Robbery By Firearms Filled On Fugitives Saturday By Governor; Officials Ired Over Action.

(By Associated Press)
HUNTSVILLE, April 13. — Bob Silver who escaped the electric chair through the clemency of a governor and sawed his way from prison, along with four other convicts, in an attempt to evade the life sentence to which the death penalty had been commuted, tonight still was at large with a new charge — punishable by death — against him.

Before the end of Silver's first day of freedom after the escape from Wayne Prison Farm near Huntsville, the new complaint was filed against him as many officers sought to apprehend Silver and three companions.

Steal Student's Car
Robbery with firearms charges were filed against Silver, Robert Hill, Marvin W. Asbell and John Reid at Huntsville in connection with the holding of a couple, students of the Sam Houston State Teachers College here, and theft of their automobile after the convicts forced the two to drive them to Houston. A robbery with firearms carries with it a maximum death penalty.

Aside from the possibility that Silver's life again will be in jeopardy if he is captured, his case brought sensational developments. Among them was a heated exchange of telegrams between law enforcement agencies of Walker County, where Silver escaped, and Governor Moody.

The following telegram started the exchange and finally was followed by filing the robbery with firearms charge.

FORT WORTH, April 13. — The Star-Telegram tomorrow will print a business review showing that West Texas is spending this year nearly $750,000,000 of 1928 income. There is every reason to believe that the income of this rich section from 1929 efforts will be above $800,000,000—probably the largest per capita buying power of any section in the country, the paper will say.

Changes Are Striking
These correspondents stress the fact that sources of West Texas prosperity have increased in number sharply during the past five years; that the changes from 10 or 20 years ago are most striking.

Twenty years ago the chief source of West Texas income was livestock with the average West Texas steer bringing about $40. Ten years ago the biggest money return was derived from cotton with the price around 14 to 15 cents per pound. Five years ago, cotton and livestock

Party Colors Are Raised Again; New Leader To Preside

Hoover Faced With Task Of Redeeming Republican Campaign Pledge Of Caring For Farmers' Relief.

Fight Is Expected
Sessions Expected To Be Filled With Opposition; Tariff To Be Opposed By Democrats

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, April 13. (AP)—Party colors were raised at the capitol today as leaders marshaled forces for the extra session of congress called by President Hoover to convene Monday to redeem the republican campaign promise for farm relief.

Boostered by majorities in both the senate and house from the November elections, republican leaders are prepared to adhere to the Hoover limitation on the legislative program.

Measures Slated
Tariff revision, a farm marketing bill, reappointment of the house, and a census measure were on the slate written tonight by Senator Watson, new republican leader.

The program as framed apparently bears the endorsement of the chief executive but the new president, just settling himself in the White House, has signaled a hands-off policy towards congress. He is ready to cooperate but not to dictate.

There has been little to indicate other than a tranquil session. But on the verge of that session a threat of trouble has been injected from democratic quarters.

Robison To Fight Tariff
Senator Joe T. Robison of Arkansas, democratic leader, gave notice of a fight against the administration's plan for upward revision of the tariff and also its proposal to limit the legislative scope of the session.

Senator Watson issued a statement in reply. He declared it was his final rest on native soil in the slim grey Tourville, newest and fastest of French cruisers.

The cortege, the flag-draped coffin borne on an artillery caisson, moved for two miles south the city's heart. Noontime traffic was detoured and tens of thousands lined the way with bowed heads.

At Grand Central terminal the casket was placed under military guard of honor in a car of a special section of a late afternoon train to be escorted by relatives and members of the funeral party to the

One Of The Last Of Old-Time Silver Tongued Orators Dies Suddenly While In Midst Of Lawsuit; Death Mourned

Represented Texas Bailey Considered As Big Leader

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 13.—For nearly a quarter of a century, Joseph Weldon Bailey who died today at Sherman, Texas, represented the Lone Star State in Congress—ten years in the House and thirteen years in the Senate. His career in national politics ended when he resigned on January 3, 1913, after he had been criticized for acting as an attorney for Standard Oil company interests.

The former senator was one of the old school of capitol statesmen. Considered one of the foremost orators of the Senate he always wore a long black double-breasted coat, broad brimmed black hat and a flowing black tie. He had a distinguished physical presence and when he spoke his voice resounded throughout the chamber.

Picturesque Figure Of Politics In State Passes On; Was One Of Nation's Foremost Party Leaders

Nationally Known

Politician Had Colorful Career, Climaxed By Interesting Fight For Governorship Of State.

(By Associated Press)
SHERMAN, April 13.—Joseph Weldon Bailey, former United States senator for Texas and one of the last of the old-time silver-tongued orators, died suddenly in the districts court room here today in the midst of a law suit.

The echo of the former great statesman's last words hardly had died when his head was seen to fall to his chest.

A hurried examination revealed he was unconscious. Physicians and a pulmonologist were summoned but their efforts were unavailing and within a few minutes he was pronounced dead.

Blood Clot Causes Death
Dr. A. H. McElhannon, one of four who examined the former senator, said death had been caused by a clot of blood in the heart. Funeral arrangements were held in advance tonight pending the arrival of relatives.

Marked by his picturesque dress as well as nationally noted for his oratory, Mr. Bailey was at one time the United States Senate's outstanding opponent of prohibition and woman suffrage. He held out against them, he frequently said, not because he regarded them as evil in themselves but because he saw in them an encroachment on state's rights his fundamental political principle.

Dressed As Statesman
Southerner born and bred, Senator Bailey dressed the part of a typical southern statesman—dull black frock coat, flowing tie and a big black, slouch hat—and was easily distinguished in any assemblage.

Inventor Of The Submarine Thirty Years Ago Planned Voyage Under Ice To North Pole; Sir Hubert Wilkins Plans To Attempt Journey

Simon Lake, upper left, has waited 30 years to send a submarine to the North Pole. He privately owned undersea craft, the Defender, in which Sir Hubert Wilkins plans to sail for the Arctic. In picture lower right, given an idea of how the Defender will be equipped with a long, red-looking "Argonaut, Jr."—the world's first successful submarine—built by Lake in 1895.

BY DONN SUTTON

NEA Service Writer
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 13.—Because for more than 30 years a man has clung tenaciously to a dream, a tiny submarine this summer will rip and tear its way through polar ice floes to the top of the world.

The man is Simon Lake, and the dream is the one born when he built the world's first successful submarine in 1895. Even then he planned that his invention would conquer the frozen barriers of far northern waters that have proved impenetrable ever since men first went to sea in ships.

This was almost the original purpose of the submarine is being carried out now that Sir Hubert Wilkins, famed explorer, has decided to go to the North Pole by an under-ice submarine.

Lake's own craft, the Defender—the only privately owned submarine in the world—is being refitted here for the polar voyage. It is being equipped with new and amazing devices that will safeguard it and its volunteer crew of ten on their fantastic journey into the Arctic.

"The trip won't be dangerous and the idea isn't new," Lake said. "More than 30 years ago I tried to interest Captain Nansen, the Arctic explorer, in going to the North Pole in an under-ice submarine."

Lake was only 15 years old when he began work on the invention which was to almost revolutionize naval warfare—and which now seems about to add a new and important page to the history of Arctic exploration. He was born in Plainville, N. J., in 1869. At ten he had Jules Verne's then fantastic story, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." It impressed him. He, too, some day would sail under the sea—in a ship of his own making.

Capitalists Laughed at Him
So into a world with a bit skeptical of the new and different came this young man with a weird idea—an idea that he could build a boat that would sink but wouldn't stay sunk, a boat that actually could be navigated under water—in short, a mechanical fish.

"In 1893 I wanted to build a submarine about 80 feet long and 31 feet in diameter," said Lake. "but it would have cost $75,000 and capitalists whom I approached laughed at me. So I swallowed some of my high hopes and the next year went to Atlantic Highlands, N. J., to construct a smaller craft that would prove my claims."

"There I built the 'Argonaut, Jr.' It seems the world's first practical submarine. I made it almost without help, of yellow pine timber, painted with coal tar. It was propelled from the bottom by turning a crank on the inside of the boat. The compressed air was stored in a soda water tank. The air compressor was only a plumber's hand pump. I made the diving armor out of canvas, painting it to render it impervious to water. The air supply came through a piece of common garden hose."

Opened Door Under Sea
It was of course, the sensation of the day. To Chesapeake Bay in the summer of 1895 swarmed scientists, navigators, capitalists and government officials to see the unbelievable craft.

"I took three capitalists 16 feet under water for an hour and fifteen minutes," Lake smiles now as he recalls the difficulty he had in overcoming their fears. "During the submergence the door was opened—air pressure excluding the water—and articles lost or thrown overboard from the dock were recovered through the aperture. My submarine was a success."

Followed then, in ever-increasing size and practicality, a long line of submarines that made Lake famous the world over—and, of course, wealthy. He has constructed undersea craft for all the great powers in his yards here. He has had to stand by all these years to see his nautical brain child employed for warfare instead of being utilized by science in peaceful pursuits. And that is why he is entering into plans for Captain Wilkins' polar expedition with youthful zest.

Many New Devices
For the trip the Defender will be equipped with a special diving hatch from which a man might slip from the bow of the sub and, using high-powered explosives, blast its way free from retaining ice; a stout, sharp-edged bar extending from prow to stern over the conning tower like a huge knife that will cut through all but the thickest ice; a cargo of thermite, used for breaking up ice-locked rivers, which will melt as much as an acre of ice if they should become trapped; drills for boring up through unusually deep ice to get fresh air for the crew and for recharging the craft's batteries; an undersea radio that can communicate at all times with shore stations; special sounding devices for finding the depth of the sea.

Verne Congratulated Him
Scientific and nautical societies and governments of many nations have heaped honors upon him, but none has so pleased the man who, as a boy, sat enthralled by "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," than a cable which he once received from Jules Verne himself:

"While my book was entirely a work of the imagination, my conviction is that all I said in it will come to pass. A thousand mile voyage in your submarine is evidence of this. The next great war (this was before the World War) may be largely a contest between submarine boats."

'Leggers Should Learn This Man

Bootleggers in Lubbock should get acquainted with O. B. Conley, deputy on Sheriff Wade Hardy's force.

He's not the right man for one to tell liquor to and then expect to remain a free and unembarrassed individual.
One Lubbock bootlegger found it out last night after he had sold one pint of "corn" to Conley. Conley drove to the "legger's" residence, called for the liquor and paid for it before the man learned with whom he was dealing.

Now he rests in the Lubbock county jail to be charged with the sale of liquor today.

Bailey Death

After several terms in the lower house of Congress and two terms in the U. S. Senate, his last political maneuver came in 1920 when he sought the Texas governorship only to be defeated in the democratic primary by Pat M. Neff.

Anti-Elitism Him
His anti-prohibition and anti-woman suffrage activities popularly were believed to have brought about his elimination from state politics.

For the last eight years, as he had for the preceding eight, he devoted his time to the private practice of law. A son, Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., being a member of his firm.

Counting his friendships with the Nation's great by the hundreds, that of his early political life with the late William Jennings Bryan was outstanding. In some quarters Bailey was credited with having influenced the Great Commoner in the formulation of some of his most celebrated doctines, among them the Bryan metal doctrine.

Admitted To Bar Early
Bailey was admitted to the bar before he reached his majority and as soon as he could vote plunged into politics.

He was born in Copiah county, Mississippi, October 6, 1863, and gained his legal education at Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee. His first political adventure was in 1884 when he was chosen a democratic presidential elector for Georgia.

The next year he removed to the Lone Star state, settling at Gainesville, near here, which remained his home until a few years ago.

Recognized As Early Leader
Four years later he again was selected a presidential elector, this time for Texas, and then was well on his way along a political career that was climaxed with his recognition as leader of his party.

Elected first to the fifty-second Congress he was returned successively for four more terms, from 1891 to 1901. He then sought a seat in the upper house and twice was successful, in 1901 and 1907, resigning from the Senate in 1912 to return to Texas.

The law suit in which Mr. Bailey was appearing was that in which the state is suing the Red River Bridge company to force discontinuance of the collection of allegedly excessive tolls.

Court Room Filled
The district court room was filled to capacity today, the crowd attracted possibly by the presence of the great orator than by the case at issue. The former senator had been animated and to some degree popular in talking with friends during the morning session.

The news of Mr. Bailey's death shocked Dallas, his last home; Austin, the State capital, and Gainesville, where the body of his first wife was buried.

Funeral Services To Be Held In Gainesville
SHERMAN, April 13. (AP)—The body of the late former Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey, whose death occurred in a court room here today, was taken overland this afternoon to the home of his son, J. W. Bailey, Jr., Dallas. The body will remain at the son's home until Monday morning at 10:30, when it will be taken to the First Presbyterian church in Dallas for funeral services.

Services at the church will be conducted by Dr. William M. Anderson, pastor, assisted by the Rev. James G. Ober of Greenville. Immediately after the services the body will be placed aboard a special train arriving at Gainesville about 3 p. m. Monday.

Interment will be in the Gainesville cemetery, beside the body of Bailey's first wife.

The body was accompanied to Dallas by Mr. Bailey's widow, his son, J. W. Bailey, Jr., and John J. Simmons, of Dallas and other friends.

firearms charges against the fugitives.
"Bob Silver escaped penitentiary at 10:30 last night. Suggest you pardon him before he is caught and commute Leahy's, McKenzie's and Bill Smith's sentences."

Officials Sign Wire
The message was signed by A. T. McKinney, Jr., district attorney, R. T. Burns, county attorney, and R. J. Camp of Walker county.

To this Governor Moody replied: "Your wire has been received. Am advised that Silver and his confederates who escaped from the Wayne State Prison Farm last night by the use of a deadly weapon placed the owner and occupant of an automobile in fear of bodily injury and took the automobile for use in making escape. Am also advised occurred in your district and am wondering if steps have been taken for the prosecution of this offense."

Another telegram was sent by McKinney to Governor Moody saying that names of the companions of Silver had not been furnished him and suggesting that the Governor instruct prison officials to file charges of robbery with firearms against the convicts.

Later the charges were filed by N. L. Spear, former warden of the penitentiary, acting on instructions of the officials who sent the first telegram.

Search Instituted
Meanwhile W. H. Head, manager of the State Prison system, went to Houston with an automobile load of guards to aid Houston and Harris County officers in the search for the escaped men.

Silver last was seen in Houston early today. The entire Houston detective force searched the city but had divulged no clues tonight. Neither of the four men nor the automobile which they appropriated had been reported found.

Officers said they believe Silver might attempt to catch a boat out of Houston.

One Back In Walls
K. E. Brewer, one of the five convicts who cut a hole in the galvanized wire fence enclosing the new Tubercular Wynne Farm building and ran was back in the walls tonight.

A warrant was issued today for the arrest of G. A. Thompson, guard at the farm, for aiding the escape. Thompson was discharged by E. F. Harrell, warden, and a charge of permitting prisoners to escape was filed against him.

Silver was removed to the Wayne farm six days ago when it was found he had tuberculosis.

Convicts "Very Courteous"
The four convicts were "very courteous" to Hayden Malone of Willis and Miss Loree Harrison of Bedias, the two students of Sam Houston who had to bring Houston 80 miles last night through the darkness and deluge, the victims reported here.

The man and woman said the four convicts appeared a half-hour after the break at the side of their automobile, parked on the streets of Huntsville.

Car Drowned Out "Once"
Hill was said to have poked a pistol at the couple and the men ordered the driver to take them to Houston. Once the automobile was "drowned out" and was stalled for about an hour.

When the machine reached Houston Silver forced Malone to change clothes with him. All of the other men had on their convict clothes. The men then ordered the couple to stay in the alley while they drove away.

Three times the former Kansas City youth was scheduled to die. Twice the Governor granted him a stay and a third time commuted the sentence.

The Silver case attracted widespread attention. Two petitions, each bearing several thousand signatures were presented to the governor, one asking for clemency and the other for the death penalty. Silver was convicted of the robbery of Roscoe Wilson, Fort Worth theatre manager, as he resisted robbery.

Make Haste Slowly
Lubbock Lady Has Proof Of Adage

That old adage, "Make haste slowly," was given a modern setting, with proof positive of its truthfulness, here yesterday afternoon.

In a hurry to pay her light and water bill, a Lubbock lady drove her automobile to a parking spot in front of the city hall, about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and hurried upstairs.

When she hurried down and out the front entrance of the building, she was greeted by Traffic Officer C. E. Luce, with the query:

"Is that your car, lady?"
"Yes," she answered.
"Come with me," said Luce. Which she did.

Judge J. E. Inmon, as the lady was brought before him in the police station, said:

"Didn't you know that you are not supposed to park your car in front of that red line?"
"I just didn't notice," she explained.

"And," continued Judge Inmon, "didn't you know it was against the law to park a car in front of a fire plug? You not only parked over a red line and in front of that fire plug, but your car is too near the corner."

She reiterated her statement that she had not noticed these.

"The least we can do when anyone violates such ordinances for such time," said the judge, "is a fine of $5."

To Clear Up Soon
General Gonzales, who reported that Generals Fausto Topete, Ricardo Topete, Manuel Aguirre and Escobar had left Cananea for Nogales or Hermosillo, declared he expected the revolutionary situation in Sonora to clear up in ten days.

On the American side of the border, plans still went forward for protection of American lives and interests in the event of a battle.

Brigadier General Frank S. Concho ordered a third troop of the Tenth United States cavalry and another company of the 25th infantry to Naco for Port Huachuca.

An alteration between United States and Mexican troops, the details of which have not been learned, was reported today at Crook Tunnel, on the Southern Pacific railway line seven miles east of Naco, Arizona.

one of the leading constitutional lawyers in Congress and believed in the strict interpretation of the constitution, frequently declaring that he had no patience with modern innovations and postures proposed as modifications of that document. He also at one time during his Senate career attacked the initiative and referendum, referring to them as "un-American, undemocratic, unrepresentative and unconstitutional policies."

He predicted this valetodictory speech in the Senate on these policies and spoke for four hours, while nearly every senator remained in his seat and the galleries were packed. In his speech he cited the great men of the early history of the Nation as witnesses to the logic of his argument that these policies were a departure from the fundamental principles on which the republic was built.

When William Jennings Bryan returned from his trip around the world, Bailey went to meet him in New York, but after the Commoner gave out an interview that he favored government ownership of railroads the Texan left New York without even seeing Bryan. Bailey considered the statement socialist and immediately afterward withdrew from active participation in democratic national politics while Bryan was in control.

were gradually dividing honors with half a dozen other sources of wealth. Today every week in the year is pay day in West Texas and cash income at all seasons is amply sufficient to pay the running expenses of town and county, leaving the main crop income to pay for land and improvements on that land.

"West Texas production during 1918, from which present buying power was derived, came from such a variety of sources as to insure that section against any temporary money stringency like those which were common when the main-stay was a single crop—whether of calves or cotton. The cash-every-week plan came to stay; and merchants, bankers and farmers see in it the solution to all the farm problems of a day that has passed."

Cotton Still Leads
"Today cotton still is the leading product of West Texas with an income from the 1928 production of line seed of $275,000,000."

"Oil—an income source unknown two decades ago—brought West Texas more than $165,000,000 last year, even at the low prices which prevailed for crude in that area."

"Livestock fell into third place, with total sales for 12 months now running about $135,000,000—and good steers bringing $120 each."

"Poultry and eggs are fourth with a fast increasing total of about $40,000,000 in Fort Worth territory during the year."

"Other income sources which bring money to nearly every farm with 1928 values follow: corn and grain sorghums $38,000,000, wheat $27,000,000, milk and cream $16,000,000, wool and mohair $15,000,000, peanuts $8,000,000 and pecans $4,250,000."

Bray's Bayou and old Buffalo Bayou channel were torn loose from their moorings and either drifted along with the current or filled with water and sank.

All private docks and wharfs in the area were submerged. A 46-foot cabin cruiser sank in the swollen waters just above Harrisburg today when the craft was struck by a barge. Several barges, two tug boats and a number of cruisers were carried down stream into the ship channel.

Rains To Cause Rises
Heavy rains over the middle and lower drainage areas will cause sharp rises in the Brazos River bringing the waters to a moderate high stage between Waco and Valley Junction within the next 24 and 36 hours.

Unless additional rains fall the waters will remain under flood stage, it was believed.

Advisory warnings were sent out as a sharp rise was expected in the Trinity River from Riverside to Liberty within the next four days.

A slight, moderate rise was expected for the lower Natchez and Sabine Rivers within 48 hours. Flood warnings were issued from the weather bureau at San Antonio for the lower Colorado with a stage of 20 feet expected at Columbus Sunday.

Juvenile Courts Celebrate Thirtieth Birthday

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEW YORK, April 11.—This month America's juvenile courts celebrate the 30th anniversary of the institution's inception.

Chicago founded the first experiment in "human engineering" on April 21, 1899, at the instigation of local clubwomen working in conjunction with some of the city's socially-minded lawyers.

Today every state but one has a system of juvenile courts and thousands of persons doing probation work.

Today through the success of the probation system, the state has a concerned-mother attitude toward children that fall into the toils of the law, considering each boy or girl delinquent separately, humanely, scientifically.

Women Were Sponsors
Women have had much to do with the growth of the juvenile court system though Judge Ben Lindsey deserves tremendous credit for selling the idea to America, especially through his famous lecture, "The Trials of Mickey."

Of the 3,702 probation officers spending their entire time on juvenile delinquent work, 1,167 are women.

Women have seen to it that juvenile court judges have been chosen for their special qualifications, such as an understanding of boys and girls, a trained and sympathetic knowledge of child psychology. Many juvenile court judges are women, notably Judge Mary Bartholme and Judge Kelley.

And women have been interested in keeping up high standards for probation officers who work with juvenile court judges. These probation officers now are selected from experienced social case workers who have tact and resourcefulness and sympathy necessary to handle children.

Lastly, women probation workers and the intelligent club women who support their work have insisted on detention homes to house children who used to be thrown into jail, to carry the stigma through life.

Both married and unmarried women are finding satisfactory careers in probation work now. Today it requires a high intelligence and special training to qualify. Not only is a college or social workers' education asked, but often training in psychiatry which increases the probation workers' diagnosing powers tremendously.

The whole atmosphere in the best juvenile courts in America now is one of understanding towards children whom the spirit of adventure has led astray. It is impossible to estimate the thousands of youngsters who have been salvaged for a useful life in their community by the state's friendly, helpful, attitude instead of considering them impossible criminals.

