken no part in the rioting and their quarters were not damaged, said Ryer.

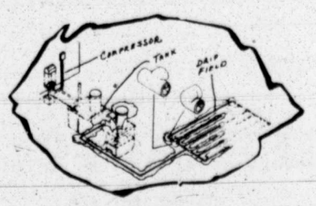

The inmates from the five damaged housing units were moved to an already-overcrowded central facility Saturday and bedded down in the gym and television room. Ryer said that situation cannot last for long, but since other state prison facilties are overcrowded, the inmates can't be bused elsewhere immediately.

The Chino prison is used as a transfer and processing facility for every man who enters the California prison system, except those subject to the death penalty. Ryer said the men who went on the rampage were transients, waiting to be sent to other prisons.

Farmers changing tactics in '80 rally

WARRENTON, Va. (AP) — Some of the farmers bound for the American Agriculture Movement's return engagement in Washington planned to start off their drive for farm-price parity and alcohol fuels with a rally here Sunday.

"But I don't think of it as a kick-off," said Don Patterson, the group's Virginia coordinator. "Different groups have split off and are doing a number of things instead of coming across the country in one cohesive parade."

The mood, tactics and goals of this year's gathering in Washington promise to be different than 1979's tractorcade rally, when farm vehicles snarled the capital's traffic for days, Patterson said.

"Last year the emphasis was on the quantity of people. We feel we never got around to the real job of educating and lobbying becauuse we were so busy fooling around with tractors in the streets," he said.

"This year we are getting people who are skilled in doing that work on Capitol Hill."

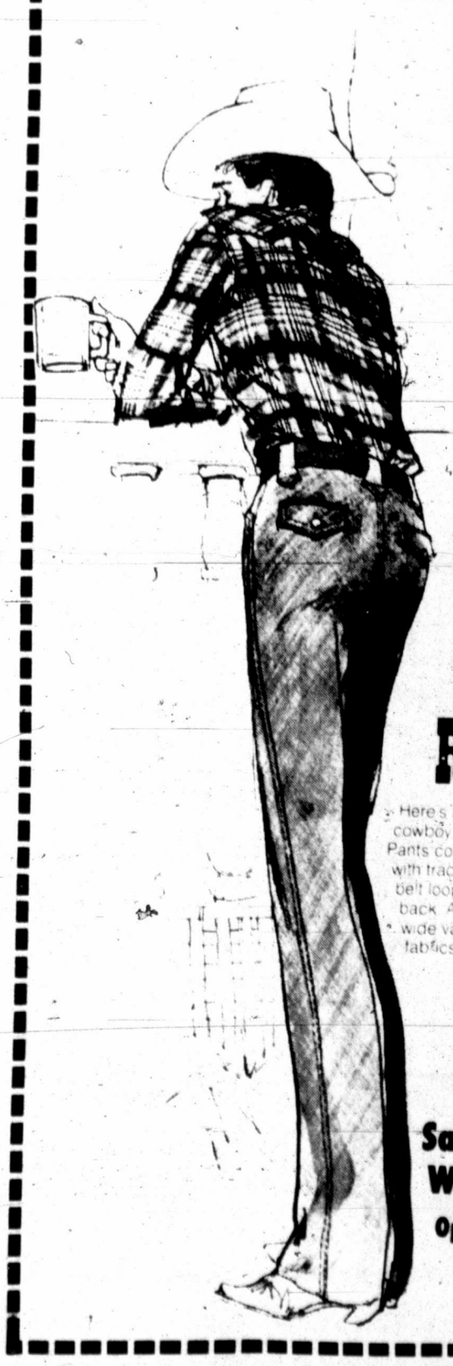

A group of farmers from the Texas area arrived in Warrenton, a northern Virgina town 50 miles from Washington on Saturday. A contingent from Virginia and other southern points will join them Sunday, but Patterson wasn't sure how many would be at the barbecue and rally or in Washington during the group's convention this week. Formal sessions are to be held Tuesday and Wednesday.

Patterson said some farmers can't afford to make the trip, a lot of farmers have simply gone out of business and many are spending the winter months getting fuel-alcohol stills going.

Government support for the production of alcohol for fuel is a new and top priority for the movement this year.

Many of the vehicles the farmers are driving to Washington are running on gasohol or pure alcohol, and the group has permission to set up four stills on the Capitol mall to demonstrate fuel alcohol production.

The farmers are still calling for 100 percent parity on farm price supports and will lobby for two bills now in Congress that would grant 90 percent parity.

Clayton's Brilab testimony delayed

HOUSTON (AP) — Under fire from several quarters for media "leaks," the first week of "Brilab" testimony ended without an appearance by Texas House Speaker William Clayton.

The federal grand jury hearing testimony on the FBI's year-long insurance kickback and political bribery investigation decided Friday to adjourn until next month.

Clayton was slated to appear before the jury last week, but his attorney had scheduling problems and the speaker's appearance was delayed until March.

Another key figure, union official L.G. Moore, lost his bid to avoid making an appearance and entered the grand jury room Friday.

Neither Moore, regional director of the International Union of Operating Engineers in Houston, nor attorney Mike Ramsey would say what, if anything, Moore told the jurors.

Russell "Rusty" Kelley, Clayton's executive assistant, appeared before the panel Friday and testified for about three hours, his attorney, Frank Maloney, said.

"I think we're through. Period," said Maloney, when asked if Kelley would testify again. Maloney said his client declined to invoke the Fifth Amendment during his testimony.

Kelley was pulled into the "Brilab" net after Clayton was accused of accepting $10,000 last fall from Moore and informant Joseph Hauser in exchange for his efforts to obtain a lucrative insurance contract for state employees.

Also appearing Friday was Houston City Council member Jim Westmoreland, who had appeared earlier in the week. Asked why he was called back by the panel, Westmoreland said, "I guess they forgot to ask a question."

He said he was "trying to cooperate with the government" in its investigation.

Tom McDade, Westmoreland's attorney, and Ramsey both filed sealed documents with the panel Friday. Although neither would reveal the contents, sources said the documents may contain allegations that Brilab agents illegally taped conversations.

Ramsey had earlier attempted to get Moore's appearance quashed because of what he called news leaks by the government's "secret police."

Solar energy workshop slated

LUBBOCK — A technical workshop on solar energy will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on successive Saturdays — Feb. 23 and March 1 and 8 — in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The workshop is being co-sponsored by the Texas Tech University's department of engineering technology, the West Texas Solar Energy Society and the Texas Tech Center for Energy Research.

Conducting the sessions will be Dr. C.E. Teske, president of the West Texas Solar Energy Society and a member of Tech's engineering technology faculty.

The workshop will be geared for architects, engineers, builders, contractors, lending institutions, real estate agents, public utility officials and educators. Fee for the three sessions is $50 per person.

The technical sessions are designed to enable participants to develop skills necessary to perform technical and economic feasibility evaluations and detailed designs of solar systems for residential and smaller commerical buildings.

"...Understanding the principles of solar-energy design and life-cycle cost analysis are necessary for the success application of solar system," Teske said.

The workshop will review principles of solar radiation, collection and energy storage, cost estimating, heating and cooling calculations, detailed design by the "f" chart method, economic life-cycle cost analysis and case studies of space heating and hot-water applications.

Those interested in the workshop may contact Tech's department of engineering technology at 806/742-3538.

BY DON HARVEY REALTOR

HOW TO BECOME A MILLIONAIRE

It could easily have cost you $64,000 to buy the average new home last year. Still, more than a million households a year eagerly buy new houses, and many consider the purchase the buy of their lives. To hear them express their happiness, just ask.

The primary advantage, they tell you, is that a house is a shelter for your family as well as an investment. Home prices appreciate faster than the cost of living, they'll tell you-and they are correct.

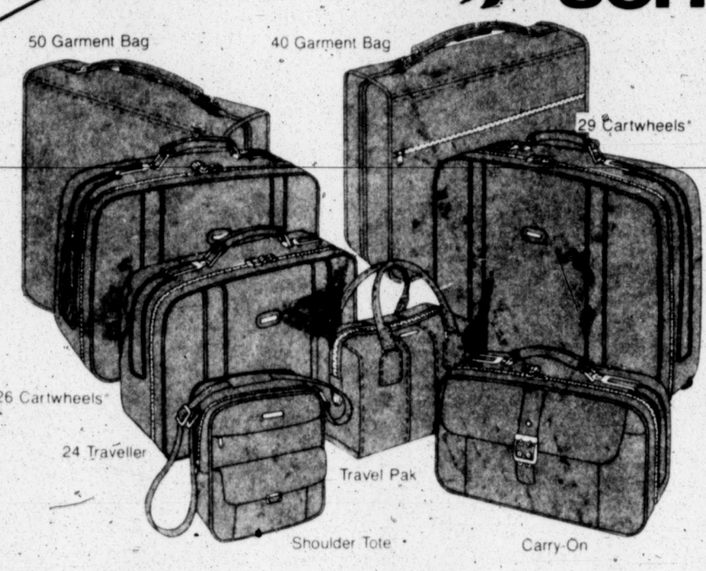

Assuming that housing inflation is just 1% greater than inflation in general, Mr. Homeowner might might point out that 1% extended over 35 years means that his $64,000 house will be worth $90,662. And that is in "real" dollars-dollars that can buy what's on the store shelves today.

In printed dollars, 35 years from now (based on an inflation rate of 10%) that same $64,000 house would be worth $1,798,556. Thus if we hang in there long enough, inflation will make millionaires out of today's homeowners. Only problem is, that 35 years from now beef could be selling for $100 a pound. But how many of us own a cow?

RAMCON OFFICES BREAK SALES RECORD

Ramcon's Midland/Odessa offices broke all previous sales records during the month of December & January while recording 56 sales for a total sales volume of $2,983,931.00 according to Marketing Director Harry Hilgers. Hilgers cited the Bond ZMoney as the primary reason for the healthy sales as well as other innovative financing plans utilized by Ramcon to lower dramatically the monthly payments.

President Scott Moore described the Midland/Odessa market as "somewhat unique" as contrasted with other areas in the state. "our other offices in Abilene and Austin, although healthy, have not enjoyed the booming growth of our home base". Moore attributes Midland/Odessa's growth to the "somewhat questionable dichotomy of the O.P.E.C. crisis and the resultant growth create on the domestic front". According to Moore, "Ramcon will start 200 new homes in the Odessa/Midland area during the coming year". Moore cautions the local homebuyers to disregard rumors of price decreases. "Unfortunately, there is simply no way prices can be lowered on new homes, nor on the cost of money", said Moore. Moore advises each resident to "buy immediately" to forestall the average increase in values which will be "on the order of 18%" annually.

Tito's condition worsens

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The condition of Josip Broz Tito appeared to worsen Saturday as doctors reported the 87-year-old president-for-life suffered from "considerably weakened" kidneys.

The medical bulletin by the eight-doctor panel at Ljubljana Medical Center, where Tito has been hospitalized since Jan. 12 with circulatory troubles and a leg amputation, said the aging leader's condition "continues to be serious."

"The function of the kidneys has considerably weakened. Intensive medical treatment is being continued," it said. The kidney weakening sparked fears Tito might suffer from uremic poisoning if his kidney's fail to perform their blood-cleaning function.

As Tito's condition deteriorated, officials pressed forward with preparations for his state funeral, which was expected to bring an array of world leaders to Belgrade.

Crews worked beneath spotlights after midnight Saturday clearing an area of southern Belgrade near the Museum of the 25th of May which houses memorabilia from his long career. May 25 is the date of Tito's official birthday. His real birthday is May 7, but during the confusion of World War II it came to be celebrated by his partisans on May 25, and the date stuck after the war.

Yugoslavia's official Tanjug news agency repeated the bulletin several times on its English language service. Previous announcements during Tito's hospitalization were not repeated.

The statement followed unconfirmed rumors in the capital that doctors were using a dialysis machine, aiding the kidney function, to treat Tito. Doctors so far have declined to specify officially what "intensive measures" of treatment have been employed.

Tanjug also reported that Tito was visited Saturday by two representatives each from the Communist Party leadership and the nine-member State Presidency, which would succeed him as head of state.

Speedup sought at TMI

By H. JOSEF HEBERT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators began Friday to look for ways to speed up the decontamination of the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear reactor, indicating some concern the plant in its present state may pose a safety risk.

Three members of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said the pace of the cleanup operation at the Pennsylvania reactor should be reexamined immediately and a report issued within two weeks. The staff was told to begin its reexamination within hours.

The plant's Unit 1 reactor has been inaccessible for nearly a year. It contains nearly 1 million gallons of highly radioactive water, radioactive Krypton 85 gas and a core which is believed to be heavily damaged and in a fragile state because of the accident last March 28.

THE NRC and the utility estimate workers will not be able to gain access to the damaged core until early 1983 and not complete the cleanup until well into 1984. Only about one-tenth of the radioactive water in the reactor has been decontaminated so far.

Victor Stello, director of the NRC's office of inspection and enforcement, told the commissioners there is reason to believe the cleanup operation could go faster than it has been going. He indicated the NRC itself might be partly to blame because of inaction.

Stello, who went to Three Mile Island Thursday to investigate two minor leaks of radioactive gas this week, said the NRC must answer the question: "Is there a way that (the decontamination) can be done faster."

TWO NRC commissioners expressed concern the reactor in its present sealed state may pose a greater safety risk than if some controversial cleanup procedures were begun now. Those procedures would lead to releases of radioactive material, but below dangerous levels.

The NRC and owners of the plant near Harrisburg, Pa., have been at odds, for example, over how to get rid of radioactive Krypton 85 gas in the containment building. The utility wants to gradually vent it into the air. But the NRC has not yet given approval to do so, though the agency contends such venting would pose no health danger.

Commissioner Joseph Hendrie said radiation caused by such a gradual release would be comparable to one-tenth of the radiation dose received from natural background sources.

IT IS "JUST beyond belief in a supposedly educated and rational society" that the two minor releases of radioactive gases this week would cause an uproar, Hendrie said, but then added:

"The events of this week show we must get on with it and get the fission products out of the waste and out of the gaseous environment where they can leak if somebody makes a mistake or some machinery fails."

"As long as that (radioactive) gunk is there (inside the reactor) it presents a risk to public health and safety," added Commissioner Richard Kennedy.

Commissioner Victor Gilinsky warned that a re-assessment of the cleanup operation might show that a quicker pace is not warranted. He conceded "its something that we ought to take another look at."

LAST FALL the NRC issued a tentative time schedule for cleanup going into mid-1984. The Bechtel Power Corp., which is the prime contractor for the cleanup, said this week the project would take four more years and cost $400 million to $485 million.

WORLD BRIEFS

Leftists kill three police

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — Left-wing militants battled security forces in hit-and-run attacks in several parts of this Aegean coastal city Saturday, killing at least three policemen, police reported.

The fighting, among the most serious disturbances in Turkey in the past few years, followed a week of sporadic violence sparked by the police storming of a factory. Leftists had occupied it to protest the firing of 11,000 workers.

A police source said government forces have taken control of the key Gultepe district after a day-long battle, and virtually wiped out resistance in some other areas.

But in other parts of the city, riot police and troops were still under sniping fire from gunmen believed to be leftist militants opposed to the three-month-old government of Premier Suleyman Demirel.

Survivor reports live burial

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — A 19-year-old woman claimed Saturday that guerrillas of Robert Mugabe's party beat her and four other villagers and buried them in two shallow graves because they attended a rally held by rival guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo.

She said she and her uncle survived by playing dead and then clawing out of their graves, but three of the villagers died. They included her sister and cousin, she added.

The account followed a series of violent incidents marring the fragile six-week-old cease-fire, including an attack early Saturday on the offices of Abel Muzorewa, prime minister in the former black-led coalition government.

Lebanese president pleads for unity

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Elias Sarkis made an emotional appeal Saturday for national reconciliation as fierce fighting was reported between Christian militias and Syrian peacekeeping troops north of the capital. Three government ministers threatened to resign if the fighting did not end.

Fighting raged for the fifth straight day around the town of Knat, 50 miles north of Beirut, where Syrian troops mounted a house-to-house search for militiamen of the Christian Phalange Party, witnesses reported.

Haughey says time running out

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Charles Haughey declared Saturday that "time is running out" to find a peaceful solution in strife-torn Northern Ireland. But he warned the Irish Republican Army its violence has no place in unifying the British province with the Irish republic. Haughey made the statements at the annual conference of his Fianna Fail party. It was his first major policy speech since he succeeded Jack Lynch as prime minister Dec. 7.

Despite his reputation as a hardliner, his speech to the 5,000 party delegates was conciliatory. He appealed to Britain for a start of negotiations to bring about a unification of Northern Ireland with the republic.

'Retired' Trudeau leading in polls

TORONTO (AP) — In an abrupt reversal of political fortunes, the "retired" Pierre Elliott Trudeau appears to be leading his Liberal Party toward victory in parliamentary elections Monday over a conservative government that took power in Canada just nine months ago.

A Gallup poll released Saturday gave the Liberals a wide edge over Prime Minister Joe Clark's Progressive Conservatives — 48 percent to 28 percent among decided voters.

Chinese welcome New Year

PEKING (AP) — Opera in the park, a solar eclipse and the constant din of fireworks on a bright Saturday enlivened China's celebration of the Lunar New Year and the beginning of the Year of the Monkey.

In a New Year's greeting, Chinese leaders called for Taiwan to join China, saying they were confident the island and mainland would jointly celebrate the new year sometime in the 1980s.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

New technique can help stop smoking

Dear Reader: Some months ago I responded to a question concerning a new technique I was developing to help people stop smoking. I noted that I would be happy to provide physicians with details of the procedure if they would write to me. To say the least, the response has been overwhelming.

I have already received more than 16,000 inquiries from doctors and the general public, and I am answering them as fast as I possibly can. Even under the best of circumstances, however, it would be some time before I would be able to get around to answering everyone. Therefore, I am taking the opportunity to respond to your inquiries through this column.

You will be interested to know that a major five-part series on the procedure, which I call "nicotine neutralization," will soon be published. While these articles will address the subject in more detail, I would like to summarize my experiences with a technique that could prove to be a major public health breakthrough.

Although as a physician I have always been concerned about the health hazards posed by smoking, my interest in the subject was heightened when a 42-year-old man who had survived a massive heart attack was referred to me for a program of diet and weight control. Despite his realization that his three-pack-a-day habit was in part responsible for the heart attack, and the knowledge that continued smoking posed a serious threat to life, he was unable to stop. It was this patient who first informed me of a single-treatment method to curb smoking that had been developed by a French physician, Dr. Michel Bicheron.

The news seemed too good to be true — and, I must emphasize, much additional research is needed before we can say that a cure for smoking has been found.

I placed a transatlantic call to Dr. Bicheron and eventually arranged to meet with him in his clinic in Paris.

I went to Paris in April of 1979. Dr. Bicheron informed me he had stumbled across the "stop-smoking" procedure quite by accident. A specialist in the treatment of arthritis, he had been injecting the affected joints of his patients with a mixture of vitamins, minerals and sodium bicarbonate in a procaine base — standard treatment for arthritis in Paris. Over the course of time, a number of his patients had informed him that the treatments appeared to decrease their desire to smoke.

Dr. Bicheron then began inquiring about other methods to curb smoking. One of his colleagues, an acupuncturist, claimed to have achieved some success by inserting needles at four acupuncture points — one in the outer aspect of each side of the nose, and one in the outer aspect of each ear. Dr. Bicheron decided that if the two treatments were successful when used independently of each other, they might be even more successful if used together.

His next step was to inject the mixture into the four acupuncture points rather than into the joints of his patients; and although their arthritis was not helped, they reported they had lost their desire to smoke.

I remained in Paris for a week, observed while Dr. Bicheron treated some 100 of his patients, and reviewed his medical records. My observations confirmed his claim of an 85 percent success rate.

I have modified Dr. Bicheron's technique and used it in my own practice, achieving an 88 percent success rate; 44 of 50 patients were enabled to stop smoking, 40 after a single treatment and four more after a booster shot. The modifications will be spelled out in some detail in the series of articles I mentioned.

Meanwhile, other physicians have reported similar success with nicotine neutralization. Both Dr. George Mogill of Wayne State University School of Medicine in Detroit, and Dr. Roger F. Palmer of the University of Miami, say that preliminary results of their work show the same approximately 85 percent success rate achieved by Dr. Bicheron and myself.

Midland High School senior Ami Brown, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Brown, has been named Junior Lioness of the week. At MHS, she is treasurer of the Student Council, and a member of the National Honor Society, varsity volleyball team, Junior Council and Geology Club. She also is a member of the First Baptist Church and Young Life.

Klansmen stage rally

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Robed Ku Klux Klansmen rallied peacefully at the University of Texas to protest an appearance by Alex Haley, a demonstration one Klansman said was held because the black author spoke in a "building we paid for."

About 25 Klansmen took part in the campus demonstration Thursday night, including 18 garbed in the traditional robes. On orders of campus police, the demonstrators moved from the entrance of Texas Hall, where Haley spoke, to outside a library.

Haley, the Pulitzer prize-winning author of "Roots," did not see the demonstration. Asked about the protest, he said the Klan was exercising its right to free speech, "I guess."

Klan member John Rogers of Hurst, Texas, said, "We're not happy with Mr. Haley's appearance in a building that we paid for."

Rogers, 37, said white men and women were not properly portrayed in Haley's book, which traced the history of his family from Africa to slavery in the South to freedom.

Robinson makes copters cheaper

By RICHARD DORE
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Frank Robinson's dream has come true.

Back in college, Robinson dreamed of building a helicopter a person with an average income might afford. But 25 years ago, the idea of a personal helicopter was a fantasy.

Now, at 49, Robinson has seen his dream happen. He has made a personal helicopter which sells for half the cost of the next most inexpensive design.

"It is one of those lifelong things you work for," he said.

Until now, private helicopters were far more expensive than light planes, because of their numerous lightweight, precision parts.

"When I started out, I wanted to design a helicopter that would sell for about the same as a light plane. The helicopters were selling for almost three times that amount," he said.

Robinson's $20,000 helicopter expanded in cost somewhat, but its price tag of about $40,000 still places it far behind the $85,000 cost of other inexpensive helicopters.

A resident of Rancho Palos Verdes, Robinson spent 17 years working for helicopter companies before he left Hughes Helicopters in June 1973 to pursue his dream in earnest.

With the financial backing of Santa Fe Springs manufacturer C.K. LeFiell, Robinson quit Hughes and started on the detail design of his helicopter in his peninsula home.

"Much of the preliminary design had been done through the years, so I concentrated on the detail and even made some of the parts at my home," he said.

During the next two years, the helicopter grew. LeFiell had retired to Hawaii and had a well-equipped machine shop in the basement of his home.

"Every three months he would come back to the (mainland) and pick up some of the designs. He would go back to Hawaii, where he would make the precision parts in his basement, and then bring the parts back on his next trip."

In August 1975, Robinson's first prototype of the R22 helicopter was built. Last March, the helicopter was certified by the Federal Aviation Administration, and recently the FAA awarded an airworthiness certificate to the first R22 Robinson sold.

"Initially, the FAA will check and test each one. In about six months, we could qualify for a production certificate and they would test a sampling of the helicopters," he said.

Individual testing could become tedious as Robinson already has orders for 587 helicopters.

A lightweight machine at only 796 pounds, the helicopter holds two persons and can go about 240 miles on a tank of aviation fuel. It has a top speed of 118 mph and can fly up to 14,000 feet.

A set of dual controls allows the helicopter to be operated from either seat, and the doors are detachable. The cockpit is snug under an acrylic bubble and there is storage under each seat. Much of the engine is exposed the same as a dune buggy.

Robinson's company is in a 44,000-square-foot building in suburban Torrance, and he is producing one helicopter a week. Within a year, he said, the company will produce two helicopters a day.

'The Poker Session' cast taking rest

"The Poker Session," Midland Community Theatre's newest production, is resting on its laurels for a few days following opening presentations Friday and Saturday nights in Theatre Two of Theatre Midland.

Meanwhile, MCT's 1980 season-opening musical, "Mame," resumes performances in Theatre One at 2:30 p.m. today, following a few days' respite for cast, crew and musicians.

Next weekend, though, with both shows having performances, Theatre Midland may well be the busiest place in town — all the more so because the annual conference of Texas Non-profit Theatres (TNT) will be holding forth in the theater during the weekend.

Theatre Two, the small, rather cozy performing area inside Theatre Midland, seems the perfect stage setting for "The Poker Game," an engrossing, occasionally compelling, drama by Hugh Leonard. I think the drama might somehow be out of place, and lose some of its effectiveness, on a large stage, in a large auditorium.

To be frank, I enjoyed the cast of "The Poker Session" but was not especially bowled over by the play itself.

The cast certainly is a talented one. I marvel at the ability of all cast members to learn the massive chunks of dialogue in the drama — and after that, their ability to speak the dialogue with scarcely a bobble or lapse of memory.

There's a compelling kind of immediacy about "The Poker Session," and once you get the various relationships within the play sorted out, and the attendant clues all noted, it becames an interesting study of character-and-situation.

But the fact remains, it IS a talky tale!

Jerry Green is absolutely fine as Teddy, the catalyst in the play around whom all the dialogue, the understandings and misunderstandings, swirl and boil.

Teddy's friend and former fellow inmate in a mental hospital, Billy, is admirably and rather subtly portrayed by Darrell Ward, and Pat Voss is capable and believable as his proper and rather humorless mother.

I think Bill Schneider is extremely capable and convincing in his role of the stupid, scoundrelly Kevin, brother of Billy. Lori Skelton is excellent as Kevin's brow-beaten and not-too-bright wife, Fran.

Midland newcomer Beth Thomas, a theater intern at MCT, makes a strong and capable Irene, whom Billy loves despite the fact she is married to his best friend. Miss Thomas is quite good as an intelligent, coolly-compassionate person whose instincts for self-preservation are strong.

"The Poker Session" has been staged and directed by Dr. James This, a member of the faculty of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin. LaMoyne Bass is stage manager of the production.

The drama will have a performance at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, followed by presentations at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 2:30 p.m. next Sunday. There will be additional performances Feb. 28-29, March 1-2 and March 7-8. Seating for performances may be reserved through the MCT box office, 682-4111.

MC music department plans visits to four area communities on tour

The Midland College music department will visit four area communities during a tour Feb. 25-26.

Special concerts are planned at Greenwood High School and Stanton High School on Feb. 25. The following day there will be concerts at Monahans and Pecos.

Spokesmen said this is the second year for Midland College music students to tour area high schools, presenting a variety program that serves both as a public concert experience for the students and as a public relations and recruiting venture.

This year's tour is being coordinated by Don Haddad, a member of the MC music faculty.

Accompanying the music students will be representatives from the Midland College Student Senate along with campus leaders and members of the counseling and public relations staffs of the college.

Participating in the concerts will be Midland College Choir, the MC Stage Band and the MC Horn Quartet.

Southwest Ballet Center to hold auditions here for summer workshop

Southwest Ballet Center, a Fort Worth-based non-profit educational organization, will hold Midland auditions Feb. 24 for its summer workshop.

The 1980 workshop will begin June 9 and continue through Aug. 10, culminating in special ballet programs in Dallas and Fort Worth. Guest dancers from the Royal Danish Ballet are scheduled to appear in the concerts.

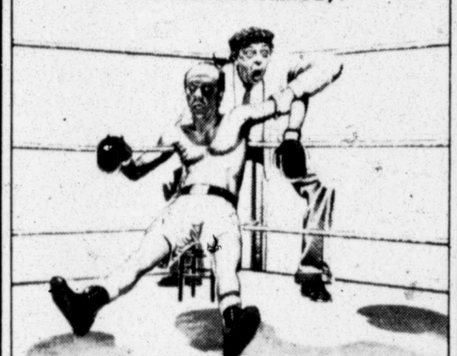

The faculty for the summer workshop will include Soili Arvola, Jeff Mildenstein, Susana Benevides, Leo Ahonen, Carla Stallings, Tom Orth and Bill Martin-Viscount.

