SICK CONVICTS BURN FOUR HOUSES

Lone Mail Bandit Captured After $50,000 Train Robbery

DARING HOLDUP MAN FOUND ON DETROIT FERRY

Robber Clings to Rear of Canadian National Passenger Car

LOOT ALL RECOVERED

Cash Haul Is Taken From Prisoner by Border Officials

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 2. (UP)—Fifteen minutes after a lone bandit had robbed a mail car messenger on a Canadian National train of $50,000 in registered mail, near here tonight, he was captured by United States officers as he clung to the rear of the train being ferried across the Detroit river.

The bandit boarded the train at Chatham, Ont., shortly before 10 o'clock, and after working his way forward, forced the mail messenger to open several pouches containing registered mail. Cramming loot worth about $50,000 into his clothing the bandit then leaped from the train as it slowed down at Prairie siding. The train crew was alarmed by the messenger's shouts and the train was halted.

After a hurried search it was believed the bandit had escaped. The train continued, and the immigration officers found the man clinging to the rear platform as the train was passing across the river. He was returned to Detroit. The loot was recovered.

The bandit said his name was Herbert Gibbs, but refused to make known his address. Police, following as investigation of the loot, all of which was cash, said it would amount to at least $50,000.

Al Conducts Drive By 'Whimpering' Campaign, Charge

CHICAGO, Oct. 2. (AP)—Henry J. Allen, director of publicity of the Republican national committee, referred today to Governor Smith's drive for the presidency as a "whimpering campaign."

"Every speech Governor Smith made on his western trip," declared Allen, "left us wondering why they called him the 'happy warrior.' He was unhappy about something everywhere he spoke. At Oklahoma City, Governor Smith denounced the whispering campaign and substituted a whimpering campaign."

ROOSEVELT IS DEMO CHOICE

Nominee Yields to Al and Will Make Race

ABOARD GOVERNOR SMITH'S Special Train en Route to Albany, Oct. 2. (UP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith will devote the next few days to rest about the executive mansion and golf, to recuperate from his western campaign tour and prepare himself for his second campaign trip.

Returning to Albany today, the Democratic candidate discussed his success in persuading Franklin D. Roosevelt, who nominated him three times for president, to head the state ticket as gubernatorial candidate. Roosevelt refused flatly at first, pleading that his health would not permit it, but Smith finally won him over in a personal talk over long distance telephone to Warm Springs, where Roosevelt is undergoing treatment.

"Why, I simply told him that the convention was unanimously for him, the Democratic party needed him, and I did not see how he could refuse," Smith said of his successful long distance conversation with Roosevelt.

"There is a story going around that I want you fellows to get right," he told newspapermen, "to the effect that something was said that he did not have to work.

"Of course that is on the face an absurdity. The real fact is this: Frank Roosevelt today mentally is as good as he ever was in his life. Physically, he is as good as he ever was in his life. His whole trouble is in the lack of muscular control of his lower limbs. But the answer to that is that a governor does not have to be an acrobat. We do not elect him for his ability to do a double flipflop or a handspring."

JOE ROBINSON TELLS SOONERS ABOUT SMITH

Challenges Voters to Cite Single Instance of Catholic Influence

WADES INTO OWEN

Former Senator's Utterances Quoted to Show How He Has Changed

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 2. (AP)—A challenge to the voters of the nation to cite a single instance where Alfred E. Smith has permitted his membership in the Catholic church to influence his actions as governor was issued today by Senator Joe Robinson, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, upon his arrival in this state.

Advised by Oklahoma party leaders who met him at Claremore this morning that religion was one of the paramount issues to be thrashed out, the senator in a brief speech made from a truck in the middle of one of the streets, declared that no one would know from Smith's actions to what church he belonged.

Sails Into Owen

Moving on to Tulsa for a speech tonight, he again turned to this issue along with farm relief and what he described as "so-called Republican prosperity" as subjects for attack. In addition, the senator took advantage of his presence on Oklahoma soil to reply to thrusts that Robert L. Owen, a former Democratic senator from the state has taken at the Smith-Robinson ticket.

A reference by Robinson to Owen as a "distinguished man who represented or misrepresented Oklahoma in the United States senate" brought laughter and shots of "pour it on him, pour it on him," and "you tell 'em Joe" from an audience that filled all seats in the hall. Others in the crowd went "boo, boo, boo."

In the same hall where Owen is scheduled to speak tomorrow night, Robinson in an address prepared for delivery declared that a study of a speech by Mr. Owen appearing in the Congressional Record under date of May 29, 1926, shower the "inconsistency" of his present stand. In that address, the Democratic candidate said, Mr. Owen discussed the question of "what is a Democrat" and in part said:

"One who believes in freedom of speech, in freedom of the press, in freedom of religion, in the equal rights of every person to life, liberty and to the pursuit of happiness, . . ."

How Owen Stood

He further stated that a Democrat, the senator continued, was one who "opposes the Republican party because it is really dominated by the influence of national monopolies to the advantage of the major producers and consumers." He added that Owen also had said: "A Democrat may either favor the Volstead act or oppose the Volstead act. He is a liberal as opposed to ultra-conservatism."

Mr. Robinson argued the "only justification" so far as he was informed, Mr. Owen had made for his present position was that Governor Smith was a member of Tammany Hall, and, the speaker went on, Mr. Owen "never indicated any aversion to Tammany support when a candidate himself."

Woman Called 'Female Detective' in Printed Letter Sues Mann for Libel

Republican Manager in South Faces Payment of $50,000 for 'Frame-Up' Letter

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (UP)—Col. Horace A. Mann, the Republican national committee's southern campaign manager, was named defendant in a $50,000 damage suit filed in district supreme court today by Elizabeth Heiser, a graduate of American university, who describes herself as a writer.

Miss Heiser's petition asserts she was the victim of "malicious, false, scandalous and defamatory libel," as a result of a letter Col. Mann sent the New York World branding her a "female detective" and in which he said she had tried to "frame" him.

Col. Mann's letter, Miss Heiser's petition said, was published in the New York paper under his signature. His letter, her petition states, described her as visiting Republican national headquarters to obtain anti-religious literature and posing as a "Mrs. Yonkers of South Dakota."

Miss Heiser told the United Press tonight she was asked to obtain some pamphlets from Republican national headquarters by "Mr. Barnes of the New York World." She said she had not been asked to obtain anti-religious literature, as charged in Col. Mann's letter.

Col. Mann's letter to the World, her petition said, charged she was endeavoring to link his office with "the flow of anti-religious propaganda against Governor Smith in the south."

Miss Heiser contends in her petition that because of Col. Mann's letter her earning power and position as a post-graduate student at American university has been injured.

Col. Mann could not be reached tonight to comment on the suit.

Tubercular Inmates of State Farm Enraged at Blasted Plans

TUNNEL DISCOVERED

Water Tower and Four Structures Destroyed By Blaze

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 2 (AP) —Tubercular convicts on the Wynne state prison farm two miles west of Huntsville, irate because prison officials had discovered a tunnel under the tubercular building, today set fire to the building and the flames destroyed it as well as four other structures on the grounds.

None of the convicts escaped, and none was injured, although the 56 prisoners were herded together in a yard by eight guards after the fire had got well under way.

Paper Ignited

The fire started when one of the tubercular prisoners touched a match to paper which had been stuffed in the walls of the building. Before guards and other convicts could interfere, flames had spread to the building for blind, and the laundry, the power house and the water tower. Undermined, the water tower collapsed, leaving Huntsville firemen, who had been called, without water with which to combat the blaze.

Capt. J. H. Spates, in charge of the prison farm, said convicts had dug a tunnel five feet underground and 20 feet long through which they had planned an escape last night. The tunnel was discovered by prison officers Sunday, and the convicts threatened revenge.

Mr. Vardaman is here to conduct a business institute under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' association.

"Out somewhere there is an imaginary line where we will say Wichita Falls' influence ends," Mr. Vardaman told the Advertising club.

"We'll say it marks the beginning of No Man's Land for this city. Your problem is to push back that line and you will find there is resistance out there. The only way we know of breaking down this opposition is by advertising.

"Good advertising doesn't cost anybody anything," he declared.

"Coca Cola still sells for 5 cents though the company has spent millions of dollars in advertising. The story of development hangs on going out and telling people about your city."

Mr. Vardaman opened his institute for salespeople and store managers Tuesday night in the assembly room of the Kemp hotel. He will give a series of three addresses and will hold conferences in different stores of the city during his stay here.

City Collecting $75 a Night for Use of Auditorium

Al Smith and Herbert Hoover supporters have enriched the city of Wichita Falls by $150 in the past two days, it was learned Tuesday at the office of the city clerk.

It costs $75 for a regularly designated speaker for either of the national candidates to use the auditorium.

Thursday night O. B. Colquitt, former Texas governor, will speak on behalf of Herbert Hoover. The anti-Smith Democrats, under whose auspices he speaks, have already paid the city their $75 for the governor's use of the auditorium.

Monday night Senator Morris Sheppard spoke on behalf of Al Smith, and on Tuesday the check of the Democratic party for the senator's address was received.

TRIO SLAIN IN MOUNTAIN FEUD

Tennessee Community in Extreme Excitement

KINGSPORT, Tenn., Oct. 2 (AP).—Carter's Valley, a rural community near here, was recovering from the extreme excitement today, caused by the slaying of three persons and the injury of two others yesterday as a climax of a bitter mountain feud which originated in a controversy over a cow.

Three members of one family were killed, a fourth was struck by a shotgun charge, and Miller Horn, who is reported to have caused the tragedy, was wounded by a shot said to have been self-inflicted.

The victims are Neal Smith, a farmer, his wife and elder son. Clyde Smith, a second son, was shot but averted probable fatal injury by hiding in a ditch near the body of his mother. The shooting occurred at the Smith home. Mrs. Smith and her son were slain when they attempted to protect the father.

The Smith family resided on a farm owned by Horn and the difficulty believed to have led to the slayings occurred nearly a month ago, officers were told.

Clyde Smith and Horn are expected to recover.

Modern Flapper Could Learn Tricks From Naughty Marietta

As her title suggests, Naughty Marietta in Victor Herbert's opera comique to be presented at the Memorial auditorium October 8, is a mischief-making miss given to playing pranks. The production is being brought here by the Woman's Forum.

However, Marietta gets into no end of difficulties herself. To escape marrying an old fogy of a nobleman back in Italy, she becomes a stowaway on a boat filled with Casquette girls, sent over by the king of France to win husbands from among the young planters in New Orleans.

Throughout the operetta Marietta is on the verge of being discovered dozens of times, although she masquerades as the son of an Italian who operates a marionette show. She manages to keep her identity hidden from most of the characters until she and Captain Dick learn to the entire satisfaction of each that they have been in love ever since they first met. And just as the curtain rings down, the rest of the members of the company indicate that they highly approve the forthcoming marriage.

Marietta is one of the most captivating characters ever placed in light opera. She wins the sympathy of the audience from her first appearance and before long it becomes concerned over her seemingly unending difficulties. Capricious and whimsical, she is also very genuine with those she likes.

The late prima donna of "Castles in the Air" during its New York run, Miss Era Briggs, takes the role of this piquant maid.

INDIANA TREND IS PUZZLING

State Demos May Win, but Hoover Is Favored

Editor's Note: Raymond Clapper of the United Press in Washington is on a tour of the country to analyze and report the presidential campaign as he sees it. He will present an entirely unprejudiced account of his findings during his trip which will take him into the important battle zones of the country.

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 2.—Indiana is serving up its politics scrambled and with a good shake of pepper this year. The state shows strong symptoms of going for Hoover. It also shows strong symptoms of turning out the Republican pro-kian state machine and electing a Democratic governor.

The situation is reflected clearly in the fact that in 1924 while Coolidge was carrying the state by more than 200,000, Governor Jackson got it only by 71,000. Since then he has been implicated in the state political scandals and escaped prosecution on a charge of attempted bribery only because the statute of limitations protected him.

Many Republicans do not wish Jackson to take the stump for their candidate and pressure is being brought to prevent this. Governor Jackson was on the platform at a recent meeting addressed by Senator Curtis, Republican vice presidential candidate, but was neither presented to the audience nor mentioned by the speakers, as were other prominent Republicans of the state.

Protestant and Dry

To get a complete picture of the conflicting forces at play to bring about this result would tax the patience of a cross-word puzzle champion. But roughly the situation is that the state is overwhelmingly Protestant and dry, has been giving Republican presidential candidates majorities of 200,000, and has no inclination apparently to shift although many Republicans believe Hoover will receive a much smaller vote than either Harding or Coolidge because of certain conditions which will be described later.

Republicans are far less hopeful about electing their candidate for governor, Harry G. Leslie, who as speaker in the legislature, has been closely identified with the much bespattered administration of Governor Jackson. So uncertain of Leslie are the Republicans that the Hoover forces have set up an independent organization under Oscar Foellinger, Fort Wayne publisher and a Hoover pre-convention manager, which is ignoring the state ticket entirely and campaigning for Hoover.

Jackson's loss of influence is hurting Leslie. It is being said throughout the state that at the moment Leslie was nominated by the state convention, he was leaning on Governor Jackson who was on the platform. This is represented as symbolizing the real position of Leslie. Jackson has said he would rather have Leslie succeed him than anyone else.

Won by Deadlock

Leslie ran fifth in the state primary but won the nomination in the convention through a deadlock.

The Republican Indianapolis News, supporting Hoover, has refused to support Leslie and is for Frank C. Dailey, the Democratic candidate.

The pro-Hoover Times, the Scripps-Howard newspaper which exposed the klan scandals here, has rejected Leslie and is supporting Dailey. It is freely gossiped that some of Hoover's personal leaders in the state are friendly to Dailey and will welcome his election if they do not actually vote for him.

Dailey as United States district attorney, prosecuted the Terre Haute election scandals and was selected to prosecute the Newberry case in Michigan. He is practicing law here with five Republicans in his firm, one of the largest in the state. Dailey has been criticized by Republicans for a case which he won, resulting in higher rates for the telephone company, and for directing the legal phase of a big utility merger. Nothing unsavory has been indicated in either transaction. Dailey is dry and dismisses Governor Smith with a perfunctory statement in his speeches. His state committee says however, that Dailey is 100 per cent loyal to the Democratic ticket and declares most of its work is devoted to pushing Governor Smith. Dailey in his speeches frankly says he cannot be elected without Republican votes.

