HAPPY TIME IN PEKING — Chinese Deputy Premier Deng Xiaoping greets Vice President Walter Mondale today just before the start of the second round of talks in the Great Hall of the People in Peking. Mondale said after the session that Chinese Premier Hua Guofeng will visit the U.S. next year and that President Carter will go to China. (AP Laserphoto)

Chinese Leader Plans U.S. Visit

PEKING (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale announced today that Hua Guofeng (Hua Kuo-feng), China's premier and Communist Party chairman, will visit the United States next year and President Carter will visit China.

Mondale told a news conference after a meeting with Hua that China's top leader accepted Carter's invitation "with delight." He said the dates for Hua's and Carter's visits had not been set.

The vice president also announced that he would open a U.S. consulate in Canton, "the first consulate we've had in China in over 30 years," when he visits South China's biggest city during his tour. He said it would have a staff of seven or eight headed by Richard Williams.

The Chinese government will open consulates in Houston and San Francisco, he said.

Mondale said his visit to China has "laid the basis of our relationship in the 1980s and given real meaning to the word 'normal.'"

The vice president also signed agreements on cultural exchange and cooperation in development of China's hydroelectric power.

Mondale told Hua when he first met him today that he thought the process of Sino-American normalization was "well under way."

Hua said to Mondale he was aware it was his first visit to China and the first by such a high-ranking American since diplomatic relations were established Jan. 1.

"So I extend you a special welcome because of these two firsts," he said.

"It is a beginning, not an end," he added.

Asked how he was adjusting to China, Mondale smiled and said, "I'm now part Chinese. I am an expert on Chinese food."

Then he expressed gratification that his speech Monday at Peking University was covered in such full detail in Peking newspapers.

Mondale announced in the speech that a strong China is in America's interests and offered the Chinese economic partnership in the 1980s and a $2 billion line of credit.

Senior Deputy Premier Deng Xioaping (Teng Hsiao-ping) met with Mondale prior to his meeting with Hua and told the vice president, "I heard your speech was warmly welcomed."

Deng was asked by reporters to comment on Sen. Henry Jackson's recent charge that Chinese leaders were unhappy about the results of their modernization drive and absence of tangible economic rewards.

Mondale jokingly told Deng to be careful in what he said, and Deng smiled and told the reporters, "Let the vice president answer that question."

Then, after they sat down at a conference table, Deng turned to Mondale and told him, "What you said yesterday at Beijing (Peking) University about the $2 billion credits and other specifics has answered the question raised by the correspondents just then."

Mondale then took a light swing at Jackson, saying, "A great world statesman says, 'seek truth from facts.'" "Seeking truth from facts" is a current slogan used by Deng and his pragmatic leadership to spur China's drive to modernize.

In his nationally broadcast and televised speech, Mondale promised the Carter administration would submit the Sino-American trade agreement for congressional approval before the end of the year. The pact contains a most-favored-nation provision.

SAVE ON SCHOOL TAXES

Changes Help Homeowners

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

New state tax exemptions combined with a two-cent cut in the school district tax rate will yield many Lubbock residents this year a tax savings that will reach about $50 for a homeowner under 65 with an average-priced home, and even more for the elderly.

The trustee-approved tax rate cut Monday from $1.38 to $1.36 will give taxpayers who were not reappraised this year a nominal savings, but the bulk of the tax break comes from homestead exemptions that can add up to $12,000 in assessed value for the elderly.

The dollars and cents effects of tax rates and exemptions are shown by a comparison between the taxes paid last year and the taxes paid at the different rates proposed by trustees this year.

The owner of a home with a $50,000 market value will pay taxes on the assessed value of $30,000, which is 60 percent of market value.

If that owner was under 65 last year, he paid $414 in taxes at last year's rate of $1.38 per $100 of assessed value. This year that homeowner will pay taxes on $27,000 because of a $3,000 homestead exemption for all homeowners. His tax bill will add up to $367.20 at the new $1.36 rate — a savings over last year of $46.80.

If trustees had chosen to keep the rate at $1.38, that homeowner's bill would have been $372.60 — $5.40 more than will actually be paid this year.

That taxpayer would have realized about a $16.20 savings over his actual bill this year if board members had approved the $1.30 rate calculated by the tax office in accordance with the state-mandated truth in taxation law.

Trustees, however, conducted a public hearing in order to scrap that rate for a higher one, saying the tax base this year was eroded by exemptions so that revenue generated at $1.30 would not cover budget expenditures adequately.

A glance at the tax bill comparisons for elderly homeowners will show a substantial savings due to exemptions totaling $12,000.

A homeowner over 65 with a $30,000 market value residence ($18,000 assessed value) paid taxes on $15,000 last year because of a local $3,000 homestead exemption. The bill for that home at $1.38 came to $207.

This year the same taxpayer will pay taxes on only $6,000 due to additional exemptions from the state of $6,000 for the elderly and $3,000 for all homeowners. The tax bill at $1.36 this year will be only $81.60 — a savings of $125.40.

At the $1.38 rate, the homeowner would have paid $82.80 — only $1.20 more than the actual bill, and at $1.30 the taxes owed would have been $78.

The elderly will get an additional break this year as the taxes paid in 1979 will be frozen unless the house is sold or massive remodeling is done.

British, Irish Hunt IRA After Slayings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British and Irish governments hunted the IRA killers of Earl Mountbatten, 18 British soldiers and three others today as the Irish guerrillas promised more escalation of their 10-year-old war to drive the British from Northern Ireland and unite it with the Irish Republic.

The toll from the bombings Monday rose to 22 as the Dowager Baroness Brabourne, the mother-in-law of Mountbatten's elder daughter, died in a Sligo hospital.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who lost one of her chief advisers to IRA bombers five months ago, vowed that the British people would "wage war against terrorism with relentless determination until it is won." Ireland's deputy prime minister said no effort would be spared to bring the killers to justice.

But there was no indication that either government had any leads to the men who planted the bombs that blew up Lord Mountbatten's fishing boat off the west coast of Ireland, killing the 79-year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, a 14-year-old grandson and another teenager, and a few hours later decimated two truckloads of soldiers just inside the border between Northern Ireland and the republic.

The Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing said Mountbatten, one of his country's most decorated World War II heroes and the first member of the royal family assassinated within memory, was "executed ... to bring the attention of the world to the British occupation of the six northeast counties of Ireland."

Another IRA communique after the bombing of the troops vowed the guerrillas would step up their attacks on the 13,500 British troops in Northern Ireland.

In a front-page editorial, the Daily Express said Britain must seek from the Irish Republic "a total clampdown on terrorists." If the response was not positive, it must "reconsider" its relations with Dublin, the paper asserted.

The Guardian urged high-level talks between the two governments, with "all ancient and modern recrimination forgotten," to try to find a solution to the

New System Outlined At Tax Session

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Taxing units should contribute either funds or staff to help get new county-wide appraisal districts off the ground next year, the general counsel of the School Tax Assessment Practices Board said this morning.

Speaking to about 175 representatives of school districts, counties, cities and special districts from a 20-county area, Russell Graham said the success or failure of the districts could depend on voluntary contributions governments will make to the districts next year.

The single appraisal districts in each Texas county are mandated by Senate Bill 621 passed during the most recent session of the legislature and commonly known as the Peveto Bill after sponsor Rep. Wayne Peveto of Orange.

Although the legislation does not take full effect until January 1, 1982, many provisions of the bill are implemented in prior years.

One of the first provisions is the election of a board of directors for the appraisal district, scheduled to occur this fall.

Graham said 1980 will be the "planning year for the district" and suggested the government officals contribute either staff or funds to the district.

The only funds certain to be available to the district next year will come from

Mrs. Roy Furr Dies; Services Wednesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Roy (Lela) Furr, 75, of 3120 20th St., wife of the late founder of Furr's Supermarkets, will be at 4 p.m. Wednesday in First United Methodist Church with Dr. Sam Nader, senior minister, officiating.

Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

MRS. ROY FURR
Dies Early Today

Mrs. Furr died at 1:45 a.m. today in Methodist Hospital.

A native of Santa Anna, Mrs. Furr grew up in Kirkland, where she attended school. She also attended Clarendon Junior College and the University of Oklahoma.

She married Roy Furr in Kirkland and they moved to Lubbock in 1929. He was a schoolteacher who built a supermarket empire and then branched into cafeterias, food packaging operations, oil and real estate. He died June 13, 1975, at the age of 70.

Mrs. Furr was a member of First United Methodist Church and had been active in charity work. She and her family made a donation of $75,000 for construction of the Furr Radiation Center at Methodist Hospital in memory of C.W. Furr. The center was dedicated in 1961.

Survivors include two sons, Don G. and Roy K., both of Lubbock; a daughter, Mrs. Jack R. Hall of Lubbock; a brother, Garth Close of Fort Worth; a sister, Mrs. W.G. Thomas of Childress; 12 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials be made to a favorite charity.

Ballerina Blames U.S. For Delay

MOSCOW (AP) — Bolshoi ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova was welcomed with bouquets and tears when she returned to the Soviet Union today after spending more 73½ hours inside an Aeroflot plane grounded at New York's Kennedy Airport on U.S. orders.

U.S. and Soviet officials traded heated claims about the incident.

The ballerina embraced her mother at the foot of the Aeroflot plane ramp at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport and told her not to cry.

In an interview broadcast on Moscow Radio after her arrival, Miss Vlasova said the American grounding was "arbitrariness" and declared there was "no explanation" for it. "I am very happy that I have set foot back on native soil, and it is a beautiful thing that I saw my mother again," she said.

"I consider (the Americans') actions to be arbitrariness because they occupied our plane by force. They got inside with arms and handcuffs to guard me. It was just madness. There is no explanation for any of their actions."

The Soviet news agency Tass accused U.S. authorities of seeking "a scandal ... a noisy anti-Soviet sensation" by ordering the Ilyushin-62 grounded.

Tass has not mentioned the defection of Miss Vlasova's husband, Bolshoi ballet star Alexander Godunov, today saying only, "She did not want to find herself in a situation similar to that of her husband ... A. Godunov, who had disappeared shortly before that under circumstances which are not yet clear."

Miss Vlasova declined to answer reporters' questions about her husband.

Surrounded by a crowd of Soviet and Western reporters, Miss Vlasova said she was "too tired" to talk about her ordeal.

The Aeroflot Ilyushin-62 that had been grounded at Kennedy Airport for more than three days landed at the Moscow airport shortly after 10:00 a.m. — 2 a.m. CDT.

Alexandra Drozhdina, the ballerina's mother, a small and nervous woman, stood at the foot of the airplane ramp as her daughter, looking fresh and smiling, descended into her arms.

"It's nothing, it's nothing," Miss Vlasova murmured to her sobbing mother.

Iranian Troops Kill 22 Kurds

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's firing squads executed 22 more Kurds and nine army deserters as a Kurdish peace delegation waited to meet with the ayatollah's representatives in Tehran today.

The executions brought to 51 the number of Kurds put to death since their latest autonomy drive began two weeks ago and to 503 the number of Iranians sent before firing squads since the February revolution ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime. Eleven Kurds, including a general, were executed Monday in the Kurdish capital of Sanandaj, and 11 more today in Saqqez, where government troops crushed a three-day uprising Saturday, the official Pars news agency said.

The Kurds executed in Saqqez were convicted of counter-revolutionary activities by a revolutionary Islamic court headed by Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, Khomeini's hand-picked prosecutor.

In addition to the Kurds, nine regular army soldiers were executed in Saqqez for deserting their positions during the fighting. They included five sergeants, one warrant officer and three lieutenants, Pars said.

While the firing squads stepped up their executions, a five-member peace delegation led by Rhami Qazi came to Tehran from the Kurdish stronghold of Mahabad, headquarters of the outlawed Kurdish Democratic Party. The delegation does not have the authorization of the party to negotiate but a reliable Kurdish source said the delegation has the KDP's blessing.

A Kurdish source said the demands included withdrawal of all non-Kurdish revolutionary guards from Kurdistan, government forces to remain at their present position outside Mahabad and for Khalkali to leave Kurdistan immediately. The demands seemed unlikely to be met.

A Turkish newspaper reported, meanwhile, that Kurdish mercenaries recruited from poverty-stricken eastern provinces of Turkey are being smuggled to western Iran to join the Kurdish fight for self-rule.

Hurrieyet, an independent Istanbul daily, said in a front-page story that the mercenaries were recruited and sent over the Turkish-Iranian border by a local Kurdish separatist organization known as KAWW.

It quoted Turkish intelligence sources as saying some 5,000 Kurds from Turkey, each paid $1,300 in advance for a full year's fighting, have joined the Kurdish rebels in Iran so far.

Strong government forces backed by armor have gathered 22 miles north of Mahabad preparing for an assault on the Kurdish stronghold. Thousands of Kurds reportedly have slipped into the city and its outskirts to bolster its defenses.

If the government forces attempt to advance on Mahabad it could turn out to be the bloodiest encounter yet since the 4 million Kurds in Kurdistan began their drive five months ago for a degree of home rule from Khomeini's regime.

A rebel source in Mahabad, north of Saqqez, said about 300 civilians and rebel fighters were arrested when Khomeini's troops crushed the uprising in Saqqez, and that Khalkhali was expected to convene a summary revolutionary court shortly to execute most of them.

The Kurds have threatened to shoot one revolutionary guardsman for every Kurd executed, and reportedly shot four of them Sunday in the Kurdish town of Sardasht. They also claim they hold at least 150 guardsmen captured in fighting earlier this month.

Italian Kidnappers Grabbing Tourists To Get More Ransom

ROME (AP) — Italian kidnappers, branching out for more money, have begun grabbing tourists and more women and children.

The government is alarmed by a wave of 10 abductions between July 7 and Aug. 22 on Sardinia, a summer playland of Europe's rich.

Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni went to the big island 160 miles southwest of Rome for a police meeting last weekend. He also sent over 170 police reinforcements and the first of a squadron of helicopters equipped for nocturnal surveillance of the mountains and meadows where bandits roam.

In the past, foreign visitors were considered immune. One guidebook noted that while banditry still exists on Sardinia, "it is most unusual for visitors to be molested in any way."

But last September a German tourist was abducted and has never been found, despite payment of ransom. Police fear that kidnappers also were responsible for the disappearance a week ago of a wealthy British electronics engineer, his wife and their 4-year-old daughter while they were driving back to their vacation villa in northern Sardinia.

Other recent victims of Italian kidnappers include the teen-age children of a Turin bank executive, grabbed from a beach in Sardinia 10 days ago; the 12-year-old son of a Rome construction man, kidnapped from a castle near Perugia; and an 8-year-old boy and four women abducted in Calabria.

Pope John Paul II denounced the kidnapping of children as "calculated, premeditated acts to inflict suffering for thoughtless, condemnable pursuit of money." Investigators said the abduction of the Calabrian women was evidence that the Mafia was abandoning its tradition of attacks on men only in pursuit of easier money.

Investigators estimate that Italian kidnap gangs collect $12 million to $18 million a year. After a record 75 abductions in 1977, only 36 were reported last year. But this year there have been 35 already, including the 10 on Sardinia during six weeks of the summer season, when thousands of Italian and foreign tourists descend on the island and Europe's jet set moves into villas on the Costa Smeralda.

One of the reasons for the decrease in kidnappings last year was believed to be the government's blocking of the bank accounts of victims' families to prevent payment of ransom.

Escape Attempt Caused Takeover

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Police say they are convinced that a bungled escape attempt triggered a two-day takeover of the city jail that ended in the deaths of two inmates.

"There's no question in our minds but what this was a preplanned escape that was foiled by quick action on the part of police," jail commander Capt. John Sullivan said Monday. "And as a result, they had to fall back and come up with another ploy."

Two of the leaders of the revolt shot each other to death early Monday after a disagreement, police said. One of the three guards who had been held hostage was wounded in the hand.

The takeover began about 9 a.m. Saturday in the second-floor lockup at the police building. Sharpshooters were stationed on the roof of the building located across a circular plaza from City Hall, and police sealed off the area, near the downtown Casino Center.

With a local television news director and an attorney serving as intermediaries, inmates presented lists of 18 demands centering on better conditions at the lockup.

Most of the demands had been addressed in a lawsuit last year and eventually would have been implemented, Sullivan said.

"That's one of our newest jails and it's not all that bad," Sullivan said of the 114-cell lockup. "And although some of those points had merit in them, probably 80 percent of them were scheduled to be addressed in our consent decree."

The two dead inmates were identified as Felix Lorenzo, 29, and Eugene Shaw, 40. Lorenzo was serving a total of 150 years for several crimes, including a hostage-taking incident involving eight persons at a local bar. Shaw was serving a 15-year sentence for robbery and drug possession.

The injured guard, William Melton, 52, was reported in good condition after undergoing surgery on his wounded hand.

Eighty-four inmates were jailed at the facility, but it was not known how many took part in the uprising. After the shootout between Lorenzo and Shaw, sharpshooters secured the lockup, and the remaining prisoners surrendered without further incident.

The prisoners were stripped, searched and taken to two other jails.

Four handguns, including three 9mm service automatics, were found. Sullivan said it was not known how the inmates got the weapons.

Melton told police that Lorenzo and Shaw fired at each other in a negotiating room while a third prisoner was talking to police officials on a telephone.

"They apparently had some kind of disagreement," said Capt. Dan Stopka. "He (Melton) said they were shooting at each other. He jumped out of the way and got hit in the hand."

Shell From Walnut Becomes Sailboat

By SHARI LEWIS

When I was little, I was a walnut nut. I liked the nut meat and I liked the sailboat. What sailboat? The one I made out of the shell. You can make one, too.

You will need: Half of a walnut shell, scissors, white paper (typing paper or wax paper), a toothpick, a bit of clay or a lump of chewed chewing gum.

Here's how: This is the easiest boat to make, and it really floats! Cut the paper into a triangle, about an inch and a half high. That's your sail!

Stick a toothpick into the sail, piercing the paper twice along the edge (near the bottom and again near the top). That's your mast!

Press a bit of clay or gum into the bottom of the walnut shell. Wedge the toothpick mast into the clay, and there's your sailboat, in a nutshell!

A couple of these Walnut Sailboats could compete in a sailboat race to be blown across the bathtub sea.

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Let's say there's a pulley hanging from the ceiling. It is a frictionless pulley, and it has a rope passed over it. On one end of the rope is a cute monkey. Tied to the other is an 18-pound weight. The weight balances the monkey perfectly — but if the monkey climbs up the rope, will he be able to rise above the height of that weight? Will he sink below it?

ANSWER: That monkey will always be exactly opposite the weight, because the two of them are balanced.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: How do you stay cool at a ball game? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Low Seniority Payments Stopped By Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — Laid-off Chrysler Corp. employees with low seniority are no longer getting money from the company's Supplemental Unemployment Benefits fund.

The fund, which supplies workers with roughly half their income while at home, was suspended Monday for workers with less than 10 years seniority. The move had been predicted for months, but was the first such action ince the 1975 recession.

In another blow to employees of the troubled No. 3 automaker, the company said Monday that it would add 1,800 more employees to the indefinite layoff roll on Sept. 24. That would bring Chrysler's layoff total to 27,600 of the industry total of more than 70,000.

The SUB fund fell below $33 per covered employee, the minimum specified in the contract with the United Auto Workers union, the company said. That meant it held about $3.5 million, compared with $46 million last December.

Payments to workers with more than 10 years seniority, cut by 20 percent four weeks ago, will continue, Chrysler said.

The 'Numbers Game'

IT MAY BE recalled that during the heat of the 1976 Presidential campaign Jimmy Carter promised to do something about the massive federal bureaucracy.

Not only was he going to duplicate the belt-tightening process from his Georgia days, but he was going to whittle the Washington machinery down from about 1,900 agencies to maybe 200.

He also was going to clean up the White House and reduce the number of people needed to keep things going there.

Last fall, President Carter told the American people again he was going to "cut the total size of the federal work force."

SINCE THAT address Oct. 24, something has gone awry. As of May, the "total" federal work force had actually grown by about 27,000 people, although the number of so-called permanent personnel has decreased.

What the President promised in his nationwide address was this:

"We will slash federal hiring and cut the federal work force...I'm ordering tonight a cut in federal hiring (which) will cut the total size of the work force..."

The clinker in this is that while reducing the number of full-time employes by some 28,212 by this May, the bureaucracy, always wise to the ways of getting around such "people" orders, actually went out and hired 40,000 part-time workers to take up the slack.

SO, WHILE full-time, permanent employment has decreased in Carter's segment of the government, "total" employment, counting part-time and temporary workers, has actually increased by about 14,000 persons since his speech.

According to a recent wire story, this leaves Mr. Carter with almost 27,000 more federal workers drawing pay than legally will be allowed Oct. 1, under the ceiling established by Congress even before the President made his pledge.

