Reds Reject U.S. Cease-Fire Call

Communist Side Clings To 7-Point Plan

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN—Time nears for the 26th annual Top O' Texas Rodeo, set for Aug. 2-5. And to make sure that everyone knows about it, the rodeo directors have placed banners across parts of Cuyler and Hobart Streets. The Kid Pony Show will be held Tuesday. A practice for the event will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the rodeo arena. Another "workday" will be held Saturday for rodeo directors and other interested persons to help clean up the arena area for the events of next week.

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam rejected today a renewed urgent American appeal for an immediate cease-fire in Vietnam.

Hanoi's chief negotiator told the 152nd session of the Vietnam peace conference that a cease-fire can take place "after agreement on all the military and political questions."

Xuan Thuy scoffed at President Nixon's May 8 plan, which included a call for a cease-fire, saying it contains "nothing new and constructive."

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter had urged acceptance of the cease-fire, saying: "There seems to be no more compelling task for us than that of ending the killing and doing so as soon as we can. Cease-fire is the key."

Porter said an end to the shooting would enhance the prospects for political negotiation.

But Thuy said that if the United States really wants to negotiate seriously it should "put an immediate end to the mining and blockade of North Vietnamese ports, to its bombing raids—particularly to those against dikes and dams... It should stop all its acts of genocidal war in South Vietnam."

The Communist side clung to the seven-point plan of the Viet Cong's revolutionary government, which calls for the United States to set a date for total and unconditional withdrawal of its forces and the replacement of the Saigon regime of Nguyen Van Thieu by a coalition government.

Porter also asked today "why arrangements cannot be planned now for the time when our men will return to their country?"

He told the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong: "It is difficult to see how that and the exchange of prisoners could in any way damage the interests of North and South Vietnam. We favor such a cease-fire. We urge it because it would allow constructive political discussions to take place among Vietnamese, free of the dangers of combat."

He also asked the Communists to start discussion of arrangements for eventual return of American prisoners of war. The American negotiator asked the Communists to say, if they do not find the U.S. cease-fire proposal acceptable, what variation of it they would care to discuss.

"Has the issue of negotiations not been reduced to the simple matter of whether they are to take place in conditions of war or nonwar?" he asked.

"We see no valid reason," Porter continued, "why arrangements cannot be planned now for the time when our men will return to their country."

ON INSURANCE REFORM

Smith Awaits Reaction To His Address On TV

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith awaited the public's reaction today to his suggestion that he might reconvene the legislature to abolish the State Insurance Board and "reform" Texas insurance laws.

He raised the possibility in a statewide telecast Wednesday night during which he blasted the board, the multi-billion-dollar insurance industry and 11 state senators.

Smith also used the address over 35 stations to brag on his success in pushing a no-new-taxes budget through the legislature this summer.

"The insurance industry in Texas is in desperate need of drastic reform," the governor asserted.

He said the appointment of his close friend, Larry Teaver, to the insurance board was defeated in the Senate because "in serving the public, he offended the insurance industry." Smith said Teaver was "the consumer advocate on the board" and had taken numerous actions to protect the insurance-buying public.

"In Texas, the giant insurance companies have long controlled the State Board of Insurance—a board which was originally designed to regulate the industry and protect the consumer from gouging prices and unfair business practices," he said.

The governor said he would appoint "another strong consumer advocate" to succeed Teaver on the three-man board.

"Second, I will have a number of specific legislative proposals to recommend to the legislature—proposals which, if enacted, would completely reorganize and reform the regulation of the insurance industry in Texas. I have not yet determined whether my proposals will be submitted to a special session this year or to the next regular session when it convenes in January 1973," Smith said.

When the 1973 legislature convenes, however, Smith will be leaving office and he could not back them up.

An aide said he thought Smith would go ahead and call a special session if the television address produces signs that the public wants one.

One of his recommendations, Smith said, would be to abolish the full-time, paid insurance board. He remarked that most state boards and commissions are part-time and unpaid.

Smith spoke two days after the board's staff recommended an 11 per cent statewide average cut in car insurance rates. He said Teaver had told him a 20 per cent cut was warranted and commented that anything less than this "would be tokenism at best."

Ironically, Smith last year reappointed one of the two board members whom he criticized in his speech, Durwood Manford.

The governor said Texans should seek out their senators and ask if they were among the 11 who blocked Teaver's confirmation in the Senate, where a two-thirds majority is necessary to approve a gubernatorial appointment.

"When his appointment came before the Texas Senate for confirmation, 11 senators—some of whom had publicly demagogued about the State Board of Insurance and rising insurance rates—voted obviously for self-serving political reasons against him and rejected his appointment. Those 11 senators, for whatever reason—possibly because of his aggressive consumer stance—denied you his services on the State Board of Insurance," Smith said.

McGovern Says He Will Keep Eagleton As His Running Mate

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — Despite concern from some of his supporters around the country that Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's place on the Democratic ticket jeopardizes George McGovern's chances of beating President Nixon, the South Dakota senator says he has no intention of changing running mates.

"I'm 1,000 per cent for Tom Eagleton and I have no intention of dropping him from the ticket," McGovern said in a brief statement Wednesday.

That has been his position since he first learned Tuesday the details of Eagleton's medical history, which includes visits to the hospital in 1960, 1964 and 1966 for nervous exhaustion and fatigue.

Eagleton had been under the treatment of a psychiatrist, and on two of the occasions received electric shock treatments.

McGovern said he was repeating his endorsement of Eagleton "to assure no misunderstanding on my part."

But as McGovern was composing his statement from his vacation cabin at Sylvan Lake near here Wednesday, many of his supporters were voicing concern about the possible threat to a Democratic victory created by Eagleton staying on as the vice presidential candidate.

Eagleton himself said in Honolulu on Wednesday: "If my visceral feeling is that my candidacy is untenable I won't wait for George McGovern. I'll get off myself."

That was just what the 42-year-old Missouri senator was encouraged to do by Queens County, New York, Democratic Chairman Matthew Troy, an early McGovern backer.

In a telegram to Eagleton Wednesday, Troy said: "... there is a serious possibility that your presence on the ticket could mean the difference between victory and defeat."

Troy asked Eagleton to "voluntarily resign your nomination and permit our party to put this issue to rest so that the election may be decided on whether Sen. McGovern would make a better candidate and not on whether you are qualified and capable to serve as vice president."

Troy was also believed to have telephoned McGovern at his mountain cabin Wednesday, apprising him of the telegram to Eagleton.

Mayor Richard J. Daley at a news conference in Chicago said Eagleton "was honest and straightforward" in disclosing his problems and that they do not have "anything to do with his capabilities."

Daley also reaffirmed his support for the presidential ticket.

When asked if he believed Eagleton erred in not revealing his medical history before he was tagged by McGovern to be his running mate, Daley replied, "That's a matter for him and McGovern."

Some 50 telegrams arriving at McGovern's temporary headquarters here have run more than 2 to 1 against keeping Eagleton as a running mate.

If Eagleton should leave the ticket, his replacement for the No. 2 spot would be selected by the Democratic National Committee.

S. Vietnam's Paratroopers Withdraw From Quang Tri

SAIGON (AP) — Badly mauled South Vietnamese paratroopers retreated from the Quang Tri Citadel carrying their dead and wounded in rubber ponchos slung from poles, giving up the bloody fight for the 19th century fortress, field informants reported today.

"They were taking 150 casualties a day and it just wasn't worth hanging in there," one U.S. adviser told Associated Press correspondent Dennis Need in Quang Tri.

An official announcement from the Saigon command said the paratroopers in Quang Tri were being replaced by marines, who had occupied positions east of the provincial capital.

The official announcement gave no explanation.

Other sources in Saigon confirmed that the paratroopers had suffered heavy casualties and need time for refitting.

For the time being, the Citadel was left in North Vietnamese hands and indications from the field were that the marines would make no immediate attempt to storm it.

The Saigon command also disclosed that several hundred infantrymen had abandoned Fire Base Bastogne guarding the western approaches to Hue because it has been under heavy North Vietnamese shellfire. More than 3,000 rounds have hit the base and government positions around it in the past two days.

It was the second time Bastogne had been given up under enemy fire. It was abandoned April 28 and recaptured May 15. Military communiques and spokesmen have not reported any casualty figures for the recent heavy fighting in Quang Tri City, but one field report said it was "murderous."

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the chief spokesman for the Saigon command, reported only one major fight Thursday, about a mile northeast of Quang Tri City. He said 30 North Vietnamese troops were killed by the marines with support from air and artillery strikes. One marine was reported killed and eight wounded.

Hien said there was no major fighting in the Citadel.

Several hundred South Vietnamese reinforcements were sent into the district to root out the invaders. Fighting was described as light.

Scattered fighting and shelling attacks were reported in Kien Tuong and Dinh Tuong provinces in the northwestern part of the Mekong Delta, where the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have made inroads in recent weeks.

Trade Deficit Of First Half Breaks Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade deficit for the first half of the year soared to a record $3.3 billion with no signs of improvement apparent, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the six-month figure resulted after another sizable deficit in international commerce in June, with the value of imports exceeding merchandise exported by $590.3 million.

This was worse than the May deficit of $52.4 million and it represented the ninth consecutive month in which the country has turned in a red-ink figure in trade.

Domestically, the economic news is better. The department reported that its composite index of leading business indicators rose 0.5 per cent in June on top of a large upward-revised increase of 1.4 per cent in May.

The leading indicators index, while not the most reliable of government economic barometers, is supposed to presage broad economic movements. During the economic recovery, the index has gone strongly upward.

Ag Dept. Issues Restrictions On Texas Cattle Movement

The United States Department of Agriculture has announced new restrictions on the movement of Texas cattle, Congressman Bob Price of Pampa announced today.

According to Price, livestock moving from Texas, Oklahoma and parts of Arizona, California and New Mexico must be inspected and certified free of screwworms before moving interstate under the new regulations.

"The regulatory action is being taken by the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service to help prevent the spread of screwworms, Price said.

The USDA regulation will be in effect from now until Nov. 30 of this year and from April 15 through Nov. 30 of subsequent years until the present invasion is overcome, according to the congressman. The regulation will require that all cattle shipped interstate from these infested areas must be inspected, treated if necessary and certified free of screwworms 25 hours before shipping.

Shipping into states in the South and Southeastern portions of the United States will require that animals be sprayed or dipped with an approved pesticide prior to shipping.

Price noted that state and federal veterinarians, state and federal livestock inspectors and accredited veterinarians are authorized to make the necessary inspection and issue shipping certificates.

"The regulations became effective today on publication in the Federal Register," Price said.

White Deer Deputy Dies In Wreck

Shirley M. White, 55, deputy at White Deer with the Carson County Sheriff's Department, was killed Wednesday in a car-truck accident on the edge of Quanah. He was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, which occurred at 4:08 p.m. Wednesday on U.S. 287.

