Q. — Like most voters, I don't understand the proposed constitutional amendments on the ballot. Can you explain?

A. — The SDN plans to run a series of articles explaining the amendments prior to the November ballot.

3rd juror chosen for murder trial

A third jury member was selected Wednesday for the capital murder trial of Dorsie Lee Johnson, charged in connection with the March 23 slaying of a local convenience store clerk.

From a potential list of 117 prospective jurors, 19 had been interviewed through Wednesday. All three of the jurors chosen to date are women.

District Judge Gene Dulaney has indicated the name of jurors will not be released until the entire panel is chosen.

Dulaney speculated earlier that the entire trial process will likely run into mid-November.

Attorneys for both sides in the case are attempting to seat 14 jurors, 12 to serve as the regular panel and two extra to serve in case some members cannot hear all of the trial testimony.

Six were interviewed Monday, seven Tuesday and six Wednesday. The selection process began again around 9 a.m. Thursday.

Court officials note the interview process has varied with each prospective juror, ranging from 15 minutes to two hours.

Attorneys are being aided in their efforts by questionnaires filled out by the 117 prospective jurors Oct. 13.

1.3 percent...

SS benefits to go up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 37.4 million Social Security beneficiaries will get a 1.3 percent benefit increase in January that will put an extra $6 in the average retired worker's monthly check, the government said today.

It is by far the smallest annual increase since benefits were tied to the Consumer Price Index 11 years ago.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen said the increase will appear in the checks that Social Security beneficiaries receive on Jan. 2, and also in the checks that 3.8 million Supplemental Security Income welfare recipients get on Dec. 31.

It means that the average Social Security pension for retired workers will climb from $482 to $488 a month.

The average elderly couple who are both drawing Social Security will get an $11 increase, from $822 to $833 a month.

And the maximum Social Security benefit for someone retiring in 1986 at age 65 will climb by $10, from $760 to $770.

It is the fourth straight year that the benefit hike has been at an all-time low. The benefits went up 3.5 percent for both 1983 and 1984, and 3.1 percent for 1985. The peak year was 1980, when benefits soared 14.3 percent.

Social Security beneficiaries would have received no hike for 1986 had not Congress and President Reagan scrapped a trigger in the law that barred any benefit increase if inflation fell below 3 percent.

Reagan signed legislation Tuesday eliminating that trigger.

When benefits go up, so does the maximum amount of wages subject to the Social Security payroll tax.

The government will levy the 7.15 percent payroll tax on earnings up to $43,800 in 1987, up from this year's $42,000 cutoff. The tax rate does not change in 1987.

But the maximum tax on an individual worker will be $3,131.70. That is $128.70, or 4.2 percent,

USSR 'spies' ousted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leadership of the Soviet spy network in the United States is being expelled this fall in a move administration officials say will ease the FBI's job by forcing the Soviets to promote inexperienced street agents to management jobs.

These officials anticipate that the ouster by Nov. 1 of 55 spies from the Soviet Embassy here and the Soviet consulate in San Francisco, coupled with the recent expulsion of 25 spies at the Soviet United Nations mission in New York, will set off a fight between the Soviet Foreign Ministry and the KGB spy agency.

The two Soviet agencies are expected to vie over how many of the 251 posts remaining in the embassy and the consulate will go to legitimate diplomats and how many to spies.

Because the United States specifically named the 80 who must leave, there are no legitimate diplomats in the group, the officials said.

In Moscow, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev denounced the latest U.S. expulsion as a "wild" action that led him to question Washington's reliability as a partner in arms control efforts.

But U.S. officials saw positive paybacks for American intelligence from the move.

"This is the end of an era," said one of three Reagan administration officials who briefed reporters Wednesday on condition they not be identified.

"The Soviets operated the largest spy network in the world in the United States, but no longer will they have a massive, unchallenged, bloated number of intelligence officers here," one official said.

"They will have to take case officers, operations officers, from the street to be managers," he said. Another official added, "This use of inexperienced managers should make the FBI's job a lot easier."

Repair work blamed...

Accident lawsuit filed against city

The City of Snyder has been named co-defendant in a civil lawsuit filed this week in 132nd District Court.

The suit stems from a traffic accident occurring here last spring which the plaintiff claims was in part caused by a city repair crew's effort to repair water lines.

In the suit styled Jimmy Trevino vs The City of Snyder and Doug Wilkinson, Trevino is seeking compensation from both the City and Wilkinson for injuries and damages said sustained in the two-vehicle mishap. The wreck occurred in the 1500 Block of 25th St. last March 21.

According to the plaintiff's original petition, Trevino was traveling east on 25th St. and attempting to turn off the street onto Ave. O when his vehicle was struck by another vehicle driven by Wilkinson.

The mishap occurred in an area where city water repair crews had the westbound traffic lanes of 25th St. closed for repair, leaving only the eastbound lanes open.

In his suit, Trevino alleges negligence on the part of the city for failing to place traffic cones in the east bound lanes to separate two-way traffic; failure to post other traffic guides; and failure to post signs indicating that two-way traffic was routed through the east bound lanes of 25th St.

He also alleges negligence on the part of Wilkinson for, failure to keep a "proper lookout;" failure to make "timely application of brakes" to avoid a collision; and passing in a construction zone under unsafe conditions.

The original petition — filed by Lubbock attorney James M. Brennan of Garza, Hernandez and Brennan — specified no amount of compensation.

Trevino is seeking compensation for alleged back, head and neck injuries sustained in the mishap as well as the value of his car.

15th festival slated by square dancers

The Sparkle City Squares will host the 15th annual Square and Round Dance Festival Saturday at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Bill Kimmel, president of the local square dance club, said he expects about 200 dancers from West Texas and Eastern New Mexico for the event.

Activities will begin at 1:30 p.m. with the first of two workshops scheduled for the day.

Dave and Nita Smith of Lubbock will lead a Round Dance workshop session on the coliseum main floor at that time.

The day's second workshop will begin at 3 p.m. with Square Dancing taught by Doug Bennett of Garland.

The Smith's and Bennett will also serve as callers for the Festival Square Dance which will begin at 8 p.m.

Spectators are invited to view the evening dance. There is no admission charge.

CAT scan agreement due discussion again

An update on the proposed purchase of a CAT scan unit is among items to be discussed when members of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital board meet Thursday.

Board members will again try to secure permanent CAT scan equipment for the facility. Difficulties arose this summer when officials with Mobile Technology Corporation made changes in a contract signed by hospital officials.

During last month's session, the board requested the company honor the contract's proposal.

As proposed, the 60-month contract includes CAT scan equipment and a building to house it. Each month the number of scans falls below 40, the contract automatically extends another month.

The company proposes to change the contract to guarantee payment for 25 scans per month. This would equal some $10,000.

In other action, board members will consider a request for a change in the health plan for employees and will hear an update on indigent health care.

The meeting begins at 6:30 p.m. in the hospital board room.

Friday night when the Snyder Tigers line up against the Lake View Chiefs, the District 2-4A encounter will have more than casual interest for one Snyder family.

Sean Randolph, No. 25 on the Snyder roster, is a 5-8, 160-pound senior defensive back. Randolph and his teammates will be looking for their second win of the season tommorrow night. But for Randolph it is more than a game, it's a family fued.

Randolph is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Randolph. The elder Randolph has twin brothers who are also seniors this year, and they are starters for the Lake View Chiefs.

Sean Randolph will be playing against his two uncles, and he's hoping to send 'em home without extending the normal family courtesies.

Speaking of relatives, did you hear about the young man who went to meet his sweetheart's parents.

"Do you have a bright future?" asked the girl's father to his prospective son-in-law.

"Sure do," nodded the young man, "unless your daughter lied about how rich you are."

After one year of no-pass and no play, there appears to be a downward trend statewide in the number of failures.

Did you hear about the college football coach over in the Deep South who was asked about preferential treatment given his players by classroom teachers.

Barked the coach, "Preferential treatment? My players don't need it. They all make straight A's...but their B's could use a little work."

In Brief

Walesa award

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said he would go to Los Angeles to receive a humanitarian award if the Polish government guarantees he will be allowed to return home.

Walesa said he was told to report to the Interior Ministry office in his hometown of Gdansk today to learn whether a passport to travel to the United States would be issued.

More rain

DALLAS (AP) — Rain swept across Texas today, dumping up to six inches along the Gulf coast and five inches in Austin and forcing authorities to close dozens of flooded intersections.

The National Weather Service posted flash flood watches through tonight for all of South Central Texas and for south central portions of North Texas.

Lawsuit filed over drug test

PARIS, Texas (AP) — A college student who was almost arrested after a police drug test mistakenly identified a package of spiced tea as hashish has filed a lawsuit against the manufacturer of a drug testing kit.

The suit was filed against Becton, Dickinson & Co., whose Public Safety Products Division manufactures the kit.

Elizabeth Horn, a Paris County Junior College Student, said in the suit she has been defamed and slandered and her good name tarnished by the incident. The suit does not ask for a specific amount in damages.

The incident began last week when police were alerted by school authorities who discovered a brown substance leaking from a package addressed to Miss Horn.

When Miss Horn picked up the package from the school post office, school personnel thought she acted suspiciously.

