Koreans make huge U.S. political gifts

The Washington Post

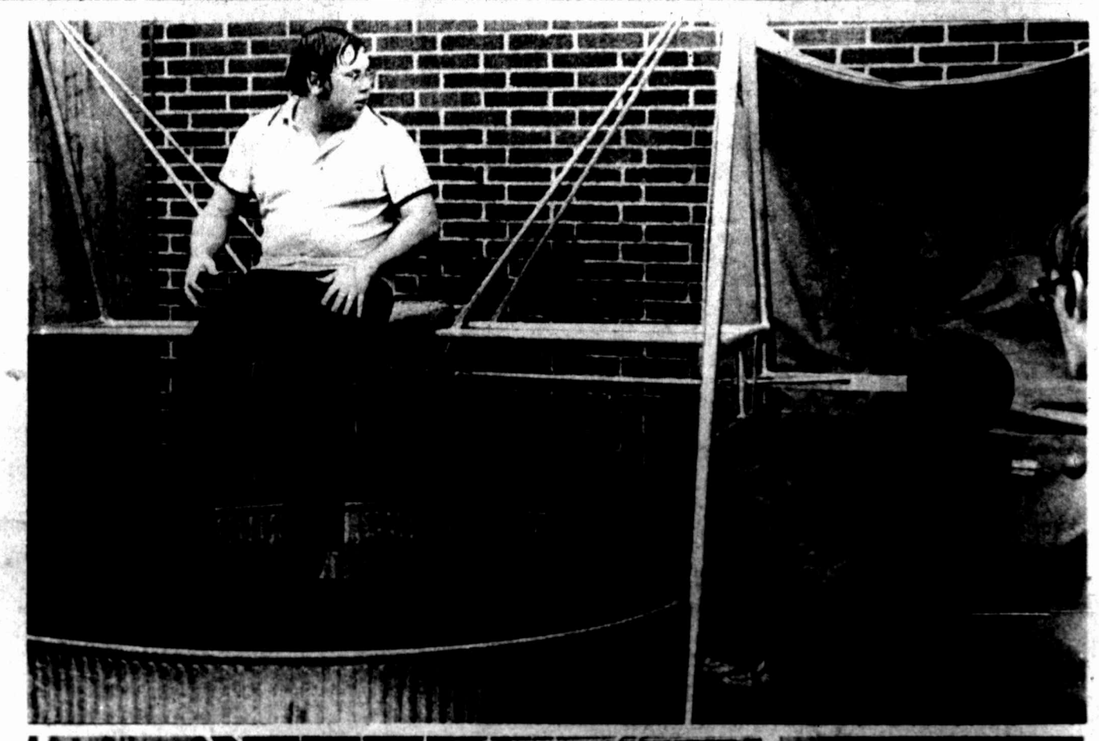

WASHINGTON — A ring of South Korean agents directed personally by South Korean President Park Chung Hee has dispensed between $500,000 and $1 million yearly in cash, gifts and campaign contributions to U.S. congressmen and other officials during the 1970s, according to information, including intelligence reports, received by federal investigators.

The ring's principal Washington-based operative, South Korean businessman Tongsun Park, has also financed intelligence-gathering and lobbying activities here by other South Korean agents and Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA), according to sources close a major Justice Department investigation of these activities.

These activities have been financed chiefly by commissions extracted by Tongsun Park and the South Korean government from U.S. rice dealers making federally subsidized rice sales to South Korea under the Food for Peace program, according to the sources. The Justice Department is also investigating allegations that other funds were siphoned off from charitable foundations ostensibly promoting closer cultural ties between the United States and South Korea.

This lavishly financed effort to "create a favorable legislative climate" here for South Korea, according to the sources, is at the heart of the unprecedented federal investigation of more than 20 present and former congressmen accused of accepting cash and gifts from the South Koreans in exchange for legislative favors.

The Washington Post has since pieced together extensive details of the investigation from numerous sources within the U.S. Departments of Justice, State, Defense and Agriculture, U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and National Security Agency, rom individuals closely associate with Tongsun Park and the KCIA. Tl most significant of these details ir lude admissions by Park that he m le substantial payments to former l ps. Cornelius Gallagher (D-N.J.), tichard Hanna (D-Calif.), and Edwi W. Edwards (D-La.) (who is now go rnor of Louisiana) plus as yet unspecified others.

Public transportation said feasible for city

By DEBBIE PIERCE

For the past few weeks, various groups have appeared before the Midland City Council to discuss the possibility of establishing a bus system for public mass transportation.

A study is now out from Alan M. Voorhees & Associates Inc. of McLean, Va., which details the mass transportation matter for the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. Although no specific recommendations are made by the firm, it appears that a system of public mass transportation could be feasible in Midland.

Several efforts have been made at establishing some form of public transportation in Midland, but so far, no definite system has lasted.

During World War II, for example, public transportation existed in the city, but it was discontinued when costs increased and the number of riders decreased, the Voorhees study noted.

So, in March 1971 service was revived somewhat, with several church-sponsored associations providing the city with a bus system on a trial basis. The system operated five days per week at a 25 cent fare, making seven runs per day over five routes in the city. Four to six buses operated the service, and daily riders numbered about 54.

The service was operating fairly well, the Voorhees report said, "considering the limitations of the system such as unreliable buses, churches not being able to make the buses available, no bus stop signs and a poor marketing system." Although the service was discontinued after five to six weeks of operation, the report noted that "ridership was

Veteran jeweler Houck dies; rites set today

Arvil E. Houck died shortly after midnight Saturday in a Midland hospital, after a lengthy illness. He was 67 years old.

Services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Newnie W. Ellis Chapel, with Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

As a member of the Evening Lion's Club, Houck held every elective office in the club. He was the recipient of the first Life Memership Award given by the club.

Room rates to increase at hospital

Effective Nov. 1, Midland Memorial Hospital will increase charges for most hospital rooms by $10 per day, Administrator Wayne E. Ulrich announced.

With the approval of Blue Cross-Blue Shield, the new charges per day will be $60 for four-bed wards, $67 for semi-private rooms, $80 for average private rooms, $102 for suites, $130 for intensive care unit, and $150 for coronary care unit.

Ulrich said, "This action has been delayed by our board of trustees as long as possible with the hope that our financial health would improve. While we have experienced a slight fiscal improvement, overall operating expenses necessitate this pricing increase."

The administrator noted that the hospital ended its fiscal year 1975-76 with a $3,380 operating gain, rather than the $34,000 deficit predicted earlier. But, he added, the gain is insufficient for the hospital's present needs.

Midland Memorial Hospital is a non-profit, non-tax-supported and non-endowed facility and is dependent upon income generated from services to patients.

Swimmers hooked like chili nuts

I'm working on a feature story about the City of Midland Swim Team for WEST TEXAS LIFE next week, so I thought I ought to go out to the big splash on Ave. A near Wadley and see what a swimmer looks like.

And I can tell you an incipient Mark Spitz could look like almost anybody: big or little, tall or short, occasionally chubby but mostly reedlike and wiry, brown or lily white (though I didn't see any blacks the day I visited), and young or old.

Betty Murrah, a veteran of the humid rooms that are a way of life for the contest swimmer and its family, gave me the grand tour of the recently expanded complex, and I watched Coaches Jim Abt and Bill Smith put about 40 younger swimmers through their paces before Head Coach Doug Ingram announced the line-ups for the annual two-hour marathon Nov. 7 that is a major fund-raising event.

And it made me wish I'd spent some time learning to swim instead of diving for olives all these years. There is a lithe vigor about swimmers that does honor to the human figure. I'm sure the life-long and pervasive exercise does more for your heart than the more popular team sports, and, frankly, there is something so appropriate about the sight of a good swimmer at home in the water as to give credence to the theory of anthropoid origins in the sea.

In fact, if being in a deep bathtub didn't make me a little uneasy, I'd have been delighted to accept the invitation to be one of the "celebrity swimmers" in the COM's marathon. Young Kerry Stewart, Lee High School senior captain of one of the 10 teams that will compete in the marathon (including two groups from the "Learn To Swim" classes conducted by Alamo School teacher Smith), offered to teach me to swim, but I told him he might make a swimmer of me but he'd never make me a celebrity by Nov. 7.

The celebrity event is mostly for laughs, but the COM regulars take it all seriously, although they'll only

Aid offers pour in for battered child

DALLAS (AP) — The plight of an 18-month-old boy whose parents are jailed under $50,000 bond each for abusing him has caused a massive outpouring of offers to help.

Phone lines at Dallas' Parkland Hospital have been tied up ever since Robert Smith Jr., was brought in Wednesday, said Parkland patrolman Bob Kimbrell.

"We've never received this many calls about one person in the 11 years I've been at Parkland," Kimbrell said.

The majority of callers want to come in and sit with the baby, Kimbrell said, but this is impossible because young Smith is in intensive care.

Kimbrell said the list of injuries allegedly inflicted by the boy's father, including burns, bites, bruises and removal of fingernails and toenails, filled almost a page on the injury report.

There also have been offers of money and toys, Kimbrell said.

Robert Earl Smith, 22, and his wife, 18, the boy's parents, are originally from Lufkin. Officials have said the child will be released to the custody of foster parents in that East Texas city when he is recovered.

A Lufkin court ordered Smith in 1975 not to see the child, but welfare officials returned the baby to Mrs. Smith after a home study showed her to be a competent mother.

Some neighbors of the Smith family in Lufkin talked about Robert Earl Smith.

"He's a bully," Mrs. Freddie Courtney said.

Mrs. Courtney said she told the court that Smith was a bully a year ago when he was charged with breaking the child's arm. She has been a neighbor of the Smith family for 16 years.

"He threw rocks at my children, and his idea of real big fun was fighting game roosters in the backyard," said Mrs. Joyce Poteet.

Mrs. Courtney said she blamed Robert's meanness on "his rough family."

Smith's high school counselor said he often broke school rules, but "he seemed to get along well with the other kids."

Smith dropped out of school as a sophomore.

His wife, Eva Marie, was "a real nice girl unil she got in with this young man," said Mrs. Clara Basham, a family friend.

Ferry survivor describes terror

By BILL CRIDER

LULING, La. (AP) — It was 6:30 a.m., a time of early halflight. George Lingo, 32, was aboard the ferry George Prince — one of 96 still sleepy people on the way to work. He was among 18 to make it ashore alive.

The temperature was in the low 50s, with a brisk wind. Lingo left his car and ducked into the warm passenger cabin, filled with "walk-on" passengers.

Most of those who drove vehicles onto the ferry stayed in them, windows closed against the wind, radios playing. Most of them died.

Normally it's about a 10-minute ferry ride cross the Mississippi River from Destrehan, on the east bank, to Luling, the site of industrial plants and jobs on the west bank. The river is about three-quarters of a mile wide at that point 20 miles north of New Orleans.

As the George Prince was making its way across, the Norwegian tanker Frosta was coming up river, heading for an oil refinery in Baton Rouge to load. Capt. Kjell Slatten was in command.

Slatten testified at a Coast Guard inquiry in New Orleans on Saturday. When he first saw the George Prince, he said, he tried to contract the ferry by radio. There was no response, he said, so he gave two blasts on the Frosta's horn, a signal that he would pass on the starboard side.

Again, said Slatten, there was no response.

Two more blasts on the ship's horn. Nothing, the ferry continued its journey without acknowledging.

There was still time to avoid a collision, the captain testified, but it was getting close. This time, he said, he gave four blasts on the horn. A warning — danger.

And still no response. Four more blasts on the horn, and it was too late.

The George Prince was near midstream when Lingo saw people running. He was still in the passenger cabin and could not tell what was going on, Lingo said, but he reacted instinctively.

"I was the first one out the door," he recalled. "Next thing I know the ship was right on us. I mean it was just right there — huge! — and I panicked. I just stopped dead. Next thing I knew I was in the water."

The 664-foot tanker, her whistles still blaring, rammed the 120-by-55 foot George Prince amidship and flipped it over like a toy.

Some of the 35 vehicles thrown off the ferry deck by the impact floated a few seconds, sinking gradually. The cars slowly whirled and bobbed in the current while terrified occupants desperately tried to open doors against the water pressure.

The Mississippi is about 80 feet deep at the point George Lingo went into the water, a mean, cold river of swift currents and muddy bottom. Lingo lived.

Seventy-eight people drowned.

Only 33 of the bodies had been recovered by Saturday.

Most of the 18 survivors of the George Prince can't tell much more than Lingo: a moment of confusion, terror, an abrupt plunge into a cold river where a wrong turn meant death. The ferry captain and crewmen drowned.

The sharp bow of the Frosta smashed a V-shaped gash in one pontoon of the catamaran-style ferry. Though most of it was below water, the upside down boat remained afloat.

Most of those who survived turned back to cling to the overturned ferry. Her sister ferry, the Ollie K. Wilds, was on the scene within minutes to scoop them up.

Current moved the hulk about a mile downstream, closer to the bank, where it went aground on muddy bottom. The Frosta anchored about a mile upstream from the point of collision, then continued on to Baton Rouge, La., after the pilot was questioned by the Coast Guard.

It was over before the sun's first rays lit the levees. The aftermath — the investigation, the search for blame and bodies — goes on.

Whatever the investigation turns up, a lot of people who live in these parts will never understand why it happened.

"The people here work so hard at such dangerous jobs in the refineries, the grain elevators, unloading the ships, on the tugs... but to die in a ferry accident on the way to work, there's just no sense to it," said Mrs. Peche Oubre of Destrehan. "It makes me want to pound my fists and scream, 'Why us?'"

Veteran gunned down after spree

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — James Rivers kept telling his hostages Friday night, "I want to mow down white cops."

Within an hour, the black man, a Vietnam veterns lay dead in the street, killed by one of the very men he was bent on mowing down.

Before it was over, Rivers had taken 15 or more hostages including neighbors, passersby, and three polic officers.

Witnesses, some of them hostages, said the nightmare started when Rivers emerged from his house, armed, and began what amounted to a door-to-door round-up.

At one point, he called police to come and be shot. When a dispatch sergeant sounded unexcited by the demand. Rivers fired a shotgun blast into a wall and shouted that he had just killed a hostage.

"You better come ..."he told the sergeant. They came. Three of them, Sgt. H.W. Roemmich Jr., and Officers Barbara Blanchard and H.G. Tebay, were taken prisoner.

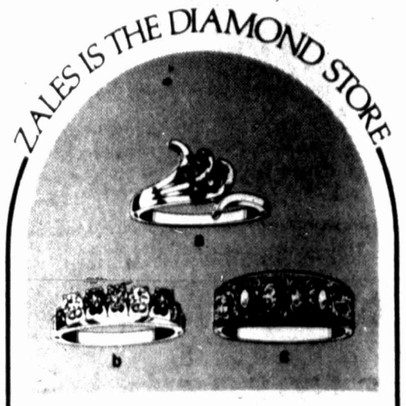

Rivers placed a pistol against her chest and fired. She was in poor condition at a local hospital late Saturday.

Tebay said officer Blanchard managed to break and run while Rivers was distracted. He said Rivers ordered him to catch the woman officer. Instead, Tebay ran to a nearby house and called police headquarters. He said he asked for a patrol unit to meet him with a pistol.

Officer Billy Bozarth met Tebay and together the men slipped back into the area unnoticed. Tebay said they hid in a flower bed until Rivers wasn't looking, then handed Roemmich the pistol.

Three quick shots and Rivers fell dead. He had been shot once in the leg and twice in the chest.

McCarthy may siphon needed votes from Carter

By LEE BYRD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quite aside from his long-familiar wit, Eugene J. McCarthy looms ever larger as the joker in the presidential deck with little more than a week to go before all bets are called.

Jimmy Carter's backers fear that McCarthy just might give Gerald R. Ford the wild card he needs on election day Nov. 2, since McCarthy diehards are the group that usually would vote Democratic.

With court fights yet to be settled in New York, Idaho and Rhode Island, the independent presidential candidate is assured, as of this weekend, of being on the ballot in 29 states, with 319 electoral votes — 49 more than needed for election.

Not that McCarthy will carry all those states. His own campaign is all but dead. But barring a dramatic surge by Ford under his own power, McCarthy's draw of votes that might otherwise go to Carter could give the President his best chance.

And that bothers McCarthy not one whit. Nor is he bothered that many of his old liberal chums have grown increasingly bitter about the damage he could wreak upon their programs by aiding a Ford victory.

At a recent University of Wisconsin appearance, the former Democratic senator from Minnesota would not deny that "a vote for McCarthy is a vote for Gerald Ford."

But he went on to say that the difference between Ford and Carter "is so small I'm not prepared to worry about it."

McCarthy had hoped to fashion a mini-blitz in the final three weeks of the campaign that would boost his standing in the polls from the 3 to 7 per cent range to a more respectable figure. But he's had legal and financial setbacks in the last few days which appear to rule that out, even though some Carter strategists, ironically, would have welcomed such a development.

Paradoxical as it may seem, a low vote for McCarthy may well hold more peril for Carter than a sizeable one. According to John R. Tabori, a political analyst for McCarthy, a showing in the 3 to 5 per cent range would hurt Carter most, because that likely would come from the liberal hard core that otherwise would vote for the Democrat.

Tabori says that a large vote for McCarthy could hurt Ford as much as Carter, thereby neutralizing the independent's impact on the outcome. "Anything over 7.5 per cent and we get as much from the Republicans as the Democrats," Tabori said. "What is difficult to predict is who would be hurt most by a McCarthy vote in the 5 to 7 per cent range. In the Yankelovich poll (which gave McCarthy an overall 7 per cent), he pulled 10 per cent away from Carter, 8 per cent away from Ford and 31 per cent from the undecided."

An NBC-Los Angeles Times poll taken last Sunday reflected the same thing. McCarthy wound up with 7 per cent there, too, drawn almost equally from people who otherwise would support Ford or Carter.

Many polls don't give McCarthy anywhere near that 7 per cent, however, and those that do could be too generous. They might reflect true public opinion, but sentiment for minority candidates usually decreases as election day approaches.

Hence come the plethora of "ifs" that have the Carter forces biting their fingernails.

For example, a Field poll taken Oct. 14 showed a neck-and-neck Carter-Ford race in California, the nation's most populous state with 45 precious electoral votes. McCarthy is not even on the ballot there, but he's promoting a write-in campaign via telephone, leaflets and even a few radio spots.

"He could get 2 per cent, and it might represent the edge," says James Copeland, Carter's northern California campaign manager.

The Carter people similarly are holding their breath over the McCarthy showing in at least a half-dozen other key states.

Mark A. Siegel, executive officer of the Democratic National Committee, lists New Jersey, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Oregon and Iowa as states where McCarthy could pull enough votes from Carter to make a difference if the race tightens.

Peter Teeley, a campaign press aide for Ford, said, "There's no question it would be possible for him to draw enough votes (from Carter) to make a difference." Teeley said Ford's own polls showed McCarthy getting between 4 and 10 per cent of the vote in seven of the biggest states.

Rumsfeld says 'freeze' risky

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld suggested Saturday it would be risky to enter into a "quick freeze" agreement with the Soviet Union on nuclear weapons, as proposed by Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

Rumsfeld questioned whether Soviet compliance with the broad kind of agreement proposed by Carter could be verified.

"To agree to do something with them that we can't verify... would be a terrible thing," Rumsfeld said in an interview.

At another point, the Pentagon chief said "we have to constantly remind ourselves that ... we ought not to do anything with them (the Russians) by way of an agreement unless we are satisfied that we have the ability to verify that which they've agreed to."

Carter, who has accused the Ford administration of making no progress toward a new nuclear arms limitation pact, said recently that "we must move to secure agreement with the Soviet Union on a quick freeze on the number of atomic missiles and warheads, on total throw weight and qualitative weapon improvements."

The new U.S.-Soviet SALT agreement which has been in negotiation for nearly two years would cap the number of strategic weapon launchers, including long-range missiles and bombers, but would not curb weapons improvements such as more powerful, more accurate warheads. Nor would it limit missile throw weight, which determines the number and size of warheads a missile can carry.

The freeze proposed by Carter, if carried out, would leave the United States well out in front in land-based and seabased missiles carrying multiple warheads because Russia is in the relatively early stages of such MIRV deployments.

Asked whether he thought the Russians would be likely to accept a freeze under that circumstance, Rumsfeld said "I've found, in these negotiations we've had, that the Soviets are very reluctant to give unilateral advantage to the United States on anything."

When questioned about Carter's stand that $5 billion to $7 billion could be cut from the defense budget largely by eliminating waste, Rumsfeld acknowledged that "there are areas in the defense establishment...that can be made more efficient, less wasteful."

But Rumsfeld claimed "we have been doing that" during the Ford administration.

At the same time, the defense secretary disputed the idea that "any savings from efficiency should necessarily then be taken out of defense and put in some other area" of the federal budget, apparently meaning domestic programs.

Instead, Rumsfeld said, money saved by improving efficiency should be applied to strengthening the military muscle of the United States.

Rainwater best for plants

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — Rainwater, or water low in minerals, is best for house plants, according to the Water Quality Assn.

Where tap water supplies have a high mineral content the WQA recommends occasional heavy watering of house plants to flush away any salts that may collect in the soil.

Limited quantities of mineral-free water for house plants may be collected from roof runoff, or can be produced with a small reverse osmosis or demineralization unit.

Continental pilots strike

Pilots for Continental Airlines struck at 2:01 a.m. CDT Saturday, cancelling all flights and grounding all operations including those at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Joe Daley, vice president of public relations for the Los Angeles, Calif., based airline, said no new negotiations have been scheduled.

Robert Six, chairman and chief executive of Continental, said airline officials "deeply regret the inconvenience" to passengers.

He added, "Our pilot negotiating committee has made demands that would bankrupt the airline. They have refused to bargain in anything approaching a reasonable manner. There is no common ground, and they have made no effort to reach one."

Continental normally flies 16 flights per day and boards 567 passengers per day at the Midland Regional Air Terminal, Daley said. Sixty-three persons are employed by the airline in Midland.

The domestic carrier flies to 31 cities in the West, Midwest and Southwest, carrying 21,000 passengers and one million pounds of freight daily and employing 10,000 persons.

Stumbling blocks in the talks covered work rules, salaries, and fringe benefits.

Passengers at Midland Air Terminal were being rerouted on Texas International Saturday. Al Malcom, city manager for TI, said Texas International had experienced some problems in absorbing the passenger loads, but things were going smoothly.

"We've had mostly capacity flights Saturday, but things are going surprisingly well," Malcom said. "The cooperation on Continental's part at the ticket counter has helped quite a bit, and of course some passengers are driving or taking taxis to their destinations."

Malcom said TI has no immediate plans of adding flights at Midland Air Terminal to cover the passenger loads.

A total of 1,086 pilots were affected by the strike, the first ever against Continental.

According to Continental, a DC10 captain with 12 years experience currently earns $58,200, flying some 75 hours a month. Under the company's pay proposal, he would get a raise to $79,200. The second officer of a Boeing 727, a smaller plane, currently makes $27,950 and would get $39,960 under the company's offer.

An ALPA spokesman said the salaries Continental pays now are 20 per cent lower than the industry average.

He said he could not say precisely what salaries the union was asking.

Midland man shot in head

A 42-year-old Midland man was listed in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital Saturday after being shot in the head outside his trailer home shortly before 8 p.m. Friday night.

Sheriff's deputies said Frank Castleberry, of 114 E. County Road, near Cotton Flat Road, received a superficial head wound following an argument. Deputies said they have the name of a suspect but no arrest has been made.

Cooler temperatures due this afternoon

Permian Basin residents might want to take a jacket along if they plan an outing today, as the National Weather Service said a slow-moving cold front will be coming through the area this afternoon.

Saturday was mostly a gray day across the area, with overcast skies and mild temperatures. In Andrews and Lamesa, it was cloudy and mild with a slight breeze.

Crane and Stanton had overcast skies, calm winds and temperatures on the cool side. In Rankin, it was overcast and warm, while Odessa reported clear skies and cool temperatures.

The weather man said skies will remain partly cloudy through Monday. Temperatures today should reach a high in the upper 60s before turning cooler this afternoon.

These kids who are shaping up for the national meets beginning next month are spending three or four hours a day up to their necks in water, and donating their time out of school to collect donations seems like double jeopardy to me. Give 'em a hand and a kind word when they knock on your door.

Transport plan said feasible

building when the service was discontinued."

The main reasons cited for ceasing the service were that the buses were needed for other purposes by the churches and replacement vehicles were not found.

However, the Voorhees report said, a bus transportation system in Midland could work, provided the buses were available at the right times and were heading in the right directions.

A number of surveys were taken by the Voorhees firm, which concluded that persons having the most need for some form of public transportation were non-drivers, the elderly, unemployed students and others, the handicapped, the poor and minorities.

The firm also noted that the elderly and low-income persons, those having a real need for transportation service, mainly need mobility to medical and shopping or personal care facilities, with visiting and recreation trips secondary. Those residing east of Big Spring Street, south of the Texas and Pacific Railroad and in the older section of the city surrounding the downtown area have the most need of the services, the firm said.

The benefits derived from a system of public transportation could be enjoyed not only by those directly using the system but also by the area in general, the report noted.

Among the economic benefits to direct users of the system are more and better employment opportunities and reduction in auto expenditures, while economic benefits to the general public include a reduction in the cost of transportation services now provided by public agencies and a reduction in the future need for auto parking facilities.

Non-economic benefits for direct users of the system are more recreational, educational and social opportunities and an increase in the comfort and convenience of travel, while non-economic benefits to the general area include increased environmental awareness and responsiveness to energy shortages.

However, the Voorhees report cautioned, general benefits often can be over or underestimated. In the near future, "it is extremely unlikely that any reasonably-scaled transit improvement would replace sufficient automobile traffic to render unnecessary any of the highway improvements now being seriously considered." The report went on to note that the reductions in vehicular traffic resulting from improved transit service "are likely to prove disappointing with respect to impact on air quality, noise pollution and other environmental considerations."

Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter has the lead and President Ford's last, best hope for a quick turnaround is gone as the White House rivals wage the hectic final campaign mission that will propel one to power and send the other home in defeat.

With 10 days to go, the pollsters and politicians agree that Carter is in front, if narrowly, and that Ford will have to find a catch-up formula if he is to gain with ballots the office he now holds by appointment.

But as Carter has said from the outset, the power and prestige of an incumbent President is an awesome thing, difficult to contest, and Ford has not used his office adroitly so far in the campaign, it still is his to wield.

Ford himself acknowledges that it will be a major upset — "the political surprise of the century" — if he wins.

Ford drives for quick turnaround to catch Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter has the lead and President Ford's last, best hope for a quick turnaround is gone as the White House rivals wage the hectic, final campaign missions that will propel one to power and send the other home in defeat.

With 10 days to go, the pollsters and politicians agree that Carter is in front, if narrowly, and that Ford will have to find a catch-up formula if he is to gain with ballots the office he now holds by appointment.

But as Carter has said from the outset, the power and prestige of an incumbent President is an awesome thing, difficult to contest, and if Ford has not used his office adroitly so far in the campaign, it still is his to wield.

Ford himself acknowledges that it will be a major upset — "the political surprise of the century" — if he wins. And he says he can do it.

It may be that if Ford is to win, he will need Carter's unwitting help through a major political blunder, something the former Georgia governor has avoided throughout his climb from virtual anonymity to the favorite's role that now is his.

Ford can hardly devise a new strategy at this point. He devised several during his campaign against Ronald Reagan, yet he had his hands full to the end in their contest for the Republican nomination.

So, unless outside events intervene in the kind of crisis that can galvanize support for a President, the course is set.

His had been largely a stay-at-home campaign, but he will not sleep in the White House again until election night. He will be on the road, on an intensive campaign swing, aimed heavily at the big states and their crucial caches of electoral votes.

A final handshake, smiles of studied cordiality, a moment's private conversation, and the face-to-face phase of the Ford-Carter campaign was done Friday night.

Their last debate, in Williamsburg, Va., was rated a virtual tie by viewers surveyed in a public opinion poll conducted for The Associated Press. But that poll also determined that a substantial bloc of youthful voters, who tended to side with Carter in the earlier debates, didn't bother to watch the finale.

Pollster Burns Roper surveyed 353 viewers for the Public Broadcasting System and reported they rated Carter the victor, 40 per cent to 29 per cent.

The AP sampling of 1,027 viewers in the hours after the debate showed 35.5 per cent thought Ford had won and 33.1 per cent thought Carter had won, and 31.4 per cent thought it was a draw.

The margin of error for a sample that size is about 2.9 per cent in either direction, meaning the 2.4 percentage points separating Carter and Ford cannot be reliably projected to stand for the nation as a whole.

But Carter didn't need to win. He needed to avoid a setback, and that he appears to have done. So the debates, despite their central role in the structure of both candidate's campaigns, passed without producing a major reversal.

Ford was the first incumbent President ever to participate in campaign debate, issuing his challenge at the climactic moment of the Republican National Convention. He also was the first incumbent of the television age to run for re-election in the face of polls that rated his challenger a heavy favorite.

By debating, he hoped to reverse that, and the gap has narrowed, to a margin the President now says is close enough to give him an excellent opportunity for victory.

But the debates produced no compelling issues, no dramatic reversals and, in sum, seem to have done more to reinforce trends and opinions about the candidates than to change them markedly.

An analysis

Williamsburg offered Ford a chance to make of the last debate what John F. Kennedy made of the first, 16 years ago, when he gained major headway in his race against Richard M. Nixon.

It didn't happen this time.

Nixon's name figures in another parallel, for in 1968, he opened a pollster's gap of 15 percentage points over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, then vice president and the Democratic nominee. It was a margin that eroded steadily; Nixon won the election by less than one per-cent.

This time it was Carter who started with the hefty lead in the polls, as much as 33 points in July.

A Gallup Poll published on Oct. 15 gives Carter a six point lead. A Louis Harris Survey published Oct. 18 makes his margin four points.

Carter said the initial margin was meaningless, because the Republicans were still embroiled in the Ford-Reagan contest and the GOP had not united for the fall campaign. He said he didn't know how to explain fluctuations in the later surveys, "I think a lot of it depends on current events."

But there is a crucial difference between the 1968 Nixon-Humphrey pattern and that of the current campaign. Once the Nixon rating began to slip and Humphrey's to climb, the trend was steady.

That has not been the case between Carter and Ford. The President moved up after the first debate, down after the second, losing momentum just when he seemed to be making his push.

Furthermore, percentages don't count. Electoral votes do, with 270 the making of a president. And there, too, Carter is generally judged the current leader by analysts in both political camps. Carter gains a regional sendoff from his native South, whereas Ford must battle for the support of big, industrial states in his Midwestern territory.

Ford is likely to carry Michigan and gain the 21 electroal votes of his home state, but he isn't the sure thing Carter is in Georgia.

For Michigan is in the battleground belt where Carter and Ford will be concentrating their final roadshows. States like Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, California and possibly Texas will see one or both candidates before election day.

In California, Illinois and Ohio, states Ford must win to assemble the electoral arithmetic for victory, the race is rated close. In Texas, a Republican poll shows Carter ahead, but if there is encouragement in later surveys, Ford may adjust his campaign schedule to make a final bid for support there.

So it will go until election day.

Carter already has covered nearly 42,000 miles since Labor Day, touching down in 35 states, appearing in 70 cities.

By comparison, Ford has been a homebody, which was part of the strategy, home being the White House. He has campaigned a few steps from his Oval Office, taking the road infrequently.

Until this final phase of the campaign, Ford has spent about as much time on campaign travel in his own behalf as he did in the congressional campaigns two years ago.

But Saturday, he began an intensive, 40-stop campaign burst, working the Carolinas and Virginia, then heading to California, to make his way east with schedule room for stops wherever it appears they'll do him some good.

Carter is covering much of the same territory, in the opposite direction, with his campaign to end in California.

As the candidates stepped up the pace, so did their managers, with increasing television advertising, nationally and in selected target states.

A FAMILY DECISION

Buying a home is a family decision. For this reason, it's desirable that house-hunting be done by husband and wife wherever possible. However, in the case where a move over a considerable distance is involved, the best arrangement is for either the husband or the wife to look separately and then for both to get together to make the final decision-making inspection.

But there are some limitations when it comes to making the job of finding a new home such a large family undertaking that the group becomes a burden. Children will have a voice in the family's new home, but it is not a good idea to involve very young children in the initial house visits.

Older children-such as high school or college age are a different story. They possess a certain maturity of judgment that can contribute to a home-buying decision.

Children's needs are important in making the choice of a family home, but those needs are best determined by the parents. It generally works out that children are happy with a house that makes their parents happy.

Ford is THE man!

Gerald Ford should be continued as President of the United States of America, and The Reporter-Telegram endorses his election to the presidency on Nov. 2.

The United States needs Gerald Ford at the helm of its government and, fortunately, Gerald Ford is offering his continued service in the highest office of the land.

He has proven himself and his capabilities in the slightly more than two years that he has held the office.

President Ford is a man of honesty and integrity — — a man's man, if you please. He is a man of his word who can be trusted at all times and in all situations. He is a person who has the utmost faith and confidence in this great nation — a man who has served his country faithfully and well in the Congress, as vice president of the United States, and as president since assuming the office upon the resignation of Richard M. Nixon.

