Two Strong States Give Smith 84 Votes

State Conventions in Illinois and Iowa Strengthen Position of Democratic Candidate

CHICAGO, April 20. (UP)—Although not entirely unexpected two strong states of the middlewest—Illinois and Iowa—swung solid support to the Democratic presidential candidacy of Governor Al Smith of New York in state conventions today.

The combined strength of these two states added 84 votes for Smith at the Houston convention in June.

The Illinois convention at Springfield was in complete harmony and Smith was the unanimous choice of the 58 delegates to the national conclave.

The Des Moines convention, however, met slight opposition from the county delegates who supported E. T. Meredith's "favorite son" candidacy but the day ended with the delegates adopting the unit rule, and solid support for Smith. A lively demonstration through the convention hall with the bands playing "The Sidewalks of New York," closed the meeting.

A huge picture of Smith was carried at the head of the parade and brought forth a spontaneous burst of cheers, although a few hisses could be heard beneath the demonstration of approval.

Illinois Republicans also gathered at Springfield today with the result that supporters of former Governor Frank O. Lowden claimed he would have approximately 60 of the state's 61 votes in the national convention for the presidential nomination.

The lone delegate who is expected to refuse to "go along" with the Illinois delegation is Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago. Neither Thompson nor his political ally, Governor Small, attended the convention today and aside from a few outburst of catcalls and boos, the convention was peaceful.

Resolutions adopted by the Iowa Democratic convention voiced hearty endorsement of Smith, and denounced "a southern senator" who charged the New York governor with "pouring money into the Iowa campaign." The convention voted to leave the adoption of a platform to the national convention.

Judge Henry Horner of Chicago delivered the keynote address at the Illinois Democratic gathering, scoring the "Republican bosses" for existence of "corruption and crime in Illinois" and predicting victory for Smith in the national ticket and Floyd E. Thompson for governor.

Coolidge Orders Name Omitted in Primary Ballots

WASHINGTON, April 20. (US)—President Coolidge further eliminated himself from the presidential race tonight by urging the people of Massachusetts not to write his name as their preference upon the ballot in the presidential primaries to be held on Tuesday.

Such an act by them would be embarrassing to him, he said in a letter to Chairman Francis Prescott, of the Republican state committee. The president said he also understood that some persons in New York were likewise using his name as a presidential candidate without his consent.

LAST OF GRAY GENERALS DIES

Gen. Felix H. Robertson Is Dead at Waco

WACO, Texas, April 20. (AP)—General Felix H. Robertson, last of the Confederate generals, died here today. General Robertson, who was 88 years old, had been in failing health for more than a year.

The body of the distinguished veteran will lie in state at a funeral parlor here until 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning, when it will be removed to the Catholic Church of the Assumption where the funeral services will be conducted by Rev. J. B. O'Leary.

General Robertson was planning to attend the Confederate reunion at Little Rock, Ark., in May, if his health permitted. He was guest of honor at the reunion last year in Florida.

Surviving him are his widow, who was Miss Lizzie Dwyer of Brenham before her marriage to the general in 1892, and four children: Judge Felix D. Robertson of Dallas, Jerome Robertson of Chicago, Mrs. Julia Chetavant of San Antonio, Mrs. Sallie Smith of North Manchester, Ind.

As a reminder of the lost cause to which he gave five vigorous years of his youth, General Robertson bore with him to his death a deep wound on one arm, resulting from an engagement with Union soldiers in 1863. He was removed from the battlefield and underwent an operation to have the bullet taken out, and the arm was saved. Resigning from the United States army while he was a senior in West Point because open hostility had broken out between the north and his home, the South, young Robertson returned south and was given a captaincy in the Confederate ranks. He had given up his place at West Point under vigorous protest of his superior officers, who assured him that his skill and daring promised a brilliant military career.

The young soldier participated in the shelling of Fort Sumter, and was a parade marshal when President Jefferson Davis was inaugurated. He participated in the Kentucky raids as well as in the battles of Shiloh, Chattanooga, Murfreesboro, Fort Dickens and other major engagements.

BAN ON PEST EXTENDED IN WEST TEXAS

Texas Situation Described As Most Serious In History

QUARANTINE SUCCESS

Only Effective Method Known Being Used In State

WASHINGTON, April 20. (UP)—The agriculture department today ordered extension of the pink boll worm quarantine to nine more Texas counties and parts of two others, effective April 25.

With announcement of the quarantine, the department ruled that all cotton lint from counties affected must hereafter be fumigated and compressed before shipment across the state border. Movement of all seed cotton from the quarantined area to points outside the state is prohibited in the order.

Situation Serious

The area affected includes that part of west central Texas involved in the new and serious outbreak of the pink boll worm recently announced by the agriculture department. Counties included in this district are Winkler, Andrews, Ector, Crane, Upton, Midland, Martin, Dawson and Glasscock. The southwest quarter of Borden county and all of Howard county except the northeast corner are also affected.

The Texas situation is described by the agriculture department as the most threatening outbreak of the pink boll worm since its introduction into this country more than 10 years ago.

"The fact that this new outbreak brings the insect into connection with the unbroken cotton belt is the menacing situation, and unless drastic measures can be promptly undertaken to eradicate the pest in this area, its natural spread will carry it rapidly throughout the cotton belt," the department said.

Successful Method

The department warned that establishment of a non-cotton zone in the area for one or two years is the only known method of effecting eradication of the pink boll worm.

This method, it was said, has a long record of successes in previous campaigns against similar outbreaks of the pest. In order to enforce such a plan of eradication, an effort is now being made to get federal support in co-operation with the state of Texas.

The state of Texas has also issued regulations governing intrastate movement of cotton shipments similar to those ordered by the agriculture department.

Archer County Woman Fills Blank Page in Texas History

John Llewellyn Helped Capture Gen. Santa Anna 92 Years Ago

Reminiscenses of an Archer county woman on the eve of the 92nd anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto have revealed what is believed to be an isolated fragment of Texas history, as if it were preordained that the story should be made public on the day when all Texas celebrates the winning of her independence.

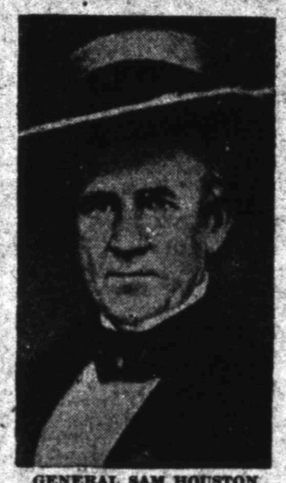

The story as told by this woman—Mrs. Alfred Llewellyn of Archer City—obliterates a blank left by historians who these many years have made efforts to supply a complete list of the six unknowning soldiers who captured a Mexican vagabond after the battle of San Jacinto, and later discovered they had been marching with General Santa Anna, president of the Republic of Mexico.

Sixth Member

History furnishes the names of but five of the men: Second Sergeant James A. Sylvester, and Privates Joel W. Robison, Edward Miles, Joseph Vermillion, and a man named Thompson. Mrs. Llewellyn, repeating a tale told by her late husband, Judge Alfred Llewellyn, states that the sixth member of the party was John Llewellyn, father of her husband.

"My husband has often told me the story of his father's adventures in the Texan war," Mrs. Llewellyn said, "and each time he was regretful that no mention had been made of his part in the capture of Santa Anna. He was confident that his father was with the party that discovered Santa Anna hidden in the tall grass.

"He said that John Llewellyn and his companions were scouting in the vicinity of the battlefields the day after the conflict when they saw a Mexican making an effort to hide himself in some underbrush. They commanded him to come from his hiding. It was not until they brought their prisoner to General Houston's camp that they discovered it was Santa Anna. And then the discovery was made by the murmurs and shouts of other Mexican prisoners who recognized their leader."

GENERAL SAM HOUSTON

History, in fact, refutes the story that several men actually discovered the foriorn general. It is related that one of the group, James A. Sylvester, discovered the fugitive, and that his companions joined him in taking the prisoner back to the camp of the victorious Texans.

Under Lamar

The claim that John Llewellyn was a member of the capturing party, however, is well substantiated. Llewellyn, the late judge said, was a cavalryman in the war. According to a history of the capture by John Henry Brown, early Texas historian, Santa Anna was brought to General Houston "by a group of six men, all cavalrymen." And in the list of participants in the battle furnished by Brown is to be found the name "John Lewellan." He is listed as a private in Company I, volunteer cavalry, under the command of Col. Mirabeau B. Lamar, the then future president of Texas. The father of the Archer county pioneer was probably among the pursuing cavalry who followed up the decisive routing of the Mexican army, and probably was in the group which captured Santa Anna.

John Llewellyn, although from a foreign state, came as a young man to Texas to join in the fight for freedom. After the conflict he returned to his home in Virginia. The call of Texas was strong, however,

HAYS NAMED IN NEW SCANDAL

Senate Bares Loans By Sinclair

WASHINGTON, April 20. (UP)—Startling new disclosures were made today by Chairman Nye of the senate Teapot Dome committee just as the Teapot Dome conspiracy case of Harry F. Sinclair was to be placed in the hands of the jury.

Nye said he has received information to the effect that:

1. Will Hays, former chairman of the republican national committee, received a personal loan of $100,000 in Liberty bonds from Harry F. Sinclair in addition to the donation for the republican party deficit hitherto made public.

2. Robert W. Stewart, head of the Standard Oil of Indiana, apparently received between $750,000 and $800,000 in Liberty bonds believed to have come out of the profits of the Continental Trading company.

Stewart denied before the committee that he profited one cent out of the Continental deal but he is facing court proceedings for refusing to tell the committee what he knows further about the affair.

At the very hour this news was being given out at the capitol, the closing arguments were being made in the Sinclair conspiracy case at the courthouse, four blocks away. The final arguments were completed shortly before 5 p. m. and court adjourned until Saturday when Justice Bailey will instruct the jury and turn the case over to it.

MOORES SEEKS HIS FREEDOM

Habeas Corpus Proceedings To Be Filed

Freedom of J. W. Moores, Beaumont youth charged with murder in connection with the shooting to death on April 13 of Theodore Zimmerman, will be sought in a habeas corpus hearing in 30th district court, Judge E. G. Thornton presiding, by Ralph Mathis, attorney for Moores, it was learned Friday.

Following a preliminary hearing before R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, Friday morning, Moores' bond was set at $5,000. The accused youth's freedom will be sought on the grounds that the state has not enough evidence to hold him, Mr. Mathis said.

In event of Moores' release from the charges is not obtained, his attorney intends to seek a reduction in the bond, it was stated.

Shoes Not Found

Members of the sheriff's office, busy Friday in an effort to locate further evidence in the case, were unsuccessful in attempts to find the shoes Moores was wearing the night of the slaying. No further evidence, Sheriff W. G. Bralley declared, had been uncovered.

