LANDON TALKS ON PROBLEMS

CHANGES FOR NATION'S IMMIGRATION LAWS ARE DISCUSSED

(By The Associated Press)

TOPEKA, Kas., Oct. 6.—Immigration, relief, farm and St. Lawrence waterway problems shared Governor Alf M. Landon's attention today together with fresh speaking arrangements for his fourth major campaign swing starting Thursday.

With the election four weeks from today, the Republican presidential nominee explored phases of the relief problem hinging upon the illegal residence of aliens in United States with Edwin Corsi, former immigration commissioner at Ellis island.

Humanization Urged

Corsi told reporters he recommended "humanization" of the immigration laws and establishment of a non-partisan board to administer relief. Deportation of alien heads of families, he said, often threw their American-born families upon relief.

After conferring with Landon, Corsi said the candidate had promised consideration of his plea for amendment of the present mandatory deportation law to prevent injustices and to give the president or a member of his cabinet "discretionary power" in appeals of "deserving cases."

Swedish Flier Off For Atlantic Trip

DISAPPOINTED BARONESS IS LEFT BEHIND BY AVIATOR; STOCKHOLM WILL BE HIS GOAL

BY WILLIAM O. VARN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—Kurt Bjorkvall, 31-year-old Swedish flier, hopped off from Floyd Bennett field today on the first leg of a projected trip to Stockholm.

Bjorkvall, who rejected the proposal that Baroness Eva Von Blixen-Finecke accompany him, left the ground at 7:35 a. m., Eastern standard time.

He planned to fly to St. Johns, Newfoundland, where he will refuel for the Atlantic hop to Ireland and thence to Sweden.

"I hope I make the flight," was all the aviator said as he entered his plane.

The baroness, who had hoped to make the ocean journey, waved goodbye but expressed disappointment.

Bjorkvall's red and green monoplane has a wireless receiving set but no sending apparatus. He planned to obtain weather reports at regular periods.

The plane carried 742 gallons of gasoline. It was stocked with roast chicken, bananas, tomato juice, a gallon jug of coffee and a gallon of water.

Bjorkvall also took emergency rations—tins of biscuits and food in capsules—sufficient to last 30 days. A life preserver was his only safety equipment in the event he should be forced down at sea.

Bjorkvall explained a Swedish newspaper had withdrawn its backing of the venture, and he had bought the plane.

"The flight is my own now," he said. "Therefore, I cannot take the baroness."

Baroness Von Blixen-Finecke, who had arrived at the field at 5 a. m. with a vacuum bottle containing a quart of coffee, was frankly upset.

AUSTIN, Oct. 6—Governor Allred planned to confer today with several bankers, whose names were not announced immediately, on financing of old age pensions in the current emergency.

The governor said he wanted suggestions on how to provide money for payments until revenue from new taxes he hoped would be levied by the legislature was available.

Willing To Do Part

"I have talked with members of the legislature and others," he said. "Everyone seems to think he is being taxed enough, but is willing to do his part if increase is reasonable."

Lepers In Parade To Make Protests

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 6 (AP)—Hundreds of lepers paraded the streets of Manila early today after escaping from San Lazaro hospital.

They climaxed their demonstration with a march on Malacanan presidential palace and permitted police to herd them back to the hospital only after a presidential secretary had received their protest against being imprisoned while sufferers from tuberculosis were not quarantined.

The lepers were granted a permit to parade yesterday but at the last minute it was rescinded. They responded by overpowering hospital guards at 5 a. m. and escaping over a wall.

CAMPAIGN DASH INTO WEST IS PLANNED FOR NEXT WEEK

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. —President Roosevelt today tackled a mass of state business and gave thought to the final details of a campaign dash into the west starting next week-end.

The president brought back with him from Hyde Park, N. Y., where he spent an extended week-end, a statement by William Green that both organized and unorganized labor was "90 per cent for him."

Good Chance To Win

Another caller, Frank Murphy, Democratic candidate for governor of Michigan, told him that he had a good chance to win that state's 19 electoral votes.

Presidential aides had hoped to announce the western campaign itinerary last night, but deferred it to work out last minute details.

Murphy said the trip, starting from Washington Friday afternoon, would include major night speeches at Chicago Oct. 14 and Detroit Oct. 15, probably with appearances at Grand Rapids and Flint, Mich., enroute to Detroit.

90 Per Cent For FDR

Green told newspapermen his personal contacts and study of reports from the field showed labor was 90 per cent for Roosevelt "throughout the country; that is, both organized and unorganized labor."

Estimating labor's voting strength at around 8,000,000, he said the pro-Roosevelt sentiment was reflected in labor meetings, in resolutions thus far adopted by 26 state federations, and in endorsements of certain national and international unions.

"That is very significant," he contended. "Such unanimous action has never before taken place in presidential history."

Fisher County Man Charged In Deaths

SWEETWATER, Oct. 6 (AP)—E. R. Coker, janitor of the Fisher county courthouse at Roby, was under two charges of murder today in the deaths Sunday night of Mrs. Earl Perry, 43, and Frank Kerns, 41.

Sitting on the running board of an automobile, they were killed instantly when the machine was sideswiped by another car.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 6 (AP)—Accused of perjury before the federal grand jury investigating the Paul H. Wendel kidnap-torture case, Mrs. Anna Bading and G. Clinton Zeller, both members of the staff of Ellis Parker, sr., chief Burlington county detective, were free today in $10,000 bail each.

The jury has adjourned until Friday and United States Attorney John J. Quinn said it would probably conclude its work that day.

WOMAN CLAIMS SHE GAVE POISON TO SPOUSE AT REQUEST OF "OTHER MAN"

(By The Associated Press)

MERIDIAN, Oct. 6 — Mrs. Clomer Jermstad testified in George Pace's murder trial today that she put poison in her husband's coffee because "Pace wanted her to" and because "he made threats that he would take his own life."

Pace, 27-year-old tenant farmer, was accused of being the woman's accomplice in the poisoning of Menloe Jermstad last April 24.

Mrs. Jermstad testified she did not love Pace and that she had not intended marrying him. County Attorney S. C. Smith previously had introduced a statement signed by Pace quoting him as saying he and Mrs. Jermstad plotted Jermstad's death after they had an illicit affair.

The document said Pace bought poison for Mrs. Jermstad to put in her husband's coffee. The defense objected to introduction of the Pace statement.

Mrs. Jermstad, at her own trial last week, did not testify. She was convicted and given a 45-year sentence.

CABLE BREAKS TO SEND MEN TO DEATH

MINERS HAD STARTED ON SHIFT AND HAD STEPPED IN CAGE

(By The Associated Press)

MULLAN, Idaho, Oct. 6—Nine men were killed here today when a cage cable broke in the Morning mine, dropping the elevator and the men approximately 800 feet down the shaft.

The miners were just going on shift, and had stepped into the cage on the 3,050 foot level. As the gates were closed, the steel cable snapped, and the cage dropped to the 3,850 foot level.

Names of the miners were not immediately learned, and first details of the tragedy were telephoned to this tiny mining hamlet.

Profitable Property

The Morning mine is one of the oldest and most profitable of the famous Coeur D'Alene region. It is owned by the Federal Mining and Smelting company, and employs about 400 miners.

Lead, silver and zinc are the most important minerals mined at this property, which is a subsidiary property of the American Smelting and Refining company. The shaft is about two miles west of Mullan.

The bodies were so badly mutilated, said H. G. Washburn, general manager, that identification will not

MAYOR MCNAIR QUITS POST

CHIEF EXECUTIVE FOR PITTSBURGH OFFERS HIS RESIGNATION

(By The Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6 — Mayor William N. McNair submitted his resignation today to the city clerk's office.

A statement which he handed to City Clerk Edward B. Schofield, read:

"I hereby resign from office as mayor of the city of Pittsburgh to be effective immediately."

He then walked out of the city hall.

Officials Disagree

City officials disagreed as to whether the resignation could become effective at once or await action on it by city council.

The mayor offered to resign yesterday after city councilmen indicated they would not accept his new appointee for the city treasurer's position, succeeding James P. Kirk, dismissed by the mayor.

Here's Good News For The Husbands

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 6 (AP)—Alack and alas, the hard working housewife must give up her dream of dispensing with a four course meal by simply feeding hubby a concentrated food pill—it can't be done, an authority said today.

The calory factor will necessitate continued operation of America's kitchens, explained Dr. Miltona Bridges, assistant clinical professor of medicine at Columbia university and dietitics authority.

"Human beings never are going to eat pills for meals," said Dr. Bridges, emphatically. "Pills never can be made to contain sufficient caloric volume."

OUTSTANDING BEAUTY OF FILMLAND

Marlene Is Proclaimed Ace Beauty

BEAUTY ANALYSIS OF ALL ACTRESSES IS MADE BY ARTIST

(By The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 6 —Scoring 94 points out of a possible 100 in a complicated "beauty analysis" test, Marlene Dietrich was adjudged today the most beautiful motion picture actress in Hollywood.

The test has been conducted by Duncan Gleason, young portrait artist.

"It was divided into five sections," he said, "considering the face, figure, eyes, hands and legs of motion picture players."

Wins Top Ratings

Miss Dietrich won top ratings for her legs, figure and hands. She was the only one of the major stars to score in three divisions of the test. Two others won perfect scores in two divisions — Ruby Keeler for her eyes and legs, and Olivia de Havilland for her face and eyes.

Norma Shearer with 79 and Ginger Rogers with 70, followed Miss Dietrich.

Fresh Norther In This Sector Today

A fresh norther that sent the mercury down to a minimum of 53 degrees at 7 a. m., swept into Lubbock early this morning on the tail of a strong north wind. Some sand was brought along.

Yesterday's maximum, the state experiment station reported, was 85 degrees, a drop of 32 degrees.

Some damage to open cotton was believed possible by the sand. Extent could not be estimated Tuesday.

West Texas Gas company's main line station reported towns north of Plainview said it was cloudy during the morning. Temperatures were as low as 45 degrees.

LOCAL JURORS APPROACHED

THREE MEN SAY THAT THEY WERE TALKED TO ABOUT CASE

Three of six jurors who this morning acquitted Chas. D. Walls of violating the state medical practice act had been approached concerning the case, they told County Attorney Jess C. Levens in open court.

Immediately after the jurors had reported their not guilty verdict, Levens questioned each.

Were Approached

Luther Weed, foreman, E. H. Foerster, and R. L. Kelly said that A. W. Wright, farmer living five miles west of Lubbock, had approached them before the term of court was opened and after their names had been drawn from the jury wheel.

Wright, in the courtroom, was identified and detained for questioning by County Attorney Levens. Wright told Levens and Deputy Sheriff Grady Harrist that Walls, a chiropractor, had given him a jury list and had suggested he contact the members. Wright said he and Walls were friends.

Others Questioned

R. B. Hamilton, Tom Leslie, and John Harrell, other members of the jury, said they had not been ap-

HOUSE RESPONDS TO PROMISE EARLY ACTION ON OIL TAX INCREASE PLAN

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Oct. 6—The Texas house responded today to appeals for early floor consideration of revenue-raising measures by setting the proposed oil tax increase as the special order of business for Thursday.

The bill originally called for the levy to be boosted from two to ten cents a barrel but the revenue committee changed the figures to two and three-fourths cents.

Advocates said they wanted the house to determine the rate it considered fair and rush the bill to the senate so the latter body might have something on which to work. The constitution provides that the senate cannot consider a tax bill until it first has passed the house.

The legislature was called into special session for the primary purpose of garnering revenue for old age pensions. The session must end by constitutional limitation three weeks from today.

The revenue committee reported the oil tax adversely, expressing preference instead

Two Hundred Attend First Review In Series Sponsored By Church Auxiliary

Lecture Is Given By Tech Professor

Two hundred persons gathered in the basement of First Presbyterian church Monday night to hear Dr. A. B. Cunningnam of the English department at Texas Technological college review Sigrid Undset's book, "Gunnar's Daughter." The lecture was sponsored by the woman's auxiliary and was the first of a series of four reviews to be presented this winter.

On November 2 Mrs. Alan L. Strout will review the popular seller, "Gone With The Wind," by Margaret Mitchell. This book was substituted for the scheduled review because of the acclaim it is receiving at present.

Mrs. H. A. Davidson, president of the auxiliary, explained the purpose of the reviews and presented Mrs. J. Sam Lewis who introduced the speaker of the evening.

Doctor Cunningham compared the book with other works of the famed Norwegian writer and with four canons: meaning, living characters, beauty and interest. "Gunnar's Daughter" was written in 1909 but has been translated into English only recently.

Season tickets are available for seventy-five cents for the other reviews. In addition to Mrs. Strout, James G. Allen and Miss Bonnie K. Dysart will be heard.

New 'Phone Books Being Distributed

More than 4,100 new telephone directories are expected to be placed in Lubbock homes by this afternoon, officials of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company said Monday, when distribution was begun.

