New Flare-Up Occurs In Franco-Tunisian Crisis

US Mediation Efforts Stifled By 'Kidnaping'

PARIS, (UP)—American and British efforts to mediate in the Franco-Tunisian crisis ran into a series of new troubles today before they could even get started.

In Tunisia, the "kidnapping" of three Tunisians by French soldiers created what Tunisian officials called an "extremely serious" situation.

Tunisian Foreign Minister Sadok Makodems summoned U.S. Ambassador Lewis Jones to his office to discuss the incident. The president of Tunisia cancelled his weekly radio address to the nation, reportedly because he was upset by the incident.

In London, the British Foreign Office said it considers the status of the Bizerte naval base in Tunisia a part of the Franco-Tunisian conflict to which its offer of good offices applies. France has stated it would not even discuss Tunisia's demand that it give up the billion-dollar naval base.

New incidents were feared in Tunisia although the kidnaping incident was the worst incident in more than a week. Tunisian sources said French soldiers broke an 11-day "confined to base" restriction and kidnaped a Tunisian official and two national guardsmen in the village of Remada, 50 miles south of Tunis.

Gen. Fernand Gambiez, French troop commander in Tunisia, ordered the men released but the damage already had been done.

A dispatch from Tunis said a wave of discontent swept the nation after the lull which accompanied acceptance by both countries of the Anglo-American peace-making efforts. A crackdown on French consulates was reported in the making.

The Tunis reports said the man-in-the-street believed President Habib Bourguiba was losing his "war of nerves" against the French after his early diplomatic successes and that some spectacular anti-French gesture was expected.

The reports said Tunisia probably would expel at least five French consuls, possibly today. Tunisia ordered France to close its consulate at Gabes, Gafsa, Medjez el Bab, Souk el Arba and Le Kef but France has ordered the consuls to stay in Tunisia.

France was going ahead with plans to improve the North African position before this weekend when U.S. Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy arrives on his trouble-shooting mission.

The French Defense Ministry announced it would soon send about 50,000 more troops into rebellion-torn Algerian territory, a

UN To Get Egypt, Sudan Dispute

KHARTOUM (UP)— The Sudan, abandoning hope that its border dispute with Egypt could be settled by local negotiation, decided early today to take its case to the U. N. Security Council.

At the same time, the government alerted army and police forces for possible emergency action. Premier Abdullah Khalil told the United Press the Sudan will use troops if necessary to drive Egyptian interlopers out of the disputed Halieb area.

Reports reaching Khartoum said Egypt is massing troops along the border in the vicinity of the two areas in dispute, creating a potentially explosive situation.

Foreign Minister Mohammed A. Mahgoub, whose efforts to negotiate a settlement ended in a deadlock Wednesday night, is scheduled to return to Khartoum from Cairo today. Khalil said, however, that the Sudanese ambassador will remain in the Egyptian capital at least for the time being.

The cabinet wound up an all-night meeting with an announcement that the Sudan will seek "the good offices of the Security Council" in settling the dispute.

It was not immediately clear whether this meant the Sudan would file a formal complaint against Egypt on charges of border violation.

Khalil emphasized in an interview that the Sudan is determined to defend its territory, no matter what the cost. He said Egypt's terms for a settlement are unacceptable.

Among Texas Cities In '57

Pampa Ranks 19th In Total Building

The annual issue of Texas Business Review, a summary of business and economic conditions in Texas published by the Bureau of Business Research, the University of Texas, lists Pampa 19th among Texas cities in total value of building permits issued in 1957.

Pampa's high standing in this category is reflected by the fact that no city in the 18 listed above it was below 28,000 in population in its last census estimate. Pampa's population is estimated by the Chamber of Commerce at approximately 24,000.

The top ten, in order, as reported by the bureau, are Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Austin, El Paso, Lubbock, Midland, Amarillo and Corpus Christi.

The second ten, also in order, are Beaumong, Abilene, Waco, Arlington, Wichita Falls, Irving, Garland, San Angelo, Pampa and Victoria.

The next eleven after Victoria, in order, are Longview, Texas City, Port Arthur, Baytown, Orange, Harlingen, Laredo, Grand Prairie, Galveston, Bryan and Big Spring.

The building permits report was compiled less federal contracts.

Pampa's total value of building permits issued in 1957 was $6,491,364, some $900,000 more than the $5,515,142 value put on building permits issued in 1956. This was an increase of 18 per cent.

New Billions Added To Boost Economy

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government has released up to three billion new dollars that U.S. banks may pump into the nation's faltering economy.

In its most sweeping anti-recession action since abandoning the "tight money" policy, the Federal Reserve Board Wednesday cut the reserve requirements of its 6,400 member banks by 500 million dollars.

The structure of the American banking system will permit the banks to multiply the dollars freed by the Reserve Board as said that although the action will increase the amount of bank credit available for investment, it remains to be seen whether it will stimulate demand for that credit.

Chairman William MCC. Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board warned Congress against trying to "spend yourselves prosperous" in efforts to end the business slump. Martin told a Senate Banking subcommittee he opposed a pump-proming public works program or a tax cut to stimulate the economy. He said "over stimulation" of the economy could lead to even more dangerous inflation.

Gabriel Hauge, the President's economic adviser, said some people have the mistaken impression President Eisenhower predicted a general business pickup next month in his recent "chins-up" statement. Hauge said the President actualy predicted only that March would bring the "beginning of the end" of the slump.

Decisive Day Expected For Churchill

ROQUERBRUNE, France (UP)—Sir Winston Churchill today fought doggedly against an attack of pneumonia and pleurisy and friends said the next day is apt to be decisive.

Churchill's doctors and his family appeared optimistic, but because of his 83 years the illness will be considered dangerous until it clears up completely.

A member of the Churchill household said Sir Winston spent a "fairly restful night."

The pneumonia was confined at the moment to an area at the base of Churchill's lung. His physician, Lord Moran, spent the night at the villa.

Friends said Churchill was responding to treatment, apparently with antibiotics, but in view of his past medical history his illness is causing them some anxiety. This is the fifth time he has been stricken with pneumonia.

Since his last attack of pneumonia 10 years ago he has suffered two strokes.

World Day Of Prayer Observance Is Slated

World Day of Prayer will be observed in Pampa tomorrow with services planned and an official proclamation by the mayor making it "World Day of Prayer in Pampa."

In making the proclamation, Mayor Lynn Boyd urged the citizens of Pampa to observe this day by, "attending, whereever possible, World Day of Prayer services, or pausing for a minute of prayer at high noon to ask God to give us, the wisdom and courage to meet and successfully solve the profound problems of our times."

The local observance will begin with a service of worship and prayer in the chapel of the First Methodist Church at 7 a.m. Friday.

Another service will be held at the First Presbyterian Church at 10 a.m.

The United Church Women of Pampa will lead in the 10 a.m. service. Mrs. W. C. Hutchinson of the First Methodist Church will lead the program at the 7 a.m. service.

The theme of this World Day of Prayer is "The Bread Of Life."

Those participating in this service are: Mrs. William S. Dixon, First Presbyterian Church, program leader; Mrs. James W. Cunningham, First Christian Church; Mrs. James Ballard, Lamar Christian Church; Mrs. H. L. Whisenhunt, St. Paul's Methodist; Mrs. Joe Daniel Jr., St. Matthews Episcopal; Mrs. Jonas Parker, St. Marks Methodist; Mrs. Ray Burger and Mrs. Wayne Burger, The Church of the Brethern; and Mrs. Ocie Stewart, Fist Presbyterian Church. Mrs. James Webb of the First Christian Church will be the soloist and Mrs. H. A. Yoder will be the organist.

Coffee and donuts will be served after the early service and a nursery will be provided during the 10 a.m. service.

A program for the Senior Citizens will be held Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in Lovett Memorial Library and will be led by Mrs. G. F. Bran-Branson of the First Methodist Church.

All who are unable to attend any son of the First Methodist Church. of these services have been asked to pause at 12 noon for a moment of earnest prayer.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS:

More Quarrels Erupt In FCC Probe

WASHINGTON (UP)— A new quarrel erupted today in the strife-torn House subcommittee investigating alleged misconduct in government agencies.

Subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.), only recently accused of trying to "white-wash" the investigation, said he intends to push the investigation as hard as he can and "get all the facts."

But Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) said Harris is going too fast and there is "grave danger" of not making a complete investigation.

Moss told the United Press he planned to use "every parliamentary device" to make sure of a full and thorough investigation. He said the subcommittee should not be hurried "by the fear of criticism."

Harris Has Own Tactics

Harris told the United Press that he has parliamentary tactics of his own to override any delaying maneuvers by Moss.

Disclosure of the new disruption inside the subcommittee came to light as the subcommittee recalled Col. A. Frank Katzentine for further cross-examination on his attempts to win Miami's television Channel 10 before the Federal Communications Commission.

Katzentine's supporters, it was revealed Wednesday made efforts to appeal to Vice President Richard M. Nixon for help when they learned that the FCC was sure to vote the TV channel to National Airlines.

The Joint Congressional Economic Committee was reported agreed that credit-easing moves, along with spending on public works should take priority over tax reductions as prime weapons to combat the recession.

The agreement coincided with Wednesday's Federal Reserve Board action to pump three billion dollars into the economy by cutting reserve requirements to member banks.

Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) called for a prompt increase in federal highway funds. He said it is needed to fight rising unemployment and to keep construction of 41,000 miles of superhighways on a 13-year schedule.

Other congressional news:

Foreign Aid: President Eisenhower sent to Congress a $3,942,000,000 foreign aid bill. Congressional leaders pledged support but warned the measure is in for a "pretty hard fight" from economy-minded lawmakers and those who oppose spending abroad while business at home is slumping and joblessness is on the rise.

Economy: Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board warned a Senate Banking subcommittee against trying to "spend yourselves prosperous." He said "over stimulation" of the economy could lead to even more dangerous inflation.

Cigarettes: A House Government Operations subcommittee accused cigarette makers of falsely claiming more expensive filter-tip brands give more health protection than non-filters. The group, which held an investigation of the filter-tips last summer, also charged the Federal Trade Commission had been "weak and tardy" in calling a halt to such misleading advertising. Two cigarette makers denied the charge.

Farm: The Senate Agriculture Committee voted to let the government sell another two billion dollars in farm surpluses overseas for foreign currency. Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) said the committee hoped to act on an overall farm bill soon after March 4. Meanwhile, a House Agriculture subcommittee ordered its staff to draw up a new feed grain bill including a 15 or 20 per cent cutback in production.

Gifts: Sen. William Proxmire introduced a bill to prohibit federal officials from accepting any gifts or payments from private interests doing business before their agencies.

Top Dance Team To Appear Here

Bambi Linn and Rod Alexander, probably television's best-known dance team who will be appearing here next season under the sponsorship of the Pampa Community Concert Association, will be seen on TV tomorrow night in CBS-TV's "Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp."

The pair will make their first concert tour next season heading a company of 15 young dancers, singers and musicians, under the direction of the Coppicus and Schang Division of Columbia artists Management.

To be called, "From Minstrel Days to Swingtime," their program will include favorite works from the television spectaculars in which they have appeared during the past five years.

Miss Linn recently received high praise for her performance in the General Motors Fiftieth Anniversary Show.

Rod Alexander has just returned from staging dances for the televised musical version of "Junior Miss" as well as the Ethel Barrymore "Command Appearance" on NBC.

Miss Linn recently recreated her memorable dancing role in "Carousel" in the successful New York City Center revival; Alexander staged the dances for the Twentieth Century Fox motion picture version of the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic. He also did the dances for "The Best Things in Life are Free" which co-starred Gordon MacRae, Sheree North and Dan Dailey.

While their program is only being oraganized, Alexander has promised that it will include the highly acclaimed Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire take off that they recently danced on the Ed Wynn "Command Performance," and the rooftop ballet they perfomed on the Steve Allen Show that was actually performed on the roof of New York's Hudson Theatre. They will also revive many of their favorite numbers from their long association with Max Leibman's "Show of Shows."

The company includes an instrumental ensemble of five who will appear on stage.

The local concert associaton will open its drive for membership renewals and new members on April 14.

The last concert of this season will be on March 17 at 8 p.m. with the Marina Svetlova ballet performance.

I studied the hand and remarked, "East and West can make three hearts without any trouble but I don't see how either can get the bidding. North and South can make three spades but probably will mis-guess the spade finesse and make only two. What happened to you?"

"South became declarer at two spades against me. My partner opened the five of hearts. I won dummy's king with my ace and shifted to the three of diamonds. My partner took his ace and returned the ten. Dummy's jack held the trick and the next two plays were the ace and jack of trumps. South thought about his own play for a while and then decided to finesse. My partner won the queen and led a heart to me. I gave him a diamond ruff to set the contract."

"A very neat defense and also poor play on the part of declarer," I commented. He certainly should not have jeopardized his contract the way he did. What happened to your usual bad luck?"

"It was there all right," said the unlucky expert. "It seems that at all other tables North and South managed to get to either three or four spades. They all made exactly two odd so all our fine defense did was to get us a tie for low score."

Decision On Leopold Due Today

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)— Nathan Leopold today learns whether he will go free or possibly spend the rest of his life behind bars for the thrill killing of a neighbor boy 34 years ago.

The State Parole Board met to consider and decide on the parole applications of Leopold and another notorious Illinois criminal, Prohibition bootlegger Roger (The Terrible) Touhy.

