VENUS, Texas, Nov. 12. (AP)—When their automobile stalled on a railroad track, four persons, one a 6-year-old girl, were killed here today.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leeman, who reside at Pecan Gap, near Paris, were visiting Mrs. Leeman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Tolleson. With their daughter and Mrs. J. R. McAlester of Venus they went driving.

As they crossed the railroad tracks, apparently without having seen the slowly approaching International-Great Northern passenger train, their automobile stalled. The train struck the machine, demolishing it and killing the three grown persons instantly.

Magnetic Healer Shot to Death Here While Talking With Patient

John T. Belt Called Victim of Self-Inflicted Wound by Findings of Inquest

John T. Belt, 62, known to many Wichitans as Doctor Belt, magnetic healer, was shot to death at his home in Vista Heights, near the county farm, early Monday night while his wife and acquaintances looked on. R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, conducted an inquest and pronounced the death due to a bullet wound self inflicted.

Mrs. Belt was looking at her husband when the shot was fired. The doctor repeated an oft-made threat while seated with a patient but others in the room did not heed his words until he arose and took a gun from a table drawer, officers were told.

The bullet entered the right side of the head and did not emerge. The patient, who was seated at the doctor's left, was believed to have been saved from injury by the fact that the bullet did not emerge.

Death was instantaneous and Mr. Belt crumpled to the settee without uttering a word. He has been in good health, according to relatives.

Mr. Belt had lived in Wichita county six years and was widely known for his activity in treating cancer and other ailments. Although not a licensed physician, he had many patients in Wichita Falls who claimed to have been benefitted by his treatments.

The body was being held at Hines mortuary Monday night pending completion of funeral arrangements.

SHOOK CASES CALLED TODAY

Forfeiture of Bonds May Follow Escape

Action to forfeit bonds posted for Tom Shook, former Electra police chief, on various grand jury indictments may be started in the 89th district court Tuesday before Judge P. A. Martin, it was learned Monday.

Shook is now at liberty following a break from the county jail Aug. 24. Charges against him include one for murder in the fatal stabbing of W. O. Daugherty of Electra, two for burglary, one for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated and one for robbery.

At least one of the cases will be called for hearing before Judge Martin Tuesday, it was announced, which would pave the way for forfeiture of the bonds. Shook made bond in all the cases except the one against him in connection with the death of Daugherty.

Charges against Ed Pryor, former Electra constable, were reset for Dec. 10 Monday by Judge Martin because of the absence of defense attorneys. Pryor is charged by indictment with aiding the escape of a prisoner from the county jail, and with being principal and accessory in separate cases of burglary and robbery.

Chatham Stresses Value of New Trade Area in Reservations Call

Members of the South Plains committee of the chamber of commerce plan an intensive campaign this week among the business and professional men of the city to obtain the quota of 125 necessary to charter a special train for the Wichita Falls delegation, according to an announcement made by J. W. Chatham, industrial and traffic manager.

A deficit of 39 reservations exists at present for the 125 quota. Those interested in the trade trip of Nov. 20-22 are asked to call at the chamber of commerce since it is likely that the committee may overlook some who are intending to take the trip.

In stressing the importance of a large delegation from the city, Mr. Chatham called attention to the fact that there are nine towns in the South Plains territory in which there has never been a railroad, and that the special train will be the first passenger train to traverse that section of the state.

JURY IS TOLD AIMEE SPENT NEAR MILLION

Evidence Shows $800,000 Used to Free Woman Evangelist

KEYES ANGLE AIRED

Question of Bribe Having Been Paid Attorney For State Probed

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12. (AP)—The Los Angeles county grand jury today went thoroughly into the question of whether Asa Keyes, former district attorney, took money from Aimee Semple McPherson, or her aides and associates, for dropping charges of conspiracy to defeat justice which had been brought against the evangelist and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy.

What the jury found out or intends to do about it was not revealed, but it is understood that evidence tending to show that more than $800,000 was spent in an effort to free the Angelus Temple pastor was laid before the body.

Evangelist's Story

The charges grew out of Mrs. McPherson's story that she had been kidnapped by three persons and taken to Mexico and held for ransom, as explaining her absence of a month more than two years ago.

Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio man at the temple, alleged to have occupied a cottage at Carmel, Calif., with the evangelist during her absence, and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Stolaff, otherwise known as Miss X, who said at the time it was she and not Mrs. McPherson who was in Carmel with Ormiston, were two of the witnesses expected to testify.

Probe Widened

Investigation of the McPherson angle grew out of charges that Keyes took large bribes from persons implicated in the alleged frauds connected with sale of stock of the Julian Petroleum corporation. Several persons were indicted in connection with these alleged frauds but only one man was tried and he was acquitted. This led the grand jury to inquire whether there may be grounds for bribe accusations in other cases under Keyes' jurisdiction.

There is much documentary evidence before the jury in the McPherson case. Much of it said to have been turned over by newspapermen. There also is a trunk said to contain important evidence.

Wilkins Lands Plane and Makes His Plans For First Antarctic Flight

By CAPTAIN SIR GEORGE HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition

(Copyright, 1928, by The New York American, Inc., and by Universal Service. Reproduction in whole or in part expressly forbidden.)

DECEPTION ISLAND, ANTARCTICA, Nov. 12. (By Radio from the whaler Hektoria via Port Stanley, Falkland Islands.)—We are about ready to make the first airplane flight ever made by anyone in Antarctica.

Our American Lockheed-Vega monoplane, Los Angeles, in which Lieutenant Eielson and I flew over the North Pole made further history today when it was the first complete airplane to touch Antarctic soil.

Four days ago the sturdy prow of the whaler Hektoria entered the harbor here and propped anchor. We then moored the whaler to the beach with six 7-inch hawsers.

We are now prepared to withstand the customary November storms. So far we have had fine weather. This is a "break" which has enabled everyone from captain to messboy and members of the expendition to keep busy.

Every waking hour we have been industriously on the job. We have been locating the troubles with our radio aerials, and overcoming many faults. Today we heard San Francisco for the first time. We expect soon to arrange a schedule for direct communcations.

Upon entering Deception Island harbor, Lieutenant Eielson and Crossan soon spotted some penguins. All were soon gazing in delight at these grotesque birds and their amusing antics.

We spent today seeking landing fields and beaches suitable for launching a seaplane. Eventually we discovered a convenient place near the whaling station. The machine can be dragged from the water there and can have its pontoons exchanged for wheels. The plane will then be taxied about 300 yards to some snow-covered slopes where skis will replace the wheels. Then we will be ready for our first trial flights.

Far down the harbor the flat ice is still unbroken. It will serve no one knows how long for take offs with big loads. Tomorrow our reserve airplane will follow the Los Angeles ashore. Within a few days we will be able to make our first trial flight.

The Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic exploring expedition set out from New York last September. The four members sailed to Montevideo, Uruguay, where they unloaded their airplanes and gear. In a few days they set out for the "bottom of the world" in the whaler Hektoria. They proceeded steadily southward, passing Falkland Islands. Flying from Deception Island they expect to establish a base some 60 miles south of there. Then they will make a succession of flights into the heart of the Antarctic in the hope of compelling nature to yield her last secrets.

Stewart Jury Ordered Locked Up After Talesman Reports Tampering

Prospective Juror Tells of Visit by Man Named "McGinnis" Day Before Opening of Trial

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. (AP)—With an investigation being made into statements made by a prospective juror that he had been approached about the perjury trial of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of Standard Oil company of Indiana, Justice Jennings Bailey today ordered the jury selected to hear the case be locked up for its duration.

This action came at the close of the opening session, as Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel, was winding up his opening statement to the jury. The nine men and three women earlier had heard the government's case, sketched by Leo A. Rover, district attorney.

Talesman Approached

Robert N. Caldwell, second of 28 talesmen examined by the court, interrupted the procedure temporarily with a statement that a young man had visited him at home yesterday and inquired whether he would "hold out" in the case. He said this visitor had given his name as "McGinnis," and asked "if I knew Hogan."

Prosecution and defense counsel conferred at the bench, after which Caldwell described the visitor as about 21 years old, light complexioned, and wearing a grey suit. Rover said the description tallied with a man he had in mind, but during luncheon recess Caldwell faced the man and failed to identify him.

Religion Questioned

Caldwell, an elderly butter dealer, asserted outside the court that the visitor had wanted to know whether he was a Catholic. His version of the visit was received in detail by court officers, who said it would be investigated thoroughly. Caldwell was excused from service in the case through a peremptory challenge by the defense.

Justice Bailey conducted examination of prospective jurors, declining over objection to allow defense counsel that community. As finally selected, the jury included: Albert K. Baker, street car conductor; Carl W. L. Horn, salesman; William E. Egan, salesman; Mrs. Eva Buckely, widow; Mrs. Sadie G. Jenkins, clerk; Morgan C. Emoons, salesman; Walter N. Hogan, insurance solicitor; Laurence L. Kiefer, secretary; Hugh R. O'Donnell, unemployed; Mrs. June P. Chaffee, housewife; Fred P. Haas, clerk, and Charles E. Henderson, department store floor manager.

GIRL SLAYINGS NEAR SOLUTION

Boy Who Witnessed Dual Killing Watched

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 12. (AP)—Believing they had under surveillance a youth who witnessed the slaying of two young married women near here on Nov. 4, officers said today they expected to be able to clear up the double murder soon.

The youth was questioned for about two hours by Grady Kennedy, special investigator, who told newspapermen after the youth had left:

"I'll be able to clear it up for you." He added, however, that the youth had "not told all he knows" of the slaying or Mrs. Bessie Lynch, 21 and Mrs. Cleo Lieto, 19.

"I believe we are on the verge of solving this frightful crime." Kennedy said. "It would be unwise to reveal the full details of this latest development. But it does appear that we are now on a hot clue that may shortly lead to the slayer."

The youth, who admitted he was with the women shortly before they were beaten to death, visited Kennedy of his own accord, the latter said.

Kennedy said that from developments he believed one man had sat in an automobile and watched while another beat the two women to death.

Bible and Mother Only Guides To Good Citizenship, Judge Tells Boys

Because he concurred in the opinion of the jury, that bootleggers and their wares had contaminated the otherwise good reputation of two young men on trial before him on theft charges, Judge P. A. Martin, denouncing the influence of the peddler of illicit intoxicants, freed the boys Monday, suspending a sentence of three years in the penitentiary.

The court's talk, which he said was "addressed to you, Mr. Man in the courtroom, and the public in general," was delivered after John Stouard and Allan Kates had heard the verdict of the jury in 89th district court. Both were convicted of theft over $50, but suspension was recommended, the jury's report said. In view of evidence submitted to show the previous excellence of their character.

"The only reason you boys are here today," Judge Martin said, "is because you connected up with a bootlegger. I believe your reputations have been as good as witnesses testified. You are here because of bootleggers who peddle their stuff and then laugh about it.

"You boys are at the cross roads. You may turn to the right and become good citizens. But if you drink, and patronize bootleggers, you will go to the penitentiary, sure.

"There is one way in which a young man can make good, and that is by accepting and believing the Bible, and following the teachings of your mother."

RESCUE CRAFT FAIL TO FIND 350 SURVIVORS

Liner Vestris Keels Over And Goes Down Off Virginia Coast

SINKING IS MYSTERY

Distress Calls Fail to Give Cause; Children Were Aboard

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (US)—Three steamships late tonight radioed they had searched in vain for hours for either the wreck or the survivors of the Lamport and Holt liner, Vestris, which foundered 300 miles east of Hampton Roads, Va., this morning.

The 140 passengers and crew of 210 of the Vestris were forced to take to lifeboats and rafts in a heavy sea at 1:25 p. m. when the Vestris heeled over sharply and began to sink.

Possibility of a great sea disaster loomed as hours went by without tidings that even one of the Vestris life boats had been picked up in the giant searchlights that were whipping the sea.

The steamships which advised at 7 p. m. that they could not find any survivors of the Vestris were the Ohio Maru, the Grace liner, Santa Barbara, and the Porto Rico liner San Juan.

SURVIVORS OF SHIP HUNTED

First Rescue Craft Fails To Find Boats

coast today and the passengers and crew had to take to the boats.

As dark came down tonight almost 350 men and women and children were riding the stormy waves about 300 miles from shore in little lifeboats that would be their only hope until the first of the score or more steamers rushing to their aid should arrive.

Leak Reported

Messages received direct from the Vestris before she had to be abandoned told that she was sinking, lying at a 30 degree angle with her decks awash, but made no mention of the cause of her distress. The coast guard destroyer Davis, rescue-bound, relayed a message that the Vestris had sprung a leak, but how that happened was not told.

At the offices of the Lamport and Holt line here the theory that a shifting cargo might have tipped the ship over was discounted. Nor was any reasonable explanation forthcoming as to how such a liner, a crack ship for all her 16 years, could suddenly spring such a leak that she had to be abandoned within a few hours' steaming distance of the Virginia capes.

General Cargo

The cargo, some 6,000 tons of general merchandise, was not of such a sort, officials said, that waves could shift it so as to keel the ship over. There was a great quantity of silk and cotton cloth, some machinery, 250 barrels of oil, and considerable fruit.

There was a crew of 210 on the Vestris under Captain William Carey, commodore of the Lamport and Holt line, and in the three classes there were 129 passengers and a few unlisted ones. Among the passengers were many women and there were known to be at least half a dozen children.

The first call for help came just before 10 o'clock this morning and three hours and a half later, at 1:25, the Vestris had been deserted by all on board, a derelict lurching suddenly in heavy seas remaining from the storm of yesterday.

SOS First Message

First intimation of possible disaster was merely that three letter cry for which the ears of seafarers are always strained SOS. The signal went out over the air, and immediately broadcasting was shut down to give silence to the perilled. It was not known at first what ship was in distress or where it was, but soon other messages began coming through the stilled ether.

It was a mixed company of passengers on the Vestris, such as one finds on any large liner, fathers and mothers with their children, a couple of missionaries, a pugilist and two elders of the Mormon church, a newspaper man and two automobile race drivers and so on through almost every layer of society.

How they acted when they were first faced with the possibility of death, when they had to leave the ship, for the tiny life boats, and during the hours they waited for rescue, there was no way to tell, for Wireless Operator N. Laughlin of the Vestris was too busy while his set was in operation to send tales of heroism, and after the set went out there was on one to tell the story until the rescue ships should come.

PASSENGERS FIRST TO BE REMOVED

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (AP)—The 10,000-ton Lamport and Holt liner Vestris foundered today 300 miles off the Virginia coast with 337 people aboard and there was enacted another of those dramas of the sea which make glorious the annals of the sailormen.

Captain W. J. Carey stood by his ship to the last. The radio operator sat at his key until he was ordered away to take his place with the ship's master in the last boat to leave. The passengers were taken off first.

Then, while these 337 people, cast adrift some 300 miles from land, were tossed in a dozen tiny lifeboats under a wind which reached gale force at times, a dozen ships ranging from the navy's great battleship Wyoming down to the grim, sea-greyhounds which are destroyers—plowed throug a smoking sea, to give help.

Merchantmen turned from their courses. The navy ordered out its ships. On the sea lanes within 300 miles of the spot where the Vestris was in trouble, there was no thought of anything but that one purpose—to save human life which was in danger.

As evening approached rescue was near. A dozen ships should be on hand by midnight. The passengers and crew would be taken aboard, given hot coffee and, perhaps, a tot of rum, wrapped in warm blankets, and then, and only then, the business of carrying American commerce and of protecting the sea lanes, would be resumed once more. The tradition of the sea would permit of nothing else.

It was just a few minutes after 10 a. m., today when radio stations up and down the Atlantic coast heard the signals, SOS from out of the ether. A hundred operators listened and heard the Vestris' signal.

Water in Hold

"We need help at once; very urgent," came the message. The Vestris had been hove to since yesterday. The ship was disabled beyond hope of proceeding. Slowly it had listed to starboard until it was at an angle of 31 degrees. There was water in the hold and the cargo was being soaked and shifted. When seas came pounding over it, it rolled on its beam ends. Passengers had been mustered on deck and in the cabins, their life preservers on.