EXPLOSIVE IN SMALL HOUSE SHATTERS BOY

Charles Hatten, 16, Victim Of Blast Near His Residence

BLAST AT DENVER

Eight Die as Airplane Plant Burns After Explosion

EASTLAND, Texas, April 20. (UP)—Charles Hatten, 16, was blown to pieces near here today when dynamite stored in a small building near his home exploded.

The dynamite had been left in the building several years ago by road construction men.

Hatten had left home early in the afternoon to go hunting. It was believed probably that the youth fired his shotgun in the direction of the small building causing the dynamite to explode.

Pieces of the building was blown high in the air and the explosion shattered windows in homes here and was heard by farmers 10 miles away.

Two infants, children of L. Y. Morris, who lives a quarter of a mile from the scene of the explosion, were injured by the blast. They were not believed to be in a critical condition.

EIGHT KILLED IN DENVER BLAST

DENVER, Colo., April 20. (UP)—The wing plant of the Alexander Aircraft company was destroyed today by an explosion and fire which, coming without warning, spread death and suffering among 30 men and women at work there. At least eight persons were killed.

Four bodies were recovered from the razed structure. A fifth fatality occurred at 4 p. m. when Rose Owen Scott, 32, died at the Denver general hospital. Carl Moosley, 21, died in Presbyterian hospital at 4:30 p. m.

Women Killed

Two of the bodies recovered were those of Mrs. Effie Harkins, mother of two children, and Miss Ella Taylor. Bodies of two women had not been identified.

Fifteen injured were at hospitals.

Robert Holmes, 21, and Jack Nordstrum died tonight from burns suffered in the blast, bringing the death toll to eight.

The blast originated in a chemical used in treating wings of the Eaglerock planes manufactured by the Alexander company.

The explosion was of such force that all of Englewood, the suburb in which the plant was located, was rocked as if by an earthquake.

Fire spread quickly through the inflammable materials in the shop. The clothes of the employes caught fire and many of those who escaped and tottered from the structure, were ablaze from head to foot.

Bert Williams, groping blindly through the plant after the first thunderous roar of the explosion, grasped by chance three screaming girls and led them to safety. It was one of the most dramatic episodes in the rescue work.

Jury Starts Probe

Williams had just left the building. He said later that the concussion nearly knocked him down.

As soon as the injured had been cared for a coroner's jury began an investigation. Ross Scott, the most seriously burned, was questioned by Earl J. Hower, deputy district attorney of Arapahoe county, and Robert Bartlett, investigators. Before he died, Scott was able to tell something of what had happened within the flaming plant.

TELEGRAM TO MOODY SPIKED

Johnson Frowns On Quiz By Demos Here

Intentions of certain of the "constitutional" democrats to demand of Governor Moody a definite statement as to his stand on the matter of the nomination of Governor Al Smith were spiked by Cone Johnson Thursday night, it became known Friday.

A long telegram to Governor Moody, asking him for a defination of the plans of the "harmony" movement and intimating that this movement was for the purpose of favoring Al Smith's nomination, frowned upon Mr. Johnson, was consigned to the waste basket, unsent.

In the proposed telegram Governor Moody was asked:

"What is the intention of your movement, if not to further the interests of Al Smith? In voting for your program, how shall a dry democrat avoid favoring Al Smith for president? If a majority of the delegation is for Al Smith and bound by the unit rule, how shall you prevent these delegates counting your vote for Governor Smith? If you are in favor of Al Smith for president why do you not openly declare for him?

The questionnaire was to have been signed, "the democracy of Wichita county."

WICHITAN DENIES CONE URGED BREAKING PLEDGE

Attention of The Record News to the following paragraph of a report, in Friday morning's issue, Cone Johnson address at the court house Thursday evening was called by E. Van Deventer, who was present at the meeting and heard the address:

"In conclusion the speaker urged his hearers to go to their precinct conventions and take part in the selection of delegates, signing the pledge but disregarding it in the event Smith were nominated."

Mr. Johnson, Mr. Van Deventer said, made no such statement. Although Mr. Van Deventer did not recall the exact phrases used by Mr. Johnson, he believed the "constitutional" speaker referred to the pledge as "absurd and illegal."

"My present intentions," Mr. Johnson is quoted as saying, "are to abide by the decision of the delegates to the national democratic convention at Houston."

"Mr. Johnson," Mr. Van Deventer declared, "did assail the proposed pledge as an unheard-of outrage on the people of Texas. Mr. Johnson did not say what action his hearers should take in regard to the pledge in the event of Mr. Smith's nomination."

The Moon Dancers, Laura Mae Costley, Dorothy Lee Taylor and Ona Bell Britton, and the Moon chorus were the outstanding features of the show. The lighting effect in the latter scene was of singular beauty, showing the Moon Lady in a silver moon, illuminated by blue flood lights and a silver spotlight.

The play proper, which is full of mystery, was presented most excellently by a talented cast. Mildred Bulkeley, Hulda Maude Cole, Mary Hyatt, Don Bright, Nell Reed, Truxton Fox and Frederick Sehmann contributed to the success of the presentation and were the outstanding characters.

The operetta was directed by Hermoine Stewart Vaughn, the proceeds of which go for the payment of the school stage scenery. Approximately 500 tickets were sold.

A matinee will be presented Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Archer Woman Recounts Early Events

and in 1879 he returned with his family and settled at Galveston.

His youngest son, Alfred Llewellyn, on reaching manhood, settled in Cherokee county. At the outbreak of the civil war he joined Company G, first Texas regiment of Hood's brigade, and served throughout the rebellion with J. T. Woodhouse, pioneer who still lives in Wichita Falls, as his buddy. The fighting heritage from his father carried Alfred Llewellyn through many of the most important battles of the war. At the time of his death last year, he and Mr. Woodhouse were the only survivors of their company.

Santa Anna Caught

Returning to Texas after the war, Mr. Llewellyn became active in civic life, and was the first county judge of Archer county. Mr. Woodhouse, who "swapped yarns" through the years with the pioneer judge, also vouches for the latter's sincerity in his stories concerning John Llewellyn's part in the capture of the Mexican leader.

The capture of Santa Anna occurred on April 22. Escorted by his captors to the side of the wounded Texan commander, he said: "I wish to be treated as a general should be when a prisoner of war." He was, Amiable Houston, practical joker as well as fighter, greeted the captive: "Happy to see you, general; take a seat, take a seat!" And he pointed to a nearby box.

But Santa Anna's capture, although an incident of tremendous importance to the Texan government, is only a fragment of that week's happenings that thrills the minds and hearts of Texans today. What they remember every day, as well as on San Jacinto day, is the fact that in 18 minutes—just time enough to step to the corner and get a cup of coffee—a small force of about 800 poorly armed Texans met and defeated Santa Anna's horde of 1500 well trained troops on the banks of the San Jacinto on the 21st day of April.

About 9 o'clock on the morning of that eventful day General Sam Houston's force, numbering 783 men, paraded "with alacrity and spirit," before their commander—knowing that they were soon to face Santa Anna's organized army of something over 1500 men. The day before they had planted their flag on the banks of the San Jacinto river after a brief skirmish with some of the Mexican advance troops.

Houston Wades In

Houston had reached this point after forced marches of several days, designed to place his troops in a favorable position for a final encounter with the enemy. He did not know that Santa Anna himself was in command of the army of Mexicans which soon after the fall of Alamo and the Goliad butchery had set out to reinforce Mexico's stronghold on a ostensibly conquered state. Apprised of this information by Deaf Smith, who had intercepted a Mexican courier, Houston sent the Texan scout to destroy the bridge over Vince's crossing of the Brazos, gave his troops a final speech, and waded in to the conflict.

The actual battle began shortly after the parade of the Texan troops, and in about 18 minutes, according to General Houston's report, the Texan soldiers, crying "Remember the Alamo, Remember Goliad," had charged the breastworks of the Mexican army, using their rifles as clubs when ammunition failed, and had routed the mainstay of the opposing army. The calvary under Col. Mirabeau B. Lamar, took into hot pursuit of the fleeing Mexicans. A veritable rout had ensued among the Mexicans, which lasted until about nightfall.

General Houston reported a total loss of two killed, 23 wounded, six mortally. The enemy's loss was 630 killed, 208 wounded, and 730 captured, including President-General Santa Anna and many commanding officers.

Three Alumni To Observe Day

according to W. B. Hamilton. "For many years before becoming president of the university, Dr. Benedict was a dean at the school," Mr. Hamilton said. "He is beloved by all Texas Exes and we invite all who are in Wichita Falls or able to be here for our celebration to hear him talk."

The Texas Exes celebration will be near the south end of Weeks park at 4 o'clock. A big barbecue has been arranged with buffalo beef, lamb and pork all ready for the celebrators. Mr. Hamilton said Friday night that signs will guide the way from the clubhouse at Weeks park to the location of the Texas Exes picnic. In case of inclement weather, this celebration will be moved to the basement of the municipal auditorium.

Contests between representatives of the different schools of the university will be one of the features. A prize will be awarded to the largest family of a Texas Ex, and a complete program of entertainment will greet the merrymakers.

Texas A. & M. alumni will gather about the little knoll in the south end of Weeks park as has been their custom in years past, to hear their speaker.

Officers will be elected at the A. & M. meeting, as it is the annual meeting as well as the annual picnic. The married folks will provide the luncheon and the single alumni will help eat it and provide the entertainment.

necessary, to keep the youth in custody.

Among witnesses used by the state in the preliminary hearing Friday were:

T. H. Boggan, employe of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad company, who testified to finding a cap at Fifth street and Adams avenue Friday night after Mr. Zimmerman had been shot.

Raymond Smith, taxicab driver, who testified that on Saturday morning he was called to the 400 block on Brook avenue and there picked up the defendant. Moores at this time, Smith testified, was shoeless and hatless. Upon examination Smith said that he did not see any blood stains on Moores' clothes.

Joe Moores, father of the defendant, employed by an oil company in Beaumont, who testified that he had never seen the cap found by Mr. Boggan and that it was not the cap of his son.

Following introduction of the testimony of Mr. Boggan regarding finding of the cap, Ben Alfred, district attorney, taking the stand, declared that the cap found was "a perfect fit" on the defendant.

Twelve Agricultural Clubs Formed By Hall County Boys and Girls

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, April 20.—Boys' and girls' 4-H agricultural club work is gaining momentum in Hall county, as shown by the record of County Agent L. M. Thompson. There are now twelve organized clubs in the county with a membership of 316.

Members of the clubs are taking great interest in their work, regular meetings being held at the different schools, all reports showing that the club projects are well under way. Club members are raising poultry, baby beeves, cotton, milo maize, peanuts, higaria, pigs, dairy calves, sheep, gardens, melons and other farm crops.

In connection with the regular club work, the Pleasant Valley club, together with the Hulver and Elite clubs are planning programs for community entertainments to build up interest in the respective communities. A number of the young people are developing into real leaders of rural life.

The Pleasant Valley club held its first community program Thursday night, April 19. In connection with the program, an auction pie sale was held to secure money to send one of the club members to the annual farmers' short course to be held at the A. & M. college of Texas in July. The Hulver club will give a similar program on May 7 for the purpose of raising finances.