Steer Careful Course

"There are not enough Democrats to clean up this mess," he tells his audiences. "We must have Republican help and I not only invite but I implore Republicans to join us in this crusade."

So, with such a state lineup, the Hoover forces are steering a careful course. There is much resentment among Leslie's workers that Hoover managers should set up their own organization and ignore the state ticket. Ill-feeling runs throughout the Republican organization. Senator Watson, who has a complete state-wide organization reaching down into the precincts, fought Hoover in the primary but now is shouting more loudly than anyone for Hoover. He is going also with Leslie but is more interested in Hoover for there have been hints that Leslie was bent upon setting up an organization for his own candidacy, independent of Watson.

All of the things Watson said against Hoover in the primary campaign are being used by the Democrats now, but even such men as Ed Bush, candidate for lieutenant governor, who waved a British flag in his attacks on Hoover and who led the farm march on the Kansas City convention are now cheering for the man they were denouncing as "Sir Herbert" three months ago.

"Al Smith won't stop Hoover," he tells his audiences. "I tried to and didn't."

'Poison Squads'

The Republican state committee is attacking Smith among the farmers by quoting his appeals for cheaper milk in New York. While the official party organization is keeping the religious question out of its formal activities, individual Republicans are using the usual anti-Catholic arguments against Smith.

Democrats charge "poison squads" which it is said Republican women used in the 1926 campaign, are being used this year.

The "poison squads" were alleged to consist of five women in each county who were in touch with a leader in Indianapolis who could give a rumor complete circulation through the state within 24 hours.

"It is believed by those directing the Democratic campaign in Indiana this year that there are unmistakably evidences of a revival of the 'poison squads of 1926,' the state Democratic committee says. "Anonymous letters are daily forwarded from one point to another in Indiana in which spacious appeals are made to women voters."

Negroes are an important factor in Indiana. Many have switched to Smith and Dailey because of the klan affiliations with the Republican party, however. George B. Coffin, Republican chairman of the seventh district, which includes Indianapolis, and a co-defendant with Governor Jackson in the bribery charge, is a past master in handling Indiana negroes, however. He expects to be staging his pork roasts for them soon, and Republicans confidently expect that when Coffin gets through the bulk of the negro vote will be back under the Republican wing.

Governor Smith will speak here next month, but the state is so overwhelmingly Republican nationally that he has an uphill fight to get an even break.

Freshies at School of Mines Bound by Rules

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 2. (UP)—Freshman at the College of Mines are forbidden to wear their green caps across the border, according to a dictum handed down by sophomores recently. Wearing of the caps is compulsory on this side of the river.

Other rules for freshmen require them to open the doors of upper classmen's cars when they arrive at school and to help the upperclassmen from their cars.

Freshmen must change all upperclassmen's flat tires.

They are forbidden to talk to girls on the campus, to wear plus fours or suspenders, to sit in cars parked on the campus, or to smoke around the college.

GRAY HAIR DARKENED SIMPLE HOME RECIPE

Faded, streaked or gray hair can now be darkened, youthful appearance restored, and the stamp of encroaching years forever banished by the use of a simple mixture that anyone can prepare at home. To ½-pint of water, add ¼-oz. of glycerine or rosewater, and a box of Darlox Compound, (formerly Nuglo) which can be bought for a few cents at any drug store. Your druggist will mix it if you prefer. It will darken the hair and restore its natural color and youthful beauty. It is harmless, cannot be detected, will not darken scalp, is not dirty or sticky and will not rub off.—Adv.

TAKES ISSUE WITH ROBINSON

Wyoming Congressman in Dry Plank Defense

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 2. (AP)—Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, former Republican floor leader in the house of representatives, addressing the Twentieth Century Republican club here today denied the assertion of Senator Joe Robinson, Democratic vice presidential candidate, in Wichita, Kan., last night, that neither party platform declared for prohibition.

"I fear that exigencies of the campaign are getting in the way of Senator Robinson's usual practice of accuracy," said Mr. Mondell.

"The 18th amendment is the fundamental law establishing prohibition in America and if a pledge to enforce, as made by both party platforms, is not favoring prohibition, then I cannot understand plain English."

Mr. Mondell said the question of prohibition and prohibition enforcement would not have been in this campaign "if Governor Smith had not repudiated the prohibition plank of the platform the moment he was safely nominated, and persistently had proclaimed his opposition to the 18th amendment and his proposals for a constitutional change."

Texas Fire Loss in Decline of $150,000

AUSTIN, Oct. 2.—Fire losses in Texas during the month of August amounted to $990,302 which is a decrease of approximately $150,000 for the corresponding month in 1927, it was revealed in a statement released by state fire insurance commission, based on reports from city fire marshals. Electricity and defective wiring caused 38 fires, entailing a loss of $126,617; incendiarism was responsible for 22 fires, causing a loss of $49,072. The report shows there were 144 fires from unknown causes, resulting in a loss of $536,018.

Thick, Wavy Hair Indicates He-Man Barber Supply Head Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. (INS)—Nope, they ain't sissies at all. These boys with the nice, thick, wavy hair are real he-men and the most he-manish of the he-men, according to a dictate issued here today by Zeus Shaw of Wichita, Kan., past president of the National Beauty and Barber Supply Dealers association at the annual convention.

If girls want a real he-man they should choose a boy with thick, coarse, naturally wavy hair, he said. And if they want a nice, gentle, understanding sort of a husband, they should choose a boy with nice straight hair.

"Thin, brittle hair," said Shaw, "indicates great cerebral capacity and ability to concentrate—in other words, brains.

"Heavy, flowing locks usually are accompanied by stupidity.

"Fair hair indicates a sanguine or phlegmatic disposition.

"Red hair reveals a rather good or very cunning character.

"Beware of the girl with black, curly, rather stiff hair! She is prone to tears.

"If your hair is very fine, the probabilities are that you are of a nervous temperament and have artistic or literary ability."

Having delivered himself of this, Mr. Shaw excused himself and went in to address the convention.

Complaints Filed Labor Law Cases

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Oct. 2.—Returning from Fort Worth where he had spent a week making special investigations on violations of the state labor laws, Robert B. Cragg, deputy commissioner of the state labor department, reported that he had filed complaints in the courts of Tarrant county in eight cases for alleged violations of the so-called 9-54 hour law for female employes.

Four complaints were filed against J. W. Alexander, superintendent of the Worth Mills, Inc., a large cotton goods manufacturing concern of Fort Worth.

Other complaints were filed against the Natatorium Steam laundry of Fort Worth for alleged violation of the 9-54-hour law.

Commenting on the cases, Chas. McKenny, state labor commissioner, stated his department would make a special drive to "clean up" the city of Fort Worth in regard to violations of the labor laws. He added, however, that reports to his department indicated that a vast majority of employers were familiar with the requirements of the labor laws and were disposed to observe them in good faith. "Those employers who fail to respect the laws of this state can expect no leniency from the department," added the commissioner.

HAPPINESS CERTAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP)—Miss Margaret L. St. John, friend of Miss Mary Josephine Lauder, is back from Europe, having been unable to accept an invitation to a wedding in Italy. "It was pretty clear when Polly first met Gene that she liked him a great deal," says Miss St. John. "They're sure to be happy and made excellent choices."

TURK FIGHTER IS WELCOMED

Sir Edmund Allenby Puts In at New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP)—Field Marshal Sir Edmund Allenby, so-called last crusader, who conquered the Turks in Palestine and Egypt for the British, was welcomed on his arrival today for the American Legion convention in San Antonio.

Arriving on the liner Majestic with Lady Allenby, the general received an official salute of 17 guns from the army reservation on Governor's island as the city's reception boat Macomb carried him from the liner to the battery at the southern tip of Manhattan island.

There he was received by Sir Henry Gloster Armstrong, British consul general, and a score of other prominent men and women representing the city, the British empire and the American Legion. Lord and Lady Allenby were invited to be the guest of Charles H. Crane, former minister to China, before leaving the latter part of the week for San Antonio.

Dairy Employe Found Beaten at Houston

HOUSTON, Oct. 2. (AP)—A. P. Farrell, dairy employe, was found unconscious in a gutter near the plant at which he worked today. The man apparently had been beaten severely over the head. Attendants at a local hospital said his skull probably was fractured.

Police began an investigation on the theory that Farrell was attacked by a bandit.

Wild Colt Saves Only Human Pal From Drowning In Lake Waters

HAYS, Kan. Oct. 2. (UP)—A wild colt, who would make friends with no one but the 2-year-old baby boy of the Reiners Donn family, was credited today with having saved the baby's life after he had fallen into a water tank on the farm.

An older brother had been told to watch the baby, but he soon found other things of more interest. Then the baby was missed, and after a long search, the colt was found by the water tank, the neck band of the baby's dress firmly gripped in its teeth, and holding the baby's head just out of the water. The baby was too heavy to be lifted clear of the tank so the colt held the head out of the water and patiently waited until help came.

Comanche, Okla., Boy Killed by Motor Bus

DUNCAN, Okla., Oct. 2. (UP)—Floyd Jones, 5, Comanche, died last night, four hours after being struck by a bus near his home.

The one passenger in the bus, a woman from Dallas, absolved Leroy Lewis, 22, driver, of blame.

Reader Presented at Forum in Opening Reception of Season

A reception in which Olive McClinick Johnson of Dallas, well-known reader, was presented in Sir James Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows" marked the opening of the social year for the Woman's Forum at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The program was opened with a piano number, "Etude in D," by Floyd Ard, and during the second intermission, Mrs. J. E. Hall, accompanied by Miss Erma Nala Voss, gave a violin solo.

The reception committee included all the directors, officers and chairmen of committees.

The reception room and stage was elaborately decorated with baskets of cut flowers, carrying out a color scheme of red and yellow.

Large baskets and vases of pink and white roses aided in carrying out the pink and white motif in the dining room.

Immediately following the reading, punch was served to guests and members from a huge punch bowl, fashioned from a cake of ice with pink and white roses frozen around the center. Ferns were used at the base of the bowl.

Mrs. J. Truman Stevens, assisted by Mesdames Charles E. Watson, R. H. Peterson, A. C. Kemp, Nydia Joiner Young, Arch Dawson, Chester Wynne, presided over the punch bowl.

A book, containing all the pictures of the charter members of the Woman's Forum, presented by C. T. Pearle, photographer, was on display throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. J. C. A. Guest had charge of the program and Mrs. J. Truman Stevens acted as chairman of the decorating committee and dining room.

Membership fees for Junior Forum were taken and season tickets were sold.

Car Driven by Radio To Be Fair Novelty

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 2. (UP)—An automobile that is steered and stopped by radio will be one of the attractions shown at the State Fair of Texas, it has been announced.

"The phantom car" is an ordinary automobile which, without a driver or any other person aboard, runs forward or backward, turns to the left or right, stops and starts, sounds its own horn and switches on its lights as if an expert were at the wheel.

Roy Rupard, secretary of the fair, said that he saw the car while in Oklahoma City last week and engaged its inventor to bring it to Dallas for the Texas State fair.

ECZEMA FOR OVER 5 YEARS

In Pimples, Itched Awfully. Cuticura Healed.

"My mother had eczema on her body and limbs. It broke out in pimples and itched awfully, and when she scratched it, it caused eruptions. Later it broke out on her hands. She could hardly stand her clothes to touch it, and could not do her housework because she could not put her hands in water. It troubled her for over five years.

"She began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and could see an improvement, and in a short time was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Nannie Derrenbacker, Wealthia Va., Jan. 16, 1928.

Use Cuticura for every-day toilet purposes. Bathe with Soap, soothe with Ointment, dust with Talcum.

REAL THING

Couple Watching Drama Of Domestic Life Put Thoughts in Action

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 2. (UP)—Those who saw the dramatic production, "Why Men Leave Home," at the Criterion theater here last night, saw an unbilled bit of drama.

The play had progressed to the point where the wife was accusing the husband of taking advantage of her absence from home to visit other women.

Suddenly from the 18th row on on the main floor, came a series of feminine "You do's," and masculine, "I don'ts."

The argumentative spouse was knocked to the floor, bits of her glasses scattered in odd directions. The repentant husband picked her up and carried her out of the theater.

CHIC CHERI — Latest Fashions

Just because the sleeping garments in this picture are not being slept in at the moment is no reason for you to doubt our assurance that they are the newest and smartest sleeping garments there are. Dina's (left) is a figured chiffon and proves that it is new by having a fichu to match. Kitty's pajamas plainly demonstrate the newness by wearing a kerchief scarf. Sue's silk voile is shirred around the middle at the normal waistline—and all of these details are nothing to Cherie at this moment. Cherie doesn't know what all the fuss is about, but at least she is glad to get home. She doesn't know what they thought.

What they did think, Emily is telling her. That she had been kidnaped, hit on the head and killed altogether. Cherie is explaining that she changed her mind about going to Sue's and went some place else instead. She wanted to ponder over the state of her feelings for Andy and Eustace. But when Emily asked her if she ever did find out what she thought, Cherie changes the subject and mentions the smartness of Emily's nightgown, which is a new knee-length affair. Cherie's gown (so comfortable to get home just in time to go to bed!) is a blue chiffon with a modish triangle scarf of the same material. Recommended for breakfast in bed.

Bagwell Wins Not Guilty Verdict

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Oct. 2.—H. C. Bagwell, former Breckenridge dairyman, now of Sweetwater, was found not guilty today by a jury before which he was being tried on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of the "Peg Leg" Lane, local taxi driver, last July 28.

Self defense was Bagwell's plea. His testimony that Lane assumed a threatening attitude was supported in testimony by Mrs. Bagwell. The state introduced nine witnesses.

Lane was shot three times and died almost instantly. The affair took place in the front of the Bagwell home on the southeast outskirts of Breckenridge.

Few murder cases in the history of Stephens county have attracted the interest that this one drew. The trial consumed less than 15 hours in the 90th district court over which Judge C. O. Hamlin presides.

