Violence begins again in northwestern Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Kurdish rebels killed an army commander and 21 troops in heavy fighting near the town of Saqez in northwestern Iran today as Arab militants in Khuzestan threatened renewed violence in their oil-rich province to the south, the official Pars news agency reported.

Pars did not identify the dead commander of the 28th division, but added that 15 soldiers were also wounded in the action near Saquez. It gave no casualty figures for the Kurds. Pars said 11 troops and 75 rebels were killed in clashes Wednesday.

It said the 28th division, based in Sanandaj 100 miles south of Saqez, was rushed to the area after heavy fighting broke out between government forces and the Kurdish rebels, who are battling for more self rule.

Pars also reported ethnic Arabs in Khuzestan issued warnings that if their spiritual leader, Sheik Shobeir Khaqani, is not permitted to return to the province by Saturday, "we will react strongly."

The type of action was not specified but, the Arab minority in Khuzestan has already sabotaged oil installations and fought bloody battles with government troops in their quest for more autonomy.

Khaqani was whisked away by revolutionary guards from his home in the major port city of Khorramshahr in July after Arab militants clashed with government forces.

Khaqani and his family were reported to have been taken to the holy city of Qom, headquarters of Iran's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, 100 miles south of Tehran. He has not been heard from since.

Khomeini warned the Kurds and Arabs today against further violence and told his own troops they will face revolutionary courts if they disobey orders to crush the uprisings. Three more executions also were reported, bringing the toll since February to 452.

Khomeini told the outlawed Kurdish Democratic Party and other "unclean" organizations, "If you surrender, hand in your weapons and join Islam, you will be forgiven. Otherwise, if you continue your efforts against the people, you will suffer the consequences."

Howard County probationer faces federal drug charges

By DON WOODS

Federal drug charges hit Howard County probationer Edmundo Lozano in El Paso this month. He was on parole from a mail fraud sentence in which he was defended by the late El Paso attorney Lee Chagra.

Lozano now faces a federal jury for the charges, deportation hearing, parole violation and Howard County probation revocation.

The federal indictment lists one count of conspiracy to possess heroin with intent to distribute and seven counts of use of the telephone to distribute a controlled substance. U.S. Marshal Terry Curry said the amount of heroin was two kilograms, or about four-and-a-half pounds.

Charges were filed July 11 and his arrest was made July 27 in El Paso. A detainer was placed on him for Howard County and bond was set at $35,000. He is still in custody.

He was arrested with El Paso attorney Joe Reyes Sr. His son, Joe Reyes Jr., has represented Lozano previously in legal matters. Joe Reyes Sr. is also named in the federal drug indictment.

Lozano is a Mexican alien. The Immigration and Naturalization Service will attempt to hold a deportation hearing. Lozano was born in Juarez.

He was convicted of mail fraud Feb. 6, 1978 and sentenced to five years on four counts to run concurrently. He was released on parole June 12, 1979.

Curry was one of the five men who arrested Lozano for mail fraud. An ounce of heroin was allegedly found in his right front pants pocket but the charge was dismissed.

He was arrested in his home in El Paso, said Curry, and officers expected resistance, but received none.

If Lozano is imprisoned for the federal drug charges a detainer from Howard County will accompany him.

When his term is finished, he may have to resume serving time on his probated Howard County sentence.

If he demands a fast and speedy trial on the Howard County revocation of probation charge, though, he will be taken from prison and tried in Howard County.

The original Howard County arrest occured at 1:50 a.m. Sept. 9, 1975 when Lozano's 1970 Chevrolet two-door was stopped five miles west of Big Spring by Department of Public Safety Trooper Bill Priest for speeding 72 mph in a 55. Priest took from Lozano's mouth a small packet of heroin weighing one ounce.

Lozano entered a guilty plea to possession of a controlled substance in 118th District Court the same day and received a ten-year probated sentence and was released. He had $919 on him and paid the $23 speeding ticket from the money. He was being supervised by the El Paso probation office.

Says Mitchem, of service he yielded

'It's a losing proposition'

By EILEEN McGUIRE

The Big Spring City Council will consider an increase in local taxi service rates at its next meeting Tuesday, but the possible increase comes too late for David Mitchem.

At a city council meeting earlier this summer, Mitchem and G.B. (Bill) Lee of Midland were both given authority by the City Council to operate competing taxi services in Big Spring.

Mitchem became involved in the taxi business when Lee decided to sell his long-time Big Spring company around the first of the year. Mitchem was buying Lee's note when Lee announced an intention to go back into business in Big Spring. Lee operates the taxi service in Midland.

Both men were turned down on a request to increase fares pending the council's investigation into fares charged by other companies in the area. While the city was in the process of making comparisons, Mitchem says he was losing money to the point where "I just couldn't stand it anymore."

Effective at 6 a.m. today, Lee again owns the only taxi service in Big Spring.

"I wanted to keep the company," Mitchem said today. "I bought the note because I wanted to keep the money in Big Spring, instead of having it go to Midland. We don't need any more money leaving Big Spring."

Mitchem said he sold equipment including a 1977 Dodge worth $3400, a 1976 Ford woth $2000, a bay station worth $500 to $600, five meters valued at $100 each, meter hookups at $24 each, and other expensive equipment including radios and cruise lights to Lee for a total of $3500.

"I took a substantial loss," he said.

But Mitchem says he's been losing money all along. He had requested an increase from 95 cents flag drop to $1.25 and from a 50 cent mileage rate to $1 from the city council.

"Just to break even, you have to have a $1.15 drop rate and 70 cents mileage," he said.

He alleged that Lee is able to operate on considerably less because "he gets good rates over in Midland. He's able to put money in new equipment over there and then brings his old equipment over here. I was having to buy mine for Big Spring."

Mitchem, represented by Attorney John Burgess at the city council meeting, says that the city council "said they felt we had the increase coming but they'd have to make some comparisons first."

City Manager Don Davis said today that the comparisons have been made and that the requested increases appear to be reasonable.

The comparison shows flag drop charges at $1.25 for 1-5th mile in San Angelo, $1.15 per 1-5th mile in Midland, 75 cents per ¼ mile in Odessa, 45 cents per 1-5th mile in Lamesa, compared to 95 cents per ¼ mile in Big Spring.

A one-mile mileage rate in the cities are 50 cents in San Angelo, 50 cents in Midland, 60 cents in Odessa, and 30 cents in Lamesa, compared to 50 cents in Big Spring.

Davis said that he believes Midland has increased its rates since the survey. Lee is requesting an increase comparable to Midland's old rates.

Davis said that he realized the standing rates had posed a problem for the Big Spring taxi companies. He also stated that at the time the city council approved two taxi services in Big Spring, he did not believe there was enough business to support more than one.

He said that he didn't believe the city council should arbitrarily control taxi service rates in Big Spring.

"Supply and demand will take care of that," he said. "If he (taxi owner) comes in and asks for an increase, he'll probably get it."

The requested increase for Lee will most likely be granted, according to Davis. For Mitchem, the possible increase comes too late.

"If I'd gotten the increase, I'd still be in business," he said.

'I got my asking price'

"I got my asking price," a purchaser of a 'people's ad' in The Herald said after he sold a pickup truck the second day the advertisement appeared in the newspaper. "I was very pleased with the results."

The subscriber had been careful to list all the attributes of the 1974 Ford F-100 pickup and the asking price, $1,200. He recalled he had 'many calls' about the vehicle.

Those who want prompt action on merchandise they are trying to buy or sell or who offering or seeking service can take the first step by calling the Herald at 263-7331.

U.S. judge won't delay execution

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A federal judge today refused to issue a stay of execution for confessed killer Jesse Bishop, saying the two public defenders who tried to avert next Monday's scheduled execution had no legal standing in the case.

However, U.S. District Judge Harry Claybourne approved an appeal of his decision and that appeal was expected to be heard by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco on Friday morning.

Bishop, 46, is scheduled go to the gas chamber at Carson City early Monday for the December 1977 slaying of a newlywed Baltimore man who was shot as he tried to stop a robbery at a Las Vegas Strip casino.

Claybourne told Deputy Clark County public defenders Kirk Lenhard and George Franzen that they had not shown they had "a personal stake in stopping the execution.

BOB LEWIS

Bob Lewis due WTCC honors

Another honor is coming the way of Big Spring's best known raconteur, Bob Lewis.

Better known as "Tumbleweed Smith," Lewis will be one of four persons or institutions receiving Cultural Achievement Awards at a West Texas Chamber of Commerce luncheon in Amarillo Oct. 12.

Lewis' show, "The Sounds of Texas," are carried on over 70 radio stations throughout the state daily.

The luncheon will be one of the highlights of the WTCC's mid-year meeting.

Smith's program preserves the heritage of the state by recording interviews with people.

Another due to be similarly recognized at the luncheon are Mrs. Willie Reed Rowe of Fort Stockton. Mrs. Rowe specializes in etchings and some of her work has been exhibited at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

Special awards will also go to the Carson County Square House Museum of Panhandle and the Lubbock Fine Arts Festival.

A. The oldest is the Katzenjammer Kids, first published Dec. 12, 1897. The most widely distributed is Blondie.

Tops on TV: 20/20

On a night when such worthies as Barney Miller, Angie and The Waltons (all reruns) are featured, probably the best of the television fare is "20-20," a news-feature program hosted by Hugh Downs. It starts at 9 p.m., on ABC. War and political students, however, might prefer the PBS presentation of a continuing series called Rise and Fall of the Third Reich, Part III. Hitler claimed his reich would last a thousand years but it crumbles in this, the final segment. The show begins at 8:10 p.m.

Four 1979 graduates of area high schools are recipients of Permian Honor Scholarships for the fall semester at Howard College, announced J. Conrad Dunagan, chairman of the board at Permian Coca-Cola Bottling Company.

Receiving these scholarships are Cecil Wayne Bynum, Cynthia A. Cowan and Michael Evans, all of Big Spring; and Beth Boeker, of Forsan.

Bynum plans to major in agriculture. He was president of the F.F.A. and vice president of District F.F.A. He was also a member of the National Honor Society.

Miss Cowan plans to major in chemistry. She was a member of the varsity cheerleading squad, secretary of The Student Council, vice president of the French Club, All-State Choir and on the speech team.

Each will receive $1,200 ($150 per semester) if they elect to attend an area community college and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin during four years of undergraduate study.

Permian Honor Scholars are chosen from among the upper quartile of their high school graduating classes on the basis of class rank and college entrance examination scores.

Permian Honor Scholarships are provided to these highly qualified students who wish to stay in the Permian Basin area while obtaining a bachelor's degree by local and area-wide business and professional people who have formed the Permian Merit Scholarship Foundation, Inc. to award these and the Permian Presidential Scholarships to area high school graduates.

Among those firms and individuals sponsoring 1979 Howard College entrants are: Cosden Oil and Chemical Company, First National Bank of Big Spring, First National Bank of Odessa, Kent Distributors, Inc., Security State Bank of Big Spring, Texas Electric Service Co., and Permian Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Monahans.

According to J. Conrad Dunagan, president of the Foundation, it is necessary for all high school seniors of 1979-80 who may wish to compete for the 1980 Permian Honor Scholarships to take college entrance exams, either the SAT or the ACT tests.

Students arrange to take these college entrance exams through their high school counselors beginning in September, 1979.

Applicants for the Permian Honor Scholarship who take both the SAT and the ACT tests during the 1979-80 school year may obtain a refund of the cost of both examinations by ordering a copy of their test scores sent directly to The Permian Merit Scholarship Foundation, which has been assigned an identification number by each of these testing agencies.

