Assassination site to be designated a national landmark

DALLAS (AP) — The widow of former Texas Gov. John Connally was to return today to the site where bullets rang out 30 years ago today, killing President John F. Kennedy and seriously wounding her husband.

Nellie Connally agreed to make the official presentation in midday ceremonies today in downtown Dallas of a plaque designating the assassination site as a national historic landmark.

She and her husband were riding in the same open-air limousine with President Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, when sniper's fire in Dealey's Plaza on the west end of downtown Dallas changed history.

The program, open to the public, included traditional American music by the Dallas Wind Symphony and gospel spirituals by a community mass choir.

Several students from Dallas public schools were asked to read passages from JFK's writings.

For the ceremony, the city of Dallas ordered Dealey Plaza and the adjacent Triple Underpass closed to traffic for most of today, beginning several hours before the 11:30 a.m. CDT ceremony and continuing until mid-afternoon.

The designation of the assassination as a national historic landmark was granted on Oct. 12 by Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt.

"Designation of the assassination site as a national historic landmark represents a clear mandate to preserve this tragic, but important part of history to serve as an educational guide for future generations," said Walter S. Blake, president of the Dallas County Historical Foundation.

"Therefore, the dedication ceremony will focus on our responsibilities in a democracy to preserve both good and bad history, and on the positive legacy of John F. Kennedy that lives on to inspire countless Americans who are not yet born," Blake said.

The sixth floor of the old Schoolbook Depository Building, where Lee Harvey Oswald was said to have fired the shots that killed Kennedy and wounded Connally, is now a museum. It has drawn about 400,000 visitors a year.

Reservations for 'Amhal' being taken

Ritz Theatre's production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors" opens Thursday, Dec. 2, in the North Elementary auditorium.

Reservations are being taken now at the Senior Citizens Center.

The play will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Dec. 2-4, and at 2:30 p.m. Dec. 5. Tickets are $6 each.

The character of Amahl will be played by two people. Reid Johnson will take the role on Dec. 2 and Dec. 4; Trey Gorman will play Amahl on Dec. 3 and Dec. 5.

Other cast members include Melanie Smith as the mother; John Palomaki as Kaspar, Jimmy Hall as Melchoir, Doug Fishel as Balthazar and Matt Cross as the page.

The shepherd chorus includes Marci Dennis, Emily Hataway, Judy Smallwood, Kelly Fishel, Donnie Burk, Ken Spoor, Patti Fishel, Kersten Fishel, Rebekah Thornton, Tim Dea and Lloyd Cummings.

The play is being directed by Doug Fishel. Kay Kennedy and Lynn Wormeringer are the pianists.

Reservations can be made weekdays from 2-5 p.m. by calling the Senior Center at 573-4035.

Increase in juvenile crime leads to shortfall in budget

A growing juvenile crime problem, one that mirrors a dilemma state-wide, has resulted in a budget shortfall in Scurry County for 1993.

Larry Thompson, juvenile probation officer, met with the commissioners court this morning and advised them of a need for almost $35,000 for incarceration of juvenile offenders.

Thompson told the court that he had already expended budgeted funds, and an increase in the number of repeat offenders requiring confinement has resulted in the budget shortfall.

Currently, a total of $22,732 is owed to juvenile detention centers in Lubbock and Sweetwater. Thompson estimated that the amount to be owed at the end of December will be another $11,910.

The court instructed county auditor Eddie McHaney to prepare a budget amendment for consideration at next Monday's meeting.

Thompson said that five juveniles currently are in custody. Three are in Sweetwater and two are in Lubbock. Thompson said only felony offenders are being locked up.

In the past, juvenile authorities placed them on probation. Because of probation violations, the courts have had no choice but to sentence them to a detention facility. Thompson said the sentences range from about 45 days up to six months.

Although expensive, as much as $84 per day, Thompson said detention has resulted in fewer burglaries here.

Thompson, in answers to questions posed by commissioners, said it is still more cost-effective to contract juvenile beds than try to build and operate a facility.

In the only action item Monday morning, commissioners authorized the county tax office to increase its change fund from $500 to $800. The adjustment was recommended by the auditor's office.

The court, for the second consecutive week, tabled action on an agreement between the county and Snyder EMS for ambulance service. County Judge Bob Doolittle suggested that approval follow tomorrow's 5 p.m. joint session with the city council concerning final action on the shared services agreement.

Ted Winter, a representative of the Snyder Softball Association, met with the court concerning the use of the girls softball fields in Towle Park by Snyder High School.

Winter said the school had authorized a UIL program for girls starting in the spring of 1995. Use of the fields for practice was sought.

Judge Doolittle said he would ask Precinct 2 Commissioner Roy Idom to meet with SHS Athletic Director David Baugh to discuss use of the fields and maintenance.

The court recessed until 1:30 p.m. today, at which time commissioners were expected to vote on appraisal board members and

CMH prison health care pact will see revisions, CEO states

Cogdell Memorial Hospital will lose its contract to provide pharmaceutical services for the Price Daniel Unit, but other expected changes in its prison health care agreement add up to a positive financial outlook, board members were told this morning.

CEO Tim Lancaster told the board that Texas Tech University Health Science Center in Amarillo will begin handling pharmaceutical services for area Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutions in January.

Cogdell currently contracts with the Health Science Center to provide pharmaceuticals for the Price Daniel Unit. Cogdell is also paid about $1,200 per inmate to provide health care for the local prison unit.

Lancaster said that the capitation rate, or rate paid to the hospital per inmate, will also be lowered, under new contract revisions. However, he said, Cogdell will come out ahead.

"Actually, this will be better financially for us," said Lancaster. "They are going to reduce the capitation, but we were spending more than that on pharmacy items."

Lancaster said the only bad news to come out of the revisions is that the employee hired to perform the pharmaceutical work will be out of a job. That person has been notified and is currently seeking employment.

Lancaster said that in the past, Cogdell had to absorb out-patient costs for the prison unit. Under the revised agreement, TDCJ will pay more of those costs. "I expect it will be either 80 percent of the customary fees or the same as medicare rates. We don't know which, yet," Lancaster said.

One other portion of the contract will call for Cogdell to pay a

Campaign finance debate continuing

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders, hoping to adjourn for the year with a campaign finance package in hand, hunted for last-minute votes today for a measure some had labeled "fraud" rather than reform.

Hurrying to complete as much as possible before Congress adjourns, probably either late today or Tuesday, House leaders also tried to round up enough Democrats to fend off a bipartisan bid to cut another $90 billion in federal spending over five years.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., predicted the campaign finance bill would pass, but acknowledged it was close. "This is a very difficult, hard thing to do ... Each member feels he or she is an expert on this," the speaker said.

On Sunday, the House rejected, 220-207, a move to block the Democratic leadership bill on campaign finance from coming up.

Maverick Democrats, with the help of most Republicans, wanted to offer a bipartisan alternative they said accomplished true reform. If they had won, the House campaign finance bill effectively would have been dead for the year.

The White House has lobbied heavily against the $90 billion deficit package by Reps. Tim Penny, D-Minn., and John Kasich, R-Ohio, and complained its Medicare cuts would hurt next year's effort on health care reform and drain already-tight state budgets.