Investigating patrolmen said White, alone in his car, was west bound on the highway when his car collided with an eastbound semi-truck driven by J. Paul Wilson of Amarillo. Wilson was not injured in the accident.

Funeral services will be announced by Smith Funeral Home of Panhandle.

White was assigned to White Deer two years ago. Previously, he served as a deputy in Panhandle and before that was employed with Randel Motor Co. there.

He was a Methodist. Survivors include his widow, Pauline; and two sons, Courtney of Crosbyton and Kenneth of Amarillo.

More Convertibles Needed For Parade

Eight or nine more convertibles to carry entrants in the Top O' Texas Beauty Pageant still are needed for next Wednesday's rodeo parade.

Pageant officials said today they had enough transportation for about half of the 35 beauties entered in the contest.

J.C. Roberts, a co-chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Retail Trade committee, issued another appeal to any persons having convertibles to call the Chamber of Commerce office at 669-3241.

He said the automobiles would be needed for about two hours. The parade is scheduled to start at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday.

KM Finishes Gasser Of 11 Million CFPD

OKLAHOMA CITY — Kerr-McGee Corporation announced today the completion of its Holt No. 1 well, approximately 40 miles east of Pampa in Wheeler County, as a significant gas discovery. The well location is in Section 20 of Block 43, R & E survey and is about seven miles southeast of the prolific Buffalo Wallow gas field.

On completion test the Kerr-McGee No. 1 Holt well flowed gas at the rate of 11 million cubic feet per day from Morrow Sand perforations between 18,035 feet and 18,105 feet. Surface shut-in pressure is 11,286 pounds per square inch.

Several Morrow sands in the interval between 17,600 feet and 17,950 feet are indicated productive on logs but were not tested. The Granite Wash formation flowed gas at the rate of 10 million cubic feet per day on a drill stem test of the interval from 13,566 to 13,628 feet.

Development drilling will be commenced immediately on the 14,000 acre lease block, on which the Holt No. 1 is located.

Fifteen miles west, also in Wheeler County, Kerr-McGee is drilling two deep wildcats on a 17,000 acre lease block. One is a 20,100 foot Huntton test and the other a 17,600 foot Mississippiian test. Eighteen miles northwest of the No. 1 Holt well in Hemphill County, Kerr-McGee recently completed two wholly owned Granite Wash gas wells as extensions to the Hobart Ranch Field, and additional development wells are scheduled in this area.

All of the above wells are located in the Texas Panhandle portion of the Anadarko Basin where the company owns leases covering 79,000 net acres. In the Oklahoma portion of the Anadarko Basin Kerr-McGee owns leases on 125,000 acres making a total lease ownership of 204,000 acres in the Basin.

Girl's Letter Saves Marriage Of Parents

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — A 10-year-old girl who pleaded with a judge in a letter to "please, please, please help a 10-year-old keep a mom and dad" has received her wish.

Superior Court Judge Jay Ballantyne said Wednesday the girl's parents had reconsidered their plans for a divorce and have agreed to give their 12-year-old marriage another try.

After the parents, who were not identified, met briefly in chambers with the judge, the mother tearfully told newsmen: "I didn't know everyone was so friendly. We are moving back together—it's so wonderful that people care when they don't even know you. Maybe this will help a lot of other people. I really hope so."

Judge Ballantyne said his office was "flooded" with letters from concerned persons from all over the country after he made the girl's letter public a week ago.

She had written: "Honorable Sir, my mom and dad is getting a divorce... Please don't let them get a divorce. My momma loves my dad; if you could put him in the hospital he could quit drinking."

"Sir, you are a judge and this is your job, to divorce people. 'Only where do ones go that still love the husbands? And how do you divorce a 10-year-old? Can you cut out my heart and stop it from hurting? Please, please, please help a 10-year-old keep a mom and dad.'"

The father agreed to seek help for a drinking problem with Alcoholics Anonymous, it was learned.

Governor Smith Vetoes Funds For Colleges, Other Projects

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith has vetoed appropriations items totaling million dollars for state colleges, schools for the retarded and junior college programs.

His $6.35 million veto message Wednesday also blocked a purported compromise solution to a controversy over construction of an 11-story State Highway Department building just south of the Capitol.

Smith used his line-veto power freely on the $4.1 billion general appropriations bill for the year starting Sept. 1, which lawmakers passed in a special session that ended 20 days ago.

These major items were vetoed: —$1 million to design and begin construction of a new state school for the mentally retarded at Fort Worth Smith said North Texas has adequate facilities for the handicapped to carry it through the coming year.

of land, plus buildings, equipment and utility lines, from the University of Corpus Christi for a Texas A&M campus there. "Throughout the discussions and hearings concerning the feasibility of a state university at Corpus Christi, an understanding existed that sufficient land for the new university would be conveyed to the state without charge; and if the site of the existing University of Corpus Christi was to be used for the new state university, it would be conveyed without charge to the state," Smith said.

—$120,000 for graduate program development at Angelo State University. "The continued proliferation of graduate programs at every institution of higher education represents a serious state educational concern," Smith said.

A serious question arises as to whether state tax funds should be utilized in the recruitment of athletes, which apparently would be allowed under the provisions of this rider," the governor said.

State Pushes Ahead In Trial Of McKee

DALLAS (AP) — The state pressed further today with its case against former Dallas Crime Commission boss John McKee, 66, accused of fraud in connection with funds of the Scottish Rite Masonic order.

The eight-man four-woman jury returned to court after a night spent away from their homes in lodgings on the ninth floor of the courthouse building. Criminal district Court Judge John Mead has warned them they will not see their families again until the case is concluded, hopefully by end of the week.

Court officials could not recall another case where a jury has been sequestered in a case that did not involve the death penalty. It has been eight years since a jury was thus confined in Criminal District Court No. 4, where McKee is on trial.

The case started Monday. Two days were devoted to a vain defense bid for a change of venue, because of what was claimed to be excessive publicity regarding McKee. The third day went mainly in jury selection.

Johnson's Condition Satisfactory

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Doctors say former President Lyndon B. Johnson is progressing satisfactorily after a bout with chest pains that sent him to an Army hospital here three nights ago.

Meanwhile, an Army heart specialist who has treated him since 1970 and has been chief doctor this week is retiring from the military.

Col. Robert L. North will retire Friday as head of the department of medicine at the Army's Brooke General Hospital, where Johnson has been under care since Monday night. Officials said Col. George M. McGranahan, chief of Brooke's cardiology service, is expected to replace North as Johnson's doctor here for the present.

A diagnosis of the chest pains and nausea, that struck Johnson Monday has not been released, but officials say there is so far "no evidence of a major severe heart attack of the sort he experienced in April, 1972."

Fischer And Spassky Begin Their 8th Game

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer and Boris Spassky went into the eighth game of the world chess championship match today with the American challenger still leading the Soviet titlist by a full game after a draw in the seventh.

The score in the 24-game match now stands at 4-3. Fischer needs 8½ more points to wrest the title from Spassky, the Russian another 9 to keep it.

Since wins count a full point and draws a half, Fischer could take the crown by halving the remaining 17 games; Spassky must win at least one more game and draw on the rest to retain his title. But the competitiveness displayed so far by both players makes any such attempt at a holding action most unlikely.

The draw Wednesday came after Spassky's 49th move. Both players agreed to it less than an hour after the Russian resumed Tuesday's play with his sealed 41st move.

Corn Bread Rings the Flavor Bell

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

From Indian maize to colonial Hasty Pudding, (corn meal porridge) to the packaged corn products of today, corn has played an important role in nourishing the nation.

A corn bread ring with tasty barbecued beef filling makes for wholesome good eating. For economy, use beef stew meat simmered until tender in a spicy tomato sauce.

CORN BREAD RING WITH BARBECUED BEEF
Corn Bread Ring:
1 1/4 cups enriched cornmeal

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 1/4 cups milk
3 tablespoons melted or liquid shortening

Sauce:
1 1/2 pound beef stew meat, trimmed and cut into cubes
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
One 8-ounce can tomato sauce
One 6-ounce can tomato paste
One 4-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces, drained

2 teaspoons sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
2 1/4 cups water
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Heat oven to 425 degrees. For corn bread ring, sift together cornmeal, flour, baking powder and salt. Add egg, milk and oil. Mix just until dry ingredients are moistened. Pour into greased 5 1/2-cup ring mold. Bake at 425 degrees 25 to 30 minutes. Invert on serving platter. For sauce, brown meat in butter; drain off fat. Add tomato sauce, tomato paste, mushrooms, sugar, salt, oregano, chili powder, garlic powder, onion and 2 cups of the water. Cover. Simmer about 1 hour or until meat is tender. Drain off fat if necessary. Combine cornstarch and the remaining water. Add to meat sauce, stirring quickly. Bring to boil. Simmer 1 minute. To serve, pour into center of corn bread ring. Cut ring in 6 pieces. Spoon sauce over top of each piece; serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

Mint 'n' Lime Dress Up Fruit Salad

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

A crisp and colorful fruit salad restores sagging interest in food, especially during warmer days. An added bonus to the flavor of fresh fruit is a zippy dressing, such as one mingling the flavors of mint and lime. The base is peanut oil, which does not add a taste of its own to a salad but clings evenly to ingredients.

When serving a fruit salad, chill ingredients first but always serve the salad dressing at room temperature. Make the fruit dressing at least a half-hour before serving to allow the seasonings to blend into the oil. Add the dressing at the last moment before serving.

FRUIT SALAD DRESSING
1/2 cup peanut oil
Juice of one average-size lime (about 1 1/2 oz.)

lime juice)
1/4 teaspoon grated lime rind
1 tablespoon honey (sugar may be used but honey is better)
2 teaspoons dried mint flakes
Dash salt

Blend oil, lime juice, grated lime rind, honey and salt. Crush or roll mint flakes with fingers and add to liquid mixture. Let stand at room temperature at least a half-hour before using to allow time for mint flavor to blend into mixture. Stir or shake briskly before serving. Pour over lettuce leaves topped with sliced favorite fruits in season: peaches, apples, berries, melons, pears. Also delicious over fruit salads to which a scoop of cottage cheese has been added. Makes two generous main dish salad servings.

Let the Cook Have a Vacation, Too

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Family camping takes many forms in all parts of the country. Some families go the tent-and-no-convenience route. Others drive mobile campers and pull in to campsites with electricity, recreation buildings and hot-and-cold showers. Whatever the choice, cooking continues to be the chore of a housewife really not on vacation when it comes to feeding appetites whetted by outdoor activities. Many women find the new cooking magic bags for roasting, boiling, freezing and reheating with little cleanup make the "vacation" job much easier.

