Generel Election Next Tuesday

Voters of the United States will go to the polls next Tuesday to decide who shall serve as President and Vice-President for the next four years. Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and John N. Garner of Texas are the nominees of the Democratic party. Herbert Clark Hoover of California and Charles Curtis of Kansas are the nominees of the Republican party. Other parties have nominees in the field but they are not considered in the running.

In Texas a hot scrap is in progress for the governorship between Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Democratic nominee and Orville Bullington, Republican nominee. Bullington is making a serious bid for the nomination and it is not unlikely that he will be the next governor of Texas. After the August run-off primary the Democratic convention at Lubbock certified Mrs. Ferguson as nominee of the party over Gov. Ross S. Sterling, who trailed her in the election by less than 4000 votes. Governor Sterling immediately filed suit in district court at Austin charging that fraud had been practiced and many illegal votes had been cast for Mrs. Ferguson in the primaries and claiming that he had secured the nomination by a substantial majority of thee legal votes cast. The courts, however, ruled against the governor because of lack of time in which to try the case. Since then he has openly declared that he would vote for Bullington for governor and many of his supporters will follow his lead.

SCHOOL BOARD URGES EARLY TAX PAYMENTS

The Loraine School Board, through its secretary Clyde Bennett, is urging an early payment of school taxes by citizens of the Loraine Independent School District. Mr. Bennett believes that the average person can pay his taxes in November just as well as he can in January, and he says the board can certainly use the money right now.

Already the public utilities have paid their taxes and Mr. Bennett believes that local people should have more interest in the school than those who have no direct interest. Pay your taxes just as early as you can.

Longhorn Phantom "On His Way"

Bohn Hilliard, Texas university half back, definitely stamped himself as all-conference material Saturday, when Texas beat Oklahoma 17 to 10 at Dallas. The elusive 170 pound sensation gained almost at will through the strongest Sooner team to visit Texas in years. Twelve to fifteen yards through half a dozen Oklahoma tacklers was a common thing for Hilliard, and his 95-yard run for a touchdown after receiving a punt left the Sooners dazed. The start of this run is shown in the photo. The game was played at the Texas State Fair before 25,000 spectators.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES;

Sunday will be the last Sunday of this conference year. Rev. Harrell will preach the last two sermons of this conference year, perhaps his last time to preach in Loraine, however we hope not. He is hoping to return for another year, but we never know just what conference will do. We only pray and trust the Lord there will be no change here.

Let every member be present for the last Sunday. Please make a special effort to come to church Sunday. If you haven't come much this year, wont you be there Sunday. Surely everyone will make a special effort to be present. We want to make the last Sunday a great day and it will not be what it should be unless you are there. May we count on you? A special invitation is extended to visitors.

We will have the gas connected at the church this week so you be there next Sunday. The Sunday School lesson text is found in Psalms 72:9-17, Ephesians 2:13-19.

ELVIANS S. S. CLASS

Judge Hall's Sunday School class was the guest of the Elvians at the home of Miss Oneta Robert's Hallowe'en night. Each arrival was met by a ghost and taken to the door where he had to shake hands with an icy handed ghost and eat worms amid weird moans and screams. He was then led through the chamber of horrors. After this he emerged into more pleasant surroundings, a dimly lit, charmingly decorated parlor. Having found out who was there besides himself, he then turned to such games as bobbing for apples, hunting his fortune, learning the name of his future mate, hunting peanuts, horse races, automobile A bonfire was started outside and out he went to get warm and play "three deep". There was apples, popcorn, and peanuts to eat during the evening, and refreshments were yellow and black cake and hot chocolate.

To those persons scared away by ghosts: you certainly missed a good time.

Girls, if you do not attend Sunday School and should be in the Elevian class, read Genesis 5-11 and come to Sunday School next Sunday. They are having an attendance contest and Bible lessons that you will enjoy.

Dr. P. C. Coleman Died Saturday

Dr. P. C. Coleman, 79, known as "The Grand Old Man of West Texas," died in Colorado at 5:02 Saturday afternoon—after more than half a century of service to West Texas. During this time he has been the only president his home town chamber of commerce has ever had. He has served the Texas Medical Society as president and led the fight for a state institution of higher learning in West Texas, which resulted in Texas Tech.

Death came Saturday afternoon at the C. L. Root Hospital in Colorado following a long illness, and his being removed home from a Dallas hospital Monday night that his last hours might be spent in the town he loved so well.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, from the First Presbyterian church, with the Rev. W. M. Elliott officiating. Burial was in the Colorado cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, one son, Dr. Reaves Coleman, attached to the Veterans Bureau Hospital in Washington, D. C., and three daughters, Mrs. J. M. Lewis of Colorado, Miss Mildred Coleman of Colorado and Mrs. Rowland Burchard of Lake Hughes, California.