President Ford has led the nation through some perilous times. He came into office at the height of the Watergate scandals. Inflation was rampant and at the same time a recession had begun, causing economic distress and great unemployment. There was a feeling of distrust, bordering even on fear for the future.

While the country may not be completely back to normal, the nation has come a long way since Gerald Ford assumed the presidency, with conditions continuing to improve in most cases. The feeling of distrust no longer is as evident as it once was. Confidence has been restored to a marked degree.

With this in mind, Gerald Ford is entitled to an elective term as president in order to push to completion his many-faceted, far-reaching programs which are working for the nation's best interests. To retire him from office at this time would be a trememdous loss to the progress of the United States and perhaps even to the peace of the world.

Gerald Ford is forthright, open and above board in his statements and actions. People know where he stands on all issues. He states them clearly and positively. It is unfortunate that this cannot always be said about his chief opponent.

Ford also is basically conservative in his thinking and in his overall philosophy of government, while opponent Jimmy Carter's liberalism is being detected more and more, particularly in the South and Southwest.

The President has spoken out time and again against excessive federal spending and the growth of federal government, while Carter is pledged only to reorganize government by combining federal agencies and making them more efficient. It is noteworthy, however, that Carter does not say the federal payroll will be reduced.

When it comes to federal spending, there is a great deal of doubt on the part of many persons as to whether this nation can afford Jimmy Carter as president. The Democrat party platform favors increased federal spending, and Carter is committed to that platform. Ford favors a balanced budget.

And when it comes to the right-to-work law, Carter is pledged to repeal same, this being a plank in the Democrats' platform. Ford and the Republican party platform support right-to-work, which is of tremendous importance in Texas and 19 other states. Right-to-work laws, in fact, have been the single most important roadblock to labor unionizing in the 20 states having same.

Jeffrey St. John, Copley News Service columnist, pointed out recently that Carter, while saying all the while that "I owe special interests nothing," is, in fact, the candidate of the labor union bosses.

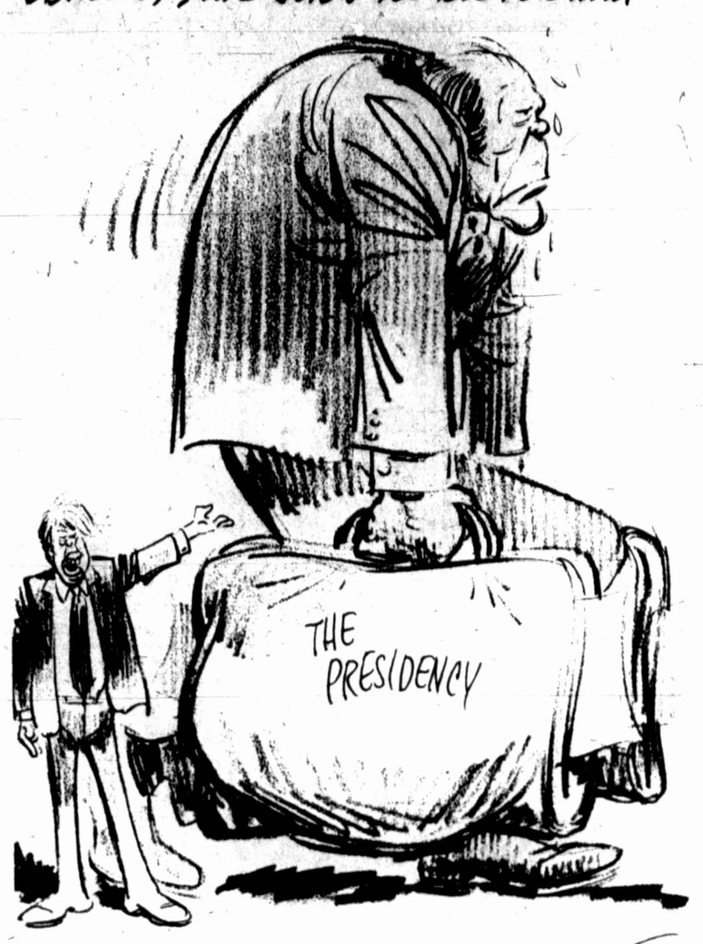

The columnist also says that many Southerners consider Carter less and less a champion of Southern values and more an advocate of Northern values which deliver the fate of the individual to the forces of government power.

Ford opposes divestiture of energy companies while Carter is for divestiture and discouragement of nuclear power development by private enterprise.

The President is on record as opposing federalization of welfare and the guaranteed annual income concept, while Carter favors both, along with gun control.

The presidential debates are over and the issues at stake have been stated and restated. The voter now must decide between Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, as to which will make the best president.

It is The Reporter-Telegram's opinion that Gerald Ford is the man.

INSIDE REPORT:
Bella Abzug unleashed as Carter campaigner

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

ATLANTA — Rep. Bella Abzug of New York, terrible-tempered gladiator of the Democratic party's far-left wing, was surreptitiously unleashed by Jimmy Carter's political high command in a way that could only hurt his candidacy — a strange decision raising doubts about the Carter campaign and the administration that may follow it.

With just a month left before what promises to be an extremely close election, top Carter aides authorized an Abzug barnstorming tour across the country in Carter's behalf. Included were some areas where her ideology and personality could cost Carter badly needed votes. Not one word of notification went out to Democratic leaders or even the Carter coordinators in the states affected.

When word did get out, screams of outrage cancelled so much of the Abzug tour that it became a pale shadow of its former self. Nevertheless, questions persist: Do Carter's closest advisers really consider Battling Bella a mainstream Democrat? Is this a dark preview of the true ideological inclinations of a Carter administration?

As much for her corrosive rhetoric as her extreme left views on national security and foreign policy, Mrs. Abzug is viewed by moderate Democrats as the type of polarizer who menaces the party's future. Consequently, there was considerable rejoicing by old-line Democrats last month when she narrowly lost the Democratic Senate primary in New York to Daniel Patrick Moynihan, a centrist and hard anti-Communist.

Shortly after the New York primary, Mrs. Abzug chatted with Carter aboard the Democratic whistlestop train and expressed her desire to get deeply involved in his campaign. Carter immediately agreed and referred her to his campaign manager, Hamilton Jordan. After a five-minute conversation, Jordan turned her over to his assistant, Landon Butler.

Whether Carter and Jordan were happy about the Abzug offer or just being polite is impossible to know. But there is no mistaking the attitude of Butler, one of the young Southern liberals who abound at Carter's 24th floor campaign headquarters here. "We think Bella can help a lot," Butler told us, "and she's very, very strong for Jimmy."

Consequently, Butler approved an Abzug barnstorming tour opening with a press conference on the Capitol steps in Washington Oct. 12 and continuing to Detroit, Milwaukee, Madison, San Francisco, Seattle, Spokane, Portland, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Buffalo. No clearance was sought from local party leaders.

Alarm bells were set off when Mrs. Abzug sent an Oct. 5 letter to all Democratic members of Congress beginning: "Carter campaign manager Hamilton Jordan has asked me to coordinate a national barnstorming effort by members of the Senate and House in behalf of the Carter-Mondale ticket."

Her proposed itinerary particularly outraged party leaders in Washington state, where Democrats prefer the style and ideology of Sen. Henry M. Jackson. Word from the Pacific Northwest was conveyed loud and clear to Atlanta: the presence of Bella Abzug would be damaging in a state where the races for both President and governor are tossups; so, she is not welcome in the state of Washington.

Her visits to Seattle and Spokane were scrubbed along with most of the other proposed stops (including that debut on the Capitol steps). The bobtailed remainder of the tour, say embarrassed Carter staffers, are left-leaning enclaves where she might help take votes away from Eugene McCarthy — such as Madison, Wis.

But her actual performance in Madison Oct. 13 raises doubts about how much help Mrs. Abzug provides anywhere. While sparing of praise for Carter and promising to "keep his feet to the fire" if he is elected, she was profligate in abuse of President Ford. "Richard Nixon self-impeached himself. He gave us Gerald Ford as his revenge."

When a questioner asked who had "pulled her strings" to support Carter, she shouted back: "Nobody pulls my strings, brother, and who the hell are you?" To Mrs. Abzug, the country is "a junkpile of despair." The effectiveness of this as an antidote to Clean Gene McCarthy will be seen in Madison Nov. 2.

That Carter's political high command could believe the Abzug style would sell in Spokane is, at the least, miserable political judgment. At the worst, it suggests a possible leftward bias around the candidate that distorts the reality of this nation's views and aspirations.

WASHINGTON MERRY—GO—ROUND
Examining the top candidates

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Behind the confusion of the presidential campaign, the choice next week is between two very different men with contrasting styles and opposing philosophies. From our seat at the ringside, here is our assessment of the contenders:

Gerald Ford is a warm, outgoing man who takes a concerned interest in the welfare of people he personally encounters, high or low, but who is often insensitive to the burdens of groups outside his Grand Rapids-Washington frame of reference. He has the easy self-assurance of one who from early youth has been admired for his natural abilities — his athletic prowess, open good looks, likeable disposition, outdoorsman's skills — all the things that have made him a man's man.

He has an earthy, locker room camaraderie that puts men at ease, a gruffly amiable gallantry that disarms women. Untempted by power, unaffected by grandeur, he moves unpretentiously amid their symbols. He is hardworking but not work-obsessed. Like Harry Truman, Ford observes high standards of personal integrity but has a resigned tolerance for the world's foibles, individual and institutional.

He has a good mind, though not an extraordinary one. His friends grant that he is not a great leader in the sense of one who has penetrating social insights or who is among the first to identify emerging problems or who gives stirring articulation for the dimly felt fears and hopes of a generation. He has never been mistaken, nor has he mistaken himself, for a grand captain of destiny. His strengths are of a different order: fairness in judgment, calmness under pressure, good will amid tensions, the dogged courage that often says no when it would be politically easier to say yes.

Jimmy Carter is as naturally aloof and inwardly turned as Jerry Ford is gregarious. Even in the forced togetherness of the submarines he once served on, he managed an amiable detachment.

His conquest over shyness is an index of his determination. When he first entered politics, it required an act of will for him to accost an unsuspecting voter with a handshake; now no one is safe. He tends to be unaware of the people around him except for their functions, yet is highly sensitive to the mass undercurrents and yearnings abroad in the land.

Carter's self-assurance is a more aggressive, more complicated brand than Ford's. He is a compulsive achiever who has known periods of torment and even despair when he fell short of his expectations. He has the kind of cool it takes to repair a ship engine that might blow up at any minute, as he once did. But under the cool, there is something perpetually boiling — call it ambition, call it a compulsion to succeed.

Carter has a superior mind harnessed to an awesome self-discipline. As a student, he was always in the upper tenth or twentieth of his class. The captain under whom he once served gave him the highest efficiency rating he had ever awarded. It is a venturesome mind, devouring books and treatises at a speed-reading pace; it is an engineer's mind, seeking to improve the machinery of the old structure and streamlining its design. He has not yet been able to project a grand, coherent theme of the America he proposes. Yet he has touched wellsprings reached by none of his rivals.

Carter is aggressive where Ford is affable, quick on the draw where Ford is slow, moralistic where Ford is tolerant. Where Ford sees mistakes as inevitable frailties, Carter sees disgraces and outrages.

Their styles of operation reflect these differences. Jerry Ford, though he is President, operates as the first among equals. The people around him are relaxed, free of pressure from above. He is unusually accessible; he takes criticisms from his own aides without bristling; he accepts abuses from outside with little resentment.

Ford holds the reins loosely. He has been repeatedly burned by the disorganization and relaxed indiscretions of his subordinates. Although he has spent 30 years in politics, his organization has failed to develop an early warning system against political mishap.

Ford is most comfortable with friends made up of big business sympathizers, wedded to narrow, pro-corporation philosophy.

Jimmy Carter runs a regime along more austere and autocratic lines. In his councils, there is a mimimum of irreverence. He will not accept mediocre performances. Errant aides are reproved, not with abusive tirades, but with a glacial stare, a pointed silence, a cut-off in assignments.

Though he uses the trappings of easy informality — shoes off, sport-shirts, softball games — they are only trappings. Behind a cultivated outer placidity, he is habitually intense, coiled, relentlessly pressing toward tightly programmed objectives.

Carter might give 14 press interviews in a day, yet remain essentially impenetrable. He is quick to anger at criticism and often strikes back when he reaches the nearest airport. Brilliant though Carter is, he has wide areas of inexperience and is short on the prudent patience that waits for advice and second thoughts.

The two candidates have a different concept of government. Ford contends that big government is incorrigibly harmful, wasteful and unamangeable. He proposes to reduce its mischief by cutting down its revenues, repealing its regulations and strangling new programs in the crib.

Carter proposes to transform the monster into a more effective force for good through better management. He forecasts huge budget surpluses — $60 billion by 1981 — that will finance new programs for health insurance, jobs, education, housing. Ford ridicules the possibility of large surpluses and would rebate any small ones in tax cuts.

NICK THIMMESCH
Eugene McCarthy's independent crusade limps home

WASHINGTON — Though depicted as a dyspeptic Don Quixote on messianic mission, Eugene J. McCarthy speaks more eminent good sense in this campaign than his "major party" opponents. Democrats gang up on him now, fearful he could cause Carter-Mondale to lose in some key states, but a vote for McCarthy is a vote for McCarthy. If a citizen thinks that way, it is not a wasted vote at all.

McCarthy is an independent candidate for President, and 35 per cent of the voters consider themselves independents. This 35 per cent deserves a choice beyond those offered by the Democratic and Republican parties. Political experts should stretch their minds some to realize there is space out there that is neither "liberal" nor "conservative."

How interesting that conservative columnists pay respectful attention to McCarthy, and that the only U.S. senator with enough courage to stand by him in his battle with the Federal Elections Commission was the sole elected Conservative Party member in Congress, James Buckley of New York.

How interesting, too, that the biggest debate over the McCarthy candidacy rages in liberal journals because they see him as a liberal who threatens a Democratic victory. And the American Civil Liberties Union and a crowd of home-town lawyers have fought for McCarthy's right to be on the ballot in many states.

If nothing else, McCarthy has performed an invaluable service this year in breaking down the unreasonable barriers to independent candidates (on all levels) in a collection of states.

California finally barred McCarthy from the ballot for an insufficient number of signatures, though it was the state government's ineptitude which shortchanged McCarthy by five days in the time limit his workers could collect such signatures.

Connecticut is more difficult than the Soviet Union for an independent candidate. It requires that the gatherer of petitions must go to the town clerk of each signer and swear that he, the gatherer, personally got that signature. Realistically, that means that gatherers would have to go to 100 town halls on the average. Mission: impossible.

West Virginia forbids its citizens from voting in the primary if they signed petitions to put candidates on the ballot. So McCarthy's folks had to destroy their West Virginia petitions, else the signers could be charged with a felony.

A number of states make it illegal to have an "independent" candidate. McCarthy's lawyers knocked those laws down in several states, including Texas where U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell ruled the remedy was to put McCarthy on the ballot.

"In Vermont, getting a signature was something like getting married," McCarthy observed. "You have to do it in front of a justice of the peace."

In New York, fretful Democrats are spending $100,000 in legal fees to scratch McCarthy's name from an already printed ballot.

Anyway, McCarthy is on the ballot in 30 states with a total of 360 electoral votes. He travels those states the best he can by commercial airlines, causing aides and newsmen to scramble for reservations. He is getting more attention in the press since he acquired the reputation of "spoiler." His national budget is far less than $1 million, a small fraction of what Carter and Ford are given by the federal government.

Unlike the common run of liberals, he is against breaking up the oil companies to improve the energy situation. "The oil companies hooked us on cheap fuel," he says. "What we should do is stop Detroit from building monstrous cars, save fuel, and develop the energy we have in the U.S."

He argues that the United States is "overdefended," says we have a stockpile of 615,385 nuclear weapons equal to the type we dropped on Hiroshima. He says the military got a "bum rap" for the mistakes of civilian leaders in the Vietnamese war.

Back in the Fifties and Sixties, McCarthy warned about the abuse of power in the Presidency, the FBI and CIA. He thinks the Vice Presidency is vastly overrated, and he believes Cabinets should be more like they are in Europe — more responsible to constituencies than to the President.

Like a man looking over mediocre merchandise, he doesn't find much to "spoil" in the 1976 election. "Both parties are militaristic," he says. "After Carter clarifies an issue, it's evident it was better when he was unclear. I suspected he would be bad. I don't say much about Ford. He's a standard projection of the Republicans. He's obvious. Maybe that's how he'll win."

If McCarthy has any consolation for his two-year struggle to become a viable candidate this year, it is that, "In the future, it will be a lot easier for an independent to run."

AUSTIN — Two members of the State Board of Insurance — both normally staid, dignified middle-aged men (one a former judge, one a former speaker of the House) — recently engaged in a fistfight over an administrative order during a board meeting.

The subject matter of that order was technical and obscure to most folks — it concerned the computation of surplus for dividend purposes.

After the brief brouhaha, both men sheepishly declined to comment, acting embarassed over the whole affair.

It's kind of embarassing, too, for a reporter who normally sees the two men in less dramatic circumstances (including church services) to have to ask for details about such an encounter.

But while no one would advocate settling governmental affairs along the lines of Mohammed Ali-George Foreman, it is good to see that state officials have strong feelings on matters.

Members of the Texas Aeronautics Commission also recently forget about due process and rules and regulations — and got down to trading punches.

Members of both the House and Senate have, in times past, and probably will at some future date, swap a few blows. It's both a Texas and American tradition.

There's less of that sort of thing these days, of course, than there has been.

Texas politics and politicians haven't ever been of the shrinking violet variety, even from the earliest days.

Texas' premier politico, Sam Houston, had his share of pugilistic encounters — and got put on trial for one such incident.

Houston, taking exception to some remarks by Congressman William Stanbery of Ohio regarding some contracts for Indian rations, caught Stanbery on a Washington street, and after calling him a "damned rascal," proceeded to thrash him with a hickory cane.

That created a sensation in 1832 — as it would today — but hardly finished off Houston's career. It might even have helped it.

And look at Gov. E. J. Davis back in the Reconstruction era.

Davis, for all that he was detested by 90 per cent of the white population, showed quite a bit of ingenuity — arresting half of the Senate after a tie vote on legislation he wanted passed (and then returning enough of the arrested Senate under guard to maintain a quorum).

Remember the famous "choking" incident where former land commissioner Jerry Sadler grabbed former Rep. Jake Johnson of San Antonio — by the tie, Sadler said; by the throat, Johnson said — during the flap over the Spanish galleon material salvaged by Platoro?

Sadler, incidentally, has been quoted as saying his race in 1938 for a Railroad Commission seat was so rugged that he got in 58 fist fights before he won.

And what about the wrestling match between Sen. Strom Thurmond and Sen. Ralph Yarborough (which Yarborough lost) when Yarborough attempted to drag Thurmond into a committee hearing?

Fortunately, we've come past the point where political opponents call one another out for coffee and pistols in the morning, like Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton.

Equally fortunately, we've not reached the point where government officials are so disinterested in what they're doing that they no longer get angry about anything.

An occasional fist fight and a little acrimony (with the adjectives emphasized) are okay.

It's when there's nothing left worth fighting about that we need to worry.

Try spending a billion dollars in two months

WASHINGTON — Something terrible happened in Washington last week. The federal government discovered that it was unable to spend $15 billion it had been authorized to use in the 1976 budget. Now most taxpayers would call such a happening a "windfall," but government economists call it a "shortfall" and are very distressed about it. Some officials predict that, if the "shortfall" continues until the end of this year, the bureaucracy may wind up with a $20 billion "surplus" which could destroy the credibility of the Office of Management and Budget, the Treasury and the White House, and put the economy in a slump. Worse, it could give government spending a bad name.

No one has been able to come up with an explanation as to why the government has been so lax in not using up the money allotted to it.

To find the answer I sought out my favorite government bureaucrat, Plotkin. He had just received a directive from the Office of Management and Budget that if his agency did not spend a billion dollars by January 1, Plotkin would receive a reprimand in his civil service record book.

He was drinking a bottle of Pepto Bismol when I walked in his office.

"What happened?" I asked him.

Plotkin looked at me. "I don't know what happened. When I made up my budget for 1976 I added an extra half-billion dollars because I was assured by my people that Congress would cut it out. Instead of cutting it, they voted to increase it by half a billion dollars. So I wound up with a billion dollars more than I needed."

"I would think that would make you happy."

"Have you ever tried to spend a billion dollars in two months?"

"I haven't," I admitted. "But my wife has."

The phone rang and Plotkin picked it up. "How many paper shredders did you buy? 1,000. What price? $75 each. Couldn't you get any for $250? Okay, buy them." He hung up. "A lousy $75,000 for paper shredders. The trouble with this agency is nobody thinks big. I told them to think of some $30 million and $50 million projects that we could fund immediately, and they come up with paper shredders." He took another shot of Pepto Bismol.

"You do have a problem," I admitted. "Why don't you build a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier?"

"That isn't my department. I'm in charge of Asphalt Safety and Quarry Inspection. I have to spend the money in these areas. Besides the Pentagon has underspent its budget by $5 billion and they're in more trouble than I am."

"Why don't you construct a new building?" I suggested.

"We're already constructing a new building," Plotkin replied. "But it's only going to cost $150 million."

"Maybe you could order a new 747 airplane to take you to regional meetings around the country."

"I thought of that, but OMB turned me down. They said it would look bad for the head of the Asphalt and Quarry Agency to fly in a bigger plane than the President of the United States. There's one idea that could save me. I'm thinking of building an asphalt pipeline from Alaska to Detroit. We could ship the asphalt by pipe instead of by ship and save the country millions of dollars."

"I didn't know Alaska had asphalt."

"It doesn't, dummy. The pipeline would ship the asphalt to Alaska."

"That should cost a billion dollars," I agreed.

Plotkin's secretary walked in. "There are six Brink's trucks downstairs with $200 million cash in them. The drivers want to know where they should put it."

Plotkin screamed, "I don't have any more room for money. My warehouses are full. Tell them to take it back to the Treasury."

The secretary said, "Treasury won't take it. They have to get rid of $3 billion by Christmas and if you don't take the money the drivers have orders to dump it on your lawn."

Mark Russell says

Even though he is very busy these days, Jimmy Carter still teaches Sunday school down in Plains. The biggest problem is fitting the press corps into those little seats.

•

The children in the Sunday school class are finally getting used to the cigar smoke and the poker games in the back row.

•

They're even accustomed to hearing Douglas Kiker singing "Jesus Wants Me For A Sunbeam."

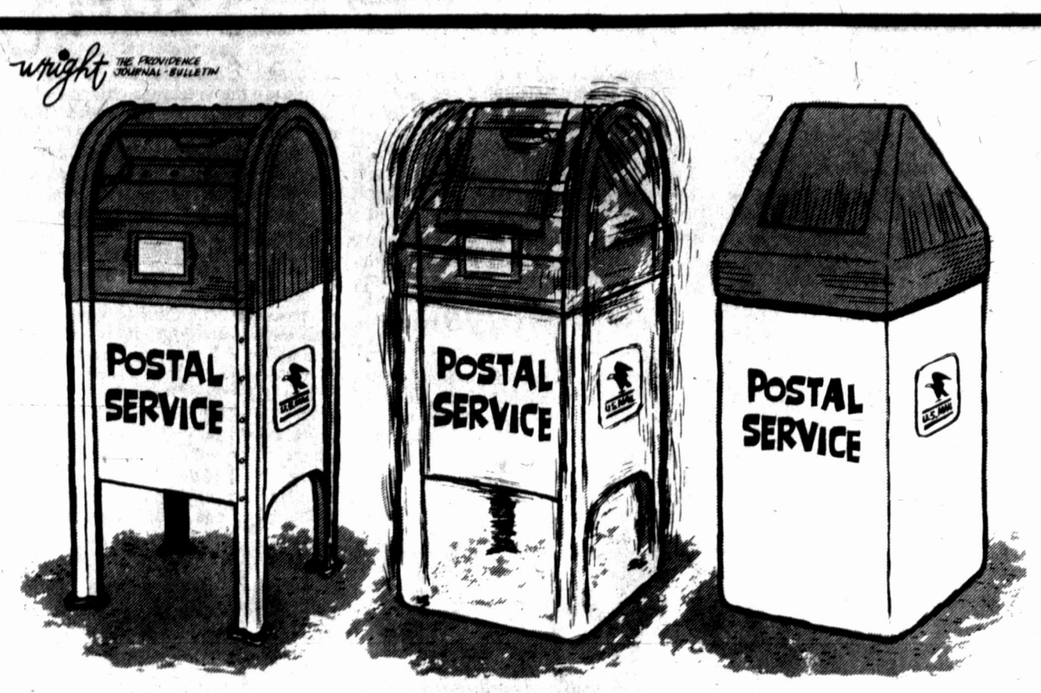

•

The newsmens' praying along with the class confuses them, however. They are beginning to believe that the last sentence of the 23rd Psalm is "Let's go get a beer."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Example bad

To The Editor:

Senator Walter Mondale on "Face The Nation" was so dominating the panel didn't get a chance to ask him questions.

One of the panel brought out that the Vietnam War was the cause of inflation, also the cause of the low unemployment during the war because so many American soldiers were employed fighting a tragic war in Vietnam, a war begun under the Democratic administration, and ended by the Republican administration.

This same war is also the main cause of unemployment now, because the Republicans brought all the soldiers home, causing an influx of men needing jobs that neither the Democrats nor Republicans can find jobs for everybody.

Senator Mondale's main theme is full employment — that's all he talks about, blaming unemployment on Nixon's and Ford's administrations. It's easy to make promises, but much harder to execute and carry out.

So all the wild and untried promises must be taken with a grain of salt. Most of Ronald Reagan's supporters will support President Ford because he didn't fall in the trap of "Playboy" magazine's plan to promote sales of their magazine. Ford said no! So did Paul Harvey.

"Time" magazine, a liberal publication in its 125 years of publication, never printed language like Jimmy Carter used in this "Playboy" interview. "Newsweek" used a blank for a four letter word.

This is hard to say, but when Jimmy Carter says: "I have committed adultery in my heart many times. This is something God recognizes I will do, and God forgives me for it. In my opinion, the worst is this. But that doesn't mean that I condemn someone who not only looks on a woman with lust, but leaves his wife and shacks up with somebody out of wedlock."

This is a very bad example to set before the youth of our country. I really can't believe he said it, but it's in plain print.

Views alarming

To The Editor:

In a recent letter to you, a Carter supporter stated that Gov. Carter had clearly set forth his positions and proposals in several publications available to any interested voter at the Democratic headquarters.

In view of my Republican prejudice and in the hope of finding some solution-oriented proposals, I accepted the invitation to examine the official Carter positions. The charge that Carter has been vague and three-sided may not be altogether warranted.

The following specifics were gleaned from the ten rather short documents obtained at the Democratic campaign office:

1 — Carter clearly advocated a greatly increased federal involvement in education (financially, conceptually and operationally).

2 — Carter categorically favors keeping the price of ALL U. S. oil below Arab prices.

3 — Carter plainly plans for short-term deregulation of natural gas until after the 1980 election (after which a drastic, imposed restructure of all natural gas contracts can be reasonably inferred from his official statement).

4 — Carter places his hope for a solution to the energy problem in a strong, reorganized "energy bureaucracy."

5 — Carter calls for "conservation pricing of energy" which taken in context reasonably implies direct new taxes to increase fuel prices to consumers without generating any funds to those seeking additional or new sources of energy (can this be Carter's plan to balance the budget and finance enormous new federal spending programs).

6 — Carter implies increased federal supervision of local courts and police to insure swift, firm punishment of all criminals.

7 — Carter plainly sees the federal government as the proper means for providing the individual with care (e. g. health care, housing, welfare . . .) which in the Judeo-Christian lifestyle is a family and church responsibility.

As ill-conceived as the Democratic nominee's energy rhetoric and neo-socialist programs are, they are not as ominous as Carter's intent to expand Washington-based control over education, local judicial and law enforcement operations and, perhaps, pure and simple family matters. Watergate still says that the end does not justify the means — humanism does not agree.

POSITIVE THINKING

The magic found in creative thinking

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Some time ago I talked at a luncheon meeting of a national organization of wholesalers and sat beside one of the leading figures in that industry. I knew him well as an old friend. But I was surprised to see him there because I knew he had suffered a heart attack. Yet he seemed in perfect health and happier than I remembered seeing him in recent years.

I was surprised a second time when the moment for the invocation came and the emcee called upon him. I was impressed by his invocation, every word of which came from the heart, displaying real sincerity and depth of belief.

As we talked during the luncheon I asked him, "Jim, how do you explain the fact that you seem so healthy and vital and dynamic? After your heart attack people said that you were out of commission, that you were all through."

"Perhaps I might have been," he replied. "But then I learned to think right, and as I began to practice right thinking, things changed for me. It all started with a line from the 139th Psalm: 'How precious also are thy thoughts unto me.'"

"When they laid me on my back in that hospital," he continued, "and told me that I would be there for a long time, you can imagine how despondent I was! Then one day I picked up a Bible I found on my night table and aimlessly looked through it. I hadn't read the Bible in years, and to my surprise it interested me. It gave me comfort and a sense of peace I had not known.

"That particular quotation started me trying to think the kind of thoughts I felt God wanted me to think. But I discovered that my mind was blocked by a mass of unhealthy thoughts; it was full of resentment and tension. I had acquired bad habits of thinking and living and was a completely negative thinker. The conviction came that I just had to break these sick mental habits if I wanted to be well. And I was loaded down with anxiety, too. Perhaps that was my worst trouble.

"Well," he went on, "I just simply decided to throw out this whole mess of lousy thinking. I had a mental and spiritual housecleaning. I tossed out all my hates, my tensions, my negativism, my anxieties. I did this by deciding I was through with all that stuff, and I meant it. And when you mean it things start happening. It wasn't easy and it took time, but I did a thorough job on myself. You can't imagine how healthy I've become." And he repeated the words, "How precious are thy thoughts unto me."

Since he was obviously a healthy person, it would be difficult to dispute the efficiency of his treatment. Of course he had the best of medical care, too, as he gratefully acknowledged, but it was the changed thinking that healed him.

No doubt there are many people reading this whose thoughts are bogged down with all manner of unhealthy irritations, frustrations, annoyances, resentments, hates, angers, fears and worries. The adverse effect of such thinking upon health and effectiveness is well known. If you carry thoughts of this kind around in your mind for weeks and months, even years, how can you expect to be strong and healthy?

Jim outlined a simple practice which helped him to change this condition. He called it the magic of creative thinking. It is simply the use of right thinking to permit healing spiritual power to surge through your mind, transmitting its health-giving effect to your whole being.

There is no easy religion or psychology. But I have found it very helpful to practice the simple procedures this prominent businessman worked out for himself.

1 — Get and hold the idea that you can improve your condition.

2 — Study yourself to determine how your unhealthy thinking may be affecting your physical well-being.

3 — Bring yourself to the point where you really want to break with your unhealthy thinking.

4 — Then make the break in your mind. You've got to mean it. Actually do it by saying, "I'm through with all that stuff."

5 — Ask God to help you, for you cannot do it yourself.

6 — Believe that God is helping you now, every day, all the way.

7 — Cooperate fully with your doctor, for this is a "God and the doctor" technique.

GOOD NEWS

Of seals beavers and men

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
Copley News Service

CAMDEN, Maine — This is a story about Fred, a beaver, and a report on Andre, the harbor seal.

They live about 30 miles apart in the Wiscasset and Camden areas of the rocky and beautiful coast of Maine.

Fred is about 5 years old. He has a wife and kids, and is working like a beaver laying in food and preparing for the long winter ahead.

He enjoys an unusual relationship with the man who lives near the beaver pond — coming up to him whenever he approaches, staying with him whenever he is in the woods and swimming happily with the man's dog.

Fred, in fact, never misses an opportunity for the company of the man and his dog.

The man does not feed his beaver friend — the attachment is companionship, not food. Each looks forward to seeing the other.

There is no hint today of the tragedy which drew Fred into the unbeaverlike association with his human neighbor. But nearly five years ago, during a time when trapping laws were briefly relaxed, trappers killed all the beavers in that pond except one. Fred, the lone survivor, lived on among the drowned bodies of all his family — not removed for weeks from the cruel traps.

Then one day, when the weather was fine, the man and his dog walked through the woods to the pond. Fred's extreme happiness in seeing them was immediately apparent.

His behavior communicated, without words, his great relief and joy to find other living creatures in the world.

Fred cannot know that the gentleman he likes so much, who owns his pond, was effective in changing the trapping laws.

But with his special judgment Fred does know this man is his friend.

Over in Rockport Andre is preparing for his annual trip south to the aquarium in Boston where he spends his winters. Next spring Harry Goodridge will take him to Marblehead, north of Boston, put him in the water and say, "Andre, go home." Three to four days later Andre will arrive in Rockport. As he makes the northern trek of 300 miles without navigational aids, other than the sensory ones in his body, sightings will be reported along his route.

Andre has become as well known on the coast of Maine as Sen. Ed Muskie. He is front-page newspaper copy.

Of their first meeting, Harry Goodridge says, "There was something special about Andre from the beginning. He came to me out of the sea that day, 15 years ago, as a dog comes to his friend and master, friendly and without fear."

He continues, "The soft eyes that met mine were completely trusting. Without realizing it, I made a commitment that day 15 years ago. There was no way of knowing at the time that Andre might be with me for life, his or mine."

