Rains Flood All Northwest Texas Over Week-End

Wichita Falls Gets A Downpour of Over Two Inches

HIGHWAYS BLOCKED

All Territory Gets Rain Sometime During Sunday

Wichita valley, north Texas and southern Oklahoma farmers can complain no more. For the past two months a crying need has been felt for rain. A drouth, unparalleled in recent years was broken during past week by showers that did little more than start the call for water again.

Saturday and Sunday the showers turned to veritable downpours and cloudbursts, towns as far north as Elk City on the Wichita Falls and Northwestern, as far as Childress on the Denver north, and to Fort Worth on the Denver south, out to Abilene on the Wichita and Valley, and past Gainesville on the Katy east.

Starting in Wichita Falls shortly before 4 o'clock accompanied by high winds, the city was practically flooded by the heavy downpour that coming in from the north and east, left rising creeks and impassable roads in its wake. In less than an hour the precipitation recorded was 1.11 inch, making a total of 2.03 inches here from 5 o'clock Saturday evening until the same time Sunday. At 7 o'clock Sunday night the report was that a total of 1.42 inches had fallen here since the start at 4 o'clock.

On the Wichita Lake road a river was reported to be flowing over the highway near the Southern shops making the depth at that place over two inches and the road impassable.

As a result of the high winds and rain telephone wires are down in all directions. At a late hour last night efforts to establish connections with Olney, Archer City, South Vernon, Frederick and other southern Oklahoma towns had failed.

The highway to Fort Worth is hopelessly blocked for the next few days while the many small creek bridges are rebuilt, practically all of them being reported washed away.

Farmers over the territory however are elated over the general good that will be derived from the rain of the past week, the climax which came Sunday.

General Rains Soak Western Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 26.—General rains soaked the drouth spots in western Oklahoma, and swept toward this afternoon. At Tonkawa county, the rain was a near cloudburst, it is reported, floating away houses and lumber from the lower sections of the city in the Salt Fork river. The rainfall, which was accompanied by a heavy hail, was estimated at between five and seven inches.

Hail stones an inch in diameter fell for an hour and a half, beating foliage from the trees and destroying wheat and other crops according to the report. The Tonkawa oil field was cut off by a body of water extending over the bottoms, men who succeeded in reaching Tonkawa report. It is estimated that fifteen rigs in the oil field were damaged by the strong wind which preceded the deluge.

Heavy rains and hail was reported generally throughout the western section of the state. As the rain moved eastward over the state, it added between one and two inches of moisture to the recent rainfall in that section.

More than $4,000,000 worth of moisture fell on state fields and farms, it was estimated by Carl H. Robinson, federal statistician tonight.

SANDSTORM AND RAIN HITS WILBARGER COUNTY

VERNON, April 26.—A sandstorm that sent residents of Vernon hurrying to their storm cellars this afternoon was but the prelude to one of the hardest rainfalls in the history of this section. All Wilbarger county is drenched by the heavy downpour that started here this afternoon about 4 o'clock and is still falling at a late hour tonight.

The rain will be of great benefit to farmers in this section as Wilbarger county has been denied the showers falling over northwest Texas throughout the week.

QUANAH GETS BIGGEST RAINS OF ENTIRE SECTION

QUANAH, April 26.—Quanah has received a total of 6 inches of rain during the past week which was climaxed by a fall of 2.5 inches this afternoon when the clouds seemed to open up. The rain stopped in less than two hours, leaving the entire county soaked, with all roads impassable. The lightning display was one of the most vivid seen in this section in some time.

ELECTRA GETS DAY OF RAIN, THEN A STORM

ELECTRA, April 26.—Intermittent rainfall throughout Sunday soaked Electra, but the town was practically flooded by the deluge that came about 3 o'clock this afternoon. High winds, hail, and lightning added to the discomfort brought on by a day of rain.

THE WEATHER

"This black eye is on account of I believed the men when they said I could lick Pug Nelson easy."

Weather for Wichita Falls Sunday, April 26, as reported at 5 o'clock by the Wichita Falls Electric company follows: Maximum temperature 89 degrees; minimum, 59; present 60 degrees; precipitation, 2.03; cloudy northwest wind, average wind velocity 15 miles per hour; maximum wind velocity, 22 miles per hour; barometer, 29.06.

WEST TEXAS: Monday probably local showers, cooler in southeast portion; warmer in Panhandle Tuesday generally fair, warmer in north portion.

EAST TEXAS: Monday probably local thundershowers, cooler in interior Tuesday partly cloudy probably local showers in east portion, warmer in northwest portion.

OKLAHOMA: Monday partly cloudy cooler in southeast, warmer in northwest portion. Tuesday fair, warmer.

SO. OKLAHOMA DRENCHED BY HEAVY RAINS

One of Hardest Downpours on Record Is Reported From Walters Sunday

WALTERS, Okla., April 26. — A severe downpour accompanied by wind and some hail struck here about 6 o'clock this evening. The rain, one of the hardest in the history of Walters had registered a precipitation of 1.35 inches in less than 45 minutes.

Some damage was also done to trees and window glass by the hard wind, several trees being reported uprooted. No damage was done by the hail. The rain was general over southwest Oklahoma and crops are expected to receive untold benefit, this being the first good rain in over three months.

ARCHER CITY FLOODED BY SUNDAY CLOUDBURST

ARCHER CITY, April 26.—A deluge that was practically a cloudburst struck here this afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock, leaving a flooded town behind it. The heavy downpour of the first two hours had settled into a steady rain at a late hour tonight. The estimated precipitation is over two inches.

OLNEY GETS BIGGEST RAIN IN SEVERAL YEARS

OLNEY, April 26.—The heavens opened this afternoon about 5 o'clock and in less than an hour all roads into this place and in north Young county had been made impassable by a rainfall unequaled here in late years. No estimate has been made of the downpour which has continued for four hours, but it is likely to exceed three inches. Some damage is reported to trees from hail, and all telephone wires are reported to be down from water and wind.

CLAY COUNTY ROADS WASHED OUT BY RAINS

HENRIETTA, April 26.—Rain starting here at 11 o'clock Saturday night continued until 8 o'clock this morning, then started up again about 4 o'clock, accompanied in its aftermath by high winds that did much damage to telephone and telegraph wires. All roads are reported impassable due to washed away bridges.

VERNON MEETING ENDS.

VERNON, April 26.—The Baptist meeting closes tomorrow night, with over 100 additions to the church. Rev Arthur Fox of Mayfield, Ky., is doing the preaching. The big tabernacle where the night services are held will not accommodate the huge crowds. A baptismal service for women was held at the church Sunday night and one for men will be held monday night.

Dr. Fox will leave for his home in Kentucky Monday.

DALLAS NEGRO AT LARGE AS POLICE WORK

Dogs Fail to Trail Him Late Saturday After Attack

REWARDS OFFERED

Fourteen Negroes Held for Questioning in Case

DALLAS, April 26.—The negro who shot and killed W. L. (Larry) Milstead Saturday night and mistreated his companion, Mrs. Mabel Berry of Austin, remained at large tonight, although blood hounds followed his trail for some distance. Mrs. Berry's condition was reported as serious tonight. She is suffering from the beating the negro gave her, shock and exposure.

The dogs put on the trail at the spot where the automobile in which Milstead and Mrs. Berry were driving had been abandoned by the negro, followed the scent to a street car line. They lost it there.

Rewards Posted.

Rewards totaling $300 were posted for the negro today. One-third of it was contributed by negroes of the city. Former Sheriff Dan Harston offered $100 and Will Henry, police sergeant, offered $100.

Police are working on the theory the negro is one of the two who killed Ryan Adkins and mistreated his woman companion two weeks ago. They also think he possibly is implicated in several other robberies and attempted mistreatment of women recently.

Mrs. Berry told officers today the negro evidently thought she was dead when he left her lying in a puddle of water. He covered her face and body with a rain coat he found in the car.

Well Populated.

The attack occurred near a thickly populated neighborhood, early in the evening. As Milstead slowed his car to turn in at the residence where Mrs. Berry was visiting, the negro jumped on the running board and at the point of a pistol made him drive beyond the residences further along the street. He made Milstead get out of the car, shot him once, returned to the car and at the point of the pistol made Mrs. Berry remain quiet while he drove about for about two hours. On a lonely road he beat her, drove the car into a puddle of water and disappeared.

Milstead's body will be sent to his mother in Washington Tuesday.

Fourteen negroes were held today for questioning by the police, but they said they doubted whether the negro they wanted was among them.

SPORTSMAN IS BURIED.

Argentine Capitalist and Friend Die In Auto Crash.

DORDOBE, Argentina, April 26.—Eudardo Luro, wealthy Argentine sportsman was burned to death and his companion killed when the car Luro was driving in an automobile race, crashed against a telegraph pole today. The race, which is one of the most important events in Argentina was suspended on account of the accident. It is run over a course of about 400 kilometers (248.55 miles). Twenty cars, a majority of them of North American make, were in motion when the accident occurred. The contest was held for the first time last year and Luro won it.

Downpour of Rain Comes to N. Texas

DALLAS, April 26.—Cloudbursts in north Dallas county late yesterday were followed tonight by other downpours of more of a general nature. Reports from Amarillo, Texas, and Texarkana, Texas, indicated that the precipitation has been general through northwest, north and northeast Texas. Reports from Mineral Wells, Stamford and Wichita Falls are that heavy rains have fallen during late Sunday afternoon and night. Hereford, Texas, reported rainfall there this morning.

While some damage was done by the flood waters and wind accompanying the heavy rains, the moisture is considered of inestimable value to farm lands.

Convict Wins Fortune, Will Never Use It

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, April 26.—(AP)—Karl Puskas, serving a life term in prison for the murder of his wife, has drawn the capital prize of one million crown in the state lottery. But he will not have the privilege of spending any of the money.

The entire sum is to be deposited to his credit in a bank and it will go to hire 5-year-old son when the father dies. It is believed the fortune will double within 20 years.

GUN PUSHED IN MOUTH BLOWS OFF HIS HEAD

Henrieetta Farmer Takes Life By Unusual Process

HENRIETTA, April 26.—Placing the muzzle of a shotgun in his mouth, A. Graner, an unmarried and well known farmer living four miles southwest of Henrietta, used a cane to pull the trigger, blowing off the entire top part of his head, this afternoon shortly after three o'clock.

He was dead when relatives with whom he lived rushed from the next room. No cause was given for the suicide, Garner's friends knowing of no troubles, or enemies. His health had always been good.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon from the Henrietta undertaking parlors and interment will be made in a local cemetery.

The deceased is survived by four brothers, E. A., J. J., Will and George Graner, all of Clay county, and one sister, also of this county.

Attempt Is Made To Rob Nugrape Office

A burglar or burglars breaking into the Nugrape Bottling company office at 1505 Lamar Avenue sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning contented themselves with taking a large Westinghouse Electric fan after knocking the combination of a safe containing Saturday's receipts and attempting to push the tumblers in. It is not known why the job was not finished.

Saturday night's incident is the third attempt that has been made to rob the Nugrape office in less than a year.

Okla. Farmer Shoots Another Over Wife

WELEETKA, Okla., April 26.—Roy Adams, a farmer, was shot and probably mortally wounded today by Houston Torrance, when Torrance returned to his farm home near here and found Adams.

"I had told Adams to leave my wife alone," Torrance said to Deputy Sheriff W. S. Wilson, who arrested him.

Torrance told Wilson he had returned unexpectedly to his home this afternoon and found Adams with his wife. He declared Adams threw a knife at him, and that he then obtained his shotgun and fired twice at the other man. The first shot missed and the second struck Adams in the body.

Adams was momentarily expected to die. Torrance was in jail tonight in default of bond of $10,000.

PLANS ROTAR SHIP TOUR

German Plans Trip Around World in Unusual Ship.

BERLIN, April 26.—Count Felix Von Luckner, who during the world war was commander of the famous German raider Seeadler, which sank many merchantmen is planning to make a trip around the world in a rotar ship—the type utilizing wind pressure on a big revolving mast. The count has entered into negotiations with Anton Flettner, the inventor of the ship, to secure one. It is his desire, the count says, to acquaint the world's greatest ports with the latest product of German mechanical genius.

One Royal Mama and A Score of Others Offer Sons To Richest Girl

LONDON, April 26.—The most sought heiress in the world!

The title appears to belong to the beautiful Countess of Seafield, 19-year-old daughter of the late Earl of Seafield and a peeress in her own right. At least one royal mama, and scores of other titled mamas are seeking her for a daughter-in-law.

The reason is her great wealth. She is the richest unmarried woman in all Great Britain. From her father she inherited two vast estates, embracing 500,000 acres yielding an income of $1,000,000 a year. She also will receive about $30,000,000 from the estate of Mrs. Joseph H. Tod, head of Christchurch, New Zealand.

It is known that Queen Marie of Roumania is seeking to interest the countess in her son, Prince Nicholas. And it has been reported at various times that the countess may become the bride of one of the sons of the British sovereign.

The countess herself is making it plain that she is in no hurry to acquire a husband. She fives very plainly because her income is cut into heavily by government taxes, and she has not the full control of her estate yet, being under age.

ONCE CHARGED NAUGHTY, PLAY WINS PULITZER

Highest Award in Journalism Prizes Goes to New York Production

WAS EXONERATED

"They Knew What They Wanted" Was Once Under Fire of the Law

NEW YORK, April 26.—The annual Pulitzer prizes in journalism and letters for 1924 were announced today by President Nicholas Murray Butler for the school of journalism of Columbia university.

Edna Ferber, for her novel "So Big," was awarded the $1,000 prize, "for the best American novel published during the year which shall present the wholesome atmosphere of American life and the highest standards of American manners and manhood."

The $500 prize, for the best cartoon published in any American newspaper, during the year, was given to Rollin Kirby of the New York "World" for his cartoon entitled "news from the outside world," published October 5.

"Knew What They Wanted."

Sidney Howard, author of "They Knew What They Wanted," was awarded the $1,000 prize for the "original American play performed in New York, which shall best represent the educational value and power of the stage of raising the standard of good morals, good taste and good manners."

The play was one of thirteen plays recently investigated by District Attorney Banton on complaint of citizens that they were immoral productions. A citizens' play jury later exonerated Mr. Howard's play.

For the "best book of the year upon the history of the United States," the $2,000 prize was awarded to Frederic L. Paxson for his "History of the American Frontier" and the $1,000 award for the year's best American biography was given to M. A. DeWolfe Howe for his "Barrett Wendell and His Letters." Edwin Arlington Robinson was given the $1,000 prize for the year's best volume of verse by an American. The winning volume was "The Man Who Died Twice."

Loeb-Liepold Work Gets Prize.

The Charlestown, S. C. "News and Courier" was awarded the $500 prize for the year's best editorial article, for an editorial entitled "The Plight of the South," published November 5. James W. Muirs and Alvin H. Goldstein, reporters on the staff of the Chicago "Daily News," won the $1,000 prize in duplicate, "For the best example of a reporter's work during the year." The award was made in recognition of their services toward the solution of the murder of Robert Franks, Jr., by Nathan F. Leopold and Richard Loeb.

Three traveling scholarships, having a value of $1,000 each, awarded to graduates of the Columbia School of Journalism, "who shall have passed their examinations with the highest honor" were given to Daniel Robert Mauc, Monticello, Minn., W. G. Worthington, Providence, R. I., and Richmond B. Williams of Brooklyn, with Theodore Bernstein and Cicely Appleticum of New York City and Dorothy Dodd of Tallahassee, Fla., named as alternates.

