No Hope Held For Recovery Of 7 Bodies

Charred Fragments Are Found At Scene Of Plane Tragedy; Ship Crashed In Flames

(By The Associated Press)

PAGO PAGO, Samoa, Jan. 13 — Clear indication the giant flying boat Samoan clipper and her crew of seven were destroyed in a fire and explosion was brought back to Pago Pago today by the minesweeper Avocet.

The naval craft returned to port last night with charred fragments from the ship after an all day search of the oil slick 12 miles off Pago Pago where the all-metal Transpacific plane crashed in flames Tuesday.

An Internal Explosion

Every item recovered showed signs of an internal explosion. All were charred, burned and covered with aluminum powder.

Because of the condition of the fragments, no hope was held of recovering the bodies of Captain Edwin C. Musick, 43-year-old Pan American Airways ace, and his crew of six from the shark-infested waters.

The plane caught fire while dumping excess gasoline preparatory to landing at Pago Pago to repair a broken oil line after starting out on a flight for Auckland, N. Z. It crashed in a thousand fathoms of water.

Wreckage Is Found

Wreckage found by the crew of the Avocet included:

A coat belonging to Radio Officer T. J. Findley, 29. It showed evidence of holes blown through it.

A pair of trousers belonging to J. A. Brooks, 38, assistant engineering officer.

The surface of the water where the plane sank was covered with hundreds of small fragments conceded by searchers to be fragments of the fuselage.

Gasoline Is Ignited

As the tragedy was reconstructed, gasoline being dumped was vaporized and ignited, presumably by a hot exhaust pipe. Whether an ex-

Farm Deadlock Still Grips Congress But Progress Is Noted

(By The Associated Press)

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 13 — Southern commissioners of agriculture today looked forward to placing in the hands of congress by this weekend a "constructive cotton legislation program" they adopted late yesterday.

The commissioners recommended:

1. Restitution to cotton farmers for economic injury inflicted by the tariff.

Seek Parity Income

2. Compensatory tariff payment to elevate income of the grower to parity by supplementary soil conservation service payments.

3. For sources of revenue the following alternatives: (1) receipts from import duties; (2) excise tax on cotton textiles and competing products, except wool and mohair, at point of manufacture.

4. A 13,000,000-bale limit crop with allotment to the individual states on the basis of production in 1937.

5. These payments to be made in conformity with the present soil conservation program.

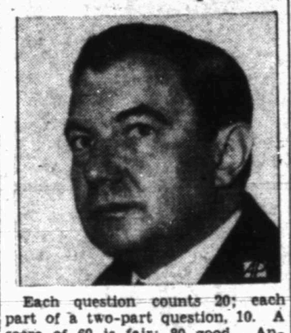

Limit Importations

6. Import duties or excise taxes on imported vegetable oils and fats to limit the importation of such products to the difference between domestic production and consumptive needs.

7. An adequate tariff on jute and its products to provide protection for cotton.

Commissioners present included: J. E. McDonald of Texas.

Written Contracts With Corn And Wheat Growers Banned

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13. (AP)—Written contracts with corn and wheat growers have been eliminated from the "ever normal granary" program of crop control, Senator Pope (D-Idaho) said today.

Such contracts had been authorized under the senate farm bill but, Pope said, the joint congressional committee now trying to reconcile the separate house and senate measures had scrapped the provision.

Progress Is Reported

Pope reported general progress by this committee, but Chairman Smith (D-SC) of the senate agriculture committee disagreed.

"Just Pass Out The Ballots And It'll Be All Over," Declares Alfalfa Bill

(By The Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 13. —Ex-Governor William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray — that's the way he wants his name on the ballot—stormed into town today wearing a brilliant red and blue muffler and declared he had the governor's race won "right now."

"Just pass out the ballots," he said, "and it'll be all over."

He is a Democratic candidate in the July primary.

"They're going to file two or three William H. Murrays to split my vote," he said. "I want them to identify me as 'Ex-Governor William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray.' Then I won't care who files."

"Alfalfa Bill" went straight to a hotel, parked himself in the middle of the bed—hat, shoes, muffler and all—and held open house.

"Don't ask me how I feel," he growled. "You're not a doctor. You wouldn't know what to do if I felt bad. But how do I look?"

He looked in excellent health. He is 68.

Auto Industry Asked To Cut Sales Policy

Curtailment Being Sought In Installment Buying; Sloan Says Plan Too Drastic

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 —President Roosevelt was reported today to be negotiating in conferences with business leaders for curtailment of credit on installment buying.

Informed persons said he had suggested to the motor industry tightening of sales credit in line with his previously expressed intention of eliminating "high pressure salesmanship."

Suggestion Is Rejected

This was one topic the president was said to have discussed Tuesday with Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the General Motors corporation, and four other industrialists.

One well-posted government official said the president had proposed that the auto industry limit its extension of credit on the purchase of cars to 25 per cent, but that Sloan had rejected the suggestion as too drastic.

Others at the conference—Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation; Lewis Brown, president of Johns-Manville; M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Colby Chester, chairman of the General Foods corporation—were not so directly connected with the problem of installment sales.

Production Is Unbalanced

At a press conference last week the president told of a steel manufacturer whose production had dropped from 90 to 28 per cent of capacity because of the slump in automobile production and uneven purchases of rails by railroads.

Mr. Roosevelt said steel production had been unbalanced by railroads purchasing rails for an entire year at one time, causing an undue acceleration of production during part of the year and a slump during the remainder.

The president criticized the automobile industry for selling cars on a 24 months credit arrangement instead of the previous 18 months, and for over-selling by telling prospective purchasers that the price was going up.

Problems Are Related

In his discussions of over-selling and high pressure salesmanship, the president has tied up the question with the whole problem of industrial planning to even production.

One of the administration's business advisers said cooperation between industry and government in

Price Slashes Bring Relief For Budgets

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 1—One of the sharpest drops in meat prices on record—9 to 50 per cent in the wholesale market since September according to market figures today—has put butcher shop conversation back on a weather and neighborhood basis.

Housewives now let the butcher talk of pleasant subjects. The emphasis no longer is on the high price of pork chops, beef ribs, bacon and other items in the meat budget.

Budget Gets Relief

The household budget has received substantial relief in the meat department in the last four months. The highest swing in meat prices in recent years was crushed by consumer resistance, the business slump, and reduced consumer buying power coupled with increased livestock receipts. Big 1937 grain crops which are being transformed into meat as rapidly as farmers can speed up the process were responsible in part for the increased supply.

Livestock prices have dropped as much as 5 to 8 cents a pound for hogs and choice steers, respectively.

Declines in wholesale meat prices since mid-September ranged from 21 to 50 per cent on fresh pork cuts in Chicago. Cured pork has dropped 20 to 24 per cent; fresh beef 21 to 38 per cent; dressed veal 23 per cent; lamb cuts 9 to 20 per cent. Livestock men said reductions here were typical of those in most cities.

Two Dead As Man Learns That He Had Fallen In Love With Own 17-Year-Old Daughter

SCOTTSDALE, Pa., Jan. 13 (AP)—Westmoreland county coroner, Dr. H. A. McMurray, said last night a 47-year-old Restone township man killed his daughter, with whom he had fallen in love unaware of their relationship, then killed himself.

Lying side by side, the bodies of Nelson Meese, and his 17-year-old daughter Nellie, were found in the living room of the girl's home.

Nellie's unmarried mother, Pearl Hollis, 38-year-old WPA sewing project worker, found the bodies when she returned from work.

Dr. McMurray said two letters in the girl's purse led him to believe Meese had fallen in love with his daughter whom he had not seen since her birth. Then, he said, Meese evidently found out their relationship.

One letter dated Dec. 31, said:

"It is going to be hard for me to leave you now. You may not believe this but you are the only person I ever saw that I really liked and you turn out to be my own daughter."

Senator Glass Enters Fight On Lynching

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Southern senators, continuing a week-long filibuster against the anti-lynching bill, counted today on Senator Glass for a new castigation of the measure.

Glass agreed to make an hour's talk. Senator Connally (D-Tex) predicted it would have "a great deal of influence" in building sentiment against the bill.

Would Split Party Lines

The anti-lynching debate has brought numerous predictions from southern Democrats that passage of the legislation would split party lines.

Northern Democrats, Connally said, should remember southern votes in the national party convention "and in the senate when the court nomination is made."

Senator Bailey (D-NC) told the senate yesterday the Democratic party "is being made to cater to the negro vote" and that this might "destroy the party."

Show Strong Spirit

Senator Smith (D-SC) said off the floor that southerners are fighting with "strong spirit" against the anti-lynching bill, which he described as similar "to the persecution of reconstruction days."

Thus far, the senate leadership has not attempted to use the customary weapons against filibusters—night sessions and limitation of debate. This policy presumably has sprung from a desire to avoid alienating the bloc of southern senators.

Drop In Lubbock's 1938 Vote Feared

Possibility of impaired voted strength at this year's elections was foreseen by some members of Lubbock county's official family, and the tax collector-assessor's office visioned a last-minute rush out of proportion to the department's abilities to "wait on the customers" in a 15-hour day—as a result of slow buying of poll taxes.

Through Wednesday afternoon only 2,198 poll taxes had been bought, and 127 exemptions obtained—as compared with 8,600 poll taxes representing the aggregate on the 1936 deadline.

Fifteen Days Remain

Only 15 more business days remain to get poll taxes and exemptions—and the tax office must be concerned, as well, with state and county taxes, deadline of which falls at the same time as for poll taxes, Jan. 31.

"With a big election year coming, Lubbock county should make itself eligible for voting expression commensurate with its potential strength," said one official. Two years ago, he pointed out, the total poll tax and exemption certificate list ran approximately 9,440, exclusive of permanent exemptions

DALLAS, Jan. 13.— Funeral services will be held here today for Tucker Royall, 60, Texas banker, who died at a hospital here early today after an illness of 10 days. The body will be taken to Palestine where services will be held and interment will take place tomorrow.

Funds For Narcotic Farm Being Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13. (AP)—The public health service has asked congress to provide $641,720 to begin operation next fall of the $4,000,000 narcotic farm at Ft. Worth.

The record of hearings on the annual treasury appropriation bill disclosed today the service asked $356,720 for administrative expenses and salaries of personnel, and the procurement division asked $285,000 to purchase equipment, including livestock.

The health service said the Ft. Worth hospital would have a 1,200 bed capacity and should be ready to receive patients by September or October.

Ferocity Of Truant Officer Only Myth

The traditional ferocity of the truant officer is only a myth so far as two Lubbock boys are concerned.

The two boys, Aubrey Weaver and Elton Gilliland were sauntering along the Junior High school environs the other afternoon, when they were approached by an attractive young woman. When asked if they attended school they answered affirmatively in their most polite manner. When the young woman asked the name of their school, they began to get suspicious.

"Are you a truant officer?" asked one of the boys.

They learned she was Miss Mayme Alexander, visiting teacher of Lubbock schools. They showered her with questions regarding the duties of a truant officer.

"Where do you go to school?" Miss Alexander repeated, believing she had picked up some Junior High school hookey players.

"Texas Tech", replied the boys in unison.

