HENRIETTA JURY GIVES STRICKLAND LIFE TERM

Ione Ord Gives Prosecutor Full Story Of Adventurer's Slaying On Steamer

GIRL ARTIST NAMES KILLER OF JACK KRAFT

District Attorney Refuses To Divulge Details Of Statement

SHIP'S MATE LINKED

Official Indicates John McGouldrick Will Be Arrested

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18. (AP)—The taut nerves of Ione Ord, artist, cracked today under the steady quizzing of investigators and she told all she knew of the mysterious killing of Jack Kraft, New York newspaper employe, aboard the steamship Creole.

After standing her questioners at bay for days she broke down in a cubby hole in the grimy parish prison and made a clean breast of the details while the district attorney copied on a typewriter. But District Attorney Leander Perez refused flatly to divulge her story until he laid it before the Plaquemine parish grand jury tomorrow morning.

"Mac" Accused

While newspaper men pressed the district attorney for information, Miss Ord spoke up:

"It couldn't have been anybody but Mac."

She was silenced by the district attorney but during her imprisonment the girl frequently referred to John McGouldrick, second officer of the Creole, which now is steaming up the Atlantic coast for New York. The second officer was implicated further in the case by the district attorney, who said: "We have ample time to wire for the aresrt of McGoulderick before he leaves the ship in New York."

For several days the girl has kept McGouldrick sharply in the case by saying she was willing "to swear" that neither she nor Sam Epstein, ship steward, now confined in the Plaquemine parish jail, had killed Jack, but she was not willing to swear that McGouldrick had not.

Writes Letter

In addition she wrote an affectionate letter to McGouldrick from her cell and attempted to send it by air mail to his ship as it passed out of the mouth of the Mississippi river on its return voyage to New York. In the letter she expressed surprise that the second officer had left her in jail. She later explained that she had "fallen deeply in love" with McGouldrick and that he and Sam Epstein had come to her aid when Jack Kraft beat and choked her on the night of the tragedy for being friendly to Epstein and McGouldrick.

Then she refused to say more. She withstood a merciless grilling from the district attorney and a private detective and clung to her story through the horror of viewing the body in a primitive grave on the Mississippi river, 55 miles below New Orleans.

But around midday today after screaming and praying, she agreed to tell the true story in secret to the district attorney and the detective. She came out of the little chamber almost radiant. She smiled at the jail attendants, shook hands with newspaper men and walked serenely back to her cell as if a big load had been lifted from her shoulders.

"She has given us the facts," the detective said.

Third Attack on Wichita Youth In Week Puts Him Back in Hospital

E. W. Pratt Again Assaulted by Mysterious Indian-like Man; Re-Fracture of Arm Feared

His arm broken and virtually his whole body bearing wounds from two previous assaults this week, E. W. Pratt, of 414 Austin street again became the victim of a mysterious attacker late Friday night, sustaining deep knife cuts about the shoulder and neck and a possible re-fracture of his injured arm.

His attacker is believed to have been the strange, Indian-appearing man who Thursday night assaulted Pratt in a local athletic club, breaking Pratt's arm with a billiard cue and administering severe knife wounds, and who last Monday night inflicted a similar drubbing on his victim. As in the previous attacks, the assaulter escaped.

Attacked From Rear

The attack Friday night occurred at Sixth and Austin streets. Pratt, police learned, was struck on the head from the rear. His assailant then slashed at him with a knife, drawing blood from deep cuts in the shoulders and the neck. Pratt than fainted.

Passersby carried him to the Boston cafe, 622 Seventh street, on Patrolman A. E. Miller's beat. The officer called an Albert's ambulance and Pratt was taken to the Wichita General hospital. Other officers were called, and another search for the attacker began.

Re-Fracture Feared

At the hospital it was reported Pratt apparently had sustained a re-fracture of his broken arm. X-ray examinations were being made to determine if this were true. His latest injuries, attendants said, were painful, but not critical.

Enmity between Pratt and his uncaptured assailant, the identity of whom is known to police, is said to have originated over a girl. Pratt told police that recently, while confined to a hospital, he made friends with a girl. This, he said, drew the disapproval of the attacker in the case. The attacks last Monday and Thursday nights, and Friday night followed.

BOY, 17, GIVEN DEATH BY JURY

Youth Convicted of Robbery in Tulsa Court

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 18. (INS)—A 17-year-old youth today was sentenced to die in the electric chair. The boy, Ted Cole, pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery with firearms and Judge Saul Lager, passing sentence, set the date of execution at Dec. 31.

Cole, identified as one of the three bandits who robbed the Doctor Pepper bottling plant at Tulsa three months ago, was captured recently at Berryville, Ark., and sent to Arkansas penitentiary under sentence for burglary. He was released upon the request of Tulsa authorities for more serious charges a few days ago.

Doctors Testify In Pantages Trial

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18. (UP)—Medical experts whose testimony contradicted that of a police chemist, and a young publicity man who asserted Eunice Pringle had made night visits to the office of Alexander Pantages, were called by the defense today in the trial of the theater man on a charge of attacking the girl.

Jake Rosenstein, who admitted that he was a press agent and defined the profession at great length, said he had seen Miss Pringle in the Pantages theater office about 11 p. m., on several occasions, that it may have been half an hour later, and that she was alone.

His testimony contradicted that of the 17-year-old dancer, who said on the stand that she never had been in the building after 8:30 p. m. and then was accompanied.

Three physicians gave expert opinions for the defense. Their testimony purported to ridicule the method by which City Chemist Rex Welsh arrived at conclusions damaging to Pantages' contention that he did not attack the girl.

Medical Leaders Look With Praise Upon New Rejuvenation Operation

CHICAGO, Oct. 18. (UP)—Another medical attempt to find the fountain of perpetual youth was described in glowing terms tonight by surgeons who witnessed a rejuvenation operation upon a prominent 65-year-old business man here.

The operation was performed in greatest secrecy yesterday by Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse at Wesley Memorial hospital before a distinguished group of physicians attending the annual congress of surgeons. Identity of the subject, reported to be wealthy and prominent in civic affairs, was guarded closely.

Doctor Lespinasse, who is credited with having performed a similar operation on Harold F. McCormick, nationally known Chicagoan in 1922, said the operation has passed the experimental stage and that hundreds of persons have been treated successfully by the method.

The operation, he said, does not involve transplanting of glands or the use of glandular extract.

It is described as a phlebophlebostomy, or in the language of the layman, the transfer of blood from one vein to another.

RANGERS END INQUIRY INTO POWELL DEATH

Testimony of Witnesses in Nocona Shooting Not Disclosed

REAGAN GIVEN BOND

Release of Prisoner in Jail At Fort Worth Meets With Approval

Special to The Record News.

MONTAGUE, Texas, Oct. 18.—With the announcement today that bond of $10,000 had been approved for Walter Reagan, held in the Tarrant county jail at Fort Worth in connection with the slaying of City Marshal Ed Powell of Nocona last Saturday, it was also learned that Texas rangers, who for a week have taken a hand in the case, Friday conducted courts of inquiry in Nocona in the progress of which many witnesses were questioned.

The courts of inquiry, which began about noon, were conducted by Rangers Jim McCoy and Sam Mays assisted by Temple Yarbrough, Montague county attorney. They had been completed at a late hour Friday, it was announced. The nature of the testimony taken was not disclosed.

Mr. Yarbrough late Friday announced an agreement on Reagan's bond had been reached, but it was not known here whether the prisoner, in Fort Worth, had met the requirements.

Mr. Yarbrough further announced that bond for Claude Dix, held in jail here in connection with the slaying, probably will be agreed on Saturday.

Powell, the second Nocona city marshal to be killed in the last nine months, was shot to death with his own pistol at Nocona last Saturday night while in a scuffle with Dix, it is charged. Nine months ago City Marshal Ed Gooch was killed in a shooting affray.

Electrician Seriously Burned at Lawton

Special to The Record News

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 18.—L. M. Wilson, 30, Lawton division substation electrician, was seriously burned about the face, head and body at 2 o'clock this afternoon while working in the substation at Snyder. He is now in Southwestern hospital here in a very serious condition.

Wilson was engaged in changing the bus bars of a carrier and accidentally dropped a wrench, causing an electric flash which badly burned his face and neck and set fire to his clothing. Fellow employes rolled him in the dirt and gravel until the flames were extinguished. The injured man has been in the employ of the Southwestern Light and Power company for the past eight years.

Rain Covers Only Wichita Falls Area

Police Can't 'Believe' Burglary Bell As Bank Bandits Make $50,000 Haul

PERU, Ind., Oct. 18. (US)—The police today couldn't "believe" that bandits were robbing the First National bank—but they did and escaped with at least $50,000 in cash.

Tonight all Indiana was being searched, by motor car and airplane, for the seven young and unmasked, but heavily armed, men who staged the robbery and wounded two men in the get-away.

A large car drove up to the entrance of the bank and six men jumped out and raced inside. Each wore a top coat and these concealed at least two machine guns.

Kendrick Kenny, an assistant cashier, pressed an alarm button which sounded in the police station.

A light flashed on the bank telephone switch board.

"Answer it, kid." Snapped one of the bandits pressing a gun to the girl's side. "If it's the cops tell 'em everything's all right."

It was the "cops" and the girl reported "everything is all right."

Meanwhile more than 20 customers, and eight bank employes, were ordered to stretch out on the floor—face downward, as bandits trained the machine guns on them.

A bank employe was ordered to open the vault. He failed on the first try and was felled by a blow. Another employe took his place and fearing to stall he opened the vault. Cash and securities inside were scooped into sacks. Meanwhile other bandits were raiding the cage.

A crowd had gathered at the front door and windows, a volley from the bandits' guns routed the curious and stretched two men on the pavement with disabling wounds.

Those wounded are Patrolman John Devaney, and H. L. Howenstein, a railroad man.

The bandits then warned the prone bank employes and customers to "stay where you are" and fled out of a side door. Heads popped out of doorways and windows. They were immediately withdrawn as the bandits let loose a wild gun fire as they jumped into their car and sped away to the north.

Police headquarters were finally convinced that "something" was wrong at the bank and dispatched a squad car, to investigate. Within 15 minutes three airplanes were scouring the countryside for a sight of the bandit car while more than 50 private automobiles were pressed into service to answer calls from surrounding towns that might have a bearing on the search.

GRAND JURY TO QUIZ GRUNDY

Accused Man May Waive Hearing Monday

A preliminary hearing for Roy Grundy, charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of June Hilburn here Thursday morning, may be held in the justice court Monday, according to tentative plans announced Friday evening by J. P. Williams of Henrietta, attorney for the defense.

Grand Jury Meets Oct. 23

Because the 30th district grand jury is scheduled to reconvene here Wednesday, Oct. 23, the preliminary hearing may be waived and the investigation put into the hands of the grand jurors, the attorney said after a conference with Sam Spence, district attorney.

Meanwhile, the defendant late Friday had not added to his general assertion that the shooting grew out of family troubles. Mrs. Grundy, his wife until Sept. 18, visited him in his cell Friday. In a statement Thursday the widow denied that Mr. Grundy had any cause for jealousy against Hilburn.

Services for Victim

Hilburn was killed by three shotgun wounds received as he stood in front of the Club cafe, 615 Eighth street, at 8:45 Thursday morning. Grundy quietly waited for the police, to whom he surrendered.

Funeral services for Hilburn were conducted at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at St. Jo, Texas, the home of his sister, Mrs. Nana Phillips. Arrangements were under the direction of the Albert's Funeral home.

Record News Cotton Table

For Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma

Cotton prices were slightly stronger over Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma Friday, although the general range was little different from that of the previous day. Seed continued to show weakness, slumping $2 a ton at Altus, Okla., which has led the seed market for the last two weeks. Altus quoted $34 a ton and dropped $1 below the price of $35 offered at Memphis. Ginnings continued to increase Friday, and Memphis resumed the lead in total ginnings, although the gain over Frederick, Okla., was so slight as to leave the two leading cotton centers virtually tied for first place. Quanah crossed the 5,000 bale mark, and Vernon gins were also busy. The following prices prevailed Friday, according to reports to The Record News from correspondents in the principal interior markets.

'Cold Facts' Show Booze Syndicate Far From Ruined by Prohi Agents

Principal Ships of Smuggling Fleet Sail Serenely at Sea While Heads of Ring Sojourn in Various Places

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (UP)—The federal government's brilliant sortie Wednesday against the most powerful rum syndicate in the country—without doubt the most ambitious blow ever struck at organized liquor traffic—today was being regarded in the light of cold, inexorable fact.

When the poetry of the major coup turns to frigid prose, it becomes a fact that the liquor ring is not disturbed in the least and that the only severe consequence of the series of raids will be a slight boost in New York's holiday booze quotations.

Syndicate Had "Dope"

All the secrecy attendant upon the government's preparation for the "master stroke" was for naught, it was reported today, because the rum syndicate knew of the impending federal drive two or three hours before it came. The ring's super-efficient system of espionage took care of that.

So that with the syndicate's six motor ships still sailing the bounding blue, and with the barons of the business reliably reported to be sojourning in Europe, Canada, South America and other such territories, it is obvious that the ring itself is not overly concerned about things in general.

Equipment Seized

To sum the thing up, here is what the government finds in its possession as a result of the raids:

A $15,000 radio sending set, a nice three-storied dormer style country home at Atlantic highlands, N. J., a large number of machine guns, pistols, tear gas bombs, and a quantity of liquor variously estimated as being worth from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

The government knows pretty well just how big the rum ring is, and has a general idea of its many ramifications.

The government has an idea that certain banks in New Jersey knowingly financed the ring, but the government admits it hasn't at this time sufficient evidence to prove it. Records of the ring, seized in the raids, show that the rum barons kept a large account in one bank under the code letters "XL."

INDICTMENTS BREAK TWO DETROIT RINGS

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 18. (AP)—The workings of two huge liquor syndicates, centered at Detroit and serving New York, Chicago and intermediate points, were bared today by a federal grand jury which returned indictments against 42 alleged conspirators.

Undercover agents who enjoyed the confidence of the rum runners for nealry nine months were instrumental in securing the indictments. They went before the grand jury and revealed how liquor has been smuggled across from Canada in imposing quantities, stored at certain points along the border, and finally sent to New York or Chicago by rail and truck.

Hoover Disapproves Of Louvain Inscription

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18. (AP)—President Hoover declared today that he wished it thoroughly understood he had no connection with and did not approve of the inscription which Whitney Warren desires to be placed on the library at Louvain of which he was architect.

He said Mr. Warren had created a building which was architecturally a credit to both himself and this country but that the provocative inscription could not be supported by him.

The inscription which Mr. Warren desires to place on the library is: "Destroyed by German fury and restored by American generosity."

Stern East Texas Judge Starts Early to Keep Boom Town Clean

VAN, Texas, Oct. 18. (AP)—In an effort to prevent Van, center of Texas' latest oil strike, from becoming a typical rough and tumble oil town, Judge Joel R. Bond of the 86th judicial district is keeping in close touch with the community.

He is spending much of his time between court sessions here, and has passed word on to the rough element that might have already arrived that no wholesale law violations will be tolerated.

Though powerless to prevent the erection of a dance hall, now under construction, the judge has given its promoters to understand restrictions will be thrown about it to insure orderly operation.

Building in the community is going on at a rapid rate. At least 20 buildings are under construction, and as many more are expected to be started as soon as materials arrive.

Production in the initial well continues around 1,500 barrels daily.