The directories show Lubbock has the largest number of telephones ever, said James A. Williams, local manager. Lubbock is one of the "few sizeable towns of Texas" that can boast the distinction. The percentage of telephone users to total population is also favorable, Williams stated.

An improved business index is found in the new edition, larger than that for any other year. Twenty boys are distributing the directories.

Two-Tone Suits Have Come To Town

Jackets and skirts of contrasting color give a different touch to some of this year's suits. Here is one which unites a jacket of beige broadcloth, (the fabric which has staged such a big "comeback" this season) and a skirt of the same material in black. Black Persian lamb makes the lapels, the backs of the big gloves and the high cone crown of the visored toque.

FILM STARS ARE DRAPING THEIR OWN BONNETS; COMPETITION BEING NOTED

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 6. (AP)—The film stars are draping their own bonnets in this heady town of Hollywood.

This autumn when high-crowned hats began to tower from stellar heads and gay quills went shooting off at all angles it looked as if the chapeau trend were set. But then—

Kay Francis started rolling her own turbans in "Stolen Holiday." The Maharanee of Indore came to town and set it talking because of the way she wound her veil. Then Olivia De Havilland began whacking three-cornered scarfs out of bolts of bright chiffon. She tied them on her head.

Plenty Of Competition

Now for both formal and informal occasions there is competition among screen fashionables as to which can drape a dash of chiffon to greatest effect.

Glenda Farrell is among the tops when it comes to winding a turban. After hours of practice she has it down pat, and she smugly sits there with turbans in every shade and in fabrics from jersey to velvet to chiffon. Nobody, says Glenda, can tell you how to wrap a turban because the problem is to put it on so it flatters the individual facial contour.

Boy Born Blind Now Is Seeing For First Time

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 6. (AP)—Born blind, nine-year-old William D. Brohmn was at his Kitchener, Ont., home today learning what his parents, his playmates and flowers and trees looked like.

Dr. Val A. Decot, of Buffalo, explained:

"On William's eyes the iris was drawn tight. With a special instrument I pulled out the iris and clipped off a small piece, leaving an opening, small but sufficiently large to allow light to enter when it snapped back in place. That was last spring and during that operation I discovered full cataracts at the back of the iris of each eye. On September 23 I removed the cataracts."

HUSBAND HELD FOR SLAYING

MAN IS ARRESTED IN ST. LOUIS; CLAIMS AFFAIR ACCIDENT

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6 (AP)—Wellington Duke McCandless, World war veteran and ex-convict, was held here today for Los Angeles, Calif., police who had sought him since July 31, when his bride of four weeks was found shot to death in the bathroom of their apartment.

Police said McCandless admitted his identity after first giving an alias and insisted his wife's death was accidental.

Discharged By Accident

Detectives Hugh McVey and William Walsh quoted him as saying she was killed when a pistol in her hands was discharged when he tried to take it from her.

Mrs. McCandless was the former Miss Vanthelia Hippe, Minneapolis. McCandless was quoted as saying their marriage followed by several weeks a marriage to an El Paso girl at Juarez Mexico.

He told police this Juarez marriage followed a "drinking party" and that they separated the same night when she told him "to go on about his business." McCandless said she told him she would have the marriage annulled.

Were Not Quarreling

He said the shooting of Mrs. McCandless followed their return from a night club and that they had not been quarreling.

"She wasn't pointing it (the pistol) at me, but I thought I'd better take it away from her. She didn't want to let it go and we scuffled. The pistol went off twice."

McCandless was arrested on a tip "an ex-convict wanted for killing his wife is in St. Louis." Police said he told them he served a year in the New Mexico penitentiary four years ago for larceny. He is 36.

Women Are Holding Balance Of Power

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (AP)—The hands that rock the cradles, President Charl Ormond Williams of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs declared today, hold the deciding vote in the forthcoming presidential election.

"A study of the population of states having large electoral votes shows that women hold the balance of power politically," she said in a radio address. "When men really wake up to this fact, women will have their right place in party management and office holding."

Estimating there were 33,000,000 women eligible to vote in the United States, she asserted that if they joined in working toward common objectives "our country would be a model for all others along progressive public health, public education and public welfare lines."

LOVE FOR MODEL BOATS RESTORES POWER TO WALK TO TEN-YEAR-OLD

IRVINGTON, N. J., Oct. 6 (AP)—A love for model boats has restored the power to walk to the legs of 10-year-old Patrick Joseph Cavanaugh, jr.

The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Cavanaugh, Newark, said today that they gave the credit to the Irvington post of the American Legion, which sponsored the model boat races and invited the crippled little boy in a wheel chair to act as starter.

Patrick, inspired by his duties to practice walking at home, reached the climax yesterday. Robert Braun was presenting prizes in Irvington park and announced a special award, a handsome model boat, for the starter. Instead of taking a few feeble steps as he had done at home, Patrick left his wheel chair and walked to Braun.

"It was the most amazing thing I have ever seen," Braun said today.

The boy was stricken with infantile paralysis five years ago.

PRAISE IS GIVEN TECH GRADUATES

A letter listing textile engineering graduates of Texas Technological college employed by the New Braunfels textile mills and praising their work was received by M. E. Heard, head of the Tech textile engineering department, from Walter Dillard, jr., general manager of the mills.

"I know you will be pleased to know of the progress of your Tech boys who are associated with our group of mills," he said.

Graduates Are Listed

The graduates and their positions are:

Elliot Knox, overseer of dyeing; James McWhorter, overseer of warp preparation; L. E. Parsons, second-hand warp preparation; John Wulfman, second-hand weaving; Mark Wood, second-hand carding, all of whom are employed at New Braunfels, and Worth Gamel, second-hand weaving at Sunset Mills, Selma, Ala.

Six Tech students were employed at the mills during the summer. "All of the boys who spent the summer with us were hard workers, were courteous, considerate, and polite," Dillard said.

More Graduates Wanted

A letter recently received by Heard from the U. S. Rubber company commended work of D. T. Austin, who is employed at Hogansville, Ga., and requested that other Tech graduates be sent to the company's mills. Joe Muller Christian, who was graduated in August of this year, will begin work in the company's textile plant at Shelbyville, Tenn., Saturday. Austin was registered at Tech from Mount Pleasant and Christian from Eldorado.

Prize Contest Is Conducted In City

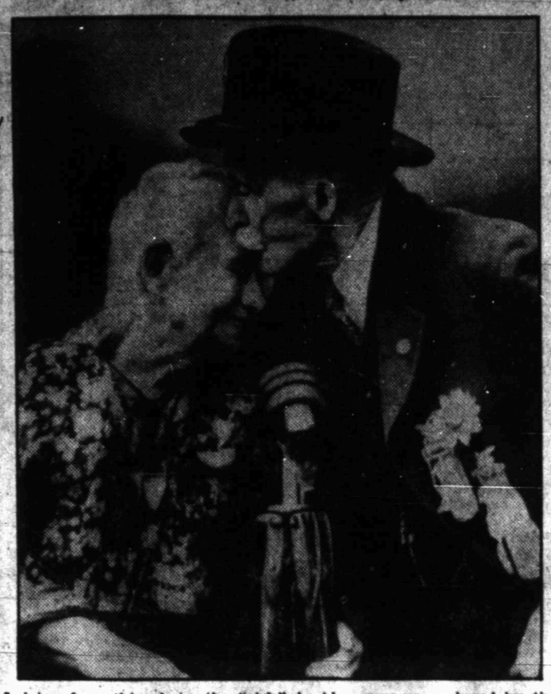

Persons whose hobby is making things with tools may enter a Powr-Kraft woodworking prize contest to be conducted from the present until Dec. 3, said A. H. Maas, of Montgomery Ward store, the sponsor.

Prizes will be given in two classes —A for those 17 years old and older, B for those 16 and younger. Entry blanks may be had in the hardware department, in the Ward basement. Three Lubbock men will judge.

Craftsmanship with woodworking tools will determine winners. Size or cost of materials will not be considered. It is not necessary to have purchased tools from the contest sponsor, said Maas.

First Inspections Are Started Here

School children were to receive questionnaires today and initial inspections throughout the business district were underway for two activities in the observance of fire prevention week mapped at a meeting of two committees at the chamber of commerce yesterday afternoon.

All students except those at the high school are to receive information sheets with blanks to be filled in by parents and returned Wednesday and Thursday.

Firemen under direction of Chief W. E. Twitty are to pay courtesy visits today and other days this week to business houses in a move to locate any existing fire hazards.

A pamphlet containing data on savings in Lubbock through a reduction in insurance premiums, and how further reduction is possible, was reported being printed for distribution at luncheon clubs this week. Chief Twitty last night was completing a miniature house to be used in demonstrating common fire hazards resulting from electricity misuses. Posters are being distributed by firemen.

Members of the chamber committee and of a Lubbock Insurance Exchange committee present yesterday were: Guy L. McAfee, chairman, Twitty, D. A. Forbess, L. D. Casey, Kenneth E. Oberholtzer, R Bush Smith, Ray Allen, and J. H Brock.

Invitations To Be Given To Parents

Invitations will be sent to parents of all students of Texas Technological college to come here on Nov. 6, date on which the Tech-Oklahoma A. and M. football game will be played, said Dr. Bradford Knapp, Tech president.

A program likely will be planned for that day, he said.

Tech has never observed a parents' day, although many colleges have observed dads' and mothers' day, or dads' day.

Nov. 6 has been designated parents' day on football schedules issued from Tech.

RIPPLE BEATS DER MAG AS A ROOKIE

STAR GIANT FRESHMAN IS SHOWING STUFF IN BIG SERIES

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—Joe DiMaggio won acclaim as the greatest major league rookie of 1936 but the thousands who have watched the melodramatic World series battles aren't so sure he has anything over Jim Ripple, star Giant freshman, at least for the time being.

Jim Ripple.

With a team that has been stumbling along, Ripple actually has surpassed the World series exploits of the young Italian from the Golden Gate, today's figures reveal. At bat, he has smashed out four hits in 12 chances and driven in three runs. Di Maggio has hit safely six times out of 20 and batted in two runs.

Hits In Pinch

More than that, Ripple has come through almost every time in a pinch, whereas Di Maggio has failed, twice hitting into double plays when one run meant a ball game.

Both have turned in some fielding masterpieces, but the gems were produced by Ripple with two tumbling, shoestring catches that cheated the Yankees out of sure hits. His leaping, rolling catch yesterday of Red Rolfe's low line drive was one of the most spectacular in World series history.

Given Big Chance

A flying cinder gave Ripple his big chance.

Hank Leiber, one of the greatest hitters of the 1935 campaign, had the centerfield berth clinched as the Giants opened their season and then stuck around the lower regions of first division.

One day a cinder buried in Leiber's eye. Manager Bill Terry called for Ripple.

From that very day on, the Giants were next to unstoppable.

POLO GAME IS SET SUNDAY

CHAMPION LOCAL TEAM TO MEET AMARILLO ROUGH RIDERS

News of Lubbock's planned comeback in the motorcycle polo business has been getting around, and strangers to the game who were not among the several hundred who saw a free demonstration Sunday are asking neighbors what it's all about.

Fans who saw the Lubbock Red Shirts tear through four seasons of undefeated competition that led to a national championship in 1934 are helping with the answers.

The question is to be answered in its entirety Sunday afternoon when the Red Shirts resume competition after a year's rest by meeting the challenge of Amarillo's Rough Riders.

Red Shirts Play Here

The game is to be played at the Lubbock baseball park, where a regulation motorcycle polo field has been designated, and which henceforth is to be the home of the Red Shirts. They will divide time with the Lubbock Hubbers during the baseball season.

The ball park is due to be jammed to capacity—and extra bleachers are being ordered—if the team draws support now that it did before it won the national title. No attempt was made to play last year because of lack of facilities. Now, in a regulation ball park, the team starts again, and means to keep going after another national pennant.

Game Is Mixed Affair

The game is played on a rectangle similar to a football field. Goal posts are situated at either end, through which the players, while riding bucking motorcycles, are expected to kick a round inflated ball somewhat smaller than a basketball, larger than a volleyball.

There are five players to a side—two forwards, two guards and a goal guard. Rules of the game are taken from basketball, football, soccer and polo, and the game embodies the fastest, most active and dangerous points of all the others.

The Red Shirts staged an intra-squad scrimmage before a grandstand packed with curious and thrill-hungry fans Sunday. The workout was free to the public, and drew a heavy response. The team will work out daily this week in preparation for Sunday's joust with the invading Amarillo club.

ESCOBAR LOSES

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6 (AP)—Sixto Escobar, bantamweight champion of the world, lost a 10-round decision here last night to Harry Jeffra, Baltimore boxer. His title was not at stake.

Escobar weighed 122 1-4, Jeffra 120 1-2.

Burleigh Grimes Rumored As Successor To Stengel's Post

IN HAWAII they play football without shoes. There's a league of 5-a-side teams, embracing some 1,375 players who are limbering up their toes for the 1936 season in the islands.

The players in these shoeless leagues punt 50, 60, 70 yards. They drop-kick and place-kick accurately with their bare feet. Aside from the absence of shoes, the games are conducted in accordance with all the standard football rules and formalities.

