Death Sentence Affirmed

AUSTIN (AP)-The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, in a split decision, affirmed today the death sentence given Vernon McManus in the murder-for hire deaths of a Houston couple.

Three of the nine judges dissented, saying the sentence should be set aside and a new trial held.

McManus was convicted in 1977 of capital murder in the death of Paul Cantrell and assessed the death sentence.

On July 25, 1976, the bodies of Cantrell and his wife, Mary, were found in their Houston home by their daughter, Paula Cantrell Derese. They were on the floor of their den. Both had been strangled and their throats cut.

In a written statement and at the trial, the daughter implicated herself and McManus, former assistant football coach at Lamar University.

Cease Fire In Rhodesia

LONDON (AP)-British and Patriotic Front guerrilla leaders today agreed on compromise terms for a cease-fire in Zimbabwe Rhodesia, opening the way for a settlement in the 7-year-old guerrilla war, a spokesman for Commonwealth Secretary-General Shridath Ramphal said.

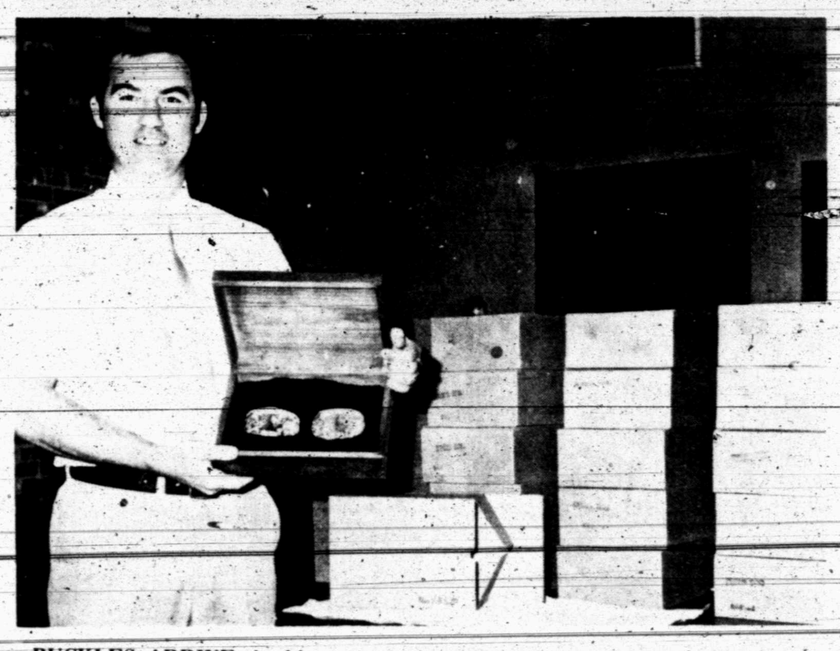

He told The Associated Press of the accord after Front leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe met with British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington for an hour.

Bomb Scare At Lackland

SAN ANTONIO (AP)-The Lackland Air Force Base post office was briefly evacuated Tuesday after a bomb dog detected what it thought was a letter bomb, according to customers and other sources at the tightly guarded base where the shah of Iran is staying.

No bomb was found, said a source who requested anonymity.

It was explained that the dogs are trained to detect the nitrates in explosives. There are traces of nitrates in other harmless packages, such as photographic film and some inks, a source explained.

BUCKLES ARRIVE--A shipment of collectors' buckles ordered through the Snyder Chamber of Commerce has arrived. Bill Warner, chamber manager, displays one of the sets which includes a sterling silver buckle and a brass buckle in a walnut case. They are due to be presented to purchasers in a brief ceremony within the next few days. (SDN Staff Photo)

The SDN Column

On the editorial page of today's issue of the SDN there is a letter from John Boren, who marvels at the dexterity of the Western Texas College Westerners on the basketball court. Monday night's exhibition against the Howard College Hawks apparently made a believer out of John, despite the fact that two of WTC's headline performers made only cameo appearances in the game.

Paul Pressey picked up three personal fouls in something like a minute and a half and Phil Spradling was in foul trouble a moment later. These two are high-scoring starters for the Westerners, and ordinarily you would expect a team to regress somewhat with two of its front-liners benched before the game warmed up.

That is about the same as if Joe Cushing should be forced to go with Shari Teal and Joyce Plagens on the bench.

That was not the case, however. There were other Westerners around--it must have seemed to Hawk Coach Harold Wilder that they were coming out of an ant hill.

Anyway, Westerner Coach Nolan Richardson never did really have to sweat it out, because his bench strength kept the momentum going.

We were interested in John Boren's comments about the Westerners, because John is no stranger to the basketball court. He was a high school and college athlete during an era when you "played everything." In those days, college basketball teams in this part of the country were composed mostly of the backfield players and ends from the football team, with a few interior linemen thrown in to fill out the squad and for laughs. Being an end (he would be called a "wide receiver" today) Boren was expected to carry his part of the load on the court when football moved aside for basketball.

But with due respects to Boren and others of his day, basketball has come a long way since then in this part of the country. There are people who play basketball as their primary sport. There are fans who understand the game. There are better coaches in high schools as well as colleges.

It used to be that the best high school basketball teams came from schools too small to field football teams. A veteran coach once warned his colleagues to beware of a bunch of skinny youths whose elbows and knees looked like knots tied in a rope and whose skin was milk white.

"That's a sign they have been in the gym all year and if they get you on the basketball court, they'll beat the daylights out of you."

Now, lots of kids are in the gym the year round and the game is improving. However, it appears that we may be lagging in one aspect, and that's officiating. There are too many "Mickey Mouse" calls and it has almost reached the point that nobody is allowed to block a shot anymore. This probably will change because we already have heard complaints from coaches and fans alike that "they won't let the teams play."

Nevertheless, basketball is improving and fan interest is growing, and if you want to become a part of it, there will be plenty of opportunity in Snyder the remainder of the week. The Canyon Reef high school tournament is booked for the weekend, and the Westerners and Dusters will take on Odessa College teams Thursday night in the coliseum.

Launching Assault On Oil Depletion Allowance

WASHINGTON (AP)— Buoyed by back-to-back votes adding as much as $27.5 billion to the "windfall-profits" tax, several senators are launching a new assault on a tax break long cherished by the oil industry -- the oil depletion allowance.

Actions taken by the Senate Tuesday would increase the windfall tax to about $157 billion over the 1980s, still considerably below the $277 billion passed by the House and favored by President Carter.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., was asking the Senate today to add $14.6 billion to the bill by denying the industry the oil depletion allowance on any price increases that are subject to the new windfall tax.

The depletion allowance is available on many minerals but is especially lucrative for the oil industry. It allows an oil producer not affiliated with a major oil company to deduct 22 cents from his federal income taxes for each $1 earned from the oil business.

"This $14.6 billion subsidy would come at a time when it is needed least, at the expense of taxpayers, and with no assurance of increased oil production," Leahy said.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., portrayed the Leahy amendment as another effort to punish the oil industry for recent high profits. The government "cannot continue to punish the industry and the producing states and still expect increased oil production," Dole said.

In a blow to the oil industry Tuesday, the Senate:

--Agreed to an amendment that would increase the windfall tax by $22.5 billion by increasing from 60 percent to 75 percent the tax rate on "new" oil, generally that from fields where production started between 1973 and 1979.

--Accepted a proposal to phase out the tax in the late 1990s, rather than in the late 1980s as the Finance Committee had recommended. Changing the phase-out formula would add an estimated $3 billion to $5 billion to the tax in the 1980s. And, depending on the path of oil prices in the future, it could cost the oil industry an additional $60 billion or more in the 1990s.

The vote increasing the tax rate on new oil was 58-35 and came on an amendment by Sens. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and John Chafee, R-R.I. The change was supported by the Carter administration.

The vote changing the phase-out schedule for the tax was 68-26 and came on an amendment by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Libyan Embassy Operations Halted

WASHINGTON (AP)— The United States has decided to suspend operations at its embassy in Libya until Col. Moammar Khadafy's government agrees to pay for damage caused by demonstrators, it was learned today.

In the interim, the 10 American diplomats in the country will remain at their post. Technically, relations have not been cut.

But they could be, a U.S. official said, if the Khadafy government does not accept responsibility for the ransacking and burning of the embassy in Tripoli last Sunday by some 2,000 demonstrators supporting the Iranian takeover of the U.S.

Some of the demonstrators carried placards supporting Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the spiritual leader of Iran, where 50 Americans have been held hostage since Nov. 4.

All of the Americans in the Tripoli embassy escaped from the mob unharmed.

The Libyan foreign ministry apologized on Monday for the incident, but the Carter administration rejected the apology as inadequate, in part because the Libyans did not offer to pay for the damage.

Building Figures Near $3 Million

Snyder's 1979 building figures edged closer to the $3 million mark in November, although there was a definite lull on the local construction front.

A total of 11 permits issued covered projects with a total value of $100,272 for the month. This pushed the total for the calendar year to $2,892,238. The total for the fiscal year which began Oct. 1 now stands at $424,052.

For the first time in many months there were no permits in November for single-family dwellings. However, there were permits for one duplex and for two mobile homes.

At this time last year, local building figures had reached $8,729,987. However, the 1979 construction figures do not have large projects, such as the hospital addition which accounted for more than a third of the 1978 total.

Officials Ready To Talk . . .

Students Reject U.N. Resolution

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)— The students holding 50 Americans hostage in the U.S. Embassy today rejected a Security Council appeal for their immediate release, but Tehran state radio took a more cociliatory tone, saying the U.N. action "left the way open for negotiations."

The radio statement was seen as a hopeful sign in the month-long crisis, but the difference between the hard line of the embassy militants and the approach of Iranian officials again pointed to conflict on the Iranian side.

The students at the embassy also issued an appeal for the oil workers of Saudi Arabia to rise against "Eastern and Western plunderers ... led by America" and commended them for pro-Khomeini demonstrations late last month.