Because of the tremendous success of the whole probation system, various women's clubs are now working with the National Probation Association to start a drive to establish juvenile courts and probation service in every city and county of America by 1935. The mothers of today are asking that wayward boys and girls be given a fair chance to fit into their community and be the respected mothers and fathers of tomorrow.

City employees of Paris, furnished apparel by the municipality, are striking for better garments.

SON OF MILLIONAIRE WANDERS WITH GYPSY PLAYERS

NEW YORK, April 13.—The "Big Town" gossip . . . Jo Davidson, the internationally famous sculptor, returned to Paris the other day because he couldn't find an American barber who could trim his whiskers properly.

And a group of "gypsy" players, who wander through the eastern countryside of summer months putting on old English comedies, has as its star performer one Bushnell Cheney. He happens to be the son and heir to the silk millions, yet he prefers the vagabond trail of his theater group to the financial world in which he could cut a wide figure. And they do say that Cheney, sr., has steadily refused to underwrite the traveling players for a single dime.

And Molly Picon, who is "the darling of the East Side," will soon be known to a national audience, thanks to the talkies. Although the favorite of the Ghetto for years, she will be "seen and heard" by tens of thousands of New Yorkers for the first time. Which is a typical example of things in Manhattan. They could go to see her in the flesh for the expenditure of a nickel's carefare. And, whether or not you believe it, I know scads of people who have never been on Second Avenue, which is the East Side's Broadway. And one of the biggest cigar concerns in America has been paying several smartly dressed young women $100 a day to parade up and down the "Avenue," smoking as they go. The first appearance was made during the Easter parade. The idea is to accustom the world to seeing women smoke in the streets, with an eye, of course, to future sales.

New York's richest woman, I am informed is Mrs. Payne Whitney. The late Payne Whitney is said to have left a fortune of $200,000,000. But her taste is not for display; nor does she fancy the limelight. One of Manhattan's most modest inhabitants, her ambition is to write good poetry. She already has two volumes of adult verse and one written for her two children. These have not been given general public circulation.

In contrast is that new generation of publicity mad rich folk who go to extreme lengths to gain even slight recognition. Whereas the richest and most important of the world figures lives unobtrusively, the hundreds of "would-be's" make frantic efforts to seem important.

I know of at least a dozen who actually hire press agents to keep their names in the newspapers. They organize their campaigns like a theatrical production about to go out on the road.

One of the latest rackets is to "be seen" at snappy night club openings or at first night performances of certain Broadway plays. The "second-string" columnists, who prepare for the Manhattan dailies items concerning who was seen at such-and-such a place, are almost certain to mention them. A trick costume at a charity fete is generally good for a picture in the rotogravure sections of the Sunday papers. And the endorsement of everything from a brand of cigars to a beauty cream is a profitable source of income, as well as a means of getting their pictures in the papers.

The "younger set" is particularly active in this connection, and such is the social competition in a great city like New York that some go to amazing lengths to keep their names before the public. Not even the chorines, the movie ladies or Broadway actresses are more versatile at space grabbing.

Eaton Announces Terracing Show

County Agent D. F. Eaton announces a demonstration that will show how to construct a terrace, scheduled for next Friday, on the Clyde Showalter farm in the Liberty community. The farm is located about two miles west of the Liberty school house.

"We will have a Corsicana grader and other machinery at the farm," Mr. Eaton declares, "and the subject is to build a terrace like it should be made. This will give an idea to farmers that they can use on their farms, either this year or next year."

Everybody interested in terracing is invited to the demonstration, which will be under Mr. Eaton's direction, with the assistance of John Patterson, terracing expert who has been employed by the county to aid Eaton in terracing work throughout Lubbock county this year.

Matador Track Team Downs Daniel Baker Hill Billies

IN THE REALM OF SPORTS WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

Benefit baseball game this afternoon at Merrill Park between the Auto-Barber and Carpenter-Painters of the City League. The contest will start at 3:30.

Daniel Baker Hill Billies here Tuesday for the first of a three-game series with the Tech team. All games will start at 4 o'clock.

District meet on Tech Friday and Saturday. Preliminaries will start Friday afternoon. District chairman E. Y. Freeland will be in charge.

Work on the Simmons university track has caused the postponement of the quadrangular meet scheduled for Saturday at Abilene. The Matador team was one of the four teams entered in the meet but will be forced to stand by this week. Simmons, McMurtry and A. C. were the other schools scheduled to compete.

CALL OUT THE RESERVES
Indications point to one of the largest gatherings of athletes in the history of West Texas when high school track meets for the district interscholastic meet Friday and Saturday of this week. Winners of the first four places, both Class A and B, in county meets are eligible for competition. In former years only the first and second place winners were sent to the district meet and the enlargement lends promise of a record number of entries.

Because of the unusually large number of contestants expected, it will be necessary to hold preliminaries in all events Friday afternoon with the exception of the mile and relay. E. Y. Freeland, district chairman, has a veritable army of men in the contest, including a large number of Tech tracksters, who will be idle this week-end.

Slaton and Lubbock are the favorites in the district engagement again this year. The Tigers won the championship last season but will find a much stronger Lubbock aggregation when Coach Wright brings his Bengals here Friday. The Westerners showed their heels to the Slaton team in a recent invitation meet held in the Tigers' gymnasium and made an even more impressive performance in taking the Panhandle-South Plains meet at Amarillo. Slaton scored 30 points to take the Tri-state track and field meet, nothing out Amarillo by one point. This victory gave the Tiger stock a mighty boost.

GREAT PLAINS MEET NEXT WEEK
Coach Victor Payne's next opposition for his hustling team and field aggregation will be the annual Great Plains track and field meet at Canyon, April 26 and 27. The Matadors will win this event every year since Tech has been entered, including last season. The locals overcame a very strong team from the Canyon Buffaloes, April 6, giving the Tech team a repeat performance of past years' success. No reports have reached here concerning the strength of the New Mexico teams entered in the meet, but barring upsets, the Paymen should use their strength in field events to carry off high honors.

STEERS ARE OFF
The Texas Aggie nine turned the trick that other baseball teams of the Southwest. Conference had failed to do thus far this season when they took Uncle Billy Ditch's team into camp in the first game of a double header Saturday, 2-0.

Both teams entered the series were undefeated, but the Paymen played more games than the Farmers. Coming back in the night cap with their usual punch, the Texas aggregation put over enough runs to smother the Aggies and regained their leadership of the conference race. Texas now has won seven games and lost one, while A. and M. has won three and lost one.

The Baylor Bears are likely to give the champions the hardest race for the conference crown. Coach Jennings has always been able to give the Longhorns plenty of trouble on the baseball diamond and with a little help from the other teams may be able to dethrone the leaders.

American League
Boston at New York
Philadelphia at Washington
Detroit at Cleveland
Chicago at St. Louis

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, April 13. (AP)—With a feeling that anything can happen, the two major leagues will start the baseball season Tuesday. Not in years have the 16 teams been sent away on their stretch of nearly six months with such uncertainty.

Although the world champion New York Yankees start their quest for their fourth straight American League championship carrying the "Wise money" and majority vote of the experts, three or four clubs may be able to prove that uneasy lies the head that wears the crown.

Giants and Cubs Favored
In the senior circuit, the New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs are early favorites, the Giants leading narrowly in the vote, but this calculation may have to be revised when the returns are in next autumn with the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates carrying added threats. The Cards and the Pirates have divided the last three championships between them and can't be counted out in advance.

Miller Huggins, looking down from the Pinnacle of a world championship, may find the Athletics, Browns, Senators or Tigers disputing his high place.

In spite of the rush of expert opinion to their cause, managers John McGraw of the Giants and Joe McCarthy of the Cubs do not expect a two-team race in the National. They know that Pittsburgh has hitting and pitching, a hard combination to stop, and St. Louis was good enough to win last year. The Cardinals present a new manager in Billy Southworth, brave enough to defy the one-year reign of Cardinal bosses.

The opening will carry the usual flare of trumpets, President Hoover is being counted upon to pitch the first ball at Washington, and a dozen mayors will be given a chance to show just how good are their arms.

Landis Refuses
CHICAGO, April 13. (AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Commissioner of baseball, had no ballyhoo to offer the opening of the major league season Tuesday.

"Anything I could say would be the same old stuff, anyhow," he explained. "The fans don't want to hear from me. They want to see the game."

NEW YORK, April 13. (AP)—On the eve of the opening of the 54th season of the National League, President John A. Heydler has no prediction to make of the strength of the eight clubs but expects a record season for the league as a whole.

"It would be hazardous for me to speculate on the comparative playing strength of the eight clubs in our league or classify the contenders," he said.

"And it would be presumptuous to undertake the strength of these clubs, for all of them have made changes and additions since last season which they confidently expect to be beneficial."

"This will be the 54th season of the National League, and with reasonably favorable weather conditions, it should be our greatest."

"The formation of a college baseball association, long inoperative, by the leading universities of the East, and the greater activity in amateur baseball generally are most significant."

"The professional end of baseball was never in as sound and healthy condition as at present," he said.

Medal Play Match At Country Club

Lubbock Merchants Offering Prizes To Winners In Blind Par Handicap Tourney Today.

Lubbock merchants are offering a number of valuable prizes to winners of the medal play tournament which is to be held today at the Lubbock Country Club. J. W. Byrne, the new golf pro here, has arranged a system of competition whereby all contestants enter the match-up and a handicap with a blind par.

Bowen's Drug store is offering a McGraw senior putter to the first prize winner. Second place will draw a pair of golf shoes from Hemphill-Wellie City Drug Store. Will award a Wahl fountain pen to the third prize winner.

According to the plans of the tourney, each golfer turns in his handicap before starting play. His gross score with the handicap deducted must be in the range of 72 to 90 inclusive. The net score is turned in together with the name of the golfer and if this score corresponds with the "par" number drawn from the hat, he is the winner.

The match is open to anyone, Mr. Byrne explained. Outsiders may play by paying a nominal green fee.

The Texas team won first place in 11 of the 15 events. Big Leo Baldwin of Texas was high point man in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. His time in the century was 10.6.

Javelin Thrower Also Scholarly

EMPORIA, Kas., (AP)—Add Earl Bevan's name to the list of athletes whose prowess is not confined to athletics.

The Kansas State Teachers college star rose to athletic glory by hurling the javelin 206 feet 11 inches for a new record at the Texas regatta. At the Southern Methodist regatta his throw measured 206 feet 4 inches—within ten inches of the world's record.

In an intelligence-identification test given by E. J. Brown, professor of education at the Teachers college, Bevan identified 100 prominent persons with greater accuracy than 250 other students who took the test.

Paymen Overcome Early Lead Of Goats With Brilliant Comeback In Taking All Firsts In Field Events

Scarlet Clad Speed Merchants Display Strong All-Around Track Aggregation In Winning Second Dual Meet In Row; Tadlock Scores High With 12 2-3

By ALLAN CARNEY, Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor.

The scarlet-clad speedsters of Texas Tech displayed enough superiority over the Danil Baker Hill Billies in field events to take the Brownwood cinder aggregation into camp in their dual meet on Tech Field Saturday. Despite the edge which the Goats held in the majority of the running events, the Matadors took nine first places and seven seconds to outscore the visitors, 65 to 51.

Not until the last field event had been run off was the outcome of the contest certain. Victories in track events had given the Goats an early lead, but the Paymen came back strong to top first place in the six events held in the field.

Usually calm weather enabled the track and field athletes to chalk up a number of splendid records. Noing out Reasoner of Daniel Baker in a whirlwind finish, Freeland of Tech set the best mark of his career in the mile run when he made the four-minute mark in 43.3 seconds. The Billy Miller fell across the tape at the finish, after putting on a sensational spurt on the last two hundred yards. He came back in the two-mile to near out the Tech flash in a race equally as close.

Tadlock Is High
Tadlock, Tech's high point man in the 120-yard high hurdles, clearing the barriers and finishing in 13.4 seconds. E. Duncan of the Billies set a grueling pace in the quarter mile dash to beat out his team-mate, Harlow in 51.1 seconds. Corley in this event first Duncan fouled Corley was the first turn Coach Payne failed to hold the visitors to the ruling.

Lee of Tech sailed through the 22 foot, 4 1-4 inches to outclass the field in the broad jump. Lee's form in this event marks him as a potential star in broad jumping. Payne, his team-mate, placed second with a leap of 21 feet, 11 inches.

The Daniel Baker quartet of Sullivan, Harlow, D. Duncan and E. Duncan walked off with the mile relay with little trouble. Dallas, Tech's number one man, ran a beautiful race for his leg but was given too long a handicap to overcome. The Matador team was composed of Lawrence Cole, Corley and Dallas.

Tadlock's two first places in the high and low hurdles and a tie with E. Duncan and Wilkins in the high hurdles gave him a total of 13 points. In the 120-yard dash, Fanning, Tech's star, placed first with a time of 16.8 seconds; he also captured the 220-yard dash. Fanning, Tech's star, placed first with a time of 16.8 seconds; he also captured the 220-yard dash.

TAHOKA STOCK JUDGING TEAM WINS

In the intercollegiate vocational agriculture judging contests held at the Texas Tech in Lubbock Monday the Tahoka team won one of the silver loving cups offered by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and certain business concerns in Lubbock.

Not only did the Tahoka team as a whole make the highest score in this contest, but Frank Williamson of the Tahoka team was the high point man among all those competing in this contest.

The winning team is composed of Amel Williamson, Frank Williamson and Boswell Edwards.

The Tahoka teams entering the other contests all made good showings, and these boys together with their teachers, Mr. Taylor and Mr. White, are to be congratulated upon the fine work they have been doing.

SCHOOL BOARD ELECTIONS

At a meeting of the school board Tuesday night a number of teachers were elected for the next school year.

Professor Taylor White was again elected as vocational agriculture teacher by unanimous vote of the board. The board did not take action on this position when other teachers were elected a month ago.

Miss Irene Ames, teacher of English in the high school, was also re-elected.

Miss Jessie Sargent, who has been teaching the past two years at O'Donnell, was elected as one of the grade teachers for the ensuing year.

Professor and Mrs. Allen of Crosbyton, were elected to positions in the school. Both hold degrees from the U. of Dallas. Professor Allen will teach science, stenography, typewriting and other business courses and will direct a high school band. He has been directing a school band in Crosbyton the past two years and has won there the right to have been very fine.

Miss Allen has been teaching in the primary department at Crosbyton and she will have a like position here succeeding Miss Walden, who has accepted a position in the Lubbock school.

This almost completes the faculty. Possibly two other teachers will be required at central ward. Several applications are pending and some of these were rejected because the applicants do not measure up in scholarship or experience to the high standard adopted by the board several months ago.

The names of the cakes, bearing the names of the honorees and dates of their birth, tanked with cherry blossoms and pansies made a very attractive centerpiece for the table.

BAPTIST REVIVAL

Rev. J. P. Olive, pastor of the Baptist church at Lorenz, is conducting a revival this week at his church. The attendance is good.

It is the custom of the Baptist people here to hold a spring revival each year. Rev. Olive has just recently moved to this city and accepted a call to the local church.

SEWER FRANCHISE

The application for a sewer franchise for Lorenz, asked for by the Panhandle Construction company, of Lubbock, passed the first reading Monday night at the regular meeting of the council. It will be read on two more meeting nights, and if passed at all three readings the franchise will be issued to that company.

If this franchise is granted, work will begin immediately and the system should be in operation by the first of August.

The city council also let a contract at the meeting Monday night for painting the city water tower and tank, and for the installing of a sanitary flush valve at the bottom of the tank. This work is being done by the Pyle Bros. Iron Preserving company, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and is being done for the purpose of preventing rust and deterioration. The paint job is guaranteed for six years by Pyle Bros., and will be inspected by them once each year for that period of time.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pattillo have recently sold their country home located a mile from town to Mr. Baker of Abilene. They will give immediate possession by moving into Lorenz this week.

Tragedy Leaves Its Mark on Son of Raid Victim

BY ROY J. GIBBONS
Staff Writer for Central Press
AURORA, Ill., April 13.—The sorrow of a million years peers from the eyes of Gerald DeKing here.

They are eyes prematurely saddened and grown old as though they had lived and seen into the ages. And yet, Gerald is just a little boy in fact he has just turned twelve.

A month ago he was playing with his toys. He was thinking of the baseball team on which he is the catcher.

He was asking his mother: "Mother, will we have cake for supper?" But now he no longer thinks such things. Now he no longer talks to his mother because his mother is dead.

She died before Gerald's sad young eyes. She died as she stood calling for help over the telephone while a dry raiding party of sheriffs and deputies pounded in the door of their home.

The deputies had guns in their hands. They had machine guns, revolvers and shotguns. They also had gas bombs.

But first they fired at Gerald's mother and she gasped. She lay against the wall. She hung for a minute to the telephone receiver and then went down all covered with blood.

Fired Blindly
Gerald saw this. He also saw the officers' flash in his father's head with the butt of a shotgun. Then Gerald picked up a revolver and shot back at the officers. He hit one of them in the leg, although he had his eyes closed when his finger pressed the trigger.

Everything since that day has been a dream to Gerald. He can not reconcile cause with effect. He has only a boy's philosophy. He reasons instead in losses. Once he had his mother. Now she is dead.

That is the only way Gerald can think because his mind is still young though his eyes are old, so old. You could scarce believe how old they look. Something seems to move in back of them. You can see in them, if you look close, the agony of "many" peoples. You can see in them mirrored there an intricate Gethsemane.

Gerald putters with his boy's mind to find the cause like an old man tapping feebly with his cane to find the way about a room or down a street.

But he can reason only in the terms of loss because that is how all boys reason. They reason that way even though their eyes are ages old—ages old like Gerald's. "Mamma is gone," says Gerald. "I shot the man who shot her. His name was Roy Smith. They call him a deputy sheriff. I am glad I shot him. He killed my mother who never hurt anybody. My mother was good. She did not sell liquor like they say. She taught me to love God and obey the flag. Now when I hear the 'Star Spangled Banner' I no longer feel a thrill run up and down my back. The 'Star Spangled Banner' stands for law, which my mother told me to respect. But the law killed my mother."

Town Mourns With Boy
So old has Gerald grown in one short week that he can not cry. He went to his mother's funeral and the whole town of Aurora turned out to mourn with him. The funeral procession was tremendously long. People in the town were musing too. Gerald knows that his mother was killed for five dollars. That is the price that Boyd Fairweather, a private dry snooper, who doubled as an auto salesman, received for swearing out an affidavit that Gerald's dead mother, Mrs. Lillian DeKing, sold him a glass of moonshine.

When the dry gunmen came with their fierce armament of many guns and tear gas bombs to search the house, Gerald's father, Joseph DeKing, wouldn't let them. He said that the search warrant wasn't properly made out. Then the dry gun-

Stocks Quiet Down To State Of Lethargy

Market Yesterday Is Dullest Period Since December 15

Operations Are Limited To Listless Contest Between Lesser Traders; Credit Stringency Expected.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer
NEW YORK, April 13. (AP)—The stock market quieted down to the point of lethargy today. Operations were limited to a listless contest between the lesser professional traders in control of the price trend, and the result was a draw. Only 1,363,090 shares changed hands, the smallest Saturday turnover since December 15.

Prices were highly irregular at the close, with the oils the only group showing consistent firmness.

As indicated by the Associated Press price indices, gains and losses were practically balanced at the close. Stringency Expected.

With the possibility of further money stringency early next week, with the mid-month shifting of balances, traders found no incentive to accumulate stocks. On the other hand, the promise of high industrial earnings for the first half of the year, held out by the extraordinarily high manufacturing activity, saved the market from any heavy liquidation, since the technical position has been improved by the recent weeding out of weak accounts.

The day's business news was meagre. American Telephone announced first quarter earnings of $40,647,079, or $3.15 per common share, as compared to $33,694,793 in the first quarter of last year. Curtiss Aero first quarter revenue, however, declined nearly 14 percent from the like period a year ago.

Specialties Feature.
Operators for the advance were largely restricted to specialties in which developments are pending.

United Aircraft, which jumped more than 10 points to a new peak yesterday on reports of high earnings by Pratt and Whitney, moved up about 3 points more to a new peak at 93. Stromberg Carborundum, included in the Ben-Jon combine, jumped points to a new top. Motor Products mounted 10 points to new high ground and Adams Express 14 points in small turnovers.

In the oils, Pan-American issues sold up about 3 points each to new tops. Levels and Richfield gained about 2 points.

U. S. Steel turned heavy in selling to be based on the belief that the new financing, announcement of which is expected next Tuesday, has been discounted, and that "selling on the good news" will be heavy. Copper was again under pressure, as a result of the drop in red metal prices. Cerro de Pasco touched a new 1929 low.

Foreign exchanges were quiet but firm. Sterling cables mounting to $4.85 1/2. Dutch Guilders were in fair demand. The German mark, however, eased on the announcement of the reparation demands.

General Trend Of Cotton Is Upward On Southern Mart
NEW ORLEANS, April 13. (AP)—Trading was fairly active on the cotton market today with general trend of prices upward in the face of realizing that developed on the bul-

Larger than expected consumption by domestic mills during March and prospects for unfavorable weather over the week-end were the stimulating factors but were offset by disappointing statistics from the British board of trade and the usual week-end profit taking. Liverpool cables also were considerably lower than due.

July, which closed yesterday at 19.67, advanced today to 19.98 and closed at 19.91 or four points net higher for the day. The general market closed steady at net gains of from two to eight points.

Profit taking and some selling on the British board of trade returns for March caused July to ease to 19.89 and October to 19.75. The dip attracted trade buying and induced covering by shorts owing to the unfavorable weather prospects for over the week-end and prices gradually rallied until July reached 19.98 and October 19.81 or 11 points up from the closing levels of the previous day.

July closed at 19.91, October 19.75 and May 19.85 two to five points net higher for the day while December showed 8 points up.

Port receipts 11,205; for season 8,921,402; last season 7,694,486. Exports 9,257; for season 6,847; last season 5,939,926. Port stock 1,577,581; last year 1,625,100. Combined ship board stocks at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 97,524; last year 121,918. Spot sales at Southern markets 7,751; last year 16,805.

TRAIN GRID SQUAD

BIG SPRING, April 13.—Training of a practically new football squad for next year will begin Monday, April 15, according to Bill Stephens, coach, who says that an early training is necessary due to the fact that he will be compelled to fill many gaps and train an entirely new backfield. Burma Barley, the unanimous selection for all-district center, last year, will be captain of the team.