The lot of an abandoned seal pup usually is slow starvation or sudden death by a great white shark.

Goodridge took the 19-pound pup home, succeeded in building a successful substitute mother from neoprene, weaned the baby seal to fish, gave him the run of the home and drove him to the harbor twice a day for a swim. There Andre enjoyed learning stunts and tricks to entertain the children and visitors.

The relationship between Goodridge and Andre has been one of friendship, trust and respect. It is not a master and pet situation. Goodridge early suspected that harbor seals had great intelligence and capacity for learning. His experiments with Andre have established this, and have also contributed much new information and understanding of this unique mammal. He is convinced most humans do not give animals and birds sufficient credit for their intelligence.

Andre's affection and loyalty to his human friend and family have never diminished despite his return to the sea for long periods of time as he grew larger and older. Human companionship is a necessity to him. He moves between two worlds. He can survive in the sea, finding his own food, traveling long distances, escaping hazards. But after an interval of living as a seal, he always returns to Rockport harbor to live among the people who gave him the title of Honorary Harbor Master.

Several summers ago Andre disappeared for a few weeks. A report came from down the coast that a "female seal named Josephine" was putting on exhibitions in the harbor for the children and that boys there were beginning to wear shoulder patches reading "Josephine-Watcher." Goodridge suspected that it might be Andre, and when he went to investigate he found he was right.

Now weighing 240 pounds, Andre can visit the Goodridge home only with the help of a carrying cage. He still enjoys the visits and is entirely housebroken. Goodridge says that to the best of his knowledge there has never been such a longtime relationship established in a wild creature's natural habitat. Enabling Andre to enjoy his two worlds safely and in good health has presented some real challenges and decisions for Goodridge.

Neither candidate debated issues as promised

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — What ails the campaign ailed the debates, and neither President Ford nor Jimmy Carter seems bent on curing it, despite their promises to take the high road and deal with the real issues.

For each candidate has been campaigning against created, in some instances distorted, perceptions of the other and his positions. The habit and the strategy may be too ingrained to change as the days dwindle down toward the election of a president.

In 4½ hours of nationally televised debates, neither Ford nor Carter broke major new ground. Instead, the debates were a process of rhetoric and rebuttal, with few memorable moments.

The 27 minutes off the air, when the sound failed during the first debate in Philadelphia, probably registers in more memories now than anything that was said when the system was working.

In San Francisco, the high point was a blunder, Ford's flat statement that there is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe.

It provided a week's diversion, although Ford finally admitted that he had erred.

In Williamsburg on Friday night, the debate finale was a study in etiquette, with both contestants wary of error in word or in image in the last, crucial phase of a close campaign.

An early question by Robert C. Maynard of the Washington Post summed up the campaign ailment. He said the indications are that voters are turned off by the low level of a campaign that has digressed from important issues into charges about brainwashing and blunders and Carter's interview with Playboy.

In turn, the candidates said they have no intention of spending the balance of the campaign discussing anything but the real concerns of the people.

"I hope that we can leave those issues in this next 10 days about personalities and mistakes of the past — we've both made some mistakes — and talk about unemployment, inflation, housing, education, taxation, government organization, stripping away of secrecy," Carter said.

An Analysis

Ford confessed to "rather graphic language," and pledged to try to stimulate the voters, to enlarge what now is expected to be a low election-day turnout.

Carter said later that Ford's advertising for the rest of the campaign will concentrate on personal attacks on him and untrue statements about his positions.

It may well; that's the way both candidates have played it so far.

Carter has said Ford was brainwashed about Eastern Europe, shows only callous disregard for American's unemployed and is an incompetent leader.

For his part, Ford has claimed Carter would increase taxes on all Americans earning over $14,000 a year, and wants to cut the defense budget by up to $15 billion.

Carter has said that neither is so, but that has not altered the Republican attack.

In fact, behind the rhetoric, the two men generally agree on goals: more jobs, less inflation, a balanced federal budget, a strong national defense.

Carter doesn't want to raise taxes on half the population, and the Republicans know it. Ford doesn't want massive unemployment, and the Democrats know that.

In fact, the complaints of campaign-watchers who say the candidates are not talking about the issues are unfounded. Carter and Ford speak regularly of taxes, jobs, inflation.

But each side is so intent on attacking its created perceptions of the other that the campaign has all but ignored the real difference between the candidates: the proper way to attain common goals that are about as controversial as motherhood.

Carter's is the more interventionist course. He would have government do more, and probably cost more. But he is no all-out liberal. There was a note of caution as he promised in the debate to work for high goals, great things. "We might have to do it slowly," he said.

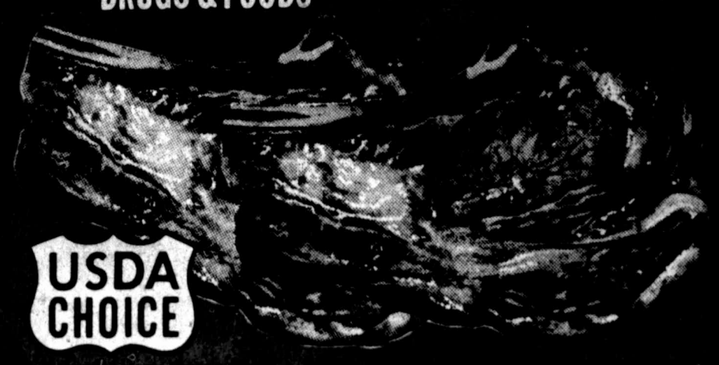

Ford, counted among the more conservative Republicans in his congressional days, insists that the system will work best without massive spending programs, with less reliance on government and more on business and the individual.

In Friday night's debate, that basic difference was summed up in one exchange, on civil rights and government programs to help blacks and other minorities.

"...We have carried out the law to the letter, and I am proud of the record," said Ford.

Proposed bonds for reservoirs, sewage key issue

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texans will decide Nov. 2 whether they want to issue up to $500 million in bonds for new reservoirs and sewage improvement projects.

And part of the two-proposition package has become one of the most controversial issues in the otherwise quiet general election campaign as far as statewide issues are concerned.

On the ballot, the two proposed changes in the state constitution will look something like this:

—Amendment No. 1, authorizing the issuance of an additional $400 million in Texas Water Development Bonds; requiring legislative approval of certain projects; prohibiting the use of certain state funds for development of water resources from the Mississippi River.

—Amendment No. 2, authorizing the issuance of an additional $100 million in Texas Water Development Bonds for water quality enhancement purposes.

The two proposals make 351 proposed changes to the 1876 state constitution of which 220 were adopted by voters. This does not include the entire proposed new constitution that was voted down in 1975.

Proposition No. 1, which has raised the most controversy, would increase by $400 million the amount of water development bonds that could be issued to finance such projects as reservoirs, wells, pipelines and purification facilities needed by Texas cities and towns.

Voters in past elections approved the original $400 million of which about $280 million have been issued. At current demand rates, the Texas Water Development Board thinks the remaining bond funds will be exhausted by 1980.

Both propositions have been endorsed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton, along with a number of big name water association officials.

But No. 1 has aroused considerable opposition from the League of Women Voters, Citizens Against Water Taxes, and several environmental groups.

"This is a $400 million blank check for six people appointed by the governor to spend," said Richard Shannon, a spokesman for Environmental Action for Texas, said at one public hearing.

The Water Development Board should present a plan for future water development before asking voters to approve additional bonds, said Linda Ladendorff, president of the League of Women Voters in Victoria.

"It's corporate socialism, soaking the public for a few special interests," said John Henry Faulk, Madisonville, speaking for Citizens Against Water Taxes.

"The people of Texas, whether they live in a rural or an urban environment, must have adequate water of good quality for their needs," said Briscoe. "Approval of the amendment will help assure the people of Texas their water requirements will be met."

"We, as responsible citizens, must look to the needs of the future, not merely enjoy the benefits someone else's foresight years ago has provided for us," said Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo.

In 1969, Texans defeated a Texas Water Plan that called for importing Mississippi River water. The ban on Mississippi River water was written into the proposed constitution change but opponents are still suspicious an out of state water importation plan is hidden in the Water Development Board plans.

There has been no organized opposition to Propostion No. 2 which authorizes an increase from $100 million to $200 million in the amount of bonds that may be issued for water quality enhancement. These "clean water" bonds would be used by cities and towns to improve sewage treatment facilities.

"We are concerned that opposition to No. 1 could have an adverse effect on No. 2," Josiah Wheat, Woodville, chairman of Texans for Clean Water, told a news conference.

Wheat says that a lot of local sewage plants were built many years ago and need to be replaced or upgraded. "Construction is so costly that many towns, particularly the smaller communities, simply cannot raise money locally to finance such expensive construction. On the other hand, federal grant money is not available to many of them within a practical time frame, so their only recourse is a loan from the state," he said.

Wheat said the bonds would be self-liquidating as cities and towns paid off the loans, but the fund would not be revolving.

Ford, Hays, not Carter, make Green Book

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford made it. Jimmy Carter didn't. And Earl Butz just squeaked by.

The 1977 Washington social list, the unofficial guide to who ranks and who doesn't, is just off the presses. But come election day, much of it may be obsolete.

Known as the Green Book by its kelly green suede cover, the list covers White House personnel, members of Congress, 131 ambassadors and many of the capital's socially secure.

But even those who fork over $26.25 to know whom to seat below the salt will have to wait until February for an election year supplement. For after all, if Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter has his way, the capital's seating charts will undergo considerable changes after the election.

Anyone guilty of "unpleasant notoriety" is also scratched from the list. But there is clearly a double standard in the Green Book, one for members of Congress and another for just plain high society.

Former Rep. Wayne Hays is still on the list, even though he resigned his congressional seat in the wake of Elizabeth Ray's charge that he put her on the government payroll solely for sex. So is Rep. Wilbur Mills, despite carrying on with stripper Fanne Fox and his admitted alcoholism.

Rep. John Young, who never denied having a torrid affair with a young member of his staff, and Rep. Allan Howe, convicted of propositioning a police decoy, also remain in the book.

"In a nonelection year, a few congressional names would have been dropped," a Green Book news release said, "but it was believed that the upcoming elections, plus resignations, solved the problem."

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, whose obscene gesture to a group of protesters offended some folks, is still in. So is Earl Butz, Ford's former secretary of agriculture, who was forced recently to resign after making derogatory and obscene comments about black people.

"Rockefeller is vice president," explained a Green Book staffer, emphasizing the word "is." And it seems Butz made his comments after the book went to press. "It was just too late," the staffer said, shaking her head.

The Green Book has been published every year since 1930. Publisher Carolyn Hagner Shaw, a self-appointed arbiter of the fortunes and faux pas of the capital's VIPs, is 72 and has been ill for some time. The book is now edited by her daughter, Jean Shaw Murray.

Green Book staffers insist that neither Mrs. Shaw nor her daughter make the final decisions on who's in and who's out but that they are made by a "board." But trying to determine who makes up this so-called board is like belching at the White House. The Green Book disapproves.

School to hire collection agency

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Pan American University regents voted 5-1 Saturday to hire Financial Collection Agencies, Ltd. of Montreal, Canada, to collect $56,000 in fees and loans owed by ex-students for more than a year.

Vice Chairman Ruben R. Cardenas of McAllen said the firm was the largest collection agency in the world.

Robert Crane, university vice president for business, told the board underground newspapers explain to students how to file bankruptcy papers, but after the meeting he admitted the hiring of the collection agency would have no effect on the bankruptcy problem.

Moises V. Villa of Harlingen voted against hiring the agency after saying a "hold harmless" provision in the contract might not be sufficient to keep the university from being sued if the agency harasses the debtors.

Crane said the contract does not mention it, but the agency is insured against such suits up to $5 million.

Cardenas said the contract forbids the agency to "use any threats, intimidation or harassment."

Ford, Carter take to trail for final campaigning

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

Their last debate apparently inconclusive, President Ford and Jimmy Carter set forth on the season's final political trek Saturday, each hoping his path will lead to a four-year stay in the White House.

Neither candidate claimed victory in the Friday night face-off, and an Associated Press poll rated the encounter a virtual toss up.

Democrat Carter moved through the East on Saturday, stopping first in New Jersey, then heading to Virginia and from there back to his Georgia home.

Ford's route from the Williamsburg, Va., took him to the state capitol in Richmond, then south to the Carolinas and later west to court the nation's largest cache of electorial votes in California.

"I hope you won't give up," Carter told a crowd in North Bergen, N.J., as he encouraged them to vote Nov. 2.

With less than a fortnight left before Americans choose their leader for the next four years, Carter aides say that voter apathy is the biggest threat to their candidate's aspirations.

Ford's schedule will keep him on the road until election day.

"Some people have been saying I've been biding my time in the White House," he said in a speech at Raleigh, N.C. Then he listed states he has visited since Labor Day, a list embracing most regions of the country. He added, "I don't think that's hiding out in Washington, D.C."

Republican vice presidential candidate Bob Dole made a hastily-arranged foray into Florida, trying to capitalize on new GOP polls he said show the state swinging toward Ford. Dole said these polls show the ticket trailing the Democrats in Florida by four points, compared to a 20 point deficit earlier. Dole gave no specifics.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale planned to spend the weekend resting at home in Washington.

Friday night's debate was cautious affair with both candidates wary of making a slip this late in the contest.

Both said they had enjoyed the televised confrontations, however, with Carter noting that the voters will decide who won.

The comparative qualifications of the two men for the presidency and the state of the economy drew the sharpest exchanges of the Friday night finale, but over-all both candidates echoed their campaign speeches.

An Associated Press poll of 1,027 voters following the last debate showed 35.5 per cent fper cent viewing Carter as victor and 31.4 per cent either undecided or rating it a draw. But with a sample this size there is a 2.9 per cent margin for error, either way.

Moreover, interviewers for the survey found a smaller percentage of the preselected sample at home and having watched the debate than after the two previous debates. Those voters who did watch tended to be older and were slightly more likely to be Republicans than Democrats.

In his final debate summary Ford said he had taken office during troubled times and now "the American people are moving again, and moving in the right direction."

Carter responded that Ford has been President for more than 800 days and "I'd like to ask the American people what's been accomplished."

Ford was asked about figures indicating there was a pause in the nation's recovery from the economic recession.

"... Most economists, regardless of their political philosophy, indicate that this pause for a month or two was healthy," he said.

Ford added that "the United States' economic recovery from the recession of a year ago is well ahead of the economic recovery of any major free industrial nation in the world today ... We're going to see unemployment going down, more jobs available, and the rate of inflation going down."

"With all due respect to President Ford," responded Carter "I think he ought to be ashamed of mentioning that statement, because we have the highest unemployment rate now than we had at any time between the Great Depression caused by Herbert Hoover and the time President Ford took office."

Even as he stepped forth on his last campaign trip, Ford's aides announced an extensive media blitz in several large states, involving 30-minute television broadcasts aimed at each state, a series of half-hour network telecasts and several five-minute nationwide radio broadcasts in the election home stretch.

Dole told a shopping center crowd estimated at 2,000 in Hialeah, Fla., that he felt Ford was the clear winner of Friday night's debate.

Trustees seek evaluation

Midland school trustees are scheduled to set the format for community meetings designed to find out what Midlanders want from their schools at Tuesday's regular school board meeting.

The meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. in the school administration building.

At its Oct. 12 meeting, the board agreed to hold a series of six community meetings to find out what the primary concerns of Midland school patrons are. The meetings will be the first step in the process of setting goals for the school district.

The trustees also are scheduled to hear a report on the school district's status on complying with federal Title IX regulations which prohibit sex discrimination. The self-study was required by federal regulations.

Generally, the committee compiling the report found the school district does not discriminate, although the study does contain several recommendations for change.

In executive session, the school board is due to consider possible courses of action in response to a U.S. Justice Department directive which said the school district cannot continue to elect its trustees in the way that it has since 1974.

The department acted under the Voting Rights Act which gives it jurisdiction over election changes since 1972.

Attorney Charles Tighe will brief the trustees on what their options are. Two possible courses of action would be to return to the at-large system in effect before 1974 or to go to court in an effort to keep the present system.

In other action, the board is scheduled to begin consideration on appointment of textbook committee members.

This committee will recommend textbooks for the district from among those approved at the state level, Dr. James H. Mailey, superintendent of schools, said.

The board is slated also to act on bids to reroof and paint the exterior of the Carver Building, which is being renovated for use as a cultural exchange center as part of the Midland desegregation settlement.

Other items on the agenda include football game reports, bids for additional band blazers for Edison Freshman School and for band instruments and monthly financial reports and action.

Peacekeepers maintained

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Security Council has approved a one-year extension for the U.N. peacekeeping force in the Sinai desert.

The council voted 13-0 Friday to extend until Oct. 24, 1977, the mandate for the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF) separating Israeli and Egyptian troops in the desert. China and Libya did not vote.

Both Israel and Egypt had agreed to the extention.

UNEF is made up of 4,174 men from Australia, Canada, Finland, Ghana, Indonesia, Poland and Sweden. The force patrols a buffer zone 185 miles long, from the Mediterranean to the Gulf of Suez, and up to 25 miles wide in places.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said the extension would cost about $83 million. The resolution extending the force asks that it be maintained with "maximum efficiency and economy." Sources said this reflected complaints by the Soviet Union that UNEF is too expensive.

The six-month mandate for the 1,194-man U.N. Disengagement and Observer Force in the Golan Heights buffer zone, separating Israeli and Syrian forces, does not expire until Nov. 30.

Carter predicts attacks

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Jimmy Carter is predicting that President Ford's advertising campaign in the closing days of the presidential race will focus on "personal attacks on me and my family."

After Friday's final televised debate with Ford, the Democratic nominee said "the personal attacks back and forth" and allegations should end.

But he told reporters he had heard that "a major portion" of Ford's advertising budget for the next 10 days will be spent on personal attacks.

Jimmy Carter
On Deregulation Of Gas . . .

"Our natural gas supply is rapidly approaching critically low levels. As our shallower wells gradually become exhausted, we must depend more and more on deeper wells to supply our natural gas needs. Under the present regulated price structure, producers who attempt to exploit these deeper wells are forced to take a loss on every cubic foot of gas they produce.

We need to deregulate the price of gas for a period of five years. During this time, presently existing contracts will remain in force. At the end of a five-year period, the success of the programs should be evaluated and appropriate new actions taken.

Such a policy would help ensure an adequate supply of gas during the coming years.

It is certainly not possible or necessary for us to be energy independent by 1985, but we should be free from possible blackmail or economic disaster which might be caused by another boycott. Our reserves should be developed, imports kept at manageable levels, standby rationing procedures evolved, and aggressive economic reprisals should await any boycotting oil supplier.

With proper national planning and determined execution of long-range goals, energy conservation and development can be completely compatible with environmental quality and economic well-being. The elimination of waste, and technological advances into new energy fields along with our current resources can result in enhanced employment opportunities without any reduction in the quality of our economic lives."

PRESIDENT FORD and son Jack wave from the opening in the top of the presidential limousine Saturday as they drive through the crowds attending the North Carolina State Fair at Raleigh.

Politics is fun to Betty

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Betty Ford says her campaign credo is "You might as well have fun in politics."

That's why she mischieviously pinned a button on the lapel of Democratic vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale, saying "Keep Betty in the White House."

It happened when their paths crossed at a Pulaski Day Parade in Buffalo, N.Y., and it's typical of Mrs. Ford's spontaneity on the campaign trail.

Mrs. Ford hasn't been campaigning as strenuously as Rosalyn Carter. There have been fewer trips and fewer stops along the way. But she has been out there, going to a college football game in Boulder, Colo., or a fund-raising dinner in Los Angeles or a door-to-door canvass in a Polish neighborhood in Pittsburgh.

Her style is slow-paced and friendly. A farewell kiss for a young advance man in Hollywood. A nose rub for a pet llama someone introduced to her at a rally in Olympia, Wash. Warm handshakes for all the police motorcycle riders who escort her.

But campaigning with Betty Ford is also pampered politicking, mainly because the 58-year-old First Lady suffers frequently from neck and shoulder pains from osteo-arthritis. She is also just completing two years of chemotherapy following her breast cancer operation.

Her travels are carefully programmed to avoid over-taxing her. Even so, Mrs. Ford often shows signs of strain during her public appearances. She sometimes needs help getting in and out of cars or rising after kneeling in church.

Peter Sorum, chief advance man for the First Lady for the past two years, says an effort is made to concentrate on one event a day for Mrs. Ford. The three-member advance team usually counts on local Republicans to advise on where the action is, such as attending a Colorado-Nebraska college football game where there was a record turnout of 53,538 fans.

Mrs. Ford's main role is just to give "a Ford presence," particularly in areas where the polls indicate a close contest with Democrat Jimmy Carter.

"It's silly to go where you have the votes," Mrs. Ford says.

She shies away from formal speeches and makes what Press Secretary Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld calls "a few remarks" at rallies and receptions. Mrs. Ford, once a professional dancer, has a good stage presence and delivery, but her comments, with certain memorable exceptions, rarely make news.

Mrs. Ford says she likes campaigning and promises to be "traveling all the time" until Nov. 2. She says she would like to keep things low key as she campaigns to get "a man of experience" (Guess who?) elected president in November.

"I have no particular desire to become involved in issues," she said on a recent campaign trip. "It's only due to certain positions I've been put into that I have become involved in issues."

She was referring to questions raised at impromptu news interviews she gives as she travels. On this trip, she kept getting questions about Ford's controversial statement on Soviet domination of Eastern Europe. She plunged into the issue and misspoke herself, referring to "President Carter" and "Senator Carter."

From the time she commented on abortion at her first news conference in 1974 and a year later answered a television interviewer's question about what she'd do if her daughter had an affair, Mrs. Ford has been getting into controversy.

"I always speak my mind. I'm quite frank," she says.

Survey almost even on who won debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The final presidential debate between President Ford and Jimmy Carter produced a neareven split among viewers over the winner, according to an Associated Press poll.

A post-debate survey late Friday of 1,027 persons found 35.5 per cent thought Ford won, 33.1 per cent picked Carter and 31.4 per cent didn't know or called it a draw. The poll also showed, however, that the viewing audience was relatively older and relatively more Republican than registered voters as a whole.

The difference of 2.4 percentage points between Ford and Carter was close enough to be within the possible margin of statistical error for a sample of this size.

Thus, the result is too close to warrant a definite finding that either man won the debate in the eyes of all viewers, were they to be polled.

Among persons who watched the debate, Ford and Carter each gained a bit of new strength. While 47.9 per cent of that group favored Ford before the debate, 49.0 per cent said afterward that they were committed or leaning to him. Carter's support moved from 43.4 per cent to 44.9 per cent.

These figures don't mean, however, that Ford is necessarily leading among all voters.

Whether it was competing high school football games, traditional Friday night dating patterns or something else, the viewing audience showed a falloff of young adults and Democrats, both groups favorable to Carter.

In the week before the debate, Chilton Research Services of Radnor, Pa., recruited for the poll a panel of 1,602 persons who agreed to take a post-debate phone call asking for their views.

Of this group, 45.5 per cent called themselves Democrats and 26.0 per cent said they were Republicans. In the hour after the debate, telephone interviewers reached 1,027 from that group who said they had watched it on television.

Among the 1,027, however, 43.7 per cent said they were Democrats and 29.1 called themselves Republicans, a narrowing of nearly five points in the difference in party allegiance.

Likewise, the proportion of persons under age 30 slipped from 25.3 per cent in the panel of 1,602 to 22.3 per cent in the group which actually watched. However, the proportion of respondents older than 60 rose from 22.6 per cent to 25.1 per cent.

The poll showed viewers 50 or over thought Ford won by a margin of 39-27 per cent, but those under 50 picked Carter 37.5 to 33. As expected, Republicans heavily picked Ford as the winner and Democrats picked Carter.

In similar polls taken the nights of the first two debates, there had not been a comparable falloff in proportional viewing among certain identifiable blocs.

While 71 per cent of the original panels recruited for the first and second debate interviews actually watched the contests, only 64 per cent of the comparable group watched this time. The first two debates were held on midweek nights at the same hour as Friday's debate.

Costly marriage seminar flops big in huge garden

By JOHN BARBOUR

NEW YORK (AP) — A twice-divorced multi-millionaire put up more than $100,000 to hold a seminar Saturday on unwise marriage and expensive divorce, in the hopes that others would profit from his mistakes.

It played to what was probably the smallest crowd in Madison Square Garden history — something like 200 people rattling around in the 20,000 seat hall.

But David I. Levine, a land developer whose Tidewater real estate empire is worth more than $10 million, smiled philosophically and says it was worth the publicity for his minicrusade to bring reason to society's most widely broken social contract.

"There were 900,000 divorces in 1974," he began. "There were 1,050,000 divorces in 1975. "That's a 16 to 17 per cent increase.

"Projecting this for 10 years, without weighing factors like remarriages, new marriages and the fact that every year more and more states are making divorces easier to obtain, I came up with the terrifying figure of 10 million persons being divorced in the single year, 1986."

The guests, seated in the orange seats that cost Levine $500 a head to fill, originally were to have paid $12 apiece to attend. Levine waived the charge when so few showed up. One of the reasons was that the $20,000 advertising campaign for the event listed the wrong phone number and "some poor woman in New Rochelle" got all the inquiries.

The program was pithy and varied, with lawyers carefully explaining the vagaries of marriage and divorce laws, a mime demonstrating nonverbal communication which could be useful in some marital situations, a poet-therapist, and a pretty 20-year-old poetess and former model, Sandi Piercall, who used to live with Levine, reciting her own poetry, to wit:

"The next time I fall in love

"I will not fall so blind.

"I'll keep my eyes wide open

"and leave my heart behind ...

Levine, 58, of Norfolk, Va., is serious about the need for uniform divorce laws, and especially about education in high school and college to make sure young people know what marriage, and divorce, is all about.

In short, he believes in marriage more than in divorce. But he believes in survival, too.

He said he has just contracted with Bantam Books to publish a tract, as yet unwritten, on the subject, and is meeting with various groups interested in setting up a national organization to espouse the rights of single people, tentatively named "Singles Unlimited."

Haydn exhibition scheduled

VIENNA (AP) — Esterhazy Palace in Eisenstadt, Austria, will house a large-scale exhibition portraying the life and period of composer Joseph Haydn.

Cultural institutions throughout Europe will contribute to the display, scheduled to open in 1979. It will be jointly funded by Austria's Ministry of Science and Research and the provincial governments of the Burgenland, Lower Austria and Vienna.

The palace is where Haydn was appointed assistant director of music to Prince Paul Anton Esterhazy in 1761. Five years later the composer was named director of music, remaining in that post until 1790.

The Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA) Dixtrict XVIII convention in Midland Nov. 4 and 5 will feature two noted educators as speakers, Dr. Nicholas J. Silvaroli of Tucson, Aris., and Dr. James Blakely of Wharton.

Silvaroli, director of reading at Arizona State University, will speak at the general session for elementary teachers at 10 a.m. Friday at Midland High School.

Jo Ellen Meeks

Grace Grimes

Blakely, former president of Wharton County Junior College, will address the general session for secondary school personnel at 10 a.m. Friday at Lee High School.

Mrs. Grace Grimes, state president of TSTA, will speak briefly at both sessions.

At the session for secondary teachers, Mrs. Jo Ellen Meeks of Odessa, district TSTA president, will preside and Dr. James Mailey, Midland superintendent of schools, will give the welcome.

Lynn Hise of Big Spring, president elect of the district, will preside at the session for elementary school personnel and Garland Chapman, assistant superintendent of schools in Midland, will give the welcome.

More than 4,000 TSTA members are expected for the conventions, Mrs. Meeks said. Many of the public schools in the district will dismiss classes Nov. 5 so their teachers can attend as part of in-service training.

District XVIII covers Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reagan, Terrell, Upton and Winkler counties.

The convention will begin with certification of delegates from 24 TSTA local associations to the district house of delegates at 5:15 p.m. Nov. 4 in the Lee cafeteria. A dinner for the delegates will be followed by the annual business meeting.

Mrs. Grimes will speak and Adolph "Ed" Kunz of Odessa will present the district treasurer's report.

Mrs. Elayne Hunt of Odessa, one of six Texas members on the board of directors of the National Education Association will present a report from that organization.

Arturo H. Gonzalez of Odessa, district membership chaman, will present the membership report. TSTA has a statewide membership goal of 155,000, including 4,215 in District XVIII.

Wilburn Buttery, principal at Fannin Elementary School and immediate past president of the district, will give the nominating committee report and the delegates will elect new district officers for the 1977-78 school year. Present officers will serve through May 31, 1977.

Thirty six section meetings will be held in the morning or at noon Nov. 5, combined with breakfasts or luncheons, or in the afternoon.

Teton collapse being checked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Interior Department Study says there is a strong possibility that human error caused the collapse of Idaho's Teton Dam last June 5, a disaster that claimed 11 lives and caused millions of dollars in property damage.

But the review panel said Friday six potential causes of the collapse are still under investigation and it will be unable to reach any final conclusions this year. In its second interim report, the Interior Department's Teton Dam Failure Review Group said the two most likely causes pointed to human error in the dam's design and construction.

Dennis N. Sachs, chairman of the panel, said in an interview the group was not ready to place any blame for the disaster.

Teton Dam, built near Rexburg, Idaho, by the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation, was a 306-foot-high wall of earth, wedged in a steep-sided valley of crack-riddled rocks.

Engineers knew that water could not be allowed to seep heavily through the cracked rock because it would erode the dam's earthen interior.

To prevent that, the builders dug a trench along the dam's foundation and up its abutments in the valley walls, and filled the trench with fine, silty earth which was supposed to block water flow.

They also filled large cracks in the foundation and abutment rock with concrete, a process called "grouting."

In June, while the water behind Teton Dam was rising for the first time, a whirlpool appeared near its right abutment, apparently indicating a rapid leak. Within hours, the dam burst near that spot.

In its report Friday, the review panel said the most likely cause of the failure was cracking within the silt core of the dam that could have resulted from uneven settling at the steep slope of the right abutment. Sachs said that despite the settling the collapse still could have been avoided if the material in the core and the trench were flexible enough to stretch — but it was not.

The report said water pathways into the dam also could have resulted if the builders failed to pack the fill material tight enough.

In either case, the report said, water seepage could have been excessive if the cracks in the foundation and abutment rock were not adequately waterproofed — or grouted — with concrete.

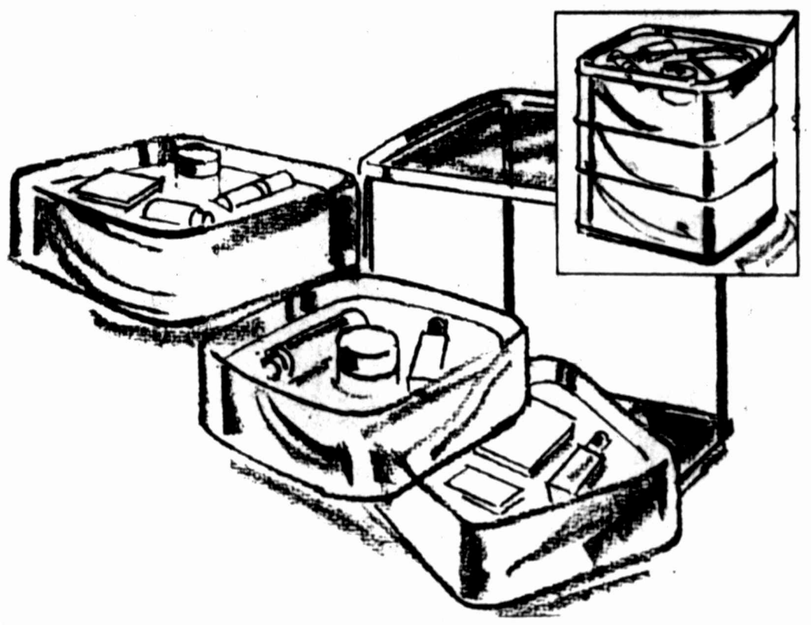

"The procedure was not systematic," the report said. It said inspectors told the panel that joints with openings less than a quarter of an inch were not reinforced. And, the report said, above a certain point in the canyon wall, cracks in the rock walls of the trench were not grouted at all.

The report said the second most likely cause of the failure may have been the practice of packing the dam's earthen core on top of irregularities in the rock. They said this may have created soft spots — or arching that were easily eroded by water.

James D. McClary, board chairman of Morrison-Knudsen Co. Inc., one of the supervising building firms, responded to the report by remarking: "as we've said before, we built the dam under the supervision and quality control of the Bureau of Reclamation. Even this arching is something I don't think we should be too concerned about."

Oklahoma State Cowboys brand Sooners

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Running back Terry Miller rambled for 159 yards and senior quarterback Charlie Weatherbie came off the bench to direct Oklahoma State to three second-half scores as the Cowboys upset fifth-ranked Oklahoma 31-24 Saturday.

It was only Oklahoma's second loss in 41 games under Coach Barry Switzer and dropped the Sooners from the unbeaten ranks this season.

THE COWBOYS, with freshman Harold Bailey a surprise starter at quarterback, jumped off to a 10-0 lead early in the first quarter with one of the scores coming on a 72-yard scamper by Miller.

But the Sooners got three long-range touchdowns—one of them when tackle Richard Murray took a mid-air fumble and raced 21 yards into the end zone—to lead 14-10 after the first period and 24-13 at the half.

