Three announce they plan to run for another term

Three local Democrats announced Friday afternoon that they will run for re-election in the March primary.

Though the first day to file as a candidate is still two weeks away, County Clerk Frances Billingsley, District Clerk Elois Pruitt and Peace Justice Wanda Rushing said they want to announce their intentions now, to prevent confusion.

"I had considered not running, and told some people that I might not, but I have received a lot of encouragement," said Billingsley, who has worked in the county clerk's office since 1951. "I really enjoy the opportunity to serve the people of Scurry County and would like to continue."

Billingsley served as deputy county clerk from 1951 until 1972, when she was named chief deputy clerk. She filled that role until 1988, when she was elected to fill out the term of Beverly Ainsworth. Billingsley then ran unopposed for a full term in 1990 and took office in 1991. She is seeking her second full term as county clerk.

Pruitt has worked in the district clerk's office for 16 years, most of that time as chief deputy clerk. She was elected district clerk in 1991 and has served one full term.

"I would like to thank the people of Scurry County for the support you have shown me while serving as your district clerk," she said. "I have enjoyed this first term as your elected official and I would appreciate the opportunity to serve another full term."

She is the wife of Dr. Franklin Pruitt. They have four children, Deborah Boyd and Cecile Kerley of Snyder, Kyle Pruitt of Arlington and Kevin Pruitt, who is in the Navy at Silverdale, Wash.

Rushing has been employed in the justice of the peace's office since 1978. She was elected as peace justice in 1991.

"I appreciate the opportunity you have given me to serve as your justice of the peace the past three years," said Rushing. "I plan to seek a second term for this office in the upcoming election."

A Snyder resident since 1961, she is married to Avon Rushing, retired Santa Fe Railroad employee. They have two children, Randall Rushing of Lubbock and Debra Almond of Odessa.

The filing period opens Friday, Dec. 3, and runs through Jan. 3 at the county courthouse. Early voting won't begin until Feb. 16. The election is March 8.

Other Scurry County offices up for election in the March primaries include that of county judge, currently held by Bob Doolittle; Precinct 2 commissioner, held by Roy Idom; Precinct 4 commissioner, held by Jerry Gannaway; and county treasurer, held by Charlie Bell.

Monday...

County to consider EMS pact

Scurry County commissioners court is expected to approve an agreement with Snyder EMS for continuation of emergency medical services in Scurry County.

The regular meeting of the commissioners court begins at 10 a.m.

Shifting of the oversight to the county from the city was part of a city-county agreement worked out last summer.

Scurry County citizens should see no change in the way ambulance service is provided. Perry Westmoreland, current contract operator, will continue in the same capacity.

Ambulance service, jail, 911 dispatching and fire protection were included in an intergovernmental contract agreed to by the city and county last summer.

The agreement was written in such a manner so that little if any funds would change hands between the two entities.

Members of the newly-appointed airport zoning board will be administered the oath of office. The board includes two persons appointed by the county and two by the city. The court earlier appointed Joe Bass and Bill Hibbs. City appointments are William H. Milton and Mark Workman. The four appointed members will select a fifth person who will serve as chairman.

Also on Monday's agenda is a request to close a road in precinct four. The court will also consider a health insurance plan for county employees.

Other action items include four line-item transfer requests and one budget amendment. The court will also review the minutes of various committees and boards.

On college campus...

'Henry IV to open Thursday

A four-day run of part I of William Shakespeare's "Henry IV" will begin Thursday in the Western Texas College Fine Arts Theatre.

The play will feature an elaborate multi-level stage and "plenty of action," said WTC drama director Mike Endy.

The action will include swordplay, which required several weeks of "fighting lessons" for the cast.

Actors will be using 15-pound swords constructed of steel. The players have learned choreographed fights, but Endy noted there is always a danger when using actual weapons. To prevent cuts, costumes have been made with long sleeves and trousers and the actors have worn heavy gloves.

"Henry IV" is about the rebellion of Henry's son, Hal, who spends most of his time drinking in taverns.

During the time of the play, King Henry's countrymen are rebelling against the crown with the country torn by civil war. It is this basic conflict, plus the conflict between father and son, which is the play's central theme.

The run will include 8 p.m. performances Thursday through Saturday and a Sunday 2 p.m. matinee. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students. WTC students are admitted free with college identification.

Civil trial to start Monday

Some 100 prospective jurors have been summoned for possible duty Mohday in 132nd District Court.

Scheduled to begin is a suit filed by Debra Gene Grice and Jimmy Allen Grice against William Halpain, doing business as the Texan Restaurant.

Grice and her husband are seeking damages following injuries she says were sustained while employed there.

The suit says Grice suffered personal injury on Feb. 20, 1991 when the commercial oven she was attempting to light exploded. The suit contends that the oven was "dangerous, defective and unfit for use."

Halpain was owner of the North College Ave. restaurant at the time of the explosion.

District Judge Gene Dulaney will preside, and jury selection will begin at 9 a.m.

Scouts set for food drive

Local Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts are getting set for the annual Scouting for Food Drive, scheduled throughout Scurry County on Saturday, Nov. 20.

Last year's effort collected more than 8,400 pounds of non-perishible food, accounting for over half of the county's food bank needs for the year.

All the food is distributed locally through the food bank at Gentle Dove Ministries.

Plastic collection bags will be inserted into Tuesday's edition of the Snyder Daily News. On Thursday and Friday, Scouts will be distributing bags to other selected areas.

Citizens are asked to place canned goods and other non-perishible food items in the bags and place them outside their homes at or before 9 a.m. on Nov. 20.

Scouts will begin picking up the filled bags at 9 a.m. Depending on the weather, it will take the volunteers until early to mid-afternoon to collect all the bags.

Residents outside of Snyder are asked to place their food donations in a bag and take them to Gentle Dove Ministries or any of the local grocery stores. Ira and Hermleigh residents can place their bags in front of Ira Community Center or Hermleigh Community Center for pickup.

Participating in the drive are Cub Scout Pack 61 and 77 and Boy Scout Troop 27.

Tickets are on sale for benefit concert

Needy children and families will be helped this Christmas through a concert and dance set for Friday, Nov. 19, in Scurry County Coliseum.

Headline performer will be nationally known country entertainer Traci Peel and her band. Also scheduled is the Hiway 208 Band. Opening the performance will be the Western Texas College Community Chorale, under the direction of Jon Polomaki.

Admission to the 7 p.m. concert is $9 along with a toy, canned good or clothes that will be given to needy persons in Scurry County. Proceeds will also be used to purchase items for the less fortunate.

Tickets are available at Wal-Mart, Snyder Daily News, Golden Corral and from Snyder High School cheerleaders.

During the concert, five $100 gift certificates from Wal-Mart will be given away.

Peel is a nationally-known country music entertainer, best known for the song, "I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing," used by Coke in commercials.

This year, she was featured on the cover of People Magazine and has appeared on the Phil Donahue Show, Nashville Now with Ralph Emery, and Crook and Chase. A full record early this year was titled "Almost Single."

Chamber board nominations due

A nominating committee's recommendations for new officers, a resignation, and preliminary work on the 1994 budget will be discussed by chamber of commerce board members, who meet at 4 p.m. Monday.

Members of the nominating committee will submit for approval their choice for president, president-elect and treasurer of the board. The new officers will begin serving in January.

Directors are expected to accept the resignation of board member Randy Perkins, and will begin discussing the 1994 budget. Ricky Fritz, chamber manager, said the board is considering setting a budget workshop in early December.

A review of the Pasture Party and discussion of upcoming Christmas activities are on the agenda.

The board may also review the recent contract with the city for hotel/motel tax funds.

Like a lot of scenery in wide open West Texas, there's not much to look at between Ballinger and Paint Rock. One time Jack Smartt tried to get us to leave the pavement to look at the Indians' markings on the rock.

Next time Smartt is going that direction, he can take along J.M. "Mule" Kayser who recently brought us a picture of a recently erected 10-story cross, visible for miles.

Just recently, AP ran a story on Ballinger's James Studer's tribute to God. Studer hopes to have a formal dedication on Nov. 28

Kayser, a retired educator and world traveler, was driving to Kerrville and was between Bronte and Ballinger when he first saw a glitter of silver below the Morning Star. As he drew nearer, the cross become more well-defined. Kayser was impressed with the beauty of the cross and the bright morning star silhouetted against a red sky.

The owner said he was motivated to construct the cross as a dedication for all the good things the Lord has done for us.

Kayser was particularly impressed, "What a Thanksgiving monument!"

WTC meats team wins in judging

In the first competition of the year, and the only inexperienced team, Western Texas College's meat judging team fared well at the Beef Empire Days in Garden City, Kan.

Ten teams from five states were entered in the contest held on Nov. 8. WTC's winnings included third in grading; fourth in carcass selection; fifth in placing; and fifth in overall. Tarleton State on first overall and West Texas A&M came in second.

Out of 70 competitors, Les Sanders placed sixth in overall contest. He was also fifth in placing and seventh in questions.

Jennifer Beard was eighth in overall and was high individual in the contest in questions. She was also eighth in placings. Stephen McDonald was seventh in carcuss, selection and pricing, and 18th in overall.

Chris Meador was 11th in quality and yield grading and Ronda Parker was 11th in carcuss selection and pricing.

Other team members include Justin White and Jennifer Trevey.

Jim Judah is the coach.

O'Leary: details of severance pay due after Thanksgiving

WAXAHACHIE (AP) — Employees of the defunct superconducting super collider will learn details of their promised severance package the day before Thanksgiving, Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary told them Friday.

O'Leary said the package likely will include a severance award; relocation compensation; $5,000 to $7,000 for retraining; standard medical benefits; and help finding a new job. The government also will consider offering some help to people who bought homes near the supercollider, she said.

She told the workers that about half of them probably will lose their jobs on Jan. 7.

About 2,000 people are employed at the $11 billion particle accelerator shot down by Congress.

O'Leary met with several hundred of the employees in what she characterized as a private "family meeting" that was hostile at times. It was her first visit to the site since Congress voted last month to shut down the collider.

"I felt it was very important for the employees to be able to vent to me, to be very open and honest," O'Leary said afterwards.

"I didn't expect it to be a love feast. But I am the secretary of the Department of Energy and the moral leader of that project, and so I went down there to talk to my family about the next steps we should all be taking," she said.

After meeting with the workers, O'Leary appeared in Dallas at a rally for the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The Energy Department is still assessing how the work will stop, but similar closedowns show about half of the workers should be laid off in the early months, O'Leary said.

"These things we know: No. 1, standing still doing no work, the burn rate on the taxpayer's money is huge, and I've been instructed to stop that," she said.

"I said today I'm not clear that that is the exact number. We will know that likely just after Thanksgiving."

The Energy Department will work with employee representatives to help craft the severance package.

O'Leary said she already had torn up a proposed severance plan that "had been drawn up as sort of a standard government package without looking at the fact that this was a very unique site."

"What we intend to do by the Wednesday before Thanksgiving is process people's major concerns and address them in this severance package. And what I heard from my colleagues out at that site is that's what they want us to do," she said.

IS THE CHURCH RELEVANT TODAY?

Over nineteen and one-half centuries have passed since Jesus, at the age of thirty-three, died on the cross and purchased His church with His own blood (Acts 20:28). Many things have changed, including popular ideas about the church. To some, "church" means little more than a cold and awesome building. For others, "church" is synonymous with "denomination" or "religious sect." It is popular today for some to depreciate the importance of the church.

Without question, the church which Christ established on the first Pentecost after His resurrection was of utmost importance and relevance to that day. When we obey the commands concerned with the same gospel message of the first century--the good news that Jesus died for our sins, was buried, and that God raised Him from the dead on the third day--God forgives us our sins and adds us to His same body, the church (Acts 2:38-47). In His omniscience God designed the church to meet man's needs in every age.

Granbury couple claims lotto win

AUSTIN (AP) — The way things had been going for Lanis and Bertie Moore, it almost came as no surprise when they won the $3.7 million Lotto Texas jackpot drawn Wednesday night.

The Moores, of Granbury, have won a handful of the Texas Lottery instant, scratch-off games, including prizes of $1,000 and $100.

"We've won $50 here and $100 there all along the way," said Lanis Moore. "It's kept us playing."

The morning of the lotto drawing, Moore said, "A woman I work with told me to read my horoscope because it said I could strike it rich."

Moore, a medical records clerk at Hood General Hospital, even told his boss, "I may not be here tomorrow."

The Moores claimed a check for $187,914.50 Friday, the first installment of their $3.7 million jackpot, which will be paid off over the next 19 years.

"When I called my boss the next day to tell her we had won, she didn't believe it at first, until I started wheezing and crying," Moore said.

Moore, 46, a self-described "former carpenter," said his wife, Bertie, had already gone to bed when the numbers 1, 5, 8, 12, 27 and 36 were selected.

"My wife ... told me not to wake her up unless we got more than four numbers right," he said.

"I knew it was good news when he came in and turned on the lights," Ms. Moore said.

Moore said the couple would buy new cars and that he would treat himself to a round of golf at the prestigious Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth, "Just to say I did it."

Circle B Grocery in Granbury sold the winning ticket and will receive a check for 1 percent of the winnings.

LTV returns to old name

GARLAND — David E. Althoff, president and chief executive officer of LTV Energy Products Company., a subsidiary of the LTV Corporation, recently announced the company's decision to change its name to Continental Emsco Company, the name by which it operated under before 1984.

"This change is market driven and the result of customer input," Althoff said. "Historically, Continental Emsco's reputation has been excellent for supplying quality products and services to the oil and gas industry.

"That recognition has continued over the past nine years. We believe this reputation will serve as well in the marketplace of the future," he added.

The LTV Corporation is a major American industrial company. Its subsidiaries are LTV Steel Company and Continental Emsco Company. LTV Steel is the leading producer of high quality flat rolled steel for the automotive, appliance, service center and electrical equipment markets. The company also is a leading supplier of welded steel pipe, tubing and tin mill products.

Continental Emsco Company is a leading manufacturer of oilfield equipment and distributor of oilfield and industrial supplies.

A&M program slated for students at WTC

This Tuesday on the campus of Western Texas College there will be an information program for students interested in attending Texas A&M University.

The session will be from 11-11:30 a.m. in the Science Lecture Hall.

Topics to be discussed will be admission requirements, deadlines and questions and answers. The program is sponsored by the Counseling Department of WTC.

Texas A&M is becoming more and more selective in admitting new students. Accordingly, the school has developed two new categories of admission for transfer students. These divisions are called "Early Notification" and "Admissions Consideration."

The "Early Notification" group gets first priority. Requirements include a GPA of 3.0 on all transferrable courses, a Feb. 15 application deadline (Oct. 15. for spring semester), and completion of about 42 hours in specific course work now called "foundation" courses.

The second group is termed "Admission Consideration." These applicants will be reviewed and selected on a space available basis. A 2.25 GPA is required and March 1 (Nov. 1 for spring semester) is application deadline. Within this group, students who have the highest GPA, and who have completed the most foundation course will get first consideration.

The WTC Counseling Center can help students determine which courses are needed.

More rewarding

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Life behind the camera is more rewarding than acting for Liv Ullmann.

"Acting is something I'm happy to say goodbye to," said the 54-year-old actress, whose films include "Persona," "Cries and Whispers" and "Autumn Sonata." "I'd really like to replace it professionally with writing and directing."

"Sofie," her directorial debut, opened recently and received favorable reviews. The film, based on a novel, chronicles the life of a Jewish woman in 19th century Copenhagen.

