Mauldin new WTC men's cage coach

Tony Mauldin, who has directed Morton High School to the Class 2A state tournament for the past six years, has been named as the new men's basketball coach at Western Texas College.

Mauldin, who is expected to be formally approved by the WTC board at a later date, will replace Phil Spradling, who resigned last month to enter private business.

"He's the kind of person we would want to have on our staff at any position. His obvious commitment to a disciplined program, his high moral standards and his record of success throughout his teaching career impressed us," said WTC president Dr. Harry Krenek.

Mauldin was the unanimous choice of the selection committee, according to Krenek. "There was no doubt in their minds who they wanted," he said. "I think he'll be an asset to the college and the community."

Mauldin is presently attending a coaching clinic at Garland and unavailable for comment.

He comes to Western Texas College from Morton, where he fashioned a record of 227 wins and 83 losses as head basketball coach. He has also served as head football coach and athletic director, taking the Indians' football team to the playoffs in 1983, 84 and 85.

Under his direction, the basketball team has not lost a district game in six years, and has been to the state tournament each season since the 1981-82 school year.

Morton won state championships under the 38 year-old coach in 1982-83, 1985-86 and 1986-87.

Mauldin is a graduate of Brownwood High School and Howard Payne, and formerly coached at Boerne Junior High, Boerne High School and at Merkel High School.

He is currently president of the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches and has been All-South Plains Basketball Coach of the Year four times.

He and his wife Janice have three children, Tonya, Molly and Emily.

Ask Us

Q. — How come Snyder High School doesn't have a baccalaureate service before graduation?

A. — The method of combining baccalaureate, which by definition means a commencement speaker is involved, with graduation rites is a tradition which dates back more than 20 years at SHS. School officials cite convenience to both students, family and the district as the main reason for combining the two.

Drug use program due talk

'Shorts' policy also on agenda

Snyder school board members are now considering the implementation of a new program to curb drug and alcohol use among local students, and a report profiling a similar program begun by Midland ISD is scheduled for the board Monday.

At the same meeting, the board will act on a student dress code recommendation which would eliminate shorts--even those "knee-length"--as acceptable school attire at all grade levels.

Both items are scheduled as part of the regular June meeting for trustees. It will begin at 7 p.m. at the administration building.

The board will meet at 5 p.m. also for a budget work session.

Regarding the drug and alcohol program, trustees will hear a presentation outlining the program from Steve Russell and Pat Cobb, chemical abuse counselors employed by Midland ISD.

Also Monday, results of a survey conducted in grade levels 5-12 here will be discussed. That survey, consisting of 100 questions related to tobacco and alcohol products as well as illegal drugs, was conducted at the end of school.

The action item related to the school dress code will eliminate the wearing of shorts as day-to-day wear at all grade levels.

This would include the "jams" style of knee-length shorts.

School officials say the difficulty of enforcing the "knee-length" rule has prompted the dress code change.

Other agenda items for action Monday include:

—A public hearing for the district's Chapter I and Chapter II applications for federal funds to be used as part of computer assisted instruction here.

—Consideration of the status of the scout hut located at North Elementary.

—Consideration of personnel action to include the resignation of a kindergarten teacher; a leave of absence request from a junior high teacher; granting "continuing contract" status to a staffer fulfilling the third year of a three-year probationary

Hot weather replaces rain

By The Associated Press

Hot, humid weather has replaced the heavy rain over most of Texas, but a tornado caused apparent minor damage in the Lower Rio Grande Valley as heavy thunderstorms roared across the southern tip of Texas.

The extensive flooding, blamed for at least six deaths, appeared to be subsiding with the return of mostly sunny skies to the state Sunday.

The heavy rainfall had caused extensive flooding, resulting in evacuations and the closing of many outdoor recreation facilities.

A tornado touched down near McAllen in the Valley late Sunday afternoon, the National Weather Service said.

Police said there was scattered debris, roofs blown off two sheds and a billboard and fruit stand blown over as more than 3 inches of rain fell in an hour.

The mercury climbed to 97 at Dallas Sunday, where the humidity was at 74 percent, making the heat extremely uncomfortable. The mercury dropped to 82 by 1 a.m. and forecasters said more hot, humid weather was in store for the next several days across North Texas.

Flood problems were easing Sunday in Dewitt County, east of San Antonio, a sheriff's dispatcher said.

"We're not back to normal, but as far as people being flooded out of their homes, that's not happening yet," said Shirley Dodge.

Several highways in the county just west of Victoria were closed Sunday due to flooding from the Guadalupe River, she said.

Forty people who could not get to their flooded homes in San Antonio spent Saturday night at two shelters provided by the Red Cross, said Red Cross spokeswoman Jeanne Ann Crutchfield.

The Red Cross estimated Sunday that 446 homes in 15 counties suffered flood damage, including 65 reportedly destroyed and 116 that sustained major damage. The damage assessment did not include hard-hit DeWitt County, parts of which were still inaccessible to Red Cross officials Sunday afternoon.

It was sunny in Houston Sunday for the second consecutive day and flooding was receding, authorities said.

"It looks better now than it has for the past five or six days," Bill Edwards, spokesman for the Harris County Flood Control District, said. "The bayous have had time to run down and get back within their banks."

Heavy rains in previous days had caused many low-lying areas of roadways to flood, and some bayous to swell.

The water level of Lake Houston had not risen since Saturday morning.

County okays bidding for deduction plans

Commissioners authorized seeking bids for a new employee payroll deduction plan during their regular weekly session Monday.

The court agreed to advertise for bids for a third party administrator to implement a "cafeteria plan" which will allow county employees to deduct qualifying items from their paychecks before deductions for federal income taxes and Social Security taxes are subtracted.

The deductions — including child care and medical expenses — will then lower their total federal payments. The county will also realize a lower Social Security obligation for employees.

In his motion, Pct. 3 Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. requested bids be opened during the June 22 meeting. He noted that by law the county may implement the plan for six months. "That will give employees the chance to see how it works before we implement it for a full year," he said.

For the full six months to fall within the county's current fiscal year, the plan must be adopted by July 1. However, County Auditor Bernhard Bartels expressed concern that representatives of the company ultimately hired will have insufficient time to discuss the plan with each employee before the July 1 deadline. Under the law, the firm must contact each worker before the plan becomes effective.

Also Monday, commissioners approved a request to advertise for bids for a 1970 or later model truck tractor for use in all precincts. Bids for the truck will be opened June 29.

Three fires investigated here Sunday

Three fires which occurred at a local apartment building Sunday during a six-hour period are suspected to have been intentionally set.

Firemen were first called to a vacant apartment at 1307 24th St. at 5:25 p.m. A mattress in a bedroom was extinguished with damage confined to the bedroom.

Firefighters were called back to that location at 11:13 p.m. where they found some furniture in the front room of the apartment on fire.