WEATHERBIE, relegated to the second team for the first time this season, came in early in the third period after Cowboy end Daria Butler recovered a Sooners fumble on the Oklahoma 32. Weatherbie hit Gerald Bain on a 16-yard pass to put the ball on the 10 and two plays later Skip Taylor scored on a six-yard run, then caught a Weatherbie pass for a two-point conversion as the Cowboys cut the deficit to 24-21.

Weatherbie hit Ricky Taylor on a five-yard toss for the winning touchdown with 6:46 left. Abbie Daigle connected on a 46- yard field goal, his third of the day, with 3:34 left and the Cowboys held on for the win, breaking a nine-game Sooners victory string in the bitter intrastate rivalry.

O-State's final two scores came after punts of only 26 and 11 yards by Oklahoma's Mickey Hatcher. The Sooners, now 5-1-1 over-all and 2-1 in the Big Eight Conference, got the ball twice in the final three minutes but couldn't get past mid-field, with Willie Lester intercepting a Dean Blevins pass to sew up the win with 36 seconds left.

IT WAS a wild first half as the touchdowns by both teams were scored in cross-country fashion. After Miller tallied on his 72- yard jaunt and Daigle hit on a 25-yard field goal, Oklahoma got on the scoreboard when fullback Jimmy Culbreath ran 37 yards up the middle on a fourth-and-one situation.

Murray's mid-air fumble recovery for a scoring run made it 14-10, and halfback Elvis Peacock raced 84 yards for a touchdown early in the second period. A 35-yard three-point boot by Daigle cut the margin to 21-13 at intermission.

THE SOONERS were thoroughly out-muscled by the Cowboys in the second half and managed only three points on a 27-yard field goal by Uwe von Schamann after they successfully pulled off an on-side kick to start the third quarter.

The win gave the Cowboys a 4-3 over-all mark and a 2-1 Big Eight record.

Raiders thump Wildcats

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Billy Taylor, Larry Isaac and Rodney Allison plundered Arizona unmercifully Saturday as unbeaten, 8th-ranked Texas Tech romped over the Wildcats 52-27 in an intersectional football contest.

Isaac and Allison tagged the Wildcat defense for a pair of touchdowns each, while Taylor was shredding the visitors for 173 yards rushing and another touchdown.

However, it was Richard Arledge's fumble recovery in the Arizona end zone that enabled the Red Raiders to take a meager seven-point lead into the halftime break at 28-21.

The last time the Raiders opened a campaign with five straight victories was 1941. They face their severest test next Saturday in a Southwest Conference showdown with Texas.

Arizona quarterback Marc Lunsford kept the Western Athletic Conference Wildcats in the battle with two touchdowns tosses, hurling a 14-yarder to flanker Charles Nash and a 39-yarder to Keith Hartwig.

The other Wildcat touchdown came on a four-yard run by tailback Derrek Anderson.

The offensive fireworks included a 35-point first quarter, but it was a couple of one-yard touchdown punches by Allison in the second half that secured the victory for the Raiders, appearing before an appreciative audience of 44,890.

Arizona is now 3-3 for the year.

The final quarter was almost as chaotic as the first with Tech shoving across two more touchdowns and a field goal and Hartwig retrieving another scoring pass for Arizona.

Brian Hall, who kicked seven of seven extra points, triggered the fourth-quarter point flurry with a 28-yard field goal and Allison followed with his second one-yard touchdown.

Mark Julian ended the Tech scoring with a 20-yard touchdown romp and then Hartwig's 33-yard reception on a pass from Jim Krohm capped it for Arizona with eight seconds left.

Taylor got his personal record high 173 yards on 19 carries. He knifed through the Wildcat defense for 58 yards and scored from the two as the Raiders took the opening kickoff and drove 80 yards to the Arizona goal.

Isaac scooted eight yards for his first touchdown at the end of an 80-yard drive and then streaked 40 yards for his second.

Lunsford's passing kept the Wildcats in the thick of the battle, but Arledge broke their spirit when he emerged from a mad scuffle in the Arizona end zone with a Lunsford fumble.

The Red Raiders, with Isaac getting 102 yards, rolled up 428 yards and got 136 more in the air as Allison hit on 7 of 14 passes.

Lunsford was true on 13 of 22 passes for 169 yards.

Missouri's record pass upends Nebraska, 34-24

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Peter Woods and Joe Stewart combined on a record 98-yard pass play Saturday, lifting No. 17 Missouri to a 34-24 upset over third-ranked Nebraska in a Big Eight Conference football game.

THE NATIONALLY televised tilt featured a see-saw first half and was still in doubt until Tim Gibbons iced it for the Missouri Tigers with a 34-yard field goal with 1:19 remaining in the game.

Woods' go-ahead scoring pass earlier in the fourth quarter was a record by a Big Eight Conference passer, besting the 97-yard 1965 effort by Kansas' Bill Fenton to Willie Ray Smith in a Kansas-Texas Tech game.

Nebraska's hopes faded with five minutes left when a broken Nebraska play led to Dave Shamblin's fumble, which was recovered by Missouri's Bruce Carter.

NEBRASKA HAD one more shot after the fumble, but Cornhuskers quarterback Vince Ferrragamo's pass was intercepted by Mark Kirkpatrick.

Nebraska's only second half scoring came from field goals of 20 and 21 yards by Al Eveland, the second giving the Huskers a 24-23 lead before Woods came back with his game-breaking touchdown strike.

FOR MOST of the season, Woods has been tagged the Tigers' No. 2 quarterback. But he has logged more playing time because of an injury to top signal-caller Steve Pisarkiewicz.

Handling the running chores the bulk of the afternoon for Missouri was Dean Leibson, a replacement I-back for the injured Curt Brown, the Big Eight Conference's leading rusher.

The teams matched each other with three touchdowns each in the first half. But two Missouri kick conversions and a field goal by Gibbons provided the 23-18 halftime score.

Nebraska missed all its first half conversion attempts, once on a kick and twice on two-point pass efforts that failed.

MISSOURI STRUCK first after a Rob Fitzgerald interception of a Ferragamo pass and Woods scored later from the one.

Nebraska bounced back with a pair of touchdowns, one when Kent Smith covered a punt blocked by Larry Valasec in the end zone and another when I-back Monte Anthony plunged over from the one.

The Tigers put together a pair of TDs 37 seconds apart, The first came on a Woods-to-Kellen Winslow pass covering nine yards. Nebraska's Richard Berns fumbled on the ensuing kickoff and a Missouri reverse by Leo Lewis took the ball within inches of the Husker goal. Woods then dove over.

Nebraska added another TD on a Ferragamo plunge after Missouri's Mike Newman fumbled a Husker punt. Missouri capped the first half scoring with a Gibbons field goal.

Arkansas stops Houston, 14-7

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Arkansas' marauding defense recovered three Danny Davis fumbles and sophomore Ben Cowins ripped 89 yards for a second quarter touchdown to lead the 15th-ranked Razorbacks to a 14-7 Southwest Conference victory over 14th-ranked Houston Saturday night.

The Cougars, bidding for an SWC title in their first season in the conference, dropped to a 4-2 season record and 3-1 in SWC play. Arkansas is 4-1 overall and 2-0 in SWC competition.

Cowins, the SWC's leading rusher going into the game, had 154 yards rushing at halftime aided by his 89-yard romp through the middle of Houston's defense that gave the Razorbacks a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Razorback defense, ranked No. 2 in the conference, also intercepted a Davis pass in the first quarter to set up the Razorbacks' first touchdown.

Cowins keyed the drive with runs of 13, eight and three yards with the last run placing the ball on Houston's eight-yard line.

On the next play Hog quarterback Ron Calcagni broke off right tackle for the touchdown.

Houston finally got a touchdown drive going early in the fourth quarter [illegible] Davis took the Cougars 80 yards [illegible] highlighted by passes of 27 [illegible] yards to Rickey Haddox. Eddy [illegible] Thomas got the touchdown Edwards [illegible] in the game on a six-Fisher

The Cougars got their final chance to get back in the game after a 15-yard punt by Steve Little gave Houston a first down at the Arkansas 49. Davis ran 26 yards and Blackwell had runs of 8, 3, and 3 before Davis lost his third fumble of the game at the Arkansas 11-yard line and Dennis Winston recovered.

All of Davis' fumbles came in crucial situations with the Cougars deep in Arkansas territory. Winston got his first recovery when Davis fumbled at Arkansas' 8-yard line in the second quarter. Davis fumbled at the Hog 30 in the third quarter and Don Fulcher pounced on it.

Winston got a fumble by Houston's Randy Love later in the third quarter and then pounced on Davis' fumble with 3:07 left in the game.

Cowins finished the game with 186 yards on 21 carries.

Davis completed 13 passes for 197 yards on 21 attempts and had two intercepted. Cowins' 89-yard TD was one yard shy of the Arkansas school record set in 1963 by Billy Moore.

Long absence ends at Tech

By TED BATTLES
R-T Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — When they turned on the lights at Jones Stadium Saturday night, Texas Tech officials kept their fingers crossed. It had been so long since the Red Raiders had played a game here, it was feared everybody would think the season was over.

They needn't have worried. Some 44,890 fans, a record for a non-conference game here turned out, proving either that absence makes the heart grow fonder or, more likely, nothing beats an undefeated record even if it is Dad's Day.

There hadn't been a point chalked up on the Jones Stadium scoreboard in six weeks and Texas Tech and Arizona started out like they were intent on making up for lost time.

By halftime Tech led 28-21 and with Arizona quarterback Marc Lunsford riddling the Tech secondary for 158 yards passing and two TDs on 10 of 14 compeltions, no one was taking anything for granted at halftime.

The game and victory dangled for Arizona which opened the third period with a 55-yard drive that reached the Tech 25. That's when Mike Mock, a 6-1, 217-pound linebacker from Longview made the biggest defensive play of the night, nailing Lunsford for a 15-yard loss.

That forced Lee Pistor, who has never hit from that far away, to attempt a 57-yard field goal. It was so short that it died on the two-yard line.

Tech was in trouble, but no one told quarterback Rodney Allison. He simply engineered a 98-yard TD drive in 16 plays taking the final yard himself.

The Red Raiders then salted it away with a 28-yard Brian Hall field goal early in the fourth period and a nine-play 49-yard drive Allison with again sneaking in from the one after his 19-yard pass to Godfrey Turner put it there.

So in a year's absence from Lubbock, nothing has changed for Arizona, despite that win over the Red Raiders, 32-28, in Tucson last year.

The Wildcats haven't won in Lubbock since 1935, which means that not only were any of the present Wildcats born, but neither were some of their fathers.

On Mock's play, he came free-wheeling on Lunsford untouched and later said, "Someone must have missed an assignemt. We had a stunt on. It was a great call at a great time by Coach Bill Parcells, who seems to have a knack for it."

Allison, who didn't know if he would start until a few minutes before the game, wound up 136 yards in seven pass completions. But the option was what made Tech go. "We knew we would have to run it and the ball," said Allison. "Because we knew they had a strong offense."

As a result running backs Billy Taylor (19-173) and Larry Issac (13-102) had a field night.

As for the bum knee, Allison said "It was sore, but the offensive line worked hard to keep them off me, " Allison said.

Coach Steve Sloan said, "We made the decision to play Rodney during warmup period. He looked like he was moving well and feeling fine, so we went with him."

Tech knew it would score, but didn't expect 52 points worth. UCLA only scored 31 points on the Wildcats. That prompted someone to ask Sloan about Tech's national ranking.

Sloan said, "I don't really have any feeling about national rankings. We've talked with our team about it and everyone realizes that the important thing is at the end of the season."

As for next week's game with Texas, Sloan begged off, "I want to enjoy this one at least until tomorrow before I start thinking about the Longhorns."

Texas survives Mustangs

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Johnny "Gold Medal" Jones flashed his Olympic speed 63 yards for a touchdown and defensive back Raymond Clayburn knocked away a crucial two-point conversion attempt with 47 seconds to play Saturday night and beseiged 13th-ranked Texas dodged upset lightning with a 13-12 victory over Southern Methodist.

Jones' big play came only moments after SMU quarterback Ricky Wesson had tied the game 6-6 and freshman placekicker Scott Tatum had blown the extra point attempt.

The 6-1, 175-pound Jones, who was a member of the victorious U.S. Olympic sprint relay team, followed a crushing block by guard Rick Ingraham, who cleared a path down the sideline.

Wesson, a gutsy 160-pound senior playing with 25 stitches in his right elbow, whipped SMU on an 85-yard drive climaxed by his two-yard scoring pass to tight end Robert Fisher with 47 seconds to play.

However, SMU's Elton Garrett jumped offsides and the Mustangs had to try for the conversion from eight yards away. Wesson rifled the ball in a crowded corner of the end zone and Clayborn batted the ball down to preserve Texas' second Southwest Conference victory.

The victory was the 43rd in a row for Texas at Memorial Stadium, where the Longhorns have not lost at home since 1967.

Until Jones' run, the only offense the fumbling Longhorns could muster were cross-country field goals of 57 and 52 yards by strong legged Russell Erxleben.

Erxleben set a school record with his first field goal in the third quarter after the two teams went to the dressing room at halftime with a 0-0 tie. The kick just barely cleared the crossbar and bounced off the supporting bar.

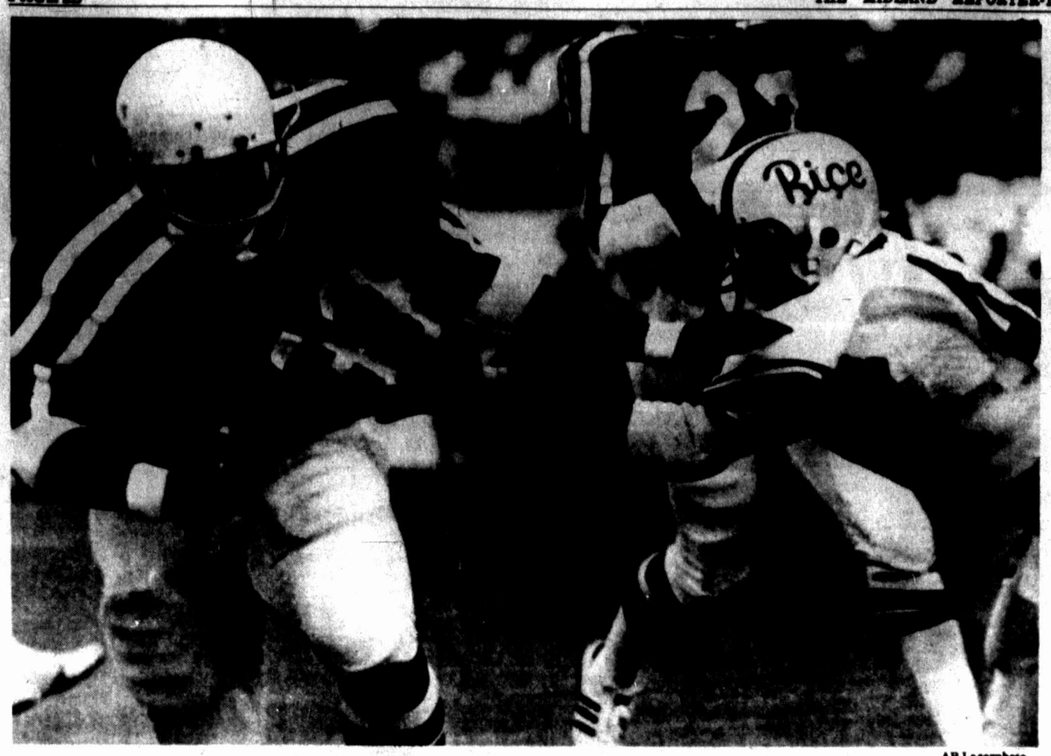

The lightly-regarded SMU defense, which went into the game dead last against the run in the Southwest Conference, held Texas to only two first downs in the first half.

SMU blew four scoring chances in the first half — two of them set up by Longhorn fumbles.

John Dunlop missed field goal tries of 37 and 27 yards and Tatum botched a 33-yard attempt.

He may not be as bullish as Merrill Lynch, but Texas A&M's 250-pound fullback, George Woodard is moving some Rice defenders as he romps for a big gain in Saturday afternoon's clash with the Owls.

Aggies outscore Rice

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)— Massive George Woodard shredded Rice's porous defense for four touchdowns Saturday to give Texas A&M a 57-34 Southwest Conference football victory over the Owls and their premier passer tavid Walker, in his second start this season, scored once and piled up 173 yards total offense before leaving the game early in the fourth period.

Rice's Doug Cunningham, who was tied with teammate James Sykes for the national leading in pass receiving, grabbed 10 passes for 126 yards.

Teammate David Houser caught 45-yard and 14-yard tosses for Rice touchdowns and set up another score with a 41-yard pass play.

A&M's methodical place kicker Tony Franklin set a Southwest Conference record by kicking five field goals. Franklin, a sophomore has kicked eight consecutive field goals and already holds the school career record of 24.

The victory extended A&M's season record to 5-2 and its SWC mark to 2-2. Rice is now 2-4 for the season and 1-3 in conference.

Lester Hayes interceped one of Kramer's passes returning it 38 yards to the Rice four to set up an A&M touchdown.

Rice's outmanned squad was further hampered when Sykes was ejected in the second quarter for an apparent foul after Kramer had scored Rice's second touchdown.

Rice's top defender in the secondary, Ardie Segers, was hurt in the first play of the game and went to the sidelines, and the Owls top pass blocker, 252-pound tackle David Johnson, also was hurt in the second half and limped to the sidelines.

A&M, substituting freely in the final quarter, rolled up 622 yards in total offense and Rice had 470 for a game total of 1,092 yards by both teams.

The Aggies' offensive output included a 57-yard run by freshman David Brothers, the longest from scrimmage this year by an Aggie.

Although he averaged only 37.7 yards on seven punts, Rice kicker Tommy Lewis booted one 80 yards into the A&M end zone. It was pushed along by winds that gusted up to 30 miles per hour during the game.

Rice's leading receiver was Houser, who caught seven for a 170 yards.

Miami Hurricanes slap hapless Frogs, 49-0

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback E.J. Baker ran and passed for 246 yards Saturday night to pull the University of Miami out of a four-game losing streak with a 49-0 college football romp over Texas Christian.

A crowd of only 10,539, worst for Miami in the 80,000-seat Orange Bowl since World War II, watched Baker give the Hurricanes a 35-0 lead in the first three periods. He hit 10 of 19 passes for 191 yards and two touchdowns and ran nine times for 55 yards.

Split end Mike Adams scored on a 46-yard pass play in the second period and grabbed a four-yard Baker aerial in the third period for a touchdown.

Other Hurricane scores came on a 74-yard punt return by safety Bryan Ferguson in the third period, first half runs of two and seven yards by O.J. Anderson and a 33-yard run and 62-yard pass reception by Tim Morgan in the fourth period.

Texas Christian, now winless in six starts, lacked the speed to compete offensively or defensively with Miami, 2-4. The Horned Frogs never penetrated Miami's 35-yard line.

Texas Christian's hopes had rested on the passing of quarterback Jimmy Dan Elzner. But Elzner accounted for only 69 yards while hitting 11 of 18 first half passes and was replaced after missing all four of his third period attempts.

Miami coach Carl Selmer showed apparent disdain for Texas Christian's defense at the start of the game by twice ignoring field goal attempts on fourth down plays.

The first time, on Miami's opening possession, the strategy backfired. Miami needed to gain two yards to the TCU 18 and Anderson was inches short.

But on Miami's second drive minutes later, Anderson ran two yards around left end on fourth down for a touchdown.

A 46-yard pass from Baker to Adams early in the second period led to a Miami first down on the TCU 20, but a clipping penalty followed and Chris Dennis missed a 51-yard field goal attempt.

Miami also had a chance to score late in the fourth quarter after Gralyn Matthews intercepted a TCU pass at the Horned Frogs 35 and returned it to the nine. But Miami's third stringers got no farther than the TCU three-yard line.

Bulldogs win, 36-0

SEGUIN, Tex. (AP) — Quarterback Mike Washington scored on runs of five and four yards in the first quarter to spark unbeaten Texas Lutheran to a 36-0 non-conference football victory Saturday over McMurry.

Halfback Jeff Stevens rushed for 125 yards on six carries early in the game before he retired with a bruised shoulder to watch his team roll to its seventh straight victory of the year and 17th in a row.

Fullback Charles Franks, tight end Steve Bonhert and sub quarterback Neil Miller also scored for the Bulldogs.

McMurry is now 2-6 for the year.

Georgia wins big

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — An 87-yard touchdown pass from Ray Goff to Gene Washington was merely icing on the cake Saturday night as Georgia rolled over Kentucky 31-7 in a Southeastern onference football game.

Taking advantage ox a host of Kentucky errors, the 10th ranked Bulldogs, leading only 10-7 at intermission, rolled to two touchdowns in the third period and climaxed the game with a 68-yard drive for the final score.

Goff, running the outside option to perfection, gobbled up 139 yards on the ground and the long touchdown pass was his only attempt at an aerial game.

Kevin McLee picked up 79 yards on 18 carries for Georgia.

The Bulldogs got on the board early when Butch Box recovered a fumble on a punt on Kentucky's seven.

Angelo State tests Texas A&I

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Quarterback Richard Ritchie bolted for two touchdowns to lead Texas A&I to a come-from-behind 20-10 Lone Star Conference football victory over Angelo State Saturday.

The Angelo Rams grabbed a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when James Cross intercepted a Ritche pass and returned it 43 yards for a touchdown. The Rams again moved ahead 10-7 in the third period on a field goal by Eddie Bates.

Ritchie scored first in the opening quarter on a one-yard plunge and then again in the third before Larry Collins put the Javs ahead to stay on another one-yard bolt.

Collins led all the rushers with 109 yards, but the Rams held the Javs to 356 total offense, way below their average of more than 600

Texas A&I is now 8-0 for the year and 4-0 in conference play while Angelo is 4-3-1 for the year and 2-1-1 in league competition.

Stanford edges Cougars, 22-16

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — A one-yard touchdown run by Stanford running back Gary Lynn with 29 seconds remaining broke a 16-16 tie and boosted Stanford to a 22-16 victory over Washington State in a Pacific-8 Conference football game Saturday.

The running of sophomore fullback Phil Francis helped sustain Stanford's winning drive, which began on the Cardinals' 25-yard line with less than six minutes left in the game.

Stanford led at the half 10-6 but a 27-yard field goal by Chuck Diedrick brought the Cougars to within one point.

Slippery Rock nips Ashland

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa. (AP) — Quarterback Chuck Calo thrilled a homecoming crowd with one touchdown and two scoring passes to give Slippery Rock a 24-20 victory over Ashland in a college football game Saturday.

The 6-foot, 170-pound senior co-captain completed 9 of 17 passes for 100 yards and rushed for 76 yards on 18 carries.

Calo's seven-yard pass to Pete DeStefano with no time left on the clock at the end of the second quarter proved to be a key play.

Ashland had been leading 14-0 at that point with twin touchdowns by tailback Chris Strine, who was the day's leading ground gainer with 122 yards in 14 carries.

Late heave burns Forest

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Andy Hitt's last-minute 36-yard desperation pass to split end Andre Greer gave Virginia a come-from-behind 18-17 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over a stunned Wake Forest team here Saturday afternoon.

Tarleton St. takes Payne

STEPHENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Running back Chuck High rushed for 144 yards and scored two touchdowns Saturday to lead Tarleton State University to a 38-21 nonconfernce football victory over Howard Payne.

Tarleton quarterback Johnn Gann passed for two touchdowns.

Willie Phea led Howard Payne's attack with 107 yards rushing and one touchdown.

Tarleton is now 2-5 for the year and Howard Payne is 0-5-1.

Sul Ross St. rips Mexico

ALPINE, Tex. (AP) — Halfback Robert Bolden scored two touchdowns in the first quarter and Sul Ross State went on to defeat the University of Mexico 55-20 Saturday.

Bolden scored on runs of nine and 64 yards in the opening quarter and then five other Sul Ross players followed him to the end zone as the Lobos amassed 451 yards offensively.

Edgar Lazos scored two touchdowns for the visiting Mexico Eagles — on runs of 13 and one yards.

McLendon captures Southern golf lead

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Mac McLendon swept past his close friend, Hubert Green, with a one-under-par 69 and assumed a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $215,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament.

McLendon, whose only victory in nine years of tour activity came with Green as his partner in the 1974 National Team championship, put together a 54-hole total of 206, four under par on the much-maligned, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

"I've put myself in position to win two tournaments this year—Pleasant Valley and Kings Island—and both times I had a terrible last round," McLendon said. "I guess all you can say is that I choked.

"I guess I was just trying to win too hard. Then I'd do something wrong, make a couple of bogeys, knock myself out of it and, I hate to say it, I'd give up. You can't do that. You can't try so hard. You can't press so hard.

"I've eeen these other guys out here that win. They seem to just let it happen. That's what I'm gonna try to do tomorrow."

McLendon, like Green a native of Brimingham, Ala., went through 16 holes before making a bogey on the difficult 17th, the slick, barren green that produced a number of four-and five-putts from irate tourists in Friday's second round. All the greens were watered twice Saturday, however, and—while still fast—were much slower than during the second round.

Ben Crenshaw, needing a first or second place finish here to take over the leading moneywinning spot from the absent Jack Nicklaus, surged out of the pack with a four-under-par 66 and moved into a tie for second with Jerry McGee at 207, just one stroke back. McGee birdied his final hole for a 69.

"This was a key round for me," said Crenshaw. "I figured I had to have a decent round today to get back into contention."

Green, the second round leader, slipped to a 72 and was another shot back at 208. Larry Ziegler, Richard Crawford and George Archer were at 209, just three shots back. Archer closed with a 67, Crawford had a 66 and Ziegler shot a 69 in the mild, sunny weather.

Trojans riddle Beavers' dike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Freshman tailback Charles White led a parade of Southern California runners through a porous Oregon State defense Saturday, rushing for 107 yards and three touchdowns as the seventh-ranked Trojans swamped the Beavers 56-0.

White, taking over for starter Ricky Bell after Bell was injured in the first quarter, also caught a 34-yard touchdown pass from Vince Evans as the Trojans built a 37-0 halftime lead in the one-sided Pacific-8 match.

Bell, the nation's leading rusher going into the contest, staked Southern Cal to a 7-0 lead when he ran one yard for a touchdown four minutes into the game. But he was sidelined when he suffered a hip pointer later in the opening quarter. The injury was not considered serious.

White, the shifty, 6-foot, 180-pound speedster, scampered for touchdowns of 35, 1 and 5 yards as he carried the ball 18 times.

Southern Cal fullback Dave Farmer was also injured in the first half, but helped lead the Trojans onslaught before he went out as he carried six times for 97 yards.

Farmer suffered a strained knee.

The victory gave the Trojans a 5-1 record and a perfect 3-0 Pac-8 mark. OSU, which won its initial game of the season last weekend with a 10-9 upset of California, dropped to 1-6 and 1-2 in the Pac-8.

Chris Evert wins again

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Chris Evert added $45,000 to her winnings Saturday by outclassing Francoise Durr of France in the finals of the $200,000 Inaugural tournament 6-1, 6-2.

After the two won rain-delayed semifinals in the morning at the Mission Hills Country Club, they came back for the finals three hours later and played in 98-degree temperatures.

The 21-year-old Miss Evert, winner at both Wimbledon and Forest Hills this year, swept to a 5-0 lead as her 33-year-old foe won only nine points.

Miss Durr then broke Miss Evert's service before the Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., lass broke back to win the set. In the second set, the French star won her own service once and broke Chrissy's once, but was so frustrated she talked to herself on the court and afterwards said:

"She's just too good. It's a matter of winning points, not the game with Chris."

The tournament is sponsored by Colgate, the first event on its $600,000 series.

Capturing the richest event on the women's tennis tour, Miss Evert boosted her tournament winnings to $1,049,000 and put her 1976 total at $312,000. Miss Durr collected $23,000 for her runnerup finish in the nationally televised event.

Rain forced postponement of the semifinals Friday night and they were reset for 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Miss Evert whipped Virginia Wade of Englnd 6-1, 6-4 while Miss Durr downed Terry Holladay of La Jolla, Calif., 7-6, 6-3.

Neither the exertion of the finals nor the desert heat of the afternoon seemed to bother Miss Evert. She continually used cross-court shooting, featuring her hard, double-handed backhand, and often had her foe going the wrong direction.

"That was the best first set I've had in over a year," the winner said. "Everything was going right. Everything worked. I've never lost to Frankie and I have such a streak going now, I just keep winning."

Miss Evert, ranked No. 1 in the world, last lost in April.

"She's playing tougher because she's hitting the ball harder," said Miss Durr.

Pokes smash Utah, 45-22

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Quarterback Marc Cousins tied a school record with four touchdowns and gained 104 yards on 15 carries Saturday as Wyoming smashed Utah 45-22 to maintain first place in the Western Athletic Conference.

Cousins, a sophomore who took over as the starter three games ago, scored on runs of 10, 4, 4 and one yards and directed a quick-hitting wishbone offense that accounted for 465 yards on the ground.

Wyoming tried only two passes, but one was a 10-yard touchdown toss from backup quarterback Don Clayton to tight end Walter Howard. The Cowboys, 4-0 in the WAC and 6-1 on the year, also scored on a four-yard run by Clayton and a 32-yard field goal and six extra points by Dan Christopulos.

Brigham Young rips Aggies

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Gifford Nielsen passed for five touchdowns while senior tailback Jeff Blanc rushed for another and became Brigham Young University's career scoring leader as BYU defeated interstate rival Utah State 45 to 14 Saturday.

Nielsen completed 28 of 48 passes for 468 yards and in the process broke the National Collegiate Athletic Association single-game season passing mark which he set last week against Southern Mississippi. He had 455 total yards in that game.

Washington scores late

SEATTLE (AP) — Freshman tailback Joe Teele's 72-yard touchdown run on the last play of the third period lifted Washington to a 14-7 Pacific-8 conference football vitory over Oregon Saturday.

Steele, who led Washington's punishing ground game with 157 yards on 18 carries, put the Huskies ahead 7-0 late in the first period with his three yard scoring run, his fifth of the season.

Oregon, which dropped to 3-4 overall and 0-3 in conference play, tied the score on quarterback Jack Henderson's 54-yard pass to Tom Cafferty with 1:21 left in the third period. The Ducks never were in serious scoring position again in the second half.

Grambling wins by 28-6

GRAMBLING, La. (AP) — Grambling struck for four touchdowns within 5½ minutes Saturday to beat Jackson State 28-6 and give Coach Eddie Robinson his 250th career victory.

Robinson, who has produced dozens of pro football players in his 35 years at Grambling, has a 250-85-11 record. This season he's 4-3 overall and 2-1 in the Southwestern Athletic Conference. Jackson State is 4-3 and 2-2.

Grambling, down 6-0, went ahead after Doug Williams threw an eight-yard touchdown pass to Mike Moore with 6:30 left till halftime. With 3:05 left, Williams hit Mike Smith with a four-yard TD pass.

After a kickoff, a penalty and a quarterback sack, defensive end Troy Thomas intercepted a pass at the Jackson State oneyard line and stepped across for a score with 2:02 left.

Fullback Edwin Hall, who led all rushers with 90 yards, scored on a one-yard run a minute later.

Jackson State's lone score came on a seven-yard pass from Jeremiah Tillman to Leon Sherrod.

Lytle leads Wolverines with 175-yard showing

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Michigan workhorse Rob Lytle rushed for 175 yards and one touchdown and quarterback Rick Leach passed for 103 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as the top-ranked Wolverines walloped Indiana 35-0 in a Big Ten Conference football game.

Leach, a 6-foot-1 sophomore, attempted only four passes and completed them all, including a nine-yard scoring strike to Gene Johnson in the second quarter and a 15-yarder to Russell Davis in the third period. He also fired passes of 33 and 46 yards to Jim Smith, the first setting up Harlan Huckleby's touchdown late in the third quarter.

DAVIS SCORED Michigan's first touchdown on a one-yard run in the first quarter.

The undefeated Wolverines, 4-0 in league play and 7-0 overall, scored everytime they had the ball except for their first possessions in the third and fourth quarters, when they lost the ball on fumbles, and twice late in the game with reserves in the lineup.

Michigan got the ball back a minute after the first fumble, however, and marched to the Hoosiers 15 before Leach lofted the scoring pass to Davis.

An interception by John Anderson gave Michigan the ball again, and four plays later the Wolverines made it 35-0 on Huckleby's one-yard dash.

THE HOOSIERS drove into Michigan territory only once in the game.

The Wolverines' first touchdown came on a 17-play, 88-yard drive that consumed nearly seven minutes. Their second score came seven plays after Anderson recovered a fumble on Indiana's 45 late in the first period.

Lytle, benefiting from Leach's near-perfect execution of the option play, ran for a pair of eight-yard gains, then swept around right end for 16 yards and the score.

THE HOOSIERS, 2-2 in league and 3-4 over-all, drove 40 yards to the Michigan 32 on their next posession, but they had to give up the ball after two pass attempts by Arnett failed and a delay-of-game penalty moved them out of field goal range.