JUDGED BEST IN MARTIN FAIR
Big Spring's Tom Castle

'Only kind of music I know' pays dividends

By EILEEN McGUIRE

A local man, Tom Castle, 109 Jefferson, fiddled $60 out of the judges during the Martin County Fair, held Aug. 17 and 18 in Stanton.

The 77-year-old retired Howard County rancher entered and won first place in the older fiddlers' division for ages 60 and over. Richardson fiddlers Jim "Texas Shorty" Chancellor and Christi Franklin took the high honors in the 30 and under, and 31 to 60 divisions.

Known by his friends as "Tucky," a name he says was stuck to him by his mother and brother and other family members in his childhood, Castle lulled the judges with the "Roxanna Waltz" and then woke them up with "Ragtime Annie" and "Cotton Patch Rag."

"Just country music" is Castle's brand of fiddlin'. "It's the only kind I know," he says. "Up the Lazy River" is one of his favorite tunes.

Raised in Howard County since the age of 4, Castle said he's been fiddlin' since the age of 15.

"But I never learned to do it the way I want to."

Nevertheless, he's entered and won a lot of contests, including two past Martin County Fair contests and the 50th Old Settler's Reunion fiddlin' contest.

"They gave me a trophy with a "50" on it for the Old Settler's Contest," he said.

Castle is a charter member of the annual Howard-Glasscock Settlers Reunion. "I was there when they got started," he said.

Castle moved into Big Spring from Knott in 1969 when he retired from farming. While farming, Castle made some extra money with his fiddle.

"I've recorded some," he said, but his professional fiddle playing was mostly on television and radio.

"I played in commercials for a radio station in Lamesa back in 1943," he said.

Back in 1933, Castle says he considered going into fiddle playing as a professional career, but "I let Dad talk me out of it."

Castle often plays for his friends at the Kentwood Activity Center where he spends his days now "just enjoying life."

K.W. Ford is charged

Kenneth Wayne Ford, Chapparal Trailer Park 19, and Jimmy Charles Bryant, Chapparal Trailer Park 114, have been charged with the robbery of prominent rancher and oilman D.L. Dorlan.

Ford, 19, was arrested Tuesday at 2 p.m. 10 miles northeast of Big Spring by Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard and Deputy Eddie Owens.

Bond was originally set Tuesday by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin at $20,000 but bond was refused by Heflin Wednesday night. Ford is Dorland's son-in-law.

Bryant was arrested Wednesday at the sheriff's office on robbery charge. Bond was set by Heflin at $20,000.

Dorland's Cadillac, an automatic shotgun and a metal briefcase were recovered.

He was jumped by two masked men early Tuesday as he checked one of his oil leases. Dorland was clubbed on the head in the robbery but walked a half mile to a telephone. The two men fled in his car.

Ford was out of jail on bond on theft and criminal mischief charges when he was arrested for the Dorland robbery.

Texas law states that he may be held without bond if he is on bond from a previous felony arrest. It also says, though, that because Ford is being held without bond he must have a trial within 60 days from the date of his incarceration.

Oil sale okayed to keep good will

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials say the government approved emergency exports of heating oil and kerosene to Iran at least in part to maintain the good will of a nation that ships far greater amounts of oil to the United States.

Questioned at a town meeting in Burlington, Iowa, President Carter said Wednesday the amount of fuel involved is "just a very tiny amount" compared to U.S. imports from Iran.

According to government sources and independent estimates, Iran will be getting about 1 million barrels of kerosene and 1 million barrels of heating oil.

With the United States importing about 750,000 barrels of oil daily from Iran, the 2 million barrels headed back to the Persian Gulf country roughly equals the amount of crude oil Iran ships to the United States in three days.

The Energy Department said it recommended approval of the deal "because it was in the national interest of the United States to reciprocate to Iran to meet their relatively small emergency need caused by a temporary refinery problem — especially in light of the large quantities of petroleum which that country exports to the United States."

State Department spokesman Thomas Reston said approval of the export was based on both humanitarian reasons and on U.S. interests in assuring continued access to Iranian oil.

Amerada-Hess, the company handling the deal, would not discuss details of the transaction. But an official said, "We are confident the shipments won't affect our supply of heating oil or kerosene in the United States this winter."

Government sources who asked not to be named said Amerada-Hess promised the Commerce Department in writing it would replace the products sold to Iran by purchases on the world market if that becomes necessary to avoid shortages in the United States.

Energy Department spokesman Hhil Keif said the sale is less than one-tenth of 1 percent of annual heating oil consumption in the United States and would not hamper the government goal of stockpiling 240 million barrels of home heating oil.

He said 175.3 million barrels of heating oil was on hand as of Aug. 10 and that the stockpile "will exceed the 240 million barrel target by 2 million barrels at the end of October."

A pipeline was sabotaged during the rioting in Iran, temporarily reducing refinery production there, causing shortages of heating oil and kerosene, the chief fuel used by many Iranian families.

Fund set up for patient

The Teresa Bacot Fund has been set up at the Coahoma State Bank and the Big Spring First National Bank.

Donations will be accepted for a Howard County resident who suffered grave injuries in an automobile accident earlier this week.

Hospital expenses for the victim will, no doubt, drain the family's finances.

Miss Bacot is in Hendricks Memorial Hospital. Brain surgery was performed on her. She still is in critical condition but doctors see some signs of improvement.

Crop losses set at $15 million

LAMESA — More than 50,000 acres of cotton, valued in excess of $15 million, were heavily damaged in a series of hail storms which swept across Dawson County Monday.

Marble sized hail fell on parts of Lamesa as well as in sections northwest and northeast of town.

Some crops hit north of town by the savage weather had already had problems due to late planting and replanting but others had promised banner yields.

The first storm came from north of Andrews and started about 2 p.m., spreading destruction in a path approximately six miles wide.

Jack Warren had 17 windows knocked out of his residence, along with windows in his car.

A second storm hit about 6 p.m., extending from the Brownfield Highway to the caprock.

ASCS Director Eddie Brown said that at least 20,000 acres of cotton were totally destroyed and more than 50,000 acres suffered varying degrees of losses.

Oddly enough, very little rain fell during the storms. Farms south and east of Lamesa, however, did soak up to two inches of moisture, with very little or no hail.

Work at First Baptist 70 percent complete

The First Baptist Church complex will grow by 42,000 square feet when additions are completed. The church presently embraces 60,000 square feet of enclosed space.

The huge addition to the church is about 70 per cent complete. General contractor is R.B. Sneed, who also built the Citizens Credit Union and Coahoma State Bank structures.

The church is spending $1,125,000 in the enlargement program. Costs have escalated since work got under way on the local church Dec. 15, 1978. First Baptist Church of Abilene recently let a contract for a 36,000 square feet addition at a cost of $2,600,000.

The local addition will include a gymnasium which can be used for basketball, tennis, badminton, volleyball and skating. It will also serve as a Fellowship Hall and can seat 800 diners.

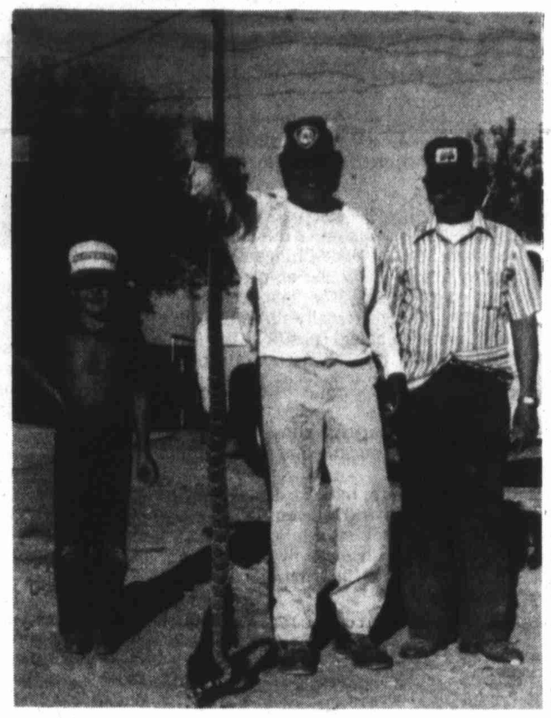

The church board visited facilities at Muskogee, Okla., and Tyler, Tex., before reaching a decision on the extent of construction.

The gymnasium will have a jogging track extended from the ceiling around the walls, and a community kitchen.

Downstairs, there will be facilities for tabletop games, a hobby shop and physical exercise rooms, complete with showers, for both men and women.

There is a parlor area being built back of the chapel. A six-lane bowling facility is also being built within the complex.

The church is located at 705 W. Marcy Drive.

TEXAS-SIZED RATTLER — Julian Valle, (right), Fairview, recently killed this 5-feet-3 rattlesnake in a Gary Stallings pasture 11 miles north of Big Spring. The waspish snake reluctantly yielded 12 rattles. Others in the picture are Neil Stallings (left), age 8; and Saragosa Ochoa, who is holding the snake.

Estes transferred to La Tuna prison

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes has been transferred to the federal prison at La Tuna near this Far West Texas city.

The U.S. Marshal's office said Estes, who faces formal revokation of his parole, was transferred from the Dallas County Jail Wednesday.

Estes was arrested Aug. 16 on an eight-month-old warrant issued by the U.S. Parole Commission. He is to have a hearing before the commission within 90 days of his arrest.

Estes, who spent six years in jail in the late 1960s for a massive West Texas swindle, was convicted July 11 for conspiring to conceal assets from the Internal Revenue Service and for scheming to defraud investors by using forged documents.

Hill Country under thunderstorm warning

Very heavy thunderstorms rolled through the Texas Hill Country early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a severe thunderstorm warning for Kerr County.

Other thunderstorms moved into Southeast Texas before dawn and forecasters said thunderstorm activity lingered throughout the night in West Texas near the Pecos River.

The severe thunderstorm warning for Kerr County came after forecasters sighted an area of very heavy thunderstorms from Fredericksburg to Kerrville to Junction. The area of thunderstorm activity was moving to the south at about 30 mph during the pre-dawn hours.

The National Weather Service received several reports of strong, gusty winds as the thunderstorms moved through the Hill Country and warned that the storms were capable of producing small hail.

Forecasters warned that heavy rain in the Hill Country could cause some flash flooding of low lying or flood prone areas.

Heavy thunderstorms rumbled across much of North Texas and Central Texas late Wednesday, dumping heavy rainfall in some areas. Waco had the heaviest rainfall at a reporting station with 1.25 inches.

High winds accompanied some of the late evening storms, but there were no immediate reports of serious damage.

Forecasts called for scattered thunderstorms in most areas of the state by late afternoon or early evening. Highs were to be mostly in the 90s.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the upper 60s and lower 70s. Extremes ranged from 60 at Amarillo to 81 at Laredo.

Old antagonists have been at it again

Muhammad Ali and Smokin' Joe Frazier put on a better show in their pre-fight posturing.

The Soviets and the Red Chinese are grimacing again at each other and not many are laughing. The old antagonists have been swapping verbal thunderbolts following an armed clash over their mutually extended border.

It's been a year since the last charges and countercharges took place between the countries but the uneasiness and the mistrust have always been there.

China's version is that Russian frontier guards lowered the hammer on a Chinese group innocently inspecting sheep pastures where Sinkiang province meets Soviet Kazakhstan in a remote part of Asia. Peking insists that one of their kind suffered mortal wounds. In addition, a veterinarian was hurt by gunfire.

MOSCOW DOESN'T deny the casualty count but told the story a little differently. Its account had a brave Russian group intercepting a Chinese patrol that had actually penetrated a half mile inside Soviet territory.

Either way, the incident likely would have been restricted to local accounts but for the fact that the propaganda ministries got excited and went to work.