"Today an uprising against America is a divine duty, and you Moslems of Saudi Arabia shoulder this duty more than others" because the nation was the birthplace of Islam and is the world's leading oil exporter.

Tehran's largest afternoon newspaper, Ettelaat, splashed a banner headline across its front page citing Sen. Edward Kennedy's "serious attack against the shah and the U.S. government." Other Iranian newspapers also carried accounts of Kennedy's comment that the shah "ran one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind" before he fled Iran in January.

Washington reports said the U.S. government planned a series of new diplomatic and economic steps to pressure Iran into freeing the hostages. CBS News said the new moves, short of military action, would begin this week and intensify over the next two or three weeks.

On Tuesday, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime made new and stronger threats against the captives. Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy carrier force south of the Persian Gulf doubled in size.

The Security Council resolution was adopted Tuesday on the fourth consecutive day of a debate in which every speaker called for the release of the hostages. Iran boycotted the meeting, claiming it was rigged in favor of the United States.

Editor Fleeing Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)-Robert Cox, the British editor of the English-language newspaper Buenos Aires Herald, said he and his family are leaving for England next week because of repeated threats against his life.

Cox, 45, said in a brief statement in the paper Tuesday that the life of his 10-year-old son was also threatened in a letter the child received. He and his wife have four other children also.

The editor in his paper expressed constant concern for human rights and regularly denounced both left-wing and right-wing terrorists. Sources close to the Herald said the death threats apparently came from ultra-rightist groups, which have the tacit support of Argentina's military government.

Cox's statement said he requested a year's leave of absence but this had not been granted yet.

Cox became editor of the paper in 1969 and made it an influential voice in Argentina.

Industrial Bond Plan Discussed

The initial meeting of a task force to explore the possibility of using industrial revenue bonds was held Tuesday night at the chamber of commerce board room.

A state law enacted last session now permits the creation of a non-profit corporation to issue industrial bonds to be used in industrial development.

The creation of the corporation must be accomplished in conjunction with a local political enity. Those present Tuesday night agreed that the county would be the proper agency since most industries would locate outside the corporate city limits.

The bonds are issued upon final approval of the Texas Industrial Commission, and the bonds in no way obligate tax money or finances of the city or county.

Chamber manager Bill Warner was asked to meet with the Scurry County Commissioners Court Monday to discuss the information and possibly begin work on establishing the corporation.

Those attending the meeting were Mayor John Fagin, City Manager John Gayle, County Judge Preston Wilson, Guy Sullivan, chairman of the Board of County Development; Rex Fields, president of the industrial foundation; Roy McQueen, chairman of the industrial team; and Mike Smith, city engineer.

Ask Us

Q--Is it true that SCAT is planning to gradually eliminate all of the Dallas-Fort Worth stations, including Channel 8 (WFAA) and Channel 6 (KERA), thus leaving Snyder without any PBS station?

A--Mel Gilbert, executive vice president of SCAT, says these stations reach the local cable system via microwave and that SCAT has no intentions of quitting the micro-wave service. He says there has been some speculation that sometime in the future, microwave may not be able to compete with satellite service. However, SCAT has been assured that if this should occur, Public Boardcasting System (PBS) would be available by satellite and SCAT would have it.

Landscape Course Instructor Hired

James B. Eby, formerly of Lubbock, has been employed as Director of Golf Course Operations and Landscape Technology at Western Texas College.

Eby holds the bachelor of science degree in park administration-horticulture from Texas Tech University and is a registered landscape architect.

After separation from active Army service in 1961, Eby established an office as a planner and landscape architect in Lubbock. He joined the firm of Howard Olsen Landscape Co. in Culver City, Calif., in September, 1969, as director of the landscape maintenance division. He returned to Lubbock in May, 1971, to become associated with Landscape Systems Co. as partner-owner-manager, and remained there until accepting the WTC position.

WTC trustees recently approved a new course of study in landscape technology, which will be combined with the established golf and grounds operations program. Students completing the college credit program will earn the associate in applied science degree.

The program calls for 71 semester hours, with 52 of those transferrable to senior colleges for students who plan to seek a four-year degree in horticulture or nursery management. Students will be prepared to accept employment as assistant golf course superintendent, landscape crew foreman or groundskeepers.

Further information about landscape technology may be obtained by contacting Eby or the office of Dr. Gene McClurg, Dean of Occupational Education and Technology.

most barbaric czar

Hitler didn't do it. Stalin didn't either, nor Tojo.

As high as pre-war feelings ran before World War II, as barbaric as some of the leaders of that time turned out to be, none of them did it.

But today, now, to Americans, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is doing it.

He is treating that handful of U.S. diplomats and citizens still in Iran with uncommon indecency.

Sure, Khomeini is not holed up at the American embassy in Tehran with the hostages. The Iranian demonstrators are there.

But Khomeini, whom Andrew Young predicted to go down in history as a saint, could stop it all and he's not doing it. In fact, he's taking advantage of the situation - demanding that the former Shah of Iran be taken from a U.S. hospital and shipped home.

One U.S. official said that Khomeini is being "undiplomatic." It's more than that. He's being uncivilized.

Civilized nations don't harass the diplomats of another nation. Regardless of the issues between nations, regardless of the bad feelings which may exist, civilized nations do not prey upon the helpless.

What Khomeini is doing is kicking cripples. The Americans in Iran are without protection. The diplomats among them, at least, went there with the expectation that they would be treated as diplomats anywhere are treated - protected by the host country when that country's mobs threaten them. That's understood. It's universal.

But Khomeini violates that understanding and chooses, instead, to abuse those he should aid.

He permitted the hostages to be blindfolded, bound, and paraded before mobs which heaped derision upon them.

One doesn't invite people into his home and allow them to become badgered captives.

As a major world power deeply involved in world politics, especially since World War II, the U.S. and its citizens have become somewhat used to ill treatment at the hands of other countries.

American war prisoners have been hauled before hostile crowds to be hooted at and spat upon. Diplomats have been threatened and attacked.

And these acts have been protested. They've caused anger here at home.

But, not, judging from news stories, the same kind of gut revulsion which Americans feel now. Americans are burning Iranian flags; they are threatening and fighting with Iranian students living among us. They are stirred up.

And they have a right to be. After all, something in most of us felt American prisoners of war should be treated fairly, but they were at one time killing the citizens of the country which held them. The diplomats who were attacked in other countries were at least protected by the host country itself, if not by some of the citizens.

There is no justification for what Khomeini is doing. Shah or no Shah, the incident in Tehran is barbaric.

May we hold fast to our reasons, our humanism, and hope that within Iran stands someone through whom the world can work to send Khomeini back into exile.

"Well, should we go in and get the hostages or let the turkeys go?"

The exterior of your home has probably been winterized by now, but we are challenged by authorities, to not neglect the inside for safety reasons.

A few extra steps can possibly prevent disaster. Opening a window slightly can save a life-so can blowing dust out of a space heater or checking an extension cord. These easy actions can make the difference between a warm, safe winter and tragedy.

Gas heaters and hoses should be checked before being lit for the first time and if they are accidentally hit. The simple way of running a lighted match near a heater to detect leaks can cause an explosion with disastrous results. This job calls for an expert. Smelling for gas and letting a repairman inspect heaters is the safest and surest way to having peace of mind about your heaters. In this matter, it doesn't pay to cut corners.

Electric space heaters need dusting and a frequent inspection of cords to be sure they are not worn. The electric heaters and open-air gas heaters share some of the same fire hazard qualities. They both can cause furniture, floors and drapes to burn if they are too close to such items. More importantly, they can catch clothing on fire if people stand too close too long.

Many people are killed each year from gas heaters. These heaters can kill by burning up all the oxygen in an unventilated room or by filling the room with unburned gas if the flame goes out. A good defense for these problems include keeping a window slightly open.

A fire that destroys or seriously damages a home is one of those ultimate tragedies, particularly if there is family injury or death.

Of course at this time we are warned to take extra precautions in putting up a Christmas tree and other seasonal decorations. Following a few safety tips can pay off in being able to enjoy a safe holiday season. There are the standard warnings about Christmas trees and wiring. In a nutshell, all wiring should be checked, bulbs tightened, and natural trees should be kept in a base with water.

Slow down, initiate common sense safety in each step, and boast that you're one of those who believe "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

In the rush of events now shaking the Moslem world, by far the most bizarre has been the seizure of the Grand Mosque in Mecca.

It is difficult to imagine an outrage of a similar magnitude in Western circumstances. Occupation of St. Peter's in Rome by snake-handling fundamentalists from Appalachia would still be considerably short of the mark.

At this point, the desecration of Islam's holy of holies appears to have no connection with the crisis in Tehran, oil politics or any other point of common interest or tension between Islamic lands and the rest of the world. It shapes up as the work of a small band of religious extremists consumed by their own fanaticism and with no interest whatsoever in that greater world.

But if the battle for the mosque has nothing to do with the broader political situation, it has a great deal to do with the situation of the country in which it occurred.

For all that it looms so impressively-over today's world scene as the leading oil exporter and the most influential power player in the Mideast game, Saudi Arabia as a nation is a fairly recent invention. It was pieced together in a series of desert wars during the early decades of the century when one local sheikh, tougher and craftier than his neighbors, overcame them one by one. He was Abdel Aziz ibn Saud and the last of his conquests was the Hejaz, the coastal strip along the Red Sea containing the holy cities of Mecca and Medina and technically up to World War I a part of the Turkish Empire.

During the course of his own successful empire building, Ibn Saud made many enemies, not the least important being the previous local rulers of the Hejaz, the Hashemite family. In the post-World War I settlement, the Hashemites were compensated for their eviction with the thrones, under British supervision, of Jordan and Iraq. It is one of the ironic twists of Arab politics that Jordan's King Hussein and the Saudis are currently the closest of allies on most Mideast issues.