At the same time, a fire was reported in another vacant apartment at 1305 24th St., where a small fire was found burning in a closet.

Mobil home burglary is reported

Scurry County sheriff's deputies are investigating a residential burglary reported Sunday morning.

Luis Hernandez, of Rt. 2, told deputies that someone had apparently entered his mobile home — located south of Hillside Memorial Gardens on State Highway 208 — sometime Saturday or early Sunday morning.

Listed as missing from the residence were a pool table, a television and car parts.

Entry to the mobile home was apparently gained by forcing open the front door.

No value was estimated for the missing property.

Stark not in right defensive posture before missiles hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commanders of the USS Stark failed to take proper defensive measures before an Iraqi warplane hit the ship with missiles, according to a congressional report that says the Persian Gulf attack resulted from American complacency and Iraqi carelessness.

The Stark's captain had gone to his cabin shortly before the attack that killed 37 seamen on the night of May 17, and another officer didn't order that a radio warning be sent to the Iraqi pilot until the warplane was well within attacking range, the House Armed Services Committee said in a preliminary report on the assault.

The attack "was almost certainly inadvertent," the report said.

Iraqi pilots habitually fire at blips on radar screens, they fail to check targets visually before shooting and they do not consistently monitor radio warning channels, the report said.

"Because of Iraqi tactics, this was an accident waiting to happen," Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., the committee's chairman, said.

On the American side, personnel seemed to have regarded Iraqi aircraft, if not "friendly, then as less threatening than Iranian planes," the report said.

The report faulted ship personnel for failing to warn the Iraqi Mirage F-1 jet until it was 13 miles away and the vessel was well within range of the plane's Exocet missiles. It also said the frigate should have been turned broadside to the plane to make better use of its radar and weapons.

"They could have done and should have done a lot more," Aspin said.

In other developments:

— Under an agreement reached last month, the Reagan administration was to submit reports this week to the House and Senate on how it would respond to any attack against 11 reflagged Kuwaiti oil tankers or U.S. ships protecting them.

Administration officials have declined to say whether they would launch a pre-emptive strike against Iran's missiles, which could hit vessels passing through the mouth of the Persian Gulf.

—Two senior Democratic lawmakers urged the White House to delay or cancel plans to risk American lives and prestige in the gulf.

"In devising a response to the gulf crisis, the administration should focus on ending the Iran-Iraq war and not on a course that risks an American-Iranian clash," Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, wrote in an opinion piece in Sunday's New York Times. "Iran is likely to see assistance tendered to Iraq's ally as provocative."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Sunday that "the Kuwaiti-flagging is a symbol of the absence of policy." The decision reflag the Kuwaiti tankers and offer them Navy protection signals "that we have basically taken a strong tilt towards Iraq," Nunn said on the NBC-TV program "Meet the Press."

In its report, the committee found no evidence that the Navy's rules of engagement unneccesarily restricted the Stark from defending itself.

Aspin stressed that the report could not "allocate responsibility on board the ship" and must be considered preliminary because the committee did not speak to the frigate's four principal officers. They are being investigated by a Navy review board and refused, on the advice of their attorneys, to be interviewed.

However, Capt. G.R. Brindel said in a written statement he left the bridge before the attack even though the ship already had been warned by a U.S. Air Force AWACS surveillance plane that the Iraqi jet was 200 miles away.

Congress to be informed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is preparing to tell Congress how it will defend reflagged Kuwaiti oil tankers as senior Democratic lawmakers urge the White House to delay or cancel plans to risk American lives and prestige in the Persian Gulf.

"In devising a response to the gulf crisis, the administration should focus on ending the Iran-Iraq war and not on a course that risks an American-Iranian clash," said Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"Iran is likely to see assistance tendered to Iraq's ally as provocative," Pell wrote in a commentary appearing in Sunday's New York Times.

White House officials, speaking Sunday on condition they not be identified, said Reagan is expected to touch on the tense situation in the gulf in a nationally broadcast speech to the nation tonight.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Sunday that "the Kuwaiti flagging is a symbol of the absence of policy."

The decision to fly the U.S. flag from 11 of Kuwait's 22 oil tankers signals "that we have basically taken a strong tilt towards Iraq," Nunn said.

Any shift from the official neutrality the United States has observed since the war began in September 1980 "ought to be debated on its own merits and not on the illusion that we are really protecting the free flow of oil," Nunn said on the NBC-TV program "Meet the Press."

Pope leaves Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II left his native land insisting that truth and freedom are essential for Poland, but leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski stressed that only the Communist authorities can determine Poland's future.

Jaruzelski, in a harshly worded farewell statement to the pontiff, said: "Poland needs the truth. But also the truth about Poland is needed."

"Your Holiness will soon leave the homeland," he added grimly. "He'll take its picture in his heart, but he can't take its real problems ... It has to meet its own challenges."

Jaruzelski spoke Sunday after a hastily arranged airport meeting with the pope, who was returning to Rome after his weeklong visit. There was no word on what the two men discussed, but the tone of their remarks indicated the Roman Catholic Church and the Communist authorities remain divided over Poland's course. The two men also met when the pope arrived in Poland.

Before leaving for the airport, the pope said in Warsaw that the Holy See should have formal ties with Poland, which is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic. John Paul called on the government and the Polish bishops to create the necessary conditions.

He emphasized, however, that "serious work" remained before Poland could become the first Warsaw Pact nation to have such ties. It was the first time the pope had spoken publicly on the issue.

New clashes are reported in Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Thousands of students hurling firebombs and rocks poured into the streets to battle riot police in at least seven cities today, and new clashes were reported around Seoul's Roman Catholic cathedral.

Fighting broke out at universities in Seoul and at least five provincial cities as riot police fired thousands of tear gas rounds and sent in armored cars to try and hold the students back. Protesters rushed to within a few yards of police lines to throw firebombs, rocks and bricks.

"Destroy the dictator," the students chanted again and again. "Destroy the military dictatorship."

Clashes broke out around Seoul's Myongdong Cathedral as police tear-gassed and charged thousands of people demonstrating against the government. The clashes continued even after radical students gave up their five-day occupation of the cathedral compound.

Yonhap, the Korean news agency, said 60,000 students took part in anti-government rallies at 45 schools nationwide, but did not say how many developed into battles with authorities. Clashes were reported in Pusan, Suwon, Chonan, Chinju, Inchon and Chonju.

At least 13,000 students fought riot police at universities in Seoul, witnesses and other sources said. Hundreds of people were seen aiding the students.

Fierce protests began last Wednesday when opposition groups launched a drive aimed at toppling President Chun Doo-hwan and forcing democratic elections.

Clashes took place for a sixth day around Myongdong Cathedral as thousands of people, including many office workers in suits and dresses, chanted, "We want democracy."

