TIDAL WAVE DROWNS SCORES IN RESORT CITY

Burkburnett To Observe Silver Anniversary In Celebration Today

PARADE AND BARBECUE TO OPEN JUBILEE

Picnic Feast for 10,000 Visitors Prepared By Host City

CROWDED PROGRAM

Two Bands to Lead Wichita Delegation in March To Celebration

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, June 22—Burkburnett's silver anniversary jubilee will begin at 11 o'clock Thursday morning with a colorful parade, in which will be included all bands entered in the band contest, upwards of 20 floats sponsored by clubs and merchants and many historical relics such as covered wagons and other types of historic vehicles.

The various committees, with M. C. Tucker as general chairman, have arranged a varied program for the gala day.

Other Cities Join

Many cities of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma will send delegates to help Burkburnett observe that historical event 25 years ago, when the city was founded.

Immediately following the parade, the task of serving approximately 10,000 visitors will begin at several stations in town. For this purpose, 5,000 pounds of barbecue meat has been prepared in addition to 1,200 loaves of bread, 1,600 pickles and 400 pounds of onions.

One of the main features, the band contest, will start at 1 p. m. Bands from Fletcher, Okla., Iowa Park, Wichita Falls and Burkburnett will take part in the festival which will be held at the First Baptist church. Several others are expected to enter before the contest begins. Two Wichita Falls bands, Paul Seeds' and the Lions club band, will compete.

At 2:30 o'clock the Rev. John L. H. Hawkins, a pioneer of Burkburnett, now a resident of Berwyn, Okla., will deliver the principal address of the day at the speaker's stand on Main street. Rev. Mr. Hawkins is well known to many of the old settlers, having performed evangelistic work in Burkburnett in the town's early days.

Old Settlers Reunion

At 3 o'clock the old settlers of Burkburnett will register and hold a reunion at the Methodist church. The names of 200 pioneers have been listed and invitations to the celebration sent to all those whose addresses could be secured. Many have sent word that they intend to be present and look forward to the opportunity to meet old acquaintances and talk over old times. At the same time a part of the crowd will witness a baseball game between the Burk All-Stars and Fort Sill at Shamburger park.

Col. Wid Phillips and Capt. T. Guy Willis will direct a rodeo at 3:30 o'clock, and have promised the best thrills of the year. The performance will open with a newsboys' bell contest, in which the newsboy who succeeds in untying a bell from a calf's neck will receive a prize from the firm repre-

SMITH BECOMES 'MYSTERY MAN' AT CHICAGO

Telegrams Of Praise For Garner

WASHINGTON, June 22. (US)—Speaker John N. Garner today received scores of telegrams praising his statement of yesterday on national issues, including a declaration for outright repeal of the 18th amendment.

The general comment was that the speaker had spoken in unequivocal terms and that was said to be what the people want public officials to do in these times.

Joseph P. Tumulty, formerly secretary to President Wilson, wrote the speaker as follows:

"It was a 'tenstrike.' It was characteristic of you to say the right thing at the right time."

Representative Rayburn, manager of the Texas state Garner campaign, announced today he will leave tomorrow for Chicago, where he will take full charge of the Garner interests.

Garner himself is not likely to attend the convention, it was learned. Even though the house should adjourn Saturday, which is highly improbable.

AFL DEPLORES LACK OF ACTION

Government Ignores Crisis, Survey Asserts

WASHINGTON, June 22. (US)—The government is "practically ignoring the greatest business crisis of all time," the American Federation of Labor charged in its monthly survey of business today.

Declaring unemployment in industry has been increasing at the rate of 280,000 persons per month since the first of the year, which at the present rate will mean more than 13,000,000 jobless by next January, the federation added:

"In the face of this erucial problem of life and health or starvation, delays of congress in passing relief legislation are sickening. The problem has outgrown local resources. This is a breakdown of economic institutions which calls for federal action. If relief is not provided, women and men will be forced to return to primitive ways of getting food for themselves and their children. People do not starve by tens of millions when they see plenty all around them.

"Although the Reconstruction Finance corporation has been rescuing more banks and railroads in the past month and the federal reserve has been sending out a steady stream of credit to the banks, this

Scores Injured in Riots Of German Communists

BERLIN, June 22. (US)—Scores were wounded and hundreds arrested in country-wide clashes between police and Communists tonight.

Heavy street fighting took place in Berlin. Fascists were reported embroiled in similar clashes in Halle, Canabrueck, and Breslau. The outbreaks were reminiscent of the red disorders two years ago.

Barricades were erected by the reds in the northern workmen's quarters of the city, while police used armored cars to clear the streets.

Rows of houses were occupied by Communist snipers, and the police charged them to bring out many reds while others fled over rooftops.

Shackelford Steers Sell For $87 Each on Market

FORT WORTH, June 22. (AP)—Two loads of fed steers weighing 1,363 pounds sold on the Fort Worth market today for $6.40 per hundred pounds or $87.23 per animal.

These steers were brought in from their Shackelford county ranch by Bob Davis and Son and finished at Aledo on grass and feed.

Hogs continued their advance on the Fort Worth market with the top of $3.40 per 100 pounds paid for bulk of the supply.

VOTE DEFEATS ATTEMPT ON WORK PROGRAM

Administration Efforts To Remove Relief Measure Futile in Senate

LA FOLLETTE FIGHTS

Youthful Senator Directs Fire at President's 'Lack of Policy'

WASHINGTON, June 22. (AP)—The senate tonight rejected the La Follette proposal for a $5,500,000,000 bond issue to finance public works for unemployment relief.

WASHINGTON, June 22. (US)—The senate today administered a decisive defeat to administration efforts to remove the federal public works construction program from the Wagner relief bill, rejecting an amendment by Senator Moses, 57 to 19.

Senator La Follette, Republican of Wisconsin, immediately introduced his $5,500,000,000 prosperity loan program as a substitute for the entire Wagner bill. He appealed for its passage on the ground that nothing short of this amount would be adequate to relieve unemployment and thaw out the frozen channels of business.

Leaders Bolt

The Moses vote found such administration stalwarts as Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, and Senator McNary, Oregon, Republican whip, deserting the White House proposal. It proposed to strike out the $500,000,000 public works construction item in the bill, whittling the relief program down to a mere $1,500,000,000 measure for financing "self-liquidating projects" by states, through construction finance corporation loans.

Moses declared that inclusion of the federal construction item in the bill would invite a presidential veto and urged that the item be stricken in the interest of harmony.

Senator Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic floor leader, replied that the bill had little possibility of passage without the item.

Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, author of the relief measure, also fought the Moses amendment, declaring the federal construction item to be the very life blood of the bill.

As senators encircled his chair and hung on every word, the youthful La Follette, his face grimly set and his clinched fists sweeping the air, directed a withering fire at President Hoover for "lack of policy" during the economic breakdown.

Ridiculed Hoover

With scorn and ridicule, he analyzed the president's actions.

At first, he said, the president was blind to the approach of the "cataclysmic breakdown," then he sought to minimize it and later, in the midst of the depression, he "in-

Youthful Slayer Gets Second Stay From Chair

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 22. (US)—Russell McWilliams, youthful slayer of a Rockford motorman, was saved from the electric chair by a last-minute appeal to the Illinois supreme court today.

The court allowed a motion for supersedeas and writ of error 36 hours before the 17-year-old boy was to be executed at Joliet penitentiary. It was the second time the supreme court had acted to save the boy's life.

The court delayed execution of the boy's sentence until after Jan. 1.

Wheeler Joins Group Favoring Roosevelt

CHICAGO, June 22. (US)—Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, today joined the war councils of the group seeking to put over the nomination of Governor Roosevelt, of New York.

Several conferences were held on convention organization but no definite decision was arrived at. Others participating were Arthur F. Mullen, of Nebraska, who will act as Roosevelt floor manager, Homer Cummings of Connecticut, J. Bruce Kremer of Montana, and W. W. Howes of South Dakota.

Nurse Alternately Shrieks and Sobs As Strain Tells in Heartbalm Suit

Husky Husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Injects Mystery into Trial With Promise of Surprise Defense

LOS ANGELES, June 22. (UP)—Near a breakdown from hours of spirited cross-examination, Myrtle St. Pierre tried valiantly tonight to defend the name she charged was besmirched by Davil L. Hutton's faithless love.

Alternative sobbing and shrieking, the comely nurse exhausted herself in a flood of emotion as she answered rapid fire questions of counsel for the 250-pound baritone husband of Aimee McPherson Hutton the evangelist.

"I have a right to defend my character," she cried as attorney for "Iron Dave" read lists of men's names and asked her if she knew them. She remembered only two, for her mind was filled with memories of Hutton's alleged love making—for lack of which she now asks $200,000 heartbalm.

Dave Exultant

Between the girl's sobs, Hutton busied himself by injecting a mystery angle into his defense of the breach of promise case. Mrs. St. Pierre was telling about her first two husbands, both of whom she divorced, when suddenly a plainly dressed woman and a man in a red necktie burst into the courtroom. They whispered agitatedly with Hutton and hurried out.

"They've got the stuff," exulted Hutton, breaking into a smile for the first time today. He beamed on reporters. "I can't tell you her name—it doesn't matter anyway—but they sure have the stuff, all right."

Hutton's attorneys said the woman came here from New York to give "important testimony." Earlier the evangelist's husband promised his defense would be chiefly an attack on the nurse rather than an attempt to trip her up in her main story.

Cross-questioning of the nurse after her dramatic story of yesterday—which she climaxed by pitching to the floor in a faint—was routine in the extreme. Spectators registered disappointment when Attorney Mark Jones, representing

Wet Leader Declares Democrat Chance Good

CHICAGO, June 22. (US)—Democrats have excellent prospects of carrying 17 pivotal states, with 259 votes in the electoral college, by declaring for repeal of the 18th amendment, Henry H. Curran, head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, declared tonight.

Curran said it is agreed already that the Democrats will go farther than the Republicans by endorsing a resubmission plank which will permit a straightout vote for repeal or retention of the 18th amendment. He urged the Democrats to take the next step and pledge the party to work for repeal.

Direct Descendant of Miles Standish Dies

PALO ALTO, Calif., June 22. (US)—Miles Standish, 74, eighth lineal descendant of the famous Puritan captain, died today of a heart attack.

Miles, who was an expert on timberlands, is survived by a son, Allen Morgan Standish of this city.

OIL PRORATION HEARING ENDS

'Per Well' Production Rule Is Indicated

AUSTIN, June 22. (UP)—The Texas Railroad commission ended its hearings in an effort to determine the proper allowable production of oil in the East Texas field tonight with an indication a ruling based on a per well proration would be returned.

The present ruling permitting 51 barrels and 325,000 barrels daily expires July 1.

East Texas representatives urged the commission not to lower the barrel ruling. An order may not be issued for several days.

Testimony today included that of J. H. Mook, J. S. Hudnall and Wallace Jenkins.

Hudnall, a consulting geologist, testified if the water had followed the oil in the East Texas field it would have risen eight instead of five feet. Mook urged the allowable production be raised, that if it be found harmful the figure be lowered.

Lewis to Be Returned To State Hospital

DALLAS, June 22. (UP)—Yancey Lewis, 34, son of a prominent Texas family who chloroformed and beat his mother to death, will be returned to the state hospital for the insane without the formality of a hearing, it was announced late today.

Lewis, who was graduated from Yale university in 1921, was on furlough from the hospital when he killed his mother Sunday. He said he killed her because "I was 34 years old."

A guardian will be appointed to handle the affairs of Lewis and the $4,000 cash and nine-room family home he inherited as the result of his mother's death.

Baytown Man Follows Wife in Suicide Death

BAYTOWN, Texas, June 22. (INS)—A few minutes after Mrs. Warren Smith, 25, died from poisoning, her husband was found dying from a gunshot wound in the head.

Funeral arrangements were being made today for the couple.

Smith was at work in a factory yesterday afternoon when told of his wife's death. He went to a friend's home, where he was found a few minutes later.

William G. McAdoo Arrives Shortly After His Foe From New York

'WARRIOR' CONFIDENT

Roosevelt Leaders Believe Tammany Will Help Governor

CHICAGO, June 22. (AP)—John F. Curry, Tammany leader, said tonight his organization had not yet decided whom it will support for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Telling newspaper men the decision would be reached at a caucus of the New York delegation next Sunday, Curry at the same time denied he would participate, meanwhile in conferences designed to "stop Roosevelt."

"I have no such idea," he said.

HITCHCOCK FOR CHAIRMAN

CHICAGO, June 22. (UP)—Former Senator Gilbert N. Hitchcock of Nebraska has been selected as candidate of the Roosevelt forces for chairman of the Democratic resolutions committee which drafts the party platform, it was learned tonight. Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, the early choice, declined.

By THOMAS L. STOKES

CHICAGO, June 22. (UP)—Alfred E. Smith breezed into Chicago today, came out for immediately legalizing beer, and became the dynamic mystery figure in the "stop Roosevelt" movement.

The 1928 standard-bearer who reiterated his stand for a flat repeal plank, became the champion of those leaders who would go still further than the Republicans by legalizing beer as a means of stamping out the bootlegger and bringing revenue to a depleted federal treasury.

Smith believes this would have a strong appeal to the voters throughout the country, since repeal would take some time.

Al Confident

It was the throaty, grinning and confident "Al" Smith of 1928 who arrived today—the hero of the hour—to be received into Chicago's open arms with a welcome that smacked of the blare which followed him across the country four years ago.

Claiming he was his own candidate for president, without any second choice, Smith immediately assumed leadership of the drive to stop his old friend and protege, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

He preceded by a few hours another old-time leader, William Gibbs McAdoo, who likewise will fight the Roosevelt candidacy.

Curry Arrives

The pre-convention slate of potential wire-pullers was completed with the arrival of Tammany Hall's leader, John F. Curry, who may hold in his hand the key of the tantalizing question whether Roosevelt is to be swept into the nomination, or whether a deadlock will

Parents of Boy Slain on Golf Course Sue City

FORT WORTH, June 22. (AP)—A suit for $146,689 damages growing out of the fatal shooting of Buster Grimsley May 5 on Ridgiea golf course by a city policeman was filed in district court today by the parents of the lad.

The city of Fort Worth and the Anderson-Berney Realty company, owners of the course, were named defendants.

The boy's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Grimsley. They sought $46,689 actual and $100,000 exemplary damages. The petition alleged the golf course was outside the city limits and that city officers had no legal authority to be on the premises.

Lonnie Wilkerson, former policeman, was convicted of murder without malice recently in connection with the shooting and was given five years in the state penitentiary.

'Baering' Down On The News

BY ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

TIME TO WORRY ABOUT OURSELVES

Only things left of the U. S. navy by fall will be Hiawatha's canoe and Jack Sharkey's bathrobe.

The White House now favors total prohibition of bombardments from the air. We're in favor of that if it includes broadcasts of political conventions.

Mr. Hoover would abolish tanks, gas, flame, bombs, planes, soldiers and boats. Let's also eliminate Belgian relief and concentrate at home. It's an awful shock these days to come face to face with a meatless Monday on a Thursday.

France has already rejected the White House plan and Premier Herriot is helping the cotton crop by stuffing it in his ears.

We've been suggesting things to Europe for 20 years. They take our advice and money and forget both.

In a way they establish a record by forgetting three things out of two because they forget us also.

If we must get gray hairs and wrinkles from worrying it's not a bad idea to accumulate 'em from worrying about ourselves.

DEMOS SURE TO ASK PRO VOTE

Every Arriving Leader Is For Submission

CHICAGO, June 22. (AP)—The Democratic platform for 1932 will carry a plank providing for submission to the states of the question of repeal of national prohibition.

This became certain today when Senator Hull of Tennessee, prospective chairman of the resolutions committee and ardent prohibitionist, arrived and announced:

"It seems to be the concensus among most drys and wets alike, where I have traveled recently, that there well might be a submission of this question in such direct, unequivocable form as would enable the voters of the different states to express their choice between retention and repeal."

