

Ruling On Feed Land Is Given

Numerous inquiries have been made, regarding the use of land on which wheat has been seriously damaged by the recent freeze. In answering this question the following options apply:

Farms not participating in the wheat or feed grain program may replant the land to any crop he chooses. However, if it is replanted to feed grain thereby causing the farm feed grain base to be exceeded this would make the producers ineligible for feed grain payments on any other farm.

If the farm is participating in both the wheat and feed grain programs; any part or all the wheat acreage may be replanted to soybeans, castor beans or vegetables and be eligible for wheat certificate payment without any approval from the ASCS County Committee.

If the farm is participating in both the wheat and feed grain programs and the operator desires to plant feed grain on the destroyed wheat acres he shall make a written request to the county committee for reclassification of the acreage he desires to replant to feed grain under the substitution provisions before he plants the feed grain. This is necessary since you have reported your wheat acreage to this office and such reported acreage must be changed or reclassified, otherwise the total wheat and feed grain acreage would exceed the total of such permitted acreage.

In order to earn your full wheat certificate payment thirty-five percent of the wheat allotment must remain classified as wheat and not replanted to feed grain. However, this 35 percent may be replanted to soybeans or some other crop except feed grain and still earn certificate payment.

Wheat acreage may not be reclassified for the purpose of substituting feed grain if it has been cut for hay, grazed or harvested in any manner, after May 1.

Another point one group brought up was the need for a way to make newcomers feel more welcome when they move to Olton. Among the suggestions was a welcome wagon, possibly sponsored by the ladies' social clubs in town.

44 Seniors Get Diplomas Friday

Forty-four seniors received diplomas at the graduation exercises held Friday night May 19 in the school auditorium.

Dr. Roy McClung, president of Wayland College, gave the address, using the graduation cap as an illustration of life and the different steps in life. He asked the boys to remove their caps and look at the small button which was in the center, and consider themselves as the button placed in the middle of life.

"Draw a line through the middle of the cap and you have two triangles. The lower point on the cap is where you young people stand today and the further up the cap you move, the more space, - which, in life, represents influence you have over more people. It's easy to get to the center, but from there on up the territory gets smaller, symbolizing that there is only room for a few of the most outstanding people at the very top," Dr. McClung stated.

The class was presented by Joe Turner, principal. Presentation of diplomas was made by Winston Bley, president of the school board and Ray Schultz, superintendent.

Valedictory was given by Valda Jones and salutatory was by Kay Schultz.

A special piano selection was presented by Karen Hipp and the Olton Choir, under direction of Mrs. Bob Allford, presented "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "My Task".

Ushers were Judy Burkhalter, Lannie McClain, Sherry Moss and Steve Spain.

Danny Amerson gave the invocation and Joe Fincher, the benediction.

Processional and recessional was by Harold Carson.

District Is Entered In Competition

Lamb County Soil (and Water) Conservation District has entered the 21st annual Goodyear competition to select the nation's top 53 conservation districts, according to Merrill P. Brigrance, Rt. 3, Olton, district chairman.

Activities of the district will be weighed against the performance of other districts in the state in determining the outstanding district in the annual event sponsored by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio.

Key agricultural leaders will serve as judges and will select the state winner. Soil conservation efforts from Jan. 1, 1967, through Dec. 31, 1967, will be considered.

Grand award for the 53 districts selected nationally will be an expense paid, work-study trip to Arizona in December, 1968, for one member of the district governing body and the outstanding farmer-cooperator in each winning district. The 106 men selected will be guests at Goodyear Farms, a 14,000-acre general farm operation near Phoenix.

Controversy Over Trees

The controversy over the best way to preserve and use the coast redwoods of California provides a striking illustration of just how far out of step some conservationists have gotten with the facts of modern forest management.

To begin with, the coast redwood under ideal conditions is one of the most rapidly growing trees known, reaching a height of some 200 feet in less than 100 years. The coast redwood is unusually responsive to proper care. In exceptional cases, it has been found that a young tree's rate of growth can accelerate as much as 100 times when it is released by the removal of large trees around it and given access to adequate sunlight and moisture.

A 30-fold increase in rate of growth is common.

More than 815,000 acres of privately-owned land in northern California is now under tree farm management. Selective cutting and reseedling of clear-cut areas on these lands ensures the perpetual regrowth of new redwood forests.

Much of this land is now being made available for public recreational use—camping, hunting, fishing and hiking.

As for preservation of the old-growth forest giants, more than 115,000 acres containing a large percentage of the finest virgin stands are already within the boundaries of California state parks. And together, various government agencies own a quarter of a million acres of coast redwoods.

Besides this, the timber industry has set aside additional old-growth stands for acquisition by public agencies for inclusion in public park areas.

Considering the long-range future of the redwoods, one fact is of deep concern. If much additional old-growth acreage is removed from private forest management for inclusion in park areas, it will force the cutting of younger trees and jeopardize the sustained-yield forest renewal program now established in the region.

This only serves to underscore the central point that real conservation of the redwoods, like other forests, goes hand in hand with their use and regrowth as a valuable and replaceable natural resource.

How To Pinch Mums

Since my better half has raised such a fuss in her column about how to "pinch" mums, I suppose I'll just have to break down and tell her.

When the young chrysanthemum is about six inches high, the tip is pinched out to force the plant to branch out. When the branches formed this way again grow out to about six inches, they in turn are also pinched out at the tip.