Officers hurled tear gas grenades and special martial arts squads charged into crowds numbering up to 10,000 at a time.

Hundreds of people, who had been cheering the crowds from nearby windows and showering them with flowers, booed and shouted insults at the police. Some people hurled rocks at police, but most did not fight back.

The cathedral, headquarters of the Roman Catholic Church in South Korea, has been one of the focal points for unrest in the past week. Church officials managed to arrange the evacuation of 200 radical students who had been holding the cathedral complex since seizing it during anti-government protests last Wednesday.

Priests, who worked out a deal with the government, rode with the students in fives buses when they left the complex under a promise of safe passage. Police had pulled back Sunday night from around the cathedral to allow their exit.

The agreement to end the siege almost collapsed when more than 10,000 people gathered around the cathedral to congratulate the students and denounce the government. Riot police units waiting in side streets suddenly charged the crowds, hurling tear gas as screaming people fled.

Some 500 people surged into the cathedral compound and staged a sit-down strike. Lines of riot police sealed the main gate, but did not intervene.

Before leaving the compound, the students released a statement demanding the government release people seized in recent demonstrations and refrain from "political suppression" following their protest.

Although the statement said the Myongdong protest was ending, about 10 students remained behind, saying they planned to conduct a hunger strike.

authorized County Judge Bobby Goodwin to sign a $10,000 bond for Jenna Vee Miller as county clerk.

Representatives with Bain, McCrary, Bain Planners and Surveyors Inc. of San Antonio did not appear as scheduled. Goodwin noted that the firm had not received all necessary information from contractors bidding on the paving portion of the renovation work due at Winston Field.

Contracts for both the paving phase and the electrical phase of the work will be considered during next week's session.

Commissioners also noted that some 40 percent of the county's department heads had met with the court last week to discuss the county's 1988 budget.

"We've had very good cooperation from department heads to hold spending for the remainder of this year and for next year," Goodwin said.

Budget discussions are to resume Tuesday and continue throughout the week.

World War I vets are honored

MARNES-LA-COQUETTE, France (AP) — A Tennessee man who fought in World War I as a teen-ager and was gassed in the trenches was one of 18 Americans honored in a ceremony marking the 70th anniversary of America's entry into the war.

"We were in continuous battle day and night and much of the time it was hand to hand," recalled Col. Herbert Houston, who was wounded in 1918 while serving on the Western Front with the 4th Marine Brigade.

The U.S. veterans, invited to the ceremonies by the French government, gathered Sunday in a mist-shrouded park southwest of Paris to be honored.

All had helped defend France in the war, in which 10 million men died and 20 million were wounded.

On Saturday, the veterans layed a wreath at the Arc de Triomphe and attended the opening of an exhibit on the four-year war, which ended in 1918, and the American troops.

Seated on velvet-cushioned chairs before a war memorial Sunday, the veterans were honored in a three-hour ceremony that included the awarding of medals, flyovers by vintage biplanes, and renditions of the Star Spangled Banner and the Marseillaise, the French national anthem.

French Defense Minister Andre Giraud and U.S. Air Force Secretary Edward Alridge spoke.

Alridge told the crowd of 250 military officials and admirers that they were "in the presence of true heroes."

Houston was one of the three veterans there who were awarded the French Legion of Honor for bravery. He was 16 years old in June 1917 when American expeditionary forces, led by Gen. John Joseph Pershing, arrived in France.

In 1918, Houston fought at Verdun, where French forces had held the Germans for three years before America entered the war. Nearly 1 million men died in the trenches of Verdun.

Of the 256 men in Houston's outfit, all but two were wounded or killed in 14 days of fighting near the village of Bouresches.

Houston was wounded at Bouresches while leading his outfit to safety.

"We were being bombarded ... so I figured a kind of unorthodox way out. We went forward first, toward the guns, then cut out under the arch of artillery shells," he said.

Houston was also gassed and convalesced at a Red Cross hospital in Paris. The gas left him with bronchial and heart conditions.

Another veteran at the ceremony, Harry Cramer, 97, of Fort Worth, Texas, "never saw a fighting German" despite spending more than two years in France during the war.

1 in 12 mayors is a woman

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Mayor Mary Bonner of Dunedin, Fla., says it is sometimes difficult for a woman mayor to deal with critics and criticism from the media.

"People expect you to act like a lady if you are a woman in politics," Ms. Bonner said Sunday at the Women's Caucus at the U.S. Conference of Mayors during a discussion of media relations.

One in every 12 mayors attending the conference is a woman.

Mayor Janice Coggeshall of Galveston predicted the ratio will grow, but any city's first woman mayor "has to cut the barrier every time."

Ms. Coggeshall is caucus leader of the 73 women who are members of the conference, which represents 800 cities of 30,000 or more population throughout the nation.

In an interview, Ms. Coggeshall said there is no question that women will assume increasing roles in public office.

"It's coming, but the question is how long," she said. "As a graduate of college in the 1950s, I saw one woman admitted to the law school and one woman in a year to business schools. Now they are 40 to 50 percent in some schools and that to me is a dramatic change in my lifetime."

As women enter more professions and the job market, there will be more women officeholders. "They're not going to sit back," she said.

Kathryn Whitmire, in her third term as mayor of Houston, runs the largest city represented at the breakfast. But Dallas, Texas' second largest city, recently elected Annette Strauss mayor.

Seven California mayors, including San Diego Mayor Maureen O'Connor, were present.

"It's easier now and we're more accepted," Ms. Coggeshall said. Still, she said, it is harder for women to raise campaign funds — at least for their initial run for office.

"The first woman mayor has to cut the barrier every time," she said. She cited Annette Strauss' election in Dallas as an example.

"Now that issue is over. She's been elected and from now on in Dallas, they'll be choosing the most qualified candidate and the idea that she's a woman won't be important any more," Ms. Coggeshall said. "I think in each city, once it's done, then the issue is behind them and from then on it's going to be the most qualified candidate."

When the ruffing gets tough

By James Jacoby

South had such a strong hand he couldn't get out of his own way. Did North's bidding indicate any specific support of hearts? Not really. When your partner has opened with a strong forcing bid (artificial or not) and you show preference for his known long suit, you might be showing as little as two small cards in his suit. In today's deal, change North's heart jack into any small club and the bidding would probably still proceed as shown. So South was rewarded with a decent dummy when he jumped to six hearts. Unfortunately, after overbidding the hand, he underplayed it.

He won the spade lead, played A-K of diamonds and ruffed a diamond with the heart jack. He came to his hand with a heart, hoping against hope that he could ruff another diamond without being overruffed. East of course did overruff, and the defenders later took a club trick.