About the same time, Alfred E. Smith, the 1928 standard bearer, declared in his first convention statement for "unconditional repeal of the 18th amendment" and immediate modification of the Volstead act.

Tonight, it appeared to be just a question of whether the party would declare for submission of a repeal amendment or actually pledge the members to repeal. The former seemed more likely.

Senator Hull speaks for the dominant Roosevelt element of the convention. This group, at least controls the resolutions committee and appears to have the majority to put over the platform recommended by the committee.

Casting aside the prohibition issue as settled, the Roseveltians are

WASHINGTON, June 22. (US)—Declaring he cannot run on the Republican party's "straddle plank" on prohibition and "palliative measures" for unemployment relief, Representative Phil D. Swing, Republican, of California, today announced his withdrawal as a candidate for the senate from that state.

Swing also disclosed he would not attempt to return to the house of representatives, but would resume practice of law after his present term expires March 4, 1933.

WALL OF WATER ENGULFS TOWN AFTER QUAKES

Cuyutlan, Watering Place Of Mexico West Coast, Is Destroyed

MANY CHILDREN LOST

Hundreds of Persons Hurt And Missing, Mayor Reports

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, June 22. (US)—More than 100 persons, including many children, perished in a tidal wave which today destroyed the resort town of Cuyutlan, state of Colima, it was estimated by the state military commander tonight. Hundreds of others were injured.

Many of the injured were brought to Colima, 40 miles from the scene of the disaster, taxing that city's hospital facilities to the limit.

Wave Unprecedented

Today's tidal wave, preceded by two earthquake shocks, was the third catastrophe visited on the Mexican west coast within two weeks and was described as unprecedented in the history of that region.

Only a few strongly built structures in Cuyutlan were left standing. These included the railway station, the municipal palace and a church.

Tonight, 50 bodies had been recovered from wrecked buildings and summer cottages of the town. Scores more are believed to have been washed out to sea.

Few Escape

Officials of the National railway estimated that between 400 and 500 persons were at the popular seaside resort when the sea rushed in. Few of them, it is feared escaped. Fifty injured persons were brought into Colima, 40 miles inland from Cuyutlan tonight.

The inland charge of the sea was preceded by two earth tremors, a light shock at 7:10 a. m., a second heavy shock at 7:30 a. m., then without warning the sea rose, surged up over the beach and advanced a solid wall of tons of water upon the town.

Children taking their morning dip were swept away. Mothers preparing breakfast in their beachfront cottages were caught in the tumbling debris of their homes. Only a few of the town's buildings withstood the deluge.

—News Delayed

Word of the fresh catastrophe did not come out of the west coast region, already twice ravaged by earthquakes, until tonight. First word came from the National railways' agent at Cuyutlan. His message stated:

"After earthquakes this morning, the sea rose, inundating the hotel zone and nearby houses and causing many deaths and injuries."

Manzanillo and Campos, towns 20 and 30 miles north of Cuyutlan, felt the effects of the tidal wave. At Manzanillo, a breakwater held back the surging waters.

Cuyutlan was one of the newer watering places on the west coast. Its most substantial buildings were a new hotel and the railroad station. The rest of the town was made up of summer cottages.

Cuyutlan is in the center of the area most seriously ravaged by the first of the two recent earthquakes. It is popular with many of Mexico's high government officials. President Orti Rubio and Minister of War Calles and their families passed the Easter holidays at Cuyutlan.

MANY OF MISSING CARRIED OUT TO SEA

MEXICO CITY, June 22. (AP)—At least 30 persons were killed and many more missing were feared dead in a tidal wave that virtually wiped out the town of Cuyutlan, on the west coast of Mexico, after an earthquake today.

A great number of persons were reported injured.

The coast along that section, severely shaken recently by a series of earthquakes, was swept by the tidal wave, with heavy damage to prop-

Members of State Demo Committee Favor Rescinding Prohibition Poll

DALLAS, June 22. (AP)—Car P. Collins of Dallas, member of the Democratic state executive committee, said here tonight six other members had advised him they favored another meeting of the committee to rescind a provision for a vote on prohibition resubmission in the primary.

Collins had sent the following telegram to the 31 members of the committee:

"In view of the widespread confusion and dissatisfaction, will you agree to join with me in voting to rescind the action of the last meeting of the executive committee in proposing a prohibition referendum provided Chairman W. O. Huggins reconvenes the committee? Many counties are refusing to place the resubmission question in the July 23 primaries."

Collins said he had received 11 answers, of which six favored rescinding the committee action, four were willing to let it stand, and one, from a member who had opposed the action, was also willing to allow a vote.

Albert Sidney Johnson of Dallas, secretary of the committee, said he would not order the resubmission ballots and tally sheets until he heard definitely from Huggins, because of the apparent confusion over the matter.

BORAH ATTACK STIRS PARTY

Reverberations Continue In Prohibition Row

WASHINGTON, June 22. (INS)—The attack of Senator William E. Borah, Republican, of Idaho, on the Republican platform continued to reverberate through political circles today, with Republican leaders convinced that the break between President Hoover and Borah is irreparable.

The breach, in fact, had been widened by the raising of the issue of veracity between Borah, Postmaster General Brown and Senator Simeon Fess, Republican, of Ohio, retiring chairman of the Republican national committee.

Suggestions that President Hoover, in his acceptance speech, might propose his own platform on prohibition and economic issues and thus win the active allegiance of Borah, were discounted.

Answering intimations that Borah indirectly invited Mr. Hoover to repudiate the platform, Fess said,

"Mr. Borah is not suggesting that the president repudiate the platform because he knows the president would not do it."

Shaking his head, Fess said the break apparently would not be healed.

Borah insisted that Postmaster General Brown had declared for repeal of the 18th amendment while both Brown and Fess maintained he opposed repeal but favored "revision."

Borah, making public the plank he had proposed for the Republican platform, explained the declaration of Brown and Fess that he had proposed resubmission.

The Idaho senator said he had been working on a constitutional amendment to be submitted to the people, repealing the 18th amendment but providing against the return of the saloon. He reached the conclusion he could not outlaw the saloon.

This amendment was to be offered to the senate. Borah's plank in the Republican platform called for a declaration in support of the 18th amendment until it is repealed.

"Whenever a majority of the people in two-thirds of the congressional districts and in two-thirds of the states tire of prohibition they can easily elect enough senators and representatives pledged to propose to the states an amendment for repeal, and when three-fourths of the states ratify that amendment it will become effective," said the proposed plank.

This has been the contention of the extreme drys. The congressional elections, they hold, are in themselves a prohibition referendum.

Wichita Retail Sales Show Gain For May And Smallest Loss For Year

University of Texas Business Bureau Finds City Enjoying Best Average of Cities of State

AUSTIN, June 22.—A two per cent increase was noted in the dollar volume of department-store sales for 96 firms reporting to the University of Texas bureau of business research for May, as compared with April. This is contrasted with the preliminary report of the federal reserve board which showed that department store sales over the United States declined from April to May.

The volume was still 31 per cent under the May, 1931, figure, however, every city on the list reporting declines ranging from 12.3 per cent in Wichita Falls to 44.2 per cent in San Angelo, as compared with last year. Comparisons with April were somewhat more cheerful, nine of the cities reporting showing increases.

Towns showing increases over April sales were as follows: Beaumont, Corsicana, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston, Waco, Wichita Falls. Some of these gains were quite substantial, ranging as high as 20 per cent. This figure was recorded in El Paso; Waco and Corsicana followed in second and third place, with gains of 17.1 per cent and 14.5 per cent respectively.

It was noticeable from bureau of business research compilations that the larger stores had shown improvement while the smaller ones continued to decline in volume of sales. Stores with an annual volume of more than $500,000 gained 4.1 per cent during May as compared with April and declined 31.4 per cent as compared with May last year, while stores with sales under $500,000 a year declined 5.2 per cent from April and 33.3 per cent from May, 1931.

Men's clothing stores registered the largest gains among the various groups, showing an increase of 8.9 per cent over sales for April; while women's specialty shops also gained 1.8 per cent. Dry goods and apparel stores declined 6.4 per cent from the April volume of sales.

The ratio of sales made on credit to net sales has declined from 57.6 per cent at this time last year to 56.7 per cent, while the ratio of collections to outstanding accounts has increased to 28.6 per cent as compared with 33.1 per cent at this time in 1931.

MUTES TESTIFY IN DEATH CASE

Deaf and Dumb Man On Trial for Slaying Rival

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22. (UP)—Norman D. Hunt, was justified in killing his deaf friend, Louis Coleman, friends testified today at the deaf mute's murder trial.

In sign language, their flying fingers unfolding the tragic story, witnesses told a jury of normal persons how Coleman had "wrecked the Hunt home" because of his love for Mrs. Hunt.

Testimony of those witnesses who could speak aloud was interpreted to deaf and dumb spectators by two sign language experts. Judge A. Stanford Lyon allowed the audience to "converse" at will on their fingers during the session.

Fingers Tell Reputation

"The Hunts were happy together until Mrs. Hunt sued for divorce," Mrs. Christina Collier, friend of the family, testified. She is a deaf mute. Mrs. Clyde Burris, sign language instructor, interpreted statements for the jurors.

"Coleman's reputation was that of a quarrelsome man." Mrs. Collier said with her fingers.

Oscar Sanford, close friend of Hunt, testified the defendant told him Coleman had "stolen my wife's love."

Questions were relayed to Sanford by Hunt's attorney through Mrs. Burris. Sanford, only deaf, answered in his own voice.

"I saw Hunt the morning Coleman was shot," Mrs. George Humpel, both deaf and dumb, testified. "He was greatly agitated, for he had seen Coleman drive away with his wife."

Admitted Slaying

Coleman was shot the night of March 14. Hunt immediately surrendered to police, admitting "I killed him because he refused to quit paying attention to my wife."

The crowd of spectators plainly was supporting Hunt. As each witness testified as to Hunt's good reputation, deaf mutes in the audience grunted approval. They conversed between themselves, their nimble fingers forming letters and words with a speed that made their symbols almost impossible to follow.

Hunt told police he went to Coleman's home and shot the deaf man after he repeatedly had insisted upon driving Mrs. Hunt to work in the morning.

"I'm not guilty of murder," Hunt said through an interpreter.

"Coleman broke up my home and even refused to talk to me about it."

CHARGED IN SHOOTING

McKINNEY, Texas, June 22. (AP)—Will F. Vaughan, 47, was charged today with murder in connection with the shooting of C. L. Lane, 47, garage owner, at Wylie yesterday. Vaughan is a Collin county farmer.

Germany's recently developed "Rail-Zeppelin," which has been undergoing trial tests, will be put on a regular scheduled run between Berlin and Hamburg during the coming summer.

COURT DIFFERS ON BREW CASE

Question of Intoxication Splits Appellate

AUSTIN, June 22. (AP)—A question whether "home brew" is intoxicating divided the Texas court of criminal appeals today in deciding a case involving a conviction for possessing intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale.

The conviction, against Charley Walker, Erath county, who had been sentenced to one year imprisonment, was reversed and remanded by a two-to-one decision. Judge O. S. Lattimore dissented from Presiding Judge W. C. Morrow and Judge F. L. Hawkins in approving the opinion, written by Judge George E. Christian of the commission of appeals.

Officers Drank

"If the liquor was 'home brew' the evidence to the effect that it was intoxicating was not conclusive," the majority opinion stated. "Beer is, within the judicial knowledge of the court, an intoxicating liquor. The courts have no judicial knowledge that home brew is an intoxicating liquor."

There was disagreement among officers who raided Walker's place and found 17 pint bottles "with a liquid of some character" in a trunk. The officers said they had taken "two or three swallows" of the liquid and testified they believed it was intoxicating.

Lattimore Dissents

"Not being informed that home brew is not a known intoxicant, and being advised in the charge that beer is judicially known to be an intoxicant, and the issue as to whether the liquor was home brew or beer not having been submitted, it is reasonable to conclude that the jury, in reading that part of the charge to the effect that appellant should be acquitted if the jury entertained a reasonable doubt as to whether the liquor was capable of producing intoxication, entertained the belief that the court, as evidenced by the abstract instruction that beer is a known intoxicant, had reached the conclusion that the liquor was capable of producing intoxication," the majority opinion held.

Judge Lattimore said he believed the evidence was sufficient to convince the jury that whether the liquid was "beer" or "home brew" it was intoxicating.

Walker claimed the liquid had been left at his place by another party and denied ownership.

Hoover Proposes One-Third Arms Cut

WASHINGTON, June 22. (US)—President Hoover, in a surprise move, today laid before world powers a proposal to cut all land, sea and air armaments by one third.

His program was made public simultaneously at the White House and by Ambassador Hugh Gibson before the general disarmament conference at Geneva.

While it received endorsement of some congressional leaders, it was soundly flayed by many in congress as dangerous to American security.

The proposal was interpreted as a move to revivify the dying Geneva disarmament conference. It was declared emphatically in White House circles the president's program has no connection with the reparations conference now in progress at Lausanne.

A saving of $15,000,000,000 would be obtained for the "toilers" of the world if the proposal is adopted by the nations, President Hoover declared.

Lubbock Monkey Gives Interview From Death Cell

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 22. (AP)—Carefully picking out what might have been fleas and thoughtfully cracking them between his teeth, "Patrick," a monkey, eyed with suspicion a reporter who attempted to interview him in the city jail today. His peculiar insolence was unshaken by the uncertainty of just how long he will be allowed to live.

Owned by a Lubbock physician, "Patrick" is awaiting decision tomorrow by the city commission on his fate. He bit a 6-year-old boy last Saturday, and the monkey's death was demanded at a hearing Monday on the grounds that he was a public nuisance.

The accused Simian gibbered and chanted gleefully when asked his opinion of evolution, taxation, prohibition and Tammany hall. Settling down in the cool basin of a jail lavatory, he yawned, indicating the interview was at an end.

"Pat" is aroused to extreme violence only when called names such as small boys sometimes scribble on back yard fences.

John Hughes Curtis Repudiates Confession

NEW YORK, June 22. (UP)—John Hughes Curtis has repudiated his confession of a hoax in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, the New York Daily News said today in a copyrighted story.

The News quoted Curtis as speaking through his attorney because he had been forbidden to speak to newspaper men under threat of solitary confinement in the Flemington, N. J., jail. He is held there awaiting trial on a charge of obstructing justice.

Curtis, the story said, declared his negotiations to return Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., were in good faith.

COUPLE SHOT FROM AMBUSH

Dope Peddler Sought As Woman's Slayer

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22. (UP)—A notorious bootlegger and dope peddler, Lonnie (Dago) Affronti, was sought by police tonight as the ambush slayer of Mrs. Azalea McRorey Ross, 29, wife of a government narcotics informer, in a rural Missouri shooting.

Her husband, Thomas Ross, was wounded probably fatally. His companion, Hadley Morrison, suffered slight injury.

Affronti, according to both Ross and Morrison, did the shooting.

Affronti is to go to trial next Monday on charges of selling narcotics to Ross and a government agent. Ross is slated to testify for the prosecution.

The shooting was cowardly. Mrs. Ross and the two men were caught in a hail of shotgun slugs as they sat parked near a bridge not far from Richmond, Missouri farming community.

Morrison, who described the shooting to police, named Affronti as the killer. He branded both Ross and his wife as narcotic users.

"We were driving along the road when Ross stopped the car and got out to take a shot in the arm," Morrison said in a statement to E. A. Farris, Ray county prosecutor. "Ross was on the left side of the car and I was on the right.

"Mrs. Ross let out a scream—'Look out, there's Lonnie Affronti.'

"From a coupe, parked up the road, came a shot. I fell with a load of buckshot in me.

"Affronti was on top of me. He put a shotgun to my side and pulled the trigger. I heard it. The shell must have jammed. I got up and ran.

