

Bureaus back in business of battling budget

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is back in business and President Reagan's running budget battle with Congress is on hold after approval of a revised emergency spending measure.

"Of course, we now must come back and do the work all over again in the Congress on a bill that can be signed," Reagan said Monday night after he signed the stopgap spending bill, which expires Dec. 15.

Shortly afterward, Reagan left the White House for his California ranch, a Thanksgiving vacation that had been delayed a day because of the budget impasse.

In a telephone call from Air Force One, Reagan told the Republican Governors Association meeting in New Orleans that the battle with Congress had been "a game of chicken, and someone just had to bring it to a halt."

Reagan's acceptance of the new measure ended a confrontation with Congress that led to the president's first veto and the layoffs of hundreds of thousands of federal employees.

The president's supporters in Congress said the episode was fresh evidence of Reagan's resolve to slash federal spending. But furious Democratic leaders said the skirmishing that left the government technically insolvent for nearly 67 hours was only "a charade."

Reagan believes "there is a lot more work to be done," said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes. "He's looking forward to working with Congress when he returns."

On Monday morning, Reagan vetoed a $428 billion emergency spending bill, expiring July 15, that a bitterly divided Congress had sent him late Sunday night. The House then voted 367-36 for a Republican-drafted compromise that expires Dec. 15 — as Reagan had requested.

The measure Reagan signed simply extended the interim spending legislation that expired at midnight Friday.

Democrats had wanted to extend interim spending authority through

Feb. 3, but the Republican plan was substituted on a vote of 221-176.

Then the measure sailed through the Republican-controlled Senate 88-1, with only Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of California voting against it.

Reagan actually gained little from the confrontation in his efforts to hold down spending.

Congressional officials said that on an annual basis, the measure Reagan signed calls for about $27.3 billion less in spending authority than the measure Reagan vetoed. But $25 billion of that would come from defense, where Reagan wants to spend more money, and only $2.3 billion from domestic accounts, where he wants to spend less.

And the bill will remain in effect only for about three weeks.

With Reagan's signature, normal government operations were resumed.

Reagan said the measure he vetoed and his order to close "non-essential" offices and send an estimated 400,000 federal workers home were necessary because the bill was fiscally ruinous, paving "the way for higher interest rates and inflation, and a continued loss of investment, jobs and economic growth."

House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said that from the president's viewpoint the issue was "how do I really make my point that I'm serious about this."

Democrats scoffed.

"The president wanted to have an occasion to call us 'budget-busters,'" Cranston said.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said Reagan could have had anything he wanted, but he chose the simple extension of spending authority for political reasons.

"I think it's clear that the president has the majority in both the House and the Senate to get what he wants, if only he'd say what he wants.... But it's his plan to keep the focus on the budget and the deficit, and blame it on the Democrats," Gephardt said.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., a harsh critic of Reagan all year, leveled his most pointed remarks to date, accusing the president of sheer political showmanship.

Good Day,

Services Administration of which

Their AIM — an auditorium

Midland, which during an economic slump a decade ago turned down a bond issue for a Midland Civic Center, may have a chance for another option on a proposed Performing Arts Center.

Groundwork toward that goal was aired Monday, when Paula Cahoon, spokeswoman for the single-purpose AIM Inc. — Auditorium in Midland, briefed Midland County commissioners on the proposal for a $7 to $12 million Performing Arts Center and solicited $10,000 toward a $28,500 study to justify or nullify the plan.

"I think it's an outstanding thing," County Judge Bill Ahders told Mrs.

Cahoon and her cohorts, Mary Alice Knox and former Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. "and I fully support it."

AIM today was to seek from the city of Midland another $10,000 for the study, to be conducted by Economic Research Associates (ERA) of San Francisco, Calif., and will contribute the balance for study. Assuming the ERA study recommends the PAC for Midland, AIM will publish a brochure designed to promote its cause and to win over supporters to help finance the venture.

The PAC, which could be located in downtown Midland, would have a capacity for 2,000 to 2,500 patrons, would have acoustical and visual features not afforded in auditoriums and halls in Midland and would be operated and maintained either by the city of Midland or Midland County.

"Well," Mrs. Cahoon asked rhetorically in touting her cause, "why can't the (Midland-Odessa) Symphony perform in Chaparral Center?" Her response was that the Midland College center is "too large" for such undertakings and has "no acoustical attention."

Mrs. Cahoon noted that the ERA study would discern Midland's demographic background and projections, assess needs for the cultural center, evaluate local facilities, and determine if the community would support a venture.

Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis noted that studies "always come up short due to growth."

Angelo agreed.

"Practically everything that's been done in Midland in the past 10 to 15 years has been smaller than the ultimate growth," Angelo said.

Davis noted that "back in the '40s, the people of Midland would not support" a more general auditorium but that the citizenry of Odessa did. The result materialized in the 1950ish Ector County Coliseum.

In the AIM spiel before the Commissioners' Court, Angelo noted funds for the center would be solicited from the private sector. However, he recognized that privately-donated funds

Community caught between Midland, Odessa councils

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Like an orphan seeking a home and caught in the fight between two sets of interested parents, developers of a planned community between Odessa and Midland Regional Airport felt the tug-of-war Monday morning as the Midland and Odessa city councils pulled in opposite directions to gain control of the entire subdivision. By the end of the three-hour meeting, the two cities asked the developer to work out a compromise.

Scene of the battle was the Midland Chamber of Commerce conference room as the two councils met in a joint session to resolve the jurisdiction question and discuss problems of providing public transportation.

Caught in the middle of the tug-of-war is HBF Corporation, which is planning Mission Country Club, a development which straddles the Extra-Territorial Jurisdiction line that divides ruling domain of the sister cities. Representatives of that company had presented the problem to both city councils during their separate meetings Oct. 13 and asked the two to decide which was to take jurisdiction over the development.

ESSENTIALLY, HBF Corporation wants one city to be responsible for providing water and sewer service, fire and police protection and other city services, rather than splitting it between the two. And the city preferred, according to President Larry Bell, is Odessa.

Although the development would lie entirely within Midland County, HBF proposed the ETJ line be moved eastward around the subdivision and Odessa be allowed to annex it.

Harrell Feldt, attorney for HBF Corporation, suggested the two communities "join hands" and find a way for the proposed development to become a reality. Mission Country Club is being carved out of a portion of the 10,000-acre Faudree Ranch.

Noting the proximity of Midland Regional Airport, Feldt stressed that Midland must retain control of that facility.

But he added that the subdivision lies about one mile from the Odessa city limits while it is situated about three miles from the edge of Midland next to the airport. "It wouldn't be appropriate for Midland taxpayers to pay an enormous amount of financial responsibility to get utilities to this area when it can be done more economically by Odessa," Feldt added.

Bell said a decision over the jurisdiction needs to be made quickly as the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation wants to know where crossover roads will be located. The new North Route between the two cities, to be known as Highway 191, will cross through the subdivision. Deadline on giving that information to the Highway Department had been Dec. 1, he said.

IN EXPLAINING Mission Country Club, Bell said it would be "a prime development of a first class nature. It's the kind of housing needed in this area with a higher density type of construction."

The highest density will lie toward the west side, or closer to Odessa. However, it sets entirely within Midland County. While the city of Odessa would gain those taxes from the $12 to $20 million development, it will be Midland County, Midland College, Midland public schools and the Midland hospital district that also will gather taxes on this subdivision.

Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community development for Midland, suggested the ETJ line not be changed at this time, but allow Odessa to annex that subdivision and then change the line after annexation.

In addition, Hennessy said his department hadn't had time to study noise effects from the airport or if the development lies sufficient distance from the flight paths.

Answering that was Daniel Brents with 3D/International, the planning firm which laid out Mission Country Club. Pulling out maps which showed the airport and flight paths in relation to the subdivision, he noted that the planes will go over the northern edge where nothing is planned at this time. And because of the airport, the higher density residential area was planned for the west side.

AND FELDT INFORMED the group that a state statute forbids one municipality from annexing past the ETJ line of another, which is why the line must be moved first. "I'm concerned that you can't do it, even if everyone is willing," he added.

Fred Baker, director of public utilities for the city, maintained that Midland could provide adequate utility services to the development, even after Bell said it would require large water and sewer lines.

Midland currently is considering a plan to install main sewage lines from the airport terminal area to the sewer.

Modern Thanks giving might come as surprise to Pilgrims

By STEVE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — The Pilgrims and Indians who celebrated the first Thanksgiving 360 years ago might be shocked to see how the holiday is celebrated in modern America.

For one thing, the original event likely took place in October — not November. And the main dish was probably venison, not turkey.

"The Pilgrims would have been horrified to hear it called Thanksgiving," said Jim Baker, research librarian for Plymouth Plantation, an exhibit depicting Pilgrim life in the 1600s.

"A Thanksgiving was one of three allowable church holidays on the calendar, a very specifically defined event. It was a declared holiday to go to church all day. It was like a sabbath, with no games or recreation."

"The whole thing (today) would have struck them as kind of odd," Baker said. "First you can't have a harvest in New England in late November. Second, it's a secular event."

Laurence Pizer, director of the Pilgrim Society here, says the first celebration apparently took place in mid-October of 1621.

When 102 weary passengers of the British ship Mayflower landed in Plymouth — originally spelled Plymouth — on Dec. 21, 1620, they didn't realize how tough it would be to establish the first successful colony in the New World.

Half of them died during the first terrible winter, but in the spring they met Squanto, the last surviving member of the Patuxet Indian tribe, which had been wiped out by a plague.

They learned to plant corn, catch herring for fertilizer and tap maple trees for sap.

The colony thrived during the first summer. Grateful for a plentiful harvest, Gov. William Bradford called for a celebration.

"Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a special manner, rejoice together after we had gathered the fruits of our labors," Edward Winslow, assistant governor for the colony, wrote to a friend in England.

He said the 50 Pilgrims invited the Wampanoag Indians to join them, and Chief Massasoit brought 90 braves and five deer with him. The festival lasted until the food ran out — at least three days.

Besides venison, they feasted on turkey, cod, sea bass, wild fowl, pumpkin, squash, Jerusalem artichoke, beach plums, beans and corn.

Despite the success of the first festival, the Pilgrims and Indians were not back for a harvest bash the next year.

For some, Thanksgiving means a long weekend

With the Thanksgiving holiday beginning for many businesses at the end of the regular day on Wednesday, some employees will be back at work on Friday while others will be able to enjoy a long weekend.

The U.S. Postal Service will operate on a normal holiday schedule on Thursday, according to Midland Postmaster D.E. Holster. There will be no residential, business or rural delivery provided. No mail will be boxed and no window service will be provided.

Special Delivery and Express Mail Service, including the delivery of perishables, will continue. Holiday schedules will be maintained in collecting mail from collection boxes.

There is a self-service postal unit located in the lobby of the Main Post Office, 100 E. Wall St., which is open 24 hours a day for customer convenience.

Even though city offices will be closed on Thursday and Friday, emergency services will continue, according to James Brown, city manager. Water and sewer representatives will be on 24-hour call throughout the holiday weekend.

Animal shelter employees will enjoy a long weekend, as their holiday begins at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday and will continue until the shelter opens at 9 a.m. Monday.

The Air Terminal office will be closed during the weekend, while the parking lot and terminal will remain open. The office will resume regular business hours at 8 a.m. Monday.

The one-day Thanksgiving holiday for employees of Midland banks will begin at 3 p.m. Wednesday. Banks will open again at 8 a.m. Friday.

Students in the Midland Independent School District will enjoy a long weekend beginning after class dismissals on Wednesday. Schools will re-open at their regular times on Monday.

Midland College students will begin their holiday at 5 p.m. Wednesday. Classes will resume as usual Monday morning.

County discusses transporting prisoners

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners, who lately have a penchant for keeping boredom out of their routine meetings, on Monday tossed around ways and means of transporting prisoners across county and pondered over whether or not to turn the Midland County Jail into a medical clinic.

Sheriff Dallas Smith offered the commissioners a money- and time-savings proposal on transporting prisoners by air — by the Florida-based Air Transport Security, which would secure and haul a prisoner over the country for $55 per 100 miles of air travel.

Smith, a pilot, indicated that he was favorably impressed with the rate. "Even if they (ATS) operate with full seats all the time, I don't see how they can do it," the sheriff said.

"I don't see how economically they can make a successful business out of this deal."

ATS, operated by Bob Calvert of Titusville, Fla., flies twin-engine corporate-type piston-powered aircraft which seat between six and eight passengers.

A study suggested that the ATS would cost about 15 percent less than the cost of assigned deputies accompanying prisoners on flights via airlines.

"We try to base these trips on the most economical way to go...and in less time," Smith told the commissioners.

Unlike the commercial airlines, ATS would shackle and handcuff in-flight prisoners. Federal Aviation Administration safety rules prohibit the handcuffing or otherwise shackling of people in custody.

COUNTY ATTORNEY J. Scott Henderson, as had his predecessor, Robert Rendall, saw no immediate legal problems with the plan.

"I think the idea is great if we can get around the liability," Henderson said.

The commissioners' jailhouse talk shifted from transporting prisoners to monitoring their heartbeats via an electrocardiograph (EKG), which the commissioners had approved earlier this year. The commissioners had agreed to purchase a used EKG from Dr. Patrick Leung for $600. But Dr. Leung, who is retained as the county's jailhouse physician who twice weekly makes jail calls, has decided that the deal might appear improper due to the physician's role with the county, the sheriff said.

Earlier, Dr. Leung said he would purchase a new EKG for his office.

But not all of the commissioners were convinced that the jail should be equipped with an EKG in the first place.

"Now, why does the county jail need an EKG machine?" asked C. DeWayne Davis, who said the presence of the diagnostic tool in jail would be "hard to justify, for whatever reason, and if they (prisoners) have got a heart problem, that's something else."

COUNTY JUDGE BILL Ahders noted that people booked into jail generally complain of medical problems — real or not — which heretofore may have gone unattended.

"Every person that comes to jail has (medical) problems," the judge said.

The commissioners wondered who would operate the EKG, the physician or a jailer schooled in monitoring the machine.

"Well," said Davis, "the doctor's not necessarily the best man to operate it; not always."

The commissioners speculated that operation of the machine by a deputy, or someone other than an EKG-skilled physician or nurse might be "putting yourself in a liability position."