Penny and others complained that Democratic leaders had threatened to yank federal projects out of the districts of any lawmaker who voted for the $90 billion deficit package.

Graduation slated for drug program

AUSTIN (AP) — A new prison substance abuse treatment program is set to graduate its first class of inmates.

But the idea has garnered as many critics as it has supporters and faces a tough question from both groups — does it really work?

The nine-month program is a manifestation of a promise by Gov. Ann Richards, a recovering alcoholic, to expand drug and alcohol treatment programs in prison.

"When you've got 80 percent of the people in (prison) who are addicted, it's pretty obvious that when you put them back out there on the street, they're still going to be addicted and they're going to commit their crime to get the drugs again, and you have got to break the cycle of that behavior," Richards said.

The program, she said, teaches inmates to accept responsibility, shows them there are people they can trust and helps them find follow-up care "to help them lead a straight and narrow life."

There are three treatment phases: in-prison therapy, a three-month halfway house program and an outpatient phase when the inmate is freed, said Dorothy Brown, coordinator for the prison system's treatment programs.

But it's costly — about $8,000 per inmate — and some critics say it isn't worth the money.

George W. Bush, Richards' GOP rival in next year's election, is one prominent critic of the program.

"He isn't convinced of the long-term effectiveness," said Karl Rove, Bush's campaign consultant.

Mental abuse undermines self-esteem

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: We've heard a lot about physical abuse, but what actually constitutes mental abuse?

DEAR READER: Mental abuse — especially in its mild forms — may be difficult to define. To some degree, this may be similar to the oft-quoted comment of the Supreme Court justice when asked to define pornography. He said he might not be able to define it, but he certainly knew it when he saw it. Mental abuse, in my view, is an attitude or series of acts that are perceived by the recipient as threatening or unpleasant and that may undermine his or her sense of security and well-being.

Of course, to a great extent, we are all the givers and receivers of mental abuse at one time or another. All you have to do is eavesdrop on a bunch of children in a schoolyard. Or listen to government proclamations.

However, mental abuse may be more of a legal concept than a medical one, although victims may be prone to depression and other health problems. Unquestionably, serious mental abuse — such as that suffered by prisoners or even by children and spouses in extreme situations — would be recognizable by anyone. It's the more subtle forms that I suspect bother you. And me. This is a difficult concept, in part because what is interpreted by one person as an abusive situation may be normal and completely tolerable for another.

Therefore, I will [illegible] many instances, the presence or absence of mental abuse might have to be decided on a case-to-case basis. I'd be interested to hear what other readers have to say about the topic of subtle mental abuse.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How much vitamin C should be taken to ward off stomach cancer and lower cholesterol levels? I'm 70 and have recently undergone triple bypass surgery.

DEAR READER: Recent studies suggest that 1,000-2,000 milligrams of vitamin C MAY help prevent stomach cancer and reduce serum cholesterol. However, this relation has yet to be confirmed, so you should ask your doctor about whether to use vitamin C — or whether other cholesterol-lowering strategies might be more appropriate, as, for example, the use of niacin or Metamucil, along with a low-fat diet.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Understanding Cholesterol." Other readers who would like a copy [illegible] addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

U.S. lawmakers often allies one minute, but foes the next

By David Espo
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barely 12 hours after an unusual bipartisan majority pushed the North American Free Trade Agreement through the House, Republican Whip Newt Gingrich was fuming at the Democrats.

They were pressing ahead with year-end plans to vote on a long list of bills over Republican objections, he said. Particularly galling was a decision to deny GOP lawmakers so much as a vote on a provision to soften legislation cracking down on violence at abortion clinics.

"Ask them if in any way there's bipartisanship of any kind" on the bills, Gingrich said heatedly.

So much for the idea that after the cohesion on NAFTA, tensions between Republicans and Democrats would yield to a new era of enlightened bipartisanship.

"I think there will be other opportunities" for bipartisanship, House Speaker Tom Foley, D-Wash., said the morning after the vote, mentioning health care legislation and other bills. But, he added quickly, "I don't think it is necessarily a week-by-week act of bipartisan cooperation that would put aside our differences on every issue. That is obviously not going to happen."

President Clinton's 1994 legislative agenda is crowded with items that have the potential to divide the parties — health care, welfare and campaign finance reform among them.

Yet virtually everyone — Clinton, Foley, Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, Gingrich — expresses the hope that bipartisan solutions can emerge, particularly on health care.

Don't look to NAFTA as an indicator of success.

That's more likely to be determined by the issues themselves, and the political forces at work.

Dole worked hard to pass NAFTA in the Senate. Asked about health care Sunday on NBC, he said there was a lot of work to do.

"We're opposed to price controls, employer mandates and mandatory alliances, plus a lot of new entitlement programs that cost hundreds of billions of dollars," he said, ticking off his objections to Clinton's plan.

"We will disagree a lot," said Howard Pastor, Clinton's chief congressional lobbyist. "Bill Clinton is ultimately a good Democrat."

The tensions do reflect fundamental differences between Republicans and Democrats. Those differences were displayed this year on economics, when Senate Republicans killed Clinton's stimulus program, and Democrats passed the administration's package of tax hikes and spending cuts over unanimous Republican opposition.

It's also an article of faith that party cohesion leads to success at the polls. And Democrats — with Clinton in wholehearted agreement — want to strengthen their majority next year. Republicans sense an opportunity to gain 10 or 20 House seats.

Still, the NAFTA vote probably makes some difference.

"I met a lot of Republican members I'd never worked with before," Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., said the morning after the vote. "That's going to make it easier in the future."

Not surprisingly, some Democrats on the losing side of NAFTA predicted bipartisanship would vanish overnight.

"How many Republicans do you think are going to vote for universal health care?" asks Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., a NAFTA foe.

Astrograph
By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Tuesday, Nov. 23, 1993

More emphasis than usual might be placed on your organizational and leadership abilities in the year ahead. Over the coming months you could build quite a reputation for yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You've heard that old adage, "If you want something done right, it's best to do it yourself." Try to keep this in mind today, instead of looking for persons on whom you can lean. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to focus your efforts, energies and abilities on a secret ambition you've been nurturing. Go all out, without revealing what you're trying to accomplish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be hopeful in all of your endeavors today, especially those where you're tied in with a persons with whom you've been lucky previously. This is a day when good things might be repeated.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The reason you failed to achieve a specific objective up until now is not because it's too tough, it's because you haven't tried hard enough. You'll perform well under pressure, so go all out today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons with whom you're involved will believe in you today once it become evident to them you truly believe in yourself and the ideas you espouse. To thine own self be true.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today if you're lucky, and there are strong indications you could be, your good fortune might come through others rather than through anything you do for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today even when you're dealing with groups, you'll have the delightful faculty for making each person feel he/she is the target of your special attention.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Two intertwined objectives you presently have can be achieved today if they are both given top priority. It's not too important as to which you do first.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you might not deliberately court competition, it looks like it might seek you out today. Don't let this intimidate you, because challenge simulates your courage.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something you've been wanting to change, but as yet haven't, should be attempted today. You might not do it perfectly, but the results will be an improvement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will be up to you to take the initative today in a partnership arrangement. If you wait on your counterpart, what you want done might be postponed for quite awhile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be alert for opportunities today that could enhance your material security or add to your resources in some significant manner. If you're sharp enough, you'll spot it.

