Brisk Opposition To Loan Proposal Flares In Senate

Amendment To Deficiency Bill Is Offered To Force Flat 12-Cent Loan Of Cotton

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Senate opposition to the farm administration's 1935 cotton loan-subsidy plan flared tonight when Senator Byrnes (D-SC) introduced an amendment to the third deficiency bill to force a flat 12-cent loan.

Consideration of the amendment was postponed until tomorrow after Byrnes had threatened an all-night filibuster.

Certain Of Welcome

Farm administration officials, predicting a billion dollar cotton crop this year, earlier had announced they were certain the new nine-cent loan and subsidy plan would be welcomed by farmers. Privately they had expressed confidence that the program would weather attacks from Capitol Hill.

Committee amendments to the appropriations measure were being introduced when Byrnes gained the floor and offered his proposal to direct the Commodity Credit corporation to grant farmers a direct 12-cent loan.

Raises Point Of Order

Senator Hale (R-Me.) immediately raised a point of order. Byrnes replied that he had a motion to suspend the rule to place his amendment in order.

Senator Adams (D-Col.) in charge of the appropriations measure, agreed to postpone consideration of Byrnes' motion until tomorrow. The South Carolinian then withdrew the amendment.

Earlier, Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, asserted the loan-subsidy plan would raise the farmer's average return to 12 cents a pound. It would, he said, place farmers in the "strongest possible position to bargain for satisfactory prices."

Expenditure Predicted

Coincidentally, Senator Smith (D-SC) issued a statement declaring the loan plan "is not a loan at all" and may force the government to make an "enormous expenditure" for the subsidy.

Smith said the administration had promised to renew a 12-cent loan if the Bankhead act was extended. Senators George (D-Ga.) and Bankhead (D-Ala.) were present when the promise was made, Smith said.

Cooperation Ended

As chairman of the senate agricultural committee, Smith said he believed that the announcement "ends any further cooperation in the form of agreements between the cotton growers and the government."

Bankhead also issued a statement saying an organized program would be begun at once to induce growers to hold their cotton for a price of 12 cents or better.

Smith interpreted the loan plan to mean that the bulk of the crop must be sold before January 1. AAA officials, however, insisted they were urging farmers to hold the crop for orderly marketing at fair prices.

Eruption Is Caused In Futures Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (AP) — Appearance of the long-awaited government announcement on loan plans for the 1935 crop caused an eruption in the cotton futures market today, although some traders, mill interests and other elements in the industry promptly came forward and gave the program their

Hoover Trade Policy Flayed At Demo Meet

Former Republican President Target For Word Attacks In Convention; New Deal Draws Praise Of Speakers

(By The Associated Press)

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 23.—Governor George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania, addressing the national Young Democratic convention here tonight, assailed the Hoover foreign trade policy and praised the New Deal for turning "the eyes of the country in upon itself."

His remarks were the second of the day aimed at the former Republican president. Earlier, U. S. Senator F. Ryan Duffy, of Wisconsin, answered Hoover's recent attacks on the Roosevelt administration.

Change Described

The fundamental change wrought by the New Deal, Earle said, is that "the center of gravity has swung away from New York toward the middle west where it belongs."

Stating that the "folly of the Old Deal" can be traced to foreign markets, Earle declared "the obsession of foreign trade reached its height when Herbert Hoover was secretary of commerce. He flung out a series of 'go-getters' across the globe to 'sell America to the world'. Unfortunately, America was being 'sold out' at home."

"It all depends on whose baby has the measles!" Senator Duffy asserted as he compared Mr Hoover's recent statements with those a decade ago when, Duffy said, the Republican leader was advocating emergency powers for the president.

The Wisconsin senator's speech was the first oratorical blast of the

Major Proposals Whipped Into Final Form

Deadlocks In Congress Are Being Broken

Tired Leaders Burn Midnight Oil In Drive Toward Certain Adjournment Of Long Session Tonight

Bills Are Passed

Guffey Coal Bill, Frazier-Lemke Farm Act And Railway Pension Tax Measure Are Sent To President

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—A tired congress saw bitter deadlocks broken tonight as the bulk of President Roosevelt's "must" legislation moved swiftly toward enactment before tomorrow's apparently certain adjournment.

As conference committees suddenly revived gold clause and alcohol control bills by "give-and-take" compromises, other major measures were whipped in a steady steam toward the White House.

Lights Burn Late

Lights burned late on Capitol Hill as both houses held night sessions. Roll calls were dropped in the rush to get through. Nerves were frayed, but there also was good humor.

Even before nightfall congressional action was completed on three measures and they were sent to the president.

The Guffey coal stabilization bill; the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium; the rail pension tax measure to provide funds for a previously enacted pension system.

Conferees In Agreement

Utility bill conferees late tonight finally agreed on the final draft of that hotly-contested measure — an action forecast by house acceptance yesterday of a compromise for the mandatory contested measure—an action forecast by house acceptance yesterday of a compromise for the mandatory holding company dissolution clause. It goes to both houses tomorrow.

The gold clause compromise would provide that suits resulting from dollar devaluation could be brought only up on Jan. 1, 1936, a four-month period instead of the six months sought by the house.

Alcohol control bill differences would be settled by house agreement to continuation of the ban against bulk sales of liquor, with the senate agreeing that the new FACA would be under the treasury department instead of an independent agency.

Must Be Approved

Both compromises now must be approved by both houses.

The house approved the "compro-

Plans For Removal Of Body Of Will Rogers Indefinite

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23. (AP) — Will Rogers, jr., indicated tonight it would be a month or two before his father's body is taken to his native Oklahoma for burial.

"All our plans in that regard are very indefinite," he said.

"We are trying to get mother away for a few weeks' rest, but it may be some time before this can be done. There is so much around here that keeps reminding her of dad, but maybe within a week or two it will be possible to make a short trip."

President Roosevelt Is To Speak To The Nation Tonight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (AP) — Telling newspapermen they were at the wrong end of the avenue, President Roosevelt withheld comment on public questions today at his press conference.

He referred to the closing jam in congress.

Mr. Roosevelt said he expected to work tonight and tomorrow on his radio speech which will be broadcast at 9:30 p. m. (eastern standard time) tomorrow.

Spurned Love Brings Death

Liquor Salesman Is Slain And Hunting Companion Wounded By Admirer; Gun Battle Is Staged In Woodland

(By The Associated Press)

MACON, Mo., Aug. 23.—The spurned affection of a slightly bald farmer for a pretty, brunette woman was blamed tonight by Sheriff B. R. Williams for the squirrel hunt slaying of her companion, a married liquor company salesman.

The slaying was followed by a woodland gun battle between the woman and her asserted admirer. Both were wounded.

Farmer Surrenders

James Hunt, 48, farmer near Macon, surrendered today as a posse with bloodhounds sought him for the fatal shooting last night of Chester Noland, 42, of Savannah, Mo., and the wounding of Miss Blanche Stamp, 37, a neighbor of Hunt.

Sheriff Williams said Hunt asserted he shot in self defense.

"But I learned otherwise," the sheriff added. "Hunt met the couple out in the woods and after asking what luck they were having went

Oklahoma Capitol Grounds Recommended For Memorial

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 23. (AP) — The Oklahoma capitol grounds was proposed tonight as a fitting site for permanent, home state memorials to Will Rogers and Wiley Post.

Student Dies As Result Of Bus Accident Friday

Services For Young Victim Are To Be Read In City

BODY of 15-year-old Bryan Heard Jones, jr., Lubbock High school sophomore fatally injured about 11 a. m. Friday when run over by a bus, will be sent to Fort Worth tonight for burial after services held at 1 p. m. by Dr. L. N. Lipscomb at the First Methodist church.

The boy died at 4:49 p. m. Friday at a sanitarium here, never regaining consciousness after the Nineteenth street and Avenue O mishap.

Fractures Suffered

Examination and x-ray revealed he suffered fracture of the left femur, right shoulder, several ribs, the pelvis, a possible skull fracture and concussion of the brain and laceration and contusion of the face. His death was caused by traumatic shock, it was believed.

Son of B. H. Jones, sr., 2424 Twenty-second street, and of Mrs. Anseth Jones of 2316 Tenth street, the boy is a member of the fall sophomore class at Lubbock Senior high school.

Fell Or Jumped

Young Jones fell or jumped from a car into the street intersection and was crushed beneath the right rear dual wheel of the bus.

A flash of a body—they said they thought it might have been a dog's—was all W. L. King, driver of the bus, and his sister, Miss Florence King of Tahoka, said they saw.

Felt Something Hit

"I felt something hit the front bumper and then I felt the back wheel go over something," King told Burton S. Burks, assistant district attorney. "I asked my sister what it was. She said it was a dog following that car." He said he did not know, until he investigated, that the truck had hit a boy.

Joyce Halsey, 13, of 2309 Seventeenth street told Burks that the lad was riding on the left running board of a Ford sedan she was driving southward across Avenue O. She said that when she was about a half block south of the intersection, Prentice Sylvester, who was on the front seat, noticed that the boy was not on the car. They stopped and learned of the mishap. Jones was on the east side of the car. The

Things Have Come To A Pretty Pass As Nudists Order Man Off Own Land

(By The Associated Press)

LONG VALLEY, N. J., Aug. 23.—Things have come to a pretty pass on Schooley's mountain, Will Searles says, when a farmer can't go picking blueberries on his own land without being accused of snooping, and sneaking and peeking at nudists.