A school security officer took a sample of the powdery substance to the Lamar County Sheriff's office for testing. The test said it was hashish.

At 3:45 p.m. Thursday, three officers with a search warrant went to Miss Horn's room and searched all of her belongings.

"I couldn't believe these guys were going through my room. I was really scared. They went through everything — every drawer, all my makeup. My adrenaline was really pumping," she told the Dallas Morning News.

Police decided not to arrest her after Miss Horn made an impassioned plea of innocence.

"Normally, they would have, but under the circumstances the officers felt they would do some further checking on it," said Lamar County Sheriff James Parker.

The package was actually nothing more than a care package of chocolate, bubble bath and vitamins from her mother in Chicago, Miss Horn said.

After police searched her room she called her boyfriend, Mike Flanary, who promptly notified his father, Paris lawyer Bill Flanary.

"I was pretty upset about it. I felt like if it tested to be hash, then it must be hash," Bill Flanary said. "I told her to come clean."

But Miss Horn convinced him it was not a drug and Flanary met the next morning with law officers.

They tested marijuana and a sample of the brown powder and the machine produced positive results.

Flanary pulled some of the brown powder out of an envelope and asked the officers to test it. It tested as hash. The stunned officers asked him where he got it.

"I bought it at Safeway this morning," he said producing a jar of Bigelow "Constant Comment" spiced tea.

Sheriff Parker said the incident was embarassing and conceded that a mistake had been made. The county prosecutor agreed to write a letter of apology to Miss Horn and an explanation to school officials.

Law enforcement backing Meese's anti-porn campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Law enforcement officials already are rallying in support of Attorney General Edwin Meese's national assault on hard-core pornography, but an executive in one group says it will take time to bring results.

At the same time, a civil liberties group said it feared the anti-porn program Meese announced Wednesday could encroach on constitutional rights.

Even before Meese's long-awaited plan was unveiled, the National District Attorney Association's board had approved a policy statement urging its 6,000 members — all city and county prosecutors — to vigorously enforce obscenity laws.

The endorsement, made at a recent conference, encourages state and local law enforcement officials to initiate cases involving child porn and obscene material depicting sexual violence. And the subject of pornography is expected to come up again at the association's meeting next month.

But the complexity of obscenity case investigations and the press of other law enforcement priorities make it unrealistic to expect that any anti-porn campaign will have a significant impact immediately, says Curt Wolfgang, director for intergovernmental affairs for the district attorneys' group.

SWBT urges Texans to become informed voters

Think back to last October. If you are like most of us, you probably had only a vague notion of what the strange word — sesquicentennial — meant. A year later, I would wager that there are very few Texans who aren't familiar with the term's meaning. Perhaps a few of us even learned how to spell and pronounce it.

Although many people may have grown a bit weary of the festivities surrounding Texas' century-and-a-half birthday, no one can deny that this event put the Lone Star State in the nation's spotlight.

Before that attention is diverted from us, however, we have one last opportunity to show the rest of the country that Texas is a dynamic state, committed to shaping its own future. And what better way to prove that fact, than by Texans voting in record numbers during the November general elections?

Few people would disagree that this year's elections are especially critical to our state, in light of our difficult economic situation. There is no doubt that the people we elect next month will be charting the future of Texas. Since each of us has a stake in this process, we must be certain our voices are heard by casting our ballot.

However, voting demands responsibility. Many would contend that it is better not to vote, than to vote without a firm grasp of the issues. As citizens of this state, we have an obligation to learn about each candidate's platform so that we are able to vote with the conviction of our beliefs.

Southwestern Bell Telephone is a strong advocate of our election process, and we encourage our employees to become informed voters. If they are so inclined, we encourage employees to become active in all levels of government.

Although we've heard it before, we all need to be reminded, now and again, that a democracy is only as strong as the people who participate in it. So this November, learn the issues and cast an informed vote.

Questions on a taxing subject

While on the subject of those things governmental and civic, I'd like to pose a couple of questions I heard on the radio the other day from a national columnist. They are on a favorite topic of most Texans ... taxes. Perhaps this exercise will give you something to ponder in your idle time.

Question #1 — Is it possible to divert taxes from individuals to businesses?

Some people would argue that when businesses do receive higher tax bills, they simply pass that surcharge along to the customer — that's you and me.

The reality is that in today's economy there are probably few businesses able — and fewer still willing — to absorb a greater tax burden. Proof of the unsettled business environment can be seen in the rash of recent bankruptcies.

Then, is it better to pay higher individual taxes or higher prices at the counter? We must decide that answer for ourselves.

Question # 2 — Is it better to levy taxes from the federal or from the local level?

Corollary #1 — Does it matter, aren't we going to end up paying the bill anyway?

One argument can be made that when taxes are paid locally, there are fewer middlemen to claim a portion of those monies. Additionally, some would say local tax revenue can be monitored more closely by local residents. Theoretically, this allows each of us to have more of a say regarding how funds are spent.

Is this type of control evident in your community? If you answered, "No," speak up at your town's next council meeting. Your elected officials want to hear from you.

As you probably guessed, there are no right or wrong answers to these questions. This is usually the case when discussing complicated issues. However, I hope this short quiz may have started you thinking. We all need to give these kinds of topics some thought. After all, any constructive act has to begin with an idea. Perhaps something great will come from one of yours.

Baker, Hughes Tool are planning merger

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Two struggling oilfield-services companies — Baker International Corp. and Hughes Tool Co. — say they plan to merge in a stock-swap deal valued at $456.5 million.

Separately, Houston-based Hughes Tool posted a third-quarter loss of $41.4 million on revenue of $158.8 million.

The merger was "dictated by the depression in the industry," Hughes Tool spokesman Don King said Wednesday. "The basic reason for merger is to let both organizations enjoy the benefits of consolidation and cost reduction."

The agreement, approved by both companies' directors in separate meetings Wednesday, would create a new company named Baker Hughes Inc., which would be headquartered in Houston.

To lock up the deal, each company granted the other the right buy 18.5 percent of the other's stock, and Borg-Warner Corp., which owns 18.6 percent of Hughes Tool's stock, agreed to vote in favor of the deal.

Under the agreement, each share of Hughes Tool would be exchanged for four-fifths of a share of the new company. Each Baker share would be swapped for one share in the new company.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: By nature, I'm a very courteous person, but how far should a person go in observing the rules of courtesy? My husband is retired but does part-time work. When he's not working, he leaves the house anyway to spend the day with one of his young girlfriends. (Saturdays and Sundays, too.) He's sometimes gone for two or three days "fishing."

Although this hurts me deeply, I've come to realize that this is the lot of many older women, so I take it in my stride.

I become enraged when a female voice calls our home and says, "May I speak to your husband?" I feel like ripping the phone out of the wall, or telling her to go to h—, and slamming down the receiver! But instead, I politely say, "One moment, please. I'll get him." Then I dutifully call my husband to the phone.

One of these days I'll probably blow my stack.

BREAKING

DEAR BREAKING: Go ahead and blow your stack. It would be much healthier, and far more honest than practically gift-wrapping your husband for his girlfriends.

To calmly tolerate treatment that hurts you deeply instead of expressing appropriate anger, hurt and frustration, conveys the message that this blatant infidelity doesn't bother you. So, forget courtesy, and let off some steam. And the next time your husband goes fishing, pray he doesn't catch anything he can give to you.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Re the 14-year-old girl whose parents gave her permission to invite two boys and another girl to their house for an evening — unsupervised — only to come home and find the boys in their liquor cabinet:

Abby, curiosity and experimenting with drugs, alcohol and sex are at an all-time high between 14 and 16, and parents who leave children this young alone, unsupervised, are asking for trouble. It's only natural for kids to take advantage of an unguarded situation. I'm not saying that children this age do not know the difference between right and wrong. They do. But they are still immature and will often make childish choices. The 14-year-old girl left the boys alone for a few minutes while she was visiting with her girlfriend in another room, and the thought of the boys getting into her parents' liquor probably never crossed her mind.

Instead of telling the girl she shouldn't blame her parents for not trusting her, you should have told her that her poor judgment was an honest mistake based on inexperience, and her parents used poor judgment in leaving her in a situation that she was not prepared to handle. Set it straight, Abby.

KATHY P. IN N.Y.

DEAR KATHY: I think you did, and very well. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of three, ages 15, 23 and 26, so I speak from experience. It is inappropriate for parents to leave four teen-agers home alone for several hours, with or without a liquor cabinet. I am also a volunteer at a crisis pregnancy center and I know that the majority of teen-age pregnancies occur in the home — not in the back seat of a car.

CONCERNED IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from "Caught in the Middle," the young man whose fiancee (Betty) smokes at least a pack a day, but has never smoked in the presence of his parents because she knows they disapprove of smoking.

Abby, how naive can Betty and her man be? His parents already know she smokes! If not, there must be something wrong with their sense of smell! Cigarette smokers smell like cigarette smoke. It's in their hair, their clothes, their books, their automobiles, and if you go into their homes, the scent of cigarette smoke is everywhere!

I agree it's childish for Betty to try to hide it. It's also impossible!