It took Michigan just over five minutes to score again, this time on an 80-yard drive with tailback Huckleby in the lineup for the first time. Huckleby, second to Lytle in rushing for the season, picked up 41 yards in the drive, including 16 on three straight carries that put the ball at the Indiana nine. Those carries set up Johnson's touchdown.

Buckeyes grab costly victory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tailback Jeff Logan scored on runs of 11 and 29 yards Saturday to lead ninth-ranked Ohio State to a costly 24-3 Big Ten Conference football victory over Purdue.

The Buckeyes, remaining undefeated in the league with a 4-0 record, lost the services of No. 1 quarterback Rod Gerald for the season. Gerald, a sophonmore from Dallas, Tex., suffered three broken ribs late in the first quarter.

The Buckeyes, winning at home for the first time in three games, came alive in the second half under the direction of seldom used senior quarterback Jim Pacenta. Pacenta, who had played only 19 minutes in four previous games this fall, engineered the Buckeyes on three touchdown marches in the last 16 minutes.

Purdue had pulled even at 3-3 when Rock Supan kicked a 31yard field goal early in the third quarter. Tom Skladany succeeded on one of five field goal tries, a 27-yarder on the second play of the second quarter, for a 3-0 OSU lead.

Logan's two-touchdown scampers and a one-yard scoring thrust by fullback Pete Johnson, his 51st career touchdown, put the game away for the Buckeyes, 5-1-1 over-all. Purdue fell to 2-2 in the Big Ten and 3-4 for all games.

A steady rain dampened Ohio State's homecoming festivities with most of the Ohio Stadium throng of 87,898 departing before the finish.

Dorsett smashes rushing record with 180 yards

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Pitt's swift Tony Dorsett became major college football's all-time rushing leader Saturday, carrying 27 times for 180 yards and three touchdowns as the second-ranked Panthers swamped Navy 45-0.

Dorsett smashed the record of 5,177 yards set by Ohio State's Archie Griffin with a 32-yard touchdown sweep around left end on his final rush of the game. It came at 1:38 of the final period and gave the 5-foot-11, 192-pound senior from Aliquippa, Pa., a career total of 5,206.

Dorsett needs only 92 yards to break the over-all NCAA rushing mark of 5,297 set by Howard Stevens in two years at little Randolph-Macon and two at the University of Louisville.

It was a struggle for three periods as a fired-up Navy defense kept Dorsett from breaking any long gainers and limited him to 116 yards on 23 carries, including a six-yard touchdown late in the second period following a blocked punt to give Pitt a 14-0 halftime lead.

But Dorsett turned on his afterburners with a 21-yard scoring burst up the middle on the first play of the final period. That left him 15 yards short of Griffin's record and it was obvious what was coming when Pitt got the ball again at the Navy 43.

The ensuing drive was all Dorsett. He ripped the middle for 10 yards and nicked right guard for just one. But the next play was the record-breaker and his 12th touchdown of the season, as well.

The entire Pitt squad mobbed Dorsett in the end zone and even the partisan Navy cannon boomed out a salute.

En route to the record, Dorsett became the first runner ever to produce four 1,000-yard seasons. He also wipped out the career mark of 918 rushing attempts by Cornell's Ed Marinaro and boosted his total to 930, starting in 1973 when he became the first freshman in 29 years to make The Associated Press' All-America Team.

This season, Dorsett has gained 1,072 yards on 195 carries. He has an outside shot at the 6,000-yard career mark, needing 794 in Pitt's final four regular-season games.

As Pitt upped its record to 7-0 for the first time in 47 years, Dorsett had to share a bit of the spotlight with running mate Elliott Walker who bolted 69 yards for a third-period touchdown, and third-string quarterback Tom Yewcic who flipped a 30-yard pass to tight end Jim Corbett to start the scoring.

Ranked Maryland rips Blue Devils by 30-3

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Quarterback Mark Manges threw two touchdown passes to Bob Raba and scored once himself to lead sixth-ranked Maryland to a 30-3 victory over Duke Saturday in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game.

The victory was a giant step for the unbeaten Terps in their bid for the ACC championship. With four games remaining, the Terps close out against ACC rivals Clemson and Virginia and will be heavily favored.

Maryland took the opening kickoff and rolled 79 yards in 14 plays, capped by George Scott's plunging over from the one.

The Terps ran the margin to 13-0 in the second quarter on an 11-yard pass from Manges to Raba. The score was set up when linebacker Mike Miller recovered quarterback Mike Dunn's fumble on the Duke 29.

The Blue Devils got their only score midway through the second period when Vince Fusco kicked a 46-yard field goal.

Maryland, 7-0 for the season, ran the margin to 23-3 in the third quarter when Mike Sochko kicked a 37-yard field goal. The Terps' final touchdown came with 4:12 left in the third quarter when Manges went over from the one. The drive capped a 54-yard drive in nine plays.

Brown rallies for 28-18 win

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Wally Shields scored two second half touchdowns, one on a 25-yard burst up the middle, as Brown rallied for a 28-18 football victory Saturday over Holy Cross.

The Bruins, plagued by errors throughout the game, returned after intermission and quicly proceeded on their first drive to overcome the Crusaders 7-6 halftime lead.

On their initial drive of the third period, the Bruins marched from their 25 in 14 plays with Shields darting into the end zone from two yards out. That put brown in the lead for good.

Irish edge SC Gamecocks

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Notre Dame freshman Willard Browner scored on a nine-yard pass from Rick Slager in the first quarter and his brother, Jim Browner, intercepted a pass to stop a South Carolina drive in the closing minutes as the Fighting Irish defeated the Gamecocks 13-6 in an intersectional college football game Saturday afternoon.

The victory was Notre Dame's fifth in a row and left the 12th-ranked visitors with a 5-1 record. It was the 19th-ranked Gamecocks' first home loss as South Carolina fell to 5-3 for the season.

Notre Dame's Al Hunter rushed for 181 yards in 32 carries, including more than 64 yards following Browner's pass interception in the closing minutes, which iced the game for the Irish.

Ten first-quarter points were all Notre Dame needed, but the Irish defense had to come up with several big plays to stop the fired-up Gamecocks before a sellout crowd which included President Ford.

Hunter's 181 yards rushing counted for 32 yards more than the entire South Carolina offense could get. In all, Notre Dame rushed 52 times for 224 yards.

The six points by South Carolina matched the total that Notre Dame had given up in its previous four games.

Miners lose to Rams, 28-7

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Quarterback Dan Graham scored two touchdowns and Colorado State's defense held Texas-El Paso scoreless for the last three periods Saturday as the Rams took a 28-7 Western Athletic Conference football victory.

It was UTEP's fifth conference loss in a row and left the Miners 1-6 for the season. The Rams are 4-3 over-all and 1-2 in league action.

UTEP opened with a strong running attack and scored first when quarterback Steve Smith bolted over from the one with 3:50 left in the first period.

Less than two minutes later Graham handed off to running back Ron Harris, who streaked upfield 59 yards to the Miner nine before being hauled down by cornerback Ken Yates. Graham cracked over for his first score two plays later from th five.

CSU's Harry Washington took a Terry Walker punt 59 yards to the UTEP 14 to set up Graham's second score, in the second period.

After a series of runs by Harris and Mark Davis, Graham spun over from the five to give the Rams a 14-7 halftime lead that was never seriously challenged.

Washington hauled down another Walker punt after the Miners' first second-half series of downs stalled and rambled 60 yards to the UTEP 12. Two plays later Harris drove in from the nine.

Ram defender Keith King grabbed off a Smith pass with 20 seconds left in the third period and returned it 41 yards to end the scoring.

Tar Heels axe East Carolina

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Tom Biddle kicked three field goals and freshman Jeff Arnold added a 49-yard three-pointer Saturday as the Tar Heels fought back late in the fourth quarter to defeat 20th-ranked East Carolina 12-10.

Biddle's final field goal—a 17yarder—came with 2:14 remaining in the game after a 24yard pass from quarterback Matt Kupec to Walker Lee took the Tar Heels inside the Pirates 10-yard line.

Georgia Tech pulls out victory over Tulane

ATLANTA (AP) — Halfback David Sims hurled a 25-yard touchdown pass with 4:43 remaining to trigger Georgia Tech to a 28-16 come-from-behind college football victory over Tulane Saturday.

Tech, 3-3-1, trailed 16-14 after Tulane's Ed Murray booted a 26-yard field goal, midway in the third quarter, before rallying for the victory when linebacker Mackel Harris intercepted his second pass of the game.

Harris picked off quarterback Roch Hontas pass and returned it 14 yards to the Green Wave 46 with 7:32 left.

Tech moved to the 25 before Sims, on an option roll-out, hit John Steele in the end zone for the game-winner.

Florida edges Tennessee, 20-18

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Florida spotted Tennessee 10 points in the first quarter Saturday and then roared back for a 20-18 Southeastern Conference football victory behind the passing of Jimmy Fisher and the running of Tony Green.

The triumph kept the 11th-ranked Gators in the scramble for their first SEC championship with a 3-0 league record and 5-1 overall mark.

Fisher ran two yards on a keeper for Florida' first touchdown in the second period and connected on a 41-yard sideline pass to end Wes Chandler to the Tennessee nine-yard line to set up another. Willie Wilder raced in from the seven for the TD.

David Posey kicked field goals of 42 and 33 yards for Florida but misfired on three other long-range attempts.

Tennessee scored the first two times it got the ball, Jimmy Gaylor booting a 33-yard field goal to cap a 65-yard drive and Stanley Morgan sprinting in from the 11 as the climax to a 75-yard march.

Green ran 18 times for 126 yards, breaking tackles repeatedly to keep Florida drives going. Fisher completed six of nine passes for 93 yards.

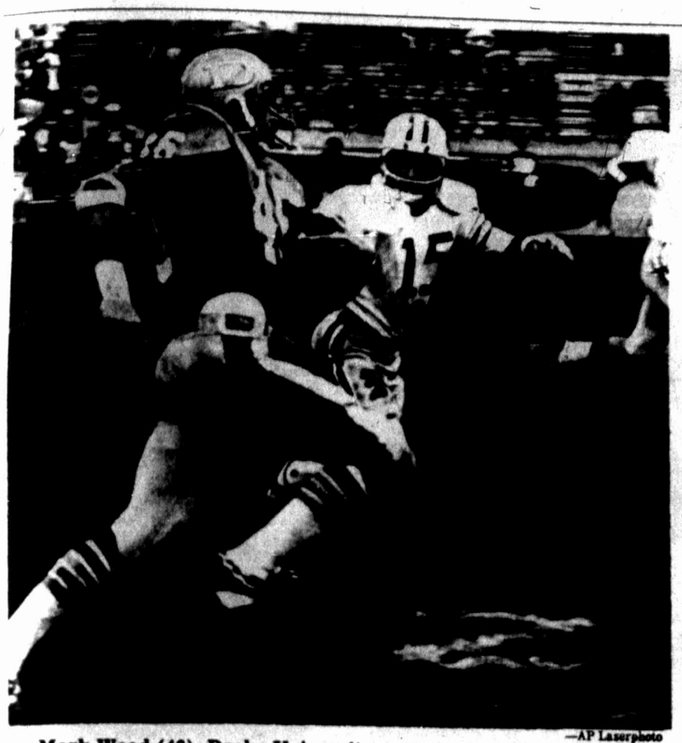

Tennessee quarterback Randy Wallace suffered a sprained wrist in the third quarter and was replaced by Joe Hough, who directed Tennessee to its second touchdown in the waning seconds of the game. Hough rammed over from the one and Morgan dashed in for a twopoint conversion to end the scoring.

The loss left Tennessee with a 3-4 record and 0-3 mark in SEC competition.

Crimson Tide destroys Louisville Cardinals

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Quarterbacks Jeff Rutledge and Jack O'Rear combined passing and running talents to lead 18th-ranked Alabama to a 24-3 victory over Louisville Saturday in the first football game between the two schools.

The homecoming victory over the out-manned Cardinals raised Alabama's record to 5-2 and left Louisville at 3-3.

Rutledge's passes helped move the Crimson Tide to its first two touchdowns and O'Rear scored the other on a 14-yard scamper.

Mike Tucker, for the second straight week, blocked a punt for Alabama and Buckey Berrey got a 27-yard field goal out of it. Tucker, a defensive back, also has blocked two field goal attempts this season.

It was Rutledge's passes that opened up the Cardinal defense midway through the second period and Tony Nathan ran over from 10 yards. Completions of 16 yards to Ozzie Newsome and 28 yards to Thad Flanagan helped the Tide move the 84 yards to the score.

Cowboys count on Preston Pearson magic

DALLAS (AP) — Halfback Preston Pearson returns to fulltime duty Sunday and Dallas Coach Tom Landry hopes the veteran,clutch performer brings some magic to the suddenly human Cowboy offense against the scrappy Chicago Bears.

Dallas (5-1) and Chicago (3-3) are on the rebound from tough losses last week in which both teams hit the self-destruct button.

The Cowboys dropped three potential touchdown passes and had a fourth called back when Roger Staubach stepped over the line of scrimmage before throwing the ball in a 21-17 loss to St. Louis.

The Bears, playing in Texas Stadium for the first time in the 3 p.m. game, have lost back-to-back games to Minnesota and Los Angeles.

"We've played good football but too many mistakes have been too difficult for us to overcome," said Chicago Coach Jack Pardee.

Pearson, who scored three touchdowns in the National Conference title game against Los Angeles, missed most of the preseason and has been slowly working himself back into shape.

"Pearson will move back into a more prominent role," says Landry. "He's coming back pretty strong."

Pearson's emergence means demotion for Charley Young, who dropped a sure touchdown pass from Staubach and failed to get across the goal on a fourth and one against the Cardinals.

Dallas could move into first place in the NFC Eastern Division with a victory. St. Louis (5-1) and Washington (4-2) meet in a Monday night game.

Landry heaped lavish praise on the Bears, who have the second youngest team in the National Football League behind Tampe Bay.

"The Bears are just a blink of the eye behind teams like Los Angeles and Minnesota," said Landry. "Walter Payton can run with any back in the league. He's like Larry Brown used to be with Washington—a tough runner who won't give up."

Landry said the Cowboys came close to picking Payton in the 1974 draft.

"It was real close whether we took Payton or Randy White," said Landry. "We couldn't lose because we knew we had something either way we went."

Landry also said "Wally Chambers is the best defensive lineman in football. He's a lot like Bob Lilly. If we scored 17 points against the Cardinals, we may never cross the goal against the Bears."

Dallas was a touchdown favorite with a sellout crowd of 65,000 assured.

Air Force falls, 26-7

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Quarterback Marty Crosby led Citadel's offensive machine tt a 26-7 military academy victory over the Air Force Saturday in college football.

Although Crosby and slashing running back Andrew Johnson were potent weapons, Citadel's defensive team actually dominated the game.

Johnson, a 185-pound senior, scored the first touchdown of the game midway in the first quarter onaa three-yard run, capping a 27-yard drive after a poor Air Force punt.

That was about all the offense the Bulldogs needed. The Citadel defense kept Air Force on its side of the field for most of the first half as defensive ends Randy Johnson and Bob Tillman and noseguard David Sollazzo sacked Falcon quarterbacks nine times to stall several potential drives.

Bruins crush California, 35-19

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Jeff Dankworth, after sitting out part of the nearly disastrous second period with an injury, directed the fourth-ranked UCLA Bruins to three touchdowns and a 35-19 Pacific-8 football victory over California Saturday.

In the first quarter, Dankworth ran 18 yards for a touchdown and passed 27 yards to Wally Henry for another. But California had four fumble recoveries, including three by defensive back Anthony Green, in the second period and cut UCLA's lead to 14-13 on quarterback Fred Besana's touchdown sneak and two 41-yard field goals by Jim Breech.

After Green's fourth fumble recovery of the game, at UCLA's 41-yard line early in the third period, the UCLA defense held and the Bruins drove 70 yards with Theotis Brown scoring on a one-yard run.

Dankworth, showing no ill effects from a bruised hip, passed 17 yards to Henry, running for a 28-yard gain on the drive.

Before a crowd of 65,228, Wendell Tyler made touchdown runs of 33 and 13 yards in the final period as UCLA took a 3513 lead. The victory made the Bruins 3-0 in the Pac-8 and 6-0-1 overall.

Cal scored with 32 seconds left on Besana's 11-yard pass to Jesse Thompson.

The Bears, whose No. 1 quarterback Joe Roth and star receiver Wesley Walker missed the game with injuries, fell to 1-2 in the conference and 3-4 for all games. Cal shared the Pac-8 title last year with UCLA.

Kansas survives Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas Jayhawks, with touchdowns by Scott McMichael, Laverne Smith and Mark Lissak, defeated offensively inept Kansas State Saturday 24-14 for their first Big Eight Conference football victory.

Kansas State, 1-6 and winless in its last 10 conference outings, managed only one long drive, a 94-yard touchdown march after the game was out of reach in the fourth period.

Nolan Cromwell, Kansas' great wishbone quarterback who underwent knee surgery following last week's loss to Oklahoma, watched from the sideline in a wheelchair.

Colorado Buffs shock Iowa State Cyclones

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Jeff Knapple came off the bench to direct Colorado to a four-touchdown explosion in the second quarter, including TD runs of 41 and 29 yards by tailback Tony Reed, as the Buffaloes shocked 16th-ranked Iowa State 33-14 Saurday in Big Eight Conference football.

Knapple relieved starter Jeff Austin early in the second period after the Buffalo offense showed little punch and completed five passes in a row to help the Buffs score on four consecutive possessions.

The victory boosted Colorado's conference record to 2-1 and its overall mark to 5-2. The loss dropped ISU to 5-2 over-all and 1-2 in the Big Eight.

School asks fans to help

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — University of Minnesota President C. Peter Magrath appealed to 53,222 fans at the Minnesota-Iowa football game Saturday to help pay costs of the university's legal battle against the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

"These fundamental rights must be defended," said Magrath. "We must challenge the indefinite probation put on us."

Magrath said money collected in buckets passed through the crowd would go into a "fairness fund" to be used only for legal expenses incurred by the school's suit against the NCAA.

He announced Friday that the university would ask for a federal court injunction to block NCAA action putting the men's athletic program on indefinite probation.

Chaparrals put tickets on sale

Season tickets for Midland College home basketball games go on sale Tuesday and will remain on sale through the first home game Nov. 9.

Tickets for 13 home games are $16 for adults, $8 for students and $32 for an entire family. Tickets are available at the MC athletic office in the Physical Education Building from 8 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m. weekdays.

Athletic Director Chester Story said individual game tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

"Last year we didn't offer season tickets, since we wanted to see what the attendance would be," Story said. "But a number of those who regularly attended the Chaparral games requested some sort of arrangement for season tickets."

In their first year, the Chaparrals were 18-12.

THIS YEAR the Chaps return six lettermen including Tommy Parks, who led the team in scoring, steals and assists. Also returning are Jeff Jackson, the leading rebounder; Jackson Pace, who had the best shooting percentage; Scott Stamp, who was deadly from the free-throw line; Sim Nickerson, whose specialty was coming off the bench to juice up the offense, and El Paso's Kenny Adams.

Rutgers extends winning streak to fourteen

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Mark Lassiter scored three touchdowns Saturday as Rutgers overwhelmed fumble-prone Columbia 47-0 in the first college football game played at Giants Stadium here before a crowd of 42,328.

The victory was the seventh of the season for undefeated Rutgers and the 14th consecutive triumph over two years—the nation's longest major college winning streak.

The loss was the fourth for the Lions against two victories.

Columbia lost the ball seven times on fumbles, including four in the first half when the Scarlet Knights built a 23-0 lead. Rutgers fumbled five times but lost the ball only twice.

Rutgers opened the scoring by driving 76 yards in 12 plays on its first possession. Lassiter, a junior halfback, went in from the six. A 22-yard field goal by freshman Kennan Startzell upped the score to 10-0 at the quarter.

Early in the second period, middle guard Rich Wagner recovered a Columbia fumble on the Lions' 12. Five plays later, Lassister plunged over right tackle to score from the two.

Wagner recovered his second fumble at the Columbia 25. On first-and-goal from the nine, halfback Mike Fisher swept right end to score.

Lassiter scored on a one-yard plunge in the third quarter. A 28-yard field goal by Startzell, a five-yard touchdown run by Joe Nele and a 66-yard pass play by reserve quarterback Bob Hering to Walt Hynoski closed out the scoring.

Struggling Dolphins, Stellers at the fork

By The Associated Press

It's sink-or-swim today for the Miami Dolphins. Ditto the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Both teams are struggling to keep their helmets above water and sorely need victories to keep their National Football League playoff hopes breathing.

The Steelers and Dolphins, both with 2-4 records, have the opportunity to stay in their respective races with games against winless opposition. But both must win—or forget the season. Pittsburgh plays the New York Giants, while Miami battles Tampa Bay.

"We can forfeit the rest of our games or we can go out there and play them," says veteran Miami wide receiver Howard Twilley. "It's possible for us to win the rest of games and make the playoffs. I'm not predicting we will, but it's possible."

The Dolphins are a big favorite to end a three-game losing streak. The expansionist Bucaneers haven't won a game in six starts.

The Steelers are heavy favorites to beat the Giants, also 0-6.

"We've got to win the rest of them," said linebacker Jack Lambert of the defending Super Bowl champions. "A 10-4 record is just going to have to be good enough."

Miami is tied for third with Buffalo in the American Conference Eastern Division while Pittsburgh is last in the AFC Central.

Cincinnati and Houston will try to take the upper hand in the AFC Central. They're tied for first with 4-2 records.

San Diego, boasting a surprising 4-2 record after an upset of Houston, will attempt to stop Cleveland's two-game winning streak. The Chargers, considered by Coach Tommy Prothro to be "in the same class with the best teams in the league," have never lost in Cleveland Stadium.

New England has a 4-2 record, but has lost nine games in a row to Buffalo. The Bills' O.J. Simpson has had good success against the Patriots, grinding out 1,396 yards in 12 games, including 250 in one game.

Denver's Broncos will match their fine defense against Kansas City's big-play offense, led by quarterback Mike Livingstone. The Broncos have limited opponents to an average of 11 points a game.

Baltimore, 5-1, led by the AFC's top passer in Bert Jones, meets an injury-riddled Jet team which will probably start rookie Richard Todd in place of disabled Joe Namath. Fran Tarkenton, who leads Minnesota against Philadelphia, needs only 100 yards passing to join the retired Johnny Unitas as the nly 40,000-yard passers in pro football history.

A RECORD THIRD-DAY attendance of 105,901 persons thronged the Permian Basin Oil Show grounds in Odessa. Attendance chairman Ed Durett said 351,135 persons had marched through the oil show gates when they were closed Friday night, setting an all-time record for the show. Another 100,000 plus were expected Saturday. Final attendance figures will be made available Monday, Durett said.

Kleppe says energy use will soar by 2000

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Interior Secy. Thomas S. Kleppe says the nation will use during the remainder of this century as much fuel as it has produced in all history.

Kleppe said the nation has the technology to meet such a requirement and sufficient resources to produce enough energy to insulate itself against international blackmail and economic uncertainty.

But he says the nation does not have a wide range of options for increased energy supply.

"Top hope that solar energy will be a major energy resource before the turn of the century is unrealistic, as much as I hate to say it," Kleppe said.

"Perhaps the breeder reactor will begin to produce in the 1990s. But no one is promising that."

He said there are hopes for major scientific breakthroughs, but that, once again, no one can say when this might occur.

What we have, what we know we can count on for energy, are oil, gas, coal, and uranium," Kleppe said.

"Our goal is to reduce our oil imports from last year's 6 million barrel per day level to 3.8 million barrels a day in 1985."

In recent speeches and at news conferences, Kleppe has outlined what such a goal would require under an assumption of an annual growth rate of 2.8 per cent in energy demand.

"We need to raise our production of oil, including gas liquids, from last year's 9.8 million barrels per day in 1985," he said.

"We need to produce 22 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in 1985, compared with 20 trillion last year. We need to mine and use one billion tons of coal, compared with 640 millions tons produced last year."

And, he adds, the nation's nuclear generating capacity has to be increased by four times the 1975 capacity.

The nation's crude oil proved reserves have declined each year since 1967. Its reserves of gas liquids and of natural gas have declined each year since 1968.

Excluding Alaska's North Slope region, crude oil reserves have dropped from 31.4 billion to 23 billion barrels, gas liquids from 8.6 billion to 6.2 billion barrels, and natural gas reserves from 292 trillion to 202 trillion cubic feet.

Kleppe the nation now must expand its production after have made all the easy discoveries.

"Now we have to look harder and invest more for production once we have located the mineral," he said.

"Although we are a long way from wringing the last drop of oil out of the continental United States, the easy discoveries have been made and the large fields have been located on shore."

Kleppe said some temporary relief is on the way through the completion of the Alaskan pipeline and the start of production from the North Slope's Prudhoe Bay field next year.

"Prudhoe Bay will provide 2 million barrels per day, but we will still have to discover the equivalent of a Prudhoe Bay every 2½ years just to stay even with current production," he said.

"The largest new domestic source to meet oil and natural gas needs over the next two critical decades are the Outer Continental Shelf areas."

Offshore development, Kleppe said, can supply needed energy with less damage to the environment and of a lower cost to the American economy than any alternative source of petroleum.

SPE slates meeting Monday in Midland

The Midland Operations Study Group of the Permian Basin Section of Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME will hold its October luncheon meeting at 11:30 a.m., Monday.

The meeting will be in the American Legion Hall, 206 South Colorado St.

Dr. Robert L. Tiner, district superintendent for Halliburton Services at Brownfield, will be the guest speaker. He will address the group on "Polymers and Their Use in the Oil Field."

The talk will be a discussion of polymer types and their properties and use of polymers in drilling, completion and production phases of oil and gas wells.

Dr. Tiner holds degrees in chemistry and mathematics from Southeastern State College and earned his Ph. D. degree in chemistry from the University of Oklahoma.

A member of SPE, Dr. Tiner is the author of numerous papers and holds patents pertaining to stimulation fluids and applications.

He joined Halliburton in 1964, and he was technical advisor in the Midland Division until his assignment at Brownfield. He also has worked at the firm's Duncan, Okla., headquarters in research chemist and group leader in the fracturing section.

Industry can expect no more than even break in November

TULSA, Okla. — The best the petroleum industry can expect from next month's general election is to hold its own, but even that seems an unlikely prospect, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

Any loss of Capitol Hill supporters could spell further setbacks for the petroleum industry, the Journal says. The industry managed to win a few critical votes during the 94th Congress, but lost ground on some major issues involving tax treatment and price controls. A loss of congressional support could result in future shifts in voting that could mean more troubles for oil and gas.

The Oct. 18 issue of the weekly business magazine says there probably will be a slight decline in industry support in the Senate. House support should remain about the same.

The Journal based its prediction on an analysis of all the general election races. Particular attention was given to 33 Senate contests — the races carrying the petroleum industry's best chance for political gain.

Democrats, with a national platform less favorable to the industry, may add two more Senate seats and are expected to maintain a comfortable majority in the House, the Journal says.

Key opinion polls also show Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter still running ahead of President Gerald Ford, whose energy policies are considered more favorable to industry.

"The industry lost ground on tax treatment and price controls during the 94th Congress," the Journal says. "Its victories were by narrow margins, sometimes achieved by having barely enough votes to sustain a presidential veto of unfavorable legislation."

The Journal identified several issues viewed unfavorably by the industry which a new Congress and President probably will consider soon after the election.

Some of the issues were successfully opposed earlier by Senate and House factions which support the industry. Others were not resolved before the election recess.

Upton, Terry tests indicate production

Production has been indicated at wildcats in Upton and Terry counties, with the recovery of gas and oil on drillstem tests.

Belco Petroleum Corp., Midland, No. 1 Christy, three miles northwest of Rankin, had gas to the surface immediately, on a ¼-inch choke, flowing at the rate of 43,000 cubic feet per day, and increasing to 115,000 cubic feet daily at the end of the 1¼-hour test taken in the Pennsylvanian from 9,870-10,031 feet. Recovery was 1,800 feet of oil and the sampler recovered 2.8 cubic feet of gas and 520 cubic centimeters of condensate.

The test, scheduled to 10,900 feet, was drilling below 10,105 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 36, block B, C&MRR survey, and 3,500 feet southwest of the depleted discovery of the Fulmer (Pennsylvanian) oil field.

Coquina Oil Corp., Midland, was drilling below 8,015 feet on an 8,200-foot contract at No. 1 Hunter, Terry searcher, after it recovered oil on two drillstem tests in the Abo.

The test from 7,510-7,620 feet, open 1¼ hour, recovered 1,170 feet of gas, 10 feet of oil and 260 feet of drilling fluid.

A subsequent test from 7,728-7,900 feet, on which the tool was open 1¼ hour, recovered 5,100 feet of gas, 200 feet of oil and 640 feet of very heavily gas- and oil-cut mud, along with 90 feet of slightly oil- and gas-cut mud.

The project is 467 feet from south and 1,787 feet from east lines of section 5, block D-14, C&M survey, one location southwest of production in the Kingdom (Abo) field and seven miles southwest of Sundown.

Dog wears shoes

POINT PLACE, Ohio (AP) — Beau, a 180-pound St. Bernard, has become the proud owner of a new pair of shoes, which makes him somewhat of a celebrity in his neighborhood.

Mrs. Mary Bilger, who is keeping Beau for a married daughter, said the dog's veterinarian recommended the shoes to help arrest an infection on the dog's paws. The shoes were intended to discourage the dog from licking his paws, which aggravates the infection and discourages healing.

Beau's new black shoes which lace up the front, were custom-made by Nick DiLorenzo, a retired shoemaker.

Baker invented flypaper more than a century ago

By JERRY COHEN
The Los Angeles Times

All you ever wanted to know about flypaper but never thought to ask:

If most persons suspect this venerable staple went the way of ice wagons and knock-knock jokes, most persons are wrong.

"It's in greater demand today than it was 30 or 40 years ago," said Richard Cowen, president of Aeroxon Products, Inc., of New Rochelle, N.Y.

Not only is Aeroxon sole distributor of the product in this country but Cowen is the great-great grandson of a fly-bedeviled German baker who invented it 113 years ago.

The long-ago baker's name was Frederick Kaiser. He created beautiful cakes and baked mouth-watering breads in his tiny shop in the small city of Waiblingen near Stuttgart in southern Germany.

But when he put them in his show window, flies danced and skated on his wonderful creations. The baker figured he must find a way to end the annoyance.

He thought and he thought. Then he acted. The baker dipped a big sheet of wrapping paper in molasses and hung it in the window. The flies liked the molasses even better than the baker's cakes and breads. And they got stuck in it and they expired.

"Soon people were coming by the hundreds, not to buy my great-great grandfather's cakes, but to demand he sell them his 'flypaper,'" Cowen said.

The baker changed his occupation and he continued to improve his invention. No more molasses.

During the next century, the fledgling business which started in the little bakery in Waiblingen expanded until today it has a virtual monopoly on the worldwide flypaper market.

But headquarters remains in Waiblingen, where the business has passed from father to son. The present board chairman's name also is Frederick Kaiser.

Flypaper, which no longer comes in sheets but in tiny rolls that uncoil and hang from the ceiling, has had its ups and downs during the last century and so has the Waiblingen firm.

Through the years, competitors emerged to challenge the domination of the Kaiser family but they have died off like, well, flies.

And for a time it appeared that new-fangled pesticides would make flypaper obsolete, and times grew tough for its manufacturer. But, then, flies either became immune or the poisons proved too dangerous to human beings.

Today, flypaper uncoils throughout the world, chiefly in schools, restaurants, dairies and hospitals, but rarely in private homes, except in isolated areas, according to Cowen. "Screens and doors keep flies out of homes now," he said. "I wouldn't put one (a flypaper coil) up; they're not very pretty."

Sale told

LOS ANGELES — Atlantic Richfield Co. has announced the sale of its Texas distribution system which includes eight petroleum terminals, to the Foremost Petroleum Corp., Inc. of Texas.

The terminals are located in Austin, Bryan, Fort Worth, Luling, North Houston, San Antonio, Victoria and Waco. They handle approximately 15 million barrels of petroleum products a year.

An ARCO spokesman said the sale is not anticipated to disrupt the supply of petroleum products to any company customers, and is being made in accordance with all applicable Federal Energy Administration regulations.

The distribution system supplies 123 distributors who, in turn, resell gasoline and diesel to jobbers, service stations, farmers and other consumers. The system also serves as direct supplier to a small number of service stations and commercial customers.

The sale is part of a continuing program previously announced in the early 1970s by Atlantic Richfield to withdraw from areas where the company has a minimal market share.

New man added

Texas Oil & Gas Corp. has announced the addition of Peter Charles Michelson to its West Texas District staff in Midland as a geologist.

Michelson earned a master's degree in Geology from the University of Wisconsin and previously was associated with Tenneco Oil Co. and Getty Oil Co., both in Midland.

Michelson will be involved with the company's West Texas drilling and exploration program.

THE TWO BEST FRIENDS you have in Washington are GEORGE MAHON, DEMOCRAT and BOB KRUEGER, DEMOCRAT. Uncle George represents Midland County in his congressional district and Brother Bob represents Glasscock, Reagan and Upton counties in his congressional district.

These four counties: Midland, Glasscock, Reagan and Upton comprise the 68th Legislative District for which I am a candidate for state representative.