COOKING MAGIC CHILI

4 cups water
1 teaspoon cumin
1 tablespoon onion flakes
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon all-spice
1/2 teaspoons red pepper
1 (6 oz.) can tomato paste
1 1/2 tablespoons vinegar
3 bay leaves
1 (15 oz.) can kidney beans
2 pounds ground chuck

Mix all ingredients except meat in a 12x18-inch cooking magic bag. Crumble in uncooked meat. Twist tie shut 2 inches from top. Place in a 13x9-inch baking pan. Puncture 5-6 small holes in top of bag. Bake 2 hours in preheated 350-degree oven. Cook. Skim off excess grease. Then freeze flat in 2 serving portions in 8x10-inch cooking magic bags for camping trip. Heat in boiling water, uncovered, for 25-30 minutes to serve.

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

1/4 pound fresh mushrooms, cleaned and sliced
5 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
5 tablespoons flour
2 cups chicken broth
1 cup light cream
Salt and pepper
2 cups diced or slivered, cooked chicken
1 package (8 oz.) thin spaghetti
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In a skillet lightly brown mushrooms in 1 tablespoon butter. Remove from skillet and reserve. Melt remaining butter in skillet. Stir in flour. Remove from heat and stir in chicken broth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Add cream. Season to taste. Divide sauce in half. Add chicken and mushrooms to one half. Meanwhile cook spaghetti to the firm stage according to package directions. Drain and stir in the other half of the sauce.

Place in 10x15-inch cooking magic bag in a 2-quart casserole. Turn top open in a double fold. Put spaghetti mixture into casserole. Make a hole in the center of the spaghetti and pour in the cooled chicken mixture. Twist bag close to top of food and secure with twister tie and freeze. To reheat, place bag in boiling water, uncovered, for 25-30 minutes until piping hot. Open bag, sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese and serve.

CHOCOLATE PUDDING

1 small box regular chocolate pudding

1 1/4 cups milk
1 cup miniature marshmallows

Place pudding in 8x10-inch cooking magic bag. Stir in milk. Twist tie shut. Shake contents well. Place in pan one half full of boiling water. Cover. Cook 5 minutes, remove bags with tongs, shake again. Place in boiling water, cook an additional 10 minutes. Remove bag with tongs, cool 1 minute. Open bag and stir in miniature marshmallows. Pour into bowl or pan and chill. Makes 4 servings.

Food Poisoning Is Summer Hazard

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Have fun during summer but watch your food. Food-poisoning microorganisms run riot during hot weather. That's the warning of Dr. Roy E. Morse of Rutgers University.

"Among summertime favorites are ham, chicken salad, egg dishes, ice cream and hollandaise sauce. If not handled properly these foods can carry threats to your health," he says.

CHINESE SUPPER
Jim Lee's Egg-Drop Soup

JIM LEE'S EGG-DROP SOUP

This recipe comes from "Jim Lee's Chinese Cook Book (Harper and Row), a delightful volume.

1 1/2 quarts chicken broth or clear soup stock
2 tablespoons cornstarch, mixed in 1/4 cup cold water
2 eggs, slightly beaten with a fork

2 scallions, chopped, including green ends
Bring soup stock to a boil. Slowly pour in the cornstarch mixture while stirring the stock, until the stock thickens. Reduce heat so stock just simmers. Pour in the eggs slowly while stirring the soup. As soon as the last bit of egg is in, shut off heat at once. Serve with chopped scallions on top. Serves 4.

left at room temperature for awhile or reheated without being made hot enough can cause diarrhea and abdominal cramps in humans. Sometimes vomiting. The symptoms take anywhere from eight to 24 hours to develop and last around eight hours.

"The food-poisoning organism is called Clostridium perfringens. It is the most common and is not deadly. The next most common are salmonella and staphylococcus. Both can be fatal to infants and the elderly. They can make other people violently ill," he states.

Staphylococcus is very much a summertime problem. Most popular foods can carry it.

"This 'church supper' bug causes sudden and severe abdominal cramps, vomiting and diarrhea. These symptoms develop in one to six hours after eating, for example, custard cream pie or potato salad. You will recover from them in six to eight hours. The trouble comes when food is left out of the refrigerator—as when people eat on the road or at picnics."

Salmonella is another very common bug. It, too, causes vomiting and diarrhea, together with chills and high fever. The incubation period is eight to 24 hours and the symptoms can last as long as two weeks.

"It is frequently found in poultry or in eggs or egg products. Incidentally, the name has nothing to do with salmon eating. It is named for Daniel E. Salmon, an American veterinarian.

"A characteristic of salmonella is that it is carried in the intestinal track by chickens and other animals including man. So there is quite a problem of reinfection," Dr. Morse adds.

Cooking food thoroughly will usually destroy salmonella. But where raw poultry is handled the germs can be passed to other foods that are not going to be cooked.

Above all, always wash your hands and utensils before preparing food.

Second point is to keep all foods refrigerated as long as possible before serving or cooking. Warm moist air is ideal for growing bugs.

Medical authorities advise against salt tablets during extremely hot weather.

A Glance At Red China Today

EDITOR'S NOTE—Wes Gallagher, president of The Associated Press, is in China to negotiate an exchange of news and photos with Hsinhua, the Chinese news agency. He filed these news Sunday.

By WES GALLAGHER
PEKING (AP)—Ousting of the Russian advisers from Egypt has been received with considerable satisfaction here.

Price Opposes Union Control Of Meat Law

WASHINGTON—Congressman Bob Price voted with a narrow majority in the Committee on Agriculture to accept a favorable report on meat and poultry inspection legislation.

"This law provides for an 80-20 cost sharing program, with the Federal government assuming 80 percent of the cost and the states 20 percent," Price said.

"We cannot allow vital programs such as these to fall by the wayside or allow improperly inspected meats to reach the marketplace."

Price charged, "Strongest opposition to the measure is coming from the Meat Cutters Union lobby which is working to unionize the small packing operations... a move which would virtually put the small operator out of business. The unions do not want strict Federal inspection of the product they are processing. I regard this as a hazard to the health of the consumer."

"In June I indicated that my opponent was stalling this legislation in his committee. This week he again attempted to keep this legislation from coming before the full committee by voting against it," Price asserted.

"This whole scheme of preventing passage of this legislation is aimed at ultimately causing the failure of the small plants, the destruction of state inspection programs and the federalization of the entire program."

Price said, "I must assume that his interests lie with the Meat Cutters Union rather than with the housewife who buys meat for the family table or the small businessman whose operations stabilize the economy of our rural areas."

as showing what happens to those receiving Soviet aid because of Soviet 'Socialist imperialism.'

The Chinese recall their own experience when they refused to bow to Soviet demands: Russia withdrew the technicians and help it had sent to China.

In conversations the Chinese emphasize what they consider the key difference in aid they provide other nations and the way the Russians provided aid. They say China wants to encourage Socialist revolution but that each country must develop its own kind of this and be independent, not joining any bloc.

The Soviets, in their eyes, provide aid only if it gives further Soviet control. They cite the Czechs in the Eastern Bloc as examples of the Soviet way.

China is a land of infinite contradictions and contrasts, defying generalizations or definitions—particularly by instant experts. Chinese officials repeatedly refer to this country as underdeveloped, but they concede there are basic differences between China and countries in other parts of Asia or in Africa.

China is far different, with a cultural history going back thousands of years, impressive universities, thousands of trained technicians, creative scientists, a massive disciplined work force.

American computer scientists from Yale and Carnegie-Mellon universities who are lecturing here say they have been surprised by Chinese advances in this field—that they are less than 18 months behind the United States in the most advanced computer theory and are rapidly closing this gap.

They add that the Chinese are farther behind in programming, peripheral equipment and mass-manufacturing techniques, but they believe the Chinese could build a single computer to suit any needed purpose.

The Chinese airline is very safe because it does not fly in 'thunderstorms around Peking or en route. Our party, en route from Canton to Peking, was grounded overnight at Chengchow, the capital of Honan province, because of storms.

One passenger said that in three flights to Peking he had never reached this city without one grounding. This is apparently due to a lack of equipment for ground-control approaches to the airport.

Chengchow offered a study in contrasts between modern jets and prewar biplanes or the workhorse C47 of the 1940s, still being used as a passenger plane.

Contrasts: traveling to a new petrochemical plant near Peking, one goes for miles through farming areas where farmers, labor with their hands as they have for centuries, using every inch of land. Backbreaking labor is done by immensely strong men and women carrying huge loads.

"We learned from your problems," said a plant leader, showing pollution-control devices for both water and smoke.

Water cleared of pollutants is used to irrigate rice paddies of the connected farm, and to provide tanks for ducks and carp.

A plant official was asked what each family wants, in order of priority. He replied: a bicycle that costs 110 yuan, a sewing machine for 120 and a watch for 100. The wage range is 30-100 yuan monthly.

The petrochemical plant is not far from the caves where Peking Man, dating back half a million years, was found. Scientists have resumed digging there. Three exhibition halls for ancient digging finds from all over China soon will be opened to the public.

Noted Texas Demos To Support Nixon While Youths To Back Sen. McGovern

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer
That strange, strangled noise you hear everywhere over the state is the sound of Texas Democrats trying to swallow George McGovern.

Some can, some can't. It reminds a lot of people of similar noises made by Texas Republicans back in 1968 when Richard Nixon picked "Spiro Who?" as his running mate instead of Texas John Tower or some other Southwesterner.

The Texas GOP lived over it but Nixon lost Texas by 39,000 votes.

Just a few days ago Texas Democrats were reveling in the thought that they had a newly reorganized party where there was room for everyone of every political temperament. The conservatives had George Wallace, the middle-of-the-roads had Hubert Humphrey and the liberals had McGovern.

Now it's McGovern or else. The former leader of Texas conservatives and moderates, John B. Connally, has returned from his foreign travels to devote full time, he says, to getting Nixon re-elected. Another former governor still prominent in politics, Allan Shivers, says he will choose Nixon again.

Gov. Preston Smith, who is a great believer in staying out of everyone's campaign except his own, says he has always voted Democratic and expects to this year, but he does not plan any active campaigning for the Democratic ticket.

And Dolph Briscoe, the Democratic nominee for governor who was a leader in the unsuccessful stop-McGovern drive at Miami Beach, indicates he will vote Democratic but give only token support to the party ticket. When asked how he stood on McGovern, Briscoe reminded newsmen in San Antonio that he made it clear before and during the Miami convention that he did not support McGovern or the platform that was adopted. He said he plans to spend most of his time this summer and fall "building a strong Democratic party in Texas...it's obvious we had very little influence in Miami...we've got to change that in the years ahead."

Former ambassador Ed Clark, close friend and political associate for years of former President Lyndon Johnson and also of former Sen. Ralph Yarborough, says he will break a 44-year voting habit to work for the re-election of Nixon and Tower. However, Clark told a news conference he would be "gently" surprised if Johnson supported Nixon.