In Lubbock it rained the other day, and for several days preceding the game with Texas Christian, and during that game, Texas Tech's griddera practiced and played on a field and under conditions not conducive to long life and lasting shapeliness of their delicately made, form fitting brogans.

The shoes, a pair of which costs as much or more than your best Sunday oxfords, wilted, got out of shape, were about to cause bunions and corns, etc. Shoes are a very important part of a gridster's uniform, probably the most important part, or so the poor, disillusioned coaches of the continent believe.

Perplexed, Coach Cawthon had one of three courses to pursue. He might (1) advertise for an Hawaiian football coach to teach the Red Raiders how to play barefooted, or (2) issue a hurry call to his Island bush-beaters to rush over a squad of husky junior college graduates, or (3) order new shoes.

He decided on the latter, but soon discovered that his order was no easier to fill than possibly one or both the others.

No local sporting goods house could provide the needed calf-skins. An order to larger Texas houses for shoes was forwarded to a Chicago wholesaler. The shoes left Chicago Friday night by plane, were delivered at Texas Tech Saturday about noon. The Red Raiders wore them against Oklahoma City university that night.

So if the Matadors seemed jittery or heavy of foot, remember how you got around last time you had a new pair of shoes.

It's too bad our coaches and trainers can't catch on to the Hawaiian way of doing it. Think of the money saved, and the bunions! And if the brown boys really kick 'em that far barefooted (we get our information from a reliable press bureau) don't be surprised if some of our brighter coaches put on their best subsidizing manner and invite a few of 'em over.

If you're sitting near the bench when the home team needs three points to win, you may hear the coach say to a black-headed boy sitting near: "Take off your shoes, Oolei Kamehameha, and go in there and place-kick a field goal."

Barefooted football wouldn't do in the U. S., though. Coaches never would learn to place such childlike faith in each other. One never could tell, in a shoeless game, when an opposing coach, who had given particular foot training on the sly to a certain halfback, would say, "Put your shoes on, Bolivar, and go for a touchdown."

AT LEAST ONE Texas Tech gridder is about ready to try out for the barefoot circuit. He is Chester Hemsel, the tackle transfer from Wesley college, Greenville. Hemsel's been going barefoot, or semi-shoeless at least, since Friday.

Chester reported during the training season and his fire and hustle soon made him popular. He wanted to be a tackle, but Tech had a lot of tackles and Hemsel weighed only 175. But, "Stick around, kid; we'll find something for you to do," the coaches encouraged.

"Fine, let's see you do it."

And the coaches saw. The result was, a few days, his start in the game with T. W. C. He made the opening kickoff of the game and season, and was forthwith taken from the lineup. He went back in to boot a try for point after touchdown, and back in a few more times to kick-off. He averaged 41 yards.

Texas Christian came to town, and Cawthon started his best lineup, the regulars. But it fell Tech's lot to kick off, and in ran Chester. He set up the ball, paced backward, and let go in the opening kick-off. The ball sailed and bounded 53 yards, and after the receiver was downed, Hemsel ran off the field, making room for one of the Browning brothers at tackle.

After Tech scored its touchdown, Hemsel went back in—and calmly booted a perfect placement for the seventh point.

But here's the tragic part of it. Hemsel turned up Friday, after practicing his kicking all week, with a boil. And d'ya know where that boil was? Exactly on the business end of his kicking toe, the large, right toe!

"Ye fishes," roared Cawthon, his hands up like a hijacked stagecoach driver, "the only thing he can do is kick—it's the only thing we've wanted him to do, asked him to do—and he turns up with a boil on his kicking toe!"

Tech has another good kicker-offer and place-kicker in Cotton Neeley, sophomore halfback from Sayre, Okla. Neeley kicked something like a dozen extra points for the Picadors last year before missing one in the final game of the season. He did most of the kicking in the OCU game. Brode Puckett, the former Spur star, was to have been the ace place-kicker this season, but Brode's football days are about over, and it's a shame. His health won't permit. He could play, but doctors say he'd regret it a few years hence. He's a great lad, old Brode is, and we surely hate to lose him. Cawthon wanted him, was counting on him, but wouldn't go against the doctor's suggestion. The same thing goes for Gene Barnett, former Lubbock star, who is troubled with high blood pressure. Gene may play some later, and Tech could use his fine passing wing and blocking ability, and his great spirit more than anything else.

MCLARNIN NOW IN COMEBACK

JIMMY POUNDS LITTLE TONY CANZONERI IN 10-ROUND BOUT

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Jimmy McLarnin, the clouting Celt who was ready to hang up his gloves and quit the ring little more than a year ago, found himself very much in the fight picture again today after giving a shellacking to pugnosed little Tony Canzoneri, former lightweight king.

McLarnin turned the tables on Canzoneri last night at Madison Square Garden before a crowd of 11,423 cash customers who took time off from the World series arguments to see the two former title-holders go ten slashing rounds. Last May Tony gave Jimmy a ten-round licking.

Tony Is Flattened

McLarnin carried off the unanimous decision after left-handing Canzoneri into bloody subjection. Tony survived a three-second knockdown in the second round, when he was flattened by a straight right to the chin. He finished gamely despite gashes around both eyes, his nose and mouth. McLarnin outpointed his rival in every round except the first and tenth, which Tony won, and the fourth, which was even.

Ringside critics were unanimous in rating McLarnin's performance his best here in the last two years, despite the fact his victim lacked anything like the speedy aggressiveness of his best days.

The Garden's energetic promoter, Jimmy Johnston, lost no time starting negotiations for a fourth McLarnin-Ross fight to be held this winter. They waged three outdoor battles for the welterweight crown, splitting two decisions in 1934 and fighting the rubber match in 1935, with Ross the victor.

ANNUAL TOURNEY WILL BE STAGED

Golfers of the territory are receiving bids now for Meadowbrook's annual South Plains invitation tournament, postponed for a month because of unfair weather.

The tournament, a one-day, medal play affair, is booked for Sunday, October 18. Entries are to shoot an 18-hole qualifying score in the morning, the score to determine the player's flight. The afternoon score will be added to the qualifying round, low total winning in each flight.

This will be the sixth annual tournament. In the past it has served to climax the South Plains league season, but the league did not function this year.

Winner last year in a field of sixty was young Fred Fairey of Plainview, who blasted the course for a 36-hole score of 129, eleven under par. Carl Nail was runner up.

Prizes will be given to the winner in each flight, also to the youngest and oldest golfers in the field. There will be no entry fee outside the usual Sunday green fee for non-members.

The fineness of sterling silver first was determined prior to 1350, and has been in use without alteration ever since.

INTERESTING BITS OF GOSSIP PICKED UP OVER COUNTRY

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK Oct. 6 — Burleigh Grimes, the old pitcher, is the betting favorite to land Casey Stengel's job in Brooklyn. Burleigh's Louisville club finished seventh in the American association this year, so he should feel right at home in Flatbush. It is also more than a possibility that Larry MacPhail, late of the Reds, will step into John Gorman's shoes as general manager of the Daffiness boys.

Some days ago, when it was rumored MacPhail had his eyes on the St. Louis Browns, this corner wondered how he and Rogers Hornsby would hit it off. Well, it turns out the pair have a healthy respect for each other. MacPhail often calls Hornsby to ask his opinion of certain players. When Rogers answers the 'phone he always says, "Hello, MacPhailure."

Hal Shows Stuff

What do the baseball money players do when the chips are up? DiMaggio and Gehrig fanned yesterday when a hit might have meant the ball game. . . . In the same inning, Hal Schumacher pitched himself out of the all-time, A-1 American hole. . . . With one run in, the bases loaded and none out, he whiffed DiMaggio and Gehrig and forced Bill Dickey to fly out. . . . Mebbe some of you can beat that.

Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins left the series flat to fly to Wyoming for a big game hunting expedition with Mickey Cochrane and Tris Speaker. . . . Lou Gehrig has been playing the series all doped up with aspirin to ease lumbago pains in his back.

Have Enviable Record

The Southern Methodist Mustangs who invade New York for a game with Fordham Saturday, boast an enviable intersectional gridiron record during the last ten years. The Mustangs have played 19 intersectional games, winning 10, tying 3 and losing 6 against such powerful outfits as the Army, Notre Dame, Navy, St. Mary's, Fordham, Stanford, Nebraska, Louisiana State, Indiana and Syracuse.

Three shot putters, all of whom placed in the 1936 Southeastern conference track and field meet, are on the Louisiana State football team. They are Bill Cross, 200-pound halfback; "Big Ben" Friend, 245-pound tackle, and Gordon (Lefty) Lester, 195-pound tackle.

Jesse Turns Scout

Jesse Owens, Olympic sprint and broad jump champion, has turned football scout for his alma mater—Ohio State. He saw Pittsburgh play West Virginia last week and yesterday told the Buckeyes what he learned of the Panthers, who travel to Columbus to meet Francis Schmidt's powerful outfit Saturday.

Pennsylvania's gridders see a good omen in their 35-0 victory over Lafayette Saturday. It was their first opening game victory since 1933. The Quakers meet Yale at New Haven Saturday.

STRIKE RUMOR SCOFFED AT

STANFORD WILL PLAY SCHEDULE DESPITE REFEREE ROW

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6 (AP) — Stanford university's football team will play its schedule, Graduate Manager Al Masters declared today, despite resentment of players against Referee Bobby Morris.

Masters termed "ridiculous" a reported threat by the team to "strike" as a protest against Morris' officiating in Washington State's 14-to-13 victory over Stanford Saturday.

Charges Are Made

Morris, who is scheduled to officiate in the University of Southern California-Stanford game at Palo Alto October 24, was charged by the Cardinal players with irregularities in the game at Pullman, Wash.

"The players may feel strongly against Morris," Masters said, "but the notion of a 'strike' is ridiculous." He referred to the reports the players had notified Coach Claude E. Thornhill they would not again accept Morris as an official unless ordered by him to do so.

Pictures Studied

Conference officials here, meanwhile, studied motion pictures of a last-minute goal line defense by Washington State.

Three of the officials, who requested their names be withheld, expressed belief the pictures showed that Jake Brigham of Stanford crossed the Washington line for what would have been a winning touchdown if it had been allowed by Morris. The referee ruled Brigham was stopped short of the line.

Alexander Gaston To Manage Steers

DALLAS, Oct. 6 (AP)—Alexander Gaston, who piloted the Dallas Steers to the final round of the Shaughnessy play-off for the Texas league title, will manage the club again next season.

He signed a contract yesterday. The terms were not announced but it was reported he was allowed a pay increase.

The Steers finished the season at the top of the standing but lost the championship to the Tulsa Oilers in the seventh and deciding game of the play-off finals.

LUBBOCK HIGH NOW FORCED TO CHANGE

WESTERNER SQUAD IS BEING REFASHIONED FOR NEXT GAME

Coach Weldon Chapman, his assistants and his Westerners yesterday started the process of refashioning the Lubbock High backfield to take care of a vacancy created when Quarterback Earl Ince was found ineligible last Friday.

It isn't a very happy crowd at the Westerner practice field, who have all too brief a time to get a new combination ready for the invasion Friday night by Cleburne's big Yellow Jackets. They're going about it seriously, however, and still with lots of hope. They are up against one of Central Texas' strongest and most promising clubs here Friday night in what no doubt will be one of the toughest games of the home season.

Tickets for Friday night's game went on sale yesterday at The Hub Clothiers, official down town ticket agency for Lubbock High. Middle sections on either side of the field will be reserved for the game, which will be one of the outstanding attractions of the home season.

Chapman had only three players listed on his roster for the quarterback position—two of them, Dutchy Cawthon and Bill Sessums coming up from last year's Cowhand team and not yet ready to go with the regulars. Ince was the third, and Ince has been declared ineligible because, Amarillo High records of current reading show, he attended one too-many semesters at the Sandie school before transferring to Lubbock.

To Convert Halfback

So it's most likely that Chapman will seek a quarterback from his halfback lists, where "spares" are more prevalent.

As he lost a quarterback, Chapman gained a halfback, or at least a nice looking prospect. Walter Webster, a 175-pound line crasher and sprinter who transferred here from Cisco before school started and who became eligible last week, is just a youngster but is showing lots of possibilities.

It is probable, as indicated by yesterday's setup, that Chapman will use Webster at a wingback position, replacing Max Rutledge, a hardy little warrior who has been running with Harold Ingley at the ball carrying slot. Rutledge probably will go to the tailback position, formerly held down by Co-Captain C. L. Storrs, who in turn will move up to the quarterback or blocking position. Storrs will continue to call signals, that having not been one of Ince's duties.

Ince will be missed most for his blocking and passing ability. He was being developed into a spot passer, and was doing right well.