Government drops misconduct action against AIDS researcher

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government dropped misconduct charges Friday against Robert Gallo, the renowned AIDS researcher who had been accused of violating scientific ethics in his pioneering work on the virus.

Gallo, 56-year-old co-discoverer of the AIDS virus and head of a laboratory at the National Institutes of Health, said he was "completely vindicated" by the action.

Dr. Lyle W. Bivens, head of the U.S. Public Health Service investigation of Gallo, repeated the allegations and said they were dropped only because his agency could not meet "a new definition of scientific misconduct" demanded by a review board.

Gallo's Washington attorney, Joe Onek, called Bivens' statement "outrageous" and hinted at future legal action by his client.

"He never got his day in court," said the lawyer. "But that may happen yet."

A hearing on Gallo's appeal of the charges had been scheduled for next week. He had been found guilty by the Public Health Service's Office of Research Integrity of failing to give proper credit to other researchers and with making a misstatement in a science publication.

"The reason that they didn't pursue the case is that the ORI knew that it couldn't prove its false charges before a fair and independent tribunal," Onek said.

In a statement welcoming the action, Gallo said, "I will now be able to redouble my efforts in the fight against AIDS and cancer."

Gallo and his laboratory colleagues published a series of articles in 1984 that identified and proved that a specific virus was the cause of AIDS.

French researchers shortly afterward claimed that the virus Gallo identified had actually been isolated earlier at the Pasteur Institute and that the Americans were falsely claiming credit for the discovery.

After negotiations, the issue was settled in 1987 with both the French and Americans agreeing to recognize Gallo and Pasteur researcher Dr. Luc Montagnier as co-discoverers of the AIDS virus. They also agreed to share royalties from the patent of an AIDS blood test developed in Gallo's lab.

The controversy was revived in 1989 after new charges were leveled against Gallo and a senior scientist in his lab, Dr. Mikulus Popovic. The ORI and its predecessor agencies at the NIH investigated and ruled last December that both Gallo and Popovic were guilty of misconduct in the 1984 AIDS research publications.

The Pasteur Institute has hired a New York law firm to attempt to revise the 1987 agreement. That issue remains unsettled.

Lung cancer death rate now number one killer in women

ATLANTA (AP) — The lung cancer death rate for women has shot past that of breast cancer and probably will increase into the next century, years after the death rate in men peaks and starts to fall, the government reported Friday.

In a separate finding, the American Cancer Society reported that gains in preventing heart disease deaths in all U.S. smokers are being more than offset by the rise in deaths from lung cancer and other smoking-related cancers.

Heart disease deaths have declined in smokers as they have in nonsmokers, due to factors other than smoking, including healthier diets and lifestyles. Lung cancer deaths have increased, the cancer society said.

Gary Giovino of the U.S. Surgeon General's Office on Smoking and Health reported that smoking rates continue to decline among all groups of men and women in the United States except white men 18-24. Their rate of smoking hasn't changed since 1980.

The new findings were reported in a weekly publication of the Centers for Disease Control and at a meeting on nicotine addiction sponsored by the American Society of Addiction Medicine.

In 1950, white women had a breast cancer death rate of 26.4 per 100,000. In 1990, the rate showed little change at 27.4.

In 1950, the death rate from lung cancer among white women was 4.9, but it climbed to 32.1 in 1990.

Lung cancer surpassed breast cancer in 1986, said Scott Tomar of the Office on Smoking and Health.

For black women, the breast cancer death rate was 21.4 per 100,000 in 1950 and 31.7 in 1990. During the same period, their lung cancer death rate soared from 3.8 to 32, surpassing breast cancer in 1990.

"The continued increase in lung cancer death rates primarily reflects patterns of cigarette smoking throughout this century," the government reported.

Smoking among white American men, for example, peaked at about 67 percent in the 1940s and 1950s. Smoking among women peaked at about 44 percent in the 1960s.

"The lung cancer death rate for men is expected to peak before the year 2000, then begin to decline," the government said. "For women, the rate will probably continue to increase into the next century."

Dr. Michael Thun of the American Cancer Society reported that heart disease made up 41 percent of smoking-related deaths in white men in the 1960s, but fell to 21 percent of the smoking deaths in the 1980s.

During the same period, the percentage of smoking deaths in white men due to lung cancer rose from 15 percent to 28 percent, he said.

Similar trends were seen in women.

WTC staffer honor slated on Thursday

An employee of Western Texas College will be honored in the Student Center Thursday as part of the annual celebration of Phi Theta Kappa's Founder's Day here.

The WTC PTK Chapter, in conjunction with the Student Senate, uses the date to honor an employee of WTC for outstanding service to the students.

The name of the individual honored will be kept a secret until the announcement Thursday morning. The event will begin at 10:45 a.m. The recipient is honored with a reception and his or her name is put on a plaque in the Student Center.

Employees are nominated and voted on by members of PTK and the Student Senate.

The Founder's Day award has been given since 1983. The event honors the founding of PTK in 1918 at Stephens College in Missouri.

1st life lottery winner

AUSTIN (AP) — A 47-year-old Houston man who won the state lottery's first "Win for Life" prize says he expects to live another 50 years.

Stanley Dehart, the owner of Galaxy Air Conditioning, on Friday collected his first $1,000 per week payment in the state's "Win for Life" game, a new scratch-off game that made its debut this week..

He will receive $1,000 payments every week for the rest of his life.

Dehart said he expects to collect those payments for a long time. "I don't drink and I don't smoke." He said he exercises "when I work, crawling around in attics."

Pope to recuperate

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II returned to the Vatican on Friday after an overnight hospital stay for a shoulder fracture he suffered in a fall on some steps.

The 73-year-old pontiff will need six weeks to fully recover and months before swimming and skiing again.

SUPERIOR RATING — Snyder Junior High School drama students received a superior rating Nov. 6 in one-act play competition at South Plains College in Levelland. They performed MASH, a one-act comedy by Tom Kelley. The cast and crew are from left, first row, Jack Hedges, Mac McCraw, Joey Steakley (best actor), Jessica Mills, Christina Bullard (best actress), Carol Strayhorn, Stacy Robertson; second row, David Drum, Ben Caldwell, Trevor Thompson, Chad Chaney, Kyle Callison, Isaac Spoor, Michael Hensley; third row, Travis Whitney, Mark Rodriguez, Emily Hardin, Micheal Roberts and Kenneth Darling. SJHS' 'Mash' wins top one-act awards

Snyder Junior High School's production of MASH won a superior rating Nov. 6 in one-act competition in Levelland. The cast and crew also brought home eight individual acting and technical crew awards.

Receiving the best actor award was Joey Steakley as Cpl. "Radar" O'Riley. Christina Bullard was named best actress for her roles as Maj. Margaret Hoolihan and Fritzi.

Named to the all-star cast were Jack Hedges, Ben Caldwell and Isaac Spoor. Honorable mention winners were C.J. Chaney, Michael Hensley and Stacey Robertson. Earning a special award, outstanding technician, was Micheal Roberts.

Several comments by the judge, Jay Brown, were:

—Good action at all times, 'real world' effect.

—All characters equally important. Ho Jon good character, believable.

—Burns, strong voice, thumb-sucking good addition.

—Hawkeye and Duke, strong characters.

—Nurses ad libbed to prevent lapse at beginning of scene.

—Hot Lips scene very good!

—Radar, good character! well played.

—Mitzi & Fritzi — great! Nurses rash scene well done.

—Girls with multiple rolls — good separation of characters.

The technical crew received honorable mention. They include Michael Hensley, C.J. Chaney and Stacey Robertson.

Local performances are set for 6:30 p.m. Monday at Snyder Junior High School. Admission is $2.

The time is set so that following MASH, everyone can go to the Worsham Auditorium to see Dracula.

Gun discovered

NEW YORK (AP) — A construction worker found a loaded gun hidden in a bathroom at the Ed Sullivan Theater, home to David Letterman's "Late Show."

Someone apparently stashed the .38-caliber semiautomatic in the drop ceiling, police spokesman Scott Bloch said. The gun fell out Thursday night when the worker began removing the ceiling in the continuing renovation of the theater.

Police didn't know who owns the gun, Bloch said.

Toll free number incorrect

DALLAS (AP) — When Sonny Bryan's Smokehouse customers called a toll-free order line, all they wanted were some smoked turkeys. But what they got was a little more fiery.

The smokehouse, a Dallas-based family barbecue business established in 1910, changed its 1-800 telephone number earlier this year. But apparently, not all of his customers got the news — or the new number.

The new number, 1-800-5-SONNYS, was printed on all packaging, except the boxes that the turkeys are shipped in. Those boxes have the old number with the tagline "Taste the Legend."

So when customers dialed 1-800-SONNY-4-U to order some turkeys, they were somewhat surprised when the call was answered by a sensuous, breathy voice offering a little more than turkey legs.

The problem? The discontinued number was resold to a company offering lewd phone sex messages.

Financial Focus

The world is changing. Recent years have brought the reunification of Germany, the formation of the European Economic Community, the breakup of the Soviet Union and, most recently, a peace agreement between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

As a result of our changing world, foreign economies are growing, and new markets are emerging. No longer does the United States dominate world markets. In 1970, the United States produced 47 percent of worldwide output. By 1992, that figure had declined to 31 percent, meaning nearly 70 percent of the world's goods and services are now produced by countries other than the United States.

Investors are taking advantage of this trend by looking for opportunities beyond the borders of the United States. Between 1980 and 1992, for example, U.S. holdings of foreign stocks grew 21 percent compounded annually.

Investing globally can be a good way to help diversify a portfolio. Just as there are opportunities in the United States, so are there opportunities around the world.

Global investing also can help reduce risk. When one country's economy is down, surely there's another one that's up.

But how does an investor begin "going global"? There are three strategies: Buy shares of mutual funds that invest in international companies, buy individual stocks and bonds of U.S. based companies with foreign markets, or buy individual stocks and bonds of foreign companies. Each strategy offers its own risks and rewards.

Mutual funds that buy stocks and bonds of international companies offer the expertise of professional money managers, many of whom live abroad. In addition, mutual fund companies have large research staffs who are familiar with global markets and maintain regular contact with foreign companies.

International mutual funds also offer built-in diversification by investing in a variety of companies and countries. Such diversification helps minimize the risks of an individual industry, nation or currency.

Buying individual stocks and bonds of U.S.-based companies that market their goods and services in international markets allows you to invest in familiar companies while taking advantage of the higher growth rates of foreign economies. Many U.S. companies, such as McDonald's, Coca-Cola, General Electric and AT&T, are gaining market share in more parts of the world every day.

Selecting individual stocks and bonds of foreign companies can be a more challenging way to invest internationally. But it can allow you to take advantage of foreign economies that may be performing better than that of the United States.

As with any investment, you should be aware of the risks. Global investing may offer economic, political, company-specific and currency risks. However, allocating a portion of your assets to international investments can be a great way to diversify your portfolio and take advantage of growing international markets.

Black, white law firms agree to 'marriage of convenience'

DALLAS (AP) — Ron White and Richard Kneipper are the legal profession's odd couple.

They represent two firms that couldn't be more different: White's is small, newly formed and predominantly black. Kneipper's is huge, internationally established and overwhelmingly white.

Recently, the firms have come together to meet a growing need — and to make a ton of money.

Many government agencies and major corporations are looking to give legal business to minority attorneys. However, they say they have a tough time finding firms with the resources to handle a wide range of legal needs.

White would like a shot at the big-dollar business, but his 13-person firm is too tiny to tackle many of them. Kneipper also wants a piece of this action, but the 1,100-attorney firm he works for lacks minorities.

Last month, after 18 months of negotiating the details, White Hill Sims & Wiggins moved into the space it sublet from Jones Day.

"All of us who have been around a while recognize that the small, one- or two-man operation is not going to get the large corporate or institutional business. That's a reality," White told The Dallas Morning News.

"We didn't want to give up our autonomy as a firm, but at the same time, we wanted access to resources that would jump-start our practice," he said.

Jones Day offers a global network with 20 offices in the world's financial centers. Its 282-person Dallas office has a state-of-the-art litigation center, library facilities, computer systems, administrative support, even a mock courtroom.

Bob Haldeman dies of cancer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — H.R. "Bob" Haldeman, President Nixon's fiercely protective chief of staff who served 18 months in prison for covering up the Watergate break-in, died Friday. He was 67.

Haldeman died of abdominal cancer in his home overlooking the Pacific Ocean. His son Hank said he had been ill for only a month.

Haldeman was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice, obstruction of justice and lying to the FBI and a federal grand jury and was sentenced to a 21/2- to eight-year term by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

The June 17, 1972, break-in of Democratic Party headquarters at Washington's Watergate complex eventually forced Nixon from the White House.

Haldeman had been in advertising when he met Richard Nixon in the 1950s, and became one of the earliest and most trusted of Nixon's campaign aides.

"I am not a politician," he said once. "I had no real interest in politics, and no participation, until I volunteered for a Nixon campaign."

After the 1968 election, Haldeman became Nixon's chief of staff and thereby the gatekeeper to the Oval Office, a post he valued. Other than John N. Mitchell, who had been Nixon's campaign manager and attorney general, no one was closer to the president.

Mitchell and another top Nixon aide, John D. Ehrlichman, also were convicted of Watergate conspiracy. Mitchell, who died in 1988, served 19 months in prison for his role in the scandal. Ehrlichman served 11/2 years.

Haldeman joined Nixon's second vice presidential campaign in 1956 and worked in Nixon's failed 1960 presidential campaign, his race for California governor in 1962 and Nixon's victorious 1968 election.

Haldeman was a major figure in the coverup. Six days after the Watergate break-in, he suggested that an FBI investigation that was coming too close be derailed.

Nixon gave his tacit approval and the tape recording of that conversation became the so-called "smoking gun." On Aug. 9, 1974, four days after the tape became public, Nixon resigned.

Haldeman also was found to be the keeper of a $350,000 slush fund that was used to pay the living expenses of some of the Watergate burglars and he played an active role in the Oval Office conversation on how to contain the growing scandal.

When Nixon counsel John Dean threatened to go to Watergate investigators, Haldeman told him that "it's tough to put the toothpaste back into the tube once it's out."

After leaving prison, Haldeman became president of Murdock Hotels Corp. and senior vice president of Murdock Development Co. He worked for seven years at the private companies owned by David Murdock, the financier who now heads Dole Food Co.

More recently, he had been involved with several start-up businesses, as a mentor and adviser to the founders and as a shareholder.

He lived with Jo, his wife of 44 years, and their two horses and dogs at his Santa Barbara ranch-style house.

In his post-Watergate book, "The Ends of Power," Haldeman wrote that he was "no worshiper of Richard Nixon."

Snyder man pleads guilty

A Snyder man has pled guilty in Lubbock's Federal District Court to charges related to a drug bust on a shopping center parking lot in Snyder last September.

Nahum Rodriquez, 25, entered a guilty plea to conspiring with Luis Vences, 30, of Waco to obtain 25 pounds of marijuana.

The bust ended a five-month undercover investigation. The two men were arrested on Sept. 15 on the Varsity Square Shopping Center parking lot.

Rodriquez admitted to conspiring in August and September to obtain 25 pounds of marijuana. An undercover Department of Public Safety narcotics officer negotiated with Rodriquez on Sept. 15 for a price of $800 per pound for the drugs.