American Airlines lists options for ticketholders

Vietnamese vets can't forget war

THUAN THANH, Vietnam (AP) — Twenty-six years ago, Sgt. Le Dinh Lau was paralyzed in both legs during an American bombing attack on his unit. Now 57, he spends most of his days in a wooden wheelchair, unable to forget.

"I hate the U.S. government," he said. "I can't forget the war because it changed my life. I can't move because of it. If I wasn't injured, I could have done anything."

His legs limp, his life defined by the yellow walls of the compound where he lives, Lau can now do very little.

He and about 50 others in the government home for paralyzed and brain-damaged veterans 30 miles southeast of Hanoi are given free room and board, plus a monthly allowance equivalent to $24.

The home is clean and spacious and the residents are well fed, but the television is apparently reserved for special occasions, so the only daily distractions are chess, the radio and newspapers. Most of the veterans spend the days in their wheelchairs under a broad tree in the compound.

As Vietnam seeks normal relations with the United States, these veterans, like thousands of others all but forgotten in similar homes across the country, live with their terrible wounds and memories.

About 1 million soldiers on the communist side were killed in the decade from 1965 to 1975. Countless soldiers and civilians were wounded.

The United States, which supported South Vietnam, withdrew in 1975 and the country was reunified a year later under communist control.

Lau's 53-year-old wife, Cao Thi Khanh, who led a unit of 11 soldiers, met her husband at the veterans' home after she was wounded by shrapnel from an American bomb in 1968. She lost her left eye and passes out for hours at a time because of brain damage.

"When I was young, U.S. bombs and U.S. soldiers took my life," she said, sitting with her husband and children in their one-story, two-bedroom house in a row of dwellings in the compound. Across the way is an apartment-style building for single veterans.

It is a clean, airy home, decorated with colorful calendars and family pictures.

Their eldest son could not find a job in the province and is looking elsewhere. The youngest is still in school. The couple's daughter, Le Kim Thu, 20, has a scholarship at a teachers' college.

"The U.S. government has caused a lot of trouble, injuries, and death to my parents and other people," the daughter said. "But now, the U.S. government knows it made a mistake and so it is good to make friends with the U.S. In the world today, peace is very important. It is not necessary to be hostile with each other."

Out in the courtyard, more disabled veterans joined the others under the tree to enjoy the late-afternoon breeze.

Sgt. Do Van They, 52, bathed and clean shaven in a white, short-sleeved shirt and blue cotton pants, sat in his wooden wheelchair and said he had nothing to do with his life. Before the war, he had hoped to be a teacher of mathematics or physics.

"I had a lot of dreams," he said, but they ended when he was shot in the back during a battle with the Americans. "If the U.S. soldiers hadn't come here," he said, "I would be normal."

He said he harbors no animosity toward the American people, but does not extend that generosity to their leaders.

"The Vietnamese government has opened its mind to relations with the U.S., but the U.S. government still hasn't recognized its mistakes," he said.

Yarrow's spiny lizards use a third eye on top of their heads to find their way home in the rocky canyons of the southwestern United States and northern Mexico, says National Geographic.

Dive into the pool of team play

By Phillip Alder

Most tournament players prefer team events to pairs. In teams, it is just a matter of making or breaking the contract; overtricks are almost irrelevant. In pairs, however, every trick is vital.

The most popular form of team play is Swiss Teams. A reference book on this subject is Harold Feldheim's "Winning Swiss Team Tactics," republished by Lorold Associates ($12.45, The Bridge World, 39 West 94th Street, New York, NY 10025-7124). It covers all aspects of Swiss Teams, including strategy, and ends with a 50-question quiz.

Today's deal comes from the book. You are shown only the North-South hands and asked to plan the play in six diamonds, West having overcalled four clubs. West leads the club king.

It isn't easy to reach six diamonds after West's annoying overcall. Experts play North's double as showing "convertible values." This means that North is promising sufficient high-card values to act at the four-level. If the opener has a balanced hand, he will pass. But if it is unbalanced, he can bid and expect to find some useful goodies in the dummy.

Did you play dummy's club ace, draw trumps, take the heart finesse and win all 13 tricks? Wrong!

You have 12 top tricks: three spades, one heart, seven diamonds and one club. To ensure these tricks, you should play low from the dummy at trick one. In real life, East was void in clubs and West had the heart king. Playing the club ace at trick one cost the contract. East ruffed, and South had an unavoidable heart loser.

Lotto Texas

One ticket, purchased in South Texas, correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The ticket is worth $3 million.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 8, 12, 23, 29, 39, 44.

In addition to the jackpot winner, there were 150 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,136. There were 7,354 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $84. And there were 131,557 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $3 million.

Dusters scalp SJC in tourney contest

SHAWNEE, Okla. — Western Texas College women's basketball coach Ron Jones captured a milestone win on Saturday when his Lady Dusters rolled to an 82-70 victory over Seminole Junior College in the final round of the St. Gregory's Classic here.

The loss was the first of the season for SJC, now 7-1.

"This was one of a couple of games we were pointing to when the season started," Jones said. "We wanted to play well against Seminole because we knew they have a good team and a good program.

"They've been the team to beat in Oklahoma for several years and they were ranked No. 2 in the nation most of last season.

"I was very pleased with the game," the coach continued. "It was by far the best game and the best opponent we've had all season. We played well and we played as smart a game as I've seen us play."

The Dusters used the outside play of freshman Carri Moss, who scored a team-high 27 points, and the inside execution of sophomore post Paulita Murrell, who accumulated 19 on the night, to get past SJC.

"Carri really put on a show," Jones said. "She was a real dominant player in high school and she showed that same type game."

Moss hit six baskets, including four from 3-point land, and was a perfect 9-for-9 from the free-throw line. She scored 24 of her points in a second-half run that broke a 37-all halftime tie.

Murrell hit seven field goals and converted 5-of-8 from the line.

Dee Ella Lewis was Seminole's top producer with 27 points.

The Dusters bring a 6-2 season mark back home for a rematch with Cisco Junior College tonight at 7:30 at Scurry County Coliseum.

"We played kind of flat last time we saw Cisco," Jones said of the Dusters' 76-62 win last Tuesday. "But, they have a good team. They're tough to beat."

Aikman and Smith on sidelines...

Falcons upset hurting 'Pokes

ATLANTA (AP) — With Emmitt Smith, the Dallas Cowboys didn't lose. Without him Sunday, they didn't win.

A bruised right quadricep ended Smith's afternoon two minutes before halftime, and the Atlanta Falcons stopped the Cowboys' seven-game winning streak 27-14.

"I took a knee to the quad," Smith said. "I'll take whatever treatment is necessary and see how it goes."

"The good thing is that we can go again in three days," he said. Dallas plays on Thanksgiving Day against Miami.

Atlanta's swarming defense, which shut out the Los Angeles Rams last week, blanked Dallas for nearly three quarters. Deion Sanders, one of the Falcons' best defenders, also contributed on offense by catching a 70-yard touchdown pass and high-stepping to the end zone with 3:51 left.

Even before Smith was injured, he did little. The Falcons limited him to only 1 yard on one carry and 9 yards on four catches.

