The amount of money contained in the packages has not been ascertained.

GIL STRESSES AMITY TO U. S.

New President Takes Oath Of Office

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 30. (UP)—Emilio Portes Gil was inaugurated provisional president of the Republic of Mexico today at a simple ceremony attended by military and government officials, members of congress and diplomatic representatives.

President Calles sat at the side of his successor on a platform in the National stadium, where congress met for the occasion. About 25,000 persons witnessed the ceremony.

A 21-gun salute was given Calles as he entered the stadium and took his place on the platform.

The band played national anthems and congress was opened with roll call. The act officially recognizing the election of Portes Gil was read and then the oath of office was administered to the new executive.

In his speech to congress Portes Gil promised Mexico a legal and responsible rule in keeping with Calles' policy of replacing military rule with civilian administration. The new president's speech followed to a certain extent the Callista program for and of the "Caudillaje" as military rule, and for promotion of labor benefits.

He praised American Ambassador Dwight Morrow and spoke with assurance of continued friendliness with the United States.

Portes Gil, who will hold office until the inauguration of a constitutional president in February, 1930, was elected to succeed the late General Alvaro Obregon, who was assassinated shortly after his election to the presidency.

Wurzbach Questions Opponent in Investigation Of Election

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 30. (AP)—Threats of contempt proceedings in congress by Chairman Lehlbach of the house committee investigating the disputed result of the 14th Texas district congressional race had a salutary effect in the hearing which ended today.

Anton Woechler, one of three precinct election judges claiming to have lost or misplaced their copies of the official results, returned late today with his copy, explaining he found it under his brother's trunk. This amused the crowd, which had to be quieted. Lehlbach had told the judges to produce the copies or "hear from Washington," mentioning the seriousness of "contempt."

Copies Ordered

The committee closely examined election judges and county commissioners as to the method of counting, final result of which gave County Judge Augustus McCloskey, Democrat, victory by 309 votes over Republican Congressman Harry Wurzbach, who is contesting the validity of McCloskey's commissioners court canvass. Going behind this canvass, the committee ordered photostatic copies made of the original returns in the 17 disputed precincts.

McCloskey denied previous testimony that he was furnished an election judge's copy of precinct returns before the official result was announced. Sheriff-elect Alphonso Newton swore that he obtained the precinct 24 copy from Antonio Garcia, brother of Alex Garcia, precinct judge, and gave them to McCloskey. The latter said Newton gave him some papers but that he had never seen the copy in question. Newton said he thought Antonio was an election judge and asked for the return copy so McCloskey could "compare" the results with others.

Wurzbach on Stand

Wurzbach had been unofficially announced winner for his fifth term until the commissioners court canvass showed victory for McCloskey. Taking the stand himself, Wurzbach detailed several alleged discrepancies in returns charging apparent use of ink eradicators and other methods of alteration. Wurzbach told how a re-check was demanded after unofficial returns showed him to be winner.

Ballifs were unable to locate Frits Rusel, San Antonio independent school system attache, to testify. Ed Englehaart, precinct judge who works under Rusel in the school system, said Rusel came to him one night, told him he had to have Englehart's copy of the precinct returns, took the copy and returned it some 24 hours later with McCloskey's vote of 298 changed to 328.

McCloskey Denied Right

Denying the right of cross examination to McCloskey counsel Chairman Lehlbach explained that the committee is not a court and will not adjudicate the case. The record will be submitted to the national house for use in case of the expected contest before that body.

Wurzbach charged in a statement filed with the committee today that some of the returns were altered. McCloskey, who was examined on the stand by Wurzbach told the committee he disqualified himself as head of the commissioners court a week before the election, and denied that he altered any returns or knew of any alterations being made.

L. Schwartz, one of the three judges reprimanded by Lehlbach for showing up without their return copies, "with a grin on your face," said he mistakenly put his copy in the ballot box, but recalled that Wurzbach got 181 votes. Wurzbach declared the commissioners court canvass gave him only 160 votes in the precinct.

The committee expects to leave Saturday morning for Washington.

Ruling Gives County Power To Build Bridge, Says Somerville

Designation of Highway on Scott Would Solve Problem Raised by Attorney General, Attorney Believes

Designation of Scott avenue as a county highway would remove the only legal obstacle to the construction by the county of a bridge across Wichita river at the north end of the avenue, according to a ruling received Friday from the office of H. Grady Chandler, assistant attorney general.

The commissioners court is authorized to make any such designations it deems wise, Wayne Somerville, county attorney, said Friday afternoon. The designation of a county highway is within the jurisdiction of the commissioners court and can be promptly effected, according to his interpretation of the law.

State Ruling

Question of the right of the county to appropriate funds for the building of a bridge inside the city limits has been raised since the recent agreement of the commissioners court to supply all other necessary funds when property owners put up $25,000 for the construction of a bridge across the river at Scott. The money for the county appropriation would come out of the funds of precinct 1, it has been pointed out.

Ruling, upon the right of the court to make such an appropriation, Mr. Chandler said that the court can build a bridge within the limits on the same terms as outside the corporate bounds, provided the street or road involved is a designated county highway.

The ruling left the legal aspect of the question contingent on the authority of the commissioners court to make such a designation.

Similar Designation

This authority was upheld in the interpretation offered by Mr. Somerville. Other county officials believed that the latter lies within the jurisdiction of the state highway commission. Mr. Somerville explained that the county had met a similar difficulty in designating the connection between Lamar street and the beginning of the Henrietta road paving as county highway in order to complete the paving.

Rumors that legal action to prevent the appropriation of the fund was to be initiated had not been substantiated late Friday. The matter will be before the commissioners

Clay County Woman Freed By Governor

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 30. (AP)—Daisy Mays, serving a sentence of one year in the penitentiary for alleged violation of the prohibition law in Clay county, today was given a general parole for the balance of her term.

The governor said the woman was 55 years old and had tuberculosis.

Hunter Russell, convicted in Wichita county for forgery and burglary and serving four years in the penitentiary, was given a furlough of 60 days. The governor said he had been advised by Mrs. Russell that she and three small children were dependent on her brother since Russell's incarceration and that her brother's limited income was insufficient to care for them.

PLANE CARRIES SANTA LETTERS

Red Garland to Arrive In New York Today

With a roaring whirr and a graceful lift from the ground the big plane piloted by "Red" Garland and accompanied by the Dent theaters cameraman took off on its initial flight Friday afternoon in the Record News and Daily Times great expedition to the North Pole. The expedition will be under the leadership of Capt. F. E. Kleinschmidt, well known Arctic explorer for the purpose of discovering if Santa Claus really lives in the land of the Midnight Sun and Arctic ice.

Discussion has waxed hot for the past week as to whether Santa Claus really exists—each side having a great number of followers. To settle the seemingly burning question of the day, The Record News and Daily Times decided to send an expedition to the North Pole to discover the home of Santa Claus.

Accordingly, a search was instituted far and wide for a capable and experienced explorer to head the party. Captain Kleinschmidt was hired after a brief telegraphic correspondence, and is awaiting his companion plane at Mineola Flying field, Long Island, New York. The plane which took off from Wichita Falls Friday afternoon is expected to join him today at noon. From New York the two swift planes will proceed over Ottawa, Hudson Bay, Coronation Gulf and Victoria Land, the home of the blonde Eskimos, from where the party will take a northwesterly course for the Arctic regions.

Moving pictures will be made of the entire trip and a daily feature story will appear in the columns of The Record News and Daily Times.

Pictures to Be Shown

Upon the return of the exploring party the moving picture will be shown at special children's matinees by H. C. Federer, city manager of the Dent theaters here. These will be the true pictures taken at every step of the journey and should settle all doubts as to the authenticity of the news stories that will appear daily.

A large mail sack of Santa Claus' letters written by the kiddies of Wichita Falls and community was carried by The Record News and Daily Times airplane to the North Pole to be delivered into the hands of Santa Claus personally, if he is found.

'DEATH' RANCH OPERATOR TO FIGHT CHARGES

Youth Says He Will Plead Not Guilty When Arraigned

HEARING SCHEDULED

Suspect Confident Case Will Never Come To Trial, He Says

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30. (UP)—Gordon Stuart Northcott has repudiated a "confession" ascribed to him by officers who accompanied him from Canada and intends to fight charges that he mistreated and murdered four boys on his Riverside chicken ranch, he said today.

"I certainly do not intend to plead guilty to anything," young Northcott said when returned to Los Angeles and placed in a cell once occupied by William Edward Hickman, who was hanged at San Quentin prison for the slaying of a Los Angeles school girl.

Northcott was arraigned before Superior Judge Reuben Schmidt, after his arrival and Dec. 5 was set as the date for him to plead to an indictment charging him with the slaying of an unidentified Mexican boy. Charges in connection with the other three slayings attributed to him are being handled by Riverside county authorities.

Reversal of Spirit

Northcott's defiance was a direct reversal of his spirit as represented by Deputy District Attorney Earl Redwine of Riverside. Redwine said that Northcott had confessed to murdering a Mexican boy and the officer quoted the prisoner as saying "I have nothing left to live for."

"You can't plant a couple of bones and accuse a man of murder," Northcott said in his talk to newspaper men upon his arrival here. It was the first time reporters had been permitted to talk to the prisoner and Northcott described the conversation as his "last interview with the press."

Prisoner at Ease

Northcott appeared entirely at his ease and talked without hesitancy.

"I am satisfied the case will never come to trial," he said. "I certainly do not intend to plead guilty to anything, and I believe a few statements I make will clear it all up in time."

"Then you did not kill the Mexican boy and haul his body to Puente?" he was asked.

"No," he replied. "I'm not a hearse driver."

Northcott stressed his religious as a help to him in his trouble.

"In this day and age a person cannot be too religious—too close to Christ," he said.

The prisoner said he hoped not to talk to newspaper men again because "They're unfair and I have a natural repulsion for morbid news."

Northcott denied there existed any parallel between Hickman's crime and his own case.

"Hickman was a fiend and a pervert," he said.

Northcott said he had sufficient funds for "any defense I deem necessary." He said he wanted to talk to his attorney, McKinley Cameron, before disclosing any defense plans.

Continental Oil Co. Takes Permit For $150,000 Improvement at Plant

The increase in building activities in Wichita Falls which has been evidenced many times in the past month, received its greatest impetus for the year Friday when the largest permit of the year was granted to the Continental Oil company.

The permit was for $150,000 repairs and alterations to Continental's big refinery on the Burkburnett road. This formerly was the Texhoma plant.

Work on the refinery is all "day work," not on general contract, and is directly under the supervision of Ray Russell, chief engineer for Continental, who took out the permit.

The license fee for the permit is the largest provided under the present scale of fees, and brought to the city clerk's office $50.

Two small house repair permits also were issued Friday. One for $100 was issued to L. Klement, 1519 Thirteenth street. The other was for $350 and was to C. W. Snider for 1802 Tenth street.

Most Optimistic of Londoners Left Almost Without Hope for Monarch

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

LONDON, Nov. 30 (UR)—The bulletin which was issued at 6:15 this evening regarding the king's condition was the shortest bulletin issued by his physicians since he became ill. The bulletin was signed, as usual, by Sir Stanley Hewitt and Lord Dawson of Penn, and read:

"The condition of his majesty, the king, shows no change this evening."

This terse statement, following the calling in the morning of Sir Humphrey Rolleston, a specialist in diseases of the liver and kidneys, and a long consultation in which he participated with the two regular physicians, gives Londoners little chance to hope.

Tonight's non-committal bulletin, coupled with this morning's bulletin, the issue of which was delayed for four hours, has left the most optimistic almost bereft of hope. Universal Service learns on the highest medical authority in Britain, that the calling in of Rolleston indicates a perilous breakdown in the sufferer's constitution due to an undermining Bright's disease of long standing, so that now it is not so much a matter of allaying the progress of the "infection," as

Farm Crops Show Gains Past Year Despite Need for Relief, Jardine Says

Agricultural Secretary's Annual Report Points Out Several Successes Despite Stiff Obstacles

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Despite the clamor of demands for farm relief legislation, Secretary Jardine in his annual report to President Coolidge declares that "it is beyond question that 1928 will go down in American agricultural history as a year of achievement."

Insisting that the gross income from agriculture this year will be well above the 1927-28 total of $12,-◆

283,000,000, the secretary nevertheless couples his forecast with the statement that "this does not mean that agricultural grievances are insubstantial nor does it mean that the remedy for these very real difficulties should be left to the free play of economic forces."

Complex Situation

"The situation from which agriculture is still suffering has complex economic, social and other roots," he says. "For these the nation cannot escape its just share of responsibility in that its officials advocated overwhelming expansion of production during the war. In like manner the nation must accept its share of responsibility in seeking and applying sound and adequate relief.

"In short, agriculture is entitled to practical governmental help in rebuilding its fortunes on a firm and permanent foundation."

Without offering any hard and fast farm relief proposal the secretary suggests that farmers could benefit themselves by giving major attention to quality production. Discussing agricultural legislation, he draws attention to laws already enacted, such as the co-operative marketing act of July 2, 1926, the agricultural credits act of 1923, and statutes in 28 states authorizing formation of co-operative associations. Much has already been done by this and similar legislation, he argued, toward improving the situation of the American farmer.

In the fields of farm credits and crop insurance the secretary found the greatest need for future improvement, though he felt that the federal farm loan system and intermediate credit banks have already greatly increased safety and stability. "Much has been done in recent years," he says, "to improve agriculture's credit facilities, but much remains to be done."

Exports Decline

Mr. Jardine's optimistic outlook into consideration his notation that "in value our agricultural exports for the year were 4 per cent less than those of the preceding year and were the smallest in the last five years." He set forth that agricultural exports amounted to only 38 per cent of the total and explained that cotton exports fell off 30 per cent in volume, wheat 6 per cent, and that apples and pork products, both leading export items, showed reduced totals. Barley, corn, rice, tobacco and prunes, however, showed encouraging export increases.

In spite of bad weather conditions in some sections, he says, the acreage of crops harvested was the largest ever recorded, and 8,000,000 acres above the 1927 total. Yields per acre, moreover, were "about 3 per cent above the average for the last 10 years and about 1.7 per cent above those of last year."

His estimate of gross income he based on conspicuous betterment in the livestock industries, the increased income from which he believes will more than counterbalance lowered returns to be expected from cash grains, hay, tobacco and potatoes.

Livestock Survey

"General improvement in the livestock industry, in which all its branches shared was the most outstanding development in the 1928 agricultural situation," the report says. "Cattle prices continued the advance which started late in 1926, and by last midsummer reached the highest average level ever recorded in peace time. Hog prices, early in the year, touched the bottom of a long decline which had started 18 months previously and are now in the upward swing of a new price cycle. Lamb prices were well maintained notwithstanding increased production. Wool prices were higher. Range conditions generally were fair to good throughout the year; all sections were free from serious droughts. Abundant supplies of corn, hay and other feedstuffs were harvested."

Crop production in general, the report asserts, was good in all parts of the country "except in the eastern and central parts of the cotton belt, in parts of the eastern corn belt, and in an area affected by drought, comprising most of South Dakota, western Nebraska, eastern Colorado, New Mexico and southern Texas."

"Sharp changes in temperature in the spring destroyed the winter wheat seeded on fully 10,000,000 acres and thinned the stand on a large additional acreage," it adds. "Reseeding was complicated by a cold and wet June. In the late summer and fall the South Atlantic states had torrential rains that set new precipitation records at many stations. These adverse conditions, however, were largely offset by generally favorable harvesting weather in the more important agricultural states."

Major Crops High

All the three major American crops, wheat, corn and cotton, are estimated as showing high production in comparison with last year, but heavy losses to cotton were noted because of the boll weevil and bad weather, and a severe price depression was reported in the wheat market.

"Our wheat production exceeded 900,000,000 bushels for the first time since 1919," the report says. "The increase was mostly in hard winter and in durum wheat. Indications are that the world's supply of wheat for the 1928-29 marketing season will be about 5 per cent greater than that of the 1927-28 season.

"In the last two months wheat prices in the United States have averaged about 23 per cent lower than those of the corresponding period in 1927. This depression is doubtless to some degree a result of the increase in the world's production of wheat. The present season resembles 1923-24 in its wheat supply position, and may resemble it also in its wheat price movements. In 1923-24 wheat prices fell during the early marketing, but advanced as the season progressed.