This step is repeated throughout the summer to make the plant bush out and form a rounded, bushy flower, rather than a single flower on a long, overweight stem.

The pinching process is also referred to in some circles as "stopping" and the side shoots which grow out from the pinching are called "breaks".

I meant to write a letter to the Housewives Arise column and pass along this information, but I was too busy pinching our mums.

mune to poison ivy, oak or sumac.

Your next meeting with this pesky plant could take place in your own yard, as well as in the woods and fields. Poison ivy, oak and sumac have appeared in city gardens; and poison ivy has been known to form a beautiful growth up the side of a house. Poisonous oils from these plants can come your way in the smoke from a neighbor's burning trash or on your dog's coat.

If you can detect poison plants, you can often avoid them. Poison ivy and its close kin, poison oak, are three-leaved plants which may grow as low bushes or climbing vines. They may be mixed with honeysuckle and other climbers. Poison sumac an eastern swamp plant with seven to thirteen leaflets and small white berries, usually grows as a shrub.

If you have been exposed, carefully remove your clothes and thoroughly wash all affected areas with warm water and soap; then sponge with a 50 to 70 per cent alcohol solution. Using rubber gloves, clean your clothes in an oil solvent and soapy water. Then dry them in the sun.

Ivy, oak and sumac poisoning start with itching and redness within a few hours to several days after exposure. Then waterpimples appear. There is no cure for the big itch. Wet dressings of boric acid or Epsom salts solution bring some relief. Calamine lotion also reduced itching. Call your physician when the inflammation is extensive.

If you know that you will be near poison plants or working with them, have your druggist make a 10 per cent sodiumpermanganate ointment and apply on exposed skin. After contact with the plant, wash off ointment and scrub all clothing—even shoes.

REGULATE RAINMAKERS—Senate has passed and sent to the House a licensing bill to regulate weather modifiers—or would-be modifiers—under the Texas Water Development Board.

Apparently the bill is aimed more at encouraging research and development in the field of legitimate weather modifying than at bogus rainmakers.

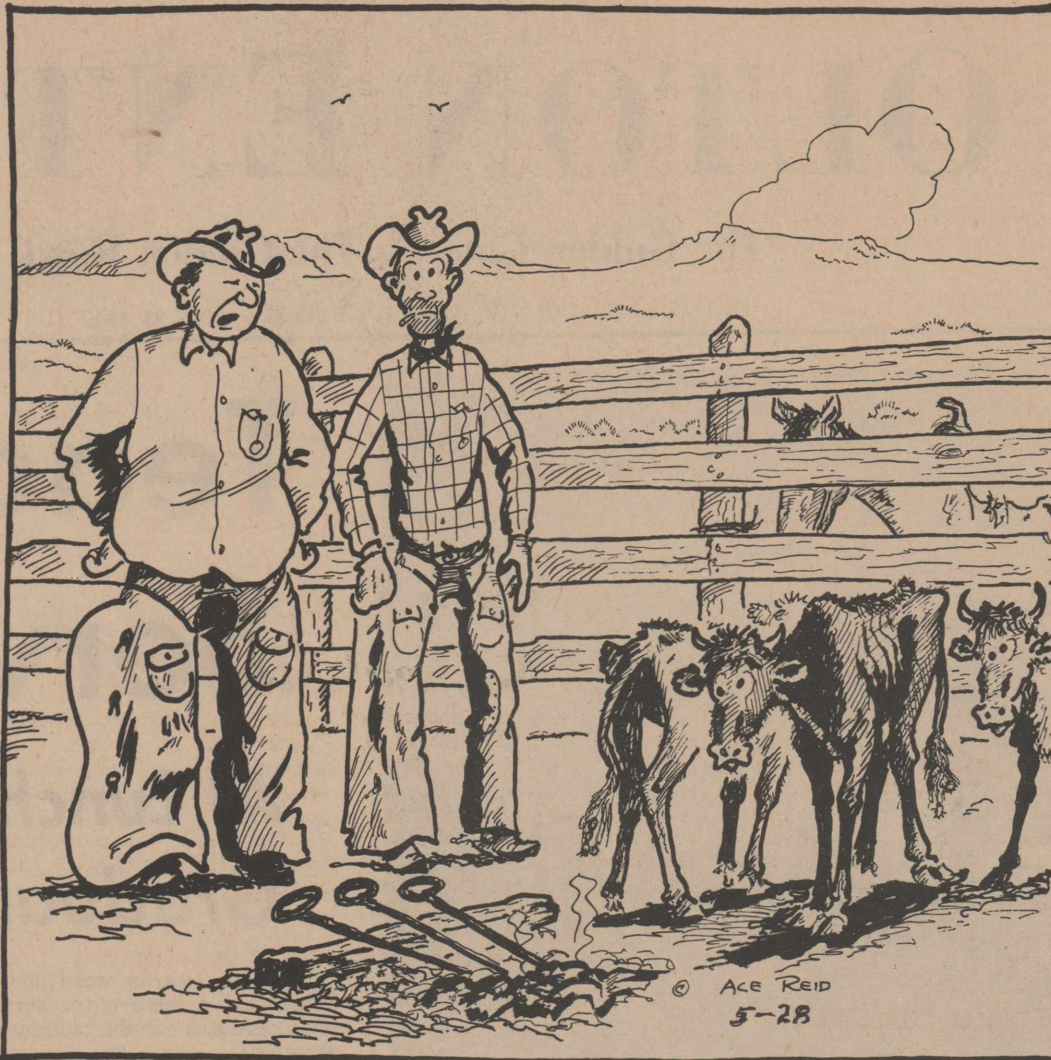

Board would be given full control over the entire field of water modifying including annual licensing and permits.

OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY—House and Senate both have passed the compromise occupational safety bill. It now awaits Gov. John Connally's signature.

As finally passed, the bill is a compromise among labor, management and the governor. It would create a Division of Occupational Safety as a part of the State Department of Health.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

It now appears that cotton producers in some sections of the Plains this year may be forced by weather conditions to avail themselves of the "Disease relief" provisions of the current cotton program.

Under certain circumstances these provisions permit farmers to plant certain other crops on acreage intended for cotton production.

They apply when a farmer, after an "honest and workmanlike" effort, is unable to get or unable to keep a stand of cotton early enough in the season to allow for the expectation of a crop.

Under these conditions the producer may apply to the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office for permission to plant certain other crops on the acreage intended for cotton.

With ASCS approval soybeans or other crops on which no marketing quotas or voluntary acreage reduction programs are in effect may be planted, harvested and sold on cotton land without loss of cotton price support and diversion payments.

The date after which a producer will not be expected to plant or replant cotton is left to the discretion of each individual ASCS county committee and will vary from one geographical location to another.

It is also the responsibility of the county committee to determine whether an honest and workmanlike effort has been made to plant and grow cotton.

Donald A. Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., is voicing almost unbridled optimism on the future of High Plains cotton production.

Ask Amy

BY AMY ADAMS

BEFORE YOU BLOW, TELL THE SCHMO!

Dear Amy:

I've been noticing a change in my husband for several months. When I came across a girl's telephone number in his pocket, I knew I had found the answer. I called her up and she said they dated a few times, but she certainly didn't know he was married.

Should I tell him I know about her or just go around with the knowledge bubbling inside me?

His Wife

Dear Wife: 'Old Faithful' bubbles, too, before it blows its top. Before you blow yours, tell all and insist that he do likewise!

Dear Amy:

I've been going with this boy since November '65. He went into the service seven months ago. He came home for New Year's Eve, and of course, we went out. I received a beautiful ring from him at that time.

Last week we broke up. Although he has written numerous letters telling me the exact opposite of what he just did (breaking up), I was truly hurt by this.

He is going overseas for one year and he is leaving me thoroughly confused. I want to know if I should return the ring? It was meant to be a Christmas gift.

Dear One:

If the ring is a diamond and costly, return it. If not, keep it for what it was meant to be.

Dear Amy:

I am 40 years old and have been without my husband for nearly 20 years. He didn't die, you see, he left me to go fight in the war. My husband was always a noble man and promised to return.

For quite some time the halls of my home had been quiet, but in recent months, being a woman of considerable wealth and dignity, I have held my home open to old friends. They, at first, brought comfort to me, but now I find that several of the unwed men who frequent my home have interests in me beyond friendship and condolences.

Three of my guests in particular have time and time again bestowed upon me gifts of much value which I continue to refuse.

"OPEN MEETINGS"—A bill to outlaw closed-door meetings of government agenknowing of their intentions. Just the other day, one of the three after debasing a fellow house guest (a wonderful man and a very talented violinist) because he hinted that I should consider marriage, suggested the same thing to me. I could hardly hold my astonishment and I told him that even if my husband returned, a poor ragged man, broken and lost, I would welcome him into my arms over all the expensive gifts that any would-be suitor might offer.

Now I am very frightened as every week end I will be beset by these "suitors", and I am at the point of yielding.

Very Upset

Dear Upset:

I don't know what you are upset about! If you haven't seen your husband in 20 years nor know of his whereabouts, you can have him legally declared dead. Then you have one of two decisions to make. Either you show your week-end "suitors" the door... or choose one to marry.

Your considerable wealth and dignity will not bring you happiness unless you come down to earth, face reality and enjoy the kind of life you really desire.

Dear Amy:

My problem may sound silly, but to me, it isn't. It seems every time I go any place with a certain friend (we'll call her Mary), she always tries to out-do me or she thinks she does. She is one of my best friends, and I don't want to lose her. So I am always...

Second Best

Dear Second Best: The only way a person can out-do another is through the expression of their personality or in the selection of their clothes to look more attractive. It is usually an attitude that one has toward another that makes one feel "out-done."

A friend like this can be a tremendous asset to you by forcing you to undertake a self-improvement program... and it could do wonders for your ego. Get on the ball, honey!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor

This Memorial Day is another first without our loved ones. To all of you with dear ones whose body is resting in the City of the Dead, I am giving you this message, "My Hereafter" by Juanita DeLong. I hope you find comfort in it as I have.

"Do not come when I am dead to sit beside a low green mound, or bring the first gay daffodils because I love them so, for I shall not be there. You cannot find me there.

"I will look up at you from the eyes of little children; I will bend to meet you in the swaying boughs of bud-thrilled trees and caress you with the passionate sweep of storm filled winds; I will cool your tired body in the flow of limpid river; I will warm your work-glorified hands through the glow of the winter fire; I will soothe you into forgetfulness to the drop, drop of the rain on the roof; I will speak to you, out of the rhymes of the Masters; I will dance with you in the lilt of the violin, and make your heart leap with the bursting cadence of the organ; I will flood your soul with the flaming radiance of the sunrise, and bring you peace in the tender rose and gold of the after-sunset.