The message did not explain the cause of the trouble. It was assumed that in the gale which had been blowing—the weather bureau reported in the last 24 hours the wind had reached a velocity as high as 80 miles an hour at sea off the Virginia coast—the ship or its steering gear had been disabled, leaving it helpless while the waves pounded relentlessly at it, until it became waterlogged.

But causes have little to do with the business of rescue.

Land wires up and down the coast were carrying messages back and forth among the coast guard stations, to officials at Washington, agents of the Vestris and agents of other ships which might be in the vicinity.

Messages Fill Air

The air was filled with messages back and forth from ships at sea in the vicinity and from shore stations. Within less than an hour a dozen ships had been mustered for the rescue fleet.

The coast guard cutters Tucker and Davis, at sea, reported they were immediately on their way, full speed ahead, and it was not difficult to picture them, their decks awash, sterns settled deep in the water as screws took hold; rolling and pitching, but making 25 or 30 knots an hour.

At Hampton Roads, Va., the revenue cutter Manning began taking fuel aboard, ready for a dash to sea.

The destroyer Mascouting steamed out of Norfolk, under way less than an hour after the distress signals were sent out.

The Hamburg-American liner Berlin and the Grace liner Santa Barbara radioed they had turned from their courses and were off for the point where the Vestris was in trouble.

Japan Joins Race

The flag of Japan joined the mercy-race when the Ohio Maru answered the calls for help with the word that by evening it would be at the scene.

Before noon all the rescue fleet had been mobilized—and a dozen others were ready to go, should their services be needed.

All the time a hardy Irishman, whose name is on the lists an N. Laughlin, was pounding away at the radio key. He was the chief radioman of the Vestris. He kept the rescue fleet constantly informed of his ship's condition and her position. He copied for Captain W. J. Carey the messages which went through the air telling of the formation of the relief squadron.

By 11:12 a. m., the situation had become desperate.

"We will have to take to the lifeboats at any minute," was the message which Captain Carey sent through the medium of his Irish radioman, to the world at large.

Finally Captain Carey broadcast word that he was making ready to put off the passengers in the small boats and during the noon hour the 110 men, women and children who had left New York on Saturday for a gay trip to South America, were huddled in the tiny lifeboats. Stout sailors tugged at the oars, holding the boats bow-on to the seas while passengers could see their ship settling and settling and rolling crazily as they rose to the crest of the waves.

At 12:50 p. m., Captain Carey decided it was folly for him and his crew to stand by their ship longer.

"We are abandoning ship and taking to the lifeboats," Laughlin, the radioman, snapped out over the air.

The last of the boats were launched. Only by one the remaining members of the crew dropped into them.

A little later the battleship Wyoming radioed ashore the news that the ship had been abandoned at 1:25 p. m.—passing on to the world that final message which Laughlin and Captain Carey had sent out before they left their posts and commended themselves to the mercy of the seas, the sturdiness of their small boats and the brawn of their sailor's arms.

"Moderately rough," was Captain Carey's description of the sea. The weather bureau, from its reports, judged the captain conservative, for it had information of 80 mile gales and ugly, tossing waters. Some wondered how long the small boats could live in such seas as they pictured from the weather reports.

The Vestris, which was built in Liverpool in 1912, left New York at 3 p. m., Saturday with passengers and freight for Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires. It flew the British flag, with Liverpool as the home port. It was designed originally for the South American trade.

Friends Who Aided Rancher in Early Days Remembered in Will

By STEVE STEVENSON

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 12. (US)—Because they were friends indeed to a friend in need, five Omahans are $125,000 richer today.

Twenty-five years ago Frank M. Heinrich, Montana cattleman, came to Omaha in search of funds to save his drouth-stricken ranch. He searched in vain for several days. Finally he found his way to a bank of which Ford E. Hovey was president.

Hovey loaned Heinrich the money and it proved to be the stepping stone for the Montana ranchman to make a fortune estimated at over $1,000,000.

During the past 25 years Heinrich, who recently died, was a steady customer of the Omaha bank. During his trips to this city he became acquainted with the Hovey family and was often a guest at the Hovey home.

J. B. Owen, vice president of the bank, and W. H. Dressler, cashier, took an interest in Heinrich's business affairs.

When Heinrich's will was read it disclosed that he had bequeathed $50,000 to Hovey, a like amount to Mrs. Ford Hovey "for kindnesses shown him"; $25,000 to Henry A. Hovey, the bank president's son and assistant cashier of the institution; $10,000 to Owen and $5,000 to Dressler.

JURY UPHOLDS AUTO SEARCH

Wichitan to Appeal On Point of Law

The right of officers to search an automobile for liquor was upheld in the 89th district court by a jury in Judge P. A. Martin's court Tuesday in the case of Louis McBride, sentenced to one year in the penitentiary for possession and transportation of liquor.

Announcement of appeal was filed immediately by Bob Crain, McBride's attorney, and McBride's bond set at $1,500.

Offering no defense witnesses and relying on a point of law of "probable cause," Mr. Crain told the jury that search of a car without probable cause was illegal and that any case based on illegal search was in itself illegal. Probable cause was explained as a reasonable belief, based on some fact, that the car to be searched might contain liquor. Simple suspicion that a car might contain liquor is not sufficient legal excuse for the search of a car, he said, without a warrant.

Wichita Girl Sees Volcano in Hawaii

A picture of the Summit house, near the crater of the world famed volcano Kiluae on the island of Hilo, Hawaii, has been received by Miss Bernice Apple, secretary to Dr. H. D. Fillmore, city health officer, from her sister, Miss Martha Maud Apple, who is doing special record work on the island at a hospital.

Kiluae, unlike Mount Etna, is not now in eruption, but has been the scene of some of the world's greatest eruptions and tragedies. It is about this volcano and the former royal house of Hawaii that the play "The Bird of Paradise" was written.

Miss Martha Maud Apple is a Wichita Falls girl and only recently took up her work at the islands. She visited here at her home before sailing a few months ago.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

BLOOD SPILLED OVER NEW TAX

Russians Protest Grain Levy With Bullets

MOSCOW, Nov. 12. (US)—Six soviet officials, social workers and newspaper correspondents in villages throughout the country have been assassinated, and five, including one woman, seriously wounded in a wave of more than a score of peasant outbreaks in the three days following the celebration of the eleventh anniversary.

Three rich peasants yesterday were sentenced to death and 15 others to imprisonment for two previous murders of soviet officials.

Violence Spreads

Pravda, Moscow newspaper, says the isolated outbreaks of criminal violence against the soviets are growing more desperate daily as a result of the government's grain collection campaign and taxation policy by which the rich peasants are being taxed out of existence. The entire soviet press demands that murders of communist social workers in the villages must be ended by ruthless arrests and execution of the guilty persons.

The number of assassinations of officials more than doubled this year over 1927. Isvestia, official paper, says:

"From all ends of the country come reports of violent attacks against the soviet regime. Officials, teachers, correspondents have been murdered; libraries, houses of communists and headquarters of village soviets have been burned down; meetings for the discussion of agricultural taxation have been broken up by kulaks armed with clubs and stones."

Near Tula the rich peasants out of revenge against village officials who confiscated the land of the kulaks, burned 85 stacks of hay and a grain elevator owned co-operatively by the peasantry.

Social Worker Killed

A communist woman social worker was reading in a village library near Rostov when an unidentified person fired a shot through the window, killing her.

In the Briansky district a driverless horse entered the yard of a communist official's home. The wife went out to greet her husband and found him dead on the carriage floor, apparently shot from ambush while driving home from work.

Near Perm, a rich peasant who believed himself unjustly taxed, entered the village soviet and stabbed to death the communist secretary in his lodging.

None of these cases took the nature of armed uprisings of peasants. The murders are principally acts of protest against the government by individuals or small groups.

ARMS SEIZED

DUBLIN, Nov. 12. (AP)—The police seized a quantity of military equipment and thousands of rounds of ammunition at the close of an Armistice day whose early morning hours had been disturbed by three bomb explosions.

CHILD WRITES SANTA LETTER

Boy Tells of Faith in Visit Of Saint

The faith of a little child in things that are good has often resulted in that child's life being one well lived and well worth living.

If Santa Claus ever felt badly because some children doubted him, his big heart swelled with happiness when a simple letter of pure faith was written by a little crippled boy.

The letter was written to prove his belief in Santa and also to be entered in The Record News-Times Santa Claus prize contest to see what child writes the best letter on "Why I Know There Is a Santa Claus."

"I am a cripple, but my mother takes me to town every Christmas and I look everywhere for you," the letter said. "Oh, Santa! All good children love and believe in you. I do."

Every boy and girl under 12 years of age who believes in Santa Claus and who will write his own little letter telling why he believes will have the honor of being considered for one of the cash prizes to be given by these papers. Letters must be under 150 words.

The best letter will gain for its writer $10. Second best will receive $5, and the next 10 will receive $1 each. All letters must be in the office before midnight Nov. 20, and must be addressed to The Record News-Daily Times Santa Claus Prize Contest Editor.

Dancer Jailed When Check to Store Is Turned Down

Girl Needed Clothes for Dance "Au Naturel," She Maintained

The story of a young woman who said her plans to dance in the nude had caused her to give a worthless check in an attempt to purchase finery demanded the puzzled attention of attaches of the district attorney's department here late Monday.

She insists that she thought the check for $40 which was tendered in payment for clothing at a local department store was good. However, Dick Kenley, district attorney, announced that a complaint charging her with forgery had been drawn but was not filed Monday afternoon because offices of justices of the peace were closed.

Pretty, petite and about 20, the young woman faced the prospective charge with a song, jokes and smiles. She didn't get very far with her song, because for one thing, the questioners said, it wasn't the time for singing. For another thing, they added, the opening lines indicated that the song might contain a trifle too much zip.

"Well, sir," she was quoted as telling the prosecutors, "I was offered $50 to dance at a big party here last week. Mister, $50 looked mighty big to me, but I didn't have clothes."

"You needed clothes, and for that kind of dance, why?" asked Kenley.

"I couldn't get out there without clothes," was the retort.

"But I didn't have money to buy them. I had a girl friend, though, and she had a check for $50. She told me she would deposit the check in a certain name, that I would sign that name and get what I needed.

"I did as she said. The man at the store called the bank and told me the check was 'hot.' Then the officers took me."

Attempts were being made late Monday to arrange bond of $1,000 which had been set for her.

Banquet and Dance Concludes Legion Armistice Observance

"I am proud that America's citizens, and especially her young men, responded to the challenge of 1916 is such noble unanimity of purpose and with such sublime patriotism as to guarantee that no power on earth can ever again insult the American flag," declared A. H. Carrigan in his address Monday night to 125 men and women present at the American legion banquet at the Wichita club.

Mr. Carrigan, principal speaker at the concluding event in local celebration of the tenth anniversary of Armistice day, held the close attention of his audience in a brief review of United States' amazingly swift transformation from a nation of peaceful onlookers to a power of tremendous capacity for effective warfare.

"You men of the legion well commemorate this hour; as this hour which you made possible is well commemorated to the coming of peace on earth and good will to all men," said Mr. Carrigan in closing.

W. R. Duke, state commander of Spanish war veterans, was introduced by W. E. George, who acted as toastmaster, and gave a short talk. W. S. Langford, state adjutant of Spanish war veterans, spoke briefly on behalf of his organization, and was followed by Sam Spence, who made a plea for that type of loyalty to the legion which expresses itself in regular attendance at legion meetings.

Interspersed with courses of a dinner were the strains of war time songs, given first by Mrs. Cortez Slaughter, pianist, and Joseph Rabinowitz, violinist, then taken up with increasing confidence as old buddies swung into the tune with "barber-shop" harmonies.

The later hours of the evening were given to dancing with music furnished by the club orchestra, which was broadcast by remote control over KGKO.

Council Orders Hearing On Brook Avenue Store

A public hearing on the proposed construction of a grocery and drug store at 2300 Brook avenue will be held at the meeting of the Wichita Falls city council next Monday night, according to a decision made by the aldermen at their meeting Monday night in the Memorial auditorium.

The application was made by C. W. Johnson for the erection of the building, which, according to his plans, would adjoin a filling station.

The council also voted free use of the old city offices on Ohio street next to the police station to the Salvation Army for free beds.

Captain Z. H. Parker of the Salvation Army explained to the aldermen that more room is needed at this time to accomodate the large numbers who need beds each night, and that as the city is not using the space the Salvation Army would use it in a worthy cause. The request was granted with free gas, lights and water.

Burk Christian Church Begins First Revival

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Nov. 12—The Central Christian church at Burkburnett held its first revival meeting Sunday evening, with Rev. Solliday, pastor of the local church, conducting the services. His text was "The Great Salvation." Singing was in charge of W. D. Bent, a member of the Central Christian church. Special selections of songs were sung for a part of the Armistice day program.

The meeting will continue all this week at the Central Christian church building. Special music will be presented each night of the revival.

Mayor and Treasurer Sign New City Bonds

W. S. Abbott, city treasurer, and J. W. Akin, mayor, narrowly avoided writer's cramp Monday afternoon when they spent a considerable portion of the day signing the individual bonds of the recently voted $250,000 municipal bond issue, according to city hall workers.

The bonds, which had been delayed in the engraving plant in Dallas, have now been made ready for shipment to Austin.

2,792 Bales of Cotton Ginned at Burkburnett

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Nov. 12 The two gins at Burkburnett had received approximately 2,792 bales of cotton up to Monday at noon. Cotton has been coming in slowly during the past three weeks due to the damp weather. According to the reports of the farmers who bring their cotton to Burkburnett, there remains only about one-third of their crop of cotton ungathered.

JURY HOLIDAY

So Farmers Have Tough Time in Court Here Monday

Too many jurors observed Monday as an Armistice holiday, and as a result, there will be at least three minor delays in getting the wheat crop in.

It was erroneously published that the courts would observe Monday as a holiday, as did most of the other courthouse departments. The result was that many of those summoned for jury service did not appear; and as a still further result, the shortage of jurors was such that few could be excused by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court.

"This is the first time this season the ground has contained enough moisture to let us plant wheat," said one farmer who asked to be excused. Two other prospective jurors urged the same excuse.

Judge Martin insisted that they serve, however, with the promise that they would be excused at the earliest possible moment.

CHURCH CLUB NAMES HEADS

John B. King President Of Episcopal Group

The adoption of a constitution as a means of better perpetuating the organization, and an address on "Statutes of Fraud and Contract" by A. H. Britain, marked the monthly banquet and meeting of the Men's club of the Episcopal church Monday night at the parish house.

The club also laid definite plans for extensive Christmas charities.

Election of officers resulted in the choice of John B. King, president; James P. Waggener, vice president; Harry Gray, secretary; James G. Oakley, treasurer. The new officers were installed at the meeting.

Miss Clara Mae Lloyd of the Knickerbocker studio entertained the gathering with a group of readings.

Carter McGregor was program committee chairman for the meeting, which was attended by about 50 men. The dinner was served by the Emma B. Childers guild with attractively decorated tables lighted with yellow candles.

Sewing Machine Firm Files Damage Suit

The Singer Sewing Machine company, through its Wichita Falls attorneys, Carrigan, Britain, Morgan and King, filed an injunction and damage suit in the 78th district court Monday against W. M. Davidson of Burkburnett.

The suit seeks to recover $600 alleged damages and also to restrain him from the use of signs which might indicate any present connection with the Singer company which claims he is no longer its agent.

COURT CHANGE STIRS DISPUTE

County Officials Given Two Proposals

Difficulties loomed in the path of the weekly meeting of the county commissioners Tuesday if the expected consideration should be given proposed alterations in the interior of the courthouse.

Strenuous opposition seemed certain to both of two alteration plans which have been proposed, and officials at the courthouse declared Monday they could see no way out of the difficulty. The whole problem has grown out of a move to make re-arrangements of office space allotted to several departments so as to relieve an overcrowding said by the officials to have become serious.