There is a little-known play that would bring declarer home. It was fine to ruff the first time with the heart jack. But rather than futilely try to ruff another diamond loser, declarer should come to his hand with the club ace. Then, when he plays another diamond, let him simply discard dummy's other club as West wins the trick. Now the fifth diamond in South's hand will be good, and declarer will be able to ruff his losing club in dummy. By discarding dummy's club on what is in any event a losing diamond, declarer transfers the ruffing trick he needs to a suit that cannot be overruffed by a defender.

Death toll in India rises to 27 people

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Shops in New Delhi closed today after a Hindu political party called for a general strike to protest the weekend killings of 27 people in New Delhi and Punjab state.

A Sikh radical group claimed responsibility for the killings.

Fourteen Hindus were killed and 20 wounded in New Delhi in the deadliest attacks in the capital in two years. In May 1985, a series of explosions killed 87 people in New Delhi.

Police originally said 12 had died in New Delhi, but they raised the toll to 14 today, saying they had concluded two men killed on a motor scooter also were victims of two Sikh youths who went on a rampage in South Delhi.

The shooting spree began Saturday night at a private outdoor birthday party for an Indian youth and spread to three locations nearby, police said.

Police spokeman Ravi Pawar said an unknown Sikh group calling itself the Bhindranwale Tiger Force claimed responsibility for the killings in a note left behind in a stolen car. The group is named for Jarnail Singh Bhindranwale, a Sikh killed in the Indian army raid on the Golden Temple in Amritsar in 1984.

Thirteen other people were shot and killed Saturday night and Sunday morning in three separate attacks in northern Punjab state blamed on Sikhs.

The dead included eight members of one family shot to death Saturday night in Udhoke village near Amritsar.

Police said the attackers apparently believed one of the family members, Harjinder Singh, a Sikh, was a police informer. Four other victims were Sikh moderates who oppose the separatist movement and were shot to death in Jhubbal village in Amritsar district. The other victim was a Hindu killed in Amritsar.

Radicals waging a guerrilla campaign for a separate Sikh nation in Punjab have been blamed for more than 400 deaths there this year.

Most private shops were closed today in South Delhi and the downtown area, in response to the strike call from the right-wing Indian Peoples Party. Banks and government offices remained open.

Foot problem is a tough one

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have calluses on my heels and toes and they are working up the sides of my feet. I have tried all types of lotions and have soaked my feet in warm water to scrape off the dead skin, but with no results. How can I have nice, soft feet again?

DEAR READER — The simplest way to remove the excess dead skin called callus is to sand it away, using an emery board, a pumice stone or fine sandpaper. Lotions and soaking simply soften the hard skin without removing it. The sanding works best on dry feet, before the shower or bath. In addition, check your shoes to make sure that they fit properly. Many calluses are caused by friction and pressure from shoes that rub on the skin of the foot, encouraging a buildup of dead skin as a protective device.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it true that cakes and cookies metabolize food more efficiently if they're eaten with every meal? Would elderly people become diabetic if they continued to eat in this manner?

DEAR READER — Cakes and cookies do not aid metabolism. They are foods in their own right and contain flour (which is nourishing), refined sugar (which isn't), fats (often cholesterol from butter and eggs) and protein. Therefore, patients with certain medical conditions — such as obesity, diabetes and excess serum cholesterol — have to restrict their intake of cakes and cookies.

Elderly people may tend to develop a form of diabetes as they age. This is thought to be due to a gradual wearing out of the pancreas, the gland that produces insulin. Hence, older people must be prudent in eating a well-balanced diet.

Although eating cake and cookies will not cause diabetes, it certainly will accelerate a diabetic tendency if one is present already. For this reason, an older person who eats cake and cookies with every meal, as you suggested, is certainly running a risk of developing a problem. Furthermore, many older people develop decreased appetite, lack of interest in food and a tendency to eat what's easiest. Eventually, they might cut down on "real food," virtually live on cake and cookies, and develop malnutrition. That's a bad habit to get into. Better to reduce baked goods and add more fruit.

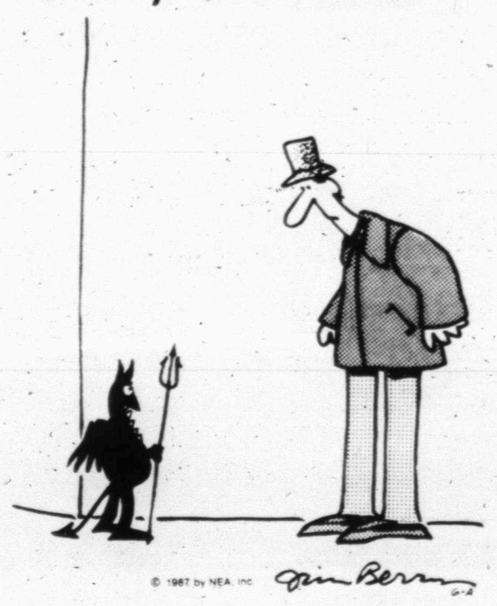

DEAR DR. GOTT — My son, 10, helps my husband and me feed our 400 calves. Pitching hay isn't so hard, but he also fills about 20 five-gallon buckets of cracked corn from the back of the pickup and lifts them out of the truck bed. Will this hurt his back? He loves to help and is as cheerful as can be.

DEAR READER — I do not believe that the amount of hard work and lifting your son performs is dangerous or unhealthy. If he is accustomed to doing his chores willingly pitches in and does not complain of back pain, he is not going to do himself any harm; in fact, he probably is improving his own physical fitness while contributing valuable services to the family. You must be proud of him.

For Dr. Gott's complete discussion of problems and treatments of the prostate gland, write for your copy of Dr. Gott's new Health Report on THE PROSTATE GLAND. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

LAFF-A-DAY

"Know what was really good about the good old days? I wasn't good then and I wasn't old."

Riley - 'I'm glad it's over...'

LA Lakers wrap up NBA championship

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Although his image of calm confidence never wavered, Pat Riley admitted he had been rattled by a persistent, unnerving thought.

The Los Angeles coach was scared the Lakers were going to let the 1987 NBA title slip away.

"I know I kept saying all the right things, but there's always doubt in your mind that something's going to get stolen from you," Riley said Sunday. Moments earlier, the Lakers had eased their coach's mind, beating the Boston Celtics 106-93 to win the 1987 Championship Series 4-2.

"I'm glad it's over," Riley said. "You really begin to feel the pressure. As the favorite, we were in a no-win situation."

The Lakers suffered two confidence-shaking losses sandwiched around a one-point win in Boston Garden that let the Celtics fight their way back into the series.

Los Angeles, which had the league's best regular-season record and breezed through the Western Conference playoffs, virtually had been conceded the league title heading into the finals against the weary, wounded Celtics, who were extended to the limit by Detroit in the Eastern Conference finals.