Workouts will be hard and tough for the next two days, probably a stiff scrimmage both afternoons. The line appears to be in good shape, and functioning rather smoothly in its rearrangement. Big Rafe Nabors, transplanted center, is going better at tackle, with Herb Leaverton holding down the center job. Nabors and Babe Ritchie give Chapman a pair of tackles that can compare with anybody's, for weight and enthusiasm, that is. There is one heavy guard, Sterling Short, otherwise the team will be outweighed by the powerful Cleburne outfit which has won two games with ease.

A defense to stop the Yellow Jacket ace, Finis White, will occupy the Westerners' attention every day this week. White is a 210-pound line plunger de luxe whom nobody has been able to hold yet.

There's scarcely a breather on the Lubbock schedule from here on. After the Yellow Jackets come the Capitol Hill team of Oklahoma City, and then the beginning of the district championship race against Pampa, Borger and Amarillo follow, with an open date between, then Clovis and Plainview.

Tourney Proceeds At Very Slow Pace

Activity in what is laughingly billed as the Lubbock Country club championship golf tournament proceeded at its customary snail-like pace yesterday, two of the opening round matches being determined and another started. Only eleven members qualified for the tournament, and one of them defaulted yesterday.

C. J. Williams defeated W. F. Helwig, 4 and 3. C. I. Wall won by default from Sid Thrash. Bob Harvey and Dr. J. H. Stiles are to finish their first round match this afternoon after starting yesterday. Stiles won the championship in 1934, lost it last year to John Edmisson, who is not defending his title.

Second round matches get under way today and continue through Wednesday, with Williams meeting C. J. Quinlan, Cliff Dean playing Wall, Don Mitchell meeting Ted Tipps and Ralph Trolinger clashing with the winner of the Harvey-Stiles match. Quinlan, Dean, Mitchell, Tipps and Trolinger drew first round byes. The tournament final is scheduled Sunday.

Tulsa Wins Second Consecutive Battle

JUBILANT OILERS AND CRESTFALLEN BARONS OF BIRMINGHAM RESUME PLAY IN OKLAHOMA

TULSA, Oct. 6 (AP)—The jubilant Tulsa Texas league Oilers and the somewhat crestfallen Birmingham Barons of the Southern association traveled toward Tulsa today for the third game of the Dixie series, which will be played here tomorrow night.

The Oilers won their second consecutive game at Birmingham last night, 6 to 4, but it took them fourteen long innings to turn the trick.

As the game went into the ninth inning, Tulsa's 4-2 lead looked safe. But Riggs Stephenson, Baron manager, singled in the tying counters.

Ivan Crawford, Tulsa second baseman, hit a single in Tulsa's half of the fourteenth, and Howell walked. In an attempted double steal, Crawford was called out, but the umpires ruled Overman had balked, so both were called safe.

Raiders Looking For Tough Fight

TEXAS TECH PREPARES TO INVADE KANSAS FRIDAY NIGHT

Suspecting that he'll have need of more than eleven men in this week's game, Coach Pete Cawthon concentrates just now with his shock troops and other reserves as preparations are made to invade Kansas.

The Wichita university Wheatshockers and the Red Raiders played one of the hardest games on the local grid last year, the visitors losing by a touchdown. Tech doesn't expect to find the Wichitans a bit soft Friday night, so the football department is bracing itself against what is almost sure to be a rough contest.

An offensive drill featuring the team which started against Oklahoma City university occupied most of yesterday's workout period.

Both "Notre Dame" Teams

Al Gebert and Nordy Hoffman, coaches at Wichita, are dyed-in-the-wool believers of the Notre Dame system, having had it taught them by Rockne himself, so it will be "Irish against Irish" when the t ams clash in Wichita Friday night. Gebert and Hoffman have the reputation of teaching the "purest and truest' Notre Dame football in the country today, unless it's at Texas Tech.

Hoffman, great lineman at Notre Dame, was here to scout the Red Raiders Saturday night against O. C. U.

May Start Shockers

Cawthon isn't sure yet, but he thinks he'll start Capt. Frank Guzick's bunch, that slashing team of shock troopers who played the hustling Goldbugs a good game for nearly two quarters. Guzick is captain and center of that team, and he defies the "regulars" to bust them. "Frankenstein" himself was a power in the startling line, making more than 50 per cent of all the tackles while he was in the game, and he ke,t his mates going at top speed. His team petitioned Cawthon a few hours before the game to "let us start," and they were accommodated. George Philbrick and Raymond Curfman play at ends on that team, Bull Katrola and Red Murphy the tackles, Jim Brown and Skinney Green the guards. Charley Duval is quarterback for that team and right halfback for the regulars, by design, with Ed Smith and Maurice Chernosky or Miles Chapman at halfback, Elmer Tarbox at full.

The Techs came from the OCU game in fine physical condition. The big knot Jim Neill got on his head has all but vanished and he's all right again. With Duval at quarter for the shockers, Winny Baze returns to the right halfback position, with Winters at full and Captain Cannon at quarter.

The team leaves by train Thursday afternoon for Wichita, arriving there early Friday morning. The return trip starts after Friday night's game.

Deadline Set For Qualifying Scores

Tomorrow is not "ladies day" at Lubbock Country club, but it is the deadline for qualifying for Friday's matches against an invading team of Big Spring women.

All women golfers are asked to turn in an 18-hole qualifying score to serve as a basis for matching the Big Spring players, who will be ranked when they arrive.

At least ten visitors are expected, and the local club is anxious to provide an opponent for every visitor. The meeting originally was scheduled for early September, but postponed because of unfavorable weather.

Only 11 Country club men turned in qualifying scores for the annual championship, first rounds of which began Sunday.

Smartest Evening Styles Are Shown

PARIS, Oct. 6 (AP)—Beehive caps, black lace hoods, and "thatched roof turbans," figured among the striking headdresses that topped some of the smartest evening dresses in the whole outlay of Paris winter styles.

Tight little caps, shaped like miniature beehives, were made of gold cord, silver ottoman or pearl white sequins. Molyneaux accented one in red velvet with two swirling plumes of red paradise. Alix made a cap of copper leaves sprayed with black monkey fur in light, feathery touches, and another of gold cord fringed around the neck with black worsted twisted to imitate corkscrew curls.

GENTLEMAN DALE HADDOCK IS BACK

That man from Detroit is here again.

He's "Gentleman Dale" Haddock, the three-fingered wrestler who isn't such a gentleman, inside the ring. He barged into Lubbock yesterday after a non-stop drive from Hollywood, and immediately was signed up to appear on Wednesday night's wrestling card at the Auditorium.

Wrestling attendance, down to a new low last week during the fair, is due to pick up by several hundred per cent tomorrow night, because it's practically an all-star card Promoter Allen has arranged. Haddock meets Bob Cummings, the clever person from California, in the curtain raiser. Haddock, once tops in the district, showed up yesterday in fine shape.

Dory Detton, brother of the world's heavyweight wrestling champion (in some states), Dean Detton, is to meet Jittery Joe Bauer in the semi-final tomorrow night. Bauer, more of a clown than a wrestler but who sometimes comes through in surprise moves to get good jobs done, has been begging for a shot at the Mormon. He didn't quite rate it as a main event but his challenge was accepted for a time-limit affair.

Yaqui Joe, the veteran Indian, is on the main event with Gene La Belle, and the fans suspect that Joe will give La Belle sufficient punishment to balance the rough stuff the Frenchman has been dishing out lately.

HARD BATTLES ON SCHEDULE THIS WEEK

CONFERENCE GAMES TO BE PLAYED IN TEXAS NEXT SATURDAY

(By The Associated Press)

Coach Jack Chevigny prescribed hard work for his University of Texas gridders today in an effort to prevent overconfidence as a result of the Longhorns' unexpected tie with the strong Louisiana State squad Saturday.

The Steers merged from the game without serious injuries and began practice for this week's encounter at Dallas with the University of Oklahoma.

Scrimmage Resumed

The Texas Christian Frogs, victors over Arkansas, resumed scrimmage sessions in preparation for their invasion of Tulsa to play Tulsa university Saturday. "Slingin' Sam" Baugh, who hurled the Frogs to their win over the Porkers, was expected to recover from a shoulder injury by game time.

With two consecutive defeats on their record, the Rice Owls sought means to land in the win column in their conference opener against the Texas Aggies.

At College Station the Aggies nursed bruises as they looked back on last week's narrow escape against Hardin-Simmons. The Aggies checked scouts' notes on previous Rice games and concentrated on blocking.

Blames Overconfidence

Blaming overconfidence for the Razorbacks defeat, Coach Fred Thomsen put his University of Arkansas charges through a strenuous workout in preparation for their conference tilt with Baylor Saturday.

The Baylor Bears came out of the Centenary game with a defeat but no serious injuries and promised to throw their full strength against the Porkers.

At Southern Methodist Coach Matty Bell worried because the Fordham Rams ran up almost as large a score against Franklin and Marshall as his Mustangs did against Texas A. and I. The Ponies leave tomorrow for New York where they battle the Rams Saturday.

Changes For Cubs In 1937 Promised

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (AP)—President P. K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs said today that while several changes will be made in the club for 1937 they will not involve Manager C rley Grimm.

"Grimm positively will manage th. Cubs next season," Wrigley said. "I think he did all he could with the team as it was constituted in the past season and we intend to give Grimm a better team instead of expecting to accomplish a baseball miracle with the present material."

The charge of the Light Brigade, as Hollywood did it. . . . Stormed at by shot and shell, actors and extras got through the charge without anyone being seriously hurt.

The LIGHT BRIGADE has CHARGED .... and is Hollywood relieved!

Improving on Tennyson, and history, was easy, but getting it all on the film was tougher—what with extras who wouldn't die, a bouncy elephant, spurs that were too long, and a director with an accent

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD

THE Light Brigade didn't accomplish very much when it charged the Russian artillery at Balaclava in 1854. Lanced a few gunners and got itself cut to pieces. "Then they rode back—but not, not the Six Hundred."

The attack was a daring piece of foolhardiness and futility. But it established a shining legend of heroism and inspired the familiar poem by Tennyson. The poem, in turn, has suggested a movie—one of those super-epics with a cast counted in thousands and the cost counted in millions.

And so the Lancers ride again, "into the jaws of Death, into the mouth of Hell . . ."

The Light Brigade has been turned into camera fodder.

Pictures have been built around poems before this. "Paul Revere's Ride," "Evangeline," "Enoch Arden" and "Barbara Frietchie"—in celluloid—were conspicuous flops. Warner Brothers, with merely a nod to Tennyson, have borrowed only his title. The rest is history; a little scrambled in spots, but pretty good history still.

The British people, who hold so dear the story of that fruitless exploit of the Crimean War, already have been aroused to quiet indignation by the report of a Hollywood correspondent for a London paper. He declared that this film will show that the Light Brigade galloped to destruction in defense of a lady's honor.

That's partly true. But even a chivalrous motive, though suicidal, seems better than none. For the fact is that in actual records the deepest mystery still shrouds the source of the order that launched one of the greatest tactical blunders ever committed in the history of British arms.

A FEW years ago an English film company had a go at a two-reeler called "The Charge of the Light Brigade." Government co-operation was secured, and among the troops assigned to the job were the 17th Lancers, which unit had taken part in the original attack.

The field was mined so that explosives could be set off in imitation of bursting shells from the Russian guns. But a technician got nervous, punched the wrong button and blew up the entire front rank. Some horses were killed and several men injured, but the forces were reformed for a second take.

The movie director then announced that any soldier who'd take a fall from his horse at full gallop would be paid five pounds. Bugles blared and the charge began again. Before the Light Brigade had ridden 100 yards there wasn't a man in his saddle; they all had taken a nose-dive for the bonus.

So they tried it a third time, and right at the height of the excitement the general's wife, in ruffled organdie and with a parasol, strolled in range of one of the two cameras. The general wouldn't allow his men to charge again.

Nothing so disastrous or exasperating has occurred in Hollywood, even though massed action on various fronts has been packed into this feature. By no stretch even of the Hollywood imagination could the charge at Balaclava—which lasted about 16 minutes—fill more than two reels. So eight additional reels have been devoted to incidental massacres and battles, all building up to a furious and gory climax that kills off practically everybody, including both hero and villain.

EIGHT months of writing by a Michel Jacoby and a Rowland Leigh were required for completion of the script and for research. Since the British Empire is a very good market for films, and since the British people are inclined to be a little touchy about their treasured legends, the studio was careful about authenticity of detail. Two former English officers were hired to ferret out data on uniforms, flags, arms, garrisons and the like.

For director: Michael Curtiz, one-time Austrian cavalry officer and the best swordsman west of the Brown Derby.

For star: Errol Flynn, who had skyrocketed to fame in "Captain Blood," a picture Curtiz had directed.

Other players: Olivia de Havilland, the love interest, Patric Knowles, Flynn's brother, who gets the gal, David Niven, Flynn's officer pal, who gets shot. C. Henry Gordon, menace of the piece, who gets shot. And many others, most of whom also get shot.

With fine disdain for anachronism, the story predates the Cawnpore, India, massacre several years; places it before the Crimean War instead of in 1857, when it actually happened. Anyway the movie shows the whole horrible business, how some 800 women and children in Chukoti garrison were slaughtered by Indians.