Press Leader To Quit Post

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Frank B. Noyes of Washington announced today his retirement from the presidency of the Associated Press, at the expiration of his present term. He has held the position through thirty-eight eventful years of newspaper history.

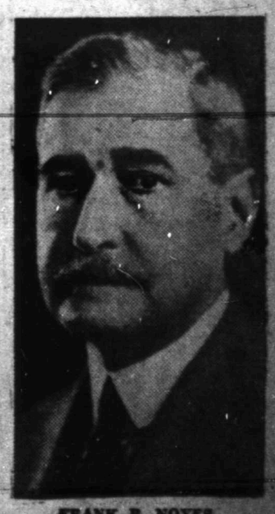

To the board of directors, in session here, Mr. Noyes disclosed his decision not to accept reelection, under any circumstances, at the expiration of his present annual term in April. After his long service, he said, he felt entitled to pass on to younger hands a task to which he has devoted himself since his 30's. On July 7, next, he will be 75.

Regret Is Expressed

The board unanimously expressed regret at his withdrawal, which means the end of one of the most notable tenures in American journalism. His present and last term of office as president will extend through the annual meeting of members in April, and his successor will be elected by the board immediately thereafter.

Mr. Noyes will continue as president of the Evening Star at Washington. Asked today whether he would permit himself to be considered for continuing service on the board of the Associated Press,

Huge Transport Planes Of The Future May Use Oil Burners

(By The Associated Press)

DETROIT, Jan. 13.— The transport airplane of the future, operating many miles above the earth at incredible speeds, may be sped on its way by motors burning the same fuel used in domestic oil furnaces, the annual meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers was told today.

The Diesel internal-combustion engine has advantages over gasoline engines, Ernest G. Whitney and Hampton H. Foster, engineers for the national advisory committee for aeronautics, said.

Much research work remains to be done, however, they added, before the Diesel motor achieves the proper combustion and is able to stand higher cylinder pressure.

They noted that for "very high altitude airplanes" the Diesel may prove to be more suitable than the current gasoline airplane engines, due to certain mechanical and combustion advantages.

The oil-burning motor,

Two Are Killed As Officer Is Forced To Fight His Way Out

(By The Associated Press)

SENECA, Mo., Jan. 13.—A dramatic account of fighting his way out between the guns of two men and killing both was related from a hospital bed today by Constable Roy Hance.

The officer, who was wounded in the hand, said he went last night to the farm house of Logan E. Hunt, 37, to ask him if he knew anything about the mystery slaying of Norman E. Mitchell, wealthy Seneca business man, and had to kill both Hunt and Carl (Kid) Smith, 34, to avoid being taken on a threatened death "ride."

Hance said he entered the farmhouse, found Hunt sitting on a box and then felt Smith stick a shotgun in his back.

"Hunt put me between him and the kid and started toward the front door," Hance related.

"I decided right then if they were going to kill me, it was going to be in the house and not in the car. I seized Hunt's hand that held his pistol and tried to hold him between me

TAKE WEIGHT OFF TIRED FEET

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

If your feet and ankles feel tired and ache all over—because you are carrying too much fat—do something about it. Try the treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets contain the same element prescribed by most doctors in treating their fat patients. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get a box of Marmola today from your druggist.

Don't Experiment—

Treat Colds Proved Way

Doubly proved—in world's largest colds-clinic, and by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind. No "dosing." Just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Relief begins almost at once. And long after sleep comes, VapoRub keeps right on working. Its poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation and coughing, helps break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Soviet Russia 1938 Puzzle

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 13 — Soviet Russia enters the new year as the great question mark of world politics.

Particularly perplexed is the French government. For France has an alliance with Russia. That alliance does not sit too well with England and is a cause of distrust on the part of Poland. Two other friends of France — Rumania and Yugoslavia—do not like this Franco-Russian partnership. Rumania is afraid the Soviets may try to take Bessarabia back. Yugoslavia — filled with White Russian emigres — has never had any dealings with Soviet Russia.

But aside from this diplomatic angle, France would give a good deal to know just what material value this Russian partner means to France in case of trouble.

Progress Intrigued France

When France signed her pact with Soviet Russia, all seemed fair in the military garden. The Soviets had built up their Red Army to the point where it was the largest in the world. They had one of the biggest air forces in the world. There was considerable secrecy about their navy, but it was darkly hinted they had a much bigger and more powerful submarine force than was generally believed.

Furthermore, by reason of the various Five Year plans, the new Russia, unlike the Russia of the Czars, had a large home industry, capable of manufacturing all the arms and munitions the country might need. Also in the Spanish civil war — where Russian planes, tanks and guns were tested against similar weapons of German and Italian origin, the Soviet material had stood up well. So far, so good.

Purges Indicate Weakness

But then began the terrifying series of "purges" by special courts in Russia, followed by dozens of executions of men who had held the highest posts in the Soviet state — executives, generals, airforce experts, munitions technicians, mine authorities, manufacturing superintendents, diplomats. All of them were charged with treason to the state or with sabotage or with favoring foreign powers. The inescapable surmise was:

1—Either these men were adherents of Trotzky and so eliminated to make the Stalin regime more solid on its foundations.

2—Or they were genuine traitors.

In either case, it revealed a state of affairs in which the business of Soviet Russia was honeycombed with people who hated the regime and wished it no good. A government thus menaced and harassed, which seeks and finds traitors under every bush and in every nook and corner, is probably badly crippled at the start.

At least, that is what an increasing number of Frenchmen fear. They are wondering whether in that next war history would not repeat itself, with Russia once more dropping out of the contest, once more beaten from within rather than from without.

The main hope of the Frenchmen, who still anxiously desire the alliance, is that Stalin is really the man of steel; that he knows what he is doing and is setting about it with iron purpose; that when he gets through with his purge, he will have a Stalinized Russia stronger than that country has ever been in all its history.

Retrace 2800-Mile Pioneer Trail

In observance of the 150th anniversary of the settlement of the Colonial Northwest Territory in 1787, 36 youths were to re-enact the 2800-mile trek through the wilderness from Ipswich, Mass., to Marietta, O., in which Reverend Manasseh Cutler's pioneers made history. The youths, who above clean equipment, will spend a year plodding from city to city behind the oxen-drawn covered wagon, garbed in buckskin outfits and coonskin caps, presenting a pioneer pageant on their nightly stops.

Seven Texans Graduates Of Uncle Sam's Police Academy; Local Chief Included

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Seven Texans are graduates of Uncle Sam's national police academy.

Selected as students because of their excellent records as peace officers, and graduated from the academy because of application to the study of modern methods of crime prevention and control, these men represent widely scattered points of the Lone Star state.

They are E. P. Bogasch of San Antonio; Robert D. Drennan of El Paso; Earl C. Dunn of Corpus Christi; Boynton Fleming of Brownsville; Don Reeder of Lubbock; Harry T. Riddell of Dallas and Eugene M. Wells of Austin.

Chiefs Often Enroll

The primary purpose of the academy's twelve-weeks course is to provide instruction to those who are to teach police officers. Often chiefs of police enroll for the course.

Besides training in the instruction of others on police matters, the students are taught how the federal bureau of investigation operates. They study the fingerprint files, where more than 7,500,000 identication cards are kept, scrutinize weapons and clues gathered by G-men in famous murder cases, and are drilled in countless small details that someday may mean the capture and conviction of a criminal.

Of course, target practice is one of the regular duties. They learn to shoot from varied positions at a moving dummy dresed as a gangster.

The men come here at their own expense, or at the expense of their service. The school and all facilities are offered free by the government.

Reeder is chief ot the Lubbock department.

Designation Of Safety Zones For Bus Stops Being Sought

Designation of safety zones for downtown bus stops will be urged by a committee for Lubbock Safety council appointed at a meeting Wednesday night at the city hall according to announcement by O. B. Conley, president of the council.

The committee composed of George Dupree, Arno Dalby, and Glen Hess, also will ask that Lubbock's new traffic ordinances be printed in sufficient number in condensed form to be distributed to car owners of Lubbock county.

Dupree will make a safety talk over radio station KFYO at 6:45 o'clock Friday afternoon.

General safety meetings for the purpose of public education will be held in Lubbock High school auditorium soon, said Conley.

Portable House Firm Organized Here; To Start Construction

Organization of Portable House company and intention to sell and rent structures manufactured by it were announced here by O. A. Woody and J. W. Gamel.

Woody is circulation manager of the Avalanche-Journal publications, and Gamel was formerly associated with Minter-Gamel company, a dry goods firm, which was liquidated here in 1931. Gamel will have charge of construction, rental and sales.

Plans call for construction to begin Monday on approximately 100 completely furnished 8 by 18 feet houses which the company will distribute here, in oil field districts and other sections where housing deficiency arises. From six to 10 structures will be completed each week, Gamel said.

Houses will resemble trailer houses in construction but will not have wheels. A specially constructed trailer will be used to transport them from one location to another. Several houses may be located on one lot under present plans.

Texas Farmers Are To Get Electricity

Prediction that 50,000 Texas farms will have electricity by the end of this year was made here Wednesday by P. T. Montfort of College Station research associate and rural electrification expert for the agricultural engineering department of Texas A. and M. college.

Montfort is in Lubbock to attend a two-day rural electrification school at Texas Technological college.

Study New Uses Of Power

"Chief interest now, in rural electrification, is the new uses of power on the farm," Montfort said. "There are over 200 ways of using electrical power in a practical way, on the farm. Our first interest, of course, is household applicances.

"We also want to develop ways of using electricity in production, in order to reduce farm costs and to apply increased efficiency in raising farm income."

Montfort said that at present there were either now under construction or contracts approved, for some 2,000 miles of high line for farm electric service. Cost of these lines will be about $2,000,000. The Lubbock county REA project is included in these figures.

Michigan, although an inland state, has the longest coastline of any state in the union.

Forgery Suspect Is Held In New Mexico; Another Sought

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 13. (AP)—Edward Davis, arrested in Wisconsin and brought here by federal agents investigating forgery activities in a dozen states, was held for the federal grand jury under $15,000 bond today.

Davis entered a plea of innocent. Davis, with an accomplice yet at large, is charged with forging checks on an Albuquerque national bank and transporting the money to Phoenix, Ariz., in violation of the national stolen property act.

The money, amounting to $5,345, was obtained through fraudulently signing the names of two prominent Albuquerque attorneys to checks.

At Davis' arraignment, detainer orders were entered by the states of Washington, Florida and New Mexico for separate state criminal prosecution on forgery charges.

About 2,200,000 people in England, or one-twentieth of the population, pay income taxes.

STILL "TOPS"... after 31 Years
As a Tobacco Auctioneer

Veteran Jim Edwards tells why tobacco experts prefer Luckies 2 to 1...
"I recently sold 489,000 pounds of tobacco in one 6½ hour day," says Mr. J. N. Edwards of Farmville, North Carolina.
"There was a buyer, naturally, for every one of those 489,000 pounds... But there was as much difference between the best grades and the inferior, as between a pretty girl and a homely one.
"At auction after auction, I've seen Lucky Strike go after the prettiest lots of tobacco. It's no wonder Luckies taste so good. I've smoked them since 1917.
"And another thing . . . even after yelling out tobacco bids all during a seven hour day, Luckies are still just as easy as ever on my throat."
Only Lucky Strike offers you the finest tobacco plus the throat-protection of the exclusive process "It's Toasted". This process takes out certain irritants found in all tobacco—even the finest.
Men who know tobacco from A to Z—experts like Mr. Edwards—are surely good judges of cigarettes... Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

Plainview Is Meeting Site

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 13. (Special)—The Board of City Development has invited irrigation experts of the southwest to take part in a congress here March 9 and 10 to consider field irrigation problems, land fertilization, livestock on irrigated farms and related subjects.