Husband's Praise Makes Wife's Household Work a Privilege

A Wife's Pride in Her Craftsmanship Is Something That No Husband Ought to Be Able to Take From Her, but His Praise Lends An Extra Flavor to Household Drudgery and Makes it Seem a Privilege.

A woman says: "What's the use in my trying to be a good wife when I never get any thanks or appreciation from my husband? What's the use in my spending hours slaving over the gas range preparing some dainty he loves when he gobbles it down without a word of appreciation?

"What's the use in my dolling myself up and trying to keep young and attractive when he never notices me any more than if I were a piece of useful household furniture? What's the use in my pinching and economizing when I know that he is going to howl to heaven over what I spend, and be as dumb as an oyster about what I save?"

Answer: The "use" is that wifehood is the career that you have undertaken, and you owe it to your own self-respect to make a good job of it. The craftswoman must not always be looking at the reward of her labors. She must do her work well because she has a pride in it; because she has a sense of loyalty to the labor to which she has set her hand that will not let her bungle it, or slight it, or give to it anything less than the best that is in her.

I admit that strewing pearls before swine is a discouraging occupation, but if you find out that you have signed up for a life contract at doing that particular thing, you will get a tremendous kick just out of doing it superlatively well. Your pig may not give a grunt of approval, but your own soul will give you three cheers and a tiger.

But how stupid a man is who ever lets his wife get to the place where she asks: "What's the use in trying to be a good wife?" For that marks the place where a woman puts up her last fight for her dreams of what marriage should be, and of her ideals of wifehood.

When she asks herself that question, she runs up the white flag of defeat and surrenders to despair, and ever after she is a sullen prisoner of domesticity, doing the tasks because they are imposed upon her, not because she has any heart or enthusiasm or interest left in her job. And she expects no pay for it.

What's the use? That's the answer to why women slump in their housekeeping. That's why they are slouchy and untidy and unattractive around home. That's why they are peevish and nagging. That's why they grow dull and tiresome.

What's the use in a woman working herself to skin and bone scrubbing and sweeping and polishing to keep her house as neat as the proverbial pin for a husband who never shows by word or look that he has seen her make any effort to make him comfortable?

What's the use in a woman making a burnt offering of herself over the kitchen stove cooking the particular dishes her husband likes, when the only time he ever notices the food is to find some faul with it, and when he gulps down angel food with no more appreciation than if it were corned beef and cabbage?

What's the use in a woman scrimping and skimping and squeezing every penny and making every dollar do the work of two, if her husband never praises her thrift but berates her because she isn't a miracle worker who can feed and clothe a family on air?

What's the use in a wife trying to look pretty and attractive to a husband who hasn't really taken a second glance at her since their honeymoon, and who, when she flashes for a compliment about her new dress or hat, always tells her that they are too young for her, and what does she want to wear that kind of a fool fashion for, anyway?

What's the use in a wife trying to read and study and make herself an interesting companion for a husband who sits up of an evening like a dummy with a paper in its hand, and who merely responds "ugh-huh" when she makes an abortive attempt to converse with him?

What's the use of trying to be tender and affectionate to a husband who turns his ear to your kiss, and who is as responsive as a block of ice when you try to put your arms about him?

What's the use? None at all, millions of discouraged women decide. And so they throw away all of their pretty little ways and all of their good resolutions about making a happy home, and being ideal wives, and sweep them out the back door into the garbage can along with the rags and tatters of the pink chiffons from their trousseaus.

And since they feel that there is no profit in being a good wife to a man who does not appreciate one, they drift into becoming makeshift wives.

Nor can you blame them. Human nature being what it is, we must have some reward for our labors, we must have some incentive to make us put forth an effort, we must have some appreciation of our efforts to make them seem worth while.

Men feel this as well as women. No man would expect to get the best out of his employes if he only blamed and never praised, and if he took the best that they could give him without acknowledgment of its merit but was instant with his fault-finding for their every mistake; if he always used the hammer and never the salve-spreader.

How, then, can any man expect to have a wife who is cheerful, happy and contented if he never praises her for her good qualities? How can he expect her to break her neck trying to please him when he never even gives her a grunt of approval?

Be sure that when a wife asks, "What's the use of being a good wife?" it is her husband's fault.

Smith Assailed and Hoover Lauded by Women

GALVESTON, Texas, Oct. 2. (AP)—The Texas Women's Christian Temperance union today continued to lambast Al Smith and to sing the praises of prohibition as the most effective method of minimizing the evils of liquor traffic.

Delegates to the state convention assembled today at the First Methodist church devoted some time to a discussion of the constitution of the United States, then heard Mrs. Claude De Van Watts of Austin, president of the organization, and Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames of Dallas, a member of the state joint legislative committee, attack Smith, Tammany, and the Texas Democratic party machine, and express approval of Herbert Hoover.

"Prohibition is the best means of checking the liquor traffic," Mrs. De Van Watts said. "We shall work to place at the head of our government a man who loves the constitution of his country and who is a prohibitionist."

Mrs. Ames concentrated on the state Democratic executive committee.

"This is a state issue rather than a national issue," she said. "Texas has been solidly Democratic for too long. If the women will as a body vote the Republican national ticket it would do more to break up the iniquitous party machinery in Texas than anything else."

Texas Democrat Official Forwards Anti-Catholic Literature to Capital

DALLAS, Oct. 2. (INS)—Albert Sydney Johnson, secretary of the state Democratic executive committee, announced here today that he has forwarded to Democratic national headquarters marked copies of anti-Catholic propaganda which, he alleges, is being circulated by the "Hoover Democrats" in Texas. He has asked that Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, be asked to disclaim this practice.

In the literature sent national headquarters was a copy of the "Constitutional Democrat," which, Johnson alleges, is edited by and sent out from the office of former Governor O. B. Colquitt of Dallas. This, Johnson stated, is being circulated from Hoover Democratic headquarters here.

Johnson also complained of anti-Catholic propaganda in "The Advance," edited by Dr. J. B. Cranfill of Dallas, but did not send this paper to headquarters in as much as it is not being circulated from Hoover headquarters.

"Herbert Hoover and the Republican national committee must accept the responsibility for this propaganda," Johnson declared. "Hoover Democratic leaders have been in conference with R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman from Texas, and other Republican leaders, and the latter must be familiar with the plans and tactics of the former.

SYSTEM SEEMED POISONED; MAN RARELY FELT EASY

"I was in very bad health when I began taking Black-Draught," says Mr. R. J. Black, of Lockhart, S. C. "I had been sick for a long time.

"I could not eat heartily, and my rest at night was disturbed. I was troubled with the effects of gas pains, and I hardly had a comfortable day.

"I was nervous and worried. All I could do was to complain. I tried several things, but I could get no relief.

"All my ailments seemed to be the result of chronic constipation which caused my system to become filled with poison. I was getting worse all the time, but did not realize the real cause.

"One day a friend suggested that I try Black-Draught. I had often seen it advertised, but I had never tried it. I began taking it right off, and no money could pay me for the improvement which came after I had taken it several weeks.

"I began to feel better. The bad taste which I had in my mouth every morning disappeared.

"My appetite improved, and I began to feel like a different person.

"I continued the medicine for several weeks, and since then I have felt fine. I am in better health now than I have been in years. Black-Draught is a splendid remedy for constipation, and I am glad to recommend it."

Black-Draught is a purely vegetable remedy, prepared from roots and herbs, carefully combined and packaged by automatic machinery. In use for over 87 years.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The English have taken up whippet racing with so much enthusiasm that it has finally been brought over to this country. Recently a load of the fleet hounds arrived here and the races were opened at Staten Island. There has been a good deal of interest in the whippet races, and plenty of betting. The question as to whether the betting is legal caused some trouble but seems now to be adjusted to the satisfaction of everyone.

It was an American who first conceived the idea of putting on whippet races on a big scale. He tried to interest some men to back him in this country but no one was willing to take a chance. At last he went to England where they decided to try it out. The success of the venture was instantaneous and overwhelming.

The dogs are raced around a circular track. They follow a mechanical rabbit, electrically operated, on a buried rail. The rabbit is sent around the track once by itself and as it gets out well in front of the cages in which the dogs are kept the doors are lifted and they take after it for all they are worth. The first time the dogs were raced to the rabbit, the man who operated the rabbit made a slight miscalculation on the speed of the flying dogs. In the second time around the leading dog caught up with the mechanical hare and seized it triumphantly. The operator, by suddenly throwing on the speed, jerked the rabbit away from him, but the astonished dog lost his lead and as a result the race. There was some protest over this race but the results stood and the bets were paid.

In Scotland, where dog racing has been the favorite sport for generations the finest whippets in the world are bred. They are raced on a straight course there; each dog being launched by his owner who holds him firmly by the scruff of the neck and the base of the tail, and at the signal hurls the animal down the track for a running start. These dogs hit the ground going about 30 miles an hour and in full stride.

The beauty of the finely bred animals, the long slim lines of them as they stretch out over the ground and fly along like shadows, makes it a sport to thrill the heart of any spectator. And in the races where hurdles are used, to see them leave the ground at full speed, clear the bar seemingly without effort and come down lightly in perfect stride is a picture not to be forgotten.

Kohler's Nomination Contested in Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 2. (AP)—A writ of mandamus asking the Wisconsin supreme court to issue an order that Theodore Dammann, secretary of state, cancel the name of Walter J. Kohler as Republican nominee for governor, was filed with the supreme court today.

The action was filed by Fred M. Wylie, local attorney, on ground that Mr. Kohler violated the corrupt practices act in not listing all his expenditures as required under the law.

Mr. Kohler is to answer charges Oct. 6 at 9 a. m.

HAD A HUNCH

Cop Trails Car and Discovers Cargo of Booze

FORT WORTH, Oct. 2. (UP)—It was only a case of mistaken identity, but no pardons were asked or received.

Fort Worth police were told to be on the lookout for a roadster license number so-and-so, wanted as stolen. While Policeman S. J. Knight was calling headquarters, a roadster bearing that particular number passed him.

In the automobile held were found two cases of beer and two cases of empty bottles. The driver pleaded guilty to possession of liquor and gave $50 bond.

But despite the similarity in license numbers, the plates were different. It was alright, however. Some policemen just have a hunch.

Hugged by a President

ALL AMERICAN newspaper correspondents in Mexico City were hugged twice by the provisional president-elect, Emilio Portes Gil, on the day of his inauguration.

According to a dispatch from the Aztec city it was merely the proper etiquette for the occasion, but nevertheless was a novelty to most newspaper men because they had been able only rarely to see President Calles, much less hug him.

As a token of good will, the Mexican custom should be transplanted to the city of Washington. It would be a sight for the gods and men to witness a newly inaugurated president going down the line hugging American correspondents and photographers.

In France an impulsive son of the land of the lilies uses the kiss sign of affection instead of the hug sign.

In the United States it is a handclasp and then "push along" to make way for the procession.

Sleeping During Sermons

WHY DO PEOPLE go to sleep in churches?

The problem is as old as Christianity itself. In colonial days it was solved by having deacons prowl up and down the aisles with long, knobbed sticks, with which they tapped, sharply, the heads of all who dozed.

Dr. Edmund Jacobson of the University of Chicago has studied the question and thinks he knows the answer. Complete muscular relaxation, he says, brings with it relaxation of the thinking powers. The man who slumps down in his seat, inert and motionless as possible, cannot keep his senses alert. Consequently he fails to concentrate on the sermon, and goes to sleep.

We don't know just what the remedy should be. Apparently, however, the moral is that the body, as well as the mind, must be kept alert and responsive while in church. Otherwise some of the pastor's gems of wisdom are apt to go unheard.

The Story of Jeb Stuart

BIOGRAPHERS lately have taken to a fresh consideration of picturesque figures in American history. The result has been a number of highly interesting books. From Andrew Jackson to Kit Carson, the striking, colorful men of a few generations ago are being pictured anew for us.

Before this very praiseworthy custom passes, we would like to see come clever writer try his hand at a biography of one of the most dashing Americans who ever lived—Jeb Stuart, famous cavalry leader of the Southern Confederacy.

Stuart wore a great plume in his hat and carried a shining sword. He used his cavalry as a rapier to tickle, annoy and confuse the ponderous armies of the north. His thrilling exploits were legion; time and again he rode completely around the Union army, once stopping at a federal supply base to send a telegram to the Union quartermaster general complaining that the quality of the mules furnished the northern army was very bad.

Stuart's career ended where it should have, to make the story complete. He died on the field of battle. To date we have not found an adequate biography of him—nothing to compare with Allen Tate's Stonewall Jackson, or Sir Frederick Maurice's Lee. The job needs to be done. Won't some publisher give it his attention?

Men, Causes, Leaders

"WHAT a man is," says Rabbi Barnett Brickner of Cleveland, "depends largely upon what he is a part of—separate and alone he amounts to nothing."

The rabbi made this remark to a group at a chamber of commerce luncheon, stressing the importance of such mutual benefit organizations. His statement, however, applies to all of us, whether we belong to a chamber of commerce or a plasterers' union.

A good share of every thinking man's life is spent in looking for a cause to which he can tie himself. Once he finds a movement which will demand his utmost endeavor and fidelity, he is happy. If he fails to find it he is unhappy. He feels confused and bewildered.

Do you remember the days of April, 1917?

There was a curious exaltation in the land then. We knew, in a vague sort of way, that war was a horrible thing; yet, somehow, we felt uplifted. We had found a cause. Something had appeared, bigger than any individual, to demand that we give ourselves completely. The young men who left for the training camps went gaily, jubilantly.

Part of this, perhaps, was mere youthful love of adventure. But underlying that was something more significant. The country was being asked to make a great sacrifice for the sake of a cause. It did not fail.

After the war there was a let-down. The returning soldiers were disillusioned. The older generation forgot the high ideals it had been gazing on. The youngsters, just growing up, began a pursuit of excitement and pleasure that startled and shocked a whole army of parents.

This was the most natural thing in the world. Our cause had been taken away from us. Once more each of us was on his own. We were separate individuals again, instead of parts of a great movement.

