'Vicious rumors' circulating

'Tell it to the D.A.'

By JAMES WERRELL
District Attorney Rick Hamby's office doors were thrown open today to any who might have allegations against members of the police department or other city officials.

Near the end of today's regular meeting of the Big Spring City Council, Mayor Wade Choate made an open plea to the community to help squelch such allegations.

"A lot of vicious rumors have been circulating in the community addressed to myself, other council members and city officials. If you have factual information regarding these allegations, please take it to the District Attorney (Rick Hamby).

"It is deplorable that we have to put up with what we have, and if you can back up an allegation, your proper channel is through the district attorney's office," he said.

The mayor added that some of the "very people circulating these rumors are in this room right now." He accused them of undermining and tearing down the community.

Still in regular session, the council voted as one to empower Hamby to take action on any information he might receive in regard to allegations against city employees.

"We will instruct you (Hamby) to carry out this investigation, and we will ask the Chief of Police (Stanley Bogard) to cooperate with you, and provide any records necessary," said Councilman Larry Miller.

In addition, the council provided safeguards for any policeman or city employee who may feel that his job would be jeopardized if he were to come forth with incriminating evidence.

If a policeman feels that retaliatory action has been taken against him because he offered information to the district attorney, he may appeal directly to the city council. This channel of appeal has not formerly been opened to city employees, and has been made only because of the exceptional circumstances.

According to the council's directive, the appeal may be made in the event of a demotion as well as a firing; any disciplinary action that could be construed as retaliation.

Hamby will travel to Fort Worth today to ask the aid of the District and County Association in the investigation. He said that he may also ask for manpower from the State Attorney's General Office and the Department of Public Safety to assist him.

"There is definitely a willingness on my part to prosecute if the rumors can be substantiated," said Hamby. "I'm as anxious to put these rumors to rest as anyone," he added.

Both the mayor and Hamby refused to cite specific allegations that may be made.

"I would hate to mention any," said Choate.

"In light of the fact that there is always the possibility that these allegations might result in prosecution, it would not be appropriate to specify any at this time," said Hamby.

Hamby was also asked whether Police Officers John Burson and Gilbert Limon would be entitled to an appeal before the council due to the new ruling. Both officers were transferred from the Major Crime Task Force following judgement by their superiors that neither was performing adequately at the post.

"As I see it, that action was not taken as a result of information those officers had brought to me. That is a different matter, and they would have no right to an appeal to the council," said Hamby.

In another action today, the council turned to a different body to help squash another set of allegations. The Federal Government will be called upon to audit all appropriations of equipment at the Big Spring Industrial Park.

"I make a motion that we call for a federal audit to get this industrial park situation cleared up, and get on with city business," said Councilman Bill Henkel. "There has been a lot of talk, and a lot of stuff discussed, and I want to get it cleared up in the minds of the people of Big Spring," he added.

The mayor concurred, and lauded the suggestion of a federal audit because "it won't cost the city a penny." The council voted unanimously in favor of the motion.

The agenda had also contained an item calling for the council to set a fair rental rate for properties at the industrial park. This item was deferred, however, until the new city manager has a chance to review the situation and give his opinion.

He is expected to assume the office on Monday.

TESCO MANAGER JACK REDDING STRESSES A POINT
Request for rate hike turned down by city

John Wayne, movie hero, dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wayne, a Hollywood hero for nearly 50 years and 200 movies, built his image as a fearless, determined fighter. That was the way "The Duke" died — in a courageous fight with cancer.

As the disease began its final assault and as the pain became more severe, Wayne sometimes refused the drugs that could have eased the way. He wanted, a hospital official said, "to be with his children, his grandchildren...He would tolerate discomfort just to be near his family."

His seven children were at his side when Wayne, known to friends and fans as "The Duke," died at 5:30 p.m. Monday at the UCLA Medical Center. His 72nd birthday was celebrated May 26.

"He was — and is — an American institution," said actor Charlton Heston. "It's not surprising that, to the end, Duke gave an example of courage that made him more than an actor and friend."

Hospital administrator Bernard Strohm, announcing the death at a news conference three hours later, said Wayne's family planned a private funeral.

Hospital administrator Bernard Strohm, announcing the death at a news conference three hours later, said Wayne's family planned a private funeral. Announcement of the death was delayed to accommodate the family, he said.

Reaction was swift as the news of Wayne's death flashed around the world. Bob Hope: "We've lost a big one, a jumbo in this business." Jack Lemmon: "John Wayne was bigger than life but he never abused it." Lloyd Nolan: "He was a magnificent man." Lorne Greene: "He had true character." Buddy Ebsen: "He had a big generous heart and a great soul."

And the little people, Wayne's fans, offered their tributes, too. Condolence calls from all over the country began pouring into the UCLA Medical Center shortly after Wayne's death and continued today.

Before Wayne's death, cards and letters by the thousands had flooded UCLA from around the country and the world. Queen Elizabeth even sent her greetings and President Carter paid the Duke a bedside visit on May 5.

Countless fans had been following Wayne's final battle since Jan. 12, when a routine gallbladder operation turned into a 9½-hour ordeal as surgeons found cancer in his stomach and removed it.

The next five months brought small successes — release from the hospital, an ovation at the Academy Awards — and gradual, inexorable deterioration. He was back in surgery May 2. This time the cancer was in his intestines.

Wayne — who played the cowboy, the marine, the admiral, the football player — was granted scant expectation of progress, though he was taking short walks near his room, hospital officials said.

Cards and letters by the thousands poured into the Medical Center from around the country and the world.

As a measure of Wayne's immense popularity and almost legendary stature, Congress last month voted to have a gold medal struck in his honor. Among the other 83 recipients of the congressional medal were George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

Rate hike request denied

The Big Spring City Council voted unanimously to deny a rate increase request from the Texas Electric Service Company during today's regular meeting.

According to Jack Redding, manager of the local TESCO, the company has requested a 10 percent increase for this year. The company requested a 24 percent boost last year, and was granted an 8.5 percent hike which became effective in November of 1979 by the Texas Public Utilities Commission.

"You received an 8.5 percent increase last year, and you want another 10 percent increase this year? Can the people look for TESCO to come forward every year asking for more money?" asked Harry Spanaus, city industrial park manager.

"Yes, until our construction is complete. That should be sometime in 1985," said Redding.

As in past requests, Redding cited rising costs of generating plants, interest rates, operating costs, construction costs and fuel costs as the reason for the proposed increase.

"The only thing to decrease is the company's return to the stockholders. Acting City Manager Paul Feazelle informed council members that they had four options regarding the request: it could be approved in the full amount; it could be approved in a lesser amount; rates could be suspended for 120 days while the Texas Municipal League drafted an alternate proposal; or it could be flatly rejected.

The council chose the latter option. It will now be the prerogative of TESCO to appeal the council's decision to the PUC.

In the past, the city has taken the rate-suspension route. Then, using city money, a collective suit was filed for a lower rate with the PUC, using representatives of the Texas Municipal League as counsel.

Emergency landing of DC-9

DENVER (AP) — A Texas International Airlines DC-9 was forced to circle about 30 minutes today when a landing-gear indicator light malfunctioned on landing at Denver, an airline spokesman said.

The spokesman, Don Welch, said there were no injuries as Texas International Flight 991 from Houston to Denver landed safely about 8:15 a.m., with its landing gear locked in place.

He said the airplane was taken to a hangar for repairs.

FAMILY SWIM — After flunking his first swimming lesson Saturday, the first baby swan ever to be born at Trinity Memorial Park joined his watchful parents in the pond Monday. The little cygnet, born early last week, came as a surprise to owner Steve Childress and his family who had made several unsuccessful attempts to aid the mother swan in hatching eggs in the past. Swans have been at Trinity Memorial since the early 1950's, said Childress. The mother — known as a pen — of this baby was flown in from California 10 years ago. Childress said it would be several years before it would be possible to determine whether the cygnet is a pen or a cob.