CONVICTED MAN FILES MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

Judge Stine Sets Hearing On Appeal for Saturday Morning

SHORT DELIBERATION

Verdict on R. L. Williams' Death Comes After 40 Minutes

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, Oct. 18.—A motion for a new trial for Paul Strickland was filed by defense attorneys late today after a jury in district court here had given Strickland a life sentence on a charge of murdering Robert Lee Williams of Bowie last March 17.

A hearing on the motion was set by Judge Vincent Stine for Saturday morning.

The jury which found Strickland guilty of murder late this afternoon deliberated but 40 minutes. For the last two days they had heard testimony in the case.

Body Dragged to Pasture

Williams, the state charged, was slain at Strickland's home near here, the body being afterward dragged to a spot in an adjoining pasture. Testimony developed that Strickland and Williams had quarreled over a girl Williams claimed Strickland "ought to marry." Strickland testified that after a verbal clash the two men, both of who mhad been drinking, fought in the kitchen of the Strickland home, and that during the scuffle Williams was shot with a shotgun.

Strickland testified that when Williams dropped to the floor he did not know the prostrate figure had been riddled with slugs from the shotgun. He said he took two or three drinks, went to sleep and awoke, to find his lifelong friend dead.

Defendant's Story

Thereafter, he said, he attempted to put the body in his automobile, but failed. As to the body being dragged, as charged by the state, Strickland said Williams foot must have become entangled in the rear bumper of the car. He said he discovered the dragging body when he stopped to investigate whether he had a flat tire.

EASY--The Love Story of a Modern Girl--

By Beatrice Burton

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy, though young and pretty, is the "easy mark" of her motherless family. She is forever waiting on her more modern, flapperish sisters, Alice and Jeanie, and lending them her clothes and trinkets to aid in their conquest of the boy friends. The money she earns by painting cards for her father's bookstore partly goes in payment of her brother Howard's debts. She is hoping to earn enough to pursue an art course. When Neal Forsythe arrives to visit the wealthy Lawlers, Ann Marie quickly loses her heart to him in spite of her disillusionment when she finds him embracing Leota Ingram, the town's bad girl. Her dream of an art course is rudely shattered when Howard, her brother, tells her he is in trouble with Leota and asks Ann Marie to intervene. Leota unexpectedly appears at the Macy home as Florence and John Lawler call. To prevent a disastrous scene, Ann Marie quietly pays out her last money to Leota, who plans to leave for New York It is the money saved for the art course. Before she leaves town, however, Leota writes a letter to Florence Lawler that brings about Howard's discharge from her father's bank. Howard, frantic, says he will leave for the West, and Ann Marie must raise the money for his expenses. At the station, when he leaves, Ann Marie meets Neal Forsythe, just arrived for another visit.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XVI

Is this your taxi?" Neal Forsythe asked.

"No." Ann Marie shook her head. "My brother and I came down here in it. He just went away on the train. You bumped into him as you got off. . . . You remember my brother, Howard, don't you?"

He nodded, and then jerked his dark handsome head in the direction of the tracks that lay beyond the station.

"Was that Macy who just got on the train?" he asked. "I didn't recognize him. I thought you must be saying 'goodby' to some sweetheart of yours. Girls don't very often cry when their brothers go away, do they?" He laughed.

"I cry about mine," Ann Marie answered shakily, the tears coming into her eyes and the back of her throat once more.

She turned quickly away and spoke to the cab driver.

"My brother forgot to pay you," she told him, "and I haven't a cent with me. So will you stop in at Mr. Macy's book store on Front street for your money?—I'm his daughter. He'll pay you."

The man grunted by way of answer and began to pile Neal Forsythe's bags into the cab. Then he held open the door.

"Hop in," Neal said, taking Ann Marie by the arm, "I'll drop you off at your house."

"I'm going to my father's store," she answered. "But I'll hop in."

She knew by the sudden plop-plop of her heart how glad she was to "hop into" the cab with him. . . . To be with him for a few minutes. Just long enough to get a long look at him once more and to hear the sound of his voice.

"I'm positively mushy about him," she thought, full of self-disgust and happiness.

"I saw the Lawlers yesterday, but they didn't say a word about your coming today," she said, when they were in the cab.

"They didn't know I was coming," the man told her with his easy laugh. "But when I was here at Christmas they told me to come any time. So here I am!"

Ann Marie made a small choky sound that would have been a laugh if her throat had not been so swollen from crying . . . She was wondering what Leota would do when she looked up Neal's address in New York and found that he was missing from town!

"Leota Ingram is in New York," she said suddenly. "She's expecting to see you there."

She had her eyes on his face as she talked, and she saw him flush a dull crimson. He shifted uneasily on the seat of the cab.

"Leota Ingram," he repeated. "Now, that name doesn't mean anything to me. Who is Leota Ingram?"

Ann Marie knew that he knew who she was. . . . Even if she had not seen the letter from him lying on Leota's desk, she would have known it because of his telltale flush.

But she answered him quietly.

"She's the girl who was the maid at the Country club on Christmas Eve," she said. "You must remember her."

He nodded then. "Of course," he said. "But why would she expect to see me in New York?"

"She said you were going to find some work for her—as an artists' model. She had a letter from you. I saw it.

He shook his head.

"I didn't say I'd get work for her at all," he declared. "It's true that I did write to her—I lost my cigaret-case that night, and I thought she might have found it. She was in charge of the check-room, you remember. And my case was in my overcoat pocket. So I wrote to her about it, and that's everything I did write to her!"

Ann Marie swallowed the story hook, line and sinker.

All her doubts of him were swept away in an instant.

Like most people who usually speak the truth themselves, she never suspected anyone else of telling a deliberate lie.

"I see," she said.

"And do you believe me?" Neal asked, leaning forward to look straight into her blue and honest eyes. "You do, don't you?"

Ann Marie nodded. "Yes, I do. I hated to see you get all mixed up with that girl because — because my brother did. That's why he's leaving town, as a matter of fact. He went 'round with her, and she got to the Lawlers with the story before she went away last night. Today the Lawlers all got after him, and Florence broke with him. So he just cleared out—for good."

"Whew!" Neal whistled thoughtfully. "She must be some hard-boiled baby—that girl!"

"None harder," answered Ann Marie. "Please tell the driver to stop. Here's my father's store!"

As the cab stopped and the driver got down to open the door Neal caught Ann Marie by the hand. "What are you doing tonight?" he asked.

"Nothing," said Ann Marie, who knew she ought to spend the evening painting cards and telephoning people for orders.

"I'll come 'round to see you then," said the man, "if I may."

She nodded, her wet eyes shining like stars.

"That will be lovely," she said, catching her breath.

"You'll have to wait here a minute," she went on, getting out of the cab. "I owe the driver a little money, and I want to get it from my dad."

Neal did not offer to pay the driver, as most men would have done under the circumstances.

He did not get out of the cab to help Ann Marie out on to the sidewalk, as most men would certainly have done.

He sat comfortably in his seat, smoking a cigaret, and waited for her to come back.

"Goodby," he said when she had paid the man. And he did not lift his hat as the cab started away from the curb, leaving her standing there on the pavement.

But Ann Marie did not notice any of these things. . . . She had fallen in love with him, and so she was blind to his faults and his shortcomings.

Any woman who is worth her salt is always blind as a bat where the man she loves is concerned.

She never sees him as he really is—until she falls out of love.

"I want to borrow a dress from you, Alice," Ann Marie said that night, coming into Alice's bedroom.

Alice turned around from the dressing-table where she was making up her face. She had an eyebrow pencil in her fingers, and one of her eyebrows was dark brown. The other one was blonde—as nature had intended it to be.

"Borrow a dress?" she asked frowning. "What's happened to all of your own? Moths eaten them up or something?"

Ann Marie shook her head. "No—but I haven't anything decent to wear," she said. "That black thing is so shiny, and so's my old blue. I look like the fag-end of a hard-winter in both of them."

Alice raised her badly-matched eyebrows. "That," she said, "is not my funeral. And I certainly am not going to lend any of my dresses to anybody!"

She turned to the mirror and darkened the other brow with an expert hand. Then she began to rouge the inside of her nostrils.

"I always lend you my things," Ann Marie reminded her in her gentle way. "I never say 'No' to you, Alice—and tonight I do want to look nice."

"Who's the Big Shot tonight?" asked Alice, "Got a New Number?"

Ann Marie shook her pretty head.

"No. Neal Forsythe's in town and he's coming over," she was beginning when Alice stopped her with a laugh.

"Oh, ho!" she cried, her eyes lighting up, "So that's it, is it? That's why you want to doll yourself up like a Night-Blooming Cereus, is it?—Well, not with my best clothes, dearie! Not with mine!"

"Why not?" asked Ann Marie, puzzled.

Alice laughed again. Her laugh was not as pretty as her speaking-voice. It was a dry harsh little laugh.

"Don't ask me why, lovey," she said. "That just brings on more talk, that just brings on more talk! . . . But figure it out! Why should I lend you a dress so you can look Za-Za for the most attractive man I've ever known, I ask you!—Use a brain-cell and figure it out for yourself, Ann Marie."

Ann Marie used all of her brain cells. But she couldn't believe that Alice really was jealous of her.

"You have Johnny now," she said, "and you've always wanted him."

"That doesn't make me deaf and blind to every other good-looking man I meet, does it?" asked Alice sharply.

Then her eyes became as dreamy as it was possible for them to be. "I suppose Neal will come over with Johnny tonight, won't he—It will be nice to see him again," and she sighed as she spoke.

She opened the bottom drawer of her dresser and took out a pair of blond-silk stockings and some satin pumps to match . . . lovely expensive things that she usually wore only on state occasions.

She began to put them on while Ann Marie watched her with angry jealous frightened eyes . . . She knew that Alice was "out" for Neal Forsythe, just as she had been "out" for Johnny Lawler a few weeks before . . . She was dressing herself in her best for him this minute!

"Better go and jump into your clothes, Ann Marie!" she snapped suddenly. "It's almost half past eight. And after this you'd better see that you have something decent to wear when you need it. You can't expect to chuck every cent of your own into the bank, and then wear my clothes for the big man-chasing act, darling!"

Ann Marie's eyes were on the dresses that hung just inside the door of Alice's clothes closet . . . Scant tubes of satin and muslin and dull silk. Two-thirds of them decorated ever so daintily with little garlands and sprays of flowers, painted there by her own clever fingers.

"I should remind her that I helped make almost every dress she owns," she thought, feeling bitter and angry for a moment. "I ought to just take one off is hanger and put it on. That's what I ought to do!"

But it wasn't in her to do things like that . . . She might want to do them. But she did not even want to do them very often. And then only for a wild second or two.

In another half-minute she was her gentle yielding self again.

"I haven't any money in the bank, Alice," she said quietly. "Not a sou!"

Alice laughed. "You don't have to tell me a lie like that, Ann Marie," she said. "I'm not going to try to borrow any of it from you. . . . But don't tell me you haven't any money, because it's an insult to my intelligence!"

She banked the door shut the instant after Ann Marie had left the room.

In her own room, Ann Marie got into her own old black satin dress. It was shabby and it was shiny. But in spite of it, Ann Marie bloomed like a tea-rose—all cream-colored and rose-colored flesh, with her blue eyes glowing like real sapphires and the light catching in the dark gold gleams of her hair.

"I'm not so bad," she told her reflection in the mirror before she turned out the lights in her room. "And no one is going to take Neal away from me! No one!"

But something told her that Alice was going to—somehow. Alice who had always taken everything from her. Dolls and toys and slate pencils in her childhood . . . Silk stockings, hair-pins, perfume and anything else that she could lay her hands on, since she had grown up.

The door-bell rang downstairs.

She opened the door of her room to go down, just as Alice opened the door of hers across the hall.

CALIFORNIA OIL CURB IS URGED

Industry Faces Disaster, Says St. Clair

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18. (US)—California's oil industry faces demoralization, and a third of it is headed for receivership, unless there is an immediate cut in crude production, L. P. St. Clair, executive vice president of the Union Oil company of California, stated today.

"It is imperative," St. Clair declared, "that the production of oil in this state be reduced to current demands or else Oklahoma and Texas will not continue with their efforts to conserve oil.

"If they stop conservation, it will bring about a demoralization of the oil industry—a disturbance within the industry that will affect all lines of business.

"If the injunction proceedings (looking to enforcement of conservation in this state) are not successively carried out within a few days, one-third of the California oil industry is on the way to receivership, as there will be a drastic cut in the price of crude."

Lower crude prices, St. Clair explained, will sharply reduce the state's income, will throw hundreds of men out of work and will seriously cut down the buying power of oil operators and oil companies.

Curtailment of crude production can be secured through conservation of gas. At the present time 800,000,000 cubic feet of gas is being used daily in this state.

That Oklahoma and Texas will not continue their conservation policies if California does not follow suit is indicated in messages received from petroleum interests in those states. James A. Veasey, attorney for the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association, wired from Oklahoma City Tuesday, detailing that state's conservation efforts, and added:

"If California operators fail in conservation we fear disaster here, because everyone admits that the over-production problem is common to Texas, California and Oklahoma."

The same day, H. H. Smith, secretary of that association also wired.

California's daily production is now about 886,000 barrels, and this figure would have to be reduced to some 236,000 barrels to bring production in line with current demand, according to St. Clair.

Why doesn't this superlative coffee cost more?

IF coffee cost were always in proportion to coffee flavor, this fine old Southern blend would doubtless be the highest priced coffee in the 48 states. Why then is the price of Maxwell House Coffee so moderate?

Because Nature does not charge for flavor—and bountifully does she endow the rare and special blend which a young Southerner first served to his privileged friends long, long ago. Now, you can buy this famous blend at your grocer's; and when judicially you sip your first cupful, your own delighted tongue will tell you why Maxwell House has become the largest selling packaged coffee in the world.

After a Serious Sickness

"I WAS in a very weak condition from a serious sickness," writes Mrs. I. Leonard, 571 Joseph St., New Orleans, La. "I was so weak, I wanted to sleep all the time. I did not have strength to do anything. My back ached nearly all the time. I was just in misery.

"My mother told me I must arouse myself from the sleepiness, and take something to help get my strength back. She had taken Cardui and had been helped, so I decided to take Cardui, too. After my first bottle, I could see that it was helping me. I took four bottles at this time, My strength came back and I gained weight. Pretty soon, I was my old self again.

"My back quit hurting, and I haven't had any more trouble since I took Cardui."

CHURCH GIVES PASTOR OKEH

But 30 Members Desert 'Radical' Preacher

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 18. (UP)—A vote of confidence in the Rev. Homer R. Sheffer, pastor of the Unitarian church here, has caused resignation of 30 members of the church, comprising the board of trustees, it was learned today.

The Rev. Mr. Sheffer was criticized for "radical" teachings and attitude. Dr. Walker Hunt of Boston, representative of the American Unitarian association, has been arbitrating the differences between the trustees and the pastor.

John W. Van Meter, former trustee, said the board objected to the pastor because he believed and preached these things:

1—He preached trial marriage, even before children. He said all lovers should live together long enough to know the union would be permanently happy.

2—He was a humanist.

3—He did not believe in a hereafter.

4—He never prayed in church. He did not believe in prayer.

5—He practically was an atheist.

6—He was not a Unitarian.

The Rev. Mr. Sheffer denied the charges of "radicalism," and issued the following statement:

1—My views on sex are simply the view of outstanding social scientists of the day.

2—I believe that prayer is aspiration, and not an easy way of getting something for nothing.

3—The Unitarian position is that each man has his right to his own belief in God, and his own belief in all other questions.

4—Modern science does not conflict with religion.

5—The church is overwhelmingly with me in my beliefs. They are all Unitarians.