The massacre is supposed to have been engineered by one Surat Khan (C. Henry Gordon), who later goes to help the Russians against the British in the war in the Crimea. At Balaclava, when the 17th Lancers learn that old Surat Khan himself—the fellow who butchered their wives and children in India—is behind the Russian artillery, they charge for vengeance. And get it.

Also there are some thrilling reels in which Flynn is sent into Arabia to buy horses for the British forces. This sequence gives the Lancers a chance to fight with the Arabs. There are stunt men in this picture who have died a dozen deaths.

EXCEPT for stunt men and trick riders, Mexicans mostly were used for Hindus and Arabs, and the excitement of battle invariably made them forget their instructed roles. They lent a colorful touch to the whole affair but their utter undependability in "battle" was provoking. As Arabs they'd hide in the hills and snipe at the English until their ammunition ran out, in spite of the unintelligible howls of Director Curtiz and the bellowed orders of his assistants.

As Hindus, they refused to die. Eight hundred of them swarmed over the hills to attack the garrison, and none was willing to fall before the Lancers' fire. Meanwhile the English, in their protected position, were dying like flies. The corps of directors finally had to take each Arab and show him, with an X marking the spot, where he was to die.

Curtiz is celebrated as a director of action, but in moments of excitement he needs an interpreter. This is not only because his accent gets pretty heavy, but because he has a habit of grabbing the microphone through which he is supposed to give orders and waving it around like a clubbed rifle, or slashing as with a sword. Naturally, nobody can hear anything.

There are many pleasant little jokes about Mr. Curtiz. One day he administered an awful bawling-out to an underling. He concluded: "Next time I vant to send on an errand a stupid donkey I vill go myself."

He also calls a riderless horse an "empty horse." Through all the months of production members of the company always spoke of them as "empty horses." Properties of any sort, whether cannon or cigarets, are "dose tings."

There was less doubling than you'd imagine for actors in the principal roles, because nearly all the Englishmen happened to be good riders. David Niven used to ride in point-to-point races and anticipated no difficulty when he found himself mounted on a jittery big chestnut on the very first day of the picture.

For that scene he was to touch spurs to his horse, dash alongside Errol Flynn and report that one of the camels in the pack train had a broken leg or something. But Niven hadn't noticed that the spurs they had strapped on his heels were Hollywood props and not practical spurs. They were much too long and sharp.

THE chestnut leaped in panic and went past Flynn at a dead run. Niven, in the saddle, raised a hand in salute but could say only, "Sir—"

The horse bowled over Curtiz, upset a camera and galloped in a wide circle as Niven sawed at the reins. Next time they went past, Niven saluted again and resumed his speech. "—one of the camels—" and was gone again amid the curses of Curtiz and encouraging yells of the cowboy Lancers.

A little later they staged a leopard hunt, with a tame leopard and a supposedly tame elephant. Property men had constructed a howdah, but apparently the elephant didn't approve the construction. Scarcely had Flynn, Niven and two other officers got aboard than the beast began to shiver, and then to shimmy violently.

Two passengers went over the rail at the first quake. Then Niven and finally Flynn. By this time the elephant was thoroughly indignant and went around stamping and trumpeting. Everybody climbed a tree except Niven, who had been knocked a little silly. While he lay on the ground the leopard came and licked his face sympathetically.

The famous charge required months of preparation and three weeks of actual shooting. The site finally selected for the encounter is near Calabasas, and according to all the old records and maps in the British War Office it looks like the valley of the Crimea up which rode the 17th Lancers, the 8th Irish Hussars, the 4th Light Dragoons, the 11th Hussars and the 13th Light Dragoons.

There's a Hollywood legend about the producer who filmed the Last Supper with 100 men instead of the regulation 13 because he wanted to make it a spectacular affair. Curtiz uses 697 men in the Charge of the Light Brigade instead of the 600 that Tennyson mentioned.

But Curtiz is right; there actually were nearly 700 men in the attack. Tennyson used a small, round number because he couldn't think of anything to rhyme with "six hundred and ninety-seven."

A good share of the $2,000,000 cost of the picture was spent on the grand climax. Camera platforms were built at various vantage points.

AT the head of the valley and on either side, fortifications had been thrown up, and through these protruded the muzzles of the Russian cannon.

The Crimean War was the first in which explosive shells were used. So the valley was mined with hundreds of charges of dynamite, all connected to a central switchboard.

For the sake of realism many small charges were touched off while horses and men rode directly over them. There were no injuries because the explosives were packed in Fuller's earth, which sprayed alarmingly but tossed no stones or clods.

Every available stunt man in Hollywood was hired for this picture, because Curtiz is a great fellow for leaps and falls. Cowboys and ex-cavalrymen made up the balance of the British forces.

Finally Curtiz announced that they'd take the charge.

The whole valley spit smoke and flame as electricians cooly threw in the proper switches. Nearer came the British, and some were falling from their horses, and some of the horses were down. From behind the guns dashed the Russian cavalry and the two forces met right in front of the cameras.

Errol Flynn put his horse over the breastworks and spied his arch-enemy, C. Henry Gordon. Just as he leveled his lance and impaled Mr. Gordon, a Russian infantryman took careful aim with his musket and bopped Mr. Flynn. Both fell heavily, obviously done for.

"Cut!" yelled Mr. Curtiz. "Dot's good!"

HERE'S a tip to men who use trucks and delivery cars in their business: see that your drivers bend backward in extending driving courtesies.

The Plainsman was riding in the car of a friend the other day.

At an intersection a commercial car zipped in ahead, narrowly escaping a collision, and then, weaving through the traffic, dashed headlong down the street.

"That's the darndest thing I ever saw," said our companion, shifting gears. "I've been trading with that outfit but they'll never get another dime's worth of business from me!"

* * *

That is probably a narrow-minded way to look at things.

It isn't an employer's fault if his driver is so dumb, or in such a hurry that he cannot grant the courtesies of the street to his fellow citizens.

But it does rile the private car driver who feels he is being taken advantage of and it doesn't help business.

If you're in a business where delivery cars or trucks are used, you'll be wise to insist that your drivers more than go out of their way to make other drivers happy.

Here's a little story that may come true in Lubbock some day if we don't have sense enough to pass zoning laws.

After the real estate agent had shown the prospective renters a house, he said:

"The ethics of my profession make it necessary for me to tell you that this house has one or two drawbacks. In the first place it is bounded on the north by the gas works, on the south by a rubber factory, on the east by a vinegar factory and on the west by a glue making establishment."

"Good heavens!" gasped the husband. "What a neighborhood!"

"Oh, it has its good points, too," said the realtor. "The rent is cheap — and you can always tell from what direction the wind is blowing!"

HAVING had business out at Tech mid-afternoon Monday, and mid-afternoon Monday being such a swell example of fine West Texas weather, The Plainsman turned north on College avenue, then west, north and east by "jogs" to take a look at the crops and the cotton pickers.

It was a great sight and the hour and a half, or so, thus used, was well worth the time out of the sweatshop.

* * *

As he watched the cotton pickers busily engaged on the long rows, backs bent, hands working feverishly, The Plainsman naturally thought of what we call the threat of the mechanical cotton picker.

Suppose this new Rust invention does work and suppose it does take the place of 90 per cent of the men, women and children who now eke out an existence in the cotton patches of the South?

This column says that will, in the long run, be a fine thing.

* * *

THERE will be a period, of course, of hardship for the professional pickers.

Doubtless many families will be on some sort of relief—either governmental or private—until some way of turning them into other means of livelihood is uncovered.

But that is the way of life—the way of history. One generation suffers that the following may have an easier time.

* * *

Man must not look upon that ogre, "the machine," as a curse or a rival.

Instead, he must accept it as an ally.

The biggest problem before the nation and the world today is not to stop the spread of "the mechanical age," but instead, to learn to spread existence and luxuries over an ever expanding population shelved by the machine.

When we do that, our problem is solved.

* * *

SPEAKING of Tech, The Plainsman has always been a strong booster, a sympathetic friend and, at times, perhaps a too exuberant cheerleader of the state college to our westward side.

Having come to Lubbock when hitchface cattle were still grazing on what is now the college campus, your humble servant, along with numerous other oldtimers, has walked the floor with Tech like one walks the floor with a colicky baby. He has worried with administrative authorities when a Tech stude (as they did in the past) got pinched. He has, to be honest, lobbied at Austin in an effort to get added appropriations. He has at times literally tried to blackmail politicians in hopes of getting something like a square deal for the lusty institution which has smashed record after record in youthful history. He has even carried on a querulous public correspondence with a governor of Texas on why Tech shouldn't get what was—and is—coming to it.

Yet The Plainsman dislikes to go to the Tech campus. He would rather take a dose of castor oil—the tasteless kind that his doctor prescribes but refuses to take himself—than go out there.

And here's why.

With the largest enrollment in its always expanding history, Tech has nothing but a gaping space where a real, honest-to-goodness library should be.

It has shacks where a real building for agriculture should be.

It has other shacks, housing classes, where good, modern structures should be standing with all the majesty of the 27-story library at the gold-plated, diamond-studded University of Texas.

The lack of facilities gives us a heartache and for that reason we dislike a visit to the campus.

* * *

But better days are coming.

Some day, when the university has a private classroom for every student and A&M a private stall for every stallion and bull; when West Texas has its ultimate political strength and the "down-staters" are afraid to spit in our eye—then we'll have our just due and neither The Plainsman nor anyone else will hate to go out to the Tech campus and see (according to the Yankee sports editor of the Ft. Worth Star-Telegram) "how the kids go to school on the wrong side of the tracks."

Thank heaven, Texas, despite centennial treasury raids, is a growing, expanding state and some day "we'll get there"!

* * *

ABOUT three weeks ago The Plainsman remarked that he was starting to read Margaret Mitchell's new novel sensation, "Gone With The Wind".

He's still reading the long, drawn out, approximately 1,100-page novel which might well be called "Anthony Adverse In Confederate Gray".

But if and when he finally merges victorious over the hefty volume, he's going to write a review of it—one that will surprise you, despite the stacks of superlative reviews you've already seen.

If "Gone With The Wind" gets a clean bill of health from this presumptive country editor, it'll have to snap out of its doldrums in the last 300 pages.

Thus far the author—and it's her first book—has shown herself to be totally unable to cope with an anti-climax.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

SYNOPSIS: Carol Torrance had been determined to use her job teaching high school in Ashboro merely as a stepping stone, but she finds she cannot. One reason is Denis Ford, who is very attractive if a trifle unreliable. The other is a pupil of hers named Mike Hannigan, who is the handsomest youth Carol ever has seen, and who is, unfortunately, in the toils of Annabel Monroe. Carol sympathizes with Mike's determination to rise above his poverty—but distrusts Annabel's intentions.

Chapter 14
MIKE AGAIN

OCTOBER came, prying loose the clinging, dusty fingers of summer. The air was different: clear and heady and foreign, as if it came from far away and brought with it the promise of different, more exciting things. Before long there would be the slow, pervasive smell of burning leaves; and then winter, to make a mockery of the unfulfilled promises of fall.

"Why is it," Carol demanded of Ellen, "that fall is so unsettling? Spring is supposed to get into your blood and make you do rash things, but all spring ever does to me is to make me quiet and lazy."

They were walking in the woods beyond the high school. The woods were still green and quiet, and pencils of sunlight wrote in warm gold upon the ground. How summer in Georgia does hang on, Carol thought, like a woman who won't grow old. . . .

Ellen sat on the trunk of a fallen tree. "Search me. It makes me want to fall in love with somebody entirely different." She chuckled. "Even when I'm already in love fall tries to bust it wide open." She dug thoughtfully in the soft black dirt beneath her feet.

Carol sat down beside her. "Do you ever resent the fact that love is so important to women? Somewhere in the world there ought to be a job I could do well. I might even make a good teacher, and heaven knows that's a crying need if ever there was one; but the idea doesn't set me on fire at all. I—keep thinking about getting married! I do the best I can, but if I thought I'd spend the rest of my life teaching I'd lie down with a lily in my hand and wait for the blessed release." She added frankly:

"I like men so much better than I do women. Even their vices are on a more heroic scale. . . ."

Ellen laughed. "You should have been one."

"No; I'm too big a coward for that. In spite of all the propaganda women have spread it's men that have the hard time."

"Oh, for Pete's sake!" Ellen frowned at her and produced two bars of chocolate. "You scare me. Stop worrying about the universe and eat this before we have to drink it. Worry about school instead."

* * *

"That is something to worry about," Ellen admitted with her mouth full. "What sort of trouble?"

"The Monroe brat has him hooked and he doesn't know what to do about it."

Ellen looked skeptical. "Who doesn't?"

"Mike. You forget that he's in a strange land now. Four years at sea may teach you a lot of things, but not how to shake off a hussy who was born on the right side of the railroad tracks. He doesn't know he can slap her down and leave her."

Ellen looked sober. "Can't you tell him?"