"I will vote the ticket because it is essential to protect my constituents but I will not make one speech," said U.S. Rep. Ray Roberts, who was assistant state campaign manager for Adlai Stevenson in 1952 and 1956.

On the other hand, McGovern has some dedicated workers in Texas.

"I intend to be active in support of the party and its nominee," said Rep. Bob Eckhardt, Houston, the only Texas congressman so far who has said he will campaign for McGovern.

"I think it will be helpful for me to be so," Eckhardt said.

Women's liberation groups are still unhappy because McGovern did not support the bid of Frances Parnthorpe, Corpus Christi, for vice president.

Youth groups may be McGovern's strongest boosters in Texas. The University of Texas McGovern Campaign announced the other day it had 3,200 UT volunteers for McGovern that would "be at the service of any and all Democratic candidates who seek their support and actively support the national ticket."

So, McGovern appears unlikely to get either the wholehearted support or campaign financing of the Texas Democratic Party and many of its present and past leaders. Much of this apparently will go to Nixon through efforts of Connally, Shivers, Clark, et al.

However, there are new political forces at work, particularly the racial minorities, youth and women's groups, trying to sway Texas' historically large independent or middle-of-the-road voters.

There's an old political adage wins an election because no one was against him except voters.

This has been a topsy-turvy year in Texas politics — and it may not be over yet.

Today In History

On this date: In 1789, the U.S. Congress established the forerunner of the State Department, the Department of Foreign Affairs.

In 1909, Orville Wright set a record by staying aloft in an airplane for more than 1 hour and 12 minutes over Ft. Myer, Va.

In 1922, the United States formally recognized the countries of Albania, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

In 1954, Britain and Egypt agreed on terms ending 72 years of British control of the Suez Canal.

In 1955, Austria regained sovereignty after 17 years of occupation by foreign troops.

In 1960, a Republican National Convention in Chicago nominated Richard M. Nixon for President.

One year ago: The Sudan government announced that the leader of the Sudanese Communist party had been sentenced to death for his part in an attempt to overthrow the government.

Three Youths Get Degrees From TSTI

Three Pampa and one Perryton students are among 65 students receiving associate degrees from the Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo.

The degree exercises will be at 8 p.m. Aug. 4 in the TSTI chapel, according to Dr. J.N. Baker, TSTI vice president and general manager of the Amarillo, Mid-Continent Campus.

Pampa students are Dennis M. Hickey, drafting and design technology, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Max Hickey; Jack A. Rose, drafting and design technology, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rose; and Lindell Woodard, meat processing and marketing, son of Mrs. Lady Woodard.

Phillip Morgan of Perryton will receive an associate degree in commercial art and advertising.

The Mid-Continent Campus of TSTI was established in 1969 by the Texas Legislature and began classes in September, 1970.

Dear Abby

No time for mom after leaving the army

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My son was in Viet Nam for over a year, and when I heard he was coming home I started counting the hours.

Well, he came home, and guess where he went? Straight to his girl friend's house! I was so hurt I cried all night.

Abby, if you had a son and he did this to you, tell me, truthfully, how would you feel?

HURT MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I HAVE a son, and I can tell you truthfully, if my son had a girl waiting for him whom he couldn't wait to see, I'd not be hurt. I'd be grateful for his good fortune. [Many young men will not be coming home... and many others will not have girl friends waiting for them.]

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and my husband is 23. We have been married for two years and have no children.

My husband and I have come to the decision that we married too young, our marriage was a mistake, and we should go our separate ways. We have both gone for counseling, and there is no hard feeling between us, and I think we could probably still be friends after the divorce.

Our problem is how to tell our families. They knew we had been having our problems and had seen a marriage counselor, but they will be shocked when we tell them we have decided to split up. In fact, I'm afraid they might try to talk us out of it. We have grandparents on both sides who I'm sure would never understand it. If they ask us what happened or why we can't make a go of our marriage, what can we tell them?

This is the hardest part of breaking up. Can you help us?

HIS AND HERS

DEAR H AND H: The less explaining you try to do, the better. Simply tell them that you have decided to end your marriage. And if they press you for details, say, "We'd rather not discuss it." Period.

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office all day long and in the evenings I do income tax. I have a lot of calling to do in the evening, but I am on a four-party telephone line and I have a terrible time getting the line.

These other parties are home all day, so I think they should use the phone during the daytime and leave it free for me to use at night.

I tell them to get off the line so I can use it, but sometimes they don't do it. Don't you think I have the right to use the phone in the evenings since I am never here to use it during the day?

WORK TO DO

DEAR WORK: I think you deserve special consideration in the evenings because you never use the telephone during the day. But if you were to ASK them, instead of TELL them to get off the line, you'd probably have more luck.

DEAR ABBY: We've had a lot of trouble with our teenage son, and my next door neighbor keeps saying, "If he were MY kid I'd kick him out of the house."

Maybe my neighbor is right, but I just can't see it. How should I answer him if he says it again?

HEARTBROKEN DAD IN KANSAS CITY

DEAR DAD: Say, "If he were YOUR kid I'd probably kick him out of the house, but he's not YOUR kid, he's MINE."

Stitchin' Time

By JUDY LOVE

One of my friends is an expert knitter with literally hundreds of items to her knitting credit. She has brought up many bright little babies through bunting, bottle warmers, blankets and up into toddlers' knits. Her sweaters are famous in 17 states (all the granddaughters now are knitting, too.)

You know she's an expert—and this is her personal favorite fashion to knit. My friend is a stately size 16, and this particular dress is handsome in a larger size as well. That's why the instructions are written for size 12 up to size 18.

So here you are, the expert's choice—a grand-looking, go-everywhere dress you work in Bernat's Venetian Boucle. The dress is worked on a No. 8 circular needle; it's a whirl-along simple stockinette, with easy set-in sleeves, shaped shoulders and a smart tab detailing on the blouse front.

Instructions are clear and easy to follow, for both the novice knitter as well as those skilled in the art, just as my friend is. Incidentally, the waist has a beading inside, through which you run an elastic trimmed to size. This snugs the waistline ever so gently, giving the nubby stockinette an even smoother line throughout.

Get your instructions now, start to work, and when the first cooling breeze suggests fall, you'll be ready to meet the new season in a custom-styled, glorious handknit.

For directions, send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, c/o your local paper, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10019. Request leaflet S348, and be sure to include your name, address and zip code.

Safety Glass Offers Home Protection

COLLEGE STATION—Home designers and builders have made considerable progress in creating the illusion of spaciousness in smaller houses by using large areas of glass, said Mrs. Jane Berry, housing and home furnishings specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The glass visually extends interior areas beyond the walls of the house. Yet many question the value of the idea because of possible injury to children or other family members who might walk or fall through an unopened glass door.

The American Standard Association, the National Safety Council and several manufacturing groups are now studying the rising number of serious home injuries involving shattered glass.

Mrs. Berry said that at least one major glass company is waging its own campaign against accidents caused by shattering glass through the development of a new tempered safety glass for home use.

"The product looks like ordinary glass of the same thickness, but there's a big difference inside," the Texas A&M University employee said. "Not only is the tempered glass much stronger than conventional glass, but when broken it disintegrates into granular particles that minimize serious personal injury. So, homebuilders can now make use of the same safety glass which has been used in the automobile industry for years."

Reports from the safety glass industry indicate an increasing demand for tempered safety glass by individuals, manufacturers and agencies. For example, the Federal Housing Administration is so convinced of the benefits of safety glass that it now requires it in all sliding patio doors, shower stalls and in tub enclosures in houses financed under its loan insuring program.

The specialist said that building codes in many communities are being revised to include the use of tempered safety glass. The Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association is waging an active campaign for the exclusive use of safety glass. Members of the association manufacture about 70 percent of all aluminum sliding glass doors made in this country.

"Unlike ordinary glass, tempered safety glass can't be custom cut," Mrs. Berry said. "It's available in predetermined 'standard' sizes to accommodate windows and sliding doors. Odd size openings may be fitted with tempered safety glass by placing a special order. "Although somewhat more expensive than conventional glass, tempered safety glass offers 'priceless' protection for all family members."

Drycleaning Trend Told

COLLEGE STATION—Whether you're cleaning spacesuits or everyday fabrics, a new drycleaning substance has proven successful. In fact, it's expected to be the major drycleaning fluid in the U.S. by 1980.

Roxanne Schnorr, clothing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, named fluorocarbon as the solvent expected to improve drycleaning performance.

"Fluorocarbons boast gentleness, low drying temperatures and short drying times," Miss Schnorr said.

The Texas A&M University specialist explained that bonded fabrics, knits, wet-look garments, suedes and leathers are particularly sensitive to heat and cleaning power in solvents now used. Perchloroethylene, the most widely used solvent, is aggressive; petroleum-based substances, which rank second in use, are relatively gentle but require high drying temperatures.

"Fluorocarbons, on the other hand, cleaned astronauts' spacesuits of all soil without damage," she pointed out. "And in a study conducted by the National Institute of Drycleaning, all of 500 difficult-to-clean bonded knits came out spot-free and undamaged when cleaned with fluorocarbons."

Miss Schnorr said that fluorocarbons also eliminate color sorting of garments and keep spotting to a minimum. The solvent in coin-operated machines cuts washing time in half.

"In terms of flammability and toxicity," she added, "fluorocarbons are safest of all cleaning solvents, though they still require proper ventilation. They emit one-fifth the solvent vapor to air as those now used."

High Fashion Makes Elite Clientele Happy

PARIS (AP)— "Would you wear costume jewelry if you can go to Harry Winston?"

Marc Bohan, designer for the Dior house of fashion, asks the rhetorical question, dropping the name of the man who sells diamonds.

The question is really an answer — to all those nasty rumors that high fashion is disappearing.

Next week the Paris houses show their fall collections. All the couturiers reason that it's still better to wear beautiful clothes that fit than funny ones that don't.

"Why shouldn't a rich woman spend her money?" demands Pierre Cardin. "Putting it in the bank is dishonest."

"The couture isn't dead. It just looks different. If there were only popular things in life, it would be total ennui. A beautiful car is as good as a sculpture from a moral point of view."

Who is the couture client?

She may have more money, but she's "a woman like any other," say the designers. In her 30s, pretty, with children, she doesn't go out of her way to damage her husband's career. "If your wife shows up at a business dinner with 1945 curls and perched on high heels with her derriere sticking out behind, you won't do much business," says Hubert de Givenchy.

"There will always be rich and poor," he admits. His prize clients snatch up 100 dresses at a time for their various residences.

"If clothes don't make the woman, at least they make her happy. Personally I feel happier in a well-cut suit than if my pants are tight and I can't move my shoulders."