And while many of the part-time workers quit and return to college as Fall approaches, Mr. Carter may still have to wield the axe to even come close to his goal.

And so ends another story of Presidential promises, bureaucratic bungling and taxpayer rip-off.

A New 'Out' Law

AS MAMA'S LITTLE darlin's head back to school this week, teachers have a paddle as big as all outdoors waiting for them.

But Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent, says he doesn't think Lubbock teachers will be using it much.

Says there's no need to.

This year's Legislature passed a law giving teachers the new "paddle": authority to eject students from their classrooms for abusive or disruptive conduct, state Sen. E.L. Short is reminding audiences over his district.

"I don't think it'll make any difference at all here," Leslie says, though, pointing out that there's nothing in the law to keep a principal from letting the ejectee right back in.

"We're going to have to appeal to our teachers to use good judgment" in deciding whether to boot a student out of class, he adds.

LESLIE'S MAIN point is that Lubbock teachers always have received "strong support" from the administration in maintaining classroom discipline.

"We're not going to have our teachers intimidated," he says, "even with verbal abuse. We'll remove the disruptive student from the building or correct the situation."

He points to Project Intercept as a successful example of getting disruptive students out of the regular classroom and into what the educators like to call a model learning situation.

"We agree with the idea of the law," Leslie emphasizes. "A teacher should not have to teach over a disruption. But I think it's an unnecessary law, talking about our own district, although there may be schools where there's not enough support of the teachers."

"BUT," I ASK, "haven't there been cases here where discipline deteriorated and teachers felt intimidated?"

"Not that we know of," the assistant superintendent says. "You always hear stories over the bridge table but if a teacher reports a problem to us, we see that it's taken care of."

So, there you have the official line. Still, I'm happy to see the new legislation. It puts the law squarely behind the teacher in maintaining discipline. He or she can't hide behind a "they" won't let us teachers punish or eject a troublesome student.

A teacher has the full power of the state behind her if she boots a disruptive student out. And if "they," meaning the principal and central administration, don't back her up, she can scream to high heaven about it and somebody will listen.

But, we have Dr. Leslie's word that the administration supports the teacher in disciplinary matters. So, tread softly this year, mama's li'l darlin's.

"CONVENTIONAL wisdom" long has held that the liberal wing of the Democratic party and organized labor would benefit from the influx of northerners into Texas.

'Taint so, says Houston pollster Lance Tarrance. His readings show 174,000 Democrats and 252,000 Republicans have migrated to Texas in the last decade. That's a net gain of 78,000 GOP voters.

Moreover, Tarrance says, 57 percent of the newcomers call themselves conservative.

In the short run, though, that may be bad news for conservative Democrats. Especially conservative Democrats who hold elective office.

UNACCUSTOMED to Texas' one-party system—vestiges of which still hang on despite Gov. Bill Clements' victory under the GOP banner—the newcomers may tend to vote in the Republican primary.

This is especially true if the GOP has a bang-up Presidential preference primary next May and the Democrats don't. Result: Liberal and labor-backed Democrats may defeat some of the old-line conservatives for the Legislature and other posts.

That's why there's something of a move underfoot for a mass bolt to the GOP, ala John Connally a few years back—but at this point there's a lot more people talking about bolting than are likely to do so when they finally have to make the choice.

Red Sails On Young's Sunset

WASHINGTON—The foreign policy-political flap over Ambassador Andrew Young's meeting with an official of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) has flushed out into the open one of his key Communist advisers.

The pro-Moscow, pro-Cuban adviser, now working among negro leaders to link the explosive Middle East-African foreign policy issues to political-racial ones in the U.S. to create a revolutionary climate here, is Jack (Hunter Pitts) O'Dell.

A front page photograph in the New York Times of Young, discussing future strategy with close friends and associates after submitting his "undated" resignation as U.S. Representative to the United Nations, showed O'Dell taking part in the session.

THE SURFACING AND participation of O'Dell is highly significant since he is one of two persons identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as "Communist Advisers" to the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., when the civil rights leader directed the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) in the 1960s.

The other adviser, also now in close contact with Young, is Stanley Levison, New York attorney and identified in FBI files as a secret member of the Communist Party's national committee and a key figure in the Soviet intelligence apparatus in the U.S.

It was the O'Dell-Levison links to King that caused the late Robert Kennedy, then Attorney General and number one law enforcement official in the country, to authorize the controversial electronic surveillance of the civil rights leader.

THE DATA GATHERED by the FBI was so incriminating against O'Dell that when some of the material turned up in newspapers at the time, King was forced to remove him from his high-level, policy-making position at SCLC.

O'Dell also has emerged as the key foreign policy adviser to civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, the director of the Chicago based Operation Push, which receives money from both the federal government and the Rockefeller foundation.

Significantly, Jackson took O'Dell with him on his recent trip to South Africa. A moderate until recently, Jackson has suddenly switched to the militant approach.

Although it went almost unnoticed in the uproar over the PLO meeting incident, Young granted an interview in which he called for (1) the end of U.S. economic embargo against Cuba, (2) the establishment of diplomatic relations with the Hanoi Government, and (3) blamed the U.S. for the flood of refugees from Communist Vietnam.

He also vigorously objected to President Carter's decision to build the $30 billion MX missile system, saying it would never be built.

The intriguing part of all of these positions by Young is that they fit neatly into the official propaganda line being put out by the Kremlin and Cuban pro-Communist Premier Fidel Castro.

The Cuban position appears to be an extension of Young's remarks that the Cuban troops had brought stability and order to Angola and that there were hundreds maybe even thousands of political prisoners in the U.S.

Hasn't the time come for massive public pressure on the President to make Young's resignation effective immediately before new and far more serious damage is inflicted on the creditability and security of the U.S.?

Sylvia Porter:

Beauty Takes Big Bite Out Of Family Budget

WASHINGTON—Of all the industries considered "resistant," the beauty industry is ranked at or near the top.

The reason: If you have only a few dollars to spend on yourself, the odds are you'll spend them for a beauty product or service—lipstick or shaving cream, hairdo or haircut.

That explains why American women (and men) are now spending way over $6 billion a year on beauty services and products, of which $4.6 billion is spent in beauty salons and barber shops, unknown additional millions on beauty books and periodicals, exercise machines, scales, other health-allied products.

IF THIS ESSENTIAL of "beauty" is taking a big bite out of your already strained budget, here are 10 ways to cut your costs.

(1) Do some of the work yourself. Most salons won't object if you shampoo your own hair, then go for a cut and styling and save from $1 to $5 or more by this alone. And if you have one of the popular wash-and-wear styles, you can blow-dry your own hair.

(2) Watch for specials—generally on slow days early in the work week and in certain months. January and February are traditionally "perm sale" months, late summer-early fall often offer real bargains in "make-over packages" for clothes-shopping.

Watch newspaper ads; ask your hairdresser to notify you when a sale is on. Watch, too, for cosmetic and toiletry sales; after Christmas is usually a time for excellent buys in this field.

(3) BE A GUINEA pig—volunteer to be a "model" at a hairdressing (or barber) school. Advanced hair-dressing schools, giving experienced stylists brush-up courses, offer great bargains. Check your yellow pages for schools.

(4) Try before you buy. Salons and stores selling cosmetics often have "demonstrators" who will cheerfully and without charge try to beautify you in the hope you'll buy all the products used. If you're buying new cosmetics anyway, it's equal to a professional makeup session at no cost. Also take samples and trial sizes offered.

(5) Consider alternatives. You can soften your hands with pharmacy-mixed rosewater and glycerine, shampoo with liquid castile or green soap. You don't need expensive perfumed, prettily-packaged creams, lotions and potions.

BRUSHING YOUR teeth with a paste of bicarbonate of soda, salt and water is as effective as most toothpastes. Mayonnaise works as well as any conditioner on the market.

(6) Check prices carefully. A department store may have two beauty salons, one for head-to-toe pampering, the other for basics only. The price differential can be substantial. Ask! And compare.

(7) Scout for store brands or name brands at discounts. Ask if the product you want isn't on display. It may be in a cabinet at a marked-down price. Consider store brands—which may even be made by the same manufacturers who produce name-brands—on which you can save considerable amounts. Differences mainly will be in packaging.

(8) BUY IN QUANTITY items you use a great deal. Find out if and how you can save by buying in quantity, including large sizes. A box of, say, eight cakes of hand soap for the price of six sold separately, special beauty salon rates—all add up to savings.

(9) Take advantage of gift (or purchase) with purchase. Cosmetic makers hate them; stores love them. You benefit from the promotion gimmick of gift-with-purchase or purchase-with-purchase. If you can use the gift as well as the costly brand-name product, you have a good buy and you may wind up with a super-bargain.

(10) Avoid beauty charlatans. No known products can eliminate baldness, erase wrinkles, increase your bust six inches in a month, reduce your weight by 20 pounds in a week, etc.

READ ADS, BOOKLETS, pamphlets, packages carefully to make sure you aren't inferring performance promises that are merely implied.

Beauty products taken internally can be hazardous to your health; use them only with your physician's approval. Many touted feminine beauty come-ons are no more than a waste of money.

Wishful thinking sells beauty products and services. Before you buy, determine whether a promise given can be kept.

Common sense can be your best bargain-guide. Let it be!

John D. Lofton:

Take Us To Our Mis-Leader

WASHINGTON—As a candidate for the office he now holds, Jimmy Carter repeatedly promised never to lie to or mislead the American people. As President, in seeking to sell the SALT II treaty with the Soviets, Carter has done both of these things.

In Bardstown, Ky., on July 31, Carter was confronted by a confused young man. Citing Henry Kissinger's remarks critical of the SALT II pact, as well as those of the general who represented the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the negotiations, the President's questioner said he didn't know who to believe.

Carter replied: "Believe me," declaring, among other things, that SALT II would "give us peace, cut down on the nuclear arms race...control the proliferation of nuclear weapons throughout all the rest of the world, stop the Soviets' build-up...all that will come with SALT II...That's what I promise you."

NOW, RARELY, IF ever, has so much erroneous information been packed into one single statement by any public official talking about anything. First of all, no signed piece of paper, even if ratified by the Senate, will "give us peace."

If the President really believes what he said he should read Telford Taylor's new book, "Munich: The Price of Peace," published by Doubleday.

Secondly, SALT II will neither "cut down" the nuclear arms race nor "stop" the Soviets' build-up.

The SALT agreement will allow the United States to increase its number of nuclear warheads from 9,000 to about 12,000-15,000 by 1985; the Soviets will be allowed to increase their number of nuclear warheads from 5,000 to 12,000-15,000 during this same time period.

According to CIA Director Adm. Stansfield Turner, SALT II will reduce the growth rate of the Soviet defense budget by one-fifth of 1 percent.

In his July 11 testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said of SALT II: "Some may conclude that the agreement, by itself, will arrest the very dangerous adverse trends in Soviet strategic forces, including current and projected qualitative improvements. This is simply not the case."

FINALLY, SALT II will not, as the President says, "control the proliferation of nuclear weapons throughout all the rest of the world." This statement is ludicrous.

The SALT pact is a bilateral agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union only. It has nothing whatsoever to do with nuclear weapons produced by any other countries.

In fact, several weeks after the signing of the SALT II accord in Vienna, The New York Times front-paged a story telling how U.S. officials are working frantically behind the scenes to prevent Pakistan from developing nuclear weapons.

Obviously, the Pakistanis are either unaware of the SALT II agreement or they haven't yet read a transcript of Carter's remarks in Kentucky.

DESPITE THE PATENT falsity of the President's SALT II-selling quackery, one ought not to underestimate its impact. A lot of people are willing to believe a fraudulent tale, forcefully told, by a seemingly authoritative figure.

In the mid-1700s, Dr. Elisha Perkins and his son lived quite comfortably from the sales of the "Perkins' Metallic Tractor"—a deisting of two metal rods which, when pulled down slowly over an ailing part of the body, were supposed to yank out the particular disease.

George Washington and his entire family were believers in Perkinsism, as it was called, as was Oliver Ellsworth, chief justice of the Supreme Court.

In an effort to assure that the government meets or exceeds the same standards of honesty that are applied to private business, Michael Pertschuk, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, has written the heads of several federal agencies.

NOTING THAT the FTC has received complaints that "government advertising is inaccurate, misleading, or even occasionally deceptive," Pertschuk observes:

"In the commercial marketplace, we can count on consumers to maintain a healthy skepticism toward product claims because they understand that the purpose of advertising is to encourage sales for a profit.

"But citizens expect their government will deal honestly with them, without expectations of gain or profit...

"Indeed, government may ultimately be held to an even higher standard of 'fiduciary' responsibility toward the public, and must thus aspire to standards of absolute accuracy and fair dealing in its advertising."

Pertschuk's views are solid and deserve support. And if the head of the FTC is serious about making government advertising more honest, he will immediately launch an investigation of what President Carter has been saying about SALT II.

Because if ever there was a textbook example of the old bait-and-switch false-advertising con game, it's what Carter is saying the SALT II treaty accomplishes vs. what SALT II really does.

Astronomers Ponder Double Quasar Find

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomers say they may have found a significant new object in space — a double quasar 10 billion light years from Earth.

Quasars are the most distant observable objects in the universe and, although they look like stars, give off more energy than entire galaxies. Now the National Science Foundation says astronomers have found what may be the first double quasar ever detected. Quasars give off so much energy scientists say that in a single second they could supply all of Earth's electrical needs for a billion years.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♡	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♡.

Strict adherence to accepted bidding principles is usually sound policy, but these should not be followed slavishly. North and South each broke a rule on this hand, and as a result South had the opportunity to display technical virtuosity to bring home the only makable game contract.

Normally, a free response after an overcall shows a five-card suit. Unfortunately, South had no good bid after East intervened with one heart. A bid of one no trump with only one stopper in the enemy suit wasn't appealing, especially since that might result in losing a 4-4 spade fit, so South boldly responded in his four-card suit.

Now North had a problem. Raising to two spades was a gross underbid. A better approach would have been to rebid two clubs and then support spades on the next round—since South had bid freely, there was very little danger that South would pass a change of suit. However, North feared that that might unduly complicate matters and, since he had no intention of playing no trump because of his singleton heart, he chose to jump to three spades. That action is normally reserved for hands with four-card support for partner's suit, but since North expected to find a five-card suit in his partner's hand, he made what we feel is a justifiable exception to the general principle.

West led the fourth-best card in the suit his partner had bid and South paused to consider his prospects. To make the contract, he had to draw trumps and establish the diamonds, but the shortage of trumps complicated matters. After careful thought declarer found a line that needed little more than a 4-2 trump break.

Declarer allowed East to win the first trick with the queen of hearts! East continued a heart and declarer ruffed in dummy. The king and queen of trumps were cashed and a low diamond was led from dummy. Since declarer still retained control of the heart suit, there was no way the defenders could stop him from drawing the remaining trumps and setting up the diamonds for his contract with an overtrick!

The College Survival Kit:

Advice Streamlines College Life

By IRV BRECHNER
(Third of five parts)

NEA — Where should you live while attending college? In a dormitory? A fraternity or sorority house? Or an off-campus house or apartment with several roommates?

The dormitory is the most popular choice because it is an easy place to live and the best place to find other young people just starting out in college. After a year or two in a dormitory, you'll be better able to decide whether it suits your style for the rest of your college career.

SURVIVAL STRATEGY:
Where should you live at college?

Dorm life is characterized by friendly camaraderie with perhaps a noisier atmosphere than is always desirable.

You will be given a roommate without knowing him or her. Getting along with your roomie is very important. A good way to avoid conflict is to set ground rules from the first day.

If problems crop up such as entertaining too late, making noise while studying or not keeping the room as clean as is reasonable, you must talk with your roommate. Be firm and clear up the problems before they become habits.

If you are the one guilty of inconsiderate behavior, correct it.

Don't room with someone from your hometown. College is a place to meet people from all over the country.

A fraternity or sorority offers the student a place to hang his or her hat where cooking and other chores can be shared and an opportunity for more social events than are possible in the dorm.

In the opening weeks of the semester, the fraternities and sororities make their sales pitches. Visit their open houses and talk with the men or women there.

Pledge week comes next. You indicate your desire to join a specific organization. Upon acceptance, you're initiated.

Fraternities and sororities tend to stress the social rather than the academic side of college. Make sure your work doesn't suffer.

Once you've made friends at college, opportunities will arise to live in apartments or houses with one to five schoolmates.

Obviously, it is most important to choose people to live with who are compatible with you. Check out your prospective co-renters to see if they meet these requirements:

— They are committed to achieving good grades.

— Their personalities fit in with yours.

— They can afford the bills and will pay their share on time.

— They will consistently do their shares of household chores.

SURVIVAL STRATEGY:
Why you should join clubs

Joining clubs and professional fraternities is one of the best ways to develop your area of interest, meet people with common interests and goals, and learn to function in an organization.

Every campus has an endless number of these groups from the campus newspaper to a highly technical club in one of the sciences.

For example, a semester project of a psychology club may involve library research and lab experiments. A field survey may be taken and the results tabulated on the university's computer.

This kind of participation in real projects can be as valuable as the material learned in class and read in texts.

SURVIVAL STRATEGY:
Keep your body (and mind) healthy

Your body like your mind needs constant stimulation and your physical well-being affects your mental efficiency. Aim to play ball or participate in athletics at least two or three times a week.

SURVIVAL STRATEGY:
How to time your reading

You must plan your required reading on a weekly basis, according to a specific schedule.

Steady bit-by-bit reading gives better absorption of the material than last-minute cramming. In many courses, such as philosophy and sociology, the reading material must be thought over and your own views incorporated into what has been read.

Do not automatically accept everything you read. Remember that books are written by people who, like you, have definite points of view.

SURVIVAL STRATEGY:
What is the best setting for study?

Some students can study in a dorm. Others need the library and others prefer the cafeteria.

I've found the best place to be one where you'll find quiet, comfortable chairs, good lighting and other people studying. Try to study in the same place every day.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I just attended a funeral, and you couldn't see the mourners for the flowers. Don't get me wrong, Abby, I love flowers, but all I could think of was how much the family of the deceased could have used the money instead of all those flowers which will end up as garbage in a few days.

I'm not suggesting that a person be laid away without any flowers at all, but enough is enough!

You probably won't print this because you're afraid all the florists in the country will come down on you, but I just had to get this off my chest.

PRACTICAL IN LAFAYETTE, GA

DEAR PRACTICAL: I love flowers, too. But isn't it a bloomin' shame that more of us aren't programmed to give flowers to the living? If we did, the florists would probably do just as well.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Everyone in our family is bugged about our big-shot brother who is better off financially than any of us.

Three years ago he was asked to contribute equally to our mother's support in a nursing home.

"Oh, sure," he said. "That's peanuts...in fact, I'll probably send more than that!"

To date, he has sent exactly zilch! He was reminded twice, and both times he said, "I've been so busy with business it must have slipped my mind." Consequently, the rest of us have upped our share to make up for his, and nobody has asked him for anything since. I say, "Let's call him on it." The rest say, "He knows what he should do. Let him live with it."

Abby, I'm tired of letting him get away with it. What do you think? I'd like to see this in print. Maybe this situation exists in other families, too.

PUZZLED IN POMONA

DEAR PUZZLED: I vote with you. Send Big-Shot Brother a bill every month for his share. He appears to be the kind of person who could "live with it" comfortably — and indefinitely.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a cold husband? Sid and I have been married for 25 years and we aren't old. He says sex is for younger people. Abby, if it were up to him we'd never have sex. I always have to make the first move, then he acts like he's doing me a favor and I wish I hadn't brought it up.

Our children are grown and gone and Sid doesn't like to go anywhere or be around people. He has no hobbies. All he has is his work. He goes to bed around 7-7:30 p.m. because he's bored and doesn't like TV. He's an excellent provider, doesn't drink or smoke or chase, and is an above-average father. When I ask him to see a counselor with me, he says, "What for? We don't have a problem."

I'm no beauty, but I bathe daily, use deodorant, and I'm not fat or ugly. I am very unhappy living like a nun. I have trouble sleeping and have even considered an affair, but I'm not that kind of person. I've even thought of getting in the car and leaving, but as long as I didn't take his car, he wouldn't even look for me.

Any suggestions?

UNNEEDED

DEAR UNNEEDED: Yes. If he won't see a counselor, you see one. You need to learn what to do about a husband who is insensitive to your needs.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JIM IN NAPLES, FLA.: I appreciate your generous letter, but I did not save your life. I simply threw you a rope — and you caught it.

• • •

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You've Never Too Young or Too, Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Americans Utilize Conventional, Unusual Ways To Conserve Energy

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

West Virginia farmer Henry Blankenship, 63, is teaching his calves to pull plows and other farm machinery.

Hilarius Heying, a former Iowa state senator, hooked his methane system to his chicken house so the chicken droppings provide gas for direct heating and some generation of electricity on his farm.

