Bodies removed from crash site

POMOCA, Mexico (AP) — Helicopters today ferried bodies taken from the wreckage of a Mexicana Airlines jet that smashed into a mountain peak, killing all 166 people aboard. An airline official said five Americans were among the dead.

The Boeing 727, en route from Mexico City to Los Angeles with stops in the Pacific resorts of Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan, hit the 7,792-foot mountain known locally as El Carbon about 90 miles northwest of Mexico City shortly after takeoff Monday morning.

"Unfortunately, there are no survivors" Mexicana spokesman Fernando Martinez Cortes said of the 158 passengers and eight crew aboard Flight 940.

Witnesses in this hamlet of 300 people at the foot of the hills said the plane exploded "like thunder" and was burning before it crashed.

"I heard two booms like thunder, one up and one down. I and some others, we climbed up the mountain and we were able to see only pieces of plane and a few dead thrown around here and there," said Ignacio Carrillo, who has a small farm nearby.

Angel Bolanos, 43, with his horse loaded with forage for his seven cows, said, "It was 9 (a.m.) and a little bit more. I saw it. It fell burning. While it was flying, part of the plane came loose and fell and the other part also fell. When it fell it sounded like thunder, and when it broke it sounded like thunder. The part that fell caught fire and it was like a volcano."

The cause of the crash was not known.

Debt rating lowered on Texas banks

By the Associated Press

Concerned over the grim outlook for Texas' oil-based economy, Moody's Investors Service Inc. and Standard & Poor's Corp. have lowered the credit ratings of several major banks in the state.

Moody's on Monday reduced its rating on three Dallas bank companies — MCorp, InterFirst Corp. and Republicbank Corp. — as well as First City Bancorp of Texas Inc. in Houston.

"The potential for those banks is negative over the next few years because of the hostile operating environment," said Don Noe, Moody's associate director for financial institutions.

"They had been above-average performers earlier, but the prospects now are not as good because of the entire regional economy has turned into a fairly hostile one," he said. "It has been meandering downward for some time."

S&P said it cut the rating on MCorp's senior debt to "reflect expectations that the dramatic decline in oil prices will materially affect MCorp's asset quality and earnings."

The rating on Texas American Bancshares' senior debt was also lowered by S&P. The credit rating agency said the cut "reflected the bank holding company's aggressive growth strategy despite the troubled local economy."

The two banks were among six that S&P placed on a special "creditwatch" for possible downgradings. The other four placed on creditwatch on March 18 were Allied Bancshares, InterFirst, Republicbank, and Texas Commerce.

A deterioration in a company's debt rating usually makes it more expensive for the company to raise cash for capital or other projects.

Spokesmen for InterFirst and First City declined comment Monday on Moody's actions, and officials from MCorp did not return calls from AP.

TESCO bill credit projected for May

An average $12 to $13 refund to Texas Electric Service Company residential customers during the May billing cycle has been recommended to the Public Utility Commission.

Jack Smartt, local TESCO manager, noted the PUC must still take final action regarding this recommendation, however. This decision is scheduled for a commission meeting April 9 in Austin.

Both the PUC staff and the administrative law judge assigned to the case have recommended the refund be granted.

Systemwide, TESCO has projected it would return some $140 million to its customers.

The refund was announced in December of last year and proposed to the PUC in mid-January.

TESCO officials reported the decreasing price of natural gas, used to produce about half of the company's electricity, allowed them to renegotiate a number of

Publications at SHS awarded press honors

Snyder High School journalists have received awards won by the Tiger's Tale and the 1985 Tiger's Lair. These were announced at the Interscholastic League Press Conference recently conducted in Austin.

The newspaper earned an Award of Distinguished Merit. This award is given for "outstanding quality." It places the Tiger's Tale in the highest rank of Texas school newspapers in its classification (4)

The paper earned 770 points out a possible 1,000. Co-editors of the paper are Missy Trull and Kyle Nazworth. Newspaper sponsor is journalism teacher Diane Arnold.

The yearbook earned the Award of Achievement "in recognition of outstanding achievements and progress in journalism among school yearbooks in its classification (AAAA) for this school year. The book earned 700 out of a possible 1,000 points. Co-editors were Suzette Harris and Sylvia Valdez. Advisors were Darla Doty and Jan Henderson.

Senior Barney Stansell, publication artist, won first place in individual entries for editorial cartoons. His cartoons were in competition with those of other AAAA schools in Texas.

Representing SHS at the convention were Trull, Nazworth, Harris, Tammy Ritchey, Michael Long, Paula Caldwell and Kevin Pruitt. They were accompanied by Arnold and her husband, Joey.

Science class to tour Los Alamos facilities

A Snyder High School physics class will be visiting the Los Alamos National Laboratory in Los Alamos, N.M. April 10-11.

Six members of the advanced senior-level class taught by Roy Burk will be touring the facility as part of its 30th annual Science Youth Days.

Those going include Lesa Barkowsky, Laura Shifflett, Alex Brice, Brian Sitton, Mandy Johnson and Sharon Bigham.

The event is sponsored by the laboratory in conjunction with the Thomas Alva Edison birthday celebration.

The Snyder group will be joining high school-age youth from Arizona, California, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Mexico City.

Each group of students will spend one full day learning about scientific advances in nuclear energy, health research, fusion, earth and space sciences and other programs under study at the laboratory.

Class members from SHS's science department have been making the annual trip to Los Alamos since the early 1960s.

35 years of service recognized

A casual remark to a department store clerk 35 years ago led one local resident to a career dating back to 1951.

Monday, her co-workers at Anthonys honored cashier-bookkeeper Sue Trice with a come-and-go party to mark her retirement.

"I wasn't really looking for a job," Sue laughed. "I happened to say to the lady that if I was looking for a job, I would like to work in a place like this. She told me that they had an opening right then.

"Well, I went back and talked with Jake Springer who was manager at the time. He said, 'If you can sell like you smile, you can start Monday morning.' When I got home, I told my husband, 'I got a job and now I don't know what to do with it!'"

On March 16, 1951, Sue began selling in the ready-to-wear clothing department. "My 35 years didn't begin until March 20 when I became official with the company," she added.

Five years later, she moved into the office as the store's cashier

The SDN Column

The feller on Deep Creek says, "We doubt that Senate sessions will be televised. With the House of Representatives on TV, there is already one too many TV comedies."

Dear Congressman Stenholm:

The past week was spring break in Snyder. I took a break from normal routine. I wrote very few stories, I sold no ads, and performed almost no management tasks.

I spent my spring break doing "busy work" required by the federal government–a government that seems to have no understanding and cares very little for the very people who pay the bills.

Those in government may wonder why businessmen and taxpayers become disenchanted with big government. The Hazard Communications Standard Act, which I worked on during spring break, is just one reason.

OSHA has estimated start-up costs of this massive set of regulations for the print industry alone at $15 million. The total economic impact of all U.S. industry is estimated at $500 million for start-up costs alone.

Annual costs, after start-up, for the entire enconomy, are estimated at over $200 million. But here is the bureaucratic logic: "OSHA expects significant long-term benefits from the regulations in the form of reduced lost work days, compensation and medical costs."

Having worked in and around newspapers for over 25 years and having known of no injuries or deaths due to chemicals, it seems to us that the only recipients of benefits will be the government enforcement employees.

Banker Roger Mize gave us a clipping this week that seems appropriate in the wave of increased government interference:

"The Lord's Prayer has 56 words.

"Lincoln's Gettsburg Address has 266 words.

"The Ten Commandments have 297 words.

"The Declaration of Independence contains only 300 words.

"An Agriculture Department order setting the price of cabbage has 26,911 words."

The number of words in the OSHA regs? We didn't have time to count...time's running out and we need to work on our income tax.

Soviet girl repelled by movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Katerina Lycheva, the 11-year-old peace emissary from Moscow, pronounced "Rocky IV" a distortion of Soviet life and said she has not seen anything in the United States that her friends at home lack.

The little girl visited Universal Studios on Monday and nestled in the grip of King Kong, the theme park's newest attraction. She is scheduled to visit Disneyland today before leaving the United States for Mexico City.

Although Katya has been lavished with gifts, including a cocker spaniel puppy, she was unimpressed by displays of capitalist Hollywood entertainment, particularly actor Sylvester Stallone's latest boxing epic.

She said she would not like to live in America, and added: "So far, I haven't seen a single thing that my friends don't have."

She was matter-of-fact about the trip to Disneyland. Asked if she had asked to go there, she responded, "No, it's on my schedule, so I am going there."

Katerina said she watched "Rocky IV" on television in her hotel room.

"It was horrible," she said of the box office hit in which Stallone portrays an all-American boxer who defeats a hulking Soviet opponent.

"There was not a word in that film that was true," she said. "Soviet people have friendly, open faces. I was frightened. I didn't know that kind of distortion was possible."

Stallone and MGM contend the film isn't anti-Soviet, as it features a reconciliation of sorts at the end.

The sandy-haired, green-eyed Katya, wearing a calico dress, black patent pumps and white socks, told reporters she's tired on the 11th day of her U.S. tour "and I'm homesick."

She was barely able to squeeze in 15 minutes for what she really wanted: to talk with American children about peace.

A group of children from Commonwealth Elementary School asked questions like, "What have you learned about Americans?" while her mother, interpreter, sponsors, teachers, public relations people and the news media hovered.

