Cemetery Aid Will Serve C. of C. Banquet at McWright's Camp.

Due to the fact that improvements are being made in the Court House, it will be impossible to have the regular luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce there next Saturday night and it has been decided to have it at McWright's Camp.

The ladies of the Junction Cemetery Society will provide the luncheon for the occasion, the proceeds of which will be used to defray the expenses incident to the upkeep of our local cemetery.

The hour of 9:30 was decided upon by the executive committee on account of the revival which is in progress at the Baptist Church, and in order that the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce not conflict with the revival, Rev. Dekle and Evangelist Ray agreed to close their services at 9:15 to allow those in attendance to also attend the C. of C. meeting and banquet.

The executive committee has been hard at work the past two weeks preparing some very important matters to bring before this meeting and it behooves every member, and citizen as well, to be present at this time. There are also a number of committees out that are expected to report on some very important matters, and also some very important matters to come before the meeting and be thoroughly discussed, which will prove of interest to every citizen of Junction.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS POLO GAME SATURDAY

The news of a polo game, such as was billed for last Saturday, always creates more or less excitement and draws large crowds, as was evidenced when it became known that Edwards Plateau and Junction teams would occupy the field.

The streets began to put on a business-like appearance early Saturday, and by 11 o'clock was fairly crowded, the streets becoming almost impassable at times.

At 2:30, the Schreiner Institute band made its appearance on the streets, and a line of march was formed east of the Court House and passed north to main street, when it followed the O. S. T. to the polo grounds. Several hundred automobiles were in the line of march.

The game was called at 3 o'clock and the fun began. The game was hotly contested from the beginning, but Edwards Plateau team had a shade the best of it at all times; having more practice, better team work and better trained ponies, and the final score showed the defeat of Junction by 9 to 2.

There was some excellent playing done by both teams, though it is said that none of those riding stock saddles would have done so well had they been using the regulation polo saddle. This is one feature of the game that these players will eventually have to adopt in order to match games with the teams of larger cities. It is only a matter of becoming accustomed to the flat saddle, and when this is done, the boys of this section will hold their own with any of them. But the use of the flat saddle will eventually have to be adopted.

A large crowd witnessed this game, and the enthusiasts are anxious for another game between either of the five or six teams in this section.

Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Ray of Mason were visitors in Junction Tuesday and Wednesday. Rev. Ray states that he will preach the Baccalaureate Sermon for the London school Sunday, May 29.

Everyone is especially invited to be present, as matters of importance to the town of Junction will be discussed, more especially the question of incorporation. This is a matter that we should all be informed on, as we will be called on in a few days to decide the matter.

The executive committee are making arrangements for a special program, which will include a number of songs and music by the band.

An urgent invitation to attend this banquet is extended to every citizen of Kimble County. It doesn't matter whether or not you are a member of the Chamber of Commerce; you are a citizen of Kimble County, and as such should be vitally interested in the welfare and development of the county. Come out and let your ideas and opinions on all matters be known.

It requires the concerted efforts of all citizens to do really big things, and Kimble County is proposing to put on some big things in the near future, and it cannot be done without the wholehearted co-operation and support of the entire citizenship. At least lend your moral support to the cause of progress and a forward movement.

SCHREINER INSTITUTE GLEE CLUB ENJOYED

Saturday evening of last week, the Schreiner Institute band and Glee Club gave a splendid program at the High School Auditorium.

In addition to the band numbers, every selection rendered by the orchestra, saxophone quartet, and Glee Club, all of which were enthusiastically received by the audience.

After the program the boys were the guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a reception and dance at the Hodges Hotel where Mrs. Motley, in her usual hospitable manner, assisted the Chamber of Commerce, in entertaining the boys.

This program was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, and the proceeds donated to the Junction Red Cross for the Mississippi flood relief work.

TENT SHOW OPENS WITH "THE TIE THAT BINDS"

Copeland Brothers tent show opened its annual bill here Monday night with the play, "The Tie That Binds," and was met with an unusually good audience. The play was exceptionally well rendered by the adult players, and too much cannot be said for the little baby girl, known as "Baby Barbara," who played a leading part. The child is only five years old, and one to hear her without seeing her would think she was several times that age. Her enunciation and memory were beyond criticism.

The vaudeville sketches between acts were clean and above reproach, and Copeland Brothers are to be commended for the class of plays they are putting on this season.

Joe H. Ramsey has the contract for a re-inforced concrete building to be erected by T. M. Hodges, Sr., immediately south and adjoining the Hankins Drug Co. building. Work was started last week and workmen are now pouring the concrete. It has not been definitely decided what business will be housed in this building, as Mr. Hodges has had several offers since starting the work.

THE HILL COUNTRY WON HIS ADMIRATION

The letter reproduced below, will give the people of this section some idea of what others think of the "Hill Country" around Junction. There are many others who visit this country who have practically the same feeling for the country and people, though they are more reticent and refrain from expressing themselves. Such remarks have frequently been heard, but it remains for this gentleman, Mr. Gail L. Jacoby, of Corpus Christi, to address a letter to the Eagle, publicly expressing himself.

Mr. Jacoby's letter follows, and is self-explanatory, and to the point:

Corpus Christi, Texas 5-23-27

Junctino Eagle
Junction, Texas
Gentlemen:—

After making several trips around the "Hill Country of Texas" and stopping at a number of so-called camps, I cannot resist the temptation of congratulating you good people of Junction on having such a camp as the one Mr. McWright is operating. This camp is a credit to your community, and if one doubts the difference in tourist camps, just let him make the rounds and then stop at McWright's. The things most noticeable to us were the cleanliness and sanitary conditions, the reasonable prices and courteous treatment which we received.

In making several trips through your country I have met a number of "Kimble County people, and surely you must all be proud of one another, as I have never had the pleasure of meeting up with a more congenial bunch. It makes one wonder why they just happened to light in the hills instead of somewhere else.