"Corn production is estimated at about 2,900,000,000 bushels, the largest crop since 1923. Corn, which furnishes about half our grain supply, has grown this year on an acreage a little larger than that harvested last year, and the yields, although uneven, averaged a little better. Iowa had a record crop and good yields were raised also in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. Indiana's crop was about equal to the average of the last 10 years and Wisconsin's crop slightly above the 10-year average. In other important corn-raising states, the yields were disappointing.

Weevil Loss Heavy

"Cotton was planted on about 46,700,000 acres, an increase of 11.4 per cent over the acreage planted last year. Losses from the boll weevil, however, were the heaviest since the first few years after the pest spread through the cotton belt. Weather conditions were unfavorable. In consequence, the cotton crop in October was estimated at less than 14,000,000 bales, compared with 17,977,000 bales in 1926. Last year's small crop of 12,955,000 bales was held down by acerage reduction, boll weevil damage and the Mississippi floods."

Dairying and poultry production, the secretary said, have shared in the general prosperity of the livestock industries, dairying having been particularly aided by tariff protection on butter, cheese and milk, and poultry farming by specialization and breeding improvements such as coal stove brooders and mammoth incubators.

New Liquor Treaty With Canada Is Negotiated

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (INS)—Negotiations have been opened between Washington and Ottawa for a new Canadian-American liquor treaty, International News Service learned today.

The American government is desirous of obtaining a treaty with the dominion government along the lines of that already negotiated with Cuba. Under such a treaty it would become unlawful for a Canadian citizen to consign liquor shipments to points in the United States.

Ten New Indictments For Election Terrors

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. TRADE BALANCE IN GOOD SHAPE

U. S. Sells Much More Than She Purchases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (INS)—Uncle Sam will sell about $800,000,000 more to the world than he buys this year from other countries.

Statistics available at the commerce department today showed that 1928 has been one of the most successful foreign trade years in the peace-time history of the country.

Estimates place the exports at approximately $4,985,000,000 and imports at about $4,100,000,000 providing the present ratios are maintained through December, which appears likely.

The gain in exports has exceeded $115,000,000 over last year, while the decrease in imports probably will run $100,000,000.

The favorable balance of trade now indicated will be one of the largest on record, with the exception of the $981,000,000 excess of exports in 1924. This year, however, will surpass those of 1924 by approximately $400,000,000, disclosing the tremendous strides in the country's foreign trade.

More than half of America's sales abroad this year will be of manufactured goods. Completely manufactured articles comprise about 46 per cent of the total, a gain of 4 per cent over last year, while the semi-finished products accounted for nearly 15 per cent, the same as last year.

Crude materials, making up 23 per cent of the exports, showed a slight decrease, while crude and manufactured foodstuffs fell off.

Thirty-six per cent of the imports will be raw materials, and 40 per cent manufactured goods.

Europe continued to be this country's leading customer, although there was a slight falling off of exports to the continent. Gains were shown for other North American countries, to Latin-American, Asia and Africa. Canada bought more goods from United States than any other country, followed by the United Kingdom, Germany, Japan, France, Argentina, Italy and Australia.

Likewise United States bought more goods from Europe, although Asia and North American countries were following closely. Of the individual countries Canada led as a source of supply, followed by Japan the United Kingdom, Brazil, Germany, Cuba and British Malaya From Japan came the silk, Brazil furnished coffee, Cuba sugar, and Malaya rubber, the big raw material items.

Bandit's Sureties Appeal Forfeiture

AUSTIN, Nov. 30 (AP)—Sureties on the bond of Jack Smith, charged in Galveston county with burglary, today filed an appeal in the court of criminal appeals from judgment of the district court in forfeiting Smith's bond when he failed to appear when his case was called.

The sureties were John Lockwood and John M. Jones. The bond was $500.

Smith was killed last month in Oklahoma City, Okla., in a gun battle with a city detective.

Two companion cases against Louise Magness and sureties on two bonds of $500 eaca for offenses alleged to have been committed in Galveston county were recently filed on appeal, the principal and sureties seeking to set aside judgment of the district court in forfeiting the bonds.

Fortune Awaits American Woman Who Escaped Death Sentence

LONDON, Nov. 30. (UP)—An estate valued at approximately 700,000 pounds was reported today to be waiting for Mrs. Florence E. Maybrick, an American who figured in a sensational murder trial in England nearly 40 years ago.

A Paris lawyer whose name was not made public was said to be attempting to establish contact with Mrs. Maybrick to give her the fortune willed to her by a former friend.

Mrs. Maybrick was understood to be living in Florida.

Mrs. Florence Maybrick was sentenced to death at Liverpool in 1889, after having been found guilty of poisoning her husband, James Maybrick, with arsenic. Subsequently the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment and she was released after serving 16 years. She returned to the United States.

Turkey C-C Head Pleased With City

Special to The Record News.

TURKEY, Texas, Nov. 30.—The Turkey Chamber of Commerce at all times is seeking to keep the city of Turkey in the front ranks, was the statement of J. M. Edwards, secretary of the association. Mr. Edwards, after being here for some four weeks, feels that the future of Turkey and this part of Hall county is indeed bright.

Mr. Edwards stated that Turkey should consider itself fortunate with such a large trade territory, with a large and excellent agricultural, dairy, hog and poultry possibilities. Many of our neighboring cities would consider themselves fortunate with half the advantages that the Turkey community has, and the possibilities that the future holds for this community are unlimited.

Resignations May Face Philly Police Officials

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30. (UP)—Philadelphia police executives, through the ranks of inspectors and captains, may be asked to resign when Major Lemuel B. Schofield assumes his duties as director of public safety tomorrow, it was rumored here today.

Major Schofield, who replaces Harry C. Davis, director, has announced he would make no radical changes in the police force while attempting to reorganize it as part of the city's "house-cleaning" drive, but it was believed he would ask the men to resign to simplify matters in removing them from the force. Only a few are expected to be released immediately.

USE OF LIQUOR ON INCREASE

Keeley Institute Reports Business Boom

DWIGHT, Ill., Nov. 30. (UP)—Prohibition may have put the saloon out of business, but it has proved a boon to one of the old saloon's chief by-products—the business of curing alcoholism.

Martin Nelson, superintendent of the Keely institute here, told the United Press today that he believed alcoholism was on the increase in the United States, and that he looked forward to a new era of prosperity for his institution.

"We are growing all the time," Nelson said. "We are operating between 12 and 15 institutions in the country now and have just opened a new one in Jacksonville, Fla. At the parent institution here we treat from 60 to 75 patients a month."

In 1914 there were 60 Keely institutes in the United States, all giving the treatment that had been developed by Dr. Leslie Keely nearly 50 years ago. The advent of the war caused business to drop off at such an alarming rate that at one time the parent institution here was the only one in operation. Then came permanent prohibition and it began to look like the business was doomed.

When the boys began to come back from the war, however, business picked up some.

The Illinois health department made a report last week in which it said that 1,190 persons had died of poison liquor in the state already this year, and warned that the heavy drinking holidays were just ahead. The same report cited the increased activity at the Keely institute here.

SPIRITUALISTS SEEKING HELP

Persecution of English Cult Claimed

LONDON, Nov. 30. (NEA)—One million votes are promised to any political party in the forthcoming general election which will promise an amendment to the vagrancy act that will save Spiritualists from prosecution under that law.

This is the result of the campaign against criminal prosecution of bona fide spiritualists and mediums now being waged by the spiritualist societies of Great Britain.

The council of the Spiritualists' National union, representing 400 churches in Britain, met at Manchester and has decided to prepare a definite manifesto setting forth the petition of the spiritualists and the law.

Medium Found Guilty

This manifesto is to be presented to the leaders of the Liberal, Conservative and Labor parties.

The campaign has arisen out of the trial of the spiritualist medium, Mrs. C. Cantlon, who was found guilty at Westminster police court of "having professed to tell fortunes," though the charge was dismissed under the probation of offenders act.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, before setting out for South Africa, sent a strong letter of protest to Home Secretary Sir William Joynson-Hicks in regard to the matter. His two chief points were:

1—That the laws were passed before modern spiritualism was heard of, and they are, therefore, not applicable to conditions today.

2—Modern spiritualists (of whom Sir Arthur is one) regard the use and development of high class mediumship as necessary to the religion.

Persecution Charged

Sir Arthur wrote: "The suppression of mediumship is, therefore, from our viewpoint, religious persecution. I earnestly hope the government will make some effort to meet our demands."

William Oaten, publisher of the newspaper "Two Worlds," says: "Spiritualism is a religion and we must be able to practice it without being persecuted."

Last of Beecher Failures Revealed

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (US)—As a postscript to the legal storms that scattered the famous Beecher family years ago, Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, wife of the noted Brooklyn preacher's grandson, filed a petition in bankruptcy today.

Her petition, filed in United States district court, Brooklyn, listed liabilities at $3,202.93 and no assets.

Recently, according to her attorney, Mrs. Beecher was forced to sell at auction practically all of the relics, including some of the furniture, from the Henry Ward Beecher home.

Mrs. Beecher said that she planned to leave Saturday for the Pacific coast.

It was the refusal of her mother to make that same trip 24 years ago that ended in the father's suit for divorce, charging desertion. Col. Henry Barton Beecher had come west following legal entanglements here which had crippled his business interests.

As the last one in a series of business failures, the present Mrs. Beecher recently was compelled to abandon a tea room she conducted near Brewster, N. Y., under the name of "Beecher Lodge."

Desire for Lock of Hair to Put End To 'Witchcraft' Causes Murder

YORK, Pa., Nov. 30. (UP)—Superstition over "pow wows" and "black magic" led to the slaying of Raymond Rehymer, 49, Wednesday night, it was revealed today with the arrest and alleged confession of Wilbert Hess, 18.

John Curry, 14, and John Blymire of York, were arrested last night, and early today Curry confessed to his part in the killing.

Blymire said a third party was implicated, and Hess was arrested.

The Hess youth and his father, Milton, both are firm believers in witchcraft. The youth told authorities Blymire knew of their superstition, and when the elder Hess complained that some of his chickens had been stolen, told him that Rehymer, a neighbor, had "hexed" or bewitched them.

The only way to avoid Rehymer's spell, Blymire told the Hesses, was to obtain a lock of Rehymer's hair and bury it eight feet under ground back of the chicken house.

Wednesday night the younger Hess, Blymire and Curry went to Rehymer's house to get a lock of his hair, the confession says.

They were admitted. Rehymer went out for some wood for a fire, and when he returned, Blymire jumped on his back. Hess told the county officials. Then they beat him with sticks of firewood and killed him, according to the story told police.

Liberty Motor Is Called Obsolete

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (US)—The Liberty motor, sensation of the world war, is completely obsolete today and should be discharged, Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison declared in his annual report today.

Referring to the enormous advance in design and construction of airplane engines during the past decade, he added:

"The Liberty motor is unreliable, inefficient and uneconomical compared with modern motors, and congress should not be asked to appropriate any more funds for planes equipped with them. They should be eliminated as rapidly as possible.

Army air corps pilots flew 182,909 hours, or over 18,000,000 miles, with but 27 fatalities this year. This represented 671,600 miles per fatality.

Last year there were 43 fatalities in 140 hours flown, or 327,000 miles per fatality.

Probably the most important factor in this 100 per cent improvement is that practically all wartime equipment has either been destroyed or declared obsolete, Mr. Davison explained.

NEW AIR GUNS LOCATE TARGET

New Anti-Aircraft Artillery Has Larger Range

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. (AP)—New anti-aircraft guns which automatically locate the target, follow it until they score a hit, and cease firing when the plane is brought down were described today by Maj. W. C. Young, ordnance officer of the sixth corps area.

"The greatest advances in military science since the war have been made in anti-aircraft artillery," Major Young said. "Longer range and greater rapidity of fire, with no decrease in mobility are features of the new weapons."

He showed pictures of cannon which he said shot from three to seven miles into the air and operate automatically in conjunction with target-locating devices, changing aim as rapidly as the target does.

The new machine guns have twice the range of those used during the war, he said, and were no heavier.

It required them to stop using the word "mill" or "mills," or authorizing retail stores selling their clothing to use these words. Russian Cossack Chorus Will Be Presented in Wichita Falls Dec. 7

Music lovers of Wichita Falls are looking forward with much pleasure to the coming of the Russian Cossack chorus which will appear at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Dec. 7 in an afternoon and evening program. This organization under the personal direction of Segeri Socoloff is being presented as a general Forum attraction and members will be admitted upon the presentation of their blue membership cards. Admission to non-members will be $1.00.

In the music of the Russian Cossacks which consists of 16 male voices the great heart of awakening Russia speaks. These men possess more than an acquired art of singing. It is a racial instinct born of generations of experience and tradition. Deep contra basses and falsetto tenors provide a range of pitch and color that is unknown to choral organizations of this country.

In 1923 the chorus left Russia for a tour of Jugoslavia. Then came a triumphant tour of Italy, France and Spain. In 1925 the organization won musical laurels for itself in Mexico and Central America, singing to its first American audience in Panama.

It has been said by noted critics that the Russian Cossacks chorus has a place all its own in the history of world music.

Other artists that have been brought here by members of the Woman's Forum are Fritz G. Lanham, Lorado Taft, Rebecca Smith, John Erskine, Edmund Vance Cook, and Frederick Ward. The Forum also presented Madame Galli-Curci and Marion Talley in concerts at the Memorial auditorium, and assisted in the success of the grand opera season here.

The attractions that have been presented this season include Dr. Aurelia Rhinehart, famous lecturer, and Frances Macmillen, noted violinist.

Mrs. J. C. A. Guest, chairman of the program committee has urged all members who have not paid their dues to pay them before this attraction and get their new membership cards from Mrs. F. L. Merer.

Hostesses for the occasion will be Mesdames T. T. Reese, J. A. Fisher, W. A. Freear, T. P. Duncan, C. J. Barnard, J. W. Duval, W. J. Grisham, R. W. Gutzler, P. F. Gwynn, J. W. Hunt, E. F. Bohmfalk, Ben M. Bell, N. B. Chenault, J. H. Bonner, Charles Clough and A. C. Camp.

Last year the sale of seals netted $2,200, Mr. Spencer said. This year it will be necessary to do much better because of the program mapped out. Dr. F. R. Collard of Wichita Falls is president of the society.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (US)—It's strange how few men and women when dragged into the divorce court can remember the date of their wedding. At such a time it seems it must have been the year one.

The woman can remember what she wore and the man how scared he was, but that's about all.

A woman in Omaha says that she only remembers that the church was filled with pink roses and she can't bear pink roses any more. The judge knew at once how happy she had been.

A poor weak man in Denver, said that all he could remember about his wedding was that he trembled and dropped the ring. A bad omen.

When a woman remembers the date, the year, and every detail then it is her husband who is to blame for their marital discord.

And when a man not only remembers, but keeps the wedding picture and likes to refer to the event, he isn't at fault.

When they argue about which one proposed and get mad about it, they are both to blame.

There was a commotion in an New York office building recently, and a man jumped through a glass door. "How terrible," said one of the office girls who heard the noise. "What was it all about?"

The scrub woman who happened to be in the hall at the time, said she didn't know, that she guessed somebody just got mad. Fights where she lives are so common, she couldn't get disturbed over the affair.

A woman in a wreck saved her dog and her husband was killed. And, remarks General Henry J. Reilly, "I should think it would have been news if the husband had been saved and the dog drowned."

Oh general!

Yesterday's news tells of a woman who wants $30,000 alimony in a lump, with $600 a month to boot. Another wants $250,000 for "heart balm." Another says a man promised to marry her and didn't and she wants $100,000. If she was really worth that much surely she could get another beau. And of course "heart balm" is never anything but bologna. And nobody would know what to do with $100,000 worth of bologna. As for alimony, it is something that belongs to children and is spent for fur coats and accessories.

High Tension of Romantic Love Cannot Endure for Very Long

Why It Is Inevitable and Right For Romantic Love to Cool—One Who Delights the Girls With Sweet Nothings—How to Tell When a Man's in Love.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young married woman with three children. We are well-to-do and have every comfort in life, but somehow after these years of great love between my husband and myself we are beginning to be alienated from each other. Something intangible has come between us. Our marriage was very romantic. We fell in love at sight and eloped, but now our love seems to have fallen asleep. Is there anything we can do? Neither of us would break up our home. We realize children are a responsibility, and that they need a home and education which we can only give them together.—A WIFE.