"I've answered that a million times," she replied. "We play the same games and call them differently. ... I found kids are basically the same everywhere."

Asked about her White House visit with President Reagan, Katya said, "I only saw Mr. Reagan for about four minutes, so I cannot really pronounce any judgment on him."

She said she passed along a message calling for the "abolishment of all nuclear weapons before I grow up. Mr. Reagan said he would do his best toward that goal."

Before leaving Moscow, Katya had said: "I dream of peace and having a dog."

On Monday, she was given a 3-month-old cocker spaniel with a red ribbon by Pat Montandon, founder of Children As the Peacemakers, the private San Francisco-based group that sponsored her trip.

During her school visit, she said she likes American food, including french fries, pizza and tacos and singled out McDonald's for praise, "especially the clown and the french fries." But she added she prefers Russian food.

Los Angeles was the fifth and final stop of a U.S. tour that began March 20 in Chicago.

Musician plays at Eastland

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — Woody Herman was booked at cities across the United States on his 50th Anniversary nationwide tour, but Eastland is by far the smallest to host him.

The 72-year-old big band clarinetist performed Monday night at the Eastland High School auditorium, singing, playing and dancing as he led his Thundering Herd band in "Songs that Swing."

Regarded as a tireless performer, Herman included this small West Texas town of 4,000 on his tour at the request of Phil Hewett, an Eastland High School band director and drummer who always had longed to play with the Big Band leader.

Hewett was director of bands at Kansas State University 10 years ago when Herman, en route to a jazz concert there, was nearly killed in an automobile accident.

Hewett and Herman became close during Herman's subsequent three-month convalescence in Kansas.

"I knew you'd never forgive me if I missed this one," Herman told Hewett.

Playing fast music that he said "keeps your anxiety there all the time" and slower numbers that prompt reflection, Herman and his band drew 450 people to the local high school auditorium.

Herman opened the concert with Duke Ellington's "It Don't Mean a Thing If It Ain't Got That Swing," and he and his band followed with numbers from "What's New" to "Woodchopper's Ball," the latter of which grew great response from the crowd.

Local officials called the performance the biggest event for the area since Minnie Pearl performed 35 years ago at the Peach and Melon Festival in nearby De Leon.

"Woody Herman is one of the last big bands — ever," said Earl Bullock, president of the high school's Band Parents Association.

Your Birthday

April 2, 1986

In the year ahead, much progress can be made and important goals achieved but only if you align yourself with the doers of the world. Screen out those who merely talk a good story.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't permit morning moodiness or self-doubts to permeate your being today. You'll attract trouble if you don't shake off depression. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Should you go along with a pal's irresponsible actions today when you know better, don't be surprised if you get your fingers burned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) By appearing weak, you may think you'll be able to entice another to do a favor for you today. Unfortunately, about all you'll accomplish is embarrassment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't depend on anybody to do any of your work for you today. Chances are they'll let you down, and you'll have to pay the consequences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you end up feeling like you're being treated unjustly today, chances are the feeling can be traced to oversensitivity on your part.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) All you're going to gain today is a pouting spouse if you throw cold water on a matter your mate is enthusiastic about. Be supportive instead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's a bit of a rebel in you today. You could take the opposite view merely for the sake of being a non-conformist.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Leave your credit cards at home today. Because of your strong streak of extravagance, you might want to go on a wild spending spree.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Sometimes those who labor at our sides can be quite exasperating on occasion. But unbridled displays of displeasure could shut down the entire production line.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Some bad financial news you might hear today could be grossly exaggerated. Before you try to bail out, check all of the details.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Attempting to keep up with the Joneses today could have costly repercussions. Others may think you're rich enough to pick up the tab.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Indecisiveness today would extinguish any hopes you might have to fire up the force necessary to accomplish anything of real value.

Dear Abby

Man With Invalid Wife Is Torn by Loneliness, Guilt

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am 67 years old. My wife has Alzheimer's disease. I took care of her at home for four years, then she became violent, unable to recognize anyone, unable to speak and she lost all control of her bodily functions, so I had to put her in a home. She's been in a home for six years, so altogether I have been without a wife for 10 years.

It has been very lonely for me, Abby. I know a lady whose husband died two years ago. She is 64 and lonely, too, so I invited her to lunch. We poured out our hearts to each other as her husband had a long illness before he died, and she knew how I felt. She invited me to dinner at her apartment and I enjoyed her company so much I want to spend more time with her.

Now the problem: I feel guilty. I'm still a married man, Catholic, and want the respect of my children and friends, but life is lonely without some kind of companionship. Is this wrong?

I would also like some thoughts on this from priests, ministers and rabbis.

LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME: As I see it, you and the lady have suffered a great deal, and my heart goes out to both of you. I see no reason why you can't enjoy each other's company without feeling guilty. Talk to your priest.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine wrote an article that I thought might be helpful to your readers. You have her permission to use it if you wish.

MARGARET IN JAMESTOWN, N.Y.

DEAR MARGARET: I wish to, and I thank you. Here's the article, with minor editing.

WHAT NOT TO SAY TO A WIDOW OR WIDOWER

by Joan D. Freudy, Freeport, N.Y.

— "Are you keeping the house? Don't you find it too big now?"

— "Wouldn't you be much better off in an apartment? A condominium?"

— "Have you considered moving to Florida?"

— "What do you do with yourself these days?"

— "You stay home too much."

— "You need to be with people."

— "You really should get out and join some groups."

— "You have to pick yourself up and do things."

— "L--- always handled the money, didn't he? How do you manage now?"

— "We'll be in touch."

— "You must come over sometime."

AND WHAT TO SAY INSTEAD

— "Come along with us. We'll pick you up."

— "We'd love for you to come to dinner. How about next Thursday?"

— "How about a walk in the park so we can have a chance to talk?"

— "Let's take turns driving."

— "We're going with a group to the museum next Sunday. Would you like to join us?"

— "I belong to a group for ( ). Would you like to be a member, too? We could go to the meetings together."

— "I always enjoy your company."

Never refer to a widow or widower as "recent." Loss is forever, and all losses are recent to those who must bear them.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column about a man who was "turned off" because his wife was fat. How I pity his wife because of his selfishness, his lack of insight and his unknowing of love!

My wife is fat. So am I. We love each other. When I look at her, I do not see a fat old lady; I see a nymph on the beach in the moonlight. I shed my clothes and chase her. In close embrace we drop to the moist sand. With morning, we arrange our clothes and meet the day.

One night soon now we will drop naked to the sand—but we will not stir with the morning light. Our children will arrange our clothes and spade the moist sand. Our love will stay with our children. We will be with the sun.

Diners hospitalized after eating at Easter brunch

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — At least 34 people who ate Easter brunch at a suburban country club sought medical attention for apparent food poisoning, and 23 of them were hospitalized, the executive director of the El Paso city-county health district said.

As many as 60 people may have become ill from the Sunday meal at Santa Teresa Country Club in Santa Teresa, N.M., just across the state line west of El Paso, Dr. Laurence Nickey said Monday.

New Mexico health officials are examining food from the brunch and are questioning employees of the country club restaurant, Nickey added.

The club restaurant, which is open only to members, served about 850 people from the time the Easter brunch began at 11 a.m. until about 4 p.m., when restaurant manager Kenneth Krieger said he started getting calls from diners complaining the food had made them sick.

After receiving reports from doctors, El Paso health officials notified the New Mexico Health and Environmental Department of the possible food poisoning.

Ray Krehoff of Las Cruces, N.M., a spokesman for the New Mexico agency, said results on the food tests will be available Thursday or Friday.

"The working hypothesis is that it's staph poisoning caused by the staphylococcus aureus bacteria," he told the El Paso Times.

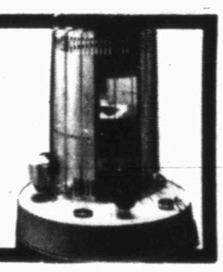

Staph poisoning commonly occurs when people with infected cuts or sores on their hands handle food. The bacteria then contaminates the food and produces a toxin that makes diners sick, Klehoff said.

Diners and their doctors reported symptoms common to staph poisoning: vomiting, nausea, diarrhea, cramps and headaches, Krehoff said.

Sorority hears of pioneer educators, past and future

Zeta Lambda Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met March 17 at Martha Ann Woman's Club for its regular monthly meeting.

The program was entitled "Pioneer Women Educators of the Past and Future." Monette O'Day presented a collection of biographical sketches of pioneer women educators. Through the daring, far-sighted ideas and efforts of these women, young ladies were able to go to colleges and universities.

Billie Hartsfield asked retired teachers, Nellie Smith, Delia McPherson, Evelyn Boone and Georgene Galloway, to share interesting events from their early teaching experiences.

Ruby Anderson recognized Anita Pitchford, the present day teacher traveling with the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train. Other present day teachers were recognized by Dorothy Kayser. These were Mary Long, teacher of the year, and Barbara Jordan, from the University of Texas.

Tribute was paid to Christa McAuliffe, the school teacher-astronaut that died in the space shuttle explosion. In giving this special tribute, Carolyn Derouen recognized Christa as a pioneer teacher for the future.

Following the tribute, the group sang "Aim High" as an inspiration for all teachers.