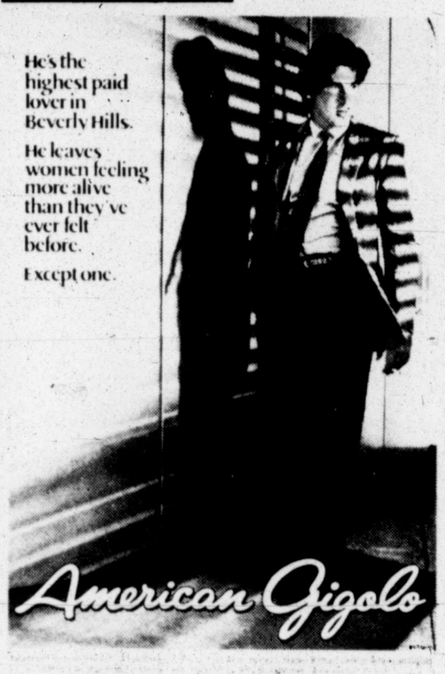

Martin-Viscount, director of Southwest Ballet Center, will conduct the Midland auditions at 7 p.m. Feb. 24 in the Bingham Dance Center in the Imperial Shopping Center on West Wadley Avenue. Scholarship assistance is available, he said.

Fonda to star in new series of NBC plays

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Henry Fonda stars in "The Oldest Living Graduate," a comedy-drama for a new NBC series of contemporary American plays.

David Rintels is executive producer of the project, which will present two two-hour plays this year and three or four thereafter.

Midland to host theater meeting

Community theater leaders from throughout the state will converge on Midland this coming weekend for the annual conference of Texas Non-profit Theatres.

The TNT organization lists on its membership rolls the non-profit community, civic and college university theater groups within the state. TNT is dedicated to improved theatrical offerings and increased audience involvement and appreciation of "live" theater.

The conference opens Friday at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., with Midland Community Theatre as host.

Special guests at the conclave will include Norman Nadel, past president of the Drama Critics Circle, who will be the key speaker. Nadel is critic and cultural affairs writer for Scripps-Howard newspapers.

A special scene design seminar led by nationally-known designer Paul Wonsek will concentrate on techniques of design and scene painting.

Other sessions on acting, mime and movement, theater budgeting, community involvement, audience-building and motivational techniques will be offered.

Leading these sessions will be Dan Bachmann, whose production last year won first place in the National Festival of American Community Theatres; Richard Fliehr, president of the American Community Theatre Association, and David Gooder, president of the American Theatre Association.

Among community theater leaders from various parts of the state who will be in attendance at the conclave are Bennie Nipper of Houston, William Larsen of San Antonio, Dan Hixson of Abilene, Marsha Moore of Colorado City, Richard Talley of Lubbock, Marilyn Pool and Virginia Jordan of Amarillo.

From Odessa will come Jim Reese, Janice Meyers and Coy Sharp, all representing the Permian Playhouse.

Representing Midland Community Theatre will be Arlen Edgar and Jim Salners, along with Art Cole, MCT executive director.

The three-day conference will be open to theater volunteers, students and professional and business people. Persons wishing to attend sessions of the conference are invited to contact Midland Community Theatre, 682-2544.

Two members of the National Shakespeare Company enact a dramatic scene in "Julius Caesar," one of three Shakespearean works to be presented during the 12th annual Shakespeare Festival at Odessa's Globe of the Great Southwest. The festival will run from late February to late March.

GGS setting final plans for Shakespeare Festival

ODESSA — Final planning is under way for the traditional Shakespeare Festival at the Globe of the Great Southwest.

This year's 12th annual event will be held from late February through late March, in place of the summer months.

Three of Shakespeare's finest and most engrossing works will be offered: "Much Ado About Nothing," "Julius Caesar" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The festival will open Feb. 27 with Shakespeare's matchless comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing." The production will be presented by the National Shakespeare Company, which will be in residence here for several weeks.

Opening the following night will be the National Shakespeare Company's production of "Julius Caesar."

The two productions will have a series of performances for the next several weeks until the third and final play of the festival, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," begins a series of performances. This production is being brought to the Globe Theatre by the drama department of North Texas State University in Denton.

The opening production, "Much Ado About Nothing," focuses on the use of deceit in a society where social appearance and pretense are valued more highly than honesty and truthfulness in human relationships.

Because the characters in "Much Ado About Nothing" are more concerned with public image than with honest communication, they are susceptible to manipulation by forces of evil. As a result, the play's hero, doubting the intentions of his friends and later the integrity of his wife-to-be, does, indeed, make much ado over nothing.

In addition to the Feb. 27 season-opening performance, "Much Ado" will have presentations on Feb. 28 and March 7 at 8 p.m., and March 9 at 2:30.

"Julius Caesar" will play Feb. 28 and March 6-7 at 8 p.m., with special morning matinees for students scheduled at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 28 and 29.

The third festival offering, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," will play March 20-23 at 8 p.m. and March 21-22 at 10:30 a.m.

For additional information on the festival and ticket reservations for the various performances, persons may contact the Globe box office at 332-1586.

NBC's TV critic starts his own Carson rumor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An interesting thing happened at the Johnny Carson rumor mill the other day. NBC's very own TV critic took to the stump and came up with a Carson rumor of his own:

Johnny doesn't want off of the "Tonight Show," he just wants to move it — or at least, part of it — to prime time.

This from Ron Hendren of the "Today" show. It should be pointed out that Hendren speaks for Hendren, and not necessarily for NBC.

Hendren reported this week that he'd come across the information in a trash pile at NBC Burbank, which is where he tapes his "Today" segments.

Although Hendren works for NBC and the NBC trash is probably at least as reliable as any other trash, it's difficult to believe that NBC would move Carson to prime time, especially when you consider the second part of Hendren's rumor:

If Carson moved his show to prime time, say, 9:30 to 10:30, Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow" show would move into Carson's old 11:30 slot. And Tom Snyder would come with it.

That's hard to believe. If Carson does leave "Tonight," NBC almost certainly would keep the "Tonight Show" variety-talk format, a form that earns $19 million a year in pre-tax profits.

The network would sooner keep "Tonight" and try a new host than move "Tomorrow" and Snyder into Carson's spot. Snyder's style is, to say the least, ill-suited for the friendly, send-the-viewers-to-sleep "Tonight" time slot.

What keeps the Carson rumor mill active is the protracted negotiation process between NBC and its restless late-night hero. The negotiations are active on two levels: in court, where Carson's lawyers are trying to declare his contract void, and in private bargaining sessions between Carson's lawyers and NBC executives.

The court case is a sort of arbitration called a general order of reference, in which a California Superior Court judge privately hears a civil case outside of the official operation of the court, although an order of reference is as binding as any ruling by the Superior Court.

NPS, CAAA to sponsor April art show at park

CARLSBAD, N.M. — The National Park Service and the Carlsbad Area Art Association will join in sponsoring an art show April 2-16 in the Carlsbad Caverns National Park visitor center.

This will be the ninth year for such a show to be held at the park and, as in previous years, entries will be limited to scenes or subjects found in, or typical of, either the Carlsbad Caverns or Guadalupe Mountains national parks.

Each artist will be allowed three entries which may be oils, watercolors, acrylics, pastels, graphics or mixed media works. A minimum size of 8 inches by 10 inches, excluding frame, has been set. However, there is no maximum size limitation.

Entries will be accepted and hung at the visitor center on the morning of April 2.

There were 92 entries from four states in the 1979 show, and 84 entries from two states in 1978.

Textbooks receive stiff going over before adoption

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

It's difficult to tell a textbook by its cover.

However, that book is judged by an intricate system of committees specialized in education on the state and local levels before it is adopted for use in a school district.

Parents, teachers and school administrators play a vital role in determining the most important tool a child will use in his education.

Even though the system may seem complicated and complex, it is designed so that everyone associated with the educational process has a part in the textbook's final adoption, according to Ralph Slagle, coordinator of textbook adoptions in the Midland Independent School System.

In the past, there has been controversy between parents' groups and education officials over the content of certain textbooks being used in the state's public education system, he recalled.

This year there has been little or no opposition to the adoption of textbooks in four subject areas: beginning and advanced typewriting, health education for high school, civil government for high school and automotive trades.

THE PROCESS for adopting a textbook in Texas schools begins at the state level. The Texas Commissioner of Education surveys local school authorities for subjects in which textbooks need to be replaced or where there are no textbooks, Slagle explained.

After determining the subjects for which textbooks are needed, he said, the commissioner solicits recommendations from local school authorities and his staff for personnel to serve on the State Textbook Committee.

These recommendations are approved by the State Board of Education, he continued.

In early May, the commissioner of education schedules meetings for the textbook committee and tells members what their duties are, Slagle explained.

Also, during this time the public is notified about the dates for public hearings.

EACH textbook committee member then appoints advisors to help him evaluate the books being considered, he said.

After reviewing and evaluating the proposed textbooks, the committee selects those books which will be adopted for use in the public schools, he noted.

During September, textbook publishers present their recommendations to the textbook committee, Slagle said.

Also during this time, the general public submits their comments and protests to the committee. Following the public hearing, the textbook committee selects and submits textbooks to the State Board of Education to be placed on the state list, he noted.

This multiple listing is a collection of textbooks approved by the state to be used for final selection and adoption by the local school district.

WHEN THE state board approves the list, the local assistant superintendent of instruction begins the process to select teachers and advisors for that school district's textbook committee, Slagle said.

After approval of committee members by the local school board, the public is notified as to who is on the textbook committee, the multiple listing of textbooks from which the adoptions are made and the dates on which the selections are made, he further explained.

School principals then set up meetings with various classroom teachers who study the textbooks and make their recommendations, Slagle said.

The assistant superintendent for instruction arranges for meetings by the publishers, he continued, to present textbooks to the local textbook committee and their advisors.

BEFORE THE textbook is presented to the school board for final approval, a series of public meetings are scheduled. This gives the public a chance to protest against any book on the state multiple listing, he said.

Local citizens wanting to appear before the committee must request in writing to the superintendent their desire to comment on the textbooks in question.

Following the public hearing, the textbook committee then selects those books which will be presented to the school board for approval.

When the superintendent and school board approves the textbooks to be used in the upcoming year, the Texas Education Agency is notified of the selections so they can be purchased.

The state purchases the books and delivers them to the various school districts, he said.

This system, claimed Slagle, is the best one for adoption because it involves a number of checks and balances which allows for input by everyone associated with the education system.

Like a merry-go-round gone crazy

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Nestled in the foothills south of Santa Fe, the cold, gray walls of the New Mexico State Penitentiary still hold some of the inmates who witnessed, and survived, the most savage prison riot in U.S. history.

Two weeks have passed since rebellious convicts seized control of the state's lone maximum-security prison, grabbing 14 guards as hostages, turning on one another and devastating most of the penitentiary in a 36-hour reign of terror.

It was a merry-go-round gone crazy.

INMATE SLAUGHTERED INMATE, ignoring pleas of fellow prisoners to "stop this killing." One inmate was beheaded. Another had a steel rod shoved through his head. Blowtorches were used to inflict punishment and death. Half of the guards were hospitalized, but miraculously, none was killed.

Thirty-three inmates died and about 70 were injured.

As the mother of one of the dead said, "I feel like the demons of hell were turned loose in Santa Fe."

Questions have flown fast and furious in the days following the takeover. What were the underlying causes for the riot? How did the prisoners gain such easy control? What made them turn on one another? How can the prison be rebuilt to avoid a future outbreak?

And the recovery continues.

About half of the 1,134 prisoners have been transferred to institutions in other states. Many of those moved out were "hardcore" criminals who needed maximum security incarceration New Mexico could no longer provide.

Evidence is being gathered to prosecute leaders of the bloody uprising and members of an execution squad that some inmates said roamed the prison in search of victims, many of them prison "snitches" — hated informers.

THE STATE HAS PLACED a $19.4 million price tag on rebuilding the prison.

Felix Rodriguez, deputy criminal justice secretary and a key negotiator with inmate leaders during the siege, said he was depressed when he first entered the prison during the uprising.

"I opened this pen up in 1956" said the former warden. "It was depressing to see the state it was in — it was really bad."

The riot began the morning of Feb. 2 when a group of inmates, whom officials said were drinking home brew in a dormitory, overpowered two unarmed guards. They then broke into the prison control room by shattering bullet-proof glass that had been recently installed, despite warnings that it was not impenetrable. Internal locks, communications, utilities and keys to other cells were inside. The prison was theirs.

Gov. Bruce King activated the National Guard, and city and state police threw up roadblocks and surrounded the penitentiary.

Meanwhile, inmates who had lost their taste for revolt filtered out of the prison buildings and isolated themselves on the prison baseball field.

Officials considered storming the prison early in the takeover after inmates who got out told of the atrocities being committed inside the walls.

But, said Col. Bill Fields, commander of the Guard troops, "our primary concern was that they had the hostages and we wanted to do everything we could to get them out alive."

AT ABOUT 1:45 P.M. SUNDAY, a heavily armed SWAT team and National Guardsmen entered the prison. About 100 inmates walked out of the prison and laid down on the ground. The final three hostages got out unharmed. And not a shot was fired.

The horror stories that followed were staggering to the imagination. But not to those who witnessed them firsthand.

Inmates said a seven-man execution squad used blowtorches, metal rods and axes to torture and kill fellow prisoners.

"I saw some people cutting a dude's eyes out with a cutting torch," one inmate said.

Margaret Babcock, a prison secretary, said that while she was watching through binoculars near the prison fence, inmates inside yelled for her attention so she could watch as they tortured another inmate with a blowtorch.

"I heard some whistling and I looked over toward the cells and they just had a torch and were burning somebody's head," she said. "Four or five men were holding one man down and burning his head and face with a torch. He was screaming. I couldn't believe it. It was like a nightmare."

Inmate Billy J. Payne said he saw one inmate simultaneously hanged and beaten and then stabbed with a screwdriver.

"I didn't think anybody could be so inhuman," he said.

SEVERAL BLACK PRISONERS said the riot was sparked by racial tension.

They said they banded together to escape murder from groups they called the "Mexican Mafia" and "Aryan Brotherhood."

Dr. Marc Orner, the prison psychologist, said there was evidence that racial hostility and personal grudges were behind some of the deaths.

"None of us really understand what happened in there," he said.

"The depth of the violence is incomprehensible to me both as a human being and as a psychologist," Orner said.

"Each individual does have worth in and of himself"

Ford

Ford puts its money where the mileage is.

MAKE YOUR BEST DEAL ON ONE OF OUR POPULAR HIGH MILEAGE 1980'S AND FORD WILL SEND YOU A CHECK FOR UP TO $500.

$500 ON THUNDERBIRD

18 EPA EST. MPG 26 EST. HWY. MPG*

Receive a check for $500 when you buy a new Thunderbird. Beautifully redesigned for 1980. And powered by a new, efficient 4.2 liter engine.

$300 ON FAIRMONT

23 EPA EST. MPG 38 EST. HWY. MPG*

Receive a check for $300 when you buy a new 1980 Fairmont. Room for five, high mileage and a practical price have helped make Fairmont one of America's best-selling mid-size cars.

BEST C.A.F.E.

Ford has the best Corporate Average Fuel Economy of any major U.S. car maker. C.A.F.E. is the government's measure of auto companies' progress in gas mileage each year. It is an average using the EPA rating system and projected 1980 total model year car sales mix as submitted to the U.S. government in December, 1979.

Only Ford among the major U.S. companies ranks first on this basis.

Remember, C.A.F.E. is an average, so consult EPA ratings for individual car's mileage.

* 1980 EPA ratings for comparison. Your mileage may differ depending on speed, distance and weather. Actual highway mileage will probably be lower.

HURRY!

Take delivery between Feb. 11, 1980, and March 22, 1980, and receive a check directly from Ford Motor Company, or apply an equal amount to your down payment. Offer good at Ford Dealers only on new 1979 and 1980 Thunderbirds and Fairmonts, including dealer-owned demonstrators.

OFFER EXPIRES MARCH 22.

KNOW WHY VESPA'S OUR MOPED?
IT'S SIMPLE.

Riding a Vespa moped is almost as easy as saying "giddy-up." Even the first time you get on one. The controls are very simple. And so is the whole design. For instance, Vespa has a belt drive, which is one part. Other mopeds use chains, which have hundreds of pieces.

A Vespa is cheap to feed – gets up to 160 mpg. Or push a button and pedal for free. Test ride a Ciao* Bravo or Grande. We think you'll agree Vespa's the logical choice – pure and simple.

*Say "chow." Italian for "hi."

Lee, Permian snare 5-4A swim titles

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

Midland Lee's boys and the Odessa Permian girls splashed to District 5-4A swimming titles here Saturday afternoon at the Mabee Memorial Swim Center and 10 new meets records fell in the process.

Lee easily outdistanced San Angelo, racking up 95 points to the Bobcats' 35 while Permian scored 74 points to Midland High's 59 in the girls competition. Lee wound up third behind Permian and MHS with 49 points while in the boys competition, Midland High's Bulldogs wound up in a tie for fourth place with Permian, with both schools winding up with 31 points each.

THE FIRST SIX places qualify for the Class AAAA Regional Meet on the Texas Tech campus, Feb. 29 through March 1. In the regional, the top two qualifiers move to rugged state competition in Austin the following weekend.

Five of the new records were set by the female swimmers and the boys also set five new standards before a large crowd.

Cleve Carrens, led the Rebel boys to victory, setting a new record in the 100-yard butterfly competition with a clocking of 56.64 while the Lee 400-freestyle relay team, set a record with a time of 3:23.77.

The other three records were turned in by San Angelo's Stephen Templeton in the 100-yard freestyle race with a winning time of 50.16. (His qualifying time was even better at 49.73) while teammate James Buck set a new mark in the 500-yard freestyle race with a time of 5:07.91 and Big Spring's Morgan Wise set the other record in the 100-yard backstroke race with a time of 59.06.

Abilene's Toby Bane won the 100-breastroke title with a time of 1:09.20 while Toby Gunn of MHS finished second.

Lee's Mike Solari was second in the 500 free behind Buck.

Robin Franke of Lee, wound up second behind the record-breaking Templeton in the 100-yard free with a time of 50.31 while he picked up a first place medal in the 200-free with a winning time of 1:49.77.

The Rebels also won the 200-medley relay with a time of 1:47.72 and John Kimberly of Lee, was awarded the first place medal in the 50-freestyle with a time of 23.08. Jon Franke finished second behind Kimblery with a time of 23.39.

Carrens not only set a record in the 100-yard butterfly, but also swam to a first place finish in the 300-yard individual medley.

MIDLAND HIGH'S girls set a new record in the 200-yard medley relay with a time of 2:04.20 with Lee second with a timing of 2:07.50 while MHS' Carrie Mayes set two new records in the 100-breastroke competition and the 500-yard freestyle races with times of 1:12.55 and 5.44.12.

The other two girls records were set by Odessa Permian's Rene Yeilding and Leslie Ann Hitt in the 100-yard butterfly and 500-freestyle races. Miss Yeilding splashed to a record-setting time of 1:07.72 in the 100 fly and Miss Hitt recorded a time of 5:44.12 in the 500-free.

Permian won the 400-freestyle relay with a time of 4:03.39 with San Angelo second with a clocking of 4:14.78 while Miss Yeilding also won a first in the 100-yard breastroke with a 1:03.43 with Sara Stone of Lee second with a 1:13.53.

Yeilding kept up the winning pace by winning two more races to give the Permian athlete four first place medals in also winning the 100-yard freestyle and 50-yard freestroke titles. Miss Hitt added her second first place windup by winning the 200-yard freetsyle title too. Patti Bruton of Lee finished second behind Hitt while Lisa Clevenger of Abilene High was runnerup to Miss Yeilding in the 100-yard freestyle.

Heiden finds gold for second time

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Eric Heiden flashed to his second gold medal of the Winter Games Saturday in the 1,500 meters race and U.S. team hopes grew that he could pull off the first men's speed skating sweep in the history of the Olympics.

The U.S. hockey team swept to a 5-1 victory over Norway Saturday for its second straight victory in the Olympic hockey tournament and increased its hope for a medal. Marring the American record is a 2-2 tie with Sweden, but a silver medal was certainly possible after Thursday's victory over highly-regarded Czechoslovakia.

The personable 21-year-old Heiden, of Madison, Wis., beat Norwegian Kai Arne Stenshjemmet by nine-tenths of a second and the Norwegian coach immediately said the American has a chance for an unprecedented speed skating sweep.

"We tried today and we didn't succeed and we'll try again but I think he's got a good chance to win five," said Arne Leir.

BUT HEIDEN'S flashing skates didn't erase one of the greatest American disappointments of these Games. Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner, the figure skating pair who have worked for eight years to get ready to challenge for a gold medal, had to drop out of their event Friday night after Gardner fell three times in practice and aggravated a groin muscle pull he suffered two weeks ago.

The couple left the rink in tears and a controversy developed over a pain-killing shot Gardner took a few hours before the competition.

More than 100 telegrams of sympathy poured in Saturday and Randy's father, Jack Gardner, commented, "It's kind of a nightmare. It's a real letdown."

The American figure skating team was crushed. "I had a big lump in my stomach and had a nauseating feeling because I knew what pain he was going through," said David Santee, 22, of Park Ridge, Ill., who is the No. 2 U.S. men's figure skater. "I knew how hard they worked for this moment. It makes me want to work extra hard. I'm really going for a medal now."

Norma Sahlin, a coach for the American team, questioned the wisdom of Gardner's having taken the shot of xylocaine a few hours before the competition. "He should have gone on without medication, you're better off," she said.

GARDNER'S MOTHER agreed. "I wish now he had not had any medication. It would have been extremely painful, but he could have done it," she said.

The widely-used pain killer is not against Olympic rules and Dr. Anthony Dale, chief physician for the U.S. team, said it was administered "more for psychological purposes than anything else."

"If the shot was mainly for psychological reasons, why give it at all?" asked Sahlin. She added that in his warmups, Gardner looked on his spin jumps as if he had never tried them before.

All three U.S. medals through Saturday have come in speed skating — the two by Heiden and one in the women's 500-meter race by Leah Mueller. It is on the speed skating oval on Main Street in this Adirondack Mountain village that the American team is expected to win most of its medals.

No skater has ever swept the men's events. Ard Schenk of the Netherlands won three gold medals in 1972 in Sapporo when the Games included only four events. The 1,000-meter race was added in 1976.

A reporter asked Heiden if he thought much about all the talk about the sweep.

"It goes in one ear and out the other," he said. "I want to skate well. If I give 100 percent and someone beats me, I'm still happy. I know I've done as well as I can."

But Heiden said his chances are good in the 1,000 and the 1,500-meter races next week but the 10,000-meters "is pretty much up in the air because there's not been a lot of competition."

"It was nice to get one race over with that 500-meter yesterday," Heiden said. "I was a little more relaxed than yesterday. I didn't really start to feel tired until about five laps to go."

STENSHJEMMET SAID, "I got tired, that's all. I used my arms one lap too early. I tried to beat the man and I didn't do it. He's number one and I'm number two."

Heiden won the 1,500 in 7 minutes, 2:29 seconds to Stenshjemmet's 7:03.28. The bronze went to another Norwegian, Tom Erik Oxholm.

The Swiss team won its first gold medal of these Games Saturday when bobsled driver Erich Schaerer and brakeman Josef Benz overpowered the two-man field with consecutive times of 1 minute, 2.29 seconds and 1:02.44. Their combined time in four runs over two days was 4:09.36, compared to 4:10.93 for the silver medalist, Bernhard Germeshausen of East Germany. Meinhard Nehmer of East Germany won the bronze medal.

Anatoli Aljabiev of the Soviet Union won the 20-kilometer biathlon event Saturday in a time of 1:08.16.31. Frank Ullrich of East Germany, who finished second in 1:08.27.79, protested the result but the protest was not upheld. Aljabiev hit all four targets in the event which combines cross-country skiing with rifle shooting.

Ullrich protested because his penalty time for missed targets was three minutes instead of two. The competitors shoot four times each, twice standing and twice lying on the ground. They are penalized for missed targets. Eberhard Rosch of East Germany won the bronze medal.

In the luge event, Soviet Vera Zozulya protected a commanding lead with a final run of 39.12 seconds, the fastest time Saturday, to win a gold medal in the women's event. Her combined time after four runs was 2:36.54.

PETER STASTNYAND Milan Novy each scored two goals, leading Czechoslovakia to a 7-2 victory over Romania Saturday in the Olympic hockey tournament.

Transportation problems continued to plague the Olympic valley and New York Gov. Hugh Carey declared a limited transportation emergency here Saturday. State troopers blocked the three two-lane roads that lead to the outside world and began turning back everyone but ticketholders and local residents miles before the original Olympic checkpoints.

Today's events include the women's downhill ski race and the favorite was Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria, who posted the best times in training and has won six World Cup ski titles but never an Olympic gold. Also on the schedule were the 1,000-meter women's speed skating event, 70-meter ski jumping, the 15-kilometer race, and pairs and ice dance in figure skating.

Eric Heiden races for his second gold medal in as many days Saturday at Lake Placid. This one came in the 1,500 meter speed skating competition. (AP-Laserphoto)

Texas Aggies gig Longhorns, 84-61

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Vernon Smith and David Britton combined for 41 points to lead the Texas Aggies to an 84-61 win over the Texas Longhorns Saturday afternoon.

A&M jumped out to a quick lead and then dominated every aspect of the game. The aggies led in rebounding, 40-25, and had 21 assists to Texas' 6.

The Aggies sank 59 percent of their shots from the floor, compared to 40 percent for Texas.

The game boosted A&M's conference record to 12-2, while Texas dropped to 8-6. A&M is 20-7 for the season, while Texas is 15-9.

Smith sank 19 of his 21 points in the first half, which A&M led by as many as 14 points.

A&M's front line, known as "the wall" — Smith, Rynn Wright and Rudy Woods — hit 15 of 17 first half field goal attempts and out-rebounded Texas, 20-11. Woods scored 15 and Wright added 12 points for the win.

In addition to Britton's 10 first period points, he added three key assists and scored a total of 20 points, while the other guard, David Goff, contributed on five assists and one steal in the first half.

Texas was never able to mount a serious threat after trailing at the half, 48-36.

Texas' Ron Baxter, the game's leading scorer, hit 22 points, but the senior from Los Angeles could get no help from his teammates. John Danks who hit eight first half points was held to three points in the second half while freshman sensation LaSalle Thompson was held to nine total points.

"When this team goes bad, it's contagious. All of them go bad," Texas coach Abe Lemons said.

"That'll teach 'em for putting it on TV. That must have been a thriller at the end. People must have been turning over to watch Bambi or Walt Disney or something."

Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf called it a great win for his team "from the standpoint of bouncing back from the Arkansas loss."

"It showed character in the true Aggie tradition. We shot well, especially in the first half, and we needed such a performance because Texas is a team to be dealt with," Metcalf added.

He praised the play of Wright and Smith and said Dave Goff had the A&M offense well organized. But Metcalf said he wouldn't waste any time concerning himself about a rematch with Arkansas.

"Right now I'm just worried about TCU. I guess I'm just programmed that way."

Lemons had little good to say about his Longhorns.

"Our guys were dead. What else can you say? They played and we didn't. There was no in between about it. Just pick up the stats and they'll tell the story," Lemons said.

"I'm not surprised that they won. I'm just surprised with the ease with which they did it. Their bench strength was the difference in the first half, at least in the margin of their lead, although still it was a poor performance for us.

Raiders tip SMU

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two free throws by Jeff Taylor with 1 second remaining brought Texas Tech a 62-59 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night.

The victory moved the Red Raiders into a three-way tie for third place with Texas and Houston in the Southwest Conference basketball race. Texas lost to A&M Saturday afternoon, while Houston beat Baylor Saturday night.

All three have 8-6 records in their bid to grab the third bye in the conference's post-season tournament.

The Raiders charged from behind and apparently were on their way to a rout with seven minutes gone in the second half. Tech built a 17-point lead at 46-29 and then had to hang on as the Mustangs outscored the Raiders 30-16 in the final 13:05.

In fact, SMU had a chance to tie in the final four seconds following a Texas Tech turnover. With SMU trailing only 60-58, Billy Allen inbounded to Ollie Hoops, who was fouled by Ralph Brewster. Hoops missed the first try on a two-shot foul, but made the second to cut Tech's lead to 60-59.

Thad Sanders inbounded to Taylor, and he was promptly fouled. Taylor sank both free throws as time ran out.

Each team had three players in double figures, led by Taylor's 18. David Little had 14 and Brewster 12 for Tech, while freshman Dave Piehler paced the Ponies with 16. Brad Branson added 13 and Phil Hale 10.

Tech, after hitting only 48 percent the first half, managed 61.1 the second half and it was this hot shooting that enabled them to build the early 17-point lead.

SMU dropped off from 52.4 percent to 44.4 the second half.

Tech is now 14-10 for the year, and SMU dropped to 14-11. The Mustangs clinched no worse than a tie for sixth while falling to a 6-9 record.

SMU hosts Arkansas Monday night, and Tech hosts Texas Tuesday.

SMU coach Sonny Allen was disappointed over the loss.