Isn't it time you had a Democrat in your state government who would not only be effective in Austin, but could use his influence in the political machinery as it exists (facts of life) with his colleagues in Washington for your benefit?

Government figures back up idea price increases slowing

NEW YORK (AP) — Government figures released this week confirmed what many businessmen and economists have said for weeks: price increases are slowing but growth is slowing, too.

Real Gross National Product — the value of all goods and services produced, adjusted for inflation — grew at 4 per cent annual rate in the third quarter. The rate compares with a 4.5 per cent growth rate in the second quarter and a 9.2 per cent rate of growth in the first quarter.

Growth slowed steadily throughout the three months, reaching its slowest pace in September. New durable goods orders, a key factor in the leading economic indicators and closely related to both capital spending and growth, fell off 3.1 per cent in September after shrinking in July and August.

Industrial production, which rose 0.5 per cent in July and August, failed to rise at all in September, the first no-growth month in the indicator since the recovery began a year and a half ago.

Yet inflation rates are also coming down. Two measures of inflation that are as good as any are the Consumer Price Index and the price component of the GNP report.

According to those figures, inflation in the third quarter advanced at a 4.4 per cent annual rate, down from 5.2 per cent in the previous quarter.

And the Labor Department's marketbasket of consumer goods rose only 0.4 per cent in September, the slowest monthly increase in the Consumer Price Index in five months.

One key factor in the recovery is business purchases of new plant and equipment. Capital spending has been less this year than many hoped for, but a new study now predicts a substantial increase for next year.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith surveyed 300 companies that account for 40 per cent of all U.S. capital spending and found they plan to increase capital investment by 14 per cent next year. That compares with a 5 per cent rise forecast for this year.

Capital spending plans among manufacturing companies were "led by strong growth in anticipated expenditures by motor vehicles, up 54 per cent; machinery, up 25 per cent, and stone, clay and glass, up 20 per cent," said Albert H. Cox Jr., president of Merrill Lynch's Lionel D. Edie unit that polled the companies.

In other business news this week:

—Rising against the downtrend in the economy, housing activity picked up sharply in September.

In steel, third quarter earnings rose sharply for Republic Steel Corp. and Inland Steel Co., were flat at Allegheny Ludlam Industries Inc. and down 1 per cent at Armco Steel Corp.

Among oil companies, Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and Occidental Petroleum Co. reported gains of 10 and 8 per cent respectively but Getty Oil Co. reported a 23 per cent decline in third quarter earnings.

Energy-saving plan announced by Texas Electric Service Co.

A program that can help consumers save energy and hold down utility costs was announced Saturday by Texas Electric Service Co. in Midland. It is the E-OK program, a plan for certifying the energy efficiency of a home.

An E-OK house can use less energy than other houses because it has emergy-efficient construction. The program extends to both new and existing homes, duplexes and townhouses.

Any house has the potential to be E-OK, whether it is total electric or combination gas and electric. To be certified E-OK, a house must meet certain standards for insulation, have air-sealed windows and doors, and use high efficiency heating and cooling equipment and appliances. A varying number of E-OK points is awarded for these items according to their energy efficiency.

A house which includes enough energy-saving features to reach at least 100 points qualifies for a Certified Energy Efficient rating. The more points earned, the more energy efficient the house will be.

Texas Electric has begun working with builders and consumers to explain the advantages of owning an E-OK home. E-OK houses not only use less energy but also will be quieter and more comfortable.

Families shopping for new houses can easily tell which ones have been Certified Energy Efficient by the E-OK tags on yard signs and in windows of new houses. There also will be an E-OK certificate signed by Texas Elecric inside the house.

The E-OK program objective is to inform builders and consumers about energy efficient construction standards and and equipment and to emcourage their use in new and existing houses.

An E-OK instruction booklet, listing the requirements for an E-OK rating, may be obtained from Texas Electric Service Co.

Wage increases show drop from 1975 rate

WASHINGTON (AP) -Wage increases are tailing off compared with 1975, although there has been a surge in the third quarter of 1976.

The Labor Department reported Friday that negotiated wage settlements for the first nine months of 1976 increased an average 8.9 per cent over the first year of the contract and 7 per cent a year over the full life of the contract. This compares with 10.2 per cent and 7.8 per cent respectively for 1975.

But during the July-Septmber quarter, first-year settlements averaged 10.1 per cent more, which is the highest rate of increase since 11 per cent in the first quarter of 1975.

In another economic development, the Commerce Department reported a drop for the third month in a row for new orders received by manufacturers of durable goods. The decline in the key indicator of consumer and business spending helped cause a broad decline in the stock market.

The Commerce Department said new orders slid $1.5 billion, or 3.1 per cent, to a seasonally adjusted level of $46.5 billion. That followed drops of onetenth of 1 per cent in August and 3.6 per cent in July.

The department attributed most of the latest decline to transportation equipment where activity was slowed by a strike against Ford Motor Co.

Analysts feel the demand for durable goods is an indication of the willingess of consumers to make expensive purchases. It also provides clue to whether business is buying machinery and other facilities needed to expand capacity and thus help create new jobs.

Durable goods include cars, home appliances, industrial machinery and other items with a life expectancy of at least three years.

Petroleum price hike may fuel loan defaults

NEW YORK (AP) — If petroleum exporters raise prices again in December, as many oil analysts believe they will, it is likely to fuel once again those fears of widespread Third World defaults on loans.

Billions of dollars in loans — more than $40 billion by reliable estimates — have been made to less developed nations by U.S. commercial banks. Higher oil prices would make repayment of these loans more difficult.

"Scaremongers," as Citibank calls them, have been measuring these loans against the obvious weaknesses in the economies of the less developed nations, and have been suggesting the possibility of massive defaults.

Lenders, and the U.S. government too, have tended to view the situation more optimistically, at least for the record, but optimism alone might not be sufficient to overcome problems.

Indications now are that a petroleum price rise would badly damage the payments balances of less developed nations that export no oil, and might force them to seek relief from their financial obligations.

If defaults do occur, the question facing authorities here is how to protect the banks involved and limit the impact on the U.S. economy, which itself is likely to be hurt by any price increase from the OPEC nations.

As early as this summer, Citibank attempted, as it said, "putting the squelch on the scaretalk," which it said has "posited a domino effect ending in financial collapse."

At that time it said the likelihood of a massive rescheduling of repayments was very small, but that even if it happened "it would do no more to trigger another worldwide depression than did the shock of the oil embargo and ensuing price hikes."

Citibank, which is among the American bank lenders to the less developed nations, maintains that monetary institutions erected since the 1930s should adequately absorb whatever shock waves might develop.

"Central banks would respond to the shock of foreign-debt defaults by increasing the reserves of private banks, just as they have when confronted with defaults on domestic debts," it stated.

The bank, second largest commercial institution of its type in the country, maintains that even the threat of very painful though not necessarily fatal defaults on a less than catastrophic scale are unlikely.

Most of the loans, it points out, are extended to governments and quasi-government agencies, "and governments, unlike private business enterprises, are not dissolved when their financial obligations exceed their financial resources."

Those nations that have been extended loans, it continues, are among those with the most favorable growth rates, and are "by definition those most determined to [illegible] their credit ratings ..."

Credit is too vital to the development of these nations, it argues, for them to permit serious defaults.

Refinery tax plan would hurt Texas, oil association believes

By BILL KIDD

AUSTIN — In case there was ever any doubt about it, members of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association went on record as opposing a state refinery tax — which is being bandied about as the most likely way to bring more funds to the state treasury.

Such a tax isn't a new idea — lawmakers have taken a look at it in sessions past, but have turned it down, so far.

Mid-Continent contends that such a "radical schedule" would make Texas refineries less competitive with other states and foreign nations, that it could hurt Texas' economy and increase the nation's dependence on foreign fuel sources.

But lawmakers are giving the proposal more and more consideration, since it appears that Texas will have to raise some more taxes before long, if inflation and state spending continue their upward movement.

Faced with the choice of increasing the sales tax, or going to an individual and corporate income tax, many legislators indicate the refinery tax might be the way they'd prefer to go.

Unlike the sales and income tax approaches, the refinery has the attraction of allowing "us" to tax "the" — in this case "the" being out-of-state users of Texas petroleum products.

It's no secret that Comptroller Bob Bullock's office has been studying the refinery tax possibility, and several lawmakers have suggested the tax, sometimes coupled with a change in the state gasoline tax levied at the service station pump.

There's increasing interest in taxes on energy sources — and on other costs related to energy — throughout state government, from the cost of natural gas to the charges for transporting Wyoming coal to South and Central Texas power plants.

And with suggestions by Texas' sister states to the north that they might start putting taxes on coal to pass some of their tax burden on to the buyers of that product, Texas lawmakers might well decide to go with a refinery tax to pass some of the cost back.

Commissioner Joe Hawkins says he'd like to see some changes in the automobile assigned risk plan — and he feels at least some segments of insurance industry are on his side.

Expansion of the plan to include coverages other than liability would help expand the somewhat restricted market for auto insurance, Hawkins believes.

Part of Hawkins' concern over the adequacy of the present plan is the fact that insurers have been refusing to write what he feels should be acceptable risks — despite increases in auto rates granted by the Board of Insurance.

Other department officials agree some changes appear needed — pointing out Texas is using the same plan which Connecticut initiated in 1922. Texas is one of the last states, or the last state, with only liability coverage available through its assigned risk plan, they report.

Expansion of the plan to include coverages for property damage isn't a new proposal or something which hasn't been tried in other states, Deputy Commissioner Doug Barnert says. "We're not," Barnert comments, talking about something that's anathema to the industry."

In fact, the governing board of the plan suggested changes to the last session of the Legislature — but no action was taken.

This time, it appears that the board itself may make some recommendations — and with concern over restricted auto markets (especially in the Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth areas) there could be some action.

Meanwhile, the number of risk going into the plan increases — and while this has happened before on a cyclical up-and-down basis, officials, including Hawkins, worry that this time the down cycle won't occur.

They point to the large losses in personal lines which insurers have suffered in the past two years — and note indications are that insurers are still in for some tough times before things get better.

That kind of outlook, they conclude, reinforces the need for changes in the assigned risk plan.

Ex-Midlanders buy marina in East Texas

BROADDUS — A family of sports enthusiasts from Midland in far West Texas is enjoying its new life in deep East Texas, where it haspurchased the Jackson Hill Marina, located four miles west of Broaddus on the shores of Sam Rayburn Reservoir.

Mr.and Mrs. Jim Coker and their two daughters and sons-in-law, Mr.and Mrs. Allen Davis and Mr.and Mrs. Buzzy Singleton, have been busy the last several weeks in bringing the recreation area into first class shape through rennovation of all facilities.

Coker, who retired as national sales manager for Drilco Industrial Division of Smith International, Inc., to enter the recreation business, often had fished Sam Rayburn Reservoir with his family, and he was happy to complete plans for the purchase of the marina location in the U.S. Corps of Engineer park.

Coker, a 1948 graduate of Midland High School and a veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps, with service in Korea, had been with Drilco 20 years at the time of his retirement. He is a past president of the Midland Downtown Lions Club and was active in other civic activities at Midland.

Visitors from most states of the nation have visited at Jackson Hill Marina, which encompasses 22.9 acres of developed property.

The facility has a four-lane boat ramp, huge parking area for cars and trailers, a complete marina supply, a 40-boat covered stall, a 60 by 60 foot lighted and air-conditioned fishing pier, and a swimming beach.

There also are 16 air-conditioned cabins, three mobile homes, 10 screened shelters, 38 trailer hookups and 65 campsites.

The marina will be the site for the 1977 Texas State Bass Tournament in the spring.

Cotton futures higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices of active cotton futures in the domestic market were mostly higher in slower trading this past week.

Initial sharp advances were stimulated by reports of possible freezing weather in the cotton belt. But the reports of adverse weather in Texas and the Memphis area had little or no effect during the latter part of the week.

At the close of trading Friday, No. 2 contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange were up 160 to off 2 points, with the distant December delivery record and the only loss.

Ruling nullifies abortion law

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has lifted a ban on Medicaid reimbursements for abortions, saying that a woman may not be barred from exercising a constitutional right because of a lack of money.

The ruling in Brooklyn by U.S. District Judge John Dooling Jr. action blocks the Hyde Amendment, which was tacked on to a $56 million social services bill that Congress enacted Sept. 30 by overriding President Ford's veto.

Dooling said his ruling would have the effect of nullifying the Hyde Amendment in all 50 states, unless overturned by appeal.

The amendment banned Medicaid payments for all abortions except those carried out to save the life of the mother, or in cases of rape and incest.

Dooling said payments for abortions would not save taxpayers money because "the alternative costs for medical assistance during prenatal care, at birth and after are very much greater."

In his ruling in the class action suit, Dooling said the federal government had no right to intervene in the bitter disagreement between right-to-life groups and pro-abortionists.

He said that, under the law, abortion is a constitutional right.

In Washington, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said it would comply with the ruling. No decision has been made on a possible appeal, a spokesman said.

Dooling's decision came a day after U.S. District Judge John Sirica dismissed a similar suit filed in Washington by lowincome women from Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Sirica said in his decision that the women had failed to show the law would prevent the District of Columbia or Virginia from paying for abortions.

The suit decided by Dooling was filed by Mrs. Cora McRae, identified only as a 24-year-old New York City resident.

HEW estimates that Medicaid has spent between $45 million and $55 million annually for 250,000 to 300,000 abortions.

Aid to Families with Dependent Children pays about $600 per year for each child, an HEW spokesman said. If 300,000 children were added to the rolls each year, the cost of that program would increase $180 million a year.

Youth likely to get shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assured that swine-flu vaccine is safe and effective for children and teenagers, federal officials plan to announce within two weeks whether those groups should take part in mass inoculation programs.

Meeting the National Institutes of Health on Friday, researchers gave the vaccine a clean bill of health but said persons between 3 and 20 probably will need to take two swine-flu shots four weeks apart.

Results of the researchers' studies involving more than 3,100 persons, mainly between the ages of 3 and 20, will be presented to an NIH advisory committee, which will decide whether and how the young should be covered under the government program.

Dr. John R. Seal, deputy director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said a decision is expected in about two weeks.

Generally, because doctors say persons with a greater risk from contracting flu should be immunized first, only those over 18 years of age are eligible for free inoculations in the current stage of the $135 million government program. An exception is those young persons suffering from asthma and other ailments who would be exposed to higher risks than most should they contract flu.

Officials estimated about 40 million persons between the ages of 3 and 18 aren't eligible for free shots now.

Although the researchers apparently resolved most questions of safety and effectiveness with the vaccine, Seal conceded the solution of giving two shots to the young is not foolproof.

"This would raise other problems in a vaccine program, such as getting people to come back a second time and working these children's visits into the schedule of adult inoculations," Seal said.

The tests whose results were announced Friday were undertaken after doctors found that one type of swine-flu vaccine produced high levels of reaction in some young persons, while the second type, which has undergone further chemical processing, failed to provide adequate immunity.

The swine-flu-shot program is designed to prevent an outbreak of the potentially fatal disease, which has yet to show up in the United States this year.

Missile search continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. research submarine is plumbing the depths of the North Atlantic, looking for a sophisticated Phoenix missile that broke free when a Navy F14 fighter rolled off a carrier more than a month ago.

The Navy had announced Thursday that the missile was still attached to the F14 when the plane was found in 1,900 feet of water. A day later, redfaced officials disclosed that the missile "is not attached to the aircraft as originally believed."

The Navy said a research submarine is continuing to search for the missile about 75 miles northwest of Scapa Flow, Scotland. Other U.S. ships will be called in to raise the F14 from the ocean floor. The plane, loaded with sophisticated electronic equipment, was reported lying on its back.

Naval officials said two civilian salvage ships leased by the Navy have left Scotland to assist in the search for the missile. One of them carries an unmanned minisubmarine equipped with television cameras.

The F14 fell overboard from the carrier John F. Kennedy on Sept. 14.

The Navy began searching for the plane on Sept. 23 and predicted success within three days. A tug scanned the water with sonar for three weeks without results. On Oct. 15 the sonar located what appeared to be the F14 and a recovery vehicle was sunk in an attempt to pull up the craft.

But the recovery vehicle developed electrical problems and had to be removed for repairs.

On Thursday, the crew of a nuclear-powered Navy minisubmarine equipped with portholes for viewing and able to dive much deeper than larger submarines verified the object was the F14, but salvage will have to wait until the underwater recovery vehicle is repaired and returned to the scene.

Attention focused on the loss of the F14 and its Phoenix missile because Soviet ships were in the area at the time and some U.S. officials were concerned they might try to recover the plane, one of this country's most advanced.

Ingram gets 20 years

BIG SPRING — After reducing a murder charge to voluntary manslaughter in the case of Jay Doug Ingram, 26, a jury here gave the maximum sentence of 20 years on the manslaughter charge Friday in 118th District Court.

Ingram was being tried for the shotgun slaying of Michael Green April 10, 1975, at Green's 26th birthday party.

State witnesses, including a police officer, a Texas Ranger, an editor, a pharmacist and a housewife, testified that Ingram's reputation for law and order in the community were bad.

District Attorney Bob Moore had more witnesses waiting to testify when Judge Ralph Caton called a halt.

Ingram's mother was the lone witness who took the stand on his behalf.

Dr. McDaniel is superintendent of a state mental health and mental retardation school in Fort Worth.

The following officers were installed during the dinner: Lawrence Schneider, president; J. W. Cash, first vice president; Don Barnett, second vice president; Mrs. J. E. Cole, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Virginia Monroe, Ned Daniels and Charlie Lassoon, directors.

AGRICULTURAL ASTONISHMENT shows on the face of Grady Wike, Route 3, Midland, as he displays this high-producing sweet potato vine which, before four yams fell off, had 12 potatoes on it. The average, Wike said, is five or six to the plant. A retired Southwestern Bell Telephone switchman and now a self-employed cabinet maker, Wike had about 120 plants this year, but next year "I plan on planting a whole mess of 'em, perhaps a few acres." He believes the Midland area has great potato-producing possibilities.

Hua to address Chinese today

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The new chairman of the Chinese Communist party, Hua Kuo-feng, will address the nation Sunday from Tien an Men Square in Peking, the official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported today from the Chinese capital.

The report quoted Chinese sources as saying that the address, Hua's first public speech since he was elected paty chairman, was scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday (2 a.m. EDT).

Tanjug suggested that Hua's speech, coming after several days of mass rallies and demonstrations in Peking and other Chinese cities, might disclose new details about an alleged coup attempt plotted by four radical leaders.

Peking had said earlier a major address would be made Monday, leading to speculation the Communists might also announce the lineup of China's new leadership.

Tanjug said demonstrations hailing Hua's leadership and the smashing of the radical plot continued today.

Peking radio said today that more than 10 million Chinese have turned out for demonstrations in Peking, Shanghai and Tientsin over the past several days.

In Shanghai, the rallies and demonstrations in support of Hua involved "more than 4 million army men and people," according to a broadcast monitored in Tokyo.

The demonstrators pledged "their strong determination to fight the 'gang of four' antiparty clique to the finish," the broadcast said. "Street demonstrations have grown in scale every day, culminating in Friday's 1½ million-strong demonstration."

The broadcast added that "both sides of the Whangpoo River that runs through the city echoed to cheers and the sounds of firecrackers, drums and cymbals."

In Peking, the radio report said, more than 3.3 million people participated in similar rallies and demonstrations on Thursday and Friday, while more than 3 million people turned out in Tientsin.

Peking's official Hsinhua news agency on Friday announced for the first time that the coup attempt by the four radicals — including Mao Tsetung's widow, Chiang Ching — had been "crushed" and Hua had been appointed party chairman to succeed Mao, who died Sept. 9.

Chiang Ching and the others had been active in initiating in Shanghai the 1966-69 cultural revolution. Chiang Ching, party Vice Chairman Wang Hungwen, Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao and Politburo member Yao Wen-yuan are reportedly under arrest.

A Japanese correspondent in Peking reported that the Chinese military now appeared to have gained more voice in the new leadership headed by Hua because they played a prominent role in crushing the coup attempt.

According to the correspondent for the newspaper Nihon Keizai, there have been rumors that Chen Hsi-lien, commander of the Peking military garrison, may be promoted to party vice chairman in return for helping Hua uncover and suppress the radicals' plot to seize power.

Fireman fills in as barber

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Fireman George Reid was called out to Buck's Barber Shop on a emergency call and ended up giving a customer a haircut.

The unusual rescue operation occurred when Buck Price, 71, fainted while he was cutting a customer's hair. The rescue service and fire department were summoned.

Reid, 34, who also is a licensed barber but doesn't practice, helped pack Price off to the hospital. Then he turned to the customer and finished the job.

YMCA offers club

Children in the first through sixth grades may participate in a special Fun Club from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 25 at the central Midland YMCA.

Activities will include rollerskating, arts and crafts and swimming. The club is a drop-in program with no prior enrollment necessary.

Each youngster should bring his or her own lunch and bathing suit, money for drinks and a towel, Kay Merket, assistant program director, said. The charge for Y members will be $2.50; for non-members, $3.

For complete Fun Club schedule or for more information interested persons may call 682-2551 or drop by the Central YMCA.

Judge cools trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — In the midst of a feud between state and county attorneys over the prosecution of the Don Bolles murder case, the judge said he will "let this all settle down," then fix a date for a new trial for John Harvey Adamson.

The first trial of Adamson, who is charged with the bombing murder of Bolles, a top investigative reporter for the Arizona Republic, was declared a mistrial Thursday when Judge Frederic Heineman agreed with lawyers for both sides that publicity had endangered the possibility of a fair trial.

Both sides cited statements County Atty. Donald Harris has made about the possibility of getting other indictments in the case. Judge Heineman granted the motion because of general publicity but said he did not feel Harris said anything improper.

Harris, who was chief prosecutor on the case until Thursday, was bitter at not being told that a mistrial was brewing with the approval of his two trial assistants, Deputy Atty. Gen. William Shafer and Dep. County Atty. Gene Neil.

He said he also was kept in the dark about Atty. Gen. Bruce Babbit's plan to wrest control of the case. In a letter to Gov. Raul Castro, Babbit said "irreparable damage may be caused unless Mr. Harris is removed from the case." The governor complied, and Babbitt appointed Shafer to replace Harris.

Harris complained Friday that Shafer had taken county files on the Bolles case without notifying him.

Babbit and Shafer confirmed that county policemen carted a filing cabinet out of the county office after the Arizona governor gave the state officials exclusive control of the Bolles case.

Harris said he saw the policemen but didn't know they were taking the Bolles file.

Lee students having own campaign race

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Political apathy doesn't seem to be a problem among Lee High School juniors and seniors — they have just completed mock presidential nominating conventions and enjoyed doing it.

"We have a lot of fun. Nobody gets bored," Ann Estrada said.

The purpose of the mock conventions is to show students how the political system works, government teacher James Bradford said.

For the past week, each period government students in the eleventh and twelfth grades have divided into two parties, party A and party Z, and gone through the entire convention process.

They formulated rules, devised a platform and nominated and elected presidential and vice presidential candidates. Next week, they will choose between the nominees for the two parties.

In platform stands, the students showed a decidedly conservative tendency.

Sixth period party members approved planks against forced busing, against abortion without medical reason, for capital punisent for some crimes and, by a narrow margin, against legalizing marijuana. They also approved a plank for equality for women and for equal rights for minorities for jobs.

The platform for the fifth period party Z included provisions for balancing the national budget, reduction of "government interference," increasing the national defense budget by $5 billion and repealing automatic salary increases for members of Congress.

In order to be placed in nomination, potential presidential candidates were required to have 15 signatures by party members on a petition.

Delegates were apportioned among 11 actual states chosen by the students. Texas, of course, was one of the states.

The campaign was complete with posters and demonstrations.

Teacher Beth White said the students discussed the platform issues as thoroughly as time permitted.

Bradford told the students they should learn through the convention process how national parties and national conventions are organized, how the rules, credentials and platform committees function, and how their platform stands compare with the two national parties' stands.

Getting the students involved in decision-making and stimulating interest in voting and politics were other goals of the project, Bradford said.

For each period, the candidates from party A and party Z will campaign among the government classes between now and Nov. 1 and students will elect the candidate of their choice Nov. 2.

New theory expounded in recent CB shooting

FORT WORTH (AP) — Investigators now believe that a citizens band radio operator, who was shot to death in his pickup shortly after a shooting in which he was involved, earlier had seriously wounded another CB operator and was shot to death while he was leaving the scene.

Haltom City Police Det. Bob Hurley and Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Shaw say that Don Hilcher probably shot Howard C. Collins when the two men met under a freeway bridge, then was shot minutes later as he was leaving the shooting scene.

Hilcher was found shot to death in his pickup Oct. 15, shortly after Collins was shot. Collins died Thursday from complications from the bullet wounds.

Evidence in the shooting will be presented to the Tarrant County grand jury Thursday.

Shaw emphasized their opinion is "by no means an openand-shut case" and said the investigation still lacks several pieces of important evidence.

Tarrant County Medical Examiner Dr. Feliks Gwozdz said Collins had been shot twice with large-caliber bullets. One entered and exited through Collins' abdomen and the second lodged in his chest after piercing his lung.

He said Hilcher had been killed by a single blast from a shotgun which riddled the victim's face and chest with nine pellets.

Shaw and Hurley said they believe three guns were involved in the shootings, but have declined to reveal the types of forearms or size of ammunition.

The shootout apparently was precipitated when Collins, who had been feuding with CBers here for more than two weeks over his extended use of Channel 6, reportedly "bled over" to channel 7 about 6:30 p.m. the night of the shootings. He announced he would not relinquish the channel until 4 a.m. the following day.

Hilcher protested, then accepted a challenge to meet Collins under the freeway bridge.

Ex-Midlander begins work on master's

WILMORE, Ky.— Michael Wayne O'Connor, formerly of Midland, has enrolled at Asbury Theological Seminary to begin work on his master of divinity degree.

O'Connor, son of Michael F. O'Connor of Midland, is a 1974 graduate of Texas Tech University in Lubbock, Tex.

Asbury Seminary is an interdenominational graduate school of theology, offering master's degrees in religion and divinitys in addition to the Doctor of Ministry degree. There are almost 600 students enrolled in the school this semester, representing some 40 states as well as 13 foreign countries.

Midland woman edits Confederate book

A historical book, "Confederate From East Texas: The Civil War Letters of James Monroe Watson" edited by Judy Watson McClure of Midland, has been published by Nortex Press of Quannah, Tex.

Mrs. Watson has included in the work the the letters of her great-grandfather, Pvt. James Monroe Watson, and some of his Confederate contemporaries.

The letters carry the normal messages of family life and friends at home, and impart a good picture of camp life as well as the position of the ordinary soldier in reference to the larger military involvement in the Civil War.

Pvt. Watson served in a brigade commanded by Gen. Matthew Duncan Ector, primarily with the Army of Tennessee. Ector's brigade was one of the last Confederate units to surrender, doing so in Mobile after the Battle of Spanish Fort, almost a month after Lee had surrendered ending the war.

Gen. Ector, for whom Ector County was named in 1874, was an editor and attorney from Henderson, Tex., Mrs. McClure said.

Copies of the book, in limited publication, may be obtained from Mrs. McClure (683-6410) or at the office of Dr. Wayne H. McClure at Midland College.

Mrs. McClure was reared in Kilgore. She received a B.A. in political science from The University of Texas at Austin and an M.A. in history from Texas Christian University.

She has written several articles published in historical and educational journals.

MC faculty to be at energy meeting

Two Midland College faculty members will attend an Energy Technology Training Conference Tuesday through Friday in Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Charles Wakefield, chairman of the division of technical studies, and Ed Poulter, petroleum technology instructor, will be among representatives from more than 80 community and junior colleges in 35 states who will attend.

Wakefield will be on the program to speak about putting a solar energy installation into an existing facility. He is currently supervising such a project in Midland, designed to provide heating for a recreation-hobby building and for an outdoor swimming pool.

Enrollment drops

HOUSTON (AP) — Enrollment in the Houston Independent School district has dropped to the lowest level in 14 years.

Supt. Billy Reagan said Friday an Oct. 13 enrollment of 210,025 compared with 211,406 a year earlier, 231,487 just after the 1970 federal court desegregation order and a record high of 245,396 in 1969.

"What we're dealing with now more than any population, and more than 'white flight', is the birth rate, which is almost zero population growth amoung whites and higher among black and brown populations," Reagan said.

RINGING THE BELL

By BOB TIEUEL

BOLEY, Okla—From a Black Perspective: Booker T. Washington often spoke and wrote about Boley, and once he described it as a grand experiment which would prove whether or not Blacks were able to govern themselves. "I was a place of refuge from the oppressions and struggles of a people who have known much sorrow," Washington declared. After 70 years the town continues to grow in many ways and some of the younger generation told me the other day that what this burg needs is "some new blood."

Many of the pioneers who settled here have gone on, however a goodly number are "retired" and are hopeful that "my children will carry on and make Boley what it can be." Perhaps they may be right. In this town of some two thousand or more in the trade area (Rusk, Childsville, Sand Creek, IXL, Big Bend) there are many modern and lovely homes and the Boley Housing Authority has plans for more. Some who have lived and worked for many years in such places as Kansas City, Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago and elsewhere are coming "back home" to live their remaining years in "rich country living" as the local Chamber of Commerce puts it.

There can be no doubt that what my hometown needs is what a lot of cities need—downtown development. A comfortable living awaits those with a small investment to make. Land, as well as business property, is available at almost any price. With cities in decay all over American, towns like Boley, Taft, Langston, Red Bird, Clearview (all 90 per cent black) should experience even greater growth in the years immediately ahead. Okemah (county seat) and Prague are the business centers here and race relations are excellent, indeed. The State Training School for Boys is here and the Boley school system is integrated and "welfare" is a dirty word in most quarters. Especially if you are young and able to work. A lot of proud people in Boley. We believe they will make it too.

Cries in the Night: (Human Experience) Love, tragedy, joy, suffering, peace, sorrow, smiles, tears, hope, fear are just a few of the emotions heard and felt and seen in any hospital one might visit. A sort of misture you would say and you would be right, bellringers. Racial and creedal lines are forgotten. There are people here tonight. Red men, black men, white men and others who week relief from their pain and their sufferings. "Oh God, have mercy on me," is a cry that goes up from a 94-year-old woman as her son and daughters watch helplessly by her side.

After almost forty years of bringing cheer and comfort to those who struggle in pain and misery, we sit tonight by the bedside of Mom, who some three score years ago in pain brought us into this world. For four nights we sit and watch and pray that "Your will be done." Perhaps now the crisis is past for her and others who are here in the silent hours of the night. It is our first experience of the all-night watch. And perhaps a new crisis will develop tomorrow. Only God knows. We can only pray and hope. And there will be many others here who will be doint the same thing: Praying and Hoping.

And thanks again, Bellringers, for the many cards, letters, flowers and telephone calls to Mom and concerning her. She can be reached at Prague Municipal Hospital, Prague, Okla. 74864. Her full name: Mrs. Bob Tieuel, Sr. (One of the pioneer settlers of Boley, she has owned and operated a business here for 69 years. What patience! I suspect she is tired, don't you? I know I would be.)

Ireland seeks new candidates for president

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Ireland began to look at candidates for president today after the stormy resignation of Cearbhall O'Dalaigh in a dispute triggered by controversial antiterrorist legislation.

Premier Liam Cosgrave seemed set to try to ride out the crisis at the head of his coalition government.

"There is no question of a dissolution (of parliament) or of a (nearly) general election," a government spokesman said.

The cabinet held an emergency meeting Friday night to discuss the 65-year-old president's resignation, but no statement was issued afterward and cabinet members refused to comment.

O'Dalaigh resigned Friday evening in a bitter dispute with the government over the tough new legislation aimed mainly at curbing the guerrillas of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

A presidential election must be held within 60 days. Until then, his powers will be exercised by a three-man commission consisting of Chief Justice Tom O'Higgins; Sean Tracey, chairman of the Dail, the lower house of parliament; and James Dooge, chairman of the Senate.

Political sources said there was no lack of potential candidates for O'Dalaigh's job — a figurehead post until O'Dalaigh broke tradition by stepping into the political arena over the antiterrorist laws.

One mentioned by many was Dr. Patrick Hillery, the Irish member of the European Common Market's executive commission on social affairs.

Other potential candidates included Vivion de Valera, son of the late President Eamon de Valera, a member of the Dail and like Hillery a Fianna Fail man; Brendan Corish, deputy prime minister and leader of the Labor party, believed to be eager to leave active politics, and Maurice Dockrell.

Activities session set at OC Saturday

ODESSA — The annual West Texas Student Activities Conference at Odessa College Saturday is expected to draw about 450 high school students and teachers from 216 West Texas schools.

The event is co-sponsored by Odessa College, the University Interscholastic League (UIL) and high schools throughout West Texas.

Representatives are expected from 4-A, 3-A, 2-A, 1-A and B high schools in UIL region I. The conference is a warmup for the UIL contest to be held at the college this spring.

At the meeting, students and teachers will learn new UIL guidelines for various contests and hear speakers instruct students on how to improve their chances in UIL competition.

Region I of UIL includes high schools in cities in an area from El Paso on the southwest to San Angelo on the southeast, from Abilene in the south to the Texas Panhandle in the north and west to the New Mexico border.