Answer—Perhaps you expect too much of love. You cannot keep up to the high tension of young passion forever. Romance is bound to fray out around the edges, and get drab and faded and colorless in the course of time. That is life.

I think it is a great pity that women have the insatiable appetite for thrills, and that they expect their husbands to go on making romantic love to them as long as they live, and that they feel grievously ill-used when the poor unsentimental creatures fail to come up with their daily dozen assurances of their devotion.

This is at the bottom of nine-tenths of the complaints that wives have against their husbands. They don't charge the men to whom they are married with being cruel or abusive or stingy or grouchy or unfaithful. On the contrary, they admit that their husbands are kind and generous and moral and good providers, but they wail out that they are neglected, that their husbands have ceased to love them and that marriage is a failure, and that they are perfectly miserable.

The whole trouble is that with the men matrimony has just settled down to normalcy. They don't see any more sense in swearing that they still love the woman they spent their lives toiling to support and indulge in luxuries than they would in going around announcing publicly that they were honest. They think their actions speak for them more convincingly than words do, but the wives pine for words, and there you are.

It is the law of nature that we get accustomed to our blessings and come to take them without any especial display of gratitude. We accept money that way. What were once luxuries soon become necessities. We take love that way, and the affection over which we once palpitated we soon come to feel is no more than we have a right to expect, and so because a man ceases to tell his wife every day that he adores her and considers her the most wonderful creature on earth, is no indication that his affection has waned. She has just merely become a part of his life, a part of his good fortune that he enjoys without thinking about it.

So I think you are foolish to worry about your love for your husband, and his for you, waning because you are no longer as romantic as you were in the days of courtship. You are just settling down into the placid affection that is better and more enduring than passion. Be content with this. Don't vivisect your own heart nor your husband's heart too much. Don't keep your finger always on the pulse of your affections. Love thrives best when you don't watch it too closely.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a lad just beginning to step out among the girls. Of course, I take in all the parties and dances and I find it very easy to say pretty things to every new Jane. Do you think that a young fellow should be governed by a sense of humor, or that the girl should have intelligence enough not to consider that what is said is worth very much?—EMMET.

Answer—I think any girl should have sense enough not to regard seriously any sort of talk from a man that does not end up with a bona fide proposal of marriage.

When a youth tells a maiden that she has the loveliest eyes he ever saw, and that there is something different about her from any other girl he ever met, and that she is the dream girl of whom he has been thinking all his life, she should let these dulcet sounds caress one ear and go out of the other.

Thereby a pleasant time is had by one and all, for there is no woman who does not love to be flattered and there is no man who has a good line with women who does not enjoy exhibiting it.

The trouble is, Emmett, that a lot of girls have so much vanity that they believe everything of a complimentary nature that a man says to them. Particularly they believe that every man they encounter falls for their charms, and this makes it dangerous to jolly a girl, who may think that you are proposing marriage to her when you are merely trying to make pleasant conversation.

Many a man has found himself engaged to a young woman who put her own interpretation upon his words, and so this makes it advisable for you not to go around making indiscriminate love. This is a pity, because it cramps the style of many an embryo Romeo, and prevents many a maiden from having even one hour of lovemaking in the moonlight to remember.

The pretty things that men say to women are like the pretty flowers that spring up along the arid pathway of life, and that they like to gather up in their memory and make into nosegays and keep among their treasures, and the world would be poorer if we had to dig down and grub these up by the roots.

So go along and scatter your compliments broadcast, and may heaven protect you from a breach-of-promise suit.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Can a man of middle age who has always gloried in single blessedness and independence, and who has firmly decided that he will never marry, remain fixed in his determination to remain a bachelor after he has fallen in love? This man tells a girl he loves her and shows it in every possible way except by marrying her, although he is amply able to marry. If this man really loved the girl, don't you think he would want to marry her?—VIRGINIA N.

Answer—He certainly would. When love knocks at the door, all previous objections to matrimony fly out of the window, and a man shamelessly recants his views on the subject.

Single blessedness and bachelor quarters look good to the man who cares for no one but himself, but the minute he really falls in love he wants a home with the one woman in it, and he wonders how he could ever have endured the loneliness and barrenness of his former estate.—DOROTHY DIX.

Markowitz Will Gives $200,000 To Relatives and Institutions

With the exception of a $2,500 bequest to eleemosynary institutions, the entire estate of the late Isaac Markowitz, well known pioneer resident of Wichita Falls who died here three weeks ago will be divided among thirteen relatives, according to provisions of his will filed for probate Friday with Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk. His estate is estimated at a value of $200,000.

To the Jewish Orphan's Home at New Orleans, Mr. Markowitz left $1,000; to the National Jewish hospital for consumptives at Denver, $500; to the Consumptive Relief society at Denver, $500; and to the Hebrew Union college at Cincinnati, $500.

The largest bequest among the relatives went to Dave Markowitz of Albany, New York, a brother. To the three children of the late Leo Markowitz of Wichita Falls, a one-sixth interest was left. One twelfth interest each went to Leonora Plavner, niece; A. Schein, nephew; Mrs. Izydor Goldstein, sister; Adolph Schwartz, nephew, and Sarah Swartz.

Leonora Feiner, Helen Dafner and Mrs. Sala Markowitz, nieces, and Abraham Markowitz, nephew each received a one twenty-fourth interest.

COURT ASKED TO HALT SALE

Woman Seeks Injunction Against Sheriff

Temporary action on an application seeking to restrain Sheriff W. G. Bralley from the sale of property alleged to belong to the individual estate of Mrs. Edna Fletcher is expected from Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court Saturday.

The petition, filed Friday morning, sets out that the property being levied on for judgement against J. B. Fletcher, husband of the defendant, belongs to the separate estate of the wife. L. I. Bennett was granted a $1,500 judgement against Fletcher for debt on an oil lease in 1926 according to the application, but the plaintiff claims that the property designed for sale by the sheriff was bought with money from her own estate and cannot be sold for her husband's debt. The disputed property is on Beverly drive and is valued at $6,500, according to M. E. Nutt, Mrs. Fletcher's attorney.

Why not start the day right?

Healthful breakfasts can and should be the most appetizing

IF THE fiber foods are so important in our diet—and food authorities impress upon us that they are—why not start the day right by eating them for breakfast? They can be made into the most delicious and satisfying breakfasts imaginable.

Just think for a moment what foods it is that furnish the bulk and fiber that our bodies need so badly. They are: bran and cereals, and fruits and vegetables, all but the last being ideal for the first meal of the day. What is more tasteful and beneficial, for example, than cereal with milk and sugar? What is more delicious for breakfast than grapefruit, sweetened to taste, or apples or pears sweetened and baked? Nearly everyone enjoys apple sauce or stewed prunes or other dried fruit with the morning toast and coffee.

Note that sugar is mentioned in connection with each one of these healthful foods. Sugar is the ideal flavor that Nature has provided, thus enabling people to enjoy the kinds of foods that are best for them.

One fact cannot be stressed too much. All growing children should eat hearty breakfasts of bone and teeth building, body developing foods such as the cereals, milk and fruits. Proper sweetening makes children relish the foods that their growing [illegible] so badly.

NEPTUNE VISITS HOOVER'S SHIP

President-Elect's Son Goes Through Initiation

ABOARD U. S. S. MARYLAND, (By Naval Radio via Washington.) Nov. 30. (US)—Casting aside all state problems of peace and good-will in his mission to the countries of South America, President-elect Hoover played today.

He participated in the ancient and honorable ceremonies of King Neptune as the Maryland crossed the equator. The forthcoming American president entered into the fun of the day in the role of a "shellback"—or one of those who has crossed the equator before. He grinned and laughed in delight at the landlubbers, pirates and beach combers, who comprised about a third of the Maryland's crew of 1,200 and members of the Hoover Peace mission.

Hoover Immune

The President-elect himself was immune from the tortures, because of the fact that he had previously crossed the equator 14 times. Mr. Hoover's record was exceeded by only one man aboard ship, his naval aide, Commander Augustine T. Beauregard, who had crossed the equatorial line 17 times.

Mrs. Hoover also was immune since she had previously crossed the equator, but Allan Hoover was subjected to the tortures to the extreme, and made up by himself for the immunity of his father and mother. He was smeared with tar, fed soap, electrically shocked, hurled into a tank of water on the forecastle and beaten by King Neptune's official "cops."

The president-elect smiled broadly as his son was put through the grill. Adding insult to injury, Allan was forced to wear his socks over his head and arms. The charge made by King Neptune against Allan was that he had—

"Attempted to burn the tonsils of his father's secretary with a magnifying glass."

Mrs. Hoover Punished

Although she was granted immunity from the hazing, a charge was brought against Mrs. Hoover of "flirting with King Neptune." For this she had to kiss the "daughter" of the bewhiskered king of the seas.

King Neptune granted a written request of Mrs. Hoover for the release of the Maryland's paymaster from the brig so that he could attend dinner with the Hoovers. The paymaster was released in custody of the president-elect's wife.

Sleuth Indicted In Murder Case

ELKHART, Ind., Nov. 30. (UP)—Harvey L. Smith, former private detective, and circus "Baker," was indicted on a first degree murder charge here today in connection with the slaying last March of Mrs. Genevieve Stultz, 31, South Bend beauty culturist, whose body was found in a lime pit near here last October.

No true bills were voted against Charles Reyher, South Bend real estate operator, his wife, Janie, Mrs. Reyher's brother and Jack Grimhall, all of whom had been held on first degree murder charges pending action of the grand jury.

The murder of Mrs. Stults followed an admitted four-year love affair with Reyher, climaxed last March when Mrs. Reyher gave Smith, private detective, $50 to scare Mrs. Stults out of town.

Smith admitted he received the $50 but declared he turned the "job" over to two strangers. Mrs. Stults was killed with a wrench and buried in a lime pit near the outskirts of Elkhart.

The body was not found for several months.

60 Persons In 'Rio Rita' Chorus

Arrangements are being made at the Majestic theater for the proper handling of "Rio Rita," the Shubert musical extravaganza, which will be here Monday night.

H. G. Hegeman, city manager of Dent theaters, also said that tickets are going rapidly, and that those who want good seats should get them at once.

The chorus billed for the city in "Rio Rita" totals 60 members, and requires considerable room as there are many costumes and costume changes.

Miss Billie Blythe, international beauty prize contest winner, heads the chorus, which includes beauty contest winners from many parts of America. Chief among these are beauties from the Atlantic City and Galveston festivals.

The show itself is a romantic musical comedy of Texas and old Mexico.

BRIDGE RULING GIVEN COUNTY

Designation of New Road Necessary

again at their meeting Monday morning.

The text of the attorney general's ruling is given below:

Ruling Quoted

"Article 2356 of the Revised Civil Statutes provides that the commissioners' court may erect bridges within the corporate limits of any city or town to the same extent and under the same conditions now prescribed by law for the construction of bridges outside the limits of any city or town. We believe that this statute is to be construed to mean that the city may erect the bridge within the corporate limits just the same as it may erect the same on a county highway, and that in order to expend money on a bridge within a city, it is necessary that the bridge be on a road or street within the city which is a part or an extension of a county highway.

"You are advised, therefore, in answer to your question that if the bridge proposed to be erected is on a street other than a highway of the county, the commissioners' court is without authority to expend county funds in erecting a bridge."

CHRISTMAS BOXES ON WAY TO FAR AWAY CHILDREN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Seventy-five thousand Christmas boxes sent by members of the Junior Red Cross of America are on their way to children of other countries.

Some of the boxes destined for such far northern countries as those in Europe along the Baltic sea, where the ice closes in early, had to be shipped from New York by Oct. 25.

The boxes are filled by school children all over the United States. Among the articles sent are hair ribbons, handkerchiefs, toys and games. Fruit and candy are barred on account of their perishable nature.

NEW ENGLAND 'PHONES OUTNUMBER ENGLAND'S

BOSTON (AP)—New England has more telephones than old England; more, in fact, than Great Britain and the Irish Free State combined.

A survey by the bureau of commercial and industrial affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce showed that these six northeastern American states had more telephones than any foreign nation in the world except Germany.

With 1,548,675 telephones in these states at the end of 1927, they had an increase of more than 36½ per cent since 1921.

Out of the 784,900 agricultural workers in England and Wales, 104,556 are women and girls.

COW TESTING CLUB PLANNED

Employment of Dairy Expert Urged

Organization of a cow testing association for Wichita and Archer counties, sponsored by G. C. McGown, county farm agent, and O. E. Barnes of the agricultural department of the chamber of commerce, will be launched at a meeting at Wipdhrost Saturday evening.

The projected association, planned for the testing of milch cows for production and for the butter fat content of milk, is backed by a large group of the leading business men in both counties. The meeting Saturday night between the two officials here and a number of Archer county dairymen is expected to lead up to a working organization with at least 26 members before the end of the year.

It is a plan of Mr. McGown to so organize the association that the entire time of an expert and all the necessary equipment can be obtained, so that the official examiner for the association can visit each herd one day of every month. The weighing of the milk and its testing for butter fat will weed out unprofitable cows from all the herds of the county, he said.

It is necessary for at least 25 herds to associate, the organizer said, in order to finance the work. He hopes to secure the co-operation of every dairyman in the two counties in meetings to be held at intervals during the coming months.

Backers of the association movement in Wichita county include: J. M. McFall, C. E. Basham, A. C. Golden of Iowa Park, E. E. Riley, Orville Bullington, J. T. Harrell, Jack Martin, Richey Abernathy of Iowa Park, the Kemp-Blair farms at Iowa Park, Jasper Ferguson, Frank S. Welty, Reeves Ogerby and W. F. Palmer of Iowa Park.

Mexico to Seek Debt Agreement

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 30. (US)—Barring a last minute change in the plan, which is deemed improbable, Senor Luis Montes de Oca, who at midnight tonight, ceased to be secretary of finance and public credits, will during the first days of December go to New York in connection with Mexico's foreign debt question.

He will be accompanied by Senores Fernando Diaz Barroso and Fernando de la Fuente, high officials of the finance department, and there has been talk to the effect that the trio will be joined by General Plutarco Elias Calles, the retiring president.

General Calles will shortly become a member of the board of directors of the National Railway Lines, and is expected to serve as president of that corporation.

The occasion for the presence in New York of these leaders in Mexican federal finance is the expiration of the interest-deferment feature of the Lamont-Pani pact on the last day of this year. A new agreement will have to be negotiated with the bankers committee. Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who will be in New York during December, will be one of the men interested in the negotiations, though it is not known yet, what will be his role.

It is reliably understood that the Mexican officials will propose to the bankers committee an independent agreement on the debt of the National Railways, the finances of which need a thorough reorganization, in order that much-needed credits for new rolling stock and other equipment may be established. Should it be difficult or impossible to secure a loan for the railway, the Mexican government will have to undertake rehabilitation of the lines with its own revenues, asking in that case that interest-deferment on the foreign debt be extended another five years.

Maricle Warns of Postal Congestion In Opening "Mail Early" Campaign

The Christmas "mail early" campaign opened here in earnest Friday when O. P. Maricle, postmaster, released his first placards of the year urging the people to do their Christmas mailing early.

The Christmas mailing rush which has been steadily climbing each year in Wichita Falls is expected to be heavier this year than it has ever been, Mr. Maricle asserted. A larger campaign for early mailing than has ever been waged will be put on this season by postal officials in an effort to handle the heavy Christmas postal service effectively.

Early mailing will aid the public and postal officials in lessening the rush, and persons who can do their mailing several days before Christmas will encounter far less trouble in dispatching their packages, Mr. Maricle asserted.

The sub-post office for handling Christmas packages has not been definitely located but the downtown building will probably serve as the annex.

Ward County Well Promoted By Wichitan May Open New Field

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 30. (AP)—Oil has been struck on Ward county, Texas, land owned by S. F. Hayslett, of Graham, Mo., who has charge of Herbert Hoover's 80 acre Missouri farm.