Two Scholarships Given.

Scholarships having the value of $1,500 each were awarded Douglas Moore, Cleveland, and Leopold D. Mannes, New York City, to continue studies in music abroad. Only one scholarship ordinarily is presented, but award committee added a second this year "in view of the great merits of the work presented."

There was no competition for the $1,000 prize for the best history on the services rendered to the public by the American press and no award was made of the $500 prize for the most disinterested and meritorious public service by an American newspaper during the year.

EARTH TREMORS REPORTED.

Shocks Occur About 8,000 Miles From Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Earth tremors of unusual intensity and duration, centering probably more than 8,000 miles from Washington, were recorded early today on the seismograph of Georgetown university.

Director Tondorf of the university's seismographic observatory said the disturbance was of very unusual violence and almost continuously in progress from 3:45 a. m. to 6 a. m.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLS SELF

South Texas Freighter Dies After Accidental Shot.

DEL RIO, April 26.—Sam Choate, well known freighter in this part of the state accidentally shot and killed himself last night when he attempted to shoot a rattle snake. He was driving about 30 miles from Comstock when he stopped. Just as John Latta, drove another truck up and stopped Choate's gun was discharged as he fell down across the steering wheel. Latta saw the snake crawl away. Choate's 9-year-old son was asleep on the seat beside him at the time.

SAN ANGELO GETS RAIN.

SAN ANGELO, April 26.—A heavy rain, accompanied by some hail was falling here tonight. Reports indicated the rain was general in this par to fthe sate and the heaviest of that which began a few days ago. The Concho river was bank full today.

A War Lord Is Enthroned

PAUL LUDWIG HANS Anton von Beneckendorff und von Hindenburg, field marshal of Germany, is the next president of the German republic. He twice before refused to run for the presidency and it is a popular understanding, not verified, however, that he consented to run this time on direct bidding of the ex-Kaiser. The former war lord defeated Dr. Wilhelm Marx, former chancellor, and leader of the Centrist party.

* * *

In German, then, what? In Europe, then, what? For the world, what?

No one knows; yet, it is well to ask ourselves these questions: Does his election upset negotiations of the security compact calculated to bring peace to Europe? Is he to be an instrument in hands of the nationalists to pave the way for succession of a prince of the monarchy? Or will he be a republican president of a republican state? How about the Dawes plan? Is another German empire in the making?

Certainly it cannot be denied that as newspapers of the world flash the story of Von Hindenburg's election this morning it will be as a red flag to the forces of humanity as they struggle toward what seems to be an ever receding horizon

—A. E. P. B.

VON HINDENBURG

Field Marshal von Hindenburg was given little chance to win in the German election but the huge vote and the majority given him left little doubt as to his popularity in the fatherland. Above: Von Hindenburg and his favorite dog.

A Replica of Imperialism

FIELD MARSHAL Von Hindenburg, lifelong soldier, war time military hero of Germany, by training and temperament given to political campaigning, was drawn reluctantly in his old age into an arena unknown to him when he consented to become a candidate for the presidency of the republic of Germany for the parties of the Right, known as the Nationalist-Conservative Bourgeois bloc.

The martial figure of the imperial Germany that has passed seemed to fit awkwardly into his new role. His speeches were few and brief; he did not travel from his home town to Hanover. His press agents found him unskilled in the wiles of publicity and not adept in the ways of self seeking. Von Hindenburg declared in resisting the attempts to make him a candidate that he was too old that he could not understand the new generation.

His entire campaign activities consisted in receiving delegations that came to Hanover, making several short addresses at his home, and, toward the last, giving interviews. The outstanding points of his speeches were an appeal for unity for the German people, a declaration of his aversion to war, his insistence that Germany must regain her independence and not be dependent on other nations.

Speak of the Future.

Only one time [illegible] referred to the past. That was when he declared that the German people must not be ashamed of the past. Otherwise he spoke of the future.

Was A Lost Hope

But the nationalists, fearing that Marx would defeat Jarres, appealed to Von Hindenburg to replace Jarres, which under the German system was possible.

The final appeal after several days of delay, decided during which he did so because of a feeling of duty alone, and not his personal desire to run. He asked God to grant the prayer that it would all may at the end of the life be of some service to the fatherland.

Explosion Traps Ten Miners Inside Shaft

WEST NEWTON, Pa., April 26.—An explosion in the mine of the West Moreland Coal company near here late tonight, trapped eight or ten men inside the workings, according to first reports reaching here of the accident.

News of the explosion was telephoned to Pittsburgh to the offices of the United States bureau of mines and a rescue crew, it was stated, would be dispatched to the mine at once.

The explosion was of sufficient force, it was said to wreck the tipple near the shaft. First reports were brought here by motorists, hundreds of whom were attracted to the scene.

INDIAN WAR SURVIVOR DIES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 26.—Brigadier General George Pennington Bordey, U. S. A., retired, said by army officers to be one of the few survivors of the Indian wars that followed the civil war, died at his home here today at the age of 81. General Borden, after 40 years of active military service, was retired at his own request in 1907.

Dry Hole Offset Is Small Producer

White Brothers have a small well, a commercial producer of some sort, in their No. 13, Kunkel, S. G. Hardaway survey, abstract 364, a south offset to the old Harvey Taylor dry hole, the failure of which to make a well condemned the most prolific section of the Carey district for so long a while. It is believed that the well fill make a possible 25 barrel producer from 11 feet of sand at 1,146-55 feet.

It is the furtherest east that production has extended in the Carey pool. It is intended to go in now and complete the No. 5 on the south line of the 54 acres with cable tools. The well has been standing with several hundred feet of fluid in the hole from a sand several feet below any other producing horizon in the field.

SCHOOL CHILDREN DEFECTIVE

AUSTIN, April 25.—(AP)—Of the 5,512 school children examined in March by the public health nursing service of the bureau of child hygiene, 3,011 were found defective in some way, the report issued by the state board of health today shows.

GERMAN WAR LEADER GETS HUGE BALLOT

Republicans Fail to Put Marx Over In Second Ballot

LEAD IS BIG ONE

All German Rallies To Support of Great War Leader

BERLIN, April 26.—The people of Germany have rallied to the banner of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and elected him president of the republic. He is the first president of Germany to be elected by popular ballot. He was nominated by the nationalist-conservative bloc to replace Dr. Karl Jarres, who failed of election in the first balloting on March 29. His opponent was Dr. Wilhelm Marx, candidate of the republican bloc, adherents of the Weimar coalition, composed of centrists, socialists and democrats. The third candidate was Ernst Thaelmann, communist.

Von Hindenburg triumphed in his race for the presidency with a majority close to 845,000 votes. The unofficial final figures are: Von Hindenburg, 14,650,000; Marx, 13,740,000; Thaelmann, 1,789,000. Total, 30,345,540.

Von Hindenburg comes to the chair once occupied by Friedrich Ebert who was chosen president by the national assembly at Weimar in February, 1919, and who died in Berlin in February, 1925.

East Prussia paid tribute to the victor of Tannenberg by giving Von Hindenburg a lead of 300,000 over Dr. Marx in the final returns.

Dr. Marx's campaign managers admitted shortly after midnight that he was unable to overcome Von Hindenburg's lead in 28 electoral districts out of 35 as the republican strongholds which had not yet reported would be unable to offset Von Hindenburg's lead at that time of one million.

TWO KILLED IN CLASH AT KARLSHRUE BALLOTING

KARLSHRUE, Germany, April 26. In a clash between republicans and nationalists at the presidential elections today, two persons were killed and many wounded.

COBURG RALLIES TO AID HINDENBURG IN VOTE

COBURG, April 26.—Coburg, the home of ex-Tsar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, and the Russian pretender, Grand Duke Cyril, and a hotbed of monarchists supported the Von Hindenburg candidacy strongly with 10,332 votes, as compared with 4,903 for Dr. Marx and 120 for Ernst Thaelmann.

ERRONEOUS REPORT CAUSES DISTURBANCES IN SILESIA

RATIBOR, Silesia, April 26.—An erroneous announcement publlshed here this evening that Dr. Wilhelm Marx was leading Von Hindenburg by nearly two million votes caused not only consternation, but serious disturbances. Large bodies of nationalists began marching through the streets. There were repeated collisions with the security police and the police used their blackjacks freely. The nationalists collected reinforcements and laid siege to the police headquarters in various towns in the area.

CHILD LABOR RESTING.

Bill Still An Important One, Says Prominent Woman.

AUSTIN, April 26.—The proposed amendment to the national constitution regulating child labor "is just resting before a second round of the state legislature which indications say will be soon," asserted Mrs. A. H. Reese, president of the national congress of parents and teachers, in comment on here.

BANK ROBBERS FAIL IN ATTEMPT AT PONDER.

GAINESVILLE, April 26.—An unsuccessful attempt was made Saturday night to rob the Ponder State bank, 25 miles south of here. A hole large enough for a man to crawl through, was burned in the wall of the vault, but the robbers failed to get any cash.

PLANS HISTORICAL INSTITUTE

BERLIN, April 26. — Dr. Oscar Hagen, professor of the history of art at the University of Goettingen, has returned from the United States where he served as Carl Schurz memorial professor at the University of Wisconsin. It is his intention to return to Madison next fall to organize the newly established institute for historial arts.

Ed Hughes' Column

EINSTEIN'S THEORY.

Einstein was at least partly right. Things do seem largely a matter of relativity at times—hardship, joy, sorrow, success and failure. The other day a staunch admirer of Jack Dempsey defended him in this wise:

"They say Jack has quit, that he doesn't intend to fight any more. Well: can you blame him? Fighting is hard work. It's no ring-a-round-a-rosy. And training—plugging the roads under a broiling sun for weeks at a clip and all the rest of the irksome grind. It's no sinecure. I don't blame him if he does want to retire. There are easier, more enjoyable things in life than fighting."

All of which is thoroughly true unless you apply the Einstein relativity theory. Fifty years from now when "the game" has been lifted to the plane of the fine arts and weighted down with becoming esthetic elegance and refinement—then maybe the boxing of today will be accounted a hard life. It's all a matter of relativity. Employing this same hypothesis in reverse—digging back fifty years ago—we find things as they are today quite roseate for the boxer. Relatively speaking, it is the well known, and generally coveted life of Riley. With magnificent pay attached in the bargain.

THAT CIVIL WAR BATTLE.

If you don't think so, ponder over a typical ring event of 62 years ago. It is during the civil war, for not even the bloodiest and most consequential of battle field conflicts could lessen interest in the relative unimportance and uselessness of prize fighting. However, a little more philosophy here. Would that the civil war could have been fought with fists and not rifles, bayonets and cannon! Black eyes for tomb stones—it would have been better for humanity, would it not?

But this prize ring scene was laid during the civil war, as noted above. The spot was at South Amboy, which was somewhere in New Jersey. Two brawny bruisers, by name Owney Georghegan and Con Orem, were battering each other on the turf. Owney was a celebrated gangster of New York. Orem hailed from Colorado, and not so much was known of him. Georghegan and his mob of blacklegs made underworld history during the period. And needless to say Owney had his unruly, devilish gang with him when he went forth to do battle with the western gladiator.

The Colorado scrapper evidently suspected things when he arrived at the battle ground. He earnestly, though politely, begged for the comforting "square deal." The promise was given him, but the brevity of its life may easily be imagined. It lasted about as long as it took him to strip for the fray. When he went to his corner to prepare for the encounter he found things had already gone askew. His seconds refused to act. They told Orem that Owney's gang had threatened violence on them.

Whereupon a wrangle immediately ensued. An hour was wasted trying to find two men of the thousands assembled who oblige by going behind the man from the west. None so foolhardy as to place his life in jeopardy as the Geoghegan hordes, bristling revolvers, knives and black-jacks clamored for the fight to be started.

Game and Good Natured.

But Orem was game and generous under the circumstances. Two of Geoghegan's cronies, after a pow-wow with Owney, condescended to second Orem. And Orem agreed to them—because he had to. But while the uproar was at its height, and before the mill had even started, the Geoghegan hoodlums already were getting in their dirty work. Orem requested a drink of water and a sponge-off before opening hostilities. He found that his water bucket had been emptied of its contents.

Con respectfully pleaded that this was in further violation of the promised "square deal," and he begged time, until some one filled the receptacle for him. The nearest well, however, was some miles away from the battle ground. No one cared to fulfill the favor asked by Mr. Orem. No coat of mail, to protect from the restless bullets in the Geoghegan revolvers, was handy at the time Mr. Orem made known his want. And even if there had been one, it is doubtful whether the Colorado victim would have been accommodated. Eastern hospitality required too much courage to be of any use to Mr. Orem at the moment.

So Orem decided to battle Owney without the necessary liquid with which to quench thirst, and assuage wounds. Con, however, took things with relative good nature. Even good naturedness is merely a matter of relativity, you see. Con doubtless had seen more good natured times than his being possessed at South Amboy that afternoon. Now all that he asked for was a "square deal" in the fight itself, and in the first moment of aftermath, were he returned the victor.

REAL GLADIATOR.

He proceeded into the fray, as we say, with relative good humor. Nor was it doomsday until he showed the Geoghegan mob that he was a considerable man of parts as a ringster. In truth he outclassed Geoghegan completely at every angle of the milling. He was a better and more often hitter. He trimmed Owney in the wrestling phase of it. He was much the gamer, too.

But Owney possessed a desperate, bruitish determination to win. He was there to triumph by fair means or by foul, and his gang ably supported the Geoghegan policy. The referee, with the thieves and murderers at his back, permitted Geoghehan to "get away" with everything under the sun. The battle lasted 18 rounds, and each round terminated by Owney dropping to the ground without being hit, or else being decently floored by the fist of his foeman.

Orem's protests of foul were wasted on the fragrant Amboy air. In the last round Orem staggered Owney with a macelike clout on the jaw and then delivered the finisher to the same spot. Geoghegan went down and out. The mob glimpsed the turn of affairs on the instant. They promptly tore down the ropes and hemmed in the referee, pointing gleaming pistols and waving cold steel in his face. They wanted to know what his decision was.

* * *

THAT WAS YESTERYEAR.

The referee naturally drew the conclusion that Owney must have been fouled. And he so ruled.

Such was the condition of affairs in the American prize ring 62 years ago. What would the fighter of today think of it with his well padded mitts, the orderly assemblages in brilliantly lighted amphitheatres, the comparatively pink tea regulations, and the piles of coin he extracts from a single bout?

Would he be so quick to shriek that fighting today is a hard game? Doubtless he would in spite of all. Fighters are not concerned with the theory of relativity. Einstein would tell you however, that there is no easier or more comfortable method of making a living.

STORM BEATS COWS OUT OF BASE KNOCKS

Jupe Pluve Squelches Tilt In Fourth With Dallas Ahead

WHITE STILL HOMERS

Water Polo on Card This Afternoon, Advises Skipper

An oversize and exceedingly jubilant rain and wind storm that swept down the left center field barrier, marooned something like 2,600 Spudder fans in the grandstand for nearly two hours, and tore the tar paper covering atop the roof of that grandstand into various and assorted shreds saved Dallas from losing another ball game Sunday.