You have a wonderful people, a wonderful country, which is coming before the eyes of the country more and more. And a good clean camp is a great asset to any community; and in conclusion, will repeat that I have never enjoyed myself any more, or as much, as I have while stopping at Junction Tourist Camp. Success to the camp, as well as Junction.

Very truly yours,

Gail L. Jacoby.

Just a plug who enjoys the society of good people in a good country.

Mrs. Frank Wilson has returned from Memphis, Texas, where she attended the wedding of her daughter, Miss Joan Wilson, to William J. Bryan of Memphis.

Celebrates With Barbecue and Polo Game; Dance at Night.

Last Friday was a gala day at the Charles Martin & Sons ranch in Mason County. The occasion was the completion of an electric line to the Martin ranch by the West Texas Utilities Company, which was celebrated by a barbecue and dance at the headquarters Martin ranch with Charles Martin and his sons as host to more than one thousand of their friends.

The West Texas Utilities Company had a program and business meeting at their offices in the town of Mason in the forenoon, at which every district in their business organization was represented. Lunch was served by the ladies of the town at the noon hour to all visitors which was followed immediately by a parade in which the employees of the company and their friends, led by the band of Ballinger, Texas, participated. After the parade which was more than a quarter mile long, everyone preceded to the Martin ranch for the barbecue and dance.

In preparation for the entertainment of their friends the Martins had killed three 3-year old steers and fourteen goats, had all the grounds lighted and a large open air pavilion for dancing and the site well lighted.

The barbecue is one long to be remembered by those present for its delicious barbecue and everything else that goes with it. Many of the guests were seen to have gone back for a second helping, which bespeaks well for all the food served.

Mr. Charles Martin is one of the oldest residents in Mason county and owns one of the best improved ranches in the west. He is hospitable and courteous and the vast number of friends that came to the barbecue indicate the high esteem in which he is held by his many friends throughout West Texas. He is progressive and is widely known as a breeder of fine livestock.

Martin from now on will employ electricity, the apostle of the twentieth century, for every activity which can be carried on with the aid of mechanical contrivances.

Electricity will churn his butter, keep his family cool in the summer time, operate the vacuum cleaner and numerous other devices in his house; keep his various ranch foremen in touch with his orders and in general co-ordinate every physical activity of the ranch.

"The old order changeth, giving place to the new," and electricity takes its place, even in the Wild West.

RESPONSIBILITY UP TO STAGE AND PRESS

There is a wholesome public awakening regarding the destructive effect on the public morals of degeneracy on the stage, in books and in the press.

Those responsible for degrading plays, obscene books and stories of crime, take shelter behind the excuse that they "have to give the people what they want."

Such statements as well as the practices complained of, offend against decency. No thoughtful parent wants the literary sewage of the stage or press to empty into his home.

Those who exercise in their own narrow sphere the authority to determine "what the people want," in many instances fail to discriminate between that which is instructive, purifying and refining and that which degrades.

Whether the remedy be a vigilant and unrelaxed stage and press censorship, or education of the young to avoid such plays and publications as they would avoid a poisonous reptile or plant, is an open question.

Increasing crime unites with relaxing morality to emphasize the social danger.

The stage and the press are alike powerful in molding the young mind to discriminate as between wholesome and unwholesome moral standards. Possessing this power, society has an unquestionable right in conserving public welfare to demand and command that its influence shall be exerted, not to debase and destroy, but to purify and sustain; not to induce moral decadence, but to animate and buttress social righteousness.

The Junction Telephone Company has about completed all connections with local phones and the service is again back to normal. The patrons of the company were considerably inconvenienced for a time, but there were very few complaints registered. It is expected that the service locally will be even better than before the fire, as the temporary switchboard recently installed is slightly more adequate than the one destroyed.

LIBERAL OFFER FROM PROGRESSIVE CITIZEN

There have been many times in Junction when out-door entertainments could have been given to better advantage had a suitable place near town been available. This problem is now solved by the offer of Mr. J. J. McWright, who tenders the use of his tourist camp for any kind of public gathering. This is indeed a very liberal offer of Mr. McWright's, and the Eagle commends him most heartily therefor.

Mr. McWright came to Junction about two years ago and secured a lease on the county park site for a number of years and has put several thousand dollars worth of improvements on the grounds, building neat little cottages, building driveways through the grounds, planting shade trees, and otherwise beautifying the place. Now he offers the public the use of this beautiful park for public gatherings of any nature whatsoever.

The improvements made on this plot of ground has worked a wonderful change, and it is now becoming one of the beauty spots of Junction. The citizens could do no better than hold their out-door entertainments and public gatherings at this place.

Since coming to Junction, Mr. McWright has identified himself with every progressive move that has been started, and this is only one of the many instances in which he has shown his wide and progressive spirit.

Dr. J. Fred Burt is having sand and gravel hauled to his lots next to Heyman's Drug Store, preparatory to the erection of a concrete building some time in the near future. Dr. Burt was the first to clear away the debris following the fire, and now he is the first to make preparations for rebuilding.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hamer moved to San Antonio this week where they will make their future home. Their many friends regret to see them leave but all join in wishing them prosperity and happiness in their future home.

"Well, you see," he replied, and my friends expected me to fail.

A year passed. . . . Twelve months of faithful, determined effort, which was rewarded by seeing the shop established on a basis where it was operating without expense and some profits were being made; enough to pay the salaries of Thankful and Captain T. "The Studio" became the rendezvous for Birmingham's most fashionable set and the intelligentsia also gathered there, to exchange ideas, and to take home a beautifully bound book. Curtiss complimented me often on what he called my business career and my friends, who had laughed at what they thought was a new hobby, began to sing my praises where I could hear.

But what a trickster is fate. Just when I should have been most pleased with myself, I was seized with the idea of wanting to give up the shop.

Everything connected with the business world grew sordid and repellent to me. I guess, after all, Curtiss had been right. I was not the type.

