U.S. seeks to 'pinch' Iraq

■ The international quarantine prohibits an Iraqi tanker from docking in Saudi Arabia as reports indicate the Iraqis have shipped $4 billion in Kuwaiti gold and other valuables to Baghdad.

By Robert Dvorchak
Associated Press Writer

The Persian Gulf war of wills settled into one of economic attrition Monday as an Iraqi oil tanker was unable to dock or load at a Saudi Arabian port. A barricade of U.S. warships stood ready to block all trade with Iraq.

"The purpose of the embargo is to put the pinch on them" so the Iraqis cannot "maintain their war machine," said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

"You don't give them the essentials that enable them to carry on the war," Fitzwater said. He said the embargo covers food imports as well as military supplies and other goods.

An international quarantine was imposed against Iraq for its lightning conquest of Kuwait and its massing of troops near Saudi Arabia, which has the world's largest oil reserves. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein launched the Aug. 2 blitzkrieg in a dispute over oil, land and money.

The New York Times in today's editions reported Iraq had transferred $3 billion to $4 billion in confiscated gold bullion, currency and goods from Kuwaiti institutions to Baghdad, sizably increasing its financial reserves. The paper quoted Arab bankers in London and the gulf in its report.

Fitzwater said the naval barricade against Iraq had forced two or three

U.S. should be ready to tap oil reserves, industry official says

NEW YORK (AP) — Increased OPEC oil production could cover the shortfall caused by the embargo of Iraq but the United States should be prepared to tap its own crude reserve if necessary, an industry official said Monday.

The American Petroleum Institute estimated OPEC could boost production by roughly the 4 million barrels a day that Iraq and Kuwait had been exporting before Iraq invaded its neighbor on Aug. 2.

"Saudi Arabia, a key gulf producer, has indicated a willingness to help," API President Charles J. DiBona told a news conference. "So has Venezuela. And to the extent they do, they will largely make up the 4 million barrel per day shortfall. However, no one can know at this point what the net effect on world oil supplies will be."

Commissioners take drug money away from sheriff

■ A recent appeals court ruling says that forfeited drug money must go to the state or a state agency, and county sheriffs' offices do not fit this category.

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Midland County Commissioners took the sheriff's discretionary fund from drug seizures out of the department's control during their regular session Monday.

County Attorney Mark Dettman explained that the action was taken in anticipation of a ruling by the state supreme court on a case involving the Brooks County sheriff's office.

The 4th Court of Appeals in San Antonio recently ruled that forfeitures from drug trials must go to the state, an agency of the state or a political entity of the state. Sheriff's offices are not any of the above, Dettman said.

"Only the county is a state agency with the authority to hire law enforcement officers," he said.

The appellate ruling upheld redirecting drug forfeitures to the county's general fund, with the stipulation that they be administered by county commissioners for general law enforcement purposes.

Dettman said the discretionary fund is in limbo while legalities are pending. He advised freezing the money in a county account prior to a supreme court decision.

Sheriff Gary Painter opposed the fund-freezing idea.

"If you freeze this account that our DARE program comes out of, Greenwood and I would request that you not do that," he said.

Commissioner Guy McCrary suggested placing the money in a separate fund under auditor Floyd Jarnagin and giving the sheriff access to it through a budget process overseen by the commissioners.

Painter approved the plan after establishing that the commissioners would not route the account money into other law enforcement departments.

"A lot of time we don't know in advance what we need," he said.

Dettman said the problem could be solved by making line-item budget amendments during regular county commissioners meetings. He added that the county's policy on providing cash for drug stings would not be affected.

The sheriff's department currently has $350,000 in drug funds, the result of busts conducted with 18 different agencies.

Typically the department spends the money on cars, weap-

County calls for 6.4 percent tax hike

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Saying they've kept taxes low for as long as possible, Midland County commissioners called for a 6.4 percent increase in property taxes to fund a proposed $18.7 million 1991 budget at their Monday meeting.

The proposed tax hike, which would raise the effective tax rate from 16.5 cents per $100 valuation to 18 cents, would be the county's first rate change since 1988.

It would increase the county tax on a $50,000 home by $7.50, from $82.50 to $90 a year.

Because the proposed increase exceeds 3 percent, state law requires a public hearing be held prior to adopting the new rate. The commissioners set the hearing for 5 p.m. Monday in the commissioners' courtroom at the courthouse.

Floyd Jarnagin, the county auditor, justified the tax hike in light of a $1.1 million increase in the budget from 1990's $17.6 million total.

"I have no comment to make except that we're using a sizable amount of money," he said, adding that even with the increase in property taxes, the county faces a shortfall in revenues for the 1991 budget.

"Our budget appropriations exceed our revenue estimates by $1.7 million," Jarnagin said. County revenues are expected to bring in $17 million.

Commissioner Durward Wright said the shortfall would be made up from the $3 million surplus left in the county accounts at the end of the 1990 fiscal year.

Drug education, health issues top Objectives list

EDITOR'S NOTE: The steering committee of Objectives 2000 has proposed community-wide goals for the coming decade. The proposed objectives are grouped in four areas: Education and Youth Development; Economic Opportunity; Health and Safety; and Leisure, Culture and Beautification.

The complete text of all 42 proposed objectives, with brief explanations, is being presented in a four-part series which began in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

Today: Objectives 2000 in health and safety.

With the help of citizen input, the Objectives 2000 Steering Committee and its sub-committees have formulated an ambitious agenda of proposed community goals for the next decade.

The project, sponsored by the Midland Chamber of Commerce with funding from Forward Midland and the Junior League of Midland, began its work in January.

The 31-member committee developed a list of challenging objectives covering a wide range of aspects of life in Midland.

1. Organize a transportation network to serve the basic needs of persons who are elderly, handicapped, or otherwise unable to provide for their own intra-city mobility.

Many citizens who depended on public transportation service were left in need with the demise of MidTran in 1986. Even though several agencies provide limited transportation to their constituencies, other citizens remain in need.

2. Develop a comprehensive drug education program for all children in order to reduce and eventually eliminate substance abuse and drug-related crime in our city.

Clearly, early education is the best measure for the prevention of drug abuse and the social problems it creates. Only through coordination by the school system with the cooperation and support by all agencies can effective results be achieved.

3. Establish an adult dental clinic for critical needs and a referral network for follow-up services to serve medically indigent, especially elderly citizens.

Emergency dental services for low income children are presently provided at Casa de Amigos during selected evening hours. The program is voluntarily staffed by dental professionals and the Junior League of Midland. Such a service is not available for the elderly indigent whose dental problems may cause serious health hazards.

4. Seek and support funding for programs to treat low-income substance abusers of all ages.

Drug abuse rehabilitation programs have grown dramatically in recent years. However, these are expensive services and virtually inaccessible to persons of low income.

Rights restored

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev Monday issued a sweeping decree to restore the rights of all victims of Stalinist repression, saying thousands of innocent people still bore a "stain of injustice."

The decree represented his strongest condemnation yet of Josef Stalin's forced collectivization of agriculture that began in the late 1920s, when millions of peasants died of starvation, were shot or sent to labor camps.

Cartoonist dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bernard "Hap" Kliban, a cartoonist whose quirky depictions of chubby cats adorned T-shirts and were featured in books, has died. He was 55.

Kliban, whose home was in Corte Madera north of San Francisco, died Sunday at the University of California at San Francisco Medical Center. The cause of death wasn't immediately known, but Kliban had undergone heart surgery July 31 at the hospital.

Kliban's cat-design T-shirts included several best sellers, such as one with a caption reading, "Sex, Mice and Rock And Roll."

Actress injured

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Actress Esther Rolle, the strong-willed matriarch in the 1970s hit television series "Good Times," was in serious but stable condition following a single-car accident that killed a Texas woman, authorities said.

Rolle

Miss Rolle, 69, was in the intensive care unit at University Medical Center Monday following the Sunday afternoon accident. She suffered lacerations of the head and face, fractured ribs and a bruised heart, said hospital spokesman Dale Pugh.

She was a passenger in a northbound car that rolled over on Interstate 15 near the California border, Nevada Highway Patrol troopers said.

The driver was identified as Paulene Hopkins, 70, of Marshall, Texas. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

High in mid-80s expected

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for variable cloudiness with a high in the mid-80s, southwest winds at 10 to 20 mph and a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms, according to foraecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight is expected to be mostly cloudy with a low in the upper 60s and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Wednesday will be mostly cloudy with a high in the upper 80s and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

The high Monday was 87 compared with the record high for Aug. 13 of 105 in 1946. The overnight low was 65, five degrees warmer than the record low for the date set in 1967.

STATE

A weakening front brought widely scattered thunderstorms to Northeast Texas and the Gulf coast on Monday.

Scattered showers and a few storms developed from Port O'Connor south to near Corpus Christi and inland to near Beeville and Goliad, the National Weather Service said.

Storms stretched from near Mount Pleasant to near Greenville and Munday, and into the southern Panhandle north of the stationary frontal boundard.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

GULF: U.S. general says position stronger every day ships to turn back at sea, and "the embargo is being maintained" on shipping into and out of Iraq.

Pakistan voted to send troops Monday to help defend Saudi Arabia, joining ground forces from the United States, Egypt, Morocco and Syria. Squadrons of warplanes and a multinational armada, joined Monday by warships from Belgium and the Netherlands, have also massed in the region since the invasion.

"I think our position grows stronger with each day that goes by," said Maj. Gen. Don L. Kaufman, chief of the U.S. military training mission to Saudi Arabia. He said planes ferrying U.S. troops and equipment were landing every 10 minutes or so at a base in the desert.

Saddam called for a "holy war" against the Saudi royalty and Western forces now gathering. Over the weekend, he asked Iraqis to cut their meat consumption by half and refrain from hoarding food. Black marketeers will be executed, he warned.

The Iraqi tanker al-Qaddisiyah, which can hold 900,000 barrels of oil, was prevented from docking at the Saudi terminal at Yanbu on the Red Sea because tugs necessary to guide ships did not appear, according to Saudi diplomatic sources who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

If tankers cannot load, it cuts off, in effect, Iraq's last major oil export outlet — a pipeline across the Arabian peninsula from Iraq. Turkey closed two pipelines carrying Iraqi oil last week. However, a smaller Iraqi pipeline to Jordan was reported operating normally Monday.

OIL: OPEC nations consulting

said the oil cartel was planning a new meeting to discuss how its members should handle any oil shortages stemming from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent embargo of Iraqi oil.

Prince Bandar Bin Sultan said members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are holding "consultations" in preparation for the meeting, but refused to say where and when the gathering would be.

Earlier he said the Saudis would like "to have a stable and predictable market for oil."

Oil prices moved higher Monday, although U.S. crude futures trading halted early because of a major power outage in lower Manhattan.

When trading halted for the day, West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, was up 54 cents at $26.77 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Earlier this year, the price declined to the low $16 range partly because crude output by OPEC and other producers was outpacing world demand. Prices began rising earlier this summer after the cartel reached an agreement to restrain production. They shot sharply higher after the invasion of Kuwait on speculation that Iraq might attack other vital oil producers in the region, such as Saudi Arabia.

But although some other producers have indicated they might boost output to make up the difference, there's no indication it actually has occurred, said Bob Baker, an oil futures analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

"We're dragging down stocks every day," he said.

DiBona said the United States should be prepared to auction the oil held in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve if necessary. The reserve, established after the oil crises of the 1970s, contains some 590 million barrels of crude that could be distributed at a rate of up to 3.5 million barrels per day, according to the Energy Department.

President Bush "should give very serious consideration to releasing that oil," DiBona said. "There is no immediate pressure to do that, but that could change and we should be prepared to do that."

The White House said late last week it had no plans to open the reserve, which is in caverns in Louisiana and Texas. But DiBona said the turmoil in the world oil markets "is clearly the kind of circumstance for which the oil reserve was designed."

Robert C. Porter, a spokesman in Washington for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve Program said it would take about two weeks for an oil sale to be made once a presidential order came in.

"Right now, we are on a higher alert level," Porter said. "The reserve is always on a stage of readiness, but when you get a situation like this, you make sure you are ready, and we are."

Grateful family members return from Saudi Arabia

HOUSTON (AP) — About 300 weary wives and children of Aramco Services Co. workers got a tearful welcome home from relatives at Houston Intercontinental Airport Monday after leaving their adopted homes in Saudi Arabia.

"It's good to be home," said Linda Gunter of El Paso. "We just wish our husbands were with us."

Britten Gildersleeve waited anxiously with her two children for several hours for her 8-year-old son, Nathan, to return on the chartered World Airways 747 jet. Finally she asked a security guard to check inside the U.S. Customs area for the unescorted boy. Minutes later she and her children were waved inside.

"Now's the happy ending," a teary Mrs. Gildersleeve told reporters as she emerged from behind the closed Customs doors with her children.

"You worry from day to day," she said. "And we won't stop worrying until we can get Dad back. We're real worried about Dad, huh?"

Her three children nodded.

A shaky Nathan told reporters he came home "because I missed my mother."

She, however, spoke of scary phone calls from her eldest son telling of troops moving through the area.

Most of the families who had endured the 20-hour flight from Saudi Arabia through Amsterdam were whisked off to a bus and driven to a hotel for the night.

Aramco Services, a petroleum services firm, arranged for the flight both to return children home for their fall schooling as scheduled as well as to allow some of the workers' relatives concerned for their safety because of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait to come home.

Carol McGregor and her daughter, Paula Walton, got to the airport at 10:30 a.m. Monday and waited until about 3:30 p.m. to see their daughter and sister, Tracey Andrews and her two children.

"We just felt we were in the grip of this thing," Mrs. McGregor said. "We've been really anxious to see them come through that door. We've been anxious for their safety this whole thing began."

HEALTH: Wellness programs for seniors needed

(From 1A)

5. Establish a halfway house for women recovering from substance abuse.

Women recovering from drug abuse face particularly difficult challenges, especially when the responsibilities of motherhood are involved. A home-like facility for lifestyle transitions will increase the probability of effective recovery.

6. Expand and enhance wellness programs for senior citizens, and recruit a medical director and nurse specialist in gerontology to coordinate these programs and services.

Preventive medicine is very important to persons of all ages. Providing programs under the guidance of specialized professionals will improve not only the health but the joy of living for our senior citizens.

7. Establish affordable day care programs for home-bound senior citizens, and respite services for their ongoing caregivers.

Many older citizens and their caregivers are captives of their home — never having the opportunity to venture beyond their walls. Temporary changes in places or faces will enhance the quality of their lives and improve the service rendered by regular caregivers.

8. Encourage the expansion of community-based support groups for caregivers of persons with Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, and other acute/chronic illnesses. Develop training programs for volunteers to assist and provide respite for family caregivers.

The unfortunate but growing incidence of these afflictions in our community commands greater interaction and cooperation among the victims' family members. Family relations can be nurtured and the family's ability to cope with the circumstances brought on by the disease will be improved.

9. Establish an ongoing bicycle safety training program, and develop bicycle lanes in new subdivisions and public roadways.

Bicycle safety will aid tremendously in the prevention of accidents among our children. Special lanes for bicycle traffic in newly developed areas will serve not only to save lives, but to encourage healthful exercise.

10. Promote a good supply of quality water, and encourage authorities to educate and notify the population regularly on the chemical composition of our water.

Good drinking water is essential to good health. Legal regulations about quality are often more tolerant than the standards of health care professionals. Midland families should be informed not only when water quality varies from legal requirements, but when it varies from the standards dictated by sound, long term good health.

11. Organize a physician referral service to assist our citizens in finding doctors to meet their needs.

Many of our citizens discover that locating an appropriate physician is extremely difficult. A referral service will ameliorate this frustration among citizens, and provide an added attraction for newcomers to Midland.

12. Encourage the centralization of all community housing organizations in order to assure the delivery of responsive and efficient housing assistance services such as down payment, mortgage financing, rehabilitation of dwellings, housing of the homeless, and low-income elderly assistance.

The centralization and consolidation of the several resource and referral agencies, such as the Midland Housing Authority, Midland County Housing Authority, Midland Housing Finance Corp., and Midland County Housing Finance Corp. now operating in Midland, will facilitate more effective service to clients, and possibly reduce redundant administrative expenditures.

13. Provide an informational database to be used by health care providers and the media educators as a resource in efforts to educate our citizens about the prevention and treatment of AIDS, acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

As our community faces the threats of AIDS, our citizens' most important defense is information. Readily available data will help maintain a consciousness of the problem and keep us working together in its prevention.

Citizens are encouraged to study these health and safety objectives and offer written comments to P.O. Box 2703, Midland, Texas 79702.

WEDNESDAY: Leisure, Culture and Beautification.

MONEY: Change won't affect anti-drug efforts

(From 1A)

ons, informants' pay, drugs, undercover operations and training systems, Painter said. It also funds the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program.

"It's not going to change anything, really. We just need to anticipate our needs," he said. "It's just a change in the law we'll have to get used to."

In other county business, the commissioners:

- Authorized issuance of certificates of obligation valued at $2 million to start the library addition and other construction projects to NCNB-Texas at a net effective interest rate of 6.9 percent.
- Heard an appeal from local attorney Paul Bohannon, who recently represented Midland County landowners in a successful suit against the city of Odessa's discharging of effluent down Monahans Draw.

Bohannon wanted the commissioners to sign a resolution encouraging Odessa to reduce its discharges and find alternative uses for the treated sewage water.

He said he believes Odessa has installed a lift-station to raise the effluent up a gradient and placed a pipe under State Highway 80 as though on the verge of diverting water from the draw. He wanted Midland County to give its moral support to the project.

The commissioners declined to offer a resolution.

Commissioner Durward Wright said the county was involved with Odessa's sewage plans in the permit process in the 1970s and had spent $200,000 to $300,000 of taxpayers' money fighting the discharges, with no success.

He said the fact that Odessa had decreased its discharges by 20 percent was better news than he'd heard in a long time.

"We know and they know what it is that's the right thing to be done," he said.

TAX: Hike would add $6.2 million

(From 1A)

"In good conscience we could not raise taxes any more than we did," Wright said.

On a property valuation of $3.6 billion, 18 cents per $100 valuation will raise $6.2 million for the budget, estimated at the county's 95 percent payment rate, Jarnagin said.

$5 to $10 increases in fees charged by the sheriff, constable, justice of the peace, county clerk and district clerk's offices for civil services will offset some budget increases, he added.

The commissioners also voted to increase the roads and bridges fee attached to motor vehicle licensing fees from $5 to $7.50.

Wright said one reason for the expanded budget is the inclusion of an overdue pay raise for county employees.

"They haven't had a raise other than a step (promotion-related) raise in two or three years," he said. "We've had a nine to 11 percent increase in inflation but this only reflects a three percent increase in purchasing power. They're losing money."

The across-the-board raise gives each employee an additional $25 and 2 percent of his or her base salary a month.

As a result of salary raises and a consolidation of jail personnel into the sheriff's budget, that department's budget has more than doubled from $2.1 million in 1990 to an estimated $4.3 million in 1991.

The proposed budget also reflects hefty increases in the county's insurance payments, Jarnagin said.

Employee group insurance is up from $566,000 in 1990 to an estimated $993,975 in 1991, he cited as an example.