Action / reaction: It's legal

Q. What is the law regarding parents who leave small children (ten and under) at home alone while they both work?

A. Tom Hosier, Midland office of the Department of Human Resources, said there is no law in relation to age of children left home alone. His office works with parents who have to leave children home while they work to find suitable day care for them. He said it is possible that criminal charges could be brought against the parents by a district attorney if the child is neglected.

Calendar: Auditions

TODAY

Auditions for the Spring City Theatre's summer production for the Starlight Specials will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Howard College Auditorium.

WEDNESDAY

The Big Spring State Hospital will sponsor a summer blood drive in the Lab Room of Surgical Building 11, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. All donors are urged to attend, and give the "gift of life."

"Treasure Show" at the Howard County Library, 10:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

Tops on TV: Roy Bean movie

If you're in the mood for a movie, "The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean," starring Paul Newman, starts on CBS at 7:30 p.m. Critics called it a real turkey but you might disagree. The movie makers are supposed to have taken liberties with the truth but, in cases where Judge Bean was concerned, who knows the truth. He was a law unto himself. The funniest thing on television could be "Taxi," starring Judd Hirsch. This one is about a wealthy woman, played by Ruth Gordon, who takes a fancy to Alex (Hirsch) and begins to reward him with lavish tips and expensive gifts. It starts at 8:30 p.m., on ABC.

Hansen twins odds improve

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — For the first time, doctors have expressed a bit of optimism about the future of separated Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen.

The girls' conditions were upgraded from serious to fair Monday.

"Early indications are favorable," hospital spokesman John Dwan quoted attending physicians as saying, "and the doctors say recovery is progressing well."

The 20-month-old girls, born joined at the top of their heads, were surgically separated in a 16½-hour operation on May 30.

They were listed in critical but stable condition for one week after the separation. That was changed to serious but stable condition a week ago.

Doctors had declined to give a general prognosis for the girls, saying they were neither optimistic nor pessimistic.

On Monday, however, Dwan said, "While it could be months before a definitive neurological evaluation is possible, the doctors also report that early indications are favorable.

"The girls continue to eat and sleep regularly. They are held often by their parents and the nurses and are responding to outside stimuli," Dwan said.

He said the sisters also have started limited physical therapy "to help them move independently and to improve their ability to move."

He said doctors again said that even though both girls show "continued good progress, they will remain vulnerable for some time to several potential problems."

Dwan did not say what the problems were, but in the past he said doctors were concerned about infection.

Meanwhile, the girls' parents, David and Patricia Hansen of Ogden, have hired an attorney to help them with crush of letters, requests for appearances and money offers, Dwan said.

"They've gotten so many requests for so many things that they decided to get themselves a lawyer to help them handle it all," he said.

Houston police Sixth sketch released in assassination case

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights will take a long, hard look during the next two days at the Houston police department, a target of bitter criticism during the past two years by minority groups claiming brutality and excessive use of firearms.

Houston, the nation's 5th largest city, was selected, along with Philadelphia, for commission hearings into complaints of police wrongdoings.

A day before the hearings were to begin, Police Lt. C.J. Lofland said Houston is much like Dodge City of the 1880s when shootouts were routine and the man with the fastest draw was the one to live.

Lofland said eight to 10 homicides in a weekend "is a common occurrence."

Last weekend, 12 persons were murdered in Houston, bringing the homicide total for the year to 248, compared with 177 for the same period in 1978.

Lofland added, "Houston is a boomtown, alive, vibrant and growing and the number of law enforcement officers need to police a city this size is unavailable."

Mexican-Americans have been the loudest in the protests of Houston police, especially since the death of Joe Campos Torres in May 1978. Torres drowned in the muddy waters of Buffalo Bayou while in police custody. The three officers convicted of violating Torres' civil rights received probation sentences from a federal judge.

slaying of the 63-year-old judge known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases.

It was the second time in seven months a Western District of Texas official involved in West Texas drug cases had been ambushed. Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr escaped a hail of automatic rifle fire Nov. 21 when he ducked behind the dashboard of his car.

Kerr has since been given 24-hour protection by U.S. marshals. Since Wood's assassination, the four remaining judges in the district and other prosecutors have been given constant protection.

The man pictured in the sixth composite is described as being a tall Anglo or Mexican-American in his early 20s, with a dark complexion, large nose, thin build and full, black wavy hair.

"They're not suspects, as such. We're just trying to identify who they are and what they were doing there," Special Agent Manuel Marquez said of the men in the six composites.

None of the men had been officially identified by Monday afternoon, although an FBI spokesman said some information could be forthcoming on "one or two."

Liz Hodges

There are still lots of paperBOYS delivering Herald routes. However, many young LADIES also handle carrier routes and do a fine job. One of these young ladies is Liz Hodges, 15-year-old daughter of Paul and Shirley Hodges, 1409 Oriole.

Liz has been a Herald carrier for 3 months and enjoys working with the people on her route. Carriers like Liz learn how to talk with adults and learn to work with them on a business basis.

Liz loves to fish, swim and ride bikes. And with a carrier route she has plenty of time left over to enjoy her enthusiasm for sports.

Girls like Liz can have Herald routes and profit from them. She likes to buy clothes with her route earnings...it's a great way to earn money.

So young ladies, phone us today and one of our District Representatives will be glad to discuss route work with you. And there just may be a route open for you right NOW! Phone 263-7331 or write our Circulation Department.

Rabies scare in Eagle Pass

EAGLE PASS, Texas (AP) — Officials waited today for test results to see if an 8-year-old boy would become No. 51 on a list of persons bitten by rabid dogs in the past 90 days on both sides of this city of 21,000, which sits on the Mexican border.

Gerardo Castano was listed Monday night in "serious and guarded condition" in the intensive care unit of San Antonio's Santa Rosa Hospital, according to hospital spokesman Jack Finger.

"It has not been confirmed that he has rabies. He has symptoms of rabies," said Finger, adding that tests on the child have been sent to the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Mayor Edward Rodriguez said 50 persons have undergone the rabies vaccinations in Eagle Pass.

Forty-two of the 50 patients already have completed the series, said Dr. William Nettles, a Uvalde veterinarian.

Eight others still were undergoing treatments in Piedras Negras, Mexico, just across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, according to Dr. Alberto Valdez, a Mexican public health officer.

Authorities on both sides of the border were trying to locate a Mexican man bitten 12 days ago by a rabid dog at an Eagle Pass junkyard.

Officials said the man returned to Mexico without knowing the seriousness of his wound.

"Nobody knows who that gentleman is or where he is from," said City Manager Roberto Gonzalez.

A rabies researcher at the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said the prognosis is bleak for anyone who contracts the disease.

"It's almost always fatal. There have been three survivors reported in medical history," said Dr. William Winkler, a veterinarian epidemiologist who has worked in rabies research since 1961.

Meanwhile, officials feared another wave of animal infections in the area.

Secondary cases of rabies are expected soon, said Nettles.

"The first case in Eagle Pass was Easter Sunday. We've already had our first secondary case, and now dogs that were exposed have gotten through the incubation period," said Nettles.

City officials, in an emergency meeting Monday, enlisted the aid of area clergymen to warn residents about the danger.

"We know you are compassionate, so we are asking you to spread the word (of the rabies outbreak) to your parishioners," Gonzalez told the clergymen.

Gonzalez and Rodriguez distributed State Health Department pamphlets written in Spanish and English entitled "Rabies ... And How It Can Be Controlled."

The Castano youth is a native of Piedras Negras, but has been living with his uncle in Eagle Pass, authorities said. He was bitten on the hand May 10 in Piedras Negras by his father's dog, said his uncle, Oscar Castano, speaking through an interpreter. The dog later disappeared, the uncle said.