ABWA chapter sees mammography slides

The Deep Creek Chapter of American Business Women's Association met Oct. 16 at Martha Ann Woman's Club for their regular meeting with 12 members and one visitor present. President Mary Hall presided and led the group in the pledge of allegiance. The invocation was given by Mae Cole.

Dr. Buerk Williams of Big Spring was the guest speaker for the evening. He presented slides concerning the mammography equipment planned for Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

A radiologist at Cogdell since April of 1985, Dr. Buerk was raised in the Pacific Northwest and is a graduate of Whitman College and the University of Washington School of Medicine. He interned at the University of Alabama and received radiology training in Dallas.

Dr. Buerk pointed out research factors concerning breast cancer:

—95% of breast cancer is discovered by self-examination.

—previous breast cancer.

—family history of breast cancer.

—age.

—the many ducts in breast tissue make it more susceptible to cancer.

—after menopause, the ducts change decreasing the cancer risk.

Women aged 30-40 should have a mammogram once a year and those aged 40-50 every two or three years. After age 50, once a year is again recommended.

The machine will cost approximately $65,000. Donations are welcomed from individuals as well as through club efforts and may be made by calling the hospital at 573-6374.

The vocational presentation was given by Mary Pownell, bookkeeper with Snyder National Bank.

Joyce McCoy reported on MAWC events including "Taste for Snyder" which will be Nov. 6 from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Local restaurants will be serving. Tickets are $4.50 in advance and $5 at the door. On Nov. 15, MAWC will host a style show. The Mesquite District meeting will be held Nov. 20-25.

The benediction was given by Joyce McCoy.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mary Pownell and Tina Sullenger.

Zeta Lambda hears plans for the year

The Zeta Lambda Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International met for its first fall meeting at Martha Ann Woman's Club Monday evening.

Jean Sealy, president, presided over the business session. Participation requests from the Cogdell Memorial Hospital mammography fund drive, the Noah Project and the Ben Brock Memorial Turkey Walk for the American Heart Association were discussed. Emily Hataway will be sponsored by the chapter in the Turkey Walk.

Reports were heard from the finance committee and the fall budget was adopted. Vestal Manor gave the report from the membership committee and reviewed the qualifications for selection of members.

Special recognition was paid to Ruby Anderson, charter member, by June McGlaun and ElWanda Nall of the achievement and awards committee.

The program committee consisting of Dorothy Kayser, Jane Ramey, Emily Hataway and Patsy Williams used an oversized calendar to give a month by month overview of the '86-'87 theme, "The Evolving Learning Environment: Problems, Promises, Prospects." The special focus for the club year will be "Educational Support, both Economic and Political."

Questions to be emphasized in the following months will involve funding for quality education; a positive professional image; what to do to improve the image of teachers; what are the rewards of teaching and how to be informed on the issues to meet the new educational mandates.

Music was provided by a trio consisting of Mary Williams, Monette O'Day and Emily Hataway. Accompanied by Dorothy Kayser, they sang "Problems, Promises and Prospects."

Hostesses for the meeting were Donna Stehley, LaNell Rambin, Carol Miller and Betty Richardson.

When the contract is easy with normal distribution, look for a way to take the tricks you need against bad breaks. When planning ahead, don't forget who opened the bidding.

South gathered in the first trick with the queen of spades and, congratulating himself for having jumped to two no-trump to get to the game, led a club to dummy's jack. East won the ace and played back a low spade to South's ace. A second club gave declarer the bad news there, leaving him with nothing to do but try diamonds. Remembering that East had opened the bidding and had not shown very much in high cards so far, South futilely attempted to bring down a hoped-for singleton diamond king in East's hand. No luck! He had to go set two tricks.

The hand is easy if declarer exercises a modicum of foresight. East is marked with the club ace for his opening bid. It may be part of a four-card suit or it may even be a lone ace of clubs. Regardless, declarer can guarantee his contract by going to dummy with the ace of hearts and playing the six of clubs. If East plays low, South scores the club queen and can then play the jack of diamonds and let it ride. That will be nine tricks. Of course if East rises with the club ace, that will give declarer four club tricks and his contract another way.

Since the only thing that can set three no-trump is unlucky club distribution, declarer must play carefully to protect against such adversity.

Poetry Society meets

The Scurry County Poetry Society met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burk Monday afternoon. President Garnet Quiett presided and Betty Swaim gave the invocation.

Sherry Bryant presented the program, "A Study of Amy Lowell." She read several of Lowell's poems from "The Complete Poetic Works of Amy Lowell." She stated that Miss Lowell was born in 1874; she was a militant crusader of modern poetry and was an old time "women's libber." She smoked cigars even in public and fought for the cause of poetry and polyphonic prose.

Amy Lowell never married but was passionately in love with Keats. She substituted motion for emotion and some said she worked herself to death. She was in ill health before her death in 1925.

During the business session, committees were appointed. Dorothy Cox was chosen as chairman of the program and yearbook committee with Sherry Bryant to serve also. Janelle Burk was appointed chairman of the '87-'88 officer nominating committee with Mayzell Fenton and Christene Killgo to serve with her.

Mrs. Cox brought some family cookbooks, "Pappy Gravy," which members were able to purchase.

The poetry reading session included "October" by Cox; "Little Boy" and "Missing You" by Burk; "Town Sentinel" and "Nature Child" by Quiett and "Someday" and "Silent Rage" by Bryant. Refreshments were served. The next Society meeting will be Nov. 17 at 1:30 p.m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Killgo. Visitors and other poets are welcome.

Bright Ideas club meets

Bright Ideas Extension Homemakers held their regular monthly meeting Oct. 14 at 10:30 a.m. in the home of Suzanna Johnson. Debbie Lindsey presided.

Items discussed included programs for '87, Craft Day on Oct. 28 at the coliseum and the club project of observing court proceedings.

The club has challenged other extension groups to donate blood at the next drive on Nov. 4.

The next club meeting will be Nov. 4; anyone interested may contact Debbie Lindsey at 573-1452.

Treatment for epilepsy

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a 23-year-old woman who has experienced epileptic seizures since the age of 10 months. I'm on Tegretol, but the seizures are getting out of control. Is there any surgery that can control my epilepsy?

DEAR READER — I don't know. That is a decision best left to the judgment of your neurologist and a neurosurgeon. Some forms of epilepsy are surgically curable, but the most common types are not. A more useful approach would be to have your neurologist try other medicines to control your seizures without surgery.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, EPILEPSY: THE 'FALLING SICKNESS,' which explains the causes, treatment and types of epilepsy. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband is 28. He works in a foundry and smokes a pack a day. In the morning, he coughs and gags so badly that I can hardly stand to listen to him. Maybe if you explain in your column what's going on, he'd stop smoking.

DEAR READER — More specifically, DEAR HUSBAND:

Don't smoke.

Your coughing indicates that you are probably developing chronic bronchitis and emphysema. You are already working a job in which air pollution is a hazard. Don't add to the burden your lungs already have. Short of wearing a mask — or changing jobs — you probably have little control over what you breathe in the workplace. However, you do have control over self-induced air pollution. The combination of industrial pollution and cigarettes can be a fatal one.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a pacemaker and take water pills, heart pills and a pill to keep my heart from skipping a beat, but I run out of energy by noon. Is there anything I can do about this?

DEAR READER — Without knowing the exact medicine you are taking, I cannot say that the pills definitely are causing your loss of stamina. However, that is a strong possibility, because many medicines can sometimes cause this kind of side effect. I think that you should sit down with your doctor and discuss the side effects of the drugs. Of course, heart disease itself can sap your energy. Nonetheless, it would be appropriate for you to suspect your medicines; if they are the cause of your trouble, ask your doctor to change them.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is the normal size of an ovary? Can a woman have an ovarian cyst for 17 years? Will it cause miscarriages?

DEAR READER — In a normal adult female, each ovary is about the size of a large almond. Each month the ovaries produce eggs. Sometimes fluid-filled blisters, called ovarian cysts, can develop at the sites of egg production or release. Ovarian cysts can last for years. Ordinarily, they do not cause miscarriages.

Oil company strikes gold in Texas hills

UVALDE, Texas (AP) — A San Antonio oil company learned all that glitters isn't asphalt when it stumbled upon a major gold vein in South Central Texas.

Exploration Co., a publicly held energy firm, was originally interested in exploring the tract for its promising asphalt deposits but discovered a more lucrative ore, company executive Paul Signon told the Dallas Morning News Wednesday.

"We weren't looking for gold and silver. We didn't believe it," Signon said.

After discovering the gold and silver, Company officials began quietly leasing 150,000 acres of land along the vein's path. So far the company has invested $1.5 million in the project.

Officials would have preferred to keep their secret so they could continue snatching up land while competitors remained in the dark.

Padlocks ordered on Otwell school

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district court has ordered the Rev. W.N. Otwell's school for boys in Fort Worth padlocked, except for the little church, because Otwell would not get a state license.

"It is a spurious claim that the state has been trying to regulate religion," State District Judge Paul Davis said Wednesday after a brief hearing.

Davis also ordered Otwell, who fled the state earlier this month, to pay $67,000 in fines for contempt of court and $2,685 in court costs.

"Reverend Otwell has defied not only this court but the entire judicial system," said Assistant Attorney General Sue Berkel.