The two were captured about two miles east of Frederick by Night Officer Jenks D. McCorcle. They will be arraigned before Justice C. S. Rosson Friday and will then be taken before Judge Frank Mathews for sentencing, Ruch stated. The youths gave their home as Seminole.

Weaver expects to run a large chicken farm in addition to his hatchery business.

CLEMENCY FOR BANKER SURE

Judge and Prosecutor to Help Waggoner

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (INS)—Charles F. Waggoner, the banker "Robin Hood" of Telluride, Colo., probably will not have to finish the 15-year prison sentenced imposed on him for his $500,000 swindle of six New York banks.

At the behest of the judge who sentenced him, Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman, and with United States Attorney Tuttle, his prosecutor, concurring, he will be paroled after serving only five years.

Judge Coleman made this known today when he handed down an order denying Elwood M. Rabinold, the small-town banker's counsel, permission to withdraw Waggoner's plea of guilty and substitute one of not guilty.

Judge Coleman said he had written the parole board suggesting Waggoner be pardoned at the end of five years.

BAR TO STUDY COURT REFORM

Plan Would Take Sanity Cases to Experts

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 18. (UP)—Recommendation that the American Bar association advocate a law to take the decision of the sanity of a defendant in a criminal trial, out of the hands of the often bewildered jury and place it with a commission of experts, was being prepared today for presentation at the association's convention here next week.

The recommendation, drawn by the bar association committee on statute law, now in session here, proposes:

1. That a commission consisting of superintendents of the state hospitals for the insane and colonies for the feeble minded be set up in each state.

2. That the sanity of a defendant whose responsibility for a charged crime is questioned, be decided by this commission after observation of the defendant for not more than 40 days.

A report in writing would then be made to the court, and this decision would be final.

HOW SPAIN WENT BROKE

Daily Editorial

IF KING ALFONSO, who somehow can't manage to make books balance, will drop in on the next business show at Grand Central palace, he'll be able to pre-inspect the latest models in business alarm clocks and discover how wider-awake folk contrive to overcome the manana habit.

A hundred of America's leading system specialists, gathered there, will be pleased to prescribe for what's ailing the realm.

But there are nearer Spains than his.

Half the concerns within eye-reach are also dwelling in the past—expecting to meet current problems with yesterday's technique.

And, like Spain, they chronically wait for competition to prove that there's no place in the 20th century for slow-poke notions or nations.

Nobody can make the "same goods for the same money" with inferior tools. Any private or public enterprise, out of step with marching thought, must drop out of the procession.

Governments, factories and shops which do not regularly reject obsolete ideas and methods, belong in the discard.

And devices and policies become obsolete the instant a shorter cut or simpler strategy is manifest.

It costs less to replace an insufficient instrument than suffer its leaks and losses.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE BASIC unit of all production is the minute. And wherever its hands are behind pace-making schedules, merchandise can't be fabricated, output maintained or contracts fulfilled with despatch and economy.

Spain is cheating the junk-pile of antiquated state and industrial machinery. Her processes and economic attitudes are still in doublets. And so her budget stays in in the red.

Once master and cock of world trade, she went to sleep on her laurels and wakes to find customers dealing where they may get prompter service and superior value.

Success deserts all over-confidents. Commerce must ceaselessly accept the newer efficiencies for the same reason that great powers willy-nilly, revise weapons, retire futile cruisers and abandon weaker guns than a potential enemy's.

Peace treaties may finally dissemble navies and arsenals, but there'll never be a let-up in preparation for market control.

So begin to figure telephone on typewriters, robots that make and sign checks, and the various other corner-cutters and expense-savers making their first public staging next week.

Invention is providing opportunity with so many hair tonics, that there's another forelock to be seized each morning.

You can't leave well enough alone, so long as rivals won't.

Spain thought hereself so far ahead that it wasn't necessary to answer every time progress rapped at the door.

That's why Alfonso is operating under receivership nowadays.

History, which is mainly a collection of autopsy reports, offers many such pertinent parallels for the edification of merchant and manufacturer.

The mistakes of races are simply the magnified errors of individuals. We learn to stay alive by studying the flaws in "dead ones."

The remedies of advanced practice may be financially bitter pills, but the wasting diseases they cure are much dearer.

The worst months for automobile fatalities, statistics prove, are the last two of the old year and the first 10 of the new year.

Pity the Poor Writer!

PITY the poor editorial writer when the month of October comes along. There is some sort of unwritten law in this country that every editorial writer, annually, must write an editorial about October. There's nothing formal about this fiat; no taskmaster outlines the job, no editor storms into the sanctum to demand it. It's just one of those things that must be done.

The month itself compels it. In all the year there is no month quite like it. It is the midway point between summer and winter; it is autumn at its most wistful, its mose beautiful. It is a time when young men see visions and old men dream dreams.

So, of necessity, the editorial writer has to do something about it. And, with a writing man, to "do something about it," whether the emergency be an approaching war, a night club murder or the marriage of a movie actress, means to write about it.

Up to his typewriter, then, creeps the editorial writer, prepared to do justice to October. And straightway he begins to bog down. His Pegasus, if you call it that, gets mired. He fumes, sweats, smokes more cigarets than his system really needs, snarls at his co-workers, wishes that he had taken up truck-driving instead of editorial-writing as a vocation.

The poor man, in reality, has an impossible job. For how can anyone get October down on paper? How can anyone distill the essence of hazy autumn landscapes, wild flaming forests, crackling starlit nights and hushed farmland noontides and put it into half a column of hard type? It simply can't be done. October has to be felt. It cannot be described.

For October is prodigal of those moments when the veil that surrounds our workday universe is torn, so that toiling men can peer through and get a hint of unimaginable glory lying beyond. There come moments in the brief space of Indian summer, when the blue murk drifts over pasture and cornfield and woodland like the smoke from vanished campfires of legendary red men, in which all that we shall ever know about life, death, the present and the future is made plain to us.

Back of the glory of October are profound secrets. October's trappings—her scarlet pennons, her mystic fields, her nights of yearning moonlight—are nothing but symbols. They stand for things that we can only dream of. Behind them there stretch all the tragedy, all the heartbreak, all the magnificence and all the splendor of life—ordinary human life, which is a mystery and a portent, a defeat and a triumph, a failure and a dazzling success.

Those are the hints October gives you. But how can an editorial writer get them down on paper?

Better Automobile Headlights

BECAUSE the purpose of automobile headlights is to allow the driver to see the road in front of him, the state's efforts to bring about a better observance of the state headlight law should receive the cooperation of motorists who have concern for safety and driving comfort at night.

The Texas headlight law might be improved in parts, and certainly could be more strictly enforced, but even under present conditions it deserves better support than it has received from automobile owners. Few drivers seem to realize that glaring headlights and light improperly directed do not help the man at the wheel to see more clearly, but merely confuse approaching drivers. The strict enforcement of the Texas law might not entirely eliminate these conditions, but it certainly would bring about an improvement.

In seeking the revocation of licenses of all existing stations, and asking stricter supervision of stations licensed in the future, state officials are taking the right road toward their goal of improving highway conditions. They should have the intelligent cooperation of all automobile owners. Every motorist knows there have been many stations which have operated merely to collect 25 cents from each owner and to provide therefor slips of paper that would enable the motorist to secure a state license. Such stations are usually easily identified. They should be weeded out through the joint action of county authorities and owners of motor vehicles.

The Fans' Sportsmanship

THE AMERICAN BASEBALL FAN is usually supposed to be pretty hard-boiled. "Wolves," the players call their audiences—and sometimes the audiences live up to the appellation.

Yet when you consider the recent world series, you'll have to admit that baseball fans can show a pretty fine sense of sportsmanship on occasion.

Young Elwood English, of the Cubs, had a dismal time of it in the first games. His errors lost the first game for Chicago and helped lose the second. Yet the fans did not "ride" him; on the contrary, they cheered him when he came to bat, both in Chicago and in Philadelphia.

The fans realized that he was a youngster who was simply trying too hard. They realized that it was because he was trying too hard that he was making mistakes. So they made allowances for him and tried to encourage him and help him to regain his self-confidence.

They showed real consideration and sportsmanship in their attitude.

The Grandest Canyon

Other Broadway historians have told from time to time of the more obvious phases of the life of Broadway, or the Grandest Canyon, as we prefer calling it. They have usually sentimentalized it in one way or another—in the O. Henry fashion, with pathos or romantic glamour, or in the fashion of the Reverends Billy Sunday, Aimee Macpherson and John Roach Straton, who see in Broadway only a Satanic lure, drawing tender souls to perdition.

Few have described Broadway from the inside, even partially. Few have presented the facts in a cold, practical fashion. There have been millions of words of generalities printed about Broadway, but not a great many words of specific description. From a standpoint of pure commercialism, Broadway does not differ in many respects from other avenues of trade and barter. On Broadway, as elsewhere, the basic commercial principle is to buy something for one price and sell it at another price that is as high as the demand warrants. That goes for the ticket brokerages, the night clubs, the concessions, the rackets of all kinds; but no more so than for the haberdasheries, the perfumeries and coffee-and-sinker stands along the Hardened Artery.

The most accurate likeness of Broadway, however, was recently photographed by Master Wallace Sullivan, of the Variety staff, and with the permission of Mr. Sime Silverman, that fascinating rag's editor, the statistics collected about the most famous community in the world are herewith carboned:

Broadway, between 7:30 p. m. and 9:30 p. m., presents the most amazing transient statistics of any similar locality in the world.

During these hours more than a million people occupy a space 5,280 feet long and less than 2,000 feet wide.

Each individual occupies an imaginary plot 10 feet in area. Just about stretching room.

At 7:30 every night 70 patrolmen and four sergeants re-enforce a staff of 182 policemen to handle the pleasure-bent multitudes. And how they are bent!

A bare idea of the task is indicated by an official tally of taxicabs which cross the intersection of Broadway at 45th street. Police figures show that between 7:30 and 8:30 p. m. an average of 645 taxis cruise by and 85 per cent are loaded. Consider all the arteries and the immense traffic is neatly visualized.

Passenger cars outnumber the greatest fleet of taxicabs on earth, five to one.

One person in every 50,000 on the Main Stem during these hours is arrested.

Charges are usually for pan-handling, fights, vagrancy, motor collisions, parking, gambling, soliciting and occasional felonies.

Biggest selling commodity on Broadway is aspirin.

More bi-carbonate of soda sold between the hours than any city in the world, the reason being that Broadway visitors eat more delicacies, sweets and drink "speak" stuff. Walgreen and Ducore drug stores give away the bi-carbonate as an inducement to trade.

The obvious reason for the gigantic mob in this two-by-four area is exploitation. Times Square and Broadway obtain more advertising and general ballyhoo than any other locale extant.

It is the greatest cut-rate district in the world. Not unlike a colossal outdoor dime store, the hordes of transients and natives in a continuous stampede for its cut-rate tickets, cut-rate clothing, cut-rate haberdashery, its cut-rate tobacco, cut-rate drugs, cut-rate jewels, and its cut-rate liquors, its cut-rate night clubs, etc.

It is blebian to the core. The masses flock to the Main Stem. They eat more, talk more, see more, dress better and do more in their visits to the world's bargain counter than anywhere else.

Between 39th and Broadway and 52nd street more than 100 newsboys work day and night dishing out the news of the day. 25,000 newspapers are sold on 50th street (four stands) and more than 40,000 in 42nd street.

An average of 26,000 out-of-town newspapers are sold daily and 75 per cent during the rush hours.

The opening of Eighth avenue as a wider artery two weeks ago increased the traffic influx 30 per cent. 100,000 automobiles stream into and through the Rialto during the two hours.

Between August 5th and September 5th the three big bus terminals in this district disgorged 75,209 passengers with baggage. That may indicate how many arrive on trains.

Pickpocketing on the Stem is ancient history, according to police authorities. "Street walking" is most unusual. Disorderly conduct is at its lowest ebb.

The Roxy theater, with the greatest capacity of any other picture house existing, broke all money and attendance records during the four weeks run of "The Cock-eyed World," recently. Receipts, $634,046. More money than all of the amusement of the majority of average towns in the country take in in a year.

During the rush hours 12,000 people inspect the Lucky Strike store, which is 50 by 50. Nine thousand enter Walgreen's drug store.

Twenty buses leave for Chinatown between 7:30 and 8:30.

Broadway, catering to the masses, has little space for high-grade merchandise. Such stores as Knox, the hatters, are rare. Saks, the jeweler, had to remove his class merchandise to Fifth avenue. Broadway auctioneer joints too strong an opposish.

An average of 80,000 persons are seated in the 16 major picture houses of Broadway between 7:30 p. m. and 9:30 p. m.

Broadway is the greatest parade ground of all time!

The mysterious "palolo," a tiny fish found off the coast of New Zealand, can be caught at dawn in one particular day of the year when it rises to the surface of the sea for two hours.

"All Quiet on the Western Front"

By ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

CHAPTER XXXI

But sometimes it broke out in other ways, this danger, these pent-up things, as from an over-heated boiler. It will be enough to tell how Berger met his end.

Our trenches have now for some time been shot to pieces, and we have an elastic line, so that there is practically no longer any proper trench warfare. When attack and counter-attack have waged backwards and forwards there remains a broken line and a bitter struggle from crater to crater. The front-line has been penetrated, and everywhere small groups have established themselves, the fight is carried on from clusters of shell-holes.

We are in a crater, the English are coming down obliquely, they are turning our flank and working in behind us. We are surrounded. It is not easy to penetrate, fog and smoke hang over us, no one would recognize that we wanted to give ourselves up, and perhaps we don't want to, a man doesn't even know himself at such moments. We hear the explosions of the hand-grenades coming toward us. Our machine guns sweep over the semi-circle in front of us. But behind us the attack crashes ever nearer.

A few minutes and we are lost.

Then, at closest range, a second machine gun burst out. It is set up in a crater alongside us; Berger has fetched it, and now the counter-attack comes over from behind; we are set free and make contact with the rear.

Afterwards, as we lie in comparatively good cover, one of the food-carriers reports that a couple of hundred yards distant there lies a wounded messenger dog.

"Where?" asks Berger.

The other describes the place to him. Berger goes off either to fetch the beast in or to shoot it. Six months ago he would have been reasonable. We try to prevent him. Then, as he goes off grimly, all we can say is: "You're mad," and let him go. For these cases of front-line madness becomes dangerous if one is not able to fling the man to the ground and hold him fast. And Berger is six feet and the most powerful man in the company.

He is absolutely mad for he has to pass through the barrage; but this lightning that lowers somewhere above us all has struck him and made him demented. It affects others so that they begin to rave, to run away—there was one man who even tried to dig himself into the ground with hands, feet and teeth.

It is true, such things are often simulated, but the pretence itself is a symptom. Berger, who means to finish off the dog, is carried off with a wound in the pelvis, and one of the fellows who carry him gets a bullet in the cheek while doing it.

Muller is dead. Someone shot him point blank with a Verey light in the stomach. He lived for half an hour, quite conscious, and in terrible pain.

Before he died he handed over his pocketbood to me, and bequeathed me his boots—the same that he once inherited from Kemmerich. I wear them, for they fit me quite well. After me Tjaden will get them, I have promised them to him.

We have been able to bury Muller, but is not likely to remain long undisturbed. Our lines are falling back. There are too many fresh English and American regiments over there. There's too much corned beef and white wheaten bread. Too many new guns. Too many airplanes.

But we are emaciated and starved. Our food is so bad and mixed up with so much substitute stuff that it makes us ill. The factory owners in Germany have grown wealthy—dysentery dissolves us. The people at home ought to be shown these gray, yellow, miserable, wasted faces here, these figures who with lips trembling and distorted with pain, still grin at one another.