John Shipley of Wichita Falls, Texas, who is promoting the well, was here today to discuss conditions with Kansas City men who are interested. Oil men believe the well, which has been shut off at 135 barrels a day, has opened up a new pool.

RIVAL FOR PRIZE WELL BROUGHT IN

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 30. (AP)—Pecos county was believed today to have in the making a rival to the prize well in the field in the Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 11-C Yates, which flowed 200 barrels of oil in five minutes through two four inch lines.

The well was completed at 1,175 feet, but will not be given a proration test until three six-inch flow lines have been laid and storage tanks installed.

The present record for the field is 5,335 barrels an hour, or 128,048 barrels daily, by the Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 5-DA Yates.

Negro Makes Bond In Accident at Electra

Oscar Wynne, Electra negro charged with negligent homicide in the fatal injury of David Price Beaty in Electra 10 days ago, was released from the county jail under a $300 bond Thursday. Mr. Beaty, a Wichita Falls man, died Wednesday, Nov. 21, as the result of injuries sustained when he was struck by a truck driven for an Electra oil concern by Wynne.

SHERIFF NABS LIQUOR PLANT

100 Gallon Still and Mash Seized

Search of the grass and brush on a farm seven miles southwest of Iowa Park Friday afternoon resulted in the seizure of a 100 gallon still and 300 gallons of mash by Sheriff W. G. Brailey and members of his force.

The mash was destroyed and the still brought into Wichita Falls. The place was deserted at the time of the raid Friday afternoon, and no arrests were made. The name of one man involved is to be turned over to the district attorney for his action.

The still, which was in operation, was unprotected from the elements and from both the animal and vegetable kingdom, Sheriff Brailey said. He suggested a glance at the condition of the mash as a cure for excessive thirst.

Bernard Shaw Tells 'Em About Banquet

LONDON, Nov. 30 (US)—George Bernard Shaw, who aroused the ire of a Scottish minister a short time ago by answering a dinner invitation in a manner not calculated to turn away anger, got in a few pertinent remarks anent the habit of drinking alcoholic beverages at banquets when invited to a festival dinner tonight of the New Health society.

Declining the invitation, Shaw wrote on the back of a postcard:

"No, hang it all! Not a dinner—a fast if you like. But what congruity is there between new health and an old dinner? A festival dinner, too!

"Do you expect to see me sit there the sole sober man present, watching you all running up doctor bills. Society will be laughed out of existence."

ELECTRA OIL WORKERS HURT

Pair Thrown From Truck In Avoiding Crash

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 30.—Charles Smith, 43, was critically injured, and his companion, Bill Strawn, was less seriously hurt, when they were thrown from a truck in which they were riding about 10 miles south of here today.

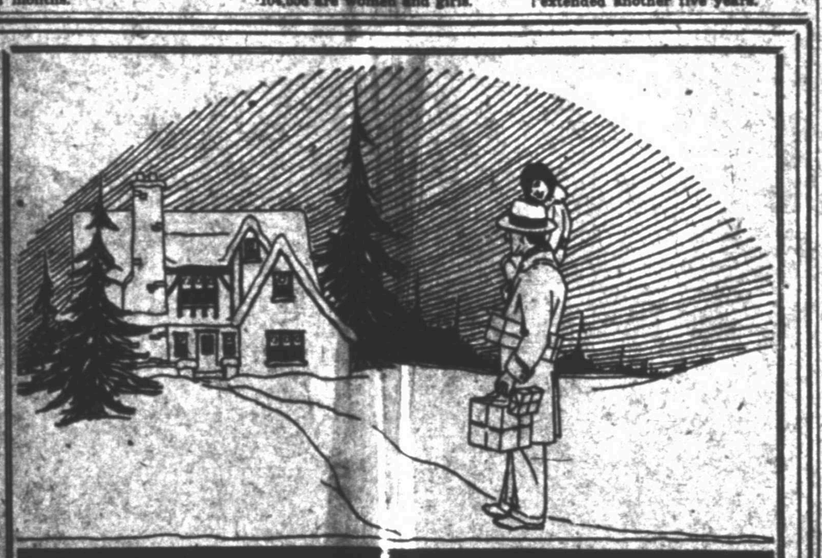

The driver of the truck, a heavy oil field vehicle, swerved to avoid crashing into a ditch, throwing the two men, who were riding in the rear, to the pavement.

An ambulance brought the pair to the Parmley-Ogden hospital here. Physicians said Smith sustained a fractured skull, and regarded his condition as critical. An examination of Strawn revealed he was not so seriously injured, they said.

The men were returning from the oil fields in which they are employed. Smith is married.

That inch by inch fight through traffic, that incessant shifting of gears, that slow grind at five miles an hour—are "fast going". Not for your car, but for your motor! Every shift to first and second gear ordinarily made necessary in slow-moving traffic represents high motor speed and low car speed—an uneconomical ratio that "eats up" the gas.

A motor made powerful and smooth by Magnolia Anti-Knock Gasoline clears through traffic with less effort on your part and with fewer gear shifts. This means greater economy of operation.

A better fuel that gives you "stay-in-high" power, that's Magnolia Anti-Knock Gasoline.

COLD WEATHER DRIVING

During winter, both Magnolia Gasoline and Magnolia ANTI-KNOCK Gasoline are specially refined to give quicker acceleration than summer gasolines. It is still advisable, however, to have carburetors adjusted for winter driving as suggested by car manufacturers in their instruction books.

Have you changed to winter oil? Have the Magnolia Man drain crank case and refill with the correct grade of Magnolene Motor Oil, the Dependable Lubricant.

One Minute Pulpit

Prepared by
DR. FLOYD ALLAN BASH
Pastor, First Christian Church

"Thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my church." Matt. 16:17.

Christ is the builder of the church. He is its one foundation. "Other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Christ Jesus." Christ's precious gifts to humanity are all entrusted to his church. Christ-like lives are the "living stones" with which He builds the superstructure. Jesus believed he could depend upon the loyalty of Christian men. He builds the church with them.

"We are all blind unless we see that in the human plan.

Nothing is worth the making if it does not make the man;
Why build these cities glorious, if man unbuilded goes?
In vain we build the world unless the builder also grows."

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—In Chambers street, just off Broadway a policeman of the mounted squad has left his sleek, handsome bay at the curb, quite unsecured. Immovable as a human sentinel, the perfectly trained, intelligent police horse is the center of a group of 20 or 30 people, all ages and sizes. All want to stroke his polished flanks or pat his velvety nose. Some feed him—an apple or a lump of sugar. It's astonishing how many people in New York go about with such tidbits for police horses tucked away in their pockets. There are thousands of such folk—literally.

The tableau in Chambers street is duplicated a hundred times throughout Manhattan alone in the course of the day. When the lunch hour comes to the teeming thousands in the industrial districts of mid-Manhattan, west of Broadway, you will see many such groups around those beautifully disciplined horses of the mounted squad. Some thing on the East Side. Same thing in Harlem. There are no finer looking horses anywhere outside of a horse show, and not many even in a horse show among the equine aristocrats to excel the workaday nags of the mounted men. People love them. They are probably the favorite animal of the average New Yorker.

The odd thing is that there are so few of them. The people are so accustomed to seeing the mounted squad on duty—escorting great dignitaries with all of the dash and machine-like discipline of the regular cavalry; riding the fringes of a vast crowd as they assist the foot traffic men; stationed at traffic intersection points as they help guide the un-ending currents of humanity seeing them all over the city, in fact, that most people have an idea that there are many hundreds of mounted policemen. They have a notion that there is a sort of regiment of them, divided up for service in various parts of the city.

* * *

The truth is, there are only 225 mounted men in the whole police department of more than 12,000 officers and men. That will amaze a great many folk who are accustomed to admiring the clean-cut riders and their clean-cut steeds, but that is the figure supplied by no less an authority than the commander of the police cavalry himself, Capt. James P. Meehan, chief of the mounted squad. With scarcely enough men and officers under him to make up four troops of cavalry, Captain Meehan must so dispose his force as not only to take care of the severe traffic problems of congested Manhattan, but also to guide traffic and safeguard life and limb in all of the other boroughs. There is probably not a military commander anywhere who must spread his force more thinly over a greater territory. The mounted squad is an indispensable unit of the police department, though twice its present strength is needed.

Gas Bomb Suspect at St. Paul Arrested

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 30. (AP)—John J. (Joe) Courtney, sought since last August as one of the four gas bomb bandit suspects in the $20,000 armored money car robbery here last August, a part of which loot was returned to surety companies last week, was arrested here today.

A few hours before Courtney's arrest, police began an investigation into reports that a county official had participated in the negotiations by which a large part of the $20,000 was returned to surety companies.

Fine—If It Lasts

PAYNE WHITNEY dies and leaves an estate just under $200,000,000 in value. Thomas Fortune Ryan dies and leaves an estate that will total somewhere between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000. Yet neither of these men was considered among our richest citizens.

Whatever our national failings may be; however far we may have fallen short from the ideals of our forefathers; there can be no question that we are an unqualified success at making rich men. Year by year new Titans of finance arise. The list that is headed by the Rockefellers, the Fords, the Mellons, the Fishers and the du Ponts grows longer each year.

It hasn't been such a long time since the mere fact that a man could amass half a billion dollars would have made many Americans very uneasy. We used to feel that such concentration of wealth would tend to extinguish our liberties. We didn't like to see men get too powerful.

That old fear is gone completely. Perhaps we have learned that rich men do not abuse their power, or, perhaps, we don't care quite so much about that word, liberty, as we used to.

This growth of vast fortunes has had its effect on all of us. The accumulation of money is first in our minds. The magic word, prosperity, is the greatest word in our vocabulary. What if some men are getting so rich that they are rising above and beyond the law; haven't the rest of us got automobiles and radios?

It is only natural that we should feel that way. After all, our fathers and grandfathers didn't have too easy a time of it in this world. The era in which the ordinary man takes it for granted that he will always have a warm home and plenty to eat, to say nothing of a few luxuries on the side, doesn't go back more than a couple of decades. Mr. Hoover's "abolition of poverty" war cry could never even have been taken seriously at any time or place but twentieth century America.

So long as the general level of everybody keeps rising we shall keep this mood of satisfied acceptance. But suppose, just once, that our prosperity some day should go to smash. Suppose the ordinary man should suddenly find that the common comforts of life were not his by divine right but only by sufference from above. What then? Would the country still be as complacent about its super-millionaires?

You may answer that one to suit yourself. So long as the ball of prosperity keeps on rolling, increasing in size with every revolution, everything is going to be lovely. But let the ball once stop rolling—well, the country might see a bit of excitement.

The Well-to-do Waitress

A WRITER in the current Golden Book announces that waitresses in New York restaurants are far more prosperous, as a class, than their sisters in the more "genteel" profession of stenography, accountancy and the like.

Tips bring the lowly waitress up into the prosperous class. In some restaurants, it is stated, girls even pay for jobs, so lucrative are the collections of dimes and quarters from grateful customers. The waitress may be only a menial while she's on the job, but when her work is finished she's right well to do.

Waitresses who make $40 or $50 a week are not uncommon, says the magazine writer. The average stenographer, on the other hand, takes in between $20 and $30.

We're not sure just what the moral of all this is; perhaps, considering conditions of work and social standing, the two jobs average about even.

Chain Stores to Grow

A TREMENDOUS increase in the size and scope of the chain store is predicted for the immediate future by Prof. James L. Palmer, of the University of Chicago's School of Commerce and Administration.

It will not be long, according to Prof. Palmer, before there are many chain store aggregations doing an annual business of more than a billion dollars apiece. The independent retail store, however, will not disappear, he says, although it will change its business methods radically.

"Fighting fire with fire is the only way in which independents can compete successfully," he says. "Chain store competition can only be met by matching chain store efficiency, or by organization to secure the advantages of mass merchandising."

Amundsen's Medals

ROALD AMUNDSEN'S vast collection of medals has been sold to defray the debts of his estate. He died in debt; and his medals now go to the King Frederick university at Oslo, Norway.

It is a rather melancholy thing to think about. Amundsen was one of the giants of his time; yet, when he died, he left nothing tangible to settle his estate except a collection of medals and decorations.

However, we need not waste much sympathy. Amundsen's name is secure enough. Medals, after all, are only things that serve to call attention to unusual exploits; and Amundsen's record will be remembered long after the medals have been entirely forgotten.

ON YANKEES, CELERY AND POLITICS

It is nice to have friends who have friends, even if one's friends' friends are Yankees, because Yankees are useful in a great many ways. They are industrious, thrifty, sometimes liberal, but usually wrong in their politics. However, this piece is not about politics. It is about celery, and celery is more practical. Mr. H. W. Norwood has a friend in Kalamazoo, Mich., how or why, not being explained. But he has a friend in Kalamazoo and this friend sent him a whole case of fine celery for Christmas and Thanksgiving consumption. There was entirely too much celery for the various Norwood households, so Mr. Norwood brought a whole bouquet of celery to the pastor of this column. It was splendid celery and helped out a lot at the Nabers Street boarding house.

BIRTH CERTIFICATES AND FOOTBALL

To prevent disqualification of whole teams through ineligibility of one or two players, an Amarillo News reader suggests that the interscholastic league require every high school football player to present a birth certificate prior to the opening of the playing season in substantiation of his age.

That naturally brings on a question that is very pertinent indeed; to-wit: Have you a little birth certificate in your home?

Chances are, you haven't. It's a little detail that parents seldom [illegible] very few physicians attend to. Every birth should [illegible] proper authorities.

—Abilene (Texas) Daily Reporter

During the summer, Jonifer takes Gerane and his nephew, Peter, to Edelweiss on a pleasure jaunt. They are disguised as gypsies. While there, they see Starcourt acting as the escort of the princess on her return to the palace. One look at Gerane's face, when she sees Starcourt, tells Jonifer that she loves him. Peter arrives at the same conclusion, and is none too pleased, for he secretly loves Gerane. However he knows he can never marry her, for not only was his father, Jonifer's half-brother, of illegitimate birth, but he himself was born out of wedlock. Jonifer, being the legitimate descendant of the Duke of Droon, who was made an outlaw, many, many years ago, after his attempt to seize the throne, exercises his prerogatives as head of the family in a way that the son of his deceased illegitimate half-brother often finds distasteful. Peter instantly becomes jealous of Starcourt, who, according to a spectator, is about to undertake the extermination of the bandits in the Forest of Droon and has been made a colonel, for he has voluntarily undertaken the task.

Urged on by his mother and his brothers, who hate Jonifer, Peter contemplates a revolt against his uncle's authority.

Jonifer, who, on learning that Gerane is in love with Starcourt, makes some secret plans that involve the soldier, takes a trip to Mosor. On his way home, near the Asphain border, the stage-coach is held up—not by his men however. The arrival of a troop of soldiers results in the capture of the robbers. The incident serves to inform Jonifer that Starcourt, with 4000 picked men, is in the Forest of Droon to run down the Davos band, no matter how long the task keeps him there. Jonifer and his companions,

John Crispe and Jonifer Davos quietly disappear that night and make their way home, realizing that the situation is too serious to permit of their running the risk of capture.

Jonifer's return puts an end, for a time at least, to Peter's thoughts of rebellion. The chief's next move is an attempt to capture Starcourt in a surprise attack at night. He is defeated, however.

Later, coming upon Starcourt while he is swimming in a mountain pool, Jonifer captures him. The colonel's men believe him to be drowned.

Meanwhile, he is among the robbers in the valley, free to do as he pleases, but unable to escape.

Jonifer tells Gerane that he has captured Starcourt as a birthday present for her. The bandit chief takes it for granted that the soldier will fall in love with his daughter and that they will marry. He is amazed when Gerane, in a fit of rage, says she will marry Peter—anybody but the soldier.

When Starcourt at last makes friendly overtures, Gerane repulses him.

Jonifer, acting on a suggestion of one of his lieutenants, who informs him that Gerane has killed a hawk that Starcourt had hoped to train as a carrier-bird, and thereby get into communication with the outside world, tells his daughter that he is going to have Starcourt executed.

Gerane, although she is not fooled by Jonifer's threat, says the soldier is not to be shot—that she has decided to have his life that he may instruct her in English.