Neither the Chinese nor the Muscovites, however, are ones to make a big flap over very little for no reason at all. It does not take a true student of international politics to suggest that what is involved here is jockeying for position preliminary to upcoming talks on improving Sino-Soviet relations, for which there is plenty of room.

Moscow has been pressuring for a "serious and positive Soviet-Chinese dialogue," in the words of a recent officially inspired Pravda commentary on the subject, for a number of obvious reasons. One would include countering the ongoing Chinese rapproachment with the West and easing the potential military threat to its exposed Siberian flank.

Peking's agreement to the bilateral talks, which may or may not get under way this summer, was accompanied by a demand that the Soviets cease aiding their Vietnamese allies, a condition the Soviets must find impossible to grant and difficult to get around.

Now comes the border clash, first reported by the Chinese in a sharply worded protest. Moscow, in a delayed and muted response, gives every indication of preferring to play it down.

The real issue between the two leading advocates of the socialistic state is not, of course, sheep pastures or aid to allies or even ideological differences between competing schools of communism.

It is territory — Adolph Hitler used to call it 'living space' — the hundreds of thousands of once-Chinese square miles absorbed by the empire-building czars during the last century. Peking, taking a totally nationalistic and non-ideological position on the issue, wants the territorial question reopened. Moscow refuses to discuss it.

In this situation, silence is not golden but a guarantee of continuing friction.

It takes two to make a dialogue, as Ali and Frazier will tell you.

What Sino-Soviet relations at the present demonstrate is that it is a lot easier to start a fight than an honest discussion.

Tired of approach

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

"Good evening, Mam. Is your husband at home?"

"I'm the head of this household."

"Ohhh, I'm sorry, Mam. I'm only speaking to married couples tonight. Maybe I'll catch you the next time I come around after you are married." (wink).

Was I just insulted? Or, how about:

"Which McGuire are you?"

"Eileen McGuire."

"No, I mean who is your husband?"

"DON'T I count?

"I'm so glad to meet you. What does your husband do, dear?"

I confess. He left.

This is a rim I've intended to write for some time, usually immediately following a repeat of an above incident, but I kept putting it off because the issue's importance usually had dwindled by rim-writing time.

After the incident of being greeting with "Is your husband at home?" by what I assume was a door-to-door salesman in recent weeks and then rejected because I wasn't married (left with the hope that the next time he made rounds in my area, maybe, if luck smiled on me, I would be), it is now important enough. That one stuck.

A scattering of children's toys about the yard is, I suppose, a pretty good indication that it is a nice little "nuclear" family that resides within. But not necessarily.

When I was asked to identify the McGuire to whom I belonged, there were no little children or children's belongings laying about. I was working. I assume it was because I am female and past my teenage years that someone took it for granted that I must be married.

How many times has a telephone solicitor asked, "Is Mr. McGuire at home?" I don't know. Why don't you try calling him.

I should feel fortunate. I don't even have to say "No, thank you" to salesmen. They say it to me. Without a Mr. around, I am not worthy of a salesman taking up my time.

But instead, I've begun to take it as a personal affront. The invisible wife becomes even more invisible because she isn't a wife.

WHY DO they assume? I think I figured it out. Salesmen and others apparently feel safer assuming that a woman is married than approaching her as if she isn't. Assuming that a woman is not married is a greater insult than assuming she must be.

Referring to an unknown woman as "Miss" might indicate that the addresser believes she wasn't able to catch a husband. Referring to an unknown woman as "Mrs.", then, would be a compliment, indicating that someone does believe she has the ability to snare one.

Since it is married couples (financially sound people) that salesmen prefer to deal with, I guess they figure the odds are better profit-wise to risk insulting the "poor" (meant both ways) unmarried female than insulting Mrs. Maybe Money.

But instead of assuming, why don't they eliminate all of the risk and just ask "Is there a Mr. McGuire?"

Give me a question that I put a short, simple "no" to instead of a confession — sounding statement that I'm tired of making.

I still won't buy anything. But I'll stop slamming my door.

Dear Sir:

I am writing in regard to employment with your firm. I have a BS from USC and a Ph.D. in physics from the California Institute of Technology.

In my previous position I was in charge of research and development for the Harrington Chemical Co. We did work in thermonuclear energy, laser beam refraction, hydrogen molecule development, and heavy-water computer data.

Several of our research discoveries have been adapted for commercial use, and one particular breakthrough in linear hydraulics is now being used by every oil company in the country.

BECAUSE OF THE cutback in defense orders, the Harrington Co. decided to shut down its research and development department. It is for this reason I am available for immediate employment.

Hoping to hear from you in the near future, I remain

Sincerely yours,
EDWARD KASE

Dear Mr. Kase:

We regret to inform you that we have no positions available for someone of your excellent qualifications. The truth of the matter is that we find you are "overqualified" for any position we might offer you in our organization. Dear Sir:

I am applying for a position with your company in any responsible capacity. I have had a college education and have fiddled around in research and development. Occasionally we have come up with some money-making ideas. I would be willing to start off at a minimal salary to prove my value to your firm.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Kase:

Thank you for your letter of the 15th. Unfortunately, we have no positions at the moment for someone with a college education. Frankly, it is the feeling of everyone here that you are "overqualified," and your experience indicates you would be much happier with a company that could make full use of your talents.

It was kind of you to think of us.

Surgeons careful with heart murmur patients

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 16-year-old girl. I just found out I have to have 10 teeth pulled out. I am going to have this done in a hospital. I also was told I have a heart murmur, and the doctors won't pull the teeth until they find the cause of the murmur. What do my teeth have to do with my heart? — P.H.

You should know your answer by the time you read this, but I will comment for the sake of others who have asked the same question.

The doctors want to determine whether this young girl's heart murmur is "functional" or disease-related. If it is functional, the murmur (extra heart sound) has nothing to do with disease, but is a normal quirk. Some sounds can be related to such factors as over-stimulation, as from caffeine for example, or other outside factors.

On the other hand, if the murmur is related to an infection or scarring from a past infection, the doctors want to be extra careful. If there is a damaged valve, this tissue is more prone to infection, a potential risk during ANY surgery. Antibiotics usually provide protection during and after surgery. The chief risk is of an infection reaching the weakened heart areas. Most murmurs in young people turn out to be harmless functional ones.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please comment on the enclosed clipping. I am 68 and have had prostate trouble for about 10 years, frequent urination, etc. — J.H.

The clipping you sent me is nine years old, so you must have been rummaging around in old magazines to have run across it. The dust settled long ago on the treatment discussed. The drug mentioned (medrogestone) is a progesterone-type hormone, which is useful in treating menstrual problems and for cancer of the breast and uterus. Premature reports often lead to disappointments.

The drug has not been found safe or effective in treating benign prostate enlargement. Up to date treatment of prostate problems is discussed in the little booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 24, and have arthritis. Is it true, as I have heard, that arthritis is more common in women than in men? If so, why? Has it to do with hormones? — Mrs. H.H.

You have to be careful about statistics here, also in use of the term "arthritis." There are many kinds of arthritis. According to the Arthritis Foundation, 31 million Americans have some form of it. About 16 million are women, which is only a slight edge. However, when you get to rheumatoid arthritis, the most serious form, statistics show women outnumber males 3-to-1. That's the arthritis with joint inflammation, which can lead to permanent disability. Many women with rheumatoid arthritis are in their early 20s.

We are not sure why women are more susceptible. Hormones may play a role since some arthritis subsides in some women during pregnancy. Other facts contradict this, though. Childhood arthritis, for example, is also more common in girls than boys — at a time when hormones do not seem to be involved. So we just don't know. If we knew about such things we might be closer than we are to a cure. Other possibilities being studied involve the body's immunity mechanisms (one's own tissue causing a kind of allergic reaction). Much work needs to be done, and research does continue.

NOTE TO READERS: I am indebted to an M.D. reader for a solution to the "dinky" caught in the zipper crisis as reported by a reader recently. He writes:

"People with penis entrapment in zippers can get rapid, easy release by carefully snipping off the metal connector at the bottom of the zipper. This allows retrograde opening of the zipper with the desired effect and beats waiting your turn in an emergency room. The embarrassment would be too much for most youngsters. This is a long overdue question." — Reader.

Very carefully

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I can't see why you Christians are so narrow-minded as to think you have the truth. There are lots of other religions in the world that ought to be just as good. — D.M.

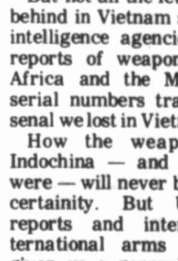

DEAR D.M.: If I believed that Jesus was just another religious teacher who spent His life to find out about God, then I would have to agree with you.

But what if Jesus is more than a great religious teacher? What if He is not just a god-like man, but is God Himself come in human form? If that is true, then Jesus is completely different from all the other religious leaders who have ever lived.

This is, in fact, what Jesus claimed for Himself. Repeatedly in the four Gospels which tell of His life He states that He is unique, because He alone is God. His birth was seen as a fulfillment of prophecy: "The virgin will be with child and will give birth to a son, and they will call him Immanuel — which means, 'God with us' " (Matthew 1:23, New International Version). His enemies tried to kill Him because "he was even calling God his own Father, making himself equal with God" (John 5:18, NIV).

Why do Christians believe Jesus was the Son of God, who alone can reveal God to us perfectly? After all (you may say) anyone could claim to be God. But Christians believe Jesus was the unique Son of God because He not only claimed it and demonstrated it in His life and miracles, but because He rose from the dead. This makes Him unique, and verifies that He is worthy of our trust and our commitment.

I invite you to give your life to Jesus Christ without reserve because you can know — if you really want to know — that He is "the way and the truth and the life" (John 14:6). He came to deal with our greatest problem, our sins, and by trusting Him you can be saved. I challenge you to investigate the claims of Christ. I believe that if you do, you will say, like the disciple who at first did not believe either, "My Lord and my God!" (John 20:28).

Weapons turn up

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Years after the United States pulled out of Vietnam, American weapons abandoned there are still killing people in various parts of the world. The $5 billion worth of arms and ammunition captured by the North Vietnamese in the spring of 1975 are a valuable commodity in this violent world.

At first, U.S. officials were concerned that Hanoi would use the American munitions to support communist insurgents throughout Southeast Asia, either directly or with the proceeds from selling the arms. But the Vietnamese generals decided to hang onto the great bulk of the windfall arsenal; they have since turned the arms against the Cambodians and Chinese.

"The Vietnamese can utilize all the weapons they have," a Defense Department official told us. "It's doubtful they're in any mood to sell now."

INTELLIGENCE AGENCIES estimate that about $3 billion worth of the U.S. arms in Vietnamese hands is still usable. Obviously some of it has deteriorated from the years of storage — as indicated by an angry editorial in the Hanoi press denouncing workers who let unattended equipment rust.

Lack of spare parts is another problem. Hanoi has even approached the Japanese seeking private firms to repair the captured American aircraft, one intelligence report noted.

But not all the lethal legacy we left behind in Vietnam stayed there. U.S. intelligence agencies have received reports of weapons turning up in Africa and the Middle East, with serial numbers traceable to the arsenal we lost in Vietnam.

How the weapons got out of Indochina — and how many there were — will never be known with any certainity. But U.S. intelligence reports and interviews with international arms merchants have given us a general picture of what happened.

In the confusion of the war's end, both North and South Vietnamese officials — and some Americans — smuggled quantities of arms to other locations in Southeast Asia, primarily Laos, where administrative controls were loose.

From there, the arms traffic took on the hugger-mugger aspects of a spy novel. Black marketeers contacted Libyans, Palestinians, South Africans or anyone else who might have been interested in the deadly merchandise. Secret maps circulated, showing the arms caches marked in red. Arms merchants say that at least six persons engaged in the back-alley trade wound up murdered.