"I heard some more shots. When I looked around, Ross was lying in the road. Whether or not Mrs. Ross was shot first, I don't know."

Walker To Answer Charges Of Seabury

NEW YORK, June 22. (US)—Mayor James J. Walker today was called upon by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt to answer the charges against his administration filed by Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee and chief investigator in its city-wide expose.

Mayor Walker, acknowledging receipt of the governor's message this afternoon, announced that he would file his answer after the Democratic national convention. He said:

"The governor's communication with enclosures has been received.

"Mrs. Walker's condition was so much improved today that I plan to go to the convention at Chicago in a day or two.

"Upon my return to New York I will immediately take up the matter of the governor's communication."

The necessity for an operation upon the mayor's wife had delayed his start to the conventions.

Questioned as to a report that he was to be a member of the resolutions committee at the convention, the mayor said:

"I've heard of no such report. While no request has come to me to serve, I'm willing and ready to serve on any committee. If I am drafted for such service, I may leave sooner than otherwise."

Popular Wichitans Wed In Beautiful Ceremony

The simple beauty of old fashioned weddings was exemplified in the impressive ceremony that united Miss Mary Alice Johnson and R. J. Brown at Floral Heights Methodist church Wednesday night at 8 o'clock with Rev. Finis J. Crutchfield reading the ring ceremony before a church filled with friends of both families. Exquisite music and beautiful floral decorations made a perfect background for the occasion.

The rich green of ivy and masses of banked gladioli against the wall at the back of the altar were flanked with seven point cathedral candelabra in which white tapers gleamed softly. The altar railing was banked with beautiful gladioli in the pastel shades chosen by the bride and the prie-dieu covered with white satin stood just before the embowered altar.

Mrs. J. W. Akin presided at the organ and played Liszt's "Liebestraum" as the opening pre-nuptial music. Mrs. Jasper Feruson and Baldwin Montgomery sang as a duet, "I Love Your Truly," and before the entry of the bridal party, Mr. Montgomery gave as an effective solo, "At Dawning." Mrs. Akin played the wedding march from Lohengrin as the processional and created an exquisite background of soft music during the ceremony. Mendelssohn's wedding march was the recessional.

The beautiful old fashioned motif was struck in the entry of two charming girls who carried baskets of pastel blossoms on their arms; Joyce Janice Hale wore a white net colonial frock over pink satin and Peggy Jean O'Hara white net in the same dainty style over blue satin. Joe Frank Fritz was ring bearer, carrying the ring in the heart of a white rosebud on a satin cushion.

Beautiful Picture

The winsome young bride, who entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, was a radiant picture in the ivory satin gown that enhanced her brunette beauty. It was made in long princess effect with a four-yard train. Close fitting sleeves reached over her hands and she wore ivory satin slippers. The long wedding veil of ivory tulle covered the satin court train and was tucked into a Juliette cap with pearl trimmings. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and orchid status with a shower of sweet peas and rose buds, and as a bit of sentiment, a point lace handkerchief that is an heirloom in her mother's family.

Mrs. Shadie Hale, matron of honor, was lovely in a long gown of white net flowered in pink over pink satin with shell pink accessories; she had an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Misses Madelyn McCarty and Glenna Miller were dainty bridesmaids. Miss McCarty wore a green organdy frock fitting closely to the knees where a wide flounce shaded into deep and deeper tones of green. The great puffed sleeves were shaded in the same manner and tiny buttons went to the high neck in the quaint old style adopted for the wedding motif. Miss Miller was charming in orchid organdy made in the same way. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow gladioli and sweet peas and Miss McCarty's bouquet was of pink gladioli and sweet peas.

Mrs. Akin, the organist, and Mrs. Ferguson, who sang, wore corsages of sweet peas and roses in pastel shades.

Mr. Brown was attended by Jack Rushing as best man and had as groomsmen, Jimmie Gamewell and Herschel Johnson. The groom and his attendants and Mr. Montgomery, soloist, wore white rosebud boutonnieres.

Mrs. Brown, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Johnson, is a popular member of the young society set of Wichita Falls. She was educated at high school and Junior college. Mr. Brown, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Brown, is also a graduate of the local schools.

The wedding was preceded by a series of lovely courtesies that attested the popularity of the couple and a room in the home of the bride's parents is filled with a magnificent display of wedding gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown left soon after the ceremony for a short wedding trip. Mrs. Brown's going away gown was a navy blue crepe suit with blue and white accessories. She wore an Agnes model blue hat with tiny veil and blue slippers.

When they return they will be at home to their friends at their home on Kemp boulevard.

With retail trade satisfactory in several regions, optimism is pervading the Canadian economic situation, according to a department of commerce statement.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

The coolest looking person we saw Wednesday was a symphony in black and white. A large man, (cook we supposed from his attire) at the General hospital, dressed in immaculate white garments and with a white cap atop his shining face, sat beneath a tree on the grounds facing Brook street. He was stout and may have been warm, but he was a picture of comfort.

With the first warm days, our grumbling begins. Not being just what one would term fat, we do not understand why we suffer so much more from heat than fleshier folk. We pine for cool air. Where a bear hibernates in the winter, we would far rather hibernate in summer.

It is a question whether one is warmer with light clothes or with heavy ones. During the war, our heart melted for the soldiers in their flannel shirts and all for nothing; they asserted that the flannel kept out the heat and they did not suffer so much as we in thinner costume.

If so, what do the nudists do in summertime? It may be that their hides become accustomed to the rays of the sun. If we, however, were a nudist, we would prefer remaining all our time in the water.

There are a legion of unpleasant things connected with warm weather. Among the first, are insects of various kinds.

A friend said proudly to us today, "I canned six glasses of wild plums yesterday." "Where did you get them?" we asked, and she answered, "I picked them myself out in the broiling sun." The sun seemed a minor terror to us as we remembered our last hunt for wild plums. "Didn't you get chiggers?" we asked. We touched a common bond of sympathy. "I'm covered with them," she said. "I'm dotted all over with iodine. My husband looked at my back yesterday and said, 'Well the jelly is fine, but I don't believe it is worth it at that price.'"

We only went hunting wild plums once and wild blackberries once. We learned our lesson. We even hesitate to sit upon the grass.

Some people don't mind heat. A recent paper told of a tragic death where a hopeless woman was burned to death with gasoline after purchasing gasoline and matches. We overheard two men reading and talking about it. "Well," one of them said, "I've heard of red hot mamas."

Tragedies that happen to unknown people, far away, while often more horrible in calamity than those nearer home, do not touch us so much. The man who made the remark has one of the biggest hearts we know.

How often you and I have passed time in "wise cracking" at the expense of some far distant stranger. There is at least this compensation; should the time come when we furnish food for fun, it will not harm us. We would far rather leave laughter behind than aching hearts.

But we'd rather not be a laughing stock while yet alive. It's all right to laugh at ourself, if only the other fellow laughs with and not at us.

Our Children

THRIFT

I like the idea of thrift much better than that of saving. One is likely to save just for the sake of saving but one is thrifty for an intelligent end. You make good use of money and goods when you are thrifty. You don't just grab and hold on to them. Thrift is a virtue that rich and poor can well cultivate. It is not compulsory as saving is. It allows room for intelligence and one does not feel the pressure of poverty as is likely to be the case in saving.

Graduation time accented this idea in my mind. These are hard times and graduation clothes must be kept to the limits of the budget. The ways of solving the difficulty interested me as I saw one family after the other meeting it.

"I will not have to buy Sara a graduation dress, isn't that good? I took her sister's confirmation dress, pressed it, fitted it a little and put a fresh flower on it and it's just as nice as can be. She is tickled with it."

Another mother said, "Jack has outgrown every stitch of clothes he has and I have to buy him a new suit. He earned the money caddying. I'm going to buy him blue serge with one pair of knickers and one pair of longies. He doesn't like to go about in good long pants you see so the knickers will do up to September and when he goes to high school he can wear the suit with the long pants. He won't need to wear the jacket in the summer. If he is cold he can put on his sweater. I can always wash and mend that, you see."

Jack listened approvingly. He took an old wallet out of his pocket and showed me an advertisement cut from the newspaper. "Here's where it says I can get such a suit for seventeen dollars. Here's one for 13 but no two pairs of pants. Mother is going to look at them all and get the best bargain. I don't care, just so it's blue and I can have a good suit for school in fall."

Jack's family was not to be ccalled poor. They owned their own home and they had a bank account for the rainy day but for years, ever since Jacky entered kingergarten he had had an allowance and learned how to use it. He wasn't hoarding, he wasn't even saving on this suit. He was being thrifty.

Another sort of family showed up, too. One of the mothers came in to say that she didn't like our telling the children they need not have a special suit for graduation. Any neat suit would do. "His aunt is giving him a graduation suit and I want him to wear it and look nice. If the other children aren't going to wear new clothes maybe she won't think it necessary. I think every child ought to have a brand new graduation suit."

That wasn't just what it ought to be if all sorts of things were to be considered. The family of this mother had just as much money as Jack's but their way of thinking was different. Even spending money, the most careless gesture in the world, takes on a new thrill if intelligence enters into it and thrift spices it. It becomes an adventure and the human spirit loves adventure.

Restaurant Tipping Has Many Variations

By EMILY POST
Author of "The Blue Book of Social Usage"

It is impossible to answer the many questions about tipping under any fixed rule of percentage, because it all depends upon where you go, and upon what you order, and upon the service given you, and upon the evidence of wealth or lack of wealth that your personal appearance denotes.

The one supposedly fixed rule of a 10 per cent tip holds good in the average restaurant, upon presentation of an average bill. But even this rule has many exceptions. To be sure you would give precisely 10 per cent of the bill to the waiter if three or four friends were lunching or dining with you in a restaurant. If you are having a party of 10 or 12 or more, the 10 per cent is divided between the waiters who serve you. In addition to this you perhaps give a tip of from 5 to 10 per cent to the head waiter—on the other hand, perhaps you don't.

Or let us say you go into a restaurant of highest class, sit at a best table, meaning one near the door of entrance, or one on the edge of the dancing floor, or one overlooking the garden or whatever a "best" location may be and order a light meal that comes to a dollar. You could not possibly give the waiter so little as 10 cents! In a restaurant of highest luxury where, let us say, the sole wages of the waiters are their tips, the best tables are given to the waiters in rotation because tips vary according to location. You would have to give him four or five times 10 per cent for a dollar meal to compensate him for the table. If you are put at a table far back and near the pantry door, your tip would decrease in proportion.

In a restaurant de luxe, a safe rule is a tip of 25 cents minimum for one person, or 30 to 40 cents for a bill of four dollars and over. In an average restaurant, 25 cents, whether for one or two, for a bill of two dollars. In a lunch room, 10 to 15 cents for a dollar meal, whether for one or two.

Barn Dance Is Unique Party For Younger Set

Complimenting J. C. Man Jr., who has recently returned from Kemper Military school, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Man entertained at their home in Country Club estates Tuesday evening with a barn dance. A large crowd of the younger social set were guests. Stafford's King Revellers furnished music for the dancing from 9:30 o'clock until after midnight.

The old time barn dance theme was emphasized in an interesting manner. Delicious punch was served from an old oaken bucket on an improvised well; girls wore pretty cotton frocks and the boys everyday clothing. The large concrete drive afforded the dance floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Man were assisted in entertaining by Virginia Green, Betty Hargett, Pauline Jane Art and Lurlyne Lester.

RAIN RUINED PANTS

DUBLIN, (UP)—Pointing out that suits of Irish woolen would still be available to poor persons in the Free State, despite the customs duties on ready-made goods, the minister of commerce stated in the dail recently that he had seen specimens of imported trousers which would be ruined by one shower of rain, which obviously wouldn't do in Ireland.

sented by the bell. Other events on the program are calf roping, ster, bronc and mule riding, and a wild steer chariot race in which Frank Rush of Craterville, Okla., will participate.

Terrapin Derby

Two comedies, a baseball game between the Fats and the Leans and a square dance on horses, will amuse spectators at the rodeo arena at 5 and 6 o'clock respectively, followed at 6:30 by a terrapin derby, with about 1,500 entries. Cash prizes, the amount of which will be determined by the number of entries, will be awarded the winners.

From 7 o'clock until 9 o'clock an old fiddlers concert and a massed band concert will be the attraction to the crowds.

A series of water polo games between Burkburnett and neighboring towns will take place at 9 o'clock to conclude the celebration.

WICHITANS URGED TO JOIN CARAVAN

Community wide praticipation in the Wichita Falls parade Thursday morning to Burkburnett was urged Wednesday by chamber of commerce leaders here. "The importance of presenting an impressive motorcade of Wichita Falls cars, as a means of showing this city's appreciation to Burkburnett, can not be over emphasized," President Albert E. Kelly said.

The line of march should be a credit to Wichitans and all who plan to attend the party from this city are urged to join the motor caravan. Two local bands will lead the parade and take part in the band contests at Burkburnett. The organizations will be Paul Seeds' Los Caballeros band and the Lions club band.

Leave at 10:15

As Burkburnett citizens celebrate the 25th anniversary of the city's organization, Wichitans will invite all of north Wichita county to join this city in the golden jubilee party in September.

The program will open at 11 o'clock Thursday morning with a huge parade in keeping with the pioneer theme of the celebration and the Wichita Falls delegation is expected to arrive in time to join the line of march. The local division of the parade will gather at the north side of the courthouse and will leave at 10:15 o'clock.

Following the parade the Burkburnett American Legion will be charge of a huge public barbecue for which 5,500 pounds of meat has been secured, 500 gallons of pickles and 500 pounds of onions with other menu entries in keeping with the occasion. The afternoon festivities will open with a short speaking program by former residents of Burkburnett now residing elsewhere. The principal address will be delivered by the Rev. John L. Hawkins, Burkburnett pioneer.

Varied Entertainment

Other features on the afternoon program include a reunion of pioneers, baseball game between Burkburnett all-stars and an army team from Fort Sill, Okla., Col. Wid Phillips will present veterans of rodeo sports in the Burkburnett arena, and a comedy baseball game between the Fats and Leans of the city.

A second barbecue meal will be offered in the evening and the program will close with four pioneer couples staging a square dance on horseback, followed by a water polo game between the Burkburnett fire department and teams of fire fighting units of neighboring cities.

Hutton Injects Mystery Element

Hutton, steered clear of the "betrayal episode."

Held Her Hand

Only once did Mrs. St. Pierre confess she was "a bit hazy" about Hutton's wooing. It was the night she first met him at a private party. Hutton held her hand in both his pudgy ones and gloated to the hostess, "Where have you been keeping this gorgeous creature all my life?" At least that's the way Mrs. St. Pierre said it was.

Her memory deserted her when questioned about the famous "Dave Hutton highball," which she earlier described as a spoonful of bourbon in a glass of ginger ale.

Hutton, she charged, gained her consent to marry him and then, in an ardent scene on the divan of her home, declared they already were married "in the sight of God" and demanded she "prove her love."

Aimee Recuperating

"I wept and told him I could do no more than I had, but he held me close," she said, dabbing her eyes. "I pushed him away and he fell to the floor, dragging me with him."

All the while, ignorant of what was happening, Mrs. McPherson Hutton lay ill in a sanitarium, recuperating from a tropical fever contracted on a recent Central American tour. Attendants said she had been told the case was settled.

The names of two men were brought into Mrs. St. Pierre's life as her first day of cross-examination ended. She said, when asked, that she was engaged in 1926 to one Edgar Evon and that she also "slightly" knew Arthur A. Graves, one-time neighbor.

The questions were reported to be groundwork for questions which the Hutton board of strategy will propound to her tomorrow in an attempt to embarrass her.

SMITH BEAMS AT INTERVIEW

'Al' Favors Himself For Nomination

occur from which a "dark horse" will emerge to test the issue with President Herbert Hoover.

Roosevelt leaders indicate confidence that the inscrutable Curry, a close friend of the New York governor, and no friend of Smith, will swing Tammany's support to Roosevelt, thus giving him virtually all of New York's 94 votes, and affording the psychological push that would bring the nomination on the first ballot.