"We came back and had a chance to tie it. We were just so far back. The final result was that we got beat and that's what counts. Tech played good defense. We were not aggressive enough on offense," he said.

Cougs nip Bears

WACO, Texas (AP) — Rob Williams and Larry Rogers led a second-half Houston charge Saturday night that carried the Cougars past Baylor 60-58 and into a third-place tie in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

Baylor led by as much as 11 points and carried a 28-20 lead into the second half.

Williams hit 14 of his 18 points in the second-half sprint, while Rogers connected for 10 in Houston's second-half rally. Rogers also finished with 18 points.

Rogers started the front end of a six-point barrage with 14:34 to play that netted the Cougars their first tie of the night at 35-all.

Rogers hit a 3-point play and hit a free throw after a technical foul, and Williams scored on a throw-in to deadlock the game.

Houston took the lead, at 41-40, with 10:17 to play and never trailed after that.

Terry Teagle led Baylor with 22 points, while Pat Nunley had 16. The victory raised Houston to 8-6 in conference play, tied with Texas and Texas Tech. The Cougars are 13-10 for the season.

Baylor dropped to 5-10 and 9-16 for the season.

Rice scares Hogs

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Young and Allen Zahn hit two free throws each in the final 15 seconds as the Arkansas Razorbacks held off the Rice Owls 77-73 Saturday night to remain in a first-place tie in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

The Hogs scored their final eight points on free throws to raise their record to 12-2, tied with Texas A&M, which beat Texas Saturday afternoon.

Anthony DeCello hit a 25-footer with 18 seconds to play to bring Rice to within 73-71, but Willis Wilson fouled Young, who hit both ends of a one-and-one free throw situation.

Kenny Austin scored a field goal to cut the score to 75-73, but only 3 seconds were left and the Owls had to foul Zahn in desperation after the inbounds pass. Zahn hit both shots to clinch the win.

Arkansas led by 35-28 at halftime, then stretched their lead to 48-38 with 15:39 remaining.

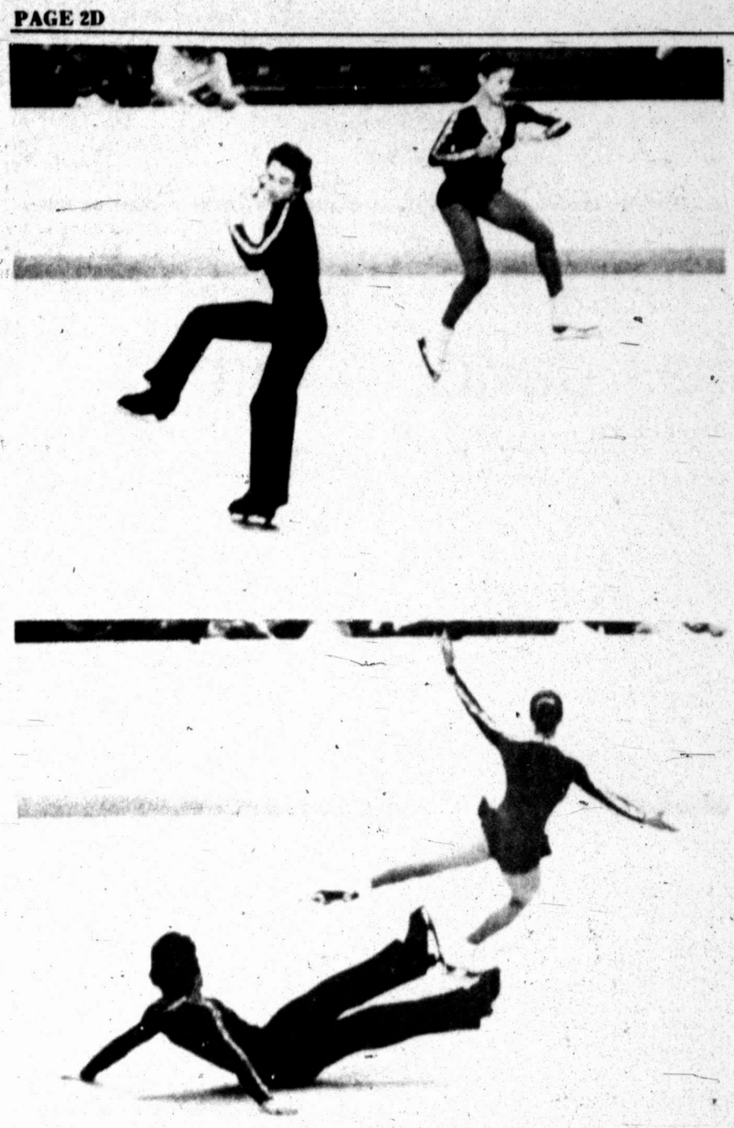

The Owls, with Ricky Pierce hitting 15 of his 27 points in the second half, slowly moved closer.

With six minutes remaining, Arkansas had stretched its lead to 10 again but Rice outscored the Hogs 18-12 in the closing minutes to narrow the gap to 2 points on DeCello's goal.

Arkansas was led by Scott Hastings with 25 points and a game-high 16 rebounds. U.S. Reed netted 14.

Bobby Tudor hit 17 points for Rice. The Owls are 3-11 in conference play and 6-17 overall. Arkansas is 19-5 for the season.

This was the tragic scene Friday for U.S. figure skaters Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner as they lost their hopes of an Olympic gold medal when Gardner fell several times during warmups due to a leg injury. (AP Laserphoto)

Gardner took shot before competition

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Randy Gardner raised yet another question about whether a pain-killing injection cost him and Tai Babilonia their shot at Olympic gold, when he said Saturday that he took the shot just 15 minutes before he was to compete.

"It was the first time I ever experienced a shot like that," said Gardner, 21, at a news conference a day after he and Babilonia, 19, were forced to withdraw from competition because of a groin injury Randy suffered in practice two weeks ago and then injured more seriously in practice here Wednesday night.

The pair withdrew after Randy fell three times in a warmup immediately preceeding what was to have been the beginning of their quest for the first American gold in pairs.

"I couldn't do two of the (required) elements because of extreme pain, so it was then I decided I had to numb it."

But with the numbing, Randy said, he lost feeling in his leg. "I couldn't feel my left leg, where it was in position...I couldn't feel the positions I was supposed to be in, but I didn't feel much pain either."

Anthony Daly, medical director of the U.S. medical team, said Randy's reaction to the shot, 3 cc's of Xylocaine, was "a reaction to the injury" and not the shot.

"The dosage was not great enough to give a numbing effect, but he blocked out the pain completely."

However, he admitted that the shot was a "last ditch" move that he was "not really in favor of. But Randy said he couldn't do it any other way.

"There was nothing else to do. Either withdraw, or try it, and he was such a courageous young man, we tried it."

Some people, including Randy's mother, Jan, disagreed with the decision to give a local anesthetic so soon before competition, especially when he had never used it before.

"I wish now he had not had any medication," she said. "It would have been extremely painful, but he could have done it."

Gardner, of Los Angeles, and Babilonia, of Mission Hills, Calif., said they had not yet thought about whether they would skate together four more years to again try for an Olympic medal, "but it's probably doubtful for 1984. We want to see the other worlds we have missed, the high school proms we didn't go to, the movies we didn't see during the week ..."

"But I'll get ready for the world championships," to begin March 11 in Dortmund, West Germany, indicating that he hoped to be back on the ice in about 10 days.

Although the Olympics has more prestige attached to it, Gardner said he and Tai would view the upcoming world event just like the Olympics if their most serious competitors, Soviet pair Irina Rodnina and Aleksandr Zaitsev, compete. "That's our big battle," he said. "We're going to be working for that."

During the news conference, the young pair were smiling and calm, philosophical about their loss here. But team leader Claire Fergueson said, "I'm sure they'll have plenty more tears at home, alone at night."

And they received lots of moral support, getting more than 400 telegrams from people they didn't know, and even a telephone call, from President Carter, who they missed speaking to.

One typical telegram of support came from the Nolan family in Sudbury, Mass:

"Tai and Randy, you won't take home the gold medal you deserve, but tonight you won the hearts of America with your courage and your pride. You both deserve the gold, for you are both golden people. Long life and love to the champions."

But there were still nagging doubts about the value, or harm, of the shot.

Mrs. Gardner said several hours before the injection, Randy was in his parents' hotel room "doing exercises: push-ups, touch his toes, situps...

"I just don't know what happened," she added.

Norma Sahlin, coach for Charlie Tickner, a favorite to win a gold medal in the men's event, agreed with Mrs. Gardner about the affect of the pain-killer.

"That's what we all think," Sahlin said about herself and other American skating coaches here. "He should have gone on without medication, you're better off."

At a news conference after the event Friday night, Daly said the shot had been given "more for psychological purposes than anthing else, but it still was not successful."

Lee cagers face Lewisville Monday

ABILENE — The chase to find the top Texas girls basketball team begins in earnest Monday night as bi-district action starts the hunt, and Midland Lee and Lewisville are two playoff tested veterans entered in the AAAA competition.

Lee, 25-8 on the season, will square off against Lewisville, 25-7, here Monday in the McMurry College gym at 7:30 p.m. in a first round playoff headliner.

Neither team is new to the playoff pressures and this bi-district contest should be a nip-and-tuck battle.

The Rebels of coach Shirley Stephenson will be making their third straight trip to the state playoffs after winning the District 5-4A crown every season since its creation of a girls league.

Lewisville, under the direction of Peggy Tate, has been in the AAAA playoffs in three of the last four years. Lewisville captured the District 6-AAAA title this season after missing a title run last year.

"We don't know a great deal about Lewisville, but we do know that they must be pretty good. When you get to this point, every team has to be at least pretty good or they wouldn't be here," Stephenson said.

"We think we have some good kids, and we just hope to do well. We'll just go out and play our game, and hope we have a little luck along the way. We have had a good bench all year and I think that has helped us. I hope that will be to our advantage in the playoffs too."

The Rebels will hit the court Monday with Leshia Watkins and Gale Wilson as the scoring and rebounding punch for Lee. The fortunes of the Rebels has to rely on how well these two play.

But the supporting roles will be important, and that's where the Rebels should have added strength. Tanna Parrish, Judy Taylor and Diane Strickling will join Wilson and Watkins as the starting five.

Lewisville won the 6-AAAA title after a 52-46 district playoff win over Denton. Lee won the 5-4A title by winning both halves of competition outright. Last year, the Rebs had to defeat Midland High in a district playoff to gain a state playoff berth.

Both teams report a healthy squad for Monday's matchup, and the winner will advance to the regional AAAA tournament with sites and dates still to be announced. However, that tournament is expected to be held again in Abilene next weekend. That has been the trend in the past few years.

Yankees' Guidry faces possible fine action

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Pitcher Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees faces disciplinary action and a possible fine because he participated in the made-for-television "Superstars" competition staged by ABC last December.

"We haven't taken any action as of now. We are considering it but we haven't done anything," Gene Michael, the Yankees' rookie general manager, said of possible action against the left-handed Guidry, who won $2,500 for his fifth-place finish.

John Schneider, Guidry's lawyer, said by telephone from Lafayette, La., that Guidry had not violated his contract.

MSA offers 2 leagues

The Midland Softball Association offers two slow pitch leagues for play this year — the Men's Spring Conference and the Spring Casual Conference.

Teams are now being formed and a Coaches Meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 26 at the Alamo Junior High auditorium.

Entry fee for the MSC is $250 plus $6 per player for a 21-game season to run from March 31 to June 27. Entry fee for the SCC is $100 a game plus $6 per player for a 12-game season beginning March 31 and ending May 30.

For admission at the coaches meeting, team sponsor and name; home phone and business phone of both coach and assistant are required as well as mailing address for schedules and standings and league preference.

Boosters plan meet

The Midland Cubs Booster Club will hold its first meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Coors Service Center on west Highway 80.

The Chicago Cubs 1979 highlight film will be shown as will a slide presentation of the annual Booster trip to spring training in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Applications will be accepted for new and existing members. Dues for 1980 season membership, family or individual are, again, only $15. The money is used to purchase food and beverages for Booster Club functions.

Membership in the Booster Club is one way to demonstrate support of the Midland Cubs, but it also gives the member an opportunity to meet and become acquainted with the players.

Washington strains tendon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Forward Kermit Washington of the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association will miss the team's home game Sunday night against Golden State because of a severely strained tendon.

Blazers' spokesman John White said that Washington injured the hamstring in his left leg during a 106-91 loss to the Boston Celtics Friday night. White said it was not known when Washington would return to action.

USOC resists pressure from Carter

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) - The U.S. Olympic Committee Saturday resisted pressure from President Carter to make a quick decision on boycotting the Olympic Games in Moscow.

Carter sent Lloyd Cutler, White House counsel, to the XIII Winter Games at Lake Placid to talk to Robert Kane, president of the USOC.

"Mr. Cutler asked us to bring our decision forward from April 11-13, when our House of Delegates will meet at Colorado Springs," Kane told the Associated Press. "He wanted us to make a decision now.

"We are sticking to our guns. We have stated what our procedures will be; and we will not change them. We told Mr. Cutler this."

Asked if the President was applying pressure on the USOC, Kane replied: "Yes, he is, but not very strongly."

Carter has given the Soviets until next Wednesday to pull troops out of Afghanistan. Otherwise, he said, he will not favor an American team participating in the Olympics, which are set to start July 19.

The USOC, playing for time and hoping the world situation will improve, said it had been legally advised the decision on sending a team to Moscow could only be made by its House of Delegates at the April meeting. It has until May 24 to submit its entry to Moscow.

After his meeting with Cutler, Kane went to see Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC). Earlier this week the IOC unanimously rejected a request by Carter that the Games be moved or cancelled, and confirmed they will go on in Moscow as planned.

Kane has said the USOC will put the national interest first and will accept Carter's advice, but will not make its decision now.

Some of the 73 members of the IOC who met here have now gone home. Others are staying through the Winter Games.

COLLEGE CAGE ROUNDUP

Tripucka hits 29 to pace Irish win

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Kelly Tripucka hit for 10 points and Orlando Woolridge added 14 in the first half as 12th-ranked Notre Dame whipped South Carolina 90-66 in college basketball Saturday.

Tripucka finished with a career-high 29 points to lead all scorers. The Irish led 38-21 at the half. Cedrick Hodges scored 24 points for the Gamecocks and became only the second South Carolina player to score more than 1,000 points in a two-year career. He has 1,009.

Notre Dame is 19-4 for the season and South Carolina is 14-10.

Purdue 69, Wisconsin 61 — Junior Drake Morris and sophomore Keith Edmonson scored 14 points apiece in the second half Saturday as 17th-ranked Purdue held off Wisconsin 69-61 to maintain a share of first place in the Big Ten Conference basketball race.

Morris finished with 19 points and Edmonson had 18 for the Boilermakers, who began the game in a four-way tie for first place.

Junior Wesley Matthews scored a game-high 30 points for the Badgers, who cut a 53-43 deficit to two points late in the game before Purdue started converting free throws to pull away.

Purdue climbed to 9-5 in conference play and 16-7 overall. Wisconsin slipped to 5-9 in league action and 14-11.

Syracuse 72, St. John's 71 — Silky Lewis Orr scored 29 points including a game-winning shot at the buzzer to lead second-ranked Syracuse to a high-pressure 72-71 Big East college basketball victory over St. John's Saturday.

The dramatic game-winning shot by the Syracuse forward, who also grabbed a game-high 17 rebounds, cooled off a St. John's comeback that had seen the seventh-ranked Redmen move ahead 71-70 on Reggie Carter's jump shot with 23 seconds remaining.

The Orangemen are now 22-2 on the year while the Redmen are 21-3.

LSU 73, Tennessee 66 — Guard Ethan Martin hit 25 points — nine of them from the free throw line — as Louisiana State University held onto its share of the Southeastern Conference lead with a 73-66 college basketball victory Saturday over Tennessee.

Sixth-ranked LSU got only one field goal in the final seven minutes of play. Holding a 10-point lead, LSU went into a spread offense and forced Tennessee to foul to get the ball.

LSU is now 20-4 overall and 13-3 in the conference. That gives the Tigers a tie with Kentucky, next Sunday's foe, for the SEC lead. Tennessee is 15-9 overall and 10-6 in the conference.

Clemson 78, North Carolina St. 70 — Center Larry Nance scored 24 points and grabbed nine rebounds Saturday to lead 10th-ranked Clemson to a 78-70 victory over Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina State.

Clemson got 36 points from the foul line, which included 16 of 18 free throws in the final four minutes. Guard Billy Williams scored 21 points for Clemson.

The Tigers, 18-6 overall and 8-5 in the ACC, led by as many as 11 points in the first half and 13 in the second as they snapped a seven-game winning streak by the Wolfpack, 18-6 overall and 7-5 in the conference.

North Carolina 68, Virginia 51 — Al Wood and John Virgil scored 14 points each and led a well-balanced scoring attack as No. 11 North Carolina rolled over Virginia 68-51 in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Saturday night.

Cavalier center Ralph Sampson was limited to 12 points, only two of them coming in the second half, and Jeff Lamp was the only other Virginia player in double figures, also with 12.

North Carolina increased its record to 19-5 overall and 8-4 in the ACC. Virginia dropped to 18-8 and 7-6 in the league.

Duke 66, Maryland 61 — Center Mike Gminski scored 21 points, six of them on free throws in the crucial last minute, to lead No. 16 Duke to a 66-61 victory over eighth-ranked Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Saturday.

Maryland, led by Buck Williams' 21 points, pulled to within one point six times in the second half. The last time was on a Williams' bucket with 1:07 remaining and the score 62-61.

But Duke, which got a 20-point performance from Gene Banks, maintained its poise, pulling away by three with 16 seconds left and by five at the buzzer when Vince Taylor made a layup after Gminski blocked a shot by Greg Manning.

Duke increased its record to 18-7 overall and 6-6 in the ACC. Maryland went to 19-5 overall and 9-3 in the league.

Ohio State 71, Illinois 57 — Ninth-ranked Ohio State, led by Herb Williams and Kelvin Ransey's 35 combined points, whipped Illinois 71-57 Saturday night to retain a share of the Big Ten basketball lead.

The victory gave the Buckeyes a 17-6 overall record. They are 9-5 in the conference for a piece of the lead with Purdue and Indiana with four games left for all three contencers.

Williams scored 18 points and grabbed 12 rebounds and Ransey, riddling the Illini zone, contributed 17.

Louisville 61, Cincinnati 57 — Derek Smith scored 18 and Darrell Griffith added 14 as third-ranked Louisville won its 17th straight game with a 61-57 Metro Conference victory over Cincinnati Saturday night.

The Cardinals, riding the longest winning streak in the school's history and 24-2 for the season, had to survive a second-half surge by Cincinnati which came to within one point, 56-55, on a field goal by Jeff Bentley with 4:08 remaining in the game.

DePaul 103, Butler 79 — No. 1 ranked DePaul, playing almost to perfection and getting a 30-point performance from sophomore Mark Aguirre, overwhelmed Butler 103-79 Saturday night.

The Blue Demons, 22-0, so dominated the game that, after 12 minutes were gone in the second half, Coach Ray Meyer pulled his team out of its full-court press.

Bernard Randolph added 16 points and James Mitchem 14 for DePaul, which won its 39th game in a row at home over a three-year span.

Howard Payne 100, SFA 89 — Marshall Davis poured 26 points and Joe Babineaux and Ronnie Phenix added 22 apiece to pace Howard Payne to a 100-89 victory over Stephen F. Austin in a Lone Star Conference basketball game here Saturday night.

The win lifts Howard Payne, ranked 15th in the nation in the NAIA, to a record 20-5 on the season and 10-3 in LSC play. Stephen F. Austin is now 14-11 on the season and 8-5 in conference play.

A laid-back approach seldom works in basketball, but this pair of dribblers, part of the Little Champs precision basketball team of Big Spring, managed to delight fans at Chaparral Center Friday night with a display of ball-handling skills during halftime of the Midland Lee-Abilene High basketball game. # Midland Cubs have a Mork, but alas, no Mindy

BY TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

What you see may not be what you get when the Texas League baseball season opens in April.

As the Chicago Cubs plunge into preliminary spring workouts in Mesa, Arizona, Midland Cubs General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., has received his Winter roster and there's a Mork on the team, which perhaps means the Cubs will be out of this world in 1980, but no Mindy.

Mork is Dennis Mork a 6-1, 195 pounder out of Santa Clara, Calif., who batted .325 for Sarasota last year in 123 at bats. The 22-year-old lefthander is one of three flychasers listed on the Cubs' roster. The others are Bruce Compton, 6-2, 185 from Norman, Oklahoma, who hit .183 in a brief stint with Geneva of the New York-Pennsylvania Rookie League. The third outfielder, Dave Stockstill, 6-0, 185 from Crane, Mo., hit .283 for Wausau last year, banging out 27 homers and knocking in 101 runs for the Midwest League team before joining Midland for the playoffs.

If you don't believe there will be some changes in the Cubs lineup before the season opens, maybe the fact that Jim Messmer is the only infielder on the roster will convince you. Messmer, 5-11, 185 out of Pittsburgh, hit .248 for Quad City, Midwest League last year.

Catchers currently on the roster are Bill Hayes, last year's regular who hit .300, backup Bill Evers, Seaford, N.Y., and Ted May, who hit .322 with Midland and .210 with Quad City last year.

Returning pitchers are Jon Perlman, 4-8; Mark Parker, 11-8; Joe McClain, 0-0; Bill Earley, 13-6, from last year's staff. Additions are Joey Cole, 2-0 Quad City; Ed Mohr, rookie out of Rib Lake, Wis.; and Chuck Rogers, 5-9 with Wichita. Rogers hurled for the Cubs before moving up to Wichita the last two years.

Members of the 1979 Midland Cubs who will be reporting to Chicago at Mesa include pitchers Henry Mack, 10-4, and Herman Segelke, 13-8; third baseman Mike Turgeon, .297; outfielder Carlos Lezcano, .326.

Recent vintage Midland Cubs with Chicago this spring will be outfielders Karl Pagel and Scot Thompson; infielders Steve Davis and Steve Macko; catcher Mike Gordon, and pitchers George Riley, Randy Martz as well as Dave Geisel, Mike Krukow, Dennis Lamp and Bruce Sutter from the 1975 Texas League champions.

Manager Randy Hundley will send Midland into its first exhibition game March 24 against West Haven at Tempe.

American hockey team knocks down big hurdle

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Coach Herb Brooks said his unbeaten United States hockey team "got over a big hurdle" Saturday, surviving a letdown from its emotional, upset victory over Czechoslovakia to post a 5-1 triumph over winless Norway at the 1980 Winter Olympics.

The American squad, nowhere near the hard-charging precision team that upset the Czechs Thursday night, got second-period goals from Mike Eruzione, Mark Johnson and Dave Silk to defeat the Norwegians and temporarily snap the first-place tie with Sweden in the Blue Division.

Brooks said he was upset over his club's lack of rhythm in the first period, during which Norway took a 1-0 lead.

"There always seemed to be one of our guys trying to take on their whole team," said Brooks. "We were expressing ourselves through only one or two people, so I tried to get them thinking a little bit."

The Americans apparently heeded the suggestion of their coach, with Eruzione, Johnson and Silk each scoring his second goal of the Games.

"Functionally, it was not all there," said Brooks. "What I liked is that we had some grinders to go out and work and grind out there."

Caldwell fires 65 to nab Tucson lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Rex Caldwell, who was playing so poorly he left the tour for a week recently to work on his game, fired an 8-under-par 65 Saturday to take the first-round lead in the rain-delayed, $300,000 Tucson Open golf tournament.

The 29-year-old Caldwell, gunning for his first tour victory, began Saturday's play in the middle of the fifth fairway, where he'd hit his tee shot when a storm halted Friday's play. He was already 2-under-par, having eagled the par 5 second hole Friday. He went on to make two long birdie putts on the front nine, then sliced four more strokes off par on the back.

His round over the 7,095-yard, par 73 Tucson National course gave him a one-stroke lead on Jim Colbert, who had completed the round Friday with a 66.

Another stroke back were Keith Fergus, Dave Barr, Dan Halldorson of Canada and Roger Maltbie. Fergus and Barr completed the opening round Saturday, while the other two recorded their 67s before the afternoon rain came the previous day.

Because of the rain, which completely washed out Thursday's play and more than half of Friday's, the second round will be played Sunday, with the final two rounds on Monday and Tuesday.

"This is beginning to look like a two-week tournament," said Caldwell, grinning. "And if it keeps raining in Los Angeles like it has been, we may even play the LA Open here in Tucson."

Talking about his game, Caldwell said he was so discouraged by his play in the first four tournaments of this year that he skipped last week's Hawaiian Open and spent the time practicing.

"I was playing so bad I just said 'To heck with it, I want to go home,'" he explained.

England duo upsets Yankees

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — England's Jo Durie and Debbie Jevans scored singles victories over Americans Anna-Marie Fernandez and Alycia Moulton Saturday in the opening matches of their under-21 World Team championship series.

Durie defeated Fernandez, 19, of Torrance, Calif., 6-3, 2-6, 10-8, in a two-hour, 15-minute match which opened the best-of-five competition.

Fernandez was leading the decisive third set 7-6 with a match point, but sent a backhand over the baseline to lose her service. Durie tied the score and went one point ahead, but the American evened the count at 8-8. Then the English woman took command to win 10-8.

Jevans had an equally tough time beating Moulton, 18, of Sacramento, Calif., 7-6, 7-5.

The British men's took a 1-0 lead against Sweden in their five-match series.

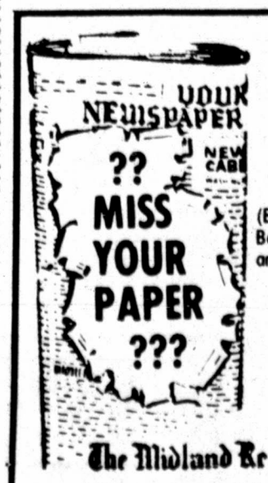

Matches Sunday will decide the titles in the competition known as the BP Cup.

Fin & Feather

If you haven't read the February 1980 issue of Outdoor Life, then you might be missing something very important that pertains to the future of Texas out-of-doors.

In an article written by Richard Starnes, and evidently researched to the point it could be an errorless manuscript, Mr. Starnes let the hammer down on the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Outdoor Life also sent out a news release regarding the article. We will print the release in this column and let you evaluate your own position on the subject. But in order to really determine the point of the story, you must also read the article before you can get an accurate picture of what Mr. Starnes is trying to say.

We have no say one way or the other at this point, because we are doing a little investigative work on our own, but should form an opinion on our own in the very near future.

WE CAN SAY one thing about the Outdoor Life article, if all or even most points of the story are half-way correct, then the Texas out-of-doors is in trouble. Take a close hard look at this news release and then read the story. We would like to hear your comments on this.

"Texas is a state which symbolizes the "wide open spaces" to millions of Americans. Yet, as far as the outdoorsman is concerned, Texas is disappointingly small. This is because of a do-nothing, politically appointed Parks and Wildlife Department that is not fulfilling its mandate of managing game and acreage for the benefit of the public.

"As a result, Texans and visiting sportsmen find slim pickings in the way of public hunting areas, a game management program that's politically dominated and a law enforcement division that is forced to spend much of its time patrolling land holdings of the wealthy.

"An article in the February issue of Outdoor Life documents the bureaucratic in-fighting and mangled priorities of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, as observed by Richard Starnes, the noted outdoors writer and longtime contributing editor of Outdoor Life.

"THE ARTICLE also represents a significant change in editorial policy for the 82-year-old magazine. Editor John M. Culler states that similar in-depth features will be a standard in future issues. "We're going to report important issues and developments that have an impact on sportsmen, in addition to talking about game and fish," said Culler. "This article by Richard Starnes is very important, we feel, because it alerts our readers in Texas and the Southwest to what we believe is an alarming situation."

"The current commissioners, being wealthy landowners, are loath to appropriate land that is desperately needed for public hunting and wildlife. Because of that kind of attitude, the second largest state has much less public hunting land than many smaller states. A penny-a-pack cigarette tax put into effect in Texas in 1970 just for the purpose of land acquisition by the state has accumulated $115 million, of which less than $20 million has been put to use.

"Author Starnes also points out the Department spends 49.8 percent of its budget on law enforcement, whereas this share should be more like 25 percent. This has spawned a third law force of game wardens who often work alongside the police and state highway patrols on matters that have nothing to do with parks and conservation. Scientific game and fish management is discouraged by the overly conservative bureaucracy, and a crazy-quilt system of county-by-county government overseeing of the Department results in such absurdities as seasons declared on particular animals in areas where they don't exist.

