HARRIS SHOWS HOW CITY CAN SAVE MONEY

Water Department Could Be Handled By City Clerk

Proposing that the city of Wichita Falls place its water department and city clerk's office under one head, Ira S. Harris, in the report contained in his audit of city books, which he recently completed, points out that a "more simple system" of accounting would result and management be more satisfactory.

The auditor's report concerning the status of city books calls attention to a deficit of $1,304.25 in the police department resulting in "fines assessed but uncollected," and asserts that "this was traced back to a previous regime."

The full report was received by the city council Monday night, and was made public Tuesday morning by Mayor Frank Collier.

The audit covers a period extending from April 1, 1921 to March 31, 1922.

Economy Suggested

Several timely suggestions are contained in the report, as made by the auditor, included in which are suggestions relating to the city police department and the water department, as well as other branches of the city government.

The examination of records consisted of verification of recorded receipts, vouchers issued, warrants issued, etc.

As reported in the audit, the general government fund of the city is overdrawn to March 31, 1922, in the sum of $228,381.66, while the bond funds are shown to have a balance of $78,204.88 applicable to the cost of improvements. The report recommends that the cash balance in the sinking fund be kept in a separate account in the bank from the interest cash, and that the city treasurer keep his records so that the balance in the sinking fund accounts be shown clearly.

Books Show Improvement

A big improvement in the city books as compared with previous records kept was reported to have been found.

BLAIR HALTS BOOZE IMPORTS

Nation Must Use Present Stocks

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Imports of wines and liquors were banned tonight by Commissioner Blair of internal revenue department until supplies already in the country for non-beverage uses are insufficient to meet the national requirements.

Drastic new regulations were issued by Mr. Blair covering the entrance of alcoholic beverages into the country designed to shut off one of the sources of illegal liquor supply.

Lewis Pleads Again For Coal Meeting

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Declaring that the government's "fantastic schemes" to reopen the coal mines were a complete failure, and that the delay they had occasioned contributed to a pending coal fuel famine, John L. Lewis, president of the international union tonight renewed his invitation to operators to settle the strike by joint conference.

"The attempt to reopen the mines by the assembling and parading engines of war to awe American citizens," his statement continued, "would be a national farce, did it not possess the elements of tragedy."

The mine workers' chief tonight went to Philadelphia where tomorrow he will meet the five union district presidents, representing 310,000 anthracite and bituminous miners in Pennsylvania who have been on strike for 17 weeks.

Martial Law In Denison Rail Zones

Wichita Falls Man in Command of 250 Men Detailed to Guard Katy Shops; Rangers to Do Strike Duty at Sherman and Childress. Other Points Granted Protection If Needed.

By S. RAYMOND BROOKS
(Austin Correspondent)

AUSTIN, July 25.—Martial law was today declared effective at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning at Denison at the hour five companies of national guard troops leaving Austin tonight at 7 o'clock are due to reach Denison. Rangers on duty there will be relieved and assigned to Sherman and Childress for strike guard duty under the open port law. The martial law area is approximately 1,000 feet beyond the limits of the three railroad shops and yards at Denison. Col. Charles N. Nixon of Wichita Falls was placed in supreme military command by the governor's proclamation issued at 5:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The five national guard companies reaching here Monday night, two from Crowell, and one each from Chillicothe, Quanah and Vernon, left tonight on a special train bearing four coaches and three heavily loaded baggage cars.

By Associated Press.

DENISON, Texas, July 25.—The governor also issued two other proclamations placing the strike situation at Childress and Sherman under provisions of the open port law. Rangers from Denison will go to these places to take charge. The Sherman detachment will be commanded by Captain Tom Hickman and the Childress detachment by Captain Frank Hamer.

Other Towns Protected.

Detachments of rangers from Denison will also go to Cleburne, Temple, Amarillo, Marshall, Lufkin, Kingsville, DeLeon and Waco to do guard duty and protect shopmen. However, these last named places are not being placed under the provisions of the open port law. Any other railroad towns or points needing protection will be afforded it in the same way, the governor said.

The rangers now at Denison depart for their respective stations on arrival of the national guardsmen tomorrow. In event the ranger force of 47 men is incufficient to give protection to shop men, others will be recruited as fast as the right men can be secured, the governor said. He has empowered various ranger captains to recruit their forces if the situation demands.

250 Men Sent.

The governor made a short address to the national guardsmen 250 men in all, just before they departed for Denison tonight. The address was

By Associated Press.

Michigan Miners Refuse Proposals

By Associated Press.

SAGINAW, Mich., July 25.—Officials of the Michigan district of the United Mine Workers of America tonight turned down two proposals submitted to them by Governor Groesbeck suggesting that they return to the mines to produce coal for state and municipal purposes. Indications were that the governor would appeal to the miners themselves to disregard the action of their officials and resume operations in the mines under state direction.

Why Bailey Mourned On Election Day
John A. Stevens Had Gone Home

JOSEPH WELDON BAILEY WAS called upon to mourn the death of one of his stalwart friends on the eve of the primary election. While men are discussing the remarkable race made by James E. Ferguson and the very remarkable collapse of the Cullen F. Thomas organization long before primary election day, the democratic old guard of Texas turned aside to shed a tear for John A. Stevens, the sage of Covington. He died in his automobile on his way from Hillsboro to one of his magnificent farms in Hill county.

TO HAVE KNOWN JOHN A. Stevens was to have regretted his passing. He was a native of Mississippi; he came to Texas in his boyhood; he fought in a Texas brigade of the Confederate army during the civil war; he was a gallant soldier and he bore scars on his body as reminders of his heroism on the field of battle. After the flag of the Confederacy went down, young Stevens returned to Hill county and began to carve out his own fortune. He had been denied exceptional educational advantages in his youth because he was only a boy when he put on a jacket of gray and rode with the wild riders of Texas in defense of the stars and the bars.

HE WAS ONE OF THAT GALlant band who fought against alien domination after the close of the war. He was one of the gallant band that marched to Austin, expelled Edmund J. Davis and seated Richard Coke as chief executive of the Lone Star commonwealth. He was one of that gallant band that restored a white man's civilization and a white man's government in this imperial commonwealth. Texas was a new state in those days and for many years thereafter. There were wild men who had no regard for law and the man who was the quickest on the trigger was the ruler of his community.

THERE WERE CATTLE RUSTlers everywhere. There were desperate gun men everywhere. There were outlaws everywhere. John A. Stevens was for law and order. He was for the written law and its enforcement if it required a Winchester rifle to enforce it. He was

Capital Mourns Culberson's Defeat

By B. N. TIMMONS
(Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The democratic nestor of the senate took his knockout today.

The old champion of the Lone Star state was no longer a champion.

For three days he listened to the slow count ending his political career, and today he acknowledged, in his own heart, that it was all over.

The old champion didn't know who the new champion was. He hadn't fought under straight Marquis of Queensbury rules with one opponent as he liked to fight. He went into a battle royal with five opponents and an invisible force. Two men were still on their feet—one of them to be the final victor.

But the old champion was smiling. He is a Culberson—the son of "Old Dave"—and the Culbersons, father and son, gave their blows and took them. They never winced and they never asked for quarter.

Formally, Charles A. Culberson, voted out of office, after the longest service ever given to the Lone Star

LABOR BOARD GETS SUPPORT

Washington Backs Up Hooper

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Support of the railroad labor board as the only agency created by law for handling the transportation tieup, acceleration of coal production under federal protection and control of fuel distribution, were given by administration spokesmen today as the three fundamentals of the government's policy toward the industrial crisis involved in the coal and railroad strikes.

Re-statement of the government's position followed the regular Tuesday meeting of the cabinet which for nearly three hours devoted it's attention to the double threat against the country's economic faoric—famine in fuel and disruption of interstate commerce.

The first step toward control of coal supply came shortly afterwards in a statement from the interstate commerce commission, declaring that an emergency existed in the territory east of the Mississippi, which required the commission to direct the routing of all essential commodities and to fix preference and priority status to control movement of food and fuel.

Priority Order Forced

The priority order was forced by a "general service order" from the commission, notifying "all common carriers" that an emergency existed which required them to disregard usual routing practice, freight rate divisions and traffic arrangements so as to obtain the most expeditious movement of essential freights.

While the railroad labor board would be upheld in its endeavors to deal with the strike of shop craftsmen, it was intimated in official circles that if the concession of seniority rights to strikers who have left service would result in their return to work the railroad managements ought to yield the point.

The board, too, it was said might facilitate the concessions, even though eastern lines and those of the southwest have publicly declared that the status of men employed to replace the strikers would not allow the grant of full seniority to those who might return. President Harding, it was said, would remain in intimate contact with any steps which the labor board might take.

MAY CALL SPECIAL LEGISLATURE SESSION

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—Calling of a special session of the legislature to repeal the miners qualification law and to enact such other legislation as may be necessary in the coal strike situation, has been suggested to Governor McCray, it was learned tonight. This step, it was said, would follow the failure of attempts by the governor to bring about a state conference to adjust differences between miners and operators in Indiana.

HOW VERNON KEPT COOL ELECTION DAY

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, July 25—More than 200 gallons of ice cream were consumed in Vernon Saturday by one of the largest election crowds in the history of the city, and local confectionery establishments were taxed to their capacity all day to handle the rush. One drug store dispensed eighty gallons of ice cream as well as drinks which consumed a case of oranges, eight baskets of limes, a half case of lemons, and sold thirty gallons of a favorite drink. The crowds awaiting returns remained on the streets until well past 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

LABOR LEADERS DISCUSS STRIKE

One of the most important developments in the strike situation came in Washington when three labor leaders, headed by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation, met with Senators Walsh, King and Borah to discuss strike matters. The picture above shows President Gompers, Edgar Wallace, legislative representative of the A. F. of L., and Frank Morgan, secretary of the labor organization in conference before the meeting with the senators.

By Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., July 25.—Train service between Cincinnati and Delphon, Ohio, will be discontinued July 31, according to an announcement today by R. N. Bird, superintendent of mails in this district. RAILROAD STRIKE MARKING TIME

Few Developments Come Tuesday

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Adhereing strictly to its hands-off policy in the railway shopmen's strike, the United States railroad labor board today turned its attention to routine matters.