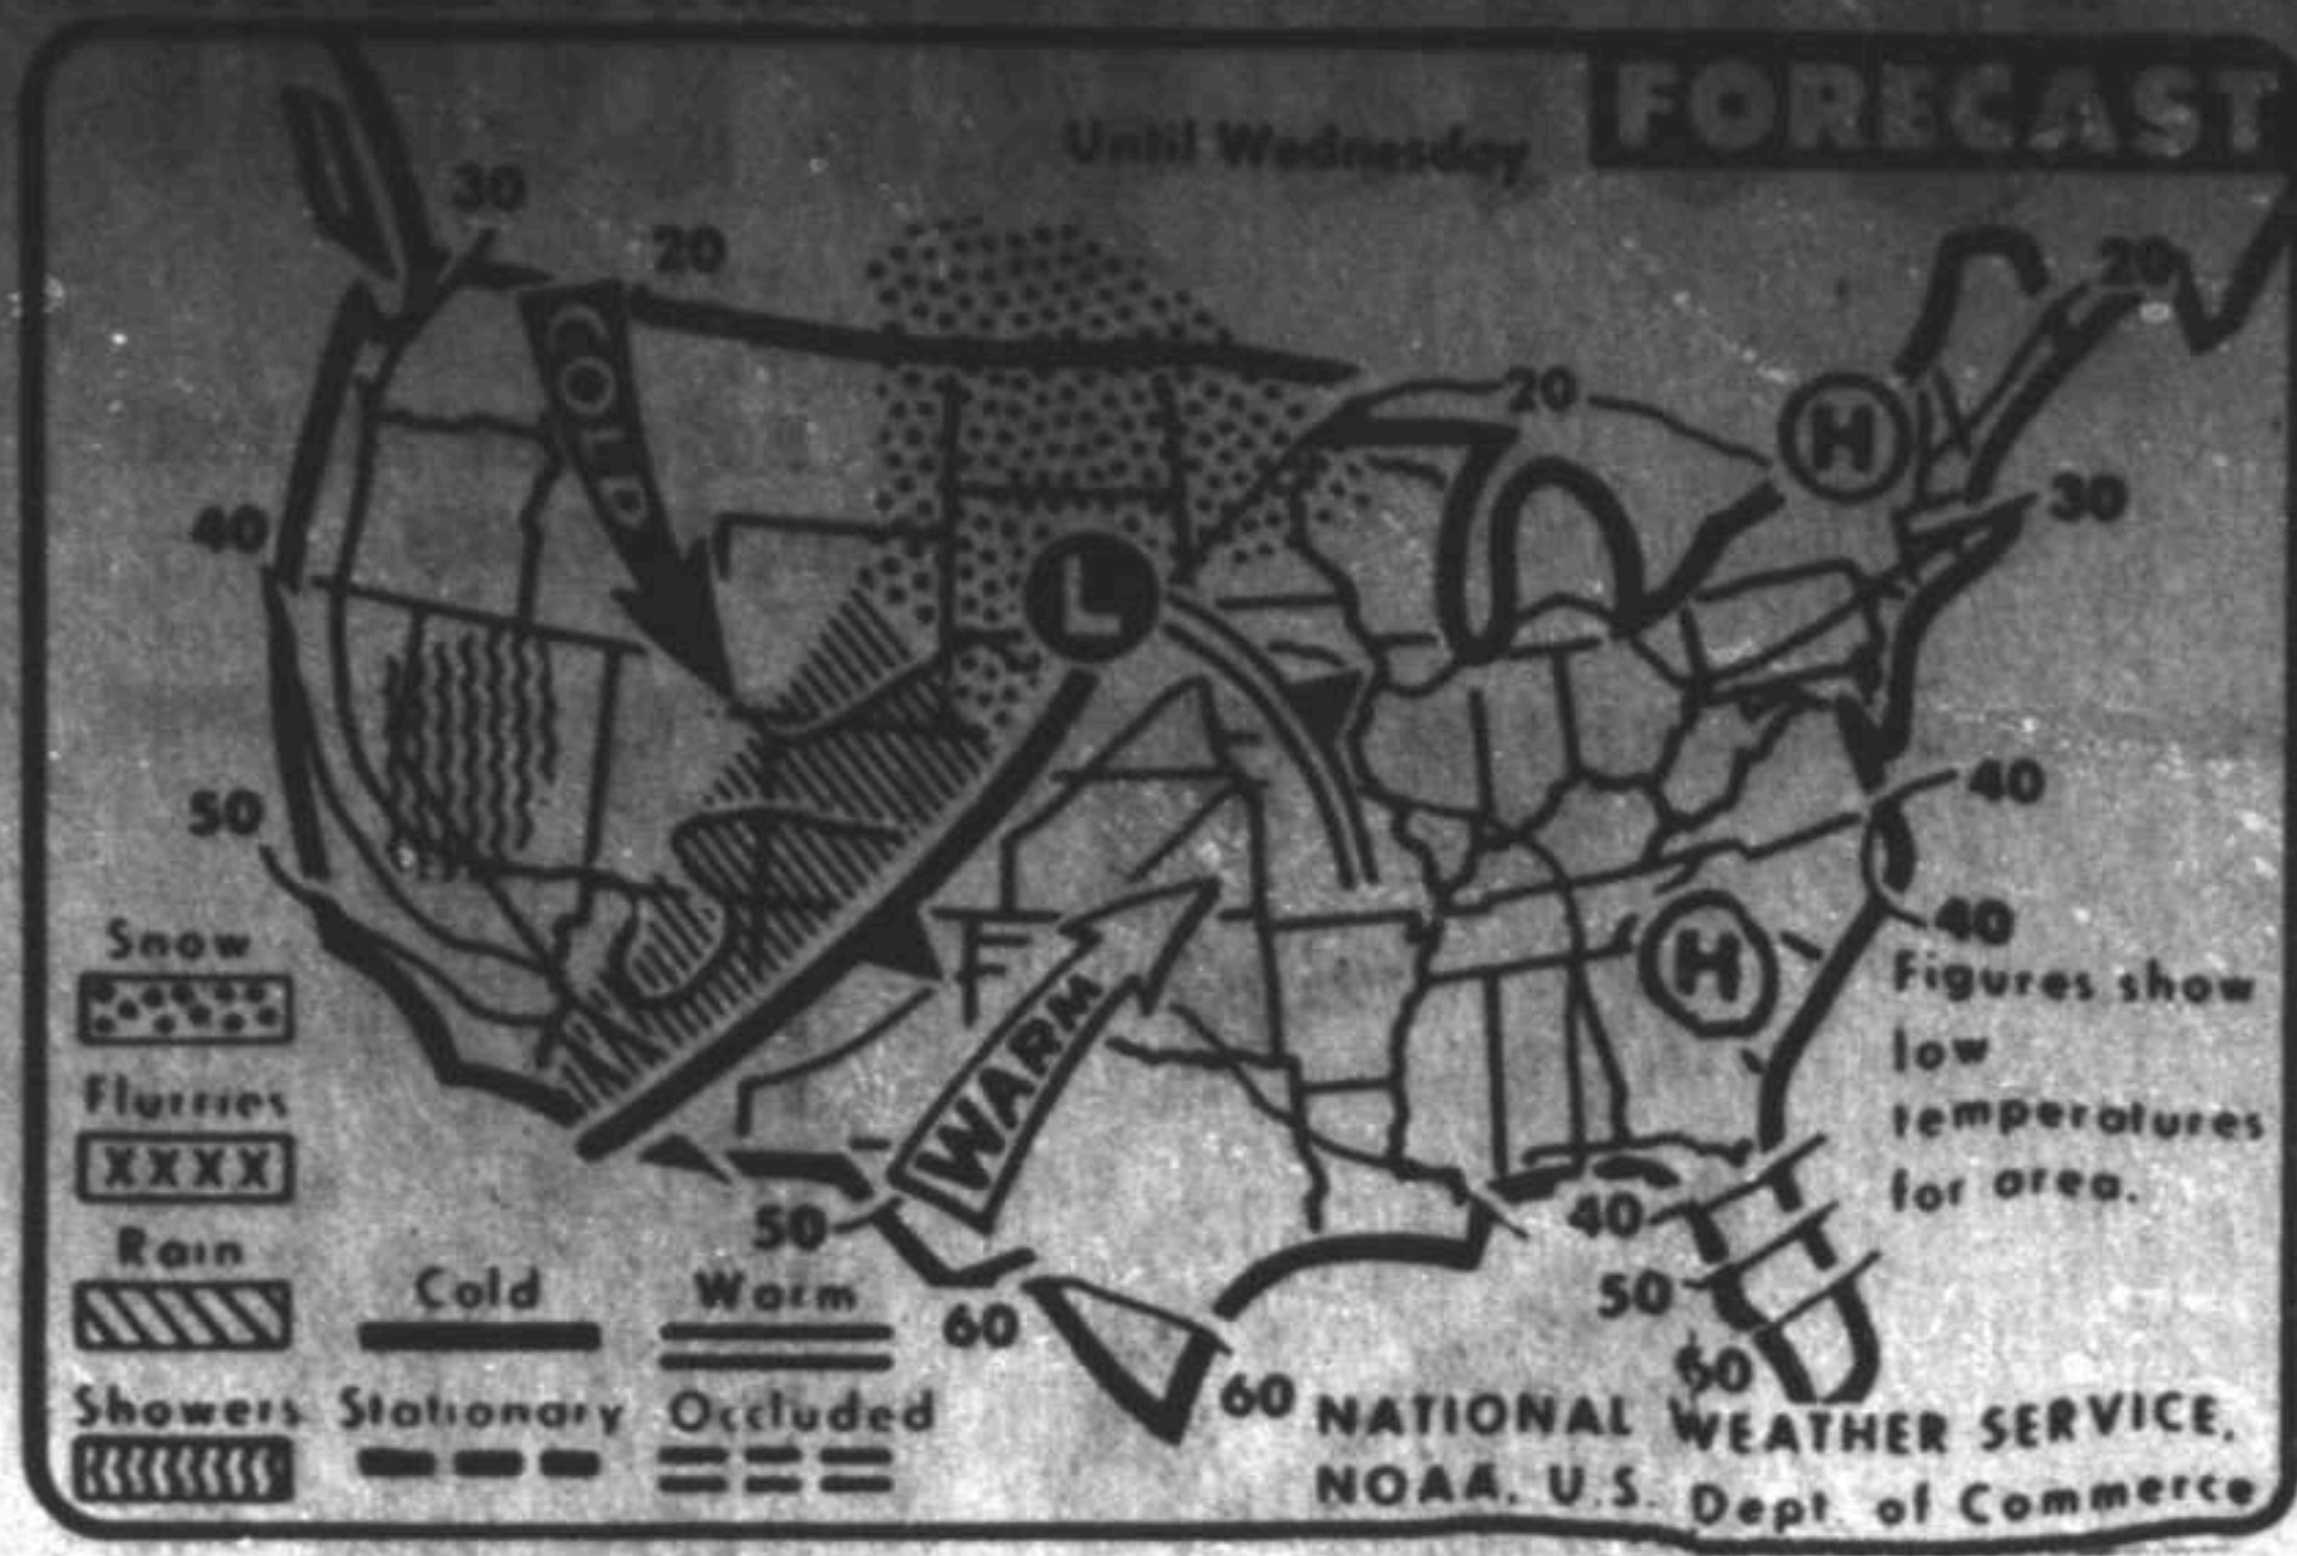

Finally, Davis implied that the jail might not be a fitting place for the machine.

"If he (an inmate) has got heart problems, he's in the wrong place to begin with."

"I DON'T KNOW nothing about EKG equipment," said the sheriff, who offered this advice to the commissioners:

"I think you've got to determine if you're going to set up a diagnostic clinic upstairs (in the jail) or an emergency room."

In other business, the commissioners approved $11,335 in overtime pay to deputies. The extra pay covers a two-month period.

Rain is expected from Arizona to the central Plains changing to snow in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Warm weather is forecast for Texas.

(Watching) football weather on way

Although unseasonably warm temperatures have reigned for several days, the outlook for Thanksgiving appears less than idyllic.

The National Weather Service expects cooler temperatures and overcast skies that may result in rain — perfect conditions for staying indoors and watching Dallas and Chicago square off.

Fair and warm conditions will precede Thanksgiving, however, with the low tonight in the upper 40s and the high Wednesday in the mid-80s. Southerly winds should be 5-10 miles per hour tonight and 10-15 mph Wednesday.

Monday's high was 71, considerably below the record for the date of 84 set in 1965, while the low of 35 was light years above the icy 10 degree mark which Midlanders suffered through in 1938.

Shooting death ruled accidental

No charges will be filed against a 15-year-old youth in last week's shooting death of Ray Grissett, 15, of Route 2, Midland.

Grissett, a student at Greenwood Junior High, was shot in the head about 4 p.m. Friday in a house seven miles east of Midland on U.S. Highway 80. He died 13 hours later in Midland Memorial Hospital.

According to a Sheriff's Department spokesman this morning, it was an accidental shooting and the unidentified 15-year-old, a fellow student of Grissett's, will not be prosecuted.

said guns, jewelry, camera equipment and assorted other items valued at $14,060 were taken in a daylight burglary of his residence Monday. Entry was gained by prying the front door.

An employee of Chaparral Stables, on Bluebird Lane near the polo club, told officers two saddles were stolen sometime Sunday. The loss was placed at $1,200.

Others include apparel sales, housekeeper, commercial cleaner, counter attendant, dining room attendant, dishwasher, janitor, waitress, auto mechanic, service station attendant, construction workers, heavy equipment mechanic and operator, laborer, machinist, maintenance mechanic, painter, plumber, roofer, tractor-trailer truck driver/mechanic and arc welder.

Midland jobless rate 5.3%

With Midland's total civilian labor force reaching an all-time high of 55,500 for October, unemployment in Midland is now at 5.3 percent, according to statistics compiled by the Texas Employment Commission.

That's a drop of one-tenth of a percentage point from the September figure, but up from the 3.7 percent figure recorded in October 1980.

It places Midland 12th out of 25 cities participating in the TEC's labor market review, with San Angelo having the lowest unemployment figure, 3.4 percent. Odessa is fifth with 3.8 percent and Lubbock places seventh with 4.1 percent.

One year ago, the total civilian workforce was 50,000, with unemployment at 1,850.

Man arrested for arms deal

From Staff and Wire Reports

HOUSTON — Former Midlander Joe Collins voluntarily surrendered to face charges he and a suspected Canadian gunrunner conspired to sell 337 tons of military arms to undercover agents posing as revolutionaries plotting to overthrow a Central American government.

Collins, 37, ended a four-day search by U.S. Treasury agents Monday when he appeared before U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley. Bond was set at $50,000.

Prosecutors said Collins, an independent oil and gas land broker from Houston and formerly from Midland, and Ronald Mertens, 31, of Ottawa, Canada, offered to sell agents about $3 million worth of military hardware loaded on a ship off the Central American coast. Mertens, who was arrested last Thursday outside a Houston motel, remained jailed in lieu of $1 million bond.

Collins' attorney, Percy Foreman, argued his client was trying to sell helicopters for a legitimate client when an undercover agent approached him in a federal "sting" operation.

"He was asked if he could get some guns. All he did was introduce (the agent) to a fellow who said he had some guns," Foreman said.

The list of weapons included 500 machine guns, millions of rounds of ammunition, 12,000 hand grenades and 25 mortars, M-16 rifles.

A preliminary hearing was scheduled Wednesday morning.

Community caught between councils age treatment plant southeast of the city. Serving the subdivision would involve extending those lines, Baker said. He estimated cost of extending utility lines to be $2.3-2.4 million.

He conceded that Midland has a "problem of disposing of the effluent at the airport."

But Odessa City Manager Kerry Sweat noted that Odessa's lines already are a mile from the subdivision and can begin providing service as the developers request it.

The loudest opponent to allowing Odessa to take jurisdiction was Midland Councilman Tom Sloan.

"I see it as a fine project," he said. "We can provide water as soon as you need it, if the pipe is available in eight to nine months. All I see here is Midland giving up something to Odessa. That line can be moved in two directions."

AS THE ARGUMENTS progressed and neither side appeared to be coming to a concession, attorney Feldt pleaded, "We're caught by golly right square in the middle. It would be awful for this thing to fail because we can't get the line straightened out. For gosh sakes, let's don't rear back and be bulls about it; try to help us."

Continuing, he noted that in order for Midland to take the entire jurisdiction, "you have to spend a tremendous sum of money. We're ready to go now."

The Midland contingent admitted that the planned utility lines to the airport would cost more than $12 million and depend upon passage of a bond issue.

To that, Bell reminded the council of a bond election a few years ago in which "things grossly needed were turned down. That's not a good business risk for me" to wait for the outcome of the bond election. If it failed, there would be no lines going to the airport, thus the subdivision couldn't hook on to it. "I would be hopeful the citizens of Midland would recognize the need for services to the airport and respond favorably. But I can't take that risk."

And looking at the time factor involved in calling a bond election, Bell said, "If we have to wait three to five years, this development may never happen."

AS SLOAN repeatedly stated that Midland would be getting nothing in return for giving up its jurisdiction over that subdivision, Odessa Councilman Houston Seabolt interjected, "Would you like us to pay you for it, Mr. Sloan?"

But who is giving and getting what wasn't the subject of the meeting, piped in Bell. "We're asking you to come up with something practical that will benefit everyone. If the money were available and the water, I'd go out there and build Faudreesville," and not be bothered by either Odessa or Midland. "But that's not practical," Bell said of his idea.

At this point, more than two hours into the meeting, Feldt called for a time out. As members of both councils milled about the room, Feldt conferred with the mayors of both cities.

Ten minutes later, the meeting resumed with Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins commenting, "Anybody would be naive to think there's not a certain amount of freedom or pride in the jurisdiction we have. To move that line must be done with a great deal of consideration. Certainly, the development is in greater proximity to Odessa and its services. The development has merit, but it needs thought given to other possibilities. I'm not ready to hold up my hand to vote."

ADDING THAT "something needs to be proposed that is palatable to both parties," Akins instructed the HBF Corporation people to come up with a solution by both councils' Dec. 15 meetings.

Bell said that he believes a solution can be worked out by then.

Afterward, Odessa Mayor Bob

Bryant commented, "We're ready to provide services immediately. If the situation was reversed, I think the Odessa council would agree to move the line. But there are some politics involved in things like this."

The other item on the agenda dealt with mass transportation, and Bryant said the council had been approached by some people to start up a system in Odessa. "We need to know its problems and if it will take more time than we have to give it."

MidTran is Midland's public transportation system that has been operating since 1980. Akins said from the standpoint of social service, "it's giving transportation to people who had none. A survey showed a tremendous number of people who could get jobs but had no transportation to get there."

He outlined MidTran as a Catch-22 situation in which Midland has been lacking enough equipment to serve the demand.

Jim Johnson, director of MidTran, said there is no public transportation system in the country which operates at a profit. "It's a social service, and it's needed like the fire department or police department."

Before starting a system, he suggested the Odessa council commission a survey to study how much of a demand there is for public transportation before sinking money into it.

Brezhnev offers to reduce Soviet nuclear weapons

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev offered to reduce the number of Soviet medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe if the United States suspended its missile deployment plans while the two superpowers negotiate.

The offer, made in a speech Monday night during a dinner given by Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, was a variation on a 1979 proposal rejected by the United States and its North Atlantic allies.

The 74-year-old Soviet leader offered to go a step further if the United States and NATO declared a moratorium on their plans to begin stationing 572 American Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe in the fall of 1983.

"As a gesture of good will, we could unilaterally reduce a portion of our nuclear weapons of medium range in the European part of the U.S.S.R.," Brezhnev said.

He said this reduction would be "an advance on account, with the idea of moving toward a lower level upon which the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. could concur" in the negotiations that began Monday in Geneva.

might not be equal to the money needed for a grandiose PAC.

"If that's the case, some governmental body would be called on to call a bond issue" to make up the difference, said Angelo, who expressed optimism over that approach.

"There's no reason why Midland County and Midland city can't get together on these projects," Davis said in alluding to an upswing in harmony and a cooperative spirit between the city and county governing bodies.

"I see a lot of improvement (in that regard)," said Angelo.

On a motion made by Commissioner Win Brown and seconded by Commissioner Durward Wright, the four commissioners and the judge unanimously voted to fund the ERA study on the PAC.

Moments later, outside of ear-shot of the Commissioners' Court, Mrs. Cahoon again cited the need for the PAC for touring troupes, such as dance and drama companies, orchestras, ballets and other performing arts.

And she cited the need for a suitable stage for the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

"We're the only metropolitan symphony in the United States that plays in a high school auditorium," Mrs. Cahoon said.

In 1971, Midlander defeated by a 2-to-1 vote a county bond issue calling for a $9.85 million Midland Civic Center.

Ice storm paralyzes southeastern Minnesota

By Associated Press

Rain and snow hit large sections of the West, the central Appalachians and the Mississippi and Ohio river valleys today as heavy winter storms continued across the northern states.

The latest storms have hit hardest in Minnesota and Wisconsin, and the National Weather Service said more snow and freezing rain may be in the offing for those states late tonight or early Wednesday, and the foul weather could spill into southern Michigan.

Two deaths Monday in Wisconsin were attributed to weather. Chicago & North Western Railway conductor Lyle Allen, 50, of Adams slipped on ice and fell under a freight train, La Crosse County authorities said. Winnebago County officials said Lori Ann Hess, 16, of Hartford, died, apparently of exposure, on U.S. 41 near Oshkosh.

An ice storm Monday paralyzed much of southeastern Minnesota, including Minneapolis and St. Paul. Children ice skating on the sidewalks of the Twin Cities and traffic was at a standstill as a coating of ice seemed to cover everything.

Even mail delivery was called off in the Twin Cities.

POLICE ESTIMATED that up to 600 vehicles were stuck on a stretch of Interstate 94 south of Elk River, Minn. between Rogers and St. Michael. Most drivers had to wait about three hours before the road was sanded and they could get started again. In Elk River itself, about 100 vehicles stacked up at the bottom of a hill before police blocked off the highway.

Hospitals reported bumps, bruises and fractures from people falling on the ice. There were scattered power outages as well.

In Arizona, meanwhile, an air-pollution alert issued Friday remained in force for the northeastern and south-central parts of the state for today through Wednesday, when winds from a Pacific storm are expected to break up the thermal inversion. Phoenix has been cloaked with high amounts of carbon monoxide.

Elsewhere, thunderstorms were scattered today from southwestern Louisiana to east-central Alabama and there were showers over northern Georgia and the southern Appalachians. Skies were cloudy over the Northeast, and there was rain in New York state.

There was a large patch of fair skies stretching from southern California over the southern Plains to Florida.

IN ADDITION TO the Minnesota and Wisconsin forecast, the National Weather Service said there would be showers today over the Pacific Coast and the Great Basin, with snow in higher elevations.

There will be snow from the northern Rockies to North Dakota. Showers were forecast from central Florida to the mid-Atlantic Coast.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 14 in Bradford, Pa. to 70 in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Mengden suggests site for storage

AMARILLO, Texas (AP)—The U.S. should store its nuclear waste in El Salvador, State Sen. Walter Mengden said Monday.

Mengden, R-Houston, suggested sending nuclear waste to the Central American country at a news conference here as he began a three-day swing through the Panhandle to promote his candidacy for U.S. Senate.

"We've marched all over the world for democracy, and there are other places in the world where it (nuclear waste) can be stored, if we don't want the communists — we might as well say it: the Russians — they're not Italians — coming through Cuba and then to El Salvador," Mengden said.

"If we secure El Salvador for that dictator, then we should store our nuclear waste there in east El Salvador, where no one lives," the Houston Republican said.

"We want something in return, and if the people in Swisher County don't want it (nuclear waste), and if they want to put it in El Salvador, then we should."

Swisher County Commissioners passed a resolution Monday calling for an immediate halt to test-drilling for potential nuclear waste dumps.