While the Graustark authorities are still making frantic efforts to recover Starcourt's body from the pool in which the soldier was supposedly drowned, the minister of police, Baron Dangloss, is informed by one of his men, Peter Corpaz, that the Countess Jabassy has in her possession a famous diamond that was taken from a Russian princess in the Forest of Droon by Davos' men. The deserter also says that the count and countess are living on a scale that is far beyond their means and asks where the money comes from. He says that he believes the count and countess to be Davos' confederates.

INSTALLMENT 24

And so it was that the fingers of the law began to grope in the dark for something tangible to clutch. It was a slow, sometimes seemingly hopeless process. Corpaz, shrewd and resourceful as he was, could not put one of these fingers on a single spot that was sensitive to the touch; a less dogged man would have given up in disgust. But something told him that he was on the right track, and it was this strange something that would not listen to him when he attempted to convince his own reason that he was wrong. The Jabassys became an obsession with him.

His investigations were being carried on with the greatest secrecy. No one save Dangloss was aware of his activities, and the baron, to whom he reported every detail, was now convinced that Jabassy and his wife were engaged in some shady enterprise, if not in conjunction with the Droon Forest robbers then most certainly with another organization of unsavory character. Corpaz's persistent inquiries developed incontrovertible proof that the count had lied about his successful operations at Monte Carlo and elsewhere. But even so, lamented Corpaz, how was he to discover the source from which these frequent indications of opulence were derived, without actually drawing the information from the gentleman himself?

At last the detective, baffled at all turns, but more than ever certain that he was on the right scent, resorted to a daring expedient: that of representing himself to be a messenger from Jonifer Davos himself.

Assuming a disguise that would have deceived his own wife—if he had had one—he set about to carry out his plans. They were simple enough, but they called for the greatest skill in execution. Success or temporary failure depended on the outcome of the experiment. Without knowing precisely why, he selected the countess as the one on whom the test was to be made. Perhaps it was because he knew that, while women are infinitely more crafty than men, they also are the more easily duped by the plausible.

The Countess Jabassy left her house in Prince Rudovic street one morning just as a huckster was passing, his cart laden with an assortment of tempting, out-of-season fruits—pears, grapes, peaches, and plums. He brought his cart to a stop, took off his shabby hat, and obsequiously petitioned her to buy of his luscious stock.

"I do not care for any today," said she, but her eyes glistened a little as they swept the delectable heaps.

He held up a great bunch of purple hot-house grapes.

"From Southern Italy, madame," said he, his white teeth showing in a most engaging appealing smile.

She was tempted. She paused to examine the contents of his cart.

"They look delicious. Take your cart to the postern gate and summon——"

The strange behavior of the huckster caused her to break off the sentence at that point. He was leaning well across the cart, ostensibly to direct her attention to the stack of pears; and he glanced furtively up and down the street, in a most extraordinary way, then he spoke to her in a low tone.

"Madame, I would have a word with you. I am not what I seem. I have come with a message from one you know well."

She stared at him.

"Are you speaking to me, my good man?" she inquired, drawing back a little. Was the fellow crazy?

"Pray examine these peaches, madame," said he hastily. Again his voice was lowered: "It is important, madame, that I recite to you the message I am commissioned to deliver."

It was a gambler's chance he took. He watched her closely.

"This is most extraordinary," she said coldly. "You have made a mistake, my man."

Corpaz experienced a sudden exultation; for, instead of walking away, she continued to inspect the fruit, her head lowered, her fingers busy.

"I have been cautioned about making mistakes, madame," he said calmly. "You are the Countess Jabassy. I am to deliver a message to you or the count. Time is short. I have not been successful in catching the count alone, so—"

"You are very mysterious—and interesting," said she, lifting her eyes to his. "If you have a message for my husband or me, perhaps you will tell me who it is that sent you to us."

"Is it necessary for me to mention names, madame?" inquired Corpaz. "What more do you require than the statement that, if I should make a mistake and speak to the wrong person, my life would not be worth a puff of smoke."

A citizen approached, walking briskly. The countess was examining the grapes as he passed. Needless to say, Corpaz's blood was surging, albeit his pallow, pinched face betrayed not the faintest trace of excitement.

"Where do you live?" demanded the countess abruptly.

"I came from Droon Forest," said he, at a chance.

Her eyes narrowed, as if she were trying to read what was written on his brain. She was silent for a long time, but not for a second did she take her gaze from the face of the huckster. Inwardly he gloated. The ruse had succeeded.

"Droon Forest? I do not know any one in Droon Forest, my man," she said, puckering her brow thoughtfully.

He rubbed an apple vigorously with the palm of his hand.

"It is a very beautiful wood, madame, but an evil place. We who abide there know that it is ruled by a man known as Jonifer Davos."

It was a quick thrust. He observed the almost imperceptible dilation of her eyes. Risking everything, he struck boldly.

"One of Jonifer Davos' men has proved to be a traitor, madame. There was a reward of 10,000 rubles for the discovery and return of a certain blue diamond. This man promised to divide the reward with one of his comrades, in return for information as to its whereabouts. After his flight, this comrade weakened and confessed to his chief. And now, madame, as I see that you do not care to purchase any of my fruits, I will go about my business. Permit me to wish you good—"

"One moment," interrupted the countess. "I—I have not finished looking at your fruits."

Her sudden pallor rejoiced him.

"I would not take too much time, madame, in examining my worthless stock," said he meaningly.

She made a heroic effort. "Why should I be concerned in the affairs of Jonifer Davos and his—"

He cut her off sharply. "That is for you to decide, countess. I have performed my duty. There is no more for me to say. Pardon me, if I go about my business."

"If you will take your cart around to the gate——"

"It is not my mission to sell this truck," he interrupted, quite uncivilly. "The most important object I have in life at this moment is to get outside the walls of Edelweiss before it is too late. If Peter should happen to come here to consult the police——"

"Peter?" she gasped. "You do not mean Peter Davos?"

He had used the name Peter at random. It was with difficulty that he suppressed an exclamation of triumph.

"Peter is enough," he said gruffly, as if regretting an unfortunate slip of the tongue.

"But——wait! Have you nothing else to tell me? Surely there must be something more that——"

"My instructions were to speak to you or the count about the blue diamond and to tell you of a traitor's intention to secure the reward. That is all, my lady." He hesitated a moment and then said with a most engaging smile: "I am sorry I cannot tempt you with my pears and grapes and peaches today."

With that, he made off up the street in a leisurely fashion, huskily calling his wares. Out of the corners and hurry into the Jabassy mansion. It pleased him to observe that her pace was swifter and less dignified than one would have expected in an aristocratic lady well along in the fifties.

The smile of Peter Corpaz was beatific as he hurried along with his cart. For the first time in his life, he thanked his stars that his parents had christened him Peter.

While Baron Dangloss was astounded, he was not slow to act upon the revelations of his star operative. Within 10 minutes after Corpaz concluded his report, half a dozen men were on their way to the Jabassy house, armed with an official warrant summoning the count and countess to the tower for examination.

"There is no doubt about it now, Corpaz," he said. "They are in league with Davos. Now to squeeze the whole truth out of them. By gad, man, do you realize what this means? After all these years, we may be on the point of solving the puzzle of——"

"Do not be too sure of that, sir," interrupted Corpaz uneasily. "We have had experience with members of Davos' band. I could mention eight or ten of them who went to the scaffold or block without squealing. Others have shot themselves when wounded or surrounded. The Jabassys may be of the same timber. You do well, sir, in not losing a moment's time in bringing them here."

"She is a remarkably clever woman, and he is no fool. You may be sure they will defy us. We have very little to go on, you know. Coming down to facts they have only to keep their mouths closed and we are done. We haven't an atom of real evidence against them. She is smart. Our hope lies in striking while the iron is hot, before they have a chance to steady themselves. Naturally, they will be frightened. For all they know, the informer is with us. They may even conclude that he has revealed the whereabouts of Jonifer Davos and that our men are on the move to apprehend him. Gad, when I think that it is we who are in the dark, and not they, I could——. But no, it is not a laughing matter, Corpaz, so I must importune you to forgive me if I keep a straight face."

"I most respectfully forgive you," said Corpaz drily.

MORE DEFENSE ROBBINS PLEA

War Official Says U. S. in Bad Shape

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (UP)—The United States is without a specific national defense plan upon which it can rely in case of emergency, Assistant Secretary of War Robbins said today in his annual report.

He suggested appointment of a board to draft a specific project for the defense of this country "from attack by any enemy or coalition of enemies which might arise."

"Such a project should take into account our geographical isolation, the present size of our army, the strength of our man power and the stage of our industrial development," Robbins said.

Time Is Factor

"It should give consideration to the time needed for training troops, the initial rate of production of munitions, the period required for industry to come into mass production for war and the necessary war reserves of finished articles and raw materials."

Such a plan is the "crying need" of the war department, he declared.

Robbins also suggested steps be taken to draft plans for industrial mobilization in time of war the same as the department has plans for mobilizing man power.

Arrangements should be made to provide the nation with a sufficient war reserve of munitions and raw materials, he said.

"Although 10 years have passed since the war, little real progress has been made toward placing our war-reserve stocks on a sound, enduring basis," he revealed.

Steps Against Famine

Steps also should be taken to prevent a famine in strategic raw materials in case of a national emergency, Robbins said. Funds have been asked for research along this line, he explained.

A materials procurement program for war is lacking in present defense plans, the assistant secretary of war reported. He termed previous efforts along this line as impracticable.

"There need be and can be only one complete plan for industrial mobilization," he said.

"That plan should be based on the maximum demands that may fall on industry in any war likely to occur. If an effective plan is made for procuring maximum requirements, there will be no difficulty in producing less."

Columbia Prof Denies Spreading Propaganda

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP)—Professor John Dewey of Columbia university, noted for his philosophical writings and teachings, denied today he was a propagandist for Communism as charged at the American Federation of Labor convention at New Orleans.

The convention voted to strike from the record references to Dr. Dewey. Tribute was paid to him as "the leading educational authority in America."

Later Matthew Woll, fourth vice president of the federation, referred to him as "a propagandist not for special interests but for Communist interests."

TWO MEN SURPRISED TO READ ABOUT THEMSELVES

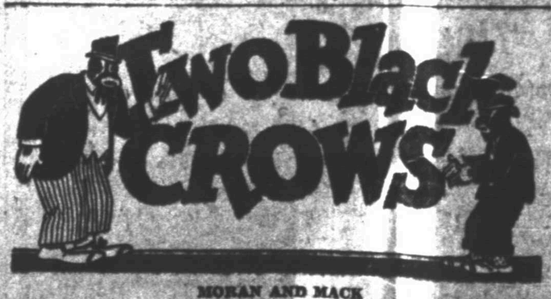

POST CITY, Texas, Nov. 30. (AP)—Two men reported to have participated in a jail break at Fort Stockton yesterday have been in Post City for the last week, Leon O. Moses, county attorney, said here today.

"J. P. Bridges and Howard Savage, who are under $7,000 bond on charges of cattle theft, were extremely surprised to learn that they had taken part in a jail break at Fort Stockton," Moses said. "They have been in Post City for a week or more to my knowledge, and the first they knew of the jail break was when they read of it."

Moses said Van Finchum was the only Post City man who had been in jail at Fort Stockton at the time of the break. Finchum was reported to have escaped.

Moran—You's a mighty smart man, ain't you?

EXTRA SESSION CAN BE FORCED

Proponents Have Means of Getting What They Want

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (UP)—A campaign to force an extra session of congress next summer is dominating the legislative situation as senators and representatives assemble today for the opening of the lame duck session of congress Monday.

The campaign was started by Senator Borah, leading campaigners for the Hoover-Curtis presidential ticket, and has spread to bloc in the senate and house in the face of objections from the nominal leaders. It has grown so steadily that the leaders now fear their legislative program may be interrupted so an extra session will have to be called.

If they choose, the bloc can delay one or two appropriation bills and other necessary legislation which is vital to the conduct of government business, thus compelling the calling of the extra session to obtain action on these left-overs.

Borah said he would not be a party to such a move. He informed the United Press today he would confine his activities to public speeches advocating the extra session to obtain action on farm relief. But at the same time he expressed doubts as to whether he can get a final vote on the Kellogg anti-war treaty which he believes may have to be handled in an extra session. Others following Borah may not be reluctant to take the step which would make the extra session necessary.

The rumpus started when President-elect Hoover announced during the campaign he would provide farm relief before the next harvest and to do this he would call an extra session if this session failed to offer the necessary relief. Now Hoover is cruising in South America while his leaders are arguing what he meant by "adequate relief." One side takes the view that the newly revised McNary-Haugen bill to promote co-operative marketing will meet Hoover's demand. They are preparing to thrust this bill through in the short session, believing no extra session will be necessary. The other side, led by Borah, says there can be no farm relief without tariff revision and everybody knows there is not time to revise the tariff before this congress expires March 4.

No effort is being made to communicate the difficulties to Hoover who could straighten them out with a word as to what he would consider "adequate farm relief."

Leaders of both factions says they will wait until he returns to the United States in mid-January.

Criticism Fails to Worry Mr. Britten

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (UP)—Apparently undismayed by unofficial government criticism of his move for an Anglo-American parliamentary conference on arms limitation, Chairman Britten of the house naval committee predicted today calling of such a conference in view of favorable foreign press comment on the idea.

"Unless the conference is called before 1931 the two governments may spend millions of dollars for needless competition in naval armaments," Britten said.

"There is no rift between England and America and there need be no military competition between these nations.

"People of both nations desire the governments to get together on a limitation agreement and their desires must be recognized.

"I intend to do everything to prevent useless expenditures for armament. If these two governments are real friends let them prove it."

Contest on Selection Of Curtis' Successor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Possibility that a contest might develop in the selection of a successor to Senator Curtis of Kansas as Republican leader of the senate developed today when Senator Jones, of Washington, announced he would accept the post if it were tendered to him.

HOPE FOR KING ALL BUT GONE

Day's Developments Send Optimism Away

of building up a ravaged frame strained by 10 days of exhaustion.

The most optimistic newspapers now say that "the stage has not yet been reached when the danger of a possible turn for worse has been left behind."

Today's issue of the British Medical Journal, organ of the British Medical association, says:

"While the specific treatment appears to have some effect in controlling the force and intensity of the infection, such measures cannot of themselves bring it to an end. Our study of the bulletins up to the time of going to press leads us to infer that the infection force is gradually spending itself, and with the maintenance of the patient's strength we may look for a favorable issue, though dramatic signs of improvement are unlikely."

It is difficult to transmit over the cables the story of the hours of anxiety this morning when the papers were waiting for the deferred bulletin, and when the news editors of the afternoon sheets were confronted with the exigency of no word from the palace, and the crowds gathered around the points where the bulletins are usually distributed, waiting for some word.

Rumors Spread

From Fleet street to the city the rumor spread: "He is dying." The financial district heard it and for an hour there was a distinct buying slump. Then came the delayed bulletin saying that the "time for possible exacerbation of the infection has not yet passed," which sent people to their dictionaries to find the definition for exacerbation.

One afternoon paper explains: "Exacerbation means an increase in malignity or violence."

Perhaps the most dramatic thing the ailing king did—he is not used to doing dramatic things—was his gracious letter today to "Old Kate," the race card seller at Kempton. Of all the solicitous inquiries regarding his health from premiers and potentates of world chancelleries, old Kate's was the only one personally answered, so far as is known.

It appears that the king read how the old woman who used to sell him race cards en route to Ascot and Epsom had hobbled to Buckingham palace to inquire as to his majesty's health. So today the king instructed Major Featherstonehaugh, manager of the royal stables and acting palace stewart, to write Kate an appreciative letter and deliver it personally.

Her Only Treasure

Kate jealously guards the contents, saying:

"It is all the treasure I have."

Prayers for the recovery of the king are being said around the world in scores of languages, regardless of creeds. Jerusalem dispatches say Chief Rabbi Cook has composed a special prayer which is being chanted at the wailing wall, where a short time ago Arabs rioted during the passover festival. The primate of the Irish protestant churches has issued a prayer to be used throughout protestant Ireland.

The English churches in the Straits settlement, China, South Africa and elsewhere are holding special intercession services. A Tientsin dispatch tells of the unusual spectacle of the homes of British residents being illuminated at 4 a. m. because that is the hour when the night bulletins from Buckingham palace are received by wireless.