Our artillery is fired out, it has too few shells and the barrels are so worn that they shoot uncertainly, and scatter so widely as even to fall on ourselves. We have too few horses. Our fresh troops are anaemic boys in need of rest, who, cannot carry a pack, but merely know how to die. By thousands. They understand nothing about warfare, they simply go on and let themselves be shot down. A single flyer routed two companies of them for a joke, just as they came fresh from the train—before they had ever heard of such a thing as cover.

"Germany ought to be empty soon," says Kat.

We have given up hope that some day an end may come. We never think so far. A man can stop a bullet and be killed; he can get wounded and then the hospital is his next stop. There, if they do not amputate him, he sooner or later falls into the hands of one of those staff surgeons who, with the war service cross in his buttonhole, says to him: "What, one leg a bit short? If you have any pluck you don't need to run at the front. The man is A-1. Dismiss!"

Kat tells a story that has traveled the whole length of the front from the Vosges to Flanders—of the staff surgeon who reads the names on the list, and then when a man comes before him, without looking up, says: "A-1. We need soldiers up there." A fellow with a wooden leg comes up before him, the staff surgeon again says A-1—"and then," Kat raises his voice, "the fellow says to him: 'I already have a wooden leg, but when I go back again and they shoot off my head, then I will get a wooden head made and become a staff surgeon.'" This answer tickles us all immensely.

There may be good doctors, and there are lots of them; all the same, every soldier some time during his hundreds of inspections falls into the clutches of one of these countless hero grabbers who pride themselves on changing as many C-3's and B-3's as possible into A-1's.

There are many such stories, they are mostly far from bitter. All the same, they have nothing to do with mutiny or lead-swinging. They are merely honest and call a thing by its name; for there is a very great deal of fraud, injustice and baseness in the army. It is nothing that regiment after regiment returns again and again to the ever more hopeless struggle, that attack follows attack along the weakening, retreating, crumbling line?

From a mockery the tanks have become a terrible weapon. Armored they come rolling on in long lines, and more than anything else embody for us the horror of war.

We do not see the guns that bombard us; the attacking lines of the enemy infantry are men like ourselves; but these tanks are machines; their caterpillars run on as endless as the war, they are annihilation, they roll without feeling into the craters, and climb up again without stopping, a fleet of roaring, smoke-belching armour-clads, invulnerable steel beasts squashing the dead and wounded—we shrivel up in our thin skin before them, against their colossal weight our arms are sticks or straw, and our hand-grenades matches.

Shells, gas clouds, and flotillas of tanks—shattering, starvation, death.

Dysentery, influenza, typhus—murder, burning, death.

Trenches, hospitals, the common grave—there are no other possibilities.

In one attack our company commander, Bertinck, falls. He was one of those superb front-line officers who are foremost in every hot place. He was with us for two years without being wounded, so that something had to happen in the end.

We occupy a crater and get surrounded. The stink of petroleum or oil blows across with the fumes of powder. Two fellows with a flame-thrower are seen, one carries the tin in his back, the other has the hose in his hands from which the fire spouts. If they get so near that they can reach us we are done for, we cannot retreat yet.

We open fire on them. But they work nearer and things begin to look bad. Bertinck is lying in the hole with us. When he sees that we cannot escape because under the sharp fire we must make the most of this cover, he takes his rifle, crawls out of the hole, and lying down propped on his elbows, he takes aim. He fires—the same moment a bullet smacks into him, they have got him. Still he lies and aims again—once he shifts and again takes his aim; at last the rifle cracks. Bertinck lets the gun drop and says: "Good," and slips back into the hole. The hindermost of the two flame-throwers is hit, he falls, the hose slips away from the other fellow, the fire squirts about on all sides and the man burns.

Bertinck has a chest wound. After a while a fragment smashes away his chin, and the same fragment has sufficient force to tear open Leer's hip. Leer groans as he supports himself on his arm, he bleeds quickly, no one can help him. Like an emptying-tube, after a couple of minutes he collapses.

What use is it to him now that he was such a good mathematician at school?

The months pass by. The summer of 1918 is the most bloody and the most terrible. The days stand like angels in gold and blue, incomprehensible, above the ring of annihilation. Every man here knows that we are losing the war. Not much is said about it, we are falling back, we will not be able to attack again after this big offense. We have no more men and no more ammunition.

Still the campaign goes on—the dying goes on—

Summer of 1918—Never has life in its niggardliness seemed to us so desirable as now;—the red poppies in the meadows round our billets, the smooth beetles on the blades of grass, the warm evenings in the cool, dim rooms, the black, mysterious trees of the twilight, the stars and the flowing waters, dreams and long sleep—O, life, life, life.

Summer of 1918—Never was life much silently suffered as in the moment when we depart once again for the front-line. Wild, tormenting rumors of an armistice and peace are in the air, they lay hold on our hearts and make the return to the front harder than ever.

Summer of 1918—Never was wife in the line more bitter and more full of horror than in the hours of the bombardment, when the blanched faces lie in the dirt, and the hands clutch at the one thought: No! No! Not now! Not now at the last moment!

Summer of 1918—Breath of hope that sweeps over the scorched fields, raging fever of impatience, of disappointment, of the most agonizing terror of death, insensate question: Why? Why do they not make an end? And why do these rumors of an end fly about?

Why Young Brides Are Unhappy These Days

(The scene is the home of the newlyweds. The wife, crumpling a newspaper and throwing it to the floor, appears very dejected as her husband enters).

He: What's the matter, dear?

She: Oh, I'm just unhappy, that's all.

PHILLIPS

He: But why, darling? We've been married only a few weeks, you know.

She: I know it, but you just don't treat me right.... you don't do the little things that please a girl.

He (puzzled): But what haven't I done, dearie?

She (with a glance downward at the first page of the crumpled paper): Well, for one thing, you never take me to Central America.

He: Central America:

She: You've never even suggested a trip to Panama City, Havana, Jamaica, or any of those places.

He: I don't . . .

She: Here I've been your wife three months and I'm yet to fly over a buried city of the ancient Mayas.

He beginning to sense that she's been reading the papers: Really my dear, I never even thought you . . .

She: You don't think it's exactly fair to make a wife stay on the ground all the time, do you?

He: Perhaps not, dear. Well, I'll save up and get a plane just as soon as I can, honey, and take you on some nice long flights everywhere.

She (still dissatisfied): That isn't all. I'm disappointed about our wedding.

He: What was wrong?

She: Well, we didn't have any governors or congressmen present and your father came right out and told reporters what his bridal gifts were.

He: I couldn't help that.

She: And you didn't take me to the Maine woods and chop wood.

He: You didn't ask me to.

She: You ought to know, if you read the papers, that the place to go on a honeymoon this season is the Maine woods and chop wood.

He: But I hate chopping wood.

She: You could chop a little . . . just enough for the cameramen.

He: I'm sorry, darling.

She weeping): I think it's terrible!

He (trying to console her): Now you just cheer up and give me a chance. I'll work hard and get an airplane, an axe and everything.

She (tearfully): Promise?

He (resolutely): Promise!

Frederick Land Suit Continued Until Oct. 29

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 18.—After hearing attorneys in the application of John H. Mounts to vacate blocks 11 to 18 inclusive in the Mounts addition to Frederick last Saturday forenoon in district court, Judge Frank Mathews continued the case until Tuesday, Oct. 29. Mounts, who is the owner of this property, consisting of two blocks at the extreme south end of Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, is seeking to do away with the streets and alleys so that this tract can revert into a farm.

Adjacent property owners object claiming the elimination of the streets and grading will cause water to overflow on their land. John B. Wilson, city attorney, is representing the defendants.

Wesley Class Luncheon Proves Brilliant Affair

"Late gardens hold these discs of floating gold
That permeate them strangely with a light
Through autumn twilight, through its rain and cold
They glow like lanterns carried in the night.
Their fragile, thready stems hold all the weight
Of hoarded sunlight, and the gold wheels swing
As delicately light as if to wait
A moment poised before they take bright wing.

Late gardens only hold such ecstasy!
Such clear, clear gold, such spider spangled air
Cosmos adrift upon a gauzy sea
Too poignant, beautiful for hearts to bear.
Let us be silent, this may be the hour
The spirit takes its far flight from a flower.
—GRACE NOLL CROWELL.

"Golden Cosmos," the verses written by Grace Noll Crowell, furnished the motif for the exquisite tables set at the country club Thursday for the annual luncheon of the Wesley Girl's Sunday school class of Floral Heights Methodist church, when Mrs. Crowell was the honor guest.

When Mrs. Crowell wrote these verses, she sent Mrs. Ross Corlett a package of the seeds from the flowers that inspired them; from these seeds, Huff street is abloom with orange cosmos and the flowers from Mrs. Corlett's garden, on that street, in golden pumpkin holders, were the only blossoms used on the long table built in the form of a square U. Strips of orange crinkled paper over a line of black, carried out a Halloween theme and on each green program, a jolly jack-o-lantern grinned.

Mesdames Ross Corlett, Grace Noll Crowell, Billy Burt, O. M. Pierce, E. C. Crump, W. E. Bernhart, J. M. Hawley, John Dobbs, Ford, J. O. Pressley and Minter greeted the guests in a receiving line. An informal reception was held in the lounge until the guests were ushered to the luncheon table.

Mrs. Clyde Tittle, president of the class, introduced Mrs. S. E. Trevathan as toastmistress and after the invocation by Mrs. P. B. Cox, a singsong was led by Mrs. George Thorburn, joined heartily by the guests. Mrs. Thorburn was the first of a number in the class to announce her own activities. She told of how she had studied grand opera and of her many accomplishments, then sang a lisping song to the tune of "Old Lang Syne." An ovation greeted her burlesque.

Miss Kathleen Kriswell, of the Wichita Conservatory of Music, gave a beautiful violin number, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Philip Oviatt.

Mrs. P. B. Cox made a very heart-reaching talk, as new president of the Wesley Girls' class.

Mrs. Trevathan introduced Mrs. M. T. Clements in another burlesque, pointing all her introductions with pleasant jokes, saying Mrs. Clements insisted on being on the program and Mrs. Clement acknowledged that she insisted on being on the program because she was an artist, an actress, etc. Then, calling three assistants, Mesdames O. M. Pierce, Puckett and Carlisle Norwood, they put on the most laughable farce, "Uncle Silas Is Dead."

Mrs. C. Y. Tully, accompanied by Mrs. G. Wayne Barker, sang two exquisite numbers.

Mrs. Crowell gave a number of her lovely poems. Mrs. Crowell writes of the sweet homey things. She knows the heart of woman kind and her audience were spellbound during the reading. They would not let her sit at the conclusion of her program, and she gave as an encore, "Apron Strings."

From the sublime to the ridiculous, on the program, after Mrs. Crowell's readings, Mrs. T. R. Boone demanded recognition, which was refused her by the toastmistress. She appealed to Mrs. Tittle, president, who said Mrs. Boone must be heard or she would never sit down. Mrs. Boone read personal paragraphs from a paper supposed to be edited by the Floral Heights class. The paragraphs were very pointed.

Mrs. Clyde Tittle was called on last by Mrs. Trevathan as a truth tester, and using Mrs. P. B. Cox as the person being tested, she put questions and rather embarrassing answers were flashed in an electric box.

After the introduction of the guests, a farewell song closed the annual meeting.

Covers were laid for Mesdames Van McPhail, A. W. Simmons, Perry F. Wright, E. K. Kiddy, B. H. Minter, T. A. Norwood, B. F. Schultz, J. Alex Fisher, J. B. Patrick, J. C. Reynolds, H. P. Ledford, H. A. PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We wonder sometimes how many physicians feel pleasure in being able to heal. Or is it almost always a commercial proposition?

◇ ◇ ◇

The day of the general practitioner is almost gone. The old family physician, who treated all troubles, is a thing of the past.

◇ ◇ ◇

We know of one to whom we would like to pay tribute. He lives in a Mississippi town that has grown to a city since he moved there. We do not believe he starts out to visit many patients without having the divine tenderness of Christ felt toward Jairus when Jairus said "My little daughter lieth at the point of death. I pray thee come—that she may live."

◇ ◇ ◇

He is such a good man that he is imposed on by many. But everyone loves him.

◇ ◇ ◇

His wife takes a wicked joy in telling a story (a true one) about him. Shortly after they had moved to the little town, when there was no negro physician, the colored Baptist preacher called this doctor and asked him to come see his son. He went, and finding the little boy in the last stages of tuberculosis, did what he could to alleviate his suffering and left, telling the father to call him again if he was needed.

◇ ◇ ◇

A few days later the doctor received a letter from the preacher reading: "Dere Dokter: By The grace of God and yore kind assistence, my littel boy deceasted yesterday."

◇ ◇ ◇

In another town, we knew of a prominent surgeon, who when called on to go see a boy who had been hurt in an accident, refused to go until his fee had been vouched for by the employer of the lad. That was years ago; today, the surgeon is not so prominent, and people have the feeling that this came home to him.

◇ ◇ ◇

Doctors are the last to be paid by those short of money. This of itself speaks for the sacredness of their calling. People turn to them with "I pray thee come," upon their lips.

◇ ◇ ◇

And speaking of doctors reminds us of a hospital. Long ago, when they were first put up, we spoke of beauty of the little wrought iron lamps at the Wichita Clinic hospital. For several evenings we have passed there and see one light not burning—one at the very entrance. We wish it might be lighted again. They make one think, somehow, of the "lights all trimmed and burning."

Miss Sullivan To Give Radio Program

Miss Katherine Sullivan, winner of the local Atwater-Kent audition contest, will be presented in a program over KGKO by the Junior chamber of commerce Saturday evening from 7:30 to 8 o'clock it is announced.

Miss Sullivan will sing three request numbers which are as follows: "The Rosary," "Home in the Heart of the Hills" and "Mother Machree." At the close of her program Miss Sullivan will sing the aria from the opera "Heroldda." This aria will display the standard of music required in state contests.

Miss Sullivan will go to Dallas Oct. 24 to compete in another Atwater-Kent audition contest. She will be heard over WFAA.

In sponsoring Miss Sullivan, the Junior chamber of commerce is continuing its policy in encouraging the activities of young people. Miss Sullivan is the pupil of Mrs. Lois Parker.

Necklines

For the moire, satin or velvet gown, it is extremely smart to have the neckline cut square, rounded, V-shaped or whatever one likes, rather than to have it cut chemise fashion, with shoulder straps. Tulle, lace, chiffon and finer fabrics are inclined to use shoulder straps, often jeweled.

Every Man Treats Sweetheart Better Than He Does Wife

Folly of the Girl Who Would Marry a Captious Prig—Who Is to Blame When Married Men Flirt With Girls?—Straight Talk to a Silly Wife.

Dear Miss Dix—I have been engaged to a young man for four years and his attitude toward me is making me a nervous wreck. He is very arrogant, has an I-know-it-all manner, and he likes to insult me before people to show how superior he is. I have to dress well in my job, so he continually tells me that when we are married I will never handle his pay envelope. He never brings me even so much as a box of candy, and just before the evening has passed he pulls out a little memorandum book and writes down his expenses, which probably never exceeds the cost of a dollar for me. Last summer he insisted on my spending my vacation with him and his family, where I was perfectly miserable. So I have refused to go back this summer, which has made him very angry.

I have no trust or confidence in anything my fiance says or does, but I have been going with him so long that I have lost all my other friends and am afraid I will be terribly lonely if I let him go. I love him, but I am afraid I would have the life of a dog if I married him because he is so small and mean and selfish in all of his dealings with me. What shall I do?

—DIXIE.