"Four of the six doctors treating him believe he has rabies," Gonzalez said.

Valdez said when the boy was brought to a Mexican clinic June 1, he was vomiting, complaining of headaches and had trouble swallowing. The boy was given a tetanus shot and released, Valdez said.

Some time later, Valdez said, two other doctors suspected rabies and recommended the boy be taken to San Antonio.

WHEW — Constance Lewkowicz of Margate, Fla. gives a sigh of relief as is comforted by her husband Richard following her return to the U.S. after she and 193 other Delta Airlines passengers were taken to Cuba when a young man hijacked the jet. All passengers and crew members returned safely after spending a few hours at Jose Marti Airport in Havana.

Florida-bound passenger jet skyjacked to Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — A stocky, bearded man who hijacked a U.S. airliner to Havana Monday night was tentatively identified today as the Cuban pilot who flew an armed MiG jet fighter to the United States in 1969 without being spotted by defense radar until just before he landed in Florida.

It was the first hijacking of a U.S. plane to Cuba in 4½ years.

The hijacker told the crew of the Delta Airlines New York-to-Fort Lauderdale flight that he was carrying an explosive in a bag, forcing them to fly him and 194 passengers to Havana, FBI special agent William Nettles said. Cuban authorities who led him away in handcuffs after the plane landed did not say whether an explosive was found.

The plane, Flight 1061, was then allowed to leave and landed at Miami International Airport at 2:10 a.m. with all passengers and 12 crew members unharmed.

"He said, 'I'm sorry. I have to get to Havana,'" Don Donner of Fort Lauderdale recalled.

State Department spokeswoman Sue Pittman said the hijacker had been tentatively identified as Eduardo Guerra Jimenez.

Guerra, 37, shocked officials on Oct. 5, 1969, when he landed a MiG-17 at Homestead Air Force Base in a plane that carried 40 rounds of ammunition and two cannons armed with 160 rounds. He was no, picked up on U.S. radar until just before his landing.

Guerra was then a lieutenant in the Cuban air force. He said he left his family and homeland because he wanted to be away from the Castro regime. Two years later he was arrested in New York on drug charges.

He told police then that he had been unable to find a job in the United States. "Flying is my business, and I can't find work anywhere."

It was not known today whether Guerra's family had ever joined him in the United States.

Passengers said the hijacker had seemed nervous during the flight, and was seen carrying a duffel bag into the front cabin. They didn't see him again until the plane landed in Havana. There, they said, the man yelled his apologies.

"When we were in the terminal in Havana, a Cuban — he looked like an official — told me the hijacker was a defector from the Cuban air force who decided he wanted to return to his homeland. I don't know why I was told this," said Sam Kass of Boca Raton, Fla.

The captain and crew who dealt with the hijacker were hustled away by the FBI soon after the plane landed here, a Delta spokesman said. The captain later refused comment.

One passenger was arrested on charges of interfering with a member of the flight crew and assaulting an FBI agent during questioning in Miami, Nettles said. He was identified as Lawrence Winters, 42, address unknown.

Former coach asks U.S. court to hear appeal

What ever else is said of former Big Spring High School Basketball Coach James Griffin, one must admit he doesn't give up easily.

Informed last week that his appeal to be reinstated as a member of the school faculty had been rejected in Travis County district court, Griffin has turned now to federal court.

Griffin Monday filed suit in Abilene federal court, petitioning for reinstatement to the Big Spring faculty.

Griffin's suit named the Big Spring Independent School District and 11 individuals as defendants, among them former Big Spring Supt. Emmett McKenzie, high school principal John F. Smith and former athletic director Don Robbins.

Griffin is maintaining in the suit that the decision to not renew Griffin's contract was racially motivated.

The decision not to rehire Griffin was announced June 9, 1977.

Others named as defendants in the suit are Jim Bill Little, Delnor Poss, Roy Watkins, Al Valdes, Delbert Donelson, Bobby Fuller, Don Reynolds and Carol Hunter.

Little, Poss, Watkins, Fuller and Reynolds are no longer on the board of trustees.

"The plaintiff alleges that the board, acting in concert with McKenzie, Smith and Robbins, took this action on account of the plaintiff's race," Griffin's case noted.

Griffin claims he was deprived of his rights under the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution and had suffered a loss of salary, loss of retirement and other benefits, had incurred expenses of seeking other employment and had suffered damage to his professional reputation.

He is seeking an injunction preventing the defendants from refusing to reinstate him and from maintaining any sort of record of action taken against him. He also sued for "appropriate compensation" with specifying any amount.

Representing Griffin in the suit is Robert E. Hall, a Houston attorney. Griffin originally got a favorable ruling from the state commissioner of education. Of the 18 votes cast by the State Board, 16 ruled against Griffin.

Its order reversing Brockette said "Griffin's race was not considered" by the superintendent, principal and assistant principal in recommending that Griffin not be offered a new contract.

Why do we wind up doing what we're doing?

Granted that some members of the medical profession are occasionally prone to err, the world of medicine is an exacting science.

Sometimes, it moves with the speed of a glacier but its accomplishments have invariably made a major impact on mankind. Consider the fact that dreaded diseases like yellow fever, the bubonic plague and polio have been neutralized through research and experiment. More miracle preventive medicines and cures are on the way.

Witch doctor is something else, again, however. It has survived into the 20th Century but sometimes one is prone to ask himself "how?"

Recently, anthropological students at the University of Port Elizabeth in Africa heard a most unusual lecturer — Totana Mashigo, who practices his mystic art in Port Elizabeth.

Mashigo told students the best way to master the Xhosa language was to eat a mixture of ants, which had been caught on the grave of a Xhosa, along with certain herbs.

He cautioned, however, that although students would certainly be able to master the tongue, they would have to guard against the spirit of the dead Xhosa taking control of their minds.

A newspaper type said that Mr. Mashigo, who is a member of the Pedi tribe, told students that as a witchdoctor he is able to communicate with spirits, administer herbal medicines, influence forthcoming events, move objects through the power of spirits and cast spells.

The latter capability is very important to a practitioner of witchdoctor. They feel a great need to control the minds and prey on the suspicions of those around them.

Mashigo conceded that a great deal of psychology was involved in his work, adding that witchdoctors were taught to deduce a great deal from the attitude, speech, movement and appearance of people. A person's name could also have a decisive influence on the ills that individual suffered, Mr. Mashigo said.

What lures the man to the profession? Mr. Mashigo said he decided to become a witchdoctor after the spirit of a dead practitioner had taken possession of him and had given him no rest until he made the decision.

Some of us feel like we are driven by similar compulsion, wondering all the while why we wind up doing what we do.

Tribute to parents

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

This rim is in tribute to my parents who are celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary today in Colorado.

On a Saturday afternoon on June 12, 1954, in a small country church in Anderson, Texas, June and Irvin Homeyer began their life together as man and wife. Since that time they have had many enriching experiences, one of those was raising four children, three sons and one daughter.

were young and always at our side whenever we attempted something new. And, although at times I hated it, she made sure that I knew how to perform the "essential tasks" of a woman.

TOGETHER MY PARENTS instilled in my brothers and me a respect for those who were older than us, and a respect for the rights of others. They taught us responsibility by assigning us chores around the house and taught us the importance of sharing and giving of ourselves instead of taking from others. They did this by their own example. They were not stern parents but they did believe in discipline by spanking.

They made us a close-knit family by stressing family-oriented activities. My mother always insisted that at one meal during the day, the entire family be present. There were times, especially as we grew older and became more involved in school activities, that it was not possible. Included in those meals were family devotions.

On Sunday afternoons we always did things together as a family. Many times on Monday mornings, my dad's day off, my brothers and I would tag along with him while he cleaned his shop, ran errands and the like. And, always for us, there was a stop at the local drug store soda fountain — our treat for the week.