At Attorney General Jim Mattox's suggestion, Davis' padlock order will not apply to the church sanctuary on the school grounds, the headquarters of the Community Baptist Church or to Otwell's personal living quarters.

However, state officials will make frequent checks of the sanctuary and the other two buildings to be sure they are not used to carry on the school.

Mattox told reporters he would be willing to ask the court to forgive the fines if Otwell would ask and obtain a state license to operate the school.

Otwell fled the state after Davis held him in contempt of court on Oct. 6 for not getting a license for the school. He was ordered to pay a fine of $100 a day and his church $500 for each day of violation. The order said church property could be sold to pay the fines.

Otwell and his supporters have claimed that requiring state regulation of a church school is a violation of the separation of church and state.

"I just want to cry," said Hank Thompson, pastor of the Capital City Baptist Church in Austin and one of Otwell's supporters.

Davis said in making the ruling that the Texas Supreme Court held in a similar licensing case involving the Lester Roloff homes at Corpus Christi that the state had "a compelling interest to protect children. Protecting children was the purpose for this law."

"We are trying to have the least amount of intrusion into any kind of religious activities," Mattox told reporters after the court session. "We do not intend in any way to interfere with the religious instruction that is taking place on this property, and I would hope this property would remain open."

Mattox said his department and the Department of Human Sevices would study the judge's order before giving any specific time for the padlocking.

He said the property would be surveyed immediately to determine if some of it can be sold to pay the fines.

"I have offered them if they would agree not to reopen the facilities and agree not to operate in violation of the law, I would personally ask the court not to exact the fines and penalties and withdraw any contempt motion," Mattox said.

"They have two choices. Get a license or not operate the school," Mattox said. "Either way would be acceptable to us."

Officer indicted in fellow cop's slaying

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A police officer has been indicted on a murder charge in the shooting death of his former partner, the subject of an investigation into allegations that he had executed suspected criminals and was plotting to assasinate city officials.

A Bexar County grand jury Wednesday charged officer Farrell Tucker in the slaying of Stephen Richard Smith, 31, who was shot five times as the two drove through Smith's neighborhood Aug. 18.

Smith was Tucker's best man at his wedding and the two had met at the police academy.

Tucker, 35, approached Assistant Police Chief Frank Hoyack in August and said he had information, supplied by Smith's wife, that Smith planned to assassinate Hoyack, Bexar County District Attorney Sam Millsap and Deputy Police Chief Robert Hueck.

In addition, Tucker said Smith may have been involved in the executions of five suspected criminals.

Smith was no stranger to suspicion. He was the subject of two FBI civil rights investigations and had been indicted on a charge of criminal brutality after beating a shoplifting suspect.

Police had also questioned him about smear letters written to the local papers which accused Hoyack and Hueck of being child abusers and he had been questioned about vandalizing other police officers homes.

Tucker said Smith blamed Hoyack, Hueck and Millsap for his troubles and his frustration at legal limits on police behavior.

The meeting broke up after Tucker told them he was meeting with Smith that night and would like to tape their conversation.

The meeting occurred in Smith's car as the two drove through Smith's neighborhood.

More arrests likely from marijuana field

PAMPA, Texas (AP) — Four or five more arrests are expected in connection with the discovery of 200,000 marijuana plants growing wild in Gray County, Sheriff Rufe Jordan said.

All the suspects are from the areas of Lefors and McLean, both in Gray County near Pampa, 70 miles from Amarillo, Jordan said Wednesday.

Earlier this month, officials with the Department of Public Safety out of Amarillo confiscated the plants, some of them up to 12 feet tall, growing in a creek bed east of Lefors. The value was placed at more than $100 million.

All the plants were found on one ranch. The rancher is not a suspect, according to the sheriff.

About 17,000 plants also were found scattered to the east in Wheeler County, Sheriff Lonnie Miller said.

In September, a 19-year-old woman from McLean and a 25-year-old Pampa man were arrested on charges of possessing marijuana that came from the Gray County field. One suspect, who allegedly had 10 pounds, told authorities that people came from as far away as Dallas to gather the illegal weed. No arrests were made in Wheeler County.

Both sheriffs said marijuana had been growing wild in their counties for years. They had different theories as to where it came from. Jordan said in 1963 there was a heavy snowfall in the Panhandle that necessitated a haylift. He thought marijuana seeds may have been mixed in. He also speculated seeds may have been carried by migratory birds.

Miller said he thinks the marijuana might have been cultivated by those who rented homes from area farmers during the oil boom and had since left the area. Miller said his personnel have been trying to spray it, cut it and pull it and it keeps coming back.

District 2-4A roundup...

Tigers face 'Air' Lake View Friday

It's the rush against the pass as Snyder's Ragin' Tigers go into District 2-4A action this Friday against San Angelo Lake View.

Elsewhere in the district, Monahans and Big Spring put their undefeated records on the line as the Loboes host arch-rival Sweetwater and the Steers trek to Pecos. Also, Lamesa is at Fort Stockton. Andrews is idle this week.

With its first win of the season tucked away, Snyder goes for number two against a team which could give the Ragin' Tigers fits - "Air" Lake View.

San Angelo poses as 2-4A's second-rated passing squad, averaging 114.4 yards a game through the airways. Only Lamesa, whose Tim Berry has thrown for 812 yards, gains more per game through the air.

In contrast, Snyder is allowing 109 yards passing per game, the highest of any 2-4A member.

Whether Snyder can contain Lake View quarterback Mark Dumas and a hoard of receivers - the Chiefs boast five with four or more catches - could be the determining factor Friday night.

The other factor, obviously, is whether Lake View can stop Snyder's ground game. No team has done it yet this season, though the Tigers have had a habit of stopping themselves with penalties and turnovers. Snyder averages 192.5 yards rushing; Lake View is giving up 217.9.

"We've got to keep the ball away from them on offense, like we did against Andrews," said Snyder Coach Dennis Tomlin. "Defensively, we know we can't give up the cheap touchdown pass."

Snyder is 1-5 on the season and 1-3 in district play; Lake View is 3-4 and 1-4.

Game captains for the Tigers will be Trey Tippens, Michael Long, Dewayne Murdock and Dennis Martinez.

Friday's Sweetwater-at-Monahans game poses an interesting psychological situation. Sweetwater has owned the Loboes for the past two years. In 1984, the Mustangs defeated the Loboes in the regular season and again in the quarterfinals. In '85, Sweetwater came from behind to beat an undefeated Monahans team. The Loboes never recovered, and didn't even pick up the runnerup spot.

This season, Monahans is undefeated again at 6-0 while Sweetwater is 5-1. Again, a 2-4A title could be on the line.

To stop Monahans a fourth straight time, Sweetwater will have to corral the Loboes' fine 1-2 running back tandem of Charles Thompson and Dana Amos.

Thompson, a frontrunner for district MVP honors, is only 33 yards shy of 1,000 already, has caught six passes for 135 yards, and has scored 126 points.

Monahans is the league's top offensive team, averaging 423.8 yards a game. However, Sweetwater ranks No. 2 in that regard, averaging 343.2, and is No. 1 in defense, allowing just 139.3 yards a contest.

Meanwhile, Big Spring, 5-1 for the season and at 4-0 the only other undefeated 2-4A team besides Monahans, faces a pesky Pecos team on the road. Pecos is 5-2 overall and 3-2 in league play.

In Fort Stockton, the 3-4, 1-4 Panthers will be testing Lamesa's air game. The Golden Tors are 2-4 overall and 1-3 in loop competition.

Oilers forgetting how to tackle opponents

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

I had to make sure that TCU hadn't somehow slipped up and scheduled the Oilers and sure enough, they didn't. Making sure of that, then, I'll predict the Oilers won't win another ballgame in 1986.

Houston has been known this season, strangely enough, as having a pretty good pass defense. The Oilers are also one of the top teams in the NFL in third down conversions. What the Oilers can't do is tackle - ANYBODY. If you watched last Sunday's game between the Oilers and Cincinnati, you know what I mean.

It was also a classic case of snatching defeat from the jaws of victory. The Oilers defense turned a fumble recovery into a go-ahead touchdown with just over one minute left in the game and still managed to lose.

But how 'bout them Tigers, huh? Friday's victory over Andrews certainly wasn't any fluke. The Rage dominated the Mustangs from one end of the field to the other. End result, Snyder 28, Andrews 13.

Next up for the Tigers is San Angelo Lake View, Friday night, here in Snyder.

Despite the tie between Atlanta and the 49ers, TCU's loss to North Texas State and Minnesota's upset of Chicago, I had a fair week on the prediction board. Twenty-nine right, 10 wrong for .744. For the season, it's 182-83, or .687.

And now, on with the picks...

Lake View at Snyder- Look for the Ragin' Tigers to get momentum from last week's win and make it two in a row. Pick it...SNYDER 35, LAKE VIEW 14.

Lamesa at Fort Stockton- Normally, you favor the strong defensive team, but the Panthers have almost NO offense and Lamesa should be able to shake Woodberry free once or twice...GOLDEN TORS 14, PANTHERS 7.

Big Spring at Pecos- The Steers will be favored to win this one, but I'm still not convinced. Pick Big Spring if you want, but I'll go with...EAGLES 24, STEERS 18.