The Plainview board has been at work for some time arranging a meeting of irrigation experts and interested farmers.

Irrigation Extensive

Hale county is one of the leading counties in the state in irrigation. Its shallow water area extends into Floyd county on the east and Swisher on the north, with shallow water in Lamb and Bailey counties to the west and Castro northwest. Lubbock's area also is believed to be connected in the group.

Intensive drilling of wells for irrigation farming has brought up numerous problems. Hale, Floyd, Lamb and Lubbock county farmers have formed organizations to study the possibilities and also to secure recognition in a proposed agricultural bill that is now before congress.

Other Areas Covered

South Plains irrigation covers, besides the above named counties, Lynn, Crosby, Hockley and Briscoe, with several other counties now becoming interested. Deaf Smith county is an important water sector also.

More than 1,450 wells have been drilled in this section, with an acreage in excess of 200,000 under the pumps.

The state of Texas through its water board, and the federal government, has begun a study of water resources of the area.

July used to be the fifth month of the year.

Check Dated April 3, 1899 Is Presented At Fort Worth For Payment; Man Gets Cash

FORT WORTH, Jan. 13. (AP)—The Fort Worth National bank has just cashed a $1 cashier's check dated April 3, 1899.

Where the check had been all these years, why it had never been cashed, what it was intended for in the first place, haven't been solved yet.

This check was drawn by the Fort Worth National on its account with the First National bank of Kansas City, Mo., and made payable to C. Von Carlowitz.

The check was signed by the late Major K. M. Van Zandt, for many years president of the bank. Von Carlowitz, the check shows, indorsed it over to Mrs. Mary Clark and J. T. Clark both of whom reindorsed it.

It was J. T. Clark who presented the check, after 38 years to the First National bank at Ottawa, Kan.

That was ten days ago. The Ottawa bank sent it to the Fort Worth National for collection.

Members Of Mark Halsey Sales Force At Meeting Wednesday

Eighteen members of the sales force of Mark Halsey Drug store attended a meeting Wednesday night at the Lubbock hotel at which Jim Depree of the Depree company, Holland, Mich., was the principal speaker.

Purpose of the session was to obtain information to increase sales of vitamin products. "Without vitamin you die," Depree said. "An insufficient amount causes polyneurosis."

The speaker explained what each of the vitamins are and where they are found.

Also in attendance was B. W. Harrison of Dallas, Texas, representative for Depree products.

Student Uprising Breaks Over New Mexico College's Campus

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Jan. 13. (AP)—A student uprising broke over the campus of New Mexico Normal university today, directed at a variety of grievances from "student suppression" to the condition of drinking fountain and overstringent rules governing co-ed dormitories.

A list of complaints was presented in behalf of the student body to Dr. H. C. Gossard, president, who appointed an investigating commission of faculty members, students and members of the board of regents to prepare a "constructive program."

Cramped Social Life

Student ire was loosed at a series of mass assemblies, where speakers cracked down principally on what was considered a cramped campus social life and lack of entertainment.

The high cost of fun was assailed bitterly, and the formal grievance covering this topic declared that students "feel they are denied a just and proper share of responsibility and authority in the selection of entertainment for student and community enjoyment and in the spending of the money therefor."

One student complained the cost of a musical entertainment ruined his budget for the remainder of the semester.

Campus social life, charged the students, "is inadequate in quantity and variety."

Oil Allowables For Two Pools In This Section Increased

The Bennett oil pool has been hiked from 300 to 500 barrels in its allowable, the Wasson from 1,017 to 1,857 barrels, the Texas Railroad commission announced Wednesday through the Associated Press.

Special rules were adopted for the Bennett field, which is in Yoakum county. It was divided into 20-acre proration units, but the order permitted drilling of one well to each 13 acres. The field will be prorated half on acreage and half on unit potential.

Lightning was thought to be zigzag until photography proved that the "corners" were rounded.

Flood Control Idea Studied

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP) — The American Petroleum Institute, looking into history for precedents for the use of asphalt in flood control, found that King Sanherib of Assyria three thousand years ago, used the element to cement bricks together in a sloping wall to protect the banks of the Tigris river.

Despite that early use of asphalt for river bank protection, not until a few years ago was it again used for that purpose, a report from the institute says. Now mile after mile of the banks of the Mississippi river is being "aproned" with immense sheets of asphalt to control the vagaries of the floods.

Story Is Romantic

The story of the development of asphalt "aprons" for flood control is one of the great romances of modern engineering. For many years concrete slabs were used for the protection of Mississippi river levees at focal spots. Besides being very expensive, they were short-lived. They were cracked by frost and eroded by the swirling water, necessitating frequent replacement.

Twenty years ago Lieut. Col. George M. Derby of the corps of engineers, working on flood prevention, asked permission to experiment with bituminous mattresses, believing that better and less expensive protection of river banks could be obtained with asphalt. Research was temporarily suspended during the war, but the work was later taken up and by 1932 the value of asphalt-protective mattresses was fully demonstrated.

Plant Is Installed

In 1934 an immense plant was installed in a barge, producing asphalt mattresses 20 feet wide and 300 feet long. The asphalt is mixed with the sand from sand bars and reinforced with wire mesh. Being flexible, the mats slide easily over the side of the barge and take the contour of the bank.

This novel use of asphalt, the report says, has led many technical men to the conclusion that bituminous mixtures, heretofore restricted to roads and streets, roofing and waterproofing, may find broad application because of their remarkable physical properties.

Twenty-Four Words Were Used And They All Meant "No"

CHICAGO, Jan. 13 (AP)—An old negro stood at a desk of the Chicago relief agency with a letter in his hand and said:

"I been writin' and writin' about getting me some clothes and all I gets is dis letter which doan answer me nothin'."

The letter read:

"Your request for clothing has been noted. Regret to advise that due to paucity of funds it cannot be met at the present time."

When "paucity" was explained as "scarcity" and "lack of funds" as no money, the applicant left mumbling: 'Why doan you jes say 'no'?"

The kettledrum is the only kind of drum having a definite musical pitch. It may be tuned to any one of the notes within its compass of half an octave.

Crippled Texas Boy Has Completed His Third Carved Violin

BUCKHOLTS, Jan. 13 (AP)—Eddy Orsag, 19-year-old crippled boy of Buckholts, recently completed his third violin, carved from sections of a telephone pole and railroad cross-tie. A pocket knife and rasp were the only tools employed by his thin hands to make the instrument, which is said to have a sweet tone.

The boy never has been able to walk nor go to school, but likes to make things and those who have seen his work say he has developed remarkable skill in carving. He pushes his body along the floor of his home with his hands, or with an iron rod propels a little wagon around the door yard.

Eddy wants to be self supporting but he cannot buy materials or tools for his self-taught avocation. He uses what he can find, and the violins, representing his handiwork, were made entirely with a jackknife with no evidence of amateur workkmanship, it is said. The only parts bought were the strings and bridges. The gooseneck and pegs are delicately carved, and the tailpieces fashioned from beef bones.

Like his carving, Eddy has learned to play a little upon his instruments without lessons, but looks into the future when more skilled fingers will, perhaps, make them sing the songs he can only imagine.

Husband And Wife Are Fined For Baby Buggy Speeding

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 13 (AP)—For the first time in Denmark — and perhaps in the world —a husband and wife have been fined for speeding with a baby carriage.

They linked junior's buggy to their bicycles and made good progress until a police patrol stopped them for traveling at 12 miles an hour, more that the law allows for a baby carriage.

Two days later the parents had to pay a $2 fine.

Duce's Daughter Plays Dual Role; She's An Ideal Wife And Is Papa's Confidante

ROME, Jan. 13 (AP)—The birth of Countess Edda Mussolini Ciano's third child, a son, focusses public attention on Italy's most dynamic feminine figure.

To the masses of Italians it means Il Duce's impetuous daughter is proving herself a true Italian wife, upholding the fascist ideal of large families.

To shrewd international observers looking behind the scenes of public life, it means the person whom diplomats believe to be Mussolini's most intimate confidante is increasing her father's pride and affection by setting the example he wishes Italians to follow.

There is little doubt that Mussolini's elegantly gowned, high-spirited daughter is an influence to be reckoned with in Italian politics. Appointment of her youthful husband to be foreign minister after a brief diplomatic and military career was widely attributed to the urging of the dictator's strong-willed daughter.

Trip To Berlin

She made a significant visit to Berlin about the time the Rome-Berlin axis was being forged. She was revealed dining with Hitler and other high nazi leaders before the curtain of official silence fell upon Italian newspapers.

Countess Ciano does not receive the publicity in Italy that would be accorded a similar personality in America. Fascist Italy believes a woman's place is in the home, exalted by motherhood. Whether from desire or for political reasons, the countess keeps in the background.

Papa's Booster

It is general belief, however, that she can break with impunity more rules laid down by her stern parent than can either of her brothers or any of the statesmen surrounding Mussolini. She goes frequently to his palatial residence, Villa Torlonia, for intimate evenings with her father and mother. Diplomats would like to know what tips Il Duce's keen, traveled daughter drops on current events in these meetings.

When she does make a public appearance, Countess Ciano is revealed as a spirited booster for her father. She does a great deal of fascist party work among the women such as addressing meetings, heading subscription lists, visiting hospitals. Women's clubs, as such, are virtually non-existent in Italy. It is her custom at Chrismas time and on Mussolini's birthday to distribute gifts to children of the Roman poor.

Is Mother First

She has her father's daring, too. Notable was her refusal to leave Shanghai in 1934, when her husband was consul-general there during Sino-Japanese hostilities which threatened to bring the city under conditions like those prevailing today.

COUNTESS EDDA CIANO
She's A Fascist Idealist

Her first job, of course, is that of mother. With it she combines her flare for sports. Under her tutelage her boy, Fabrizio, 6, and daughter, Raimonda, 3, are getting an early start in swimming and skiing. Their mother takes them to Cortina d'Ampezzo for the winter sports. She swims with them in the surf near the Ciano winter home in Viareggio. The boy is a member of the fascist party organization, "Sons of the Wolf."

Countess Ciano, like her father, loves to drive her own car at high speeds over the Roman countryside highways. During the Ethiopian sanctions period, however, she locked it in a garage and rode on buses to save gasoline for the war in Africa.

She Was Cheered

When occasion requires Count Ciano to entertain notables with their wives, Countess Ciano proves a charming hostess. She has less of this to do than she would in some countries, however. Italians prefer their business luncheons "stag."

Always the countess is seen beautifully clothed. Like most ladies of the Roman nobility, she has her own tailor. But she is not true to him. Friends say when she sees a dress in a shop window which she thinks expresses her personality, she drops in and buys it.

