YOUNG SONS MISSING AFTER FATHER'S SUICIDE

Burglars Blamed For Blaze Leveling Most Of Newport Downtown Buildings

FIRE DESTROYS BUSINESS PART OF INLAND TOWN

Two Homes Also Burn While Residents Flock To Downtown Area

THIEVES SUSPECTED

Blaze at House Far From Main Fire Causes Speculation

Special to The Record News.

NEWPORT, Clay County, Texas, June 1.—Fire believed to have been set by burglars swept the downtown district of Newport early this morning, completely destroyed the business section, with a loss of about $25,000.

While fire was raging downtown the home of John Wall, on the south edge of town, caught and was destroyed.

A total of six establishments was destroyed by the flames which spread rapidly before a high wind. They were the J. R. Morris drygoods store, the D. W. Lemons grocery, the postoffice, a drugstore, the J. M. Hancock home and barn, and the Wall home. All the mail in the postoffice was destroyed.

The blaze originated in the business block. After taking commercial establishments in its path, the fire spread across the street to the Hancock home.

Townsmen formed a volunteer fire brigade, but were unable to cope with the raging flames. The Bowie fire department, 14 miles away was called out. However, before equipment from there could respond, flames had been about spent.

The belief of townspeople that burglars were responsible grew out of the fact that the Wall home, some distance from the main fire, broke into flames while the entire citizenship was downtown, helping with the main fire. The opinion was that burglars, if burglars there were, set the downtown establishments while they looted the home in the south section of the city, while members of the family were watching the other blaze.

WASHINGTON, June 1. (US)—Capt. Charles Baker, held captive by Chinese bandits since January, has been released and is to be brought out to safety on a gunboat, the state department was advised today by Walter A. Adams, consul general at Hankow.

The bandits took him far up the river to Chenglingki, where his release was secured by members of the flood commission working in that region. One of the gunboats of the Yangtse patrol will be sent up the river to meet him.

His wife, Mrs. Mary Baker, lives at Oakland, Calif.

WIND AND RAIN HIT OKLAHOMA

Floods Force Residents To Flee Homes

CHICKASHA, Okla., June 7. (AP)—A mischievous trio, flood, lightning and wind, heckled Oklahoma today.

Before dawn Chickasha merchants answered a general alarm to protect their stocks from water that flowed through downtown streets; overflows forced some families to move here and in Oklahoma City bottom land; a twister knocked down farm homes near Arapaho and power and telephone lines were hit in scattered sections of the state.

Damage Small

The flood here receded rapidly, however, and damage from Line creek, which burst its banks from a three-inch rain, was slight. Families in the path of the tornado reached storm cellars safely and the only casualties were hundreds of chickens, killed by hailstones which caused extensive property damage.

Water in the main street of Alex reached business house doors before it retreated and at Rush Springs the owners of a small cotton gin office found an ironic flood had moved the structure across the street, face to face with a rival gin.

There were several railroad washouts near here and the Little Washita river cut off motor travel across highway 81, south of town. Pavement on highway 66 near Clinton was washed out.

A dozen families abandoned homes in Oklahoma City's community camp. More rain was likely.

RULING CLEARS TITLE DISPUTE TO RIVER BEDS

Court Decides Streams Are State Property And Not School's

STATE FILED SUIT

Under Ruling Revenue From Sabine Oil Bed Goes to General Fund

AUSTIN, June 1. (AP)—The controversial Small land law which vested in original patentees clear title to river beds in instances where surveys crossed the rivers, was held constitutional and valid today by the Texas supreme court.

In holding the law constitutional, the supreme court also decided the river beds were the property of the state generally and had not been allocated to the permanent school fund. The holding that river beds were the property of the state at large marked the first time the statutes had been so construed.

Result Explained

The opinion was by J. H. Sharp, member of the supreme court commission of appeals.

J. H. Walker, state land commissioner, said that under the decision revenues derived from development of the bed of the Sabine river, in the East Texas oil field, would acrue to the general revenue fund and would not be placed to the credit of the permanent school fund as previously announced.

The supreme court decision was rendered in the case of the state vs. C. W. Bradford and others in which there were approximately 600 defendants who claimed title under the Small bill to valuable oil bearing lands constituting the bed of the north fork of the Red river in Wheeler and Gray counties. Value of the land has been estimated as high as $50,000,000.

State Brought Suit

Suit was brought by the state to try title to the river bed, it being the state's contention the land

Evidence To Remove Walker Presented

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—Evidence which Samuel Seabury said constituted grounds for the removal of Mayor Walker was presented to the Hofstadter legislative committee today.

The gray haired committee counsel charged Walker had violated the city charter by holding bonds in a company which received a city contract for $43,556 worth of traffic lights.

"And I say it is grounds for removal and has been so held and is so provided in section 1533 of the city charter," Seabury told the inquiry board in stern tones.

Walker, in Detroit, charged Seabury with "unfairness' and said the lawyer "well knew" that the bonds "came into my possession without any knowledge on my part of the company's business."

"Seabury knows," the mayor continued, "that these were bonds and not stocks of the company, and that they represented a mortgage in the company and not an interest in it."

Parrot Barred As Witness In Murder Trial

Court Refuses To Let Brilliant Hued Bird Chortle Testimony For State

CONROE, Texas, June 1. (UP)—A squawking, brilliant hued parrot appeared in district court here today as a witness in a murder trial but was denied the right to testify. Special prosecutors aiding in trial of young Durell Kendall, Mississippi farm boy, had hoped to use the bird in a weird courtroom drama which probably has no parallel.

The parrot is believed to have been the only witness capable of speech at the murders of L. H. Brownlee, itinerant showman, and Martha Smith, Brownlee's cook, in a tent at New Caney last December. The parrot's cries led to discovery of the gruesome crime, several days after it occurred.

Kendall, an employe of Brownlee, was traced to Woodland, Miss., and charged with the murders. The prosecution is asking that he be given the death penalty.

Prosecutors believed that if the parrot was confronted with the person who slew the man and woman, it would become so excited as to repeat some of the things that were said in the tent at the time. Hans Nagel, authority on tropical birds and zookeeper at Houston, said the theory was plausible.

But the prosecution lost its unusual witness on a much simpler point than the expected battle over legal admissibility of its gibberish. It lost in an attempt to have the parrot brought into court to "talk" for a man who had never seen or heard such a bird before today.

The bird cawed to itself in an anteroom while other witnesses testified until the defense finally rested.

Then the state called Charlie

SURVEY STARTS FOR GASOLINE LINE TO DEVOL

Refiners Here May Lay Pipe in Effort to Secure Fairer Freight

A survey for the construction of a three-inch gasoline pipe line from Wichita Falls to Devol, Okla., is being made by a group of Wichita Falls refineries, it was learned Wednesday.

Higher Rates Here

According to local refiners, the pipe line, with loading facilities at Devol, has been proposed because freight rates from Wichita Falls to northern and eastern points are two and one half cents per hundred pounds higher than the rates on similar products from Devol, a distance of only 18½ miles from Wichita Falls.

Notwithstanding that the local refiners have been running at much reduced capacities and further that they have endeavored to market in territories where they have an equal freight rate with Oklahoma refiners, yet they estimate that during the past year five refineries have paid excess charges over the amount that would have been paid from Devol of approximately $115,000.

Shipments to North

It is estimated that the line could be built for approximately $35,000, to which would have to be added necessary tankage at Devol. It was also estimated that this line could be operated, including depreciation and return upon investment, for about $2,000 per month. This cost figures less than one cent per hundred excess over Oklahoma instead of 2½ cents, which refineries are now paying. This saving would amount to over $8 per car, and this group of refiners estimate an average of at least 15 cars per day.

Recently one local refiner alone has been shipping 20 cars per day north. An effort to secure a differential of one cent per hundred over the rates from Devol, Okla., has so far failed and it appears to the refiners that their only remedy is to build a gasoline pipe line to that point.

Three posses were organized quickly and gave chase.

REVENUE BILL SENT SPEEDILY TO CONFERENCE

Spirit of Unity Displayed By Both Houses On Tax Legislation

WASHINGTON, June 1. (AP)—In a spirit of unity, congress proceeded today with its thankless and important task of putting the government on a paying basis.

The keystone measure—the $1,115,000,000 revenue raising bill—was sped to conference by the unanimous consent of the house immediately upon its receipt from the senate today.

Conference Opens Today

Conferees will begin the adjustment of differences tomorrow morning with leaders of all factions confidently predicting the revenue funds will be kept up to the new and last-minute goal set yesterday by President Hoover.

Taking no time off after its grind of completing the tax bill, the senate today dug into the vexing problem of making the more than $200,000,000 in government economies necessary to help the revenue bill balance the budget for 1933.

The senate did take a few minutes to hear denials of newspaper assertions that President Hoover's personally delivered message had speeded the revenue legislation to passage.

Hoover's Talk Discounted

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, Democratic tax leader, without criticizing the appearance or the message of the president, reminded the country that the senate had been ready on Monday night to approve the tax bill and had waited only to receive the 11th hour appeal from the administration for additional levies.

Others, including Senator Borah of Idaho, and La Follette of Wisconsin, joined.

Enthusiastic over the rapid progress in bridging the treasury deficit gap, congressional leaders were looking ahead once more to the possibility of adjourning before the national conventions—10 days hence. There was no certainty of this, however.

Their whereabouts became a mystery soon after the father, J. M. Cone, was found dying. He had been shot once through the chest, but when a physician summoned by a 15-year-old son arrived, he had two wounds in the chest.

A coroner's verdict was that the wounds were self-inflicted. He died without making any statement.

SMALL BILL HELD VALID

Supreme Court Rules Land Law Constitutional

never was on the market and was sold illegally since a statute prohibited survey lines from crossing navigable streams. The state had classified the north fork as a navigable stream under the terms of the statute. The suit was pending when the validating bill was passed.

Sponsored by Senator Clint W. Small of Amarillo, the bill was passed by the 41st legislature over the veto of Gov. Dan Moody.

Several surveyors working in West Texas had run their lines across dry streams, claimed by the state to be navigable rivers and exempt from sale under the statute which declared rivers that were 30 feet wide were navigable and forbade surveys to cross them.

Contention Overruled

Patents had been awarded under the surveys that had crossed the river and the small bill was enacted to clear the title to the land in favor of the patentees.

One of the state's arguments was that the Small bill was not applicable in the Bradford case because the suit was pending when the law was enacted. The supreme court overruled this contention, citing the bill was retrospective since its announced purpose was to validate titles to land "whose surveys have been heretofore made."

It clearly was the intention of the legislature to cure pre-existing defects in the titles, the court stated.

The Small bill did not contravene the constitutional provision reserving to the state the natural resources in the river beds and did not impair any mineral rights reserved by the state, the court stated.

Case Reversed

Two defendants, Caswell and Reed, intervenors in the suit, had claimed title to a portion of the contested area under the oil and gas permit sections of the 1917 mineral act.

The supreme court, however, held the land commissioner to be within his authority in refusing the application of Caswell and Reed for a permit, the opinion stating that so long as original patents and the awards remained uncancelled the commissioner had no authority to annul them, since this would have been a judicial and not a ministerial act.

The case was reversed to the district court for a new trial in accordance with the supreme court findings.

Youth Directs Officers To Hiding Places Of Loot From Bowie Store

Distribution in various hiding places of about $500 worth of clothing stolen from Saul's store in Bowie about a month ago was outlined Wednesday to officers from Montague county by Floyd Brown, arrested here Monday afternoon by police officers.

Charges will be filed in Montague county against Brown and his companion, Harold Byford, according to Temple Yarbrough, county attorney. Mr. Yarbrough was accompanied here Wednesday by Charlie Bennett, chief deputy sheriff, and Charlie Jackson, city marshal at Bowie.