Answer—If you have even one lobe of brain, it should tell you what to do. Give this chap up. Refuse to marry him as you value your happiness. Otherwise you let yourself in for a lifetime of misery.

He has shown you exactly how he will treat you and what you have to expect. He will never show you any tenderness, kindness nor consideration. On the contrary, he will lord it over you and he will crush your spirit and break your heart and you will become one of the meek, cowed wives who has to ask her husband every time she takes a long breath. He will be a tightward who will begrudge you the very food you eat and you will never have another pretty frock or a decent hat after your trousseau wears out. Do you see anything very alluring in that prospect? I trow not.

Be sure of this, Dixie: Every man treats his sweetheart better than he does his wife. When he goes a-courting he puts on his company manners as well as his company clothes and he is more polite, more deferential, more flattering to her than he will be when he has her for keeps, and she has to stand for any sort of line of conversation and conduct that he hands out.

Before marriage many a man is so gallant that he will not let a girl so much as lift a book and he tenderly assists her up a two-inch step, but after marriage he stalks ahead of her and leaves her to carry the baby and all the bundles and bags, and he expects her to get up in the morning and make the fire.

Before marriage many a man is so generous he lavishes presents on a girl and racks his brains to find new places of amusement to take her, but after marriage he never brings her a gumdrop, or takes her to the movies. Before marriage many a man spends his time telling a girl how beautiful and clever she is, but after he marries her he devotes him leisure to knocking her faults, and when she expresses an opinion he tells her to shut up, she doesn't know what she is talking about.

That is why a lot of girls marry the wrong men. The man has led them to believe he was one thing while he was quite another, and so the deceived girls have a right to our pity. They didn't know what they were doing.

But you have had your warning. Your young man has shown his quality, and if you marry him in the face of all the danger signals he has hung out you will deserve what you get. Of course, if you break off your engagement to this young man, you will be lonely for a little while, but it won't take long for the boys to find out that you are in the running again, and you will have plenty of dates. You are still young and pretty and attractive, and there are certainly better fish in the sea than this poor one you have hung.

Travel Club Honors Mrs. Crowell Friday

The little grilled window in the Spanish room was filled with orange cosmos and the tables seating foursomes at the lovely two course breakfast given Friday morning by the Travel club for their honorary member, Mrs. Grace Noll Crowell, were rich with color in bowls of orange zinnias. One table was particularly noted for the bowl of morning glories adorning it. The place of Mrs. Crowell was marked by a lovely corsage.

After the invocation by Mrs. W. W. Cook, Mrs. E. T. Duff, the president, introduced Mrs. Guy Rogers, who in turn toasted Mrs. Crowell, in a lovely talk, using quotations from Mrs. Crowell's poems to make the talk more beautiful.

At the conclusion of the breakfast in the sunny eastern Spanish room particularly admired by the honor guest, members and guests adjourned to the Travel club room, where the program was given.

Mrs. John T. Bonner was leader in the study for the day, the subject being "Norway." The reference reading was "The Bridal Chest" by Elizabeth Bennech Petersen and the subjects were given as scheduled.

Mrs. Bonner talked on the "Land of the Vikings" and "Scandinavian Gods and Myths;" Mrs. W. F. Pagan carried her audience from "Bergen to the North Cape, the Land of the Midnight Sun." Mrs. G. L. Shapard reviewed the "Bridal Chest" in an unusually brilliant talk, using a number of cuts to illustrate her talk.

Mrs. Crowell, once a Wichitan and a member of the Travel club, gave two of her lovely poems.

Members present were Mesdames J. W. Akin, John T. Bonner, C. H. Clark, John Caldwell, W. W. Cook, E. T. Duff, Arch Dawson, T. A. Hicks, Grace Noll Crowell, Leslie Humphrey, Homer Lee, Q. B. A jury in the 89th district court Friday afternoon denied damages to R. L. Poore in his $10,000 suit against the Hines Oil company in connection with fatal burns received by 12-year-old Albert Poore last February. The jury held that the child did not obtain from the oil company's grounds the gasoline which later exploded when he tried to use it for starting a fire. The plaintiff alleged that the explosive came from a bucket holding drippings from a defective pipe connection and left available on the lot. The defendant was represented by the firm of Kay and Akin, and John Davenport, attorneys.

Federation Head Tells of Pre-Convention Activity

An open letter from Mrs. W. R. Potter, of Bowie, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, has been given to the press. It reads as follows:

"The second Tuesday in November means a re-awakening of club interests in Texas.

"From every corner of our great state, enthusiastic, earnest clubs are electing delegates and alternates to attend the state convention in Mineral Wells, Nov. 11-15.

"District presidents, officers and chairmen of departments are busy with duties pertaining to the convention.

"The program chairman is giving the final touches to a constructive program. Outstanding artists, musicians, singers and speakers will be presented.

"There is the happy anticipation of meeting women who have become as sisters through long years of association in federation work. There is the joy of welcoming new members into the federation.

"The local chairman at Mineral Wells, with a local committee, is leaving nothing undone for the comfort and pleasure of the coming guests.

"What does the coming together of this large group of women denote? It denotes a spirit of unity—a cooperative program for the advancement of humanitarin, educational, civic and legislative interests. It means to re-affirm our faith and loyalty to the federation.

"We realize that the supreme need today is a deeper sense of the responsibilities as well as the privileges of citizenship. Let us through the days of the coming convention, impress upon the women of Texas the need for an active, intelligent participation of all of us in the affairs of government, which affects our homes and schools, that our state may remain a goodly heritage for the generations to come.

"Let us not forget that the women of Texas hold in their hands the task of perpetuating the high ideals and the big purposes which will be the dominant note of the Mineral Wells' convention.

"This will be a democratic gathering. Every woman in Texas is welcome to attend. My conception of the value of organized efforts is well expressed in the significant words of the illustrious Woodrow Wilson—'The thing I shall count upon, the thing without which neither counsel nor action will avail, is the unity of America—our America—united in feeling, in purpose, in its vision of duty, of opportunity of service.'

"This not only expresses the hope of the federation but to no uncertain extent, the reality of its existence.

"Then as club women let us unite our efforts and pledge our cooperation and mutual helpfulness to attain higher and better things."

SCHOOL-DAYS ARE JOY-DAYS FOR PROPERLY NOURISHED CHILDREN
SHREDDED WHEAT
With all the bran of the whole wheat
After a warm, nourishing breakfast of Shredded Wheat and hot milk, the youngsters are off to school with bounding energy and mental alertness. They like the crisp, crunchy shreds of baked whole wheat and it's so good for them. It's ready-cooked.

Drink enough milk—
eat enough milk desserts

YOU can't have your full share of vitality without milk, and the children can't grow without it. A quart a day for children, a pint a day for grown-ups—so you serve the tall, cool glassfuls.

Then if you are ingenious, you stir a little milk over a fire and make delicious custard . . . you put ice cream on your menu . . . you whip up a delicious chocolate drink at times. Condensed milk has no equal for making smooth, delicious custards and puddings.

Some time try Chocolate Froth. This takes a level teaspoon of sugar, mixed in the bottom of the glass with 1½ teaspoons of cocoa and a few drops of milk, till smooth. Then add a few drops of flavor, fill the glass to the brim with milk, and shake the whole delightful drink in a jar or shaker.

The sugar blends the chocolate and milk flavors—just as it blends the flavors of other combinations of healthful foods. It is an ideal flavor itself—the best-liked in all desserts. Use sugar to induce your family to take their full portion of milk, cereals and fruits. The best cooks are generous with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

LISTERINE
as an
ASTRINGENT
So many women have written us enthusiastically about Listerine used as an astringent, that we feel duty bound to pass the suggestion on to you. Furthermore, beauty doctors and dermatologists tell us that Listerine is almost ideal for this purpose. Next time you use an astringent in connection with your toilette, give Listerine a trial.
Note how it closes pores, how it tends to tighten sagging muscles and how wonderfully cool and smooth your skin feels after you have used it.
You will find that it accomplishes results equal to those performed by special astringents costing from two to six times as much. Moreover, Listerine protects you against infection. Though gentle in action and healing in effect, full strength Listerine kills even the stubborn Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) germ in 15 seconds. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

INDIANS AND DRAGONS BATTLE HARD IN SCORELESS GAME

BLACK'S PUNTS SAVE THE DAY

First Indian Pass Is Intercepted

PARIS, Texas, Oct. 18.—The Wichita Falls Junior college Indians and the Paris Dragons battled to a scoreless tie here Friday afternoon in a stubbornly contested game.

Early in the game the Dragons advanced the ball deep into the Indian's territory and kept it there for the length of the entire first quarter. Only a superb defense and the magnificient fighting spirit of the Indians kept the ball from going over the goal line during that perilous first period. Black's punting helped to stem the tide of the Dragon onslaught, for time and again his educated toe punted the oval out of immediate danger.

Neither team gained regularly in the first stages of the game. After the first quarter was over the affair was a see-saw game with neither team having quite the punch to put across a touchdown. Though in the second period Beadle went in for the Dragons and initiated an offense which swept the ball to the Indian five-yard line and within thrusting distance of the goal when the whistle blew and ended the half.

In Cox, Indian halfback, the visiting eleven had their biggest threat. His work bordered on the brilliant. Especially did he look good on long sweeping end runs and hard tackles. Black, left half, was effective on many off tackle punches that were good for five and 10-yard gains. But they never came at the time when gains would have meant touchdowns.

The Indians were successful only on one punt in the first half.

In the third period neither team threatened seriously to score and the play was mostly between the 30-yard lines. The Indians line putting up a great fight in holding the Dragon plunges.

The fourth period saw Captain Briggs go in as the new Dragon quarterback and Hatfield, passing ace, go to right halfback post. The Dragons then opened up a daring aerial attack that looked like a million dollars, but then lost the ball. After an exchange of punts the Dragons again took the ball and Captain Briggs went off tackle for a long 50 yards.

The ball was then on the 20-yard line. The Dragons were then penalized for roughing it up. Cox then intercepted a pass and stemmed the advance down the field. After a couple of line bucks Cox punted out of danger.

Taking the ball at this point the Dragons marched steadily down the field to the Indian one-foot line. The Wichita Falls line then stiffened and would give no further. Briggs was thrown for a loss within the shadow of the visitor's goal line as the game ended.

The beautiful triple pass from Withers to Wells coupled with Brigg's sweeping runs were spectacular features of the game. Habern Cox, and Black for the Indians played bang up good ball.

The starting lineup for both teams follows:

Wichita Falls	Position	Paris
Habern	L. E.	Withers
Waggoner	L. T.	Staples
Parker	L. G.	Bell
Barton	C.	Wells
Rames	R. G.	Shelton
Hutto	R. T.	Dixon

Beck and Juniors Leave for Denton

With a much more determined and experienced team to represent the school, Coach A. D. Beck will take his Reagan Junior high stalwarts to Denton Saturday morning for their battle with the Denton Junior High school. The team will leave on a large bus about 6 o'clock Saturday morning.

Only one player is ineligible, according to Coach Beck, and the bus will leave Wichita Falls with 20 gridsters aboard. An extensive and intensive training schedule during the last several days has given the boys greater confidence in their ability and a wider knowledge of football science, the coach said. Previous to their game Saturday, the boys have known only three plays, a pass, an end run and a punt, but when they go onto the field Saturday afternoon, they will have 11 plays at their disposal. Their use of the plays remains to be seen, for all of the boys are fresh material, having played only a few minor games this season.

Denton Bronchos Outplay Vernon and Win by 6 to 0

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Oct. 18.—Roundly outplaying Vernon in every department of the game, the Denton Bronchos defeated the Lions, 6 to 0 here this afternoon. Coach Weir of Vernon started a completely revised backfield and it was unimpressive in the first half.

The regular backs started strong in the second period, but the drive was short lived. The visitors made 13 first downs to five made by Vernon. Vernon's passing attack failed the Lions completing only two of 22 attempts, five falling into the hands of Denton players. Denton completed three passes out of eight attempts.

None of Vernon backs were able to gain ground. Grandstaff was Denton's best bet, scoring the touchdown after the ball had been carried down the field in a steady drive.

Estelline Trounces The Amarillo Yannigans 32-13

ESTELLINE, Texas, Oct. 18.—The Estelline Bearcats ran true to form here this afternoon and won a decisive 32 to 13 game from the Amarillo Yannigans. The game was bitterly contested from the beginning but the result was never in doubt after the first quarter.

Baccus was the shining light for the Bearcats while Hopkins for the Yannigans played an exceptionally good game.

The SPORTLIGHT

By GRANTLAND RICE

(Copy't, 1929, New York Tribune Inc.; Trademark Registered U. S. Patent Office)

Today's Round-Up

Pennsylvania-California — At Philadelphia. The longest traveling on record for a regular season intersectional game. A contest that looks close and interesting, although so far neither team has shown much offensive power. Pennsylvania will have to show more than the Red and Blue has turned on so far, although Penn has two good backs to match Lom and others who will work for the Golden Bears. There should be good open play worth watching by the 75,000 or so who look on.

Harvard-Army—At Cambridge. A game that may have a distinct bearing on eastern rankings. Harvard has much the better line—Army the more dangerous backfield, with Cagle, Murrel and others. Cagle is half a team when given anything like a chance. He may have his trouble today if the Army line doesnt' improve, for the Crimson forwards are good enough to bother any offense. Harvard has a good backfield, but not a great one. If her defense can surround Cagle the Crimson side should win.

Dartmouth-Columbia — At New York. A meeting of two leading backfield stars will take place when Hewitt of Columbia and Marsters of Dartmouth, get into action. Dartmouth looks to have more all-round strength and should win, but not by any decisive score. When Marsters is right there is no better back in the country.

Notre Dame-Wisconsin—At Chicago. Wisconsin will need every angle of her defense working to block the path of Rockne's fast, hard-running backs. Wisconsin is good this season, but Notre Dame is better and should win. The conference team will find it hard to gain any ground against Notre Dame's first squad, for the line is almost as good as the backfield.

N. Y. U.-Penn State—At New York. N. Y. U. is well below last season's standard, with so many stars missing, and Penn State has not been tested sufficiently to furnish any accurate line on its real strength. Bezdek, however, expected to have a better team than he had last season. If he has, the Nittany Lions should have the edge, but there won't be much to spare.

Fordham-Holy Cross—At New York. One of the hardest battles in the East. Frank Cavanaugh has a team worth looking at this season, an aggressive outfit, with a first-class passing game. Holy Cross is always well up, but on this occasion Fordham should have the call.

Northwestern-Minnesota—At Evanston. This will bring about a clash between two of the strongest teams in the Western conference—both unbeaten, both out after the championship. Minnesota has a big, fast outfit, but Northwestern has the same. This is another one of those contests that will be close enough to have the breaks decide the battle.

Tennessee-Alabama — At Knoxville. Two of the strongest teams in the South, both unbeaten, will meet to drop at least one likely contender from the race. Tennessee has the edge, with more backfield stuff, McEver being one of the season's stars. Alabama looks to have one of her best teams since the Crimson Tide was running high, but Tennessee has the edge.

Georgia Tech-Florida—At Atlanta. A game Harvard scouts will watch with interest. Georgia Tech has eased off from last season and Florida looks to be fully as strong as she was a year ago. The beating Georgia Tech took from North Carolina will be a help. Not much to choose from in a meeting of two good backfields.

Michigan-Ohio State—At Ann Arbor. The trimming that Michigan took from Purdue should give the Wolverines a better chance. Purdue is strong, but Michigan is stronger than the Maize and Blue looked to be that day. Ohio State was good enough to edge out Iowa, but in this clash Michigan has a thin jump.