The board could give Leopold immediate freedom, but for Touhy parole could mean only the end of one sentence and another step toward possible freedom in August, 1959.

Both men presented their cases to the board at Stateville Prison on Feb. 5.

Leopold, 53, whose present appeal could be his last chance until 1965, told the board "I know I can do more good outside."

Pleads for Compassion

"I am an old man, a broken man, who pleads for your compassion. I want a chance to find redemption for myself and to help others," he begged.

The onetime brilliant University of Chicago student, now pallid, paunchy and suffering from diabetes and a heart ailment, said that if freed he would like to accept an offer for a hospital job in the mountains of Puerto Rico at $10 a month plus room and board.

Leopold and Richard Loeb were convicted of kidnaping and murder in Chicago in 1924 for killing 14-year-old Bobby Franks.

Both were sentenced to 99 years and life for what has been described as the "crime of the century."

Loeb was slashed to death with a razor in a prison fight in 1936.

Poet Carl Sandburg led the parade of witnesses who appealed to the board for Leopold's freedom.

Years of Reform

Leopold's own lawyer said Leopold was "guilty as sin" of the crime but that his time in prison has been "33 years of remorse and reformation."

However, Cook County State's Atty. Benjamin Adamowski urged the board to deny parole and described the crime as "one of the most senseless" in history.

Leopold has three times been denied parole and last July Gov. William G. Stratton rejected his appeal for freedom via executive clemency.

Solon Urges More US Highway Funds

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) called today for a prompt increase in federal highway funds to combat unemployment and to keep the construction of 41,000 miles of superhighways on a 13-year schedule.

Gore told newsmen that "If we don't do something right now, the whole (interstate highway) program will be aborted."

He said a speed-up in the program would provide "a most beneficial stimulus" to the nation's sagging economy. Idle workers could be given employment almost immediately because planning has been completed and rights-of-way secured for many projects in the network of superhighways.

Gore asked state highway officials to give him the amount of additional highway construction they could start this summer if the federal government put up its 90 per cent share of the cost.

Governors Averell Harriman of New York and Dennis J. Roberts of Rhode Island are scheduled to testify Friday before Gore's Senate Roads subcommittee. They are expected to support Gore's demand for more federal money for highway costruction.

Two other state governors and highway officials of four other states protested Wednesday against a stretchout in the 13 year program to 20 years or more.

Such a stretchout appears inevitable unless more federal money is provided starting with the fiscal year 1960 which begins July 1, 1959. Starting then, annual spending of $2,200,000,000 has been authorized for construction of the superhighways. But it is estimated there will be an annual shortage of 600 to 800 million dollars for at least two years in the special highway construction fund.

If the deficit is to be made up, Congress must appropriate more money, relax the present law to permit spending in anticipation of later revenue, or earmark all of the revenue of highway use taxes for the fund. About 70 per cent of highway use taxes now go into the fund.

Gore indicated he favored putting it all in the fund.

Two Tobacco Manufacturers Dispute Congress' Finding

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two tobacco manufacturers today disputed a congressional finding that the public has been "deceived" in advertisements about filter cigarettes.

Bowman Gray, president of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. which makes Winston filter cigarettes, said the House Government Operations subcommittee had based its findings on figures in a March, 1957, magazine. Gray said that since then there has been a considerable decrease in the amount of solids and nicotine found in Winston cigarettes.

The president of L. Lorillard Co., Lewis Gruber, said his company's claim that Kent cigarette filters "best of all leading filter brands" was a "simple statement of fact."

He said "three of this country's best known and most reputable independent research organizations" had substantiated that Kent "delivers less tar and nicotine in its smoke than does any other filter brand."

The House subcommittee said Wednesday its investigation last year showed filter-tip cigarettes offer no more health protection than the non-filter variety. It accused the Federal Trade Commission of being "weak and tardy" in cracking down on ads that imply filter-tip cigarettes do offer protection to the smoker.

The FTC, meanwhile, has called a conference Feb. 26 of cigarette industry representatives to establish uniform standards for testing amounts of tar and nicotine in cigarette smoke. The commission said it wants to end "confusion" resulting from a wide range of testing methods.

An FTC spokesman said the meeting was "in the works" long before the subcommittee issued its charge and there was no connection between the two.

One Of World's Best-Known Books Has Birthday Friday

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — One of the world's best known books has its 80th birthday Friday. The telephone directory was born in New Haven, Conn., on Feb. 21, 1878. And my! How it has grown.

The world's first telephone directory was on one sheet of paper, headed: "List of subscribers. New Haven District Telephone Company." At the bottom, it said: "Office open from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m. After March 1st, this office will be open all night."

Twenty-four days earlier, the world's first commercial telephone exchange had opened in New Haven with 21 subscribers. By the time the directory came out, business had increased so that it listed 50 names.

Less than two years previously, Alexander Graham Bell had spilled acid on his pants and hollered the first intelligible sentence ever carried by telephone wire: "Mr. Watson, come here; I want you."

The first directory was also the first classified, listing 11 names under "residences," 3 "physicians," 2 "dentists," 8 "miscellaneous," 20 "stores, factories, etc." 4 "meat & fish markets," and 2 "hack and boarding stables."

One of the original customers still rolling along is the Yale Daily News (it was listed under miscellaneous), which began publication the day the telephone office opened and claims now to be the oldest college daily. Incidentally, there were no numbers in the directory.

Didn't need any. The operator knew everybody by name.

The idea for the central exchange came from George W. Coy, a telegrapher. He and his partners set it up in one room of a building still standing. Before that, if you wanted a phone you generally would lease or buy a couple of sets, string your own wires, and have a closed circuit between, say, your home and office.

With Coy's exchange, any phoner could get any other phone. Eighty years later, New Haven phone owners can dial themselves directly into 20 states, as far as California, and the operator can dial Honolulu.

Here are some suggestions:

1. Get a heavily bound notebook folder or file folder as a central collecting point for all the records of you affairs.

2. Put your especially important papers in your safe deposit box, but make a list of those papers and a brief summary of their contents to put in you home file.

3. Get for your files copies of birth certificates for all members of the family, and add them to the file. Add your marriage license or at least a statement as to when and where you were married and by whom.

4. Insert your will or a copy of it. If your will is kept elsewhere, include a note telling where it may be found.

5. During the year, put into the file your income tax withholding statements and receipts for expenditures which may be deductible. Then keep a copy of each year's tax return in the file.

6. Make a list of all the stocks and bonds you own and where they are.

7. List all the places you lived and worked and the names of persons there who you know. Include the schools you have attended and the dates you left or were graduated.

8. If you may have benefits coming under a profit-sharing plan where you work, make a note of that to.

9. If you're in doubt about whether an item should be included put it in.

This takes time initially, but it will save you both time and worry in the long run.

Deanna Durbin Couldn't Be Lured Back To Film Capital

By PAT HERMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEUPHLE - LE - CHATEAU, France (UP)—Remember Deanna Durbin? Well, she is now a happy French housewife who says nothing could lure her back to Hollywood.

Still a beautiful brunette, though heavier than in her film days, the 34-year-old Deanna says for the first time in her life she is enjoying privacy with her family.

"And I would not change it for the world," she said.

Deanna ended a 13-year movie career in 1949 to marry French film director Charles David and retire to this village of 958 people less than 30 miles from Paris. Her talk with me was her first interview since then.

Was Never Happy

"I was never happy making pictures," she said. "They never allowed me to grow up as a normal child."

Mme. David said she was determined to spare her daughter, 11½year-old Jessica, and her son, Peter, 6, a similar childhood.

"Some movie stars say this but don't mean it," said her distinguished - looking, 51-year-old husband. "But in my wife's case, the 'no' on publicity is definite."

The Davids live in a two-story farm house surrounded by a high stone wall. The local garageman across the road tips them off when "uninvited guests" are seen in the vicinity.

Deanna still practices — one hour every morning.

"Now I can sing whatever I like," said the actress who once made $150,000 a picture.

Peter Studies Piano

"But the most exciting thing at the moment is Peter studying piano. We go into Paris once a week for lessons. He is not yet in the Mozart stage, but I get a tremendous kick out of singing with him to help him practice."

Deanna drives the family car and does most of her own shopping in nearby markets. The shopkeepers respect her as a canny bargainer and the butcher says he is sure she is a good cook. She and her husband still make frequent trips to Paris to go to the theater and dinner parties.

She plans to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Durbin of North Hollywood, this summer. Last year they went to Switzerland.

Puzzled Passengers

GULFPORT, Miss. (UP)—Passengers of the New Orleans-Miami bus were puzzled. They had just left New Orleans, and how they were headed back there, with a new driver.

Then strange scenery appeared —the bus was taking a detour. Now it was heading the other way again, toward Mobile, La.

Next a highway patrolman stopped the bus, two miles out of Gulfport. And the whole thing was explained.

Officers said Jack N. Porter, 33, an off-duty bus driver from Mobile, had spotted the bus at the Gulfport station, its driver inside the terminal.

Porter had been to the Mardi Gras in New Orleans and apparently wanted to go back and do a bit more celebrating, investigators said. He climbed in the driver's seat and headed for New Orleans, the 44 passengers evidently seeing nothing amiss, at first.

Officers said the driver then apparently remembered that there also is a Mardi Gras festival in his home town of Mobile. So he changed his mind and headed east again.

The regular driver finally got his bus back and continued toward Miami. Porter ended up in jail, charged with driving while intoxicated.

Baby Makes New Home For Family

A UNITED PRESS EXTRA
By DAN BYRNE
United Press Staff Correspondent

SIGOURNEY, Iowa (UP)—Dick Hammes sat at the kitchen table in his farm home and nodded toward the baby in his wife's arms.

"We've got a new home now," he said. "That little fella makes it one."

Myron Richard Hammes gurgled and took a tighter grip on his bottle. His mother smiled down know the vital role he's playing at him.

The baby, born Jan. 14, doesn't in helping his parents piece together the hopes, dreams and happiness that were wiped out in one agonizing moment.

All eight of their children were killed in a single, split - second accident. It could only happen to one in 10 million, but it happened to Hammes, 47, and his wife Ruth, 38, on Oct. 25, 1956.

Numb with Shock

A train plowed into the family car as Mrs. Hammes drove the children to a small country school. Donald and Ronald, 9-year-old twins; Karen, 8; Linda, 7; Gary, 5; Rosemary, 3, and Ricky and Vicky, 18-month-old twins, died in the crumpled wreckage.

Mrs. Hammes escaped with only minor injuries.

The tragedy left the farm couple numb with shock. Little was heard about the grief-stricken parents after the children were buried and a memorial erected in their honor until their son was born last month.

A bright sun streamed through the kitchen window as Hammes chatted with a reporter.

His rough, strong hands moved swiftly over the rabbit meat he was preparing for "rabbit sausage."

A New Home Now

"We had a terrible battle the past year or so," Hammes said quietly. "It was hard to believe.

"One minute you've got a family. A few seconds later you don't have anything. It was rough, it was rough."

Hammes wiped a hand quicly over his face. He cut a couple of slices of meat and nodded toward the baby.

"We've got a new home now. That little fella makes it one. I spend more time with him than I did with all eight of the other kids put together.

"He had me up for three hours the other night. I didn't mind it a bit."

Mrs. Hammes, sitting in the rocking chair, also talked easily about the baby, but she turned away when the conversation turned to the accident. She smiled at the little boy.

"What more is there to say?" she asked.

Jerry Lewis Is Hurting Most From Martin-Lewis Split-Up

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YOR K(UP) — The most interesting thing about the split-up of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis is this: It has not hurt Martin, but it has hurt Lewis.

Martin is no great shakes as a singer, actor or comic. But he does have a kind of easy mellowness that wears well. He doesn't press or push and I suspect he'll be around for a long time in the entertainment business.

However, as was demonstrated on NBC-TV Tuesday night, Lewis now stands uncomfrotably naked. Without the balance of Martin, Lewis stands revealed as a creature of small comedy endowments, a kind of antique teen-ager whose doting mother has led him to believe he is the life of the party.

Seen All

The truth is, once you have been exposed to the Lewis bag of tricks — the zoomar eyeballs, the simian mouth-set, the drooping jaw, the bewildered simper—you have seen all of Lewis. He simply lacks stature as a comedian. He is devoid of taste, originality and above all, intelligence.

Lewis chose to co-direct and co-write his one-hour special show Tuesday as well as star in it, mistakes I would number consecutively one, two and three.

He did some business in English and phony French and German with a pay telephone that was just plain dull. He went on to a Japanese rendition of "All the Way" that was just plain bad taste. He then wobbled into a skit that was just a bad imitation of Jackie Gleason's "Poor Soul," a poor soul possessed only of retarded faculties without any of the gentleness, the pathetic helplessness of Gleason's creation.

Much in Keeping

The level of the last portion of the Lewis show was much in keeping with the standards he set earlier in the evening.

Betty Grable sang "It All Depends on You." She is a singer with a minimum amount of vocal equipment and a maximum amount of confidence in the charity of her audience.

Sophie Tucker was introduced. Did I say introduced? I meant hymned into place by Lewis in the oh-so reverential tones that show people reserve for each other.

Miss Tucker recited to piano accompaniment something called "Have Fun," a hysterical paean to herself (sample line: "When you brighten the faces of children like my charities have done...") It was downright embarrassing. But that, as they say, is show biz.

I might add that Lewfs and Miss Tucker engaged in repartee like:

Lewis: "You know how happy I am to have you here."