One secret FBI report tells of "a ring of unscrupulous arms dealers who have access to a large quantity of U.S. arms smuggled from Vietnam." The report says this ring has weapons for sale involving "a quantity of 250,000 M-16 rifles," with a value of at least $23 million.

U.S. OFFICIALS caution against acccpting all the tales of blood-and-guts violence and treasure troves of munitions. They note that arms merchants are notorious wheeler-dealers, who are not above exaggerating the risk involved to jack up the sale price — or even cooking up imaginary arms caches to hoodwink gullible customers.

The FBI files contain several examples of such international confidence games. One involved an American named Edward Loyd, who persuaded the Libyan government he knew the whereabouts of 50,000 M-16s. Loyd led the Libyans on a wild goose chase in Thailand, spent all his expense money — and failed to come up with any of the rifles.

"There are a lot of people out there with big mouths trying to make a quick buck," a State Department official drily told our associate Peter Grant.

Despite the evidence that the lost American arms caches — like the Lost Dutchman gold mine — have become the raw material of con games fabricated by international swindlers, there is no doubt that some of the captured U.S. armaments found their way onto the black market. Too many Vietnam-era American weapons have turned up around the world.

So the killing goes on. And the instruments of death bear the once-proud marking: "Made in U.S.A."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: For decades the conflict between protectionists and free-trade advocates has revolved around the same question: Does foreign trade help or hinder U.S. production? The Congressional Budget Office, reflecting the pressures on congressmen from hometown business and labor leaders suffering from foreign competition, contends that imports have reduced production and caused job losses in the Northeast. But President Carter's trade ambassador, Robert Strauss, insists that the trade agreements have increased exports and created jobs. Strauss reported confidentially to the president that the congressional study was "based on wrong assumptions." He could show, he said, that "there were job gains in the northeastern part of the United States attributable to the agreements."

Employees of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission found out in a hurry what their new boss, James Stone, was like. Stone, the tough former insurance commissioner of Massachusetts, let it be known he would brook none of the nonsense his easygoing predecessor, William Badley, had tolerated.

Dear Editor:

It may be cheap insurance, but the PLO renamed could have a real identity and more than only desert in order to keep the Red bear away. There are biblical lands and grants, but officials who smile on Red Cuban troops in Africa and overlook historic blood spilling by Reds, can't serve the best American interest. Officials of importance should comply with the loyalty oath.

The bear traders so blood spills may end, but atheistic Communism isn't an equal rights world savior. Peaceful industry sans guns is wonderful and greater than hope and wait. Otherwise guns could add up to a holocaust.

Kidnap-murder plot disclosed in testimony

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An FBI sound technician has told jurors of a plot to kidnap and drown Bill Davis, younger brother of murder conspiracy defendant Cullen Davis.

Jerry Hubbell, a Dallas-based FBI agent, testified he had been called in to help investigate a possible kidnapping — a federal offense — on Aug. 18, 1978. Hubbell said Fort Worth agent Ron Jannings told him of the alleged plot to kidnap and kill Bill Davis.

" Cullen Davis was attempting to hire someone to go to Connecticut and have his brother kidnapped and taken to North or South Carolina and drowned in a lake ... or someplace," Hubbell said Jannings told him.

Jannings previously testified that Davis' former crony, David McCrory, approached the FBI in August 1978, saying he had been ordered to arrange mass murders for the millionaire industrialist.

Jannings also said McCrory told him Davis would pay $500,000 for the death of his brother; $200,000 for his ex-wife, Priscilla; and $80,000 each for state district judges Joe Eidson and Tom Cave.

Davis is on trial a second time on charges he tried to hire the murder of Eidson, his divorce judge. A Houston jury deadlocked 8-4 for conviction in the first attempt and a mistrial was declared in January.

Hubbell said he wired McCrory with a secret body recorder on Aug. 18 and helped another agent prepare the technical equipment that taped an Aug. 20 meeting between Davis and McCrory.

According to Hubbell's testimony, the recorder taped to McCrory's back transmitted into another recorder that synchronized sound with images from a viedeo camera hidden in an FBI van near the Davis-McCrory meeting site. Hubbell and other agents monitored the parking lot meeting from a van disguised as a survey company truck.

The van was parked so agents could film the meeting through the back windows, Hubbell said. That plan almost backfired when Davis became curious and tried to peer through blackout curtains while the agents remained frozen inside, one with his pistol drawn.

McCrory had been given certain items "so he could show those items to the defendant ... as a means of proof that the judge had been killed," Hubbell said. That "proof" included Eidson's drivers' license, several identification cards, the alleged "murder weapon" and a faked photograph showing Eidson's ketchup-stained "body."

Agents treated the photograph with a special fluorescent powder — which would rub off and could be spotted under a black light. But McCrory said Davis only held the photograph by the edges and the test failed when Fort Worth police allowed Davis to wash his hands after his arrest.

Davis, 45, said he never saw the photograph. Hubbell also said he secreted a transmitter inside McCrory's car before the Aug. 20 meeting "for the personal safety of Mr. McCrory."

The transmitter, which would have beamed sound into an FBI receiver, malfunctioned. But the agent said it would have been useless, because the meeting took place in Davis' Cadillac.

Civil cases are set for trial

No criminal cases were set at docket call in 118th District Court Tuesday afternoon. Five civil cases were set for trial.

A total of 16 criminal cases were set for docket call and 10 civil cases. In all 16 cases the defendants either will enter guilty pleas, have already entered pleas or were granted continuances.

In a special setting in which District Attorney Rick Hamby has agreed with the lawyer of murder suspect Mary Tillis to try the case on Aug. 29, the case was passed because the star witness had been hospitalized with gunshot wounds last weekend.

The first civil trial set for Monday will involve a client of George Gilkerson, defense attorney for the upcoming probation revocation hearing for Bobby Marquez. Marquez is on probation for marijuana possession.

American Legion proposes SALT II changes

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Legion doesn't like the SALT II treaty the way it reads right now, but it would accept it if a few changes were made, changes it approved at its national convention.

The proposed alterations, which the Legion believes would result in a "genuinely equitable" agreement on nuclear arms limitations between the United States and the Soviet Union, were contained in a resolution unanimously approved by the Legion Wednesday.

Another resolution overwhelmingly approved by the convention offered Legion membership to Vietnam-era veterans previously excluded because they served before passage of the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, considered the official start of the "conflict."

Jack Carey, national commander of the Legion, and U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., offered the convention their points of view concerning the SALT II debate currently raging throughout the country.

"The present SALT treaty does leave the U.S. inferior," Carey said. "The resolution is recommending to the Senate they need to make some changes and test the Soviets."

These changes include limiting Soviet Backfire bomber production, reducing the number of Soviet heavy missile launchers and maintaining a strong U.S. nuclear reserve.

Cranston said his support of the treaty is based primarily on assurances by the joint chiefs of staff and the secretary of defense that America "can do all we need" to remain strong militarily, even with SALT II.

The major issue, Cranston said, is whether Russian compliance with the treaty can be monitored.

"I am convinced it is adequately verifiable," said the Senate majority whip in a news conference before his speech to the convention.

He said it is hard to predict Senate action on the treaty, but added, "I think it will be verified, perhaps by a very big vote."

Cranston also predicted, however, that the Senate would "leave its mark on the treaty" through amendments.

Passage of the resolution changing the membership rules of the Legion came as a surprise to Carey because, in doing so, the delegates rejected a committee recommendation that present rules be maintained.

The resolution opened membership to Vietnam-era veterans who served before Aug. 5, 1964. Previously, veterans who had served prior to that date and after the Korean War were considered to have served in peace time.

The resolution moved the eligibility date back to Dec. 22, 1961, when the first U.S. "adviser" was killed. About 300 Americans died in Vietnam before the Gulf of Tonkin resolution was passed.

The Legion leadership, which worked to defeat the resolution, is still "very traditional," explained Daniel Lambert, a 56-year-old Legion staff member from Orrington, Maine.

"This (the resolution) grew up in the rank and file" and shows a new attitude, an acceptance and pride, toward Vietnam era veterans, he said.

Lambert said he works with Vietnam veterans who aren't eligible for Legion membership or full government benefits because they served before the cutoff date.

"How do you say to this nice guy who lost his leg in Vietnam that he's not eligible to join the Legion?" asked Lambert, who was one of the original Darby's Rangers in World War II and was wounded four times.

Feelings about the Vietnam War have changed, he said.

"People were bleeding before the Gulf of Tonkin," he said. "The whole guilt of Vietnam was placed on the Vietnam veterans."

"I think we were fooled in Vietnam," he said.

Mobil charged with pressure selling

New competition not 'gas war'

DALLAS (AP) — With gasoline lines all but evaporated, service station operators are beginning to compete again, and one Mobil dealer says his supplier is pressuring him to sell all of his increased allocation.

Jerry Etheredge, operator of Promenade Car Care in the suburb of Richardson, said Mobil told him — in a letter dated May 18 — that the gasoline crisis was temporary.

"We recognize that the current hours reduction is due to a temporary product limitation resulting in gasoline being allocated to your location," Etheredge quoted the letter as saying. "However, when your location's allocation permits, or when supply limitations are removed, we fully expect a return to your hours of operation (as contained in the station lease)."

"The minute I got the letter, I was enraged," Etheredge said. He said the letter noted that a Mobil representative had already talked with him about the situation. "That never happened," Etheredge said. "I told them that never happened, and they said, 'Jerry, just be advised that you got the letter.'"

Etheredge said he is receiving 97 percent of the gasoline delivered to him in August 1978, up 12 percent since the beginning of August.

He also contended Mobil's prices are too high and that the company is insensitive to dealers' problems by demanding increased sales.

"The prices are so high to dealers at present, that if we added the Department of Energy allowance of 15.4 percent (profit), that puts us at more than a dollar a gallon for super unleaded right here in Dallas," he said.

Etheredge said the price he must pay Mobil is nearing 79 cents a gallon for regular. "They're going to try to force us to lower our prices and force us to absorb the loss," he said. "They have not done a damn thing to help the dealers."

But Russell Pfaff, Mobil's regional general manager in Chicago, denied Etheredge's allegations.

"Mobil under no circumstances thinks we have a temporary crisis," Pfaff said. He said Mobil charges dealers more than other companies because it provides more fuel. "They (the public) can buy from whomever they please," he said.

Pfaff said Mobil was not "pressuring" dealers to sell their allocations, but was "counseling" them to do so in the interests of base allocation stabilization.

Some dealers already have lowered gasoline prices, but most dealers agree the new competition won't go as far as an all-out "gas war."

"We are very cognizant of the fact of what others are charging," said Sam Davis of Arapaho Village Mobil in Richardson. "There's no wholesale price cutting yet, but some are beginning to watch it."

"I've dropped mine a cent to make them more in line," said W.W. Hughes of Dallas.

Pat Carbone, local spokesman for the Texas Service Station Association, said a real price war would have to be triggered by major oil companies and not by independent dealers.

Carbone said major companies in the past have lowered prices at company-owned stations, forcing independents to do the same to compete.

That contention is disputed by oil company spokesmen, who say they are required by law to charge independents the same price they charge company-owned stations.

"You won't see gas wars as long as there is a shortage," said Max Nalley of Exxon. "Nobody will cut prices on a short supply."

Pricing isn't the only way to compete, though, as some dealers have pointed out. Some have decided to try to woo customers by giving them better service.

Personal attention at the gas pumps harkens back to gas station giveaways and operators who once prided themselves on how quickly they could clean a customer's windshield.

"With the cost of living the way it is, I don't think we can cut prices too much," one dealer said.