While a past president of the state medical association, he was, at the time of death, West Texas counsellor for the organization. For 16 years he served on the board of Austin College at Sherman, and was an honorary president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Coleman was one of the instigators of the move which later resulted in the founding of Texas Tech at Lubbock, and to this day he is known as the father of the institution.

Year after, ever since the Colorado Chamber of Commerce was organized, Dr. Coleman has been re-elected as its president. Last December the board elected him to the presidency for his 23rd term.

A few years ago a magazine spoke of Dr. Coleman in this manner:

"Here is a man, a doctor, who has the distinction of escorting more than 2,000 babies into the world. Speaking of useful occupations, beat that if you can!"

Dr. Coleman became a physician just as his father before him had so served the world, and his son is now doing. His father was Dr. W. P. Coleman of Rutherford County, Tennessee. His mother's great-grandfather was Dr. Lunsford Pitts Yandell, a medical corps member of the Colonial Army.

Dr. Coleman was born near Murfreesboro, Tenn., on Jan. 2, 1853. His medical education, following a boyhood of hard work, was begun at thee University of Nashville, where he received his degree in 1874. After eight years of practice in his native county, he started for Texas, looking for another location.

He arrived at the young city of Colorado on Jan. 20, 1883, just after his thirtieth birthday, and has been there since. At that time Colorado had a population of about 3,000 persons and was the largest cattle shipping point in Texas. There were 19 doctors practicing when he arrived, but there was lots of room—his practice ranged a hundred miles to the north and 50 to the south, and he outlived all his colleagues.

Dr. Coleman was known as the father of Mitchell County schools as well as for his efforts in securing Texas Tech. When he arrived at Colorado there was no school, but he took it upon himself to remedy the situation. In 1890 he was made president of the school board and served 16 years. Since that time he was placed back on the board, and only recently a school in Colorado was named in his honor, at appropriate exercises, at which he and Mrs. Coleman were present and took part.

To eight o'clock Wednesday night a total of 5,204 bales of cotton had been ginned in Loraine.

On November 8, 1932, at the general election to be held in Texas, the voters will be given an opportunity to vote for or against a proposed constitutional amendment, along with other amendments to be voted on at the same time:

"permittingof ficers and enlisted men of the National Guard, and the National Guard Reserve, and officers of the Officers Resedve corps of the United States, and retired officers of the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and retired warrant officers, and retired enlisted men of the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps, to hold other offices or positions of honor, trust or profit under this state or the United States, and to vote at any election; general, special or primary, in this State when otherwise qualified."

Under the 5th Subdivision of Section 1, Article 6 of our present constitution the following persons are not permitted to vote:

"All soldiers, marines and seamen, employed in the service of the Army or Navy of the United States."

Under Section 33, Article 16 of said constitution it is not permissible for any person to receive compensation or salary from the State if he holds any other office under the State or the United States.

Under Section 40, Article 16 of said constitution no person is permitted to hold more than one civil office except that of justice of peace, county commissioner, notary public and postmaster, unless otherwise specially provided in said constitution.

If this amendment is adopted it would not give these newly enfranchised citizens a right to vote at the place where they are temporarily stationed but only at the places of their respective residence.

Current Comment From Washington

No one ever becomes quite blase enough to lose entirely his interest in the new. Parents probably will always be eager to get a peek at the prospective daughter-in-law. Later, the baby draws the attention of the neighborhood. It is hard to wait until the new car is delivered. Will the fresh paper really hide the old crack in the parlour wall?

Washington just now is wondering what novelties the city will take on after the ides of November. Will the cautious and diplomatic congress of last year, having like Hamlet's mother, one eye that was wet and another that was dry, turn into a merry company clamoring loudly for beer? Will the capitol house a handful of licked and lamenting Democrats, or will it become a sort of old soldier's home, in which a few limping Repulicans expose their scars, and begin their war yarns with the doleful "if"? Is the White House to be opened after election day by simply bringing in the milk and letting out the cat, or will the doorway be hidden by a cloud of dust from a new broom?

In any event, the result will be just what might have been expected, a stern rebuke to somebody, an unmistakable expression of confidence in somebody else. Which ever way it goes, the real time for counting the votes will be, not next November, but some years hence, and the tabulation will show that the politicians won.