The club program for boys and girls seeks to give them a practical knowledge of the problems that must be faced by farmers, teaching them the fundamental principles of agriculture, the care of livestock, and pointing out the necessity of improving rural homes and farm communities in general to raise the standard of farm living.

Special to The Record News.

COLEMAN, April 20.—Drilling one foot deeper into the sand at 2074 feet in the Roth & Raurot No. 2 W. J. The shot long awaited in the No. 2 Sealy & Smith test two miles north of Valera was set off Wednesday afternoon by Roth & Faurot in the deep sand at 2916-37 feet, but the gusher production anticipated by many failed to materialize; however the hole likely bridged over and the well is expected to open a new oil pool in that section when finally completed.

Political Pot Shots

by Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald

THOMAS SHOULDN'T KICK

Elmer Thomas is United States senator from Oklahoma. He is said to be peeved because he was not made a delegate-at-large to the Houston convention. Elmer Thomas was born in Indiana. In his youth he tarried a while and studied law in a town not far from the city that faith built. Then he moved to Oklahoma, won a seat in the lower house of congress and later became a United States senator. Oklahoma will have 20 delegates to the Houston convention. These delegates are bound by the unit rule. According to the Dallas News' Oklahoma City correspondent, Smith has 11 of the 20, and others go so far as to claim that he will have 16 of the total. Governor Johnston asked that his confidential woman secretary be sent as a delegate. She lost. Why should Thomas grumble He is a senator.

OVERLOOKED

Former Governor Pat Morris Neff led the fight for an uninstructed delegation four years ago. He declared against McAdoo and Smith. He was for a delegation uninstructed as to choice of presidential candidates and instructed as to principle. He was denied a place on the delegation by the Love-Hicks-Marvin combination unless he pledged himself to vote for a certain candidate for governor in the run-off primary to come. He told the boss and the little bosses to get themselves to Hades, that he was free born and not a pawn or a puppet. He did not go as a delegate. Michael T. Lively of Dallas, for years and years an outstanding wet in the politics of Dallas and Texas, was sent as a delegate-at-large instead of the governor of the commonwealth. Lively was made vice chairman of the delegation. And he cracked a stinging whip whenever the opportunity afforded. If he has come a dry the political writers have never made mention of the fact.

UP IN THE AIR

Dallas is the home county of Boss Love. Murrell L. Buckner is the chairman of the county executive committee. Buckner was prominent at the Waco convention four years ago, and the Love-Marvin combination conceded to him an alternate delegate-at-large. Chairman Buckner was the first to repudiate the test of Democracy fixed by Chairman Wilcox and his state committee. Then the Buckner committee held a session in Dallas and despite the protest of the regulars, repudiated the Wilcox test and declared that it was an insult to the Democrats of Texas. George C. Purl played a small hand at Waco four years ago. He was of and for the Love-Marvin combination. He attended the meeting of the Wilcox state committee held in the city of Austin. He held the proxy of Jack Thornton of Dallas, who was another Love-Marvin hand-picked delegate to the Madison Square garden convention. Jack is the bitter political enemy of Governor Moody. Purl submitted 30 or 40 resolutions embracing the gospel of a hog-tied Democracy controlled by what is known as the "Dallas Gang." They were voted down. Having repudiated the test, the Murrell Buckner committee is up in the air, now that Love and his lieutenants have changed base for the time being at least.

One-Minute Sermon

And they came to a place which was named Gethsemane: and he saith to his disciples, Sit ye here, while I shall pray.

And he taketh with him Peter and James and John and began to be sore amazed, and to be very heavy;

And saith unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death; tarry ye here, and watch.—St. Mark, xiv, 32-34.

Fess Sounds the Keynote

NATIONAL CHAIRMAN WILLIAM M. BUTLER of the Republican executive committee sent the national convention of his party to Kansas City. He had no vote but his voice was all powerful. He commanded and the committeemen obeyed.

Now Chairman Butler has picked Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention and the Buckeye statesman will deliver the key note speech at the party gathering there in June.

Senator Fess is a strong Coolidge partisan. He is on the Willis ticket in Ohio for delegate-at-large. Willis is dead. Fess is in the running. All the Willis delegates named by that statesman before he passed away are in the running. All the Willis leaders of the party in Ohio are going to carry on.

They are against Hoover. They hope to send an anti-Hoover delegation to the Kansas City convention. A Buckeye will be the temporary chairman. His key note speech will not be a heart rending appeal for the nomination of Hoover.

Senator Fess is a practical politician. He is a regular. He is the personal friend and advisor of Calvin Coolidge. He will stand with the old guard leaders and he will battle as one of the old guard leaders for control of the convention. It is Hoover against the field.

It is Smith against the feld. Never overlook the fact that a majority vote will name the winner who will be the Republican standard bearer and it will require a two-thirds vote to name the Democratic standard bearer unless the two-thirds nominating rule is discarded by the Democratic delegates.

Copper Kings Have Eyes Their On Texas

IT is known the wide world over that the Phelps Dodge corporation controls the copper mines of Northern Mexico, Arizona and other Rocky mountain states. Officials of this gigantic corporation visited the city of El Paso. It is a long call from Arizona to Gulf of Mexico tide waters.

Copper kings know their business. They are going to build a $5,000,000 copper refinery to employ 750 men. They are going to pick a site. They have their eyes on Houston and El Paso, two ambitious Texas cities. New Orleans has been in the range of their vision and Los Angeles a remote possibility.

Houston builders are going to invest another million dollars in their deep water chanenl to the Gulf. A big copper refinery may be captured by the Bayou city. Speaking of bond issues for public improvements, Houston was given its great start by the building of the deep water channel to the gulf and the great industries which followed in the wake.

Bond issues for public improvements made the deep water channel possible. Bond issues for public improvements made Houston one of the great cotton shipping points of the United States.

Jimmy Gallivan Dead

CONGRESSMAN JAMES GALLIVAN of Boston is dead. He had been a congressman 12 years. He had been a state senator and a representative in Massachusetts for years before his people sent him to Washington.

He was a Harvard man, and represented, without opposition, one of the city districts of the chief metropolis of New England.

Texans who attended national conventions in recent years will recall Jimmy Gallivan. He had a vitriolic tongue, a rare personality, magnetism of the kind that made friends, and those who were closest to him said that his bark was worse than his bite.

A straight shooter was Jimmy Gallivan. Newspaper writers always knew where to find him. He never resorted to falsehood or subterfuge. There was no trace of hypocrisy in his makeup. He had his convictions, he had his code and he ever ran true to form.

EXCELLENT GOLF COURSE IN SOME RESPECTS

We notice that several of the more enterprising inhabitants of our city have laid out a golf course in the north part of town. As we understand it, the only requirements for membership in this club is the ownership of at least one club and a ball. Being conveniently situated close in it no doubt conserves time which would otherwise be lost traveling to and from the course. While the fairways are not so fair as some, the roughs are about the best.

INCONVENIENCE OF FALSE TEETH

And those good eats over at the White House remind me of how inconvenient false teeth are. When you get 'em they are too tight and you can't eat, and just about the time you get to where you can eat they are too loose and you have to get a new set. The blamed things just don't act like the original and I'd rather lose most anything else than teeth if I had the losing to do over and I sometimes wish I did and could make a choice of the matter.

—M. B. in the Jackson County (Okla.) Chronicle.

WHAT WE NEED IS A PARTY FOR EVERY VOTER

Former Senator Bailey is heading one group who will fight for a party pledge that is binding. Dan Moody, T. W. Davidson and Lynch Davidson along with those who hold views in harmony with these men will stand for an uninstructed delegation as to the party nominee, but for an instructed delegation as to principles. Tom Love and his followers will stage a campaign for the election of an instructed delegation against Al Smith, Jim Reed and Governor Ritchie or any other wet. Other groups are to be heard from.

—Goree (Texas) Advocate.

ANOTHER OFFER FROM MR. WENTZ.

Considerable discussion has been engaged in recently in regard to the obnoxious toll bridges marring the travel in this state and George D. Key, owner of the Bridgeport bridge on highway 66 has come in for considerable panning due to the fact that he is Democratic state chairman and close to the administration. Lew H. Wentz, Ponca City oil man and Republican, Friday offered to loan the state of Oklahoma money to buy the toll bridge of Key's and also the bridge across the South Canadian at Purcell. Wentz' offer is just another of his long list of public spirited acts such as his loaning a million dollars for the relief of distressed cotton growers in 1926 and his intense interest in the crippled children of the state.

A Plea

Deliver me from the commonplace—
From the ghastly routine of life;
Give me the world of brawny men,
Men of sweat, of toil and of strife!

Yes, I can see the beauty of spring;
I can see the wonders of fall—
But I'd rather be in a snip at sea
In the midst of a tropical squall
Than to be in the shade of a big oak tree,
Hearing the mockingbird's call!

Give me the thrill and the icy chill
Of a fall, in a fast aeroplane.
Or let me ride on the skyward side
Of a speeding limited train!

You take your rest on the padded breast
Of a soft, warm fireside chair,
But let me serve with the men of nerve,
With the men who will dare to dare!

Potato Fluff

Peel and boil as many Irish potatoes as desired. When thoroughly done, mash and season with a little salt. Add enough thick cream to make a stiff batter and beat vigorously for several minutes. Heap into a flat baking dish, sprinkle with Melba toast crumbs and place in a hot oven until lightly browned. Serve while hot in the dish in which it has baked. Sweet potatoes may be prepared in the same manner, except that they should be boiled in their skins. If they are thrown into cold water when done, the peeling can be easily slipped off. Mash and beat as directed for Irish potatoes. Do not add the salt, but be careful to remove all stringy fibre.

I receive hundreds of letters daily from readers asking me to give them the basic few rules of proper food combinations. I have therefore prepared a special brief article on this subject. You can obtain this by writing to me care of this newspaper. Ask for my article called "Food Combinations."

Questions and Answers

Question: Alice M. writes, "I am getting an ingrown toenail. Will you please tell me how to prevent its getting any worse?"

Answer: Any chiropodist can treat your toe nail and show you how to make it grow into normal shape. One method of treatment is to shave the nail in the center so the edges will be encouraged to grow toward the center, making the nail more narrow. Ask your chiropodist to show you how to use this method of treatment.

Question: Cook asks, "What are the best types of chickens for table use?"

Answer: The best types are the Brahma, Cochin, Langshan, Dorking, Orpington, Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Rhode Island Red and Houdan. Thick scales on the legs, thin necks and dark colored thighs are signs of toughness in chickens. A good table bird should have a large full breast and, at other points, also a large proportion of meat to the size of the bone. Chickens should be starved for at least 24 hours before killing. Those killed with partially full crops should be avoided, as the disintegration of the grain quickly discolors the flesh. They are more tender if held for two or three days before cooking.

Question: Mrs. J. E. writes, "One of our boys frequently has pimples on his ears, and the last few days he has had a lot of small pimples on the inside of his mouth. I bathe them with boracic solution, but wondered if you could tell me the cause and cure. He seems in excellent health. He is very fond of eggnogs and has had one every day for years."