"All these have made me happy; They are a part of me; I shall become a part of them."

How true, in every thing, the people, the events, nature, home, all the things they loved we can feel their very presence.

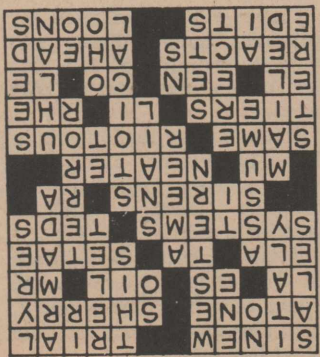

Sincerely,
Mrs. Paul Burrus

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford

Final minutes are ticking away in the biennial legislative game of "beat the clock."

Obviously, the wind-up of the 60th session will be a cliff-hanger.

As lawmakers move toward the May 29 finish line, the major jobs they came to Austin to accomplish remain unfinished.

 THE BUDGET-- It went to conference committee, following an unsuccessful attempt to Gov. John Connally and Speaker Ben Barnes to sell the Senate on accepting the House appropriations bill without the traditional conference to adjust differences. House Bill calls for $448,300,000 in general revenue; Senate Bill, $437,700,000.

 REDISTRICTING-- A Senate Congressional Redistricting Bill would save all incumbent congressmen the agony of having to run against a colleague. But the House Judicial Districts Committee has drawn different lines. So this issue must go to conference committee for an 11th hour compromise. State House of Representatives districts also must be redrawn. But the Senate has little interest in that. Judicial redistricting appears to be impossibly snarled once more.

 SCHOOL TEACHER PAY-- Both houses agree there must be a raise. Major problem is to determine the amount. Although revenue in sight from the Comptroller's last official estimate won't cover the budgets drawn by either house, plus a teacher pay raise of the magnitude sought, legislative leaders still insist adjustments will make the money possible without a tax bill.

Speculation is widespread that the lawmakers can't finish the job on schedule but top leaders are hopeful they can avoid a special session by covering the clock for a few days.

DRIVERS LICENSING

CHANGE DUE-- Major changes in Texas drivers license laws have been approved by both houses.

Bill increases minimum age for license from 15 to 16 for those who complete approved driver training courses and to 18 for those without such training. Hardship licenses are permitted for 15-year-olds where there is a licensed adult driver in the front seat. Motor scooter and motorcycle operators must be at least 15, and for commercial licenses, 17.

Present licenses will be replaced by a plastic card with a color photograph of the driver. New ones will be good for four instead of two years and will cost $6 instead of $3. Drivers may be required to take a new competency examination when they apply for a new license. However, re-examination is not compulsory, as proposed in the original bill.

License suspension period for violations was increased from six to 12 months for the first offense and from 12 to 18 months for repeat offenses, subject to the court's discretion. Driving while license is suspended will be punishable by fines up to $500 and a maximum of six months in jail.

HORSE RACING-- Voters will be given an opportunity to express their opinion on whether Texas should legalize horse-race betting, if the House agrees with the Senate to put the question on the ballot in the Democratic and Republican primaries next May.

Senate passed the bill by Sen. V. E. Berry of San Antonio, long an advocate of horse-race betting, and sent it to the House for its concurrence. Actually the bill, as passed by the Senate, would not require the parties to put the question on the ballot but would permit and encourage them to.

AIR BASE PURCHASE O. K'D-- Both houses have agreed that James Connally Air Force Base at Waco should be purchased by the state for $5,200,000. The 2,100-acre base with 1,141 buildings now is under lease for a state vocational and technical training institute.

Money for its purchase is expected to be written into the final version of the 1968 appropriations bill.

ELECTION CODE CLEAN-ED UP-- Although the Legislature approved general terms of a major election code overhaul, the two houses differed over provision to permit counties to employ low-cost electronic vote recording-counting devices.

Senate struck the electronic machine section from the original bill, but the House put it back in and returned amended measures to the Senate.

Major features of the redrawn code will standardize the ballot form; change city election dates to the first Saturday in April; raise maximum pay for election judges and clerks to $1.25 an hour; permit new state residents to vote in presidential elections before they have resided in Texas a year; allow consolidation of election precincts for minor elections; and substitute senatorial district conventions for county conventions in counties having multiple districts extending beyond their own boundaries.

PROPERTY TAX VOTE SET-- State of Texas will wipe out 37 cents of the 47 cents per $100 property tax by 1977 if Texas voters give their approval at a constitutional amendment election in November, 1968.

Proposed amendment received the necessary two-thirds vote of both houses for submission. This even though opponents warned that the $48,000,000 in lost revenue will have to be made up from other tax sources -- and that local governmental units will snap up the additional leeway on property taxes.

State levy on property would begin declining in 1969. Remaining 10 cents of the present tax would be retained for college building purposes.

OIL PRODUCTION LINE HELD-- Railroad Commission set June oil production allowable at 33.8 per cent. This is the same as May although demand for Texas crude is expected to increase next month.

June allowable factor will permit a maximum production of 3,046,218 barrels daily. Factor dropped four straight months before last week's hold-the-line order. Prior to the January peak of 37.5 per cent, it was increased four successive months.