I would like to thank my parents for the love they have given to me and the wonderful childhood that I was fortunate to be given by them. I wish them both many more years together.

MY DAD IS A barber by day and a sports enthusiast by night. For many years I can remember going to watch him play fast-pitch softball and tagging along while he was coaching Little League baseball. Baseball has been my dad's lifelong love. Other than golf, he would rather be playing baseball than any other activity he could think of. And, he was very good at it. He hasn't played much in the past five years or so, but I can remember when he was coaching his boys. He could throw a ball anywhere he wanted it to go and hit it however hard or far he wanted.

My mother has always been a quite person but never without a sense of humor. Most of her life has been spent raising her children, a responsibility that she has cherished. And, what a job she has done. There were times when I was growing up that I questioned some of her actions, but like most young people, have learned the wisdom of those actions in later years. She is a God-fearing person and instilled that love into her children. She is always willing to lend a helping hand when one is needed. She was always there to play with us when we

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Readers of a half dozen metropolitan newspapers will have noticed that Joan Baez, known equally for the beauty of her simple song and for her adamant opposition to the Vietnam war, has sponsored public appeals directed to the leaders of North Vietnam to renounce brutality. Her eloquent message, endorsed by 80 veterans of conscientious resistance to the war, beseeches the North Vietnamese to desist from practices of torture, imprisonment, and repression which have resulted in the awful phenomenon of the boat people.

How should one deal with Miss Baez, under the circumstances? A defensible analogy would be to ask the question, How should one have dealt with Fritz Kuhn, or Lawrence Dennis, after a vigorous period of defending Adolf Hitler during the thirties, they had sponsored a public advertisement in 1943 calling on the better nature of Hitler to renounce the gas-chambers?

THE QUICK TEMPTATION obviously would be to savage the new-found humanitarians on the grounds that during the critical period of the thirties they had, by their obtuseness, permitted Hitler to accumulate the power to execute his grisly designs. It can justly be said about Miss Baez and her co-singers that during the vital period when the power of the North Vietnamese to kill and torture might have been aborted, they were agitating on behalf of the North Vietnamese. But it is incorrect, as a matter of charity, to take that position. The prodigal son, scripture and reflection teach us, is always welcome, never mind his tardiness, or his procrastinators.

In the case of Miss Baez, the position, so fashionable among Vietnam protesters, was that the whole business in Indochina was merely a civil war in which the North Vietnamese were the nationalists; so to speak, the patriots, pure of spirit. Ho ho ho. Ho Chi Minh-Is-Sure-to-Win.

That there is a difference between Miss Baez, whose integrity causes her now to speak out against those whose cause she in effect defended, and others, transpires from the knowledge we have of those who did not join her protest.

For instance Philip Berrigan, who first signed — then removed his name. For instance Dan Ellsberg, whose energies are nowadays concentrated not on the people the North Vietnamese are killing, but the people Three Mile Island might have killed if only Three Mile Island had been scripted by the wonderful people who gave us The China Syndrome.

For instance Tom Hayden and Jane Fonda, who did not return Miss Baez's calls, presumably because their early testimonials to North Vietnamese humanitarianism represented insurmountable obstacles to their pride.

For instance the lawyer William Kunstler, whose wonderful candor must be acknowledged as exactly that. He said, "I do not believe in public attacks on socialist countries, even where violations of human rights may occur," a statement which is the equivalent of a Lord Haw Haw during World War II saying, "I do not believe in public attacks on countries determined to bring on Aryan purity, even where violations of human rights may occur."

MISS BAEZ, WHOSE courage should be acclaimed, might, however, lend additional integrity to her appeal by a seemingly continence in political moralizing. In May, 1971, 60 American and European intellectuals, led by Jean-Paul Sartre, Susan Sontag, and Alberto Moravia, denounced Fidel Castro of torturing the Cuban poet Heberto Padilla into making a patently phony confession.

Has packing box readers

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

DEAR DR. RUBLE: Your column turned up in the bottom of a box my daughter used to send me some tulip bulbs. She used her local newspaper for wrapping. Just thought you'd like to know how I ran across your article on gout.

Anyway, she is now saving the column regularly and ships it to me without tulip bulbs, and I enjoy it. My question is about gout and wine. Is it true that wine is bad for a gout patient? What about diet in general? I'll look for your answer in the next mail from my daughter. — Mrs. T.G.

You would be surprised to know how many packing box fans I have. For some reason the temptation to read newspapers that are used to pack objects is irresistible. As to your question, wines are not advisable, especially champagne and the heavy wines. However, since newer medicines have been developed to treat most forms of gout effectively, diet is no longer considered a great factor. Foods such as organ meats, or wines for that matter, can be used in sensible amounts by most gout patients. Diet can be part of a program to reduce the amount of uric acid the body must handle. Moderate wine consumption is not bad, but alcohol abuse can cause an attack. Bet you have some lovely tulips.

DEAR DR. RUBLE: Please tell me about heart palpitations. My family physician and heart doctor don't tell me anything except to go home and lie down. I have had three EKGs, one while having a palpitation. They tell me they see people with the same thing every day and that it will not kill me. Is there a cure for his? I have kept diaries of my diet and physical activities for two years, but can find no pattern to the attacks. — J.M.

I wish I had a nickel for every heart "palpitation" — who usually write me in almost the same words you use, J.M. You and I could retire.

Sooner or later most of us will have some heart symptom — a bit of a flutter now and again. They are harmless quirks usually related to some outside factor — anxiety or a stimulant such as coffee or cola. You did the correct thing. You reported to your doctor and were checked by him for any possible serious heart ailment as well as by a heart specialist. What more do you want?

The tests showed you are in good health. With all of the modern medical tools available today even in an ordinary doctor's office, hints of any serious heart problem can be readily picked up. My booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," may provide some informative reading for those times when you are otherwise lying down worrying about your ticker. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of this newspaper. Don't worry yourself into a real problem.

DEAR DR. RUBLE: I wonder if you could tell me if a person can take too many Excedrin? Are they hard on a person — if he takes too many over a length of time? My husband has been taking them for over two years. He thinks they may be bothering his stomach. — Mrs. C.L.H.

Excedrin is just one of many similar products on the market containing essentially the same ingredients, and I don't like to point to any specific one as a "troublemaker." Like so many other pain relievers it contains aspirin, acetaminophen, salicylamide and caffeine. Any of these substances can, if abused, cause stomach distress and, if abused over a long period, worse. The maximum recommended dosage is eight a day for an adult. That information is on the container. The important thing to know is why your husband feels he has to take any such medicine so often. He could be camouflaging a health problem.

DEAR DR. RUBLE: My husband had mumps when he was seven years old. How could this affect his ability to have children? — B.S.P.

It is rare to have the testicles involved in mumps before puberty. If they are involved, in 70 percent of cases it is only one side that is involved. Even then, only half of such cases result in permanent damage. In the final analysis less than 10 percent of such persons are sterile. A sperm test will tell.

DEAR DR. RUBLE: Does cocoa butter encourage facial hair on a woman? — A.K.

No, nor will it on a man.

Troubled with gout? To learn about new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Ruble, in care of this newspaper, for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. For a copy of the booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis," which discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications, write to Dr. Ruble in care of this newspaper. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: If Jesus was really God, how could He die on the Cross? Does this mean that God actually died for a time? — P.A.S.

DEAR P.A.S.: Several times in the New Testament the writers speak of "the mystery of God, namely, Christ, in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom" (Colossians 2:2-3, New International Version), or "the mystery of Christ" (Ephesians 3:4). I think these words tell us that there is much about the Gospel that we cannot fully grasp or explain. The question you raise is one of them.