The U.S. Department of Energy currently is drilling in Swisher County. Tests already have been drilled in the panhandle counties of Oldham and Donley.

Retardation avoidable

By DANIEL G. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP)—A drop of blood from the heel can show whether a newborn baby suffers from a retardation-causing disease known as cretinism, and the illness can be largely prevented if doctors act on the blood-test results, a study says.

"It certainly can be controlled," Dr. Robert Klein of Dartmouth Medical School said of the affliction, which causes deformity as well as retardation. "Whether it will be depends on how conscientiously humans use these tests."

Blood tests for the disease have become widespread in the past five years for newborns in the United States.

The new study says the tests give doctors enough warning to start drug therapy before the children become irreversibly damaged.

For four years, Klein watched the progress of 63 youngsters whose disease was spotted early by the New England Regional Hypothyroidism Screening Program. Klein, who coordinated the study, published the findings in the Nov. 14 issue of the British medical journal Lancet.

Cretinism, or hypothyroidism, is an inherited disease that occurs when a child's thyroid glands do not produce enough of a hormone called thyroxine. It strikes one in every 4,000 children.

The 63 youngsters' disorders were spotted within three weeks of their births, and they were given daily oral doses of thyroxine. By age 3 or 4, their IQs averaged 106, which is normal. Without the treatment, Klein said their IQs would have been about 80.

A blood test for hypothyroidism is credited with saving Devon Cooney, 3½, of Westfield, Mass., from developmental disabilities. Devon is seen with his father, John Cooney.

Preventive medicine needed

Dear Dr. Solomon: My community is sponsoring a program of preventive medicine, and I have no beef about it. If you're going to have a program, preventive medicine is as good as any. What I'm skeptical about is whether it does any good. I know lots of people who talk about having to lose weight while they're stuffing themselves as if every meal is their last. Who really gets anything out of these preventive medicine programs? — Cary, Midland, Texas

Dear Cary: There is evidence that a number of people who are alive today would not be if they had not practiced some form of preventive medicine. I'm referring particularly to those who have stopped smoking cigarettes and cut down on their consumption of cholesterol, two items I've written about at some length, both in this column and in my books.

Dr. Weldon Walker, of the Loma Linda University School of Medicine in California, attributes the decline in cardiovascular deaths over the past 15 years or so to a reduction in cigarette smoking and in the intake of cholesterol. He notes that before 1963, there had never been a decrease in coronary mortality since it was first described in 1912, and that since then there has never been an increase. During the same period, from 1963 to 1979, United States Department of Agriculture statistics show a reduction in per capita consumption of all tobacco products and on foods high in cholesterol.

These figures indicate that preventive medicine is important, and that each of us has it within our power to do something about our own health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: At various times you have written about the effects on the baby if a pregnant woman uses alcohol or smokes. Recently you pointed out that some people are now questioning whether the fact that a father drinks too much might not also affect the baby. Why wouldn't this be true of smoking, too? It seems to me that anything that affects either parent can have an effect on the baby. — Bobbie, York, Pa.

Dear Bobbie: The results of a study that recently came to my attention seem to support your theory. A study conducted at the Western General Hospital in Edinburgh, Scotland, suggests that men who smoke may have more abnormalities in their sperm than men who don't smoke.

The researchers tested 43 smokers and 43 nonsmokers who were attending an infertility clinic. They found that the smokers had 53 percent normal forms of sperm compared with 58 percent for the nonsmokers. However, there was no indication of what this might mean in relation to the well-being of the fetus.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My wife has received radiation treatments for cancer. Is it possible for me to get any of the effects of radiation if we have sexual relations? — Mr. S.J. Bellingham, Wash.

Dear Mr. J.: The fact that your wife has had radiation therapy will not expose you to any of the effects of radiation.

Participants think killing as sport is profitable

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Assassination, about 100 students at Sam Houston State University have discovered, is profitable and a great way to meet people.

And although the "killers", participants in a game called "Killing As Organized Sport," have drawn criticism from a campus religious group, their guns fire nothing more potent than rubber-tipped darts and their victims' deaths are only make-believe.

"We're not advocating killing, but we wanted to let the campus know about Phi Mu Alpha and raise some money and we've sure gotten a lot of free publicity," said Robert Stanton, a 19-year-old sophomore from Conroe who is one of the game's coordinators.

The Sam Houston State version of the game, generally known by its acronym, KAOS, began Nov. 8 after members of the school's professional music fraternity heard about a competition at the University of Texas.

Participants willing to pay the $3.50 entry fee receive a dart gun, a dart, the name and a picture of their victim and a "death certificate." The participants also have their pictures taken and become potential victims.

Trophies are offered for the most bloodthirsty agent, the most dramatic kill and the most elusive victim.

"We expected a lot more criticism than we've gotten," Stanton said. "Some women did get the idea we were really killing people and called up upset, but that's about it."

"We've gotten a lot of cooperation. The campus newspaper is running the victims' obituaries and so is the radio station. It's all for fun and it's a great way to meet people."

No room for debate

The fact that much of the machinery of our federal government was allowed to grind to a halt Saturday until being resolved late Monday is testimony enough that members of the Congress cannot face up to the difficult decisions that must be made to bring the nation's economy back into line.

Of course nothing much changed when the government ran out of money. Daily life went on with few inconveniences for all except those in the bureaucracy who rely on tax dollars for their survival. We are among those who complain that the bureaucracy has grown too large anyway. In fact, it probably is to the benefit of the people of the nation that the Congress was unable to arrive at a spending bill before the deadline.

Life did not end because the government ran out of money. That has happened before anyway and, from all of the gruesome indications, it will happen again. A lot of non-essential agencies were being closed Monday although essential services continued. Americans have been schooled to believe that the government is all powerful, all knowing, and the provider of all good things. Fortunately, that is not true.

The Congress, for the most part, has become too removed from the public in recent years, going its own way with little apparent regard for how Americans feel. One cannot lump all the members of Congress into such a neat package, but for the purpose of generalizing the preceding statement is correct.

But the tax-paying public has become increasingly concerned about the direction of the government in recent years. The economy has been deteriorating consistently, bureaucratic involvement in daily lives has become more pronounced, and government spending — deficit spending — has continued unabated.

Americans do not want the kind of flippancy legislation the Congress has doled out in past years. The people of the nation are becoming aware of the dangers posed by such lackadaisical governing. We are tired of ever-increasing inflation and excessive government spending. We are tired of elected representatives who do not exercise the good judgment to enact spending limits in line with the needs of the nation and its general public.

While Americans realize there is a lot of legislative "horse trading" that surrounds governmental action on spending limits, we also realize that in a nation in which elected officials are looking out for the best interests of their constituents, a simple matter like reducing government spending and keeping taxes down is not a subject for debate when the economy is shaky.

Waldheim's ambitions

Something is awry when a United Nations presumably dedicated to global good will and solidarity cannot agree in 16 votes who its next secretary general should be.

The personal ambition of Secretary General Kurt Waldheim is causing much of the trouble. His candidacy for an unprecedented third five-year term, for which he is campaigning hard, is ruffling a lot of feathers. If his performance for two terms led to his re-election by acclamation, or a draft, that would be greatly to Mr. Waldheim's credit, but in essence he seeks to draft himself.

The secretary's self-promotion has split the Security Council several different ways. Throughout the 16 losing rounds he has been consistently vetoed by China, the only Third World nation with a veto. China and other Third World countries want Salim A. Salim of Tanzania, but the United States doesn't want someone who cheered openly when Taiwan was kicked out of the UN.

Eventually a compromise may be reached, such as the election of Argentina's Alejandro Orfila. Mr. Orfila has just been re-elected secretary general of the Organization of American States, where he has proved himself an able diplomat. But any consideration of him must await an end to the squabble created by Waldheim.

Naming a respected and influential secretary general should provide an opportunity for the office to seek the man, not the other way around. The late, great Dag Hammarskjöld set an example by refusing even a second term, an event of which Mr. Waldheim should be reminded.

Sixteen votes that failed are an unseemly show of disarray. Once again, the United Nations looks more like the "Disunited Nations."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Intelligence agencies sought Soviet 'secret'

WASHINGTON — Our intelligence agencies are so infatuated with their super-sophisticated spy paraphernalia — computers, satellites and monitoring devices — that they overlook the simpler, old-fashioned ways of gathering information.

Last year, for example, the Defense Intelligence Agency wanted to look down the barrel of a Soviet cannon. Specifically, the military spies wanted to know the caliber of the cannon mounted on the new Soviet T-64 and T-72 tanks, the most formidable in the Kremlin's arsenal.

DIA called on the National Security Agency for help. Acres of computers began humming; mountains of intercepted Russian messages were decoded; monitoring outposts cocked an electronic ear on the communications of Soviet army armored units. No luck.

Then the CIA was brought into the act. A secret spy satellite was maneuvered so its cameras could take stereo pictures of the Russian tanks. The pictures were then turned over to the photo analysts at CIA headquarters in Langley, Va.

From 200 miles in outer space, the super-snoop cameras can take close-ups so clear that the rivets in a tank can be spotted. Determining the size of the Russian tank gun should have been a piece of cake.

But the photo evaluators couldn't work their magic this time. The trouble was that the Soviet tank gun was designed with a metal sleeve for added strength. This had the unintended effect of making it impossible to gauge the caliber of the cannon, even with the best telephotos the $100 million spy satellite provided.

The whole project — the decoding, eavesdropping and evaluating photos — cost $18 million, with nothing to show for it.

The United States finally did learn the caliber of the tank gun, nevertheless. The DIA asked the British.

The Brits supplied not only the gun-caliber information, but complete photos of the tank's cockpit and a technical manual. My associate Ron McRae promised not to reveal how the British got their information, but I can disclose that the cost was $400.

As it happens, the DIA could have saved the $400 — not to mention the $18 million — by asking the French. They did even better than the British. They got the information for nothing — with dinner and drinks thrown in.

How? Simple enough. The French military attaché in Moscow simply told a Soviet military liaison officer how much he admired their new tanks. The Russian was delighted to show off the Kremlin's military technology. He took the French attaché on a tour of a tank base, showed him the gun, the ammunition and let him look inside the cockpit — and took him to dinner, to boot.

DEADLY DELAY: In a deadly replay of the Emperor Nero legend, government bureaucrats have been fiddling around for years while dangerous radioactive uranium wastes "burn" in the backyards of Canonsburg, Pa. (pop. 11,265).

"It's just really discouraging to look at the time that's gone by and how little progress has been made," said an official of the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, which has been working on the project with assorted federal agencies.

It has been three years since Congress passed the Uranium Mill Tailings Act, which was intended to clean up 25 sites across the country where old uranium wastes have been dumped. Canonsburg was put at the top of the cleanup list.

Yet the Energy Department's program manager, Donald Groelme, acknowledged that actual "remedial action" is not expected for at least another two-and-a-half years. Though he did not pinpoint the reason for this disgraceful delay, other sources told my reporter Paul Marks it is directly attributable to Washington's "bureaucratic maze." So what else is news.

Lack of money isn't the problem. In the last two fiscal years, more than $25 million was budgeted for the mill tailings program. Only $1 million of that was for the cleanup itself. Yet even the first step — acquiring the property — has not been taken.

Meanwhile, Rep. Austin Murphy, D-Pa., claims that cancer rates around Canonsburg are higher than normal. No positive link has been established between the incidence of cancer and the 200,000 tons of uranium wastes dumped outside the town, but gamma radiation and radon gas produced by uranium wastes are known to raise the risk of leukemia and lung cancer.

Across the country, there is some 25 million tons of similar radioactive wastes waiting to be cleaned up.

As one frustrated Canonsburg resident put it: "We are supposed to be top-priority listed under the Mill Tailings Act. I have no hope whatever for those on the bottom of the list."

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: The Soviet news agency Tass has accused me recently of writing "rotten sensations" and "absurd fabrications." The Soviet propagandists also accused me of having "links with the CIA." To be sure, dedicated CIA agents have often leaked me evidence of the agency's wrongdoing, and for weeks my staff and I were tailed by the spooks. In that sense, I guess I'm linked.

— Marijuana is strictly prohibited by Moslem law. But when my associate Peter Grant visited the main training center of Hizb-i-Islami, the most radically Moslem of the Afghan resistance groups, he found the organization's flagpole standing in the middle of a marijuana field. "We understand about these things," the local commander said with a shrug.

Airport service is an honor

To The Editor:

From my vantage point, I deem it necessary to reply to the recent article in The Reporter-Telegram where in the administrative officials of the police department were accused of using the Regional Airport police detachment as a "punishment tour for veteran cops." Unintentional or not, the subject article did a disservice to the police department in general and the airport police in particular.

I know Wayne Gideon well and know he has never even entertained the thought of the practice attributed to the administrative officials and seriously doubt if any of the others had such thoughts. It is true that on occasion he might reassign a policeman or woman to the airport to resolve a personality problem or to help the individual if he considers them to have the potential of becoming a good member of the force. By the same token he will not hesitate to reassign a member of the airport police to the city force if he deems it necessary for the same or other reasons. This is a standard personnel practice in most organizations.

Chief Gideon is responsible for all the police whether they are on duty in the city or at the airport. It is in his best interest to have them all function as a team regardless of where they are assigned and perform their duties in a professional manner. On a daily basis the airport police come in direct contact with hundreds of people and are in an excellent position to create a favorable image of the police department as a whole. Chief Gideon is well aware of this and it is another reason why he would never use the airport as a dumping ground for undesirables.

It may be true that some officers do not want an assignment to the airport for reasons known only to them. Some may not be psychologically suited for airport work and fearful of so much direct contact with the public, while others may be directing their careers to a particular field. Regardless, I want it known that I have the utmost confidence and respect in Chief Gideon, Major Sid Corley, and the entire force of policemen and women now assigned to the airport. Lt. Dale Carlton, Sgt. Reese Thurston, and Officer Lopez have been at the airport for years and they are indeed professionals in the true sense of the word and a credit to the police department. Officers Lester, Robbins, and Bowling are also outstanding in my opinion and I hope they will be with us for a long time. Those I have not mentioned have been on airport duty less than six months and have not observed anything that would make me question their potential to become excellent officers.

I hope the preceding will help to dispel the idea from the minds of those who think that the police force assigned to the airport have been assigned as a disciplinary measure. I disagree with any person who thinks it is derogatory to be assigned out here. To the contrary, I consider it an honor for any policeman or woman to be selected for airport duty and an excellent chance to enhance their career. There is far more to the job than sitting at the security check point or writing tickets for cars parked illegally at the curb. Those people who think along this line are totally unaware of the facts and the great responsibilities vested in the airport police.

Lice treatment

To The Editor:

This is in regard to head lice. It is too bad people make such a big complicated deal of getting rid of them. The old timers can tell you a quick, simple, cheap and safe way to get rid of them with one application.

I have seen them in a school, where I was school nurse, that some girls had actual nests in their long hair. The moths even flew from place to place. It was an epidemic.

What we did was as follows. Use kerosene on the dry hair — a cup is usually enough. Rub in the hair — don't rub the scalp much. Comb through the hair and leave on about five minutes before washing a time or two with soap. Do this to everyone in the family to be on the same side. In the mean time wash all the bedding.

This is not irritating on the scalp. If you have any doubts about this, put your or the child's hand in the kerosene before using on the head.

As with soap — keep it out of the eyes.

INSIDE REPORT:

Talk of Stockman successor raised fear of tax increases

WASHINGTON — Republican tax-cutters who had been urging quick removal of Budget Director David Stockman as an apostate held their tongues after they heard his successor might be the fastest-rising White House aide: Deputy Chief of Staff Richard Darman.

Darman, never identified with either Ronald Reagan's political campaigns or philosophical viewpoints until he became a senior White House staffer, had been skeptical of the Reagan tax cut all year. He urged Stockman to pursue his ill-fated "fall offensive" of tax increases and additional budget cuts. Authoritative reports emerged from the White House last week that Darman was under serious consideration to be the Office of Management and Budget's (OMB) new director.

Fearing that tax increases, seemingly dead if the discredited Stockman stays at OMB, would be revived if he is replaced by Darman, conservative political operatives went to Sen. Paul Laxalt for help. Laxalt, President Reagan's close friend and counselor, told them their fears seemed unsubstantiated but added he considers Darman unqualified for the Budget post.

ALLEN'S ALIBI

One reason why the Justice Department showed little interest in pressing the investigation of Richard V. Allen for receiving $1,000 from a Japanese magazine was corroboration of his explanation from a senior Reagan administration official not on the White House staff.

This official, according to Reagan aides, just happened to be at the White House the day Nancy Reagan was interviewed briefly by the Japanese magazine and heard Allen declare he had intercepted $1,000 intended for the first lady. Such corroboration could save Allen's job as the president's national security assistant.

A footnote: White House insiders mention Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who held the post under President Ford, as the best bet to succeed Allen. But anti-Soviet Republican senators and Pentagon officials consider Scowcroft too staunch a champion of détente and would try to head off his appointment should Allen leave.

RICKOVER'S LOYALISTS

Although President Reagan's lightning speed in forcibly retiring Adm. Hyman Rickover at age 81 won general applause in the defense community, it left Sen. Henry M. Jackson and other defense-oriented Democrats in a dangerously angry mood.

Jackson, Rep. Mel Price of Illinois, Rep. Sam Stratton of New York and other Democrats who normally vote for high defense spending were plotting ways to generate support for Rickover when Reagan's axe fell. They are angry that they were not consulted or even notified about the summary dismissal of the father of the nuclear Navy; that anger is dangerous for Reagan because of the necessity of such Democratic support for his defense budget.

Otherwise, Rickover's departure leaves few wet eyes. Among those delighted to see him go are his many antagonists of long standing: defense contractors, federal budget officials and especially his brother naval officers who first tried to force his retirement 25 years ago.

AL HAIG, DIPLOMAT

That diplomatic sensitivity is not one of Secretary of State Alexander Haig's more obvious virtues was shown at a recent U.S.-Italian bipartisan conference in Rome.

In pointing up the unspeakable behavior of Libya's Col. Muammar Qaddafi, Haig revealed that Libyan hit men had executed political opponents on U.S. soil. Anybody who had been dozing at the conference table was next brought up sharply with this comment by the secretary of state: It's one thing for the Mafia to do this sort of thing, but it's going too far for the Libyans.

"I can't believe I'm hearing this," whispered one U.S. diplomat to a colleague. If Haig was attempting humor, it was lost on the Italians. Neither Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo nor any of his compatriots cracked a smile.

GOP NON-POLITICS

Republican failure to take full advantage of new-found Senate control was pointed up twice last week when two Senate committees, each chaired by a conservative Republican, acted in ways that can help liberal Democratic Sen. Howard Metzenbaum's campaign for re-election in Ohio.

Midland family injured in car wreck on way to funeral

CANEY, Okla. — Six members of a Midland family on their way to a funeral in McAlester, Okla., were injured when their car collided with a semi-trailer truck just 40 miles from their destination last Tuesday.

The accident occurred just south of Caney, between Atoka and Durant, when the 1979 model car driven by James Troy Marlow, 32, of 4413 Standolind, collided with a truck that had jackknifed across US 69-75 into their path.