Back home in the desert, there remained problems. Force rather than loyalty bound many of the tribes to the new Saudi state. There was also the problem of religious militants of the Wahhabi sect, enlisted by Ibn Saud to further his own cause but who became a post-unification nuisance. Ibn Saud crushed them in 1929.

Saudi Arabia's rise to immense wealth and influence in recent decades has obscured these exceedingly shaky foundations upon which the nation rests. The push to modernize the social structure and diversify the economy, which in the long run should strengthen the state, in the short run have aggravated its weaknesses.

As puritanical as they may appear to the outside world, including most Moslems, the vast Saudi royal family has become increasingly wordly in comparison with the greater part of the population. In the view of the more critical faithful, they have been drifting away from true Islam. Industrialization, expansion of education and the flooding of the country with foreigners -- by the Saudi's own count, 75 percent of the work force is now non-Saudi - are resented.

The Grand Mosque was seized, according to the current explanation, on behalf of a self-styled messiah by ultra-orthodox members of a tribe subdued 50 years ago by Ibn Saud. The incident may or may not represent a resurgence of tribal hostility. It may or may not signal a rebirth of Wahhabi militance.

But it certainly demonstrates that there is much more beneath the Saudi surface than is represented by the throngs of sophisticated, globe-trotting princes and sheikhs with which the West has become so familiar.

Saudi Arabia, which outwardly gives every appearance of being the Arab world's most stable and rational state, may inwardly be just the opposite. A surprising situation perhaps, but then that's pretty much the way it is all over the Moslem world these days.

Bizarre.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

A lot of parents go through the phase where their children go to college and two weeks later want to have their parents tested for irregular flow of oxygen to the brain. Adults don't know anything.

Oh, I can take the humiliation of kids asking, "Do you understand what I mean by the term 'bottom line'?"

I can handle the condescending way they spell in front of me. I can even endure their impatience when they ask me something and when I don't hear it they shout, "Never mind!"

What I can't stand is their sanctimonious superiority. They all go through it. We no sooner got one child raised who didn't know how we managed to feed ourselves without a working knowledge of statistics than we had to live through an economics expert.

God has now chosen to send us a son who is majoring in "cinema."

Forget the home movies. We stopped showing those two years ago when we asked him to splice together some of our shots of South America. We own the shortest home movie ever recorded in the Guinness Book of Records. As he said, "there was only ten feet of film that had any quality to it whatsoever. I cannot believe you left home without a tripod."

What really gets to me is that I can't enjoy a movie anymore without his Ronacizing it.

Son: "Seen any movies lately?"

Mom: "The Seduction of Joe Tynan' and I loved it..."

Son: "Just missed making a statement."

Mom: "...up to a point. Of course the one I really liked was 'Apocalypse Now' which was breathtakingly..."

Son: "Coppola had a concept but it didn't work."

Mom: "...dull. You're absolutely right. Of course 'Luna' was a shakeup for me, really gross..."

Son: "Beautiful film. Sensitive and real."

Mom: "made a million according to the critics and worth every penny of it."

Son: "What about 'Life of Brian'?"

Mom: "I haven't seen it, but the Clawsons saw it and walked out of the threatre..."

Son: "Most brilliant piece of satire to come across the screen since Chaplin."

Mom: "...laughing. My gosh, they couldn't stop."

Son: "I'd be interested in comparing your notes on '10'. Or did you relate at all to the metaphor?"

With luck, maybe I'll outgrow him.

letter to editor

To The Daily News:

Last night (Monday) I had the privilege of watching one of the finest basketball teams perform that I have seen in many years. It was our own WTC Westerners winning handily against Howard College.

I would urge all of the basketball fans in this area to watch for the next game played at home by this team and come out to see something special. You will be amazed at the exciting brand of ballhawking that these fellows put on their opponents.

Coach Nolan Richardson is doing a terrific job with this bunch and they should be back in Hutchinson, Kan., Next year.

John Boren

(Editor's note: That next home game will be Thursday night when Odessa College brings its teams here. And we would add that the WTC women, who play the first game in these doubeheaders, put on quite a show of ball handling and shooting themselves).

HOBBS-Mrs. Cantu and son, Raymond, DAR Good Citizen from Hobbs.

MCCAULLEY-Mrs. Decker and daughter Dennisa, DAR Good Citizen from McCaulley.

ROBY-Mrs. Wright and daughter Jan, DAR Good Citizen of Roby.

ROTAN-Mrs. Posey and daughter Julie, DAR Good Citizen of Rotan.

Rotan DAR Names Outstanding Citizens

The annual luncheon honoring DAR Good Citizens of Fisher County was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Whit Clark, north of Rotan, recently with chapter regent Mrs. Ruple Morrow presiding.

Mrs. Rudy V. Hamric, DAR Good Citizen chairman, presented the honorees and their mothers. Each honoree received a DAR Good Citizen pin and a certificate from Mrs. Hamric, with each recipient being pinned by his or her mother.

Raymond Cantu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rogelio Cantu, was presented as Good Citizen for Hobbs School. Raymond has received the AG Award and the Spanish Award. He has also received the certificate for being second highest in his class every year in high school. He is a member of FFA and holds a number of degrees as a member. His plans include attending a technical school and later expanding the family farming operation.

Dennisa Decker, daughter Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Decker, is the DAR Good Citizen for McCaulley School. Dennisa has been the recipient of many honors during her high school years, and has held various elected offices. Her special interests are in basketball, art, government, FHA and pep squad. At home she helps in planning and cooking family meals as well as with the laundry and other housework. At church she is a member of the choir and occasionally teaches a Sunday school class.

Miss Decker plans to start a cosmetology course shortly after high school graduation. Later she plans to enter college working in the area of business and journalism. For hobbies she enjoys basketball, jogging, needlework, sewing, crochet, knitting and macrame.

Roby's chosen DAR Good Citizen is Jan Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Wright. Jan has earned many honors during her high school years. As freshman she was a member of the District 3-B champion basketball team, track member and FHA state delegate. During her sophomore year she was a member of the regional qualifier mile relay team and received the Home Economics II award. Other activities have included being a member of the newspaper staff, Junior Leaders 4-H Club and the cast of the UIL one-act play.

Miss Wright's special interests and activities are taking 4-H trips to different places representing Fisher County, and showing steers through 4-H. She helps her mother with work at home and her father with farming. She teaches a Sunday morning Bible class and works in VBS. She assists with raising money for the March of Dimes and other community organizations. Jan plans to enter ACU or Texas Tech in the fall of 1980 with plans to become an accountant or legal secretary.

Presented as DAR Good Citizen of Rotan was Julie Posey. Julie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Posey. She is one of the top five students for the past four years, and went to state in the clarinet quartet as a sophomore. She is a member of the National Honor Society and of Who's Who Among High School Students. She is presently band president and president of the Student Congress.

Her special interests include reading, sewing, cooking, 4-H, FFA, and annual staff. Julie helps her family at home and on the farm. She teaches in VBS and works with the bus ministry in her church. She visits the rest homes on a regular basis. She has prepared floats for several parades. Julie plans to continue her education at WTSU or ACU next fall and plans a possible career in social work.

Following presentation of the DAR awards, a film titled "Home and Country" was shown by Delila Baird. The film depicts the history and outstanding work of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution. The meeting was concluded with a buffet luncheon.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

S. Garton Churchill has compiled an enormous book called "The Churchill Natural Bidding Style at Contract Bridge." He has analyzed hundreds of hands where others went wrong and then shows how Churchill would have avoided their pitfalls.

We don't like the Churchill methods, but when Church gets away from plugging his system and into common sense his stuff is well worth reading.

One point he stresses is that on many occasions a good player will bid a three-card or even a two-card suit in order to invite a notrump bid by his partner.

Today's hand was bid by Ivar Stakgold and Lenny Harmon some 20 years ago and will serve as a model for anyone using any methods.

They were using standard bidding and after Ivar opened one heart, Lenny made the normal two-diamond response. Ivar rebid two hearts and then came the key bid. Lenny bid two spades.

This gave Ivar no problem. He bid two notrump. Lenny raised to three and since the defense started with three rounds of clubs, Ivar made five notrump.

The game was duplicate and somehow or other almost everyone else got into some high and unsuccessful diamond contract.

Kennedy In Rhetorical Box After Flap On Iran

By Donald M. Rothberg
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's Iranian flap may have a bit of a nostalgic ring to President Carter. The circumstances are not unlike the problem Carter ran into with the Soviet troops in Cuba.

"The status quo is unacceptable," said Carter after disclosure that a Soviet combat bridgade was in Cuba.

With that statement, the president put himself in a rhetorical box. He had difficulty extricating himself when the Soviets refused to cooperate by agreeing to change the status quo.

Now it's Kennedy's turn to run up against his own rhetoric.

"Do the Iranian people have legitimate grievances against the Shah?" a reporter asked the Massachusetts senator during a television interview Sunday in Los Angeles.

Kennedy adhered firmly to the standard he had set since the takeover Nov. 4 of the American Embassy in Tehran.

"It's of little value for the United States not to speak with a single voice," said the senator. "I don't think it is useful or wise to consider the condition of human rights in Iran prior to this circumstance."

Then, 12 hours later, in another television interview, this time in San Francisco, Kennedy abruptly violated his own standard.

Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi "ran one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind," said Kennedy when asked whether the United States owed something to its long-time ally.

The next 24 hours did not go well for the senator.

Repeatedly, he was asked why he had changed his position.

"My position is unchanged," said Kennedy, falling back on the politician's refuge of standing in the ocean and denying his feet are wet.

Kennedy made the point that his statement about the shah wasn't that far from what Carter said during his news conference and what members of the U.N. Security Council said Saturday during the debate on Iran.

In both instances, it was acknowledged that the Iranian people might have grievances that could be aired after the hostages were released.