Alan and Diane Zeithamer use 160-proof alcohol from their own still to run equipment and cut their reliance on gasoline on their farm outside Alexandria, Minn.

In New Jersey, state legislative aide Monica Walsh, 27, moved 45 miles to a Trenton suburb, Hamilton, "because I couldn't afford the gas" to drive from her old apartment in Lakewood, and public transit wasn't available.

These are among the more unusual ways in which individual Americans are conserving fuel energy. Many others resort to more conventional methods such as:

— Turning cooling thermostats to higher settings in summer or heater thermostats to cooler in winter, or turning off airconditioners altogether;

— Car-pooling;

— Trading down to smaller, more energy-efficient cars or riding bicycles, motorcycles or mopeds or walking to schools, jobs and stores for shopping;

— Adding insulation to their homes;

— Making fewer but longer business trips;

— Switching to energy-saving kitchen appliances.

— Some are cancelling vacations or vacationing closer to home;

A spot check by United Press International indicates people's motives are mainly economic. Patriotism, when it was mentioned at all, appeared to be incidental.

"I did it for the money but if the electricity I save really helps the country, then that's all right, too," said Ben Camarina, a Fresno, Calif., sheet metal worker. Camarina replaced his perfectly good home air-conditioning system with a device that cools by blowing air over water-soaked fiber pads.

He said the new system has cut his summer electricity bill from about $100 a month to less than $60 "because we went from a three horsepower motor to a one-half hp motor."

In Mount Holly, N.J., nursery school teacher Pat Hill said:

"Saving energy is good for the pocketbook, but that's secondary as far as I'm concerned. I personally feel we have to think about the other guy who might not be able to get energy."

Mrs. Hill said she and her children, a sixth and a ninth grader, plan to bicycle to and from classes this fall. She said the family keeps the thermostat "turned way down" in winter, and has bought more sweaters and a storm door for the front entrance to their house.

In Wichita, Kan., Bob Hamilton, a music teacher at the state university, walks, jogs or bicycles two miles to his work. But his son, Gregg, 17, drives one mile to his part-time job because, the youth says, he's embarrassed to bicycle.

Hamilton and his wife, Bev, still use two cars, but reserve the gas-guzzling station wagon for short hauls and drive their small freign compact on longer trips and when two trips coincide.

Farmer Blankenship, whose spread is near Wayne, W.Va., said he's using animals "the old way.

"The first thing you have to do is teach 'em how to stop," he said, tapping a calf on the head with a stick. "Once they're broken in all you have to do is talk to 'em."

Blankenship has also run a line from a pond above his farm to draw water by gravity for his livestock and garden.

"If people would live as I did when I was a boy, bring their children up in church, teach 'em right and do it right, it would eliminate about 90 percent of our trouble," he said.

"This younger generation doesn't know how to drive a horse. They can't take an axe and cut down a tree ... they can't notch logs.

"Education is fine, as long as we are going forward and the nations on the move. But when we all get an education and all we have to eat is what we can raise on little farms, we'll be in trouble."

Mrs. Rosemary Holt, a Salt Lake City housewife, says she's going to replace her gas range with a new model that uses electric sparks instead of pilot lights. An estimated 30 percent of the natural gas burned annually in the United States goes for pilot lights.

"I'm doing it partly to help solve the energy crisis, and partly because my range is getting a little old and would need to be replaced soon anyway," Mrs. Holt said.

Mrs. Barbara Simmons, a Memphis school teacher, tackled the food problem another way.

"We're eating a lot of cold plates," she said. Mrs. Simmons said she and her husband, Matthew, have cancelled two vacations because of the fuel shortage and have not thought about rescheduling. They've also set their air conditioner thermostat back to 78 degrees F. the temperature now required for most public buildings.

Dave Fales, 26, an Albuquerque land developer, has changed his travel habits, too.

"... instead of driving back home from the development some days, I'm now staying over an extra day until I get the work done," Fales said.

He added that he's cut down on weekend fishing trips and tries to use fewer cars when relatives go along.

Louis B. Earle, a retired county assessor in Wichita, sees a different picture: "I live on a well-traveled street, and the cars just go by here like nobody's business with just one person in them."

When he had to make a trip to New Orleans a few months ago, Earle said he rode the train down and a bus back instead of driving.

He said his new car gets only about 19 mpg, so he compensates by driving less. And, "When I have to go downtown, I park my car in one place and ... walk everywhere.

Earle wonders "how Mrs. Carter got from place to place on her last tour? The average citizen tends to want to be patriotic and help out, but the government has some obligation to set a good example."

Kathy Boyce, a secretary at Arizona State University, also had a message for the White House:

"I don't think the president knows how hot it is in Phoenix."

Miss Boyce said she's cut down on driving, is trying to cut down usage of her washing machine and make larger loads and use towels more than once. She has set her thermostat at 77 degrees F.

"I'm doing it mostly to save money," she said, "but there is an energy crisis because we've been taking everything for granted so long."

Apartment manager Al Stephan of Mesa, Ariz. said his family is driving less and not planning lengthy trips — "mostly because of the high price of gas.

"We haven't retreated at all in our cooking habits. If we want something fried, baked, ovenwise, we have it.

"This whole so-called critical thing (energy crisis) is manufactured. There is no reality to it at all."

Stephan's attitude about the situation is shared by Kay Thomas of Olympia, Wash., but for a different reason. The high school vice principal thought he would get an income tax break when he replaced the older model heat pump in his home last winter with a newer, more efficient appliance.

"... I found out later heat pumps were excluded," Thomas said. "That doesn't make sense."

He said if his family took a trip this summer, it would be "to Canada because of the favorable exchange rate. Gasoline is also cheaper there and more readily available. We have two kids with driver's licenses but we limit their mileage."

When gasoline prices jumped recently in Birmingham Ala., jeweler Bobby Cisco figured out how to save money on his 35 mile daily round trip to work in a mid-size car. He borrowed his girlfriend's small foreign car.

Many persons questioned by UPI share the cynicism of Harry Bricker of Harrisburg, Pa., about escalating gas prices.

"I think part of it is inflation," Bricker said, "part of it is the oil companies and the largest part of it is the administration."

Mrs. Debra Wilson of Los Angeles cut her family's gasoline bill by putting one of the two family cars out of reach. She drove it 75 miles to her parents' mountain home, removed the wheels and stowed them in the tool shed. Her husband followed in their compact and drove her back home.

Mrs. Wilson said she was motivated by the savings on gas prices and insurance. She even got a rebate on the insurance.

William J. Keezer, 34, of Eastport, Ma., doesn't doubt there's a gasoline shortage but, "I just don't believe it's as bad as they say it is."

Still, he has to keep driving more than 25 miles to his job as a master mechanic for a paper company. So he traded his American convertible for an American compact that uses 12 gallons of gasoline a week, compared with about 35 for the bigger car.

Darlene Kauffman's recent experience driving cross country from California to her home in Harisburg, Pa., confirms Keezer's belief.

"I really hesitated and thought about flying and shipping the car," Kauffman told UPI. "But I talked to AAA and they said I wouldn't have trouble finding gas. I didn't have any trouble."

She thinks whatever gas crisis exists stems from "political problems outside the country. Like OPEC holding out on us."

In the Buffalo, N.Y., suburb of Cheektowaga, Leo Kazukiewicz said he scored points with his automobile dealer employer by suggesting they turn off three out of four rows of lights in the showroom during the day.

"Last Sunday I walked to church for the first time in years," Kazukiewicz added. "It's only seven blocks but I figure I saved a half-gallon of gas.

In northern Wisconsin, the Peter Dohertys, of Superior, added a wood conversion unit to their gas furnace and are using wood from 200 acres they own. They also put up a clothesline. "We're not using our gas dryer any more," Doherty said.

Housewife Susan Randell of Cary, N.C., has turned in her electric can opener to the State Utilities Commission ae a symbol of her family's efforts to eliminate unnecessary use of electricity.

Mrs. Randell made the gesture during the commission's hearings into the state' future power needs. The can opener was filed as an exhibit.

In the business world:

Pharmacist Ken Wilcox, of Olympia, Wash., replaced the store delivery van with a small foreign station wagon and cut back delivery runs from three daily to one or two. Wilcox said he also turned down the airconditioning and the lighting — but the lighting economy "didn't work out well with our customers."

And in Poteau, Okla., Carl Albert Junior College is rearranging its fall class schedule to help commuter students reduce the amount of driving necessary to get to and from classes. Other schools in the state have said they plan to follow suit.

Adapted Iranian Swimwear Echoes Victorian Age

By ALEX EFTY

BANDAR ANZALI, Iran (AP) The bathing belles of this Caspian Sea resort had to give up their bikinis to swim with the men.

They now go into the water fully clothed and swathed in chadors — head-to-toe veils — to conform with Iran's post-revolutionary mores.

"It was either this or complete separation, with men and boys on one beach and women and girls on another," fumed Jaleh Hashemi, a pretty young woman wading in the sea, as she struggled to keep the waves from sweeping her chador away.

"I want to stay with my husband, other friends or relatives, and to be able to do so I have to go through this nonsense," Hasehemi, who works in a laboratory, added.

The coverall beachwear was an unofficial compromise worked out with the authorities here, to win the battle for mixed bathing. A recent order segregating the sexes is being strictly enforced elsewhere along Iran's Caspian Riviera.

The authorities agreed to the local exemption following noisy protest demonstrations in the town recently, organized by local businessmen. The resort, the most popular on the coast, caters every weekend to 150,000-200,000 people who camp out or stay in the beach-huts lining the 7.5 mile-long, wide sandy beach.

The businessmen argued that the total absence of women, whether unveiled in bikinis or veiled in chadors, would ruin this lucrative tourist trade.

The authorities told the protesting tradesmen the ban was designed to end "feminine indecent exposure" in the skimpy swimsuits prevalent along the beach before the overthrow of the shah and the advent of the Islamic republic.

"So when we suggested the chador-as-a-swimsuit solution, they had no objection. They told us if decorum was maintained they would not enforce the segregation ban, if this was what the people wanted," said Mahmoud Minachi, one of the protesting beach-hut owners.

The usual massive turnout the following weekend, with thousands of cars, trucks, buses and scores of motorbikes carrying whole families of four or even five persons, congregating on the Anzali beach from all over the hinterland, demonstrated the people's choice.

But things were different from last year and the ones before that, complained many of the operators of the beach-side catering stalls.

"And it isn't simply because people are sober after the new government banned the sale and consumption of alcohol," one of the operators said.

It was evident the decorum desired by the authorities reigned the whole length of the beach. With thousands of women in the water and sunning themselves on the sandy beach, there was not a single modern feminine swimsuit in sight and little feminine bare flesh could be glimpsed beyond bare ankles and arms.

The scene was reminscent of the Victorian era, with the beach belles all covered up, except that the men, unlike their Victorian forebears, disported themselves unselfconsciously in the latest and briefest male swimming trunks. Strict Moslem tradition on undress applies only to women.

Matronly ladies and young but rather inactive girls, waded into the water up to their knees. Fully clothed, they clasped the long loose folds of their chadors tightly around them as the waves lapped at the billowing lower ends that kept floating off.

More lively girls determined to swim at least a few strokes — something almost impossible in a chador — dropped their veils briefly and struck out, still clad in slacks and shirts they wore as special swim-wear underneath.

The bolder girl swimmers mingled with the scores of male bathers crowding the water. But the noisy games and splashing about normal on most beachdside outings were noticeably lacking.

"This is unbelievable, compared to previous years when the whole beach was a mass of thousands of men and women in their beachwear noisily enjoying a day by the sea," mused Ali, a grizzled old man running a soft-drink stall.

Grand Jury Files Suit To Publicize Findings

DENTON (AP) — Members of a Denton County grand jury have filed suit in federal court to try to make their findings part of the public record. The jurors drafted a report last June outlining possible criminal activity among some elected officials in the county, but state district court judge Robert Scofield ordered the report kept secret.

All 12 members of the grand jury filed suit Monday at a federal court in Sherman. The suit contends the order keeps the jurors from making known "suspected criminal offenses (and) official misconduct or incompetence," and calls the judge's order "unnecessarily vague and over-broad."

Scofield acknowledged he had never sealed a grand jury report before. He issued the order June 28, threatening the grand jurors with contempt of court if they revealed the contents of the report.

"You are bound by secrecy for the rest of your lives," Scofield told them.

New Guidelines

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County Commissioners Monday ordered the drafting of new guidelines for contractors doing business with the county, after discovering six county employees or their relatives worked for a microfilm company which handled a $400,000 county contract. Commissioners said they want a new policy drafted requiring would-be contractors to provide a list of county employees or their relatives who have worked with the company during the 12 months prior to the bidding date.

Officials Disagree

DALLAS (AP) — Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, officially disagrees with fellow Republican Gov. Bill Clements on the matter of the Mexican oil spill. Collins said Monday he feels Mexico should pay for damage the oil has done to Texas beaches.

"I'm sick and tired of countries that want to make profits and not take on responsibilites," Collins said. "If it had been an American company, they would have been expected to pay damages."

The Dallas Republican said "this is one of the few times" he has disagreed with the governor, who has said he thinks a lawsuit against Mexico would be a bad idea. Collins said "I think it's time Mexico grew up and accepted its responsibilities."

Webster Trial

DALLAS (AP) — Gary Lynn Webster will soon be on his way to Florida, to stand trial for the murder of his wife, according to a Dallas County prosecutor. Assistant District Attorney Doug Mulder said Webster has waived extradition.

Webster is charged in the death of his wife, Betty Shirley Webster, 18. Her dismembered body was found in a mini-warehouse July 13 in Garland, a Dallas suburb.

But the case has been filed in Florida because of a statement Webster allegedly signed shortly after his arrest. In the statement, police say Webster said he killed his wife in their Florida apartment in July, 1977, and later took the body to Garland where he stored it in the personal warehouse.

High-Speed Chase

DALLAS (AP) — Police arrested three burglary suspects Sunday after a high-speed chase across Dallas County. Officers finally stopped the suspects by shooting out their tires at the city limits of Fort Worth.

The incident began about 2:15 a.m. Sunday when a man reported a burglary to police and Sgt. John Sullivan began chasing three persons seen leaving the burglarized apartment. The chase lasted 20 minutes. Other squad cars joined Sullivan, and later police cars from Cedar Hill and Grand Prairie entered the caravan chasing the trio.

Grand Prairie officers shot out the tires. Dallas police arrested a 22-year-old woman, an 18-year-old man and another teen-ager who was turned over to juvenile authorities. Charges were pending.

Enrollment Drop

DALLAS (AP) — City school officials Monday said they expect another drop in enrollment of 2 percent this year.

"We've had a traditional 2 percent drop since 1971," said spokesman Rodney Davis. He said the Dallas Independent School District, which opened class for the fall semester Monday, expected 112,600 students. Last year 114,900 students enrolled.

Robbery Suspects

HOUSTON (AP) — Police reported Monday a man and two women arrested over the weekend may have been involved in as many as 150 robberies dating back to January.

Lt. Allen Tharling said it is thought the trio robbed two or three times a day at service stations, fast food restaurants, and convenience stores. The usual method, Tharling said, was to steal a pickup truck, commit a robbery and then use the truck for a quick getaway to a waiting car.

Acupuncture Regulation

HOUSTON (AP) — Lawyers have until Oct. 26 to file briefs in a federl court suit challenging the regulation of acupuncture by the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners.

U.S. District Judge Gabrielle K. McDonald set the date Monday after attorneys for the 46 plaintiffs decided to call no rebuttal witnesses in the two-weeks trial.

The plaintiffs contend the requirement that acupuncture be administered only by licensed physicians limits an individual's access to medical treatment of his or her choice. Judge McDonald said she will rule on the case after studying the briefs.

Symphony To Play For Pope

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Symphony will foresake its usual home at Orchestra Hall to play a special concert at the 2,000-seat Holy Name Cathedral for Pope John Paul II during his October visit, a symphony spokesman says.

According to plans announced Monday, the pope will attend the concert the night of Oct. 5, after addressing a closed meeting of Roman Catholic bishops and saying an outdoor Mass in Grant Park on the city's lakefront earlier in the day.

Although the pope's itinerary has not been announced officially, he is expected to arrive Oct. 1 in Boston after a flight from Ireland. He is to address the United Nations General Assembly on Oct. 2 in New York, visit Philadelphia on Oct. 3 and make a brief stop in Des Moines on Oct. 4 before arriving in Chicago.

Art Carney Having Chest Pain

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Actor Art Carney has been transferred to the intensive care unit of Middlesex Memorial Hospital for observation of several ailments including chest pain, his physician says.

CARNEY

Carney, 60, was admitted to the hospital Thursday after complaining of a variety of symptoms. He was transferred to the intensive care unit Monday after he had arrhythmias, or irregular heartbeats, and some chest pain, according to Dr. Roger W. Cyrus.

"He was really kind of exhausted," Cyrus said. "He's been working hard for at least a year on one film after the other. He's not a young man. He's been burning the candle at both ends."

Recently, Carney has been working in Las Vegas on a film called "Going in Style," which also stars George Burns and Lee Strasberg.

Boston Director Apologizes

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Symphony Orchestra Musical Director Seiji Ozawa has apologized for frequent absences, telling members of the orchestra, "I want to be with you."

Ozawa, who has been criticized for absenteeism and globetrotting, made the promise last Thursday at a dinner party he gave for orchestra members in Salzburg, Austria, according to the Boston Globe.

The 43-year-old conductor, who is leading the orchestra on a European tour, said he often left Boston to conduct opera, which he had been unable to study as a music student in Japan.

"I thought I was the famous conductor, going from city to city," he said. "No more. I want to be with you. I hope you can help me."

Orchestra members cheered and clapped when Ozawa finished speaking.

In Luck... No Ducks

MIDLOTHIAN, Ill. (AP) — Robert Curley is out of the soup. He has removed his 34 ducks from a pond at his wife's suburban home, as ordered by a Circuit Court judge.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Dorothea Curley, 36, who is suing her husband for a divorce, told Judge Robert C. Buckley on Monday that all the ducks were gone. The judge had warned Curley last week that he would go to jail if the ducks weren't removed by Monday.

Since May, when Buckley ordered Curley to get the ducks out of the pond, Mrs. Curley has been trying to get the order enforced. She has contended the ducks led to difficulties in the couple's 18-year marriage.

The Curleys, who have been separated since April, have three children. Curley, a former Chicago policeman and now a construction worker, has said he would remove the ducks if doing so would save his marriage.

Jerry Brown Seeks Debate

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — One of Edmund Brown Jr.'s top campaign aides says the California governor would like to debate President Carter one or more times before the presidential primaries next year.

Tom Quinn, chairman of Brown's "exploratory" political committee, said Sunday he was "very hopeful the president will agree to one or two joint appearances" in New Hampshire in a "debate-type format".

"The fact that Carter made such a strong argument three years ago that debates are needed ... makes it rather difficult for the president to argue that there is anything improper in his engaging in debates," Quinn said.

Quinn said he discussed the debate idea last weekend with Tim Kraft, a top Carter campaign aide.

"Obviously, if Senator (Edward) Kennedy decides he wants to run, he should be included in the invitation too," Quinn said.

At a Hampton Democratic Town Committee meeting, Quinn said he hoped Brown could finish the New Hampshire primary "within 10 points or so of the president's showing ... that would be a great beginning for us."

HSCH Begins Cash Policy For Outpatients

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Patients lining up for many services at Health Science Center Hospital's outpatient clinic will face an abrupt change Thursday when administrators switch to a cash-only policy.

For most non-emergency cases that means a no-cash, no-treatment procedure for everything from X-rays to blood counts. With the majority of Health Sciences' unpaid patient bills resulting from outpatient services, the Board of Managers for the Lubbock County Hospital District voted Monday to try a cash approach to the problem.

Hospital finance director Tom Kearney explained that in most cases, having insurance won't make any difference in administering the new policy. The deductible factor in most insurance policies is so high, he said, that very little if any clinic services are covered.

However, hospital workers staffing the payment desk will have insurance information available and will allow patients to charge services above their deductible amount to insurance. But surveys have indicated that the average bill for outpatient services is between $40 and $50 — far below the deductible of an average health insurance policy.

"The unfortunate thing is that most people don't know what they're covered for," Kearney said after the board meeting.

People qualifying for Medicaid or Medicare probably can claim some outpatient expenses under those insurance plans, Kearney said. And those people who qualify under Lubbock County indigency guidelines (a relatively small percentage) still will receive the services at no charge.

Kearney urged the board to be sure it was ready to enforce such a policy, saying "it will be a refusal of service." But administrator Robert Berryman stressed, "It needs to be understood that this is what will happen."

The board also voted to turn over $4.5 million in unpaid patient bills more than 90 days old to a collection agency based in Houston. Accounts Management Corporation of Texas will begin processing the old accounts as soon as LCHD legal advisors approve the contract.