A month before her baby was born on December 18, Countess Ciano accompanied her husband to a motion picture theater. She was recognized and applauded by the audience.

Judge Says Gambling Is No Bar To U. S. Citizenship

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 13 (AP) — Eight arrests for gambling do not bar a man from American citizenship, U. S. Judge J. Stanley Webster ruled in passing a Yugoslav applicant.

"If the gambling laws were enforced against our native born sons I imagine the population of Spokane would be somewhat reduced," the judge said.

Virginia Fans Celebrate

By Collier Parris

YOU WILL PLEASE pardon us while we sneak over to the corner, don a suit of sackcloth and mumble a few chants about injustice and basketball.

Now if anything we said made the Texas Tech basketeers angry, to the end that they went out and mopped up on the visiting delegation last night, we are extremely sorry—for the A. C. C. Wildcats.

By the same token, if anything we said made the Techs mad enough to play winning and colorful ball last night, we hasten ahead with:

The Lubbock High school cagers ain't got a thing!

The amateur boxers of this section are terrible!

The professional wrestlers who visit here are lousy!

The Texas Tech football club of 1938 is AWFUL!

The golfers of Lubbock don't know a green from a paragraph!

That ought to fix things up.

Well, there'll be another chance, two of 'em, to see the Red Raiders in action this week. They take on University of New Mexico's Loboes Friday and Saturday nights at the Tech gym. The series opens the Border conference championship race.

If the Techs keep up the pace they set last night, they may get somewhere.

But Border conference basketball is pretty fast basketball, comparing favorably with that of the Missouri Valley, which is just about as fast as it gets.

THERE'LL BE A basketball conflict Friday and Saturday here. The Lubbock High Westerners open their big Five championship race, meeting the Amarillo High Sandies, Friday night in the opener of a two-game series. The games will be played at the Lubbock High gym. Don't forget the Westerners.

Coach Goober Keyes had 80 men report for Westerner basketball at the start of the season, and that is a good turnout in anybody's high school. The squad has been weeded out considerably, and Keyes believes he has some pretty fair players.

The Westerners jumped up and went over to Colorado City the other day to compete in a tournament. They drew the Abilene Eagles in the first game, and Abilene prevailed, by a large score. But Abilene, which went on to win the tournament championship, has a pretty fair ball club this season, one which may go quite a piece, Keyes believes, in the state race.

The season isn't far enough along to pick a probable district winner, as requested by the Associated Press yesterday, but right now it appears that a new champion will be crowned. Meadow, which defeated Floydada in the district tournament finals last year, lost its key men, along with a bunch of reserves, through graduation, and may not be as strong.

The Class B teams, footballically speaking, have organized themselves into a league and are playing for a championship. Lamesa, Ralls, Littlefield and Levelland appear to have pretty fair ball clubs. Haven't heard much from Slaton, Crosbyton, Olton, Tahoka and Brownfield.

RELAYED VIA JOHNNY Ward's Benchwarmer column in the El Paso Times is the first "personal" word reaching these shores from our friends, the West Virginia university Mountaineers, after their victory over Tech in the Sun Bowl game. The word comes from Dick Cresap, Morgantown, W. Va., sports scribe who accompanied the Mountaineers to El Paso.

"The Mountaineers, none the worse for their bruising game with Texas Tech, were loafing around in the club car (this is on the way home on the train from El Paso) when in walked Colonel Greer, he of the many millions, and said benevolently: 'Boys, the place is yours. Anything you want and I'll pay the bill,'" writes Cresap and relays Benchwarmer Johnny Ward.

The yarn goes on, portraying the celebration which followed the Mountaineer victory, and pointing out that West Virginia, rated one of the East's better teams, considered it quite a bonnet decoration, that victory over Texas Tech.

"Then, as they say in fairy tales, bedlam broke loose. In the wee small hours of the next morning, the last towering Tech trouncer tumbled off to bed.

"Arriving in Morgantown, the wildest reception ever given any West Virginia university team was accorded the Mountaineers. The main drag was packed solid, search lights played upon the marquee of the leading theater from which the heroes of the hour made their halting speeches. A big banquet honored the team, the university band roared and more than 3000 sets of tonsils bellowed with reckless abandon."

WELL, TEXAS TECH won't be forgetting the Sun Bowl soon, either, although the big celebration, the huge welcome and the welcoming parties were missing when the Raiders came home, humbled by one point in their first Bowl adventure.

But we heard nothing but praise for El Paso, its fine hospitality, and the grand time—outside the ball game—everybody had, including the footballers.

Quite naturally, all this brings back personal reminisce—but we won't go into that, except to thank Benchwarmer Ward, his cohorts and contemporaries, for swelegant hostship.

Jint Pitching Star Visiting Pal In Texas

HOUSTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Carl Owen Hubbell, known variously as King Carl and Bill Terry's meal ticket, rates Joe Medwick the greatest hitter in baseball—even better than Joe DiMaggio, who works for the Yankees.

"I might change my mind if I had to face DiMaggio every day, but I doubt it," said Hubbell, who dropped in town to play golf with his battery mate Gus Mancuso. "I do not see how anybody could be better than Medwick.

He Has No Weakness

"Every batter has a weakness, a tendency to go after bad balls at certain spots, but Medwick isn't bothered. He has so much power in his wrists that he hits bad balls about as hard as many hit alley pitches."

Hubbell said it is difficult to make DiMaggio hit a bad pitch.

"Everybody knows," said Hubbell sheepishly, "the Giant hurlers didn't find DiMaggio's weakness in the World series."

The lanky Hubbell put in a good word for his battery mate, while he was talking.

Against Trading Gus

"I hope the Giants don't trade Gus even to get Van Mungo," the wrong arm pitcher said. "Mancuso is a better catcher than many people think."

Hubbell said he thought Van Mungo had more stuff than any other National league pitcher, except possibly Dizzy Dean.

Old Diz won't feel bad over that, coming from one of the greatest left-handers the game has known.

Florida's Baseball Colony Is Out To Beat The Golf Pros

BRADENTON, Fla., Jan. 13 (AP)—Florida's winter baseball colony set out today to try to beat golf professionals at their own game.

The second annual Dizzy Dean tournament brought together a number of the neighboring pros, some visitors who had passed up the California links tour, about a score of major and minor league diamond stars and a sprinkling of just plain amateurs.

Eighteen holes of medal play was the test.

Favorite among the baseball contingent was Paul Waner, the Pittsburgh outfielder and a classy southpaw golfer. "Ole Diz" himself figured he'd be in the running.

Amateur Baseball Star Quits Texas U. To Join Red Sox

HOUSTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Post said last night Tommy Reed, Houston amateur baseball star, had withdrawn from the University of Texas at Austin to play professional baseball.

Reed was highly regarded as a football possibility at the university, having been a star at John Reagan High school here and at Schreiner.

"The registrar's office reported having no official notice of Reed's withdrawal from school, but it was learned he had left the university," the paper said.

Reed, the Post said, it had learned from close friends, has been offered a contract with the Boston Red Sox and came here before closing definitely with the American league club.

Lupe And Johnny Have Quit Again

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13. (AP)—Lupe Velez made one of her frequent announcements today.

It was not a new one for Lupe.

She and her husband, Johnny Weissmuller, have split up again. Here's the patter:

"There will be no divorce. Johnny and I are fine friends. We live under the same roof, yes—but neither of us could afford to keep this place alone. He does what he wants. I do what I want. We may be happy as friends."

Abilene Wildcats Smeared By Texas Tech Raiders, 48-19

Coach Berl Huffman's Texas Tech Red Raiders took the situation well in hand last night, returned to a goal-shooting form that recalled the palmy days of Matador basketball, and smeared the Abilene Christian college Wildcats, 48 to 19.

The victory gave Tech an even break in the two-game series, and gave Tech its second victory of the season, as against seven defeats.

After one day of rest, the Red Raiders come back Friday night to open a two-game series here with University of New Mexico. The games Friday and Saturday night also open the Border conference championship race.

Capt. Paul "Iggy" Morris with 14 points and Sam Garrison with 12 were leading point manufacturers. It was Morris' accurate mesh crashing that put the Red Raiders off to a 17 to 4 halftime advantage. He sank four field goals and a gift shot during the first half.

Garrison Leads Last Half

Garrison did the heavy work in the last half dropping in five goals from the field. Elmer Tarbox looped three field baskets. Johnson, crack Wildcat center, sank two field goals and four free throws to lead his team with eight points.

Johnson started scoring activities with a free toss early in the game, but long John Henderson matched it a few seconds later. Then Johnson took advantage of Garrison's foul for a one-point Wildcat lead. The little Raider captain hooped a one-hand shot from the side of the court to give Tech a lead it never relinquished. Morris tossed in a long one to stretch the lead.

Morris Sinks 3 More

Rex Williams sank a free throw, and Garrison and Tarbox swished field goals through the net before the visitors counted again. Then Reese netted the first Cat field goal to end their scoring for the half. Tarbox sandwiched a basket from the field between the first and second of three more by Morris during the half.

Coach Berl Huffman left his starting linup intact until seven minutes before the contest ended. Henderson hit the bucket with two tosses from the free throw line and one from the field, and Garrison started his scoring spree to increase the Tech advantage to 23-4 soon after the rest period. McKeever, a substitute guard found the net with a field goal, but Garrison sank two more in quick order.

The Wildcats sank goals intermittently, but the Techs erased their efforts each time with one or more baskets. Garrison matched Johnson's field goal, and Tarbox laid one in to cover Riddle's. Henderson and Garrison went the visitors two points better after Johnson dropped in another.

New Team Goes In

Morris made good a free throw and a field shot after Hastings had hooped a fancy one-hand toss. A free throw and two-pointer by Johnson was all the Christians got from there.

Garrison crammed one in just before Huffman sent in a new team which more than held its own. McCreary, Webb and Cloyd looped field goals and Red Ramsey, sent in after a long round of applause, dropped in a charity toss.

The Wildcats were never able to get their shots to working as they did Tuesday night. The Raiders missed on several occasions early in the game, but cashed in on almost everything in the last half.

Six Colleges Are Bidding For Services Of Kansas Grid Star; One School Even Sent Him On Trip To The Rose Bowl

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—At least six colleges are bidding for Bill Savoy, 205-pound Great Bend, Kans., high school star, who set a Kansas record with 31 touch downs last season. . . . One western school was so interested it sent Bill to the Rose bowl game "on the house" . . . Don't be surprised if Sammy Snead, the golfing ace, takes a blonde bride any day now.

Jimmy Kitts Denies Report Of Three-Year Contract At Rice

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Jan. 13.—Reports of a three-year contract for Jimmy Kitts, Rice institute coach, plus a seven-year option on his services thereafter, are groundless. . . . Kitts, himself, says positively he is signed to a one-year agreement, which is an old Rice custom.

Strapping Cacil Smith, one of the world's three 10-goal polo players, hopes to have a broken collarbone in such condition as to allow him to play in the Pacific coast tourneys during February and March. . . . The Llano cowboy plans to sail in mid-April for England, to play on a team backed by Charles B. Wrightsman, Houston sportsman. . . . From England Smith and Wrightsman will go to India for tournament play. . . . He will be back in the east for the fall polo season on Long Island.