"I was very upset," Smith said. "We were doing things on the field that we usually don't do. We weren't doing anything right."

The defending Super Bowl champion Cowboys (7-3) had been unbeaten since Smith came back from a two-game salary holdout to start the season. Bernie Kosar, playing his second game for injured Troy Aikman, threw TD passes late in the third and fourth quarters.

"Anytime you are missing a key player, you won't play as well," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said of Aikman's absence. "That wasn't an individual performance that lost for us today. It was our team that didn't play well today."

The Falcons (4-6) won for the fourth time in five games.

"I'm very proud of the defense for getting all over them and the offense for working the clock," Falcons coach Jerry Glanville said. "Some people said we wouldn't be here for this ballgame, but not only did we show up, we did a great job."

Atlanta set the tone with the game's first possession, grinding out 73 yards in 14 plays that ate 8:48 off the clock and ended on Norm Johnson's 26-yard field goal.

The Cowboys netted only 1 yard, punted and then saw the Falcons march 60 yards in 15 more plays. Johnson capped it with a 24-yard field goal — his 24th consecutive successful kick, five shy of the league record.

Atlanta held the Cowboys to only one first down and 25 yards in the first half and yielded only 230 yards for the game, the first time Dallas failed to net at least 300 yards this season.

"The key was we stopped their running game," linebacker Jessie Tuggle said. "We shut down the run and kept them off the field."

Bobby Hebert took care of the Falcons offense, completing 24 of 32 passes for 315 yards and three touchdowns.

"There's a lot of character on this team," Hebert said. "We played well offensively and defensively and kept them off balance. We controlled the ball and we controlled the tempo."

Hebert hit Mike Pritchard for two of the scores, from 13 yards in the second quarter and 10 yards in the third, giving Atlanta a 20-0 lead.

Pritchard had six receptions for 71 yards.

Kosar, making his first start for the Cowboys since being released by Cleveland two weeks ago, threw a 1-yard touchdown pass on fourth down to Scott Galbraith with 41 seconds left in the third and a 28-yarder to Kevin Williams to cap a 76-yard drive with 1:30 left in the game.

Eleven Tigers selected to '93 All-District 2-4A grid squad

LUBBOCK — Senior Larry Thompson leads a group of 11 Snyder Tigers honored recently with selection to the All-District 2-4A football team.

Thompson earned first-team recognition at split end and was named to the all-loop second team as a defensive back.

Thompson snagged 28 passes during the 1993 season for a team-record 594 yards and six touchdowns. His totals include a seven-catch, 222-yard outing at Lubbock Estacado in the second week of district play.

He also set the team standard in the defensive backfield with three interceptions.

Also representing Snyder on the first team are senior guard Brad Hart, noseguard Chris Mills, safety Matthew Cave, and punter Chris Mitchell.

Second teamers from SHS are center Brian Lickey, defensive end Jeff Armstrong, linebacker Nathan Zalman and DB John Clinkinbeard.

Running backs Damien Nails of loop champion Plainview and Estacado's Talion Scott shared MVP honors and Plainview's Steve Parr was selected the league's Coach of the Year.

Joining Thompson on the first-team offense are center Freddy Tackett, guard Josh Roberts, tackle Cody Lindeman, kicker Tony Santos, and tight end Ross McCoy of Plainview; wide receiver Kendrick Hollie, kicker Chris Addington and quarterback Shane Stewart of loop runner-up Frenship; tackle Albert Trevino of Estacado; and Levelland tackle Brandon Gray.

Defensive first-teamers include MVPs Steven Riddley and McCoy of Plainview, along with teammates Bill Bradley and Toby Santos, defensive linemen, linebackers Cleat Bell, Tommy Gomez, Chris Cannon and Michael Rodriguez, and DB Tory Bryant; NG Trent Taylor and DB Hollie of Frenship; and Levelland linebacker Chad Walker.

Hart, a senior, anchored a Snyder line that protected Cave during a record setting passing season. Behind Hart and Co. Cave was able to set a school mark, throwing for 1064 yards in 1993.

Mills rang up 67 tackles on the year, including a record-tying 11 for losses, and a team-best six sacks.

Cave was credited with 49 tackles, two behind the line of scrimmage, three interceptions and five knocked down passes.

Mitchell wound up the season with a 38.1-yard average on 49 punts.

Zalman led the Tiger defense in '93 with 84½ tackles, 11 for losses, a sack, three hurries and a fumble recovery. Armstrong chipped in three sacks, eight tackles behind the line, a total of 39½ tackles and a blocked kick from his defensive end spot.

Clinkinbeard, Snyder's left cornerback, swiped two passes, recovered two fumbles and blocked two kicks in his all-district season.

Henry, converted from an interior lineman as a junior to a tight end for the '93 campaign, snagged 15 passes for 161 yards and a TD, while Chaidez, also a senior, had 54½ tackles, three sacks, five hurries and a fumble recovery.

The all-district team was selected by a vote of member coaches in their annual postseason meeting.

Lady 'Dogs take second

RULE — Ira's Lady Bulldogs grabbed second place at the weekend Rule Turkey Classic basketball tournament, falling in the championship game to the host Lady 'Cats, 54-42.

"They played extremely well," said Ira coach Tim Maben. "It really hurt them to finish second. I know that means that they expect to win now."

Jennifer Rankin scored 12 to lead the 2-2 Lady Bulldogs. Jody Rankin followed with nine and Jennifer Northcott put in seven.

Margie Seballos poured in a game-high 30 points to lead Rule. Teammate Tomika Griffin chipped in 18.

Ira's boys were defeated Saturday, 47-44, by Abilene Christian High School in the tourney's consolation final.

Coy Henderson canned 14 to lead the Bulldogs, while Cory Beltz and Heath Mathis each lifted 10.

The Bulldogs are 0-3.

Both Ira teams will be in action Tuesday at Borden County.

Tigers nudge Central, 62-58

Snyder's Tigers not only won their second straight basketball game to open the season Saturday, they improved over their Friday performance in the process.

"We looked much better, overall, on Saturday," said Snyder coach Bud Birks, speaking of his team's 62-58 non-district win over visiting San Angelo Central. "I don't really know why we played so much better, because we didn't have time to practice, but we came out and played better in almost every facet of the game.

"We're still making some mistakes that you'd expect from a team that's so short on varsity experience, but we shot better and we rebounded better."

Senior wing Adrian Sneed put in 18 points to lead the Tigers, followed by Jon Patrick with 15, including all four of the team's 3-point buckets, and Jimmy Henry added 10.

"Jon stepped up and had a good game for us," Birks reported. "He had a solid game. He came in and hit a few threes, and that's something we're going to have to have along the way.

"Jimmy had a good game, too. In fact, we had a good game out of our post position all around with Jimmy and Ricky Post."

Post contributed eight points from inside the paint.

The Tigers jumped out to a 15-7 first-quarter lead, before the Bobcats roared back for 23 points in the second period to claim a 30-29 halftime advantage.

Snyder came back and iced the win in the second half with a 33-28 run in the last two quarters.

The Tigers will continue their hectic early-season schedule with a trip to 3A's No. 4 ranked Brownfield today.

Action begins with the JV tilt at 6 p.m., followed by the varsity contest at 7:30 p.m.