Sweetwater at Monahans- Sweetwater has kept Monahans underwraps the last two years but it's the Loboes' turn this time around...MONAHANS 21, SWEETWATER 20.

Ira at Jayton- The Bulldogs run into the biggest dog catcher in six-man football...JAYTON 45, IRA 21.

Dawson at Borden Co.- It's homecoming time at Gail and the Coyotes will be howling...BORDEN 41, DAWSON 18.

Hermleigh at McCaulley- Don't be too surprised if the Cardinals pull out their first victory of the season this Saturday. But McCaulley gets the edge because of the home field and homecoming...EAGLES 35, CARDINALS 27.

The collegians...

In the Southwest Conference, pick Texas A&M 28, Rice 14; Arkan-

Tough 8th graders lead way as underclassmen vie tonight

Snyder's unbeaten, unscored on eighth grade B-team takes the field tonight in Big Spring at 4 p.m.

The B-squad, now 5-0, leads the way as six Snyder teams play this evening. Snyder A-team eighth graders also vie in Big Spring at 5:30 p.m.

Snyder junior varsity is on the road, too, playing Lake View in San Angelo at 7:30 p.m.

At home, Snyder seventh grade teams and freshmen will entertain games at Travis Field. Play gets underway at 4:30 p.m. between Snyder seventh grade B-team and Big Spring. The A-squad follows by playing the Steers at 5:30.

At 7 p.m., Snyder freshmen entertain San Angelo Glenn.

Snyder eighth grade B-team kept its winning streak alive when Dewayne Cato scored two touchdowns in a 12-0 victory over Andrews last week. Top efforts have been given out this season by Corey Fisher, Randy Watkins, Chris Wright, Fletcher Davis, Trent Cox, Pedro Villa and Blair Williams.

Snyder eighth grade A-squad, now 2-3 on the season, popped Andrews 46-18 a week ago.

Daniel Espinosa scored on a pass from Terry Stephens for one TD while Shelby Bufkin also tallied a touchdown. Paul Anderson also scored and Terry Snyder and Charles Martin notched two touchdowns apiece. Terry Snyder had three interceptions in the game, including one for a touchdown.

Top defensive efforts in that game were given out by Les Rinehart, John Wright, Ryan Byrd and Ronnie Pruitt.

"The eighth grade teams are getting better and better. Their improvement has been totally around the concept of blocking and tackling," said Coach Roger Goodwin. "They've played real well."

Snyder's eighth grade A-team opened with a 38-20 loss to Levelland, beat Big Spring 14-6, lost to Lamesa 6-0, lost to Sweetwater 16-14, and won over Andrews last week.

"We're real proud of all of our kids," said Goodwin. "To be unbeaten and unscored on is just great, and our A-team's record doesn't really do justice to how hard the kids have played and how much they've improved."

Top receiver a year ago...

Oiler fans question absence of Smith

HOUSTON (AP) - Some fans think Houston Oilers receiver Tim Smith, who is sidelined despite catching 198 passes in three seasons, can help break a six-game losing streak.

"It makes me feel good to know people are behind me," Smith says. "I appreciate it, but I'm not looking for any sympathy over the situation."

He received a standing ovation from an Astrodome audience when he played briefly in the second game against Cleveland.

Callers to local talk shows and letter writers to the two Houston newspapers want to know why Smith, 29, is not playing as the third receiver instead of Willie Drewrey.

Oilers Coach Jerry Glanville says Drewrey is faster and quicker.

Drewey has 11 catches and an 18.7 yard average. Smith has no average because he has no catches this season. The six-year Oilers veteran has made only a few token appearances this fall.

This is the first season Smith has been sidelined since 1982.

"I'm not bitter about it, but it's a tough situation, especially when you were the starter and you thought you were doing the job," he says.

Smith says he has felt better after receiving fan letters and praise from people stopping him on the street.

But watching his team lose is painful, the receiver says.

The Oilers won their four preseason games and their first game in the regular season before losing six straight.

"It's always worse than the time before," Smith says. "Losing eats at you, especially when you consider that we started this season like gangbusters."

Smith says he thinks he may be traded. But he says he is not worrying about that now since the NFL trading deadline has passed.

He says he doesn't want to be traded. He and his family like Houston, he says.

Western begins competition at Texas Tech Rodeo tonight

LUBBOCK – Western Texas College enters the Texas Tech University Intercollegiate Rodeo here tonight, hoping to come up with some strong points.

The four-day rodeo has performances Thursday through Saturday at 8 nightly, and at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

The rodeo is being held at the South Plains Fair Grounds Pavillon.

Team members for the WTC men will be Todd Danley, Joel Marr, Adam Brewster, Keith Hudson and Troy Budvarson. Women team members are Mistri Davis, Sandy Scott and Jessie Colburn.

There are no WTC team members out tonight and most of them will be competing Saturday evening. However, Snyder's Brewster will vie in the bareback and bulls Friday night and Marr will compete in the calf roping, steer wrestling and team roping during the Saturday morning, 9 o'clock, slack performance.

Scott will compete Friday night in the breakaway roping and goat tying.

Davis will compete in the barrels, breakaway and goat tying on Saturday night while Colburn, who leads the Southwest Region in the barrel racing event, will also compete Saturday night.

Western Texas students competing tonight include Chuck Smith, Todd Small, and Heath Sims in the calf roping and steer wrestling, Wendy Lunsford in the barrels and Jo Ditt Danley in all three women's events.

World Series tied, 2-2...

Mets even series with Boston

BOSTON (AP) - One team is getting good pitching, timely hitting and lucky bounces. The other is making excuses.

That's how the first two games of the World Series went. That's how the last two have gone.

The Mets go cold at Shea Stadium, and Boston wins; the Red Sox go cold at Fenway, and New York wins.

The Mets flip their bad luck and the Red Sox flop.

"It's just another sign that baseball makes no sense," said Ron Darling, who pitched seven shutout innings while Gary Carter hit two home runs as the Mets won Game 4, 6-2, Wednesday night, evening the Series at two-all.

"The Red Sox seemed to feel pretty comfortable in our park. They won two in our place and we won two in their place," Darling said.

By the time Carter's second homer cleared the left-field screen and landed on Landsdowne Street - after Lenny Dykstra's second homer in two days for the Mets - both teams were looking toward tonight's pivotal fifth game.

The Mets seem determined to fulfill what they see as their destiny, winning the world championship. The Red Sox seem determined to cast off what has been their destiny, losing the world championship.

"It's a best-of-three now and, obviously, tomorrow is the key game," Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez said.

New York ace Dwight Gooden, hit hard in losing Game 2, will pitch on three days' rest for the first time this season. Bruce Hurst, who won the opener with eight shutout innings, goes for Boston.

"I didn't really want to," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said of bringing back Gooden sooner than usual. "But it's OK once."

Hurst will be working on four days' rest, courtesy of Boston Manager John McNamara and Al Nipper.

McNamara, wanting to give Hurst some extra rest, used Nipper for the first time in 17 days in Game 4.

Nipper, a career .500 pitcher, had a 5.38 earned run average this season - the highest for a World Series starter since Brooklyn's Hal Gregg lost Game 7 to the New York Yankees in 1947.

Nipper was adequate for six innings, giving up three runs. But Darling was better.

Darling escaping a two-out, bases-loaded jam in the first inning and retired 10 straight batters. He was not overly sharp, tying a season-high with six walks, yet he kept the Red Sox away from the left-field wall and off the scoreboard.

"We just are not getting the hits when we need them," McNamara said.

Boston stranded 11 runners, hitting just 1-for-10 with men in scoring position. Wade Boggs, who led the majors with a .357 average but who is 3-for-17 in the Series, left five of them while going 0-for-5.

"I'm a leadoff hitter. I'm supposed to get things going," Boggs said. "I haven't done anything."

Part of that is Darling's fault.

Darling, pitching for the first time in the ballpark he often visited as a youngster, now has gone 14 innings in the Series without allowing an earned run - the longest string since St. Louis' Bob Gibson shut out Boston for 19 innings in 1967.

Carter, meanwhile, drove in three runs for the second straight night. He hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning that put New York ahead, doubled in the sixth and added a solo home run in the eighth against Steve Crawford.

"It would be interesting to see what it would be like playing one year in Fenway," said Carter, 5-for-9 for the two games in Boston. Overall, he's 7-for-17 and leading the series with seven RBI.

"I think we all got our second breath and wind after the playoff series with the Astros. I don't mean to harp on it, but I think it was significant," said Carter, readdressing what had sounded like an excuse for the Mets' first two losses.

The Red Sox, perhaps feeling the pressure of collapses by Boston teams in the past, countered with their own excuse.

"We've got to check that kid's bat," Dwight Evans said, meaning Len Dykstra. "We've got to check a few other bats. I'm dead serious. We're going to check some bats tomorrow."

Dykstra, the littlest Met at 5-foot-8, homered for the second straight game, and made the sure-handed Evans look bad in doing it.

With the score 3-0 and two out in the seventh, Dykstra faced Crawford with a runner on second. Dykstra lifted a long fly to right that chased back Evans, who had reached above the 5-foot wall in the sixth to rob Darryl Strawberry of a home run.