Stays At Aggieland

Spike that rumor about Hub McQuillan, Texas Aggie basketball coach and freshman football coach, going to the Pacific slope as physical education director of a large school. . . . Insiders say he will stay at Aggieland. . . . Once desirous of becoming a major league ball player, Joel Hunt, the Aggie immortal, now winds up as head grid coach at Georgia. . . . Advent of night baseball probably is responsible for Hunt's being ranked as one of the nation's youngest major mentors. . . . He seemed headed for a brilliant career in baseball until they switched on the lights. . . . He was only so-so after sundown.

For years Arkansas sought a spot on Fordham's football schedule. . . . They finally got a booking—in 1941. . . . Little Freddie Tauby, former Texas leaguer who finished up the '38 season with Little Rock's Travelers, is now a lecturer, believe it or not. . . . Now property of the Baltimore Orioles, Tauby is spreading the gospel of baseball from Maryland platforms. . . . He will either play for the Orioles next season or become playing-manager for one of their farms in the Eastern Shore league.

Top Football Story

Nomination for top football story of the year: Ki Aldrich, popular Texas Christian center and All-America timber, was addressing freshmen gridders at the annual Horned Frog banquet. . . . He urged them to study hard and stay abreast of their classwork. . . . "Of course," said Aldrich, "I haven't did it, but—." They drowned out the remainder of his speech. . . . Note to Baylor university: Wally Smith, great Dallas schoolboy back of 1935 who spent one year at Alabama, and Derwood Peveto, giant Port Arthur tackle, are heading your way.

Skipper C. B. Sherry of the San Antonio Boating association is trying hard to get the National Outboard Boating association meet for either Lake McQueeny, near Seguin, or Lake Medina, near San Antonio. . . . And Lefty Stackhouse, San Antonio golf professional, has invented a new-fangled putter which has two handles. . . . They sprout like horns at the end of the club.

Rough Treatment Is Given Jap Grappler

A sailorman from Arkansas took it upon himself to avenge the sinking of the Panay—at least to his own satisfaction.

Sailor Moran, who knows the Shanghai port as well as he knows the Bald Knob, Ark., city square, shelled Tetsura Higami until there was barely enough of the Jap to gather up and fling to the floor, to win last night's main event at Sled Allen's wrestling match, going away.

Otis Clingman, probably the most popular grappler who ever appeared here, made his homecoming not altogether successful but plenty interesting when he played with Bill Venable, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., for more than ten minutes and didn't save enough time to win, Venable, a would-be villain who shapes up about like Clingman and who fights fast and industriously, may be seen around here some more. He was good enough to hold Otis Clingman to a draw, which is something. He used a hammer lock to good advantage, but Clingman came out of it when he desired, and used his old-time flying tackle with his old-time ability and flash.

Cyclone Mackey had a big job on his hands in the semi-final, but if he had become angry a few minutes earlier, he might have whipped the big German, Otto Ludwig. As it was, they battled to a fast draw.

New Contract

SLIP MADIGAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13 (AP)—Edward Patrick "Slip" Madigan, who took over the football coaching reins at St. Mary's college in 1921 and built his teams into a national gridiron by-word, has signed a new five-year contract, it was learned today.

Sandies Will Appear Here Two Nights

Making their first appearance o the local boards this season, th Lubbock High Westerners of Coac Goober Keyes will be introduced i basketball rivalry tomorrow night.

Lubbock and Amarillo athlete will resume rivalry at 8 o'clock Fr day night in the first game of two-night series at the Lubboc High gymnasium. The series wi conclude Saturday night.

Lubbock Defends Title

Lubbock won the league champ ionship last year, and is gunning fo a repeat, although Pampa and Am arillo are considered to hav stronger clubs, and Borger an Plainview announce without hesi tation that their clubs have bee improved. A tight five-way scrap fo the championship, which has noth ing to do with the Texas Inter scholastic league title chase, is an ticipated.

The Westerners, who turned ou so strong before Christmas, large gang of candidates ever to repo have had very little game experi ence. In fact, they have played bu one contest. They went to Colorad City last week, an hour after mak ing up their minds, and compete in the Colorado invitation tourna ment. They lost their first game—t Abilene, 29 to 47. But Abilene, fro all indications, has what it take this year. The Eagles went on t win the tournament in a breez Coach Keye believes Abilene wi go right on up to the state play-of this year.

So tomorrow night's game will b the second for the Westerners, wh came home after losing to Abilen at Colorado, and the first game o the local court.

And Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm is the opposition.

Coach Keyes suggests that three starters for Lubbock are practicall certain, but he names six more be fore completing the lineup. Dutch Cawthon, Robert Allen and H. F Ford are pretty certain to start. Al len and Ford earned letters las year. Cawthon and Allen will b

Italian Folds Before Mighty Wallops Of Henry Armstrong

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Enrico Venturi, the Italian who folded like a dollar accordion against Henry Armstrong last evening, had enough worries on his mind today to occupy a dozen people.

Enrico's share of the purse was held up pending an investigation of why he nestled against the canvas and permitted himself to be counted out toward the last of the sixth round, when he obviously was able to remain on his pins.

Further, he was under a month's suspension in New York state because he had weighed in for the bout three pounds over the stipulated limit of 135 pounds. Things, in fact, looked very dark for Venturi's fistic future.

His plight was matched by the 12,000 fans who paid their way into the garden to see him fight Armstrong, and who wound up watching the Italian give his own version of the dying swan. They, the customers, really took a lacing.

Venturi, after having tried vainly for five and a fraction rounds to stay clear of Armstrong's homicidal swings, suddenly notified Referee Arthur Donovan that he had been fouled. Donovan looked appropriately blank, though some of the ringsiders had noted that Armstrong was digging in slightly below the belt.

Stretched Out On Floor

When Donovan declined to do anything about it, Venturi registered anger and slowly, like a circus elephant, got down on the floor and stretched out. Donovan got in touch with the timekeeper and counted ten. Venturi got to his feet, fast, and started arguing with the fervor of a backwoods debating society, but Donovan was busy tilting Armstrong's hand.

The knockout, such as it was, constituted the 21st in a row for Armstrong, who looked as mystified as anybody else when Venturi bowed out. The Italian had made himself a very good record in a year of fighting on this side, and a surprising amount of money had been bet on him. He was reputed to be tough, but he clearly didn't relish what the dusky destroyer put out.

Dr. William Walker examined Enrico carefully afterward and could find no trace of the punch that had laid the pugilist low.

Aiken, Out To Scalp GOP's Old Guard, Is A Mild Hatchet Man; Urges Purge For Party

George D. Aiken, governor of one of the two states carried by the Republicans in the last presidential election, has leaped into national prominence with a statement lambasting Old Guard Republican leadership. What sort of a man is he? This story by Morgan M. Beatty gives you an intimate picture.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
Associated Press Staff Writer

This man Aiken from Vermont waited 25 years to take a good healthy crack at the Republican old Guard.

"Why, I've had a desire for a purge of the Republican party since 1912," he says, off-hand, as if you should have known all along he would uncork a haymaker when he got good and ready.

And right away, he's telling you why.

"I was too young to vote in 1912," he says, "but I never did get over the way the Southern delegates swung the nomination from Teddy Roosevelt to Taft!"

He speaks with the slow, quiet twang of the native Vermonter. His face is calm, browned by wind, and topped by a heavy shock of steel-gray hair. He's almost shy, blushes when he laughs, and wears sober blue suits.

It is hard to believe the fellow would swing on a fly. But there he stands—Governor George D. Aiken, in person—and admits all. Yes, he's the author of a scorching ultimatum to the national heads of his party—an ultimatum that ends with this stinger:

"The Republican leadership of Vermont demands a purge of reactionary and unfair elements . . . . If that demand is not met we must look elsewhere . . . for an organization!"

That from a simon-pure, old-line Vermont Republican!

He is 45 . . . married . . . the father of three girls and a boy . . . stopped his education when he graduated from high school . . . went to weeding onions in his father's truck gardens.

"When I was 19 I borrowed $100 at the bank," he explains, "and bought a 40-acre pasture with another fellow. We started raising raspberries, but we overdid 'em and got too much rain. The other fellow pulled out, leaving me with the plants, so I started selling plants."

From then on it was just a question of time until this canny farmer had acquired the biggest nursery business in New England, and a 500-acre estate to go with it.

"What about your love of wild flowers, governor?"

"Oh, that!" he laughs. "Well, somebody told me I could not domesticate wild trailing arbutus and fringed gentian, and I guess I showed 'em I could do it. Then I got so many letters asking how it was done that I wrote a book on wild flowers. Now the books sell plants, and plants sell the book."

Governor Aiken likes the way that little business coup worked.

The governor's first excursion into politics occurred 16 years ago and fizzled. A Democrat beat him for the legislature.

"The fellow went around asking people to vote for him, and damned if I would."

He kept his peace for 10 years, ran for the legislature again, and made the grade. He was speaker of the house in 1935, ran for governor in '36, and got the usual Republican majority.

To top it all off, this neophyte in politics tells you he's surprised that his letter to the bigwigs caught the attention of a national audience.

He says he didn't expect the limelight of a mass interview, the bursts of flashbulbs, and the pow-wow with Republican Chairman John Hamilton in Washington.

"My first experience of this kind," he agrees, and adds, smiling, "Perhaps my last."

Anyway, the rapid-fire questioning doesn't cross up the cautious governor of Vermont for a minute. When he hasn't the answers, he says he doesn't know. When he thinks he knows, he cuts loose with plain Vermont language.

"Do you think the Republican party is in a bad way?"

"Yes, and the public knows the Republican party is in a bad way. Millionaires and college presidents can't win any elections. You've got to have some voters."

"But what about a labor program?"

"Up in Vermont we don't have much of a labor problem. Naturally I favor organization by labor. Beyond that I don't know what to tell you."

"What can you say for the Roosevelt labor program?"

"I don't intend to be abusive of any person, but it looks as though the Roosevelt administration has done everything for the workers but give 'em a job."

"Do you favor the general objectives of the Roosevelt administration?"

"Vermont is co-operating with every federal agency set up under the social security act. But we must see that the burden imposed on one class doesn't exceed the benefits to another."

A RECENT three-paragraph news story in the Ft. Worth Star-Telegram and date-lined from San Angelo was unusual indeed.

And, to boot, is of great interest to all of West Texas and particularly to Lubbock.

The article contains the frank admission on the part of the ex-financial capital of secondary West Texas cities that the one-time little town of Lubbock has outstripped both San Angelo and Abilene as "the banking capital of the West." Amarillo, and Wichita Falls, much larger, excluded.

Lubbock's total bank deposits have outstripped San Angelo by a quarter of a million dollars and have topped Abilene's by over $1,100,000.

That is particularly striking, when one takes into consideration the three cities, all over which are about the same size with something over 30,000 souls apiece.

Here's why:

As every Lubbock citizen knows, there is little concentrated wealth here. Lubbock, in fact, is the only city of its size The Plainsman has ever known of without all the way from four to a half-dozen bonafide millionaires.

Abilene and San Angelo, being older, more settled communities, not only have a lot of concentrated wealth, piled up over several generations, but San Angelo has a lot of cattle and oil money and Abilene is the banking headquarters for numerous wholesale firms, several of which are headquartered right there.