"I would if he'd let me. But not even I'm brassy enough to dive in without a lead, because I may have guessed wrong."

"I don't believe it's serious. They're nothing but kids."

"That's what you think. Annabel's kind is born a thousand years old, and Mike is a man whose mind won't catch up with his body for several years." She got up abruptly. "Oh, damn! Let's walk."

They went silently out of the woods and turned into the street. The high school was quiet and deserted, biding its time until Monday morning. Over the front door a huge cloth streamer shouted: "COMING! Joe Bacon. The World's Most Famous Evangelist! Beginning October 10th!"

Carol's eyes hardened. "The circuses seem to be heading south for the winter."

Ellen looked hurt. "You're a heathen. It may not be your kind of religion, but they do a lot of good. They say he's converted thousands."

"Yeah? For how long? And to what?" She broke off.

A disreputable Ford groaned and stopped beside them. Somebody shouted: "Hey, Miss Torrance! Miss Sands! Wanta ride?"

Three boys grinned on the front seat. One of the boys poured himself over the edge and opened a door bearing the chaste inscription: "She may be old, but she still gets hot!" Rather than dampen enthusiasms they got in and were propelled noisily and cheerfully to Mrs. O'Connor's doorway.

The boys were reluctant to leave. They pummelled each other and guffawed, and Mrs. Taylor, cutting zinnias in the yard next door, looked and listened avidly.

Carol said quickly: "Thanks for the ride, Jake. We've got to run . . ." and dragged Ellen up the walk with her. The Ford churned away.

"That old devil would be there," she muttered. "Hurry up; the bathroom's probably pre-empted till midnight already . . . ."

* * *

Denis arrived earlier than usual that night, and Carol came down to find him in the living-room stating into an empty fireplace. For the first time since she had known him he didn't rush to meet her; he turned slowly where he stood, and she looked at him and stopped breathing for an instant.

The room was hushed and waiting. She said finally:

". . . . When, Denis?"

"Next Wednesday. Oh, God, Carol . . . .!" He turned his back again and the silence throbbed.

She sat down, not because she wanted to, but because her knees were shaking.

"Well . . . we're supposed to rejoice, aren't we?"

"Are we?" He moved across the room, took her hands and pulled her to her feet. "Come on, then: let's go over home and—rejoice."

Mr. and Mrs. Ford were out, and Carol felt a vivid embarrassment at the obviousness of her destination and Deni's. In his father's study Denis took her in his arms and crushed his mouth against hers, then they stood apart and looked at each other. Denis's eyes, she realized incredulously, were as wet as her own. She had never before seen a man cry, and the sight was shattering.

He said hoarsely: "Sit down, angel, and let's talk. . . ." But when they were on the couch he kissed her again, longer and harder than before.

"Tell me about it," she prodded him. Anything to dispel this feeling of a rope tightening about them, drawing them together again.

"It's the Washington job. Hunter's leaving Saturday for Russia, confound him!"

"Don't be an idiot." She tried to

COURAGE TO MAINTAIN CONVICTION

While The Journal does not agree with former Governor Al Smith in his bolt to the Landon camp, we do commend Mr. Smith for being what we have always considered him—a brave man, an outspoken citizen who does his own thinking, and a man with the courage of his convictions.

When the 1928 Democratic presidential nominee spoke against Mr. Roosevelt in New York the other night his remarks frequently were broken by hisses, boos and catcalls. Since those things happen frequently in various parts of the country, we are reminded that:

It is a brave man who dares to say the things he believes to an audience which is hostile to him;

It is a fair man who will listen as patiently to him as he, himself, would desire to be listened to;

It is an intelligent man who answers arguments with arguments and not with jeers.

Whether we agree or disagree with Alfred Smith we must admit that no nation ever had too many men who possess the powers of conviction and the courage to maintain conviction.

A nation without a generous sprinkling of such men will find itself going rapidly to seed.

From Hollywood MOVIE SIDELIGHTS

Behind The Scenes With The Stars Of Talkietown

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Oct., 6.—Among the most important atmosphere-actors in Hollywood are trees. And trees, as many an harassed director has observed, are not the most wooden actors, either.

Driving around the screen capital almost any day you have to dodge huge trucks hauling full-sized trees to be transplanted on studio lots, or even on sound stages. Or else the trucks are taking them back to their original growing places, there to await another casting call for some arboreal scene.

Studio scouts are always roaming around looking for good tree locations. They visit gardens and estates, too, hunting rare or especially fine specimens to be bought or rented and transplanted for pictures.

Of course they can't all be moved. In preparation for "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," location experts scouted the mountains for weeks to find a suitable giant to symbolize the picture title.

On the edge of the desert, a few hours from Hollywood, stands a slender pine which has a dark celluloid history. A single sturdy limb projects horizontally about 15 feet from the ground, and from this western gallows has been hung practically every hoss-opera villain in the flicker business.

* * *

Romantic Oak

A romantic favorite is a gigantic oak near Brent's Crags, 35 miles from Hollywood. It is gnarled, but tall, and probably is a couple of centuries old. Just the spot for love to bloom, and for hero and heroine to renew their pledges of devotion at the fade-out.

If you're a movie fan of some years' sitting, you've seen that oak dozens of times.

A peach tree has an important allegorical role in "The Good Earth." Louise Rainer, as Wang Lung's wife, plants it on her wedding night. It alternately withers and thrives, along with the tempo of the tale, and at the last shares the climax of the story as a full-grown tree, symbolizing the passage of life and the birth of a new generation. Or something.

People who really know trees must be pained to glimpse the California pepper and eucalyptus in many shots of synthetic English countryside, make-believe Alps, and Canadian forests.

The studios are doing their best for realism, though. M-G-M bought 20 beautiful old elms and transplanted them on the lot for the village street in "Ah, Wilderness."

The same company also has a tree park on its lot. There are northern varieties, temperates such as elms and maples, and tropicals, including bamboo. These are all carefully grouped so that merely by setting up a camera at different spots around the park suitable backgrounds can be had for any sort of story.

* * *

Make 'Em, Too

Joyce Kilmer's poem is not strictly accurate—in Hollywood. Movie specialists think nothing of making a tree, and even gracing it with fruit or flower. They mold the trunk and branches, then laboriously tie on leaves or artificial blossoms. Their work would fool a squirrel or a woodpecker.

When "Midsummer Night's Dream" was being filmed, some of the real oaks and pines brought to the lot didn't look natural enough. So the limbs were gnarled with plaster, then painted, and the illusion was perfect.

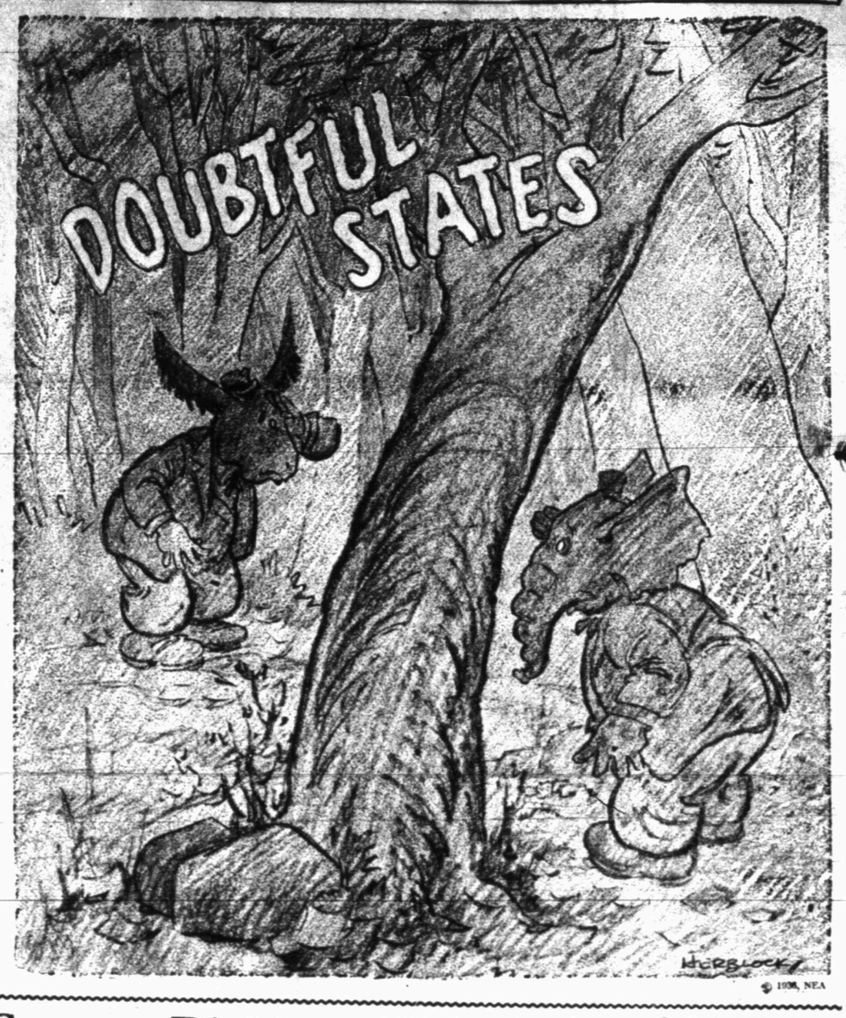

* * *

Golf-Ball Tree

Now that Joe Cook is in Hollywood, I hope he'll show these amateur Burbanks a thing or two about horticulture. For back on his Long Island estate, "Sleepless Hollow," the comedian has the only golf-ball tree in the world.

Before going out on the course you stroll to the tree for ammunition. Up in the branches are suspended hundreds of green golf balls which musn't be touched. But the ground under the tree is covered with nice, white ripe ones which presumably have matured and fallen off. You pick up a pocketful, and tee off.

Senator Dickinson Labels Roosevelt 'Greatest Promise Breaker' Of U. S.

Relief Is Dominated By Politics, Says Iowa Senator

BY LESTER J. DICKINSON
United States Senator From Iowa

WHEN a man makes a promise and breaks it, then makes another and breaks that, and contradicts himself time and again, can he ever be trusted to fulfill any future pledge that he makes?

Dickinson

This is the situation that confronts President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his New Deal party as they stand today at the crossroads of American public opinion.

The facts are, and the record supports it, that President Roosevelt is the greatest promise-breaking chief executive in the history of the nation, and that he has never hesitated to turn from a pledge when political expediency demanded that action.

Governor Landon's record as chief executive of Kansas shows that he has never made a promise he could not fill, nor broken one that he ever made. He has been upright and straightforward, carrying on his state government on a pay-as-you-go basis.

EDITOR'S NOTE

The accompanying article is one of a series, "Both Sides Of The Campaign," in which leading American figures argue for or against the election of Messrs. Roosevelt and Landon. On alternate days, arguments of both major parties are presented.

There are 13 articles in the series which takes the place of Rodney Dutcher's Washington column while Mr. Dutcher is vacationing prior to plunging into the last days of the national presidential campaign.

In his acceptance speech, he said simply, "It (the party platform) has my complete adherence," and after outlining Republican plans for recovery, added, "We bind ourselves, with a pledge we shall not ignore, thrust aside, or forget, to devote our whole energy to bringing these things about."

* * *

Scanning The Record

A GLANCE at the Roosevelt record tells a different tale. On March 4, 1933, Mr. Roosevelt swore to uphold and preserve the Constitution. During his administration he has fathered nine pieces of legislation declared unconstitutional by the U. S. Supremt Court, and in writing to Representative Samuel B. Hill, Democrat, of Washington regarding the Guffey coal act, Mr. Roosevelt said: "I hope your committee will not permit doubts as to constitutionality, however reasonable, to block the suggested legislation."

The time that has been wasted by unconstitutional and visionary reforms constitutes an irreparable loss to the nation.

* * *

Quit Gold Standard

PRESIDENT Roosevelt promised "a sound currency, to be preserved at all hazards." On April 30, 1933, he abandoned the gold standard in the United States by executive order; on May 12 of the same year he signed a bill giving him the power to issue $3,000,000,000 in fiat money, and on Jan. 31, 1934, he fixed the gold content of the dollar at 59.06 per cent of what it had formerly been.

President Roosevelt called the spending of the Hoover administration "the most reckless and extravagant pace" discoverable in any peacetime government. He promised a saving of 25 per cent in the cost of federal government.

The New Deal government increased the Hoover spending by 38 per cent in 1934; by 43 per cent in 1935; and by 92 per cent in 1936. It created more than 50 additional bureaus and agencies.

The nation's chief executive promised to avoid the danger of a loose fiscal policy, and set an example by making the government solvent. From March 4, 1933, to July 30, 1936, the New Dealers have increased the national debt by $13,563,000,000, to an all-time high of $34,500,000,000.

Yet in his budget message of Jan. 3, 1936, the president said, "The credit of the government is at its highest."

* * *

Spending Is Rapped

PRESIDENT Roosevelt promised in his inaugural address to make "the income balance outgo." During his administration, he has spent more than twice as much as the government has received, expending $24,362,000,000 while taking in $10,832,000,000.