Will's all in a fever about it, and so are the nudists.

The nudists were looking for Magistrate George McPeak today to complain about Will.

Will says he just happened to look up when he was out there and what did he see but six nudists—men and women.

And they ordered him away—off his own land, said Will. But he refused.

And on top of that the nudists want him arrested. Will's willin' to be shown who's right.

Army And Air Fleet Have Been Instructed How To Act With Fleet In Case Of Trouble; Grave Concern Felt

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The defense committee of the British cabinet ordered the imperial defense machine today to swing into position to maintain the empire's dominance of the Mediterranean, protect her colonies in Africa and keep open her lines of communication.

It directed provision of elaborate naval, military and air defenses for the Suez canal, an informant said.

Become Key Point

On protection and control of that gateway depends the very life of the empire, it was asserted. In the event of war in East Africa, the canal would become a key point. Its closing to warship and transports of combatants is already being discussed.

Such a move, one observer said, would be a mortal blow to Mussolini's East African ambitions.

During the meeting of the imperial defense committee at No. 10 Downing street today, the problem of Suez canal defense was discussed at length. One report had it that grave concern was expressed over the possibility the Italians might attempt to seize the canal in case of war.

Instructions Are Given

The opinion was expressed in both naval and military circles that the fleet alone is incapable of holding the canal and that the army and air force have already received instructions for use in case of trouble.

One of the chief worries of the British is possibility of attack by submarines and aircraft.

The admiralty, officials of which have long and publicly lamented the size and condition of the British fleet, was told, an informant said, to hasten the massing in Mediterranean waters of the strongest

Pain-Maddened Fish Turns Upon Man To Puncture Boat

BOSTON, Aug. 23. (AP)—A harpooned and pain-maddened 500-pound swordfish turned upon the dory of Louis Patrao as he sought to capture it, drove its sword through the bottom of the boat and all but sank it, members of the crew of the Gloucester schooner Portugal related today.

The crew of the Portugal, which brought in the swordfish, the biggest seen in Boston this season, said the fish swam two miles from the schooner with harpoon, line and buoy before it halted. Patrao was dispatched to bring it in but as he approached, the fish charged, driving its great sword through the bottom.

Vote Expected To Be Light; Repeal Forces Confident

Experienced Observers Believe Count Will Be Close; About 800,000 Eligible For Balloting; Other Amendments Will Be Decided; Final Appeals Are Sounded By Both Sides

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Aug. 23. — The fate of constitutional prohibition of alcoholic liquor was balanced in Texas tonight prior to a special statewide election on repeal tomorrow.

While wets and drys made last minute pleas from the stump, in the churches and over the radio, an estimated 400,000 to 600,000 voters prepared to write a verdict on the 16-year-old prohibition provision of the state constitution.

Expect Close Vote

Experienced observers believed the vote on repeal, one of seven constitutional amendments submitted, would be close, although claims of victory were voiced by both sides. It also was expected to be abnormally small.

Approximately 800,000 persons were eligible to vote, but the acknowledged apathy of the electorate, in striking contrast to the intense interest aroused in many prohibition struggles of the past, militated against heavy balloting.

Governor Is Opposed

Having appealed for a representative vote and a fair election, Governor James V. Allred was ready to cast his ballot at Wichita Falls, his home, against repeal. He favored submission but took no active part in the campaign.

United States Senator Morris Sheppard, co-author of the eighteenth amendment, urged retention of prohibition, charging that conditions since repeal of national dry laws had proven unsatisfactory.

Anti-prohibitionists, on the other hand, argued that bootlegging was rampant, that the state was losing revenue through failure to tax liquor and that individual liberty was unjustly restrained.

Three Main Propositions

The amendment to be voted on presented three main propositions, repealing statewide prohibition as it now exists, prohibiting the open saloon and providing for a system of local option somewhat similar to that in effect in 1919 when the prohibition amendment was adopted.

Other proposed amendments submitted would:

Authorize the legislature to pay pensions to persons over 65 years of age, who are not habitual drunkards, habitual criminals or inmates of any state-supported institution.

Authorize the state to supply free textbooks to all school children of scholastic age in Texas instead of only to those attending public schools, as at present.

Would Abolish System

The same amendment would abolish the existing system of apportioning the school funds on the scholastic population and permit the legislature to adopt some other basis, for example, on the average attendance.

Authorize the commitment of persons to institutions for mental

Becton Baptist Church Opposes Nudist Colony

Congregation of the Becton Baptist church wants no nudist colony at the Central Centennial exposition in Dallas in 1936.

That was made clear to Governor James V. Allred in a telegram which Rev. A. V. Bradley, pastor of the church, of Plainview sent from Lubbock yesterday. The telegram read:

"We, the Becton community of Lubbock county, in a meeting voted to petition you our noble governor to intervene in event Walter D. Cline signs a contract with any one for a nudist colony at Centennial. We pay taxes to support celebration but not to encourage sin. For sake of our wives, boys, and girls, please intervene."

Rev. Mr. Bradley said about 350 persons attending a revival meeting at the church Thursday night voted unanimously to ask Governor Allred to stop plans for the proposed nudist colony.

Nat Rodgers, concessions manager of the exposition, returned this week from the San Diego exposition, enthusiastic about a colony for the Centennial.

USES FOR CAKE

WE still want to make the most of the fresh fruits in the market but the evenings are growing cool enough to make cake acceptable with the fruit. If you buy plain cake, an attractive way is to spread the top and sides with jelly. Sprinkle with shredded cocoanut and top with whipped cream.

Or try this: Moisten a square of sponge cake or other plain cake with fruit juice and put a thick slice or half of a fruit on the cake. Garnish with a contrasting fruit.

HERE'S A PUDDING

ALONG with cakes, of course, go puddings. First, a date and nut combination, to be served piping hot with cold whipped cream. (Sounds paradoxical, doesn't it?) Take 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup broken nut meats, 1 cup dates cut in pieces, 1-3 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt. Beat eggs and sugar together until light. Add nuts, dates, flour, baking powder and salt. Mix well. Pour into well greased shallow glass baking dish, one quart size. Bake in moderately slow oven (325 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. Cut while still warm. Serves from 6 to 8 people. (Depending how big they want the slices.)

WE STUDY Barnabas as a "consecrated man of means." If the word were not seriously abused and productive of misleading associations, we should call Barnabas an early Christian "communist." That was really what he was in his early experience with the church when, we are told, the Christians had all things in common.

If all people in the world were Christians, and all Christians were of the character and quality of Barnabas, communism would be an ideal organization of society, but we can never have the sort of communism that Barnabas practiced without the Barnabas sort of faith and character.

There is not a great deal concerning him in Scripture, and yet he stands as an outstandingly great character of the whole Bible.

There is evidence that many converts to early Christianity were poor. The poverty of the Christians in the home church at Jerusalem was so great that Paul took up a collection for them in churches that were established in other parts of Asia and in Europe.

BUT NOT all these early Christians were poor or people of humble position. Later, in the church at Rome, we are told there were saints in Caesar's household, and here in the very beginning of the Christian church there were men like Barnabas who had property.

We are not told just how extensive Barnabas' property may have been. Otherwise the record is specific. He had a field, and he sold it, and he brought the money and laid it at the apostle's feet, that it might be used for the entire Christian community.

It may be remembered that Paul took Barnabas as his early missionary companion, though we may recall also that the two fine men had a dispute which they could not, apparently, adjust and which led to their separation. The dispute was about John Mark author of the second Gospel, the nephew of Barnabas, whom Paul did not wish to take with them again because he considered that John Mark had left them under circumstances not to his credit.

THE CHARACTER and the acts of Barnabas are in distinct contrast with those of Ananias and Sapphira, who professed to do the same thing as Barnabas, but who withheld the actual price of what had been sold.

We ought to grasp quite clearly the plain teaching here. The sin of Ananias and Sapphira was in misrepresenting the matter and not in their unwillingness to give the entire price of what they had sold.

The ideal thing in the Christian life is the full surrender of one's life and possessions to the service of God and man. But different individuals must determine what that means in their own lives.

If we would be truly Christian we must take such a man as expressing a great ideal and we must in our own way, with will and courage, determine how we can put that deal into practice. Possibly more men, if they had the will and spirit, could manifest the depth of their faith by following with literalness the example of Barnabas.

Last year's frocks look outdated with their back interest, when all fashion points are now centered at the front.

All Eyes Front for the Charm Of the New Dresses

SHIRRING, PLEATING, GODETS AND GORES ARE CENTERED FRONT THIS YEAR

Literally, an autumn dress must put up a good front to be in the fashion running. They must show detail of line and trimming in the front to definitely mark them new. This is a pleasant feature which is certain to find popularity with women, and one of which they do not tire quickly. This is most important, for autumn dresses are usually the most worn frocks in a wardrobe.

Filmland Garbs its Brides in Colors

The white satin and lace veil of tradition get little notice as Hollywood designers present surprising new wedding outfits

BOTH sophisticated and innocent is Rosalind Culli in this form-fitting bridal gown of eggshell satin. There is a yoke of tucked net, and tiny satin caps top sleeves of transparent net.

HERE'S a gay wedding gown of yellow net, which Ida Lupino wears over a beige taffeta slip. The flounce effect of the shirt is repeated in the shoulder treatment and on the headpiece.