The strapping James A. Farley, Roosevelt's campaign manager, reiterated his forecast of a first ballot nomination, and went to the station tonight to accompany Curry to his hotel.

Hull Airs Views

Among the numerous arrivals today was Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, the Roosevelt candidate, and undoubted choice of the convention for chairman of the resolutions committee, who deplored all the emphasis on prohibition, and said it would be "a damnable outrage, bordering on treason," if the Democrats, like the Republicans, refused to give particular heed to the unemployment situation.

Claims of Farley that Roosevelt would be nominated on the first ballot were dismissed by Smith as "just a little ballyhoo." Reminded he had dubbed these reports before he left New York as "a bed time story," he said, grinning and showing his gold teeth: "Same thing. A bedtime story is modified ballyhoo."

"What do you think the party should do to insure Democratic victory?" he was asked.

"Write an honest, concise, clear platform and nominate me," he snapped.

Asked how many ballots he thought it would take to nominate him, Smith replied: "That depends on how fast the delegates can see."

For Modification

"The Volstead act should at once be amended by a scientifically correct definition that will permit the sale of beverages of reasonable alcoholic content," Smith said. The people of the United States are entitled to this relief which would divert the profits of the bootlegger into legitimate taxes."

"Candidates' row" along the second floor of the Congress hotel blossomed forth, like a carnival, with the bunting and optimistic claims of two additional candidates—former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri and former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia.

Conferences went on all day in rooms in several hotels relative to strategy of this and that movement. Farley was in direct touch over long distance telephone with Albany.

Roosevelt May Come

It was reported, without direct confirmation, that Roosevelt, himself, would come to the scene. A suite of rooms was reserved for him a long time ago. They are being held in readiness for a possible dramatic appearance if the "stop Roosevelt" movement reaches proportions that seem dangerous.

The unrestrainable Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, stirred up a mild rumpus today by a revolt against the way Chairman John J. Raskob of the national committee proposed to handle the contest over delegations from his state.

Long refused, in a letter to Raskob and Jouett Shouse, chairman of the national executive committee, to go before a sub-committee, and said he will appear only before the full committee. Contesting delegations from Minnesota headed by National Committeeman Joseph Wolfe and from Puerto Rico headed by Miss Jean Whittemore joined with him in the rebellion.

"That's irregular procedure," Long said, though Shouse said it was usual.

Farley agreed with Long. The Louisiana senator is for Roosevelt.

Long is seeking recognition over two other delegations from his state one headed by three ex-governors, John M. Parker, Jared Y. Sanders and Ruffin G. Pleasant, and the the other by Ferdinand Mouton.

Labor Deplores Lack of Action

credit is not reaching the business firms who need it. Banks are still calling loans; the federal reserve has provided $452,000,000 of new credit in the six weeks ending the second week of June by buying government securities, the banks have actually decreased their commercial loans by $92,000,000. Liberalization of rules for valuation of bank bond investments have saved banks, but the banks have not extended the same quality of mercy to those they serve. The banks have had full opportunity to cooperate in restoring business and have proved their inability.

"Meanwhile business declines continue. From the first week of May to the second week of June, stock prices declined 10.3 per cent, bond prices 5.7 per cent, prices of goods 2 per cent, business failures increased 2 per cent in May, and business activity was 6 per cent below the April level (preliminary).

"Industries, not banks, are the prime movers of business. Quite apart from continuing the rescue work for banks, let us pump the life blood back into production undertakings and provide jobs that will pay the workers, who would turn their incomes directly into retail buying."

PUBLIC WORKS BILL INTACT

Administration Efforts To Bar Program Defeated

variably launched his half-way measures and much too late."

La Follette warned that grave dangers are ahead and only intervention by the federal government through a prosperity bond issue for public works to restore jobs and start industry moving once more will avert the economic calamity.

Senator Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, after informal conferences with party colleagues, decided to reoffer his amendment to the Wagner unemployment bill to authorize $300,000,000 in loans through the Reconstruction Finance corporation to state for educational and hospitalization purposes.

This would take care of Chicago, where teachers and city employes have been unpaid for months, Harrison said. He may, however, cut the total to $200,000,000.

At the same time, Senator Wagner announced he would offer the $300,000,000 Wagner bill, passed already by the senate and now pending in the house, as an amendment.

Although final adjournment this week is out of the question, the senate accelerated action today in disposing of amendments to the Wagner relief bill.

Meanwhile, action was withheld on the conference report on the economy bill, providing a payless furlough for government workers. Notice was served of a fight against the "joker" whereby employes would be denied any leave this year with pay. The annual leave was cut from 30 to 15 days, but a provision was inserted which even took away the two-weeks vacation period. The bill will be called up tomorrow, it was announced.

By a vote of 39 to 33, the senate kept the provision in the Wagner bill setting aside $40,000,000 for loans to finance export trade of farm products.

Members of the bonus expeditionary force came to the galleries in large numbers in anticipation of the fight launched by Senator Trammell, Democrat, of Florida, to revive the bonus issue. Trammel would permit the veterans to borrow additional amounts, as high as 50 per cent, on service certificates, with interest at two per cent. Leaders said the amendment would be defeated.

erty. It was feared many persons may have been washed into the sea.

Large City Damaged

Manzanillo, the largest city struck by the tidal wave, reported heavy damage, but no dead. The blow was felt less severely there because of harbor breakwaters. The port of Colima, in which state the brunt of the disaster fell, also was damaged.

The mayor of Cuyutlan, a resort town in the state of Colima, appealed to federal authorities here for immediate relief, describing conditions as pitiful.

He reported many missing and said some of these had been carried out to sea or buried in sand on the beach.

The injured were sent to the city of Colima as rapidly as possible, but the mayor said lack of federal soldiers and panic among the people made it impossible to organize relief work efficiently. He asked that soldiers and doctors be rushed in quickly.

All Dwellings Razed

Every dwelling in the town was razed, with only a few business dwellings left standing, the mayor said.

The first earth shock was at 7:10 a. m., followed by light quakes until 7:30 a. m., when a heavy shock lasting one minute occurred. It immediately was followed by a tremendous wave which swept in from the sea and over the town, carrying smaller buildings back into the seas.

The earth shocks continued throughout the day, reports indicated. The epicenter of the quake was believed to have been in the Pacific about 200 miles southwest of Colima, probably at the same spot as that of the recent earth movements which had shaken Colima and all central Mexico.

The shock was felt slightly in Mexico City, where because of many recent quakes little importance was attached to such a light disturbance.

DEMOS SURE TO ASK PRO VOTE

Every Arriving Leader Is For Submission

turning now to the vital economic planks and in them there is some trouble for the party. Hull wants a flat, firm declaration for reduction of the tariff.

He recommended "ruthless retrenchments" in expenditures of federal, state and local governments and a restoration of commodity prices by concerted international action.

Harry F. Byrd, representing Virginia, also declared today for submission of a repeal plank to the states and so did Senator Long of Louisiana. Leaders seem to be almost unanimous on prohibition excepting on how far to go.

Because of his drastic tariff views, Senator Hull has been inclined to forego the chairmanship of the resolutions committee. If he does not accept the post, it appeared likely tonight Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former senator from Nebraska and one-time spokesman in the senate for Woodrow Wilson, might be tendered the chairmanship.

How to Relieve Headaches In Three Minutes

When you have one of those violent, nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, you can get soothing relief in three minutes with "B. C." a reliable, pleasant-to-take remedy. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia; for reducing fever and quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold.—Adv.

HUNTER TALKS AT GREENVILLE

Reduction of Utility Profits Advocated

GREENVILLE, Texas, June 22. (UP)—Reduction of profits of public utilities by forcing a revaluation of their properties was urged here tonight in a campaign address by Tom Hunter, Wichita Falls, candidate for governor.

Hunter charged "legalized theft through book manipulation" is enabling the utilities to take $70,000,000 out of Texas annually. He said watered stock was the basis for the present high rates.

He advocated the abolition of the state ad valorem tax, saying under it one third of the state's wealth was bearing the tax burden. Hunter said the state's assessed valuation taxes last year totaled only slightly more than four billion dollars, while Washington statistics placed the total wealth in Texas at nearer one hundred billion dollars.

"There is no exact figure on this total Texas wealth," Hunter said, "but it is certainly safe to say that two thirds of the wealth of the state is going scot-free of taxes."

He said he favored a blend tax system where "those living in Texas and those doing business in Texas will be required to pay in proportion to their ability to pay.

"I am unalterably opposed to the state-wide road bond issue. You amend the constitution and take out of the hands of the people their inherent right to say when they shall or shall not be bonded and place that authority in official Austin and you most assuredly commit this state to bankruptcy and your posterity to servitude."

The candidate said more than 90 per cent of the voting strength of Wichita county was in a Hunter club which urged him to enter the race, that recently farmers have organized a separate club sponsoring his candidacy.

A Parallel Case for Germany

PROBABLY history never exactly repeats itself, but now and then it comes close enough to give nervous shudders.

Right now students of the European situation are asking themselves if Republican Germany is about to follow the course steered by Republican France in 1848. There are two or three little indications that it may; and, if it does, all a lover of peace can do is pray that history will repeat itself so far but no farther.

In 1848 France was a republic. Napoleon Bonaparte had been gone for more than three decades, and with him had gone—as Frenchmen saw it—all of the glory and prestige that France had had under the first empire.

So, in that year, the French elected as their president Prince Louis Napoleon, nephew of Bonaparte. The election came as a climax to a turbulent year of revolution—a year not greatly unlike that which Germany is living through now. And shortly after his election, Louis Napoleon changed France from a republic to an empire and had himself proclaimed emperor.

The emperor then led his nation into an erratic foreign policy that culminated in the Franco-Prussian war, in which France suffered a crushing defeat and almost declined to the position of a second-class power.

The parallel with modern Germany is inescapable.

Germany has lost her emperor, as France had lost her Napoleon. Hard times have followed his departure. The power and the glory that the nation knew under him have flitted over the horizon. A powerful clique of army officers and aristocratic landowners wants the monarchy restored, precisely as was the case in France in 1848.

Furthermore, it is constantly reported that the son of the ex-kaiser, the former Crown Prince William, will seek the presidency of Germany shortly, with Von Hindenburg resigning to make way for him. William does not deny it. It is an open secret that the Junkers want him to.

What would happen then? Restoration of the Hohenzollern monarchy, a fight to regain the lost "place in the sun," a new war with France—the possibilities are ominous. We can only hope that in this instance history will not even come close to repeating itself.

The Perplexing Sharpe Case

THE PERPLEXING Lindbergh tragedy seems to have grown more puzzling, rather than less so, as a result of the suicide of Violet Sharpe, maid in the Morrow home; and once again there is borne in upon the casual observer the feeling that the investigation into this case has been woefully bungled.

At first this girl's suicide looked like a tacit confession of guilt. But it has become more and more evident, as the days have passed, that it was anything but that; and the theory that an innocent girl had been harassed to the point of desperation by heavy-handed police tactics has been given voice in no less a place than the British house of commons itself.

The discovery of the murdered child's body close to a spot where scores of police had been on duty for weeks; the fiasco of the Curtis case; the tragedy of Violet Sharpe—these things constitute a record which no police department could be proud of.

Steel Prices and Prosperity

AN INTERESTING commentary on the chances for a return of prosperity in in the near future is provided in a current bulletin from the Alexander Hamilton institute, which estimates that the steel trade cannot revive until there is a 31 per cent reduction in steel prices.

In 1921, the institute points out, the steel industry slashed prices so heavily as to offset the increase in the value of the dollar. These bargain prices led to a flood of new orders which eventually brought the industry to a record high production; and the steel industry for years has been regarded as a barometer for American industry in general.

In this depression, however, steel prices have declined only 13.5 per cent from the 1929 peak, although the average price of all commodities has gone down 32 per cent. Barring inflation, the institute asserts, the steel trade cannot revive unless it brings prices down very materially.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: If their plans are not interrupted, then Fatty Arbuckle and Addie McPhail will be married in Albany tomorrow...The plump boy, by the way, has finally been given a sweet break—for Warners have defied the finger-pointers and have signed Fatty for screen comedies—and it's about time—he's carried his wounds gracefully long enough...Talk about tough breaks, that one-time grand star, Fritzi Scheff, certainly needs her friends now, poor Fritzi having experienced her hardest blow with a landlord the other day ...Bobbe Arnst (Mrs. J. Weissmuller) still feels wretched over the persistency of the talk that she and Johnny are on the verge . . . She asserts that they "understand each other" and what their respective careers mean to their happiness—and so I pass that along to you to ease the pangs of a bride of a year, whose husband became a star overnight—left to the mercy of sudden success and the adoration that goes with it.

Tried with no success to check the name of Lois Moran's new heart. That he is in the Social Register is okay...At any rate, Doug Montgomery is out...Connie Bennett's loss in the Beverly Hills bank collapse was $60,000, or to be exact, two weeks' wages...Jim Londos has been floored by Cupid—she is well known for her dramatics with Vagabond Theater of the Junior League in Baltimore...The Randolph Scott-Martha Sleeper romance has cooled and his new girl is Dorothy Burgess, the ingenue...And Gwili Andre, the new RKO Garbo, has been given strict orders not to be seen at functions or parties, and thus arouse the curious in the Maude Adams and Garbo manner ...Len Hall, the movie mag man, who offended Barbara Stanwyck with that piece about her husband, Frank Fay, called. He said that he'd rather be popped on the nose by Barbara than receive the amorous favors of three-quarters of feminine Hollywood...That ought to calm her down.

Mrs. Paul Whiteman's literary efforts will be christened "The First 100 Pounds Are the Hardest" and it will be Ray Long'd in the Fall at a dollar...It will also reveal Paul's love story...Incidentally, Mildred Bailey, of the Whiteman choir, expects her decree any day now, and "Red" Norvo of the crew will be her new mate...Speaking of love, Marcella Johnson is trousseau shopping. Her heart's slave bracelet is inscribed: "De Tout Mon Coeur" which is Parisian for "With all my heart"...Oh, dear...And if you don't think the glorious Swanson has gone sentimental, hear this: She cabled the "Hot-Cha" song-fashioners to hasten two songs for her new picture, which will be tagged: "Perfect Understanding"...Gloria directed that one number be a lullaby (catch on?) and another tune similar to "You Try Somebody Else"...From Garbo's chiropodist comes this—that Greta hasn't huge pedals, at all!...They merely look large because she features flat heels. Does that impress you?... Jesse Lasky Jr., has been bagged by Patricia Harper...Have a thrill in Etting's latest: "The Voice in the Old Village Choir."

"I see that Lillian Bond is reported as "just being divorced from her British husband"...You know, I trust, that they were melted months ago, and that he is a New Yorker who promotes beauty contests, which is how Lillian met him when he was in Lonndon years ago... Earl Carroll's constant companion on the other side was a Mrs. Weber, a widow I think—may be his new backer... ...The Connolly & Swanstrom combination have a dandy name for their new revue—"Champagne" but they can't promote enough backing to buy a quart of it...Was thinking of an idea for a column for you, something titled: "Guys Who Ought To Pay Royalties"...A series of pokes at chaps who start a vogue and all sorts of pale carbon copies cash in on their genius...Jolson, for instance, who created the most imitated style of song-delivery...Stephen Foster, who wrote "My Old Kentucky Home" and since then too many locals have longed for their mammies and cabin doors...Bee Palmer, who began the "hat-cha" vogue of warbling; Whispering Jack Smith, the first crooner...Toy around with it and make a lotta people miserable.