Miss Tucker: "I'm happy to be here, Jerry."

They formed an appreciative audience for each other during a subsequent duet.

Me, I just winced and dug out my old collection of Dean Martin records.

The Channel swim: "Lucky Dollar" replaces "Dick and the Duchess" on March 29 and "Wingo" replaces "The Eve Arden Show" on March 25 over at CBS-TV. The Charles Van Dorens expect their first in late June and the Hank Bloomgardens are pointing to mid-April — both men are former contestants on NBC-TV's "Twenty One."

Harvard bought one hour of CBS radio evening time for March 28 — "The Case for the College" will feature such Harvardites as Lennie Bernstein, Defense Secretary Neil McElroy, Sen. John Kennedy, the Harvard Glee Club and Band.

ABC-TV's new "Dick Clark Show" tripled the Trendex rating of its time spot in its first outing, racking up a 16.0. CBS-TV will kinescope a new quiz, "How to Pick Your Mate" this Saturday and another quiz, "Name Your Partner" on Friday. Jim Lowe landed the emcee job for the test kinescope on March 2 of another CBS-TV quizzer, the one-hour "Sing-a-Long."

President Pinpoints Russian Weakness

Foreign News Commentary
BY CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

President Eisenhower has pinpointed a fundamental weakness of Russian leaders in his latest letter to Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin.

That is, their complete ignorance of the real conditions in countries like the United States.

There was a decided change of tone in Eisenhower's letter, latest in a series of exchanges which Bulganin started last Dec. 10 on holding a "summit" conference on world issues.

Eisenhower retored sharply to charges made by such men as Bulganin, and Communist Party Leader Nikita S. Khruschev that "the United States is a nation ruled by aggressive, war-minded imperialists."

He expressed amazement that such allegations were made by Soviet leaders "who have never even been near this country."

If there are Americans who, as the Russians charge, are calling for a "preventive" war and conducting "unrestrained" war propaganda, the President said, he does not know them.

Ignorant of Conditions

"It is possible that Soviet leadership feels it necessary to deliberately misrepresent the American viewpoint," Eisenhower continued. "Possibly also these misrepresentations constitute blind adherence to what was one of the early tenets of orthodox Communism—namely, that capitalistic societies are by their very nature warlike."

Of course, there are Soviet propagandists who do deliberately distort conditions. Of course, it is true also that men like Bulganin and Khrushchev do blindly adhere to Communist doctrine.

But behind this lies the fact that Bulganin, Khrushchev and many other high Soviet leaders are essentially ignorant men as regards world conditions.

They make use of the "big lie" technique as a matter of policy.

But, like Adolf Hitler and other fanatics, they believe their big lies themselves.

Josef Stalin spent nearly all his life isolated in Russia. He had no conception of the way of life in advanced free countries.

Bulganin and Khrushchev have made some tours to foreign countries, mostly the backward ones of Southeast Asia.

Did Make Visit

They did, however, make a visit to Great Britain, and they must have been bug-eyed at the contrast between conditions there and in Russia.

It is necessary to remember that Bulganin and Khrushchev derive their conception of conditions in western countries from fellow-Communists — from Communist diplomats, and from Communist administrative officials who if they knew the truth would not venture to report it.

They are ignorant men and blind men, and if they want to keep their places in Communist leadership, they must remain ignorant and blind.

Soviet leaders found out soon after the end of World War II how dangerous a little knowledge of world realities could be. Russian troops who occupied foreign countries were amazed to find out how much better the average man fared in them than people did in the Communist paradise. It soon became necessary to restrict contact between the soldiers and the people of the occupied countries.

Russia itself is still a vast prison camp, from which it may mean death to try to escape. And men like Bulganin and Khrushchev are prisoners too.

Paper Industry To Resist Pressure To Cut Prices

By GEORGE C. HARLAN
United Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Paper and pulp manufacturers are bracing to resist pressures for lower prices generated by excess capacity and the general business recession.

John R. Kimberly, first vice president of the American Paper and Pulp Assn., told the United Press that "looking at the cost-price situation in our industry, it is obvious to me that it is going to be very difficult to produce lower prices."

Kimberly, who is president of Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, Wis., added that in view of the continuing higher labor, materials and distribution costs, lower prices "do not appear in the cards."

The Wisconsin paper executive virtually ruled out cheaper prices in an interview at the 81st annual meeting of the association.

By tradition, Kimberly, as first vice president of the APPA, is in line for the presidency of the association.

He also said that the same cost factors currently besetting the industry apply to newsprint. "I know of no factors that would influence a change in the cost-price situation to weaken newsprint prices," he declared.

At the same time, he said he expects the demand for newsprint to decline somewhat in the months ahead.

Asked about the present excess capacity in the industry, Kimberly said, "This is nothing to be afraid of." He added that excess in capacity was healthy since it provides the industry with a cushion against any sudden "surge" in demand for paper products.

Asked for his views on the overall economic picture, Kimberly said he does not look for any reversal in the current business recession before the fourth quarter. He qualified this forecast by adding that "a lot will depend on what the government does."

As an antidote for the ills of his own industry he urged that companies make even greater efforts in the fields of merchandising and operating efficiency.

The Boss's Desk Has New Status Now: It's A Symbol

By WARD CANNEL
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — A bank president here keeps a brass spittoon next to his desk — even though it's against city law. An advertising executive has replaced his desk with a marble slab on ebony legs. And an industry bigshot has had his office desk removed entirely.

What does it all mean?

Simply that top management is beginning to rebel against the modern manners, morals and decor that threaten the soft underbelly of prestige.

According to a man who decorates and redecorates the biggest offices in town:

"Everything's becoming standardized. All the desks are the same, except that the bigger men get the bigger sizes. All the chairs are the same, with more chairs for the more important people."

It would bring tears to your eyes, he said, to listen to the smallershots pleading for an extra chair, another phone, a longer couch — anything to give their offices more status than their neighbors'.

It is no solution at all to give executives their own way in decorating. In free-status offices, one official had his floor relaid in pigskin tile; another put his desk and chair on a platform.

And so on and on. The resulting confusion has only proved the old saw: when everybody's somebody, nobody's anybody.

In part, the push for symbols of prestige has been caused by necessity. Bullpen people — the drones who do the actual work — seem to work more efficiently if they have enclosed offices and windows, both of which were once signs of executive achievement.

In part, the push can be laid at the doorstep of office engineers who can economize with standard furniture and accessories ordered by the carload. And in part, the pressure stems from injured management itself, looking always for a way to improve the work flow.

But the largest responsibility of all, according to a sociology professor who asked that her name be withheld, lies with the official culture of this country.

"Every society," she said, "has some sort of straitification — even if it's based only on how many bears you kill or who your parents were.

"In this country, we have always clung to the idea of equality. It's all right to be different, but not too different. And so, if everybody's equal, the only way to judge yourself is by the next fellow."

This kind of thinking, she said, leads people to need symbols of prestige because prestige alone means very little.

It also leads executivs into labyrinthine way.

Many men in high positions will accept an office exactly like everybody else's — but they replace their secretaries' standard typewriters with electric models.

And in one company, ready to move into new quarters with new (and standard) office equipment, a young fellow-on-the-way-up outsymboled his colleagues by a successful pleading to the president:

"It would be an awful shame to junk your old desk. I've always admired it as being symbolic of you and your achievement. I'd like to have it when we move, instead of that shiny new desk."

Turncoat Led Taking Of Airplane

SEOUL (UP)— South Korean Home Minister Lee Keun Jik said today a one-time turncoat from the North Korean Army engineered the international hijacking of a Korean airliner with 34 persons aboard.

The North Korean Red Cross ignored a plea by the International Red Cross to help return any of the passengers taken to North Korea against their will, including two Americans and two Germans.

Mrs. Willis Hobbs, wife of the plane's American pilot, flew from Hong Kong to Korea with her two small children today in hopes her husband would be released.

Home Minister Lee said a police investigation indicated seven persons aboard the Korean National Airlines DC-3 were involved in the plot to fly to North Korea.

Lee said investigators "obtained material evidence" that the plot was headed by a former North Korean soldier named Kim Kyung.

He said Kim, 35, had escaped to South Korea in 1951 during the Korean war. He was listed on the plane's manifest as a businessman and police said he had been engaged in a clothing establishment in Taegu but had been unemployed for several months.

Investigators said Kim apparently was ordered to steal the plane by a North Korean espionage agent identified only as Kang. They said Kang was believed to have masterminded the plot but was not on the plane. Kang and Kim were school mates in North Korea.

Communist newsmen at Tuesday's meeting of the armistice commission in Panmunjom indicated that violence might have occurred before the plane bypassed its Seoul destination and flew into North Korea. They told non-Communist reporters some persons aboard needed medical attention when the plane landed.

Cold Keeps Farmers Out Of Fields

AUSTIN (UP)— Sleet, snow and cold winds froze out field work on most Texas farms last week, according to the weekly crop and weather bulletin of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The cold, stormy weather delayed land preparations for spring planting in central and southern counties, and farmers and ranchers had increased feeding to minimize livestock shrinkage.

The need for warm, open weather was becoming "increasingly urgent" the USDA said.

However, the snow improved wheat prospects in the plains country when warmer weather does arrive.

"Cotton planting in the lower valley was stopped and only a few scattered fields were coming up," the report noted.

Weather Balmy In Antarctic

McMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (UP)—Most residents along the U.S. East Coast would have found the weather warmer in the Antarctic today.

The temperature was a near-balmy 29 degrees above zero today at this American scientific base only 700 miles from the magnetic South Pole.

Demos Open Public Works Pressure Drive

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressional Democrats have opened a campaign to put "terrific pressure" on the Eisenhower administration to beef up its public works program for the 12 months starting next July 1.

"We're going to make it so hot the administration will have to expand the program or face the wrath of an outraged public," Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) told the United Press.

In a related move, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) has proposed that a government agency like the former Reconstruction Finance Corp. be set up to provide capital to business firms of all sizes. In a prepared Senate speech he said such an agency would encourage competition and promote employment.

The public works campaign began after President Eisenhower's new budget advocated a reduced water resource development plan to compensate for increased defense spending.

Individual senators and congressmen issued statements lambasting the administration's policy of barring any new water projects for the fiscal year starting July 1. This week the organized attack began with hearings before a joint Senate Interior and Public Works Committee.

Star witness at the hearing Tuesday was Maj. Gen. E.C. Itschner, Chief Of the Army Corps of Engineers, who declared the Soviet Union threatens to overtake the United States in water resource development.

Itschner said Russia has hydroelectric power projects under construction which "far exceed any American project in capacity."

MARSHALL, N.C.—Sheriff E.Y. Ponder, speaking about the sheet of ice three miles long and eight feet deep which is threatening to push into his town:

"It could destroy the town if it keeps building up this way but we are hoping for a break in the weather."

Versatile Round Steak Can Be Cooked According To Family's Individual Taste

Quiz your neighbor about what type of beef steak she serves most often and she'll reply, "Round steak, of course!" Round steak heads the list because it's abundant, economical, and can be prepared in many ways.

This lean meat contains the round leg bone; it is a less-tender steak, but braising tenderizes it. Round steak is browned in a little hot fat, covered, and cooked with a small amount of liquid. Cooking very gently over low heat or in a moderately low oven (325 degrees F.) with a liquid insures a tender, juicy steak.

Round steak can be prepared with great individuality. While some folks like to cut the meat in serving size pieces, others like to cut strips, roll larger pieces, or even stuff the steak. Using unusual seasonings, such as thyme or ginger, in the flour which is pounded into the meat adds variety in flavor, while cooking with different braising liquids such as mushroom soup or apple cider also increases the individuality of the meat dish.

Here is a special round steak recipe to try and then add to your file. It's unusual because it is cut in half, sandwiched with a herb-seasoned stuffing, braised in consomme and colorfuly bedecked with sliced stuffed olives. What's more, if your family is small, part of the cooked, stuffed round steak can be frozen and reheated in consomme for another meal.

STUFFED ROUND STEAK

1½ pounds round steak, cut ½ inch thick
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
1½ cups packaged herb-seasoned stuffing
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 can (10-½ ounces) condensed consomme
½ cup water
1-3 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives

Sprinkle steak with mixture of flour, salt and pepper; pound on both sides with a heavy saucer or meat pounder until the flour is absorbed. Cut steak in half. Mix butter with stuffing and spread stuffing on one half of steak; cover with remaining steak and skewer edges. Brown in hot fat. Dilute consomme with water and pour over steak. Add olives. Cover and simmer 1½ hours. Serve with cooking liquid. 4 to 6 servings.

CUBES FOR STEWS

Beef, veal or lamb are often used in stews. When using veal for a stew, the meat may be cut from any one of the following places . . . neck, breast, shoulder or flank. Being less tender, the meat is naturally cooked by a moist heat method of meat cookery.

Drum Cake Happy Way To Young Lad's Heart

A really easy way to make a small boy proud of you is to bake a Drum Cake for his birthday or just as a special treat.

Bake a Real Red Devils Food Cake:

1 c. sifted Softasilk
1½ cups sugar
1¼ tsp. soda
1 tsp. salt
1-3 cup cocoa
½ cup shortening
1 c. milk
1 tsp. vanilla.
2 eggs (1-3 to ½ cup)

Heat oven to 350 (mod.). Grease and flour two 8x1½" layer pans or 13x9 oblong pan. Sift dry ingredients. Add shortening, 2-3 cups milk. Beat 2 min. Add 1-3 cup milk, eggs, vanilla. Beat 2 more min. Pour into pans. Bake 8 inch layer 35 to 40 min., oblong 45 to 50 min. Frost with White Mountain Frosting.