Firefighters number in thousands to save 1,600 homes

NATION

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP) — One raging forest fire threatened about 1,600 homes Monday in northern California and three major blazes remained out of control in Yosemite National Park.

Fourteen major fires and several smaller ones burned across California on Monday. The biggest fire — the Campbell complex in Tehama County — had charred about 114,000 acres, officials said.

But firefighters' top priority was a smaller Tehama County fire, the 17,500-acre Finley Lake fire east of Red Bluff, which threatened 400 homes in the town of Manton, 200 in Mineral and an additional 1,000 in the general area, officials said.

Elsewhere in the West, smaller fires burned in Oregon, Alaska, Washington, Idaho and Utah.

About 1,200 soldiers from the Army's 9th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis near Tacoma, Wash., shipped out Monday to help fight fires in Oregon, Maj. John Lundberg said. They were to help dig fire lines and relieve fatigued crews battling two big blazes near Burns, Ore.

It is the third summer in a row Fort Lewis troops have been used to battle fires. They were fought fires in Yellowstone National Park in 1988 and the Baker, Ore., area last summer, Lundberg said.

An estimated 1,200 Army soldiers from the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Carson, Colo., were expected to arrive in Tuesday in northern California, where a long drought has heightened fire danger.

Firefighting in northern California was hampered by an inversion layer — a layer of cool air holding hot air down — that held in smoke, creating hot and hazy conditions. Airplanes that bomb the fires with a mixture of fire retardant and fertilizer to encourage new growth were unable to fly Sunday or Monday, officials said.

Because of the thick smoke, fire officials had to bring in helicopters with infrared sensors to identify "hot spots" and map them for ground crews.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, AUGUST 14, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Although someone's erratic behavior will upset your plans in the months just ahead, in the long run things will turn out for the best! Your ability to see the best in people pays off big in November. A new job or promotion makes Christmastime especially jolly. A romantic relationship will deepen in January and February 1991. A trip to the altar is most likely in April or May. Traveling next June will help stabilize your financial position.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Susan St. James, journalist Russell Baker, basketball's Magic Johnson, comic Steve Martin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Welcome a unique opportunity to expand your business operation. Key people want to back you. Do not gamble with your assets. Friends play a key role in the resolution of a financial dilemma.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Strike a better balance between work and play. Devote more time to fulfilling your family obligations. Reading for pleasure will enrich your life. Romance proves very rewarding.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take steps to protect your financial assets after consulting experts. Supportive friends provide inside information that helps you clinch a contract. Make an effort to get better organized.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Seize a second chance to advance your career goals. Avoid being secretive. Securing a loan reduces tension. The loving support of your family is vital now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Tighten your financial belt. Set new priorities and stick to them. Family is willing to cooperate. Strive to improve communication at work. Relax at home this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Actions speak louder than words. Investigate stock tips. Avoid giving in to a sudden whim or reckless mood. Following your intuition makes you a winner in romance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not allow a loved one's problems to weigh on you. Seek logical solutions. Give more thought to making organizational changes. Productivity will rise when everyone shares in the profits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study spending patterns before making a budget revision. Personal choices hold greater risk than business decisions. Higher-ups welcome your suggestions if you present them constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A windfall contributes greatly to your feeling of well-being. Postpone signing agreements. Take a pal's financial advice with a grain of salt. Become a social butterfly tonight!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Seek experts' advice on building a strong financial base. Seize a golden opportunity to showcase your talents. A bonus is possible. Romance will improve if you do not act overly anxious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Repay past favors. Joint ventures prosper. Your sensitivity to others makes you an immediate hit with a member of the opposite sex! Count on romance to be happier in the near future.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use greater diplomacy and you will get what you want! A patient attitude helps you deal with difficult people. Keep things simple if you entertain. Others love you for yourself.

TODAY'S CHILDREN enjoy wielding power and will influence others even from the cradle! Candid but charming, these youngsters are quick to announce their likes and dislikes. They blossom when complimented but will retreat from criticism. Count on these Leos to excel at foreign languages, drama and athletics. Born actors, they will expect to have the lead in any school play. Highly romantic, they will look a long time before settling down.

The bidding:

3 ♠	Dbl	5 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠

Before committing yourself to the first trick, take time to plan the play. If possible, make sure that, should your primary line fail, you have another in reserve. This hand is from a high-stake rubber bridge game at New York's famous Cavendish Club.

South took advantage of the vulnerability to pre-empt with three clubs. West had the perfect distribution for a takeout double, which more than made up for any shortage of high cards, and North had plenty in reserve for the jump to game.

Declarer was not prepared to risk his contract with a spade finesse at trick one. Instead, South rose with the ace, ruffed a spade in hand and led a heart. West grabbed the ace and exited with a heart, ruffed in dummy. Declarer drew trumps, ending in dummy. Since West could not afford to discard a spade, that defender parted with two hearts and a diamond. The stage was now set.

Declarer ruffed a spade in case the suit split 4-3, but he did not mind when East showed out. The hand was now a laydown regardless of which defender held the jack of diamonds. When declarer led his last trump, West was forced to come down to two spades, an ace and another diamond, while dummy was reduced to ace-jack of spades and king and another diamond. Declarer simply led a low diamond toward dummy.

When West shot up with the ace, declarer jettisoned dummy's king, leaving West with a choice of ways by which to commit suicide. A diamond would allow declarer to score his three diamonds for the rest of the tricks. A spade would permit declarer to take the marked finesse of dummy's jack, and then score the last two tricks with the high spade in dummy and high diamond in hand. That's 11 tricks any way you look at it.

Schwarzenegger loves fatherhood

NEW YORK (AP) — Arnold Schwarzenegger says he never realized how much joy fatherhood would bring.

Schwarzenegger

"The kid is fantastic, just fantastic. ... I sometimes even change diapers, but let's put it this way: I don't stand in line for it," the bodybuilder turned movie star said in the September issue of Redbook.

His daughter, Katherine Eunice Schwarzenegger, was born in December. His wife, Maria Shriver, announced in April that she would not return to her job as weekend anchor of the NBC news show "Sunday Today."

Shriver

The star of "Total Recall" and "Twins" said he and Shriver, a niece of President John F. Kennedy, both will devote time to the child.

"I grew up in a family where it was very important to be together, to play and study with my mother and father. We always had a strong family unit; it was the same for my wife," he said. "We cherish that kind of upbringing and will make sure our kid — or kids, since there will obviously be more than just one — is raised the same way."

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union filed suit Monday challenging a sales ban on "As Nasty As They Wanna Be," the controversial album from rap group 2 Live Crew.

The suit, filed in Richland County Circuit Court, asks for a prohibition on the arrests for the sale of the album. It also asks that a judge decide whether the album is obscene.

Solicitor Jim Anders, who in June threatened to prosecute those selling the album, is named as the suit's defendant. Three record stores have joined the ACLU as plaintiffs, said Steve Bates, executive director for the ACLU's South Carolina chapter.

The state law Anders used to threaten prosecution improperly subjects a person to arrest before a judge declares material illegally obscene, Bates said.

"We ought to provide a mechanism which determines whether something is illegal before an arrest is made," Bates said.

Anders welcomes the suit's request for a determination on whether the material is obscene, he said. "I certainly join with them," Anders said. "And I think it ought to apply statewide."

Solicitor Joe Watson, whose circuit covers Greenville and Pickens counties, has also threatened prosecution of stores who sell "Nasty."

But Anders and the ACLU part company on whether 2 Live Crew's album should be declared obscene.

"It has significant literary, artistic and political values that reflect the African and Afro-American heritage of a large segment of our population," Bates said.

But Bates acknowledged that 2 Live Crew's use of raw and sometimes violent sexual imagery in songs like "Me So Horny" made it "tough to argue this."

Anders said the ACLU is a group that wants "anything to go" as far as allowing material to be sold. The album, by South Carolina standards, is obscene, he said.

A person found selling obscene material under state law could be subject to a maximum fine of $5,000 and five years imprisonment.

Since the controversy, the group has recorded a song entitled "Banned in the U.S.A.," which borrows liberally from the Bruce Springsteen song, "Born in the U.S.A."

NEW YORK (AP) — Marge Simpson's biggest pet peeves are defective shower caps and "Oh, yes, and the senselessness of war."

Marge, the blue-haired beauty from TV's cartoon sitcom, "The Simpsons," reveals all in an "exclusive and, uh, animated interview" in the September issue of Glamour.

For instance, her favorite way to relax:

"First I lock myself in the laundry room. Then, I put the clothes in the washer, watch them go 'round and 'round and 'round, and get lost in the wonder of it all.

"Forty-five minutes later, my whites are whiter, my colors are brighter and I feel like the Queen of England."

And what makes this two-dimensional TV star feel sexy?

"A roaring fire, a moonlit walk, looking into the eyes of a loved one over an expensive glass of wine," she confided. "If that ever happened to me, that might work."

The Fox Broadcasting Co. show was created by cartoonist Matt Groening.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Media magnate Chris Whittle married photographer Priscilla Rattazzi in a private ceremony in East Hampton, N.Y.

The wedding Sunday was attended only by family, said Tom Ingram, a spokesman for Whittle's Knoxville-based company, Whittle Communications Inc.

Whittle, 43, and Ms. Rattazzi, 34, plan to live in East Hampton, where each has a home, until Whittle's new home is completed in Knoxville.

It is the first marriage for Whittle, whose speciality magazine business has grown into a multimillion-dollar company that last year began the controversial Channel One in-school television program.

Ms. Rattazzi, who has one child, has been divorced twice. She recently published a collection of photographs of celebrities with their dogs.

Congress wants to run Defense

For a Congress that can't shoot straight on almost any issue, members now want to set the defense strategy for the nation. Heaven help us from these armchair generals and admirals.

The U.S. Senate has approved a major shift in military strategy, requiring the Pentagon to change its Strategic Defense Initiative from a space-interceptor system to an anti-missile ground defense. This was adopted as part of the next year's $289-billion military spending program — an $18 billion Senate cut from the administration request. It would slash from the budget the increase requested for research on small interceptor rockets called "Brilliant Pebbles" that are designed to track and destroy missiles by ramming into them.

The Senate has normally backed the "Star Wars" missile-shield program while the House has repeatedly reduced such funds. The House takes up military spending when it returns in September.

Through funding support or lack of it for certain programs, Congress has attempted for the past decade or so to take over the administration of federal policy from the President and executive branch of government. This has been true not only of individual programs but an entire policy range, e.g., foreign affairs. That is precisely what caused the bitter battle over Nicaragua and other foreign policy matters.

If it is true that the country cannot have 535 secretaries of state, it is also in the nation's best interests not to have 535 defense secretaries and joint chiefs of staff. The Pentagon says the Senate action would wreck the most promising technology in the anti-missile plan.

Democratic Sens. Jeff Bingaman of New Mexico and Richard Shelby of Alabama led the fight for the "Brilliant Pebbles" financial cuts in support of defense programs in their states. Theirs was naked greed and self-interest.

If Senators Bingaman, Shelby and others win this battle, perhaps they will wish to direct U.S. military strategy in the Mideast. It is only a matter of degree as the nation already witnessed in Nicaragua. Fortunately, U.S. Democratic Senate policy was defeated by a free election in Nicaragua.

Hussein's peaceful facade a joke

WASHINGTON — When it comes to faux pas, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum's performance in Iraq in April will be hard to beat.

Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, left his chutzpah at home when he met with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. In one of the rare times when Hussein deigned to meet with American lawmakers, Metzenbaum used the occasion to effusively call Hussein a "stong and intelligent man" who wanted peace. Oops.

Anderson

Granted, Metzenbaum could not have been expected to know that Hussein would invade his neighbor, Kuwait, four months later. But at least Metzenbaum might have noticed Hussein's eight-year war with Iran, his attempts to develop nuclear bombs to obliterate Israel, the murder of thousands of Kurds with poisonous gas and the torture and execution of hundreds of children whose only crime was that their parents were Hussein's enemies.

None of that was a secret. So how did Metzenbaum become the original "innocent abroad"? Here's the whole story.

Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., headed a delegation of senators to the Middle East and wanted an appointment with Hussein. At first, Hussein refused. He doesn't like Americans and rarely makes time for them.

In a meeting with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, the five senators in the delegation (Dole, Metzenbaum, Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, and James McClure, R-Idaho) mentioned that Hussein would not see them. Mubarak picked up the phone, called Hussein and talked him into a meeting.

Dole and the other four got on the phone with President Bush to consult with him about what they should get from Hussein. After the call, our sources say, Metzenbaum expressed reservations about going to Iraq because he is Jewish and Hussein is reputedly anti-Semitic. The others persuaded him to go.

The meeting got off to a bad start. The interpreter was five minutes late, and Hussein was visibly tense. Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz speaks fluent English, and he had begun translating when the interpreter arrived, huffing and puffing. His face was ashen, apparently because he knew Hussein was not a man to be kept waiting. The interpreter clicked his heels together and saluted in a manner that was "half a 'heil' (as in 'Heil Hitler') and half fear," according to a source who was at the meeting.

The tense moment was a grim reminder for some of those present that Hussein has a reputation for executing those who irritate him.

We have obtained a transcript of the meeting, the accuracy of which was verified by participants. Hussein kept saying "We want peace," and apparently Metzenbaum believed him.

"Mr. President," Metzenbaum said to Hussein, "perhaps you have been given some information on me beforehand. I am a Jew and one of the staunch supporters of Israel. I did have some reservations on whether or not I should come on this visit."

Hussein reassured Metzenbaum and the senator continued, "I have been sitting here and listening to you for about an hour, and I am now aware that you are a strong and intelligent man, and that you want peace.

The next day during a brief press conference in Jerusalem, Metzenbaum had come to his senses. He said Hussein "has a war psychosis and has difficulty bringing himself to the peace table..."

Lessons from a tyrant and bum

Ex malo bonum," goes the saying. Good comes from evil — not excluding a palpable evil like Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The specific good on view is the sobered realization that the world is a dangerous place, and that polite, well-scrubbed nations, however innocently they conduct themselves, are subject to getting their pencil boxes broken and their noses bloodied by glowering bullies. To some this home truth comes almost as divine revelation. Thomas Friedman writes in the New York Times: "After all the velvet revolutions in Eastern Europe in 1989, the world had been lulled into thinking that such naked acts of aggression (as the Iraqi invasion) were a thing of the past."

Murchison

Lions and lambs were lying down together, and plump pink Cupids twanged their bow strings. Congress looked at the defense budget as though it were a malignant tumor that had to be cut out. Suddenly Iraqi troops slammed into neighboring Kuwait. The world gaped in shock and horror.

Iraq — good grief! A sandy, sun-baked nation like Iraq causing trouble on every front page and 5:30 newscast? What's the world coming to?

Allow me to suggest that the world isn't coming to anything new; it's where it's always been. There are responsible powers — like us — and blatantly malicious ones — like Iraq. The job of the responsible powers, from ancient Rome through imperial Britain on up to post-World War II America, has been to make sure the malicious ones don't embroil or infect the world outside their borders. The world, like any urban jungle, needs policemen. At this moment the badge and truncheon are ours by default.

Yet virtually since the onset of the velvet revolutions, a money-hungry Congress has been laboring to castrate the defense budget. This misguided enterprise, if carried through, will give us a defense establishment with a high voice and timid disposition.

Slashing the defense budget, as opposed to rearranging it to meet an evolving situation, is bad enough. Gutting programs needed to deal with neighborhood thugs like Saddam Hussein is idiotic.

All year long Congress has been hacking away at the Strategic Defensive Initiative (SDI). Behind the scenes, extraordinary things are happening with SDI. In a couple of years, we could be ready to test, and in a few more years after that deploy SDI., the "Brilliant Pebbles" strategy, in which computer-guided rockets would be used to knock down incoming missiles.

The price tag, including deployment, is expected to be less than $10 billion. Yet the House and Senate Armed Services committees in July voted to cut SDI's proposed budget of $4.66 billion by $1 billion and $1.7 billion respectively. The full Senate, even while Saddam raged and stomped around Kuwait, voted to redirect SDI research away from "Brilliant Pebbles."

Do our leaders forget that Saddam Hussein is toiling to produce nuclear weapons? The Israelis, in 1981, discerning what he was up to, blithely bombed his nuclear facility back to the Stone Age. This delayed without deterring him. It has been estimated that Iraq within four years will have nuclear capability.

What if, having produced the Big One, Saddam threatens to use it, not on a pygmy power like Kuwait but on Saudi Arabia? Or on us? A fully functioning SDI system would render Saddam's prospects implausible, if not downright impossible.

Nor is Saddam the only megalomaniacal foreigner we need to worry about. In a world with a hundred and a half sovereign nations, these people come out of the woodwork. Remember how recently Col. Gadhafi vexed us. The Soviets themselves remain a nuclear superpower with uncertain prospects for the future.

In this life, we never have it made: Is not this the lesson of Iraq? A responsible American government will prepare for any eventuality.

Saddam Hussein is a tyrant and a bum. That's not to say he hasn't got a world of things to teach us.

CHARLEY REESE

Killing B-2 bomber closing in on sabotage

About 4 p.m. one day I read a copy of a speech by Rep. Andy Ireland, R-Fla., endorsing the idea of killing the B-2 bomber. Well after midnight I was still stalking up and down the floor in my bedroom muttering profanities and curses.

Reese

Well, I'm calm now and I can tell you in family English why Mr. Ireland's statement so irritated me.

First of all, he talks of the B-2 bomber as an economic problem, and it is a strategic nuclear deterrence problem. It doesn't really matter at this point how much it costs because if you want a penetrating bomber capable of surviving and fighting in the 1990s, it's the B-2 or nothing.

It's not as if there are several of these things sitting in showroom windows and Congress can shop, buy one, then take it back and go somewhere else. Thus, a decision to kill the B-2, is not a decision to save money. It is a decision to alter radically the strategic nuclear deterrent of the United States. It is a decision to throw a wrench into the strategic nuclear planning and the strategic arms reduction planning at the last minute when there is no time to recover. It borders closely on sabotage.

In other words, the U.S. position on strategic arms reduction is predicated on the B-2 bomber. The nuclear deterrence planning is predicated on the B-2 bomber.

Which leads me to the point that really lit my fuse. To read Mr. Ireland's speech, you would think the Defense Department, in the dead of night, sneaked out to California and launched the B-2 bomber program entirely on its own.

Not so. Congress authorized the B-2. Not one dollar can be spent that is not authorized and appropriated by Congress. The B-2 is not an Air Force project and it is not a Defense Department project. It is a congressional project that Congress authorized and funded.

Moreover it is a project that Congress has had underway for well over 10 years. At any time early on, Congress could have killed the project and the military could have made other plans. To wait until the plane is rolling off the assembly line and then try to kill it amounts, as I said, to an act of sabotage, not to mention an enormous waste of money already invested.

It wreaks the nuclear deterrent plans for the late 1990s. It cuts the ground out from under the U.S. strategic arms reduction position. Anything which weakens our deterrent posture jeopardizes the lives and freedom of 250 million Americans. It hurts U.S. arms negotiators. It helps the Soviet Union. It's hard to bargain when Congress gives away your chips before you get to the table.

I am so sick of congressmen playing this "Who me? I'm not responsible for anything" scam on the American people I could — well, I won't say.

This kind of behavior is precisely why, despite billions of dollars, the U.S. finds itself facing a modernized nuclear offensive force in the Soviet Union while our own deterrent forces are at the razor's edge of inadequacy.

