DALLAS, March 7. — Edgar Frazier, of Borger, who allegedly was employed by L. W. Kitchen, Post veterinarian, was under charge of narcotic law violation today.

Frazier was arrested last yesterday as he left the federal grand jury room. He was placed under $5,000 bond and hearing on the charges was set for 2 p. m. Thursday.

Previous to his arrest, Frazier had testified before the grand jury which is investigating the activities of an alleged narcotic ring in Garza county.

Huey's Fight On New Deal Growing

LEFT WING IS PREPARING AN AIR DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, March 7. — Sen.
Huey Long's feud with the New Deal boils today toward new sensations as left wing leaders make ready their defense against Gen.
Hugh Johnson's charge that they are political shysters deluding a hard pressed people with demagoguery.

Long will reply tonight by radio and Father Charles E. Coughlin is scheduled to speak Sunday and Monday nights.

Long will speak over the NBC blue network at 11:30 EST. (10:30 CST).

NEW YORK, March 7. — The National Broadcasting company
today announced that Sen.
Huey Long's speaking time had been extended 15 minutes, from 11:30 p. m. to 12:15 a. m. EST.

There are guarded intimations here that Long will be "dealt with when the time comes."

The senate is bitter with anger.
Some republicans who have been playing politics with the Kingfish are inclined to pull away. Senate democrats are being counseled both to blast at Huey in rebuke and to ignore him. For the moment they do not know what to do.

Long's immediate objective is certain. He will continue to heckle the administration with his own-man-made crusade for an investigation of Postmaster General James A. Farley, who, he charges, uses his public office for private gain.

EASTUS CALLS CHARGES
"LOT OF HOOEY"

DALLAS, March 7. — The insinuations by Huey Long that U. S.
District Attorney Clyde Eastus had purchased his appointment from Postmaster General James A. Farley was termed "a lot of hooey" by Eastus today.

"I'm a warrior by nature," Eastus said. "Peace is troublesome to my soul. I'm not afraid of what Huey says."

In explaining that Farley had nothing to do with his appointment as district attorney, Eastus said that Sen. Tom Connally and U. S.
Attorney General Homer Cummings recommended his appointment to Pres. Roosevelt, who made the final selection.

Long had intimated that Eastus secured his office by payment of a sum of money to James A. Farley.

Foul Play Hinted
In Heiress' Death

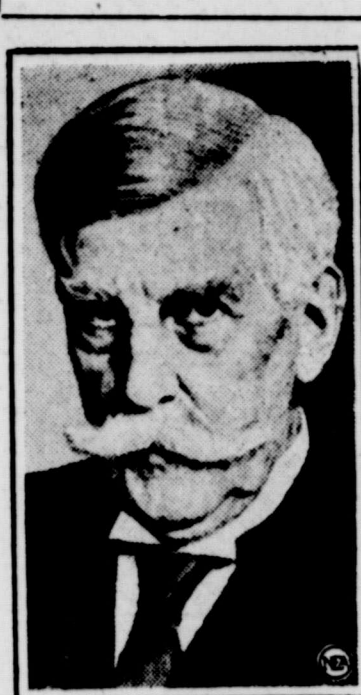

PINEHURST, N. C., March 7. —
An autopsy report showed that Miss H. Bradley Davidson, heiress to the Stalter millions, died of carbon monoxide poisoning, Dr. C. C.
Carpenter testified today at the inquest.

Dr. Carpenter, a pathologist, made the autopsy on Mrs. Davidson. He testified that an unconscious person placed in the garage where the heiress died would have been subject to the poison, and that Mrs. Davidson could not have fallen was found if she had been seated

Claims Slump Made
Girls More Serious

NEW ORLEANS, March 7. — The depression has emptied a lot of pocketbooks but it has been a good thing for young women because it has had a tendency to make them
more serious-minded, according to Miss Anna V. Rice, New York, executive secretary of the National Young Women's Christian Association.

Burial To Be On 94th Birthday

Justice Oliver Wendell
Holmes, called by President Roosevelt "one of the nation's first citizens," will be buried Friday with full military honors. The noted author of important opinions on social doctrines died Wednesday after a long fight against pneumonia.
Friday would have been his 94th birthday.

GREEK REBELS FLEEING FROM GOV'T FORCES

ATHENS, March 7. — Three government destroyers today began bombarding Corfu, Crete, which is in the hands of rebels.

ATHENS, March 7. — Three hundred fleeing Greek rebels crossed the border today and surrendered to Bulgarian frontier guards as the Greek government began its long awaited drive to smash the rebel forces in Macedonia.

Government airplanes soared over the rebels, demolishing them with bombs and machine guns.

The rebel town of Seres was bombed for the second time and considerable damage done. The population of the rebel area was becoming hostile to the rebels because of the bombing.

At sea the government fleet was hunting the rebel navy. Rebels had seized several of the Aegean islands.

Claims Slump Made
Girls More Serious

NEW ORLEANS, March 7. — The
depression has emptied a lot of pocketbooks but it has been a good thing for young women because it has had a tendency to make them
more serious-minded, according to Miss Anna V. Rice, New York, executive secretary of the National
Young Women's Christian Association.

In addition to making women more serious, according to Miss Rice, it has made them more religious, and has increased their interest in economic affairs.

She said the most "at sea" group of women in the nation today are the girls who have just graduated from high school and can't find jobs.

"They finished school expecting to go to work and there was no work for them," said Miss Rice.
She explained that the Y. W. C.
A. had established instruction classes for this class where they are taught how to cook, sew and keep house. The purpose of these classes is to turn their minds towards marriage and home-making,
she said.

TURN'S TABLES

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March
7. — Traditionally, the horse comes to the aid of the stranded auto. But the tables were turned when S. P.
Loethen's old gray mare became stuck in the mud. It took a wrecking car to get her out.

MAN IS TAKEN AFTER BATTLE WITH POLICE

SAN ANGELO, March 7. — Houston Barker, sought by officers here for questioning in connection with several robberies and by San Antonio officers for questioning regarding a holdup, was captured here last night after a gunfight with officers at McCamey, where he was shot in the face.

A policeman and a special ranger at McCamey said Barker opened fire when they attempted to arrest him. Barker escaped in an automobile. Thirty officers surrounded a house here where Barker had sought refuge and he surrendered without fight.

His wound was not serious. He asked that his mother in Cisco be notified.

CISCO POLICE NOTIFIED
OF BARKER'S CAPTURE

The Cisco police department today told the Daily News that the San Angelo police department, in a telephone conversation at 5:30 a.
m., had said that Houston Barker, wanted in connection with a series of robberies, had escaped and was heading in this direction, with a companion. The two were said to be driving a Buick coupe.

The capture of Barker was evidently after the first report to police headquarters here, it was said.
The police department here said the San Angelo officers had described Barker as being shot in the face and the arm when he first escaped.
The officers here believed that the San Angelo police officers had notified the sheriff's office at Eastland of the capture.

Barker was said to live between Eastland and Carbon.

Liquor Monopoly Measure Is Tabled

AUSTIN, March 7. — The house of representatives today tabled the Moffett-Hill bill for establishing a state liquor monopoly if constitutional provision is repealed. The vote was 73 to 63.

The motion to table was made by Rep. Emmett Morse of Houston, advocate of a return to local option.

Various other proposals remained to be voted upon before the house reaches a direct vote on submission of constitutional repeal.

Police Chase Man
Believed Hamilton

DALLAS, March 7. — A bold youth pursued unsuccessfully by police early today aroused speculation for a time that he was Raymond Hamilton, but later investigation caused officers to discredit the belief that he was the fugitive killer.

Squad officers first took up the chase when the man and a companion entered the east section of the city, driving at a swift pace.
The officers said they obtained only a glimpse of the driver and could not be positive he was Hamilton.

House To Decide On
Two Bonus Measures

WASHINGTON, March 7. — The house today and means committee voted 14 to 10 today in favor of a rule on the Vinson American Legion bonus bill which would permit the house to decide whether to accept that measure or substitute
the inflationary Patman bill.

Agreement to let the house make its own choice between the two measures was in line with plans of the house leadership. The committee today formally approved a favorable report on the Vinson bill, 23 to one. Yesterday the committee had voted to report favorably the Legion measure instead of the Pat-man bill 14 to 10.

MUSIC BRINGS COLONELCY

CLEVELAND, March 7. — It seems
Gov. Ruby Laffoon, of Kentucky, once heard Charles De Harnack, Cleveland concert pianist, play on a Southern tour. The governor liked his music, so De Harnack is now a Kentucky Colonel.

President Buys First 'Baby Bond'

First purchaser of the government's "baby bonds" and obviously pleased with his bargain, President Roosevelt was made happier still when reports showed that many small investors had accepted his invitation to become "partners in the government" by buying the securities in the country's 14-000 postoffices. The president holds one of the bonds bought for each of his grandchildren at $18.75 and worth $25 in 1945.

Relief Trucking To Be Resumed Today

County Administrator H. E. Driscoll today announced that all relief work would go forward here as was originally planned.
The relief commission recently rescinded all orders for team and truck hire and for material on work relief projects. This rescinding order has been cancelled, it was said, and the projects are now ready to begin again.
The work relief was all cancelled recently, with the exception of rural rehabilitation and education projects, when the relief commission announced that it had no funds available to carry it on.

With the allocation of more funds to Texas by Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, however, work relief was resumed, and the direct relief budget was stepped up from 20 per cent to 75 per cent.

With order today, the work relief for Eastland county, as for other counties, will be again at its peak.
Cisco has a number of projects which will be affected by the order today to resume truck and team hire and to go forward with material purchase.

Cup Contender Is Groomed For Races

BOSTON, March 7. — The gallant sloop Yankee, one of the most popular boats in the America's Cup class, is being groomed here for her new bid for yachting laurels, which she will make in English waters next summer.

In the elimination trials last season the Yankee gave the Rainbow extremely stiff competition, losing the final trial by a bare second. At that time she was handicapped by lack of the latest refinements in equipment, a public subscription being necessary to put her in competition.

Since then she has been sold to Gerard Lambert, owner of the historic Vanitie. Her new owner is seeing to it that Yankee is equipped with all the latest gadgets. Her wooden shell is being replaced with one of metal, 165 feet long and 6 inches in diameter. Luxurious furnishings will be fitted below decks and in all respects she will be a worthy representative of American yachting.

She is expected to leave for England early in April.

TOO MUCH FLETCHERIZING

SEATTLE March 7. — Failure to eat paper fast enough was one reason Alvin Harrison, 33, got a two-year prison sentence. He was charged with burglary and denied he had had any money for months. When detectives caught him chewing a paper, they made him cough it up.
It was a receipt for a $20 suit, purchased the day before.

FOSSIL SNAKE

BROWNINGTON, Mo., March 7.
— While working in a mine near here R. R. Shoemaker unearthed a petrified snake five feet long and four inches in diameter. The fossil was under a three-foot vein of coal 40 feet underground.

MORE INTEREST IN EXHIBIT THIS YEAR THAN BEFORE IS NOTED BY SHOW MANGEMENT

Cisco today was looking forward to the exhibits and a record crowd as final arrangements were being made for the sixth annual Eastland County Livestock show to open here tomorrow.

More interest has been shown this year than was last year, J. M. Bird, secretary in charge of the show, said, and the best stock in this part of the state is expected to be on display.

11 ARE KILLED IN EXPLOSION AT UTAH WELL

ST. GEORGE, Utah, March 7. —
The death toll in a factory blast from a premature explosion in a new oil well being brought in seven miles from here today reached 11.
Nine persons were killed outright last night when an explosion wrecked the Escalante well number one being drilled by a subsidiary of the Arrowhead Petroleum company.