The president declared, on Oct. 19, 1932, in Pittsburgh, "Our people and our business cannot carry its excessive burdens of taxation." Passing 14 different pieces of tax legislation, estimated tax receipts in 1937 represent an increase of 196 per cent over 1933.

In 1934, the president deplored hidden consumer taxes. On Sept. 2, 1935, in a letter to Publisher Roy W. Howard, he admitted that consumer taxes, which had supplied only 30 per cent of the national revenue in 1929, today are supplying 60 per cent of that total.

President Roosevelt declared on Jan. 4, 1935, "The federal government must and shall quit this business of relief." Today there are approximately 11,000,000 people unemployed, while WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins estimates that on Jan. 1, 1936, at least 19,000,000 people were receiving relief benefits.

* * *

Charges Relief Politics

ON Feb. 2, 1934, President Roosevelt condemned politics in relief. Yet New Deal leaders in politics all over the nation, by letter and otherwise, warned those receiving relief and holding WPA jobs to register Democratic or else lose their jobs.

In accepting his nomination, President Roosevelt subscribed to the removal of government from all fields of private enterprise, except where this was in the public interest. At least 20 government agencies created since March 4, 1933, compete with private enterprise.

On May 7, 1933, President Roosevelt decried government control of business. In its ruling on the NRA, the U. S. Supreme Court declared that under that act there would be "virtually no limit to the federal power, and, for all practical purposes, we should have a completely centralized government."

* * *

Agencies On Increase

IN his campaign speeches, President Roosevelt called for a simplification of government activities. Today there are three different federal committees, each independent of the other, studying overlapping services in the federal government.

Before the New Deal, 10 agencies dealt with production and distribution of power. In 1935, there were 23 agencies concerned with it. In 1932, two agencies were concerned with settling labor disputes. Today, 12 are interested.

Four agencies of the government dealt with housing problems before the New Deal. Today, 15 are dealing with the problem.

Foreign trade concerned six agencies in 1932. The New Deal doubled the number.

Four federal agencies made loans to farmers in 1932. In 1936 there are 13 making such loans.

Eight federal agencies exercised control over public lands in 1932. Today, 15 exercise such control.

NEXT: J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, reviews the 1933 banking crisis and discusses soundness of New Deal banking reorganization measures.

Success Seen For Big Sale

Opening Day Crowds Display Unusual Interest In Ford Dealers' Used Car Clearance Sale Over Country

Opening day crowds yesterday in this and other cities of the United States indicate unusual success in the nation-wide Ford Dealers' Used Car Clearance Sale being conducted throughout the county, Mr. Morris head of the Lubbock Auto Company, Inc. announced today. The sale will continue throughout October.

"Special bargains in used cars drew crowds to our display throughout the day," Mr. Morris reported. "Our unusual display, coupled with the fact that this sale is part of a nationwide Ford dealer movement, brought us greatly increased business. Scores of persons who have been planning to buy a better car for winter driving apparently are taking advantage of this nation-wide sale.

"We were very much gratified at the number of sales which were closed during the day, particularly because of the ready acceptance our cars and trucks appeared to have with the public."—Adv.

RED GRANGE, the old Wheaton iceman who carried the mail for Illinois a dozen years ago, was a miracle man all during his career, but it is doubtful if any single performance he made can equal that against Michigan in 1924.

It was on the dedication of the Illini stadium that Red, apparently inspired by the momentous occasion, ran wild, giving the greatest display of individual effort ever registered.

Sixty thousand people looked on as Ralph Steger kicked off for the Wolves, then rose and screamed as the Galloping Ghost tore from his 5-yard line back over the Michigan goal for a touchdown. Then, in rapid succession, followed touchdown trips of 65, 55, and 45 yards, all in the first quarter!

Bob Zuppke then withdrew the red-head and didn't use him again until the final quarter, when he sprinted 10 yards for his fifth and final counter.

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, 2 higher to 2 lower with a good trade demand for October despite 78 notices. Oct. 12.10; Dec. 12.03; Jan. 12.01; March 12.00; May 11.06; July 11.84.

The October liquidation caused price losses during the first few minutes of dealings, but trade shorts absorbed these offerings, partly against exchanges for later months.

Hedge selling relatively was light and foreign and domestic buying continued. Prices developed a steadier undertone and by the end of the first half hour the market was 1 point lower to 1 point higher. Dec. recovered from 12.00 to 12.03 and May from 11.94 to 11.97.

Fresh demand was still restricted by the proximity of the government crop report Thursday. Another private crop report appeared this morning pointing to production of 11,536,000 bales on a condition of 59.9 percent empared with 11,899,000 bales and a condition of 62.1 per cent indicated a month ago by the same authority.

Liverpool and the continent were among the early buyers while locals and New Orleans sold moderately. Liverpool reported speculative buying absorbing hedge selling.

Offerings increased later in the morning owing to hedge selling through cooperative connections and renewed October liquidation, causing further slight declines. Spot houses bought the near months and trade price fixing absorbed the selling in the later months. After prices sold off to net losses of 4 to 5 points the market became quiet and by mid-way had recovered a point or two from the lows, Dec. ruling at 11.98.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6 (AP)—First prices on the cotton market today were within a point of the previous close. Hedging was being absorbed by a good trade demand.

Oct. opened at 12.01 bid, Dec. was a point higher at 11.99 and March was net unchanged at 11.95.

Business was limited, as important interests remained on the sidelines until after the bureau report on Thursday. Domestic mills were said to be in the market with price-fixing orders while co-operatives and spot houses sold for hedging purposes.

There was little change in overnight weather developments. The west was clear and cool and picking and ginning progressed rapidly.

Heavy turn-over in cloth markets induced cotton authorities to predict domestic consumption might exceed 7,000,000 bales this year.

New York reported the issuing of 78 tenders for the October position, but this did not unsettle prices at New Orleans.

Pre-bureau apathy hovered over the market and kept prices in a narrow range and the volume of business limited.

Options slipped off a few points as is usually the case in a dull market with Dec. down to 11.95 and other positions showing similar small recessions.

Reports of an easiness in the basis and a drop in the volume of business in goods markets worked against higher prices.

While American cloth markets were booming, reports from the great goods center at Manchester told of increasing apprehension over England's ability to retain its position in the textile world.

Increased competition from Italy, Holland and France were expected to cut into English finished goods exports.

The morning weather map showed the western half of the belt dry, with scattered showers, mostly light, in the the eastern area. Temperatures were slightly above normal along the northern fringe of the belt.

Two more private crop estimates were released today, one for 11,536,000 bales and the other 11,685,000 bales.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—The new recovery push of the stock market again ran into profit taking today after many issues had climbed fractions to 3 or more points to peak levels for the past 5 or 6 years.

The list bounded forward at the opening under leadership of the oils, steels, farm implements and specialties. For a while the ticker tape failed to keep pace with floor dealings. But selling late cropped up and near the fourth hour morning advances had been reduced in most instances.

The speculative and investment fraternity still found encouragement in domestic economic trends and the foreign monetary picture apparently was reassuring in its long-term aspects.

Carrier loans were in demand in the bond division. Commodities moved indefinitely. The British pound backed water in terms of the dollar, while the revalued gold currencies were a bit better than even.

Spectacular share performers were J. I. Case and Deere, each getting up about 5 points. Ahead fractions to 2 points or so were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Rolling Mill, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Caterpillar Tractor, Consolidated Edison, International Paper & Power "A" and preferred, Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Seaboard Oil, Amerada, Houston Oil, Pure Oil, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, American Can, General Electric, Reliable Stores, Celanese and Canada Dry.

RALLS SERVICES ARE HELD TODAY

RALLS, Oct. 6 (Special)—Funeral for Mrs. Marvin A. McLaughlin, 36, wife of the cashier of the Security State Bank and Trust company here, was to be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the First Methodist church, Rev. Uel D. Crosby, pastor, is to officiate.

Arrangements had been pending the arrival of a son, Arnett Ware, student of Schreiner institute at Kerrville, who returned early this afternoon.

An unexpected heart attack claimed the life of Mrs. McLaughlin last night immediately after she had prepared three younger children, Ralph Ed, Gene Charles and Anne McLaughlin for bed. She had returned about 7 o'clock from Lubbock, where she visited a friend, Mrs. Raleigh Keith, in West Texas hospital.

Doctor Arrives Too Late

She called her husband from another room when she felt faint, and died before a summoned doctor arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin were wed in 1926 and moved to Ralls the same year. McLaughlin is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McLaughlin, pioneer Ralls couple who has lived here since the town was founded.

Prominent In Church, Clubs

Mrs. McLaughlin, member of the Methodist Episcopal church, was prominently associated with church and club activities.

Other survivors are Mrs. McLaughlin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bledsoe of Haskell.

Barely Saves Himself

Jack Jameson, a miner, said the cage door had been opened, and he had started to step inside when the cable snapped, dropping the elevator from the 3,000-foot level. He said he barely saved himself from plunging after it.

All nine bodies were removed to undertaking parlors at Kellogg and Wallace, nearby towns. The task of identifying them was started at once.

News of the tragedy was withheld by mine officials until about 8 o'clock, and newspaper men who visited the plant were not permitted to enter.

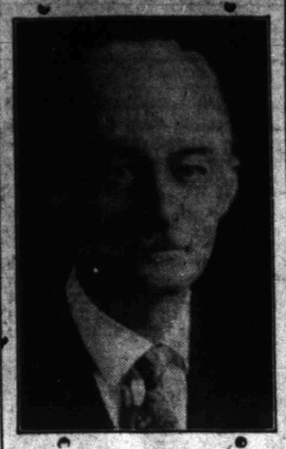

The cage is a three-deck affair. The bottom deck had just been filled with the nine miners, and the elevator was being moved to load the middle deck when the cable snapped, miners said.

Presbyterians Are To Attend Meeting

Several Lubbock Presbyterians will attend a joint meeting of the Northern and Southern church synods of Texas which will open tonight in Dallas, said Rev. J. M. Lewis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church here.

Rev. Lewis left last night. S. C. Wilson, and Dr. James M. Gordon, ruling elders, and Mrs. Wilson, vice-president of the local women's auxiliary, are to attend. Rev. S. J. McMurry of Crosbyton, stated clerk of the Texas Synod, left early Monday. Rev. W. K. Johnston, who is in charge of mission work in the El Paso presbytery, will attend. Doctor Gordon is moderator of the El Paso presbytery.

Called By Death

FRANK SHOUP

A lingering illness of years duration yesterday proved fatal for Francis E. (Frank) Shoup, former assistant general manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company. A resident of Dallas for many years, Mr. Shoup was widely known over Texas. A former headmaster of Sewanee, now the University of the South, Mr. Shoup was also at one time a member of the faculty of the University of Texas. He was one of the state's outstanding authorities on the Bible and for many years taught the largest men's Sunday school class in Dallas, a non-denominational organization. In charge of Southwestern Bell's public relations, he was for years without a peer in his line of work. He is survived by his wife and two grown children.

County Attorney Levens then questioned other men who had been subpoenaed for jury service this week. Of the group C. E. Moreman, A. L. Brownfield, Walker Jackson, and A. F. Ham said some one had discussed the Walls case with them. None of them, however, were on the jury.

Walls was defended by Vickers & Campbell and by Otto Boshard, LaCrosse, Wis., attorney for an association of chiropractors.

ditional levy of one cent per gallon on gasoline, he said. The present tax is four cents.

The social security board informed the governor yesterday it had granted Texas $840,000 for October pensions. Texas had requested $3,000,000 for the rest of this year.

Approximately 80,000 pension checks, aggregating $1,126,529, were prepared for mailing as soon as the financial tangle was straightened out.

LEGISLATURE

for an omnibus tax bill. The house nevertheless voted, 92 to 26, to print it on a minority report.

Floor consideration of the omnibus proposal possibly will start late tomorrow. Proponents of the oil tax contended, however, the omnibus bill was so far-reaching it probably would not reach the senate until next week.

A bill by Representative Elmer Pope was killed when the house refused to print it on a minority report. Pope called the proposal a gross income tax but opponents termed it a general sales tax of one-half of one per cent. Governor Allred has said he would veto a general sales tax.

Track Laying Now Started Upon Line

Track laying on the Amarillo-Los Animas line of the Santa Fe, north of Boise City, Okla., has started and 200 cars of material are ready for use.

A crew of 150 men is at work. When the Cimarron river is reached, in about 30 days, steel work on the bridge will start.

Campo is to be the only depot between Boise City and Springfield, Colo. Stockyards and a loading chute are under construction there.

Defense Testimony Is Offered Today

TAHOKA, Oct. 6 (Special)—Defense testimony was presented this morning in 106th district court in the case of Oscar Sumner, Lubbock, on trial for theft of a cow from the T-Bar ranch last December.

Sumner, represented by Lockhart & Brown of Lubbock, pleaded not guilty. Prosecutors are District Attorney Truett Smith, County Attorney C. H. Cain, and Dayton Moses, Fort Worth, attorney for the Texas Southwestern Cattle Raisers association.