You might tell the desk about the rumpus up at the Kahn's 80th St. mansion...Mrs. Gilbert Kahn (the former Anne Whalan), who is divorcing Gilbert, found stiff opposition when she tried to go into her home last night. She now is with her pappy...The butler, it appears, has orders to bar her and all kin. Gilbert is out of town. Nice people ...Magistrate Carney wishes you would mak it clar he wasn't the one you meant. He is now doing well at Philly's City Hall...Saw the preview of "Strange Interlude," which will go big in the big towns, but hardly in the suburban spots...Incidentally, those columnist movies, even with their favorable reports, limped dreadfully, the one at the Strand bringing the receipts down to a new low...Sorry about the line that was left out of the verse in the first editions . . . L. Meltzer phoned. He describes a master of ceremonies as one who never chooses between old and new jokes —he uses them!

They've tried every camera angle they know to make Terry Carroll (Nancy's sister) a star as big as Nancy...And Jean Harlow's cousin, Elsie Carpenter, is trying to crash the stage via stock...There is talk that B. Mrs. Kennedy was once a sax tooter of note, and they've played for the best on the radio. Their scrapbooks will testify to their acclaim before they took to the pavements and they play three hours daily and practise two...They hail from St. Louis and started the vogue, which now has about 50 apers ...They do not class themselves as beggars, by the way. They are troubadours, if you please.

The Sharkey-Schmeling pictures will be made with sound...Here's an item: Charitan Andrews did a book tagged: "The Crime in Hollywood Boulevard," but his publisher rejected it because of the title, arguing that the name Hollywood "would kill any book"...I always thought that name had such glamour...Talk about literature, the 5 and 10 shops have gone literary, offering tomes by the best authors, Rinehart, Tully, et al., and on the counter there's a huge sign which bellows: "Reading Books" . . . Heheheh...Guinan says you may get her at the Frolics, Montreal... There is no truth in the report that Malin succeeds her on Long Island, he opens at the Calais there...Dorothy Dell was banged up in a crash the other night...They will deny it, but Garbo's favorite director, Edmund Goulding, and his recent bride, Marjorie Moss, are apart, already...Norman Sullivan was in and said that he knows a guy who is so suspicious of his wife that he erected a new home and built the closets without floors!—Your Girl Friday.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

GRAND PRIZE WINNER—The first prize in the national "Believe It or Not" contest was won by Clinton W. Blume of 1400 Ocean avenue, Brooklyn.

Blume's entry concerned the astonishing ocean drift of his scrubbing brush, which returned across the ocean and landed at his feet.

Blume was enlisted in the navy on the transport U. S. President Lincoln when it was torpedoed by the German submarine U-90 on May 31, and sank 500 miles off the coast of France. Blume, who of course lost all of his belongings, was rescued after clinging to a raft for 18 hours in a heavy sea.

Fourteen months later, while he was on duty as a life guard on Manhattan beach, Brooklyn, he was hit on the foot by a floating object which proved to be the same brush he had used on the liner before it sank—his carved initials "C. W. B." still very clear although slightly scarred by the long battle with the seas.

The hydrographic office of the United States navy verifies the possibility of this remarkable drift, although they have no similar case on their records.

Blume's entry in the contest won him a Curtiss-Wright Jr. monoplane, with a complete course in flying instruction.

CABINET OF BRAZIL RESIGNS

Provisional Government Hands in Resignation

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, June 22 (AP)—The cabinet of provisional President Getulio Vargas' government resigned today in a body.

Getulio Vargas, a Liberal candidate for the presidency of Brazil in 1929, assumed control of an insurgent movement in the southern state of Rio Grande do Sul in October, 1930, and in less than a week was marching on the capital with a rebel army.

A military junta offered him the provisional presidency Oct. 26, and he was acclaimed president five days later, a title which he officially adopted Nov. 3.

From the start he declared his government was merely provisional and said a vote would be taken for a constitutional government as soon as the people of Brazil had been educated to the responsibility for elections.

Finding himself in the midst of a depression, he incorporated his revolutionary army into the armed force of the nation and declined early in 1931 to step down because he said the country was not ready for constitutional rule.

The first actual revolt against him occurred in his native state, and was suppressed in April, 1931. In October of that year a rebellion broke out in Pernambuco and likewise was quelled.

Next in March of this year the Republicans of Rio Grande do Sul demanded that he set a date during this year for a constitutional election, and the movement grew so rapidly, the president called conferences among various leaders.

It was not until May 14, however, that he made good his promise to call a constitutional election and then he set the date for May 3, 1933.

OFF TO WAR

Murray Leaves for Demo Convention; To Fight For Party Planks

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 22.(AP)—Maintaining silence on his own presidential aspirations, Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray departed alone for the Democratic national convention at Chicago this morning.

He has indicated he will fight primarily for planks dealing with the economic situation and termed the prohibition controversy a "play to get the people's mind off the depression."

One major plank proposed by Murray provides a moratorium by congress on foreclosure of mortgages against homes and farms.

Governor Murray has declined to say who will present his nomination for the presidency on the floor of the convention.

ANDERSON TO HEAD ROTARY

New Mexico Man Elected At Seattle Convention

SEATTLE, Wash., June 22. (UP)—Clinton P. Anderson, insurance man from Albuquerque, N. M., will be next president of Rotary International, in convention here.

Anderson, a former newspaper man, will take office July 1, succeeding Sydney W. Pascall, candy manufacturer from London, England.

The honor came to Anderson a bit prematurely. As his name was the only one offered for the highest office in Rotary, it was moved by Pascall that Anderson be elected to the office by a blanket ballot to be cast by Secretary Chesley Perry of Chicago.

A return to saner, honest business methods was the trend of business sessions of the convention. This note was especially sounded by Paul P. Harris of Chicago, founder and president emeritus of Rotary.

Balloting for the election of the five directors for the United States was the principal order of business today. Candidates included Henry G. Bennett, Stillwater, Okla.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

KIRKE SIMPSON

CHICAGO, June 22.—Surveying the aftermath of the Republican convention for the difference between it and the impending Democratic show on the same stage, one thing stands out.

There is no White House focal point of authority to be watched as the Democrats enter joyously on their every four-year whirl, no private telephone line or array of White House secretaries to be considered.

Aside from the great uncertainty as to what any Democratic national convention will do about its candidates due to the two-thirds rule, the fact that the Democrats so seldom have had administrations in power to consider has helped to make their conventions the colorful affairs they always are.

Not since 1920, when Mr. Wilson at Washington reached out to wield presidential influence on platform declarations, has there been anything outside the convention circle itself to affect Democratic convention deliberations.

The White House Voice

While the Republicans were holding forth in their hotel headquarters and elsewhere, a suite of rooms down a corridor from the office of Senator Fess bore the sign "Private" in very large letters.

It was private, too. There was a considerable coming and going into and out of those doors by Secretary Lawrence Ritchie and Secretary Walter Newton.

The voice of the White House itself apparently was available at any moment by that route. Goodness knows what the telephone bill amounted to.

Hunting over preparations for the Democratic show, about the only similarity in that respect is the arrangement made by Roosevelt leaders to keep intimately in touch with the New York governor at Albany as the convention got under way.

Exactly how that was fixed up was not a matter of public announcement, but any one familiar with the workings of the Roosevelt boom through the months of preliminaries knew that nothing was apt to happen here of which he would not hear privately and immediately.

Roosevelters Confident

There was a sense of expectancy about the Roosevelt insiders generally as they reached Chicago that convinced the Bystander they had something up their sleeve that did not have to do with strategic struggles for the nomination prize.

Unless all signs fail, that Chicago-Albany private wire is destined to carry front page news if Mr. Roosevelt turns his leadership into a presidential nomination.

Mr. Roosevelt has not missed a Democratic national convention in a considerable number of years. He delights in a national convention atmosphere.

It remains to be seen whether he misses this, perhaps the most important convention of his own political career.

Tech Student Reveals $390 Cache in Trunk

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 22. (AP)—James W. Baker, Seagraves school teacher, last Sunday led state rangers to a cache of $390 at a residence where he lived here after enrolling for the Texas Technological college summer term, it was disclosed today after a 106th district court grand jury at Seminole had indicted Baker and four other men for robbery of the Seagraves First State bank May 27.

Others indicted were Edmond Meredith, 21, of Seagraves; Elmer Slaughter, about 30, Terry county farmer; Oscar Herring, about 35, former Palo Pinto county attorney, of Seagraves; and Jodie Edwards, whom the state alleges held the gun during the robbery. Edwards had not been apprehended tonight. Setting of bonds for the quartet held has been passed temporarily.

More than $500 purportedly of the $3,298.89 loot taken by a lone bandit from the bank had been recovered up to tonight, District Attorney Thomas L. Price, who aided the grand jury, said.

Baker also accompanied officers to a second cache about two and one-half miles northeast of Seagraves where, near the Seagraves-Brownfield highway and at the foot of a telephone pole, about $80 in silver was buried in a quart fruit jar, it was learned today. When Herring was arrested June 14 in a Wichita Falls sanitarium, rangers found about $22 in small coins in his room; and later about $60 was found in a lot at the Herring home, where Meredith was living.

Price said the money found at the residence here, where Baker was boarding, had been crammed under a trunk lining, beneath the tray. The currency included two $50 bills, and the remainder was in $20 and $10 bills, Price said.

VETS REJECT COMPROMISE

'Pay All or None,' Answer To Half Pay Proposal

By FRASIER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, June 22. (US)—"Pay all the bonus or nothing!"

That was the answer of the veterans of the bonus expeditionary forces today to the new proposal in congress to pay half of the outstanding adjusted service certificates.

In support of that attitude, B. E. F. leaders proceeded with plans for a convention here next week to ratify the constitution of a permanent organization to enforce demands for full bonus payments.

Senator Trammell, Democrat of Florida, sponsor of the rider on the Wagner relief bill, however, announced he would press his provision which would give the veterans half of the 1945 value of the bonus at once. Senate leaders said the amendment would be defeated.

Delegates to Be Named

Commander-in-Chief Waters of B. E. F. said the "half a loaf" compromise might give some of the veterans temporary relief but would not solve the bonus question and therefore was not acceptable.

Word that the bonus fight was to be renewed in congress drew hundreds of veterans to the air-cooled senate chamber from the camps where a sizzling sun beat down, giving them the first real taste of a sweltering Washington summer.

Some 600 delegates will be chosen from the various states and units to the B. E. F. convention, which is designed to end the petty bickerings and give the "army" officers real authority in carrying on the bonus campaign.

The semi-political conclave, which is scheduled to last three days, is expected to be enlivened by real rows that will test the mettle of the leaders. The left wing group, however, is small and the present officials are expected to remain in office.

Harold Menjou to Face Murder Charge Tuesday

LOS ANGELES, June 22. (US)—Harold L. Menjou, 20-year-old adopted son of Adolpe Menjou, famous film actor, must answer to a charge of murdering comely Marjorie Gauthier, 16, an an automobile crash near Inglewood Saturday night when he appears for a preliminary hearing in the Inglewood justice court next Thursday.

The youth was arraigned today before a justice of the peace on murder and drunk driving complaints growing out of the fatal joyride at the end of which Menjou's car overturned, crushing the girl's skull.

They were sweethearts, according to the boy.

His arraignment followed a coroner's inquest which found that the death was "accidental, due to negligence and reckless driving" on the part of Menjou. He was subsequently released on $600 bail.

Insull Denies Identity On Arrival in Paris

PARIS, June 22. (US)—Looking tired and worn, Samuel Insull, the British-born Chicago millionaire who over-night lost his fortune in public utilities, slipped incognito into Paris today aboard a third-class train.

Insull denied his identity and declined to discuss reports that he would take up residence in England. His incognito was torn from him when a hotel agent said:

"This way, Mr. Insull."

It was later learned he registered under an assumed name at a fashionable hotel on the Champs Elysees. He refused to receive newspaper men and hotel officials blandly maintained he had not registered.

Inflation of Currency Urged By Armstrong in Wichita Address

Federal Reserve Hoarding 80 Per Cent of Nation's Funds, Says Candidate for Governor

Creation of a state currency to inflate values, declaration of a moratorium on interest-bearing private and public obligations, and abolition of ad valorem taxes on real estate were urged by George W. Armstrong of Fort Worth, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, before about 200 persons at the courthouse Wednesday night.

Mr. Armstrong vigorously attacked the federal reserve board for its alleged "wilful precipitation of the present depression at the bidding of Wall street," declared for the employment "of state authority to the furtherest limit to produce inflation," and urged the substitution of an inheritance tax for ad valorem taxation of privately owned real estate.

Western Party Proposed

The speaker declared that Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma will submit a minority report before the Democratic national convention at Chicago this week, agitating the formation of a "revitalized western party purposed to throw off the yoke of Wall street."

No hope exists, Mr. Armstrong said, for federal aid in correcting existing economic conditions because "Congress is controlled by two political parties, and both parties are controlled directly and positively by Wall street."

Mr. Armstrong urged that passage of the Wright Patman bill, providing immediate payment of soldiers' compensation certificates, would have restored comparative prosperity through placing a large sum of money in circulation.

He stated that 80 per cent of the nation's $9,000,000,000 is tightly hoarded by the federal reserve board as a means of holding the value of the dollar at an unreasonably high figure. A moratorium deferring payment of bonds, mortgages, and similar obligations "until the dollar becomes cheaper" also was declared to be imperative "in this emergency."

Truck Law Repeal

Mr. Armstrong also declared himself as favoring repeal of the present truck law in Texas. He charged that it was passed at the behest of railroads, and that only through the competition offered by motor trucks can fair rates be obtained from the railroads.

Deploring the introduction of prohibition as an issue in the state and national campaign, Mr. Armstrong urged maintenance of the 18th amendment, declaring its passage "the greatest step forward made by this country in a half-century."

"So long as Wall street's ambassadors can keep prohibition alive as an 'issue,'" he said, "they will do so. They will continue to pick our pockets clean while we quarrel about the liquor question."

Mr. Armstrong was introduced by C. C. Hudson of Iowa Park.

DUBLIN FILLED WITH PILGRIMS

Eucharistic Congress Opens With Million Present

DUBLIN, June 22. (US)—Amid impressive ecclesiastical pageantry and magnificence exceeded only at the Vatican, Cardinal Lauri, papal legate, today formally opened the 31st Eucharistic congress in Dublin's pro-cathedral.

Tonight all Dublin's 60 churches were thronged with devout pilgrims, come to attend mass, exposition of the blessed sacrament, and receive benediction. With more than 1,000,000 persons gathered here for the congress, long lines of those awaiting call to mass formed outside the churches.

They stood in streets where every house displayed a glimmering candle. Floodlights bathed public buildings.

Visitors Entertained

At the vice-regal lodge Gov.-Gen. James McNeill entertained visiting prelates, laity, and members of the diplomatic corps at dinner. Former President Cosgrave attended, but the bitterness between the Free State and Britain was evidenced by the absence of President De Valera who declined an invitation.

In accordance with a decision not to allow the tense political situation to infringe on the spiritual purpose of his visit, the papal legate also did not attend.

Cardinal Hayes of New York, Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia and Cardinal O'Connell of Boston arrived this morning in time to take part in the inauguration of the congress, which will close Monday.

Dry Administrator Sees No Reason To Reinstate Agents

WASHINGTON, June 22. (INS)—Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock said today that he saw "no reason" for reinstating Agents L. C. Smith and N. D. Heaton of Dallas, who have been acquitted of murder following a killing in a dry case.

The agents were dismissed after an investigation of the shooting for violation of regulations of the bureau which prohibit use of firearms except in self-defense. At the time Woodcock declared that he did not think the men were guilty of murder but they were guilty of conduct not in accordance with prohibition bureau standards.

Woodcock said, however, that if he received a petition to reinstate the men he would give it careful consideration.

Rail Executives Beseech Congress To Stay At Work

CLEVELAND, June 22. (AP)—The Railway Executives association today called upon congress to stay in session to see the country through its ills and at the same time vigorously attacked the "prevailing propaganda" against congress as "atrociously unfair."

"A vote to adjourn is a vote to abandon a post of duty on a battlefield where the fate of the nation may be determined," said a resolution approved by the association, which is composed of the heads of 21 railway labor organizations and representing approximately 2,000,000 railroad workers.