Cotton Market Is Nervous Due To Weather Outlook

NEW YORK, April 13. (AP)—Nervousness over the weather outlook seemed to offset the influence of relatively easy Liverpool cables and cause considerable covering in cotton today. Prices worked up from 19.92@20.03 for July which closed at 19.99, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 4 to 9 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 5 points. A little selling on the unfavorable Liverpool showing was readily absorbed by week-end selling and the demand became a little more active after the call owing to news. It was feared that rains reported in the western belt would work eastward over the week-end, while the South, quite generally, is supposed to need a period of dry warm weather following the rains and showers reported earlier in the week.

The reports of the census bureau, placing domestic consumption of lint cotton at 632,808 bales for March compared with 598,098 for February and 581,325 for March last year, was within 6,000 bales of a recent forecast. The figures, however, being slightly above the forecast, may have contributed to the advance.

Trade interests were again buyers of near months while there was covering from other sources on the weather news. May sold up to 20.62 and December to 20.04 making net advances of about 8 to 11 points in the late trading, but the close was 2 or 3 points off under realizing.

The amount of cotton on ship-board awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 108,616 bales, against 87,776 last year and 188,228 two years ago.

Daily Markets

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 13. (AP)—Wheat traders went rough-shod today over anything concerning supply and demand, giving heed solely to farm relief doings at Washington. Prices for wheat made a decided advance as a result but late selling to realize profits on the bulge in the market led to a reaction as the day drew to an end. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 3-8c to 7-8c a bushel net higher. Corn finished at 5-8c decline to 1-2c gain, oats 1-4c off to 3-8c and 1-2c up and provisions a shade to 25c down.

MID-WESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, April 13. (AP)—United States Department of Agriculture—cattle trade around the 11-market circuit this week was featured by moderate to sharp price fluctuations influenced by liberal receipts on early sessions and curtailment of supplies on late days. Weak to lower prices prevailed at most points early in the week on fed steers and yearlings but at the mid-week valuations had an upward trend and closing figures were generally firm to unevenly higher than a week ago. Slaughter cows were in seasonably light supply with demand relatively broad at materially higher prices. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 163,700 compared with 153,486 last week and 161,499 the corresponding period a year ago.

Local Coaches To Hold Recreation

Announcement was made last night of a School of Playground Recreation which will open May 27. Tech under the supervision of Coaches Victor Payne and Del Morgan of Tech and Lubbock High school.

Beginning on the above date and lasting through July 1, this training school for youths between the ages of 6 and 16 will be open to all boys of the South Plains section who are able to be in Lubbock during that time.

A complete round of physical education is planned for those entering the school under these well-known athletic coaches. In addition to the regular instruction in swimming, gymnastics and games, classes in basketball, track and football will be given.

The program arranged calls for swimming classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons. This will be held at the city pool. All other classes will be held at the college.

Those who want instruction in basketball, track and football can get these on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week. On the mornings of Monday, Wednesday and Friday, gymnastics and games will be given.

A nominal fee will be charged members of the classes, Mr. Morgan said last night.

Texas A. & M. Halts Winning Streak of Steer Nine But Lose Night Cap to Drop Back to Second

AUSTIN, April 13.—(AP)—After bats had been silenced in the opening contest through the stellar pitching of Wendt, the Texas Longhorns hit three Farmer moundmen hard in the second game of a bargain bill here today to win, 7-3. While Wendt was turning the Steers away from the plate in the opening, his mates succeeded in solving Peeples for the two runs which meant victory.

As a result of the night cap triumph, Coach Billy Disch's team jumped once more into the Southwest Conference baseball leadership with seven triumphs and one loss to their credit.

We Want Lubbock

to have an

AIRPORT

Highways of the air, the future channels of commerce, already are being laid out throughout the nation. Airways will soon attain a measure of importance comparable to that now held by the railroads. Wide-awake cities everywhere are wasting no time in insuring their inclusion upon air routes, actual and projected.

The vast distances in Texas make air transportation of especial value in this state. Already dozens of express and passenger lines are in operation. Dozens more are contemplated. The routes are mapped according to airport facilities afforded in the towns through which they pass. The city without an adequate landing field is generally passed by.

An airport means air lines. It means swift express, mail and passenger service. It means that the city in which it is located will be stamped as one where progress is paramount.

Remember the days when railroads first came to West Texas. Villages which were wide awake secured them. Today these villages are bustling cities. The hamlets who let the railroads pass them by are still hamlets.

Let's have an airport in Lubbock.

OWNER'S RESPONSIBLE
NEW ORLEANS.—The court of appeals here recently made a ruling that accidents suffered by an automobile, rented to a drunken man by drive-it-yourself companies, were directly responsible to the owner of the car. It is the company's fault, the court ruled, because "one who entrusts to incompetent hands a dangerous agency is responsible for the mischief due to the incompetent operation of the machine."

Cause Big Trouble
NEW ORLEANS, April 13. (AP)—
The vicious effect of nagging parents on their children and home and educational subjects were discussed today at the final session of the American Association of University of Women.
A discussion in the conference which started out with the personal adjustments of young people as its subject ended in a warm exchange of views on "Parents as a Menace." Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott, clinical psychologist for the Judge Baker Foundation, Boston, led.
"Over one-half of the unhappy misfit youngsters in the world have their parents to blame for it," said Mrs. Abbott. "This doesn't mean the parents are neglectful. What happens so often is the kind of training the parents had in their youth is reacting in them and making them behave badly to their own children.
It is a vicious circle."
The dominant, the nagging, and the over-ambitious parents, the latter who "insist on sending their sons and daughters to college whether they are fit for it or not," should mend their ways, Mrs. Abbott declared.

International Forgeries Clear Up

Mystery Which Brought Investigation by U. S. Senate Is Slowly But Surely Undaveling In Berlin

BY RUBY JEIL
Staff Correspondent for Central Press

BERLIN, Germany, April 13. — "In America it would be called a 'racket.' Here, where Broadway alone has not reached out its tentacles, it is termed a false document factory — 'the most modern in the world,' one newspaper labeled it.

Racket or factory, call it what you will, its days of prosperity were ended with the arrest of Vladimir Orloff and Michael Sumarokoff, formerly citizens of Russia.

Two Americans are involved in the story of Orloff's factory, for it was Orloff who was the leader, while his chief assistant, first shrewd, struggled along. The first was William E. Borah of the United States senate. It was an attempt on the part of Orloff and Sumarokoff to involve him again in a compromising situation with the soviet government — an attempt hinging onto the first one, exposed in the United States senate — that led to the Russian's arrest.

Newspapers Prove Detective. The second American, Hubert Benfro Knickerbocker, Berlin correspondent for a New York newspaper, was largely responsible for the arrest. Offered four documents purporting to prove that Borah accepted a bribe of $100,000 from the soviet government, Knickerbocker carried on negotiations with Sumarokoff with two assistants, who were released for lack of sufficient evidence.

The two were Baron Sergey Kuester, who served as the go-between in the negotiations during which Sumarokoff offered Knickerbocker four documents for $5,000, and Gertrude Duemiller, Sumarokoff's fiancée, who often participated in the conferences and always had much to say. She is a German, big blond woman; Kuester, like Orloff and Sumarokoff, is a Russian expatriate.

Unique "Documents." In Berlin, where the police are familiar with the forged documents, "these documents are considered unique. They constitute a forgery within a forgery. The original forgery — which Orloff denies perpetrating but with which Sumarokoff, who turned state's evidence, agreed — was exposed last January in the United States senate.

At that time an investigation committee headed by Senator Davis A. Reed of Pennsylvania made a report branding as "crude forgeries" letters and receipts which purported to prove that Senator Borah accepted $100,000 from the soviet government. The investigation did not, however, discover the source of the forged documents.

The new forgeries give the case a unique angle. They set out to show that "what you Americans would describe as a hard-boiled egg." His history is traced back to the "St. Petersburg of the pre-war days, where he was a magistrate for the "okhrana," the imperial secret police. It grew on through similar but higher offices in the war, until revolution broke out the Romanoffs and the accessories of their regime.

An opportunist then as later, Orloff joined the Bolshevik forces as an investigator for their "special agents." As such, he was offered, however, he escaped out of Russia and won his way into the grace of Czarist Russia by explaining, successfully, that he had been forced into co-operation with the Bolsheviks.

There is one more chapter of known history. This concerns his position as "chief of counter espionage" in Berlin for Denikin while his army threatened Moscow, the collapse of Denikin's schemes, and Orloff's position as a result — no job, no evident source of income.

Yet from this time on the Russian became steadily more prosperous. And now he awaits the next chapter.

What this will be cannot be foretold. In Germany the laws covering libels provide for no redress unless the libeled party is damaged financially. But never before have persons of the political standing of Senators Borah and Norris been involved in such a case. Should they display an active interest in the punishment of Orloff and Sumarokoff, it is possible that steps would be taken to change the law.

As matters stand now, the Russians are held on charges of fraud and burglary, based on a complaint of Knickerbocker. The fraud charge is based on the fact that Sumarokoff offered for sale to Knickerbocker's newspaper documents which he guaranteed authentic but which now have been proved false, by his own confession.

The burglary charge is the result of a raid on Knickerbocker's office the night that Sumarokoff arranged for the first meeting but broke the engagement. There is little hope of proving this charge, as it is based only on circumstantial evidence.

There are believed to be two possibilities of punishment under the present law. The first is expulsion from Prussia, which would inconvenience the Russians to the extent of forcing them to move, perhaps as far as Bavaria, a southern German state. The other is deportation.

Vladimir Orloff, top, and Michael Sumarokoff, below

This would be equal to a death sentence, as the soviet government would certainly arrest them and probably punish them with death, according to Berlin observers.

Plans are now being made to make the best organized pep squad not only that Lubbock High has ever had but so good that it will be recognized as being one of the best in the state. A special committee was sent to interview Superintendent Duncan the past Tuesday. It is not known, "just yet," if the pep squad will be admitted into the games free, how many the squad will consist of, or what the uniforms will be, but Superintendent Duncan seems to be as interested as the pep squad members, themselves, and with the cooperation of the faculty and the school as a whole, the Westerner pep squad promises to be all that is hoped for. The committee, Mildred Price, Maxine Clark, Francis Gunn, Louise Lawson, Vivian Doss, Rob O'Hair, Homer Hall and C. J. Henson will have another meeting with Mr. Duncan one day next week.

South Plains Boosters To Invade Oklahoma Tuesday

Lubbock To Have Pullman Car For Soonerland Trip

Train Will Run Over Lines of Q. A. & P. to Oklahoma City; Will Work to Draw Frisco to Lubbock.

A THREE-FOLD achievement will be obtained this week when 25 or more Lubbock leaders journey aboard the special excursion train of the Quanah, Acme and Pacific, from Floydada to Oklahoma City.

The most momentous objective of the trip is the probable urge accumulating from Lubbock and cities on the Q. A. and P. to the Frisco railway, of which this road is a subsidiary to extend its line from Floydada to Lubbock—and beyond, if that is the company's plan.

That the Frisco is planning on building through this city on its way into New Mexico, and across that state to El Paso, has long been rumored and wished for. Not long ago this newspaper carried a story from Lovington, N. M., in which it was stated the Frisco had surveying crews in that vicinity, said there to be working on a route with El Paso as final objective.

Latest rumor to come to life here is to the effect that the Frisco's original application, when building the Q. A. and P. from Oklahoma City to Quanah, included a clause that stipulated its route all the way to El Paso. And it is said, further, that the road's permit grants it the right to build that far.

At any rate, Lubbock would like to see the road build from Floydada to this city.

The second achievement will be the cementing of goodwill among the towns along the way from Floydada to Oklahoma, a great many of which are rightfully in the trade territory of "The Hub of the Plains." And trade is now coming from many of those cities. With the extension of the Q. A. and P. from Floydada to this city, the area will more and better be tied to this city's trade marts.

Then, in connection with this trip there will result a great deal of favorable publicity, by calling attention to the Oklahoma capital city to the great development of the South Plains. Mention of South Plains now calls for a mention of Lubbock, as well.

Frederick is Planned. At Oklahoma City the visitors will be entertained with a breakfast, a barbecue and a banquet. The train leaves Floydada at 9 p. m. Tuesday night, April 16, arriving in Oklahoma City at 7:30 a. m. and departing at 10 p. m. for arrival back at Floydada on the morning of Thursday, April 18, at 7 a. m.

The third achievement will be somewhat of a side issue from railroading. Many of the towns along this road are also located upon the Carlsbad Caverns Highway. Lubbock, as a major point on this highway, which runs from Oklahoma City to Carlsbad, N. M., and to El Paso, provides in distance an ideal stop-over point for tourists driving from Oklahoma City to the caverns.

Tourist travel is coming to be recognized by Lubbock business men as one of the greatest cash crops to be had. Hundreds of cities, that have long been on famous highways, are today realizing "trade from tourists" as a regular source of big income to its business interests.

Way Being Marked. The Carlsbad Caverns highway is now being marked, starting at Oklahoma City. There it connects with a number of trans-continental highways that lead to centers in the

Five Hundred Attend Meet of Lubbock Farm Bureau at Acuff Friday Night

Now They're Gone Feathered Visitors Fly Far Away

Somewhere, sometime and for some reason, yet, undefined, some poet penned the following lines:

"A birdie with a yellow bill Hopped upon my window-sill, Cocked his shining eyes and said 'Ain't you 'shamed, you sleepy head!'"

The rhyme-story is an old one, perhaps, but never-the-less it has had its repetition in Lubbock—not with one bird as the principal actor but instead, with two. Now these birds have flown to other fields and the subject of their fabled remarks is looking longingly, but in vain, for their return.

For a long time—for a month or two, to be more or less exact—two pigeons, evidently mates, made it a part of their daily practice to bill and coo upon a window-sill just outside the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Caylor, who live on 29th street, in O'Neill Terrace.

So regular were they about their visits that Mrs. Caylor became attached to them and watched for them every morning.

Afraid to feed them, or speak to them in case they might become frightened and fly away never to return, Mrs. Caylor contented herself with surreptitious peeps at her feathered visitors.

But of late they have been conspicuous by their absence. No more do they bill and coo a "good morning" on the Caylor window sill.

And Mrs. Caylor, who learned to think of them as being in the family—uses them. She'd like to have them come home.

north and east, over which great floods of tourists now are traveling. As soon as the cavern route is marked and advertised, much of the travel now being directed from Oklahoma City by way of Amarillo and Fort Worth will be sent through Lubbock. This route cuts off several hundred miles and the highway is in fair condition at this time, with much improvement being done at many points on it.

Oklahoma City business interests are interested in the South Plains, because of the distance affording them a means of competing with Fort Worth and Dallas wholesalers and jobbers. With the Frisco extension constructed to this city, Oklahoma City will become a factor in Lubbock's trade life, as it has in that of every city between it and Floydada. And, following the trip this week, the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce will run an excursion to Floydada, where they will detain and come to Lubbock for a goodwill visit with us.

Tahoka Planning District Meeting West Texas C-C.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal) TAHOKA, April 13—Charles P. Miller, representative of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, was here two days this week getting data on the South Plains District Chamber of Commerce convention which is to be held here on April 24th. He reported that everything was in line shape for the largest convention ever to be held on the South Plains.

Nelson, county attorney of Lynn county will deliver the welcome address to which M. C. Painter, secretary of the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce, will respond.

The well known male quartet from the Texas Technological college will appear on the morning program. Other important speakers of the morning will be Judge J. D. Hamilton, of Farwell, A. M. Bourland, veteran president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and R. A. Baldwin, of Slaton.

Wm. A. Wilson, secretary of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce, will be toastmaster at the luncheon which will be held in the Connolly building. The afternoon program will consist of music by the West Texas State Teachers' college and talks by Rev. Hamilton Wright, Judge Gordon McGuire, of Lamesa, Max Bentley, of Abilene, and representatives from all the visiting towns.

Their Feet Itch Tech Students To Hit Open Road

Approximately 500 attended the Lubbock County Farm Bureau association monthly meeting held in the community clubhouse at Acuff, fifteen miles east of here, Friday night.

Dr. E. O. Ellsworth, of Tech college, was the principal speaker on the program. In his address on the subject of "Community Spirit," he stressed the importance of individual effort in developing a community pride. Improving the home and keeping the boys and girls in a community were given as the predominant means of developing a worth while pride in a community.

Orchestra Plays. The Lubbock High School orchestra, under the direction of James W. Crowley, furnished the music for the occasion. The opening address was made by George Cooper, vice-president of the county association.

Other numbers on the program included: song by the Acuff high grade girls; reading, Mary Halliwell; Spanish play and drill by the Acuff Spanish class; telephone stunt, kitchen orchestra by the home demonstration club under the direction of Miss Billie Nell Pirtle; "Dairy Cow," by Lee E. Witt, and a stunt by the 4-H club boys.

Dixie cups and cake was served to the crowd. Entering from the four doors at a signal of the orchestra, ten club girls served the entire crowd in a very short time.

Miss Louise Baird, Lubbock county home demonstration agent, helped arrange the program. The program committee was composed of Mrs. Douglas Pounds and Mrs. F. F. Reiver.

Steady Growth Is Mirrored In City By Local Realtor

Records of Chas. F. O'Neill Show Remarkable Number of New Residences Erected in Lubbock.

PROOF of the steady growth of the residential sections of Lubbock may be obtained in a glance at the records in the office of Charles F. O'Neill, local realtor, who has had charge of the promotion of six additions here during the past four years.

In 1925, only one major addition to the townsite comprised the residential district of the city. There were several additions but no houses of any number were built of them. Today there are a score or more of additions to the city which are being filled with new houses every day.

Elwood addition, containing 522 lots, was offered for sale to the public in 1925 by Mr. O'Neill. The first house was built in July, 1925. Today the addition contains 203 houses, built or under construction. This makes the addition approximately 40 per cent built up.

New Homes Blossom. The first house was built in Highland Heights addition in August of 1926. Two hundred and thirty-seven lots were offered for sale. Today, 116 of those lots are covered by homes, either built or being built. This is practically fifty per cent of the area.

O'Neill Terrace and Annex was thrown open to the public in 1928 during May. Almost a year later, 28 new homes in the $10,000 class grace the district.

In these four additions alone, there are 347 new residences added to the city's wealth. Accurate check on the other additions is not available but Overton, McCrummen, Summer Hill, Highland Park, Merrill & Roberts, and others have been building up as rapidly.

Brick Is Favored. Ninety-five per cent of Lubbock's new homes are being built of brick construction. Their average cost will be approximately $5,000, making an average tax payment into the city and school district of approximately $50.

Not only are new homes being constructed but all the modern conveniences are being placed at their disposal. Lights, water, sewer and gas may be found in them all with paving and sidewalks going down as rapidly as possible.

Mr. O'Neill, a close observer of the city's growth, states that the year 1929 is destined to be the city's best. Having been in the realty game since 1906, promoting additions to cities in various points in Texas and California, his judgment might be taken as rather fairly accurate. He states that he has yet to see any town with such a steady growth in its residence districts as Lubbock.

Little Things In Frocks Determine Styles This Year

Accessories Inspiration In Creation of Smart Dress Or Hat And Make Them Gay and New for Summer

BY BETTY SCHUYLER

NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, April 13.—It is the little by little that chic is built this year, judging from the smart sights one sees in the right places now.

Sometimes a gay flower seems the inspiration of a diaphanous tulle frock for a summer evening; again a jeweled pin determines the shape of a hat or a hand-work piece of embroidery is the style of a frock.

Again it is by intricate tucking, seaming, banding or hand-work a delicately feminine and altogether charming costume achieves its beauty.

The little touches that brighten up the scenes are noticeably gay and new. Modernistic blouses, new jewelry, shoes that are different, jabots, scarfs, flowers and purses all are correct only when they contribute some definite note of gaiety or beauty to a costume.

Theresa Griswold, I notice, is one of the women preferring jewelry to gold in jewelry.

She wears a stunning double necklace of moderate sized silver beads with single silver beads for earrings. Examining some beautiful new luncheon clothes in a Madison avenue shop the other day, Mrs. Griswold pulled off a cute new glove, a slip-on of off-white suede with its wrist fringed. The Countess Alphonso Villa wears what might easily be a crown jewel for a brilliant sapphire and diamond ornament in a black hat.

Fannie Moore and Mrs. De Forest Alexander, lunching at Marguerite's, had many style touches between them. Fannie's dark blue suede pumps had a handsome pair of cut-steel buckles; in old Colonel style, a gay little necktie was a flower pot of white gold with real colorful jewels for its flowers, and a beautiful cross-fox fur Mrs. Alexander wore one earring of a pink pearl with a single strand of the same stop of a stunning pink beige satin blouse with simple round neck. Her kasha skirt had a pleated flounce for the last 12 inches of a tight princess line.

Mrs. Molla Mallory, the famous tennis player, is one to sponsor silk gingham for blouses. She wore a gay red and white one with a blue suit one day recently.

Marjorie Oelrichs is indulging appreciation of flowers. I have seen her in at least three different.

Freshman Queen Deluged With Letters After Picture Is Published; One Youth Asks Return of Stamp

BY MARGARET TURNER

Avalanche-Journal Staff

HAVE you ever thought how nice it would be if your picture was syndicated and people from all corners of the United States would gaze upon your fair countenance and marvel at the accomplishment that had merited its being printed? If such an experience was yours that it would give "the thrill that comes once in a life-time." Of course you have, and Irene Friska, queen of the freshman class of Texas Tech college, has had the experience of seeing her picture published in papers both far and near.

"It seemed so queer to me that my picture would go all over America," said the pretty co-ed. "Of course I realize that it is an honor for such a thing to happen but it meant much more to me that my class honored me by choosing me for its queen." Miss Friska, who is quite lovely, being much on the quiet side, is a very modest girl.

When her picture was seen in the local papers her classmates asked her how it felt to see herself in the paper and if she wasn't "stuck-up" over the fact.

"Didn't know to act," she said. "I did not know exactly how to act over the situation," she laughed, "but I decided to continue acting as I had before even if it was such a novel experience."

The freshman queen has been deluged with letters from college students, varying from North Carolina to Georgia, Florida, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Most of the letters are quite flattering in their appraisal of her striking beauty. "I shouldn't wonder why you are the most popular girl in your college," said one. While another assured her of his devotion to her, if she thought she could ever become interested in him.

Several of the epistles were sent by air-mail, while one of the boys asked that she return his envelope as he was a stamp collector.

For some unaccountable reason the young men have enclosed Miss Friska's picture clipped from the papers with the name and date. One enterprising youth said that he was sure that she wanted the picture more than he did, but he would appropriate another picture at an early date.