Cornell-Princeton — At Ithaca. Princeton fell before Brown, but, for all that, Bill Rope's Tiger outfit has first class possibilities. It should be strong enough to beat Cornell, although Dobie has a better team than he had last fall.

Yale-Brown—At New Haven. Having beaten Princeton, Brown will now attempt to hook another member of the Old Triumvirate within a week. Brown has been erratic and Yale is below last year's stuff, with only fair backfield material—nothing to rave about. Brown has at least an even chance, possibly a shade.

Iowa-Illinois—At Iowa City. A hard game for Zuppke's team, but one he should win. Illinois looks to be among the strongest four or five teams in the country, with another good shot at the Western conference championship.

Texas-Oklahoma—At Dallas. One of the feature turns of the Southwest. Both teams have been well up, but in meeting Texas should have the edge.

North Carolina-Georgia — At Chapel Hill. Georgia beat Yale, but the Red and Black invaders from Athens will have a harder job to face in overpowering North Carolina, the team that trimmed Georgia Tech. North Carolina has one of the best teams in the South and should be good enough to win, after a hard afternoon.

Nebraska-Pittsburgh—At Lincoln. Nebraska was good enough to crowd her way by Syracuse, but Pittsburgh is another. The Panthers have one of the best teams in any section you can think about, off hand or on hand, here or there, upside or down.

Lubbock Captures Game From Electra by 20 to 0

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Oct. 18.—The Lubbock Westerners took another step toward the district No. 1 championship here today by defeating the Electra high school 20 to 6.

Moody Smith turned in a good game for the Westerners leading an offensive drive that put a touchdown over in the first five minutes. Again in the last part of the first half, a pass, Smith to Price, who ran 35 yards for a touchdown, put the Lubbock Westerners in the scoring column again.

Facing a braced aggregation in the second half, the Westerners fought diligently and in the third quarter, Malcom Martin skirted the end for 37 yards and the final score for Lubbock. Moody Smith kicked goal after the first two touchdowns.

HUSKERS SET FOR PANTHERS

Big Six Champs Upholding West Prestige

By J. H. ANDERSON
Associated Press Sports Writer.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 18. (AP)—Pitt's Panthers well fed on three decisive victories so far this season, were far from their lair tonight. In a Lincoln, Neb., hotel they silently lay in wait for the Nebraska Cornhuskers, whom they hope to tear in shreds tomorrow and advance another step nearer the unofficial national football champions.

Standing Is One All

The 1928 Big Six champions will uphold conference prestige against one of the East's greatest teams. The score between the two elevens is even. Each has won once and last year, in Lincoln, the two rivals battled to a scoreless tie.

This game, the most important in the conference from a national standpoint, is expected to draw as many fans as will see the Oklahoma-Texas fray in Dallas, the Kansas-Kansas Aggie traditional battle in Lawrence, and the Missouri-Drake interconference fracas in Columbia, the other three Saturday games involving conference teams. Iowa state departed from the usual Saturday tussle to meet Marquette in Milwaukee tonight.

5,000 Go to Dallas

Several special trains will carry nearly 5,000 Oklahomans to Dallas for the Texas game, a contest which has aroused the fans of both states. Both teams uncorked strong offenses last week, Texas in beating Arkansas 27 to 0, and Oklahoma in downing Creighton, 26 to 0. Extensive use of the aerial game is expected.

Dad's day, a journalism conference, warfare between students of both schools as well as two football teams, conceded to be better than last year, has combined to make the Kansas-Kansas Aggie game in Lawrence a mecca for state fans. This year's encounter is the 27th annual fracas. Kansas, victor in all but one game before 1922, last year won for the first time in seven years a lone touchdown with the timer ready to blow the final whistle, bringing the victory.

Daring Automobile Races Here Sunday

The stage is all set for the first automobile races of the fall season to be run in Wichita Falls at Call race track on Sunday afternoon 2:30 o'clock.

The racing program is under the auspices of George Weber of this city and will present three events of note and a feature attraction which is to be over the 50-mile route, run in 100 laps.

In order to qualify for the main event every entry will compete in time trials covering one lap of the track. The second event on the racing program will be the class A race for cars selling for more than $1,000, and the distance is to be five miles in 10 laps. The third event on the racing program will be for cars selling for less than $1,000 and the distance to be the same as for the cars selling above the $1,000 mark.

The feature attraction of the program is the 100 lap 50-mile race free for all who have qualified in the first event.

All roads are expected to lead to the race track here on Sunday as the throngs of motorists gather to witness these thrilling and spectacular exhibitions of racing skill and daring.

Walters and Anadarko Go For Scoreless Tie Game

WALTERS, Okla., Oct. 18.—A strongly contested game the last half of which was played in a pouring rain here this afternoon, ended without either team being able to cross the goal line of their opponents. Anadarko was unable to penetrate the Walters line and relied principally on aerial attack for their gains. Each team completed several passes for considerable yardage. Anadarko threatened when they reached the Walters 10-yard line in the second quarter, and Walters was successful in reaching a spot equally near the Anadarko goal line in the fourth quarter.

The field was heavy during the last half because of the rain and the game was slowed down considerable. This was a Southern conference game and leaves each team undefeated in the conference. Walters has defeated Wilson and Duncan, and Anadarko won from Yukon.

Okla. Sooners and Longhorns Reopen 29-Year-Old Feud at Dallas Today

DALLAS, Oct. 18. (AP)—Reopening a 29-year-old feud after a lapse of six years, the Universities of Oklahoma and Texas tomorrow will send onto the football field two teams which again will test the merits of the game in two portions of the Southwest.

Texas, representing the Southwest conference, will be outweighed by the Sooners but will depend on a passing game to overcome that handicap. Oklahoma's stalwart line will be the bulwark defending the dignity of the Big Six conference.

Much Reserve Strength

Despite a wealth of reserve strength, Coach Clyde Littlefield's Texans can be expected to carry their game through the air instead of trying to batter the Oklahoma line. That line, despite Curtis Berry's weakened shoulder which possibly will put Hillary Lee, sophomore giant, at left tackle, should hold against the lighter Texans.

Ad Lindsey's Sooners must watch the Longhorn backfield. The Texans will depend largely on Dexter Shelley, flashy halfback, who is expected to better his last performance against Arkansas. Nona Rees probably will start at quarter with Eddie Beular at the other half and Jim Beard at full. That combination, with "Big Un" Rose and Rut Vining at ends, ran up 27 points in the last period of the Arkansas conflict.

Longhorns Formidable

The Longhorn wall also will be more formidable than expected. Nick Gatoura, injured, will return at one guard post with Curtis Beaty protecting center, Mac Burnett on the other side. Capt. Gordy Brown and Grover Emerson probably will be the tackles.

The Sooners, though, with Tom Churchill, United States decathlon representatives at the Olympics, at one end and Taylor at the other also may do some passing. Churchill has a reputation for being able to snatch passes as well as run with them.

Okla. Backfield Powerful

But the Oklahoma backfield will present the main strength of the visitors. Kirk may draw the fullback job, or it may go to Captain Crider. Mayhew, Flint or Mills can fill the other positions. If Lindsey decides Guy Warren's lack of beef is no handicap the sophomore might get in at half. Warren weighs only 137 but is fast and slippery in an open field.

The two schools played their first football game in 1900. Texas won, 28 to 2. From then until 1923 they played 21 times, twice in 1901 and 1903. In 1923, the Longhorns, with Big Oscar Eckhart running the ball, won 26 to 14. That year the Sooners joined the Missouri Valley conference and were forbidden to play outside teams. Of the 23 games Texas won 14, Oklahoma 8, while one was a tie.

Chillicothe Drops 19-0 Game to Olney

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, Oct. 18.—Despite predictions of a tight game and a threatening first-quarter attack, the Chillicothe High school eleven took a 19 to 0 defeat when they met the Olney Cubs here Friday afternoon on the local field. The visitors opened up with a slashing attack which kept the ball in Olney territory for almost the whole first quarter, but the Cubs came back in the second period to hammer the opposing line for big gains and the rest of the game was in Olney's favor.

Cubs Superior Both Ways

The Cubs proved superior at both offensive and defensive, their flashing halfback, Greer, outpunting the Chillicothe men on every occasion. He punted five times for an average of 43 yards while the opposing backs punted eight times for an average of only 24 yards. The Cubs gained a total of 263 yards from the line of scrimmage against a total of 180 for Chillicothe. Olney made 18 first downs, attempted 12 passes and completed five for a total of 76 yards while Chillicothe made 11 first downs, attempted 12 passes and completed three for a total of 58 yards.

Wix Is Outstanding

Scott Wix, sensational Olney half, was the outstanding player of the game, pushing over two of the Cub tallies and shining with his brilliant broken field running. Goode, Cub quarter, starred at passing, and Graves at full, with Dees, Wright and Kuehn, were outstanding on offensive. The Gilmore brothers, backs, and H. Ramsey, right end, were outstanding players.

Only two substitutes, both for Olney, were made during the game. The victory was the third conference win for Olney.

Memphis and Clarendon Battle to 6 to 6 Tie

Special to The Record News

CLARENDON, Texas, Oct. 18.—Memphis Cyclones and Clarendon Bronchos fought to a 6-6 tie here today in a hard fought game that was a complete reversal as to form of the teams in each.

The local high school warriors carried the game to the Cyclone's territory early in the game and Dillard ran it over from the 10-yard line on an end run around his own left end in the first quarter. The Bronchos clearly outplayed the Memphis boys the entire first half. The opening of the second half saw the Memphis team sweep the Bronchos off their feet and score after a smashing ripping running game, the best that has been seen here this year by far. The Cyclones held the ball, most of the half and as clearly outplayed the Bronchos in this half as they were outplayed in the first.

Seymour Nabs 20-0 Game Off Iowa Park

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Oct. 18.—The Seymour Panthers trimmed the Iowa Park Hawks this afternoon by a decisive score of 20 to 0. It was the Panthers' game from the very first, practically the entire game being played in their territory and the game was never in doubt.

Although outweighed the Panther line held the Huskies throughout the game, and made big openings for the fast backs to go through with big gains. The first touchdown was made in the first quarter by Captain Morris over center with completed pass for extra point, and also the second touchdown with line plunge and uncompleted extra point. The third touchdown was made by Badgwell over center with completed pass for extra point. The star for Iowa Park was Captain Daugherty.

Hooser for Seymour made sensational gains and tore around end for gain after gain until removed from the game in the last quarter with an injury. Morris, Badgwell and Cooper all did good work, while the running interference of the ends and the openings made by the line helped in the scoring. The team showed considerable improvement over the game of last week, and it looks now as if the Panthers will play for conference honors with the winner of the Olney-Chillicothe game today. Seymour made 16 first downs with 3 completed passes. Iowa Park made 1 first down and completed 3 passes out of 7 attempts.

Lawton Smashes Way Over Ardmore for 56 to 0 Win

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 18.—Lawton tore through the Ardmore High school here for a score of 56 to 0 this afternoon. The Ardmore line was like a sieve for the Lawton backs, who scored at will both on line plunges and on wide end runs. Though Ardmore outweighed the local high school eleven. The visitors were too slow on their feet and never got within 50 yards of the Lawton goal.

Lawton had run up a score of 40 points at the end of the first half and from then on ran in numerous substitutes besides Butler and Gentry. Captain Wright on the line played a stellar game for Lawton. Chickasha Junior High lost to Lawton Junior, 7 to 6, in the first game of a double-header.

PACK-QUANAH CLASH TODAY

Four Mates Missing in Lineup

The Wichita Falls High school Coyote pack will begin the district championship race here at Athletic park when they tie into the Quanah Indians at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The Pack will enter the game minus four of their former mates, and to add to this weakness, Coach Barry Holton has declared that the team is taking the game entirely too lightly. It is his belief that the attitude of the squad is of more importance than the physical weakness or lack of players. Despite the defeats of Quanah at the hands of other teams, the Pack will find the Indians no easy mark and they will have to put up a battle to win, the coach said.

Line Weak on Offense

The practice workouts during last several days have been confined to smoothing out the wrinkles in the attack, the line having proven itself splendid on the defensive but entirely too weak on the offense. Several old and new plays have been practiced and the coach feels assured that the Pack will enter the game with a bag full of plays which should prove effective against the Indians. The running and passing attack has been far from pleasing and great development will become necessary in actual play before the Coyotes can place themselves as strong contenders for the championship.

No Outstanding Backs

The practice has also included emphasis on co-operation between the backfield and the line, since no outstanding backfield ball carriers have yet appeared. With only average punch in the attack, it will require machine-like playing in both departments to gain any ground, the coach said. The withdrawal from school of Watson and the ineligibility of Skeen have handicapped the perfection of the line and necessitated the breaking in of two more guards. Earl Hutcheson, formerly reserve center, will be in the lineup Saturday in one of the guard positions, and Dixon will hold down the other. Tackle position is also weakened by the ankle injury of Captain Hodgkiss, who will be able to play only a part of the game. Holden will occupy the other tackle position. Beaty will remain at center and the Carstaphen brothers at the ends. Dickey will call signals with Holton at full and Elliott and Lee at the Halves.

The Quanah eleven will probably lineup as follows: Moseley, center; Bolton, left guard; Ohair, right guard; Harrell, left tackle; Ennis, right tackle; Norman, left end; Shields, right end; Roberts, quarterback; Page, right halfback; Hall, left halfback; Rodgers, fullback. Substitutes: Garner and Hollis, halves; Lovell, fullback; Guin and Corder, ends; Barrett, center; Prince, tackle; L. Bolton and Mahoney, guards.

Spur Scores Sensational 40-0 Win Over Floydada

Special to The Record News

SPUR, Texas, Oct. 18.—The Spur Bulldogs upheld their unblemished season record Friday afternoon by walking over the Floydada Whirlwinds to the tune of 40 to 0. The slashing attack of the Bulldogs proved too much for the Floydada line, which broke time and again before the charges of the Spur backs. The Spur eleven is undefeated.

Health and Diet Advice

The Value of Strong Abdominal Muscles

There are 682 little braces distributed over the body. These are called muscles, and are composed of the most remarkable, active substance in the world which is known by the name of muscle fiber. Some of these muscles are more important than others to bodily health.

Practically all of the vital organs are composed of muscular tissue. Next in importance to the muscles of these organs are the muscles of the spine and the muscles of the abdomen. If everyone would keep these spinal muscles strong, there would be little need for the osteopath or chiropractor. Spinal troubles and pinched nerves in this section come mostly because the spinal muscles are too weak and the vertebrae are not held in their normal positions.

Since man has learned to walk upright his chest has caved in more and more and abdomen has protruded in exact ratio. The narrow, muscular waist of primitive man has changed to the saggy, protruding abdomen of modern man. The abdominal organs have prolapsed to the very basin of the pelvis, and almost all of these organs now lie well below the navel when at least half of them should be above this point.

Whether or not man descended from a monkey, the grammar grade school boy who studies philosophy can easily understand that if men did at the present time walk on all fours there would be ample room for all of the abdominal organs to hang in comfortable position without interfering one with the other. If we insist on walking on two feet, we should at least learn how to develop our abdominal muscles so as to hold the stomach and intestines in a better position so that they can do their work more efficiently.

Sluggish bowel elimination is perhaps the greatest common cause of disease. There is no cause of constipation greater than that from prolapsed and kinked intestines. Those who have tried to cure constipation with careful dieting should remember that constipation is just as often caused by a faulty position of the intestines. If this is the cause of constipation, there is no cure except through training the abdominal muscles, raising the organs to their normal positions, and thus ironing out the kinks which have existed.