Lloyd's insurance against the king's death before Dec. 31 stood at 20 guineas to 100 today, but only small contracts, amounting to not more than $2,500, were accepted.

Universal Service learned that the majority of the west end dealers in what are known as "luxury stocks" already have insured themselves against loss in case of court mourning.

Meanwhile, the Prince of Wales still was at Dar-Es-Salaam today awaiting transportation aboard the cruiser "Enterprise" which will carry him on the first leg of his journey back to England. It is now believed the cruiser will reach Dar-Es-Salaam Saturday night, instead of Sunday as was formerly the prospect.

Tickets are going a mile a minute for "Rio Rita," the greatest of the new musical comedies Wichita Falls will have a chance to see this season. It will be at the Majestic Monday night.

◆ ◆ ◆

The day's best laugh was when a man asked if "Rio Rita" was a movie. A newspaper reporter told him it was not a movie, a circus, a minstrel show, an accident, a new kind of fruit, or anything but a musical comedy which has the definite history behind it of two years in New York. If any one thing means success in a show, a run of more than six months in New York means it.

◆ ◆ ◆

Lots of ballyhoo stories about charity and beauty on the part of movie queens are published. Here's one the average newspaper would decry as the rankest kind of publicity, but it is, however, a definite fact as told to the writer of this column by his mother, who is a lifelong friend of the manager of the Los Angeles county farm where several thousand poor are cared for. Mary Pickford visits the farm regularly, as well as at Christmas. She does it quietly. The inmates all know her. She visits there with her secretary and finds out what the poor at the farm want, as places of that type provide the necessities and not the luxuries of life. Miss Pickford's secretary takes individual notes. Most of the women want corsets, and most of the men want house slippers. No one knows why they want these particular items, and no inquiry is made. Each one gets exactly what he or she asks for. The size is correct. The style is the exact style asked for. Even the color is the color requested. With each gift, Mary includes a little personal gift or memento.

◆ ◆ ◆

This brings to mind the fact that Mary and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, are two of the best behaved people in the movie colony. Nothing is ever said against them, and their own home town people like and respect them because they mind their own business and don't get into continual "jams" in order to get publicity.

◆ ◆ ◆

"Peck's Bad Boy," the Lillian Murry and Elmer Wright musical tab show at the Olympic, got off to a good start, and will close with the Saturday night performance. Elmer and Lillian will have a new bill Sunday.

◆ ◆ ◆

Corrine Griffith is opening Saturday at the Majestic theater in her newest picture, "The Outcast." "Hot Scotch," a MacDuff comedy, is also a part of the program.

Dr. Lang's Election As Archbishop Of Canterbury Arouses Objections

LONDON, Nov. 30 (US)—A surprising incident occurred today during the course of the solemn ceremonies attending the confirmation of the election of Cosmo Gordon Lang as archbishop of Canterbury, at the Church of St. Mary le Bow, Cheapside, when a question of the ancient formula was asked:

"Has anybody any objection to offer against the election of Cosmo Gordon Lang?"

Three Objectors

Three spectators rose and said that they had. The objectors were J. A. Kensit, Capt. John William Barron and Rev. Edgar George Bowring, representing the Protestant Alliance. Their objection was on the score of Dr. Lang's "unfitness to rule" because of his stand taken recently in the prayer book controversy and because recently Dr. Lang, in conjunction with the house of bishops, declared himself in favor of the policy that the bishops, in the "exercise of their legal or administrative discretion shall be guided by the proposals approved in 1928 by the house of convocation and the church assembly.

The three Protestant objectors, in other words, represented the bitterness left by the recent struggle between the reformers and the supporters of the "Anglo-Catholic clergy." But the action of these representatives of the Protestant Alliance had already been dealt with in the vestry room when the ecclesiastical court had considered and dismissed the written charges which had previously been submitted.

Right Denied

So when the objectors answered the formal question put to the Bishop of London from the church chancel, the bishop replied:

"The judgment of the court of royal commissioners, having given due consideration to the objection laid against the election of Cosmo Gordon Lang by you, finds that it relates purely to the fitness or unfitness of the archbishop-elect for that office. You nowhere profess to question the fact of his election. This being so, the commissioners rule that they do not establish the right of you to appear to be heard during the business of confirmation, and they so order and decree."

The archbishop-elect then subscribed to the "oath and declaration" as the 97th successor of St. Augustine to the Canterbury See and Dr. Lang became in fact Archbishop of Canterbury. His enthronement will occur in the Canterbury cathedral next Tuesday.

He was removed to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital. A woman was questioned by the police and was released. His condition is not serious, it was said at the hospital.

NEW AIR LINE OPENS DEC. 16

Accident Brings Delay In First Trip

Christening of the new Stinson Junior cabin monoplane and the initial round trip flight to Dallas by the air line being instituted by the Wichita Falls Air Transport company has been postponed to Dec. 16, according to announcement made Friday by Fulcher Armstrong, president of the company.

Postponement of the air line opening was caused by the breaking of a feed line from the carburetor to the motor of the new plane shortly after it had risen from the ground Thursday evening. The plane was piloted by Dudley Rider, accompanied by Joe Staley, son of J. I. Staley, and two of his friends, as passengers. The plane had attained very little altitude and when the motor died it glided to a successful landing in a field a few hundred yards from the hangars. No damage to the plane nor injury to any of its occupants resulted from the mishap.

An order for new carburetor for the ship was wired Thursday evening to the Stinson Aircraft corporation, and Mr. Armstrong stated that the new part should arrive here before Monday.

Christening of the "Faith" had been set for Saturday morning, and was to be followed immediately by the first flight of the new line.

It was also announced Friday that Fort Worth has been included on the air route, with the Municipal airport at that place selected as the terminal for use of the Wichita Falls planes. Passenger rates will be the same as those announced for the Dallas trip, $31 for round trip, or $16 for a one way ticket. During the 15 days intervening between now and Dec. 16, the new opening date, opportunity will be given local people to secure tickets in advance, tickets being on sale on the 12th floor of the Staley building and at the airport office.

Confessed 'Slayer' of Furnace Girl Flaunts Noose and Signs His Story

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 30. (UP)—Ezra McVeagh, alias James Kelley, 25-year-old deserter from Selfridge Field, Mich., placed himself today in the shadow of the hangman's noose.

Unless he is proved insane, his signing of an official confession that he threw Elfrieda Knaak into the police station furnace at Lake Bluff, Ill., is sufficient to condemn him, according to Lieut. T. D. Drake, provost marshall at Fort Sam Houston. Lieutenant Drake said that the man has been placed in the psycopathic ward of the station hospital and is under observation.

McVeagh was arrested Monday when he told William K. Kneer of the military police that he was A. W. O. L. from the Michigan flying camp. He will be tried on this charge. Military authorities say that if civil officers request, his presence in Illinois, he will be turned over to them.

In addition to his statements that he burned Miss Knaak, he said in his confession that he may be wanted by the Lake Forrest, Ill., police in connection with the murder of a woman whom he said he hit over the head with a wrench in an attempt to rob her.

New Pipe Line Solves Three Year Water Problem for City of Quitaque

Special to The Record News.

QUITAQUE, Texas, Nov. 30.—The Panhandle Construction company has made connections with the six-inch water pipe from the city water well two miles northeast of town and water is being pumped through the six-inch pipe into the standpipe. An abundance of water is now available to customers over the city.

The problem that has been confronting the city of Quitaque for more than three years is now settled. Quitaque now has enough water to supply all the towns for a radius of 30 miles around. It is estimated that the bountiful supply of water will be worth more to Quitaque than most any enterprise that could be promoted here. It is a positive fact that a town or country cannot build without water.

The city is being underlaid with six and eight-inch water mains along certain streets, with a fire-plug at certain street intersections. With the organization of a volunteer fire department, the fire insurance rate will be lowered.

If the city council will regulate the water rate to a liberal minimum charge and encourage the citizens to use much water, in planting trees, shrubbery and flowers as the spring times approaches, this will tend to beautify our city. Many citizens have neglected planting trees and flowers on account of the water situation, as they reasoned the water supply was not sufficient to maintain the life of the trees.

Jailer Ends Honeymoon of Couple

Bride "Stands By" Husband on Charge

Following her young husband to Borger, where he is held on swindling charges, a Wichita Falls bride Friday went back over the same road the two traveled last week in the new car that caused all the trouble.

Finding his old car too dingy for his bride, the groom last week stopped at Borger to trade it in on a brand new one. The difference amounted to $200, for which the groom promptly gave a check. Then the pair, motoring luxuriously, drove on to Wichita Falls for a visit to the bride's parents.

According to the facts alleged in charges against him, the young man had paid the difference with a worthless check. Telegrams from Borger arrived just in time to put the groom in jail over Thanksgiving. Late Thursday afternoon officers called at the office of Constable Frank Morgan and claimed the prisoner and Friday morning the bride caught a train, determined to stand by in defense of her husband.

Wichita Falls Invitation Before Methodist Convention Committee

The commission on location of the general assembly of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, meets in executive session at Memphis, Tenn., Saturday through Monday, and at that time it is expected that some action will be taken on the invitation issued some time ago for the next general assembly to meet in this city, it was stated Friday afternoon by Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church.

All the local Methodist churches joined in the effort to bring the 1930 convention to Wichita Falls, and the invitation filed with the commission on location was issued with the official approval of the mayor and city council. The chamber of commerce also is lending its support to the movement, it was said.

The general assembly of this denomination is usually attended by about 900 official delegates from all over the world, besides several hundred persons who attend without credentials because of an interest in the assembly's proceedings. The 1926 gathering was in Memphis, Tenn.

DALLAS WIDOW WINS TAX SUIT

Wilson Trust Freed Of $47,000 Assessment

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (US)—The Wilson syndicate trust of Dallas, Texas, today won its appeal against added assessments of $47,817.97 in income and profits taxes for the years 1921, 1922 and 1923.

In making the added assessments, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair erred in holding that the organization should be taxed as a corporation rather than a trust, the United States board of tax appeals decided. Therefore the additional assessment need not be paid.

The Wilson syndicate trust embraced the estate of J. B. Wilson of Dallas, who died in 1920 leaving a community estate of more than $2,000,000.

The widow, Mrs. Laura D. Wilson, declined to accept her legacy as provided in the will, but claimed her community interest instead. The court then appointed a commission to make a partition, Mrs. Wilson receiving one-half of the estate. The widow later executed a trust deed which conveyed her part of the property to a trust in order to provide for her five daughters, Mrs. Mabel Richards, Mrs. Fay Munger, Mrs. Bess Schoellkopf, Mrs. Lucile Pattullo, wife of George Pattullo, the author, and Mrs. Mabel Richards.

J. Fred Schoellkopf and Ray Munger, sons-in-law, were appointed trustees, but they resigned a year later and the City National bank of Dallas accepted appointment as successor trustee, having served ever since.

Meanwhile, considerable of the property covered by the trust deed was sold when advantageous conditions presented.

Mussolini Points To U. S. in Arms Plea

ROME, Nov. 30. (US)—Premier Mussolini let forth another militant burst today in a letter he wrote General Ugo Cavallero, former under-secretary of war.

In his letter, Il Duce emphasized the nation's necessity for adequate armaments. He wrote:

"We have done a great deal, but we must do more, seeing that despite the sublime Kellogg pact, all the world—not excluding Mr. Kellogg's own country—continues arming."

HASKELL SHERIFF HERE

Sheriff Al Cousins of Haskell was a visitor at the Wichita Falls police station Friday night. He came here from his home and was on his way to Dallas on business.

Three Motorists In Impromptu Convention

Three local motorists had quite a "get together" Friday night when the trio succeeded in running their automobiles together at Avenue G and Fillmore street.

The occupants of the three cars escaped uninjured from the triple wreck but their vehicles were badly damaged in the crash.

The trio was arrested by Elmer Thornton and Fred Fountain, city officers, and booked at police headquarters for "negligent collision."

BRYANT WINS DAMAGE SUIT

Wilbarger Man Awarded Damages Here

Damages totalling $4,561.58, the exact sum asked, were granted Claude Bryant, Wilbarger county workman, in his suit against the Maryland Casualty company in the United States district court Friday afternoon.

Mr. Bryant was injured in an accident on the Gulf-Colorado highway in July, 1927, and a partial and increasing paralysis has resulted from a hurt to his spine, according to his petition and testimony.

The plaintiff was in the employ of J. F. Poty and earning a little more than $30 a week at the time of the injury, he said. He told the jury he had been struck in the back by a gravel truck as he stooped in his work of leveling the highway.

Settlements and motions for continuance in civil suits were accepted by Judge W. H. Atwell during the remainder of the session Friday.

Wichita Pastor Ends Services Here Sunday

Rev. David Rees-Jones, pastor of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church, will close his service with that church Sunday, Dec. 2, making his farewell appearance before the congregation at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night.

Rev. Rees-Jones resigned his pastorate of the Presbyterian 15 in order to accept a call to the church at Borger. He came to Wichita Falls in August, 1927, from Anardarko, Okla.

The church in Borger was said to have been organized about a year ago, and to have a membership of 125. Rev. Mr. Rees-Jones with his family plans to leave next Thursday for his new field.

Burk Runaway Girls Get Hungry And Now They're Back at Home

An attempt to secure food from a refrigerator in a residence here Friday afternoon led to the arrest of two 11-year-old girls who ran away from their homes in Burkburnett Thursday.

The girls told police that they came to Wichita Falls after leaving home and spent Thursday night in a local rooming house. They entered the residence in quest of food Friday afternoon but fled when their mission was discovered by the owners of the house.

Police were called but failed to locate the warward hunter in their investigation of the case. They told police that they hid behind a rock near the house and witnessed the search after they were discovered strolling down Ninth street a short time later by W. P. Belcher, city detective, who arrested them and turned them over to local juvenile officers.

According to statements of the parents of the two young ladies, this is their second attempt to leave home within the last two weeks. Their other escapade was thwarted when they were discovered in a town in Oklahoma and returned to their homes.

Wilkins Fails To Take to Air But Weather Is Fine

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Nov. 30 (Via whaler Hektoria and G-ARD, San Francisco Examiner radio station)—Today has been the first fine day this expedition has found in the antarctic. But despite strenuous efforts, it forced another postponement of our effort to take to the air.

From 3 o'clock this morning until tonight we have slaved against heavy odds trying to get off. The treacherous ice shore, however, proved too much for us. But we hope tomorrow to succeed in the effort we were forced to postpone today.

Everything looked fine, but Deception island is well named. Conditions, changing every day, continue to deceive us. Before we can fly again we must fit out waiting airplane with skiis and take gasoline ashore in motor boats.

MOCK WEDDING TRICKS GIRL

Deserted Wife Tells Story To Officers

Charges of bigamy were filed against a man, age 38, Friday afternoon after a girl, scarcely 18, described to members of the district attorney's staff a mock marriage which took place in Electra 12 months ago.

The young woman, still with the rounded face of a child, told officials of happening upon evidence of her supposed husband's former marriage just a few weeks before her baby was born.

"I don't understand legal papers, but I could see that we had been married three months before he got his divorce," she said. "I found the papers in his pockets when I was getting ready to send his suit to the cleaners."

She talked of traveling from place to place with the man she thought her husband, and of how on one occasion he had struck her with an automobile crank when she protested against his attentions to other women.

"He left me before the baby was born last April," the girl told officials. "He promised to send money, but he didn't. I wired him when the doctors said the baby was dying. He answered:

"I'm sorry but I can't help it' and didn't send money for the funeral."

Following her desertion, the girl had brought her baby and returned to her home in Electra, she said. The man, at 38, had been married four times, according to her story. Officials here expect an arrest within the next few days.

TIRE THIEVES LAND IN JAIL

Three Youths Caught By City Officers

Three alleged young tire thieves were landed in jail 30 minutes after an automobile had been robbed of a casing Friday night. The youths were captured by police, who enlisted the aid of the owners of the pilfered car.

The three youths, who appeared to be around 20 years of age, had been seen taking the tires from a truck owned by F. L. Cruse of 1313 Seventh street, but escaped before they could be stopped. Mr. Cruse and J. E. Splawn gave chase but lost them in the downtown section traffic.