A letter recently received by Miss Friska is from the representative of a song publishing house congratulating her on her ability to write a song, and advising her as to the promotion of her melodies in the future. "I couldn't imagine what he was talking about," said Irene, "because I cannot sing a note and have never given song writing a thought."

New Volumes Are Received Here By County Librarian

Interesting Fiction and Variety of Non-Fiction Added to Library Stacks Recently.

Copies of new fiction and non-fiction have been received during the last two weeks in the county library and are available for patrons of that institution, according to Mrs. Lyster Armstrong, acting librarian.

She has prepared brief reviews of the books along with the lists.

The new fiction received includes "Flutes of Shanghai" by Milton; "Blades" by George Barr McCutcheon; "Another Part of the Wood" by Denis Mackail; "Grey Mack" by Wentworth; "Parson of Panamint" by Peter B. Kyne; "Devil and the Deep Sea" by Elizabeth Jordan; "Good Gestes" by Wren; "The Bishop Murder Case" by S. S. van Dine.

Reviews Follow

The non-fiction and brief reviews are as follows:

"John Brown's Body" by Bennett. This is a very fine achievement and unusual. It combines qualities of heart-felt patriotism, deep glowing humanity and sympathy, and excellent skill in telling a story which holds the attention to the very end.

"The World Does Move" by Booth Tarkington. If you enjoyed life thirty years ago, if you sometimes sigh as you think of the good old Gay Nineties—this jolly, whimsical, semi-autobiographical chronicle of Booth Tarkington's life in the book to sit down with tonight.

"The Great Horn Spoon" by Eugene Wright, Frederick O'Brien, author of "White Shadows in the South Seas" says of this book: "A travel book in a thousand. I envy the author his experiences and his marvelous expression of them."

"The Indians of the Enchanted Desert" by Leo Crane. In this extraordinary book Leo Crane describes the Mogul reservation of the Southwest, contained nomad Navajos, and those most picturesque mesa dwellers, the Hopis, whose settlements are among the oldest American communities.

"The Angel that Troubled the Waters" by Thornton Wilder who wrote "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." Three minutes plays the author is to let them. The feeling for the inevitable word is here; a delicate and mystic imagination strained through the medium of a sensitive and assured pen.

"Back Trailers from the Middle Border" by Hamlin Garland. As the first earlier Middle Border books chronicled the lives of Mr. Garland's pioneer forebears and his own youth in the west so this is an account, delightfully reminiscent, of this later pioneering in the East.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Allene Sumner

The Easter bonnet of our grandmothers and even of our mothers was a real event; it was not even an annual event, for here's wagering that infinitely more of last generation's women had new spring hats only every second or third year rather than every spring, tra la.

The writing has been on the walls for some time, however; namely, that an Easter hat is not even a soupcon in the life of today's average woman. Did you notice the papers just before this Easter? Did you notice that every little "do" indeed was made about "the new Easter outfit"?

To be sure, some mention was made of the fact that Milady might be interested in a new "spring" outfit, but it was as evident as whiskers on a man's face that the strawberry shortcake that even the merchants realize that clothes are no longer a seasonal event to the average woman, but that she buys them as she needs or wants them.

CHANGING TIMES

Which is exactly why no one need feel sorry for the merchant, for he is doing business in an age when most any one woman can have a new hat most any time she really needs it, without waiting for Easter or Whit Sunday or St. Swithin's Day or Halloween.

Easter clothes, bought for Easter, per se, are under a ban, anyway, by a certain type of woman, of whom there are many, who feel that a religious festival is no occasion for the display of new togs.

Others not so squeamish have a firm conviction that the price tags take a decided tumble after Easter, just as they do after New Year's, and it always rains, anyway, they reason, "so why buy clothes for Easter?"

And yet, the fashion parade continues to clog the avenues of our bigger cities where they are the very people who have the spending habit more than in the smaller towns, where they are many, who feel that a religious festival is no occasion for the display of new togs.

Being on the subject of style and clothes, it is increasingly evident that many and frequent clothes are more important to the average woman and girl of today than "good materials" and things that will "last."

Our mothers bought their clothes with an eye to wearing qualities. They boasted of their silks that would "stand alone."

Today's woman is not nearly so interested in good material and neat seams as in the flair and chic of her garments. She wants to be in the mode, and the only way to do that is to wear one outfit hard and be ready for the next style.

There is a phenomenal speeding up of fashion these days. Paris out "the latest" every day. That "latest" is radioed over the world. It is possible for Mrs. Main Street to see Paris' latest creation a day or so after its origination. How it's all going to end, nobody knows.

Perhaps the very hectic speed will defer its own end. Women will decide that they just can't keep up the pace and be quite content to wear "any old thing." But it's one thing to wear "any old thing" from choice, and another because the "butter and egg money" couldn't cover the price.

Humane Education To Be Furthered In Programs Fostered By Teachers And Parents In Schools This Week

Mrs. Emanuel Toomin, State Chairman, Tells General Aim of Humane Education Department of P.T.A.

The fifteenth annual "Be Kind to Animal Week" will be observed this year April 14-20. Mrs. Emanuel Toomin, state chairman humane education, Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, has called upon the 2,000 parent-Teacher associations to observe suitably the occasion because of the happiness humane treatment of all living things brings and because of the character development Humane Education affords.

Mrs. Toomin says:
"For general information and discussion of those who are under the impression that humane work constitutes all the humane work for a period of 365 days, we here wish to state that humane work can no more take care of daily acts of kindness and thoughtfulness and consideration and justice and mercy than Health Week does of the health of the individual, the community, the nation, no more than Safety Week or Fire Prevention Week takes care of all they mean to the community."

"Certainly more humane methods of slaughtering food animals means daily application. Care of burden-bearing animals, such as the horse, must needs take daily attention; as also do all domestic animals. More humane methods of trapping fur-bearing animals means application under all conditions. Kindness and consideration of our fellow-men also means always and under all circumstances. The right attitude to those not of our blood, of our kind, our color, our creed, our country must be maintained under all circumstances, all conditions, again always! The right of man and beast to pursue life and happiness unmolested, certainly means a daily observance. To interfere with exploitation of helpless childhood and dependent beast takes daily interest.

"For educational purposes and psychological effect due to concerted thought and action, the government, school authorities and social welfare workers are designating certain weeks in the calendar for special observance. The week, commencing Sunday April 14, and continuing through Saturday the 20th, is turned to public attention and understanding of the full purpose of the week, which is approved by the President of our country, endorsed by educational leaders, and encouraged by leaders in humane thought.

"Program as outlined by your state chairman humane education was given in the March Parent-Teacher. Should you desire another copy of this program write to the state office. Annual reports must be sent to your state chairman before April 15. Plans for humane week observance may be included in report."

Keynote of Beauty Is Make-Up of Dressing Table

EDITOR'S NOTE: How the skin must be given different treatment in different climates is described in a series of seven articles which Ruth Etting, star of Ziegfeld's "Whoo-pee" has written for Avalanche-Journal and NEA Service. The first article follows.

BY RUTH ETTING

The search for beauty—like charity—should begin at home. If environment is at all responsible for our mental and moral traits, then surely it must have some bearing on our physical attainments as well.
A woman's boudoir is her sanctuary. To it she entrusts all her beauty secrets. The more attractive she makes it, the greater its stimulus can be.

Whether she has a private dressing room in a fourteen-room house, a simple bed room in a modern apartment, or a tiny, furnished room in a boarding house, she can reserve one corner of that room for a dressing table. This should be as dainty and femininely alluring as possible—and fitted with the essentials she will need, from time to time, for her skin culture.

Reminders of Beauty Different skin textures require different treatments. There are very few women, however, who do not use a delicate cream at some time or other, face powder, rouge, and toilet water. If your dressing table is fitted with these toilet requisites attractively packaged, it is a constant reminder for you to be satisfied, take stock of your assets—and to give your skin the "toning up" that it requires at frequent intervals.

Indeed, the very fact that you are handling delicately scented, pure products in an atmosphere of beauty, will give you a feeling of beauty, that will be reflected in your heightened color and eye lustre.
Classify Your Skin
Your next step in search of skin beauty is to consider whether or not your skin may be catalogued as oily, velvet or dry. Whether the water in your city is hard or soft—and what the climatic conditions are.
I will discuss some of these climatic effects on the complexion in future articles.

Miss Ethel Travis, teacher in the Morton school, is visiting here during the week-end.

Delegates to PTA Meet In Floydada Tell Of Sessions

Instructive Speakers Are Heard At Annual Meeting of Fourteenth District
P. T. A. Last Week

In addition to the district president, Mrs. J. E. Grigs, there were fourteen Lubbock women who attended the Fourteenth P. T. A. district meeting in three-day session in Floydada last week. These women drove over for the second day of the conference, and according to several who were asked regarding the "Convention Highlights", the sessions were highly instructive and entertaining.

Mrs. W. W. Royalty, president-elect of the Lubbock P. T. A. Council, said, "We heard the feature speaker of the Tuesday morning's program, Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith, state president, who said that P. T.
A. members needed more information on matters of state legislation and the use and abuse of the vote. Mrs. F. T. Collins, president of the seventh district of federated clubs, spoke on the closer uniting of the P. T. A. and federated juvs."

Reports by officers and delegates were heard in the afternoon and the Lubbock schools were well represented. In the report from the Dupre P. T. A. given by Mrs. I. A.
White, the plan of feeding the undernourished children in the school which is a part of the work being done by the local club, created much interest and was the subject of much discussion. Mrs. White also told of the "parents' night" program in which patrons of the school attended class and recited under the daily routine of classwork just as do their children.

For the first meeting of the fourteenth district, since the organization meeting held in Lubbock last year at this time, I consider it was well attended and enthusiastic," Mrs. Royalty said.

Must Study Legislation

Mrs. E. B. Wheelock, K. Carter president-elect, said, "Mrs. Smith our state P. T. A. president, in her address stressed the need for women to study the state legislative program and to let our representatives know how we vote. She was the main speaker on the convention program Tuesday. Cooperation between P. T.
A. and federation members was stressed by Mrs. Collins, who stated that both organizations were primarily working for the betterment of humanity at large. Reports were given from over the district, in the afternoon, and the meeting generally was full of interest."

"Since we were there but the one day," explained Mrs. A. H. Leidigh, president-elect for the Senior High P. T. A., we could hardly give a fair report on the convention's three-day session.

Programs Enjoyable

"We enjoyed what we heard of the morning addresses. A snappy program was rendered during the Clover-Leaf luncheon given in the dining room of the First Baptist church in which the conference was held. This program consisted of humorous readings and musical selections and also included numbers by the Floydada Kindergarten orchestra. For the tea given the convention members and delegates that afternoon, music was furnished by an orchestra. We found the Floydada women cordial hostesses."

According to Mrs. G. T. Scales, district publicity chairman, "I enjoyed Mrs. Collins address on 'What Club Work Means to the Women of Today,' also the various group meetings conducted by the state and district officers. The convention was very good for a new district."

Praises Orgatone For Good It Did

"I'm Glad to endorse It So That Others May Know What It Relieved Me" Says Lubbock Mechanic.

"I was just going down hill and kept getting weaker and my health was gradually leaving me," said Frank J. Null, of 415 Avenue H, Lubbock, Texas, in a conversation with the Orgatone representative.
"I had suffered," he continued, "with stomach trouble and indigestion for four long years, until I was getting in such a bad condition I could hardly stand it. Everything I would eat hurt me and the pains in my stomach and chest were just awful. I also had intense pains that would run up and down my back, caused from the bad condition of my kidneys. At times, the pains in my abdomen from indigestion would hurt me so I could hardly stand it. Every time I ate anything I would suffer hours after eating, and gas formed on my stomach until I could hardly get my breath. I certainly was in a terrible fix and just kept getting worse in spite of all I could do, until I began taking Orgatone."
"Orgatone is not like any other medicine I ever took. It seemed to soothe my stomach and give me an appetite in just a few days. I have just finished my second bottle and don't have any more gas or indigestion. I eat anything I want, breathe easy and sleep fine every night and get up in the morning ready for my day's work, willing and ready to enjoy the day. All of those tired, worn out, listless feelings have disappeared and I'm glad to endorse Orgatone, so that others may know what relieved me, for Orgatone has restored my health after everything else had failed. I can't ever say too much for Orgatone."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowers Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out of town customers are being supplied by mail upon receipt of price, $1.25, for one bottle or $6.25 for six bottles.

Rev. H. L. Munster, Pastor
The Home Visitation revival which has been in progress at the First Methodist church has created considerable interest. The pastor will hold evangelistic service at the morning hour at which time quite a number of members will be received into the church. Most of these are adults, and many are coming in on profession of faith. The revival has not been of the ordinary preaching type, but has been conducted in a quiet, thoughtful manner in the homes connected with the church by personal interview. The service Sunday is the climax of the campaign. This will be a service never to be forgotten by those in attendance. Nearly a hundred names have been received this week for membership and these will be received at the morning hour, 11 a. m.
At the evening hour there will be a pageant given by the Sunday school officers. This is a very beautiful and impressive service. At the close the pastor will make some remarks relating to the Sunday school and the present campaign, of an evangelistic nature.

'Glorious Betsy' And 'Women They Talk About' Coming

Palace Program Features Pair Of Excellent Films

'Resurrection' Is To Be At Lyric First Part Of Week

THE PALACE has scheduled two splendid pictures for the week starting today, in keeping with the recently adopted program of offering a higher grade of entertainment to the patrons in Lubbock.

Starting today and running three days comes "Women They Talk About," a photoplay that makes good on all that the name suggests. It is a Warner Brothers production and Irene Rich and Audrey Ferris are the stars.

Beginning Wednesday, "Glorious Betsy," a film version of a famous stage play, is to rule on the Palace screen. Conrad Nagel and Dolores Costello headline it.

The Lyric comes out with a revival of one of the greatest pictures of recent years, "Resurrection." This film shows Dolores Del Rio in one of her greatest roles; the story is one vibrant with human interest, and the film has a universal appeal. Although a re-run, "Resurrection" is due to attract great crowds. It runs two days.

Appearance of Cyrena Van Gordon, prima donna of the Chicago Civic grand opera, at the Texas Tech gymnasium on Friday night is another high spot of the week's calendar.

Dolores Costello Wins New Laurels

"Glorious Betsy," which opens Wednesday at the Palace theater, Warner Bros. have a picture—that is as colorful and interesting a production as we have seen in many months.

Dolores Costello, who stars in this feature, is more beautiful than ever in the gorgeous costumes of the early nineteenth century, and as a dramatic actress she shows remarkable talent.

The story, generally well acted and ably directed, is the love affair between Jerome Bonaparte and Betsy Patterson of Baltimore which culminates in their marriage in spite of the opposition of Napoleon who was planning a marriage of another sort for his brother.

Women In Politics Is Theme Of Film

MAN'S domination of politics is being seriously threatened. Woman has invaded the senate, the house and the governor's chair. Now comes Irene Rich as a candidate for mayor. Those who profess to see in the new order of things the gradual rise of the male sex may take part in the fact that the popular Miss Rich is making her political bid in Warner Bros. film drama, "Women They Talk About."

The story presents Miss Rich fighting for election against the man she loves at the insistence of her father. A stirring political fight in which love laughs last is the result.

Audrey Ferris and William Collier, Jr., in the leading juvenile roles, head the supporting cast of "Women They Talk About," which Lloyd Bacon directed from a scenario by Robert Lord, adapted from an Anthony Coloway story. Others of note in the cast are Claude Gillingwater, Anders Randolph, Jack Sanborn and John Miljan.

La Roque, Del Rio In "Resurrection"

DRAMATIC power and physical bigness are both present in "Resurrection," film of Tolstoy's classic novel at the Lyric today. The star of the picture is Rod La Roque and the featured player is Dolores Del Rio. Edwin Carewe directed and United Artists release the feature.

Inspiration Pictures and Edwin Carewe have made a lavish production of Tolstoy's famous novel and with Rod La Roque and Dolores Del Rio perfectly cast and Count Ilia Tolstoy, son of the author of "Resurrection," adding Mr. Carewe, the entertainment values that have made the novel a perpetual best seller are all to be found in the picture.

Among the facts and figures are the names of the principals, Rod La Roque, star of "The Ten Commandments," "Feet of Clay," and "Gigolo," and Dolores Del Rio, the "Charmaine" of "What Price Glory" and the "Carmen" of that film. The novel, which has been translated into eleven languages and played on the stage in fourteen countries, has been read by countless millions.

Fairbanks Talks In 'Iron Mask'; To Be Shown Apr. 24

'Three Musketeers' Theme Features Cinema Here

ALL the world loves romance. In his newest United Artists Picture, "The Iron Mask," which comes to the Palace on April 28, Douglas Fairbanks embodies the romantic spirit of adventure and valor. Once more he is D'Artagnan, the dashing hero of Alexander Dumas' stories of seventeenth century France, as he was six years ago in his first picturization of the adventures of the four faithful friends, "The Three Musketeers." Again he rides with Athos, Porthos and Aramis through years of intrigue, war and love.

The first part of the picture takes place during the reign of Louis XIII, when the four musketeers would their sword in defense of their king and his infant son.

The time of the second part is twenty years later during the early period of the reign of the young Louis XIV. D'Artagnan and his companions are as valiant and loyal in their guardianship of the new king as they were of his father. D'Artagnan solves the mystery of the man in the iron mask, ousts the cardinal and his conspirators, restores the rightful Louis to his throne, and goes to his grave with the honor of the Marshal of France upon his breast.

Lovers of the Dumas novels will find that the players in this picturization of the stories admirably fit the brilliant Frenchman's descriptions of his characters. Athos, Porthos and Aramis are played by Leon Barry, Stanley J. Sandford and Gino Corrado, ideal types for the swashbuckling young musketeers. Nigel de Bruiler is the crafty, conspiring cardinal, and Lon Poff plays his fellow churchman Father Joseph Ulrich Haupt is cast as the villainous de Rochefort, and the two Louis, father and son, are portrayed by Rolfe Sedan and William Bakewell. Charles Stevens is Planchet, the faithful servant of D'Artagnan, and Henry Otto is Master of Wardrobe.

Marguerite de la Motte is once more Constance, to whom D'Artagnan gives the only love of his life, as she was in "The Three Musketeers."

'Looping the Loop' Comes April 21

"Looping the Loop" is the title of Paramount's latest importation of UFA's product, famous Continental producer, and will be at the Palace theater next week.

Heading the cast is Werner Kraus, perhaps the most outstanding motion picture star on the Continent today. Kraus had an important role in the picture "Variety."

'The Terror' First Photoplay For New Theater

"THE Terror" will be the initial Vitaphone offering of the bigger and better Lindsey Theater which will be formally opened to the public April 28.

With all of the Vitaphone equipment already installed, plans are underway for an elaborate opening program of this beautiful theater—the finest on the South Plains.

The Lindsey Theater has been closed for several months, having undergone a tremendous remodeling at a total cost of about $55,000. The theater has been completely remodeled and refurnished. It has been specially designed to most effectively present Vitaphone effects.

With the opening of the Lindsey Theater, it becomes the banner amusement house of the Lindsey Enterprises, and will at all times offer the newest and best in the way of motion picture production.

Embodied in this expansion program is a belief in the future growth of Lubbock and a belief in the drawing power of a modern up-to-date theater. Cliff C. Lindsey, manager of the Lindsey Enterprises, believes that a good motion picture theater will draw out-of-town patrons from a wide territory.

The new Lindsey will have an ice air cooling system. The seating capacity of the theater will be 978.

were acquired by Paramount and made into a full length all-talking production under the title of "The Doctor's Secret," and will be presented at the Palace next Sunday.

Operatic Star To Appear At College On Saturday Night

Cyrena Van Gordon Will Feature In Concert Here

THE outstanding musical feature of the year in Lubbock comes to the Tech gymnasium Saturday night when Cyrena Van Gordon, prima donna of the Chicago Civic Grand Opera company, and one of the outstanding singers of America today, appears in concert. The event is a Tech artist course number.

Operatic song-birds learn their roles in various ways. Some of them have coaches who sing the music to them note by note. Others have their accompanists play the music to them. Others pick out the music on the piano. A few, a very few, learn the music mentally.

Miss Van Gordon, the American mezzo-soprano of the Chicago company, is of this latter group. Before she ever sings a role, she learns it mentally. Every shading, every inflection of the voice, is visioned in her mind before she uses her mind on it. Thus, the voice itself is saved from mispent effort, and when she finally sings it, the music issues from her throat exactly as she wants it to.

Should Spare Voice

"I think the voice should be spared wherever possible," she says. "The life of a voice is shortened by over-use, and though a medium of vocalization may be necessary, yet too much use of the voice in exercises undoubtedly shortens the life of a voice. If I sing a performance one night, and keep silent the next day, then my voice is in top-notch condition for another performance the next night."

"That is why I learn the music mentally—it saves the voice from misuse. The piano is a great help in studying operatic scores. Those singers who do not play the piano do not get the symphonic background that is an invaluable help to a singer, and they can not know the scores of the operas thoroughly. A singer who knows only his own part is limited in his interpretations accordingly."

Miss Van Gordon studied piano before she realized that her voice had operatic possibilities in it. She was a student at the Cincinnati College of Music, and intended to become a concert pianist but her voice developed much more quickly than she became an opera and concert star instead of a pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Murray and daughter, Miss Fay Murray, were Idaho business visitors in this city Saturday.

Book By Famous Author Will Be Published Soon

Manuscript Was In Handwriting Of The Writer

A GREAT literary find is reported in the discovery of a hitherto unknown work, 50,000 words long, by Alexander Dumas.

It appears that Dumas wrote an account of his adventurous Italian journey in 1860 and stowed the script away. Now it is announced for publication this fall by O. Appleton and company. It is certain to be vital and amusing. The title will be "On Board the Emma" and Dumas' readers will find him in a most hilarious and picturesque mood. He tells of his adventures and misadventures with his yacht "Emma" and how he brought himself and just before he found himself participating in Garibaldi's struggle.

Mrs. Fiske, Still Good In Spite Of Years, Again Star Famed Comedian Scores New Hit On Broadway

NEW YORK, April 13.—One of Broadway's critical wags once commented that a dramatization of the telephone book would be amusing if Minnie Maddern Fiske played the leading role.

For there seems to be nothing that this greatest of our trouper can not turn into mirth and magic. She could play in anything and put it on anywhere. It has long seemed to me that a great deal of bunk has been passed about concerning this elegant actress. I have ready any number of articles in which the impression was given that Mrs. Fiske was allied with the "arty" and "little theaterish" things of the drama.