Now this isn't to say that we ought to go to war every few years just for the moral uplift involved. Bpt it does mean that we need leaders. Nothing in the world is easier than for a really strong man to enlist a following. For we realize that what we are depends, largely, on what we are a part of. If we can find a movement greater than ourselves, and give the last drops of our devotion and energy to it, we are fortunate.

GOOD WILL TRIPS VALUABLE

The first of a series of trade trips planned by the Vernon Chamber of Commerce this year was highly successful in the opinion of that organization and the individuals who had charge of the arrangements.

Those who are inclined to be skeptical about such efforts doubtless are asking what was gained by the trip. The answer to that question is to be found in news accounts of the trip. Read them, observe the spirit manifested by the citizens of the communities visited, note the friendliness promoted for Vernon, and then ask the question, was there anything lost? And the answer must be apparent.

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, well-known writer of mystery novels, has buried his past in his present success. No one knows that he is Paul Forrester, who as a youngster had been mixed up in a chorus girl's breach-of-promise suit, and had also figured in a self defense killing out West. As a result of the latter he bears a scar on the right side of his neck. Dean, therefore is dumfounded to read in the morning paper the death-bed confession of Paul Forrester's murder made by Martin Lamont, western business man on a visit to New York, in which the dying man repents his five-year-old crime. Matters are further complicated by a visit from a strange lady, mysterious little Viola Gray, who tries to connect one of Dean's stories with Forrester's secret.

Resolving to clear up the mystery, Dean visits his family home, where the murder was committed, and runs into his friend, Lieutenant Shane, of the police force, who believes the novelist is merely seeking fiction material.

Together they visit "The Room Under the Stairs," and find the remains of Paul Forrester. Identification of the body is completed by a watch bearing the initials "P. F."

A visit to Lamont's bedside at the home of Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, brings further complications, for the dying man speaks of the scar and points to Dean before collapsing.

The Scarred Neck

"Creepy, wasn't it?" asked Shane as they walked toward the station. "What did you make of it, Dean?"

Dean did not answer immediately. His mind was still a whirl. The awful moment when Lamont's eyes stared into his while the luster slowly faded out of them was inflaming his senses like some ghastly dream. The lieutenant's covert scrutiny brought him back to the present.

"I don't know, Shane," he said tonelessly. "I haven't the least idea what it meant."

It was partly true. Though Dean knew that he had been the direct cause of the sick man's agitation, and though he understood the meaning of the weird scene that had preceded Lamont's collapse, the mystery was in nowise lessened. He turned as hurried footsteps sounded behind him. It was Littleby, pale and slightly out of breath.

"What did you think of it, gentlemen?" "It was Shane who spoke the question, looking fixedly at the lawyer.

Littleby gave one of his eloquent shrugs. "There is no accounting for a dying man's preoccupations. All sorts of strange fancies come to people at times like that. It probably meant nothing at all."

Dean gave him a curious glance. He felt the lawyer had been guilty of an evasion ,or perhaps he had only been trying to reassure himself.

"What was that about a scar?" asked Shane, directing the question to Dean.

The novelist hesitated. To push back his collar and expose the scar on his neck would have delighted his dramatic sense, but he checked the mad impulse in time.

"Why ask me?" he rejoined. "I heard Lamont say that he saw a scar on Forrester's neck. Do either of you gentlemen happen to know whether Forrester carried such a scar? If we could establish that he did, the last possibility of a case of mistaken identity would vanish."

Shane said he had no information on that point, while Littleby merely shook his head. They came to a corner drug store, and there the lawyer left them, explaining he was having a prescription refilled. Dean and the detective walked on to the station, each feeling an awkward hesitancy. A curious tension seemed to have grown up between them in the last half hour.

"Seems to me Littleby could have sent a servant for the prescription," mumbled Shane.

"Maybe he was curious to know how we interpreted the scene in Lamont's bedroom." Dean suggested. "Well, Shane, did you satisfy your curiosity in regard to Lamont's secret worry?"

"No," said the lieutenant after an appreciable pause. "I still think he is brooding over something that has little or nothing to do with the murder of Forrester." He glanced queerly at his companion. "If the shock he received should kill him, then we'll never find out the cause of his worry, I suppose."

Dean nodded uncertainly, and neither man spoke until the train rolled into the station.

"Now let's have it," said Shane when they were seated in the smoker. "I didn't blame you for not wanting to talk in Littleby's presence, but you needn't keep any secrets from me. Three of us heard and saw everything that happened in Lamont's room, but you were the only one that understood anything. Spill it, Dean."

"I think you overestimate my sagacity," countered Dean.

"Now you're talking like the characters in your stories. What I want is plain words. In the first place, what's the meaning of the scar Lamont spoke about?"

"I don't know," said Dean after a brief hesitation. He spoke candidly enough, for the matter of the scar had only complicated still further an already hopeless situation.

Shane regarded him doubtingly. "I could see you get a jolt when Lamont spoke about the scar. It seemed to touch you on the raw."

"The whole scene did. I swear I understood nothing," said Dean, emphatically and truthfully. "I was just as nonpulsed as you and Littleby were. Even more so," he added under his breath and with a significance that was lost on Shane.

"All right, then," said Shane resignedly, "but there's something else you can tell me. Till my dying day I'll never forget the way Lamont stared at you just before he collapsed. What did it mean?"

"Sorry, but I am at a loss there, too. I know he looked at me in a most peculiar way, but I can't tell you why."

"Did you ever see Lamont before?"

Dean hesitated, searching his memory. The question had already occurred to him. "To the best of my knowledge," he declared, "I never saw him until this evening."

Shane gave him a quick, skeptical look. "If I didn't know you as well as I do, I'd call you a first-rate liar. While I was watching you and Lamont, I could have sworn that you were wise to all that was going on."

"On the contrary, I was flabbergasted."

Shane thought for a moment. "Since you say it, I believe you, of course. Now let me try a different tack. A man with an imagination like yours ought to be able to think up an explanation of what happened in Lamont's room a little while ago. Just look at it as a mystery, from the point of view of a writer of fiction, and give me your idea of what the solution ought to be. Can you do that?"

Dean smiled. "Well, I've solved pretty hard riddles. If I understand you correctly, you want me to put my imagination to work and give you a fictitious solution of the scene that took place in Lamont's bedroom?"

"Just that."

Leaning back against the seat, Dean thought for a while. The faint smile on his lips and the intent look in his eyes showed that the problem fascinated him.

"I think I have it," he said at length, without looking at his companion, "but you mustn't forget that it is only a fictitious solution. It accounts, at any rate, for Lamont's terrific excitement. When he saw me at his bedside, he suddenly realized that he had made a mistake in regard to the identity of the man he killed five and a half years ago."

"How is that?" Shane seemed somewhat disappointed.

"Well," said Dean slowly, weighing each word, "it came to him all at once that I was Paul Forrester, and that consequently he had killed the wrong man."

"That you were Paul Forrester?" Shane, as the novelist had expected, laughed at the suggestion as if it were utterly preposterous.

"The shock of such a discovery would be enough to overcome a man in Lamont's weakened condition, wouldn't it?"

"Of course it would, but why on earth should he think you were Paul Forrester? Why, it's—" Shane seemed at a loss for words. "Your imagination isn't in its usual form tonight, Dean?"

"Apparently not," said the novelist plaintively. "I admit it isn't a very good solution. There is a hole in it big enough for an elephant to walk through."

"It's all holes, as I see it, and nothing else. What particular hole have you in mind?"

"The only one that my imagination isn't capable of filling in. I might plug up the others if you gave me a little time, but I would never be able to explain why, if Lamont killed the wrong man, a watch bearing Paul Forrester's initials on the back should be found in the room under the stairs."

"That's so," said Shane thoughtfully. "I didn't spot that one till you pointed it out. It tears your solution to shreds, of course."

"Of course," echoed Dean in queer tones. He looked as if his mind were still wrestling with the hypothetical solution. For several minutes the men sat silent, swaying with the motions of the train; then Dean added: "I've found neither hole. Did you notice the queer way Lamont stared at the telephone?"

"I did. He looked at it as if he expected it to fly up and bite him. What do you suppose it meant?"

Dean shook his head. "A satisfactory solution of a mystery is supposed to account for all the facts. My solution leaves Lamont's behavior with regard to the telephone unexplained, so I guess it won't do. There are two holes already."

"And I have found a third," said Shane, just as the train dipped into the humid jaw of the tunnel. "There's another thing that your solution doesn't take into account at all. If Lamont killed the wrong man, who was the fellow with the scar on his neck?"

Dean glanced down the length of the swaying coach. "You've got me there again," he confessed. "It's an interesting point. Well, I warned you it was only a fictitious solution. Let's drop it. My head is swimming."

"So is mine," said Shane.

Imps of incongruity were still cavorting in Dean's mind when, after leaving Lieutenant Shane, he walked into a restaurant and ordered a late dinner. One must eat even though the heavens fall, and Dean made the best of the necessity. He was in no mood to go back to Top o' the Hill, and he was glad he had brought his bag along. Of a sudden he had lost all interest in the half-done novel that lay on his cluttered desk at home. The work of his imagination seemed pallid and stale beside the mystifying realities that surrounded him.

Dallying over his cigar and coffee, he made several vain efforts to shatter the fog in his mind. At one time he was tempted to leave things as they were, to let Paul Forrester remain dead. If the truth came out, he should once more have to live down his mortifying affair with Beulah Vance, and the resulting publicity would not only be humiliating, but it might damage his professional standing as well. Moreover, it was dangerous to ventilate the dusty corners of the past. The name of Paul Forrester was too intimately associated with an episode that Thomas Dean had long tried to forget. But, on the other hand, he knew that his mind would never be at rest until the mystery of Lamont's confession had been solved.

The Unsolvable Riddle

Besides, Dean was rather vexed at his inability to work out a satisfying solution of the riddle. In the seclusion of his workshop at Top o' the Hill he had pounded out on his typewriter many a mystery as tangled and inscrutable as this one appeared to be, chuckling at the ease with which he conducted his characters in and out of labyrinthine passages, but he had always confessed to himself that he was merely romancing; that such things could not be in a world of hard facts. But for once hard facts had outstripped his imagination, and this was humiliating. As he himself had admitted, the theory he had offered Lieutenant Shane suffered from several discrepancies, chief among them being the monogrammed watch and the look of dread with which Lamont had regarded the telephone beside his bed.

Time and again he reviewed in his mind the scene that had been enacted in Lamont's bedroom, but he felt himself slipping into a sea of incongruities whenever he tried to interpret the dying man's words and actions. Lamont's mention of the scar on his victim's neck was the culminating touch of the riddle. So far as external evidence went, it seemed to prove beyond possibility of doubt that the man who had been murdered in the Hudson street house five and a half years ago was Dean himself.

He laughed shortly as his mind hurdled this staggering conclusion. From that point on his thoughts drifted into strange, metaphysical realms.

Perhaps the explanation was to be found there. He had heard and read of duality, metempsychosis and other things that were only words to him. But thinking along that line seemed to lead nowhere. He would continue his search for a more rational explanation first. But where was he to begin?

The confession itself seemed the logical starting point, but he had already considered it from all possible angles. He had made inquiries which satisfied him in regard to the trustworthiness and professional standing of the alienists who examined Lamont just before the confession was taken down. He had also learned that the notary public who had witnessed the dying man's signature was a man of unquestioned honesty. Moreover, he had ascertained that the professional standing of Dennis Littleby, Lamont's host, was excellent in every respect. The confession and the circumstances under which it had been made seemed unassailable from every point of view. Then where was he to make a start?

A picture of the drab house on Hudson street flashed across his mind. It was there the murder had been committed; it was from there the tangled threads of the mystery radiated. Luckily Dean had retained a key to the house and he had brought it with him from Top o' the Hill that morning, having dredged it out from a jumble of useless odds and ends in his desk drawers. It was just possible that on the scene of the murder he would find something that might shed a little light on the matter.

Study of Retail Trade Planned

AUSTIN, Oct. 2. (UP)—A scientific study of the retail trade of smaller cities and towns in the state has been announced by the University of Texas, according to information revealed by Dr. W. J. Reilley, who is in charge of market studies at the university. He will be assisted by Arthur H. Hert, assistant.

"At present," said Dr. Reilley, "there are a number of serious misunderstandings which exist between retail merchants in the smaller cities and towns and the retail merchants in larger cities. Those misunderstandings are due to a lack of information concerning the place which each group of retailers occupies in the scheme of distribution.

"With the past few years there has been a marked tendency toward the centralization of markets for high-grade style and specialty merchandise. At the same time there has been a strong tendency toward decentralization of markets for standardized goods.

"The result is that smaller retail dealers are opening up a market in the small cities and towns for standardized goods and the larger retailers in larger cities are becoming noted for their specialties."

A survey of the retail trade in large cities has been recently completed, the results of which are soon to be announced from the university.

UTTERLY USELESS

Of all the useless things there be,
A chicken is the worst to me;
He pounds the ground for paltry food
And masticates both ill and good;
It seems his highest sought for peg
Is just to crow, or lay an egg;
Or if the traffic lets him through,
To end his days in chicken stew.
Why even then, it's true enough
That, two to one, he's old and tough!

SECOND DEATH AT UNIVERSITY

Car Kills Freshman; Services for 'Frat' Initiate

AUSTIN, Oct. 2. (UP)—The shadow of the second death here in the last three days dwelt over the University of Texas tonight following the death today of Floyd Strelsky, freshman, who was fatally injured this morning when he was struck by an automobile near the school. He died in the University hospital this afternoon. Nolte McElroy, 19, sophomore, died Sunday night when he was being initiated into a fraternity.

SERVICES HELD FOR FRATERNITY YOUTH

AUSTIN, Oct. 2. (AP)—Nolte McElroy, 19-year-old victim of a supposedly harmless fraternity initiation stunt at Texas university, was buried in a tree shadowed country cemetery ten miles south of Austin today.

Members of the school football squad and the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity who had numbered McElroy in their respective ranks, were his pallbearers.

Inquiring Starts

Meanwhile President H. Y. Benedict of the university announced appointment of a faculty committee under orders of the board of regents last night to inquire into the youth's death. He died soon after crawling between two pairs of bed springs charged with a fraternity house light wire Sunday night as 184 other initiates have done without ill effect.