In many cases adhesions have formed around these kinked intestines, and exercise alone will not be sufficient to correct the trouble. In that case, deep manipulations are required. This is a form of bloodless surgery, and is often indispensable in the permanent cure of faulty bowel elimination.

The exercises for strengthening the abdominal muscles should be mostly taken while lying on the back. I have a special chart of these exercises which I have prepared for you with illustrations showing the exercises. I will be glad to send this to you if you will simply send me a large self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Underarm Perspiration

Question—E. E. asks: "Will you tell me through your column what can be done to check perspiration from the armpits?"

Answer—The best way to stop excessive sweating under the arms is to induce a good sweat all over the body three or four times a week. You can best do this by putting on heavy clothing and taking a long walk. If all of the pores of the skin are active you will not be troubled with an abnormal amount of perspiration under the arms.

Catarrh

Qpestion—G. H. H. writes: "I am 14 years of age and have been troubled with catarrh for over a year. It never leaves me and is worse in winter than in summer, especially in the morning upon arising."

Answed—Change your diet so as to exclude all starches, sugars and fats. Follow the weekly menus published in this column, substituting some kind of fruit wherever I advise a starchy meal.

Locomotor Ataxia

Question—B. T. asks: "What is locomotor ataxia, and what is the cause and cure—if there is a cure?"

Answer—Locomotor ataxia is caused by some interference with the nerve supply going to the legs. This occurs principally in the lumbar region of the spine. A cure is possible in the early stages, and in today's mail I read a letter from a correspondent who has been entirely cured through following the advice received through this health service. This patient reports that before starting the treatment she could not walk at all and that four leading physicians in her home town had declared her case hopeless. Her cure was effected through following proper dietetic and hygienic rules, and no other treatment than this was advised. Special instructions will be sent to anyone upon request.

More Italians Live in New York Than in Rome

ROME, Oct. 18. (US)—New York has more Italian residents than Rome, Milan or Naples, it was disclosed today in the official census. Each of these three important Italian centers has less than 1,000,000 inhabitants.

Milan, on Aug. 1, had 956,425 residents; Naples, 953,164; Rome, 901,-909. Milan, however, expects to reach the million mark by next summer through its increased commercial and industrial facilities; Rome and Naples see their mounting birth rate as the hope to get into the class of Milan.

Escobar's Officers to Regain Army Posts

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 18. (AP)—Officers who were relieved of their commissions for alleged participation in the Escobar rebellion last spring will not be readmitted to the army, even though they be exonerated by military courts, the war department has announced.

An old law of Japan ruled that if a dog barked at night, the owner was to be arrested and sentenced to work for a fixed time for the neighbors whose slumbers the dog had disturbed.

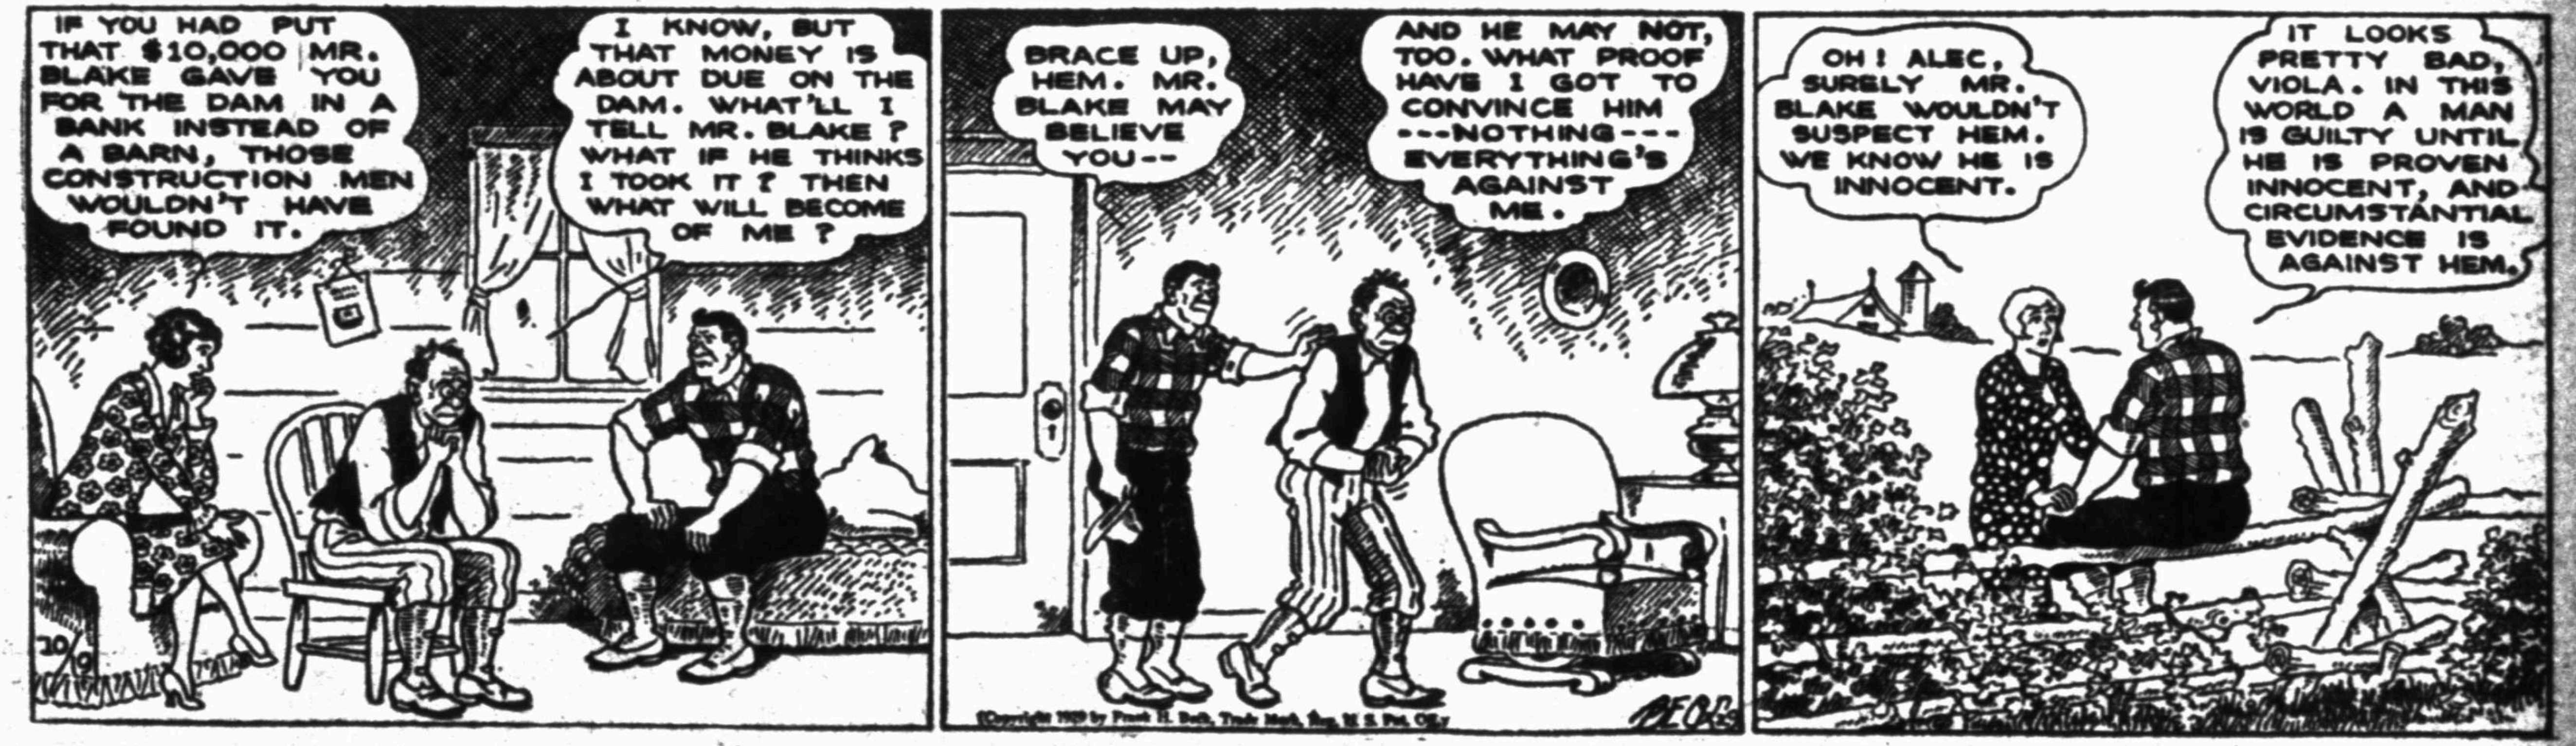
GAS BUGGIES

By Frank Beck



IF YOU HAD PUT THAT $10,000 MR. BLAKE GAVE YOU FOR THE DAM IN A BANK INSTEAD OF A BARN, THOSE CONSTRUCTION MEN WOULDN'T HAVE FOUND IT.
I KNOW, BUT THAT MONEY IS ABOUT DUE ON THE DAM. WHAT'LL I TELL MR. BLAKE? WHAT IF HE THINKS I TOOK IT? THEN WHAT WILL BECOME OF ME?
10/19
BRACE UP, HEM. MR. BLAKE MAY BELIEVE YOU—
AND HE MAY NOT, TOO. WHAT PROOF HAVE I GOT TO CONVINCE HIM —NOTHING— EVERYTHING'S AGAINST ME.
BECK
OH! ALEC, SURELY MR. BLAKE WOULDN'T SUSPECT HEM. WE KNOW HE IS INNOCENT.
IT LOOKS PRETTY BAD, VIOLA. IN THIS WORLD A MAN IS GUILTY UNTIL HE IS PROVEN INNOCENT, AND CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE IS AGAINST HEM.

Tariff Lobby "Makes Good"

Manufactures Pleased at Eganson's Work

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18. (INS)—An intimate picture of the supreme satisfaction accruing to all concerned by the action of Senator Hiram Bingham in employing Charles L. Eyanson, Connecticut manufacturers' agent as his confidential secretary while the new tariff bill was being drafted was revealed today at the senate lobby inquiry.

Officials of the Connecticut Manufactures association which loaned Eyanson to Bingham, said he had "made good," accomplished "splendid work" and that his "results will bear fruit." Members of the association likewise were pleased, one member declaring "you get what you pay for" and "the right man is worth all it costs us." Bingham himself was pleased he sent Eyanson a personal check for $1,000.

Eyanson meanwhile testified he couldn't "serve two masters," so while keeping his salary from the association, gave back his government pay. Bingham had placed him on the government payroll so he could attend secret session of the senate finance committee.

The lobby investigators, after questioning Eyanson for three hours, held a short executive session at which it was decided to employ special agents to gather evidence for the lobby inquiry. Senator Caraway, Democrat of Arkansas, chairman, announced he might ask the department of justice to assign a number of special agents to his committee to carry out the necessary investigations.

The inquiry then was adjourned until Monday.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (AP)—A continuance of good weather and the record breaking into sight movement, were reflected by further declines in cotton today. December sold off to 17.85 or 11 points net lower and all positions made new low ground for the movement but there was a good deal of trade buying and covering for over the week-end which caused rallies in the later trading. December closed at 17.93 or 8 points up from the lowest and the general market closed steady, net 6 points lower to 2 points higher.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 7 points. The market worked up several points during early trading with December and later deliveries selling about 4 to 6 points net higher.

October was easy under liquidation which was attributed to the circulation notices representing about 4,700 bales, but stiffened up a few points with the rest of the list.

The amount of cotton brought into sight for the week according to the figures of the New York cotton exchange amounted to 972,995 bales against 951,905 for the same week last year, which was the previous high record. October contracts sold off to 17.60 and March to 18.25 before this decline was checked by covering or trade buying, but there seemed to be a considerable demand at these figures and closing quotations showed rallies of 6 to 8 points from the lowest on active positions.

Liverpool reported that Bombay buying and trade calling had absorbed hedging and liquidation in that market.

Exports today 122,947, making 1,630,344, so far this season. Port receipts 113,192. U. S. port stocks 1,858,010.

Increased Brokers Loans Influence Another Open Break in Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. (US)—Increase in broker loans, which was generally unexpected, influenced renewed bearish onslaughts that caused another wide-open break in stock prices today. Again the more active stocks finished at or near the lows for the day which in several instances were the low of the year. Only spasmodic, half-hearted rallies were influenced by drop in call money from renewal of 6 to 5 per cent. Steel finished 7¼ points lower, while General Electric lost 6¾, American Telephone 4⅝, American Can 2⅝, United Corporation 6½, American Foreign Power 9¼, Radio 4¼, Johns Manville 13¾, Columbus Gas 5⅞, and Westinghouse 6⅛. All groups were affected but the rails showed the best resistance. American Tobacco, best and a few more closed higher as a result of special influences. Total trading dropped under the 3,500,000-share level.

The further increase in loans worried the small speculators but not the bankers. They know there is nothing to worry about when loans go up $88,000,000 when some $170,000,000 of new securities, representing increased industrial wealth, are being paid for. The only time the bankers really worry about "over-speculation" is when loans increase with no real gain in the wealth borrowed upon. Just how infantile is most of the discussion of brokers' loans and the reaction thereto is shown by the fact that borrowings on automobiles amount to about 10 per cent of the value of all cars in the country. Real estate loans, it is estimated, run over 6 per cent of property value. Brokers loans now are less than 1 per cent of the total value of securities and the brokers' loans cannot become frozen while others can. If there were any real fear of the size of brokers' loans in banking, treasury or reserve circles the call money rate would not be 5 per cent.

Buy Oils, Motors and Rails is the advice of some brokers which is sustaining the market for the good stocks in such groups. However, except in such instances as Royal Dutch where stock dividend is expected or Chrysler in which a new big pool has been formed no outstanding moves in these groups are to be expected while the "shakeout" of the general market progresses. When the banking powers give both pessive and active assistance to such a market shakeout public interest in dealings is deadened to an extent that hurts the entire market.

Utilities and such industrials as Combustion were again the main targets for professionals who were trying to influence further liquidation. There was further talk that the Electric Bond interests were taking many of the Utilities on a scale down and would take more aggressive action against the "crowded short position" at the "right time." Expectation was voiced that Combustion might be better taken as new control was looked for with Koppers Coke interests mentioned by some brokers. Pressure on the independent radio shares was based on well-circulated propaganda of the bears that they would suffer from the enhanced competition that would result from combination of Radio Corporation and General Motors activities.

A leading brokerage firm that evidently believes our idea that the new Mellon money policy would influence a change in stock market psychology issued a special advice to clients entitled "the return to reason" in which it stated:

"Speculation for the future without regard to investment turn, speedily is losing both its charm and profitable existence. Too many far-sighted banking individuals are changing their views on the advisability of retaining high priced issues returning disproportionate income. There has been liquidation of many socalled 'blue chip issues and funds derived from such sales are seeking investment in bonds, preferred stocks and in companies whose shares have not been exploited to dizzy heights."

Insurance Firm Sued In Policy Controversy

Alleging that his application for accident insurance was not forwarded to the company and that the money he paid for it was pocketed by the agent instead, P. T. Wolfe of Graham, has entered suit for $2,700 damages against the Mutual Benefit Health and Accident association, according to papers transferred from Young county to the district court Friday afternoon.

The petitioner, represented by E. A. Martin, attorney, alleges that he made application for the accident policy in December, 1928, and had reason to believe the insurance was in effect at the time he suffered accidental injuries in February, 1929.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Oct. 18. (AP)—Owing largely to word that rains had given some relief to drought districts in Argentina, wheat prices here reacted after advances today, and finished lower. Downturns were experienced in the face of announcement that North American wheat export business today totaled 1,250,000 bushels.