Despite statements from Washington that any government action in the rail controversy must come through the labor board, the body took no action today and from officials it was learned that none is in prospect.

An executive session of the board was held during the day and following the meeting, members stated that only routine matters were discussed.

MILLER OFFERS FERGUSON AID

Concedes Defeat of Culberson

By Associated Press.

TEMPLE, Texas, July 25.—Barry Miller, campaign manager for Senator Charles A. Culberson, who has been running third in returns tabulated from Saturday's democratic primary, telegraphed former Governor James E. Ferguson late today offering his services to the former governor in the run-off election against Earle B. Mayfield for the democratic nomination for United States senator. This is generally accepted as Mr. Miller's admission of Senator Culberson's defeat.

The telegram from Mr. Miller follows:

"Reports show that you are 17,000 ahead of Senator Culberson, which will put you in the run-off. In view of this fact there can be but one place for a real democrat to go. If I can be of any service to you, do not hesitate to command."

Come On Brother, We Won't Hold Your Official Affliction Against You

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Although it is against the policy of the United States government to extend formal invitation to presidents-elect of other republics to visit, the United States prior to their taking office, President-elect Alvear of Argentina, it was learned today, has been advised through appropriate channels that he would be made very welcome should he care to visit this country.

The custom of the American government, it was pointed out, has now precluded visits by several South American presidents-elect to the United States prior to their assumption of office. Among these have been the president-elect of Brazil, Colombia and Uruguay who have taken occasion to come to Washington either in connection with missions for their governments or on their way home from meetings of the league of nations at Geneva. In each case the full limit of courtesies prescribed by international practice has been accorded the distinguished visitor by the United States government and he has opportunity to meet and talk with the president here and with the secretary of state or with any other high government official with whom he desired to confer.

Oklahoma Guard May Be Called for Active Service Outside of State

Special to the Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 25.—Uneasiness is felt in many homes here today by the rumor that machine gun company H of Frederick, which was expected to return home Thursday from the annual encampment of the Oklahoma national guard at Fort Sill, may join Oklahoma troops in service outside of the state. Persons who visited the camp Sunday say that it is alive with rumors, the most substantial of which is that, following Saturday's review of the troops, Governor J. B. A. Robertson made inquiry of the principal officers as to their attitude in the matter of taking up service outside the state. The exact nature of the service seems a mystery, but the general impression of the guardsmen is that it will be "some where north of Oklahoma."

Following the sham battle pulled off recently, Colonel Willard of Fort Sam Houston, in charge of the eighth corps, declared the 179th Oklahoma infantry, winner of the sham conflict, the best national guard regiment in the United States.

POLICE AFTER JELLY BEANS

Make Wichita Safe For Girls

"Papa, what's a 'jelly bean'?"
"A 'jelly bean', my son,
Is nothing but another name
For an ordinary bum."
—Street Corner Ballads.

"Jelly beans"—beware!

Commissioner Fitts is after you—

And so are all the policemen and citizens of Wichita Falls.

Commissioner Fitts issued a strong warning to the "jelly bean mashers" Tuesday in corporate court, when he announced that a drive will be made to bring every one to "taw" that is found attempting "to date young girls and asking them to take joy rides in their cars."

"It has come to my attention," Commissioner Fitts asserted in a statement made public, "that there are a number of young 'jellies' laying around the movie theaters late at night, waiting to follow some innocent girl home, and thus obtain an opportunity of asking them to take rides with them.

Insult Girls Here

"Monday night, a young lady of good repute and of good family was followed and accosted at the corner of Seventh and Lamar by two 'jellies' who were in a Ford coupe. They stopped her and asked her to ride with them.

"For the information of those two young 'jelly beans', I will say that they were seen by two business men of this city, who succeeded in getting their number as they drove away. They will be arrested as soon as they can be found.

"There are a number of other 'jellies' in this city who are conducting themselves in the same manner. And to them, I will say that the business men and better citizens of Wichita Falls are also watching them. When they are caught intimidating young ladies, they will be arrested and dealt with severely.

"This thing has got to come to a halt if we have to jail every one of the 'jelly beans.'" in the city clerks' office and in the tax collector's office, and these are given due credit in the report.

The tax department of the city is also praised for its detailed work in handling taxes.

Errors were found in the appropriation ordinance and levies for previous years, the apportionment of cash for the entire year necessarily being changed considerably, entailing much work on the part of the auditors. It is suggested in the report that this ordinance should be changed, and that corrected figures be prepared for the levy.

City Clerk Needs Help

In speaking of the voucher record of the city, it is pointed out in the audit that changes are essential in the warrant register, and it is suggested that assistance in the city clerk's office is lacking.

Attention is called to the fact that disbursements have been made out of cash collected by the city health department in violation of section 106 of the city charter, and it is proposed in the report that such practices should be stopped.

The completed report indicates that the city is not yet on a sound financial basis, and that such will not be the case until the payment of taxes at the regular time, at which time Wichita Falls will probably be on a cash basis.

made at the depot. He impressed on the guardsmen that they are representing the government of Texas as well as the governor and to conduct themselves as gentlemen, enforce the law as it should be and to at all times conduct themselves in a manner befitting soldiers of the state of Texas.

In his causes for martial law the governor sets forth the M., K. & T. shopmen's strike and the refusal to return to work; that the railroad has been unable to carry on freight affic and keep open the regular channels of commerce of the state because the workmen later employed were "intimidated, threatened and injured by physical violence"; that officers with whom he had personally conferred would be able to protect the workmen and preserve peace; that the state should preserve its sovereignty and preserve the rights of its citizens without the necessity of federal intervention.

Rangers at Sherman.

In the Sherman proclamation the governor places under ranger control the property, including the freight yards and passenger station of the St Louis, San Francisco & Texas railway company of Texas. At Childress he places the property of the Fort Worth & Denver railroad under ranger control, and that property lying within 1,000 feet on each side of the road.

The governor said the provisions of the open port law will be enforced in any other town where disturbances occur or the situation demands it and rangers will be sent there to preserve order.

DENISON SHOWING BUT LITTLE INTEREST

By Associated Press.

DENISON, Texas, July 25.—Denison's population tonight seemed unperturbed when it became generally known that the troops were coming. The citizenship had been expecting such an announcement for the past 18 hours, the governor having intimated that such action would be taken because of protest from several sources that the present protection was considered inadequate.

O. J. Shoemaker, general spokesman for the striking shopmen, declared that no animosity would be felt by his followers toward the state troops and he said his offer of 75 men to assist in clearing ground for the soldiers camp site has been accepted by Adjutant General Barton.

The secret of success is the secret women never tell.

state by any man, has nothing to say. Informally he discussed the returns from the various counties, noting where his strength of other days had failed to show itself. But never once did he make a complaint.

He offered no alibi as to his condition. In anouncing for re-election he had said that he could not make a campaign, but the condition of his health was such that he could attend to the duties of office. Generally, it was understood that he wanted to finish out his life in the senate. But the voters decided otherwise. He believes in the will of the people.

Senate Pulling for Him.

But Culberson, smilingly taking his defeat, was a contrast to other senators. The senate had been pulling for Culberson. On both democratic and republican sides senators were pulling for Culberson.

"The people of Texas do not realize what they have done," said a prominent republican senator.

Just outside the chamber, the correspondent met an aged veteran, a doorkeeper for years.

"And have they defeated that fine old gentleman?" the old veteran asked.

He was informed that it was virtually certain that Culberson was out of it.

"The pity of it, the pity of it," the veteran said.

Senate Appreciated Him.

The senate believed that the people of Texas never really knew the value of Culberson. His health has made train travel impossible for years. But since January, 1916, he has never missed a session of the senate, a record for continuous service no other man ever held. Even on the day of the great Knickerbocker disaster here, a day so stormy that only five senators reached the chamber, Culberson was one of the five.

But a big, teeming state with its own business to look after, does not know all these things. It wants to see the man it is going to vote for. It hadn't seen Culberson for eight years. A new generation had grown up.

Then there were other things. Culberson lost wet votes because he voted for the Volstead act. The eighteenth amendment was a part of the constitution. Not to enforce it meant nullification of the constitution in his opinion, and the Culbersons ever were for the constitution.

He lost the drys for the drys had a candidate of their own, who also went down to defeat. He lost his normal vote in Tarrant county and west Texas, because a distinguished citizen of Fort Worth took the vote that ordinarily would have gone to him. He lost the tenant farmers to Ferguson.

And on top of it all, the ku klux klan, voting with few breaks for one man, gave that man top place. Perhaps it was this one thing that hurt Culberson more than anything else. He had defied the klan. He told friends months ago that he had never shifted his sails to catch the wind, and that he had rather be defeated than to surrender a conviction.

What New York Thinks.

The New York World, editorially, paid this tribute to Senator Culberson today, under the caption "Bigotry's Triumph in Texas."

"For 63 years the Culbersons, father and son, have served the state of Texas. The father, David Browning Culberson, in addition to serving in the state legislature, was eleven times elected to the house of representatives. The son, Charles A. Culberson, was twice elected governor of Texas and four times elected United States senator.

"At last, on an issue of religious bigotry, a Culberson has been beaten in Texas. The victor is a candidate of the ku klux klan. But what a victory! Ostensibly it is a victory of the "native" over the "foreign" element. In fact it is the temporary success of a mode of bigotry over the older and finer, over the truly native traditions of Texas.

"For it is the Culbersons who really represent what is native of Texas. They have proved it these 63 years. And, it is the klan, with its masks and imperial titles and its appeal to hatred, which is the imported, the alien and the un-American influence."

In connection with the service of Culberson, the record shows that the 24 years of Senator Charles A. Culberson is the longest of any Texan in the senate, Richard Coke standing next with eighteen years.

David B. Culberson's 22 years in the house is the longest of any Texan.