Then, after lopsided victories in the opening two games left them looking invincible, the Lakers traveled to Boston. Suddenly they looked like a team in danger of choking.

Although the Lakers were back home at the Forum for Game 6 and a possible Game 7 by virtue of their 65-17 regular-season record, the first half Sunday resembled the contests at Boston Garden, with the Celtics controlling the tempo.

But, after trailing 56-51 at halftime, the Lakers finally got their fast break working in the third quarter, outscoring the Celtics 30-12 to take command.

Magic Johnson finished the clinching game with 19 assists, 16 points and eight rebounds and collected the Most Valuable Player award - becoming the first player to win it three times since the award's inception in 1969.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Lakers' 40-year-old center, scored a team-high 32 points and blocked four shots despite being limited to 29 minutes due to foul trouble.

James Worthy broke out of a shooting slump with a 10-of-16 performance and had 22 points. Reserve Mychal Thompson had 15 points and nine rebounds while spelling Abdul-Jabbar.

The Celtics were led by Dennis Johnson, who had 33 points and 10 rebounds, and Kevin McHale with 20 points and 10 rebounds. However, Larry Bird, a two-time Playoff MVP, was held to 16 points on 6-of-16 shooting.

Boston Coach K.C. Jones, while saying he thought it was a fine accomplishment for the Celtics to make it to the sixth game of the finals despite their injuries, said, "Obviously the best team won."

Over 300 athletes get ready for national collegiate finals

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) - More than 300 college cowboys and cowgirls will gather here this week for the 1987 College National Finals Rodeo, which officially kicks, bucks and ropes its way into action Tuesday evening.

Slack performances began this morning, however.

The defending champions are host Montana State University for the women and Western Texas College for the men.

Both National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (NIRA) national titles and College Finals titles will be on the line in each of the nine events and the two all-arounds. Competition runs through Saturday.

National titles are based on points scored during the regular season plus Finals points. CNFR titles are based strictly on the points cowboys and cowgirls rack up during the competition this week in Bozeman.

Team titles will be awarded according to the points scored by team members during the Finals.

Teams reached the College Finals by finishing in the top two among teams from their region. Each men's team will have six scoring members while each women's team will have three scoring members

During the regular season, the men's team from Blue Mountain Community College had the most points, winning the Northwest Region with 3,430 points. Central Arizona of the Grand Canyon Region had a total of 2,705 points while National College from the Central Plains had 2,472 and Montana State of the Big Sky had 2,470.

Southern Arkansas of the Ozark Region had the highest regular season point total for a women's team with 1,815. Blue Mountain followed with 1,667.

Regular season point totals aren't always a good measure of a team's strength, however, because of the disparity in competition from region to region and event to event.

Cowboys and cowgirls who finished in the top two of an individual event but whose team is not in the finals will compete as independents.

Five defending national champions are entered in this year's rodeo.

Molly McAuliffe of Blue Mountain Community College is back to defend her national all-around title. She is sitting second in the national all-around cowgirl standings this year, 42.5 points behind Sherry Rosser of Southern Arkansas University.

Clay Hurst, who won the national all-around and team roping titles as a member of the West Hills College team last season, is now riding for McNeese State of Lake Charles, La.

Hurst finished fourth in the regional all-around standings with 330 points, but 13th in regional team roping with 100 points. Alexander Cordova of Central Arizona leads the national all-around standings with 1,340 points while Scott Selland of Casper (Wyo.) College leads team roping heading into the Finals with 305 points.

James Sharp of Odessa (Texas) College is back where he left off, atop the bull riding standings. Sharp won the national title last year and comes into this year's College Finals leading the nation by 25 points over Brett Todd of National College of Rapid City, S.D.

Keith Hudson of defending team champ Western Texas College turned in a strong showing at the 1986 College Finals to win the calf roping title. He comes into this year's contest tied for eighth place, 95 points behind Scott Lammers of National College.

Doran, Minemier top list at WTC scramble

Snyder's Pat Doran and Dave Minemier shot a 120, including a 57 on Sunday, to win the Western Texas College Two-Man Scramble, held last weekend.

Doran and Minemier won the "U.S. Open" flight by six strokes with rounds of 63 and 57. Randy Weaver and David Holt were runnersup in the flight. Their pair of 63s totalled 126 and gave them a one-stroke, second-place victory over Andrews' Mark Burgen and Jeff Beal.

Burgen and Beal, who recently signed scholarships with WTC, shot 67-60 for a 127. Fourth place went to Pat Fitzpatrick and Bobby Sullivan of Austin for their 128.

In barrel race...

WTC's Colburn wins first-round at CNFR

BOZEMAN, Mont. -- Western Texas College cowgirl Jessie Colburn won the first-go round of the barrel racing in Monday's slack performance of the College National Finals Rodeo.

Colburn, a freshman from Bainbridge Island, Wash., flashed a 14.65. Second place went to Holly Foster of McNeese State with a 14.74.

Colburn's biggest concern going into the rodeo was whether she would be able to compete. Her horse suffered an injury in the stall on Friday, and it appeared she would have to scratch.

"We were praying the horse would come through and it did," said Colburn, who said the horse pulled a ligament. "He's fine now, but it looked like we weren't going to get to compete."

She finished second in the Southwest Region to earn a trip to the nationals, which she described as a unique event.

"I felt a lot of pressure. In fact, I thought I was going to be sick," she laughed.

Colburn made her run early, then waited to hear the rest of the results.

"It was worse (after the run) than before. I had to just sit there and wait."

She described the run as "it wasn't super fantastic, but it was a solid run. It can be improved. I'm really happy with it, though."

She'll make her second-round ride in Friday night's show.

Most of the six-member WTC men's team were to begin competition in the slack today. Adam Brewster was scheduled out in the bareback, as were bronc riders Wesley Henderson and Troy Budvarson. Robert Fifer was out in the team roping with Robert English from Cochise College, Ariz., and Keith Hudson was out in the calf roping and steer wrestling.

Tuesday morning, Brewster is out in the bull riding and Fifer in the bronc riding. Mike Carrillo isn't up in the bareback until Wednesday night.

Union activity growing in economic slump

DALLAS (AP) — The slump in the Texas economy and the national trend of competitive pressures forcing unions to grant concessions have hurt the labor movement, say union representatives.

Nearly 3,100 workers are on strike against defense contractor Bell Helicopter Textron, but the week-old strike is one of few in recent years involving a large number of workers in a state where labor organization traditionally has been weak.

The downturn in the economy has resulted in growing discontent among union members, which is likely to lead to more labor disputes, union experts told the Dallas Times Herald.

"I think you're going to see more militancy all the way around," said J.J. Brichard, United Auto Workers Local 218 president. Those striking against Bell Helicopter are all members of Local 218, which consists of maintenance and production workers.