PINK dotted Swiss was used to make this bridesmaid's gown which Kathleen Burke is wearing. Skirt and shawl collar are edged with a tiny double ruffle sewn on in scallop pattern.

HOLLYWOOD

ARE you fairly bursting with plans for a summer wedding? Hollywood girls would prefer that season, for summer offers such a happy excuse for disregarding the old conventions—white satin and lace veil.

If you want to achieve that "different" theme for your bridal plans, hark to the manner in which Hollywood would do it. Filmland's stylists have alluring suggestions for the summer wedding. They would fashion the gowns in the newest, coolest, most fascinating materials you can imagine: some have even put their stamp of approval on bridal gowns in colors.

Yes, COLORS: starched organdie the color of straw; taffeta the color of a pink dawn; pale yellow tulle and gray net. Adrian says he would dress the bride in ice-blue satin with a pillar bouquet of pink camellias. Rene Hubert suggests white cragnelee with a spun glass cap, and veil of white net.

Walter Plunkett would dress the bride in a semi-mid-Victorian manner—white starched organza gown with a bouquet of white carnations. He would pattern the cap after the old-fashioned bonnet and put many yards of tulle into the veil.

Royer has a delightful idea about the dainty lass before the altar. He would dress her like a Bo Peep Shepherdess. Her dress would be of shell-pink taffeta fashioned after the robe-de-style—high neck, tight bodice and sleeves of a modified leg-o'-mutton fashion. She would carry a bouquet of pink carnations and white baby's breath. Her shepherdess bonnet would have a pink taffeta brim, matching crown of net, and ribbons that tied beneath the chin. He would decorate the bonnet with real pink carnations.

Helen Myron would execute the bridal costume in a "daisy motif." The dress would be of white mouseline de soie. The peggy-rolled collars, cuffs and skirt would be edged in a solid embroidered pattern of pearl-petal daisies with yellow center. She would carry a great armful of yellow daisies surrounded by a flange of muslin. She would wear a countess sunbonnet decorated with the same floral design.

Orry-Kelly would drape the bride in a Grecian silhouette—dress of white crepe roma with bouquet of white water lilies. A long scarf, draped about the head in madonna-fashion, would replace the veil. If the little lady wanted to be very different, this stylist would dress her in deep peach crepe and bouquet of pastel-colored water lilies.

Ida Lupino, if she were planning a summer wedding, would choose pale yellow tulle for the dress; a bouquet of yellow daffodils; a tiara-brimmed cap of yellow net. Her net veil would be fastened to each shoulder with a real daffodil. Her bridesmaids would be dressed in beige net and brown taffeta garden hats.

That Hollywood is having its influence on the fashion of weddings was illustrated at the fashion show held recently at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

The grand finale was a magnificent bridal procession in which the bride wore a white lace gown. The conventional cap and veil was replaced with a huge comb and trailing lace mantilla — a direct adaptation of the sensational white costume which Travis Banton designed for Marlene Dietrich to wear in "The Devil Is a Woman."

COOL and crisp is Rosalind Keith in a bridesmaid's gown of pink organdie. The skirt is split to the waist, and the dress is worn over a deep rose-colored taffeta slip.

And Don't Forget The Republican!

Also Plenty Of Salt On This Fishing Trip; Baiter, Prodpole Man, Dispatcher And Umpire Needed To Handle Caddo Fish

(By The Associated Press)

CHICKASHA, Okla., Aug. 23. —Fish so hungry that a crew of specialized anglers must be organized for their capture were described today by B. B. Hanby, Chickasha railroad man, upon his return from the Texas bank of Caddo Lake.

"They use a crew of seven men for each pole and line down there," Hanby said, shaking his head reminiscently.

"A crew consists of a baiter, a prodpole man, a dispatcher, a lineman, an umpire, a weightmaster, and a Republican.

"They slip up to the lake early in the morning, put the baiter up a big tree near the water, pass the bait bucket up to him, station the prodpole man at the base of the tree, and arm him with a good elm club.

"The dispatcher puts 100 numbered and folded tickets in his hat, taking a position at the water's edge. The lineman clears a space so he can operate the pole and line. The weightmaster digs a pit and then the umpire rings a bell.

The Republican?

"The fish come crowding in and the dispatcher distributes the tickets to them while the prodpole man protects the baiter. The dispatcher gets the fish lined up in order. After they have unfolded and showed their tickets the umpire blows a whistle and they're off.

"The lineman flicks his hook to the baiter who affixes a bait and tosses the line into the water. Fish No. 1 grabs it, is pulled out where the umpire takes him off the line, checks his number, takes up his ticket and passes him to the weightmaster.

"The Republican has no regular assignment, so he sits on a stump and insists that it won't work. Some crews have tried to operate without a Republican, but it isn't so much fun.

Boondogglers Interfere

"One outfit tried to do away with the prodpole man by building a fire around the bait tree, but the tree caught fire and the baiter had to jump into the lake. The fish crowded him so hard that he nearly drowned.

"He finally gave the bait bucket to a big goggle-eye which got him on its back and managed to get him out of the jam and flick him out on the bank. The baiter said it was all right but next time he would pick out a smooth-back fish to ride on.

"One East Texas gang got to coming down the night before and bootlegging the tickets to the fish, but the boondogglers got next to it and are policing the place now."

Baer Alibi Is Shot Sky High By X-Ray Test

Pictures Show Max's Hands To Be Okay For Louis Bout And That Maulies Were Ready In Braddock Title Scrap

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (AP)—Max Baer's alibi that he couldn't whip Jimmy Braddock in defense of the heavyweight championship because his hands were hurt went the way of most fistic alibis today.

A group of New York State Athletic commission doctors reported that examination of a dozen plates showed the former heavyweight champion's hands hadn't been injured in years, let alone this summer.

Says Max Okay

As a result Brigadier General John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission, notified Promoter Mike Jacobs it was all right to go ahead with Baer's battle of redemption against Joe Louis, the negro sensation, from Detroit, in the Yankee Stadium here Sept. 24.

"The x-rays showed signs of fractures several years old, such as almost every fighter has after years in the ring," Phelan said in announcing the doctors' findings. "Bony callouses have formed around those old breaks and now his hands, in that respect, actually are stronger than before they were broken. The plates showed old dislocations, but no sign of an injury that might have happened as recently as the Braddock fight."

Like Primo's Ankle

Baer's frantic alibi; offered as soon as he lost the title and generally accepted as one of the reasons for his weak showing against Braddock, thus joined Primo Carnera's famous fractured ankle alibi, which the Italian giant blamed for his loss of the title to Baer.

That one exploded when prying reporters discovered that the x-ray pictures of Carnera's fracture were pretty examples of the kind of injury a man gets when he falls from a height and lands stiff legged on his heel, the kind of injury seldom repaired. Many things happened to Primo in the ring with Baer that night, but falling off a ladder was not one of them. The actual sitter for that ankle portrait never was discovered.

Daniel Baker To Put Strong Team On 1935 Gridiron

BROWNWOOD, Aug. 23. (AP) — Ten lettermen, seven squadmen, ten sophomores and two transfers from a junior college will make up the 1935 Daniel Baker football squad. Other lettermen to report for training Sept. 10 are Bill Trammell and Tommy Webb, guards, Orville Adams, tackle; Frank Coker, end; Medford Conger, quarterback; John Little, full; Charles Chrane and S. J. Howard, halfbacks.

Lubbock Hunters Nearing Alaska

W. G. McMillan and Temple Ingram, Lubbock men en route to Alaskan hunting grounds, will leave Seattle by boat this morning, bound for Seward, Alaska, according to a telegram received yesterday by Mrs. McMillan.

The men left here early last Sunday morning and reached Seattle Thursday morning.

They will proceed by land from Seward to McKinley Park, where with guides, a cook and horse wranglers they will push into the very center of Alaska to hunt grizzly bear, moose, caribou and other game.

Absent from Lubbock for two months or more, the men will do their hunting almost in the shadow of the Arctic circle and within 300 miles of narrow Bering Straits which separate Alaska from Siberia.

Defending Champions Lose In National Muny Net Tourney

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23. (AP)—Defending titlists fell by the wayside today in two divisions of the 13th annual National municipal parks tennis championships as finalists were determined in all but the women's doubles bracket.

Lydia Kayser, Buffalo, N. Y., trounced Mrs. Ruth Prosser of St. Louis, the defending women's singles champion, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 to gain the right to battle Elizabeth Deike of Pasadena, Calif., in the finals Sunday.

The 1934 men's doubles champions, William Schommer, big ten singles titleholder, and Charles Virtzius, both of Minneapolis, bowed before the superior team play of a Memphis tandem, Billy Hughes and Cecil Metz.

Umpires Given Warning After Cincy Trouble

Ziggy Sears And John Reardon Disciplined By Ford Frick After Run-In With Fans At Giants-Reds Game

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—As an outgrowth of disturbances both on and off the field during a series between the New York Giants and Reds at Cincinnati a month ago, Ford C. Frick, president of the National League, today made known he has warned all umpires against haranguing or otherwise attempting to control the actions of baseball spectators.

The policy was set forth by Frick in confirming the fact that Umpires John (Beans) Reardon and John (Ziggy) Sears had been "disciplined" for their part in the outbreak at Redland Field on July 7, when feeling over a decision adverse to the home team reached such a pitch that pop bottles were hurled from the stands and a melee threatened.