The resolution said congress "has been driven persistently into enacting legislation primarily for the protection and aid of the most powerful special interests of industry and finance," but now that it is "finally undertaking to do something for the common man, a clamor to adjourn arises from all those favored groups who have got all the legislation they want."

Cotton Oil Men Meet For Annual Session

FORT WORTH, June 22. (AP)—Cottonseed oil production costs have been reduced a third in the last five years, H. E. Wilson of Wharton, said today at the opening session of cotton oil men here.

It was the annual joint session of the National Oil Mill Superintendents' association and the Oil Machinery Manufacturing Supply Men's association.

Wilson said it costs half of what cotton is selling for today for the grower to pick it, transport it and have it ginned. He declared it is a question how much of the 1932 crop will be picked because of that fact.

Wilson pointed out that during the world war cottonseed oil sold for 26½ cents a pound, whereas this week it sold for 2¾ cents a pound.

J. Tom Turber, Hillsboro, president of the superintendents' body, said southern housewives should use more cottonseed oil in cooking. He explained the foreign market for cottonseed products has been reduced because foreign nations are growing more cotton.

Three Bandits Boldly Rob Woman of $7,944

ST. LOUIS, June 22. (INS)—Three bandits who executed a bold robbery in 30 seconds and escaped with $7,944 in cash and checks were sought by police here today. The money was taken from Miss Norma Roesch, cashier for the Prudential Life Insurance company, and Peter Brannon, an agent of the company who was escorting Miss Roesch. The daring holdup was executed in the Tower bank building where Miss Roesch went to deposit the money.

Tariff changes on 31 commodities have been effected during the last two years, comprising about 11 per cent of the dutiable imports of 1931.

OPINION ABOUT EQUALLY DIVIDED ON FIGHT, SAYS RUNYON

DAMON THINKS MAX WON IT

But Scrap Was So Bad He Doesn't Care Much

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, June 22.—One night some years ago, two gentlemen, greatly excited, rushed into Jack's restaurant where Mr. Wilson Mizner sat regaling himself on broiled lobster, and what goes with it.

"See here, Bill," said one of the excited gents, "me and Ernest here have been having an argument, and we know you read books and everything like that, and we want you to settle it for us. Who was the best general, Lee or Grant?"

"Well," replied Mr. Mizner, a fork loaded with lobster fat poised in mid-air, "I don't know who was the best general, but they paid off on Grant.

I believe this story somehow fits the argument about Sharkey and Schmeling. I mean to say they paid off on Sharkey. So all the pros and cons you are hearing don't mean much. For every man you find who thinks Schmeling won, you can find another who thinks Sharkey won.

So there you are.

I'll show you how different the fight looked from different angles.

On one side of the ring, in the 14th round, Mr. Harry Fink, a Broadwayfarer who likes to back his opinion with a little something substantial, remarked.

"I'll lay 20 to 1 Sharkey gets the decision."

In the 14th round, mind you.

"I'll have $50 worth of that," said a neighbor.

So Mr. Fink laid $1,000 to $50, and won it.

Yet on the other side of the ring, at the same time, they were offering 10 to 1 that Schmeling would get the decision, with no takers.

I am told that a poll of the newspaper section showed that 22 writers thought Schmeling won, against two for Sharkey. All right, but I took a poll of about 50 fight managers, and seconds, with a few spectators mixed in, and this resulted 40 for Sharkey and 10 for Schmeling.

So there you are.

I don't think newspaper writers are any better judges than other spectators. I said in my advance story of the fight that I thought Sharkey ought to win on class, and the fact that he had the Walker and Carnera battles under his belt as "tighteners."

I could make myself look good as a guesser off these remarks, but as a matter of downright fact, I thought Schmeling won the fight. However, in the years I have been writing of fights, I have always conceded the probability of any average spectator's judgment being as good as mine.

Half the time I know I am apt to be biased one way or the other through personal acquaintance, or in the matter of pugilistic style, or for some other reason. I happen to be quite human, and I realize that no matter how hard I may try to be absolutely impartial that in the close spots, prejudice is apt to tip the scales with me.

There's nothing mysterious, nothing occult about passing on prize fights. The fact that a man sits in the press section gives him no advantage in judgment over a man sitting well back from the ring.

I dislike a back-up fighter, as Sharkey disclosed himself Tuesday night, even though he is scoring points as he retreats. But I know that others see backing up as a species of pugilistic strategy, and discount the fact that the other fellow may be wading in all the time, if he is wading into pops on the nose. One judge, Charles F. Nathison, old time boxing writer, and a fine judge of the game, voted for Schmeling Tuesday night, while Gunboat Smith, the referee, and George Kelly, the other judge, voted for Sharkey.

This further illustrates the difference of opinion. I believe Kelly is the same judge who voted for Sharkey against Walker. I thought Walker won at lease 11 rounds over Sharkey, and that the draw decision was an injustice to him. But a lot of others had just the opposite view, and there you are, again.

I thought Schmeling fought an enormously stupid fight. He dropped his old weave, and assumed an upright stance. Now that was all right as an experiment. But after six or seven rounds when he found that in his upright stance his face was a target for Sharkey's flipping left, Schmeling should have gone back to his weave, and tried to get under the left.

But there he was for 15 heats trying to out-box a master boxer, instead of dropping his head and blasting with everything he had. I insist it was a punk fight, with neither man showing any variety of attack. They were strictly head punchers, and neither showed enough punch to dent a derby hat.

As between the two, Sharkey fought the smarter battle. If I had picked Schmeling to win, perhaps I would be steaming hot over the decision. 'Tis but human. Having argued that Sharkey ought to win, I find myself calm, even while thinking Schmeling entitled to the duke, as we say in our set. Because I claim the stupidity of Schmeling's battle is entitled to some penalty.

The fellows who have been picking Sharkey to win something year in and out for years and years, and who abused him like a pickpocket when he failed them, only to return to their picking, ought to be gratified now. This is the first time I ever even half-picked him for anything, so naturally I cannot join in the jubilation.

Between you and me, I don't care much.

Cannibals Split Twin Bill With Beaumont Gang

BEAUMONT, June 22. (AP)—Longview won the series with the Beaumont Exporters by winning the second game of today's double-header 6-1 after the league leaders had won the opener, 8-1. The nightcap was a real contest until the last inning when Clift hit a home run and then with two out Scharein, Garms, Bejma and Fuss hit successive singles and Bejma and Fuss worked a double steal to score four runs.

Art Herring made a fine debut for the locals in the curtain raiser, restricting the Cannibals to five hits. He would have had a shutout save for Bejma's single and a double by Fuss in the fourth inning. The Exporters spanked Pressnell and Taylor for 15 hits including a circuit wallop by Easterling. TRIBE WINS IN 17TH

SAN ANTONIO, June 22. (AP)—Battling for 17 innings, the San Antonio Indians defeated the Fort Worth Panthers, 5 to 4 here today for a clean sweep of the series as Larry Cox drove in the winning run with two down after Fitzgerald had doubled over the right field fence, scoring on Cox's hit.

The Indians got an early lead off Pickrel but Southpaw Gribble took the hill in the eighth inning and finished the game to be charged with the defeat. Fabian Kowalik went the entire route for the Indians. Six double plays were made, four by the Indians, one of which by Fitzgerald cut a runner off at the plate. Score:

JAMESON AND STAFFORD WIN

Co-Favorites Victorious In Quarterfinals

If they are destined to occur, today is the day for upsets in the second annual tournament of the Texas Women's Municipal Golf association.

The two favorites to reach the finals, Mrs. W. T. Stafford and Miss Betty Jameson, both of Dallas, stroked their way through quarterfinal round victories yesterday and need only one more victory each to crash into the titular round, a trend of events that has been freely predicted by followers of the state championship meet.

A defeat for either today, however, will disturb the prophetic calm, and two scrapping entries, one from Houston and the other from Shamrock, who also won quarterfinal matches yesterday, are ready for big assault on the dope. The Houstonian is Mrs. H. C. Scott, who downed Mrs. Tom Sockwell of Dallas yesterday 6 and 5, while Mrs. Stafford was having a rather tough time disposing of Mrs. George Huckabay, also of Dallas, by the score of 2 and 1. Mrs. Scott meets Mrs. Safford in the semifinals today.

Douglas Meets Betty

In the lower bracket, the titular dash of 13-year-old Betty Jameson will be opposed by Miss Alma Douglas of Shamrock, who yesterday defeated Mrs. Sue Walker in the quarterfinals, 7 and 6. Miss Jameson, like Mrs. Stafford, encountered stiff opposition in the quarterfinals, defeating Mrs. E. H. Wohlfahrt of Dallas, 2 up and 1 to play.

The semifinal bouts will start this morning at 8 o'clock. The final will be played Friday, bringing the tournament to a close. It had been expected the tournament would last through Saturday but there were not enough entrants to make up a championship flight of 32 players.

Mrs. Kate Anderson, Dallas, defeated Mrs. George F. Lebus, Electra, 8 and 7, and Mrs. Frank Clowe, Amarillo, downed Miss Florence Lipman, Dallas, 1 up, in the semifinals of the second flight yesterday. The two victors meet in the final today.

In the third flight, Mrs. J. A. Rhodes of this city defeated Mrs. W. H. Kay, Houston, 4 and 3, and Mrs. Francis Autrey, Electra, defeated Mrs. C. W. Watts, Wichita Falls, 6 and 5. Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. Autrey meet in the final today.

Consolation Results

In the first flight consolation yesterday Mrs. Mary Jowell, Electra, defeated Mrs. H. S. Preston, Dallas, 2 up; Mrs. Pearl Cameron, Dallas, defeated Mrs. Walter Sikes, 2 and 1; Mrs. M. B. Parsons, Dallas, defeated Miss Winnie Maye Giddings, Wichita Falls, 7 and 6; and Mrs. U. G. White, Electra, defeated Mrs. W. E. Henderson, Dallas, 2 up. In the semifinals of this flight today Mrs. Jowell will meet Mrs. Cameron, and Mrs. Parsons will play Mrs. White.

In the second flight consolation, Mrs. B. F. Holmes, Shamrock, defeated Mrs. J. A. Hannay, Wichita Falls, 2 and 1, and Mrs. L. P. Fowler, Dallas, won from Mrs. Grace Jennings, Electra, by default. Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Fowler will play the final in this flight today.

Mrs. A. V. Allen, Dallas, defeated Mrs. Allen Kemple, Electra, on the 19th green to enter the final in the third flight consolation. Her opponent today will be Mrs. H. B. Roblin of this city, who drew a bye.

Sarazen Shoots Par Golf Tuning Up For American Open, Starting Today

FLUSHING, N. Y., June 22. (AP)—Gene Sarazen, jauntily wearing his British open crown, served notice today he is still at the top of his game by shooting the Fresh Meadow links in par figures—70. It was his final workout for the American open golf championship.

Sarazen played the course early in the day, in company with Bobby Jones, and gave a demonstration of long hitting, as well as brilliant putting that re-established the stocky Lakeville professional as the favorite in the all-star field which tees off the first 18-hole round tomorrow.

He finished the last three difficult holes in 4-3-4, dropping 20-foot putts for birdies on the 16th and 17th holes.

Jones, who will watch the tournament from the side lines, shot the course in 75 despite a tendency to hook his tee wallops and misjudge some of the greens. The former world champion, who last won the American open in 1930, was out in 38 and back in 37 as compared with Sarazen's even 35-35.

Although Sarazen is the bookmaker's favorite to win, 4 to 1, the shortest priced choice since Jones ruled the fairways, experts regarded the tournament as "wide open."

Macdonald Smith, the great runner-up, has not yet lost his determination to win. Tommy Armour, despite the loss of his British open title, seems to be well on his game. So is George Von Elm.

HERE ARE THE FACTS

—A STATEMENT BY THE GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR COMPANY

In its recent confession the Gillette Safety Razor Company told you that, under the stress of introducing a new razor and blade, uniformity had suffered; and told you how our efforts to correct the trouble had resulted in the development of a far superior product.

Several readers have asked us how we can make the bold, positive statement that today's Gillette blades are the sharpest, smoothest-shaving blades we have ever produced. This is a fair question, and here is our reply: A marvelous new testing machine, recently developed, scientifically proves that these blades have never before been approached in keenness.

We cannot discuss the nature or details of this machine because it is being patented. But we can tell you that it measures microscopic dimensions with unfailing accuracy — revealing with mathematic exactness, actual degrees of razor-blade sharpness. So when we state that today's Gillette blades are the sharpest we have ever made we are basing our assertion upon fact. We know we are right and can prove it.

Further than this—everyone knows that a razor blade must be able to bend without cracking when tightened in the holder. This requires steel of a certain temper not suitable for a keen cutting edge. The problem is to permit flexing and yet have a hard edge that can be ground and stropped for proper shaving performance. Gillette has achieved the solution of this problem in the manufacture of its slotted blades.* These blades are made by a special tempering process that makes the edges exceptionally hard, while the center, of a different temper, flexes easily.

We urge you to try today's Gillette blades—the regular blade in the familiar green package or the BLUE SUPER-BLADE in its blue package, Cellophane wrapped. Do so without risking a cent. If you don't agree they are the sharpest, smoothest-shaving blades you have ever used, return the package and your dealer will refund your money.

The Gillette Blue Super-Blade

The $2 Kroman De Luxe blade has been withdrawn from production. We offer the Blue Super-Blade as its successor. This sensational blade is far superior to the Kroman and costs considerably less. You pay only a few cents more than for the regular blade and get unmatched shaving comfort. Its extraordinary shaving performance will convince you that the Blue Blade is the sharpest ever produced. A blue color has been applied to the blade for easy identification. It is contained in a blue package, Cellophane wrapped.

Arms Reduction Proposals Meet Favor But Fail To Have Effect On Markets

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 22. (US)—Dullness still prevailed in security markets today. Prices fluctuated within a narrow price range while the latest news was being analyzed for its influence upon the markets. Washington's armament proposal was without affect marketwise, but the effort toward reduction of national warfare expenditures finds genuine support in financial circles.

The feeling is that such steps are but preliminary to a widening of international discussions, finally leading to a thoroughgoing revision of international debts. With the reparations problem overhanging, the world's markets are naturally under almost constant pressure of uncertainty.

Wall street while still highly skeptical is gradually leaning toward greater faith in the achievement of some tangibly encouraging international action; just what is likely, the financial community does not know, but it is hopeful. Meanwhile, however, the markets are disinclined to celebrate prematurely; past experience has proven the unwisdom of such anticipation.

However, to the truly unbiased market interests and observers, the period of inactivity and extreme price dullness is hailed as thoroughly satisfying. During this period of general inactivity, it is possible to affect those additional price revisions still necessary in individual issues, without affecting the main body of the market.

This movement toward individual adjustments was continuing today. American Can, for example, was under steady pressure. Steel preferred broke under 60, to a new low; the selling seemed at least partly speculative in this issue. Auburn slumped a few more points while the premium on the stock was quoted at one-eighth of a point. Allied Chemical, whose dividend may be reduced at the next directors' meeting, was down fractionally. Telephone was lower as short-selling continued.

Brooklyn-Manhattan preferred and common were relatively strong features. Some of the larger stockholders are understood to be transferring their stock out of brokers' names into their own names. They are resentful of the management's blocking of attempts to effect a consolidation of local transit facilities which at one time might have yielded the B. M. T. common holders a price five times the current market value of the shares. Case was another firm stock, running up more than a point net, presumably on speculative activity.

A late recovery in wheat prices helped sentiment in stocks, but the earlier dip of wheat into record low ground also had its effect.

Conservatives were not particularly pleased with the ruling of the New York state banking department with respect to valuation of security collateral behind loans. The permissible right granted banks in this state to value such collateral higher than market prices might lead to some abuse. The banking department, it was reported, is permitting banks under its jurisdiction to value stock collateral at an average price over the past year and bonds of a grade better than "B" rating to be carried at par.