Two persons seriously injured in the explosion died today. A throng of spectators in a holiday mood gathered near the well to see the "proving" of a new oil field which they hoped would add oil riches to the agricultural wealth of this prosperous farming community in southern Utah.

Then suddenly the cartridge being sunk exploded, hurling death into the ranks of spectators and oil workers.

Mrs. Dan Wende, who was carried to the Graham sanitarium for an X-ray of his leg which was thought to have been broken at school, was found to have only a dislocation,

south of Cisco.

Training Speakers to Boost Community

Here is a thought for the Cisco Boosters. Kansas City has worked through its Advertising club to train speakers, which has proven of great advantage in many ways. Cisco Boosters might do some work along that line to train speakers for the purpose of community visiting in our local trade territory, an opportunity that has been sadly neglected by local business units.

When Kansas City needs volunteers to tell its advantages to the surrounding country, or to make an appeal for an allied charities drive, or perhaps for a home modernization campaign, it can draw on a large group of specially trained speakers. And to the Advertising Club of Kansas City goes the credit.

This club has conducted speakers training classes for 12 years, and in this period it has trained about 1,000 persons to talk in public "without fear or trembling," as one graduate puts it.

The training class was started in 1922, when the club wanted to do some "out-side boosting" and found its plans thwarted by a lack of trained speakers. Watt G. Randall, secretary of the club, suggested a training class. C. C. Fairchild, an able public speaking instructor, now on the staff of the Manual High School of Kansas City, was engaged to teach seven club members how to talk in public.

This year 150 students are enrolled. A. B. Richmond of Paseo High School has been engaged as an additional teacher. Classes are held once a week for 30 weeks. Each member is required to make one four-minute speech a week before his class. In addition the classes have banquets and other social events which give students practice in after dinner speaking and other addresses.

Students give enthusiastic reports of these classes. Many claim their speech training has played a big part in helping them to achieve business success. But equally important, it is felt, is their value in the civic affairs of Kansas City. In last year's allied charities drive, 40 speakers, both men and women, had their training in public speaking in the club's training classes.

Japan Is Determined on Naval Equality

Official Japan recently emphatically repudiated the rumored suggestion of a three-year rival naval building holiday.

The report cabled back from America that Vice-Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto had submitted his suggestion has excited most sweeping and categorical denials. A Foreign Office spokesman asserted that he saw the Yamamoto report and that it contained no such proposal, adding: "Yamamoto never made such a recommendation to the Japanese government."

"The latter's attitude has not changed since adjournment of the preliminary conversations in London."

The government spokesman declined to discuss the relative naval ratios which would result from a general cessation of naval building, remarking, "We first heard of the naval building holiday today and it is useless to discuss relative ratios."

Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto's suggestion of a three-year rival naval building holiday today and it is useless to discuss relative ratios."

Fresh Fruits

That Japan has built up pretty close to the present treaty allowance, while Britain and the United States have not done so, this would actually set up the desired ratio of 5-5-4, for which Japan has been contending as its right.

The plan also sets another conference in 1938 to determine future international naval programs.

The Japanese Navy Department supported the Foreign Office, issuing its own special communique denying the Yamamoto suggestion for a holiday, characterizing the statement issued by the Japanese naval representatives after the London talk as the authoritative definition of the Japanese attitude toward naval disarmament today.

The Navy Department communique voices the hope that the Japanese proposals at the recent London conference will receive the careful consideration of Great Britain and the United States and will serve as the basis for future conversations.

It is quite conceivable that some sections of Japanese public opinion might welcome financial and other advantages of stabilizing the navies temporarily at present effective strength, which would improve Japan's relative position as fixed under the Washington Treaty.

But the influence of naval circles on the Japanese government is very strong, and it is evident from the emphatic tone of today's denials that the Japanese naval leaders are not disposed at the present moment to make a move toward breaking the deadlock resulting from the unreconciled viewpoints which found expression at London.

Following the unsuccessful conclusion of the London conversations the Japanese press expressed confidence in the country's ability to hold its own in the event that naval building competition should ensue.

SILKEN SPINDLES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gale Henderson, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 10-year-old brother, Phil, support their invalid father.

Steve Meyers, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She delays giving the answer. Meanwhile, she meets Brian Westmore, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian is much attracted to Gale but, through the trickery of Vicky Thatcher, society beauty, Gale concludes Brian's attentions are insincere.

Vicky, whose father, Robert Thatcher is general manager of the mill, is scheming to win Brian for herself.

Phil loses his job. Ed Vogel, mill employe, is shot in a street fight and Phil is arrested, accused of firing the gun. Gale goes to see Phil. Later she asks Steve if there is news of Vogel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII
Steve shook his head. "No," he said. "I called the hospital a little while ago and they said Vogel was just the same."

Gale's eyes searched his. "Then what is it?" There's something— "Wait until we get outside," Steve told her. When they were on the street he went on, "I thought I was going to have good news for you but Wilkins, the lawyer I hoped would help us, is out of town. May not be back for a week, they said."

"We've got to have a lawyer," Gale said firmly. "Everyone's against Phil and, oh, Steve, he's innocent! We've got to do something!"

"I know. There's a fellow Joe Gillaspie was telling me about—your fellow who hasn't been practicing law very long. Joe said he's smart, though of course, he hasn't had as much experience as some of the lawyers. I'll find out where he lives and have a talk with him tonight."

"Will you, Steve? Oh, I hope you can persuade him! It's so dreadfully Phil in that jail and nobody doing anything to help him!"

"A lawyer is the only one who can help him. I'll see this fellow Joe tomorrow about. If he won't take the case I'll find someone who will."

"Oh, Steve, I'll be so grateful!" "I only wish I could do more," Gale said.

"I know. There's a fellow Joe Gillaspie was telling me about—your fellow who hasn't been practicing law very long. Joe said he's smart, though of course, he hasn't had as much experience as some of the lawyers. I'll find out where he lives and have a talk with him tonight."

"Will you, Steve? Oh, I hope you can persuade him! It's so dreadfully Phil in that jail and nobody doing anything to help him!"

"A lawyer is the only one who can help him. I'll see this fellow Joe tomorrow about. If he won't take the case I'll find someone who will."

They walked in silence for a few moments. "The main thing," Steve went on, "is that you mustn't worry. I won't help and you'll only make yourself sick. You've got to be calm about this. Gale. Got to keep your nerve."

"I'll try. I've been—trying!" "You've done a swell job," he told her, "so far. And I know you're going to keep it up. You can't go back on Phil, you know."

The words ran through her head like a refrain. It was what she must remember, what she must tell herself over and over again. She couldn't go back on Phil! He needed her as he had never needed her before. Phil, lately arrested, held in jail. Facing the possibility of a trial for murder. Phil, her little brother, accused of shooting a man—

A sob burst from Gale's lips. "But he didn't do it!" she cried. "Oh, Steve he didn't!" "See here—you promised to keep hold of yourself. You're not going to let yourself go to pieces!"

"I promise, Steve! I'll be all right! I won't forget again!" She said good-bye at the door of her home. Steve said he'd drop in after he'd seen the lawyer and tell her the news. He went on down the street and Gale went up the steps slowly. A thousand years, it seemed since she'd climbed those steps the night before.

Her father looked up from his book. "Late, aren't you?" he asked. "Yes—I walked over town with Steve."

Tom Henderson went on with his reading. It was going to be hard to tell him what had happened—terribly hard.

Gale went through to the kitchen where Mary Cassidy was standing before the stove. Mary turned and asked, "Did you see him?"

"Phil? Yes, I saw him." "How is he?"

"Oh, he's all right. He'll have to stay where he is—at least for a while. They won't let him leave until they know about Vogel."

"Mrs. O'Connor told me Vogel's awful bad."

"Yes, Steve telephoned the hospital a little while ago. They still won't say whether he's going to live or not."

Ruthie Cassidy got up from where she was sitting by the window. She had a sheet of paper and a pencil. "They're ravin' Phil and Ed Vogel! They're fightin' over that no 'count Ruby Griffith. They say there's been trouble between 'em before. I was down to the grocery this mornin' and I heard Sam Watson shootin' off his mouth about it. I told him they wasn't a word of truth in it!"

Gale said, "Yes I know. I heard the same thing at the mill. It isn't true, but that doesn't help Phil any. Everybody seems to be against him. Everybody seems to believe—"

A knock on the living room door interrupted. Gale put down the dish she was washing and said, "Maybe that's Steve!" She hurried to open the door.

didn't mean to do any wrong. I know that."

"He didn't do it, Father! He didn't!"

Tom Henderson shook his head. "No," he said. "I don't think he did. And if the boy's innocent there must be a way to prove it. You say Steve's gone to see a lawyer?"

"He's going tonight. He said he'd stop here afterward."

Tom Henderson took his daughter's hand. He said almost the same words Steve had used. "Try not to worry, Gale. It can't do any good and you'll only get yourself worked up. We'll find some way to help Phil—"

Gale turned so that he could not see that her eyes were moist. She said, "Yes, Father. For an instant the two hands clasped firmly. Then Gale said, "I'd better go help Mary—"

Her father had certainly taken the news better than she had expected. Gale was surprised. It was after the evening meal when she was wiping the dishes as Mary washed them that Mary said, "Your father don't look so good, do you think so?"

"Why—I thought he seemed rather tired."

Mary nodded. "Looks sort of peaked," she went on. "I noticed it when he first came to the table. I don't believe all that readin' he does is good for him. Sits there all day with his nose in a book. And he didn't eat nothin'—hardly nothin'! But then you didn't eat more than a mouthful yourself!"

"I wasn't hungry."

"You ought to eat just the same. A body can't keep goin' less they eat."

Gale did not answer. Her eyes were on the clock on the shelf across the room. She said, "I suppose it's too early to look for Steve yet."

"Did he say when he'd come?"

"No. Just said he'd stop in after he'd seen the lawyer."

Mary soaped the dishcloth and washed a plate. "Lawyers," she said, "cost money."

"I don't care about that. I'll work—I'll find some way to pay if only they will set Phil free. You see he didn't do it, Mary! He didn't have anything at all to do with it. The whole thing was framed!"

"I know! I know!" Mary had heard all that before. She believed it, she went on, "but I think you ought to know what they're sayin'! They're ravin' Phil and Ed Vogel! They're fightin' over that no 'count Ruby Griffith. They say there's been trouble between 'em before. I was down to the grocery this mornin' and I heard Sam Watson shootin' off his mouth about it. LETTERS FROM READERS

To The Editor:
Our president is meeting with some opposition but I think Franklin D. will have every thing in good shape in the next two years. I will have to admit that our president has been spending money rather freely but our congressman has been saving up billions of dollars for the last twenty years. Our president has spent all of these savings and now wants to go in debt for a few billion dollars. Tom can save up enough to pay these billions in the next few years. Tom is a good business man and his cooperation with the president has been taking newspaper men off the roller and giving them post office jobs. If Tom has any newspaper men on his hands the president should help Tom to place them somewhere. I would suggest that they be sent west to build wind breaks. Nobody knows better how to handle wind than newspaper men and they should know how to plant Spanish daggers, prickly pears and cat claws and that is all that will grow out there. (Now if you think this is too strong cut it out because I do not want to have to contend with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce). While I am talking about West Texas, I might say West Texas is well represented in our legislature, and they all act like they might be from West Texas and have probably visited a loco-weed patch at some time or other. Tom Holbrook is a sand rough rabbit twister. He decided once upon a time that he would go west to locate, however, he soon returned and said that West Texas was too dry for him more ways than one. Later he located at Galveston. Tow has acted loco at times ever since he made that trip to West Texas.