"I think you're going to see more strikes in the near future," said Frank Parker, a labor law attorney and publisher of newsletter that tracks labor development. "There's a lot of frustration built up."

But whether the pent-up frustration will lead to increased and more effective union organizing or whether economic pressures will cause the labor movement to diminish is uncertain.

"We've got a lot of mixed factors that are working, from how fast the economy grows and which sectors make up that growth," said Bill McKee, director of the Labor and Industrial Relations Institute at North Texas State University.

If the economy picks up, he said, so could union membership.

Nevertheless, unions have traditionally been weak in Texas. According to the Labor Department's 1980 census, Texas ranked 48th nationwide in percentage of union membership. While no current ranking is available, Parker estimated the state remains in the bottom three states in percentage of union membership.

Statewide membership in the AFL-CIO, the largest union group in the state, has declined by about 50,000 in the past five years to 225,000, said Harry Hubbard, Texas AFL-CIO president.

The number of petitions filed statewide for elections to establish unions has decreased.

State funds to help failing students

AUSTIN (AP) — The state plans to use $400,000 in federal funds to help Texas students who can't earn high school diplomas and are considered likely to drop out of school.

The special effort was voted unanimously Saturday by the State Board of Education after it was told at least 1,825 seniors will not get diplomas because they failed high school exit tests.

The first results of the exit tests ordered by the 1984 Legislature were revealed Saturday by Education Commissioner William Kirby.

Out of the 5,347 seniors who took the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills test in May, 3,522 passed.

Students who are seniors this year have had opportunities to pass the reading, writing and math test since October 1985. Makeup tests that would have gained them a diploma were given in January, May and October of 1986.

The board voted to spend about $400,000 in unobligated federal funds to tutor students this summer who are likely to drop out of school.

The skills test is given to 11th graders, and if a student fails, it can be repeated the next year.

The May tests were significant because for the first time in Texas, seniors who completed all other graduation requirements were denied a high school diploma because they did not demonstate proficiency in basic skills as required by the 1984 state school reform laws.

"We are pleased to see that so many Texas seniors met the challenge of the state-mandated graduation test," Kirby said. "We remain concerned, however, that hundreds of students were unable to pass this basic reading, writing and math test."

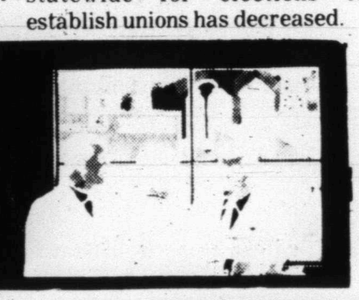

Kirby's report on the skills tests in May said 55 percent or 18,911 students in the 11th grade, made a passing grade, clearing them for a diploma next year.

However, 15,288 students need more work before receiving high school diplomas in 1988, Kirby said.

Kirby's report had no ethnic breakdown on the exit test failures.

Lake levels hurting Marina business

LAKE TEXOMA, Texas (AP) — For operators of marinas and other lake recreation facilities at Lake Texoma and Possum Kingdom Lake, the water level is either too high or too low.

At both lakes business owners are losing money.

Lake Texoma is at its second highest level on record, but 100 miles west, Possum Kingdom Lake is 12 to 13 feet below normal.

For Joe and JoAnne Showelter, owners of Willow Springs Resort and Marina on Lake Texoma, flooding has brought their business to a standstill.

"Disasters like this are supposed to make you thankful that things aren't worse, and as the water level drops down, things are getting better," Showelter said.

But the owner of Loe's Highport, one of the largest inland marinas in the United States, said that two restaurants, one boutique and beauty salon and a marine ships store are now flooded.

"We are now part of Lake Texoma, although the Army Corps of Engineers gave us ample warning on when to expect the floodwaters," said C.D. Loe Jr, who owns the marina north of Pottsboro.

Only the blue roof of Loe's restaurant is visible above 12 feet of water and his 700 boat slips are accessible only by water taxis.

The soggiest spring in 50 years saturated soil and swelled rivers beyond flood stage from Lake Texoma on the Oklahoma border to the bayous that ring Houston.

Union activity growing in economic slump

DALLAS (AP) — The slump in the Texas economy and the national trend of competitive pressures forcing unions to grant concessions have hurt the labor movement, say union representatives.

Nearly 3,100 workers are on strike against defense contractor Bell Helicopter Textron, but the week-old strike is one of few in recent years involving a large number of workers in a state where labor organization traditionally has been weak.

The downturn in the economy has resulted in growing discontent among union members, which is likely to lead to more labor disputes, union experts told the Dallas Times Herald.

"I think you're going to see more militancy all the way around," said J.J. Brichard, United Auto Workers Local 218 president. Those striking against Bell Helicopter are all members of Local 218, which consists of maintenance and production workers.

"I think you're going to see more strikes in the near future," said Frank Parker, a labor law attorney and publisher of newsletter that tracks labor development. "There's a lot of frustration built up."

But whether the pent-up frustration will lead to increased and more effective union organizing or whether economic pressures will cause the labor movement to diminish is uncertain.

"We've got a lot of mixed factors that are working, from how fast the economy grows and which sectors make up that growth," said Bill McKee, director of the Labor and Industrial Relations Institute at North Texas State University.

If the economy picks up, he said, so could union membership.

Nevertheless, unions have traditionally been weak in Texas. According to the Labor Department's 1980 census, Texas ranked 48th nationwide in percentage of union membership. While no current ranking is available, Parker estimated the state remains in the bottom three states in percentage of union membership.

Statewide membership in the AFL-CIO, the largest union group in the state, has declined by about 50,000 in the past five years to 225,000, said Harry Hubbard, Texas AFL-CIO president.

The number of petitions filed statewide for elections to establish unions has decreased.

State funds to help failing students

AUSTIN (AP) — The state plans to use $400,000 in federal funds to help Texas students who can't earn high school diplomas and are considered likely to drop out of school.

The special effort was voted unanimously Saturday by the State Board of Education after it was told at least 1,825 seniors will not get diplomas because they failed high school exit tests.

The first results of the exit tests ordered by the 1984 Legislature were revealed Saturday by Education Commissioner William Kirby.

Out of the 5,347 seniors who took the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills test in May, 3,522 passed.

Students who are seniors this year have had opportunities to pass the reading, writing and math test since October 1985. Makeup tests that would have gained them a diploma were given in January, May and October of 1986.

The board voted to spend about $400,000 in unobligated federal funds to tutor students this summer who are likely to drop out of school.

The skills test is given to 11th graders, and if a student fails, it can be repeated the next year.

The May tests were significant because for the first time in Texas, seniors who completed all other graduation requirements were denied a high school diploma because they did not demonstate proficiency in basic skills as required by the 1984 state school reform laws.

"We are pleased to see that so many Texas seniors met the challenge of the state-mandated graduation test," Kirby said.