But the lowly cellar habitues did not wax ecstatic over this sweet smile cast on them by Dame Fortune. They became exceedingly miffed instead. For several of the dungeon dwellers had got to a pair of Tanner hurlers for base knocks in quantity, all of which will not go down into the official batting averages. And the way events were turning it began to appear the rest of the Herd was scheduled to fatten up their hitting figures, too. Hungling had connected for three out of three. Bauman had poled two out of two. Segrist had cracked a pair out of three, O'Brien one out of one, and Patterson one out of two.

Steers Sorry.

A moan went up from the Steers a-field in the latter half of the fourth frame when old Jupe Pluve began cutting loose for fair and it seemed certain they would not get another cut at the ball.

It started sprinkling just as the first inning got under way. She abated a bit, and then got worse and worse as the game wore along. The Bovines touched a pair of Tanner tossers at a volcanic clip, and scampered around the runways in three couplets for twice that many markers—6 to 0 Dallas, or in other words, the game was even.

At the start of the fourth, clouds that had been menacing blackly since the opening of the affray cracked down in earnest, but the athletes carried on. Victor Pigg, third pitcher to ascend the mound for the Tannermen, although touched for a pair of bingles, got 'em out with no more runs being chalked up. Golvin drew a pass to open the Spudder half of the round, and Al White continued his home run slugging, swishing the pill over the left field fence and into the bald prairie beyond. Lefty Dick Schuman, on the chunking eminence for the visitors, walked Jonnard and Pigg in a hurry.

Counts As No Game

There was none away and two men on when the heavens opened up and tipped over like one great big bucket. Everybody made a frantic dash to shelter. She poured down furiously fore more than an hour. The earth was overflowing. Finally a bottle washed ashore near the southern end of the grandstand which, by the way, was going down fast, bearing Umpire Hill's superfluous tidings that the game was over.

Dallas saved again!

The Steers can't beat us with nine runs. Saturday illustrated that, so why worry over six? That affair goes into the records as no-game. Must play five innings at least to make it regulation.

They'll start all over again this afternoon if it be humbly possible, declares Spikker Tanner. If there's too much liquid on the grounds for baseball, they'll row out for a water polo contest.

Who's going to pitch for the Spudders is a heavy question. The staff's kind of torn up what with injuries and overwork. The midget master couldn't decide last night who was candidate for the job.

Ping Bodie would be our choice.

STEERS GET BROWN

DALLAS, April 26. — Curley Brown, pitcher, last year with the Denver club of the Western league has been purchased from the Rochester club of the International league, by the Dallas Texas league club management, Walter Morris, manager, said today.

Illinois A. C. Wins Tank Swim Title

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—(AP)—The Illinois Athletic club clinched the national all-around tank swimming championship of the Amateur Athlete Union when it ran up its score to 30 points this afternoon. San Francisco Olympic club will finish second. The only remaining event, a polo game, could not change the result.

Johnny Weissmuller won the 50-yard free style swim for the Illinois Athletic club. Walter Spence the super-swimmer of the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., was second and Sam Kahanamoku, Hut Nalu club of Hawaii, third. The Chicago champion, pushed hard, made it in 23 1-5 seconds, four-fifths of a second faster than when he won the event in last year.

CHICAGO BEATS CINCY

CINCINNATI, April 26.—Chicago won first game of the season today by bunching four hits in the ninth, overcoming a two run lead and defeating Cincinnati 6 to 5. The Reds were badly crippled, owing to accidents and illness among the players with Roush, Bressler and Critz, all out of the line-up. The score:

Rain Squelches Texhoma-Ludlam And Riggs Game

Oilers Hold 3-0 Lead When Tilt Called At End Of Second

Texhoma held the upper band on a 3 to 0 tabulation Sunday over Len Smith's Ludlam and Riggs nine when the game was called at the close of the second inning because of rain. This makes two postponements for the Smith entry. The club was rained out last week in its season opener with Monroe's Travelers.

Texhoma grabbed a one run lead in the first inning. Johnson was safe at first when Hart pulled Powell off the bag. Kellogg laid down a neat sacrifice bunt to Smith and sent Johnson to second. Johnson took third on H. Gordon's infield out and scored on Hale's single to center. Pipes flied to left.

Dick Gordon and Brown were the victims of Murrell's slants and Davis had grounded out to Kellogg, unassisted.

The Oilers shoved another pair over in the second stanza. Ward opened with a single to center and stole second. Kizziar lined a single to the same pasture and Ward counted. Kizziar took second on the throw in. Ross and Murrell whiffed. Johnson dropped a fluke hit to right. Kizziar spiked the rubber. Johnson was thrown out trying to stretch his hit into a double, Griffin to Powell to Shaw.

Shaw singled and stole second for Ludham and Riggs but advanced no further. Hart fanned. Powell hit a hot one to Johnson who momentarily lost the ball, but recovered in time to hold Shaw at the bag, then threw Powell out at first base. Griffin fanned.

Sox Forfeit To Tribe As Crowd Riots

Cushion Fight and Near Mob Causes Decision Of Umps

CHICAGO, April 26.—The opening game between the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians was forfeited to the latter 9 to 0 today in the ninth inning, when the visitors were leading, 7 to 2. The crowd, the largest which has ever witnessed a game in Chicago—close to 44,000—swarmed on the field after two White Sox had been retired in the ninth and Kamm reached first on an error by Knode, who failed to touch the bag after receiving J. Sewell's throw. The umpires and police attempted to clear the field but were helpless. In the eighth inning, the fans started a cushion fight, the grand stand patrons throwing cushions at the overflow crowd who returned the fusillade. This bombardment continued and after Kamm's grounder to short, the crowd broke out on the field and it was impossible to continue.

Sherrod Smith, Cleveland southpaw, pitched a steady game, and with the aid of sensational support including four double plays and poor base running on the part of the locals had an easy time piling up runs, as the visitors bunched their hits and drove Hollis Thurston off the mound. The score:

ST. LOUIS WINS LATE

DETROIT, April 26.—Eighth and ninth inning rallies fell two short of the needed runs and Detroit lost to St. Louis, 6 to 4, before a crowd of 30,000 persons. It was the fifth consecutive defeat for the Tigers and it marked the 12th consecutive game in which George Sisler has hit safely. Bennett's stealing home on Collins' windup in the sixth was a feature. The score:

COMPLEXION OF TEXAS LEAGUE FIRST TWO WEEKS 1925 RACE SAME AS PAST FIVE SEASONS

Cats Havent's Had Much Opposition Yet, But Watch 'em With Spudders and Bears

With the 1925 season nearly two weeks under way, the Texas league percentage column thus far has presented virtually the same appearance as it has given for the last five years—Fort Worth leading with other teams trailing in variable orders. Other teams shift their positions from day to day, but the Panthers remain at the top.

Fort Worth's success so far is greatly due to the disappointing showing of the Dallas team, doped before the season started to give the champions stiff opposition. Dallas has won but one game out of seven played with the Panthers. Weakness in the pitching staff appears to be the big difficulty with the Steers. But two pitchers have been able to go the route.

The Houston, San Antonio and Wichita Falls clubs, on the strength of early season play, promise to give the Panthers a fight before the year is much older. The Buffs, led by Marvin Goodwin, probably the only pitcher-manager in a league of this classification, have lived up to the most sanguine expectations of their followers. Goodwin seems to have a formidable pitching staff in himself, Barnes, Littlejohn, Benge and Burns. Burns and Barnes have had little professional experience and their showing has been highly gratifying to Buff fans.

San Antonio seems to have uncovered the most vicious attack of any team in the league. All pitching appears to look alike to Bear swatsmen. They established what is probably a league record when they scored 21 runs on two successive days in a recent series with Beaumont. And the Bears are getting fairly good pitching from Heitzman, Watt and Winters.

Wichita Falls is playing true to pre-season expectations, although the Spudders have been unable to put their full strength in the field as yet. Pete Turgeon is still out of the lineup and Rip Wheeler, star pitcher, has not been in shape. The Spudders appear to have two pitchers in Osborn and Williams.

The Waco, Beaumont, Shreveport and Dallas clubs have made disappointing showings, but with the season still young their followers are hoping they will get going in time to become factors in the pennant fight. Their reverses so far can be largely attributed to injuries as well as to the fact that they have been playing against the stronger teams of the circuit. All have been handicapped by erratic pitching.

With May 5 rapidly approaching, the managers are confronted with the problem of getting their squad within the 16-player limit. The task of selecting whom to keep and whom to let go is one of the most bothersome managers have to contend with in early season.

Grounds Too Wet For S.S. Contest

First Christians and First Baptists are billed this afternoon on the regular Sunday school league schedule but it if doubtful that the nines will be able to tangle up because of excessive moisture.

The play field is almost a sea of mud this morning, and there appears slight chance of it being dry enough for play by game time.

WATER MEET THRILLING.

Crowd of Thousands Kept on Feet by Unusual Feats.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26. — Team exploits and thrilling individual performances of swimmers in the national A. A. U. championships keep a crowd of four thousand on its feet today, the third day of the four days of the meet.

The San Francisco Olympic club swung into a lead with 21 points by winning the water polo title this afternoon. The home team defeated the Chicago Athletic association 3 to 1, in a fast game. Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. stood second with 15 points, thanks to the prowess of Walter Spence, who won his third event today by taking first place in the pentathlon.

GIANTS RELEASE TEXAN.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The New York Giantts today announced the release of Outfielder Howard Crump of the New Haven team of the Eastern league. Crump came to New York from Southwestern university in Texas.

FORT WORTH STILL WINS

FORT WORTH, April 26. — Possum Moore's double in the fifth and his home run in the seventh with Windle on base both times were determining factors in the Cats' defeat of the Sports today, 5 to 3. McColl pitched effectively for Shreveport all the rest of the way. Red Ostergard hit a home run off Lefty Johns in the fifth. Walkup, who piched he last four innings for Fort Worth, was in rare form. SHOCKER LOOKS LIKE HUGGIN'S BEST BET

It was very apparent at the St. Petersburg camp of the Yankees that Miller Huggins' pitching staff was an uncertain quantity. Now, judging from the early games, Urban Shocker, obtained from the Browns, must bear the burden. What once looked to some enthusiastic New York supporters like a formidable hurling staff right now consists of Shocker, Herb Pennock, Waite Hoyt and Walter Beall. Pennock is a fairly dependable hurler. Hoyt is an in and outer. Walter Beall is an untried youngster.

DAWES ON THE WAR-PATH AGAIN.

Seeing a lone senatorial supporter in his audience at Boston, Vice President Dawes treated that audience to an explosion he had intended to reserve for New York. Renewing his attack upon the United States senate, he assumed for himself in effect the office and privileges of a Tribune of the people. "As I see it," he said, "unless in my humble way I can act as a conduit to transmit to the senate and its members the individual reactions of the constituency, I do not see what I am doing in office."

If there is need for a special interpreter of the popular will to our popularly elected lawmakers, democracy is in sad case, and representation a delusive theory. But, supposing such need to exist, why should the vice president be the official to meet it? To make him tribune of the people is to make him greater than the president.

According to Mr. Dawes, there is involved in the question of changing the senate rules "a principle that our forefathers fought for." This principle relates to the veto power, which the constitution lodges with the executive, but which, Mr. Dawes contends, can be wielded by a single senator under existing rules. In starting an outcry against one-man rule in the senate, he seems to have forgotten his defense of five-to-four decisions of the supreme court. Actually, he made the same kind of argument upon a mere appearance that was made by his late opponents of the radical LaFollette group. Whether one judge or one senator determines an action is of no importance, in either case, it is the whole body of the court or the senate that renders the decision.

Mr. Dawes made the positive statement, that one lone senator can defeat the will of the people and defy the collected wisdom of the whole government. Now, this is untrue upon the very face of it. When one man attempts to hold up legislation by a filibuster, he is certain to lose, as was shown very recently by the unsuccessful effort of Senator Royal S. Copeland. It is only when the minority organizes with the sympathetic interest of certain sections of the majority that a filibuster can be made effective, and this can rarely happen when meritorious measures are before the senate. As a rule, filibusters are resorted to for the purpose of blocing majority attempts to ruthlessly ride down the minority and "put over" measures of doubtful wisdom.

It is strange to find Mr. Dawes arguing against any bar to majority domination, after he has so ably insisted in judicial safeguards for minority rights. It is even stranger to find him taking the view that the senate rules have been evolved through 119 years with the special purpose of facilitating delay. The truth is that all recent changes in the rules have been in the interest of speed. If Mr. Dawes sought only modification or revision of the rules, he would encounter little opposition, but his real objective seems to be abolition of the privilege of debate, an innovation which is likely to be favored only by those members of the temporary majority who take for granted that they will always be of the majority.

AN UNINVITING PROSPECT.

There is nothing enthusiastic about Dr. Stresemann's endorsement of General Von Hindenburg's presidential candidacy. His very elaborate effort to make clear the position of the German people's party, which he heads, is in itself suspicious. He explains that the people's party had no choice but to give its consent to the majority decision of the nationalist bloc, naming Hindenburg as leader, after Dr. Karl Jarres had failed to develop the strength he was expected to show in the preliminary election. Since Stresemann feels compelled to support a man of whom he heartily disapproves, he takes special pains to minimize the consequence of this involuntary action.

It is emphatically denied by the doctor that there is any issue of republic against monarchy in the final election on April 26, or that the success of Hindenburg would in any way tend to bring about a change in Germany's foreign policy. The latter half of this contention is probably correct, as Stresemann is now foreign secretary and would likely be continued in that post in the event of Hindenburg's success as the price of his support of the nationalist candidate. But while the fate of the republic will not be decided by the result of the election, it is certain that, if Hindenburg becomes president, monarchical influences will be temporarily in the ascendency, to the great detriment of republican principles and ideas.

The prospect is not an inviting one to Dr. Stresemann and his associates. The German people's party is conservative without being monarchical, and liberal without being democratic. It represents an alliance of two business groups, one made up of small tradesmen and the other of great industrialists. The former leans to liberalism while the latter inclines to rock-ribbed conservatism. The party could hardly hold together if it were not for the confusion which surrounds it on every hand, and seems to make it quite a normal governmental instrument.

The people's party rose to importance when the socialists refused to participate with other liberals in the framing of cabinets. The people's party then took a dominant place among the middle parties in carrying on the government. It lost this position when, during the communist disorders in Germany, it sought support from the nationalists. This desertion of the moderates gave the commanding position to the nationalists and brought the socialists back into the political arena. Now there must be a clear decision between the conservatives and liberals, and, no matter what that decision may be, the people's party will lose.

COTTON CONSUMPTION.

A census report on consumption of cotton, made public last week shows that American mills used 582,000 bales during the month of March or nearly 100,000 bales over the 485,000 consumed a year ago. This brought the total for the first eight months of the current season to 4,071,0000 compared with 4,000,000 during the corresponding two-thirds of last season. In addition to this, there was an increase in mill stocks over last year

BUSINESS WOMEN'S COMING OF AGE.

The business woman is coming of age. She is finding means of asserting herself and of living her life.

There is a certain class of women who by nature are not dependent on men. They are created with sufficient vitality, or circumstances have so arranged it, that they stand on their own feet.

While in every great city much has been done in a charitable way for working girls and girls of small salary, nothing has been done for business women.

In the first place it is hard to help them. They are not objects of charity. They are accustomed to looking out for themselves.

The result is that the lives they lead are often lonely and imperfect.

There is no reason why they should not have the same companionship and the advantages of fellowship which men have in their clubs.

A number of these women, the better class of earners in New York, have gathered together and formed a clubhouse association.

They intend to build a substantial clubhouse structure on Twenty-third street and to use it both for lodging their members and for entertaining their friends. In the reception room and other public rooms of the house men will be welcome. The women can entertain their men friends there.