Speculative interests apparently have not given up their hope that a rally may yet be achieved out of current dullness. The more worthy market interests, however, are quite content with narrow price movements and limited trading. In fact, they would look with favor upon an extended continuance of such a market.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, June 22. (AP)—Keen demand was reported for wheat Wednesday on the Fort Worth cash grain market with moderate demand for the other light offerings.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads on track Fort Worth, freight paid, delivered Texas gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points.

Wheat—No. 1 hard according to protein and billing, 50½@58½c.

Barley—No. 2 nominally 32@32½c.

Sorghums—No. 2 yellow milo or white kaffir per 100 pounds 72@73c.

Delivered Texas common points or group three:

Corn—No. 2 mixed 42@42½c; No. 2 white 42½@43c; No. 2 yellow 48½@49c.

Delivered Texas common points:

Oats—No. red 21@21½c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 22. (AP)—Grain values scored a slight net advance today after all deliveries of wheat had dropped to fresh bottom price records.

Black rust reports from the Dakotas together with disturbing advices about grasshopper ravages in spring wheat territory, led to increased buying attributed largely to eastern sources. Earlier, the wheat market was chiefly dominated by bearish sentiment resulting from much increased taxes on future delivery dealings and by official figures indicating that the volume of board of trade business under the new taxes had been curtailed more than 11,000,000 bushels in a single day.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅛@½c above yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to ⅛c higher, oats ⅛c off to ⅛c up, and provisions unchanged to 10c down.

There was increased attention given to messages asserting that much new wheat in the Southwest would not pay for harvesting cost and must be abandoned.

Special notice was taken that United States wheat is now at an unprecedented discount of 5 cents a bushel, or the difference between Kansas City prices and those at Buenos Aires. Primary arrivals of domestic wheat, totaled 510,000 bushels against 918,000 a year ago. Export buying of new wheat the Gulf of Mexico was announced, several loads on a basis of 1 cent a bushel over Chicago September contracts for No. 1 hard. Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat.

Provisions lacked support, despite firmness of the hog market.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 47⅝@47½c, 49⅛c; Sept. 50@50⅛c, 52⅛c; Dec. 53⅛@53⅛c, 55⅛c. Corn—July 29⅛c, 30c; Sept. 31⅝@31⅞c, 32⅝c; Dec. 32c, 32⅜@32½c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, June 22. (US)—Possibilities that aggressive leadership may develop on the buying side of wheat attracted a considerable following in the local [illegible]. Substantial purchases by a leading local noted for his sagacity in crop matters led to the reversal of trend today. At the same time there were intimations that eastern interests are re-entering the market.

Cables stress reports that crop conditions in the principal wheat producing countries of the European continent are now very favorable.

A hot wave following recent rains in the northwest would be considered rather bullish as it would tend to develop black rust infection.

Trade in corn has dwindled to a minimum. Although there are large supplies back in the country, shippers refuse to sell at present levels, thus reducing pressure in the pit. At the same time there is little or no buying interest.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, June 22. (AP)—Anticipation of further movement in the goods market stimulated more confidence in currently quoted values on several grades of wool today. Moderate to small quantities of 64s and finer and 56-60s, quality territory wools move a little more freely than last week with some houses. Concessions are not as readily obtainable as during the previous few weeks, especially on the greased for which demand was recently tended to broaden.

Develop Serum

ST. LOUIS. (INS)—After three years' research, a more powerful immune serum than is generally in use for infantile paralysis has been developed at the Washington university medical school here. According to Dr. E. V. Cowdry, who was in charge of the research, the serum developed, as a result of the study, has been standardized to a strength sufficient to kill at least 30 times its own volume in infantile paralysis virus.

Advice To Investors

By Charles W. Storm—Editor of the "News Service of Wall Street"

P. A., Wichita Falls—What is your opinion of National Cash Register "A." Do you think dividends will be resumed this year?

Answer—Operations of National Cash Register Co. are now at only about 35 per cent of capacity and present conditions of general trade indicate continued lethargy in the markets for the company's cash registers and business machines. Foreign business is poor and difficulty is experienced in withdrawing cash from foreign branches. In view of the above, a net loss for the first half of 1932 will probably be in excessof $1,000,000—a figure which compares with a deficit of $339,654 in the first quarter this year and profit of about $492,000 in the first half of last year. For the full year 1931, earnings equaled 69 cents a share, as compared with $3.01 in 1930. With less than seasonal improvement in prospect for the coming fall months, a loss for the full year now appears to be certain. Repossessions are understood to be running at a level little under half of current sales volume. Resale of this equipment ordinarily entails no loss, but under prevailing conditions it is probable that a large supply of these units has accumulated. Unpaid cumulative dividends on the Class A stock will amount to $4.125 on July 15. Although the company is borrowing no money and has maintained a sound current financial position, resumption of payments is obviously unlikely until earning power has been substantially revived. The stock is considered unattractive.

P. F.—What is your opinion of Niles-Bement Pond stock?

Answer—Niles-Bement-Pond company reported a 1931 deficit of $686,387 after dividends of $224,229 but before debiting $515,910 cost of patents, good will, etc., acquired and cost of moving and resetting Keller machinery. In 1930 earnings equaled $2.30 a share. Current assets at end of 1931 amounted to $4,979,702, including $3,616,630 inventories and $773,443 cash, as compared with current liabilities of $756,516, which included $375,000 notes payable. The stock is a speculation. Dividend due July 1, 1932, has been omitted.

C. H., Wichita Falls—Will you please give me any information you have on Western Union Telegraph and Electric Power & Light stocks.

Answer—Western Union Telegraph company is engaged in domestic telegraph and cable business as well as other services. Per share earnings in 1931 were $5.71 against $9.03 in 1930; 8 cents in first quarter of 1932 compared with $1.44 in corresponding quarter of 1931. Business highly dependent upon general conditions with result that earnings have been downward for many months and no change in this trend indicated at the present time. The $4 dividend is expected to be materially reduced or omitted entirely. Electric Power & Light corporation supervised by Electric Bond & Share Co. controls operating companies in Southwest and Northwest. Nearly one-half of revenues comes from electricity, about one-third from gas and remainder from transportation and miscellaneous services. Earned $1.02 in 12 months ended March 31, 1932, based on 3,317,201 common shares outstanding as compared with $2.85 in 12 months ended March 31, 1931, based on 1,876,838 shares. Based on average number of common shares outstanding in these periods per share earnings were $1.43 and $2.85 respectively. Immediate prospects of stock unattractive. Though paying $1 a share annually, the issue is rated as a speculation.

THURMAN HILL GATHERS DATA

Kansas Official Studies Oil Market

NEW YORK, June 22. (UP)—Thurman Hill, chairman of the Kansas Public Service commission and chairman of the allowable committee of the oil states advisory board, is conferring here with marketers and refiners of oils to ascertain their present and contemplated withdrawls from storage.

These data are to be used in aiding the oil state advisory committee in fixing crude oil production allowables to achieve a balance between supply and demand. The committee, a few weeks ago recommended the average daily output of the country be reduced 237,000 barrels to a total of 2,136,000 barrels.

"Never again will crude oil be purchased at starvation prices," Hill said, "for public officials in the 10 great oil states of the West will realize the importance of conserving natural mineral resources and will not permit this irreplaceable resource to be taken from the commonwealth without just and fair compensation.

"It is my judgment that oil producers should receive the cost of production, including a reasonable profit, for each barrel sold and that this time cost and profit should be in excess of $1 a barrel.

"The oil industry is in a better position than most industries at this time. With further curtailment of crude production of 10 per cent, the supply will be under the demand. The excise tax will reduce imports and refinery executives see the necessity for a more restricted output."

Gov. Sterling Praises Texas RFC Committee

AUSTIN, June 22. (AP)—Gov. R. S. Sterling today praised work of the Texas contact committee created some weeks ago to work with the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation on behalf of extension of loans to aid farmers.

He said John W. Carpenter of Dallas, chairman of the committee, had just reported to him, showing that the Texas group was directly responsible for an extension of the time for federal farm loans and a broadening of the loans to include livestock men, dairymen and truck garden farmers.

"Many a farmer, discouraged from seeking a loan last April because of the drouth, now has prospects for making a crop and will be thankful for aid from the government," Governor Sterling said.

By FRANK BUCK with EDWARD ANTHONY

For 18 exciting years, Frank Buck has been gathering live animals, reptiles and birds for American zoos, circuses, and dealers. He hunts them barehanded in jungle and mountain-fastness, in wildest Africa, in darkest Thibet—but he always brings 'em back alive.

He now tells about a 16,000-mile journey into the interior of Nepal to capture, at the order of Dr. William T. Hornaday of the New York Zoological park, a great armor-plated, single-horned Indian rhino—rare as the unicorn of fable. He obtains help from General Shum Share, a nephew of the Maharajah of Nepal. Buck's plans are frustrated by the Ganges river which is on a rampage. He starts back for Singapore. Later he returns to collect the rare rhinos the Maharajah has captured for him. The most difficult part is transporting them to the rail head in India. After an exciting journey, he arrives in Calcutta with his rhinos.

Of the thousands of monkeys and apes Buck has brought to America from Asia, the most interesting was a female orangutan picked up in Borneo which he named Gladys. In the last chapter, Buck related the experience of a white adventurer named Holter, who gave up the tea business to go on a tiger trapping expedition. Meeting Holter a year later, Buck hears the story of how Holter lost his leg when caught in his own steel trap.

Returning to America with one of the biggest of many floating zoos Buck brought back, he has trouble with a huge orangutan and is aided by a powerful sailor, "Chips," to subdue the animal. In the last chapter, Buck's friend, the sultan of Johore, challenges Buck to capture a man-eating tiger, native to the sultan's domain. Buck leaps at the opportunity to try for a man-eater and joins the Sultan at his fort. The tiger, after killing a native, is trapped in a pit dug by Buck. He sets out to capture the animal alive.

CHAPTER XXIV

We climbed into the car and set out for the plantation at a terrific clip. At least half the way we traveled at the rate of 70 miles an hour, very good work for the battered bus I was driving.

When we arrived the natives were packed deep around the sides of the pit. Never have I witnessed such a change in morale. There was no suggestion of rejoicing—for the natives endow tigers with supernatural powers and they do not consider themselves safe in the presence of one unless he's dead or inside a cage—but they were again quick in their movements. A determined-looking crew, they could now be depended upon for real assistance.

In addition to the crowd of coolies, the group near the pit included the major and his soldiers and a white man and his wife from a nearby plantation. The woman, camera in hand, was trying to take a picture. Even in the wilds of Johore one is not safe from invasion by those terrible amateurs to whom nothing means anything but the occasion for taking another picture. I distinctly recall that one of my first impulses on arriving on the scene was to heave the lady to the tiger and then toss in her chatterbox of a husband for good measure. This no doubt establishes a barbarous strain in me.

I ploughed my way through the crowd to the mouth of the pit. The natives had rolled heavy logs over the opening, driven heavy stakes and lashed the cover down with rattan.

"Apa ini?" I inquired. "Apa ini?" (What is this?)

"Oh, tuan! harimu besar!" came the chorused reply, the gist of it being that our catch was a "great, big, enormous tiger." I loosened a couple of the logs, making an opening through which I could peer down into the pit. Stretching out on my stomach, I took a look at the prisoner below, withdrawing without the loss of much time when the animal, an enormous creature, made a terrific lunge upward, missing my face with paw not more than a foot.

This was all I needed to convince me that the natives had shown intelligence in covering the mouth of the pit with those heavy logs. I did not believe that the beast could have escaped if the covering was not there; yet he was of such a tremendous size that it was barely possible he could pull himself out by sinking his claws into the side of the pit after taking one of those well-nigh incredible leaps.

The business of getting that tiger out of the pit presented a real problem. This was due to his size. I had not calculated on a monster like this, a great cat that could leap upward to within a foot of the mouth of the pit.

Ordinarily it is not much of a job to get a tiger out of a pit. After baiting it with a couple of freshkilled chickens, a cage with a perpendicular slide door is lowered. An assistant holds a rope which when released drops the door and makes the tiger a captive as soon as he decides to enter the cage for the tempting morsels within, which he will do when he becomes sufficiently hungry. A variation on this procedure, though not as frequently used, is to lower a box without a bottom over the tiger. This is arduous labor, requiring plenty of patience, but it is a method that can be employed successfully when the circumstances are right. When you have the box over the tiger and it is safely weighted down, you drop into the pit, slip a sliding bottom under the box and yell to the boys overhead to haul away at the ropes.

It was obvious that neither of these methods would do in this case. I simply could not get around the fact that I had understimated the size of the man-eater and had not ordered a deep enough pit. Our catch was so big that if we lowered a box he could scramble to the top of it in one well-aimed leap and jump out of the hole in another. Ordinary methods would not do. They were too dangerous.

I finally hit upon a plan, and, as a good part of the morning was still ahead of us, I decided to tear back to Singapore for the supplies I needed and race back posthaste and get that striped nuisance out of the pit that day. I could not afford to spend much more time on the plantation. I had so much work waiting for me in connection with that big shipment I was taking to the United States.

My first move on arriving in Singapore was to get hold of Hin Mong and put him and his chowboys to work at once on a special long, narrow box with a slide door at one end. When I left for my next stop, Mong and his boys had cast aside all other tasks and were excitedly yanking out lumber for my emergency order. Knowing this Chinese carpenter's fondness for needless little fancy touches, I assailed his ears before departing with a few emphatic words to the effect that this was to be a plain job and that he was not to waste any time on the frills so dear to his heart.

Leaving Mong's, I headed for the bazaars where I bought 300 or 400 feet of strong native rope made of jungle fibers. Next I went to the Harbor Works and borrowed a heavy block and tackle. Then I hired a motor truck.

When I added to this collection an ordinary western lasso, which I learned to use as a boy in Texas, I was ready to return to the rubber plantation for my tiger. While on the subject of that lasso, it might be appropriate to point out that the public gave Buffalo Jones one long horse laugh when he announced his intention of going to Africa and roping big game, and that not long afterwards the laugh was on the public, for Buffalo serenely proceeded to do exactly what he said he would. I have never gone in for that sort of thing but my rope which is always kept handy has been useful many times, even a crane, a valuable specimen, having been lassoed on the wing as it sailed out over the ship's side after a careless boy had left its shipping box open.

When the box was made—and though Hin Mong and his chowboys threw it together hastily it was a good strong piece of work—I loaded it and the coil rope and the block and tackle onto the truck and sent this freight on its way to the rubber plantation, putting it in charge of Ali's nephew who was then acting as his uncle's assistant at the compound. I gave him a driver and two other boys and sent them on their journey after Ali had given his nephew instructions on how to reach the rubber plantation. Four boys were needed to carry the supplies the three miles from the end of the road through the jungle trail to the plantation.

My own car, which had carried Ali and me on so many other important trips, carried us again. Our only baggage was my lasso which I had dropped on the floor of this speedy but badly mutilated conveyance of mine that for want of a better name I called an automobile.

As I had not seen the sultan since the day he turned his major and those eight soldiers over to me I decided to drop in on him on the way to the rubber plantation.

Having learned he was at the fort, I headed for these glorified barracks, where H. H. greeted me effusively. He came out of the fort as we pulled up, leaning over the side of the car. Two or three times he congratulated me on my success in getting the tiger into the pit. Then, very solemnly—and for half a second I didn't realize that he had reverted to his bantering manner)—he said, "Glad you stop here before you go take tiger from pit. I would never forgive you if you did not say good-bye before tiger eat you."

Laughing, I told H. H., whose eyes were resting on the lasso at the bottom of the car, "You don't seem very confident, do you?"

"Confident?" came the reply. "Sure! You going to catch tiger with rope like cowboy, no? Very simple, this method, no? Very simple. Why you don't try catch elephant this way too? Very simple." Then the sultan broke into one of those hearty roars of his, slapping his thighs as he doubled up with laughter.