Of the $4.5 million to be turned over for collection, almost half are insurance claims.

Board members heard a preliminary report on the district's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) with an estimate on how much subsidization the district is picking up. Finance officer Ronnie Elliott said that at an estimated 60 percent collection rate, EMS probably lost $224,795 for the seven-month period ending in July.

He said he has been unable to document EMS collection statistics to determine the actual collection rate for the service But he speculated that the 60 percent collection rate estimate was probably generous — about 20 percent too high.

Board members are currently considering turning over EMS to a private ambulance firm in Eugene, Ore. However, the Eugene company has requested that the county hospital district continue to subsidize indigent patients.

According to administrator Berryman, the district will be stuck with the subsidy no matter who runs the operation.

"I don't see how financially the hospital can do it alone," Berryman said.

Elliott predicted that the board will take action on the EMS situation — possibly to turn over the service to the Eugene firm — after hearing the complete report at Wednesday's administrative committee meeting.

In other business, the board voted to hire the Texas Tech University School of Medicine security service to patrol the hospital. Berryman personally recommended the Tech service over other competitors because of a lower cost factor.

Kearney also went over a report detailing the number of available and open beds in the hospital, on a departmental basis. Representatives from Brookwood Management Services probably will recommend closing some beds in lesser-used departments at a later date, Kearney said, if it appears that certain departments are maintaining more beds than they can use.

County Gives Justices Budget Increase

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Commissioners Monday reconsidered the 1980 budget requests of two justices of the peace who have threatened to file a grievance about their budget allocations and gave both offices more money for secretarial help.

Acting on a request by Judge Wayne LeCroy, who appeared before the court at mid-day, the commissioners gave LeCroy an extra $1,200 in salary and added $40 per month to the office budgets of LeCroy and Justice of the Peace Charles Smith.

The money will be for a secretary designated by the justice of the peace to act as office manager.

LeCroy, who presides over Precinct 6, and Smith, who has Precinct 1, Place 2, had protested a salary increase of 8 percent while the commissioners are planning a 23-percent hike for themselves.

County Judge Rodrick Shaw commented that perhaps the county "ought to take a second look" at the budgets in light of an increased workload in the two courts.

LeCroy told commissioners his workload has increased fivefold in the 12 1/2 years he has been in office.

He is making $15,000 per year now and asked $18,500 for 1980. The commissioners first pared his salary to $16,200 but increased it to $17,424 Monday.

Smith makes $14,004 now and asked $18,696 for next year. The commissioners cut his request to $15,120 and did not change that figure Monday.

Smith did not appear before the Monday commissioners court meeting.

A public hearing on the 1980 county budget will held on Sept. 24.

In other business Monday, the commissioners authorized county engineer Arnold Maeker to take bids on "sun control film" to line courthouse windows and save on energy consumption.

Maeker said he did not have an estimate on how much the window lining would cost because the square footage of windows in the courthouse had not been determined.

He said the film will be stuck onto the inside of the windows and will reflect summertime sunlight to keep the sun from working against courthouse cooling. In the winter, he said, it will tend to keep heat from escaping through the glass.

The commissioners laid plans for county jail maintenance men to take training at Roanoke Iron & Bridge Co. in Roanoke, Va., on operating the new county jail, which is scheduled for completion early next year.

Roanoke Iron & Bridge is installing jail cells and other detention equipment for the new jail east of the existing county jail.

Shaw scheduled a 1:30 p.m. Wednesday court meeting for "appropriate changes" in election precincts the commissioners consider to have grown too populous.

All precincts with more than 3,000 registered voters will be considered for division into two precincts, Shaw said.

Lloyd Watts, head of the county juvenile probation office, reported that Page & Wirtz Construction Co. has cleared the site for the new Lubbock County Youth Center reform school at North University Avenue and Loop 289 and started construction on the $1.1-million project.

The commissioners accepted the annual $50,000 state Criminal Justice Division grant for Project Intercept, which is a county-school district program for the education of youngsters with behavior problems.

The 53 paintings were chosen from the winning entries of the competition held for children between the ages of 7 and 14, in North America, Africa, Europe, Latin America and Asia.

Three Seek Damages From SBA

Three employees of the Lubbock Small Business Administration office have filed suit in federal court seeking $1 million in damages from the SBA, Office of Federal Equal Employment Opportunity and 11 other government employees.

Philip J. O'Jibway, Thomas A. Linguist and Denis C. McCaghey allege in their suit that they were denied "due process" during the investigation of a 1978 discrimination complaint against O'Jibway and Linguist.

According to the suit, filed by Lubbock attorney Elgin Conner, Betty Ann Johnson, a loan assistant with the Lubbock office of SBA, filed a complaint against O'Jibway, Lubbock SBA District director, and Linguist, assistant director of finanace and investment at the Lubbock office, because they did not hire her as a loan assistant in February 1978.

A subsequent office investigation of the complaint, according to the suit, resulted in O'Jibway and Linguist being found guilty of racial discrimination and were required to attend training sessions to meet Equal Employment Opportunity requirements. Complaints also were placed in the men's personnel files, the suit contends, and O'Jibway additionally was relieved of his personnel authority for six months.

The three plaintiffs contend that the investigation was based solely on affidavits reflecting the personal opinions of other employees and no facts relevant to the racial discrimination charge were uncovered. The suit also states that several of the affidavits contain "sweeping slanderous and malicious" statements revealing the "personal hostility" of the other SBA workers toward the plaintiffs.

The suit is requesting that a jury hear the three men's demand for $1 million in actual damages, $10,000 in attorney's fees and court costs.

Other individual defendants, in addition to Miss Johnson, named in the suit are: George H. Robinson, special assistant to the administrator and director of the Equal Employment Opportunity and Compliance board of the SBA; Dean Lupkey, acting regional directior of the SBA; Alicia R. Chacon, regional director of the SBA; Mary Dean Sheets, EEOC investigator, SBA central office; Nancy Coggins, EEO counselor, SBA Lubbock District Office; Raymond Jacobson, EEO executive director; William H. McKelvey, loan officer, Lubbock District Office SBA; Brenda J. Smith, EEO specialist; Elizabeth W. Glenn, EEO specialist; and Frank T. Ford Jr., loan officer, Lubbock District Office, SBA.

Lubbock Residents Favor Pipeline For Wastewater

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

About 30 residents at a public hearing Monday tentatively approved an Environmental Protection Agency draft of a proposed pipeline to carry wastewater from Lubbock to a farm about 15 miles south of the city.

The new wastewater disposal system, sponsored by the Lubbock Christian College Institute for Water Research, would pipe city wastewater to the J.E. Hancock farm to be used for irrigation. For the past 40 years, Lubbock has piped its wastewater to the Frank Gray farm near Yellowhouse Canyon, but the city now has more wastewater than Gray's farm can use effectively.

Speaking for the city, Sam Wahl answered several questions from citizens concerning the acquisition of right-of-way land for the pipeline and the possible diversion of the wastewater in the future following a brief presentation from EPA spokesmen and a speaker from Sheaffer & Roland, Inc., which is handling the draft and design for the project.

Lee Rozaklis, speaking for Sheaffer and Roland, concluded that the project deals effectively with Lubbock's wastewater problems and causes no major new problems as a result of its implementation.

George Keeler, also representing the EPA, told the small crowd gathered at Lubbock Christian College that the $9.5 million project, which will cover nearly 70,000 acres of land in Lubbock and Lynn Counties with irrigation water, would ease the pressure on the existing Gray farm and allow for better use of the water over a larger area.

Keeler added that the EPA and Sheaffer & Roland have completed a detailed draft of the project and begun engineering studies. Upon completion, the project will consist of a pipeline from Lubbock to the Hancock farm as well as storage reserviors to hold the excess water.

Rodzaklis reviewed the EPA draft environmental assessment for the project, noting that it covered three major areas: the existing problems which need to be corrected; other alternatives to this project; and impacts of the project on the Lubbock area.

He said that while the EPA would prefer to do more research, the existing projects of this nature have proven successful, and that such a project could correct any existing problems.

Panel Approves RAFB Plans

Reese Air Force Base's plan to expand its Air Installation Compatible Use Zone (AICUZ) program to its auxiliary airfield in Terry County Monday was approved by the Terry County Board of Commissioners.

The program, which will see the upgrading of Reese's facility in north central Terry County, will have no effect on the land surrounding the airfield's 520 acre plot, according to 64th Flying Training Wing Commander Richard Ingram, who added the only request he made to three landowners whose property borders the auxiliary airfield is that they continue to use their land for farming.

The federal government will pay the landowners to guarantee their land will remain agricultural.

The program for the airfield calls for the creation of a clear zone 3,000 feet from the end of the runway and 2,000 feet on either side of the center of the runway, covering a total of 145 acres outside the field's boundaries.

The field is located 14 miles south of Levelland, about midway between Levelland and Brownfield.

Earlier this summer, the Air Force filed suit against owners of property in the residential area of Hurlwood, adjacent to Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock. The suits seek to obtain the land for a similar clear zone near the base's runway.

Trial Date Set In Drug Suit

A-J Correspondent

PLAINVIEW — A $3,003 damage suit resulting from a March 19, 1976, drug raid on the wrong address at an apartment is headed for a new trial Sept. 10 in Lubbock before Federal District Judge Halbert O. Woodward.

The case involves an incident in which law enforcement officials used a sledge hammer to break down the door at 409-A Yonkers during a narcotics raid.

The officers later admitted they had the wrong address.

The suit originally had been filed by Ted Hooks, Diane Duncan and Delia Gutierrez against officers involved in the raid, including the Amarillo Metro Squad, Hale County sheriff's officers, Plainview police, and members of the Hale County Major Crimes and Narcotics Unit. The latter since has been disbanded.

After the first trial in Canyon, the jury said the officers had acted out of good faith in conducting the raid, but the jury could not decide on the officers' behavior once they were inside the apartment.

The trial judge later decided the question on their behavior was not necessary, in view of the jury's ruling on the question of good faith.

The justice of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, however, decided the trial judge had erred in choosing to disregard the question on the officers' actions.

The appeals court then ordered a new trial.

Talks To Be Held On Illegal Aliens

SALTILLO, Mexico (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements, in his third meeting this month with a Mexican border state governor, has agreed to embark on face-to-face discussions about the problem of undocumented Mexican workers, who he claims number three million in Texas alone.

Clements said his talks with Coahuila Gov. Oscar Flores Tapia Monday were the most intense and thorough he has had with a Mexican governor.

Flores Tapia and Clements met privately for more than an hour and also agreed to appoint binational committees to study and share information on agriculture, education, crime prevention and culture.

Tapia Flores immediately announced his appointees to four of the committees and said he and Clements would work as a "committee of two" on the undocumented alien problem.

"I had the most in-depth and understanding discussion of the undocumented alien problem with him that I have had with any of the Mexican governors," Clements said. "He sees it as a problem that relates to his people.

"He's perfectly willing for them to go over (to the United States) and work, and wants them to get paid a fair wage and have advantage of local services. But he wants them documented. He realizes it's axiomatic that the other things are not going to be done as long as they are illegal."

The Texas governor toured a children's hospital and a public works projects and exchanged gifts with his Mexican counterpart during the trip to Saltillo.

"I think our relationship with Mexico has moved to a new plateau. We have a sense of relationship that has not existed before," he said.

Clements said his office has been in communication with the U.S. State Department concerning his meetings with the Mexican governors and said, "In the final analysis, the undocumented worker or documented worker ultimately has to be a function of the federal government, the State Department."

His visits with the Mexican governors, Clements contends, could influence federal decisions concerning illegal aliens.

Defense Gets Turn In Retrial

BEAUMONT (AP) — Defense attorneys now have the floor in the capital murder retrial of former Amarillo police officer Jimmy Paul Vanderbilt.

Prosecutors rested their case Monday after calling a witness who testified she had been abducted by Vanderbilt two weeks before the body of 16-year-old Katina Moyer was found April 2, 1975, with a single bullet wound in the head.

Vanderbilt is accused of killing Miss Moyer, the daughter of former state Rep. Hudson Moyer. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals overturned Vanderbilt's conviction and subsequent death sentence in his first trial in Amarillo.

Tere Chris Tucker, 25, testified Monday that Vanderbilt abducted her and made sexual advances two weeks prior to the death of Miss Moyer.

She testified that she talked Vanderbilt out of raping her and promised not to report the incident. A promise she said she broke after Vanderbilt was arrested for the murder of Miss Moyer.

The appeals court overturned Vanderbilt's earlier conviction and threw out statements he made to police. The court ruled that prosecutors had promised not to seek the death penalty in return for the statements.

District Judge Larry Gist also has ruled inadmissible all written and oral statements Vanderbilt made to police following his arrest.

Leslie Smith, a toxicologist for the Department of Public Safety, testified Monday that hair found on a bullet matched that of Miss Moyer perfectly.

Ron Richardson, a DPS firearms examiner, testified that in his opinion the slug was a .38 caliber bullet. The pistol believed to be the murder-weapon is a .357 magnum. However, Richardson said there is no difference between a .38 caliber and a 357 and that the bullets "would be interchangeable."

John Paul Names Texas Archbishop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope John Paul II has appointed Bishop Patrick F. Flores of El Paso as archbishop of San Antonio, Archbishop Jean Jadot, apostolic delegate to the United States, announced today.

Flores, 50, a native of Ganado succeeds the late Archbishop Francis J. Furey, who died last April 23.

In another change involving the Roman Catholic Church in Texas, the pope accepted the resignation for reasons of health of Bishop Lawrence M. DeFalco of Amarillo. DeFalco, 64, has headed the Amarillo diocese since 1963. No successor was named immediately.

Sugar Bill Supporters Blast Advertisements

By JIM STEIERT
A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — Local officials of the Hereford-headquartered Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association, who spent two years working on the sugar bill which will be taken up by Congress when it re-convenes next month, are currently trying to counter what they consider an eleventh hour effort to torpedo the legislation by a Texas-headquartered sugar importer.

Imperial Sugar Co. of Sugarland recently launched an advertising campaign in major metropolitan newspapers in the state, urging consumers to voice their opposition to H.R. 2172, the sugar bill which representatives of the local beet sugar production industry and corn sweetener industry have worked toward for over two years.

In advertisements which have appeared in Lubbock, Amarillo and dailies in the Houston area, as well as other papers in the state, Imperial attacks what it calls "sugar lobby" efforts to secure the passage of H.R. 2172.

"You, the American consumer, pay twice as much for sugar as other consumers all over the world. The politically powerful sugar lobby is asking Congress to pass a bill which would add another $400 million a year to the already inflated price you pay," said an advertisement carrying an Imperial Sugar Co. signature.

The Imperial advertisement also charged: "Sugar growers in the U.S. receive government price supports which bring the price of domestic raw sugar up to twice the world price. Imported raw sugar is then burdened with customs duties and import fees creating an artificial domestic price. This legislation for contrived pricing already costs consumers about $2.6 billion every year."

Imperial Sugar listed its reasons for the opposition to the pending sugar legislation, claiming, "The additional subsidy and fees would benefit less than one-half of one percent of American farmers and penalize 224 million American consumers."

Bill Cleavinger of Wildorado, president of the T-NMSBGA, which includes farmers in the Deaf Smith, Castro, Parmer, Randall, Bailey, Oldham, and Swisher county areas of the Texas Panhandle, as well as growers in Curry County, New Mexico, blasted the Imperial Sugar Co. tactics used in opposition to the pending sugar legislation.

"This whole advertising campaign on the part of Imperial is a series of half-truths, insinuations, and downright underhanded tactics," charged Cleavinger, who personally traveled to Washington on numerous occasions over the past two years to represent the interests of Panhandle area beet growers.

"Imperial throws figures around loosely, and almost any of their statements can be proved wrong. Their allegation that sugar legislation has cost American consumers $2.6 billion is absolutely incorrect. Actual cost figures are more like $212 million, and the cost would not have been nearly that high if the USDA had administered the sugar program in a proper and timely manner," Cleavinger charged.

Cleavinger emphasized that beet sugar producers in the Panhandle do not receive any direct payments from the government, and opposed Administration-desired proposals for such payments contained in the present sugar bill.

"We've spent two years in the process of presenting testimony, attending hearings, undergoing investigations and proving the facts concerning the need for a domestic sugar policy. I know the Congress will act on the facts, and these allegations from Imperial aren't facts," Cleavinger emphasized.

"If you look down into the issue and really examine the facts and the background of the domestic sugar industry as a whole, you can't help but see that the domestic industry is in a precarious position at this time. Refusal to adopt a workable domestic sugar policy would be a mistake not only where the producers and processors are concerned, but for the consumers and the whole nation. We'd face a sugar cartel situation every bit as serious as OPEC, were we to lose our domestic sugar industry," Cleavinger claimed.

"Our contention is that we need a stable market situation, which would be afforded by this proposed legislation. With this legislation, we can avoid the boom and bust cycle that has serious effects not only on the producer, but on the consumer as well," he related.

Cleavinger charged that import fees on foreign sugar, which would be increased slightly under the proposed legislation, would cut down on the profit margin of a sugar importer such as the Imperial firm.

"Imperial's raw sugar comes from the Philippines, Brazil, Panama, Mexico — anywhere they can get it the cheapest. They buy only 20 percent of their raw sugar from the South Texas cane people. This is foreign influence being felt. It's not a part of the domestic sugar industry which is representing these adverse viewpoints," added Cleavinger.

The Wildorado beet farmer also charged that the sugar imported by Imperial does not have to meet the same stringent standards concerning sanitation, content of foreign matter or chemical residues that domestic sugar does, and that much of the imported sugar is produced under virtual "slave labor."

The sugar proposal now pending before the House, and supported by the area sugar production industry includes a price objective of 16.3 cents per pound, based on the raw spot price of sugar in New York, according to Cleavinger.

Witnesses Issued Subpoenas In Dismissal Request

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Attorneys for Eli Masso Monday began issuing subpoenas to witnesses for Thursday's hearing on whether to dismiss the federal drug indictment against Masso on the basis of discriminatory prosecution.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward Monday afternoon granted the hearing on Masso's dismissal request, but cautioned attorneys that he would "keep a tight rein" on the testimony, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Masso filed his motion for dismissal Aug. 10, saying because of his Mexican citizenship, occupation as a nightclub operator and "Mafioso" reputation, he was singled out for prosecution as participant in a "fabricated" 14-member cocaine-trafficking conspiracy.

Masso contends that agents of the Lubbock Drug Enforcement Administration office, in order to justify the office's existence and ensure continued funding, concocted the conspiracy. He said federal investigations revealed "prominent" Lubbockites were "similarly situated" in drug trafficking, but the activities of those persons were ignored because of "political ramifications."

Masso's motion for dismissal, however, failed to name the "prominent" Lubbockites whose drug activities allegedly were ignored.

If Woodward is to dismiss the indictment against Masso, the defendant must prove, in part, that federal agents were aware of drug dealers but did not pursue prosecution of those individuals.

According to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals decision (United States v. Johnson, 1978) upon which Masso's dismissal motion is based, establishing that other unindicted persons were "similarly situated" as the defendant, usually is the first step in proving discriminatory prosecution.

However, Woodward said Thursday's hearing will proceed with the second portion of the Johnson case first — that the government's discriminatory selection of a defendant for prosecution has been in "bad faith" based upon such impermissble considerations as race, religion or the desire to prevent a defendant his exercise of constitutional rights.

Government attorneys argued Monday that such procedure was "putting the cart ahead of the horse," but Woodward told the attorneys he wanted to avoid "the dropping or use of names recklessly" in his courtroom.

And the judge also also sternly warned attorneys, "As lawyers you have a statutory, professional and moral duty to take any information you have concerning your knowledge of criminal activities to the grand jury and I feel very strongly about this."

One of Masso's Dallas attorneys, Emmett Colvin, suggested the reversal of the "two prongs of proof of the Johnson case" and told Woodward that Masso would be willing to waive his right to a public hearing "where it becomes appropriate."

John Sweeney, assistant U.S. attorney from Fort Worth who was in Lubbock Monday to assist local government prosecutors, did not argue strongly against Thursday's hearing, but did ask Woodward "to keep witnesses on the issues the court is going to determine."

Colvin, in support of the Masso motion, said he anticipates calling seven to nine witnesses to the stand Thursday to prove that Masso was singled out for prosecution because, in part, he is a club operator, "not a function appreciated by all society."

Colvin also charged that because Masso had been classified as a Class I violator by DEA officials before February 1978, he was suited for "the role they felt he should play in this conspiracy."

"But it was a deliberate miscataloguing (of Masso as a drug offender) and he was branded then and is branded now," Colvin said.

The older attorney also said he plans to call DEA informers who specificaliy told drug agents Masso was not involved in narcotic activity. But because the agents refused to listen to that information, Colvin alleged, they operated in "bad faith" in investigating and indicting Masso.