Rodriquez contacted Vences who brought the marijuana to Snyder on Sept. 15. The merchandise was stashed at a Snyder residence while the two waited to make their sale.

Rodriquez and Vences were indicted by a federal grand jury last month. Rodriquez also admitted to possessing a forged resident alien card.

Rodriquez will be sentenced at a later date.

UNDER THE GUN — Graham quarterback Dustin Dunnam gets off a pass in spite of the rush by Brownfield's Cory Farrar (81). Dunnam led the Steers to a 37-25 Class 3A bi-district playoff win Friday at Tiger Stadium. (SDN Staff Photo)

Class 3A grid playoff...

Graham outlasts Brownfield

The Graham Steers jumped out to a 25-0 lead and held off a second-half rally to post a 37-25 Class 3A bi-district football playoff win at Snyder's Tiger Stadium.

The Steers, 9-3, will battle Perryton, 10-1, in the area round of postseason play.

The Steers used a number of big plays, including a pair of blocked punts, to get on top of the Cubs.

After a 53-yard scoring run by Julian Taylor staked Graham to a 7-0 lead in the first period, the Steers blocked a punt by the Cubs and wound up with the ball on Brownfield's 3.

Two plays later A.P. Cox slammed across the goal line, upping the advantage to 13-0.

The score went to 19-0 in the second period when the Graham defense smothered Cubs' punter Mickey McCalib after a high snap, setting up the GHS offense on Brownfield's 30.

From there, Graham split end Tubby Coleman outfought a pair of BHS defenders for a Dustin Dunnam pass good for a touchdown.

Dunnam found Trent Kelley for 32 yards to the Brownfield 1, followed by a scoring dive by Cox that lifted the advantage to 25-0 with four minutes to go in the half.

Brownfield came off the ropes with a 53-yard scoring pass from Rhett Graham to McCalib just two minutes later. The 2-point conversion by Shade Evans left the Cubs in a 25-6 hole at the half.

Brownfield winds up the campaign with a 6-4 mark.

In other playoff action of local interest, Plainview, District 2-4A champion, moved to 11-0 on the campaign with a tougher-than-expected 9-7 win over Pampa Friday in Canyon, and Frenship, District 2 runner-up, was ousted from the playoffs by District 1 champ Canyon Randall, 31-27.

Plainview will face Sweetwater in the area round at a time and site to be determined. Sweetwater finished the regular season as the District 3 champion after a 51-40 win over Andrews on Friday.

Andrews will tangle with Randall in its area battle.

Gillespie scores 7 TDs as Sands ousts Coyotes

LAMESA — Heath Gillespie scored seven touchdowns to lead the Sands Mustangs to a 46-8 six-man bi-district football playoff win over Borden County Friday night.

Gillespie personally accounted for 42 points against the Coyotes, including three TD dives of two yards, scoring rushes of eight, nine and 53 yards, and a 75-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

Borden County's Cody Cox scored on a 1-yard rumble in the second quarter to avert the shutout.

Sands, the District 1 champion boasts a 10-0-1 record. The Mustangs will face Sierra Blanca (6-3), at a site and time to be announced, in the area round of postseason play.

Borden County, District 6 runner-up, winds up the campaign with a 5-6 record.

Johnson mum about starter in Sunday tilt against Cards

IRVING (AP) — Seldom has so much suspense attended a meeting between the Dallas Cowboys and the Phoenix Cardinals.

This Sunday, Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson ends the big guessing game on the starting quarterback for the defending Super Bowl champions.

Who will be behind door No. 1?

—Troy Aikman, the Super Bowl MVP, who has been nursing the first pulled hamstring of his athletic career.

—Jason Garrett, the World League refugee who has never started an NFL game.

—Bernie Kosar, who led the Cleveland Browns to three AFC championship games and played for Johnson at the University of Miami.

Johnson said he won't play Aikman "unless he's 100 percent" and Aikman has been less than that during the week at Valley Ranch. Aikman suffered the pulled hamstring on Sunday in the third period of a 31-9 victory over the New York Giants.

"I'm not sure how to act," Aikman said. "I've never had one of these things before. I might lean more toward what the doctors have to say on this one."

Garrett led the Cowboys to two touchdowns after Aikman was injured against the Giants and has the confidence of the players because of his poised play.

Kosar, who was cut by the Browns on Monday, plunged into a crash course of Cowboys terminology after he arrived on Wednesday. Kosar said he knows he is coming to the Cowboys as strictly a backup.

"I just want to do something to justify their confidence in me," Kosar said.

"The average player wouldn't be ready on Sunday, but Bernie could do it," said Johnson. "If Bernie starts, we'll cut the offensive package back a little bit."

"Learning the terminology is the hardest thing," Kosar said.

Johnson will open the door to his starter about 2:30 p.m., at which time Fritz Shurmur, the defensive coordinator of the Cardinals, will know which quarterback to prepare for at the 3 p.m. kickoff.

All three have distinctive styles.

Aikman has a gun for an arm and can run. He stays in the pocket but isn't afraid to scramble. He can read defenses with the best in the NFL.

Garrett has limited experience at reading defenses but has a good arm and a good mind.

Kosar is slow but still has an adequate arm, can read defenses and doesn't hurt a team with interceptions.

"I'd feel fine with any of them in there," Johnson said. "The team has a lot of confidence in Jason. I'm sure they would with Bernie, also."

"Kosar is a bigtime player," said wide receiver Michael Irvin. "He's a winner."

Dallas is 6-2 while Phoenix is 3-6.

"The Cardinals can play and we know it," said Johnson. "I don't think there's much of a chance we'll be overlooking them. They always play us tough. Sunday won't be any different."

Except for the announcement of the Cowboys starting quarterback.

Houston, Bengals set for AFC Central battle

CINCINNATI (AP) — Nobody's expecting a baby this weekend. Warren Moon is throwing touchdowns again. And for the first time all season, first place is in sight.

Everything finally appears to be coming together for the Houston Oilers, the NFL's most disappointing team for half of a season. But there's still a lot of uneasiness as they get ready to play the NFL's most abysmal team Sunday.

"I wouldn't say it's gone away. I'd say it's just cooled down a little bit," said defensive lineman Ray Childress. "There's still plenty of disappointment and questions.

"We've won three in a row, but they were against New England, Cincinnati and Seattle. Let's see what happens from here."

Their rematch Sunday with the 0-8 Bengals, the league's only winless team, will tell a lot about how far the 4-4 Oilers have come — and whether they have a chance of going anywhere.

Houston, a preseason favorite to win the AFC Central, became the league's biggest underachiever during a 1-4 opening skid. Moon got benched, rumors had defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan ready to replace coach Jack Pardee, and the team became a social issue when tackle David Williams missed a game to stay with his wife and newborn.

"Going into the season, there were so many good things being thought as far as making the playoffs, making the Super Bowl. Starting 1-4, that's the lowest thing I've ever been involved in as far as sports," Childress said.

The Oilers' schedule has given them a second chance. A run of four consecutive games against weak teams, concluding Sunday at Riverfront Stadium, has allowed them to regroup.

They're only a game behind AFC Central leaders Cleveland and Pittsburgh, neither of whom they've played yet. A solid victory Sunday over the Bengals would send the Oilers into the decisive stretch of their schedule — four of their next five games are against Cleveland and Pittsburgh — with a realistic hope of being a champion after all.

WTC claims spots in rodeo short go

LUBBOCK — The roughstock finals at the Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo will feature seven Western Texas College riders filling nine slots.

The first go-round of the roughstock events ended with Friday's performance. The rodeo winds down with the 7:30 p.m. finals on Saturday at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Earning spots in the short go for the Westerners were Travis Whiteside, who vaulted into second place in bareback riding with a Friday 69, pushing teammates Cleve Schmidt, who scored a fourth-place 68 Thursday, Troy Thomson, who wound up fifth with a Thursday 65, and Matt Dennis, who earned a ninth-place 60 in the first performance, down a notch each.

Bronc Collier and Fletcher Tigner, both of Western Texas, are headed for the finals with identical 69s, tied for first place with Vernon Regional JC standout Kolt Dowdy.

Trey Griffin's 66 in saddle bronc riding and 69 in bull riding are both fifth-place scores, giving the WTC sophomore two spots in the finals, along with Thomson, who scored a 65, good for the 10th spot in the bull riding championship round.

Dean Pasutta also is a good bet to get into the short go for Western Texas. The calf roper held an 11.7 and second place prior to Saturday morning's timed event slack.

The Western Texas women's team, currently leading the NIRA Southwest Region, held four of the top six spots in goat tying and three in the top five in breakaway roping with Saturday slack times still to be calculated.

Brandye Bitters and Mandy Harsh shared first place for WTC in goat tying. Teammate Leslie Greer was in fourth with an 8.2, and Dusti Beaton held sixth with an 8.7 time.

Jonell Cardwell, Greer and Harsh all held a portion of fifth place with 3.7s in breakaway roping.

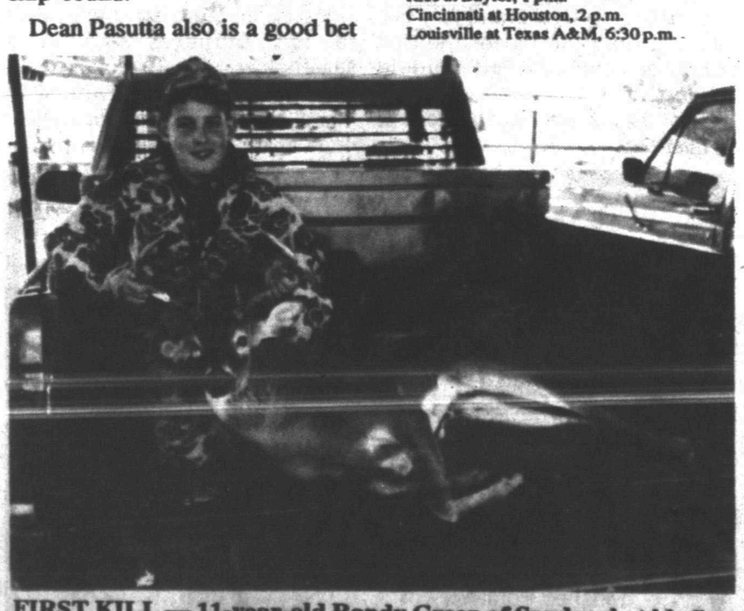
Berry draws start against Browns

Former Abilene Cooper and Baylor University linebacker Ray Berry will be in the starting lineup for the Seattle Seahawks Sunday when they face the Cleveland Browns.

Berry, the grandson of Hazel and L.A. Berry of Snyder, was to have started last week against Houston, but the Oilers' run-and-shoot offense forced the Seahawks to start just one linebacker.

Berry was drafted in 1987 by Minnesota and spent six seasons with the Vikings before being released prior to the start of this season.

He was picked up by Seattle a month ago. He registered 424 tackles in his time with the Vikings, including four sacks. Berry also forced four fumbles and recovered two.



FIRST KILL — 11-year-old Randy Green of Snyder shot his first deer a week ago on the Sabanno Valley Ranch. Green's trophy buck was an eight-pointer. (Contributed Photo)

2-4A net squad includes trio from SHS

LUBBOCK — Snyder placed three members on the All-District 2-4A tennis team, voted upon by loop coaches recently.

SHS senior Christina Gonzales tied Levelland's Paige Parker and Becky Hernandez of Estacado, both seniors, for the No. 1 slot on the girls' team.

Joining Gonzales in representing Snyder on the elite squad were No. 4 singles player Katie Thornton, a sophomore, and junior Melissa Garvin.

Snyder captured second place in both boys and girls competition in the fall team tennis season, and was third place overall. Plainview copped the overall title and Levelland was the season runner-up.

Also on the girls' singles team are Levelland junior Christi Currington, who claimed the No. 2 slot, No. 3 Mandy Moss, a freshman from Levelland, LHS teammate Jennifer Morris, who tied Garvin for the No. 5 position, and Levelland senior Leslie Lattimore, who took the No. 6 berth.

Parker and Currington, Moss and Alison Sweet, and Kristi Rush and Amy Pitts swept doubles honors for Levelland.

Plainview dominated the choices on the boys' team with six of seven singles selections and all three doubles teams.

Senior Zach Gibson, junior Troy Clark, senior Josh Pitts, junior Jeff Porter, senior Jared Odem and junior John Lung claimed spots 1-6 in singles. Frenship's Dallas Grimes, the only player on the boys' unit not from Plainview, tied Odem for the No. 5 spot.

Doubles teams on the all-loop roster are Gibson and Pitts, Clark and Porter and Odem and James Stumbaugh.

Frenship was the season winner of the Sportsmanship Award.

Nunn among most recent inductees to Hardin-Simmons Hall of Fame

ABILENE — Dunn resident Carl Nunn was recently inducted into the Hardin-Simmons University Hall of Fame for his outstanding achievements in tennis.

Nunn joined basketball and track star John Whatley, baseball standout J.B. Gibbs, and football players L.B. Russell, Ed Cherry and Pete Tyler as the school's 1993 inductees at a Nov. 5 ceremony.

"In one way it was unexpected," Nunn said of the honor, "and in another way it wasn't since Wayne Miller, my doubles partner, was inducted before me.

"I don't know why we weren't inducted at the same time, that kind of surprised me, but it's still an honor."

Miller gave Nunn's induction speech at HSU.

The duo made up most successful doubles team in school history, winning the Sun Bowl Tournament and the NAIA doubles title in 1953 and the Border Conference crown in 1954.

"Arizona had won the Border Conference 20 years in a row," Nunn said, "so I guess it was kind of a surprise that we won it that year. That was a pretty big accomplishment.

"What I was a sproud of as anything is that we beat every Southwest Conference team for two years without losing a match. Of course, Texas Tech was in our conference at the time, but we traveled to TCU, SMU, Baylor, Houston and Texas, and beat them all."

Nunn is an area rancher who also owns Nunn Insurance Agency in Snyder. In addition, he is the Area Coordinator for United We Stand America and was recently elected UWSA's coordinator for the 17th Congressional District.

Denver routs L.A.; Kings edge Spurs

by The Associated Press

These were games the Denver Nuggets and Sacramento Kings used to lose.

Playing at the Great Western Forum, where they lost 14 of their previous 16 games and 10 straight, the Nuggets routed the Los Angeles Lakers 113-84 Friday night behind Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf's 25 points and Dikembe Mutombo's career-high 24 rebounds and seven blocked shots.

The Kings, who haven't won 30 games in a season since 1985-86, outscored San Antonio 24-13 in the fourth quarter and ran their record to 3-1 when Mitch Richmond hit a jumper with 3.7 seconds left to beat the Spurs 93-91.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Charlotte 110, Boston 107; Washington 105, Philadelphia 93; Miami 115, Orlando 100; New York 103, Indiana 84; Dallas 115, Minnesota 99; Utah 109, Detroit 89; Cleveland 102, Golden State 93; and Portland 94, Atlanta 84.

The Lakers shot 31.1 percent from the field, their worst effort since the team moved to Los Angeles. Their previous low was 31.6 percent on Nov. 8, 1991 at Phoenix, the night after Magic Johnson announced he was retiring because of the AIDS virus.

Mavericks 115, Timberwolves 99

Rookie Jamal Mashburn scored 36 points, giving Quinn Buckner his first coaching victory and helping Dallas win at Minnesota, now the NBA's only winless team.

By winning for the first time in four games, the Mavericks avoided their worst start ever.