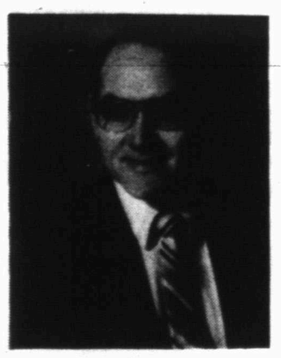

A business meeting was conducted by President Virginia Grove. "One Liner Committee Reports" were made by communications, scrapbook and ceremonials.

The nominating committee presented the following recommendations for officers for the biennium: president, Jean Sealy; first vice-president, Jo Alyce McMullan; second vice-president, Carolyn Derouen; recording secretary, Betty Courtney; and corresponding secretary, Joyce Fuqua. The group was elected by acclamation.

The committees met to finalize plans for the Silver Birthday coffee and lunch to be held April 12 at the Dodson House and Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Soviet girl repelled by movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Katerina Lycheva, the 11-year-old peace emissary from Moscow, pronounced "Rocky IV" a distortion of Soviet life and said she has not seen anything in the United States that her friends at home lack.

The little girl visited Universal Studios on Monday and nestled in the grip of King Kong, the theme park's newest attraction. She is scheduled to visit Disneyland today before leaving the United States for Mexico City.

Although Katya has been lavished with gifts, including a cocker spaniel puppy, she was unimpressed by displays of capitalist Hollywood entertainment, particularly actor Sylvester Stallone's latest boxing epic.

She said she would not like to live in America, and added: "So far, I haven't seen a single thing that my friends don't have."

She was matter-of-fact about the trip to Disneyland. Asked if she had asked to go there, she responded, "No, it's on my schedule, so I am going there."

Katerina said she watched "Rocky IV" on television in her hotel room.

"It was horrible," she said of the box office hit in which Stallone portrays an all-American boxer who defeats a hulking Soviet opponent.

"There was not a word in that film that was true," she said. "Soviet people have friendly, open faces. I was frightened. I didn't know that kind of distortion was possible."

Stallone and MGM contend the film isn't anti-Soviet, as it features a reconciliation of sorts at the end.

The sandy-haired, green-eyed Katya, wearing a calico dress, black patent pumps and white socks, told reporters she's tired on the 11th day of her U.S. tour "and I'm homesick."

She was barely able to squeeze in 15 minutes for what she really wanted: to talk with American children about peace.

A group of children from Commonwealth Elementary School asked questions like, "What have you learned about Americans?" while her mother, interpreter, sponsors, teachers, public relations people and the news media hovered.

"I've answered that a million times," she replied. "We play the same games and call them differently. ... I found kids are basically the same everywhere."

Asked about her White House visit with President Reagan, Katya said, "I only saw Mr. Reagan for about four minutes, so I cannot really pronounce any judgment on him."

She said she passed along a message calling for the "abolishment of all nuclear weapons before I grow up. Mr. Reagan said he would do his best toward that goal."

Before leaving Moscow, Katya had said: "I dream of peace and having a dog."

On Monday, she was given a 3-month-old cocker spaniel with a red ribbon by Pat Montandon, founder of Children As the Peacemakers, the private San Francisco-based group that sponsored her trip.

During her school visit, she said she likes American food, including french fries, pizza and tacos and singled out McDonald's for praise, "especially the clown and the french fries." But she added she prefers Russian food.

Los Angeles was the fifth and final stop of a U.S. tour that began March 20 in Chicago.

Musician plays at Eastland

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — Woody Herman was booked at cities across the United States on his 50th Anniversary nationwide tour, but Eastland is by far the smallest to host him.

The 72-year-old big band clarinetist performed Monday night at the Eastland High School auditorium, singing, playing and dancing as he led his Thundering Herd band in "Songs that Swing."

Regarded as a tireless performer, Herman included this small West Texas town of 4,000 on his tour at the request of Phil Hewett, an Eastland High School band director and drummer who always had longed to play with the Big Band leader.

Hewett was director of bands at Kansas State University 10 years ago when Herman, en route to a jazz concert there, was nearly killed in an automobile accident.

Hewett and Herman became close during Herman's subsequent three-month convalescence in Kansas.

"I knew you'd never forgive me if I missed this one," Herman told Hewett.

Playing fast music that he said "keeps your anxiety there all the time" and slower numbers that prompt reflection, Herman and his band drew 450 people to the local high school auditorium.

Herman opened the concert with Duke Ellington's "It Don't Mean a Thing If It Ain't Got That Swing," and he and his band followed with numbers from "What's New" to "Woodchopper's Ball," the latter of which grew great response from the crowd.

Local officials called the performance the biggest event for the area since Minnie Pearl performed 35 years ago at the Peach and Melon Festival in nearby De Leon.

"Woody Herman is one of the last big bands — ever," said Earl Bullock, president of the high school's Band Parents Association.

Your Birthday

April 2, 1986

In the year ahead, much progress can be made and important goals achieved but only if you align yourself with the doers of the world. Screen out those who merely talk a good story.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't permit morning moodiness or self-doubts to permeate your being today. You'll attract trouble if you don't shake off depression. Major changes are ahead for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Should you go along with a pal's irresponsible actions today when you know better, don't be surprised if you get your fingers burned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) By appearing weak, you may think you'll be able to entice another to do a favor for you today. Unfortunately, about all you'll accomplish is embarrassment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't depend on anybody to do any of your work for you today. Chances are they'll let you down, and you'll have to pay the consequences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you end up feeling like you're being treated unjustly today, chances are the feeling can be traced to oversensitivity on your part.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) All you're going to gain today is a pouting spouse if you throw cold water on a matter your mate is enthusiastic about. Be supportive instead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's a bit of a rebel in you today. You could take the opposite view merely for the sake of being a non-conformist.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Leave your credit cards at home today. Because of your strong streak of extravagance, you might want to go on a wild spending spree.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Sometimes those who labor at our sides can be quite exasperating on occasion. But unbridled displays of displeasure could shut down the entire production line.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Some bad financial news you might hear today could be grossly exaggerated. Before you try to bail out, check all of the details.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Attempting to keep up with the Joneses today could have costly repercussions. Others may think you're rich enough to pick up the tab.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Indecisiveness today would extinguish any hopes you might have to fire up the force necessary to accomplish anything of real value.

Dear Abby

Man With Invalid Wife Is Torn by Loneliness, Guilt

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am 67 years old. My wife has Alzheimer's disease. I took care of her at home for four years, then she became violent, unable to recognize anyone, unable to speak and she lost all control of her bodily functions, so I had to put her in a home. She's been in a home for six years, so altogether I have been without a wife for 10 years.

It has been very lonely for me, Abby. I know a lady whose husband died two years ago. She is 64 and lonely, too, so I invited her to lunch. We poured out our hearts to each other as her husband had a long illness before he died, and she knew how I felt. She invited me to dinner at her apartment and I enjoyed her company so much I want to spend more time with her.

Now the problem: I feel guilty. I'm still a married man, Catholic, and want the respect of my children and friends, but life is lonely without some kind of companionship. Is this wrong?

I would also like some thoughts on this from priests, ministers and rabbis.

LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME: As I see it, you and the lady have suffered a great deal, and my heart goes out to both of you. I see no reason why you can't enjoy each other's company without feeling guilty. Talk to your priest.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine wrote an article that I thought might be helpful to your readers. You have her permission to use it if you wish.

MARGARET IN JAMESTOWN, N.Y.

DEAR MARGARET: I wish to, and I thank you. Here's the article, with minor editing.

WHAT NOT TO SAY TO A WIDOW OR WIDOWER

by Joan D. Freudy, Freeport, N.Y.

— "Are you keeping the house? Don't you find it too big now?"

— "Wouldn't you be much better off in an apartment? A condominium?"

— "Have you considered moving to Florida?"

— "What do you do with yourself these days?"

— "You stay home too much."

— "You need to be with people."

— "You really should get out and join some groups."

— "You have to pick yourself up and do things."

— "L--- always handled the money, didn't he? How do you manage now?"

— "We'll be in touch."

— "You must come over sometime."

AND WHAT TO SAY INSTEAD

— "Come along with us. We'll pick you up."

— "We'd love for you to come to dinner. How about next Thursday?"

— "How about a walk in the park so we can have a chance to talk?"

— "Let's take turns driving."

— "We're going with a group to the museum next Sunday. Would you like to join us?"

— "I belong to a group for ( ). Would you like to be a member, too? We could go to the meetings together."

— "I always enjoy your company."

Never refer to a widow or widower as "recent." Loss is forever, and all losses are recent to those who must bear them.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column about a man who was "turned off" because his wife was fat. How I pity his wife because of his selfishness, his lack of insight and his unknowing of love!

My wife is fat. So am I. We love each other. When I look at her, I do not see a fat old lady; I see a nymph on the beach in the moonlight. I shed my clothes and chase her. In close embrace we drop to the moist sand. With morning, we arrange our clothes and meet the day.

One night soon now we will drop naked to the sand—but we will not stir with the morning light. Our children will arrange our clothes and spade the moist sand. Our love will stay with our children. We will be with the sun.

Diners hospitalized after eating at Easter brunch

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — At least 34 people who ate Easter brunch at a suburban country club sought medical attention for apparent food poisoning, and 23 of them were hospitalized, the executive director of the El Paso city-county health district said.