This bad faith in the form of the indictment, Colvin argued, is a violation of Masso's Fifth Amendment right to due process and Ninth Amendment privilege "to be let alone."

Also Monday, Woodward heard arguments on remaining myriad of pre-trial motions filed by six of the defendants named in the conspiracy indictment.

The judge granted several motions filed by the six defendants seeking additional prosecutory information. Attorneys and government prosecutors, after several consultations in court this morning, agreed on when the material would be made available to defense attorneys.

The judge overruled several bill of particulars motions, however, noting "I don't think there's ever been a case where any more discovery has been ordered or offered."

Some disagreement arose this morning regarding requests by some defendants that the judge order a pre-trial hearing on testimony of co-defendants that may be offered into evidence.

Woodward denied the request, saying any type of hearing probably would be highly prejudicial and that he will make a determination regarding the "hearsay" testimony of other defendants when the case goes to trial Sept. 10.

Ford, GM Present Proposals To UAW

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. today presented the United Auto Workers union with their first economic offers.

GM described its offer as encompassing "substantial increases in wages, pensions and additional paid time off the job."

Ford said its offer "contained improvements" in those areas.

Specific details of the offers which preceded even a formal wage demand by the union were not given, but both companies said they proposed three-year terms for a new agreement.

GM also presented an offer to the International Union of Electrical Workers, which is engaged in separate negotiations for 30,000 GM employees.

GM's statement said it believed its UAW offer addressed "the major concerns expressed by the union" and should provide the basis for a settlement before the Sept. 14 deadline.

Ford's said its offer was "consistent with the realities of the environment in which we are operating."

There was no immediate comment from the union.

It appeared both companies had made counter offers on pensions, which the union had tagged as its top concern this year.

The union reportedly has asked that pensions be set at 60 percent of a pensioner's last job, keeping that proportion as wages change.

Earlier, the union called off its plans for possible strikes at seven GM plants — a move which uspet at least one UAW union local president.

The strikes ostensibly would have been over local production standards. A statement from UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone on Monday said they were being canceled as a result of "satisfactory discussions" with GM.

UAW spokesman Howard Lipton, asked the basis of the resolution of the dispute, said, "I can't elaborate." A GM spokesman said he had no information.

The Detroit Free Press said today without attribution that GM had agreed to hire 400 more UAW members, under the existing agreement giving preference in hiring at new plants to GM employees wishing to transfer, at the newly organized assembly plant in Oklahoma City. Union aide had said privately earlier that the mini-strikes were aimed at pressuring GM into a quick local agreement at that plant.

Odessa Deaths Ruled Homicides, Suicide

ODESSA (Special) — Two men and a woman found dead Monday inside a liquor store here were killed as the result of a double homicide and suicide, Odessa Justice of the Peace Jimmy Harris has ruled.

Harris said a 40-year-old Odessa man apparently shot to death his former wife and the store owner, then turned the lever-action, .30-30 carbine on himself and fired once into his chest.

Store owner Andrew Starritt of Odessa, James Wayne Taylor Jr. and his former wife, Carolyn Taylor, were found dead about 12:30 p.m. Monday inside The Korker liquor store by a man who apparently had walked up just minutes after the triple killing.

All three victims were pronounced dead at the scene by Harris.

The justice of the peace said it appeared Taylor shot his former wife in the back, fired once into Starritt's head and then turned the rifle on himself.

"From the powder burns, the gun must have been right against him," Ector County Sheriff Elton Faught said. One of Starritt's hands was shot off, indicating he had grabbed the weapon in an attempt to save himself, deputies said.

Authorities said Wayne Antonicchil walked into the store about 12:30 p.m. Monday and found Taylor's body on the floor next to the front door. The rifle was lying next to his body.

Antonicchil, who had run out of the business and re-entered with another man, then found Starritt and Mrs. Taylor behind a counter, according to deputies.

Starritt's body was slumped in a chair and the woman was on her knees with her head resting in the owner's lap.

Authorities said jealousy may have been a motive in the killings. Robbery was ruled out after the cash register was found closed and containing money.

The Taylors had just recently been divorced. Mrs. Taylor was an employee at the store. Deputies said no one saw or heard the shooting.

"No arrests have been made, and I don't imagine there will be any," deputy Leon Phillips said this morning.

District Attorney Files Suit To Close Nightspot

While murder charges were being prepared against a suspect in Saturday's shooting death of Billy Joe Scott, the criminal district attorney's office also was filing a suit to close the club outside which Scott was fatally wounded.

Named in the murder charge was Lawrence V. McLin Jr. of 2605 E. Bates St., who was arrested early Sunday.

Meanwhile, District Judge Robert C. Wright this morning issued a temporary restraining order against Billy Childers, doing business as Chili Enterprises, against Chili Enterprises Corporation and O.C. Curry, prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages at Chili's Club, 1701 Parkway Drive.

This morning's suit is the latest in series of legal actions taken by the district attorney's office in an effort to close city and county nightspots that are allegedly the sites of "continuing violence."

Friday, 12 similar suits were filed and the clubs were served with temporary restraining orders preventing the owners and managers from either selling liquor or permitting any actions on the clubs' premises that might enhance the probability of violence occurring.

Hearings on last week's temporary restraining orders will be held Friday morning in the five state district courts. Wright this morning set an 8:30 a.m. Sept. 7 hearing on the order issued against Chili's Club.

All of the suits filed by the district attorney's office are seeking the ultimate closure of the clubs for a year in an effort to curb alcohol-related violence across the city and county.

The 23-year-old Scott, on leave from Fort Sill, Okla., was shot once in the left chest about 4 a.m. Saturday as he was trying to break up a fight just outside Chili's Club, witnesses told police.

A bond of $100,000 was recommended for the 31-year-old McLin, who was arrested early Sunday after Scott died later Saturday morning while undergoing surgery at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The charges were filed in Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack's court.

Clouser Confesses To Robbery

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The man who exonerated a Roman Catholic priest by confessing to three robberies the prelate was accused of committing in Delaware has admitted to the one remaining charge against the Rev. Bernard Pagano, an attorney said today.

But Pagano, 53, still is charged with the crime. Prosecutors said the attempted robbery charge will stand until completion of an investigation.

Ronald Clouser, 39, in a statement to the Delaware County district attorney's office Monday, admitted trying to hold up a boutique in a Concordville shopping mall in February, his lawyer Saul Segan said.

Robbery charges against Pagano in Delaware were dropped last week after Clouser admitted to three of the crimes. The other charges were dismissed in exchange for his guilty plea.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Prices Steady In Mild Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices held steady in moderate trading today as the prime rate — a key loan rate for business — was raised to its highest level ever.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off .26 at 885.15 at midday. Advancing and declining issues were almost evenly matched in the broad tally of trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume came to 13.14 million shares, up from 12.82 million at midday in the previous session.

Chase Manhattan Bank announced shortly after the market opened that it was raising its prime lending rate from 12 percent to a record 12¼ percent. That move was quickly followed by several other banks and was expected to spread throughout the industry. The prime rate is the lowest rate banks charge on loans to their best corporate customers.

Although an increase in the prime rate had been widely predicted, analysts said it apparently renewed rate concerns that have weighed on the market in recent sessions. Higher interest rates may help reduce inflation but at the same time they increase the risk of a credit crunch that will slow borrowing and worsen the recession.

Financial and banking issues were generally a bit lower. Chase Manhattan was off ¼ to 41¾; Citicorp slipped ⅛ to 25⅜; Morgan & Co. fell ¼ to 52¾. MGIC Investments, which has been volatile recently, fell 1⅛ to 33⅜. But Household Finance was unchanged at 21⅜ and Travelers rose 1 to 38½.

Among actively traded issues, Westinghouse Electric rose ¼ to 22⅞ and Continental Airlines gained ½ to 17⅛. Diversified Mortgage Investors climbed ⅜ to 6⅛.

The NYSE composite index of all listed common stock slipped .03 to 62.19.

Judge Orders Dismissal Of Mart Charges

District Judge Thomas L. Clinton Monday ordered city officials to drop all charges against two meat market operators.

Bill Brewer and Floyd Umsted, operators of Discount Meat Center at 4116 Ave. Q, were charged with operating the meat market without a valid permit on June 9 and June 12-14 after the market failed a health inspection but remained open for business.

The two men also were charged with three separate city health code violations after the inspector allegedly found food adulterated from rodent contamination, food unprotected from rodents and food at improper temperatures.

George Thompson III, attorney for Brewer and Umsted, however, filed suit against Municipal Court Judge Robert Baber in Clinton's 99th District Court Aug. 13, charging that his clients suffered prejudice and "injustice" in the cases because they were not brought to trial in the city court within 30 days after the complaints were filed, a violation of the state's Speedy Trial Act.

The suit asked Clinton to issue a writ of mandamus ordering the city to dismiss all charges against the pair because of the delay "without satisfactory reason" in trying the cases.

At an Aug. 17 hearing Municipal Court Prosecutor James Moore announced to the court that the three health code violations had been dropped because of "improperly worded complaints." However, at that time, Umsted and Brewer still were charged with one count each of operating the market without a permit and Brewer, who had failed to appear at an Aug. 8 hearing in city court, still was facing a bond forfeiture charge.

Clinton, however, has ordered that all charges be dropped, noting that Baber and Interim Municipal Court Judge Fred Senter Jr., who presided at the trial at which Brewer did not appear, "were under a legal duty" to dismiss the charges.

Bank Raises Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank today raised the prime rate to 12¼ percent, the highest level ever for loans to major corporations.

Chase, the nation's third largest bank, did not explain the increase from 12 percent, but economic analysts had expected the increase following recent increases in other interest rates.

The Federal Reserve moved last week to force up short-term interest rates in an effort to control inflation.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, the fifth largest bank, promptly matched the increase, as did No. 7 Continental Illinois of Chicago and some smaller banks. The increase was expected to spread to all major banks.

The prime rate is the rate charged to the most credit-worthy corporate borrowers. It does not directly affect consumer interest rates, which are still at 12 percent at many banks, but is widely watched as an indicator of interest rate trends.

On Aug. 15, Chase raised the prime rate from 11¾ percent to 12 percent, matching the record set during the 1974-75 recession. All major banks quickly matched that increase.

Gold Reaches Record Price

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold jumped to new record highs in London and Zurich today, topping $316 for the first time, and the U.S. dollar also gained against all major foreign currencies except the British pound.

Foreign exchange dealers said the money markets were quiet pending announcement of the American trade figures for July.

Gold was quoted in Zurich at $316.625 an ounce, up more than $2 from Monday's closing rate of $314.125 and $2 above the record Zurich price of $314.625 last Friday.

London's five major bullion dealers set a mean price of $316.20 for trading at midmorning. The London market was closed Monday for a holiday and Friday's high was $313.75, a record for London.

One London commodity broker, M.L. Doxford and Co., predicted the gold bull market would continue this week. It said the price was being pushed up by steady demand for gold from European banks, doubts that the Carter administration can control inflation in the United States and the continuing unrest and fighting in Iran.

Early rates for the dollar in Europe were:

Zurich — 1.6591 Swiss francs, up from 1.6587 at the close of trading Monday.

Frankfurt — 1.8305 marks, up from 1.8295.

Paris — 4.27125 French francs, up from 4.268.

Milan — 817.90 lire, up from 817.8.

Amsterdam — 2.0094 guilders, up from 2.0075.

In London, the British pound sold for $2.2453, up from $2.2320 Friday.

The dollar closed in Tokyo at 220.625 yen, up from 220.175 Monday, for the seventh straight gain. The value of the dollar is the highest it has been in two months.

Villagers Still Backing Somoza

SOMOTILLO, Nicaragua (UPI) — It was an unusual protest in post-Somoza Nicaragua. In front of the local Sandinista headquarters, 30 persons gathered to demand that a mansion expropriated from an associate of former President Anastasio Somoza be returned to its owner.

What was unusual was not just that a person associated with the deposed and generally hated Somoza family was being defended, but that the protestors were farm laborers who presumably will benefit most from the expropriation of properties owned by Somoza and his close associates.

The brief demonstration in Somotillo, a shabby town of wooden huts and dirt roads where 5,000 people live, was an indication of the sentiment in what has traditionally been the most pro-Somoza area of Nicaragua.

"This is the cradle of the national guard" said Commandante Jose Daniel, meaning that many of Somoza's national guardsmen were recruited from among the 35,000 people in the region bordering Honduras.

"The problem we have in this zone is that it has traditionally been Somocista, and therefore they have a lot of contacts here."

As an example, he said vilagers of Cinco Pinos elected the same pro-Somoza municipal officials even after the Sandinistas had taken control of the town.

Six other persons have since been elected to the local Sandinista Defense Committee that is now the main form of government in towns an cities across Nicaragua.

The area is of special interest to the government in Managua for another reason. With between 2,000 and 3,000 former national guardsmen just across the border in the hills of Honduras, any invasion of Nicaragua is likely to be staged from this area.

Yet, despite frequent warnings from the Sandinista central command in Managua, the border region appears tranquil and the people calm.

A drive through the stunningly beautiful mountains between Somotillo and the village of San Pedro, on the border, found few checkpoints. Those that do exist generally are manned by easygoing youngsters, frequently no more than 15years old.

People along the route appeared more concerned about hitching rides through the mountains in one of the few passing vehicles than about the dangers of any counter-revolution.

"I am a man who has forgotten about the counterrevolution and I am just working," said Orlando Mendoza, the owner on a small store in Santo Tomas, one of the most attractive of Nicaraguan villages nestled in the mountains of Chinandega department.

At the Guasaule bridge just north of Somotillo, only two Sandinista soldiers were on duty on a recent Sunday although the bridge is a major crossing point along the border. One of the soldiers permitted an American correspondent to hold his Belgian-made automatic rifle while he proudly explained its features.

Commandante Daniel would not reveal how many men he has available to defend the area. He said no overall defense strategy was necessary because the Sandinistas would use guerrilla tactics against any ivading national guard troops.

"Even if they enter two or three miles and come to the edge of Somotillo, we are not going to wait for them at fixed positions," Daniel said.

The possibility of an invasion has not been discounted and preparations such as digging trenches on the border at San Pedro continue. But the roughness of the terrain and the guards' lack of experience in guerrilla warfare make the likelihood of a ssccessful counter-revoution appear doubtful.

Sandinista commanders in the area also believe they are gradually gaining the confidence of the people in the region.

Policy Changes Recommended To Curb Brutality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim Fyfe is a powerfully built man standing well over 6 feet tall. He drinks beer and smokes cigars and spins out endless tales of the violence and pathos and yes, the humor, of enforcing the law for 16 years in New York City.

Not long ago, Fyfe traded his .38-caliber Special and police lieutenant's badge for a Ph.D. Along the way, he studied police brutality and how to curb it.

His conclusions may hold lessons for many cities troubled by mounting complaints that police officers shoot, maim and sometimes kill citizens in unnecessary displays of force.

Fyfe found that a policy change at the top, made clear to officers at all levels and strictly enforced, can "drastically reduce" the frequency of police shootings at citizens.

That sort of policy change is what the Justice Department hopes to accomplish with its unprecedented federal court suit against the Philadelphia police department. After Houston police made policy changes, Justice Department officials decided it was unnecessary to file suit there, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said recently.

Police critics in Houston and elsewhere argue that a restrictive policy alone cannot wipe out use of unnecessary force by police. Fyfe agrees that the policy must be accompanied by a high-level commitment to punish violators. Minor penalties, frequently imposed, may be more effective than harsh punishment used more reluctantly, he observed.

A change to a definite policy — with a commitment — occurred in New York in 1972. That's when Patrick V. Murphy was police commissioner and imposed a policy that:

—Reminded officers "to preserve and protect life wherever possible."

—Instructed them to employ "only the minimum amount of force" necessary to accomplish a mission.

—Prohibited officers from firing a gun "where lives of innocent persons may be endangered."

—Prohibited firing at a moving vehicle.

—Stated that officers carry guns "for personal protection against persons feloniously attacking an officer or another at close range."

Before then, officers had been guided only by a vague law allowing shooting to defend life or to apprehend an escaping suspect charged with a serious crime. That is the tradition in American policing.

The practice of shooting at fleeing felons has produced much of the current controversy, particularly when the suspect turns out to have been innocent.

The Murphy policy also required officers to file lengthy written reports every time a gun was fired and appointed high-level police officials to a Firearms Discharge Review Board to judge the propriety of each shooting.

The policy, with only minor changes, remains in effect today.

Examining the records, Fyfe found that 831 officers were involved in 630 shooting incidents in 1971. The figures rose in 1972 to 1,051 officers and 803 incidents, though there was a sharp drop toward the end of the year after the new policy was imposed.

But in 1973, Fyfe reported, the numbers dropped to 777 officers involved in 574 incidents. The incidents continued to fall, so that by 1978, only 491 officers were engaged in 372 shootings, and almost half of these involved shots fired accidentally and those fired to kill stray animals.

Fyfe said the type of incidents that declined most were the shootings at fleeing felons.

New York police, of course, still face periodic allegations of unwarranted shootings at citizens.

The Justice Department announced Monday that it had ordered an investigation into the police shooting last week of 26-year-old Luis Baez. Twenty-four shots were fired, and 16 hit Baez.

Police say Baez attacked them with scissors, but witnesses say the shots were not provoked. Baez had a history of mental illness.

Nevertheless, such controversies arise less often in New York than in Philadelphia, for example, and other, much smaller cities.

In addition, Fyfe said the statistics rebut the argument that weapons restrictions leave officers vulnerable to armed criminals.

Fyfe found that the number of officers injured or killed in the line of duty also declined sharply following the policy change, dropping from a weekly mean of 4.4 to 2.5.

The review board, he said, has readily punished those who shoot in violation of the policy, though the penalties usually have been no more severe than loss of five days' pay.

Fyfe watched the review process and concluded that board members were fair, but "the perception the police officer has is that they're a bunch of hatchet men."

Fyfe said he once suggested to a review board member that the proceedings be videotaped and shown to officers to demonstrate the fairness. He said the board member demurred, saying: "Let them think we're hatchet men. Let them worry about shooting their guns."

Charter Airline Asks For CAB Approval

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Deregulation of airlines has prompted a request for Civil Aeronautics Board certification from a new charter service, Air World USA, says company president Paul Benscoter.

He said Air World plans to have four Boeing 707s in operation within the first seven months if its application is approved. The new carrier would initially operate charter flights worldwide from major U.S. cities and eventually plans to expand into Alaska, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean.

Benscoter said Air World's fares would be substantially lower than those discount rates now available from scheduled carriers.

Teachers Blocking Return To Classes

By United Press International

Striking teachers from Oklahoma and Louisiana to Michigan and Illinois are disrupting the start of fall classes, giving thousands of the nation's students an extended summer vacation.

In addition, walkouts are threatened next week in Detroit, the nation's fifth largest district with 10,000 teachers, and in Indianapolis, Indiana's largest school system.

In Oklahoma City's first teachers' walkout ever, which is nearly a week old, hundreds of teachers jeered at substitutes crossing picket lines for the first day of classes Monday.

Some 33,407 of the capital city's 42,589 students attended school, but with 60 percent of the teachers absent, they wandered without supervision in school hallways and hung out windows watching their instructors outside.

"Oh, look at the little old lady going to fulfill her dreams as a teacher," said one striking teacher, taunting a substitute entering a school building. "Isn't that wonderful."

Hundreds of striking teachers marched in groups of 30 and 40 around high school buildings with picket signs and some groups were joined by a few sympathetic parents and students.

There were no reports of violence, no evidence of a massive student boycott and no schools closed by the strike.

The teachers are asking for a 12 to 13 percent salary increase and other fringe benefits, but school officials say there is no money for any increase above the 9 percent offered. The salary complaint is universal among the nation's striking teachers.

A strike in Louisiana's second largest school district — Jefferson Parish in suburban New Orleans — appeared to gain strength Monday, picking up support from bus drivers and teachers.

The walkout is disrupting classes for about 65,000 students and —depending on whose figures you believe — anywhere from the 68 to 77 percent of the teachers are out on the picket lines. Less than 10 percent of the district's buses, which serve 75 percent of the students, showed up Monday.

Robbie Davis marched her two children into J.C. Ellis Elementary School past picketing teachers, but only because they "wanted to come to school so badly," she said.

"Teachers have been underpaid for years and I'm glad to see 'em getting angry, frustrated enough or whatever it is to finally do something about it."