Christian Laettner scored 26 points and Doug West 23 for Minnesota (0-5). Jim Jackson added 18 points for the Mavericks, who committed only six turnovers to 21 by the Timberwolves.

Heat 115, Magic 100

Glen Rice hit his first six shots of the third quarter and finished with 30 points on 11 of 14 shooting, while Miami held Shaquille O'Neal to three fourth-quarter points and won at Orlando.

Nick Anderson led Orlando with 29 points, while O'Neal had 21 after scoring 42 against Miami in last week's season-opening victory over the Heat. Scott Skiles had 20 points and 14 assists for the Magic.

Dusters suffer loss at Oklahoma event

ALTUS, Okla. — The Western Texas College Lady Dusters tasted defeat for the first time this season Friday when they lost to Eastern Oklahoma, 76-73, in the second round of the Western Oklahoma Classic basketball tournament.

The Lady Dusters, now 2-1, will face Garden City (Kan.) JC at 2 p.m. Saturday in the tourney finale.

Western Texas coach Ron Jones felt his team played a good game against a large EO squad.

"I think after watching the video that the only thing we didn't do that we wanted to was to win the game.

"We played hard, I'm really pleased with the effort, we just went through some dry spells that probably made the difference. We had our opportunities, though."

The Eastern Oklahoma squad boasts a frontcourt measuring 6-4, 6-5 and 6-1 across. However, the Dusters still managed to win the battle of the boards, 55-33.

"That's pretty amazing that we were able to outrebound them," Jones said. "The girls played hard against a tough team."

Ericka Thompson scored 15 points on five field goals, including three from 3-point range, and two-of-four free throws.

Also in double figures for the Dusters were Paulita Murrell, who canned 12, and Tammy Wilson and Shrae Johnson, each with 10.

Western Texas will travel to Cisco JC on Tuesday, then will visit Rose State College in Midwest City, Okla. on Thursday before an appearance in the St. Gregory's Classic Nov. 19-20 in Shawnee, Okla.

The Dusters' next home game is a Nov. 22 rematch with Cisco.

WESTERN TEXAS (73) — Carter 3 0-0 6; Veitenheimer 0 1-2 1; Moss 2 0-1 5; Johnson 4 0-0 10; Roland 2 0-0 4; Thompson 5 2-4 15; Wilson 4 2-4 10; Cates 2 0-0 4; Murrell 5 1-2 12; Keepers 3 0-0 6; TOTALS 30 6-13 73.

EASTERN OKLAHOMA (76) — Sheud 4 3-8 11; Jones 8 1-1 20; Hoffothai 7 1-1 16; Morgan 5 2-2 13; Shatelkina 7 2-5 16; TOTALS 31 9-17 76.

Halftime score: Eastern Oklahoma 40, WTC 35; 3-point goals: Eastern Oklahoma 5 (Jones 3, Hoffothai 1, Morgan 1; WTC 7 (Thompson 3, Johnson 2, Murrell 1, Moss 1); Total fouls: Eastern Oklahoma 14, WTC 16; Fouled out: none; Record: WTC 2-1.

Jordan, Swoopes square off

DALLAS (AP) — Billie Jean King and Bobby Riggs would love this battle of the sexes: Michael Jordan vs. Sheryl Swoopes in a friendly game of 1-on-1.

Promoters could have made a mint, but the audience was a group of kids — and a cameraman, so the rest of the world can see the ultimate pickup game — attending Jordan's summer basketball camp

The matchup between Jordan, generally regarded as the greatest basketball player ever, and Swoopes, considered the best female player in the world, airs today on NBC-TV following the Notre Dame-Florida State football showdown.

But nobody's saying who won the game in Elmhurst, Ill., taped soon after Swoopes, Nancy Lieberman-Cline and Cinietra Henderson won the Hoop-It-Up women's championship in Dallas and before Jordan's shocking retirement from the NBA on Oct. 6.

In June, Swoopes, named college Player of the Year after leading Texas Tech to the NCAA title, flew to Chicago to help out at Jordan's basketball camp.

"We just thought they were going to talk to each other," said Pam Rapkin, spokeswoman for Dallas-based Hoop-It-Up. "We didn't know they were going to play."

A cameraman was there to capture the challenge before a small group of youths seated at midcourt inside the gymnasium at Elmhurst College.

Snippets of the June 30 game are shown on NBC's one-hour Hoop-It-Up special, which features the finals of the team competition in the world's largest 3-on-3 street basketball tournament.

The highlight is definitely the Jordan-Swoopes matchup.

It's playground hoops at its best, complete with trash talk and dares. At one point, Swoopes, feigning agitation, calls Jordan a cheater. Jordan promises to dunk on her.

Both are shown canning 3-pointers, and Jordan at one point drives to the bucket, slapping away a Swoopes hand check.

Former UNT professor gets sentence in auto theft case

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — A former English professor at the University of North Texas who lived as a fugitive for nearly a year was sentenced Friday to just under two years in federal prison and three years probation for auto theft.

Bill Robert Cathey, 51, still faces sentencing in state court for an April shootout with sheriff's deputies in LeFlore County, and faces trial in Texas on charges he kidnapped a woman in 1991 and held her hostage two weeks in his suburban home.

Cathey failed to appear for his Dallas trial. He was arrested about nine months later after a gun battle in southeastern Oklahoma.

Prosecutors alleged Cathey, who was living under an alias, used LeFlore County as a drop point for stolen cars. He pleaded guilty Friday to a federal charge of interstate transportation of a stolen car.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Joe Wilson said the 21-month federal sentence was the maximum allowed. Under the plea agreement, Cathey will serve the sentence consecutive with anything he receives in state court.

Cathey was convicted in Oklahoma on charges of shooting with intent to kill, drug possession, wearing a bulletproof vest during a felony and three counts of feloniously pointing a gun.

The jury recommended life, meaning Cathey would serve about nine years before he were eligible for parole. Associate District Judge Ted Knight said formal sentencing was delayed until after Cathey's federal trial.

In Texas, Cathey is accused of picking up a woman beside North Central Expressway in Dallas on May 18, 1991. The woman alleges Cathey bound her and forced her to listen to his readings of "Huckleberry Finn" for two weeks.

She escaped during a trip to a grocery store.

Texas authorities said Cathey also is a suspect in a double homicide and a bank robbery.

Police in Mesquite obtained a pornographic video filmed in Cathey's house that shows him and another man having sex with two women. Police seized the video during an arrest of one of Cathey's friends in an unrelated case.

The body of the other man in the video was pulled from Lake Ray Hubbard in August 1988. He and a woman had been bound together with rope and tied to an 80-pound weight. The man reportedly had more than $1,000 in his pocket.

Altered 'Maury Povich Show' tape triggers 'angel' reports

WACO (AP) — A city councilwoman from suburban Bellmead thought she saw an angel hovering in television footage of the Branch Davidians' burning compound, but later discovered the image was enhanced by producers of "The Maury Povich Show."

Last week in Waco, Povich taped a two-part review of the Davidians' 51-day standoff with federal officals from Feb. 28 through April 19.

A spokesperson for the show confirmed the images reported by Ruth Haines were edited into the fire footage showed during Povich's special, "Answers from the Ashes."

In a split-second frame during Tuesday's show, a bright, three-story image appears in the fire near the second-story window of the Branch Davidian complex, then disappears.

"What people might have interpreted as ghosts in the fire footage featured on the Maury Povich show was actually a superimposed image of David Koresh," a spokesperson for the Povich show said in a prepared statement from the producer.

"The image was not altered in any way by the supernatural, but was simply a graphic incorporated into the show," the spokesperson said.

Ms. Haines, who said she couldn't rest since the first show Monday, wanted to see if anyone else saw the ghost in the flames. So she showed the videotape to others in the town of 8,500. One by one, a gathering of residents at the Bellmead City Hall said they too could see the supernatural being.

"He's about 20 feet tall, dressed in white, and has long hair," Ms. Haines had said. "It's sort of like the light at the end of the tunnel," she said. "With Mount Carmel ending so tragically, I hope this will help heal some of the wounds by those affected."

Then she learned that the image was generated by producers of the show. It's a disappointment, since she had thought the image might have been an angel, she said.

"This throws a whole new light on what I wanted to do, which was to help the families who lost loved ones in the fire, especially the children," she said.

AmWest food drive underway

BRYAN — In the spirit of the season, AmWest Savings has kicked off its statewide Thanksgiving Food Drive. Employees at the more than 50 community banking centers in Texas will be donating food items for Thanksgiving baskets to be distributed to needy families in their local areas. AmWest will furnish turkeys and collection baskets at each location.

AmWest employees invite their customers and area residents to donate non-perishable food items to assist them in their endeavor. Food donations will be accepted at all AmWest banking center locations until Nov. 22. Each banking center will work with a local church, food bank, or charity to coordinate distribution of the Thanksgiving basket to a needy family in their community.

AmWest, a Texas-owned and operated financial institution with $2.8 billion in assets, has locations throughout West and North Central Texas.

Jackson cancels concerts

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Michael Jackson says he has grown addicted to painkillers because of his anguish over claims he molested a 13-year-old boy, and he cancelled his world tour to seek treatment.

In a taped statement released late Friday, the pop megastar said he would beat the addiction and "will be stronger from the experience."

"I was humiliated, embarrassed, hurt and suffering great pain in my heart," Jackson said. "The pressure resulting from these false allegations coupled with the incredible energy necessary for me to perform caused so much distress that it left me physically and emotionally exhausted.

" I became increasingly more dependent on the painkillers to get me through the days of the tour," he said.

Jackson said the painkillers were prescribed after recent reconstructive scalp surgery. His scalp was badly burned by an explosion during the filming of a Pepsi-Cola TV commercial several years ago.

Jackson and his publicists did not say where he was going to seek treatment for the addiction. Los Angeles TV station KNBC, quoting unidentified sources, said Jackson was on his way to Switzerland.

A spokesman for the private charter company Jet Aviation said a Boeing 727 arrived at the Geneva airport from London early Saturday. There were three passengers aboard but Jackson wasn't one of them, he said.

The British news agency Press Association said Jackson's close friend, Elizabeth Taylor, was on the private plane and speculated she was heading to her villa in the resort of Gstaad.

Just before canceling the "Dangerous" tour, Jackson had been in Mexico City, where he had canceled several concerts because of what he said were tooth problems. He had canceled other concerts during the tour through Asia, Russia, Israel and Latin America, complaining of various health problems.

He was to have performed Sunday in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Throughout the tour, Jackson has been dogged by a child molestation investigation by Los Angeles authorities. He also faces a lawsuit filed by the 13-year-old who claims the entertainer befriended, then abused him. The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages.

Jackson, 35, has not been charged with any crime.

The investigation began after the teen told a therapist in July that Jackson fondled and performed oral sex on him during a relationship that lasted several months.

Jackson spokesmen have said the claims were made after the entertainer rejected a $20 million extortion attempt by the teen-ager's father.

"As I left on this tour, I had been the target of an extortion attempt, and shortly thereafter was accused of horrifying and outrageous conduct," Jackson said in his statement.

Jackson's Santa Barbara ranch, Los Angeles condominium and a suite at a Las Vegas hotel where he frequently stays have been searched by police. His parents' home in San Fernando Valley was searched this week.

Clinton upping the stakes in the battle for NAFTA

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — President Clinton kept up the drum beat for the North American Free Trade Agreement Saturday, announcing fresh endorsements from three congressmen and declaring that the trade pact "will mean more jobs for this country."

Speaking at a rainy airport rally in Memphis, Clinton said NAFTA has picked up support from three House members who he said understands "you can't put more people to work unless you've got more people to buy your goods."

Clinton said the trade agreement, up for a vote in the House on Wednesday, will create jobs by generating more demand for American products.

He rejected arguments the trade pact would send American jobs to lower-wage Mexico, saying "I believe we can compete and win in the global economy."

The new endorsements Clinton held out were from Reps. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., James Hayes, D-La., and William Jefferson, D-La. Over the past three days, Clinton said, he's gained 27 new NAFTA supporters in Congress.

"We're making some pretty good inroads now in places where I didn't know what to predict," the president said as he left the White House this morning. Still, he acknowledged, "it's going to be a hard weekend."

In an interview with newspaper reporters Friday, Clinton said he has offered political protection to Republicans who might get into trouble for voting for the agreement.

"I don't believe any member of Congress should be defeated if they voted for NAFTA," Clinton said. "I do not believe any member of Congress should be defeated for doing what is plainly in the national interest."

If any Democrat attacks a Republican in a congressional race for voting for NAFTA, the president said, "Then I will say, for whatever it is worth in any given district that I think that isn't fair, that the vote was not a partisan vote. I don't believe any member of Congress should be defeated if they voted for NAFTA."

Clinton also said the fight over the treaty is not just a battle over a trade deal, but a matter of America's national and economic security, its relationships with other nations and the country's vision of itself in the next century.

Officers note numerous calls

Snyder police made a couple of arrests and investigated numerous other calls Friday.

Joe Jackson notified police at 1 p.m. that someone had stolen some property from his vehicle while it was parked at Plaza Truck Stop. A report for burglary of a vehicle was filed.

Officers responded to a disturbance in the 500 block of 17th Street at 9:27 a.m., where they arrested a 39-year-old man for assault/family violence.

At 11:07 p.m. Friday, police were notified of a disturbance in the 2400 block of O'Neal. Upon officers' arrival, one of the subjects had left the scene. A report for assault/family violence was filed. At 11:32 p.m., police located the missing subject, a 22-year-old man, and arrested him for public intoxication.

At 4:07 p.m., police were notified that two boys returned to Snyder High School after being told to stay away. A report for criminal trespass was filed.

A woman contacted police at 4:42 p.m. to report that her son had received an obscene telephone call from another juvenile. A recording of the call had been made and was taken to the police department. A report for telephone harassment was filed.

At 4:56 p.m., a woman came to the police department to file Class C assault charges against a man.

Western Auto employees contacted police at 4:56 p.m. in reference to two males possibly stealing items from the business. A report for Class B theft was filed.

Police responded to a disburbance in the Coleman Apartments at 9:53 p.m. A report for assault/family violence was filed.

At 4:10 a.m. Saturday, an officer located a stolen 1980 Oldsmobile parked on the west side of the shop area at Big Country Chevrolet. The vehicle was reported stolen from Centerville, Texas, and registered to a Jimmy Mask of Gulfport, Miss. A report was sent to Leon County, Texas, advising that the vehicle had been located.

Disabilities Act protects voluntarily obese people

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new interpretation of federal disability law may help some obese people resolve employment conflicts or even get a comfortable seat in movie theaters.

The government is arguing in court that some obese people are protected from discrimination under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) regardless of whether the weight was caused by disease or poor diet.

"Before, if something was deemed voluntary, it wasn't a disability," Peggy Mastroianni, director of disabilities policy for the Equal Employment Commission, said Friday.

"That had some very disturbing implications — what if someone became paraplegic because they participated in a dangerous sport?"

The EEOC, in a brief filed in a Rhode Island court case, said someone who is morbidly obese has a disability even if disease did not cause the person's weight. Morbid obesity is a medical term that means twice normal weight.

If someone is merely obese — 50 pounds overweight, for example — the obesity must be caused by a disease to be protected under the act.

But the EEOC stressed that any obesity complaints filed under the disabilities act would be considered "on a case-by-case basis."

Lawyers say the decision probably will not affect many people but is still significant. Courts have cited the law's weight-disease restriction in deciding cases, most recently last month when the California Supreme Court ruled against a woman who said she wasn't hired because she weighed 305 pounds.