Dr. Lee Buice, assistant to the president at Odessa College, is director of the region's UIL competition and is in charge of the conference.

The workshop Saturday will begin at 9 a.m. Most of the workshops, except the one-act play session, will end at noon.

A general assembly will not be held this year. Students and sponsors will report directly to the room assigned for their workshops.

Ready writing will be discussed by Dr. Robert Kline of The University of Texas at Austin, who is state ready writing consultant for UIL. Dr. Marc Nigliazzo, an English professor at Odessa College, will host the session.

A second workshop on ready writing for students will be conducted with critiques of essays to be given by Dr. Nel Pilcher, Dr. Daryl Lane and Imogene Vaught, all of the Odessa College English department.

Dr. J. Weir of The University of Texas at Austin will serve as consultant for the workshop on persuasive speaking and informative speaking. Wally Jackson of the Odessa College communication and theater department will be host. Demonstrations will be included.

Prose reading and poetry interpretation consultant will be Dr. Vera Simpson of Texas Tech University. Kelly Westerman of Lee High School will give a prose reading demonstration and David Kloesel, also of Lee, will demonstrate poetry interpretation. Host will be Darlyne McFall of the Odessa College communication and theater department.

Two Odessa attorneys, Paul Kenworthy and John Cliff, will be consultants for the debate workshop. Host will be McFall.

The one-act play workshop will be conducted in conjunction with the Southwest Teatre Conference that will be taking place in Odessa. The students will have an opportunity to hear Pat Hingle and Morgan Woodward, both stage, screen and television performers.

Consultant for the one-act play workshop will be Lynn Murray of The University of Texas at Austin. Dr. Dorothy Dodd, director of theater at Odessa College will host the workshop. Demonstrations will be included.

Pat Hodges of the Odessa College physical education department will conduct a movement workshop for drama students.

The number sense workshop will be hosted by George Brewer of Odessa College's math department. Consultant will be Dr. Milo Weaver of The University of Texas at Austin.

Consultant at the slide rule seminar will be Don Boles, math instructor at Andrews High School. Host will be Kennet Hurst, a division chairman at Odessa College.

The science session will be led by consultant J. Lawrence Fox of The University of Texas at Austin and Roger Corzine of the Odessa College biology department will be host.

The journalism workshop will be led by Dr. Max R. Haddick of The University of Texas at Austin, consultant. Other speakers during the session will be Tom Barnett of the Odessa College journalism and television department, Dr. Robert Rothstein of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin and Richard Seaman of UTPB. Bill Murchison of the Odessa College journalism department will host the session.

Crop damage improves outlook for cotton market

COLLEGE STATION—"There should be continued strength in the cotton market in the months ahead as crop prospects have been reduced by adverse weather," says an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Freeze and frost damage in West Texas Oct. 8 and 20 should reduce the Texas cotton crop by about 250,000 bales, says Charles Baker. The total cotton crop in the United States was estimated at 10.2 million bales on Oct. 1 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. At the same time, the USDA estimated the Texas crop at 3 million bales.

"Farmers still own about 50 per cent of the 1976 crop—so they can refuse to sell on the price dips," contends Baker. "Domestic mills and foreign buyers need cotton and will compete for it. World consumption will exceed world production by about 2 million bales this year."

Looking ahead, Baker expects 1977 cotton plantings to be higher—perhaps 5.2 million acres in Texas and 13 million in the U.S. Of course, price levels in the first quarter of 1977 will have a big influence. Contracting for 1977 cotton has been heavy in South Texas, with producers locking in a profit at about 10 cents under the current price. This early cotton is in heavy demand by domestic mills. Contracting is a buyer's option, but this marketing alternative may help the farmer more in 1977 than this year, contends the Texas A&M University System specialist.

"Competition has been getting farmers a little more money for cottonseed in the northern Blacklands," adds Baker. "This is a valuable part of the cotton crop that is completely overlooked by some farmers. Products milled from cottonseed are returning around $180 per ton, and the farmer's share should be around $120 based on grade 100. This figures out to $46 per bale. Farmers are now getting about $10 less than that."

Pork supply increasing, livestock expert says

COLLEGE STATION — There will be plenty of pork available for the dinner table the remainder of the year, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service livestock marketing specialist.

The pork supply has been boosted by increased farrowings, thus upping the number of hogs moving to market, explains Dr. Ernest E. Davis.

As far as prices are concerned, market barrows should bring $32-$37 per hundred weight for the remainder of the year, provided other meat situations remain similar to last year, notes Davis. However, increased overall meat supplies, particularly beef and poultry could put additional pressure on hog prices. About 17-18 per cent more hogs will be marketed during the last quarter of this year than a year ago.

If producers proceed with their surveyed intentions, Davis expects the 1977 hog supply situation to parallel that of 1974. Part of the increase will be due to the rising number of pigs farrowed during the last half of this year. These 42 million will be moving to market the first half of 1977.

Looking back at 1974, Davis points out that market hog prices fell from an average of $40 per hundredweight to around $24 per hundredweight from late 1973 to May 1974.

If the economy improves, with gains in consumers' take-home incomes and the number of persons employed, and the beef industry recovers somewhat, then there is a positive hope that the swine situation will be tempered some, notes Davis. This could lead to market hog prices averaging $33-$38 per hundredweight during the first half of 1977.

16 hurt at carnival

GILMER, Tex. (AP) — As many as 16 people were injured at the annual Yamboree Festival here late Friday when a carnival ride apparently collapsed, a hospital official said.

Glenn Bunn, administrator of Gilmer Hospital, said six people were admitted, while others had been treated and released or were still being examined at midnight.

"The doctors told me everyone was in satisfactory condition," said Bunn. "This happened about 10 p.m."

Police Officer William Tye said a carnival employe told him the ride, which consists of several chairs that dangle from chains attached to a center pole, shifted at its base.

Randy Garriott of Gilmer said all of the people were suspended on one side of the ride when the metal legs apparently gave way, swinging the riders into a building. Garriott said one person was thrown through the windshield of a nearby pickup truck.

Mayor Harry Lucas called for a full investigation of the accident. Yamboree officials said they plan to continue with the 39th annual celebration through Saturday, the last day. They said they have no plans to shut down any of the other rides.

The MMTA is proud of its community involvement and contributions to the life and culture of this area. Examining the plans for the new Fine Arts Building at Midland College are, left to right, Mrs. Ray Bristol of the MC president's advisory committee, Mrs. W. H. Maitland, chairman of the Wallace Wimberly Scholarship Fund, Robert LaFontaine of the music faculty at MC and Mrs. Ray Chappelle, chairman of MMTA's Bicentennial committee.

Midland Music Teachers schedule duet festival

The Midland Music Teachers Association is a professional organization with members also from Stanton, the Greenwood community and Andrews.

The group is primarily piano teachers, many of whom teach group theory classes as well as private and class instrumental lessons. Some of the teachers also offer organ lessons and private vocal coaching. There are those who teach nothing but voice.

Because of their state and national affiliation with the professional music teachers organizations, the group has several teachers who are active at these levels. The students of these teachers are offered many and varied learning experiences outside the area of their own studios.

One of the most diversified of the activities is the Student Affiliate organization. Students from grades 4-12 may participate in a variety of citywide recitals each year; they may, through tryouts, win a place on the ensemble teams who travel each year to the Texas State Music Teacher convention; they may participate in the junior and senior solo and concerto competitions or may choose to turn composer and submit their works for statewide competition and performance. Also, the students are given an opportunity to compete through examination with other theory students throughout the state to win certificates, and bronze, silver or gold medals.

Approximately 350 private students of piano will participate by 2-4 per group in a duet festival. The purpose of the event, slated from 1-4 p.m. Oct. 30, is to provide a fun, learning and group experience for piano students who often must practice their art alone. This activity will include students of most ages from 4-12 in grades 4-12 and will also will include one group of four boys playing on two pianos in a duo arrangement.

One of the highlights of the year for the Midland group is the sponsorship of its annual Sonatina-Concerto contest held each spring. Work for this activity often begins a year or more in advance. Choosing music, accepting entries and preparing for the contest in general are Mrs. James Crawford and Mrs. Donald Thompson, standing left to right, and Mrs. Tom Minihan in the background, all committee members, and Elizabeth Motter, foreground, a contest participant. Mrs. Thompson is MMTA treasurer.

Candace Jo Brown H. R. Rehders married

The marriage vows of Candace Jo Brown and Herbert R. Rehders III were solemnized in a ceremony performed by Dr. John S. Rasco, pastor of Odessa's First Baptist Church, in the First Presbyterian Church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Max W. David of 1003 W. Pecan St. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Rehders of Odessa.

The bride was presented by her step-father at the altar wearing a creation designed especially for her. The gown was a Spanish baroque design made of silk and enriched by Venise lace and scroll work. The molded bodice featured a deep yoke of silk English net and a high wedding band neckline of Venise lace dogwood bolossoms. From the graceful crescent waistline fell the A-line skirt of silk organza, which swept to form a chapel train. The bride wore a classic Baroque diadem from which drifted her cathedral-length mantilla of imported silk illusion, bordered in matching lace. She carried a bouquet of candelight roses and stephanotis atop a mother-of-pearl Bible.

Mrs. Herbert R. Rehders III

Matron of honor was Mrs. Richard Stewart. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rickey Huckabay, Mrs. Jim Broaddus and Mrs. Gary Young. Stacey Lee Sparkman served as junior bridesmaid. Flowergirls were Laura Lynn Weyman, niece of the bride, and Toni Lee Steveson, niece of the bridegroom.

Best man was Benny D. Rehders and ring bearer was William B. Siler. Terry Paul Vance, Ronny Zorn and Carroll DeHay were groomsmen. Ushers were Bill Sparkman, Monnie Sparkman, John Sparkman, Jeff Jones and David Weyman.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. Music was provided by Jess Barera Combo of Andrews.

After honeymooning at the Inn of the Mountain Gods at Ruidoso, N.M., the couple is at home in Odessa at 1110 E. 52nd St.

The bride attended Odessa College and graduated from Baylor University in 1973 with a bachelor of science degree in education. She is employed by the Ector County Independent school District. She was presented as a Crystal Ball debutante in 1970.

The bridegroom also attended OC. He earned a bachelor of science degree in earth science from The University of Texas of the Permian Basin in 1976. He is employed by Exploration Services, Inc., Midland.

•

A rehearsal dinner was held in the Midland Hilton.

The bridesmaids luncheon was hosted at Los Patios Restaurant by Mrs. Raymond B. Hampton and her daughter, Mrs. Rickey Huckabay.

Add orange rind

To have a good flavor combination in cake, add grated orange rind to a white or yellow cake batter and frost the cake with chocolate cake icing.

Helen Perry married to Leslie Ralph Madry

Helen Denise Perry and Leslie Ralph Madry Friday exchanged marriage vows in Cotton Flat Baptist Church. The Rev. Ross Payne, pastor, officiated the single ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Perry of 3614 Shell St. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Madry of Route 3.

When presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal-length gown of silk organza fashioned with a molded basque bodice accented with Venise lace and enhanced with sheer yoke of organza outlined with Venise lace and a deep ruffle. The bodice featured a high Victorian neckline. The gown carried a full bouffant skirt of A-line silhouette with deep flounce sweeping into a chapel-length train and accented with Venise lace motifs. Venise lace daisies on pink ribbon streamer outlined the bodice and accented the back of the gown. The bridal hat of ruffled Cluny lace brim with peau bow carried a long, bouffant veil to accent the gown.

Mrs. Leslie Ralph Madry

The bride's bouquet consisted of white Sweetheart roses, white daisies, miniature yellow carnations and a touch of baby's breath with streamers of yellow and white.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. After honeymooning in the Davis Mountains, the couple will be at home in Midland. The bride is a graduate of Lee High School employed by Magnatex Oil Corp. Her husband, a Midland High School, School graduate, is associated with Fish Engineering and Construction Co.

Salita Morrison, maid of honor, and the father of the bridegroom, best man, were the couple's attendants.

Groomsman was Tommy Madry, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Bill Perry, brother of the bride, and Randy Madry, another brother of the bridegroom. Ring bearer was Bradley Madry of Big Spring, cousin of the bridegroom.

Convert porch into garden

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. Before another summer goes by we want to convert a large porch into a garden room. The floor looks very bad and we want to carpet so the room will be warm in winter. I'd like lots of windows but I don't know quite how to treat them. I think draperies are too formal and too much trouble in a casual room such as I envision. What might I use without depleting the budget set aside for furnishing the room? — R.D.

A. Interior designer Michael Sherman created an interesting and inviting room something like you describe.

And for the windows which surrounded his room on several sides, he used simple window shades which he trimmed in acid green and yellow, colors used throughout the room. The white shades were of glass fiber-based shade cloth with a nubby weave that lends a transparency to the room. The light that does come in is filtered enough to be easy on the plants. Other furnishings in the room included an L-shaped sofa in a verdant Rousseau-like green and an emerald green and black plaid on a banquette. Parrot green shag carpeting is reflected through the parquet and glass coffee table.

Q. I live in a fairly small apartment with a dining area I would like to make distinctive. I have an antique American pine table (rectangular in shape) I use for dining. I am trying to decide what kind of chairs to buy.

Chairs are so terribly expensive and I cannot find anything that looks well. I have tried Hitchcock types, ladder backs, captain's chairs and others without success. Would wicker ones be too far afield? My apartment is rather a collection of various periods and cultures. — R.S.

A. Sometimes it is very difficult to find the exact chair you want. I wonder if you have seen the new reproductions of love seats with sort of modified ladder-back effects which are coming onto the market now. I have seen them shown with rectangular tables and they are charming. They usually are designed to accommodate two persons. You could use whatever gay fabric you might like on the upholstered seats and backs and side pillows designed as a part of the bench. I would think that two of them could be charming and especially flexible for extra seating in an apartment if you chose to do a buffet.

One of the drawbacks, however, is that they are quite expensive because not many companies are offering them yet. But, I bet if you hold on and look a bit you will find some middle-priced ones soon.

End milky look

When a glass pitcher or utensil has a milky look that does not come clear with ordinary washing, place it in a container filled with half vinegar and half water and boil until the deposit is loosened or softened. Rub lightly with fine steel wool. This will remove the film and, if your work with a light hand, it will not leave scratches. Wash in hot soap suds and rinse, and it should be as clear as when new.

Dinner reported

The Golden Agers met Thursday night for dinner in the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church.

A program was presented by the Midland Chamber of Commerce under the direction of Fred Tyler and Grant Billingsley.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Jimmy Stovall, pastor of South Memorial Baptist Church, and Lee May served as emcee.

AT WIT'S END

Practical book needed currently

By ERMA BOMBECK

You know what this world needs? A practical book on child raising. Not a bunch of theories and psychological mish-mash, but some honest-to-goodness ideas that work.

I never close my mind on an idea, no matter how devious or how rotten. Anything is fair in this kind of war.

DIVIDING DESSERTS: No one will ever convince me that Cain did not slay Abel over the lone maraschino cherry in the fruit cocktail. A friend of mine solved this problem by having one child divide the pie or cake, then pass it on to his brother who got first choice. The child got so exact he was measuring after awhile in micrometers.

CATSUPOLICS: In dealing with children who accuse one another of hogging the catsup, you must be firm. One mother of three catsup freaks finally got each one of them a large bottle of catsup, put their name on each one and told them it had to last a month. It worked.

THE OLD SHAMPOO TRICK: Refill one of the expensive shampoo bottles with Brand X, hide it behind the hot water bottle in the linen closet with a sign that reads "HANDS OFF," and it will literally disappear.

INSTANT MAIL: For college bums who never write home simply drop a note saying, "Will write more later. Check enclosed." Never enclose the check. The bumees sometines U get a hand-delivered response.

WALL TO WALL TOWELS: Tired of picking up towels off the floor? Invest in a stack of black towels. After a shower, let them dry and fold them up again and replace them on the shelf. If you can't tell if they're dirty or not, they'll never know if they're clean.

WATCHING TOO MUCH TV? An Illinois man attached his television set to a bike generator. The kids can only watch what they have strength for.

STEREO TOO LOUD? Adjust the volume switch to where no sound comes out whatsoever. Then, when he or she is playing a record and is going crazy trying to get some volume, stick your head in the room and yell, "Will you turn that down before it impairs your hearing permanently?"

CLOTHING LITTER: For years my husband has been fighting to get the kids to put their clothes away. Last week, he simply picked up everything he saw on the floor and put it in a bag in the closet. On Saturday, he staged a sale to sell back to the children their own clothes.

When I looked in, the kids also had a bag containing . their Dad's sweater, slippers, Time magazine, flashlight, thermos and car keys.

So, we lost a lousy battle . . . but we're winning the war.

Student diet leads to problems, says skin expert

By VIVIAN BROWN

College meals may be the cause of a lot of the skin problems experienced by students, says skin specialist Georgette Klinger, who cautions young clients about their food habits when they go away to school.

She suggests also that they shower immediately after using the school pool to remove chemicals that might have been in the water, to be aware that smoking and sun can cause early wrinkling of the skin and to avoid eating and drinking anything to excess.

"Too much starch and sugar, canned foods, oils and fats make up the student's diet at the college dining table where there are usually few fresh vegetables and salads. They eat what they are served because they are hungry and the hungrier they get the more they want starches and sugars which will give them a temporary lift," she explained.

More fruit should be eaten, especially after meals, she advises, so the natural sugar may curtail the desire for other sweets. When young people enter the reception area of her New York skin care salon, they get the message: a hostess cart is laden with bowls of fresh cut carrots and cucumbers alongside a coffee urn.

"The digestive system plays a critical role in conditioning the skin. Waste materials can create problems — constipation can cause acne and allergies," she notes, recommending more bulk in the diet. "Raw vegetables, citrus pulp as well as the juice of fruit, millers' bran added to cereals, and yogurt and cottage cheese may all help digestion."

She suggests that "it is possible to get too much as well as too little of vitamins," and one should consult a physician before dosing.

Often she solves skin problems merely by checking the habits of clients, a point she emphasizes when men and women write for her skin examination charts to indicate their problems. What are their nutritional habits? What are their cleansing and makeup routines? She can tell a great deal from answers to those questions.

First Baptist Church setting for wedding

The First Baptist Church was the setting for the marriage of Lucenda Kathryn Gordon and David Allen Eichelberger. The Rev. Lucian Rudd officiated the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Gordon of 3105 Barkley St., and Jane Davis of Denton and Jim Eichelberger of Fort Worth.

Mr. Gordon presented his daughter in marriage at the altar. The bride wore a white bridal gown of sheer nylon and net with matching lace trim. The lace formed a border at the hemline, sweeping into a chapel-length train. The fitted bodice featured a high standup neckline created from scalloped lace and long leg-of-mutton sleeves, both trimmed with seed pearls and lace appliques. The bride's veil of illusion, shoulder length, also trimmed with lace appliques and seed pearls, was held by a headpiece of matching trim.

The bridal bouquet consisted of multi-color flowers arranged in the continental manner.

Valerie Smith of Lubbock attended the bride as maid of honor, and the father of the bridegroom served as best man. Bridesmaid was Nancy M. Lee of Austin and Laresa Davis of Denton was junior bridesmaid.

Groomsman was Noel Walton of Lubbock, while junior groomsman was Eddie Davis of Denton. Seating the guests were Ric Sanders of Midland and Walton.

Wedding music was provided by Bob Poer, pianist, and David Zepeda, soloist.

A reception was held in the church parlor immediately after the ceremony.

Following a trip to Albuquerque, Taos and Santa Fe, N.M., the couple will reside in Lubbock, where both are students at Texas Tech University. He is a junior student majoring in science and foreign language and is employed as assistant manager of Shakey's Pizza Parlor.

Is housewife worth $634.90?

The Maryland Court of Appeals has determined that a housewife is worth $634.90 a month.

The case decided by the court involved a woman slain in a 1972 shooting whose four children sought compensation under a Maryland law which provides state payment to families of innocent victims of crimes.

Now Pooh bear is 50

NEW YORK (AP) — As bears go, Winnie-The-Pooh, the teddy with very little brain, is rather old. He turned 50 this year.

But since Pooh is fictional, he really is ageless. Pooh was "born" in 1926 when A.A. Milne's children's book, "Winnie-The-Pooh," was published simultaneously in Britain and in the United States.

Milne, a British playwright, drew inspiration for the book from the antics of his son, Christopher Robin Milne, and his toy animals.

It and three others — "Now We Are Six," "When We Were Very Young," and "The House At Pooh Corner" — were published by F.P. Dutton between 1924 and 1928 and, according tothe publisher, have sold millions of copies over the years.

Program planned

The women of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity will meet at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the church.

The program will be given by Mrs. W. H. Gilmore Jr., president of the Junior Episcopal Church Women and president of the diocese.

A luncheon will follow at noon in the Parish Hall.

There's a way to remove mildew

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. Three years ago we bought a new house which has aluminum windows. The windows seem to mildew on the inside. I would like to know if there is anything I can do or get to remove the mildew? — Mrs. George G., London, Ohio.

A. To remove a mild case of mildew, scrub the surface with a mild cleanser or detergent. Next, rinse with a household bleach to kill surviving spores, then with water.

For more severe infestations, use a stiff brush and scrub the metal with a solution of two-thirds cup of trisodium phosphate available at most drugstores, one-third cup of detergent, one quart of household bleach and three quarts of warm water. Rinse with plenty of clear water.

The basic reason for the trouble is simply too much moisture inside the house. You should get rid of it one way or another. Use an exhaust fan in one or more areas where the moisture is produced, such as the kitchen or the bathroom, or perhaps the laundry room. Sometimes just opening a window a couple of inches when cooking or directly

Safest place to hide during tornado advice presented

The safest place to be when a tornado strikes is in the northeast corner of a house, says Dr. Joe R. Eagleman, a Kanaas University professor of geography and meterology.

He studied tornadoes and conducted wind tunnel tests to find that the corner of a house fartherest from an approaching tornado, usually the northeast, suffers the least amount of damage.

Use scraps to 'skirt' pots

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Tips on leftovers: Use scraps of gingham, ribbon and ruffling to make little skirts for your flowerpots. Or cut patchwork pieces from fabric and glue to pot. Coat with sealer to prevent soiling.

Of course, if you have my luck with plants, you don't need any pots. I can look at an artificial flower and have it wilt right before my eyes.

Dear Betty: It seems at times your column is omitted from my newspaper. I look forward to reading your clever hints. I find many of your patterns very useful, such as the doubleknit-scrap slippers.

I have made 30 pairs, adding embroidery work, appliques and sequins, and don't have a duplicate in the whole pack. I would like to thank you again for this particular pattern. — One of your constant readers, LaVerne Geniott, Hernando, Fla.

Thank you, LaVerne. You should be getting the column once a week. If not, you might mention it to your editor. He may not know you miss it.

Let me know more about the little slippers you made. Seems to me you have really improved on our basic pattern.

Wine is available in new abundance these days, and one benefit to the consumer is better quality. It turns out that new plantings for the most part have been varietal grapes best suited to the land and the climate. Another advantage in this country is the introduction of new wines. In the southern San Joaquin Valley, 43 percent of California's total plantings were made last year. Such grapes as the rubired, ruby cabernet, French colonbard and barbera promise to provide us with new and exciting tastes for exploration in the near future.

At IMPERIAL LIQUORS, 3209 W. Wadley, 694-4256, we can provide you with knowledgeable advice in selecting wines to suit your taste and purpose. We feature a full selection of imported and domestic wines as well as a wide inventory of whiskeys, liquers, cordials and beers. The home of the friendly moustache, we have drive-up window service too. Hours: 10 - 9 Mon. - Sat.

Mrs. Robert Boyd club speaker

The regular monthly meeting of the Gwyn Gardeners was held in the home of Mrs. Don Dow, 2515 Seaboard St. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Ed Moses and Mrs. Aubrey Linne.

A Thanksgiving theme was used, and guests were greeted at the door with an arrangement of pumpkins, Indian corn and wheat.

Following a business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Cecil Ellis, Mrs. Robert Boyd presented a program on "Pyramid Power." Mrs. Boyd said that interest in the pyramid dates from the ancient Egyptians, their most famous structure being the Great Pyramid near Giza. This pyramid towers 40 stories high and covers an area large enough to hold eight football fields.

In recent times, however, investigators have discovered that the shape of the pyramid exerts unexplained powers that are beneficial to foods, water and even animals and humans, said Mrs. Boyd. "Experiments are continuing at several major universities in the fields of healing and food preservation."

Introduced as guests were Mrs. W. L. Barnes, Mrs. Jack Brown and Mrs. H. L. Hochschild of Aurora, Ill.

Memorable 1976 wines expected despite drought

By WILLIAM RICE
The Washington Post

Once again, most everywhere in the wine world the fruit of the vine is in hand and instant analyses of vintage quality are pouring forth. From the growers' point of view, 1976 will be remembered as a very difficult year. Drought, welcome at times during the growing season but not desirable as a long-term guest, settled over Europe and was a major factor in California as well.

At this time, it appears that wine grapes survived the dryness and heat far better than other agricultural crops in Europe. Indications are that there will be some memorable 1976 wines.

In California, the dry spell that began during the winter was broken at the worst possible time, during picking. The vintage was — and in some areas still is — carried on under "reasonably good conditions," according to one expert. Nonetheless, there will be considerably less wine made than last year and California will offer "anything you want to find." There is speculation that the chardonnay wines will be superb. The cabernet sauvignon, picked during and after the rains of late September, will vary from vineyard to vineyard. In general the outlook is for good but not extraordinary quality.

Due to rain damage, the Thompson seedless — used for table grapes as well as wine — is in short supply and has gone up in price. This means jug wines and some of the more commercial varietals made next year are likely to be of higher quality, and also may cost more.

Among French vintners, the Burgundians are cheering the loudest. The crop size is down, but not so low as to cause prices to shoot up. The wines appear robust and well constructed.

To the south, it will be a fine year for Beaujolais, though not of the uniform excellence of 1969, the last "great" vintage in the region. Stocks are low, so prices, already high, are likely to stay that way or even be nudged upward by demand created through favorable publicity. In the Rhone Valley, rains arrived in time to cut dangerously high alcohol counts at the beginning of the vintage. There should be plenty of wine that is of high quality, though falling short of the superb 1972 vintage.

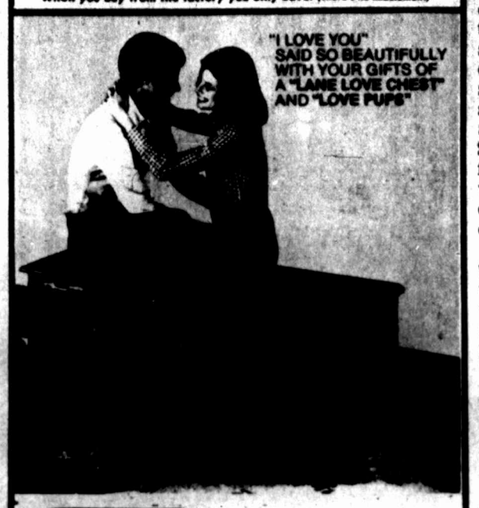

In Champagne, as in other regions, the vintage began very early. The crop size was average. The quality was high enough that a vintage year is anticipated.

Bordeaux, as is frequently the case, presents a complex picture. The now-maturing 1975 reds continue to show great promise. There is talk of a vintage comparable to 1970, 1966 and perhaps even 1961 in some cases. These wines have been sold by growers, and prices continue to climb well before their movement into retail channels. Whether the American market will respond remains to be seen, though the specter of prices at or above the peaks reached in 1972 is being raised. These wines should begin to arrive here next summer and fall. They are expected to mature slowly, however, so it may be several years before they are truly rewarding to drink.

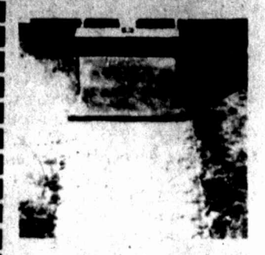

The new vintage is being applauded as well. There were heavy rains in mid-September and again early this month. The grapes were so small, however, and their skins so tough, that only those left on the vine too long were affected as rot set in. Predictions are for almost uniformly good wines from St. Emilion and Pomerol, where the predominate merlot grape was picked early, and for good wines from most Medoc vineyards. The grapes had high sugar content. The wines have good color and fruit. The crop is larger than originally expected. Graves, however, present a mixed picture, with the outlook for Sauternes not good.

A report from Germany in late September indicated that the Rheingau came through the year's awkward weather best with expectations of a high percentage of spaetlese quality wines. The Rheinhessen crop was termed "uneven." In the Moselle, picking of the riesling grapes was not scheduled to begin until early next month.

Foot trouble doesn't stop with your feet

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

Both men and women enjoy a pair of good-looking shoes, but we may overlook how the care we give our feet affects our over-all appearance. When you can't see their faces, "the 20-year-old who stumbles along with obvious pain looks years older than the 60-year-old who swings along with evident ease," says foot specialist Elizabeth Roberts, D.P.M., professor emeritus, New York College of Podiatric Medicine.

Putting feet first can do even more for your health, because foot troubles don't stop with your feet. Faulty foot function can throw other parts of your body out of line.

It can cause or contribute to headaches, lower back pain, leg cramps, fatigue and poor circulation.

Dr. Roberts believes that "...improper foot posture with the resulting strain on the body and interference with optimum circulation and metabolism, will not only aggravate existing arthritis and related conditions, but will make people who are predisposed to these conditions more likely to get them."

Caring for your feet can increase safety and efficiency at work. Poorly fitting shoes or painful feet can raise the risk of slips, trips, strains or sprains or even interfere with safe driving.

Removal of odor

To remove the odor of fried fish or onions from the frying pan, add one cup of vinegar and let it simmer for a few minutes. Then wash in the usual way, and the pan will be odorless.

Former Midlander married in Houston

HOUSTON — Nancy Ann Wood of this city, formerly of Midland, Friday became the bride of Patrick Jackson Reed during an evening double ring ceremony in Grace Presbyterian Church here. The Rev. Daniel A. Baker officiated the vows.

Parents of the couple are Robert Libbey Wood Jr. of Houston, formerly of Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reed of Odessa.

Mr. Wood presented his daughter in marriage. The bride chose to wear a gown of ivory crepe knit and Venise Cuipure lace. The princess ilhouette featured a scoooped neckline with a Bertha colar of Venise Guipure lace and long, tapered sleeves with a matching lace flounce. The A-line skirt of crepe knit over silk crepe fell gracefully to the floor and cascaded into a full chapel train. The bride's veil of imported English illusion flowed from a Juliet cap of Venise lace and pearls.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of Sonia roses accented with stephanotis and ivy.

Attendants to the couple were Carroll Smith of Texas City, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mary Alice Langford of Lubbock. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Norwood Preto, organist.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

After a wedding trip to San Francisco, Calif., the couple will be at home in Texas City, where the bridegroom is employed with the Monsanto Co. Both the bride and bridegroom attended Texas Tech University where Mrs. Reed was a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

Couple seeks knowledge

Mrs. Froggett, 51, and her husband, 52, a retired Navy commander, are together pursuing art degrees at Glendale Community College.

Mrs. Froggett said she went back to college "for the pure pleasure of learning." Froggett said, "I haven't yet been able to satisfy my desire to know as much as possible."

The couple will finish at GCC after another semester and both plan to continue their studies at Arizona State University.

DEAR ABBY

Wife advised to simmer down

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 24 years to a man who has always been faithful and devoted. He's a good father, too, but I am ready to leave him.

We were talking about women getting their breasts removed because of cancer, and my husband said a guy would have to be nuts to stay with a woman that happened to if they were young and married only a short time. I asked him what he would do if that happened to me right now, and he said he'd have to think about it a while.

Abby, that did it! Who needs an S.O.B. like him? I told him if he wasn't sure he'd stick with me if I lost a breast, he had touched me for the last time. I will never sleep with that animal again! Furthermore, if he should get sick, he shouldn't expect me to take care of him. He will die alone like the dog that he is.

Abby, am I unreasonable or overly sensitive? Or could I be jumping to conclusions?—M.G.

P. S. I have a 40 bust, a 25 waist and 36 hips.

DEAR M. G.: Simmer down, dear. I'm sure that a man who's been a devoted and faithful husband for 24 years wouldn't consider leaving you if you were to lose a breast. I hope by now your temper has cooled, and you realize that he didn't mean what he said.

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business and is his own boss. I've never called him at work because he has always called me at least twice a day. And it certainly never occurred to me to call to see if he was actually at his office.

One day last week, several hours after I saw my husband off to work, I decided to do some grocery shopping. To avoid the lunch hour traffic, I took a different route.

While driving down the street, I noticed a woman driving a car that looked exactly like my husband's. I looked at the license plates, and sure enough it was his!

Curious as to what this woman was doing in my husband's car, I followed her. About seven blocks later she pulled into a driveway, stopped and tooted the horn. That's when my husband came out, dressed in a bathrobe and slippers! He opened the door for her, took the sack of groceries, swatted her rump and kissed her cheek. And all this in broad daylight!

Heartbroken, I drove off, unnoticed. I haven't mentioned this to him for fear of what I might say or do. What do you suggest? — BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Tell your husband that you're n to the double life he's been leading and ask him which one he prefers. Since you now know where the other woman lives, and caught your man with his hand in the cookie jar, he can't very well deny it.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with you that confession might be good for the soul but some things are better left unsaid.