In a statement given Mr. Yarbrough, Brown was said to have revealed that a portion of the stolen merchandise was concealed near Burkburnett, some in this city, and some in Montague county. A portion of the loot has been recovered from a farm house, a few miles from Bowie, the visiting officers said.

Byford gave his age here as 16, a statement denied by officers from Montague county.

The two youths were arrested here Monday when they dismounted from an automobile which had been trailed by local police. It was stolen from a Breckenridge man in Fort Worth about two weeks ago, according to local officers. Both the boys were heavily armed when arrested, it was said.

Both the youths will be held in the Wichita county jail for the present, officers said.

"That let's me out, I can't see trying it for fun," the Texas flier said last night when informed, five minutes after ending a transcontinental air journey, the time limit for completion of a flight for a $29,500 prize offered by Seattle aviation enthusiasts, would not be extended beyond midnight tonight. The prize donors stipulated a start at Seattle and arrival at Tokyo.

But Bromley found some consolation in the low cost of his flight from New York, which started Monday morning and was broken at Amarillo, Texas, Monday night by an oil tank leak. His plane uses oil for fuel.

"It cost me only $18 for fuel," he said. "I burned about 300 gallons of low grade oil flying a route of nearly 2,708 miles. But I was in hopes they would extend the time of that flight a week or so."

Atwell Speaks At Postoffice Opening

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 1.—William H. Atwell, judge of the U. S. district court, was the principal speaker here last night at a banquet commemorating the opening of the new $350,000 federal postoffice and court building which was used for the first time yesterday by the court.

E. L. Klett, Lubbock attorney, was toastmaster at the banquet with more than 150 of the legal profession and other prominent Lubbock people present.

Calling attention to the ever increasing crime wave that is sweeping America today, Judge Atwell declared that never before has there been such a need for the keen minds of the legal profession to aid law officers in apprehending and prosecuting those who commit crimes.

Among those present were a large number of out-of-town people in the Lubbock district.

Wichitans to Join Bonus Marchers

Enlistment in a Wichita Falls detachment of the "Lone Star expedition" to join the march on Washington, D. C., seeking immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus will follow the regular meeting of the American Legion at the Memorial auditorium Thursday night. The local post is not sponsoring the trip but will give opportunity for the men interested to express themselves. Election of a top sergeant to handle the local veterans corps will precede enlistment of men.

The Wichita Falls detachment is already reported to be 25 strong with seven recruits from Burkburnett and five promised from Electra. The corps will probably leave at once for Dallas to join the state army. Small armies of the bonus seekers are reported converging on Dallas from many points in the state and the entire Texas group will entrain for the nation's capital as one army despite warnings from Washington that welfare facilities are already taxed to handle the bonus army now encamped there.

WHEAT REPORT MADE BY A&M

Hardeman Diseased Grain Given Analysis

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, June 1.—A report on samples of diseased wheat, which has appeared on several farms in Hardeman county and which is reported to exist also in other counties of the Panhandle, has been received from the division of pathology, Texas Agriculture and Mechanical college at College Station.

The report, received from Dr. J. J. Taubenhaus, chief of the division, reads in part:

"I have carefully examined the specimen and found it affected by typical root rot caused by several roganisms, namely, Helminthosporium, Septoria, Phoma and Macrophoma. The Helminthosporium and Septoria particularly are strongly parasitic on wheat, and the other two may be secondary or may also play a part in the disease."

County Agent Luther T. Hunter, who forwarded the diseased samples, declared that it is believed that the disease is caused, like many other plant diseases, by continuous planting. It is found, he said, that the trouble is much worse on old wheat land than where crops are rotated.

Parrot Barred In Murder Trial

Moore, of New Caney, as a rebuttal witness. He testified, earlier, to passing within 10 feet of the Brownlee show tent two days before the bodies were found, and to hearing what he described as a "sort of muttering like a human voice." A defense objection stopped his testimony at that point.

When recalled, Moore reiterated that he heard the muttering, but said he had never seen or heard a parrot until today. Special Prosecutor Zimmie Foreman sent a deputy sheriff after the parrot, which had been entertaining idlers outside. His intention apparently was to have the bird talk so Moore could say whether it was the voice he heard in the tent.

District Judge S. A. McCall sustained a defense objection and the deputy was called back. Foreman had refused to answer questions as to what use he intended to make of the bird. The Houston Press said in an article today that the parrot was not the one that witnessed the tent murders, but one borrowed by Foreman from a woman at Huntsville.

Defense testimony today was intended to show that others besides the defendant had opportunity and motive for killing Brownlee. Two witnesses told the court they heard a mysterious stranger make threats against the slain show man.

The state contention is that Kendall slew Brownlee after a dispute over wages.

Funds Exhausted In Dallas For Hungry

DALLAS, June 1. (INS)—Approximately 10,000 Dallas people who have been depending on the citizens' emergency relief committee's seven stations for food were facing starvation Wednesday unless relief can be provided quickly.

Its funds completely exhausted, the committee was in session Wednesday, trying to devise some means of preventing a crisis.

For several weeks, appropriations have been made piecemeal. The city recently agreed to contribute $30,000 to the fund if other relief agencies would duplicate that amount. So far, no money has been raised by the private agencies.

Meanwhile, those who were necessarily turned away when the food stations were closed Wednesday began bombarding the city welfare department with pleas for something to eat. Committee men admitted the situation is by far more serious than it has been at any time previous.

Taxicab Driver Fined $1 and Costs

O. T. Robinson, dime taxi operator, was fined $1 and costs, a total fine of $4, in corporation court Wednesday afternoon by a jury. He was tried on a charge of operating a taxi without a license. Robinson, with the George C. Williams service, was one of the group of drivers whose licenses were revoked May 23 in the same court before Judge Edgar Scurry, when they were tried on charges of violating the city's 25 cent minimum taxi ordinance.

The cases against seven drivers of Hamp's taxi service were postponed Wednesday until 8 o'clock Thursday morning.

RHEUMATISM

EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

Poisons settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You cannot get rid of rheumatic agony till every trace of these dangerous poisons is driven out of your system. That's why external remedies and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine; that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and helps expel through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatic misery.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is one rheumatism remedy sold in drug stores everywhere with money back guarantee. RU-MA quickly and safely frees muscles and joints from painful stiffness, swelling and lameness.

So many terrible sufferers from rheumatism in this vicinity have been freed from their rheumatic agony in less than a week that Allison's Drug store urges you buy a bottle of Ru-Ma today and begin now to get rid of all your Rheumatic aches and pains.—Adv.

Big City Mayors Ask Federal Aid

tomorrow from Secretaries Hurley and Mills who will go before the house ways and means committee to present the opposition of the administration.

The two cabinet officers, both of whom already have spoken against the bill, are expected to amplify President Hoover's objections, particularly to the provision calling for an outlay of $1,309,000,000 for direct relief and public works construction.

Immediately thereafter the committee plans to perfect the measure and report it. It is to be taken up in the house on Monday.

The federation of labor's approval of the bill was presented to the committee today by W. C. Hushing of Washington, its legislative representative.

Although the organization is opposed to the dole, he said, it was doubtful whether the $100,000,000 carried for direct relief in the measure would be sufficient to care for the unemployed.

"Excluding the white collar workers," Hushing said, "there are more than 8,000,000 men out of employment."

He estimated that between 15 and 16 millions of persons were in destitute circumstances and said the purchasing power of the people had decreased $11,000,000,000 annually, adding to the low economic condition.

Hutton Trial Delayed When Aimee Reported Ill

LOS ANGELES, June 1. (US)—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist and healer, was today reported ill in Guatamala.

She was so ill, it was said, that her baritone husband, David L. Hutton, was unable to leave here side and so could not appear to defend a $200,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Miss M. H. St. Pierre, pretty Pasadena nurse.

A postponement of the trial was granted.

Miss St. Pierre alleges in her complaint that Hutton betrayed her under promise of marriage, but he has entered a denial. Hutton knew the nurse before his marriage to Mrs. McPherson several months ago.

"B. C." Relieves Periodical Pains In Three Minutes

It is so unnecessary to suffer month after month from inorganic pains, because "B. C." will bring soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of common colds, headaches and neuralgia, muscular aches and pains, reducing fever and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold.—Adv.

Court Gives Election To Mayor's Contestant

AUSTIN, June 1. (AP)—The third court of civil appeals today affirmed decision of the Hays county district court in awarding the office of mayor of San Marcos to J. R. Wilhelm, who had contested the claimed election of Charles R. Ramsay.

It reversed and remanded a holding of the trial court awarding Wilhelm a money judgment of $332 against Ramsay, that amount being salary collected by Ramsay as mayor from the time he was declared elected and qualified until the district court held Wilhelm had been elected.

Returns of the mayoralty election of April 7, 1931, showed that Ramsay had received 434 votes and Wilhelm 430. A number of the votes counted were attacked as illegal by both claimants of the office on trial of the case.

Phantom★ Kotex

SANITARY NAPKIN (U. S. Pat. No. 1,857,854)

Most important improvement in sanitary protection since the invention of Kotex itself in 1920.

AT LAST! A radically new design in sanitary protection. You are scarcely aware that you have it on. Made, of course, by Kotex—originators of the modern sanitary napkin.

It is called PHANTOM ★ KOTEX. Why? Because the ends are so flattened and tapered that it leaves no outlines even under the closest-fitting of gowns. Not the slightest bulk suggested even under the filmiest of summer silks. And—for those who require extra protection—Super-Phantom Kotex is ideal. There's extra protective surface but the ends are so skilfully flattened as to be completely inconspicuous.

Kotex features retained

The special Kotex features you have always appreciated are retained, of course. It is soft after hours of use; wonderfully absorbent; treated to deodorize; can be worn, with equal protection, on either side; disposable, easily.