That does not mean we cannot grasp something of the truth of Christ's death. The Bible makes clear that Jesus Christ was God in human flesh. In the majestic words of the Gospel of John: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God...The Word became flesh and lived for a while among us" (John 1:1, 14, NIV). Yes, Jesus Christ was fully God. And yet God was still in Heaven also. How can this be? The Bible does not try to explain what our limited minds could not even begin to grasp. It simply tells us that there is one God, and yet He exists in three Persons — Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

On the Cross, God the Son died and was buried. But God the Father raised Him up and gave Him victory over death and hell, so that you and I might be saved. I cannot fully understand that. But I know it is true, because I know Christ was raised from the dead. So I can trust Him as my personal Lord and Savior, even if I cannot fully understand it.

Some day, of course, we will understand all the things which we cannot fully understand in this life. We will understand how God could love us, when we are so rebellious. We will understand how God could come in human flesh and die for our sins. We will understand why God permitted suffering and pain to come our way. We should rejoice that, although there are things we may not fully understand, we can trust God, knowing that His will and ways are perfect. "Now we see but a poor reflection; then we shall see face to face. Now I know in part; then I shall know fully, even as I am fully known" (1 Corinthians 13:12, NIV).

Eases repression

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — "Dollar diplomacy" still has its uses. A $270 million loan from the Export-Import Bank (EXIM) — coupled with some high-level pressure applied by Vice President Mondale last fall — may have improved life for tens of thousands of Argentines suffering under the repressive military regime of President Jorge Rafael Videla.

Since the Argentine military junta seized power from Isabel Peron in 1976, an estimated 20,000 persons have simply disappeared. They were swept off into the night by Videla's armed thugs for imprisonment, torture and in many cases death. Acting on reports from prisoners' families and some lucky survivors, the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights (IACHR) petitioned the Videla government for permission to investigate the situation in Argentina.

AT THE SAME TIME, however, the Argentine government was actively seeking a loan from the U.S. Export-Import Bank for $270 million to buy turbines from the Allis-Chalmers Corp. for a new hydroelectric dam on the Parana River.

The State Department, at the request of its human affairs office, decided to use the Allis-Chalmers deal as a lever to pry a little humanity out of the Videla regime.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance spelled out the strategy in a letter last July 10 to John Moore, chairman of the Export-Import Bank: "If Argentina were to invite the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights to visit under circumstances which would permit it to carry out its mandated functions, we would relax certain restrictions now placed on United States aid and trade programs for Argentina."

Noting that Videla had not extended an invitation to the commission "in a form it can accept," Vance wrote: "In view of this we must recommend against Export-Import financing at this time of the Allis-Chalmers application."

The State Department's position was taken despite pressure from Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Committee on International Relations. The congressman pointed out the dollars-and-cents risk of scotching the Milwaukee firm's loan application.

"The impact of losing this contract in terms of balance of payments, U.S. employment and the economy in general is obvious," Zablocki had written Vance last June 29. "It would be particularly regrettable for a U.S. firm to lose this contract now to Japanese or Russian competition for the lack of Export-Import Bank support, should the human rights situation in Argentina improve to such a degree that Export-Import support would be made available within a few weeks or months."

There was also opposition within the State Department. A confidential memorandum of Aug. 29, 1978, warned: "A political decision against Argentina would be disastrous...It could hardly be argued that the hydroelectric plant could in any way improve the civil and political liberties of Argentines, but conversely it is hardly tenable either that it would in any way further jeopardize their liberties."

UNDOUBTEDLY AWARE of this pressure on the State Department, Videla resisted the administration's turbines — for — human — rights proposition. But in Rome last September during the installation of the late Pope John Paul I, Vice President Mondale met with President Videla. Soon after, the State Department gave its blessing to the Allis-Chalmers loan, and Videla has since given his reluctant permission for a human rights commission visit.

A confidential State Department memo soon after the Mondale-Videla meeting noted that "the word is out in town that Mondale and Videla struck a Roman deal, EXIM financing for an IACHR visit."

The secret deal didn't please human rights advocates in Foggy Bottom. A confidential memo stated: "Our caving (in) on EXIM financing without any improvement in the human rights situation will convince the (Argentine) hardliners that they have started down the Yankees, or that the dollar, not Southern idealism, still rules in Washington."

Footnote: In fact, sources told our associate Bob Sherman, Videla has in recent weeks relaxed the iron-fisted repression of his dictatorship, hoping to clean things up for the IACHR visit later this summer.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Jimmy Carter who squeaked his way to victory as the "anti-Washington" candidate in 1976, is apparently planning the same action in 1980. At a recent White House reception for Vietnam veterans, Kirk Bauer, a legislative assistant to Rep. Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., delivered a message to the president. Bauer, who lost a leg in Vietnam, told Carter: "I have a message from my father. He thinks you'll get re-elected no matter what those bums in Washington say." Replied a smiling Carter: "I can take care of the bums."

COSMONETTE — Mrs. Chantal Lavasseur-Régour, 33, may well be the French woman who will take part in a Franco-Soviet space shot in early 1980. According to French Minister of Industry Andre Giraud on Monday, cooperation between the French and Soviet space programs would soon result in the orbiting of a French cosmonaut on a Soviet space flight. He added that he hoped it would be a woman.

Coahoma school board to meet

COAHOMA — The Coahoma School Board convenes for a regular meeting at 8 tonight, in the Board Room of the School Administration Building.

Items on the agenda include reviewing electrician bids for rewiring lights in the high school and the acceptance of four resignations of Coahoma teachers.

A successor to W.A. Wilson, 20-year Coahoma school superintendent, has not yet been named. Candidates have been narrowed down to nine applicants, according to the administration office.

Area winners are announced

The 1979 4-H Round up last week produced several winners from nearby counties. The contests were sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and held in College Station.

In horse demonstration Bobby Matthews of Martin County took second place. He was coached by Mr. and Mrs. Bobby G. Matthews of Andrews.

June Humble, Sterling City, pulled down first place in home environment educational activity competition. She was coached by Mrs. Bill Humble.

Billy Shanks and Brent Culp, also of Martin County, won first place in electric demonstration. They were coached by Roger and Ricky Fleckenstein of Stanton.

Mitchell County representatives Dawn Lemons and Sandra Wiggins came home with a third place win in farm and ranch management. They were coached by Jan Lemons of Colorado City.

Elaine Brown spending 11 days in Washington

Elaine Brown, daughter of Mrs. Rene P. Brown, Big Spring, departed for Washington, D.C., Friday morning representing Cap Rock Electric Co-op, Stanton, on the annual Government-in-Action Youth Tour. Miss Brown will spend 11 days in the Nation's Capitol City, observing our Government-in-Action.

Elaine won the all-expense-paid trip to the Nation's Capitol, by finishing first in an oratorical contest, sponsored by the Cooperative in December of 1978. The contest was open to all young men and women 16 to 18 years of age, who attend high school in the area served by Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, headquartered in Stanton.

Elaine joined 42 other rural Texans in Denton for the 11-day trip. The youths set for Monday, but U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher granted defense motions and set the proceedings back four weeks.

He was expected to continue hearing more than 100 defense motions today, many involving severance, change of venue and discovery of prosecution evidence.

A Beaumont federal grand jury indicted 24 persons last month on drug conspiracy and racketeering charges in connection with the alleged plot to distribute 36 tons of the illegal weed reportedly smuggled from Santa Marta, Colombia to the Texas Gulf Coast.

Authorities seized four shrimp boats which allegedly made five illicit drug runs from August 1976 to December 1978, charges.

Among the defendants are Martin Marion Sneed — an Orange, Texas, shipbuilding magnate — his sons, Martin Marion Sneed Jr. and Clyde Sneed, and a nephew, Donald Sneed.