Another committee is to be appointed to make a survey to determine whether fraternities shall be more strictly regulated or abolished.

Mother's Message

"I bear you a message from the heroic mother of your fallen comrade," the Rev. J. E. Morgan, Buda Methodist church pastor, told the 75 university students, officials and friends at McElroy's funeral. "She asks me to tell you that in her heart is nothing but the kindest of feelings She and his father who yesterday told you that he bore no malice, voice the sentiment of us all."

Former District Judge Marvin Brown of Fort Worth who almost singlehanded preserved the existence of Texas University fraternities against opposition of the Texas legislature several years ago also made a funeral oration. His two sons are members of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

UNSUNG HERO SAVES WOMAN

Electran Taken From Burning House

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 2.—Rescue work by an unidentified man walking the streets of this town in the early hours of Tuesday morning saved the life of Mrs. Clark Wilcoxen, who was overcome by smoke when her residence on West Ida caught fire from some undetermined cause.

The name of the modest hero could not be learned, as he rushed from the scene of the fire after he had rescued the woman.

Mrs. Wilcoxen said the man dashed into the house and carried her from the burning structure after he had failed in efforts to warn others that the house was blazing. Mrs. Wilcoxen was the only one in the house, her husband having left on a hunting trip to Arizona.

The house, which was partly covered by insurance, was a total loss. The fire, which was discovered at 3 a. m., threatened other houses nearby, and sparks from the blaze are thought responsible for a second but smaller fire which broke out in the Cross home nearby at 6 a. m. The latter was easily checked by the fire department after negligible losses.

Writs Issued For Witnesses

DALLAS, Oct. 2. (AP)—Attachments for five witnesses, who failed to appear in court yesterday, necessitating a postponement of the murder charge against V. Ray Adams of Bartlett, were issued here today.

Judge C. A. Pippen yesterday granted a continuance in the Adams trial because of the missing witnesses, and fined one of the witnesses $500 for non-appearance, and four others $100 each. The latter four, under attachments issued today, will be compelled to post bonds of $1,000 each to assure their appearance here on October 29, the new date for the trial. The fifth witness must post an appearance bond of $2,500.

Adams was charged with having slain Orville Mathews at a busy downtown street intersection last month after an argument over an election bet.

Solution of Prohi Problem Forecast

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2. (UP)—Out of the present presidential campaign will emerge the solution of the prohibition problem, Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, told the American Bankers' association convention today.

Speaking on "Strength of Democracy," the college president upheld both presidential candidates as typical and praiseworthy products of American Democratic institutions.

"I venture to predict that out of the campaign we are now engaged in, out of its heats and rancors and discussions, will emerge some plan to secure to our social betterment the enduring benefits of the noble purposes inherent in the idea of prohibition, unmarred by the grave menaces that now threaten the country with lawlessness and internal disorder," said Alderman.

The present hotly contested political campaign will add to the strength and accomplishments of democracy, the speaker said.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in Regard to Health and Diet Will Be Answered by Dr. McCoy, Who Can Be Addressed in Care of This Paper

That Inferiority Complex

We find that many of the greatest men and women of history were extremely self-conscious in their early youth and it required much effort on their part to overcome this handicap. Napoleon is said to have been a shy young man. Demosthenes, the greatest orator of ancient Greece, was in his youthful days hardly able to pronounce a word that could be understood. Theodore Roosevelt was handicaped by a delicate health and shyness. In fact, the list could be continued almost indefinitely. I believe that the majority of our greatest statesmen and thinkers have at some time in their lives overcome this deficiency.

A number of people suffer from feelings of loneliness, self-consciousness, and inferiority. Persons who can not rid themselves of this inferiority complex find themselves unable to reach the top in the struggle of life, yet these people are usually gifted with a delicacy of feeling and a sensitiveness to environment which their rougher brothers and sisters do not possess and which, if rightly used, could be turned to great advantage.

An inferiority complex often begins from some mental wound during childhood which brings on a lack of self-confidence. One who is troubled in this way should train himself in all of the social graces. It is a good plan to attend a dancing school and learn ballroom dancing thoroughly. By attending as many dances as possible, you will find yourself becoming more graceful and more adept in the art of repartee.

The cultivation of humor is of particular value, since humor brings on a feeling of good fellowship and evokes the opposite feeling of that of inferiority. A feeling of physical fitness is a gerat help to self mastery. You should map out a regular course of physical culture for yourself, and use a well balanced diet such as is outlined in my weekly menus in the various newspapers, which will furnish you all the elements necessary to good faith and yet not overburden your system with toxic material.

If you are shy in conversation, you may practice the art of conversation by carrying on an imaginary dialogue about the various topics in the privacy of your own room. In this way you will learn to use and become accustomed to the sound of your own voice. You should take an active part in the conversations of your friends and interest yourself in the things which interest them. Perhaps it would be wise to join a public speaking class and take an active part in the debates whenever possible. You should assume responsibilities whenever responsibilities are offered, and accept difficult tasks in preference to easy ones.

It is an odd fact about the human mind that it can only focus its attention on one thing at a time, and if a person is thinking of himself, or of the position in which he is standing, or of his hands, he will be unable to apply his mind to the topics of conversation, and if he does the opposite, and fixes his attention upon the subject of the conversation, he will not be conscious of himself.

There are many good books on developing personality which you can obtain at any book store. From them you can obtain much valuable information, but the real problems lies with yourself. It is up to you to make yourself overcome that feeling of self-consciousness by cultivating a mental brilliancy and social accomplishments so that you will become interesting to your friends and valuable to society.

Questions and Answers

Question—A. F. writes: "I have had my tonsils removed and so far as I know I am free from catarrhal trouble. It seems I snore before I am really asleep, and it makes no difference in which position I lie. I would appreciate any information you could give me on 'snoring'."

Answer—The removal of your tonsils would not cure the catarrhal trouble which existed before the operation. You snore because you cannot breathe freely through your nose. This may be due to enlarged turbinate bones in the nose, or simply to the membrane being swollen from catarrhal irritation.

Question—D. H. writes: "Have read many of your articles and am interested. What foods tend to produce cancer, and if there is active cancer, what foods can be used to control it? Would like to read some of your articles on cancer."

Answer—I have written a great deal on the subject you mention in your letter and will be glad to send some of these articles to you if you will only send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. I do not believe there is any single article of food which is primarily the cause of cancer, but during the cure it is well to eliminate all such "heavy" foods as the proteins and carbohydrates.

Question—Sylvia writes: "I am an absolute believer in your methods for health. I am always well as a result. I have for many years had spots on my shoulders resembling freckles. I presume they are freckles, as I am much exposed to the sun. But in addition to these spots, several brown patches the size of beans have appeared, like blood blisters, slightly red around the edge. What would cause them, and how could they be safely removed.

Answer—The brown patches you mention must be due to some faulty metabolism, and can be removed through the use of the ultra-violet light or the electric needle. Have a diagnosis made to determine the real cause.

"Joe" Dugan is a big hit-and-run man with the New York Yankees' baseball club. He was born in Mahanoy City, Pa., and joined the Holy Cross team when he was 19 years old. After one year with that club he joined the Philadelphia club which traded him to Boston five years later. Boston lost him to New York in 1922, along with Miller, Mitchell and other swat sharks.

"We used to have a colored maid at our house," Joe told me, "and one day she came in and asked permission to be absent the following Friday. She explained that she wished to attend the funeral of her fiance. My mother gave the required permission sympathetically

"'But you aren't wearing mourning, Jenny,' mother remarked.

"'Oh, no, ma'am,' replied Jenny. 'You see, ma'am, he ain't dead yet—the hanging ain't till Friday!'"

Woman Jailed for Slaying Her Husband

EDINBURGH, Texas, Oct. 2. (INS)—Mrs. C. H. Fry, 58, was being held in the county jail here this afternoon following her arrest earlier in the day in connection with the fatal shooting of her husband, a truck farmer. A woman cotton picker heard the shots and called Deputy Sheriff John Bales to the scene.

Fry was shot twice in the body with buckshot. The examining trial for Mrs. Fry will be held this afternoon.

Hoover Pictured as Lifelong Wealth Seeker

LIBERTY, Mo., Oct. 2.(UP)—A chronology of Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate, was cited by Joseph B. Shannon, Kansas City Democratic leader, in a speech here yesterday at the all-day Democratic rally. Shannon pointed out that a man who has forsaken his rights of American citizenship until his 46th year in quest of wealth is not suited to be held as a patriotic model such as a president is held.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE — (413) OUR PRESIDENTS

Roosevelt's activity as Secretary of the Navy did much to prepare our sea forces for the war with Spain which he believed was coming. As it drew nearer he resigned from the Navy Department and became lieutenant colonel of the First Volunteer Cavalry, soon nicknamed "the Rough Riders." With him were men who could ride and shoot, cowboys, ranchers and hunters.

One of Roosevelt's close friends and a colonel with him was the late General Leonard Wood, who was to become Cuba's idol and savior.

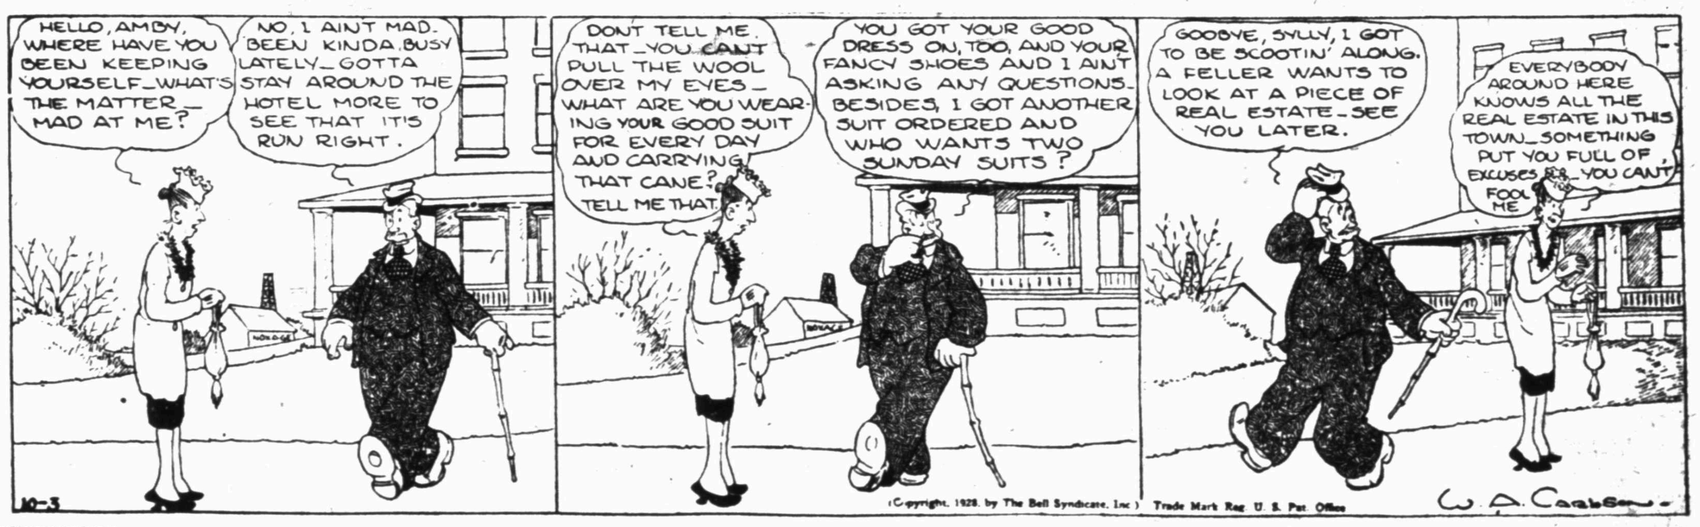

Roosevelt's Rough Riders saw some sharp fighting in Cuba. The reputation "Teddy" won during the war led to his nomination for governor of New York in 1898.

Roosevelt was elected and soon quarreled with the party leaders in his state who determined to nominate him for vice president in 1900. He was too popular to drop, they reasoned, but in the vice presidency he would be "out of the way." Rather against his will Governor Roosevelt became vice president, and on the death of President McKinley in 1901 became president.

HARRIS RELEASED AS MANAGER OF WASHINGTON SENATORS

GRIFFITH MAY BE NAT PILOT

Moriarity, Ruel or Judge May Succeed 'Bucky'

By ALFRED P. RECK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. (UP)—Stanley R. (Bucky) Harris, who arose from the Pennsylvania coal pits to leadership in professional baseball, was ousted today as manager of the Washington Senators.

The youth, who directed a major league team at the age of 28 years, tonight was only a reserve player on the club, which he rejuvenated and led to two pennants and a world's championship.

"Bucky" Harris was more than a baseball player to Washington. He was a leader in the younger social set, having married Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, daughter of the alien property custodian and former U. S. senator.

Move for "Best Interests"

President Clark Griffith, who made the announcement of Harris' displacement, offered no explanation except that the move was in the best interests of the team.

Harris and his chief had been closeted for more than an hour in Griffith's office at the ball park. He had disbanded his team for the season and returned to Washington to talk business.

Griffith sat at his desk. Harris had just left with a forced smile on his face.

"Harris is not to be manager of the ball club next season," Griffith said quietly. "He is a player on the reserve list just as he was before being made manager."

"Bucky" Has No Plans

Griffith explained that Harris had no contract to assign and he would aid him in transferring to another club if the former manager so desired. Waivers may be asked on Harris after October 20, the club president said, but he will not be sent anywhere he does not want to go.

Harris refused to comment on Griffith's action but said he had no plans for the immediate future.

It was here that "Bucky" emerged from the minors and entered the big show in 1919. It was here that he drove and booted a club to the greatest honors in professional baseball.

It was here that he met his wife and was married with President Coolidge as a wedding guest. And it was here that his child was born.

Harris' Career Colorful

"Bucky" Harris' career has been one of the most brilliant in baseball. He was known as a master strategist and the "Boy Pilot." His fighting spirit drove his team mates to victory in the face of almost overwhelming odds. He was banqueted, feted, toasted and idolized. But now he is out.