After all, Congress for example has been debating whether or not to deploy a mobile missile for about 15 years and is still undecided. In the meantime, the Soviets, of course, have deployed two mobile ICBM systems, neither of which can be held at risk by American missiles. They can be held at risk only by manned, penetrating bombers.

Mr. Ireland dismisses the threat of the world's largest nuclear arsenal, configured by the way for a first strike and nuclear warfighting, not deterrence. A banker, he proceeds to lecture the military on the need to fight what he calls low-intensity, non-national types of conflicts. He seems, however, to be somewhat confused as to just what these are, for he mentions Vietnam and Korea, and if they weren't high intensity, national-type wars, then over 100,000 dead Americans must have gotten killed by mistake.

Moreover, he neglects to point out that what ended Vietnam was strategic bombing of Hanoi and what ended Korea was the threat of strategic nuclear bombing — not light infantry actions. I hope he knows more about banking than he does about military tactics, strategy and history.

Let's keep the B-2 and get rid of the present Congress. Now that's a cost-overrun boondoggle.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

For some, global excitement is irresistible

The Devil called Hitler into his airconditioned office in Hell.

"Nice, huh?" smiled the Devil.

Hitler, soaked in sweat from another day in the steaming, blistering heat of his just reward, nodded weakly.

Grizzard

"But don't get used to it," the Devil warned. "As soon as I'm through with you, it's back to upside down in the dung pit."

Again, Hitler nodded. The dung pit was Hell's Who's Who, a sort of Hall of Infamy for history's Really Nasty Boys.

Besides Hitler, the lineup included the Ayatollah Khomeini, Joe Stalin, Attila the Hun, Jack the Ripper, and the advertising executives who came up with the phrase "new and improved."

"I know you've been out of touch for 45 years," the Devil went on, "but I think you'll get a kick out of what's going on upstairs."

Hitler's mustache twitched with anticipation.

"First of all," said the Devil, "your beloved Fatherland is back."

"But that can't be," said Hitler. "I heard the Allies split us up after the war so that we would be too weak to cause the world any more trouble."

"That's true, mein Fuhrer," mocked the Devil. "But now East Germany and West Germany are reunifying and are on the verge of becoming THE dominant force in Europe again."

"But how did this happen?" asked an amazed Hitler. "Why didn't the Soviet Union put a stop to such a thing?"

"Because," said the Devil, "the Soviet Union is up to its babushka in its own troubles. The Soviet economy is a joke. Communism is in big trouble and Eastern Bloc nations are lifting themselves from under the weakened Soviet thumb."

"I can't wait to tell Joe back at the dung pit," laughed Hitler.

He continued: "But what about the British and the Americans? They didn't see the threat of a return of a unified, powerful Germany?"

"Are you serious?" asked the Devil. "They're too busy with their own problems, too. Unemployment is rampant in Britain, and the Americans owe everybody and his brother-in-law."

Hitler, elated, did a jig step. "Wunderbar, the Fatherland is back in business," he exclaimed.

"So is Japan," said the Devil.

"But the rumor over at the pit was the Americans nuked the Japanese off the map in '45," said Hitler.

"They did," said the Devil. "But you know the Japanese. They're as strong and rich as ever."

"Do they have any plans for another sneak attack on the Americans?" asked Hitler, licking his chops.

"No," answered the Devil. "They've got a new plan. They're buying the United States building by building, golf course by golf course."

"Let me see if I have all this straight," said Hitler to the Devil. "Deutschland is being reunified and is once again emerging as a world power and the Japanese are back in clover.

"And the Soviet Union is belly up and the British still haven't learned a thing, and the Americans can't pay their bills."

"That's about it," said the Devil.

"I don't guess there's any possibility I could... " began Hitler, before being interrupted by the Devil.

"Forget it," he said to Hitler. "You had your chance."

Hitler, severely disappointed he wasn't going to get another opportunity at trying to take over the world, cursed under his breath and was returned to the dung pit.

"Dang," said the Devil a few moments later. "I forgot to tell him about the Skinheads."

Thousands of office workers stream across the Brooklyn Bridge Monday after being let off work early because of a fire that left lower Manhattan without electricity.

Fire cripples Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — An electrical fire knocked out power to the skyscrapers of Manhattan's financial district Monday, disrupting stock trading, stranding people in elevators and sending thousands home early through traffic-snarled streets.

The midday cable fire at a Consolidated Edison substation spewed plumes of black acrid smoke into the air over the southern tip of Manhattan.

Many subway lines and commuter tunnels were stalled or shut down; thousands walked across the Brooklyn Bridge and rush-hour ferry service began early.

The outage affected 4,150 customers, mostly businesses employing tens and possibly hundreds of thousands of employees.

Con Edison issued an emergency plea to cut energy use, worried about a possible overload that could knock out additional networks. The utility restored power to about three-quarters of the affected area by 5 p.m.

The New York Stock Exchange was unaffected by the outage, spokesman Ray Pellechia said. But the American Stock Exchange, New York Mercantile Exchange and Commodity Exchange all halted trading for the day at 1 p.m.

Judge endorses plan

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge Monday defended and then began imposing a nationwide plan intended to quickly compensate thousands of workers with asbestos-related diseases, some of whom have waited years for payment.

In a step toward resolving 20 years of litigation, U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein ordered hearings to determine whether Eagle-Picher Industries Inc. can settle 65,000 pending claims in a single class action case.

Weinstein also endorsed combining the Manville trust — the nation's largest asbestos claims resolution system — with money from other defendant companies into a national fund that would apportion compensation on the basis of need.

The action followed an unusual joint order Friday by 10 federal judges from around the country who were frustrated by clogged court dockets, mounting claims and resolution so slow that many asbestos victims die before they are paid.

"We have got to pay these people who are entitled to be paid and we have to reduce the costs," Weinstein told a crowded hearing in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn.

Weinstein and the nine other federal judges approved a three-tiered plan for resolving about 90,000 lawsuits pending in state and federal courts nationwide.

Cheney slows Seawolf

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney ordered a cutback Monday in production of the Seawolf attack submarine and the Arleigh Burke destroyer in an attempt to save $7 billion over the next four fiscal years.

The budget-driven cuts can be made because of the lessened Soviet threat, but the crisis in the Persian Gulf reveals the need for an up-to-date Navy, the secretary said in a statement.

"There is little doubt that the recent events in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe have altered the social and political makeup of the world, and our ongoing planning assessments are based on the increased prospects for reduced world tensions," Cheney said.

"However, current events remind us of how fragile world peace can be. Therefore, we continue to require a superior naval force to maintain free and open use of the seas."

Bush slates meeting

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush will meet with his senior economic advisers Tuesday to review the costs of the Persian Gulf conflict and prepare for next month's negotiations with the Democrats on the budget deficit, the White House said Monday.

The gulf crisis has already pushed up oil prices, creating a further drag on a sluggish U.S. economy veering closer to a recession.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady has said the conflict could bring the economy's already-anemic growth rate "closer to zero," although he says a recession is not inevitable.

Barry becomes independent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Marion Barry dropped his Democratic affiliation and declared himself an independent Monday, saying he wanted to "keep my options open" for a possible political comeback.

Barry political advisers have said the mayor, who was convicted Friday of a misdemeanor cocaine possession charge and acquitted of another, intends to run for a city council seat. But Barry refused to rule out anything — including another bid for mayor.

His trial jury was unable to reach a verdict on 12 charges — including three felony perjury counts — and the U.S. attorney has said he will decide within the next month whether to retry Barry.

Barry, at a news conference, was asked how it would feel running against an old colleague who is also seeking an at-large council seat.

"You're assuming I'm not running for mayor," Barry retorted.

Pressed on the issue, Barry said, "I have a lot of options ... and I believe I still have a significant contribution to make to the city I love."

Barry in June announced just before the start of his drug and perjury trial that he would not run for mayor. Since the deadline for entering the city's Sept. 11 party primaries ended July 5, Barry's only chance to get on the ballot for November's general election is to run as an independent.

To make a run for the city-wide council seat, the mayor must also gather signatures from 3,000 registered voters before Aug. 29. He would need the same number of signatures to run for mayor.

Some of Barry's top advisers believe that if Barry re-enters politics, he is more likely to receive jail time for his cocaine conviction, sources in his political camp say. Some of the mayor's followers also believe that U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens would be more likely to retry the mayor on a dozen charges the jury in his drug and perjury trial was unable to resolve, the sources added.

State works to make Medicaid headache disappear

By James Cullen
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

STATE

AUSTIN — A temporary cutoff in Medicaid reimbursement is causing doctors and hospitals to consider whether participation in the government-funded health program is worth the trouble, the chairman of the Texas Senate Health and Human Services Committee said Monday.

The chairman, Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said the Legislative Budget Board has little choice but to allow the Texas Department of Human Services to transfer $76 million from other accounts and to advance money appropriated for the 1991 budget to pay Medicaid bills through August.

The National Heritage Insurance Co. (NHIC), which administers the $1.37 billion Medicaid program under a state contract, cut off payments to health care providers as of July 25 because the state ran out of money in its Medicaid account with a month left in the fiscal year.

Although the Legislature approved a $32 million bailout for the welfare programs in May, DHS Commissioner Ron Lindsey attributed the agency's new deficit to continuing fallout as more Texans become eligible and apply.

If the Legislative Budget Board approves the $76 million in transfers Aug. 24, which will attract federal matching money, Lindsey said, the state would have the money to pay the $117 million the state owes NHIC.

John G. Crysler, vice president for EDS Federal Corp., a General Motors subsidiary which operates NHIC, said the company is still processing Medicaid claims and would issue checks the week following the budget transfer.

Brooks said he expects the budget board, on which he sits, to approve the fund transfers, but that still leaves the Legislature with a DHS deficit that is projected at $314 million for the 1991 fiscal year.

"We'll almost certainly have to do an emergency appropriation sometime during the next session," he said.

Ron Lindsey, left, Texas Department of Human Services commissioner and Larry Don Shaw look over their notes as they wait to testify at a Senate committee hearing in Austin Monday on the July 25 cutoff of Medicaid payments because of the state's lack of funds.

Electric rates go up today

■ Consumers' monthly electric bill will be $7 to $8 more, even though TU's regulating agency has yet to approve its requested rate hike.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

TU Electric Co., which provides power to residents of Midland and Odessa, will begin levying an average rate increase of 10.2 percent today.

The increase — which TU estimates will add $7 to $8 per month to the average residential bill — was put into effect under bond pending final approval by the Texas Public Utility Commission (PUC).

"The increase is to cover construction of Unit 1 of Comanche Peak (nuclear power plant) ... growth of the TU Electric service area and meeting the growing demand," said Stan Garrison, Region Customer Service Manager for TU Electic in Midland.

"After the increase, rates will still be about 14 percent below the national average," Garrison added.

The rate hike will raise the company's annual revenues by $442 million.

TU originally filed an increase request with the PUC and local regulators on Jan. 16. and the PUC began hearings on the request April 26.

By law, if the PUC doesn't make a final decision after 185 days from the date a request is filed, a utility company can implement the new rates under bond. The bond insures a refund for customers in the event the request is eventually denied.

Garrison said he expects the request to be approved.

"The case has gone very good so far," he said.

Bill Dunn, a PUC spokesman in Austin, said he estimates the commission will arrive at a decision in the case sometime in January 1991.

Dunn said the decision is taking longer than normal because of the deliberation of expenses incurred in the construction of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant.

"The nuclear plant is the single biggest issue," Dunn said.

"For a utility to reflect cost in rates in building a major facility, the utility has to show that costs were prudently incurred through efficient management," Dunn said.

So far, Dunn said, a "pretty wide range of viewpoints" concerning whether this criteria has been met has and is being presented at the PUC hearing.

The building costs for Comanche Peak — on which construction began in 1974 — was $5.8 billion.

"Comanche Peak was put into commericial operation for the first time this morning (Monday) at 8 a.m.," Garrison said. The plant had been in operation previously but as part of a testing period; Unit 1 has been supplying electricity to customers since April 24.

"Since 1984 the financial condition of the company has steadily worsened because of construction costs of the plant and continued growth," Garrison said.

Aside from the decision whether expenses incurred by the construction of Comanche Peak warrant the rate hike, Garrison points out that the increase is the first since 1984. In fact, Garrison said, the company has had two fuel cost reductions since then.

The new rate will be comparable to the 1984 rate, Garrison said.

"The weather (fluctuation reflected in heating and cooling costs) is going to be more of a factor to the consumer than the rate increase" in a month-to-month comparison, Garrison said.

The City of Midland, along with several other West Texas cities, have gone on record to object to TU's latest requested rate increase.

Woman gives Yucca its pop

■ Midlander Liz Montagna realizes there's something about being the Yucca Theater's popcorn chairman that appeals to her senses.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Popping hundreds of pounds of popcorn in a claustrophobic, steamy room may not seem like an ideal way to spend a Saturday night, but don't tell Liz Montagna.

The longtime Midlander and theatre popcorn chairman pops about 500 pounds of popcorn seeds on an average summer weekend at the downtown Yucca Theatre. Most of the popcorn winds up on the floor, thrown by Summer Mummer revelers during the melodrama intermissions. But plenty of it gets eaten.

She said the appetizing scent of fresh, salty popcorn carries far.

"We have people off the street — nontheatergoers — come up to the back door to buy popcorn," Ms. Montagna said. "One customer said he could smell the popcorn for a block."

A popping crew of 10-12 volunteers begins popping the fluffy white foodstuff hours before a performance. By 5 p.m., some crew members have hair plastered to their heads in the tiny sauna-like popping room behind the bar.

"The Yucca, built in 1929, was designed in pre-air conditioning days," Ms. Montagna said.

Despite the less-than-desirable conditions, game volunteers fill hundreds of popcorn bags on 28 trays which are brought back empty to be refilled again by a selling crew of eight to 10 theater supporters.

The process continues until the olio of novelty acts starts up, following the melodrama around 10:30 p.m.

Then there is the cleanup. But Ms. Montagna takes all the work in stride. Selling popcorn is only one of her behind-the-scenes endeavors with the theater. A theater supporter since her high school days in the mid-'50s, the volunteer also has run props, applied makeup and acted as a dresser backstage for many productions.

"I don't like moving furniture on sets," she said. "But, I have done everything else to help backstage."

She said her most difficult task in-

Undercover officer first to testify at teacher's drug trial

By David Morris
Staff Writer

A 238th District Court jury heard opening testimony Monday in the trial of Jimmie Clarence Sims Jr., a San Jacinto Junior High School football coach arrested last October and charged with delivery of cocaine.

Sims, 35, pleaded innocent Monday before Judge John Hyde. He was indicted in November for "acting with the intent to promote and assist" in the sale of 1.13 grams of cocaine to an undercover narcotics officer.

If convicted, Sims could receive a maximum sentence of life in prison.

The undercover officer, Midland County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Dean Cook, testified Monday that Sims drove another man, David Velarde, to pick up a bag of cocaine for which Cook had paid Velarde $100.

Velarde, 32, was arrested and charged with delivery of cocaine and is currently free on bond.

Under questioning from Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre, Cook testified that he arranged the cocaine deal with Velarde

Spirit Award nominees begin pouring in

■ So far, nominees for Midland's second Community Spirit Award include the city of San Francisco and the state of South Carolina.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

A community ravaged by an earthquake and a town that rallied to help a bone marrow transplant patient are among the scores of applicants for the 1990 Midland Community Spirit Award.

A steady applicant flow has been streaming into City Hall since June, with the number of nominees expected to surpass that of the 1989 competition, Rick Menchaca, city public relations coordinator, said Monday.

As of last week, 64 of 285 applications sent out had been returned, Menchaca said. Nominations have been submitted from 42 states, the Virgin Islands and even Japan.

"We've had a lot of inquiries," he said. "The response has been great."

Last year's judges had to sort through 88 applications, which included crises such as a collapsed building in Brownsville, a Montana train derailment, a north Texas blizzard and a dilapidated Virginia school.

But Sioux City, Iowa, citizens won the honor last year for assisting the passengers and crew of United Airlines Flight 232 after it crashed.

This year's nominees include respondents to the San Fransisco earthquake, Hurrican Hugo in South Carolina, flooding in various Texas cities and a boy who needed a bone marrow transplant.

Menchaca said the applicants have sent video tapes and newspaper clippings to support their bids.

"There has been a steady flow of nominations," he said. "We've been getting about two or three a day. Even today I've been receiving calls for nominations."

With the entry deadline set for Sept. 1, the number of nominees should easily surpass last year's applicant pool, Menchaca said.

A committee of nine Midland community representatives, including Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas, will review the applications and narrow the competitors to 10 by mid-September, he said. A winner will be picked by Oct. 1, he said.

As it did last year, Sears Roebuck and Co. of Midland will underwrite the expenses for plaques for the top-10 nominees.

Menchaca said the city has advertised near and far for nomi-

Talking about running out of gas.

A 29-year-old California man flying a single-engine plane was forced to make an emergency landing in a field north of Midland International Airport about 6:25 p.m. Monday.

Jon Real of Long Beach, Calif., set his 1975 model Cessna 150 down about one-fifth of a mile west of Farm-to-Market Road 1778 without incident after running out of gas, according to authorities at the scene.

"He did a very good job of landing it out in a field," said Bob White with the Midland Fire Department.

Real escaped injury and the aircraft landed without damage.

According to authorities, Real was en route to Dallas from Long Beach, with his last fuel stop in Deming, N.M., when a thunderstorm in the area blocked his path.

Trying to avoid the storm, Real began circling near Orla — about 40 miles northwest of Pecos — for about 45 minutes and used up most of his fuel.

"It was an inconvenience more than anything," Real said shortly after the landing.

Real was reportedly on his way to Dallas to participate in the U.S. Diving Championships.

After notifying federal authorities and getting permission from the Department of Public Safety and the State Highway Department,

DEATHS

Herbert S. Harris Jr.

AUSTIN — Services for former Midlander Herbert S. "Herb" Harris Jr., 73, are set for 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Weed-Corley Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. John Provance officiating. Burial will be in the State Cemetery in Austin.

Harris died Friday in Austin.

Harris, who had practiced law in Midland for 30 years, moved to Austin in 1979, when he was appointed by the governor to serve as chairman of the Industrial Accident Board. He resigned that post in 1984 to enter private practice with his son.

Born Nov. 27, 1916, in St. Augustine, Fla., Harris graduated from Northeastern University and the University of Texas Law School.

He married Patricia O'Brien in Dallas in 1941.

Harris served in the U.S. Armed Forces in World War II in Europe from 1941-45 and in the Korean War from 1950-52. He was a captain and received the Bronze Star with valor, the Purple Heart with one cluster, and the Korean War Service Medal.

Harris was a member of the State Bar of Texas. He was past commander of the Mason Lodge. He was a Shriner and a member of Delta Theta Phi law fraternity.

Survivors include his wife, Patricia O'Brien Harris of Austin; two daughters, Dorothy Harris of Austin and Carol Shrepple of Alabama; one son, Herbert S. Harris III of Austin; one brother, Jack Harris of Port Isabel; five grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Pallbearers will be Mike Donovan, Mike Wheeler, Kevin Wilson, Bert Harris, Bob Davis and Ron Sommers.