Snyder returns home Saturday for afternoon games against Big Spring.

Girls basketball game cancelled

Tonight's Snyder-Brownfield girls' basketball games, slated to begin at 5:30 p.m. at SHS, have been cancelled.

The Lady Tigers, now 1-1, will return to action Tuesday at Odessa Permian.

Freshman games will tip-off at 4 p.m. in Odessa, followed by the 5:30 p.m. JV tilt and the 7 p.m. varsity contest.

Snyder will play in the weekend Frenship Tournament, then will return home for a Nov. 30 matchup with Lubbock High.

SHS JV nips Central 47-46

Snyder's junior varsity boys' basketball team went to 2-0 Saturday with a slim 47-46 victory over San Angelo Central.

Jeff Hobbs, led the Tiger assault with 10 points, Wayne Brazier put in nine and Beau Mallard canned eight.

Snyder will be back in action today at 6 p.m. in Brownfield.

Tech beats UH to earn bowl berth

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Tech did it and Texas is hoping it can, too.

The Red Raiders qualified for a bowl Saturday in spite of their 1-5 start, winning their fifth straight game, 58-7 over Houston.

The Longhorns got off to their worst start since 1938, winning just one of their first five contests. But a victory over No. 8 Texas A&M in College Station Thanksgiving night would send Texas to the Cotton Bowl.

A loss sends the Longhorns home for the holidays.

The Aggies are 9-1 after whipping TCU 59-3 in Fort Worth Saturday, and they will be heavy favorites in the annual showdown Thursday night on ESPN.

Texas (5-4-1) eliminated Baylor from the bowl picture Saturday with a 38-17 drubbing of the Bears, who finished 5-6 after starting the season with a promising 3-1 record.

If Texas A&M wins Thursday night, Texas Tech (6-5, 5-2) would go to the John Hancock Bowl in El Paso on Christmas Eve, with Southern Cal the desired opponent.

If Texas beats the Aggies, it would go to the Cotton Bowl, Texas A&M would go to the Hancock Bowl and Texas Tech would go to the inaugural Alamo Bowl in San Antonio on New Year's Eve.

Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes meant no harm Saturday when he left running back Byron Morris in the game despite a 31-0 halftime lead over the Houston Cougars.

He wasn't trying to run up the score, just the yardage.

Morris, a junior, had rushed for just 67 first-half yards. He got 156 more in the second half and broke the SWC single-season rushing mark of 1,744 yards set by Texas' Earl Campbell in 1977.

"It gets to be touchy, but I think when you have a guy with a chance to break a record you have to give him that chance," Dykes said.

The Cougars made it difficult for Morris, stacking the line with seven or eight men. He scored two touchdowns in the first half, but it appeared he would end up well short of Campbell's record.

With 12 minutes left in the game, Morris had 1,700 yards and was tired. But he persuaded Tech offensive coordinator Dick Winder to put him back in.

Morris finished with a career-high 40 rushes, 223 yards Saturday and 1,752 for the season.

"I was a little tired, but I wanted to break the record," said Morris, "It's just a great honor to break it or just to even get close to it."

In Tech's last three games, Morris rushed for 223, 222 and 223 yards. Breaking Campbell's mark should increase the pressure for him to turn pro.

"Earl was one of the greatest ever," said Morris. "I'm grateful to the coaches for the chance to break it."

Thirty years later, we stll ask who killed JFK?

EDITOR'S NOTE — Americans in growing numbers reject the conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, fired the shots that killed President John F. Kennedy and wounded former Texas Gov. John Connally. After three decades and countless books and TV specials, the conspiracy issue threatens to overshadow both the Kennedy legend and legacy.

By Mike Cochran
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — In death as in life, John Connally could not escape the echoes of gunfire 30 years ago in Dealey Plaza.

As the former Texas governor lay in state in Austin this summer, researchers were demanding bullet fragments from his body. They insisted tests would prove President John F. Kennedy's slaying was the result of a conspiracy.

"It's an appalling attempt to capitalize on Governor Connally's death to gain publicity for worn-out theories," said Julian Read, a Connally confidant.

The attempt failed. The fragments from the horror of November 1963 were buried with Connally. But the theories were not.

Indeed, they have never been more pronounced than today, as a generation of Americans born after the assassination reaches adulthood.

It is almost as if the trauma of Kennedy's death and the memory of his Camelot cannot compete with the clamor about conspiracy.

The question these three decades later, it seems, is not "Who was JFK?"

It is "Who killed JFK?"

The sky was overcast that Friday morning, but the autumn sun melted away the chill and the cloud cover as Air Force One made the short hop from Fort Worth to Dallas Love Field.

It was Nov. 22, 1963.

At the urging of local politicians, Kennedy ordered the reflective glass shield atop the presidential limousine removed.

"We can't have you hiding from the people," one official complained.

And, after all, politics had brought the president to Texas, a pivotal and worrisome state in his 1964 re-election plans.

Huge, enthusiastic crowds greeted the motorcade. Kennedy, his wife Jackie at his side, smiled and waved from the back seat. Up front, John and Nellie Connally beamed at the Texas welcome.

Just before 12:30 p.m., the motorcade slipped out of the glass and steel canyons of downtown and zigzagged toward Elm Street and a drab, seven-story brick building.

Moments before the limousine reached the Texas School Book Depository, Mrs. Connally turned to Kennedy. And in one of the ironies of history, she said, "No one can say Dallas doesn't love and respect you, Mr. President."

"You sure can't," he replied.

The first shot sounded like a firecracker. The second and third shots were unmistakably gunfire.

In 1964, the Warren Commission concluded that three shots were fired on the motorcade, all from the depository building's sixth floor and all by Lee Harvey Oswald.

Thirty years later, surveys show that more than eight out of 10 Americans do not accept the basic conclusion that Oswald, a lifetime misfit, was the lone assassin.

Yet, as so many reject the commission's finding, the Kennedy family itself accepts it.

The slain president's brother, Sen. Edward Kennedy, has refused to debate conspiracy theorists or comment on their contentions, but he complained recently when informed a new book would contain autopsy photographs and enhanced pictures of the shooting from the Zapruder film.

"This is the ultimate and most heartbreaking exploitation of President Kennedy," he said, "and it deeply saddens me."

At the heart of most conspiracy arguments is whether the same bullet — the so-called Magic Bullet — could have passed through Kennedy's upper back and caused the wounds suffered by Connally.

The two were struck almost at the same instant. If the same bullet could not have wounded both men, there had to have been a second bullet — and therefore a second gunman.

A new book by lawyer-journalist Gerald Posner offers a case for the single-bullet theory that adheres to the government's basic conclusion.

While relentlessly denounced by conspiracy buffs, Posner's "Case Closed" has reaped mainstream acclaim.

Posner explains how medical expertise combined with computerized re-enactments, special enhancements of the Zapruder film and new bullet-impact tests prove the single-bullet theory. Accordingly, Oswald's first shot missed, the second hit both Kennedy and Connally and the third indisputably was the fatal Kennedy head shot.

"This case has indeed been closed by Mr. Posner's work," said presidential biographer Stephen Ambrose, a onetime single-bullet skeptic. "His chapter on the single bullet is a tour de force, absolutely brilliant, absolutely convincing."