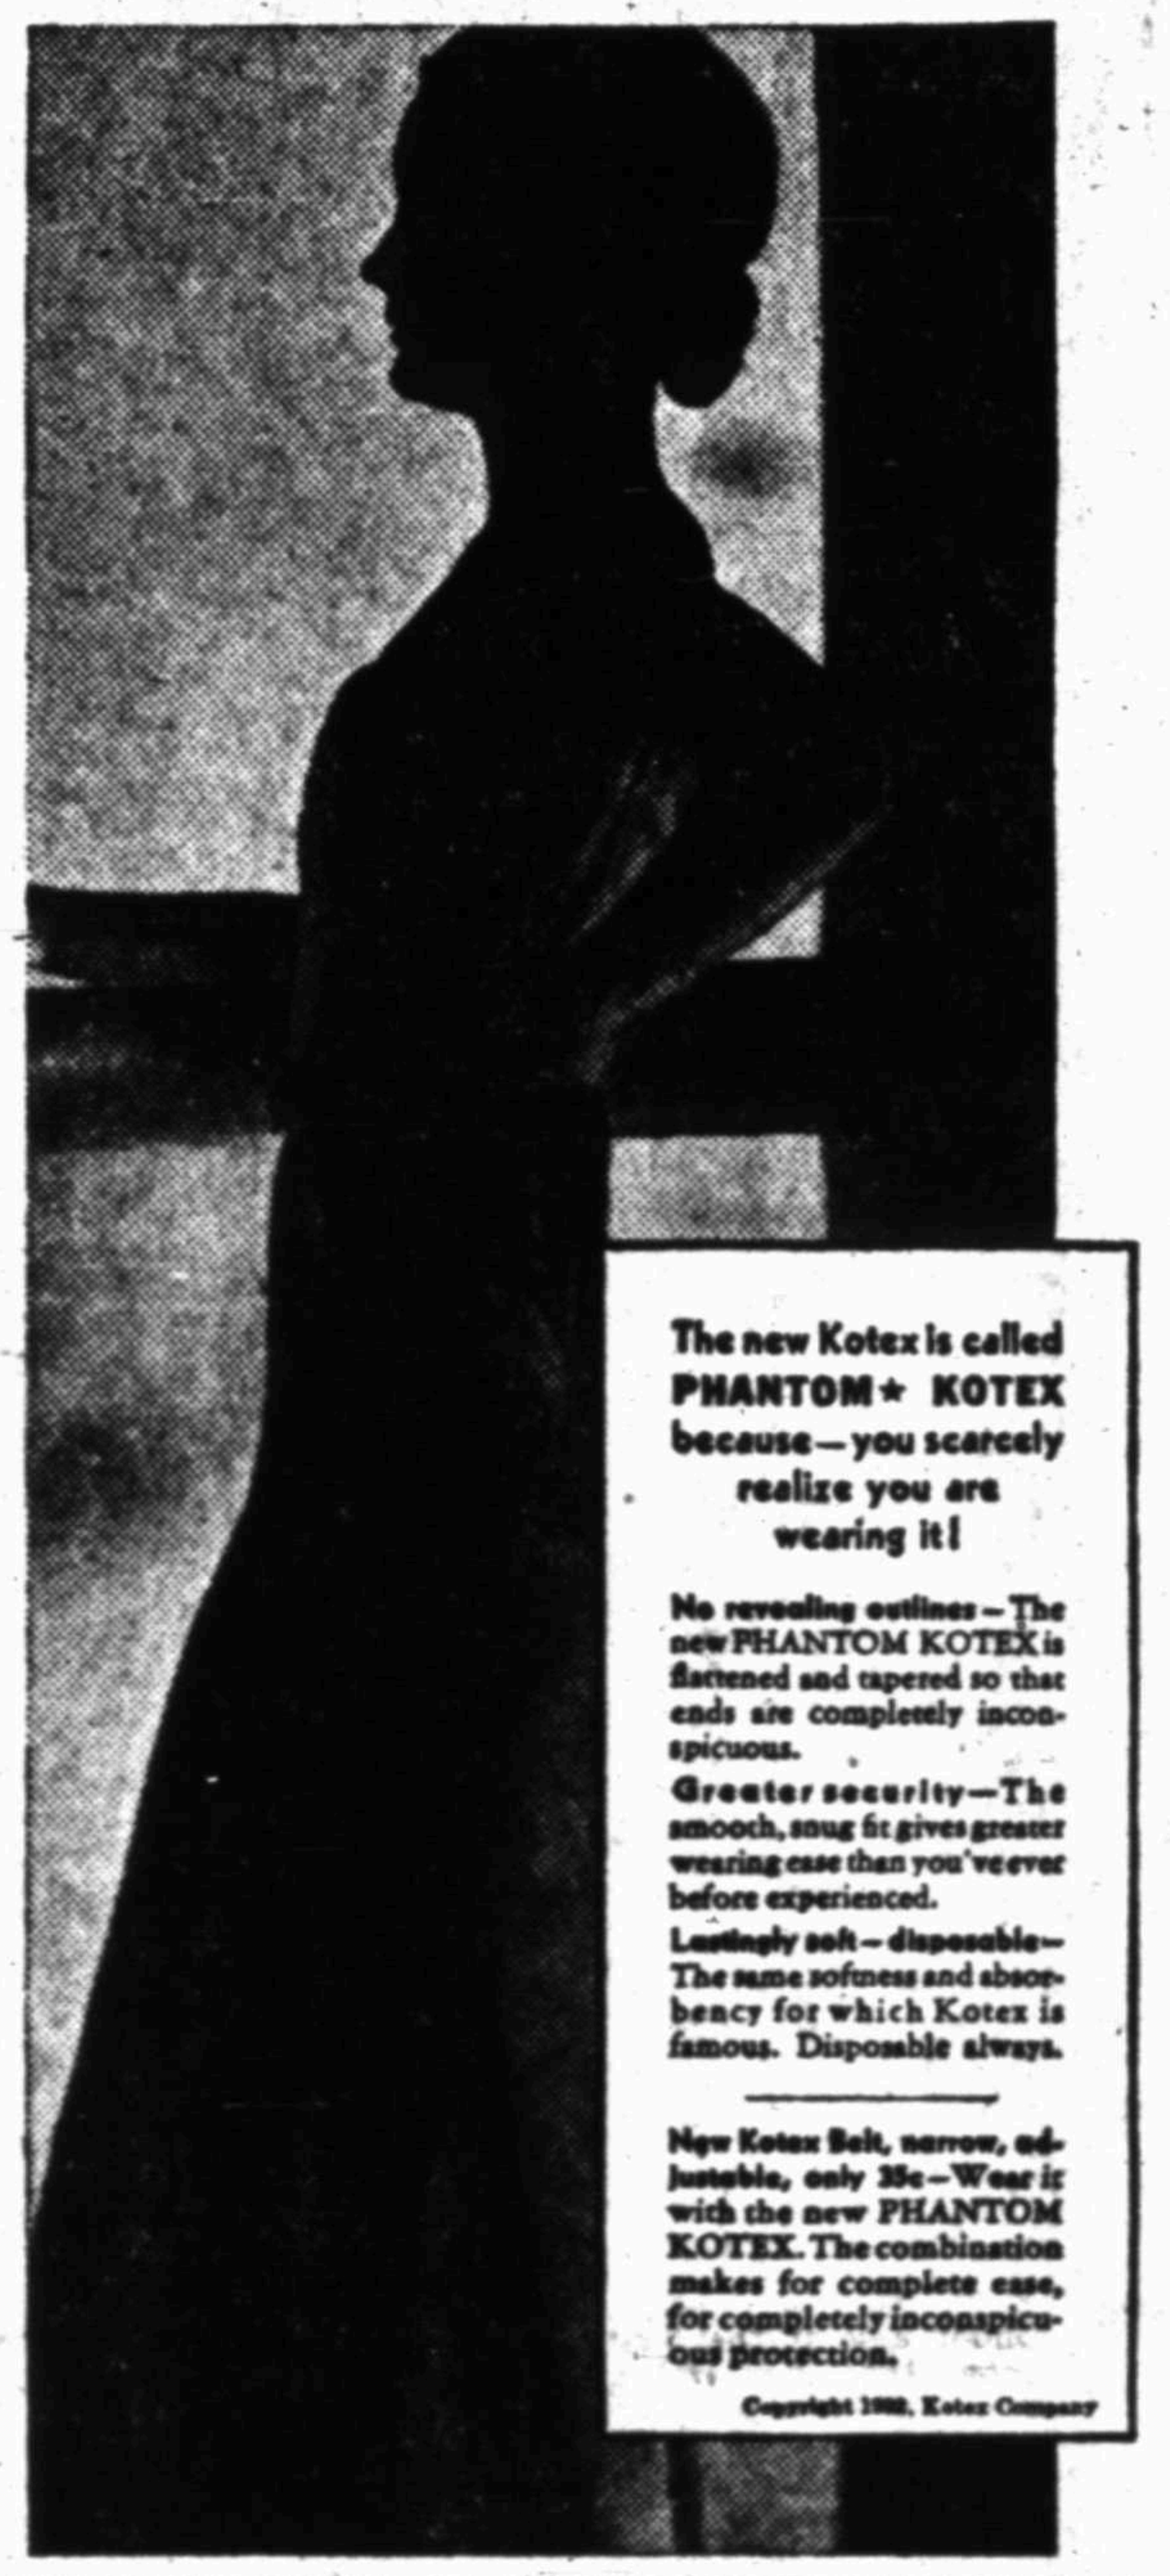
More than 24 million pads were used in hospitals alone last year.

Insist upon getting genuine Kotex, when you buy it already wrapped. Each tapered end of the new pad is stamped "Kotex" now—so you can't get inferior substitutes.

Kotex prices are today the lowest in Kotex history. This new improvement comes to you at no increase in price. All dealers have the new PHANTOM KOTEX.

HOW SHALL I TELL MY DAUGHTER?

Many a mother wonders. Now you simply hand your daughter the little booklet entitled, "Marjorie May's Twelfth Birthday." For free copy, address Mary Pauline Callender, Room 2140, 180 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.



The new Kotex is called PHANTOM★ KOTEX because—you scarcely realize you are wearing it!

No revealing outlines—The new PHANTOM KOTEX is flattened and tapered so that ends are completely inconspicuous.

Greater security—The smooth, snug fit gives greater wearing ease than you've ever before experienced.

Lastingly soft—disposable—The same softness and absorbency for which Kotex is famous. Disposable always.

New Kotex Belt, narrow, adjustable, only 25c—Wear it with the new PHANTOM KOTEX. The combination makes for complete ease, for completely inconspicuous protection.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Did we get squelched, or did we not? Well, there is balm in Gilead. When, finding the letter quoted below placed in our typewriter, we rushed in to show it to an editorial writer, he comforted us somewhat by showing us one he had just received saying that our two columns were considered by that writer as the two best in the papers. And the writer's name was signed.

We agree with the writer that a Vox Pop, like that in Liberty, would be a good thing. We never mind reprinting any letter in our column, but hereafter it will be one with a signature. Any one who has the nerve to sign a name to a letter has a right to express oneself; but an anonymous writer gets our space for the last time.

"Dear Editor:

Have read this column some to see if it would be possible to ever find one that contained anything of value or information. Have failed to know anything more than before reading except something about the writer herself and her home in tenn. Notice this last one is suggestive of gettomg her picture at the top. Wonder if the readers of your good paper is going to have this added dose to suffer. Have come to the conclusion that you need a Vox Pop, like Liberty, and let some of the readers express themselves, sometimes. If you calim to know anything about newspapers and what is news, wonder how much longer you will tolerate this rotten stuff.

This epistle goes "as is," punctuation, grammar, spelling and all. We only reserve the right to keep for our own delectation, the specimen of typewriting.

We are exceedingly sorry the "admiring reader of something worthwhile" has wasted time reading the column. Wonder why she did. And we wonder also if the writer does not know that few columns are written to tell news. We heard an editor—and a good one—say a column was not the place for news.

At any rate, the person who wrote us—no—who wrote our editor this charming letter, knows as much as he or she did before. We are at least glad that it did not subtract from knowledge. That would have been a calamity.

If you do not at any time agree with us, gentle reader (we are not addressing the person who wrote the above letter, for that person is neither gentle nor a reader, we judge), tell us so if you wish, and we will be glad to publish your communication. But it must, hereafter, have a name and an address. Take it or leave it.

Our greatest kick is the suggestion that we mean to get our picture at the top of our column. That is the last thing on earth we want. We wrote a column which was enclosed with the bright criticism in reply to a letter asking that we have it there, a letter by the way that is signed.

Just for the moment we feel terribly crushed. But, as we have said before, we are like truth that "crushed to earth, will rise again." Poor reader! Well, don't read it if you don't like it. It takes up a very small space and there are those who do like it.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Have we had the pleasure of serving you through our Washington information bureau? Can't we be of some help to you in your problems? Our business is to furnish you with authoritative information, and we invite you to ask us any question of fact in which you are interested. Send your inquiry to The Record News Information bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C. Enclose two cents in coin or stamps for return postage.

Q.—What is the present status of Mount Weather?—A. C.

A.—Mount Weather is a station of the weather bureau near Bluemont, Va. It is under the custody of the weather bureau, department of agriculture, and is not being operated now as an active station but is being maintained and kept in repair by caretakers of this bureau. The secretary of agriculture has authority to sell this property under a provision obtained in the agricultural appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1922.

Q.—Is it lawful to buy playing cards, break the seals, alter the cards, and sell them again?—T. N.

A.—A person can do this under certain regulations. He would have to be classed as a repacker. He would file a monthly statement with the collector of internal revenue of his district and buy the necessary revenue stamps.

Q.—How many music scholarships are there in this country?—P. J.

A.—The Etude has made a survey of the situation and announces that there are more than 3,000 scholarships offered annually and that a half million dollars is expended for them.

Q.—How old was Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, at the time of his death?—K. J.

A.—Davis was born in 1808 and died in 1889.

Q.—Who are the Plymouth Brethren?—L. M. B.