The fact is that she is a superb clown. In spite of years that even Fannie Ward might envy, Mrs. Fiske can romp about the stage with an elastic lean and vigor which remains one of the theatrical miracles.

She has the trouper's capacity for catching every laugh which a part affords. She revels in "fat" roles and never lets the remotest opportunity slip by. She keeps her audience watching her like a three-ring circus, fearful that they will miss something. She sees to it that they

Turns Of A Bookworm

Book News Notes For This Week

A FUREOR over selections of the Book-of-the-Month Club and the Literary Guild, fomented when John McRae, head of the E. P. Dutton Publishing House, took issue with the Club over its selection of outstanding volumes, enlivened literary news of the past week.

The contest rages merrily on, with McRae claiming "The Pathway," a volume of the month, far superior vanced by his house as the best to "The Cradle of the Deep," by Joan Lowell. The latter volume was the official selection of the month.

Even that demi-god of the American theater, Eugene O'Neill, now proves to be quite human by taking a complete fall from critical grace with his latest play, "Dynamo." Although his "massively impressive" "Strange Interlude" is running into its second year nearby, "Dynamo" already has faded from the New York theatrical scene.

Ernest Boyl, writing in The Bookman, calls the production of "Dynamo" the "most important recent event in the New York theater. It was important, not only because Mr. O'Neill is the foremost American dramatist of today, but also because of its reception at the hands of the critics, who were almost unanimous in rendering an adverse verdict."

Young college people who will and themselves out in the wide, wide world this June will enjoy reading Dickson Skinner's novel "Barbarian." With a great deal of honest and penetrating comment, it tells the story of a young man and his struggles to carve a place for himself in the modern business world. Stephen Winthrop, the hero, is a typical young college man when he leaves Princeton—but is the business career which make him a "Barbarian" also typical?

don't. And yet she never over-acts. I know of no young comedienne of our times who couldn't learn a great deal from watching her perform.

And because it never seems to make much difference what play she appears in, I come belatedly to the information that her immediate revival happens to be "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh" and that there is no more amusing comedy on Broadway.

Biography Once More Takes Lead In New Volumes

Henry Eighth, Man of Many Wives, Is Topic

HENRY VIII and William Jennings Bryan, Stendahl and John Ruskin, of such assortment are the new biographies.

Bluff King Hal and the Great Commander, perhaps, should not be mentioned in the same line, and they would not be, except that M. R. Womersley's "Bryan" and Francis Hackett's "personal history of a dyast and his wives" are published in the same week.

Silver-Tongued

Described as a biographical study of Bryan, Womersley's work is largely a detailed, critical account of an oratorical career that reflects the personality of the man whose voice, after moving multitudes, died away at Dayton, Tenn.

"Throughout his long career," writes Womersley, "Bryan never doubted for a moment that a Christian, American democrat was the greatest work of God."

Religion ran in his family. His father, Judge Silas Bryan, always opened court with prayer. And the son constantly drew from the Scriptures phrases with which to embellish his eloquence.

If Bryan was not "the peerless leader," if the armor of a righteousness failed him in the free silver cause, if he was a "figurehead secretary of state," he at least was not, Womersley thinks, a demagogue.

JUST TO SHAKE THE PRESIDENT'S HAND

Too much for Hoover. President Hoover is a strong man. He is said to be a friendly sort of fellow and likes to meet people, and mix with them. He has an idea when elected president of the United States that he would like to meet people, and announced that he would be Democratic in his attitude toward the people of the country, and would meet anyone who wanted to see him, however only a little more than a month has elapsed since he was put in the president's office, and he is fully convinced of his folly. His right hand was wrecked by the hand-shakers, and so much of his time was required to meet visitors that he was unable to take care of the duties of his office. As a result, word has been sent to the Senators and Congressmen that they must show more discretion and send fewer of their constituents to the White House with credentials entitling them to meet Mr. Hoover and squeeze his hand.

Mr. Hoover is not the first President who has found fault with the hand-shaking system. Several of his predecessors discovered that it was impossible to see everybody and keep up a pretense of being glad to see them. Ninety-eight and three-quarters per cent of those who call on the President and shake his hand with a fervor that sends pain to the very depths of his soul have no business with him, and go to the White House only to satisfy their curiosity and to have something to tell the folks back home when they get back to their jobs in the bank and the grocery store. Nobody realizes this more keenly than does the President himself, and if he declines to stand before a line of handshakers for an hour each day it is because he has common sense, and not because he is undemocratic and snobbish.

Our Presidents have a lot of hard work to do, and in order to do it they must conserve all the strength they have. Mr. Coolidge came out of office with fairly good health, but even he bears the marks of strenuous service. Mr. Hoover is entitled to a fair chance, and is to be congratulated because he has had the good judgment to place a limitation upon his hand-shaking.

One can scarcely hope to say anything new on the subject of friendship, for its requisites, desirability, amenities, and pitfalls have been set forth at length by writers down through the ages. Yet, one who has experienced its blessings cannot withhold an expression of gratitude. Nor can one who, in times of discouragement, misunderstanding, disappointment and sorrow has felt the comfort which comes, and goes, from friendship fail to hope that he may in turn express similar friendship to others in their time of need.

Associated with true friendship are some of the finest of qualities, such as steadfastness, fidelity, loyalty, respect, affection, trust, sympathy, and understanding. What more wonderful description of friendship could be given than Isaiah's words foretelling the coming of the Messiah, the friend of all mankind: "And a man shall be as a hiding place from the world, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." Who does not long to reflect the love which will enable him to be a friend to storm-tossed humanity?

AMERICAN YOUTHS

They talk about building more ships for defense against outward enemies! There are two ships we need within the nation itself—Citizenship and Statesmanship. A real republic is not governed by a small group, but by the service of each individual pulling together for the national good. It has taken woman seventy years to find her place in the community. She is now gradually finding her place in government and the future promises to see women as a figure in international affairs. Uncle Sam needs a wife to help him with the national house-keeping. On the young people of today depends the future of the republic. It is part of my campaign to give them an opportunity to play up to it. Youth has youth's rally in wartime! We still have the pioneer spirit in youth, and that spirit is an important today as it was when physical sacrifice was asked of the pioneer. We have our Lindberghs and our Amelia Earharts, who are more representative of American youth than the types criticized in the newspapers. The same spirit is exhibited among young people with regard to citizenship. I am working chiefly among high school boys and girls, and the response proves that even they want their opportunity to be of service.

ANONYMITY OF MAGAZINE ARTICLE
ATTACKING SENATE PROGRESSIVES
TENDS TO CAUSE LACK OF PUNCHBY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 13.—An anonymous attack loses a lot of its punch simply because of its anonymity.

The main thing lacking in "The Progressives of the Senate," which H. L. Mencken stars in the April issue of his magazine, The American Mercury is its author's signature.

But that one omission is a plenty. Probably the senate progressives dislike being called "a sorry bunch of weaklings and time servers" and a "small foremen and meanly gang of false leaders," which is what the article does call them—minus an exception or two.

However, they can afford to laugh it off with "Who says so?"

Such, in effect, is the answer which those of them who are in town do return to queries on the subject. It rather shuts off debate.

True, it is not very hard to guess who must have written the story—taking into account a few items like the suspect's known literary style, senatorial preferences and antipathies and past record of contributions to Mr. Mencken's magazine.

Still, this evidence is purely circumstantial. One author definitely identifies himself only as a Washington correspondent, and there are several hundred correspondents in Washington.

For this particular one to have signed his name as "The Progressives of the Senate" undoubtedly would have caused him considerably annoyance. Nevertheless, it is hard to justify on a man engaged in taking not shots with a new gun.

This chap shows prejudice in his marksmanship, too.

Of all the senate progressives, he spares Norris of Nebraska alone; while peppering Tom Walsh of Montana but lightly.

About Norris, he says: "There is nothing that is not inspiring, clean and noble." While Walsh, though "above question in personal honesty is strongly controlled by an arrogant and tactless feeling of superiority."

As far as the rest—Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Dill, Frazier, Howell, Johnson, LaFollette, Nye, Shipstead and Wheeler, in alphabetical order—there is little intellectual or moral fiber in any of them," according to our anonymous sharpshooter.

Now the fact of the matter is that approximately the same bloc of progressives had the necessary voting strength to wield the balance of power in the senate for six years, ending with congress' adjournment last March 4, and during the first two or three years of that time they did wield it and accomplished a great deal. More recently they have not pulled together so well. With no loss in numbers, they lost much of their influence.

They were a strong fighting body, while the elder Senator LaFollette lived. Since his death they have been leaderless.

By all good rights Senator Norris ought to have assumed command.

He failed to do it. He failed, of course, due to a lack of the right qualities in his make-up. It is not his fault that he lacks them, but neither is it Gerald P. Nye's or Lynn J. Frazier's or "Young Bob" LaFollette's fault that they are mediocre senators.

As our anonymous author says, Brookhart and Nye have pretty well forfeited their standing as progressives, and "old Bob" LaFollette would have kept them in line.

Shipstead would have been glad to follow the Norris banner.

So, probably, would all the others, save Borah—never a genuine liberal—and maybe H. Johnson—not as unreliable as the Idaho senator but none dependable either.

Anyway, the original nucleus would have stuck—without leadership.

But there was none, after "old Bob." The responsibility was Norris', and he fell down.

If anybody is to be blamed on account of temperamental deficiencies for which nature really was to blame, it ought to be the Nebraska—because, in him they were fatal to progressive-ism.

DOCTOR TELLS METHOD OF STORING VITAMINS IN COD LIVER OIL FOR HUMAN USE

Cod Liver Oil and Vitamins

C. Wants to know why cod liver oil contains vitamins, when the original source of vitamins is in the green plants, and the cod is a deep sea fish?

The cod stores up the vitamins in its liver, in a roundabout way. C. There are plenty of sea weeds and plants, known as algae, in the sea. On the fact, tiny creatures called plankton, floating on the upper stratum of the sea, eat these, and then they, in turn, are eaten by squids and mollusks, which, in turn, are eaten by the fishes, especially cod fish. So the vitamins of the sea plants are finally passed on to him.

Children, as a rule, don't like cod liver oil, and they do like cream. (I remember one mother wrote me that her baby was normal in every respect that it liked cod liver oil.) I understand that cod do like cod liver oil, and it is because now among some dairymen—I have read—do give cod liver oil to them in the winter. This increases the amount of cream and vitamins, especially A and D. So eventually, perhaps, we will give the cod liver oil to the cows and let the child get its vitamins from the cream.

"My mother is suffering from cancer of the upper lip, and the doctor I consulted about two months ago told me that owing to her advanced age—she is about 82—she can do nothing to relieve her. He said that his form of cancer is the least painful, but I know my mother suffers very much and she says the lumps in her lip are very sore. Some friends suggested home remedies to dry them up, but they do not seem to work. Is cancer listed among the communicable diseases?"

There is no home remedy that will dry up, or have any effect on cancer in any way, T., except, perhaps, to make it worse.

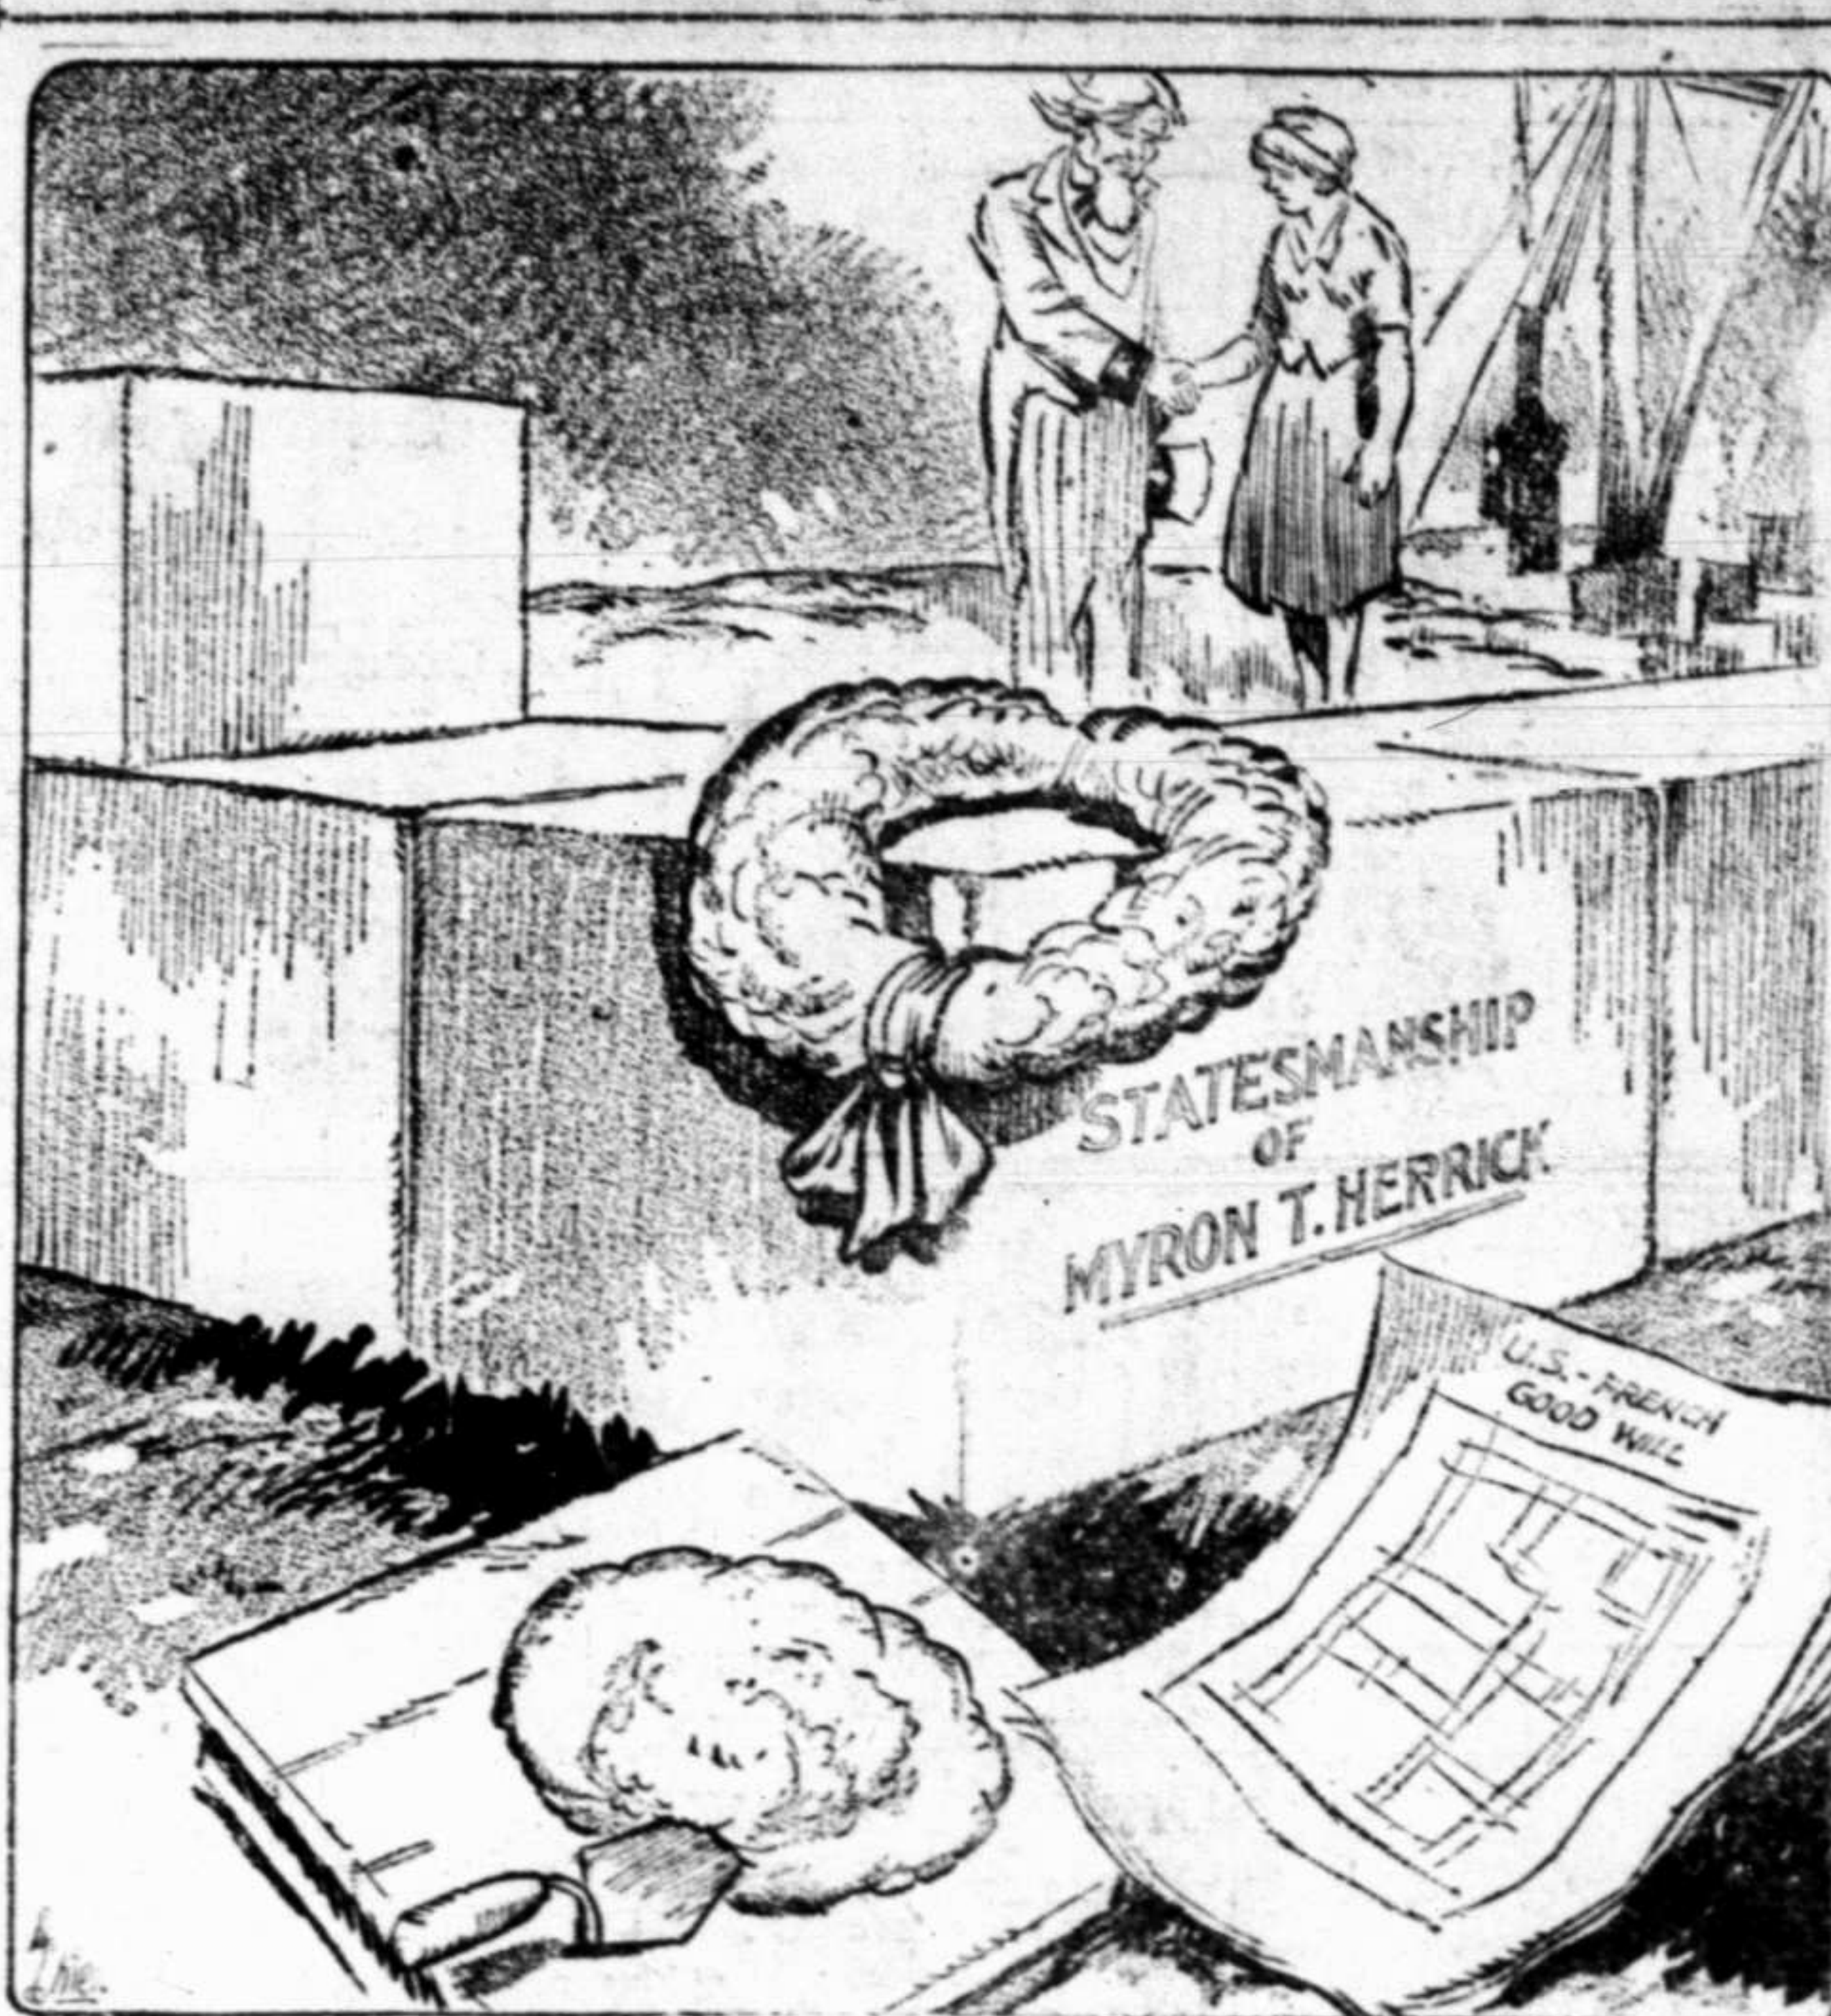

We disagree with your doctor who says that your mother is too old to have any treatment. Radium or X-ray, but especially the radium, is very successfully used on skin cancer, and there is no age limit. I advise you to take your mother to the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, at 301 East Nineteenth Street.