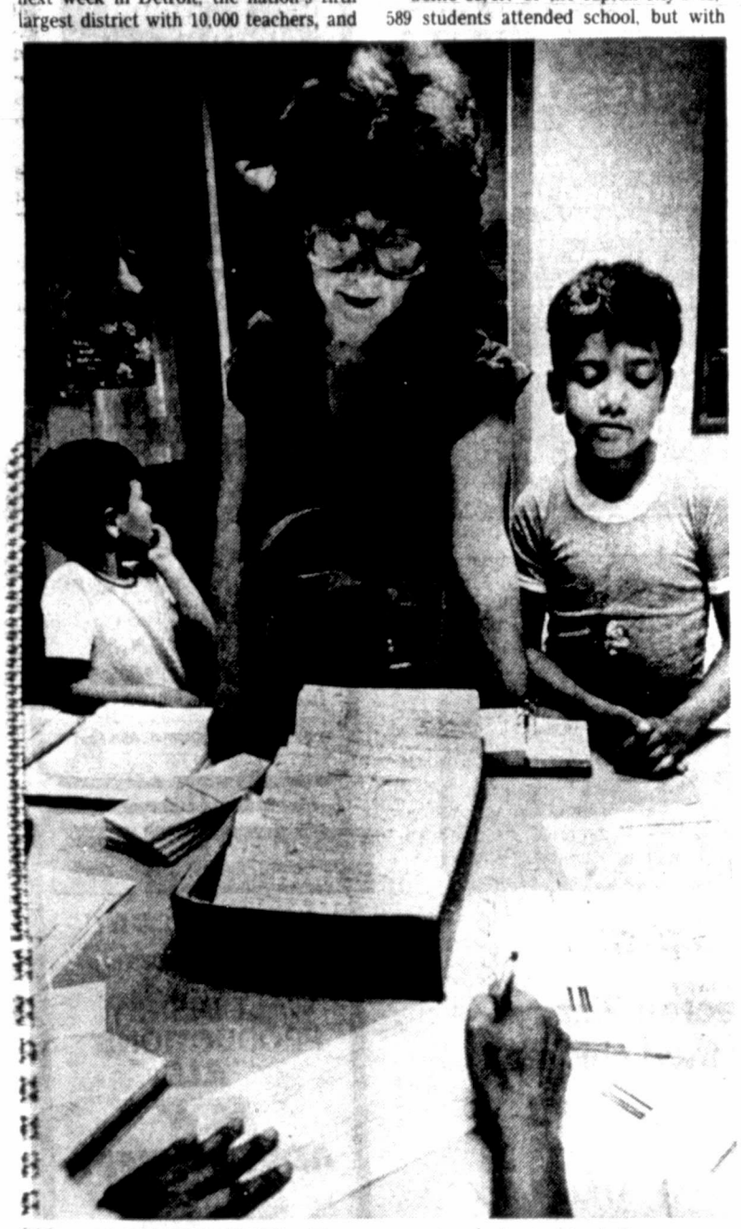
In Sparta, Ill., 2,300 students stayed home today on the first day of classes. Teachers there rejected a proposed two-year contract over the weekend.

Teacher salary disputes elsewhere in Illinois kept schools closed in Park Ridge for a second day, delayed the start of classes in Granite City and Dupo and prompted an overwhelming strike vote in Elmwood Park.

In Crown Point, Ind., the first day of school for nearly 6,000 students was disrupted Monday by striking teachers.

Teachers' strikes in two suburban Pittsburgh school districts —Chartiers Valley and Bethel Park — barred more than 12,000 students from their first day of classes Monday. The possibility of walkouts hung over more than 100 other districts throughout Pennsylvania.

Nearly 1,500 teachers were on strike in four Michigan districts.



BACK TO THE SALT MINES — The prospect of returning to school after a summer of sun and fun seems a boring one for Victor Olivas, 7, and his brother, Stephen, 9, as their mother, Anita, registers Stephen at McWhorter Elementary for the new school year. WAR HERO KILLED — Earl Mountbatten, left, then Admiral Lord Mountbatten, and General Douglas MacArthur stand in the corridor of Manila's city hall during a meeting in the Philippines in 1945. conflict that has taken nearly 2,000 lives in Northern Ireland in the past decade.

Mountbatten, the World War II allied commander in Southeast Asia and the last viceroy of India, died when a powerful bomb blew his 29-foot vacation boat apart as he and five members of his family set out from Mullaghmore harbor, near his vacation home on the northwest coast of Ireland.

Killed with him was one of his 14-year-old twin grandsons, Nicholas Timothy Knatchbull, and a 15-year-old boat boy. Four other members of the family were seriously injured: Mountbatten's older daughter and the heir to his title, Lady Patricia Brabourne; her husband, the seventh Baron Brabourne; their other twin son, Timothy Nicholas Knatchbull, and Brabourne's mother, the dowager baroness.

The condition of Lady Patricia, her husband and their son was reported unchanged today.

Part of the soldiers were killed outside Warrenpoint, near the east coast of Northern Ireland, when a bomb concealed beneath straw in a parked truck was set off as an army truck and jeep drove past on patrol. The rest died after reinforcements arrived and a second bomb in an abandoned building was set off.

Shortly after, IRA gunmen in ambush opened fire from across a canal that forms the border between Northern Ireland and the republic at that point. The troops returned the fire, and after the guerrillas were driven off, a body was found on the other side of the canal.

Buckingham Palace later announced that it was the 29-year-old son of one of the queen's coachmen. There was no official explanation for his presence there, but unconfirmed reports from Dublin said he was a "civilian onlooker" killed in the firefight.

It was the heaviest toll in a single incident in the war in Northern Ireland.

Queen Elizabeth, at Balmoral, her vacation castle in Scotland, was reported "very deeply shocked" by the death of Mountbatten, who had been like a second father to her since the death of her own father.

Her husband, Prince Philip, who was Mountbatten's nephew and had been raised by him, learned of the murder in France, where he was en route to a horse meeting. He was returning today to Balmoral. Their eldest son, Prince Charles, cut short a fishing trip in Iceland to return to Britain.

Mountbatten's funeral will be held at Westminster Abbey, in London, on Sept. 5 or 6, a palace spokesman said. The date was still uncertain because of Lady Brabourne's condition. His younger daughter, Lady Pamela, is married to David Hicks, the interior designer.

Mountbatten will be buried in a private ceremony at Romsey Abbey in Hampshire county, near his home, Broadlands. The earl made plans for his funeral in 1976, expressing the wish that all the nations whose soldiers served under him in World War II should be represented.

During World War II, Lord Mountbatten was particularly fond of Americans and they liked him immensely. He had a warm personality and paid particular attention to American sailors and GIs.

He and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower were friends and called each other "Ike" and "Dickie." During the war, Eisenhower spent many weekends salmon fishing at Mountbatten's estate just outside Southampton.

Caribbean Isles In Path Of Dangerous Storm

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — Hurricane David, described as one of the most dangerous storms in decades, bore down on this resort island today, sending residents and thousands of American and other tourists scurrying for safe shelter.

U.S. National Weather Service officials clocked sustained winds of 130 miles an hour in the storm, and said gale-force winds extended 125 miles northward and 75 miles southward from the center. They forecast it would gain force today.

David, the second Atlantic hurricane of the season, is "an extremely dangerous hurricane and the strongest to threaten the Lesser Antilles since Hurricane Donna," which killed 150 persons as it ripped across Puerto Rico and Florida almost 20 years ago, the Weather Service officials said.

This easternmost Caribbean island's population of 250,000 population has been swelled by large numbers of tourists, many staying in luxury hotels on beaches that will bear the brunt of the storm.

By early this morning, the capital resembled a ghost town, and nearly all businesses and many private homes had been boarded up. More than 60 emergency relief centers had been set up in churches, schools and government buildings.

The government-run electric and power companies said they would shut down service at the height of the storm to avoid danger from fallen lines.

Officials predicted the eye of the storm would pass directly over the 166-square mile-island, or come very close to it later today.

Hurricane and storm warnings were also posted for Grenada, the Grenadines, Martinique, St. Lucia and Tobago, all part of the Lesser Antilles island chain that separates the Carribean Sea from the Atlantic Ocean, between 1,500 and 2,000 miles southeast of Miami.

"We really can't tell what it's going to do," Paul Hebert, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center, said Monday.

"It's only a small part of the hurricane that's destructive, and if it goes north of the islands there won't be much effect, but if it goes south, that can be the worst thing that can happen.

"It's getting close, but it still has time to shift and we don't know where it will actually strike, obviously," he said.

Hurricane Donna, the fifth strongest of the century, had winds of up to 150 mph and followed the paths of great storms in 1926 and 1928. Donna roared across Puerto Rico in 1960, killing 102 persons, then killed 50 more when it moved across Florida, out into the Atlantic again and slammed into Rhode Island. It caused $387 million in damage.

Like Donna, the forecasters said, David was a well-organized storm as it came off the coast of Africa and moved through the Cape Verde Islands late last week.

David was upgraded from a depression to a tropical storm Saturday.

Brussels Attack Blamed On IRA

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A bomb exploded today under an open-air stage in Brussels' historic Grand Place square as a British army band prepared to play for tourists, and 15 persons were injured, police said. Authorities said the Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility.

Those reported injured included two children and four bandsmen.

Brussels Mayor Pierre van Halteren said the IRA claimed responsibility in a telephone call to the Brussels City Hall.

The blast came a day after the IRA killed Britain's Earl Mountbatten of Burma, 18 British soldiers and three others in bomb attacks in the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland.

Police said nobody was severely injured in the Brussels bombing, and that the victims included four bandsmen and 11 spectators. One band member, however, said five bandsmen were hurt and he saw one who appeared unconscious.

If the bomb had gone off a half-hour later, during the scheduled performance, the toll might have been far heavier.

Police said the stage's back wall, the floor, and stage equipment were ripped apart. The explosion also broke windows in Grand Place buildings and on nearby streets. The centuries-old plaza was packed with tourists at the time.

Cpl. Bill Lovatt of the 30-member Duke of Edinburgh Royal Regiment band said the musicians had just arrived by bus from West Germany, where they are stationed. "Some of us had come down from the stage to change into dress uniforms. Some were still on the stage setting music score stands and instruments when the explosion occurred," he said.

Bandsman Jack Hardy said "five of our men were taken to a hospital. One seemed unconscious. Another was bleeding from cuts. Many of the instruments have been damaged. Damages could be worth 75,000 pounds (about $170,000) to our instruments."

Brussels Police Chief Georges Poels said he was in his office about 300 yards from the square when the bomb went off about 3 p.m. "I heard a tremendous blast, and rushed downstairs," he said.

The temporary stage had been set up last spring in the Grand Place, a major tourist site in the Belgian capital, for various shows organized to commemorate the millenium of the city of Brussels.

The last show of the season, featuring South African singer Miriam Makeba, was scheduled for later this week. The podium was to be dismantled next week.

Authorities have reported in recent months that Irish guerrillas were infiltrating the Benelux countries in search of British targets. The IRA, fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland, has claimed responsibility for past bombings at British army installations in Germany, including July 10, when two bombs damaged mess halls but caused no injuries at barracks of the 50,000-member British Rhine Army in Dortmund, West Germany.

a "minimal contribution from the state," Graham said.

Taxing entities are not required to help pay the district's expenses until 1981 when each government's contribution will be based on its share of the total tax levy of the district.

However, without resources next year the board of directors will find it impossible to lay the groundwork for establishment of the district.

Graham suggested representatives from all taxing entities in a district meet to discuss the resources which will be available to the board of directors. Otherwise, he said, persons who might accept appointment to the board might refuse.

The attorney said the four-year reappraisal cycle used by the Lubbock city and school tax office would be prohibited under the new law.

A provision which permits taxpayers to challenge property values set by the district if they differ more than 10 percent from other properties in the district would prevent the use of the cyclical reappraisal system, he said.

That provision "is what forces appraisal districts to do their job properly," he said.

Currently, it's almost impossible for a taxpayer to win a court battle, Graham said. But under the Peveto Bill, the taxpayer will have "a very substantial difference in rights," he said.

The Lubbock meeting is one of several the School Tax Assessment Practices Board is conducting throughout Texas. It will continue this afternoon at the Civic Center with a question and answer period.

South Texas Soaked By Heavy Rains

A-J News Services

A tropical disturbance on the northeast coast of Mexico dumped heavy rains on South Texas today, but caused no problems for the defenders of Texas beaches who are battling a giant oil slick in the Gulf of Mexico.

Coast Guard officials said choppy coastal seas and winds up to 50 mph brought no significant amounts of oil ashore and did not sweep away the containment booms protecting vital areas.

It was a different story on the South Plains, where for the first time in more than a week prospects of rain are missing.

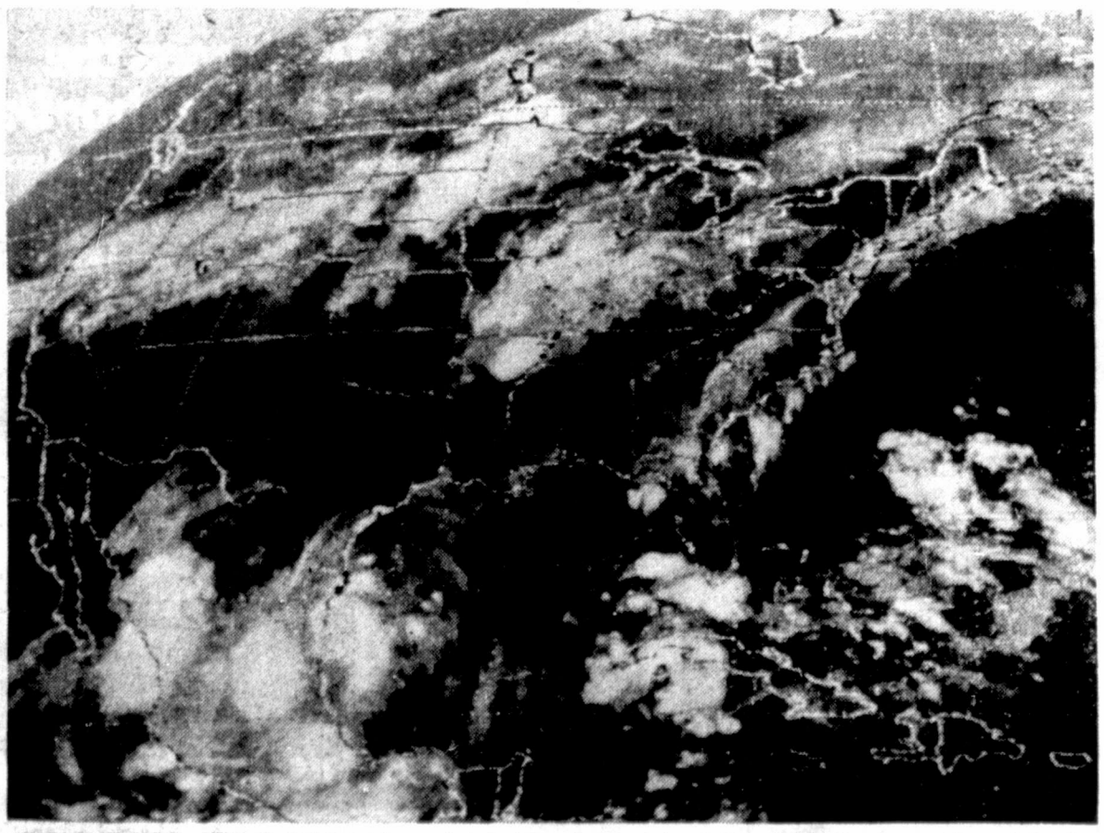
Fair skies are forecast for today and Wednesday.

Temperatures will be in the low 90s today and Wednesday and in the mid-60s tonight, weathermen said.

Winds were expected to be southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph today and southerly at 5 to 10 mph tonight.

The South Plains had a few showers Monday night as the persistent rainy weather, re-fueled late Sunday by a tropical storm in the Gulf of Mexico, began to lift.

Clayton reported .10 inch of rain, Matador a trace and Paducah .63.



STORMY IN GULF — This cloud picture taken early today by the U.S. weather satellite clearly shows the tropical disturbance on the northeastern coast of Mexico, just below the southern tip of Texas. Carter May Seek Defense Budget Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senior advisers have given President Carter a report that could result in a request to Congress for about $4 billion in additional defense spending next year, administration sources say.

The sources, asking to remain anonymous, said Monday it would take that much to overcome the effect of inflation and restore the planned 3 percent "real growth" in defense spending contemplated under Carter's original $122.7 billion defense budget for fiscal 1980.

Carter reportedly has not yet decided what course of action to take in resolving conflicting congressional pressures that could affect the fate of the new strategic arms limitation treaty. The Senate has been debating the treaty, which requires a two-thirds vote to go into effect.

Some critics of the pact, led by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., have called for increased defense spending while others have urged Carter to hold the line.

Carter created a high-level committee representing the Office of Management and Budget, the National Security Council and the Defense and State departments to prepare options for his consideration during the month-long congressional recess.

The administration sources said the committee produced "an information paper" for the president, outlining alternative actions without recommending any preferred options.

They declined to discuss specific options, except to indicate that one of them involved restoring the 3 percent real growth in the fiscal 1980 budget, which has eroded since that budget went to Congress in January.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said late last week that "we should contique to live up to our commitments to our NATO allies," who were promised that the United States would boost defense spending by 3 percent after inflation.

Brown acknowleged that the administration had underestimated actual inflation in shaping the budget for fiscal 1980, which starts Oct. 1. Furthermore, key congressional committees have clouded the situation by voting to cut Carter's original requests.

The sources said any extra funds sought from Congress most likely would be earmarked for maintaining the readiness of conventional air, sea and ground forces, rather than pumping more money into such strategic weapons programs as the MX mobile intercontinental ballistic missile.

A major problem worrying defense managers is a $900 million increase in the projected cost of jet fuel and other petroleum products.

Gen. David C. Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said recently he favors using any extra money next year to overcome "a great backlog" in overhauling ships and planes and modernizing Army equipment.

Alleged Statue Discovery Adds Twist To Cullen Davis Trial

FORT WORTH (AP) — Cullen Davis' defense attorneys have literally unearthed a new development that may play a part in their contentions that Davis was framed on murder conspiracy charges.

But prosecutors have dismissed the validity of the "development."

The bizarre new twist, in the second round of a trial chock full of bizarre old twists, allegedly grew out of a statement by Jody Mac Oliver, a former friend of Fort Worth karate instructor Pat Burleson.

The statement given to defense attorneys and an Oklahoma sheriff contended Burleson had several statues that Davis had reported missing from his Fort Worth mansion.

Burleson has so far avoided defense subpoenas, despite an intensive search by a team of defense investigators.

Davis contends that his ex-wife, Priscilla, Burleson and star prosecution witness David McCrory framed him in a scheme that led to his arrest Aug. 20, 1978.

It is not known if defense attorneys plan to introduce Oliver's statements when they plead their case before jurors.

Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes continues his cross-examination of FBI agent Joe Gray today. Gray led the undercover team that built the case against Davis, accused of trying to buy the murder of State District Judge Joe Eidson.

The first trial for the millionaire ended in a mistrial last January. A Houston jury, hearing the case on a change of venue, deadlocked 8-4 for conviction.

That trial marked a split in the Oliver-Burleson friendship when Oliver disputed minor portions of Burleson's testimony on his whereabouts the morning of Davis' arrest.

Sheriff Doyle Bell Jr., of Pushmataha County, Okla., said Monday that Oliver, escorted by Davis defense attorney Steve Sumner, told him he and Burleson buried two sealed Army ammunition boxes on Burleson's ranch at Antlers, Okla., several months ago.

According to Bell, Oliver said Burleson told him the boxes contained "valuable statues." Oliver contends they were taken from Davis' $6 million mansion.

The boxes already had been partially dug up when Bell, Oliver and Sumner visited Burleson's cabin with a search warrant, Bell said.

A mysterious brown bottle and an ominous note were the only items found at the site, Bell said.

"Anyone within 12 feet of this box will die in six to eight months from a toxic gas" Bell quoted from the note addressed to "Judas." "Only this writer has the antidote."

Bell said the "poison" looked more like motor oil, but he sent it to the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation just in case.

Bell said Burleson later told him the note was a "prank" to scare Oliver. The sheriff said Burleson told him the boxes contained his coin collection, not statues.

Lubbock Man Found Nude In Back Yard

A Lubbock man, apparently wanting to get back to nature, was arrested Monday night after police found him lying naked in a garden patch.

Sammy Garcia of 2709 28th St. said he and his girlfriend saw the unclad 18-year-old man in his back yard about 10:50 p.m., and that he seemed to be crying for help.

Reports indicate a small amount of blood was found on the back porch, and after further investigation, officers discovered the disrobed teen-ager in Garcia's garden, his body partially covered with vines.

The suspect's bushy bed apparently accounted for his minor scratches and cuts on his chest, hands and foot.

The man was taken to the county jail and booked on suspicion of public intoxication, criminal trespass and indecent exposure.

In a Monday night report of a holdup, an elderly man told Lubbock police two Mexican-American women struck him in the face and stole his wallet, containing $70 cash.