"On the other hand, Starnes points out these and other failings of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department have nothing to do with corruption. It's just mismanagement and a bad setup from the start, the author argues, and the Texas sportsman is footing the bill."

Now that you've got the basic idea of the story, entitled, "The Texas Fat Cat Game," it would be wise to read the article. At this time, we can't condemn or favor the words written by Mr. Starnes.

Please write me with your comments and they will be passed along to the Parks and Wildlife Department and Outdoor Life.

Simmons captures shot, discus titles

HOUSTON — Midland High's David Simmons, establishing himself early as a possible state meet candidate, took victories in the shot put and discus at the Brooks Invitational indoor track meet Saturday.

Simmons was the only Bulldog to place in an event, but that didn't spoil the Midland High head coaching debut of Johnny Williams, who seemed pleased by the showing of his young team in the prestigious meet.

"Overall, we were real impressed," said Williams. "It's a real good meet and I thought we did a real good job."

Of Simmons' victories, Williams said he hoped they'd "really put us on our way." The Bulldogs get their first outdoor invitational action of the season next weekend in Fort Stockton.

Senior Simmons uncorked the shot put a whopping 60-feet-4-inches while his winning heave in the discus was 153-feet-10-inches.

Another Bulldog weightman, senior James Lary, tossed the shot 47-feet, and whipped the platter 149-feet.

Williams said the performances of sophomores Greg Sotello, Jay Motter and Chris Yates were outstanding. Sotello clocked 4:43 in the mile run. Yates popped 19-feet-5-inches in the long jump while Motter soared 11-feet-6-inches in the pole vault.

Also in the pole vault, junior Jim Kemper cleared 12-feet-6-inches.

Sprinters Jeff Robnett and Billy Taylor "ran well" according to Williams, but neither made the final, which took the winners of the eight heats. Robnett flashed to a 10.1 reading for second in his heat while Taylor timed 10.1 for third in his heat.

In the high hurdles, Bruce Fisher sped to a 15.8 in his heat while Scott Yocham, making his first start in the event, did not finish but did a "real good job," according to Williams.

If there was a disappointment, it might've been that the Bulldogs missed the call for the mile relay and didn't participate in the event.

Terlingua loses Sierra Madre race

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — No No outlasted Midland's Terlingua and Always Gallanz to win the $44,950 Sierra Madre Handicap by a nose before a rain-drenched crowd of 22,389 at Santa Anita Saturday.

No No, ridden by Bill Shoemaker and carrying 115 pounds, covered 6½ furlongs on a sloppy track in 1:153-5 and paid $17.80, $6 and $3.20. The victory was worth $26,950 to composer Burt Bacharach, owner of the 5-year-old Maryland-bred winner.

Terlingua, the only filly in the field of seven, was second by a neck and returned $4 and $2.60. The 4-year-old daughter of Secretariat was ridden by Darrel McHargue and carried 117 pounds.

Always Gallant, the 3-2 favorite racing under top weight of 122 pounds including jockey Laffit Pincay, was third by five lengths and paid $2.40 to show.

Decker breaks world mark in Dome

HOUSTON (AP) — Phenomenal Mary Decker, running alone from the start, responded to the urging of a cheering crowd Sataruday night with a world's best time of 4:17.55 in the mile at the Astrdome Indoor Invitational Track Meet.

Decker's run knocked 11 seconds from the former indoor record of 4:28.5 set by Francie Larrieu in 1975. The run also was lower than Decker's world outdoor record of 4:21.7 set last month in New Zealand.

Decker said she had hoped to run a slower first lap.

In the men's 60-yard dash, Texas A&M's Curtis Dickey beat Cuba's Silvio Leonard and Olympic gold medal winner Harvey Glance with a hand-timed clocking of 5.9.

Dickey, who finished second to Texas' Herky Walls in the Southwest Conference Indoor Meet on Friday night, led from the start against the classy sprint field.

Leonard, a double sprint winner in last year's Pan American games, finished second in 6.1 and Glance was third in the same time.

In the men's mile, Steve Scott fought off a strong stretch kick by Villanova's Don Paige to win the event with a 3:54.20 clocking.

Permian squeaks by Cooper, 69-67

Odessa Permian and Abilene High took District 5-4A basketball victories Saturday night in makeup games that were cancelled eight days ago due to the ice and snow storm that hit West Texas.

Permian escaped with a narrow 69-67 victory over Abilene Cooper in the Permian Fieldhouse while Abilene raced past Odessa High's Bronchos in the Eagle Gymnasium in Abilene.

Cooper almost pulled off the upset by hitting 23 of 26 free throws and the Cougars shut down Brad Kerley, Permian's 6-foot-6 center who only scored eight points before fouling out in the third period. David Williams led Cooper with 21 points while Reggie Cruse and Kenny Henry followed with 14 and 13 points for the Cougars which are now 2-4 in the second half of the 5-4A race and 13-14 on the year while Permian is 22-9 and 5-1, the same as Midland High going into Tuesday's game with Odessa High.

Netters halted

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Saturday's competition in the $250,000 men's tennis tournament at Mission Hills Country Club was postponed because of the continuing heavy rains in Southern California.

It was the third time in four days that all matches in the event were called off because of the inclement weather.

Plans call for the third round and quarterfinals in singles to be played Sunday with the semifinals and finals to be contested Monday, weather permitting. The third round was originally scheduled for Thursday.

NBA very active in body swapping

By The Associated Press

The trading deadline has passed, closing one of the most active two-week periods of basketball body-swapping in recent history as National Basketball Association hurried to make moves in an effort to shore up weaknesses for the drive to the playoffs.

The Los Angeles Lakers and Phoenix Suns, two title contenders, swung deals on Friday, prior to the midnight trading deadline.

Los Angeles, anxious to gain some backcourt depth, obtained second-year guard Butch Lee from Cleveland in exchange for reserve forward Don Ford. The clubs also swapped first round draft choices, Cleveland getting the Lakers' No. 1 pick in 1980, Los Angeles getting the Cavs' top choice in 1982.

THE LAKERS had paved the way for the move earlier in the week, when they obtained power forward Mark Landsberger from Chicago for rookie guard Oliver Mack, a pair of second-round choices and cash. That made Ford expendable, and the only question was what guard the Lakers would obtain.

Los Angeles was wary about going into the playoffs with only one vetegan guard, third-year man Norm Nixon. The Lakers' other guards are all rookies — starter Earvin "Magic" Johnson and reserves Michael Cooper and Brad Holland.

Phoenix, which like Los Angeles is chasing defending champion Seattle in the Pacific Division, moved to strengthen its rebounding by obtaining 7-footer Rich Kelley from New Jersey for a No. 1 pick in 1982, a No. 2 pick in 1983 and $100,000.

"I'm very happy, I just got traded to an excellent team with a chance of winning the championship," Kelley said. "They obviously think I can help and I hope I can."

KELLEY RANKED second in the league in rebounding last season with a 12.8 average for the New Orleans Jazz. He was obtained by New Jersey in a preseason trade but never got untracked with the Nets and had lost the starting center job to George Johnson.

"We're very pleased to have made the trade both on a short term and long term basis," said Jerry Colangelo, the Suns' general manager. "During the stretch drive, with the centers we have in the Pacific Division, when you add a 7-footer who can play, you're adding something to your basketball team."

Kelley was in the final year of his contract with the Nets. New Jersey General Manager Charlie Theokas said he did not expect to be able to sign him and this was a factor in the trade. Shortly after the trade was announced, Kelley reached agreement with the Suns on a new, long-term contract.

IN OTHER late moves, Phoenix made room for Kelley by putting reserve center Joel Kramer on the injured list, New Jersey activated assistant coach Phil Jackson to serve as its backup center and Indiana placed veteran guard Phil Chenier on waivers. The Pacers has obtained Chenier from Washington earlier this season, but the three-time all-star was unable to regain his top form because of the after-effects of a back injury.

Those were only the most recent moves in the wholesale transactions that have taken place the last few weeks.

Boston, seeking backcourt depth, signed free agent Pete Maravich after he was waived by Utah. The Celtics out-bid their chief rival in the Atlantic Division, Philadelphia, for Maravich.

The 76ers, still needing a big guard to fill in for injured Doug Collins, dealt a No. 1 draft choice and cash to Portland for Lionel Hollins. Hollins was expendable because of the emergence of the Blazers' Ron Brewer.

IN ANOTHER deal, Portland swapped power forward Maurice Lucas, who was unhappy at losing playing time to Kermit Washington, plus two first-round draft choices to New Jersey for rookie forward Calvin Natt. The Nets see Lucas as the veteran leader and muscleman they have needed, while the Blazers view Natt as a successor to often-injured small forward Bobby Gross.

In other trades:

—Denver, going nowhere, traded unhappy George McGinnis to Indiana for young forward Alex English and a No. 1 draft choice.

—New Jersey traded John Williamson, an explosive scorer who had lost playing time because he was overweight, and a No. 2 to Washington for second-year man Roger Phegley, a promising but erratic guard.

—Detroit, in a rebuilding effort, traded 10-year veteran Bob Lanier to Milwaukee for Kent Benson and a No. 1 draft choice. Milwaukee feels the burly Lanier could be the pivotman they have needed to make a title run.

Placid boom erupts to boondoggle

LAKE PLACID (AP) — What was supposed to be a bonanza for the 2,700 residents who largely thrive on summer tourist trade has turned into a boondoggle.

Main Street has the look of a "Ghost Town."

With all private vehicular travel forbidden, only an occasional state trooper's car is seen cruising over the main business thoroughfare. There is only a smattering of pedestrians except during a break in activities at the nearby Field House and skating rink.

Merchants who laid in huge inventories and boosted prices by double or triple their normal level are suffering from a paucity of customers.

The town's largest sports apparel shop, which covers nearly a full block, reported business less than half of expectations.

"We have sold only a few hats and boots," the manager said. "It is very disappointing but we hope things pick up as the Games progress."

The owner of a corner restaurant near the main Olympic center, advertising "Buffet Breakfast $5.95, Lunch $7.95, Dinner $12.95," said he felt mid town business was suffering from a psychological effect.

"People look down Main Street, see no cars moving and think all the shops and stores are closed," he said.

One man who bought a pottery shop and converted into a fast food spot said he was loaded down with food and no buyers.

"We haven't had a handful of people in four days," he complained. "The trouble is all the out-of-town visitors are out in the boondocks somewhere, they are bused to the site of competition and bused home when the buses work. They never get to town."

"The big boom we expected in town just didn't happen."

A few stores have posted half-price signs, but the gouge continues. Coffee at the various venues costs $1 a cup. One restaurant advertises "special steak sandwich $18.50." An Italian place offers a plate of spaghetti for $10. A country style eatery boosted its basic menu price from $1.95 to $13 but puts a 30-minute time limit on seating space.

Souvenirs are bringing an outrageous price. One man bought three tee shirts for his kids. Price: $28. The normal price is $2 each.

Hotels and more formal restaurants are grubbing into the mother lode, bringing general complaints of "ripoff." One of the central motels jumped its room prices from $28.50 a day to $91 a day, with the added priviso that the guest is responsible for 21 days whether the room is occupied or not. This, the manager said, was done with the blessing of the local organizing committee.

Some natives have made a killing by renting out their homes or refurbished barns for from $18,000 to $45,000 for two weeks' occupancy.

One fashionable restaurant raised its price overnight from $15 to $25 for a basic dinner.

The principal snafu has been transportation. Operations were paralyzed the first day when the Teamsters Union called off its bus drivers in a protest over use of Canadian buses and drivers. On Friday, Governor Carey ordered the state to take over the problem. The Greyhound Line was recruited. Thirty buses were rushed to the scene.

Lee fems capture San Antonio golf title

SAN ANTONIO — Midland Lee's girls shot a team score of 730 to win the San Antonio Invitational Golf Tournament by six strokes over Kerrville Tivy.

Lee's Melissa Marburger led the Rebels with a 160 total for 36 holes to take fourth place in the individual medalist competition. Susan Yantis of San Antonio Holmes was medalist with 156.

Sequin took third with a 741 in the team standings while Alice had a 745 for fourth in the 18-team field. Alice trailed Lee by one stroke at the end of the first day of competition, but Kerrville and Sequin made big moves during the second day of action.

Midland High finished 13th with a 796 total after standing seventh after the first round. Lee owned a one stroke lead after the first round.

Joining Marburger in the winning effort were Penny Sutcliffe, 175; Christi Orwig, 197; Martha Wilson, 217; and Ellie Mee, 198.

Midland High entries were Ann Coombs, 169; Patti O'Neill, 185; Teresa King, 203; Nica Foreman, 216; and Kathy Wood, 215.

Lee coach Paula Ferguson thought her team was one stroke out of the lead heading into the final day when course officials reported wrong scores, but Ferguson thought that it helped her team in the long run since they didn't know they were in the lead.

"The girls played better not knowing they were in the lead by one tiny stroke," Ferguson said.

Nader associates rap U.S. business lobbies

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business lobbies have grown in recent years to the point where they "can exercise a sort of veto over Congress," according to a report released Saturday by associates of consumer activist Ralph Nader.

The report by Nader associates Mark Green and Andy Buchsbaum said the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Business Roundtable, the two leading business lobbies, "speak with one voice and two styles.

"The Roundtable is distinguished and mellow — its chief executive officers (of major corporations) lunching with senators and Cabinet secretaries.

"The Chamber is contentious and unyielding — preferring polemics to negotiations. But both share a corporate catechism that uncritically regards big business as good and regulation for consumer protection as bad," the report said.

In New York, G. Wallace Bates, president of the Roundtable, declined comment, saying he had not seen the report.

Jeffrey Joseph, the chamber's director of regulatory affairs, said the report contained "a lot of innuendo and half-reporting, typical of a Nader study."

He objected to a characterization of the Chamber as being secretive. "They had hours and hours of interviews with us and then they say we are secretive. They are just trying to tell the story their way," Joseph said.

The authors said the 230-page study entitled "The Corporate Lobbies: Profiles of the Business Roundtable and Chamber of Commerce" took two years to complete and was based on 146 interviews, including 36 with present or past members of the two organizations.

"On controversial issues such as labor law reform, a consumer advocacy agency, antitrust or class action reform, or stricter penalties for corporate crime, big business lobbies can exercise a sort of veto over Congress," the report said.

It said the Roundtable has wealth, access to government decision-makers and elite status as representatives of some of the leading companies in America.

"The chief executive officers comprising the Roundtable would surely not object to the charge of being corporate statesmen," the report said.

The Chamber, in contrast, is not composed of a business elite. However, it is big enough so that it can organize businessmen in every congressional district on issues, it said.

The two organizations have used these different approaches, along with heavy corporate contributions to political campaigns, to win numerous votes in Congress, the study said.

Allen L. Beatty

Basin Better Business Bureau chief resigns

Allen L. Beatty, president and general manager of the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin for the last 11 years, has announced his resignation effective March 15, according to Grace King, chairman of the board.

Beatty will join the staff of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, headquartered in Washington, D.C., as director of special projects, Bureau Affairs Division. He will be responsible for developing and implementing programs to increase local bureau membership, and assist local bureaus in identifying and solving other marketing and operating problems.

Beatty took over the BBB in 1968, when it had a staff of two and a membership of about 300 local companies. There are presently five on the staff and membership is expected to reach 800 firms this year.

He is vice chairman of the national BBB Management Committee, made up of 12 bureau managers elected by their peers. He also serves on the Board of Directors of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, one of only six BBB managers on that 30 member board.

Beatty has been active in local community affairs, appearing in a number of productions at Midland Community Theater and Permian Playhouse. He is a past president of the City of Midland Swim Team, and is on the board of directors of the Permian Basin Ad Club.

In announcing his resignation, Beatty stated, "Making a decision to leave the Permian Basin area was very difficult. My family has grown up here and we have made many close friends. But this kind of opportunity does not come often in one's career. When it did, we considered it very carefully before deciding to accept.

"I think it's a tribute to the support and recognition the people and business firms of this area have given to the BBB that helped make this opportunity possible for me. I look forward to the new challenges, but there will always be a very special place in our family's heart for West Texas," he added.

Mrs. King said a selection committee has been appointed to review candidates for Beatty's replacement. Until a replacement is found, Doris Russell, BBB operations manager, will assume responsibility for the bureau.

Tower to speak

WASHINGTON-ON-THE-BRAZOS, Texas (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower will be the speaker at the March 2 observance of the 144th birthday of Texas.

Tower's selection was announced Saturday by George A. Butler, board chairman of the Washington-on-the-Brazos State Park Association.

A 2,000-seat ampitheater also will be dedicated during the celebration that will begin at 10 a.m. and continue through a 2 p.m. program during which Tower will speak.

The Texas Declaration of Independence from Mexico was signed at Washington-on-the Brazos on March 2, 1836.

Scouts ticket sale to start

Midland Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts this week will begin selling tickets to the annual Scout Exposition March 22 at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

Tickets are $1 per person.

Ticket selling affords Scouts an opportunity to meet the public, to learn record keeping and to handle money.

Each pack, troop and post earns a 40 percent commission on ticket sales. The commission helps to cover cost of each unit's activities.

The Scouts will be going house to house, at shopping locations and public places in offering tickets for sale.

Banquet here to honor 37 area Eagle Scouts

Thirty-seven West Texas Eagle Scouts who earned Scouting's highest rank in 1979 will be honored at 7 p.m. Friday in the fourth annual Eagle Recognition Banquet at Midland's Ranchland Hills Country Club.

The Eagles are from 21 Boy Scouts of America troops in seven cities and towns and represent the BSA's Buffalo Trail Council.

Featured speaker at the event will be R.R. "Bob" Pomeroy, director of the National Eagle Scout Association (NESA) in Irving. He will be talking to an estimated 210 Eagles, their Scoutmasters, their parents, sponsors and other guests.

The 1979-vintage Eagles hail from Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Midkiff, Colorado City, Alpine and Fort Davis.

Master of ceremonies at the fete, sponsored by the Buffalo Trail Council's NESA chapter, will be Midlander Jimmy Stovall, who earned the Eagle rank in 1951.

In addition to the Eagles, the council's Scoutmaster of the Year will be recognized and a Scout leader-volunteer will be awarded the NESA's silver wreath.

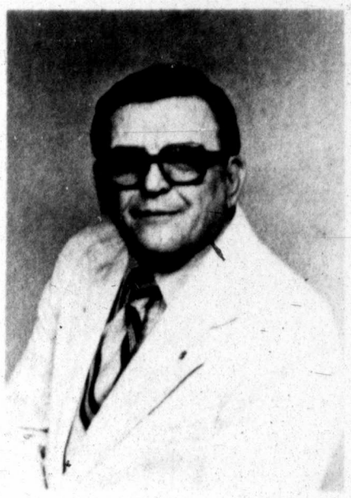

Scoutmaster awards in previous years were presented to Grover Springer of Troop 10, Lenorah, 1979; William Slattery of Troop 152, Midland, 1978; and Thurman Atchley of Troop 269, Odessa, 1977.

Past NESA recipients were veteran Midland Eagles and Scout leaders John E. Crosby Jr. and Jimmy Stovall, 1979; D.D. Dorris, 1978; and A.L. "Ike" McCarroll, 1977.

Conducting the ceremonies will be Stephen D. Odom, the council's Scout executive, who will give the Challenge of the Eagle; Charles W. Ross, NESA officer, who will present the Eagles and their sponsors; "Ike" McCarroll, past council president, who will recognize Scoutmaster of the Year; and D.D. Dorris, NESA vice chairman, who will present special awards. Gerald "Rod" Stephenson is NESA chapter chairman.

The council, which covers 18 West Texas counties, is made up of 1,629 Scouts in 100 BSA troops; 898 Explorer Scouts in 50 posts; and 2,806 Club Scouts in 100 packs. The council is headquartered in Midland.

The 37 Scouts who earned the Eagle rank in 1979 and who will be honored at the banquet and their Scoutmasters are:

Another hair dye chemical linked to cancer by government studies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government study says a chemical used in some hair dyes as a substitute for a cancer-causing ingredient may itself cause the disease.

The Food and Drug Administration said Friday that the chemical EMPD was found to cause mutations in a bacterial screening test. That is a sign it may cause cancer in animals, although further testing is needed.

The FDA said EMPD is a coal tar ingredient that was introduced in some hair dyes as a replacement for two chemicals called TDA and MMPD. Those chemicals were voluntarily removed from hair dyes by manufacturers after it was found they could cause cancer in animals.

FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said the substitute chemical, EMPD, apparently is not widely used by the hair dye industry.

"We have brought the study to the attention of industry," Pines said, "and are considering whether to ask the National Cancer Institute to do a bioassay on it."

Pines said bioassay tests with animals are costly and usually first assigned to chemicals that are most widely used or pose the biggest potential threat.

Even if the animal tests indicated EMPD does cause cancer, the strongest action FDA could take would be to require that warning labels be put on products containing the chemical.

Bunker Hunt's silver hunt sends shivers through market

By JOE STROOP

DALLAS (AP) — At stock and commodities exchanges there's an adage that "No man is bigger than the market." In the case of silver and Nelson Bunker Hunt that may not be true any more.

One of the wealthiest men in the Western world, Hunt may now be bigger than the silver commodities market, which is still feeling aftershocks of his massive investments and is trembling in anticipation of what he may do next.

Hunt and his family, heirs to H.L. Hunt's billions, own futures contracts for silver that are worth more than $3 billion by some industry estimates, about one-third of the world's annual silver production.

And Hunt's adversaries in the silver trading game say he is not playing by the unspoken rules that govern silver trading.

"I am ... likely to ... accept delivery on maturing silver futures contracts," Hunt said in Washington recently.

Futures contracts promise delivery of a cash commodity at a specified date, and taking delivery of the commodity is completely legal. But in practice, it is hardly ever done.

Instead, traders usually buy and sell just the contracts — dealing only in paper. It is, in essence, a gamble that the contract will be worth more at maturity than it cost to buy, and the actual goods rarely change hands.

The threat that Hunt might demand delivery has caused mild panic among speculators.

"The market has gotten so crazy that Merrill-Lynch refuses to accept the exposure to it," said Dallas options specialist George Odom.

"I've been in this business 13 years, and in all that time I've only had one customer actually take delivery on a futures contract."

Hunt himself points out the world's yearly silver production is about 300 million ounces, with consumption about 500 million ounces, a neat supply-and-demand combination that led him to tell a Washington reporter, "I'm bullish on silver."

If Hunt actually demands delivery, Odom said, "It would be interesting — I'd like to see what would happen. That stuff (silver) has a way of coming out of the woodwork."

Hunt and his kin got into the silver market in a big way last year. Since then, the price leaped from about $6 an ounce to a peak of more than $50, and was about $37 at midweek.

Two major commodity exchanges early this year slapped sharp new restrictions on the amount of silver futures an individual can own. The action was aimed, in part, at Hunt's holdings and he admits it may force him to sell some of them.

Further, market observers generally believe the restrictions, which were eased Thursday on New York's Commodity Exchange, prompted Hunt's threat to take delivery on his current contracts.

"He thinks it (the exchange restriction) is not proper and he will contest the changing of the rules in the middle of the game," a source close to Hunt told The Associated Press shortly after the exchange announcement.

This is not the first time the Hunts have run afoul of commodity markets by being too big. In 1977, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission sued the family for buying contracts on nearly 23 million bushels of soybeans — about one-third of the available supply.

The commission is still seeking a permanent injunction in the matter, following a temporary injunction last summer.

Hunt maintains he lost money on the deal. The commission insists he made $40 million in profits and should repay it.

To look at him, you wouldn't think Hunt's wealth runs into the billions, including one of the nation's largest independent oil companies, the world's biggest privately held drilling contractor, the biggest sugar beet refinery in the nation, about 2.5 million tons of coal reserves and the largest string of thoroughbred races horses held by a U.S. citizen.

He doesn't smoke or drink, favors inexpensive suits — usually brown — his glasses are usually perched about mid-nose and he's not fastidious about his shoe shines. He is 53, heavy-set, and will occasionally engage in small talk.

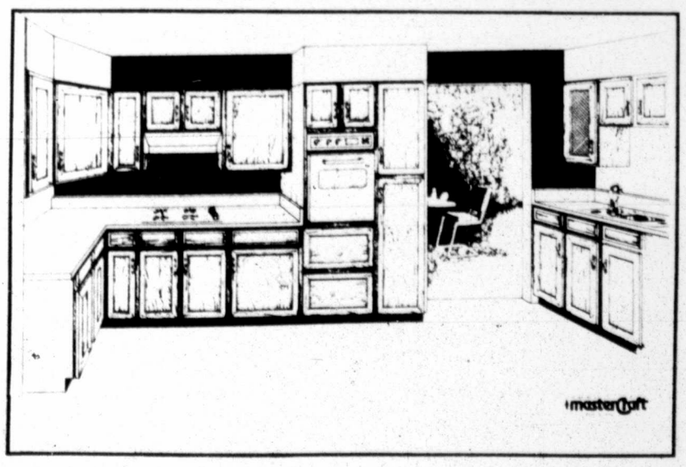

But the power is there. Asked in Washington if he is, as reported, the nation's largest commission-paying commodities customer, he said: "I might have to plead guilty to that."

A battered woman tells her story

By SANDI BREEDEN
Lifestyle Writer

It happened in Midland a week ago Monday.

A young woman was beaten and, within hours, her husband died on the operating table from three bullet wounds in the back.

He was Rudell Whitely. The gunshots came from a small caliber gun his wife had. She shot and killed him, following a beating for the last time, one of many times in the last two years that she had been physically abused.

"It wasn't my intention to kill him," said Mrs. Whitely a week after her husband's death. "But it was either him or me.

"I DON'T REMEMBER having the gun in my hand," said the tearful woman. "All I remember is Rudell hitting me in the head with something and then the police asking me if I wanted the ambulance or my father to take me to the emergency room."

No charges were filed and she was cleared by the grand jury.

Suffering from a concussion and a still-visible black eye from that night's beating, Mrs. Whitely said she does not feel guilty about killing her husband. "I don't feel guilty because during our marriage I had done my part as a wife. I love my husband and I did everything I could as a wife. The night that I did it, I wasn't trying to kill him, but he told me 'I'm going to kill you,' and I asked God 'whatever to be, to be.'

"It's (Whitely's death) just on me," she said. "It's something I'll have to live with for the rest of my life."

Reliving the night she finally ended her husband's abuse, Mrs. Whitely said, "I had gotten back from the washateria and my son said, 'Momma, you forgot to wash my clothes.' I told him I was sorry. Then Rudell went into the bedroom, slamming the door as hard as he could. I told my son I didn't want to be alone, so he took me to call my father.

"When I got back, Rudell was sitting in the middle of the living room floor. He started calling me names and saying a lot of stuff. He slapped me in the mouth and it started bleeding.

"I SAID, 'RUDELL, don't. The people next door are going to call the police.' He said, 'I don't care. I'm going to kill you.'

"Then he hit me in the head with something and the next thing I knew the police were asking me about gong to the emergency room. I don't remember having the gun in my hand."

According to Mrs. Whitely, this beating was the most severe her husband had given her during their marriage. "He didn't hit me until we had been married about three months," she said. "At first, he didn't hit me unless he had been drinking. Then he started hitting me all of the time. But when he drank, he always hit me, which was every weekend. During the two years we knew each other before we were married, he would just talk bad when he was drinking."

She stayed with Whitely because there was nothing that could be done, she said. "The first time he hit me, I called the police and they made him leave. The next day when I got home, he was in bed. Sometime during our first year of marriage I went to the police to file charges against him for beating me. They told me it was a family matter and they couldn't get involved.

"I would leave him and he would always find me. When I would leave, he would go to my mother's and get abusive with her. When he found me, he would always tell me he would quit hitting me and would quit drinking if I would come back. He would stop for maybe two weeks."

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS hands were tied for they can not normally get involved in a family disturbance because it is a civil matter. Unless, however, they witness the actual beating. Mrs. Whitley said she doesn't believe the police let her down, and added that they were very kind to her the night that her husband died.

Mrs. Whitely's case as a battered woman is very typical in many ways, according to statistics. Research done by the Criminal Justice Department at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville reveals that the abusive husband-battered wife situation follows a pattern.

For example, Mrs. Whitely would threaten to leave when she was beaten. And when she did, her husband followed her.

Also, when she suggested to him that he might have a problem, he would tell her he didn't need help. "I told him if he needed help, I would get him help," said Mrs. Whitely.