No, cancer is not communicable. Skin cancer is very successfully treated now, so I still have hopes for your mother, unless her condition has gone on so long.

If you want more information on cancer, write to the American Society for the Control of Cancer, 25 West Forty-third Street, New York City.

PRESS COMMENT

DEPENDENT OLD AGE

Chicago Daily News: In a bulletin on the numerous bills to increase taxation that are pending in the Illinois General Assembly, the Civic Federation of Chicago emphasizes particularly the objections to the old-age pension bill. This measure, which has passed the House of Representatives and awaits action by the Senate, is crude and ill-advised. It does not merit the approval of the Senators or of the Governor. Still, merely negative action—its defeat without conditions and alternatives—would be unwise.

The New York legislature, which adjourned last week, had before it a similar problem, which it solved by providing for a commission to investigate old-age pension systems and other means of dealing with economic dependence of persons who have passed the period of active and gainful employment. Governor Roosevelt had recommended that course, and his recommendation received the cordial approval of the Republican majority in the Legislature, though that majority rejected many of the Governor's proposals.

It is true that in the past Illinois has had reports on old-age pensions from legislative committees and has received little illumination from them. What it needs is not another report of a perfunctory sort, but a truly scientific study by a mixed commission of legislators, economists, students of social legislation and social workers. The three leading universities of the state, if called upon, would not withhold their cooperation from so useful and progressive an undertaking.

The problem of old-age dependence is both pressing and intricate, and sooner or later every state will have to face it. On the fact, the social science and economics in modern universities are deeply interested in this and related subjects. A proper organized commission would make a thorough investigation, and two years hence would present a report of real value. RUM AGENT ACTIVITY
According to Houston dispatches, the federal prohibition agents operating in South Texas set a new high record during March by seizing twenty distilleries with a monthly capacity of 66,000 gallons and destroying whiskey-making apparatus valued at $30,000. One hundred arrests were made during the month, most of them under the new Jones law which provides heavy penalties for dry law violations. A special session of the federal grand jury was necessary in order to care for the congestion of new cases placed on the docket.

All of which is encouraging, because it indicates that federal agents can get results when they go after them. It is folly to say that the

ACROSS THE CHANNEL

The newest scheme is for a bridge and two islands to connect England with the continent of Europe. Years ago talk began about a tunnel between England and France. Napoleon would like to have had such a tunnel when he planned his military raid on Britain. Englishmen for the most part have not been much interested in opening their tight little isle to easy approach from the continent. They have had too many bad dreams about Napoleon.

PEACE?

A Michigan woman died the other day after having lived the 95 years of her life on two farms within five miles of each other. She was born on one, and when she was married moved to the other, where she lived the rest of her long life. It is said she never was out of the county. One wonders, in the hurry bury of this world, whether this woman found peace in the quietude of her life—or is peace something that is entirely on the inside, and is little affected by outward circumstances?

NO AGE LIMIT

As to education, by the way, there is no age limit. Mrs. Alice Garrett, 81 years old, Chicago, has finished in the elementary grades and is qualified to become a high school freshman. News also comes out of Chicago that at the university there Mrs. Etta Adair, 71 years old, has just been awarded her degree of bachelor of philosophy. After all one should be at least 70 to have learned very much.

DECORATIVE CLOSETS

You will take renewed interest in your whole wardrobe if you dress your closet up for spring. Charming hangers, shoe racks, boxes for stockings, handkerchiefs, hat stands and other closet accessories come in ornamental shapes and decorative designs. Spring should be a time for giving the closet self-respect.

BREAD PUDDING

Flavor your bread puddings by using bits of candied orange peel, a few old-fashioned cinnamon drops or broken sticks of peppermint candy. Another way is to make fruit sauce, the very best of which is hot apple sauce, flavored with nutmeg and a bit of cinnamon.

Eight steam driven, eight electric driven and 15 gasoline powered autos were exhibited in the first national automobile show held in New York in 1900.

Prohibition laws cannot be enforced. Whenever capable enforcement officers make determined efforts to stop illicit whiskey manufacturing and to apprehend the illicit makers and peddlers of whiskey, they can do it. The increased penalties provided in the Jones law give the federal courts more power than ever before to curb violations of the prohibition laws, and ought to stimulate the federal agents to greater activity than ever before.

There is no valid reason for the presence in any community of a group of recognized bootleggers or distillery operators. In Brownwood, as in many other cities, there are a dozen or more individuals who are known as notorious bootleggers, and who are apparently not molested in their illegal activities despite the fact that both state and federal laws give the enforcement officers ample authority to put them out of business. It is difficult, of course, to secure evidence upon which the common bootlegger can be convicted, but the law enforcement officers who say it can't be done admit that the bootlegger is smarter than he is, and such an admission ought to be enough to disqualify an officer who makes it.—Brownwood Bulletin.

SO THINK WE

We think that it would be unkind to say when an undertaker runs over a pedestrian that he has an eye on business.

We think in order for the police department to do their best work they must not only put on a safety campaign but they must pursue the unsafe drivers too.

We think it is about as good luck as any for the farmers to spend their spare money for automobiles as well as for gold bricks.

We think that life events things up pretty well. For every man who is made a fool by some woman, there is a woman that makes a man out of a fool.

We think if the higher courts have really learned that when a cow is in the middle of the road she has the right of way. They are just now learning what the cow always knew.

We think that even a dollar is not good unless it is kept at work, and it is that much like a person's brain.

We think that even a jail house has a bright side—the outside in some towns.

We think that possibly the most of the work done, is by people who are too nervous to loaf.

We think the Terry County Herald has just about the right idea about this thing of girls. That newspaper says:

"The Herald has been at work for the past twenty years trying to save the entire population, and especially the boys and girls. It has more especially taken the part of the latter, and has come to their defense whenever they needed aid from any source. But of late we have almost become discouraged with our office of salvation of the girl race. In fact, for the past two weeks we have at times almost despaired of thought to resign and turn the whole works over as a bad job, when we would read of some girl sneaking in saws to hijack cars so they could save their way out to freedom, and of three or four others who joined with some youths in robbing a bank. At such times, we'd have loved to shake their bobbed heads till their teeth rattled, and decide they were almost as far from perfection as the boy race. But then again we would think of the splendid, sweet, virtuous girls of Brownfield and Terry county, and decide to fight on for them. But doggone 'em, they ought to be more careful of the company they keep."

We think the trouble with stretching the truth is that we can't always tell the same thing twice alike.

We think the gasoline tax is probably the fairest way to raise money for highways, provided it is put on the highways, and not in the pocket of some grafter.

We think Lubbock's great need now is an airport. There is no question that aviation is just now beginning to get started, and the location of a port here of the type figured out by those who are keeping up with the developments along that line. The small amount of taxes that will be added to any one's property will be far exceeded by the benefits that will be derived by the location of a port here of the type figured out by those who are keeping up with the developments along that line.

We think that California will have a hard time explaining how that freeze up happened, but the balance of the world will pay for it, we presume.

"THIS HAS HAPPENED
"HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN is shot between one and four o'clock Saturday afternoon. RUTH LES-TER, his secretary, finds his body Monday morning sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office.

McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects:
MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was infatuated; and JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiancé, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's private office.

McMann's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by his discovery that Jack's pistol is missing; by Jack's admission that he returned to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon, and by the testimony of MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFLUGER, elevator boys. BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, unwillingly tells of having heard Jack threaten Borden's life Saturday morning.

McMann questions BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHE his manservant; MINNIE CASSIDY and LETTY MILLER, seventh floor scrubwomen; CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress, and JAKE BAILEY, his bodyguard.

MARTHA MANNING is brought in by the police. Ruth's clever detective work. She swears she last saw Borden Friday night but admits phoning him three times Saturday afternoon. When McMann pointblank accuses her of the murder she defies him to bring forward anyone who saw her in the building Saturday. Benny Smith bursts in upon them and hysterically confesses to the murder. His confession is full of loopholes and she realizes he is trying to shield Ruth, who he believes is to be arrested.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

"Well, darling," Ruth said after she and Jack Hayward had deposited lightly burdened trays upon a table in a far corner of the cafe-terine, "this has been a busy morning. Result—a confession!"

"What? Result?" Ruth asked, the young insurance broker's eyes. "Why didn't you tell me as soon as we met?"

Contribution sobered Ruth's vivid little face. "Forgive me, darling!
I've raised your hopes just to dash them. It was Benny Smith who told the darling little idiot that he is, because he thought McMann was going to arrest me! I'll read you his whole confession—I took it down in shorthand, at McMann's request when I've transcribed it. Of course Benny was half delicious and I've been told I have a nobler compliment paid me—"

"You're a siren and a cradle snatcher," Jack told her severely ever. It's a good thing I'm going to marry you and withdraw you from circumlation. Any other developments this morning?"

Smiling lightly, the girl told her sweetheart of Cleo Gilman's stimulating visit and his ludicrous effect upon dear old McMann. "I really believe, Jack," she concluded, "that if Cleo hadn't just married one of the most uppity of Upper Ten, that our detective department's shining light would have tried to date her up. He may do it yet. But I wasn't making any idle boast last night when I said I was going to take charge of the murder investigation this morning."

When she told him of her visit to Mrs. Borden and to Minnie Cassidy, resulting in the discovery of the orchid-tinted letter in the secret drawer of Borden's desk.

"Good work!" Jack applauded dutifully, but Ruth was quick to see that a shadow settled in the eyes she loved. He acknowledged the shadow by adding hesitatingly:

"But I can't help feeling sorry, sweet, that poor Martha Manning has to be dragged into this. I'm sure she didn't kill Borden, and—well, there's something about that woman that gets you—"

"Jake Bailey, another of our morning callers, put it a little differently," Ruth retorted. "He says Miss Manning 'got' Borden, but he doesn't mean exactly what you do.
... I'm sorry, dear! I understand how you feel, for I've been feeling like a malicious, meddling little beast myself, ever since she told her whole, pitiful, tragic story."

"Don't feel too badly," Jack urged tenderly, his hands closing over hers tightly. "McMann would have got on her trail within a few minutes how, wouldn't there must be any number of people who knew of her and Borden's affair. ... But what did McMann get out of the poor thing, with his damnable third degree methods?"

Ruth neglected her soup and salad to recount every detail of Martha Manning's story in the order in which McMann had extracted it.
"I'd like to choke that bully!"
Jack interrupted fiercely, when Ruth told him, with astonishing vividness, how the detective had secured the woman's fingerprint.

"Haven't you learned your lesson yet, red-head?" Ruth chided him gently. "I should think you'd never utter another threat so long as you live."

"I suppose some lip-reading detective has already made a note of my slip of the tongue and if Mr.
McMann is ever bumped off, I'll be accused of the crime. But cut along sweetheart! I promise to be good!"

Ruth "cut along" rapidly, describing with dry humor the various tiffs between Martha Manning and Jake Bailey, Borden's bodyguard.

"But against my will," she concluded, "Jake did do Miss Manning a good turn. His professional pride would not let him admit that Martha could have been close enough to him on the street so that she could see the pattern of his shirt and tie, without his seeing her. So it all boils down to this: If Mr.
McMann, much as he hates Miss Manning, because he believes she killed his boss, corroborated her story of having been in the Star-bridge building Friday night, from about half-past eight till a few minutes past nine."

"A few minutes past nine?" Jack repeated thoughtfully. "And she says she walked down the stairs and out of the lobby at that time?"

Sudden comprehension illumined Ruth's lovely face. "I see what you mean! Why didn't I think of that before? That's just what the little army of cleaning women and porters is pouring out of the building. I've seen them a dozen times, at least.
They're through work at nine. I'll speak to Mr. McMann as soon as I get back to the office—"

Jack interrupted, grinning: "I thought you were conducting his investigation, young lady! Why not make inquiries yourself? Mrs. Pel-low, the (and old dowager in charge of the cleaning women, must be in the building now. She comes on about two o'clock, I think, and acts as a sort of housekeeper for the building, even before the cleaning women come. Let's have a go at her, darling. Now—eat every leaf of that salad, or Papa spunk!"

Ruth obeyed, but now and then a puzzled frown knit her brows, and her brooding blue eyes darkened.

"What's the heavy thinking about honey?" Jack inquired at last.

Ruth shook her head, as if to clear it of mist. "I don't know.
That's the funny thing about it.
... In fact, I'm not so much thinking as—listening."

"Listening?" "Spirit messages?"
Jack laughed.

"You needn't laugh!" Ruth protested. "Dad did come to me in my dream last night and make me remember the orchid-tinted letter.
And I believe that letter is most important than it seems now, or Daddy wouldn't have—"

"It was your subconscious, getting a chance to remind you of something you'd forgotten," Jack explained easily. "But I'm glad, darling, that you had your little visit with your father, even if it was only a dream. He must have been a wonder—

cleaning women as they leave every evening, don't you—about nine o'clock?"

"I certainly do!" Mrs. Pellow agreed emphatically. "And just let one of those old girls try to slip past me with anything they haven't got a right to! Why, just before Christmas—day before Christmas Eve, it was—I caught one old lady trying to sneak out with a satchel full of Christmas presents she'd swiped from—"

"Oh, how awful!" Ruth interrupted, with apparently deep sympathy for Mrs. Pellow's troubles. "You stand in the lobby and check them out, don't you?"

"Yes, miss, I do! Every single night in the week, from nine o'clock till they're all gone, and Saturdays from four till the building's clear."

"You were on duty Friday night, weren't you, Mrs. Pellow?"

"I certainly was! But none of my cleaning women stole any gun out of your office, Miss Lester! I'll take my oath on that!" Mrs. Pellow bridled.

"Oh, I didn't think that for a minute!" Ruth disclaimed. "But please, Mrs. Pellow, if you were in the lobby from nine o'clock till—"

"Nine twenty-five!" Mrs. Pellow interrupted. "And the time clock will prove my words!"

"Then, please, Mrs. Pellow, did you see a woman—not one of your cleaning women, but a visitor to the building, come out of the stairway door and leave the building Friday evening between nine and 9:25?" Ruth finished her question breathlessly, while her heart beat fast.

Mrs. Pellow's answer came promptly: "No, miss, I'd take my Bible oath no woman visitor or any other visitor or tenant came out of the stairway door between nine and 9:25 Friday night."

But Ruth persisted, describing Martha Manning accurately. Again she received the same positive denial. "There wasn't any such woman in our lobby Friday night at the time you say."

"What about the stairs beside the service elevator?" Jack thought to ask, and for a moment Ruth felt dashed.

But at Mrs. Pellow's answer hope flowed back, full and strong: "No way for a woman to get in or out of them stairs. The door's kept locked after six, when the elevator man goes off duty. No freight accepted after six."

When Ruth and Jack escaped from Mrs. Pellow's own eager questions as to the progress of the investigation, Ruth said thoughtfully: "I think that proves pretty conclusively that Martha Manning was lying about Friday night, that she must have been here Saturday afternoon instead—or how could her fingerprints have been on the glass panel of the door?"

But if she was here Saturday how could she have managed both her entrance and exit without being seen by anyone? She's not a ghost, even if she is almost as thin as one—ch!—and she broke off her spoken reflections with a sharp gasp.

"Old subconscious working at" last? Jack teased, just as the elevator door opened for them.

Air Depots To Speed Up Travel

NEW YORK, April 13. (AP) — The world-wide network of Ford Motor company subsidiaries soon will include eight manufacturing plants in various European countries.

Well founded reports in Wall street forecast that several other important American enterprises are considering a similar policy in their plans for expansion outside the United States. The chief gain is seen in the avoidance of tariffs and other barriers to international trade.

The newly organized Ford companies will be located in Belgium, Spain, Holland, France, Sweden, Finland, Germany and Italy.

Amateur Radio Network Guards Against Emergency

Army Network of Stations Spreads Over Whole Nation

Breaking of Any Link in Wire Network of Country Would Now Be Cared for Via the Ether.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (AP)—Military efficiency and the enthusiasm of the amateur operator have been combined in the expansion of the army amateur radio system to provide a national network of communications should disaster break any link in the wire circuits of the country.

The signal corps of the army, with the cooperation of the American Radio Relay League, has extended its emergency communication system to cover the entire United States. In times of emergency, such as floods, fires and tornadoes or war, amateurs from Maine to California and from Florida to Montana will have their radio ready to augment or to replace the land lines.

There are five nets in the system, the smaller feeding into the larger. The master station is at the signal corps training school at Fort Monmouth, N. J. In direct contact with this radio center are the signal corps stations at the nine corps area headquarters. These are Boston, New York, Baltimore, Atlanta, Columbus, Chicago, Omaha, San Antonio and San Francisco.

An amateur station in each state capital of the corps area provides the first link with the area headquarters station. Then comes the state net based on the division of each state into approximately five geographical areas. The stations will be located in the principal towns of each area or near the center of the area. The state capital station is the next control station.

The next link in the chain is the district net comprising again approximately five stations, and finally the local net comprising all amateur stations in the local area of which the district net acts as control stations.

The next link in the chain is the amateur selected for their dependability and operating ability, each corps area signal officer appoints an amateur as his "radio aide." Dr. Lawrence J. Dunn, "veteran" amateur of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been appointed chief radio aide to the chief of the signal corps. He will assist in the organization and training of amateurs.

College Station In Massachusetts Saved for Science

WIXV Henceforward Will Mean 'Home' to Parties Searching in Far Ends of the Earth.

SOUTH DARTMOUTH, Mass., April 13 (AP)—The call letters of WIXV, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's experimental field station at Round Hill, hereafter will spell "home" to members of scientific expeditions scattered about the earth.

Plans are being completed by the station staff to limit general communication more than heretofore to such expeditions for the benefit of the men who, in the interests of science, are poking into the odd corners of the world.

At the same time the research and experimental work which is being carried on in cooperation with the Institute's base station WIXM in Cambridge, Mass., will be continued.

The station here is located on the seashore estate of Col. E. H. R. Green, who is cooperating with the Institute in its maintenance. Members of the station staff have been centering their studies and experiments upon short wave transmission and during the past year or two have been in communication with hundreds of stations throughout the world, among them several expeditions.

While they will continue their work with the amateurs in the United States and other countries, the success they have had in handling messages from the expeditions and the help this has been in bringing the scientific workers closer to home, led to the decision to devote more time to the expeditions.

Recently the men at the station have been in almost daily communication with two expeditions, that of Comm. Richard E. Byrd in the Antarctic and that of the yacht Carnegie, sent out by the Carnegie Institution of Washington to study terrestrial magnetism and atmospheric electricity.

Scores of messages have been exchanged between men of the Byrd

Radio Adds Fourth 'R' To Curriculum of Classrooms In Ohio; Educational Features Broadcast by State Leaders

Every School Room Now is Equipped With Complete and Modern Radio Receiving Sets.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 13 (AP)—Radio broadcasting has added a fourth "R" to the classrooms of Ohio, where the department of education broadcasts instructive programs.

Four months ago John L. Clifton, director of education and B. H. Darrow of New York began a school instruction experiment known as the "school of the air."

Few schools were equipped for reception, but receivers now have been installed in many schools and more than 200,000 pupils listen to the education features provided by the state department.

Clifton obtained the cooperation of WLW at Cincinnati to broadcast the programs. The programs originate at Ohio State University here and are carried to the Cincinnati broadcaster by remote control. Each day of the week, except Friday, the "school of the air" is in session.

The present series will continue until June. Features to come include lectures on chemistry and aeronautics. The last subject is to be supplied with speakers by the Guggenheim foundation of New York, and two of the promised lecturers are Colonel Lindbergh and Maj. Rudolph Schroeder, former holder of the world's altitude record.

Notables in history, arts, science and civics supply "school of the air" features. Walter Damrosch's music appreciation series is a part of the program. In the civics course, the department of education each week presents a state official of bureau head, who describes the way his unit of the state government functions.

Clifton requested the state legislature to appropriate $100,000 for the school in 1930. The services of WLW was donated, and many parent-teacher associations bought radio receiving sets for schools.

Bananas, introduced into western lands within the last 50 years, are said to have been eaten by ancient Egyptians, Greeks, Persians and Romans.

CHARKOFF, Russia (AP)—All government employees in the Ukraine must use the native language. Those who do not pass examinations in it by June are to be discharged.

expedition and their homes through WIXV and reports and messages from the Carnegie have been transmitted regularly from the yacht to the institution. The Carnegie started last May on a world cruise and now is in the South Pacific.

The station has transmitting and receiving equipment for 10, 20, 40 and 80 meters, within which limits most of the communication with the expeditions will be carried on. There are also six receiving sets which permit reception on any wave from 40 kilocycles to 30 megacycles.

Television May Soon Be Simple

Apparatus Attached With Ordinary Receiver Is Perfect by Scientist in Germany.

BERLIN, April 13 (AP)—A television apparatus which may be attached to the ordinary radio set much like a loud speaker, was demonstrated recently in a laboratory here.

The apparatus is used only in long distance transmission of moving pictures, it being the development of a television inventor who has been perfecting apparatus for some time.

In the demonstration, the attendant turned a button and immediately a picture appeared in an aperture of a small frame similar to a mirror holder. Pictures of animals, scenes of persons were flashed with clearness. Not only were light and depth reproduced but intermediate tones stood out well, it was reported.

In the sending room the film was run through the ordinary motion picture apparatus. The picture fell on an aperture in the transmitting apparatus where it was touched by light rays, broken up into approximately 1,000 points a second. Transferred into electrical impulses, the pictures were transmitted to an apparatus that could be plugged into any radio receiver just as a loud speaker is employed.

It is reported that the German post office department will make exhaustive experiments with the invention.

airport. But the north-south course passes over the western end of the developed part. So I pulled up to a safe elevation of five southwest.

"Just as I located the north-south beacon course there was a break in the clouds and I found myself over Berea so that I had a double check on my location. The ceiling was still too low to stay beneath the clouds so I flew north and came down under the clouds over the western end of the airport. I landed safely at 4:25 p. m.

"While I believe that I could have reached the airport safely without the aid of the radio beacon by means of my knowledge of the country, I feel that the beacon made it a much safer process.

"In difficulties such as I had the pilot needs to have both beacon and voice on the same wavelength."

Communications From Byrd Heard On Simple Radio

Hook-up Employing Only Detector and One Stage of Audio Amplification Brings in Signals.

(By Associated Press)

SOUTH DARTMOUTH, Mass., April 13.—A simple hookup of detector and one stage of audio frequency amplification is what the staff of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology experimental field station, WIXV, has found most satisfactory in receiving messages from Commander Byrd's expedition to the Antarctic.