Spring had come, trailing her garments of leaf-green chiffon. I wanted to take long walks in the woods, which were sweet with burgoening trees. I longed to get out in my flower garden and plant row after row of neat seeds. As I pored over book catalogues, I could feel the heady odor of earth newly turned. I even thought it would be fun to cook a cake or to sew a fine seam. I yearned, with all the femininity of my being, for the house-wifely duties that crown a woman in her home.

Yet I kept my desires to myself for I realized that Thankful and Captain T. were depending on me to carry on. They were both interested in their work and if I sold the shop it would in all probability, drive Thankful back into her old life as a household drudge for two sisters who were selfish and vain and Captain T. would be out of a job.

Thankful was radiant these days. From the demure little creature of the church band she had developed into a woman of subtle and elusive charm. On several occasions I thought that the young Cossack's thoughts were far from antiques and books and I could not help but wonder if he was not thinking of his wife, from whom he had secured his divorce, or if the shadow of the old days cast a burden on his heart. Time after time I had invited him to our home for which he thanked me graciously but always with an excuse.

What should I do? Everything in me rebelled at the idea of keeping on with the shop. Then suddenly a situation developed like clear sunshine after a storm and it became perfectly plain to me what course I should pursue.

COMING OUT OF THE MUD

One of the chief benefits the farmer derives from really good roads is that of being able to move his farm products to market over them, quickly, cheaply and without inconvenience. The farmer's crops are his stock in trade. If he can market them without delay when the price is up, he is the gainer; if, because of bad roads, he is unable to get his products to market until after the price has declined, he loses.

In the old days when the roads were good only in good weather, the farmer could do little satisfactory marketing. He was forced to take a chance on getting his products to the buyer on a rising market.

One decided advantage in good roads is that they encourage the use of motor vehicles by the farmer, effecting a saving in time and worry in moving his crops, and in getting his family to church and children to school.

Thousands of miles of poor roads which act as feeders for main highways are being made practical for modern traffic at a minimum of expense, by protecting the old base with a waterproof wearing surface. Thus farm land is made available for use, which would otherwise be isolated due to distance from schools and markets and prohibitive cost of building standard types of state highway pavements.

The modern tractor and road machinery plus the waterproofing qualities of asphalt are enabling hundreds of communities to come out of the mud.

Good roads are probably next in importance to newspapers in unifying our people.

LARGE SUMMER CLASS

Austin, Texas, May 24.—Just two days after degrees are awarded to one of the largest graduating classes in the history of the University of Texas, there will open what officials of the institution are confidently expecting to be a record summer session. Registration for the first summer term will be held on Wednesday, June 8, and classes will begin on Thursday, June 9. No students will be allowed to enroll for work for credit after Wednesday, June 15. Only one holiday is scheduled for the entire summer school, and that is July 4. At that time a monster Independence Day celebration will be held in the Memorial Stadium.

Final examinations for the first term will extend through July 18-20. On Wednesday, July 20, students will register for the second term. The summer commencement exercises will be held on Wednesday, August 31.

HOME BUYING

Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce, in a recent address, remarked that he was in favor of the local buying of local products. He argued that money is wasted in shipping charges when people send away a long distance for products created elsewhere when they could buy articles made near home equally well.

If it pays to buy products manufactured in our home localities, it would seem to be good policy also to buy products distributed through local agencies, that is through our home stores. When you buy stuff sold through the stores of Junction where distribution costs are very reasonable, you avoid the expense going and sending elsewhere, and distribution costs are higher in the large cities, owing to high living costs there.

Rubber Molding Plant

Texas is gradually, but rather slowly, getting the idea that manufacturing enterprises are essential to the State's fullest prosperity. Beginning June 1, a plant at Dallas will be turning out Texas-made rubber appliances for use in oil field equipment of various kinds. Experimenters with guayule, a substitute for India rubber obtained from a Mexican asteraceous plant found also in Texas near the Rio Grande, will be made in the new factory. It will be the first plant of the kind between St. Louis and Los Angeles. The manufacturers will be prepared to carry out manufacturing specifications on rubber products for other firms.

Texas Made Baskets

This happens to be written in Marshall, and although I have been in the enterprising East Texas city for nearly ten days I didn't know until yesterday that Marshall has a basket factory and turns out an immense number of baskets and sells most of them in Texas for shipment of Texas vegetables and fruits. It is said that the Marshall factory is doing a most profitable business. This part of the State, with its fine timber and cheap gas, is in splendid position for the manufacturing of any timber products. Such factories can as well be conducted in a small town as in a large city.

Overall Factories

There are several overall factories doing successful business in Texas. Temple is considering beginning the making overalls on a small scale. A committee of the Chamber of Commerce is at work on the plans with the idea of building up a large establishment from a small beginning. The most successful factories are those that have been able to start with a few units and increase as business development seems to justify.

Filling Road Gaps

Two important road gaps in the Mexia district are to be built in right away at a cost of $153,000. The roads will be macadam with asphaltic topping. This district is looking after its lateral feeders to the State highways. No public road is better than its worst mudholes, and the Texas State Highway Association has taken up its first work the filling in of the missing links between good roads.

Nacogdoches After Hotel

A Nacogdoches reader of this column, who believes in hotels as good as the towns in which they are located, sends in a clipping showing that a survey is being made to ascertain just what increased facilities are needed there. He says in the accompanying letter that if it is found that a big new hotel is needed in Nacogdoches, that town has the enterprise to do what is necessary to get it built. Really, I think that is the Nacogdoches spirit about everything.

Starts Early Fair Movement

Garza county, a plains section, of which Post is the county site, has started its fall fair advertising campaign. Garza county won first prize in South Plains, West Texas and Texas State Fair last year, and announces that it is going after them again. Garza county takes an early start after what it wants. That is why it wins. Most county fair movements begin getting their publicity too late.