Hoover says we must return to the gold standard. Why, that man does not even understand his own state. I notice from the papers that the Cisco Chamber of Commerce secretary is opening a gold mine in California. When he gets that mine in operation gold will not be worth forty (40) cents a pound. I think J. E. knows all about gold mining but he had better look out for these salesmen (California is full of 'em). I would advise every one to stay away from salesmen 'cause they will sell you something, you don't want. I would like to say something about Little Jems but I guess I had better lay off him.

BILL BEDFORD

At the start legislators spoke timidly in Dr. Montgomery's presence when they discussed what the folks back home might think. He quickly set them at ease.

"You should be guided by what the people back home want," he said. "That's the first thing I teach my classes. It's essential to democratic government."

A little, quiet-voiced, pipe-smoking man with a ready smile he has an informative answer for every question. In fact he knows his stuff.

There is nothing dogmatic about Dr. Montgomery. He admits often that he may be wrong. "That's opinion," is a frequent qualifying phrase that he uses when he gives his views. Not that his views are hazy. He sees very definitely. On utilities his guiding tenets are: To cost least, utilities must be monopolies. Competition means extra expense that the consumer, ultimately, pays. It usually results in one competitor being raised or absorbed by the other. To be harmless as monopolies, they must be regulated.

With the legislature at the half way mark, not a single constitutional amendment has yet been submitted for a referendum. More than 40 have been proposed. Part of the delay in action is due to the knowledge that resolutions for constitutional changes have right-of-way whenever they are brought before the house or senate. Proponents are urged before legislative committees that if Texas really is to stage the exposition on the scale planned so long, it should act with prompt dispatch so that the vast amount of work preparatory to the show can be started. They have shown that without substantial legislative aid, the Centennial celebration cannot be held as planned, and that certainly neither congressional nor other outside support could be expected.

Recently in house debate over a resolution commending Pres. Roosevelt's stand on prefalling wage scales in relief labor, Rep. J. W. Youngblood of Fort Worth vigorously protested what he said were efforts to conscript labor from the relief rolls at less than prevailing wages. A flood of protests from his home town came in; whereupon Youngblood found he had been quoted as objecting to paying such labor "prevailing wages," rather than "less than prevailing wages."

There is no transcript of house debate, but Youngblood lost little time in convincing his constituents he had objected to the practice of would-be employers to exploit those on relief by offering them pay for private work much below the ordinary or prevailing wages for such work.

Former Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt is engaged in a work very much to his liking. He is representing the Texas Centennial organization in setting up its program and getting its state money as the basis for a successful exposition.

Witt, appearing before his recent colleagues in the senate, explained that his employment and the expenses of the preliminary campaign work, are being borne by the Dallas Centennial group out of its local funds, and not out of the $100,000 appropriation given by the 43rd legislature—subject to repayment out of Centennial proceeds.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, March 7.—Governor Allred is having better luck with his brain trust than President Roosevelt. He has found that rare jewel—a practical professor. He is Dr. Robert Hargrove Montgomery, economics instructor at the University of Texas. Dr. Montgomery has studied utilities for 25 years. Governor Allred, seeking to make good on a campaign promise to regulate utilities, turned to the professor. Result: A bill that has emerged from a legislative committee with unanimous vote.

It is not alone the professor's acumen that makes him such a treasure. It's the way he accepts conditions instead of blindly backing them. Example: He drafted a bill giving all rate regulating power to a state commission. Legislators suggested it would meet with opposition from cities jealous of their power.

"O. K. Leave them out," Dr. Montgomery said. "When they see how much better the state can do it, they will want to get in." He didn't press for his original plan of having all the power in one place. Committee members considered; decided his plan was best after all and put it back in the bill.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE

SEA Service Staff Writer

["ALK about dog days being hard to get through! I think no time is more difficult for the housekeeper than the shank of February and the gusty beginnings of March. If ever you are aed with limitations it's then—few fresh vegetables, very little fruit and the family slightly bored with life.

Well, here's a dinner that made my family perk up the other night and it's not expensive, either. Braised beef sounds fuzzy but it's not really, and you'll like it.

Braised Beef

One and one-half to two pounds round steak, 1-4 cup diced carrot, 1-4 cup diced turnip, 1 onion, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons flour.

Trim rim of fat from steak and fry out in frying pan. Cut steak in pieces for serving and roll each piece in flour which has been mixed and sifted with salt and pepper. Brown quickly in hot fat. Put vegetables into a deep casserole or baking dish and add meat. Rinse frying pan with 3 cups boiling water and pour over meat and vegetables. Cover loosely and bake three to four hours in a slow oven (300 degrees F.). Keep just at the boiling point during the baking but do not let bubble.

I served this dish with mashed potatoes, buttered beans, shredded cabbage with French dressing, and which chili sauce had been added, and old-fashioned bread pudding.

Old-Fashioned Bread Pudding

The pudding can be baked at the same time the meat is baking.

O Son-In-Law of Il Duce Gets Thorough Seasoning In Italy's Diplomatic School

By THOMAS B. MORGAN

United Press Staff Correspondent
ROME, March 7.—Count Galeazzo Ciano, 31, Mussolini's youngest cabinet officer, is a fluent, linguist, missionary here, and more than all son-in-law of Il Duce.

He is Under-secretary of State for press and propaganda. In 1930 he married Edda Mussolini, apple of the Duce's eye. They have two children, a son and a daughter.

Diplomatic Training

Since the marriage Count Ciano has been put through the hard school of diplomatic experience, serving as secretary to the Italian Embassy to the Holy See and then to the important post of Italian consul general at Shanghai. He returned from that post only last year to assume the position of chief of the Duce's press bureau. He has made the office into a powerful and essential agency.

He speaks English, Spanish, French and naturally his native Italian. In Shanghai Edda learned English and now speaks it with rare fluency and just the flavor of an accent. She showed her father's aptitude for acquiring languages.

Chinese Trips

While in China he frequently made trips far inland to aid foreigners or missionaries who were held by bandits. During his sojourn in the Orient he made a report on conditions which was submitted to the League of Nations. The report was the basis for numerous resolutions passed by the League in connection with China.

Count Ciano first entered the diplomatic service in 1925 at the age of 22. He was stationed in Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires. He is the son of Count Costanzo Ciano, president of the chamber of deputies.

Acting Mayor J. R. Burnett Tuesday announced the filing with him of petitions by three more candidates, for placing their names on the ballot of the city election April 2.

The petitions, he said, were those of J. M. Williamson, seeking the office of mayor, and W. W. Wallace and Louis F. Mendenhall, for commissioners. The petitions were filed Tuesday afternoon.

Mayor J. T. Berry and Commissioners H. A. Bibbe and W. J. Foxworth have already announced for reelection.

Many Rumors

Rumors have persistently connected the name of Ex-Mayor Williamson with the candidacy for mayor this term. The same rumors have likewise named various others as possible candidates for the city commission.

The rumors became so numerous that the Daily News more than a week ago asked the former mayor the pointed question of whether he intended to be a candidate. At that time he replied that he had not made up his mind and had nothing to say on the matter. He intimated that he had been approached by friends but declared that he was not ready to make any statement.

The announcement today that three candidates had filed petitions to place their names on the city ballot was the first official notice of the intentions of anyone other than the present mayor and commissioners to run for a city administrative office in the coming term.

No Announcement

It was understood today, however, that none of the three had personally made any sort of political announcement, but that they would likely do so at an early date.

It was announced by the city commission that petitions for the placing of names of other candidates on the city ballot must be in the office of the city secretary not later than tomorrow.

Mayor Berry at present is in New York City with Commissioners H. A. Bibbe and W. R. Winston, and Attorney F. D. Wright and R. E. Grantham, conferring with the bondholder's committee on a settlement of the Cisco municipal bond debt. Commissioner Foxworth is in the city. Commissioner Burnett received the petitions in his capacity as mayor pro tem.

Starving Horse and Cow Win $500,000 Feed Aid

The pitiful spectacle of a starving horse and a dying cow at the door of Minnesota's statehouse spurred action by the legislature after pleas of 50,000 desperate farmers had failed to bring relief. The Senate voted $500,000 to feed the state's starving livestock. This picture shows the scene that met the eyes of legislators on the statehouse steps.

Revolution From Cuban Treasury Strike Foreseen

(Copyright 1935 by United Press)

HAVANA, March 7 — A strike by treasury department employees precipitated a situation today which threatened to bring a crisis to Cuba's 19 months of political turmoil.

Acting under its almost absolute emergency power, the government decided upon stern suppression of disorder, fearing the strike would become worse and turn into a revolution.

Sailors, reinforced soldiers, and police were used in guarding all central areas. Censorship was clamped down on all Cuban newspapers.

Troops took over Havana university, where professors and students were in an all-night session with treasury department employees, presumably to continue the strike and to promote a general strike.

Refinancing Of Cisco's School Debt Announced

Supr. R. N. Cluck and Secretary W. F. Walker of the Cisco school board returned from Austin yesterday, after a trip to work out a refinancing system on the city's school bonds.

Secretary Walker today reported that the financing plan was being worked out, and that it would likely be completed by April 1.

"This is considerably shorter time than is usually required," he said. "It means 20 days instead of 90."

While in Austin the two also attended to other matters pertaining to the school. Supr. Cluck spent considerable time in conference with the state department of education on details in connection with the Cisco school it was said.

Secretary Walker reported that the vocational agriculture salary difficulty was ironed out.

Enameling Short Cut Is Discovered

PITTSBURGH, March 5 — Research into the process of applying porcelain enamels has revealed a short cut by which important manufacturing economies may be effected.

Dr. Edward R. Weidlein, director of Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, made that disclosure with announcement of a new process — the Hommel process eliminating at least one coat of enamel and one firing.

Dr. J. E. Rosenberg and William J. Baldwin were credited with the discovery, which is calculated to increase the productive capacity of present kilns 50 per cent.

Claims Liquor Jug Stuck To Fingers

LYNN, Mass., March 7 — Fred G. McManus and Fred Blodgett told their story before an unsympathetic judge.

They told in court their reason for having a gallon jug of rum in their possession. McManus said that when he accidentally fell through a liquor store window his fingers slipped through the handle of the jug and he couldn't extricate them and that Blodgett and he were not trying to carry it away.

The pair were held in $1,000 bonds each.

TWO CISCO WOMEN ANNOUNCE FOR POSITIONS AS SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Two Cisco women Saturday announced that they would be candidates for election to the Cisco school board in the forthcoming balloting.

Mrs. N. A. Brown and Mrs. P. R. Warwick placed their hats in the political ring as it concerns the children of the city Saturday with the following announcement from friends:

"At the earnest solicitation of their many friends and patrons of the school, Mrs. N. A. Brown and Mrs. P. R. Warwick have consented to have their names placed on the school board ballot in the coming trustees election."

"These two women, having lived in Cisco a number of years and having the interest of the school system at heart, are well qualified to serve in this capacity."

"In towns where women serve as trustees, they have given unstintingly of their time and efforts in advancing the system. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Warwick are civic minded and will accomplish for our schools what other women have accomplished for theirs."

The terms of Dr. F. E. Clark, F. D. Wright, and J. E. Spencer expire this year, Secretary W. F. Walker of the board announced Saturday night. All three will be candidates for reelection, he said.

The election is to be held the first Saturday in April.

MAN IS TAKEN AFTER BATTLE WITH POLICE

SAN ANGELO, March 7 — Houston Barker, sought by officers here for questioning in connection with several robberies and by San Antonio officers for questioning regarding a holdup, was captured here last night after a gunfight with officers at McCamey, where he was shot in the face.

A policeman and a special ranger at McCamey said Barker opened fire when they attempted to arrest him. Barker escaped in an automobile. Thirty officers surrounded a house here where Barker had sought refuge and he surrendered without fight.