As one would expect, President Carter's political allies weren't going to let Kennedy get away with a statement that could be interpreted as upsetting the delicate situation in Tehran, where 50 Americans are held hostage.

Robert Strauss, chairman of the president's campaign committee, said the Kennedy statement "could endanger these people."

Perhaps so, but the same might be said of some of the president's tough statements during the month-long crisis.

What made Kennedy so vulnerable to criticism was that he had set such a firm policy of avoiding criticism of Carter's handling of Iran or even discussion of the events leading up to the crisis, and then abruptly shifted from that position.

'Aunt Mary' Challenges Viewer

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)— "Aunt Mary," a Wednesday night movie on CBS, presents the viewer with a challenge, right up front:

"This is a true story," the prologue says, "It is about a woman named Mary Dobkin, a bunch of kids, and baseball."

It might as well say, "All right, TV viewers, you who've been pelted by sham and cheap sex and shallow plays for your emotions, here's a movie that will make you cry."

The lovely fact is, it does.

You know one thing about a movie that features an old lady, kids and baseball -- it will transude sentiment, heavily. "Aunt Mary," a Wednesday night Hallmark Hall of Fame special on CBS, certainly does that. But the film has character, and a fine instinct for the human heartstring.

It works.

It helps to know that this is a real story, that real life can be at least as moving as Hollywood.

Jean Stapleton is perfect as Mary Dobkin, a creature of bad luck and Baltimore's slums who's suffered all of her life from sundry ailments that left her crippled. She suffers also from a divine affliction, the love of baseball.

She loves kids, too, another divine affliction, and decides to form a baseball team for them. This despite warnings from her jaundiced neighbor, Harry Strasberg (Martin Balsam), who warns that "the little hoods will rob you blind ... you nail something down and they'll steal the nails ... they need an animal trainer, not a coach."

Of course, Harry is right, to a degree; otherwise, this wouldn't qualify as a story about human indominability, and the rightness of humankind. But Mary does form a team, and even the most hellish of the hellions among her brood prove good little boys at heart under her saintly guidance.

The baseball stuff pretty much parallels the progression of "Bad News Bears," and at times, the tear-jerking seems just a bit heavy-handed, but it's easy to forgive that because Miss Stapleton so thoroughly possesses the character, and the character is so thoroughly lovable. You will be easily won.

More than 50,000 kids have been members of Aunt Mary's "Dobkin Dynamites," two of whom became big-leagers (Ron Swoboda and Tom Phoebus). It was a former Dynamite, Ellis Cohen, who wrote the story on which the drama is based.

The acting is superb, the writing effective and more restrained than it could have been, and the result is an uplifting experience, the kind that makes you want to be nice to strangers. "Aunt Mary" declares its unabashed sentimentality and promises to get you.

It does.

Portland Police Gets Fowl Job

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)-Portland police were faced with a fowl assignment when they had to decide what to do with a herd of 50 hens found strutting across a city parking lot at midnight.

"I told them to disperse, but they wouldn't," Lt. Michael Wallace, who helped trap the hens against a wall with police cruisers, said Monday.

He then called for the arrest van and went to the Public Works Department garage for two eight-foot lengths of snow fence and a piece of plywood to use as a ramp.

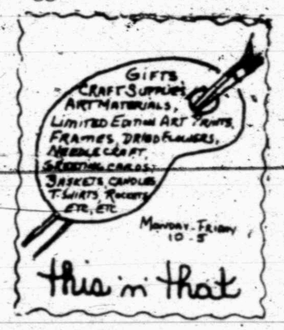

The chickens were corralled up to the paddy wagon but refused to walk up the ramp. "Three escaped," Wallace said, recalling that one was apprehended by a restaurant employee.

Police then placed the hens in the van and took them to the station, while an officer went home for some chicken feed.

After a meal, the hens were taken to a pen at a holding center where police usually take dogs.

"We have no idea where they came from," Wallace said, adding that a teletype message was sent to area police departments in hopes that the owner will be located to claim his lost flock.

One unidentified police department sent back a teletype ordering a dozen eggs.

Statewide Panel Named By Connally

AUSTIN (AP) - John B. Connally, a Republican candidate for president, announced Friday a statewide steering committee of more than 3,000 Texans.

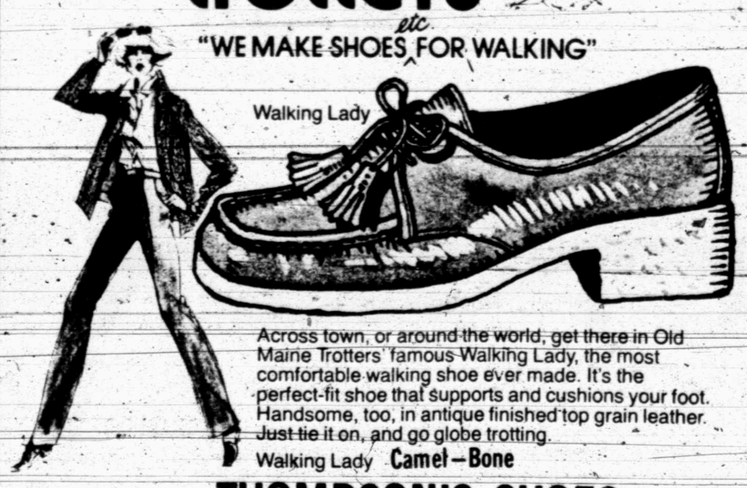

Campaign Coordinator Jim Campbell, Pampa, said the list includes Jack Cox, former GOP candidate for governor and a Ronald Reagan backer in previous years; Paul Eggers, former Republican candidate for governor and former Texas Supreme Court Justice W. St. John Garwood, who was a Reagan delegate in 1976.

Others include former State Republican Chairman Ray Hutchison, Dallas; former Democratic state Sen. Grady Hazelwood; former Dallas Mayor Erik Jonsson; Dr. Lorene Rogers, retired prisident of the University of Texas at Austin; Baylor University President Abner McCall and UT-El Paso President Arleigh Templeton.

Fed Up With Spoiled Hams

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In response to ACTRESS, who criticized those in the audience for rushing out of the theater the minute the performance is over instead of sticking around for all the curtain calls:

I go to the ticket window, lay down my hard-earned money hoping to get my money's worth in entertainment. I sit through the performance, then down comes the curtain. End of show. Then I get up and leave.

Why should I either remain in my seat or stand up and keep applauding those egomaniacs and shouting "Bravo!" like a nincompoop? I paid THEM to perform for ME. I should be applauded for buying the ticket. Without me, and others like me, they would be in the unemployment line because those ego-loaded showoffs would rather starve to death than do menial work.

Why should entertainers be treated like gods? Have you ever heard of three curtain calls for a neurosurgeon?

JOE S. IN SALEM, N.Y.

DEAR JOE: No. But it could be "curtains" for the patient of a neurosurgeon who turns in a poor performance!

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago my husband started acting nervous and preoccupied. He also started working late at his office and on weekends — something he rarely did.

We've been married 16 years, have a nice family, and have often said that ours was one of the few really "good" marriages we knew of.

A week ago, I received a phone call in the middle of the afternoon from a woman who refused to identify herself, but said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman who works in his office. Then she mentioned the woman's name. I recalled my husband telling me that he had employed a young, unmarried woman by that name about a year ago. I fell apart.

When my husband came home, I told him about the call and knew from his reaction it was true. I cried. He cried, too, and then confessed that he had had an affair with her, but broke it off two weeks ago, telling her it was a regrettable mistake, and he would get her a job elsewhere. He said she seemed to accept his decision. Then he asked me to listen in on the telephone extension while he called someone. I did. I recognized the voice at once as the woman who had phoned me! She called, hoping I would throw my husband out and give her a clear field!

I've forgiven my husband, but I'm still hurting some. I'm glad I didn't act foolishly in haste. Perhaps some other wife will be wiser for my experience.

If you print this, please don't use my name.

GETTING OVER IT

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to LONGING FOR MOTHERHOOD was the worst! She wanted a baby but had no husband or boyfriend, so she was considering asking a fellow to do her a favor and father her child. You told her "scrap the idea!" Why?

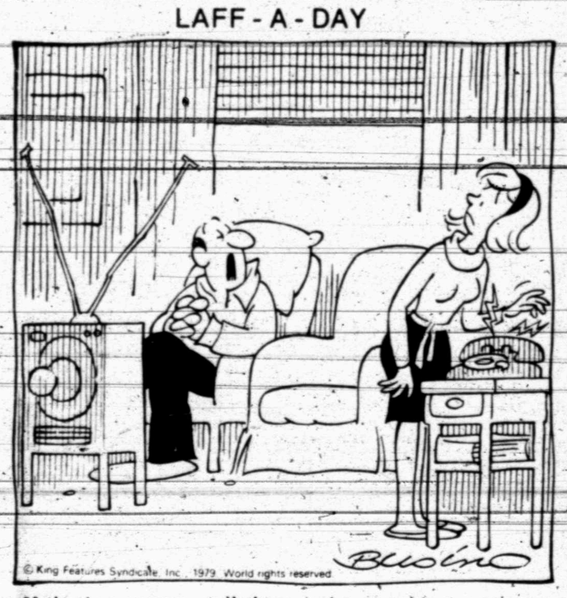

If a woman wants a baby, why should she have to marry a man she may not love just to have one? If she's longing for motherhood, married or not, that's the time to do something about it.

Today a woman has the right to have an abortion if she wants one, so why shouldn't she have the right to have a baby if that's what she wants?

FREEDOM FOR ALL

DEAR FREEDOM: I'm all for a woman's right to have a baby if she wants one. But I could not in good conscience go along with her idea of "asking a fellow to do her a favor" to achieve motherhood.

LAFF-A-DAY

"If that's a survey, tell them we're watching a science panel — we don't want to encourage this trash."

Recalls Days Of 1st Campaign

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)— Henny Wright recalls her freshman year at Yale University when she ran into a little known "peanut farmer who said he was running for president."