Several Guests To Attend Gathering

Several out of town guests are to attend the regular Friendship meeting of the Lubbock Salvation army corps tonight at 7:15 o'clock at the Army hall, 1510 Avenue H, said Captain John G. Churchill, local commandant.

Captain and Mrs. Kester, in command at Hobbs, N. M., and Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Chambliss, also Hobbs and former Lubbock residents, are among those expected. Captain Eula Trammell, Littlefield and Captain Guy Hepler, Plainview, will be here.

Tarzan Rules The Lions But Hornets Prove Too Wicked

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 6 (AP)—In the movies, Johnny "Tarzan" Weismuller makes elephants cringe and lions sneak away, with tails dragging.

But it was no movie gesture yesterday when Weismuller banged his arm on a hornet's nest. And he was wearing the scanty costume called for by the script of "Tarzan Escapes."

"Tarzan" wasn't working today.

Student Try-Outs Are To Be Staged

Try-outs for 38 students who have requested membership in Sock and Buskin club, dramatic organization at Texas Technological college, have been scheduled for Wednesday and Friday afternoons from 2 to 6 o'clock in room 202 administration building.

Twenty other students who have requested membership since try-outs were scheduled possibly will be given tests this week. The students are questioned concerning history of the drama, play production, newspaper critics, and other subjects.

Warning Is Given To Local Drivers

Warning that persons who operated trailers or wagons without proper rear lights would be arrested was issued today by Capt. W. W. Legge of the highway patrol.

Captain Legge asked that all persons place burning lights on trailers and wagons during the cotton harvest season, thereby lessening the danger of collisions.

Two mishaps involving wagons and automobiles have occurred in Lubbock county within the past week. Captain Legge said he feared more serious accidents would result unless cotton vehicles are properly lighted.

Failure to obey the law is punishable by fine ranging to $200 and costs.

GRIM DETAILS OF MASSACRE ARE BARED

UPPER CLASS CITIZENS OF SPAIN ARE BEING KILLED AT WILL

Copyright 1936 by Associated Press

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, Oct. 6—Reliable advices, brought here by refugees from Madrid, today stated the Spanish capital's extremist "execution squads" had killed well over 3,000 middle and upper class citizens.

The executions even have increased, the advices said, since Francisco Largo Caballero became premier little more than a month ago.

Bands of "bloodthirsty young murderers," the refugees said, are responsible for the executions. The travelers described the death squads as the Spanish counterpart of the French "sans-culottes" of 1789, who with bloodsoaked tumbrils, daily fed "Madame Guillotine" with aristocrats.

150,000 MEN READY FOR MADRID MARCH

(By The Associated Press)

With brisk battles on many fronts, Spanish insurgents marshaled 150,000 trained men today for their march on Madrid while the government proclaimed it was holding its lines on all sectors.

The fascists held up their general advance, resolved to be well prepared for a most bitter conflict. There still was "mop up" work to be done in the immediate vicinity of Todelo, where government snipers harried the insurgent conquerors.

Big Push To Start

But the big push, led by the dictator-designate, General Francisco Franco, will start as soon as the fascists tighten their lines and unite their marching columns.

The fascists claimed:

Advance of their troops to within six miles of the government's Madrid Valencia railroad, at a point near Torrijon De La Calzada, repulse of a government attack on Huesca, in the northeast; defeat of government forces at Bargos, just north of Toledo; destruction of government planes in the Toledo area; a bomb raid on Getafe airdrome, just south of Madrid.

Stiff Defense Claimed

The government claimed:

Stiff defense in driving rains from the Avila front, west of the capital, to the Siguenza front on the northeast; dispersal of a cavalry charge at Navalperal De Pinares, in the mountains 30 miles northwest of Madrid; an attack on the insurgent flank at Siguenza.

New Students Are In Speech Clinic

Fifteen persons who had not previously attended the free speech clinic sponsored by the speech department at Texas Technological college have entered this year, said Miss Ruth Pirtle, head of the department.

The clinic, which was re-opened last Thursday, will be conducted each Thursday afternoon from 1 to 5 o'clock at Lubbock sanitarium. Schedules will be worked out for the patients.

Only new patients had been asked to attend the first session of the clinic. Patients who have received treatment in the last two years will be accepted at other sessions.

New patients ranged from 4 to 40 years of age and had various impediments, including stuttering, lisping, negligent speech, and defects resulting from shell shock.

Cabarets Ordered To Post Charges

NEW YORK, Oct. 6. (AP)—All of New York's cabarets were ordered today to give due notice to prospective customers of all extraordinary charges to which they would be subject.

Second Deputy Police Commissioner John J. Sullivan ordered a list of all charges be posted conspicuously at the entrance of such establishments and noted on a card at each table and that newspaper advertisements state minimum, "location" and other charges.

The instructions were contained in the deputy commissioners' decision on the complaint of a cabaret patron who had not been properly notified of a location fee put on his bill.

NAZIS REOPEN MINES

KAISERLAUTEN, Germany (AP)—Trying to keep money at home, Germany is reworking in this vicinity quicksilver mines which have lain dormant for almost a century. An annual production of 120 tons of mercury is hoped for. Last year Germany imported 869 tons, chiefly from Italy and Spain.

With no previous training, and a good physique, it requires about six years of hard training to become an acrobat.

Do you drive a car a lot?

If you do... we have just the suit for you...

Triple Test Worsteds*

Tailored by

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX

Driving a car is the toughest treatment we know of on a suit of clothes. The constant sitting, getting in and out of the car, resting your arm on the side of the door and vibration subjects any ordinary suit to years of wear in just a few months.

The fabric that can stand up under such punishment is phenomenal. But we have such a fabric . . . TRIPLE TEST WORSTED. Here is a material that will wear and wear and wear, that is practically wrinkle-resistant, and yet which is as smartly styled as any fine custom fabric.

If you're hard on your clothes and are always wishing you could find a suit that would really wear—come in and let us slip on Triple Test. You'll be pleased, mightily!

say it sharply, but the word sounded like a caress. "You can't sit here forever; you're lucky to get a job. And—I can't think of a better place from which to—laugh at the show. Right at the ringside."

"Yeah." His mouth looked harsh and young. "Only I don't feel like laughing."

"But you will." And a lot sooner than even I think you will, she reminded herself bitterly. Men didn't fall in love as precipitately and thoroughly as Denis without a great deal of practice.

He lifted his head and looked at her. "Carol—come with me. It's fifty a week. We could live on that."

"You know as well as I do that it won't last. You love me now: I'd be an idiot to doubt it. But you've loved girls before, and you'll love a lot more. And for all my loose remarks, I've still got a passion for permanency and stability."

He took her hand and looked thoughtfully at it. "You'd be the best ballast in the world, angel. I can't imagine going haywire if I had you."

"No, Denis."

He searched her face for several seconds, then visibly pulled himself together. "Well, I guess I'm licked. . . ."

She tried to explain her refusal, but her voice was toneless.

"Denis, it seems to me that somebody's always depending on me. Milly does it, and Pat. Even the most promising pupil in school. Can't you see that I'd like somebody to lean on myself? Tell me again that I'm a coward; I know it."

"No." His voice was as dead as her own. "I guess I'm the coward. But would you come if I made it alone for a while?"

"I think I would. Try it and see."

"I will." He said it quietly, subdued by her passivity. "Now I'm going to fix a drink. And we'll talk about . . ." he smiled dimly, "what did you suggest the first night? Einstein?"

Carol goes tomorrow to a farewell dinner.

FLASHES OF LIFE

Quake Time

HELENA, Mont.—The Helena high school, put on wheels by last year's earthquakes, went back to the five-day week today. In railroad coaches since quakes damaged their building, the students have been going six days a week to make up lost time.

Whopper 'Hopper

LIBERTY, Mo.—One of the most abundant crops of the hot and dry summer in Clay county was grasshoppers, so there was competition in that department at the annual farm products show. Of 20 farmers who caught the biggest and finest they could find, Victor Irminger won the blue ribbon with a three-inch specimen.

Knit One Purl Two

CHICAGO.—This may be the football season to most everyone else but to a group of Chicagoans it's the start of the knitting season.

They formed a knitting club with all women barred except the instructor. One man showed up for the first workout.

Never Too Old

NORMAN, Okla.—"Daddy" De Barr is one of the four original faculty members still at the University of Oklahoma. He has been there so long the chemistry building has been named after him. Nonetheless, today he was enrolled in a French class as a student. He's preparing himself for a trip abroad.

Softie

PAWHUSKA, Okla.—Layton Mitchell resigned as police chief to go to work for a railroad in Kansas. Within a week he quit that job, came back and the city commission is getting ready to reappoint him.

"I got homesick," he explained.

Curing Headache

CHICAGO—Fished out of the Chicago river by a couple of bridge tenders, Theodore Lavelle, 45, gave this explanation for his leap.

"Since 1908 I've been an elevator operator. Recently my employes forced me to wear a uniform and the cap hurt my head, so I figured I'd be better off dead."

Belled Buzzard Is Permanent Lodger

STEPHENVILLE, Oct. 6. (AP)—F. W. Teague of the Cedar Point community thinks a belled buzzard has been flying around his neighborhood for twenty years.

Teague said he read yesterday in a "20 years ago" column where Sam Russell, now district judge, saw a buzzard wearing a bell.

He said shortly afterward he saw near his home a buzzard with a bell. Teague and Judge Russell conferred and decided it was the same bell.

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to REALLY GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating you won't do it with harsh irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most gas is in the upper bowel and is due to poisonous matter from constipation. Adlerika rids you of GAS and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH bowels. Adlerika acts where ordinary laxatives do not even reach. Does not gripe—is not habit forming. Just one dose relieves GAS. Mark Halsey Drug—Adv.

Federal Agent Is Killed In Dallas

DALLAS, Oct. 6 (AP)—Albert B. Brister, 49, United States treasury department investigator, was shot and killed here last night a few minutes after police had arrested him for drunkenness.

Squad Policemen L. Hill and G. T. Dorff said they ordered him out of his automobile and informed him he was under arrest when they found him slumped over the steering wheel of the parked car.

They quoted him as saying "this will disgrace me."

The policemen already had two prisoners and called headquarters

Extension Of Oil Field Is Assured

ABILENE, Oct. 6 (AP)—Developments today in two Jones county oil tests pointed to discovery of a new pool three miles east of the Hawley field and assured a quarter-mile north extension of that field.

Alliance Oil company's No. 1 Guitar trust estate, a mile northeast of the town of Hawley, struck oil at 1,995 to 1,998 feet that rose 1,500 feet in the hole over night.

The well is located 150 feet from the north and west lines of the south half of the northeast quarter of section 44, block 15, T. and P. survey, three miles east of production.

The extension to the field resulted from the operators' decision to pass an estimated 50-barrel showing at 1,956 feet in Danciger, Fortex and Owens-Snebold's No. 2 Dorsey, and deepen to the lower hope sand, where the test flowed 200 barrels per hour before it was shut in for cementing six inch casing. Pay depth is 2,220-21 feet.

LEGS OF GIRL ARE FOUND

TWO HUMAN LEGS ARE LOCATED IN HARBOR BY OFFICIALS

BOSTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Two human legs found less than a quarter of a mile apart in Boston harbor today were said by Medical Examiner William J. Brickley to have belonged to the same person, probably a young brunette girl.

They had not been amputated for surgical purposes, Dr. Brickley said. He added x-ray pictures would be taken in an effort to determine the age of the victim through the bones.

Dr. Brickley reported that in each case the feet had been tied back to the upper part of the thigh. In one instance a lacing similar to that used on corsets had been employed he said. In the other twine was used.

Wrappings Same

The medical examiner reported burlap wrappings about each limb were similar. One burlap bag, in which the right leg was found, bore the words "Maine potatoes."

Dr. Brickley said he believed the limbs had been hacked to destroy identity and hide the cause of death. The medical examiner said he thought the burlap bags had been weighted but the weights had broken free.

Meanwhile Boston police checked more than 30 persons reported missing in recent months.

The first play written by an American and played in this country was "Gustavus Vasa," a tragedy by Benjamin Colman.

MR. L. C. JOHNSON

I endured were terrible and I was never free of them. I had also been badly constipated, my system had become clogged with poisons and I felt as if I would never be well again. My kidneys became disordered, my rest and sleep was disturbed during the night, had awful pains in the small of my back and was worn-out continually. All these years I had taken many different kinds of medicine doing my best to get relief but meeting with repeated failure until I began Gly-Cas—it was what I had been needing all these years."

"Gly-Cas toned my entire system in a most natural manner," he continued, "My kidneys and bowels were easily regulated, I now eat and sleep good, enjoy a full night's rest, have new strength and energy and feel fine. What is so amazing is the fact that this new herbal remedy actually drove the rheumatism entirely out of my system, now get around with ease, do as I please and feel fine. Gly-Cas is such a blessing to all suffering humanity and is well deserving of all the praise given it and more."