U. S. Bureau of Mines predicts that the June demand for Texas crude oil will increase 50,000 barrels. But the Commission feels that stocks throughout the U. S. are excessive now.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES-- Legislation providing for cancellation of permits on dredge shell or mudshell in certain areas is constitutional, says Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin in a recent opinion.

Other opinions issued by Martin include the following:

- * Calhoun County is not prohibited by law from withdrawing surplus funds from the county depository and investing the money in authorized U. S. government bonds and securities.
- * A district clerk in Cass County may accept an appointment as a receiver in a civil case pending in the court which he serves as a clerk without vacating his elective office.

COURTS SPEAK-- State Supreme Court refused to hear the insurance claim of a Dallas man found to have caused the fire in his restaurant where four firemen were killed.

High court has held that restrictions on competition of the Neiman-Marcus store in Northpark, Dallas, do not violate Texas anti-trust laws as maintained by developers of Preston Center.

A Travis County district court, overruling State Savings and Loan Commissioner James O. Gerst, ordered granting of application of Mission Savings and Loan Association of San Antonio for state approval. Gerst gave notice of appeal to Third Court of Civil Appeals.

SHORT SNORTS-- House has passed and sent to the Senate for its concurrence a bill to allow privileged communications between a clergyman and his parishioner and between a doctor and his patient.

Senate Education Committee has approved the bill by Rep. Alonzo Jamison of Denton which would direct the Texas Education Agency to embark on a program of recruitment of well-trained and mature persons into the teacher profession.

Texas Highway Department has received the National Safety Council's top 1966 industrial safety award -- for its on-the-job safety record among its employees throughout the state.

Attorney General Martin reports that the state has recovered $90,000 from an auction sale of 80,000 barrels of contraband East Texas oil confiscated by the state 30 years ago.

Fleetway Commuter Airline of Tyler has asked permit for daily round-trip service from Kilgore to San Antonio; and Davis Airline of Bryan seeks a commuter permit between College Station and Houston.

Texas Water Development Board has authorized a study to be made of the feasibility of installing water desalting plants in seven areas of West Texas.

53 Feet Of Water Recharged At HPRF

Fifty-three feet of valuable water was recharged through two multi-purpose (artificial recharge) wells at the High Plains Research Foundation in 1966, according to Jim Valliant, soil scientist at the research farm.

Dr. Thomas Longnecker, director of the foundation, said, "This research project is a very important part of the program of the Foundation to find ways and means of conserving and stretching rainfall and underground water, and to prolong irrigation farming in the High and South Plains of Texas".

A total of 636 acre-feet of run-off water which includes both tailwater and rainfall, has been recharged into the Ogallala formation through the two multi-purpose wells since 1959. The water recharged in the experimental research well recorded during the eight-year period was 352 acre-feet. A second well, which is the type that would normally be used by a farmer, with no experimental equipment, was installed in 1961. From 1961 through 1966, a total of 285 acre-feet of water have been recharged through this well.

This savings of 636 acre-feet (or a little more than 207 million gallons) is enough water to completely irrigate the one-half section farm at Halfway for about two years. Approximately 90 per cent of this same water could have been lost to evaporation if it had not been stored underground.

Two thousand four hundred five acre-feet of underground water has been pumped for irrigation at the Research Foundation since 1959. 26.4 per cent of this amount came from the water which was recovered by recharge.

Several grasses, hybrid sorghum grazers, and rye were planted in the playa lake at the experimental recharge well site in 1966. Some of the advantages of these crops are: (1) cover for the lake bed, (2) partial filtering of run-off water, (3) tolerance to flooding and, (4) a source of income from grazing the lake bed.

Tips On Outdoor Furniture Are Given

If you're not quite satisfied with your outdoor furniture, take a few tips from Extension Home Furnishings Specialist Bonny Lay of Texas A&M University before purchasing more.

Furniture for outdoor living areas generally can be divided into four categories: metal, wood, fiberglass, and a combination of any of these.

Cast iron furniture with its intricate designs is brittle and easily broken. Since it is hard and seldom used with cushions, it is more decorative than comfortable.

Wrought iron, also hard and brittle, is lighter than cast iron. Most wrought iron furniture sold today has been rust proofed.

Tubular steel is another metal used for outdoor furniture. It is usually less expensive and lighter in weight than wrought iron, but heavier than aluminum. It has a lot of strength, is very durable, and is rust resistant.

Two types of aluminum furniture are the tubular and cast varieties. Both are very durable and light weight. They are rust resistant, but they will undergo an oxidizing process unless they are especially treated against tarnishing.

Two other metals sometimes used are the beautiful-- and expensive-- copper and brass. They, too, are usually treated against tarnishing.

A wide choice of outdoor furniture is available in solid wood or in a wood combined with another material. Usually the wood used is redwood, cedar, cypress, or teak. Since these are somewhat moisture resistant, they can be left in the natural finish and also can be left out all year.

Cane and rattan are two popular types of furniture which are made from wood products. They are less sturdy and durable and cannot withstand weather and wear as well as solid wood.

Fiberglass is among the newest materials used for outdoor furniture. The chairs are shaped to fit the contour of the body, making them very comfortable.

Humans Cause Auto Mishaps

Auto accidents don't just happen.

They are caused. An overwhelming proportion of them are caused by some human element. Sometimes this human element involves a driver with a physical or emotional condition that makes him less than ideal driver.