She remembers the protests from her parents in Austin when she left Yale in her sophomore year to campaign for Jimmy Carter.

The 22-year-old now has solid political experience behind her and a job as associate deputy to presidential aide Sarah Weddington. She also has her bachelor's degree from Yale, having returned after a year on the campaign trail with enough extra credits to graduate with her class.

Carter was too liberal for her staunch Republican father, University of Texas Law School professor Charles Alan Wright. He was former President Richard M. Nixon's lawyer during Watergate.

And Carter was too conservative for her liberal Democratic mother.

"I grew up with the idea that you could still like someone very much and disagree violently," Ms. Wright said in an interview. "We have very lively home discussions."

She noted that all five children in the family became Democrats despite her father's considerable powers of persuasion.

"I think he's pretty much given up that I will ever be with his party," Ms. Wright said. "He's pretty broad-minded for being as conservative as he is."

Her mother will be hosting one of the grassroots parties scheduled to accompany Carter's announcement of his reelection campaign.

Ms. Wright wears the tightly pulled back hair and the conservative suit look of a long-time Washington career woman.

Her office walls are beginning to be cluttered by an assortment of photographs of herself with politicos notables like Carter, Robert Strauss and Democratic National Committee Chairman John White.

During her last semester at Yale, she commuted regularly to Washington to work for a former campaign colleague at the DNC.

In the first edition of the "encyclopedia Britannica" — published between 1768 and 1771 - an article on the curing of diseases in horses ran for 39 pages, while the entry for "woman" stated simply "the female of man."

Whelen First Insurance Agent

WASHINGTON (AP)— The first American life insurance agent was Israel Whelen of Philadelphia.

The American Council of Life Insurance says Whelen began selling life insurance in 1807 on behalf of a London-based company.

It has been found that one person in 20 has an extra rib. The condition is three times more common in men than in women.

Toy Industry Dates Back To 1903

SPACE KNIGHT — Rom, the star of a new Marvel Comics series, is also a new wave-of-the-future toy with his own translator, energy analyzer and neutralizer. Rom stands 13 inches high.

NEW YORK (NEA) — They may look like you. They may feel different. They may do things differently. Today's children? No, their toys.

But, just like the children of 1979, toys have their roots.

The U.S. toy industry marks its 76th anniversary this year, dating back to the first American Toy Fair held in 1903. This year also marks the 76th anniversary of the world's favorite toy, the Teddy Bear, which gave birth to Ideal Toy Corp., one of the nation's largest toymakers.

"Technological advances have changed toys a great deal," explained Abe Kent, past chairman of the Toy Manufacturers of America and 40-year toy industry veteran. "But, their basic appeal has remained constant throughout the years."

Then and now, there were baby dolls, musical toys, competitive games, fashion dolls, personality products, miniature vehicles and even science fiction toys and, of course, there were Teddy Bears.

A late 1903 newspaper cartoon pictured President Theodore Roosevelt sparing the life of a bear cub at a hunting camp in Mississippi. Morris Michtom put two hand-made stuffed bears in the window of his small stationery and novelty store in Brooklyn, along with a copy of the cartoon. Before the day was out, he had offers to buy them. He asked formal permission to name the bear cub after Roosevelt. The President replied: "I doubt if my name will mean much in the bear business, but you may use it if you wish."

As for the other categories ...

A forerunner of today's popular Star Wars toys might be found in Robert The Robot, a 1954 plastic robot whose eyes lighted up and voice boomed out.

Movies, comic strips and, more recently, television, always have been fertile ground for toy companies.

The first true character doll was created by Ideal in 1907. It was an authentic piece of Americana, the Yellow Kid, modeled after a New York Sunday Journal comic strip character who resided in Hogan's Alley and was bedecked in a yellow flour sack nightgown.

Today's remarkably popular Peanuts comic strip has spawned a wide variety of playthings.

Character dolls proliferated until the 1930's when only one place was free from the frightening spectre of the real world — the movies. They became the vehicle of escape for 85 million people every week. No heroine was bigger than a 7-year-old moppet with 56 curls who sang and danced her way into the hearts of America.

The Shirley Temple doll, made in 1934, revolutionized the doll business. After each of Shirley's movies, Ideal released a new doll dressed in the outfit she wore in her latest hit and, at the depths of the Depression, it was the most popular celebrity doll in history.

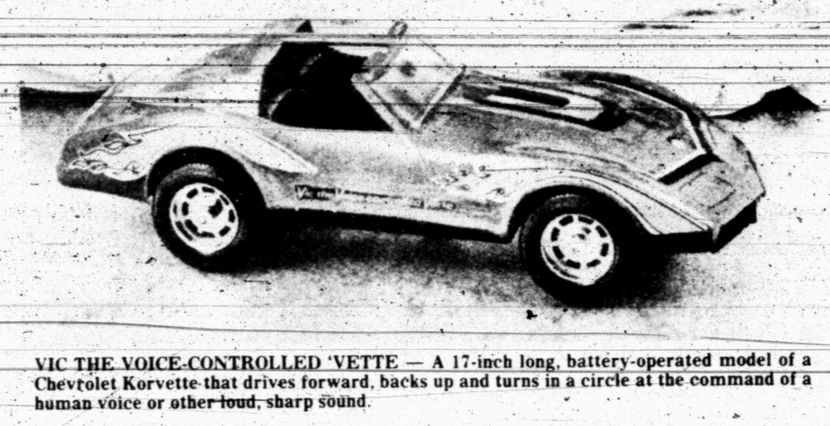

In 1980, Ideal will introduce a new Little Miss Marker doll to tie in with the new version of the movie.

While the medium changes, the appeal does not. So, today's dolls named for the top TV personalfties such as Charlie's Angels, are only the latest in a long line of media personalities to make it big in the doll world. And, still within the world of dolls, there always have been baby dolls. In the early 1900s, most were imported from Germany or Japan. Their heads were of fragile bisque or porcelain and their hard-stuffed bodies were long, unnaturally lean and had no relationship to the actual figures of children. And, they were fragile.

"The basic appeal of a baby doll still is love as exemplified by one of today's biggest sellers, the non-mechanical Snuggles doll, which has a soft body and whose head moves like a real baby's when the string in her back is pulled," Kent said.

"Two of the general categories of playthings which go back to ancient times are games and miniature vehicles," Kent added. "Within the last 15 years, two new game forms have joined the traditionally popular board games epitomized by Monopoly."

"More recently, electronic games have burst on the scene and we are just seeing the beginnings of the kinds of play situations made possible by computer chips adapted for competitive games," he said.

Auto Sales Drop Despite Rebates

DETROIT (AP)—Auto dealers may be in the giving mood as the holidays approach, but Americans still aren't buying.

Despite rebates and other dealer incentives, sales by the nation's five major automakers dropped 21.3 percent in November from a year ago to the lowest levels in five years, automakers said Tuesday.

New deliveries totaled 606,204, compared with 769,855 a year ago. The daily selling rate of 24,248 was the third-lowest of the decade, eclipsed only by the 20,220 in 1974 and 18,131 in 1970.

For the final 10 days of November, sales plunged 23.9 percent from the same period a year ago to 213,910.

General Motors Corp. sales for November were 369,625, down 21.8 percent; Ford Motor Co. was off 24.3 percent to 150,611; Chrysler Corp. fell 32.6 percent to 53,733.

While the Big Three carmakers showed steep declines for the month and the latest period, American Motors Corp. and Volkswagen of America each posted gains.

AMC was up 36.7 percent for the month to 17,482. And Volkswagen, which a year ago did not have its new Pennsylvania plant producing at full capacity, delivered 14,753 Rabbits in November, a 150.4 percent jump.

GM's response Tuesday to its poor sales report was to announce the indefinite layoff of more than 11,000 workers, bringing to 45,560 the number of GM workers facing indefinite furloughs. Industrywide, the figure tops 110,000.

Industry analysts said the car market mirrored the nation's economy by "going sideways."

"there has been little change in market conditions in the past two months," said Gordon B. Mackenzie, Ford sales vice president. "Many potential buyers apparently are deferring vehicle purchases because of temporary economic and world conditions."

Faced with bloated inventories of some 1980 cars and a stockpile of unsold 1979 models, GM and Ford have been offering dealers incentives which may be passed along to buyers. Chrysler, meanwhile, is giving $300 rebates direct to buyers of most models.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are your usual cautious self today and that's not bad, but yield a little should an impromptu invitation pop up. It'll turn out to be super.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Make that little extra push today and a chance conversation will occur that could prove surprisingly beneficial where work or career is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There are lots of opportunities about you today, but they may not come through conventional channels. It'll be up to you to recognize them when they occur.

Snyderite On Connally Panel

Mrs. R.H. Stewart of Snyder has been named to the John Connally for President Steering Committee as announced by State Organization Director Jim Campbell.

She is part of a massive statewide delegation of more than 2,700 citizens who have voiced their approval of Governor Connally's effort.

"We are extremely proud that this outstanding Texan has joined the growing list of persons nationwide who recognize the leadership qualities of John Connally, and the need for that leadership in the White House at this time," Campbell said.

Terre Haute Promises Wild And Crazy Time

By SUSAN J. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)-The trip includes a visit to a local fertilizer plant and a room at the YMCA. But no one's sure if comedian Steve Martin will take advantage of the offer from Terre Haute, Ind., the town Martin has dubbed the most "nowhere" place in America.

Martin is being invited to spend a two day dream vacation in beautiful downtown Terre Haute, a town he described in an interview in the January edition of Playboy magazine.

Terre Haute city fathers are promising a wild and crazy time, to borrow Martin's jargon, starting with the trip to town in one of their local H&D Aviation High Wind Trail Draggers.

The Trail Dragger, by the way, will dust a crop of cantaloupes on the way into the "Queen City of the Wabash."