Answer: Such unwholesome mixtures as eggnogs would be just the thing to cause pimples on your boy's skin or even inside his mouth. Raw eggs and milk should never be used together, but may be used cooked in the form of custard.

FLATIRON BUILDING

NEW YORK, April 20.—It now is Babbitt's turn to guffaw. In Greenwich Village, where, at the devotional hour, they used to prostrate themselves in the direction of Baltimore and chant, "There is no god but Mencken," there now is a booster club! The Greenwich Village association meets weekly for luncheon, just like the Rotarians the villagers used to make fun of, and discuss ways and means of reviving the lost popularity of village resorts with out-of-town chumps, flappers and their boy friends.

Lean times have fallen upon the fantastically named tearooms in stables and cellars. Long ago the painters and writers who used to inhabit the section and caused it to get a reputation as a Latin quarter, moved out because of high rents and the invasion of scatter-brained boys and yearning girls from the hinterland. For a couple of years there was nothing to see but sightseers. Then even the boobolsie that the villager used to love to scorn and now prays to regain the interest of, stopped going down there.

Best-sellers in New York: "Wintersmoon," novel by Hugh Walpole; "Strange Interlude," play by Eugene O'Neill, both in book form and on the stage; "Show Boat" and "Three Musketeers," musical comedies, and "Paris Bound" and "The Bachelor Father," plays; "The Trail of '98" and "Four Sons," motion pictures; "Together," "Lenora," "My Ohio Home," "There Must Be a Silver Lining," "Rain," "The Man I Love," popular music.

The small town banker of today is the big New York financier of tomorrow. The roster of Wall street is made up of Main Street names. Like the major baseball leagues, large financial institutions scout in smaller towns for talent. The last 30 presidents of the New York Chamber of Commerce, all of them leaders in finance, were from small towns in various parts of the country. Percy H. Johnson, president of the Chemical National, is from Kentucky; Charles Mitchell of the National City bank is from Chelsea, Mass. Charles S. McCain, head of the National Park bank, is a Little Rock, Ark., product. Owen D. Young, financial genius of General Electric, put Hornellsville, N. Y., Mohawk valley village, on the map. These are typical.

For two weeks, next August, the one and only George M. Cohan is going to be a performer on a show boat. He won't get a cent for doing it. He'll be displaying his gratitude for favors shown his father years ago by Billy Bryant, owner of the boat, now on a Pennsylvania river. The boat will also play Cohan's 29 plays, which have made millions, without royalties or restrictions.

George M. Cohan is considered to be the typical Broadwayite. He isn't. He has a heart.

THE STORY THUS FAR

"The people I know don't shut themselves in clothes closets," said the finger-print expert. "You positively amaze me," declared Vance. A few minutes later finger-prints were found on the inside door-knob of the closet in the apartment in which the beautiful Margaret Odell had been found strangled. But the amazing Vance declares the prints will not lead them to the murderer.

CHAPTER VII
(Tuesday, September 11; 10:30 a. m.)

Markham and Heath and Vance and I were now alone in the apartment. Dark, low-hanging clouds had drifted across the sun, and the gray spectral light intensified the tragic atmosphere of the rooms.

Markham had lighted a cigar, and stood leaning against the piano, looking about him with a disconsolate but determined air. Vance had moved over to one of the pictures on the side wall of the living room—Boucher's "La Bergere Endormie," I think it was—and stood looking at it with cynical contempt.

"Dimpled nudities, gamboling cupids and wooly clouds for royal cocottes," he commented. His distaste for all the painting of the French decadence under Louis XV was profound. "One wonders what picture courtesans hung in their boudoirs before the invention of these amorous eclogues, with their blue verdure and beribboned sheep."

"I'm more interested at present in what took place in this particular boudoir last night," retorted Markham impatiently.

"There's not much doubt about that, sir," said Heath encouragingly. "And I've an idea that when Dubois checks up those finger-prints with our files, we'll about know who did it."

Vance turned toward him with a rueful smile.

"You're so trusting, Sergeant. I, in turn, have an idea that, long before this touchin' case is clarified, you'll wish the irascible Captain with the insect powder had never found those finger-prints."

He madea playful gesture of emphasis. "Permit me to whisper into your ear that the person who left his sign-manuals on yonder rosewood table and cut-glass door-knob had nothing whatever to do with the precipitate demise of the fair Mamedmoiselle Odell."

"What is it you suspect?" demanded Markham sharply.

"Not a thing, old dear," blandly declared Vance. "I'm wandering about in a mental murk as empty of sign-posts as interplanetry space. The jaws of darkness do devour me up; I'm in the dead vast and middle of the night. My mental darkness is Egyptian, Stygian, Cimmerian."

Markham's jaw tightened in exasperation; he was familiar with this evasive loquacity of Vance's. Dismissing the subject, he addressed himself to Heath.

"Have you done any questioning of the people in the house here?"

"I talked to Odell's maid and to the janitor and the switchboard operators, but I didn't go much into details—I was waiting for you. I'll say this, though: what they did tell me made by head swim. If they don't back down on some of their statements, we're up against it."

"Let's have them in now, then," suggested Markham. "The maid first." He sat down on the piano bench with his back to the keyboard.

Heath rose, but instead of going to the door, walked to the oriel window.

"There's one thing I want to call your attention these people, and that's the matter of entrances and exits in this apartment." He drew aside the gold-gauze curtain. "Look at that iron grating. All the windows in this place, including the ones in the bathroom, are equipped with iron bars just like these. It's only eight or ten feet to the ground here, and whoever built this house wasn't taking any chances of burglars getting in through the windows."

He released the curtain, and strode into the foyer.

"Now, there's only one entrance to this apartment, and that's this door here opening off the main hall. There isn't a transom or an air-shaft or a dumb-waiter in the place, and that means that the only way—the only way—that anybody can get in or out of this apartment is through this door.

"Just keep that fact in your mind, sir, while you're listening to the stories of these people. . . . Now, I'll have the maid brought in."

In response to Heath's order a detective led in a mulatto woman about 30 years old. She was neatly dressed, and gave one the impression of capability. When she spoke it was with a quiet, clear enunciation which attested to a greater degree of education than is ordinarily found in members of her class.

Her name, we learned, was Amy Gibson; and the information elicited by Markham's preliminary questioning consisted of the following facts:

She had arrived at the apartment that morning a few minutes after seven, and, as was her custom, had let herself in with her own key, as her mistress generally slept till late.

Once or twice a week she came early to do sewing and mending for Miss Odell before the latter arose. On this particular morning she had come early to make an alteration in a gown.

As soon as she opened the door she had been confronted by the disorder of the apartment; for the Venetian-glass doors of the foyer were wide open; and almost simultaneously she had noticed the body of her mistress on the davenport.

She had called at once to Jessup, the night telephone operator then on duty, who, after one glance into the living room, had notified the police. She had then sat down in the public reception room and waited for the arrival of the officers.

Her testimony had been simple and direct and intelligently stated. If she was nervous or excited, she managed to keep her feelings well under control.

"Now," continued Markham, after a short pause, "let us go back to last night. At what time did you leave Miss Odell?"

"A few minutes before seven, sir," the woman answered, in a colorless, even tone which seemed to be characteristic of her speech.

"Is that your usual hour for leaving?"

"No; I generally go about six. But last night Miss Odell wanted me to help her dress for dinner."

"Don't you always help her dress for dinner?"

"No, sir. But last night she was going with some gentleman to dinner and the theater, and wanted to look especially nice."

"Ah!" Markham leaned forward. "And who was this gentleman?"

"I don't know, sir—Miss Odell didn't say."

"And you couldn't suggest who it might have been?"

"I couldn't say, sir."

"And when did Miss Odell tell you that she wanted you to come early this morning?"

"When I was leaving last night."

"So she evidently didn't anticipate any dangeer, or have any fear of the head.

"It doesn't look that way." The woman paused, as if considering. "No, I know she didn't. She was in good spirits."

Markham turned to Heath.

"Any other questions you want to ask, sergeant?"

Heath removed an unlighted cigar from his mouth, and bent forward, resting his hands on his knees.

"What jewelry did this Odell woman have on last night?" he demanded gruffly.

The maid's manner became cool and a bit haughty.

"Miss Odell"—she emphasized the "Miss," by way of reproaching him for the disrespect implied in his omission—"wore all her rings, five or six of them, and three bracelets—one of square diamonds and emeralds. She also had on a sunburst of pear-shaped diamonds on a chain round her neck, and she carried a platinum lorgnette set with diamonds and pearls."

"Did she own any other jewelry?"

"A few small pieces, maybe, but I'm not sure."

"And did she keep 'em in a safe jewel-case in the bedroom?"

"Yes—when she wasn't wearing them." There was more than a suggestion of sarcasm in the reply.

"Oh, I thought maybe she kept 'em locked up when she had 'em on." Heath's antagonism had been aroused by the maid's attitude; he could not have failed to note that she had consistently omitted the punctillious "sir" when answering him.

He now stood up and pointed scoweringly to the black document-box on the rosewood table.

"Ever see that before?"

The woman nodded indifferently. "Many times."

"Where was it generally kept?"

"In that thing." She indicated the Boule cabinet with a motion of the head.

"What was in the box?"

"How should I know?"

"You don't know—huh?" Heath thrust out his jaw, but his bullying attitude had no effect upon the impassive maid.

"I've got no idea," she replied, calmly. "It was always kept locked, and I never saw Miss Odell open it."

The sergeant walked over to the door of the living room closet.

"See that key?" he asked angrily.

Again the woman nodded; but this time I detected a look of mild astonishment in her eyes.

"Was that key always kept on the inside of the door?"

"No; it was always on the outside."

He drew aside the gold-gauze curtains. "Look at that iron grating."

Convention Speaker Draws Comparison

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, April 20.—The significance of the battle of San Jacinto, which won Texas her freedom, was diverted into a new meaning by Oran M. Kelley, Spearman, president of the Panhandle Press association, when in the opening address of the annual meeting here this morning he spurred editors in their fight for freedom.

"The modern editor is not winning his independence from Mexicans," President Kelley declared. "But he is coming out from under the yoke of spending 60 to 75 hours in a little shop fighting a losing proposition getting a newspaper out on time.

"The modern editor, he said, now has adequate equipment which aids him in his work. Through this he has time to visit a bit, to attend press meetings, and gain valuable information which aids him in his work."

Mr. Kelley spoke of the Panhandle Press association as having "kicked off the swaddling clothes, and is now a going concern, the largest regional body of its kind in the United States."

About 80 editors from the Texas panhandle, eastern New Mexico and Southwest Oklahoma are attending the meeting, which closes Saturday. The opening session was held in the new municipal auditorium here. J. C. Thomas, former editor of the Childress Post, made the welcoming address to the editors after the invocation had been offered by Dr. J. T. Griswold, pastor of the Methodist church. Deskin Wells, of Wellington, responded.