The French woman is no longer the best dressed of them all, the couturiers agree. Thanks to the airplane, she is now merely the hardest to satisfy.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

FRIDAY, JULY 28

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: You are either your best friend or worst rival this year. External factors are not always in exact step with your reactions. Relationships are recast in accord with your spiritual progress. Today's natives often enjoy physical strength, personal leadership, admiration from people of less drive.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: See for yourself before responding to a dramatic story. Much of today's action is a matter of adjusting the old rather than creating the new.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Expect relatively less demand on your energy, share good humor with friends while retaining your momentum. Go visiting.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Your watchfulness must include intangibles as well as surface appearances. Closing out the weekly cycle is more of a change than usual.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: Technical advice is needed for any serious transaction. Personal possessions may increase, perhaps not of your own initiative.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Indecision has its uses—today is not the time to begin new projects. Group financial affairs should be evaluated, probably revision.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]:

Cooperative ventures work out better than solitary efforts. Be sociable, take advantage of any chance for travel, even brief errands.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Accept a slow start and considerable investment of extra-time and energy—others will join in once you have made the initial opening.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Previous plans turn out inexact, so revise where you go, to admit longer time with younger people. A "vacation" from trying is in order.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Now is the time to let life be a simple skin of events, and enjoy them. Explore the delicate nuances in your relationships.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Your patience overcoming an early sense of incomplete arrangements makes for a reasonable, conservative sort of day.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Under less pressure, you tend to relax, and so doing, intuition works more clearly. Seeing a fresh view needn't provoke an immediate reaction.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You are free to make an early start, get clear of chores and get some extra recreation time for yourself. Quit early.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Sand Dollar's Odor Creates Smelly Problem

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—I do hope some reader can tell me how to remove the brown fuzz from a sand dollar that a friend gave me. I would also like to get rid of the bad odor this shell has.—L. R. C.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with those parents who calmly rock on their front porches while their children are whooping and hollering in the streets, making so much noise their neighbors cannot even hear themselves inside their own homes.—AGNES

DEAR POLLY—I have help for Vera, whose dry cleaner has refused to clean her smocked satin pillows that are filled with shredded foam. Open up a little of the pillow's seam and, if the foam is loose and not in another ticking, she should make one of the needed size and fill it with the foam as it is removed from the satin cover. The satin cover can then be sent to the cleaners, or some may take to a washing with a mild soap solution. When dry or cleaned, put the new filled casing inside the satin one and sew the seam together with tiny hand stitches. Next time the pillow needs cleaning the job will be easy.—IDA

DEAR POLLY—I have a great way to save drawer space taken up by bulky scarves, mittens and hats. Empty coat or jacket pockets of anything that may have accumulated there and put the matching gloves or mittens in the pockets, hang the scarf over the bar on the coat hanger and use a clothespin to attach the hat or cap to the bar. If pockets are too small for the mittens they, too, can be attached to the bar with a clothespin. This works during the season when the things are being worn as well as when they are stored away for the summer months. Only takes a minute to do and any hunting for lost items is eliminated.—PATTI

DEAR POLLY—To restore a shine to chintz draperies and bedspreads that have lost their luster, iron them with the right side down on a sheet of waxed paper. Change the paper as soon as the wax is all transferred to the fabric.—MRS. R. L.

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite homemaking idea, Pet Peeve, Polly's Problem or solution to a problem. Write Polly in care of this newspaper.

BETTY CANARY

Happiest People Are the Starters

By BETTY CANARY

It seems to me the most successful, the happiest people, are those who are always at a beginning.

As an example, an author doesn't like rehashing the last novel. While interviewers ask about symbolism and plot of the last work, the author attempts to turn aside the questions with remarks about how he is now involved with another book.

He is willing to let readers read and draw their own conclusions as to what he was attempting in the last one. A successful architect will agree, yes, he's happy about the way the town's library turned out but his firm just got the contract for the new county building and he wants to tell you about that project!

Apparently, those who are successful at living are constantly looking forward, not continually looking backward. What matters is they are charting for the future.

Age doesn't seem to be a relevant factor. You meet a man in his 70s who prefers talking about tomorrow rather than spend time filling you in on what you missed by not living, as he did, in the yesterday years.

You'll meet those who are in their 30s who seem to preface every sentence with, "When I was a boy," or "When I was a young girl." And, those who are pre-occupied with yesterday never seem to notice that others who are twice the age are filled with enthusiasm for tomorrow. Are excited about next week's club meeting or the pre-school art group they are starting to organize next fall, or the vacation they are planning for next winter.

Some look at the calendar and think, "Only one more page and it's August, the next page brings September and chrysanthemum time!" Others see a calendar as a closed book.

The amount of water in the atmosphere above a square mile of land on a mild summer day is estimated to be 50,000 tons.

The American Heart Association says that more than 25,000 infants are born annually with congenital anomalies.

Opening lead—♦ 2

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a very unusual hand taken from the Bridge Philosopher.

We have a strong feeling that Jim Kauder made this one up. There is East with one jack finding a chance to collect two tricks against three no-trump, but using his deuce of hearts to refuse both of them.

We hold no brief for West's diamond opening except to point out that if he leads his jack of clubs South will romp home with his contract.

Anyway, West does lead the deuce of diamonds. Dummy wins. The ace of spades is cashed and a club to South's queen loses to West's ace. A second diamond is led. The king of clubs is cashed and South has to abandon that suit.

He plays out his ace-king-queen and three of hearts.

If East wins that heart trick he can cash two heart tricks, but must give South the rest of the tricks in spades. If East has hung onto his deuce of hearts he lets the three-spot hold. The spade suit is shut out and West sets the hand by taking the last four tricks.

OUT OF MY WAY—Rodeo clowns, aside from pleasing crowds with their wild antics in the arena, are responsible for luring irate bulls from fallen riders. Many a clown, or bullfighter as he might more appropriately be termed, has taken the brunt of an attack and suffered physical injury while making it possible for the rider to escape unharmed. Here the Kajun Kidd rushes in to distract the bull and protect an unlucky rider. The Kajun Kidd will be appearing nightly at the Top O' Texas Rodeo August 2-5.

WWII Veterans To Converge On Virginia For 25th Reunion

The largest number of ex-GI's of the Fighting 69th Infantry Division: the 661st Tank Destroyer Battalion and the 777th Tank Battalion of World War II to ever assemble are expected in Virginia Beach, Va., for the 25th reunion.

Held Aug. 17-20 at the Lake Wright Motor Hotel, it will be the annual get-together of the association of former soldiers who served in the United States, England, Belgium, France and Germany with the outfits.

The fighting 69th and the other two battalions made history in 1945 when they raced across Germany after the break-through of the Siegfried defenses and crossed the Rhine River on the Victory Bridge.

They then drove on to the Elbe River at Torgau. They became the first to link up with the Russian 58th Guard Division and split the German Army in half on April 25, 1945, helping to assure victory for the Allied forces.

The four-day meeting in Virginia Beach will begin with a family-type celebration on Thursday night at an "early bird" dinner. Friday the group will tour the Fort Storey area in Norfolk and be treated to a cruise of the bay and ocean area via a troop carrier type of landing craft, the Lark.

On Saturday more tours and meetings and socials will be conducted. The reunion will be capped off with a social hour Saturday night, followed by dinner and dancing.

The reunions are held to conduct memorial services for "buddies" lost in action, to provide fellowship and to nurture the friendships formed during the war and under battle conditions.

The association also provides scholarships for sons and daughters of members of the battalions.

The list was issued by Dean Stanley N. Werbow.

The St. Paul Companies made a presentation to Duncan Insurance Agency, 115 E. Kingsmill, in recognition of 25 years representation of Cravens Dargan and Co. and St. Paul.

The presentation was made July 25 by Wildon Talley and Lee Hill, representatives of St. Paul.

Duncan Insurance Agency was founded in 1917 by Ivy Duncan. His two sons, Kirk and Ray, came into the agency in 1947.

Kirk and Ray are both past presidents of the Pampa Insurance Exchange.

About 180,000 participated in a Jesus music festival held in conjunction with the training sessions.

TORONTO (AP) — Young Alexander Bryant McKecknie of Toronto sleeps in a cradle with an interesting history. About 25 years ago during a trip through Quebec, his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Hide Exports Price Says Ruling Unfair to Rancher

Congressman Bob Price charged today that the decision by the U.S. Department of Commerce to restrict the export of beef hides is "totally unjustified."

"The cattleman has never been subsidized and he should not be penalized by the arbitrary actions of a bunch of government bureaucrats," Price said in Washington.

"This action by the Department of Commerce is a repeat performance of earlier moves to curtail hide exports," he said. "The effect of this will force American beef producers to further subsidize the special interests of the shoe industry."

Price described the action on hide exports as being not only detrimental to the cattle industry, but that it would also have the further effect of worsening this nation's balance of payments deficit which is already in a serious position.

"All should recall a few short years ago when the same cries for an embargo on cattle hides were heard from the shoe manufacturers, who threatened at that time to raise the price of shoes," Price said. "The embargo was granted and shoe prices went up just the same."

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE, PH.D., M.D.

Was Terry's sex operation a noble example? Or did it reflect a subconscious evidence of feminine dominance? We shouldn't limit the survival of the fit but only of the "unfit." The latter are a military liability! So read this case carefully!

CASE U-546: Terry Z., aged 52, is an unusual sex case.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I have two daughters.

"Both have been married a little over a year and each has a new baby.

"But I figure they don't want too large a family.

"So a month ago I submitted to a vasectomy operation myself, just to let my two sons-in-law see that it is a simple bit of surgery, not to be feared.

"My wife is 50, so she wasn't worried about another pregnancy, but we both wanted to give our daughters some ammunition to use on their husbands.

"Dr. Crane, what do you think of my action?"

NOBLE GESTURE
Maybe it should be called a "noble gesture."

But could it also be an indirect evidence of a patriarchal dominance in Terry's family? He is a college professor.

And his daughters have a high I.Q., so it should be several years before their husbands would normally be thinking of a vasectomy.

For we need BIGGER families among the normal American stock, that is healthy.

intelligent and not on welfare! The vasectomy method, as well as the "Pill" and intra-uterine devices to prevent conception, need to be disseminated among the feeble-minded and the unwed mothers whose ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) is breaking the backs of you hard working taxpayers.

India, China and Russia should be urged to popularize vasectomies and all other anti-conception devices.

But until intelligent couples have at least 3 or 4 children, they should not be reneging on their patriotic duty to furnish manpower and womanpower to defend this wonderful Republic!

Devices to reduce our intelligent population, are this subversive and ultimately eroding the population segment on which we must depend both for military troops, plus taxes to support the coddled indolent.

Remember, modern civilized nations now exempt the feeble-minded from war!

They are too dull to pass the "screening" tests!