A.—The sect known as Plymouth Brethren was founded by an Irish clergyman, Dr. John Darby, in 1827. The headquarters were made at Plymouth, England, from whence the name. Missionary efforts were highly successful in Switzerland, Germany, Italy, France, and the United States. The doctrine, besides being evangelical, believes in predestinarianism and millenniumism, and the body does not believe in a ministry set apart, believing all men are equal in matters of faith and doctrine.

Q.—How was the date of fire prevention day fixed?—O. H. F.

A.—It was decided to observe the day on the anniversary of the great Chicago fire, Oct. 8-11, 1871.

Q.—What phases of weather are covered in the reports furnished to aviators by the weather bureau?—T. D.

A.—The following features are covered: Conditions of sky and weather, ceiling height, horizontal visibility, wind direction and velocity, condition and movement of upper air currents, temperature, barometric pressure, dew point, thunderstorms, squalls, condition of landing fields, fog, cloud formation, smoke and haze.

Q.—In Raphael's day in Rome who had the greater following, he or Michelangelo?—E. M. D.

A.—Raphael had by far the larger following.

Q.—After whom was McGill university, Canada's leading institution of learning, named?—B. S.

A.—James McGill was born in Scotland in 1744. He came to Canada in 1770 and entered the fur trade. He accumulated a fortune as a merchant at Montreal, became a member of parliament, and was a brigadier general in the war of 1812 against the United States. He died in 1813 leaving a will providing for the establishment of the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning. This official name has given place to the name of McGill university.

Q.—What are meant by the mysteries, referred to in ancient history?—S. R.

A.—Among the Greeks, and later among the Romans, they were secret religious assemblies, in which uninitiated persons were not permitted to take part. In their way they took the place of the secret societies of today.

Beyond the Creek Bank

FROM Camden, N. J., Tuesday came a news dispatch telling that the 113th anniversary of the birth of Walt Whitman was observed there, and that a memorial tree was planted "on the bank of the creek where Walt Whitman received inspiration for some of his poems."

The bare statement, conventionally conceived, is peculiarly inadequate. To the casual reader, it fails to acknowledge the scope and depth of Whitman's philosophy. It also smacks strongly of that attitude which regards poetry as a strange essence distilled at a given place and time under the fire of a momentary inspiration.

Whitman and his poetry differ strikingy from both those implications. While he may have retired to the quiet of a creek bank to place upon paper thoughts which brewed within his mind, the inspiration which prompted his expressions had been in him and upon him from boyhood.

A certain type of versifying might result from the repose of any thoughtful young man left to himself by a creek bank on a spring day. The restful motion of flowing water, graceful swaying of willows, and floating wisps of cloud in the blue above him are materials for poetic expression. But Whitman looked much deeper into the scheme of things entire than this pleasant picture of sky and tree and water. He saw the possibility of human associations attaining the delightful symphony presented by the water, the sky, and the trees.

Figuratively speaking, the inspiration of every poem is the writer's escape to a sunny creek bank—his escape from things as they are to things as he dreams them to be. He would open our eyes to abstract qualities with which we are surrounded, freeing us from blind slavery to material quantities. He would teach us not only to reach the further shore, but to enjoy utterly the crossing.

Women Outnumber Men in Cities

FOR the first time in census enumeration in the United States females outnumber males in the cities of the United States. Males outnumber females in the rural sections. Heretofore males have outnumbered females in the cities while females have outnumbered males in the rural sections.

An accepted explanation of the greater number of males in the cities heretofore has been the drift of population from the farm to the city in which more young men than young women left the farms because of their better chances of finding employment.

But in recent years it is evident that girls have been leaving the farms in as large numbers as boys, and now that the economic situation is causing many to return to the farms more males are going back than females. This may be because the male is better equipped physically to meet the conditions of farm life. But if the advantages of rural life become permanent we can expect to see as many females in the shift from city to farm as a previous decade saw from the country to the city.

The country spinster who was a spinster because the young man she might have married went to the city may pass out of the picture. We have an idea that her niece in the city will not be long in following "her man" to the country.

France's Costly Allies

PREMIER-TO-BE HERRIOT of France seems to be discovering that those famous foreign alliances of France can be rather expensive.

Recent cable dispatches reveal that all of these allies of the French are demanding financial assistance from Paris. Poland wants $10,000,000; Rumania wants an equal sum; lesser allies are calling for amounts only slightly smaller. Furthermore, they want the money quickly, and the Polish government is said to have hinted that the Franco-Polish alliance will practically lapse if the money isn't forthcoming.

But the powerful French Socialist party is on record definitely against such foreign credits; and M. Herriot, consequently, has a tough problem on his hands. He may eventually decide that these alliances cost more than they are worth—which would be good news to the rest of the world.

Old Bills and Hoarders

THE old-fashioned, large-sized bills which constituted the paper money of the United States until a few years ago have practically disappeared from circulation. Most of us do not see one of those bills from one year's end to another.

It comes as a surprise, therefore, to learn from Representative Cochran of Missouri that no less than $538,000,000 of this large-sized money is still in circulation.

That, perhaps, is hardly the way to put it. It isn't in circulation; it is being hoarded. If it were in circulation it would vanish, for whenever one of those bills lands in a bank it is retired and replaced by a small-sized note.

The campaign against hoarding, evidently, still has quite a way to go, if half a billion in the old-fashioned paper money is still reposing in private caches.

SO THEY SAY!

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1932, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

The Wall of the Big City

Spring is peppering Manhattan with clamoring curb urchins and gay rectangles of sunlight under the ties of the "L". . . . The blunt stretchings of the silver buildings catch the new season's light and shoot it daringly down its terraced edges to the murmuring streets. . . . The transplanted foliage that embroiders the ledges of the repenthouses reflects a fresh vitality and you feel that there must be some one singing within its lofty enclosure. . . . Unchallenged, spring pounces on a receptive city and spreads its gayest carpets. . . . But spring doesn't enter hearts so easily.

"I want to be alone with my husband's body. . . . Please go out, all of you." . . . A squat Italian woman in mourner's black was pleading with the hundred friends who had crowded into the Second Ave. undertaker's chapel. . . . "I want to be alone with him for the last time." . . . Her face was rigid. . . . Something she had learned from the years of dangling insecurity that comes with being the mate of an East Side gunman. . . . The silent group eased out of the room and left her a solitary figure beside the coffin. . . . She took a step closer, and another. . . . Her eyes squinted before the gaudy array of floral pieces. . . . All her days had been gaudy. . . . Gaudy paintings on the wall, gaudy silverware and dishes with golden rims, gaudy French boudoirs, gaudy stationery that she never used, gaudy greetings to guests whose hips bulged with unanswerable rods. . . . "Lasting Life to Our Dearest Pal" was the legend on a silken streamer across a rambling wreath of lilies. . . . Another: "To Our Leader, a Man of Courage." . . . In letters a foot high, a garish ribbon vowed that the dead man would be "Missed Forever." . . . She looked them over one by one. . . . Her man was cold. . . . A bullet had torn his eyes out as he left the swanky apartment of a red-topped moll in the mad Fifties. . . . She had never known her name nor did she care. . . . He had stepped across his 14th St. frontier into dangerous territory. . . . And they got him. . . . It didn't matter now that she had warned him about his infidelities. . . . There was little use in trying to divert emotions of living people. But now, alone in the strangely polished room, she had him all to herself. . . . She took another step and her feet trampled the roses beneath the frame that upheld the expensive coffin. . . . Embalmers had made a hurried attempt to restore his features, but nothing could hide completely the brutal mark of the bullet that brought him down. . . . That brought him back to her. . . . Outside children were playing on the pavements and the rumbling of the downtown surface cars carried a merry jangle in the spring sun. . . . Directly in front of her was the man she had married in the quaint Sicilian church and nursed through influenza on their steerage route to Ellis island. . . . That was 20 years ago. . . . Long before prohibition and guns. . . . Long before fancy au gratins had replaced the earthy spaghetti and dazzling chorines had replaced his wife. . . . Her. . . . The chill of her expression left for a moment while she collected herself. . . . A flush of anguish gripped her. . . . "You dirty rat, you" she cried suddenly. "You dirty, dirty rat!" . . . And with the maddened force of sorrow, she spat into the face of the corpse.

The wall of the big city springs at you softly from strange doorways and crowds you into desperate corners with the force of a fast charging regiment. . . . There was Turtles. . . . A very funny name for a mining town widow. . . . In Pennsylvania she had been moderately happy with her home. . . . But a coal-dust blast left her and a 3-year-old son penniless. . . . Miners are poor and a child must have healthy food. . . . And a chance to grow away from grimy mine lanterns and the heavy smudge that covers everything within sight. . . . So she came to Broadway. . . . Somewhere in the razzle-dazzle of subways, purring Rolls-Royces and conquering heroes she would find an income that would permit her to support her mother and son. . . . Turtles found a garret room in an old building overlooking Washington square. . . . And during the dreary weeks that she sought employment the sun peeped in every morning rather surprised that she was still there. . . . And the moon looked through her windows every night as if to bid her a bon voyage. . . . She even felt the city's south wind scurrying ominously through her muddled domain. . . . And turning her and twisting. . . . Then came the job as a hat girl in a cheap 52nd St. clip joint. . . . It meant $30 a week and half of it went with her Saturday letter to Scranton. . . . There was strong consolation, especially in the badly scrawled letter that arrived promptly every Wednesday morning from her mother. . . . One night I wandered in to check up on the feeble night of the tawdry sideshow. . . . The dawn-fighters were few, and Turtles sat down beside me in the red-plushed vestibule.

"You know, Mr. Yawitz, this is a funny racket," she started. . . . "I don't seem to fit in. . . . The people around this place live in the raw. . . . They say the things that come to their minds first. . . . It doesn't seem to matter to them whether you like it or not. . . . These gamblers, beer runners, dope importers. . . . They live like condemned men who have been given a 10-day leave outside of the gallows-room. . . . I've endured it because I've had to. . . . I'm not as happy as that smile on my face when I'm taking your quarter. . . . For a long time I fought with myself. . . . I fought against the invitations to parties that start at 5 in the morning after we close here. . . . A few weeks ago I got my regular letter from mother. . . . She was very ill and the kid was getting hard to handle. . . . That night I knew I wouldn't sleep and so I accepted an invitation. . . . The fellow I went with was a torpedo for an uptown mob. . . . The guy they detail to their bump-off squad. . . . But he was swell to me. . . . I thought it would be a party of continuous fencing with the men. . . . But it wasn't. . . . I was treated like a lady. . . . Even more so than here. . . . I've gotten to like this crazy fellow, in fact, I've fallen in love with him. . . . He's helping me in a lot of ways, and wants me to bring my mother and kid to New York. . . . He has a mother living in Long Island and she's ready to open her house to them. . . . But I don't know what to do. . . . You see, Mr. Yawitz, I've met a man that would be grand to me, but look at the racket he's in! . . . Look at his record! . . . I can't reconcile my midwestern conscience with his ways. . . . But I know I love him.

The following Wednesday, Turtles appeared disgruntled and nervous. . . . For the first time the regular weekly letter from her mother hadn't arrived. . . . The hours dragged. . . . She tried to get Tommy on the phone just to hear him assure her all was right. . . . But he was not there. . . . At 4 a. m. she donned her clothes and sneaked out. . . . When she arrived at her door the phone was ringing. . . . "Turtles, something dreadful has happened," came the trembling voice. "Tommy had been killed. They got him in Mack's speak in Harlem." . . . Turtles dashed to the window. . . . It was spring outside; the sun glittered brilliantly on Washington Arch. . . . A grind-organ was playing Mendelssohn. . . . She stepped across the sill and flung herself out. . . . Her body bounced off a protruding gable and landed in the street. . . . The clanking of a fire-engine in the distance muffled the sound of her fall. . . . The children in the square ran to the fire. . . . The wall of the big city blew out of the East river, flaunted a chill across the island, and spent itself in the upper reaches of the Hudson.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON.