"We want to show him we're not just another bump in the road," says city spokeswoman Vicki Weger.

In the interview that started it all, Martin was asked what he thought was the most nowhere place in America.

"Terre Haute, Indiana," he responded. "Very little Main Street. And literally not a restaurant with any good food. You'd go into whole towns where it's completely made of fast food. If you were looking for something to buy, there was nothing for sale.

"They say you can always tell that you're somewhere when they have manure ads on TV," Martin said with a laugh.

Well, Terre Haute - population 70,000 - has a sense of humor, too.

For openers, Martin will have use of a 1957 Chevy, for only $7 a day - with unlimited mileage. He can use it to drive to the C.F. Industrial Fertilizer Plant, where city officials have planned a guided tour on his first day.

Martin's suite will be a room at the local YMCA, says Ms. Weger. Meals aren't included at the Y, but city officials say they'll throw in dinner for two at the local Taco Tico.

And so Martin will have something to buy, Terre Haute has come up with a $20 gift certificate he can use at Joan and Bezy's Tractor Sales and Service, plus another $5 gift certificate a Smiley's Jeffy Car Wash, Ms. Weger said.

When the sun goes down, Martin can swing to the rhythmic thum-thum-thum of the washers at the Third Avenue Washeteria, which Ms. Weger describers as "one of the nicest laundromats in the Midwest."

from Terre Haute, he will be given a bucket of chicken to go from the Colonel," said Ms. Weger.

"We're serious about this," she said. "We want him to come back. The city is going all out."

Martin couldn't be reached for a response to the invitation Tuesday. He was appearing in State Line, Nev., a gambling village in the Lake Tahoe basin with a population of under 1,000 - less than one-seventieth the size of the most nowhere place in America.

Disabled Vets May Get Exemptions

Property tax exemptions for Texas veterans with service-connected disabilities and for their surviving spouses were granted by House Bill 546 enacted by the 64th Texas legislature, E.H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, reminded today.

Also eligible are the spouse and minor children of a person who dies while on active duty in the United States Armed Forces. The exemptions apply to taxes levied by the state, a county, city, town, school district, special district, or other political subdivision.

A veteran whose service-connected disabilities are rated less than 10 per cent by the Veterans Administration, or a branch of the Armed Forces, is not entitled to any property tax exemptions.

This law is administered at the local level by the various taxing authorities. Each person must present evidence of eligibility to the tax collectors and must furnish proof of entitlement each year.

Veterans and their dependents who need assistance in veterans affairs may contact Dever's office in the Administration Building at Western Texas College. The office is open each weekday and appointments may be made by calling 573-8511, extension 212.

New Program Planned For Sr. Citizens

Experience Unlimited, a new program to be sponsored by the Scurry County Senior Citizens Center, will be introduced at a coffee at 10 o'clock Thursday morning in the Center.

Mrs. Jean Beasley of Austin, who founded the program and serves as its executive director, will be a special guest at the coffee.

Experience Unlimited is designed to help bring persons over 55 years of age into contact with prospective employers. Locally, RSVP will maintain files of persons interested in working and put employers in contact with them. There is no charge to employers or employees.

Experience Unlimited was started in 1978, Mrs. Gloria Shaw, Senior Center director, said. It now operates successfully in Alice, Austin, Beeville, Corpus Christi, Denison, Lockhart, Rockport and Sherman. Anyone interested in details about the program may call the Senior Center office at 573-0104 during regular hours at the center, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., on weekdays.

Cold Front Blows Across North Plains

By The Associated Press

A fast-moving cold front dragged gale-force winds across the northern Plains and gusts up to 100 mph damaged buildings, scattered big trucks and yanked 23 empty freight cars of a Union Pacific train from their track near Cheyenne, Wyo.

Winds gusting to 100 mph were also reported Tuesday at Boulder, Colo. Wind warnings were posted for areas of Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota and North Dakota, where winds up to 85 mph were recorded.

Gale warnings were also issued for the Great Lakes region.

The system responsible for the windy weather also scattered rain and snow across the northern Rockies and the northern half of Minnesota.

Snow fell over parts of Michigan and a few areas of the Northeast, while rain dampened South Texas.

Overnight temperatures were in the 40s and 50s from Texas to South Dakota, but dipped into the 20s and 30s across the Appalachians to the Atlantic. The central Gulf Coast had readings in the 30s and 40s, and the southern Florida pennisula reported temperatures in the 60s and 70s.

Melons should be served slightly chilled, but not so cold that their subtle flavor is masked. Before serving, they should be cut open and the pulpy mass of seeds scooped out. All ripe melons should be refrigerated and used as soon as possible

In Week's Rating Race...

ABC Jumps To First

NEW YORK (AP)-CBS, winner twice in a row in the networks' prime-time ratings competition, listed seven of the 10 most-watched shows in the week ending Dec. 2, but still lost the race.

ABC, scoring with the week's No. 1 show, "Three's Company," as well as the welterweight boxing championship broadcast Friday evening, No. 12 in the ratings, jumped from third place to first and maintained its slim margin over CBS for the season to date.

ABC, in addition, avoided heavy representation at the bottom of the week's program ratings from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

ABC's rating for the week was 21.1 to 20.2 for CBS and 16.9 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 21.1 percent of the homes in the country with television were watching ABC.

"Three's Company" had a rating of 31.4. Nielson says that means of all the homes in the country with television, that percentage saw at least part of the show.

The Top 10 was composed entirely of continuing series, an unusual configuration. The highest-rated special was the welterweight championship fight between Sugar Ray Leonard and Wilfredo Benitez.

CBS' top show for the week was "60 Minutes," in second place, followed by "M-A-S-H," also on CBS, and "Taxi" from ABC. NBC listed only "Little House on the Prairie" in the Top 10 - No. 10.

"Prime Time Sunday," the NBC newsmagazine which has struggled since the season began to emerge from the bottom of the ratings list, advanced a bit to 52nd place among the 62 shows ranked.

NBC did, however, have three of the week's five lowest-rated programs, "Shirley" in 58th place, the conclusion of the "Beggarman, Thief" two-part movie in 61st and "Eischeid" in 62nd. Two ABC shows, "Marie" and "The Ropers," finished 59-60.

The week's 10 highest-rated shows:

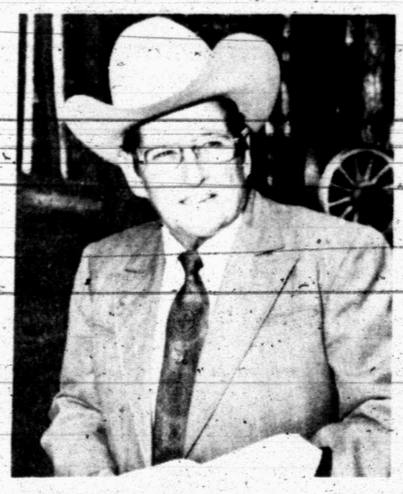

"Three's Company," with a rating of 31.4 representing 24 million homes.

ABC, "60 Minutes," 30.6 or 23.3 million, and "M-A-S-H," 28.8 or 22 million, both CBS; "Taxi," 27.5 or 21 million, ABC; "One Day at a Time," 27.3 or 20.8 million, CBS; "WKRP in Cincinnati" and "Alice," both 27 or 20.6 million, both CBS; "Archie Bunker's Place," 26.4 or 20.1 million, and "The Jeffersons," 26.2 or 20 million, both CBS, and "Little House on the Prairie," 26 or 19.8 million, NBC.

Possible prostate problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm writing to say my husband thinks he has prostate trouble. He's never mentioned this to his doctor. I found out by accident that he has made an electrical instrument. He puts this into his rectum and gives himself a shock. He says they treat prostates this way. Someone told him they gave him electric shock to help him. I don't doubt this but shouldn't this be done by someone who knows what he is doing? I worry that he will injure himself in some way.

DEAR READER — Ouch. That's not the way to treat prostate trouble and it's also dangerous. I think you'd better tell your husband to stop this shocking treatment and get an evaluation by his doctor first to find out if he does have prostate trouble and second, if he does, to get some proper treatment.

Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will give your husband a better understanding of his problem and what can be done about it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read an article on unnecessary procedures and decided to ask you about the validity of the routine episiotomy. Why can't the perineal tissue be left intact allowing for the possibility of tearing but also for allowing for the chance that it remains intact? I can't help but feel that an incision into healthy muscle and nerve tissue is really not beneficial unless the baby's life is somehow in danger.

DEAR READER — It's a good question but I can assure you that it's a necessary procedure in many cases. For those unfamiliar with the term, an episiotomy is a simple incision that's made at the outlet of the birth canal during birth. It's most commonly used in a woman giving birth to her first baby.

Because the tissues have not been stretched before and often are fairly tight, the head of the baby is too large for the opening. All the obstetrician does is make an incision just large enough to allow the baby's head to emerge.

If the tissues are tight and such an incision is not made, the tissues will be torn. The tear can get completely out of control and will quickly rip through the tissues. This can extend into the muscles around the rectum and the woman may be left with real difficulties in controlling her bowels afterward.

It's really an example of intelligent prevention of complications. The small incision is made in an area where it's not likely to interfere with the normal function of the muscles in that part of the body. The uncontrolled tear can occur anywhere and cause a number of difficulties.

The use or need for such preventive measures in the operating room should be left to the good judgment of the obstetrician. During the birth the mother is hardly in any position to provide much intelligent judgment as to whether one should cut or not cut.

Toys Add Fun To Staying At Home

NEW YORK (NEA) — Holiday season 1979 will see more people staying close to home than ever before and America's toymakers are ready with an imaginative assortment of playthings for adults and youngsters alike.

This year's crop of toys and games will bring an abundance of fun into the home and the toy industry will feel little impact from any economic slowdown.

"Even during a recession, toys are usually recession-resistant," notes Al Nordstrom, CBS Toys executive, "as opposed to such items as appliances, stereos, TV's and automobiles ... simply because playthings answer a basic, strong urge to keep children happy."