As in the case of most abusive husbands, Whitely did not beat his wife in front of her family or her two 18-year-old twin sons (from a previous marriage), yet he would beat her in front of his family—his mother, stepfather and grandmother. "They tried to talk to him and tell him he was wrong for doing these things, but it didn't help," she added.

And, according to Mrs. Whitely, her husband grew up in a home where the father physically abused the mother and she never did anything about it. "His step-father beat his mother," she said. Most men who abuse their wifes are raised in this type of environment, according to college study.

MRS. WHITELY'S CASE is also non-typical in several ways. Unlike most battered wives, she is employed. She also believes that she has fairly high self-esteem.

The battered women syndrome problem is just beginning to surface as a major problem. Statistics that one out of ever 11 women in Texas is battered. The Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children is one of 20 such centers operating in Texas.

The Midland center has been in operation for almost a year, during which some 150 women and children have been provided shelter in the center's three-bedroom home. The Center also has a 24-hour hotline, 683-1300, which is operated by volunteers on a talk and referral basis.

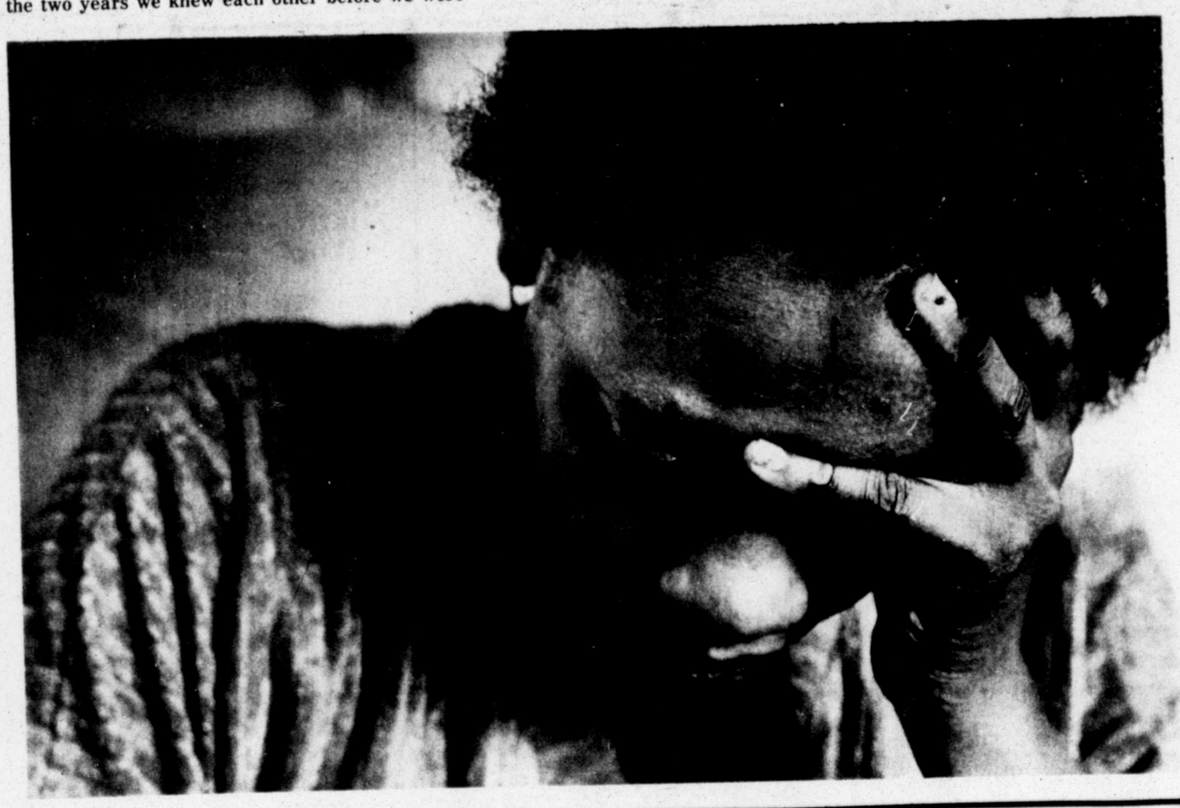

Mrs. Whitely said that she was not aware of the center and would probably have sought help there if she had know about it. She does offer advice, however, in hopes that what happened to her can be avoided by other women. "Before you get involved with a man, make sure you know him. The first time your husband hits you, leave him and get a divorce if you are married. People don't want to hurt the ones they love.

"If a man hits you the first time, he'll do it again. If you don't leave, you'll wind up in the shape I'm in.

"I loved my husband. But it was either him or me."

"The first time a man hits you, leave him and get a divorce if you're married. If he hits you the first time, he'll do it again," Earnestine Whitely, a battered wife for two years, who shot and killed her husband Feb. 4 after he had severely beaten her.

Lots of changes in store for American family

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

One thing we know about the decade of the '70s. There was change. One thing we look forward to in the 1980s is figuring out what those changes mean and how to cope with them.

President Carter's administration has been making plans to start the decade off right by examining one aspect of our society, the changing family. Both in Washington, D.C. and throughout the United States, preparations are under way for the 1980 summer White House Conference on Families, which, in part, will focus on the problems of family women.

"As we examine the strengths, diversity and problems of American families," says John Carr, director of the conference, "we will be dealing with fundamental economic and social issues which clearly affect families. One of the things we will be looking at is how discrimination in general and discrimination against women, specifically, has a negative impact on families."

Twenty women were appointed to the 40-member Natonal Advisory Committee to the White House Conference on Families. Many of the committee members are "from local, grass-roots organizations that concentrate on family needs and services," says committee member Carolyn Shaw Bell, who chairs the economics department at Wellesley College.

Among the women appointed to serve on the advisory committee are Coretta Scott King, president of the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change in Atlanta, Ga., Gloria Chavez, president of the United Neighborhood organization for the Federation of East Los Angeles, Calif., Ruby Duncan, founder and executive director of Operation Life. a social service and advocacy center for low-income and welfare families.

There has been an attempt to involve a wide range of people in planning the conferences, which will be held in various states rather than having one big conference in Washington. There has also been an effort to approach as many topics as possible. The meetings will be organized around six themes: family strengths and supports, the changing realities of family life, the diversity of families, the impact of public and private institutions on families, families with special needs, and the effects of discrimination on families and family members.

Information gathered from the U.S. Statistical Abstract gives some idea of the facts the commission will address. Of all households, only 15.9 percent include a father as the sole wage earner, a mother as a full-time homemaker, and at least one child. Over 18 percent include both the father and mother as wage earners, with one or more children at home. A surprising 30.5 percent of households consist of married couples with no children, or no children living at home. Women head 6.2 percent of the households with children, and 0.6 percent are headed by single-parent men. Over 20 percent of American households are single persons living alone, and more than a third of those are women over 65 years of age. The traditional concept of mom, dad and the kids is outdated. Over 12 percent of American households are totally dependent on women for their sustenance, and in another 18 percent plus, women share the wage-earner role with their husbands.

The facts, of course are available. We have to dig a bit deeper to understand what they mean. Schools that don't recognize the fact tha some mothers simply will not be able to volunteer for classroom activities, child care centers that open only half a day, scout troops that ask mothers to help at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and employers who expect married women to be temporary employees are all out of step with the reality of today's family life. While there are women who still live the traditional American mode, they no longer represent the majority of wives and mothers.

DEAR ABBY

She is on the spot

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last year I dated a man for several months. (I'll call him Johnny.) Then we stopped seeing each other. This year I have seen him four times. The last time we were together I realized how much I cared for him.

My question: Is it worth it to continue seeing Johnny for the pleasure it gives me to be with someone I care about, knowing that my affection is not returned? Or would it be better for me to spend my time reading, sewing, and otherwise occupying myself in an effort to put Johnny out of my thoughts and life completely?

The last man I cared for died two years ago, and it took me a long time to feel comfortable with my affection for Johnny. Because of personal difficulties in making social contacts, I am not likely to meet anyone else.

My life is devoid of pleasure, so on those rare occasions when I am with Johnny, my solitary existence is enriched by a human experience. But the void in which I live is even more pronounced because of the contrast which seeing Johnny creates.

What would you advise if you were my friend and cared about me? — TORN

DEAR TORN: You're asking me if it is better to have no pleasure than to get an occasional taste — reminding you of what you're missing most of the time.

Only YOU can know the intensity of your joy and the depth of your despair. I personally would be inclined to accept whatever happiness life held for me — however meager.

The "personal difficulties" you refer to in making social contacts puzzle me. Do explain, and perhaps I can help you open a few doors. Please write again. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I need some advice. I am 22 and will be getting married next month. My fiance and I communicate quite well, except when it comes to my past sex life. I never bring it up, but he does.

I wasn't a virgin when we met, but he was. We have been intimate, and he knows that he was not the first.

My problem is that I am afraid he is going to ask me WHO the guys were I had sex with. (Yes, there were more than one.) I never led what you would call a "wild life," but I've been with more than one guy. I am not proud of it, but there is nothing I can do about it now.

I know he's going to want to know WHO the guys were before we get married. The worst is that he knows them. Abby, what do I tell him? — FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: It's not necessary to name names. Silence is golden. But it needn't be guilt.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from STUMPED, and your answer, really burned me. A widower wanted to know if he should begin his new marriage with the diamond ring he had given his late wife 29 years before. You suggested that he reset the first wife's diamonds in new mountings.

Abby, if the new wife is worth marrying, she is worth having her own rings. Talk about cheap! If all he can afford is a plain gold band, fine, but his first wife's diamonds should go to his daughter (if he has one), or to his son, if has no daughter. How would YOU feel wearing rings from a 29-year-old marriage?

I have some gorgeous rings which I have willed to my only son. If, after I'm dead, my husband wants to remarry, that's OK by me, but I don't want another woman wearing MY rocks. She can work alongside my husband and help him buy her own, just like I did! — DISGUSTED IN N.Y.

Are there questions you can't ask your parents about sex, love, drugs? Get Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed, envelope to Abby in care of this newspaper.

Installing dead bolt locks

By AL CARRELL

Several times I've urged you to beef up your home security by at least having dead bolt locks on your entry doors. Dead bolts are the type that require you to use a key to lock them as well as to open them. They are bit more trouble than the ones that automatically lock when you pull the door shut — but those easy-to-lock kind are also easy for an intruder to open with a credit card or strip of plastic. I want to give you a pep talk on how easily a lock can be installed by giving you some general steps in a common installation.

Sometimes you can find a replacement lock that will fit into the very same holes as the old lock. If not, though, an auxiliary lock that would fit above the old one would be a good choice. This provides the dead bolt plus it gives the burglar two locks to worry about and also eliminates any problem of trying to hide holes made for the old lock.

Whatever lock you buy, get a quality unit.

In many areas, locksmiths and stores selling locks will have an installation kit that makes the job very easy because it has all the tools that you need plus a jig that clamps to the door so that the holes you drill are totally straight and perfectly lined up. Many dealers loan these kits or rent them for a small fee to folks who buy locksets from them. If you can get one of these kits, by all means do so. However, even if you can't, the installation is still not too tough.

The new lock will come with a paper template that fits around the door's edge. When taped in place on the door, you can mark the places for the holes. One hole goes all the way through the door to accommodate the cylinder, and another goes into the edge for the bolt. With the holes marked, you can use a hand brace or a power drill. With the hand brace, I'd use an expansion bit set to the proper diameter. With a power drill, the best attachment is a hole saw of the proper size.

Drill the hole for the cylinder first. Just be careful when the drill comes through on the other side because it can damage the veneer. The best way is to drill until just the tip comes through, and then finish by moving to the other side. Also keep your drill at right angles to the door so the hole is straight through.

Next use an appropriate sized bit to drill into the edge for the bolt. Here again, keep the drill at right angles to the door. Drill until the hole goes all the way into the first hole.

The next step is to insert the bolt into its hole and to place the plate in place so you can mark around it. You then need to chisel out a place so this plate will be recessed and fit flush with the edge of the door. The recess is called a mortice and is done with a wood chisel. I always outline the mortice with a utility knife so the chisel is easier to contain.

Once the mortice is done, the plate is installed with screws, and you're ready to put the lock in. Be sure to follow the instructions that come with your lock and have all the screws inside the house. There will be parts of the cylinder that have to engage in the bolt, but it will be an easy connection if you'll follow the directions.

Next you need a place for the bolt to go over on the door jamb. The strike plate will be its own pattern. To see exactly where the bolt will hit the jamb, rub the end of the bolt with chalk so it will leave an imprint when the key is turned to lock the bolt. Then mark the strike plate and mortice out for it. Most locks will also require a hole drilled into the jamb to accept the full length of the bolt.

That's all there is. There may be variations depending on the particular lock you select, but it's really a fairly easy way to gain a little peace of mind. Even if after you've read this you decide the installation is beyond your range of expertise, I'd still like you to have dead bolt locks installed. It shouldn't cost very much to have it done. There's no way you can make your home totally burglar-proof, but if you make it more difficult, the thief may just go on down the street where the pickin's are easier.

Got a question or a handy tip? Write to Al Carrell in care of this newspaper.

Catherine Carr fashions to be at Friday luncheon

Midland Country Club Ladies Association will present Catherine Carr, a Dallas designer, when the group meets Friday at the club for a showing of Carr fashions and a luncheon.

Carr's fashion philosphy combines the sunny, resort feeling of a southern climate, the studied ease of the western influence and the grace of the Southern Belle tradition.

She designs for women like herself — women whose talents, energy and education demand a place in the sun, yet enjoy flirtation and warm family relationships. Her clothes are colorful and even theatrical at times, but they are always ladylike and feminine. She presents designs which are luxurious, yet comfortable enough to wear through a long, active day, and which demand no special care, either at home or when traveling.

Ms. Carr, who holds degrees for chemistry and pre-med from Duke University, came to Dallas as a research chemist. When she began making garments in her home for relatives as a hobby, her husband, who formerly owned fabric stores, asked his wife to create 24 garments for a Dallas style show.

She later designed appliqued work shirts and asked the owner of a specialty utique in Dallas to sell them. He suggested she go into business for herself.

When Ms. Carr began designing and creating at home, her husband bought her a factory, and she has had a successful business in Dallas for the past five years.

She has received awards of distinction for her designs.

The hospitality hour will begin at 11:30 a.m., followed by the luncheon and the program.

Reformed shortchanger now making money with warnings

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) Cashiers, beware of the short changers, warns one shortchanger who says she is reforming. She told her story to the Chattanooga News-Free Press, on the condition that the newspaper not identify her.

She proposes to conduct clinics at businesses — charging a fee — to show employees how to guard against shortchangers.

She said she had learned shortchanging in a Los Angeles bar and had done it for 14 years without getting caught, claiming to have made more than $100,000.

The woman recounted one of her typical flimflams:

The shortchanger walks up to the counter carrying an item, in this case one costing less than a dollar. She pays for it with a $10 bill — holding several other $1 bills in a pocket.

The cashier returns change and the shortchanger, in pocketing the silver, seemingly discovers the $1 bills in her pocket and turns them in for a $10 bill.

Combining the $5 bill and four ones she received as change from the cashier with the assorted singles from her pocket, the shortchanger counts off a $5 and four $1 bills and gives them to the cashier for the $10 bill.

But the set-up has just begun. Having taken the $10 bill, the flimflammer says she's afraid she shortchanged the cashier and asks the cashier to count what the trickster knows to be nine dollars.

"Oh well, here's a ten and a one to go with that, just give me a twenty," is the usual line.

If it's been a success, the cashier accepts the $10 and $1 bills, puts them with the $5 and four $1 bills and gives the shortchanger a $20 bill.

Even? Not quite. The cashier has been shortchanged $10 minus what was paid for the original item.

"I used to wait until the lunch rush was tapering off, when I knew there would be $20s in the register," she said.

She said managers fighting the problem must convince employees that it exists, since the cashier is usually unaware of the deficit until the money and register tape are matched at day's end.

"The most important rule is one transaction at a time," she said. "When I pay for my Coke, you should give me change and shut the register, no matter what I say or do to keep you from doing it."

A second rule: "Never take money out of the register until you have my money in hand."

Her victims, she said, are the agreeable, those she believes she can catch off-guard. "It works because people are so easily intimidated. It's best to pick on nice waitresses."

Remember maple sugar candy?

Copley News Service

Remember how good those little maple sugar candies used to taste? Well, the sugar maple tree is the source of it all.

The early white settlers back in the early 1700s, had little if any sweeteners and saw that the Indians were tapping maple trees, taking the maple sap and boiling it to make it syrupy. The resulting crystalline substance was just what they had been craving.

Maple sugar was really a its height of popularity back in those Colonial days, when the king of England imposed a heavy tax on imported sugar.

Beware of those substitutes that say @maple-flavored,@ they may not be telling you that the flavoring is real maple sugar. There are several varieties of maple trees, but not all of them yield this sweet-tooth delight. The real sugar maple tree is called the rock maple.

your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, February 17, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Margaret Truman Daniels, the only child of President Harry Truman and his beloved "Bess," was born on this day in 1924, and indications are that her best years lie ahead as an important novelist. Writing of one sort of another could be the key to success for you also. Effective memos could call a superior's attention to you. At home, you may decide to try your hand at writing fiction, poetry. Unexpected gains are likely where finances are concerned. Personal relationships are enhanced, cemented when you show more consideration, concern for loved ones.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Try to become closer to a family member from whom you may be somewhat estranged now. Younger person can be an effective catalyst in resolving differences.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spiritual matters take precedence today. You learn the true meaning of happiness and find yourself reaching out to help others. Keep entertainment expenses under control.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may gain a friend by sharing knowledge. Spotlight is on individual who seems rebellious. Do not make judgments. You may also be judged on your reactions to situation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Congenial company will add zest to day's activities. People may be a little difficult to deal with now as they tend to be suspicious. Do not push too hard and they will come around.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Plan activities today that include the whole family, young and old. Let the majority rule when making final decision. You will find it easy to express yourself creatively. Answer personal correspondence that has been piling up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Change of scene may be best cure for that feeling of confinement. A question about the welfare of young people may arise. Seek advice of third party if you disagree. Their experience is valuable and could prove beneficial.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be sure you know what is involved before you make final plans today. Check every detail, especially what activities will cost. Spiritual advice could help if you need objective view. Treat yourself to an evening of rest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): At social outings you will be the life of the party. You thrive on attention, particularly from those people you find especially interesting. If you need a favor, this is time to ask. You will know the right approach.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accede to wishes of loved ones. Excellent trends bring a chance to express your views about home or family-related financial matters. Welcome an opportunity to progress with pet projects.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Morning hours enable you to engage in productive teamwork and accomplish a lot toward completion of weekend project. Try to avert conflict with loved ones. Compromise is happier option—everyone wins.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Learn to strike happy balance in relationships with others. Always wanting to have your own way can cause upheaval. Involvement in local affairs can be rewarding and lead to new friendships.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Older person may offer helpful advice. Follow it and you gain prestige. Some of you could make the decision to get married. Visit to parents or relatives brings you new approval or affection.

Monday, February 18, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: You share your birthday with Saturday Night Fever's John Travolta. John's star has been somewhat eclipsed of late, but it should shine brightly again in the year ahead. Your career is also on the upswing, and you find a change in employment very satisfactory. Financial success may now depend more on others, and on luck, than on your own efforts—but the outlook is bright, especially between August 23 and September 23. Marriage may be a new venture for some, while multiple romantic encounters lie ahead for others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Learning another language could pay off in job market. Attracting ethnic business could increase profits. Your personal base of appeal is expanding, and an important individual becomes aware of who you are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money problem can now be resolved equitably. Listen to the experts. Be confident, sure and direct. Presenting false image will only postpone solution. Express affection to older relative in a positive manner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make sure you get enough rest this week and save parties, at-home entertaining for the weekend. Forgive someone who hurt you in past, but do not renew relationship on same footing as before.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Putting all your eggs in one basket could prove to be unwise. Expanding your horizons could increase your chances for gain. Avoid making a romantic commitment just now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get a lot of encouragement from one who can help you. Consider yourself lucky to have such a person in your corner. Show your gratitude in tangible ways. Mate, partner's true feelings are revealed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): People with time on their hands may interrupt your business routine today. Explain that you have a full schedule so you do not fall behind. Be sure your work is up to standards set by yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Show confidence in your ability and your career will flourish. If you become flustered you could lose the ground you have already gained. Keep sense of humor intact. A little give and take enhances romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are so preoccupied with doing those things which are important to you that you fail to note what is going on around you. Forget your cares this evening by getting together with old friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Travel arrangements, financial dealings and other previously made plans are subject to sudden change. Be ready to make quick adjustments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friend will do a real service. Put aside your suspicions regarding actions of an older person, and rely on what you know to be true.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Expressing your viewpoint will make a strong impression on influential people. Make certain you have all the facts before speaking out, however.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Morning brings you an opportunity to set everything straight regarding business matter. Long view is important now to make profits. Choice of personnel becomes very important.

Midland committee formed to focus on family problems

A Midland committee has been formed to focus on family problems and to work with the Texas Advisory Committee in preparation for the White House Conference on Families.

Cindy Miller of Midland has been appointed to Gov. Bill Clement's state advisory committee. She is state research director for Texas Eagle Forum and is a representative of pro-family organizations in the state.

Members of the Midland committee attending a recent meeting included Mary Flunder, co-chairman; Sandy Dominey, Palmer Drug Abuse Program; Marion Fisher, Midland Association for Retarded Citizens; Jay Anderson, Birthright; Emory Bartlett, Eagle Forum; Linda George, Family Services; Fran Waldrop, Parents Without Partners; Mary Hinkle, Casa de Amigos; and Sue Stephens, Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and their Children.

PURPOSE OF THE COMMITTEE, according to Mrs. Miller, is to reach out into the community to encourage families with diverse problems to respond to the search for issues and solutions to problems that will be discussed at the White Conference on Families.

"These issues include any problem affecting the family," said Mrs. Miller. "We want to emphasize the strengths of the family and would particularly like to reach out to minorities, the handicapped and church people to get as wide participation as possible."

In conjunction with this project, a public forum designed to explore ways to strengthen family life in America will be held in Lubbock March 8. The forum will be at the Civic Center, from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

A series of forums, to be held later in other Texas cities, are preliminaries to the White House Conference.

Persons who want to testify or offer comment at the Lubbock hearing may register by writing White House Conference on Families, 5517 74th St., Lubbock, Texas 79424. Please give address and phone number.

Governor Clements said the forums will give Texas an opportunity to have an impact on federal programs affecting families.

"I want Texas to have the broadest possible citizen involvement, and I want our participation to reflect our commitment to the well-being of children and families," he said.

Forums are also scheduled during February and March in Houston, San Marcos, Dallas, and Weslaco.

Through these regional forums and other means, such as the formation of Midland's committee, the Governor's advisory committee will identify topics and develop recommendations for the White House Conference this summer.

In addition to Mrs. Miller, three other West Texas residents serve on the governor's committee. They are Lucy Acosta of El Paso, Douglas Chatfield of Lubbock and Mayor Jerry Hodge of Amarillo.

THE WHITE HOUSE Conference committee has set eight goals for the program. They include developing an ongoing process of discussion and information-sharing about American families, their importance, diversity, strengths, problems, responses to a changing world. The committee also hopes to stimulate a wide variety of activities in communities and states, and in a broad range of grassroots and national organizations, according to Jonathan M. Hole, Texas director of the White House Conference.

Goals also include identifying public policies and institutional actions which harm or neglect family life, examining the impact of economic forces of families and recommending new policies to support and strengthen families.

Six themes will be offered at the hearings as discussion issues. They are: Family strengths and supports: the family is the oldest, most fundamental human institution, our most precious national resource. Families serve as a source of strength and support for their members in our society.

Diversity of families: American families are pluralistic in nature. The discusion issues wll reflect an understanding and respect of cultural, ethnic, and regional differences, as well as differences in structure and lifestyle.

THE CHANGING REALITIES of family life: American society is dynamic, constantly changing. The roles of families and individual family members are growing, adapting, and evolving in new and different ways to meet the challenges of the age.

The impact of public and private institutional policies on families: The policies of government and major private institutions have profound effects on families. Increased sensitivity to the needs of families is needed, as well as ongoing research and action to address the negative impact of public and private institutional policies.

THE IMPACT OF discrimination: many families are exposed to various and diverse forms of discrimination. These can affect individual family membors as well as the family unit as a whole.

Families with special needs: Certain families have special needs and these needs often produce unique strengths. The needs of families with handicapped members, single-parent families, elderly families, and many other families with special needs will be addressed during the forums.

There will be a telephone hotline to the Governor's office until March 7, except on the weekend. Persons wishing to offer suggestions on family life may do so by calling toll-free, 1-800-252-9600 from anywhere in Texas.

An all-female trooper class begins training

SEA GIRT, N.J. (AP) — "This isn't going to be Girl Scout camp," Col. Clinton L. Pagano barked at the 102 recruits at the all-female state trooper class.

"We move double-time outside here," said an instructor, ordering the recruits, some in platform shoes, to run to their next assignment.

"That's all right, persons, take it easy," he said as they stumbled.

"All right, now we're going to march," shouted another instructor. "You start with your left foot. Do all of you know which is your left foot?

"No? Well, it's the one on the left."

That's what the first day of a 20 week training session sounded like this past week for what is thought to be the nation's first all-women recruit class.

The women, ranging in age from 19 to 32, were drawn from a pool of 1,631 candidates who applied when Gov. Brendan Byrne ordered a special effort to add women to the force.

New Jersey is under federal court order to raise minority representation to 14 percent of the 1,931-member force.

Only two women are now troopers, and they are among the instructors for the new contingent.

The modified strength tests for the women have stirred resentment among some male troopers, who claim women won't be able to handle trouble.

"There's a mixed reaction, some positive, some negative ... but they're all going to abide with it," said Pagano, the state police superintendent.

"We're not going to do anything different with this class. They're going to learn to be troopers and we're going to learn to teach females."

He said half the recruits are expected to drop out, the same number as among male recruits.

AT WIT'S END

John Davidson clone?

By ERMA BOMBECK

If I had known the '80s were going to give birth to a youth cult, I'd have taken better care of my body.

It's a little scary the way things are going. First, Bert Parks was let go because the Miss America pageant officials wanted a "younger" image . . . like John Davidson.

Then Mike Douglas' contract was not renewed and someone suggested his audience was growing older with him and perhaps a younger host was needed . . . like John Davidson.

I even heard someone say recently (who had just returned from a Ronald Reagan rally), "The Republicans could use a younger man . . . someone like John Davidson."

The way things are going I predict that by 1985, every public official, every talk show host, every sports figure, yea, every man over 50 will be replaced by a John Davidson clone.

It's only a matter of time before Big John McDavidson walks to the microphone of the Tonight show and introduces his look-alike, "Hereeeeee's John!"

And how about the dean of CBS News saying, "This is John Davidson . . . and that's the way it is."

Can you imagine John Davidson replacing George Burns and saying, "At my age, I get excited when my soup is hot," and no one laughs?

Can you honestly see Santa Claus as a bearded John Davidson? Would you have the same feeling for finger-lickin' food if you saw Col. John Davidson spinning around in a bucket full of chicken?

I for one cannot imagine a world without the silver-haired set: the Henry Fondas, the Cary Grants, the Walter Cronkites, the Leonard Bernsteins, the Joe DiMaggios, the Robert Penn Warrens, and the Fred Astaires.

Every time an older man or woman dies . . . part of our past dies with them. They all own a piece of our lives which can never again be created. When they are gone, we are at the mercy of our memories.

When I look back and try to remember the most impressive human being I ever saw, it has to be a night in Kentucky when I saw an award being given to Gen. Omar Bradley. He was confined to a wheelchair, but as the flag was unfurled, with some difficulty, he pulled his body to sitting attention.

He was the most beautiful 85-year-old John Davidson I had ever seen.

Planners eyeing variable taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — State transportation planners are eyeing variable gasoline taxes as a solution to inflation-pinched highway repair budgets, says The Road Information Program.

The average state tax on gasoline is 8.35 cents per gallon, TRIP says. Two states, Washington and New Mexico, now have fuel taxes that fluctuate with the cost of gasoline — up to as much as 12 cents a gallon in Washington.

Denture wearers warned on bones

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Denture wearers are more likely to swallow small chicken bones than most people, because their palates have become less sensitive, a radiologist here warns.

In some instances, these bones pierce the stomach or intestines and can cause abdominal hemorrhage, obstruction, inflammation or abscess.

This problem was identified by Dr. Dean D.T. Maglinte and his colleagues at the Methodist Hospital Graduate Medical Center here. They examined four elderly, denture-wearing patients and discovered that chicken bones had caused perforation in two of them.