The station has been in almost daily communication with the Byrd expedition since it entered the South Polar region and has received and transmitted scores of private and personal messages between men of the expedition and their friends in the United States.

A 500-watt transmitter is used in sending the messages to the expedition but when it comes to getting replies the best results have been with the small sets. One hookup with two stages of audio amplification has been used occasionally and a superheterodyne also has been employed, but the latter has not been found as satisfactory because of the voice amplification. All of the transmission both ways is on short waves.

The antenna used is equally simple, virtually the same as that of the average radio fan; either a wire from the corner of the station to the top of one of the 120-foot masts near the station, or another about half as long.

Incidentally, the M. I. T. men at the station say the messages from the Byrd expedition which they pick up come the short route—about 9,000 miles—directly from the Bay of Whales, up across the Pacific and over the United States rather than the long way around, over the south pole and up the other side of the earth.

According to a prominent medical expert, very few women take to drink through like of it. Love disappointment is the cause of some women dying.

The watt hour efficiency of the average storage battery is 75 per cent. When the electrical energy is changed to chemical energy and back again, about 25 per cent is lost in these processes.

Sunflower May Become Major Crop In South Plains

Slaton Farmers Testing Plants In This Season

Forecast On Probable Acreage In Other Crops Is Made By Statistician Of State.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal) SLATON, April 13.—Nine Slaton farmers have planted 125 acres of sunflowers this spring, intending to determine for themselves and their neighbors if the production of this crop should be included in their farming programs each year.

J. H. Brewer, Slaton, president of the group, is responsible for the movement getting started here. He has 10 acres of sunflowers on his farm north of Slaton. C. B. Cook has 40 acres; Harvey Carrol has 10 acres; W. P. Nelson, 10 acres; H. L. Weems, 20 acres; E. Wilson, 5 acres; E. S. Brooks, 5 acres; W. H. Honey, 5 acres; and H. W. Jeter has 5 acres.

These men chose the Manchurian sunflower, believing it superior to the Russian plant. Three pounds of seed were planted to each acre, costing 16 cents per pound delivered here. Deep plowing, at least five or six inches, is necessary to prepare a satisfactory seed bed. The seeds are planted in rows, 18 inches apart.

Early planting favored March is considered the better month for planting, although the crop may be planted as late as June. Earlier planting brings earlier maturity, making it convenient to harvest the crop before cotton and the usual feed crops demand attention. If planted in March, the crop is harvested between August 15 and September 1, while cotton and feed crops are not harvested until a month or more later.

Sunflower seed are planted the same depth under the soil as cottonseed. Two plowings are necessary, once when the plant is six inches high, and once when sixteen inches high. It is then abandoned until harvest time.

When the heads mature and become bright yellow in color, they are cut from the stalks and threshed. An ordinary threshing machine is used, the speed of the cylinder being reduced to the third or fourth gear, while all teeth are taken from the concave surface except the last row. This is said to insure splendid threshing results.

The yield per acre for sunflowers is from 800 to 1,200 pounds of threshed seed, which find ready market at from $80 to as high as $150 per ton. The seeds are used in chick feeds, principally, but are considered equal to or superior to cottonseed in oil content. Lack of volume production in this country is responsible for the absence of a market for sunflower seed for the purpose of extracting oil.

One distinct advantage in growing sunflowers is that the plant does not impoverish the soil, but enriches it, growers declare. Neither is the plant affected by frosts, unless the temperature falls below 25 degrees, which could rarely, if ever, occur during the regular growing season, it is pointed out.

Slaton farmers became interested in sunflowers after their Dawson county neighbors, to the south of here, reported such splendid success in producing and marketing the crop profitably, realizing more money per acre than could be expected from cotton. Other farmers in this county are this year experimenting with sunflowers on a large scale, and some predict the crop will become a leading one in this area of the South Plains.

Turkeys Pay Well To Snyder Grower

Scurry County Woman Is Making Specialty Of Raising High Grade Poultry; Ranch Is Famous.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal) SNYDER, April 13.—Mrs. R. L. McMullan of near this city who has won blue ribbon prizes on turkeys in West Texas has had remarkable success with the highest grade stock obtainable. Shortly after she started in to raise turkeys several years ago she learned from actual experience that the highest grade stock was none too good if one would be successful in raising turkeys. She has paid as high as $150 for a single turkey hen and from the best standard breeding farms from Texas to Maine she started her foundation stock. Each year new toms are secured from different breeding farms and today Mrs. McMullan boasts of as fine stock turkeys as to be found in the state of Texas.

At the present time Mrs. McMullan has over a thousand turkey eggs setting at her farm and her wonderful ability to raise them is bringing turkey fanciers from many sections to witness a personal demonstration of the proper way to raise bay turkeys. Many farmers from nearby counties daily come to the McMullan ranch to ascertain first hand information from an expert on how to avoid the many troubles that raising turkeys has heretofore caused.

Slaton to Stage Farmer's Auction

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal) SLATON, April 13.—The fourth free farmers' auction sale to have been held here since January will occur next Monday. One sale each month has been sponsored by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce. On each occasion, farmers dispose of surplus farm equipment, and Slaton merchants feature a trades day on the date of the sale, making this one of the biggest events of the month.

C. Johnson, Slaton auctioneer, will be in charge of the sale here Monday.

Hatchery Output Of Fish Is High

AUSTIN, April 13.—(P)—Good tidings for Texas anglers came from Will J. Tucker, state game, fish and oyster commissioner today. He said the six state-operated hatcheries would have a record output of young fish this season.

Distribution to waters not previously stocked will begin within a few days, Tucker said.

Tucker said the large output was due partly to the new lower Rio Grande hatchery at Olmito, 10 miles north of Brownsville.

MAKE HORSE TROUGHS Australian Village Is Supplying Wld.

SYDNEY, Australia, April 13.—(P)—If your old home town needs a horse trough, one may be obtained from Australia.

Applications have been rolling in by the hundreds, but there are still funds left for more horse troughs.

ARTISTS POOR Want and Privation Are Rampant in England

LONDON, April 13.—(P)—Want and privation are rampant among artists in England.

Their distress is fully as great as that of the unemployed miners, said Sir William Llewellyn, president of the Royal Academy, in a report to the Artists' Benevolent Institution. "Often this state of poverty is found in the homes of artists who have done good work, but who no longer have sales for their productions," he said. "There is no world so susceptible to the changes of fashion as the world of art."

File Charges On 'Blunderbuss' Staff

AUSTIN, April 13.—(P)—Misdemeanor charges against six men charged with the printing and circulation of obscene literature in the form of "The Blunderbuss" outlaw University of Texas publication, were set today for hearing next Tuesday before a justice of the peace.

Five of the defendants, Frank W. Cook, Ben Morrison, Henry Smith, Leland Tidwell and Clyde Woolsey, are at liberty on $200 bond each. The sixth, Horace Walker, compelled $1,000 bond on a criminal bail in the misdemeanor case.

NEW YORK, (P)—Saul G. Bron, chairman of the board of directors of the Amtorg Trading corporation, leading firm in Soviet-American trade, says that 35,000 farm tractors have been introduced into Russia during the past five years. Eighty per cent, states Mr. Bron, were made in the United States.

PARIS, April 13.—(P)—It will take France 20 or 25 years to make up the loss in native born population sustained through war casualties. Last year there were slight increases in marriages and births but the excess of deaths was only 70,000. The war death list was 1,500,000.

California Chick King Started On $1000

Seven Million are Annually Turned out at Plant

By NEA Service

PITTLUMA, Calif., April 13.—Seven years ago Leo A. Bourke, then 18, borrowed $1000.00 from a California banker. Today, at 35, he is a director of that same bank and is owner of what is said to be the world's largest baby chick hatchery.

His hatchery here, electrically operated throughout, has a capacity of 1,800,000 eggs at one setting. During the peak season the electrical energy constantly in use is more than 288 horsepower. At this season the plant hatches some 75,000 chicks daily. The annual production of the hatchery is between six and seven million chicks—quite an increase over the 5,000 turned out by Bourke in his first year in the business.

Bourke took to hatching when his father's incubating manufacturing business failed. With his dad's old incubators and an $11,000 mortgage on them, he started on his career. He borrowed the thousand dollars from the bank. He bought eggs put them in his father's crude oil and gasoline burning incubators and then stayed with them night and day for three weeks until they were hatched. It was a good hatch and with the proceeds of the sale of the chicks Bourke bought more eggs and steadily increased his settings.

But success didn't come so easily. He had quite a few tough breaks before the establishment of his trade. During the early part of his career, California was hit with an outbreak of hoof and mouth disease. An embargo was placed on the shipment of chicks and many of the hatcheries in the state were forced down. But Bourke continued with his settings, figuring that when the embargo was lifted chicks couldn't be supplied fast enough to meet the demands of neighboring states.

That proved to be true, and when the embargo was lifted he cashed in on his foresightedness. In 1923 a grass fire destroyed his plant. He had to face this loss and in addition the cost of constructing a new plant. The plant as it is today is modern in every detail. It is constructed of brick and tile and is operated with electricity. In it are 10 stables used for cooling the eggs. Each of these has a capacity of 20,000.

Shares Success With Others He suffered a setback when he attempted to install electricity in his plant the first time to replace the oil and gasoline incubators. But hard work and much thinking finally evolved a plan which aided greatly in making his company the largest of its kind in the world.

"The Baby Chick King," as he is sometimes called, is now practically a millionaire. He is able to take trips to Europe whenever he wants. He has enough money to buy anything he wants. But he denies that he achieved his success through being a "lucky fellow" who took a chance. It was due entirely to concentration and hard work, he says. He recently refinanced his company, issuing stock to his employees and customers.

"I deeply appreciate the confidence and loyalty shown me, both by my employees and customers," he says. "I feel that they are entitled to become stockholders if they choose."

OIL MEN PLANT ALFALFA

COALINGA, Cal., (P)—A California oil company, while waiting for development, is planning to add to its income by planting 100 acres of alfalfa on its holdings five miles from here. This reverses the usual condition in an oil region. Ordinarily farmers are looking to oil development to bring them wealth.

NEW GRAPEFRUIT INDO, Cal. (P)—A 500,000 grapefruit grove is to be estimated along side the state date groves of Coachella valley. The project has been undertaken by King C. Gillette on 480 acres reclaimed from the desert. It will have 35,000 grapefruit trees and will be completed in a year.

The past winter is considered the greatest in Cuba's tourist history. More than 72,000 visitors stopped in Havana.

Boost S. S. Seek To Increase Attendance

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal) SLATON, April 13.—A campaign for increased Sunday school attendance on the part of Slaton public school pupils has been waged during the present school year by school authorities, and remarkable results are being seen now, according to figures given by C. L. Bone, superintendent of schools here.

Starting last fall with an average of less than 40 percent of the students attending Sunday schools, the average has climbed steadily until it reached 54 per cent for the nearly 1,500 pupils last Sunday. The high school's average was 56 per cent, that of junior high and west ward was above 51, and east ward was 51. Mrs. J. G. White's pupils, in west ward school, led with the highest percentage, 84.

Twelve Million Acres Forsake Sovereign Cotton

125 Acres In Vicinity Of Town Are Planted With Flowers; Bring Good Profit To Grower.

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, April 13.—More than 12,000,000 acres are in rebellion against King Cotton in Texas this year. Figures gathered by H. H. Shutz, federal statistician, show Texas farmers plan to plant about 12,423,000 acres in other crops.

If the farmers carry out their present intention, airplane travelers over the state will look down upon 4,297,000 acres of waving corn, 2,576,000 acres of winter wheat, 2,815,000 acres of grain sorghums, 1,472,000 acres of oats, 178,000 acres of barley, 605,000 acres of tame hay, 114,000 acres of sweet potatoes, 160,000 acres of peanuts, 157,000 acres of rice and 15,000 acres of rye. Because of a law prohibiting reports on prospective cotton acreage, Statist Shutz makes no statement of how much of Texas will remain loyal to King Cotton.

We're For It Mud On Highway Brings Suits

PARIS, April 13.—(P)—A farmer's responsibility for making a road slippery is at issue in the courts.

A Versailles lawyer, M. Maquet, filed suit against a farmer because the latter's team's, coming from the fields, scattered mud and slime on the highly polished highway, causing Maquet's and others' automobiles to skid into the ditch.

Although a new sort of case for modern courts, the suit is based on a royal ordinance of 1731 forbidding the placing of rubbish or soil on the road.

DOGS REPLACE WARDENS

MERCER, Pa. (P)—Dogs are better guards than men, believes Sheriff D. E. Callahan of Mercer county. He has purchased two large police dogs and they will replace two wardens. One will patrol the walls outside the jail, the other will do sentry duty in the jail yard.

A new automatic braking device for railroad trains has been invented by a Frenchman. Automotive importations by Cuba from the United States last year amounted to $3,350,391.

Vast Amount of Onions Shipped

LAREDO, April 13.—A total of approximately 144,000,000 Bermuda onion plants, of 36 carloads, each carload carrying four million plants, had been shipped to farmers in all portions of the United States from Laredo up to April 1. In addition to the carload shipments it is estimated that approximately 40 million other plants had moved out by express and parcel post to fill orders sent to Laredo by a well-known mail order house.

Records of the Missouri Pacific lines showed that up to April 1, including the carload shipments of onion plants by express, there was a total of 743 carloads of winter vegetables shipped from Laredo. In these shipments were 360 carloads of broccoli, 12 cars of tomatoes, 50 cars of mustard greens, 30 carloads of carrots, 22 cars of dandelion greens, 18 carloads of cabbage and smaller shipments of various other vegetables.

Lubbock Churches Keep Step With City's Growth

New Structures Being Built and Others Planned

Nearly Every Local Congregation Has Some Plan For Expanding to Meet City's Development.

KEEPING step with the growth of Lubbock, churches in the city are maintaining expansion programs; and congregations are continually looking forward, planning new buildings and broader programs of religious education and worship.

A new church is now being completed by the 19th Street Methodist congregation, the First Methodist congregation, which recently occupied a new annex; and an educational annex to the First Presbyterian church is under construction.

Other congregations are continuing plans in building programs announced last fall and the First Christian church has recently purchased a lot at 14th Street and Avenue Q and a new church is to be built there.

With 13 congregations in the city worshipping in church buildings, a variety of religious faiths are represented. Tabernacles and other edifices accommodate many of the smaller groups.

To Change Name
The new church which is being built by the 19th Street Methodist congregation is to be known as the Asbury Methodist church.

This building is located on 20th Street and with the removal from the original site on 19th street the church will assume its new name. Asbury was the first Methodist preacher who came to America and this church has been named in his honor.

Rev. G. P. McCollum is pastor of the 19th Street congregation, which is holding services temporarily in the county court house.

Revival Is Planned
The new building will be ready for occupancy in about three weeks although it is not known definitely when the opening will be held. There is to be a revival with the opening of the church. Rev. McCollum has announced. A building which will cost between twelve and fourteen thousand dollars now is under construction adjacent to the First Presbyterian church and is to be the educational building for the congregation, of which Dr. Jack M. Lewis is the pastor.

This three-story structure probably will be opened about June 1, according to announcement made at the church this week. The first floor of the building will accommodate the cradle roll and beginners departments and will have junior class rooms and an assembly hall.

The young people's department will occupy all of the main floor, except the room devoted to offices for the pastor and educational director and the intermediate and senior assembly halls and class rooms will be on the third floor of the building.

$50,000 Auditorium Planned
The First Baptist congregation is continuing with plans for the erection of an auditorium to cost between sixty and one hundred thousand dollars.

A lot was purchased east of the present church building on Main Street last fall and the auditorium is to be erected there. This hall is to have a seating capacity of between 2,000 and 3,500, according to announcements made at the church, and plans are being made to start the building during the summer or early fall.

Dr. W. R. White is pastor of this congregation, which is one of the largest in the city.

First Methodist Annex.
A $75,000 building program was recently completed by the First Methodist congregation, of which H. L. Menger is pastor and which has the largest membership in the city. An educational annex was opened this winter which accommodates a large part of the Sunday school and provides space for offices and for organization activities.

The new junior church in the city has been reorganized since this annex was opened and is conducted at 11 o'clock on Sunday mornings in the chapel of the annex. Mrs. H. W. Richardson is pastor of the congregation, which is organized with Wayne Prather as chairman and Charles Maedgen as secretary-treasurer of a board of stewards.

Quick Parking DeSoto Feature

More than five million cars are parked daily in the business districts of the large centers of population in the United States, according to a nation-wide traffic analysis just completed by Detroit automotive engineers studying parking conditions throughout the country.

Observers found the De Soto Six a car that best meets the serious situation and gave it a wide margin over other makes of cars viewed from a window in a high building in the motor metropolis as they checked the traffic flow in a congested area down town with stop watches. Because of the ease with which it can be parked quickly in a small space, the elapsed time with the De Soto Six was considerably less than for other cars. Officials of the company said this was due to the particular type of steering gear used by the De Soto and the exceptionally quick response of the engine to the accelerator and to the four wheel brakes.

All rare books and manuscripts in the national library of Mexico are to be photographed to make them more easily accessible when stolen and to perpetuate their contents.

Duenkel is violinist for the church. There was an attendance of 118 in this church, which is for boys and girls between 4 and 13 years of age, last Sunday morning. H. L. Liston leads the congregational singing in this church.

Add More Seats
Following the completion of a $65,000 church building in 1925, the Broadway Church of Christ congregation has been furnishing the building and new seats are being added this spring.

Rev. Walter P. Jennings is pastor of the First Christian congregation which is proposing to erect a new building on the recently purchased lot. Although no definite time has been set for this building program, it is hoped that it may be started within the next few months, according to Reverend Mr. Jennings.

A $30,000 building was completed during the winter for the Cummins land Presbyterian congregation, of which Rev. O. N. Baucum is pastor. This building is now being furnished by the people of the church.

It's A Secret Flunking Figures At Tech Held Up

"A's" and "B's" come and go but the "F's" we have with us always!

This improvised slogan is true in every school in the United States, Texas Technological college not excepted but an original system of keeping track of the percentage of students who "fall by the wayside" has been installed in the youngest of state educational institutions here.

"Millions of figures for honor statistics but not one zero on flunking" is the slogan adopted at the institution and the number of students who "bust out" is known only to a favored few.

"We never give out information concerning percentage of failures and conditions," Registrar E. L. Dohoney told the Avalanche - Journal yesterday, which means that outside the 323 honor roll students there is little for the public to learn regarding scholarship—or lack of it—at Texas Tech.

MAKES AIR FLIGHT
Goodrich Officials Fly From Ohio To Texas

AKRON, O., April 13.—Phil J. Kelly, advertising manager of The B. F. Goodrich Rubber company recently sought the shortest distance between two points as the crow flies.

"Cy" Caldwell, pilot of the Goodrich Silvertown plane took Mr. Kelly under his wings from Akron to San Antonio, Texas. The trip was made in three hops, one stop at Indianapolis and another at St. Louis. Flying is not a novelty to Mr. Kelly as he was an army pilot during the World War. I. W. Smalley, latest addition to the pilot personnel of the Silver Fleet, accompanied Mr. Kelly. It was his first flight.

Dodge To Present Special Displays

Features in style and performance of the Dodge Brothers Senior Six will be pointed out in special displays and demonstrations by the Royalty Motor Co., local Dodge Brothers dealers during the week of April 14th to 20th. "Senior Supremacy Week" is being observed simultaneously over the country by the thousands of Dodge Brothers dealers.

"The entire week has been set aside for public appreciation of this finest product of Dodge Brothers craftsmanship at its new low price," said Mr. W. W. Royalty. "Every effort will be made to have those interested in this type of motor car ride in or drive any model of the Senior Six line. Comparisons in acceleration, power, speed, operating smoothness, driving ease and riding qualities are invited in any test the driver selects."

Business Is Good For This Concern

As Lubbock builds and grows concerns of all kinds within the city's gates build and grow. At least such is a fact if the business of the North Texas Building and Loan association here can be taken as an indication.

According to Albert Vaughn, who moved from Wichita Falls three months ago to represent the North Texas association here, his loans have averaged $30,000 per month since his arrival. Mr. Vaughn and his company are naturally enthusiastic over Lubbock and its future.

The company keeps headquarters in Wichita Falls but the Lubbock applications are handled locally.

Graham - Paige Offers New Car

Graham-Paige has brought out a two-door five-passenger sedan to complete the line of bodies supplied on the popular six-cylinder 112-inch wheelbase chassis, model "612."

In style and comfort, the new two-door closely follows the standards of the four-door model. Both exterior and interior carry the features that mark the full sedan type. Standard equipment includes painted wood wheels, with 3.00-19 balloon tires; but the car may be obtained with steel or wire wheels—either five wheels with a spare tire carrier or six wheels with side mountings and a trunk rack. The new sedan is finished in a light gray with moldings and reveals in a lighter gray, striped with emerald green. Both steel and wood wheels are in the lighter gray, emerald striped, while wire wheels are emerald green all over.

It costs twice as much for railroads to replace the ties as the rails.

FORWARD-LOOKING PEOPLE WILL INVESTIGATE THIS CAR

Making it easy for you to enjoy BIG CAR advantages

Now it has become easy for forward-looking people to satisfy their desires for a finer automobile. The New Pontiac Big Six is responsible for that. It makes it possible for them to enjoy all the style, luxury and performance advantages of a big car without paying a big car price. It enables them to step up the quality of their automobiles without stepping out of the low-priced field. . . . Chrysler "65" Has Ease Of Operation

Gone are the days when the motorist returned from a Spring outing, leg-cramped and arm-weary, eyes strained and blood-shot. Today the car driver reaching the end of his journey, perhaps of many hours' duration, steps from his car as fresh from fatigue as any traveler leaving a Pullman.

It has been primarily due to the engineering features designed and engineered by Chrysler experts, that little or no physical effort is needed to drive and manipulate the controls of a modern automobile. Just the day before yesterday, the automobile driver, who desired to turn a corner at right angles, threw himself upon the huge steering wheel, with both hands he swung the front wheels in the direction he desired to go as the steersman of an old sailing ship hauled upon the wheel during a gale.

When this same motorist desired to shift gears, he used all, or most of the strength of his left leg to push in the clutch pedal, while his right hand and arm yanked upon the lever supposed to control the gear shift. All these maneuvers were performed with the driver sitting in a cramped compartment, permitting little leg or shoulder room, particularly when the front seat was occupied with another person.

FLAT HEMS
When hand-hemming circular hems or any other edges, they will be much flatter and your stitches will show less if you are scrupulously careful never to pull the thread taut. Leave it quite slack for the best results.