His wound was not serious. He asked that his mother in Cisco be notified.

CISCO POLICE NOTIFIED OF BARKER'S CAPTURE

The Cisco police department today told the Daily News that the San Angelo police department, in a telephone conversation at 5:30 a. m., had said that Houston Barker, wanted in connection with a series of robberies, had escaped and was heading in this direction, with a companion. The two were said to be driving a Buick coupe.

The capture of Barker was evidently after the first report to police headquarters here, it was said.

The police department here said the San Angelo officers had described Barker as being shot in the face and the arm when first escaped. The officers here believed that the San Angelo police officers had notified the sheriff's office at Eastland of the capture.

Barker was said to live between Eastland and Carbon.

Liquor Monopoly Measure Is Tabled

AUSTIN, March 7 — The house of representatives today tabled the Moffett-Hill bill for establishing a state liquor monopoly if constitutional prohibition is repealed. The vote was 73 to 63.

The motion to table was made by Rep. Emmett Morse of Houston, advocate of a return to local option.

Various other proposals remained to be voted upon before the house reaches a direct vote on submission of constitutional repeal.

Calls Palestine To Tell Of Golf Score

PINEHURST, N. C., March 7 — What probably is the longest long-distance telephone call ever made concerning a golf score — from Boston to Palestine — was made last week after P. W. Whittemore, 62, shot a 69 in the seniors' golf championship tournament here.

Mrs. Whittemore read of the score in Boston newspapers and called her sister in Palestine to tell her "my husband apparently has regained his health because he shot a 69."

Boy Recovers After Leg Is Dislocated

Edward Wende, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wende, who was carried to the Graham sanitarium for an X-ray of his leg which was thought to have been broken at school, was found to have only a dislocation, and is doing nicely at his home south of Cisco.

HAULING AND MATERIAL ORDERED BACK IN WORK RELIEF PROJECTS

County Administrator H. E. Driscoll today announced that all relief work would go forward here as was originally planned.

The relief commission recently rescinded all orders for team and truck hire and for material on work relief projects. This rescinding order has been cancelled, it was said, and the projects are now ready to begin again.

The work relief was all cancelled recently, with the exception of rural rehabilitation and education projects, when the relief commission announced that it had no funds available to carry it on.

With the allocation of more funds to Texas by Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, however, work relief was resumed, and the direct relief budget was stepped up from 30 per cent to 75 per cent.

With order today, the work relief for Eastland county, as for other counties, will be again at its peak.

Cisco has a number of projects which will be affected by the order today to resume truck and team hire and to go forward with material purchase.

Melody Boys Play For Dance Saturday

Billie's Melody Boys, six piece mixed orchestra broadcasting over KGO, will play for a dance at the Lake Cisco pavilion Saturday night. This orchestra has been playing at the lake for several weeks. Its dance music and singing is unusual and has always drawn a large crowd, according to Manager Albert Hunt.

Posters To Show Cattle Gradings

The city slickers who think that milk comes from bottles and that beefsteaks come from the butcher shop will have an opportunity to check up on themselves and learn the whys and wherefores of cattle grading at the Eastland county livestock show this weekend.

The beef cattle group, headed by Dr. F. E. Clark, has provided a way for even the uninitiated in the business of livestock grading to tell what a good animal should look like, it has been announced.

Posters with pictures showing each of the United States grades of slaughter steers will be on display. Under each picture is the characteristics of the animal.

Along with the posters, the group will attempt to show an animal of each grade, as nearly as possible, it was said. The judges will explain the points upon which the grades are determined.

The grades will include prime choice, good, medium, common, cutter, and low cutter.

Nation Mourning Over Passing Of Justice Holmes

WASHINGTON, March 7 — President Roosevelt led the nation in mourning for Oliver Wendell Holmes, retired justice of the United States supreme court, who died Tuesday after a long life of service to the state.

"Mr. Justice Holmes" of notable social doctrines expressed in a series of court opinions that he died at 2:15 a. m.

His death was the signal for an outburst of tributes and eulogies such as are usually reserved only for presidents, kings, or emperors.

The president said:

"Oliver Wendell Holmes, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, retired, has left us. The nation has lost one of its first citizens. We cannot minimize the grief of his passing, but we can find solace in the thought that he was with us for so long."

"His was a life of rare distinction. Soldier, scholar, author, teacher, jurist, and gallant gentleman, he personified throughout his long career, the finest American traditions."

Saturday Peanut Contract Deadline

Saturday of this week is the last day to sign peanut contracts, it was announced today by C. Metz Heald, Eastland county agent.

A few peanut contracts are yet being signed at the county agent's office only, he said, "and the sign-up will be definitely closed on Saturday. Anyone wishing to make a contract must do so before that date. Also, all unfinished contracts must be completed immediately."

BOND BODY TO RETURN FROM TALKS FRIDAY

Representatives of the Cisco municipal government were expected to return home Friday afternoon from their conference in New York City with a bondholders' committee and to report upon the results of the meeting shortly.

Returning will be Mayor J. T. Berry, Commissioners H. A. Bibbe and W. R. Winston, and Attorney F. D. Wright and R. E. Grantham.

No information concerning the settlement has been received from the Cisco representatives, City Secretary J. B. Cate said Thursday in announcing that the group was expected to return Friday.

The plan of settlement which it was believed would be accepted at the conference called for the repayment by the city of 33 per cent of the principal. The principal is $4,843,500, and with accrued interest amounts to approximately $6,500,000.

75 Per Cent Accepted

More than the necessary 75 per cent of the bondholders had signified their willingness, before the meeting in New York, to accept this plan of settlement and make a court order upon it binding.

If as many as five per cent of the bondholders wish to contest, they may do so after the filing of the plan of settlement in federal court, it was said.

City Attorney Grantham said before the group left last Friday that when the plan is agreed upon the petition for and plan of settlement will be filed in the United States court at Abilene.

If there is no opposition to the plan, the court will likely examine it and order a settlement. If there is a contest, however, arguments will be presented for both sides and the plan will be examined to determine its fairness, the attorney said.

11 Persons Are Dead After Oil Well Explosion

ST. GEORGE, Utah, March 7 — The death toll in a factory blast from a premature explosion in a new oil well being brought in seven miles from here today reached 11.

Nine persons were killed outright last night when an explosion wrecked the Escalante well number one being drilled by a subsidiary of the Arrowhead Petroleum company.

Two persons seriously injured in the explosion died today. A throng of spectators in a holiday mood gathered near the well to see "the proving" of a new oil field which they hoped would add oil riches to the agricultural wealth of this prosperous farming community in southern Utah.

Then suddenly the cartridge being sunk exploded, hurling death into the ranks of spectators and oil workers.

Former Ciscoan Is Ordained Minister

Rev. O. C. Curtis, formerly of Cisco, was ordained as a Baptist minister at Andrews Thursday when the Baptist workers conference was held there. He is pastor of the Andrews and the Garden City Baptist churches.

Rev. Mr. Curtis is well known in the Cisco area, having lived here for many years. At present his home is in Big Spring. He has been a licensed minister for some time.

Young People Have Carnival Saturday

The young people of the First Methodist church will have a carnival in the basement of the church Saturday evening from 5:30 to 7:30. It has been announced. Dinner will be served. Proceeds will go to help pay the group's mission pledge, it was said.

TOO MUCH FLETCHERIZING

SEATTLE, March 7 — Failure to eat paper fast enough was one reason Alvin Harrison, 33, got a two-year prison sentence. He was charged with burglary and denied he had had any money for months. When detectives caught him chewing a paper, they made him cough it up. It was a receipt for a $30 suit, purchased the day before.

Training Speakers to Boost Community

Here is a thought for the Cisco Boosters. Kansas City has worked through its Advertising club to train speakers, which has proven of great advantage in many ways. Cisco Boosters might do some work along that line to train speakers for the purpose of community visiting in our local trade territory, an opportunity that has been sadly neglected by local business units.

When Kansas City needs volunteers to tell its advantages to the surrounding country, or to make an appeal for an allied charities drive, or perhaps for a home modernization campaign, it can draw on a large group of specially trained speakers. And to the Advertising Club of Kansas City goes the credit.

This club has conducted speakers training classes for 12 years, and in this period it has trained about 1,000 persons to talk in public "without fear or trembling," as one graduate puts it.

The training class was started in 1922, when the club wanted to do some "out-side boosting" and found its plans thwarted by a lack of trained speakers. Watt G. Randall, secretary of the club, suggested a training class. C. C. Fairchild, an able public speaking instructor, now on the staff of the Manual High School of Kansas City, was engaged to teach seven club members how to talk in public.

This year 150 students are enrolled. A. B. Richmond of Paseo High School has been engaged as an additional teacher. Classes are held once a week for 30 weeks. Each member is required to make one four-minute speech a week before his class. In addition the classes have banquets and other social events which give students practice in after dinner speaking and other addresses.

Students give enthusiastic reports of these classes. Many claim their speech training has played a big part in helping them to achieve business success. But equally important, it is felt, is their value in the civic affairs of Kansas City. In last year's allied charities drive, 40 speakers, both men and women, had their training in public speaking in the club's training classes.

Japan Is Determined on Naval Equality

Official Japan recently emphatically repudiated the rumored suggestion of a three-year naval building holiday.

The report cabled back from America that Vice-Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto had submitted his suggestion has excited most sweeping and categorical denials. A Foreign Office spokesman asserted that he saw the Yamamoto report and that it contained no such proposal, adding: "Yamamoto never made such a recommendation to the Japanese government."

"The latter's attitude has not changed since adjournment of the preliminary conversations in London."

The government spokesman declined to discuss the relative naval ratios which would result from a general cessation of naval building, remarking: "We first heard of the naval building holiday today and it is useless to discuss relative naval strengths on the bases of suppositions."

The alleged proposal reputed emanating from Admiral Yamamoto centers in a formal naval conference to be held this year at which the powers would be invited to announce their respective naval building programs and to agree not to build beyond their actual strength for the three years included between 1935 and 1938.

Inasmuch as it is believed that Japan has built up pretty close to the present treaty allowance, while Britain and the United States have not done so, this would actually set up the desired ratio of 5-5-4, for which Japan has been contending as its right.

The plan also sets another conference in 1938 to determine future international naval programs.

The Japanese Navy Department supported the Foreign Office, issuing its own special communique denying the Yamamoto suggestion for a holiday, characterizing the statement issued by the Japanese naval representatives after the London talk as the authoritative definition of the Japanese attitude toward naval disarmament today.

The Navy Department communique voices the hope that the Japanese proposals at the recent London conference will receive the careful consideration of Great Britain and the United States and will serve as the basis for future conversations.

It is quite conceivable that some sections of Japanese public opinion might welcome financial and other advantages of stabilizing the navies temporarily at present effective strength, which would improve Japan's relative position as fixed under the Washington Treaty.

But the influence of naval circles on the Japanese government is very strong, and it is evident from the emphatic tone of today's denials that the Japanese naval leaders are not disposed at the present moment to make a move toward breaking the deadlock resulting from the unreconciled viewpoints which found expression at London.

Following the unsuccessful conclusion of the London conversations, the Japanese press expressed confidence in the country's ability to hold its own in the event that naval building competition should ensue.