This time, Evans was off balance as he jumped at the fence, and the ball glanced off the tip of his mitt and fell for a home run. Evans hung his head over the railing in dejection while Mets' relievers scooped up the home-run ball.

"I hit my ribs on the fence," Evans said. "I had enough room to make the catch. I feel bad."

The deflected home run put the game out of reach, and silenced the crowd of 33,920. The only sound as Dykstra circled the bases came from the cheering Mets' wives in the third-base grandstand.

Tourney contributes to fund at hospital

Snyder Country Club Ladies' Golf Association raised $500 for the Mammography Fund at Cogdell Hospital this week with a two-person scramble.

In low gross competition, Carolyn Greene and Anita Talbott took first place honors in the First Flight with a 70. Suzy Reed and Martha Fagin teamed for top honors in the Second Flight with an 83. Third Flight winners were Charlene Light and Marie Dollins with a 92.

Kaye Cypert and Wilma Dillard were First Flight winners in low net competition with a 54.5. First place in the Second Flight went to Mary Blackmon and Margorie Briggs with a 59. Top winners in the Third Flight were Gwen Sealy and Donna Stehley with a 57.

Juanita Hester won closest to the pin.

Rockets sign Jim Peterson

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Rockets have signed Jim "Third Tower" Petersen and sidelined Twin Tower Ralph Sampson.

Petersen, a hold-out since the beginning of training camp, signed a three-year contract with the NBA Western Division champions, team officials said Wednesday.

The Rockets also announced that Sampson will be sidelined the rest of the week with a sprained left ankle, but should be ready for the season opener Nov. 1 against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Sampson collided with Washington's Terry Catledge in the third quarter of Tuesday night's 105-95 Rockets exhibition victory.

Petersen - a key backup last season for Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon, the other half of the Twin Towers - said he was glad the contract ordeal was behind him.

"I don't think there were any hard feelings even though the negotiatons were difficult," Petersen said. "I didn't get what I wanted and they didn't get what they wanted. We met in the middle."

Terms of his contract were not announced.

Tway taking lead to Vantage event

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - PGA champion Bob Tway, already assured of a $500,000 bonus, could wrap up two other season-long races this week in the Vantage Championship.

"I'm just going to go out and play good golf. If you do that, everything else will take care of itself," Tway said of the new PGA tournament that was start tody and offers $1 million in official prize money.

The tournament, which replaces the Texas Open on the PGA Tour schedule, also serves as the final tournament in the Vantage Cup series, a new, season-long race for $2 million in bonus money.

Tway, the only four-time winner on the American tour this year, has an insurmountable lead in the Vantage Cup points race and thus is assured of the $500,000 that goes to the winner.

"I guess that's kind of comfortable, knowing you've won $500,000, but that's a season-long thing.

"I still have things I want to do," the low-key Tway said. And both those major goals - the season's money-winning title and Player of the Year honors - could be secured this week. Both of those races end next week at Tucson.

Tway, with $647,780 in official money-winnings this season, needs only to finish 34th or better this week to replace the absent Greg Norman as the year's leading money-winner.

Norman, the Australian who won the British Open, has completed his American season with a record $653,296.

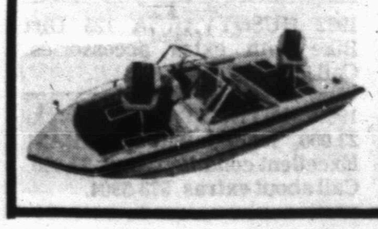

And, should Tway take over the leading money-winning spot (the bonus money does not count), he would virtually wrap up the Player of the Year title as well.

"If I get the money-winning title, that'll pretty much make it," Tway said.

He currently leads Norman 90-88 in the complicated point system which determines the Player of the Year designation.

Tway is looking at possibly the strongest field this tournament has assembled in a history that goes back more than 60 years.

Bill Clements blamed for prison mess

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Mark White, defending his law-and-order record, says former Gov. Bill Clements should shoulder the blame for the forced early release of prison inmates.

It was Clements' 1979 veto of a $30 million, 5,000-bed prison that helped create the overcrowding problems which plague the state today, White says.

"He vetoed a prison," White said during several campaign stops Wednesday. "It made no sense then. It makes even less sense today. It was reprehensible. It created disorder."

White also rejected Clements' argument that prison system officials asked him to veto money for the new prison.

"I don't know of anybody in the history of government ... that's ever called on the executive authority to veto their appropriation," he said.

On a related issue, the Democratic incumbent complained that a Bill Clements TV commercial unfairly blames his administration for the assault on a Texas woman. And in response, White released a letter in which the mother of a slain child says Clements did little to help crime victims.

White said that although he believed his Republican opponent's ad was out of line, he wanted to show that such tactics can work both ways.

"That was not a fair attack," White said of the Clements ad that began airing this week. "We're just setting the record straight."

In the Clements ad, Susan Key complains that she was assaulted by a criminal who was paroled while White has been governor.

In response, White made public a letter from Glenda Page of Austin, mother of an 8-year-old girl who was raped and strangled by a parolee on Jan. 2, 1982, during Clements' term as governor.

The killer, who now is serving a 30-year term, had been paroled after serving four years of a 20-year sentence, Mrs. Page wrote.

The woman's letter praised White for signing into law the Crime Victims Bill of Rights and legislation to prohibit automatic release of violent criminals.

"We never had such rights under Bill Clements. Maybe if we had, our daughter would still be alive today," she wrote.

White said he saw no contradiction in protesting the Clements commercial while making public Mrs. Page's letter.

"He started that type of attack, and I think it's only fair for everybody to realize that that circumstance (the Page killing) occurred. He had those same responsibilities there," White said.

White also noted that 19 criminals paroled under Clements have wound up on Death Row, two of whom have been executed.

"The fact of the matter is, releases made during his administration not only resulted in assaults on individuals but also resulted in the deaths of individuals," White said.

Bank agrees to pay

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — First City Bank has agreed to pay the city of Beaumont just over $1 million in an agreement stemming from the city's loss of $20 million in March 1985.

The settlement the City Council approved Wednesday will bring the city monthly production payments of royalties the bank earns from oil, gas and mineral leases in Texas and Louisiana.

The agreement guarantees the city will get at least $1 million no matter whether the wells produce.

The bank held a depository contract with the city at the time it lost the money in investments with the failed ESM Government Securities. The city has filed several lawsuits to recover the money, but never against First City.

The bank contends it did not contribute to the city's loss, but First City Chairman Wilton White said the bank agreed to the settlement to avoid continuing conflict.

Potential grounds for a lawsuit against the bank involved wire transfers that sent the money to Bradford Trust, now Fidata, the clearinghouse for ESM, said Hoke Peacock, special counsel to

Suspect testifies in murder trial

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Testimony concerning an offer to appear in a sexually explicit video movie moved to center stage as the capital murder trial of a man accused of slaying a Missouri couple wound down.

Defendant Federico Rivera testified Wednesday that the man he is accused of killing offered money to him and his wife to appear in the movie.

Rivera's testimony began after the prosecution called the last of its 42 witnesses and rested its case. The testimony was to resume today.

Rivera and his wife, Tammi, have both been charged with capital murder in the deaths of Keith and Jean Nordyke of Raytown, Mo. Tammi Rivera's trial is set for next month.

The defendant said Nordyke approached him at his bricklayer job directly across the street from Nordyke's home. He said the man told him he could make a lot more money making a sex movie than he could laying bricks.

He first ignored Nordyke because he thought he was crazy, Rivera said, but after talking to his wife he reconsidered.

"The only reason we said we'd do the movie is so we would have enough money to go to Ohio," Rivera said.

On March 27, Rivera said he and his wife met the Nordykes at their Harlingen home and watched an X-rated movie.

"Then he said, 'Let's talk about what we're here for,'" Rivera said.

The agreed to go to a motel in Brownsville after Nordyke said he did not want to make the movie in his home, Rivera testified.

Nordyke loaded some camera equipment and video tapes in his van and the four began the 40-mile drive to Brownsville, he said.

Rivera said he began to get nervous when Nordyke turned off the freeway in the opposite direction of the motel and told him he wanted to go see a friend first.

Judge Melchor Chavez adjourned the trial for the day at that point in the testimony.

The defense was expected to rest its case after Rivera's testimony.

Defense lawyers, however, asked the judge to request a letter written by the Nordykes to a Harlingen attorney.

The lawyers claim the Nordykes placed an advertisement in the Harlingen newspaper seeking couples that were interested in "wife swapping."

A Harlingen attorney wrote a letter in response but signed another attorney's name as a prank, defense attorneys said.

Defense attorneys say that when the Nordykes responded, the attorney became angry and turned the letter over to the Harlingen police complaining that it was pornographic.

Harlingen police are holding the letter and Judge Chavez said he would decide today if he will allow it as evidence.

Cameron County District Attorney Ben Euresti Jr., read a confession Rivera dictated to investigators just before the prosecution rested its case.

Rivera told investigators in the confession that he stabbed each of the Nordykes.

Defense lawyer Micael Kiesel challenged the validity of the confession saying it contained words and phrases that are not part of Rivera's vocabulary.