THE BRIDGE OF THE GODS—The Mihashi, or Sacred Red Bridge, spanning the frothing mountain stream of Dayi Gawa near Nikko, is one of the most picturesque objects in Japan. It is reserved for the exclusive use of the gods of Japan and the Tenno (son of Heaven), the official title of the Japanese sovereign. No mortal may cross on it.

Its vivid red coloring is traced to the fact that in former days human blood was used to dye it. The blood donors would slash themselves with long knives to obtain the fluid for the purpose.

Mere mortals use another bridge, made of plain granite, to cross the stream nearby.

Tomorrow—"The Death's Head Pearl."

Former Texas Aggie Star Claims Poppies Grown In Dye Experiments

NEW YORK, June 1. (UP)—Insisting his poppy farm was an experimental field for a new kind of dye, Claud C. Fuqua, 30, chemical engineer and former Texas A. & M. college football star, today denied federal charges of violating the narcotic act.

Federal officers who arrested him and destroyed his small plot of Chinese opium poppies on his father's farm near Effie, La., insisted they had obtained some poppy gum from Fuqua, had analyzed it and found it to be opium.

"The charge I had three acres of opium poppies is ludicrous," the young chemist said. "The agents did not find more than one-third of an acre of the plants. There are hundreds of types of poppies and only a few produce opium.

"I got the seeds in Venezuela when I was employed there by an oil company, and decided to experiment to see if I could produce dye with coal tar and poppy gum," he said.

Three Held at Longview On Oil Theft Charges

LONGVIEW, Texas, June 1. (AP)—Three men who gave their names as C. P. Shaw, Jene Scott and M. H. Johnson were in the Gregg county jail today facing charges of theft of oil valued at more than $50.

They were arrested in southwestern Gregg county by officers who claimed to have caught them in the act of stealing oil and hauling it away in tank trucks.

Officers said they had been watching the men for several days and that they had taken several hundred barrels of oil.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER

WASHINGTON, May 31.—When a group of ever-blooming presidential candidates like Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Gov. Albert C. Richie of Maryland, to say nothing of Governors Cross of Connecticut and Ely of Massachusetts, a pair of recent ambassadors like Alanson Houghton and Roland Morris and a former cabinet officer like Charles Nagel, attach their names to a sort of round robin to congressional leaders, it would be reasonable to expect that they knew what is going on and who is who in Washington.

Overlooking Rainey

Yet they did not. Their letter demanding a balanced budget and non-partisan action of congress starts right off with an error. It named Crisp of Georgia majority leader of the house, completely overlooking that Illinois veteran, white-haired Henry Rainey.

The fact that the transmitting letter to Senator Robinson as senate minority leader was from Dr. Butler, suggests the doctor as probable author.

Yet if a wholly non-partisan group of senators like Jim Watson of Indiana and Joe Robinson of Arkansas, respective party leaders in the senate, and also Dr. Copeland of New York and Colonel-Doctor-Senator Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, know their senatorial onions, the error in overlooking Rainey was the least important one in the Butler et al letter.

Robinson told Dr. Butler in writing that on both counts of budget balancing and non-partisanship on emergency legislation the senate's skirts were clear.

Watson fairly roared his endorsement of that view and his amazed indignation at "the apparent lack of knowledge on the part of these gentlemen of the situation in congress." Messrs. Copeland and Fess were of like mind.

No Partisanship Here

Dr. Butler and his colleague letter writers cannot feel there is lack of non-partisanship about these broadsides. Two Democratic and two Republican senatorial heavyweights seemed in complete accord.

Senator Watson, in fact, declared that never in his long congressional career had he known in peace times such non-partisanship in the senate as in the present session.

He called the roll of bills passed to prove it, overlooking perhaps that Democratic international tariff conference suggestions so roundly vetoed by President Hoover.

Even that is shadowed by the tax-tariff coalition on the revenue bill so largely contributed to from the Democratic side.

Exactly what the Butler et al letter was expected to accomplish is not clear. It hit the senate, however, when senatorial nerves were a bit frayed by volunteer critics.

Melons

The watermelon originated in Africa where it has been since the beginning of history, so that the negro's fondness for watermelon must be an inherited instinct. Its refreshment value on a hot day has made it popular not only in Africa, Egypt and in the Orient, but in South America, Mexico, Europe, Canada, the United States and, in fact, every place where man has travelled. Not alone is man fond of this food but also every animal including elephants and lions.

Melons are always prized in hot countries where they originated, because they yield a good, pure form of water, tastily flavored. In the crisp delicate flesh of the cantaloupe you will find an answer of what to eat on a sticky summer day. There are many varieties of cantaloupes offering one a considerable selection. In some, the outer skin is greenish yellow; in others it is striped. The inside flesh may be pink in color, green or yellow. Often the outer skin is laced over with netted lines. Most good cantaloupes are about the size of a grapefruit.

It is said that the cantaloupe takes its name from a town of that title in Italy. The term "muskmelon" comes from the faint musk odor when the melon is opened. The Rocky Ford is a good kind to use, but there are many others just as delicious to the taste. Cassabas and honey dew closely resemble muskmelons in food value, and are somewhat larger in size, and ripen later in the season.

I can recommend the cantaloupe as a summer food for several reasons. It is low in calories and does not heat the body as richer foods would do. It has a distinctly cooling effect due to the 89½ per cent water it contains. The sweet taste comes from about 7 per cent pure fruit sugar. There is about 2 per cent fibre which helps in providing bulk for the bowels. The mineral elements make up .6 per cent of the whole; these are mostly alkaline, potassium, calcium and iron predominating.

In choosing cantaloupes, cassabas or honey dew melons, it is important to get them just ripe enough. If under-ripe, the taste is disagreeable, while if over-ripe the digestion may be disturbed. A good way to tell when ripe for eating is to smell it. If it is ripened, a melon has a pleasant odor which closely resembles its flavor.

Since melons are perishable it is better not to keep too many on hand unless you get cassabas or other melons which are known to keep. In preparing the melons for serving, put the cracked ice around them but not in them, for if the ice is allowed to melt in the melon, it will detract from its perfect flavor. A slice cut off the bottom will make it lie flat on the plate. Do not use a lot of seasoning. A little salt may be used if desired. If the melon is properly ripened it is very delicious and does not need seasoning. Cantaloupes do not combine readily with most foods, and are usually better eaten by themselves. Cantaloupe a la mode makes an ideal food combination and may be used as a complete meal on a warm day.

Those who are especially fond of watermelon, cantaloupe or cassaba melon, and wish to use these melons with meals, may easily satisfy their appetite by adding a small amount of melon to a salad. An attractive way to use melon with a salad is to add small balls of melon to the salad. These balls are made with a potato baller, which is the same instrument for making Parisian potatoes. This instrument can be secured in any hardware store or restaurant supply house. Another way of using watermelon at the meal is to use a very thin slice with ice cream. Slice the melon fine, remove the seeds and serve the ice cream on top of the piece of melon. This may be used as an entire luncheon, or as a dessert at the end of the meal providing only a small amount of melon is used.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Baby's Head Perspires

Question—Mrs. McA. writes: "My baby 9 months old has for several months been subject to a profuse perspiration which occurs only when she is sleeping or nursing, and the strange part is that the condition manifests only at the head. Will you tell me if this is an indication of anything wrong and what measures I can take to overcome it?"

Answer: You will understand that it is difficult for me to give you a definite statement without having the opportunity of examining your baby. Excessive perspiration of the head, if not due to the fact that the baby has on too much clothing or the warmth of your body while nursing her, is sometimes a sign of rickets, or a tendency to rickets and this can be overcome by adding orange juice to her diet.

Peritonitis

Question—Miss Alicia writes: "Recently I had an illness which was diagnosed as localized peritonitis. Am much better now but frequently have severe attacks. Is there a cure other than an operation?"

Answer: Localized peritonitis must come from some inflammation of the adjacent organs, usually from the intestines, ovaries or appendix. It would be well for you to have a very careful examination to determine the source of the trouble. An operation is not usually necessary in chronic cases as much may be accomplished by the right kind of fasting and diet regimen.

'Skyscraper Raffles' At Last Is Nabbed With The Evidence

CHICAGO, June 1. (INS)—Because he abandoned his custom of working at night Melville Reeves, known 20 years ago as the "Skyscraper Raffles," today seemed headed at last for the prison cell which he has so long managed to evade.

The peer of Chicago's safecrackers, who has been credited with amassing loot amounting to $500,000, was tripped up after a $53 "job." The small sum and a slip of paper, bearing the figures of a safe combination, were found on his person when detectives seized him in an office building.

He was charged with having robbed the safe of an advertising concern.

He attributed the arrest to his foolishness in having attempted the robbery in broad daylight. All of his other "jobs," he said, were accomplished at night. He won the cognomen of "Skyscraper Raffles" because of his penchant for entering safes of offices high up in downtown buildings.

Police said his method was first to search the papers of an office for a notation of the combination and then to open the safe without blowing it. He knew that people usually kept the notations about for emergencies.

Sing Sing Prisoners' Sons Not Criminal, Lawes Says

OSSINING, N. Y., June 1. (INS)—Sons of prisoners in Sing Sing prison are rarely of the criminal type, Warden Lewis E. Lawes said today after completing a survey.

Only two children of men incarcerated came to the jail later, he said.

FOUR WICHITA GOLFERS QUALIFY IN FORT WORTH TOURNEY

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

Marv Ferrell Released

After so long a time, Marvin Ferrell has at last been released by Longview. The final verdict was brought in Tuesday night. It was an unconditional release.

No one can say Ferrell was not given ample opportunity to make the grade. Ferrell is not entirely to blame for his dismissal, although he was even at best far short of being a pitcher. Had the Browns started him from the bottom rung of the ladder instead of from the top, he might have developed sufficiently to hold a job. Instead, the Browns started him off first in their camp, and then with Milwaukee of the American association before finally sending him to the Texas league. It is another indication that the Browns have lots to learn about developing ball players, especially pitchers. They haven't yet developed a good mound staff despite years of effort, which for the most part was misguided. No wonder they have never won an American league pennant.

Ray Ater Hurt

Ater joined the Sports only a few days ago, coming from the University of Texas, where he was Billy Disch's star shortstop. He was picked by practically all Southwest conference sports writers as the best shortstop in the conference. Jinx Tucker of Waco went further, saying "There are only three good shortstops in the conference, and Raymond Ater is all three of them."

The Tax on Fishermen

Sportsmen of this section met in one of the most enthusiastic sessions in several years Tuesday night, to work out plans for the salvation of fishing in the big lakes. Although not called for the purpose of raising a sum of money immediately, some member, in the height of the discussion, moved that everybody should donate "four-bits" then and there to the rearing pond fund. A good sum was not only collected as the result of that motion, but everybody present agreed to bring three or four friends to the second meeting next Tuesday night, and ask each of these friends to also donate a fifty-cent piece.

Money thus collected will go into a temporary fund for rehabilitating rearing ponds on the lakes, but at best it will only be a temporary source of cash.

Some of the guiding spirits saw this and suggested a plan whereby fishermen would have a constant income with which to build additional rearing ponds, which, in turn, eventually will start flooding the big lake waters with more and better fish. The plan is to tax each fisherman who holds a $10 season ticket to the Waggoner estate lakes $2.50 annually. Males over 16 not holding season passes will be charged 10 cents per day to fish.

A stamp will be affixed on the season passes, showing that the holder has paid his tax for the purpose of restocking the lakes. All of the tax money will be used for this purpose. None will be spent elsewhere.

This plan, to be carried out, must meet with the approval of the Waggoner estate. Otherwise it would be impossible to collect the tax.