Tips to brake inflation

Congressman

Charles W. Stenholm

Congressional Comment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — According to traditional economic thinking, inflation is caused by excess demand in relation to supply and a recession is the result of a decrease in the economic growth rate. Ten years ago most economists would have told you that it was impossible to experience both of these problems at the same time. The Recession of 1975 overturned this concept as we faced double digit inflation and large scale unemployment. Outdated proposals were used to combat "stagflation." The emphasis was placed on stimulating the demand for goods. We printed more money in order to spend more and found ourselves with a much larger Federal debt, and a greater number of Federal programs. The issue of inflation was not inadequately addressed and it is still with us today.

As we now appear headed for another economic downturn, it is time to start planning how we will face the next recession. The Joint Economic Committee (JEC), under the leadership of our own Senator Bentsen, has proposed that more emphasis be placed on the supply side of the economy. With increased production we can promote employment and decrease inflation at the same time. By encouraging businesses to modernize their plant and equipment, more goods will be produced and more workers will be hired.

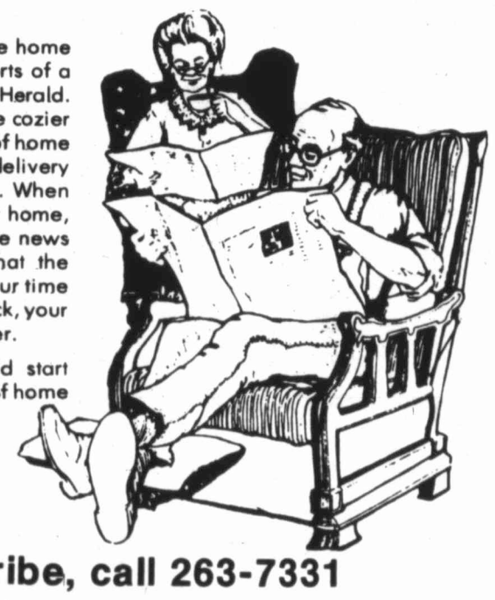

Clearly, we can do better than we have done in the past. The Joint Economic Committee has advocated a responsible plan which I believe should be adopted. These policies include moderation in fiscal and monetary policy to fight inflation. A reduction of tax barriers is needed to improve competitiveness and increase productivity, growth, and employment. Accelerated depreciation rates would allow businesses to invest in new plant and equipment. A liberalized unemployment tax credit would help employers hire more workers. The JEC also called for a concerted effort to reduce redtape and regulation to promote efficiency and speed economic development. It is my belief that my proposed sunset bill would reduce unnecessary government spending and regulation. This legislation would require government programs to be reauthorized by Congress every 10 years or they would go out of existence. Also we should adopt a two-tier regulation system that would relieve some of the compliance costs for small businesses. Traditionally, government regulation has been applied equally to all firms across the board, without regard to the company size or impact on the economy. It is time that the Congress and regulatory agencies provide flexibility in all regulations that would reduced paperwork and compliance costs for small businesses.

A commitment to these goals would do a great deal to improve economic stability at home and improve our leadership position around the world.

Preparing for Howard County Fair

Housewives busy canning, freezing

By MICKIE DICKSON

The late summer and fall seasons herald the harvest of fresh produce from area gardens, whether it's a small area in the back yard, an acre set aside on the cotton farms or vegetables planted on the point rows.

Area housewives are busy canning, freezing and even drying fresh fruits and vegetables for later consumption by family and friends.

Many residents are making preparations for entries in the Howard County Fair, not only in the culinary events, but in all areas. The fair is Sept. 17-22, Monday through Sunday.

Mrs. Joe Mac Gaskins, Knott Community, is the general superintendent over the Women's Department. Mrs. D.H. Griffith, 1619 E. 17th, is chairman of the Women's Activities and will coordinate the women's workers. Bessie Love, 412 Westover, is chairman of the "Over Sixty" exhibitors and Mrs. Lloyd Robinson, Knott Community, is chairman of the youth activities.

All exhibits may be entered from 7:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 17. Judging will begin at 1 p.m. Exhibitors must not pick up exhibits before 10 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 22. Items may be claimed after 10 p.m. Saturday, or Sunday, Sept. 23, between 1 and 5 p.m.

Specific rules for the culinary division are: Canned fruits, vegetables, pickles, and relishes will not be judged unless in regulation jars. All jars must be sealed with rings left on.

Jellies and Jams may be in standard glasses or pint jars. Paraffin will be accepted — all jelly glasses or jars must have tops. No mayonnaise, coffee or old jars will be judged. All jars must be labeled as to contents.

Baked articles must be placed on cardboard circles or squares and must be completely covered with clear cellophane that is taped underneath the cardboard container.

Fair rule books will be available at The County Extension Office on Sept. 1.

No article can be exhibited to compete for more than one award. No professional work will be accepted unless there is a division for such.

Under crafts and hobbies are the Holiday Parade, Metal Craft, Pictures, Flowers and Miscellaneous which includes a doll dressed by the exhibitor, any kind of small toy, leatherwork, wood carving or wood burning, enamel on glass, decoupage, macrame, gold leafing and others.

'A REKINDLING PLACE' — Ken Knudson surveys one of the 12 soundproof, erotic love cottages he calls The Sybaris Inn. What used to be a little ma and pa suburban motel is now an erotic sex spa, complete with waterbed, mirrored ceiling, white fur bedspreads, chocolate-colored sheets, French bidet, stereo and fireplace.

Catering to married couples

Quiet motel now sex spa

DOWNERS GROVE, Ill. (AP) — Ken Knudson has transformed a quiet little mom-and-pop motel into an erotic sex spa with a novel touch that makes trysts downright respectable.

The Sybaris Inn, named after the ancient Greek pleasure city of southern Italy, caters to married couples.

"I'm a great believer in marriage — the concept of living through life with the girl of your choice is such a beautiful thing," says Knudson, 35.

"I believe in being in love with your wife and in rekindling the passion that was there when you got married, before the kids and the bills and all the rest," he said. "The average age of our patrons is 40 and we have some in their 60s.

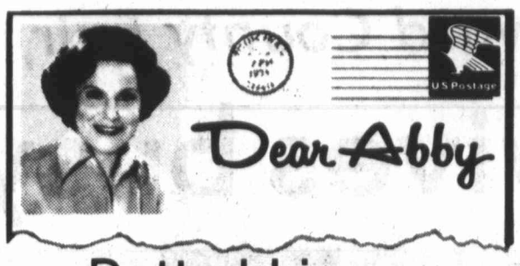

"This is a rekindling place — where they can get away from it all for a new sexual experience. We're pushing romantic marriage here — people doing things they just don't normally do."

For those things not normally done, each unit has a king-size waterbed with a remote control panel and white fur bedspreads and chocolate-colored sheets.

There are mirrors on the ceiling and walls, mood lighting, plush carpeting everywhere, a refrigerator for cooling wine or whatever, adult movies on closed circuit TV, heat lamps, a fireplace, stereo, shower, bath and bidet.

"We don't come right out and ask patrons if they are man and wife, but we know that 90 percent of them are and we try to appeal to that clientele in our advertising," said Knudson.

"Because of what we offer, we get a lot of calls from swingers groups and the like, but we try to discourage them."

Dear Abby

Dotted Line Is Bottom Line

DEAR ABBY: Many couples who live together without marriage say, "We don't need a piece of paper to make our commitment binding. A piece of paper doesn't mean a thing!"

May I point out that when a person buys an automobile he had better have that "piece of paper" or he could be in a lot of trouble.

Also, a driver's license is just "a piece of paper," but you'd better not be caught driving without it.

And when a person buys a home, or any other piece of property, he makes sure he has that "piece of paper."

And when a person graduates from high school, college or a trade school, that "piece of paper" can make the difference between getting a job and not getting one.

We live our lives with pieces of paper, beginning with a birth certificate and ending with a death certificate. And let's not forget the will—another very important piece of paper.

So when I hear people say, "A piece of paper doesn't mean a thing," I'm reminded of the classic old adage: "Ignorance is bliss."

PAPER IS PROOF

DEAR PAPER: Granted, written documentation makes life immeasurably less complicated, but common-law marriages have been recognized as legal and binding for a long time in some states.

Forgive my pickiness, but the "classic old adage" you refer to is not "ignorance is bliss." It's "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." ("Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College" by Thomas Gray.)

DEAR ABBY: I feel like a silly adolescent writing to you about this, but I've always respected your advice.

I'm a 26-year-old woman, never married, who is currently dating a man my age who is in the same boat.

I care about him, but here's the problem. He doesn't kiss very well. To be honest about it, the man just doesn't know how to kiss at all.

Please don't tell me to talk to him about it. I just couldn't. I'm afraid his feelings might be hurt and I'd never see him again. I am very much attracted to him and, given a chance, I think we might be good for each other. Please help.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You need not tell him anything. Show him by kissing him the way you want to be kissed. Unless he's a total lummox, he'll catch on.

CNFIDENTIAL TO "YOUNG PHILOSOPHER IN KODIAK, ALASKA": To quote an ancient philosopher, Buddha: "Believe nothing, no matter where you read it, or who said it, no matter if I have said it, unless it agrees with your own reason and your own common sense."

Joni Jones feted at kitchen shower

Joni Jones, bride-elect of Steve Hodges, was honored at a kitchen shower Tuesday evening at the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

The refreshment table was covered with yellow cloth overlaid with lace. Crystal appointments were used. Silk yellow flowers with a crystal sphere candle centerpiece decorated the table.

Rev. and Mrs. Sparks honored at luncheon

Members of United Foursquare Women honored the Rev. and Mrs. Willis Sparks Aug. 19 with a surprise luncheon in recognition of the couple's 47th wedding anniversary.

Sally (Billie) Crager and Willis Sparks were married in Ballinger in 1932 after which they lived and farmed in the Valley View community for several years.

Prior to entering United Foursquare LIFE Bible College in 1937 in Los Angeles, Calif., Rev. Sparks worked as a builder in Ballinger.

Upon graduating from the college, he entered military service in 1943 and served until 1945. He participated in basic training at Camp Fannin located in Tyler. He then served over seas.

In 1951, the couple pioneered the Foursquare Church in Odessa. Rev. Sparks later pastored in Abilene where he built two Foursquare churches from 1957-1963.

The couple came to the United Foursquare Church in Big Spring Nov. 1, 1978.

They have three children, Mrs. Jeannette Stephens Scantlin, Joe Dale Sparks and Dewayne Sparks. They have five grandchildren.

The United Foursquare Women presented Rev. and Mrs. Sparks with a boutonniere and corsage of yellow carnations prior to the morning service.

They were presented a set of silverware at the luncheon.

The tiered wedding cake was decorated with miniature roses of various colors. Thirty-five attended the event.

Special guest attending was Susan Sparks, Houston, granddaughter of the couple.

Teen has cure for depression

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: The column you wrote on "Depression Strikes Teens Hard" really helped me. Stupid things used to ruin my day. If I saw my boyfriend talking to another girl my day would be totally shot.

But as you said, when you seem depressed, go out and do something. I do. I go out and buy things and I forget my problems.

Thanks for a great column. — Stacey, Astoria, Ore.

Stacey: Thanks for the kind words and I'm sure the stores in Astoria are glad you read this column.

Dr. Wallace: I'm in ninth grade and very much in love with Larry, a junior in high school. We had both agreed to date others because we are both so young. When we do this we always seem to come back to each other.

My problem is that I can't figure out why he likes me and not all of those other girls. Why am I special?

He's on the football team and girls are constantly bounding him.

We've known each other for six years and he's very special to me, but I feel unsure as to why he likes me better than the high school girls. Can you answer this? — Kaye, Vancouver, Wash.