Edison McCullough

Memorial services for Dr. Edison McCullough are set for 7 p.m. today in Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with Alan Williams, Midland Memorial Hospital chaplain officiating.

Survivors include: his wife, Sally McCullough of Midland; three daughters, Marilyn Gardner of Millersville, Md., Debra Landureth of Fort Collins, Colo. and Barbara Collier of Austin; one son, Gregory McCullough of Pueblo, Colo.; two sisters, Elinore Widman of Parkersburg, W.Va., and Alice Buck of Walnut Creek, Calif.; two stepdaughters, Cerena Suarez of El Paso and Kelly Jean Ives of Midland; and seven grandchildren.

Memorials should be directed to Hospice of Midland or to Allison Cancer Center.

Mary Ellen Valdez

Services for Mary Ellen Valdez, 18, of Midland, are pending with Thomas Funeral Home.

She died Sunday following an automobile accident near Fort Stockton that also killed her sister, Patricia Valdez Moreno, brother-in-law Jesus Moreno, and infant niece, Janet.

Benjamin Grado

Services for Benjamin Grado are set for 10 a.m. today at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. Burial will follow at 4 p.m. at the Fort Davis Cemetery under the direction of Thomas Funeral Home.

Pallbearers will be grandsons.

Allye Shields

Services for Allye Shields, 83, of Midland, are pending with Thomas Funeral Home.

She died Monday at a local hospital of injuries sustained in a car-train accident on July 31.

Glen W. O. Worsham

Services for Glen Wayne Odell Worsham, 27, are pending with Thomas Funeral Home.

He died Monday in Dimmitt.

Auto thefts drop

EL PASO (AP) — Numbers of autos stolen here in one week dipped below 100 for the first time since 1987, police said.

Police spokesman Lt. Eddie Ortega said 63 cars were stolen in El Paso last week, less than half the weekly average of 150.

Lt. Dennis Shelley, commander of the Auto Theft Section, said Monday he has mixed feelings about the decrease.

"It's too early to tell. One week doesn't make the year...."

In June, Police Chief John Scagno accused officials in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico — across the border from El Paso — of running auto theft rings in El Paso.

Accusations started a border feud and initiated a El Paso County grand jury investigation.

Shelley said putting pressure on Mexican officials influenced the reduction.

He said the decline also may be a result of a visit to Juarez last week by Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gotari.

But he said he thinks the decline will continue because informants have told police car thieves are avoiding El Paso.

Cityline has on-line instruction

With Cityline, the Midland Reporter-Telegram's free telephone-based news, information and entertainment service, callers have access to dozens of categories of pre-recorded information — everthing form horoscopes and soap opera updates to local news and sports headlines and stock quotes — 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Once on line with the free system at 560-2400, touch-tone telephone callers will be presented step-by-step menus of informational choices. On-line assistance is available by pressing 6955.

TRIAL: Witnesses to take stand today on the evening of Aug. 14, 1989. Cook said he made the deal at a meeting of a group allegedly involved in an illegal "endless chain" investment scam.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said in October that Cook made several undercover cocaine buys in connection with an ongoing chain-scheme investigation.

In an endless chain scheme, or pyramid, the return on a participants' investments is culled from the entry fees of new participants, who are continually recruited.

Cook told jurors he made the drug deal with Velarde in the living room of a house in the 3400 block of Travis Avenue and paid Velarde $100 in advance. He said Sims was present when the deal took place.

At this point in the trial, Sims shouted that Cook's testimony was a "damn lie." He was reprimanded by his attorney, Tom Hirsch of Odessa, and remained quiet for the remainder of the day's proceedings.

"He (Sims) was paying attention ... because he was to drive Mr. Velarde to pick up the cocaine," Cook said of the drug deal. "I gave David Velarde $100. He had to go to another location to pick up the cocaine ... and he said he would be back in 15 or 20 minutes. ... They left in Jimmie Sims' pickup."

When Sims and Velarde returned, Cook said, Velarde handed him "a small plastic package containing cocaine."

Subsequent Department of Public Safety analysis of the bag's contents revealed that it held "1.13 grams of a powder containing cocaine," testified former DPS lab supervisor Burgess Cooke.

Cooke said he didn't know the purity of the cocaine, but that most cocaine analyzed by the DPS lab is between 60 and 70 percent pure.

Cook said Sims approached him after the deputy had received the cocaine and asked to be paid for driving Velarde to pick up the drug.

"Jimmie Sims said ... he expected some type of compensation," Cook said, adding that he eventually decided to pay Sims with beer and cigarettes.

"Jimmie agreed to a 12-pack of Bud Light and a pack of Marlboro cigarettes," Cook said.

Defense attorney Hirsch questioned Cook's ability to remember who had been in the Travis Avenue house when the deal was made. He asked Cook if it was possible that Sims had been talking to someone else in the house while Cook was talking with Velarde.

"Not at that point," Cook said.

Hirsch suggested to jurors that Sims is the victim of a law enforcement double standard because he is a school teacher. He accused the sheriff's department of intentionally humiliating Sims by having him arrested in front of television cameras during school hours at San Jacinto on Oct. 3, 1989.

Velarde, meanwhile, was arrested at 7 p.m. at his home the night before. When asked if the media had been invited to cover Velarde's arrest, Cook said that they had not.

Hirsch also pointed out that Velarde's bond had been set at $5,000, while Sims' bond was set at $15,000, even though Velarde allegedly sold cocaine to Cook at least one more time before he was arrested.

Cook said the lower bond amount was not the result of a special agreement between Velarde and the sheriff's department.

Following his arrest, the Midland Independent School District suspended Sims — who is free on bond — without pay, district officials said. Sims has worked for MISD since 1982, district personnel records show.

Schorre rested the state's case Monday around 5 p.m. The trial is expected to resume today at 9 a.m. with testimony from defense witnesses.

AWARD: Nominations pour in

(From 1B)

nees. Solicitation letters have been sent to National League of Cities, U.S. Conference Commerce and People magazine, he said.

Thomas said the June 20 publication of his letter in the "Dear Abby" column and President George Bush's presence at last year's award presentation ceremony helped generate interest in this year's competition.

Thomas has had two letters publicized in Abigail Van Buren's column, one in September 1989 and another two months ago.

The first letter appealed for nominations for the award, while the second was a thank-you letter written in regard to the prior publication.

Ms. Van Buren and President Bush joined the mayor and other city officials at the White House last November to honor Sioux City and its residents.

The Midland Community Spirit Award was created in response to the Midland community's efforts during the October 1987 rescue of Jessica McClure from an abandoned water well.

Thomas said that although this year's applicant pool is likely to be bigger, the selection process could not be any more difficult than it was last year.

"Last year it was pretty difficult," he said. "It really got tough by the time we got down to the top 10."

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Woman dies

Staff Reports

An 83-year-old Midland woman died about Monday at a local hospital as a result of injuries she sustained when a train hit her car two weeks ago.

Allye Shields, 1719 Marshall St., was in her car when it stalled on the railroad tracks at Terrell Street near Front Street on the morning of July 31. Mrs. Shields was unable to start her car in time and the train slammed into her vehicle.

She was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital where she remained in critical condition since the incident.

Fatality

A Midland woman who was one of four victims of an early Sunday accident near Fort Stockton has been identified as 18-year-old Mary Ellen Valdez, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Ms. Valdez of 1105 Cuthbert Ave., was involved in a one-car accident that occurred after the driver lost control of the vehicle about 10 miles northwest of Fort Stockton on Farm-to-Market Road 1776.

She was pronounced dead about 10 a.m. by Pecos County Justice of the Peace Freddy Capers.

Ms. Valdez' sister, brother-in-law and niece also were killed in the accident; two young passengers received minor injuries.

Off the air

KQIP-FM, 96.9, in Odessa is temporarily off the air as the result of technical difficulties, according to station manager Roy Elsner.

Parts to repair the transmission equipment are expected to be delivered this morning, and the station hopes to be back on the air by midday, Elsner said.

VOLUNTEERING

Give the greatest gift you can give — yourself. Act on one of these opportunities available through the Volunteer Center of Midland.

■ Midland's public schools needs volunteers. A local elementary school is looking for several volunteers to assist the school office with its clerical activities. Duties include answering the phones, light typing, filing, and running copies. Hours for this program are flexible so you can set your own schedule and work only as many hours as you would like.

■ Volunteers are needed to work the registration booth at a walk-a-thon to benefit Juvenile Diabetes. The walk-a-thon will be held Sept. 15 at Midland College from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. A barbecue lunch will be provided for all volunteers. Volunteers will also receive a free commemorative T-shirt. A short training session will be provided by the hosting agency.

■ The beginning of school is just around the corner and the need for reading tutors and homework helpers will increase. You can help elementary school children successfully complete their homework and learning goals. Volunteers will be needed one or two afternoons Monday through Thursday 2:30-3:30 p.m. or 4:30-6:30 p.m.

■ Are you a good listener? If so, a local agency needs you to volunteer for its Telephone Reassurance Program. This program provides local elderly citizens with a daily phone call from you, the volunteer, to check on them and see how they are doing. The few minutes a day that you share on the phone with these people will be a highlight in their day, as well as your own.

■ Volunteers are needed to work at a local Chili Cook-Off that will benefit several Midland agencies and foundations. The Chili Cook-Off will be held Sept. 14 and 15. Volunteers are needed to work two-hour shifts on Friday from 5-12 p.m., and on Saturday from 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. Volunteers will be taking tickets, working at the beverage booth, helping with an auction and much more. Each volunteer will receive free admission to the Chili Cook-Off and will also receive a free meal. Call for more information.

volved acting as a dresser for the all-female cast of the musical "A... My Name is Alice," since each actress had about 10-12 costume changes.

Aside from volunteering for the theater, serving on Hamhocks (the theater's volunteer organization), Northside Lions and the Santa Rita Club for the Petroleum Museum, Ms. Montagna likes to cook — big spreads, especially for theater parties. She also does needlepoint and cross-stitching, but usually manages to be the organizing force behind "bigger productions."

Ms. Montagna, working out of Lubbock, served as West Texas coordinator for the 1984 Olympic Torch Relay, where she had the honor of explaining to people that she couldn't reserve 20 hotel rooms in hotel-less New Deal.

Later she had the unenviable job of operating the switchboard at Midland Memorial Hospital when Jessica McClure was a patient. She said a Jessica hotline was installed to help stem the tide of phone calls from around the world but didn't slow down the flood of well-wishers.

Although she enjoys operating behind the scenes, Ms. Montagna — who performed on stage once — said she prefers to stay off the stage.

"Except for parodies, the shows where volunteers perform for casts. Unlike a live performance, if you mess up during a parody, nobody cares. You won't ruin the whole show."

During Summer Mummers season, from June until Labor Day, Ms. Montagna channels her energies into popping corn. The volunteer — who has been making popcorn ever since the theater's early days, when shows were staged in a Quonset hut and at the American Legion Hall — said she never gets tired of it.

She said one timeless element of making popcorn is that people are always divided into two factions, "those who think it is too salty and those who think it isn't salty enough."

It helps that she loves the smell and the taste of popcorn.

"It's hard not to nibble on the stuff," she said. "Sometimes I just give up and eat it for dinner."

LAND: Pilot headed to Dallas

(From 1B)

Real fueled his aircraft and took off from FM 1788 to Midland International Airport about 9:20 p.m, a Department of Airports official said. Real planned to spend the night in Midland before setting out for Dallas today.

Units from the Department of Airports, Midland Fire and Police Departments, and the Department of Public Safety responded to the site of the successful emergency landing.

Fort Worth salutes 100-year-old 'institution'

By Mary Rogers

FORT WORTH (AP) — The memories of 100 years bump together now, creating a tangle of sometimes unrelated stories for Tom Peters. For almost eight decades he has made hats for presidents and publishers and been a part of Fort Worth's workaday history.

Arriving early every day at the narrow shop at 909 Houston Street and staying late, he always said he'd keep working until he was 104 years old. But just after Christmas in 1988, when he was 98 years olds, he fell while still at work and his plans changed forever.

Now he spends his days in a local nursing care facility, watching television and remembering the yesterdays crowded with parties and people and ways to promote his hats.

Peters, a partner in Peters Brothers Hats, will celebrate his 100th birthday Tuesday, but the big party is scheduled for noon Thursday in General Worth Square at the Fort Worth-Tarrant County Convention Center. Mayor Bob Bolen will hand Peters a special proclamation and key to the city, and well-wishers will sing "Happy Birthday" to a man who has become a Fort Worth institution.

His trademark dress and western hats were given to U.S. presidents and dignitaries visiting Fort Worth.

Once this season and three times last year, Peters struggled with bouts of pneumonia. And though his feet are often swollen and sore, he works to go a certain distance each day in a walker.

But he dreams of dancing. "They're gonna cure my feet," he said, his dark eyes sparkling behind black-framed glasses. "I'm gonna make a big lamb party and dance."

AP Laserphoto

Tom Peters celebrates his 100th birthday with great-grandchildren Nikki Hibler and Jacob Fulgham (in his lap).

Peters danced last at his grandson Joe's wedding two years ago. Using a cane, he happily lead the line in a traditional Greek dance. "Granddad always loved to lead the dances," the younger Peters said.

Tom Peters came from Greece when he was about 17 years old, one of thousands of immigrants processed through the teeming entry port of Ellis Island in New York harbor.

He changed his name from Athanasious Panagitirous to Tom Peters and was eager to join his brother, Jim, in Waco. But first he had to work for the man in Nashville, Tenn., who had sponsored his trip.

He recalls working for $3 a month shining shoes until his debt was paid.

Finally, he was able to join his brother and together they opened a shine parlor. But that business was short-lived.

The Peters brothers moved to Fort Worth in 1911 and opened another shine parlor, parlaying it into such a success that at one time they employed 36 people to polish men's and women's shoes.

They pressed suits while customers stood patiently waiting behind a screen they called "the barrel," and they cleaned and blocked hats.

There was a cafe across the street, Peters recalls, and one day he watched as two cowboys left their horses and went inside. Hoping to shine their boots when they came out, Peters watched door. But when the cowboys left the cafe they stalked to the center of the street, pulled side arms and shot each other dead.

World War I brought new prosperity to the shine business. Soldiers from Camp Bowie on the western fringe of the city came to town. Even Gen. John J. Pershing visited the shine parlor and by the end of the war the brothers had moved the business to its present location on Houston Street. But it was bigger then, twice as big as it is now, and a ragtime piano player pounded out tunes.

In 1920, Peters married Jennie Salerno in a big traditional wedding at St. Demetrios Greek Orthodox Church in north Fort Worth. The son of a priest, Peters stayed active in St. Demetrios church until he moved to the care center. He and Jenny raised two children, Helen and Tom Jr.

The Great Depression of the 1930s brought hard times to everyone, but the Peters brothers landed a contract to repair shoes for Civilian Conservation Corps camps. It also was a difficult decade that brought the family sorrow, for Jim died in 1933.

And it was a desperate time that produced sometimes desperate men. Just as Peters was an eyewitness to the last days of the Old West, he was acquainted with some of the infamous characters of the 1930s.

Shoppers want convenience, produce

NEW YORK (AP) — Convenience foods and produce shelves are among the biggest attractions for supermarket shoppers, perhaps showing that while consumers want to put dinner on the table with ease, they are trying to eat well.

Baby boomers with babies are eating at home more, and that gives supermarkets an opportunity to provide takeout food to compete with restaurants, Timothy M. Hammonds, senior vice president of the non-profit trade group the Food Marketing Institute, said at the organization's seminar earlier this month.

Research shows that these parents are saying they no longer have time to eat in restaurants. "Not cooking is becoming a substitute for eating out," he said.

"If you think about the supermarket, we really started 50 years ago as an outlet for manufacturers and farmers. Now we are the purchasing agent for the consumer," Hammonds said. Today's supermarkets carry an average of 25,855 items apiece, according to FMI.

Consumers are becoming increasingly interested in convenience. And, according to Hammonds, convenience foods don't come wrapped in all the guilt they once did, leaving consumers feeling that they were not doing all they should to provide good meals.

"That's why the cake mix people had you add that egg," to ease the feelings of guilt for not making the cake from scratch, he said. Now, however, convenience carries another meaning. It "lets you spend more time with your family."

Still, none of this has hurt the sale of produce. Fruit, Hammonds speculated, is considered "nature's convenience food." And consumers still are taking time for vegetables.

In its annual survey of consumers, FMI found that 46 percent of those surveyed buy takeout food at fast-food restaurants, 27 perent at other restaurants and 14 percent at supermarkets. However, that number has increased steadily since 1987, when 9 percent of shoppers said they bought takeout food at supermarkets.

Food labeling, a big issue in Washington these days as changes are proposed to current regulations, is less of an issue with consumers. Just 36 percent said they always read beyond the expiration date to the nutrition and ingredient information, though an additional 45 percent to 48 percent said they sometimes read those labels.

Manufacturers' health claims on labels were considered very believable by 8 percent of those surveyed but somewhat believable by 52 percent. The most often-cited reason for skepticism was that the labels don't tell the whole story.

"Only 8 percent said current health claims are very believable. There's a problem out there, folks," Hammonds said.

FMI's survey, taken annually for two decades, questioned 1,005 primary shoppers in a household.

The survey also found that 65 percent of those questioned said their diets could be at least somewhat healthier. Fifty-seven percent of shoppers said they eat more fruits and vegetables than a year ago; 34 percent are eating less meat; 27 percent eat less fat. Only 16 percent said they eat more fiber, and 18 percent said they eat more fish.

Still, taste ranked first among factors influencing supermarket purchases, rated very important by 88 percent of those surveyed. Nutrition was cited by 75 percent and product safety by 71 percent.

Restaurant in Japan serves airline cuisine

By Erma Bombeck

Some new restaurants have a destiny with failure.

The one that comes to mind is an eatery that just opened in Osaka, Japan. It is a replica of a JAL Boeing 767 and serves in-flight food.

Bombeck

Granted, some airlines do a better job with food than others, but generally when we talk of airline menus we're talking nuke-and-serve cuisine.

Before the meal in the Osaka restaurant, customers settle into a lounge to watch a five-minute videotape of travel information. The only concessions to comfort are tables in place of pull-down trays and no seat belts.

Other than that, it's all there, right down to the Thumbelina salt and pepper shakers, each containing two grains of seasoning. There is even a VIP cabin on the second floor featuring first class meals ticketed at $75.

My first reaction is that the whole operation gives new meaning to the word "kamikaze," but in Osaka they are dealing with a different clientele. A spokesman said: "Some people think airline food is an oxymoron (a contradiction of terms), but we thought there was a group of people who didn't think so. We're aiming the restaurant at people who don't travel very much."

That would explain it. Thanks to deregulation, Americans know too much. Sitting down to eat in a simulated 767 would be a lot like saying, "How about meeting for drinks at the Titanic? Save the last dance for me."

There will come a day when we will be able to laugh at airline food. Planes will give way to space shuttles and will become oddities ... like trains that are turned into hotels and restaurants.

Americans love nothing better than to go into a Western bar with sawdust on the floor and order cowboy beans and steak. Or have dinner on an old paddle boat cruising up and down a river somewhere. The food was probably bad on the real excursions, but time and romance have taken care of that.