"Don't you think I can do it, H. H.?" I asked.

Tactfully, he declined to answer with a yes or a no. All he said was, "This is tiger, not American cow." This was more eloquent than a dozen noes.

"I'll tell you what, H. H.," I said. "I'll make a little bet with you, just for the fun of it. I'll bet you a bottle of champagne that I'll have that tiger alive in Johore Bahru before the sun goes down." H. H. never could be induced to make a wager for money with a friend; that's why I stipulated wine.

"I bet you," he grinned. "But how I can collect if tiger eat you?" (Turning to Ali with mock sternness.) "Ali, you do not forget that your tuan owe me bottle champagne if he do not come back!" Then he blew himself to another one of those body-shaking laughs of his.

We were off in a few minutes. Clouds were gathering overhead and it looked like rain. I wanted to get my job over with before the storm broke. Stepping on the gas, I waved a good-bye to H. H., and we were on our way.

I was worried by the overcast skies but I did not regard the impending storm as a serious obstacle. It looked like a "sumatra," a heavy rain and windstorm of short duration, followed by bright sunshine that always seems freakish to those who do not know the East. The chief difficulty imposed by the storm, in the event that it broke, would be the slippery footing that would result. A secondary problem would be the stiffening of the ropes. Rope when it has been well exposed to rain, hardens somewhat, although it can be handled. If it rained, my job would be so much tougher.

We tore along at maximum speed, my engine heralding our approach all along the line with a mighty roar. Considering the terrific racket, I had a right to expect the speedometer to indicate a new speed record instead of a mere 70 an hour. My bus always got noisy when I opened her up, reminding me of a terrier trying to bark like a St. Bernard.

The skies grew darker as we raced along and when we were a short distance from the point where it was necessary to complete the journey on foot a light rain started to fall. By the time we were halfway to the plantation it was raining hard and Ali and I were nicely drenched when we arrived.

The rain had driven many of the coolies to cover but at least a score of them were still standing around when we pulled up. The major and his soldiers, soaked to the skin, stood by faithfully, the major even taking advantage of this inopportune moment to congratulate me again—(he had done it before)—on my trapping of the man-eater. I appreciated this sporting attitude after the failure of his search in the jungle. However, I didn't feel very triumphant. The tough part of the job was ahead of me. Getting a tiger out of a pit into a cage in a driving rainstorm is dangerous, strenuous work.

Deaths From Alcoholism Show Slight Decrease

WASHINGTON, June 22. (AP)—The census bureau said today deaths from alcoholism per 100,000 population decreased slightly between 1928 and 1930, the last year for which figures are available.

In 1930 figures reveal the death rate from alcoholism was 3.5 per 100,000, including all states but Texas. In 1929 it was 3.7, and was 4.0 in 1927 and 1928. The rate in 1910 was 5.4. The highest rate since then was 5.9 in 1913, and the lowest 1.0 in 1920.

The figures are not based on the population of the entire country, but only on reports from states in which at least 90 per cent of all deaths are registered. Figures for 1930 are based on reports from 47 states and the District of Columbia, but those for 1910 on reports of only 21 states and the District.

YOUTH NABBED FOR EXTORTION

Officers Capture Man as He Collects 'Money'

ALVA, Okla., June 22. (UP)—John C. Wright, 24-year-old Ringwood youth, was arrested near here late today as he fled under gunfire with a dummy package which he thought contained $3,000 in currency.

The package had been placed under a culvert by W. D. Myers, president of the Central National bank of Alva and wealthy Oklahoma and Kansas landowner, whose life had been threatened in the alleged extortion plot.

Wright was not wounded. He was brought to the Woods county jail where he declined to make any statement.

Myers, officers said, had been warned by messages to place $3,000 in bills under a culvert on the highway two and one-half miles east of here. Unless he did this, officers said the messages threatened, he would be killed.

A dummy package was prepared and this afternoon, Myers drove by the designated place and left the bundle. Officers were posted nearby.

In a short time Wright approached the culvert, placed the package in a canvas bag. Officers rose up from ambush and commanded him to halt.

Instead, he ducked back under the culvert. A shot was fired at him. He ran down a ravine and it was only after a six-mile chase that the youth, exhausted, surrendered to officers. At the time of his arrest, he had crossed the Alfalfa county line.

In addition to heading the bank here, Myers is an official in several southwestern Kansas banks.

Authorities said an extortion charge would be filed against Wright.

LEOPOLD TO SPEAK HERE

U. S. C-C Official to Attend Luncheon Friday

Joseph F. Leopold of Dallas, manager of the southwestern office of the United States Chamber of Commerce, has accepted an invitation of the Wichita Falls junior chamber to speak at the noon luncheon of the senior chamber business council Friday at the Kemp hotel.

Mr. Leopold, a leading speaker on commercial subjects in the United States, will fill the program at the luncheon in place of Ed Crump. Entertainment for the program will be in charge of J. C. Strauss Jr., who will present a floor show. Mr. Leopold had previously announced he would be unable to fill his engagement here, but Wednesday notice of the change was received. Mr. Leopold is a pioneer in chamber of commerce work having served in a small Ohio town. Subsequently he handled secretarial positions in numerous Ohio and Indiana cities until he accepted a managerial post at Des Moines, Iowa. From that position he went to Washington, D. C., with the national chamber.

When the southwestern office was opened at Dallas in 1920 Mr. Leopold was named manager, the position he now holds. The Dallas office serves the geographical Southwest in territory south and west of St. Louis. Mr. Leopold has held numerous other executive positions in national commercial groups.

Mr. Leopold is primarily a public speaker and is unable to fill many requests for his services. He is famous for a biting wit and the ability to describe the weaknesses of a city and make his audience like it. He is coming to Wichita Falls direct from a tour of Kansas and Oklahoma which he opened directly after the recent national convention in San Francisco.

JUNIOR DIRECTORS MEET

Preliminary discussion of matters for presentation at the national Junior chamber of commerce convention at Pasadena, Calif., in August featured the luncheon meeting of the Wichita Falls junior chamber directors Wednesday. Organization of junior chambers in small towns and the local plan for governmental economy will be presented.

Two Cities Study Wichita System Of Cleaning Mains

Groups of department heads and employes of Dallas and Fort Worth spent Tuesday in Wichita Falls inspecting the machines now being used by the city for cleaning water mains, and studying the plan which is being followed in that process, it was learned Wednesday.

J. B. Winder, superintendent of the waterworks at Dallas, accompanied by two employes of that department, came from that city to study the work under way here. Fort Worth was represented by the city engineer, city waterworks superintendent, city chemist, new construction foreman and maintenance foreman of the water department.

Members of the visiting groups remained for several hours with the crew engaged in cleaning a stretch of 20-inch mains. They expressed commendation of the system in use here, and stated that similar work probably will be started by the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth.

George D. Fairtrace, formerly city manager here and now manager of the city of Fort Worth, visited Wichita Falls several weeks ago and expressed his approval of the water main cleaning campaign inaugurated here.

"Go-devils" being used by the city are designed and manufactured by A. H. Howard of the Southern Electric Service company of Wichita Falls. City officials several weeks ago issued a statement showing that the city water department, with the use of these machines, can clean the entire water distributing system for about $50,000 less than it would have cost to have the same work done on contract by outside concerns.

Officials to Study Dallas Police Radio

In furtherance of the city's plan to install a short-wave radio service for use of the local police department, C. H. Fooshee, city electrical inspector, Police Chief Dick Morris, and Ira Cain Jr., will spend Thursday in Dallas for the purpose of studying the radio system in use by the police department there.

Approval of the plan to provide local police with a radio system was given by the city council Monday night. The broadcasting and receiving sets will be assembled in this city, it was indicated.

The three men who are to go to Dallas Thursday will obtain drawings and operating charts of the system in use there, it was said.

BRICKLAYERS GIVEN JOBS

Contractors to Rotate Postoffice Workers

Seventeen Wichita Falls brick masons were employed Tuesday under a new system of rotating employes on brick work in construction of the new federal building and postoffice here. All brick masons in this city are being given an opportunity to try out for jobs on the construction and if they attain the desired pace are eligible for continued employment under the schedule of rotation.

C. A. James of Amarillo has been added to the supervising staff of the W. H. Underhill Construction company in the capacity of job superintendent and is working with Mr. Barneyback. Mr. James has been associated with Mr. Barneyback for several years in building postoffice structures and has had over 15 years' experience in federal construction work.

Inspector Brennan of Kansas City, district federal mechanical executive, completed a tour of the building Tuesday and pronounced mechanical equipment of the structure satisfactory, although behind the completion schedule. Mr. Brennan's visit was the first inspection of the mechanical equipment.

Interior partitions have been completed, according to Miles E. Myers, resident federal engineer, and stone work is proceeding rapidly. The project will soon be ready for plastering work. A portion of the metal window casings have also been installed.

Employes of the S. Heller Elevator company of Milwaukee, Wis., have started work on installation of elevators at the building, Mr. Myers added. Much of the time lost in the schedule of completion of the building has been made up in recent weeks under the new pace of construction recently inaugurated by Mr. Barneyback.

National Junior C-C Approves Economy Plan

The governmental economy plan recently adopted by the Wichita Falls Junior chamber of commerce and forwarded directors of the national junior chamber has been approved by that body, according to word received Wednesday by officers of the local orgahization.

The national board will distribute the plan to all member groups in the United States for action by each organization.

The plan covered all phases of governmental expenditures and offered a program of elimination of offices, schools, and other agencies which may be cut out without impairment of efficiency.

'Paper Sack Bandit' Sought at Houston

Jack Carter of Wichita Falls, paroled convict facing charges of robbery with firearms at Abilene and in this city in four cases, also is wanted at Houston on a hijacking charge. Houston police believe Carter was wounded in escaping from officers there recently, according to information received by officers here Wednesday.

Carter, popularly known as the "paper sack bandit" during a series of hijackings in 1927, recently used the same tactics in robberies of filling stations here and at Abilene. He was arrested at Abilene June 16.

Negro Arrested in Theft of Garden Hose

Loss of a section of garden hose from the residence of H. G. Jacks, 1406 Fourteenth, Tuesday night was reported to police Wednesday morning. The hose was recovered and returned to the owner with the arrest of a negro by Detectives O. A. Roberson and Luke Hart. The negro was assessed a fine of $5 in corporation court Wednesday morning.

A raid on the safe of the Frank Wolf Coal and Feed store, 400 Bridge, failed Tuesday night. The store was entered by forcing a lock on a front door and the burglars knocked the knob from the safe door but failed to open the strong box.

Other losses reported to police Wednesday included the theft of two coats from the automobile of Mrs. Paul Barnett, 1307 Marshall; and the loss of a baseball glove at Ninth and Brook, reported by Bobby Hall, 2216 Talunar lane.

OFFICER FOILS JAIL BREAK

Fake Gun Used in Attempt To Bluff Jailer

Ultimate discovery that the mean looking gun wielded by a prisoner had been ingeniously moulded from jail soap and covered with tinfoil did not lessen the seriousness of an effort made late Tuesday night by three inmates of the Wichita county jail to make their escape, according to information given by members of the sheriff's department Wednesday.

Max Berryhill, Johnnie Russell and Ted Rogers, ex-convicts under heavy sentence for a series of hijackings and robberies here recently were the three who obviously planned to gain their freedom by first intimidating and overpowering Sid Johnson, night jailer.

Jailer Threatened

As Johnson passed a cell block containing a dozen or more prisoners about 10 o'clock Tuesday night he was handed a postal card bearing a picture of Rogers' youthful sister. Directed by Berryhill to "read on the other side," Johnson found printed on the back of the card: "If you want to live do as we say." Looking up, he faced a gun thrust between the bars by Rogers, who stepped alongside Berryhill. The jailer was commanded by Rogers to "back up against the bars," and was told by Berryhill to "do as he says." Johnson interpreted their commands as an effort to obtain his gun. He answered, "Go ahead and shoot; but you'll still be in here." Stepping behind the lock combination box several feet away, he called to other officers. As Deputy Sheriffs Pat Allen and I. N. McKelvey reached the top of the stairs, Rogers dropped to soap gun through the cell bars, saying, "Here's the gun, Sid."

The piece was an excellent imitation of an automatic pistol, similating in the finest detail the pattern of a heavy-bore gun. It had been skillfully surfaced with tinfoil to resemble a brown-handled, nickel-plated gun.

Life Sentences

Officers pointed to the fact that Rogers, Berryhill and Russell all were dressed as evidence of their intention to break jail if possible. The trio was captured here May 30 in a house on Seymour street by Sheriff Browning and deputies. Russell and Rogers received sentences totalling 34 years each in district court here more than a week ago, Berryhill receiving a 12-year term. In Clay county, Rogers and Russell were given life terms on each of two counts. One charged robbery of the bank at Petrolia and kidnaping of a girl cashier, the other kidnaping of a youth near Sharmon, in Clay county, when his car was taken from him. Berryhill also drew another 12-year term in Clay county.

Sid Johnson recently returned to his post after having been out two weeks because of injuries sustained in an attempted jailbreak on the night of May 10.

Railroads' Service To Nation Praised In Address Here

The importance of railroads to the country as a transportation medium and as a heavy consumer of raw products was urged before members of the Optimist club Wednesday noon at the Kemp hotel by J. W. Butz, veteran railroad man of Burkburnett.

The speaker styled railroads as "the best single industry in the United States," and declared that no other country depends upon railroads so largely as does our own.

Mr. Butz argued that competitors of railroads and the railroads themselves should be placed on the same footing with reference to rates, taxation, etc.

Referring to railroads' consumption of products, Mr. Butz said they use 44 per cent of the country's turn-over of lumber annually, 22 per cent of the coal, 21 per cent of fuel oil, and 17½ per cent of steel and iron. Railroads have a pay roll including 2,000,000 workers, he said. The speaker also invited members of the club to attend the Burkburnett "sliver jubilee" celebration on Thursday.

Two vocal numbers by Miss Joan Fox, accompanied by Miss Ruby Murrell, were included in Wednesday's entertainment. Hank Stone was program chairman.

COURT DOOMS SECOND NEGRO

Brown to Join Johnson In Death Cell

A mandate from the criminal court of appeals at Austin which will bring Richard Brown, negro, before Judge Allan D. Montgomery of the 30th district court in Young county for sentence of death is expected to arrive within a few days, court officials said Wednesday, after the appellate court had denied Brown's motion for a rehearing.

Charged with robbery with firearms in connection with the killing of A. N. (Ted) Nodurft and the robbery and assault of his fiance here last September, Brown was given the death penalty by a jury in Young county early this year. Attorneys for the negro had obtained a change of venue from Wichita to Young county.

Richard Johnson, companion of Brown, was sentenced by Judge Montgomery last Saturday to die in the electric chair at Huntsville before sunrise on Aug. 10. The court had announced that the execution date of both negroes would be the same. Sentencing of Brown consequently will take place before July 10, since 30 days must elapse between dates of sentence and execution. Judge Montgomery is expected to sentence Brown at Graham within the next week.

Both negroes were indicted for murder and criminal assault and robbery with firearms after Nodurft was killed. Johnson convicted on the murder count, was placed in the death cell at Huntsville last Sunday after being delivered to the state prison by Sheriff Perry Browning.

Lions Club to Install New Officers July 5

Dr. W. P. Bolding will be installed as president of the Lions club for the ensuing year, along with other new officers elected June 15, at a party to be held by the organization on the night of Tuesday, July 5, at the Wichita club, according to plans adopted at Wednesday's luncheon of the club.

Advised Wednesday that in the election held last week they had failed to elect a third vice president, members of the club chose Paul Lacy for that position.

A trumpet solo by Jack Speegle, accompanied by Miss Lois Baber, entertained those present Wednesday. Walter D. Cline gave a short talk outlining plans for the 50th civic birthday anniversary party to be held Sept. 26-28.