The Waggoners here and now have the opportunity to do fishermen of this section a tremendous favor, and at the same time benefit themselves. For it goes without saying that unless something is done to restock the lakes, there soon will be no fishing in them at all; and this, of course, would mean the Waggoners would have no customers at their gates.

A committee of sportsmen, including Dr. Q. B. Lee of this city, and sportsmen from Vernon and Seymour, will call upon Bob More, representative of the Waggoners, and get his views within the next few days. It is to be hoped that the estate will take the matter seriously as the sportsmen have, and that they will cooperate with the sportsmen, who not only have cooperated among themselves but have shown the initiative in tackling a problem which is a vital one.

Players Get the Rap

Well, another case of the umpire going scot free while the players get socked big fines and suspensions after a fight, is on record. The outcome of the battle between Umpire Moriarty and Chicago players was of that nature, even after President William Harridge of the American league went to Cleveland himself, conducted an investigation, and reprimanded the ump for his "neglect of duty on the field." Well, the players criticized Moriarty in the first place because he missed a third strike. That's what started the whole thing. But all Moriarty gets is a reprimand, something that can easily go in one ear and out the other, and certainly involves no cash, while the players take the rap in grand style. What this country needs is more baseball and fewer baseball officials.

Harridge's statement in full, giving the penalties, follows:

"During my 21 years in baseball I have no recollection of an incident such as occurred after the second game of the Decoration day double-header between the Chicago White Sox and the Cleveland club in the city of Cleveland.

"After making a thorough study of the umpire's report, consulting with officials and players of the Chicago ball club and officials of the Cleveland club I have come to the following conclusions, so as to eliminate, if possible, a recurrence of the affair.

"The following penalties have been imposed:

"Pitcher Milton Gaston is suspended for 10 days and fined $500;

"Manager Lew Fonseca is fined $500;

"Catcher Berry is fined $250; and

"Catcher Grube is fined $100.

"Umpire George Moriarty has been severely reprimanded for his neglect of duty on the ball field.

"The umpire's report indicates that Pitcher Gaston was the only player actually involved in the fisticuffs.

"I am convinced that if the other players penalized had been a little more alert they could, to a great degree, have prevented what happened.

"The delay in the above action was due to the inability of the umpire to make a prompt report owing to his injury and to my desire to make a thorough personal investigation."

President Harridge also announced that Coach Butler of the Chicago White Sox had been suspended for five days without pay for his actions and use of profane language to Umpire Moriarty.

PECK TRAILS TWO MEDALISTS

Van Zandt and Nelson Post Low 73's

Four golfers carried the banner of Wichita Falls into the championship flight of the annual River Crest Country club invitation tournament at Fort Worth yesterday, and one of them lacked only one stroke of tying two others for medal honors, according to United Press dispatches to The Record News.

Logan Van Zandt of Tulsa, Okla., and Byron Nelson of Fort Worth were co-medalist with 73's. One stroke behind them, with a 74, was Bob Peck of this city.

Other Wichitans who qualified were Bobby Burns, 78; Stayton Bonner, 79; and Morris Norton, 81.

Peck's score was one stroke better than that of Gus Moreland, state amateur champion, who shot a 75.

Nelson played through a strong wind and shower Wednesday afternoon to tie Van Zandt's score after the latter had played through a high wind in the morning round.

Louis Nowlin, Dallas High school sensation, with three others, shot a 76.

Indians Defeat Houston, 7 To 1

SAN ANTONIO, June 1. (AP)—Opening on the home lot for a short stay of three games on their return from a disastrous road trip on which they lost seven straight games for a total of 10 consecutive defeats, the San Antonio Indians pounced on the Houston Buffs today and won the first game of the series 7-1.

They dissected the slow curves of their nemesis, Ray Moss, for 14 hits, of which six were clustered in the sixth inning to net five runs for a lead after battling at a 1-1 tie, while Fabian Kowalik kept the Buffs under control with seven hits.

All of the runs scored in the game were earned off the pitchers. Jack Mealey, new acquired catcher, made his debut here in an Indian suit and celebrated the event with a two-base smash against the left field fence to drive in the first Indian run. Score:

Govro's Tilt With Bear Postponed

Promotor Whitey Govro announced Wednesday afternoon that his special match with "Big Bruin" the black bear scheduled for Friday night has been postponed and that in its place had been substituted a match between Govro and Les Grimes, of Chicago. The cause for the canceling of the bear match was that the bear has grown more vicious, probably due to the heat. It was deemed unsafe to bring the beast into the crowded arena.

The bear could very easily plunge through the ropes and into the crowd where much damage might have resulted.

The main event of the program this week will bring together Dude Chick and Cyclone Fox in a return grudge battle. Fox stopped the long winning streak of the Toledo Badman here a couple of weeks ago, but with a third fall over which there had been much doubt.

The semifinal will bring back again the old favorite, Silent Condell, the deaf and dumb Scotchman and one of the cleverest and best liked wrestlers to ever appear here. Condell will meet Fred Kuffer who lost last week to Cyclone Fox in a spirited battle on the main event.

QUANAH WINS GAME PROTEST

Vernon Dropped From Tie For First Place

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, June 1.—Vernon's baseball club was dropped from a deadlock for first place in the Red River Valley league first half flag chase when officials of the circuit at a meeting here Tuesday night voted to uphold a protest by Quanah regarding the Quanah-Vernon contest played in the Hardeman county city last Sunday. The ruling allowed the forfeiture of the game, which Vernon won in 10 innings, to Quanah, giving the Hardeman nine its initial victory this season and sending Vernon into a second-place tie with Oklaunion, Chillicothe, and Frederick, Okla.

With the removal of Vernon from the top-rung, Electra's Oilers with five victories and two defeats took undisputed leadership in the pennant chase.

The vote favoring the Quanah protest was four to none. The managers of Chillicothe, Tipton, Okla., Oklaunion and Electra voted to sustain the protest. Crowell, Vernon and Quanah did not vote.

The protest grew out of the ninth inning of the contest at Quanah Sunday in which Quanah claimed it scored a run which broke the 4-4 tie and gave it the game. The umpire ruled differently, sending the runner back to second base from where he had scored on an overthrow. Vernon later won by a 6-5 score in 10 innings.

Officials present at the meeting here included R. L. Barrett, Vernon, president; Secretary W. L. Ervi, Electra; Managers J. L. Barlow of Chillicothe, C. D. Greene of Oklaunion, Bob Moore of Quanah, O. O. Hollingsworth of Crowell, I. D. Craig of Electra, J. A. Grubbs of Tipton, and Capts. W. M. Bailey of Vernon, Mike Williams of Oklaunion, Elie Thurman of Chillicothe, Jack Cox of Quanah, Bill Williamson of Electra and William Bell of Crowell.

READING, Pa., June 1. (UP)—Buzz Arlett, home run king of the International league, equaled the all-time record for homers in one game today when he drove out four circuit clouts in the contest between his Baltimore Orioles and the Reading Keys.

Major league records show that the feat has not been accomplished in either the American or National league since 1896.

ORWELL LOSES ENGLISH DERBY

Favorite Runs Ninth As April the Fifth Wins

EPSOM DOWNS, England, June 1. (AP)—Ten million dollars—probably more—were wrong today.

They backed Washington M. G. Singer's Orwell to win the Derby at 15 to 8, made him the most heavily played Derby favorite since 1906. But Orwell was nowhere, a poor ninth, at the finish as Tom Walls' April the Fifth, lightly regarded at 100 to 6, raced to victory in the 153rd running of the English turf classic.

A few thousand wisely placed pound notes of the actor and playboy friends of Walls, moving picture comedian and sportsman, April the Fifth, closing with a great burst of speed in the final 100 yards, defeated the Aga Khan's Dastur by three-quarters of a length.

Lord Roseberry's Miracle, the second choice, was third, just a head back of Dastur. Then followed E. Esmond's Royal Dancer and the other hal fof the Aga Khan's entry, Firdaussi.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—Cotton was active and feverish today, and while at one time prices were 7 to 10 points above the previous close, they subsequently broke 32 to 35 points to new low records for the entire season.

The July position sold at 4.99, or within 1 point of the lowest price ever recorded on the local exchange, closing at 5.00, or 23 points net lower, while the general market closed steady within a point or two of the lowest for the day, and 22 to 26 points below the final of Tuesday.

The opening was irregular at 6 points lower to 6 points higher, with the market considerably disturbed by the failure of a Liverpool house with local connections. This caused more or less liquidation and had a disturbing influence on the near positions. The reports from Washington that the senate had passed the tax bill, was given a constructive interpretation earlier in the day, and the market for a time displayed considerable stability helped to some extent by the early firmness in the stock market. When stock prices subsequently gave way, however, and the weekly weather and crop bulletin was posted, indicating very favorable weather conditions for the growing crop, selling orders began to appear in volume and prices crumbled rapidly with very little resistance.

During the day the market was subject to numerous rallies and quick declines and the evidences of foreign sellings as well as more or less general selling, partly for southern account and the action of the outside markets undermined confidence and it was evident that buyers were still inclined to be very cautious, leaving the market without adequate demand to absorb the heavy selling. A private crop report published during the day indicated a decrease of 7.1 per cent in the acreage and made the condition of the crop 74.2 per cent of normal. The October position after selling up to 5.38 broke to 5.25 while March advanced to 5.95 and later declined to 5.62.

Liverpool cabled that the market there had been influenced by liquidation due to the failure of a local house, but that there had been some covering and replacement on the decline, while Manchester was depressed with a small turnover. Exports today 15,870. Port receipts 9,822; U. S. port stocks 3,837,988.

Futures closed steady, 22@26 lower. Spot quiet; middling 5.05.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 1. (AP)—Cotton experienced a day of feverish activity and dropped to new low levels for the season with July, the near month, at 5 cents. Trading was very heavy and liquidation was persistent. The main depressing influence was the break in stocks after a firm opening. A favorable weekly weather and crop summary probably helped the decline and the close was near the lows showing net declines for the day of 24 to 28 points.

When the stock market reacted and the news from Washington was unsettling prices slumped badly under heavy liquidation.

The weekly weather report was construed favorably and was therefore bearish and a private crop report made the reduction in acreage only 7.1 per cent.

After a rally of a few points at midsession the market again weakened with a sharp break in stocks and grain and under selling pressure July dropped to 5.00, October closing 26 points net down for the day and December 24 points down.

Liverpool is due tomorrow 16 penny points down on New Orleans.

Port receipts 9,783, for week 35,917, for season 9,699,655, last season 8,831,206. Exports 16,014, for week 46,986, for season 7,815,690, last season 6,201,208. Port stock 3,860,499, last year 3,233,559. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 102,289, last year 61,358. Spot sales at southern markets 6,770, last year 1,834.

Futures closed barely steady at net declines of 21 to 28 points:

Liverpool Cotton

LIVERPOOL, June 1. (INS)—There was a fair demand for spot cotton at the opening today with prices easier. Receipts totaled 12,000 bales, including 10,900 American bales.

At midday, middling fair was quoted at 5.17d, strictly good middling 4.72d, good middling 4.32d, strictly middling 4.22d, middling 4.17d, strictly low middling 4.07d, low middling 3.97d, strictly good ordinary 3.77d, and good ordinary 3.47d.

Futures opened barely steady with July at 3.84d, October 3.86d, December 3.88d, January 3.92d, March 3.98d.

CHICAGO COTTON

CHICAGO, June 1. (AP)—The cotton market was erratic and broke over $1.00 a bale to record low prices for more than 30 years and the close was at or near the bottom for the day, 20 to 27 points net lower. Opening prices were 1 to 6 points down on poor cables and lower openings at New York and New Orleans. A 10-point advance in early business was soon wiped out. Securities rallied sharply in early trading and then turned downward but closed steady. Heavy rain fell in Oklahoma and western Arkansas. The forecast is for rain in the central area and possibly Louisiana and Texas.