Homer Stein, Floydada, V. W. Stewart, and J. C. Wells, Memphis, were named on the committee on resolutions; and C. H. Walker, Dalhart, Sam Braswell, Clarendon, and Olin Hinkle, Pampa, were placed on the auditing committee by the president.

A tea was given delegates in the afternoon, and a banquet ended the day's activities in the evening. Another banquet will be given at noon Saturday at the Presbyterian church, following the business session.

Run-Down, Trembling Nervous, Back Ached

Worried Over Ill Health Till Friend's Advice Proved Helpful. Says Cardui Did Lots of Good.

Charlotte, N. C.—"When I was about twenty-eight years old, I was in a very nervous, run-down condition," says Mrs. Martha L. Vails, of 3030 South Allen Street, this city. "If I stood on my feet any length of time, I would tremble, and my back and limbs would ache. I was very weak, and did not feel like going anywhere. I just sat around the house and worried about how bad I felt.

"A friend came to see me, and I told her how bad I felt. She told me to take some Cardui.

"I took it regularly. I felt enough better after my first bottle to try a second one, and by the time I had taken three bottles, I was feeling fine. I did not have that worn, tired feeling, and I didn't mind doing my work.

"I took five bottles in all, and felt stronger and better. It did me lots of good.

"My second daughter was in a run-down condition, a couple of years ago, and didn't feel like doing her work; and she felt so tired all the time. I gave her Cardui and it helped her."

Cardui is a mild, medicinal compound of purely vegetable ingredients, and may be safely taken from childhood to old age.

Rum Ship Skipper Held at Houston Seeks Liberty With Duress Charges

HOUSTON, April 20. (AP)—W. H. LeDuc, skipper of the rum ship Rhadamanthe, was endeavoring in federal court here Friday to secure release of his 70-foot schooner without making bond of $16,000 demanded by customs authorities.

The captain maintained that a coast guard cutter rammed his vessel about 12 miles off Trinity light on the night of February 2 and that he was brought into Galveston under duress. The cargo of liquor was destined for Tampico, LeDuc set out.

The captain said that his cargo consisted of 518 cases of Campbell's Scotch whiskey, an assortment of wines and liquors, and 1400 gallons of alcohol which has been in the casks for three years. There was originally 10,000 gallons he said, but the salt water has caused many of the barrels to fail apart.

LeDuc and the seven members of his crew are at liberty under bond on charges of conspiring to smuggle liquor.

Jury Fails to Agree On Misconduct Charges Against Navarro Attorney

WAXAHACHIE, Tex., April 20. (AP)—Able to agree upon but one of 16 counts upon which it had been charged, the jury in the ouster suit against L. J. Woods, county attorney of Navarro, was discharged late Friday by Judge Tom Ball after deliberating since 9 a. m.

The jury reported in the middle of the afternoon that it had reached a deadlock, but Judge Ball sent it back to deliberate further.

The vote, according to a poll to which the state objected, was unanimously in favor of the defendant on one count, with 11 jurors for him to one against on the remaining 15.

The trial had been in progress here for three weeks on a change of venue from Corsicana. When the case will be tried again was not known Friday night, the problem of obtaining a jury, in view of the publicity given the case, being mentioned as a consideration.

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to

FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By GERTRUDE EDERLE

Gertrude "Trudy" Ederle

Gertrude Ederle is the woman who, in fourteen and a half hours, swam the English channel between Cape Gris Nez and Kingsdown, on April 6, 1926—the first woman in history to achieve that feat.

I asked Trudy if she were frightened by the sharks—or were there sharks in the channel?

"Oh, yes," she said, "there are lots of sharks there—but they wouldn't bother me. They are man eating sharks."

Swimming the channel these days would not be so difficult a task as it was a few years ago, because the channel is not nearly so wide as it used to be. The war debt with Uncle Shylock has drawn England and France so much closer together.

"I think the funniest thing I ever heard of," Trudy told me, "happened when I was playing in New York state on the Keith circuit. There was a strong man from Norway and his wife on the same bill. The mans' specialty was breaking paving stones with a sledge-hammer on the woman's head.

"One night he called the manager back-stage and told him that he would have to cancel their contract on account of his wife.

"'What's the matter with her?' asked the manager. 'Is she getting headaches.'

"'Oh, no, it isn't that,' apologized the strong man, 'but I'm afraid she's getting falling aches'."

PAYNE SHUTS OUT DALLAS FOR THIRD VICTORY OF CAMPAIGN

Bowie Youth Defeats Allred In Prep Tennis; Track And Field Meet Today

SPUDDERS BEAT FOR 3-0 WIN

George Hurls 5-Hit Ball; Benton, Stanton Star

DALLAS, April 20—George Payne scored his third victory of the season today and the Spudders remained undisputed occupants of first place. The right-hander shut-out Dallas with a superb display of pitching, in which he permitted only five scattered hits. The score of the opener of the two-game series was 3 to 0.

The champions baited Dick Schuman for eight hits, mixing a blow and an error for a brace of tallies in the first inning and a pair of knocks in the sixth for their third run.

Benton Leads Attack

Rabbit Benton, who plays a corking game at shortstop, led the attack with three hits, one of which started the first-inning attack, and also maced a scarifice fly that scored the runner in the sixth.

George Stanton clouted a brace of wallops, one a two-bagger. Wally Swenson scintillated in defensive play. Pete Turgeon stole two bases and distinguished himself afield.

Two double plays by his comrades helped Payne blank the Steers.

Benton started the offensive in the first with a single to left. Turgeon forced Rabbit at second. Pete stole second. Fitzgerald walked Turgeon going to third on the fourth ball, a passed ball. Lamb also strolled. Morris booted Jenkins' grounder, Turgeon scoring. Fitzgerald tallied on Swenson's lift to Saunders.

Spuds Home Sunday

The rookie Stanton opened hostilities in the sixth with a base drive to center. He went to second on Cobb's hit to left. Billings tossed wild to second in an effort to catch Stanton and both runners advanced. Stanton tallied on Benton's fly to Mulvey.

The Spudders play their final game here tomorrow of the road trek and return home Sunday to open a 16-day stand with Atz's Cats as the first foe.

Track Coach Anderson Pleased With Ag Team

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, April 20.—Track Coach Frank Anderson is well pleased with the showing made by the Texas Aggies in their first two dual meets, in which they outpointed the Texas Longhorns and Rice Owls.

Anderson believes the Aggies have the best chance they had had in several years to win the conference meet in May although there are few stars on his squad. The fact that the Aggies have a man for practically every event who is capable of placing in the conference meet is expected to help the Aggies pile up enough points to win.

Texas Defeats Aggies In 11 Innnigs, 12 to 10

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, April 20. (AP)—The Texas Longhorns defeated the Texas Aggies, 12 to 10 in an exciting 11-inning game here Friday. Five Longhorn hits, two walks and five Aggie errors put the Steers ahead in the eighth. Blount got four hits in five times up.

Will Rogers, Jr.

Will Rogers Jr., son of the humorist, with two other members of Culver Military academy swimming team, set a national interscholastic record for the 500-yard medley relay race with a mark of 3:24 3-10.

Three Pittsburgh Olympic Hopes Compete in Pennsylvania Games

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—The University of Pittsburgh has three Olympic prospects entered in special events in the 34th annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival on April 27 and 28.

Gilbert Welch, all-American football star and one of the leading college discus throwers in the country, will match his skill against the best and Don Gwinn will toss the hammer. Last year Welch finished third in the C. I. A. A. A. A. championships, with Biff Hoffman, of Stanford and Phillips of California first and second respectively.

Welch Grid Star.

Welch will be remembered as captain of the Pitt football team which went undefeated last season until the post-season contest with Stanford. His return of a kickoff in the West Virginia game of 105 yards, was one of the outstanding performances of the gridiron season.

In addition to his proficiency in the discus, Welch can throw the shot and javelin and can broad jump. If Welch can toss the discus 146 feet or better he will break the relay record of 145 feet 11½ inches which has stood since 1916.

Don Gwinn, one of the eight men in the country who threw the hammer further than 160 feet last year and Victor Pickard, Canada's best pole vaulter, will be in their favorite events. Both have starred on Pittsburgh track teams.

In Medley Relay.

In addition to their specialties, Pittsburgh has entered a team in the spring medley relay championship of America, and in the four mile relay championship. In the former race the Panthers have an excellent chance of finishing with the leaders. Its team of Wibecan, Roy, Bowen and McCullough, judged on past performances, should come close to record time.

The four mile team will meet the sternest kind of competition from Indiana. North Carolina and a dozen other colleges which have entered the event. Indiana won the championship at the southern relays on a heavy track in excellent time.

Austin Forfeits State Cage Title

Ineligibility of Captain Of Action

AUSTIN, April 20. (AP)—Austin high school relinquished claim to the state high school basketball championship Friday and returned championship trophies to the Texas University interscholastic, after agreeing with league officials, that Melvin Vernon, star guard and captain of the team, was ineligible.

Roy B. Henderson, league athletic director, said tonight that the records of the league will show "Austin, state champions, disqualified; Temple, runner-up, 1928."

Vernon was declared ineligible because he played in 1924 as a student of the junior high school against Pfluegerville, Manor and Buda schools, and therefore, under the league four year rule, could not enter the 1928 competition.

Austin high officials said they learned that Vernon's eligibility was questioned by Coach George A. Foltz of Tyler, Austin coach four years ago. Superintendent A. N. McCallum of the Austin schools said Foltz refereed the Austin-Buda game in 1924.

DEMAR TRAINS FOR MARATHON

Boston Contender In Olympic Classic

By FRANK GETTY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 20. (UP)—A weary runner toiled up the long, white, winding road from Marathon to Athens, 32 years ago this spring.

He was Louis of Maroussi, who was to win the first official marathon run on the occasion of the revival of the Olympic games in 1896, after a lapse of 15 centuries.

Peasants trotted at Louis' side or tossed flowers in his path, thrust refreshing wine jugs to his parched lips, for he was a son of the soil and victory in this first marathon run meant much to the Greeks.

Louis presumably was following the route of Philippides, who 2500 years before had carried to Athens the news of Miltiades' victory over the Persians at Marathon. Philippides, it will be recalled, gave his life in that run, dying of exhaustion just after he could gasp: "Rejoice, Athenians, for the victory is ours."

Wins First Marathon

This Louis of Maroussi was at times far behind the leaders in the marathon run of 1896, but plodded on, a typical Greek fatalist. At the little village of Pikermi, Louis was informed that Flack of Australia and a number of other runners were some three miles ahead of him.

"Never mind," replied the imperturbable peasant, "I shall overtake and beat them all."

Which is precisely what he did. That chilly afternoon in March, 1896, Greeks ran one-two-three in the marathon for the first and last time.

At the time, Clarence De Mar was an 8-year-old Massachusetts school boy. Next summer, De Mar, at the age of 40, will make his greatest bid for Olympic victory in the footsteps of Philippides and Louis of Maroussi.