Slaton Produce Sales

Slaton has been checking up on sales of produce, including poultry, eggs and cream, received by dealers in April. The totals for the month were $13,203.60 or a daily average of $507.83, all of which went right back into Slaton's trade. Slaton is not a large place and this amount counts big in its business.

ness. The place that overlooks the worth of its produce business is behind times.

Junior College Growth

Texarkana has laid the cornerstone of its Junior College building, which is to cost $200,000. Texas cities like Texarkana are learning that it pays to give youth its junior educational training at home—pays from a financial standpoint and in keeping the young students close to their parents in this character formation period of their lives.

Look at Brady's Streets

Brady tells the world that it is going to pave ten blocks, in addition to the twenty already paved, and intimates that when that is done more work of the same kind may be started. It is also announced that large water mains are to be placed under the streets to be paved, to avoid tearing up the streets when such mains become necessary. Most towns have lots of waste from laying pipes along streets already paved.

Winkler Gets Rangers

Having at least temporarily cleaned up the oil town of Borger, the Texas Rangers stationed there have been ordered to Winkler to look into rumors about disorder and disregard of law there. The toughs that flock in droves in oil centers in Texas are being given to understand that the Texas Rangers operate about as successfully in one part of the State as another, and that Texas gives mighty little comfort to those who try to defy the law.

Gregg Resigns U. S. Post

Alex W. Gregg, the 27 year old lawyer from Palestine, Texas, has won international fame as expert council in income tax matters for the Internal Revenue Bureau, has announced that he will resign his post early in the summer. He represented the Government in the Ford $30,000,000 income tax case, and has had a most meteoric career as the right hand man of Secretary Mellon on tax matters.

Brothers Slay Each Other

This column is given over to comment on constructive news and in it reference is never made to sensational news except to "point a moral." Two brothers-in-law, married to twin sisters in Cass county, recently shot each other to death in a foolish quarrel and fight over disputed questions in the Bible. Doubtless the point at issue was trivial. It shows the folly of getting excited, and those who do not guard their tempers can get as mad over honest differences, or in good causes, as about anything else.

Bryan Little Theatre

The Bryan Little Theatre, a community dramatic club, has been playing creditably in neighboring towns. Such neighborly efforts will be appreciated as long as the "Little Theatres" do not get exalted ideas of their histrionic talents and go to charging "big" prices.

HOME TOWN THOUGHTS

People have to be reminded to do things, even if they want very much to do them. You have to call people to dinner before they come, and advertising is the dinner call that invites people to the feasts of bargains. The city where people speak cordially to their neighbors, is the city where there are always plenty of good neighbors to speak to.

The people who knock the home town merchants who do so much for the city's prosperity, should knock on their own wooden heads to avoid bad luck.

Why Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES Wear Longer

WE recently were given the tremendous advantage of having the mammoth Firestone factories brought to us. In Tire Educational Meetings we were shown, by means of motion pictures, charts, tire samples and complete engineering data, the details of Firestone tire design and construction—and how Firestone and Oldfield tires and tubes are made in the world's most efficient and economical rubber factories.

Firestone pioneered the original low-pressure tire and made it practical by Gum-Dipping. The motion pictures showed us how the cords of the carcass are dipped in a rubber solution, thoroughly saturating and insulating every fiber of every cord with rubber. Simple demonstrations and tests illustrated the great advantage of this process, which supplies the extra strength to withstand the extra flexing strains of low-pressure construction—one of the reasons why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are establishing such unheard-of mileage records.

We learned why the Firestone Balloon Tread gives extra safety, comfort and long wear. We were shown why Firestone, from the very beginning, designed and continue to use the round Balloon Tread, minimizing "shoulder breaks", so destructive to tires. Excess rubber at the edges of a Balloon Tread is wasted—actually detrimental to tire mileage. In the Firestone Tread the small units and sharp projections are scientifically placed to permit easy flexing, resulting in extraordinary riding comfort.

Come in and let us put a set of these Gum-Dipped Tires on your car—you can forget about tire trouble. Quality is higher than ever before—prices are lowest in history. Buy now!

RURAL HOME EQUIPMENT

A remarkable change is taking place in the habits of the people who live on farms and in rural homes, and which ought to make such locations more attractive to young people. Also the business men of our cities and towns need to realize the greatly enlarged market for modern goods created by these changed habits. A new market has been created that can be touched by advertising in the newspapers that circulate thru the country roads.

The General Federation of Women's clubs has been looking into this question, and it finds that four-fifths of the farm families now have automobiles. These families constitute an enormous market for the sale of cars and accessories. They visit the near market towns at least once or twice a week, and their patronage can be depended upon by advertised stores.

Mail order houses have obtained an enormous business from such families by advertising. The stores in city and town centers should play the same game. If they are as active in informing the country people about their goods as the mail order people have been, they will get back much trade that they have lost. And they have the advantage that if they advertise in the newspapers of their home city, their message is carried out into all these rural districts in every issue of the newspaper.

The women's club survey shows pianos in 37 per cent of the rural homes, and phonographs in 35 per cent of them. We all know how many radios they are putting in. They are buying refrigerators, washing machines, electric equipment, window screens, vacuum cleaners, etc.

These forms of equipment are a paying proposition for them, because they keep the young people contented, and they save labor which is utilized elsewhere. By liberal advertising, the merchants can develop a big new trade in rural homes that 10 years ago were largely without these forms of equipment.

SATISFACTION OF GIVING

The people who solicit for public philanthropies like the Mississippi flood often remark on how differently different types of people will respond to such an appeal. In these times such response reflects people's real desires and feelings.

Back in the war days, when carefully planned drives were organized, there was a certain social compulsion about giving. If a wealthy family failed to "come across" liberally for the war causes, the solicitors in whose district such a family lived would report this lack of response to the drive, and it would be whispered around quite widely that this family was stingy. People were anxious not to get that reputation, and many would give somewhat freely because they were afraid not to.