One plan of alteration already has been ordered by the commission, with the provision that the work is to be completed before the new terms of office begin next Jan. 1. By that plan, the county court at law courtroom would be moved to the basement courtroom now occupied by R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace; the tax assessor's department would be moved across the first floor hallway to the space now occupied by the county court at law, and the tax collector's department would be enlarged to include space now occupied by the tax assessor.

The plan, however, has drawn the strenuous objection of the Wichita County Bar association. The bar, at a meeting Saturday, named a committee headed by Harvey Harris, former county judge, to appear before the county commission to protest against the removal of the county court at law to the basement, and to propose an alternative plan.

The bar association proposes that the tax assessor's department be moved to the basement directly below the tax collector's department, and that the two be connected by a stairway.

Max Shumake, who becomes tax assessor on Jan. 1, declared Monday, however, that he would not consent to the removal of his department to the basement. Because practically every department with which the assessor's office must keep close and constant contact is on the first floor, a stairway connection would seriously hamper the efficiency of his department, he explained.

Wichitan Acquitted in Third Trial On Violation of Plumbing Law

C. M. Sparkman was acquitted in the county court at law Monday afternoon on a charge of violating the state plumbing license law after doing of one small plumbing job had made it necessary for him to go into courts three times to face trial.

Judge C. M. McFarland ordered the charge dismissed after testimony had been offered that a licensed plumber had been employed to finish the job after Sparkman had done most of it.

Judge McFarland characterized the state plumbing license law as being "vague and indefinite" as he ruled that according to the strict interpretation of the statute, an unlicensed plumber has the same right to pursue his trade as does the helper of a licensed craftsman.

On a previous occasion, a charge brought against Sparkman growing out of the same incident had caused Judge McFarland to hold that the city plumbing ordinance is unconstitutional because of conflict with the state license law. The conflict, he held, lies in the fact that different penalties are prescribed in the two sets of law.

The first complaint in the case was filed in city court, Sparkman appealing from conviction there. The hearing on appeal before Judge McFarland resulted in the city ordinance being declared unconstitutional. The third trial, Monday, ended in the verdict of acquittal.

BURGLARS ROB FOUR HOMES

Offices and Business Houses Also Raided

The activities of burglars and house prowlers netted loot of more than $200 in cash, clothing and household articles over the week-end, according to report received at police headquarters Monday.

The only knob-knocking reported during the week-end occurred at the office of the Bell Mattress and Furniture company at Fourth and Michigan streets. The yeggs escaped with $1.75.

A woman's fur coat was reported to have been stolen from the office of W. H. Caldwell, 416 First National building, while a suit was taken from a room at 704 Travis street. Clothes valued at $75 were taken from a residence at 312 Burnett street.

A five-tube radio set was stolen from the automobile of J. W. Wray, 2209 Fillmore street, while a mandolin and bundle of laundry were taken from the home of H. M. Brown, 1306 Fifth street.

Last Rites Held For Victim of Auto Crash

The body of W. W. Lynn, 75, who was killed in an automobile accident on the Thornberry road Saturday afternoon, was forwarded to Byers for burial Monday by the Hines fortuary. Funeral services were held from the First Methodist church at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon with Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor, officiating.

J. H. Young, 2908 Avenue R, who suffered a fractured spine in the accident, was reported to be resting well Monday night by attendants at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital.

The MAYTAG Roller Water Remover

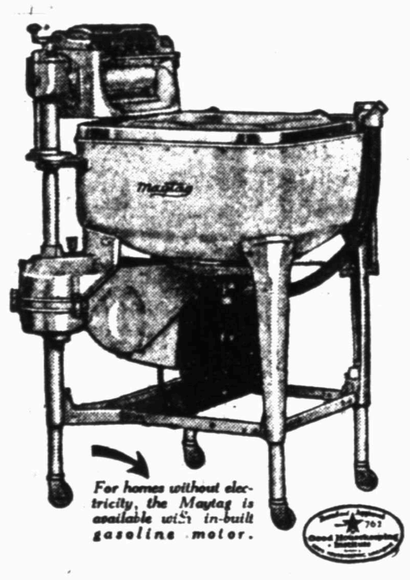

A New and Better Way of Wringing

IF YOU were to pass a clothes-pin between the rolls of the Maytag Roller Water Remover, it would appear as in the illustration above. In like manner, this large, soft, upper roll hugs the lumps, folds and seams in the clothes, reaches down into the low spots, and leaves no wet places to retard drying on the line.

Buttons, snaps or ornaments go through safely.

Exhaustive experiments convinced The Maytag Company that a soft top roll, working against a hard bottom roll, creates more effective wringing action than two soft rolls or two hard rolls. The Roller Water Remover, incorporating this method, is exclusively owned and controlled by The Maytag Company. It permits perfect wringing with less time and effort than ever before.

The detail drawing at the right, above, shows you the many features of convenience which make the Roller Water Remover so handy. The safety-feed makes it easy to start the clothes through the rolls. The tension automatically adjusts itself to a thin handkerchief or a bulky blanket. The drainboard automatically reverses itself, and pressure on safety release makes it possible to instantly separate rolls.

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (US)—She was climbing the stairs ahead of me to a department store. She was a young woman. In her arms was a fascinating blue-eyed baby with a blue sweater and a cunning little pale blue cap. It had the merriest face, I saw in the great Broadway crowds.

Trotting along beside her, asking questions which were always answered, was another child about 3, with an Alice blue coat, half hose, a very smart little hat and white gloves, spotless white gloves, which seems to delight her as she wiggled her fingers and asked more questions.

The mother wasn't what you'd call well dressed. Her clothes were neat and home-made. Her children looked much—oh, very much better.

Chic "business women" bustled here and there, looking competent and prosperous, and feeling pretty sure of themselves. They were successes.

Without knowing anything about the people I could guess pretty accurately what they had left at home.

The "business" women had some bills from high-class stores, which were unpaid. They had some very fluzey, rose budded, chiffon lace, trimmed undies, and some smart hats in the closet.

The mother had no unpaid bills, and when you went into the house about meal time you could smell savory things cooking.

You wouldn't hear many laughs in the home of the business girl I saw, because there really isn't so much to laugh about.

In the mother's house they laugh a great deal. The children do and say such funny things.

"The busines woman" wouldn't change places with the mother. She thinks she wouldn't. Give up "her life" to a lot of babies? No sir! She wants to live, whatever that means.

And would the mother give up her life for the fluzey undies and the party in a favorite speakeasy now and then? You wouldn't ask her if once you got a look into her happy face.

Then a fine, sound business woman who has been tremendously successful came along, and she stopped to tell me that she had adopted a second child. "The little girl had a birth mark on her face," said this fine woman, and I thought if anybody ought to take her, I should, as I made my money in beauty work, and here was a chance to return some of the kindness life had shown me."

And in the final analysis there just isn't any substitute for children, to make women happy. Women whose hearts are right, and who can afford it, and who haven't any of their own, can always join the waiting list at the leading orphanages or explain their wants to some good hospital where they often help to fill up empty or foolish lives.

Some authorities say that of every 100 children now born into the world, only 17 are from the first decidedly right-handed.

SOCIETY GIVES CHILDREN AID

Report Shows Work Of Chest Group

She's as cunning a little creature as you ever saw, this newest baby of the Children's Aid society. Right now, she's lying in a tiny white bed in a boarding home of the society, because that's all the home she has. But if a lonely woman ever sees Janet Lee and lets her finger be clutched by a clinging little hand, she'll adopt a baby then and there.

She's a mite of a 4-months-old girl, with brown hair and blue eyes. She has a dimple in her chin, and when she's properly "chucked," her tiny face breaks into an adorable smile. Her mother didn't want her, because Janet Lee is one of those unfortunate babies that slip into the world and must be left on somebody's doorstep, or else prove an embarrassment and impediment to their mothers. But she's all right now. She has plenty of milk and is getting fat on it.

Many Groups

Alongside of Janet's bed are four others. They're empty now, but sometimes all five beds are occupied by tiny babies cared for by the Aid society, in addition to the several youngsters four and five years old who are in the baby home.

There's a second boarding home for the older children of the Aid society who are of school age. In it are six or eight boys and girls, who are victims of desertion, divorce, crime, or drink. They are going to school every day, and the walls of the office of the Aid society are decorated with paintings, drawings and cartoons which are the work of children in this home. A 15-year-old boy shows unusual talent in art, and he is to be given the opportunity of studying painting and drawing.

In a third home maintained by the Children's Aid society may be found several younger girls who are in school, and one small boy. These little girls are being carefully instructed in housekeeping. They are learning to bake cakes and cookies and do other work of the household.

Miss Katherine Henricle, executive of the Children's Aid society, has reported 535 children involved in the 193 families reported and investigated by her up to Nov. 1. Seventy-nine were referred to other agencies and 26 were received into the care of the society. Seventeen children were returned to their parents, 51 were placed in foster homes and 14 in boarding homes.

Member of Chest

In girls' protective work, including girls from 10 to 18 years of age, 39 unmarried mothers were cared for, 11 runaways and eight girls from improper homes. Twenty-two were sent to rescue homes, 21 to other institutions and 15 were returned to relatives.

The Children's Aid society is one of the 10 organizations drawing support from the Community Chest fund. Its work is continued largely through its quota of $5,000 from the chest. The drive for the annual Community Chest will open Nov. 25.

Dr. S. S. McKenney Gives Last Talk In W. M. S. Series

Members of the W. M. S. of the First Methodist church met Monday afternoon at the church for the last Bible study of the year, when Mrs. E. B. Gorsline had charge of the meeting.

The program included a vocal duet by Mrs. Martin Rowe and Mrs. N. M. Clifford. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. E. O'Brien.

Dr. S. S. McKenney gave the last of a series of talks on "The Life of Christ According to Mark." At the close of Dr. McKenney's address Mrs. B. P. Williams presented Dr. McKenney with a handsome desk lamp in behalf of the society. She also expressed words of appreciation to Mrs. Rowe, Mrs. Clifford and Mrs. O'Brien, who have furnished music for the meetings throughout the year.

Arrest of Jesus

A resume of Dr. McKeeney's speech follows:

"The arrest of Jesus followed immediately upon the betraying kiss of Judas, though this was the ordinary salutation of a disciple to a Master. They seized the Master, a band with swords and staves, and Peter smote off the ear of the servant of the high priest. Jesus did not resist, but submitted to them, and was brought before the Sanhedrin for trial and investigation. But, for what will they 'try' Him? The charge of 'blasphemy' is at once laid against Him, but even in this there is no harmony among the witnesses. Presently, came this testimony: 'We heard Him say, I will destroy this temple.' To them such an act might at once involve blasphemy and treason; yet, 'their witness did not agree together.' Jesus was amazingly silent, for He well knew that He was on trial for His Messiahship. The high priest, too, understood the real issue for he asked, 'Art Thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?' Jesus met the inquiry with His own confession: 'I am, and ye shall see My exaltation and My return with power!' The high priest rent his mantle saying, 'Ye have heard the blasphemy; what think ye?' 'And they all condemned Him to be guilty of death!' Doubtless Peter furnished the information regarding his own denial. He never forgot the first maid and the second maid, 'and they that stood by' who said that he was a disciple, and he never forgot that night of weeping! Moreover, his dark deed was a fulfillment of our Lord's prophecy, another evidence in favor of His Messiahship, since as a prophet He was of God.

"Jesus is now before Pilate, who would have been doubtless at his home in Caesarea but that he was anticipating a Messianic insurrection at Jerusalem, as did others, at this time. Religiously, Pilate was not concerned about blasphemy, but, if Jesus was indeed the Jewish Messiah and expected Deliverer, then Roman authority was being challenged, perhaps.

Bearing Cross

"The mock trial follows, humilitation, chastisement, and then the march to Golgotha, up the Via Dolorosa, the Sorrowful Way! Fainting and falling beneath the weight of His own cross, one Simon of Cyrene was put under the fallen cross and bore it up the height. Thereon He was lifted between two thieves, and they mocked: 'He saved others, Himself He cannot save.' Awful paradox! His words are noted: they thought He called Elijah: 'My God, My God! Why hast Theu forsaken Me?' Thus He died, but the Roman centurion said, 'Truly, this Man was the Son of God.' Some reflected upon His words, 'And after three days rise again,' and the women watched that He might have proper burial. These were Mary Magdalene, Mary, the mother of James, the less and Joses and Salome. Joseph of Arimathea begged of Pilate the body of Jesus and buried it in a new-hewn tomb. The women 'beheld where He was laid.' On the Sabbath they went to anoint Him, asking, 'Who shall roll us away the stone?' but the grave was empty and the attending angel said: 'He is risen, He goeth before you into Galilee.!'"

Won't dance with a sneezer

Who would blame a young lady for refusing to dance with a man who had a cold! Why should she risk infection for one so inconsiderate of others, so indifferent to etiquette and to his own condition.

Social, and business reasons too, demand that colds be thrown off quickly. To do that, millions of people take GROVE'S BROMO QUININE at the first warning signal—a sneeze or dry throat, a headache or a stopped-up feeling. Thus they frequently side-step the cold entirely, while fortifying the system against grip and influenza.

Experience beyond compare, and the facilities and resources of the world's largest maker, explain the ever-growing leadership of the original cold and grip tablet. To make sure of getting it, emphasize GROVE'S in asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

Husband Now Must Be Loving Man If He Is to Have Wife's Obedience

Folly of Demanding Obedience From a Wife. Can This Man Say That All Women Are Not to Be Trusted?—Why a Widow Should Please Herself About Marrying Instead of Her Children.

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to a girl who says that she will not obey me after we are married if she does not want to, but that she will be reasonable. I know she loves me and she is a fine, intelligent young woman of 27, who does not have to marry for a meal ticket, as she has a good profession. I love her, but I am not willing to marry her unless she will promise to obey me. It makes me uneasy and afraid. I just can't feel right about marrying her, as she is very positive on the subject and means what she says. Madam, what must I do?

—SAM J.

Answer: Well, Sam, my earnest advice to you is to forget that "obey" stuff. It's archaic and has no place in modern life and you must be a back number to be raising the issue at this late date.

Why, even the churches have cut the word "obey" out of the marriage service, because it was foolish to go on making women perjure themselves by swearing to obey their husbands when they didn't have the slightest idea on earth of doing so. Believe me, it would do you no earthly good to have your wife promise to obey you, because she would make the promise with her tongue in her cheek and the mental reservation that she would do as she darned please, anyway.

So I think your girl is only being honest with you, and when she says that she will give in to you in all reasonable things, she has promised all that you have a right to ask of her, and all that any self-respecting modern woman could do. But here's a secret, Sam. If you are set and determined upon having an obendient wife, the way to get her under your thumb is to be very loving and sweet to her, and then she will care so much for you that she will always be breaking her neck to please you.

You can't tyrannize over a woman and enforce your will upon her with a big stick. You can't make her look up to you as an oracle and humbly do your bidding by assuming any lordly head-of-the-house airs, because no woman is afraid of a man pow; she thinks the domestic autocrat is a joke and snaps her finger at him, but a man can still enslave his wife by love.

But why do you want your wife to obey you, Sam? She is 27, a mature woman with the judgment of a woman. She is intelligent, able to hold down a good job and earn her own living, and she has a fine character. Don't you think a woman of that sort has sense enough and principle enough to be trusted? Don't you think she is capable of forming a fair opinion on any subject, and doing the right thing in any emergency?

Are you such a Solomon, so much cleverer and wiser than she is, with so much more vision and understanding, that you feel that her mind should always be subservent to your own?

It doesn't make for the happiness of a marriage for the wife to be the humble slave of her husband, and obey him. In a happy marriage the husband and wife have equal authority, they consult together as partners over every problem of their joint lives, and each defers and gives in to the wishes of the other.

You needn't be afraid to marry a girl who won't promise to obey you, Sam, but her good angel should warn her to be very much afraid of marrying a man who demands obedience from her.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Perhaps a man shouldn't sit in judgment on women, but I have come to the honest and sincere conclusion that there are two kinds of women in the world—those who stumble off the straight-and-narrow path, and those who do not stumble, and that those who have stumbled once are very likely to do it again and are not to be trusted. More than that, the girl who is lax makes the woman who is not only lacking in morality after marriage, but who will lie and cheat and be unfair in every respect when she has a man where he can't help himself.