Plodding in his awkward, tireless way over the roads from Allston to Boston, the veteran won the annual marathon run of the Boston A. A. yesterday afternoon for the sixth time, and thus assured himself of first place among America's representatives in the classic event of the Olympic games at Amsterdam next July.

Printer and Sunday school teacher in private life, De Mar is the Hub's own marathon hero. Man and boy, he has won the B. A. A. run on Patriot's day.

Confounds Critics

After winning in 1911, De Mar retired to his print shop, his Sunday school class, and later to his duties as a soldier in the world war, and did not draw on a spiked shoe for 11 years. When he came out for the marathon in 1922, an expert remarked:

"This race has become too hot for antiques."

Whereupon De Mar, carrying the colors of the Melrose Post of the American Legion, strode forth and won the 1922 race with something to spare.

From that day to this, De Mar has developed gradually into the foremost American distance runner. At the Olympic games in Paris in 1924, the Melrose printer had his greatest opportunity to date, but the day of the marathon run was blisteringly hot and the contestants wilted and fell along the roadside like flies. Old blue-eyed Albin Stenroos, the wood-carver of Finland, won the race that day and the best De Mar could do was to finish third, on the heels of Bertini of Italy.

With age, like some other good things, De Mar seems to improve. He has a consistent record of victories in recent marathon runs and at long distances. He will be one of the most enthusiastic members of the American Olympic team next summer and will fix his eyes upon the goal around which all the tradition of modern Olympiads clings—the winning of the marathon.

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

IT IS ALMOST two decades ago that Connie Mack dismantled his once invincible machine and set about building a pennant winner. Followed lean years of last place clubs. Then the rise as pennant contenders. But still not pennant winners. And it appears that further disappointment is in store for the aged leader. Judging from their play this early the Athletics will not menace the Yankees to any greater extent than last season.

Mack in recent years deviated from his policy of building championship clubs with youngsters. Possibly the countless youths who failed him after the disintegration of that 1910-1914 club caused Connie to grow weary of running a baseball kindergarten. Anyhow, of late he has shown a liking for veterans, surrounding himself with such fading stars as Cobb, Speaker and Collins. No doubt when the sun shines in all its effulgence the veterans will display a brand of ball resembling their peerless efforts of yesteryear. But it is asking a lot of the aged legs of Ty and Tris to stand up under a gruelling pennant drive.

THE YANKS look like repeaters. The only doubt is in their pitching. Shocker is needed, particularly in view of the slowness of Wilcy Moore to round into form. However, there is so much drive and power to the champions that it is difficult to see how they can be headed. Too, none of the other clubs has indicated great strength, at least not to date.

AS PREDICTED in pre-season forecasts, the National league chase still promises to be a scramble, with at least four clubs figured as contenders, and one or two always to be reckoned as dangerous. A race rivaling or surpassing that hectic campaign of last season looms in the senior loop.

IF ONE WERE to seek the best all-around girl athlete in Texas the search might well start and end at Burkburnett. There's a high school girl in that neighboring city of ours who not only is a star in one sport, but two, and for all I know, more. Indeed, a girl who stars at two sports doubtless would excel in all athletics. Miss Addie East was a leading player this winter in the Wichita Falls Girl's Commercial Basketball league. Thursday she won the tennis singles championship of district No. 4 of the Texas Interscholastic league, as the representative of Burkburnett high school. A most talented young lady, indeed.

Ritt's Ritticisms

The race track has gone scientific. Electricity governs everything but the squawks of the four-flushers.

Over in France they have mechanical bookies, which add, subtract, multiply, take your dough and hand back the bad news—all by wire.

If a piker feels he has been gyped he can blame it on a short circuit. He hasn't any comeback. There is no fun in kicking the daylights out of a battery or hitting a generator on the nose.

Mechanical starting stalls now keep nags from making ninnies of themselves. They educate the oat burners into the latest of equine etiquette.

Backing out and other monkey business is now passe in polite winniny and neigh society. The only way a horse can get out of a race first these days is to win it or drop dead.

Things are getting so mechanical that some day races will be decided by kilowatts and wave lengths and the Kentucky Derby will look like a convention of sparks playing leap frog with lightning.

Marathon Race Just a Sprint

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 20. (AP)—Stating that they would gladly consider any race from 80 to 300 miles, but that regulation marathon distance of 26¼ miles was too short for them to make a proper showing, two Tarahumara Indians from the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, have declined to enter the international Indian marathon here Saturday.

Failure of the Mexican Indians to enter leaves the race to be decided between Canadian Indians and Hopi Indians from New Mexico, representing the United tates.

Dorothy Dix Advice To Women—A Daily Feature

Your Own Conscience Will Torment You in Illicit Love Affair

How Can the Girl Honestly in Love With a Married Man Find Happiness?—Love Doctor Prescribes For Ill-Mated Married Pair—Shall This Young Man Sell His Self-Respect by Marrying a Rich Old Woman?

Dear Miss Dix: I am 25, in love with a man 10 years older than I am. I know that he loves me in the way every woman dreams of being loved, but the tragedy of it is that he is married, and it is impossible for him to get a divorce. My idea of happiness has always been a home and children. I will never love another man, and know that I cannot hope to have either.

Recently this man asked me to live with him as his wife—not openly, because of my family. The future looks very bleak, and as I am sure of his love and mine I feel justified in doing this. Do you agree that I should take what little happiness I may have?—A SINGLE GIRL.

Answer: I believe you have a right to all the happiness you can get out of life, and that is the reason why I urge you with all the earnestness that I can command not to do a thing that will plunge you into lifelong misery.

For you will find no happiness in an illicit affair. Your conscience will torment you. You will be dishonored in your own eyes. You will live in dread and fear of your parents and friends finding out your shame.

The only romance out of which a woman gets any joy is that which she can flaunt like a banner above her head. The only lover who brings her any happiness is the man who proudly claims her before the world.

There is no happiness for her in a romance that is an unclean thing that she must hide around in dark corners, nor does the lover bring her any happiness who is ashamed to acknowledge her, and whom she must meet in sordid, secret places.

There are women in the world who make a career of being courtesans. There are women in silken love nests who find that luxury compensates them for the lack of respectability. But they are not of your type. Not of your breed. There are too many centuries of virtue behind you, too many clean-living, God-fearing, upright men and women to make it possible for you to get any pleasure out of sinning, or get any happiness out of being a man's mistress when you cannot be his wife.

It takes a certain temperament for a woman to be able to chuck her bonnet over the windmill and go blithely on untroubled by regrets, and uncaring of what people are saying about her.

You are not one of those who would ever find any flowers blooming along the primrose way. You would only bruise yourself on its stones and pierce yourself with its thorns. You will only find happiness in walking the strait-and-narrow way.

And, believe me, your love would not long survive. It would be killed by shame, by anxiety, by jealousy, by your fear of discovery, by your fear of what the future might hold for you.

If you want to find happiness, go away from this man and use all of your will power to forget him. Blot him out of your thoughts. Fill your life with new interests and in time you will meet the man who can offer you an honest love and decent marriage, and you will have the home and children you crave.

You think this is impossible, and that you can never love again, but that is not true. The heart is built of tougher and more resilient fiber than that.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Here's a problem for you: Wife, a woman of 38, poorly educated, but the mother of unusually intelligent and beautiful children. She has no conception of tidiness in the home, but is a woman of strong moral character and a slave to the children, with whom she fights and quarrels. No social ambitions and with a natural antipathy towards organizations, even those of a religious nature, yet personally pious and stands in fear of God.

Husband, a college graduate, highly ambitious and sensitive, extremely nervous, irritable to a degree and exasperated beyond measure at the mother's mismanagement of the children.

Result. Abuse heaped upon each other. Curses, rage unrestrained, the resurrecting of all the skeletons of both families. Mother assumes martyr attitude. Father in a state of hopelessness, contemplating taking out enough insurance to leave his family a competency and then making a hasty exit by the suicide route. What do you suggest?—DESPAIR.

Answer: First, a temporary separation. Evidently you and your wife have got on each other's nerves until the irritation has become unbearable, and the only remedy for that situation is to part before the breach between you becomes unbridgeable, or you murder each other as so many quarreling husbands and wives are doing nowadays.

You have contemplated each other's faults so long, and at such close range, that you have lost all sight of the virtues that each of you possess. But before you are separated for three months you will see each other in a different light and begin to realize that you made mountains out of molehills, and that if there were faults on both sides, both also had many admirable traits of character. Believe me, a six-month separation of husband and wife would save many a divorce and many a wrecked home.

So my advice is to send your wife away, at any cost and sacrifice, for a few months. That will give time for the wounds that you have dealt each other to heal, and for your taut nerves to straighten out. It will give you time for dispassionate thinking over your situation. Perhaps when your wife is away from home she will get a new angle on that and see that a home is worth taking care of and making comfortable. And perhaps you will realize that even a badly kept home is better than no home at all.

While your wife is away you can write to her and call to her attention some of the mistakes that she is making, as you cannot do when you are face to face with her.

For the trouble with a family discussion is that both parties get angry, and drag in extraneous grievances that have no part in the point at issue. But in a letter you can state a point calmly and she will have to think it over without heat, and perhaps she will be convinced of the errors of her ways.

And when your wife does return, make up your mind that there will be no more disgraceful scenes between you. That is simply a matter of will power. You control your temper and your tongue in dealing with the outside world. You can do it at home if you will.

Probably your wife will always bore you, and never enter into your ambitions and plans, but remember that you picked her out yourself and if she has failed you as a companion, she has at least given you a consolation prize in your splendid children. Fill your life with their love, and for their sake make the sacrifice of getting along peaceably with their mother.

And do not toy with the thought of taking out a big insurance policy and killing yourself. That would be the act of a coward and a thief.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young man of 31 and a wealthy old lady of 79 has fallen in love with me and wants to marry me, but I am of a restless nature and I fear the wanderlust in my bones would make me dissatisfied if I were married to a woman old enough to be my grandmother. Do you think it would be worth while to marry her?—DUBLINITE.

Answer: Depends on whether you are for sale or not. Personally, if I were a man, I wouldn't sell my self-respect at any price. But if you marry your old lady, don't count on her dying too soon and leaving you her money. It is a long wait for dead women's shoes, and the time is filled with the bitterness of slavery.

LINDA -:- A Love Mystery of Collegiate Life

By Virginia Swain.

The grating of that hinge had cut off the struggle on the stairs as cleanly as though with a knife, and left her wrapped in silence and darkness.

After a moment, however, she saw a narrow streak of light at the end of what seemed to be a long, narrow passage. It came from a narrow crack to the left, where, possibly, a door stood slightly ajar.

Linda pushed forward. The passage was full of a strange, sickening odor. She reached out and touched the door from which the light came. It pushed back noiselessly under her weight, and she stepped into a brightly lighted room.

It was a room crowded with inexplicable objects — strange high tables on wheels, white-draped baskets and benches, cabinets full of shining steel instruments and vials of colored liquids, ranged around the wall.

Between the two tiny dormer windows, propped against the sloping roof, stood a great stone case, coffin-shaped and painted in the effigy of some exotic potentate—blue and ochre and vermilion.