It is not possible in times of peace to organize such solicitation so thoroughly. If people are inclined to be ungenerous, they can often pursue their illiberal course without attracting any notice.

But it is difficult to see how people can get much satisfaction out of life on this selfish basis. One can hardly see how people can enjoy a comfortable home and an abundance of this world's goods, unless they have given something to such a cause as this big flood. They should have a thought for these people without a dollar, who have suddenly had to vacate their little homes, and have in many cases nothing but the clothes they are wearing. In many cases everything they had has been swept off into this watery flood, and they have to begin all over again. In addition they encounter the peril of the devastating diseases that are likely to sweep over such a ravaged area. Liberal gifts to the victims of what is called the most terrible disaster in American history are called for, and we shall all feel better here in Texas after having made them.

PROPAGATION OF OUR GAME BIRDS

Propagation of game birds is an imminent necessity if the national supply of game is to be maintained. This definite statement is made by United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1521, a publication of 58 pages, written by Dr. W. L. McAtee, in charge Division of Food Habits Research Bureau of Biological Survey.

The Bureau of Biological Survey makes it plain at the outset of the bulletin that it is ready to back the farmers of the country if they will engage in game farming. As an incentive, the direct suggestion is made that the necessary Federal permits which are necessary for lawful possession of wild ducks, wild geese and other migratory game birds in captivity may be obtained through the Biological Survey at Washington, D. C. The Survey will also furnish copies of the digest of State laws on game-bird propagation, and the addresses of officials to whom application should be made for State licenses, and for the full text of State laws relating to the propagation of game birds.

Dr. McAtee in his very interesting and informative illustrated publication goes into every feature of the subject relating to the propagation of game birds, and he tells how success in that work has been enjoyed in the United States by individuals, by sportsmen's organizations and by State game departments. "The appeal to farmers to engage in the propagation of game birds," says Dr. McAtee, may be made profitable, since the demand exceeds the supply of adult birds for breeding, of both young and adults for restocking, and of eggs for distribution to farmers and shooting clubs."

Farmers interested in the subject should send ten cents to the Government Printing Office at Washington, D. C., for a copy of this publication. It deals exhaustively with every phase of the question, including the matter of sanitation, vermin control, primary stocking and even the varieties of game birds which should prove most profitable to the "game farmer."

The bulletin applies primarily ly to the ring-necked pheasant, the bobwhite quail, the mallard duck, and the Canada goose, species with which most success has been achieved on American game farms, and secondarily to a number of other game birds that have been reared less extensively, and for which more or less tentative directions for handling are reported from the methods used by the most successful breeders.

By many of the leading game experts of the country, it is believed that the success of game restoration in the United States depends very largely on co-operation of State game bodies with farmers. The official publication referred to above indicates that such co-operation may be expected even to the point that would lead State game commissioners to spend money in buying game birds from farmers within their States, thus giving the farmers an incentive to raise the game birds and at the same time provide the stock that will repopulate districts where game birds are now scarce. It is of interest to know that many State commissioners are now spending large sums of money buying game birds to liberate in sections where they have become scarce. Everything indicates that there is a ready market for farmers who wish to become game producers and supply the State game commissioners with game birds.

Sportsmen have long been back of organized efforts to preserve the American system of free shooting, and the interest shown by the Federal and State governments will help forward the movement to keep America free of the prevailing European system of the closed preserves and at the same time help restock some portions of the country where game birds are now very scarce.

A Chevrolet will give you more service and pleasure for the money than you can possibly get in any other way.

HOME PRODUCTS

The President has received a request from Congressman Connelly of Pennsylvania, to issue an Executive order to all Departments of the Government to indicate a preference for domestic goods when they ask for bids for Government supplies. As a general rule of law the heads of Executive Departments and Bureaus are obliged to accept the lowest bids, and Representative Connelly has raised a point that is fundamental to conditions of trade. In the long run, it is pointed out, it pays to patronize those who help pay taxes, and help to maintain American traditions.

Exactly the same principle applies with regard to "buying goods at home," and the duty and commonsense of patronizing local merchants.

A little agitation of this question from the top, as it applies to Government purchases, may prove helpful to the country and possibly check the mad rush to the mail order houses and dealers in the large centers who draw away the business that belongs to the local merchants. Buying at home is one of the keys to collective prosperity.

The Drouth

by Grace E. Hall

The hollyhocks are clinging to the trellis, most forlorn,
The fennel droops, dejected, by the road;
The ivy has a pallid tint as in the summer morn
It clammers weakly over its abode;
The pasture's seared to leather-brown, the trees are tense and still,
The bushes and the shrubs wear ash-gray shrouds;
A burning sheen comes filtering down from scorched and blistering hill,
To silent, smothering valley, in hot clouds.

The flies buzz on the screen door, going in and coming out,
The bees hum in a listless monotone;
The shepherd dog lies on the porch, his red tongue lolling out,
And the cat, sprawled on the mat, is left alone;
A sort of coma seems to hold the parching earth in thrall,
The atmosphere itself is out of breath;
All voices are depressed and low that otherwise would call,
And joyfulness is fairly choked to death.

And then the heavens don the veil of mist they long did scorn,
The belching thunder crashes loud and high;
The lurid lightning darts and gleams and urges on the storm,
As it flashes startling signals to the sky;
The rain descends in silver sheets that glisten in the space,
The trees send wig-wag messages broadcast;
And in the glorious after-hour, when God has bathed her face,
We see sweet Nature smile, her illness past.

The Psychology of Dreams

To understand the meaning of dreams—it is necessary to consider that every person has a dual personality, and in rare instances three or even four personalities, each functioning independently of the other, usually one after the other; but sometimes two personalities may function concurrently, as two persons may occupy the same room at the same time without communicating with each other, or without knowledge of the presence of the other.

It is necessary to consider first the complex organization of the mind, or minds, providing for the conscious mind and the unconscious mind, called the subconscious.