Personally, I have come to regard women as a predatory sex. They have no understanding of sportsmanship. They don't care a thing about man's ideals of fair dealing and square shooting. They are mentally incompetent to understand why truthfulness, no matter how much it hurts, never hurts as much as lying. —JAY.

Answer: I think you are right this far, Jay, that most of the women who stumble off the straight-and-narrow path do so because they have some fundamental weakness in their characters. Also that marriage does not cure this weakness, so they are still liable to yield to the old temptations whenever they present themselves.

There are women who are born with rotten streaks in them. They will be immoral as long as they live because nature made them that way. There are silly, vain women who will always be seeking for the admiration of men other than their husbands. There are wild, adventurous women who will always be hunting thrills. There will always be women who will sell themselves for jewels and furs and fine clothes, women who drink and women who take drugs.

Marriage doesn't reform these women. Nothing reforms them, because they have no desire for the fine things and the clean things of life. There is nothing holy in them to which to appeal.

But there are many other girls whose stumble has been the accident of a moment. Sometimes, it is the result of ignorance, sometimes from trusting too much, or loving too much. Once they have fallen among the thorns and had their hearts pierced to the quick, they climb back bruised and maimed to the straight road and ever after walk more carefully because of the lesson they have learned.

As for your scathing indictment of women as the predatory sex, that's too wholesale. There are good women and bad women as there are good men and bad men. The trouble with men is that only too often they voluntarily associate with the lowest type of woman and then judge all women by their experience.

There are plenty of women just as honest, just as truthful, just as fair and square as any man—if only you would take the trouble to hunt them up. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a widow of 53 with two boys and a girl. One of the boys is about to be married and the other boy is 19, and the girl is 15. I am very lonely, as my children are out almost every night with their young friends, but they object very much to a man, who is an old friend of mine, coming to see me. He is a very fine man and wants to marry me and could give me a good home, but my children think I should not marry. What ought I to do?

—WORRIED MOTHER.

Answer: One of your children is about to leave you. The other two will be gone in the course of the next few years. They won't consider it their duty to refrain from marrying in order to stay at home and bear you company. In that they are right, because the young should not sacrifice their lives to the old, but you should consider yourself also. Your children have no more right to blight your life than you have to blight theirs, so don't listen to their objection to the man. Marry him and be happy.

WICHITA POLICEMAN GIVES OUT FACTS

Well Known Local Official Says He Feels Like Different Man Since Taking Orgatone

A. Spencer, residing at 1926 Bass St., Wichita Falls, Texas, one of the best known police officers in this section of Texas, is still another prominent citizen who comes forward with his unqualified indorsement of Orgatone, the medicine that is accomplishing such surprising and gratifying results thorughout the South and West.

Patrolman Spencer not only stands high in this community but his acquaintance and popularity extends over a wide area of territory. While on his beat in Wichita Falls, a few days ago, he called at Allison's Drug Store and in relating his experience with Orgatone said:

"I have never paid much attention to medicine in general. In fact, I had very little faith in any of them, but I had been keeping up with the Orgatone testimonials and I began taking it because a friend of mine told me it was one of the best medicines he had ever tried. I had been drinking this hard water also irregular meals on the night beat which did not seem to agree with my system and I got in a run-down billious condition. Well, I'm mighty glad now I took it, for the results have been fine and there's nothing too good for me to say for Orgatone. I had a tired, draggy feeling for several months, also constipation and suffered with gas on my stomach. My liver was sluggish, too, and I just felt generally run down.

"I just needed a general all-around building up and Orgatone has certainly done that very thing. I have taken only one bottle so far, but I have already improved until I feel almost like a different man. My appetite is fine and I can eat anything I want and what I eat is giving me nourishment and strength. Gas don't bother me at all now and my sleep is sound and restful. My liver trouble is gone. I'm relieved of constipation and feel more active and energetic than I have in months. Orgatone has done me a world of good and I'm glad to recommend it to my friends and the public."

In commenting upon the above statement the Orgatone representative said: "The word of men in public life like the above whose records for honesty and uprightness have won and held for them the highest offices, cannot be doubted, for if there is in any office that demands a man of unpeachable integrity, it is one which Mr. Spencer is now holding, which only adds to the thousands of testimonials constantly received proving that Orgatone is a great tonic to people in a weak, draggy run down condition, that 'tired' feeling disappeared before it and a general rebuilding is declared to result from taking Orgatone. Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita, exclusively by the Allison's Drug Store, 716 Indiana Avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene. All mail orders filled promptly upon receipt.

Doctors Disagree

When children are irritable and peevish, grind their teeth and sleep restlessly, have digestive pains and disturbances, lack of appetite, and have itching eyes, nose and fingers, doctors will not always agree that they are suffering from worms. Many mothers, too, will not believe that their carefully brought up children can have worms. The fact remains that these symptoms will yield, in a great majority of cases, to a few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge, the sure expellant of round and pin worms. If your child has any of these symptoms, try this harmless, old fashioned remedy, which you can get at 35c per bottle from Miller Drug Store. —Adv.

GIRLS! YOU CAN START THIS VERY DAY TO CLEAR UP UGLY "BROKEN OUT" SKIN

Girls! This is especially addressed to you because in this day and age when almost everyone has a clear, beautiful complexion, any girl whose skin is all broken out with ugly pimples, eczema, etc., is under a terrible handicap.

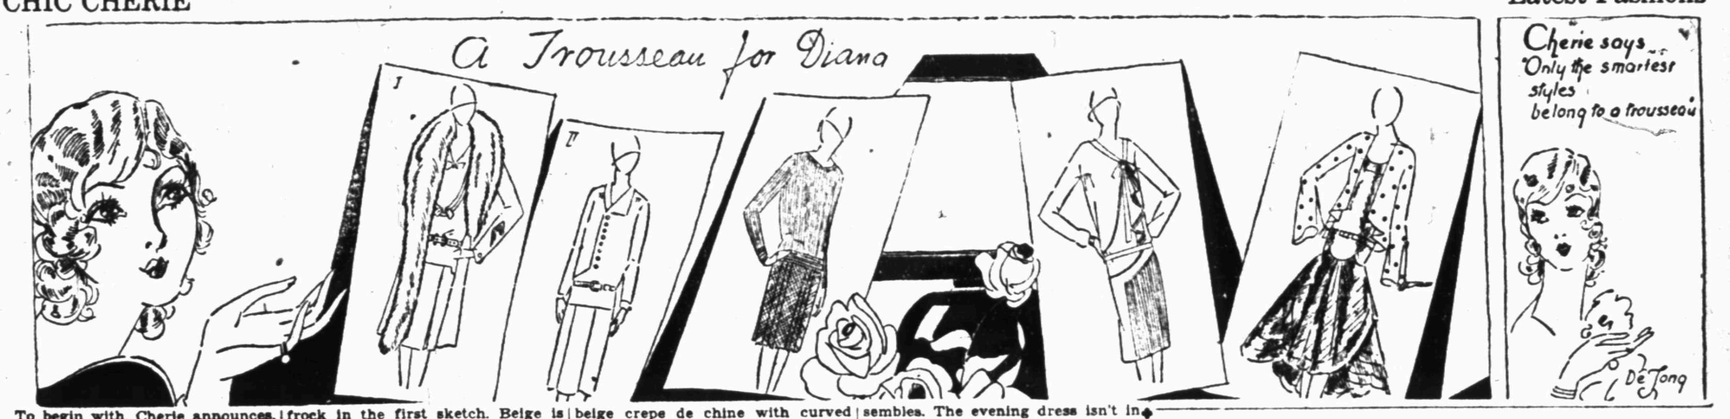

It's a shame your skin is like that—but don't be discouraged and don't fret—while most things you've tried have most likely failed, here's something that will start right away to help you heal your skin swiftly.

It's called Heiskell's Ointment and for years it has been helping thousands of other girls, and men, too, many of them far worse off than you, to completely get rid of all disfiguring skin eruptions.

Any druggist can supply you with Heiskell's Ointment but, girls!—when you ask for the Ointment, get a cake of Heiskell's Medicated Soap, too. Ordinary soaps only too often contain something that irritates the skin and keep it inflamed and so retard results you get from the Ointment. If you use Heiskell's Soap, though, especially medicated to prepare the skin for the Ointment, you'll speed up results wonderfully and that's what you want. This combination treatment of Heiskell's Ointment and Heiskell's Soap will certainly amaze you at the quick results it gives and what a glorious feeling it will be to look in the mirror and see a skin such as you have always longed for—delicate, smooth, flawless—really yours! Don't forget—get both the Ointment and the Soap and for less than a dollar you get a new complexion that can't be priced in terms of money.—Advt.

CHIC CHERIE

Latest Fashions

To begin with, Cherie announces, no one can pick out someone else's trousseau. On the other hand, one can always suggest smart garments that would adorn any trousseau—and here are some she thinks Diana would like. It's exceedingly smart this year to wear a coat and dress of contrasting colors as, for instance, the beige coat and red frock in the first sketch. Beige is a good color this winter. A tailored tan tweed frock (everyone should have one) is shown in the second sketch. A red tuck-in sweater and a natural kashmir skirt make the third costume, carrying out the color scheme. All these dresses can be worn with this coat.

The pleated dress is of very fine beige crepe de chine with curved lines of trimming and the pleated panel set in on a curve, too. This would look very smart with the same coat. Another color scheme would do as well—a black coat, for instance with red frocks and black frocks. The general idea is that it's ever chic to make one's own ensembles. The evening dress isn't in the same color scheme. It's entirely different from the daytime clothes. It's of black tulle with a skirt of petals and a separate little evening jacket embroidered with gold metal threads in a coin dot pattern. Cherie hopes there's anyway half an idea for Diana!

'Anti-Tammany' Demos Will Keep Up Activity

DALLAS, Nov. 12. (INS)—The anti-Tammany Democrats of Texas, recently formed from the anti-Smith Democrats of Texas, will maintain permanent headquarters in the Southland hotel, Dallas, it was announced here today by State Senator Thomas B. Love, one of the leaders of the group.

"It will be our purpose to fight domination of the Democratic party by the liquor interests in both state and national politics," Love explained. "We will oppose the nomination for president of Franklin D Roosevelt and any other wet."

Love said the organization proposes to introduce legislation in the next legislature which will call for the election of the state executive committees of political parties, and the preparation of the platform upon which candidates will run at a convention to be held in the spring preceeding the July primaries in Texas.

"This will automatically assure the overthrow of the present illegally chosen state Democratic executive committee," he said.

Alvin S. Moody, B. D. Sartin and other anti-Smith leaders, are expected back here in about 10 days for further organization details. It is probable that a statewide mass meeting will be held in Austin at a later date.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—"I see that some eminent scientist is now agreeing with me," began the inveterate New Yorker, "about the physical sturdiness, as well as the mental sharpness, of the kids who grow up on the sidewalks of New York. I've held that opinion for many years, and offered proof of my theory, but I didn't have the scientific background to make people listen to me generally."

The old timer leaned back in his chair and surveyed the horizon of Madison square. He lives near the top of a mellow old apartment building in the Gramercy section, and meditates on life, being sufficiently retired from the business world to engage in that occupation.

His remarks were inspired by the finding announced by a prominent medical man that children who are brought up on the streets of New York very often are hardier physical specimens than their little brothers and sisters who are born and reared in the open stretches of the country. The medical man didn't endeavor to explain why, but the inveterate New Yorker did, the subject being a favorite with him.

"The little kids on the sidewalks," he said, "have to develop strong brains and bodies to get along with their mates. The sheltered kids of the country and even the suburbs do not engage in the same competition, nor do they have the same inducements to make themselves hardy and strong, even though they have all the advantages before them.

"The children of the crowded sections of New York go to the little parks or squares in their neighborhoods, and there they make up in intensity what they lack in quantity. If the park is only a square, open space, with a patch of grass that would hardly make a little back yard in the country, it is precious to these kids, and they make the most of it. There may be only one tree in the park, but that is better than a whole forest of them that nobody sees.

"Then our kids have play streets and playgrounds and play devices furnished them by the city for their very own. They are protected in their play and competent instructors in many cases guide them in games and exercises. What has the country child to compare with the carefully planned and well executed system of setting up exercises that the city child gets in his schoolroom or playground? The great city alone can afford to pay competent and qualified instructors, skilled in the profession of body building, to teach its children free of all charge to them.

"Watch the kids in their games in the play streets or playgrounds or in the little parks where they gather after school. They gather in all manner of fierce competitive games, contests that develop strong, nimble bodies and strong, nimble brains. They are forced to compete with their fellows and the child that is under developed will make an effort on his own initiative to develop himself, so he will not be surpassed all around.

"Then, too, the child on the sidewalks of New York never lacks for a playmate. I know several families which have removed to Staten Island or Long Island or out into Westchester or New Jersey to 'give the children the benefit of the air.' And the kiddies have been utterly miserable out there—almost by themselves. They miss their playmates, their 'gang' if you want to call it that and accord to the word a meaning in the better sense. There is much, to my mind, to be said for the kids' gangs—it trains them in leadership, in organization and in purpose. And I don't believe that these little gangsters have anything in mind more direful than playing tag or skipping rope or in the winter making snowmen or snowballs."

A VOW

We all can do the things we try;
There's really nothing to it
Except to say what we will do,
And then go on and do it.

Of course, 'tis bad to say "I can't."
By trying, one can make it.
But worse is to avow: "I will"—
And then forget and break it!

Dignity in the Court Room

IN THE trial of a case here last week one of our district judges was compelled to reprimand and warn those who crowded the court room. "If you came here to find something to laugh about you had better leave. This is not a theatrical performance," the judge is quoted as saying.

Too often there is lack of dignity in the conduct of our courts. People should not attend court to titter and laugh or in any other way so conduct themselves as to influence the jury. And the fault sometimes is not of the spectators alone but of the judge as well who fails to conduct his court with lack of decorum and dignity.

There ought to be more formality and dignity in our state courts. It would lead to better justice and more respect for our courts.

A Broken Leg—Good Luck

SOMETIMES we never know good luck when we see it.

A week or so ago Charles Hitchcock, policeman of the Lake Bluff, Ill., force, broke his leg and had to go to bed. Undoubtedly he bewailed his luck.

A few days later Miss Elfrieda Knaak was found, burned almost to the point of death, in the basement of the Lake Bluff police station. She told a confused story of a "psychic love" for Hitchcock, and said she had burned herself to prove her love.

Now it is obvious that the bewildered detectives, hearing this, must instantly have thought, "Aha! This story is fishy. This guy Hitchcock must have had a hand in things somewhere."

But Hitchcock, for several days, had been flat on his back in bed with a broken leg. By no stretch of the imagination could he be connected with the mysterious burning. That broken leg just naturally saved him from a lot of suspicion and questioning. He didn't know how lucky he was when he broke it.

Mr. Hoover's Good Will Trip

PRESIDENT-ELECT HERBERT HOOVER has announced that he will make a good will trip to Central and South American republics in the interim before he takes office on March 4 next.

Such a trip by our president-elect ought to be productive of good and we can think of no higher honor for the southern republics than that our president-elect pay them a visit as his first move after his election.

We already have a considerable trade in the Caribbean and South Atlantic territory. There lies one of the great future markets of the United States. Mr. Hoover as secretary of the department of commerce ought already to be familiar with these possibilities but by personal contact he can learn much more.

His visit, too, can do much to dispel the suspicion in those countries against the United States. Mr. Hoover can learn their point of view. He can give them something of our point of view. A better understanding ought to result.

Wichita Falls' Zoning Commission

THE city council some time ago appointed a zoning commission to study the needs of the city and to recommend a comprehensive zoning ordinance and city plan.

This committee has organized with W. S. Curlee as general chairman and a number of subcommittees including the following:

Single family, multiple family residences and apartments, race segregation and community business houses and districts.

Retail business, warehouses, light manufacturing and heavy industry.