Bond Market Breaks Into Sharp Rally But Later Reactions Bring New Lows

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 1. (US)—Overnight news from Washington hailing a "balanced budget" brought a sharp rally in security prices today. The improvement, however, was not maintained in a subsequent reaction prices of stocks and bonds yielding to new lows. In stocks the net changes were rather modest, excepting among utilities, which seemed particularly hard hit by the renewed liquidation. The faint-hearted were quick to renew their disappointment at the failure of the market to maintain its price structure against the continued offerings.

However, the more reasonable minds were attuned to a natural reaction following the first burst of enthusiasm, which registered itself in rather startling recoveries, considering the intense bearishness of the preceding day's market. Furthermore, it is recognized by independent thinkers at the moment that there still exists a quite natural "show me" attitude with respect to congress. Even though there is genuine satisfaction with the senate's effort to balance the budget according to the figures presented by the treasury experts, the market is in no mood for anticipating political action.

A calm survey of the situation presents a fair degree of optimistic promises. Despite the furore over Washington's antics, it is a fact that the senate and house have been following, with some variations of course, the lines set down by the administration, as represented by the president and the secretary of the treasury. The house and senate have endeavored to meet the revenue-raising demands presented by the fiscal experts. If the estimates presented by the treasury are proven too low, then the blame will fall on the treasury, rather than on congress.

The fact, however, that congress has shown definite evidence of its desire to proceed along a budget-balancing course is in itself genuinely encouraging. The market, having staged celebrations before in anticipation of a balanced budget, this time seems to be demanding actual passage of the necessary legislation.

How startling a reversal of sentiment and price trend can be effected with even a moderate show of cooperation, on the part of politicians or of financiers, is being forcibly demonstrated. It is foolish to think that the long bear market would overnight change to a raging bull movement. Such expectation is doomed to disappointment.

It is undeniable, nevertheless, that today registered a distinct gain in sentiment among responsible interests. They hesitate yet to engage in sizable constructive action marketwise, pending completion of the budget-balancing task in congress. But they view the markets with greater friendship.

A balanced budget, or even the promise of this long-sought objective, would probably bring into the market the greatest concerted buying power that it has enjoyed since the early days of the 1929 panic. This time, however, there would be no supporting pool in the stock market such as then was organized. The market would rather begin to feel the benefits of widespread buying attracted not only by the feeling of security engendered by a sensible federal fiscal program but also by the realization that three long years of declining prices have uncovered genuine bargains.

It would only be natural that the initial concentrated buying should show itself in the bond list. It may be significant that all of the current gossip having to do with market support refers specifically and exclusively to bonds. Once investment confidence has been reestablished, the major buying at the start would be directed toward uncovering sound obligations rather than the more speculative equities, the latter represented by common stock. This is not to say that all common stocks will lack appeal, but rather the inauguration of a new confidence would register itself in bonds. If a corporation's promise to pay is held unsound, how can its shares be granted attractiveness?

The wave of liquidation which forced back the market to new lows was centered around utilities. These stocks, especially the holding company issues, have been under constant pressure and the news of proposed tax on consumption of energy added to the offerings.

First sign of genuine, lasting change in the markets will come in bonds.

Commodities, despite disclosure of the proposed international stabilization conference, were decidedly weak, especially grains and cotton. But they, too, are reflecting the continued show-me attitude of all speculative markets.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 1. (AP)—Semidemoralized trade conditions developed in the grain pits today, largely owing to senate adoption of a proposed enlargement of produce exchange taxes 400 per cent.

Traders in wheat and other staples commented bitterly on the senate's move, and were almost unanimous in reducing purchases to a minimum. General pressure to sell, much of it of a stop-loss character, became apparent, and prices tumbled, with wheat values breaking fast, despite private monthly crop estimates indicating that the 1932 United States winter crop yield would total but 433,000,000 bushels against 461,000,000 unofficially forecast a month ago.

Wheat closed shaky at almost the day's bottom, 1 to 2 cents under yesterday's finish, corn 1½@2c down, oats ⅛@⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents lower.

At first the wheat market tended upward reflecting on early show of strength in securities and also making a half-hearted response to correct predictions that the monthly private crop estimates would prove bullish. Buying power, however, was quickly exhausted, and efforts to realize profits on price advances made the fact soon evident that the market was without any adequate support. Holders of wheat hastened to let go wholesale, and displayed nearly complete disregard of incentives to purchase, but focused attention instead on muddled political and financial developments as too big a handicap for commodity markets to withstand.

Later setbacks in securities did much to accelerate grain market breaks and to prevent any tendency to recover. Copious rains in the spring wheat belt had an additional bearish influence.

Besides, export demand for North American wheat was disappointing. An estimated increase of 1932 domestic spring wheat production was also noted, making the prospective yield 253,000,000 bushels against 105,000,000 in 1931.

Liquidating sales by owners of corn pulled that grain down to prices not paralleled heretofore since 1897. Corn and oats were affected by wheat weakness and also by reports suggesting that the 1932 corn crop would total 2,880,000,000 bushels compared with 2,557,000,000 in 1931.

Provisions sagged with grains and securities. Lard reached a new low for the season and for many years back.

Closing indemnities: Wheat: July 54⅛@54⅝c, 56⅝@57c; Sept. 56⅝@56⅞c, 59¼@59⅝c; Dec. 59½@59⅝c, 61⅝@61¾c. Corn—July 28½@28⅝c, 29⅝c; Sept. 31⅜c, 32⅛@32½c; Dec. 32¼c, 33⅛c.

Wheat closed unstable, 1@2c under yesterday's finish; corn, 1½@2c down; oats, ⅛@⅜c off and provisions unchanged to 10c lower; influenced late by breaks in cereals and securities.

DRY GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—Cotton goods were quieter in the gray goods division, influenced in part by the raw cotton markets. It is believed here that cotton goods production will be cut down to 50 per cent average, owing to the many plants that will be closed completely. Finished goods are in light demand. Rayon prices are still very irregular and low. Silk was easier and silk goods quiet. Moderate buying of spots of flannels and tropical suitings is reported. Burlaps were unchanged.

Advice To Investors

By Charles W. Storm—Editor of the "News Service of Wall Street"

J. D. P., Vernon, Texas. Please give me full information on Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe common. Would it be a good investment at present price?

Answer—At their recent meeting directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway company again reduced the dividend on the common stock from $6 to $4 per share per annum. Three months ago the dividend rate was reduced from $10 to $6 per share per annum. It can hardly be said that such unfavorable action was not expected, since the management is well known for its conservatism, since last year's earnings fell short of dividend payments on the common stock of $21,841,100 by $4,953,000 and since the earnings' outlook continues unfavorable. With respect to the traffic prospects, it may well be pointed out that recent carloadings were about 20 per cent below those for the same period a year ago; that increasing amount of petroleum (and its products) tonnage are constantly being diverted to pipe line; that the wheat crop in the territory served will this year, in all probability, be very much smaller than the bumper crop harvested last year; and that through transcontinental traffic is apt to continue small until there is general improvement in business and agricultural conditions in this country and also an increase in foreign trade. It has been estimated that the "best possible" earnings for 1932 are $4.25 per common share and the "worst possible" 12 cents a share. One highly satisfactory feature of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway situation is the strong working capital position: current assets, including $19,396,000 cash, amounted to $49,086,000 as of Jan. 31, 1932, compared with current liabilities of $21,593,000. Working capital was, thus, $27,493,000 or over twice annual fixed charges. It is probable, too, that large amounts of United States treasury notes and liberty bonds are stil held in the company's treasury. Such issues at the end of 1930 amounted to about $18,500,000. That most of these are stil held is indicated by the fact that investments in non-affiliated companies as of Jan. 31, 1932, amounted to $23,825,000 as against $23,107,000 a year previous. From the management's statement that "The earnings statement shows a continuous decline. The continuance of dividends on the common stock must depend upon an improvement in the corporation's earnings," one can derive little assurance that even the low $4 annual dividend rate will be maintained Unless earnings this year are much better than the current rate of traffic indicates, total omission of dividend payments later this year may result.

S-W OKLAHOMA TO GET DRILLING

Beckham and Roger Mills Tests Planned

TULSA, Okla., June 1.—Beckham and Roger Mills counties, in southwestern Oklahoma, where a large natural gas reserve has been built up by operators seeking the elusive oil sand, is due for a lot of new drilling this summer, field men report. Expiring leases and the need for renewals, obtainable only through drilling, will force the starting of some tests and resumption of work on a number of test wells that have been idle.

The Ute Oil company is reported as ready to start up No. 1 Williams, in the center of the southwest of 23-12-24w, north of Sayre, in Roger Mills county. It has been bottomed at 5,150 feet since June 7, 1931. A survey shows that the Carter Oil company has renewed its leases in the Ute block, and has agreed to furnish pipe and to direct its deepening to the Wilcox sand. The log shows the 10-inch pipe was set at 3346 feet, and the big lime found at 3870 feet and work suspended after drilling by a bailer that was stuck in the hole at 3450 feet.

Patee Royalty company No. 1 Gooseter, in the southeast of the southwest of the southeast of 32-10-23, right at the west door to Sayre, in Beckham county, and which was spudded some weeks ago, will start drilling.

A location is being staked by Gillespie and Son for No. 1 Stag, near the center of 29-9-24w, southwest of Sayre, but the exact measurements have not been learned.

To the north in Roger Mills county, the J. J. Rook and O. E. Palmer No. 1 Davis, in the center of the northwest of the northeast of 4-11-26w, which has been idle after reaching 3420, with six-inch set at 3325 feet, is reported starting up.

Marathon Refineries To Be Reconditioned

TULSA, Okla., June 1.—The Bristow and Fort Worth refineries of the Marathon Oil company, a 100 per cent subsidiary of the Ohio Oil company, are to be reconditioned and virtually rebuilt at a cost of nearly two million dollars.

The report that such a reconstruction program was under way and first circulated last November, was confirmed when Otto D. Donnell of Findlay, Ohio, president of the Ohio Oil company and a party of associates arrived in Tulsa Tuesday for the mid-year meeting of the American Petroleum institute.

Following complaints that parrots ordered to be destroyed under the psittacosis order in England were not painlessly killed when drowned in their cages, the humane society has donated a lethal chamber to Dover.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive"

By FRANK BUCK with EDWARD ANTHONY

Dead animals mean nothing to Frank Buck—he brings 'em back alive! He hunts them barehanded; with snare and coil; in jungle, and mountainfastness, in wildest Africa, in darkest Thibet—but always he brings 'em back alive. Many of his living trophies can be seen today in the New York Zoological park, in the Lincoln park zoo in Chicago, in municipal collections all over America, in circuses throughout the world. He has crossed the Pacific 40 times, encircled the world five times, knocked out an orang-utan in fair fight, walked the width of Borneo, and delivered to the city of Dallas one complete zoo.

Buck has just obtained, in Singapore, the largest orang-utan ever captured. He asks the natives how they accomplished the capture. Buck has just witnessed a battle between a tiger and a buffalo. Buck's friend, Wendell, who works for a rich Indian maharajah, invites him to witness a cruel performance staged for the potentate's amusement. A tiger's claws have been pulled out.

CHAPTER VI

In view of which, perhaps I should revert to my original estimate and refer to the syce's cold-bloodedness rather than his coolness. I knew very little of the gentleman but I know a great deal about Hindus and it is safe to say that if there was any danger involved, this seemingly courageous stable-hand would have fled with a speed that would have shamed the records of our greatest sprinters.

While the syce finished his job Wendell took me over to his quarters for a drink.

"I need one as badly as you do," he said.

We walked along in silence for a few minutes.

I broke the silence. "Now that they've yanked out that tiger's claws and sewed his lips together, what are they going to do with the poor devil?"

"Oh, you'll see."

"I will like the devil."

"Oh, come on."

"I've seen all of that rotten mess I intend to."

"Get a good skinful and you won't mind it, Frank. There isn't much I can't stand with a bottle of Scotch."