Because of their calcium content, chicken bones can usually be seen on X-ray studies, Maglinte notes. However, infected fluid sometimes surrounds the bone and masks it from view. It is often difficult for the doctor to determine the cause of these symptoms with X-ray examination, he says, because patients rarely recall swallowing the chicken bone.

In addition to denture wearers, alcohol and drug abusers and patients who are mentally disturbed are the most plagued by accidental swallowings, Maglinte says.

Energy Department ends boycott policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department Thursday abruptly rescinded a short-lived policy of attempting to avoid meetings in 15 states which have not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment.

Department spokesman Carl Gustin said the reversal was a direct result of a brief answer President Carter gave to a question during Wednesday night's news conference.

Carter was asked, "Is it the policy of your administration to boycott wherever possible the states which have not ratified ERA? I am referring to a memo that. ..."

At that point, the president cut off the questioner and declared: "No, that's not my policy."

Two Republican senators from one of the affected states, Utah, had said they would go to court and seek to reverse such a policy.

Sens. Jake Garn and Orrin Hatch said the policy would unfairly and unconstitutionally discriminate against residents of states which have not ratified the proposed constitutional amendment.

The two senators released two internal DOE memos which set out the policy against non-ERA states.

One of them, dated Jan. 29, and circulated to senior DOE officials, refers to a meeting in which Deputy Energy Secretary John Sawhill "asked that you avoid scheduling big DOE events in states that have not yet ratified the Equal Rights Amendment when possible."

A second memo, initialed by Gustin, says a boycott of non-ERA states "reflects the administration's support for the ERA and is consistent with administration policy."

In the memo, Gustin said if there is a choice between an ERA-ratified state and a non-ratified state, "whether a state has ratified the ERA should be taken into account."

Today, in a telephone interview, Gustin said the decision to rescind the new policy had been made in the Energy Department without White House direction.

"It was done in light of the president's remarks last night," he said.

It's a 'joint' effort by schools and PDAP

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series on the Midland Palmer Drug Abuse Program. It focuses on the drug scene on Midland school campuses and how some school officials view the problem.

By PATSY GORDON
Lifestyle Writer

The Department of Commerce reports that marijuana is the third largest business in the U.S. General Motors is first, Exxon is second, pot is third — far ahead of Ford, Mobil Oil, Texaco and Standard Oil. Bigger than Gulf Oil, Chrysler and U.S. Steel combined.

It's the third most imported commodity after petroleum and cars and the number one cash crop in California, with grapes running second.

Alcohol is the number three killer of persons in the U.S., after heart disease and cancer.

According to the Texas Department of Community Affairs-Drug Abuse Prevention Division, 436 persons in the Permian Basin in the 0-19 age group were arrested in 1978 for possession of marijuana, along with 438 in the 20-29 age category. This has increased since that time.

These are frightening facts to a lot of people, but nothing to compare with a 10-year-old child addicted to both drugs and alcohol.

Youthful participants in the Midland Palmer Drug Abuse Program have said that "80 percent of the kids in junior high and up" use drugs regularly.

Dr. James Mailey, superintendent of Midland Independent School District, replies to this. "My impression from visiting with principals is that this figure is way high." He further said "we don't find it" even "to be a majority."

Mailey hastened to add he was not about to say "We don't have a drug problem."

He admitted school officials "deal only with those youngsters detected around school" grounds.

According to the Parent-Student Handbook for 1979-80, under Section 1.35 entitled Possession, Use or Distribution of Drugs, "The existence of controlled drug substance abuse among school-age youth constitutes a continuing education problem and health hazard in Midland."

The manual also explains MISD policy concerning a student on or off any Midland campus found to possess, use or be under the influence of controlled drug substance. It says they will be suspended from school for a period of five days on the first offense. In addition, the student will be referred to the criminal justice system.

A 10-day suspension and referral to the justice system is levied on the second offense, while expulsion from school for the remainder of the school year is the punishment for the third offense.

A student found dealing or selling on or off the school campus, on the first offense, will be suspended from school for five days and referred to criminal justice system. The second time will find the student out of school for a full school year.

Any non-student found to be in possession of, to be using, to be selling or distributing or be under the influence of these drugs on any school campus will be referred for prosecution outlined by law.

According to Bob Savage, director of the local PDAP, "The biggest problems in grade schools and juniors highs are inhalants and drugs out of parents and grandparents medicine chests or off their nightstand."

Bobby Dunn, assistant principal at Lee Freshman School, said he recognized the problem (drug) at the school's "five or six years ago," but "no one wanted to hear about it."

As far as the school policy outlined above is concerned, he said he doesn't know of a child referred to criminal justice system.

A parent who has two children free of drugs after going through the Palmer Drug Abuse Program here had this statement. "It is so unfortunate that the schools' hands are tied because of supposed rights the kids have. This really bothers me — that the school officials cannot maintain discipline they should be able to. It is frightening. They know there's stuff (drugs) in the schools and they know who's using it and who's not.

"Parents used to think that schools were like a second home. Teachers used to be a second mother. You used to tell your kids, 'You listen to everything that teacher tells you.'

You knew school was a haven away from home. And now you are not only frightenedwith what some of the teachers are teaching your child, you are frightened with what is going on in your school."

Dunn explained that under the Texas Juvenile Code, "Kids have more rights than adults."

The educator did point out that, so far this year, not a single student has been involved with drugs at his school. "They're not as open this year." But last year, said Dunn, 13 of his nearly 600 students were found with marijuana on their person, from 2-3 ounces.

Possession of 4 ounces or more constitutes a felony, said Dunn.

There are a couple of magazines, at least, circulating around the Midland area that tell where to buy paraphernalia to use the drugs and how and where to buy and how to grow their own marijuana plants. The publications even tell the best time for American smugglers to be in Santa Marta, Colombia, South America.

According to Dunn, "Our drugs laws are not tough enough and we don't enforce the ones we got."

"The schools recognize the problem, but it is hard to call parents and tell them you suspect their kid is on drugs. They react with disbelief," Dunn explained.

"It's a hard job to be school principal any more," Dunn exposed.

According to the educator, "Kids will usually level with you when talking about drugs, but not one of the PDAP kids has snitched on friends still on drugs."

However, PDAP kids, said Dunn, get hassle from kids still on the drug scene. He also "has kids that asked to be excused from school to go to PDAP."

Dunn believes that if PDAP can "change one kid, "it's worth the $50,000" it cost to bring the program to Midland.

It is Dunn's opinion that youth in Midland "feel the city should entertain them every weekend, instead of doing things on their own. Families used to do things together. Today, kids want to be socially accepted."

He pointed out that the schools "take the brunt of the criticism." But the schools," said Dunn, "only have the kids seven hours a day, five days a week. Someone else has them the rest of the time."

The thing that hits the principal hard is the fact that "no one is exempt. There are no economic standards. No favorites. Drug scene seems to be hurting kids with average intelligence." With drugs "the bottom falls out and their attendance and grades suffer," he pointed out.

Dunn has seen some changes in the drug abusers since PDAP came to town. "They seem to have more pride in what they're doing. Whereas, before, they didn't have any under the influence of marijuana.

With PDAP, said Dunn, "kids are able to be with other kids" free of drugs at school. We will change lunch hours so they can be together."

The program advises kids desiring to stay chemically free to stay clear of their old friends still under the influence.

"It takes a lot of intestinal fortitude for kids to break away from certain peer groups they have been associated with for years," noted Dunn.

Dunn said he had a lot of kids "who want to go to PDAP, but don't have the courage to go. They are afraid to face their parents for fear they will be upset.

"I don't think kids as close to parents as 10 or 15 years ago. Kids go one way and parents another."

According to Savage, PDAP expects to have a counselor ready in a few months to go into the schools and work with the junior high and high school counselors and the on-campus suspension program.

Dunn was asked if he would welcome the PDAP counselor. He replied he would. "I think most other principals would feel the same way. If PDAP officials want a counselor out here, they can come out at noon and use my office."

Mailey feels PDAP is doing "excellent" work. "It is making real contributions in helping youngsters. The school system would be happy to work with Palmer Drug Abuse Program."

The PDAP counselor, who would not be paid for by school district, but by PDAP through contributions only, said Savage, also would be responsible for working with juvenile probation and private schools.

As Savage has said, "You turn on with drugs, then drugs turn on you. Awareness does not mean change. You must be pushed into it."

PDAP's secret of getting ahead is getting started.

NEWCOMER'S CORNER

By MARILYN DYER

We had a clergyman-friend who shared his theory with us about pastors and their congregations. His notion was that if a congregation thinks their pastor is the "greatest," the man who eventually must try to fill his shoes cannot measure up, no matter how hard he tries.

If, however, they are unhappy with the present pastor, then his replacement can do no wrong, and so congregations are happy with every other pastor. The trick, of course, is not to have to follow a good act.

I think that your satisfaction with a new home location is much the same.

If you were happy and settled in a comfortable home with good friends and had to leave it for some reason — even if it was with your assent — then you will probably have some difficulty acclimating yourself to the new one. And maybe, just maybe, you'll never allow yourself to like it. The reason I saw "allow," is because I felt this way once myself, and now I know it is all in your mental attitude and you can "allow" yourself to be miserable.

You criticize the new house. The closets aren't as large as before, the split-level separates you from family activities, the kitchen needs more cupboards, the colors aren't right, etc.

Then the neighborhood gets it. The people are unfriendly, there are too many children — or no children and only "old fogies," there aren't enough trees — or too many trees with falling leaves to rake.

The city is next and it might not have enough entertainment or good restaurants, the schools are antiquated or too modern, the taxes are prohibitive because of all the new-fangled, unnneeded gimmicks being built or initiated.

Finally, the state is too eastern or too western, or too northern or too southern in every way you can imagine, and you miss your firneds back home and you are homesick. Weep, weep.

Well, blow your nose, Poopsie, and go back as soon as possible. That's right — go back, wherever it is and you'll solve your problem. You'll find that new freeways and shopping centers have changed the landscape and it doesn't look the same anymore. You may even have trouble finding your way across town!

The street is also changed. Now, there's a fast-food place on the corner where you turn into the subdivision replacing a vacant lot were the Street Fair was held each summer, there are "For Sale" signs on houses of two of your neighbors, and as you almost hold your breath — there it is — "your house."

Well, the name on the mailbox is strange, the trim is painted white instead of you quaint Williamsburg green, the lovely shrubbery of full grown junipers which you pruned so carefully is gone, replaced by little yews which look so naked. The carport has become a garage and there is a camper in your driveway. Who cares if your violets came up again this year, of if they ever found the clump of bluebells under the crabapple tree? All of a sudden you find you don't really care, because it's not yours anymore — it's theirs.

Then you go to visit the old friends you've been pining for. They are so happy to see you and you hug and kiss and then you hear about how their life has been progressing since you've been gone.

They have been busy and include unfamiliar names of people who have come into their life since you left and you realize that everything went right along without you. You promise to write more often and get together whenever you're in that part of the country again. You invite them to come and visit you and then drive away with a feeling of finality.

You may go to your old favorite restaurant just as a parting bit of nostalgia before you leave and find it moved, or even worse, closed. You sigh and exchange regrets about hw "it sure isn't what it used to be."

Suddenly, you want to go "home" to comfort and familiarity. You realize that home is where you hang you hat, that the weather was too cold back there anyway, that the airport was always in chaos because of weather or construction, that the schools were too big and too expensive, that the neighbor who always wanted to kaffee klatsch was a real pain and that your one or two dear friends will always be just that, no matter where you live.

Cribs cause babies' deaths; parents receiving warnings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of parents will receive warnings about cribs that have been blamed in the strangulation of six infants, under an action approved today by the government.

Consumer Product Safety Commission spokeswoman Heidi Bowers said, "We have accepted a consent agreement with Bassett Furniture Industries, Inc.," that obligates the company to send out the warnings.

Ms. Bowers said the company's Mandalay and Candlelite cribs were "designed in a way that the infant's head could become trapped between either the headboard or the footboard and a bedpost."

She said the text of the agreement will be published Thursday in the Federal Register for public comment. The commission later will take a second vote on the agreement before the warning letters are mailed, she said.

Infants old enough to stand in a crib could get their necks caught between bedposts and either headboards or footboards, the warnings say. Under the consent agreement, the mailings will go to about four million households having children of up to 21 months.

About 1,654 colonial-style Candlelite cribs and 5,800 oriental-style Mandalay cribs were made from 1974 to 1977. The majority are still in homes despite a company program to modify the cribs, which retailed for $100 to $125.

The commission complaint that resulted in the settlement alleged that Bassett knew or should have known about defects in the Candlelite in September 1977, and in the Mandalay in March 1978, that "could create a substantial risk of injury to the public in that it could cause death or serious bodily injury due to strangulation."

At the manufacturer's Bassett, Va., headquarters, company president Robert H. Spilman, who signed the consent agreement, and Frank Snyder, general counsel, were unavailable for comment.

In addition to the mailings, Bassett agreed to:

Buy half-page advertisements in Family Circle and TV Guide magazines to publicize the problem.

Send warning posters to all obstetricians and gynecologists in the United States and to all pediatric clinics listed in standard references.

Offer a $5 reward to anyone who identifies a crib in which the potential hazard has not been fixed.

Pay a $175,000 civil penalty for failing to report the problem immediately to the commission. Federal law requires manufacturers to report products that pose a "substantial product hazard."

Two commissioners dissented from the commission acceptance of this sum and said the agency should have sued to make the penalty higher. Noting a $325,000 civil penalty in a 1976 case where there were no deaths, Commissioner Sam Zagoria said, "Protection of consumers would be better served by seeking a higher penalty."

David Schmeltzer, the agency official who signed the consent agreement, estimated the package of warnings and the $175,000 penalty will cost Bassett about $1 million. The company has reported annual sales of $281 million.

'Adopt-an-inmate' program proves to be successful

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The love and support of an ordinary family has proved to be a powerful weapon against a life of crime, according to Bishop Heber J. Guerts, founder of the "adopt-an-inmate" program that he says has been drastically reducing recidivism rates in prison.

As compared with the national average of from 85 to 90 percent, only 25 percent of convicts in the program return to jail, Guerts reports.

Originating in Utah State Prison in Salt Lake City in 1966, the experiment was soon expanded to Oregon and Texas and is now spreading across the country.

"Most prisoners come from broken homes or from families where they were abused," explains Guerts, who began the program when a four-time loser told him that not having anyone on the outside to relate to always landed him back in jail. "For many," he says, "there simply is no family support."

In the program, Mormon families sing, pray and play together, sharing their traditional family evenings with inmates right behind prison walls. Mothers, fathers, even small children, participate, with the prisoner being "adopted" by the entire family.

"We were trying to see if providing convicts with families to trust and confide in could give them the confidence and love they needed to make a change in their lives," Guerts says.

"For Don (not his real name), a Utah State Prison inmate who has spent 10 years on Death Row for murdering a teen-age girl, it has made all the difference," he says. Don has been a member of the Gadd family for four years. They visit him one Monday evening each month and Melvin Gadd goes to the prison frequently to talk to him.

"The first time we met Don he had just been released from solitary confinement," recalls Gadd. "I think he was more scared of us than we were of him."

"But the Gadds, like all the families who volunteer, immediately began work on developing a caring relationship," says Guerts.

Today, 18 years after his conviction, Don is in a halfway house in Salt Lake City, being groomed for release this year.

What makes this program different from what other prisons have tried is the people, says Guerts. "The dedication of the families is amazing," he says. "They really want to get involved and they really want to help.

"It's inspiring," he adds, "how the families often travel hundreds of miles to meet with the inmates. The commitmenet is so strong that, although a few prisoners have dropped out of the program, no family has ever given up."

In Raleigh, N.C., Randy Bott has followed his prisoner through eight prisons, some as far as a hundred miles from Bott's home, without missing a week. When they first met at Central, a maximum security prison in Raleigh, Bott says, the convict, currently serving from five to 10 years for assault with intent to kill, was cynical.

Country radio station plays a little music

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Bailey's Country Store has just about everything, including what may be the longest-running radio talk show in Kentucky.

It went on the air 32 years ago dispensing back-fence gossip — not the malicious type — as well as humor and announcements, but little music. Only one record is played during the 30-minute program and most of the time it's interrupted by a telephone call from a listener.

"Lots of mornings we may have 200 personal notices that we can't get to," said Bart Bailey, one of four brothers who answer such as questions as:

"How's the fishing today?"

"I'm looking for a wife. Can you help me?"

"I need a cow. You know anybody who's got one for sale?"

If Bart doesn't have the answer, he can get it from Ed, Bob, or Joe. The Bailey boys are experts at giving out information, particularly on fishing. Their store is closed every Wednesday so they can try their luck in the nearby streams.

"We're also locked up on Sundays because that's a day of rest," explained Bart, the oldest brother at 47 and the family historian.

Their roots go back to Harlan County where their father, Virgil, worked in the coal mines and ran a small store until 1936, when he moved to Whitley County.

"He opened a little grocery and filling station, getting up at 4 a.m. to catch the tourists," Bart recalled. "The Lord was good to us, because the business just grew and grew."

It was Virgil who conceived the idea for the radio program, driving to Corbin every day to broadcast live from Station WCTT.

When he retired, his sons took over the show and decided to have remote broadcast facilities installed in the Country Store.

"I can look around and see what bargains we have for the day and tell the public about them," said Bart, adding that the Baileys pay for the first 15 minutes of the program. "There are five other sponsors, with mini-spots, who have been with us forever and ever."

He's been broadcasting for 23 years and never been stumped by a listener, not even by the man who advertised for a wife. "I think he found a girl in 30 minutes."

Pipe line magazine says 1980s to be active decade

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A trade publication says the 1980s will be the most active decade in history for the oil and gas pipelining industry.

Editors of Pipe Line Industry say much of 1980 will be spent in preparing for the future.

"The coming year will be a 'gearing-up' period for the huge projects that are to follow," the monthly publication reports in its annual outlook and forecast edition.

Companies participating in the publication's annual construction report and forecast survey indicate world wide construction mileage will increase 4 percent this year.

The 37,952 miles in new lines anticipated this year represent an increase of only 1,667 miles over the 1979 level, the lowest increase to be forecast by survey respondents since the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

This means, the publication said, 1980 construction activity is expected to be about the same as it has been during recent years, relatively slow in the United States and Canada, with Latin America, Australia, the Middle East and Africa showing a mate increase.

But the ups and downs of the 1970s were said to be "only a prologue to dramatic changes that will take place during the next decade."

Pipe Line Industry's editors make these predictions:

— The focus on construction activity will, in many instances, shift from the Middle East and Africa to North America, Latin America, Australia, and China.

— Annual spending for pipelines and related facilities will more than triple the 1970s average.

—Pipe will be laid in waters up to 1.5 miles deep, requiring new construction and repair concepts.

— New technology will be introduced to improve onshore and offshore consntruction methods and equipment for use in the Arctic, permafrost, and muskeg.

— Networks of slurry pipelines, coal in particular, will cross the United States and other countries.

— Long distance, large diameter pipe lines from Arctic regions will form intercontinental networks for both oil and gas.

The editors added that pipelining will become a major factor in China as vast new oil and gas fields are opened. And they said Australia's Northwest Shelf and Latin America not only will spawn long distance, large diameter pipe lines but multibillion dollar investment in liquefied natural gas facilities in Japan, Europe, and the United States.

Pipe Line Industry said gas and oil transmission construction this year in the United States and Canada is expected to total 7,473 miles, compared with 7,196 last year.

Such a total, the publication said, is far below levels of 10 years ago but does not include numerous projects being considered, on the drawing boards, or awaiting permits.

Major projects not yet acted upon by federal and state governments and excluded from the predicted 1980 total were said to exceed 4,500 miles.

More than 8,500 miles of coal slurry and carbon dioxide lines also were said to be in proposal and study stages.

"Some of these projects may receive permits this year," the publication said. "Even so, the pending projects will add little miles to the forecast in 1980."

The magazine said an important energy issue now under discussion is the amount of capital companies will need to invest in the United States during the new decade for oil and natural gas.

"The conclusion of the analysis: U.S. oil companies will need to invest about $1 trillion for energy in the U.S. alone between now and 1990," the publication said.

An estimated $200 billion of that $1 trillion, it added will be required for pipe lines and related facilities.

Nominations now accepted

Nominations now are being accepted for the third annual Energy Secretary of the Year Award.

Competition for the award is open to any secretary in the greater Permian Basin region of Texas and New Mexico who is employed by an energy-related firm.

Nominations for the award can be made by employers, family, friends or others who are famaliar with the candidates qualifications.

The candidates will be judged on employer loyalty, job efficiency and responsibility, and contributions to the oil and gas industry, the community and church.

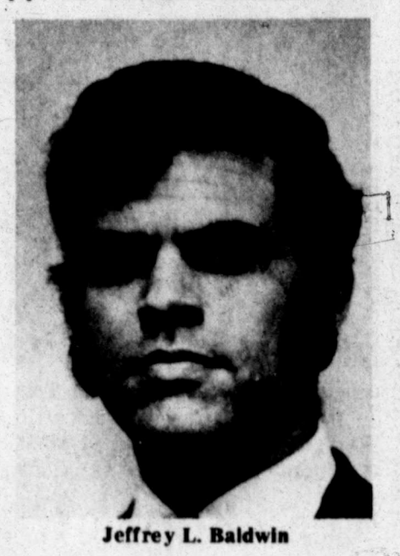

The winner will receive a free trip for two to Acapulco, Mexico, or may take a cash award of $500. A plaque also will be presented to the winner.

The Energy Secretary of the Year Award was originated in 1978 by Richard S. Gaddy, a Midland independent oilman, to honor the many secretaries in the oil and gas business. The 1978 winner was Martha Elder of Midland, and the 1979 winner was Jo Johnson of Hobbs, N.M.

"The award is meant to honor and draw attention to all the loyal, dedicated and hard-working secretaries without whom the oil business could not function," Gaddy said.

The award is presented each year in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association. The event is scheduled April 17.

Nominations consisting of one- or two-page resumes detailing reasons why the candidate should be Energy Secretary of The Year should be mailed to Award, P.O. Box 5133, Midland, 79701, before April 1.

RRC reports gas volumes

AUSTIN — Texas oil and gas wells produced 589,351,906 Mcf of gas in November, up 7.54 percent from field runs a year earlier.

Marketed gas production totaled 504,753,661 Mcf and reflected a 9.97 percent increase from the November 1978 volume. Marketed production is the total gas to transmission lines, carbon black and plant fuel and lease use.

Gas exported from Texas in November totaled 276,358,159 mcf. Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America was the month's largest exporter, moving 76,246,873 Mcf of gas of which 37,726,729 Mcf was Texas-produced gas.

Texas gas production in November came from 202,488 oil and gas wells.

Robert H. Adams

Adams now on his own

Robert H. Adams of Midland has announced he will take early retirement from Union Oil Co. of California and open a geophysical consulting office in Midland.

He has been with Union 20 years. His retirement date will be March 31.

During his tenure with Union he served as area and district geophysicist in West Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Australia.

Adams worked eight years with United Geophysical Co., Dawson Geophysical Co. and Midland Geophysical Co. before joining Union.

He is a member of the Permian Basin Geophysical Society and the Society of Exploration Geophysicists. He is a registered geophysicist in California.

Conwell C. McCune

Treatment talk slated

Conwell C. McCune of LaHabra, Calif., a Distinguished Lecturer of the Society of Petroleum Engineers, will speak at the Tuesday meeting of the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

McCune, senior engineering associate with Chevron Oil Field Research Co., will talk on "Water Treatment for Injection and Disposal."

McCune is on a nationwide tour sponsored by SPE as part of its Distinguished Lecturer program. He holds B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in Chemical Engineering from the University of Utah. He taught at several universities before joining Chevron Oil Field Research.

New method to up yield

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — South and Central Texas could become the nation's most productive oil and gas producing area through a new recovery technique that employs underground explosions, according to research reports and some geologists.

It's estimated that geological formations in that area could yield 10 billion barrels of oil, said to be the equivalent of the North Slope of Alaska.

Oil producers have known for a long time that the Austin Chalk and Buda Limestone formations in the area are saturated with oil, which has been impossible to economically recover, said Mason Fargason of San Antonio, president of Pozo Drilling Co.

"But the technique known as gaseous explosive fracturing will certainly make it possible to open up the Austin Chalk, so the oil and gas can be recovered," said Fargason.

The chalk formation is a broad band that stretches from Mexico across Texas northeast to Louisiana.

Edward B. Deakin III

Accountants slate meeting

Edward B. Deakin III of Austin will present the program for the Petroleum Accountants Society meeting Wednesday at Ranchland Hill Country Club.

He is an associate professor of accounting at The University of Texas and has held appointments as visiting professor at Stanford University and the University of Kuwait.

The meeting will begin with a social hour at 6 p. m. The buffet diner will be served at 7 and the program will being at 8.

Deakin will talk on "Measuring and Reporting the 'Replacement' Cost of Oil and Gas Reserves."

He will discuss the highlights of the problems encountered in applying reserve recognition accounting and some of the solutions which have been suggested for resolving these problems.

Coal plant study told

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Northwest Pipeline Corp. and the major natural gas distribution companies in the Pacific Northwest are immediately undertaking a joint study of the feasibility of constructing a coal gasification plant to provide supplemental domestic gas supplies for the Northwest Pipeline System.

Committee to honor Moore

The Midland Wildcat Commitee will honor Stanley C. Moore and other directors of Smith International, Inc., Tuesday in the Petroleum Club of Midland.

The event will begin at 5 p.m. and continue to 7 p.m.

Guest of the Midland Wildcat Committee at the reception, will be Jerry W. Neely, Newport Beach, Calif., chairman of the board and president; A. M. Birnie, South Laguna, Calif.,; Robert L. Flynne, Laguna Niguel, Calif.; Basil P. Kantzer, Beverly Hills, Calif.; James W. Roche, Englewood, Colo.; E. O. Rodeffer, Corono del Mar, Calif.; Harold H. Smith, Laguna Niguel and H. S. Voegelin, Newport Beach, Calif., all directors.

Robert L. Wood is chairman of the executive committee of the Midland Wilcat Committee.

Firms seek less crude

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission says nominations for the purchase of Texas crude oil in March total 2,631,965 barrels a day, a decrease of 21,753 barrels daily from February.

Lower nominations usually indicate a decline in the amount of oil companies are able to obtain rather than less demand for oil.

The commission will meet Wednesday to set the statewide oil production factor for March. It currently is 100 percent.

11-unit drop marked in rotary drilling count

The Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico reported a decrease of 11 units from the last count, as Reed Rock Bit Co. reported 299 active rigs in the two-state area.

Lea County, N.M., the leader in drilling activity, reported a gain of one unit, bring its tally to 44.

Eddy County reported 28 rigs going, having decreased activity by three from the last count.

Pecos County, the West Texas leader, reported 22 active rigs and a gain of two from the previous week.

Ward County picked up two rigs and reported 14 rigs going, while Crockett County gained three, reporting 13 active units.

Get off to a good start with Midland's PB&E

Permian Battery and Electric has served the Basin area from the same location, 705 South Big Spring, for twenty-one years. In November 1979, two independent businessmen of Midland bought the business, and pledge to continue with fine service to Midland residents.

Permian has all the necessary diagnostic equipment to pinpoint trouble in an electrical system, hopefully before it becomes a major problem. Anyone who suspects trouble in their wiring or other components is invited to drive in for a free analysis of the difficulty.

If the electrical system is faulty, any necessary repairs or replacements can be done correctly and reasonably at Permian Battery and Electric.

U.S. hopes to block takeover by El Salvador communists through $49.8 million in aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, hoping to prop up the government of El Salvadaor and block a communist takeover, wants to give $49.8 million in economic aid to the Central American nation.

In addition, U.S. officials have stated, the administration is considering sending small military training teams to help Salvadoran authorities cope with spreading violence.

Assistant Secretary of State William Bowdler said the Salvadoran government deserves American backing because of its commitment to economic reform, human rights and restoration of democracy.

The major component of the U.S. economic aid proposal is $25 million in development assistance, administration officials said. These officials, asking not to be identified, said the military part of the program would reallocate $5 million in military sales credits and training funds to El Salvador.

The administration is worried that El Salvador may see the same type of warfare that plagued Nicaragua before the ouster of the Somoza government last July.

After seven months in power, the ideological direction of the Sandinista government in Nicaragua still is not clear. But officials said the situation in El Salvador may be cause for greater U.S. concern because the leftist forces in Salvador generally are more extreme than the rebel movement which ousted Somoza.