WHITE MOUNTAIN FROSTING

½ cup sugar
2 T water
¼ cup light corn syrup
2 egg whites (¼ cup)
1 tsp. vanilla.

Mix in saucepan sugar, water, syrup. Cover, bring to rolling boil. Remove cover, cook to 242 degrees or until syrup spins a 6 to 8 inch thread.

Just before syrup is ready, beat egg whites until stiff enough to hold a point. Pour hot syrup very slowly in thin stream into egg whites. Beat until frosting holds peaks. Blend in vanilla.

For drum effect, press red and white striped candy sticks at angles on sides. Set a maraschino cherry at ends of each stick. If you like, cross two candy sticks on top of cake for drumsticks.

TASTY COMBINATION

Liver and bacon make a well known combination but for added variety, combine slices of canned luncheon meat or ready-to-serve meat such as bologna or spiced ham with panfried or braised liver.

WHAT TO BARBECUE

Any hearty eater will occasionally have a craving for barbecued spareribs. For other favorites in the barbecue field try this — barbecued lamb riblets, hamburgers, baked hash, frankfurters or canned luncheon meat.

Good Cook Meets Family's Challenge By Creating Pleasing Finishing Touch

One of the greatest challenges of a good cook is pleasing her family every time with a perfectly cooked and well-seasoned meal. And it isn't so difficult if the sauce or garnish is carefully chosen to enhance the flavor of the dish it completes, not to overwhelm it.

For just the right finishing touch that will turn any meat entrees into elegant dishes, here are three uniquely-flavored sauces to serve with them.

These sauces can be used interchangably to a certain extnet, but the pineapple-orange sauce goes rather well with roast duck or lamb, the raisin-apple juice sauce with ham or tongue and the curried fruit sauce with chicken or veal. The recipes follow:

PINEAPPLE-ORANGE SAUCE

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup orange juice
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon powdered cloves
½ cup pineapple chunks
1 teaspoon cornstarch

Dissolve brown sugar in orange juice in saucepan over low flame. Add remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling point and cook 5 minutes.

Yield: 1-¾ cups sauce

RAISIN-APPLE JUICE SAUCE

¼ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ cups apple juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ cup raisins
10 whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in saucepan. Add next five ingredients. Cook, stirring constantly, for 10 minutes. Add butter. Remove spices and serve hot.

Yield: 1 cup

CURRIED FRUIT SAUCE

¼ cup sugar
1½ cups grapefruit juice
1 teaspoon cornstarch
½ cup mixed dried fruits, cut small
1 teaspoon curry powder

Dissolve sugar in grapefruit juice in skillet. Add remaining ingredients and cook until slightly thickened (about 5 minutes). Serve hot.

Yield: ¾ cup

If your Lenten menus need sparkle, here's a recipe that will really kindle appetites. It's an easy way to make baked macaroni casserole with a creamy cheese sauce. And don't overlook the topping of tasty Corn Flakes mixed with melted butter. Along with the flavor contribution, this topping adds a texture bonus of crispy goodness.

According to the Italian dictionary, maccaroni means "how very dear" — and that's just what you'll say after tasting Kellogg's Baked Maccaroni With Cheese Sauce.

BAKED MACARONI WITH CHEESE SAUCE

2 cups (8 oz.) ready cut macaroni
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 cups grated American cheese
2 cups Kellogg's Corn Flakes
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water only until tender. Drain, rinse and drain again. Melt butter; stir in flour, add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened stirring occasionally. Add seasonings and cheese, stirring until cheese is melted. Combine macaroni and cheese sauce; pour into greased 1½ - quart casserole. Crush Corn Flakes into fine crumbs; mix with melted butter. Sprinkle over macaroni. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 20 minutes.

Yield: 6-8 servings.

Variation: MACARONI AND CHEESE WITH MEAT — Combine 1 cup chopped cooked ham, tongue or corned beef with Macaroni and Cheese before pouring into greased casserole.

Then place in bowl of ice and water and whip with egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Chop ½ cup of cherries. Add to gelatin mixture. Delicious Dried Beef High In Nutrition

When you reach for a jar or package of dried beef, you reach for a product that is full of good nutrition. Every pound of dried beef is equal in food value to almost 2 pounds of fresh meat.

Boned and trimmed beef round is used in the preparation of dried beef. It is cured in a pickling solution under close temperature control so that every fiber of the meat is reached. Then, it is held in heated "drying houses" for four to seven days until it is reduced to a concentrated food and takes on its characteristic tasty, smoky flavor. After the "drying house" period, the meat is cooled and dried for several days.

All in all, more than two weeks of skillful care is reuired to produce a dried meat that is ready to be sliced paper thin and packed as delicious dried beef.

Served cold in a sandwich, creamed and served in patty shells, or combined with rice, the toasty, smoked flavor of dried beef can't be beaten!

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A while back you told a girl to forget the guy in the service because he didn't write to her. I've been stationed overseas in war and peace-time and many times I'd start writing a letter to the folks back home (or my girl) and I wouldn't be able to finish it. I just couldn't think of anything to say. Don't take my work for it, Abby. Ask the mothers, wives and sweethearts who read your column. I'm sure they'd tell you by the thousands that they didn't get mail from men in Service, only because the men had nothing to say and not because they didn't care about them.

EX-G.I.

DEAR EX: And for every serviceman who didn't finish a letter there was a mother or a wife or a sweetheart who lived for the mailman's footsteps. They'd have been thrilled to see a postcard with three little words (I love you) every few days. Does that take so much time and effort? Sorry, Bud — I do not buy your sad story.

DEAR ABBY: I am an average-looking 19-year-old boy who can't say "no" to his family. Whenever a big affair comes up (holiday dances especially) my aunts and my mother get together and decide which one of my cousins I should take. I have three fat cousins who never get to go any place unless I take them. I have tried to get some of my firiends to take them out but they won't even do it as a favor to me so you an imagine what these girls look like. Do you think it is fair to me?

BURTON

DEAR BURTON: This is definitely unfair to you. Assert yourself right now and ask your mother to please excuse you from these "duty dates" in the future.

DEAR ABBY: I am a gril of 17 who just had a baby six weeks ago. My problem is that my mother is 33 years old and is very mad at me for calling her "Grandma" in public. She is my real mother and she is a grandmother whether she likes it or not. She is married to a fellow who is 29 (not my father) and she doesn't want anyone to know how old she is. She says I should call her RITA and the baby (when he talks) can call her Rita also. What do you think she should be called?

A PROUD NEW MOTHER

DEAR PROUD: Never mind what I think she should be called—just keep the peace and call her "Rita."

CONFIDENTIAL TO TUFFY: You're right. . .there IS safety in numbers. But don't overdo it. You might get your numbers mixed.

If you have a problem, write to Abilgail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Karlin Fetes Neighbors At Coffee

Soil Analysis Topic For Garden Club

Pampa Garden Club met Monday in the home of Mrs. Ervin Pursely with twent-eight members present.

During the business meeting, officers for the 1958-59 club year were elected.

Tony Welker, soil scientist from the local Soil Conservation office, gave an interesting talk on soil analysis. Mr. Welker told the club that the soil around Pampa is of good quality for gardening and plants.

"It is neither an acid soil nor an alkaline soil, but a pH of 6.5, which is good for most plants," he said. "Most of the necessary elements for plant life are available in our soil although there is a shortage of nitrogen." Mrs. Welk continued, "The soil around Pampa does pack easily and cracks after watering or rain; the clay content is the cause of this. Working compost, old saw-dust, or grass clippings into the soil will help prevent packing."

Mr. Welker gave a demonstration of soil-testing using some of the soil from the Pursley yard.

Following the soil demonstration, a question and answer session was held.

Mrs. Dwyer Feted At Bride's Party

Mrs. Archie Dwyer was honored recently with a wedding shower given in the home of Mrs. Clyde Willis with Mmes. Joe Willis, Bob Massey, Leon Crockett, Jess Ledbetter, Charles Eudey, Jack McClellan and Emory Crockett as co-hostesses.

The serving table was covered with an crocheted cloth centered with an arrangement of red and white flowers flanked by white tapers, silver and china. Refreshments of red and white cookies, coffee and cocoa were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Massey registered the guests. Those attending or sending gifts included more than one hundred persons.

Police In Matamoros Want Texan

MATAMOROS, Mexico (UP)—Matamoros police have indicated they will seek extradition of Raul Trevino Garza, 27, of Pharr, Tex. who has confessed to killing a 27-year-old prominent Matamoros businessman.

The police Wednesday said they would satrt extradition proceedings against Garza, who said he killed Ladislso Jiminez because of a romantic entanglement between Jiminez and Garza's sister, as soon as possible.

Jiminez was killed in a Matamoros cafe Jan. 31. Garza said he went to Omaha, Neb., after the shooting. He returned to Pharr and surrendered Sunday night.

Texas Supreme Court Sustains Injunction

AUSTIN (UP)— The Texas Supreme Court, in a far-reaching test case, has sustained a Midland district court injunction barring naturopaths from doing business in Texas.

The case stemmed from filing of similar civil suits against 58 naturopaths last Dec. 2 by Atty. Gen. Will Wilson. He acted for the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners—who alleged naturopaths were breaking the law by practicing medicine without a license.

Henry Schlichting, Jr., a Midland naturopath, was the key figure in the test case.

The naturopath's trouble started last year when the Texas Supreme Court held the law allowing them to operate in the state was unconstitutional. The U.S. Supreme Court agreed. Then Wilson moved in to put them out of business by means of court injunctions.

Leveled Bribe Charges

Naturopaths originally moved into the Texas limelight when Howard Harmon, a San Antonio naturopath and former president of the Texas Assn. of Naturopathic Physicians, leveled bribery charges at a state legislator.

He said that former Rep. James Cox of Conroe had agreed to take a $5,000 bribe to aid the naturopath cause. Cox denied the accusation and resigned from the legislature. He was convicted in a district court trial at Austin last fall and sentenced to two years in prison. The case is now on appeal.

The Supreme Court's opinion was written by Justice St. John Garwood.

Attorney's for the naturopaths challenged the legality of the law under which the state sought its injunction, as well as authority of the Board of Medical Examiners to initiate the action.

The Supreme Court overruled both arguments.

Special Provisions Noted

The naturopaths also contended the injunction violated both the state and federal constitutions by discriminating against them.

The high court noted that special provisions are made for licensing dentists, chiropractors and chiropodists, while naturopaths—under present law—would qualify first as a full medical practitioner if they want to work as a licensed naturopath. But the court quickly added that dentists and chiropodists and similar practitioners are "respectively limited to diagnosis and treatment with respect to rather narrow portions of the human anatomy, while the only limitations in the practice of naturopathy are limitations merely of methods employed. Evidently naturopaths purport to diagnose and treat human ills of all kinds, however limited their methods."

Naturopaths claim to heal and prevent human ills by the use of air, light, heat, cold, water and certain nutrients as found in their natural state.

Dallas Police To Train On Handling Of Race Troubles

DALLAS (UP)— Training of Dallas police on preventive measures in case of racial troubles has been announced to start by "late spring or early summer" by Police Chief Carl Hansson.

Hansson revealed plans for the special training Wednesday, and said he had made a secret trip to Little Rock in December to study the police problems there.

Hansson said primary objective of the training is to let officers know what to do at any outbreak of mob action arising from integration of Dallas' public school system.

The school system is under federal court order to integrate "with all due speed."

A 90-page manual covering all phases of police action in case of racial disorders has already been compiled.

Stevenson Joins The Atlantic Union Group

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — If it is news when a great public figure joins an organization dedicated to alter substantially the sovereign status of the U.S. government, then a recent move by Adlai E. Stevenson has been strangely overlooked.

The February edition of "Freedom & Union" states that Stevenson recently became a member of the Council of the Atlantic Union Committee.

"Governor Stevenson made no statement in joining the council," the magazine comments editorially, "letting his action speak for itself. It does, indeed, and it speaks volumes—both as regards the rising start of Atlantic Union and the courageous statesmanship for which so many have so long admired the Democratic Party's candidate for president in 1952 and 1956."

"Freedom & Union" is the spokesman for the Atlantic Union Committee. In its simplest terms, the committee seeks to merge the free nations of the West in a federal union to be known as the United States of the Atlantic. All hands would become citizens.

"Nationality": Atlantican

These citizens of a new federal union would be Atlanticans, in the terminology of the Atlantic Union. There is much more prestige and political ooomp behind this idea than may be suspected by the average American. That individual goes his way, perhaps, unsuspecting that he may one day—not soon—discover to his pleasure or to his dismay that he no longer is merely an American, but an Atlantican, to boot.

Twenty seven members of the U.S. Senate sponsored in 1951 a resolution calling for a conference of the Atlantic powers to move toward a political and economic union within the framework of the United Nations. Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) introduced the resolution.

It may be significant that nearly one-third of the Senate membership would make Atlanticans of Americans while only seven of the 435 members of the House of Representatives chose to sponsor such a resolution.

Truman Noncommittal

On Nov. 4, 1951 Atlantic Union's First National Congress met in Memphis, Tenn. It urged President Truman to summon a conference of the Atlantic powers to explore plans for federation. Truman didn't do it.