These trends surfaced earlier this year, observes Nordstrom, when sales of backyard pools and Gym-Dandy home playground gym sets soared while other segments of retailing were feeling the pinch of the energy crisis.

Since Santa's bag will be so full, what can we look forward to this year? "Games will be especially popular," says Nordstrom, "because they give people of all ages opportunity to have fun." Among the strategy board games, old favorites and newer classics including Monopoly, Othello and Touche will remain popular pastimes, while newcomers such as Sudden Death and Uno will draw considerable attention. Action games like Colossal Fossil Fight are family winners and scaled down variations of classic pinball machines will also liven the holiday season. Two recent entries in this category are Pop-Up Pinball and Snoopy's Pound-A-Ball. Some things never go out of style as witnessed by the fact that America's oldest plaything — Raggedy Ann — and the 66-year-old Erector Set are both enjoying sales booms, proving that the generation gap seldom applies to quality toys.

America's fascination with outer space also continues, with Star Wars toys maintaining their popularity. Other intergalactic novelty items haven't managed to match that appeal, but one never knows when or where the next space fad will appear.

Electronic toys, which last year enjoyed tremendous success, will be offered in an even greater variety this year. Still at the top of the "most wanted" list is Simon, with a number of sports games not too far behind. Perhaps the most unusual entry for 1979 is Clip Clop, the first electronic spring horse. This toy electronically reproduces the sound of hoofbeats, snorts and whinnies as the child rides it.

For the public, supplies of the more popular electronic items seem to be in better shape than last year. Shortages in 1978 sent people scurrying from store to store in search of last-minute purchases. Indeed, with more items on the market in 1979, some of the less-popular electronic playthings may see price clearances and close-outs for those who are willing to wait for the last shopping day before Christmas.

For the infant and preschool set, this season promises to be brimful of quality toys. Although families are tending to be smaller these days, there is a higher percentage of first-born children and proportionately more toys are being purchased per child. Nordstrom notes that many of the buyers aren't necessarily the parents, particularly with first-born children, when toys are frequently baby shower gifts.

Whatever the source, today's younger set will enjoy a full range of imaginative playthings, including the Busy Box crib activity toys, Clutch Balls, Keys of Learning, Form Fitters, First Multiplier, toy Sewing Basket and many more.

Overall, the CBS Toys executive says that the industry is producing more quality toys than ever before. "The proportion of poorly made merchandise, much of it imported, is declining every year," states Nordstrom. "As the industry becomes concentrated among fewer, more technologically sophisticated manufacturers, quality will improve to an even greater degree."

Senator Calls For U S Inspection Of Ixtoc I

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-A senator from Connecticut today called for U.S. experts to travel to Mexico for a re-inspection of the blown-out Ixtox I oil well.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., made his request at a joint Congressional hearing on the massive Bay of Campeche spill that became the world's largest.

Weicker said he was concerned that the Mexican government is perhaps overly optimistic about its effort to stop the flow.

He asked that Capt. Charles R. Corbett of the Coast Guard and John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration make the trip.

Corbett proposed that an alternative might be an additional trip of U.S. reconnaissance aircraft in the area. Corbett said he was certain that the flow of crude oil had been reduced to a comparative trickle by the placement of a "sombrero" and the drilling of relief wells.

Corbett said American experts left the site in September when told by the Mexican government that they were no longer needed in the area.

Earlier, R. Tucker Scully of the State Department told senators that the general working relationship with the Mexican government has been excellent.

"Communication channels are good, the mutual interest in mitigation efforts clearly perceive, and coordination of activities taken in an expeditious and effective way," Scully said in a prepared statement.

He said that on another front, the United States and Mexico are moving toward establishment of joint contingency plans for any future oil spills that cross boundaries.

The effort has gone slowly, because most of the officials who would work on a contingency plan have been tied up with the Ixtoc I spill, he said.

Fair Skies Prevail In Texas Today

By The Associated Press

Fair skies prevailed across Texas today, with another mild, late autumn day on tap for the state.

Some high cloudiness was reported in the northwest portion of the state. Rain that dampened the Lower Rio Grande Valley Tuesday ended by daybreak, but some patchy fog remained during the predawn hours.

The forecast called for a few showers along the lower coast, with fair to partly cloudy skies the rule elsewhere.

OBITUARIES

Rainwater

Funeral services for Luther R. (Rusty) Rainwater, of Seminole will be Friday at 10 a.m. in Grace Lutheran Church in Midland with Pastor Donald V. Hafemann officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under direction of Ellis Funeral Home of Midland.

Rainwater, 54, had moved to Seminole six months ago from Midland where he lived many years. He died Tuesday in a Dallas hospital following a lengthy illness.

Born Dec. 30, 1924 in Ira, he graduated from Texas Tech in 1949 and served in the Air Force in World War II and again in 1951-53. He married Mary Ann Krause April 23, 1950 in Pecos. She survives.

Also surviving are one son, Arthur Ray Rainwater of Midland; two daughters, LuAnn Rainwater of Midland and Penny D'Ann Rainwater of Seminole; two brothers, R.C. Rainwater of Robert Lee, W.H. Rainwater of Snyder; two sisters, Mrs. Mildred Browne of Colorado City, Mrs. Thula Whatley of Snyder and one grandchild.

The family requests that memorials be directed to Texas Elks Crippled Childrens' Hospital in Luling or the American Cancer Society.

ENCOURAGING REPORT--United Way campaign leaders look over encouraging reports Tuesday as the drive reached 94 percent of its goal. The latest tabulation accounted for $53,614.05, while the goal is $56,969. They hope to wind it up successfully with a Radio-thon on Dec. 28. From left are Mike Reed, United Way president; Thom Chorn, general campaign co-chairman, and Rodger Sullenger, chairman of the utilities division of the campaign. (SDN Staff Photo)

By Texas Supreme Court...

Obscured Intersection Issue Will Be Decided

AUSTIN (AP)-The Texas Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether a city can be held financially responsible for accidents occurring at intersections where brush, trees and weeds block a driver's view of side street traffic.

It set a Feb. 13 hearing in a case filed against Midland by the parents of a youth who received brain and spinal cord injuries in a June 10, 1976, collision.

A Midland jury found that Calvin Keith Jezek, 16 at the time of the accident, was entitled to $975,000 from the city for his injuries. But the trial judge entered judgment for the city.

The El Paso Court of Civil Appeals agreed with the trial judge and said Midland was not liable for clearing away brush and weeds that obscure the view at intersections.

Jezek was injured in a collision with a pickup truck at Turner Road and GY Lee Road. The truck, approaching from Jezek's left, slammed into Jezek's 1971 Ford Pinto at about 60 miles per hour.

The court of civil appeals cited a 1952 Texas Supreme Court decision that while cities must maintain their streets in safe condition, this does not include keeping a clear side-to-side view at intersections.

"The rule is sound," the appeals court said.

It said the street itself was safe and "it is only when you have another car involved that there is any danger."

Attorneys for Jezek said in their appeal to the Supreme Court, "A blind intersection must, after all, be recognized as a far greater hazard to even the most cautious street user than the pothole in the street surface."

They said a safe street means a street that is safe when normal traffic is present.

"Rather than maintain the streets in question, the city chose to simply sit back and watch accidents occur. It would be a safe statement to say that for the price of Jezek's medical bills alone, the city of Midland could remedy each view-obstructed intersection within its city limits for many years," the appeal says.

Conviction Upheld In Alonso Case

AUSTIN (AP)-The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed today the conviction of Benito Alonzo for furnishing the guns that were used in a 1974 attempted prison break in which four persons died.

Alonzo was sentenced to life in prison because of two prior felony convictions.

Alonzo claimed a written statement he made was inadmissable at his trial because he had been unlawfully arrested. He said the arrest warrant did not give legal reasons for the arrest.

"He gave his confession freely and voluntarily," the court's opinion said. "We hold that appellant's confession was not the result of an exploitation of his unlawful arrest."

Alonzo's written statement, introduced at his trial, said that just before he was released on parole in March 1974, he talked with Fred Carrasco, leader of the escape attempt. Carrasco asked if he wanted to "do some dealing and make some money," and Alonzo said he did.

Lawrence James Hall testified for the state as an accomplice witness. He said during the summer of 1974, Alonzo brought Hall, an inmate trustie, several items, which Hall smuggled into the prison at Huntsville.

Mourning Concert Deaths

CINCINNATI (AP)-Candle-carrying concertgoers returned to Riverfront Coliseum to mourn the deaths of 11 young persons crushed in a rock concert stampede as city officials sought to explain why the accident occurred and how to prevent future disasters.

Politicians, city administrators, police, lawyers and coliseum officials set up committees Tuesday to study the crowd problem that led to the deaths and 22 injuries Monday night as thousands surged into the building for a concert by The Who.

And Mayor John Kenneth Blackwell promised laws requiring only reserved seats, use of more doors and better crowd control at future events. Two rock concerts scheduled at the coliseum later this month were postponed indefinitely.

New Census To Miss Migrants

AUSTIN (AP)—Numerous Texas migrant farmworkers will go uncounted by the 1980 census unless the U.S. Census Bureau changes its ways, a congressional subcommittee has been told.

"A serious undercount will have a devastating economic impact on the already bleak existence of migrant farm workers," Jose Camacho of Texas Rural Legal Aid said Monday.

Country Club To Elect Four

The Snyder Country Club will elect four directors at its annual general membership meeting Thursday night.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

Nominees for the directors' posts are Bill Wilson III, Tom Chorn, Neilan Carter and Herbert Reed.

Hostages Held In Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (AP)-A bank president and his wife were held hostage at their home early today by two armed men who forced the husband to take $100,000 to a drop point.

The money was never picked up, however, and the couple was not harmed.