At the moment, the restaurant in Osaka is reportedly doing great business. It might play. Maybe if you hadn't had anything to eat within the last 12 hours, honey roasted peanuts would jump-start your taste buds. Maybe if you really liked green noodles floating in a wine sauce. Maybe if your doctor said you could lose weight eating warm, limp shrimp. Nah, it's too soon!

Lime, chile chips pass taste test

By Linda Anderson

I never noticed it before, but limes and lime flavoring seem to go well with Mexican food. There's lime soup, which is a kind of chicken-vegetable soup with slices of lime floating around on the top giving it a nice, slightly-tart flavor; there's guacamole made with lime juice; there's the wedge of lime often served with Mexican beers; and of course, there's margaritas — but that's another story.

Anderson

Now, there's El Galindo lime and chile tortilla chips, which, according to the label, are "Good for snacks, nachos, dips."

We had to check them out for taste, price and advertising accuracy, so I brought a bag and brought it to the office (along with some refried beans and Cheddar cheese, in case anybody wanted to make nachos in the breakroom microwave oven).

A 15-ounce bag of lime and chile chips cost $1.99.

Label advertising, in addition to the "New!" at the top of the bag, claimed the chips were "cooked in no cholesterol oil and low in saturated fats." The back label listed some recipes and serving suggestions (chili con queso and nachos and "other uses" such as with soups or salads or with dips — as if we didn't already know that). The oils listed in the ingredients are soybean oil and soy oil.

The taste-test proved a popular one, as testers kept coming back for more (they had to make sure their decision was the right one, you know). The overwhelming majority liked the chips — some even said the chips were addictive. One said the flavor was too subtle and got lost under the flavor of the beans; one said the chips were too salty; and one said he didn't like the chips at all (as he was munching on his second or third). But most of the tasters said they really liked the lime and chile chips, and might buy some themselves.

I would surely buy them again — in fact, I've already bought four bags.

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Price at other locations may vary.

NO SUCH THING AS FREE MONEY?
TRY COUPONS
For many, a part time job outside the home is the answer to earning extra money. We have a better suggestion . . . COUPONS! Every week newspapers distribute more than $75 worth of coupons and other offers to the doorsteps of 52 million h ouseholds across the U.S.
HOW BIG IS COUPONING?
More than 229 billion coupons, found in free-standing inserts and food day ads, are distributed industry-wide yearly, each with the average coupon value of 49¢. In total, U.S. consumers saved $2.68 billion using coupons in 1989 . . . THAT'S A LOT OF MONEY!
For each household, that adds up to nearly $4,000 of tax free income a year. Based on the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the average Averican would have to work 14 weeks to earn the same amount in gorss income.

Waiting period for handgun purchases discussed

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Re my July 16 column in support of James Brady's gun control bill: As many readers pointed out, John Hinckley did not purchase the handgun he used against President Reagan and his press secretary, James Brady, on March 30, 1981. Hinckley purchased the gun five months earlier. However, had there been a waiting period in order to check Hinckley's record, he would not have been able to purchase that gun because he lied on the form about his address, and lying on a federal form is a felony.

Van Buren

In September 1980, three weapons were confiscated from Hinckley at the Nashville, Tenn., airport, but because Tennessee has a 15-day waiting period, Hinckley didn't try to buy replacement weapons in that state. Instead, he went to Texas where there is no waiting period or background check, and he was able to walk out with a gun.

James Brady's letter published in The New York Times inspired my column. He did not state that Hinckley purchased the gun the day of the shooting; it was my error for which I take full responsibility.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, a high school freshman, was recently invited to a 16th birthday party. The event was carefully planned — D.J., buffet, decorations, chaperones, etc. The RSVP invitations said 7:30 to 11:30 p.m.

I drove my daughter and three other girls who asked for rides to the party, then later returned to pick them up. Only my daughter came out! The others had left two hours earlier with some older friends who drive!

It seems that quite a few of the guests decided the party was "boring," so they left in groups to crash another party. When they couldn't get in, they ended up doing other things around town. Some even returned to the first party. My daughter didn't take part in any of this because she knew I'd be furious. I'm glad to say that she also expressed concern for the girl who was giving the party.

I thought the kids who left showed an appalling lack of manners. What really shocked me was the attitude of the parents I discussed this with. They didn't take it too seriously. "This kind of thing is normal," I was told. "They're really good kids who don't take drugs, so everything is OK." One of the girls I had driven had even called home to say she was leaving the party at 9:30 to go to a second party. Her mother thought it was commendable that she "stayed in touch." Please comment on this, Abby. I'm so frequently out of step with other parents that my daughter finds it hard to fit in. — OUT-OF-IT

DEAR OUT-OF-IT: You have put your finger on a problem that gives caring parents nightmares: minor children who are driven to a chaperoned party, then decide to go "somewhere else" without letting their parents know where they're going, with whom and who's driving.

You may be "out of step" with other parents, but you rate "Mother of the Year" in my book.

DEAR ABBY: Many years ago, you had a letter in your column from someone who asked, "Which is hardest, growing up as the youngest in the family, the oldest or the middle child?"

I am the baby of the family, and my mother always used to read that article to me and my two older brothers.

If you can find it among your columns, would you please run it again? My wedding is coming up soon, and I would like to frame it and give it to my mother. Thank you. — DANA W., LAKE WORTH, FLA.

DEAR DANA: It wasn't hard to find, and here it is:

If you ask the eldest, he'll say, "It's hardest to be the firstborn because you're expected to set a good example for the younger ones. And if a fight breaks out, you get blamed because you're the oldest and should know better."

Ask the middle child, and he'll say, "Being the middle child is the hardest because you get none of the advantages of being the youngest or the oldest."

Ask the youngest child, and he'll tell you that being the youngest is hardest because "your parents try to keep you 'a baby' as long as possible, and you have to wear all the hand-me-downs."

DEAR ABBY: I am a refrigerator repairman with a simple question:

A woman called the shop and said she thought there was some kind of a "gas" leak inside her fridge, causing a very bad odor. I went to her apartment, opened the refrigerator and immediately identified the problem. The shelves were covered with decaying food particles!

If I had told the lady her refrigerator was filthy, she would probably have thrown me out of her apartment, so I told her I would have to take her refrigerator to the shop, take it apart and locate the problem. So, that's exactly what I did.

All I did was give the refrigerator a good cleaning, and brought it back the following day. She was very pleased to see the appliance so bright and clean with no bad odor, and she paid me in full on the spot. Being an honest man, I charged a reasonable fee for the "labor" and the cost (two men) of transporting it to the shop and back.

My question: How do you think I should have handled it? — PENNSYLVANIA PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: I would have told her that her refrigerator appeared to need a thorough cleaning and would have asked for some baking soda and proceeded to clean it — explaining that she should thoroughly clean it at least once a month.

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy. It's all in Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." Zubiate's Furniture Restoration brings life to old pieces Restore your antiques and damaged furniture to their original beauty with the skill and expertise of Richard Zubiate and his staff at Zubiate's Furniture Restoration. Richard Zubiate is a meticulous worker who, in addition to building new furniture, can restore your damaged furniture to its original beauty.

Hidden treasures found in that old attic need not stay hidden any longer. Bring that piece of history into Zubiate's and receive in return a piece of furniture any homeowner would be proud of.

"In restoration work what you should try to do is leave the work as much like the original as possible," Zubiate explained. "Then you only replace the parts that have been damaged or may cause problems later on."

"Restoration work requires systematic procedures and meticulous attention to bring the piece to its original condition," he continued. "We do it so people can enjoy their furniture for years. Our work is not comparable to a cosmetic restoration, which lasts only a short time."

Zubiate's Furniture Restoration has now opened a space at Antiques Etc., 15 Plaza Center. Come in and see Richard Zubiate's varied selection of period furniture pieces as well as custom made furniture.

The selection of antique pieces include a tilt top round table, small work table and a Victorian bookcase from the 1800s and an early 1900s desk. The stock is constantly changing, so drop by often.

Stop by Zubiate's shop in Antiques Etc. Saturday for a wood turning demonstration, part of the store's Fiesta Days celebration.

Custom made furniture by Zubiate's Furniture Restoration adds a showpiece centerpiece to any room in your home or office. Hand crafted furniture has the advantage that you can adapt it to your decorating ideas. When you buy a factory production piece, on the other hand, is is difficult, if not impossible, to change its appearance.

One of the best things about custom made furniture is that it is made to your own specifications, in whatever fine, durable hardwood you choose. Solid woods such as walnut, mesquite, maple and mahogany hardwoods can be bookmatched for a beautiful, classic look you just can't get with most factory pieces.

One of the lovely looks of custom built furniture is the natural burls and figures of hard woods.

Every piece of wood is cut and fit individually. Drawers have to be fit just right. Each piece is chosen for the special purpose it is intended for.

Zubiate's uses the craft of frame and panel construction, which allows for wood movement during changes in humidity.

Custom veneers for doors and tops are cut to 3/16 of an inch, instead of 1/28 or 1/32, as in factory made pieces.

Choose a custom crafted piece from Zubiate's for a unique display case, a high boy entertainment center or a reproduction of an antique. Zubiate's can construct the popular Shaker period furniture. Whatever your special needs, the professionals at Zubiate's can come with a beautiful, lasting work of art.

Besides building and designing furniture, Zubiate's also works with faux marble and custom finishes.

Call Zubiate's Furniture Restoration today and let Richard consult with you on a new work of art or a restoration piece. Call 682-5773 for more details or an estimate.

Try Mid-West Door & Window's complete line of home improvements

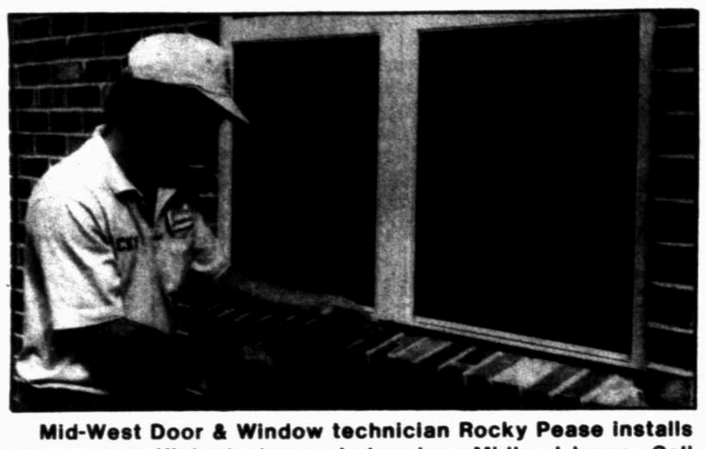
If home improvements are on your list of "things to do," let the experts at Mid-West Door and Window help you with quality products, installation and possibly some new ideas. Whether it's siding, replacement or storm windows, skylights, patio doors, entry doors, storm doors, sun screens or plain screens, Mid-West has a complete line of products to choose from.

Old, outdated windows can be one of your home's easiest solved problems. Replacing old windows not only reduces your home's maintenance, but studies show that your home's value increases as well.

The experts at Mid-West Door and Window have a variety of replacement window ideas to fit your needs and pocketbook. Free estimates take the guesswork out of both the price and the options available to you.

With hot weather here, this is the perfect time to explore the many options available to make your home more comfortable and energy efficient. Mid-West Door and Window now offers a solution to "put out the fire of hot skylights."

Whether your skylights are clear, tinted, insulated or white translucent — if they transmit light, they transmit heat. Skylight sunscreens made to fit on the outside of your skylights are a perfect way to block out up to 70 percent of the sun's heat while still letting light through.



Mid-West Door & Window technician Rocky Pease installs an energy-efficient storm window in a Midland home. Call 682-4632 for a free estimate.

These screens are made of a special anti-tear vinyl coated polyester. It's woven so the yarn is interlocking and then heat treated to bond the material for strength and durability. The cover has a double folded and sewn hem pocket that houses an architectural rubber shock cord for fastening. They are easy to install and are available in brown or white.

In the winter, the close weave of skylight sunscreens do an excellent job in reducing the wind chill factor on the skylight's surface. This will maintain a warmer, more consistent surface temperature while reducing frost buildup on the exterior. If free solar heat is your goal, you can simply remove the cover in the winter and put it back in the spring.

Sun screen is available for your windows as well. It also cuts as much as 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare before it strikes your window's surface. This protects your home's interior from fading and sun rot as well as providing daytime privacy. The savings on energy costs alone will normally pay for the installation of sun screen in two summers or less.

So if more free time and saving money while improving your home's appearance sounds good to you, give Mid-West Door and Window a call at 682-4632 or come by 2400 W. Front. Mid-West prides itself in offering the best products at the best price and the all-important "service after the sale."

Established in 1976, Mid-West Door and Window strives for friendly, professional service without high-pressure salesmen.

Diablos 'flat-out beat' Angels

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

Don Vidmar's 6.93 earned run average actually climbed a notch or two Monday night at Angels Stadium.

Cal Eldred's 5.06 ERA did not.

Eldred proved more stingy than his numbers indicate, holding Midland to just two runs on six hits in seven innings, while El Paso jumped all over Vidmar and won the opener of a five-game set 12-2.

The Diablos, first-half champions of the Texas League's Western Division, pummelled Vidmar (0-4) with 10 hits for nine runs before the 23-year-old righthander left the mound in the fifth inning of his eighth start.

"It's not supposed to be this easy, but each team will have its big days and this was one of ours," said El Paso second baseman Sandy Guerrero, who was 2-for-5 with a pair of RBI and two runs scored for the Diablos, a team that is suddenly 8-2 in its last 10 road games.

"We came in here playing pretty good baseball on the road," Guerrero said. "I would say that we're playing three times better on the road than at home. There's no explanation for that. It's just the way it is."

That type of road success is something the Angels will have to deal with for the next four games as the Diablos vie to finish in first place in the second half, too. El Paso is just two games behind front-running San Antonio, which downed Wichita 4-2 Monday night.

"The whole team thinks we've got a good shot at winning it," Guerrero said. "It's very important to us to win both halves, and we're going to go for it."

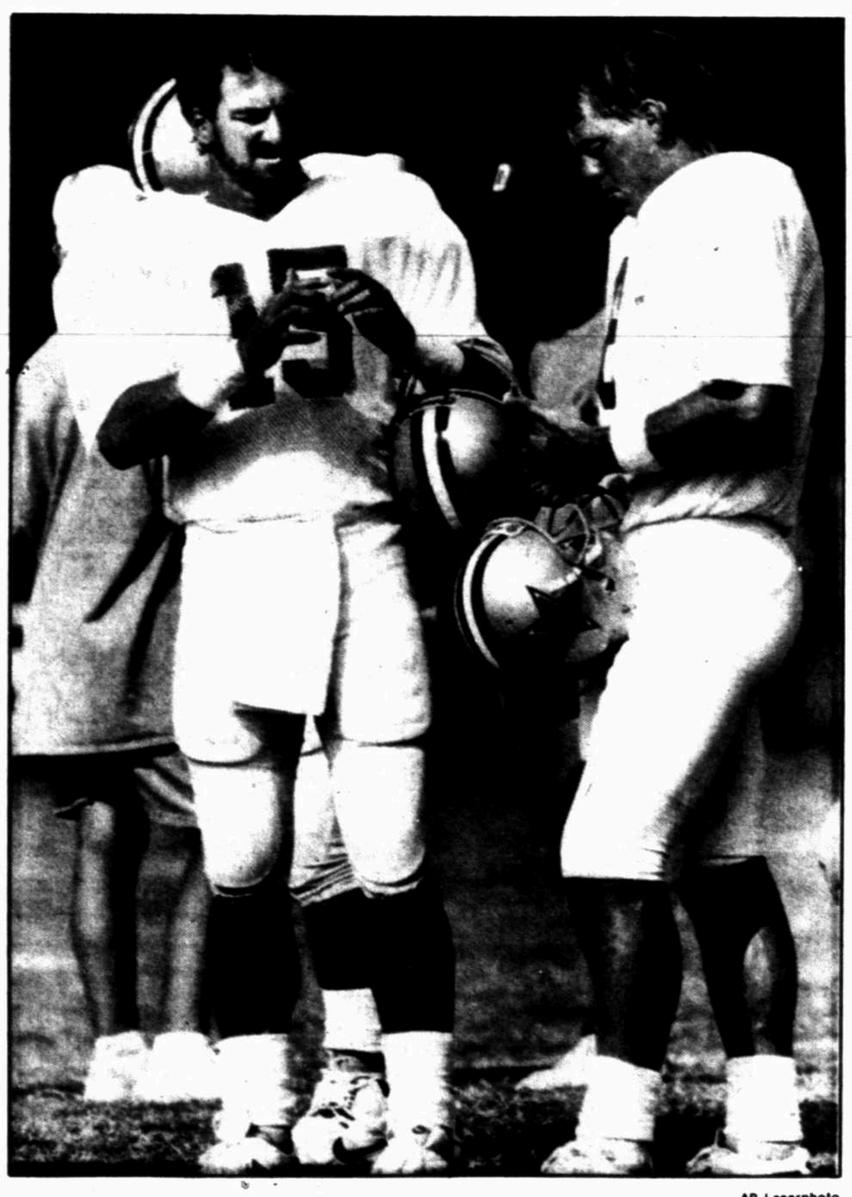
Johnson downplays preseason



AP Laserphoto

■ In a year's time, Jimmy Johnson has learned a very important lesson: Don't get too riled up about the way your team plays during the exhibition season.

Associated Press

LA JOLLA, Calif. — The 1990 Dallas Cowboys looked a lot like the 1989 Dallas Cowboys in their exhibition opener.

Save for coach Jimmy Johnson.

Last year, Johnson was in an almost giddy mood after the rookie NFL coach had beaten the San Diego Chargers 20-3 in his first game. The team won three of four that preseason, then dropped 15 during the regular season.

But after a 28-16 loss to the Chargers Saturday night, Johnson didn't let his emotions get the best of him.

"There were some good things out there tonight," Johnson said. "I learned a long time ago, or at least a year ago, that the preseason doesn't mean a whole heck of a lot."

Johnson's offensive game plan Saturday was basic. The Cowboys running game struggled against a defense that often sent as many as eight players at the quarterback.

Quarterback Troy Aikman was Dallas' leading rusher with 51 yards, 48 yards coming on a first-quarter bootleg. Besides Aikman's long run, the Cowboys gained 46 yards on the ground in 24 carries.

Free agent Timmy Smith had 1 yard in seven carries. Terrence Flagler picked up 4 yards in two attempts. Lorenzo Hampton gained 3 yards in two tries.

"I'm not really concerned," guard Crawford Ker said. "We've got to improve on some little things and we'll be okay. Last year we were 3-1 in the preseason and look what happened. I don't care if we lose every pre-season game.

N.Y. Times News Service

Grady considers himself 'very fortunate'

Associated Press

■ After conquering a course that ate up the best of them, Australia's Wayne Grady fondly reflects on his victory at the PGA Championship.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — This was one PGA that couldn't end soon enough for the best golfers in the world. It was the hardest tournament they have played in years.

There were only 10 scores in the 60s all week, and only three subpar totals for the tournament.

Wayne Grady, a free-spirited Australian now residing in Orlando, Fla., won it after Fred Couples, the man called "Boom Boom" by his fellow pros, went boom, boom, boom when he could least afford it.

"I'd been making the short putts for two days," Couples said. "Then I miss three in a row, boom, boom, boom."