The question of a new manager for the Washington club is still undecided, Griffith said. Many have been mentioned, most of them unlikely. Muddy Ruel or Joe Judge might be promoted if another player is to be selected, it was intimated.

Moriarity, of the Detroit club, has been mentioned but it is held unlikely that he will be summoned to Washington. It also has been rumored that Griffith, himself, might undertake to actively direct his club from the bench.

Steers Purchase Eddie Mulligan

Pirate Probably Will Succeed Vet Joe Tate

DALLAS, Oct. 1. (AP)—Purchase of Eddie Mulligan, former third baseman of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league, was announced today by Business Manager Bob Tarleton of the Dallas Steers.

The infielder, who was bought for $10,000 by Pittsburgh during the spring, served as utility man for the Pirates throughout the season. Besides showing the way to third sackers in the Coast circuit, Mulligan batted .275 one season and .286 the next.

Acquisition of Mulligan probably means the departure of Joe Tate, veteran guardian of the hot corner, in line with the move of Dallas moguls to rebuild their club.

Country Boy Owens Boxes Hall Tuesday

Country Boy Owens of Wichita Falls and Cyclone Hall of Childress, who fought a whirlwind battle here last Friday in the free street show, will headline a boxing card next Tuesday night at the ball park. They will step 10 rounds in the windup of a show carded for 34 rounds, according to Promoter Alec Ross.

The mat match carded last night between Matty Matsuda and Joe Manning was called off after a grappling contest and boxing bout had been staged in the rain. Leo Fox defeated Nic Kavaros in straight falls in the wrestling go.

Mustangs Entrain For Army Contest

DALLAS, Oct. 2. (AP)—Each click of the rails tonight was taking the Southern Methodist university football unit a little nearer its objective.

Twenty-five seasoned players, accompanied by Coach Ray Morrison and his assistants, Gerald Mann and Russell McIntosh, left the Highland Park station here late today on the first leg of their long jump to West Point, where on Saturday they meet the Cadets of the United States military academy in the first outstanding intersectional fray of the season.

'Specs' Acquire Tickets For World Series Games

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (UP)—Ticket scalpers have grabbed up large blocks of seats in Yankee stadium and are beginning their annual drive on world series fans.

Sidewalk salesmen treked up and down Broadway today, their pockets filled with $5.50 seats which they were offering for $30 and $40 per set of three.

Card Hopes Soar as Yank Lineup Is Matter of Subs or Cripples

Combs Definitely Out and Doubt Exists Over Lazzeri; Hoyt and Sherdel Loom as Starting Pitchers

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (UP)—With only one day intervening before the opening of the world series at Yankee stadium Thursday, the increasing uncertainty of the New York Yankees' lineup has sent the hopes of the St. Louis Cardinals and their supporters soaring.

Earl Combs is definitely out of the series and the Yankees will alternate Cedric Durst and Ben Paschal in center field against right and left handed pitching, respectively.

Tony Lazzeri was not at the Yankees' workout today and there arose the possibility of Leo Durocher, the cockiest rookie in the majors, playing second base.

Waite Hoyt, regarded as certain to start the opening game against the Cards, loosened up his arm a bit, and said it felt great. George Pipgras, who probably will start the second game, was on the mound for a short time pitching to the batters.

The Cardinals followed the Yankees into the stadium for their workout, which was confined largely to batting practice.

Hafey, Harper Hit Homers

Chick Hafey and George Harper, who will play right field against right hand pitchers, hit several home runs. Hafey drove a long one into the left field stands off Hal Haid.

Rosy Ryan, former Giant pitcher, Haid and Fred Frankhouse occupied the mound in batting practice.

The Cards were in a jovial mood, with Rabbit Maranville and "Sunny Jim" Bottomley dividing the spotlight. Maranville kept up a steady line of chatter all during batting practice.

Bottomley discovered a shirt salesman giving away his wares and he outfitted all the Cardinals with new shirts.

McKechnie Reticent

Although all the St. Louis players take for granted Sherdel will pitch the opener, McKechnie refuses to announce his official selection.

"I have got five prospective starters, Sherdel, Haines, Alexander, Rhem and Mitchell," he said. "I may start any one of them."

Before the Cardinals went to the stadium, Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis club when the Cards won the world championship in 1926, and Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, 1927, National league champions, chatted with St. Louis players.

Hornsby thinks the Cards are a cinch to win and is pulling for them.

Donie Bush believes the Cards will atone for the miserable showing of his team in last year's series.

COACHES DRILL COYOTE WALL

Strengthening of Weak Line Work of Bud and Aides

Centering the greater part of their time upon the perfection of a line, husky, but weak and inexperienced, Coach Bud McCallum and his assistants put the High school Coyotes through a hard practice Tuesday afternoon in preparation for their clash with Ardmore, Okla., on the Oklahomans' field Saturday.

After demonstrating considerable improvement in the engagement with Decatur Baptist last week the Coyotes looked even better in line play in Tuesday's practice.

These Men Look Good

Jud Bell and Ross Sayre are beginning to look like real guards, while Monk Hodgkiss looms as the most dependable center and Bains as the most promising end.

Howard Scott, Rollin Dixon, and Jack West, all husky linesmen were absent from practice yesterday because of injuries, as was Jerry Elliott, a hard fighting little halfback.

Backs Practice Shifts

Mills, Black, Hambrick and Davis, McCallum's first string backfield, spent the afternoon practicing backfield shifts and running signals.

Assistant Coach Bill Morris headed the work for the greater part of the guards and tackles while McCallum spent most of his time at work with the ends.

Roberti Ill, Godfrey Fight Tonight Is Off

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (UP)—The heavyweight bout between George Godfrey and Roberto Roberti scheduled for Wednesday night at Ebbets field has been called off because of the illness of the Italian giant.

Buffaloes Need One More Win

Dixie Series Resumed Today at Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 2. (AP)—The Birmingham Barons returned to home soil late today, faced with the prospect of having to win two straight games from the Houston Buffaloes of the Texas league in order to win the Dixie baseball championship.

The teams are returning here for the sixth game tomorrow. After winning the first two, the Barons were "taken for a ride" in Houston, dropping three in a row through inability to solve the offerings of "Big Jim" Lindsey, "Wild Bill" Hallahan and Penner. One more game is needed by Houston.

Manager "Pancho" Snyder was understood to have selected Lindsey for mound duty tomorrow. Lindsey, formerly of the New Orleans Pelicans, held the Barons to six hits Saturday while his mates were administering a 6 to 4 drubbing to them in the Texas city.

Manager Johnny Dobbs is expected to rely on Ralph Judd to render the swat kings of the Texas outfit impotent while his veterans "find" themselves on home soil.

ARMOUR LOSES IN 'PRO' GOLF

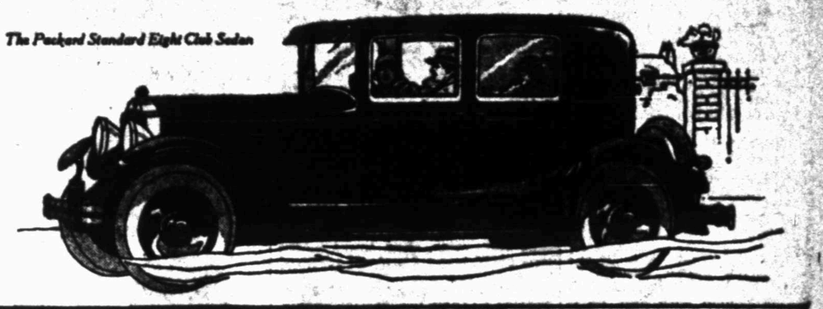

Sarazen Beats Mehlhorn; Espinosa, Hagen Win

By V. G. VOSBURGH

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2. (AP)—Tommy Armour was eliminated by Long Jim Barnes, Gene Sarazen was forced to wage a great battle from behind to escape defeat at the hands of Wild Bill Mehlhorn and Al Espinosa played par-equalling golf both morning and afternoon as the cream of the country's professional golfers battled through the first rounds of match play in quest of their national championship today.

In striking contrast to the ding-dong battles that featured most of the 16 matches was the easy, nonchalant, almost lazy manner in which Sir Walter Hagen, titleholder for the last four years, strolled around the course winning from Willie Ogg of Worcester, Mass, by 4 up and 3 to play.

Landis Pleased When Told Babe Will Be at His Best for Series

Commissioner Says Contenders "Both Good Clubs" and Hopes Combs, "Great Fellow," Is In Lineup

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (UP)—"How's the Babe?" asked the judge, and the world series talkfest was on.

Taking things easy in his suite at the Hotel Roosevelt, resting after a severe attack of influenza which has left him still weak in the knees, baseball's high commissioner sat and chatted about the coming championship series while on every side New York City buzzed with preparations, hunted frantically for tickets and wagered on the outcome.

"Tell me about Ruth," demanded the commissioner, opening the conversation on one of the most pertinent points in connection with the forthcoming series. "The last time I saw him play, he was in a batting slum. They tell me he's been hitting well during the past week or 10 days."

Will Be Great Series

When assured that the Bambino probably would be his usual uproarious self, the commissioner chuckled with satisfaction and looked out of the window with studied indifference when asked who he thought would win.

"It will be a great series, if the weather holds good," Landis remarked. As he still carries some flu germs around with him, he is interested particularly in the weather.

"That's about everything there is to do now until game time," he explained. "We've had a couple of great pennant races and I hope the world series lives up to the standard."

Judge Landis did admit that he believed the New York Yankees were at their best when they found themselves hard pressed and underdogs. Their victory in the mid-September series against the Athletics "won the pennant," he believes.

Concerned Over Combs

"They're both good ball clubs," said the commissioner. "I hope Earl Combs will be able to play. He's a great ball player and a great fellow."

Nearly all the impartial baseball men agree that the St. Louis Cardinals seem to have the edge and that they wish they knew where they could buy a couple of reserved seats.

Ticket scalpers are just about as worried as their prospective clients, since Secretary Ed Barrow of the New York Yankees has taken unusual precautions to prevent reserved seats from falling into unscrupulous hands.

Miller Huggins, with three pennants in a row and a total of six in eight years, tied the record of Connie Mack for number of championships won and has a chance to join the select circle of four managers who have won two world series in a row, as his Yankees routed the Pittsburgh Pirates in four straight games in the last classic.

Ruth Home Run Leader 9 Years

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP)—Babe Ruth's victory in the race for interleague home run honors through the 1928 season marked the ninth time in the last 11 seasons the big Yankee slugger had finished either in a tie for or in full possession of first place.

In 1922, when Babe spent 35 days under suspension, Rogers Hornsby snatched away the crown with 42. Again in 1925, when Ruth was ill, Hornsby mounted the crest with 39.

Hornsby, Williams and Gehrig stand with Ruth as the only men who ever bettered 40 in a major league season, while the Bambino is by himself in the 50 class and the 60. His grand total for big league career is 470.

Routis to Head Boxers On Invasion of France

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (UP)—Accompanied by one of the most ambitious boxing stables ever transported across the ocean, Andrew Routis, featherweight champion, is going to France late in November.

Joe Jacobs, the new champion's manager, announced that in addition to Routis the party would include Frankie Genaro, flyweight; Benny Valger, lightweight; Jack McVey, middleweight, and Jack Demave, heavyweight.

Loughran Whips Gross In Heavyweight Debut

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2. (UP)—Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, light heavyweight champion, made his debut in the heavyweight ranks Monday night by winning the decision from Jack Gross, Max (Boo Boo) Hoff's southpaw heavyweight, in a 10-round bout.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

MR. DALE GEAR, who played ball and won a pennant or so in the Texas league, comes up with a play, as baseball tossers would say, to astound critics of the game. Mr. Gear made a ruling Sunday in which he reversed an umpire and caused a ball game to be replayed, something I don't believe ever was recorded before in baseball. Mr. Gear, as you probably know, is president of the Western league. His ruling was over a disputed play in the first game of the double-header of the Tulsa-Oklahoma City playoff. The umpires disagreed as to whether an Oklahoma City runner had left third base before the catch of an outfielder, a sacrifice on which the runner scored with the tying tally. Friend Dale upheld the arbiter who ruled that the runner left the bag before the catch.

◇ ◇ ◇

Gear may have been correct in his ruling. But never before, I believe, has the president of a league taken a hand in settling an argument regarding the judgment of an umpire. League heads may settle disputes, may order games replayed when ground rules or baseball rules are involved. But never, never has a head of a circuit, taken it upon himself to thus order a game thrown out and replayed over a dispute involving ONLY an umpire's calling of a decision.

◇ ◇ ◇

COMMISSIONER LANDIS, with his unlimited authority and no hesitancy in employing it, doubtless would not take a hand in a world series game if he were called from the stands to decide whether or not a man is out. Such a precedent as set by Gear doubtless will not be followed in baseball. It isn't logical. Decisions in any game, any ring or mat contest, must be made by the officials on the field. And when that power is removed and vested in the "front office," grave difficulties will arise.

◇ ◇ ◇

Still, one may expect anything of the porr ol' Western league.

◇ ◇ ◇

BASEBALL MAGNATES have at various times gone on record as strenuously opposed to the bonus system. But they make no move to eliminate this practice, which might be called an evil. For instance, Waite Moyt, Yankee pitcher, was to receive a bonus of $2,000 if he won 22 games this season. The last day of the season found Hoyt with 21 victories. Naturally, he wanted to earn the two grand. But perhaps Miller Huggins had other plans. Maybe Hug wanted to save Hoyt, to have him in prime fettle to open against the Cards Thursday. Maybe he wanted to test another hurler. But Hoyt had his bonus to win and he doubtless would have protested vociferously if he hadn't worked.

◇ ◇ ◇

Hoyt won the game and the bonus. But suppose one of his teammates had made an error and lost the game. Hoyt would have been peeved. He might have "called" the erring mate. A row might have followed. A team preparing for a world series might have been disrupted.