The banking picture, in other words, indicates that while there are not as many "hog rich" folks here as there are in either of the rival towns, there are more people who are "better fixed."

SO, it is undoubtedly true, the sprawling, lusty Lubbock of yesterday has become nearly "of age."

This big overgrown kid has some fuzz on his upper lip, is gazing longingly at the latest twist in razors and is preparing to step out with a gal.

At least, that must be the way that Abilene and San Angelo look today upon their "country cousin."

Seriously speaking, Lubbock has come up quite a bit, due to its favorable situation as business center of one of the richest agricultural areas in the entire nation. Most of the gains in the past few years have been due to improved agricultural development, with some oil development, Lubbock is surrounded by seas of wheat, corn, grain sorghums, cotton, cattle and sheep feeding projects, and irrigation resources.

San Angelo and Abilene were towns of some size in the then wild West Texas a decade before Lubbock was born. They were in the small city class before Lubbock was out of its diapers, so to speak. They were famous as wholesale and retail centers years and years ago. Both towns in the past decade or more have grown with oil until they are recognized as leaders by the oil fraternity.

Theirs is a good record; Lubbock does not seek to withhold from them one whit of praise for what they have done. They attained their position by hard work and city building.

BUT Lubbock has been doing some city building also. While these two towns have vied for leadership in West Texas, Lubbock has gone ahead, saying little and doing much.

It is not going to be so many years until Amarillo and Wichita Falls will be feeling Lubbock's hot breath on the backs of their necks in a chase for supremacy of all West Texas.

It is not going to be long, the way conditions are shaping up now, until Lubbock will be pressing Amarillo and Wichita closer than it was pressing Abilene and San Angelo in the 1927-30 era.

Sam Lewis, who keeps track of such things for The Journal, says figures prove right now that Lubbock has surpassed Amarillo as a wholesale center — our volume of wholesale business here having topped Amarillo's for two years now.

That is almost as interesting as it is important.

This much we all know:

The territory around Lubbock — including the South Plains and that portion of Eastern New Mexico which naturally turns this direction—is a much better one than the territories surrounding Amarillo and Wichita Falls.

For years there have been more people in what is called "the Lubbock territory" than there have been in "the Amarillo territory." With Ft. Worth and Oklahoma City cutting into the Wichita Falls area, we have almost as many people turning to Lubbock as there are naturally, turning to Wichita Falls. There's no doubt about that.

And that there's more future in sight for Lubbock than there is for either Amarillo or Wichita Falls, practically every unbiased observer will agree.

WE ought to be mighty thankful and mighty happy over all this —not only we South Plainsmen who live in Lubbock, but those of us who live and work in the surrounding territory, as well.

While trite, it is none-the-less true that Lubbock belongs more to the people who live near it than it does to the people who live within its corporate limits.

And since they've played such a leading role in the city's growth and expansion, doubtless they are as proud of it as we, who live here, are.

Yesterday: Bob learns that the strange little brown people are the remnants of a lost kingdom—a people who once lived in Defiance Castle. These peoples think Bob and Melissa messengers of the Sun.

CHAPTER XIX

The white visitors stayed in a strange home that night. The chieftain with his family and servants vacated his house, best in the kingdom, and with considerable pomp offered it to Bob and 'Lissa. The hospitality was genuine.

"But where are the doors?" 'Lissa whispered.

There was no opening in sight on the ground level—no windows, doors or holes. Two ladders led to a second story ledge, however. It was a rather imposing house, two stories high and perhaps double the size of any other. It was strongly made of stones and plastered mud.

"In the ceiling," Bob answered. "The pueblo Indians still build that way occasionally."

"You mean—?"

"Yes, you have to climb up a ladder to the first-story roof, then down again inside, through an opening in the ceiling. And those other ladders lead to the second floor. That makes it automatically a fortress, see?"

"Enemies couldn't get inside so easily, you mean?"

"That's right, 'Lissa. The ladders are pulled up after the residents are all in at night. No doors, no ladders—not bad!"

"Seems mighty inconvenient," the girl suggested.

"Sure, and doubtless unnecessary now. But very important in the old days. The simple folk evidently cling to old costums, regardless."

They found the first floor rooms used only for storage of grains, skins, tools and other valuables. Beds of grass and woven mats were on the second story floors, inside small rooms.

"You can stay up there," Bob said, "and I'll curl up somewhere down here in the store rooms. I'll pull in the ladders for you."

They didn't get to retire immediately though. They had hardly finished exploring when they were hailed from outside. They hastened to the ledge and peered down.

There stood the chieftain and two other men, evidently an official body, and before them were four brown maidens, young girls all. The chief was pointing and signing. Bob hastened down.

This new powwow, lighted by torches lasted fully a half hour. In the end, the three dark men led their maidens away, and Bob came back up the house ladder.

"What is it?" 'Lisa demanded, anxiously.

"It's awful!" he whispered, in a strained voice. "Things have taken a much more serious turn. Those girls—they are sacrificial maidens, 'Lissa!"

"Sacrificial?" She looked intently at him.

"Yes! The old chief says they have chosen the most beautiful girls in the kingdom for the white gods to see. You and I have to pick the one we want sacrificed to the sun!"

"But—but—how? Sacrificed how, Bob? You mean—"

He nodded. "It means death for her, even though it's honor for us!"

The thought appalled them, and for a moment the two were silent. Finally Bob spoke again.

"He wanted us to choose tonight, but I stalled for time. Told him the sun was down now, and it couldn't be done at night. But tomorrow—goodness!"

"Couldn't we refuse?"

"We don't dare. Our own lives might be jeopardized. It's a delicate situation. It's normal, too, but I never thought I'd experience it. Human sacrifices were common among most savage people. The early tribes in Mexico nearly all did it, the Mayan, Aztecs and such. They had special stone altars for it. Removed the heart, and had feasting the while. This custom links up with the Asiatic countries, too."

Mary Melissa barely listened to the rest of his explanation, with its scientific background. She was too horrified. She heard him, though, when he told her the chief himself has promised to officiate at the ceremonies tomorrow.

"You mean he will—he's the one to—?"

Bob read her thoughts. There was great anxiety in his tone as he answered.

"Yes. He will honor us in the highest form possible, by personally slaying the maiden we select. We will occupy seats of honor at the ceremony beforehand and afterward."

Mary Melissa couldn't quite grasp it. Charged with emotional strain, she shivered a little and almost groaned. This was fantastis, unreal, impossible.

She wanted to flee, to have Bob grab her hand and run with her out of this nightmarish region forever. Again she shut her eyes and squeezed them tight, as if trying to blot out the whole ugly dream. But her mind was normal, she knew. It was real, it was true. Her brain was absolutely clear, alert.

She had studied the brown girls closely while Bob conferred with the chief. They were not pretty in the Caucasian sense, but they were handsome and strong. They must have been 16 or so, with muscles developed by toil in the fields. Their hair was done in peculiar tight whorls. Their garments, of roughly woven fiber, had been crudely but effectively dyed in colors and designs which 'Lissa sensed had a religious significance. Bob had told her snatches of such things, she recalled.

'Lissa peered now over the roof rim, but the maidens and their escorts had disappeared in the darkness, somewhere in one of the other houses. The village was singularly quiet. There was no calling, singing, visiting or other manifestation of communal routine. She had swift mental pictures of New York at night, by contrast.

Bob reached to pat her hand, encouragingly. "Don't let it get you," he half whispered. "We still have time. And as yet we are in no danger ourselves. That's something. A whole lot, in fact."

She realized the truth of that. These strange lost people might indeed have decided to sacrifice the visitors! For a moment she almost wished they had. The apprehension of death couldn't be much worse than this nerve-wracking tension. She thought again of New York, and the impossible chain of adventures which had followed when she answered a harmless newspaper want-ad. She smiled to herself then, even through her despair.

"Do you think they know one of them is to be sacrificed" she demanded of Bob, in an awed whisper.

"Yes. The chieftain said so. They consider it an honor to be chosen, and each one hopes we'll pick her. Their idea, you see, is that the sacrificed girl becomes a lesser goddess herself."

'Lissa shuddered anew.

"How often does this happen? This human — murder?"

"I don't know. Probably once a year. But it isn't exactly murder. It's all in the point of view. Now you take—"

"NO, NO, NO!" Mary Melissa wasn't going to "take" anything. She wasn't even going to listen to any more scientific talk about it. She was exhausted, emotionally and physically. She could not possibly have restrained the sobs that shook her then.

Bob said no more. He just held her tightly as she cried against him, looking out the while to see if her outcry had caused any sort of alarm. He was badly shaken, himself. He gave thought to one or two wild plans for flight. Maybe, in the dead of night—! But no, his reasoning corrected him.

He realized they couldn't get out in secret. News of their presence had of course excited the whole village, and their slightest move would become known instantly. Besides, this place was a gigantic trap by physiography; he would simply have to maneuver a way back up the cave.

Only their utter fatigue drove them to sleep, eventually, huddled together there on the second story ledge.

NAVAL RACES AND WORLD BANKRUPTCY

Where are we headed in the armament race?

The answer seems to be: If not to war, then certainly to world bankruptcy.

France announces plans for two 42,000-ton battleships. Italy's Duce, with two 35,000-ton monsters building, prepares to start work on two others. The United States, also with two under construction, probably will build at least two more. Great Britain is spending billions of dollars. Germany and Russia have launched immense programs—just how large no one knows. Japan is attempting—probably is—keeping pace with the United States.

Let us consider how that affects the individual taxpayer in the United States, who is better able to carry his share of the burden than any other in the world. A modern battleship costs approximately $60,000,000. Attending it must be large fleets of smaller craft, without which the modern battleship would be helpless. Each of those ships must be manned literally by an army of men. Divide the total cost by the population of the nation and the cost per individual may seem small. But, considering that the man who actually pays the bill is the middle-class family head, and the sum assumes importance.

This does not suggest that the United States should cease its building. An adequate defense without doubt is our cheapest insurance. But it does suggest that if other causes do not bring an end soon to the mad race, world bankruptcy eventually will.

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 13.—At least one sequence of MGM's "Test Pilot" will go to the screen without any retakes. This is the one dealing with last summer's National Air Races.

Three camera crews were sent to Cleveland to film the Thompson Trophy Race and now some of these scenes will be cut into "Test Pilot" to provide thrilling realism.

In order that these scenes may tie in credibly with the picture, Metro has bought a couple of the planes which actually participated in the race. These ships will be used for closeups with Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy.

The plane which Gable is supposed to fly is Earl Ortman's Marcaux Bromberg Special which took second money in the Thompson classic. They could not buy the first-prize winner; Rudy Kling died in that one in Miami last month.

Driving to the Van Nuys Airport, where the company is on location, I wondered what the movie-makers would do about the mountains which occupy every horizon, for there are no such mountains around Cleveland.

Eliminating Mountains

What they did was perch their cameras on high platforms and shoot down at the field. Around the edge were official cars, ambulances, trouble cars and fueling trucks, all decked out with new Ohio licenses.

Only thing wrong was that the licenses didn't have any letters on them, while real Ohio plates have two letters.

The scene being shot was after the finish of the race, with Gable standing beside his ship and wearing a wreath of flowers. Just then, however, another plane is supposed to crash at the end of the field, and the crowd sprints away in the wake of ambulances and fire trucks.