As many as 60 people may have become ill from the Sunday meal at Santa Teresa Country Club in Santa Teresa, N.M., just across the state line west of El Paso, Dr. Laurence Nickey said Monday.

New Mexico health officials are examining food from the brunch and are questioning employees of the country club restaurant, Nickey added.

The club restaurant, which is open only to members, served about 850 people from the time the Easter brunch began at 11 a.m. until about 4 p.m., when restaurant manager Kenneth Krieger said he started getting calls from diners complaining the food had made them sick.

After receiving reports from doctors, El Paso health officials notified the New Mexico Health and Environmental Department of the possible food poisoning.

Ray Krehoff of Las Cruces, N.M., a spokesman for the New Mexico agency, said results on the food tests will be available Thursday or Friday.

"The working hypothesis is that it's staph poisoning caused by the staphylococcus aureus bacteria," he told the El Paso Times.

Staph poisoning commonly occurs when people with infected cuts or sores on their hands handle food. The bacteria then contaminates the food and produces a toxin that makes diners sick, Klehoff said.

Diners and their doctors reported symptoms common to staph poisoning: vomiting, nausea, diarrhea, cramps and headaches, Krehoff said.

DEFINITIVE STATEMENTS

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Over 40 contemporary paintings and sculptures have been brought together in the exhibition "Definitive Statements: American Art, 1964-66" at Brown University.

The exhibition runs through March 30. The show then will travel to the Parrish Art Museum, Southampton, N.Y., where it will run May 4 — June 21.

The show charts the merger of three contemporary directions — Pop, Minimalism, and Color-Field — and includes works by Frank Stella, Andy Warhol and Claes Oldenburg.

Iron compound causes problems

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A routine test showed that my hemoglobin was low. My gynecologist prescribed ferrous sulfate. During my pregnancy, I had been semi-constipated, but now, with the iron, I have diarrhea very badly. Is this normal?

DEAR READER — A low hemoglobin means anemia, for which your gynecologist chose to give you iron to counteract a deficiency. Ordinarily, iron pills cause constipation, but some people experience the opposite effect: diarrhea. Ask your doctor to change you to another iron compound. For example, a switch to ferrous gluconate may solve your problem and still allow you to enjoy the benefits of iron supplements.

Remember that certain foods can interfere with the absorption of iron. Most gynecologists recommend taking iron supplements at least one hour after the evening meal and two hours before retiring.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have dark- and light-brown moles that cover my body. They itch constantly and continue to multiply. They are too numerous to remove surgically. Any suggestions?

DEAR READER — Moles usually don't itch unless they appear in areas of friction, such as belt lines. Because some types of moles are dangerous, I think you ought to get a dermatologist's opinion about whether yours are safe and what can be done about the itching.

DEAR DR. GOTT — It was at the blood bank that I first heard my condition termed low hemoglobin count. I have a lifelong history of periods of extreme fatigue, forgetfulness and a general vagueness. I recently was told that my sedimentation rate was high. My main concern is that some of the dementias of senility are caused by anemia. Could the low hemoglobin count be related to the high sedimentation rate? How can a woman of my age (60) improve them both?

DEAR READER — Low hemoglobin (anemia), mental changes and a high sedimentation rate can indicate an underlying condition that needs treatment. Forgetfulness is common in people over 60, yet — in your case — it may be accentuated by the anemia, because there is less oxygen reaching your brain.

The sedimentation rate is a measure of how actively red blood cells clump together and fall to the bottom of a tube. Red corpuscles tend to stick to each other in a variety of diseases, including certain forms of anemia. Therefore, all your symptoms may be related. I believe you need a complete medical evaluation, preferably by a doctor trained in internal medicine or diagnostics. Your problem may be correctable once the cause of your symptoms can be identified.

Medicare changes 'needed'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress must either restrict Medicare hospital spending or increase its tax income, trustees for the program say, or face the possibility of system bankruptcy by the mid-1990s.

The trustees, who manage the $21 billion trust fund that pays for the hospital insurance program for the elderly and disabled, said the fund could go bankrupt by 1996 if changes are not made.

The prediction is contained in the annual report by the board of trustees to Congress.

In the report, a series of projections are made that vary according to possible economic developments in future years. But the projection foreseeing bankruptcy by 1996 is considered the middle range, the one fund managers rely on most.

Under more optimistic economic conditions, the trustees said, the trust fund may remain solvent for 25 years. But under more pessimistic assumptions, they said, it could go bankrupt even earlier — by 1993.

"Early corrective action is essential in order to avoid the need for later, potentially precipitous changes," the trustees said Monday. "The board therefore urges that the Congress take early remedial measures to bring future ... program costs and financing into balance."

Under the most likely economic conditions, the trustees said, "balance" will require either a 22 percent reduction in spending or a 28 percent increase in income. The board made no more specific recommendations.

The call for further congressional action ended a one-year lull in warnings of the system's potential demise. Three years ago, the trustees warned that bankruptcy could come as early as 1987.

But reforms were initiated, and the trustees last year said the system likely was safe until at least 1998 and possibly into the next century. The new report resurrects the questions about the system's financial footing.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen, one of the trustees, noted in a statement accompanying the report Monday that bankruptcy is not imminent. He said the recent reforms have given the government breathing room it did not have before.

Changes in Medicare payments have slowed the growth of spending, "giving us more time and opportunity to take the further steps needed to ensure long-term solvency for the Medicare trust fund," Bowen said.

But something must be done, the board said, because current Medicare income is "barely sufficient" to pay benefits and maintain the trust fund at the recommended reserve level — six months worth of payments — over the next seven to nine years.

The report said the Medicare hospital insurance trust fund took in $50.93 billion in the fiscal year ending last Sept. 30, while paying out $48.65 billion. Assets of the fund stood at $21.28 billion at year's end.

The Medicare hospital insurance report was the gloomiest of a series released Friday on the various trust funds administered by the Social Security Administration.

In other reports, the trustees said the Medicare supplementary medical insurance trust fund, which pays doctor bills and other medical expenses under so-called "Part B" Medicare coverage, is financially sound, but is growing in cost too rapidly. It recommended that Congress take action to curb the rising cost, but made no specific proposal.

And the trustees said the principal Social Security trust funds — which pay for old age, survivors and disability pensions — are sound and will be able to pay benefits on time "for many years into the future" under even the most pessimistic economic assumptions.

U.S. deaths reported at record levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — America recorded more deaths in 1985 than in any year in history, a toll boosted by a rising proportion of elderly in the population, according to government figures.

The 2,084,000 deaths listed last year exceeded the 1984 figure by approximately 37,000, according to preliminary data compiled by the National Center for Health Statistics.

"Contributing to the increased number of deaths were the continuing increase in the proportion of older persons in the population and the influenza outbreak during the first quarter of 1985," the center reported.

Despite the larger death total, however, the nation's death rate remained unchanged at 8.7 per 1,000 people because the increase in deaths was about the same as the increase in the general population.

Among causes of death, an increase was noted for cancers, particularly lung and lymphatic cancers. Death rate increases also were observed for chronic lung disease, pneumonia and influenza, diabetes, kidney disease and blood poisoning, according to the study.

The nation's population over age 65 increased by 2.5 million between 1980 and 1984, the Census Bureau reports, with an estimated 28,040,000 elderly as of July 1, 1984, up from only 16 million over age 65 in 1960.

Despite a slight rise in infant deaths, though, the nation's infant death rate was 10.6 per 100,000 live births, down slightly from 10.7 a year earlier.

The rate fell despite a rise in deaths due to the fact that the total number of infants increased faster than the deaths — a reflection of the so-called echo of the Baby Boom, occurring as that large generation born after World War II passes through the prime childbearing ages.

While the national death totals were given for calendar 1985, the detailed figures are for the 12 months ended last November, since statisticians have not had the opportunity to analyze later figures.

During that 12-month period, the nation's single most common cause of death was heart disease, as it has been for many years, although the rate has been declining.

Major cardiovascular diseases — diseases of the heart and blood vessels — had a death rate of 410.5 of every 100,000 Americans. That is down from a rate of 410.9 a year earlier.

Cardiovascular diseases had a death rate of 436.4 in 1980, 496.0 in 1970 and 515.1 in 1960, according to government records. Lower rates, however, of between 350 and 400 per 100,000 people were recorded in the early years this century.

Various forms of cancer had a death rate of 193.2 for 1985, up from 191.1 in the earlier sample, the center reported.

In contrast to recent declines in the death rate from heart disease, the cancer rate has been rising in recent years as people live longer.

The cancer death rate was 183.9 in 1980, 162.8 in 1970 and 149.2 per 100,000 people in 1960. Cancer was blamed for only 64 deaths per 100,000 people in 1900, the rate climbing steadily ever since, and topping 100 in 1932.

Lung and chest cancers accounted for the largest segment of cancer deaths last year at a rate of 53.1 per 100,000 people, up from 51.8 in the 12 months ending in November, 1984.

Other cancers with high death rates included cancer of the digestive organs, 49.1, up from 48.7; cancer of the genital organs, 20.8, up from 20.4; breast cancer, 16.7, down from 16.9; cancer of the lymph system, 10.4, up from 10.2, and cancers of other unspecified sites, 24.5, up from 24.3.