He also made four bogeys in a row and opened the gate for Grady — who had built a career around runner-up finishes — to score his second American triumph and his first in a major championship.

Grady won it through perseverance, persistence and patience on a course that drove golf's great players to distraction and, at least on one occasion, drink.

"I was very, very fortunate to win," admitted the 33-year-old Grady, whose second-place record was highlighted by a playoff loss in last year's British Open. "I'm just glad it's over."

He won after Payne Stewart made a triple bogey from a pond, after Gil Morgan made double bogey from the rough, after Boom Boom went boom, boom, boom.

All the others had gone before them.

Nick Faldo, the tall Englishman with the elegant swing who won both the Masters and British Open, became something of a symbol of the frustration and fury produced by the narrow fairways, hard greens and tough, tangled rough.

He emerged from the scorers tent after shooting an 80, mud-spattered to the waist, eyes glazed and staring into the middle distance.

He spotted his caddy and loudly demanded:

"Whiskey."

The 80 was his highest score of the year, a near-incomprehensible number for the man now regarded as the best player in the world.

49ers, Rice boiling after loss to L.A.

N.Y. Times News Service

ROCKLIN, Calif. — There were no knockout punches and no blood shed, but after Saturday's lackadaisical loss to the Raiders, the 49ers' practiced with so much intensity on Monday that four brief fights broke out during morning practice.

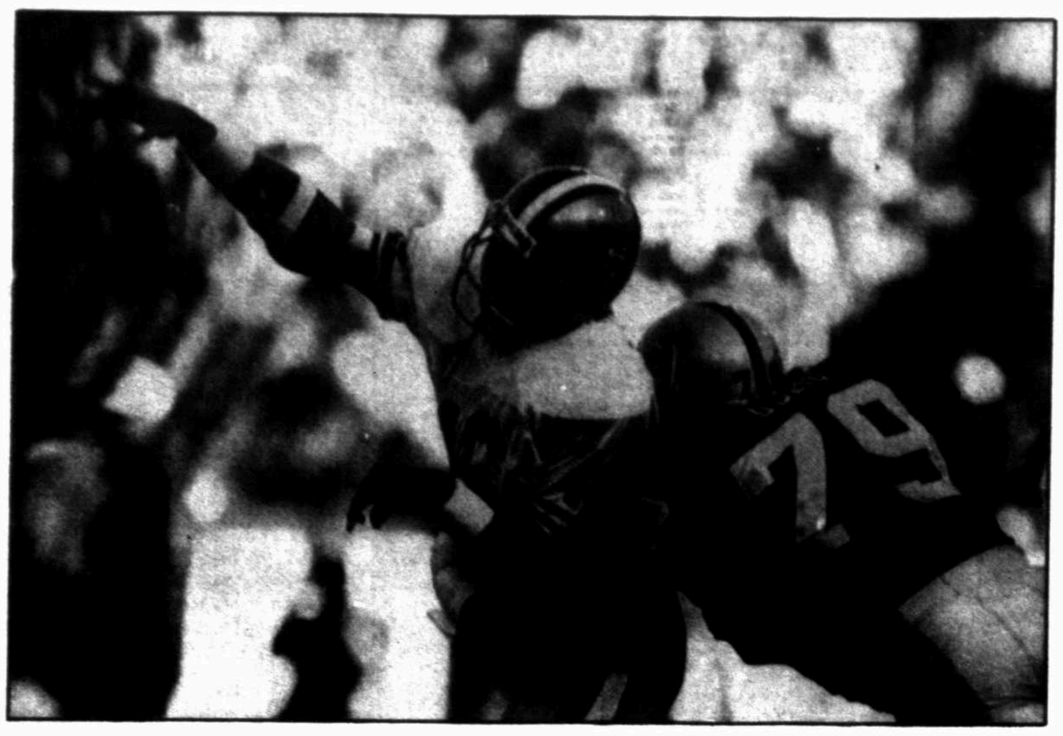
"There was a little more scuffling than you'd like," said coach Georg Seifert, who got dumped o..o the seat of his pants when he tried to break up a skirmish between linebacker Bill Romanowski and receiver Jerry Rice.

"You like the enthusiasm of it, but that's not going to win football games," Seifert continued. "We're not a professional tag team; we're a football team."

Offensive lineman Harris Barton and linebacker Matt Millen got into the first tiff of the day when they tangled after a play had ended during a scrimmage. They grabbed facemasks, tugged on uniforms and pointed fingers at each other before being pulled apart.

After the next play, nose tackle Jim Burt and rookie center Brett Wiese got into a brief tug-of-war, and soon after, defensive tackle Pierce Holt and guard Bruce Collie had a flareup during a blocking drill.

Then Rice and Romanowski, who got into a scuffle during last year's training camp, clashed near the end of practice during a passing play.



AP Laserphoto

San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana gets a pass off just before's he eats turf, thanks to Raider defensive tackler Bob Golic in Saturday exhibition action.

Rice, who wasn't the intended receiver, ran across the field trying to throw a block, with Romanowski shadowing him. The pass was incomplete, and as the ball bounced along the ground toward Rice, Romanowski shoved him.

Rice and Romanowski started jawing at each other, then Rice shoved Romanowski with both hands. When Romanowski came at him, Rice dived at Romanowski's legs and they wrestled each other to the ground as teammates and coaches tried to separate them.

"I think I got the worst of that one," Seifert joked. "First time I wound up on my butt."

Romanowski said the fight began because, "When I hit him, it just hurt his shoulder a little bit. He probably got a little angry and hit me and then dove at my ankles.

Before practice ended, Rice made a point of shaking Romanowski's hand as a peace offering.

COWBOYS: Johnson not happy with backups' play

From 1C

We just have to get ready for the regular season."

Said Johnson: "We really pulled back on offense and that hampered us some, especially with all the blitzes that San Diego threw at us. Our blockers were outnumbered. In a game that counted, we'd be getting out of those formations and throw the ball."

The Cowboys defense failed to force a turnover or sack the Chargers quarterbacks. Nevertheless, Johnson said he was pleased with his first defensive unit, although he was not happy with the backups.

"The first-team defense did an excellent job," Johnson said. "But our second unit had some breakdowns and problems. They moved the ball against us and that was a little disappointing."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said the team hadn't been in contact with the agents for their three holdouts: running back Emmitt Smith, wide receiver Alexander Wright and linebacker Jesse Solomon. Jones said the club had made its final offers to all three players.

The Cowboys' running game could use Smith, whose big-play potential has been compared by team officials to all-time club rushing leader Tony Dorsett.

"We want Emmitt Smith in camp," Jones said. "We know he can make a big contribution. But we know our offers are fair in today's marketplace. We're not going to change our offers."

The Cowboys will practice against the Chargers Monday and Tuesday in San Diego as they prepare for their second exhibition game, Saturday afternoon against the Los Angeles Raiders at the Coliseum.

Georgian leads Giants by Bills

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Top draft pick Rodney Hampton scored on an 89-yard run as the New York Giants coasted to a 20-6 victory over the Buffalo Bills Monday night in the preseason opener for both teams.

The run by Hampton, from Georgia, provided one of the few moments of excitement in an otherwise unspectacular game between two teams missing a total of nine starters because of holdouts and injuries.

Quarterback Jeff Hostetler scored on a 5-yard keeper for New York, and Giants rookie Matt Stover added field goals of 44 and 49 yards.

Hampton's impressive scoring run came on his first carry of the game in the second quarter after a 10-yard holding penalty gave New York the ball on the 11.

The rookie, who finished with 117 yards on seven carries, took the Molander on a delay and then hesitated at the line of scrimmage to set up his blocking.

Cowboy canned for steroid use

NEW YORK (AP) — Offensive linemen Louis Cheek of the Dallas Cowboys and rookie John Brandom of the Phoenix Cardinals were suspended on Monday for violating the NFL's policy on anabolic steroids and related substances.

A statement by the NFL said the action was taken after the players tested positive in training camp physicals.

Cheek and Brandom were suspended for the next two weeks. If their systems are then shown to be clear, they can resume practicing and playing.

They will also be suspended without pay and placed on the reserve-non-football injury list.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The Midland County Hospital District will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1989 by 18.18 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on 8-22-90 at 5 p.m. at Midland Memorial Hospital.

4 FOR the proposal: Thomas Bruner, Stephen Wiesenfeld, Shelton Viney, Rev. Sylvester Ferguson

2 AGAINST the proposal: David Porter, Richard Dulaney

PRESENT and not voting:

1 ABSENT: Margaret Williams

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the Effective tax rate that the unit published on July 29, 1990. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	$53,760	$53,180
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	0	0
Average taxable value	$53,760	$53,180
Tax rate	.1371/$100	.1662/$100 (proposed)
Tax	$73.70	$88.39 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $14.69 or 19.93 percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $.0291 per $100 of taxable value or increase 21.23% percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Cubs Stubb toe against 'Stros

CHICAGO (AP) — A slumping Franklin Stubbs said he was just trying to feel more relaxed at the plate.

Stubbs looked plenty relaxed Monday night, snapping a 1-for-27 skid with a pair of home runs as the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs 7-2.

"Because I've been struggling, I just wanted to be comfortbale at the plate and get a pitch I could handle," said Stubbs, who hit home runs Nos. 15 and 16. "Once you get outside of the Astrodome and get a good pitch and don't try to do much with it, good things will happen."

Mark Portgual pitched his first complete game of the season. Portugal (6-9) gave up two runs on nine hits and one walk while striking out three, and won for only the second time in 13 road starts. He was 1-7 with a 6.09 ERA on the road coming in.

Portugal is 5-2 overall in his last 10 starts, and pitched his first complete game since September 17, 1989, a 1-0 win over Cincinnati.

"My changeup was the only pitch I really seemed to have command of," Portugal said. "But after the fourth inning I felt like I throwing a lot better. I got into a couple of jams early, but fortunately the old 'at-'em ball' was working.

"It just a matter of consistency with me. I've pitched a lot better in the second half, but I can't figure out why."

Rookie Lance Dickson (0-2), making his second major league start, lasted five innings and gave up four runs (three earned) on six hits and one walk.

"It was a rough outing for him," Cubs manager Don Zimmer said. "He was behind (in the count) most of the time and that didn't help him."

NL Roundup

Reds 6, Giants 5

The Cincinnati Reds, making good on manager Lou Piniella's brash victory prediction, pushed their lead in the National League West back to a comfortable 6½ games by rallying from a four-run deficit to beat the San Francisco Giants.

Joe Oliver's two-run double highlighted a five-run fourth that gave the Reds their third victory in a four-game series against the second-place Giants.

By coming from behind against Trevor Wilson (8-4), the Reds made good on Piniella's prediction Sunday that they'd win the series finale.

"We're just going to go out and beat them," Piniella predicted. "No 'hum baby.' We're just going to beat them."

The boast looked silly in the first inning, when scheduled starter left-hander Danny Jackson had to be replaced because he couldn't get his shoulder loose in the bullpen — the second time that's happened to him in four weeks. Scott Scudder proceeded to give up four first-inning runs, including a three-run homer by Matt Williams, his 22nd.

Braves 9, Dodgers 5

John Smoltz yielded six hits in seven innings and Dave Justice paced a 13-hit attack with a three-run homer, leading the Atlanta Braves over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Smoltz (9-8) struck out three and walked three as he hurled the Braves to only their third victory in 12 games. He also doubled home a run.

Justice's home run off Fernando Valenzuela (9-10) capped a four-run first inning for the Braves. It was his 15th of the season and his seventh in eight games.

Jeff Treadway reached base on a fielder's choice in the first and went to third when Ron Gant doubled. After Jim Presley's grounder scored Treadway and Jeff Blauser walked, Justice hit a line drive over the right-field fence.

With one out in the Atlanta fourth, Greg Olson singled and scored on Smoltz's double. Smoltz scored on a double by Lonnie Smith and Treadway singled in another run.

the Falcons in an afternoon scrimmage.

Sanders, who left the Yankees on July 30 after New York balked at going ahead with a reported $1 million contract deal, was fined for missing 18 days of the Falcons' training camp and all of the preseason minicamp.

Just before Sanders left the Yankees, the Falcons threatened to suspend him for the season. The Falcons also threatened to sue Sanders to recover some of the $2 million signing bonus he was paid last year, and threatened to sue the Yankees for interfering with Sanders' contractual obligation to the Falcons.

"I want to play again, but I don't want to have all these problems," Sanders said, referring to baseball."

Sanders said he stayed out of the Falcons' training camp after leaving the Yankees "because I needed the rest."

"There's only one other man in this world who knows how it feels to play football and baseball," Sanders added, referring to Bo Jackson of the Kansas City Royals and the Los Angeles Raiders.

"Whatever the fines were, I would have paid a lot more just to get the rest.

"I know I'm going to have to work hard, because that's the only way you get better," Sanders said after the practice as he cradled his 3-month-old daughter, Deiondra.

As if to demonstrate his devotion to the football work ethic, Sanders had stayed on the field to catch punts after the scrimmage and drills were over.

In contrast to the flashy, bejeweled player who made athletic history last season by becoming the first person ever to hit a major league home run and score a National Football League touchdown in the same week, this year's Sanders was almost modest.

"I think I can have a big impact, but I need to practice and get the defensive scheme down," he said.

Sanders said his Falcon teammates had received him well. "It feels good to be back among friends," he said. "You're closer to your football teammates than your baseball teammates because they shuttle the baseball players in and out all the time."

Royals stay hot, beat Rangers

Associated Press

AL

Gerald Perry, batting .466 in his last 10 games, had three hits and drove in two runs as the Kansas City Royals beat the Texas Rangers for their eighth victory in 10 games.

The Royals, who spent most of the season in the American League West cellar, have climbed to fifth and moved within three games of third-place Texas.

Winner Kevin Appier (8-4) gave up all three Texas runs and seven hits in 6 2-3 innings. Israel Sanchez pitched an inning in his first major league appearance since Sept. 30, 1988, and Jeff Montgomery went 1 1-3 innings for his 17th save.

Rangers starter Kevin Brown (12-9) was forced from the game with a hyperextended right elbow after giving up a leadoff double to Brian McRae in the second inning. He was charged with four hits and four runs.

After Texas scored a run in the top of the first on Rafael Palmeiro's double and Ruben Sierra's single, Kansas City took a 3-1 lead in the bottom of the first.

Kevin Seitzer walked leading off and moved around to third on a passed ball and a groundout before scoring on Perry's single. George Brett singled Perry to third and he scored as Jim Eisenreich forced Brett at second. After Willie Wilson walked, Mike Macfarlane singled Eisenreich home.

Perry singled McRae home in the second inning and the Royals made it 5-2 in the fifth when Perry was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on Wilson's two-out single.

The Rangers scored their second run in the second inning on singles by Geno Petralli, Gary Pettis and Jeff Huson and made it 5-3 in the seventh when Huson walked, took second when Appier tripped on the mound for a balk and scored on Palmeiro's single.

Tigers 6, Indians 5

Cecil Fielder hit his major league-leading 36th home run, a two-run shot that capped a three-run first inning, as the Detroit Tigers avoided a four-game sweep and beat the Cleveland Indians.

Tony Phillips and Alan Trammell also drove in two runs apiece, helping Walt Terrell (1-1), who rejoined the Tigers last month after being released by the Pittsburgh Pirates, earn his first win for Detroit since Aug. 20, 1988. He gave up three runs and seven hits in six innings.

Terrell was signed as a free agent July 28 after going 2-7 for Pittsburgh. He spent 1989 with the San Diego Padres and New York Yankees.

Paul Gibson pitched one inning and Jerry Don Gleaton went two for his seventh save. Gleaton yielded a two-run homer to Mitch Webster in the ninth inning after the Tigers scored what proved to be the decisive run off Colin Ward on Lou Whitaker's double, Phillips' sacrifice and a single by Trammell.

Detroit scored five runs in the first two innings against Jeff Shaw (2-3). Phillips' RBI single and Fielder's two-run homer — he has 93 RBIs — made it 3-0 in the first and Detroit chased Shaw with two in the second when Chet Lemon led off with a double and went to third on Mark Salas' single.

Efrain Valdez relieved and the runs scored on sacrifice flies by Phillips and Trammell. Valdez, making his major league debut, yielded two hits in 5 1-3 scoreless innings.

Cleveland scored a run on Chris James' solo homer in the second inning and two more in the third on RBI singles by Candy Maldonado and James. Dion James, who singled and scored in the third, extended his hitting streak to 16 games, a career high and the best by an Indian this year.

Blue Jays 4, White Sox 3

Chicago relief ace Bobby Thigpen blew a save for only the sixth time in 43 opportunities when the Toronto Blue Jays rallied for three runs in the ninth inning, capped by Junior Felix's RBI single, and beat the White Sox.

Rookie Alex Fernandez, in just his third major league game and celebrating his 21st birthday, held Toronto to five hits and an unearned run over eight innings. It was the second time in Fernandez's three starts that the usually reliable Chicago bullpen blew a victory for him.

With Chicago having scored twice in the eighth to go ahead 3-1, Fred McGriff started the Blue Jays' ninth with a double off Thigpen (4-5) and scored on a single by John Olerud.

Ken Williams ran for Olerud, went to third on a single by Greg Myers and, after pinch-hitter Rance Mulliniks struck out, scored the tying run as Mookie Wilson forced pinch-runner Mark Whiten at second. Felix followed with his game-winning hit.

With the score tied 1-1, Ozzie Guillen opened the White Sox eighth with a single, was sacrificed to second by Phil Bradley and scored on a triple by Lance Johnson. Duane Ward relieved Toronto starter David Wells and retired Ivan Calderon on a grounder but Frank Thomas singled Johnson home.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning when Thomas drew a two-out walk and came around on singles by Carlton Fisk and Sammy Sosa.

ANGELS: Third baseman forced to mound once again

From 1C

They started going for it in the second inning Monday, batting around en route to a 5-0 lead that ex-Midlander Jesus Alfaro started with a single and Ruben Escalera finished with a run-producing double.

In between those hits were a passed ball, a wild pitch, a stolen base, a fielder's choice that pushed across a run and a throwing error by right fielder Tim Salmon that allowed Craig Cooper to score all the way from first base on a single by Guerrero.

"We just got off to a terrible start and had to play catch-up," said Angel manager Eddie Rodriguez. "We just flat-out got beat. We played out our bullpen in Wichita, and we had to stay with our starter longer than we'd have liked."

The Angels, who wrapped up a series with the Wranglers Sunday night, did not actually get out of Wichita until 4 a.m. Monday morning. And if not for Rodriguez opting for relief specialist Robert Moore, it looked like it might take Vidmar even longer than that to get out of the fifth inning.

The Diablos sent another nine batters to the plate during their four-run fifth. The first four hit safely, scored and caused Vidmar to be lifted. Moore, who walked the first batter he faced and let two of Vidmar's runners score on a single by Casey Webster, fanned the next three Diablos.

But if by then it was too late, it would get later.

El Paso purchased a two run policy off Moore in the sixth on two lazy hits, one of them easily catchable that fell untouched when center fielder Mark Doran fell untouched.

Midland's big inning was the seventh. Doran, who was 2-for-3 on the night, provided a leadoff single to center field. Doug Davis followed with a base hit to right, and Jeff Barns drew a walk to load the bases against Eldred (4-4).