Myrna Loy starts to dash with the crowd, but Tracy stops her because the crack-up victim is a friend of hers.

Runs For Their Lunch

Gable seemed to feel pretty silly in his floral decoration, and the ribbing of Tracy and Miss Loy didn't help to put him at ease. Also the extras began to tire, for after three takes they had run about half a mile. Director Victor Fleming promised lunch after one more take, and this sustained the mob for a final dash across the field.

Technical advisor for "Test Pilot" is Paul Mantz, Hollywood's "Flying Cupid," whose plane is called the Honeymoon Express. He taxies most of talkietown's elopers to Yuma, Ariz., where they can be married without the delay imposed by California law. Gable has promised to go on Mantz' next trip, but only for the ride and to act as a witness.

More And Better Marriages

Speaking of marriages, there were 83 in 1937, which involved one or more members of the screen colony. That's about 10 per cent better than the previous average, and five more than the previous bumper year, 1935.

In 1935, however, there were 58 divorces—another all-time high. In 1937 there were only 49 divorces, indicating an upturn in the permanence of the wedded state.

If conditions continue to improve, the bonds of matrimony no longer may be listed under short-term securities. And players' biographies will end: "And so they were married, and lived happily EVEN after."

Publicized Secrets

Complete statistics are not at hand, but about 75 per cent of the weddings of last year were elopements. Hollywood's Cupid has a sense of Yuma, and an "elopement" from here is by no means the secret excursion that the term usually implies.

It usually is heralded for several days in the gossip columns, launched amid cheers and popping corks and completed before the beaming lenses of many newspaper cameras.

Most elaborate church wedding was that of Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond. Some important first marital ventures were those of Alice Faye and Tony Martin, Anne Shirley and John Payne, Tom Brown and Natalie Draper, Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable.

Director Anatole Litvak, Homer Hargrave and Manuel del Campo became the third mates of Miriam Hopkins, Colleen Moore and Mary Astor (respectively).

Wages And Hours Bloc Plugs Away To Bring Out Another Bill, Rodney Dutcher Finds

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — The wages and hours bloc in the House, barely beaten in the special session when the House Labor committee bill was recommitted, is plugging grimly to get another wage-hour bill out of the committee without delay.

Rodney Dutcher

As the administration also moves to get action on a measure as nearly as possible like the Senate bill of last year, the outlook is considerably more hopeful than it seemed after House had buried the committee bill by a vote of 216 to 198.

Events since Christmas have pepped up the wage-hour congressmen, progressives, New Dealers and White Housers to a point approaching exuberance. They're all set for a drive to get out another bill and then, if the House rules committee again sits down on it, to start again on the task of obtaining 218 signatures to force the bill to a vote.

Holiday blasts by Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Secretary Ickes, despite that heavy return fire, have been hailed as evidence that the New Deal was fighting back against its detractors.

Roosevelt's message, reiterating his previous aims, thrilled the so-called congressional left-wingers. Everyone who had supported Roosevelt in his battle with the Supreme court greeted the retirement of Justice Sutherland with delight.

Lister Victory Brings Hope

Finally and most of all, the victory of Congressman Lister Hill in the Alabama senatorial contest brought new hope and cheer to the liberals. Not well known in Alabama, campaigning on a 100 per cent Roosevelt platform, and strongly endorsing the wage-hour bill, Hill won two to one over ex-Senator Tom Heflin.

Espousal of the wage-hour bill in such a Southern state as Alabama had been considered to mean political suicide. Alabama is agricultural and its labor unions predominantly A. F. of L.

Hill himself was badly worried until the end.

Wage-hour enthusiasts believe Hill's victory can be used to change some Southern votes. Congressman Luther Patrick of Alabama, who voted for recommittal, was one of the first to hit the trail. Going down home to campaign for Hill, he found his vote was unpopular, and he says he's still busy explaining.

Other congressmen say they found during the holidays that although A. F. of L. union leaders had obeyed President William Green's instructions to wire protests against the bill, the bulk of union members appear to favor a wage-hour law. Significance of these testimonials may be exaggerated, but they've stirred up plenty of optimism.

Jackson For Governor

For the first time, bets are now being laid that Assistant Attorney General Jackson will be the next governor of New York.

Postmaster General Jim Farley has told friends that he would not be a candidate, although Roosevelt would have supported him. Farley needs to make money, he says. That being true, Jackson, who is Roosevelt's favorite, becomes the outstanding possibility.

It is reported that Farley, who is chairman of the New York state as well as the national Democratic committee, would prefer to have

FLASHES OF LIFE

(By The Associated Press)

Late

NEW YORK — For the first time in weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Danielson and their two children had enough to eat — but they had no appetite.

Monday Mrs. Danielson applied at a relief bureau for aid. When she returned home their three months old daughter Barbara was dead — from malnutrition, the assistant medical examiner said.

Tuesday the food arrived — by the basketfull.

Today police were raising funds to bury Barbara.

A Stew

DALLAS — Beautificus, a pedigreed rooster, was probably the meaty part of a stew today.

The deadline for his release by payment of $25 ransom passed last night and Attorney Maury Hughes, his owner, feared the worst.

Hughes had been instructed to place $25 in a tin can at a spot in the residential section. Failure to follow instructions, the ransom demand said, would place Beautificus in a stew pot.

Hughes knew the "rooster-nappers" were on the level—they enclosed two of Beautificus' tail feathers with their note.

Inched

ZION, Ill. — Ernest Dolan, 12-year-old basketball player, complained of feeling worse after every game recently.

Finally a doctor told him he had smallpox. His teammates rushed to physicians' offices for vaccinations.

Men Are Required To Get Be Wounded By Doctor

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Jan. 13 (AP) — It took six men to capture the eagle J. P. Hayes wounded near here. The doctor was hunting pheasants when he saw the eagle and shot twice at it. The bird fell, stunned, but was up on his feet and starting to run when Dr. Hayes and five hunting companions overtook him.

They tied his feet and wings and brought him to the Sheridan zoo. But it was a job holding him down until we could get a rope on him," the men said.

He'll Bet This Fellow Had Customers He Needed

WOODSFIELD, O., Jan. 13 (AP)— John B. Hogue's invitation to partake both of his game and his board made his place a mecca for hunters each year.

His public invitation appeared thus in newspapers:

NOTICE TO HUNTERS
Hunt all you please, and when the bell rings, come to dinner.
John B. Hogue.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Ask The Master Psychologist
Dr. La. Rose, Ps. D.

How to obtain Love, Happiness, Success, being loved and admired for yourself alone, capturing the hearts and friendship of all about you, can bring you more happiness than all the jewels and fine clothes you could wear . . than all the wealth you could spend in a lifetime. Without friendship and love, life would not be worth living, for admiration and affection are the breath and heart beat of all human happiness. Within you is a power that controls your destiny. It is in every woman and man, but few discover it. Those who do are blessed with the key to Life's Happiness. With all my heart I urge you to bring forth this innate charm that is yours Develop it, and you will attract to yourself those things that make life worth while. You are helpless in the hands of women who have learned how to use their hidden powers of attraction. You have these powers. You can discover and develop them and swiftly make yourself irresistible to men . . . even in competition with women far more attractive-looking. You can win and hold the love of the one you want. So if in doubt, ask the man who knows.

CCC Enrollee Faces Charge

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 13 (AP)—Felton Hogan, 20-year-old Civilian Conservation corps worker from Bronson, Tex., was held in the Pima county jail here today charged with the theft of a CCC truck.

Lindal Felts, fellow enrollee, was taken to an El Paso hospital with injuries suffered when the truck Hogan was driving overturned.

Others Are Hurt

Fifteen other camp members were slightly hurt in the accident.

Hogan pleaded innocent today to charges filed with United States Commissioner C. Wayne Clampitt by William A. Burnham, camp superintendent.

Hogan explained he told camp officers he was "going A W O L" after learning a telegram from his parents, asking him to come home and help with their farm, had not been delivered to him. He denied stealing the truck, and said it was overturned accidentally.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP)—Stocks resisted quiet selling in today's market and a few gold mines, utilities, rails and specialties displayed rising inclinations.

Volume dwindled substantially after a moderately slow opening and early declines running to a point or so were reduced, cancelled or converted into small advances near the fourth hour.

Dampening buying ardor to some extent was another sharp slump in the French franc, reflecting further unsettlement of political and labor conditions in the republic and reports the unit may have to be revalued further downward.

At the same time most trading forces seemed disinclined to dump commitments in view of some improvement in business sentiment and possibility a recovery program may be mapped out at next Wednesday's conference between the president and the nation's industrial leaders.

Bonds on the whole did better. Commodities were uneven. A slight dip in export copper prices, attributed partly to realize on the recent upturn in the metal, failed to disturb copper shares to any noticeable extent.

Cotton Market

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 13. (AP)—Cotton futures opened unchanged to 2 points net lower in response to disappointing cables and hedge selling.

Trade was dull and operators were reluctant to take on new commitments because of uncertainty regarding the farm bill.

Jan. contracts at 8.63, March at 8.69, May at 8.74, July at 8.78, Oct. at 8.84, and Dec. 8.87. The turnover was small in the first 30 minutes and prices held near the opening levels.

Active positions lost a point or two additional in the second hour under moderate liquidation and lack of sustaining support.

Offerings were absorbed at declines of 3 to 5 points, however, and near mid-session the trade brought in small volume and there was some covering by the short interest.

Jan. recovered to 8.62, March to 8.70, May to 8.71, July to 8.86, and Oct. to 8.84, or unchanged to 3 points below the previous close.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. (AP)—Cotton futures opened 1 higher to 3 lower in response to hedge selling and trade buying. Jan. 8.53; March 8.59; May 8.61; July 8.65; Oct. 8.74; Dec. 8.77.

A little more liquidation and southern offerings caused prices to ease to net losses of 3 to 7 points. March eased from 8.59 to 8.55, and then moved up to 8.57, leaving quotations net unchanged to 4 points lower shortly after the first half hour.

The market moved over a narrow range in quiet trading later in the morning. After selling off to net losses of 2 to 3 points, partial recoveries followed and March sold up from 8.52 to 8.59, leaving quotations 3 points net higher to 4 lower shortly after midday.

Press Leader

he said he would leave that to the membership at large, which will vote for directors at the April meeting.

Great Ideal Realized

The Washington publisher has been on the board and the executive committee of the present Associated Press and its predecessor corporation for forty-four years, and his direct connection with the press association goes back even further. Upon learning of the movement which started in the west he associated himself with a small group who set out in 1893 to realize the ideal of a great cooperative association of newspapers, representing every creed and party, for the exchange of factual news on a basis free of partisan bias and private interest.

Born in Washington in 1863, of a newspaper family, he had been successively manager of the Washington Star and editor of the old Chicago Record-Herald. Prior to his connection with the Record-Herald, he was one of those convinced that important changes were necessary in the methods of gathering and disseminating news. He associated himself with Melville E. Stone, who became the first general manager, and Victor Lawson, of the Chicago Daily News, in the upbuilding of the Associated Press.