May Forfeit Games, But—

"Umpires Sears and Reardon have been disciplined for their action in going over to the stands during the trouble in Cincinnati," Frick wired the Cincinnati Enquirer, "the ruling of this office being that the policing of the stands and crowds is strictly a matter for the home club and upon failure of the home club to provide proper policing, it is within the province of the umpires to forfeit the ball games. Warning also has been issued to all umpires concerning this matter."

Frick declined to reveal what form the discipline of the umpires had taken.

Wichita Falls To Be Tourney Host Aug. 31 - Sept. 3

WICHITA FALLS, Aug. 23. (Special)—More than 100 golfers, most of them from Northwest Texas, are expected to leave the No. 1 tee at the Wichita Falls Country Club August 31, in quest of the championship of the eighth annual invitation tournament. Early interest indicated the finest field ever to start in the event, and practically every club in this section of the state will be represented.

Professional Polly Gebert has given the country club's splendid course a final grooming, and visiting golfers will be introduced to one of the finest layouts in the entire southwest. A par 72 links, it is not particularly long, but it presents worlds of trouble for the player who fails to keep his shots in line. Natural hazards of water and woods, and well trapped all the way, it offers a splendid test of golfing skill, but is not too severe in its demands of the average player. Eighteen rolling grass greens have been given particular attention for the last month, and at no time in its history has the course been in better general condition than for this year's invitation meet.

The tournament opens Saturday, Aug. 31, and extends through Tuesday, September 3. All entries will qualify for match play and consolations will be played in each flight. Two match play rounds are scheduled for Sunday and Monday, September 1 and 2, bringing the event to the final stage for Tuesday, September 3.

A particularly attractive feature of this year's tournament is the fact the dates take in two holidays, Sunday and Labor Day, enabling entries to attend the meet with little or no loss of time from their businesses.

Winners of past tournaments are as follows: 1928, Ed. Steward, Fort Worth; 1929, Gus Moreland, Dallas; 1930, Morris Norton, Wichita Falls; 1931, James Phillips, Ranger; 1932, Byron Nelson, Fort Worth; 1933, Morris Norton, Wichita Falls; 1934, Tommy Cochran, Wichita Falls.

Jones Returns To Golf Action

Minus Appendix, Bobby Plays And Rests; "Feels Better" But Putting Not Helped By Recent Operation

HIGHLAND, N. C., Aug. 23. (AP)—Bobby Jones, retired world champion of golf, is feeling "fine" after his recent appendicitis operation, and you have his own word for it.

The usually reticent golfer-lawyer said so today when asked about his health and how his game is coming along.

Sojourning with his family at their new cottage, Noona Wasta, in this summer resort 3,500 feet above sea level, Bobby plays golf occasionally and shoots skeet (lefthanded) nearly every day as he accumulates health and vigor in a long rest planned until September 15.

There was belief that Bobby's "old touch" about the greens had been bothered in recent years by the ailing appendix, and some inquiries were made regarding the possibility of improvement of the game of the man who had a brilliant career in competitive golf for 22 years.

Needs Less Paregoric

"Well, don't you think—and maybe hope—that the elimination of the appendix will tend to bring back the good old touch about the greens?" he was asked.

"I don't think it will have a darned thing to do with my putting," Bobby replied hastily. "It may cut down my consumption of paregoric, however."

The interview with the "grand-slam" king who retired in 1930 after winning the four major titles of the world was prompted by reports that he had produced rounds of 64 to 71 and that he was putting with greater certainty.

"How are you playing?" he was asked.

Not Till Next Spring

"Not badly," was the typical Bobby answer. "I'm putting better, but haven't played much. My game hasn't improved much. You must remember I was putting better before I went to the hospital."

Bobby said his plans for the future were the same as in the last few years.

"So far as I know now," he said, "my only competition will be in the Augusta National tournament next spring."

His statement, "so far as I know now," left an impression that some day Bobby might return to active tournament play.

Coach Names Gridsters For Training Camp

Thirty-Five Athletes And 5 Coaches Leave Monday For Ten-Day Camp In Mountains Near Las Vegas, N. M.

Brimming over with anticipation for what he thinks will be a significant move, Head Coach Weldon Chapman of Lubbock High school yesterday tolled the count on 35 candidates for the 1935 team who are to leave here Monday for a ten-day training camp in the mountains near Las Vegas, N. M.

"We don't expect to win the district championship," Chapman said, "because we just don't have the material this year. But I am sure the team will be better off for having made the training camp, and I believe the friends and fans who contributed toward the cost of the trip will not regret it."

Five Coaches Going

The boys who are invited to make the trip, with Coaches Chapman, Goober Keyes, Ross Ayers, Bennie McWilliams and Business Manager E. J. Lowrey, are:

C. J. Griggs, Ralph Letsinger, George Morgan, Arvie Lee Oden, C. L. Storrs and Ramon Tapps, ends; Raymond Blue, Dub Comer, Babe Ritchie, Bob Ritchie, Wayne Sullivan and Dixie White, tackles; Wilson Abbott, Paul Kinard, Lonnie McCurry, Wilburn Piercey, Cecil Sanders, and Jim McMahon, guards; Rafe Nabors, center.

Guy Bonnette, Earl Ince and Othie Upton, quarterbacks; Marshall Hendryx, Clendon Kerr, Joe McClinton, John Morrison, Jim Long, Sterling Short, Murray Venable, Harold Ingley, Jack Cole, and Joe Jones, halfbacks; Herchel Maxey, Clayton Wassom and Max Rutledge, fullbacks.

Student Manager Harold Lynn will accompany the club, which plans to return to Lubbock about September 4.

Rufus King Wins From Spec Stewart In Colorado Joust; Enters Semi-Finals Today

DENVER, Aug. 23. (AP)—In a day studded with sensational upsets, Art Stewart, youthful caddy of the Lakewood club, Denver, today became the favorite in the Colorado Open amateur golf tournament. He finished the fourth round as the first semi-finalist.

Stewart early today eliminated Nate Grimes, medalist in a stunning upset, 3 and 1. The 17-year-old caddy swept on this afternoon to defeat Joe Hartmen, also of Lakewood, 4 and 2.

In another upset, Jack Mallory, of Tulsa, was eliminated by Bob Warren, of Cherry Hills club, Denver, 3 and 2.

Quarter-finals play today saw Brown Cannon, of Lakewood, move into the semi-finals with a smashing 6 and 5 victory over young Noble Chalfant, of Denver City Park.

As surprising as other upsets was the quarter-finals victory of Rufus King, jr., of Wichita Falls, Tex., over "Spec" Stewart, of Albuquerque, New Mexico state champion. He defeated Stewart 1 up in 19 holes.

Art Stewart will battle it out in the semi-finals tomorrow with Warren, King will cross clubs with Brown Cannon.

Representatives Of Four Midwest States Meet With Texans To Plan Fight

Court Battle Is Promised

Protective Tariff Will Draw Opposition; Farmers Said To Be Solidly Behind Move Started In Texas

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (AP) — Lawrence C. Brennan, Emmetsburg, Iowa, corn-hog farmer, announced here today representatives of four midwest states would meet Texas farmers at Kansas City tomorrow to consider plans for a court fight against the protective tariff.

Brennan said the suit would be filed if a suit testing constitutionality of the AAA is taken to the supreme court.

Brennan, who said he is chairman of the allotment committeemen of Iowa, is director for Iowa of the new League of Economic Equality now organized in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota.

Representatives Named

Vernon Vrooman of Drake university, Des Moines, Alvern S. Wendel of Bronson, and Adrian Bowers of Emmetsburg, Brennan said, would represent the league at the Kansas City meeting. Texas, he said would be represented by H. G. Lucas of Brownwood, V. C. Marshall of Heidenheimer and J. R. McCrary of Calvert.

"We are going to fight for the AAA," Brennan said. "This is a patriotic move. Agriculture is solidly behind us.

"Furthermore, we want to issue a warning to politicians of both parties that we want no change in the constitution but we do want a more correct interpretation of our present constitution."

Brennan charged agitation against present high pork prices to an "unfriendly metropolitan press."

"Politics, selfishness and grant are responsible for the meat prices agitation," Brennan said.

Officials Are Advised To Block Sale Of Beer Today

AUSTIN, Aug. 23. (AP)—Attorney General William McCraw advised officials today not to permit sale of beer tomorrow because of a special election on seven constitutional amendments.

While advising against beer sales, the attorney general explained a statute prohibiting sales on general and primary election days may be interpreted to permit sales on special election days.

"It is the spirit of the legislative enactment," he said, "that sale of any intoxicating liquor should be prohibited on election day."

Former Capital Society Belle Found Dead; Was Victim Of A "Tired Heart"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (AP)—In the front windows of a fine old home, 1327 M street, house ferns are slowly dying. Mrs. Jeter C. Pritchard, North Carolina senator's widow who used to water them, is dead.

Friends said Mrs. Pritchard, a Washington belle who became one of the capital's famous hostesses around the turn of the century, died in proud poverty. That four-story place, built by her father fifty years ago when she was twelve, was foreclosed. Piece by piece, she'd sold the handsome Victorian furniture.

Dies Of Heart Failure

Policemen, summoned by the barking of her dog Jerry, crashed the door to discover her two days dead. It was heart failure.

"A tired heart—that's what she died of," said her one close friend and confidante, Mrs. John E. Fowler.

"Seems a shame I can't get in to water her plants," said Mrs. B. Jamison, next-door-neighbor. "Looking at them fade through the glass is kind of like watching a person fail."