But so many, still, refuse to believe. Partly, it's because Kennedy's death was such a consuming event; partly, it's because in subsequent years — during Vietnam, throughout the Watergate scandal, at so many other junctures — the government lied.

Under pressure from researchers, journalists and Congress, the federal government released some 900,000 Kennedy-related documents in August, the largest single disclosure ever. National archivists assembled the "Kennedy collection" from such sources as the CIA, the House Select Committee on Assassinations and the Warren Commission.

In addition, the City of Dallas opened its long-secret files on the assassination at the behest of a city councilman.

In both cases, the stacks of material contained intriguing gems of trivia, but no bombshells.

But it's not just in the airless warren of government files that the fascination with the events of Nov. 22, 1963, continues.

The 1990 feature film "JFK," which ingrained the Zapruder images on a new generation, had a cinematic subplot for everyone — and was nominated for a Best Picture Academy Award.

As expected, a new flurry of books and television specials appeared for this year's 30th anniversary. Among the offerings were the NBC movie "Fatal Deception," Marina Oswald's story, and a PBS "Frontline" project devoted to her husband.

A favorite tour stop in Dallas now is The Sixth Floor, a museum located, appropriately, in the Texas School Book Depository.

The Dallas County Historical Foundation overrode the city's collective sense of shame and opened the exhibit in 1989.

It was an instant hit, and already has attracted more than 1.5 million visitors — many drawn to the eerie sniper's nest in the sixth floor's southeast corner.

And the JFK Assassination Information Center remains open in Dallas as a commercial, conspiracy-flavored repository of information and services.

Two years ago, the center co-sponsored an assassination symposium. With evangelistic fervor, speakers and panelists swapped conspiracy theories and cursed the government, the media and the Warren Commission.

It was such fun that it has become an annual affair.

Hundreds of conspiracy buffs and JFK researchers are back in town this week for the third such meeting, sharing their "individual pieces of the puzzle."

Privately distressed over the invasive proliferation of theories and disturbed by profiteering, members of the Kennedy family have remained largely away from the conspiracy spotlight.

Instead, they focus on the slain president's confidence, optimism and inspiration, his contributions to the space program, the Peace Corps and civil rights, his courage during the Cuban missile crisis.

President Clinton, flanked by Kennedy kin, spoke of the slain president in such words while helping dedicate the remodeled JFK Library last month in Boston.

"The 21st century can be our century if we approach it with the vigor, the determination, the wisdom and the sheer confidence and joy of life that John Kennedy brought to America in 1960," Clinton said.

The library contains a new section on the assassination, but the museum clearly is aimed at memorializing Kennedy's life and not the tragic way he died.

"Of all he did, my brother would take the highest pride in the legions of young Americans he inspired and whose lives he touched and changed," Edward Kennedy said through an aide.

More than anything else, the senator said, President Kennedy gave the nation a revival of spirit:

"He brought us a belief that we were equal to any challenge, that the greatest challenge of all was to be faithful to our best ideals — and with courage he led us in a time where one false step could have doomed the world itself."

Recalling the president's inaugural phrase about the torch being passed, his brother said, "The truth was, he relit the torch for a whole new generation and more."

One child's lawyer blames the other boy in tot's death

PRESTON, England (AP) — The lawyer for one of two schoolboys accused of murdering toddler James Bulger put all the blame on the other youngster today. The attorney for the second child said his client did not mean to do it.

Brian Walsh said that his 11-year-old client, who confessed to killing James, was not "lily white or totally blameless" but that he did not intend to seriously harm the 2-year-old.

David Turner, representing the other 11-year-old boy, told the jury his client should be absolved because he says he took no part in the brutal beating death of James on an isolated stretch of railway.

[illegible] defense lawyers called any witnesses before presenting their final statements today.

The prosecution alleges the boys, who by court order may be identified in news reports only as Child A and Child B, set out to abduct and at least seriously hurt a child last Feb. 12. Both have pleaded innocent to abducting and murdering James and attempting to abduct another child the same day.

Clinton meets Asian leaders

SEATTLE (AP) — Can nations create a community that transcends cultural differences, political tensions and a vast ocean? Asia-Pacific leaders with common economic goals are inching in that direction.

President Clinton could have been speaking for any head of state at the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum when he said Sunday, linking job growth to bigger markets for U.S. goods, "We have to have those customers."

Although regional security concerns such as North Korea's nuclear program came up often, trade relations were the centerpiece of last week's conference and the landmark leaders' summit that followed.

"We've laid a foundation for regional efforts to create jobs, raise incomes, expand business opportunities and foster regional harmony," Clinton said afterward.

The administration is portraying the week as a historical turning point. Fifteen years down the road, say the president and his aides, it will be viewed as the moment that a loose knit discussion group on trade began to emerge as a cohesive international force.

Chinese President Jiang Zemin's once unimaginable activities here — visiting a U.S. worker's home, meeting privately with Clinton, holding a news conference for western media — were stark examples of how quickly things are changing.

But there was also plentiful evidence of the rifts and tensions that stand in the way of a placid Pacific community — among them Japan's resistance to opening its markets for rice and other products.

portion of inmate emergency room fees, whereas in the past, TDCJ has paid the full cost. "We don't feel this will be a problem," the CEO said. "It is very infrequent that an inmate is taken to the emergency room."

Lancaster said he did not have any actual dollar figures at this time, but said of the contract, "The overall financial impact to the hospital will be a positive one."

The board also heard a positive financial report for October. The hospital had a net income of $58,954.

A monthly operating report indicated 65 surgeries performed during the month. There was an average daily census of 11.7 and a long term census of 36.3 for the month. In addition, there were 950 home health visits, 14 newborns and 721 emergency room visits.

Board members approved the managerial contract with St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock, the financial report and accounts payable.

The board also set its next meeting for 8 a.m. on Dec. 16.

After adjourning to a Foundation meeting, the board approved expenses for the Dec. 9 employee awards banquet, not to exceed $2,400. The board also approved $11,220 in ophthalmology equipment.

Present this morning were board members Sue Mize, Ted Crenwelge, Bill Wilson III, Jim Palmer and G.A. Parks Jr. Doug Foster was absent.

open bids on a tandem-axle truck for Precinct 3 and an auto for the sheriff's department. The court was also expected to consider bids for the purchase of surplus county equipment.

Judge Doolittle presided at the meeting. Commissioners present were C.D. Gray Jr., Ralph Trevey and Jerry Gannaway. Commissioner Idom was absent.

Police note seven arrests

Snyder police made seven arrests over the weekend and handled other reports.

Officers arrested 24-year-old Jose Richardo Molinar for felony driving while intoxicated, driving with a suspended license and no liability insurance at 1:13 a.m. Sunday in the 500 block of 16th Street. Also arrested was a 33-year-old man for public intoxication.

At 2:16 a.m. Sunday, police responded to a disturbance at the Plaza Truck Stop. Arrested were two men, ages 30 and 27, for public intoxication.

Police responded to a disturbance at the Kingswood Apartments at 2:13 p.m. Sunday where they arrested a 42-year-old man for public intoxication.

At 6:26 p.m. Sunday, police arrested a 50-year-old man in the 2900 block of Avenue J for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated.