Marlow was taken to an Atoka hospital with head, internal, arm and leg injuries. Also suffering head and internal injuries in the accident were his wife, Becky, 29; their children, Chad, 9, and Missy, 7; and his step parents-in-law, Edwin, 57, and Loretta Briggs, 51, all of Midland.

According to highway patrolman Ron Thomas, the driver of the truck, Renae Gamez, 21, of Garland, told Thomas a vehicle in front of Gamez's southbound semi-trailer truck had slowed unexpectedly at a county road intersection, causing Gamez to jam on his brakes to avoid hitting it.

As a result, Gamez's vehicle jackknifed across the two-lane highway into the path of Marlow's northbound car.

The wrecked vehicles blocked both lanes of the highway for nearly an hour, backing up traffic more than a mile in each direction.

Two ambulances from Atoka and a third from Durant, which was later called back, were dispatched after first reports to the highway patrol said six vehicles were involved.

According to H.C. Tidwell, Mrs. Marlow's father, the Marlow family was brought back to Midland Sunday and Mr. and Mrs. Briggs are expected to "be back in time for Thanksgiving."

a rare eye disease. The trip was made possible by a hometown radio station that raised $12,000.

OC business manager to join Armor Cote

ODESSA — Dr. Jerry Jones, business manager at Odessa College for the past 3½ years, announced his resignation Monday, effective at the end of the fall semester.

Dr. Jones will begin work in January for Armor Cote Corporation, a local pipe coating company, as vice president of administration.

Since coming to Odessa College in July 1978 from West Virginia where he was acting director of Planning and Management Information Systems for the West Virginia Board of Regents, Dr. Jones has streamlined college business procedures.

"The college is in excellent financial condition," commented Dr. Phil Speegle, Odessa College president, "and the credit is largely due to the leadership of Dr. Jones. We're going to miss him and the expertise he has concerning college financial matters."

As part of the present staff at the college, Dr. Jones is one of seven administrators hired directly by the board of trustees. His current salary is $37,800.

Full board, which meets in regular session tonight, is expected to accept Dr. Jones' resignation and a search will begin immediately for a new college business manager, according to Dr. Speegle.

"I've enjoyed my work at Odessa College," said Dr. Jones, "and feel that the college renders a tremendous service to this community. The decision was difficult but I'm excited about the opportunity of working with Armor Cote."

A graduate of the University of Tennessee and Nova University, Dr. Jones has more than 22 years of experience in education and is a former president of Parkersburg Community College in West Virginia. He also was vice chancellor of business and finance for the State University and Community College System of Tennessee.

Locally, Dr. Jones is an elder at the First Christian Church, vice president of the Full Gospel Businessman's Fellowship and a member of the Permian Optimists.

Car dealers contributed to Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Automobile Dealers Association made campaign contributions totaling more than $500,000 to members of Congress who are trying to veto a regulation governing used car dealers, says the public interest organization Congress Watch.

But spokesmen for several senators listed as receiving NADA contributions said after the report was released Monday that there was no connection between the campaign funds and their opposition to the regulation.

Congress Watch, which was founded by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, said the contributions were made over the 30-month period that ended last June.

The Federal Trade Commission issued an order in August requiring that used car dealers inform their customers of any mechanical defects they know about.

Congress, however, empowered itself last year to veto FTC regulations within 90 days of when they are issued. So far, nearly half the members of Congress have become co-sponsors of resolutions to veto the FTC used car rule.

Of 206 House co-sponsors, 175 received a total of more than $476,000 from the car dealers association, Congress Watch said.

"If Congress vetoes this rule, it will be inviting business groups that can't make their case before an impartial decision-maker on the basis of the facts and the law to come to Congress and make their case on the basis of" the contributions, said Jay Angoff of Congress Watch.

Congress Watch said nine of the 13 representatives who got at least $7,500 are co-sponsors of veto resolutions and five of the six senators who received $9,700 or more are backing the veto move.

NADA spokeswoman Penelope Longbottom declined immediate comment on the Congress Watch report.

Dollar drifts lower

LONDON (AP) — The dollar drifted lower in dull trading today on European markets following a trend that began the day before. Gold bullion snapped back from sharply lower levels Monday.

In Tokyo, where trading ends just as Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell to 216.75 yen from 219.30 late Friday. Monday was a national holiday in Japan. Later, in London, the dollar rose to 217.025 yen.

European dealers said there was little to influence currency markets and the pre-Christmas doldrums appeared about to start.

Gold bullion rallied from Monday's sharp fall, but remained below $400 a troy ounce in both London and Zurich.

Paisley leads Protestant vigilantes in defiance of government policies BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — In a major challenge to the British government, the Rev. Ian Paisley led 12,000 cudgel-carrying Protestant vigilantes in a show of strength against London's policies.

The burly preacher-politician, demanding Britain launch all-out war against the Roman Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army, marched his "Third Force" through the Protestant town of Newtownards Monday night in defiance of the government's warning that it would not tolerate private armies.

"We will start a great recruiting campaign because I want no less than 100,000 men in Ulster. Ulster, united and together, is on the march," said Paisley.

He claimed he fielded 20,000 men from all six of Northern Ireland's counties, but reporters on the scene estimated there were 10,000.

Many of the marchers wore hoods or masks.

The cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, James Prior, declared last week that the government would use "the full force" at its command to counter any challenge to its authority. But the police did not interfere as Paisley led his men through the streets to wild cheering from an estimated 20,000 supporters.

Paisley, 55, told his supporters, "We will fight our enemies with everything we have got. We will never surrender." The march culminated a "day of action" ordered by Paisley to demonstrate Protestant wrath over an upsurge of IRA murders of Protestants and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's attempts to forge a political link between Northern Ireland, with its 2-to-1 Protestant majority, and the 95-per-cent Catholic Irish Republic.

"We shall fight the London-Dublin talks," Paisley bellowed. "There will never be a united Ireland. Over our dead bodies."

Paisley's protest began with a 12-hour general strike that business leaders said was 70 percent effective and caused widespread disruption.

Banks and department stores in Belfast remained open, and most buses and trains ran. But factories and offices were deserted, and protest motorcades of cars, trucks and tractors blocked the centers of Protestant towns throughout the province.

Fifteen Solidarity members quit in protest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Fifteen influential Solidarity members quit the independent union to protest Lech Walesa's "too-conciliatory stand" toward the Communist government, it was reported.

The official PAP news agency said Andrzej Gwiazda, a chief ideologist of the 9.5-million member union, was among those who resigned Monday. Union sources said none of the 15 was a member of the union's ruling presidium.

They said the 15 were upset with Walesa's handling of negotiations with the government on ways to deal with the country's social and economic problems.

The resignations followed an announcement by Walesa, elected leader of the first independent union in the Soviet bloc, that the talks with the government would continue despite a deadlock.

Warsaw newspapers reported a similar shakeup within the leadership of the farmers' union Rural Solidarity that spared only its head, Jan Kulaj, from a vote of no confidence.

Solidarity officials in Warsaw also reported that strikes had spread to 56 of the country's 91 institutions of higher education, and farmers had begun new sit-ins to protest agricultural policies.

They said taxi drivers throughout the country were on a strike alert to pressure the government to talk with them about gasoline shortages.

Warsaw shopkeepers were threatening to strike Wednesday to demand better police protection and to protest media reports blaming them for food shortages.

Meanwhile, PAP reported a man claiming to be armed with explosives tried to hijack a LOT airliner on a domestic flight from Gdansk to Warsaw.

It said the attempt, the 12th this year, was thwarted, but gave no details.

Hardline Arab nations oppose peace plan

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

FEZ, Morocco (AP) — A majority of the Arab nations favor Saudi Arabia's blueprint for peace with Israel, but the Arab summit meeting opening Wednesday probably will not endorse it because of the opposition of Libya, Syria and other hardliners.

That was the assessment of several sources who attended the closed-door meeting Monday of Arab League foreign ministers preparing for the meeting of their heads of state and government.

The sources said a substantial majority of the league's 20 members favor the eight-point peace plan advanced by Saudi Crown Prince Fahd, but "determined opposition" from the hard-line minority will probably block its endorsement by the summit.

The main stumbling block appeared to be the seventh point, which implies recognition of Israel by saying that "all states" in the Middle East have the right to live in peace.

Conference sources said Iraq, Algeria and South Yemen raised objections to point seven and some other points. Foreign Ministers Abdelati Obeidi of Libya and Abdelhalim Khaddam of Syria told the meeting they opposed virtually all of the eight points.

Khaddam told reporters that a refusal by the summit to endorse the plan would not necessarily kill it but could leave it as a "working document" to be taken into account in subsequent peacemaking efforts.

Farouk Khadumi, chief foreign policy adviser for the Palestine Liberation Organization, told reporters that the seventh point was unacceptable unless accompanied by "explicit guarantees" from the superpowers.

He did not spell out what he had in mind. His statement was a retreat from PLO leader Yasser Arafat's earlier cautious approval of the plan.

Khadumi said American and Israeli acceptance of all eight points was essential to approval by the PLO, which is a member of the Arab League.

Israel has rejected the plan. The Reagan administration, while calling the seventh point a major step toward peace, has insisted that the Camp David accords are the only basis for resolving the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The key point of Fahd's plan is establishment of a Palestinian state with East Jerusalem as its capital. Israel has said repeatedly it would never agree to that.

Official and press reports from the various Arab capitals today said eight of the Arab chiefs of state would not attend the Fez summit. The reports said the absentees would be Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafi, who is boycotting it to demonstrate his opposition to the Saudi plan; King Khaled of Saudi Arabia and President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, who are ailing; President Gaafar Nimeiri of Sudan, who is in the United States for medical treatment; President Saddam Hussein of Iraq, who presumably is preoccupied with his war with Iran; President Mohammed Khona Ould Haidala of Mauritania, Sultan Qaboos of Oman and President Chadli Ben Chedid of Algeria.

Chinese government encourages private enterprise

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) — In a major boost to private enterprise, China's Communist government called for a mixed economy, urged young people to find their own jobs and told them the state no longer owes them a living.

The official press announced Monday that the Communist Party's Central Committee and the cabinet, or State Council, issued a directive to encourage more private and collectively run enterprises.

The decision constituted an official seal of approval for the growing private sector and a major political and ideological victory for Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping and other pragmatic reformers.

"While the socialist economy dominates and guides," the announcement said, "the coexistence of different forms of economic activity is one of the party's strategic decisions, not an expedient measure."

The announcement called for major reforms in the rigid management process and said regulations for private and collective enterprises must be relaxed.

During the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution all private enterprises were banned, and Maoists called the blossoming of private enterprise the return of "capitalist tails" that must be lopped off. But the announcement said although private enterprise is back and has expanded, it still does not meet the needs of the people and the economy. It said each self-employed person now may hire two helpers and five apprentices. Previously they were restricted to using family members and one or two helpers or apprentices.

With unemployment estimated by foreign observers at 10 million or more in an urban labor force the government said totaled 105.25 million at the end of 1980, the directive said young people should organize cooperative businesses or become self-employed cooks, merchants, repairmen or tailors. It noted there was a shortage of workers in those occupations.

A front-page editorial in the People's Daily, the Communist Party newspaper, said the old system of giving every young person a job in a state-run enterprise didn't work.

And to counter low productivity hampering economic growth, the People's Daily suggested factory managers should be allowed to fire workers, which was a system of job security that protected shirkers and troublemakers as well as the productive.

The party organ said workers in some factories lack job skills, fail to put in a full day's work, steal state property and engage in fights.

The government urged creation of labor service companies to help young people find work, organize their own businesses and receive job training. The People's Daily said the labor service companies could also help find work for excess workers employed in state factories.

Falcons fight back to defeat Vikings 31-30

Bartkowski's passing, Curry's interception keys to victory

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Bartkowski fired two third-quarter touchdowns and Buddy Curry capped a comeback with a 35-yard interception return for another TD in the final period as the Atlanta Falcons downed the Minnesota Vikings 31-30 in a National Football League game Monday night.

Curry's return gave the Falcons a 31-21 lead and immediately after Atlanta gave up an intentional safety, Tommy Kramer hurled his fourth touchdown pass of the game for the Vikings, a 16-yarder to Joe Sener with 1:07 left, to chop Atlanta's margin to one point.

Atlanta recovered the ensuing on-side kick and ran out the clock.

The Falcons, trailing 21-7 after a lackluster first-half performance in which the Vikings picked their defense apart, got back in the game with a swarming defense that shut down Minnesota in the third quarter, holding the Vikings to only 15 yards.

BARTKOWSKI CUT the 14-point halftime margin to 21-14 when he connected with Junior Miller on a 3-yard scoring pass on Atlanta's first possession of the second half.

Bartkowski came right back three minutes later and nailed Wallace Francis with a 29-yard scoring toss that tied the game with 7:24 left in the third quarter.

A 32-yard field goal by Mick Luckhurst put Atlanta ahead to stay early in the final quarter and Curry came through with his first interception of the season for the clinching touchdown with 4:06 left in the game.

The victory evened Atlanta's record at 6-6 and kept the Falcons alive in the race for a National Conference wild card playoff berth. Minnesota fell to 7-5 and saw its Central Division lead drop to only one game over Tampa Bay and Detroit.

Kramer connected on three passes for 37 yards in an 89-yard drive that gave Minnesota an early 7-0 lead when he hit Ahmad Rashad on a six-yard scoring pass.

After Bartkowski and Alfred Jackson combined on an 8-yarder to tie the game late in the opening quarter, Kramer came back to build the Vikings' two-touchdown halftime advantage, first hitting Rashad on a 42-yard scoring play and then connecting with Bob Bruer on a 3-yarder only 48 seconds before intermission.

THE VIKINGS could have had a much greater halftime lead, but failed to take advantage of two fumble recoveries in Atlanta territory, the first at the 47 when the offense failed to get anything going and the second at the Falcons' 28, only to see Kramer yield an interception in the end zone to Tom Fridemore.

Minnesota also wasted an impressive 66-yard drive that bogged down at the Atlanta 9 with less than six minutes remaining in the first half.

Rick Danmeier came off the bench to attempt a 27-yard field goal, but never had a chance when holder Keith Nord lost his grip on the ball and Danmeier managed only to dribble the ball about 10 yards.

Atlanta, which led the NFL in rushing defense before the game, gave up its first individual 100-yard performance of the year to Ted Brown, who had 108 on 16 carries, including consecutive runs of 24 and 29 yards in the Vikings' first scoring drive.

With his three scoring passes, Bartkowski moved into a tie for the NFL lead at 27 with San Diego's Dan Fouts.

Bartkowski finished with 21 completions in 32 attempts for 213 yards and Kramer was 24 of 47 for 330 yards, but had four intercepted.

Minnesota Vikings Ted Brown (23) is pushed to the ground by Atlanta Falcons Buddy Curry (50) in the second quarter of action in Atlanta Monday night. Brown rushed for 108 yards on 16 carries against the Falcons but it wasn't enough as Atlanta posted a 31-30 victory.

Top six teams hold on to ranking in AP's Top 20

Top-rated Pitt and its five closest challengers held onto the top six places in The Associated Press college football poll Monday, while Ohio State climbed back into the Top Twenty and Arkansas dropped out.

Pitt, 10-0, winds up the regular season against No. 11 Penn State on Saturday and then meets third-ranked Georgia in the Sugar Bowl. The Panthers received 60 of 65 first-place votes and a near-perfect 1,294 of a possible 1,300 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters after blanking Temple 35-0.

Clemson, the only other unbeaten team in the country, concluded its first perfect regular season in 33 years by defeating South Carolina 29-13. The Tigers, 11-0, received the other five first-place ballots and 1,157 points.

Georgia and Alabama, both idle last weekend, remained third and fourth with 1,157 and 1,054 points, respectively.

Nebraska, Clemson's Orange Bowl opponent, trounced Oklahoma 37-14 and held onto fifth place with 1,015 points. The Cornhuskers were followed by Southern Methodist, which defeated Arkansas 32-18 and captured the Southwest Conference championship. The Mustangs, ineligible for a bowl game, finished the season 10-1, the second best record in SMU's history, and received 965 points.

THE FIRST change came in the seventh spot. Michigan's 14-9 loss to Ohio State dropped the Wolverines to 16th place. Texas, which clinched a Cotton Bowl berth against Alabama by defeating Baylor 34-12, moved up from eighth to seventh with 904 points.

Southern California's come-from-behind 22-21 victory over UCLA lifted the Trojans from 18th to eighth with 797 points, while dropping the Bruins from 15th to 19th.

Miami of Florida, a 14-4 winner over North Carolina State, cracked the Top Ten for the first time this season, jumping from 11th to ninth with 788 points. The Hurricanes were followed by North Carolina, up from 12th to 10th with 656 points following a 31-10 triumph over Duke.

Southern Mississippi, which suffered its first setback of the season 13-19 at the hands of upstart Louisville, slipped from ninth place to 17th.

The Second Ten consists of Penn State, Washington, Iowa, Brigham Young, Ohio State, Michigan, Southern Mississippi, Arizona State, UCLA and Washington State. Washington and Iowa will meet in the Rose Bowl.

Last week, it was Miami, North Carolina, Penn State, Washington State, UCLA, Arkansas, Washington, BYU, Iowa and Arizona State.

The final regular-season poll will be taken after games of Nov. 28 and the national championship poll will follow the bowl games.

MHS girls open at home with a win

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The Midland High girls made their home debut a successful one Monday night when they defeated Sweetwater 56-34 at Chaparral Center. It was the second time this season that the Bulldogs have stopped the Mustangs.

The Bulldog defense swarmed all over Sweetwater in the early goings of the game and kept up the pace throughout the night. At one point in the first quarter Midland ran up an 8-0 lead before Sweetwater was able to get the ball across the half-court line.

Sweetwater's troubles came with the full-court press Midland employed at the opening tipoff and kept up until the final buzzer. The Mustangs were never able to figure it out and the game turned into one long procession of turnovers and fouls.

The referees hit the Bulldogs with 39 fouls in the game and forced post Shelly Parker, Midland's top scorer, out of action with five personals. Though Sweetwater was hit with fewer fouls, 27, they were more costly. Two players, Vickie Rasco and Kerry Hook, were sent to the bench with five personals while two others were on the court with four.

WITH AN eight-point lead at the onset of the game, Midland went on to take a 14-0 edge by the end of the quarter and upped it to 32-18 at the half. The Bulldog offensive performance slowed down in the third, outscoring Sweetwater only 10-9, but then picked up in the fourth quarter for the final score.

"I think the team is coming along," said MHS head coach Jane Young. "I think we have a better all-around team this year. I never know who is going to play well for, who will be the high scorer because I have so many kids with equal ability."

All 12 Bulldogs on the varsity lineup saw action against Sweetwater and 11 of those players score. Parker was the top shooter with 14 points for MHS followed by Shelia Christian with seven. For the Mustangs, Alice Smith was the top scorer with 15 points while Larree Shelton added seven.

The victory upped Midland's record to 2-1 on the season.

In junior varsity action Monday night, MHS posted a 53-21 victory over Sweetwater. Margaret Stanley and Sharon Mendenhall led the bulldogs to the win with eight points apiece while Jill Mims and Shelia Fields led the Mustangs with seven and six points respectively.