A paper avers that abundant yields grown by the jobless have been canned by "their women" for winter. The statement grates upon the ear of many readers, and if intendeed as a compliment to the home-keeping part of the household, is certainly a poorly-phrased one. It is true that an eminent devine, preaching efore Queen Victoria, addressed her as "woman", but he did not succeed in establishing a satisfactory precedent. There is a gross coarseness in the remary that, in a pinch, somebody's "woman" did the preserving for him. Mr. Browning is too deep for most of us, but let us think that he had even so commonplace a service as the faithfulness of the Iowa kitchen-canners in mind when he wrote: "She, when disciples fled, could danger brace; last at the cross and earliest at the grave."

UPTURN NOTED IN FACTORIES AND PAYROLLS

Washington.—Increase in industrial activity factory employment, payroll totals and railroad commodity shipments from August to September was reported by the Federal Reserve board in its monthly review of business and financial conditions.

The board said that industrial activity and commodity movement increased by considerably more than the usual seasonal margin while the advance in the volume of factory employment and payrolls also was greater than usual for the time of year. After advancing for three months the general level of prices showed a decline early in September.

Industrial production, the board said, increased from a low point of 58 per cent of the 1923-25 average, in July to 60 per cent in August and 66 per cent in September.

The advance in September reflected chiefly large increases in activity at textile mills, shoe factories, meat packing establishments and coal mines," the report said. "In the steel industry, where activity had shown none of the usual seasonal increase in August, operations expanded considerably during September and the first three weeks of October to about 20 per cent of capacity. Daily average output of automobiles and lumber in September showed little change from recent low levels."

Factory employment increased from 58.8 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in August to 60.3 per cent in September, the board said. Considerable increases were reported in the cotton, woolen, silk, hosiery and clothing industries and smaller increases at car building shops, ofundries, cement mills and furniture factories. In the automobile, tire and electrical machinery industries employment declined.

"Wholesale commodity prices showed little change from August to September," the board said. "During August and early September there was a general advance in prices followed by a decline which continued through the first half of October, when the average was 2 per cent below the high point in early September and one per cent above the low point of early summeer. Substantial decreases ocurred after the beginning of September in prices of many domestic agricultural commodities, including cotton, grains and livestock and also in prices of gasoline, nonferrous metals and imported raw materials, while prices of wool, worsted yarns, coals and lumber increased somewhat during this period."

Bud Mahoney and family of Coahoma and Mr. and Mrs. Leola Parker of Westbrook were Sunday guests of Will Mahoney and family.

THE FIRST STATE BANK

BARNETT NEWS

School opened Monday morning with an enrollment of 25. A number of patrons were present. An interesting program was rendered with all present taking some part. Plans were made for organizing a P. T. A. at an early date. We felt indeed honored to have Mr. Stewart, our County Superintendent, with us at this opening session. He brought three Sweetwater visitors and casually introduced them as Mr. Boswell, State Health Examiner, Mrs. Roan, organizer of a school for delinquents, and Miss Flanagan, who checked all poor grades and gave intelligence tests. A look of dismay stole over the children's faces at the thought of being at the mercies of such a trio all in one day. Then Mr. Stewart explained that he was merely playing a Hallowe'en joke on them. The visitors were only some of his neighbors. After a sigh of relief, all present were ready to enjoy the splendid address given by Mr. Stewart on the rank of our State as to size, products, and education. At the close he gave us the names of things that were emblematic of Texas as follows:

Flower—Bluebonnett.
Tree—Pecan.
Bird—Mocking Bird.
Nickname—Lone Star.
Motto—Friendship.
Song—Texas, Our Texas.

After school hours Miss Alida Macune and Miss Birdie Robertson motored to Sweetwater to secure additional text books as well as others from the library. Misses Abilene Gabler and Irene Sauer accompanied them.

R. B. McEntire and R. H. Bennett and families were Colorado visitors Monday.

Miss Faith Gover and her grandmother, Mrs. Gardner of Snyder, are spending a few days with relatives.

G. S. Richey of John Tarleton College at Stephenville spent the week end with home folks.

The mission Sunday School is still going fine. Twenty-one boys and girls are working for the New Testament as a gift for perfect attendance for one quarter. Our Superintendent, Mr. Lee Crownover, introduced his mother from Munday, Texas, to the Sunday School at a recent meeting. She is more than ninety years old. She has been a Christian and a worker in the Baptist church for seventy-eight years. She is in splendid health and is a living example of the oft-repeated slogan that "One never gets too old to go to Sunday School." The men of our community should hear the next lesson, "The Christian and World Peace". In memory of Armistice Day a few short talks will be made by members of the adult class. Why not have 100 percent attendance of the whole community next Sunday?