However, Kevin Flora — just off the disabled list — hit into a double play that took the zing out of the rally while pushing Doran across. Kevin Davis' two-out double just inside the third-base bag scored Doug Davis to cut the deficit to 11-2, but it was the last hit of the game for the Angels.

Mark Chapman was perfect in relief for El Paso. He struck out three while retiring six straight Angels over the final two innings.

Despite opening their last homestand of the 1990 campaign with a lopsided loss, Rodriguez says he will not come down on his team for its poor play Monday.

"On the contrary," Rodriguez said. "It's too late in the season to come down on anyone. We've got to play it out, and to do that we've got to motivate our people and stress the positive.

"We don't want anyone going into a shell and not performing at this stage of the season."

Attorney says Vincent, Spira collaborated

Associated Press

NEW YORK — A lawyer for George Steinbrenner accused baseball commissioner Fay Vincent on Monday of making a deal with gambler Howard Spira for evidence against the New York Yankees owner.

Robert E. Banker, Steinbrenner's lawyer in Tampa, Fla., said that Vincent is trying to discredit the eight-count federal indictment against Spira, who is accused of threatening to harm and attempting to extort the owner. Vincent and Spira denied the accusations.

"They made a deal with Spira that in return for information damaging George, they would assist Spira in some way with regards to the criminal prosecution," Banker said in a telephone interview. "Or they simply don't want the Spira case tried because they don't want the public to hear what Spira has to say or what George has to say. I can't think of any other reason."

Banker said he decided to speak out after reading a quote from Vincent in last week's Sports Illustrated. Baseball investigator John M. Dowd said assistant U.S. attorney Gregory W. Kehoe had asked that baseball's investigation be postponed, a charge Kehoe denies. Vincent was quoted as saying: "The request was preposterous. The government should look into how it was initiated and why."

Higher prices won't mean more drilling

By Matthew L. Wald
N.Y. Times News Service

Executives of American oil companies say they do not expect the sudden jump in crude oil prices to stimulate exploration and drilling because they have not yet been convinced that the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait will have a long-term effect on prices.

In addition, industry experts say, the drilling industry withered during the 1980s and does not have the capacity to sustain a sharp increase in activity now.

And even if there were the ability, the multinational oil companies have concluded that geologic prospects are better abroad than in the United States, so most new investment would be overseas.

The companies say their profits from drilling done in previous years will rise this year because the oil now being pumped is suddenly worth more. But money spent now to look for a new oilfield might not result in oil being brought to

OPEC plans meeting

By Joan Mower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil-producing countries are planning a new meeting to discuss how they should handle oil shortages that have resulted since Iraq invaded Kuwait, the Saudi ambassador said Monday.

"There will be an OPEC meeting soon," Prince Bandar Bin Sultan said at a briefing for reporters. He said members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are holding "consultations" in preparation for the meeting.

Bandar provided scanty details, refusing to say when and where the OPEC meeting would be held. Earlier he said the Saudis would like "to have a stable and predictable market for oil."

The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2 — and subsequent sanctions against those countries — have cut by 4 million barrels a day the amount of oil available on the world markets.

At the same time, oil prices have climbed because of the uncertainty in the Middle East. The price of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, rose 47 cents a barrel to $26.70 by Monday on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Charles DiBona, chairman of the American Petroleum Institute, said Saudi Arabia and Venezuela have both indicated a willingness to help ease shortages.

At the most recent OPEC meeting, which concluded in Geneva, Switzerland, July 27, the 13 OPEC ministers raised the target price $3 to $21 a barrel. They also agreed not to puncture the production ceiling of 22.5 million barrels a day until the end of the year.

Parts plant strike idles 3 GM plants

■ If a strike at a GM parts plant continues, it could force the lay-off of 40,000 workers by mid-week, but union members are seeing some progress in negotiations.

Associated Press

DETROIT — A strike at a General Motors Corp. parts plant has idled three assembly plants and could force the layoff of 40,000 autoworkers by midweek, the company says.

Bargainers for United Auto Workers union Local 659 and the AC Rochester Flint West plant returned to the bargaining table Monday morning after working for about 12 hours beginning at 1 p.m. Sunday, a union member said.

"It looks like some progress is being made, but they're keeping everybody in the dark," said Johnnie Davis, the local union's sergeant-at-arms. "If it's blacked out, they're probably making some kind of progress."

The plant makes 65 percent of the fuel tanks for GM cars and trucks, and other parts, including engine valves, and grilles for vans and pickup trucks.

"The workers attitudes are excellent and they are positive," union spokesman Larry Sills said Sunday.

Parts shortages brought on by the strike by 2,700 workers, which began Wednesday over health and safety issues and line speedups, also threaten production at the Buick City complex and the Truck & Bus Group assembly plant in Flint.

Also threatened with layoffs are GM plants in Baltimore; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Wentzville, Mo.; and Oshawa, Ontario. The strike also could force shutdowns inside GM's vast network of component plants.

In all, the strike could idle more than 40,000 GM workers by midweek unless the dispute is settled.

UPS drivers OK contract

By Janet L. Cappiello

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Drivers and handlers for United Parcel Service have ratified a new three-year contract against the recommendation of their union leadership, the Teamsters union announced today.

The vote was 65,463 to 53,091 in favor of the contract, said Teamsters President William J. McCarthy said in a statement from union headquarters in Washington.

Officials at Greenwich-based UPS had no immediate comment.

The new contract, which covers about 146,000 full- and part-time UPS employees, is retroactive to Aug. 1 and runs for three years.

The Teamsters negotiating committee had recommended the membership reject the pact, McCarthy said.

"However, I am disappointed that the company went to unprecedented lengths to persuade the workers to vote for their offer," he said. "In the final outcome, I believe that many of the company's employees were frightened by management's ability to use permanent replacement workers, or scabs, in the possible event of a strike."

Teamsters officials had been counting ballots since Friday. Members had until Friday morning to send their votes to union headquarters in Washington.

The Teamsters had agreed Friday to go back to the bargaining table if the contract was rejected, despite a threat early in the negotiations to stage a nationwide strike against UPS, company spokesman Ken Sternad said.

UPS, the world's No. 1 package handler, delivers more than 10 million packages a day, and made 2.8 billion deliveries in 1989 for $12.4 billion in revenue.

The strike threat had led UPS customers and competitors to develop alternate plans. Some customers began shifting their business to the U.S. mail or to Pittsburgh-based Roadway Package System UPS's two main ground-delivery competitors.

Both RPS and the Postal Service said they couldn't handle UPS's volume, and were prepared to impose restrictions on the number of packages they would accept if the Teamsters walked out.

There has never been a national strike against UPS, which has had a national Teamsters contract since 1979, but sporadic work stoppages and strikes have occurred regionally. The last and biggest was in 1976, when 18,000 workers in 15 Northeast states walked out for 13 weeks.

Putting a biblical perspective to oil crisis

■ Giant oil fields and biblical trandition come together in the Middle East crisis.

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

Oil crisis conversation growing stale, looking for new twists to the Middle East conflict? Consider this: The Garden of Eden may have played a direct role in the present conflict.

When one looks for reasons that Iraq invaded tiny Kuwait, they need look no further than the giant Rumaila oil field that lies on the border between Iraq and Kuwait, and in a region that tradition records as the site of the Garden of Eden.

Now a hot, sandy desert geologists sumise that the region may have once been lush with vegetation — a virtual garden. And it could have been the lush vegetation from this "garden" that supplied the organic ingredients that went into the creation of the most prolific oil fields in the world.

A trend that runs from the northern tip of the Persian Gulf to the northern borders of Iraq and Iran is covered with many anticlinal domes that make up the richest oil fields in the world.

One 4,000 ft. dome South of Kuwait City, the Greater Burgan field, is repoated to contain 75 billion barrels of recoverable oil. To put that in perspective the Point Arguella field off the coast of California — which American oilmen consider to be a giant field — has only 500 million barrels of recoverable oil.

Larry Nation a spokesman for the American Association of Petroleum Geologists says geologists are still uncertain as to why these oil fields are so loaded with

Prices gain

Oil prices climbed on the New York Stock Exchange during an abbreviated trading session.

Trading in the New York commodity exchanges was halted by an electrical blackout early in the afternoon that affected much of Wall Street.

On NYNEX, September contracts for West Texas Intermediate climbed 43 cents to close at $26.77 per barrel.

The gain prompted local crude buyers such as Marathon, Sun Refining and Marketing and Permian Corp. to raise their posted prices for WTI 50 cents to $25.25 per barrel.

Unleaded gasoline was up .65 cent to 3.45 cents higher with September contracts at 82.90 cents per gallon.

Gasoline prices

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Middle East crisis helped drive up gasoline prices at the pump by more than a dime a gallon over the last three weeks, an oil analyst says.

The nationwide Lundberg Survey of about 13,000 stations found the average price for all grades of gasoline, including taxes, was $1.27.94 a gallon on Friday, up 10.2 cents from July 20.

Analyst Trilby Lundberg on Sunday said that U.S. oil companies have been forced to pay inflated prices for oil and gasoline on the short-term spot market to meet consumer demand during the summer driving months.

Gold climbs

GOLD

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold prices climbed to five-month highs Monday on concerns that Iraq's occupation of Kuwait could explode into war involving Western forces, choke off the oil flow and batter the economy.

Gold for current delivery was up $8.30 a troy ounce at $405.20 as trading was unexpectedly halted in the early afternoon on New York's Commodity Exchange due to a power outage. Gold rose $13.35 to $404.60 an ounce in London.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to 150.65 yen from 149.75 yen at Friday's close. The dollar lost ground against the British pound. In London, sterling rose to $1.8842 from $1.8730 late Friday.

Dollar rates in New York, compared with late rates Friday, included: 1.5780 German marks, down from 1.5695; 1.3165 Swiss francs, down from 1.3375; 5.2925 French francs, down from 5.3325; 1,156.25 Italian lire, down from 1,165.00; and 1.14625 Canadian dollars, down from 1.14705.

What claims to failed S&L creditors have?

By Bill Doyle

Doyle

Q. After the savings and loan industry was deregulated, many S&Ls expanded their operations into risky loans, junk bonds, other imprudent ventures and, in some instances, outright fraud. That brought on the S&L crisis, which will cost U.S. taxpayers hundreds of billions of dollars.

A S&L can raise money from three sources: deposits, including certificates of deposit; the sale of stock, if the S&L is a corporation; through corporate borrowing.

The federal government insures only depositors. Thus, the hundreds of billions of dollars taxpayers must ante up will make whole only holders of CDs and other deposit accounts at failed S&Ls.

What claims do stockholders and non-deposit lenders have on S&Ls that have gone under?

A. None, if there is nothing left to claim after depositors have been paid off or the S&L was closed by regulators because it didn't have enough assets to pay off depositors. In such cases non-deposit lenders don't receive a dime.

A share of stock represents a piece of ownership in a corporation, be it a S&L or any other type of company. When a corporation is liquidated, stockholders are last in line for payment.

Many S&Ls borrowed money by issuing debt securities, such as subordinated notes and debentures. Holders of those securities stand ahead of stockholders but way behind depositors.

Federal deposit insurance pays off depositors at belly-up S&Ls, up to the insurance limit of $100,000 per depositor per institution. But there is no government bailout for stockholders and non-deposit lenders.

Q. I bought 500 shares of stock in a S&L in May 1988. I paid $15 per share. It now trades for less than $1 a share.

Do you feel solvent S&Ls will bounce back? Would it be wise to buy more shares at the current low price to help cut my losses?

A. There's little doubt that many solvent S&L will return to very profitable status, taking the market values of their stocks back up again.

Which ones? As the Immortal Bard wrote: "There's the rub." This column has never touted individual stocks and I'm certainly not going to start doing so now.

If you feel that particular S&L will recover and you have spare cash you absolutely do not need, you might consider "averaging down" in its stock. By purchasing, say, 500 more shares at $1 each, you would then have $8,000 invested and would own 1,000 shares. Your average cost would be $8 per share.

If the stock ever gets up to $8, which is a long way from your $15 per share cost on your first 500 shares, you could get out and get even.

But buy more shares only if you are convinced that stock will rise again. Down and out S&L stocks are outright gambles.

Q. After purchasing stock of a local S&L on my broker's recommendation and seeing its price go way down, I feel betrayed and ripped off by government regulators. What recourse do I have against the S&L, the government, my broker or anyone else?

A. Unless fraud is proved, you have no recourse. A number of stockholder class action lawsuits charging S&L managements with fraud and seeking recovery have been filed. You can consult an attorney about that.

Don't try to seek any recovery from the government. Granted, federal regulators were all too lax in overseeing high-flying S&Ls for years, until finally cracking down. But the regulators were being held in check by members of Congress who were urging "forbearance," while pocketing fat campaign contributions from S&L executives.

As for your broker, forget it. He or she is not going to give you anything more than a "Sorry about tha'

ANALYSIS

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 30.20 to 2,746.78.

Advancing issues nearly matched declining ones on the New York Stock Exchange, with 723 up, 778 down and 466 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 122.82 million shares, against 145.34 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose 1.48 to 185.63.

The American Stock Exchange's market value index as of 1 p.m. EDT — before the market was forced to close by the power outage — stood at 338.14, down 1.18.

"We're having a very light-volume rally," said Dudley Eppel, a managing director at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp.

He said the market had reached an "oversold" state and investors began buying issues again. In addition, prices were boosted late in the session by computer-driven buying tied to the futures market.

"In the light-volume days the computer controls the tape. It takes it right out of our hands," he said of the program trading.

The rally was a surprise given the market's slump early in the session, Eppel said. The Dow Jones industrial average was down by as much as 32 points in the opening hour.

Trading on the American Stock Exchange, the New York Mercantile Exchange and the Commodity Exchange was cut off shortly after 1 p.m. EDT after a fire caused a power outage in Manhattan's financial district. The exchanges were forced to halt trading for the rest of the day.

The NYSE was not affected by the outage, but many brokerage houses said their operations were curtailed.

The domestic market didn't get any help from abroad this morning. The key index on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, the Nikkei, posted its fourth-largest percentage drop ever, while share prices also were down in Europe.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE
560-2400

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticket symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticket guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticket symbol, press the (*) star key and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticket symbol. You now have 2 options;
* You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
* You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*). Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticket code.
* You may enter up to 10 ticket symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

DRILL: Oil companies 'wait and see' on prices

(From 5C)

market before the invasion is just a memory.

"The lead times are so long, you'd just be nuts to change your basic investment strategy on the basis of price changes in one week," said John Lord, a spokesman for Mobil.

"You're talking about investments that won't come on stream for 5 years, if you're lucky, or maybe 10 years," he said.

Mobil bases its investments in exploration and production on an internal estimate of oil prices three years into the future, and has not changed its current estimate for the next three years, Lord said.

At Exxon, the largest American oil company, which will spend $7.5 billion to $8 billion this year looking for oil, William Smith, a spokesman, said: "Exploration and production budgets are based on long-term considerations. It would seem premature to base E and P plans on recent events."

Shell said in a written statement: "Shell Oil's exploration and production program is based on long-term strategy rather than short-term reactions to market swings or other economic factors. We have not made any changes to our E and P programs based upon the Iraq-Kuwait situation."

At Conoco, which will spend about $2 billion this year and probably the same next year on exploration and production, Constantine Nicandros, the chairman, said that higher prices would have to persist for a year before planners believed that they were here to stay.

"The important thing is what will the price be in six years," he said.

BIBLE: Puts oil crisis in new perspective

(From 5C)

oil fields are so loaded with organic matter that has been "cooked" into oil and gas. "It could be algae or it could be vegetation," he said.

The Treatise of Petroleum Geology published in 1990 reports: "The richness of the sources (organic) remain to be explained."

A dominant geological theory holds that as the continents pulled apart, forming the Persian Gulf, and moved back together several times (at least four) the extreme marine invasions left marine organisms that became the organic source for the Middle East oil. But this would not necessarily preclude the abundance of vegetation, says Nation.

"I wouldn't dare speculate about whether or not this is the site near these fields is the Garden of Eden," said Nation. "We just present the facts and let others draw their own conclusions." He noted that in this part of the world which is home to three major religions it is almost impossible not to associate modern events with ancient events or writings. He said there were many people today, from astrologers to end-timers, trying to connect facts about the invasion, the legendary location of the Garden, petroleum geology and petro-politics.

He went on to add that the discovery of the Basra field west of the Rumaila field was only 35 miles from the reported site of the Garden of Eden, which Bible scholars have long held was located at the confluence of the Tigres and Euphrates rivers.

The AAPG notes that little ingenuity was needed to discover the oil fields of Iraq, because of the long existence of oil and gas seeps in the region. Since ancient times oil and gas seeps along the fabled Tigris River have provided bitumen for waterproofing boats and oil for lamps.

"The Basra field was discovered when an Arab told geologists, in 1938, about a ten-foot wide hole in the desert that continually bubbled gas from the sand," said Nation. Following World War II, a well was drilled near the seepage, by English Geologist T.F.Williamson. Drilling resulted in the discovery of an 8,000 barrel per day well and added a biblical connection to Middle East petroleum.

But it was not the first biblical connection with Iraqi oil. There is an area north of Baghdad where natural gas flumes naturally and where tradition holds that Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego escaped the fiery furnace of Biblical history.

Geologists searching for oil in the Middle East called it the "fiery furnace" site. Surveyed in 1925 by a consortium of scientists from various countries and oil companies, the site was first thought to be uncommercial. But when drilled it produced a gusher that flowed an estimated 90,000 barrels daily and became the discovery well of the giant Kirkuk field in Iraq, with present estimated reserves of 17 billion. One of the Americans, E.W. Shaw, who argued for the "fiery furnace" site later became the chief geologist for the Iraq Petroleum Co., which took over the Turkish company.

As oil fields go the Rumaila, with 14 billion in reserves at a depth of 10,600 feet, is no small potatoes. The tought of Kuwait sipping from Iraq's reservoir was apparently enough to prompt Saddam Hussein to invade tiny Kuwait.

Twice as large as Prudhoe Bay, the giant field situated on the border of Kuwait and Iraq, is the fifth largest oil field in the world. Reserves in the field are estimated at 14 billion barrels, according to the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, which recently researched the field.

The Rumaila was discovered in Iraq in 1953 and was developed until it extended into Kuwait, 35 miles to the south. Perhaps the fact that there are no natural boundaries such as rivers and mountain ranges and development of 'their' field was halted by an imaginary line in the desert.

Gorbachev restores rights of victims of Stalin's terror

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev Monday issued a sweeping decree to restore the rights of all victims of Stalinist repression, saying thousands of innocent people still bore a "stain of injustice."

The decree represented Gorbachev's strongest condemnation yet of Josef Stalin's forced collectivization of agriculture that began in the late 1920s, when millions of peasants died of starvation, were shot or sent to labor camps as "enemies of the people."

In ordering the blanket rehabilitation, Gorbachev decreed that the "repressions conducted ... during the period of collectivization" were "unlawful and contradictory to the main civilian and economic rights of human beings."

He similarly condemned as unlawful the repressions against "all citizens on political, social, ethnic, religious and other motives in the 1920s through the 1950s," and moved "to completely reinstate the rights of these citizens."

The Soviet Union was taking this action now, he said, because "our society ... has chosen the path of moral revival, democracy and legality."