Police arrested a 34-year-old man for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated at 37th Street and Avenue E at 9:32 p.m. Sunday.

Twenty-four-year-old Delia Pena of 307 32nd St. was treated for neck pain at Cogdell Memorial Hospital on Sunday following a two-vehicle accident in the intersection of 30th and College. The 10:18 a.m. accident involved a 1986 Ford pickup driven by John Guthrie of Coahoma and a 1987 Toyota driven by Pena.

Pena was released from the ER following treatment.

Officers worked a hit-and-run at 10:06 p.m. Sunday at 500 30th St. An unknown vehicle struck a city dumpster and fled the scene.

Officers took several reports from citizens who said they had heard gun shots between 1:04 and 1:19 Sunday morning. Police were advised of a couple of disturbances, but no weapons were located and no charges filed.

Actor Bill Bixby dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Bixby, whose three-decade television career featured starring roles as a Martian's pal, superdad and superhero, has died of cancer, a spokeswoman said today. He was 59.

Bixby died about 3:30 p.m. Sunday at his home in Century City, with his wife Judith Klivan-Bixby at his bedside, said Pamela Golin, a spokeswoman for the NBC-TV show "Blossom." Bixby was the show's director.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

In an emotional TV interview in September, he spoke of his battle with cancer that spread to his bladder, liver and hipbones.

"There was one night, I'd been in terrible pain, and really a tremendous amount of pain. And I really thought I was going to die that night," Bixby told the syndicated show "Entertainment Tonight."

"My prayer was that I would die in my sleep."

A likable performer, Bixby had varied roles in several successful television series from the '60s onward.

Newman stars in new movie

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Newman is "Nobody's Fool."

The Oscar winner started working this weekend in the title role of the Robert Benton film.

Newman, 67, stars as an unemployed construction worker, Donald "Sully" Sullivan, in the comedy based on Richard Russo's novel.

The film also features Jessica Tandy as Newman's landlady.

Psychiatric care for youth probed

HOUSTON (AP) — Lenient state and federal Medicaid rules and a lack of outpatient alternatives have allowed hundreds of children to be placed, perhaps unnecessarily, in private psychiatric treatment, the Houston Chronicle has reported in a copyright story.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales is studying whether the hospital admissions may have violated new state laws or previous court agreements with psychiatric hospital chains.

Investigators monitoring a state program that pays for care of low-income children have so far not determined whether the hospitals or the physicians acted improperly, the Chronicle reported Sunday.

However, they've acknowledged the program lacked sufficient checks and balances to prevent abuses.

A scandal two years ago involving hospitals that were accused of bilking insurance companies and a state fund resulted in new laws and instructions to state agencies to tighten regulations to prevent further abuses.

But those steps were not taken in the youth program until the beginning of this year when new officials took over the state Medicaid office.

Over the past three months, the state has tightened its regulations and the number of children admitted to private psychiatric hospitals has slowed considerably.

"Was it truly fraud involved here or (legally) taking advantage of a system that was not properly in place?" asked assistant Attorney General Mark Chouteau.

"We are concerned that maybe it became too easy to place a child in a psychiatric hospital as kind of a holding place," he said.

"Obviously some therapeutic benefits can be derived from that. But the cost effectiveness of spending $300 to $1,000 to house somebody each day when in fact they shouldn't be a candidate for a psychiatric hospital but rather a foster home, remains questionable."

Chouteau said admitting patients into psychiatric hospitals when they would be better treated in less restrictive outpatient care violates state laws and ethical guidelines.

The state program didn't provide mental health coverage until April 1992, after federal Medicaid officials ordered it to do so.

Payments to private psychiatric hospitals grew from $342,291 in April 1992, to $2.3 million in August 1992, according to a January study by the Legislative Budget Board.

Total payments to those facilities during the budget year ending Aug. 31 approached $70 million, according to preliminary tallies by the state Health Department. During the 12-month period, the program had 3,339 clients.

But in September, after state Medicaid officials clamped down on the program and new state laws went into effect, the state was charged for only one patient at a cost of $1,467.

Female legislators are busy juggling family and politics

AUSTIN (AP) — Women leaders say that although many of the barriers they once faced in elective politics have fallen, their pursuit of public office still is impaired by family and economic obligations.

"When push comes to shove, women are the ones who assume family obligations," said Sen. Florence Shapiro, R-Plano.

Nationally, seven of the 100 U.S. Senate members and 48 of the 435 U.S. House of Representatives are women, not including one delegate from Washington, D.C. In Texas, four women serve in the 31-member Senate and 25 in the 150-member House.

Sue Schechter, who decided not to seek another term as a state representative, likens her situation to a case of the "cobbler's children having no shoes."

"I spent most of my legislative work on children's issues," the Houston Democrat said. "By the end of the session, I realized I had spent so much time working on children's issues while my own children had received so little of my time."

Rep. Karyne Jones Conley, who has four children ranging in age from 7 to 14, says she lived a whirlwind life during legislative sessions.

Ms. Conley dropped her children at school in San Antonio on her way to Austin. At the Capitol, the Democrat served on the powerful House Appropriations Committee and voted on key bills. In the evenings, she whizzed back to San Antonio to pick up her children from after-school activities. Later, she made dinner, helped with homework and did laundry.

"At the end of each day, I would collapse, then start again the next morning," Ms. Conley said. "It was a very demanding situation that many of my male colleagues didn't understand because they had the freedom to stay in Austin."

Such freedom allowed other House members to broker deals over dinner or late-night meetings or discuss strategy and politics during breakfast — opportunities Ms. Conley said she missed because she chose to be with her children.

Rep. Wilhelmina Delco waited until her youngest child was in school before she sought her first public office on the Austin school board in 1968.

Why many don't think Oswald is whole story

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mob did it. Fidel Castro did it. The KGB did it. The right wing did it. The left wing did it. The government did it.

Thirty years after the murder of John F. Kennedy, most Americans think that someone other than Lee Harvey Oswald killed Kennedy. Or they think Oswald had helpers, never apprehended, in a plot that's never been investigated.

They reject the Warren Commission's conclusion that Oswald was a warped loner who acted alone, without the knowledge of anyone else.

If the Kennedy family itself accepts the commission's conclusion, why is it so widely doubted? Even Bill Clinton and Al Gore told reporters last year that they doubted the official version.

A week after the assassination, a Gallup Poll said only 29 percent of Americans believed that Oswald alone killed JFK. In a 1988 poll, only 13 percent thought Oswald was responsible.

And a poll conducted for The Associated Press earlier this month found that the majority of people still reject Oswald as the sole culprit. Fewer than 15 percent said he acted alone.

One reason for the skepticism is obvious: the case is so implausible.

Consider:

A 19-year-old former Marine defects to the Soviet Union at the height of the Cold War and marries a Russian woman. Three years after his defection, Soviet authorities allow him to return to this country. He drifts to Dallas and on the day that the president is to visit, he is able to sneak a rifle into his work place, overlooking the route of the presidential motorcade.

He fires three shots in short order, killing the president and wounding Texas Gov. John Connally. Then, despite the intense security that accompanies any president, he gets away from the murder scene on foot.