"Freedom & Union" states that the U.S. of the Atlantic should be set up under a constitution which would continue and guarantee the U.S. Bill of Rights; give the federated states free government in those fields where they agreed this would best advance individual freedom; provide that this government shall be elected by, be responsible to, and operate on, the citizens of the federated states and be federally balanced in its representation of them.

The ultimate objective would be to bring all other nations peacefully into the super state until it became a free world republic.

A Stevenson or a Kefauver in the White House might move such a project along considerably.

Red Chinese Working On Army-Civilian Relations

By WENDELL S. MERICK
United Press Staff Correspondent

HONG KONG (UP) — Red China's army is making another bid to improve relations with the civilian population.

The first step was to order army units to grow their own pirk and vegetables.

The latest is an order under which virtually all private homes requisitioned from civilians will be returned. This decision came at the all-army barrack control work conference in Peiping.

Get "Eviction" Orders

The conference, according to the Communist New China News Agency, "Decided that excepting the Marine defense units, frontier defense units, anti-aircraft units, Railway Corps and the National Defense Engineering Corps which really need private homes and could continue to rent and use them, all PLA (People's Liberation Army) units should as from March this year, cease renting private houses they have already rented."

The requisitioning of private homes, along with the food problem, has angered farmers and city-dwellers for months along the coastal areas, especially in Kwangtung Province in the south and Fukien Province on the East Coast facing Nationalist Formosa, where the Reds found it necessary to take over private homes to house troops.

Apparently Fukien, which is regarded by the Chinese as a top-security area, won't be much affected by the new order.

But in inland regions, the change will mean that the army will build barracks for itself to live in, as well as produce much of its own food.

Know The People

It is all part of Peiping's campaign for the army "to get to know the people."

NCNA pointed up the extensiveness of the requisitioning in reporting the Peiping Conference held in January. It said that "last year, alone, various units returned a total of 74,200 houses" to the original owners.

Judging from the fact that a new, wide-sweeping order has gone out to turn back housing, it can be figured that the number of dwellings still held by the army is far greater than the number already returned.

Study Of Unions

The American Enterprise Assn. has recently come forward with a new study by Edward H. Chamberlin, professor of political economy at Harvard. The title of the study is "The Economic Union Power."

We were impressed with the study even if we are not in full agreement with it. Our favorbale impression stems from the fact that Dr. Chamberlin now has joined with so many others in seeing the genuine evil in the labor union movement.

We cannot give Chamberlin much credit for originality. But the institution of learning he represents has been so long on the left side of the political ledger that a movement within its professioral staff toward sanity and sense is devoutly applauded.

And there is much in what Mr. Chamberlin confides in his study which is deserving of far more serious thought than has been given to by others. For example, the economist shows that regardless of laws that might be passed to curb the power of union bosses, the problem would remain. This would be true even if the abuses were abolished and controlled.

"One of the suprising discoveries about the attitude of the public towards labor is the existence of a general feeling of helplessness — almost fatalism — in the face of labor power. A common attitude is one of resignation — after all, what can you do about it?"

The, on page 29 he says: "To deal with a wage - push inflation by monetary or fiscal policies is certainly not to deal with causes. It is rather to attempt to create a counter push by squeezing businessmen so they will in turn squeeze labor.

"It risks economic contraction, to say nothing of major industrial strife. An obvious alternative is to diminish in some measure the degree of economic power in the hands of unions so that the pressure may be reduced at its source.

Then, on pages 8 and 9, appears one of his most telling arguments:

"A most subtle line of argument is that receivers of higher wages benifit the rest of the economy by spending them and thus spreading prosperity. Whatever the element of truth or falsity in this proposition, it need only be pointed out that it is equally true (or false) for income received by any element of society, and not merely by trade unionists.

"Whoever receives a higher money income gains relative to other who do not, and there is nothing in the argument to indicate why union labors any more than anyone else should be chosen to have the agreeable privilege of mysteriously spreading prosperity in this way.

"But since some labors have more power to raise their money incomes than others (some such as receivers of contractual incomes, life insurance beneficiaries, etc., have zero power), those who have more power gain at the expense of those who have less. The interest of those who gain is hardly to be indentified with the whole, if the whole includes those who lose."

On page 5 appears this classic: "those who are really concerned with the lot of the underprivileged in our economy will hardly be impressed by the claims of the trade union sector. Today's underprivileged are to be found elsewhere."

Page 18 gives us this:

"It is more than a possibility that, especially with the drive for industry — side uniformity, and which is responsible for its high efficiency, will be lost through a substantial invasion of the management area by labor, and that the public will awake one day to find that a degree of economic control, which it will never have tolerated in the hands of businessmen, has already passed into the hands of someone else."

On the subject of strkes, Chamberlin is very clear. He says it is more than just a work stoppage.

"It is this plus the right to prevent his employer from hiring anyone else who is willing to take the job. Practically speaking it has developed into a property right in a job, even though one is not working at it."

As we said earlier, we were favorably impressed in general. The only part of the professor's argument against which we bridle, is his plea for extensive laws to govern the matter even though he concedes this would not totally provide a remedy. Here, unless he is careful, he will find a nemesis more determental to freedom and free enterprise than even the tax-exempt, truculent and tryannous labor boss.

We cannot cure one evil by flying into the arms of a second agency of force which is also potentially evil. All the same, Chamberlin's study is valuable and should make a splendid contribution toward public understanding of a major problem.

Freedom And Property

Since this newspaper believes the best means to promote peace and goodwill and prosperity is freedom — voluntaryism, an editorial in "Christian Economics" under the heading "Freedom and Property," I think, pretty well explains the necessity of both freedom and private property. I want to quote from this article:

"Socialists, communists, and fascists are always eager for more nationalization of property. They want more TVAs, government-owned power plants, irrigation projects, government housing and more government ownership of land and industry. They approve of government-owned railroads, post offices, bus lines, subways, banks, hospitals, publishing enterprises, schools, colleges and universities.

"Where they cannot secure outright government ownership they seek the greatest possible measure of government control and regulation.

"Already government owns about 40 percent of the land area of our country, and something like 20 per cent of our industrial capacity. It owns and operates seven hundred substantial corporations, and many thousands of smaller business undertakings. It seizes and spends about one-third of all that all of us earn.

"Why do socialism, communism and fascism invariably seek to extend government-ownership and government-control? Because their aim is totalitarian government and the way to reach that objective is to deprive people of their property.

"Property and freedom are inseparable. Only a free people can accumulate private property and only people with substantial amounts of private property can maintain their freedom in this modern world. Every step towards more government ownership of property is a step away from freedom and toward the omnipotent government which all of us abhor.

'Property Essential To Resistance'

"A society in which individuals own extensive amounts of private property has the means of producing its own food, clothing, shelter, transportation and arms. As long as individuals possess these things, governments find it difficult to enslave them. They are not dependent upon government. They operate their own newspapers, publish their own books, and keep themselves informed. They can and do move about to attend conventions, meetings of protest, encourage one another, and organize the means of resisting government encroachment. Deprive them of private property, which is the means of carrying on all these activities and producing the necessities of life, and they quickly become victims of government.

"If people have no farms, mills, processing machinery and means of transporting foodstuff, but must look to government for their daily rations, they have no power of resistance. If they grow no cotton, own no flocks of sheep and possess no mills for spinging and weaving cloth, they are dependent upon government for clothing rations. If they own no herds of cattle, and no shoe factories, they will go barefooted unless they submit to the will of government. If they have no publishing plants and means of distributing books, papers and literature they will become quite helpless, because they will know only what government wants them to know. If they do not own the means of manufacturing powder, guns, tanks, bombs, and planes they have no means of resisting government. If they must look to government for their jobs, government has become their ruler and has the power of life and death over them. Resistance becomes extremely difficult.

"Every increase in government ownership, or control of property, is a step nearer the slavery that exists behind the Iron Curtain. We have been traveling in that direction a long time and we have gone a long way. The farther we go, the harder it will be to stop. Can we? — Will we stop before it is too late?

'How Much Time Have We?'

"We are not excited; our emotions are not stirred; we are not carried away by an oratorial effort; we are sitting quietly in our study at midnight, looking dispassionately at the events of the past generation and thinking calmly about how much time is left for the American people to wake up and reverse the trend that is carrying them rapidly toward dictatorship.

"We need not console ourselves that as long as we have the vote we can control our destiny. Votes, in the hands of those who have no means of producing food, clothing, shelter and arms, are a feeble means of protest against a strong government which owns and controls these things and therefore has the power to starve, freeze and punish individuals, until they accept uncomplainingly, even gratefully, what government chooses to mete out to them.

"Private property is the bulwark of freedom and the means toward better living. Every increase in private property makes freedom and well-being more secure. Every extension of government control and government ownership of property orings slavery a little nearer.

"The sun of freedom hangs low in the western sky. It is sinking rapidly as the power and authority of government are extended. It will disappear one of these days to usher in a long night of tyranny and terror, unless we, the people, inform ourselves, drive the socialists and communists from all places of power and influence, and reverse their diabolical plots and conspiracies for the destruction of private property. It is the business of government to protect — not destroy — property. Under socialism, government becomes not our protector, but a predator hurrying us along the road towards the loss of our priceless heritage."

Government Undergoing And "Era Of Rereform"

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The sprawling structure of the United States Government is now undergoing its first face-lifting and possible overhaul in more than 40 years, or since the advent of Woodrow Wilson, as a result of current Congressional investigations and Administration studies. Veteran characterize this as the "era of reform."

The survey ranges over such contrasting and incongrucus areas of the adequacy and shape of the national defense establishment to the ability of the Federal Reserve Board to cope with present-day economic problems — control of credit, inflation, deflation, prices, wages, production, employment.

But the review also affects almost all the new responsibilities and activities which two global wars, the "Coolidge boom" our severest depression, America's new world leadership role and Russia's rise to the status of a first-class power have imposed upon Washington.

VAST CHANGES IN FUTURE— Veteran Congressmen and career officials who view the panorama in this light forecast vast changes in the government's future relationship with every element of society.

Many anticipate that there will be a gradual Federal withdrawal from many fields, although such a curtailment will be opposed bitterly by the liberals, who usually line up on the Democratic side.

Which direction the trend will take — restriction or expansion— will probably depend upon the outcome of the 1960 Presidential election. Neither major Party is fully committed to either movement, awaiting the voters' decisions.

But here, briefly, are a few of the Federal activities now under scrutiny with an eye to revision in the light of today's needs and conditions.

FEDERAL ACTIVITIES — Feeral Defense: The prospective conquest of outer space will revolutionize the structure and missions of every branch of the armed forces. The Army, Navy and Air Force, as we know them today, may disappear. They will be replaced by weapons so fantastic and capable of intercontinental destruction that they cannot be discussed here. War may even be outlawed, not by moralty, but by military progress.

Finances: The Federal Reserve Board, organized in 1914 when the Federal budget was about a billion dollars, has become outmoded and virtually impotent. It cannot control credit, prevent inflation or deflation, or contribute to a stable economy, when public expenditures (Federal, state, local), savings and wages total more than $400 billion annually.

Foreign Affairs: Despite Capitol Hill murmurs, the U.S. will continue to finance and rearm and defend the free world so long as the Russian menace exists. However, an arms stalemate and an outer space equality may improve relations with Russia and lead to a livable coexistence. This or the next Administration will try to come to relatively satisfactory accommodations vis-a-vis Moscow.

DRASTIC CUTS IN FARM SUPPORTS — Agriculture: The farm subsidy program, which fosters unsalable surpluses and boosts prices to consumers, will be drastically modified, if not eliminated. Proposed cuts to 60 per cent in parity supports may be unpopular with the politicians, but even the farmers are demanding return to a "free market." Volume production and consumption at a lower price level appear to be the ultimate solution.

Government - Labor Relations: Under Federal supervision of a regulatory but not hostile nature, the great unions will be required to show a new sense of responsibility. This will apply not only to their so-called "internal affairs," but also to their relations toward the consuming public. After all, the unions comprise now only 15,000,000 of a working force of 65,000,000.

OTHER "RERERFORMS" — Bureaucracy: Although the Moulder inquiry into independent agencies seems headed for disaster or innocuousness, this fourth arm of the government will be made more responsible and more judicial in its conduct by legislation. Measures now under consideration are designed to make them as immune from political or private pressure as the Federal judiciary.

These "rereforms" will not come overnight, but they are among the changes to come, according to the men in a position to make them.

BID FOR A SMILE

It was the last day of grammar school and the students were saying goodbye for the Summer vacation. As some of the little girls went up to say their farewells to the pretty teacher, they were crying, to the complete mystification of the little boys in the classroom.

One youngster watched the touching scene for a few moments and then commented to a companion:

"You know, I'm 10 years old, and I don't yet understand women!"

—O—

Visitor — How did you find things down on the farm this summer? Crops good, I hope.

Junior — Well, father did fairly well on his barbecue, but he just about broke even on his gasoline and oil.

The bartender shoved a large shot of whiskey across the bar. The stranger picked it up with one hand, held his nose with the other and closed his eyes. Then he downed it in one gulp.

Bartender (smiling) — It isn't all that bad, it is?

Stranger — Oh, no, if I see it or smell it any mouth waters and dilutes the darn stuff.

—O—

Hankering

By HENRY McLEMORE

McLemores Are Back In USA And Glad Of It

Dinner in Paris, lunch in Florida.

From frogs' legs to black-eyed peas in nothing flat.

That's fast enough. They can call off the missiles.