Also facing trial is Sneed's business partner, Clifford J. Swiere; John Ruppel, a millionaire recluse from Sevier County, Tenn.; Raymond Eugene Hawkins, a Denton, Texas, rancher; Charles Noel Talkington, a Denton ranch foreman; Carlos Gerdes, a Colombian businessman; James Eddie Wimberly and Thomas T. Wimberly, both of Vinton, La.; and Elmer Glenn Culver, James Louis Holland and Beth C. Anderson, all of Sevier County, Tenn.

Six persons named in the indictments remained at large Monday. Indictments returned against three other persons in the case were dismissed earlier.

Lurline Vice of Orange, also named in the indictments, pleaded innocent and was granted a separate trial from the other defendants.

Case load increases

Criminal cases pending in 118th District Court mounted to 245 at the end of May, amounting to 20 more cases than were pending at the end of April.

A total of 25 criminal cases were filed in May, five were disposed.

Most of the new cases were theft with a total of nine. Cases reported under "other" totaled six. New burglary cases totaled 4. There were two robbery cases filed. Recently filed murder, felony DWI and arson cases and totaled one each.

Of the five cases disposed in May two were accomplished by guilty pleas, three by dismissal on insufficient evidence.

Guilty pleas were accepted on a burglary charge and on a charge reported in the topic headed "other."

One probation was granted in May on a burglary charge. Two probation revocations were filed in connection with forgery charges. Two probation revocations were granted on burglary charges.

Three persons were committed to prison, two on burglary charges and one reported in the topic headed "other." Total years in prison assessed numbered 12.

Number of persons indicted by a Howard County Grand Jury in May totaled 24.

traveled to Washington by charter bus.

During the June 9-18 stay in the Nation's Capital, the young people will visit with their Congressman, visit both the House of Representatives and the Senate and will be guest at the White House on Wednesday afternoon. Also included on the agenda are visits to: Arlington National Cemetery and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the National Archives, Library of Congress, Mt. Vernon and many other places of historical significance.

On Wednesday, June 12th, the Texas youth will be joined with many young people from 28 other states, for rural youth day, sponsored by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Culligan Water system removes salt impurities

If you think you have to put up with the taste of Big Spring's water, you don't. And you don't have to haul bottled water either.

"That's too expensive," says Richard Wright, owner of the Culligan Water Conditioning Company of Big Spring.

"Our H-5 Aqua-clear drinking water appliance will make this salty Big Spring water taste as good as expensive bottled water and for only 70 cents for five gallons," he says.

"The Aqua-clear can be piped to your automatic ice maker, too."

This is the only appliance Culligan uses in Big Spring for drinking water. Culligan has an activated carbon or charcoal filter, but it will not remove the salt taste from Big Spring water.

The Aqua-clear is a reverse osmosis for your own home. Your bottled water is probably made by the process. Check your bottle. If you're paying more than Culligan's 14 cents per gallon, you're paying too much.

The Aqua-clear unit fits under your sink, out of your way, and the special faucet fits into your present sink.

The Culligan Company also offers free water analysis for your private well or in your home. The Culligan man can recommend the precise unit to remove the dissolved rock that causes burned out water heaters, scale build-up in dishwashers and clothes washers, and tarnished sink fixtures.

You can do something about your water problems. Conditioned water will give more suds with less soap in your dishwasher and clothes washer. No more scale and film build-up on appliances and in clothes.

Soft water can help prevent red, itchy or dry skin. Shaving is easier and blades last much longer.

Plumbing and pipes benefit from soft water because it prevents the formation of rock-like hard water scale. And it gradually removes old scale that was present before your Culligan water conditioner was installed.

For the complete story about Culligan and a free water analysis right in your own home, call the people who treat water seriously: The Culligan Water Conditioning Company.

Just dial 263-8781 and say "Hey, Culligan Man." He'll even give you $100 for you old water softener, no matter what brand it is. Offer good through June 30.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is fine for you to get in touch with good friends and express new ideas and plans you have in mind. They will suggest some changes which can be beneficial.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Discuss your inspired ideas with congenials and gain their cooperation so you can be more successful in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to bring your finest talents to the attention of higher-ups who can be helpful to you. Think constructively.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time to study new interests through which you can get ahead faster. Follow the ideas of a new contact and get good results.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you put more effort in projects that fascinate you and increase your income. Take no risks with your reputation.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have fine ideas that should be discussed with associates first, and then put in operation. Civic work can bring added prestige.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study how to become more productive in your line of endeavor so you can advance and added income in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can now fine the right way to express your talents to higher-ups so you can advance in career matters. Sidelstep a hypocrite.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find the best way to improve conditions at home so there is more harmony there. Avoid one who wastes your valuable time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to show more cooperation with associates and become more successful. Strive for desired goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make your abode more modern, comfortable and enjoy it more. Contact a financial expert and gain the advice you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Follow your intuition now and gain the benefits. Contact good friends and come to a fine understanding with them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to engage in many activities and get much done. Listen to what a trusted adviser has to suggest about the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the ability to combine the old and the new, and come up with a fine formula that will be more advanced and practical, so be sure to equip with a good education and start religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

'Keys' will ensure marriage success

COLLEGE STATION — Today's marriages have new standards for success — and several "keys" will help ensure it, says Family Life Education Specialist Jenny Reinhardt who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

Companionship and each partner's personal happiness and fulfillment are major goals, Miss Reinhardt adds.

Several "keys" to success — acquired or experienced before marriage — will give today's couples the greatest chance for rewarding and lasting marriages.

"Keys" are life skills, personal qualities and experiences that help individuals develop into self-fulfilled adults — before marriage.

Chances of marriage success are greatest for partners who:

- grew up in homes where parents were happy in their marriage
- were relatively happy in childhood
- have relatively little conflict with mother and father
- had home discipline that was firm, but not harsh
- have established satisfying relationships with mother and father
- have learned — and practice — problem-solving skills
- have good communication — even when upset
- approach situations using logic and reason rather than only emotions
- experience love and affection from both parents
- have frank and open communication with parents about sex, career, education, relationships and values
- acquired a satisfying educational level
- are prepared — or preparing — for a career

- have ethnic and religious similarities with their prospective mate
- had an acquaintance, courtship and engagement lengthy enough to discover each other's major personality traits, needs and goals.
- have received the approval of marriage by parents and others
- are motivated to build a successful marriage, and
- have acquired the maturity to realize — and accept — the responsibilities involved in marriage.

Of course, it is not necessary to hold all the "keys" above, but each one adds to a marriage's chance of success, the specialist says.

Certainly they are always available — and anyone can acquire them, she adds.

An individual who has not accomplished these skills or qualities can develop them through self-help or counseling, she adds.

Today's new standards for marital success are a departure from past generations, Miss Reinhardt points out.

In past generations, a basic reason for marriage was a large family — to provide help in operating the family farm or business.

Before the age of machines, more family members meant more work was accomplished.

Furthermore, the emotional satisfaction and personal happiness of the marriage partners was not a major concern, she explains.

Today's desire for more rewarding and lasting marriages stems from economic changes, increased awareness of individual needs and an improved standard of living, Miss Reinhardt concludes.

WWI veterans have luncheon

The Veterans of World War I Barracks 1474 and its Auxiliary met in separate business meetings at 10 a.m., June 9, in the Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center.

The Ladies Auxiliary was called to order by Mrs. Virginia Bryant, president. A new member, Mrs. Mattie Brown, was given the oath of obligation. Orders from Mrs. Gladys Randles, department president, were read by the secretary to the 28 members attending.

All members were urged to attend the State Convention in Austin, June 26-29. Nine members plan to attend.

During men's meeting, the charter was draped for four members lost through death since the May meeting including Louis Skalicky, Leroy Echols, John Balch and Dan Renfro. Nine members attended the meeting.

After the business meetings a covered dish luncheon, dominoes and 42 were enjoyed by all.