Kaye: He likes you better because you are intelligent, mature, charming, cute, poised, have a great sense of humor and are a great date.

You don't have a problem. All the other unlucky girls do.

Dr. Wallace: I'm going to be in junior high school in September and I've been dating a girl who will be in the fifth grade. I won't be able to keep an eye on her because we will be in different schools. This bothers me because she is a flirt. What shall I do? — Rick, La Habra, Calif.

Dangerous inmates escape from Maryland institution

Eddie, come home. We forgive you for using your fathers hand tooled genuine leather Cowboy boots to hammer nails into your tree-house. See Classifieds, C-5

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — Thirty inmates described as dangerous broke out of the Maryland House of Corrections, then scattered across the Baltimore-Washington area early today pursued by state and local police aided by patrol dogs, authorities said. Thirteen were reported in custody within hours.

Sgt. Hugh K. McCormick said the men escaped by cutting through a bar and a security screen. He said they scaled a 15-foot wall and three security fences in fleeing the prison.

Trooper Ron Price said inmates were spotted as far away as Prince Georges County, a suburb of Washington, D.C., about 20 miles southwest of Jessup. It was the second biggest jailbreak in the state's history.

Other convicts — all dressed in civilian clothes — were sighted in Howard, Baltimore and Anne Arundel counties and in the city of Baltimore, about 10 miles from the prison, he said. One escapee was reported caught in Virginia.

Bill Clark, a state police spokesman, said state and local police flooded the Baltimore-Washington area looking for the men.

"We don't know who these men are, nor what they are charged with, so we're urging motorists not to pick up hitchhikers," he said.

Price said the inmates were easy to spot. "They're walking along the side of the roads and when they see a police car, they take off running into the woods," he said.

There was no immediate comment from prison officials.

The state's largest prison escape occurred in April 1959 at the Patuxent Institute, a juvenile facility, also located in Jessup. Thirty-four inmates broke out at that time.

Among the first men captured, two were caught on the nearby Baltimore-Washington Parkway; one near the Baltimore-Washington International Airport; and another in Baltimore, said McCormick.

Clark said police were first notified of the escape around 11:30 p.m. Wednesday when prison officials reported six men missing.

"They took a bed check and found out there were about 30 missing," he said, adding that police were notified of the increased number about 1:30 a.m.

Nearly 100 state police troopers and an unknown number of local and municipal police were assisting in the search which was concentrated in the Howard County and Jessup areas. In addition, dog patrols from Anne Arundel County police were being used.

The state's prison system has been under fire from correctional officers who say facilities are critically understaffed and that guards lack adequate training.

They have also attacked the state for cutbacks in funding.

"We've picketed and demonstrated throughout the summer to get the public's attention on the plight of guards in the correctional institutions," said Edward Davis, president of the guards' union local at the Maryland House of Corrections.

Burglary charges dropped

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The state of Delaware today dropped all robbery charges against the Rev. Bernard T. Pagano, a Roman Catholic priest who was on trial as the alleged "Gentleman Bandit." His trial had been halted Monday when another man admitted involvement in the holdups.

Ronald Clouser, of Brookhaven, Pa., pleaded guilty before Superior Court Judge Andrew D. Christie to three charges of second-degree robbery in connection with three of the holdups which occurred in northern Delaware earlier this year.

"He feels compelled for moral reasons to enter the pleas," said Marsha Kramarck, a public defender appointed to Clouser's case.

But under the terms of the prosecution action, if any further evidence comes up against Pagano, he can be charged again and retried in connection with the holdups.

The proceedings were conducted outside the presence of the jury.

State prosecutors offered their apologies to Pagano, who had no immediate comment.

"The defendant wishes to plead guilty because he is guilty,—he wishes to right a wrong," said Saul Segan, Clouser's attorney in Pennsylvania, where Clouser had eaarlier pleaded guilty to three other armed robberies.

As part of Clouser's plea agreement, the state of Delaware said it would not proceed with any other possible charges against Clouser.

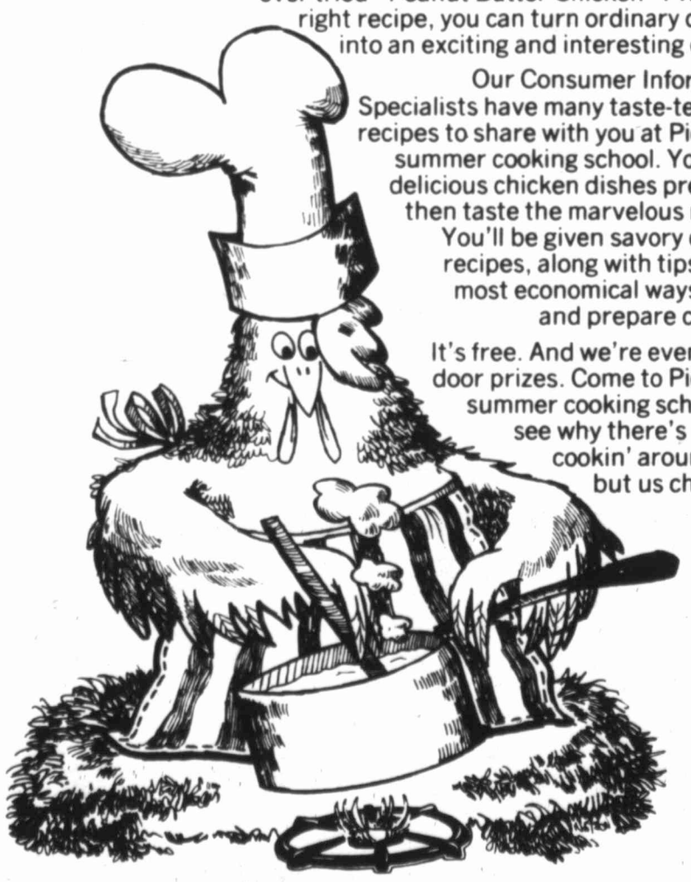

There were five armed robberies and one attempt attributed to the Gentleman Bandit, so named because he was polite and well-dressed.

Community pep rally slated tomorrow

Steers stressing conditioning

The Big Spring Steers continue to stress conditioning and responsibilities as Coach Ron Logback's crew culminates their two-a-day drills in shorts tonight. The Bovines will don pads tomorrow morning and will work twice daily on Friday and Saturday.

The Steers reported in what Logback described as fair shape, but since then have worked extremely hard on conditioning and appear to be much further along than last year at this time.

Following each session daily, all members of the team must run a 12 minute mile. This task, extremely difficult considering that the athletes have just completed a rigorous practice, has displayed the improvement daily of the team. Last night, only one member of the team failed to make six laps in the 12-minutes, with many making eight laps.

Logback and his staff, limited without pads, have stressed both offensive and defensive responsibility thus far, along with offensive timing, and the troops have responded enthusiastically.

The offensive lineman have concentrated thus far on adjusting to various defenses that they might see throughout the year.

"Thus far," Logback stated earlier today, "we have looked much better than last year. The kids seem to have a lot of confidence in themselves. Our backs have all looked good."

Logback also expressed appreciation of the support that local businessman and other townspeople have displayed thus far. Coming off an 0-10 season, many people would normally not support the football team or the athletic program, but this has not been the case. Support like this can do nothing but encourage the athletes and coaching staff, as well.

The team works daily at 8:00 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. on the Steer practice field across from the YMCA.

The Big Spring High School Steer Band, the Gold Diggers, the football, basketball, volleyball teams and their coaches will appear at the Back-to-School Pep Rally for everyone to meet along with the BSHS cheerleaders who will lead everyone in a gigantic community pep rally for the forthcoming 1979 football season.

Other persons who are Big Spring High School Athletic Program and those persons who have contributed to the BSHS Athletic Program will be special guests on the program.

Carl Coleman and Pat Murphy, former head football coaches of the Big Spring Steers, will be among the special guests. Coleman led the Big Spring Steers in 1953 to the state finals and Pat Murphy, earlier, led the Big Spring Steers to a district championship.

Coach Harold Wilder, head basketball coach at Howard College, has a strong interest in the BSHS Athletic Program and will, also, be a special guest on the program.

Larry Miller and Larry Sheppard, local businessmen and civic leaders, will appear on the program for having contributed their time to the support of the BSHS Athletic Program.

Craig Fischer, assistant high school principal, will direct the pep rally.

The Back-to-School Pep Rally was initiated three years ago as part of the Starlight Specials, sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, to stimulate interest and support of the Big Spring people and the student body of the high school for the coming football season of each year.

This is to be the final Starlight Specials program for the 1979 summer season.

Astros take 3-1 win over Mets

J.R. Richard the stopper again

NEW YORK (AP) — J.R. Richard, Houston's hard-throwing right-hander, believes if the Astros don't win the National League West, it won't be because they choked.

"We've got a good ballclub. We've got a good chance to win the division, and I know we're not going to choke," Richard said Wednesday after pitching the Astros to a 3-1 victory over the New York Mets.

"If we don't win it, it'll be because we don't have the talent."

Richard took a five-hit shutout into the ninth inning against the Mets, before finally yielding two more hits and a run on Doug Flynn's RBI grounder to third.

"I had a bad first half, but I think having a good second half will really help this team's chances of winning," said Richard, normally a fast closer. "I had good stuff today, and I think my rhythm has been a lot better in the second half of the season."

Richard struck out 10 — the ninth time this season he has struck out 10 or more in a game — and walked only two. He walked the leadoff batter in the game, Frank Taveras, and another in the third. From there, his control was impeccable.

Richard got offensive support from Jose Cruz, who homered in the second, and Jeff Leonard, who added a two-run single in the ninth.

It was Leonard who figured prominently in a game protested by Astros Manager Bill Virdon the evening before. That game had to be replayed from the point of protest before Wednesday's afternoon game.

With two out in the ninth inning Tuesday night and the Astros behind the Mets 5-0, Leonard singled. However, after a protest from Mets Manager Joe Torre, home plate umpire Frank Pulli ruled that the single did not count because the Mets did not have a first baseman on the field.

Just before the single, Leonard had flied out to center field, but Pulli also negated that play, saying time had been called. Thinking that the game was over, however, the Mets left the field. All but first baseman Ed Kranepool had returned when Leonard singled.

National League President Chub Feeney ruled in favor of Virdon, saying the umpires had made a mistake in penalizing the Astros, and the Mets were in error for not getting all their players back on the field.

Kevin Kobel, 5-7, the losing pitcher in the regularly scheduled game, also pitched the final out in the protested game, getting Cruz to ground out. He protected the 5-0 victory, but in the process, Mets left-hander Pete Falcone lost his complete game shutout.

Cruz's solo shot was his seventh of the season and first since July 15. Houston's other two runs scored in the ninth.

With one out, Terry Puhl singled. Cesar Cedeno then lined a single to right, sending Puhl all the way to third. Cedeno stole second, and after Cabell lined to short, Leonard delivered his two-run single.

The Mets tried to get back into it in the ninth. After Richard struck out Ed Kranepool for the second time. Joel Youngblood doubled off the wall in left-center. Catcher Ron Hodges then reached on an error by second baseman Julio Gonzalez, and Sergio Ferrer came in to run for him.

After Richard struck out Dan Norman for the third time, Flynn bounced one toward third, and Cabell was unable to get to it. The ball rolled into left field as Youngblood scored.

Richard ended the game by striking out pinch-hitter Alex Trevino.

Virdon was asked if he considered replacing Richard after Flynn's hit.

Baseball Roundup

Lemon's return sparks White Sox

Chet Lemon's one-day walkout ended just as suddenly as it began — much to the chagrin of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Lemon, who walked out on the Chicago White Sox prior to Tuesday night's double-header, came back Wednesday night and slapped a tie-breaking eighth-inning single to give his team a 4-3 triumph and snap the Brewers' four-game winning streak.