"Anytime someone is discriminated against because of a physical characteristic, that should fall under the ADA," said Jim Goodman of the Persons with Disabilities Law Center in Atlanta. "It will make a difference in accommodation of obesity. What does a movie theater do about seating? What does an airline do?"

He represents a Tennessee woman who wants to bring her own chair to movie theaters, putting it in the wheelchair section, because she cannot fit into the regular seats.

American flight attendants to resume contract talks

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines and its flight attendants' union agreed Friday to resume contract negotiations with less than a week to go before a threatened strike.

The airline sent a letter suggesting that negotiations resume Tuesday in the Dallas suburb of Arlington. But the flight attendants' union left the time and place up to the National Mediation Board, which was overseeing the talks when they faltered Oct. 30.

There was no answer at the board's Washington office Friday night, and neither side was sure when and where the negotiations would resume.

The 21,000-member Association of Professional Flight Attendants says it will walk off the job Thursday — just before the Thanksgiving travel rush — if they don't have a new contract agreement.

"With only a limited number of hours available to us, I trust you and your team will come prepared to finally address the serious issues before us," union president Denise Hedges said in her letter responding to the carrier.

Renewed talks do not mean the union is backing off its strike deadline, negotiator Eric Bergman said.

"We'll have to have a tentative agreement" to call off the strike, he said.

"Our members, while they were initially beginning to be getting some nervous feelings about the strike, seem to have become even more firm about improved contracts or they'll strike," Bergman said.

The airline issued the invitation to resume negotiations "just to make sure that we have made every effort to try and see if there is movement."

Drug overdose killed actor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The image of River Phoenix as a quiet, clean-cut Hollywood actor shattered with autopsy results that revealed he died from a potent mix of cocaine and heroin.

Toxicological tests conducted on Phoenix showed extremely high levels of the drugs, coroner's spokesman Scott Carrier said Friday. Phoenix, 23, died outside a Sunset Boulevard nightclub on Oct. 31.

The tests also found marijuana, the prescription sedative Valium, and an over-the-counter cold medication, Carrier said.

The test said morphine was found in Phoenix's blood. Carrier said heroin shows up as morphine as it is metabolized by the body.

Comedian John Belushi died 11 years ago from the same lethal mix. Unlike Belushi, who died in 1982, Phoenix did not inject heroin and cocaine.

"There were no needle marks," Carrier said. "How it was introduced into his body is unknown at this time."

The coroner's office ruled the death accidental.

The Sheriff's Department said Friday it had closed its investigation into Phoenix's death outside the Viper Room, a trendy West Hollywood music club co-owned by actor Johnny Depp.

Viper Room patrons said the actor had been weaving and acting strangely before he went into convulsions at the club and was led outside, where he collapsed.

Phoenix achieved stardom in films such as "Stand By Me," "Running On Empty," for which he received an Oscar nomination, and "My Own Private Idaho."

Board endorses a stronger high school course schedule

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education endorsed a tougher high school courseload Friday to better prepare students for jobs or college. But some predicted an outcry from school districts that are football powerhouses.

The stronger coursework won't be required for graduation. But school districts' accreditation could be affected eventually by the number of students in the recommended program.

Superintendent Stan Paz of the El Paso Independent School District said schools will be under community pressure to have students in the program even though it's not mandatory.

"The expectation from our communities is that we will provide the best," said Paz, who serves on the board of the Texas Association of School Administrators.

The recommendation is a concern for some school districts — not El Paso — whose athletes now spend two elective class periods a day in football practice, he said. That's on top of the required 1.5 physical education credits.

"I guess they'd have to do it (practice football) after school, of all times," Paz said. "I don't see a problem with that. However, I know that there's going to be some strong reaction from the state of Texas."

El Paso high school football players use one elective class period to practice, he said. "We make academics the priority."

The school administrators' group had asked the board to delay its consideration of the recommended program. Officials cited cost and staffing concerns, and said the board should await input from meetings around the state on what schools teach.

Since the program isn't required, Paz added that he thinks it should not be used in accrediting schools.

Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno, who recommended the course guidelines, said students shouldn't have to give up any outside activities.

"I have a daughter who's in 9th grade this year," he said. "She's in marching band, and she is going to play basketball, and she's taking exactly this kind of a program."

The recommended program has 24 credits, all but three in "core" courses, while the minimum program has 21, including seven electives.

To complete the recommended program, students would need a credit in computer science, one in fine arts and three in a foreign language — none of which is required in the minimum program. The recommended program also includes an extra credit each in social studies and science.

Meno said students could earn credits by testing out of subjects. Some students already are enrolled in advanced programs similar to the one recommended by the board.

JOHN NAPIER DEAD.

John Napier died Saturday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. M. Smith. Funeral services were held Sunday, conducted by Rev. Joseph B. Dodson pastor of the Methodist church, after which the body was placed in the tomb in the Snyder burying grounds. Deceased had been sick for a long time with the great white plague, consumption, and realizing that the end was approaching had made his will, bequeathing all his worldly effects to his sister Mrs. Smith, for the maintenance of his aged mother who lives at Burnett, Texas.

The deceased was a young man of fine parts and his death is deeply deplored by the entire community. He was a friend to all and in return those who knew him held him in the highest esteem and mingle their sorrow and grief with the sorrow and grief of kindred here and elsewhere over the loss of a loved one.

WILL INSTALL OFFICERS.

The following officers have been elected and will be installed into their respective positions in the Odd Fellows lodge next Friday night:

E. B. Barnes, N. G.; Chas. Ligon, V. G.; W. R. Fickas, R. S.; Dr. A. G. Person, F. S. Lunch will be served after installation. Visitors cordially invited.

The Polnac-Quesenberry land suit was compromised Wednesday at Colorado, Quesenberry getting the north and Polnac getting the south half of the section.

Guy R. Scott and family of Snyder visited at the home of W. M. Curry Sunday. Mr. Scott is associate editor of The Coming West and expressed himself as highly pleased with Hermleigh and surrounding country and that he expected great things from The Hermleigh Herald.

Robt. M. Webb of Colorado was here Tuesday. Mr. Webb stated that he was going to build a telephone line from Roscoe to Snyder by way of this place and connect with our local exchange. He thinks that the line will reach this place about July 10th.

HONORS SNYDER CITIZEN

One of the foremost honors that may come to a teacher in the state is to be appointed a member of the State Board of Examiners for Summer Normal certificates. This honor has been confered upon Prof. B. W. Hudgins, Supt. of our public schools. The honor came unsolicited and is therefore the more to be appreciated. Prof. Hudgins has served in the same capacity once before.

The State board meets in Austin July 23.

Elder C. H. Kelly will begin a protracted meeting, Saturday at the Crowder school house assisted by D. G. Wells pastor of the Snyder Baptist church, also J. A. Merritt who will lead the singing. Public is invited.

Will O. Lockwood was down from Emma last week on business and visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Lockwood. Will reports everything in fine shape up on the ranch.

THE CHILDRENS DAY.

Last Sunday June 30th the people of the Favors community had a very amusing Children's day, which was enjoyed by everyone present.

They began at 10 a. m., had a considerable program that was nicely arranged. The exercises by singing and reciting, at 12 o'clock dinner was announced and everyone present enjoyed that part of the exercises. At 1:30 p. m. the congregation was gathered together again to listen at the children rrcite and sing. After which we listened at several of the visiting brethern talk on Sunday school work, who were Rev. Taylor and Bro. E. C. Dodson from Snyder. Then after all was over and everyone seeming to have gained so much good out of the day's exercise. At 4:30 in the evening we all departed and went home realizing that God had been with the good people through the We believe that God will ever be with us in a work like that.

CYCLONE AT ROCHESTER

Rochester, a small town on the Orient railroad was visited by a cyclone Monday night and 23 houses blowed away and several persons injured though none killed.

The wind was reported heavy at Sweetwater and Roby.

Uncle Alf Sloan, the Poo Bah of Knapp, up on Bull creek, was in town this week recruiting his stock of goods and seeing the sights. He is literally the main guy of that ambitious village, performing the functions of every line of business from postmaster to undertaker. He is an old-timer, coming to this country when Lone Wolf mountain was only a great hole in the ground. It is also a tradition that Uncle Alf helped dig the ditches for the Colorado river to run in.—Colorado Record.

Mrs. E. B. Barnes and little daughter, Edwena, left Monday for Boulder, Colorado to spend the summer. They were joined at Colorado by Miss Alma Williams, and at Sweetwater by Miss Mabel Parkhouse who will also spend the summer in Colorado. The party will study in the music department of the Boulder Chatauqua.

Boz Scrivener was down from Dermott Monday.

FIFTH SUNDAY MEETING.

Rev. Holmes Nichols and Deacon Wheeler left this morning for Ira to attend the fifth Sunday meeting, where Nichols will preach Sunday. In consequence of the pastor's absence there will be no preaching at the Baptist church Sunday.—Colorado News.

160 acres fine agricultural land with good two room house, well and storm house only 3 miles from Snyder, $21 per acre bonus, $1 due the state. 1-3 cash balance in 1 and 2 years time. This is no doubt the cheapest land near the town.

Dodson & Werner.

J. H. Tinker formerly of Snyder who now lives at Pilot Point, this state has an ever bearing strawberry bed, off of which he has been harvesting berries since March 1st. June 20th he gathered 4 quarts of fine berries and the plants are in full bloom. The soil around Pilot Point is sandy and very much the same as around Snyder, any one might find it profitable to try such fruit.

Pruitt & Kernes make a specialty of boarding horses. If you want your horse well cared for call on them.

T. F. Baker returned home Sunday from a trip through the North and East with a party of Texas bankers. Mr. Baker says he enjoyed the trip very much which included a sail on the Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence river and the Atlantic ocean and a visit to many of the historic places of interest along the route.

D. C. McGregor was down from Light Thursday last visiting his daughter and family, Mrs. J. T. Davis and attending to business. Mr. McGregor is engaged in the mercantile business out at Light.

N. H. Durham was up from Dunn Saturday. Mr. Durham informed us that the Dunn Independent school district would begin the erection of a modern stone school building. The board at that place have again employed Prof. Helms as principal of the school.

J. T. Caddell came in Saturday from the San Angelo country. Mr. Caddell says it is distressingly dry in that country and there is so much moss in the streams that fishing is not good.

Paint and wall paper at Grayum Drug Co.

J. D. Boone was in from Camp Springs Friday. Mr. Boone says the Snyder-Rotan road is fast becoming a great highway for freighting. The uncertainty of freight matters on the T. & P. is turning a great many to the Texas Central road as the only way of solving the proposition.

W. J. Shotwell who has been on a visit to his father, Mr. A. C. Shotwell for this place left Sunday for his home at Lavon, Texas. He and Mrs. Shotwell will return to Snyder About the first of the year to make Snyder their home.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Snyder of Dunn were in the city Saturday. Mr. Snyder says a great many farmers in his community are through chopping cotton and that the plant is looking fine.

J. J. Pettus of Sweetwater was here last week and leased the J. B. Chambers building now under construction for dry goods purposes. At present, Mr. Pettus is in the dry goods business at Sweetwater.

July 11-12 will be big days in our sister city, Rotau. A number of Snyder people will avail themselves of the opportunity to see the new city that marks the terminus of the Central railroad.

D. C. Arnett of Bethel was in town Monday. Mr. Arnett says his feed crop is splendid this year. Part of his cotton is looking well the part that was not struck by the hail a few weeks ago.

J. L. Mann formerly of Sweetwater has moved to Snyder, and will make this city his future home. The Coming West welcomes Mr. Mann and family to our city.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Charles Jones, local pharmacist, survived a medical crisis last summer that both tested and strengthened his faith in God.

He and his wife, Glenna, were thousands of miles away from home and country, when what had started out as a pleasant family visit began to go awry.

The trip began smoothly enough. The couple left Snyder in late July, flying to Nairobi, Kenya to visit their son, Terry, and his family. Both Terry and his wife, DeLena, are Southern Baptist missionaries. They and their five children have lived in Africa for 1½ years.

Since both missionaries were slated to attend the annual meeting of Southern Baptist Missionaries in Iringa, Tanzania, Charles and Glenna had traveled to Africa not only to visit family but baby sit their eight-month-old grandson Logan. The four older children, Tim, Scotty, Andrew and Aubry, were to take part in Vacation Bible School classes while their parents attended the conference.

While in Iringa, Charles slipped and fell off a concrete porch, breaking three ribs. En route to Dar Es Salaam in Tanzania, on the Indian Ocean, Charles suffered such severe chest pains that his wife thought he "was having a heart attack," she said.

Thus began a two-week ordeal of foreign medical care the couple recently described as "a throwback to the old out-of-Africa movies." Shortly after arriving at the hospital, Glenna's heart sank when she saw a wheel fall off the cot hospital personnel were wheeling toward them.

To make matters worse, hospital personnel only spoke Swahili which Terry understood, but, of course, the Snyder couple did not.

The emergency room resembled a "big closet" and consisted of seven beds and a desk. Charles was placed in the center of the room. Since all X-rays and medical tests had to be paid for in advance, Glenna said Terry made several long trips from the emergency room to the business office.

Doctors at first diagnosed Charles with a "bad lung" or pneumonia.

While at the hospital, Glenna said they met several missionaries who "took very good care of us," including one whose help would prove invaluable during Charles' hospitalization.

A native of Sweetwater, the missionary — the Director of Missions for Tanzania — offered to have Charles flown to Nairobi "if necessary." Because the hospital did not have a chest specialist, that is what the family elected to do.

In Nairobi, a missionary from Kenya met the Joneses at the airport and "got us through customs," Glenna said. He also arranged for a Christian nurse who spoke English to accompany Charles in the ambulance. Charles was eventually placed under the care of a cardiologist, a Dr. Silverstein.

During the week Charles spent in the Nairobi hospital, doctors repaired his punctured lung and treated him for gastric hemorhaging brought on by stress. He also received 17 units of blood.

Glenna said she let Charles decide whether to have the transfusions. He agreed, he said, because, "I trusted God to take care of me in Africa just like He would any other place."

Charles' care improved immensely in the Nairobi hospital, except for the food. During his hospitalization, he lost 20 pounds. Since animals are poorly fed in Africa, the meat served was very lean.

His stay was also boring, occasionally relieved by CNN, the po-

GLAD TO BE BACK HOME — After an eventful visit to Africa last summer, Charles and Glenna Jones are glad to be back home. While visiting a missionary son and his family, Charles was hurt in a fall and had to be hospitalized for two weeks. He is holding the cane he used while in Africa. It's made of rather brittle wood. pular news channel. His only other choice was a Swahili broadcast station.

Charles' pharmaceutical training was a boon during his hospitalization as he "was familar with the medications doctors prescribed and knew that they had prescribed the correct amount." The prescriptions were placed in plastic, airtight film cannisters, a practice he attributed to the country's "never waste anything" philosophy.

They said nurses in Africa are called "sisters," and doctors are addressed by "Mr."

The cardiologist did not want Charles to leave the hospital so soon, but agreed because he would be going to Brackenhurst to recuperate.

It's rather ironic that though Charles' medical care was not what they were used to, the medical bills weren't very much. For instance, the cardiologist charged 50,000 schillings or $700 in U.S. currency.

It may be cheaper, but Charles said he does not recommend getting sick or hurt in Africa.