We also don't let them starve as they did during the previous centuries of war, famines and pestilence.

Indeed, we even furnish free insulin and other medicines to nurture the weak welfare cases to the mid-teens, where they can then start breeding new herds of defectives, even without benefit of previous wedding ceremonies.

At present, about 10 per cent of our total U.S. population is so low in I.Q. that it is a drain on Uncle Sam's financial health.

Pampa Stars Out Of Tourney

SAN ANTONIO—Pampa's Babe Ruth all-stars were defeated by Levelland yesterday 12-7 in the Babe Ruth state tournament.

The loss, coupled with Tuesday's defeat at the hands of Brownfield, 6-3, knocked Pampa out of the tourney.

Levelland got three runs on three hits in the first inning. Pampa scored a run in the third to make the score 3-1. Levelland came back in the bottom of that frame to again gain a three run advantage.

Pampa scored two runs in the fourth to close the gap 4-3. But the Levelland crew scored two runs in the bottom of the frame to maintain its three run advantage.

Pampa's Tyler Drennan gave the home team a momentary lead when he socked a grand slam home run in the top of the fifth. The 7-4 one run margin that his shot provided was the only lead that Pampa ever had in the game.

Levelland got back into the lead 10-7 in the bottom of the fifth and added its final two runs in the bottom of the sixth.

Greg Beck relieved Clyde Patrick at the end of three and was charged with the loss as Pampa led at one time when he was on the mound.

Beck was relieved by Roy Morris with Pampa trailing by a one run margin, 8-7.

The lead-off batter for Levelland got on in each of the first five innings. Levelland will play again today in the double elimination tourney.

er. West a defensive back and Jones a running back who helped the Minnesota Vikings win the Central Division title in the National Football Conference last season.

Now they are negotiating for new contracts as free agents and were missing Wednesday when the Vikings opened camp at Mankato, Minn.

Jim Finks, general manager of the Vikings, said he had rejected this new wrinkle in pro football by the trio and had started trade talks with the other NFL clubs.

"They informed me that none of them would sign until all three were satisfied with their contracts," Finks said. "If two out of the three were satisfied and the third wasn't then none of them would sign. They would not negotiate on an individual basis."

"I told them I couldn't accept those terms because I felt they were not good for the Vikings and I thought it was a very, very bad precedent to establish," Finks continued.

Another free agent, wide receiver John Henderson, also has not yet signed a contract with the Vikings, but he is negotiating on an individual basis.

While the Washington-West-Jones One for All and All for One method of negotiating is new to pro football, there is a precedent for it in major league baseball. In 1966, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, ace pitchers for the Los Angeles Dodgers, agreed not to sign until both were satisfied.

Mahan And Thomas Respect Each Other

MUENSTER, Tex. (AP) — You couldn't push Larry Mahan on a football field with a bulldozer. Bill Thomas wouldn't ride a brahma bull if he had to run over 22 linebackers.

Mahan, five-times world champion rodeo star, and Thomas, No. 1 draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys, admire each other from their respective hospital beds at Muenster Memorial Hospital — victims of the sport they love.

"Listen, there's no way you could get me to play a rough sport like football," said Mahan, his arm in a cast from a torn biceps tendon. "You only have to deal with one bull at a time in rodeo ... in football you have 11 charging at you."

"I'd rather have 22 guys coming at me than a Brahma bull," said Thomas. "Walter Garrison (Cowboy teammate) must be crazy to rodeo in the off-season after Larry told me how many times he had been injured. I do believe there's no way I'm ever going to try that."

Thomas and Mahan underwent surgery Tuesday. Dr. Marvin Knight, the team physician of the Dallas Cowboys performed the operations.

"Bill comes by my room periodically and we laugh about our predicament," Mahan said. "They are going to have to change the name of this hospital to the Dallas Cowboy Hospital or the Cowboy Hospital or something ..."

Thomas' surgery removed a staple from his shoulder which had torn loose from a previous operation. Thomas also has suffered a broken toe playing football besides his shoulders injuries.

Mahan's injury list reads like a medical journal — broken foot, broken ankle, broken leg, broken vertebrae, broken ribs, and broken jaw.

"I've had a lot of broken bones but I guess the worst incident was in 1961 when a bull stepped on my jaw and broke it in six places," Mahan said. "My mouth was wired shut for six months."

"So far the top of my head is unscathed but my hair is thinning ... I guess that's from worrying about having to ride the bulls. But really — I've been lucky. I ride some 500 to 600 head of stock each year. The law of averages are going to catch you every now and then."

Mahan said, "I feel sorry for Bill because he's just getting started and the wasted time will hurt him this year. It won't hurt me as bad because I'm established. I figured it up and the injury will cost me about $40,000 before I'm ready to go again in October."

Thomas was injured at the Cowboy Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp during a dummy blocking drill.

"I'm just going to have to work that much harder now when I return," Thomas said. "The doctor said I should be able to run in about two or three weeks."

Mahan was injured riding a Brahma at the Frontier Days Rodeo in Cheyenne, Wyo., last Saturday.

"I'd sure like to make that bull an offer he can't refuse and make some hamburger out of him," Mahan said.

Mahan added, "Football is the toughest game going ... There's danger on every snap of the ball ... and from different directions."

Thomas added, "Larry, you're crazy to go out there with all those wild animals."

Workmen Prepare Greek Olympic Site

OLYMPIA, Greece (AP) — Workmen today prepared this site of the ancient Olympic Games to recreate the look it bore thousands of years ago when young Greek athletes honored the gods Zeus and Apollo.

Those early scenes will be reenacted Friday when the Olympic Torch is kindled by the sun at Olympia's sacred altar to be carried by relay runners to Munich, Germany for the 1972 Summer Games.

Officials of the West German Olympic Organizing Committee will join their Greek Colleagues at the torch lighting pageant. It is performed every four years for the winter and summer Olympics at this site in southern Greece.

Greek athletes will run a kilometer each with the torch through almost every corner of the country. The relay runners will have covered a total distance of 1,861 kilometers before handing over the flame to Turkish Olympic Committee members Aug. 6 on a bridge that spans the Evros River between Greece and Turkey.

San Diego Is Probable Choice For ABA Team

NEW YORK (AP) — San Diego, a flop as the site of a National Basketball Association franchise, appeared the leading candidate today for an American Basketball Association team.

Bob Carlson, a New York attorney named the ABA's commissioner Wednesday succeeding Jack Dolph, said at a news conference that the young league would add one team for next season and become a 10-team group.

Only last month, the ABA dropped its Pittsburgh and Florida franchises because both were experiencing financial difficulties.

The 47-year-old Carlson did not say that San Diego would get the new franchise, ahead of Minneapolis, which also is in the bidding. But several sources indicated that San Diego would win out.

"I'm sure San Diego is in," said one team official not at the meeting. "But I guess they didn't want to detract from the announcement of Bob so they held off announcing it."

"We'll have an announcement on expansion soon, possibly within a week," said Carlson.

Asked about San Diego, he said, "I can't comment now. I don't want to pull a gaffer my first day on the job."

But Peter Graham, operator of the San Diego Sports Arena, was quoted as saying he had been told by ABA officials following a league meeting in Chicago Tuesday that the franchise was awarded to Leonard Bloom, a San Diego dentist.

San Diego was the home of the NBA's Rockets until last season, when the franchise was shifted to Houston.

Carlson, the unanimous choice of the league's Board of Trustees to replace Dolph, who quit last month for personal reasons, said he was resigned to the fact he would be a temporary commissioner.

"I am well aware that Walter Kennedy (NBA commissioner) will take over when the merger is affected," said Carlson. "I hope there will be a merger within a year, but maybe it won't be for three, four or 10 years."

"I will serve as long as the league needs me."

Carlson's salary was not disclosed, but it was learned that he will receive at least $100,000 a year.

A hearing on the merger bill is scheduled today before a House Judiciary Committee.

"With the elections so close and the politicians so busy, it is unrealistic to hope for a merger vote before this season," said the new commissioner, a graduate of Harvard and the Harvard Law School.

Will All-Stars Use Triple-Option Play?

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are counting on seeing an offense similar to the Triple-Option when they tackle the College All-Stars Friday night in Chicago.

"We expect to see some option plays which is something a pro team doesn't come up against very often," said Coach Tom Landry of the World Champion Cowboys. "This could give us some trouble, and we've been working on it this week."

Landry said "I think bringing in Bob Devaney and his staff will make the All-Stars difficult to beat. They have the two Nebraska quarterbacks, Jerry Tagge and Van Brownson, to run their attack. I'm sure the familiarity they have with Devaney's system eased the preparation problems you always have with an All-Star team."

Landry said "We don't intend to lose this one. There's always a certain amount of pride involved when the NFL champion meets the All-Stars."

"This is the best-conditioned pro team I've seen. Our players have become firm believers in the off-season conditioning program, and you can see the results."

Nicklaus Hopeful For PGA Tourney

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Already out of one tournament because of an infected finger, professional golfer Jack Nicklaus remained hopeful that he would be able to defend his PGA national championship at Birmingham, Mich., next week.

Nicklaus, scheduled to be released from University hospital today, said he surely would have missed the PGA had he not agreed to surgery on the swollen right forefinger.

"The doctors told me that if I had not undergone the operation, I would have been out of action for at least two weeks," said the winner of the U.S. Open and Masters tournaments.

The infection forced Nicklaus to withdraw from the $200,000 PGA Team Championship Tournament starting today at Ligonier, Pa.

"I had hoped, right up to the last minute, that I could play with Arnold Palmer in the team championship," Nicklaus said.

He and Palmer have won the best-ball event three times, including the last two.

Palmer picked Jack Lewis, a 25-year-old pro from Florence, S.C., to replace Nicklaus as his partner in the tournament.

Baseball Roundup

By Associated Press

With the All-Star Game break completed, the regular major league baseball schedule resumes tonight.

Pittsburgh's defending champion Pirates will be trying to klayo the New York Mets in tonight's only showdown between a divisional leader and runner-up. And the Chicago Cubs, under new manager Whitey Lockman, will be trying to catch them both.

Meanwhile, C. C. Cedeno of Houston and Ric Scheinblum of Kansas City, surprise pacesetters in the batting races, will try and retain their leads.

And Hank Aaron, who thrilled the hometown crowd in Atlanta Tuesday night with a two-run homer in the National League's 10-inning 4-3 All-Star victory over the Americans, will be resuming his relentless pursuit of Babe Ruth's home run record.

The regular-season action resumes tonight with 16 games, including four two-night doubleheaders. One has the Mets at Pittsburgh, where the Pirates own a 5½-game lead in the National League East.

"They're big games, but they're still not the kind you absolutely have to win," said Pirates Manager Bill Virdon. "Of course, if we do win, it's going to make things a hell of a lot easier."