Gorbachev acknowledged in the decree that a special commission to study the repressions under Stalin already had rehabilitated thousands of innocent victims.

"But even now, thousands of cases haven't been considered, and a stain of injustice hasn't been removed from the innocent Soviet people who suffered during forced collectivization, who were sentenced, deported with their families to remote regions without means of existence, without a right of appeal, and without even being aware of the term of their sentence," the decree said.

The decree specifically urges that clergymen and citizens who were persecuted for religious motives should be rehabilitated. Under Stalin, thousands of priests were shot and religious worship was sharply curtailed.

The decree excludes those who were "lawfully sentenced for crimes against the motherland and against the Soviet people" during World War II and in the prewar and postwar years.

It also did not attempt to consider what kind of compensation, if any, such victims should receive. An informal political group, called Memorial, has been demanding compensation and restoration of rights for Stalin's victims.

Gorbachev ordered the government of the Soviet Union and its republics to submit, before Oct. 1, proposals to legislatures on restoring the rights of repressed citizens.

The decree also ordered the Soviet government to draft legislation defining the crimes that are not subject to rehabilitation.

2nd freed hostage arrives in Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Kidnappers in south Lebanon freed a Swiss hostage after 10 months of captivity, releasing Elio Erriquez to Syrian officials there who took him to Damascus and handed him over to the Swiss ambassador early Tuesday.

"I am happy, very, very happy," Red Cross worker Erriquez, 24, said at the Foreign Ministry before being whisked away by Swiss Ambassador Eric Pfister minutes after his arrival in the Syrian capital.

Another Swiss hostage, Emanuel Christen, 33, was freed on Wednesday. Like Erriquez, Christen was an orthopedic technician with the International Committee of the Red Cross. Both men were kidnapped on Oct. 6, in Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut.

In Beirut, a late-night communique from a group calling itself the Organization of the Palestinian Revolutionary Squads said Erriquez was handed over on Monday to a representative of Brig. Gen. Ghazi Kenaan, chief of Syria's military intelligence in Lebanon. The group said earlier that Erriquez was freed at the behest of Syria, Libya and Algeria.

Syria's state minister for foreign affairs, Nasser Qaddour, turned the hostage over at 12:03 a.m. Tuesday after he was driven from Lebanon.

Erriquez, wearing a white shirt and white pants, looked pale but well as his ordeal ended. He was driven to Pfister's residence in Damascus. There was no word on when he would leave Syria.

In Geneva, his mother Graziana Erriquez, had agaonzied for hours Monday before receiving official confirmation her son was free.

"Waiting for definite word was bad," she told a reporter. "I had been waiting all day long. But now, I am very happy."

A brief, handwritten statement in Arabic from the kidnappers was delivered to a Western news agency at 11 p.m. Monday, with an authenticating photograph of the hostage.

Radicals, dissidents demand free travel to North Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Thousands of radical students and dissidents shouting "Unification!" rallied at a university Monday to demand unrestricted travel to communist North Korea.

Police fired tear gas to disperse several dozen students hurling rocks outside Seoul's Yonsei University. About 3,000 protesters gathered to support unification of the divided Korean peninsula.

There were no injuries or arrests during the 20-minute clash.

Under a South Korean proposal, the heavily armed border was to have opened for unrestricted travel to North Korea for five days, beginning Monday. But both sides failed to agree on procedures.

The two countries have been bitter rivals since the division of their land in 1945. They fought a three-year war in the early 1950s. Their border is sealed and there is no mail or other forms of regular communication.

Protesters at Yonsei, a hotbed of anti-government protests, shouted support for a unification rally to be held with North Korea at the border truce village of Panmunjom Wednesday.

A group of folk dancers beat drums and gongs. The rally was held against the backdrop of a huge painting of a South Korean student who was jailed for making a trip to the north last year without government approval.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The Midland County Commissioner's Court will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1989 by 6.4 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on August 20, 1990 at 5:00 P.M. at Commissioner's Court Room, 2nd Floor, County Court House.

FOR the proposal: Commissioners Winfree Brown, Louisa Valencia, Guy McCrary, Durwood Wright & Judge William B. Ahders

AGAINST the proposal: NONE

PRESENT and not voting: NONE

ABSENT: NONE

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the effective tax rate that the unit published on Saturday, August 4, 1990. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	$53,760	$53,180
General Exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	0	0
Average taxable value	$53,760	$53,180
Tax rate	.165/$100	.1800/$100 (proposed)
Tax	$88.70	95.72 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $7.02 or 7.91% percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $.0150 per $100 of taxable value or 9.09 percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property

PUBLIC NOTICE

After three consecutive years of no ad valorem tax increase by Midland County, circumstances require that the County increase taxes this year by an effective rate of 6.4%. This increase will cost the average homeowner (appraised value of $53,180) $5.77 additional taxes per year or $.48 per month.

The major reasons for this tax increase include increased costs of health insurance, workers' compensation insurance, property insurance, public liability insurance, fuel and utilities, other miscellaneous inflationary costs, and nominal salary increase for County employees.

It is the intent of Midland County to adopt an ad valorem tax rate of $.18 per $100 valuation. This rate should place Midland County in the bottom ten tax rates in the state of Texas among 254 counties.

*For comparison, other area tax rates include:

Andrews	.3071	Lynn	.26	Taylor	.3224
Crane	.2777	Reagan	.31	Ward	.49
Ector	.38	Scurry	.2966	Upton	.41
Glasscock	.3804	Shackleford	.317	Winkler	.60
Howard	.22	Sterling	.35
Loving	.33	Sutton	.288

*Source: County Progress Magazine

These rates reflect 1988 tax rates and have almost all increased since publication.

The average tax rate for all Texas counties is approximately $.36, or about twice the rate of Midland County.

Respectfully,

Midland County Commissioners' Court

GULF CONFLICT

Cheney returns to Gulf; Troops' stay likely to be long

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush ordered Defense Secretary Dick Cheney back to the tense Persian Gulf, officials said Monday, as American combat troops arriving in Saudi Arabia were told to brace for a long stay.

Bush said he would break away from his vacation for a day and return to the White House on Tuesday for deficit-reduction talks with his advisers and a briefing at the Pentagon on the military face-off with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the naval barricade against Iraq had forced two or three ships to turn back at sea, and he declared "the embargo is being maintained" on shipping into and out of Iraq.

He also defended the inclusion of food shipments to Iraq under global sanctions, saying the purpose of the embargo is "to put the pinch on them" and deny supplies "that allow them to maintain the war machine."

In Washington, the State Department said about 500 Americans had quietly slipped out of Kuwait in the face of Iraqi efforts to keep Westerners from leaving.

In Saudi Arabia, meanwhile, a 27-year-old sergeant stepped off a plane at a Saudi air base and summed up the concerns of many American soldiers: "Yes, it's scary. You have to build up the courage and put the fear aside and do what you have to do." The soldier, from Claymont, Del., had a gas mask on his belt.

"They are telling us to be ready to stay four to six months," said the soldier. The military did not permit troops to be identified by name.

The Pentagon said Cheney will fly to Saudi Arabia on Friday to visit U.S. troops and meet with the kingdom's leaders. It is his second trip to the Persian Gulf since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said Cheney may visit other countries before returning to Washington next Tuesday. The secretary stopped in Egypt and Morocco on his earlier trip to Saudi Arabia.

Bush, meanwhile, is to return to his oceanside retreat on Wednesday and then shuttle back and forth to Washington between now and Labor Day.

Fitzwater said the Persian Gulf crisis underscored the need for a budget-cutting agreement between Congress and the White House.

"There needs to be a unity of purpose in this country not only about the conflict in the gulf but also about our spending issues and about where the budget is going," Fitzwater said.

As global economic sanctions squeezed Iraq, the military buildup grew steadily in the Persian Gulf area. Planes carrying U.S. troops and equipment were landing about every 10 minutes, one military official said. Bush has committed an estimated 50,000 U.S. forces to the gulf so far.

Sources said the battleship Wisconsin, meantime, has reached the eastern Mediterranean.

The Bush administration says the military buildup and the embargo are designed to deter a possible Iraqi invasion of Saudi Arabia and to force Baghdad to pull its conquering force out of Kuwait.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler estimated there are now about 2,500 Americans in the Iraqi-held country in addition to 500 to 600 in Iraq itself.

U.S. officials said some of Americans have been able to take advantage of lax Iraqi security at the final check point on Kuwaiti territory to cross the border into Saudi Arabia. However, David Thomas Croskery, a Briton who apparently tried to flee by the same route was shot to death Saturday, and Ms. Tutwiler said the administration was "shocked and extremely concerned" by that action.

She and Fitzwater, in Kennebunkport, criticized Iraqi reports that foreigners were free to leave Kuwait. "We now have cars lined up at the Saudi border who are unable to get out," he said.

The White House spokesman said the global economic embargo against Iraq would restrict food supplies for the time being, although there is an exemption for medical products.

Overall, Fitzwater said, "We assess the impact of the embargo as excellent. To our knowledge, ships are not arriving. The embargo is being maintained."

He said, "We have had two or three ships in recent hours that have turned away or been turned away, or at least have otherwise not landed with their cargo." None of the ships was engaged in a confrontation with U.S. ships, Fitzwater said.

Explaining the decision to restrict food, Fitzwater said, "The purpose of the sanctions and the embargo is to put the pinch on them. It seems fairly obvious to me you don't let foodstuffs and other things go in that are subject to the sanctions.

"The purpose is not let supplies go in that allow them to maintain the war machine, allow them to maintain their aggressive takeover of Kuwait," Fitzwater said. "You don't give them the essentials that enable them to carry on the war."

The administration did not want to use the word "blockade" to describe its quarantine of Iraq. "We're not interested in semantics. We're interdicting ships. That's our policy," Fitzwater said.

Bush called Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez to discuss the gulf situation and world oil supplies, Fitzwater said. U.S. officials have said Venezuela, a member of OPEC, is stepping up oil production to help offset the cutoff of Iraqi and Kuwait oil.

Asked about reports that Jordan was letting shipments through to Iraq, Fitzwater said, "We are hopeful that Jordan will comply. They have said they will abide by the sanctions."

Asked why the United States would block food shipments, Fitzwater said, "We have obvious humanitarian concerns but we have also very real military concerns and this is a force that is after all threatening many countries of the world. It is a leader who has killed people by his own hand and by his own forces."

Confrontation more than U.S.-Iraq conflict over oil

By Jonathan Broder
Hearst News Service

■ An Analysis

SAN FRANCISCO — The escalating confrontation in the Persian Gulf is creating an unprecedented set of possibilities and perils that go far beyond the threat of a U.S.-Iraq armed conflict over the world's richest oil fields.

The crisis has set in motion, at least in the short term, a dramatic realignment of forces in the Middle East, shattering traditional structures and conventional wisdoms that have shaped the region for decades.

In a dizzying series of events, one Arab country invaded another, American ground troops took up positions in a country that is protector of Islam's holiest shrine and a pan-Arab force has been formed, not to take on the "Zionist enemy" — a central driving force in the Arab world — but to oppose a man who claimed for himself the mantle of Arab leadership.

The extraordinarily rapid, and favorable, response to President Bush's calls for economic sanctions against Iraq reflects the realities of a new world order in which the two superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union, no longer use regions like the Middle East to play out their Cold War.

Rather, the genuinely international campaign against Iraq appears to presage a new system of collective security to deal with threats to international stability.

"This is really quite extraordinary," said Richard Gardner, a former U.S. diplomat and now a professor at Columbia University. "If this works, this would be a watershed event in the history of this century."

The worldwide response reflects another reality of the 1990s: in today's world of interconnected global economics, money — not ideology — is the prime consideration of nations. The threat of a disruption to Persian Gulf oil supplies affects the Soviet Union and Japan as much as the United States and Western Europe.

As the United States has sent troops and warplanes, Britain and France, both former arms suppliers to Iraq, have sent warships to the Gulf as part of a possible naval blockade. Turkey, a NATO member and a Muslim state with strong economic ties to Iraq, shut down Iraq's oil pipelines to the Mediterranean and has offered the use of strategic bases on Iraq's northern border in the eventuality of armed conflict.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union, Iraq's principal military and economic patron during the Cold War (it still has military advisers in Iraq), has said it is ready to join a U.N. military force if the economic boycott fails to halt Iraqi aggression.

The Arab League's majority vote to send a pan-Arab military force to Saudi Arabia is particularly significant. While it reflects the Arabs' desire to restore their own brand of order to their region, observers believe the effort will not be able to operate independently for long and is likely to be subsumed within the larger Western campaign against Iraq.

Of particular note is the makeup of the pan-Arab force, which will include units of the Egyptian, Moroccan and Syrian armies. Until the Cold War ended, Egypt and Syria were bitter enemies, and the notion of the two participating in a combined operation was virtually unthinkable.

Now, Moscow's cutoff of its hefty economic and military assistance has forced the Syrians to reconsider their strategy. The crisis in neighboring Iraq, Syria's principal Arab rival, has now forced Damascus into a de facto military alliance with Egypt.

Therein lie enormous risks.

First, it is doubtful that Hussein, who has ruthlessly used his security apparatus to neutralize any domestic opposition, will fold either in the face of outside pressure or of popular unrest caused by the tightening economic squeeze.

"This guy is the godfather of the Arab world," said a U.S. State Department intelligence analyst. "He does not scare easily."

The longer Hussein survives, some analysts fear, the more he may be able to galvanize Arabs who regard him as the only Arab leader brave enough to stand up to the West. His appeal Friday for a holy jihad against the West already has found a responsive chord among Arabs in Amman, Jordan, who burned American flags and volunteered to sign up with the Iraqi army.

Analysts also do not rule out the possibility that an increasingly desperate President Hussein might find a pretext to attack Israel in a bid to rally the Arabs against their common foe.

Perhaps the biggest question is what might happen if the Bush administration gets its wish and the Hussein regime falls. It could, says Chaudhry, ignite a bloodbath between Iraq's majority Shiite Muslims and its minority Sunnis.

"The alternative to Saddam could very well end up being an Islamic fundamentalist regime of the most radical kind."

Analysts and officials agree that one thing is virtually certain: The U.S. military presence in Saudi Arabia will be a long one, rivaling World War II, when 40,000 U.S. troops were stationed in the Middle East to protect allied supply lines to the Soviet Union.

However, today's confrontation with Iraq is not a replay of the good fight between democracy and fascism, the experts agree. In today's world of diminishing resources, this fight is over the precious fuel that drives the engines of Western economies.

"If we pull out, there is a very good likelihood that the Saudi government will fall," a U.S. official said. "We can't risk that. We're in it for the long haul."

Mideast nations well-armed with U.S. weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Mideast is bristling with billions of dollars worth of modern weapons, much of the arsenal provided by the United States. That includes Kuwaiti missiles now in the hands of Iraq.

Many of the arms transfers to the Mideast have been financed by low-interest, long-term U.S. loans. Israel, at nearly $1.9 billion this year, and Egypt, at almost $1.3 billion, are the world's biggest recipients of such aid.

Other nations, such as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, pay cash for U.S. weapons.

Both the aid program and the cash sales are aimed at supporting friendly governments in the region and assuring the free flow of oil.

That overriding interest caused President Bush to dispatch U.S. military forces to the Persian Gulf last week to shield oil-rich Saudi Arabia from the threat of an attack by Iraq, which overran Kuwait Aug. 2.

Pentagon officials say that while the United States sold arms to Kuwait only infrequently, its arsenals included some U.S. Hawk anti-aircraft missiles and several thousand U.S. Tow anti-tank missiles. All are now believed to be in Iraqi hands.

Most of Kuwait's fighter aircraft, including two squadrons of French-built Mirage F-1s and several dozen American Skyhawk warplanes, are believed to have been flown to safety in Saudi Arabia.

Before it was attacked, Kuwait had arranged a $1.8 billion purchase of U.S. FA-18 fighter aircraft plus anti-ship and anti-aircraft missiles.

But the aircraft were not scheduled for delivery until 1992 and a Pentagon official, who asked not to be named, said that if Kuwait remains in Iraq's control the United States has no obligation to deliver them.

During the last 20 years, just $1.5 billion in U.S. weaponry was transferred to Kuwait, a small fraction of the arms sent to other Mideastern nations.

Saudi Arabia has been the biggest customer for U.S. arms, with $23 billion in deliveries over that period. Israel has received $11 billion in weapons; Egypt, $6 billion.

Washington has sold Saudi Arabia much of its modern weaponry and is helping that nation modernize its military capability.

Shortly after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, the United States acted to dismantle congressional obstacles to arms deliveries to Saudi Arabia.

Defense Secretary Richard Cheney waived a legislative restriction limiting to 60 the number of sophisticated F-15 warplanes Saudi Arabia is allowed to have. The Pentagon official said the Saudis will now be allowed to have 70 F-15s.

The Saudis previously made a $3 billion purchase of U.S. TOW anti-tank missiles, which are now being produced, the official said. Last year, the Saudis bought 320 M1A2 tanks, which have yet to be built, for $3 billion.

Major Saudi arms deals this year include more than $1 billion for the modernization of the oil-rich kingdom's national guard and another $1 billion to modernize the Saudi fleet of AWACS early-warning aircraft.

Palestinians hail Saddam as savior of their cause

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied lands are celebrating President Saddam Hussein of Iraq as a savior who can win back the West Bank and Gaza Strip and restore Arab pride by teaching the Americans a lesson.

The euphoric support for Saddam has replaced the widespread despair gripping Palestinians since Middle East peace efforts broke down and their 32-month uprising against Israel lost momentum.

It also has united the PLO — already closely allied with Saddam — and Moslem fundamentalist factions that have been at each others' throats during the uprising.

Pro-Saddam sentiments reached near-frenzy Monday, a day after Saddam said he would only consider pulling out of Kuwait if Israel withdrew from the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Thousands marched in pro-Saddam rallies in the West Bank and celebrated him as a national hero who would deliver by force what diplomacy failed to achieve.

In the West Bank's largest city, Nablus, some 2,000 people chanted "Saddam, we are with you until victory!" and waved Iraqi flags and posters of the leader. In the town of Jenin, about 1,000 marchers urged Saddam to attack Israel with chemical weapons.

Leading pro-PLO activists said the outbursts are a measure of the frustration over failed peace efforts. They blamed the United States for not forcing its close ally, Israel, to make a deal with the Palestinians and give up occupied land.

"People here are frustrated that there is no solution to their plight. That explains their enthusiastic support for somebody who might find that solution," said Radwan Abu Ayyash, head of the Arab Journalists Association in the occupied lands.

"The Palestinians are anti-American, not pro-Saddam," Abu Ayyash told The Associated Press.

He said Americans applied a double standard by demanding Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait while accepting Israel's continued occupation of territories won in the 1967 Middle East war.

"People are wondering why the Americans are suddenly Rambo in the Persian Gulf, and where was Rambo in 1967," Abu Ayyash said.

Faisal Husseini, another leading pro-PLO activist, said Saddam has given Palestinians new hope by linking Israeli and Iraqi withdrawals.

"If there is one way to solve our problem, it is through Saddam's initiative. It would solve all problems of international legitimacy in the area," Husseini said.

Many Palestinians said the Persian Gulf crisis is the final blow to efforts by Secretary of State James A. Baker III to broker peace talks between the Israelis and Palestinians.