Though the experience was anything but pleasant, it did not lessen the joy of their visit and it did ease Glenna's mind about having loved ones living in Tanzania. For anything serious, the missionaries and their families can be flown to Nairobi, just as Charles was, she said. Sometimes, doctors can also be flown in.

The fellowship among missionaries and their families is so great that "they take care of each other," Glenna said. Most communicate by radio, but some only have short wave radios.

The "fellowship of missionaries" is something Glenna said she "enjoyed very much."

Missionaries have to stock up their grocery supplies for months at a time, since they cannot shop as often as we do, Glenna said. They usually go on a hunt once a year to supplement their food supply.

Glenna said rain doesn't pour in Africa but rather falls like mist. Water shortage is a problem as are roads, which they described as "like roads to oil leases."

They said no work has been done on the roads since Tanzania became a republic several years ago. The roads are so bad in fact, that Charles said it is not uncommon for longtime missionaries to develop back problems that require surgery.

Missionaries often have to stop and spot weld the frame of their car after traveling on the dreadful roads.

Limbs strewn across the road in Tanzania meant one of two things, Charles said, "construction or an accident ahead."

Cars are essential to missionaries. On long trips to Nairobi they have to carry all their food (nonperishable items), clothes and other supplies with them as there are few places to stop for supplies.

They must bake their own bread, as some areas do not sell either bread or crackers.

It's common for people living there to have to take malaria tablets daily, they said.

On public conveyances, riders are packed tightly like luggage. A common African expression is, "Your bus is not loaded until I'm on it."

A matatus, or first bus ride, is mandatory for all new missionaries soon after they arrive. Charles said they were told to watch their wallets because pickpocketing in quite common in some parts.

They also encountered Massai natives who are "very tall and herd cattle," they said.

While in Dar Es Salaam, Charles said they saw, for the first time, the wood carvers of Tanzania, who sit under trees, carving all day long, while their wares are being sold in shops, resembling flea markets, located behind them.

At game preserves they saw many of the animals Africa is famous for including, elephants and lions.

Charles said that in Nairobi they also ran into groups of people who came up to their car begging, but they were not permitted to give them anything. At shopping malls, there were usually two to three guards keeping watch on their car.

Charles described Nairobi as a "dirty city" because trash is burned there all the time.

In general, Charles said the African people move "very slowly" until they get on the highway — then it's like the "Indianapolis 500 race."

The Joneses said they saw both tea and coffee growing during their visit. Coffee, a common drink, is served with milk, in equal proportions.

They saw gardeners using machetes to work in their yards.

Africans tended their fields in 1940ish tractors which "sounded like a train after they were cranked up."

The Joneses' son and daughter-in-law, who are career missionaries, won't be eligible for a year's furlough until they have served some 3½ to 4½ years. When missionaries do return home they have to pack their belongings into one room of their home, Glenna said, because while they are gone, another missionary family will live there.

Missionaries are engaged in all types of work in Africa, from purchasing supplies to agriculture projects. Glenna said DeLena wants to teach literacy to the nationals. Others teach the people how to upgrade their lives.

Many missionaries are also in Tanzani to help the people work their land.

One missionary philosophy is, "fill the stomach first, then they will hear the Gospel."

The nationals like things made in America, Glenna said. "They are a very curious people and they made us feel very welcome."

DeLena is the daughter of W.D Vickers, a former Snyder resident and captain in the Texas Rangers, and the late Mrs. David Wiman.

Charles and Glenna have lived in Snyder since 1968. They relocated here from Morton after their pharmacy was "the 17th store to close" after the area suffered hard financial times.

He was a pharmacist at Mundens Discount Store until the pharmacy was sold to Wal-Mart. He has worked in the Wal-Mart Pharmacy part-time since 1989.

Besides Terry, the Joneses have another son, Joe Dan Jones, who works for the Texas Highway Department and loves to restore old cars.

Another son, C.E. Jones Jr., is a sales representative in Proctor, Okla.

A daughter, Charlotte Mann, lives in Arlington.

They have 14 living grandchildren. One died.

In spite of the ups and downs they experienced, Glenna said they enjoyed their visit — but both agreed they were glad to be back home.

"I got to see how missionaries work in Africa and Charles got to see how the hospitals work," she added.

DKG to aid funds set for YODA program

Zeta Lambda Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, an international honor society for women teachers, is helping to launch a program to raise funds for the Youth Off Drugs and Alcohol (YODA). This program is in cooperation with IGA Grocery.

The Hobbs Educational Co-op is collecting labels from IGA, Rainbow and T.V. brands to raise money for students receiving help through the YODA program. YODA is an intensive out-patient and prevention center located on the campus of the Hobbs Educational Co-op. This facility in Scurry County is licensed by the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse and is dedicated to treating adolescents, ages 13-17, and young adults 18-21 and their families.

Prevention services are available to students K through 12. YODA offers an alternative to traditional out-of-school suspension or other punishment for students who have experienced trouble because of alcohol/chemical use. YODA services are provided at no cost to the client. Daniel Burks is the counselor

DKG welcomes help in saving IGA, Rainbow (except bread), Marquee, and TV brand labels from cans, boxes and bags.
—Complete label is needed.
—Large packages, like dog food, egg cartons or cereal boxes, save the distributed by phrase labels.

Jean Baugh, chairman of the professional growth and services committee, or committee members Carolyn Derouen or Betty Courtney, will accept the labels at each DKG meeting. Labels will be taken to the Hobbs School where they will be sorted, bundled and sent to Consumer Services in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mighty Mediterranean

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The Mediterranean, covering about 965,000 square miles, is the world's largest enclosed sea.

It separates the continents of Europe, Africa and Asia. From west to east it measures about 2,350 miles and its greatest depth is 15,000 feet off the south coast of Greece.

The Mediterranean connects with the Atlantic Ocean at Gibraltar, with the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean via the Suez Canal, and with the Black Sea at the Dardanelles and Bosporus.

But although North-South bid beautifully to an excellent grand slam, South still had to exhibit good declarer-play technique to register a plus score.

North made a limit raise, showing at least four trumps and about 11 points. Now South produced a void-showing jump beyond four spades. North realized all his cards were working, so he jumped to six spades. Getting the message, South went on to seven.

It would have been easy to assume that the hearts were breaking evenly. But South saw that he had 13 tricks whatever the heart break (assuming the trumps weren't 4-0). At trick two, South led a spade to the dummy. When both opponents followed, declarer ruffed a diamond with the spade queen. He led another trump to dummy and ruffed the last diamond with the spade ace. Back to dummy with a club to the king, declarer drew the last trump and claimed 13 tricks: four spades, four hearts, two clubs and three diamond ruffs in hand.

A nice dummy reversal — but what happens if West leads a trump?

Do not avoid a void

By Phillip Alder

Once you have uncovered a good trump fit, which do you prefer: a singleton opposite the ace or a singleton opposite a king-queen holding? Right — the former, because there are no losers. We say that those hands "fit" well. Yet point-count addicts think the latter is better because they have an extra high-card point.

Hands that fit well will usually generate more tricks than the point-count suggests.

Today's North-South hands fit exceptionally well, because the diamond void is opposite only low diamonds.

Youngsters sniff octane to get high

AUSTIN (AP) — Police and school officials say there is a disturbing rise in the number of youths who are sniffing octane booster, known on the streets as "OB" or "Tolly."

"We're seeing young kids — 11-, 12- and 13-year-olds — going down the hall sniffing out of rags between classes," said police officer Billy Sifuentes.

Health officials say the gasoline additives sold to boost fuel efficiency and engine performance are potentially deadly when inhaled.

They contain a high percentage of toluene and other toxic chemicals and can cause kidney and brain damage, chemical hepatitis and sudden sniffing death syndrome.

The additive can induce hallucinations, lower inhibitions and increase paranoia, said Dr. Richard Scatterday of Irving, an expert on youth inhalant abuse.

"Kids like the euphoria and it's something that they can buy or smuggle out of the store pretty easily," he said. "It definitely has a high profile among the products that are used for inhaling."

In Texas, it is illegal to sniff octane booster or sell it to a minor.

In recent weeks, six Austin youths have been arrested for octane booster sniffing, including four found inhaling the product at school hours.

A junior high student told the Austin American-Statesman that after inhaling octane booster for one year she is forgetful and sometimes thinks about killing herself.

"I don't think I'm all there. It ate all my brain cells," she said.

The youngster said she realizes she is addicted to inhaling octane booster, and that it will hurt her. But she says she can't stop because it helps her forget about her problems with her boyfriend, school, mother and the law.

"They say that if you do it for a year, you die. I haven't died yet. But maybe I will," she said.

Mood divided on Pantex plans

AMARILLO (AP) — Phones rang relentlessly at the Pantex nuclear weapons plant Friday as contractors pushed to find out more about plans for a national lab to study plutonium.

Pantex workers were jubilant at word Thursday night of federal officials' intentions. But reaction was restrained from people who fear that long-term storage of radioactive materials would taint Texas' agricultural heartland.

Plutonium already is being stored on an interim basis in Pantex bunkers 17 miles northeast of Amarillo. Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, meeting with concerned neighbors, acknowledged she did not know how long "interim" would last.

"Whether we have the lab here or not, it sort of looks like we're destined for long-term storage," said Doris Smith, who lives near the 16,000-acre complex.

Financial Short Course Helps Women Over the Long Term

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the question from Mrs. Dodd from Washington state about the correct abbreviation for the year 2000:

Obviously, Oct. 10, 2000, will be abbreviated 10-10-00.

If the material is of such importance that it will influence history 100 years later, it would not be abbreviated anyway.

Furthermore, anyone who cannot determine the date within 100 years obviously does not have sufficient intelligence to need it.

JIM P., CANADIAN

DEAR JIM P.: I received more suggestions than I can handle. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Re: The question of how to abbreviate the year 2000: Since 1000 is "M," wouldn't "MM" be proper for 2000 — for example, "01-01-MM?" Or perhaps "M2" or "2M"?

MYRTLE JOHNSON, MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR ABBY: I am a payroll administrator for a company that employs a large percentage of Hispanics. We require proper documentation when they are hired. In some cases, the document from the Department of Immigration will have an expiration date. Example: Expiration date: 11-02-02. This is the abbreviation for Nov. 2, 2002.

LORNA LUTZ, DALLAS

DEAR ABBY: The U.S. Passport Agency resolved the year 2000 three years ago. A 10-year passport issued in 1990 expires in "00."

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE IN CINCY

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you wrote that several calendar manufacturers had yet to come up with a way to abbreviate the year 2000.

Since the letter "M" is also a Roman numeral for the number 1,000, why not simply use "2M" to represent the year 2000 on a temporary basis?

Undoubtedly, someone will come up with another solution before 3M.

BILL SMARSH, SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: Referring to the problem of how to write the dates during the year 2000 and later, there is only one practical answer: Sept. 11, 2000, would be "09/11/00." Sept. 11, 2001, would be "09/11/01."

On Sept. 11, 9999, people will be wondering what to do next year.

JOHN JENKINS, MANDEVILLE, LA.

DEAR ABBY: Here's the easiest solution to abbreviate the year 2000.

In this age of computers, "K" is universally accepted as the equivalent of 1,000 — so, the abbreviation of Sept. 1, 2000, would be "9/1/2K."

KIRIT N. SHAH, PIEDMONT, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter about women being sheltered by husbands from financial matters, and what a rude awakening they get when the husband dies and they have to deal with decisions. There is an educational program available to empower women to take charge of their financial lives, sponsored by caring organizations throughout the country.

The Women's Financial Information Program (WFIP) is available through the American Association for Retired Persons (AARP). In the past five years, thousands of women across the United States have become informed and involved in their financial destiny. Many programs, as in Colorado, are provided by Cooperative Extension Consumer and Family Programs, which are operated as part of the Land Grant University System.

WFIP is a six- to eight-week program (length depends on local needs) where financial speakers present information on topics such as banking, credit, budgeting, retirement, investment, goal setting, Social Security and insurance. Participants receive a workbook to assist them as they learn about financial options.

While the program was originally designed for middle-aged and older women, the average participant age is in the 50s. In our programs, we have had an age range from 19 to 85. Although it's targeted to women, men are also encouraged to attend and couples find it especially enlightening.

I encourage your readers to contact AARP and find out where WFIP programs are offered in their states. (In Colorado, contact your local Cooperative Extension Office.)

LUANN K. BOYER, COLORADO COOPERATIVE EXTENSION

DEAR LUANN: Thank you for a valuable letter. Many women across the country will find the information helpful.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a first-time writer, doing so because I think your column is the best way to reach a large audience with a very important message that could save people a great deal of grief.

I have been in the plumbing business for 25 years and have seen a significant problem occur periodically that can be avoided. Many people leave the water supply valve to their washing machines turned on when the machine is not in use. The rubber hose that connects the machine to the area's water supply is thus under tremendous pressure, and with age, can deteriorate and burst.

On one of my recent appointments, the owners of a lovely new home had gone away on vacation and left the water supply valve open. The hose to the machine ruptured under the pressure, causing more than $100,000 in water/flood damage.

Please warn your readers to be careful to turn off the water supply valve when the washing machine is not in use, and to replace the rubber hoses at least every five years.

RAY BURNS JR., MARBLEHEAD, MASS.

DEAR MR. BURNS: Thanks for that helpful tip. And for those who don't know where the water supply valve is located, it's located behind and above the washing machine.

It's considered general practice to turn off water supply valves when the machine is not in use. However, according to my plumber, Frank Petrini, for those who forget, there are stainless steel hoses now available that are guaranteed not to rupture or burst under pressure.

Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 12-year-old daughter has been diagnosed with Henoch-Schonlein purpura by her hematologist. Short of knowing that it is a rare disease, I'm at a loss for more information. The spots on her legs are quarter-size down to the size of a pencil lead.

DEAR READER: Henoch-Schonlein purpura is an allergic disease of children that may be incited by drugs (such as penicillin) or trivial respiratory infections. The disease is [illegible] (due to inflammation of small blood vessels), painful joints, swelling, abd[illegible] and blood in the urine. Untreated, the condition is serious, even fatal (from kidney failure).

Treatment with cortisone steroids almost always corrects the disorder by reducing inflammation of the blood vessels. Thus, with treatment, the out look is favorable. Children with this disease should be under the care of hematologists, as is your daughter.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are the symptoms of throat cancer? About a year ago I began bringing up thick pus and brown-red blood when clearing my throat. What actually happens as cancer progresses in this area?

DEAR READER: The symptoms of throat cancer, which depend on the location of the tumor, include difficulty or painful swallowing, lumps in the neck, a feeling of fullness or blockage in the throat, blood-spitting, weight loss, malaise, and weakness of the voice. As the malignancy enlarges, the symptoms become more prominent. Eventually, the patient cannot swallow even his own saliva.

The symptoms you describe could, indeed, indicate throat cancer. However, they may also reflect a simple infection that could be treated with antibiotics. You should be examined by your family doctor as soon as possible. You need a diagnosis. After X-raying your neck and throat, the doctor can refer you to an ear-nose-and-throat specialist, if appropriate.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

Almost half of the American travelers to less industrialized nations will suffer from diarrhea, according to Dr. Bradley Fenton (professor of medicine, University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia), writing in the July 1993 issue of Internal Medicine.

This infection causes cramps, nausea, vomiting, and loose bowel movements. Without treatment, more than 90 percent of cases will last no more than a week. The affliction, however, can severely disrupt a vacation or business trip — and about 10 percent of patients end up with dysentery, an extreme case of diarrhea that requires antibiotic therapy.