There will be no rules or restrictions because the members will not need them. There will be no representatives of the fluffy ruffles class present. They will not want to come and they will not be wanted if they do come.

Men make all sorts of provisions for dependent women. Wives, working girls and mistresses are looked out for. They do not make any provision for the woman who takes care of herself and is self-respecting and independent.

In one sense every man's hand, and especially every woman's, is against this class. The ordinary woman resents an efficient, self-supporting female. She is a menace to her own dependent condition.

The ordinary woman expresses herself through a man, and when she finds a woman expressing herself through her own personality, it offends her.

The ordinary man also regards a woman as his dependent. She is to be looked after and protected. When he finds one that is able to take care of herself and who meets him on equal grounds in business relations, he is a trifle nonplussed. He does not know how to take her.

Circumstances, therefore, have compelled the business women to get together. Led by such competent workers as Miss Anne Morgan and Miss Robinson Smith, they have formed an organization consisting of some five thousand members.

They will put up a clubhouse which will be maintained by the receipts from its inmates.

The idea is not a charitable nor an uplift movement, but is simply an expression of the impulse of money-earning and self-respecting women to get together and realize their own personalities.

AMERICAN LAND OF HOME OWNERS.

Have you been told that American building and 11,814, building and loan associations in the United loan societies have 7,932,000 members? There are States. This represents an increase of about 10 per cent over the preceding year both in associations and membership.

Total assets of the associations are placed at $4,126,000,000.

This economic tendency is highly praised by the New York Trust company in a bulletin recently issued by that concern. It is looked upon by them as one of the outstanding features of the trend toward greater participation by wage earners in the fruits of capital and capitol accumulation.

Now organized labor is to make a venture into the field of life insurance.

Uncommon Sense

Genius.

The power to put on canvas, not only the faces, but the very souls of men, which was possessed by the late John Singer Sargent could not have been attained by any amount of work, determination and self sacrifice.

Genius is not to be acquired.

A few are born with it. Where it comes from we do not know. We can only surmise that they "brought it with them," and perhaps take it away with them when they go.

It is for the rest of us to be glad that geniuses do come to earth, and to do our best to appreciate and understand them while we are here.

We are wiser about that than we used to be, in the days when supercilious critics persecuted Keats, and stupid Eton boys and Oxford men made Shelley's life a burden to him.

Sargent was widely honored, and richly rewarded. Had he cared for money he could have made a great fortune.

But it was what he did that interested him, not what he made. And it is the world which will reap the real tangible reward of his labors.

The painter and the writer and the musical composer can leave their work behind them. The actor, the orator and the musical performer can, thanks to modern invention leave part of their work behind. But the great quality we call personality to imitate it, must perish with them.

Those who have genius of their own will paint great pictures, but these pictures will be unlike Sargent's or those of any other painter. For the work of genius is always original, always distinctive.

We might in this article seek to draw a lesson from the life of this great reader of men's souls. We might speak of his industry and determination, both of which he possessed, as all geniuses possess it, in a high degree.

But nothing is more mischievous than the spreading of the idea that sheer hard work will produce great results, unless that hard work is directed by a great mind.

Hard work and determination will produce good results—results far above the average output of very good minds. But it will not and never can become a substitute for genius.

The gigantic tasks that Sargent had to perform in mastering his art, and in intensive study of humanity, would have produced no great pictures had he possessed a mediocre brain.

How he came to possess the brain of a genius we do not know. We do know however that genius is aware—certain, from the beginning of what it can do—which is one of the reasons that it never hesitates to put forth the effort necessary to accomplishment.

There are no "mute inglorious Miltons." There are no Sargents whose talent is unrecognized.

Men and women who feel that if they had the capacity for hard work possessed by such men they would be geniuses also, are mistaken. It is better for them to try to be ordinarily successful, and let it go at that.

What Today Means To You

By MARY BLAKE

Taurus.

The aspects of today are quite encouraging, and favor research, investigation and work of a planning character. They do not, however, counsel very aggressive efforts along the lines of action, but apparently indicate a condition where careful thought and deliberation will help to reach a satisfactory conclusion, or solution of a problem that has been worrying you for some time past. In the afternoon and evening the conditions are negative, and whilst they do not presage any adverse opinions, neither do they indicate an atmosphere of a very favorable nature. At such a time it were well to rest as much as possible, and to do only those things which are absolutely necessary in order to comply with the duties of the occupation in which you are engaged.

A child born today will be normally healthy, and but for a few transitory ailments will cause no worry or anxiety on the ground of physical weakness. It will develop, given wholesome environment and proper care, into normal physicality. Its disposition will be docile and amiable. Its character will be established on sound principles and it will very rarely, if ever, do those things which it should not do, or leave undone those things which it should do.

If today is your birthday, you are possibly wondering why you have failed in that immediate task which you set out to accomplish. You have thought very carefully over all your actions, and can see no flaw, but are prepared to find fault with what you are pleased to call your standby. A careful analysis of the situation, however, will convince you, if you are frank with yourself, that the reason you did not succeed was because of your lack of perseverance and consistency. Consistency is often mistaken for stubbornness; but there is a world of difference between the two conditions, as one is a virtue and the other is a failure. But going over all circumstances, you will realize that at the first sign of competition you have changed your course of action in order, as you thought, to meet another atmosphere. Whereas, if you had held to your original plan, the success of your whole scheme would undoubtedly have been assured. You are inclined to be pugnacious, but not very often to the extent of quarrelsomeness. You generally insist upon getting what you think is coming to you, and try as far as possible to give others a square deal. Your will is a strong one, but you are disposed at times to change your actions in order to adjust a condition to new circumstances.

HOW IT STARTED

CALLING HIM THE "PRINCE OF WALES."

We are so accustomed to the eldest son of the sovereign of Great Britain the hair of the English throne, being called the "Prince of Wales" that we think no more of inquiring into the circumstances of the origin of the term than we would wonder about any one of his various Christian names. Yet the title reveals to the prying eye of research an interesting excerpt from the pages of history.

The title "Prince of Wales" was first conferred in 1301, by Edward I, on his son Prince Edward, afterwards Edward II, who was born at Carnarvon, Wales. The history of Wales up to the resign of Edward I, had been one of resistance and struggle in the refusal to recognize the sovereignty of England. Under Edward I., however, England conquered the still seething resentment of the little country that Edward I, named his son "Prince of Wales." It is a matter of history that this sufficiently satisfied the pride of the Welsh to keep them loyal to England for a hundred years.

The idea of making Wales a regular appanage or endowment, now nominal, of course, of the heir apparent to the British throne originated with Edward III., who invested his son, the Black Prince, with the principality. From that time the title Prince of Wales has been borne as a matter of course by the king's eldest son.

Oil Development In West Texas Is a Romance That Reads More Like a Dream

Editor's Note: This is another of a series of articles by Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald on the winning of west Texas. They are now being published in The Record News in connection with the coming convention of the west Texas chamber of commerce at Mineral Wells to which Wichita Falls will send a large delegation. Wichitans should make their reservations now with the chamber of commerce committee.

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff

After the great world conflict had closed, General Haig, the British commander, said the allies had been floated to victory on a sea of oil. Perhaps he was correct in his conclusion. West Texas is one of the favored spots on the oil may of America. Its high gravity oil and its gasoline may have had a vast deal to do with the winning of the World war by the soldiers of America and their European allies.

Petroleum has its romantic side. Richard Delaney drilled the first oil well at Electra. This was on the huge ranch owned by W. T. Waggoner. Waggoner wanted a deep water well. Delaney was the best driller in all that country. He had drifted from Buffalo, N. Y., to the fields of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. He drilled for water and brought in the initial oil well on the Waggoner ranch.

Electra was named for the only daughter of the cattle king. Time and again the history of the petroleum discoveries in Wichita, Clay, Jack, Young, Archer and Wilbarger counties has been written. Before the coming of oil the farmers produced wheat and corn. When the oil craze came the tilling of the soil became a lost art while the craze was on. It was then that the Mid-Continent territory with its rich fields came in.

Marched On Texas

It was then that the giants of the oil world marched upon Texas. It was then that Ranger and all the other camps in Eastland and Stephens were brought in. It was then that pipelines and refineries begin to represent an investment of millions and that the black gold which shot from the wells of Burkburnett and other rich fields startled the world.

More than a billion dollars has been taken out of the earth by these oil companies, and the wild-catter started all the work which resulted in the flow from the golden sand. Wichita became a city among the cities of the southwest and Ranger and Eastland and Breckenridge and a dozen other expanded from hamlet size to city proportions with all the modern improvements that go with cities of the second or the first class.

There are reservoirs of oil under the surface of the earth in West Texas, and unless the dreamers are at fault on the university lands alone there is Golden Fleece sufficient to build a university second to none in America from the royalties which will flow into its coffers in future years. W. T. Waggoner, holder of vast ranches and cattle on a thousand hills, before the coming of oil was made a croesus by the drill of Delaney who bored for water and hit the yellow sands.

Over Fifty Million

His holdings today have an estimated value of $50,000,000 and this is said to be conservative estimate. This is not all. Burk Burnett, with millions in land cattle, driven from the Big Pasture years before, found oil on his ranch lands and his millions were magnified by the discovery. Petroleum hunters brought in the famous gas belt of the west in Potter and adjoining counties. These gas fields of the Panhandle and the plains are the biggest in America, with a supply that will last for years for domestic and manufacturing purposes, when additional pipelines are built to meet the demand of the growing cities and towns of West Texas, as well as the large and smaller cities and towns of North and Central Texas.

Manufacturing is on its way in the West. There are hundreds of small beginnings and many large ones in these cities and towns of the new Eldorado. Conservation of this huge supply of natural gas led to the defeat of the carbon black raiders in two pitched battles under the big dome in the city of Austin. These raiders fought for legislation which would have destroyed this greatest asset of West Texas. They were defeated but they promised to come again two years hence.

Pipelines Tell Story

In the near future the pipe lines to be built will tell the story and solve the problem on the side of conservation and for the constructive program in a manufacturing sense of the men of vision who are doers of things in that vast expanse of country where the yellow sands flow under the surface of the earth and high pockets of natural gas are to be found.

Every year in west Texas the wild-catters are bringing in new fields. All this is interesting because the giants of the petroleum world are engaged in a titanic struggle today for the control of the petroleum supply of the entire world, with the Standard the absolute master in the United States and Mexico, since Edward L. Dohoney sold his Mexican property to the Rockefeller interests and retired to California to play the game under the sky of the Golden coast.

And only yesteryear wild me nand wild animals and wild Indians roamed the vast open spaces and when Burkburnett was a boy the Indians invaded his home in Denton county, killed several frontiermen and ran off herds of cattle and mustangs. It reads like a dream.

Irrigation

IRRIGATING AT NIGHT.

On many irrigation projects water is delivered under a system of rotation. Each farmer in turn has a certain amount of water for a definite length of time. He must be ready to take and use this water whenever his turn comes whether it is day or night.

Often when a farmer has his water all well regulated and running right he doe snot like to turn it off when night comes and so keeps right on irrigating.

These things have caused many farmers to learn to irrigate at night Night irrigation has some advantages as well as disadvantages when compared to day irrigation.

During the day time a farmer can see where the water is going and what results he is getting. He does not have to carry a lantern. Insect pests such as mosquitoes and gnats do not bother so much as at night.

Night irrigation means limited visiton, mosquitoes, bugs, sleepiness and low physical efficiency especially after midnight. On the other hand water runs better, goes further, and seems to do the plants more good when applied after nightfall.

After sundown there are no hot rays evaporating the water out of the furrows. The temperature is lower and as a consequence water travels faster in the rows and covers more ground.

A given area can be irrigated with a less quantity of water after night fall than during the day time.

Just why plants should grow better when irrigated at night we do not know. Shere are a number of explanations. In any event they certainly seem to do so and many farmers like to irrigate after dark on that account alone.

Vesuvius Wakes Up Again But Is Safe

NAPLES, April 26.—The activity of Vesuvius which after eight months of comparative rest, is in eruption again, continued to increase slightly today but conditions were regarded as so safe that 500 tourists one-third of them Americans, were permitted to ascend the volcano on the funicular railway which runs to the summit, and to go near the crater.

Professor Mallandra, the director of the Vesuvius observatory proved his assertion that the situation is not dangerous by descending himself into the crater to study the disturbance. He found that an eruptive cone of solidified lava contained within the crater had suddenly collapsed, leaving an open mouth four meters wide and 300 meters below the crater's rim. It is from this mouth that lava is issuing.

More Truth Than Poetry

INCURABLE

Each year I whip the mountain stream
Where ripples foam and dance and gleam,
Intent on pulling out
A fat and lusty trout.

With every spring I always try
A new and different form of fly,
And think, with inward cheer,
"I'll fool that fish this year!"

I plod for many weary miles,
I wade through, mud I climb o'er stiles,
Through swamps extremely lush,
And stinging underbrush.

For hours patiently I ply
My new and different form of fly,
Which always is a bait
That trout intensely hate.

No speckled beauty glads my eyes,
I never even get a rise,
But what I'm sure to get—
Is messy, cold, and wet.

And yet, now spring is here once more,
When robins twitter at the door,
And angle worms at dawn
Are wriggling on the lawn.

I'm going to go down town and buy,
A new and different form of fly—
Without the slightest doubt
That I shall catch that trout!

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

IN PICKING OUT A HUSBAND, GIRLS, CHOOSE THE MAN YOU LOVE RATHER THAN THE ONE WHO'S DEAD IN LOVE WITH YOU, FOR THE HAPPIEST WOMEN ARE THOSE WHO ARE CRAZY ABOUT THEIR HUSBANDS

A young woman wants to know whether it is better to marry the man she loevs, or the man who loves her.

Both, I should say. Marriage should be a mutual benefit association in which both parties give and receive; in which they love and are loved in equal measure. Cupid, however, is no dispenser of justice. He rarely holds the scales even. Very few husbands and wives feel the same amount of affection for each other. In almost every married couple one kisses and the other submits to being kissed, as the French proverb cynically puts it.

> This being the case, it is better for the woman to be the kisser, because, while it is a misfortune to a woman never to be loved, it is a tragedy to her never to love.

Of course, every woman desires to be worshiped by some man, and she dreams of having a husband who will be a perpetual lover and spend his life laying tributes at her feet. She feels that she would be perfectly happy doing the goddess-on-a-pedestal act, and accasionally deigning to bestow a kind word on her adorer, as one throws a bone to a dog.

Obsessed by this romantic vision, which flatters her vanity, many a woman is beguiled into marrying a man for whom she has only a mild liking because he is so crazy about her. She thinks that he can supply enough love for two, and that she will be happy and satisfied with just being loved.

> It does not take her long to find out that she has made a sad mistake, and that there is nothing with which we can get so easily fed up as we can with the affection we do not return. We have no appetite for it and it is tasteless in our mouths. Nor are there any greater bores than those who love us, who cling to us, who want to be always with us, but whom we do not love and of whom we get tired to death.

All of us know doormat husbands whose wives ruthlessly trample them under foot. We all know peevish, disgruntled, discontented wives, whose husbands slave to give them luxuries for which they never get so much as a "thank you." We have all held up our hands in horror when some wife left a good, devoted husband and eloped with anothr man or packed her trunk and hiked out for Hollywood, and we wondered what was the matter with these women that they were not satisfied with their husband's love

> The trouble with them was that they had married men who loved them instead of men they loved. If they had been doing the lovemaking and trying to hold the affections of husbands whom they suspected every flapper was trying to steal from them, they would have been too busy, too thrilled and interested to get into mischief.