"We remain concerned, however, that hundreds of students were unable to pass this basic reading, writing and math test."

Kirby's report on the skills tests in May said 55 percent or 18,911 students in the 11th grade, made a passing grade, clearing them for a diploma next year.

However, 15,288 students need more work before receiving high school diplomas in 1988, Kirby said.

Kirby's report had no ethnic breakdown on the exit test failures.

Iglehart Insurance can help you out

Iglehart Insurance Agency, located at 2310 25th Street, is owned and operated by Carol Iglehart.

Carol has worked for other insurance agents in Snyder since 1980 and on May 1, 1985, she received her recording agent's license and opened her own agency. She has attended spring and fall seminars keeping on top of the many changes in the insurance industry.

Hochheim Prairie Farm Mutual Insurance Company is her main company and offers low rates on homes, mobile homes, Builder's Risk, Farms and Livestock Mortality for 4H and FFA animals. She has one of the lowest rates around for mobile homes and rural property.

Aside from home insurance, Carol offers excellent low rates on autos and high performance vehicles for safe drivers as well as those with tickets, DWI's and those needing to file SR-22's with the state. Your premium can be financed for five, seven, eight or nine months depending on your needs.

"Coming into an insurance office that has a warm and friendly atmosphere is important to people," Carol stated. A lot of people do not understand insurance coverages and Carol explains the coverages, as everyone's needs are different. She has several companies to choose from to get the lowest rate possible.

On January 1, 1986, Carol became the branch manager of Hocheim Prairie Farm Mutual Branch 104 and in September of 1986, she welcomed Betty Kincheloe as her sales representative for Hochheim. Betty has seven years insurance experience and also represents the Horace Mann Companies. She or Carol can help you with all your insurance needs. They are happy to report that they have for their customers one of the best retirement plans available at this time along with other life, annuity, health and IRA plans. They would be glad to compare your coverage at your convenience. You can call them at 573-1923 or 573-6588 during office hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Carol and Betty would like for you to come by their new office location which is 2310 25th Street, in the same building with Mary Woodall of the Diet Center.

Lake levels hurting Marina business

LAKE TEXOMA, Texas (AP) — For operators of marinas and other lake recreation facilities at Lake Texoma and Possum Kingdom Lake, the water level is either too high or too low.

At both lakes business owners are losing money.

Lake Texoma is at its second highest level on record, but 100 miles west, Possum Kingdom Lake is 12 to 13 feet below normal.

For Joe and JoAnne Showelter, owners of Willow Springs Resort and Marina on Lake Texoma, flooding has brought their business to a standstill.

"Disasters like this are supposed to make you thankful that things aren't worse, and as the water level drops down, things are getting better," Showelter said.

But the owner of Loe's Highport, one of the largest inland marinas in the United States, said that two restaurants, one boutique and beauty salon and a marine ships store are now flooded.

"We are now part of Lake Texoma, although the Army Corps of Engineers gave us ample warning on when to expect the floodwaters," said C.D. Loe Jr, who owns the marina north of Pottsboro.

Only the blue roof of Loe's restaurant is visible above 12 feet of water and his 700 boat slips are accessible only by water taxis.

The soggiest spring in 50 years saturated soil and swelled rivers beyond flood stage from Lake Texoma on the Oklahoma border to the bayous that ring Houston.

Thatcher wins PM election the easy way

WASHINGTON (AP) — British prime minister, now there's a job worth winning.

It's not at all like campaigning for president of the United States — a two-year process so repugnant that Sen. Alan Dixon practically laughed when asked if he was jealous of the attention going to Paul Simon, the junior senator from Illinois.

Jealous?

Dixon said he doesn't harbor presidential ambitions.

"I don't want to sit in a Holiday Inn seven nights a week," he said. "It's ridiculous we do it this way."

AP analysis

This was not a problem for Margaret Thatcher in her Conservative Party campaign against the Labor Party and Neil Kinnock.

She called last Thursday's election at the height of her popularity and the campaign to reconstitute the Parliament lasted something like 31 days. One guessfimate is that her re-election would cost the Tories something in the neighborhood of $10 million.

And she didn't have to buy TV time. They give it to you free on the BBC.

So what does Mrs. Thatcher get for the effort? Five more years, with a right to as many terms as she can win. Oh, sure, she has to take Labor abuse in the House of Commons every morning. And if she loses a vote of confidence, well, it turns out the five-year guarantee is written in sand.

But all in all, it's a good deal for the effort involved. No wonder she's "rarin' to go" and hinting at a fourth term.

Now, back down to Earth.

Ronald Reagan spent $77 million to win the American presidency last time around and his successor is going to spend even more by November 1988. That's the kind of fact that brought prospective Republican hopeful Paul Laxalt to Detroit one day last week.

"The candidacy is subject to only one condition — that's financial," Laxalt told about 60 supporters during a $1,000-a-plate fund-raiser at the Detroit Athletic Club.

He then headed over to Ann Arbor — and left the state about $100,000 richer. The former Nevada senator suggested he'll ditch his campaign if he can't raise $2 million by October.

Two million dollars? Does any of this make sense to George Prescott Bush?

He's a veritable money-raising machine.

Speaking to reporters in Idaho Falls, Idaho, on June 5, the vice president said he'd just completed six fund-raisers that netted more than $1 million, adding, "That's why I'm in such a good mood." His strategy for now: "I'm going to go where the money is, and into the early primary states."

Anne Scherr, a member of the Bush executive committee in Connecticut, said Bush already had raised about $8 million for his campaign.

Show goes on after death

NEW YORK (AP) — The saddened cast of "Blithe Spirit" went on with the show after Geraldine Page's death, dedicating the Broadway comedy to the Oscar-winning actress best known for portraying Tennessee Williams' neurotic heroines.

"Geraldine would probably be saying something like, 'Get on with it — get on with the show,'" said director Brian Murray as he announced Miss Page's death to the audience before the Sunday matinee.

Miss Page, winner of a 1986 Academy Award for her role in the film "A Trip to Bountiful," died of a heart attack Saturday in her townhouse, the city medical examiner's office said. She was 62.

She had been appearing on Broadway as the madcap medium in the revival of Noel Coward's comedy with Richard Chamberlain, Blythe Danner and Judith Ivey.

A spokesman for the show, Josh Ellis, said a memorial service was planned for Wednesday at the Neil Simon Theater.

Miss Page had missed both performances Saturday at the theater, and her understudy, Patricia Conolly, went on. The comedy, which opened in March, will continue its run, scheduled to end July 19, Ellis said.

Chamberlain called Miss Page's death "a terrible loss to us, to the play, to the world of theater.

"It's a shock to us to have lost one of the greatest actresses the world has ever known," Miss Danner said.