As a naive, 20-year-old bride, I confessed to my fiance that there had been another man in my life before I met him, and I foolishly told him who he was.

Thirty years and four adult children later, my husband still throws this man in my face periodically even though I have been a devoted and faithful wife.

How much better off we both would have been had I never made that confession. Silence is indeed golden, Abby.—FOOLISH CONFESSION

DEAR FOOLISH: Silence is not always golden. It is sometimes "guilt."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

What handicap?

GREENFIELD, N.H. (AP) — Clint Hilliard is confined to a wheelchair but he believes it makes him especially qualified for his job.

Hilliard, who was born with athetoid celebral palsy, spends his days teaching multihandicapped children how to talk.

"You can't imagine the frustration involved in a thing like this," he said. "Your mind is working as well as anyone's but you can't talk, you can't walk, you can't control your body.

"And when you're young it's worse. They take you to a speech teacher who has a normal body. And you sit there and try but you're thinking, 'You don't know what it's like.'

"But when the kids come to me, they can't say that. They just look and they know that I know, and so we're on even terms."

Hilliard earned a Master of Arts degree in speech from the University of Alabama. He is now the director of communication and speech at the Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center.

Window shopping good buying plan

COLLEGE STATION—Window shopping is not all lost time, Claudia Mitzel, consumer specialist, points out.

She added that consumers with a plan of what they need when they want to buy will be able to make good luse of time spent browsingg

Miss Mitzel is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

"Fall is a good time to take inventory of uncoming needs. Think ahead to the purchases that will he necessary. Clothing, appliances, holiday gifts, home furnishings and other expected items can be planned for now."

She suggested that when youbrowse, remember that most of our purchases are compromises. It is not often that all the features want are wraped upin one item without at least one undesirable feature So the smart shopper keeps a mental or written checklist of the qualities he expecially want to look for.

License shows up

ROSSFORD, Ohio (AP) Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vykopal Sr. still have their 1936 marriage license, but only by a stroke of luck.

The Vykopals moved here from Walbridge a few months ago, making several station wagon trips along a rural route. They apparently dropped their framed marriage license at that time.

Later on, their granddaughter Cindy Mitchell was visiting at the home of Edwin Smietano. Smietano showed her a framed marriage license he had found on a river bank. It turned out to be the Vykopal's.

Select materials first

By ADELE FAULKNER
Copley News Service

One of the first considerations when planning the furnishings for an apartment is selection of materials to be used in the various rooms.

As you begin to assemble wallpapers, upholstery fabrics, floor coverings and draperies, you must consider patterns and designs.

The areas where patterns are used become points of interest. If a design is strong and colorful, it demands more attention than a soft, neutral pattern.

Another way to create pattern and design is to paint the door trim and doors a different color than the walls. In fact, a pattern is created where two or more lines are put together to make a design.

Choosing the right combinations of patterns also is important and this is where scale comes into the picture. A very large, bold, free-flowing print used in the draperies and a small print used to cover dining room chairs can be used in the same room if the colors are compatible.

There has been a tendency lately to combine too many patterns in a room, which creates a busy, crowded, overdone effect. It is better in an apartment where one always is striving to increase the visual size to limit the amount of patterns used.

An Oriental or patterned rug on the floor concentrates interest there. Stripes or plain upholstery fabrics are recommended since they will not compete with the carpet.

If there is no view through the windows which creates pattern and design, then patterned draperies can be used. However, if there is a panoramic view, a bright pattern at the windows is too much competition.

When you have good art, tapestries, graphics or wall decor, it is best to subdue the other patterns in the room so that there is little competition with the art on the wall. Pattern and design are often used as a substitute for art when the budget is limited.

Customers prefer to hang work of rug design artist

By SUSAN KIRVIN
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — For a man who swears he can't draw a straight line, Chuck Sherman can draw circles around most rug makers.

In his tiny shop, cluttered with shelves filled with carpet bolts, remnants and hand tools, Sherman designs picturesque area rugs that resemble paintings without frames.

Some customers think they deserve to be called better than area rugs, saying they're more like works of art — too good for walking on.

A more fitting place for them, they say, is hung on walls displayed like paintings in an art gallery.

Sherman, a short, plump man with steel-blue eyes and a sharp wit, shuns the laud with the confidence of an artist who knows his trade well.

"You name it, I've made it. There's nothing I can't make, almost," he boasts.

He pauses a moment to recall some of his more unusual rug designs.

"I've made them to look like windows," he says. "One rug I made went over a bed like a bedspread. Another rug I made had a clock in it. And the clock worked."

To refresh his memory, he reaches for a blue scrapbook filled with colored snapshots of the rugs he's designed.

His carpets can be found in the Stardust Hotel in Las Vegas, as floor mats inside Mercedes Benz cars and another covering a mink-lined floor inside a $45,000 Stutz automobile.

Sherman's career as a carpet designer began four years ago. He retired as a sandwich maker for catering trucks in 1965.

He stumbled across his second career by accident after he found retirement a bore.

He started working and experimenting with remnants his son-in-law, a carpet-layer, gave him. That was four years ago and the beginning of his career as a rug maker.

"I figured there had to be something you could do with them (the remnants)," he says. He made carpet designs initially in square and triangle shapes.

His shop originally opened as a remnant and carpet store, but before long, Sherman says, "I would either get a bug in my head about what I wanted to design or some company would send me a picture from which to make a rug."

Today, 99 per cent of his business is wholesale.

"All the places I deal with are high-class places," he says. "I don't deal with retail."

He occasionally makes rugs for old friends when he gets in the mood.

"I don't often make the same thing twice," he says.

With a steady hand, Sherman quietly begins carving a foot mat for a Mercedes Benz.

"I've got to the point where I enjoy my work," he says, pausing a moment. "And I don't want anybody to take that away from me."

Chuck Sherman puts some finishing touches to his latest work with a pair of scissors. Behind him hang some samples of his rug "creations."

Sewing new art for gypsy women

By LARRY GERBER
Associated Press Writer

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — While many of the nation's women seek to break away from the housework role, 10 young gypsy women here are learning to use sewing machines and dress patterns.

And some are learning to read as they sew.

Many of the women can't read or write. For 2,000 years gypsies have avoided education because of a traditional mistrust of outsiders, said James Marks II, a gypsy leader who counsels and arbitrates disputes among his people. There are about 500 gypsies in the Spokane area.

"Their society's closed, and the women have a role of wife and mother and that's it," said Sue Riegel, a sewing instructor.

"To let the young girls out to go to class is a real breakthrough."

The $17,000 program, financed by the Federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act, is administered by a federal-city agency called Work Experience of Adults.

Most of the women are teenagers or young adults.

NEEDLEPLAY

Make do with existing things

By ERICA WILSON

Its true that with a needle and thread and some imagination, all kinds of magnificent things can be created, but did you ever stop to think what magic needlework can weave on things that already exist? Certainly in the pioneer days the women took darning needle and socks in hand for purely practical reasons, but why not add a little beauty to the practicality?

There is a great decorative stitch called the "weaving stitch" (see diagram) that is exactly like sock darning. It can be done with at least two or three threads in both directions—then when the weaving is completed evenly, the result is a series of perfect squares in contrasting colors. You can also use three or four threads for laying the first row of stitching, then darn through with only one or two in the other direction. (Try to keep the outline even, for this stitch usually looks best it it's not outlined.)

FAMILY SECRETS

Last winter my 9-year-old, Vanessa, came back from a party with a chocolate stain on her favorite pink velvet dress—one that has white flowers with long stalks embroidered all along the yoke. Several attempts at cleaning the dress wouldn't remove the stubborn stain (curse you, chocolate ice cream!), so I saved the thing from extinction by embroidering an extra flower in the simple "lazy daisy" stitch with a needle and some white knitting worsted.

If you have a favorite piece of clothing that has a larger-than-one-daisy stain, just embroider droves of flowers instead of just one. (Necessity once again is the mother of invention.)

Then there's my teenage daughter, Jessica, the one who walked around practically all summer in her cherished blue jeans with the rather well-ventilated seat. I overcame the temptation to throw them in the garbage recently (knowing that when she discovered them gone, I would suffer a similar fate), and instead ironed on some bright denim patches. I then stitched a particularly apropos saying on them—"a stitch in time saves nine"—hoping that next time she'll take the phrase to heart and do some creative embroidering herself before they (and she) are indecently thread-bare!

ELBOW IMPROVEMENTS

I don't know why it is that elbows are always the first things to go on sweaters—you'd think we sat around all day leaning on them—but there's a stitchery solution other than leather patches (which tend to pull on the soft texture of the wool).

Baste a piece of muslin inside the sleeve and stitch flowers, French knots, anything—working through the muslin and the hole in lots of crazy colors. By the way, this method is great for a moth hole or a cigarette burn, too, and there's something quite delightful, I think, about one butterfly or one daisy at some random spot on the sweater. Who knows, if you've enough spots or holes on all your clothes, you could choose an embroidery symbol and that could be your trademark on everything you wear.

Dress to create mood

COLLEGE STATION–Create the mood you want for holidays '76–with clothes, Beverly Rhoades, a clothing specialist, says.

"Whether serious, nonchalant, or whimsical and fanciful, fashions provide dressy or sporty, stark or jazzy, short or long, tight or loose styles to balance the scale," she said.

Miss Rhoades is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Whatever the style, silhouettes are natural and often tired or draped. Fabrics are soft, lush and lightweight or rugged and sturdy. Colors may be blazing reds, pinks or golds, or soft shades of favorites such as jade or purple or traditional neutrals," she reported.

Dresses are soft, flowing, simple and often sheer. Skirts may be lean or full and moving as in ankle-length chiffons and georgettes in florals or solids. Apron dressing in shiny fabrics provides an interesting approach to holiday fashions, she added.

"Versatile and comfortable jumpsuits may be lush and slinky–or sturdy and functional in gabardines, flannels, denims and wools.

Train says individual tax structure beyond reform

By RUSSELL TRAIN

WASHINGTON — Every year or so — particularly around election time — there is a great deal of talk about the need for tax reform. The rhetoric is familiar. Once again, the long-suffering American taxpayer-voter, always hopeful that help is on the way at last, responds favorably to the reform effort. And once again, when the smoke clears, a few old loopholes have been closed or modified, some new special treatments have been added, and a whole new dimension of exception and complexity has been introduced. The only certainty in the entire process is that every time we go through the so-called reform, the law becomes more complex and more impossible for the average citizen to work with and understand.

Nearly 20 years experience with our tax laws — in the writing of the laws themselves, in their administration, and finally in their interpretation as a judge — has convinced me that the present federal individual income tax structure is beyond essential reform. It can be tinkered with; it can be patched here and there. No doubt some improvements can be made. However, it is fundamentally beyond repair. The sooner we understand and accept this fact, the sooner we can get on with the job of real tax reform.

I truly believe that real reform of the present tax system is hopeless. I equally firmly believe that real tax reform is not only possible but fully within our reach — and long overdue. And I should make clear that the views I express here are entirely personal and are in no way intended to represent administration policy.

•

A Single, Flat Rate:

The answer as I see it is to abandon the progressive net income tax and substitute a single flat rate tax on adjusted gross income — that is, on an individual's total income, less personal exemptions, less allowable business expenses but before any personal deductions. In fact, personal deductions. (including the deduction of charitable contributions) go out the window under this approach. Personal exemptions (which should be increased to at least $1,000) should still be provided to cushion the burden at the bottom of the income scale (but of course, should be extended, as now, across the board). Special treatment of captial gains would be eliminated as no longer necessary, thus removing one of the greatest sources of complexity and potentials for abuse in the entire system. The tax exemption of interest on state and municipal securities would be eliminated as to future issues.

What sort of tax rate would be involved? I estimate that a tax base such as I have described would require an across-the-board rate of no more than 13 per cent and probably closer to 10 per cent to produce approximately the same revenue as produced by the present federal individual income tax. This compares with a first bracket rate today of 14 per cent and a top bracket rate of 70 per cent. I seriously doubt that the tax burden on lower incomes would be any greater than today and could well be lower.

It may seem that I am proposing more favorable treatment for business deductions than for personal deductions. The fact is that they do require different treatment in most cases. To disallow business expenses as a deduction would in many cases result in a tax on negative income. For example, the farmer should not be taxed on the proceeds from the sale of his crop without first deducting the cost of his seed, fertilizer, pesticides, labor, equipment, etc. Any individual with business income should have the same right.

The major exception I would make in the field of business expenses would be to disallow quite broadly deductions for entertainment, meals, gifts and travel. Some deductibility of travel would doubtless have to be allowed where it is integral to the operation of the business but this should be the exception rather than the rule. Some hardship would undoubtedly result but the abuses in this whole area are so great that the hardships would be a small price to pay for their elimination. And at a flat rate of about 10 per cent, nondeductibility isn't such a tremendous penalty in any event.

•

An Illusory Advantage:

The major objection to such a plan would be its apparent regressivity.

There are basically four answers to this objection. The first is that the supposed progressivity of the present income tax is largely illusory and mostly window dressing. Whether it operates progressively or not is very much a hit-or-miss proposition, varying according to the happenstance of the particular taxpayer. While the rate structure creates the appearance of strong progressivity, the plethora of special treatment means that the reality is often quite different. Second, I believe current economic analysis has in fact concluded that the present overall system, taking into account the Social Security tax, is quite definitely regressive in effect in any event. Third, there being so little honest progressivity in the present system, its preservation hardly justifies continuance of the present morass of complexity and special treatment. Fourth, if it were decided to build more real progressivity into a system such as I propose, this could be done quite easily and without inviting a repetition of the kind of mess we now have.

For example, it would seem to make sense to explore merging the employe share of the Social Security tax into the overall income tax structure. This approach could be considered as part of a comprehensive review of the present funding of the Social Security system.

A promising new possibility for consideration as part of any restructuring of the tax structure would be a consumption tax. Such a tax on expenditures above a certain amount could be utilized both to provide a portion of the revenue which would be otherwise raised by the income tax (and, thus, permit a further lowering of the income tax rate) and to eliminate any possible problem of regressivity in the tax system that I have proposed. A flat rate consumption tax could introduce significant new equity into our tax structure, without the disadvantages of a progressive tax on incomes.

As for the corporate income tax, its problems are quite different. However, the differences in rates between corporate and non-corporate income lead to many of the complexities of the Internal Revenue Code. I have the strong impression that the corporate income tax operates in effect as a hidden sales tax. If that is correct, the corporate income tax is passed on as part of the cost of goods sold and gets paid in the final analysis by the consumer.

An analysis

Such an effect must be strongly regressive since the passed-on tax must enter into the price of everything we buy — without exemptions. It must also be inflationary since the amount of tax must be assumed to be "pyramided" through mark-ups at the successive stages of the distribution and marketing system.

While it is politically far more palatable to tax corporations than to tax individuals, any basic overhaul of our tax system should not overlook the interrelationship between the corporate and individual tax systems. If the rates of the two taxes could be brought into greater parity, one of the major causes of complexity in our tax structure would be largely eliminated.

•

The Costs of Complexity:

The overly complex nature of the present system has another effect: It makes it practically impossible for our government and, particularly, Congress to deal rapidly and efficiently with the need to adjust revenue in response to the nation's fiscal needs. Inevitably, the congressional effort gets bogged down in the political issue of how to distribute the tax increase or the tax relief, as the case may be, and inevitably issues of special treatment arise. Inevitably, any tax revision program brings out a horde of special pleaders — either seeking to secure new benefits or to protect the benefits they already enjoy. What should be a relatively straightforward process for raising or lowering tax receipts (which is, after all, what the tax system is supposed to be all about) becomes a legislative morass. Accordingly, two years is about par for a congressional response to the need for a revenue change. And the outcome is totally uncertain up until the last moment.

Such delay is intolerable when our government should come to grips effectively and promptly with budget needs and economic policy requirements. It is a delay that contributes to the growing public sense of the incapacity of government to govern. A simple flat-rate income tax such as I propose would be a far more useful and efficient instrument of fiscal policy. A simple increase or decrease of the basic rate by a percentage point or two, or even by a fraction of a point, would be all that would be involved. I do not pretend that such a decision would necessarily be an easy one but, at least, policy makers would be able to focus on the gut issue: Should revenues be raised or lowered, and by how much? Frankly, under the present system, it is pretty hard to tell what the Congress is up to. I suspect that that is a judgment that most members of Congress would share.

The fact is that tax matters today are largely the province of experts. These experts, primarily in the legal and accounting professions, constitute a sort of priesthood on whom the rest of us must rely for interpretation of the holy mysteries. The priesthood even has its own private language and vocabulary. This is bunk, and it is dangerous bunk in a democratic society. It is the kind of nonsense that contributes to the alienation of people from government. If we believe that greater public participation in the processes of government is vital to the restoration of confidence in government, then we had better insist that the basic governmental processes are susceptible to common understanding. A good place to start on such a course is the present tax system. Since one of the causes of the American Revolution was to get control of taxation into our own hands (or those of our own representatives), it might be fitting in this Bicentennial year to stage another tax revolt — this time to take taxation away from the experts. My proposal makes this possible.

The present tax system helps erode the credibility of government. There is a widespread feeling that the system is not fair, that the other guy is getting away with something — and he very likely is. This is not a healthy atmosphere, and it can have a corrosive effect on our institutions generally. It can have a disastrous effect on our tax system itself.

The American income tax is fundamentally a "self-assessed" tax. Were it not for the basic good will and honesty of our taxpayers, even an army of policemen could not make it work. Unfortunately, there is considerable evidence today that this spirit of cooperation is wearing thin. Unless we restore confidence in the basic fairness of the system, we run a real risk of undermining our ability to support our government.

While outright tax evasion is a crime, tax avoidance is usually treated as a virtue. In the great game of taxation between citizen and government, the citizen is expected and even encouraged to take advantage of every legal way to minimize his taxes. Given the stakes involved, it is not surprising that there is a good deal of stretching of the technical legalities. In my opinion, the individual income tax has done more than any other single device, with the possible exception of Prohibition, to promote disrespect for the law, encourage cheating and put a premium on corner-cutting in our relations with government and our fellows.

•

Whose Ox Is Gored:

Since the benefits of such a fundamental tax reform seem overwhelming, who could possibly be against it? The answer, alas, is: practically everyone.

The beneficiaries of existing loopholes would fear and probably resist their elimination, despite the low rate that would be substituted.

There would be the politicians and others who would demagogue over the apparent lowering of rates on the wealthy, while continuing behind the scenes to play the game of special tax benefits.

Many tax lawyers and accountants would oppose such a basic change — some doubtless because of the potential loss of a highly remunerative occupation but more generally, I suspect, because of a strong mind-set against getting away from the familiar. It is for this latter reason that I would urge that, if any public commission were to be set up to recommend changes in our tax structure, tax professionals be excluded from its membership. Tax reform is too important to be left to the experts.

State and local governments would oppose the change because of the elimination (albeit prospectively only) of the tax exemption of interest on municipal bonds. This element of the plan would unquestionably lead to a rise in the cost of state and local borrowing at a time when these governments are already hard pressed in the financial markets. An appropriate answer to this problem would seem to be a direct federal subsidy outside the tax system. The present tax exemption is already a subsidy, hidden perhaps but nonetheless real in terms of lost federal revenue. A comparable effect could be achieved by the federal government paying some percentage of the interest cost of future borrowing to state and local governments — a percentage designed to be roughly equivalent to the rate advantage previously enjoyed. It should cost us about the same.

Churches, private educational institutions and other exempt organizations generally referred to as "charitable" would presumably oppose the change for fear that the nondeductibility of their contributions would dry up their support. There would undoubtedly be some reduction in very large gifts by upper-bracket taxpayers made relatively painless today by tax deductions. Tax considerations would no longer represent a moving force behind gifts. Actually, there are many reasons, aside from taxes, why people give their money away — a sense of social responsibility, simple charitable impulse, a feeling of affection or gratitude toward the institution concerned, religious conviction, a desire for a personal memorial, etc. These would all continue absent tax deductibility. Who knows, nontax donations might even take on a new vitality. Moreover, the low flat rate I propose should result overall in more disposable income being left to individuals out of which to satisfy their charitable impulses. And at the proposed low level of tax, nondeductibility should not result in any significant disincentive to charitable gifts.

If my proposal for substantially eliminating deductions for business entertaining, meals and travel were adopted, there would be strong opposition from those service industries that benefit from expense-account spending. The uproar from restaurants, theaters, night clubs and convention centers in many areas would be considerable, to say the least. Moreover, customers might even start insisting on decent service, inasmuch as they would be paying out of their own pockets.

Adjustment Problems:

All of this leads to the plain conclusion that, whatever the merits of the "Train plan," there would be adjustment problems in its implementation. The significance of these adjustment problems is an indication of the very real extent to which the present tax system has already influenced ("warped" might be a better word) the patterns of behavior of our society. I believe we can only benefit by eliminating this influence and by making the federal tax bite essentially neutral to our personal decisions. The withdrawal pains will be considerable. Thus, some transitional device, such as phasing in the new system over five years, might be desirable.

I do not hold out my proposal as being technically perfect — far from it. There are doubtless many technical difficulties. However, I am confident that, if a minute fraction of the time and effort that we have spent over the years in developing our present Rube Goldberg tax structure were put into perfecting the kind of plan I have put forward, we would readily solve any technical difficulties.

If we are serious about tax reform, a completely fresh start is required. We can in fact have a simple, fair, understandable and effective tax system if we want it and are willing to make the hard political choices which are involved. I frankly doubt that we are.

Assault verdict guilty

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district court jury ruled Friday that a former Houston fireman assaulted Houston Post photographer Fred Bunch in 1971 and that Bunch should be awarded $3,498 in damages.

The 10-2 verdict before visiting State District Court Judge W. C. Wallace awarded Bunch actual damages, $2,000 punitive damages and $498 for damages to his camera equipment.

The jury ruled that Wallace Whitley, a fireman at the time, committed a "willful and malifious" assault and battery on Bunch Dec. 1, 1971.

The incident happened when Bunch said he tried to take pictures of an old city ambulance allegedly being used to transport campaign material of then Mayor Louie Welch. Whitley claimed Bunch was trespassing on his property.

Management key to better yields

By CHARLIE GREEN
Midland County Agent

There are many fields of small grain (oats, wheat, barley or rye) planted in Midland County to be utilized as grazing for livetock. Proper management is very important in improving the yield and quality of grazing from small grains.

The first rule is to allow plants to become well established before grazing begines. Grazing too early can severely reduce forage yeilds. Grazing should start only after the plants have developed a good root system and when they have reached the 8-to 10-inch state of growth.

Plant height is a good indicatior of root development. Too early grazing can reduce yields by 25 per cent or more. A combination of grazing too early and too close over a period of time can lower forage output by as much as 70 of 80 per cent. Cross fencing or rotational grazing is as imporfant with winter grain pastures as it is with permanent pastures.

Livestock should be rotated from a field when the plants are grazed down to a height of three or four inches. Forage growth should be allowed to accumulate in the fall to provide grazing during the coldest part of the winter when little or no growth occurs.

During good weather, regrowth may take four or five weeks and cold weather can make the recovery period much longer.

Fertilizing the pasture is an important part of good management. Phosphorous helps develop a healthy root system for withstanding cold weather. Nitrogen in ample amounts is needed for lush growth when temperatures are right.

The protein level of most winter pasture plants is high enough (often reaching 25 per cent) for it to serve as a protein supplement. The best use of small grain pasture is on young, growing livestock (with high protein needs) and the best way to "stretch" winter pastures is too limit the grazing. Calves can make satisfactory gains by grazing small grain every second or third day provided good quality hay is available free choice in between grazing days.

Any of a number of spring flowering bulbs can be planted this fall to provide early color as soon as winter is past. Among these are crocus, snowdrops, winter aconite, byacinths, narcissus, daffoldils and tulips. They variety of color and size within the Various flowering bulbs is almost limitless.

Spring flowering bulbs must be planted in the fall so that roots and flowers can develop during the winter months. Then, at the first hint of spring, the flowers burst open.

For repeat blooming over a period of years, plant bulbs in good sandy loam soil located in a sunny area. With the exception of tulips, plant spring flowering bulbs in October and November so they have ample time to develop a good root system.

Keep tulip bulbs in a refrigerator at 35 to 40 degrees F. until mid-December to obtain longer stem length and good flower development.

Plant bulbs so that the top is below the surface of the soil a distance of about twice the bulb's diameter. For narcissus and tulips this would be about four inches, and for smaller bulbs, about two inches.

Will that tomato turn red?

Before that first severe freeze occurs, gardeners can harvest their green tomatoes for later ripening. How can you tell if a tomato when picked green will eventually turn red? Take a sharp knife and slice a green tomato in half.

If the seed are mature (hard) enough so the knife will not actually cut through them, then the tomato will eventually turn red.. If the knife cuts through the seed, the tomato will never properly ripen.

After cutting through a few fruit, the gardener can easily relate the external green color of the fruit to whether or not the seed inside the fruit are mature.

Those tomatoes that will eventually ripen should be harvested and stored at room temperature.

As the tomatoes turn full red, place them in the refrigerator for longer storage. Peppers, both hot and sweet, can be handled in the same way.

Montoya's personal finances issue in campaign

By BILL RICHARDS
The Washington Post

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The big red, white and blue roadside billboards here in New Mexico's largest city don't leave much to the imagination.

"Harrison Schmitt," they proclaim in foot-high letters. "Honesty for a change."

The message is clear enough. But Harrison (Jack) Schmitt, the 41-year-old Apollo 17 moonwalker and political newcomer who is challenging two-term, 61-year-old Democratic incumbent Joseph M. Montoya for his Senate seat, insists he is casting no aspersions on the character of his political rival.

"Our surveys show that in this state there is great distrust in elected officials in general," Schmitt said. He acknowledges that he is running against just one elected official. "If the shoe fits," said Schmitt with a smile, "he'll just have to wear it."

While there have been no outright claims that Montoya has done anything dishonest, Schmitt and the state's two largest newspapers, The Albuquerque Journal and The Tribune, have kept up a drumfire of criticism during the campaign over Montoya's personal finances.

Much of the attack has centered around a Santa Fe shopping center that Montoya and a partner purchased in 1959, two years before he became a congressman, and that he still holds.

Among the leaseholders in the shopping center is a U.S. Post Office. Montoya's critics point out that any federal official who "undertakes, executes, holds or enjoys" contracts with the federal government violates federal law. The statute provides that fines of up to $3,000 can be levied against violators of the law. Violations void any such contracts and contractors must repay money the government paid or they must be sued, according to the law.

Montoya, in an interview, cited the U.S. Postal Service and Justice Department investigation into the contract, and noted that the Senate ethics committee had also cleared him of any wrongdoing.

Montoya heads the Senate Appropriations subcommittee that oversees all Postal Service appropriations.

Thus far the New Mexico senator has refrained from publicly challenging the Schmitt billboards or the newspaper articles. Privately, however, Montoya aides said they were wrestling with what they called the "I-am-not-a-crook problem." The phrase was used by former President Nixon during the Watergate scandals.

Montoya suffered further political damage when the Treasury Department reported last April that the Internal Revenue Service had blocked audits on Montoya's tax returns. Montoya heads the Senate subcommittee that oversees funds for the IRS.

The Treasury report said Montoya did not seek favored treatment, but suggested a full audit of his returns, going back to at least 1972.

Montoya, in an interview, noted that he had been cleared by the IRS for his 1974-75 return, but nothing has been said about the IRS audit of the earlier returns. Treasury Department officials declined to discuss the audit or even say whether it is complete.

Montoya also was damaged recently by a national magazine article that identified him as one of the wealthiest members of Congress.

In past elections Montoya has never been a heavy winner in New Mexico. In 1970 he won by a 16,000-vote margin, or about 6 percentage points. This year both sides say their polls show them ahead. Montoya's polls, he said, have him 13 points over his opponent, while Schmitt says he is 5 points ahead.

Montoya's campaign has stressed his seniority and his record of obtaining federal funds for New Mexico. The state is second in the nation in per capita receipt of federal dollars, and is heavily endowed with military and nuclear research facilities.

Schmitt has emphasized private development to cure New Mexico's chronic high unemployment, and has dwelled on the state's low per capita income. New Mexico ranks 46th in the country in income level.

One of Schmitt's most controversial suggestions has been that the Interior Department's 13-million-acre public landholdings here be studied on a case-by-case basis for possible auction and private development.

Schmitt and Montoya have also differed sharply over Social Security, an important issue in New Mexico, where many elderly persons are buying retirement homes. Schmitt has called for a gradual turnover of the Social Security system to a plan that would be funded by mandatory personal assessments but run by private companies. Montoya advocates retention of the present Social Security system.

Schmitt's campaign has been focused on Republicans who are centered in the area around Albuquerque, a city of 370,000 which has one-third of the state vote. He has also been active among the state's conservative Democrats in the southeastern portion of New Mexico, an area that has been traditionally more conservative than the rest of the state.

Montoya noted recently that the state's Mexican-American vote has traditionally gone heavily for him. He has also done well in the past with and is concentrating on the state's more liberal Democratic majority, located in the north and around Albuquerque.

Building has uncertain future

By LARRY SPRINGER
AUSTIN BUREAU

AUSTIN—Sometime before Gen. George Custer rode into death and military glory at the Little Big Horn, he commanded a U.S. Army unit headquartered in Austin.

Most of Custer's historic headquarters building still stands at the southeast corner of the University of Texas at Austin campus and houses the soon-to-be defunct UT Extension Division.

That structure, known as the "Little Campus," has been termed an eyesore by some and a historic landmark by others.

The Austin Historic landmark Commission has asked the UT administration to preserve the 120-year-old building, citing its age and connection with the famous Indian-fighter.

But a campus organization of American Indian supporters has claimed that to honor the Little Campus because Gen. Custer once issued orders from within its portals is an insult to native Americans.

University administrators indicate they would like to raze the building and the UT student newspapaer "The Daily Texan" editorially has supported its preservation.

Working somewhat in the shadow of this controversy has been the Texas Antiquities Committee.

At a recent meeting of that panel, it was revealed that only one of the UT regents who ultimately will vote on the issue has shown any continuing interest in the historical background of the somewhat delapidated structure.

Regent Ed Clark, former U. S. Ambassador to Australia, asked for information on the Little Campus and later requested that the historic data — including a photo of Custer standing on the porch of the building — be sent to the other regents.

But, committee staff members said, a map delineating the five-year developmental plans for the UT campus shows that the building will be razed to make room for a parking lot for the university's new Special Event Center nearby.

The map dated June 1976, was filed with the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, on July 12. Accompanying material indicates that the building will be razed next spring because of its "proximity" to the Special Events Center.

The Little Campus is on the national register of historic places, the staff noted, and is protected from destruction by the Texas Antiquities Code. Only the Antiquities Committee can authorize the alteration or destruction of such designated landmarks.

Committee staff archeologist Alton Briggs said that the university should be given credit for preserving the Little Campus to the present. He noted it is one of the oldest publicly constructed buildings in the state.

Committee members, however, noted that their regulatory powers in this area are being challenged in the Texas Supreme Court by another learning insitution, El Centro College in Dallas.

They speculated that UT officials may be waiting to see waht happens in that case before proceeding with the bulldozing of the controversial building.

Parks and Wildlife Department representative on the committee Orion Knox suggested the a letter be sent to all the regents advising that the UT master plan shows an action which would be in violation of the law if carried out without permission from the committee.

UT Memorial Museum Director and committee member Dr. W. W. Newcomb added "We're going to have to push it or we're going to wake up some Sunday morning and it's going to be gone"

The group voted to send the letter to the regents.

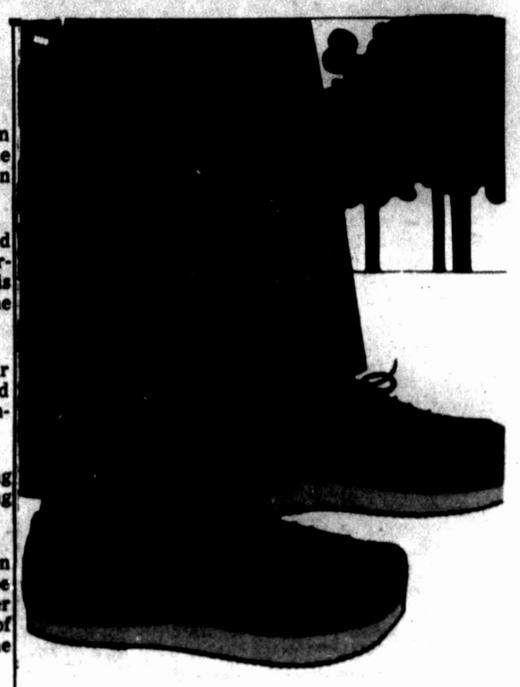

"This way," said committee member Truett Latimer, "they can't say they didn't know."

North loop road topic of special session

The Midland City Council and the Midland County Commissioners Court will convene in a special session at 10 a.m. Monday.

The two groups will meet in the commissioners courtroom at the county courthouse to discuss the proposed north loop road around Midland's urbanized area. A representative from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation also is expected to attend the session.

A public hearing was held by the highway department in mid-September. Three proposed routes were presented to the crowd attending the session. The highway department said the project would take about eight and one-half years from its conception to its completion and cost in the neighborhood of $40 million.