You may think you are in good health. You may have an excellent safety record. Yet, under certain circumstances, it can be dangerous for you to be in the driver's seat, says a pamphlet of the American Medical Association.

Doctors agree that the emotional stability of the driver is as important as any single factor in maintaining traffic safety. That's why you owe it to others-- and to yourself--not to drive when you have serious problems on your mind. If you are thinking about that argument you had before you left your home or office; if you're in a depressed or angry "I don't-care-what- happens" mood; if you're very worried about a personal problem... you're better off not driving.

The sleepy driver causes many accidents. In fact, a sleepy driver is as much of a hazard as a drinking one. Dozing at the wheel can occur in broad daylight as well as at night. When making long trips in the summer vacations soon to come, rest every two hours and drink coffee or cola to stay alert. Next time you feel the least bit drowsy while driving, pull up and rest up.

Research proves that many medicines, not just a few, can affect the way in which you handle the wheel. Certain commonly used drugs such as antihistamines, cold tablets and mild sedatives may dull your reflexes or impair your coordination. Stimulants can make you nervous. Tranquilizing drugs can cloud your judgment and interfere with driving skills. Consult your doctor about the side effects of any drugs you take. Don't drive until you know that the medicine or drugs you take won't affect your driving.

It goes without saying that alcohol and gasoline are a dangerous combination. You don't have to be drunk to be dangerous. Even a small amount of alcohol can impair judgment and reactions of many persons.

Driving calls for clear, healthy eyesight, side vision, judgment of distance and the ability to see well at night. Have your eyes tested regularly. If you have glasses for distance vision, don't forget to wear them.

If you have a nervous disorder, or a heart condition, or diabetes, ask your doctor whether you are a safe driver. This also applies as you get older. Past 65, reflexes and coordination tend to be a little slower.

Vocational Rehabilitation Topic Of Study At Meeting

More than 150 persons from 20 counties will meet in Lubbock May 27 to begin planning for a statewide comprehensive vocational rehabilitation program.

Chairmen from each of the 20 counties, including County Judge Jim Mangum of Littlefield, will participate in six task force discussions of the opportunities available for helping the disabled.

Dr. Gerald H. Fisher, supervisor of vocational training at the Hot Springs, Ark., Rehabilitation Center, will speak at a noon Luncheon in the Texas Tech Student Union.

Mrs. Jack Kastman, chairman of the regional coordinating committee, said the Texas Education Agency has divided the state into 20 areas for the community-oriented studies. Written reports from each region, due by Feb. 1, then will be assimilated into one statewide plan for meeting handicapped person's needs for possible employment and self-sufficiency.

Dr. J. W. Edgar, Texas Education Commissioner, said in setting up the citizen's advisory board that the goal is to make vocational rehabilitation services available to all handicapped individuals in Texas by July 1, 1975.

Representatives from each county attending Saturday's organizational meeting here will return home to survey local needs, existing resources and resources not available. They then will report back to the regional committee and help formulate the plan, Mrs. Kastman said.

State 4-H

Roundup Set

Next Month

Texas has long been famous for its roundups and its 4-H Roundup is no exception. This annual event to be held on the campus of Texas A&M University, June 6-7, is one of the nation's oldest statewide annual 4-H events. Originally, it was a part of the Farmers Short Course.

The number of 4-H members in attendance this year will be down since only the first place winning teams from the 12 Extension districts are eligible to attend. Winners in the State 4-H Food Show will be determined on June 6 and those in 31 other judging and demonstration contests on June 7.

The state 4-H leaders say approximately 850 boys and girls from every section of Texas will participate in the contests. They will be accompanied by some 350 local 4-H adult leaders and county Extension agents who have coached and supervised the district winners.

In addition, the state 4-H leaders are expecting some 500 Friends of 4-H to attend all or part of the two-day program. Included are sponsors of judging and demonstration contests, and members of the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation. The Foundation sponsors many of the Roundup activities and its trustees, all prominent leaders in agriculture, industry and public service, will meet on June 6, according to Chairman Jerry D. Wheat of Dallas. He added that future plans will be developed to provide greater opportunities for Texas 4-H Club members and their adult leaders.

Wheat said the Foundation has two immediate goals: finding sponsors for eight projects now developed and completing plans for establishing one of the nation's largest endowment funds for the 4-H youth of Texas.

4-H is the youth phase of the educational programs carried on by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, a part of the Texas A&M University System. Local county Extension agents can supply detailed information on 4-H programs and activities of the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation.

County Agents Present Program At 4-H Meeting

The annual meeting of the Halfway Community 4-H Club was held recently.

The meeting was called to order by vice-president, Susie Church. The pledge to the American Flag was led by Randy Goree and the 4-H Motto and Pledge was led by Lesa Helm.

An inspirational was led by J. Carol Criswell followed by songs led by Rebecca Baumgardner and Lesa Helm. Secretary, Donald Paul Bell, read the minutes and they were approved.

It was brought to the attention of the club that J. Carol and Robin Criswell turned in the most amount of money for the annual cancer drive.

A report was given by Robin Criswell on the District Eliminations Contest.

Roger Pinkerton introduced the program which was given by Doyleene Meadors and Tim McCary, county agents.

Refreshments were served by the M. C. Churches to 12 members and five adult leaders and the meeting was adjourned.