Highways, thoroughfares, residence streets, subdivisions, sidewalk spaces, street lighting, street signs, street correction, widening, etc., billboards, set back distances, etc.

Railroads, subways, new railroads, yards, union passenger station, street railways, etc.

Drainage and water supply, irrigation, etc.

Public buildings, parks and playgrounds, boulevards, schools and school playgrounds.

The subcommittees are now at work gathering information and making a study of conditions and needs in their respective fields. If they are to be successful in their work they must have the cooperation and the suggestions of all citizens who are interested. And certainly every citizen of Wichita Falls should be interested. The health, safety, welfare, property interests and enjoyment of life of every citizen will be affected by the work of this commission. It will affect the growth and development of the city in the future.

From time to time the commission will make announcements of the progress of its work and will call upon citizens for their advice and cooperation. This is written to emphasize the importance of the committee's work and to start the people of Wichita Falls to looking into its needs so that they can be prepared to cooperate with the commission when called upon to do so.

SOUTH PLAINS TO WELCOME VISITORS

Week after next will see the business interest of Dallas, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Childress, Memphis, and Amarillo in our town. It will no doubt be one of the largest groups of the business interest of the state to ever be in our city. Its strictly a good will trip, and we should make every plan possible to royally entertain them the time they spend with us. —Turkey (Texas) Enterprise.

NOT FORGOTTEN BUT FADED

The world war has not been forgotten. It has faded into the background of the years. The men who died and those who were disabled in the service of our country are honored today, because they gave so much at a time when the need was supreme.

We do not celebrate with the ringing of bells and the blowing of whistles as on that first Armistice day. Rather we go to our churches with a feeling of sadness and a feeling of pride, a spirit of humility and a thankfulness in our hearts that grows with each succeeding year. —Altus (Okla.) Times-Democrat.

VOLSTEAD BEAUTY EXPERT

A prominent surgeon recently told a convention of beauty experts that prohibition was making the men of America handsome. It is difficult for a persistent lusher to retain his manly beauty. The guy who devotes himself to hard liquor will have an inflamed beak and watery eyes—both of which are detrimental to standards of masculine beauty. They say that Volstead did a lot to shine up the faces of the men of America when he put over his well-known act.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

CHARACTERS

GERANE, only daughter of
JONIFER THE HAWK, a robber chieftain who is planning a raid on a rich merchant who is to pass along the King's highway, begs to be allowed to accompany the bandits. Her father commands her to remain at home.

She catches up with the rear guard and proceeds with it.

Julius Broadaxe, one of her father's trusted lieutenants, takes her to him. He is so delighted to know that she is safe that he forgets to punish her.

The COUNTESS KATRANE JABASSY, her husband and a small band of conferedates, all of whom live quietly in Edelweiss. Least of all does any one suspect the relationship between the countess and the bandit chief, who were separated as children, after a political upheaval involving their family. The Countess Katrane, learning that a rich merchant, Leopold Mathias, is to pass through the forest with a fortune in gems that are destined for sale in the capitals of Europe, sends the information to her brother.

Gerane, from a vantage point, sees the humiliation of Starcourt at his defeat by the bandits and the looting of Mathias' treasure boxes.

INSTALLMENT VIII

Gerane, behind a tree some 40 paces from the scene of action, had to believe attended raids in which the robbers of Droon Forest took part. She would never again accept as true a word of those hair-raising yarns that were spun by—and now, to her dismay, they were leading the soldiers to tree and tying them up with the leather thongs!

Her eyes went quickly back to the fair-haired captain. He, too, was walking to a nearby tree. Jonifer Davos was giving directions to two of his men, pointing to the chosen tree.

Gerane caught her breath. She felt the blood rush to her face. Anger, an incomprehensible anger, took possession of her. This was an outrage! An instant later, casting all injunctions to the winds, she strode out of the wood and advanced upon her father.

Jonifer stopped short in the middle of a sentence, stunned by the sight of her. The lower part of her face was concealed by the cloak she held before it.

"No!" she cried, loudly. "You shall not do this! It is outrageous. "How dare you laugh? Would you make a fool of me?"

"No, my baby," cried her father, holding his sides; "you have attended to that yourself."

The young captain stared in bewilderment. Nervy, he thought—nervy of a lad like that to defy—why, the youngster's voice hadn't even lost its boyish treble. And the crown of his hat came no higher than the big ruffian's chin.

"Are you going to tie this man up, or are you going to set him free?" demanded the "lad," fiercely.

"Two questions in one," replied Jonifer, "calling for yes and no as an answer. Now, be off," he added sternly. "Enough of this foolishness. I might have known what would happen, if I allowed you to come along. I should have trussed you to a tree and left you to the wolves."

"As you are proposing to leave these helpless men," she said scathingly. "Why not kill them outright?"

"Peace!" commanded Jonifer. "Begone!" This last was directed to the startled robbers who carried the straps. "Do you hear me?"

"Now, by all—" began Jonifer.

"Have you no honor. Is not this man a brave, courageous foe? Would you tie him up like a—like a pig? For shame! Set him free! He can do no more harm." Turning to the astounded dragoon, she said: "You are free, sir. Go your way in peace. It is my wish. This is my birthday, and I—"

Jonifer, having found his voice, interrupted.

"Get back where you belong!" he thundered.

Starcourt laughed. Addressing Jonifer, he said sarcastically:

"By gad—I mistook you to be the leader of this band of rascals." Then, bowing to the stripling: "Pardon me, young sir, for my mistake. Prudent lad that you are, I do not blame you for taking good care to lead your bold boys from behind a tree. Discretion is—"

"Leader?" roared Jonifer, aghast. "This—this baby our leader? Now, listen to this my lads!" He shouted to the robbers all about. "He takes this pretty lambkin to be your chieftain. Join me in the laugh!"

And laugh he did—loudly—but mirthlessly. Jonifer was not amused. Indeed, his boisterous levity was cut rather short. Gerane drew a step or two nearer.

"How dare you?" she stormed. "Do you not know who I am? Do you not know that you may be sure, is precisely what I should do. Moreover, as he very well knows, we would shoot every one of you, if we had the chance."

"Now, there is common sense for you," said Jonifer, inspired. "I have the greatest respect for the gentleman's opinions, even if you have not, my lambkin. Proceed with your work,' he went on, addressing his henchmen. "Tie him up securely. As for you, my baby, come with me. I would have a word with—"

The voice of Leopold Mathias was heard. He was appealing to Gerane.

"Have pity, young sir. Command your varlets to release me and restore my—er—my belongings. There is nothing of value in—"

Gerane paused to regard the whimpering merchant as she walked toward the road with her father. Jonifer's arm was about her shoulders.

"You go to the deuce," she said, disdainfully.

The business of securing Starcourt and his company to convenient trees was well-night completed with the young captain, who had been watching her as she listened to the low-pitched voice of the tall robber, saw her straighten her shoulders, lift her chin, and, without so much as a glance in his direction, stalk off across the highway and disappear among the trees. Two of the brigands followed her.

"Your son?" inquired the captain, as Jonifer came up.

"No," said the other shortly. Then, with a note of pride in his voice: "My daughter."

"Good heavens," fell from Starcourt's lips.

Five minutes later, there was not a highwayman in sight. They had vanished into the forest, some one way, some another, and with them went not only the treasure of Leopold Mathias, but the sabers and pistols of the vaunted Duke's dragoons. Jonifer magnificently said good bye to the captain of the troop. He paused before Leopold Mathias, bowed deeply, and, with his hand on his heart, mockingly said good bye to him.

With the reader's permission, we will also say good-by to the rich merchant of Edelweiss. Suffice it to say that fully two hours elapsed before he and his martial escort were discovered and released by a couple of woodsmen who happened to be passing that way. He was grateful to these stolid, ignorant fellows and promised them a reward, but neither he nor the captain of dragoons had the faintest suspicion that their deliverers were members of the robber band, sent back by Jonifer the Hawk at the tearful behest of his daughter.

"Disarm them. Bring the throngs. Make haste."

witnessed the thrilling little drama as it was enacted.

At dawn, she, with a dozen stealthy figures, had crept up from the ravine skirting the highway. Her father commanded her to remain behind a monster tree trunk, while the cat-like rogues stole off to posts appointed. She saw the three guards go about among their companions to arouse them; she watched others scramble to their feet and begin preparations for the breakfast. Then came the clatter of pans and subdued voices. Her heart sank. Where were her father's men? Why were they so slow in attacking? It did not occur to her that all of Jonifer's men were not yet ready to spring out upon the unsuspecting prey.

Then she beheld a tall figure, white-shirted and hatless, in loose, red breeches and black boots, striding across the sward. Suddenly he stopped. His hand went to his side, and then, a second later, a ringing voice broke upon the air. As if by magic, the little glen was alive with men, men who wore masks.

From her point of vantage, she witnessed everything that succeeded this amazing tableau. She saw her cousins run to the coach; she had a glimpse of her ponderous Broadaxe behind them; she heard the command from her father—and then she saw him standing in front of the tall figure in the red trousers, his pistol pointed. She saw the officer raise one hand, while the other continued to fumble at his side.

From that time, she scarcely took her gaze from the face of the young dragoon. She heard every word that passed between him and her father; she saw the soldier leap toward the stump and snatch up his pistol; she screamed aloud when her father fired and, but for a sudden faintness, would have thrown herself upon the soldier before he could fire in return. Closing her eyes, she pressed her hand to her breast. Then she heard her father speaking.

At this, she opened her eyes. Once more she was looking at the young officer. A wave of relief surged over her as he lowered the pistol.

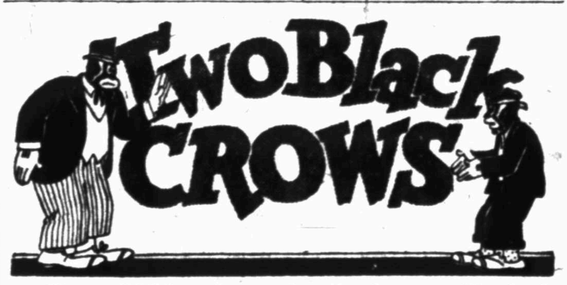

Suddenly she felt a great pity for him. He was so handsome and so helpless. A hero in chains, beaten, but not cowed; a gallant figure that dominated the scene, notwithstanding the humiliating part he was forced to play.

She was proud of her father. He, too, was a gallant gentleman. She shuddered as she thought of the fate that would have befallen this young man, if Julius Broadaxe or any other member of the band had been in her father's place. Broadaxe would not have spared him. He would have shot him down as—But would the soldier have spared Julius Broadaxe? She doubted it.

She found herself marveling at the thoroughness with which her friends performed. Almost before she knew what had happened, their task was completed. A few of the brigands were darting about among the soldiers, relieving them of their weapons, while others were testing leather thongs.

Her first experience as a highwayman, though necessarily vicarious, was drawing to an end. It was, in a way disappointing. It had been so easy, so bloodless, so lacking in all those essential deeds of daring and heroism that she had been led

Two Black Crows

Moran: BIG boy, is you thought about our Thanksgivin' DINNER?

Mack: Oswald, I'm going to eat 365.

Moran: What's 365?

Mack: Hash.

Moran: How come you call it 365?

Mack: I eats it EVERY day in the year.

Moran: Does you like HASH that much?

Mack: I don't like it THAT MUCH—and I don't like it THAT OFTEN.

Moran: Well, big boy, I'm goin' to get me a TURKEY.

Mack: Is you goin' to WORK for it?

Moran: ME WORK? I'm a WHITE COLLAR man.

Mack: What's that?

Moran: A white collar man is a man what doesn't work. What's you laffin' at?

Mack: It's the first time I ever saw a WHITE COLLAR man WITHOUT a shirt.

(The only way the Two Black Crows are closer to their Thanksgiving Turkey is on the calendar. When Ferdinand calls himself a white collar man he probably wishes the white collar was on a glass of beer. Big Boy is welcome in the best society. But he has to go around to the back door. Ferdinand is still waiting for Secretary Mellon to make that appropriation for the turkey.)

HERMIT JAILED AS MURDERER

83-Year-Old Recluse Claims Robbery Attempt

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (INS)—Charged with murder at 83 years of age, Augustus Peter Delapierre, hermit, sat in his prison cell today humming one of Kipling's Indian ballads.

Augustus is used to being alone. For 10 years he has lived a mysterious recluse in his Brooklyn attic. He spoke only when spoken to by his neighbors. For the most part, he spent the days creaking in his rocking chair dreaming of an adventuruous past.

Was Seaman Once

"The grand old man of Fulton street," as they called him, had served 12 years in the British navy when a seaman was a seaman. He had also seen a life time of action in more countries than you could name, as corporal in the British army.

There has also been romance in Augustus' life. He has had three wives. They are all dead now, he said.

Every day the white-haired, gentle Augustus would go to his window and call the children of the neighborhood. They came running. He would then toss them coins and smilingly watch them scramble. It was his only diversion.

It was common gossip in the neighborhood that Augustus was very wealthy. A nice, rich old miser.

Body Found in Room

They found the body of an unidentified man in Augustus' room. The victim was sprawled across the couch. His head was battered in. Augustus said the man tried to rob him.

"I was sitting alone in my room when I heard a knock on the door," Augustus said today. "A man came in and said 'stick 'em up.' His hand was in his pocket as if he had a gun. I backed into my bedroom where my money was. I am an old man and have few friends.

"I saw my hammer lying on a chair. I grew mad and grabbing the hammer hit the man with all my might. I am still strong. I struck him again and again.

"When I realized what I had done I was stupefied. All night long I sat over the body. I prayed for myself and him."

The police found him that way—praying.

Export Trade Sets Mark In Third Quarter

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. (US)—The export trade of the United States in the third quarter of 1928 reached the highest value for any third quarter since 1920, except in the year 1926, primarily as a result of the continued expansion in sales of finished manufactures—particularly automobiles, gasoline and machinery, the commerce department announced today.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

Methods of Cooking Meat

The varieties of cookery include boiling, roasting, broiling, braising, steaming, baking, stewing and frying.

When preparing meat by boiling, it is advisable that the water never be allowed to remain boiling. The temperature should be just sufficient to change the coloring matter of the blood, soften the fibre, and dissolve the connective tissues, which can be accomplished by water far below the boiling point. Keeping meat in water that is actually boiling over coagulates the proteins, dissolves the mineral matter and lowers the food value of the meat. This is true of any protein, and can easily be demonstrated with the hardboiled egg, which is much harder to digest than one which is cooked below the boiling point. In the former the albumen is tough and indigestible, and in the latter form, which has been given the term "coddled," the white is soft and creamy and even more easily digested than when raw. The effect of over-boiling meat is not as apparent as in the case of the egg, but the results are the same.

In boiling meat it is advisable to first coagulate the exterior by plunging the meat into rapidly boiling and unsalted water for about five minutes. This encloses the meat in a waterproof case of coagulated albumen and prevents the escape of the meat juices from the interior of the cut. The fire should then be turned down so that a temperature of about 180 degrees fahrenheit is maintained for about 20 minutes for each pound of meat. If this is performed carefully the meat will be tender and easily digested; whereas if the boiling point is too long continued, the meat will be tough and stringy. This is the most frequent error made in boiling meat by incompetent cooks.

It must be remembered that once the boiling point has been reached the temperature of the water cannot be increased, however hot the fire, unless the water is under considerable steam pressure; and it must be remembered that the temperature in the interior of any solid object, such as a large piece of meat, or a large potato, will not be as great as the surrounding water. Once water has reached the boiling point, it is possible to turn down the fire and in this way save much fuel.

If, instead of desiring the value of the meat to remain in the cut itself and one desires these to penetrate into the water to form a meat broth, it is advisable not to permit the water to boil in the beginning, but to remain at a temperature of about 160 degrees fahrenheit, not quite hot enough for the water to coagulate the albumen. In this manner the water will be rich in the nutritive qualities of the meat.

By boiling meat for several hours the coagulated albumen becomes dissolved into gelatin, after which it can become the medium for a number of flavors of herbs and vegetables.

Salt should not be added to the water of boiling fish or meat as it will render the albumen hard. After the cooking has been completed the salt may be added to suit the taste.