When a man can make it all the way from parlez-vous to take-two - and - butter - 'em - while-they're - hot in the time it took me to get from Paris to my mother's house, there's no need for improvement in travel.

Any faster, and I would have greeted Mother with an "oo-la-la" and my brother with a kiss on the cheek. Mary and I didn't even have time to teach Charlie, our French poodle, how to bark "You all" or "Yes, ma'am," or get him accustomed to pot likker, and not sauce Bearnaise, on his dog meal.

We left Paris after an early dinner, and by the time I had read far enough in my whodunit to find out that the butler didn't commit the murder, our TWA plane was letting down for New York. A cup of coffee or two later and Eastern had us on the way to Florida.

That's omving along, especially when you remember that it was only a few years ago when such a hop would have taken a coon's age. It was only as long ago as the early 1940's that a trip across the ocean by plane was an adventure. The people who did were pioneers of a sort. I made my first crossing in a DC-4, and at that time it looked like the biggest plane that man would ever dream of, much less build.

Flying down from New York I recalled the day that I first flew the route. That was back in 1931 or 1932, and it was a press flight from New York to Atlanta, with stops at Washington, Richmond, Raleigh, and almost any other city with an airfield big enough to eplanes that were on the flight. handle the strange assortment of planes that were on the flight.

There was Curtiss Condor, I remember, and a Stout tri-motor, and several other jobs out of which Orville and Wilbur Wright could have stepped without looking out of place.

The airfields were barely adequate even for such planes as these, and we were greeted at the field in Atlanta as brave, fearless explorers. Which we were, now that I look back on the flight. I'd think twice before taking it again.

And it was just after that, I believe, that Eddie Rickenbacker, Jim Kilgallen of INS, Roy Howard, and myself, set a cross-country record by flying a brand new DC-2 (that's right, DC-2) from Burbank to Newark, with one stop at Kansas City. We made it in around 12 hours, I recall, and to make it Eddie had to come downhill, and pour on the coal, from about Pittsburgh on in. And we wouldn't have come as fast as we did had we not stayed in California for a week or so waiting for a strong wind to help blow us across.

That DC-2 seemed to be the last word in planes then, and now you could fly it in the door of some of toay's planes.

I guess I'd better say I'm glad to be home. Well, I sure am! Europe's might nice, but if you think it can tie the shoes of the USA, then you never have stayed over there for a long time and then had the thrill and pleasure of getting back home.

As far as countries go, ours is Heaven with high octane milk and honey.

FARMING THE TAXPAYER
(Chicago Daily Tribune)

Secretary of Agriculture Benson is described as flabbergasted by the fact that 9,000 Illinois farmers have already availed themselves of his offer to retire their entrie acreage from production and sit back collecting soil bank payments expected to average around $13 an acre.

Mr Benson had made similar offers to farmers in the states of Maine, Nebraska, and Tennessee. He wanted to run a test to see whether the government could get off more easily by puting entire farms into the soil bank than by paying crop subsidies on surplus production.

So far 8,000 Tennessee farms have been registered with him for idle soil bounties, and 3,000 in Nebraska, and the end is not in sight. Maine, where the planting season is later, has another month to go before entries for the soil bank are closed.

As no computation has yet been made of total acreage involved, no one can say how big a cash outlay must be made by the department of agriculture in the four-state experiment, but it will be very large. We can see no reason for Secretary Benson to be surprised at the harvest in reverse that he is getting.

If somebody were to propose that a newspaper, being overstaffed, could put a specified number of reporters on the shelf at full pay, to be met out of the public treasury, we imagine that both editors and reporters would jump at the chance.

If a couple of thousand bankers were encouraged to take themselves out of business at the taxpayers' expense, why should they hesitate to go off, with no headaches and nothing to do, to Tucson, Palm Beach, or Santa Barbara?

Why should farmers as a class be given such a break when no other working group is similarly favored? And why should anybody be surprised when they take advantage of the chance to come into a nice income without risking any of the normal hazards and toil of farming their lands? No worries about weather, about erosion, about drought, corn borers, fire ants, blight, or anything else.

In justice to Mr. Benson, it must be said that he did not invent any of the silly schemes for underwriting the security of agriculture. The soil bank was unloaded on him in a political attempt to stop the grumbling of farmers in 1956. The secretary has been a tireless critic of the idiocies of the program of government intervention and bounties. Only last Tuesday he complained that 10 billion dollars had been wasted since 1950 on these schemes.

Yet Congress goes on trying to cultivate farm votes by farming the taxpayers. The craziness of the whole venture was neatly set forth in a letter recently read to his colleagues by Sen. Goldwater of Arizona. A constituent wrote

"My friend Bordeaux over in Pima county received a $1,000 check from the government this year for not raising hogs. So I am going into the not-raising-hogs business next year. What I want to know is, in your opinion, what is the best kind of farm not to raise hogs on and the best kind of hogs not to raise?

"The hardest work in this business is going to be in keeping an inventory of how many hogs I haven't raised. I plan to operate on a small scale at first, holding myself down to about 4,000 hogs, which means I will have 380,000. Now these hogs I will not raise will not eat 100,000 bushels of corn. So will you pay me for not raising 100,000 bushels of corn not to feed the hogs I am not raising?"

This ludicrous presentation of the daffy farm program does not overstate the realities, yet this lunacy is passionately defended with the utmost solemnity by our wise men in Washington.

"I'd like something stunningly sophisticated that will still meet with my father's approval!"

Negro, White Choirs Will Sing Monday

By JUD DIXON
United Press Staff Correspondent

DALLAS (UP)— Negro and white choirs will blend voices Monday night in a musicale at one of Dallas' biggest white churches. It's the seventh anniversary of an idea Dr. Glen Johnson got from a series of racial bombings in 1950.

"Music is the logical expression in such things (as racial relations) because there are no bounds or lines," Johnson, who is minister of music at the First Methodist Church in Dallas, said. "All people respond to the message of songs," he said.

Johnson decided that the church had the only answer to the series of home bombings when Negro families moved into a South Dallas neighborhood in 1950.

"The community needed help in staving off similar incidents."

Benefit Programs Given

The first year, he took the First Methodist Church choir around to Negro churches, where benefit programs were put on. The money went to buy robes, pianos and other equipment for the Negro church choirs.

Later, Johnson went to the Negro schools to rehearse their choirs.

Johnson calls the musicale the "Festival of Brotherhood." Monday night it will feature choirs from Lincoln, Madison and Booker T. Washington Negro schools, in addition to First Methodist and Oak Lawn Methodist Church choirs. There will be 300 voices in the massed choir for the performance of "The Ordering of Moses."

Anonymous letters and cards critical of the program began coming in when it was started. Most of these came from outside of Dallas, and some from outside the state, Johnson reported.

Women Got Letters

Several hundred women in Dallas got anonymous letters one year after attending one of the integrated performances.

"Your purchase of a ticket is in effect your vote for integration," the letters said.

A native Texan, whose father served in the Confederate Army, wrote that he grew up "in an attitude of white supremacy.

"But when I look at it in the light of the Sermon on the Mount . . . I cannot conceive of Him playing favorites," he said.

Mrs. Maurine F. Bailey, choral director at Lincoln (Negro) High School which has appeared in five performances, said music "is a universal language which speaks to everyone."

Music is a better means of good racial relations than any other, she said.

Muradeli did not mention where the jazz was recorded, but presumably it came from shortwave broadcasts.

'Pants Bandit' Strikes Again In Dallas

bandit" struck again in Dallas Wednesday night and this time apparently made the best haul in his infrequent but colorful career.

The bandit, apparently the same one who has pulled similar robberies in Dallas over the past several months, held up the Tower Hotel Courts Wednesday night and made off with $1,000 in cash.

He pulled a gun on night manager Gordon McCord and two other men in the motel office and ordered them into a back room. He then made the three take off their pants, took them to the front of the building and tied knots in the legs of their trousers.

Before fleeing, the bandit broke a set of headphones on the motel switchboard and took another set with him.

Police said there was little doubt that he was the same man who had been dubbed "the pants bandit" because he always makes his victims take off their trousers to discourage pursuit after he robs them.

The 16-year-old Negro girl will stay with friends of Mrs. Bates in New York.

Minnie Jean was expelled by the Little Rock School Board last Monday on recommendation of School Supt. Virgil T. Blossom. He said she had been involved in five racial incidents since the school was forcibly integrated under protection of federal paratroopers last September.

The girl's mother, Mrs. W. B. Brown, said Dr. John J. Brooks, principal of the New York school, had offered Minnie Jean a scholarship to the racially integrated, experimental private school. It has an enrollment of 432 students.

44 Killed In Blast On Freighter

BAHREIN, Persian Gulf (UP) —A dynamite explosion which blew up the new 7,440-ton British freighter Seistan Sitra Wednesday took 44 lives, officials announced today.

The ship had 63 persons aboard —12 Britons, 50 Indians and 1 Chinese—when its cargo of dynamite blew up Wednesday night. Capt. W.A. Chappell was among the casualties, but the 11 other Britons survived, including his wife and small son.

Small boats buzzed about the harbor today trying to pull the bodies from the wreckage beneath the surface. Officials said there appeared no hope of salvaging the wreck.

Rescue work was made more dangerous because part of the dynamite cargo in the hold was still burning below water.

The Seistan Sitra was enroute to Basra in the Persian oil fields with a cargo which included 150 tons of dynamite when a small fire broke out in her hold two days ago, officials said.

The crew managed to keep the fire under control and the ship headed for Bahrein, the nearest port. On arrival here, 80 tons of dynamite were unloaded with the fire still smouldering.

The remainder was to be unloaded today but the ship blew up at 1 p.m. local time Wednesday.

Harvesters At Plainview Tonight

And Charlie Lynch Comes Forward

Tech Is Riding High On The Hog Alongside Arkansas Razorbacks

By ED FITE
United Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (UP)— Texas Tech is riding high on the hog alongside the Arkansas Razorbacks atop the Southwest Conference basketball race and as a result forward Charlie Lynch has lost his distinction as Tech's "forgotten man."

Lynch, a junior letterman starter all season, has been contributing mightily all along to Tech's phenomenal debut into conference competition, but most of the headlines have gone to a pair of teammates — Leon (Podd) Hill and Gerald Myers.

But, Lynch has burst into the spotlight in his own right during the recent hectic drive that has carried Tech to a first-place tie with Arkansas with only four games left on the schedule.

Lynch Hitting Good

Tech has won three of its last four games, including a crucial one over Arkansas, and in that four-game span Lynch has pumped in 79 points while hitting from the floor at a .516 pace.

Even more important, he's been exceptionally rugged under the basket despite his slight build (170 pounds on a 6-2 frame).

In the critical game against Arkansas, a notoriously tough customer in the rebound department, Lynch not only poured in 25 points, but he came up with a dozen vital rebounds and held the Razorbacks' high-scoring ace, Freddie Grim, to a measly eight points.

"Lynch no longer is any unsung hero on this club," Coach Polk Robison said today as he looked forward warily to Saturday night's tension-packed battle with defending champ Southern Methodist in Dallas. SMU and Rice share second place at 6-4.

Good on Rebounds

"He's been the lifesaver and helped pick up the slack when either or both Hill and Myers get cold," Robison said. "Lynch manages to get the rebounds against his taller rivals because of his timing and uncanny knack of getting into the right position when the ball bounces off the board or basket."

Lynch has had several fouls called on him because of this cat-like quickness. He pivots and starts under the boards so quickly after an opponent has shot that often the shooter will run him down. It is a matter of judgment of course, but in most cases Lynch has drawn the foul rather than the shooter.

Lynch has averaged nearly 14 points per game in league play and most of them come on his particularly effective drive-ins, which deceive his guard because he suddenly pulls up short in the midst of his drive, then breaks down the base line before his foe realizes what has happened.

Eddie Southern Feels Frisky Again

TODAY'S SPORTRAIT
(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
By O. B. LLOYD JR.
United Press Sports Writer

AUSTIN (UP)— Easy-going Eddie Southern is feeling frisky again and that may well serve as a warning to the nation's quarter-milers that they had best look to their laurels while they can.

The slender University of Texas junior, who finished second in the Olympic 400 meter hurdles and who concentrated on the timber events last season, plans to discard the hurdles entirely this year and go for broke in the muscle-straining 440-yard dash.

There are few hurdlers in the nation who can match strides with the slightly-built six-foot Dallas youngster who was running circles around college athletes while still in high school.

Likes High Hurdles

But, Southern and his coach, Clyde Littlefield, feel that the versatile 20-year-old flash has a better potential in the long sprint and also can be of more value to the school's relay teams if he abandons the timber-topping.

Actually the one thing Southern would like to do most is run the high hurdles. But, he has come no closer than 13.9 seconds to the 13.5 goal he had set for himself for the 120-yard highs. And, he hasn't been able to get under 14 seconds flat consistently.

Littlefield has an explanation for that.

"He's a little stiff in the upper part of his body and doesn't coordinate his arm and body action at the top of the hurdle as well as he should," the veteran Longhorn coach said.

Mile Relay Anchor

So, Southern says that since he can't hit that peak of under-14 flat consistently, he's decided that "you ought to do what you are most capable of doing."

Littlefield wants Southern to anchor the mile relay team as well as run the open 440 and he may even use him in the same role on the sprint relay quartets at 440 and 880 yards. He couldn't do those things and run the hurdles, too.