The heavy scent was stronger here. It made Linda's eyes blur and her nostrils burn. She leaned dizzily against a chair. The tray of steel instruments that the chair had held slid off, dropping its contents with a crash on the uncarpeted floor. For a moment there was breathless silence.

From an inner door a man appeared—a stocky man with a wild tangle of black beard masking the lower half of his face. "What the ——!" he shouted.

Linda screamed, first with terror, then with relief, and ran to fling herself into the man's arms. "Dr. Prine! Dr. Prine!" She wept stormily on his shoulder. He stood with his arms at his sides, looking angry and perplexed and outraged.

"Damn!" he said at last. "Damn! Damn it all!" Then he disengaged her clinging arms, set her in a chair at a safe distance, and stood looking at her.

"Well," he said, when at last she lifted a red, streaming face, "how did you get in here?"

Linda made a helpless motion with her hands; but before she could speak a figure glided out from the same door Dr. Prine had issued from. "I let her in, Sahib. I heard her scream on the staircase and I opened the door." Dhan Gopal stood quietly facing the doctor, his arms folde dacross his chest.

The professor glowered at him, but made no reply. He turned back to Linda. "You'll have to get out, you know. This is an outrage—this intrusion. Ten years I work, and just when I am within sight of success a blithering idot of a co-ed rushes in and shoots the works!" He shook his fists in the air and walked away.

He came back suddenly. "Now, that you're here, how'd you like to see a Prince of Ghizeh? We learned our secret from him. Another week of work and we'll have a tom-cat preserved down to his yowl."

He ripped the sheet from one of the high tables and stepped back. On the slab lay the black, shrunken figure of something human. Dark brown, shredded wrappings of linen hung about the shriveled limbs. The face was a horrid grotesquerie of man.

Linda gave a little shriek and hid her eyes. The professor stood regarding her. "Tanis Gebu is a finer mummy than the Field Museum owns," he said with profound solemnity. With that he flipped the sheet back over the table and turned away.

Dhan Gopal spoke to Linda: "Do not be afraid. The professor is only investigating the Egyptian system of embalming. He found this house the only safe, secluded laboratory available. We have worked here every night since summer. He came alone on his big bicycle and I rode the spotted horse. But lately we knew we were nearing the end of our search, and so we stayed working day and night. The professor lives only to solve the secrets of the Pharaohs."

Linda was wide-eyed. "But why?"

The Hindu looked at her sadly, shrugged his delicate shoulders. "The professor wants to know all truth for its own sake. If you ask his reasons, you insult him."

Linda rose and walked toward the professor. He was standing at a distance, his shoulders hunched despairingly, lost in thought. He started when she laid her hand on his arm.

"Dr. Prine," she said, "I will respect your secret. But the whole town is looking for you. They think you have been murdered."

He chuckled bitterly. "The wish is father of the thought. What does the town care about me, alive or dead? And what do I care about it?"

He dismissed the matter with a shrug. "And now you had better go home."

Linda hesitated. "I'm afraid to go. Doyle Hoskins is out there on the stairs, hunting for me."

The professor looked at her in disgust. "For heaven's sake, are you always just about to be seized by the villain? What is it, anyway, that makes them chase you—your fatal beauty?"

Linda blushed and giggled.

Dr. Prine was throwing his opera cape about his shoulders, and motioning to Dhan Gopal to follow.

They went through the dark passageway, through the sliding door with the grating hinge and found themselves on the balcony. There was no sign of Doyle.

But down below a match flared and an Irish voice called, "Stop!"

MODISH MITZI — IS MITZI CRUEL INTENTIONALLY? — By Jay V. Jay

Marie hates to mail the letter because it contains Mitzi's refusal to the Goofer's invitation to a dinner party. Marie simply doesn't understand her utter indifference to a knight who is so obviously wearing his heart on his sleeve. As she turns you may notice the V pointed back to her knit ensemble.

The Goofer again. He wants Mitzi to go to a concert. Mitzi doesn't feel in a musical mood so that's that. Marie urges her to accept but Mitzi has other plans for her cape costume of silk which has a cape short in front, and long and scarf-like in the back extending the length of the dress.

At five o'clock during their shopping tour, Mitzi suddenly remembered that she had a date for tea with the Goofer at the other end of town. Marie even though her attention is centered on her new ensemble suit and a brand new straw hat with an upturned brim, cannot help saying that she thinks Mitzi is treating the Goofer abominably.

That evening while they were waiting for Mitzi, Marie cornered the Goofer. She wanted the Goofer to know how thoroughly she sympathized with him. But he must have courage, persistence and faith. She will aid him and shows Mitzi that all things are not fair in love and war. The Goofer is surprised.

P.-T. A. Organization Conference Closes Program Friday Afternoon

Installation of officers and a general windup of left-over business, were matters taken up during the final sessions Friday morning and afternoon of the organization meeting of the 13th district of Texas Parent-Teacher associations, which drew its three-day meeting to an end at the First Christian church.

With Mrs. Charles H. Woodson of San Antonio, state director of organization, presiding, the following officers were installed Friday afternoon as a conclusion to the conference: President, Mrs. Frank Creighton of Wichita Falls; first vice president, Mrs. T. S. Edwards of Knox City; second vice president, Mrs. George Wilson of Vernon; third vice president, Mrs. H. C. McClure of Jacksboro; fourth vice president, Mrs. E. W. Cullers of Megargel; fifth vice president, Mrs. O. McCall of Nocona; sixth vice president, Mrs. E. J. Torvie of Electra; seventh vice president, Mrs. J. M. Gose of Haskell; recording secretary, Mrs. Clarence Roberts of Fairview; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. M. Fox of Wichita Falls; historian, Mrs. S. J. Marcell of Olney.

Vernon Seeks Meet.

No convention city for 1929 was decided upon, as that matter will be taken up by the executive committee at a later date. Vernon was the only city to extend an invitation.

Austin school of the city won first place in the scrap book contest, in a report read by Mrs. A. F. Wood of Athens Friday morning, with a 100 per cent rating. Crockett school won second place with a 70 per cent score and the city council scrapbook won third place with a 67 per cent score. The Sam Houston scrap book was ruled out of the contest because of incorrect filling of the leaves. The publicity scrap books were judged by Mrs. Woods, Mrs. L. E. Ledbetter of Austin and T. A. Bradley of Wichita Falls.

During the morning session, Mrs. L. E. Ledbetter of Austin explained her work of the child health bureau and outlined the work of the various divisions including physical education, mental education and social hygiene. She expressed a desire to see health education made a part of the child's daily educational program.

Miss Mary McIlhenn, Camp Fire Girls' executive, gave a brief talk on the work of the groups, pointing out the worth of the Camp Fire program in the life of the growing girl. A group of Camp Fire girls repeated in concert the seven laws of Camp Fire and the Camp Fire Girls' credo, and sang a group of Camp Fire songs.

Entertainment Program.

Entertainment numbers on the Friday program were: Organ solo by Mrs. J. W. C. T. Christensen, a group of choral numbers by students in the Reagan Junior High school; mass singing led by Mrs. Fred Barron; Dr. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church gave the devotional for the morning session and Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, for the afternoon.

Mrs. Woodson was presented with a beautiful gift of appreciation for her organization work in the conference. Mrs. Frank Creighton, newly elected president of the 13th district, made the presentation speech.

Reports were heard from the following city school Parent-Teacher associations at the Friday sessions: Alamo, Bowie, Reagan, Fannin, Huey, Carrigan and Zundelowitz.

205 Delegates.

The total number of delegates registered was 205, as announced at the Friday afternoon session.

Among the resolutions prepared by the courtesy committee made up of Mrs. T. H. Lawson of Wichita Falls, Mrs. J. L. Terrell of Electra and Mrs. E. W. Windham of Burkburnett, was a resolution of appreciation for the courtesies extended the conference by the following firms and individuals: Swift and company, H. O. Wooten, Producers Creamery, the First Christian church for the use of the building, the local press for publicity, the local P.-T. A organizations for hospitality, the Wichita Falls board of education, the various speakers who appeared on the program, Schepps Baking company, Colvert's Ice Cream company, White House market, Wichita Produce company, E-Z Self Service, Perkins-Timberlake, chamber of commerce, McClurkan and company, Maidwell Dressing company, Fort Worth Macaroni company, Electrified Water company, Reiley Baking company, board of education, Continental Oil company, T. H. Lawson, and residents of the city for their entertainment.

The burden of the resolutions adopted by the conference was as follows: To endorse an effort to obtain a $77,901.04 as a minimum appropriation for the administration of maternity and infancy work in Texas, to endorse the work of the child health bureau, and to stand for the enforcement of the above stated laws.

Mrs. Woodson talked on life membership at the Friday morning session, explaining that there are 860 life memberships in the state. Mrs. Lawson was presented with a framed life membership certificate, by Mrs. O. H. Karr, president of the city P.-T. A. council on behalf of the council. Other memberships pledged included that by Mrs. Ira L. Cain in memory of her mother; the Wichita Falls P.-T. A. council, one membership; the Petrolia P.-T. A., one for the president, Mrs. F. D. Posey; the Benjamin Franklin P.-T. A., one for Miss Kate Burgess, principal, who has been connected with the public school system of this city for 20 years, and Miss Celia Moore of Austin.

Frances Irene Parmer will celebrate her first birthday anniversary April 23. She will probably take a ramble through the residence district in observance of the event, as that is her latest accomplishment.

Another of her attractions is her everfast smile—she does a lot of grinning, even when there isn't so much to laugh about.

Does her hair look curly in the picture shown? Well, it is, and it curls to the accompaniment of a pair of large blue eyes. In this day of preference for light colors in eyes and hair, that is something to smile about.

Frances Irene, yes, she uses all of her name, is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Parmer, 1808 Eighth street.

Ramblin'
with
Marie Theresa

I WITNESSED something Thursday evening that I thought Wichita Falls had outgrown. An out-of-town speaker addressed rows of empty seats at a session of the Parent-Teacher association district conference held here, after having the extreme pleasure of standing on the platform while about 50 persons filed out of the First Christian church just following the announcement of his talk.

Probably those persons had come to hear the entertainment program, but it seems to me that they could have shown sufficient sportsmanship to stay through an address by the principal speaker of the evening.

Our inland audiences have been adversely criticised because of such rudeness time and time again, and it seems that the suggestion that an audience have consideration for a speaker, should take root sooner or later.

The incident impressed me so forcefully that I would publish the names of those who walked out, if only I had 'em.

HERE is something that the club women of Wichita Falls may look forward to:

Tackling the problem of housing working young women, the New York Federation of Women's clubs met in forum April 12 in the Hotel Astor to make plans for raising an additional $150,000 needed for the erection of a new hotel to be operated by the federation. The new building is to have a capacity of 500 guests.

The age of 30 is the danger line for women in business and employment, believes this organization, the time when women find it hard to get employment unless they have had special training.