Her will, which was only a wasn't anymore, filed yesterday three weeks after her death, listed debts and pawn tickets on diamonds.

Magazine Junked

One of the very last things Mrs. Pritchard did was to toss into the trash a society magazine of August 20, 1904, with her picture on the cover in a gorgeous gown and plumed hat she'd worn to luncheon at the White House, as bride of the North Carolinian who'd just been given a judgeship by Theodore Roosevelt, after 8 years in the senate.

Mrs. Fowler rescued it as a keepsake.

"One of the handsomest types of womanhood to be found in this country," the Washington Mirror called Mrs. Pritchard.

Neutral Plans Are Approved

Strict Gag Rule Is Set Up In House; Measure Sent Back To Senate For Action On FDR's Amendments

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (AP)—A seven-point neutrality plan revolutionizing traditional American policies was pressed swiftly through the house today by administration leaders, operating under a "gag" rule.

It went back to the senate for action on amendments specifically requested by President Roosevelt. Outstanding was the February 29, 1936 limit clamped on the senate's mandatory arms embargo provision.

An Open Invitation

The resolution was criticized as an "open invitation to the great and powerful to attack the weak," it was fought because the embargo section is mandatory and it was assailed because it includes no ban on financial aid to warring countries.

But despite its sweeping character it passed without even a standing vote. As many put it, "it is the best we can get."

Besides the embargo, the resolution creates a new national munitions board to control licensing of arms exports and lets the president by proclamation take action to keep Americans off foreign ships, bars submarines from American ports and forbids American vessels to carry munitions.

Strict Gag Rule

It was brought up under the strictest kind of "gag" rule, which forbade the presentation of any amendments and clipped debate off after 40 minutes.

Actually presented to the house was an amended senate resolution which would:

Put a mandatory embargo on the shipment of arms to warring nations until February 29, 1936;

Establish a new national munitions control board 90 days after the law is signed;

Turn over to that board administration of a new system under which all exports of arms and munitions would have to be licensed, the board; however, having no right to refuse licenses;

Let the president forbid American ships to carry arms or munitions to any belligerent nation or any neutral port for transhipment to a belligerent;

Allow the president to direct American citizens to stay off the ships of belligerent nations, except at their own risk;

Authorize the president to bar the use of American ports to submarines of belligerent nations;

Let the president prevent any ships, either American or foreign from carrying men or supplies to belligerent vessels at sea.

Burial Plans Said Blocked

New York Republican Claims That By Objecting To Bill He Has Been Placed In An Embarrassing Position

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. (AP)—Representative Snell (R-NY), house minority leader, blocked congressional approval yesterday of a bill permitting Will Rogers and Wiley Post to be buried in Arlington cemetery although he said he was placed in an embarrassing situation.

"In objecting to this bill, I realize I am placed in a very embarrassing situation," he said. "Will Rogers was a friend of mine for a great many years. I considered him an outstanding American in every respect. Arlington cemetery has been set aside as sacred and hallowed ground exclusively for the burial of men who served in the armed forces of the United States. As far as I know there has been practically no exception.

"Mr. Rogers was a great humorist, he was a great actor, he was a great American but was never connected with the armed forces of the United States. I am doubtful whether the family of these two outstanding Americans desire this bill to pass."

A Sermon By McIntyre

IF the Editor of The Morning Avalanche were a minister of the gospel he would take his sermon subject tomorrow morning from the recent writings of a famous reporter and columnist—O. O. McIntyre.

Writing "A Tribute To Will," as he called it, in his syndicated column "New York Day By Day," Mr. McIntyre said:

"Consciousness after death is not a mere 'something to be hoped for' with me, but a conviction—as certain and fixed as the scatter of stars at night."

There you have the word of a man who does not live what could be called a Puritanical life; certainly not a cloistered one.

The highways and the byways have known Odd McIntyre, first as an itinerant reporter, later as a press agent and still more lately as the most widely read columnist in the world.

From Hong Kong and Delhi, from the hidden places of the world, Odd McIntyre's writings have spun across the cables to waiting millions in his native U. S. A. He walks with princes and talks with paupers; probably no man knows more intimately both the better and the seamy sides of life. Odd McIntyre's work bench is the world and all that's in it—from the cathedral to the 'hot spot'—yet to him "consciousness after death . . . is as certain and fixed as the scatter of stars at night."

From an orphan lad in the Missouri back country to boyhood in Galliopolis, Ohio, from Galliopolis to hither, thither and yon went Odd McIntyre; finally passing his apprenticeship in the hard boiled city room of a New York newspaper he went on to fame. Yet "with me it is a conviction," he says, "that there is consciousness after death."

Odd McIntyre is not what we usually think of as a deeply religious man.

By that we mean the joys of the world are his and the whole field of entertainment is his playground.

Yet through the years he has held to a faith which has been unshaken by what he has seen and heard—and that is what makes his testimony worth basing a sermon on.

As The Morning Avalanche sees it, such a statement made by a man like Odd McIntyre, who has "been everywhere, seen everything and met everybody," is of vastly more import than it would be coming from a minister, a stern deacon or a nun. For surely, if after all his experience he has found it logical to hold to the belief of life after death, then certainly the rest of us should take cognizance.

ABUSE OF A PRIVILEGE

The movement in the Senate to protect the President of the United States and the members of his cabinet from abuse on the Senate floor ought to become a movement to protect every citizen of the United States from Senatorial character assassination.

The Senate rules should be so amended as to restrain a Senator's privilege of not being held to account in other places for what he says on the floor of the Senate, within the bounds of common decency.

Any Senator can go out and hire a hall, say what he likes and take the consequences, and, for that and for other reasons, there is no excuse for allowing him to bring his billingsgate into the Senate chamber and turn what ought to be a forum of serious debate into a fish-market.

The President and cabinet members are in this respect no more sacred than the humblest citizen, whose character should be above attack by cowardly loudspeakers blaring their imputations from behind the skirts of Senatorial immunity to libel suits.

WITH OUR CONTEMPORARIES

"Our Stoneback subscriber writes in to know what we intend to do about the rain," Old Jack Hurst says in the Home Brew column of the Hale Center American, after taking a long Rip Van Winkle.

"Milady can think of nothing but what she wants to wear this fall," Jean Suits chatters in the Lockney Beacon. "This writer thinks it is not what you wanna wear but that you are gonna wear that counts."

Today's One-Minute Sermon

Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter therein.

And a certain ruler asked him, saying, Good Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? none is good, save one, that is, God.

Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultry, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Honour thy father and thy mother.

And he said, All these have I kept from my youth up. — St. Luke, XVIII: 17-22.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE BIG POT

The Big Pot of Bunzlau, in German Silesia, which furnishes the emblem of this city of potters, has a romantic background.

In 1753, a potter's assistant, named Joppe, wooed his master's daughter. Before the proud father gave his consent, he required the aspirant to make a pot of a capacity of 30 bushels of peas. The assistant executed the order to the master's satisfaction and married the girl. Ever since, the Big Pot of Bunzlau has been kept in the museum of the city.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lou Brookman © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALE HENDERSON, pretty, 23, works in a silk mill. Gale has had two years of college training, hoped to be a teacher. When her father became ill she was glad to take any work she could get. She and her 19-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father.

STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him his answer in a few days.

Later that night she goes skating on the river. The ice breaks and she is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the silk mill. Brian arrived home only that day, after spending two years in Paris, studying art. He asks Gale to wait while he goes for his car but when he returns she is gone.

Meanwhile ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, tells his daughter, VICKY, that Brian is home. Vicky hurries to the telephone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

VICKY THATCHER swung one slippered toe and spoke into the ivory telephone. "Oh, Mrs. Westmore," she was saying, "Father's just told me that Brian's home from Paris—"

The answer could not have pleased her, for white teeth closed down on the crimson lip. Vicky frowned slightly. Her voice did not alter, though, as she went on smoothly, "Oh—he's not there? But it doesn't matter at all. I just wanted to tell you, Mrs. Westmore, how glad I am about it—for you, I mean. Brian really should be with you. I know he'll be a great comfort. Of course all of us— I mean his old friends—will be glad to see him."

She listened for a moment and then went on: "Yes, I saw him in Paris, you know last winter. That's why it was such a surprise when Father told me. I thought Brian was going to stay abroad. Yes? Well, oh, that's nice of you to say that. Why, of course. I'll be glad to—"

A minute later she had put down the telephone, stood staring at her reflection in the full-length mirror. Vickey's hair fitted her head smoothly like a cap. It was so dark it was almost black. She changed the outline of the cap slightly, studied the effect and changed it again. Now she was smiling. With elaborate casualness she took a fresh cigaret from a box, lighted it and hurried down the stairs.

Her father, almost completely buried in a newspaper, sat in a big chair before the fire place. Vicky drew a footstool nearer and sat down.

Robert Thatcher said, "H-m-m-."

Vicky threw one arm across his knees "Father—" she said.

"Yes."

"Father, I want to talk to you."

The edge of the newspaper sagged. Thatcher looked down at his daughter. "Well—?" he asked.

Vicky's brown eyes were completely guileless: "I want you to forget what I said about going to Havana," she said, "with the Stoners. I've changed my mind. I mean I'd really rather stay here—with you."

Robert Thatcher covered her hand with his. "Maybe later—" he suggested.