Mader Trial Brings Out Bloody Plot

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Dynamite plots, plans to shoot rival labor leaders, efforts to extort money for settling strikes, all a part of an alleged campaign of terrorism resulting from dissatisfaction with a mediation wage award among the building trades unions, were told by witnesses today at the trial of Fred Mader, president of the Chicago building trades council.

Henry "Smash" Hanson, who described himself as a former private detective, was the states star witness.

"Mader was agent for the fixture hangers union when he wanted Isadore Braverman, president, shot," said Hanson. "I shot him and was tried and acquitted for it. Braverman recovered.

"When the union war became so bitter," Hanson testified, Mader asked him if some one could shoot 'Umbrella Mike' Boyle, a rival labor leader. "We don't want him killed," Mader said. "We just want him shot in the leg."

Fifteen Minutes of Radio a Day

By EDWARD N. DAVIS
(Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government)

LESSON No. 29.
The Detector.

The detector in the circuit of a radio receiver performs the important function of converting the energy of the radio-frequent oscillations, intercepted by the antenna, into uni-directional pulsating currents which may be rendered audible by the receiving telephones.

Certain types of minerals, such as galena, carborundum silicon, and others, possess the valuable property of rectification. By means of these crystals this radio-frequent currents, inducted in the aerial circuit by the advancing electromagnetic waves, are rectified or converted into pulsating direct currents, so that with the aid of the receiving telephones, the incoming signals are rendered audible to the ear. The radio-frequent currents oscillate with such rapidity as to be impossible of detection, without previous rectification, either by the diaphragm of the receiving telephones or by the sensitive mechanism of the ear.

In addition to the numerous forms of crystal detectors, the vacuum tube detector in its various phases held a position of extreme importance. The valuable properties of the vacuum tube and the wonderful ways in which it may be used, both in the detection and amplification of radio signals, will be explained in lessons to follow.

Certain crystal dtectors, carborundum for example, give better results when a small current from a local battery of low voltage flows through the crystal. The current from this local battery must flow in a certain direction, determined by experiment, through the crystal and the amount of current must be carefully adjusted by means of a potentiometer in order to obtain satisfactory results.

Crystals are usually mounted in a small metal cup which forms one connecting terminal. The other terminal is composed of a pointed contact, adjustable as to be moved over the surface of the crystal until a point is found where the signals may be clearly received and maximum audibility obtained. Some crystals, such as carborundum require a firm pressure of the contact point to obtain signals of maximum audibility; others, galena for example, need only the light contact of a delicate wire on the sensitive surface.

The value of a crystal detector rests in its property of sensitiveness to the incoming oscillations and its ability to remain in adjustment.

In the recent highly specialized "broadcasting" the functions of the vacuum tube detector are so varied and its ability to detect and amplify signals is so valuable that the following lessons will give detailed descriptions of the construction and peration of the various types.

HOW TO WIN OR LOSE.

THE whole world took keen interest in the contentious rivalry between Suzanne Lenglen of France and Molla Bjurstedt Mallory of the United States for the women's tennis championship. It was not that the great multitude cared much for the game or the victor, but that it wondered how the two ladies would acquit themselves in the court, before a large gallery, and how one would take victory and the other defeat.

Most persons were unfavorably disposed toward Mlle. Lenglen. They regarded her more or less contemptuously as a quitter. They believed that her humiliating default at Forest Hills, Long Island, a year ago, showed that, although she could be gracious in victory, she could not accept defeat with a due sense of fairness.

When the two women engaged in play on the Wimbledon court, Mrs. Mallory had as her objective the world's championship, while the French woman had to think of regaining her professional reputation. The ethics of sport are inexorable. There is a chivalry, not unlike that of knighthood, which victor and vanquished, weak and strong, must practice.

Suzanne far outclassed the American champion, and won so easily as to leave no doubt of her exceeding prowess. But the world acclaims her rather for her demonstration of spirit.

Sport is more than physical training. It is a course of character building. By hard experience it brings out defects and deficiencies, as well as ability, and proves that fitness, proficiency and superiority can be achieved only by persistent work and application. It teaches participants that success is not easily won, and failure is not impossible, and that each person must know himself and be fair to all others.

The lessons of the Lenglen-Mallory rivalry are plain to all. The world was interested in the human phases of the competition, not in the match itself. Suzanne showed how humiliation can be turned into glory. This tennis contest was a sermon.

AMERICAN COAL CARRIERS

ENGLAND has more than a million coal miners. England, for 50 years, supplied continental countries and South America with coal. On account of the World war, England lost a large part of its coal trade. Its government could not find the ships to supply the South American consumer. It is different now. American mines are closed and 650,000 American miners are idle.

And the statement is made that the emergency fleet corporation of America can land millions of tons of foreign coal monthly at American ports. Plans to effect such a move should the emergency necessitate it, according to a vice president of the corporation, have already been given careful consideration and when the demand becomes great enough and the profits in selling foreign coal here are high enough, it will begin to pour in.

At present enough of the shipping board vessels are returning in ballast from England to start bringing in coal now at the rate of 500 tons monthly. According to the vice president of the corporation, the shipping board has 120 ships in the English-American trade, the average capacity of which is 6,000 tons. In addition, the board has more than 500 ship, which eventually could be placed in commission for coal carrying purposes on the Atlantic. More than 200 of them could be transporting coal within two months and the carrying capacity for 200 vessels would be approximately 2,000,000 tons of coal monthly. These vessels in the English-American trade return from England with a 10 per cent cargo. American ships have not been carrying coal cargoes. English ships have so low a rate on this commodity that American ocean carriers cannot compete. American coal consumers may as well make up their minds to pay the price for fuel the coming fall and winter. All the reserves have melted away. All the surface signs indicate a last ditch fight between the mine owners and the miners, unless the government takes over the mines and drafts the miners for service. This cannot be done in a democracy except in war time. Jones must continue to pay the freight. He is neither a mine owner nor a miner, but he carries the load.

They laugh at scars who never felt a wage cut.

DR. CRANE EDITORIAL

SOMEWHERE ELSE

TO the roving and dissatisfied spirit of man the time when he is to be happy is always tomorrow and the place is somewhere else.

It was Thomas Huxley who said that we all believe that it is pleasanter on the other side of the street.

We are creatures of imagination, and almost all of our fun comes from the imagination, and we have a way of trampling actuality under foot.

The commonest, though unspoken, creed of mankind is, "Whatever is, is punk."

As the late Mr. Pope expressed it, "Man never is, but always, to be, blest."

An illustration of this is given by an account furnished by a newspaper reporter of a young American in London.

Standing on the Strand he saw among the 'buses which passed, one labeled with the mystic word "Limehouse."

He had read about the Limehouse Nights, and as he had somewhat of a thirst for adventure, he boarded the 'bus.

It took a long while for 'bus No. 25 to get to Limehouse. It passed through Whitechapel and the East End and along row after row of dingy, two-story houses. At last the destination was reached.

He found the center of Limehouse to be a drab little square, quiet and peaceful. It was surrounded by dingy buildings. There were the usual number of pubs.

The American, says our reporter, looked about him. All was serene and calm. No Chinee was in sight. No opium joints seemed functioning. No drunken sailors lurched past.

"Well, where are all the murderers?" the Yankee asked a bobby standing sentry duty outside a pub.

"None around here, sir," was the answer. "These are very quiet parts."

"But I thought I was in the tough section, hop houses, Chinks, a pretty rough gang all around."

"Oh, no, sir—very quiet, like. Let's see—there was a fight last July in a pub, but nothing much. No—there's few Chinks round here. Let's see—there's a Chinese restaurant up in Picadilly—if you want excitement."

The American said nothing, but the "bobby" continued:

"You're a foreigner, aren't you, sir? American? That so? From Chicago, you say?"

The cop edged closer, with sudden interest.

"You're from Chicago! And you came 4,000 miles to peaceful, sleepy old Limehouse looking for a thrill. Why, mister, I've spent all my life wishing I could go to Chicago and be a copper in that place you call the 'Loop'—down where all those murderers and gunmen and gangsters are. There's a life for you—there's thrills. Say—I'd chuck this job any time to work there—where there was something doing like."

A GOOD MOVE

THE Kiwanis club of Wichita Falls has made an offer to the city council that if the latter body will set aside a park for a tourist camping ground that the club will equip it for camping purposes. The club proposes to put in running water, sewerage, gas for cooking and other conveniences.

Most all cities have tourist camping grounds and every city should have them. They are necessities. They mean much to a city from a financial standpoint because the tourists spend money and money means business.

The Kiwanis club is doing a splendid work in backing the tourist camping ground project.

One may take to the open road to avoid board bills, but even then he is offended by the billboards.

Why should we think much about posterity? It probably won't think much of us.

There wouldn't be a great deal of striving after fame, however, if one couldn't cash it at the paying teller's window.

The sad thing about the German practice of bumping off prominent citizens is that they began too late.

Rippling Rhymes

UNTIMELY TALK.

Sometimes, returning from the mart, my life is full of care, with problems grave that break my heart, and ache and fester there. For silence then my spirit pants; it is the balm that heals; and I'd be glad if all my aunts would cut out foolish spiels. But they've a dozen tales to tell to make me stand aghast, of piffling mishaps that befell since I was with them last. They see the ghastly sweat of grief upon my any rest allow. The gossip of the neighborhood I hear pallid brow, but they won't make their stores brief, or in all details; how Mrs. Bunk and Mrs. Stood scrapped with their fingernails; the Smiths were driven from their flat, my Aunt Jemima drools, because they kept an Airedale cat, which was against the rules; old Gaffer Twinkle beat his wife, with many lusty smacks, because she used his pocketknife to pry out rusty tacks. I'm wearied by the beastly grind, I'm jaded and distraught, and I have problems in my mind that call for sober thought. And all the females of my house, my aunts and nieces nine, are chirping round like startled grouse, and wrench this heart of mine. When man, who wins the daily bread, to his bleak dwelling goes, his aunts should merely soak his head, and let him have repose.

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, July 25.—"Who will Governor Neff appoint to succeed Earle B. Mayfield on the railroad commission, if Mr. Mayfield is elected senator?" was the question asked by every person in the state capitol who discussed politics Monday morning.