There are many reasons why a woman who is contemplating matrimony should lay greater stress upon the state of her own affections than she does upon the man's. The principal one, of course, is because a woman is 10 times as much married ot her husband as he is to her, and therefore it is 10 times more important that she should be pleased with her bargain than it is that he should be satisfied with his.

A married man has a million interests, and distractions, and amusements and compensations outside of his home, and if his wife does not turn out to be all that his fondest fancy painted her he has his business to fall back upon, his ambition and his career to console him. He is never wholly dependent no his wife for his happiness.

> But a woman stakes her all on her matrimonial gamble, and if she does not love her husband, if she does not find happiness in her home, she has nothing. It is only love that can make marriage worthwhile to a wife; only love that can rob its sacrifices of their bitterness and make the dull daily round of domestic duties a thrilling edventure.

A woman should always marry a man with whom she is very much in love, because it insures her a stimulating and interesting life. The reason that most women run down and get slack and slouchy is because they are bored to tears with domesticity. They do not care for their husbands and so they take no trouble to please them.

> But the woman who is in love with her husband, who married the man she wanted, is on her tiptoes all of the time. She means to keep him and she takes no chances on disillusioning him with curl papers, and cold cream, and bad cooking, and tantrums. She is eternally in pursuit; and while there may be times when she gets tired and feels as if she wouldl ike to sit down and take things easy, still there is no denying that the love chase puts pep in any lady's day.

A woman should never marry any man except the one with whom she is very much in love, because every woman craves romance, and if she doesn't get it at home she is very apt to seek it abroad, or else she goes through life hungry, unsatisfied. The wives who get into scandals; who think they find soul mates in their preachers, or their doctors, or long-haired poets; the wives who run off after strange suits and who burden down the mails with letters to movie actors are all women who married men they didn't love.

> The women who are crazily in love with their husbands make their own angel's food at home and don't have to go around trying to pick up stray crumbs on the street.

So I say, girls, in picking out a husband, choose the man you love rather than the one who loves you. It is more thrilling to kiss than to be kissed.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

ROSILYN PAGE, patehetic wistful hard-worked daughter of a Long Island innkeeper, has burning aspirations for a fuller and more beautiful existence. Wealthy New Yorkers come yearly to her father's inn for the duck shooting, but she dislikes them all except one young society fellow.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, handsome and distinguished, well-used in the ways of the world, and at present in serious financial difficulties. For ten years he has come down at intervals to the Long Island inn to hunt, and has always been kind to the lonely, overworked young woman. He is in love with a beautiful society girl.

LYDIA HARBROOK, who values money far above love. Lydia, one night calls on Landis while he is staying at the inn, and swears she still loves him although she plans to marry

STEIVE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue.

Rosilyn who is tending her sick father, overhears the conversation between Landis and Lydia.

Rosilyn's father dies, and to everyone's amazement it is found that he has left the girl heiress to an enormous fortune. Landis prepares to leave as he does not want to be found dancing attendance on an heiress. He tells her of his departure.

CHAPTER VII.
Fortune' Turn

Sheer incredulity was followed by an almost stunned astonishment. For it transpired that old Bill Page, who had lived as frugally as any immigrant and never been known to give away a nickel or to help, a fellow-creature in distress, was rich—immensely, unbelievably rich!

"Everything the old boy touched turned to gold," announced the astounded Landis, going through gilt-edged securities, bonds, and endless papers. "He's played the market to good purpose. Just look at this—and this—and this!"

The local attorney sat with him at the open safe.

"Odd, isn't it?" went on the latter, with a short laugh. "Fate always favors those to whom her favors are no real good. And—conversely—look at me! I'm damned unlucky. When I sell short the stock goes up and up—and when I'm long, it tumbles."

"There is no will," said the attorney thoughtfully. "So everything goes to the daughter. The poor child has had a miserable life. This is her compensation."

Landis' jaw dropped.

"Jehosophat! And she's never been anywhere, or seen anything. She won't know what to do with it."

"Lots of people will be glad to help her," said the older man with a cynical smile. "Rich young women aren't friendless long."

"Damn that old miser! The girl's had no advantages. He worked her like a slave."

"And now the others will 'work' her—in a different sense. Heaven help the child!" The lawyer rose. "Where is she? We must tell her of her altered circumstances."

"I'll leave that to you." The young man strode out into the keen cold sunshine, feeling his mission at an end. It was one thing to befriend a tragically lonely and unhappy girl, but quite another matter to dance attendance on an heiress. Fortune had reversed the situation.

He would go up to town tonight. He was no longer needed.

When he returned, he packed his bags and went out to the garage for his car. He was tinkering with the engine when he heard a voice behind him:

"Mr. Ridgeway, I want to thank you for being so wonderfully kind—for helping me. I don't quite know what I'd have done without you."

He wheeled round, to see Rosilyn Page in the open doorway, her shabby black gown making her pale face seem even paler.

"Oh, it was nothing. I'm just off to New York."

Her big eyes widened reproachfully.

"Without even telling me? And—and you haven't asked about my plans—or anything!"

"This is the new Rosilyn talking," he thought grimly. "The old Rosilyn never would have ventured two such questions. Already she is emerging from her shell."

Aloud he said:

"I must congratulate you on your altered....." his mind groped for the adequate word — "circumstances." Then hurriedly and conscious of a blunder in taste: "Your father's death was of course a great shock." He could not truthfully say calamity! "But now—now you will be free to set forth on the Great Adventure, won't you? Only four days ago, when we had our talk down by the water, neither of us dreamt how soon—" He broke off awkwardly, seeing the girl's eyes full of tears.

"Perhaps it was a judgment on me—his death; I should not have talked the way I did," she said unevenly.

Landis made a little gesture of dissent.

"Don't let your conscience run away with you. You were the most dutiful daughter in the world. You can have no regrets on that score."

What a queer girl she was, to be so moved by the knowledge of her amazing inheritance! How different from every other woman he knew!

CHAPTER VIII.
An Amazing Offer

"What are your plans?" he asked, wanting to divert her mind from pinpricks. He moved over till he stood beside her in the doorway. Then he added, looking whimsically down on her! "Now that you're in a position to gratify every wish, where will you start?"

She flushed up. It was evident there was something that she wished to say, but lacked both words and courage.

"I—I've been thinking—ever since I heard about the money—"

"Yes?" (Poor child, she had so little savoir-faire!) "You've been thinking—"

"There's so much of it. I—I never could spend—even a quarter of it. And the talk we had the other day—" She broke off, biting her lip nervously.

He nodded encouragingly.

"You wanted to go out into the world and try your wings. That's the idea. It can easily be arranged."

The flush deepened.

"It wasn't what I meant. Don't you remember—you—said—about going off to one of the small European wars—?"

He wrinkled his forehead. What was she driving at?

"And your mother? You remember? Neither of you were happy—because of money—not having it, I mean—enough to be happy on—and you told me about a girl—" She was incoherent, her mind on the anguished scene she had witnessed between herself and Lydia Harbrook, although never would he know it. Real love meant self-immolation—and if she, humble Rosilyn Page, could only give this wonder-man the fulfillment of his heart's desire, would it not be the ultimate expression of her own love for him?

He stiffened.

"I really fail to understand your meaning." There was an underlying hauteur in the phrase which seemed to put her definitely at a distance. "My remarks the other day were no doubt indiscreet, but there are times when all of us talk too much. And now—" half turning to the bonnet of the car again—"I must finish this job and get off to town—"

"Mr. Ridgeway! Listen!" Impulsively she caught him by the arm. "I haven't the right words to say it in—I know you think I presume—but if only you'd let me repay your kindness, your sympathy, by helping to make things right for you, I'd be proud and honored. No, don't get angry! I—I don't want anything for myself. There's so much money I couldn't spend it all—if you'd take half—"

"Good God! Are you mad, child?" He stared at her, uncertain whether to be furious or amused or merely horrified. "What on earth are you suggesting?"

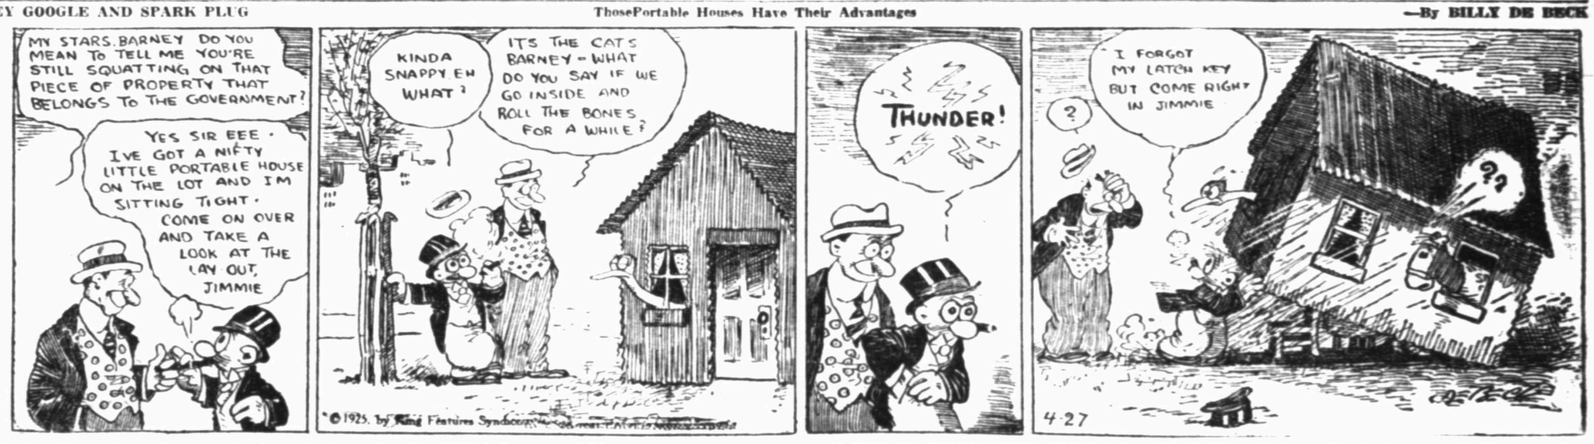

She bit her lip till it almost bled. "Just for you to be happy. Please, please let me. No one need know. Then you wouldn't need to sell your lovely yacht, or the house in the country, and your mother would go on having everything as she always has done—and you—and you—"

"Yes? What possible return could I give you?" He narrowed his lids, wondering amazedly what was back of this? Was the foolish child in love with him? He felt a cad and a puppy to harbor the thought for an instant, but—

3-Cornered Polar Air Race Promises End Greatest Geographical Mystery

Three expeditions are now preparing to explore the Arctic from the air. The photos shows some of the principals in the ventures, and the types of equipment they will use. In the map are seen the routes Amundsen and MacMillan will take; the course of Algarsson is uncertain. Amundsen jumps off from Tromso, Norway; MacMillan from Etah, Greenland.

Will America Win Race To Arctic Regions This Year Against Europeans

Three Nations Are In Long Race to the North Pole

AMERICA IS LAST

All Will Travel All Or Part Way in Special Airplanes

By JOHN T. LEWLING, JR.
Central Press Correspondent
Written Especially for The Record News

WASHINGTON, April 26. — Will the United States be beaten in the air race to the Arctic? It appears possible and even probable.

Three nations have entries in the race. Raold Amundsen, famous explorer, is already at the top of Norway, preparing to jump off for Spitzbergen, and then the pole.

Gettier Algarsson, Canadian, is in England, loading the British blimp with which he hopes to reach the pole.

Meanwhile Donald B. MacMillan and navy fliers are getting ready for their Arctic jaunt.

Algarsson will be in the north a month before MacMillan's party arrives from the United States, which he plans to leave in June.

Amundsen Backed in U. S.

This means that both Amundsen and Algarsson will have big leads on the Americans. However, the MacMillan expedition isn't actually seeking to reach the pole.

Between the northern coasts of Alaska and the pole there lies an area of more than a million square miles on which no human being has ever cast an eye. Does it contain an island continent about which the world hitherto has known nothing? This is what the MacMillan party wants to find out.

Amundsen goes north under the auspices of the Norwegian Aero club. The expedition was financed by $100,000 from James W. Ellsworth of Manhattan and has with it two Durnier-Wahl seaplanes built in Germany. His chief pilot is Riiser-Larsen, a fellow countryman.

When he stated his plans, Amundsen announced that he would spend some 24 hours examining the pole and its vicinity. He thought it might be possible to establish a fuel and food base at the pole for further aerial exploration. From Kings Bay to the pole is only a seven-hour flight. From the pole south to Wrangel Island and Bering Strait is about 1,500 miles.

It seems not unlikely, therefore, that Amundsen, too, may search for the island continent; may set foot thereon, if such a land exists, and claim it for Norway.

Success Depends on Planes

Algarsson also expects to make observations around the pole, and he, too, may search for the undiscovered land.

MacMillan is making his venture under the auspices of the National Geographic society, with the United States navy co-operating unofficially. In addition to MacMillan, the navy contingent and the ship's crew, there will be about a dozen persons in the party. Among these will be John M. Jaynes, who has been with the explorer on several expeditions as chief machinist. He is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. E. F. McDonald of Chicago, president of the Radio Broadcasters' league, will have charge of radio facilities. The flight commander is Lieutenant Commander R. E. Byrd. Pilots chosen for the expedition's planes are Lieut. M. A. Schur and Chief Boatswain Earl E. Reber.

On the planes these two men will pilot, known in both Uncle Sam's flying services as Loening Amphibians, hangs the success or failure of this new venture in polar exploration.

In Washington this winter the ship demonstrated its ability to land in the water, put down its electrically operated retractable wheels and taxi up the sloping banks of the Potomac to its hangar—"just like a duck coming home to roost," as one pilot put it. In the Arctic the planes will have skis instead of wheels.

At McCook Field the "Amphib" attained a high speed of 122 miles an hour and a ceiling of 14,000 feet. Equipped for the Arctic trip it will carry 250 gallons of gas and have a range of 1,000 miles with a crew of two and their provisions and equipment. Empty, the plane weighs 3,300 pounds.

Shackleton's Commander Aids

No Arctic explorer has ever studied all conditions above the surface in these regions. It is believed that the temperature at points high above the surface is warmer than on the ice-bound land and water, and if this be true flying will be much more comfortable than traveling in the old way.

Algarsson is going to get as near as possible to the pole in the ship "Ice land," commanded by Frank Worsley, who commanded Shackelton's ships, "Quest" and "Endurance."

Commander Worsley thinks he can nose the Iceland north to within 600 miles of the pole. Her deck is prepared to carry the airship. When the polar ice halts further progress, the blimp will be inflated for her dash north. There will be food for 30 days for her crew of four, a light sledge and other equipment against the emergency of having to hike back.

Algarsson's blimp has a cruising speed of 50 miles an hour. He expects to reach his goal in 12 hours, less if winds are favorable.

Amundsen's planes, which are of the same type as the ill-fated ship in which Lieut. Antonio Locatelli attempted a trans-Atlantic flight last year in preparation for a polar expedition, are much faster. Each has sufficient cruising range to make the trips planned and carry on considerable aerial exploration of the polar basin if no mishap befalls them.