They came to police headquarters to report the theft and were in front of the city hall when the trio cavorted down Ohio avenue. They overtook the youths at Seventh street and the railroad tracks and J. B. Flenniken and Ellis Summers, city officers, arrested the three.

A stolen tire was found in the automobile and identified by Cruse. The three were quite indifferent to questions asked them by the police and one, who had a half pint of whisky in his possession, declared that he would like to take another drink before it was confiscated when Flenniken drew the liquor from his pocket.

A bed spread, valued at $15, was taken from a clothesline at the residence of Mrs. L. S. Mills, 1205 Burnett street, while two tires and tubes were reported to have been stolen from E. H. Taylor at 610½ Eleventh street.

A bicycle owned by Robert Williams was reported to have been stolen from 1705 Bridwell street.

Psychic Causes of Disease

The human mind has many powers which we are just beginning to understand. It is intimately connected through the brain and nervous system to every part of the human body. We know that the mind can have a powerful stimulating effect toward either health or disease. When the mind is properly used and controlled, health may be maintained under many adverse conditions, but when the mind is torn by conflicting destructive emotions, it kills the very cells it is supposed to guard over and control. Some of our thinking is conscious, but by far the greater part is unconscious and can only be felt through our emotions.

When one is happy or enthusiastic, one can digest a meal of rich foods in wrong combination and suffer few bad after effects; if one is depressed, sorrowful or worried, even the best of foods may lie heavily upon the stomach.

In health the normal wastes from tissues are expelled quickly, because they would otherwise be poisonous to the body, but when the nervous system is run down or upset, one lacks the needed vital force to expel them. So you can see that anything which you do to waste your nervous force will cause a retention of these poisons and their gradual accumulation may lead to serious disease.

Distressing mental states cause an almost immediate stoppage of all the processes of digestion and seriously interfere with the working of the bowels, liver and kidneys. Harmful emotions, such as fear, criticism, malice, jealousy, hatred and worry will squander the vitality to such an extent that they are frequently followed by bilious attacks, headaches and other symptoms of autointoxication. These unpleasant symptoms are almost immediately stopped if one can fill one's self with joyful thoughts of friendliness, courage and love.

The powerful, unpleasant emotions always results in a toxic poisoning of the body. In many cases they result in actual disease and there have been a few instances where sudden death has ensued from these causes. It is said that the famous surgeon, Vesalius, while dissecting a woman, was so affected by seeing her heart still faintly beating as he was cutting through the tissues of the chest that he immediately dropped dead, and it is also said that Louis of Bourbon dropped dead from horror as he witnessed the exhumation of his father's corpse.

You must realize how potent the mind is as a factor in the production of many chronic disorders. Sometimes this process is so insinuating as to be unrecognized except by the closest attention of a skilled diagnostician. In my practice, I have seen a number of cases of paralysis which were induced by a slight injury associated with fear. Although these patients had been to many different doctors and undergone many different types of treatment, they were not cured until this fear factor was recognized, and then the cures took place almost instantly even in some cases of years' standing. This is undoubtedly the reason for some of the so-called miracles that occur during religious revivals. The real source of the disease being psychic, the cure takes place as soon as the afflicted one's mind has reached a high enough pitch of exaltation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Sallow Look

Question: Mrs. R. E. M. writes: "Kindly explain why my 3½-year-old child is getting a sallow look about her. It's not sunburn or tan from being out, but a horrid yellow color. She seems to be in good health though."

Answer: Your child is undoubtedly suffering from some serious disorder for it is uncommon for such a young child to become jaundiced. You must have her carefully examined at once and not depend on any general information which I can give you through this column.

Chronic Appendicitis

Question: Mrs. E. R. writes: "I have had chronic appendicitis for seven years. And each year it is getting worse. Is there anything I can do in a medical way to keep from an operation?"

Answer: You are doubtless suffering from colities or inflammation of the colon. Your appendix would also be inflamed but this would not necessarily require an operation. Do everything you can to correct the colitis, and the chronically inflamed appendix will respond as well as the rest of the intestines. The treatment is mainly dietetic, but you must remember that it is necessary to stay on a strict diet for months and even a year or two before the colon will be completely restored to its normal condition.

Hardening of the Arteries

Question: Mrs. H. writes: "Please outline treatment for woman 65 apparently in good health, who has hardening of the arteries, a little short of breath when climbing stairs and (what seems) a regular heart-beat in the ear, noticeable only when lying down."

Answer: This woman is no doubt suffering from high blood pressure which is caused by hardening of the arteries. Have her take a fast of about a week on plain water, with the addition of a little lemon, orange or grapefruit juice if desired, then put her on a diet free from all starches and sugars.

FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By WALLY SCHANG

Walter H. Schang—they call him the Prince of Wales, as he was born in Wales, N. Y.—is one of the leading catchers in baseball. Wally has played with a half dozen of the bigger leagues, and in 1917 the Red Socks paid 60,000 perfectly good shekels for his contract. He is now one of the New York Yankees.

"On our training trip to the south last spring," Wally told me, "we had a layover in a small town, and were hanging around the little station. An old negro man drove up with a goat that was to be shipped north. He lifted the goat out of his delivery wagon and turned the animal over to the station agent.

"The station agent was about to bill him, but seemed to find great difficulty. He turned to the darkey. 'What's this goat's destination,' he asked.

"'Suh?'

"'I say what's his destination? Where's he going?'

"'Oh,' replied the colored man, 'I writ on a tag that's tied around his neck.' And he began hunting for the tag. A bit of frayed cord was all that remained.

"'Well, dat ornery goat!' exploded the darkey. 'He turned to the agent. 'You know, suh, dishere ignorant goat has done completely et up his destination!'"

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP)—Early advances inspired by relatively steady Liverpool cables were followed by declines in the cotton market today under liquidation or realizing and some Southern selling. January contracts sold off from 20.79 to 20.37 and closed at the figure, with the general market closing easy at net declines of 24 to 32 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 5 to 10 points on covering or rebuying by recent sellers, while there appeared to be some trade or commission house demand promoted by the steady showing of Liverpool over the local holiday, and better reports of a good business in cotton goods. December sold up to 20.92 or within 2 points of last Tuesday's high prices, while May advanced to 20.70, making net gains of about 10 to 14 points on the active months.

The initial demand was supplied by some Southern selling, and realizing at these figures, however, and the market turned easier with prices reaching the lowest levels of the day in the late trading. After the early demand subsided the buying seemed to be chiefly in a moderate way on scale orders with much of it attributed to covering, while there was a good deal of liquidation, relatively speaking. Except for some Southern selling at the start and again toward the close, offerings from that source were not much in evidence on the decline which sent the price of December contracts off to 20.46, and May to 20.29, or about 40 to 44 points from the high level of the morning.

Last prices were at the lowest on the more active positions.

Reports reaching the trade here from the goods markets claimed that sales for the week would run considerably in excess of production and that November business would probably turn out the best for any month this year. These advices seemed to have comparatively little effect on the immediate market, however, and reactionary sentiment was more or less in evidence based, apparently, on the rapidity and extent of the recent advance. The heavy into-sight figures for the week seemed to be attracting considerable attention and may have increased the disposition to liquidate long contracts on the late decline.

Private cables reported trade calling and covering in the Liverpool market and reported a fair inquiry from the continent and South America for cotton cloth in Manchester with yarns firm. Exports today 23,272, making 3,679,438 so far this season. Port receipts 64,637. U. S. port stocks, 2,312,645.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30. (AP)—Cotton prices worked lower today under renewed liquidation by the long interest who sold on the uncertainty attending the final government crop estimate due Dec. 8 and some short selling on the reactionary theory. January contracts after advancing to 20.17 ultimately declined to 19.78 and closed at that figure net 32 points lower, the general market closing steady at net declines of 29 to 35 points.

The market opened steady in response to higher Liverpool cables and first trades showed advances of 7 to 16 points. Prices continued to advance for a brief period after the start on some buying prompted by the unfavorable weather in the belt and the higher cables. January sold up to 20.17, March 20.07 and May 20.19, or 10 to 11 points above the close of Wednesday.

The demand appeared supplied at the moderate gain, encouraging liquidation by longs who desired to even up for over the week-end and in advance of the government crop estimate. Some traders sold on the theory that a reaction was due in advance of the final estimate and by noon January sold at 19.86, March 20.04 and May 20.00, or 19 to 28 points below the highs.

During the afternoon the market continued to rule easy, the decline gaining momentum when the weekly statistics proved to be bearish, the movement into sight being rather large and the visible supply showing a considerable increase. All active positions made new lows right at the end with March closing at 19.85 and May 19.79, or 40 to 42 points under the highs, and 29 to 31 points under the previous close.

Stock Market Active But Irregular When Banks Call $50,000,000 Loans

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (US)—Banks called $50,000,000 loans, putting the call rate to 10 per cent from renewal of 8 per cent and influencing greater irregularity in another active stock market, today.

Profit taking, added to short selling, halted the advance in most of the recent favorites so that Nickel dropped 14½ points, Kennecott 4⅛, Radio 4 and Aero 7.

Montgomery Ward was the outstanding feature of strength climbing 17⅞ points further to a new high record. Packard was close behind, being taken in big blocks throughout to close with net gain of 14⅝ in new high record price territory.

Cerro de Pasco was well taken and gained over 4 points while General Electric moved up 3⅞ in a generally strong utility and power group.

New York Central stood out in a rather irregular railroad department gaining 6 points as several large blocks changed hands. Sinclair was most active in a generally quiet but fairly firm oil group. Volume ran over 6,400,000 shares with the ticker almost three quarters of an hour late at the close.

Advance Causes Worry

Further advance in the call rate caused worry that the entire month of December would witness high rates and an irregular stock market. The tighter money now, however, is largely the result of preparations for the big December payments tomorrow. Further advance in broker's loans to a new high record is no surprise. With the new investment Monday finding its way back to the street, there is likely to be easier money conditions enjoyed that will last until preparations start for the big government financing and the income tax payment due as of Dec. 15.

From the time those preparations start until after the early part of 1929, tight money is to be expected however. After the mid-month operation is concluded the banks have to prepare for the huge January 1 disbursements. In addition congress will be in short session with some representatives talking "control of brokers' loans" so the next fortnight promises even heavier profit-taking.

Hudson's strength represented the combined results of the strong technical position and desire of one group to retrieve themselves for the collapse of the last operation. There was considerable short selling following the quick breakup of pool activity a month ago.

Those who "misunderstood" and sold out found they had not made any friends by doing so and now are trying an independent operation.

Packard's ability to move ahead steadily was based largely on reports of prospects for further increase in earnings although in some quarters it was maintained that prominent motors interests were trying to get control in the market.

"Developments" Talked

Accumulation of Bush Terminal continued as did the talk of coming "special developments." Briggs was tipped again, but its abandonment by the pool a few weeks ago makes it difficult to attract a following. Deal for the sale of control of Kelvinator to a group headed by a leading stock exchange firm was reported to have been closed last week.

Profit taking in Radio followed the rumor that the long awaited recapitalization would be recommended by directors next week. Split up of either four or five for one is likely. After that a merger with Victor should be put through. The Fair responded to a special analysis of a leading firm for awhile and then met profit taking.

Early strength in Sinclair was due to realization of plans of the cotton group for expanding the company's activity.

With the increasing irregularity in industrials the attention of the best market interests was turned to the railroad department. There has been quiet accumulation of several of the rails for some time and the big ten have shown increasing interest therein.

Pennsylvania was taken on expectation that directors would authorize another increase in dividends at the next meeting.

New Haven, it was estimated would earn close to $8 a share this year instead of the $6 a share heretofore spoken of. Improvement in the carriers was fully evidenced. Car loading figures for the three weeks ending Nov. 10 showing gains of from 12 to over 15 per cent. Among leading roads.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 30. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Hog prices around the 11-market circuit were unevenly steady to 20c higher under weights generally showing the most advance. The day's extreme top of $8.50 was paid at Chicago. Total offerings were around $3,100 as compared with 22,544 a week ago and 75,482 the corresponding day last year.

Fat lambs were on a steady to strong basis with a few points reporting a light to moderate upturn. Choice fat lambs at Chicago topped at $14.25 while fat westerns at Kansas City reached $12.65. The supply approximated 55,600, an increase of 30,000 over last Friday and 37,000 more than a year ago. All markets were closed on Thursday, however, and it was a two-day accumulation.

Aggregate cattle receipts were estimated at 25,900 against 13,482 a week ago and 18,580 a year ago. Sharp advances early in the week on short fed steers resulted in a fairly liberal run of this contingent. For the week's closing market the demand was sufficient to maintain steady prices on the better grades but values on short fed offerings at some points were shaded. Packers continued bearish on slaughter cows and further losses were taken by the lower grades. Stocker and feeder classes were scarce with no material changes registered.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Colder weather, with snow, appearing in some areas toward the close of last week became a more marked influence this week, and coupled with enlarged buying of holiday goods from wholesalers and jobbers has stimulated business both at wholesale and retail. In ordinary retail lines, a decided pick-up is noted in heavy wearing apparel and furs have sold a trifle better. Retail trade in coal also was aided. In other lines, a wider buying of furniture and radio was noted, with special mention made of enlargement noted in installment lines of both of these trades. Exhibits of models of new automobiles were reported as fruitful in bringing about heavy bookings and the accumulation of a good back-log of business.

In the industries there were reports of a speeding up of steel ingot output, but at the same time, a rather less active call for various kinds of finished steel with some softening exhibited in quotations. Pig iron prices, however, were somewhat firmer. Good bookings of cars and rails by large transportation interests for next year's delivery were noted at some western markets.

Weekly bank clearings $11,609,597,000, an increase of 2.1 per cent over a year ago.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. (AP)—All-around lower prices here for grain today came about largely through sharp downturns in Liverpool wheat quotations tending further to curtail United States exports.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅜@⅝c@⅞c net lower. Corn finished ⅛@⅜@1c down, with oats unchanged to ⅛c off, and provisions varying from 17c setback to a rise of 5c.

For the most part, both foreign and domestic news concerning wheat was adverse today to friends of higher prices.

Adding to the downward trend of the wheat market here was the fact that highly beneficial crop results were expected to ensue from widespread heavy snow in domestic winter wheat territory.

Predictions of clear skies ahead did a good deal to hasten downturns in corn values. Immediate weather conditions affecting the movement of the corn crop, though were unfavorable and country offerings of corn to arrive were small. Oats were unsettled, but the market sympathized with corn weakness, especially after March oats today had scored a new high-price record for the season.

Provisions averaged lower on account of scattered selling of near-by future deliveries.

Turkey Prices Here Slump to 24 Cents

Following a marked break in the turkey market in the East, local buyers lowered their price to raisers to 24 cents Friday, and predicted that turkeys for the Christmas trade will not go above that figure. An early reduction in chicken prices also was predicted.

Thanksgiving day recess gave cotton prices a slight setback, local quotations dropping about 30 points by Friday evening to close at 18.65 offered on middling basis.

A similar bill by Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, is still in committee, but hearings are expected to be concluded at this session. Until either the Parker or Fess bill has passed congress, all final consolidations moves on a national scale are in abeyance.

Lindy's Flight Is Basis For Newest Paris Stage Play

PARIS, Nov. 30. (UP)—Paris waited with interest today the forthcoming opening of Sacha Guitrey's new play celebrating Charles A. Lindbergh's flight from New York to Paris.

The public appetite was whetted by a special dress rehearsal last night, attended by President Doumergue and other notables.

The play is in three acts and 18 scenes with unusual mechanical effects. Scenes include Roosevelt field, Broadway, the cruiser Memphis and one scene in which the Spirit of St. Louis is shown flying over the sea.

Armand Chantraine, a former waiter with marked physical resemblances to Lindbergh, plays the part of the flier. He speaks only once during the play, when he is received by President Doumergue, who is realistically impersonated by an actor. Other well known figures, such as Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, are impersonated.

A slender thread of a plot consisting of a Franco-American love story runs through the play.