Although parasites and viruses (such as amoeba and rotavirus) will often produce intestinal upset, travelers' diarrhea is usually caused by bac[illegible], notably E. coli and salmonella. Therefore, the level of hygiene in the host country plays an important role: [illegible] African nations, where proper food handling and sanitation may be rudimentary, the risk is high. In industrialized areas, such as Europe, the risk is low. In any case, experts recommend careful attention to edibles.

For instance, safe foods are well-cooked and steaming hot, have a high acid content (citrus), are dry (breads), or contain concentrated sugar (jellies and syrups). Fruits that can be peeled are safe, as are hot beverages, bottled drinks (especially carbonated ones) and wine. Ice may be dangerous because it is often made from untreated water supplies.

Travelers' diarrhea is, understandably, more common in warm weather than in cold. It is also more likely to occur when the tourist strays from the beaten path, leaving the usual accommodations and visiting more rural, primitive locations. Prolonged length of stay poses an especially high risk of illness. Although younger travelers are less likely to be meticulous about what they eat and drink (and may contract infection), diarrhea can be more of a hazard in the elderly, who are less able to withstand the consequences, such as dehydration and mineral imbalance.

Even with the most fastidious eating habits, most travelers will likely suffer from diarrhea in foreign lands. The question then arises: how to treat? In general this boils down to: 1.) nothing, 2.) bismuth subsalicylate, such as Pepto Bismol, or 3.) antibiotics.

Mild diarrhea ordinarily requires a diet of safe liquids and patience. More troublesome bowel problems usually respond to Pepto Bismol (because the bismuth is anti-bacterial and prevents secretion of fluid into the intestine) — or an anti-diarrheal, such as Immodium or Lomotil. More fulminant diarrhea usually responds to antibiotics, such as Septra, Bactrim, or Cipro.

Prophylactic therapy with Pepto Bismol may help prevent diarrhea, but the drug is inconvenient in the usual doses (two tablets four times a day) and should not be taken with aspirin (because of toxicity), anticoagulants (because of interference with the prescription drugs) or gout medicine (because of unfavorable interaction). Prophylactic antibiotics are not recommended because of cost and potential side effects, such as allergic reactions.

Because traveler's diarrhea can cause extreme dehydration that occurs quickly, many authorities suggest this easy antidote to be used when symptoms appear. Prepare two separate glasses as follows:

Glass #1: 8 oz. of orange or apple juice, 1/2 tsp. of honey or corn syrup, 1 pinch of table salt.

Glass #2: 8 oz. of carbonated or boiled water, 1/4 tsp. of baking soda.

Drink alternately from each glass, supplementing — as desired — with bottled water, carbonated beverages or tea made with boiled water.

Cholera, a virulent intestinal infection, is again on the rise. It is suspected when the patient experiences dozens of watery stools a day. Ideally, this condition should be diagnosed (with stool analysis) and treated (with intravenous fluids and antibiotics) in a medical facility. If this resource is not available, increased oral fluids (with sugar and salt), in conjunction with Cipro or doxycycline antibiotics, should eradicate the infection.

Diarrhea occurring days or weeks after the traveler returns home is frequently caused by parasites, for which special stool tests are necessary for diagnosis.

As in most diseases, prevention of traveler's diarrhea continues to be the most effective "cure." Thus, travelers should be familiar with the risks that are inherent in the areas they propose to visit and must take special precautions — particularly in terms of hygiene and eating — while away from home.

Stop N Go ending 24 hour stores due to crime increase

HOUSTON (AP) — Some 25 Stop N Go stores in San Antonio will be ending traditional 24-hour service in a response to crime problems and slow overnight business, the Houston-based operators of the stores say.

Two Stop N Go clerks have been among the 202 people murdered in San Antonio this year as the city is on a pace to break last year's record 220 homicides.

"We are going to try it in San Antonio to measure its impact on our overall business," company Vice President Jayar Daily said Thursday.

Stop N Go has 144 stores in San Antonio. Customers who want to shop after midnight will be directed to the 119 stores that remain open 24 hours.

Those stores not open all hours will close at midnight Sunday through Thursday and at 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday. Stores will reopen at 5 a.m.

Company officials say they have no plans to limit hours at stores in other cities.

Brosky sentence...

Reaction favorable

by The Associated Press

Convicted skinhead Christopher Brosky deserves to spend 40 years in prison, but the black community could have done more to ensure that his second trial wasn't necessary, one black leader said.

R.L. Livingston, chairman of the Black-on-Black Task Force in Fort Worth, called the 40-year sentence given Brosky Thursday fair punishment.

But he went on to say that blacks only unify in anger when the victim is black and the aggressor is white. If African-Americans demanded that blacks were punished for hurting their own people, white people would adopt the same attitude, said Livingston, also president and founder of the Better Influences Association.

"We tolerate black-on-black crime. Therefore, we send the wrong message," Livingston said. "It is the African-American community's fault that he got probation in the first place. ... I don't fault them as much as I fault ourselves."

Brosky was convicted of murder in the June 1991 shotgun slaying of Donald Thomas. After an all-white jury gave him 10 years' probation, the public outcry forced Tarrant County prosecutors to bring additional charges.

The teen-ager was convicted Thursday of engaging in organized crime and sentenced to 40 years in prison.

Letters to the Editor

Volunteer here

Dear Editor:

We want to increase the Christmas celebrations in our city. We want to make them a drawing card for people in surrounding communities to come here and enjoy and consequently spend money while here.

To do this, we will need a large group of volunteers so that no one person has to do too much during this busy time of year. If everyone that is asked will volunteer for one or two jobs, then we can accomplish a lot and not put a burden on anyone. If not, we will not be able to do things worth people's time to drive to Snyder.

So, consider yourself asked. Volunteer Now.

Jobs to volunteer for:

Lights Committee

1. Help check l ghts.
2. Help hang lights.

Decorations Committee

3. Help complete new lawn decorations.

Weekend Events

4. Publicity.
5. Help plan programs.

Parade Committee

Pre-Parade Preparations:

6. Obtain judges.
7. Obtain prizes.
8. Help contact out-of-town entries.

Parade Day Preparations:

9. Help line up floats.

If you would be interested in helping with any of these committees, please contact the chamber of commerce at 2302 Ave. R (or call 573-3558) and leave your name, address and telephone number.

Thanks in advance,
Pat Cunnington

No to NAFTA

Dear Editor:

Well, if you knew nothing about NAFTA before the debate, you still don't know much except that Al Gore can hit below the belt. I was disappointed that this "debate" focused more on personal attacks, and that very little new information was presented by either side.

Gore and others speak well of the 6-month notice provided in NAFTA which would scrap the deal, but others think that we will never get out once this thing is passed. A little over a year ago, Ex-President Bush sent troops into Somalia telling us that they would be withdrawn on Jan. 20, Inauguration Day. Well, we've gotten ourselves in deeper than anticipated and now President Clinton says they'll stay through March, 1994.

Clinton also promised, during his campaign, to focus more on problems "at home" and talked freely of town hall meetings in order to involve "ordinary people. He also said that changes would have to be made with NAFTA and mentioned 14 points that he would target. None of these things have been accomplished.

Al Gore pressed Mr. Perot about United We Stand's funds. I would like to tell him and others that everything that we have been able to accomplish on the local level has been through our own efforts and out of our own pockets. I, on the other hand, greatly resent my tax dollar going toward bribing members of Congress with 11th-hour sweeteners (LA-J 11/4/93, 5C).

NAFTA is about more than what amounts to a tiny cut in tariffs. Tariffs could easily be cut without a 1,200+ page document. Henry Kissinger said in a Washington Post editorial (8/20/93) that this is not a trade treaty at all. It is the architecture of a new world order. NAFTA is a surrender of our traditional American sovereignty. The United States Constitution maintains that the regulation of foreign commerce is the business of the Congress of the United States first and foremost. With NAFTA, American courts are cut out of a lot of the trade disputes and transnational beauracracies will make the decisions. This is all documented in Chapter 20 of the agreement.

With NAFTA, U.S. trucks cannot enter Mexico until 1997 and used cars cannot be sold for 25 years!

It is being promoted as a means to curb illegal immigration. Clinton's immigration chief, Doris Meisner, says "Of course, illegal immigration will increase for a short period of time because of NAFTA." America agricultural products (wheat, grain, corn) will force Mexican farm workers north. When asked what she meant by "short period of time," she replied, "Oh about 20 years." The trilateral commission also recently reported that short-time job loss for displaced U.S. workers would be 10 to 20 years!

In my letter of 9/30 to the SDN, I stated that I felt that NAFTA would go to the House on or before Dec. 15, since this is when fast track legislation expires. Congressman Stenholm came back to say that I was confusing this date with GATT negotiations. Well, this monster goes to the House Nov. 17!

With officers now in place throughout the state of Texas, our work, consisting of a county by county effort, has just begun. Our membership goal for the 17th Congressional District was 10,000 members. We have far exceeded that number already, so the votes are there. Mr. Gore says that the opponents of NAFTA are looking in the rear view mirror. He, as well as others on Capitol Hill, should check his!

Know author?

Dear Editor:

For about 15 years I sponsored girls from Homes for Children of various organizations. During this time, some girl left a poem that I would guess was written by someone else, but in the 20 years that I have kept the poem I have not found out who the author is. If you know, please let me know.

It starts "In life his great heart shared with all and none was ere passed by."

It ends "Would he deny a soul like this another springtime too?"

Your help will be appreciated. I would like to read this poem at the next meeting of the Scurry County Penwomen Club and I would like to have the author's name by then.

Sincerely,
Betty Boyd,
Snyder, TX

Thank you

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank all the poeple who helped me to complete my Eagle project for Boy Scouts, fingerprinting children at the Fall Festival.

Dee Kemp, with the parent council, helped arrange a booth. Sgt. Pitner supplied information and materials. I would not have finished the project without the help of Corp. Plock and the Explorer Post.

I would like to thank KSNY for letting me be on the morning show and Donna Fowler for making it fun to be interviewed.

Finally, I would like to thank the members of Troop 27 and all the people who came to my booth.

Sincerely,
Wade Yearwood,

NAFTA flawed

Dear Editor,

I am a resident of the 17th Congressional District of Texas. Congressman Stenholm, who represents the 17th Congressional District, unfortunately, appears to have a strong conflict of interest. He is having a hard time hearing the voices of his constituents over those of lobbyists and the corporate business elite.

Like many other Americans who have read the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), I believe that NAFTA is flawed. Anyone who reads this document or Ross Perot's book, "Save Your Job, Save Our Country," will know that NAFTA is bad for our country and places millions of workers at risk of losing their jobs. It needs to be rewritten before it's approved, but can't be, even though Rep. Stenholm assured us Congress would make changes before it would come up for vote.

My concern, if Congress passes NAFTA on Nov. 17, is for the hundreds of thousands of American jobs that could be lost and shipped by American companies to Mexico in search of higher profits. My concerns are for the loss of American sovereignty to international panels and authorities; for the proposed new taxes to cover the loss of billions of dollars of tariffs; and for the lack of adequate regulation and enforcement of environmental standards by the Mexican government. My concern is for the low-wage Mexican workers who will be exploited by their own government and by greedy American and foreign businesses that relocate factories to Mexico.

It seems, Congressman Stenholm, who represents the 17th Congressional District, is also concerned, but not about the loss of hundreds of thousands of well-paying American jobs to low-wage Mexican workers, not about American sovereignty, and not about new taxes or the dismal regulatory enforcement record of the Mexican government.

A review of public records seems to indicate what Congressman Stenholm is concerned about and why he is in favor of NAFTA. I have discovered that Congressman Stenholm's campaign reports on file in Washington, D.C. show that certain companies, each of which is a member of the pro-NAFTA business lobby known as USA*NAFTA, have contributed to Mr. Stenholm's congressional campaign committee.

Seeing this list of 67 contributors, which includes some of the biggest corporations in America, makes it appear that Congressman Stenholm's vote could be subject to influence.

Unfortunately, the voters in the 17th Congressional District, who have the country's best interest at heart and only a vote to contribute, do not receive the same attention as the special interests.

Congressman Stenholm is not alone. Numerous other elected servants in Congress who support NAFTA have received contributions from USA*NAFTA companies. Some are like Congressman Bob Inglis, of South Carolina, that has on his Washington office door, "PAC — Remember you didn't give me a dime and I don't owe you anything."

Though the majority of Americans voted for change in the last election, nothing, in fact, has changed. In Washington, it seems, it is business as usual.

People like me who have joined United We Stand America are committed to reforming our government and holding our elected officials accountable. Congressman Stenholm will remember me and the voters of the 17th Congressional District, some of the owners of this country, though we may not have the influence of the special interests.

Sincerely,
Bob Powell

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

You know, the FBI aren't like normal people.

I've been finding this out lately, and it's been an education. Six novels of suspense I've done now, (not counting those three in the beginning that didn't sell), and to research those books I've spoken to law enforcement officers of every size, shape, badge and sex; from big-city detectives to small-town cops to Texas Rangers. They've taken me on the beat with them, shown me grisly crime scene photos, paraded me before murder victims being dissected in a morgue, taught me how to shoot their weapons, shown me secrets nobody should ever have to know about how the criminal mind works, had too much to drink and taken me into their confidence about the loneliness of the job, the fear, the grit, the frustration, the politics, the brutality and the exquisite satisfaction.

They all have that one call, that one case, that they will never be able to get our of their minds. Usually even their spouses don't know about it, but they tell me. (A privilege I've never taken for granted).

They've read my manuscripts-in-progress to check for technical accuracy, and called me up to say things like, "Our phones are cream-colored, not black, and we push three buttons to contact another department, not four."

They've become my friends.

Now, I'm starting a new book, and it's the first one I've ever researched that involves the FBI, and boy oh boy, is it different.

The first thing you learn about the FBI is that individualism is not a trait they value in their agents. I'm sure they would argue with me about that, and I don't mean to say that in an undercover situation an agent couldn't rely on his or her own wits to survive. But when they do anything even remotely involving that Big Bad Wolf, "the press" (which means anybody who could write anything that anybody other than the FBI would be reading) — then nobody, it seems, wants to take one step in any direction without sending a tester balloon up the chain of command to make sure their, well, fanny, is covered.

So far I've interviewed four special agents in just trying to set up an interview, if you know what I mean, and I was just told that there would probably be nothing wrong with it as long as I sent a letter to "Headquarters" informing them of just exactly what I was planning on doing. Which I will most certainly do, like, the day before I leave for Dallas. (Hey, we have our little tricks, too.)

Two agents told me that they couldn't read the manuscript-in-progress to check for technical accuracy because that would amount to an "endorsement" by this mammoth governmental agency. (But I'm workin' on another one and I think she'll give.)

So I'll be leaving for Dallas in a couple of weeks. They've pawned me off on their media rep. (Nobody doing indepth research wants to talk to the media reps. If you want to watch a commercial, turn on the TV, you get my drift?) But I've figured a way around that, too.

So we'll see.

One thing I've learned: paranoia is contagious. As soon as you start throwing your name around the FBI, you become convinced that they know everything there is to know about you. I figure they know how much I owe Sears by now.

Who knows. Maybe they'll feel sorry for me and give me a break.

Insurance industry needs regulation

For most of its history, the life-insurance industry has had its own way. Regulation of the $1.6 trillion industry has been left to the states, and regulation there has ranged from weak to medium-weak. Even in states reputed to have tough insurance regulation, regulators sometime seem more intent on protecting insurance companies than insurance buyers.