The officials say the Salvadoran government, made up of two military officers and three civilians, has a narrow base of support with the opposition ranging from conservative military elements and the small but influential wealthy class to Marxist extremists.

The centrist government seized power last October from Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero amid mounting human rights violations and widespread random violence, much of it revenge-motivated, from both extremes.

The Carter administration had hoped the new government, with its economic reform program, would be able to attract broad popular support but officials said this has not happened, largely because of its inability to curb terrorism.

Auto makers promise Fraser nothing

TOKYO (AP) — Douglas A. Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers, ended a four-day visit today with no promises of help from Japan's major auto makers, even as three of them posted record high January production and export figures.

However, Fraser apparently struck home with government leaders in his plea for Japanese action to help unemployed members of his 1.5-million-strong union.

Fraser told the Japanese they should recognize an obligation to reduce exports and to open factories in the United States to furnish jobs for some of the 220,000 American auto workers now idle.

Fraser warned that continued refusal by Japanese car builders to take such steps could lead to a protectionist backlash in Congress.

Conversion badly needs coordination

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Regional coordination, not costly and possibly wasteful "planning," is needed if the United States is to convert to metric measure, officials of two Western states have told the U.S. Metric Board.

The 17-member board, holding hearings to gather information on the impact of a voluntary change to the system, also was told that there is more to metrification than a conversion chart.

"My grandmother measured rugs by extending her hand — maybe four or five hands across and 10 or 11 down," Melvin Big Thumb, chief of weights and measures for the Navajo Nation, said on the first day of the board's two-day meeting. "Many of them (Navajo weavers) are still using that."

Officials of Western states asked the board to coordinate action regionally, while an Eastern official said that area of the nation already has its own plan.

"We need somebody who's going to provide the forum," said Pat Fullinwider, Arizona director of weights and measures. Mrs. Fullinwider said it would take at least three years to pass state legislation to deal with metric issues.

Russell B. Caldwell, Colorado commerce director, also said the board should provide regional help but that no new federal agency should be created to handle conversion problems.

Caldwell added the board should stay away from the concept of planning, saying that "in this region, planning is not a very popular word," Caldwell said.

Property tax cut proposals defeated at Richmond polls

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Proposals to cut property taxes, eliminate utility taxes and put a lid on city spending have been defeated by Richmond voters, but supporters say they will try again to win approval.

All eight propositions in the referendum, which officials said could have cost Richmond $40 million annually if enacted, were rejected by margins of 7,000 to 8,000 votes. Nearly half the 100,000 registered voters turned out.

With all of the precinct reports in, City Registrar Alice Lynch called the outcome a "firm loss" for the referendum. Newspaper polls had indicated support for all eight measures.

John Ambrose, president of the Richmond Independent Taxpayers Association, which forced the referendum, said he was disappointed but that the group "will try to recoup and try again for another referendum."

The vote was advisory only. The Virginia General Assembly has final say on city charter changes, and the Richmond delegation had opposed the proposals.

British inflation rate soars, hits 2.5 percent in January; rise highest in four years

LONDON (AP) — British inflation soared 2.5 percent in January to an annual rate of 18.4 percent, the highest since April 1976, the British government has announced.

This is the highest rate of inflation among major Western countries except for Italy, where the cost of living is rushing ahead at 18.8 percent a year. U.S. inflation is running at 13.3 percent.

Although government action led to many of January's hikes — higher interest rates, transport costs and telephone charges — Department of Employment officials claimed the main cause of the new year price surge was hefty wage settlements.

Nevertheless, officials said one-third of the increase stemmed from mortgage interest rates going up from 11¾ percent to 15 percent, following the government's decision to push the Bank of England minimum lending rate to a record 17 percent. This was designed to stem demand for money — the tight "monetary" policy on which Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives were elected last May.

More increases are in the pipeline for Britons, who lived with high inflation throughout the 1970s, including a peak of 26.9 percent under a Labor government in August 1975.

In February, postage, rail and bus fares, gasoline, beer, school meals and many food prices have gone up and will be reflected in next month's figures.

The latest inflation rate compares with 17.2 percent reported in January and 9.3 percent a year ago.

Officials blamed the bulk of the increase on pay settlements now averaging about 18 percent a year. Steelworkers now on strike are demanding 20 percent.

Other comparative inflation rates: France 11.8 percent, West Germany 5.4, Holland 4.8 and Japan 5.8 Percent.

Japan's nuclear energy industry faces demands

By HISAKO YOSHIDA
Kyodo — Copley News Service

TOKYO -- Japan's nuclear energy industry, seriously shaken by accidents and public criticism in 1979, faces further demands to guarantee safety.

Throughout 1979 the March radiation leak at the Three-Mile Island atomic power plant in Pennsylvania overshadowed the operation of 21 nuclear plants in Japan, all using American technology.

The "TMI shock" was magnified among Japan government officials, experts and the general public when serious power plant accidents occurred soon after elaborate checks were conducted on the nation's eight reactors of the same type as on Three-Mile Island.

The checks OK'd the safety of the emergency core cooling system (ECCS), the critical part involved in the TMI emergency. But two of the accidents in Japan were triggered by human error -- substituting copper-alloy plugs for stainless-steel plugs. This raised a further question on quality assurance of plants.

The wrong plugs resulted in the unnecessary triggering of the ECCS at the Oi plant of Kansai Electric Power Co. in July, as well as the loss of 80 tons of coolant water at the same company's Takahama Plant in November.

Furthermore, cracks in the ECCS and many technical defects were discovered at Oi and other plants.

Japan has now 21 nuclear power plants with a combined electric generation capacity of nearly 15 gigawatts (14,952,000 kilowatts), about 12 percent of the nation's total electric output. Nuclear power capacity is expected to double to 30 gigawatts in 1985, 17 percent of total electric generation then, by increasing the number of atomic plants to 37 to cut dependence on oil.

The TMI emergency and the later accidents in Japan obviously delayed the constuction of new plants.

"But safety comes first. We have to establish security," says Kazuhisa Mori, executive managing director of the Japan Atomic Industrial Forum Inc.

"The Japanese atomic industry is still unconfident about security and quite vulnerable to the United States. But nuclear fuel development is an obvius choice in the future," he said, adding that the industry learned a lot from the TMI accident.

Kansai Electric organized a team for improving quality control.

But the company lost $44 million in a two-month shutdown of its plant for government safety checks immediately after the U.S. accident. The company's September dividend dropped by 4 percent to 6 percent, the lowest since it was established.

The Japan Nuclear Safety Commission, similar to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and nuclear experts tended to regard the TMI accidents as "impossible in Japan" in the beginning and the accidents in Japan as not fundamental but only simple mistakes.

Residents near the plants and ordinary citizens stepped up their protests against nuclear power plants throughout 1979.

The number of people opposing atomic plants and their construction has increased 20-30 percent and the number of organized groups of such people rose 50 percent recently, says Jinzaburo Takagi, former assistant professor of the Tokyo Metropolitan University who is now a central figure in organizing the nation's anti-nuclear groups.

Energy secretary says conservation will help

HOUSTON (AP) Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan says the United States can cut its dependence on foreign oil in half by the year 1990 if the country uses proper conservation methods.

Duncan called for a combination of conservation, increased development of domestic oil and gas and development and use of coal, oil shale, nuclear energy, solar energye, hydroelecrtic power and synthetic fuels.

"Energy is the single most important element that will affect our national security, economy our standard of living, our social and political freedom and the kinds of lives our future generations will have," Duncan said Thursday in a speech at Rice University.

"We must look at it over the long term with long-term planning," he said. "Other we will continue to move from crisis to crisis with a policy of energy by emergency and we do not have that option."

States facing environmental threat

By M. CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight western states face a serious environmental threat from increased energy development unless proper safeguards are taken, a new government study said Friday.

The study, prepared for the Environmental Protection Agency, examined the impact of increased mining and drilling activities in Arizona, Colorado, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming.

It comes at a time when the Carter administration is pushing energy development in the West, including synthetic fuel production, to lessen the country's dependence on foreign oil.

One of the most serious threats, the study said, was to scarce water resources in the region.

As an example, the study said that by the year 2000 the Colorado River basin could fall 1 million acre-feet short of enough water to meet the projected needs of both energy development and nonenergy uses. An acre foot is the amount of water needed to cover one acre to a depth of one foot.

The study also warned that air and water pollution could increase because of expanded mining activities but it listed various proposals to lessen the environmental impact.

The study estimated that large-scale energy development could increase total income in the eight states by as much as 10 percent to 15 percent by the year 2000 and provide thousands of extra jobs.

But the study also said energy development threatens "serious growth management and housing problems for small, isolated communities which often experience rapid and large population increases and boom-and-bust cycles. The most serious population changes will result from labor-intensive facilities such as coal gasification and electric power plants."

The 10-volume report was done for the EPA by researchers at the University of Oklahoma. It was released Friday in Washington and also by EPA Deputy Administrator Barbara Blum at a Denver news conference.

"Our basic position is that while potential environmental problems associated with synfuels are serious, we do not feel that they present an insurmountable barrier to development," Ms. Blum said in a statement. "We are beginning to shape regulatory policies that will minimize the potential negative environmental impacts of energy development."

Ms. Blum pledged that the EPA would "work aggressively" to meet President Carter's goal of producing 400,000 barrels of oil per day through oil shale by 1990.

Payback gets OK

TALLAHASEE, Fla. (AP) — State officials and the Florida Power Corp. have agreed to a settlement that would give $5 million to customers allegedly overcharged in a "daisy chain" oil pricing scheme.

U.S. District Judge George C. Carr will review the proposed settlement hammered out Friday by company officials, the Public Service Commission and Attorney General Jim Smith. Each customer affected would get about $4.

Carr previously rejected a $6.5 million settlement because it would have allowed Florida Power to make claims against oil companies involved in the case. Carr ruled the provision would have given the utility an unfair advantage over the oil companies.

In the daisy chain, oil allegedly was bought and sold several times to increase the price.

The agreement would settle a portion of a lawsuit Smith has filed, charging Florida Power and several oil companies conspired to illegally raise oil prices from 1973 to 1975. Florida Power passed the oil costs on to its customers.

Florida Power and two Texas oil companies, Aminoil USA and Carter International, would pay $1.5 million each and oil consultant Ray Granlund would pay the remaining $500,000 of the settlement.

A key to the settlement was Florida Power's agreement to also administer the refunds at an estimated cost of $500,000.

After insisting the utility pay those costs, Commissioner Gerald Gunter said, "The pot's right for me if we get that commitment."

Florida Power attorney Richard Neiser finally agreed after the commission refused to back down.

Neiser said he did not know when customers would begin receiving refunds if the settlement gets court approval.

Atlantic explorer shows for commercial oil, gas

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The chairman of Getty Oil says prospects are promising from an exploratory well being drilled by a group of oil companies to determine if there is enough natural gas to develop the first commercial gas field off the East Coast.

Harold E. Berg, however, also warned that the well, being drilled for the group by Texaco about 106 miles east of Atlantic City, still must be completed and evaluated before any decision is made on whether to start work to bring gas ashore.

"The well at this point looks promising and that's all you can say for it," Berg said in a telephone interview Friday from Los Angeles.

"If it does prove to be a good well — and that 'if' should be capitalized many, many times — but if it does prove good, then we'd have to do some calculating on reserves and there's a possibility that might make that (area) commercial," Berg said.

"On the other side, if it proves to be a dud or a mediocre well, then I think your hopes would be pretty well dampened," Berg said.

Berg's cautious statement is still the most optimistic and specific word from an oil executive on the propects for a commercial gas field off the mid-Atlantic coast.

Getty has a 20 percent interest in the well, the fifth to be drilled by in a very small area of the Baltimore Canyon Trough.

There have been five gas strikes and one oil strike within a 2½-mile radius of Texaco's first gas discovery in August 1978. The present hole is a "delineation well" designed to determine the size of the natural gas reservoir.

In nearly two years of drilling, 16 dry holes in 21 exploratory wells have been reported in the Baltimore Canyon area. Texaco and Murphy Oil Co. are still drilling.

Texaco spokesman James Robertson refused comment on Berg's statement.

However, Texaco president John J. McKinley is quoted in Fortune magazine as saying that if the present well produces gas, his firm would try to start full-scale production by 1985.

Robertson said the Texaco well is still at least a month away from testing. He said the leased semi-submersible rig Ocean Victory is drilling below 15,000 feet on a planned 16,000-foot hole.

Texaco has a 31.5 percent interest in the venture with Getty Oil, Sun Oil, Allied Chemical, Transco Exploration and Freeport Minerals companies.

HYDRAULIC CYLINDERS – J.I.C. standards, with up to a ten foot (10') stroke, are used.
CAM COUPLING & ACTUATOR – The cam coupling connects the cylinder to a polished rod that smoothly actuates the cam valves that determine the pump cycle.
PEDESTAL – The pedestal is constructed of heavy wall pipe. It supports the hydraulic cylinder and cam valve actuators. It also insures alignment of the cylinder to the polished rod and service tool.
CAM VALVES – When actuated by the cam actuator, the cam valves automatically change the direction of the downhole pump. The lower valve allows up to eighteen inches (18") of stroke adjustment.
BASE PLATE – The base plate is installed in tubing run as a mounting base for the pedestal, insuring alignment of the unit. Three (3) bolts are required to connect the pedestal to the base plate.
HOSE BUNDLE – Five (5) assemblies are all that is required to 'rig up' the hydraulic power supply, making for easy installation on, and removal from, the surface pump. A ten foot (10') assembly is standard. Longer lengths are available per manufacturer's specifications.

Report on wholesale prices offers little hope for relief

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The government's report on wholesale prices this past week brought little comfort to those hoping for inflation relief.

Costs of wholesalers and producers — most of which are passed along to consumers — rose by 1.6 percent in January, the largest one-month increase in more than five years.

Some of that was due to an unusual jump in gold and silver prices, which spiraled as investors, many from the Middle East, bid up prices in frantic trading tied to worries about turmoil in that area.

But, even excluding the effects of a 22 percent jump in costs of precious metal jewelry and a 54 percent leap in silverware costs, wholesale prices would have increased 1.25 percent in January, according to David Ernst, an economist at Evans Economists in Washington.

That amounts to an annual price increase of 16 percent, compounded, compared with a 21 percent annual rate of increase in prices as reported by the Labor Department last week.

"Anyway you look at it, the number is not encouraging," said Ernst, who warns that consumers may get no relief from inflation this year, with the worst likely to come in the early months of the year.

Rapid increases in oil prices, many announced recently by members of the OPEC cartel, "are still being digested by the economy," and are likely to be a major inflationary push in the months to come.

In the government's latest report on wholesale and producer prices, gasoline prices rose 5.7 percent in January, compared to a 3.2 percent increase the month before. Home heating oil rose 2 percent in January, up from .1 percent in December.

One bright spot in the latest report, however, was a substantial decline in prices of prepared food, ready to be sold to retailers. Those food prices fell 0.8 percent, or at an annual compound rate of about 10 percent.

John Ortego of Chase Econometrics, a forecasting firm in suburban Philadelphia, says consumers can expect to see food prices continue to decline "for the next month or so and then stabilize" largely because there are more supplies of meat this year.

"But the outlook for energy costs is not likely to improve much in the upcoming months," he adds. The net result is that he also expects consumer prices to increase this year at a slightly higher average rate than last with the biggest increases early in the year.

Such forecasts assume that there will be a mild recession late in the year which cools inflation as it also slows the economy.

The Federal Reserve, in an apparent attempt to slow inflation, announced shortly after the producer price report came out, that it was raising from 12 percent to 13 percent its discount rate. That is the rate the Fed charges on loans to member banks.

Economists said that move is likely to raise borrowing costs for business and consumers alike and could force the economy into a recession by forcing businesses to cut back production and lay off workers.

In other business developments this past week:

—The Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) and the government reached a $700 million out-of-court settlement on Energy Department charges that the refiner had committed price violations totaling $500 million. In the agreement, Standard of Indiana, which markets gasoline under the trade name Amoco, didn't admit any wrongdoing.

But it said it would reimburse $300 million to various customers and agencies and spend $400 million in accelerated investment on future production.

The settlement was the largest to date stemming from government charges against 15 refiners involving more than $10 billion in possible price violations.

$10 increase in gold price means $2 million to producers

By JACK FOISIE
The Los Angeles Times

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Every time the price of gold goes up $10 an ounce on the world's money markets, South African gold producers get richer by more than $2 million.

It is not all profit, of course. At the current price of gold — more than $700 an ounce at the weekend — 67 percent of the increased revenue goes to the government in taxes.

Nonetheless, it is boom time in South Africa. In Johannesburg's venerable Rand Club, mining executives talk business with a tinge of exuberance added to their normal mood of prosperity and confidence.

The talk is of expanding mines, sinking new shafts, even reworking abandoned mines; high prices have made it worthwhile to have another go at mines thought to have been worked out.

"One of our mines, cleaning up its railroad lines between shafts, picked up 80 kilograms (176 lbs.) of gold," Anglo American Corp. executive Dennis Etheredge said. "Some people say it's time to tear up the streets of Johannesburg, but I'm not in favor of that."

Near Barberton, about 250 miles east of Johannesburg in the alluvial sand area where gold was panned in the old days, hundreds of new small claims are being filed. For an acre to prospect, a claimant pays only 42 cents a month to the government. On weekends the gullies are filled with enthusiastic amateurs hoping to turn up a nugget.

In neighboring Rhodesia there is the same gold fever. The Department of Mines recently published a list of about 1,000 dormant mines, and within a few weeks the first printing of 500 copies had been grabbed up.

But in the big mining houses of Johannesburg even the multimillion-dollar scheme to rework old dumps is classified as a "little fellow" operation.

Anglo American's Etheredge estimated that his firm's ERGO project, involving millions of tons of old gold tailings being retreated chemically to recover gold and uranium, will recover only five tons a year.

"Still, it's nice gold because its profitable," Etheredge said. Besides being chairman of Anglo American's gold and uranium division, he is president of the powerful South Africa Chamber of Mines.

Last year South Africa produced 703 metric tons of gold, 51 percent of all the gold that came onto the world market. Gold sales returned $7.3 billion to the companies and the South African treasury last year.

The No. 2 producer, the Soviet Union, marketed an estimated 300 tons last year, while the other big producers — Australia, Canada, South America and Rhodesia — were far behind.

It was a banner year here — a "King Midas year." The price of gold averaged $305 throughout the year, rose sharply at the end of the year and on Jan. 21 of this year peaked at $825. The modern low in September, 1976, was $103.

Inflation in the West, soaring oil prices, political uncertainty and a weak dollar triggered the frantic demand for gold. And because the future does not look any brighter, South African economists expect the price to remain relatively stable, without the wild fluctuations there have been in the past.

Michael F. Brown, chief economist of the Chamber of Mines, expects a conservative base price of $300, and much of the economic planning here in government and industry is predicated on a gold price at or above that level.

Even after taxes, the mining firms will have plenty of capital for expansion. For example, Anglo American, as Etheredge put it, will have a "completely new capability."

Show that you care

Growing up in a household with only one parent can be a lonely, unfulfilling experience.

That isn't always the case, of course, but in today's society often a single parent doesn't have the time to devote to a child; that time must be spent working to earn the money to pay bills and put food on the table.

But the situation is not totally bleak in Midland. Since it was organized in June 1975, by Family Services of Midland, Inc., Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Midland has been helping to fill the void in some single parent households here, bringing joy and fulfillment to the children served.

Beginning today and continuing through Feb. 23 National Big Brothers/Big Sisters Week will be observed in the Tall City. The observance of this week is vitally important and should get the support of all Midlanders.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters is a program of adult volunteers providing adult friendship and guidance to children of single parent homes in all walks of life.

How does this program help in the community, you might ask?

It benefits you because it benefits our young people who will grow up to become all our citizens of tomorrow.

The program is a success if it helps in decreasing vandalism in the city, if it keeps one child from becoming a runaway, if it helps keep young people in school instead of in the courts and rehabilitation centers. And it gives parents one less boy or girl to worry about for a short period of time.

In Midland the Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization has been successful in the past, but is in danger of being terminated, organization officials say, because of a lack of adult volunteers.

Here in Midland the need for the organization is great and it should not be allowed to die. It doesn't have to suffer that fate, but only you can change the outcome by becoming involved.

Currently the local organization serves about 50 children in the city. But there are 2,500 children living in single parent homes here.

Serving as a Big Brother or Big Sister isn't difficult. All you've got to have is about two to three hours of time a week and the desire to do a good turn for one of Midland's young people.

Additionally, the program will reward you many times over. It'll give you the chance to get out of doors to enjoy recreational pursuits, to see some new places and to meet some new people.

And, of course, you will be rewarded by the knowledge that you've helped a young person learn how to cope with life.

Get involved. Call Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Midland at 683-4241 or 683-4242. Show them you care and, as residents of Midland, we'll all reap the benefits.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Feb. 17, the 48th day of 1980. There are 318 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 17, 1801, the House of Representatives broke an electoral tie between Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr, electing Jefferson President of the United States.

On this date:

In 1621, Miles Standish was made military captain of the pilgrim colony in Plymouth, Mass.

In 1944, in the World War II Pacific theater, American forces attacked Japanese-held Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands.

In 1962, two senior state department officials were dispatched to Paris to urge members of the North Atlantic Alliance to reduce or cut off trade with Cuba.

In 1973, presidential adviser Henry Kissinger met with China's party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung and Premier Chou En-Lai for nearly two hours in Peking.

Ten years ago, Israel bombed Cairo's outskirts and warned Egypt there would be no let-up until the United Arab Republic agreed to abide by the 1967 cease-fire agreement.

Five years ago, government forces in Cambodia abandoned efforts to reopen the Mekong River. The river was under Communist control, cutting off supplies to the capital of Phnom Penh.

Last year, Chinese troops invaded Vietnam, bolstered by tanks, fighter planes and artillery.

Today's birthdays: Singer Marian Anderson is 78. Margaret Truman Daniel is 56. Former pro football great Jimmy Brown is 44.

Thought for today: From the sublime to the ridiculous there is only one step. — Napoleon Bonaparte (1769-1821)

ART BUCHWALD

Solving the Ali crisis was an important task

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Teddy Kennedy keeps screaming that President Carter should leave the White House and come up to New England to debate with him. I don't agree. In times like these, the President must be in Washington dealing with each crisis as it comes up.

Take early last week. The President was in the Oval Office when his Security Adviser Brzezinski rushed in with a cable.

Is it from Pakistan?

No, said Brzezinski. It's from Muhammad Ali in Tanzania. He wants to come home.

The President, who never panics in a crisis, said, He can't do it. The cornerstone of our entire foreign policy depends on his mission.

I know that, Mr. President, but he says in his cable that the president of Tanzania won't see him.

Why not? Is it because Ali is no longer heavyweight champion of the world?

No, it's because he's black.

Isn't the president of Tanzania black?

That's just the point. The president of Tanzania is sore because we sent a black man to persuade him to call off the Olympics. He thinks you're patronizing him.

But doesn't he know I didn't send Ali because of his color? I sent him because he's the best diplomat I've got.

I know it, and you know it. But nobody else does. Mr. President, what are we going to do?

What else does he say in his cable?

Brzezinski read from it, All the black Africans here in Tanzania tell me their fight is with South Africa and not with Russia. How come you didn't tell me that when you made me Special Ambassador to the Dark Continent?

I thought I did, Carter said. Why don't we cable him and tell him that if he cuts his mission short, the Russians might go ahead with their Olympics, and then they will never get out of Afghanistan.

I talked to our people in Tanzania and they told him that already. He said it doesn't matter because he's the greatest diplomat in the world and he'll lose his title if no head of state will see him.

But it's just one country. I'm sure the presidents of Kenya and Liberia will see him.

Yes, but they have already decided not to go to the Moscow Olympics.

He doesn't know that, Carter said.

I think you ought to send him a cable immediately, Mr. President. If Ali cancels his trip now we could not only lose Afghanistan, but Maine and New Hampshire as well.

All right, send the following wire. 'Dear Champ, As President of the United States and Commander-in-Chief, I am ordering you to continue your diplomatic mission. Your negotiations could mean the difference between a Moscow Olympics or no Olympics at all. Our only hope to avoid a confrontation between the two major nuclear powers is your ability to persuade Nigeria and Senegal to stay home this summer. All America awaits your decision.'

Happily for all of us, Ali decided to continue his historic journey.

The only reason I mention all this is that if President Carter had been slogging through Maine last week, as Teddy would have him do, he would never have had time to deal with the Ali crisis, which many diplomatic observers are now describing as the turning-point in Soviet-American relations.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Mexican newspaper forced to close

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Under the free-swinging hammer blows of the Burger Court, the First Amendment rights enjoyed for two centuries by the American press, and the public it keeps informed, have been chipped away to dangerous levels.

Since 1972, the Supreme Court has stripped reporters of their right to protect confidential sources, authorized surprise fishing expeditions by police through newsroom files, weakened the media's protection from libel suits and ruled that certain court proceedings can be kept secret from press and public.

Although the United States still has a press that is freer of corruption and government control than any in the world, the court's assault on the First Amendment is disturbing to civil libertarians. If the press is declared a free-fire zone for government authorities — whether smalltown deputies, district attorneys or presidents — the United States will be one step closer to the Thought Police of Orwell's 1984.

It can't happen here, the complacent will say. The Constitution still protects our free press.

What would it be like in a country where government authorities simply ignored the constitutional guarantee of a free press? It's not necessary to go to Cuba or the Soviet Union for an example. Right on our doorstep there's a frightening case of a crusading editor being stifled by those in power who were stung by his exposures of their wrongdoing.

A few miles south of San Diego, in the honkytonk Mexican border town of Tijuana, government officials, enraged by a newspaper called ABC and its stories of widespread corruption, wreaked the kind of revenge against their tormentor that Richard Nixon and his gang could only dream about.

Last November, a gang of 250 toughs from a government-controlled labor union stormed into the ABC news offices and took possession. The paper was shut down.

When ABC eventually resumed publication, it wasn't the same newspaper. Editor Jesus Blancornelas and his staff of fiercely independent investigative reporters had been replaced by servile hacks certified as loyal to the government.

Even by Mexican standards, the takeover of ABC and ouster of its staff were flagrant violations of the press freedom guaranteed by the country's progressive constitution. The more characteristic modus operandi used by Mexican officials to assure favorable press is simply bribery — with public money.

Blancornelas, however, refused to accept the payola from officials. Quite the contrary: He dared to write a series of articles exposing the corruption of Baja California Gov. Roberto de la Madrid, a lifelong friend of President Jose Lopez Portillo.

Among the embarrassing facts Blancornelas printed about the governor were that he had put 28 members of his family on the government payroll, that he had let his campaign manager avoid millions in taxes on butane gas imported from the United States and that de la Madrid had purchased four airplanes with government funds and permitted his relatives to use them on vacation junkets to Acapulco.

The governor's response was to call the gutsy editor "an insect." The government official added ominously: "We all know how to get rid of insects — with insecticide."

Poisonous stories were leaked to government-controlled newspapers, falsely labeling Blancornelas a CIA agent, a Ku Klux Klan member and a homosexual.

The building that housed ABC was suddenly sold to a good friend of the governor. Blancornelas was not given the option of buying the building, though that is required by Mexican law. Advertisers canceled their contracts under pressure from the government, sources told my associate Gary Cohn. The Tijuana Chamber of Commerce instituted a boycott of the newspaper.

When this harassment failed to silence Blancornelas, the government-backed union goons seized the newspaper offices while police looked on.

Driven out by force, the scrappy editor started a newsletter called ABC-Two, which had a brief success until printers in Tijuana, under pressure from the government, refused to print the publication.

Still, Blancornelas refused to say uncle. In self-imposed exile in the United States, he is now trying to raise money for another independent newspaper.

The Washington-based Council on Hemispheric Affairs (COHA) has been assisting Blancornelas in his efforts. Apparently as a result of this support, a Mexican military intelligence agent made a special trip from Mexico City to Washington to investigate COHA and its director, Larry Birns.

Unfortunately, Blancornelas isn't the first independent journalist to feel the wrath of high Mexican officials. Several have been beaten and some even assassinated after writing stories critical of the government in power. In 1976, then-President Luis Echeverria was directly responsible for overthrowing the editorial staff of the respected Mexico City daily Excelsior, merely for opposing the president's stand on a resolution in the United Nations.

All of this was done despite the supposedly ironclad protection guaranteed the press by the Mexican constitution. In the United States, the independence of the media is being threatened by subtler legal means — Supreme Court decisions that interpret First Amendment protections out of existence.