Celedonio Zuniga, 74, of 1102 58th St., who was treated for minor injuries at Health Sciences Center Hospital, said the bandits, after giving him a ride in their car about 8 p.m. Monday, struck him in the nose and mouth and took his wallet. He said the women let him out after the holdup in the 200-block of North Quirt Avenue.

A 58-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 1:30 a.m. today for allegedly being intoxicated when he wrecked his car in the 3800-block of Avenue Q.

Police said the man was found sleeping next to his wrecked vehicle, and that he appeared drunk when they awoke him.

Roman Guerrero, 22, of 2012 15th St. said he was pushed away from a counter at a convenience store at Fourth Street and Avenue W about 2:45 a.m. today by a man wielding a broom handle.

Guerrero said the suspect demanded he back away from the counter, poked him with the stick and struck him on the hand with the makeshift weapon.

Reports indicate the suspect was stopped by police shortly after the alleged incident in the 2400-block of Third Street, but that he was not taken into custody.

Assistant Lubbock Fire Marshal John Anthony reported to city police Monday that he has determined an August 9 house fire, which did an estimated $4,000 damage to a bedroom, was the result of arson.

Anthony said it had been determined that the blaze was deliberately set in the water heater closet at Bob Robertson's 3809 Toledo Ave. residence.

A 20-year-old Lubbock man was booked into county jail about 12:15 p.m. Monday after a police chase in the vicinity of the 4900-block of Slide Road. The man, who was driving a motorcycle, was issued 34 traffic tickets after the incident.

Gary Ritter, manager for Frank Brown Pontiac, 4637 50th St. told police that burglars had taken 17 sets of wire chrome wheel covers, valued together at $3,400, from 17 vehicles on the parking lot sometime between 6 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Monday.

Bundy Seeks Media Ban In Second Murder Trial

LAKE CITY, Fla. (AP) — Theodore R. Bundy's attorneys, having lost a bid to gain a new trial on his double-murder conviction, are pressing their effort to ban the news media from pretrial hearings at his upcoming trial here on another murder charge.

Bundy, 32, faces his second Florida murder trial on Nov. 5 in Lake City, where he is charged in the abduction and slaying of 12-year-old Kimberly Leach on Feb. 9, 1978.

Bundy's attorneys were scheduled to appear before Circuit Judge Wallace Jopling to ask that pretrial hearings in the Leach trial be closed to the media and public.

Bundy was convicted in July by a jury in Miami of murdering two Chi Omega sorority sisters, Lisa Levy, 20, and Margaret Bowman, 21, near Florida State University in Tallahassee on the night of Jan. 15, 1978. Judge Edward Cowart sentenced him to die in the electric chair, but that sentence is being appealed.

Bundy — who attacked the press in an emotional statement before receiving his death sentence for the Chi Omega murders — wants reporters banned from numerous pretrial motions at his next trial.

On Monday, Cowart rejected claims that Bundy should get a new trial because the public defenders who represented him were incompetent. "I'm satisfied with the conduct of the counsel," Cowart said.

Two private attorneys appointed to represent Bundy in place of the public defenders immediately filed an appeal with the Florida Supreme Court after Cowart denied his motion for a new trial.

Clerks Strike Paralyzes Railroad

CHICAGO (AP) — A railway clerks union struck the Rock Island Railroad today, paralyzing shipments over 7,200 miles of track in the 13 states served by the railway.

The strike by 1,800 members of the the Brotherhood of Railway, Airlines and Steamship Clerks, which began at 6 a.m., also left 27,000 commuters from Joliet to Chicago scrambling for alternate transportation to work.

Pickets lines went up in about a dozen cities, said Ted Zirbes, public relations manager for the railroad.

Zirbes said the company hopes to have management personnnel operating freights over some lines by Thursday or Friday.

"We're trying to secure the machinery and get it in terminals," Zirbes said. "We will try to start operating Thursday or Friday."

Management personnel capable of running trains will be used to man locomotives and move grains and other commodities, he said.

But a union leader today told reporters outside the downtown Rock Island headquarters where about 300 picketers were assembled that the grain would "sit and rot" if the strike doesn't end soon.

Chris Knapton, vice president of public information for the railroad, said pickets were set up in Chicago; at suburban commuter stations; the Quad Cities along the Mississippi River; Des Moines, Iowa; El Reno, Okla.; St. Louis, and Kansas City, Kan.

The strike resulted from an impasse in negotiations in Washington D.C. over whether union members would receive retroactive pay after a new contract was reached some time after the old contract expired.

Knapton said the strike was expected to paralyze service on the railroad even though the clerks do not actually operate the railroad cars and other machinery.

"Every other craft on the railroad is represented by a union," Knapton said.

The Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks had announced earlier that its 1,800 member-employees of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad would walk off the job at 6 a.m. following a failure to break an impasse in negotiations.

Over 11,800 of the U.S.'s 12,350 airports are served only by General Aviation. Approximately 33% of all air passengers are moved this way, at a petroleum consumption rate of less than 1% of the national total.

90% of all General Aviation planes are single, or twin, light engine models, burning less fuel per trip than a '79 automobile. For example, a twin engine Beechcraft Baron uses 41 gals. of fuel on a direct flight from Memphis to Kansas City. A car, traveling the most direct route, burns 48 gals. The Baron completes the trip in 1 hr., 46 mins. The car takes 9 hrs., 35 mins. The Beechcraft saves 7 gals. and at least 7½ hours travel time.

This is only one example of the fuel economy possible with a twin engine business airplane. Greater savings are available with a single engine model.

Hourly Wages Not Keeping Pace With Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wages are not keeping up with inflation, farm income will be less than expected this year and U.S. investments overseas are on the increase, government figures show.

Hourly compensation — including wages, fringe benefits and employment taxes — rose at an annual rate of 7.9 percent in the second quarter this year, compared with an 11.3 percent increase in the first quarter, the Labor Department said.

But after adjustment for inflation, hourly compensation showed a record decline of 5 percent when figured at an annual rate.

Federal Reserve Board member Henry C. Wallich said while workers have lost real purchasing power because of inflation, there is no alternative. An effort to maintain or increase standards of living would only contribute to further inflation, he said.

"That this has not happened so far is one of the few elements of strength in our situation. That it may happen in the near future is one of our greatest dangers," Wallich said in a Monday address to the New York Society of Security Analysts.

The decline in hourly compensation means if economic conditions continue unchanged, earnings of American workers a year from now will buy 5 percent less than they do now, the department said.

Much of the blame could be placed on consumer prices, which went up at an annual rate near 13 percent in the first half of the year.

Other statistics in the department's quarterly report on productivity suggest inflation could worsen because output is not increasing enough to offset higher labor costs, which results in higher priced goods and services.

Productivity for non-financial corporations fell at an annual rate of 3.3 percent from April through June, the Labor Department said. It was the sharpest drop since a 6.3 percent decline in the third quarter of 1974, figures indicated.

The department also issued revised figures for second-quarter productivity in manufacturing, where output per hour worked rose at an annual rate of 2.8 percent; non-farm business, where it fell 4.3 percent, and private business, where it fell 2.4 percent.

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department reported Monday that sagging market prices, primarily those of cattle and hogs, will mean a much smaller gain in farm income this year than had been expected.

As a result, the department's outlook board said net farm income may be up only 7.5 percent to about $30 billion from $27.9 billion in 1978. As recently as July 26, department experts said farm income could soar nearly 18 percent this year to about $32.8 billion.

The report said farmers' cash receipts for sales of commodities are expected to be about $127 billion, some $2 billion less than had been projected and up from $111 billion in 1978.

This year, according to the new figures, gross farm income will be about $142 billion, compared to $126 billion in 1978. Production expenses were forecast at $112 billion, about the amount projected earlier and up from last year's $98.1 billion.

On the foreign front, the Commerce Department reported Monday that U.S. corporations and individuals increased their overseas investments 12 percent in 1978, compared with a 10 percent increase in 1977.

Direct U.S. investments abroad totaled $168.1 billion at the end of 1978, compared with $149.8 billion at the end of the previous year, the report said. The figures cover investors' equity in and outstanding loans to foreign companies.

The report also said investments in petroleum operations totaled $33.3 billion at the end of 1978, up 6 percent from $31.4 billion in 1977; investments in manufacturing operations were up 12.4 percent in 1978 to $74.2 billion, and investments in other industries rose 15.6 percent to $60.6 billion.

"U.S. parent companies' income from their foreign affiliates — the return on the direct investment positions — increased 28 percent to $25.7 billion," the report said.

NFL Clubs Pare Rosters; Miami Cuts Yepremian

By The Associated Press

While only a handful of Miami Dolphins fans might remember Karl Kremser, it will be difficult for any National Football League follower to forget the man who replaced him — Garabed Sarkis Yepremian.

Nor could anyone forget the kicking exploits of the 35-year-old Cypriot, better known as Garo, who was cut Monday by Miami coach Don Shula in favor of 22-year-old rookie Uwe von Schamann.

(NFL Team Cuts, Page 3, Sec. B)

It was a tough day of decision making for NFL coaches as the rosters were cut to the 45-man limit in preparation for next weekend's opening games. But it was extremely trying for Shula, who earlier had tried to deal Yepremian, a favorite for nine years of the Orange Bowl faithful, who once witnessed a special ceremony in which the Larnaca, Cyprus-born Yepremian became a U.S. citizen.

"This had to be my toughest morning (in 17 years) as an NFL coach," Shula admitted. "The toughest decision was the placekickers. To tell a guy you can't use him after he contributed so much is very tough. We're getting a younger guy with a stronger leg."

A seventh-round draft choice from Oklahoma, von Schamann handled the Dolphins' kicking in the preseason, while Shula sat Yepremian, claiming he did "because I know what Garo can do." The veteran had finished last season with an NFL record-tying string of 16 consecutive field goals, and he is confident of breaking the mark with some other club.

"I still think I'm the best, but I didn't get a chance to show them I'm the best (during the exhibitions). I had a feeling when they let him kick in the last game," said Yepremian, who came to Miami after being waived by the Detroit Lions in 1968.

The Dolphins also traded fullback Leroy Harris to Philadelphia and waived linebacker Joel Williams, and wide receivers Jeff Groth and Lloyd Henry, all rookies. Harris was beaten out of his job by 32-year-old Larry Csonka, who was signed as a free agent after being released by the New York Giants.

Other familiar running backs deleted from NFL rosters Monday included running backs Booby Clark of the Cincinnati Bengals, former Notre Damer Art Best of the Chicago Bears and James McAlister of the New England Patriots.

Other cuts were kick return specialist Tony Green of the Washington Redskins, defensive lineman Mack Mitchell of the Cleveland Browns and tackle Andy Frederick of the Dallas Cowboys. In addition, defensive back Jake Scott was cut by the Minnesota Vikings, as was linebacker Steve Kiner of the Houston Oilers.

Washington coach Jack Pardee's reason for cutting Green, a Pro Bowl selection as a rookie last season, was his anemic production during the four-game exhibition schedule, when he returned seven punts for 57 yards and five kickoffs for 108 yards.

"We really were disappointed in Tony during the preseason," said Pardee. "We kept waiting for him to show something but. . .we didn't have more time.

"Tony felt good and was in good condition. He was kind of a slow starter last year but he finally got going before the preseason was over. With the season starting, he hadn't shown enough to keep him," added Pardee, who also dropped kicker Nick Lowery, guard Fred Dean and veteran defensive back Gerard Williams, while placing guard Gary Anderson on injured reserve list.

"As always, from a philosophy standpoint, we try to keep the best 45 athletes regardless of position," Atlanta coach Leeman Bennett said Monday. "That's the reason we went the way we did."

The Falcons placed running back Ray Strong and tight end Lewis Gilbert, both of whom have leg problems, on the injured reserve list Monday. In addition, they cut defensive backs Don Patterson of Georgia Tech and Bob Glazebrook of Fresno State and linebacker Brian Cabral of Colorado.

Besides Frederick, the Cowboys dropped fullback Todd Christensen, guard Tom Randall, wide receiver Robert Steele and defensive end Mike Calhoun.

Mustangs Point To '79 Season

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

DALLAS — There's a sign that hangs in the SMU football meeting room. It simply says, "Time To Win."

"Time To Win" is Ron Meyer's theme song in 1979. The fourth-year head coach faces the new season with renewed optimism sparked by an excellent recruiting year. Meyer's assessment is that his SMU rejuvenation project is ahead of schedule.

When Meyer took the SMU job in 1976, he told Mustang followers that the Ponies would be competing for the Southwest Conference championship in four years. If Meyer's timetable is correct, the Mustangs should be in the thick of the title race this fall.

The Mustangs were 4-6-1 in 1978, but they always were able to move the football. The two main reasons for that were quarterback Mike Ford and wingback Emanuel Tolbert.

Tolbert (5-10, 176) was an all-America in '78. He snagged 62 aerials for more tha 1,000 yards and 11 touchdowns. Tolbert, who will be a senior this year, is also a key leader for the Mustangs. Meyers considers his star receiver and Texas' Johnny "Lam" Jones to be the two best pass-catchers in the country.

When opposing defenses start double-teaming Tolbert, Ford can win a few passes in the direction of a couple other capable receivers.

Junior Anthony Smith (5-11, 180) is a two-year starter at split end. Smith was the fifth leading receiver in the SWC a year ago with 32 catches for 519 yards. He's backed up by sophomore letterman Gary Smith (6-0, 185) and talented frosh Mitchell Bennett (5-10, 181), a freshman who runs a 9.2 100-yard dash and will be handling kickoff and punt returns when the season opens.

Senior Bob Fisher (6-4, 240) is SMU's tight end. Fisher has three letters under his belt and Meyer is expecting big things from him this season. Fisher is a dependable pass catcher who hauled in 10 birds for 163 yards and one touchdown last year. His backups include freshman Mark Gann (6-4, 235) and junior Clement Fox (6-2, 225).

Ford couldn't be stopped in 1978 and he reported to practice in better shape than ever before. The 6-3, 215-pound junior has the confidence and ability it takes to pass the Mustangs to the conference first prize.

Ford completed 224 of 389 attempts for 3,007 yards and 17 TDs to lead the NCAA in total offense with a per-game average of 268 yards. He was also the second-leading passer in the country with 20.4 completions per contest. Ford is closing in on most of the conference's career passing records, now held by former Rice quarterback Tommy Kramer.

Sophomore Jim Bob Taylor (6-2, 185) and freshman Mike Fisher (6-4,214) give the Mustangs adequate protection at the signal-calling position if Ford happens to go down during the season.

The optimism mentioned earlier has a great deal to do with a group of freshmen running backs who have the credentials to give SMU a ground game that most college mentors can only dream about.

The two top backs are Eric Dickerson and Craig James. Dickerson (6-3, 209) is the burner of the two but can also run with power. James has 4.5 quickness in the 40 and likes to lower his head and run over folks. Both are excellent pass catchers coming out of the backfield.

Behind Dickerson is freshman Charles Wagoner (6-2, 192), while Lott McIlhenny (6-2, 220) backs up James.

Experience in the offensive line is another key to Meyer's optimism. Juniors Robert Barnes (6-4, 270) and Mike Jusko (6-6, 269) are holding down the starting tackle jobs and both have earned two letters. Senior Randy Katz (6-0, 245) and junior Mike Mason (6-4, 250) return at guard. Junior Lance Pederson is another returning starter who should make life pleasant for all those freshmen running backs. Pederson (6-1, 245) is starting his second season at center.

Defensively, the Mustangs will be bigger and stronger. Leadership and depth in the line are two main concerns.

Freshman sensation Mike Carter has been a great surprise so far in workouts and will be manning one of the starting defensive tackle positons. Carter (6-2, 260) has excellent quickness and has proven to be a tremendous hitter.

Joining Carter at tackle will be sophomore letterman Harvey Armstrong (6-2, 256), who has been hampered by a bruised knee early in drills.

Senior Charles Hunt (6-0, 225) is the only senior starting on defense. The three-year starter at noseguard helps fill the leadership void and provides consistent play at the crucial position. Sophomore Waldo Theus provides excellent relief.

A pair of juniors, Byron Hunt (6-5, 223) and Jerry Kovar (5-10, 208) seem to have the starting assignments at outside linebacker. Hunt handles the strong-side and Kovar is the weak-side backer. Freshman Pete Collins (6-1, 196) is expected to swing between both positions as needed.

The inside linebacking jobs belong to junior Clarence Bennett (6-1, 225) and sophomore Eric Ferguson (6-3, 230). Both were starters during '78.

The strength of SMU's defense may be found at the cornerback positions. Meyer feels that juniors John Simmons (5-11, 185) and Charles Bruton (5-11, 190) are as good a pair in the corners as there is in the conference. Bruton is considered the toughest hitter on the Mustangs' squad.

Sophomore Blane Smith (6-0, 183) is listed as the first-team strong safety and sophomore James Mobley (6-0, 183) is Meyer's choice at free safety. An injury to junior backup Dick Blaylock has caused depth problems at free safety.

The punting game is another problem area for Meyer. He hopes senior Ken Rosenthal will regain his freshman and sophomore form. Eddie Garcia, a sophomore, and junior Tom Lisle will share the kicking duties.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Richard Stops Expos

By The Associated Press

It's tough seeing the ball with J.R. Richard seemingly in your face.

"He's so darn big, it seems like he looking down your throat," said Montreal manager Dick Williams after the 6-foot-8 righthander hurled Houston to a 3-0 victory over the Expos with a sizzling, 12-strikeout, two-hit performance Monday night.

"He sure pitched a gem," said Williams. "If it wasn't for the walks (six), that was the only way we had a shot at him."

Double-figure performances in strikeouts have become commonplace for the hard-throwing pitcher. The 12 strikeouts gave him a major league-leading total of 244 so far this year.

"He's the master," said teammate Enos Cabell, whose sixth-inning single drove in two runs to provide Richard with more than enough support. "He said in the dugout that he was getting tired — but he sure didn't show it."

Richard, 14-12, who has allowed just four earned runs in his last six starts, gave up only a fifth-inning single to Ellis Valentine and a ninth-inning single to Gary Carter.

The Astros provided Richard with a third-inning run off Rudy May, 7-2, on Cedeno's RBI double. The hit was the seventh in as many at-bats for Cedeno, just one shy of the team record held by Julio Gotay. May finally ended Cedeno's hitting streak in the fifth inning.

Reds 4, Phillies 2

Dan Driessen's two-out triple in the ninth inning drove in two runs to spark Cincinnati over Philadelphia. Loser Larry Christenson, 4-10, had a three-hitter and a 2-1 lead going into the ninth before the Reds rallied.

The victory kept Cincinnati just a half-game behind Houston in the hot West Division race.

"When I went up to the plate I said to myself, 'I'm going to hit the ball as hard as I can and if they catch it, they catch it,'" said Driessen, who has had trouble with right-hander Ron Reed in the past.

"The pitch was something fading away. I wasn't looking for it. He's been a tough pitcher for me to hit."

Padres 5, Cubs 4

Paul Dade lined a two-out pinch-hit double in the 10th inning to lift San Diego over Chicago. Kurt Bevacqua led off the Padres 10th with a single but was wiped out on Jim Wilhelm's fielder's choice grounder. Wilhelm moved to second on a ground ball by Bill Fahey and after an intentional walk to Bill Almon, scored as Dade doubled off Bruce Sutter, working in relief of Willie Hernandez, 4-3.

Dodgers 4, Pirates 2

Dusty Baker slugged a three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning to power Los Angeles past Pittsburgh. Gary Thomasson singled with one out to launch the Dodgers' winning rally. Von Joshua followed with a pinch single, chasing reliever Kent Tekulve and bringing Enrique Romo out of the bullpen.

Mets 2-1, Braves 1-5

Alex Trevino's single in the ninth inning delivered Lee Mazzilli from third with the winning run as New York beat Atlanta in the completion of their suspended game. Jeff Reardon, 1-1, pitched one inning and recorded his first major league victory.

Eddie Solomon scattered seven hits and drove in two runs to help Atlanta win the regularly-scheduled game.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Palmer Helps Orioles Split With Twins

By The Associated Press

Earl Weaver liked what he saw of Jim Palmer. . .on the mound. And Jim Palmer liked even better his view of Earl Weaver. . .in the stands.

Weaver, the feisty manager of the high-flying Baltimore Orioles, began serving a three-game suspension Monday night while the sore-armed Palmer, the

(For AL Boxes, See Scorecard, Page 3, Sec. B)

Birds' long-time pitching ace, recorded his first victory since June 27, a 5-1 triumph over Minnesota.

"He's a lot easier to ignore when he's 20 rows behind the screen instead of in the dugout," said Palmer, who has had numerous differences of opinion with Weaver over the fine art of pitching.