Tonight, the Midland High girls and boys will both be at Chaparral Center with each team playing a junior varsity and varsity game. The girls plays Pecos at 4:15 and 6:15 p.m. while the boys take on Odessa Ector in a rematch at 5:15 and 8 p.m.

Two first-time candidates

NEW YORK (AP) — Hall of Fame voters will have a rare opportunity to put two historic baseball figures into the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine as first-time candidates in 1982.

Home run champ Henry Aaron and two-league Most Valuable Player Frank Robinson head a list of 14 former major leaguers whose names have been placed on the Hall of Fame ballot for the first time.

Along with holdover candidates from last year who remain eligible, the ballot will contain 43 names. Ballots will be mailed in early December to 10-year members of the Baseball Writers Association of America, with the election to take place in mid-January.

Under the agreement between the Hall of Fame and the BBWAA, the list of eligible candidates is submitted each year to a panel of six veteran baseball writers. A candidate must be approved by at least one of the six to have his name included on the ballot.

AARON IS major league baseball's all-time home run king with 755. He also had a career batting average of .305 for 23 seasons. Robinson, who won the MVP in both the National League and American League, hit 586 career homers and had a lifetime .294 batting average for 21 seasons.

The 12 other first-time candidates are Jim Brewer, Tommy Davis, Bill

Freehan, Tommy Harper, Alex Johnson, Deron Johnson, Cleon Jones, Tony Oliva, Rico Petrocelli, Tony Taylor, Cesar Tovar and Billy Williams.

The holdover candidates are Luis Aparicio, Richie Ashburn, Gates Brown, Jim Bunning, Lew Burdette, Leo Cardenas, Orlando Cepeda, Don Drysdale, Elroy Face, Nellie Fox, Gil Hodges, Elston Howard, Harmon Killebrew, Harvey Kuenn, Don Larsen, Juan Marichal, Roger Maris, Bill Mazeroski, Lindy McDaniel, Dave McNally, Thurman Munson, Jim Northrup, Claude Osteen, Jim Perry, Vada Pinson, Red Schoendienst, Sonny Siebert, Hoyt Wilhelm and Maury Wills.

Kodak names All-America list for 1981

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterbacks Dan Marino of top-ranked Pittsburgh and Jim McMahon of Brigham Young, along with running backs Marcus Allen of Southern California and Herschel Walker of Georgia, head the 1981 Kodak All-America Football Team announced Monday.

The defense is led by linebackers Bob Crable of Notre Dame, a repeater from last year's squad, and Sal Sunseri, Marino's teammate at Pitt.

This was the second year in a row that McMahon was selected, and the second time he shared the quarterback spot. Last season, the BYU senior and Purdue's Mark Herrmann were named. Walker, a sophomore, also was named for the second straight year.

ALLEN, THE first college player to rush for 2,000 yards in a season, was the top vote-getter on the 23-member team, selected by the American Football Coaches Association.

Pitt, with Marino and Sunseri; Southern Cal, with Allen and offensive lineman Roy Foster; Nebraska, with center Dave Rimington and defensive lineman James Williams, and Michigan, with wide receiver Anthony Carter and offensive lineman Kurt Becker, were the only schools with two players on the squad.

Lee girls rebound from loss, 87-39

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

The Midland Lee girls, embarrassed by defending Class 5-A champion Lubbock Monterey, 108-56, Saturday, opened their home cage season on a high note by flattening Class AAAA Monahans, 87-39, Monday at the Lee gym. The victory gives Lee a 2-1 season mark while Monahans falls to 1-2.

Yshun King led the Lady Rebel assault with 24 points while Suzanne McGaha pitched in 18 and Shun Harris netted 10. Roxanne Greer led the Mean Green with nine points while Tela Lindsey gunned in eight.

The issue was never in doubt. Lee raced to a 20-8 lead after one quarter of play and continually added to the margin. At intermission, the Rebels held a comfortable 41-26 advantage.

Monahans was never able to solve Lee's full-court pressure defense. Early in the third quarter, the Lobos turned the ball over seven straight times without getting off a shot. Lee took advantage of the situation to pop in 13 points to grab a 63-30 lead with 3:06 left in the third quarter.

THE LOBOES did mount a minor surge in the latter stages of the third quarter. Down 63-30, the Green Wave dropped in seven straight points to trim the deficit to 63-37.

That was to be the high-water mark for the Lobos. In the final eight minutes, Lee's pressure defense held the Mean Green to two free throws while the offense was firing in 24 points to account for the final 87-39 victory.

Not only was Lee's pressure defense effective, the Rebels owned the boards, especially on offense. Lee out rebounded the Lobos almost 2 to 1. And if that wasn't enough, Lee seemed able to get the ball inside the Lobo defense almost at will throughout the one-sided contest. Lardue Duran and Yo Yo Goodley, when they decided to pass, had no trouble finding people like Harris, McGaha or Maudie Akins open underneath for easy buckets.

In the junior varsity tilt, a furious rally by Lee fell just short as the Lobos hung on for a 60-59 verdict. Monahans won the ball game at the free throw line. The Lobos attempted 38 freebies and connected on 17 while Lee managed to hit 9 of 21. Lee out-shot Monahans 25 to 21 from the field.

Tunya Mayberry hit 20 points and Faye Oudens gunned in 12 to lead the Rebels. Jolene Harris netted 15 points, Lisa Pena 14 points and Melody Holloway 13 points as the Lobos won for the second time in three games. Lee fell to 1-2 with the loss.

The Rebels are right back on the court tonight when the Maidens of Class 2-AAAA San Angelo Lakeview come calling at the Lee gym. The junior varsity tips off at 6 p.m. with the varsity contest slated for 7:30 p.m.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Former BC player found guilty of fixing games

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Boston College basketball player Rick Kuhn and four others were convicted of conspiracy to fix BC games in the 1978-79 season to profit their betting syndicate.

The government said the five had conspired to manipulate the scores of BC games so members of the group could beat the bookmakers' point spreads in betting.

Convicted of conspiracy to commit racketeering and sport bribery and violation of the Travel Act were Kuhn, 26, of Swissvale, Pa.; brothers Anthony and Rocco Peria, of Braddock Hills, Pa.; Paul Mazzei of Pittsburgh and James Burke of New York.

U.S. District Judge Henry Bramwell set Jan. 8, 1982 as the sentencing date. The defendants, who will appeal the verdicts, could receive a maximum of 30 years in prison and $45,000 in fines.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Roundfield, the power forward who led the Atlanta Hawks to three wins last week, was named Player of the Week in the National Basketball Association for the period ended Nov. 22.

Roundfield averaged 20 points and 13 rebounds per game in helping the Hawks beat Phoenix, New York and Indiana. He also had 10 blocked shots in the three games, shot 23-44 from the field for a .523 mark and made 14-16 free throws.

NEW YORK (AP) — Washington Capitals center Dennis Maruk, who scored four goals and added four assists in three games, was named the National Hockey League Player of the Week.

Maruk, who helped Washington to three victories last week, leads the Capitals with 26 points in 30 games.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Mathews Motshwarateu and his teammates captured five of the top eight spots as the University of Texas-El Paso won its fourth straight NCAA cross country championship.

Motshwarateu captured the 1981 individual title by recording a time of 28 minutes, 45.6 seconds on the 10,000-meter Echo Hills Golf Course in Wichita.

Betty Springs of North Carolina State won the individual women's title, and Virginia took team honors.

Springs finished the 5,000-meter course in 16:19. Her closest rival was Leann Warren of Oregon, whose time was 16:25.3.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Veteran stock car driver Darrell Waltrip has claimed his first NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National driving championship, edging Bobby Allison by 53 points.

Waltrip, who finished sixth in Sunday's Winston Western 500, amassed 4,880 points, while Allison, who won the race at Riverside International Raceway, compiled 4,827.

NEW YORK (AP) — Office Wife, $6.80, posted a 3 1/4-length victory over In Rhythm in the $24,000 Straight Deal purse at Aqueduct.

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Princess Roberta, $11.80, beat Very Valid by 3 1/4-lengths in the $12,000 Aglimmer Purse at Laurel Race Course.

CHICAGO (AP) — Lamont Inafog, $21.80, romped to a seven-length triumph over Maid of Magic in the $16,200 Lost Message Purse at Hawthorne.

UNLV head football coach plans to run apple orchard

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Tony Knap, football coach at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas for the past six years, resigned Monday, saying he planned to retire and run an apple orchard.

Knap, 66, led the Rebels to a 46-20 record, but saw hopes of a strong 1981 season dashed when 13 players were sidelined with injuries.

UNLV currently is 5-6 following Saturday's 24-21 victory over the Air Force Academy. Knap bows out following the season finale Saturday at Texas-El Paso.

School athletic officials said a search would begin immediately for Knap's successor, with a replacement expected to be named in about three weeks.

Fry met the press, Iowa a contender

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali got paid Monday as scheduled "and at this point in time it would take an act of God if the fight didn't go on," said James Cornelius, president of Sports International Ltd., promoter of Ali's fight against Trevor Berbic.

There have been rumors that the fight, scheduled for Dec. 31 at Nassau, Bahamas, would not be held. "It's been in a rocky position from day one," Cornelius acknowledged in a telephone interview from Nassau Monday. "But we stood firm, and Ali's standing firmly behind us. Ali has been in Nassau since Sept. 21."

"Ali got a payment Monday," said Cornelius. "He has received money in a total of three payments. The rest comes in a letter of credit, which he gets after the fight."

Cornelius would not say how much Ali has received or what his total purse would be. The figure is rumored to be at least $1 million.

Cornelius said the money to stage the fight has come from private businessmen and that the promoter does not expect to make or lose much money.

"We're looking for one thing, to give Muhammad Ali a chance to show he just had a bad night (when he lost to Larry Holmes on Oct. 2, 1980)," Cornelius said.

"Our problems from the very beginning were astronomical," he said. "There was a credibility problem. There has been media opposition to Ali, who will be 40 on Jan. 17, fighting again since the former three-time heavyweight champion did not answer the bell for the 11th round against Holmes."

There have been questions about Ali's physical condition, but he has checked out to the satisfaction of the boxing commission in the Bahamas and has received a license.

5-5A coaches pick v-ball team

Midland Lee's Janice Baugh was named co-coach of the year while Holly Randle, Midland High, and Pam Landers, Midland Lee, named to the 12-player District 5-5A girls volleyball team selected by the coaches.

Midland Lee's Lisa Burnett was picked as Sophomore of the Year.

A&M coach, QB status remains undetermined

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The status of Texas A&M University's quarterback — as well as its football coach — remains undetermined, officials said.

"Just let me play this game against Texas first," Tom Wilson said Monday when asked about reports he would be removed as coach. "Until after that, I don't want to even think or talk about it."

And it could be Thursday before the status of quarterback Gary Kubiak is known, Wilson conceded.

Kubiak, whose right shoulder was badly bruised late in the game against Texas Christian Saturday, has not yet tried to throw a football, Wilson added.

"I'm a positive thinker and I think Gary will be ready. Knowing Gary and his mental toughness, if anyone can get ready to play by Thursday, it is Gary," he said.

The Aggies lost two other players to injury in the TCU game. Safety Chris Brown received a fractured vertebrae in his neck and never can play contact sports again. Reserve flanker Burnis Simon fractured an ankle and will undergo surgery.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Three years ago, Hayden Fry was given a challenge: take a University of Iowa football team that hasn't seen a winning season since 1961 and make it a contender.

Fry had revived losing programs at Southern Methodist and North Texas, but at Iowa, he was moving to a school where four previous coaches had failed in precisely what he was being asked to do.

Undaunted, the smooth-talking Texan rolled up his sleeves and went to work. The Hawkeyes went 5-6 and 4-7 his first two years, extending the school's string of non-winning seasons to 19, but this year, they turned the corner.

Iowa won a share of the Big Ten Conference championship and earned its first trip to the Rose Bowl in 23 years. It's an accomplishment that surprised even Fry.

"I knew we'd get to the top of the mountain, but not this quick," he said. "It's just incredible. Possibly no one except the players knew we could do it. You can't win if you don't believe and have faith."

Iowa and Ohio State will share the Big Ten title with 9-3 records, and both are 8-3 overall. Iowa was given the Rose Bowl berth because Big Ten rules state that in case of a tie, the team that has gone the longest without playing in the New Year's Day classic becomes the league's representative.

An Iowa team hasn't played in the Rose Bowl since Jan. 1, 1969, when the Hawkeyes whipped California 28-12. Iowa also won its only other Rose Bowl appearance, beating Oregon State 35-19 on Jan. 1, 1957.

"Among the people I feel happiest for are those loyal Iowa fans who have been denied for so long," Fry said. "I'd say those people were a great motivating factor to our players this season."

Iowa is expected to take a large following to Pasadena for the game against Pac-10 champion Washington. The University of Iowa Alumni Association has lined up 28 charter aircraft, and officials estimate as many as 25,000 to 30,000 Hawkeye supporters will make the trip west.

Iowa accomplished its turnaround this year behind a veteran defense that keyed upsets of Nebraska, UCLA and Michigan.

Lee holds on to beat Lubbock Dunbar 62-61

LUBBOCK — Midland Lee guard Randy Pepper connected on a pair of free throws with 58 seconds left in the game to give the Rebels a six-point lead over AAAA Lubbock Dunbar. What he or his teammates didn't know at the time was that those two points proved to be the difference in the game.

Dunbar rallied in the final minute of play to cut Lee's lead to two points with about five seconds left on the clock. Guard R. Comacho was fouled at that point and he went to the line for two shots to tie the game. He hit the first and missed the second giving Lee a 62-61 victory and a 2-0 record.

The Rebels opened up a five-point lead in the first quarter of play, 15-10 but couldn't increase it before the half as they went into the locker room up 29-24. Dunbar took control of the game in the third quarter by outscoring Lee 20-14 which set up the final quarter showdown which Lee won 19-17.

"I thought Kenneth Brown helped us with his rebounding. Randy Pepper made some key passes and key shots and Steve Cherryholms contributed with his great defense," said Rebel head coach Paul Stueckler. "I thought it was a very hard fought ball game."

Andre Van Bruen led the Rebels in the scoring department with 17 points while Pepper added 16 and Alvin Dunson 14. For Dunbar, Comacho scored 27 and M. Thomason added 10 each.

The Midland Lee boys will have a few days of rest before their next match-up which is on Friday in the Tall City Tournament at Chaparral Center.

Midland Lee (6): Barry Blackwell, 13-3-4; Randy Pepper, 4-3-1-6; Alvin Dunson, 4-3-1-4; Chris Smith, 3-2-4-4; Andre Van Bruen, 5-1-4-17; Steve Cherryholms, 1-4-6-7; Kenneth Brown, 1-1-3-3. Totals: 26-18-35.
Lubbock Dunbar (0): R. Comacho, 8-3-3-27; Y. Harris, 2-4-4-4; P. Patterson, 2-1-3-3; P. Young, 2-0-3-3; R. Costa, 1-0-2-2; R. Bryant, 1-1-0-2; M. Thomason, 4-3-3-10. Totals: 26-13-35.

B-52s bomb desert as climax to Bright Star

By ALEXANDER G. HIGGINS
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Six B-52 bombers were flying 15,000 miles non-stop today, from the United States and back, to drop 40 tons of bombs in the Egyptian desert as the climax of a month of joint military maneuvers.

Loaded with 500-pound bombs, the big American bombers were refueling once over the Atlantic on the 15-hour flight from Minot Air Force Base in North Dakota. They were to fly in at less than 1,000 feet, drop 27 bombs each, climb back to normal flying altitude and head for home.

The demonstration of long-range air power was part of Operation Bright Star, a month-long test in Egypt, Sudan, Somalia and Oman of the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda denounced the maneuvers today as "the biggest provocation" against peace and stability in the Middle East. It said Bright Star was "tactical testing of methods of invasion...to intimidate progressive forces of the region."

The bombing was the culmination of a three-day battlefield exercise involving 4,000 U.S. troops. It began Sunday with a helicopter assault by 600 American paratroopers and 400 Egyptian soldiers on two hills in the desert near Cairo West Airbase, 18 miles west of Cairo.

Also taking part were Soviet-built Badger bombers and MiG jetfighters and French-made Mirage fighters from the Egyptian air force plus U.S. A-10 and F-16 jets.

Two American AWACS — airborne warning and control system — planes were assigned to provide radar warning of the bombers' approach and to serve as aerial command posts.

Egyptian Defense Minister Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala said the exercises "are a rehearsal for a possible joint operation" to protect the oilfields of the Persian Gulf.

"If any threat takes place in the Persian Gulf, I think the United States should do something to help those countries protect themselves from any invasion," he said.

He added, however, that Egypt and the United States would not give help to a threatened country unless the country asked for it.

Two American soldiers take a close look Sunday at a Soviet-made T-62 tank, one of those used by Egyptian armed forces during military exercises in the Western Desert near Cairo. Egyptian and American troops are participating in a joint military exercise called "Bright Star" in the desert.

New military command created in Caribbean

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new U.S. military command for the Caribbean will have no permanently assigned forces, but will be authorized to call on naval units in the area and could utilize elements of the Army and Air Force if necessary.

The upgrading of what had been a small task force based in Key West, Fla., was announced Monday by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. The task force was established two years ago by former President Carter in a largely symbolic response to the presence of a Soviet brigade in Cuba.

Monday's action apparently was intended to signal concern about increasing leftist strength and communist arms shipments in Central America.

Under the new arrangement, the Joint Chiefs of Staff could provide elements of the Army and Air Force for the new Caribbean command to supplement the naval units. Officers and other military personnel of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines will be assigned to the staff of the new command, the Pentagon said.

The announcement comes as senior Reagan administration officials are publicly expressing alarm at what Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. described Sunday as a "drift toward totalitarianism" in leftist-ruled Nicaragua and reported outside arms support for anti-government guerrillas in El Salvador.

The Pentagon declined to say whether the creation of the new command is related to possible military options, although officials acknowledged the action "reflects the continuing U.S. interest in the vital Caribbean area."

Rear Adm. Robert P. McKenzie, head of the task force created by Carter, was named commander of U.S. forces in the Caribbean and his headquarters will remain at Key West. The upgrading will become effective Dec. 1.

The command's area of responsibility will include waters and islands of the Caribbean Sea, Gulf of Mexico and "portions of the Pacific Ocean bordering Central America," the Pentagon said. That will give the new command responsibility for waters off troubled El Salvador, which is on the Pacific side of Central America.

As part of the streamlining, the Pentagon said, the Antilles Defense Command in Puerto Rico will be disbanded but a Caribbean Naval Command headquarters will remain there.

Haig says totalitarian Nicaraguan regime is threat

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Jose Lopez Portillo and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. were expected to discuss the "radicalization of the Nicaraguan regime" during a one-hour meeting today.

Haig, who returns home today, told reporters traveling on his plane from Washington on Monday that he would stress with Mexican officials how the "totalitarian regime in Nicaragua comes as a threat to peace and stability and peaceful social and economic changes."