LETTERS FROM READERS

To The Editor:

Our president is meeting with some opposition but I think Frank in D. will have every thing in good shape in the next two years. I will have to admit that our president has been spending money rather freely but our congressman has been saving up billions of dollars for the last twenty years. Our president has spent all of these savings and now wants to go in debt for a few billion dollars. Tom can save up enough to pay these billions in the next few years. Tom is a good business man and his cooperation with the president has been taking newspaper men off the relief and giving them post office jobs. If Tom has any newspaper men on his hands the president should help Tom to place them somewhere. I would suggest that they be sent west to build wind breaks. Nobody knows better how to handle wind than newspaper men and they should know how to plant spanish daggers, prickly pears and cat claws and that is all that will grow out there. (Now if you think this is too strong cut it out because I do not want to have to contend with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce). While I am talking about West Texas, I might say West Texas is well represented in our legislature, and they all act like they might be from West Texas or have probably visited a loco-weed patch at some time or other. Tom Holbrook is a sand rough rabbit twister. He decided once upon a time that he would go west to locate, however, he soon returned and said that West Texas was too dry for him more ways than one. Later he located at Galveston. Tow has acted loco at times ever since he made that trip to West Texas.

Hoover says we must return to the gold standard. Why that man does not even understand his own state. I notice from the papers that the Cisco Chamber of Commerce secretary is opening a gold mine in California. When he gets that mine in operation gold will not be worth forty (40) cents a pound. I think J. E. knows all about gold mining but he had better look out for these salesmen (California is full of 'em). I would advise every one to stay away from salesmen 'cause they will sell you something you don't want. I would like to say something about Little Jeems but I guess I had better lay off him.

Sunstroke Doesn't Exist Says Doctor

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 7.—There is no such thing as sunstroke, according to Dr. D. B. Dill, of the Harvard Medical school.

Dr. Dill said he proved it to his own satisfaction by playing tennis every day with temperatures of from 100 to 110.

"Research by the fatigue laboratory at Harvard has failed to show that there is any such thing as sunstroke," Dr. Dill said. "There are several varieties of heat cramps and the common so-called heat prostrations, but these are caused by physical over-exertion."

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN, March 7.—Governor Allred is having better luck with his brain trust than President Roosevelt. He has found that rare jewel—a practical professor. He is Dr. Robert Hargrove Montgomery, economics instructor at the University of Texas. Dr. Montgomery has studied utilities for 25 years. Governor Allred, seeking to make good on a campaign promise to regulate utilities, turned to the professor. Result: A bill that has emerged from a legislative committee with unanimous vote.SHEARER
Dr. Robert Hargrove Montgomery, economics instructor at the University of Texas, Dr. Montgomery has studied utilities for 25 years. Governor Allred, seeking to make good on a campaign promise to regulate utilities, turned to the professor. Result: A bill that has emerged from a legislative committee with unanimous vote.

It is not alone the professor's acumen that makes him such a treasure. It's the way he accepts conditions instead of blindly backing theories. Example: He drafted a bill giving all rate regulating power to a state commission. Legislators suggested it would meet with opposition from cities jealous of their power.

"O. K. Leave them out," Dr. Montgomery said. "When they see how much better the state can do it, they will want to get in."

didn't press for his original plan of having all the power in one place. Committee members considered, decided his plan was best after all and put it back in the bill.

At the start legislators spoke timidly in Dr. Montgomery's presence when they discussed what the folks back home might think. He quickly set them at ease.

"You should be guided by what the people back home want," he said. "That's the first thing I teach my classes. It's essential to democratic government."

A little, quiet-voiced, pipe-smoking man with a ready smile he had an informative answer for every question. In fact he knows his stuff. There is nothing rognatic about

Dr. Montgomery. He admits often that he may be wrong. "That's opinion," is a frequent qualifying phrase that he uses when he gives his views. Not that his views are hazy. He sees very definitely. On utilities his guiding tenets are:

To cost least, utilities must be monopolies. Competition means extra expense that the consumer, ultimately, pays. It usually results in one competitor being ruined or absorbed by the other. To be harmless as monopolies, they must be regulated.

To reduce rates, you squeeze out unnecessary capital charges. He has a simple formula for what should be left in it. Actual prudent cost of properties used and necessary. If that formula is followed he promises Texas consumers 50 per cent smaller utility bills.

With the legislature at the half way mark, not a single constitutional amendment has yet been submitted for a referendum. More than 40 have been proposed. Part of the delay in action is due to the knowledge that resolutions for constitutional changes have right-of-way wherever they are brought before the house or senate. Proposals need not scramble for calendar preference.

It now appears the people will get an opportunity to ballot on a half dozen or more next summer, including prohibition repeal. The people may be asked if they want to scrap the constitution of 1876 and have a new one from "that to boots" as Former Governor Pat Neff proposed.

Texas race tracks seem perfectly willing that legislators should know all about racing and the pari mutuels before they vote on the topic. The law makers were taken to Alamo Downs to see the last day of racing there. They have been given grandstand passes for the season at El Paso Downs. If there is something pernicious about the tracks and pari mutuels they are being given full opportunity to observe it. Purses have been sent to friends and foes of racing alike.

Representative Emmett Morse of Houston, aspirant for the next speakership, had a chance to show house members his ability as a presiding officer for two days. Speaker Coke Stevenson, called home to attend court, designated the Harris county legislator to act in his place.

Bialas, Leg Gone, Is Hopeful of Skating

UTICA, N. Y., March 7—Loss of his right leg from the knee down isn't going to keep Valentine Bialas, 32, Olympic skater, off the ice. While still confined to St. Anthony hospital at Michigan City, Ind., he is making plans to return to his favorite pastime — and to competition — among "one-legged skaters," if he can find any. "Sure I'm going to get a wooden leg and then get right back on the ice," Bialas told a friend. "I still have my knee so I won't be entirely stiff-legged and I'll be able to get around pretty well after a bit of practice. I am sure of that. I have no hopes of ever again competing in speed events as I formerly did but there will be my pleasure of skating and then I can again put on exhibitions as my stunt work is done with the left foot and leg."

Bialas lost his leg in an automobile accident while training for the 1936 Olympic. He has been a member of three Olympic skating teams. Plans are being completed to hold an exhibition and party here to raise funds to aid the man whose home is in Utica.

ALBANY, Ore., March 7—Automatic justice of a sort was dealt out when a thief stole a suede jacket from the courthouse. It had been left there for disinfection of scarlet fever germs.

Which?

Think It Over!

We frankly admit that in a larger retail center, you will have the opportunity of a wider selection, from a greater variety of merchandise.

But . . . are you willing, Mrs. Customer, to sacrifice the privilege of an exclusive selection, for greater variety?

For example, when a large store in a metropolitan center places an order for dresses, they order three dozen in assorted sizes. Our local merchants seldom buy more than one garment of a kind.

The selection of that garment is often made with you or your next door neighbor in mind, thus affording you the opportunity of owning and wearing an exclusive garment at a popular price, and without the embarrassment of meeting your maid some morning with an exact duplicate of your dress.

Cost Nearing 14 Billion Mark Administration Begins Second Half

AND L. GRIDLEY
Special Staff Correspondent
CINCINNATI, March 7. — New findings showed the $14,000,000,000 cost of the Roosevelt administration today as President Roosevelt started his third year in office.

The total monetary cost of the Roosevelt administration today as President Roosevelt started his third year in office is the total monetary cost of the Roosevelt administration today as President Roosevelt started his third year in office.

Accomplishments Listed

Among the accomplishments of the Roosevelt administration today as President Roosevelt started his third year in office are the following:

- 1—Between 10,000,000 and 20,000,000 persons have been supplied with food and housing.
- 2—Panic conditions that appeared with the Roosevelt inauguration have been dissipated and stability has been restored in business and finance.
- 3—Thousands of homes and farms have been saved from foreclosure through operation of government agencies.
- 4—Nearly 116,000 banks have been reopened and most of them placed on a sound basis with liberal government cash.
- 5—Incomes of farmers and wage earners have been boosted by more than a billion dollars through operation of the NRA and farm relief steps.
- 6—Business activity has risen from 59 per cent of the 1923-25 average in March, 1933, to 86 per cent in December, 1934; commodity prices rose from 60 to 77.

Diverse Views
In gauging the economic results of the first two years of the Roosevelt administration, impartial observers were still uncertain as to the ultimate outcome. Substantial progress in restoration of stability and halting of the deflation spiral of the previous four years were fearful that the heavy spending and some of the more experimental of the New Deal recovery plans might mitigate against further improvement.

All of the New Deal recovery steps except its monetary program have cost money to date. The monetary program, involving the devaluation of the gold dollar to 59.06 per cent of its former value actually, returned a book profit of nearly $3,000,000,000 to the treasury but this portion of the Roosevelt program apparently was drawing the most criticism.

Still unrevealed was the ultimate outcome of the monetary plan. Presumably the administration is planning to promote monetary or credit inflation only so far as it would cause domestic price levels to rise to a sufficient extent to permit creditors to pay their debts with dollars of the same purchasing power as those when they were contracted. In this manner bankruptcies are to be prevented.

Fear Inflation
Some administration critics are fearful that the monetary and credit inflation policies of the federal government ultimately will lead to an era of uncontrolled inflation to be followed by a new slump. At the same time New Deal leaders were positive that they had sufficient powers to put the "brakes" on any unhealthy inflationary boom. They were successful in the boom in the summer of 1933.

A powerful hold on possible unhealthy inflation has been supplied the administration by almost unlimited control over the security markets of the nation through the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Under its securities plan dictatorial powers have been gained in the operation of the nation's exchanges and the methods of control over security issues which were a contributing factor in the 1929 boom which was followed by the present depression.

Recovery Program
Treasury figures today showed the record peace time expenditures of the New Deal in the promotion of its recovery program. Against total government expenditures to date of approximately $13,500,000,000 the government collected in taxes and other income about $6,000,000,000. This left $7,500,000,000 which was borrowed from the public, carrying the national debt to its present record peak of $28,500,000,000.

Despite the sweeping rise in the government's debt, rising prices for government bonds as the result of various artificial boosting operations of the government have enabled the treasury to borrow money at successively lower interest rates. The cost of government borrowing has now been cut to around 3 per cent as the result of refunding of high interest bearing obligations with lower ones.

Included in the "emergency" expenditures of $8,500,000,000 under Roosevelt were approximately $2,700,000,000 for direct relief of the unemployed; $2,500,000,000 for relief of business, banks and railroads through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; $650,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation Corps; and $500,000,000 for public highway construction.

For Home Saving
Other millions of dollars have gone for such activities as the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Farm Credit Administration, subsidizing homesteads, crop reduction, Tennessee Valley Authority, insurance of bank deposits and other New Deal activities bring the total "recovery costs" to around the $8,500,000,000 mark.

Further heavy expenditures for these purposes are indicated by administration officials unless private industry itself resumes its normal spending activities.

A gradual growth of federal control over banking and finance marked the first two years of the Roosevelt administration. A sweeping series of victories by the administration in the Supreme Court giving a stamp of approval to its monetary program through the upholding of the government's right to abrogate the gold clause in all obligations were won less than a month ago.

At the same time the administration was going ahead with new banking plans designed to center important control in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board, virtually establishing a central bank for the United States. This program is now before congress.

Depression-Hit Cowmen Don Full Dress in Roundup

Texas steers bawled in amazement, then lay down dazed to be branded, at this strange roundup in the Big Bend country, when cattlemen clad in evening clothes gathered for the fray. Tuxedos and boiled shirts, no longer used since depression prices for livestock ended the social whirl of better days, adorned the roundups as they roped calves, rounded up strays, and applied the branding iron. "Might as well get some wear out of these and save our working clothes," was the consensus of the ranchers.

COMANCHE MEN CALLED WORST HORSE THIEVES

AUSTIN, March 7. — "Of all the arant horse-thieves that depredated upon the changing frontiers of Texas, the Comanche Indians were the worst and most numerous," declared J. Everett Haley, collector of historical materials for the University of Texas, in an article, "The Comanchero Trade," in the latest issue of the Southwestern Historical Quarterly.