The major instrument of regulation is the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, an organization made up of insurance regulators from all 50 states. The NAIC writes model laws and regulations for states to adopt. It works through committees, which are lobbied heavily by industry representatives at the organization's annual and regional meetings. In recent years, consumer representatives have been invited to participate, but their voice is still largely unheard.

Congress has abdicated virtually all responsibility for regulating the insurance industry. It has shown little interest in meaningful cost disclosure, in the quality of insurance products, or in the honesty with which those products are sold.

A year-long investigation by Consumer Reports suggests that reform is urgently needed. Only then will consumers be able to buy a life-insurance policy with confidence. These are our recommendations:

*Congress should pass a Truth-in-Insurance law to regulate the sales illustrations that are used to sell life insurance. Consumers have a right to know what kind of policies they are buying, the assumptions that underlie the policies, and any risks that are involved. Deceptive sales practices are a national problem. They require a national solution.

*Consumers should have the right to price information about the policies they buy. The insurance industry would have consumers on the behalf of an insurer's financial strength or on its reputation, rather than on price.

In the late 1970s, the industry and the NAIC took a stab at providing cost information in the form of interest-adjusted net-cost indexes. Unfortunately, that effort was sabotaged by the companies from the very beginning.

While the indexes can be used to compare term policies — the kind Consumer Reports thinks most people should buy — they haven't kept pace with the new types of cash-value policies on the market today. Since the industry and state regulators have shown so little interest in providing reliable cost information, it's time that Congress stepped in.

*Low-value life-insurance policies targeted at the elderly are a disgrace and should be taken off the market. These policies offer $3,000 to $15,000 of coverage and are meant to pay for funerals and other final expenses. Policies offered significantly reduced benefits the first two years and failed to clearly disclose that fact to buyers.

If state regulators lack the courage to ban such policies, they should at least move quickly to establish minimum requirements for them and to ban the deceptive practices that Consumer Reports found in abundance.

*Non-forfeiture laws for cash-value policies must be changed. These laws, which prescribe what policyholders receive when they surrender their coverage, are no longer appropriate for today's policies. The laws assume that policies fixed premiums and fixed benefits, though universal-life policies may have neither. Universal-life alone accounts for about 24 percent of all individual life insurance sold.

The current non-forfeiture laws allow companies to sell policies with low early-year cash-surrender values. That fosters deceptions.

Life insurance is one of the costliest and most difficult purchases consumers ever make. Life-insurance buyers deserve better scrutiny of the industry by Congress and by state regulators. Until tougher rules are forthcoming, buyers will have to be on constant guard whenever they enter the life-insurance marketplace.

Astro-graphs By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Sunday, Nov. 14, 1993

In addition to your regular source of earnings you might get involved in a new enterprise in the year ahead. It will be something you've always wanted to do, but never had the courage to attempt previously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today if you have an important material objective, your probabilities for achieving it are excellent. The secret to your success is to want it a lot. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll function best as the power behind the throne today. It might even be necessary to let another take credit for something you conceptalized.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Let your compassionate instincts dominate your behavior today, not your pragmatic ones. Your self-esteem will be enhanced by being helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Without putting on airs or affectations, you are likely to be the center of attraction with your peer group today. Your persona has an additional dynamic dimension.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're likely to find competitive involvements extremely stimulating today. The thought of being second best isn't apt to rest too well with you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to be extremely restless today unless there is a little adventure in your life. If you can't get others to move along the course you'd like, do things independently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) One of your best assets today is your ability to effectively manage things for others much better than they can do for themselves. This gift will be advantageously utilized.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You tend to mirror the patterns of companions with whom you'll associate today. If you want an active, exciting day select an Aries for your companion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are likely to collect guilt later if you do not use your time industriously and productively today. Work on something that is truly in need of repair.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to avoid situations today where you are relegated to the rear ranks. You need to be involved in an endeavor where you can call the shots.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are motivated by a sense of urgency today to bring something to a conclusion, you'll be a very strong stretch runner. You're not apt to rest until it's concluded.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons with whom you'll be involved today will sit up and take notice when you try to make a point. This is because your words could carry more weight than usual.

Your Birthday

Monday, Nov. 15, 1993

Exciting developments could be in the offing for you in the year ahead. You might get involved in two separate enterprises where each could offer you very unusual rewards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Give priority to developments today that could have a favorable affect on the material security of you and your family. Definite progress can be made in this area. Major changes are ahead for Scorpio in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph. c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163 Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Associates who analyze the same matters you'll be analyzing today might do so through rose-colored glasses. Keep your assessments pragmatic and realistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your instincts for dealing with people might not be up to par today, but your perceptions regarding commercial business or financial matters could be exceptionally astute.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Endeavors you personally manage or control have good chances of succeeding today, even though your projections might appear unduly optimistic. You may come up short, but not by too much.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Impediments that block your path to successfully achieving objectives today might appear overwhelming, but, in reality, they are merely paper dragons. Don't let them scare you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you have a problem today you feel unable to resolve yourself, go back to an old friend who offered you wise counsel previously. He/she still has solutions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You must be flexible today in order to achieve critical objectives. Be prepared to make changes if you feel stymied or unable to circumvent a big obstacles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might not like your mate's assessments of positions you take today, but it behooves you to listen to what he/she has to say. You could learn something for your own good.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your priorities might be relegated to the rear ranks today in order to help someone for whom you're responsible take care of immediate needs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It won't hurt to be a little more demonstrative than usual today in support of the one you love. Do so in the presence of others if possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be in for a pleasant surprise today when you discover how easy it is to satisfactory finalize a matter you've been dreading to tackle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to advance your personal interests today, you'll also have to look out for someone with whom you're closely involved. Your affairs are difficult to distinguish from one another.

Board tentatively approves health books

AUSTIN (AP) — New high school health textbooks have won tentative approval from the State Board of Education despite concerns raised about their references to sex, homosexuality and birth control.

But the board, in a 10-5 vote, made adoption of the books contingent on changes it might want to make in them and a staff review of concerns that were raised in lengthy testimony Thursday.

Final action was taken Friday. Any changes, along with the staff report, would be considered in January.

"I don't think the people of Texas are supportive of what we have in these books," said board member Monte Hasie of Lubbock, who voted against adopting the five textbooks.

Another opponent, Robert Offutt of San Antonio, said, "This is not New York City and this is not San Francisco, California. This is Texas, and this is middle America."

But board member Will Davis of Austin said youngsters receiving the books would be at least 15 years old and are aware of sex.

"Why do we have to withhold facts from almost-adults?" he asked. "Why do we want them to find it out in the back seat of a Ford pickup?"

The preliminary vote came Thursday night, after the board heard from supporters and opponents of the books.

"Parents don't send their children to school to debate homosexual adoption or create a 'safe sex' ad campaign, yet that is exactly what these textbooks call for," Jeff Fisher, executive director of the American Family Association of Texas, said before the hearing.

Anne Newman, executive director of the Texas Council for Family Values, added, "Students may not be able to locate Europe on a map, but they will be able to locate erogenous zones and sources of condoms and contraception."

But gay and lesbian supporters said the textbooks should present homosexuality in a sensitive nonjudgmental way. And the Texas Family Planning Association advocated information that would help students make responsible choices and avoid unwanted pregnancy.

Jonathan Bell, a representative of Out Youth Austin, said gay and lesbian students often feel isolated and fearful at school.

"Schools need to be a safe place for all students," he said, and a proper discussion of homosexuality in a textbook could help that.

The board considered $103 million in textbooks in various subjects, including health, up for adoption for use beginning next school year or later.

Most would have to be put into classrooms later because board members expect to have only up to $10 million for new books in the 1994-95 year.

The board voted to give grade 7 science books top funding priority. They cost $9.4 million, while the health books would cost $7.5 million. Other subjects include pre-calculus, analytic geometry, business law and supplementary readers.

Many of the textbook contents that conservative groups objected to were in the teacher's editions, although some were in student books.

Among teacher edition examples were a suggested student game that uses such terms as foreplay, and a discussion of adoption by homosexuals. Fisher also objected to a student edition excerpt that said, "More than ever before, the single word that described families today is diversity."

Ms. Newman and Fisher also objected to such topics in the books as parent-child divorce and physician-assisted suicide.

In other action, Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno said he has recommended that school districts stop using optional, state-developed AIDS education materials. He said they require substantial rewriting.

The Education Board didn't approve the materials before they were sent to elementary school campuses. The materials also were made available to middle schools, but the high-school version wasn't sent out.

Controversy erupted this spring after a 7th-grade teacher in the Houston area mistakenly distributed to students explicit information that was intended only for teachers.

Meno said he was concerned with "medical inaccuracies" in the materials, mainly due to new research since they were written, but didn't have an immediate example. Meno also said he wanted to ensure parents had the option of removing their children from sex-education discussions.

The commissioner said he plans to submit redesigned education materials on acquired immune deficiency syndrome to the board possibly as early as February.

First schools being selected for new direct loan program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gail Wallace's file drawers are packed with forms she had to complete to get student loans for her two daughters. "It would be wonderful if they could simplify things," she says.

Hers is a common complaint among parents and students trying to meet soaring tuition costs through the federal student loan program. For many, the multibillion-dollar program is a seemingly endless ordeal of multiple lenders, repayment demands and time-consuming paperwork.

Now, despite resistance from banks who stand to lose millions of dollars in annual fees and interest, the Education Department is phasing in a program allowing students to receive loans directly from the government.

On Monday, the Education Department will announce the first schools selected for the new Federal Direct Student Loan Program. By eliminating the middleman and making loans directly, the department believes it can save money, reduce defaults and make the system simpler and more accountable.

Instead of dealing with lenders and guarantor agencies around the country, schools would now have to deal with one entity — the Education Department.

The same goes for students, many of whom have loans from different lenders, some of which have been sold on the secondary market. "They'll know who owns their loans," said Thomas A. Butts, assistant vice president for government relations at the University of Michigan.

Under the current Federal Family Education Loan Program — formerly the Guaranteed Student Loan Program — students apply for loans through colleges. Banks provide the money and the government pays the interest on the loan while the student is in school. If a student defaults, one of 47 guarantor agencies, acting on behalf of the government, repays the lender and then tries to collect the debt.

Wallace, of King of Prussia, Pa., says she has had to go to different lenders to get loans for daughters, Claire, a second-year law student at the University of Pennsylvania, and Cindy, a senior at Yale. She calls the application process a "nightmare."

But it doesn't end after you get the loan, she said.

"My problem is that one of these loan places keeps writing saying we understand you've finished school" and have to start repaying the loan, she said.

More than 1,100 schools applied for participation in the new direct-loan program; about 900 were eligible, said David Longanecker, assistant secretary for postsecondary education.

"We almost have an embarrassment of riches here," he said. Fewer than 250 schools are likely to be chosen.

The direct loan program is being phased in — from 5 percent of the loan volume in 1994-95 to 60 percent in 1998-99. Start-up costs are $2.5 billion over five years.

Food Lion will not close

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Food Lion is not likely to close all its stores in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, despite a financial filing indicating that the grocery store chain will consider closing unprofitable locations, a spokesman said.

More customers are coming into the Southwestern stores since a regional advertising strategy began six weeks ago, Food Lion spokesman Mike Mozingo said.

"What we're hoping to do, as a result of that, is improve sales per customer," Mozingo told The Charlotte Observer.

There is no plan to close lots of stores and no deadline for making a decision on whether the new approach is working, he said.

The filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission "outlined for them a broad range of possibilities," he said. If things go poorly, it's most likely that some of the weakest stores will close, he said.

World pork production due slow rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — World pork production is expected to continue increasing in 1994, but at a slower rate.

"Most of the growth in 1994 will be due to the 7 percent increase forecast in Chinese production," said a recent report by the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

This year, pork production is forecast to continue expanding in the European Community and China, while Taiwan is expected to maintain record production levels.

Eastern Europe, the former Soviet Union and Japan will experience significant declines in production through 1994, the report said. And in the United States, pork production is expected to decline about 2 percent in 1993 and be little changed next year.

Although U.S. pork exports are expected to remain about level this year with 1992, exports to Mexico are 26 percent lower than during the first eight months of 1992.

Swine numbers in Mexico are forecast to continue increasing from 9.9 million head in 1992 to [illegible] million head in 1993 and to 12.2 million head in 1994, the report said

Exports to Japan from January to August 1993 were 4 percent higher than in 1992, at 44,217 tons.

"U.S. market share is growing despite lower wholesale prices, high domestic stocks and a relatively depressed Japanese pork market," it said. "U.S. gains are coming at the expense of Taiwan and Denmark."

The report added: "Forecasts for 1994 are for lower U.S. exports as higher domestic prices and reduced supplies are expected to stifle U.S. exports."

In 1992, total Japanese pork imports surged to 684,000 tons, up 16 percent from 1991, and accounted for 32 percent of Japan's total pork supply.

"Taiwan continues to be the dominant import supplier with a market share of 45 percent in 1992," the report said.

Senior Center events listed

Surplus food will be distributed to eligible county residents through the Senior Citizens Center on Wednesday. Hours for distribution will be 9-11:30 a.m. and 1-3 p.m.

Monday's Game Day in the center will feature Skip Bo and a snooker tournament. Games will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Also scheduled for Monday is a meeting of the Scurry County chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons. The meeting will begin at 1 p.m., following an executive committee meeting at noon.

Hoss Clayton and his band will be performing in the center at 11 a.m. Tuesday. The Senior Saints will perform at 11 a.m. Thursday and the Senior Strings will be featured at 11 a.m. Friday. The Sunshine Choir will go to Snyder Oaks Care Center for a program at 10 a.m. Friday.

Senior citizens participating in the weight control program are to weigh in from 10-11 a.m. Tuesday. The Swimnastics group will meet at Western Texas College from 9:15 a.m.-10:45 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday. The women's aerobics class meets at 2 p.m. on Monday and Thursday and the clogging class meets at 2 p.m. on Wednesday.

Senior citizens who plan to attend the center's Thanksgiving dinner on Nov. 23 are reminded that they need to register by Friday, Nov. 19. This registration is requested so the kitchen staff can plan food preparation for the special dinner. The center will be closed on Nov. 25-26.

Persons who hold season tickets for the Ritz Community Theatre may make reservations for the Christmas show, "Amahl and the Night Visitors," from Nov. 17-19. Reservations for general admission can be made from Nov. 22-30. Reservations are to be made by calling the Senior Center at 573-4035 between 2-5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Australian vet gives plaques to local VFW

An Australian Vietnam War veteran presented Snyder's VFW Post 8231 with two plaques last August.

Lindsay Warpole, who represents the Vietnam Veterans of South Australia, had become acquainted with local veteran John "Tex" Fair while he (Warpole) was searching for an American soldier he had known during the war.

"Approximately six months ago, I rang Fair to locate an American soldier who I was on R&R with during the Vietnam hostilities. Over several phone calls we became the best of mates and in time I was invited to the 101th Airborne Division Association Reunion at Lansing, Mich.," Warpole said.

Warpole, a bomdardier, served with unit 107 FD BTY 4th FD Regt. RAA (Artillery) in South Vietnam from 1970-1971.

He is now a member of Walkerville RSL Vietnam Veterans Association of South Australia.

Among his interests are serving as the hospital visiting officer for Vietnam veterans and harness racing.