In a veiled reference to reports that the United States is considering military options against Nicaragua and Cuba, Lopez Portillo told a meeting of Latin American parliamentary leaders on Monday that the region "is living through a time of very severe testing" in terms of the willingness of nations to coexist without meddling in each other's affairs.

Despite the various ideologies which set nations apart, Lopez Portillo said Monday, "the free determination of peoples, respect for their sovereignty, the peaceful solution of controversies, equality among states and non-intervention" are principles that should be respected by all.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said Haig's talk with Mexican Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda on Nicaragua "reflected a common perception" by the United States and Mexico, even if the countries differed sharply in how to deal with the problem.

Mexico maintains close ties with both Cuba and the revolutionary regime in Nicaragua. The Reagan administration claims both countries are responsible for the shipment of arms to leftist guerrillas in Central America.

An estimated 1,000 leftists demonstrated outside the U.S. Embassy here Sunday to protest Haig's visit and the Reagan administration's anti-communist stance in Latin America. The demonstrators called for support of Cuba and Nicaragua and leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

As a security measure, U.S. Embassy officials have tried to keep Haig's visit as low-key as possible by restricting his schedule and keeping details of his movements secret.

Majority favors a halt to building of nuclear power plants

NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of Americans think no more nuclear power plants should be built in the United States, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

A majority of those polled also opposed closing existing nuclear power plants until questions about safety are answered.

Majorities also said it would worry them to live within 10 miles of a nuclear power plant, and think the future energy needs of the United States would be better served by more conservation and expansion of other energy sources rather than by expansion of nuclear power.

The nationwide telephone poll of 1,602 adults was conducted Nov. 16-17 in a scientific random sampling.

On the question of whether more nuclear power plants should be built, 56 percent said no, 32 percent said yes and 12 percent were not sure.

That represents a dramatic turnaround from 1977, the last time that question was asked on an NBC News poll. Then, 63 percent said more nuclear power plants should be built.

In the current AP-NBC News poll, 51 percent opposed closing existing nuclear power plants until questions about safety are answered, while 39 percent favored closing all of them and 10 percent were not sure.

Those results are consistent with the responses in April 1979, the last time the AP-NBC News poll asked about closing existing nuclear power plants until safety questions are answered. That poll was conducted one month after the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant.

In the latest poll, men split evenly over whether new plants should be built but two-thirds of the women respondents said more nuclear power plants should not be built.

The anti-nuclear power movement claimed a victory last week when Nuclear Regulatory Commission suspended the license of California's Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant, the site of frequent demonstrations this year.

The NRC said it wants additional tests conducted to determine the safety of the plant.

On the question of closing existing plants, men opposed it by a 2-1 margin, while women split 48-39 in favor of mass closings.

Sentiment for both closing all plants and not building new ones was stronger on the East Coast and the West Coast.

Robert Diaz, the nurse for months linked to a string of mysterious Riverside County Hospital deaths was arrested Monday evening in Riverside, Calif., and booked on 12 counts of murder.

Nurse arrested in hospital deaths

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A male nurse has been arrested and booked for investigation of murder in the deaths of 12 patients at two hospitals who received massive overdoses of the heart drug Lidocaine, authorities said.

Prosecutors will seek the death penalty against Robert R. Diaz, 44, Assistant Riverside County District Attorney Thomas Hollenhorst said. Diaz was arrested at his apartment Monday night on a court warrant by authorities from Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

He was held in the Riverside County jail and his arraignment was scheduled for today.

Diaz was booked for investigation of 11 murders involving patients at Community Hospital of the Valleys in Perris and one patient at San Geronimo Pass Hospital in Banning. The deaths between March 30 and April 25 allegedly were caused by massive overdoses of the heart drug Lidocaine.

The authorities had been investigating the mysterious deaths for six months. Twenty-seven deaths were investigated, but authorities eventually attributed several to natural causes.

"WE FELT THAT WE HAD zeroed in on the right target right from the beginning, although we still had a lot of work to do to come up with the actual mode of death," said Riverside County Coroner William Dykes.

Hollenhorst said prosecutors also will reveal evidence allegedly implicating Diaz in the death of a 13th person, at Chino Community Hospital in Chino on March 25. Although that case will not be prosecuted by Riverside authorities, the evidence will be used to show a "common plan and design" in all of the deaths, he added.

"A host of circumstances" led to the arrest, he said, including Diaz's access to the patients, the time the doses were administered and toxicological findings.

The investigation has revealed that all of the patients died during early-morning shifts that Diaz worked in the coronary-care and intensive-care units at the three hospitals, Hollenhorst said. All allegedly had been overdosed with similarly high levels of Lidocaine.

The evidence indicates that Lidocaine-induced heart attacks caused "basically" all the deaths, Hollenhorst said.

The patients experienced similar symptoms before death — dizziness, intoxicated appearance, violent seizures, high acid content in the blood and the body turning blue from the chest up, he said.

Hollenhorst said the motive for the alleged killings is still under investigation.

He said some physical evidence had been uncovered, but he refused to elaborate.

Narcotics and other items seized at Diaz's home in a search in May — later ruled inadmissible as evidence in a San Bernardino drug case — "is not being used at this time to support his arrest or prosecution," Hollenhorst said.

Community Hospital was closed in May following a visit from the state Department of Health Services, which licenses hospitals. Diaz was interviewed during the deaths.

Man suing attorney for not showing up

DALLAS (AP) — Robert Mootz's divorce case has dissolved into arguments about lawyers' courtesies to each other and may be headed for a hearing before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mootz, 54, is suing his attorney for not showing up at his divorce trial, where Mootz says a judge awarded most of his property to his wife.

But the lawyer, Brian A. Eberstein, claims the ex-wife's attorney told him the trial had been rescheduled. And Eberstein's former partner, W. J. "Bill" Morris, says lawyer courtesies were violated when a judgment was issued without Eberstein's presence. Edmund Burke, the ex-wife's attorney, denies he misled Eberstein.

Meanwhile, Mootz's request for a retrial by the state district court has been turned down by the trial judge, Patrick Guillot and the Court of civil Appeals.

The Texas Supreme Court turned down the case, saying it does not hear appeals of divorce trials, and the U.S. Supreme Court has been asked to force the Texas court to hear it.

Eberstein says the suit, "as ridiculous as it is," could ruin him professionally. "It is one big headache, very disturbing, terribly unfair by Mootz, and you can't get something like this off your mind," he says.

Morris said divorce lawyers settle cases without the other side being present "all the time. But a lawyer will never get a default judgment when another lawyer is involved and can't make it to court. He'll just have the hearing reset. He won't make the judge rule. That's the code."

But Burke denied he ever mentioned a changed court date and says the whole problem is the result of a misunderstanding.

Court reverses judge on UIL summer camp rule

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has reversed the Texas judge that struck down as unconstitutional a University Interscholastic League rule that a high school athlete who attends summer camp for athletic training is ineligible for varsity athletics for one year.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court said the League's rule is not premised on impermissible, suspect ground and does not impinge upon the exercise of constitutional rights.

U.S. District Judge

George E. Cline had declared the rule illegal because it infringed on "protected parental authority in the child-rearing arena."

However, the 5th Circuit said the Constitution does not give parents a constitutional right to send children to athletic camps and doesn't give children the fundamental right to attend them.

Oil rigs pounded in North Sea storm

By MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Battling 40-foot waves on the North Sea and 90-mph winds, helicopters rescued seven seamen from a listing Norwegian freighter today and attempted to evacuate 70 people from a British oil rig adrift, officials said.

Residents along the Danish North Sea coast were evacuated from low-lying areas because officials said they feared high seas might break through dikes and cause tides up to 18 feet above normal.

It was the first time that section of coast was evacuated since a storm lashed West Jutland in January, 1976, authorities said.

One of the sailors aboard the Norwegian freighter Soerstrand was "lifeless" when pulled aboard the Danish helicopter, the Danish coast guard reported. It was unknown whether the man was revived.

A Royal Air Force spokesman said the British rig Transworld 58 broke free from eight of its anchors and was dragging the one remaining about 150 miles east of the Scottish oil port of Aberdeen, the British news agency Press Association reported.

The spokesman at the RAF Rescue and Coordination Center said two chartered helicopters had been sent to transfer 42 of the Transworld 58 crew to another rig 50 miles away, The Auk.

"Two other helicopters are standing by at Aberdeen in case it is decided to evacuate Transworld 58 completely," the spokesman said.

The Auk reported the other rig had drifted about half a mile to the southeast, the news agency said.

Press Association reported earlier that the Norwegian supply rig Phillips SS, with 112 men aboard, broke loose from its anchors 30 miles north of the British rig and was in danger of colliding with another rig with 82 men aboard until a tug got hold of it.

The news agency said a Norwegian Coast Guard spokesman at Stavanger, Norway's North Sea oil center, told it the tug checked the drifting Phillips SS when it was within 250 feet of the production rig Tor.

"The situation is now under control," the spokesman said.

But in Oslo, the Norwegian capital, Phillips Petroleum Co. spokesman Sander Bull-Gjertsen said only one of the supply rig's eight anchors had broken loose, the rig was never adrift, and there was no danger of collision with the Tor.

"To help stabilize the supply rig, the tug Tender Power has a wire fixed to the supply rig. Still another tug is standing by, but there is no need to evacuate the supply rig's 112 crew members," Bull-Gjertsen told the Norwegian radio.

The two rigs were reported anchored to the sea bed about 600 feet apart when the storm hit. They are in the Ekofisk oilfield, about 180 miles east of Aberdeen, where another Norwegian rig converted to a dormitory, the Alexander L. Kieiland, overturned March 27, 1980, with the loss of 123 lives.

The Danish Coast Guard's operations command reported the Danish Underground Consortium was preparing to evacuate oil platform workers in the Danish sector of the North Sea.

The command also said the ship Maersk Trader had lost its steering and was adrift about four nautical miles west of Esbjerg. A Coast Guard spokesman said helicopters from Maersk, a major Danish shipping firm and member of the consortium, and West Germany were giving assistance and that the situation was "under control."

Judge to rule next week in oil battle

By HENRY S. ACKERMAN
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ohio's attorney general says allowing Mobil Corp. to take over the Ohio-based Marathon Oil Co. might encourage the international oil giants to swallow medium-size oil companies.

"I share the view of many who think that this unwelcome takeover by Mobil could well set off a 'domino effect,'" Attorney General William Brown said Monday in Washington, while in Cleveland lawyers delivered final arguments in a federal court hearing on Mobil's proposed $5.1 billion takeover of Marathon.

Marathon, the 17th-largest oil company, has asked U.S. District Judge John Manos in Cleveland for a permanent injunction on antitrust grounds blocking No. 2 Mobil from buying any more stock in the Findlay, Ohio-based Marathon.

U.S. Steel Corp. made a counteroffer last week of $6.5 billion for Marathon.

Manos indicated he won't rule until next week on whether to continue a temporary ban on purchases of Marathon stock by Mobil, lawyers said.

Patrick McCartan, Marathon's chief counsel, told the judge that allowing Mobil to go ahead with its two-stage, stock and cash offer would touch off more oil company mergers.

"The trigger can be pulled right here in Cleveland if this acquisition is permitted to proceed," said McCartan.

Mobil's chief counsel, Sanford Litvack, replied that McCartan's argument would lead the judge and others to "the never-never land of speculation as to who would do what to whom and how."

Brown made his comments Monday in testimony before a congressional committee studying Mobil's offer.

Brown, on behalf of Ohio and its consumers, filed an antitrust injunction request against Mobil and its brokerage firm last week in a separate attempt to block the takeover bid. A hearing is scheduled for Dec. 9.

Marathon's central contention before Manos was that competition in the production, refining, and wholesale and retail marketing of oil would be substantially lessened if the merger were approved.

McCartan said that within the context, the judge should define the "relevant area of competition" between the two companies as being at the local and state levels, instead of at the national level.

Mobil contended the entire United States is the only geographic area relevant to the suit. Litvack said that under any Mobil-Marathon combination, nationwide competition would not be affected illegally, nor would the merger create illegal barriers for others to enter the business.

"Where there are bucks to be made, people can come in," Litvack said. He was replying to Marathon's allegation the merger would make it impossible for newcomers to compete at the oil refinery level, a stage of the petroleum industry considered to be a key for any large competitive company to enter.

McCartan also charged that market shares of a Mobil-Marathon combination would exceed U.S. government guidelines in all phases of the industry. Litvack denied that, saying the guidelines are not law.

DOE's study on CO2 in Permian Basin released

BARTLESVILLE, OKLA. — Guided by the keen industry interest generated by the first broad study it sponsored on enhanced oil recovery by carbon-dioxide flooding, the U.S. Department of Energy has just published the results of a broader, much larger study on the Permian Basin.

DOE's first study collected, categorized, and interpreted data on all past and on-going CO2-flood field tests.

The new study, also conducted by Gray Federal Inc., Houston, under contract to DOE, aims at identifying reservoirs in the Permian Basin which are potential candidates for this enhanced recovery technique.

Single copies of the report are available free from the Bartlesville Energy Technology Center, Attention Bill Linville, P.O. Box 1398, Bartlesville, OK 74005.

Prospective reservoirs for CO2 flooding are the carbonates — limestone, dolomites and reefs. The bulk of the large fields of this type occur in the United States in the Permian Basin of West Texas and southeast New Mexico and in the Rocky Mountain States.

The report just released identifies reservoirs in the Permian Basin believed to offer potential of CO2 flooding. The second portion of the study covering Rocky Mountain fields is still in progress and will be published when completed.

The Permian Basin study found 216 reservoirs in 174 fields meeting the study's base criteria after eliminating pools so small as to be clearly uneconomic for CO2 flooding.

Principal guidelines for selecting these reservoirs included: (1) average formation permeability of at least 2 millidarcies, (2) average current oil saturation of at least 38 percent, (3) oil gravity of 30 degrees API or higher, and (4) oil viscosity under 10 centipoises. The study, in addition, aimed at weeding out reservoirs with extremely high-permeability thief zones.

The oil target in the Permian Basin reservoirs which met the basic qualifications is a large one indeed. Original oil in place in the 216 reservoirs is estimated at 55.47 billion barrels, of which about 12.9 billion barrels had been produced through 1979. Applying a 10 percent (of original oil) recovery factor across-the-board, the report puts the potential additional recovery from these reservoirs via CO2 flooding at 5.5 billion barrels. For comparison, that's about one-fifth of current total U.S. reserves of crude.

By far the largest number (129) of the selected carbonate reservoirs are of Permian age. And they contain the overwhelming bulk of the oil. The Permian group includes 61 giant fields originally containing 45 billion barrels of 28 percent of the total for the 216 reservoirs listed.

Of the Permian Basin oil resources, 67 percent is in the San Andres and Grayburg pays; 13 percent in the Clear Fork; 10 percent in the Pennsylvanian; and 5 percent in the Devonian.

The study lists the San Andres and Clear Fork (Leonard) reservoirs as "the most promising targets" for CO2 flooding. But it says Pennsylvanian and Devonian reservoirs "also contain substantial initial oil in place and should not be overlooked as candidates."

The Permian Basin report actually includes four volumes. The first lists the fields, presents the selection method and procedures, and contains summary tabulations of geological and engineering data for the fields. The final three volumes contain maps, cross sections, logs and lithology, and a wealth of detailed geological and reservoir data on each of the 216 Permian Basin reservoirs.

Midland firm extends Lea field

Samedan Oil Corp., Midland, has completed a 1 1/4 mile southwest extension to the Gladiola, Southwest (Devonian) field of Lea County, two miles south of Gladiola.

The No. 1 Speight flowed 638 barrels of oil and 19 barrels of water in 24 hours through a 14/64 inch choke. The gravity of the oil was not reported and the gas to oil ratio measured 376 to 1.

The total depth is 12,106 feet, with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 12,136 feet. The flowing tubing pressure was 620 pounds per square inch.

The wellsite is in section 3, township 13 south, range 37 east.

Panels told merger could increase gasoline prices

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Mobil's attempt to take over Marathon Oil could increase prices at gasoline pumps by eliminating suppliers committed to the independent, non-branded discount market, two congressional committees were told Monday.

"The non-branded independent station is at the cutting edge of price competition," Jack A. Blum of the Independent Gasoline Marketers Council told a joint hearing of the Senate and House Commerce Committees.

"Because low prices attract customers and build volume, non-branded independents constantly test the price-volume relationship by selling at the lowest price at which they can operate profitably."

"If they can find low-priced gasoline at the refinery level, their low street prices will force the branded station prices down," he said.

Blum predicted that if Mobil succeeds in the takeover "there will be a wave of other mergers in the industry." He noted that Mobil refuses to deal with independent companies, whose prices average two to eight cents less per gallon than gasoline sold by the major companies.

The Federal Trade Commission is investigating Mobil Oil Corp.'s attempt to acquire Marathon Oil Co. for $5.1 billion. U.S. Steel Corp., in a move welcomed by Marathon, offered last week to buy 51 percent of Marathon's stock.

The FTC's antitrust chief was scheduled to testify but did not appear because of the lack of appropriations for the FTC and other government agencies.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate committee, said Mobil officials declined to testify. Packwood, who said he opposes the merger, said in exasperation, "Mobil has 212,000 employees, one of whom surely could be here."

Ohio Attorney General William J. Brown, who has opposed the merger in court, said the takeover would drive up prices in areas where Marathon sells gasoline to small retailers.

"Off-brand gasoline serves as an important check against the major oil companies," Brown said. He predicted Mobil's takeover of Marathon would end gasoline price wars in Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois, where independent companies resell Marathon products.

But Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich.,

chairman of the House committee, said if Mobil is thwarted in the takeover attempt "it will simply look for another company to prey upon. The result, no matter what, will be one less independent competitor."

In a statement to be delivered later, a Marathon official said the Mobil takeover would hurt competition in its market area and violate antitrust laws.

Charles H. Barre, Marathon vice president, said, "Mobil's hostile offer drove us up the wall," but that U.S. Steel's offer was "fair and reasonable."

Brown said acquisition by U.S. Steel would allow Marathon to remain a separate entity and would avoid antitrust problems. In addition, employees of the Ohio-based Marathon company could be secure in their careers, he said.

State crude production set at 100 percent in December

CORPUS CHRISTI — The Railroad Commission Thursday set the Texas oil production rate for December at the market demand factor of 100 percent for the 58th month in a row and the 114th time since the commission first went to the ceiling level in April 1972.

Commissioners Mack Wallace and Buddy Temple directed the continuance of the maximum statewide allowable after receiving and reviewing purchaser nominations for Texas oil in December totaling 2,476,246 barrels per day, an increase of 8,125 barrels daily when compared with November 1981 buyer requests. December 1980 nominations totaled 2,559,372 barrels daily.

Next month's permissible rate of output is calculated to average 3,058,124 BOD with actual production estimated at 2,41 million BOD. The maximum allowable applies to all but 10 fields in Texas that are assigned lower legal rates of flow for conservation purposes. Actual production in December 1980 was 2,494,695 barrels daily.

Wallace reported that December 1981 nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totaled 24,580,325 MCFD. Gas nominations for November amounted to 25,028,939 MCFD. December 1980 gas nominations totaled 24,295,893 MCFD.