Stewing meat differs from boiling in that it permits the juices to pass into the water, and since the juices are eaten with the meat, none of the nutrition is lost. The best temperature for stewing meat ranges from 140 to 170 degrees Fahrenheit. The secret of success is to avoid too high a temperature. It is best to allow the pan to simmer only instead of boil. Very little water should be used in stewing, and the saucepan should be closely covered.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tattoo Marks

Question—G. A. asks: "Can you advise me if there is anything that will remove tattoo marks from the skin? There are just two small tel letters."

Answer—Tattoo marks can be removed by a beauty specialist or by the tattoo artist himself, but there is usually a small amount of scarring left.

Bread and Anemia

Question—Ella B. writes: "I am very anemic and somewhat overweight and have an exceptionally good appetite, which is almost impossible to satisfy. If I miss a meal I become faint and dizzy. I am sure that my system requires white bread. Do you think that under the circumstances white bread is injurious? I have tried different kinds of coarse breads and muffins, but nothing seems to take its place."

Answer—If you are anemic and overweight you should avoid all bread until your weight and blood count has reached normal. The best means of improving these conditions is to use an orange juice fast for a time. If you will send me your name and address on a large, stamped envelope I will be glad to send you instructions.

Acid Stomach

Question—Mrs. A. W. M. asks: "What is the cause of an acid stomach and how can a person tell when they have an acid stomach? What are some foods that a person should eat for this condition?"

Answer—"I believe that the average person who is not well suffers from overacidity of the stomach. The cure lies in following correct food combinations, cutting down on the amount of food eaten, and avoiding an excess amount of sugar and starches. The most reliable test is made with a test meal, after which a stomach pump is used and the contents of the stomach emptied. The physician making this test can determine whether or not there is an excess of acidity.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By JOHNNY FARRELL

The gentleman pictured herewith gets his name in the papers every day because he can sock a little white ball around over acres and acres of grassy ground with fewer hits than other people. Farrell may be a champion golfer, but just the same he doesn't get as much exercise out of the game as most of us.

Johnny Farrell

"This story happened on the links of the Chevy Chase club at Washington," Farrell said, "when a certain western congressman was making the rounds one morning. He went out early when there would be no one to witness his lack of skill.

"A caddy followed him to the tee and offered his services for 50 cents.

"'I'll go it alone!' replied the congressman, as he made a tremendous swipe at the ball, missing it by a foot.

"'Tell you what I'll do,' said the caddy, 'I'll go the round with you for a quarter.'

"Again the amateur declined and swung at the ball a second time, with the same result. Then he gritted his teeth and made three more wild swings, whereupon the caddy retreated a bit and called out:

"'Say, mister, won't you let me go the round with you for nothing? I'd like to go for the fun of it.'"

Quanah Sheriff Makes Booze Haul; Boy Flees

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Nov. 12.—Sheriff Lanier captured 31 half-gallon jars of whisky from a cache on Groesbeck creek, where it was being guarded by a 15-year-old youth, armed with a pistol. The youth, too surprised to use his gun, was taken by the sheriff, handcuffed, and placed in charge of a farmer near the cache, while the sheriff was to watch the cache for return of the owners. The handcuffed man escaped from his guard, and after being pursued a considerable distance by the farmer, was lost among the trees, and before help could be secured had made a successful get-away.

AMARILLO SANDSTORM BURIES VERNON UNDER 55 TO 6 SCORE

SANDIES NEAR DISTRICT TITLE

Lions Overwhelmed By Attack of Mighty Team

Special to The Record News

AMARILLO, Texas, Nov. 12.—Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm virtually cinched the district 1 high school grid title here this afternoon by trampling the Vernon Lions, 55 to 6.

A record gridiron crowd for this city, 10,000, turned out to witness the contest which was crucial, so far as the district race was concerned. The Sandies have two more games to play but after today's impressive victory they should walk through these foes.

These 10,000 fans turned out to see some of their stars further make their mark as claimants to all-state honors.

Walker Leads Attack

Bob Walker, triple-threater deluxe, smashed, crashed and tore through the Lion line time after time, snagged passes from the air, tossed them, punted and did more than his share on the defense. Walker in the third quarter ripped through the Vernon team and tore down the field for 64 yards and a touchdown. Time and again he would reel off gains of 15 and 20 yards and never failed to gain on scrimmage play, but once.

Ward Hudgens, another halfback, made some sensational end runs and Albert Lockhart, giant Sandstorm fullback, played an excellent game at backing up the line on defensive plays and carrying the ball, running interference and catching passes on the offense. Lockhart also punted on the line.

Frank Redder, center, Jim Clayton and Clem Speer, tackles, and the two ends, Nunn and Larsen, played excellent games as did Nicklaus at the guard post. It was the entire Sandstorm team that starred. Nolan, sub guard, played a jam up game until he was removed because of injuries.

The Sandies led at the half 27 to 0. They ripped off gains almost at will and presented a dazzling pass attack, which stamps them as one of the best passing teams in the state. They attempted 21 passes and completed 10. Two were intercepted by Vernon. Their passes were completed for a total of 134 yards. Vernon attempted 26 passes and completed only one. The completed pass netted their only touchdown.

Lions Score in Third

The lone Vernon touchdown came in the third period. Coffee of the Lions recovered an Amarillo fumble on Amarillo's 40-yard line and raced 25 yards before he was tackled by Nicklaus. Stevens pulled an old play of hiding out for a pass and gathered Cox's toss in his arms over the goal line. It's these old tricks that work the best some times.

The Sandies presented more dash and resistance today than they have at any time this season.

Cox, Vernon's candidate for all-district fullback, was outplayed as Lockhart, but his defensive play must not be overlooked. The Vernon captain was in practically every tackle throughout the game. His passing wing wouldn't work and the line breaker couldn't do anything through the Sandstorm wall.

SCHEDULE CHANGED

And for Such a Reason! Team Faces Trial For Pranks

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 12. (AP)—Football schedules have been changed for many reasons, but a new one has been found by Highland Park high school.

Its game with Seamen high school for the Shawnee county championship has been advanced a day because the Highland Park team is out on bond and must be in court on Friday to answer charges in connection with Halloween pranks.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THE MIRACLE MAN of football is Mr. Knute Rockne, the Danish master mind of the Irish football team. Other coaches turn out good teams consistently, like Bill Roper at Princeton, Biff Jones at Army, Glenn Warner at Stanford, Roy Morrison at S. M. U., and others. Other coaches arise to eminence with brilliant teams, only to sink to obscurity, like Uncle Charley Moran of Centre of a few years ago. But Knoot turns out great football teams every year.

◇ ◇ ◇

Rockne met his hardest test this season. He has had football teams of far more brilliance than this campaign. The Notre Dame elevens of the days of the "Four Horsemen" and "Seven Mules" rate as among the foremost grid machines of history. It was unbeaten and unbeatable. But this year, although the Irish rank high, they are not great. But they succeeded in beating a great football team, which makes them and their coach entitled to all the plaudits that can be bestowed on men who fight so gallantly and successfully against odds. Beaten by Wisconsin and Georgia Tech earlier in the season, Rockne's Notre Dame team rallied to conquer the hitherto unbeaten Army, which had overcome such formidable opposition as S. M. U., Harvard and Yale in convincing fashion.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE VICTORY of Notre Dame last week preserved several Irish records. Never have they lost two games in consecutive seasons to the Army. And not yet since Knute Rockne became coach, has a Notre Dame team lost three games in a single season. In the 12 years that he has been head coach at Notre Dame, Rockne's teams have compiled the amazing record of winning 96 games, lost only 11 and tied three. No team can show a record to equal or even approach that one. And lustre is added to that glittering record in the fact that Notre Dame each season plays the strongest elevens of all sections and travels thousands of miles for its games. Notre Dame has three all-victorious teams which did not lose a game—in 1919, 1920 and 1924.

ONE OF THE FACTORS of Notre Dame success is Rockne's amazing system. Those Irish football teams which hurl and catch footballs and play with such machinelike precision don't just grow that way. Football is the sport at Notre Dame. They play basket ball and baseball and have track teams there, too. But other sports are subordinated for football. This isn't because they want a winning team so much as that the students think only of football. I was in South Bend one day a few years ago to cover a Notre Dame game for the Chicago newspaper by which I was employed at that time. I arrived there the day before the game. Going to the athletic field early that afternoon I was startled by the sound of the plunk! of footballs and the calling of signals all over the field. There were class teams, club teams, kid teams and almost infant teams, practicing. They start playing football at Notre Dame when they are hardly out of the kindergarten and Rockne, they say, knows the gridiron possibilities of every student in the school.

TRIS SPEAKER goes to the minors. It is almost unbelievable, that the old grey eagle, who ranks as an immortal of baildom, as one of the greatest outfielders of all time, will wear the uniform next season of a minor league club. Speaker is to manage the Newark team of the International league, succeeding Walter Johnson, who goes back to Washington as skipper of the Senators. The passing of Speaker from the big leagues was indicated last week when waivers were asked on him, Ty Cobb and Joe Bush by the Athletics. But the big league box scores won't seem the same with the names of Speaker and Cobb missing.

Speaker will manage the Newark club for a big salary, said to be $20,000. He should be a great success, what with Paul Block's generous pocketbook ready to aid him. Speaker, in fact, was a successful big league manager. He piloted the Cleveland Indians to one league and world championship, and in his last season as boss of the Tribe, in 1926, led his charges to third place. Speaker probably will have a winner at Newark, and why he was not signed to manage one of the various major league clubs that were hunting a leader this winter is a puzzle. He showed in several years at Cleveland that he is a capable manager. In fact, with the material at hand, he accomplished wonders in the Forest City.

WALTER JOHNSON faces a hard task at Washington and there are many who see failure in store for him. Johnson did not do well at Newark last year. Though he had a high priced array of talent, players just leaving the big leagues, his team finished far down in the race. Many critics believe Johnson does not possess the managerial temperament—that he is too prone to be easy-going with his players. But perhaps Walter learned last season, he will apply the lash when needed. It is hoped he will be successful at Washington. No greater nor more popular player ever wore the spangles than Walter Johnson.

Bare Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The election is practically over although there is still some voting going on in the Arkansas hills.

Only a few states managed to keep out of the Republican vacuum system.

The result of the election is not amazing to students who know how to steer a pencil around an efficiency chart.

The fact that Florida went Republican does not startle economists whose thought transactions and cranial digestions do not involve the possibility of a bone bruise.

That Massachusetts went Democratic was apparent months ago to the boys who had their seventube ears to the ground.

The cracking of the solid South was about due when the campaign treasurers ran out of golden glue.

The West has always been the granary of G. O. P. votes. We concede the result, congratulate the winner and do not even demand a recount.

There is only one thing that requires an explanation and a refund.

How did Alabama change its mind about Underwood?

What power caused those historic 24 votes for Oscar to be switched to another person?

If the political chauffeurs of the nation can explain that, we will all be happy.

The broadcasted pulsations for Underwood started at Madison Square garden in 1924 and are still throbing in the low-waved atmosphere. For three entire weeks, Alabama was for Underwood. The politicians knew it, the world knew it and little children knew it. But could do nothing about it.

Alabama was for Underwood during that convention, after that convention, and forever and an election day.

That was four years ago. We never received notice that Alabama had changed its mind.

We imagined feebly that Alabama was not one of those fickle sovereign states that changed its mind every century or so.

But, now, when Alabama forgets its 24 votes for Oscar and bolts its radio program, we are forced to admit that nothing in this land is solid and stationary but hitching posts. And they are out of date.

OLNEY DEFEATS ARCHER CITY IN SENSATIONAL GAME, 19-7

CUBS VICTORS IN 4TH PERIOD

Score 2 Touchdowns After Trailing, 7 to 6

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Nov. 12.—A powerful Olney prep football eleven rolled back a fighting but outplayed Archer City team today in one of the most memorable grid engagements in the long rivalry of the institutions. Flashing a resourceful offense and stalwart defense that would not be denied, the Olney Cubs won in the last quarter of a brilliant and gruelling Armistice day encounter that carried with it the undisputed championship of the southern half of class B district No. 3 in the state scholastic league.

The score was 19 to 6, and it left Olney as the sole unbeaten team in its half of district 3, and with the right to meet Megargel, winners of the district title in the northern end.

Rankin Goode, a diminutive quarterback who wasn't a regular player until an injury to the occupant of the position brought him into the game, was the lad who usurped the greatest share of the limelight today. It was due to the uncanny forward passing of this young Goode that frequent and decisive gains were registered by Olney; his running back of punts was excellent and his generalship left nothing to be desired.

Olney Scores First

Olney scored in the second quarter on the first play, after advancing to striking distance in the first period. Olney had the ball in enemy territory most of the first quarter, but a fumble by Cosby on the Archer City 20-yard line was recovered by Powell of the home team and this same lad punted out of danger soon thereafter. Goode tossed a lateral pass to Roberts and then Goode, B. Gilmore and Roberts turned out another triple pass to take the ball to the Archer City 30-yard stripe. Cosby, who deeply regretted his fumble, proceeded to make amends for that error. Roberts added seven yards and then the exuberant Cosby smacked off-tackle for eight more and the ball was on the Archer City 3-yard line, third down, when the quarter ended.

Roberts lugged the oval over for the touchdown on the first play when hostilities were resumed but O'Brien's kick for the point was blocked.

Well, there you were, and what was Archer City to do about it? The Orange team soon showed it would do plenty. Give those boys a big hand for the fight they showed. They came back in this period to take the lead. In the middle of the quarter, after Roberts had run 30 yards but was called back for a penalty, the indefatigable Goode tossed the ball to C. Gilmore for a 25-yard gain. Cosby fumbled as he was tackled on the Olney 40-yard line. Powell, the Archer City quarterback, who was a fitting rival to the other signal caller, scooped up the oval. He didn't fall on it. He grabbed it and was off for the goal, the pack of Cubs in full cry. Dodging, outrunning and shaking off the Cubs, Powell, who played with a brace on an injured knee, fell over the goal line for a touchdown and then kicked the goal to put Archer City in the lead, 7 to 6.

Olney Wins in Final

The third quarter was played in Archer City territory, but the stiffened defense of the home lads and some breaks prevented Olney from scoring. Good hurled a flock of passes in this period. Late in the quarter, Wright of Archer City intercepted a pass in midfield. With a foot or so to go for fourth down, Archer City elected to try for it instead of playing safe. That was the break of the game, and it seems that Archer City, leading the score, should certainly have punted at this juncture to get the ball deep into Olney territory. Instead, their try for the fourth down failed and Olney took the ball in midfield.

Goode started his dazzling passing again, with Cosby and Roberts reeling off some consistent gains. A lateral pass, Goode to C. Gilmore, started the latter on an 8-yard run for the second touchdown. Again O'Brien's kick was blocked for the point.

Shortly after the kickoff Greer, another of the fast-running, hard-hitting Olney backs, snatched an enemy pass and sped 45 yards for a touchdown. A pass, O. Ellis to Gilmore, was completed for the point.

Both teams fought strenuously, but cleanly, and there was honor to victor and vanquished alike. You could name every lad who played as a star at one time or other for some distinguished feat. Powell, gallant kid that he is, had to retire in the second quarter and came back in the second half to play, limping badly from that bad knee. And there was Robertson, an Archer City end, who ran 20 yards after taking a 15-yard toss from Goode in the third period. And Captain Hudson, the other end, who was in every play on the defense. Lewis and Halgood were excellent ground-gainers.

As for Olney, they had such a profusion of splendid backs and big, aggressive linemen that no wonder they won. Every back was a consistent oval-lugger and the lineman and those Gilmores on the flanks showed themselves finished and superb football players.

Figures show that Olney decisively outplayed Archer City. Olney made 19 first downs to five by Archer City and the victors gained 346 yards from scrimmage to 40 by the losers. Olney completed nine out of 15 passes for 125 yards, while Archer City completed four tosses out of 16 tries for 79 yards. Olney suffered heavily in penalties, being assessed 80 yards to 15 for Archer City. Lineups:

Famous Golf Shots of 1928

Johnny Shows Bobby How

By ALAN J. GOULD

Johnny Farrell's winning gesture in the 1928 national open championship at Olympia fields was his uphill eight-foot putt on the home green, but it would never have been possible except for the wonderful recovery shot preceding it.