Closing quotations here for wheat were unsettled, ⅝ to 1c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¾ to 1⅛c down, oats ranging from ⅛c decline to ⅛@¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20c.

Increasing arrivals of new corn today offset to a large extent the influence of active shipping demand here for corn. Scantiness of offerings upheld oats.

Provisions were responsive to advances in the value of hogs.

GINNINGS PASS 11,000 MARK

Production in County Near '28 Figure

Wichita county went far over the 11,000 mark Friday in the total cotton ginnings for the season, lacking only about 4,000 bales now of equalling the total harvest shown in 1928 by ginning reports, according to the state survey.

Electra gins recorded the heaviest day since picking of cotton began in that area, turning out 123 bales, and bringing the total for that city to 1,504. The harvest will be considerably later throughout that district than in other parts of the county, it was said, and it was predicted that increasingly heavily ginnings will be reported during the coming few weeks.

Without rports from the Kemp City gin, which could not be reached by telephone Friday evening, 471 bales were turned out Friday, bringing the county's total to 11,239.

Airmail Pilot Saves Cargo As His Plane Burns

ELM CREEK, Neb., Oct. 18. (UP)—A flash of fire speeding through the darkened sky just at dawn caused farmers of this section today to look up from milk pails.

It was Pilot A. C. Pickup of the westbound mail express cutting through the skies literally like a meteor. His ship was ablaze and he was riding out the flames to a safe landing.

Scores of early risers viewed the phenomena and dashed out to see Pickup's daring flight to save the mails. He could have jumped and let his blazing ship plunge like a torch to property below, but he didn't.

He steered the plane through the air to a landing near here, saved seven sacks of mail and then watched what might have been his flying and flaming coffin blow up.

COURT JAILS AGED SUSPECT

Man Refuses to Answer Queries of Justice

Because he refused to answer questions and to sign a statement prepared in a secret court of inquiry held before R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, J. H. Stout, 62, was remanded to jail Friday afternoon, according to information given by Judge Gwinn after the hearing. The inquiry was concerned with the alleged theft of more than a ton of copper wire identified Friday as the property of the Certain-teed Products company at Acme. Eight arrests have been made since the recovery of the goods here about 10 days ago by Frank Morgan, constable, and E. S. Richardson, chief deputy.

Complaint Dismissed

A complaint charging Stout, the eighth man arrested, with receiving and concealing stolen property, was dismissed before the hearing Friday, officials announced. Judge Gwinn said Friday night that the questions the prisoner refused to answer were not incriminating to himself or his relatives, also under arrest.

A preliminary hearing for three of the defendants, Mozelle Barker, Dan Barker, and Jake Stout, is set for Saturday morning before Judge Gwinn, Mr. Morgan announced. All three of the defendants are under suspended sentences following conviction on theft charges, the officer was informed. Charges are also pending against Ladonia Stout and Ernest Bacon.

Wire Identified

The identification of the goods Friday ended an inquiry which had spread all over northwest Texas and southern Oklahoma, conducted by Mr. Morgan and Mr. Richardson in search of the owners of the wire. The property was claimed by Ransom F. Davis, electrician of the Acme plant, H. F. Barnard, assistant superintendent, E. H. Anderson, night superintendent, Fred Day, master mechanic, and Ben Moore, deputy constable at Quanah.

Airport Notes

The Safeway airlines Friday afternoon ran a double-header from Oklahoma City through Wichita Falls, marking the second southbound double-header and the sixth operation of two ships within the last few weeks. A total of 22 passengers from Oklahoma City necessitated use of two of the huge tri-motored Fords. The Braniff lines also reported almost capacity loads Friday afternoon. Both lines reported average loads on the morning schedules, several passengers having boarded the ships at the Municipal airport.

Visitors at the Municipal airport Friday included F. H. Stewart of Oklahoma City who landed in his Warner Scharab Travelair about noon en route to Lovington, N. M. Mr. Stewart took off for Lovington about 2:10 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Mrs. James E. McKanna landed at the Municipal airport about 2:45 o'clock Friday afternoon from Waco, where she had been called on account of the illness of relatives, in the Travelair J-6 cabin monoplane piloted by Burton L. Walker. Mr. and Mrs. McKanna took off from the port about 4 o'clock for Dallas in the same ship.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Riner, Fulcher Armstrong and Mrs. Ben Bell landed at Staley field about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon in Mr. Riner's new Stinson Junior J-6 cabin monoplane which the party had gone to Detroit to obtain from the factory. The party visited several cities while en route home from Detroit, flying first to Chicago and then southward.

Another new ship at Staley field is an Eaglerock OX5 open biplane recently purchased by the Wichita Falls Flying club for the use of its members. The ship was flown from the factory in Colorado Springs by Dudley Rider, who landed Friday afternoon.

Out in Hollywood, a strong-willed and patient young lady named Louella O. Parsons draws the weekly check for what she tells the world about the play-boys-and-girls out there. Apparently the young Frechman, Maw-rees Sha-val-ya (that may save pronouncing it for the next hundred adoring young things) has made a fair impression on Miss Parsons, who sends the following chorus of exultation:

◇ ◇ ◇

Oo la la! And a couple of more La-las! Maurice Chevalier is bringing back to America seven French journalists to study film conditions. We welcome our fellow craftsmen. I think it is mighty fine of Mr. Chevalier to let them see something of motion picture making in America. M. Chevalier should know just what America is doing in pictures for his last picture. "The Love Parade," directed by the eminent Ernest Lubitsch, is announced everywhere as a complete knockout.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Maurice proved to the waiting world even before the success of 'The Love Parade' that he was a fine actor. His personality in his first American-made picture, 'Innocents of Paris,' stood out like a good deed in a naughty world, even though the story was inferior. I say inferior, although it cleaned up at the box office and ran weeks and weeks in San Francisco. And after all, my viewpoint is only a personal opinion."

◇ ◇ ◇

So are all of our opinions, Louella, but most of us will agree that the story of "Innocents of Paris," which showed here last spring, lacked a good bit of being hand-tailored. Maurice had a still greater handicap in that production, however, than a loggy narrative. The girl who played as the object of Mr. Chevalier's demonstrative affection has stuck in many memories like a fishbone in the throat—because of her King Tut type of animation. Any man who can sing passionately and make love tenderly to the graven image set up before Chevalier in that story must indeed be a master of auto-hypnosis.

◇ ◇ ◇

Grant Withers, whose athletic form and pulchritudinous face were last seen here in "The Time, the Place, and the Girl," at the Strand, appears to be usurping the throne on which the lamented Rudy Valentino was gloriously established by the feminine hearts of this land. Grant is the acknowledged sheik out Los Angeles way, with the girls of Hollywood clambering over themselves to play leading lady to his feature appearances. Corinne Griffith, a self-admitted queen in the realm of beauty, is the most recent lucky miss, Grant having signed to play in her "Back Pay."

◇ ◇ ◇

Not only the ladies of film-land but that surprisingly real element called feminine fandom throughout the country are on record as having capitulated before Mr. Wither's masculine "It." Not that he has been compared with the late Rudolph the Great. Grant carries into his screen talk and love-making much of the airy persiflage which we are pleased to style "collegiate." Rudy possessed a much more profound finesse, compiled from the dignity of tenderness and the inherent grace and romanticism of the Latins, with eyes and mouth which spoke with eloquent expressiveness.

◇ ◇ ◇

Frequent inquiries as to its appearance here bespeak an active local interest in "Hallelujah," King Vidor's pictorial talking epic of the negro race in America. The production is running heavily in New York, where it was introduced. Such complaints as have been registered against the picture by members of the race concerned appear to originate in a feeling that the story should have given more attention to Oscar DePriest, colored irritant of White House society, Charles Gilpin, Harvard graduate and dramatic star, and Roland Hayes, colored concert tenor of proclaimed ability. The implication being that such advanced representatives as prophetic of a future should have been featured instead of cotton field and camp meeting Southern realism.

City Operating Expense For Month $54,790

Operating expenses of the city during the month of September totaled $54,790.80, bringing the total for the first six months of the fiscal year to $349,927.02, according to the monthly financial report of the city completed Friday by W. E. McBroom, city clerk. The month's total shows a slight increase over that of the same month last year, when operating expenses totaled $53,517.

The expenses were divided as follows: general expenses, $29,803.76; street improvement, mainly on the Scott avenue bridge, $10,190.09; library, $900.08; parks and cemetery, $4,337.87; sewer maintenance, $1,250.54; water department, $3,303.47.

VOGEL PRAISES CHEST WORK

Junior C.-C. Told How Money Is Spent

Application of the community chest funds to various relief agencies of the city was explained by Judge Irvin J. Vogel in an address before the weekly meeting of the Junior chamber of commerce at the Kemp hotel Friday noon.

Eleven different organizations are supported by the community chest, the speaker said, to any one of which the individual contributor may have his entire contribution applied, if he so desires.

Of each dollar given to the chest, Judge Vogel said, the Family Relief association receives 20 cents, the Salvation Army 11½ cents, the Y. W. C. A. 12 cents, the Red Cross eight cents, the Travelers' Aid society five cents, the colored day nursery three cents, the Camp Fire Girls five cents, the Boy Scouts 11½ cents, the day nursery nine cents, and the Children's Aid society nine cents.

Hubert M. Harrison, who was elected last Monday to the office of vice president and general manager of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, expressed regret at leaving the friends and associations of the past 10 years in order to take up his new work at Longview on Nov. 1. He also described the territory to which he is moving as comprising 325 cities and 67 counties. Appreciation of the cooperation offered by the Junior chamber of commerce to the senior body was also expressed by the speaker.

The Golden Jubilee of the electric light was celebrated with the reading of an original essay by Miss Laurette Erwin of the high school student body; a solo, "Thomas A. Edison," by H. W. Gray, with Miss Lorene Tucker as accompanist; two numbers by the Tesco male quartet and announcement of the radio hookup for next Monday night with Graham McName at the microphone at Dearborn, Mich., by P. M. Cordell.

Alternate directors of the Junior chamber of commerce were elected as follows: Paul Hines, A. L. Hecht, William McKemie, O. Abernathy, Wilburn Page and John Coffey.

According to Walter Nelson Jr., president, a delegation from this organization will meet with the Lawton chamber of commerce at Lawton next Monday noon to discuss road improvement between Fort Sill, Okla., and the free bridge at Burkburnett.

Opening of the annual meeting of the Texas Junior chamber of commerce at the Baker hotel in Dallas Saturday morning at 9 o'clock for a two-day session also was announced by Mr. Nelson.

Wichitan Loses $30 To Negro Hijackers

Although unable to state whether he was held up at the point of a gun, a knife or other weapon, Jesse Jarrell, 121 Oriole street, reported to police that he had been hijacked by two negro men near the plant of the Acme Brick company shortly after 2 a. m. Friday. The bandits escaped with $30 in cash, Jarrell said.

A search of the district shortly after the report failed to discover the hijackers, police said. Officers were detailed to watch for the two negroes but no arrests had been made at a late hour Friday.

C.-C. DIRECTORS MEET OCT. 23

Board to Accept Harrison's Resignation

Formal presentation of the resignation of Hubert M. Harrison, general manager, and steps toward the selection of his successor will feature the meeting of the board of directors to be held next Wednesday noon, according to Orville Bullington, president.

It was indicated that James W. Chatham, manager of the traffic and industrial department, may be named acting manager of the chamber of commerce pending the selection of a permanent manager.

Mr. Harrison, who will assume the position of general manager and vice president of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce on Nov. 1, left Friday night to attend a banquet of chamber of commerce executives of the state at Dallas Saturday. He will act as toastmaster at a banquet at Denison on Nov. 4, it was announced, when 50 cities will be represented at a meeting called for the discussion of obtaining federal aid for the Denison dam project.

DEATHS

NETTIE ALMA EDWARDS

The body of Miss Nettie Alma Edwards, 36, of Tahoka, Texas, who died in a local hospital about 9 o'clock Friday morning, was forwarded to Tahoka Friday night by the Hines mortuary. A sister, Mrs. W. W. Whipp of Waco accompanied the body. Interment will be held in Tahoka Saturday.

CHURCH GROUP HEARS POET

Mrs. Crowell Gives Program on Grant Street

An interested group of Wichita Falls friends and admirers of Mrs. Grace Noll Crowell were led back over familiar paths to see beauty they had passed over in their hurry when the poet, speaking at the Grant Street Methodist church Friday night, read a number of the lyrics that have brought her international fame.

A notable emphasis on the poetry in ordinary things characterized the entire recital, with some of her best-known writings from "White Fire" and "Silver in the Sun" repeated by request. A startlingly clear picture of a hopeless old peddler was an outstanding number in its character study, although her sonnet sequence, "Birth," "Life" and "Death" and her "Prayer for Courage" vied with it for popularity with the audience.

New poems were scattered abundantly through the program, the opening number, "Red Earth," having been written only last week. Of it, Mrs. Crowell said: "This one belongs to Wichita Falls." "I Have Found Such Joy" and "God, Keep a Clean Wind" probably typify the program most clearly and also outline Mrs. Crowell's creed and philosophy.

Two negro poems, both recently written, show a new trend in Mrs. Crowell's poetry, the description of the weird and exotic varying emphatically from that of the simple, clean, home-like objects of most of her work.

Some of her best-known children's poems from her recently published "Miss Humpety Comes to Tea" were recited for the children present, and a number of old favorites were read after they were requested from the audience.

Two musical numbers with Mrs. W. L. Underwood as soloist furnished an intermission in the program. Mrs. Underwood sang two poems, one by Weatherall and the other by Mrs. Crowell, both of which she had set to music. She was accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey.

Playground Band Goes To State Fair Contest

Forty members of the Playground band, under the direction of Paul Seeds, left Wichita Falls at 11 o'clock Friday night for Dallas where the band has been entered in the statewide band contest.

The boys in the organization range in age from 9 to 16 years, and have been playing in the band only about a year. They will be entered in the contest for one-year-old bands. During the past summer the band has played at the majority of weekly free vaudeville programs and at many of the free motion picture programs at the city parks. The band will return here Sunday morning.

Stomach Disorders First Revealed by Coated Tongue

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90% of all sickness starts with stomach and bowel trouble.

A coated tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders which lead to so many kinds of serious illness. It tells why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

Coating on the tongue is a sign that you need Tanlac—the medicine which has helped thousands who were physical wrecks from stomach and bowel troubles—who had "tried everything" in vain and about given up hope.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

FOLLOW THESE INSTRUCTIONS
AND PROTECT YOUR CAR NOW AGAINST WINTER DANGERS

1 Use a free-flowing winter grade of oil in the crankcase. Be sure that the differential and transmission have proper cold-weather lubricants.
2 Have spark plugs, ignition cables and battery inspected. Cold gasoline needs a hot spark.
3 Inspect the fan, thermostat and winter front.
4 Clean the cooling system. See that all old scale and rust, accumulated over a summer's driving, are thoroughly flushed out.
5 Be sure the cooling system is tight, without the slightest leak anywhere—in hose connections, pump, radiator or gaskets.
6 Add water and one supply of Eveready Prestone and your car will go through the hardest winter season in perfect safety.
7 Go to your garageman. For a small sum he will be glad to render this cleaning and tightening service. It is an investment worth many times its small cost.

Eveready Prestone, the perfect anti-freeze, does not contain alcohol or glycerine. It will not overheat the motor if the weather turns warm. It is a pure, undiluted product. Its permanent protection makes it a most economical investment. One supply lasts all winter, through any amount of warm and cold weather driving.