The cooperative association which Mr. Noyes and his associates evolved from the old Western Associated Press began its stormy and historic career with a small but determined membership. It grew steadily under his leadership. In 1894 he became a member of the board of the first nationally-organized Associated Press, an Illinois corporation. The present corporation, which succeeded the old in 1900, has had no other president. In its membership today are included more than 1,300 daily newspapers.

The crew consisted of Captain Musick, Brooks, Findley; First Officer Cecil G. Sellers, 44; Paul S. Brunk, 30, junior flight officer; J. W. Stickrod, 23, engineering officer; and Navigator F. J. MacLean, 42.

Rep. Bob Alexander Claims Support In Speaker Race

AUSTIN, Jan. 13. (AP)—Rep. Bob Alexander of Childress said today he was hearing many "encouraging reports" in his race for speakership of the next legislature.

"I already have received promises of support from representatives holding widely divergent views," he said, "and from both big city and rural area legislators."

Other announced or probable candidates for speaker include Fred Mauritz of Ganado, R. Emmett Morse of Houston, Alf Roark of Saratoga, Charles H. Tennyson of Wichita Falls and Ross Hardin of Prairie Hill. Tennyson, however, may retire from the house to run for the senate.

Tighter Credit

such planning would be smoothed by revising the anti-trust laws to let business men know what they can do as well as what they cannot do under these statutes.

The president expects to send congress a message soon asking changes in these laws. One official, however, expressed uncertainty whether a production control plan would be completed for submission at this session or next.

Plan Is Worked Out

A well-defined plan has been worked out, however, by which industry would undertake voluntarily to cooperate with a single government agency—possibly the department of commerce—in determining controlled production schedules months in advance of marketing the products.

Mr. Roosevelt, meanwhile, is going ahead with his talks with business leaders. The biggest conference arranged so far will take place next Wednesday when 50 members of the commerce department's influential business advisory council come here to discuss recovery with the president.

Liabilities Of Over Million Are Listed By WPA Worker

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 13. (AP)—A WPA worker filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy in federal court today listing liabilities of $1,275,502 and assets of $1.

"I guess I was too hoggish," Emanuel Pappas, WPA foreman on a $25 a week salary, asserted in explaining how he came to owe more than a million dollars.

"Years ago I acquired 65 houses through another bankruptcy proceeding—not my own," he said. "My income from the properties rose to $135,000 a year, but look at me today, I'm broke."

Pappas said his income was wiped out in the 1929 market crash and he was forced into bankruptcy when creditors attached his $25-a-week WPA salary.

"Just give me two years and I'll make a comeback," he declared.

Pace will stage an entertainment number. Ralph Stroup is to play the tuba and L. E. Waite, L. C. Ellis, E. L. Klett and A. J. Carnett will sing.

Stunts for the ladies have been arranged, including several contests. A banquet will precede the program.

Seeks Fame Again

Mother Seeking To Reclaim Daughter

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13. (AP)—A mother sought by court action today to regain her daughter from its adopted parents, pleading that fear of death from tuberculosis had caused her to give up the child.

Mrs. Beatrice Nealon asked Circuit Judge John A. Witthaus to set aside the adoption in January, 1934, of her daughter, Theodora Annette, 8, by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Farris. She testified she and her husband, Thady, had consented to the adoption after being told by physicians in a sanitarium at Holy Cross, N. M., that "our time was short."

Nealon died in May, 1934. Mrs. Nealon recovered, however. Efforts to reclaim her daughter, she said, were rebuffed by Mr. and Mrs. Farris.

Lubbock Vote

"already out," which themselves amounted to from 1,200 to 1,500.

Potential Vote 11,000

The potential vote in the county is estimated at approximately 11,000.

Current state and county taxes paid to date, while not available on a morning check, were estimted to represent only a "slight percentage" of what will be paid. Only H. B. Bryan, assessor-collector, and five deputies are in that office to handle the last-minute rush.

It was pointed out by those who urge a large vote in the county that Lubbock county should approximate the strength of Potter county, and "certainly should not fall below the voting power of Tom Green and Taylor counties."

"When Lubbock holds a powerful vote, much attention of state races is focused here; the best campaign speakers come here to conduct rallies and, in general, a much livelier regard for the county is felt by aspirants for office from all parts of the state."

a mess," said Smith.

Pope said the conferees were agreed now on general provisions for tobacco, rice, and wheat.

The Idahoan said that instead of written contracts the secretary of agriculture would make "offers" to cooperating farmers.

The original agricultural adjustment act operated with written contracts. When this law was voided by the supreme court, payment of benefits was placed on the "offer" basis which Pope said was "equal to oral contracts."

Points Yet Undecided

He said among the principal points still undecided were:

Terms of a provision intended to protect dairy and livestock producers from competition by farmers who reduce crop acreage.

Whether payments shall be on the present soil conservation basis, or on a "parity basis" as provided in the senate bill for corn, wheat and cotton.

A federal crop insurance system for wheat, included only in the senate bill.

which depends on pressure instead of spark plugs for combustion of the fuel, delivers high power with low fuel consumption, they pointed out. Carburetors are eliminated because the oil is sprayed directly into the cylinders with nozzles.

The danger of ice forming in carburetors is obviated, and the pilot can forget complicated controls governing manifold pressures, temperature and fuel mixture.

Wife Trading Plan Claimed

SALEM, Mass., Jan. 13.—"Wife swapping" testimony in a double divorce case Wednesday appeared headed for the Essex county grand jury as a district attorney awaited completion of hearings before Judge Edward B. O'Brien.

Mrs. Raymond S. Lee, a pretty brunette principal in the case, whose petition for divorce on the ground of infidelity was uncontested, branded as "a pack of lies" the marital exchange testimony of her husband.

Friendly Arrangement

Lee, a chauffeur, testified at the divorce trial there had been a "friendly arrangement by which we swapped wives," between himself and Calvin M. Watson, Topsfield tree surgeon. Watson is suing his wife, in the double action.

Judge O'Brien, yesterday, on the opening day of the trial, recessed the court after hearing Lee's testimony of "wife swapping," asked Lee to realize the seriousness of his words and ordered a stenographer to hear the rest of the case and record testimony for presentation to the district attorney for probable grand jury action.

Testimony Denied

Mrs. Lee denied the testimony of her husband that they and the Watsons had "agreed to split up and go with each other"; that she had had improper relations with Watson; that she had received a telegram from Watson signed "forever yours" and that she had ever introduced Watson as her husband, while on a trip in Maine last summer.

Mrs. Lee said that Mrs. Watson visited her home frequently but that Watson visited only "occasionally."

City Recorder Question Up

Selection of a new city recorder may be one of the matters for consideration at the semi-monthly meeting of the city commission at the city hall this afternoon.

Officials disclosed that Lewis Kittrell, police traffic sergeant serving as recorder under a temporary appointment, has urged that he be returned to active duty on the traffic squad and that someone else be appointed to handle the recorder's job.

Prefers Traffic Duty

Kittrell originally expressed the wish that he be given permanent appointment as recorder, although the temporary job was assigned to him without solicitation on his part. He since has advised officials that he does not like the confining work and that he prefers traffic duty.

City officials disclosed that several applications for the recorder's place have been filed.

Also scheduled at the commission session this afternoon will be the official canvass of returns in Tuesday's parking meter election.

The election resulted in a vote of 527 to 507 favorable to retention of the meters.

Not Legally Bound

The commission, however, is not legally bound by the vote and still is free to order the devices out. Members of the official body who were reached said they would not make up their minds what their final action will be until, at the earliest, it has been discussed by the commission as a whole. They declined comment on the prevalent unofficial opinion that the devices will be retained in view of Tuesday's test.

One factor which may defer a final decision today is the illness of Commissioner W. B. Price, who has been confined to his home with an attack of bronchitis for two weeks. He was able to leave his home for a short time Wednesday, but if he should attend today's commission session, it will be contrary to the advice of medical attendants.

Numerous other routine matters are on the commission program this afternoon.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Dutcher's Column

Senator Robert F. Wagner run. But it is practically certain, first, that neither Farley nor Wagner will stand in the way if Roosevelt tells them he wants Jackson, and, second, that Roosevelt will tell them just that. Wagner prefers the Senate, anyway.

Selection of Jackson to appear as chief speaker at New York City's Jackson Day Dinner was engineered by the White House. Jackson's hard-hitting speeches against monopoly and the New Deal's Big Business opponents will be held against him in some places, but he will be promoted as the small business man's friend and crusader.

His background in Jamestown, N. Y., is partly that of a lawyer for "little business" and he once battled successfully for a small local telephone company threatened with extinction by the giant A. T. & T.

The high school games Friday and Saturday night conflict with Texas Tech's Border conference openers with University of New Mexico, the games to be played at the Tech gymnasium, but it's a conflict that couldn't be avoided, and that's all there is to it. High school fans will troup to the high school gymnasium, while Tech college fans know where the Tech gymnasium is located.

Membership Quota In WTCC Is Exceeded By Terry Chamber

Brownfield Chamber of Commerce has exceeded its membership quota in the West Texas chamber organization, according to Herbert S. Hilburn of Plainview, district director. R. M. Kendrick of Brownfield, WTCC director, headed the successful campaign Wednesday.

Brownfield's action brought the number of 100 per cent member-ship campaigns in this area to three. Abernathy and Floydada having previously subscribed their quotas.

Jed A. Rix, assistant manager of the regional organization, is aiding in the campaigns in this section.

Citizens National Directors Are Reelected At Meeting

The same directors who had administered affairs there the past year Wednesday were renamed by stockholders of Citizens National bank, said S. C. Arnett, bank president. The meeting was deferred a day because of absence Tuesday of E. L. Ellwood.

Besides President Arnett, others named were: George E. Benson, vice-president; Paul Hardwick, cashier, and Ruth Ford and Jack Payne, assistant cashiers. George R. Bean and E. L. Klett are directors in addition to Arnett, Benson and Ellwood.

Reports of the year's work were given by officers to the stockholders.

Out of every 100,000 persons in the United States, 30 are killed by automobiles annually.

Gly-Cas Gave Amazing Results

Fifteen Years Of Rheumatic Suffering Eliminated, Stomach And Bowels Regulated

"For more than fifteen years before I knew of Gly-Cas I was miserable," said Mrs. Eunice McElvany, 1425 Margarite St., Corpus Christi, Texas. "A stubborn case of indigestion and constipation had wrecked my entire system. Rheumatism settled over my body and the awful pain was almost more than I could stand at times. The foods I ate simply would not digest properly, gas formed in abundance and I bloated dreadfully. It seemed everything I ate disagreed with me, I suffered continually with a severe headache and in spite of all I tried I could not find anything to help me. Then I thought I was surely doomed to finish life in awful suffering. Finally I began Gly-Cas—it was wonderful.

MRS. EUNICE McELVANY

"Gly-Cas seemed made for me for it fit my case perfectly," continued Mrs. McElvany. "That awful indigestion and constipation was soon eliminated. I can now eat anything I want without any bad after effects, enjoy my meals and feel fine. Those severe headaches are now in the past, rheumatism has been greatly relieved and I get my proper rest, nerves are quieted and I cannot say half enough for a medicine as remarkable as this new Gly-Cas."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, this city, and by all the leading drug stores in surrounding towns. Adv.