Airport probe nets 11 indictments

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas grand jury has returned felony indictments against the H.P. Zachry Co., one of its employees, and three present or former officials at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport in connection with an investigation into construction contracts at the airport.

Following annoucement of the indictments, prosecutors with the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport Task Force said Monday they have asked state Attorney General Jim Mattox to review information alleging that "a whole bunch" of local and state officials have accepted payoffs from contractors.

The gifts include weekend and weeklong hunting and fishing trips, said Dallas County Assistant District Attorney Dick Zadina.

The grand jury delivered 10 felony indictments alleging tampering with records and a misdemeanor indictment charging an airport field engineer with accepting gifts in connection with airport contracts.

Movie attracts Aurora interest

AURORA, Texas (AP) — If Aurora residents are unsure now whether an extraterrestial visited their town in 1897, they'll be less sure when they go see a movie based on the legend, some town residents say.

The film "Aurora Encounter" is based loosely on the legend that a UFO crashed in the small Wise County community in 1897 and that the sole occupant of the cigar-shaped craft was buried in Aurora cemetery. According to longtime resident Bonnie Oates the best thing about the film is that it's only a movie.

Ms. Oates, who owns the property where the UFO purportedly crashed, says the movie was an Aurora encounter in name only.

"It wasn't anything about Aurora," she said. "You wouldn't know it was the same place. I'd tell you not to go see it and expect to see anything like the legend of Aurora. It's more of a kid's show to me."

The movie's producers say their movie owes a debt to "E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial" and acknowledge they took dramatic liberties with the Aurora legend.

In the movie, which was filmed in Ferris, the space traveler lives a while, befriending several Aurora residents. Subplots involve an enterprising reporter and the governor of Texas, played by Spanky McFarland.

Legend has it that the spaceman died in the crash, but Aurora residents nevertheless say they're intrigued.

Periodically, from the late 1960s to the early 1980s, newspapers and magazines published stories about the alien visitation, prompting outsiders to prowl around the small North Texas town with Geiger counters and other devices designed to help them find remnants of the spaceship.

Stage curtains frame career

HOUSTON (AP) — William Barthorst made miniature sets for Charlie Chaplin movies before moving to Houston and opening a business to produce stage curtains and scenic backdrops.

He founded the Houston Scenic Studio in 1919, and three years later moved to 7026 Sherman in the Harrisburg area, where it still operates. Its quaint building is a cavernous labyrinth with all accommodations necessary to fabricate curtains, drapery and scenery.

In a way, going there is like going back in time because there are many relics, ranging from old scenery to hardware for stage installations long out of date.

Before his death in 1966, Barthorst, a talented artist, produced curtains for a flock of theaters and schools across Texas. Working from his own water color paintings, he created scores of scenes for theatrical productions. He also designed hundreds of floats for parades.

His wife, Lois Barthorst, continued to operate the business until last year when Robert B. Williams, a family friend, took it over. Mrs. Barthorst died in December.

For Bob Williams, the curtains have gone up on a new theatrical career. At one stage in his youth 30 years ago, he thought that had become an impossible dream.

After studying drama three years at Syracuse University, he says, he hoped to break into big-time show business, but trying to do that, first in new York, then in Los Angeles, demanded a price he didn't want to pay.

"It's vastly different now," he says, "but back then you literally had to sell your soul to work in the theater. It was who you knew or who you were willing to go to bed with. It's true there was a casting couch, for men and women."

Williams would get back in the theater again, but it would be in Houston where things didn't work the same as in New York and Los Angeles.

In the mid-1950s, he was working here as assistant sales manager for a lumber company when he agreed to fill in temporarily as stage manager for Houston's Theater Inc., which staged musicals in an old theater in the Montrose area. Eventually he would go to work for the theater full time and become its general manager.

Williams recalls meeting the Barthorsts when he first went to work at Theater Inc., whose survival could be a struggle at times.

"The theater needed new curtains so we went to Barthorst," he recalls, "but we decided we couldn't afford the price. About a week later a truck pulled up, and they unloaded the curtains. I called Billy (Barthorst), and said, 'We can't pay for this.'

"He said, 'Do not worry about it. I have faith that you will pay me.' And sure enough we did."

Many people attending events presented on conventional stages may overlook the way the curtains can produce dramatic, even spectacular effects that enhance a presentation.

"Everything on stage works in conjunction with your curtains," Williams says. "It's really a challenge to get the desired effects, doing the right thing for a particular show."

By changing the lighting, curtains can convey different moods. Light a special curtain with a red, he says, "and you get a sunset or a sunrise."

The design of the curtains should suit the hall, he says. Contemporary design curtains in Jones Hall in downtown Houston complement the overall decor, he says, while the appropriate curtains for Galveston's old opera house are Victorian, painted in the old fashion.

However, fashions change, he says, and the trend seems to be back to more decorative curtains with scallops and coutours.

Last year, Williams designed curtains for a Waco farm that auctions expensive Arabian horses. Installed in a special hall, the curtains serve a stage 180 feet long and 30 feet deep. They can be raised at 28 different places so that attention can focus on individual horses.

Summit rejection questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee and three former U.S. arms control negotiators are expressing regret over President Reagan's rejection of a proposed U.S.-Soviet summit on banning nuclear weapons tests, calling it a missed opportunity to slow the arms race.

Paul H. Nitze, the president's senior adviser on arms control, said American critics were trying to "exploit" the administration's position. "Most in the West recognize we must depend on nuclear weapons as the bottom line in Western defense, and testing is necessary," Nitze said.

Gorbachev, in a 20-minute speech Saturday night, offered to meet Reagan as soon as possible in a European capital to negotiate a nuclear test ban. He said he was giving the administration one last chance to halt Soviet underground nuclear tests, which have been suspended for seven months.

The president, from his California vacation retreat, turned Gorbachev down immediately, saying a superpower meeting should "deal with the entire range" of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Supporters and critics alike seem certain the Soviets would resume testing and that the U.S. blast on March 22 would be followed by other weapons tests. Rep. Les Aspin, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said Reagan's decision was "disquieting," even though the Soviets were "demagoguing" and approaching the testing issue "in a propagandistic way."

But, the Wisconsin Democrat told The Associated Press, "we ought to call their bluff and see if they are serious."

"I'm certainly not surprised," said Paul Warnke, chief U.S. negotiator in the Carter administration, of the administration's position. "Since 1981, the Reagan administration has made it clear they have no interest in a comprehensive test ban."

He dismissed as "nonsense" the argument by Kenneth L. Adelman, the U.S. arms control director, and other senior administration officials that nuclear weapons must be tested for reliability.

"We do very little in the way of proof-testing," Warnke said.

The usual procedure, he said, is to inspect weapons stockpiles for rust and corrosion and to test the trigger mechanism. All that can be done without a nuclear explosion, Warnke said.

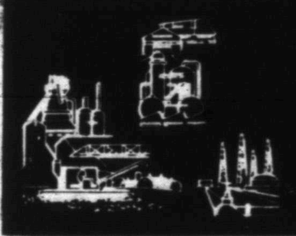

Gerard Smith, chief U.S. negotiator in the Nixon administration, also said the Reagan administration was "not interested" in ending weapons tests. He said the failure to pursue an overall ban breaks with a commitment to other nations in the 1968 Non-Proliferation Treaty, which was designed to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

John Rhinelander, a lawyer who helped draft the 1972 Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, said, "An opportunity was lost and it's unfortunate."

Spurgeon Keeny, former deputy director of the U.S. arms control agency, said he was distressed by Reagan's rejection, adding, "We are totally isolated in the world on this issue."

Keeny, now president of the private Arms Control Association, said 16 U.S. tests were conducted last year while the Soviets set off seven explosions. Keeny said both sides were averaging about 15 to 20 tests a year.

Lynn Wilkerson makes signs to order

Lynn Wilkerson, owner of the Sign-tist, is ready to meet all your signage needs. His studio is large enough to hold your largest trailer-tractor rigs. He can design and paint one truck or a fleet. He can do simple permit numbers or complete graphics and pinstriping. The Sign-tist also does cartooning and pictorial work.

Your truck is a traveling billboard seen by potential customers wherever it travels. Without vehicle identification, these potential customers don't know who you are or what services you offer. Are you missing some sales due to not being identified? If so, the Sign-tist can solve your problems.

For those companies or individuals worried about permanent signs affecting the resale value of their vehicles or signs on a vehicle which also gets personal use, Lynn also does magnetic signs. Magnetic signs can be simple identification or can be painted to match your vehicle. Lynn can also do custom cut-out shapes and cartoons to draw attention to you and your business or just enhance your image. Magnetic signs are perfect for those individuals operating part time businesses.

THE SIGN-TIST can meet all your sign needs - one truck or a fleet. The above trucks are just a few examples of the fine quality truck signs designed and executed by the Sign-tist. (Sign-tist Photos).

Lynn does boats, motorcycles and racing vehicles. He can do simple striping to accent your vehicle or full blown funny car graphics.

Lynn is capable of designing your vehicle's signs to fit your business or your personality. From lettering decals or reflective computer cut graphics, Lynn can do it all. As with all his signs, he stands behind his work if your sign should need touching up for any reason.