Southern's open 440 records might not startle anyone as yet, but Littlefield is looking for some sparkling performances by late season.

Better Mood Now

He's never been timed under 47 seconds in the quarter from out of the blocks, but the stopwatches have clocked 46.4 and 46.5 in relay legs.

Too, Southern feels he is in a much better mood, both physically and mentally, this season than last.

"I was a little tired last year," he said, "because I'd been running about two years without any break due to the Olympics.

"I feel a lot friskier now."

Senior Circuit Schedule Is Announced

CINCINNATI (UP)— After one false start, the National League announced its official 1958 schedule today, including Los Angeles and San Francisco for the first time in history and an all-time record total of 274 night games.

National League officials originally had planned to announce their schedule on Jan. 24, but they had to go to work and draw up a new one when several of the Dodger dates conflicted with other events previously slated for their Memorial Coliseum ball park in Los Angeles.

The Dodgers ironed out their difficulties by scheduling four twi-night doubleheaders at home.

Los Angeles opens the season at San Francisco on April 15 and after a three-game series, the Giants travel south to Los Angeles for another three-game series with the Dodgers there beginning April 18.

All National League clubs will appear on the West Coast by April 29 with the exception of the world champion Milwaukee Braves and Cincinnati Redlegs, who make their first official visit to California on June 3. Milwaukee, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia now constitute the Eastern Division of the league.

This year's night game total represents an increase of 13 over the 261 scheduled last year, which was the previous National League high.

The Philadelphia Phillies are listed to play the most night games at home, 47, an increase of four over last year.

Pittsburgh made the biggest increase in its night game schedule, going from 27 a year ago to 33. The Cubs will continue their policy of no night ball at home.

The Pirates are scheduled for the most doubleheaders at home—11. The Dodgers will play seven twinbills, including the four twi-nighters.

In addition to the Giants-Dodgers inaugural on April 15, other opening day pairings call for Philadelphia at Cincinnati; Pittsburgh at Milwaukee, and Chicago at St. Louis in a night game.

The annual All-Star game will be played at Baltimore, July 8, and the National League season winds up Sept. 28.

Temple, Duke Win Big Ones

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press Sports Writer

If Temple and Duke wind up as opponents in the NCAA basketball tournament next month—and it could happen in the Eastern regionals—the sparks should fly.

Both teams know how to score—and they also know how to throw a headlock on the opposition.

The Blue Devils used a zone defense when they got into trouble against Navy Wednesday at Annapolis and rallied in the second half to down the Middies, 77-63, for their 10th straight victory.

Temple also had to resort to some slick defensive maneuvers against Wake Forest, "freezing" the ball for most of the final five minutes in turning back the Deacons, 61-49. It was the sixth-ranked Owls' 18th straight victory.

Middies Sunk

Duke switched into a zone defense when it fell behind, 48-44, at the eighth-minute mark of the second half. Almost before you could say James Naismith, the Blue Devils ripped off 16 straight points and the Middies were sunk.

Wake Forest wasn't considered in the same league with Temple but gave the Owls a scare by pulling to within five points of the lead with three minutes left. That's when the Philadelphians adopted their "deep freeze" tactics and they successfully fought off Wake Forest behind the deft ballhandling of Guy Rodgers.

Villanova, La Salle, Boston College and Bowling Green strengthened their bids for berths in the National Invitation Tournament by posting easy victories.

John Scott scored 19 points and Tom Brennan added 17 in leading Villanova to a 73-61 victory over Pennsylvania; La Salle turned back Scranton, 86-60, despite a 29-point barrage by the losers' Ed Kazakavich; Bowling Green defeated Kent State, 53-43, and Boston College ripped Suffolk, 72-50.

Pitt Warms Up

Pittsburgh, warming up for its appearance in the NCAA title chase, knocked off Carnegie Tech, 73-54. Niagara, an early NIT nominess, registered an easy 76-66 triumph over the Quantico Marines.

Undefeated Southwest Missouri State earned a berth in the NCAA Small College Tournament by whipping the Missouri School of Mines, 96-70, for its 19th straight victory; Steubenville College made St. Francis (Pa.) its 22nd straight victim, 65-45, and Kentucky Wesleyan upset Louisville, 83-69.

Elgin Baylor, the nation's leading scorer, faces easy pickin's again tonight when he leads Seattle against Montana State. Notre Dame plays NYU in its annual visit to Madison Square Garden while St. John's entertains St. Louis.

Chisox Sign 'Big Four' Of Their Pitchers

By UNITED PRESS

The Chicago White Sox today completed the signing of the $125,000 "big four" pitching staff they hope can win the American League pennant in '58.

Manager Al Lopez' front-line pitching was rounded out when Dick Donovan, 6-foot, 3-inch, 205-pound right-hander, agreed to terms for an estimated $28,000. A White Sox spokesman said Donovan received a 70 per cent raise—largest in the history of the club.

Donovan, who is scheduled to leave his Quincy, Mass., home today, is expected to join with Billy Pierce, Early Wynn and Bob Keegan to give the White Sox four starting pitchers the equal of any rival quartet in the league. Pierce, Wynn and Keegan signed previously for a total of about $97,000.

The New York Yankees announced that they have signed third-string catcher Darrell Johnson but that the "big one"—Mickey Mantle — got away. Mantle was supposed to meet with Lee MacPhail, Yankee director of personnel, at St. Petersburg, Fla., Wednesday, but never put in an appearance.

The big news at Lakeland, Fla., Wednesday, was that Harvey Kuenn had finally agreed to terms. Kuenn, who slumped from .332 in 1956 to .277 last season, is being shifted from shortstop to first base or the outfield. General Manager Johnny McHale said Kuenn accepted the club's original terms—in other words a cut.

George Crowe remained the Cincinnati Redlegs' only unsatisfied player when catcher Ed Bailey and pitcher Johnny Klippstein signed. The Pittsburgh Pirates signed outfielder-first baseman Paul Smith and the Boston Red Sox revealed the signing of pitcher Gary Blaylock.

What is proclaimed as the world's largest roofing tile plant is located at New Lexington, Ohio.

Yardley Nearing Record

By UNITED PRESS

George Yardley of Detroit needs only 217 points in the Pistons' nine remaining games to become the National Basketball Association's greatest single season scorer.

Yardley, the balding former Stanford University star, canned 43 points Wednesday night in leading the Pistons to a 117-115 victory over the Minneapolis Lakers in overtime and ran his season scoring total to 1,716 in 63 games.

George Mikan, the former Lakers star, set the NBA single season point scoring record of 1,932 during the 1950-51 season.

The Syracuse Nationals handed the New York Knickerbockers a 116-110 defeat which dropped the New Yorkers two full games behind the Philadelphia Warriors in the battle for the last playoff spot in the Eastern Division. The Warriors improved their position by defeating the Boston Celtics, 123-103.

The Outright District Title Hinges On Final Season Tilt

By CHARLES CULLIN
Pampa News Sports Editor

Pampa's Harvesters can put the District 3-AAAA championship on ice with a victory tonight as they clash with the Bulldogs of Plainview there at 8 p.m.

Holding an undisputed leading role, the Harvesters have compiled 10 victories against a single defeat in loop action. A loss to the Bulldogs tonight would mean a play-off with Borger, ranking second in the district with nine wins and two losses, if they beat Palo Duro.

Presently, Plainview rests in the thrid spot, having recorded eight victories against three losses. For the season they stand at 23-4.

In gaining the leading role in the district, the Harvesters have defeated Amarillo, 76-61 and 56-52; Palo Duro, 75-63 and 102-60; Borger, 60-58; Monterey, 59-46 and 81-52; and Lubbock, 80-58 and 77-53.

The first clash earlier in the season between Plainview and Pampa went to the Harvesters, 64-57. Pampa's single loss came at the hands of the Borger Bulldogs, 69-63.

Offensively the Pampa cagers lead into the final game with the top mark in the district, having compiled 1,845 points for a 73.8 per game average. They have allowed their opponents a total of 1,424 points for 56.9 per game.

Individually senior guard Bill Brown still holds the top mark in the scoring column, for the Harvesters, having recorded 387 points for 15.4 per game. Running a close second, center Mack Layne has netted 347 points for 13.8 per game.

Should a playoff game become necessary it would be held either tomorrow or Saturday night as the deadline for deciding a champion is Saturday midnight.

The 3-AAAA champion will meet the Fort Worth winner either Monday or Tuesday night. At present, Poly and Paschal are in a three-game playoff for that title. The state tournament in Austin is set for March 6-7-8.

Holmes Wins Industrial Cage Title

The Holmes Conoco Industrial League basketball team clinched the city championship last night as they downed Magnolia, 83-68, in the Junior High gymnasium.

Pacing the winning offensive attack was Roy Poole, who netted 23 points for the evening. Running close behind Poole for the Holmes team were Gene Brown with 18, Fred Williams with 17 and James Lee with 12.

Dean Chilcoat nabbed high-point honors for the evening as he tossed 26 points for the Magnolia quintet. Don Patchin was second high for the losers with 17.

In taking the city championship the Holmes team went through its entire loop schedule without defeat. The team will now represent Pampa in the state TAAF tournament in Fort Worth, scheduled for March 7-8.

The Pampa league itself will not be completed until next Wednesday night.

Tiger Jones Wins Over Kid Gavilan

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP)— Middleweight Ralph (Tiger) Jones asked today for a match with any of the 160-pound contenders because of his comeback victory over Kid Gavilan Wednesday night in the first fight ever televised from a hotel.

Unmindful of the plush surroundings of the Club Siam in the brand new Carillon Hotel, Jones of St. Albans, N.Y., shuffled forward in every round and won an avenging split decision over the Cuban, which broke his own losing streak at four straight.

Gavilan, former welterweight champion, was favored at 8-5 in Wednesday's 10-rounder.

But, fighting there in the Siam Club — where the carpets seemed mattress soft and the life-sized statues of Siamese dancing girls stood unblinking during the fray—Jones' persistent hooking attack gained the verdict. There were no knockdowns.

Referee Billy Regan favored the Tiger, 97-96, as did Judge Carl Gardner, 97-95. But Judge Fred Aaronson had Gavilan in front, 97-94, because of his left hooks, straight rights and right "bolo" uppercuts. The United Press favored Gavilan, 96-95.

It was Gavilan's 29th defeat in 140 bouts, and Jones' 45th victory in 70.

J. Butcher Tops NAIA Scoring

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—John Butcher of Pikeville, Ky., College, with an average of 32.1 points a game for 27 outings, apparently has nailed down the scoring championship in National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics schools.

With the regular season nearing an end, the NAIA said today the 5-10 sharpshooter would have to have a major collapse in at least one game to miss out.

Charles Mayo of Bethel, Tenn., is second in the scoring race, averaging 29.1 through 18 games.

Only two new leaders emerged in NAIA statistics this week. Charlie Harrison of North Carolina A&T College took over in rebounding with a 24.4 average, pushing Jim Smith of Steubenville, Ohio, to second with 23.8. Bob Morgan of Eau Claire, Wis., took over the free throw accuracy lead from Joe Howell of North Carolina A&T by 87.2 to 86.8 per cent. Rod Polk of Paul Quinn, Tex., College held onto field goal honors at 66.1 per cent.

Team statistical leaders remained unchanged. West Virginia Tech upped its scoring average to 107 points a game. Stephen F. Austin of Texas held onto the team defense lead, limiting opponents to 48.3 points a game. St. Benedict's of Kansas was second with a 49.6 mark.

Score Says He's Not 'Gun Shy'

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP) — Herb Score, the Cleveland Indians' strike-out king, is convinced today that he hasn't become "gun shy" as a result of an accident which almost cost him his vision last season.

"Things are going along perfectly," said Score after pitching "live" to roommate Rocky Colavita for 10 minutes Wednesday. "I'm sure I'm not going to do any flinching, even though I don't expect to be a good fielder. I never was, anyhow."

Score, who was struck by a liner off the bat of Gil McDougiad May 7 and was sidelined the remainder of the 1957 season, pitched to a batter for the first time since then when he ordered Colavito in the batters' box. Score was protected only by the usual low screen in front of the mound.

Cards Sign Three Linemen

CHICAGO (UP)— The Chicago Cardinals today announced the signing of three University of Kansas linemen.

The players are tackles Tom Horner of Johnstonn Pa., a wet-pounder, Frank Gibson of Lawrence, Ohio, 225 pounds, and guard Bob Krause of Massillon, Ohio, 220 pounds.

Krause, the Jayhawks' captain last season, was regarded as one of the best blockers in the school's history.

Golf's Top Money Tourney, Houston Invitational, Opens

United Press Sports Writer
By LLOYD LARRABEE
United Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (UP) — Golfdom's top money tournament of the winter circuit, the $30,000 Houston Invitational classic, opens today with long - ball hitters given the edge over the 7,200-yard Memorial Park course.

San Francisco's Ken Venturi, only double winner on the winter tour thus far with victories at Palm Springs and Phoenix behind him, was favored as the four-day tourney got underway.

However, stiff competition was in store from a star-studded field.

Snead Missing

The 134 entrants included Jimmy Demaret, Jackie Burke, 1957 Houston champion Arnold Palmer, Doug Ford, Dow Finsterwald, George Bayer, Mike Souchak and Robert De Vicenzo, the latter from Mexico City.

But the tournament will be without such names as Sam Snead, Cary Middlecoff, Peter Thomson and Billy Casper, who were unable to come to Houston.