Leaving the 36th and final tee in his memorable playoff for the title with Bobby Jones, Farrell was fighting to keep his one stroke margin on the great Georgian. Johnny's drive had sliced into rough at the base of a bunker. Bobby's was hooked into trees at the left of the fairway on this tricky, 490-yard hole.

It looked like taps for Farrell when he walloped his second into the near edge of a ditch crossing the fairway about 100 yards from the well-guarded green. Jones, with a mighty poke, sent his second about hole high, a trifle to the left of the green. He was within easy distance of the pin, however, for a birdie four that looked good enough to win.

Farrell's ball was in thick grass. It looked as though he would be lucky to get out of it, let alone reach the green, but Johnny swung the niblick that had been doing him such good service all day and to the big crowd's amazement sent his ball on a dead line for the cup when it stopped eight feet short. This marvelous recovery enabled the slim New York "pro" to halve the hole in sensational fashion, both getting their birdie fours, and win by the single stroke margin he had gained on the 34th.

Navy Seeks 1929 Clash With Army

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 12. (UP) The Army has been offered a date on the Navy's football schedule for next year, Commander Jonas H. Ingram, navy athletic director announced today.

"November 30 is being held open for the Cadets and it is up to them to accept or reject the date," he said. "I am hopeful the game will be played."

Ohio State and Georgetown will meet the Midshipmen next season. The Buckeyes eleven will replace Michigan with a home and home agreement, the first game to be played at Columbus, on Nov. 16, of next year.

Notre Dame, Princeton and Pennsylvania will be met away from home. Georgetown will play the season's only big game at Annapolis.

Ingram said he had received several offers to play on the West Coast but was forced to turn them down because of the inroads the travel would make on classroom work.

Eating Championship Is Claimed For Tom Thorp, Football Expert

Right to Title of Babe Ruth, Wilbert Robinson, Irvin Cobb and Others Disputed for Grid Official

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Mr. W. Simpkins Farnsworth, the able young sporting editor of the New York Evening Journal, is quite beside himself with indignation over my recent list of the greatest all-time eaters.

Mr. Farnsworth is agitated because I failed to include in this list the name of Mr. Tom Thorp, the noted racing and football expert, and once a mighty man on Columbia's gridiron.

Mr. Farnsworth contends that Mr. Thorp should be rated as an eater with my very topnotchers, George Herman Babe Ruth, the baseball player, and Napoleon Jack Dorval, the heavyweight fighter.

"In fact," Mr. Farnsworth writes, "while I have never heard either Mr. Ruth and Mr. Dorval eat, I am sure of Tom Thorp's prowess that I am willing to back him with my own personal fortune up to $22.50 in an eating contest against Ruth and Dorval under knife-and-fork rules, or go-as-you-please.

"As for the other eaters on your list, such as Irve Cobb, the author, and your uncle Wilbert Robinson, the baseball president, I will gladly match my man Thorp against any of them, and let them begin at the entrees while my man starts from scratch, or the hor d' ouvres. Cobb and Robinson are old fashioned eaters who like to gossip between courses. They wouldn't have a chance against Thorp, who is right now in his eating prime."

Thorp's Record

Then Mr. Farnsworth goes on to cite some of Tom Thorp's record as an eater.

"He always showed great promise even as a young fellow," says Mr. Farnswarth, "getting his early training at Hitchcock's and Dolan's on beef and beans, which gave him strength and endurance.

"As he grew older, and more experienced, his prowess increased. He developed an amazing boarding house reach, and learned to wear suspenders and loose waist bands so as not to restrict his stomach.

"As he stands at this time, Tom Thorp is a finished eater, and handled by Mr. Joe Bannon, Mr. Reno Jack McCaffery and myself, I doubt if any living man can keep within a sirloin steak of him in a long drive.

"One day last fall, with little or no training other than a breakfast, a lunch, and a light mid-afternoon snack, Tom Thorp ate an 18-pound turkey, well stuffed, to win a $500 wager from Tom Shaw, the bookmaker. He disposed of this turkey in the twinkling of a tooth, and thereupon Mr. Shaw was guilty of an unsportsmanlike action.

"He advanced the claim that Thorp had won the wager by eating the turkey, and paid over the $500, but he didn't want to settle for a full dinner for Tom, who insisted that he was entitled to everything that goes with a turkey.

Tom Qualifies

"After a long argument, during which Tom's appetite grew very keen, Mr. Shaw finally admitted the justice of the claim, so Thorp was permitted two helpings of mashed potatoes, four of turnips, a few dishes of cranberry sauce, an entire pumpkin pie, three plates of ice cream, and a gallon of coffee.

"I think, Mr. Runyon, that you do Tom Thorp a grave injustice by not placing him well up on your list. If you doubt the truth of my claims for him I will gladly have him drop into your office any day that you can provide a roast calf, medium well done, and let him eat an exhibition for you.

"By the way, not because I am afraid of the result, but because my man draws the color line, we bar George Godfrey, the black shadow of Lieperville. I hear he is but a third rate eater at best, and can only show well against chittlins, pork chops and chicken. Tom Thorp doesn't consider truck like that as eating."

Oddly enough, the same mail that brought me Mr. Farnsworth's letter, produced a lengthy statement from the Hon. Jeems Dougherty, the Baron of Leiperville, manager of George Godfrey.

Dorval Wins Hot Dog Title

I placed Godfrey rather far down in the list, and the Baron deems this an injustice to George. However, I was rating the shadow on a showing he made in a cross-country eating contest against Napoleon Jack Dorval. The big Pennsylvanian. Godfrey and Dorval motored from Los Angeles, Calif., to Hot Springs, Ark., last spring, eating as they went, and I am reliably informed that at the finish Dorval had Godfrey out-et by a score of 11,564 hot dogs to 10,317.

They bought their supplies at those hot dog stands along the highways as they traveled, but the Baron claims that Dorval was guilty of sharp practice.

"They were only supposed to eat at certain set intervals," he declares, "but Dorval kept eating surreptitiously between these intervals and as a result he would always be warmed up when the real eating started, while George would start practically cold, so to speak. I don't consider it a fair test.

"Godfrey is a slow beginner," the Baron urges. "Sometimes it takes him an hour of leisurely eating to get down to real work, and he sometimes looks bad during the early courses. I am willing to admit that Dorval is a superior eater, perhaps a great champion, but not until he defeats Godfrey in a return match."

Iowa Faces Tough Fight With Badgers Saturday

CHICAGO, Nov. 12. (UP)—Iowa, only undefeated and untied eleven in the Big Ten conference, faces a stubborn barrier to the title next Saturday, when they meet the Wisconsin Badgers at Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes will have the advantage of playing on their home gridiron but Wisconsin, with only a tie to mar their record this season, gave a display of their power last Saturday in downing the Chicago Maroons, 25 to 0.

If successful against Wisconsin, Iowa then will have only Michigan to sweep aside to win the championship.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (AP)—Rather a sharp early advance on covering together with trade and commission house buying promoted by private reports of a substantial increase in the consumption of cotton in this country for October as compared with September, was followed by partial reactions in the cotton market here today under realizing. After selling up to 19.56, January declined to 19.43 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net advances of 9 to 15 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 11 to 17 points on covering by sellers of late last week and a moderate trade demand which was accompanied by some commission house buying. Sentiment seemed to be influenced by reports that a trade authority estimated the consumption of lint cotton in this country for October at 615,000 bales compared with 492,221 reported by the census bureau for September. There were reports that another authority had estimated the consumption at 550,000 to 570,000 bales, but the larger figures seemed to make a considerable impression on the market and prices soon sold up to 19.60 for December and 19.44 for May or 23 to 27 points net higher. The demand slackened at these figures which encountered some southern selling together with realizing and the market eased off later in the day under a comparatively small volume of offerings. December sold back to nearly the opening quotation, while May reacted to 19.31, making declines of 10 to 15 points from the high level of the morning, and last prices were at about the lowest except on December which appeared to be sustained by trade buying to fix prices on call cotton.

Radio Skyrockets to New High As Stock Sales Set All Time Record

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (US)—Radio was skyrocketed over 25 points to a new high record in the most active session ever experienced on the stock exchange today. Trading steadily increased as orders swamped the brokers so that volume reached 5,769,550 shares and it was an hour and a half after the close before the ticker finished recording transactions.

Easing in money from 6½ to 6 per cent enhanced speculative enthusiasm so that the outstanding advances of comparatively few shares overshadowed the important profit taking that kept Steel, General Motors and other stocks to narrow price range.

American Smelting held lead of the coppers with gain of 6 points. Atchison featured a continually strong railroad department with advances of 4⅞ while Richfield with jump of 4¾ and Mexican Seaboard with gain of 9⅝ stood out in an otherwise rather quiet oil list. Montgomery Ward lost 14 points on comparatively light offerings, but other declines were confined to a point or so. Chrysler was best bought of the motors, gaining over 7 points.

Raskob's Slogan

"Fifteen times earnings," is the forecast of John J. Raskob now recalled by the street in connection with the split up shares. Instead of being based on past earnings, however, the slogan is used in connection with the income expected for next year. The bulls are predicting at least $7 a share for motors in 1928. That would mean there was some reason for recent buying that has offset the huge profit taking. If the earnings next year were up to expectations the corporation would be warranted in paying at least $2 a share extra on the 43,000,000 shares of stock it will have outstanding, or $5 a share in full. Old timers look on a 5 per cent probable return on a stock like General Motors with trepidation and wonder but the Durantities and other bulls talk nothing but good times ahead.

Mexican Seaboard has appreciated in value over $40 a share since the character of buying influenced by unexpected favorable developments in California were first told of here several weeks ago. Those interested now estimate that the new well brought in there will flow at least 10,000 barrels daily when released altogether. Sinclair and Pan American continued to be absorbed as those familiar with the affairs of the corporation firmly believe that merger plans will be consummated within the next three months. In this connection it is pointed out that the "Big Ten" have a position in Texas corporation as well as in Sinclair and Marland.

Montgomery Ward Surprise

Sensational advance in Montgomery Ward has surprised even the most optimistic bulls. There is no short interest of consequence, it is claimed, and its technical strength is due entirely to the amount of stocks taken out of the market. The same condition is true in Radio except that the price appreciation has not surprised those who know of the affairs of the corporation. They claim that gross this year will run over $40,000,000 and mean net income of near $12 a share on the stock with the current quarter breaking all records. General Electric continued to be steadily taken by those who are familiar with plans of the most powerful utility interests as to mergers and acquisition of additional properties.

Money at 6 per cent caused some interesting views as to the banking situation and the banking powers. Those long of stocks or unloading manipulative pool pets, of course, spoke different than the sold out bulls. There are no bears any more. The main question asked was if warnings were necessary nine months ago why are the money reins loosened when speculative orgy such as never before witnessed is threatened? The public is piling into the market but every buyer finds a seller and those selling most are the ones who have held stocks for two years or more. Many of the big sellers are shifting to utilities, oils and rails but even in making such changes of holdings they are not bidding prices up.

AMERICAN CYANAMID COMPANY

The American Cyanamid company make cyanamid, a nitrogenous fertilizer material, the nitrogen for which is derived from the atmosphere and also produces heavy chemicals and mines phosphate rock. MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 12. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Cattle receipts around the 11-market circuit of 108,100 showed a 30,000 increase over a week ago but were 17,000 less than the same day last year. Packers were again bearish on the in-between grades of fed steers and at some points enforced further declines; highly finished and low priced steers were comparatively scarce at unchanged prices; stock and feeder classes were offered in fairly large numbers but country demand was sufficient to maintain firm values at most centers; yearling stockers continued to demand an appreciable premium over comparable grades of two year olds and feeders. Chicago had a top of 18.00 on choice grain fed yearling steers.

Increased supplies prompted a 15@25c decline in the hog market; the packers at most points on the close enforcing the full loss of 25c; the day's extreme top of $9.40 was paid at St. Louis for one load of 200 pound averages; total offerings were around 127,800 against 97,107 last Monday and 125,721 a year ago.

Fat lambs received a price setback of 25@50c, while aged stock held steady; choice native lambs at Chicago and St. Louis stopped at $14.00; the supply approximated 113,200, an increase of 24,800 over a week ago and 32,00 more than a year ago.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 12. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 1,000; few sales to small killers, 15c to 25c lower; top $9.10.

WINKLER WELL PRIZE OF WEEK

Southern May Have West Texas Record

Special to The Record News

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Nov. 12.—The Hendrick pool in Winkler county has registered another tremendous oil well, its second largest, if not the equal of Cranfill & Reynolds' No. 1-C Hendrick, in Southern Crude Oil Purchasing company's No. T-88-D-1 Hendrick. It rated 1,550 barrels hourly, even with much of the oil lost, late last week, and was considered good for 50,000 barrels a day. After a 10-hour flow, partly open, it was pinched for storage.

No. T-88-D-1 Hendrick topped the first pay at 2725 feet and the big pay at 2880, drilling 10 feet deeper. At 2890 it flowed at the rate of 1,550 barrels hourly, or 37,200 barrels a day, through two four-inch and one six-inch line into a 750-barrel tank, losing considerable oil. The production was free from water.

Wildcats Watched

This was the high light of week-end development, with much interest focused upon preparations to test shows in wildcats in five counties: Kingwood Oil company's No. 1 Sugg in Irion county at 3368-75 feet; Gracey & Foster's No. 1 Foster in Sterling county at 1296-97 feet; Barber Oil company No. 1 H. B. Cox, in Crockett county at 1000 feet; Alexander & Lyles' No. 1 Sellman in Pecos county at 1630 feet, and L. C. Harrison and others' No. 1 Dodge estate in Howard county at around 2660-90 feet.

Taylor-Link Oil company's No. 1 Kloh et al. in section 3, block 32, in Howard county, pumped 587 barrels the first 24 hours and 588 barrels of oil the second day following a shot 10 days earlier with 400 quarts from 2260 to 2357 feet. Tubing was being changed. A slight southwestern extension of the Yates field in Pecos county was marked by McMan Oil and Gas company's No. 2-C Smith in flowing 120 barrels of oil hourly at 1696 feet, 56 feet in the pay. Earlier it was the field's prize gasser, making 62,000,000 cubic feet. The well is in section 25, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, a quarter mile south of McMan No. 1-C Smith, a producer.

Gusher to South

Winkler county's latest big gusher, Southern Crude No. T-88-D-1 Hendrick, is in the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 4, block B-12, public school land, four and three-quarter miles south of Cranfill & Reynolds' No. 1-C Hendrick, in section 33, block 26. The latter marked a mile and a half north extension of the Hendrick pool, but since then production has moved still farther north. No. T-88-D-1 Hendrick is the farthest south producer in the main Hendrick pool, but a mile south and slightly east of it is Mining and Engineering Corporation of Arizona's No. 1 Hendrick, in section 10, which recently was completed for 126 barrels of oil hourly with 10 per cent water. Almost four miles still farther south in Richardson and others' No. 1 O'Brien, in section 50, block F. G. M. M. B. & A survey, a 1,300-barrel a day well making 10 to 15 per cent water. It appears the Mining and Engineering producer is an extension of the Hendrick pool, while many consider No. 1 O'Brien to have opened a new area.

Southern Crude No. T-88-D-1 Hendrick is a diagonal southwest offset to Roxana-Texas No. 4-A Cowden, which recently was completed for 375 barrels hourly. It is a half mile southeast of Southern Crude No. T-88-B-1 Hendrick, one of the earliest producers in the field, now pinched under proration to 600 barrels a day, but still rated good for 5,000 barrels daily. In 15 months it has produced in excess of 1,500,000 barrels of oil, free from water. No. T-88-B-2, one location to the north, no longer is on production.