Robert Worley To Receive B.A. Degree

Robert Bennett Worley, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Worley, will receive his Bachelor of Arts degree from Howard Payne College on May 25. He has a double major in Political Science and Psychology.

Worley has been president of Alpha Phi Omega, president of the Baptist Student Union, president of Gamma Sigma Phi, Chief Justice of Student Judiciary, and a Democracy-In-Action Forum Leader at Howard Payne. This year, he was selected to Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities.

Worley has been awarded a fellowship for study in the School of Law at Baylor University. He will enroll there on June 3.

Wives Earn Quarter Of Income

One in three, or about 15 million, wives earn a paycheck, according to Mrs. Wanda Meyer, Extension home management specialist with Texas A&M University.

Half of all working wives earn about a quarter of their family's total income. About 40 percent of total consumer spending is estimated to come from homes where the wife is employed. Nearly half of the employed wives are in clerical jobs or work in factories. Over half are between 35 and 54 years of age.

Employed-wife households spend fractionally less for food and medical care, but more for dressing up, home furnishings and equipment, and for recreation than the household in which the husband only is employed.

These and other significant characteristics of the employed-wife household are brought out in a recent study by the National Industrial Conference Board, says Mrs. Meyer.

Warning Issued On DDT Residues

DDT residues in excess of recently established tolerance in milk have been reported in some areas of Texas. Improper application and/or the application of DDT in the proximity of dairy farms and forage crops that are to be used as feed for dairy animals may be responsible for the trouble, explains Chas. W. Neeb, area Extension entomologist.

The protection of crops, in the proximity of dairy farms and/or forage crops, from insect damage with insecticide applications should not include DDT, advises Neeb. DDT should not be applied nor allowed to drift into forage crops that are to be fed to dairy animals or to animals being finished for slaughter, he adds.

He suggests that cotton growers in close proximity to dairy farms and forage crop fields use carbaryl (Sevin) spray applications for pink bollworm and cotton bollworm control. Carbaryl sprays will satisfactorily control pink bollworms and cotton bollworms; however, it may be necessary to add methyl parathion to the carbaryl spray. Methyl parathion should be used with caution where there is danger of direct drift onto animals, warns the entomologist.

As a general guide to the limitations of using insecticides containing DDT for crop protection, DDT sprays should not be applied within one-fourth mile of forage crops and dairy farms.

Cotton producers are urged to keep the use limitations of DDT in mind when considering the purchase of insecticides to be used in their crops.

KITCHEN KORNER

By Lela Gallion

I have a few tips this week you may like to use so will pass them along, hoping some of you may get some good from them.

If a cracked dish is boiled for 45 minutes in sweet milk, the crack will be so welded together that it will hardly be visible, and will be so strong it will stand the same usage as before.

Put a layer of marshmallows in the bottom of a pumpkin pie, then add the filling. You will have a nice topping as the marshmallow will come to the top.

A leaf of lettuce dropped into the pot absorbs the grease from the top of the soup. Remove the lettuce and throw it away as soon as it has served its purpose. To prevent splashing when frying meat, sprinkle a little salt into the pan before putting the fat in.

If the juice from your apple pie runs over in the oven, shake some salt on it, which causes the juice to burn to a crisp so it can be removed.

Add a little vinegar to the water when an egg cracks during boiling. It will help seal the egg.

Small amounts of left over corn may be added to pancake batter for variety.

Use a strawberry huller to peel potatoes which have been boiled in their 'jackets'.

To make bread crumbs, use fine cutter of the food grinder and tie a large paper bag over the spout to prevent flying crumbs.

SALAD TIPS
For Appeal To The Appetite
Chill ingredients before mixing—except for molded salads.

Provide tartness in the body of salad or dressing.

Use salad greens other than lettuce sometimes. Have you tried chicory, escarole, endive, kale, spinach, dandelion greens, romaine, watercress, and chinese cabbage?

Sprinkle orange, lemon, lime or pineapple juice on fruits that may turn dark—apples, peaches, and bananas, for instance.

For tossed green salads, tear greens in fairly large pieces or cut with scissors. Larger pieces give more body to the salad.

Prevent wilting and soggy-ness by drying the greens used in salads, draining canned foods well before adding to salad, using just enough salad dressing to moisten. For raw vegetable salads, add dressing at the last minute.

FRUIT COMBINATIONS

1. Sliced pineapple, apricot halves, sweet red cherries.
2. Watermelon balls, peach slices, orange slices.
3. Grapefruit sections, banana slices, berries or cherries.
4. Grapefruit sections, unpared apple slices.
5. Peach slices, pear slices, halves of red plums.
6. Pineapple wedges, banana slices, strawberries.
7. Cooked dried fruit, white cherries, red raspberries.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE COMBINATIONS

1. Shredded raw carrots, diced apples, raisins.
2. Sliced or ground cranberries, diced celery and apples, orange sections.
3. Thin cucumber slices, pineapple cubes.
4. Avocado and grapefruit sections, tomato slices.
5. Shredded cabbage, orange sections, crushed pineapple.

HOUSEWIVES ARISE

BY KAREN WALL

The Cat Case

We had a strange visitor to our house the other nite. I awakened Tuesday morning to find my living room in complete dismay.

Several containers of dirt and dead mums I had tried in vain to save were overturned and one of my chairs contained an unfragrant pile of "stuff".