Karen Ann Boyett is distinguished American

Karen Ann Boyett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bodin and the late Rev. Bob Boyett, has been selected to represent her church and Coahoma High School in The Society of Distinguished American High School Students after being nominated for this honor by sponsor Rev. August Aamodt, pastor of Wesley United Methodist Church.

KAREN ANN BOYETT

Membership to the society is an honor of national recognition and is bestowed upon approximately 2 percent of the nation's high school students. It is therefore one of the most exclusive national high school honors attainable.

Karen has just completed her sophomore year at Coahoma High School and is a member of Wesley United Methodist Church in Big Spring. She is active in FHA and Pep-Squad and is basketball and track manager. She will be the junior representative of pep-squad next year. She is also a member of the Junior American Legion Auxiliary Unit 355 and has served as a volunteer at the Veteran's Administration Medical Center for the past two summers.

Members are considered for scholarships through the National Awards Program supported by distinguished American colleges. Karen's membership will be announced in the 1979 edition of "The Society of Distinguished American High School Students", which will include her high school biography.

PPFA to defend freedom of reproductive choice

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The Board of Directors of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, Inc. (PPFA) will launch a national advocacy program to preserve individual freedom of reproductive choice for all Americans.

The action was announced recently by Faye Watleton, president of the federation. The program had been recommended by the PPFA Task Force on Public Impact.

Commenting on the board's decision, Ms. Watleton said, "Although surveys have shown that the majority of the people of the United States overwhelmingly support freedom of reproductive choice, there is a determined and politically vocal minority in this country that is obsessed with the idea of denying our citizens the freedom to decide when or whether to bear children. Their goal is not just to make abortion illegal, not just to deny access to family planning services, but to drastically diminish individual human rights."

"I am appalled at this disregard for the civil liberties of others, and am proud of the decision of the Board of Directors of PPFA to launch a strong, comprehensive national program of social and legislative advocacy against this attack on basic human rights."

Ms. Watleton said that to help launch the public affairs program, PPFA will retain the services of Manning, Selvage & Lee, Inc., one of the half dozen largest public affairs firms in the U.S., with a nationwide network of offices and headquarters in New York City. The firm will provide basic public affairs counsel and communications resources to PPFA, while carrying out the recommendations of the Task Force on Public Impact.

The basic objective of the public affairs campaign will be to defend and secure freedom of reproductive choice, whatever an individual's choice might be. "We know that the people of the United States hold widely divergent views on certain issues, such as contraception and abortion. We are unalterably committed to reducing the need for abortion in every way possible, but we are also committed to the realization that abortion is an essential part of reproductive freedom that must remain available if all children are to be planned, loved and cared for," Ms. Watleton explained.

"We at PPFA respect the right to hold differing views. We applaud it. We strongly contend that it is essential to the preservation of that divergence that every American — regardless of age, economic status, education, religion, race, geographic location, ethnic origin or marital status — be guaranteed free choice and the legal right and access to contraception, abortion and family planning information and services."

"We must preserve our Constitutionally-guaranteed rights to run our reproductive lives according to our own individual moral and ethical beliefs. We believe that Planned Parenthood Federation's public affairs program is more than our fight; it's everybody's fight. And, if we don't win, millions of women will be forced to bear unwanted children, and many of them will be condemned to lives of trauma, abuse, hopelessness and despair."

Planned Parenthood Federation of America is the national, voluntary family planning organization whose community-based affiliates in 43 states and the District of Columbia provided medically-supervised family planning services to more than one million persons in 1978.

Life made miserable by mom's boyfriend

Dr. Wallace: My mother has already been married three times and she now has a boyfriend who is 19 years younger than she is.

This guy now lives in the house and of course sleeps with my mother, but that's not my problem. You see, this guy talks to me like a dog right in front of my mother and she doesn't do anything.

I know my mom doesn't care for me at all. She has five kids and three are in jail or have been.

I can't take much more of this. Please help me. I'm 13. — Benita, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Benita: It appears mother is more interested in her boyfriend than she is in you. I very rarely suggest that teens leave the home but I think you are the exception. See if a relative or maybe your father will take you for awhile. It could be that your absence will make mother come to her senses.

Please write to me again and let me know what you do. Dr. Wallace: I thought we had the ideal family. My mother and father loved me very much, and I loved both of them.

Last month they had a terrible argument and daddy left the home. During the fight I kept quiet, but I felt daddy was right and mother was wrong.

Abby's Treed By This One!

DEAR ABBY: Now it has been disclosed that a certain brand of bread whose advertising claims "400 per cent more fiber" uses wood in part for that fiber!

The following questions come to mind: How much of that bread must I eat in order to bark? Will it help in searching for my roots? Will it make me a budding genius? Will it be easier to get leaves of absence? Will it sap my strength? Will my son be a chip off the old block? I'm ready to climb the walls. (Paneled, of course.) I pine for some answers.

MARGARET IN HIGHLAND PARK
DEAR MARGARET: I wooden know.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I will celebrate our 40th wedding anniversary soon. Our children plan a party for us in the social hall of our church.

A few years ago you ran a sample invitation in your column which I liked very much. It was a nice way of saying, "No gifts, please."

Will you please run it again? I'm sure others will find it helpful, too. Thank you.

NEBRASKA FAN
DEAR FAN: Here it is:

DEAR READERS: I have stated many times that any mention whatsoever of gifts was improper on an invitation. This includes the forthright "No gifts, please," as well as the tasteless (in my view) suggestion that cash is preferred to any other type of gift.

Many sent sample invitations in which gifts were mentioned. Below are two that changed my mind: "Jane and Bob Smith invite you to dine with us on the evening of June 1 at our home at 7 p.m."

"It is in celebration of our 20th wedding anniversary. Your friendship is a cherished gift. We respectfully request no other."

"The children of Iver and Helen Dahl invite you to celebrate with them the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents. A reception will be held May 7, at 2 p.m., at the Elmhurst Country Club."

"We request your help in compiling a book which recalls memories from our parents' first 50 years of marriage. On the enclosed sheet, we ask that you write one memory or event that you have shared with them, and return it to us by April 26. We believe that the loving memories they have shared with you, their friends, would be the most treasured gift they could receive; therefore, we request that no other gift be sent."

Have you been elected club reporter?

If so, here are several guidelines the Family News Section of the Herald requests you follow:

1. Club reports should be type-written and double-spaced.
2. They should be no more than one full page (8 1/2" X 11") in length.
3. Proofread reports to insure proper spelling, dates, etc.
4. Always include phone number where correspondent can be reached if further information or clarification is needed.

Your cooperation will help us serve you faster and more efficiently.

PLANE CRASH — A DC-3 taking off from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Executive Airport crashed along busy I-95 killing the crew of three. The plane just missed early morning traffic on the Interstate and a row of houses just off I-95. There were no injuries on the ground.

DC-3 Plane crashes, triggers traffic jam

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A DC-3 plane slammed down and burst into flames near Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood Airport today, reportedly killing three people, authorities said. It was the second DC-3 to crash in less than 24 hours in the United States.

Fire Capt. Skip Walters said the plane crashed about 7:20 a.m. on Cypress Lake Road and burst into flames, causing a big traffic jam on nearby Interstate 95.

It was not immediately clear whether the plane was landing or had just taken off. It also was not immediately known if the plane struck anyone on the ground or hit any buildings in the area of homes and small businesses. "I know that the fire department is wetting down the roofs of nearby houses, but I don't know if it hit any of them," said Deputy Hugh Spiri of the Broward County Sheriff's Department.

Walters said firefighters and rescue units were having trouble getting to the scene "because traffic is backed up for miles" on the interstate, which was filled with rush-hour commuters. The Florida Highway Patrol blamed motorists who slowed down to view the blaze for the standstill. On Monday, a U.S. Forest Service DC-3 caught fire and crashed into a river in the mountains of north-central Idaho. Two people survived and one was known dead, authorities said. A search continued today for nine people who were missing.