But he is arrested and jailed. Two days later, while being transferred from one jail to another, a nightclub owner with ties to the mob manages to get into the jail with a gun and to kill Oswald.

It seemed preposterous 30 years ago, it seems preposterous still. Small wonder that to millions of people it remains beyond belief.

And that's not all. The official commission created to investigate the murder made mistakes of its own, starting with the way it conducted the investigation.

Instead of hiring independent investigators, the Warren Commission depended on the work of the CIA and the FBI, the very agencies that some saw as part of the conspiracy.

And when the House Select Committee on Assassinations restudied the Kennedy case in 1979, it concluded that the slaying was the result of a conspiracy — probably involving the mob — but it, too, stopped short of identifying the plot. But having decided that, it disbanded. No government body followed up.

The writer of a recent best seller that finds fault with the Warren Commission's work but endorses its fundamental conclusion points to an additional factor to account for the skepticism.

Oswald never was put on trial. Because of that, said Gerald Posner, author of "Case Closed," the American adversarial system of justice — in which two sides lay their cases before a neutral judge or jury — was denied the opportunity to work.

Compare Oswald's fate to that of James Earl Ray, who was brought to court in the murder of Martin Luther King Jr. and pleaded guilty. Ray subsequently wrote a book asserting that he was part of a conspiracy.

"But we don't pay him much heed because Ray had his day in court," Posner said.

"Oswald never had that day. If he were sitting in jail today and saying there was a conspiracy, some people might listen to him, but it would not be the same," Posner said.

And beyond that, there have been scores of books making the case for one conspiracy or another. Until Posner came along, few people were making the radio talk show rounds arguing that Oswald alone was the villain.

Distrust of the government runs strong and feeds the skepticism, said Tulane University psychologist Fred Koenig.

"People believe in things that fit their world view," he said, "and conspiracy theories fit their world view that you can't trust the government." (His own view: "Oswald did it and that's that.")

The sense that a massive conspiracy and cover-up existed was reinforced for the millions who saw the 1991 Oliver Stone movie, "JFK." Its theme was that the military-industrial complex, fearful that Kennedy would withdraw from Vietnam and ruin business for the arms makers, hatched the plot.

Those who believe a conspiracy existed may not agree on the nature of the plot, but they find it ludicrous even to ask why people believe in conspiracy theories.

"The short answer is that they have reason to believe that," said David Wrone, a history professor who teaches a course on the Kennedy assassination (and who believes, "We don't know what happened to President Kennedy and no one in the government does either.")

Finally, there is this philosophical reason for people to grasp at conspiracy theories: The mind rebels at the thought that so enormous a crime could be committed by so puny a criminal.

Crater Lake in southern Oregon was formed after a 9,900-foot volcano named Mazama erupted and the top of the mountain collapsed some 7,000 years ago, leaving a caldera about 6 miles across and half a mile deep, which filled with rain water.

Early Test Prevents Hepatitis From Becoming Mom's Legacy

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for informing the public about hepatitis B by printing the excellent letter from Thelma King Thiel, president of the American Liver Foundation. I would like to add three points about this disease and the national recommendations for its prevention.

First, as a family physician, I want the public to know that in addition to the American Academy of Pediatrics and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the American Academy of Family Physicians also recommends the routine vaccination of all infants against hepatitis B.

Second, all pregnant women should be tested for hepatitis B during pregnancy to make sure they are not silent carriers of this disease. If undetected, hepatitis B can be passed to their infants, and may cause liver failure or liver cancer. The testing of all pregnant women has been a national recommendation since 1988.

And third, please urge parents to check their babies' shot records to make sure they have been vaccinated against both hepatitis B and Haemophilus influenza B. These vaccines are both recommended for all infants. Although their names are similar, the vaccines are different.

DEBORAH L. WEXLER, M.D.,
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR,
HEPATITIS B COALITION

DEAR DR. WEXLER: Thank you for a valuable letter. Readers who want more information on hepatitis B should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Hepatitis B Coalition, 417 University Avenue West, St. Paul, Minn. 55103.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor of mine who is also a good friend had a two-pack-a-day cigarette habit. She promised her husband she wouldn't smoke anymore, so she started chewing tobacco as a substitute.

Abby, it's bad enough to see a tobacco-chewing man looking for someplace to spit, but seeing a woman do it is really disgusting.

She claims a lot of women chew, but few people know about it. I have told her it looks terrible to have tobacco juice gathering in the corners of her mouth, but the poor soul has the habit so bad, she can't quit.

Will you please ask your readers to pray for her?

MOLLY MAE

DEAR MOLLY MAE: An entire nation could pray for her, but the Lord needs her cooperation. An addiction (and chewing tobacco is an addiction) is an "undo-it-yourself" project.

The American Cancer Society offers Fresh Start classes nationwide that include chewing tobacco addiction, as well as a self-help guide for those who prefer to quit on their own (or with a friend). Your neighbor can obtain information on a Fresh Start class nearest her, or a copy of the self-help guide, by calling the society's national, toll-free number at (800) ACS-2345.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more name story?

I was watching television with my family some years ago, when my 13-year-old daughter asked me during a commercial, "Mom, is Betty Crocker married?"

Before I could answer, my 7-year-old son piped up, "Of course."

Indignantly, my daughter challenged her brother with, "Who is she married to?"

Without hesitation, my son very seriously replied, "To General Mills, of course."

Hope you enjoy this — we usually agree on everything, Abby.

MURIEL MUNRO,
GLENDALE, ARIZ.

Bryant's has served Snyder for 15 years

Bryant's Carpet Cleaning has served Snyder for 15 years. They have used or seen every type of carpet cleaning. Even though they could use a cheaper method, they prefer steam extraction. This method extracts the dirt and stains, whereas other methods leave the dirt in the carpet. For a clean and safe carpet, steam extraction is by far the best method.

Some methods leave the carpet wet, but they leave it only damp, so it will dry in only a few hours. This is because they have the latest truck mount unit with more power than smaller units. The unit stays in the van and only the cleaning head goes into the house, eliminating spills in the home.

Most carpets need to be cleaned within a year, depending on the traffic. Not only can they be dirty, but after walking on the carpet awhile the carpet protector is worn off. They can clean the carpet and replace the carpet protector, which is similar to Scotch Gard.

In some cases, they can clean the carpet as inexpensively as you can rent a machine. Many times when people try to do it themselves and the carpet won't come clean, they keep adding detergent to the machine. This results in the carpet becoming too wet. Also, the detergent leaves the residue in the carpet and the carpet seems to get dirty quicker. Bryant's doesn't leave a residue in the carpet because they prespray with cleaners and when they go over the carpet with the cleaning head they use only soft hot water.

BRYANT'S CARPET CLEANING — serving Snyder 15 years, helps to insure that the investment you have in your carpet is maintained. (SDN Staff Photo)

Carpets should be cleaned regularly if anyone in your home has allergies and also if you are moving into a different home.

For those who want to save money and not go to the trouble of moving furniture Bryant's can go around the furniture for as little as $10-$20 a room.

Carpets are a big investment and the wise person will maintain them. So, trust your carpet, to the professionals. They have cleaned thousands of carpets and can furnish recommendations.

For clean and disease free carpets, call Jack at 573-2480 or Gary at 573-3930. Your satisfaction is guaranteed.