I blamed all this dirty mess on our new german shepherd, Kelly, wondering the same time at her ability to get up on the furniture, and puzzled as to how she had gotten the pots of dirt out of the window. Kelly is at the moment a very small puppy who has trouble getting up and down stairs.

Nevertheless she was credited with the mess and unpolitely removed to the backyard. I decided after cleaning up the pile on the chair that the dirt on the floor would have to wait until I had finished feeding young Patrick.

While feeding the baby I became aware of an unpleasant odor penetrating the whole room. I decided to investigate as soon as the feeding was finished.

Following my nose, I searched under the chairs expecting to find another pile of "stuff". What to my surprise, when I looked under the couch but two very large and unfriendly yellow eyes. Mentally I made a quick head count. The dog was outside, David was in bed, the Boss was at work and I had just put Patrick in his bassinet. Besides, he was too young to get under the couch—who or what was it?

Now I'm not usually of the timid nature, but early in the morning before coffee and cigarettes my mind and courage isn't at best functioning very clearly. Therefore I hesitated somewhat before sticking my nose back under the couch.

When I did look more closely, I made out the form of one very large motley colored, crouched tomcat. Where he came from, I still don't know but I was more concerned as to where he was going and how.

Well, I got out a bowl of milk and set it on the floor and then sat down with a cigarette to figure out what to do next.

After one smoke, it became obvious that this cousin of the bobcat could not be enticed out with a friendly cup of milk, so I lit another cigarette and continued to sit. About that time The Boss came home and I explained as best I could about our visitor. Humph, he said, the house was my domain and if I wanted the cat removed then I had best get it done. As for him he was going back to the office there was some urgent business that he had to see to. And so left brave Boss.

Well, after much chasing about the house, I finally convinced our guest that it was time that he left and he did. Things have settled down now to their usual disorganized self but I'm still a little puzzled about the cat and really wouldn't be surprised at what will turn up under the couch tomorrow.

As you may have already guessed I'm running short on letters again. I have only this one and one more to go. This week's letter, although on the short side, has two very good tips for the harried housewife.

Dear Karen, I read all the "hints" in every paper or magazine I can find. There has been the question asked quite often, "How do you remove the colored marks left from tracing paper in home sewing?"

A few days ago while working with a piece of double knit Dacron I decided to do an experiment. I read where pure lemon or orange extract would remove printers ink, so I decided to try it on the marks.

I worked the extract into the material then put it in the washer. It worked beautifully.

By the way, if you use a piece of plastic wrap over your pattern before using the tracing wheel you will find your patterns last much longer.

A Reader, I'm getting desperate again for letters, so even if you don't know how to pinch mums, I would love to hear from you soon, please.

VISIT ESTES
Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Arnold visited during the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Vance Estes, parents of Mrs. Arnold. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold will spend the summer in Albany.

DARLENE STURGIS and her aunt, Mrs. F. F. Schott, show a collection of dolls which were made to look like new by Mrs. Schott. Mrs. Schott, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gray and Darlene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sturgis of Wichita Falls. Mrs. Sturgis is the former Ima Gene Gray.

Doll Repairing Is Rewarding Hobby

A new doll for a little girl is about the best thing that can happen to her, but maybe the next best thing is getting one that is like new.

Mrs. F. F. Schott, of Wichita Falls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gray, has a unique hobby of repairing old dolls and dressing them to look like new ones.

Her niece, Darlene Sturgis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sturgis of Wichita Falls, presented her quite a chore when she came up with 35 dolls, some as old as 10 years.

Although Mrs. Schott says she enjoys doing the work, the reward comes when she sees a "child's eyes light up with delight in seeing her doll fixed."

She styles original dresses for the dolls, creating matching shorts for each outfit. Cutting a pattern from a newspaper is the first step, then she pins it on the dolls to insure a perfect fit.

Mrs. Schott stated that she "made dresses for my nieces' dolls but not for them. I couldn't sew anything big if I tried."

Springtime Is Time For Remodeling Home

Spring is a time for sprucing up, or even remodeling the home, says Jane Berry, Extension housing and home furnishings specialist at Texas A&M University. According to a U. S. Department of Commerce survey, about seven out of every 10 home owners plan to modernize or remodel within the near future.

The upsurge in home improvement and remodeling is closely related to the fact that financing for home modernization has been more readily available than for long-term mortgages. In addition, families have higher incomes and can carry larger home improvement loans. Houses built in the 1950's are beginning to need major repairs and up-dating, and are major targets for renovation work.

If they are satisfied with their present home location, families who need more room may choose to remodel rather than move. In many cases, it's much easier on the family pocketbook to refinance the present home than to buy a new one.

Certain modernizations add value to the home as well as increasing the comfort and livability for family members. Often the increased value will more than offset the cost of the project.

Some of the improvements which would increase livability and enhance the home's value include the addition of an up-to-date kitchen and appliances and an extra bath. The conversion of a porch or attic space to a living or bedroom will increase interior living space and will appeal to many prospective buyers.

An adequate wiring system with the capacity to take care of present and future electrical installations is a wise investment for any homeowner. Reliable heating and cooling systems will enhance both the value and the comfort of any home.

The exterior appearance of the home can foster family pride and attract a potential buyer if periodic investments are made for painting, roofing, siding, or other maintenance or repair work.

The wise homeowner will protect his housing investment by caring for those small but important annual maintenance jobs, concludes the specialist.