"The unwritten law of the housekeeper," a member of this body is quoted as saying, "seems to be that a young woman of 23 is the ideal roomer, although no one can tell why, and I think that the federation should concern itself more with the older woman."

The great demand for respectable homes for girls receiving minimum wages was stressed by members of the group.

There are new problems coming as Wichita Falls grows larger. And when they come, I believe the Woman's Forum will take care of them as they have those which have come up the past few years.

THIS from London—a commotion was caused in a Leicester tramcar the other day by a girl passenger whose skirt was declared too short. The little lady was asked to quit the car. Now the information I would like to distribute is: How short was that skirt?

"Love is on its deathbed," is the lament of Count Herman Keyserling in a philosopher's article in a recent edition of Plain Talk. Maybe so, but I believe I could persuade even the sleeping count if he would just consent to accompany me on some of my rambles that the article in question seems to be entirely existent about the city that faith erected. Haven't you seen 'em?

THE drama department of the Womans Forum is going to a bit of expense and much trouble to present to Wichita Falls the players from C. I. A. who will stage "What Every Woman Knows" at the club house next Tuesday evening.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, April 20. (AP)—Rallies from an early decline met a renewal of realizing or liquidation in the cotton market today, and after selling up from 19.82 to 20.01, July broke to 19.76, closing at 19.17. The general market closed barely steady, at net declines of 5 to 9 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 3 points. Buying on reports of rains or showers in the South and relatively firm cables was absorbed by realizing. The prospect for warmer weather in the belt was considered favorable. Prices eased off to 19.97 for May and 19.60 for October, net losses of 3 to 7 points, but nervousness over the new crop remained more or less in evidence and the forenoon market steadied up.

Publications of quarantine regulations for pink boll worm infested sections of Texas seemed to stimulate covering or rebuying of early sellers in early afternoon and the market for a time showed considerable activity and strength. May sold up to 20.18 and October 19.83, net advances of 15 to 18 points on the general list, but demand tapered off at these figures, which evidently attracted renewed realizing, or liquidation of long accounts for over the week-end.

Prices later broke into new low ground for the day, May selling off to 19.91 and October to 19.57, net declines of 8 to 10 points. The close was within a few points of the lowest.

Private cables said local and Bombay buying in Liverpool had been supplied by continental liquidation at the advance, and there had been fair sales of cotton cloths in Manchester for shipment to the continent and South America.

Exports today 20,194, making 6,273,637 so far this season. Port receipts 12,979. U. S. port stocks 1,527,314.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 20. (AP)—A temporary rally on the cotton market was caused here today by announcement of the quarantine extension in Texas because of the pink boll worm, but the advance was not maintained. The general market closed steady at net declines of 3 to 7 points.

The market fluctuated freely because of weather conditions. It was disposed to ease off on milder weather in the interior but was supported by forecasts for showers.

July, after opening at 19.65, 6 points up, declined to 19.55 but later advanced 22 points to 19.75 and closed at 19.52, 7 points down for the day.

Liverpool was 6 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 5 to 7 points in sympathy with cables. Prices then eased off 11 to 12 points on realizing by recent buyers but soon improved on the forecast for showers in both eastern and western portions of the belt.

Active covering resulted when extension of the pink boll work quarantine became known and prices jumped to 19.87 for May, 19.75 for July and 19.48 for October, 17 to 23 points up from the early lows and 12 to 18 points above the previous close.

When it was realized that the quarantine would not prevent production and sale of cotton in Texas there was considerable reselling by those who bought on the report and prices eased off to new lows, 19.63 for May and 19.23 for October. Near the close the market rallied 2 to 5 points on good rains in the Texas Panhandle and May and July closed 7 points net down and October 5 points down.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, April 20.—Grains toppled off the pinnacle of public esteem today for a smashing break that shook out belated longs and ought to have put the markets in a far sounder technical condition. There was nothing panicky about them at the close.

Wheat dropped 3 to 3⅝; corn was down 1⅛ to 1⅝; oats lost 1⅛ to 1⅞; rye was 3 to 3¾ lower.

Tomorrow may tell a different story. The explanation for the decline in wheat was report of rains in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska. The real reason for the market's response to heavy selling probably was its temporarily overbought condition.

Tomorrow it may turn out that the reported rains were only showers. Soaking rains are what is needed in the arid parts of the winter wheat belt.

If corn is one-half the bull market it has looked to be during the fore-part of this week it is likely to turn right round tomorrow and climb as easily as it slid down hill today. Especially is this apt to be the case if the market is easy at the opening and draggy during the first half hour of the short Saturday session.

The corn market appears to be in a good position to attract conservative buyers who are confident that much higher prices will be attained eventually. Support on a big scale tomorrow could easily carry the market up very sharply into the high ground it reached on Thursday.

NEW YORK, April 20. (AP)—The New York stock exchange and the New York curb market will be closed for the two-hour session tomorrow, but the cotton exchange an dother commodity markets will transact business as usual.

Advance in Rediscount Rate Fails to Shake Stock Market—But Recovery Wanes With More Money Fears

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, April 20.—Stocks failed today to be influenced to the extent expected by the advance in the rediscount rates in the Boston and Chicago districts.

They opened off on the average of 3 points and after backing and filling throughout the session closed practically at the opening level. More spectacular recovery from the initial break would have been registered but for rumor that the reserve bank directors of New York would hold a special meeting after the close. Radio was the worst sufferer, losing more than 10 points for the session, while General Motors was the heaviest sold of the motor group which closed lower also.

Delaware and Hudson soared for awhile but other rails were ragged. Coppers remained irregular also but the oils were taken in good manner and closed higher while the standard issues held strong in an otherwise irregular oil group.

Sterling and other European currencies sold off in a fairly active foreign exchange market. Cotton held firm in dull trading while heavy realizing put other commodities lower.

Denial was made at the Federal Reserve bank that a special meeting was scheduled for the afternoon as rumored but officials refused to state whether any session would be held before next Thursday's regular weekly get-together.

An advance in the rediscount rate, here, however, would not be bearish of itself. With a higher rate in Boston and Chicago there will be less tendency for funds to flow here from those districts. However, it is only a matter of time when the bank here will be obliged to increase unless a drastic shakeout in the market occurs sooner than indicated by today's support. If there were any doubt as to the extent of group liquidation going on it should be dispelled by the manner in which leading bull operators jumped to the support of the market during the heavy selling at the opening.

Selling of the motors was added to by the disappointment over the quarterly report of Hudson. All manner of enthusiastic estimates had been made as to net earnings for the first quarter, some estimates running as high as $5 a share. The actual showing of $2.63 a share, while very good, proved a disappointment and caused fear that other estimates would be proven equally over-enthusiastic.

Baptists to Hear Baylor Plans

DALLAS, Texas, April 20. (AP)—The offer of $1,500,000 and a site for the relocation of Baylor university here will be considered at a special meeting of the Baptist education commission to be held at the First Baptist church here Friday, April 27, it was announced Thursday.

The meeting of the commission was called by H. L. Kokernot of San Antonio, chairman.

"Nothing will be done in regard to the relocation of the school until the meeting of the commission," Carr P. Collins, Dallas member of the commission, said Thursday in denial of reports regarding conferences being held on the question.

Curb

Leading Issues on New York Market

NEW YORK, April 20. (AP)—The curb market rallied on announcement of easier money rates today after hurried liquidation at the opening, inspired by increases in the federal reserve rediscount rates at Boston and Chicago, had caused a bad break in prices. Buying support at noon had wiped out many of the losses and some issues reached new high levels.

The utilities were hardest hit in the decline, losses of 2 or more points being common, Electric Bond & Share, however, recovered quickly and moved up nearly 4 points, while Puget Sound mounted to a new peak at 83½.

Some motors showed good recuperative powers, Waukesha being outstanding with a gain of more than 24 points to a new high at 124. Subsequently it sagged about 3 points. P. S. L. Battery was weak, selling off nearly 5 points. Brockway Motor Truck preferred moved to a new peak at 110.

The industrials were irregular. There were gains as great as 5 points by Celluloid, Ruberoid, Sanitary Grocers, and Singer, Bancitaly, Deere & Co., New Mont Mines, A. G. Spalding and Tubize dropped 2 to 7 points.

Buckeye and Eureka Pipe Lines and Prairie Oil reached new tops during the advance of the oils, which was based on an increase in gasoline prices. Gains were registered by Cumberland Pipe Line, Leonard Oil, and a few others but Vacuum, Penn Mex Fuel and some of the standards failed to rally.

MARLOW TELLS PLAN FOR FUND

Million for Industrial Growth Urged

A plan for the obtaining and promotion of new industries in Wichita Falls by the raising of $1,000,000, by the Chamber of Commerce for investment, was presented by J. B. Marlow at the weekly meeting of the business council Friday noon at the Kemp hotel. It was suggested that four campaigns be held at six-month intervals to raise the required funds and that 15 of the best business men in Wichita Falls be elected to handle the money.

Investment Plan

The necessity of receiving the cooperation of the citizenship of the city was stressed by Mr. Marlow, who outlined a scale of subscriptions which would raise the required $1,000,000, suggesting that there were eight men in Wichita Falls who would probably invest $25,000 each in the fund.

The money raised, according to the speaker, should be spent in the next two years by investing in good, dividend-paying concerns.

Stanley Campbell of the Texas Power and Light company of Dallas spoke on the raising of similar funds in Dallas a short time ago.

"It is necessary for every city expecting to grow to be constantly on the alert," he said, stating that "the spirit of determination is forced by necessity and the realization of the danger of 'standing by,'" in speaking of the actions of cities who are campaigning for industrial expansion.

"Seymour Day"

Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the Chamber of Commerce, in a report stated that the city has three good looking industrial prospects in view and that one of them was nearing a trading basis.

A motion was passed by the council that the holding of meetings in honor of neighboring cities be continued. Citizens of Seymour will attend the meeting next Friday and that day is to be designated "Seymour day."

A program committee consisting of Tom Sorey, Jim Lyle and Newton Huff was appointed by Luther Hoffman, who presided at the meeting. G. B. Smedley, Julian McFall and Fred Elbert were appointed to investigate and select a new place for the holding of business council meetings.

San Jacinto day is a holiday, officially, and even though this hard boiled commercial world in actual practice ignores sentiment and legal holidays, there are still many who hold reverence for their great traditions.

The shows in Wichita Falls for the day are good, strong, exciting affairs that should aid in the holiday spirit. Those who wish to think a little about what San Jacinto day and other great holidays mean have a right to do so and to take a holiday. A holiday is complete only with a little recreation, so the shows are mentioned.

Hair like this

Free from Dandruff

Note the picture above. This woman's hair looks clean, free from dandruff. Every woman's hair should — and can — look the same way. Dandruff can be checked and often cured entirely by the frequent, systematic use of Listerine. You simply douse it on the scalp full strength and massage vigorously. Keep the treatment up several days. Within two weeks you will be delighted to find dandruff gone. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U.S.A.

TRIED IT YET? New and different! LISTERINE SHAVING CREAM. Your skin feels marvelously cool long after shaving.