The Comanches "raided, fought and stole almost as often as the moon grew full and their elusive trails pointed pursuers toward the open country," Mr. Haley said. His article is based on materials taken from letters, reminiscences and other records left by Col. Charles Goodnight, who ranged on the Cross Timber frontier of Texas in the 1850's and 60's. It was this area that bore the brunt of the Comanche depredations and furnished the bulk of the cattle and horses that went into the trade which flourished between the Comanches and Comancheros, friendly New Mexican traders. Horses, and then cattle, stolen from the Texas border, were bartered for guns and whiskey and other commodities.

Stole Cattle
A few Texas frontiersmen still claim that Indians stole no cattle," Haley said. "Horses? plenty of them. But what would Indians want with cattle when the Western world was alive with wild beef? To this pertinent question one may answer that they wanted them only for the purpose of trading to the Comancheros, the Indian traders of New Mexico. Yet through these Comanche depredations and furnished the bulk of the cattle and horses that went into the trade which flourished between the Comanches and Comancheros, friendly New Mexican traders. Horses, and then cattle, stolen from the Texas border, were bartered for guns and whiskey and other commodities.

Hollywood Dancing Is Undergoing Great Change For Better Says Dance Director

By ALAN McELWAIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, March 7. — The light fantastic as interpreted by Hollywood is undergoing a revolution. The herded hordes of lightly clad girls are on their way to oblivion and dancing — real dancing — is taking a new lease on life. Orthodox ensembles and mass movements that have filled the screen for so long are giving way to intimate group numbers that emphasize the individuality of each dancer, according to LeRoy Prinz, Paramount's pioneering dance director.

New Order
This new order of the dance had to come, Prinz declares.

"Ensembles robbed dancing of its thrills because the cameras have to be placed a long way off in order to get the whole set in their lenses," he says. "By having smaller, better trained groups, we get more beautiful steps and numbers, newer types of dancing and an infinitely more satisfying performance."

"The small groups are to dancing what the close-up is to the motion picture itself. By using eight or a dozen talented dancers, instead of eighty girls, we attain effects hitherto believed impossible."

New Dance Deal
Prinz has originated a number of dances which he will introduce in "The Big Broadcast of 1935." The same new deal in dancing is being used in Mae West's latest picture, "How Am I Doin'?" and in the Carl Brisson-Mary Ellis musical flicker, "All the King's Horses."

This new type of dancing gives the Hollywood chorus girl added importance, Prinz points out, but likewise it places more responsibility on them.

They must have more than a smile and the ability to hip-hop. They must be able to act, to perform all manner of difficult dance routines and, not the least, intelligence.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of rheumatism, backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality getting up nights, lameness, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-McMurray Co.

PANHANDLE GAS WASTE DURING 1934 SHOWS 76 PER CENT HIKE

By Elmer H. Johnson, Regional Economist Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas

On the basis of data supplied by the United States bureau of mines the total wastage of natural gas in 1934 in the Texas Panhandle increased 76 per cent over that for 1933. In 1934 the total production of natural gas in the Texas Panhandle amounted to 876,000,000 cubic feet. This sum was 46 per cent greater than for 1933. Of this vast quantity it is estimated that 463,000,000 cubic feet were wasted in 1934, as contrasted with a total wastage of 275,000,000 cubic feet in 1933.

Though these figures of waste seem staggering enough, perhaps by converting these quantities of wastage into the coal equivalent, or by making for comparison is attained. The amount of wastage of natural gas in the Texas Panhandle alone in 1934 is roughly equivalent to 21,000,000 metric tons of coal, or to 84,000,000 barrels of oil; that for 1933 roughly equal to 12,000,000 metric tons of coal, or to 48,000,000 barrels of oil. During the past two years this appalling waste in the order of magnitude of 33,000,000 metric tons of coal is as great as the total estimated reserves of lignite and coal for the entire state.

60 Per Cent Wasted
Moreover, for January 1, 1935, it is estimated that the wastage in the Panhandle amounted to 1,900,000,000 cubic feet daily—or a quantity roughly equivalent to the wastage of nearly 70,000 tons of coal daily.

Furthermore, quoting a bureau of mines statement: "The current production of natural gas in the Texas Panhandle is about 2,700,000,000 cubic feet daily, of which about 60 per cent is wasted."

If conservation means efficient utilization without waste, then here is an outstanding example of violation of conservation policy as the most ardent conservationist might seek to find.

Soil erosion conservationists continue to tell us of the appalling wastes of soil—but have largely, if not entirely omitted the geological and physical geographic aspects of the question—at times when agricultural restriction policies are the order of the day. Moreover, no data have been advanced to show that erosion, bad as it is, has been an appreciable factor in reducing the aggregate of agricultural production for the nation as a whole. One of the most thoughtful conservationists of his time, Thomas Crowder Chamberlain, the eminent geologist, stated in 1929 that nature apparently has a mysterious way of replenishing its soils.

Irreplaceable Resources
But when we come to minerals we are dealing with irreplaceable resources—resources that have been slowly evolving in the earth's laboratory during past geological ages. Especially do these features of irreplaceability apply to our mineral fuels and sources of energy once used or misused they are gone forever.

It is, however, more than the intrinsic significance of these wasted resources that should be of concern to Texas. If the trends of the times—both short-time tendencies and the longer swings—can be at least upon, it seems obvious that the future prosperity of Texas will be very largely dominated by industrialization. Industrialization in Texas can come about through decentralization of manufacturing industries, a movement that has attained world-wide proportions during the past quarter of a century. Decentralization is but the formation of new centers—and the main dependent upon the use of available fuels and energy resources in large and dependable quantities. Where can industries find low-cost power in sufficient quantity at or near tide-water? And industries as their market. In so many words is summarized the prospects of Texas prosperity in the future.

Being Depleted
Economically desirable, and necessary though it may be, it is none the less true that every gallon of petroleum products from Texas (petroleum and every cubic foot of Texas natural gas consumed outside the state, deplete Texas reserves of these irreplaceable resources by just that much, not counting wastes involved.

Because of the industrial significance of petroleum and natural gas, the time will come when wastes will be reduced to a minimum and when efficient methods of utilization will be demanded. The trend in coal utilization during the past twenty-five years, particularly the practice of using coal as a raw material from which an ever-widening range of products is continuously being extracted, points the way to more effective utilization of our fuel resources. Who can estimate how much of Texas oil and natural gas will be wasted or misused before desirable types of conservation policies are applied to these resources which nature provides once and for all time?

NOTICE
At a regular meeting of the City Commission of the City of Cisco, Texas, on February 26, 1935 a resolution was passed ordering a general election to be held on Tuesday, April 2, 1935, for the purpose of electing a Mayor and two City Commissioners.—Adv.

ADVICE TO WOMEN

ALL women at some period of their lives need a strengthening tonic like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The young woman who suffers from monthly pains, the expectant mother who has nausea and other disagreeable symptoms, or the middle-aged woman who experiences "heat flashes" should try this "Prescription."

Mrs. J. W. Wythe of 92 Red River St., Austin, Texas, said: "A relative was in such a rundown condition she couldn't do a thing. She lost many pounds in weight and suffered from feminine weakness. Finally she used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and gained weight and had no further trouble."

New size, tablets 50 cts., liquid $1.00.

Seek Protection

New Dealers are comforted, however, by knowledge that as the radical tide rises with Long or any other extreme Progressive, the more conservative business and financial elements will be driven to Mr. Roosevelt for protection against programs even more distasteful than those now prevailing. Unless the Republican party shortly re-organizes and finds a national leader it appears that all but the most bitter conservatives may find themselves rallying to Mr. Roosevelt's standard next election to protect themselves against a radical independent.

The foregoing illustrates the likelihood of a formidable third party movement in 1936. It explains, also, why politics rather than economics will be the chief concern of statesmen during the next 20 months. The first two years of Roosevelt were colored more by immediate problems of depression than by considerations of 1936 presidential strategy.

Mr. Roosevelt's best defense against Republican and Radical attack is re-employment. He estimates upwards of 4,000,000 persons have been put to work since March 4, 1933 when 13,000,000 or more were jobless. But labor is NOT satisfied. NRA as created on June 16, 1933 proved unworkable although effective on some fronts.

Reorganizing NRA

The third New Deal year starts with congress in the midst of reorganizing NRA. In substitution for the $3,300,000,000 PWA venture with which Mr. Roosevelt sought to prime the pump, he proposes now a $4,800,000,000 recovery and relief appropriation. He calculates it will provide direct employment for 3,500,000 persons and indirect jobs for at least as many more.

After almost two years of direct relief, the President has promised to take the country off the dole. Best evidence that Mr. Roosevelt's political power has waned since his inauguration is provided by congressional reluctance to vote the recovery and relief fund either in the amount or form demanded by the president. Typical, too, was the Senate's rejection of the White House plea for adherence to the Work Court.

Federal finances trouble Conservatives of both parties. Mr. Roosevelt found it impossible to keep his promise of a year ago that the country would begin next July 1 to live within its income. He inherited from Mr. Hoover a national debt of $22,500,000,000. In January, 1934 Mr. Roosevelt proposed to increase it to about $32,000,000,000 after which pump priming expenditure spending was not to exceed income. But in his budget message this year the president was compelled to raise the prospective debt to about $38,000,000,000.

Big Business Alarmed

Big business and big bankers are alarmed. But they are not believed to be politically effective. To some degree they are reassured by evidence that Mr. Roosevelt does not intend to resort to currency inflation.

The New Deal alternative is the proposed 1935 Bank Act which would establish the substance if not the form of a politically controlled Central Bank in the United States. The bill is drawn to give the Federal Reserve Board and through it the president complete control over credit policies. Credit inflation, therefore, becomes the New Deal alternative to currency inflation.

Mr. Roosevelt's economic security program—old age pensions, unemployment insurance, care for mothers and children—is being re-written by congress. It is a complicated proposal now generally judged to have been too hastily drafted. The implied limit of $30 a month for the aged has served to increase popular clamor for the $200 a month Townsend Plan.

Bonus Issue

The House will pass and the Senate will somewhat modify a bill for immediate cash payment of the bonus. Mr. Roosevelt has promised a veto but may end by accepting a compromise. It is an issue on which no president since the war has been able to control congress.

The political surprise of the second New Deal year was Mr. Roosevelt's inability to control a congress in which Democrats enjoyed a two-thirds majority of both Houses. The Democrats lost seven states, divided one and carried the others in the 1933 elections. But the top-heavy congressional majorities split early in the present session. Rebellion was rising in the latter months of the session which ended in June, 1933.

Congress Problem

Congress did not become a major problem until it met this year after the November elections which were mistakenly interpreted by many observers to be a New Deal landslide. That election proved to be, instead, an overwhelming victory for a party which divided against itself.

The collapse of debt negotiations with Soviet Russia cost Mr. Roosevelt his only opportunity to achieve something strikingly successful in foreign relations. His reciprocal tariff policy is making slow and not spectacular progress. Disarmament generally is regarded as a dead issue for a generation or more. The Washington Treaty structure has been scrapped.

The best indication that the administration considers world peace precarious is the fact that Mr. Roosevelt plans to spend more than $1,000,000,000 this year preparing to defend this country against attack.

Levees Expected To Hold Mississippi

NASHVILLE, March 7. — Completion of flood control projects and the possible addition of more levees along tributaries of the Mississippi river this year was forecast by Gen. Harley B. Ferguson, president of the Mississippi River Commission. Remaining projects are at Greenfield, Bend, opposite Cairo, Ill.; Indian Mound, below Carthage, Mo.; and at Miller Station, below Hickman, Ky. About five million cubic yards of levee building are under construction at an estimated cost to the government of $125,000,000.