The appointment, it is conceded, will be some one of Texas' leading figures, and will not, it was believed, fall to anyone now connected with the commission. The appointment is for two years only, when the successor, for the remaining two year portion of Mayfield's term will be elected. All the guesses and hypotheses were based on the belief that Mayfield will indoubtedly be winner in the run-off.

The Once Over

COVER FURNISHINGS WITH ASBESTOS—THE SYNTHETIC GIN HAS ARRIVED.

Isn't it wonderful what synthetic liquor will do to the furniture these days?

o o o

Have you noticed it? If you have given any house parties, of course you have. As a matter of fact, it has been generally discovered that all expenses of moving furniture can be saved by giving a house party and encouraging the guests to set the glasses wherever they wish. Contact with the liquor will remove the heaviest of sideboards—presto!—just like that. Swonderful!

o o o

Chemists have been looking into the matter and have reached the conclusion that five drops of home-made gin will make an oak door look like a lattice fence.

o o o

Ten drops will remove all trace of the door and convert the metal doorknob into a soft-boiled egg.

o o o

Keller used to be considered a great magician because he could make a small piano disappear. A guest upset a glass of rye on a piano stool at a very select week-end party last week, and inside of twenty seconds the stool, piano, and all the sheet music had disappeared. Had anybody been sitting at the piano he or she would have been practically ruined.

o o o

In Hollywood recently a movie actress gave a little affair. She passed around some bootleg Scotch. One of the men guests—a very strong man of powerful physique—accidentally spilled some of it on his shoe. He was leaning against the wall at the time. To his horror when he started to away his discovered his leg was missing from the knee down!

o o o

At a long Island reception a careless gentleman guest upset a glass of Bluff-Gordon on top of a bookcase. It destroyed the bookcase—a solid mahogany piece—and all the books except Scott Fitzgerald's latest novel. This book, as a matter of fact, rather weakened the gin.

o o o

And, of Laura! what it will do to a parquet floor! Before having a house party the wise hose or hostess always has a concrete surface laid.

o o o

Really the stuff is getting so powerful it isn't safe to handle. The careful drinker already is beginning to wear rubber gloves.

The Mucker

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

The Clark brothers and their cousin, a man by the name of Mason, who were the sole inhabitants of the ranch counseled a long regret—two hours at least, for the border was still ten miles away and speed at the last moment might be their sole means of salvation.

Billy was for moving at once before the reinforcements, for which he was sure Rozales had dispatched his messenger, could overtake them. But the others were tired and argued, too, that upon jaded ponies they could not hope to escape and so they waited, until just as they were ready to continue their flight, flight became impossible.

Darkness had fallen when the little party commenced to resaddle their ponies, and in the midst of their labors there came a rude and disheartening interruption. Billy had kept either the Chinaman or Bridge constantly upon watch toward the direction in which Rozales' men lolled smoking in the dark, and it was the crack of Bridge's carbine which awoke the Americans to the fact that though the border lay but a few miles away they were still far from safety.

As he fired Bridge turned in his saddle and shouted to the others to make for the shelter of the ranchhouse.

"There are two hundred of them," he cried. "Run for cover!"

Billy and the Clark brothers leaped to their saddles and spurred toward the point where Bridge sat pumping lead into the advancing enemy. Mason and Mr. Harding hurried Barbara to the questionable safety of the ranch house. The Mexican followed them and Bridge ordered Sing back to assist in barricading the doors and windows, while he and Billy and the Clark boys held the bandits in momentary check.

Falling back slowly and firing constantly as they came the four approached the house while Pesita and his full band advanced cautiously after them. They had almost reached the house when Bridge lunged forward from his saddle. The Clark boys had dismounted and were leading their ponies inside the house. Billy alone noted the wounding of his friend. Without an instant's hesitation he slipped from his saddle, back to where Bridge lay and lifted him in his arms. Bullets were pattering thick about them. A horseman far in advance of his fellows galloped forward with drawn saber to cut down the gringoes.

Billy, casting an occasional glance behind, saw the danger in time to meet it—just, in fact, as the weapon was cutting through the air toward his head. Dropping Bridge and dodging to one side he managed to escape the cut, and before the swordsman could recover Billy had leaped to his pony's side and seizing the rider about the waist dragged him to the ground.

"Rozales!" he exclaimed, and struck the man as he had never struck another in all his life, with the full force of his mighty muscles backed by his great weight, with clenched first full in the face.

There was a spurting of blood and a splintering of bone, and Captain Guillermo Rozales sank senseless to the ground, his career of crime and rapine ended forever.

Again Billy lifted Bridge in his arms and this time he succeeded in reaching the ranchhouse without opposition though a little crimson stream trickled down his left arm to drop upon the face of his friend as he deposited Bridge upon the floor of the house.

All night the Pesitistas circled the lone ranch house. All night they poured their volleys into the adobe walls and through the barricaded windows. All night the little band of defenders fought gallantly for their lives; but as day approached the futility of their endeavors was borne in upon them, for of the nine one was dead and three wounded, and numbers of their assailants seemed undiminished.

Billy Byrne had been lying all night upon his stomach before a window firing out into the darkness at the dim forms which occasionally showed against the dull, dead background of the moonless desert.

Presently he leaped to his feet and crossed the floor to the room in which the horses had been placed.

"Everybody fire toward the rear of the house as fast as they can," said Billy. "I want a clear space for my getaway."

"Where you goin'?" asked one of the Clark brothers.

"North," replied Billy, "after some of Funston's men on the border."

"But they won't cross," said Mr. Harding. 'Washington don't let them."

"They gotta," snapped Billy Byrne, 'an' they will when they know there's an American girl here with a bunch of Dagos yappin' around."

"You'll be killed," said Price Clark. "You can't never get through."

"Leave it to me," replied Billy. "Just get ready an' open that back door when I give the word, an' then shut it again in a hurry when I've gone through."

He led a horse from the side room and mounted it.

"Open her up, boes!" he shouted, and "S'long everybody!"

Price Clark swung the door open. Billy put spurs to his mount and threw himself forward flat against the animals' neck. Another moment he was through and a rattling fusillade of shots proclaimer the fact that his bold feat had not gone unnoted by the foe.

The little Mexican pony shot like a bolt from a crossbow out across the level desert. The rattling of carbines only served to add speed to its frightened feet. Billy sat erect in the saddle, guiding the horse with his left hand and working his revolver methodically with his right.

At a window behind him Barbara Harding stood breathless and spellbound until he had disappered into the gloom of the early morning darkness to the north then she turned with a weary sigh and resumed her place beside the wounded Bridge whose head she bathed with cool water, while he tossed in the delirium of fever.

The first streaks of daylight were piercing the heavens, the Pesitistas were rallying for a decisive charge, the hopes of the little band of besieged were at low ebb when from the west there sounded the pounding of many hoofs.

"Villa," moaned Westcott Clark, hopiessly. "We're done for now, sure enough. He must be comin' back from his raid on the border."

In the faint light of dawn they saw a column of horsemen deploy suddenly into a long, thin line which galloped forward over the flat earth, coming toward them like a huge, relentless engine of destruction.

The Pesitistas were watching, too. They had ceased firing and sat in their saddles forgetful of their contemplated charge.

The occupants of the ranchhouse were gathered at the small windows.

"What's them?" cried Mason—them things floating over 'em."

They're guidons!" exclaimed Price Clark —the guidons of a United States cavalry regiment. See 'em! See 'em? God! but don't they look good?"

There was a wild whoop from the lungs of the advancing cavalrymen. Pesita's troops answered it with a scattering volley, and a moment later the Americans were among them in that famous revolver charge which is now history.

Daylight had come revealing to the watchers in the ranchhouse the figures of the cambatants. In the thick of the fight loomed the giant figure of a man in nondescript garb which more closely resembled the apparel of the Pesitistas than it did the uniforms of the American soldiery; yet it was with them he fought, Barbara's eyes were the first to detect him.

"There's Mr. Bryne," she cried. "It must have been he who brought the troops."

"Why, he hasn't had time to reach the border yet," remonstrated one of the Clark boys, "much less get back here with help."

"There he is though," said Mr. Harding. "It's certainly strange. I can't understand what American troops are doing across the border—especially under the present administration."

The Pesitistas held their ground for but a moment then they wheeled and fled; but not before Persita himself had forced his pony close to that of Billy Byrne.

"Traitor!" screamed the bandit. "You shall die for this," and fired point-blank at the American.

Billy felt a burning sensation in his already wounded left arm; but his right was still good.

"For poor, bleeding Mexico!" he cried, and put a bullet through Pesita's forehead.

"What was that you said?" asked an officer reining in beside Billy.

"Every time I croak a Mexican," said Billy, "I feel like I'd done just that much more to make Mexico a decent place to live in."

Under escort of the men of the Thirteenth calvary who had pursued Villa's raiders into Mexico and upon whom Billy Byrne had stumbled by chance, the little party of fugitives came safely to United States soil, where all but one breathed sighs of heartfelt relief.

Bridge was given first aid by members of the hospital corps, who assured Billy that his friend would not die. Mr. Harding and Barbara were taken in by the wife of an officer, and it was at the quarters of the latter that Billy Byrne found her alone in the sitting-room.

The girl looked up as he entered, a sad smile upon her face. She was about to ask him of his wound, but he gave her no opportunity.

"I've come for you," he said. "I gave up once when I thought it was better for you to marry a man in your own class. I won't give you up again. You're mine—you're my girl and I'm goin' to take you with me. We're goin' to Galveston as fast as we can, and from there we're goin to Rio. You belonged to me long before Bridge saw you. He can't have you. Nobody can have you but me, and if anyone tries to keep me from taking you they'll get killed."

He took a step nearer that brought him close to her. She did not shrink—only looked up into his face with wide eyes filled with wonder. He seized her roughly in his arms.

"You are my girl!" he cried hoarsely. "Kiss me!"