If you are not satisfied with your present vehicle signs, you should contact Lynn. He can design a sign for you that is simple and uncluttered, yet has visual impact. Do your present signs project the image you want to convey? Are you missing opportunities because your vehicles aren't identified? Would you like to have that finishing touch on your personal vehicle? Whatever the case, Lynn has the solution for you.

Louisville wins NCAA title...

Duke's senior class can't make grades

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Duke's senior class was graduated - but not with honors. Those went to freshman Pervis Ellison and the Louisville Cardinals.

"Never Nervous" Pervis scored a game-high 25 points - including a critical rebound off a Jeff Hall miss with 39 seconds to play and two free throws 12 seconds later - to lead Louisville to the 1986 NCAA championship Monday night.

Four years ago, Coach Mike Krzyzewski had assembled what was arguably the best recruited freshman class. They fell one game short of magna cum laude in basketball.

Duke's Johnny Dawkins certainly will matriculate in the NBA next year. Probably Mark Alarie and possibly David Henderson, too. But they and fellow senior Jay Bilas failed their biggest test, 72-69.

And Duke, the nation's top-ranked team, the champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference, the No. 1 seed and champion of the East Regional, the Division I single-season record holder with 37 victories this year, walked off the court with its third loss. The seventh-ranked Cardinals, 1½-point underdogs when they walked on the court, left it with a 32-7 record and 17 straight victories.

They were first in the Metro Conference and, after being seeded second in the West Regional, they were champs there, too.

"I don't think our league gets near the credit it deserves, but I doubt any league's had more people in the Final Four the last few years than our league has," Louisville Coach Denny Crum said.

Ellison had 11 rebounds - 6-7 forward Herbert Crook had 12 - as the Cardinals outrebounded the Blue Devils 22-10 in the second half and 39-27 for the game.

It was supposed to be an offensive show, run-and-gun, don't bother turning on the 45-second clock and all that. And much of the time it was. But it also was a defensive game.

Duke forced the turnovers - Louisville committed 24 - and Tommy Amaker had seven of the Blue Devils' 13 steals. And, the Cardinals forced Duke into bad shots and blocked out in the paint.

Ultimately, though, the game came down to one time out, 48 seconds to play, Louisville leading 66-65 and in possession with 11 seconds on the shot clock.

"Coach called the timeout and we discussed the play, said we'd try to get the bell to Jeff or Milt," Ellison said. "Jeff took the shot and I saw that it was falling short. I jumped for it and I think I was the only one that jumped. I didn't see anybody around me. I just laid it in."

He was named to the all-tournament team and, fittingly, was selected the tourney's outstanding player, the first freshman so honored since Arnie Ferrin of Utah in 1944.

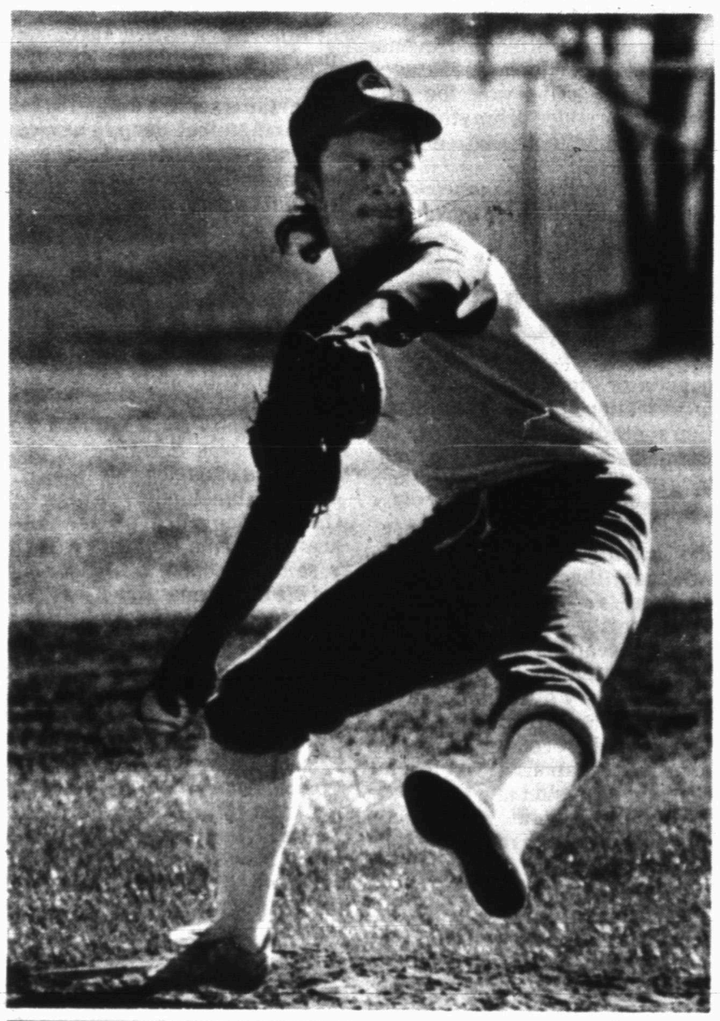

"I'm happy I got it," Ellison said casually, "but what's the MVP when you've got the national championship?"

Krzyzewski said the Blue Devils' defense against Louisville "was excellent except in one area. I don't think we did as good a job blocking out. Defensive rebounding was the key."

And that unlocked the door to Crum's second national championship in six years, four of them climaxed by trips to the Final Four. Duke's fifth visit to the Final Four ended as a runner-up for the third time.

"I feel a lot happier," Crum said. "I mainly felt relieved in 1980 because we finally won one. I'm really going to enjoy this one more. It puts you in select company," as one of only eight multiple-winning coaches.

There were moments - but only moments - when Dawkins, Duke's flashy 6-2 All-America guard, was valedictorian of the court.

OPEN 2-4A PLAY – Snyder's Tigers take on Lamesa in the first District 2-4A baseball game of the 1986 season here tonight at 7 o'clock. The Tigers are 8-7; the Tors 4-7-1. Jimmy Velasquez, above, is the projected pitcher for Coach Albert Lewis' squad. See related article at right. (SDN Staff Photo)

Tigers open loop campaign here tonight against Lamesa

Snyder's Tigers gear up tonight for the District 2-4A baseball opener with Lamesa - the start of what Coach Albert Lewis hopes will be a turnaround for the home team.

Game time is 7 o'clock at Moffett Field.

When baseball talk began to circulate in earnest in February, most folks considered Snyder to be the favorite to take the 2-4A title. But a lack of steady pitching from the Tiger bullpen, coupled with the success of Andrews and Pecos, has altered the forecast, however.

"I thought we would probably be considered the team to beat but not now," agreed Coach Lewis last week. "We haven't come on in all areas like I hoped we would. We're still looking for a second pitcher and we're making too many mistakes, too. Andrews has really come on it looks like and we expected Pecos to be tough. I think right now you'd have to consider them the two favorites."

All of which makes tonight's first game more important for the Tigers, who can also avenge a 13-5 loss to the Golden Tornadoes. Lamesa defeated Snyder earlier this season in the Snyder Tournament.

"We didn't have our best pitching that day but we really didn't play well in other phases, either," said Lewis.

Tonight, Lamesa will face the Tigers' top pitcher - right hander Jimmy Velasquez. Velasquez, who also bats cleanup for the home team, is 4-3 on the season with a 2.21 ERA and 48 strikeouts in 38 innings.

It was not clear who Lamesa Coach Lee Almaguer was going to start, but the Tors pitched Jimmy Scott against Tigers in the tournament. Other Lamesa pitchers are Gregg Hogg and Prentis Smith.

Brad Holcomb, playing short stop and batting .441, will lead off for the Tigers tonight. Second baseman Chris Fryar will hit second and be followed by the team's leading batsman, Justin Webb.

Webb, recently moved to third base, is batting .509 and has eight home runs this season.

Velasquez bats next, followed by centerfielder Mike McWilliams, right fielder Michael Long, catcher Ricky Hunter and designated hitter Todd Odom, who will be batting for left fielder Dennis Martinez. First baseman David Martinez will finish out the order.

Snyder is 8-7 on the 1986 campaign while Lamesa is 4-7-1.

In other 2-4A games tonight, Pecos, 8-5, is at Monahans, 4-6, and Andrews, 10-5, is at Fort Stockton, 5-3.

Orioles find pitching; Niekro keeps looking

by The Associated Press

The Baltimore Orioles have found their missing pitching, at least temporarily. Meanwhile, Phil Niekro continues to look for a new team.

Mike Boddicker pitched Baltimore's second straight complete game, a five-hitter Monday as the Orioles blanked the New York Yankees 7-0 in exhibition baseball.

On Sunday, Scott McGregor went nine innings to help the Orioles beat Atlanta 6-3.

Last season, Baltimore's pitching staff collapsed, setting team records for highest earned run average, most hits allowed and most home runs yielded.

"A good spring is a confidence builder. Last year, balls off the end of the bat would sneak through the infield or bloop over someone's head," Boddicker said. "But now the ground balls are going at people."

Baltimore pitchers have thrown three shutouts this spring, and have allowed just 12 earned runs in the last 60 innings.

Boddicker, who won 20 games in 1984, slumped to 12-17 last season with a 4.09 ERA. He struck out three Yankees and walked three on Monday.