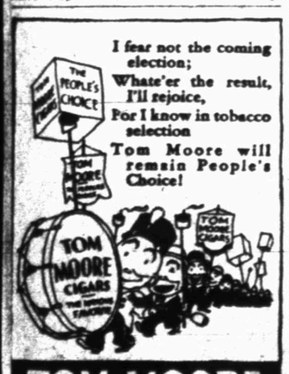

◇ ◇ ◇

GLENNA COLLETT stands on the threshold of a women's golf record. She has won three national titles, a feat accomplished by three others of her sex. Glenna, in winning this year's championship, showed she is at her best. She is a young woman. It isn't unreasonable to assume that the charming Providence girl will attain that honor again, to give her a preeminent rating as a woman golfer.

COACHES WARN GRID ATHLETES

Army Drills for Game Saturday With S. M. U.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP)—Coaches of the East's leading college elevens spent most of today pointing out that mistakes that cost little in opening games will be extremely expensive later.

At West Point "Biff" Jones, leader of the Army's football destinies, had his squad busily engaged in breaking up lateral and forward passes. Boston university was extremely successful with this method of offensive last Saturday and the Cadet's next foe, Southern Methodist university, specializes in the same thing.

The Navy was given a stiff workout for the Boston college game Saturday.

Tigers Drill for Opener

Princeton, preparing for the opening of her season against Vermont, returned to the old system of having the quarterback call the signals.

Yale's varsity, with the aid of a fine passing attack, scored twice on the scrubs.

Harvard's array took a long drill on football fundamental in preparation for the opening games against Springfield.

Even such a pessimist as Gil Dobie felt a bit encouraged when Tom Davies, Cornell's only dependable punter, got back in the lineup. Davies was out of the game against Clarkson, but will do the punting against Niagara.

Young Drills Ends

Lou Young spent his time trying to pick two ends for his Pennsylvania eleven which faces Franklin and Marshall on Saturday. Olexy is a certainty at one wing, but there are three evenly matched candidates for the other.

Jock Sutherland told his Pitt Panthers just how bad they looked against Thiel in the opening game. The squad, said Jock, must do better against forward passes, furnish better interference and quit fumbling if Bethany is to be beaten decisively.

Penn State got a vacation from scrimmage, but there was a long signal drill and dummy scrimmage in preparation for Gettysburg. Collins moved into the first string backfield, replacing Wolff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Yelling of expatriated lunatics, the smashing of straw hats and the whirling of discontented pop bottles prove that baseball is still our national game.

The greatest pennant races of congested history are over and we are ready to start that happy postmortem known as the world series.

Mob rule reached its apex last month when 86,000 fans formed the expeditionary force which watched the Yanks and Athletics struggle in New York.

New York, St. Louis, Philidelphia and Pittsburgh have been tangled up like harness in a runaway.

A ticket to the world series is equivalent to the congressional medal of honor and a diploma from Harvard.

But even if we cannot afford a ticket we can always tune in on the radio and get our rooting fresh from the oven.

But before picking up your favorite station it is best to close all the windows and stuff cotton in the keyhole.

When a million-hoss power yell comes out of that loud speaker how are the neighbors going to know whether Babe Ruth has smacked a homer or your wife has decided to go home to her mother?

And when the lady in the next apartment phones for the police it is very difficult to convince her that it wasn't your husband at all but Senator Jim Reed replying to Curtiss.

There hasn't been a gamer struggle in history than Connie Mack and his young fellows' attempt to knock off the Yanks. Connie might have had a chance if he had Boo Boo Hoff in the outfield.

We will not see the Waner brothers in the autumn derby. Pittsburgh will be a deserted village this October and Chicago must save its peanuts for the football season.

Cleveland, Detroit and Cincinnati look forward to next year but we must hand credit to the two Boston teams for not disappointing Massachusetts fans.

The Red Sox started in last place and never slumped once. The Braves had to move up to seventh place when the Phillies staged a brilliant losing sprint.

This will be the only week in the year when pedestrains can manufacture their own traffic jams in front of bulletin boards and chauffeurs must do their chauffing between innings.

This is one event that has no political significance but it wouldn't surprise us a trifle if Teddy Roosevelt, junior, bobbed up at second base in a Yank's uniform.

Rickard to Enter Dog Racing Field

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 2. (UP)—Tex Rickard is planning a venture in greyhound racing, it was learned here today.

The fight promoter and George Carter, of Miami, have purchased a plot of ground 500 feet by 500 feet where Carter said a $250,000 clubhouse and race track will be built.

No betting will be carried on at the track, Carter said. Paid admissions to the grand stand and paddock will be relied on for profits. The track is expected to be in operation by Jan. 15.

Rickard is expected to arrive here about Oct. 9 when actual construction of the clubhouse will begin, Carter said.

Dailey Bats .871 as Grid Forecaster

Picks 1 Score Exact, Misses 3 by 1 Point

Larry Daily, sports editor of The Record News, had a highly successful day last Saturday in his football prognostications. Out of 40 games in his forecast, he picked 39 winners and had five losers and one tie game, a mark of .871. He picked the actual score of one game, the 21-0 victory of Texas Christians over Daniel Baker, and in three of his forecasts missed the score by one point.

Dailey forecast a Southern Methodist university victory over Howard Payne by 30-0, the score was 31-0; he predicted a 20-0 triumph for Texas Aggies over Southwestern, the score was 21-0, and he picked Penn State to beat Lebanon Valley, 24-0, while the score was 25-0.

In numerous games he picked close to the actual score, or forecast them correctly according to the basis of comparative strength.

The games which he guessed wrong, were the defeats of Arkansas by Mississippi, Navy by Davis and Elkins, Chicago by South Carolina, Chicago by Ripon, Stanford by Olympic Athletic club. His tie was the 7-7 California-Arizona game.

"On the one side we have a great man, on the other a puny politician."

New Faces in Junior World Series

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP)—New faces are figuring in this year's junior world's series between Indianapolis, champions of the American association, and Rochester, champions of the International league.

The Indians captured their first pennant since 1917, while the Red Wings won their first flag in 17 years. Rochester was champion of the Toole loop in 1911.

The series which opened in Rochester, Wednesday, Sept. 26, is for the best five out of nine games. After a four-game engagement in the eastern city the clubs move to Indianapolis for any remaining games necessary to decide the inter-league championship.

Several of the Rochester stars will be in familiar surroundings at Indianapolis, for they formerly played on American association teams. Among these are Pat Duncan and Hank Gowdy, both with the Minneapolis club last year.

Rochester's successful drive for the International flag was strongly reminiful of the campaign staged in 1914 by the Boston Braves, whose outstanding star was Gowdy. The Red Wings took the league crown in a breath-taking finish, beating out Buffalo by one percentage point.

The Indians' victory was a great boost to baseball in the Indiana metropolis, where William Perry served his first year as club owner. And the feat of the Hoosiers in beating Minneapolis to the championship in a stirring race was particularly satisfying to Johnny Corriden, assistant to Manager Bruno Betzel. Corriden, who served several years in a similar capacity at Minneapolis, was dropped by the Millers last winter and immediately was signed by the Indians.

An interesting sidelight to the series concerns the parts being played by the rival shortstops—Harold Warstler of Indianapolis and Charley Gelbert of Rochester. These lads, heralded as two of the outstanding shortstops in the minors, were big factors in the pennant races, and both probably will be seen in the majors next year.

Gelbert, said to be headed for the St. Louis Cardinals, who own the Rochester club, was one of the International league's best hitters. He finished with an average in excess of .330, driving out 21 home runs, 13 triples and 36 doubles.

Warstler, a Three-I league product, is not the hitter that Gelbert is, but has was classed as one of the American association's best fielding shortstops. He registered 148 hits in 535 times at bat and scored 76 runs, finishing with a batting average of .277.

Woman's work is outside the home

Writes a woman: "Your advertising of used cars as 'family cars' means more to me than I can say.

"A second car would be more than a luxury in our family. After my husband drives away in the morning I have to take our daughter to school . . . It's quite a way off and I want to be sure that she gets there safely. Then I have to go to market . . . I do my best but I haven't the time to shop for the best I can get for our budget. Then I want to be sure my little girl gets back safely . . . Some days it is raining or snowing . . . And I must confess that I'd like to see more friends and take a real interest in civic matters . . . But what can a woman do? Though her business is outside the home too, she hasn't the use of a car."

The cars which General Motors dealers are taking in trade offer women an opportunity to have cars of their own at low price. And their purchase may be arranged on General Motors' plan of payments—the GMAC Plan.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP)—Pre-bureau realizing or liquidation caused reactions from an opening advance in the cotton market today, but after selling off from 19.30 to 19.03 for December or about 14 points net lower, the market steadied on covering. December closed 19.15, with the general list closing steady net unchanged to 7 points lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 to 12 points, with the active months soon showing net gains of 8 to 13 points on covering, together with some trade and local buying which was evidently promoted by reports of rains or showers in the eastern belt, and the continued unfavorable average of private crop advices.

Liquidation for a time was rather active, sending the price of October contracts off from 19.33 to 19.06 and March from 19.11 to 18.83 or about 14 to 19 points net lower. The offerings then tapered off however, as if the liquidation had pretty well run its course for the time being, at least, and the market steadied up later on covering.

The advance which followed was checked by a renewal of southern selling in the last few minutes, but the close showed recoveries of 12 to 15 points from the lowest. Four of the private end-September crop reports were published during the day with private condition figures ranging from 54.3 up to 57.0, while figures on the indicated crop ranged from 13,595,000 up to 14,554,000 bales. Exports today, 112,027, making 1,119,367 so far this season. Port receipts 153,754. U. S. port stocks, 1,087,819.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2. (AP)—Cotton trading was somewhat quieter today with business for the most part limited to evening up in advance of the government's crop estimate due early next week. Longs liquidated quite freely and there was also some hedging with a resultant drop of nearly $1 a bale before mid-session.

The decline, however, met a moderate demand promoted by the sharp upturn in wheat and December contracts rallied from 18.44 to 18.60 and closed at 18.58, or 2 points net lower. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 2 to 6 points.

Liverpool cables were slightly lower than due and the local market opened irregular, 5 points down to 2 up. Execution of some overnight buying orders was responsible for an early advance of 4 to 6 points but the demand was quickly absorbed by realizing by longs in advance of the bureau report and hedge selling as well as some selling by ring traders on a private estimate of 14,554,000 bales which they, evidently, construed as somewhat large. The resultant decline carried December and January to 18.44 and March 18.35, or 22 to 23 points below the early highs and 16 to 19 points under yesterday's close.

In the afternoon the sharp upturn in wheat and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine's advice to farmers to hold their wheat which many traders believed would also apply to cotton brought out moderate trade buying and covering. Prices rallied 16 points but the improvement met a renewal of realizing and liquidation and final prices were 2 to 6 points net lower with January at 18.55 and March 18.48.

Money Worry and Anxiety Over Bankers Check Stock Mart Trading

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Money worry held the stock market back again today, and most issues closed net lower with trading proceeding at the rate of less than 4,000,000 shares. The call rate was advanced to 9 per cent from a renewal of 8 and according to word from the floor appeared headed for 10 per cent when unexpected outside supply of funds appeared late in the afternoon. It was this additional amount of money that influenced closing rally that made up a good part of the early losses in the standard industrials and the "selected stocks" of the pool leaders.

American Can enjoyed best demand and was followed in its move by Continental Steel. Motors and other standard industrials were sold quite heavily early in the session. Murray Body with further advance of 7 points joined the technically cornered stocks. Lambert, Eisenlohr, Ludlam and Gillette were among others to score good advances for the session. Radio with drop of 5 points lost most ground of the leaders.

Bankers Watched

It was not the actual money developments of the day that disturbed speculative sentiment as much it was the nervousness aroused by reports from the bankers' convention regarding opinions expressed as to the outlook of the next several months. The particular influence was the advice of a leading stock exchange firm that Governor Young of the reserve bank in his address to the bankers Thursday would leave no doubt as to the intent of his recent utterance to the effect that those who speculate under present conditions will have themselves to blame if they get burned. The same advice forecast a "staggering increase" in brokers' loans and as the firm has wires to all parts of the country there was an immediate increasing in selling that was not stemmed until after noon. With the passing of the Oct. 1 turnover, money is expected to ease for the balance of the week and with the heavy profit taking of the last few days the increase in loans as of tomorrow, close is not expected to be so "staggering."

Chrysler was punished most by the early selling because the firm issuing the "take profits" advice made particular mention of that stock. Inasmuch as it was most bullish thereon recently a number of its customers had profits to cash in and hurried to do so. After this selling was out of the way, however, Chrysler rendered the best performance in the automobile group and made up all but a point of its early loss. General Motors was under continued pressure throughout but also met fairly good support. The finance committee will meet this Thursday and it is thought that the actual decision to recommend a split-up of the shares will be made at that time but not acted upon by directors until November.

Oils Unsettled

Eisenlohr's further advance was in response to exclusive report here that it would own or control all companies supplying cigars to the Schulte and United Stores. Lambert responded to further buying by banking group associated with the company influenced by knowledge of increasing sales told of here a fortnight ago. National Cash Register was firm throughout as increasing business was regarded as indicating better treatment of stockholders. Gold Dust was active with further buying by DuPont interests talked of. Union Pacific slid off with other rails although three for one splitup and a $4 dividend on the new shares was forecast. Mexican Seaboard moved higher in an unsettled oil group on announcement of closing of contract with the Pacific Gas and Electric.

New Agreement Among Refiners

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 2.—Advent of October saw the new "Q. D. A." go into effect and refiners generally feel that it will help the refined oil market. The new agreement eliminates the practice of making retail price concessions, and thus will hurt certain marketers who are really resellers. It will wipe out profits many have been making through offering of prizes and what nots to obtain gasoline gallonage.

Refiners report U. S. motor grade of gasoline still holding at 9¾ cents a gallon, in group 3. The 60-62, 400 endpoint, material commands 10⅝ cents; 64-66, 390 endpoint, 10⅝ cents, and 64-66, 375 endpoint, 11 cents, and the 68-70, 350-360 endpoint, 11 to 11¼ cents.

Kerosene demand continues unchanged, the 41-53 grade selling for 6¼ to 6½ cents, and the 42-44 grade at 6¾ to 7 cents.

Natural gasoline manufacturers report business slow, with grades A and AA at 9⅜ to 9⅞ cents; B and BB at 9¼ to 9⅝ cents, and C at the same price.