Shortly after birth babies are unconscious, yet they are alive. Children live largely in the subconscious life. So do animals. The subconscious life depends on the sympathetic nervous system, upon which intelligence and learning depend. In babies life is maintained by the blood lymphatics, and by the glands of internal secretion all under the direction of the sympathetic nervous system. Such babies are not conscious because the central nervous system does not function or register.

Now, most of our living, learning, wishing, feeling, is in the subconscious, even in the case of adults; otherwise we would be running on high all the time, would be burning up with excitement, and the human organism would soon end its short life by short-circuiting of the wires or by interference of the two nervous systems, the central and the sympathetic.

Children, and adults too for that matter, spend their lives largely in fantasies, in reveries, in day dreaming, in make-believing, in imaginings, in building castles in the air. These make up our wishes, hopes, ambitions, desires, and become the subconscious content of our dreams during sleep, for they are not lost. It is natural and healthful to gratify our desires and to fulfill our wishes, but, if we fail, then we bury them in the subconscious to get rid of them, for living with them ungratified in the conscious mind would be painful. However, when buried, they are not dead, but sleep. That is, they sleep while we are awake, but they are awake while we sleep. They won't down.

Dreams are wish fulfillments, always related to the past, and never prophetic. We can dream about what we have been failed to realize when awake. Therefore dreams are significant and susceptible of interpretation.

MRS. LOUIS ELLEBRACHT

Mrs. Emma Viola Ellebracht, nee Kneese, was born March 14, 1869, at Fredericksburg. In the year 1893 she united in marriage with Mr. Louis Ellebracht, her surviving husband. This union was blessed with four children, Mrs. Roy Birschwald of Segovia, Alfred Ellebracht of Noxville, Mrs. Willie Bierschwald of Noxville and Edna Ellebracht.

Mrs. Ellebracht became seriously ill about a week ago. She was taken to Kerrville where she underwent an operation and everything else that medical aid and good nurses could do was done to save her life. Here she died Sunday night, May 15. Her remains were brought from Kerrville to the home of her brother, Otto Kneese, near Fredericksburg, where funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon and interment made in the Kneese family cemetery. Rev. F. W. Radetzky and C. F. Bohmfalk conducted the funeral services.

Besides the above named husband and children her untimely death is mourned by five brothers, Louis, Otto, William, John and Ernest Kneese, three sisters, Mrs. Mary Dechert, Mrs. Martha Weber and Bertha Kneese, two sons-in-law, and one daughter-in-law.

Her parents, two brothers and two sisters preceded her in death.—Standard.

NOXVILLE NOTES

(Too late for last week)

Our community was blessed with a splendid rain on the 12th which will put range in good condition again to the gratification of all concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Coffey were transacting business in Kerrville one day last week.

Paul Jones and William Parker were Junction visitors Saturday.

D. H. Whetstone and family are visiting relatives on James River today.

Dos Parker and mother, Mrs. M. J. Parker are visiting in Brownwood this week.

A. T. Whetstone received one hundred ewes and lambs last week which he purchased from Adolph Fritz of the reservation.

Mrs. Jesse Parker, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia at the Secor Hospital for the past two weeks, is reported to be convalescing. Her many friends at Noxville are anxiously awaiting her recovery.

Our hearts were saddened Monday morning when we were informed that the Grim Reaper had again visited our community, taking from our midst our beloved neighbor, Mrs. Emma Ellebracht, wife of Lois Ellebracht, who died at Secor Hospital after an illness of 48 hours.

Mrs. Ellebracht was a noble Christian mother who had reared a large family of God-fearing, law-abiding children, who rank among our very best citizens. We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved husband and family and pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage their grief and leave them only the cherished memory of the loved and lost.

Noxville people voted unanimously against the proposed tax for a Fair to be at Junction, and we propose to use our influence to down every issue for higher taxes in Kimble County until we get the highway that we are now determined to have. We ranch people in the end of the county have been long suffering and patient; we live in the oldest settled portion of Kimble County; we have helped to build every road in the county. While we have lived for 40 years on a mail route designated as a first class road that it is impossible to put anything over but a burro. Now we rise up in our righteous indignation and demand a decent road. When we get it and not until then, will our money and influence be directed to our county seat. We folks out here are a little "old timey" yet and hesitate to ride in airplanes, and at present that is our only sure means of transportation over the 25 miles of volcanic eruption that separates us from our county seat, that could be made a wonderful town. Junction is and always has been decidedly a ranch town, so why not bend every effort to get designated roads and bring the Kimble County ranch products to Junction where they belong and put Junction in a position so that within a few hours time she can show her guests some of the very best ranch country to be found anywhere in the United States. Let's get a highway between Junction and our State Capitol first and other improvements will come as a natural consequence.

Fred Pierce and wife entertained a number of friends at dinner on the 13th, the occasion being the 78th birthday of their mother, Mrs. Lon Joy Wiley Thurman and Mr. Orr of Hunt, were in our vicinity last week looking for young mutton goats to buy. They did not locate anything this time.

Seth Whetstone and family will leave Thursday for a few days visit to relatives in North Texas.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL FOR THE HILL COUNTRY

The Baptists of the Medina River district Association have arranged for a series of revival meetings to be held by Rev. Geo. W. Truett of Dallas. Kerrville, being central to the territory, is to be the seat of the revival. The Association comprises the counties of Bandera, Kerr and Kimble, with parts of Gillispie and Kendall. The Baptist churches of this wide section, together with the Chamber of Commerce of Kerrville and the Rotary Club of that city, joined in an earnest invitation to Dr. Truett to give us some ten days of his valuable time. The meetings are set to begin on the 5th of June and extend to the 19th. It is believed that these revival meetings are to constitute the most significant event for the year, to the good people of this section. Very many visitors from afar are expected to be drawn here by the coming of this world-famed minister of God. Everybody interested in the moral and spiritual enlightenment of our people are cordially invited to participate in these services. Particularly it is hoped that all of our churches shall receive a mighty uplift and inspiration from the preaching of Dr. Truett.