The Orioles scored five times in the fourth inning against Yankees starter Joe Niekro. Cal Ripken, who drove in two runs, and John Shelby had three hits apiece for Baltimore, which reached Niekro for six runs on nine hits in four innings.

Niekro's brother, Phil, who turns 47 years old today, worked out Monday at the Braves' training camp.

Niekro, with a 300-250 record over 22 seasons, was released by the Yankees on Friday. Although he spent the first 20 years of his career with the Braves and then worked out Monday with the team, Atlanta insisted it did not intend to sign the knuckleballer.

"I know we have no interest in him," Braves spokesman Wayne Minshew said.

Niekro won 16 games in each of the last two seasons with the Yankees. He still wants to pitch

Hogeboom will attend camp but still wants to be traded

DALLAS (AP) - Backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom said he would attend the Dallas Cowboys' mini-camp today and Wednesday, but has let it be known he hasn't changed his mind and wants off the club as soon as a trade can be arranged.

Cowboys new quarterback coach Paul Hackett said he has met with Hogeboom, and the meeting lasted "about three minutes."

"Gary explained to me his position, and that is that he has asked to be traded by the Dallas Cowboys. Gary said that he just did not want to play in Dallas. He said it was nothing personal, he just wanted to be traded," Hackett said.

However, the Cowboys have said they have found little interest in Hogeboom around the National Football League, and Hogeboom's agent has come to the same conclusion.

The team has given agent Joe Courrage permission to speak with other NFL teams in an effort to arrange a trade.

Courrage said he has talked with 14 teams about a possible trade, and all expressed the same sentiment - little or no interest.

Hogeboom, who asked to be traded after the 1985 season when he was second-string to Danny White, was told the Cowboys would do the negotiating. However, after months of little progress, the Cowboys decided it would be better if Courrage made the effort.

"What we have said is, they are free to find out if other teams have an interest in him," Cowboys personnel director Gil Brandt told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"Instead of us calling around and having people say we're not trying very hard, we decided to let them find out if there is any interest. They're going to find out there isn't much at this time," Brandt added.

Courrage declined to say which teams he spoke with, but did say he expects the Cowboys to trade out of the National Football Conference if and when they trade.

"It's just not the right time," the agent said. "This thing will start to heat up as the draft draws near. I think we might be able to work something out then."

Hogeboom will attend the mini-camp and will attend training camp this summer if he is still a member of the Dallas team at that time, Courrage said.

"Gary is not a rebel. He just needs to be in a situation where he can play," Courrage said.

Last year, Courrage said, he tried to convince Hogeboom to stay in Dallas, "but I'm doing what I have to do right now to get him traded."

Renegades' Collier confers with Dallas Cowboys officials

DALLAS (AP) - Reggie Collier, quarterback of the Orlando Renegades of the USFL, met with Dallas Cowboys officials at their training facility last week, offensive passing coordinator Paul Hackett confirmed.

The Cowboys first requested and were granted permission from the Renegades to speak with Collier, Hackett said Monday.

Hackett said he and Collier, who was drafted by the Cowboys in the sixth round in 1983 but opted for the USFL, had lunch together and Collier toured the facility.

Collier could figure prominently in the Cowboys' plans should backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom be traded, as he has requested.

"Before I could talk with him, we requested permission from Orlando and they granted it," Hackett said. "I can't call (any USFL players) unless I get it cleared by the team."

Hackett said he didn't talk about a contract with Collier.

"There are so many things involved with the USFL," including an anti-trust suit against the NFL that is expected to go to trial in April or May, Hackett noted. "We just wanted to go by the book."

Coller said he also met with Cowboys head coach Tom Landry and team president Tex Schramm.

"The main purpose of my visit was to meet Paul, and I was very impressed by him. We see eye to eye on a lot of things," Collier said. Hackett, an assistant coach last year with the San Francisco 49ers, was hired by the Cowboys during the off-season to try to put new spark into the Dallas passing attack.

Collier has one year and an option year remaining on his contract with Orlando. he makes approximately $250,000 a year.

Collier signed with the USFL's Birmingham Stallions out of the University of Southern Mississippi. He later was traded to the Washington Federals, the franchise that transferred to Orlando last year.

SWT hires Larrabee

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) - Harry Larrabee, former University of Alaska-Anchorage head coach, was named men's basketball coach at Southwest Texas State, officials said Monday.

Larrabee, 34, replaces Celester Collier, who was relieved of his coaching duties March 5 after compiling a 12-42 record in two seasons at Southwest Texas, Athletic Director Bill Miller said.

Larrabee posted an 88-59 record against Division II opponents in his five years at Alaska-Anchorage to make him the winningest coach in the school's history.

The new SWT coach, a native of Shelbyville, Ind., has produced two NCAA tournament teams, a nationally ranked team, two conference championships and two All-America players.

Larrabee played basketball at the University of Texas until 1974, where he was a starter for three seasons and a team captain for two.

Byerly to coach all-star cagers

George Byerly, former basketball coach at Snyder High School, has been named to coach the North All-Star team at the annual North-South All-Star Classic in Houston, July 30, at Hofheinz Pavillion.

Byerly was nominated for the honor while coaching at Seminole during the 1984-85 season. He left Seminole last year and is currently head coach at Hardin-Jefferson High School in Sour Lake.

NIEKRO LOOKING

in the major leagues, and his agent, Bruce Church, said he might get his chance.

"Some clubs are calling, but I don't want to be specific. At this particular point, it would be inappropriate to name them right now," Church said.

In other exhibition games Monday, Boston topped a Montreal split squad 8-6; Cincinnati beat St. Louis 6-2; Philadelphia defeated the Chicago White Sox 5-1; Detroit nipped Kansas City 2-1; Los Angeles downed Minnesota 5-2; Atlanta edged a Montreal split squad 3-2 in 10 innings; Texas defeated an Atlanta split squad 8-1; Toronto got past the New York Mets 7-6 in 10 innings; Cleveland beat Oakland 6-4; the Chicago Cubs tripped Milwaukee 5-3; San Francisco shut out Seattle 4-0 and California beat 5-3.

Giants 4, Mariners 0

Roger Mason, Mike Jeffcoat and Jeff Robinson combined on a four-hitter as San Francisco beat Seattle.

The Mariners got all of their hits off Mason, the right-hander who was 12-1 in Class AAA last season. Mason went seven innings, striking out seven and walking two. Jeffcoat and Robinson worked one inning apiece.

Rangers 8, Braves 1

Texas rookie Bobby Witt pitched five innings and allowed one unearned run on four hits, and Darrell Porter's third home run of the spring highlighted a 15-hit attack against an Atlanta split squad.

Greg Harris added two perfect innings and Ricky Wright and Scott Patterson each added a hitless inning for the Rangers.

Pirates 2, Astros 0

Larry Williams pitched a two-hitter for seven innings and combined with Jim Winn to shut out Houston. Winn and Sid Bream each had RBI singles for Pittsburgh.

Tigers 2, Royals 1

Detroit's Dan Petry pitched six innings and gave up one unearned run on five hits. Petry is 3-0 this spring and has a 1.29 earned run average.

Kansas City starter Danny Jackson lost his third game without a victory. The Tigers scored their two runs in the second on singles by Larry Herndon, Alan Trammell and Chet Lemon, and a wild pitch.

Blue Jays 7, Mets 6

Kelly Gruber led of the bottom of the 10th inning with a home run, lifting Toronto over New York. Gruber connected for his second spring homer on a 3-2 pitch from Doug Sisk.

The Mets took a 6-5 lead in the top of the ninth when Kevin Mitchell hit a solo home run off Tom Henke. The Blue Jays tied it in the bottom of the ninth on Cesar Cedeno's sacrifice fly.

Red Sox 8, Expos 6

Tony Armas, who had two doubles, and Bil Buckner each had three hits as Boston beat a Montreal split squad.

Roger Clemens, hit hard in his first four starts this spring, pitched six innings and gave up two Montreal earned runs on six hits.

Crews battle many wildfires

By The Associated Press

Crews battled hundreds of wildfires today in the drought-parched hills of Dixie, and forecasters held out little hope that rain would end the siege that has charred more than 90,000 acres in the past week.

Forest fires, which contributed to two deaths since last week, were raging today in Alabama, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina, Ohio and Missouri. Many of the blazes were set, officials say.

Large fires were extinguished Monday night in New Jersey and Massachusetts.

More than a half million acres across the Southeast have been consumed this year in nearly 38,000 fires, said Bruce Jewell, regional information officer for the U.S. Forest Service in Atlanta.

At least 300 fires blazed across 2,000 acres in North Carolina during the weekend, while Alabama officials reported 158 blazes Sunday alone.

Dry weather was expected in the fire zones for the next few days.

"Without rain there isn't a whole lot we can do," said Ralph Glover, deputy state forester in West Virginia, where 56 new fires were reported Monday and 12 continued to burn.

Officials expanded a fire alert Monday to 40 of Alabama's 67 counties. Since last Tuesday, 905 fires have burned 15,000 acres, said Cynthia Page, a spokeswoman for the Alabama Forestry Commission. The cost in "timber, jobs, products and taxes" exceeds $26 million, she said.

This year, 7,394 fires have burned nearly 80,000 acres in North Carolina, compared with 4,952 fires on 114,800 acres in the first three months of 1985.