A chilling north wind bothered golfers as they fired practice rounds before the tourney's opening, and maximum temperatures in the low 50's were forecast today.

A dispute between officials of the Houston Golf Association and the PGA led to the tournament becoming an invitational this year instead of an "open" as in the past. The dispute centered around payment of fees and operation of the tournament.

Venturi Top Money Winner

Venturi is the leading money winner on the winter tour this year with $9,230, and will get a chance to widen his lead over the second - placer, Casper, who has bagged $9,158 thus far.

Palmer led a group of six former winners of the Houston tourney, including Johnny Palmer, Marty Furgol, Burke, Souchak, and Ted Kroll.

However, the "unknowns" included Johnny McMullin, 22-year-old Californian who took top honors Tuesday in a final qualifying round with a 69. Forty - nine golfers, with few "big names" among them, qualified. Other places had been filled by invitation.

Steubenville Tops Small Collegians

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—The Steubenville (Ohio) Barons, who specialize in going up for rebounds, landed on top today in the United Press small college basketball ratings.

The Barons, who boast the nation's top small college rebounder in 220-pound Jim Smith of Homestead, Pa., drew eight first-place votes and 359 points. The Wheaton (Ill.) Crusaders, No. 1 for the past four weeks, slipped to second with 21 first-place votes and 348 points.

The nation-wide board of small college coaches which rates the teams based its latest ballot on games played through Feb. 15.

Not As Many Firsts

The coaches gave Wheaton nearly three times as many first-place votes as Steubenville. But the Barons advanced from second to first by scoring heavily in second, third and fourth place votes. Steubenville received 19 votes for second, six for third and seven for fourth. Wheaton received six for second, four for third and two for fourth.

Each coach votes for 10 teams in the order in which he rates them. Points are awarded on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis.

Steubenville (22-1) had won 21 straight games through last weekend. Wheaton (20-1) had won 15 straight and 41 of its last 42 starts during the past two seasons.

Western Illinois (20-0) advanced from fourth to third with six first-place votes and 281 points. Evansville (Ind.) slipped from third to fourth with three first-place votes and 258 points.

The remainder of the top 10 remained in the same positions. Southwest Missouri State (18-0) was fifth and West Virginia Tech (24-3), highest-scoring team in college basketball this season, was sixth. Tennessee State A and I (22-2) was seventh, Texas Southern (19-3) eighth, Pacific (Wash.) Lutheran (15-2) ninth, and St. Peter's (N.J.) was 10th with a 16-2 record.

Boston University, Brandeis (Mass.), Belmont Abbey (N.C.), South Dakota, Pasadena (Calif.), Montana State, Grambling (La.), McNeese (La.), Regis (Colo.) and Louisiana Tech rounded out the top 20 in that order.

20 More Rebounds

Smith, who has scored more than 2,000 points and captured more than 2,200 rebounds in his college career, leads a Steubenville team that usually averages about 20 more rebounds than its opponents per game. He gets a lot of rebound support from Jack Cibulka, another 6-6 senior, and John Blanda, a 6-3 sophomore. Steubenville swamped Detroit Tech in its only game last week, 72-29.

Wheaton whipped Carroll (Wis.), Lewis (Ill.) and Augustana (Ill.) by comfortable margins last week and clinched its third straight College Conference of Illinois title.

Western Illinois remained undefeated by downing Eastern and Southern Illinois last week while Evansville started only against Kentucky Wesleyan, rated a major school in basketball by the NCAA and won, 89-88.

Ed Furgol Leaves Pro Golf Tour

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE
(Reg. U.S. pat. Off.)
By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)— The man who didn't know how to quit finally has.

Gaunt, dark-haired Ed Furgol, the battler with one good arm, for 13 years made a gallant run over the fairways of the world. And the man they called "Wingy" proved his class and his courage in 1954 by winning the U.S. Open golf championship.

But at last the one good arm has gone bad, too.

So, nearing 41 and discouraged with his play, Ed has left the pro golf tour. He's looking for a club job and everybody in the game hopes he gets the good one he deserves.

Lost His Speed

"I'm like a pitcher who has lost his speed," Ed explains disconsolately. "In order to compensate for my left arm, I have to whip the club through fast. I've lost some of my speed, so my drives are 25 yards shorter than they used to be and I can't get under my irons the way I should."

A year ago, Furgol suffered a torn tricep muscle in his right arm. Then, to complicate matters, he developed calcium deposits in his right elbow.

It was the arm which always had done the work of two.

For when Ed was a 12 year old, he fell in the school playground at his native Utica, N.Y., and shattered the left elbow. Repeated operations failed to help and the arm became rigid and withered. Ed refused to sit on the sidelines. He played all the usual schoolboy sports, including football and baseball, and as a caddy early learned a love of golf and a desire to play it with the best of them.

As an amateur, he went to Detroit and won medalist honors in the National Public Links championship and stayed there to work in an automobile factory.

Predicted Own Victory

As an amateur, he won 25 of the 33 events he entered and then in 1946 decided to take a crack at the pro tour. It wasn't easy.

Sitting in the clubhouse just before the 1954 Open started at Baltusrol, Ed was asked who he picked to win it. Modesty usually dictates the naming of Ben Hogan, Sam Snead or some such.

"I like my own chances," Ed said quietly. "After that, it's wide open."

That tournament is, at least, one golden memory he has to take with him.

Because a couple of days later he stood on the final tee needing a par five to win, and parlayed the withered arm and fighting heart into victory. He hooked his drive into the woods, gambled by slicing the ball up an adjacent, unused fairway, chipped to the apron and ran it down in two to beat Gene Littler by one shot.

The years of superhuman effort have caught up to Ed at last, however. But those in golf hope he lands the best club job in the land, for here is a man who would be an inspiration for any community.

Campy's Chances For A Complete Recovery 'Dim'

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (UP)—Roy Campanella's chances for a complete recovery are officially dim, but the stricken Los Angeles Dodger catcher's wife says she is "not discouraged."

The Glen Cove Community Hospital Wednesday issued a generally pessimistic bulletin which stated that Campanella has made no progress in the last two weeks in overcoming paralysis. The bulletin concluded, "The longer the paralysis remains unchanged, the less one can expect for the future."

"I think it's just going to take time," said Mrs. Ruthe Campanella. "Anything to do with the nerves takes time. Personally, I thought he showed some improvement today."

Campanella, the National League's most valuable player three times, suffered a broken neck in an automobile accident Jan. 28. Early bulletins from the hospital were hopeful but for the last two weeks they have merely reported his condition unchanged.

Don Pedro Chicote Runs A Bottle Museum In Madrid

United Press Staff Correspondent
By BOB ROONEY

MADRID (UP) — Don Pedro Chicote loves bottles. His office radio has a bourbon bottle for a loudspeaker. His phone is in a brandy keg. And the walls of his cellar hold 18,750 different brews and distillations.

But don't rush for Madrid just because you're thirsty. Nobody ever opens these bottles, not even Don Pedro, who is strictly a wine-and-soda man.

For Chicote, an abstemious ex-bartender, runs a museum, not a ginmill. It's probably the world's biggest one dealing with bottles of alcoholic content.

At It 40 Years

In an artfully decorated cellar layout on Madrid's main stem, Don Pedro Chicote happily displays the result of more than 40 years of collecting.

"It all started in 1916 when I was working as an assistant bartender in the Ritz Hotel here," said Don Pedro, who is now approaching 60.

"After a reception once, the Brazilian ambassador gave me a bottle of his country's 'aguardiente'.

"The other waiters got some, too, but they drank theirs. I saved mine."

Today, the museum that grew from that single bottle rivals even Madrid's famed collection of art treasures at the Prado as a tourist attraction and celebrity stop.

Bottles From Everywhere

He handed me a drink and said, "Look around. There are liquors here from every country in the world."

"I have been around the world twice on business and pleasure, and where I go, I collect.

"I also have one of the best 'spy networks' in the world. Whenever anything new comes on the market someone thinks of me."

He held up his latest acquisition. It was shaped like an earth satellite.

"Here is your famous 'Explorer,'" he said. "This came from New York just today and was given me by a friend."

How many bottles have been broken?

Don Pedro smiled.

"Only three in 20 years. That's not bad, I think."

Then he added:

"My guests are almost always sober."

"... and she's also the prettiest Mom on the block!"

A-Sleuths Are Tracking Down Rod's Origin

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UP) —Atomic sleuths have begun tracking down the origin and use of a tiny but potent radioactive source found beside a Texas highway near Ennis.

T. J. Haycock, of the Atomic Energy Commission's licensee inspection division here, said a tiny rod, about one-eighth of an inch long and no thicker than an ordinary pin, appeared to be cobalt-60.

The radioactive metal normally is inserted in nylon thread, then used to treat internal tissues for cancer, Haycock said.

The minute rod was found last week. The AEC today revealed its discovery and said the find near Ennis was reported by three Dallas brothers, Richard, C. J. and Clarence Heinen. They first noticed a strong reading on a radiation detection instrument two years ago while driving between Ennis and Caldwell, Tex.

President Grover Cleveland was the only U.S. president to be married in the White House, the event taking place in 1886.

Search For A Drug To Cure Cancer Now Is One Of Medicine's Costliest Projects

By JERRY BENNETT
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The search for a drug to cure cancer has mushroomed into one of the largest, most richly financed research projects in the history of medicine.

Nearly 1,000 scientific organizations are probing hundreds of drugs to find one that will successfully track down cancer anywhere in the body and destroy it.

This fiscal year 25 million dollars in Congressional appropriations are earmarked for the tremendous chemical investigation. This is five million dollars more than last year's amount. Hundreds of thousands of dollars also are coming from such organizations as the American Cancer Society and the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund.

And the army of highly skilled scientists working on the dramatic life saving project include representatives of the Atomic Energy Commission, private and government hospitals, industry, renowned universities, the U.S. Veterans' and Food and Drug Administrations and the National Cancer Institute of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesday, Md.

The gigantic undertaking is being coordinated by NIH's Cancer Chemotherapy National Service Center. It finances many of the research scientists with grants from this year's federal funds. Others are financed with private capital.

But all are striving to wipe out mankind's most dreaded disease killer with a complicated scientific program which Dr. John R. Heeler calls "one of the most active and promising areas in cancer research today."

The noted head of the National Cancer Institute is referring to chemotherapy, the medical technique of using drugs instead of surgery or X-ray to treat the deadly, malignant disease.

Already an important discovery has been made which strengthens the conviction of scientists that the greatest hope for a cancer cure lies in chemotherapy.

Dr. Roy Hertz of the National Cancer Institute recently was honored for finding that a drug formerly used to treat leukemia could destroy an extremely reare type of cancer which attacks women either just before or after child birth.

What scientists eventually hope to find are safe drugs whilch will cure all types of cancer no matter how much it has spread throughout the body.

Several compounds have been found which can knock out cancer if attacked in its early stages. But the amount of these drugs necessary to treat advanced cancer conditions is poisonous.

The potential danger of anti-cancer compounds is one of the main reasons why chemotherapy research is such a long, complicated process. Every compound must be thoroughly screened before ever being given to a human being, no matter how small the dose.

First a new drug is tried out on mice which have cancer to determine if it actualy combats the disease. A drug which proves effective is tested on other types of animals to see if it is poisonous. If this battery of tests show that the chemical compound is safe, preparations are made to give it to human beings.

CCNSC has received more than 40,000 compounds for screening since its testing operation started two years ago. And officials emphasize that the drugs are never given to people if there is any chance of danger.

While undergoing chemotherapy, patients still receive necessary standard treatment like regulated diets and blood transfusions. About 170 hospitals are presently giving anti-cancer drugs to patients in experiments designed to determine their life-saving power.

LABORATORY MOUSE with an implanted tumor gets the first test of a new chemical compound in search for a drug to cure cancer. The Tumor will be studied to determine whether the chemical has any anti-cancer activity.

Scientists Ask More Money For 'Tracking'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Scientists are seeking emergency funds from Congress to track as many as 21 new earth satellites expected to be fired by Russia and the United States this year, it was disclosed.

Testimony published by a House Appropriations subcommittee showed U.S. scientists believe Russia may try to launch a satellite each month for the rest of 1958.

That would make a maximum of 11 new Sputniks. In addition there are 10 more satellites—some of them only test vehicles—in the U.S. program this year.

Dr. Richard Porter, chairman of the U.S. earth satellite technical panel, talked of the launching plans in explaining the need for a $2,100,000 supplemental appropriation for the National Science Foundation.

Porter, in testimony given Jan. 23, said "we expect to have one Russian satellite a month" for the rest of the International Geophysical Year which ends Dec. 30.

Porter and other scientists who testified with him said one reason for the request for extra money was to pay costs of tracking the satellites already in orbit and those still to come. Funds also were sought to finance the speed-up in the U.S. satellite program, ordered after Russia launched its first Sputnik more than four months ago.

Draft Calls To Stay Constant

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army has announced that it will continue to draft about 13,000 men each month during 1958.

It said 13,000 would be needed in April, the same figure as for February and March. This is nearly double the draft quota at the end of 1957.

Army officials said the increase was required to offset large losses due to resignations or failure to reenlist.

CHICAGO — Dr. Wiliam Martin, the U.S. Army's director of research and development, describing the new battlefield missile, the Sergeant:

"The Sergeant represents a new weapons system ... technological developments. It can deliver a nuclear punch deep into enemy lines and its extremely accurate guidance system is invulnerable to any known enemy counter-measures."