Although Miss Page won an Oscar last year after seven unsuccessful nominations, she was best known as a theater actress. She created a galaxy of unforgettable characters on stage.

Audiences and critics first noticed Miss Page in 1952 in the landmark, off-Broadway revival of Williams' "Summer and Smoke" in which she played Alma Winemiller, a sexually frustrated spinster who succumbs to promiscuity.

The following year, she made her Broadway debut in "Midsummer," a sentimental drama by Vina Delmar.

Among her other major roles were Marcelline, the wife of a homosexual in "The Immoralist" (1954); Princess Kosmonopolis, the vengeful and decaying movie star in Williams' "Sweet Bird of Youth" (1959), a role she repeated on screen; and the mother superior who defends a young nun accused of murder in "Agnes of God" by John Pielmeier (1982).

Dear Abby

Friends Seeking Free Advice Forget Time Is Also Money

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to a letter from a police officer's wife regarding neighbors and friends who call her husband while he's off duty, and ask him to come and help when a police officer is needed.

I am a physician's wife (and a nurse), and my husband has the same problem. We have neighbors and friends who phone or come in person at all hours of the night and day seeking a free diagnosis or prescriptions. My husband is too nice (or spineless) to refuse, or to ask them to call his office and make an appointment.

He's only mildly annoyed, but I am very resentful of these people. My husband and I have very little time together and his off-duty time should be just that. Most of these "friends" and neighbors have their "regular" doctors (whom they pay), but they wouldn't dare to bother them other than at regular hours.

Maybe some of your readers who are physicians, or in other "people professions," could suggest a way to deal with these inconsiderate boobs. Thanks.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Lawyers have the same problem. A very prominent lawyer (who was also a judge) told me that when friends telephone him at his home seeking free legal advice, he says, "First, I want you to know that I charge $50 a minute." One woman who had called him replied, "Forget it. When I was a call girl I never charged that much."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My 55-year-old sister is slightly retarded. I wonder if I should mention this ahead of time when we're going to be with people who have never met her. Perhaps they would be more understanding. They look so surprised when she interrupts them with childlike remarks unrelated to our conversation. She seems to be treated better when people are aware of her problem.

I have tried to teach her to be a good listener, to act interested in what others say, but like all children, she has her mind only on herself, so I've given up on this. What do you think?

SAD IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SAD: It would be a kindness to your sister if you "prepared" people ahead of time. And I'm sure those whom you make aware of the problem will also appreciate it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your advice to "Indiana Mother" who objected to giving condoms to teenagers. You were right to remind her that sex with the wrong partner just once could be a death sentence — and better safe than sorry.

But more important, what kind of moral values have these children been taught at home if they can be ignored just because someone hands them a free condom?

Does "Indiana Mother" think that her children are so ignorant they didn't know that condoms existed, and could be bought at the local drug or grocery store? Or does she think that one free condom will cause them to rush out and find a sex partner?

Teaching teen-agers to say "no" to sex is like teaching them to say "no" to food. It'll work until they get hungry.

TYLER SARLOW,
FORT WORTH, TEXAS

Church needs to spread faith

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — Lutherans need to reaffirm their evangelism, sharing their faith and becoming ambassadors for their new church to flourish, said Bishop Herbert Chilstrom of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

Speaking at a worship service Saturday, Chilstrom said his great-grandparents came to western North Dakota, as had the ancestors of many in the congregation.

"The church flourished because they had large families," Chilstrom said. "But now we're in trouble and the church will go down unless the people of God and the laity catch the vision, share the faith and become ambassadors.

"Why did the early church grow? There were no great preachers or television, but lay people shared with people wherever they went. We need the catch the spirit of Acts (of the Apostles)."

The service concluded the constituting convention of the new church's Western North Dakota Synod. The ELCA is being formed from the American Lutheran Church, the Lutheran Church in America and the Association of Evangelican Lutheran Churches.

Delegates to the Western North Dakota Synod chose the Rev. Robert Lynne as their bishop. Lynne is pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Bismarck.

Chilstrom said Lutherans are a declining congregation but could turn that around if they take on their gifts of joy and hope.

Paul told Christians that they were ambassadors, Chilstrom told the group, but "Lutherans, with their German-Scandinavian background, are not too bold about their faith."

"We are looking for a church which has integrity and we have the unique accomplishment of two larger streams," said Chilstrom, referring to the LCA and ALC. They will merge with the smaller AELC for a total membership of 5 million.

Chilstrom, who will leave his home in Minneapolis to take the post as bishop of the merged church in Chicago, said preaching each Sunday to a different group of people he doesn't know will be a handicap, but "my only refuge is to believe your needs are just like mine."

The bishop said it had been hard to leave Minneapolis for Minot Saturday because when he returned his house would be empty and the movers on the way to Chicago.

Since his son died in that Minneapolis house, Chilstrom said he had been "in the darkest possible valley."

Crushed ants used in allergy shots

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Researchers at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center have found that allergy shots that use an extract from crushed whole fire ants can offer protection from severe allergic reactions to the pests.

The discovery could come just in time.

Physicians and insect specialists are warning that the dry days after heavy rains bring the ants charging out of the ground to rebuild damaged mounds.

At least five Texans, including two Bexar County residents, have died in the past 10 years because of overwhelming allergic reactions to fire ant stings, the San Antonio Light reported.

Another death that may be added to the list involved a Houston nursing home patient who wandered off the premises last month, fell on a fire ant mound and died, Northeast Side allergy specialist Dr. Frank J. James told the newspaper.

"Deaths from fire ant stings are probably rare, but they do occur," said James, a pioneer in the treatment of the problem. "But being seriously ill is common."

James, who holds a master's degree on the study of insects, warned that a person who has no allergy to other stinging insects like bees and wasps could suffer fatal allergic complications from fire ant venom.

Dallas is first in use of deadly force

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas police killed 1.03 per 100,000 people and wounded 1.95 to rank No. 1 among the nation's 11 largest cities in the use of deadly force for the second year in a row, according to a survey of major police departments.

San Diego was second in fatal shootings, with .83 people killed per 100,000. Los Angeles was third with .71 deaths, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

On a per capita basis, Dallas police last year killed about four times as many people as police in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Phoenix and New York; and twice as many as Chicago, Houston, San Antonio and Detroit, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Dallas police officers shot and killed 10 people in 1986 and wounded 19 others. Based on shootings per 100,000 population, the force retained its top ranking earned in 1985 when nine people were killed and nine wounded.

While the statistics rose in Dallas, the numbers in most of the other major cities declined or did not change, the newspaper said.

Instances of police shooting civilians rose 61 percent from 1985 to 1986.

Following the slaying by police of 71-year-old Etta Collins on the front porch of her home, a congressional committee held hearings on the Dallas police department's use of deadly force.

The department plans to spend $25,000 for a consultant to study its deadly force police and training methods.