But science probably will profit most from the MacMillan expedition. For the party expects to accomplish within a few weeks numerous difficult explorations, in addition to the one in the vast no man's area of the Arctic ocean.

What They Seek

They propose to reach the topmost points of the Greenland ice cap—a venture practically impossible by the overland method of travel. They will hunt, both in Greenland and Labrador, for traces of the Norsemen who were the first white men to visit these regions.

Several scientific studies not hitherto feasible, with bearings on climate, radio, terrestrial magnetism and aeronautics, will be made. If the airplane venture succeeds, large areas of Arctic territory now known only in general outline will be mapped in topographical detail with special instruments carried by the fliers. Pictures, still and moving, will be made of many scenes that have not yet known a camera.

Nothing of the sort has been attempted before. If the effort yields no other result, it should provide much new and valuable information about the worthiness of airplanes under these conditions.

Through A Woman's Eyes

The Message of Spring.

Of all the seasons of the passing year spring plows deepest into the human soul.

We have just celebrated Easter, whose very name is derived from a goddess who was the personification of spring, of the rising sun, of things new and fresh and charged with gladness and hope.

Easter commemorates the resurrection—and the return of spring, with all its triumphant significance that eternally beckons forward the human race.

Spring is the time when the frosts and the storms of winter have spent their power, when mother nature at last has succeeded in bursting through her suffocating fetters, when her vast creative energy starts once more to function and provide.

Then the life of flowers is driven back into the roots; trees revitalized, lift up their greening boughs; blossoms, reborn, commence again to bud; birds sing; field and meadow, forest and farm, everywhere proclaim to the world that tempests and setbacks and hardships and failures are simply fertilizers for growth; that the thing to do is to stop grieving over misery and misfortune and to continue searching, probing, groping and striving; that the outlook is never so black as it seems; and that though all about is night there is always light—ahead.

Easter is the spirit of spring. And spring is nature's attempt to make us understand that we can begin again. It is not only a season for commemoration and rejoicing, it is God's message of cheer and inspiration. It is His voice whispering to us that now is always the right moment to set forth anew; that it is never too late to try again; that with the spirit of spring in our hearts there is always a fighting chance and no ambition is in vain.

At a recent meeting of the city fire department the following were elected delegates to the annual convention which meets in Cisco, May 12 to 14: Dewey Howel, Clayton Thomas and Gus Volos. Fire Chief J. D. Key and Marshal Jim Bomar are delegates at large. Fire Marshal Bomar is on the program to make a talk on Fire Prevention Week.

ROAD COMMISH TO MEET

New Highway Engineer to Be Elected At Meeting

AUSTIN, April 26.—The state highway commission will meet here Monday when a highway engineer is to be selected and action taken on numerous applications for aid and new highway designations which were filed early this month. The meeting will be the first of the semi-monthly sessions decided upon at Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's suggestion.

OSTEOPATH FUND RAISED

Will Be Used to Establish Galveston Hospital Rights.

SAN ANTONIO, April 26.—A fund of nearly $1,000 to assist osteopaths of Galveston to establish their legal rights of entrance to a hospital there was raised today by contributions from osteopaths attending the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Texas Osteopathic association. The two day session was brought to a close this afternoon.

Papeds on treatment and diagnosis were given by several eminent osteopaths as part of the program. Dr. J. N. Waggoner, chief lecturer in surgery at the Kirksville osteopathic college, Kirksville, Mo., was the principal speaker.

Men Follow Women; Gay Styles Here

Clothiers in Dallas Meet Say It Is the Ladies Who Set Fashions

DALLAS, April 26.—Men's styles the coming fall and winter are to follow the fashions set by women in color and gayety. This is not an edict from any arbiter of fashion or sartorial czar. It is the observation of officials of the Texas Retail Clothiers and Furnishers and the Men's Apparel club of Texas gathering here for the annual joint convention of the two organizations April 27-29.

In fact when it comes to any czar to set styles, the American man imagines that he has none, that he is as free in this as he is in the selection of his smoking tobacco. But the men who sell the clothes assert there is a ruler in men's fashions from whom, struggle as he may, man can not escape. It is the women, declare the clothiers, and they advance the delcaration as further evidence of the ever tightening chain of thraldom which the more subtle sex is weaving for the male species.

At any rate men are emerging, have emerged and will continue to emerge from the more sober background in which they have habitually moved. They are coming out into the fine feathers and gay colors that hitherto have been the adornment solely of the female.

Red Socks and Ties.

To tell the brutal truth, men are taking to red socks and red neckties. The movement has reached amazing proportions. It has struck so suddenly and with such force that—this is a trade secret—some retailers are taking down their old white socks and having them dyed red to meet the demand.

M. M. Greebaum of Dallas, secretary-treasurer of the Men's Apparel club of Texas, and something of a connoisseur in styles himself, is sponsor for the style thoughts herein advanced. It is his solemn pronouncement and prediction that man, the plain, drab being who hitherto has moved so modestly and cautiously about on this planet, rapidly is coming to be the bird of fine feathers. The trousered being heretofore has been credited with much strutting and cock of the walk business, but never has he, like other male birds, been able to claim supremacy in the brilliancy of plumage and brightness of dress. But now, it is asserted, he is coming to demand leadership in a field previously belonging to his dressier companion.

The colors, therefore, it is predicted, are to be checks and plaids, grays, with great splotches of red, brilliant shirts, fancy hat bands, and no telling what in socks. And the cause of it is woman herself. She is demanding that her man be "dressed up." The "pride in appearance," the "success in clothes" slogans have had their effect. Women want their men to be successful. They know clothes don't make the man, but they believe clothes make the man appear successful, according to the explanation advanced by the clothiers.

And as woman has grown more colorful in her clothes as the country has emerged from the aftermath of the war, so man, with a strange docilite in these latter days, has followed after her.

It is pointed out that women have their finger in 75 per cent of the men's buying. She is there when he goes to buy his suit. She selects his ties and shirts, buys his socks and dictates the style and color of his hat. If he can't pick styles and colors for himself, she can and does.

The large trousers known as the bell bottom style, effected greatly by college boys, are to pass into history by next fall, or at least be well on the way to the museums, the clothiers predict. And while they are on the subject of college boys, they take occasion to swat a well-established theory. College students don't originate the styles, as many persons believe, said Mr. Greenbaum. They are the world's greatest imitators and the world's greatest exaggerators of style, he avers, but they don't create styles. They set the pace for many, they reach far out in front, and the older men attempt to follow them so that the usual prevailing style among business is a modification of the college styles. The boys in college went for the 21-inch bottoms like a duck for water, but the older men made their stand at 19 1-2 inches and would not budge a fraction of an inch further.

This subject suggested how fashions often are set by the merest whims or accidents—men's fashions at that. A certain popular movie star appears in a Spanish character wearing large bottom, gusseted trousers and quick as a flash it becomes the fad among the "jelly bean" of the day, who go to the original many inches better.

And here is another one which Mr. Greenbaum relates in reference to a certain hat style. The Prince of Wales, a rather well known young man from England, visits America. He attends a polo game. It starts to rain. The prince turns down the brim of his hat so the rain will run off. Someone catches a picture of him with the hat brim just that way. Instantly the "Prince of Wales" hat appears, a rather slouchy, turned down affair.

Fickle fashion so often derided by men as preeminently a female institution was never "fickler" than when disporting with male styles, the clothiers and furnishers reveal. But there is one consolation for the changing world and that is that a fad, or a style for that matter, lasts only one season, so that a bad one can't do much damage.

Prices of men's clothes will be higher next fall because of a rise in wool prices, the clothiers state, and because women are wearing so much fur, there is a scarcity, especially in the cheaper, imitation grades, causing men's felt hats to be higher. The lower classes of fur are used in the manufacture of felt hats. They are to range from $5 to $12 and it will take about $10 to get a good one, it is said.

Dallas is full of samples, practically every sample room in the city having been taken by the manufacturers from the North and East. The very latest in men's styles is here for the delegates to inspect.

The second day of the convention will be "Young Men's Day." J. J. Taylor of the Dallas News will speak on "Dress Well and Succeed." There will be addresses and talks by Carl O. Lehman, past president of the National Association of Men's Apparel clubs; Charles Rankein, Plainview; Max Stehling, Fredericksburg; Lawrence Kahn, Dallas; J. M. Dyer, Corsicana; G. C. Kirk, Brady; Harry Swartz, Hempstead; F. I. Moore, Wharton; Eugene Leopold, Wichita Falls; Leopold Schornstein, Galveston. The convention will be welcomed by F. F. Florence, vice-president Republic National bank, Dallas, President L. R. Loring of Corpus Christi, of the clothiers will respond. Store management, house to house canvassing and advertising will be among the subjects for discussion.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED.

VERNON, April 26.—A Ford car belonging to Wallace Baird, which was stolen Thursday afternoon from in front o fthe Art Shop on South Main, was found abandoned this morning in the oil town, Whizbang. The car was out of gas and parked behind a dance hall. A citizen of that place noticed an account of the car being stolen in yesterday's paper and telephoned Mr. Baird.

Judge Kay Tells Sunday Class Of Stephen's Life

Speaker Calls Bibical Character One Of Great Heroes

"Stephen" was Judge Kay's subject in his talk at the Strand yesterday morning. Four hundred and three present to hear the interesting absorbing discussion of the New Testament martyr's life. The lecture follows in full:

"The lesson is about one of the great heroes of the church, and it is about a fight that has been going on since man first appeared upon the earth, and must last for always. It is the fight between the old and the new; between what is called the radical, and the conservative.

"Now, a man's views are generally made up as to whether he likes the old things or the new things; whether he likes what he is, or what he ought to be. I say, his views are made up largely on the way he is getting along. To the fellow who is thriving, prosperous, this is a mighty good world. Our system of laws is mighty good; our way of doing things are very good methods. We mustn't change it. All of the conservative doctrines has its saying in the one proverb: 'Let well enough alone.'

A Religion of Ceremony.

"The Jews had a church in Rome, and throughout their country. It was a religion of ceremony. They had a high priest with a breastplate; they had an altar upon which to sacrifice animals, and, once a year, the high priest went into the holy of holies to pronounce a word which was lost; and, altogether, it was a religion of ceremony. Is a church likely to become ceremonious? Has everything in the church got to be done just right? You know, there are a lot of people suffer that way. There are a lot of people suffer about etiquette. Some of our lady friends would be aggrieved beyond measure if some little rule of polite society should fail to be faithfully kept; and, many a church has got to have things done just according to the ancient formula. Now, there is a reason for that.

"There is a reason for the change in the ladies' hats, and that reason consists in the fact that somebody is making some money out of the new styles of everything. But, there are more people making money out of the old style, than out of the new, and it is money that lasts longer, and wears better.

Might Lose Jobs.

"So, when this man Stephen came preaching a new gospel, preaching in a new age, and, for the first time, that religion was personal, these priests saw that if their old system was wiped away by a new system, that their jobs would be gone. Now, there are mighty few of us that are so patriotic, or so religious, that we would clap hands at the advent of a new system that would wipe out our bread and butter. These priests, and high priests, were simply human, like the men of Wichita Falls and, they said, 'We have got to do away and we must do away with a man who is preaching a system here that will stop the sacrifice of doves, that will stop the sacrifice of goats and of lambs, that will stop the income of the priesthood; a new system that teaches that man can go directly to his Maker with his petition, and not come through the priesthood. We must stop that, or it will stop us.' But, they couldn't go to war with Stephen, directly, about a thing like that, so, they went out and got some false witnesses. Do you know what that is? That is a fellow who is willing to tell a lie in a controversy. They are mentioned often in the Bible.

"Over in India, throughout all that great peninsula that juts out into the Indian ocean, when you have got a lawsuit in any of the temples, there sit forever on the door steps of the temple, witnesses who are ready and prepared to swear to anything in the world. All they want is the direction, and the distance, and they are ready to go. It is not peculiar to Asia. How many men will, with a little discolor, and a little distort, and a little changed testimony about a thing that men get wrought up about, like men get wrought up about religious questions.

False Witnesses.

"So, they went out and got some false witnesses, and charged Stephen with blasphemy. That is an old common law crime in India. It used to be a law in this country in colonial days. They charged him with blasphemy. They didn't have any trial. It was enough then, to just bring the charge against him. So, they took him outside the city to kill him by a mob and they killed him with rocks. I can imagine one of these old fellows that had convictions of his good doctrine, a fellow who believed in his doctrines more than he believed in God, selecting a particularly sharp-edged limestone rock, which are plentiful about Jerusalem, as he goes out to strike this apostle of a new freedom, and a new religion—and, they killed him—and, the greatest of all men was standing there, and held some of their clothes—and that was Saul.

"New, about some of these new things: The human mind, the human intellect, refuses to be shackled. There is no way to stop the human brain from going on upward to higher things. There is no way to stop the human soul in its aspirations for a better life here, and hereafter. There is no way, I say, to stop it. So, there is no way to stop a religion that has taught men the love of God, and that a man could go to his God without the intervention of a priest, and that is the fundamental thing in the Christian religion.

Stephen a Martyr.

"Stephen died as a martyr. He died for a great cause. You are not called upon to do that in this age, and in this generation, but you are called upon to do something equally important. You are called to live for it. I wonder how many consecrated men we have in our audience this morning. I wonder how many men we have here who are—not dying like Stephen—living as a strong, true, consecrated, brave Christian. For a man to do that, is some of the finest fruit that can be gathered in this life. For a man to do less than that, is to fail of his great opportunity. Let me commend to you, then, that if you cannot be called upon to suffer as a martyr, that you live as a strong, true, brave man."

Prima Donna of Rodeo Game At Iowa Park To Enter Triangle Events

Ruth Roach on her beautiful steed "Chief" and as she might appear in an ultra fashionable ballroom.

Ruth, prima donna of the rodeo game has arrived in Iowa Park to enter the cowgirls' bronc riding and trick riding contests of Tom L. Burnett's Triangle Ranch Rodeo on Burnett ranch, April 30, May 1, 2 and 3. While Ruth will openly assert she is good as the best of the cowgirl bronc riders and has the medal and trophies showing that she has led the group to the capital prize on several occasions yet she does not claim to be the best in trick riding. She is clever enough at pulling daring stunts on horse back.

Once a Thief; She Now Is Head Of A Western Hospital

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—In her work as head of a new maternity hospital in Los Angeles, Mrs. Etta M. Heil is regaining her good name she lost when it was discovered she was the woman Raffles who robbed scores of homes in Chicago and this city.

The demure, refined and cultured little woman who was declared incompetent to handle her own affairs in a Los Angeles court on June 22, 1922, and who was paroled the following day by the lunacy commission to a psychopathic court officer, after which she supposedly went into seclusion in a sanitarium, today is the head of Sylvan Lodge, Los Angeles' new maternity hospital, that represents an investment of approximately $250,000.

In Chicago she had a fine home. Six servants responded to her call; two motor cars carried her to social engagements, dinners and club affairs in which she was active.

Unsatisfied craving for excitement, Mrs. Heil declared, caused her to become one of the craftiest and most successful amateur burglars ever encountered by the Chicago police.

She was able to hoodwink her family and associates as she plied her burglar trade in the homes of rich Chicagoans. Her husband held no suspicion that she was other than a charming society matron, an intelligent and delightful companion and a perfect mother to his two adopted children. Nevertheless he gallantly came to her aid when her Jekyll Hyde role was discovered, and remained at her side.

INDIANA EARTH SHAKES.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 26.—An earth tremor, lasting approximately thirty seconds was felt here at 10:05 tonight.