"It was like a stage set — like a movie — me getting the winning hit after what happened," said Lemon, who walked out during batting practice, reportedly because he wasn't allowed to take his swings before Wayne Nordhagen and Alan Bannister. "It's a great feeling to come back and help the ball club win because I watched the guys lose a doubleheader here on television last Tuesday night."

It was the Brewers' turn to be solemn after Lemon's hit drove in Lamar Johnson to snap a 3-3 tie and leave Milwaukee 6½ games behind firstplace Baltimore — nine games in the loss column — in the American League's East Division.

Red Sox 9, Twins 4

Jim Rice and Fred Lynn drove in runs to help Bob Stanley win his first game since the All-Star break as Boston pounded Minnesota in a game washed out after eight innings.

Lynn collected his 106th RBI of the season with a seventh-inning double and Rice delivered a first-inning run with a single, raising his total to 102. California's Don Baylor leads the majors with 110.

Meanwhile, Carl Yastrzemski celebrated his 40th birthday with two singles, raising his lifetime total to 2,987 hits and tying him for 15th place on the all-time hit list.

After the eighth inning, a storm flooded the playing field. The umpires waited one hour, 27 minutes before cancelling further play.

Mariners 6, Blue Jays 3

Larry Cox and Ruppert Jones each hit two-run homers to power Seattle past Toronto.

Indians 13, Angels 3

Mike Hargrove, Rick Manning, Bobby Bonds and Toby Harrah had three hits each in the 18-hit Cleveland attack that buried the Angels. Indians started Dan Spillner, 8-3, gave up just five hits, including a solo homer by Rick Miller in the third and a two-run shot by Willie Mays Aikens in the ninth.

Tigers 3, A's 1

Alan Trammel's third homer of the season, a two-run shot in the first inning, helped carry Detroit past Oakland.

Royals 3, Yankees 1

George Brett drove in two runs to back the five-hit pitching of Larry Gura and carry Kansas City past New York.

Cardinals 8, Padres 5

Ted Simmons belted his 21st homer and Keith Hernandez doubled twice and drove home two runs, helping St. Louis beat San Diego.

The Cardinals, aided by a Padres error, scored four times before loser Bob Owchinko, 4-8, retired a batter. Rookie John Fulgham posted his sixth victory in 10 decisions while scattering 13 hits.

Reds 7, Expos 2

Johnny Bench became the Cincinnati Reds' all-time home run leader with a three-run, fourth-inning homer that paced the Reds over Montreal.

It was Bench's 15th home run of the season and his 325th as a Red, one more than Frank Robinson. Bench became the club's all-time RBI leader earlier this season.

Mike LaCoss, 14-5, scattered eight hits for the victory, and Steve Rogers, 11-8, was the loser.

Offers resignation to Indiana University

Knight found guilty, sentenced

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Hot tempered, outspoken, and often surprising Bobby Knight is up to his neck in controversy again.

While Puerto Rico tried to decide whether to seek his extradition on an assault conviction, Knight offered to resign Wednesday as Indiana University's head basketball coach.

Knight was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 earlier Wednesday after he was found guilty of slugging a Puerto Rican policeman in the face during last month's Pan American Games.

"I offered my resignation at Indiana University because the university has to have the opportunity to do what it freely and clearly thinks is best for Indiana University," said Knight. "It isn't my desire to do anything other than coach basketball at Indiana University. That isn't mine to say."

Knight made his remarks in a telephone conversation with Indianapolis Star Sports Editor Bob Collins from an undisclosed location in Montana where he is vacationing.

Knight's sudden actions took everyone — including university officials by surprise.

"I really don't have any comment," said IU Vice President Edward Williams. "Any comment would have to come from the president Dr. John Ryan. Resignations of coaches are the president's business, not mine."

Ryan could not be reached for comment. Williams would not say if he had spoken with Knight in the last few days.

Despite Knight's resignation offer, it was unlikely that university officials would accept it.

Knight was not present at his trial for the incident involving policeman Juan de Silva. District Court Judge Rurico Rivera postponed imposition of the sentence until Aug. 27.

A spokesman for the Puerto Rican Justice Department declined to comment on whether the government will try to extradite Knight. One department source said local authorities probably will not ask for his return to the island because he's not wanted there.

A spokesman for the office of Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen has said the governor "indicated he would not be willing to allow Bobby Knight to be extradited."

Under Puerto Rican law Knight was allowed to stand trial in absentia.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Work out every detail in a course of action you are considering and get dramatic results. Don't get involved in any strange and unreliable facets that you know little about.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can accomplish a great deal now, provided you do not run off on some tangent. Solve problems by getting into the details.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve appearance and acquire more prestige. Show special attention to mate, loved one and see good results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Pay more attention than usual to conditions at your abode and improve them. Don't permit an outsider to interfere in home harmony, but use tact.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Pay more attention to your driving and avoid possible accidents. You have excellent ideas that should be discussed with partners.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy at important affairs and forget recreation that could be costly and cause you to lose out where it counts the most.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show that you are busy so that others don't waste your time foolishly. Later be with good friends and be happy at a mutual activity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle routine chores without delay and clear the slate for other matters. Go to an expert for any advice you need at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good friends can be of assistance to you now if you contact them early. Avoid those who cause you to be extravagant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take care of business and outside tasks early. Try to please bigwigs more. Have all the facts and figures before tackling credit matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Work out new ideas to your satisfaction, even if you have doubts about them at first. Be loyal to new allies as well as the old. Take that chip off your shoulder.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of the work ahead of you. Be sure to keep promises to others, but avoid gossips. Be more attentive to mate, loved one and don't be stingy with affection.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have long talks with associates and gain added cooperation. Get advice from a community bigwig that can be helpful to you and follow it.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will want to be perfect in any line of endeavor that is the forte here. Teach early to criticize less and to listen to views of others more. There could be a fine artist in this chart.

But face opposition from Houston, Cleveland and Cincinnati

Steelers favored in AFC Central

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In Pittsburgh, the Steelers have three Super Bowl titles and potentially their best team ever. But you can't even wrap fish in day-old potential.

In Houston, the Oilers have Earl Campbell, the National Football League Rookie of the Year and rushing champion in 1978 — but it remains to be seen whether the Oilers match their 1978 success.

In Cleveland, the Browns have made some trades and Greg Pruitt has aired his gripes. But it's a big jump from a .500 season to the playoffs.

In Cincinnati, the Bengals have some prize rookies and hopes for major improvement from their 1978 disaster. But great expectations have gone awry there before.

Those are the teams — and those are the buts — in the Central Division of the American Conference, where Pittsburgh's five straight titles belie the toughness of the competition.

Last season, the Steelers had to win the division twice. They overcame Houston in regular season then had to beat the wild-card Oilers in the AFC title game.

This summer, the Oilers got a two-week jump on Pittsburgh by opening camp July 3. But the Steelers' season may have begun the day after their Super Bowl victory over Dallas.

"I think this football team hasn't reached its potential yet," Coach Chuck Noll said before leaving Miami.

"I hope I can say that after this season, too," he said recently.

Last season, Terry Bradshaw posted career highs in touchdown passes and accolades. "I can't help but get better. I'm still working hard. I don't believe I'm as good as people have been saying," he says.

Last summer, rookie cornerback Ron Johnson was a question mark. So was Joe Greene's back, Mike Wagner's neck, and the overall club attitude.

Those questions marks are gone this year, veteran cornerback J.T. Thomas is back after missing a season with a blood disorder, and No.1 draft pick Greg Hawthorne, a big running back, is among several rookies who'll add depth.

And the Steelers don't sound complacent.

"I'm no Socrates or any philospher, but I think success breeds hunger for more success," says offensive tackle Jon Kolb.

Lynn Swann missed two weeks of camp while fighting a legal battle in San Francisco, but he's back. There are no holdouts and no major injuries.

"This is a team of character and substance. Chuck Noll built it that way," says Greene. "The only thing that can keep us down is injuries. We want it — and we've got the talent."

In Houston last season, Campbell's arrival complemented the passing of Dan Pastorini. "Used to be Dan was like a sword fighter with a pocket knife. Now he has his sword," says Coach Bum Phillips.

The 225-pound Campbell spent the offseason sharpening his stride. "I think I am a step faster," he says.

Might he surpass his rookie total of 1,450 rushing yards?

"I don't have any numbers in the back of my head. But I'm expecting a lot from this guy Earl," said Campbell, shifting to the third person.

Offensive tackle Greg Sampson has been lost for the season after undergoing brain surgery.

The Oilers moved to fill the gap last week when they acquired two-time All-Pro offensive tackle Leon Gray from the New England Patriots in exchange for first-round and sixth-round picks in the 1980 draft.

Houston's rookie newcomers include 275-pound defensive tackle Mike Stensrud and 265-pound defensive end Jesse Baker.

"It's been a long time since I've been with a team that has this kind of potential," says linebacker Steve Kiner. "My rookie year with the Cowboys (1970) was the last time."

In Cleveland, Coach Sam Rutigliano has a precise estimate of what his team, 8-8 last year, will need to make the playoffs.

"It will take 11 wins," said Rutigliano, "While 11 wins may be difficult, I think I am being realistic."

Before camp, running back Greg Pruitt also was precise. He said he wasn't getting enough money, publicity and blocking, and that Brian Sipe might not be a "Super Bowl quarterback."

Later, Pruitt said, "I've seen most of the guys and we've kidded and joked about it ... My attitude is, 'Hey, if you don't like what I said, just go out and prove me wrong.'"

The Browns have made preseason trades for defensive ends Lyle Alzado and Jack Gregory.

"We need experience to win in this league, in this division," said Rutigliano. "This is a pass-rush division."

The Cincinnati rush comes from one of the top fronts in the game — Ross Browner, Eddie Edwards, Wilson Whitley and Gary Burley.

Yet last season, the injury-depleted Bengals finished 4-12.

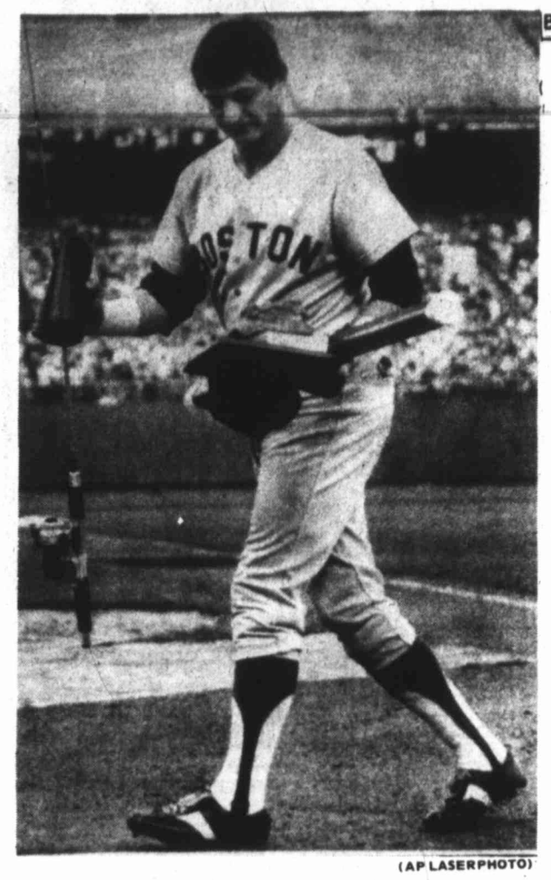

One key to the collapse was a hand fracture sustained by quarterback Ken Anderson. He's healthy, and No. 1 draft pick Jack Thompson has been impressive in preseason. Another top rookie is running back Charles Alexander.