"Wait!" she said. "First tell me what you meant by saying that Bridge couldn't have me. I never knew that Bridge wanted me, and I certainly have never wanted Bridge. O Billy! Why didn't you do this long ago? Months ago in New York I wanted you to take me; but you left me to another man whom I didn't love. I thought you had ceased to care, Billy, and since we have been together here—since that night in the room back of the office—you have made me feel that I was nothing to you. Take me, Billy! Take me anywhere in the world that you go. I love you and I'll slave for you—anything just to be with you."

"Barbara!" cried Billy Byrne, and then his voice was smothered by the pressure of warm, red lips against his own.

A half hour later Billy stepped out into the street to take his way to the railroad station that he might procure transportation for three to Galveston. Anthony Harding was going with them. He had listened to Barbara's pleas, and had finally volunteered to back Billy Byrne's flight from the jurisdiction of the law, or at least to a place where, under a new name, he could start life over again and live it as the son-in-law of old Anthony Harding should live.

Among the crowd viewing the havoc wrought by the raiders the previous night was a large man with a red face. It happened that he turned suddenly about as Billy Byrne was on the point of passing behind him. Both men started as recognition lighted their faces and he of the red face found himself looking down the barrel of a six-shooter.

"Put it up, Byrne," he admonished the other coolly. "I didn't know you were so good on the draw."

"I'm good on the draw all right, Flannagan," said Billy, "and I ain't drawin' for amusement neither. I gotta chance to get away and live straight, and have a little happiness in life, and, Flannagan, the man who tries to crab my game is goin' to get himself croaked. I'll never go back to stir alive. See?"

"Yes," said Flannagan. "I see; but I ain't tryin' to crab your game. I ain't down here after you this trip. Where you been, anyway, that you don't know the war's over? Why Coke Sheehan confessed a month ago that it was him that croaked Schneider, and the governor pardoned you about ten days ago."

"You stringin' me?" asked Billy, a vicious glint in his eyes.

"On the level," Flannagan assured him. "Wait, I gotta clippin' from the Trib in my clothes somewheres that gives you all the dope."

He drew some papers from his coat pocket and handed one to Billy.

"Turn your back and hold up your hands while I read," said Byrne, and as Flannagan did as he was bid, Billy unfolded the soiled bit of newspaper and read that which set him a-trembling with nervous excitement.

A moment later Detective Sergeant Flannagan ventured a rearward glance to note how Byrne was receiving the joyful tidings which the newspaper article contained.

"Well, I'll be!" ejaculated the sleuth, for Billy Byrne was already

TODAY'S POEM

MARGUERITE.

How is it that just mouth and cheek,
And nose and eyes of Marguerite
Intrigue together so they speak
Things that are so wildly sweet?
No other face speaks so to me,
Of life and joy and love elate,
And little singing birds that mate,
And dreams that stir me restlessly.

No peace bud wears a sweeter flush
Than her soft cheek I burn to touch
With but my trembling finger,
Her eyes I fear, I look away,
Then look again. Perhaps I may
And so—and so I linger.

Shade Trees Are Dying in Paris

(By International News Service)

PARIS, July 26.—Paris's world-renowned shade trees, which contribute more than any other single factor to make the famous boulevards distinctive, are dying a lingering death.

The motor car, especially the coughing, spluttering taxi-cab, is responsible, report has been made to the municipal council.

The Parisian atmosphere, formerly filled merely with odors of garlic, cheese, frying fish and other delicacies, has been contaminated by gasoline, oil and dust.

These foreign substances are killing the shade trees, says the report, in consequence of which the municipal council has ordered stricter enforcement of the law against "smoking" exhausts and muffler cut-outs.

Little Stories For Bedtime

MRS. BULLY MAKES UP HER MIND.

Swimmer the Swallow and Mrs. Skimmer had gone to hunt for their breakfast when Bully the English Sparrow took Mrs. Bully over to their house. Perhaps he knew that Mr. and Mrs. Simmer were out, though I doubt if it would have made any difference if they had been at ome. Mrs. Bully nodded her head in approval as they approached the doorway. It was in the trunk of an old apple tree, not too high from the ground, and one could sit in the doorway and get a splendid view of the Old Orchard.

"It certainly is a very nice location," said Mrs. Bully as she inspected the outside. Then without wasting any time she disappeared inside. She was gone some little time, but when she came out Bully knew by her face that she had found a house to suit her.

"It is one of the most comfortable houses I ever was in," said she. "It is nicely shaded from the sun, and that big limb just over the doo way prevents rain from running in. It is perfectly dry and large enough to be very comfortable; I do detest a house so small that you have o go outside to turn around. I think we'll move in at once. It will save us a lot of bother if we get moved in before the people who live here return. Who did you say they are?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Skimmer, the swallows with the white breasts," replied Bully. "I expect they will try to make us a lot of trouble when they find us here."

"Let them!" snapped Mrs. Bully. "I never yet saw a swallow that I was afraid of. Now let's get busy and get their stuff out of here before they get back. It will be much easier to keep them out than to put hem out, and I don't propose to let them get in."

With this Mrs. Bully once more disappeared in the house of Skimmer the Swallow. Right away stray a d feathers began to come out of the doo. Mrs. Bully was tearing the nest of Mr. and Mrs. Skimmer to pieces as fast as she could. Bully reached in and tugged and pulled, while Mrs. Bully pushed, and between them they managed to get all of Skimmer's nest out in a very short time. With the straw and feathers went two little eggs of pure white. Bully saw them and deliberately broke them.

"I think we can use some of that stuff when we build our own nest," said Mrs. Bully as she sat in the doorway to rest and get her breath. "If those people come back and try to take any of it away you stop them."

All this time the other little people of the Old Orchard had been watching what was going on, too astonished to know what to do or think. Nothing like this had ever happened in the Old Orchard before, and it was hard to believe. Of course there had been quarrels, and some times worse things had happened, as when Sammy Jay or Chatterer the Red Squirrel had stolen some one's eggs. But never had anybody deliberately taken the house of some one else while they were living in it. Of course, it was wholly an affair between Bully and Skimmer and no business of any one else. Still, it did seem as if something ought to be done about it. While they were still discussing the matter Goldie the Oriole spied Skimmer and Mrs. Skimmer coming home.

"Wait until we see what they do," he advised. "Perhaps they will be able to drive these disagreeable people out without our help. I have an idea that something exciting is going to happen presently."

WASHINGTON, July 26. — Ever hear of the cematological division of the weather bureau? It's one of the busiest little branches of the government establishment in Washington.

The weather sharps who do nothing but prognosticate day after day lead a placid life compared with the arduous labors of the scientists connected with the climatological division.

Each day the weather bureau is inundated with queries, some good, some not so good, but all urgent, requesting replies. These queries are shunted to the climatological division, and then ensues a wrestling match which would make a heavyweight catch-as-catch-can bout resemble a playful tussle.

There is no type of suit so thoroughly practical and smart for the small boy as the one combining trousers either of the straight knee or knicker type with smock or middy. The suit suggested today is of this type, made of a heavy linen in white or color and bound at all the edges with self fabric in contrasting color. Yellow and blue, red and blue, or green and lavender might be combined, and, of course, a white suit could be trimmed with any color.

A clever little suit of this type offered for fall features straight knee trousers and a smart little middy cut V neck made of a bright red knitted wool fabric trimmed with white, the white appearing as a deep band on the bottom of the middy and to form collar and cuffs. Wool and silk knitted fabrics are popular and practical for the developments of cool weather suits for small boys, and a material also very much approved is tricot.

A tricot suit seen for a small boy featured knee trousers and a smock of the Russian blouse type, displaying only an inch or two of the trouser legs. It had a round neck, opened just a bit in front so it could be slipped over the head, and elbow sleeves. All the edges were banded with silk braid in contrasting color, and a little sash with fringed ends held the blouse in at the waist line. With the suit a matching tam was displayed.

The Smock Suit is the Ideal One For the Small Boy.

Styles for boys change so little from season to season that novelty is arrived at principally through the medium of interesting fabric and color combinations and minor trimming touches.

MRS. MILLER THANKS FRIENDS FOR SUPPORT.

I want to thank my friends who so kindly supported me in the primary election Saturday.

I am in the race to win, and feel confident that I will do so if those of my friends whose first choice was defeated in the first primary, and those who voted for me, will come to the polls in the run-off primary Aug. 26 and support me.

Your help will be deeply and sincerely appreciated.

MRS. R. L. MILLER.

Thought Three Little Children Needed Mother's Care

"My stomach suffering was so severe that I could not have lasted much longer. I did not care so much for myself but did not want to leave my three little children who needed a mother's love and care. A cousin in California wrote me about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I took a course of it. I have since been entirely well." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. NEW STAMFORD CHURCH OPENED

Is the Largest in West Texas

Special to the Record News

STAMFORD, July 26.—The completion of West Texas' largest church—St. John's Methodist—was celebrated by a "home coming" program Sunday. Hundreds of visitors joined with local churchmen in the celebration. A mammoth picnic was staged in the spacious basement of the structure. An afternoon program of speeches was rendered.

Among the speakers were Starkey Duncan, one of the original members of the building board; Reese Pratt, N. S. Holland, Bernard Bryant, Rev. J. H. Hamblin and Rev. David Crockett. The church was modeled after Trinity at Dallas, being much larger and more modernly built. To replace the church would cost at least $150,000. The struggles of the building committee were reviewed in a speech at the "homecoming" celebration.

NEW GOWN

By ELOISE.

Surely the beaded dress has earned its place in society and when it comes sleeveless as this one does one is tempted to succumb to the sleeveless mode. Black georgette with steel beads covering it in a simple design makes this frock. It is worn over a black satin slip with silver shoulder straps. The low loose belt is made of strands of the beads and three bead ornaments placed in the front.

The sleeveless armholes are outlined with a single strand of beads. The frock is designed for afternoon or restaurant wear. It is an American-ized French style. The French women are wearing sleeveless gowns at the streets and boulevards when shopping or out for a stroll. They are also seen at the races and on the beaches but American women have not yet gone that far. They feel quite daring in wearing the sleeveless gown to a rather formal afternoon affair.

It was a happy and contented trio who took the train the following day on their way back to New York city after bidding Bridge good-bye in the improvised hospital and exacting his promise that the would visit them in New York in the near future.