Australian Who Conceived Idea Of 'Great Silence' Dies Pauper

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 12. (AP)—As the nations of the world marked the 10th anniversary of the armistice, the Melbourne Herald today printed a pathetic story of the origin of "the great silence" conceived by an Australian journalist, Edward George Honey, who died in London in 1922.

Honey, who saw war service with a Middlesex regiment, the story says, in a flash of genius suggested the "great silence" in 1919. At first he pleaded with officials and the public for five minutes of national remembrance. At an official rehearsal which Honey attended it was decided that five minutes was too long and a two-minute period was adopted.

The newspaper says that two years after the universal tribute to the war dead was adopted by the nations of the world Honey fell victim to tuberculosis and died in poverty in London, and was buried in a tiny cemetery in Northwood, Middlesex, with only a bare mound to mark his grave.

LARGE INCOMES SHOW GAINS

283 in Millionaire Class, Tax Report Shows

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. (UP)—America's "more than a million a year income" class rose to a new record-breaking figure in 1927, greatly exceeding even the war years of 1916-1917, according to the treasury department income tax statistics announced tonight.

Two hundred and eighty-three persons paid tax on yearly incomes above $1,000,000 for 1927, an increase of 52 over 1926, and 262 greater than in 1921, the lowest year for million dollar incomes since 1914.

This class paid more than $96,000,000 in income taxes in 1927, indicating they received 2.6 per cent of the total incomes reported and paid 11.69 per cent of the total individual income taxes.

The total revenue reported by the treasury department on individual income taxes was $826,245,497.

11,000 Millionaires

Joseph McCoy, treasury actuary, estimated on the basis of 1926 figures that there were 11,000 persons worth a million dollars or more in the United States, the 1927 figures indicating this number had increased to possibly 15,000.

The ultra-wealthy class — those who pay taxes on incomes of more than $5,000,000 a year—showed a noticeable decrease in 1927. Only 10 were reported, a drop of four from 1926.

The treasury's detailed analysis of income taxes showed that 4,122,242 persons made tax returns. Of this number 3,324,877 were made by persons receiving incomes of $3,000 or less.

Those reporting incomes under $5,000 received 38.58 per cent of the total income reported. Exemptions for dependents or other reasons, however, permitted them to pay only 1.58 per cent of the total tax figure.

Moderately Rich Class

Another wealthy class—those receiving from $50,000 to $100,000 a year income—paid 18.88 per cent of the total return, which was more than was paid by any other class.

The report showed many startling figures on the trend of the nation's wealth, but foremost among them was the ownership of $5,539,575,191 in tax exempt securities by taxpayers, on which they received $264,265,889 of untaxable income.

There were 175 corporations listed with net incomes of $5,000,000 or more out of a total of 249,847 reporting net taxable incomes. There were almost as many—203,000—reporting no taxable income for the year.

Election No Test of Prohibition, Is Claim

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. (UP)—The presidential election cannot be regarded as a referendum on prohibition in the opinion of Henry H. Curran, president of the association against the prohibition amendment. He does not believe Hoover's vote is an index of prohibition sentiment.

"Many of our own members and direction voted for Mr. Hoover and campaigned for him," Curran said in a statement tonight. "Others did the same thing for Governor Smith. All of them are opposed to prohibition."

Curran said that Hoover carried Chicago and Baltimore but nobody doubted they were opposed to prohibition. He said Montana, while voting for Hover voted down a referendum to revive the state enforcement act repealed by referendum two years ago.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (AP)—Negotiations for the sale of substantially all the oil producing properties of Petroleum Securities company, owned by Edward L. Doheny of Los Angeles, were announced today by Blyth Witter & Co., and J. and W. Seligman & Co., investment bankers.

It is planned to form a new company, which will probably be known as the Pacific Western Oil company, to operate these properties, which are valued at more than $40,000,000. It is understood that Jacques Vinmont, former president of the California Petroleum company, will become chairman of the new company, and William C. McDuffie, former production manager of the Royal Dutch Shell group, will be president.

The Petroleum Securities company now holds the bulk of the remaining Doheny oil properties. The negotiations are for the purchase of producing properties in California only, and do not include refineries or other properties. The new company plans to restrict its operations to production for the immediate future at least.

Standard Oil Craft Seized By Chinese

CANTON, Nov. 12. (AP)—The Canton government has confiscated two small boats owned by the Standard Oil company of New York for failure to pay a specified tax. The boats were laden with 23,000 gallons of kerosene and with cargo are valued at approximately 55,000 gold dollars.

In addition to seizing the boats and cargo and escorting them back to Canton after they had proceeded 25 miles toward Samshui, the government has notified the American consul that a fine of 13,000 gold dollars will be levied on the owners for violating the revenue regulations. Standard Oil officials deny there was any wrongdoing, stating that in this shipment the company carried out the same procedure in regard to taxes as has been followed for the past two years.

Shaw's Sentiment Strong As Ever

LONDON, Nov. 12. (AP)—Bernard Shaw's strong Pacificist sentiments show no abatement.

Invited to take tickets for a British legion armistice dedicatory service at Welwyn, Shaw wrote:

"I will take the tickets but if there is any lightning left in heaven, God help you when you go to church to congratulate him and one another for four years of devastation and murder. I have never read anything more wickedly blasphemous than the service you have sent me."

The dedicatory portion of the service to which it is assumed Shaw objected was, according to officials, concerned with the customary form of prayer recalling how God himself led his people to Israel by a pillar of fire by night and a pillar of clouds by day and asking God's blessing on the legion's colors.

Big Vote Aids Boom of Montgomery for Speaker

EDINBURG, Texas, Nov. 12. (AP)—A movement seeking election of W. H. Montgomery of Edinburg as speaker of the 41st legislature is thought to have received impetus as the result of his strong showing in Tuesday's election, when he received a majority of more than 900 votes over his opponent in Hidalgo county.

Most candidates on the Democratic county slate were accorded majorities averaging less than 500 votes.

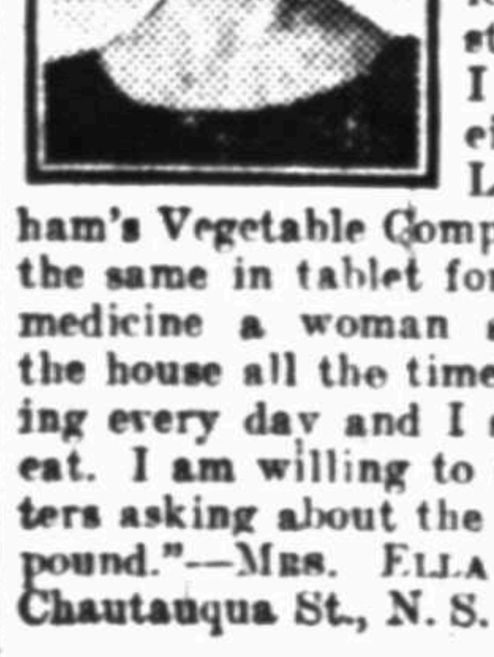

CULLISON LEADS PHELPS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 12. (UP)—James B. Cullison was reported leading James I. Phelps in the race for supreme court justice late today. It will be impossible to determine the winner until complete and official returns are made.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Her So Much

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I was just completely run-down. I had tired, heavy, sluggish feelings and I could not eat. I was losing in weight. I read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what a good medicine it is, that I started taking it. I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and about the same in tablet form. This is one medicine a woman should have in the house all the time. I am improving every day and I sure am able to eat. I am willing to answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ella Richards, 21 Chautauqua St., N. S. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Man Keeps Drowning as Secret For More Than Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. (UP)—For 16 months Henry Stevens was haunted by a drowning man's face and the picture of a drowning man shouting for help.

Yesterday he confessed he and two other men tossed William Pritz Jr., into the Harlem river after an argument and permitted him to drown.

Police said that Stevens told how he had spent all the money he could earn as a laborer on cheap whisky in an attempt to blot out the picture of Pritz' death.

INTEREST IN PLANES URGED

W. T. C. C. Asks Cooperation of Secretaries

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, Nov. 12.—A letter sent from the West Texas Chamber of Commerce headquarters here to all secretaries of member chambers of commerce and unit directors, by Pres. A. M. Bourland, and Manager Homer D. Wade, urged them to co-operate with their communities in realizing the advantages of aviation.

One of the reasons for this act on the part of the heads of the regional organization is the development that is sure to take place in aviation in West Texas since the purchase of the Texas Air Transport company by a group of financiers, headed by A. P. Barrett of Fort Worth.

This company expects to have a net work of air plane routes in all of Texas, and particularly in West Texas.

The letter calls attention to the fact that the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce, at Washington, D. C. puts out several bulletins helpful to these towns who want to be prepared for this advent in commercial aviation, and new methods of transportation.

These bulletins are Aeronautics Bulletin No. 2; Construction of air ports; Information Bulletin No. 7, Air Commerce Regulations; No. 21, Air ports: types of managements, rentals, concessions Field rules; and Information Bulletin No. 36, Air Port Rating Regulations.

All of the bulletins can be procured direct from the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce or by writing the congressman, or Senators Morris Sheppard, or Earle B. Mayfield.

Mr. Bourland and Mr. Wade expressed their desire to serve any West Texas town interested along these lines.

Loan Plan Evolved

PEKING, Nov. 12. (UP)—The finance ministry announced a plan to organize a commission to readjust the domestic and foreign loans of earlier governments here to a sound basis.

IZAAK WALTON MEET TONIGHT

Fish and Game Problems Up for Discussion

Several questions relative to fish and game protection in the Wichita Falls district will be considered at the meeting of the Wichita Falls chapter of the Izaak Walton league Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the county court room at the courthouse, it was announced Monday by Ben G. Oneal, president.

Dove hunters in the southern part of the northern game zone, which comprises all of west, central and north Texas, are advocating legislative action to change the date of dove season opening in this zone from Sept. 1 to a considerably later date, according to Mr. Oneal. This action, he said, grows out of the fact that due to climatic differences, many doves are still nesting in the southern portions of the zone after Sept. 1, and the killing of mother doves greatly reduces the numbers of oncoming young. The attitude of local hunters toward such a deferment of opening date throughout the entire zone should be determined before the coming legislative session, it was said.

Another matter which has attracted the attention of local sportsmen is that the more adequate fish and game protection for Lake Wichita, a need arising from the present game wardens having too much territory to cover, it was stated. Mr. Oneal expressed a desire for a full attendance at the meeting.

DAWES TO BROADCAST

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Vice President Charles G. Dawes will head a group of conservation speakers who will broadcast from here over the National Broadcasting company system under the auspices of the Izaak Walton League of America on Nov. 17, it was announced today at headquarters of the conservation organization.

The broadcasting will be from a banquet of the Chicago chapter of the league at the Palmer House hotel at 7 p. m., central standard time.

Dr. Henry Baldwin Ward, president of the Walton league, will also speak.

All national officers, all state division officers, directors, chapter heads and other officials of the organization have been invited to attend the affair, which will formally launch a nation-wide program of expansion of the league and an arousing of the public to the need of conservation of outdoor resources and an upbuilding of recreational facilities, according to Fred H. Doellner, general manager of the Waltonians.

A blood transfusion was made in an attempt to save the life of Goree McDonald, 20, shot in the leg when the gun of a companion hunter accidentally was discharged. Surgeons amputated the leg.

Installation of new officers of Hope chapter of DeMolay has been set for Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the Maskat temple rooms, it was announced Monday.

Those to be installed at Wednesday night's ceremony, which will be conducted by the sponsoring Masonic order, are Master Councilor Elmer Parish, Senior Councilor Rowland Dills, and Junior Councilor Robert Crocker. Today { At the Theaters

MAJESTIC: "The Foreign Legion" with all-star cast. Comedy. Football short subject. Paramount newsreel.

STRAND: "The Home Towners," all talking picture with Richard Bennett and Doris Kenyon. Two vitaphone short subjects. Pathe newsreel.

OLYMPIC: On the stage, Lillian Murry and Elmer Wright with their Zippity Zip company in "Childhood Days." On the screen, Marie Prevost in "The Girl in the Pullman." Comedy. Fox newsreel.

MISSION: "Sorrell and Son" with H. B. Warner. Comedy.

GARDEN: Marion Davies in "The Patsy." Western picture. Comedy.

◇ ◇ ◇

The Zippity Zip musical comedy company, featuring Lillian Murry and Elmer Wright, who are already well known in Wichita Falls, will present "Childhood Days" at the Olympic theater Wednesday.

◇ ◇ ◇

Helen Hunt Jackson's American love classic, "Ramona," featuring Dolores Del Rio, will open at the Majestic theater Saturday. This romance of a half-breed girl and her Indian lover has grasped the fancy of the romantic minded.

◇ ◇

Audiences at the Strand theater which is playing, "The Home Towners" with an all-star cast, are increasingly large, demonstrating that movietone fans like a lively "all talkie" as a relief from the rather ponderous productions the theater has been showing recently.

◇ ◇

"The Home Towners" is proving popular because the situations are real and the people in the cast human. No impossible situations and mock heroics are to be found in the picture, giving the audiences a change from the general run of sound pictures.

◇ ◇ ◇

Clive Brock (Clive has the most wicked eyebrow in filmdom) and Irene Rich star in the sound picture to follow "The Home Towners" at the Strand Friday, "The Perfect Crime." The picture will run only three days.

◇ ◇ ◇

The Mission theater since the change of policy in which vaudeville and musical comedy shows were shifted to the Olympic theater, has been showing western pictures and productions on their second run.

◇ ◇ ◇

"The Foreign Legion" at the Majestic theater has as its theme, the old plot of such legion stories, the triangle in which are thrown the beautiful woman desired by the officer in charge and a private in the ranks. But the scenery is much better than is usual even in such pictures, being cast against the glaring sun and the sandstorms of northern Africa. Lewis Stone does his usual superb acting.

Murry and Wright Score At Olympic

Judging from the packed house of Sunday and Monday performances, Lillian Murry and Elmer Wright, comedians, with the Lillian Murry Zippity Zip musical comedy which opened for an indefinite engagement at the Olympic theater Sunday, will annex many more followers.

Lillian Murry carried away most of the honors in her comedy role of Susie in the first "script" show of the company, "Rose of Texas." Sunday Elmer Wright played opposite Lillian in comedy parts and also scored heavily with the audience.

Miss Florence Holland, leading lady, and a clever chorus of six attractive girls, will doubtless become favorites with the Wichita Falls audiences if the applause here first performances here received is indicative.

The Zippity Zip company will play "Childhood Days" Wednesday with a complete change of program Friday. Marie Prevost will star in "The Girl in the Pullman" as the screen feature for Wednesday. A comedy and a news reel complete the bill scheduled.

TESTIMONY OF LOVER BANNED

Marriage License Keeps Girl From Courtroom

LOCKHART, Texas, Nov. 12. (AP)—Helen Hooper, Indian sweetheart of Joe Revis, one of three men being tried here in connection with the wholesale sacking of the village of Fentress several weeks ago, will not be allowed to testify in court even though she was brought here for that purpose, Judge M. C. Jeffrey ruled yesterday.

The woman, who has been in jail at Hallettsville on a charge of complicity in the burglarizing of a store at Sweethome, presented a marriage license issued in Caldwell county to her and Revis.

Judge Jeffrey would not permit the wedding, but held that as both had signified they would marry if allowed, the woman's testimony would not be admissible in the trial of Revis or his companions.

Thus far a total of 61 years imprisonment has been given the three men, Revis, Fred Thomas and Santo Sanchez. Revis received six years for burglary of one of the five Fentress stores that were sacked and 35 years for robbery with firearms. Thomas and Sanchez have been convicted of one case of burglary, each getting 12 years. They now will be tried for robbery with firearms. County Attorney Gambrell said it was possible they would not be tried on any of the other indictments against them.

Five stores, a bank and postoffice were looted by a gang that swooped down on Fentress in the morning hours.

PROTEST ART SALES

BERLIN, Nov. 12. (UP)—Wilhelm van Dode, dean of the German museums, was said to have written the ex-kaiser at Doorn urging that he prevent his heirs and members of the former royal family from the wholesale selling of art treasures to foreign—notably American—dealers and collectors.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.