The next statewide oil and gas hearing will be Thursday, Dec. 17, at 9 a.m. in Austin at the Quality Inn.

Marathon seeking more Libyan oil

Marathon Oil Co. said Monday it is negotiating with Libya to increase purchases of crude oil from that North Africa nation, and a trade journal reported that Italy is considering raising its crude purchases from Libya.

Marathon's disclosure followed a report by Conoco Inc. on Friday that Libya had offered a reduction of about $1 to about $36 a barrel, "on an interim basis," in the price Conoco pays for the crude it helps produce for Libya.

Conoco called Libya's offer a "significant move" but added that it was "still not competitive enough in the current crude oil market." Conoco said it had no immediate plans to buy any Libyan oil at the new price.

It was reported in London on Sunday that Libya's official news agency had quoted the Libyan oil secretariat as denying it had offered a price reduction. "These false reports are designed to weaken the unity of OPEC," the news agency JANA said. Under the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' recent pricing agreement, Libya was allowed to charge up to $4 a barrel above the cartel's benchmark of $34. It set its official selling price at $37.50.

RRC reports June Texas refinery yields

Railroad Commission chairman Jim Nugent announced recently that sixty-eight refineries in Texas processed 128,346,360 barrels of crude oil and hydrocarbon blends during June 1981.

This volume compares with 132,056,069 barrels in the previous June, the commission's oil and gas division reported in its monthly recapitulation of Texas refinery operations. Inputs of crude oil and blends totaled 138,487,860 barrels in May 1981.

Texas refineries ran 103,751,644 barrels of crude oil in June compared to 107,898,326 barrels in June 1980 and 108,754,957 barrels in May 1981.

Products manufactured in June 1981 totaled 128,075,331 barrels, down from 134,728,894 barrels in the same month the previous year, and down from the 136,955,903 barrels in May 1981.

June 1981 manufacture of motor gasoline totaled 49,285,443 barrels, compared to 53,430,629 barrels in the year-earlier month and 50,508,683 barrels in May of 1981.

Texas refineries manufactured 8,323,497 barrels of home heating oil in June 1981 — a decrease of 779,954 barrels from the year-earlier volume. May 1981 output was 8,683,216 barrels.

The CD for All Savers... From First National

Now, First National offers a program for "all savers" to enjoy savings with high interest yield plus a tax benefit. It's called the All Savers Certificate of Deposit.

Here's how it works: From now until December 31, 1982, you may invest as little as $500 in a First National All Savers CD for a maturity of one year. During that year, interest earned by the CD may be excluded from your taxable income up to a maximum $2,000 for couples filing joint tax returns, $1,000 for those filing separately. The current annual rate is 10.77%.

The interest rate on the CD will change every 4 weeks, but the rate in effect at the time you invest is fixed for the full one year term. Although the interest rate is not compounded, you may receive interest payments monthly, quarterly or upon maturity. If the CD principal is withdrawn prior to maturity, the tax exclusion is forfeited and there is substantial penalty. Deposits are insured by the FDIC.

Compare First National's All Savers Certificate to other investment alternatives, consider your tax plan, then visit one of our CD representatives in our main lobby.

Landmark Smoker Study:

Merit Takes Taste Honors.

Former higher tar smokers acclaim MERIT “Best-tasting low tar I’ve tried.”

The most rigorous MERIT research to date has just been completed.

Result: MERIT smokers confirm taste a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Beats Toughest Competitors.

In the second part of this study, new tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Cheri Hill, fund raising chairman for the Midland chapter of the American Diabetes Association (ADA), presents an appreciation plaque to Barney Barnes of the Southland Corporation Charity Committee. Employees of the Southland Corporation recently donated $1,000 to the Midland chapter of the ADA. November is national American Diabetes Month.

November is national American Diabetes Month

November has been designated as American Diabetes Month nationally, and the Midland chapter of the ADA is trying to raise $10,000 for diabetic research, continuing educational and many other programs now being offered in Midland.

"There are many families in our community that are affected in one way or another by this disease," said Cheri Hill, fund raising chairman for the Midland chapter. "A person born today has a one out of five chance of having diabetes in his or her lifetime. Currently, over ten million Americans are diabetic, and unfortunately this number is growing."

Mrs. Hill noted that diabetes is not a visible disease, and a person may not be aware of its severity. Diabetes is the third leading cause of death by disease, the leading cause of blindness, the leading cause of kidney failure, the leading cause of amputations and one of the leading causes of cardiovascular diseases, according to Mrs. Hill.

For further information or to make a donation, contact the West Texas Regional Office of the ADA at 2200 N. Big Spring, Suite "J", or call 682-0314.

Video: An expert shares his secrets

By GREG GROSS
Copley News Service

Combat in the stratosphere, one against 13.

Even for a practiced veteran like Ray Giguette, death seemed certain. But Giguette was expressionless, calm as he worked the controls of his ship.

Electronically guided missiles were streaking down on him even before the enemy was within range of his own weapons. Giguette coolly side-slipped the incoming fire and waited for the enemy to come into range. He would take the enemy's lead ship with a head-on attack and then pick off the rest.

Finally, the enemy was in his range. Giguette positioned himself on the leader and pressed the red button marked "FIRE."

A white-hot blast left his nose cannon and caught the lead ship on the left wing. The entire craft exploded in a burst of red. A clean kill. Giguette kept firing.

The ship positioned behind the leader exploded, as did the No. 3 ship on the left. But now the enemy was yawing back and forth, evading him. He continued to fire, but now, he was missing. And the enemy was getting closer.

Suddenly, flanking fire was coming in from the right now. He side-slipped to the left to evade it. Another burst. This time from the left! Giguette pulled back hard to the right and into more incoming fire.

There was a blast of fiery red, a grinding explosion. And 24-year-old Ray Giguette of Downey, Calif., was dead.

But even in death, he was calm. He fished another token out of his pocket, fed it into the Astro Fighters video game, and renewed the battle.

In the world of video games, latest arena in the battle of Man versus Machine, Giguette has spent a year developing an edge for himself, collecting tips on 10 of the more favored — and frustrating — video games from electronic arcade enthusiasts as old as 22 and as young as 12.

He has compiled his findings into a small paperback book entitled simply "How to Win at Video Games," published by Martin Press in Torrance, Calif. Another book, with insiders' tips on how to outwit the computer chips in 10 more games, is in the works.

Giguette, who holds a bachelor's degree in business computers from California State University, Dominguez Hills, sees himself as an ally of the consumer.

He's hoping his book will enable video game addicts like himself to play better, thus earning more free plays and thereby slowing the games' consumption of their quarters and dollar bills.

"At a quarter each time, it really gets expensive each time you play," he said. "I started thinking about how to get more for my money. There are special secrets you can't learn just by playing the games."

For each of the 10 games on which he writes, Giguette includes a brief description of the game, an interview with an expert — usually identified only by a first name — and a list of suggested tactics.

Those who take on Space Invaders, for example, are advised to "destroy whole columns, especially the two end columns."

Some other tips on games include:

— Space Invaders: "After the first two waves, concentrate less on the saucers and more on the aliens."

— Missile Command: "Begin your defense with a saturation line across the screen, then pick off the remaining targets."

— Pac-Man: "Eat an energizer when at least three monsters are close behind."

Other games Giguette investigated are Asteroids, Berzerk, Armor Attack, Astro Invader, Phoenix and Galaxian.

For the dedicated video gamesman, such advice is a matter of dollars and cents, if not "life and death."

After spending a year's time — and by his own estimate, about $600 — researching his book, Giguette says a video addict like himself can expect a steady diet of more and tougher electronic opponents.

"I think Pong was about the first. It was very, very simple and people got bored," he said. "The trend now is to make them as hard as possible without frustrating people from the very beginning."

His personal favorite video pastime is a game called Battle Zone, a combination of war in space and tank combat. He chose it for its realism.

"You view the game through a periscope, as if you're inside the tank," he says. "There are three-dimensional figures and the controls are like real controls."

DEAR ABBY:

Sweet smell eludes woman plagued by odor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You are the only person I know who can help me. I have a problem that didn't just start. I've had it all my life, but lately it's really been getting to me. I stink. You know, body odor. I suppose I should try to find a doctor who deals with this sort of thing, but because of my embarrassment and inability to talk openly about it, I've gotten nowhere.

Abby, I'm a clean person. I bathe twice a day and sometimes three times. I use an anti-perspirant as frequently as I bathe, and I change undergarments as well as outer garments every day without fail. I'm almost a fanatic about dental hygiene. I brush my teeth and use a mouthwash several times a day.

I've given up using perfumes or colognes because even though I could smell the fragrance, other people would smell the offensive odor I was trying to cover up, and they'd make nasty comments like, "Soap and water are cheaper and would do you more good."

Abby, if you think I should see a doctor, at least please tell me what kind of doctor I should see. — SMELLS BAD IN KENTUCKY

DEAR SMELLS: See your family physician for a thorough checkup and tell him exactly what you've told me. If there is actually an offensive odor, he will determine the source and prescribe a remedy. If there is none — if you're only imagining it — you have another problem, which can be relieved by treatment. Don't despair. In any case, it's nothing to be ashamed of and you can be helped.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I have had the problem of telephoning a friend's home, asking for the friend by name, and being asked, "Who is calling, please?" I was even told recently by the wife of a friend that it is common courtesy to identify myself before asking to speak to her husband!

Am I wrong to assume that a conversation is private and privileged communication between two adults and need not be censored by anyone else?

Frequently a small child will answer the phone and persistently ask, "Who is this?"

Please let me know what is common courtesy between two adults. — PAYSON PETE IN ARIZONA

DEAR PETE: The most courteous callers start off with, "This is John Jones calling. Is Mr. Smith available?" Mr. Smith has a right to know who is calling him before he picks up the telephone. Most busy mothers instruct their youngsters to ask who's calling, so don't blame the child for carrying out mother's instructions.

DEAR ABBY: If you have ever addressed yourself to my problem, I've missed it, so here's hoping you'll comment again.

I'm middle-aged and happily married, but for a year now I've had a terrific crush on a man who attends the same church my family and I do. I try to justify it by telling myself that no one is being hurt since I'm the only one who knows it, and it has made my middle years easier to bear as a result of the excitement and anticipation I experience when I know I'm going to see him or talk to him.

It has not interfered with the strong, happy relationship I have with my husband and I don't expect that it will. In a way it has made me feel like a schoolgirl again — very nice.

Can it really be wrong? — GOT A CRUSH IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR GOT: No harm in fantasizing. Dream on. But don't try to make your dreams come true.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." This expert's Polynesian theory is still afloat

By BOB CORBETT
Copley News Service

Many historic objects wind up in forgotten corners of dusty museums.

Not so with the Hokule'a, a replica of an ancient canoe that helped prove a few years ago that the Polynesian people were the first great "water people" of the world.

"The Hokule'a is still sailing today," says Dr. Ben Finney, professor of anthropology at the University of Hawaii.

"It's a floating classroom for the children of Hawaii," he said in a recent interview, "in which they are learning their ancestral heritage."

The vessel, a double Polynesian canoe, probably "represents the most significant event in the cultural renaissance that's going on now in Hawaii," Finney said.

Finney should know. He was part of an epic 6,000-mile voyage from Hawaii to Tahiti and back in 1976, made without modern navigational aids.

The 54-day journey, he said, showed that the Polynesians were far from being simple Stone Age natives. They could build seaworthy craft, sail them and navigate over vast stretches of the Pacific.

"There are a lot of theories put forward," Finney said, "that Polynesia was settled by people who just drifted there. We wanted to right that wrong."

Settling Polynesia was a fantastic feat, he said, in thousands of miles over open oceans at a time when the Greeks and Phoenicians were just learning to sail the Mediterranean, keeping within sight of land.

Polynesia probably was first settled about 1200 B.C., Finney said, adding that the new civilization probably centered around Samoa and Tonga for about 1,000 years.

Then, from the time of Christ to about 700 A.D., the culture exploded and populated the "Polynesian Triangle" — the vast area from Hawaii east to Easter Island and south to New Zealand.

It's about the same size as a triangle touching London, the Aleutian Islands and a point south of India, Finney said.

In the 1976 voyage, Finney and his associates used the old Polynesian navigational techniques, involving only naked-eye observation of stars, winds, ocean swells and the flight of sea birds.

The birds are a clue to the presence of land, Finney explained. "They allow you to 'see' an island before you can actually see it."

The trip showed that the Polynesians were more than just able sailors, Finney said, noting that British Capt. James Cook, who "discovered" the Polynesian Islands in the late 1700s, learned much of what he knew from a Polynesian navigator named Tupai.

Cook apparently found Tupai in Tahiti in 1769, Finney said, and from the knowledge gained from him mapped a large area of the South Pacific.

The coming of the Europeans and Americans ended the epic voyages of the Polynesians, Finney said, and anthropologists now are trying to bring about a new awareness of that seagoing culture.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Heloise provides cornbread dressing recipe

HI THERE!

A promise is a promise, and here it is! The dressing recipe I promised you in yesterday's column.

It just wouldn't be Thanksgiving at my house without this traditional recipe my mother began using many years ago.

You'll find it tastes best cooked in a pan instead of inside the bird, especially if you like your dressing tender and crisp — not soggy!

To begin with, you'll need biscuits, cornbread and white bread. Canned biscuits work just fine, so don't go to the trouble of making them from scratch — you won't be able to taste the difference.

A recipe for good Southern-style cornbread is MY favorite but a packaged mix also tastes great. (Yellow cornmeal gives a better color to the dressing.) This recipe is a good way to use up those ends and dried-out slices of bread you've been saving too.

Bake the biscuits and cornbread, if needed, and toast the bread slices all in the same oven. You can do this a day or weeks ahead of time (every minute counts on the big Thanksgiving day, right?). Just pop 'em in the freezer until T-Day!

Here's the actual recipe:

1 can of 10-count refrigerator biscuits (baked)
2 to 3 cups crumbled cooked cornbread
1 (1-pound) loaf of bread, toasted
1½ cups chopped onion
2 cups chopped celery
1 cup chopped celery tops
1 tablespoon sage
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
2 cups water
1 cup chicken bouillon or turkey drippings

Salt and pepper to taste
2 eggs
Crumble the biscuits, cornbread and bread slices into a big pot and set aside.

Put all remaining ingredients, EXCEPT EGGS, into a saucepan. Let boil ten minutes, or until the celery and onions are tender, then pour over the bread crumbs and toss. If it's not as moist as you like, add more liquid. Let cool.

Add the eggs, mixing thoroughly. Now, place the dressing in a greased baking dish and bake at 300F for 30 minutes.

For a more moist dressing, use a smaller pan and pile the dressing thicker. For a drier, crustier dressing, use a larger pan and spread it out to about 2 inches thick (a cookie sheet works great).

Um-m-m! Smell that delicious aroma! It's a shame we don't have turkey and dressing more often throughout the year. Guess it wouldn't be so special if we did.

Hope your Thanksgiving Holiday is as special as you are to me! — Hugs, Heloise

RHYME IN TIME

Dear Heloise: I have a little rhyme I say when using a screwdriver or the garden hose.

It sure comes in handy even when using those twisties that come on bread wrappers. — Maxine Lau

NO SHOW

Dear Heloise: A co-worker asked me how I could wear white skirts and slacks without a dark or bright blouse showing through.

When I told her, she said it was a good enough hint to send to Heloise.

I just tucked the tail of the blouse into my pantyhose or underpants, or slip. It has the added advantage of keeping my blouse tucked in.

Of course a half slip must be worn with the skirt instead of a full slip. — June Parrish

Physiologists say 'activated sitting' can improve fitness

CHICAGO (AP) — Sitting in a chair can help keep you fit — or make you tired, according to a Chicago chair manufacturer and a pair of physiologists.

"It's all because adults still practice what their parents and teachers preached when they were children: don't squirm and sit still," explains chairmaker Manfred Steinfeld, who has spent more than 25 years studying sitting habits and developing seating designs to improve them.

"We spend more than half of our waking hours sitting. It really structures our lives," Steinfeld says. "We sit at meals, to commute to work, during coffee breaks and then go home and spend an evening with TV, family or friends — still sitting."

America has become a truly sedentary nation, Steinfeld adds, citing U.S. Census statistics that show there are now 20 million more white-collar workers, the majority of them on-the-job sitters, than there are blue-collar workers.

Chair-sitting can help contribute body conditioning similar to the benefits of jogging, tennis and other fitness pursuits, Steinfeld contends, adding:

"But we need to reprogram what was drummed into us as children and develop a habit to seldom — if ever — sit still for long."

Steinfeld is president of Shelby Williams Industries, a chairmaking firm he started in 1954 with $10,000. The company now produces more than 1 million chairs annually at plants in Morristown, Tenn., and Canton, Miss.

The company produces office chairs that have dual action tilt mechanisms which move backs and seats to the proper angle when sitters lean back or sit up.

However, he says, "no chairs can activate sitters. That kind of motivation must come from within, a habit that needs to be established by people."

According to physiologists, people who sit all week more or less immobile in their chairs need to move around.

Dr. Eugene J. Rogers, professor and chairman of Rehabilitation Medicine at Chicago Medical School, explains that moving different muscles while sitting "improves the metabolic exchange between the blood and cells and circulation."

The body, he says, "needs activity to keep up the pumping action of the blood." Otherwise the body slows up.

Steinfeld and physical fitness experts recommend activated sitting patterned after what children do naturally — squirm, twist, reach up and swing legs up, down, back and forth.

Exercise physiologist Mark Neubauer asserts that "children are natural workout experts, and virtually all their sitting movements help body conditioning." Neubauer is with Chicago's Institute for Stress Management, specialists in dealing with executive stress.

"Chair exercises are very good for loosening up muscles and joints, and achieving a general feeling of well-being," he says. "It is lack of movement that drains energy and results in stress and fatigue."

Steinfeld suggests that grownups adapt these exercises from children's natural movements:

—For flexibility of leg and arm muscles and the prevention of aches and stiffness, lift one leg up against the chest and clasp with both hands and hug. Lift the other leg and clasp. Children do this often while sitting.

—Sit back, reach up with one hand and then with the other and swing your legs up one at a time, to limber up arm and leg muscles.

—While sitting, hold your feet out in front of you and inscribe circles at the ankles, rotating clock and counter-clockwise. Physical therapists say exercising joints in arms, legs and neck is important when sitting for extended periods of time. Roll your head slowly in big circles, first in one direction, then another.

And what looks like a boyish sprawl is in reality a good circulation booster, says Steinfeld.

"Who hasn't seen a 10-year-old in a chair with one arm clutching a shoulder and the other arm clutching a knee with a foot on the chair edge? Try it," he says. "It's beneficial."

Tooth truth

NEW YORK (AP) — Skateboarding, roller skating and contact sports can take their toll of youthful teeth, but few people are aware that a knocked-out tooth can often be reimplanted, according to the American Dental Association.

Simply find the tooth, the ADA advises, do not clean it, wrap it in a wet cloth and rush to the dentist as quickly as possible. If tooth replacement is not immediately practical, place the tooth in a glass of water until professional help can be made available.