It was a month later spring was filling the southland with new, sweet life. The joy of living was reflected in the song of birds and the opening of buds. Beside a slow-moving stream a man squatted before a tiny fire. A battered tin can, half filled with water stood close to the burning embers. Upon a shapened stick the man roasted a bit of meat, and as he watched it curling at the edges as the flames licked it he spoke aloud though there was none to hear:

Just for a con I'd like to know (yes, he crossed over long ago;
And be was right, believe me, be I)
If somewhere in the South,
Down where the clouds lie on the sea,
he found his sweet Penelope
With buds of roses in her hair and kisses on her mouth.
"Which is what they will be singing about me of these days," he commented.

WHEN MEN UNDERSTAND

Men do not understand the aggravations or even the physical labor connected with housework. If they did, homes would not suffer from makeshifts.

No home in this community should try to get along without natural gas.

Fires of all kinds are contrary things, dirty and uncomfortable. In summer they are almost a crime.

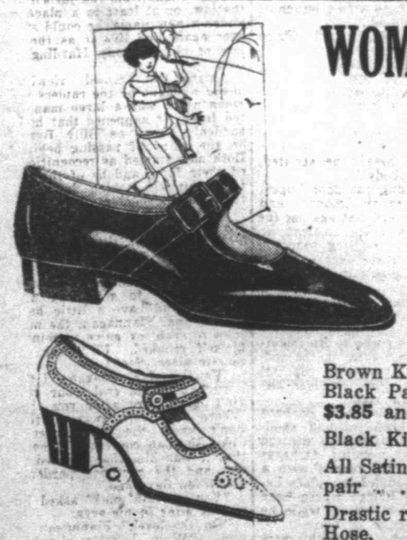

Easing Up Housework

Natural gas for cooking and lighting eases up the housework wonderfully, makes cleanliness possible and avoids heat and dirt.

Rightfully used, it is the cheapest fuel, too.

Are you compelling the women in your house to fuss with wood or oil when gas is available?

Spuds Tie for Third Place When Keene Trims Buffs

SERIES OPENER GRABBED OFF WHEN INVINCIBLE HURLING CONTINUES IN DRIVE FOR TOP

Bischoff and Tanner Hit for Circuit; Bescher Swipes a Couple of Sacks; Three Double Plays Halt Buffs; Keene Shows Abundant Stuff, and in Six Innings Only 18 at Plate.

By "SPIKE" COOPER

Slugging the offerings of Glazier for seven runs while Vic Keene "poured it on the Buffs," the Spudders jumped fourth place completely in the standing yesterday when they went into a tie for third with San Antonio.

Two errors, a couple of passes and four hits netted the Buffs three markers, while the Spudders turned seven hits into a like number of runs, thanks to a couple of husky wallops by Bischoff and Tanner.

The Buffs presented a somewhat shifted line-up and some new faces as well when they drove into Athletic park yesterday, but the attempts of the Whitemanites proved futile before the superb hurling of Keene.

Josefson has a regular job in right, and Fred Beck gave him lots to think about with three well hit drives to that garden yesterday. Johnny Monroe is back in the Texas league again after an absence of a year and a part. He is doing the keystone duty and Ray Blades has been shifted to short. "Whitey" himself is patroling center and "Little Bit" ranges around the entire territory beyond the line from second to third. Gene Bailey was at first and Denoville incubated the bench. Bribeck, latest acquisition of the Bayou nine went behind the plate for a couple of rounds. At that, they're a good club.

The story of the contest is easily told however. Keene, Brother, it was keen, too. Although a trifle wild in spots, Vic disposed of hitters at will and gave up but four blows, one of which was nothing for a hitter to boast of. In the second, third, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth inings, only three hitters per round presented arms.

The Buffs got away to a lead of one lonely marker in the first, but Bischoff erased that with a wallop over the Coca-Cola sign in deep left field.

Runs Without Hits.

There were bits of erratic fielding by both clubs, but the Buffs were guilty of more bobbles than were the Spudders. In the third after Bisch had socked one, Keene beat out a hit to second. Bescher forced the runner at the middle station when he hit to second. Tanner crashed one through Doyle and Bescher went to second. A clean steal was hung up by Bescher when he hooked around Doyle at third. Adams fired a hit to center and Bescher scored, Tanner coming in from second, a gift from Beninghoven on a passed ball.

Seven All Told.

Four more markers were added in the fourth on one hit. Beck lined out to Josefson and White fired a liner to Blades. Bischoff worked Galzier for a pass and went to second when Keene also walked. Beninghoven then caught Keene flatfooted off first and as Bischoff headed for third, Bailey threw low to Doyle and the ball rolled to the stand, Bischoff scoring and Keene taking third when Benninghoven lost the throw to the plate. Bescher walked and imediately stole second. Tanner came up and sent a long drive to left which took a neat hop over the fence for an "all-the-way" trip, counting Keene and Bescher as well.

In the fourth, the Buffs were presented with their second run, gained without the aid of a hit. After two were out, Josefson and Doyle walked. On a short passed ball, Josefson started for third and scored when Bischoff threw wild, the ball rolling to left field.

Buffs Get Last One.

The last marker came in the ninth. Bailey hit to Adams who threw the ball to the stand over Beck's head, Bailey taking second. Whiteman hit into a double play, White to Adams to Beck, Blades being forced at second, after he had walked. Bailey took third on the play. A passed ball permitted Bailey to score the final run of the game.

Pitchin'—Oh Boy!

The Spudders are getting some real pitching of late. Confidence seems to have taken charge of the staff and it's merely a matter of form, the nine innings played. With pitching of the kind received during the past two weeks, no team in minor league baseball can keep them off the top. The hitters will do their part, and the games of the last few days go to demonstrate just what will happen when the hurlers keep up their end of the line.

After the game Monday, Flaherty volunteered the information that he had lost his last game of this season. He further commented on the fact that he received almost as many runs in that one game as Shreveport gave him in the entire first half.

Keene has already proven his ability. All he needs or wants is just a little help and he'll beat any of 'em. Mokan won his three games in five days. What more could one ask. Perdue and Wheeler are known quantities. They'll do their part when called on to do it. Then there's Ruth and Ramsey waiting for a chance to get into the fray. Jumbo is anxious to get another start here and feels that his arm is ready to go.

They'll all probably have a chance to step the route during the remaining part of the week. Houston has three more here, then we get Beaumont again.

FRENCH TO CELEBRATE WHERE HUNS GAVE UP

(By International News Service)

PARIS, July 26.—Lest battlefield visitors forget, the French government will celebrate Armistice day, 1922, by the erection of an inscribed slab on the spot where Marshal Foch received the German delegation come to accept his armistice terms.

This spot, isolated, is in the middle of the forest of Compeigne, which marked at the time the terminus of the German and of the allied military railroads.

On the slab, which will resemble a tombstone, will be carved the words: "Here, the eleventh of November, 1918, succumbed the criminal pride of the German empire vanquished by the free peoples whom it hoped to enslave."

BEBB TO MEET ELLIS IN FINALS

Semi-Final Matches Are Fastest of Tournament

By "DON" WELDON.

Ellis and Bebb were the winners of the semi-final matches in the Record News annual tennis tournament and will meet today to decide the ownership of the large silver loving cup which is offered for the winner of the championship. The contest will be a snappy and hard fought affair for the two men are so nearly matched that there is no way of guessing at the winner. Their records on the local courts are practically equal as both have met the best here and have won in every game. They have met as opponents before and have split the games in such a manner that no one, will venture an opinion as to the better of the two on the court.

Ellis met Hamilton Tuesday and took two sets 6-3, 6-4. The points would indicate a slow game but such was not the case. Hamilton played an excellent brand of tennis and was strong on the serving end. Ellis however, was all over the court at once and made returns that seemed impossible to reach. He put the ball over net with speed every time and played a nervy game, taking chances that invariably went to his advantage. To stop this attack Hamilton changed his style and sent lobs over the net to the rear of the court and was successful for a time in keeping him at the baseline. Ellis came back with a smashing attack that would carry off any game and took the match and a chance at the cup.

Bebb Fights Hard.

In three hard sets Bebb won from Hines 9-7, 2-6, 9-3. The first set went to Bebb only after he had played some of the best tennis that has been seen on the local courts. It was a long set with the points dueced time and again and the set tied twice. Hines put up a strong game and gave the winner a fight for every point. His service was not up to his usual style but his returns were of the best. His backhand was working fine and Bebb was unable to take points from this quarter. The second set was a one-sided affair with Hines playing a perfect game. In the third, Bebb came back strong and took 6 of the 9 games and won the match.

Consolation Start.

Playing in the first of the consolation matches Akin won over Myres 6-2, 6-4. He had the best the best of the games at all times and was never in danger of losing the match. Myres was not up to his usual form and several of his returns went wild. Akin showed up especially when at the net and his terrific smashes to the sides of the court won the contest for him.

Finals Today.

The final contest will be played today at 4:30 at the courts at Thirteenth street. The courts will be put in the best of condition and the match will be refereed by Paul Hines of the tournament committee. It is expected that a large crowd will be present to witness what promises to be the hardest fought tennis contest yet seen in Wichita Falls.

Play in the consolation contest will not be staged today as the entries will see the main event. The matches will start again tomorrow for the racket to be given by Noble-Little store.

The trophies for the winners in the singles and doubles will be on display at Collier & Landon's store today and for a few days until presented to the winners.

Confidence Is Greatest Asset On Court, and Risks Unnecessary

By "DON" WELDON

The first thing to fix firmly in your mind in playing a match, is never to allow an opponent to play a shot he likes if it is posible to make him play one he does not. Find his weakness and then pound it without mercy. Don't try to decide your style of play before you begin the match but let the style of your opponent decide the style you are to used. If he dislikes to meet a netman take your position there and play the ball hard. If he wants you at the net stay at the back of the court, and force him to come in. If he attacks viciously meet his attack with equal speed and force.

Remember that the strongest offense is to attack, for when the other man is kept busy meeting your play he will have less time to formulate an attack.