Of Dr. Truett it may be said that for approximately 30 years he has stood as a bulwark for righteousness in the city of Dallas, during which time he has created a million dollar plant for his great church of some 4000 members, and in the meantime, has ministered in many ways in many parts of the world. During the great war, he was called to accompany our brave troops in their awful struggles on the front in France.

Let everybody carefully note the dates, June 5th to 19th. And begin now to make your plans to attend. Those who fail, will miss the opportunity of a life time. A tent capable of accommodating some 2000 people will be provided. A hundred voices to lead the music. The singers of all this section are now invited to join this choir. A great rehearsal will be held on Saturday night, June 4th. Kerrville will expect all of her friends. The good people of Kimble County are especially invited to attend.

In Bible days even the grown-up was called the "Child of God." "Children" was a term of endearment in the days of old.

The doctors of the country have been making a deep study of children and their welfare for many years. They have found that it is very essential that children should have the right kind of food, and not eat too much candy and sweets, and that they should not be jealous, or cultivate fear, or get angry. It has also been found that children must have plenty of recreation and play and that if they are good they will grow up as healthy and good men and women. Their health is largely in their own keeping, so children should think about these matters.

The Government has got up a motion picture film on "posture." It shows how important it is to sit up straight with your shoulders back, as the slumping over should be left to grandma and grandpa, who can't help it. Children who sit and stand straight grow up as fine men and women.

Thousands of naughty boys and girls were taken into the new juvenile courts last year. Some of them were kept in custody as long as four months before they realized that the best friends that they had in the world were their parents, and then they got anxious to get back home where folks loved them.

A great deal of attention is being given by thoughtful people to the subject of child labor. Children are being protected by the Government and by the States against being overworked in order to earn money. But lazy children are not a credit to themselves nor to their parents, and while they should not have to do hard work like their fathers and mothers they should be perfectly willing to help their parents about the home, and when they are not together.

When a boy is ten years old he should be 5.7 inches high and weigh 65.3 pounds. A girl at the same age should be 5.3 inches high and weigh 62.4 pounds. As they get older the boy at fifteen should be 62.3 inches high and the girl 61.1 inches high. The boy should weigh a little heavier than the girl.

DEVASTATIONS OF NATURE

Nature makes sad havoc of the homes of man when her elemental forces break loose, as we see when we read daily the story of floods and tornadoes.

Man does not figure any too carefully on the actions of nature, and he makes his plans with too slight regard to the wrath of the elements. The Mississippi valley floods would no doubt have been much less severe, if man had not cut the forests around the headwaters of the streams. And many homes have been located so near the river levels as to be in great danger. Man is a courageous animal, and is willing to take chances. When he sees fertile land near some great river, he is willing to take the risks of cultivating it and trust to science and luck to find means of heading off the floods.

Whether man has any adequate protection against great wind storms is yet to be determined. Strong and secure construction of houses will do much to minimize this danger.

There is one very inspiring thing about calamities like these, and that is that no sooner has a disaster happened, than plans are at once set on foot to undo its work. The people whose property has been destroyed by wind, flood, or fire, do not sit around lamenting their loss. They immediately make plans for rebuilding, and movements are started to clear away the debris, and begin life again.

And the readiness with which people offer generous contributions to such disasters is equally inspiring. The American people are getting more tender hearted every year. The sight of suffering and misfortune troubles them, and they are not content until they have done something to relieve it. They have a specially imperative call for such aid at this time, with hundreds of thousands homeless from floods and storms.

LET'S GROW TREES.

Of all the natural resources of the United States the most vital, according to Mr. Hoover, is land—soil, the stuff from which the future must eat. The loss of land by needless soil erosion is the greatest extravagance of the age. Man plows a hillside, grows crops of corn, cotton or tobacco, and after a very few crops the field is ruined. In this way the American Nation has already ruined the possible home sites of millions of men.

The American Magazine, in its June issue, hazards the prediction that the whole science of agriculture will shortly be changed from the growing of short-lived crops to the growing of trees which will provide long lived crops. Dr. J. Russell Smith of Columbia University, the greatest living authority on economic geography, explains the idea in a revolutionary interview.

"It is merely an accident of history," he says, "that agriculture started with annual plants—grasses, wheat, rice, corn—instead of with trees—dates, olives, acorn, and others. People can live just as well on acorns and walnuts and similar foods, as on the seeds of wild grasses. We need now a whole series of new crop trees, making food for men and his domestic animals, and at the same time holding and conserving the precious soils with their roots."

The United States is rich in native trees of great promise waiting to be improved. The acorn can be made to rival corn as pig feed and cow feed. The honey-locust bean may rival wheat. The persimmon and avocado are among the most nutritious fruits known.

A million dollars invested during the next 20 years in constructive research and experiments on tree-crop agriculture would probably revolutionize the science of farming. Here is a remarkable opportunity for some person to create a world-famous institution and render inestimable service to mankind.

No Peddlers

The house-visiting person in Australia sometimes gets unexpected rebuffs. A zealous curate doing the Alexandria (Sydney) rounds had his knock answered by a nipper of six or eight. "Mother is suited with a clergyman, thank you," she said, and shut the door.—H. H. H. (Sydney)

"Piracy Without Tears"

IN ALL history of piracy there is no more amusing figure than that of Captain Misson, the founder of "piracy without tears." Instead of a black flag, he sailed under a white flag; he pillaged under an apology; he founded a practical Utopia which failed through no fault of his and finally he died as had many an honest sailorman, lost at sea in a storm.