Palmer's triumph gave the Orioles a split of a twi-night doubleheader — the Twins took the opener 4-3 — and left them with their biggest lead of the season, seven games ahead of both Boston and Milwaukee in the American League East. The Red Sox edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3 and recaptured second place by four percentage points over the Brewers, who were beaten by the Kansas City Royals 10-9 in 10 innings.

The three-time champion Royals thus took over second place in the AL West, one-half game ahead of Minnesota and 1½ games behind the California Angels, who lost to the Detroit Tigers 3-2.

Palmer, 8-4, allowed six hits in 8 2/3 innings and had a shutout until the ninth. Gary Roenicke, who drove in all three Baltimore runs in the opener with a single, double and homer, slammed a two-run homer in the nightcap and Lee May added a solo homer. The Twins won the opener with a run in the eighth on Rob Wilfong's double and a single by Ken Landreaux after Dave Edwards' game-tying homer an inning earlier.

"Obviously when you pitch 8 2/3 innings and come close to a shutout you can't complain," said Palmer, one of baseball's better complainers. The three-time Cy Young Award winner and a 20-game winner eight times in the last nine years was making just his second start since going on the disabled list July 16 with tendinitis in his arm.

Red Sox 4, White Sox 3

Bob Watson drove in three runs with a double and a tie-breaking two-run single to back the pitching of Bob Stanley and Dick Drago and help Boston end a three-game losing streak. Watson singled and scored on Dwight Evans' double in the first inning, doubled home a run in the fourth and rapped a decisive two-run single in the sixth.

Royals 10, Brewers 9

Darrell Porter singled off the right field wall with the bases loaded in the 10th inning to drive in the winning run and give the Royals their fifth consecutive triumph. The Royals loaded the bases on singles by Hal McRae and Amos Otis and an intentional walk to George Brett before Porter came through.

Tigers 3, Angels 2

The Tigers scored two runs in the third inning on doubles by John Wockenfuss and Tom Brookens, Lou Whitaker's sacrifice and Alan Trammell's perfect suicide squeeze bunt. Steve Kemp led off the Detroit fourth with a double and came around with the eventual winning run on grounders by Jason Thompson and Champ Summers.

Blue Jays 7, A's 0

Huffman pitched hitless ball until Jim Essian lined a leadoff single to left field in the sixth inning. oronto tok a 3-0 lead in the third on Rick Bosetti's two-run double and an RBI single by Rick Cerone and Roy Howell wrapped it up with a grand slam homer in the sixth.

Yankees 7, Rangers 4

Oscar Gamble's fourth-inning grand slam homer against his former teammates lifted New York from a 4-2 deficit to a 6-4 lead. Gamble's blow enabled Tommy John to pick up his 17th victory with help from Ron Davis in the eighth. Singles by Brad Gulden and Willie Randolph and a hit batsman preceded Gamble's second career grand slam.

Mariners 6, Indians 5

Joe Simpson doubled with two out in the 12th inning for his fifth hit and scored the winning run when second baseman Duane Kuiper muffed Bob Stinson's grounder for an error.

Borg Poised For Start Of U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Bjorn Borg and Chris Evert Lloyd began their bids today for U.S. Open titles. Borg, the four-time Wimbledon champion, is seeking his first, while Mrs. Lloyd could win an unprecedented fifth women's crown.

Borg looked almost invincible going into the fray. He has played well all year, while his nearest foe, Jimmy Connors, floundered. As one of his colleagues, Gene Mayer, said recently: "By the time you win your fourth Wimbledon, you're pretty confident."

But Borg looked this way last year after winning Wimbledon, only to fall apart against a ferocious Connors in the final. Connors, the defending champion, is scheduled to play tonight in the first evening match on center court.

Borg was to play 1977 NCAA singles champion Matt Mitchell this afternoon. Connors meets Anand Amritraj of India. Borg's chances look good, but his female counterpart, Mrs. Lloyd, is perhaps the biggest question mark of the tournament.

She lost a second consecutive Wimbledon final to Martina Navratilova, was beaten for the first time by teen-ager Tracy Austin this spring and has not won an important title all year.

Mrs. Lloyd has made it back to the top ranking on the Women's Tennis Association computer list, but even the prospect of making history does not provoke much of a battle cry from her.

"In the past, every time I had my back to the wall, I've come through," she said. "And there's never been a year when I haven't won at least one major tournament. But it's too hard to tell. I just don't know how hungry I am."

Today, she met Iris Riedel of West Germany.

Miss Navratilova, the second seed, has a first-round bye. Miss Austin plays Argentina's Ivanna Madruga Wednesday.

Also playing today was third-seeded John McEnroe, against Pavel Slozil of Czechoslovakia.

Trojan Nose Guard Lost For Tech Tilt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ty Sperling was added to the injury list Monday when the University of Southern California nose guard sprained a knee during practice.

Sperling, a starting defensive tackle for the Trojans before tearing knee ligaments in USC's final regular-season game last year, reinjured his right knee during light scrimmaging between the two first teams.

Sperling, a 235-pound junior, will likely miss the first game, said USC football coach John Robinson. If Sperling is unavailable, redshirt freshman tackle Byron Darby probably will start.

Also unavailable for the season opener Sept. 8 at Texas Tech will be tight end James Hunter, a starter last year as a junior. He pulled a hamstring the first day of practice.

Local Boxers In Nationals

Three Lubbock boxers will participate in the Senior-Open division of the Golden Bears Tournament Aug. 30-Sept. 2 in Sacramento, Calif.

The event is designed to rank the U.S.' top amateur boxers and is considered the first step to 1980 Olympic ratings. Participant selections were made by the National Amateur Boxing Committee.

The three area fighters, all members of the Lubbock Warriors boxing club, are Gilbert Castillo, 106 pounds, with a record of 157-19; Herbert Martinez, 119 pounds, 69-15; and Mario Martinez, 125 pounds, 72-18.

TECH SLATES OPEN HOUSE

The Texas Tech althetci department has scheduled an open house Friday to showcase the new Ticket Office and Letternen's Lounge on the north end of Jones Stadium. The facility will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 31. The public is invited to come by and inspect the new addition.

Raiders Tackle Melons

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Mark Olbert took a big chunk of watermelon in his mouth and grinned, letting a few seeds slide down his chin.

"Yeah, I remember the USC game last year," he said. "They gave me the ball on about our own one-foot line. All I tried to do was make sure I didn't fumble."

The sophomore tailback from Edmond, Okla., laughed at the memory and surveyed the scene around him. Except for a few rinds laying on the ground, the Texas Tech football team had demolished a truck-load of watermelons.

But the post-practice watermelon feast wasn't the only treat for the Tech gridders Monday. The celebration also marked the end of two-a-days. From now on, practice will be strictly an afternoon affair for the squad.

"I sure glad they (two-a-days) are over," said Olbert. "That's the worst part of the year for me."

Most of the squad would agree. Now, Olbert and his mates begin preparations for that little 'ol school on the coast — USC.

"I think we'll start going over our game plan on Wednesday or Thursday," said Olbert.

Olbert should see plenty of playing time against the Trojans, but says he doesn't feel any pressure.

"That's the nice thing about playing in the same backfield with James Hadnot," he said. "Everybody's going to be looking for him — so that takes the pressure of me and Mark (Johnson)."

But playing in the same backfield with Hadnot also entails something else — blocking. Lots of blocking. Coach Dockery has said that he plans to let the big fullback carry the ball as much as 30 times a game.

Olbert, who was an all-state back in high school and used to carry the ball 30 times a game himself, discovered that last year.

"I had to learn how to block," he said. "In high school I was a runner. But if that's what it takes to contribute to the team, than I'm happy. I just want to play — and see us win."

And Olbert is the first to admit that there is a certain amount of awe involved when the you face USC.

"Golly, you spend your whole life hearing about them and watching them on TV," he says. "And all of a sudden. . .they're on the other side of the field.

"But it's a great way to start the season," he was quick to add. "After all, they're supposed to be the best team in the nation. So if we can play with them, we should be able to play with anybody. I just hope we can do well."

And, if Hadnot should tire on occasion, Olbert is perfectly willing to carry the ball.

"You know," he said tossing the remains of his watermelon in the trash, "James can't carry the ball every time . . ."

It wasn't all watermelons, however, as the Raiders lost its starting tight end, Mark Harrelson who left the team.

Head coach Rex Dockery said Harrelson's decision was personal and that the junior from San Antonio was giving up football. Harrelson saw varsity action as a freshman, then moved into the starting lineup last year when Hadnot was moved from tight end to fullback.

L.M. Cummings has been battling Harrelson for the starting spot this fall. Harrelson caught five passes for 89 yards and one touchdown last year.

Chaps Start Game Preparation

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

From No. 5 (Billy Gee, a freshman from Slaton) to No. 88 (Rusty Biggs, a freshman from Lorenzo), the Chaparrals tried out their new blue-white-and-red uniforms Monday.

Coach Jerry Don Sanders was not as concerned about how they looked Monday as next Saturday, however.

Monday was picture day, and Sanders even entered into the shutter-snapping session by toeing a few extra points, while his Lubbock Christian College footballers were posing for pictures.

But, as soon as the film ran out and the cameras were stashed away, Sanders packed away the game gear until Saturday. Rest of the week, it will be practice gear as usual.

Come Saturday, the Chaparrals will play their first-ever football game, hosting McMurry College in a 2 p.m. contest at Lowrey Field.

The picture-taking session might not have prepared his Chaps for that inaugural, but the workout that followed did.

Sanders ran his troops through a shorts-only drill as he installed his game plan for the Indians. Also, he went to work trying to correct mistakes from last Saturday's scrimmage with Cisco Junior College.

"We had a defensive breakdown on the one play where Cisco scored," said Sanders, "but outside of that, our defense played pretty well.

"Offensively, our line was doing things correctly. It's a matter now of following through on things. I think they (offensive linemen) are gaining confidence."

Sanders didn't plan to pass much, concentrating more on line play. "And we stayed with our basic plays."

Sanders said he would make "one or two" changes in personnel as a result of the scrimmage. He said that No. 2 center Wade Welch was being moved up to the first unit, and regular center Jim Smith was being shifted to guard.

"Welch is improving every day, and Smith is a good blocker."

Sanders said that Cisco was "a good test for us. They were big."

Sanders, a master in the field after handling the chores at Tech for three years, indicated his Chaparrals would go heavy on the kicking game this week. "We haven't really worked on it that much yet, so we'll stress it the next few days.

Prior to the workout, Sanders spoke of the lack of injuries. Safetyman Mike Ritchie is out for the year with injuries, but that is the only major hurt. Offensive tackle David Hall aggravated an ankle injury in the Cisco scrimmage and was hobbling slightly Monday.

However, Sanders expects the 300-pounder from Houston to be ready to play by Saturday.

Raider Exes Plan Trip To Arizona

The Texas Tech Ex-Students Association is sponsoring a football weekend trip to Tucson, Ariz., Sept. 21-23 for Red Raider fans.

The group will leave Lubbock International Airport at 8:30 a.m. Friday, Sept. 21, attend the Tech-University of Arizona game at 9:30 p.m. (CST) on Saturday and return to Lubbock on Sunday.

Total cost of the trip starts at $197 per person, which includes hotel accommodations for two nights at the Plaza International Hotel, game tickets and transportation from the airport to the hotel.

There will be a reception at the hotel prior to the game for all persons making the trip and Texas Tech exes and supporters in the Tucson area.

Tickets may be obtained and reservations made by contacting the ex-student association at 742-3641 or Linn Travel at 795-8900.

"Reservations should be made as soon as possible," said Bill Dean, executive director of the Ex-Students Association.

BOWLING MEETING SET

An organizational meeting of the Pioneer Bowling League is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Sept. 7 at Imperial Lanes. The league consists of bowlers aged 55 and over. For additional information, call Hugo Hildebrand, 744-2279.

Injuries Leave Cowboys With Receiver Shortage

DALLAS (UPI) — Their ranks thinned by a rash of injuries, the Dallas Cowboys will open the regular season Sunday in St. Louis with seven new faces and a dearth of wide receivers.

Dallas made its final cuts to a 40-man squad Monday by trimming five players, including one rookie — 10th-round draft pick Mike Calhoun, a defensive lineman from Notre Dame.

Coach Tom Landry also waived fullback Todd Christensen from Brigham Young, wide receiver Robert Steele from North Alabama, offensive guard Tom Randall from Iowa State and offensive tackle Andy Frederick from New Mexico. Frederick was in his third year with the Cowboys and the other veterans were in their second year.

With the trimming of Steele, the Cowboys find themselves with only two healthy wide receivers in Drew Pearson and Tony Hill. Butch Johnson will miss at least two weeks with a broken little finger, but if Steele clears waivers he might be re-signed by Dallas, which could then place Johnson on the four-week injured list.

If Pearson and Hill remain the only wide receivers going into the St. Louis game, backup tight end Jay Saldi might wind up playing a flanker position.

Among the rookies left on the team after the final cuts were Ron Springs and Wade Manning, both from Ohio State. Springs, a running back, was a fifth-round draft pick, while Manning, who played baseball at Ohio State, was signed as a free agent.

Manning and Springs will probably share kick return duties Sunday.

Other rookies still on the club were first-round draft choice Robert Shaw, a center from Tennessee; tight end Gary Cosbie from Santa Clara; defensive back Aaron Mitchell from Nevada-Las Vegas; offensive tackle Richard Grimmett from Illinois and defensive end Bruce Thornton, also from Illinois.

Running back Tony Dorsett, who missed the majority of the exhibition season with a broken toe, is scheduled to resume workouts with the team Wednesday but remained a doubtful starter for the St. Louis game.

Mentioned Briefly

TENNIS

BROOKLINE, Mass.(AP) — Top-seeded Jose Higueras of Spain, upset by a service break in the fourth game, came back in mighty fashion and won the 52nd U.S. Pro Tennis Championship with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Hans Gildemeister of Chile at Longwood. After being broken and falling behind 3-1, Higueras, who earned $24,500 for the victory, took complete command, grudgingly surrendering only 20 more points to Gildemeister the rest of the way.

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Peter Fleming, better known for his doubles play, bested top-seeded Roscoe Tanner 6-4, 6-2 to win the rain-delayed $200,000 Association of Tennis Professionals tournament.

GENERAL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The youngest daughter of pro football star O.J. Simpson, 23-month-old Aaren Simpson, died at UCLA Medical Center eight days after she was pulled unconscious from a swimming pool by her mother, the hospital said.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati Reds outfielder Dave Collins, who batted at a .500 clip last week, was named the National League Player of the Week for the period ending Aug. 26. Collins, inserted into the Reds lineup following an injury to Ken Griffey, had 12 hits in 24 at-bats as Cincinnati won 5-of-6 games last week. He knocked in four runs, scored another four and stole five bases.

NEW YORK (AP) — Kansas City's Willie Wilson, who batted .541 and stole nine bases in nine attempts, was named the American League's Player of the Week for the period ending Aug. 26. Wilson also had two doubles, three triples, and an inside-the-park home run. He hit safely in six games and scored nine runs.

DR. LAMB

Importance Of Exercise

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know you always stress exercise as part of weight loss. I'm 68 years old and 70 pounds overweight. I have high blood pressure that is under control. My doctor is after me all the time to lose weight.

As far as walking is concerned, I can walk about an eighth of a mile and then the pain in the back of my leg, knees and ankles is so excruciating that I have to sit down or fall.

Can you recommend some kind of exercise and diet I can follow? I know I don't move around very much.

DEAR READER — An eighth of a mile isn't very far. I think it's important that you discuss this problem with your doctor.

In view of the rest of your medical history, you may have some problems in circulation to your legs. If not, you may have another disorder that contributes to your developing pain with walking.

I know a lot of people past 80 who walk more than a mile at a time without any difficulty. Of course, most of them have built up to this level and have remained fairly active. They may not be as overweight as you are.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, that you can use as a guide. It will provide you with about a 1300-calorie balanced diet. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The diet that I am sending you is only part of the picture. As that issue of The Health Letter explains, exercise is important. If you can't walk, you're seriously limited in what kind of exercise you might do.

If possible, you might try to exercise in a swimming pool. Even if you're not a swimmer, you might be able to do exercises in the water and that way gradually build up your exercise tolerance.

Of course, if your doctor is able to determine why you have trouble walking very far and can do something about it, he could help solve that problem for you as well.

If it's just that you haven't done any exercise for so long that even walking an eighth of a mile is too much for you, you'll just have to start at a very low level and walk as far as you can without having pain. Rest and walk again. Multiple short walks do about as much good as one long walk. But I do think you need to resolve the problem of why you have leg pain with walking such short distances.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I m 13 years old and I have a big problem. My right breast is noticeably bigger than my left. Is this normal?

DEAR READER — Probably. I don't know how big the difference is, but it's certainly true that almost all women have one breast that's slightly different in size from the other.

You might be surprised to realize how asymmetrical the human body really is. Almost everyone has one leg that's just a fraction shorter than the other. Even the sides of the two halves of the face may look a little different. Unless the difference in your breasts is quite marked, I think you shouldn't worry about it.

Meat Price Increases Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department plans to look into charges that meatpacking industry figures may have manipulated wholesale beef prices this month, setting the stage for "dramatic" hamburger price hikes.

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange, where part of the alleged manipulation would have occurred, says it finds no price patterns that aren't explained by economic forces in the industry.

But Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., says meatpacking officials may have depressed already declining cattle prices in late July with artificial, fixed-price sales among themselves.

Rosenthal, chairman of the consumer affairs subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, called for an investigation Monday.

Government statistics show hamburger prices peaked in May and then declined, but the Agiculture Department has said prices are higher than warranted by costs for live cattle and other expenses.

Cattle producers and others also have complained about "wide fluctuations" in live cattle prices, said Deputy Administrator Charles B. Jennings of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service.

An investigation of those patterns is under way and Rosenthal's complaint also will be studied, said Jennings, whose agency is charged with assuring fair trading in livestock cash markets. Live cattle also are "traded" in futures markets, where contracts are traded to buy or sell fixed amounts of live cattle in the future.

A spokeswoman for Rosenthal said consumer-group curiosity about market shifts prompted questioning of unnamed industry insiders, who made the accusations.

Rosenthal suggested the alleged July fixed-price sales may have caused farmers to panic and sell, dropping prices still further. Industry officials then may have bought futures contracts in early August on the Chicago exchange, he said.

Retailers, expecting the low price to level off, then may have agreed to buy large amounts at a future date, Rosenthal suggested.

The alleged manipulators may then have had their companies buy large numbers of cattle, driving the price back up within two weeks so they could sell their futures contracts for a quick profit, he suggested.

The futures market fell and then rose about 11 cents a pound in a two-week period. Each one-cent change in the price of a futures contract is worth $40,000.

The alleged manipulation would mean $5 million in "turnaround profits" for traders, Rosenthal said.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do yourself a favor. Take a little rest tomorrow. You may feel fit as a fiddle, but your mind is tired and could cause you to make an expensive mistake.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's all well and good to be understanding and kind to casual acquaintances, but don't go so far as to dig into your wallet. You'll suffer a loss.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) By putting your self-interests first you'll come out last. Take a back seat. Let others maneuver things around you. You'll fare better in the long run.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may think you know all the answers, but you are viewing only the tip of the iceberg. Better defer awhile if any important decisions are called for.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Those you're associating with tomorrow but of whom you know little may attempt to pull a fast one. Take care no money changes hands.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you try to act too smart or too wise, it could backfire. Be your old, cooperative, willing-to-get-along-with-others self.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) All facts and figures must be doubly checked tomorrow. You stand to make a costly error from unsound reasoning. Ask someone to back up your work.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It would be a mistake to allow yourself to be influenced by friends who may mean well but who don't know what they're talking about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It isn't fair to expect your mate or partner to live up to your expectations. To have a successful alliance, each must pull his or her own weight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Extreme care must be taken in what you say. Though you may not intend any harm or disrespect, your words could be misconstrued if you're not careful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) What may look like a once-in-a-lifetime bargain could turn out to be pretty expensive. Know who and what you're dealing with before you gamble.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Lady Luck is not exactly in your corner. Take care not to mess up something you have going for you by depending on her.

Your Birthday

Corrections of some unproductive habit or idiosyncrasy this coming year could afford you a chance to break out of a bad cycle. Don't be afraid to try different approaches to things.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures fell Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade in response to an increase in cash sales and lower cash prices.

Grain futures closed mixed in directionless trade.

Some traders also expected the Agriculture Department to report a drop in last week's soybean export shipments after the close, an analyst said.

Increased cash sales of soybeans by farmers prompted some country elevators Monday to reserve the right to lower their cash prices to farmers during the day, if futures prices showed an expected decline.

That bearish influence, along with the failure of an anticipated cold front in Canada and the Northern Great Plains to materialize over the weekend, helped encourage selling in soybeans. The cold front was viewed as a possible threat to the maturing Canadian rapeseed crop, as well as to U.S. soybeans and grain.