Vicky nodded. "Maybe later there'll be some place I'll want to go. In the meantime I'm going to stay right here. There's one thing, though, Dad. I do need some clothes terribly."

"Can't you buy them?"

"You darling! I think I'll run up to New York for a couple days' shopping. I could be back by Thursday—"

Thatcher smiled. "Run along," he said. "I'm glad you've decided not to go to Cuba. I'm glad you're going to stay here for a while."

Vickey rose from the footstool, crossed the room to where the radio stood and dialed a dance band. She was humming to herself, moving slightly with the rhythm of the one-step as her father returned to his newspaper. Presently she went upstairs again to her bedroom.

And thus the day — which had brought important changes in the lives of four persons—ended. Vicky Thatcher planned her trip to New York, the gowns she would buy, the hotel restaurant where she'd drop in for lunch, the amusing friends she must look up—

Steve Meyers, less than a mile away, pushed open the door to the kitchen of the house where he lived with his mother and entered, walking heavily. Steve carried a load of firewood which he dropped into a bin beside the stove. His mother called from the next room, "Steve, don't forget I'll need some kindling."

"I'll get it."

Steve turned, quietly, and left the house. Gale hadn't said she'd marry him. He'd hardly hoped that she would—right away. But she'd told him there was no one else. She'd said that much. And she'd promised to give him an answer in a day or two.

What would that answer be?

Steve, healthy, sturdy, was a natural optimist. He picked up a piece of kindling wood, broke it with a loud snap, over his knee. Steve began whistling a tune he liked. It was a good tune. Part of the words went:

"I want a girl just like the girl who married dear old Dad—"

Meanwhile Gale Henderson hurried along a dark street with small box-like dwellings on either side. Gale hoped she'd be able to get into the house without meeting anyone. She must change her clothes for something dry. She hoped that her father would be in his room, for she didn't want to tell him about the ice cracking. It would only worry him.

And at the same time Brian Westmore stood on a deserted river bank, gazing at a smouldering fire. The girl was gone—no doubt about that. Brian turned and walked back to where he had parked the coupe. He eased himself behind the steering wheel, stepped on the starter.

"I wonder," Brian asked the silent darkness," what her name is?"

For those four persons it had been an important day—more so than any of them realized.

The day that followed seemed quite the opposite. Gale arose promptly, hurried through the morning tasks and walked to the mill with her brother. She was at her place when the bell sounded, ready for work—one of 60 women, some older and some younger than herself, standing before the rows of machines that filled the gray, noisy, moist over-heated room. All of the 60 wore blue apron-dresses. Their arms went up and down, up and down, clamping on bobbins, twisting the thread, snapping the bobbins off again.

Sometimes the girls moved a few steps to left or right. Sometimes their eyes wandered across the room. But none of the 60 ever spoke. They worked automatically — precise, impersonal as the machines.

Gale's fingers moved like the rest. In two years at the mill she had learned to keep up with the flying silken spindles in spite of weariness, in spite of thoughts that would persist in breaking through the monotony of the grinding, shrieking room.

Today was like that. There were thoughts that wouldn't be pushed back, that wouldn't stay securely where she had put them. Instead of moving hands and jerking bobbins, instead of whirling silken spindles, Gale saw a young man with broad shoulders, a young man with brown eyes, whose face was deeply tanned. She saw him smiling, looking up at her as he knelt, coaxing the flames of the bonfire to rise higher. She heard him say, "Look—if you stand over here I think you'll get more heat," and then, "if you don't mind waiting alone for a few minutes I'll dash down and get my car."

She had run away. Of course she had run away! What else had there to do? Brian Westmore had saved her life, but it was what he would have done for anyone. He hadn't recognized her, hadn't known she was a mill girl. He was, as Gale admitted to herself, much nicer than she had expected. Friendlier and easier to talk to.

There was something else that had surprised her. For a moment she had actually felt sorry for him, for Brian Westmore! It was when he had said, "I'm not going back to Paris. I had the fool notion I could be an artist but I found out I was mistaken."

Something in the way he said it had made her think of herself, her ambition to become a teacher. Brian Westmore wanted to be an artist and couldn't, just as she had dreamed of teaching school. Now he was "going to get a job." He meant in the mill, no doubt. She had come back to the mill, and so had Brian Westmore—but what a difference!

He'd have an office up in front, an office with high, wide windows and plenty of sunshine. There would be no rows of machines keeping up their merciless, pounding din; no stifling air; no standing, hour after hour, before jerking bobbins, clamping them on and snapping them off; no foreman to snap out orders—

The thought brought Gale back

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S western trip will be a more serious and elaborate venture than he planned originally. Political outriders, including National Chairman Farley, have advised him to make as many personal appearances and speeches as he can crowd in. They see the need—and the chance—to make political capital of the tour.

Although White House aides keep it quiet, the President may not shove off until almost October 1. The postponement is more important than it seems. Non-political economists look for a strong upward movement in the early fall. And signs point to it. By deferring his journey Mr. Roosevelt will be a better position to exult over recovery and the people will be in a bitter mood for that kind of talk.

But Mr. Roosevelt won't forget reform. His principal address will probably deal with his power program and its ramifications. He isn't taking advice that he should discard controversial subjects on this swing.

SOUR: Somebody ought to tip off Jim Farley that certain secretaries in the Post Office department are getting him in bad—or worse—with members of Congress. And he has no popularity to spare.

When a legislator telephones his department, he is asked to state whether he is "Democratic or Republican Representative" before he is connected with the official he has called. Even some Democrats think that this system is a bit rough. Florence Kahn, ordinarily good-natured, burned up the wire when asked for her political pedigree. Odd part of it is that she had called to do a favor for the largest contributor to the Democratic party in northern California.

A check-up reveals that no other department has adopted this system of separating the sheep and the goats. In fact, some are more friendly to GOP-ers than to Democrats.

PINPRICKS: Republican publicists have taken the aggressive after two years of silent typewriters and mimeographs. They have made the startling discovery that even the immunity which spared President Roosevelt from attack has apparently been withdrawn.

Harry Brown, the new GOP publicist, misses no chance to jab at the Democrats. He advertises their dissensions and enlarges upon their "radicalism." Besides distributing material to newspapers, he slips suggestions to writers. For instance, Senator Thomas of Utah returned home some time ago in the belief that his presence at Washington was not essential to the national welfare. Mr. Brown broadcast this item to western newspapers and the Senator hotfooted it back to the Senate.

It's pinpricks like this which deflate parties and politicians, as Charles Michelson demonstrated when John Raskob hired him to undermine Herbert Hoover.

UNTIMELY: An overlooked feature of the present Congressional session is the failure to act on several measures designed to purify politics. There has not even been any consideration of the Black bill to register lobbyists, of Civil Service legislation, of the Steiwer measure to bar federal office-holders from national conventions.

The Steiwer bill's fate is particularly interesting. It passed the House in 1934 but failed in the Senate. It was called up several times in the Senate at this session, but it was always laid aside on the objection of Democratic spokesmen. Majority Leader Robinson and Substitute Leader Barkley always arose to protest against its consideration.

Administrationites originally favored this kind of legislation. Their changed attitude may be understandable. With reports that conservative Democrats and Huey Longers intend to embarrass Mr. Roosevelt in the convention, it may be a bad time to outlaw federal office-holders as delegates.

NOTES: Roper's Business Advisory committee advised the President to postpone the tax bill—heh, heh! . . . Congress appropriated $16,000 for the G. A. R. encampment in Washington next year, but the G. A. R. doesn't want it and doesn't know why Congress acted. . . . Another fling will be had at railroad pensions. . . . Plenty of candidates for the $10,000 Social Security board jobs. . . . Senator Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina gets a fat work-relief allotment to help him in his campaign.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

THE sustained buoyancy of the stock market has Wall Street peering through rose-colored glasses again. The boys still carp at the New Deal—as in duty bound—but somehow it's difficult to work up the old venom with new highs being chalked up nearly every day. You might think that Washington would be pleased with this evidence of recovery—but apparently not. All sorts of bearish prophecies have been emanating from the capital. It looks like a deliberate campaign to apply the brakes—although the market to date is completely unimpressed.

Some astute observers believe the administration is trying to forestall a runaway rise with a sickening thud at the end. Others ascribe Washington's gloomy attitude to a more personally practical motive. Many Washingtonians sold their stocks even before the April boom began and have been left staring enviously at the profits they might have had. Comment runs that they probably wouldn't mind seeing the market bounce back so they could climb aboard again at a point somewhere near where they got cold feet.

The public is beginning to speculate again. The increase in daily volume of trading is one indication. A surer one is the recent spurt in stocks of the canine category. This means that the Securities Exchange Commission will be in for an awful panning when the reaction sets in. Wasn't it supposed to protect the layman from losses?

RECOVERY: There's evidence that the durable goods giant is at last awaking from his slumbers. Production and sales figure in various lines for the first half of 1935 show startling improvement against a year ago. Auto production, for instance, is up by 32 per cent; machine tool by 47 per cent and residential building by 58 per cent. Refrigerator sales have risen by 17 per cent, oil burner sales by 29 per cent and air conditioning sales by 36 per cent.

At the same time contracts awarded for factory construction and modernization by a number of industries for the first seven months of this year also show marked gains as against the same period in 1934.

Such contracts by public utilities have climbed by 50 per cent, for general factories by 116 per cent, for auto factories by 191 per cent, for foundries by 435 per cent and for aircraft factories by 900 per cent. The lone important exception are the railroads, which show a decline in contracts awarded of 74 per cent.