Four trained "hot-shot" firefighting teams from New Mexico and Arizona were battling a 344-acre blaze Monday in the Daniel Boone National Forest in Kentucky, which had at least 65 fires raging.

Last week, more than 650 fires blackened 23,000 acres in Kentucky. In West Virginia, more than 25,000 acres have been charred this year, the worst since 1976, said Jerry Atkins, assistant state forester. More than 460 fires blackened nearly 19,000 acres last week, and Atkins said arson was suspected in at least one-third.

Three juveniles believed to have set several fires in Raleigh County, W.Va., were arrested Monday evening, forester Robert Dameron said.

In southwestern Virginia, seven forest fires burned out of control Monday. Acreage was not available. Since Jan. 1, 895 forest fires burned 4,900 acres, said Division of Forestry spokesman Lou Southard.

Tennessee had 283 fires Sunday that blackened 2,745 acres, said Roy Ashey, director of the state Forestry Division.

So far this year, 3,730 fires have claimed 40,000 acres across Tennessee, which usually loses 40,000 to 42,000 acres of land to fires in an entire year, officials said.

Since February, at least three people have died in Tennessee fires, including a firefighter who died Sunday apparently of a heart attack.

An estimated 10,000 acres of Ohio forest had burned since last week. In Missouri, 20 weekend fires burned an estimated 1,400 acres, mostly along the Arkansas border. And, in Massachusetts, up to 2,000 acres of an artillery practice range burned on Cape Cod.

Three misdemeanor theft incidents prompt arrests

Police jailed two local men — one age 19 and the other 24 — shortly after midnight Monday on three misdemeanor theft charges.

The two are charged with Class C and Class B misdemeanor theft in connection with missing headlights and other small parts from two trucks owned by W.A. Maxfield.

The thefts are thought to have occurred over the past three months while the vehicles were parked at Snyder Iron and Metal on the Old Post Road.

A second misdemeanor theft report was filed at 7:15 a.m. Monday by Don Cole of 4603 El Paso Ave.

He told investigators two bicycles — a 26-inch boy's bike and a 20-inch BMX bike — had been taken from outside his residence sometime last week.

Cole also reported the theft of two wheel covers from a 1985 Oldsmobile. The wheel covers were thought to have been taken sometime Sunday night.

In other action, officers jailed two suspects for public intoxication Monday night.

Street closed

County commissioners unanimously agreed to close a street in Hermleigh during Monday's court session.

The request for the closure was presented by petition through Pct. 4 Commissioner Ted Billingsley. Jimmy and Helen Digby filed the action which required signatures from eight Hermleigh residents.

The 300 ft. street, platted in Block 70 of the original town, had never been used for traffic.

Oil price decline is hurting banks

HOUSTON (AP) — Falling oil prices will drag Texas bank profits down with them and could produce overall operating losses for some institutions, analysts say.

The spillover of energy problems into other commercial loans and the prospect for little or no loan growth "doesn't paint a pretty picture," said Sandra Flannigan, vice president and regional bank analyst for Paine Webber.

"First-quarter earnings are going to be dismal," Ms. Flannigan said.

To add to an already bad situation, oil prices dropped below the $11-per-barrel level Monday, the lowest in eight years.

Contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, were selling for $10.70 a 42-gallon barrel in trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The same contract closed Friday at $11.44 a barrel.

Prices reached their lowest level reached 1978, when refiners were paying an average $10.61 a barrel for domestic crude oil.

Last November, oil was selling for $30 a barrel.

Two weeks ago, Allied Bancshares in Houston reported it is expecting a 47-percent drop in earnings for the first three months of 1986.

The banks' first-quarter earnings will depend on what price of oil they use, said Frank Anderson, vice president and bank analyst for Weber, Hall, Sale & Associates in Dallas.

The state's largest bank holding companies are expected to use existing contract prices in the range of $14 to $17 a barrel in evaluating their loans and deciding what amount of funds to set aside for losses, analysts said.

"Texas Commerce has evaluated current market conditions carefully and is applying various pricing scenarios which are substantially below $17 a barrel," a Texas Commerce statement said.

MCorp plans to use prevailing contract prices and assumes they will continue for the next three to four years, said J. Thomas Hudgins, president of MBank Houston.

So far, most of the energy losses for Texas banks have come on loans to contract drillers and other energy service and supply companies. Production loans — those tied to oil and gas reserves in the ground — held up well as oil prices dropped from $36 to $25 a barrel.

First City Bancorporation of Texas, MCorp, Allied, Texas Commerce and InterFirst Corp. are the Texas bank holding companies with the most energy-related loans.

contracts.

This in turn allowed them to lower the price the company paid for gas. This decline was estimated from an average of $3.74 per million BTU in 1984 to $3.44 by the end of November, 1985.

The $12 and $13 refund — expected to be returned as a credit on the monthly billing — represents the saving to customers brought about by these lower costs.

SMA to meet

The Snyder Ministerial Alliance will meet at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Willow Park Inn restaurant. Keith Collier, Scurry County sheriff, will be the guest. Following his part of the program, the Alliance will discuss the possibility of establishing a Food Bank for the needy in Snyder.

Births

Keith and Becky Jordan are the parents of a baby girl, Elizabeth Renee, born March 28 at Rotan Hospital. She weighed six pounds and eight and one-half ounces.

She is welcomed home by her sister, Aaryn Brooke.

Grandparents are Barbara and Charlie Paulk and Mary and Cecil Jordan.

Parked vehicle struck Monday

A minor traffic mishap involving a parked vehicle was reported in Snyder Monday afternoon.

Involved in the 5:11 p.m. accident in the 3400 Block of College Ave. was a 1985 Dodge driven by Jack Steven Rook of 3010 39th St. which struck a parked 1979 Buick owned by Ted McMillian of 305 23rd St.

and bookkeeper — a position she officially retired from Monday.

When Sue decided about five years ago to begin to spend more time at home, she tried to schedule a three-day work week. "I trained seven cashiers in the past five years to try to find someone to eventually take my place. I had planned to work just three days a week. But I only did that a little while a time or two. Seems like I ended up working six days instead. About the time I got someone trained, they would quit," she said.

Sue has enjoyed watching the local store change and grow over the years. "Before we had the suction cups (containers carried through a series of pipes from the cash register to the office), we had pull cups. You had to pull a string to get the cups through. I'll never forget the time a man was fooling around and yanked a string so hard the cup shot out and barely missed my head."

When her children were young, Sue often allowed them to observe. "When I went to work my kids were small. They were always fascinated watching me talk on the phone to one person, talk to someone in front of me and make change in five cups at the same time," she laughed.

Sue believes Snyder's new facility is "just as nice as any store anywhere." But she found out just how much work is involved in moving. "I did about 60 to 65 hours per week and sometimes more during the move. We had to do combined books for a few weeks, keeping reports separate for both stores."

Happiness has been the key to Sue's longevity with Anthony's. "It's a good company to work for. I think liking your job is three-quarters of it. You might make more money somewhere else, but if you're not happy the money's not worth it," she said.

Although she has always loved her job, Sue is looking forward to retirement. "I'll be free to do whatever I want to do. When you're depended on to do the office work, you just don't want to take off for much."

Now Sue is free to "relax a little and travel a little." She and her husband J.T. will travel to Nashville later this month for a Grand Ole Opry show. The couple will also attend a special banquet at Anthony's headquarters in Oklahoma City for individuals employed by the company over 25 years.

010 LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF IMPOUNDMENT OF ESTRAY

On the 15th day of March, 1986, I impounded the following estray:

Kind of Animal: Livestock 1 (Bull); Breed: Mixed; Color: Black White Face; Sex: Male; Age: Aprox. 1-Year; Size: Aprox. 700 Lbs.; Brand, Mark, Identifying Characteristics: None Found, and, on the 24th day of March, 1986, I filed a Notice of Estray in the Estray Book of Scurry County, Texas. I have made a diligent search of the register of recorded brands in Scurry County, Texas, for the owner of said estray, but the search did not reveal the owner. Notice is hereby given that, if the ownership of said estray is not determined by the 21st day of April, 1986, said estray will be sold at public auction at Dermott, Texas.

WITNESS My hand this 24th day of March, 1986.

Keith Collier
(Sheriff of Scurry County, Texas)
(Designee of Sheriff of Scurry County, Texas)

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND PARTIES:

You are hereby notified of the opportunity for written public comment concerning the Special Permit Application No. S-16962 by Sun Exploration and Production Company to install a 465 hp gas compressor at the Snyder Gasoline Plant. The plant is located 3 miles northwest of Snyder, Texas on FM road 1611. The proposed engine will emit nitrogen oxides and carbon monoxide. The installation must comply with all Rules & Regulations of the Texas Air Control Board, ambient air quality standards, and "best available control technology" requirements.

A copy of all materials submitted by the applicant is available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board Region 1 office at 1290 South Willis, Suite 205, Abilene, Texas 79605, telephone (915) 698-9674, and at the Texas Air Control Board, 6330 Highway 290 East, Austin, Texas 79723, telephone (512) 451-5711. All interested persons may inspect these materials and submit written comments to the Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board. Any person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the proposed facility may request a hearing from the Board. All comments received in writing and postmarked by April 15, 1986 shall be considered by the Board in making a decision ov the application. All comments will be made available for public inspection at the Texas Air Control Board office in Austin.