Seminole Opened Up; Little River Loses And Old Field Gains

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 2.—The greater Seminole field was thrown wide open Sunday and Monday for the purpose of securing the potential output of the wells so that the umpire and his gaugers may have a line on how to prorate their output.

The first day the field made a gain of 7,520 barrels, the total production was 324,228 barrels.

The Little River pool, the largest in the Seminole field, lost in production, which is very unusual. The last two days, it registered a loss of 3,690 barrels. Several new wells are expected in today and will probably increase the production.

The comparative output report follows:

Pools	Monday	Sunday	Satur
Little River	133,008	133,125	136,698

CONSOLIDATED OIL COMPLETION

The Consolidated Oil company No. 2 Neimeyer, located in the west half of section 2415 T. E. L. survey, southwest Archer county, drilled out the plug from the sand at 1427-38 feet. Oil rose at a rapid rate and in the first two hours showed 850 feet in the casing.

ELECTRA WILDCAT

The Bridwell Oil company is placing its No. 1 Burnett well on the pump with an estimated output daily of between 60 to 75 barrels. The well is an absolute wildcat, being located in the center of its 160-acre lease in the northwest quarter of section 3, H. T. & B. survey. The bringing in of the well here is the means of linking up the producing areas of the deep 1900-foot sand in the Planet lease to the northwest, and that of the Culberson pool in southeast on the Waggoner brothers land in B. S. F. survey, abstract 394.

SUPERIOR OIL PRODUCING

The Superior Oil Producing company No. 1 Miller, located in J. W. Wells survey, Montague county, is drilling at 1820 feet.

TEXAS COMPANY-MEGARGEL

The Texas company No. 6 W. O. Hayter, located in section 2409, T. E. L. survey, southwest Archer county is completed and in the first eight hours produced 90 barrels. The sand was topped at 1398 feet.

SOUTHWEST OF OLNEY

Cooper and Britton No. 1 Parrish, located in section 409, T. E. L. survey, southwest of Olney, in Young county, is on the pump with an initial production of 50 barrels from the sand at 1089-99 feet. The well is a north offset to the Petroleum Producers well in section 410 T. E. L. survey.

NON-PRODUCER IN YOUNG

W. R. Stafford and associates abandoned their No. 1 W. C. Leberman in section 270, T. E. L. survey, south of Olney in Young county, as a dry hole at a total depth of 690 feet.

PITZER-WEST SOUTH YOUNG

Pitzer and West No. 1 W. A. Thomson, located in section 2692, T. E. L. survey, south Young county, is completed and making 200 barrels from the sand at 2060-2100 feet.

Hendrick Pool May Go South

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 2.—Drilled to 2986 feet, Arizona Mining and Engineering company's No. 1 Hendrick, one mile south of the nearest producer in the Hendrick pool in Winkler county, flowed by heads every 20 minutes at the rate of 10 barrels hourly, five per cent water, it was reported today.

Southern Crude No. T-88-P-1 Hendrick, which last week extended the field 3,000 feet north, increased to 56 barrels hourly upon deepening to 2970 feet. It plugged back 10 feet shutting off water struck at 2965.

SHOWING HIT AT 2400 FEET

Abandoned Tests May Be Revived by New Find

The promise of another and deeper pay horizon to the Consolidated pool in section 5, block 5, H.&T.C. R.R. survey, southeast Wilbarger county, is given the showing of oil in a sand encountered at about 2400 feet in the Hamilton-Martin No. C-1 W. T. Waggoner test in that pool.

The well, which is located in the southeast corner of northwest quarter of northwest quarter of the pool, drilled into the sand a short distance. Casing is being set preparatory to drilling in sometime in the next few days. Completion of a commercal producer in this sand, in addition to its importance in being the factor in a big eastern extension to the Rock Crossing and Greyback pay, would also be the means of adding another to the productive sand at 1830 to 1900 feet from which the wells in the Consolidated pool receive their output.

Considerable interest is also manifested in the outcome of the test by a number of operators on the adjacent leases who, unlike the Hamilton-Martin company, had abandoned their wells after missing the 1800-foot pay, and with a successful outcome of this test it is expected a number of these that missed the pay will later be drilled to the new depth.

PLAINS TRIP IN NOVEMBER

Wichitans Urged to Join Trade Excursion

The proposed trip to the south plains was the principal proposition brought up at the general meeting of the manufacturers and jobbers division of the chamber of commerce Tuesday morning. This trade trip will be made following the completion of the Denver and South Plains railroad branch early in November, acording to J. W. Chatham, industrial and traffic commissioner of the chamber of commerce.

A committee has been appointed by R. E. Penick, chairman, to attend the joint meeting of manufacturers and jobbers divisions of the chamber of commerce of Dallas, Fort Worth, Lubbock and Plainview, to be held in Fort Worth next week. This committee will make final plans for the movement of the special train for the trade trip.

Members of the committee are: A. C. Rayzor, P. B. Halpin, James Biggs and George Keith Jr. Mr. Chatham and Mr. Penick will accompany the special committee to Fort Worth.

About 125 manufacturers and jobbers will attend the three-day trip which will cover the new trade territory opened by the Denver and South Plains and the Q. A. & P. extensions.

Larger attendance will be discussed at a called meeting of directors at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, Oct. 9. A committee of 14 has been appointed to take the names of 10 firms and urge their attendance. An invitation has been extended all members of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce to also attend.

Morgan Helps Farmers Collect Cotton Hands

A new department has been opened in the basement floor of the Wichita county courthouse since Constable Frank Morgan started warfare on vagrants Monday morning. His office now has been turned into an employment bureau for the benefit of cotton growers of the county.

Tuesday Mr. Morgan supplied a cotton farmer with five "hands" who were given their choice between the county jail and a cotton picking job after they had been picked up by officers on vagrancy charges. They preferred the cotton field.

A white man and a Mexican who were taken before Judge O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, on vagrancy charges were released on their promise to accept a job in the cotton fields. The men told Judge Gibbs they had been here only a day or so and expressed willingness to work if given an opportunity. They were.

Two City Departments Merged In Reorganization of Work

Readjustments in the city organization whereby the city sewer system and the city street system have been placed under the city engineer's office were revealed at the auditorium Tuesday.

These changes have already been made in conformity with the administrative code on the suggestion of George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

"These are engineering propositions, and properly belong under the office of the city engineer." Mr. Fairtrace said. "The modern city has them under its engineering department, and we are doing everything we can to gradually make the city organization in Wichita Falls a little better each day."

The street department was formerly a separate department.

The sewers in the past were under the city sanitary department. The sanitary department was placed under the city health department some time ago, and the sewers given over to the care of the city engineer.

Miss Hazel Allday Heads Junior Business Girls at Election Here

Miss Hazel Allday was elected temporary president of the Junior Business Girls' club of the Y. W. C. A. at the first regular fall meeting held Monday evening in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Burmal Arnold was made vice president; Miss Edith Dalton, secretary; Miss Thelma Wisdom, chairman of the social and program committee, and Miss Charlotte Trim, treasurer.

Plans were discussed for the general program for the fall and winter and definite arrangements made for holding regular luncheon meetings at the noon hour at the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria.

The Junior Business Girls' club is organized for the busy girl who desires to meet others of her age. An effort is made to foster interest in art, music and sports. A week-end party was planned as an early event at Camp Noble.

Leaders for the meeting were Miss Erma Schnelle, associate general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., and Miss Catherine Walker, general secretary.

Booze Seized by Cops When Trio Invites Search Without Warrant

Several gallons of whisky and gin were found by police in a house on Buchanan street Tuesday night a short time after officers arrested a man and two women at Ninth and Denver streets after a chase of several blocks. The women were released but the man was held for federal authorities on a charge of possessing liquor.

About 9 o'clock Tuesday night A. L. Stubblefield and Graham Wright, traffic policemen, gave chase to an automobile when it left a house on Buchanan street. The car carried two half-gallon jars of whisky, one pint and a smaller bottle.

When they were taken to the police station the man and two women consented to a search of their home without a warrant and the women accompanied Wright and Stubblefield to the residence. The officers brought back one full quart of Gordon's gin, 7 one-half gallons jars and 13 pint bottles filled with whisky and gin.

Stubblefield and Wright arrested another man earlier Tuesday night who was released on a $50 bond after he had dashed a pint bottle of whisky to the pavement.

BROWN WARNS AGAINST EVIL

Tennessee Pastor Continues Revival

Dr. Fred F. Brown, Tennessee clergyman, addressed a large crowd that braved inclement weather to hear him in a First Baptist church revival meeting Tuesday night.

He spoke on the subject, "Be Sure Your Sins Will Find You Out."

Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock he spoke at the church on the subject "Jesus of Nazareth Passeth By." An equally large crowd was present at this meeting. The pastor also addressed the student bodies of the high school and Junior college, on "The Spirit of Athletics in the School Room."

"The greatest minds of the ages," Dr. Brown said Tuesday night, have united in admitting the fact of sin and its consequences. Those who have sought to lift man to a higher plane have by pen and deed sought to warn against evil in all its forms, and to warn against the desolation which cannot do else but follow its practice."

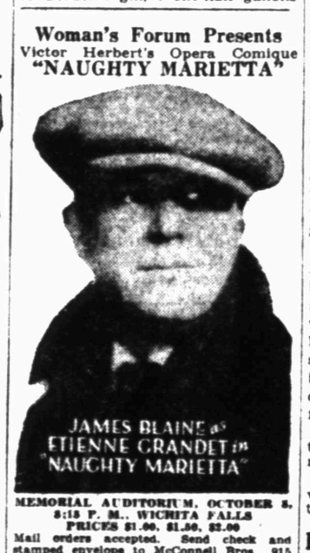

"The sin of unbelief," he continued, "is the thing that separates men from God."

Wednesday morning Dr. Brown will speak on "How God Carries the Load."

Republicans Give Radio Program

More than 100 persons joined the Hoover ranks over the radio Tuesday night when the Wichita Falls Republicans bought an hour on KGKO for their own program, according to Mrs. P. A. Welty.

Miss Alice T. Welty of Wichita Falls, vice state chairman of the First Voters League of Texas, made an appeal to the young people of Texas who are voting for the first time.

She explained the American system of voting and urged the young men and women of Texas to vote for Hoover.

Harwood Stacy, who spent three years in Europe in association with Herbert Hoover, made an address on "Herbert Hoover, the Man." L. H. Gould introduced the numbers on the program. Ethel Allen Nelson played a violin solo, and was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Harwood Stacy. Rev. A. F. White gave the invocation at the opening of the radio meeting, and Zack and Glen gave a short entertainment.

Results of the membership drive launched two weeks ago by the Wichita Falls Credit Guarantors association have proved favorable, with an average attendance of from 28 to 42 members and visitors at the last two meetings.

Another project of the association is a plan just now completed whereby persons in financial straits, owing several creditors may refinance their obligations and obtain a sound credit footing. A period of 10 months is allowed them to meet obligations.

Depth of Soul Pastor's Theme

"Man's Emptiness Crying for God's Fullness," was the subject of a sermon delivered Tuesday night by the Rev. W. B. Walker, at the revival in progress at the First Nazarene church. He used as his text the quotation from Psalms: "Deep calleth unto deep at the noise of thy waterspouts."

Man's soul was compared to one of the great "deeps" by the pastor. "The soul has a great deep of need," he said. "As a spiritual and immortal being there is in it almost fathomless depths. Without God the soul has no genuine satisfaction. Apart from God, darkness is on the face of the deep." The Godless soul of man, he continued, is but a yawning gulf of emptiness.

The pastor further elaborated on the depths of responsibility and possibility manifest in the human soul.

A large crowd attended the revival.

Salespeople Hear Expert's Lecture

"The Master Salesman" was the subject of a lecture delivered by Ben R. Vardaman to about 75 salespeople at the Kemp hotel Tuesday night.

Mr. Vardaman stressed the importance of scientific, mental ability and the value of competent salesmanship in his address.

The methods and steps of making sales were enumerated as the introduction to the customer, drawing the attention of the customer, arousing the buyers' interest in the article, creating his desire for it, and his resolve to buy, by Mr. Vardaman in his talk.

Lectures beginning at 8 o'clock Wednesday and Thursday night on "The Romance of Merchandising," and "The Art of Making a Sale" will be delivered by Mr. Vardaman under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' association.

LARGE CROWD HEARS GOODELL

'Will Man Rob God?' Is Theme

Continuing his series of talks at the First Methodist church, Dr. Charles L. Goodell, executive secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, spoke Tuesday night before a large audience on the subject, "Robbing God."

The sermon was based on the following text, taken from Malachi, "Will A Man Rob God?"

Answering the question propounded in the text, the pastor denied that man "would be mean enough for that."

Ungrateful Attitude

"He has received unnumbered mercies with a tenderness that knows no match, and a persistency that passes seventy times seven, with love that never faileth. There is nothing that we hate worse than ingratitude. History has some examples of perfidy which brings a blush to our cheek. It tells how Pamenio, who opened Asia to Alexander and offered his two sons in battle, was slain by his jealous emperor. It tells of the English lord who gave up the head of his dearest friend for a thousand pounds. It shows a Wolsey wailing over a king's ingratitude; a Napoleon treading upon the heart of Josephine to vault into an empty throne. These and such like things have blackened the characters of those who did them, but nothing compares with that of man to his God. He has asked Him to spare his life, and when He has done it, he has cursed Him to His face.

Man Ungrateful

"He has asked Him for the richest gifts and spent them in fighting against Him, and he has so hated the name and character of his benefactor that thousands of crosses are set up in this city today for the crucifixion of his own Brother, God's well beloved Son. So utterly ungrateful is the attitude of man toward God. But even then it is worse than useless. Listen! Can a man rob God by force? The God that shakes down cities, whose breath sweeps the gulf and two thousands fall, who scatters the Spanish armada and sends a thrill under the seas and enswathes Japan in robes of death. How will a man come out who rushes in his impatience against the thick bosses of the shield of the Almighty? How will a man come out who is trying to rob God?

"No man would hope to escape detection. Men sleep; God never; darkness and light are alike to Him. We can deceive men, we can bear false witness, and suborn juries, but God cannot be deceived; to lie is useless, for God knows."