Solar energy

JERUSALEM (AP) — Three U.S. textile plants will be the beneficiaries of what is believed to be the world's largest privately financed solar-energy project.

The contracts, worth $10 million, were signed by J.P. Stevens and Bibb in Georgia and Cone Mills in North Carolina with Luz International, one of Israel's leading solar-energy companies.

The system to be used will, with the aid of giant reflectors installed besides each plant, heat the sun's rays and produce steam.

Richard Allen facing new line of questioning

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House national security adviser Richard V. Allen, already under investigation for receiving $1,000 from two Japanese journalists, is facing new questions about the sale of his international consulting firm.

Allen wrote in his government financial disclosure statement that he sold the firm, Potomac International Corp., in January 1978, but he now says the sale actually occurred in January 1981, according to White House counsel Fred Fielding.

In the disclosure statement, filed last February at the Government Ethics Office, Allen said he stopped being president of Potomac International in January 1978 and added in parentheses: "Sold business."

Asked about the 1978 date, Fielding said Allen sent him a memo last week stating that he had put down the 1978 date by mistake and had meant to write 1981.

But Fielding could not explain why, if the sale of Potomac International had occurred in January 1981, there was no mention of either the sale or Allen's recent ownership of the firm under the income and assets section of the financial questionnaire.

Bob Flynn, an official of the Government Ethics Office, said that if Allen had made a capital gain on the sale of the firm, that amount should have been listed under income.

And Flynn said federal regulations require nominees to list on their disclosure statements any interest in a business held at the end of the preceding calendar year.

Peter Hannaford, owner of the Hannaford Corp., has said his firm acquired Potomac International on Jan. 18, 1981, two days before President Reagan's inauguration and three days before Allen received $1,000 in cash from two Japanese journalists who had interviewed first lady Nancy Reagan.

However, when asked from whom his company had bought the consulting firm, Hannaford said, "No comment. ... You could ask me 25 questions, but all you're going to get is no comment."

Other past and present officials of Hannaford Corp. also refused to discuss who had owned the firm before Hannaford bought it. One, who asked not to be identified, said Hannaford had kept details of the purchase "close to his chest."

Hannaford is a former aide to Reagan and a past business partner of Michael Deaver, one of Reagan's top three White House aides.

In another development in the Allen case, The New York Times reported in today's editions that Secretary of the Navy

John Lehman said he has signed a statement supporting Allen's contention that he had intended to surrender the $1,000 he received from the Japanese.

Allen expressed "chagrin and amazement" that he had been given the cash and told Lehman he had "stuck it in a safe to turn over to security," the newspaper said. Lehman, a close friend of Allen's, said the conversation took place either on Jan. 21, the day Allen received the cash, or within the next several days.

On the financial disclosure statement, Allen said he had received a $75,000 salary from Potomac International in 1980 and had been president of the consulting firm from August 1972 to January 1978.

But Potomac International's corporate reports on file with the District of Columbia listed Allen as president of the firm through its latest annual report, dated March 13, 1980. Those records, however, do not state who owns stock in the firm.

Allen could not be reached for comment. His spokesman, Peter Dailey, referred calls to Fielding, who besides being White House counsel had represented Allen before the two men entered the Reagan administration.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Fielding noted that Allen also made mistakes in his disclosure statement on the date of his White House appointment and the filing date.

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa has a friend in the White House

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — It hasn't been discussed, it hasn't been encouraged and it's purely speculative, says President Reagan's incoming political director.

But just in case Sen. S.I. Hayakawa should decide, of his own volition, that he doesn't want to face the "very tough, uphill battle" for re-election, he's got a friend in the White House, Ed Rollins says.

Rollins said Reagan is "angushed" by the Republican Senate primary, in which he is officially neutral. Hayakawa, who would be seeking his second term, has been lagging in third or fourth place in opinion polls, and many state Republicans have encouraged him not to seek re-election. At least nine prominent candidates, among them Reagan's daughter, Maureen, are likely to enter the race.

"If the senator chooses, on his own initiative, not to run for re-election, I'm sure the president would be willing to offer him a substantial administration post," Rollins said in response to a question during an interview with the Sacramento Union. Rollins will succeed Lyn Nofziger as Reagan's political director in January.

"In that it has never been discussed, it is purely speculative to say" what job Hayakawa would be offered, Rollins said.

"We are clearly not encouraging it," he said, adding that his own assessment is that "it is a very tough, uphill battle for Senator Hayakawa to be nominated."

He was interviewed Friday in Washington.

Senior citizen cheerleaders become 'marine' recruits

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — A dozen or so senior-citizen cheerleaders had nothing to do when the softball season ended, so they hired two Marine drill sergeants and fell in line as the Renton Senior Center Drill Team.

"Heads back, stomachs in, right face!" the drill instructors bark for an hour every Friday afternoon, and obeying the orders are women who range in age from 63 to 81.

"It's fun," Jeanette Riggie, 72, who helped organize the squad, said Monday. "It's good mental work, strong discipline and quick thinking."

"I think they do about like they would with new Marine recruits. They snap it to you — straighten up! Shoulders back! They put us through the paces."

Annie Kuharic, 81, the oldest member, said that after an hour of marching, she goes to folk dance class. The result of her labors?

"I stay young," she said.

Marching, Mrs. Kuharic said, is "good for the posture and good mentally. I'm a little slow mentally, my thinking is a little slow, but I'm trying awfully hard. You really have to concentrate."

Marie Henspeter, 64, said she had cartilage removed from her knee in September "and my doctor said this is very good exercise for me."

The drill team was organized in the fall when the women, then known as the Late Bloomers cheering squad, saw the softball season end. The women attend the center, which organizes activities for senior citizens.

Ms. Riggie asked Sgt. Ray Wagner of the Marine recruiting office in Renton to help, so he and Sgt. Dan Garrett of the Federal Way recruiting office share drill duty.

"They're coming along fine," Wagner said. "We don't get to drill them as often as we'd like but they're coming along fine."

The team hopes eventually to perform at basketball and football halftimes and at community celebrations.

But for now, "we're not ready for the public yet," said Doris Grube, another team organizer.

They practice in civilian garb, but Ms. Riggie said spit 'n' polish is in the plans.

"We're trying to get down to being good marchers before we go into getting uniforms," she said.

Her discoveries are finally recognized

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Working alone in a small laboratory, Barbara McClintock made a discovery 30 years ago that should have revolutionized the science of genetics. Instead, the discovery was misunderstood and largely ignored for more than two decades.

Now, at the age of 79, Miss McClintock is being recognized. Last week she won both the $15,000 Lasker Award — the most prestigious American prize for medical research — and an award of $60,000 a year for life from the MacArthur Foundation.

A handful of scientists have been aware of Miss McClintock's work all along. Most of them knew she had made a tremendous accomplishment, but few of them understood it completely.

Alfred Hershey, a Nobel Prize-winning geneticist, didn't understand it at all.

"She was a distinguished scientist who did a lot that people could understand, but her most revolutionary work is what I couldn't understand and still don't," he says.

Miss McClintock has worked since 1941 at Long Island's Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, a leader in research on cancer and viruses. She has several small rooms to herself where she analyzes samples of maize, or Indian corn.

For many years, she raised corn on a small plot of land on the laboratory grounds. She painstakingly crossed one variety of maize with another, and carefully examined the resulting plants.

The tedious experiments continued for many growing seasons, each new generation of seedlings providing clues that had to be fitted into a complex scheme to explain why some plants had striped leaves, or why others had speckled kernels.

With the Carnegie Institution of Washington supplying the modest financial resources she needed, she persisted, publishing densely written research reports in obscure scientific journals, and carefully cataloging her findings.

"I worked alone — I didn't have to sell anything," she said in an interview. "When you work alone, and you are absolutely convinced, you know it's all going to come out in the wash."

Miss McClintock, a small woman, sketched diagrams in the air with her hands as she talked in a steady stream about how she made her revolutionary finding.

In the late 1940s, she noticed that parts of the leaves on some corn seedlings were losing their color.

White House Press Secretary James Brady, assisted by his wife Sara, left, and his physical therapist, Cathy Wynne, walks from the George Washington Medical Center Monday in Washington, where he has been recovering from gunshot wounds received eight months ago in the assassination attempt against President Reagan. Brady has been released from the hospital but will return daily for physical therapy.

Brady home for Thanksgiving

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — His doctors say he is not home free, but at least White House press secretary James S. Brady is home — eight months after he was shot in the brain during an assassination attempt on President Reagan.

"I am here to say, 'The Bear is back,'" Brady, nicknamed the Bear, said in a statement issued as he left the hospital Monday afternoon.

"We rejoin our friends and neighbors with a true spirit of optimism for the future."

After the short ride in a specially-equipped van from George Washington University Hospital to his suburban Virginia home, Brady was greeted with a kiss on the cheek from his 2½-year-old son, Scott.

The Bradys' two-story brick house was decked out with a banner declaring: "Welcome Home Bear!"

Friends and neighbors who gathered for the homecoming cheered as Brady, flashing the thumbs-up sign from his wheelchair, left the van. He was preceded by his wife Sarah, carrying a bottle of champagne in one hand and her husband's elbow crutch in the other.

Brady, who had only left the hospital for weekend day trips, wanted to be home for good by Thanksgiving. He made it three days early.

Earlier Monday, with help from his wife and a therapist, Brady walked out of the hospital to the van, waving to reporters, shaking hands with several White House staffers, kissing his therapists goodbye and flashing his now-familiar thumbs-up gesture.

Since suffering severe brain damage during the March 30 assassination attempt on Reagan, Brady, 41, has undergone four major operations to repair incomplete healing and leakage of spinal fluid. Last summer, he also suffered epilepsy-like seizures.

Dr. Arthur Koberne, the neurosurgeon credited with saving Brady's life, has called the press secretary's recovery remarkable.

But Brady's doctors caution that seizures, a brain abscess, infection or a leakage of brain fluid still could occur and require surgery up to 18 months after a serious brain injury.

"In the long run, I don't expect any bad deficits, only things that are manageable," Koberne said. Brady's use of his left leg remains impaired. But he can walk with the use of a cane and a person steadying him, and doctors expect he will eventually learn to walk alone.

"His intelligence, judgment, insight, wit and sense of humor all seem normal," Koberne said. "I can tell you his political comments and insights are superior."

But Brady's doctors caution that seizures, a brain abscess, infection or a leakage of brain fluid

Hospital not sure if Fonda release before Thanksgiving

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The family of veteran actor Henry Fonda was hoping he could be home for Thanksgiving, but a hospital spokeswoman says doctors have not made a determination.

"His doctor hasn't made any decision about it yet," said Virginia Bohannon at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where Fonda has been since Nov. 17. She described his condition Monday as "the same. He's OK. He's still here having his (heart) medication monitored."

There was no change in his condition early today, officials said.

A spokesman for the 76-year-old star described him Monday as "very ill," and also expressed concerns that he might not be able to go home for the holiday.

"He's very ill but he's been this ill for a long time. Then he gets a little stronger, then he slips back. I think he's getting a little stronger," Fonda's spokesman John Springer said by telephone from his New York office.

"He has indicated that he wants to be home at Thanksgiving. Whether he'll be able to or not, I don't know," Springer added.

Fonda has been in and out of the hospital for the past year, most recently to monitor his response to new heart medication.

His latest movie, "On Golden Pond," in which he appears with Katharine Hepburn and his daughter, Jane Fonda, premiered here last week and is scheduled for national release Dec. 4. It was the first time he had been in a film with either actress.

Libyan trial to go to jury today

By VERN ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A Libyan accused of killing a fellow college student and countryman told a jury in broken English he did not commit the crime.

Mohammed Shabata, 35, testified in his own defense Monday in the last of six days of testimony in 2nd Utah District Court. He was charged with second-degree murder hours after the body of Nabil Mansour, 32, was found in the trunk of Mansour's car outside Shabata's apartment in Ogden.

Closing arguments were scheduled to begin today, with the jury expected to receive the case before the day was out.

Shabata was arrested July 17 in Chicago on his way to Libya. An autopsy showed Mansour had been shot five times with a .22-caliber gun and had been dead five days to three weeks. No murder weapon was found.

The charge carries a penalty of five years to life in prison.

On the stand Monday, Shabata contradicted previous witnesses, saying he never noticed a large human-blood stain on his kitchen carpet, nor did an American friend, Roger Schow, purchase a .22-caliber revolver for him in May.

Shabata said he knew nothing about a .22-caliber slug which had pierced a cabinet drawer in his kitchen, and he said the smell from the car trunk that neighbors complained about had escaped his notice.

He also testified he did not know how Mansour's car keys found their way into his blue knapsack, which Shabata was carrying when he was arrested.

"Did you kill Nabil Mansour?" defense lawyer Robert Echarad asked Shabata. "No. Is absolutely not true," was the Libyan's reply.

Shabata said he agreed July 7 to allow Mansour to park his car in an alley next to Shabata's duplex. The next day, Shabata said, he received a call from a relative of Mansour's in London, who said he would call back in one hour to talk to Mansour.

Shabata said he told Mansour by telephone about the call, took a bath, but never received a return call from the relative or a visit from Mansour. Friends of the victim have said they dropped Mansour off at Shabata's apartment and never saw him again.

Shabata testified the last time he saw Mansour was later that night in the parking lot of a local restaurant, that Mansour was with a woman and that Mansour said they planned to go to Las Vegas.

Echarad called several witnesses to try to refute the testimony of 12-year-old Sonia Young, who said she overheard a conversation between Shabata and a friend, Ron Honeywell. The two, she testified, talked of a body in the trunk of a car, and that the first name of the dead man was "Nabil." Honeywell, his wife Gay, and 13-year-old daughter Laura all testified Miss Young never mentioned such a conversation.

Honeywell said Shabata was "like a brother," "truthful, hard-working, honest, very religious." As for the victim, he said: "Nabil was a lady's man. School was not important to him. Having fun was more important."

Judge Calvin Gould last week refused to allow the prosecution to enter certain evidence, including a tape recording between Shabata and Mansour which indicated a possible relationship between Mansour and Shabata's wife, who returned to Libya more than a year ago. The judge refused the request because the tape recording was made by Mansour without Shabata's knowledge.

Shabata and Mansour were students at Weber State College on scholarships from their employer, a Libyan oil company. Shabata received a two-year diploma in diesel mechanics from Weber State just days before attempting to return to Libya.

Mansour, who had dropped out of school, was said by friends to be resisting government appeals that he return to Libya. An FBI investigation turned up no link between the murder and other killings.

Two charged in Brink's case plead innocent

NEW CITY, N.Y. (AP) — As two radical women seized after the bloody robbery of a Brink's truck awaited their arraignment, two men arrested in the same case pleaded innocent to three counts of murder.

David Gilbert, 38, whom the FBI has identified as a member of the radical Weather Underground, and Samuel Brown, 41, who has no known political connections, entered the pleas Monday to a 13-count indictment charging them with killing a Brink's guard and two policemen from the village of Nyack.

The guard was killed during a $1.6 million robbery from a Brink's armored truck in Nanuet Oct. 20 and the officers were killed later that day after an alleged getaway van was halted at a roadblock. The two men and the two women were arrested while several suspects fled. The money was recovered.

AFTER THEIR arraignments Monday, Gilbert and Brown were held without bail and Rockland County Court Judge Harry Edelstein remanded them to a federal jail in Otisville until their trial, which is expected to begin in February.

Arraignments on similar charges were planned today for Katherine Boudin, 38, and Judith Clark, 31, both identified as Weather Underground members.

Meanwhile, a newspaper reporter who had lived with Miss Boudin until the robbery was fired from The Advocate of Stamford (Conn.). Kenneth Brief, executive editor of Connecticut Newspapers Inc., which publishes The Advocate, said Monday that Rita Jensen was fired because she allowed inaccurate information to be published about her relationship with Miss Boudin.

"We were satisfied internally that she knew who Boudin was," said Managing Editor Bob Heiser. "On the advice of her lawyer, she declined any attempt to clarify her relationship with Boudin."

IN AN INTERVIEW published in the newspaper two days after the heist, Ms. Jensen said she knew Miss Boudin only as "Lynn Adams" and did not suspect her real identity.

Gilbert, Brown, Miss Boudin and Miss Clark were indicted in the robbery and slayings along with Nathaniel Burns, 38, a former Black Panther. Burns is to be arraigned at a later date.

Two other suspects, named in a sealed indictment, remain at large. An eighth person, Eve Rosahn, also was indicted in connection with the case. She has been accused of supplying the getaway vehicles.

Gilbert, wanted in Colorado on charges of arson and assaulting an officer, and Brown, who has been convicted of armed robbery, assault, burglary and weapons possession, face 25 years to life in prison if convicted on the charges stemming from the Brink's robbery.

Monday's proceedings were delayed for two hours when Gilbert and Brown demanded they be allowed to speak to Chokwe Lumumba, a Michigan lawyer associated with a black separatist group, the Republic of New Africa.

EDELSTEIN HAS denied Lumumba permission to meet with any of the suspects or represent them jointly with other lawyers since he is not licensed to practice law in New York.

The judge said he had offered to hold a hearing so Lumumba could argue for his right to represent any of the suspects, but said Lumumba declined. The judge said he would speak to prison officials about the alleged mistreatment but denied a request that Gilbert and Brown be allowed to meet with their co-defendants to prepare their defense.

Director of research lab convicted of animal cruelty

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — The director of a federally-funded research laboratory says he will appeal his conviction on six counts of animal cruelty stemming from allegations that monkeys were mistreated at the facility.

Dr. Edward Taub was found guilty Monday of charges stemming from his failure to provide veterinary care to six monkeys he used in neurological research at the Institute for Behavioral Research in Silver Spring, Md.

Taub acknowledged that the animals had not received veterinary care for two years, but argued that because of surgery performed on the monkeys they could not feel pain.

Taub's assistant, John Kunz, was found innocent of 17 counts of animal cruelty by Montgomery County District Judge Stanley Klavan.

Klavan fined Taub $3,000 and ordered him to pay $15 in court costs, but said payment could be delayed pending an appeal. Taub could have been fined $1,000 and sentenced to 90 days in jail for each count on which he was convicted. Eleven counts of animal cruelty against Taub were dismissed by Klavan, who ruled that 11 monkeys cited in the charges had adequate food and shelter and that conditions in the facility described by witnesses did not constitute cruelty.

One of the 17 monkeys involved in the case died of a heart attack after police raided the laboratory Sept. 11 and removed them.

The judge said the remaining monkeys would have to be returned to Taub, but he deferred a decision on conditions that would have to be met for the transfer. The monkeys are now being cared for at the National Institute of Health's animal research farm in Poolesville.

Buy The Boss' House!

"Imposing" 2-story $86,450 - $8,000 Cash
The "Boss" bought the big boss' house. He wanted big rooms, a "captivating" exterior with loads of "street appeal" and all on a budget-conscious price. This one has it all and one more bonus: an even more impressive exterior sitting proudly on a "High-Elevation" with a view of downtown Midland. There's only one. Here it is: rationally priced, Ph. 563-4480, evs. Webb Dorsey 697-5615 (WD)