Don't try to beat a man at his own game for he is better at that than anybody else. If he plays a steady game you must go in and play to win and make your strokes hard and to the sides. If he is erratic and wild play safe and take advantage of his errors. It saves you trouble and takes his confidence.

Above all never change a winning game. If your game is winning there is no use in trying one that is not sure to do so.

If your game is losing try other styles and keep trying until you find the style that works best against the player opposing you. It is hard to say when you are really beaten. If you are playing well yet lose the first set 6-3 or 6-4 with the loss of only one service, you should not change. It is only a break of the game. But if you see that your opponent is on to your game and is returning your strokes change and see if the change doesn't help.

Take risks when you are behind but never when you are ahead. Risks are only worth while when you have all to win and nothing to lose. It may win the match and certainly can do no harm. Above all never lose your nerve in a match. If you lose your confidence you are handing your opponent the game. If he has you worried don't show it. Remember that he feels just as bad as you do and any kind of weakening on your part will encourage him.

Don't worry. Don't fuss. Luck evens up in the long run and worry only helps your opponent. A smile will win many a point for it gives an impression of confidence that will shake your man's nerve. Fight all the time. The harder the strain the better you will play, but do it easily and happily, and enjoy it and your game will be better and will do you more good.

Case 18: A ball having been played over the net bounds back into the court from which it came. The player reaches over the net and plays it before it strikes the ground. Has he the right to do so?

Decision: Yes, provided he does not touch the net while the ball is in play. He has the right to play the ball at any time from the moment it crosses the net into his court until it touches the ground a second time.

St. Louis All Het Up Over Dugan Deal; C. of C. Makes Big Protest

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—A vigorous protest against the purchase by the New York Yankees of Infielder Joe Dugan and Outfielder Ed Smith from Boston was sent today to Baseball Commissioner Landis and Byron B. Johnson and John A. Heydler, respectively, presidents of the American and National leagues, by F. W. A. Vesper, president of the St. Louis chamber of commerce.

"When a team, hard pushed in midseason, can conjure a neighboring city into selling its stars to make sure-proof their flag, baseball has reached a point where the pocketbook and not the clubs or the players, become the deciding factors,' the letter said.

"If the holder of the highest purse is to decide the races the sooner the game follows the tainted sports of the past, the better. No red blooded American can cheer while a team that purchases the pennant as the highest bidder, romps to victory over less fortunate, smaller and consequently more moderately financed clubs.

"If the dollar mark is to be the emblem of victory in the baseball world, the American people will have to take more seriously the detrimental disclosures of the past, and fairly judge that it is true that baseball has sold its birthright.

WILLIAMS CRACKS OUT NUMBER 22

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Kenneth Williams knocked out his twenty-second home run with Sisler on base in the fourth inning of the game between the New York and St. Louis Americans. Mays was pitching. This puts Williams two circuit drives behind Clarence Walker of Philadelphia, leading American league home run hitters.

Low Wages Sell German Products

(By International News Service.)

BERLIN, July 26. — Though there is much more unemployment in countries with a favorable exchange, the market in countries with a low exchange is only a seemingly good one. The German industries, for instance, sell their goods for comparatively small prices, the workmen paying the price for the depreciation of the mark by getting minimum wages compared to those of countries with a favorable exchange.

Strange to say, a sudden rise of the mark would involve a grave peril for German economics, as immediately the industries would be unable to export their wares.

Total taxes on theater admissions now amount to 47 per cent of ticket prices.

SPIKING 'EM

Top o' the Morning Musings At Mush With One Joseph Cooper, Esq., Otherwise Known As Just Plain Spike.

The Spudders have at last earned a just reward.

The Spudders have at last gained favorable entrance into the sanctum accepted by many as the "yea and thou shalt" of Texas baseball.

Under a Fort Worth date line of July 24, "Pop" Boone, sport scribbler of the Fort Worth Record and champion of the Panthers, comes forth in his "Palaver" with the following:

"Yes, brother; we gotta hard battle, but if we have a hookup with anybody, I look for it to be with them Spudders, and not Dallas. Also the Cats would just as soon play a series with the nine of the old nick himself as play a series in Wichita Falls. And that ain't no lie, either."

Pop Boone is one of the few sport writers of the South who does not hesitate to state his convictions. He is one of the few sport writers who speaks frankly with his clientele.

Further still, Pop Boone is one of the greatest students of the game today. His insight into the grand old game is far above that of the average sport writer. His judgment is accepted without question by thousands of fans throughout the state. And it is because he speaks plainly his beliefs, opinions and observations.

Pop Boone is truly a sport editor, and all because of his impartial and unbiased stand for a better, cleaner and more honorable game.

Now Pop comes clean with the Spudders.

It is a wonder he was not mobbed for his quoted declaration.

But that paragraph is Pop's candid belief. However, Spudder fans appreciate the circumstances under which the declaration was born.

Most momentous of all Spudder accomplishments was the recent "treeing of the Cats in Athletic park."

But Pop's voiced opinion is not entirely the result of the last Cat-Spudder encounter. He has repeatedly championed the cause of the Spudders. He knows they are a REAL ball club.

Pop, the Spudders thank you for the recognition, although we here must maintain that it was forced upon you, but you're a clean sport to come through with as you did.

And for "them kind words" we're inviting you to come with "your Cats" during the discussed "saw-off" and after the last game, be our guest for the Dixie series.

France Laughs at Dry Ocean Liners

(By International News Service)

PARIS, July 26.—August Busch's protest to President Harding regarding the sale of liquor on shipping board passenger vessels interests and amuses the French press.

"No passenger is going to take an American line if he cannot find anything to quench his thirst but ice water and lemonade," says one paragrapher.

"A trans-Atlantic line on which one cannot get his little cocktail is a dead line," predicts another.

"It is probable that the American government will continue to serve 'drinks' on its ships," comments a third. "It will thereby justify the famous maxim: 'Do as I say, but do not do as I do.'"

HUBBY IS TARDY: WIFE GETS DIVORCE

(By International News Service)

AKRON, Ohio, July 22.—After witnesses testified that her husband, Carl S. Glover, was so late in arriving at his wedding anniversary dinner that there was danger the meal would spoil, Judge H. C. Spicer granted Mrs. Glover a divorce and authorized her to resume use of her maiden name.

Witnesses declared that, after dinner was finally served to the guests, Glover entered late, ate hurriedly, seemingly paid no attention to Mrs. Glover nor to the guests and departed, explaining that he was "very busy."

Mrs. Glover, daughter of W. B. Miller, former local capitalist, now living in New York, charged gross neglect and said she was compelled to live on her personal income.

The couple have no children. They were married in October, 1910.

RED TAPE HOLDS UP BUILDING OF CITY

(By International News Service)

RHEIMS, July 26.—Work of reconstruction is being held up by an annoying technicality, according to the Matin's correspondent here.

After two years of legal formality the municipality has started its program of straightening and rebuilding streets torn up by German shells.

But it has just been brought to mind that the two chief streets of Rheims are national highways and do not come under municipal jurisdiction. Now property owners who have already started to have work done under the municipal law are inquiring if it will be necessary to tear down what has already been constructed, and many refuse to continue until they know whose program they are authorized to carry out.

BUMPER CROPS BRING IN SURPLUS LABOR

BALLINGER, July 26.—Invigorating reports of promised bumper crops in the Ballinger section inspired scores of workers to hie this way, causing a plethora of labor whose needs cannot be filled, it was announced by the chamber of commerce today. The arrival of the labor was premature, officials say, although in another month or two thousands of laborers will be required to gather the cotton crop.

CUT VALUATION TO HELP ORIENT

Taxes Reduced to $100 a Mile

Special to the Record News.

RULE, July 26.—Haskell county commissioners have a "feeling" for the down and out. A few days ago in session at Haskell they were visited by citizens of Rule and other towns along the K. C. M. & O. railroad who urged that the body reduce the valuation on the company's 30 miles of road through Haskell county in order to help the road continue operation. The melted hearts of the commission flowed to the tune of $100 a mile valuation on the Orient lines in the county. The valuation of the line is probably $10,000 a mile. But it'll help lots.

PARIS DOESN'T WANT U. S. TRAFFIC SYSTEM

(By International News Service.)

PARIS, July 26.—Should the great cities of the world grow alike or each try to keep its individuality?

Upon the answer to that question will be based the decision of the city of Paris whether to adopt the red-green-white fight system to traffic guidance now in use on Fifth avenue, New York.

Opposition to the acceptance of a proposal made by Dr. John A. Harriss, designer of the Fifth avenue signals, to put such lights along the Avenue de l'Opera is based upon the feeling that they will give visitors to Paris a stereotyped impression—that Americans will forget the beauty of the broad avenue and say, "Isn't that just like Fifth avenue?" This would hurt the pride of the French.

NEW YORK BONDS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Liberty issues again overshadowed all other features of the bond market today. Still higher records were made by the 3½s at $101.16 the first 4s at $101.68 and the first 4 1-4s at $101.68, and the fourth 4 1-4s at $101.74.

High grade rails, industrials and utilities were carried forward by the strength of U. S. war loans, but eased in the latter part of the session under profit taking.

International loans were irregular, moderate gains in several of the Latin-American group notably, Uruguay 8s being offset by fractional reaction in French municipals. Total sales (par value) aggregated $14,201,000.

The few new offerings of the day included the Fremont joint stock land bank of Nebraska $2,000,000 5 per cent farm loan bonds placed through a local syndicate.

WHEAT SHOWS NET ADVANCE

Liberal Exports Are Reported

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Liberal export buying together with a falling off in the volume of hedging sales had a moderate bullish effect on wheat prices today. The market closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to two cents higher, with September 1.07 3-8 to 1.07 1-2 and December 1.09 3-8 to 1.09 1-2. Corn lost 1-8 to 1 1-8, oats were unchanged to a shade lower, and provisions 10 to 20c down.

All the big export houses bought wheat futures steadily, and it was estimated that more than 4,000,000 bushels were taken for nearby shipment to Europe, including 1,500,000 bushels of hard winter grades to go from ports on the Gulf of Mexico.