The guiding spirit behind the court's attacks on the press — Chief Justice Warren Burger — has not yet called newsmen "insects," though he has referred to critical reporters as "a bunch of pipsqueaks."

It can't happen here? Don't be too sure.

Mark Russell says

So far, Jimmy Carter is running his campaign over the telephone. His campaign song should be that tune on the TV commercials: Reach out, reach out and touch someone...

●

Do you remember when the hotline went to Moscow? It now goes to Manchester, N.H.

●

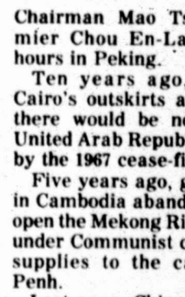

President Carter is keeping the costs of running for reelection way down —he makes all of his phone calls after 6 o'clock.

About all Teddy Kennedy can do is have a debate with a picture of Alexander Graham Bell.

NICK THIMMESCH

Sen. Kennedy's campaign both spirited and forlorn

Nick Thimmesch

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The John F. Kennedy School of Government, where Sen. Edward Kennedy gave a rousing speech this week, is nonpartisan. Other candidates, Republicans included, speak here. But the setting for this speech by Carter's lively adversary was still Cambridge, Harvard and Kennedy and, therefore, special.

The new generation of beautiful young Kennedys occupied the front row in the jammed auditorium. Robert F. Kennedy Jr., Sen. Kennedy's daughter, Kara; Caroline, daughter of the late President — all sat rapt and bright-eyed as their uncle orated in ringing tones. Kenneth Galbraith, Richard Neustadt and former Gov. Michael S. Dukakis were alongside as older members of the fixed firmament.

Kennedy announced that he would speak "about the institution of the Presidency." However, he didn't deliver a civics lecture, but a two-fisted attack on the sitting President and leader of Kennedy's party. Carter hasn't learned from the mistakes of the past three Presidents, Kennedy charged, but perhaps he could, say in January, 1981, as a Fellow at the Kennedy Institute.

"A President cannot afford to posture as the high priest of patriotism," Kennedy cried, lamenting that for three years he had to witness "the effects of a President who fumbles his power away."

The thumb thrust out defiantly in the style of 1960 and 1968, as Kennedy ripped Carter for not understanding the brutal Soviet character. And then the unkindest cut of all, the reminder that while Carter kissed Brezhnev on the cheek at Vienna last summer, "We cannot afford a foreign policy based on the pangs of unrequited love." Later, after being rebuked by a student for disparaging homosexuals, Kennedy denied any such intent and promised not to use the "unrequited love" line again. Oh, well.

It was a relentless speech. "The young should not have to register for the draft so that the old can prove their toughness," Kennedy shouted, and "we must not spill American blood in the Persian Gulf in order to top off gas tanks here at home," and "I would rather have government inspect the safety of coal mines than have coal come out of the ground tainted with the blood of miners and washed in the tears of their families," and, "when the poor are out of political style, a President must speak for them," and, "it is not yet acceptable...that the Equal Rights Amendment is not yet written into the Constitution..."

Well, Carter's jingoism aside, he has not demanded the blood of miners or ordered the poor to creep into their hovels. Nor can he be blamed for the refusal of several states to ratify ERA.

Despite such rhetorical excess, Kennedy is making a good case against Carter's handling of foreign policy. "No President should be reelected because he happened to be standing there when his foreign policy collapsed around him," Kennedy cried to huge cheering. "In the nuclear age, a naive policy that instantly yields to exaggeration and overreaction carries a most disastrous risk for ourselves and for all humanity.

"Afghanistan should not be a pretext for abandoning arms control and multiplying nuclear weapons. Surely, even Mr. Brzezinski would not fire an MX missile into the Khyber Pass."

Frustrating as this campaign is, Kennedy can still laugh at himself. Balked by a question on gas rationing, Kennedy looked at Galbraith and asked: "Do you have a good economic argument for it, Ken?" Kennedy laughed with his audience after declaring, "A President need not worry unduly about those with vast resources and influence." He also laughed at his reference to the "he or she" President of the Eighties. Feminists have accused him of being macho.

Audience and TV questioners had at him afterwards. He tries to turn tough questions into digressive claims for his "progressive" (not "liberal") achievements. It took him 15 fast seconds to say that he was "personally opposed to the abortions" but voted 31 times not to restrict them.

Was he scarcely qualified to run for the State Legislature when, at 30, he ran for his late brother's U.S. Senate seat? "A nice compliment," he said of the question, acknowledging that other Senate aspirants had more experience. No, it wasn't the indulgence of his father which caused that first campaign.

While he was bumped by fellow Democrats from the Whip's job, it made sense because his successor, Sen. Robert Byrd, was more of a detail man. Kennedy doesn't like to be tied up with matters like getting a vote from a senator headed for a Des Moines speech, when there are substantive issues to work on.

His TV interviewers asked abut his "public and personal" feeling about women, and he said that he felt fine about them. Then Chappaquiddick, and whether he bore too much emotional baggage and tragedy to take on a national campaign for a Presidency. Kennedy reaffirmed that he is strong enough for both.

"I intend to win," he keeps saying, "but the question is to stand up when it's important to stand up."

This Kennedy, still young, carries plenty of scar tissue. His campaign is both spirited and forlorn. If his views don't all make sense, he deserves credit for livening the political year. At times, your heart goes out to him.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Clayton, like all politicians, caught between idolization and distrust

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — It seems part of the American character to both idolize and distrust the leaders picked by the people to govern them.

"Public servants" are praised, in public and on patriotic occasions, as standing head and shoulders above their fellows, and blasted in drugstores and on street corners as crawling about in a slough of corruption.

Small wonder that many well-qualified, intelligent and concerned men and women hesitate to offer themselves for elected office.

That point was brought home when a friend wandered in to visit with reporters on the last day for filing for the May 3 primary.

He was hiding, he joked, from some people who wanted him to run for Congress — adding he really didn't know what he could have done to have them wish that fate on him.

Somehow, it seems at times almost to violate the idea of democratic rule for someone to want — really want — to exercise power, regardless of what his or her interntions may be.

Which isn't to say that such suspicions are necessarily evil.

But often that attitude degenerates into the sort of cyncism which produced the definition of an honest politician as one who, "when once bought, stays bought."

Reporters often tend to be cynical — but they also know that there are honest politicians in the best sense of the word, who deserve the "Honorable" which is put in front of their names in official correspondence.

Unfortunately, in politics, perhaps more than in other areas, the distinctions between right and wrong get blurred in the name of expediency.

That's been brought home again by Speaker Bill Clayton's troubles.

Whatever else Clayton may be, he's an ambitious man — having become the first person in Texas history to be elected as Speaker for three terms, and the first to try for four terms — and with reported desires to become governor.

Whether that's a good thing or not for the state of Texas depends a great deal on how well one agrees with Clayton's political philosophy and programs.

Obviously, not everyone has or does, or ever will — the announcement earlier this month by Rep. John Bryant of Dallas that he would seek to oust Clayton (whom he blasted as a tool of the lobby) points that out.

When the charges that Clayton had accepted a bribe surfaced, some members began moving towards Bryant's camp (encouraged, Clayton's supporters charged, by Bryant or his aides), trying to adopt a pace that would seem to be neither a reluctant crawl nor a panicked run.

Others indicated they would stick with the embattled speaker — who stressed that he intends to continue pushing for a fourth term as head of the House, predicting that everything will work out in his favor.

But realistically, Clayton himself must know that even a total vindication, legally, won't undo the damage to his reputation which he's already suffered.

Unfortunately, the cyncism about politicians will lead many people to "know" that "he must have done something" even if he "gets off."

For too many people, Clayton was tried and convicted of some vague, undefined but definite moral weakness just by the fact that he has been ambitious enough to seek public office.

Ambition can be a serious charge — as Julius Caesar could testify.

And it's also a charge that can be leveled, and made to stick, against any politician.

Clayton has admitted he took what he says was described to him as a campaign contribution — took it under what he felt to be questionable conditions, with a view to returning it later — because he didn't want to embarrass a political supporter.

Presumably, part of the reason for not wanting to create such embarrassment was a desire to enjoy that political supporter's backing in a future campaign — again, ambition.

Whether Bill Clayton has been led by ambition into doing something illegal has yet to be decided.

But regardless of the outcome, the results aren't likely to do anything to restore Texans' not-very-great faith in their government.

That may be the saddest part of the distasteful affair.

Both the public and the politicians in Texas deserve better — something both should keep in mind.

Note of thanks

To The Editor:

February 17 through 23 has been proclaimed Big Brother-Big Sister Appreciation Week. We wish to take this opportunity to thank all the volunteers who have given of themselves to a child who needs their own special friend. This group of men and women are a credit to our community. Only through the hard work of the volunteer can the Big Brother-Big Sister program be so effective.

'Mr. Midland'

To The Editor:

We shall miss Bill Collyns at your fine newspaper, but we shall value his continued presence as a strong, clear voice for our community. During the more than 30 years I have lived in Midland, I cannot think of a single big, worthwhile project in which Bill Collyns was not an active participant.

If any person is entitled to the designation "Mr. Midland," it certainly must be Bill. We owe him much for all he has done to make this city a better place to live and we shall need him even more in the future. He has earned the right to retirement from both his job as editor and from community service, but we can't afford to let him retire from the latter. We need him too much!

Thank God for Bill Collyns.

A big help

To The Editor:

February 17 through 23, 1980, is both National and Midland Big Brothers-Big Sisters Week. Big Brothers-Big Sisters is a program of adult volunteers designed to provide adult friendship and guidance to children of single parent homes. We are not a substitute parent program, nor do we accept just "troubled" children. The only qualifications for participation for a child is that he or she be between the ages of 7 to 17, and live in a single parent household. Adults need be over 21 and willing.

But the Big Brothers-Big Sisters Program in Midland is in serious trouble, and in danger of being terminated. Why? Because of lack of adult volunteers — especially Big Brothers of Hispanic and Black origin. Right now, we have only 32 matches, and cost per match is so high that the effectiveness of the program is being evaluated both by the National Big Brothers-Big Sisters organization, and by the Midland United Way. Both of these organizations provide necessary funding, without which the program cannot exist.

Right now, there are 20 ummatched Little Brothers, and 1 unmatched Little Sister. We have 8 unmatched Big Sisters, but only 2 unmatched Big Brothers. We have Big Brothers who have indicated a willingness to be matched with a minority Little Brother, but our program is built on friendship — and a prime factor in a real friendship is common experiences and interests, which are difficult to achieve across racial barriers. But Big Brothers Volunteers, and Big Sisters, too, are needed, without regard to race, creed or color.

There will be no obligation orientation for persons interested in finding out more about the program on Thursday, Feb. 21, 1980, at 7 p.m. in the Road Runner Room of Midland College. Or, you can call Big Brothers-Big Sisters at 683-4241 (we're in the phone book).

A world-felt fear

To The Editor:

There is something going on; an undefinable feeling of impatience or anxiety. Even with the detailed stories we hear daily about the Iran hostages, the Soviet invasion, the newest scandal in Washington, Ted Kennedy's attacks on the administration, the most recent murders and the latest on the ever changing images of all political candidates, there is yet an undefined undercurrent which seems to blanket the world with its uncertainty.

No one seems to know what causes it. Some call it devil. Some are not aware of its existence at all, but it does exist. It is in the atmosphere throughout the day and night. It stops nowhere and at nothing. It is not something we can see or touch. It has to be sensed and those who sense it, must try to deal with it in their own personal way.

Stop reading for just a moment and close your eyes. Try to feel, to sense the atmosphere. Just for a moment let your inner senses take over and feel what is surrounding us.

Do you feel it? It's called fear. It is not just personal fear (fear from within), it is worldwide, world-felt fear which bombards us every moment of every day. If you do feel it, try to think of as many reasons as you can for its existence. Then, try to think of ways to rid ourselves of it. If we try together, maybe we can overcome it by taking away its reason.

Shoot it down

To The Editor:

I would like to make an appeal to every Christian in this area concerning the filming and showing of a film portraying Jesus Christ as a homosexual. This film will be shot in the U.S. this year unless Christians ban together to prevent this kind of film from taking place. I shudder to think of God's wrath upon our nation if we as Christians don't attempt to put a stop to this now. You can do your part by writing a protest letter to: "Modern People News, 11058 W. ## Fanning the fame

To The Editor:

Into our town the Rebels came hungry for victims, excitement and fame. The Midland Lee Rebels Girls Basketball team nabbed the victims and gave the excitement — but the fame? No Way!!

For the first straight year, the girls won their District. A very prestigious effort, but fame seems to elude them — although these wins would seem to be a feat not equaled by others.

In order to receive due recognition, one must have media exposure. Where are the headlines and half-page write ups, the pictures and the columns? Where are the school-wide pep rallies, the thundering announcements over the school's PA system of "Our girls have won again?" Most of all, where are the FANS?

Asked if game attendance can make a difference in team performance, coaches readily admit it can mean the difference in winning or losing a close one. For example, when the Lee girls won their first District title in 1978, they played a Regional game against El Paso at Abilene. The winner would then advance toward the State Tournament in Austin. The El Paso fans chartered buses, loaded campers, pickups and cars and arrived around 200 strong. In the meantime, Lee had 20 or 30 of the faithful. This vocal El Paso crowd seemed to give their team the slight edge needed for a victory. Also, sad to relate, sometimes the loud noise of a partial group can sway the judgment of supposedly impartial referees.

Spend a little of your time and be at McMurray College gym in Abilene at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 18, and let's help them win Bi-District by showing those Lewisville fans how vocal WE can be.

'Carter Doctrine'

To The Editor:

I would agree that the United States needs a strong defense capability, and that it should protect its vital supply lines; however, I do not believe that people are fully aware of the implication of the new "Carter Doctrine." Let us examine the impact upon consumers and taxpayers of the overall Carter energy policy coupled with the protection of Mid-East supply lines.

Of the approximately 3 billion barrels of crude oil and products which we import annually roughly one half comes from the Mid-East. The crude oil is delivered to domestic refiners at a price of approximately $35 per barrel. Taxpayers will pay the cost of protecting this supply, which will make its true cost around $55 per barrel; and additionally, will risk the lives of American military personnel.

The government will charge $41 per barrel for oil which it owns and produces, and it will take $22.7 billion dollars per year off the top from domestic private producers. As the world price of crude oil escalates, as it surely will with this policy, the goverment's "take" goes higher and higher. Through this policy it will not take a long time for the price of crude oil to reach a level which will render alcohol and synfuels competitive.

It is suggested that in the near future while we are waiting in lines for gasoline, instead of vilifying the oil producers we give thought to how much additional oil might have been developed by a free and unfettered oil producing industry. The numbers presented here suggest that it would have been considerable.

He had a dream

To The Editor:

There is a story going around that Jimmy Carter had a dream (No, Virginia, Carter, not MLK, Jr.)

The story it seems, with a few embellishments, goes like this:

As Jimmy sat dozing in the Oval Room one afternoon there intruded upon his reverie the apparition of Theodore Roosevelt.

Uh, hello, theah, don't Ah know you from Jawga or someplace?" "I used to live here," responded the old Bull Moose. "Place looks changed a bit. I don't remember that balcony out there." "Put there by one of my predecessors," said Jimmy. "Don't recall his name."

"Tell me, Mr. President, how are things going with your administration?" asked Teddy. "Not too bad, Ah think Rosalynn, Ah mean, Ah'm going to be relected." "Oh, come now, Mr. President, there are always some rough spots. I remember I had to send the Navy around the world to show some people who was buttering their bread."

"Well, there were some disappointments in Iran."

"Iran?"

"A part of what you knew as Persia. We had a good friend and ally in the King there, but some religious nut and fanatic caused a revolution and exiled him."

"Didn't you send the Marines to help your friend?"

"Uh, no, I was sort of busy maintaining a sort of detente with, uh,..."

"Detente, I thought that was a French word for something that made a clock tick."

"Well, uh, the political science people sort of borrowed it in retaliation for the real estate people borrowing the word condominium. But to answer your question, there was some trouble in Afghanistan. The Russians, with whom I thought I had good rapport, moved in and took them over."

"The Bolsheviks? You can't trust them. Of course, you sent the Marines to help those poor people?"

"No, you see there have been some embarrassing incidents in Iran since the revolution. Some Iranians, Ah think they are just college students, have attacked our embassy and have 50 of our people hostage. It has been three months now."

"Three months? Great balls of fire, man, give me the name of that Marine officer in charge."

"Well, uh, Ah haven't ordered any Marines in."

"Jumping Jehosaphat, don't go on. I am afraid you will next tell me that you have given away the Panama Canal."

Thanks, thanks

To The Editor:

In regards to your editorial of Feb. 4, "Thank You, Canada," thank you editor. You expressed the thoughts of many, including myself. I'm sure many would like to thank the Canadians in person for putting their actions where their words are. (Wouldn't it be nice if all the other nations did?)

Thank you also, dear editor, for printing the address of the Iranian hostages in response to my last letter. With regard to that letter, I gave the wrong date. I received my Reader's Digest on Saturday, Jan. 19 and the Iowa caucus was Monday, Jan. 21, giving Iowans the weekend to read the damning article about Senator Kennedy (assuming that they received it on the same day). Now they are promoting it with commercials just in time for the New Hampshire primary. More fair play? Not in my book.

POSITIVE THINKING

Toughen your mind and faith

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Have you ever considered the number of decisions you have to make each day, both large and small alike? They may be trivial choices, such as what necktie or dress to wear, or they may be decisions that will affect your whole life, such as whom to marry, what job to take or which way to turn.

Every day we must make decisions. And, if we are going to get along well in life, the majority of these must be successful ones.

Sometimes we try to delay or avoid decisions. But this is never the final answer because, ultimately, we must decide and we must decide right. And it is very important to know how to make correct choices.

An extremely important factor in reaching successful decisions is to have faith in your own mind and in its power to deliver right answers to life's problems. I believe that every normal person is equipped to make the correct decision in any situation with which he is likely to be faced.

Unfortunately, too many of us never really utilize this power of decision making, never realize its potential. We permit our minds, from whence this power must come, to become unpracticed. We do nothing to sharpen our decisive faculties and so indecision results in worries and conflicts which drain off energies.

Actually, it is good practice to toughen our mental abilities by reading and thinking about big problems, not only our own, but the problems of the world. Perhaps you are not a serious reader. You read the newspapers, but do you do much more than scan the headlines, the columns and comic strips?

How long is it since you read and applied hard thinking to the editorial page or profounder articles on international affairs? Ir is important to take physical exercise but it is equally vital to exercise the mind's power to think.

Expose yourself to some serious reading matter on international affairs, politics and philosophy. Read a mentally tough book. How long has it been since you wrestled with a tough book? And I mean a really tough one — so hard to understand that maybe even the author was straining his own understanding when he wrote it.

A dull knife won't cut.

The best book I know for sharpening your mind so that you can develop the mental power to make successful decisions is the Bible. From the Bible you get insight along with mental exercise. If you will make a practice of reading at least a chapter a day and really think about its meaning and let is soak into your mind, you'll never have any trouble with making a successful decisions.

A friend of mine works at one of the big international banks in New York City, and his advice is constantly sought in arriving at complex decisions in high finance. Yet, although he is keen and sharp, with a truly penetrating understanding, he is a modest, self-effacing, humble man.

I once asked him how he kept his mind so keen. He told me that he arises each morning before 7. He reads the Bible until 7:30 and meditates deeply on what he reads.

He is an accomplished linguist and, so, one day he reads the Bible in English, the next day in French, the the next in German. He says he understands the different shades of meaning better this way. After this mental and spiritual exercise, he is ready for his office and the day's decisions.

He like best to read St. Paul because he thinks St. Paul is "one of the toughest minds that ever lived." He once said to me: "Do you remember, back on the farm, when you wanted to whet a knife? You laid it on a turning grindstone? Well, that is what I do with my mind. I whet it on the great mind of St. Paul. I keep it sharp on one of the keenest minds that ever lived."

Keep your mind sharp — your insights keen and discerning. By such methods you will be successful with life's decisions.

Tackling trivia not a trivial task

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

Most everybody has something important, something meaningful, to say and impart some of the time. At other times, 'tis important to impart seeming trivia and nonsense.

Witness:

"I pack my box with five dozen liquor jugs."

What?

Trivia, perhaps, but that string of 33 letters forming nine words contains the 26 letters of the Roman alphabet.

Impressed?

Well, maybe the sentence is just a bit of trivia, but it can be put to practical use.

Merwin Ratcliff certainly did back in 1918, when he was a typing student at Jasper High School. He and his classmates got their fingers all over the keyboard and brought forth order on paper.

Certainly, there's no real message in the sentence; that doesn't matter. But what it can do is inspire you or another word-tinker to come up with an even shorter sentence, of sense, which contains the alphabet's letters.

Unfortunately, Roustin' About has no reward for your trying but perhaps the effort will be its own reward.

●

"I am being burdened with trivia," moaned an exasperated fellow who was bogged down in seemingly meaningless paperwork. "The burden is killing me."

For sure, man's burdens, both minor and major, have been enlarged by paperwork, often "busy work," which creates jobs, whether they be "productive" or just another exercise in idleness.

The typewriter, for all of its convenience and utilitarian uses, virtually has put penmanship out of business, though certainly it was and is a godsend to business transactions and to prolific authors, such as Isaac Asimov.

●

Office jobs mostly are keyed to paper shuffling for the sake of records and profits and ways and means to lower tax payments, which certainly isn't trivia come the tax deadline.

●

Now, working with trivia shouldn't be all that burdensome. There should be something enjoyable about it; work which isn't enjoyable, satisfying, rewarding, edifying and the such is a bore. Work should be for effect.

Anyway, within every bit of trivia, surely there's something important to be found. If not, try to find a way to weasel out of it.

And don't forget the pithy saying: "If something's worth doing, it's worth doing well."

Even trivia, such as trying to make sense out of the alphabet.

BROADSIDES

Right slogan often can prove presidential springboard

By JOE WING
For AP Newsfeatures

If you disregard all hazards and decide to seek the presidency, here are some suggestions, most of them not found in textbooks.

You cannot do much better than to study law while young. Three-fourths of America's presidents have done so.

Also manage somehow to wear a uniform, for a time at least. Two-thirds did, though only three — Zachary Taylor, U.S. Grant and Dwight D. Eisenhower — took the giant step from top command to Oval Office.

An aspirant should try, moreover, for a compelling slogan, such as these:

—"Tippecanoe and Tyler too" helped elect William Henry Harrison. It alluded to his victory over the Indians at Tippecanoe and to his running mate, John Tyler.

—"Don't swap horses in the middle of the stream," the Unionist battlecry in Abraham Lincoln's second campaign, stemmed from a speech of his.

—Republicans predicted "A full dinner pail" under William McKinley, and won.

—Democrats, in Woodrow Wilson's second campaign, emphasized "He kept us out of war."

—"Back to normalcy" was the key to Warren G. Harding's success at the polls.

—Herbert Hoover's "Two chickens in every pot" was a vote-getter.

—"I pledge a New Deal," promised FDR in a campaign that enabled him to start the "Roosevelt revolution."

—Spectators called "Give 'em hell, Harry," and Truman echoed this challenge in a barnstorming success that has heartened underdogs ever since.

Another reminder: An effective campaign tactic has been to fire away at Congress, as Richard M. Nixon did and as Jimmy Carter did four years ago.

Moreover, try to stave off third-party competition, which can murder you. For instance, Theodore Roosevelt's "Bull Moose" organization wrecked William Howard Taft's chance for re-election on the Republican ticket.

One good thing, since log cabins are no longer numerous: you need not be a "log cabin candidate" any more, like James A. Garfield et al., but a farm background is no handicap. Neither is wealth such as was enjoyed by the Roosevelts, Hoover and John F. Kennedy.

Pick your party carefully. Eisenhower rejected overtures from the Democrats, later rode into office on the Republican ticket. Starting with McKinley, nine Republicans have served a total of 11 terms; six Democrats (including Carter) have held down the job for 10 terms.

If you want to gamble, grab the nomination for vice president if you can get it. Nine VP's have stepped into a fallen president's shoes. Four of them — Teddy Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge, Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson — were able subsequently to win elections in their own right. Moreover, Thomas Jefferson, Martin Van Buren and Nixon served as vice president before being elected president.

You might even try being a dark horse. That's the way that James K. Polk, the first but not the only one of these, got in.

One final ploy: Take James as a first name, if it's not too late. There have been five Jameses in the Oval Office (including James Earl Carter), four Johns, three Williams and two Andrews. Of course a George, an Abraham, a Theodore, a Woodrow and a Franklin were among those who made notable records.

Tips from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I got tired of the expense of buying a new umbrella for my outdoor metal table so moved the table indoors and made a dark green felt cover for it which goes clear to the floor. It's perfect for card playing. To have a change from the felt, I made another cover out of a pretty floral print, then trimmed it with fringe.

Now, the best is yet to come...

I got tired of looking at a stack of bills and papers, so I made a big pocket in the table cover.

In it I keep letters to answer, bills, a deck of cards, pen, eyeglasses, etc. (When the bills are paid for the month, I transfer the receipts to their proper place).

The pocket is on the back side of the cloth and doesn't show. The table always looks neat. It doesn't take but a second to make a cup of coffee when a neighbor pops in and an attractive place to drink it is waiting.

Peck Shannon

Perky, pretty and practical, Peck.

I never thought of putting a pocket in a floor-length tablecloth but it's a great idea. Hugs for sharing it.

Heloise

GOOD IDEA!

DEAR HELOISE:

I place a garbage bag inside of my clothes hamper to put soiled clothes in.

It keeps the inside of the hamper in good shape and all the clothes come out with one pull.

Betty Penner

TAKE NOTE

DEAR HELOISE:

Every time I get a new address book, I cover the index tabs with a bit of transparent tape.

This way I can see all the letters and the tabs last so much longer I don't have to buy a new book as often.

Mrs. Anna Couchon

STRETCHING IT

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is an inflation-fighter tip I use quite often.

Remove old, but good, pantyhose elastic for use in replacing waist elastic on pajamas, etc.

Then cut the rest of the pantyhose into one-inch strips and save for pillow stuffing.

This is your column. If you'd like to share a hint, ask a question or make a suggestion, write me care of this newspaper.

MEET CARRIE'S ROCK PEOPLE

DEAR HELOISE:

Sometimes when I don't have anything to do, I go outside and get some rocks and make rock people.

All you have to do is draw a face on one rock and a body on another one and glue them together.

Carrie Brady, Age 11

PUTTING THE LID ON CHECKERS

Dear Heloise:

My sister and I have a checkerboard, but the checkers are always getting lost.

One day I opened a gallon of milk and noticed the plastic lid was almost the same size as a checker.

We started saving the lids and now we always have plenty of checkers to play with.

We mark some tops with a pen to make one set different.

Gene Cloer, Age 10

BRUSHING UP ON A CLEANING CHORE

DEAR HELOISE:

I have been reading your hints from the time I knew how to read and finally have come up with one of my own.

Maybe some people know this, but when you are trying to clean a strainer, go get an old toothbrush and scrape off the places you can't get clean.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

Being a wife, homemaker and mother of three little girls, I find it hard to get out of the house at times.

It gives me extra time to "polish up" my "three little jewels" at home.

I feel so rewarded when I catch responses of "please," "thank you," "yes, ma'am," "Mommy, teach me," and "let's do this again sometime."

I feel uplifted after spending an entire day on their level, seeing things through their innocent eyes, and I find it's fun to give my "old" self away and end up being a "refreshed" self.

W.T.M.

'MOTHER HUBBARD'

DEAR HELOISE:

When covering cupboard or closet shelves I always use washable vinyl wallcovering.

It is 24 inches wide and can cover the top of the shelf as well as the bottom.

After all, the bottom is what everyone sees when the doors are opened.

This paper can be purchased cheaply at times. Just watch for close-out sales.

Dee Dee

MAKE A VASE

DEAR HELOISE:

Don't throw away empty cologne bottles. Their shapes and sizes invite many artistic creations.

One of my favorites is to make little vases from them.

Since straw flowers are in today, display some of the smaller varieties in a cologne bottle. Beautiful little spring flowers give a flair of fantasy.

If the bottle is clear of any advertising, glue a little picture on it or paint a design.

Lisa Flatebo

POLISHING POINTER

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a friend who makes doll clothes. One day she complained about the hassle of sewing on those teeny-tiny snaps and buttons.

I told her to place a "pin head" size drop of clear nail polish or glue where the snap or button is to go, put the snap in place, let it dry, then sew it on.

If you try this, please remember not to use a large amount of the polish as it could damage the fabric.

No more torn nerves and works like a "snap!"