Coach Homer Rice is running his first Bengal camp on a precise schedule that includes shorter practices and 7 a.m. breakfasts.

"This is the best training camp I've seen in my nine years," says offensive tackle Vern Holland.

"I think we can go all the way this year," says fullback Pete Johnson.

"Cincinnati has been a sleeping giant," says Burley. "Now, we're ready to explode."

WATERS NO LONGER RUNNING — With his cast propped up on a table Dallas Cowboys All-Pro safety Charlie Waters plays football with Bear, his dog at his Dallas home after being released from hospital Wednesday morning. The 10-year veteran twisted his knee during the Seattle game and was placed on the Cowboys' injured reserve list for the year.

Penn State perspective is non-stop winning

By The Associated Press

"We tell our players that football is only a game and has to be kept in perspective," says Penn State Coach Joe Paterno.

In the Nittany Valley of Central Pennsylvania, home of Penn State, that perspective usually means winning. The 1978 season ended on a dismal note — the heart-breaking 14-7 Sugar Bowl loss to Alabama that cost the Nittany Lions the national championship — but the 11-1 record marked Penn State's 40th consecutive non-losing season, extending its own NCAA mark.

"We'd like to improve on that this season ... win 12 of 12 instead of 11 of 12," says All-American defensive tackle Bruce Clark, the Lombardi Trophy winner.

That will be easier said than done since Paterno, college football's winningest percentage coach with a 123-25-1— .829 record, warns that the Lions will "have to be very good right away to meet the challenge of the schedule."

The first four opponents — Rutgers, Texas A&M, Nebraska and Maryland — were in bowls last season.

Clark and Matt Millen, a pair of 255-pound tackles whom Paterno calls "the best pair of defensive linemen in the country," will spearhead a stingy unit that will have to bear the brunt of the burden until the offense can adapt to new quarterback Dayle Tate.

The battle for the mythical Eastern crown will again be centered in the western half of Pennsylvania. Penn State's toughest competition once again should come from Pittsburgh, where Coach Jackie Sherrill has 13 starters returning from a sophomore-dominated 1978 club.

The best of the bunch is All-American defensive end Hugh Green, who has two seasons remaining, but much of the Panthers' hopes for an outstanding campaign will rest on 225-pound junior college fullback Randy McMillan, who will erase last year's pony backfield image and take some of the pressure off beleaguered quarterback Rick Trocano.

Chagra not due to appear

Hearing is set

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Jimmy Chagra, convicted of a drug conspiracy last week, could be charged with jumping bail today if he fails to show up for a federal bond hearing here.

Chagra's attorneys — his brother Joe and Oscar Goodman of Las Vegas — have predicted the professional gambler will not appear.

Chagra skipped a meeting with a probation officer Tuesday in Las Vegas, and a federal warrant has been issued for his arrest.

If he does show up, Chagra still would face an increased bond of $3 million for missing the Tuesday meeting.

Goodman said Chagra was under no obligation to appear at the Nevada probation office, where he said Chagra went last week "to pick up some papers." He said officers told him to return Tuesday, but that he was under no obligation to do so.

But Goodman also told the El Paso Times that as a lawyer "with a certain experience level," he did not expect Chagra to appear at the bond hearing, adding it was "possible" his client would appear.

Vivian Chagra, who was married to Chagra for five years, said she and their two children "pray that he is safe."

"I hate to see him gone, but I prefer to see him safe than in jail," said Mrs. Chagra, 34.

She described her former husband as a "loving and generous father."

A federal jury in Austin convicted Chagra last Wednesday of continuing criminal conspiracy, punishable by a maximum of life imprisonment without parole.

Jurors found that Chagra operated a "Colombian Connection" drug trade, smuggling marijuana and cocaine into the United States.

Disaster Training Exercise is slated

The 403rd Military Police Battalion of the Texas State Guard will conduct an Emergency Disaster Training Exercise in Big Spring Sunday, Sept. 9, according to an announcement by the Battalion's Commanding Officer, LTC Thomas R. Simpson of Andrews.

The 403rd is made up of the Battalion Headquarters and Co. A in Andrews, Co. B in Monahans, Co. C at Big Spring, Co. D in Midland and Co. E in Odessa.

The Texas State Guard provides military support to civil authorities during times of emergency. They train year-round to perform such duties as crowd and traffic control, light search and rescue, first aid, evacuation, emergency communications, housing and shelter management.

The Big Spring exercise will simulate the Battalion supporting Howard County and Big Spring Civil Defense Director W.D. Berry in the aftermath of a tornado strike on the former Webb AFB housing area.

Over 50 state guardsmen will be present at the exercise. They will work toward perfecting procedures for working with other emergency agencies within the framework of the guard's mission. Director Berry will direct all phases of the civil agencies involved and request LTC Simpson to deploy his military forces where they might be required to seal off the area, protect from the threat of looters, evacuate injured, treat them at a first aid station and send them to the hospital. They will also work on communications procedures.

The Exercise will start with a briefing at 1 p.m. at the National Guard Armory and end at 5 p.m. after two hours in the field and one hour critique.

Citizens of China 'make great hosts'

Citizens of the People's Republic of China are "friendly, open and make great hosts," but there is a sameness — by American standards — to the country, Scott Davis told the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday.

Davis, who is vice president of Cosden Technology, was one of two representatives for Petrofina, S.A. who were invited to China in April to make a presentation of petroleum and chemical services.

He had a little time for limited sight-seeing which included the former Imperial Palace, the Ming Tombs, and the Great Wall. The latter was not only a defense bastion, he noted, but also an excellent communications tool because an attack along the wall could be relayed by means of signal towers a distance of 500 miles witnin about an hour. The 3,000-mile wall required two millenia to complete.

As an example of Chinese ingenuity, he pictured a giant column of stairs cut from one solid piece of stone which was transported a long distance by moving it in the winter when water could be poured ahead and frozen for a slide bed.

As for customs, the people almost universally wear dark blue (red trim on collars denotes military) or dark green denim or similar material. People are polite, smile readily, ride bycicles (there are three million in Peking where he visited), and live in government apartments or slums in the outskirts. All business functions under government agencies or ministries. The work week is six days, staggered over the full seven days of the week.

Car passenger suffers hurts

Teresa Bacot, 17, of Howard County, is in critical condition in Hendricks Hospital in Abilene as a result of a one car roll over near Sweetwater Sunday.

According to Patrolman Donny Rannefeld, a 1965 Chevrolet Impala driven by Karen Lu Noble, 18, of Big Spring flipped while crossing the Adrian Road overpass at 3:15 a.m. Sunday.

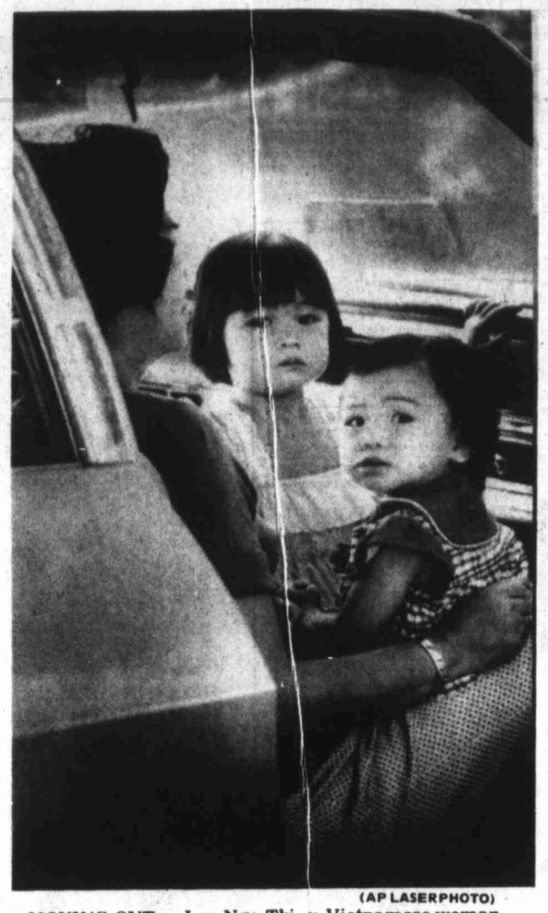

Teresa was a passenger in the car. Trapped under the car with her head pinned between the car and the pavement, she suffered a crushed skull.

Rescue workers worked two hours to free the woman while traffic was backed up for three miles.

She was rushed to the Rolling Plains Memorial Hospital by Mercury Ambulance and transferred to Abilene where she underwent surgery.

Kay Grigg, Teresa's aunt, said the accident was caused when high winds jammed the car against the guardrail and threw it out of control.

Teresa is a student at Coahoma High School, according to Mrs. Grigg.

Most of top cowboys are entered in Atlanta show

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Starting today, Atlanta, Ga. will serve as the site of the fourth qualifying contest for the 1980 Schlitz Great Rodeo. Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) event leaders all have entered the Omni International Rodeo, with hopes of earning a berth at the $200,000 Schlitz rodeo next March in San Diego, Calif.

At least 70 per cent of the top PRCA cowboys have entered the rodeo in Atlanta, where stock will be supplied by Steiner Rodeo Co. The four-performance rodeo has attracted 275 entries and offers a purse of $15,000, including $2,000 per event added by the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co.

The cowboys will have chances to qualify for the Great Rodeo at Albuquerque, N.M. in mid-September; Billings, Mont. in mid-October; and the National Finals Rodeo in December. Season winners from the 12 regional circuits will also be invited to the Schlitz rodeo, which will feature an elite group of approximately 100 top PRCA cowboys.

Consistent performances by saddle bronc rider Joe Marvel of Battle Mountain, Nev., have boosted the defending World Champion closer to the top of the PRCA standings. This week the "Marvelous" cowboy is fourth in the ranks with nearly $22,000. He has climbed from 11th place since the middle of July. A first-place win at Loveland, Colo. and second-place finish at Caldwell, Idaho netted $2,200 for the 24-year-old.

Joe was not the only member of his family to meet with success this past weekend. Brother Mike placed in the saddle bronc at Caldwell, while brother-in-law John Holman, Weiser, Idaho, won the event there and $1,475. The three-time NFR qualifier is married to Joe and Mike's sister, Sally.

Another consistent cowboy is also reaping benefits. John McDonald, a bareback rider from Red Bluff, Calif., has managed to advance to ninth in the standings by placing in almost every rodeo he has entered lately.

Wacey Cathey of Big Spring was ranked 13th among the PRCA cowboys in bull riding with winnings totaling $16,965.

DIVISION LEADERS:
All-Around Cowboy — Tom Ferguson, Miami, Okla., $64,088.
Saddle Bronc Riding — Monty Henson, Mesquite, Tex., $31,874.
Bareback Riding — Bruce Ford, Evans, Colo., $49,430.
Team Roping — Doyle Gellerman, Oakdale, Calif., $19,925 and Walt Woodard, Stockton, Calif., $19,925.
GRA Barrel Racing — Carol Goostree, Verden, Okla., $20,748.
Bull Riding — Don Gay, Mesquite, Tex., $37,736.
Calf Roping — Tom Ferguson, Miami, Okla., $47,019.
Steer Wrestling — Stan Williamson, Kellyville, Okla., $22,333.
Steer Roping — Gary Good, Elida, N.M., $12,609.

Marquez granted continuance

Today was supposed to have been the day for the probation revocation hearing of Bobby Marquez. Marquez, though, was granted a continuance by District Judge Waylon Holt. Holt was appointed to the case when 118th District Judge Jim Gregg removed himself from the case.

The continuance was granted because Marquez' attorney George Gilkerson is in Boston today.

Marquez was on probation for marijuana possession when he was arrested on suspicion of heroin possession Feb. 19.