Corn and oats lacked any aggressive support. The bulk of trade consisted largely of spreads.

Provisions dragged lower, influenced by a break in lard values at Liverpool.

Stocks Make Rally In Late Trading After Weak Start

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Stocks were irregular to heavy at the opening of today's active session, but made general improvement later on following favorable reports regarding the coal and railroad strikes.

The most significant feature of today's operations was the absence of pool liquidation, such as marked yesterday's trading.

While buying of rails was relatively light, the demand embraced many of the roads affected by labor troubles, including coalers and issues of the southwestern division. Equipments also were substantially better and independent steels denoted short covering.

Motors and oils, weakest features of recent days, also reflected that change of speculative sentiment, although additional cuts were announced in crude oils, and reviews of trade conditions hinted at further curtailment in the automobile industry.

The strength of coppers and allied metals was ascribed to an increase of exports, coupled with the firmer tone of prices for those products for fall delivery. Sugar owed their increased strength to the buoyant market for raw commodities and chemicals and fertilizers made moderate response to better market conditions.

WIDE AND FAST COTTON CHANGE

Market Closes At a Small Gain

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 25.—Fluctuations in cotton were wide and rapid today, the market at one time being extremely soft, but rallying sharply later and retaining this steadiness to the close when the list showed net gains on the day of 4 to 10 points. At one stage of the session prices were 10 to 15 points higher than yesterday's finals from which they stumped to levels 43 to 48 points below. October traded as high as 21.00 and fell off to 20.40 and closed at 20.95.

Buying became very heavy when Corpus Christi claimed that it was feeling a good export demand for new crop cotton. In the late trading a marked scarcity of contracts arose.

Cotton closed steady at net advance of 4to 10 points.

HOOCH TAKES PAINT OFF OF COURTHOUSE

(By International News Service.)

NORRISTOWN, Pa., July 26.—Corporal Rodney Shaver, of the state police, poured eighteen gallons of contrabrand whiskey down a rain spout in the rear of the office of Magistrate Clark. The liquor had been captured in raids by the state police. Before entering the spout the "hooch" ran over a tin roof, and, after the liquor had disapeared, it was found that the red paint on the roof was blistered.

"No wonder that 'hooch' has a kick," Magistrate Clark said. "Anybody who would drink that stuff does not have a high regard for his health."

BLONDY CROSS TAKES COUNT

Morrissey Wins in 5th Round

BLONDY CROSS—S ... ...

It was in the fifth of a 10-round scrap that Smiling Blondy Cross, sensational whirlwind from Fort Worth, plunged heavily to the mat last night at Electra and took the count of ten. When he was picked up by officials of the ring, and came to, he smiled and asked: "Why didn't I get up?"

Joe Morrissey of Salt Lake, Utah, dropped Blondy with a hard right to the stomach—the first time Cross ever took the count on such a punch.

It was a snappy melee for five rounds. Both fighters mixed it, and Blondy showed speed that is likened only to lightning. Morissey landed the first blow, a left jab to the face, and Cross was on him like a young tiger.

Morrissey bided his time, landing effective, hard stabs to the face and body in rainy fashion, and struck to count. In the first round, he rushed Blondy to the ropes, and all but beat him out. But the plucky little Panther Town lad came back with a smile on his face and showed more fight.

In the last of the third, a stiff right cross sent Cross to the mat. He took a count of nine.

Cross was outclassed from the start but drew cheers when he arose from the mat and continued to battle. Morrissey was the favorite throughout.

The entertainment was started with a four-round prelim between two "flea weights" both brothers, while Sailor Miller of Frisco and Kid Snyder of Burkburnett put up a classy four-round go for a semi-windup that ended in a draw.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

a peace officer many years and one of the bravest sheriffs that Texas has ever known.

BORN ON A FARM, HE LOVED the land and he lived close to nature. He was not a wastral and he acquired thousands of acres in Hill county when land was cheap and men of vision who could foresee the Texas to come acquired princely domains and accumulated wealth for those who were to come after them.

JOHN A. STEVENS WAS MORE than a citizen of Hill county. He became a time-honored institution. He became widely known as a stalwart friend and never-say-die follower of Joseph Weldon Bailey. Bailey was his idol. As a Mississippian, he loved the former senator and as an adopted son of Texas, it was his dream as well as his ambition to live long enough to see Bailey the presidential nominee of his party and chief executive of this republic. Stevens was for his friends, right or wrong. He often said to the writer, "A man needs his friends when he is fighting with his back to the wall. He can take care of himself when the riding is easy." He was for Bailey. He was for Bailey all the time, year in and year out and the night was never too dark nor the elements too fierce for this patriarch of Hill county to cross the country when the call was sounded.

HE HAD HIS OWN CODE, HE worshiped his own God, he believed in state rights, his word was his bond, he respected the rights of his neighbors, he loved his family and friends and he hated his enemies. And yet he was one of the kindliest and most generous of men. He was not a professional reformer, nor did he shout his creeds from the house tops or kneel at the street corner. He visited the sick, he clothed the naked, he fed the hungry, he gave an encouraging word to those in sorrow and men loved him for his rugged traits of character, his child-like simplicity and his boundless hospitality.

FOR YEARS AND YEARS THE Stevens' barbecue at the home place near Covington was one of the events of its kind in the southwest. Highly prized indeed was a bid from John A. Stevens to come to his barbecue and break bread with those who would assemble there. It was an open air affair under the majestic kings of the forest near the Stevens home where the leaders and the prominent rank and filers of the Bailey democracy and the personal friends of the patriarch made merry as well as made political history for their party and the state. He had a most interesting family and his wife and his children and his grandchildren always made up the reception committee to welcome the visitors and to demonstrate to all comers that the hospital of ante-helleum days did not die with the passing of the planters' republic. He was a man of magnificent physique, tall and commanding, straight as an Indian and in his prime he must have resembled one of the stately warriors pictured in Fennimore Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans."

HE WAS NOT A POLISHED product of college or university, but his knowledge was amazing, his wit caustic in defense of his friends, his folk lore a study as well as a puzzle to those who knew him and his knowledge of American history, political and otherwise marked him as a student and lover of the fundamentals of democracy. He believed with Thomas Jefferson in the freedom of the mind and the soul, civil and religious liberty, the right of trial by jury for the smallest and meanest of mankind and that the people the least governed were the best governed. He was 78 when the call came and his soul went marching on. Joseph Weldon Bailey has had thousands of devoted adherents during his career and bands of devoted friends, but throughout his public career he never had one who loved him better or who was more steadfast and loyal than the princely old patriarch who died on the eve of the election in the county of Hill.

REGARDLESS OF THESE WILD and tumultuous and spectacular days an devents in the political and industrial life of commonwealth and country, the writer waves them all aside to place in cold type this simple story of the annals of a plain farmer and a hundred per cent American who was a gallant soldier in his boyhood, a splendid citizen throughout his lifetime, a friend who would go to the end of the road with another friend, a man who loved his family and his kind. Flowers for the grave of John A. Stevens, in the shade of the trees that he loved so well!

GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW CHURCH

Electra Baptists 'Spud In'

Special to the Record News

ELECTRA, July 25.—The "spudding in" ceremony of the new Baptist church occurred Monday morning, when representatives of the various organizations of the city took part in removing the first dirt for the new structure.

Mayor W. M. Calvert congratulated the members of the Baptist church on their accomplishment, pointing out that the entire city was proud of their work. Hyson T. Johnson, manager of the chamber of commerce, pointed out that the "spudding in" of the new structure was of more importance to the coming generation that the spudding in of any of the oil wells in the field.

Rev. Powers of Wichita Falls stated that Wichita Falls was in a manner jealous of the accomplishments of Electra. Not that the county metropolis in any way was envious of the good work of the sister city, but the jealousy was aroused over the spirit that has made these things possible.

At the conclusion of the program in the church, representatives of the chamber of commerce, young men's business league, the building committee of the church, the Sunday school, B. Y. P. U., and other branches were presented with picks and shovels and at a signal from Rev. Powers the first dirt was moved.

The new Baptist church will be a $50,000 structure made of brick and will be one of the best churches in west Texas.

Ben Neal Returns Safe and Single

They filled the pot; they boiled the tar;

They found his train was late.

Ben Neal, long mourned as lost by the Wichita [illegible] turned home, safe and single.

Feather Dance Is Latest Here

It's a "feather dance," according to Billy Buzzard.

Whatever htat is—Billy is "pulling one" at the Comus club dance Friday evening on the floor of the Lake Wichita pavilion.

The question of the feather is to be determined at the dance. If you are there, you will probably find out what kind of a dance that is. There bas been the turkey trot, the kitchen sink and sidewalk glide, the toddle, shimmy and what-not—and now Billy comes along and springs a new one—the "feather dance."

Novelty electrical effects have been arranged for the occasion, according to Billy.

Chock Is Chock!

Chock beer is chock beer.

According to Dr. A. H. Douglass, it is.

Doc is busy testing several bottles of supposedly intoxicating ingredients, which were turned over to him by Federal Officer Archie Tyler recently.

Yesterday, he was asked what kind of drink he was testing.

He was sure it was chock—but then he wouldn't swear it was until the test was finished.

CARD OF THANKS

I take this method of thanking you, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, for the support given me in the election last Saturday, and I wish to assure you that if elected (and I will be) in the run-off, I will repay your confidence (which has given me the lead) with an administration that will do credit to Wichita county.

Mrs. Murphy joins me in thanking you for your loyal support, and asking you to again give us the lead on August 28.—(Political adv.)

BAPTIST MISSION TO OPEN SUNDAY SCHOOL

The South Side Baptist Mission has closed a very successful meeting, during which several united with the church. The meeting closed Sunday night but before closing Rev. H. J. Ballew, the missionary and his loyal workers secured a large residence at Twenty-third and Holliday streets where those interested in the work will meet Sunday morning at 9 o'clock and organize a Sunday school.

The residence will be used for worship until a church now planned is erected. The First Baptist church is helping in the work. The P. G Ripley company has furnished a piano for the services at the mission.

The horn of plenty and the trumpet of fame make a pleasant duet.