Central Bank & Trust Vice President Galen McCune said two men forced their way into the home of bank president B.G. Jenkins and his wife, Lometa, shortly after 6 a.m.

"A door was broken out and a window shot out," McCune said, adding the two men were armed with a shotgun and a pistol. One wore a ski mask.

The bank officer said they kept Mrs. Jenkins hostage while ordering her husband to go to the bank and withdraw the money.

FBI agents later found her unharmed, hiding in a closet at her home.

Court Hears Three Cases

Three cases were handled Tuesday in 132nd District Court.

Ignacio Guillen Castillo was sentenced to serve two years in the state penitentiary on a probation revocation.

Castillo, Rt. 3, Box 292, was placed on probation following a drunken driving arrest Dec. 24, 1977. That probation was revoked yesterday because of a subsequent arrest on a driving while intoxicated charge.

Armando P. Martinez, 809 24th St., entered a guilty plea to a DWI charge and drew six months' jail time and a $1,000 fine. He was arrested Sept. 17.

A guilty plea to a DWI charge netted Earnest Forrest, 3005 Ave. N, two years' probation. He had been arrested Oct. 14.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

Two minor traffic accidents were investigated Tuesday by city police.

The first occurred at 1:30 p.m. in the 2600 block of Ave. R and involved a 1976 Oldsmobile driven by Ramona Pena and a 1972 Ford driven by Jenie Benham. It was worked by officer Joe Bob Martinez.

The second wreck, too, was worked by Martinez. It took place in the 2500 block of Ave. R. and involved a 1974 Ford driven by Savina Ramos Rodriguez and a 1977 Chevrolet pickup driven by Delane Doty Benningfield. It was reported at 4:15 p.m.

Felines Control Steers; Ready For Tourney

Snyder girls varsity slammed Big Spring 43-36 to post a 6-2 season record here last evening.

The Tigers, who begin Levelland Tournament play Thursday, fell behind 10-4 in the first period buf were down by only two points at halftime, and took over the final two quarters of the game to secure a sixth victory.

Sandy Sewell scored 18 points for the hosts while Tracey O'Day added 10. Sewell also accounted for seven steals, while Pam Gray and O'Day had nine rebounds apiece.

In other action played here yesterday, Snyder junior varsity whipped Big Spring 57-37, keyed by Michell Townsel's 19 points. Kelly Jones had 9 and Jill Brown added 8.

The victory gives Snyder JV a 5-0 season record.

Thursday, Coach Ken Housden's varisty crew takes on Odessa Permian at noon in the Levelland Tournament.

Other teams competing in the three-day tourney are El Paso Coronado, Abernathy, Lubbock Dunbar, Odessa Ector, Dimmitt, Amarillo, El Paso Bowie, Levelland, Lubbock High and Odessa High.

King Ousts Bunge, 7-5, 6-3

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)-Billie Jean King outlasted Betina Bunge 7-5, 6-3 in the first round of a $100,000 women's tennis tournament.

In other matches, Wendy Turnbull of Australia downed Petra Delhees of Switzerland 6-3, 6-2, and Austrailia's Dianne Fromholtz beat Pam Shriver 5-3, 6-1.

Tigers Snap Lee; Frosh, JV Fall

Snyder's Tigers scored 23 points in the second and fourth quarters here last night to overpower Midland Lee 71-56 in their first home game of the season.

The victory, Snyder's second in a row, gives Coach George Byerly's crew a 3-2 record heading into round-one of the Canyon Reef Tournament which begins here Thursday.

The Tigers jumped out to an 18-8 lead in the first quarter, getting several points off the fast break, and playing solid defense. Midland, which pressed defensively almost all night, made a game of it in the second period, bucketing 22 points, but Snyder came up with 23 of its own to lead 41-30 at the half.

Byerly's bunch led all the way, keeping the margin from eight to 18 points, and stripped the vicitors in the final quarter to take the victory handily. Things did get shaky for a few minutes in the third period when Midland came out and scored the first three points of the second half to make it 41-33. Snyder turned the ball over four or five times in succession, but the Rebels were unable to take advantage and the Tigers quickly regained composure.

Brad Richardson's 26 points paced the hosts. Richardson, a junior, also had five assists and nine rebounds. In all, the Tigers out-rebounded Lee 33-22, and only committed 20 turnovers to Midland's 34. Snyder also had 11 steals.

Kyle Short, captain, and Kris Seale added 12 and 10 points respectively, while Barry Blackmon pitched in nine. Tim Fisher led Lee with 18 points. Tim Walker had 12.

Heads-up play by the Tigers made Lee's press virtually ineffective. Taking the brunt of that chore was senior guard Thomas Selmon, who came off the bench to out-quick the defense.

"Thomas did a tremendous job in helping break their press," confirmed Byerly. "I think he'll be a real asset to us anytime the press is used against us."

The win was an important one for the Tigers, who are basically a young team this year, and learning a new system under Byerly.

"It was a momentum builder. Coming out of the Lee game with a victory will give us momentum against Borger. They (Borger) are certainly one of the favorites in the tournament, and we're glad to be playing them," added the coach.

Borger has been the preseason pick to win District 1-3A this season. The Bulldogs are staffed with size, including two players 6-6 and another 6-5.

The game will be held 3 p.m. Thursday in Snyder High School gym.

In other contests here last night Lee defeated both Snyder's junior varsity and sophomores.

Snyder JV fell 69-45. Nolan Richardson scored 20 points for Snyder while Tommy Gressett added 7. In the first game of the evening Lee stopped the hosts 87-41. Kitchens and Escobedo led Snyder with 9 and 8 points each.

White Leads AP All-American Selections For '79

By The Associated Press

A backfield that accounted for 8,677 yards, and includes running backs Charles White and Billy Sims, the last two Heisman Trophy winners, highlights The Associated Press 1979 All-America college football team.

White, of Southern California, led the nation in rushing and wound up the regular season as the second leading ground-gainer in college football history.

Joining White on the team for the second year in a row are Sims, the Oklahoma flash who won the 1978 Heisman, and center Jim Ritcher of North Carolina, winner of the 1979 Outland Trophy.

Other repeaters from the 1978 team are defensive end Hugh Green of Pittsburgh and defensive backs Kenny Easley of UCLA and Johnnie Johnson of Texas. George Cumby, a first-team pick in 1977 who didn't make it last year, also became a two-time All-American.

Joining White and Sims in the backfield are Marc Wilson, Brigham Young's record-setting quarterback, and George Rogers of South Carolina, the nation's No. 2 rusher.

Junior Miller of Nebraska is the tight end while Ken Margerum of Stanford is the wide receiver. The interior line consists of Ritcher, tackles Jim Bunch of Alabama and Greg Kolenda of Arkansas and guards Brad Budde of Southern Cal and Ken Fritz of Ohio State.

The rest of the defensive unit is composed of end Jacob Green of Texas A&M, tackles Steve McMichael of Texas and Jim Stuckey of Clemson, middle guard Ron Simmons of Florida State, linebackers Ron Simpkins of Michigan and Mike Singletary of Baylor and back Mark Haynes of Colorado.

Nastase Upset At WCT Cup

MONTREAL (AP)—Tim Gullikson upset three-time champion Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-1, 2-6, 6-4 in opening-round play of the $325,000 World Championship Tennis Challenge Cup.

In the other opening-round matches of the eight-man round-robin tournament, Sweden's Bjorn Borg beat Johan Kriek of South Africa 6-4, 6-2, and Hans Gildemeister of Chile beat Pat DuPre 6-3, 6-3.

Reef Meet Begins At SCC Thursday

The annual Canyon Reef Basketball Tournament, one of the largest and most competitive high school cage meets in West Texas, will be held in Scurry County Coliseum beginning Thursday.

The tournament, in its 25th year, will actually take place at the coliseum and Snyder High School on the first day, due to some previously scheduled college games held in the larger arena Thursday evening.

Tickets for the three-day tournament are $2 adults and $1 students' general admission, $2.50 for a day-pass, and $5 for the entire tournament (tournament pass).

The day-pass will allow fans to come and go at will all day, and will be good for games at the high school and coliseum.

At least six teams have been listed as favorites to win the 16-team tournament. Borger, Mineral Wells, Lubbock Monterey, Odessa Permian, San Angelo Central and Snyder have all been tagged by area coaches as possible winners.

The tourney opens at 11 a.m. Thursday, in the coliseum, as Lubbock Monterey takes on Sweetwater. At 12:30 Permian plays Canyon, followed at 2 by Abilene High and Abernathy, and at 3:30 by Mineral Wells and Abernathy.

San Angelo High and Lubbock Estacado tip things off at the high school gym, at noon. El Paso High and Pecos will play in the second game at 1:30, followed by Snyder and Borger at 3 and Big Spring and Fort Worth Haltom at 4:30.

All Friday games will be held at the coliseum, and begin at 9 a.m. with the Permian-Canyon loser taking on the Monterey-Sweetwater loser. Final game Friday will pit the Big Spring-Haltom victor against the Snyder-Borger winner at 7:30.

Saturday's games will also be held at the coliseum, with the exception of four loser's bracket contests which will take place at the gym. Consolation finals are slated for 4:30 p.m. Saturday and will be followed by a third-place deciding game at 6, and the championship tilt at 8. All will be at the coliseum.

Mineral Wells is the defending champion. Lubbock Estacado won the Reef crown two years ago. Snyder, the host team, has been second place finisher both years, while El Paso has taken third both times.

Jones Will Try Wallace

DALLAS (AP)-Former Dallas Cowboy defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones, who has been unimpressive in compiling a 3-0 professional boxing record, will meet Jim Wallace of Tucson, Ariz., renowned as a kick-boxing expert, Friday night Dec. 14, in Memorial Auditorium here.

Wallace had a 10-1 record as an amateur boxer, and is 5-2 with five kayoes as a heavy-weight in the pro ranks.

The bout is scheduled for six rounds.