ORDERS: Mussolini is taking no chances on inadequate preparations for Ethiopian hostilities. Italian professional men — especially doctors — have been quietly called home from the United States in the past few months. Many of them have their "first papers." An Italian hospital in New York has been virtually denuded of its original staff. The top men were recalled three months ago—the others a month later. Italian nuns have also been ordered home en masse for service in Ethiopia. The church has a deep interest in the conquest-to-be.

American industry is getting something of a fillip in war orders. Large purchases have been made here recently of airplanes, tractors and machinery of various kinds—for cash. Il Duce's credit standing is no better with business men than with bankers.

NEW: Banking insiders get word that Britain intends to keep the price of gold in terms of sterling substantially where it is at present. This simplifies the task of maintaining de facto stabilization between the dollar and the pound—a matter on which American and British authorities have been quietly cooperating for some time.

Side Glances —By George Clark

"Well, thank goodness! They're finally getting around to fixing this old pavement."

Letters To The Editor

Commissioner Richardson Questions Commissioner Benson

Editor, The Avalanche: On August 21, you published in your Letters To The Editor column a statement signed by City Commissioner George E. Benson, setting forth Mr. Benson's reasons for voting against issuance of revenue bonds to construct a municipal gas system.

Will you permit me, in your letters column, to answer Mr. Benson's letter by setting forth the following questions for Mr. Benson to answer? He will be appreciated more by the citizens of Lubbock to admit he has been misinformed than to permit his good name to be among those whose selfish interests and ambitions are prompted purely by a financial gain.

Were you not on the past City commission when they asked for $1,700,000 from P. W. A.?

If the "competent engineers" estimate that gas system should cost $1,300,000, didn't that include almost $100,000 as fees, and expenses, for engineering?

Is it not a fact that you supported, by your vote in the commission, the late tax bonds for a gas system?

Why should you want to vote tax bonds on the people and not be in favor of a revenue bonds, that cannot cost the people anything?

Can you explain how funds on deposit from utilities operated by the city can be diverted to other uses?

Could the city not be permanently enjoined from appropriating water and light funds to pay off revenue bonds?

Would you as a commissioner approve taking other funds and paying off gas revenue bonds if they should become delinquent?

Is it not a fact that your high-powered foreign engineers' figures showed that a gas system owned by the city would pay itself out in twenty years and have almost three quarters of a million dollar surplus?

Is it not a fact that the city-owned utilities now in operation enable us to enjoy one of the lowest, if not the lowest tax rate of any town in Texas near our size?

Have you or can you determine that the plans of the proposed system are not adequate to serve Lubbock until the town reaches 30,000 people?

By what rule of mathematics can you conclude that there will be $500,000 lost in discount on sale of bonds, and have the same gas system actually built, when the proposed issue is practically the cost of your competent engineer estimates, less of course the exhorbitant fee you agreed to pay them for their work?

Has the city not received numerous inquiries from bond buyers on the proposed issue?

Is it not a fact that Lubbock bonds are now selling above par? The city charter requires that bonds on the City of Lubbock cannot be sold below par value of the bonds.

Would not the construction of a gas system by the City of Lubbock afford employment to hundreds of men who are in need of work of some character?

Do not our plans require the use of Lubbock citizens on the work, and wouldn't the contractor be required to use Lubbock people?

Is it not a fact that the purported new rate proposed by the West Texas Gas company actually increases the cost of gas to 75 per cent of their consumers?

Should a servant of the people try to become their master in not allowing them to obtain cheaper gas?

Has the utility lobby reached our city?

If the West Texas Gas company is permitted to continue their unreasonable rate for gas, can we ever hope to encourage industries to locate in our city?

Is it not a well known and established fact that a large sum of money is set aside each year by the gas company—profits derived from an unreasonable gas rate — to fight municipal ownership?

Why haven't you in your five years as City commissioner tried to help members of the commission reduce the gas rates?

Do you propose to hold office and continue to sacrifice the money of seventy-five per cent of Lubbock citizens for the benefit of the West Texas Gas company, in your approval of their unjust rates.

Is it not a fact that you made a proposal at a meeting of the City commission to sell the municipal light plant? If this is a fact don't you think this tends to show that you are more in sympathy with the utility interests than you are with the people?

Do the people of Lubbock want

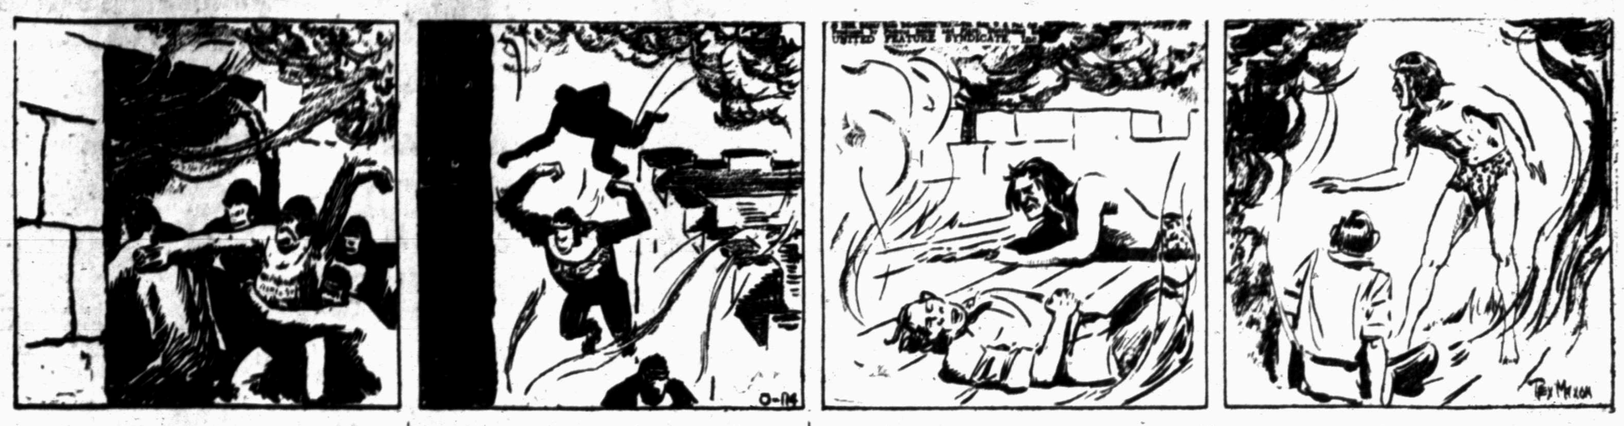
TARZAN AND THE LION MAN, No. 114

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



While the flames ate their way steadily toward the still bodies of Tarzan and the man-monster, the crazed gorillas at the stairway fought and tore at one another, jamming themselves in the entrance until it was clogged. Now fire roared up the stair-well. They were trapped!

With all exits cut off, the gorillas, shrieking madly, hurled themselves over the parapet. Flames billowed up through the narrow shafts of the towers, transforming them into giant torches, illuminating the face of the cliff and shedding weird lights on the city below.

Fire and smoke leaped high into the night. The hungry flames gnawed through a great beam, and a section of the roof tumbled into the fiery furnace below. Closer and closer the wild blaze clawed toward the two inert bodies. Suddenly one of them stirred. It was Tarzan.

He leaped to his feet. He saw the body of the gorilla god. He saw it move. It saw Tarzan. Then the creature sat up and looked at the flames licking and leaping around them, dancing the dance of death. "We are lost," it said in a daze. "Every avenue of escape is cut off!"

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (AP)—Utility shares today tore loose from the bulk of the stock market list to skid sharply lower while other classes of equities continued to push ahead.

The news that the house of representatives at Washington had approved a modified form of the utility holding company bill caused traders to dump power stocks in quantity, at the opening, at lower ranging from fractions to around 2 points or so.

Later, however, the steady performance of the balance of the list appeared to hearten traders; and by the close many of the active power shares had about cut their initial losses in half, even though the closing tone was shaky.

Despite the break in the utilities, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was .2 of a point higher at 68.7. The 30 industrials edged into new high ground for 1935 at 63.4, up .4 of a point, but the 15 utilities were .3 of a point lower at 37.5. Rails were firm. Turnover in the stock exchange increased moderately at 1,680,050 shares.

A sharp break in U. S. government obligations, a number to below par, featured bond trading. Many issues lost 1-2 to 3-4 of a point. Utility bonds, like the equities, were lower, and the general run of corporate issues was a little soft.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23. (AP)—Opening more than $4.50 a bale lower on overnight announcement of the government's 9-cent loan plan, cotton subsequently rallied today before the close had recovered part of the early losses.

Final prices were from 37 to 58 points lower. Even the most optimistic of traders did not plan on a figure as low as 9 cents and the market was caught flatfooted at the opening call.

October touched 10.77 on the recovery, but sold off in the final hour to close at 10.64, while final prices of 10.55 for Dec. and 10.55 for Jan. showed losses of $2.35@$2.70 a bale.

It was one of the most active sessions in months, featured by wide fluctuations for all options.

While some of the details and mechanics of the new program were not clear to many, it was hailed as "constructive" from a market standpoint.

Reports from Washington that Senator Byrnes of South Carolina was going ahead with his plans for adding a 12-cent loan feature to the deficiency appropriation bill had no effect on dealings. The trade expressed the opinion that any chance for a 12-cent loan passed with last night's action by the government.