Where, Oh Where, Is the Dime Novel?

Yellow-Back Fiction, Once So Popular, Is Now In The Limbo of Yesteryear, Observers Say

THE youth of today misses the thrill of the old fifteen cent yellow-backed novel that his father enjoyed when he was a boy.

This type of so-called literature, with its "blood and thunder" stories of two-run heroes, apparently has passed into the limbo of yesteryear.

At one time on sale on almost every street corner and news stand, the old western thriller has left little trace of its exotic era of popularity. Old timers remember vividly how they would sneak away into the barn and read those wild tales of adventure. They appear somewhat sorry that the boy of today misses this thrill.

Although the modern boy fails to take advantage of his opportunity of pleasure reading as did his father, his reading is of a better type and better directed.

Too Busy To Read
In the opinion of M. H. Duncan, superintendent of the city schools, the youngster of 1929 is too busy doing things to devote much time to reading. "The boys of the junior high school age do more reading than their older brothers," he said. "When they are in their junior high school they have not reached the 'girl age' and do not devote as much time to girls, social life, cars, and other youthful activities as they will a few years later."

Quality Is Better
The reading that is done, however, is an improvement over that of the past. Magazines such as the Youth's Companion and the American Boy have become an important factor in the reading of the modern youth. Stories of adventure, of scientific invention and discovery, and of men who have done things always prove interesting to boys.

The national Boy Scout organization has done much to improve the reading of modern youth. Scout officials print booklets listing and recommending books for the Scouts to read and a Boy Scout series of novels have proven extremely important among the young readers.

Catherine Heierman, assistant county librarian, points out that adventure, Indian, and Scout stories predominate in the interest of the youth who chooses his own reading.

Local Scout officials feel that the reading among modern boys is upon a much higher level than it was in the past and that the boys are reading recognized authors more than did their fathers.

WOMEN AS MINISTERS
LONDON (AP)—Equal opportunity for women as ministers of religion was advocated before the National Union of Societies for Equal Citizenship. Miss Eleanor Rathbone argued that it is the one great learned profession from which women—with a few exceptions—are still excluded.

USE FOREIGN SHIPS
MOSCOW (AP)—The commissariat of trade announced that 88 per cent of the 10,000,000 tons of Soviet exports in 1928 were carried in foreign vessels. The government is considering organization of a special soviet carter company.

Nash "400" Sales Show Big Increase

KENOSHA, Wis., April 13.—When final reports were received by Nash sales department officials from marketing centers in the United States, it was found today that Nash "400" Series car sales in the ten highest sales points during the week ending March 30 were greater than those in any previous week on the records of the Nash Motors Company.

The total number of "400" cars bought in these ten marketing centers rolled up an increase of $2.95 per cent over the sales made at the same points in the corresponding week of 1928.

This significant buying record for Nash was not limited alone to the ten metropolitan markets where sales were largest and which are considered an American merchandising barometer. A further check revealed that the sales of these increasingly popular cars in all distributing centers during the closing week in March equaled the peak figures of the first week in July last year, when the Nash "400" demand had reached its height following announcement and nationwide introduction of the new type cars.

TREATIES WITH FINLAND
GENEVA (AP)—Two treaties between the United States and Finland for the peaceful settlement of disputes have been registered with the League of Nations. The pacts were signed in June, 1928.

Swallow - Like Plane Is Built

SAN ANTONIO, April 13. (AP)—A "heliplane," whose inventor claims it will double present airplane speeds, has been built by A. L. Hackenberger of San Antonio.

The craft, designed to operate on the principles of flight employed by a swallow, embodies the development of an idea many years old. In test flights Hackenberger hopes to demonstrate the machine's ability to take off and land without runways.

Unlike orthodox airplane designs, the heliplane's top surface resembles a huge heart, measuring 14 feet from wing tip to wing tip, and 18 feet from nose to tail. It will be reduces all prices $55⁰⁰ to $260⁰⁰

to give the motoring public immediate advantage of HUPMOBILE'S new expansion program

Early in January HUPMOBILE acquired a new plant in Cleveland, comprising more than a million square feet of modern and advanced automotive manufacturing facilities.

This was the first step in HUPMOBILE'S 1929 program of expansion, giving HUPMOBILE a doubled production capacity for its famous Century cars.

Now comes the second step; that of passing along to the public the economies which HUPMOBILE'S extended production plans make feasible.

These price reductions embrace all models in the 1929 HUPMOBILE Century Six and Eight lines and range from $55.00 to $260.00.

Consistently, for more than 20 years, HUPMOBILE has won and held its public by fine motor car quality at notably low prices. But today, in this new schedule of prices, HUPMOBILE excels itself in value-giving.

Lubbock and Texas Tech Take Large Slice of Publicity In New Edition Of Book Of Knowledge; Many Photos

Plains Capital Is Granted More Space Than Any of Texas Metropolis; College Draws Good Play

THE "Book of Knowledge" is considered as the clearest and most authoritative source of information on the state of Texas, that has ever been obtained by the city of Lubbock, is the preponderance of mention and of illustrations appearing in the Texas edition of "The Book of Knowledge," a reference library published by the Greater Society.

One of a total of 222 pictures from Texas, used in the edition, Lubbock is credited with 20, or about 14 per cent. These appear in eight chapters of the volume. Chapter headings under which the Lubbock pictures appear, and the number of illustrations in each of these chapters, are listed below:

Chapters Are Listed.
"The Empire We Call Texas," containing 54 pictures, shows two from Lubbock. "The People of Texas," with 19 illustrations, shows two from here. "The Texas Steer," with 25, has six from here. "Farming in Texas," having 70, possesses 18 from Lubbock. "Wild Life in Texas," with 19, has one from this city. "Manufacturing in Texas," with 16, shows one from here. "Colleges and Universities in Texas," 26 illustrations, one from Lubbock. "Appendices," with two, one of them from here.

When it is understood that there are 254 counties in Texas, with illustrations of the book not averaging even one picture per county, and that there are over 600 chambers of commerce in the state, with average of pictures only about one-third of these; and that there are 22 cities in Texas larger than the city of Lubbock, this achievement partakes of more significance.

City Dominates Book.
Lubbock, in fact, has more mention and more pictures than any other one city in the Lone Star State. "Certainly, there are many towns and cities, larger than this, with innumerable interesting features that could be exhibited better than ours; many towns with more manufacturing enterprises in them, for instance, than this, but Lubbock succeeded in getting a picture in that particular chapter."

So many towns could have made a better showing than Lubbock. They all had the same opportunity, as every chamber of commerce in the state received preliminary letters from the publishers, same as the Board of City Development here.

"The Book of Knowledge" is used as reference in practically every school, college and university of any importance in Texas, and the set enhances the book shelves of thousands of homes throughout the empire. For this reason, chamber of commerce officials state that the resultant advantage in publicity is worth more than its ordinary cases.

Page 198 (subject transportation and commerce).
"The large cities are not the only centers of commerce. . . Lubbock in the west and a dozen of others, who have commercial importance, made possible by the coming of good roads. Lubbock has over a hundred, wholesale houses; and thanks in large part to the dry weather highways, goods may be shipped out of Lubbock today to every town on the South Plains."

Page 97 (subject Farming in Texas).
The Western Plains Where Farms Take the Place of Ranches.

"The South Plains around Lubbock, which fairly recently a grazing country, have developed so rapidly as farm land that today over ten times as much cotton is produced as was raised in 1920. Thanks to the level character of the land, the knee-high cotton can be gathered by machinery and its cost of production is small. A land of sunshine, its twenty inches of rainfall come just right for the growing season, and ground water may be pumped by windmills to irrigate the gardens and orchards. Good roads and railway freight service have come to surprise the coyotes and jackrabbits, and farmers have the benefit of cheap land, electric light and power. Nor do they place their whole reliance on cotton. Grain sorghums are grown for feed for the hogs, work mules and dairy cows, beef cattle and poultry that help to diversify the farms; while alfalfa, peanuts, cowpeas, pop corn, and such feed as millet, speltz and emmer thrive in the region. As there are few barns in such a new country, grain, too, is piled on the dry ground to be gathered by farmer's chickens, and may have dairy cows. Turkeys for the holidays and markets are an added source of profit."

"The Technological College at Lubbock has a school of agriculture whose department of animal husbandry is teaching the best methods of breeding, rearing and marketing livestock."
"The sub-station near Lubbock, while not a school, serves the purpose of a practical farm school for the farmers of the South Plains. Every type of crop possible to the region is grown here under various conditions, in order to discover the best methods of cultivation, and the date of these experiments are given to farmers. Much of the agricultural progress of the past-fifteen years on the South Plains is due to

Vikings Coming New G. M. C. Auto To Be On Display

The Vikings are coming. The Vanguard of Vikings, the new V-type eight cylinder automobile being introduced by Oldsmobile and General Motors, will be on initial public display in the larger cities of the country this week and additional shipments are leaving the factories daily to supply the entire Oldsmobile dealer organization with the new companion car to Oldsmobile Six.

This method of meeting the motoring public, first in the massed centers of population and then spreading throughout the entire country, is typical of the tactics of the successful conquests waged by those early courageous pioneers from whom the new car has taken its name—the Vikings.

Hup Gets Largest Aviation Policy

CHICAGO, April 12.—What is believed to be the largest, single commercial aviation insurance policy ever to have been issued and the largest policy for the shortest period of time has just been issued by the Independence Companies of Philadelphia through its Chicago agent, John W. Webb.

The policy was obtained by the Gambill Motor Company, Inc., of Chicago and totals $1,000,000.00. It provides for individual accident and liability coverage in the amount of $10,000.00 for each of 150 purchasers of Hupmobile Straight Eight who will fly from Chicago to Detroit on April 17th to obtain delivery of their new cars.

Another unusual feature of the policy is that it covers the duration of the flight between the two cities. The scheduled time for the regular air trip to Detroit is approximately two and one half hours. Coverage under this mammoth policy is ended when the thirty airplanes making the trip land at the Ford airport in Detroit.

Pertinent Facts About Automobiles By Israel Klein, Science Editor For NEA Service

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

SPRING cleaning the automobile means not only preparing it for summer driving but actually cleaning out the dirt and grime that has collected over the motor, the chassis and body. A thorough cleaning not only improves the appearance of the car but it goes a long way toward assuring comfortable and enjoyable motoring.

The engine should be cleaned as well as the body and chassis. This can easily be done with the use of kerosene, for that is the only way grease can be cleaned off. Kerosene may also be needed for various parts of the chassis, spring shackles, steering knuckles and so on.

AFTER the thorough cleaning, however, a thorough greasing must follow. When fresh grease is forced through the spring shackles, for instance, it should force out all the old grease from the other side. If the grease leaks through at the sides, this is a sign that the bolt may be "frozen." The bolt may be pried loose with a heavy iron bar or by swinging the car up and down.

At any rate the springs won't be well greased and easy to ride on unless the lubricant comes through at the other end. Freezing of the bolts causes not only hard riding but squeaks and likelihood of broken springs.

Greasing should be extended to the front wheels, the hub caps of which should be filled with fresh lubricant. The wheels should be checked for proper alignment and tightened to avoid free play or wobbling.

Spring auto cleaning means also cleaning of the spark plugs, the breaker points in the distributor, the battery terminals and all lines and connections in the ignition system.

The spark plugs should be removed, cleaned of all carbon deposit and reset. If the points are badly worn or the plugs are badly sooted, it would be advisable to install a new set of plugs. Cleaning plugs will help the motor considerably, but installation of new plugs will pep it up even more.

The spark plug terminals should be cleaned and scraped and the wires leading to them should also be cleaned. The breaker points of the distributor may need cleaning and setting to their proper opening.

An important part in the cleaning process is that of the battery terminals. These may be erected so as to endanger the connections. The corrosive matter may be cleaned off with a solution of baking soda, about a heaping teaspoonful to a glass of water. After the cleaning, the top of the battery should be wiped dry and the terminals covered with grease or vaseline to avoid further corrosion.

In the same process the battery cells might be filled with distilled water.

If the motor has to be cleaned internally—carbon scraped and valves ground—this operation should be left to a competent mechanic. Carbon should never be burned out, for the intense heat of the oxy-acetylene torch will cause warping of the valves and produce more damage than good.

Scraping of carbon and grinding of valves means removal of the cylinder head and that means replacement of the basket with a brand new one, or a leak might result both

Chevrolet Breaks Production Marks

DETROIT, April 13.—All monthly production records in the history of the Chevrolet Motor company were broken in March, when the company produced 147,274 cars and trucks. A factory statement explained that this figure was considerably in excess of preliminary production schedules and was made necessary to more fully accommodate an increasing demand for the new car Chevrolet six.

This March record compares with 133,657 units for March of last year and with 121,249 for February of this year. It exceeded by nearly 7,000 units the best previous month in the history of the company, which was May, 1928, when output totaled 140,775 units.

The March performance enabled the company to exceed all records for the first quarter of the year, with a total of 354,701 units as compared with 343,184 for the first three months of 1928.

BOOST ART LOAN

LONDON (P)—Art interests are boosting an idea for a loan exhibition here of Italian art, similar to the showing last season of the works of Dutch masters. Proponents of the scheme hope the Italian and Vatican authorities will send some of their choicest paintings.

More than 18,000 bath tubs, valued at $1,000,000, were shipped to foreign countries in 1928.

In cleaning the body care should be taken not to scrape any mud or dust over the paint. The best method of cleansing is to soak the body first in a shower of lukewarm water, until the accumulated dirt flows off in the rush of water. Then the body can be cleaned with a soft rag.

Brougham Decried By Dame Fashion

The pendulum of motor car fashion is again swinging back to the brougham, according to C. E. Gough, Studebaker-Erskine dealer here. "If fashion runs in cycles, as they say," said Mr. Gough, "we can go back almost 100 years to find the first cycle of the brougham's popularity. This was in the early part of the nineteenth century when an English gentleman, Lord Brougham, created a vogue in London with the design of a new type of carriage.

"Since its first sponsorship by the nobility the brougham has never lost its aristocratic character. For a time only the most expensive cars were available with a brougham body, and even today the body lines and appointments of the brougham reflect the close attention to detail and the harmony of line and color characteristic of the finest coachwork."

The second newspaper to be published in America was the "Boston Gazette," founded in 1719. The third was the "American Weekly Mercury," founded the same year.

—with its greater beauty, adult-size capacity, riding ease and economy —and with its brilliant chassis quality and fine, large bodies—Essex challenges, too, in proved VALUE. It offers a completeness of fine car equipment formerly identified only with costly cars, and available, when at all, only as "extras," at extra cost on cars of Essex price. Check these items as you buy. In Essex the Challenger—a complete, fine big "Six"—these items of course are standard. They cost not one cent extra.

They represent easily above one hundred visible dollars' additional value, and are another reason why the public is awarding to Essex the largest business it has, ever known.

Increase In Auto Taxes Twice That Of Registrations

Annual Survey of American Automobile Association Reveals Tax Increase Is Double License Increase

WASHINGTON, April 13.—State motor vehicle taxes increased twice as much as motor vehicle registrations in 1928 and the average per vehicle tax for the country increased six per cent in 1928 over 1927, according to the annual survey of the American Automobile Association made public here today.

The total increase of motor vehicle registration for the United States in 1928 was 6.9 per cent, while the increase in the total amount of special car taxes (exclusive of personal property taxes) for the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia was 13 per cent.

"The facts disclosed by our annual motor vehicle registration and taxation map reveal to a greater extent than ever before the heavy proportion of taxes that the motorists are bearing," declared Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A. "Car owners of the nation have always been ready to stand for taxation for road-building, but there has been a deplorable tendency taxing the motorists for various other public improvements and in many instances there has been rank discrimination."

Officials of the national motoring body pointed out that the retirement from the taxing field early in 1928, through the repeal of the war excise tax, was an important step in the campaign for fair taxation of car owners.

Following is a summary of other facts brought out in the annual tax review:

First: The average per vehicle tax for the entire country was $23.74 in 1928 as compared with $23.78 in 1927, an increase of six per cent in a period of twelve months.

The per vehicle tax has increased 265 per cent.

PARIS (AP).—Tai Hsu, announced as president of the Chinese Buddhist union, arrived here clad in yellow robes and wearing horn rimmed spectacles. He is a missionary for reflective philosophy which would vent passions that make for war.

USED GESE AS FUEL

COPENHAGEN (AP).—The Danish steamer Nidaros, icebound in the Baltic in the recent cold snap, kept its boilers going by burning its cargo of fat Russian geese after its coal was exhausted. The vessel had plenty of power when it got free.

ON AUTO ROW

A slight let-up on new car sales and a pleasing output of used cars has been the order on Auto Row during the past week. Practically every Lubbock automobile dealer is standing on much firmer footing today with reference to his used car investment than was the case a week ago. An unusually large number of used machines in the cheaper class as well as a number of higher priced automobiles have been moved from the used car lots.

Momentum Expected To Be Lent New Car Sales

This alleviation in the used car problem will give momentum to new car sales within the next week, auto dealers believe. Deliveries on new jobs have been holding up to normal, nevertheless. Predominant among the new models arriving each week are spring and summer types of the open variety. Davis Oldsmobile company unloaded their first sport coupes Thursday together with a supply of regular jobs. South Plains Motor company, local Willie-Knight and Whippet dealers, are expecting several sport roadsters in the Whippet line within the next ten days. Gough Motor company, Studebaker agency, is featuring convertible cabriolets for spring and summer sales. The local Studebaker distributor has just received another supply of their various models to meet the demand of spring sales.

Gough Branch at Lamesa Enjoying Much Success

McFall Motor company of Lamesa, a branch house of the Lubbock Studebaker concern, is enjoying unusual success, according to L. W. Hanson, manager, who was here on business last week. The Lamesa agency, which was established just recently, has made a splendid record in new car sales, averaging more than two new deliveries per week.

Walker Named Used Car Manager at Gough's

J. R. Walker of this city has been named manager of the used car department of the Gough Motor company. Mr. Walker is a firm believer in the selling power of Studebaker's iron clad guarantee on all used jobs.

Davis Branch Now Placed at Littlefield

Davis Oldsmobile company, local distributing house for the General Motors product, has established a branch house at Littlefield, according to C. C. Arnold, sales manager of the Lubbock organization. The associate house at Littlefield will be known as the Littlefield Oldsmobile company. The building for the new agency was rented Wednesday and Thursday afternoon four new automobiles were driven from the showrooms here to open up the new business in Littlefield.

The new Viking Vee Eight Oldsmobile, which has already received loud acclaim in early showings in metropolitan centers, will likely arrive in Lubbock about April 20. One of these new models has already been sold by the local house. The sale was made from a picture. Two car loads of Oldsmobiles were unloaded here Thursday afternoon by the Davis company.

Caprock Used Car Lot Is Successful

Caprock Motor company's used car lot on Avenue K has brought profitable returns to the local De Soto house, according to George Borham, manager of the used car department. Eight used cars were moved from the lot during the week just passed. In addition to the used cars sold, Caprock reports the sale of a De Soto sedan to Mrs. Nannie Walker of Roper, Texas.

News From Whippet Distributor Here

Three new whippets in addition to a number of used cars were rolled off the floor at the South Plains Motor company during the last week. All new cars were delivered to Lubbock citizens. J. M. Bludworth took a Whippet coupe while a coach went to A. L. Rampay and C. C. Rogers.

Four New Dodge Cars Are Sold

Walter W. Royalty of the Royalty Motor company delivered four new Dodge Brothers cars during the past few days. Roy Henson of Lubbock and W. F. Minton of Amarillo were sold coupes while W. B. Thorpe and W. M. Howard bought sedans.

SANDWICH BUTTER

Cream the butter before you start making sandwiches. If you would have it spread smoothly, use little and keep the bread from crumpling. If it is especially hard, add a few drops of hot water and mix them in.

Statistics prove that for every three men aged between 75 and 80 there are four women. For every four men over 85 there are seven women.

Roosevelt Given Popular Reception

The nation-wide introduction of the new Marmon-built Roosevelt last week resulted in an instantaneous public reception that far exceeded in intensity, enthusiasm and actual sales results any other new car announcement in the history of Marmon.

The public acceptance of the Roosevelt, in fact, was regarded by Marmon factory officials as one of the greatest ever accorded a new automobile, this opinion being based on reports received from Marmon-Roosevelt distributors and dealers throughout the country.

Conservative estimates place the number of visitors to Marmon sales rooms from coast to coast in the first two days of the Roosevelt presentation at 500,000, with the total mounting steadily as the week progressed. The result has been an influx of a record-breaking number of retail orders and insistent requests from scores of distributors and dealers for immediate shipments greatly in excess of their allotments of cars for the next two months.

Plymouth To Have National Display

Plymouth motor car dealers throughout the United States are preparing for a National Display and Demonstration starting April 20 and ending April 27. During this period the public is invited not only to view these Chrysler-built low priced cars in the dealer's showroom, but to receive a vivid demonstration during which they may experience how smoothly the Plymouth performs and how comfortable are these full sized cars.

On the night of Saturday, April 20, Plymouth dealers will draw the curtains on some of the most unique displays of automobiles ever exhibited. In these displays will be shown the beautiful, stylish but low-priced Chrysler-built Plymouth cars in all their spring glory and beauty with a wide variety of new, sparkling colors and smart color combinations. Also there will be announced some very important mechanical improvements. The motor-wise public which during the past weeks has looked over other cars in the low priced field, now has the opportunity of viewing a low-priced car which in appearance and performance belies its price tag.

CHRYSLER "65" ROADSTER (with rumble seat), $1045

Low price makes it an Exceptional Value

THE smart Chrysler "65" is so faultlessly fine it seems almost incongruous to stress its low price. Yet such a price for so notable a car is too important not to be called to the attention of all who seek exceptional value.

In style, the Chrysler "65" stands out as the fashion-plate of its field. It sparkles with an original and authentic type of beauty based on canons and principles of classic art, centuries old, yet new as the next tick of the clock.

In performance, it has that fleetness and smoothness that distinguish Chrysler cars from all others.

No car could be easier to handle, what with its responsiveness, pivotal steering, balanced front wheels, and the easy, positive action of its weatherproof internal-expanding 4-wheel hydraulic brakes—the safest ever devised.

Chrysler "65" serenely travels any road. Its extra-long springs are provided with rubber shock insulators as well as with hydraulic shock absorbers.

You'll be proud of a Chrysler "65" anywhere you go. And mingled with your enjoyment will be the satisfaction of knowing that you are getting so much value for such a modest investment.