The Mets, meanwhile, still plagued with injuries, have won three of their four games against Pittsburgh this year—but they lost eight of their 12 games prior to the All-Star break.

In the National League West, the Cincinnati Reds, having won 10 of their last 12 games, have a six-game lead over Houston, losers of seven of their last 10.

And in the American League, the Oakland A's hold a 6½-game edge over the Chicago White Sox in the West, while in the East, the Detroit Tigers are only one game ahead of the Baltimore Orioles, with the Boston Red Sox just four games further back.

In the National League East, behind the Pirates and Mets, tied with St. Louis for third, 10 games off the pace, are the Cubs, who lost Manager Leo Durocher during the All-Star break.

The fiery, opinionated Durocher who had piloted the team since 1966 and had weathered waves of grumbling by some players last year and earlier this season, stepped down Monday night and was succeeded by the 46-year-old Lockman, who had played under Durocher of the old New York Giants.

"Our managing styles probably are different," Lockman said Wednesday in his first news conference, "but I played under him for 7½ years and I'm sure some of the things he incorporated, I'll use."

Tagge's Reputation At Stake On Friday

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Tagge's reputation as a winning quarterback will be at stake Friday night when the College All-Stars face the Dallas Cowboys in Soldier Field.

Coach Bob Devaney Wednesday named Tagge, who guided Devaney's Nebraska team to two successive national championships, as the starting quarterback.

The All-Stars held controlled scrimmages against the Chicago Bears and the St. Louis Cardinals, and it was Tagge who directed them to two 6-0 victories.

Earlier in the week, Coach Bob Blackman of Illinois asked Coach Alex Agase of Northwestern how the All-Stars sized up since their training camp is at Northwestern.

"Don't sell them short," said Agase. "I never realized Tagge was such a good passer. In fact, I have yet to see him throw a bad pass. He's a winner."

Tagge will have to be a winner if the All-Stars, rated underdogs by at least 17 points, hope to upset the Cowboys in the nationally televised game (ABC-9:30 p.m. EDT).

While the collegials appear strong on offense, injuries have whittled down the defense which has the awesome task of stopping the National Football League's No. 1 offense.

Injuries will sideline defensive back Clarence Ellis of Notre Dame, while another defensive back, Craig Clemons of Iowa, has been hampered by muscle spasms in the back.

Up front, the All-Stars will have to play without injured Walt Patulski of Notre Dame and Herb Orvis of Colorado.

On offense they have Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan of Auburn and Van Brownson of Nebraska behind Tagge at quarterback.

The top passing targets will be Bobby Moore of Oregon and Glenn Douglas of Michigan, with Franco Harris and Lydell Mitchell of Penn State, Bob Newhouse of Houston and Jim Bertelsen of Texas carrying the running game.

SHAVING STROKES

73—Don't Copy Pros' Equipment

The average players I see try to copy the pros too much in buying clubs and balls.

My clubs are too heavy and too stiff for the weekend golfer. He needs a light swingweight and a shaft that isn't stiff, so he can get the club through the ball better with better feel.

A lower-compression ball is best for an average player, even if it doesn't go quite as far. It sounds and feels enough better to help your scoring.

Also, consistency is the real crux of ball selection, not distance. I want a ball that will go 155 yards on every 7-iron shot, not one that goes 155 one time and 165 the next. I'll take consistency over distance any day.

Black Bullrider Just Trying To Become Known As Best

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — "The thing I don't like about this bull riding," said Myrtis Dightman, bucking on a pair of mean-looking spurs, "is that first you have to get on that damned bull."

But getting aboard dangerous Brahma bulls in more than 80 rodeos this year is the only way Dightman can become the best bullrider in the world—instead of being just the best black bullrider.

"I admit it, I'm scared to death every time I get on," he said. "Some people love it. I dread it."

Dightman, 35, of Crockett, Tex., isn't the first black cowboy to hit the pro circuit.

In 1960, when he started, he was relatively unknown, but talented. Now, he's a real veteran since most riders are in their early 20s.

He's been inconsistent, finishing third in the 1967 world competition, totaling 16,014 points. He was fourth in 1968, then fell from the top five the next two years, and out of the top 15 last year.

But during the Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo this week he showed signs of regaining his old form.

He carefully prepared for a ride, bandaging, testing and adjusting. Under his jeans he wore a woman's girdle to help ease an old hip injury. He wrapped his right knee and right elbow in elastic bandages, and taped his wrists.

When his bull came out, Dightman was ready, staying on even when the big animal hurled himself into the air and then tumbled to the ground. When the bull regained his feet, Dightman was spurring. He scored a fairly good 63 points. The judges could have given him a ride because the animal fell.

"I figure the odds were with me with the 63 points," he said. "I could have taken a ride and bucked off—or scored lower. When I ride again this go-round, I might score a 70. That'll put me in the money."

"I ride bulls because I know them. It beats working because there's no 'boss man' except the bull. For a while, I was a rodeo clown and bullfighter."

"Since I've started I've never had a broken bone. But I figure my time's coming," Dightman said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Education-Military Tie

A question frequently asked is, how do you go about establishing an all-volunteer service?

The answer most frequently heard is to increase the pay. Other incentives to attract enlistees are mentioned, such as better living conditions and better career opportunities within the Army, but most of the talk is about better pay.

A recent study by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research (ISR) indicates that another incentive may have greater appeal than money to many young men pondering military service—the guarantee of four years of paid schooling in return for four years of service.

"Perhaps most important are the difference in the kinds of young men attracted by the two incentives," says Jerome Johnson and Jerald Bachman, the study's directors. They report that when higher pay as an incentive was contrasted with paid schooling, those attracted by paid schooling averaged higher in intelligence, verbal skills, occupational ambitions and self-esteem.

The ISR study is part of a larger "Youth in Transition" research effort begun in 1966, which has been investigating young men's attitudes, plans and behaviors, particularly those related to educational and occupational choices.

According to the latest survey data, college-bound high school graduates "are not strongly motivated by immediate monetary needs in the way that the job-bound are. Of greater interest to the college-bound are those aspects of self-development which are associated with advanced education and the opportunities it opens up for the individual."

Johnson and Bachman thus conclude that to attract the college-bound, the military must offer either more in the way of educational alternatives or more assistance to individuals to pursue education on their own.

An all-volunteer force concentrating entirely on the pay incentive, they believe, "might tend to attract those slightly lower in ability and aspirations than the men presently serving."

The use of an educational incentive, on the other hand, would not only have advantages for the military but "would have almost entirely positive byproducts throughout the civilian society."

They propose an approach which involves both an enlarged GI bill and the use of savings from military pay, made possible by the recent pay increases in the armed services.

Under the plan, a young man could serve four years and receive up to $16,000 to cover tuition and living expenses during four years of college. Alternatively, he could (after formally enlisting) take his four years of paid education first and then serve four years of active duty.

As for the fear that an all-volunteer Army might make it easier for the nation to become involved in more "Vietnams," the authors note that, it became a more and more negative factor in enlistment decisions—a disincentive.

They consider it more likely that the supply of volunteers would be threatened by other military involvements resembling the one in Vietnam and cautiously suggest that "it thus seems at least a possibility that reliance on an all-volunteer force would actually tend to discourage large-scale military adventures in the future."

Classics Classy Again

The classics are staging a comeback in at least one university.

According to the Stanford Observer, undergraduate enrollment in the school's classics department has more than doubled in the past four years. A difference has also been noted in the kinds of students attracted to Latin and those who prefer Greek.

"The students who take Latin courses are mostly interested in the Western literary experience," says Professor William Berg. "The Greek courses have always had a relatively heavy enrollment that included campus radicals with an interest in Plato."

That's what radical means—"proceeding from the roots." And Plato, it will be recalled, was no believer in democracy.

BATTIN' AROUND

Question Is Raised By Secret Plan

By C.R. BATTEN

It would probably be incorrect to say that the federal government has only been interested in what we citizens do in our spare time for the last 15 years or so. After all, our first national park was established just 100 years ago, and eight years earlier, Yosemite Valley had been transferred to California as a pleasuring ground for its people.

But the modern-day federal interest in our recreation habits accelerated during the 1950's, when more leisure time and increased mobility contributed to the overcrowding of campgrounds and other outdoor recreation areas.

In 1958 the Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission was established by Congress. After a four-year study, the commission recommended, among other things, that a Bureau of Outdoor Recreation be established, to coordinate recreation activities of various agencies and levels of government, and to prepare a national recreation plan.

The organic act creating the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and defining its responsibilities became effective in 1963. The new bureau began work on a National Recreation Plan which was to have been published in 1968. The plan was completed at a cost of $6.8 million and set in type—but it was never submitted to Congress or the public.

Believing that the earlier recreation plan might contain information that would be useful in its study, and help avoid duplication of effort, the Conservation Foundation asked the Department of Interior for a copy of the Nationwide Outdoor Recreation Plan. It was told that the plan would not be made available, because it is a "working paper."

Divided parties don't usually fare well at the polls. O'Brien is by nature a unifier. That's how he got the national chairman's job in the first place. His only enemies are new left ideologues.

But McGovern isn't looking to them for election help. He's in the hard game now. He humbled himself to nail O'Brien because, despite a brief lapse, he knows a hard player when he sees one.

Then on Sunday in Washington, McGovern started looking again for O'Brien. He found him packing up at the National Committee offices. He asked if he might come to the ex-chairman's apartment that evening, and O'Brien agreed.

McGovern showed up there at 10:30 p.m., accompanied only by Secret Service agents. Mrs. O'Brien met him at the door. The two men talked for two hours, just as they had in Florida.

Only this time it was different. McGovern said over and over that he had made a serious mistake in letting O'Brien get away, and particularly in permitting his staff to veto his own decision.

What impressed O'Brien most was McGovern's evident capacity for quick, almost brutal re-evaluation. Not only was he candidly self-critical, but he laid it on his own staff hard for not seeing the folly in interposing a veto on his decision.

Hearing that, O'Brien found it wholly believable when the senator that night offered him the job of "national campaign chairman," a post independent of the National Committee, with the double function of prime personal political consultant and chief liaison man with key (and presently disaffected) parts of the Democratic establishment.