News that Oscar Johnston had suspended sales in the cotton pool which he heads was another important item released during the day. Traders interpreted this action to mean that potential buyers of cotton will have to go to the new crop for their supplies.

Port receipts 31,241; week 97,468; season 233,285; last season 180,471. Exports 5,590; week 39,373; season 1442,774; last season 185,576. Port stocks 1,119,873. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, were 17,248; last year 42,233. Spot sales at southern markets were 10,907; last year 13,897.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (AP)—The overnight announcement of the administration's position program was followed by a break of about $3 to $4 a bale in the market at the opening today.

Heavy trade buying and covering absorbed the early offerings, but sharp rallies were not fully maintained with the market closing barely steady at net declines of 40 to 61 cents, or $2 to $3.05 a bale.

The market was evidently surprised by the announcement of the 9-cent loan, as cut from 12, with supplemental payments to cooperating growers, and the early decline represented a readjustment of earlier views to the lower loan value. The buying later was attributed largely to the trade and was accompanied by talk of prospects for a better distribution of American cotton in the world markets.

Exports today 5,493 making 149,136 so far this season. Port receipts 28,441. U. S. port stocks 1,119,756.

Italy Stirred After Reports

Rumors That Great Britain Is Moving Part Of Fleet To Gibraltar Heard; Troops Plan Mock War

ROME, Aug. 23. (AP)—Unconfirmed reports Great Britain is moving part of her North Atlantic fleet to Gibraltar and is making strong defense plans for Malta stirred Italy today.

These reports and others that Britain might attempt to invoke sanctions against Italy at Geneva shared first place in the discussion in informed circles.

Troops poured into northern Italy, where huge mock war maneuvers will begin Sunday.

Haile Selassie Seeking To Block Any Trouble

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 23. (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, who already has decreed death for any Ethiopian who attacks an Italian, took further precautions today to make certain no Ethiopian act or situation will touch off the powder of an African war.

He offered Italy his province of Aussa, hoping its sale might save his empire from war.

Sharp Watch Ordered

He ordered a sharp watch set upon the activities of Italian consulate staffs.

He personally directed a roundup of beggars, lepers and chained debtors on Addis Ababa streets and their removal to prevent offense to foreigners.

He received assurance American residents would have safe conduct from the country should their evacuation become necessary.

Determined to overlook no detail in his effort to keep peace with Italy, he sent his secretary sloshing through the mud of the capital's streets to the Italian legation to express his personal sympathy for Baron Muzzi Falconi, the Italian consul who was critically injured by accidental discharge of his revolver on a hunting trip.

Congress Now In Last Drive

Tired Leaders Burn Midnight Oil In Drive Toward Certain Adjournment Of Long Session Tonight

mise" neutrality bill under a "gag" rule and without debate. The senate agreed to take up the altered measure tomorrow, indicating approval.

The senate postponed until tomorrow its consideration of the house-approved third deficiency bill, on which southern senators will wage a fight for a 12-cent cotton loan amendment.

Much time was spent by the senate in debate before it approved an amended Copeland bill extending from Oct. 31 to next March 31 the time in which the president may cancel or modify ocean mail contracts.

Four Likely To Die

With the conference report on the $250,000,000 administration tax bill ready for submission tomorrow as probably the last thing before adjournment, only four of the bills sought by the president seemed likely to die.

Those would provide for oil regulation, midget money, ship subsidies, and require government contractors to observe NRA labor standards.

Afternoon sessions sent this legislation in the "must" category to the White House.

Guffey Plan Accepted

The conference report on the hastily-enacted Guffey bill intended to stabilize the bituminous industry was accepted by the senate without a roll call and by the house on a 186 to 150 vote.

The Frazier-Lemke bill to extend a three-year moratorium to bankrupt farmers was approved in the house without objection after a minor amendment, to which the senate swiftly consented.

A house bill to impose a three and one-half per cent tax on both railroad payrolls and their employes' wages was pushed through the senate without either debate or roll call to join a companion measure, also awaiting the president's signature to restore invalidated rail pensions next March.

Returned To Senate

The neutrality bill must be returned to the senate for concurrence on an amendment to limit the mandatory arms embargo provision to next February 29.

In addition to its action on the major bills, congress forwarded to Mr. Roosevelt a resolution directing the federal trade commission to investigate profits of middlemen handling farm products. House approval completed legislative action.

The house also ordered a committee investigation of the safety of commercial air lines. It passed a senate bill tightening up the financial protection of passengers in the event of sea disasters.

The Frazier-Lemke and the two rail pension bills were designed to meet the objections of the supreme court, which held similar measures unconstitutional last spring. Constitutionality of the Guffey bill also has been questioned.

President Roosevelt, studying the flood of bills, made a start of clearing his desk by signing the important omnibus banking measure today.

Other major bills which he has yet to approve or veto include the Tennessee valley and farm adjustment amendments and a rivers and harbors measure.

To Make Close Study

A vast amount of preliminary work remains to be done before the board swings into active operation. After building up a staff, which for the time being will be comparatively small but which some officials have estimated eventually would mount as high as 10,000, a close study must be made of all state old-age pensions and unemployment. They must be measured by standards laid down in the national act.

This determination made, the board will be free to allot to eligible states on a matching basis the amount to which they are entitled to take care of their needy who are over 65.

Habits, Laws Up In Voting

Texans Will Vote On Repeal Of Prohibition Today And Effort To Make Mexico Dry Also Being Made

BROWNSVILLE, Aug. 23. (AP) — Drinking habits and laws of Texans and Mexicans have caused the Rio Grande to have its liquor troubles.

The international boundary river, which has been wet on the Mexican side and dry on the American side many years, has chances to become wet or dry on both sides, remain as it is, or become wet on the dry side and dry on the wet side.

Texans Vote Today

Texans will vote tomorrow on repeal of the state prohibition law. A dry vote would leave the Rio Grande as it is as far as Texas is concerned and an opposite decision would make it wet on both sides at least for the present.

While Texans have been campaigning for and against repeal, however, a movement has been started to make Mexico dry. Such action, which has been spoken of favorably by President Cardenas of Mexico, could complicate further the status of the Rio Grande.

President Cardenas recently announced plans which might include prohibition throughout the republic. That the president looks with disfavor upon resorts where liquor is sold and gambling is conducted especially for the benefit of American tourists was seen in his action when he closed Agua Caliente's gambling resort.

Have No Appeal

But should Texas go wet and Mexico dry, it is not considered likely that Mexicans would reverse the order of the march of thirsty Americans. The principal reason for this is that, except for beer, the American liquors do not appeal to the Mexicans.

Mexican liquor, the kind the natives like, did not have a great appeal for Americans, but the Mexicans handled the situation satisfactorily by furnishing drinks that the Americans did like.

Mexicans buy mescal and tequila, while Americans have not proved to be heavy purchasers of that sort of liquor.

truck was approaching from the west.

Car Follows Another

King, who operates the Lehman school bus, and Miss King, a teacher in the school, were en route to Tahoka. King said one car, going southward on Avenue O, crossed in front of him. It was followed almost immediately, he said, by the second car, on which Jones was riding.

Lester Grimes, 14, driver of the first automobile to cross Nineteenth street in front of the truck also made a statement to Burks. His home is at 2222 Main street. In the car with him were Billy Leete Jackson, about 13, of 1809 Avenue O, and George N. Atkinson, 15, of 1514 Avenue M. Sylvester's address is 1625 Eighteenth street.

None of the occupants of the automobiles said they saw the mishap.

King, 24, said he had been operating a Lehman school bus 4 years. He owns the truck chassis and the school district the body. He was not detained.

Luther Bynum, a passerby, carried Young Jones to the sanitarium.

King said the bus weighed 2,500 pounds.

The police investigation was conducted by Lewis Kittrell and Sam W. Fort.

blessing.

The response was an abrupt decline ranging from $3 to $4.15 in the early dealings.

Traders with heavy long commitments who were counting on a straight 12-cent government loan were hasty sellers in the Liverpool market and continued their unloading here at the opening of the local market. With these offerings absorbed, values showed a moderate recovery, and active positions on the New York cotton exchange closed at net losses of $2 to $3.05 a bale.

sharply to her surroundings. Clyde Fisher would be beside her any moment, might be behind her now.

She looked around quickly. He wasn't there. No, he was over beside the windows. Gale bent her head and worked swiftly, daydreams forgotten.

Hour after hour went on. The brief lunch period passed and then there were three and a half hours more—three and a half hours of whirling spindles, groaning machines, girls snapping off bobbins and clamping them on.

Gale's feet smarted and her shoulders ached as they always did by late afternoon. Little burning pains ran up and down her arms. She kept on at her task.

And then—at last—release! The bell rang and the day shift poured into the corridor. Everyone eager to get away. Gale, stepping into the cloak room, heard a smothered cry. She halted suddenly.

"What's the matter?" she asked.

one man to run the business of the city, or do they want the majority to rule?

Do you think that if a $1,700,000 P. W. A. project for a gas system was a good thing under the old commission (of which you were a member) that the same project for $1,200,000,- with a saving of $500,000 is a better deal for our city?

Did you not agree to vote on the revenue proposition if the tax proposition failed?

Just answer these questions and be fair with your fellow citizens.

Yours truly,
A. J. Richardson,
City Commissioner.