During 1934 about 60 million cubic feet of dirt were used in levee construction at Memphis, Vicksburg and New Orleans.

General Ferguson believes the levees now are strong enough to offset the danger of disastrous floods, such as the one in 1927 and the recent rampages of the river in Mississippi.

FLIGHT FIRST LINK IN NEW AIR NETWORK

THE HAGUE, March 7. — South America has been brought one link closer to the European aerial network by the flight of the K. L. M. machine "Snip" from Holland to Paramaribo in December in the opinion of Albert Plesman, managing director of the W. L. M., or Royal Dutch airlines.

In an interview with the United Press Plesman said "Our Successful flight from Holland to Paramaribo and Curacao has inaugurated co-operation with Pan-American airways whereby Curacao will be linked with the existing lines of Pan-American Airways' existing web of airlines."

"Apart from that, however, the K. L. M. hopes to create its own airlines in Central America with bases at Paramaribo and Curacao. South and Central America offer enormous possibilities for aerial development. How exactly they will be utilized we cannot say definitely, but we are working to do our bit."

The K. L. M. is also planning extensions of its network on airlines in the Far East.

"As soon as the ground organization is completed," Plesman said, "a new line will be opened between Sourabaya, in Java, and Manila by way of Balikpapan and Tarakan in Borneo. This line actually will be operated by the Royal Netherlands Indies Airlines with which the K. L. M. is affiliated. The United States and China will play a big part in the development of air traffic which I believe will occur in the Far East."

Plesman revealed that the K. L. M. is studying the possibilities of operating a Zeppelin service between Amsterdam and Batavia in which airplanes and airships may be used. He added that it probably will be at least a couple of years, however, before this project is realized.

President Fulfills His Inaugural Promise To Make American History

By FREDERICK A. STORM
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 7. — After two years in the White House, way mark today in his term as the nation's chief executive.

His anniversary—the second one in the country's history—went unobserved by Mr. Roosevelt who carried on with business as usual in the White House offices.

Mr. Roosevelt turned into the homestretch of his administration with an amazing record of achievement, having since March 3, 1933, when he assumed the duties relinquished by Herbert Hoover. Bluntly asserting that he was "going to break precedent," he proceeded to make good.

Among other things he established a record for long-distanced traveling that only President Wilson approached and that during the stress of war times when he sailed twice across the Atlantic in peace negotiations.

Franklin D. Roosevelt opened up his administration with a bang, pointing out that "the only thing we have to fear is fear itself." He went forward rapidly toward clearing up what had resolved into a national crisis.

Swift Measures
He rehabilitated the tottering banking structure in swift, decisive measures, took the country off the gold standard, wiped prohibition off the books and started the machinery of the national recovery act.

That was the first year. In the second he launched efforts looking to consolidation of the economic and social gains of the NRA and carried out in addition other related recovery steps.

The beginning of the third year retain his keen sense of humor, although occasionally he bristles. In the latter connection it was recently when he objected to questioners asking him to comment on pending legislation.

The president looked forward today to his remaining year and 10 months in office—his term expires Jan. 20, 1937 under the new regulations—in projecting the remainder of his broad program of long range planning a program based on a gradual and sustained recovery and security for all.

Cold Wave Kills Gardens at Temple

TEMPLE, March 7. — Early spring gardens were practically ruined in this section when cold winds swept over the plantings for the second time.

Such vegetables as onions and turnips were practically all killed. Grain which was replanted or came out again after the last freeze, appeared to be permanently destroyed this time.

Last month 85 per cent of the oats crop was destroyed. Very little of the wheat was hurt at that time since not much of it was up.

Not much of the wheat and oats killed will be replanted because late crops in this section do not do very well.

Since that time the AAA has increased from $4,114,265,000 in 1933 to $4,782,626,000 in 1934 and prices of farm products are up about 42 per cent above those of a year ago.

FUTURE OF AAA IS SAID TO LIE WITH INDUSTRY

By WILLIAM A. BELL, Jr.
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 7. — The AAA counted its attainments today and put itself on the defensive to hold the gains of a 200-month campaign against agricultural depression.

Responding to the influences of a record drought and the acreage limitation programs, prices which farmers receive for their products have about reached the desired point. Now, says the AAA, it is the duty of industry to manufacture more, employ more, charge less and supply enough consumer buying power to keep farm prices up.

The AAA realizes that the drought was the chief agent of reduction and consequently the chief price booster. So it will abide by the theory that after a bad year will come a good and the nation's farms, if unregulated, will yield so much that the surplus crop will start all over again.

Start With Cotton
The first attack on overproduction began nearly two years ago when the AAA got cotton planters to play under one-fourth of their crop. For their co-operation, farmers received $12,739,161 in benefit payments raised by a $21-a-bale processing tax.

Since that time the AAA has increased from $4,114,265,000 in 1933 to $4,782,626,000 in 1934 and prices of farm products are up about 42 per cent above those of a year ago.

Agriculture's share of an estimated total national wealth of $51-$20,000,000 last year was $5,287,000,000 compared to a $4,557,000,000 share of a $46,030,000,000 total income in 1933, of 12 per cent compared to 9.9 per cent.

Average per capita income for a farm population of 32,590,000 last year was $163 compared to $141 in 1933 and $115 in 1932.

Officials were frank to admit, however, that these gains cannot be maintained unless domestic demand increases substantially this year.

Benefit Payments
Regardless of economic laws, farmers will receive more than $400,000,000 in benefit payments from crop programs effective this year, most of it before Jan. 1, 1936.

Perhaps the most vexatious problem which the farm recovery unit faces today is the future of the cotton control plan. Raised against it are influential forces which complain that it is losing the United States its dominance over world cotton markets; that other countries are increasing acreage to undersell the United States.

Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace professes to be temporarily unafraid of this prospect. He believes it an imagined evil, conjured by parties whose best business depends on a large volume. American cotton prices are not unduly high, he contends, and the diminishing foreign market would expand again if the U. S. would only buy more foreign goods. Nevertheless, Wallace sent Oscar Johnston, an expert to tour Europe and discover what's wrong.

Labor Unrest
Another outgrowth of cotton limitation is increasing unemployment among the tenant farmer and share-cropper population. Independent and federal investigators have reported widespread labor and social disturbances in the Cotton Belt. Wallace says the problem is "grossly exaggerated."

An additional worry for the AAA administrators is the current demand by cigarette growers for more acreage reduction than the 1935 control plan offers. Producers of the flue-cured type, grown principally along the Atlantic seaboard in the Carolinas and Virginia, got so much for their product last year that they want more of the same this year, even, complains the AAA, at the risk of reducing the supply below demand and losing export markets.

Want Fair Prices
Officials declared that the AAA was not committed to obtaining the highest prices possible but sought "fair" prices.

"Now you'll see the AAA snap into it," an administrator said of the internal reorganization which purged the agency of its "left wing" element and put it in complete command of "dirt farmers" and "practical men."

But the AAA is still nervous about the recent shakeup and none would predict when the repercussions of the famous shakeup would cease.

TRAINLOAD OF WASHERS OFF FOR THE COAST

Officials of the Maytag company have announced the shipment of a trainload of washing machines to dealers in the Pacific coast states. The train consisted of forty-four railcars containing more than 4,000 Maytag washers, valued at nearly one-half of a million dollars. This is the largest single shipment from the Maytag factory since 1928, according to Hyatt and Wood, local dealers.

In commenting on this trainload shipment, F. L. Maytag, chairman of the board of the Maytag company, told them that the order for the trainload was placed by T. A. Moler, president of the Maytag Pacific-Innsmouth company, distributors, with headquarters at Portland, Ore. Maytag further stated that improved business conditions and the desire of both dealers and consumers to take advantage of present prices had increased demand to the point where a trainload shipment was needed to take care of dealers' immediate needs.

Included in the train were approximately 1,000 washers to California dealers. The train will proceed as a unit to Salt Lake City from which point distribution of the cars will be made to dealers.

SPECIAL WILL TELL SOUTH OF TEXAS' PARTY

CORSICANA, March 7. — Plans for a major publicity project in the operation of the "Centennial Special" train through the Old South under auspices of the Texas Press association are nearing completion. Lowry Martin, chairman of the general arrangements committee announced here today.

Carrying about 150 Texas editors, publishers, public officials and business men and women, the "Centennial Special" will visit 14 southern states, leaving from Houston on April 25, will visit Washington for two days and will return to Texas via Little Rock, Ark., arriving at Dallas where the train will disband on May 4.

Following is the tentative route: Houston, New Orleans, Birmingham, Montgomery, Jacksonville, Savannah, Columbia, Raleigh, Richmond, Washington, Charlotte, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Nashville, Memphis, Little Rock and Dallas.

"The trip offers an opportunity for any Texan to enjoy a wonderful vacation trip, seeing one of the most beautiful scenic sections of the United States when it is at its most beautiful, in the spring, and at the same time, render a real service by helping to advertise Texas and the Centennial," said Martin. "A remarkably low all-expense rate has been arranged by the Press association with the participating railroads, and for the first time in history, women are invited on such a trip."

Advance Resources

Col. W. E. Talbot, president of Progressive Texans, Inc., and his organization are cooperating with the Press association, and will distribute literature advertising Texas resources and opportunities in all the principal cities visited. Col. Talbot will have charge of the speaking programs at luncheons, dinners and other entertainments rendered the Texans in various cities en route, where more Texas advertising will be disseminated. Martin headed the "New Deal Special," sponsored last year by the Press association, which was pronounced one of the most successful state advertising ventures ever staged. It visited St. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City, Washington, New York and other large cities.

"Texas has never made any particular effort to interest the southern states in our resources and opportunities," said Martin, "and we feel that the Centennial offers a splendid opportunity for Texans to pay a goodwill visit to that section, and invite them to our state birthday party in 1936."

Tin Can Tourists Hold Convention

MARASTA, March 7. — Tin Can Tourists of the world, meeting in annual convention here recently, selected Grand Rapids, Mich., as the site for their midsummer convention, which will be held the week of Aug. 18.

More than 1,000 automobiles, house cars and trailers were in the camp here for the convention, and more than 2,500 campers were registered and attended the convention.

Organized in 1920, the body has adopted an official radiator emblem of TCT and a diamond-shaped pin for the lapel, bearing the insignia TCT.

The motto is, "Do unto others as you'd have them do unto you," and the slogan, "No dues. No fees. No graft!"

The convention here lasted a week and practically every state was represented. The first national trailer show was held in connection with the convention.

Cherokee Tribe Is Living As Of Old

CHEROKEE, N. C., March 7. — No unemployment or physical want disturbs the peace of the village of Cherokee or its 400 families who inhabit 60,000 acres of land in the North Carolina mountains.

The Indians of the colony, living much as did their ancestors, go quietly about their daily work, some farming, some gathering chestnut wood to sell to paper mills, some hunting, some practicing Indian craft.

Knows No Dialect

They are ruled by Jarrett Blythe, chief, who speaks no Cherokee, but who understands the language. He said his father, a former chief, threatened to spank him, so he "could not sit down for a month" when he was a lad if he learned the language—so he dispensed with the speaking part of it.

Most of the land in the reservation is in timber, but each year crops are grown in their own way, each household head providing food for his own family and living mostly to himself.

Use Bows and Arrows

Many are taught to weave blankets and baskets; the boys make bows and arrows and some make blowguns. The bow and arrow is still used by the older Indians who go into the mountains in search of game.

College graduates dot the colony for many members have been graduated from colleges and universities over the country. His chief is a graduate. But most of the men confine themselves to operating a 20-acre plot of land, having a modest and quiet life.