Rivera has only a ninth grade education and speaks broken English.

"A 19-year-old boy was easy pickings for you wasn't he," Kiesel asked a Harlingen investigator.

A Harlingen pathologist testified that the Nordykes died from stab wounds suffered before their bodies were dumped in the Rio Grande River.

He said Jean Nordyke was stabbed twice in the chest area and Keith Nordyke was stabbed three times in the neck and also had marks around his neck from an electrical cord.

Social Security will rise slightly more than this year's top tax. Employers must pay the same amount.

The self-employed, who pay a 12.3 percent tax, will see their maximum tax rise by $221.40 to $5,387.40.

Some 8.5 million workers and self-employed persons who earn more than $42,000 will be affected by the higher ceiling.

Social Security Commissioner Dorcas M. Hardy said her agency will send out notices to all beneficiaries about the increase. "They will not have to take any action to get the increase. It will be in their checks," she said.

The higher benefits will cost Social Security's trust funds $2.6 billion in 1987.

The raise became official with the Labor Department's release today of the Consumer Price Index for September. The increase matches the inflation rate from the third quarter of 1985 to the third quarter of this year.

Benefits are rounded down to the next dollar, which means most people wind up with an increase slightly smaller than the exact inflation rate.

Social Security Administration spokesman James M. Brown gave these other examples of how much benefits will go up in January:

—For the average aged couple, from $822 to $833, up $11.

—For the average widowed mother with two children, from $1,023 to $1,036, up $13.

—The average aged widow, $438 to $444, up $6.

—The average disabled worker, wife and children, from $878 to $890, up $12.

—The average for all disabled workers, $482 to $488, up $6.

—The maximum federal SSI payment for an individual, $336 to $340, up $4.

—The maximum federal SSI payment for couples, $504 to $510, up $6.

Brown said these other changes will also take place Jan. 1:

—Beneficiaries under 65 will be able to earn $6,000 without losing any benefits, up from $5,760 this year.

—Those aged 65 through 69 will be able to earn $8,160 without penalty, up from $7,800. Those 70 and older can earn unlimited amounts and still draw their full Social Security.

—It will take $460 in earnings to obtain a quarter of Social Security coverage, up from $440 this year.

The elderly will also be paying more for Medicare coverage in 1987. The government announced Oct. 1 that the monthly premium for Part B of Medicare, which helps pay doctor bills and out-of-hospital services, will jump from $15.50 to $17.90 — a 15.5 percent increase — in January.

And starting Jan. 1 Medicare patients will have to pay $520 out of their own pockets for their first day in the hospital — up from $492 this year. This charge, known as the Medicare hospital deductible, would have jumped to $572 in 1987, but Congress ordered a more moderate hike.

Some 600,000 Social Security recipients who get roughly $200 a month in benefits or less may not have to pay the full, $2.40-a-month increase in the Medicare premium. The law bars the government from raising anyone's Medicare premium more than his or her basic Social Security benefits go up.

The raises used to go out in July, but in 1983, as part of a rescue plan for the then-troubled system, Congress and Reagan skipped the cost-of-living adjustment for six months and moved it permanently to January.

The system is still saving several billions dollars each year because beneficiaries were never given a catch-up raise for those six months.

Reporter killed in crash

NEW YORK (AP) — A million people heard a reporter scream "Hit the water!" as her helicopter crashed into the Hudson River during a rush-hour traffic report, killing her and critically injuring the pilot.

It was the second crash this year for WNBC traffic reporter Jane Dornacker, 40, who swam to safety with another person in April after their helicopter plunged into the Hackensack River in New Jersey.

Local wins award

Earline Payne, local Stanley Home Products representative, attended the company Fall Fiesta in San Antonio with husband Clarence and approximately 500 other sales reps.

Earline was presented the "President's Award" for her sales achievements and is working toward another incentive, a mink coat.

Judging results for local college reported here

The Western Texas College Livestock Judging Team finished in 12th place in the Intercollegiate Livestock Judging Contest held at the Louisiana State Fair in Shreveport over the weekend.

In individual results, WTC was 8th in hogs and 10th in sheep. Kyle Cain of Frankston was fifth high in swine, Barry Ezra of Ira was 10th in cattle and Phillip Carter of Ira was 12th high in sheep.

Other team members were John Beckmeyer of Conroe, Tim Long of Aspermont, Lee Ann Beauchamp of Anson and Ann Davis of Roscoe.

Forty-five teams with 250 contestants competed in the contest, Jim Judah, team coach, said. The teams came from 15 states. Northeast Oklahoma A&M finished first, Conners State from Oklahoma was second and Texas A&M was third.

Benjamin Barrera graduates from AF basic training

Airman Benjamin R. Barrera, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salome Barrera of Snyder, has graduated from the Air Force training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Soviets deal blow to U.S. embassy staff in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin hit back in the superpower tit-for-tat by applying Washington's own limits to U.S. missions in the Soviet Union and stripping away vital local staff who do everything from serve cheeseburgers to wrestle with the Soviet bureaucracy.

The Soviet retaliation, announced by Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov at a news conference Wednesday night, will reduce the flow of American diplomats into the country and make it harder for U.S. officials to bring guests to the Soviet Union.

It also leaves the U.S. Embassy faced with having to reduce its diplomatic staff to fill secretarial, custodial, maintenance and other non-diplomatic posts once occupied by an inexpensive Soviet labor force.

The Reagan administration also may be hard-pressed to retaliate, if it decides to take such a step, since the Soviets operate their Washington embassy and San Francisco consulate with few American employees.

Gerasimov warned that any new steps by the United States will be matched by the Kremlin, and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said in a nationally televised speech that his government "will not put up with such outrageous practices."

In terms of simple numbers, the Soviets have stopped far short of the U.S. expulsions that began with an order that 25 Soviet diplomats at the United Nations leave the United States.

In response, the Kremlin ordered five American diplomats out of the Soviet Union. The United States then kicked out 55 Soviets — five in direct retaliation and 50 in what the Reagan administration said was an effort to even Soviet and U.S. diplomatic representation.

That was to leave 225 Soviets in Washington and 26 at the Soviet Consulate in San Francisco, equal to the Americans at the Moscow embassy and Leningrad consulate.

On Wednesday, Gerasimov said the Soviets were ordering another five Americans out of the Soviet Union, which apparently left the score at 80-10 in Washington's favor.

But Gerasimov then unveiled the meat of the Soviet response, a carefully crafted series of restrictions that hurt the U.S. Embassy far more than the expulsions of 10 diplomats.

The biggest stroke appears to be a Soviet decision that all 260 of the Soviet personnel working in Moscow and Leningrad must leave their jobs immediately and can only be replaced with Americans.

But, Gerasimov said, the United States cannot exceed its own limit of 225 staffers in Moscow and 26 in Leningrad.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Jaroslav Verner said Wednesday that the embassy is already at that limit, including the 10 diplomats under order to leave.

That means the U.S. government would have to reduce its diplomatic staff to replace the Soviet employees — a professional and financial burden.

The locally hired staff works for far less than the Americans — as little as one-fifth or one-tenth U.S. wages — and provides its own housing.

The American dependence on the Soviet staff is long-established and the embassy has been under congressional pressure to reduce local staff. Some legislators have expressed the fear that having Soviets in the embassy is a security risk.

But the local staff frees the American diplomats from many daily chores.

The 260 Soviet employees here and in Leningrad sweep floors, repair machinery and drive embassy cars, including the ambassador's own limousine. They shovel snow, wash windows and empty the trash.

Soviet employees serve at the ambassador's formal dinners and receptions, as well as dish out cheeseburgers and other meals at the embassy snack bar.

Smoke run noted

A fire call to an east Snyder residence Thursday morning turned out to be only a smoke scare.

Units were called to 1505 39th St. at 8:53 a.m. No fire was noted upon arrival and fire officials said the exact cause of the smoke was undetermined.

Arrests total 4

Four misdemeanor arrests were reported by police Wednesday, two of these involving juveniles.

The juveniles, one aged 14 and the other 15, were charged with fleeing to elude.

In addition, a 24-year male and an 18-year-old female were charged with public intoxication around 9:15 p.m.

'Fat Tony' heads Fortune 50 list

NEW YORK (AP) — Fortune magazine's newest list of America's top 50 bosses doesn't include anybody whose outfit is listed in Dun & Bradstreet. Number one is Anthony "Fat Tony" Salerno, a cigar-chomping, 75-year-old New Yorker tapped as the nation's top Mafioso.

Fortune, a business magazine known for ranking the 500 largest corporations, this week branched out with its list of "The 50 Biggest Mafia Bosses."

Salerno, the reputed boss of the Genovese crime family, was ranked No. 1 by law enforcers who assessed mobsters' wealth, power and influence.

Fortune gave second and third place to two more Anthonys: "Big Tuna" Accardo of Chicago and "Tony Ducks" Corallo of New York, respectively.

The reputed boss of the Gambino family, allegedly the nation's largest single crime network, may not be happy with his rating. Fortune put John Gotti 13th on its list, just ahead of the long-retired and imprisoned Joseph Bonanno.

Gotti lacks a colorful nickname, but his custom suits, Mercedes 450 SL, impeccable hairstyle and alleged role in the sidewalk slaying of predecessor Paul Castellano, have won him publicity harking back to Prohibition.