"You haven't answered my question. What are they going to do with the tiger?"

"Throw him to the dogs. An old pastime of the prince's. Renders a tiger helpless and tosses him to a lot of big dogs. Get a kick out of seeing how soon they can tear the tiger to pieces. Today's show ought to be the best he's ever pulled or the worst, whichever way you look at it. You ought to see the brutes of dogs he's got. Six of 'em. That's one more than he's ever used before."

"You aren't going to attend are you?"

"I've got to . . .! Don't remind me what a stinking job I've got."

"Beg pardon, Jim."

"I don't blame you for staying away. This isn't going to be a fair fight. Just a bloody massacre."

We were now in Wendell's quarters. He produced a bottle of Scotch and we had a drink that wasn't productive of much conversation. I recall mumbling a few words in praise of the whisky. It was all I could think of to say. I felt all washed out.

We had a second drink. I started feeling better but still I could think of nothing to say. I sat there staring at the bottle and wondering how soon I could ask for another drink without seeming a hog.

It occurred to me that I was staring at the bottle too pointedly; so I looked at Wendell for a change. Sunddenly it struck me that he had a very fine face. This had never occurred to me before. I had always liked him tremendously but it had never entered my head until now that he was sensitively put together and that he probably suffered a great deal in his queer job. I had always thought of him as a rough-and-ready colonial who couldn't be fazed by anything.

His plight disturbed me but I was secretly glad to know that Asia could unsettle a stout-hearted chap like Wendell. It was reassuring; for Asia has unsettled me on many an occasion. In my many years of work as a collector of zoological specimens, this strangest of continents has produced some wobbly moments in me; and these moments have filled me with doubts and misgivings.

Tiger cubs at play

My silence began to get under Wendell's skin. Suddenly he broke out into a great jumble of unrelated sentences . . . "Crazy game, isn't it? Crazy country, crazy people. What does it all mean? But what does anything mean? Suppose the prince didn't throw a helpless tiger to a pack of dogs? It would still be a lousy world, wouldn't it? Let him have his fun. What the hell do I care? It's none of my business and it's none of yours . . . Inherited brutality, that's the answer. The prince's father was even worse. Yes, worse; ask any one that knew him. We're unreasonable, that's what we are, Frank. Unfair. Even a little intolerant . . . Yes, I know all about it. The prince is a cruel scoundrel. But he learned it from his father. What do you expect? There's the prince's little boy. When he grows up he'll be cruel too. He will see so much cruelty around him that he'll regard it as the accepted thing, as part of the business of preparing to be a prince. And, anyhow, who cares? Let 'em all kill one another off, human beings and animals. It's getting hard to tell which is which. Have a cigaret. India can stand a few casualties. She's horribly overcrowded. It's too bad they're usually the wrong ones. Don't stare me out of countenance. Look at the bottle for a change. Have a drink. Don't have a drink. Do anything you please. See the maharajah's show. Don't see his show. Who cares? Please yourself. Blow your brains out if that'll make you happy. There's a gun over there in the top drawer of my desk. It's getting late. I've got to have a look at those dogs. I'm supposed to keep 'em mad at the world in general and tigers, in particular. Got any ideas? Think I'll try putting on a striped suit and spitting in their eyes. Let's get out of here. The prince'll raise the devil if I'm late. He's a stinker that way."

Wendell was himself again. His long soliloquy, instead of wearing him out, seemed to pep him up. On the way back to the stables he was his old genial self again; as we strode along he seemed positively happy. One comes to regard such changes of mood as a commonplace in India. The things in the air.

I did not attend the "fight" between the tiger and the dogs. Pardon the quotation marks. Pull a tiger's claws and sew his lips together and you can't expect much of a fight.

But there was plenty of drama. The cruel exhibition, as planned, should have resulted in the loss of only one life, the tiger's. In addition, one human being and one dog perished. That was where the unexpected entered.

Wendell and Lal Bahudar (who watched the proceedings, or most of them, from his old perch among the flaming red blossoms of an adjacent plane tree) supplied me with the details of what took place.

The helpless tiger and the six dogs were turned loose in the walled enclosure. The dogs were of tremendous size and great ferocity. They were a cross between a mastiff and an Irish wolf-hound. Almost invariably the result of this combination is a huge vicious animal. I have seen quite a few of these dogs in India. They are used for boar-hunting and some times are known as "boar-hounds." The colorings are brown and white, black and white, plain black and plain brown.

The tiger, the ends of his paws gruesomely blood-stained and his mouth distorted into a grotesque expression as a result of the catgut that sealed his lips, was a ghastly sight to behold. Half-bewildered, he hobbled about in circles on his bloody stumps, probably trying to figure out why this new torture was being visited upon him. He had a right to expect a rest for the day after the earlier horror that had been his portion.

The dogs did not spring at the enemy on sight. Dogs have too much caution for that. After all, a tiger is a tiger.

Discretly they edged closer and closer to the hobbling foe, backing him against the wall. For a full minute, according to Wendell, they stood this way. The inaction of the big cat emboldened one of the dogs to come close and snap at the hind quarters, hastily withdrawing. All the tiger did by way of reply was to lift one of his aching paws. That was all. The dog that had snapped at him, repeated the performance and the others, encouraged by the tiger's inactivity, joined him. In a second they were all snapping away at the impotent enemy, barking furiously as they attacked.

To save himself the tiger started rolling over on his side toward the middle of the enclosure. By sheer dint of his weight he succeeded in scattering the dogs and gaining a respite. His sides were bleeding but no serious wounds had been inflicted. The dogs had not managed to sink in their teeth. The wounds were all on the surface.

Again the dogs cornered the foe, all of them piling on after one of them had sampled a mouthful of the loose skin around the flanks. This time the tiger was painfully mauled and chewed up. But nothing approaching a serious blow had yet been struck.

The tiger was in a blind fury. With claws in his toes and no catgut binding his lips, he could have routed a dozen such dogs and left half of them stretched out on their backs with their entrails hanging out. One of the dogs leaped at him and he knocked him over with a great slap of one of those toothless paws. Pain was written all over the tiger's face as he struck the blow with that bloody limb. It was agony to defend himself and it was agony to be roughed and bitten by those miserable canines.

The dog he bowled over with a thrust of that bloody paw leaped at him with murder in his heart. Teeth bared, the savage cross-breed struck at the tiger's mouth. He bit deep into the lips on the right side, breaking the catgut and enabling the tiger to get one of his big teeth free. Lunging madly, the infuriated cat knocked the dog over, trampled on him and dug into his belly with that one great tooth that was free, working it like a can-opener and ripping open the canine.

The other dogs scattered in terror. The plight of their fallen comrade shattered their morale.

And then the outstanding thrill of the day set the spectators—(the prince and his party on the platform and the native palace attendants on the wall)—on their collective ear. Gathering all his strength, the tiger made a great leap to scale the wall. It was a terrific assignment for one so maimed. By one of those miracles of determination he just made it, his belly scraping the top of the wall as he fell rather than jumped over the barrier. As he scrambled over the top, a shot rang out and a bullet from the rifle of a royal guard buried itself somewhere in his bottom. The bullet, instead of slowing up the beast, seemed to have the effect of spurring him on. With all the speed he could muster he raced onward on those gory stumps. By now he was calloused to the pain. He had no destination. All he wanted to do was to put some distance between himself and his torturers.

Already the palace guards were in hot pursuit. Shots rang out but they missed their mark. The tiger, as wounded as he was, was lengthening the distance between him and his pursuers.

Straight ahead was the midan, or parkway of the palace. On, on, he raced.

A few dozen yards ahead three native women could be seen, the royal governesses. They had the maharajah's son in tow, the future prince.

The royal ladies, in accordance with strictly normal conduct, scattered and fled in terror.

On, on, ploughed the crazed jungle cat. Right in his path was the deserted heir to the throne. All he saw was a human being of very small size—one ideally suited to a murder-bent tiger whose prowess had been sadly reduced by the drawing-out of claws, the sewing-together of lips, the bites of vicious dogs, and a bullet wound for good measure.

With a slap of one of the clawless paws he sent the maharajah's 4-year-old boy spinning. Then, while shots rang out all around him, he dug his one free tooth into the heart, into the neck, into the eyes.

The future occupant of the throne, the rightful heir of the prince, vested with privileges to torture whomsoever and whatsoever he pleased, died like a dog at the hands—or rather, the bloody paws—of another member of royalty: the royal bengal tiger.

Then, just to show that he was not above dying himself, the worn-out tiger, now half-dead anyhow, took all that the rifles of the oncoming guardsmen had to give, and expired.

It was all pretty rough on the maharajah's little boy; but who says there is no justice . . . now and then?

Myers. The difference of 14.9 per cent represents a working period of approximately two months.

The date for completion of the structure, on Lamar between Tenth and Eleventh, has been set forward three days from Nov. 13, to Nov. 16, 1932. The additional time was allowed for work completed in May.

The total amount of the general contract, less elevators, electrical fixtures and furniture equipment, calls for an expenditure of $415,453.16, on a basis of June 1. The contractor has expended only slightly over $162,000 of this amount to date, Mr. Myers said.

Steel stairways have been practically completed in the building, as have basement partitions and flooring. Mechanical equipment has been 30 per cent installed and installation of cut stone has been 25 per cent completed. Boilers for the heating units have been set in the boiler room.

A total of 74 men was employed on the building in May, including six supervisors, two office men, 17 mechanics and 49 laborers.

Bandit Trio Identified By Clay County Boy, Victim Of Hijackers

Johnnie Russell, Travis Williams, and Fred Smith, captured here Monday by county officers and subsequently connected with numerous recent crimes in this section, were definitely identified Wednesday as the three men who Monday morning held up Tyra Roper near Shannon, according to Chief Deputy Sheriff Pat Allen.

Identification was established Wednesday afternoon when County Attorney Bill Glasgow of Henrietta and young Roper visited the Wichita county jail. Roper declared that the three prisoners held there are the men who seized him several miles from Shannon, tied him to a fence post with bailing wire, sealed his mouth with tape, and drove away the car which he had been driving. The car belonged to the boy's father, who was attending a mail carrier's convention in Wichita Falls at that time, it was said. The automobile was recovered within a short time at Jacksboro, where it had been abandoned.

Mr. Glasgow announced that charges will be filed against the trio in Clay county. A special session of the grand jury there has been called for Friday to investigate charges against Smith and Russell for alleged robbery of the Continental State bank at Petrolia more than two weeks ago.

The three prisoners also admitted Wednesday, according to Assistant District Attorney Mike Anglin, that they stole in Shreveport, La., last week the Packard car in which they were reported to have come from the Shannon community to Wichita Falls Monday afternoon. The car was parked beside the house in which they were arrested. Shreveport officers will come here for the stolen car, according to word received Wednesday by Sheriff Perry Browning.

Wichita Fire Losses For May Total $7,825

Wichitans paid a total of $7,825 in damages as a result of fires in May which endangered buildings valued at $16,875 with contents valued at $6,410. Insurance on the buildings was $18,410 and on contents $7,410, Assistant Fire Chief Grover Habern reported Wednesday.

Thirty-eight blazes were answered by the department with 20 of the alarms resulting from grass fires. Seven blazes were of unknown origin, one from electric wiring, one from an electric fuse, eight from rubbish fires and one was started by gasoline.

Buildings damaged by fire and not rebuilt by owners must be torn down, Fire Chief J. L. McClure declared. The damaged structures, if not wrecked after a fire, cause insurance rates for the city to increase, he said.

Do you inhale?

Three little words that "upset the apple cart" in the cigarette trade

Do you inhale? Can any question be simpler? And yet—what a furore it has created! The cigarette trade feels that the public has been let in on a sacrosanct secret! "You've upset the apple cart," they say.

Why such anxiety? Certainly the public doesn't fear the question—for everybody inhales—knowingly or unknowingly . . . every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes!