Austin Prepares For National Meet Of P.-T. A. Convention

AUSTIN, Texas, April 25.—A "Texas welcome" extended in a friendly way awaits delegates attending the 29th annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, as a body, but the first under this name, to be held here April 27 to May 2, both inclusive. The association, formerly known as the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations changed its name and by-laws last year so as to permit men into its membership.

The local committee, including 18 members, each in charge of a particular task to make the visit of the delegates more pleasant, has tried to so arrange the entertainment that the convention will be "distinctly Texas."

The principal events are stunts by the cowboy club of the University of Texas; reception at the governor's mansion by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson; May day exercises at the University of Texas stadium; tree planting exercises, and closing with a "Texas special" chicken barbecue followed by a camp fire pageant and play program.

Another feature of interest are the exhibits by the prominent child welfare associations of the nation, exhibits by several departments of the United States government and Texas state department, children's organizations, and by divisions of the congress itself.

The convention theme is "Home and School in Education" and the addresses will support this topic.

Monday will feature on institute for visitors and delegates; on Tuesday and Wednesday the congress departments will hold conferences. Thursday will be devoted to open sessions and round table discussions with addresses by prominent men and women; Friday is conference day on work of the association, while Saturday will be devoted to meetings of the board of managers exclusively. Officers are not elected at this session of the congress.

Among the speakers scheduled are: Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, paresident of the University of Texas; Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, chairman illiteracy commission of the world federation of education associations; Dr. Henry Newman; Dr. Helen T. Wooley, Detroit; Willis A. Sutton, president Georgia Education association, and others.

SOFIA REVOLT CLEARED UP

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 26.—An official communication issued today says that investigations have been rewarded by the discovery of many important facts which throw light on the "widespread communist conspiracy" in Bulgaria.

The police also have been able to establish the exact method by which the conspirators are financed from Moscow and Vienna.

DR. C. D. JUDD WILL ADDRESS VERNON GRADS

VERNON, April 26.—Dr. C. D. Judd, member of the State Teachers college at Denton, will deliver the commencement address to the graduating class of the Vernon high school, Friday, May 15, according to announcement of W. T. Lofland, superintendent of schools. Dr. E. L. Moore, pastor of the Federated Presbyterian church of Vernon will preach the baccalaureate sermon Sunday, May 17.

Sub Rosa—Mimi

DO YOU BOSS HIM—OR MANAGE HIM?

Who is it bosses the big strong he man so that he's the most hen-pecked acutely miserable person on the face of the earth?

Why, the fretful, tearful, fluffy little thing who had just emerged from a first class fudge-making finishing school when she took the Great Matrimonial venture.

She's the girl who knows how to make her man—whether he's sweetheart or husband—toe the chalk-line, and be thoroughly unhappy in doing it.

She insists on his remembering theatre tickets and flowers, and anniversaries of the first day they met—and if he doesn't remember them, she makes a scene, and everyone enjoys a horrible time of it.

On the other hand, who MANAGES the capable male so that he's the most well-trained and perfectly contented being in the world?

Ah, that's a different type of girl, entirely—the first class manager.

Perhaps it's because she's been in business herself—perhaps because she's had to help out in the home and become used to managing the children—anyway she's right there with the sure capable touch that makes her a chum and a confidante and a sweetheart all at the same time.

The bossy type of girl whines and frets and complains when things don't go her way.

The boys come to dread displeasing her because she kicks up such a scene about it.

And gradually they drift away because they're so eternally tired of being called down for their occasional negligences.

The manager girl doesn't complain or whine, even if the special boy she's fond of arrives at least three-quarters of an hour late one evening when he's going to take her to a dance.

She may realize that it's going to ruin her whole evening getting to the dance so late that the other boys won't have waited to get dances with her—but still she grins and bears it.

Only the next time the tardy one invites her to a really Big Event, she reminds him breezily: "Better start at least two hours earlier this time. Remember you nearly quieered the whole evening the last time we stepped forth. And I'm anxious to get to this dance early. You will try, won't you, to get here exactly on time?" And the chances are a hundred to one he'll appear bright and early, because of this tactful reminder.

Whereas if the manager had been simply a boss, and made a dreadful scene over his late appearance, the boy would have slunk away vowing never to darken that particular lady's doorway again.

'Tis far, far better to be a tactful, patient, sympathizing manager than to be a nagging, impatient, fretful boss.

Rev. Cook Claims Man Is a Perso In Eyes of God

Each One Is Responsible For His Actions Alone

"God thinks of you as an individual," declared Rev. W. D. Cook, pastor of the First Evangelical church at his Sunday morning service yesterday. "Not en masse, but of each man as an entirety in himself, personally responsible for his deeds and misdeeds. Each man must believe for himself, repent for himself, pray for himself. Our sins are personal sins and are to be confessed as such before God. Our blessings are personal blessings and call for personal expressions of gratification before God."

Discussed Prayer.

Reverend Cook's sermon was intended as a discussion of the beauties and benefits of prayer. A ceremony for the personal private prayer of the supplicant is suggested by the preacher, "Have a place," He says, "make it private; secure yourself from intrusion; shut the door."

"Have a time," the instructions follow, with the suggestion that a set time for prayer would create the habit and make the duty easier, almost insuring against neglect.

"Have a posture," and the preacher suggests that kneeling is indicative of a proper reverence of thought. "Have words, make your prayers audible, and guard against the reverie which so often passes for private prayer. Use the spoken words and keep alert and awake during the prayer period."

"Have wants. Bring real petitions. Ask for things to meet your daily needs. Do not be hypocritical. No not tell God falsehoods, do not say the things you really do not feel.

"As no blessings or gifts, you do not need to make you a better servant of your Master. Do not express gratitude for any of the blessings you are not really thankful for. Let all your words of adoration, confidence, love and petition be absolutely sincere and true. Your converse with God should be as free as friends with friend.

Never Hurry Duty.

"Let the duty never be hurried over or done as a task. Claim the promises of God; ask in the name of Christ, be faithful, sincere and devout, and God will manifest his favors in an untold number of ways. "He will reward you openly."

"Are you neglecting this duty? Duty it is, yet it is a great privilege. Resolve to value it more. Do not forget that it brings its blessings. 'My Father will reward you openly.' More things are wrought by prayer than this world ever dreams of. May God bless each of us here today and we each determine that we will return to the old way of our fathers and live to please our blessed Master the remainder of our days."

Land Grants Make Illinois Schools Rich

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 26.—District school houses in West township, McLean county, Ill., are the wealthiest of any of a similar type in the United States.

So far as known, this township is the only one in the United States which held on to the land grant which was given to each school district by the government nearly a century ago. Virtually all sold their section for a few dollars an acre and soon dissipated the money. But thanks to the foresightedness of a pioneer settler, Henry West, this particular township's allotment of land, amounting to 720 acres, was kept. It is now valued at $216,000, and the income enables the township to operate the schools without levying any taxes, the only instance in the United States of one-room districts being so favored.

Rum Runners Send Out False S. O. S.'s

GALVESTON, April 26.—Lieutenant Commander J. E. Whitebeck of the coast guard cutter Comanche laid all rumors at rest this morning when the Comanche slid into her berth at pier 14. "There was nothing to those S. O. S. calls: we did not have a bit of trouble," he declared, then with a smile he added, "it was the rum runners trying to discover our position by sending out false calls, with our code letters. We heard the signals but did not issue denials stating our position as they expected."

The Comanche sighted three or four rum running schooners, but they were from 20 to 25 miles from shore, and out of reach of the long arm of the law.

WACO WOMAN INJURED.

Car Accident Likely to Prove Fatal To Old Lady.

WACO, April 26.—Mrs. W. L. Warrick, 65, in near death here as the result of being struck by an automobile Saturday night. Her shoulder was broken and it is feared her skull was fractured.

Young People Plan Church Activities

Tentative plans were laid and committees appointed to prepare for a week of young people's activities to be held May 24th to 30th inclusive, by the Young People's council of the First Methodist church which met Sunday afternoon with R. W. Porter, educational director of the church, presiding.

Committees on programs, publicity, etc., were appointed and will report at a call meeting of the council to be held within the next two weeks.

According to the plans, the Methodist young people anticipate a complete week of activities for young people dealing with matters of inspiravalue to young people. Speakers, plays, a young people's devotional service, a field day and outings are among the events contempiated.

Mr. Porter outlined the course of study in the Standard Training school for the Methodist churches of the district to be held at the Floral Heights Methodist church, week beginning May the 3rd and urged the young people to co-operate in making this annual school one of the best ever held here.

A pageant "Life's Golden Time," in three scenes will be presented at the First Methodist church next Sunday night and includes 25 Methodist young people in the cast, given in three scenes.

ESCALATOR CLASS ELECTS.

Miss Lucile Doke Named President of Methodist Class.

Miss Lucile Doke was unanimously elected president of the Escalator class of the First Methodist church at the regular meeting of the class Sunday morning. Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, W. R. McClure, and Gerrard Boone, secretary-treasurer E. R. Hyfill, and publicity director, A. A. Oxford.

Retiring president, T. H. Myers was given a rising vote of thanks for his efficient service during his term of office. Miss Doke becomes president following a year of capable service as first vice president, in charge of social activities.

The Escalators are a class composed of 150 young men and young ladies of the church and is taught by Mrs. Guy Rogers. This is one of the largest young people's classes in the city.

Vernon Names 1926 Faculty for Schools

Ford Prepares For Fight Upon British Rubber Competition

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 26.—On the broad acres of Bryan county, Georgia, Henry Ford is firing the first guns in his battle to end British rubber control.

His experts are preparing to experiment with the production of native para, or commercial rubber, on the 9,000-acre plantation he recently acquired along the Ogeechee river.

American rubber concerns, notably the United States Rubber company, are endeavoring to break the British monopoly of para production through purchase of rubber acreage in the Orient, but this is the first attempt to make the United States a rubber-growing country.

Para comes entirely from the tropics, South America, India and Africa, and it cannot be predicted with any degree of certainty what success Ford will meet with in producing native para. Agricultural experts say that he may have to produce an entirely new species of rubber-yielding plant, of which there are a number of varieties.

The Ford experiments are aimed at a new source of para, or the acclimatising of a new type of rubber plant to our cooler temperature.

The Ford plantation, for which he paid $150,000, will also be used to produce flax as a substitute for the more expensive cotton in the upholstering of Ford automobiles. He is now negotiating for other properties.

British control of raw rubber has long been a source of worry to the American rubber industry, in view of the policy of the British government in purposely keeping up the prices. It has been indicated lately that the British government intends to send the price even higher. An increase of only a few cents a pound will cost American motorists many millions of dollars annually.

Clues Are Obtained In Texas on Death Of McClintock Heir

GALVESTON, April 26.—There is little likelihood that a charge against William D. Shepherd will be filed in Texas in connection with the death of Mrs. McClintock, declared John S. Barbaro, assistant state's attorney of Chicago, here this afternoon after interrogating former neighbors at Bayview in Galveston county of the McClintocks and the Shepherds.

"The only thing they told us," he declared, summing up the day's interviews, "was that Shepherd seemed to regard Billy McClintock with indifference; like he was in the way, they said. Mr. Larrabee, former postmaster there, and another both expressed this interpretation of his actions with respect to Mrs. McClintock's son. I did not think their statements were worth very much in our case, not even taking their names. But the newspapermen took them."

Although returning to Houston tonight, Mr. Barbaro will make inquiry here as to whether any previous will was filed by Mrs. McClintock in Galveston county. There were no leads to indicate the filing of such a will, he said, but he will look into the matter as a precautionary measure.

Mr. Barbaro indicated he would wind up his investigations in this section by calling on the district attorneys here and Houston and also interviewing Derrick, Houston contractor, at whose home Mrs. McClintock stayed while her home at Bayview was being built. He said he hoped to conclude his investigation in the Texas gulf coast in order to be back in Chicago May 1, or not later than May 3.

"The Shepherd case will come up tomorrow before Judge Lynch for setting," Mr. Barbaro stated, "and we expect that it will be docketed for within a month. It will take us at least 30 days to get a jury, we believe, and there will possibly be a change of venue from Cook county asked by the defense. Recent statements from the defense, howevr, indicated they would be ready to go to trial within a month."

Robert Cowart, fig farmer near Kemah, told the Chicago prosecutor and newspaper men that he had heard William Shepherd asked by his brother, Arthur Shepherd, why he was taking "all that" trouble in connection with the McClintock home building.

"Don't worry," Cowart told them he heard William Shepherd retort, "Will will get his out of it."

This statement corroborates one made at the coroner's inquest in Chicago by Jerome Matillo, then working on the McClintock house, according to the prosecutor.

Judge Kay Tells Sunday Class Of Stephen's Life

Speaker Calls Bibical Character One Of Great Heroes

"Stephen" was Judge Kay's subject in his talk at the Strand yesterday morning. Four hundred and three present to hear the interesting absorbing discussion of the New Testament martyr's life. The lecture follows in full:

"The lesson is about one of the great heroes of the church, and it is about a fight that has been going on since man first appeared upon the earth, and must last for always. It is the fight between the old and the new; between what is called the radical, and the conservative.

"Now, a man's views are generally made up as to whether he likes the old things or the new things; whether he likes what he is, or what he ought to be. I say, his views are made up largely on the way he is getting along. To the fellow who is thriving, prosperous, this is a mighty good world. Our system of laws is mighty good; our way of doing things are very good methods. We mustn't change it. All of the conservative doctrines has its saying in the one proverb, 'Let well enough alone.'

A Religion of Ceremony.

"The Jews had a church in Rome, and throughout their country. It was a religion of ceremony. They had a high priest with a breastplate; they had an altar upon which to sacrifice animals, and, once a year, the high priest went into the holy of holies to pronounce a word which was lost; and, altogether, it was a religion of ceremony. Is a church likely to become ceremonious? Has everything in the church got to be done just right? You know, there are a lot of people suffer that way. There are a lot of people suffer about etiquette. Some of our lady friends would be aggrieved beyond measure if some little rule of polite society should fail to be faithfully kept; and, many a church has got to have things done just according to the ancient formula. Now, there is a reason for that.

"There is a reason for the change in the ladies' hats and that reason consists in the fact that somebody is making some money out of the new styles of everything. But, there are more people making money out of the old style, than out of the new, and it is money that lasts longer, and wears better.

Might Lose Jobs.

"So, when this man Stephen came preaching a new gospel, preaching in a new age, and, for the first time, that religion was personal, these priests saw that if their old system was wiped away by a new system, that their jobs would be gone. Now, there are mighty few of us that are so patriotic, or so religious, that we would clap hands at the advent of a new system that would wipe out our bread and butter. These priests, and high priests, were simply human, like the men of Wichita Falls and, they said, 'We have got to do away and we must do away with a man who is preaching a system here that will stop the sacrifice of doves, that will stop the sacrifice of goats and of lambs, that will stop the income of the priesthood; a new system that teaches that man can go directly to his Maker with his petition, and not come through the priesthood. We must stop that, or it will stop us.' But, they couldn't go to war with Stephen, directly, about a thing like that, so, they went out and got some false witnesses. Do you know what that is? That is a fellow who is willing to tell a lie in a controversy. They are mentioned often in the Bible.

"Over in India, throughout all that great peninsula that juts out into the Indian ocean, when you have got a lawsuit in any of the temples, there sit forever on the door steps of the temple, witnesses who are ready and prepared to swear to anything in the world. All they want is the direction and the distance, and they are ready to go. It is not peculiar to Asia. How many men will, with a little discolor, and a little distort, and a little changed testimony about a thing that men get wrought up about. Like men get wrought up about religious questions.