Misson came of an ancient French family in Provence and was well educated. Reading books of travel gave him a desire to see the far corners of the earth and during a visit in Rome he made an acquaintance which changed his whole career. This was Signor Caraccioli, a Dominican, who had given up the priesthood for a gospel of atheism and communism. Misson became a convert to Caraccioli's views and they became comrades on a French privateer. When the captain of this vessel was killed in a battle with an English ship, the Italian, who was something of a soap box orator, stepped forward with an eloquent address and a proposal that Misson should become captain. Misson replied with a speech that was even more florid and under this flood of oratory, the volatile French sailors broke forth into cries of "Vive le Capitaine Misson et son Lieutenant le Servant Caraccioli!" and endorsed the election.

The first question that the new officers were called upon to decide was a choice of the flag under which they were to sail. One sailor was so foolish as to propose the dread emblem of piracy, the black flag. This brought forth another flood of oratory from the new lieutenant, filled with references to "Peoples' Rights and Liberties," the "Yoke of Tyranny" and "Oppression and Poverty." Their lives, he declared, unlike the life of a pirate were to be brave and just and innocent and their cause of the Liberty. He suggested a white ensign with the motto "For God and Liberty" on it.

Again the sailors were swept away by the eloquence and with cries of "Liberty! Liberty! We are free men!" and a plentiful supply of "vives" for both men, they ratified the decision. In fact speechmaking and "viving" seem to have been the principal occupation on this strange pirate craft at first and they kept it up as they set out to spread their gospel of sweetness and light and extend their doctrines of freedom to making free with other people's property.

Why Flag Is Flown Aftern

The origin of the custom of placing a United States flag at the stern of a ship is obscure. Several theories have been advanced, one of the most substantial being that, in the case of old sailing vessels, the flag was flown over the captain's quarters, which are aft on board ship.

"Yo-ho-ho and a Bottle of Rum!"

IT PROBABLY never was sung by any authentic pirate "in good and regular standing" for its author, Young E. Allison, wrote it long after the heyday of piracy had passed. But the words "pirate song" conjure up to the average person but one picture and unconsciously there runs through his mind this refrain: "Fifteen men on the dead man's chest—Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!" Here are the words of that immortal song:

Fifteen men on the dead man's chest—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"
Drink and the devil had done for the rest—

"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"
The mate was fixed by the boss's pike,
The boss's brained with a marlinpike,
And Cook's throat was marked belike
It had been gripped

By fingers ten!
And there they lay,
All good dead men,
Like break of day in a booking ken—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"

Fifteen men of a whole ship's list—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"
Dead and damned and the rest gone
Whist!

"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"
The skipper lay with his nob in gore
Where the scullion's ax his cheek had shored—
And the scullion he was stabbed times four.

And there they lay
And the soggy skies
Dripped all day long
In upstaring eyes—
At morn sunset and at foul sunrise—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"

Fifteen men of 'em stiff and stark
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"
Ten of the crew had the murder mark—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"

'Twas a cutlass swipe, or an ounce of lead,
Or a yawning hole in a battered head—
And the scuppers glut with a rotting red.

And there they lay—
Aye, dawn no eyes—
All lookouts clapped
On paradise—
All souls bound just contrarwise—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"

Fifteen men of 'em good and true—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"
Every man jack could ha' sailed with Old Pew—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"

There was chest on chest full of Spanish gold,
With a ton of plate in the middle hold,
And the cabin's riot of stuff untold,
And they lay there
That had took the plum,
With sightless glare
And their eyes struck dumb,
While we shared all by the rule of
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"

Fifteen men on the dead man's chest—
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"
Drink and the devil had done for the rest!

"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"
We wrapped 'em all in a mainsail tight,
We heaved 'em over and out of sight—
With a yo-heave-ho!
And a fare-ye-well!
And a sudden plunge
In the sudden swell,
Ten fathoms deep on the road to hell!
"Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"

BACCALAUREATE SERVICES

Sunday morning a large audience gathered in the school auditorium to attend the baccalaureate services of the class of 1927.

The stage was hung with rose and silver decorations and baskets of fern added further decoration.

The invocation and scripture lesson were read by Rev. J. A. Dekle. After several selections rendered by the choir, Mrs. A. W. Loeffler sang "Lead Us On Our Way."

Rev. J. S. Newman delivered a splendid sermon and a hymn by the choir brought the services to a close.

There is no self delusion more fatal than that which makes the conscience dreamy with the anodyne of lofty sentiments, while the life is in being and sensual—James Russell Lowell.

CHOICE FOODS

For occasions when one likes something different try:

Individual Nut Pie.—Line patty tin with a rich crust and use the following for filling: One cupful of nut meats chopped fine, the yolks of two eggs beaten light, one-half cupful of powdered sugar, three table-spoonfuls of lemon juice and pinch of salt. When cold, after baking, cover with whipped cream on top or serve with a meringue.

Crumble Torte.—Whip the whites of two eggs until stiff, add the beaten yolks. Mix one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Add the dry ingredients slowly to the beaten eggs, and one cupful of chopped pecans. Cut one cupful of dates fine and add. Bake slowly one-half hour. Bake in a bread loaf tin.

Pork Cake.—Put one pound of fat salt pork through the meat chopper and pour over it two cupfuls of boiling water and let stand for twenty minutes. Add one cupful of molasses, two cupfuls of brown sugar and one-third of a cupful of hot water in which two teaspoonfuls of soda has been dissolved—all together in a mixing bowl. Add the pork to this, one-half pound of currants, one pound of raisins, one teaspoonful each of nutmeg, cloves, cinnamon, salt and allspice. Add four cupfuls of flour, with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Bake one hour in a slow oven. This recipe makes four loaves. At this time of the year such a cake is enjoyed. It keeps and seems quite like fruit cake.

Almond Torte.—Take the yolks of six eggs, one cupful of granulated sugar, the grated rind and juice of half a lemon, beat fifteen minutes. Mix one-half teaspoonful of baking powder with one-half pound of almonds ground fine, and add. Lastly, fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Bake one hour in a moderate oven.

Marshmallow Sandwiches.—Toast fresh marshmallows in a hot oven. Place while hot between crisp butter thins, or small ginger snaps. Serve with cocoa or milk at children's parties.