But "his superstar status is more image than substance," said Fortune. "He does not seem qualified to run the Gambino family's complex businesses, which range from meat and poultry sales to a garment industry trade association."

"Organized crime is, among other things, a potent economic force," managing editor Marshall Loeb explained in his biweekly note to readers. "Yet rarely, if ever, has the press examined the mob as a business, one that has its own management style and culture..."

According to the article, 'the organization chart of a crime family or syndicate mirrors the management structure of a corporation," and mobsters act accordingly:

—Like many a chief executive, Accardo was called back from retirement in Palm Springs, Calif., when other leaders of Chicago's Outfit were imprisoned.

—Salerno and his fellow New York Mafia bosses fixed cement prices, charging a 2 percent fee for all superstructures costing more than $2 million.

—Carl DeLuna, reputed underboss of the Kansas City, Mo., Mafia family, submitted detailed expense accounts for trips to Las Vegas, Nev., where he supervised skimming of cash from casinos.

The mob, Fortune notes, even has a yuppie: Michael Franzeze, 35, a racketeer's son who strayed from traditional scams to branch out into film production and gasoline tax evasion.

However, only 24 of Fortune's 50 are neither in jail nor under indictment, and only 15 of those are under 70. Highest ranked among them is Vincent "Chin" Gigante, a 57-year-old member of the Genovese family whose power has grown since Salerno's incarceration.

Salerno, Fortune says, was making more money than most Mafia chieftans even before ascending to the Genovese throne in 1980; he allegedly skimmed large sums from casinos in which he had a hidden interest.

For all its attention to finances, however, Fortune was unable to give annual income or net worth figures for anyone in the Mafia, a network which the FBI estimates has 1,700 initiated members in about two dozen cities.

Peter Reuter, a Rand Corp. economist who has studied organized crime, said the rankings probably meant very little.

"I couldn't make an accurate list, and neither can anybody else," he said. "This is entertainment, like most organized crime reporting."

Turnaround likely but not very soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration still hopes the downward drift in commodity prices will trigger a recovery in lagging U.S. farm exports, but no one is predicting the turnaround will be quick.

The Agriculture Department has not yet issued a forecast for 1987, but officials say next year should bring a pickup in the quantity of grain and other farm products sold to foreign buyers.

NASA is planning visitors' center

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Construction is scheduled to begin early next year on a $40 million visitors' center that will include a mini-Astrodome and two high-tech movie theaters, NASA officials say.

NASA officials said Wednesday the center will cost taxpayers nothing and will be built on 123 acres of unused land at the Johnson Space Center. Plans call for the facility to be open and operating by 1989.

A large geodesic dome, a small-scale version of Houston's famed Astrodome, will be the complex's centerpiece, and there also will be two theaters that will show the new Omnimax and Imax kind of motion pictures.

The complex will include a space education center dedicated to the Challenger astronauts and paid for by donations, officials said.

Plans call for a non-profit organization, Manned Space Flight Education Foundation Inc., to be licensed to build and operate the center. JSC public affairs director Harold Stall will serve as foundation president.

At a news conference Wednesday, Stall said studies predict about 1.7 million tourists will visit the center annually.

Stall said the foundation will issue tax-free bonds to pay for the construction. These bonds will be re-paid through funds collected for admission tickets and from sales of souvenirs and food at the center.

Economic projections call for an admission fee of $5.95 for adults and $3.95 for children, and Stall said it is estimated that each visitor will spend a total of about $9.50 there.

JSC already has a visitors center that charges no admission, but the space equipment on display is scattered among a number of buildings.

"It's clear that our facilities now are woefully inadequate," said Stall.

Clements calls for stop to early jail releases

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate William Clements, accusing opponent Mark White of carelessly granting freedom to prisoners, wants an immediate halt to the early release of state prison inmates.

To dramatize the situation, Clements appeared Wednesday at a Houston news conference with a Dallas woman who suffers from brain and eye damage as a result of an attack by a convict whose release was approved by White in 1983.

"The general public is more concerned about the economy," Clements said. "But the most sensitive issue is parole, early release, crime, law and order. That's the hot button."

The end to early releases was the top priority listed in an interim report revealed Wednesday by Clements' Criminal Justice Advisory Panel.

Clements said White, who ousted him from office four years ago, has been responsible for 16,362 paroles in 3½ years, compared with 12,038 during Clements' four years.

He said more important was a statistic he contended showed White has rejected only 3 percent of all paroles, while Clements turned down 25 percent.

"This governor has consistently been for a very lenient, relaxed attitude toward parole, as opposed to a tough, hard scrutiny that I gave to all parole applications," he said.

Susan Key, who appears in a Clements television commercial, complained that neither the parole board nor White had responded to her fears that Boyd Ray Land, convicted of aggravated sexual assault for an attack on her two months after his May 1983 parole, would be released early from a 30-year term.

Baylor grant allows study of comet dust

WACO, Texas (AP) — NASA has awarded a $7.5 million research grant to Baylor University physicists to study comet dust and perhaps give weather forecasters a better handle on when and where rain will fall.

The grant is the largest in Baylor's history and one of the largest awarded in the Southwest, Gary Carter, director of research administration, said Wednesday.

Dr. Merle Alexander, professor of physics and director of the Institute of Environmental Studies, will be the chief investigator for the 10-12 year study.

Congress okays farm subsidy, disaster aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm subsidy cuts and a $400 million fund to help bolster farmers who suffered through this year's natural disasters were key provisions in agriculture legislation passed by the 99th Congress.

The measures were in the omnibus budget control and appropriation bills adopted during the final hours of the congressional session last week, said Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-McAllen, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

"The payment ceiling provision has been designed to eliminate the relatively small number of very large individual payments that have attracted the kind of criticism which I fear could damage our entire farm stabilization program," de la Garza said Wednesday.

In all, the cost of the first year of the new farm program is likely to hit $30 billion. In contrast, the payment limit will save the government about $25 million over the next four years, the Agriculture Department estimates.

The bill would maintain the current $50,000 limit on an individual direct farm subsidy, but would permit an individual farmer to receive no more than $200,000 in other federal payments.

The new limitation of $250,000 on subsidies and payments to individual farmers was developed by Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., in reaction to reports of enormous federal payments through loopholes in the 1985 farm-support law.

Increasing reports of large farms subdividing into smaller units so that each could qualify for a $50,000 subsidy payment was one such loophole that spurred the Conte provision.

The measure calls on the USDA to determine if rule changes are needed regarding subsidies and to make recommendations to Congress by March 1.

De la Garza noted that the payment ceiling was adopted as part of the Continuing Resolution, which funds most federal programs for the 1987 fiscal year.

Also contained in the spending bill was authorization of $400 million in disaster payments to farmers who suffered from drought and other natural disasters this year.

The measure is aimed at helping to pay for damages suffered from drought in the Southeast, floods and excessive rain in Michigan and Oklahoma, and in other natural disaster areas that may be designated by the president.

Payments would cover disaster losses up to 50 percent of the farmer's normal production.

Other farm provisions contained in the spending bill include:

— a $2.017 billion floor under the amount of Rural Electrification Administration guaranteed loans that rural cooperatives could pay off and refinance privately at lower interest rates.

— a requirement that the Agriculture Department make $5 billion in short term export credit guarantees available in fiscal 1987 in intermediate-term export credit guarantees for promoting agricultural exports.

— advance delivery of partial subsidy payments to producers of 1987 wheat, feed grains, rice and upland cotton.

De la Garza also noted a section of the drug abuse bill contains a provision ending U.S. sugar import quotas for countries which the president finds to be involved in the illegal drug trade.

Sheriffs are irate over prison furlough plan

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Sheriffs of Texas's largest metropolitan areas are irate over a decision by the Texas Department of Corrections that will apparently abolish the sheriff's veto power concerning prisoner furloughs.

"I am incensed," Harris County Sheriff Johnny Klevenhagen. "This is just a way of getting around revamping the program."

Prison officials have been notifiying sheriffs and allowing them to veto furloughs to their counties.

Sheriffs from Harris, Bexar, Tarrant and Dallas counties asked the corrections department to stop sending furloughed inmates to their counties after a number of unsupervised leaves were being furloughed to their counties.

Prison Director O.L. McCotter promised he would revamp the system to meet the sheriffs' demands.

But it wasn't until this month that the director sent proposed changes to the sheriffs. The revisions include tightening eligibility and forcing inmates to visit a parole officer and stay home at night.

McCotter also included the bypass of the sheriffs, telling a legislative committee it was only a gentlemen's agreement that allowed them to veto furloughs.

"The furlough program was established by the Legislature," prison spokesman Charles Brown said Wednesday. "(We) can't wait on this forever."

McCotter wants to bypass the sheriffs to avoid the concerns of one sheriff who said his county could be liable if a furloughed inmated committed a crime, Brown said.

"I won't stand for it," Bexar County Sheriff Harlon Copeland said of the new policy.

Tarrant County Sheriff Don Carpenter and Dallas County Sheriff Jim Bowles also said they opposed the change.

Bowles predicted the plan could give the Texas prison system some big problems.