There is little crime in the section and most differences are settled by the council.

CALIFORNIAN TO TRACE LIFE IN FAR NORTH

EDMONTON, Alta., March 7. — An intensive study of the origin of the Eskimo tribes in Canada's northern Arctic territories will be undertaken next summer by Miss Sue Thorn, graduate in anthropology of the University of California.

Miss Thorn is at present in Edmonton laying plans for an "extended stay in the Arctic."

The Eskimo language, anthropology, customs and folklore will be studied by the young California scientist with a view to proving or disproving the theory that the Eskimo race originally came from the Orient via the Bering Straits. She plans to go north to Akavik, on the Mackenzie Delta, early in the summer.

First Trip North

Although this is her first trip north, Miss Thorn has spent considerable time studying Eskimo life language and customs, and is confident she will have little difficulty in facing the rigors of the Arctic.

After spending some time in Akavik, "becoming acclimatized," she plans to journey east to Victoria Island in Coronation Gulf and possibly go on to Greenland if she can obtain permission from the Danish government.

She will be accompanied by native guides but will be the sole scientist in the party.

Seeks Language Clues

Miss Thorn will learn the Eskimo language thoroughly in an effort to determine its origin. Older and more isolated members of the Eskimo tribes will be sought as guides and instructors by the scientist in order to obtain native customs and beliefs untainted by contact with the white races.

After completing her Arctic researches, Miss Thorn will go to the Chicago university, where she studied before graduating from the University of California, and write a thesis on her findings.

CANADA SEEKS CHILDREN FOR NEW CITIZENS

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 7. — Forty English children between the ages of seven and nine will come out to Canada in May to form the nucleus of the Fairbridge Farm School on Vancouver Island, to be established under a scheme sponsored by the Child Immigration Society of Great Britain to train English boys and girls in agriculture.

The society has purchased 1,000 acres of land on Vancouver Island, and building of homes for the children will start shortly. Through private subscription and the cooperation of the British government, children will be sent out from England to be schooled and trained on this farm—the largest experiment of its kind ever attempted in Canada. It will be modeled after the Fairbridge Farm School in Australia.

Room for 400

It is estimated by Major M. F. Trew, who will be the headmaster of the new school, that when the school is in full operation, 400 English boys and girls will be attending. They will be taken from English institutions, and chosen specially by the London committee of the society.

At the school on Vancouver Island they will be schooled according to provincial standards, and at the same time trained in farming and domestic work.

At the age of 16, the boys and girls will be sent out to farms in Western Canada.

Government Backing

The Fairbridge Farm School will be a self-contained community. Vegetables, fruit, etc., will be grown on the farm, and a small herd of cattle will be purchased.

The scheme is being financed by the society and the British government.

"It is a practical form of immigration," Major Trew said in an interview here. "These boys and girls will be brought up as Canadians. They will know Canadian farming thoroughly when they are through with us."

The teachers and the majority of the staff workers will be Canadians.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 7. — Canada's national debt now amounts to $2,764,564,294, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, revealed in the House of Commons.

Potato First Popularized By Louis XVI Who Wore Blossom In His Buttonhole

A vengeful cook, a king who adorned his buttonhole with a potato blossom, and a famine are historical incidents leading up to an estimate by modern home economists experts that about 14 per cent of all food cooked on the housewife's gas range is the popular Irish potato, according to H. L. Dyer.

Louis XVI popularized the potato in France by wearing a potato blossom regularly in his buttonhole, hence French fried potatoes became first a national and then an international food. In 1853, a Saratoga, New York cook, to get back at a patron who complained that his fried potatoes were too thick, sliced potatoes paper-thin, dropped them in hot grease and took out the first potato chips. With the failure of the potato crop and resultant famine in Ireland in 1845, began the great wave of Irish immigration to the United States which inaugurated the present day popularity of the starchy tuber.

Recipes brought over by these people and cooking methods have been so improved that housewives and professional cooks never need fear an end of tasty potato recipes. Latest are the potato combinations in oven dinners which are becoming so popular, according to Dyer.

"Everything is cooked in the oven," he said, "and the new recipe has been popularized by the new heat controlled, insulated ovens found on gas ranges which make oven dinners so easily served."

Several of the newest gas ranges are to be seen at the spring show, in the gas company office and local dealer showrooms. Latest improvements in gas ranges include non-chip enamel, built-in recipe files, more colorful appearance, divided cooking tops, drawer type smokeless broilers that eliminate tipping and spilling, porcelain interior and exterior finish, automatic lighters, simmer burners, utensil drawers, automatic heat controlled ovens with insulation which saves gas and keeps the kitchen cool. The gas company cooking experts have figured that a good meal can be prepared on one of these modern ranges for as low as one-third of a cent per person for the gas.

Electric Company Warns Against Danger Of Getting Kite Strings Against Wires

Don't fly your kite near a light wire.

With the kite season approaching and a few kites already seen in the skies, the West Texas Utilities asked the boys of the city to cooperate by keeping their kite strings out of the high lines.

The request, it was said, was for the good of the boys, not the company or the wires. Danger of severe electrical shock to the boy on the other end of the kite string was pointed out, together with the fact that there have been many fatalities from this cause.

"That's especially dangerous," said P. P. Shepard, manager of the company here, "if the kite string is the kind that has a thin copper wire in the center."

An accident of the sort warned of occurred here a few years ago when a child flying a kite allowed the copper kite string to come into contact with the company's high line. The child was severely shocked and burned, and might have been killed, it was pointed out, had not the wire burned in two.

"If you get a kite hung in a wire, just leave it there and let us get it down for you," Dick Giles of the company said. "Don't risk getting it down yourself."

BETTER HOUSING PROGRAM

"For those who live in houses, those who repair and construct houses, and those who invest in houses." - FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

"but we CAN have a Better Home"

For years I have wanted a lovely home. Not a home beyond our means. Not necessarily a home of dreams. We have a house. It is almost free of all encumbrances now. But it lacks the kind of floors that I would like to have in it. The heating plant is about done for — antiquated, inefficient, inadequate. The trim, the woodwork and the walls are not modern by any means. The lighting fixtures are about the date of 1910. My house lacks practically all the things that make a house a lovely home. And what it lacks not only fills us with desire, but it takes from the sales value of our property. Today we could not get nearly what we paid for our house if we had to sell it.

We have enjoyed a fair income; fair enough for us to buy a home, almost pay for it in full. But we have never accumulated the needed amount of money to do the repair and remodeling job at any one particular time.

But today we can do it—and we intend to do it. Under the terms made possible by the Federal Housing Administration, we can borrow the money to make our house a HOME. We can now borrow the money from any approved institution for repairs and remodeling to be done to our house.

We intend to take from three to five years to repay the money needed to pay for our remodeling job. We are a good risk for the bank. We have our feet on the ground. We are not doing more than we should do, nor do we have ideas of developing a home beyond our means. We are a typical American family, doing a job for ourselves and at the same time doing our bit to help put all of America squarely on its own feet.

Few presidents have carried the overwhelming burden of the office with the untiring zest of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Here, at the third year of his administration opens, is the president as

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

ST. PATRICK'S is my favorite holiday, not so much because of the way I feel about Ireland as easy to carry out for parties. Take the infinite variety of soups for instance — cream of spinach, cream of asparagus or any cream soup garnished with minced parsley. And for salads there is the entire field of greens — lettuce, watercress, endive, romaine — with peppers, olives and chives for good measure.

And if you can't get hold of pistachio nuts for your dessert, blanched shredded almonds or shredded coconut with a few drops of green vegetable coloring will serve the same purpose.

Green and White Luncheon
Here's an all-green and white St. Patrick's Day luncheon that may be simplified to suit individual needs or used as is:

Fruit cocktail, halibut mousse with crabmeat sauce, spinach timbales, new potatoes, shamrock rolls, stuffed pepper salad, lucky shamrock cake, ice cream croquettes, coffee.

Filling for Peppers
Cream cheese is mixed with grated pineapple and chopped pistachio nuts as filling for the sweet green peppers. After thorough cutting cut in slices about an inch thick crosswise of the pepper. Serve on a bed of cress or shredded leaf lettuce.

Balls of ice cream are rolled in green shredded coconut to make the dessert. A firmly frozen parfait mixture such as almond or mint will be found most refreshing.

The lucky shamrock cake is covered with a green-tinted frosting and decorated with shamrocks.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, cereal, cream, fluffed dried beef, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Anchovy potato balls, lettuce sandwiches, jelly roll, milk, tea.

DINNER: Boiled tongue with raisin sauce, grilled sweet potatoes, green beans in cream sauce, pineapple and endive salad, and nut pudding, milk, coffee.

made of green gumdrops. Good luck emblems—a dime for riches, a tiny airplane for adventure, a miniature key to happiness, wrapped in waxed paper—are tucked into the bottom of the cake after it is baked, so that one will be included in each piece cut.

Lucky Shamrock Cake

One package dry mince meat and 1-1/2 cup water boiled almost dry, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup butter or other shortening, 2 eggs, 1-4 cup molasses, 2-1/2 cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-2 cup water, 1-4 pound butter finely chopped.

Break mince meat into pieces. Add cold water. Place over heat and stir until all lumps are thoroughly broken up. Bring to brisk boil. Continue boiling for three minutes or until mixture is practically dry. Allow to cool. Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat vigorously until smooth and creamy. Add molasses. Sift flour once, measure, add soda and stir several times. Add alternately with water to first mixture. Fold in citron and cooled mince meat. Pour into a greased round loaf pan. Bake in a slow oven at 325 degrees F. 1 hour and 45 minutes. Cook before frosting.

Mrs. Roosevelt Most Controversial Woman In America After Two Years

By RUBY A. BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 7. — After two years in the White House Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is still the most controversial woman in the land.

But the activities which caused severe shock when she first became First Lady are accepted as matters of course now, while new and expanded activities are the subjects of heated discussions at the village cracker barrel, the tea table, the cocktail lounge, the back fence, the kitchen stove, and the congressional cloak-rooms—sometimes even the legislative chambers.

Two years ago she would do nothing, say nothing, about politics. Now she talks publicly about bills before congress, went on the radio to urge support of the World Court, stumped New York for the election of her political associate of earlier days, Mrs. Caroline O'Day, as representative-at-large from New York, and entered the campaign in several states for ratification of the Child Labor Amendment to the Constitution.

Opinion Is Divided
Opinion is still divided on whether she aids or harms the causes she publicly espouses. Mrs. O'Day was elected; the World Court defeated; and the Child Labor amendment battle is not yet finished.

She knows thoroughly the possibility that her open entrance into any controversy may swing sentiment against her side. She does so on the strongest urging.

These two years have applied uncounted superlatives to Mrs. Roosevelt — best-dressed, most-traveled, most hand-shaken, most talkative, most indefatigable, most outstanding, most photographed, even most interfering and most indiscreet.

Her numerous lines of activities all radiate from one central interest—her overpowering interest in people of all kinds.

Favors the Neglected
Her actual work for people is usually concentrated on those neglected in the pressure of greater and more vocal groups.

Thus it was she who insisted that relief work be found for unemployed women, artists, musicians, sculptors, and actors.

She initiated the establishment of nursery schools to give more nearly normal lives to small children who had never known what it was to have a father with a job, and at the same time give jobs to jobless teachers.

She suggested that surplus food, fuel, and clothing materials be given to the unemployed instead of being destroyed.

Aids "Stranded Generation"
She kept working on government officials until they have made a beginning on a program of work for the "stranded generation" of young people who have come out of school into a jobless world during the depression.

Is This Too Good For Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven helps in one. It is made for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist is authorized to guarantee it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known. (Adv.)