Combs is defendant and said petition alleging that plaintiff and defendant were married on June 2, 1928 and lived together until on or about July 15, 1928. That prior to entering to said marriage relation the defendant repeatedly expressed and avowed his love for plaintiff but after they had been married for about two or three weeks defendant informed plaintiff that he only married her to make him a living and that he did not care anything for her and never would; that he began a course of unkind, harsh, cruel and vexatious conduct toward plaintiff and studiously vexed and insulted her, all of which resulted in the serious impairment of her health; that on account of such conduct her health became permanently impaired; that defendant was guilty of such conduct toward her generally as to render their further living together insupportable; that defendant abandoned and left plaintiff on or about July 15, 1928 and she has not heard of him since. Herein fail not, but have before said court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same. East DOES Meet West

Stanford's hard-hitting football team will flash its wares before the east in its clash with the Army, Dec. 1. Pop Warner has a new style of play in which Heinecke and Fleishhacker figure prominently. Whether it works against the Cadets will depend to a great extent on the playing of Captain Sprague and Hammack, Army's giant linemen.

STANFORD AND ARMY TO MEET

Eastern and Western Elevens Clash Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP)—The unique spectacle of the Army meeting Stanford university in a great intersectional climax to the football season in the East had sophisticated New York steamed up tonight.

Despite an all-day drizzle and predictions of rain tomorrow, a capacity crowd of 36,000 was assured for the Yankee stadium when the teams take the field at 1:30 o'clock. Not even in the bygone days of Army-Navy hysteria have New York fans registered more excitement over a football game. Conjecture as to the outcome is rampant with the teams almost exactly even in public esteem.

Stanford Has Weight

Poised for their greatest efforts in this game which brings their campaigns to an end, the Army and Stanford teams were bivouacked in quiet quarters far from the noise of Broadway. In popular interest, the coming of the Stanford eleven, the first of the great California teams ever to appear on the Eastern seaboard, has an appeal all its own.

The size of the Stanford team, with its 232-pound tackle and 220-pound quarterback, especially has caused a stir, the Californian's eleven regulars averaging 189 pounds as compared with a little more than 182 for the Army.

Linemen vs. Cagle

A goodly share of Stanford's hopes of victory rest upon its guards, Post and Robesky, the latter a married man and a father. The Cardinals' success in stopping the elusive Red Cagle, Army's all-American halfback candidate, also is expected to weigh heavily in the result.

Both Warner and Biff Jones, Army head coach, predict a close score. Each team has lost one game to date, the Army to Notre Dame and Stanford to Southern California.

Notre Dame and Southern California meet at Los Angeles and Detroit and Georgetown clash at Detroit in other important games today.

New Brick Building Planned at Quitaque

TURKEY, Texas, Nov. 30.—C. R. Seals, representative of the West Texas Utilities company was in town today and signed a contract with John Sharp, of the First National bank of this town for a lease on a brick building which Mr. Sharp is to start construction at once.

There are tentative plans being worked out now for the construction of five more business brick building to be built by the first of the year.

Rains Benefit Soils In Quitaque Region

Special to The Record News.

QUITAQUE, Texas, Nov. 30.—Rains throughout this section during the last several weeks have put the soil in good condition.

Hundreds of acres of small grain have been planted during the past 30 to 60 days in Briscoe county. Fields of grain that were sown before the rains came up to a good stand and are growing very nicely. The farmers are expecting these wheat fields to be of much benefit to their stock this winter.

BASKET LOOP WILL ORGANIZE

Commercial League to Be Formed Next Week

Organization of the Men's Commercial Basketball league for this season will be perfected at a meeting early next week, probably Tuesday night. The Commercial loop was a great success last winter, with its excellent play and close race and games were attended by large crowds.

It is likely that the league will be made up of six teams this winter, as membership in the circuit is desired by several teams. Texas Electric Service company and Hub Clothiers, champions and runnersup respectively last winter, have definitely signified their intention of putting teams on the floor again this season.

Continental Oil company, Draughon's Business college and Wichita Falls Junior college, other league members last year, also probably will be in the circuit this year and Featherstone, Hawkins and Vague Insurance company and Panhandle Oil company have indicated they will also ask for membership.

Mike Goldstucker of Hub Clothiers, a leading spirit in the league, will communicate with backers of other teams in order to set a date and place for the organization meeting.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Some divorce facts from the city of illies and wreaths, sometimes known as Chicago.

A prominent citizen of that town was playing bridge with his wife and two other miscreants.

Full of the joy of living in an age of science and research, he led an ace with all the confidence of a channel swimmer in a bathtub.

Now, when you lead an ice in bridge you are leading an ace. An ace is like the American flag or the bronze son on the Statue of Liberty. No power on earth can pull them down.

When you lead an ace in bridge you can loll back, light a pipe or even take a short nap.

There is no higher card than an ace. Unless you are playing in the Park Central.

So, imagine the consternation of the citizen when his wife reaches way back into the Dumbville guide book and poulitices a trump on that big, flaming ace.

After that, things were as quiet as a trip hammer gliding through a rush order of new farm implements.

The citizen reached over the table and slammed his wife right on the nose.

Their ridicule turned to admiration when she answered the waiter in French.

When she told the judge the facts, the judge also punched her on the beezer.

That was two punches. And she saved 15 more by not demanding a trial by jury.

The only verdict possible under the circumstances was, "Felonious and grievous bodily injury with attempt to educate."

Steamer Stands By Distressed Freighter

SEATTLE, Nov. 30. (UP)—The Japanese steamer Yogen Maru is standing by the freighter Chief Maquilla, in distress in mid-Pacific, and expects to rescue the crew of eight officers and 36 men, said a message to coast guard headquarters here late today.

The Yogen Maru reported that she was the only vessel in the vicinity of the Chief Maquilla, a Canadian ship.

The Chief Maquilla was in such condition that towing her would be impracticable, but the rescue of her crew appeared possible, the message said.

Farm Club Champions Selected at Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. (INS)—Frances Reed, 16, of Vendersburg, Ind., and Edgar Grimes, 16, of Harrisburg, Ore., were this afternoon voted champions in the National club leadership contest under the auspices of the International Livestock show.

U. S. and Canada To Plug Booze Leaks

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30. (AP)—The United States and Canada governments moved simultaneously today to crush the rum running and bootlegging rackets along the Detroit water boundary, estimated to represent a $50,000,000 a year industry.

While United States customs officials were arresting 11 border patrol inspectors on charges of accepting bribes and conspiracy to aid in the smuggling of liquor in to the United States from Canada, provincial authorities were issuing orders for closing of 30 liquor export docks in Canada border cities.

The immediate effect of the cross-fire from both sides of the border is expected to be the driest holiday in the Detroit area in years.

B. Y. P. U. Votes to Go To Longview in 1927

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Nov. 30. (AP)—The 1929 convention of the Texas Baptist Young People's union will be held at Longview, in East Texas, it was decided just before conclusion of today's session. November 28, 29 and 30 were chosen as dates for next year's assembly.

A constant stream of telegrams poured into the committee room from Longview all day, urging the union to be its guest next year.

Longview's victorious delegation was led by Dr. John L. Wharton, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Fourth Bank Opens Doors in Turkey

TURKEY, Texas, Nov. 30.—Mr. L. C. Edwards of Terrell, Okla, opened the Farmers and Merchants National bank of this city for business this week, making two banks for this town.

The children will choose real presents if you let them look over the Shop-o-scope first. Beginning Dec. 1 in the classified section.—Adv

YANKEES' FOES SEEK STRENGTH

American Loop Clubs Buy And Draft Players

By BRIAN BELL

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP)—American league baseball clubs are busy preparing an offensive against the world champion New York Yankees in next year's campaign.

As the other seven clubs go about their winter scheming, the firm of Ruppert, Barrow, Huggins and Co. is actively fortifying its own defenses against impending attack.

The St. Louis Browns, who came from nowhere to third place last season, and the Washington Senators, with Walter Johnson presiding, have added more players than any other American league clubs since the 1928 record was compiled. Manager Daniel P. Howley has drafted two players, purchased eight, recalled three and signed a free agent who may be the best of the new crop. The Washington Senators got two additions by draft and brought or recalled 12.

The Yankees claim third place in the new talent lineup without the aid of a drafted player. The champions bought five, recalled the same number and ordered two previously purchased players to report in the spring.

The Athletics, Red Sox and Indians have been content to increase their player lists by five each. The Detroit Tigers are in the middle ground with nine additions and the White Sox have taken on seven.

St. Louis drafted Oscar Estrada, a pitcher, from Shreveport and made it a battery by claiming catcher Harvey Johnson of Greenville in the South Atlantic association.

Among the purchased players are two former Major League pitchers, "Slip" Collins from Toronto and Claude Jonnard from Milwaukee. Pitcher Herbert Cobb, first baseman George Stanton, outfielder Tom Jenkins, infielder Ed Roets and pitcher John Buvid have been brought from Wichita Falls. An addition from New Haven is catcher Ike Danning, also purchased from Wichita Falls. Dick Ferrell, who caught for Columbus last season, was signed as a free agent.

Washington got two players in the draft, third baseman Gooch of Little Rock and pitcher Archie Campbell of St. Paul.

The Yankees have no drafted players; but they have purchased catcher Jorgens and pitchers Craig and Thomas of Oklahoma City, pitcher Ed Wells, Birmingham and pitcher Gordon Rhodes, Hollywood.

Lary and Reese, purchased from Oakland a year ago, will report in the spring, and pitcher Sherrid, Montreal; outfielder Byrd, Albany; outfielder Funk, St. Paul; outfielder Cooke and shortstop Chapman, Asheville, have been recalled.

Detroit has bought outfielder Roy Johnson from San Francisco, outfielder Eckhardt of Amarillo, pitcher Barnes and shortstop Schulte of Houston, outfielder Petrie, Beaumont; first baseman Sherlock, Seattle and catcher Hayworth, Shreveport. New players by the draft route are first baseman Dudley Branom of Louisville and shortstop Frank Bigafoos of Seattle.

The White Sox claimed John Kerr, a second baseman from Hollywood, by draft. Purchases included outfielders Walwood, Shreveport and Clarence Hoffman, Sacramento; catcher Mesley, pitcher Frazier and infielder Jeffries of Dallas and pitcher Robert Weiland of Moline. Jeffries spent the 1928 season with Akron. Weiland pitched the last game of the season for the Sox against the Athletics and permitted but four hits while he was forcing nine to miss the third strikes.

Cleveland, failing to get a player in the draft, went out and spent large sums of money and some good minor league prospects. Outfielder Dick Porter was bought from Baltimore and Earl Averill, another outfielder, from San Francisco. Pitchers Clint Brownhof, Harrisburg, and James Moore of Little Rock were bought as was third baseman Reinhols of Winston-Salem.

Hal Rhyne, former Major league infielder, claimed from San Francisco, is the only player snared by the Athletics in the draft and only pitcher Shores of Wichita Falls outfielder Lebourveau of Milwaukee were recalled. Two purchased players are pitchers Bolen of Baltimore and Wingard of Milwaukee.

Al Weil Makes Boxing Promotion Highly Successful at Small Clubs

He Cares Nothing If It Is Good Match—"What Do You Think It Would Draw?"—Is His Only Concern

By DAMON RUNYAN

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—In an altruistic age with reference to the sour sciences, Mr. Al Weil is the only jobbie of my acquaintance who remains truly practical.

Introducing Mr. Weil. Stand by.

Short. Podgy. Wide across the middle. Slightly hebraic. Promoter.

Mr. Weil on the spur of the moment, and Mr. Walker wouldn't agree to refrain from hitting Mr. Weil on the chin.

Withal, Mr. Weil is one of the most successful of the smaller operators in the sour science. He makes little clubs pay that never paid before.

You can see why. While other promoters are thinking of what a great spectacle they are going to give the clients, Mr. Weil is concerning his noggin with what will be in the house. The sour science, with Mr. Weil, is a business, not a pleasure.

Add monickers;

"Hot Horse Benny."

"O. K." Coakley.

Both New Yorkers. The former so-called because he always has a red hot tip on a horse. His right name is Benjamin Cramerston.

John Coakley, slim, dapper young cafe owner and Broadwayter, got his monicker from his readiness to "O. K." blokes who need "O. K.-ing."

The "Copper Holler"

I reckon, as we say down around Dover hall, in Georgia, that the murder of Arnold Rothstein mirrored dear old Broadway, a street that knows no friend, about as accurately as any incident of recent years.

It produced many a "copper hollerer."

A "copper hollerer," my comrades is a person, male or female, or the genus tattle tale.

Scratch the average Broadwayter, and you'll hit into the hard surface of a metallic shield.

I ran into Willie Jackson, once one of the greatest hitters among the lightweights, the other day. He showed me pictures of his little youngsters, and handed me a business card. He is connected with a paper company.

"I'm doing all right," Willie said. "I'm not asking anyone for anything."

He rose to his greatest fame the night he flattened Johnny Dundee in Philadelphia. Jackson must have made $300,000 in the ring. He was always in demand. What they call a good club fighter. He pleased the clients.

Troubles of one kind and another broke him. He had to make a new start after he got through fighting. His right name is Oscar Tobler. He was the pugilistic pride of the New York ghetto in his day. He can't be much beyond 30 right now.

JACK SHARKEY SEEKS CROWN

Boston Heavy Plans 'Comeback' Campaign

BOSTON, Nov. 30. (UP)—Rounding into fighting form after an injury which kept him out of the ring for three months, Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight contender, announced today he intends to engage in at least one bout a month in his campaign to prove his claim to Gene Tunney's vacated title.

Sharkey will return to the ring at Boston, Dec. 10. He was under contract to box for the Arena A. C. when he injured his knee in training, and he wishes to keep his agreement.

Another meeting between Sharkey and Jim Maloney is in prospect for the Boston garden if Maloney defeats Johnny Risko in their bout here Nov. 30. Maloney has been winning steadily during the past six months and is again a big drawing card in Boston.

Jack Will Fight Anybody

Sharkey has agreed to meet Tom Heeney, Johnny Risko or any other heavyweight named by Tex Rickard in the latter's heavyweight elimination tournament and will make his first appearance in New York in January.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, entertains hope for another Sharkey-Dempsey bout. In a recent conference Rickard told Buckley Dempsey preferred another bout with Sharkey than any of the other contenders. The last Sharkey-Dempsey bout drew a gate of $1,000,083 and Rickard told Buckley he believed another meeting would attract a million and a half gate.

Fitzsimmons Seeks Go

Floyd Fitzsimmons, Detroit promoter, who claims to have talked over a Sharkey-Dempsey bout with Dempsey, has approached Buckley for Sharkey's signature. Fitzsimmons' plans call for a bout to be held at Windsor, Canada, to avoid the Heavy government tax in this country. There is only a 25 cent tax on each ticket in Canada regardless of the price of the ticket.

"I will sign for another Sharkey-Dempsey fight when any promoter can show me Dempsey's signature on a contract," Buckley said, "and not until then."

Sharkey is now in training in a local gym after a month of outdoor work in the New Hampshire mountains.

MILK EXPERT GIVES TALKS

Dr. H. A. Harding Tells Of New Tests

Newer and more certain methods of testing milk are being explained to Wichitans by Dr. H. A. Harding, chief of the dairy research division of the Mathews Industries, Inc., of Detroit.

The methylene blue test, which milk experts now declare to be more accurate than the bacteria count tests, was explained Friday in an afternoon's conference at the Producer's creamery.

Friday night Dr. Harding addressed the Wichita County Medical association at the Wichita General hospital. Saturday he will be at the Lehrack plant part of the day and in the office of the city milk inspector in the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium part of the day. At 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon he will make an address to milk producers, dairymen and the general public in the Memorial auditorium.

Dr. Harding stopped in Wichita Falls on his way to the annual convention of the Texas State Milk Dealers' association in Dallas next week where he is scheduled to address that convention.

TERRACE WORK AT ELECTRA

McGown to Give Farm Demonstration

Farmers of the Electra trade territory will be given an opportunity to observe the methods and benefits of terracing in a special demonstration to be given early next week under the supervision of G. C. McGown, county farm agent.

Forty acres of the Mike Hartsmangruber farm, three miles north of Electra, are to be worked and terraced with the help of a tractor and a Corsicana grader. The work will require a full day for completion, Mr. McGown said.

"Terracing prevents washing and conserves moisture" the county agent explained. "There should be thousands of acres of terraced farm lands in Wichita Falls. This is the third demonstration ever given in the county, and I hope the small acreage now so treated will constantly increase."

A large group of neighboring farmers are expected to watch the work and listen to an explanation of its benefits.