False Witnesses.

"So, they went out and got some false witnesses, and charged Stephen with blasphemy. That is an old common law crime in India. It used to be a law in this country in colonial days. They charged Lincoln with blasphemy. They didn't have any trial. It was enough then, to just bring the charge against him. So, they took him outside the city to kill him by a mob and they killed him with rocks. I can imagine one of these old fellows that had convictions of his good doctrine, a fellow who believed in his doctrines more than he believed in God, selecting a particulary sharp-edged limestone rock, which are plentiful about Jerusalem, as he goes out to strike this apostle of a new freedom, and a new religion—and, they killed him—and, the greatest of all men was standing there, and held some of their clothes—and that was Saul.

"Now, about some of these new things: The human mind, the human intellect, refuses to be shackled. There is no way to stop the human brain from going on upward to higher things. There is no way to stop the human soul in its aspirations for a better life here, and hereafter. There is no way, I say, to stop it. So, there is no way to stop a religion that has taught men the love of God, and that a man could go to his God without the intervention of a priest, and that is the fundamental thing in the Christian religion.

Stephen a Martyr.

"Stephen died as a martyr. He died for a great cause. You are not called upon to do that in this age, and in this generation, but you are called upon to do something equally important. You are called to live for it. I wonder how many consecrated men we have in our audience this morning. I wonder how many men we have here who are—not dying like Stephen—living as a strong, true, consecrated, brave Christian. For a man to do that, is some of the finest fruit that can be gathered in this life. For a man to do less than that, is to fail of his great opportunity. Let me commend to you, then, that if you cannot be called upon to suffer as a martyr, that you live as a strong, true, brave man."

Prima Donna of Rodeo Game At Iowa Park To Enter Triangle Events

Ruth Roach on her beautiful steed "Chief" and as she might appear in an ultra fashionable ballroom.

Ruth, prima donna of the rodeo game has arrived in Iowa Park to enter the cowgirls' bronc riding and trick riding contests of Tom L. Burnett's Triangle Ranch Rodeo on Burnett ranch, April 30, May 1, 2 and 3. While Ruth will openly assert she is not "stuck on the best of the cowgirl bronc riders and has the medal and trophies showing that she has led the group to the capital prize on several occasions yet she does not claim to be the best in trick riding. She is clever enough at pulling daring stunts on horse back.

Once a Thief; She Now Is Head Of A Western Hospital

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—In her work as head of a new maternity hospital in Los Angeles, Mrs. Etta M. Heil is regaining her good name she lost when it was discovered she was the woman Raffles who robbed scores of homes in Chicago and this city.

The demure, refined and cultured little woman who was declared incompetent to handle her own affairs in a Los Angeles court on June 22, 1922, and who was paroled the following day by the lunacy commission to a psychopathic parole officer, after which she supposedly went into seclusion in a sanatarium, today is the head of Sylvan Lodge, Los Angeles' new maternity hospital, that represents an investment of approximately $250,000.

In Chicago she had a fine home. Six servants responded to her call; two motor cars carried her to social engagements, dinners and club affairs in which she was active.

Unsatisfied craving for excitement, Mrs. Heil declared, caused her to become one of the craftiest and most successful amateur burglars ever encountered by the Chicago police.

She was able to hoodwink her family and associates as she plied her burglar trade in the homes of rich Chicagoans. Her husband held no suspicion that she was other than a charming society matron, an intelligent and delightful companion and a perfect mother to his two adopted children. Nevertheless he gallantly came to her aid when her Jekyll Hyde role was discovered, and remained at her side.

INDIANA EARTH SHAKES.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 26.—An earth tremor, lasting approximately thirty seconds was felt here at 10:06 tonight.

Austin Prepares For National Meet Of P.-T. A. Convention

AUSTIN, Texas, April 26.—A "Texas welcome" extended in a friendly way awaits delegates attending the 29th annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, as a body, but the first under this name, to be held here April 27 to May the sleek brown fox jumped over the 2, both inclusive. The association, formerly known as the National Congress of Mothers and Parent Teacher associations changed its name and by laws last year so as to permit men into its membership.

The local committee, including 18 members, each in charge of a particular task, to make the visit of the delegates more pleasant, has tried to so arrange the entertainment that the convention will be "distinctly Texas."

The principal events are stunts by the cowboy club of the University of Texas; reception at the governor's mansion by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson; May day exercises at the University of Texas stadium, tree planting exercises, and closing with a "Texas special" chicken barbecue followed by a camp fire pageant and play program.

Another feature of interest are the exhibits by the prominent child welfare associations of the nation, exhibits by several departments of the United States government and Texas state department, children's organizations, and by divisions of the congress itself.

The convention theme is "Home and School in Education," and the addresses will support this topic.

Monday will feature an institute for visitors and delegates; on Tuesday and Wednesday the congress departments will hold conferences. Thursday will be devoted to open sessions and round table discussions with addresses by prominent men and women; Friday is conference day or work of the association, while Saturday will be devoted to meetings of the board of managers exclusively. Officers are not elected at this session of the congress.

Among the speakers scheduled are: Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, president of the University of Texas; Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, chairman illiteracy commission of the world federation of education associations; Dr. Henry Newman, Dr. Helen T. Woodle, Detroit; Willis A. Sutton, president Georgia Education association, and others.

DO YOU BOSS HIM—OR MANAGE HIM?

Who is it bosses the big strong he man so that he's the most henpecked unlucky miserable person on the face of the earth?

Why the fretful, tearful flighty little thing who had just emerged from a first class fudge-making Wedding, whom she took the Groom to Matrimonial venture.

She's the girl who knows how to make her man—whether he's sweetheart or husband—toe the chalk line, and be thoroughly unhappy in doing it.

She insists on his remembering theatre tickets and flowers, and anniversaries of the first day they met—and if he doesn't remember them, she makes a scene, and everyone enjoys a horrible time of it.

On the other hand, who MANAGES the capable male so that he's the most well-trained and perfectly contented being in the world.

Ah, that's a different type of girl, entirely—the first class manager.

Perhaps it's because she's been in business herself—perhaps because she's had to help out in the home and become used to managing the children—anyway she's right there with the sure capable touch that makes her a chum and a confidante and a sweetheart all at the same time.

The bossy type of girl whines and frets and complains when things don't go her way.

The boys come to dread displeasing her because she kicks up such a scene about it.

And gradually they drift away because they're so eternally tired of being called down for their occasional negligences.

The manager girl doesn't complain or whine, even if the special boy she's fond of arrives at least three-quarters of an hour late one evening when he's going to take her to a dance.

She may realize that it's going to ruin her whole evening getting to the dance so late that the other boys won't have waited to get dances with her—but still she grins and bears it.

Only the next time the tardy one invites her to a really Big Event, she reminds him breezily: "Better start at least two hours earlier this time. Remember you nearly queered the whole evening the last time we stepped forth. And I'm anxious to get to this dance early. You will try, won't you, to get here exactly on time?" And the chances are a hundred to one he'll appear bright and early, because of this tactful reminder.

Whereas if the manager had been simply a boss, and made a dreadful scene over his late appearance, the boy would have slunk away vowing never to darken that particular lady's doorway again.

'Tis far, far better to be a tactful, patient, sympathizing manager than go be a nagging, impatient, fretful boss.

Rev. Cook Claims Man Is a Perso In Eyes of God

Each One Is Responsible For His Actions Alone

"God thinks of you as an individual," declared Rev. W. D. Cook, pastor of the First Evangelical church at his Sunday morning service yesterday. "Just as money, but of each man as an entirety in himself, personally responsible for his deeds and omissions. Each man must believe for himself, repent for himself, pray for himself. Our sins are personal sins and are to be confessed as such before God. Our blessings are personal blessings and call for personal expressions of gratification before God."

Bisnopal Prayer.

Reverend Cook's sermon was intended as a discussion of the benefits and benefits of prayer. A ceremony for the personal private prayer of the supplicant as suggested by the preacher, "Have a place," He says, "make it private, secure yourself from intrusion, shut the door."

"Have a time," the instrumental follows, with the suggestion that a set time for prayer would create the habit and make the duty easier, almost insuring against neglect.

"Have a posture," and the preacher suggests that kneeling is indicative of a proper reverence of thought.

"Have words, make your prayers audible, and guard against the reverse which so often pauses for pre-arranged prayer. Use the spoken words and keep silent and awake during the prayer period."

"Have wants. Bring real petitions. Ask for things to meet your daily needs. Do not be hypocritical. Do not tell God falsehoods, do not say the things you really do not feel.

"As no blessings or gifts you do not need to make you a better servant of your Master. Do not express gratitude for any of the blessings you are not really thankful for. Let all your needs of education, confidence, love and gratitude be absolutely sincere and true. Your converse with God should be as free as friends with friend.

Never Hurry Duty.

"Let the duty never be hurried over or done as a task. Chum the promises of God, make the name of Christ, be faithful, sincere and devout, and God will manifest his favors in an untold number of ways. He will reward you openly."

"Are you neglecting this duty? Duty it is, yet it is a great privilege. Recognize its value in life. Do not forget that it brings its blessings. My Father will reward you openly." Mere things are wrought by prayer than this world ever dreams of. May God bless each of us here today and we each determine that we will return to the old way of our fathers and live to please our blessed Master the remainder of our days."

Land Grants Make Illinois Schools Rich

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 26.—District school houses in West township, McLean county, Ill., are the wealthiest of any of a similar type in the United States.

So far as known, this township is the only one in the United States which held on to the land grant which was given to each school district by the government nearly a century ago. Virtually all sold their section for a few dollars an acre and soon dissipated the money. But thanks to the foresightedness of a pioneer settler, Henry West, this particular township allotment of land, amounting to 720 acres, was kept. It is now valued at $736,000, and the income enables the township to operate the schools without levying any taxes, the only instance in the United States of any such districts being found.

Rum Runners Send Out False S. O. S.'s

GALVESTON, April 26.—Lieutenant Commander J. E. Whitebeck of the coast guard cutter Comanche said all rumors at once this morning when the Comanche slid into her berth at noon 34. "There was nothing to those S. O. S. calls, we did not have a bit of trouble," he declared, then with a smile he added, "it was the rum runners trying to discover our position by sending out false calls, with our code letters. We heard the signals but did not issue denials stating our position as they expected."

The Comanche sighted three or four rum running schooners, but they were from 20 to 25 miles from shore, and out of reach of the long arm of the law.

Young People Plan Church Activities

Tentative plans were laid and committees appointed to prepare for a week of young people's activities to be held May 24th to 30th inclusive, by the Young People's council of the First Methodist church which met Sunday afternoon with R. W. Porter, educational director of the church, presiding.

Committees on programs, publicity, etc., were appointed and will report at a call meeting of the council to be held within the next two weeks.

According to the plans, the Methodist young people anticipate a complete week of activities for young people dealing with matters of inspiration to young people. Speakers, plays, a young people's devotional service, a field day and outings are among the events contemplated.

Mr. Porter outlined the course of study in the Standard Training school for the Methodist churches of the district to be held at the Floral Heights Methodist church, week beginning May the 3rd and urged the young people to co-operate in making this annual school one of the best ever held here.

A pageant "Life's Golden Time," in three scenes will be presented at the First Methodist church next Sunday night and includes 25 Methodist young people in the cast, given in three scenes.

ESCALATOR CLASS ELECTS.

Miss Lucile Duke Named President of Methodist Class.

Miss Lucile Duke was unanimously elected president of the Escalator class of the First Methodist church at the regular meeting of the class Sunday morning. Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, W. R. McClure, and Gerrard Boone, secretary-treasurer E. R. Hyfill, and publicity director, A. A. Oxford.

Retiring president, T. H. Myers was given a rising vote of thanks for his efficient service during his term of office. Miss Duke becomes president following a year of capable rules as first vice president, in charge of social activities.

The Escalators are a class composed of 150 young men and young ladies of the church and is taught by Mrs. Guy Rogers. This is one of the largest young people's classes in the city.

Vernon Names 1926 Faculty for Schools

Ford Prepares For Fight Upon British Rubber Competition

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 26.—On the broad acres of Bryan county, Georgia, Henry Ford is firing the first guns in his battle to end British rubber control.

His experts are preparing to experiment with the production of native para, or commercial rubber, on the 9,000-acre plantation he recently acquired along the Ogeechee river.

American rubber concerns, notably the United States Rubber company, are endeavoring to break the British monopoly of para production through purchase of rubber acreage in the Orient, but this is the first attempt to make the United States a rubber-growing country.

Para comes entirely from the tropics, South America, India and Africa, and it cannot be predicted with any degree of certainty what success Ford will meet with in producing native para. Agricultural experts say that he may have to produce an entirely new species of rubber-yielding plant, of which there are a number of varieties.

The Ford experiments are aimed at a new source of para, or the acclimatizing of a new type of rubber plant to our cooler temperature.

The Ford plantation, for which he paid $150,000, will also be used to produce flax as a substitute for the more expensive cotton in the upholstering of Ford automobiles. He is now negotiating for other properties.

British control of raw rubber has long been a source of worry to the American rubber industry, in view of the policy of the British government in purposely keeping up the prices. It has been indicated lately that the British government intends to send the price even higher. An increase of only a few cents a pound will cost American motorists many millions of dollars annually.

Clues Are Obtained In Texas on Death Of McClintock Heir

GALVESTON, April 26.—There is little likelihood that a charge against William D. Shepherd will be filed in Texas in connection with the death of Mrs. McClintock, declared John S. Barbaro, assistant state's attorney of Chicago, here this afternoon after interrogating former neighbors at Bayview in Galveston county of the McClintocks and the Shepherds.

"The only thing they told us," he declared, summing up the day's interviews, "was that Shepherd seemed to regard Billy McClintock with indifference; like he was in the way, they said. Mr. Larrabee, former postmaster there, and another both expressed this interpretation of his actions with respect to Mrs. McClintock's son. I did not think their statements were worth very much in our case, not even taking their names. But the newspapermen took them."

Although returning to Houston tonight, Mr. Barbaro will make inquiry here as to whether any previous will was filed by Mrs. McClintock in Galveston county. There were no leads to indicate the filing of such a will, he said, but he will look into the matter as a precautionary measure.

Mr. Barbaro indicated he would wind up his investigations in this section by calling on the district attorneys here and Houston and also interviewing Derrick, Houston contractor, at whose home Mrs. McClintock stayed while her home at Bayview was being built. He said he hoped to conclude his investigation in the Texas gulf coast in order to be back in Chicago May 1, or not later than May 3.

"The Shepherd case will come up tomorrow before Judge Lynch for setting," Mr. Barbaro stated, "and we expect that it will be docketed for within a month. It will take us at least 30 days to get a jury, we believe, and there will possibly be a change of venue from Cook county asked by the defense. Recent statements from the defense, however, indicated they would be ready to go to trial within a month."

Robert Cowart, fig farmer near Kemah, told the Chicago prosecutor and newspaper men that he had heard William Shepherd asked by his brother, Arthur Shepherd, why he was taking "all that" trouble in connection with the McClintock home building.

"Don't worry," Cowart told them he heard William Shepherd retort, "Will will get his out of it."

This statement corroborates one made at the coroner's inquest in Chicago by Jerome Matillo, then working on the McClintock house, according to the prosecutor.