Fingerprints of suspects go to Austin

Fingerprints of several possible local suspects in the murder of Tracey and Ann Reeves were submitted to the Department of Public Safety Crime Lab in Austin Monday. Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said of the fingerprint evaluation, "That's the heart, that's the meat of it all."

He said the prints would be compared to latent prints obtained from evidence collected in the case.

Other areas of investigation include ballistics and evaluation of tire tracks made where the bodies were found on Centerpoint Road. Plaster of Paris casts of the tracks were not attainable because of the soft sand on the shoulder of the road. Therefore, the brand of tire can not be inferred.

Standard said other information can be obtained from a study of the tracks such as wheel base of the vehicle.

Term probated

Mrs. R.G. Webb, Colorado City, entered a guilty plea in 118th District Court Monday in return for a three-year probated sentence and $566 in restitution. She was arrested on a Howard County Grand Jury indictment Monday.

Marshall Miller is out on bond

Marshall Lee Miller, 1614 Bluebird, was released Monday on $10,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin. Miller was arrested Monday on suspicion of possession of a controlled substance.

Glasscock man free on bond

Valetine Torres, Garden City, was arrested on suspicion of felony DWI Sunday. He was released Monday on $3,000 bond set by City Judge John Coffee.

Randy D. Horne arrested here

Randy Dayle Horne, Odessa, was released Monday on $5,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Bob West. Horne was arrested Monday on suspicion of auto burglary.

Lemons swears in officers

New officers of the Big Spring Evening Lions Club were formally installed by former district governor Jim Lemons in a dinner meeting held at the Country Fare Restaurant Monday evening. They take office July 1.

Roy Rosene is the new president of the club. Other officers include Larry Sheppard, first vice president; Oscar Zertuche, second vice president; Bobby Wall, third vice president; Virgil Perkins, secretary-treasurer; Lee Herndon, lion tamer; Craig Olsen, tail twister; W.J. Ringner and Bill Wood, one-year directors; and Alfred Olsen and Douglass Hedges, two-year directors. The club also observed Ladies Night.

Odessans freed after charge

Henry, Ellis Minton and Morica Sheryl Wilson, both of Odessa, were each released on $5,000 bond Monday set by City Judge John Coffee. They were arrested Sunday on suspicion of auto theft by city police and transferred Monday.

Fund started for Leta Cox

Donations are being accepted at the First National Bank for the Leta Cox Hospital Fund.

Leta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fern Cox, of Big Spring, has been going to a hospital in Houston for 3½ years for treatment of a disease that does not always respond to medication.

Expenses have understandably been heavy on the family. Friends of the Coxes have organized to help ease the burdens.

Checks should be made out to the Leta Cox Hospital Fund and forwarded to the bank.

Lamesa permits show big gain

LAMESA — Building permits issued here in May represent construction totaling $391,450, more than triple the amount issued for April.

Seven permits for new homes were issued to one firm, Stephens and Taylor. A $75,000 commercial permit was obtained for a cotton oil mill.

PLANNING EVACUATION — An American woman and her young daughter listen Monday as staffers at the U.S. Embassy in Managua discuss details of the evacuation of more than 60 U.S. citizens and embassy staffers to a safer location. The embassy building was judged dangerous in view of gunfire nearby. Nicaraguan National Guardsmen and Sandinista guerrillas were engaged in battles nearby.

Troops pound Sandinista guerrillas with tanks

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza's national guard pounded Sandinista guerrillas with planes and armored cars in Managua as the U.S. Embassy planned another attempt to evacuate about 50 Americans.

Fighting also raged in the northern cities of Esteli, Matagalpa and Leon. Somoza estimated 1,300 killed in the two-week rebel offensive, raising the 10-month toll to 4,300.

Large sections of Managua, to which the rebel offensive spread Sunday, were without water and electricity. Few residents ventured from their homes and those who did carried white flags.

Most of the fighting took place in slum neighborhoods where sympathy for the guerrillas is strongest.

Large columns of black smoke rose from opposite ends of the city Major roads were strewn with debris left from pitched battles between the guerrillas and Somoza's troops.

During lulls in the firing, people sought shelter at Red Cross centers.

Miguel Shibell, general director of the Red Cross in the capital, said 12,000 persons were quartered at 10 centers in Managua.

"There's a large number of dead and wounded in the poor neighborhoods but there's no accurate information on how many," he said.

Ulrich Bedert of Geneva, who heads the International Red Cross mission to Nicaragua, said there were about 25,000 tons of food stockpiled in Managua but "it won't last long with this many people to feed."

"It's suicide trying to get into the poor neighborhoods right now. Both sides are shooting at anything that moves," he added.

U.S. Embassy officials said it hoped to fly out families of embassy staff members and other Americans on a U.S. Air Force C-130 that was to be sent from the Panama Canal Zone if it was safe for it to land and if the evacuees could get to the airport.

Dependents of some embassy staff members were flown out during the weekend, but an attempt to evacuate other Monday failed when a firefight blocked the road to the airport.

The evacuees spent the night at the hilltop residence of Ambassador Larry Pezzullo, who has not arrived yet to take up his post.

"If we can't get them to the airport we won't move them," an embassy official said. "If it's not safe, they won't go anywhere."

Somoza told a news conference at his heavily fortified downtown headquarters called "The Bunker" that the estimated 1,300 dead in the latest round of fighting included 300 men of the national guard.

Police beat Woman reports threat

Four teenagers were taken into custody Monday night for possessing less than two ounces of marijuana each.

The officer observed the teenagers smoking the marijuana cigarettes last night at nine. Bags containing the weed were allegedly found on two of the teenagers.

Three were charged with possession under two ounces and released. The fourth was released with no charges.

Jane Cochran, 1501 A. Wood, received a terroristic threat Monday about 5:45 p.m.

She told police she knew the person making the threat on her life. The reason for the threat is not known.

Ray Lawson, 805 Johnson, was threatened with an automatic pistol at the Capehart Housing area yesterday at 6:45 p.m. The subject was known to Dawson.

The home of James D. Glass, 1104 Douglas was burglarized last week. Furniture, a stereo, vacuum cleaner and flower pot were stolen at a value of $1,126.

Glenn Edward Perry found his home burglarized when he came home from a weekend trip. The items stolen include three guns. The property is valued at $987.

Merchandise valued at $392 were stolen from Continental Emesco, 201 Bell, between Saturday noon and early Monday morning.

The window on the double doors on the north side of the building were broken and the door unlatched. Items were dropped on the floor and two desks were broken into.

Derrington Auto Parts, 300 N.E. 2nd, was burglarized over the weekend. Entry was gained by a brick being thrown through a glass window on the north side of the store. The window and the two cans of stolen paint are valued at $104.24.

The front left hubcap and rear left fender skirt was taken from the car owned by Dr. W.M. Franklin, 1410 Runnels yesterday afternoon. The car was parked in his driveway. Damage is estimated at $136.

Yolanda Escanuela, 305 N.E. 8th, told the police Monday afternoon that a teenager living nearby shot out her window valued at $25.

A 15-year-old female reported that a female known to her kicked her at Northside Park last evening.

The right rear window of the car belonging to Charles Campbell, Jr., 1506 Cherokee was broken this morning. Campbell told police he knew who threw the beer bottle at the car. Damage is estimated at $200.

Cindy Williams, 2111 Johnson, heard persons outside her home last night. When she went outside the four tires on her car were losing air and the offenders were gone. Damage was not estimated.

Two traffic mishaps were reported Monday.

The parked car of Albert Deanda, 3700 Parkway, was hit by an unknown driver at the 400 block of E. 9th, 5 p.m. The second driver left the scene of the accident.

A truck driven by David Sloan, 305 E. 23rd, San Angelo and a car driven by Sue McCoy, 209 Circle Collied at the 400 block of S. Gregg, 3:53 p.m.