No decision was reached in O'Brien's Sheraton Park apartment. But in the next 48 hours McGovern kept the heat on. An O'Brien aide estimates that the senator called him between 15 and 20 times in that period from Washington and later from South Dakota. The question was always substantially the same:

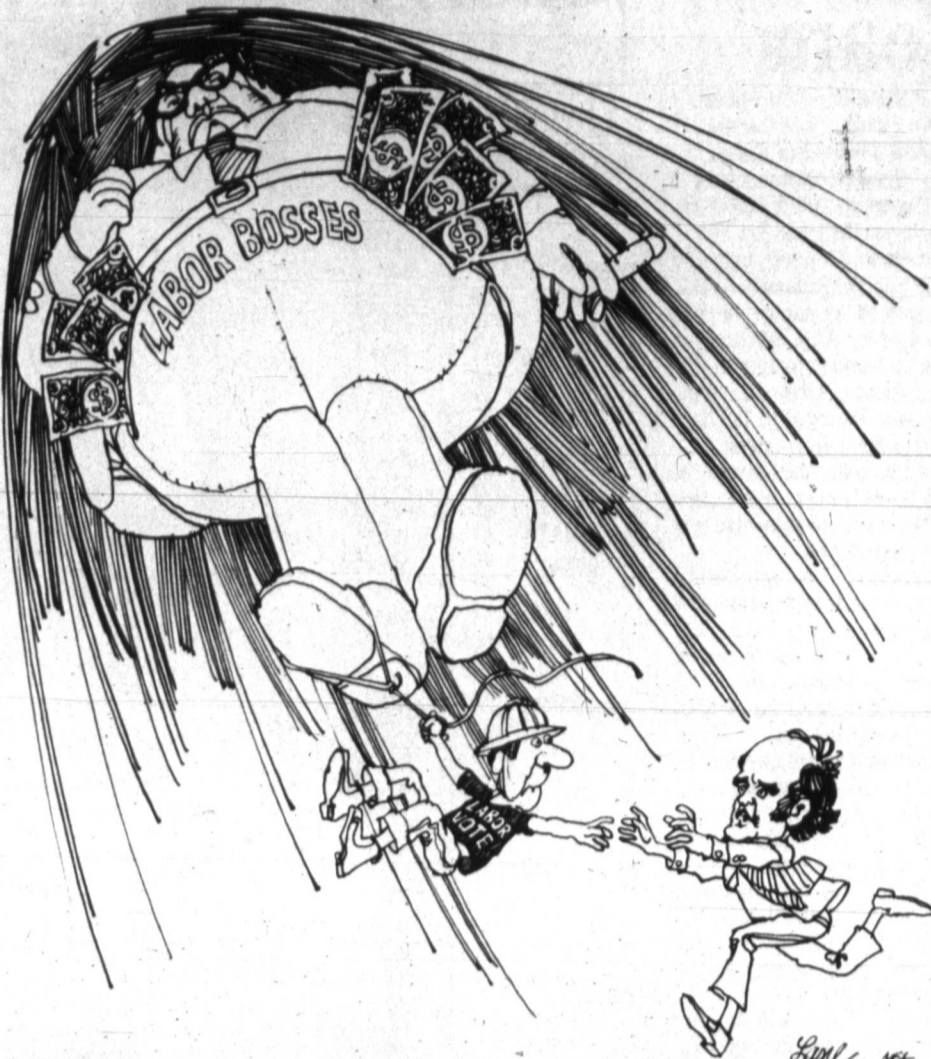

"Larry, have you made up your mind yet?"

Finally, Larry did. He came aboard formally four days after McGovern first moved to correct his errors. And it is being suggested by some sources that he kept this phase of his O'Brien negotiations so secret that some of the senator's top staff men got their first word of the new agreement when it was announced publicly.

The whole episode, stretching over at least six days, is a fascinating chapter in presidential politics.

There cannot be many cases in which a presidential nominee has eaten crow in such huge gulps as McGovern downed in this instance. This is not an age when many people can bring themselves to confess error. He did, mentioning "convention fatigue" but not really forgiving himself.

His act, of course, had other meanings: It was a measure of his need for a political figure with some real hope of bridging the gulf between McGovern and the party regulars and labor leaders who were thrust aside in his self-contained drive for the nomination.

Divided parties don't usually fare well at the polls. O'Brien is by nature a unifier. That's how he got the national chairman's job in the first place. His only enemies are new left ideologues.

H. L. Hunt Writes

"DRIVE FRIENDLY"

Occasionally, we see a roadside sign that reads, "Drive Friendly." The sign may be a little confusing at first, but the motorist who gives it a second thought will realize that it is good advice. Automobile drivers in a happy frame of mind usually show courtesy. Courtesy is one of the cardinal elements in safe driving. The atrocious toll of human lives on our streets and highways has become a national disgrace. Drunk, careless driving is a big contributor to this annual toll.

So is "unfriendly" driving. Our valiant law enforcement officers, especially those of the state highway patrols and specifically assigned patrolmen of the cities, spend multiplied thousands of manhours each week to enforce the laws of the road and protect the lives of citizens on foot and in automobiles and other forms of vehicular traffic. We owe them, and above all ourselves and our families, the cooperation that is necessary to reduce injuries and fatalities. One way to accomplish this feat is to "drive friendly."

Annually and on occasions of very heavy road traffic, the National Safety Council and the law enforcement agencies offer advice and sound warnings against the toll that traffic accidents will take. These words of wisdom ought to be heeded. You can kill another human being as fast with careless driving as you can with a gun. This column has preached the value of working with our lawmen for several years. It is vital that Law-aid encompass the traffic officers of the nation. Words of praise for the diligent work these men do is not enough. We must show our support by deeds. We must comply with the law and we must show the other motorist the same courtesy we would expect from him. Traffic courtesy is a good area in which we can all participate. Let's all "Drive Friendly."

One cool judgment is worth a thousand hasty councils. The thing to do is to supply light and not heat.—Woodrow Wilson, 28th U.S. president.

Inside Washington

Congress' OK of SALT Likely Despite Concessions to Reds

By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON—After a month of little-noticed and largely ignored committee hearings and discussions, it now appears evident Congress will approve the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation agreements.

While there is no undue enthusiasm among legislators for the pacts, there also is no pronounced opposition. Members are just not particularly interested. Their underlying attitude is more or less apathetic and indifference-coupled with willingness to go along with the President that the treaties are a "forward step for peace."

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., a ranking member of the Armed Services Committee and the foremost Congressional authority on strategic armaments, is vigorously voicing grave misgivings about key aspects of the agreements. But his detailed warnings and arguments are evoking little response or support in or out of Congress.

As a consequence, it is highly probable the accords will be ratified by Congress before the convening of the Republican national convention—Aug. 21.

That's what the Administration wants, and it looks as if it will get its way.

Potently aiding in this is that the pacts are not a partisan issue. Democratic Congressional leaders are as much in favor of them as the Republicans and also of disposing of them as quickly as possible.

From all indications, the deliberations in the Senate and House will be brief and more or less perfunctory.

No Quid Pro Quo

The weeks of largely-slighted hearings (by four different committees) have clearly shown that the U.S. made specific and concrete major concessions on strategic defensive weapons in return for distinctly vague and indefinite concessions in offensive weapons by the Russians.

In other words, U.S. concessions in defense are spelled out exactly, while the Soviet concessions in offense are debatable.

For example: the U.S. is allowed 1,054 land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs). On the other hand, Russia can have a total of 1,618—an approximate 50 per cent advantage in numbers alone.

And that's only half the story. Not only does the Soviets get more missiles than we do, but theirs can be larger—thus giving them a superiority in overall payload of about 4 to 1.

This grim story is the same in sea-based missiles, where the U.S. again winds up far from a position of parity in a crucial strategic field where until now it has been way out in front.

Under the agreement, by the end of five years, the U.S. will have 41 nuclear-powered Poseidon-type submarines, while Russia can build up to 62.

the treaty also permits the Soviet Union to have under construction as many as 18 more of these submarines as so-called "replacements" for older vessels in their ballistic missile underwater fleet.

The Administration justifies this jolting gap on the ground that Russian submarine construction was so extensive they would have had 80 of the latest-type by 1977. Thus the treaty limitation of 62 is a big gain for the U.S.

But testimony by Pentagon experts, in the Senate Armed Services Committee hearings, doesn't bear that out.

According to their figures, the Soviets would only have around 65 Poseidon-type submarines by 1977, with perhaps another 15 or so under construction. Obviously, that is where the claimed 80 total originated, although in reality it is merely statistics juggling.

Another disturbing disparity brought to light during the hearings is that Russia will be able to massively expand the greater payload of its huge ICBMs by installing multiple warheads.

Among experts it is generally agreed the U.S.S.R. will be able to do this by 1977.

If they do, the Reds will be in a position to wipe out almost all of our land-based missiles and strategic bombers in a first-strike attack.

Sen. Jackson has gravely characterized this catastrophic capability as the "biggest and most sinister loophole in these agreements which affect the basic essentials of the security of the U.S."

It has also been contended during the hearings that the Russians were very successful in the negotiations by keeping references to their armaments vague.

Witnesses disturbingly cited the fact that nowhere in the agreements is there a specific number of land-based ICBMs to which the Soviet Union is limited. The total-1,618 is purely a unilateral understanding on our part based on our own intelligence. Thus, it could be difficult to restrict the Russians to 1,618 as they could claim they never agreed to that figure.

Further, there is no understanding between the two powers on the exact definition of crucial terms such as "heavy" ICBMs. There is no Soviet designation of what a "heavy" ICBM is.

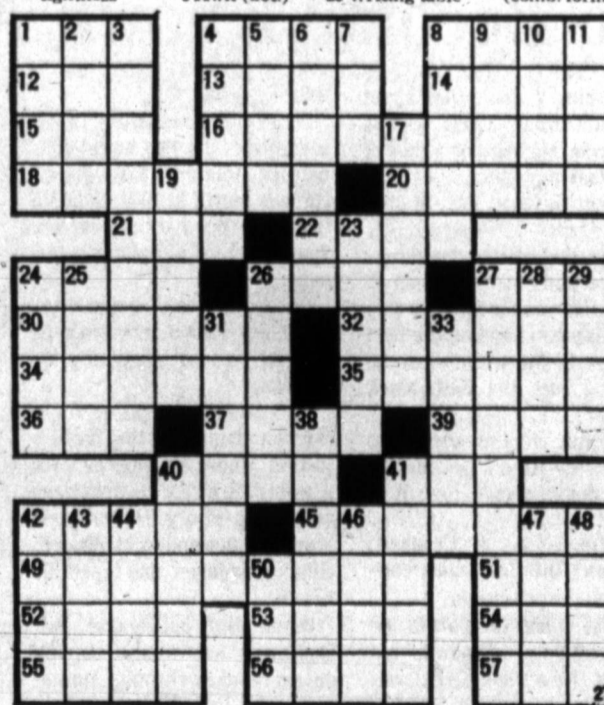

Instead of specifics, the agreements are replete with such vague terms as "significant increase" and "enlargement" whatever those mean.

Under committee questioning, Pentagon officials have said "they can live" with the treaties for the five-year period. At the same time they are emphatically against the pacts becoming a permanent arrangement. But they admit they have no answer to the vital question of how the Soviets will be persuaded to give up in the next round of the SALT talks the tremendous advantages they gained in the first round.
